Optimists honor 3 police officers for exemplary service

In the wake of the Los Angeles riots, the 10th annual "Respect for Law Award Breakfast" held by the Lakeshore Optimist Club recently took on added significance.

"We've seen an example last week of what occurs when the rule of law is broken," said Dennis Archer, former Michigan Supreme Court justice and guest speaker. "So it is fitting that you pause today and honor those who serve the law and the community."

Optimists Clubs across the country celebrate Law Day each year by holding an awards ceremony sometime within the first two weeks of May.

For the past several years, the Lakeshore chapter - which has members from the Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores - has honored private citizens who have helped police catch criminals, or who have otherwise gone out of their way to promote law and

At the Lochmoor Club in Grosse Pointe Woods last Wednesday, the Lakeshore Optomists broke with tradition and honored three public safety officers who have outstanding work and community service records.

Nominated by their public safety directors, the honorees were Robert Ireland, a 12-year veteran of the Grosse Pointe Farms public safety department; Robert Kwiatkowski, a 20-year veteran of the Grosse Pointe Woods public safety department; and Stephen Poloni, a five-year veteran of the Grosse Pointe Shores public safety department.

Farms public safety director Robert Ferber said Ireland was nominated for his "day-to-day work," and for the countless hours he has spent on his own

"Bob's being honored not necessarily for the heroic things he's done, although he's been honored for those kinds of things in the past," Ferber said. "He's being honored today for what he does every day. Like other officers, when he stops someone for a traffic violation, he never knows what to expect. He puts his life on the line every time. "He's also being honored for the kind of things he doesn't get paid for, that he does on his time, and for his interest in his own kids and yours.'

After accepting his plaque, Ireland thanked the Optomists and Ferber and said, "All I can say is that I truly love my job.'

Grosse Pointe Woods public safety director Jack Patterson called Kwiatkowski "a policeman's policeman" in his nomination letter.

He has the highest record of successfully completed cases (in the detective bureau) of any officer who has been in the Woods over the past 20 years, the director said.

Kwiatkowski has "an undaunting determination and investigates every case until it comes to some kind of closure," Optimist master of ceremonies Joseph Gualtieri said, reading from the nomination letter.

Also, Kwiatkowski makes

Condominium plan presented in Park

By Donna Walker

A local business couple has proposed building condominiums for senior citizens on the north side of Jefferson, between Nottingham and Lakepointe, in Grosse Pointe Park.

Diamond and Marge Phillips presented their plan to the Park city council on Monday.

The plan calls for a threestory, Colonial-style condominium complex with 27 units and covered parking for 54 cars at the rear of the building.

Most of the condominiums would have two bedrooms. One and three-bedroom units would also be available.

The tentative price of a two-bedroom unit would be about $200,000, the Phillips' architect, John Vitale, said.

Each condominium would be one-story, and their front doors would face an inside corridor. An elevator in the first-floor central lobby would provide access to the corridors on the second and third levels, and there would be several emergency stairway exits, Vitale said.

"We want to build these condominiums for mostly seniors,' Diamond Phillips said. "Of The Phillips own most of the property on the north side of Jefferson between Nottingham and Lakepointe, including the Old Place Restaurant, Crown Cleaners and the Wilhelm Funeral Home (at Beaconsfield and Jefferson).

Their condominium plan would involve tearing down the funeral home and the dry cleaners, and possibly the restaurant, Marge Phillips said.

It would also involve getting permission from the city to permanently close Beaconsfield at Jefferson and purchasing a vacant lot between the restaurant and the dry cleaners that the city owns.

The Esquire Theatre stood on that lot until it was torn down in September 1989 by a company hired by the city.

In its later days, the Esquire was a $1-a-seat movie theater. The city condemned it in February 1988, saying it did not conform to the city's zoning ordinances and that it was not compatible with the master plan for the revitalization of the business district

After a long legal battle over the condemned property, the Park agreed to purchase the Esquire from Michigan Theaters for $435,000, and to pay Michigan Theaters' legal fees.

The total price the city paid for the theater came close to $500,000, said Park city manager Dale Krajniak. Before the city can sell the vacant lot, it must advertise for bids on the property to determine its fair market price.

The council authorized Krajniak to begin advertising for bids on the property, and sent the Phillips' plan to the planning commission and Downtown Development Authority (DDA) for review and recommendation

"I think it's exciting," Mayor Palmer T. Heenan said. "I'm very upbeat about it, and that we have residents like Diamond Phillips who have been here for a long time and who want to improve the commun-

He said he now knows the reason, but it has nothing to do with his busy life.

"I figured it out. It's from growing up in a large family," said Denomme, who comes from a family of eight where mealtime, in the age of pre-nuclear, procreation families, meant survival of the fittest.

Denomme, owner of Village Records and Tapes in Grosse Pointe, has been involved in music since receiving his first paycheck at 16 as a member of a high school band called The Trespassers.

"Music has been my whole life. I've been supporting myself, in part or in whole, by playing or selling music since 1966," he said.

Denomme played in organized groups for another four vears after graduating from Austin Preparatory, an all-male high school in Detroit, in 1969.

After marrying the former Mary Barrett in 1974 and taking a short sabbatical from playing in bands, Denomme joined a trio called My Three Sons which, "embarrassingly enough, played early '70's soft rock," he said.

Even though some of the music he's played from the 1970s still makes him wince, Denomme knew he had to be flexible in order to pay the bills. So while his fingers strummed songs by Dan Fogelberg, his heart beat to the rhythm of jazz and hummed to the melody of classical music.

"In order to survive as a working musician, one has to adapt to numerous styles and playing influences. But I would say my major influences have

Government and school officials in Wayne and Macomb counties are in a financial quandary, and many of them say it's the state's fault.

The problem? Three much-touted property tax relief proposals hammered out in Lansing, which could appear on the November 1992 ballot. With Michigan property taxes among the highest in the nation, state legislators have been looking beyond stopgap measures like this year's property tax freeze to answer the

"There is concern by local units of government," said George McEachran, director of the Wayne County Department of Equalization. "It's easy for the state to promise that you can do more with less, but in the real world, there are no free lunches.'

State programs, already cut to the bone, may lose even more.

And local governments not only stand to lose property tax revenue, they are buckling under the weight of expenses the state has been shifting to the local level.

It's also been difficult for some local administrators to understand the proposals and the impact they could have on budget planning.

Park man helps fallen eagle

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer When Grosse Pointe Park resident David Convery went rabbit hunting in late January he stumbled across something rarely seen in northern Michigan — a golden eagle.

Convery hunts with a few friends almost every weekend and the weather was particularly cold on that outing, he remembers.

"The rabbits were all holed up because it was so cold," he said. "And the dogs didn't feel like running."

But Convery felt like taking a walk. He trudged to the top of a ridge and came upon a golden eagle. It had been shot in the wing and was unable to fly.

"I didn't know what to do so I called my buddies and they came up and we tried to help it," Convery said. "We cleaned and gutted a rabbit we had shot and gave it to him."

The trio watched him eat and stayed with the eagle for a while before trying to reach local DNR agents. The agents, however, were out of town so the hunters located a veterinarian who agreed to check out the bird.

Fire in Park

Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe City public safety officers responded to a house fire in the 1200 block of Yorkshire in the Park shortly after 9 a.m. May 3.

When they got there, they saw flames and smoke coming from the basement and firstfloor of the house.

The fire was quickly contained and put out with minimal damage, according to Park public safety director Richard Caretti.

turned and captured the eagle, about two feet tall and had a wingspan of nearly seven feet. They put it in a plastic garbage can and took it back downstate to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Ann Arbor.

The bird's wing was irreparably damaged by a shotgun blast and it had lived on the ground for probably two months, the wildlife service said. The 7year-old eagle was probably fed by its mate for a while, because it was relatively healthy when it was rescued. The wildlife service said the eagles were proba-

A reward was offered for any information about the shooting. The golden eagle is protected by the national Eagle Protection Act and the penalty for shooting an eagle is a $5,000 fine and/or one year in prison.

Ominican Center works to give the gift of literacy

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

Whenever Mary Brown visited a fast food restaurant she would tell her husband to order her whatever he was having. But last month Brown walked into a fast food restaurant and for the first time she was able to read the menu on the wall.

So she did, out loud, sounding out the words she didn't know.

She considers it quite an accomplishment because last December the 31-year-old Brown could only read small words.

"I used to read but I skipped over the bigger words and now I know the big words were the ones I needed to know," Brown

She had tried to learn to read before, through a television program, but because there wasn't immediate teacher feedback, Brown said it was dif-

That's when she decided to go to the Dominican Literacy Center located in Dominican High School. She heard about it through a flier sent to her home.

Her children prompted her to finally take the step and learn how to read. She has a 13-yearold son and a 3-year-old daughter and she wanted to be able

It started off as a way to suit the needs of the estimated 200,000 in Detroit who can't read and to put the intensive educational degrees of retired sisters to work.

"What we're really trying to do is to make independent learners," Schoenlein said.

But it has grown from seven original tutors to 120 now, many from the Pointes, who serve the needs of the 60 to 100 people each year who sign up to learn to read.

The students come from diverse backgrounds and include all races, ages and levels of abilities.

One 75-year-old man was devastated when his wife died because he wasn't able to write checks to pay his bills. A young mother was unable to read teacher comments on her child's report card. Another person is now able to save money because she can read and use coupons. A 57-year-old woman came out of the bathroom holding the liquid soap container and the hand lotion container and told her tutor that for the first time she was able to read which was which.

And they come for all reasons. Some want to be able to spell better. Some want a job. Some want to be able to read to their children. Many simply want to be able to read the Bi-

There is a mathematics tutoring program, too, so students can learn to budget and to make change when shopping.

"It's amazing to see the progress," Schoenlein said. "Not only are they able to read, but you can see what it does for their self-esteem. They walk a little taller, with their shoulders straight. It's wonderful."

"There's a real bonding that takes place between student and tutor," Sister Joan Liberty said. "It's more than studenttutor, we become friends.

Or even mentors, Schoenlein said. Many students bring forms to class that they need to fill out; they ask for advice and some tutors have gone to job interviews and parent-teacher conferences with their students.

Many students, like Brown, come to the program with some skills, Schoenlein said. There is a short waiting list to get into the program.

The students are tested for their level of ability and use the Laubach adult reading program. A tutor with similar interests is matched with the stu-

All students must attend a minimum of two times a week for a two-hour period, but most come more often. Brown comes Monday through Thursday. She'd come more often but the center is closed Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

All students must sign contracts stating that they will attend all their regularly scheduled tutoring sessions unless an emergency occurs and that they will treat the center's educational materials with respect.

The center has a small library of books written at a low level, but with plots and characters that keep adults interested. Brown has read 16 since she started the program in January.

Brown said she never learned to read because school was difficult. She moved around a lot and was shy, so no one bothered her. But she always advanced grades.

"I don't know how I passed, but I passed every year," she said. "Then I thought, 'I'm going to school, but I'm not learning anything,' so I quit. But I always knew one day in life I'd need it."

And since the students are there because they want to be,

The students get certificates as they complete levels of training and their compositions and spelling tests adorn the walls of the center.

When the students, tutors and program directors Schoenlein and Sister Marlene Lieder decide the student is ready to move on, he or she is recommended to one of many adult education programs in the area.

The center is part of the Detroit Literacy Coalition and is funded primarily by the Adrian Dominican Congregation and the Archdiocese of Detroit, the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan, the McGregor Fund, the Junior League of Detroit and other non-profit organizations. It also accepts donations from individuals.

Last month during National Volunteer Week, the center was given a special tribute by state Sen. John F. Kelly for its

"There's a lot of things I want to be able to do," Brown said and after prodding by Sister Joan Liberty, her tutor, Brown said she would like to work in a doctor's office.

"It's a thrill for me to see her succeed like this," Liberty said. "It's going to be a long process, but she's doing great.

Prayer Breakfast 'a success'

Nearly 500 local business and professional leaders attended the sixth annual Mayors' Prayer Breakfast May 8 at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The keynote speaker was conservative syndicated journalist Cal Thomas, author of seven books, most recently "The Death of Ethics in America."

Thomas spoke on the lack of hope and the cynicism pervading America and pinpointed the real causes of the crisis.

"The primary problems of this country are not economic and political, they are moral and spiritual," Thomas said.

"I think the breakfast went really well," said Grosse Pointe Woods mayor Robert Novitke. whose city hosted this year's event. "I thought Thomas was an excellent speaker.'

The annual breakfast began in 1986 as a way to offer a morning of fellowship to local professionals and also to recognize the National Day of Prayer, usually in the first week of May.

A committee of the mayors and other leaders in the Pointes and Harper Woods plans the yearly event. Grosse Pointe Farms will host next year's prayer breakfast.

Mary — who could forget her?

There is a lump of coal on the desk at our family cottage. That piece of coal has significance for those who live there, because the woman who gave it to us was an extremely important part of our formative years.

My father was from Scranton, Pa., once a vital coal mining town. Shortly after he and my mother married they purchased property in a rural area in the foothills of the Pocono Mountains. Two log cabins were built on the property over 60 years ago and have been the summer home for the combined families of their children since then. Each summer we make the pilgrimage back east for our annual R and R at our version of Mecca.

In 1930, when the first of the two buildings was completed, this country was deep into the Depression. So many people were out of work that it was not difficult to find competent, decent people to help with household chores and raising children. Our parents were fortunate to find a couple to stay at the cottage and to oversee the stoking of the coal furnaces and keep up with maintenance problems when the family was back in the Midwest.

The wife was named Mary and her husband was Frank. Mary cooked, cleaned and helped Mom with the four children. Frank and Mary had three sons of their own and the children had a fine time amusing each other and became devoted friends. Frank was a former prize fighter and a carpenter by trade. There was nothing he couldn't do around the house and he was an invaluable help to my parents in countlesss ways. He built much of the furniture for the cottages, tended the vegetable garden, and always had a supply of firewood on hand.

Mary was as close to a surrogate mother as any child could want. Along with my own mother and grandmother, she had an enormous influence on my life. When I was old enough to go to the cottage without my parents, Mary would sit up with me into the wee hours and tell tales of the early years and of the mischief of the generation before mine.

She could weave a wondrous tapestry with her insight and her remarkable way of relating a story. She had more common sense than almost anyone I have known since and could cut to the chase swiftly. Not much escaped Mary and she did not suffer fools lightly. I never knew her to hurt anyone in any way, but she was not easily conned. She was genuinely comfortable in her own skin and that was enough for her. She didn't have to prove anything by attacking someone

My siblings and I adored Mary and would follow her around like puppies underfoot. I remember loving to watch her at our old wringer washing machine and how she taught me to operate it without loss of limb. She had an infectious laugh that seemed to rumble up from her sturdy legs and shake her entire body. Her deep brown, almost black, eyes were full of merriment.

She always greeted us with a hug and we loved to be rocked against her ample bosom when we were hurting and feeling low. There was absolutely nothing Mary couldn't do with her hands. She was an accomplished cook and could mend anything. Mom used to save old nylons and scraps of material to send to Mary when we returned to Grosse Pointe for the winter. The following summer there were new hotpads, hooked rugs and quilts waiting for us, made from familiar fabrics, all hand wrought by Mary during the winter

Church and family were the main focuses of Mary's life. She was devoutly religious and walked a mile each way to Mass daily. In the winter Mary and Frank lived in a small town adjacent to Scranton. The road to church was over rough terrain and a tough walk for Mary, but she always made light of it. She would giggle and tell us that she collected dropped coins and lumps of coal along her path and it helped make the steep climb easier and more interesting.

One day when her boys came home from school, they found their mother had succumbed to a heart attack. Several members of our family flew east for the funeral and were not surprised to see the immense gathering of friends. They had come to pay their respects to the family, but had also rallied with gifts of food and offerings appropriate for four men who had depended so heavily on this woman.

Several years have passed since Mary's death, yet her presence is everywhere in our cottage. The little dresses she made to hold the clothespins and cleaning rags are still in evidence. The hotpads and hooked rugs so beautifully made are still there and you can almost hear her laughter coming from the kitchen as she served up one of her famous huckleberry pies. The desk where the typewriter sits has a large lump of coal on it where it serves as a bookend, but I know it has a much greater role than that.

Pointes seek joint planning for the future

Then Grosse Pointe Farms residents are asked for a one-word description of their city government, they are likely to respond with such adjectives as sound, stable, careful and prudent. And in our view, they'd be

Now, however, the Farms, this bastion of conservative conformity, is spearheading a new campaign to prepare for the world of tomorrow by inviting the other four Pointes and Harper Woods to engage in a joint effort by officials and private citizens to plan for the future.

The embryo campaign is the brainchild of the new Farms mayor, Gregg Berendt, and two council members, Gail Kaess and John E. Danaher Jr. Both council members have had previous experience in futurism, Kaess with the Michigan Municipal League, which she recently headed, and Danaher with Cottage Hospital, where he is vice president for development.

The first step in the planning process began at a meeting of the officials of the six communities that was headlined by the participation of Edward D. Barlow Jr., a nationally known futurist. In a 90minute lecture, reported in detail in last week's issue of the Grosse Pointe News, Barlow advised his audience about the importance of planning for the future.

Viewing the future from a wider perspective than the Pointes, Barlow stressed that the world's rapid changes require constant reassessment of the present in order to prepare for the demands of the future.

A second step will be taken on Thursday, May 21, when representatives of the same six communities will meet with Barlow again to assess community interest in the proposal and to consider specific ways to continue with planning.

Subject to the group's approval, one proposal would be to set up committees representing private citizens as well as officials to study problems arising in such areas as the environment, recreation, education, culture and other matters that affect all of the citizens of the Pointes.

If these plans work out, the Farms' sponsors see the eventual emergence of a futurist report based on input from private citizens as well as officials and encompassing the entire gamut of activities that affect life in the Pointes and Harper cal governments already have joined in many efforts ranging from close cooperation in police and fire protection and the recycling programs to the Grosse Pointe Probation Program serving all the communities.

But in reaching agreement on these projects, Pointe governments responded to a community need. Now there appears to be another need for a broader and more careful evaluation of the future, including the new challenges it will offer and the new problems it no doubt will bring.

True, the new project may be more innovative and more encompassing than past cooperative efforts but it also reflects the sound, stable, careful and prudent planning undertaken by all of the Pointe governments.

Now if the proposal attracts the serious support of private citizens as well as public officials from the participating communities, the report they produce could help all of us be better prepared to face the future when it arrives.

JoAnne Burcar, Consultant Victims' privacy bill excessive of the proposed state legislation that would suppress the names of all victims of felony crimes from publication is forced upon us, then the entire public would be victimized.

State Sen. William Van Regenmorter, R-Jenison, has introduced a bill that would bar police and court officials from releasing the names and other identifying information of victims of felony crimes unless a judge orders otherwise or the victim testifies or requests his or her name be made open to the public.

While there may be justification for Regenmorter's concerns that victims' fears of public exposure and the possible loss of privacy and dignity may deter them from assisting in the prosecution of crimes, his remedy is too damaging to the public's right (and need) to know - not to mention it may be downright unconstitutional.

We agree that in many cases the victim of a crime is often victimized twice once by the criminal and another time by careless media that splash the victim's name and personal information without regard to privacy or decency.

At the Grosse Pointe News, we respect victims' privacy and do not print their names or other data the would clearly identify them. On rare occasions, however, a victim must be identified because of his or her stature in the community or the nature of the crime.

But while we agree crime victims do deserve better treatment by the press to protect their privacy and reputations, we disagree with Regenmorter's proposal, which, if passed, would give courts and police all the excuse they need to withhold information from the public and press.

Neither the police nor the courts have the time and personnel necessary to "black out" all references to victims in crime reports and court records. Rather, they will find it much simpler to suppress all information from the press and, consequently, the public.

We believe self-restraint by the responsible media is the best way to honor crime victims' rights to privacy. But imposing a blanket suppression of names in police and court records is not only unconstitutional but dangerous to democracy.

A good challenger in the 13th

Tt is encouraging that Dr. Charles C. Vincent, chief of obstetrics and gyne Cology at Detroit Riverview Hospital, has again announced his candidacy for the 13th District seat held by Rep. Barbara-Rose Collins.

Vincent, who ran unsuccessfully in the Democratic primary two years ago, is filing as a Republican candidate this time as he explains in this statement:

"I changed parties because the incumbent has already been awarded the party endorsements, which leaves little room for fairness," Vincent explained. "I have not changed my platform and will rely heavily on the Democratic support I received before in addition to the support from the Republican Party."

the candidates, the Grosse Pointe News found Dr. Vincent to be one of two best Democratic candidates.

The recent reapportionment, which put

Grosse Pointe Farms in the 13th District added in 1982, ought to give Vincent some GOP help in his race against the incumbent Democrat.

However, it will be an uphill fight because the district's population is still predominantly Democratic and Rep. Collins is presumed to again have the backing of Mayor Coleman Young and the Democratic machine that elected her in 1990.

In the 1990 Democratic primary, however, Vincent ran second to Tom Barrow in the Park and the City, then the only Pointes in the district, with 558 votes while Ms. Collins, then seeking her first term, got only 25 Pointe votes.

behind Ms. Collins and Barrow. The latter is not a candidate this year, another factor that ought to improve Vincent's

Vote yes

To the Editor:

Grosse Pointe has been exercising "intra-district choice" since 1986, working quite nicely without busing, and without interference from the state.

Now Lansing is mandating that in order to comply with its Schools of Choice Proposal, we would be required to provide transportation, at our expense, to the tune of $500,000. A $500,000 transportation expense, dictated by Lansing is not what we need at this time.

The real issue however, is broader than that. As long as these types of proposals and decisions are made at the state level, control at the local level is naturally diminished.

We have the opportunity to vote "yes," exempting Grosse Pointe from this proposal. I believe it is our responsibility to be aware of this issue, and to cast our vote accordingly. The issue is really quite simple, and yet another example of Lansing dictating to Grosse Pointe schools how it should spend taxpayers' dollars.

Having worked with the site budget process at Trombly Elementary for the past three years, I have witnessed first-hand, the tough decisions that must be made, just trying to make ends meet. Bottom line — we cannot afford not to vote yes, supporting this exemption.

Hockey

To the Editor:

I must respond to the letter in your April 16 issue, "Obnoxious behavior," by Terry Shulman regarding the behavior of hockey parents in St. Clair Shores.

My son has been involved in the St. Clair Shores hockey program for five years and I am the president of the SCS Hockey Parents Club. I am sorry that Mrs. Shulman had such a negative first year. All of my years as a hockey parent have been very positive.

Hockey has a very long season, lasting from September to the end of March. If you are not happy with your situation, it is seven unhappy months. I hope that if her son continues to play, their family will be able to experience all the positive and fun things that hockey can also provide. St. Clair Shores is a well-known organization, with high-quality hockey provided for our children. Unfortunately, in any sport where one's child plays, we can witness parents who get so caught up in the competition that they do not use good judgment. Whether it be baseball, football, hockey, lacrosse, it is embarrassing to see parents behave worse than the children, but it does happen.

I am sorry to hear that Mrs. Shulman is ashamed to be a member of the SCS Parents Club. It is one of the organizations that can curtail this obnoxious behavior that she referred to.

If you meet with parents of opposing teams and become friends with them. you would be less likely to boo them. Sportsmanlike behavior is also discussed at meetings, devising ways that the club can maintain good sportsmanship not only among the parents, but with the coaches and players as well.

The parents who are actively involved in the Parents Club do not condone unsportsmanlike behavior.

A new low in state politics

"t has been said that everything is fair in love, war and politics. These days Michigan politicians seem to be trying to prove the truth of that adage as it refers to politics.

Both Democrats and Republicans have often been guilty of confrontational politics, especially during the current period of divided state government, but the GOP members of the State Board of Canvassers carried those precedents to a new low last week.

What the two Republicans on the board did was to refuse to certify the petitions that would have permitted the people of this state to decide in a referendum next November whether or not they approved of a Democratic tax cut proposal.

They did so despite the fact that the state Elections Division, following its regular procedures, had found 13,000 more valid signatures than the required 205,166. But the two GOP board members, James Alexander and Gail Torreano, both appointed by Gov. John Engler, refused to assent.

The real point is that Republican leaders regard the Democratic proposal as a possible threat to the voters' approval of the governor's own "cut and cap" property tax proposal which already has been placed on the November ballot.

We hold no brief for the Democratic plan which calls for elimination of $700 million in tax breaks for business to pay for a residential property tax cut achieved by exemption of $30,000 or 50 percent of a home's market value from school operating taxes.

But why not let the people of the state decide whether they approve of that Democratic proposal rather than having a veto cast by two GOP appointees engaged in supporting the GOP governor?

Harry and Tonto II

(Or, How I Spent My Not-Quite-Summer Vacation in a Car With a Cat.)

I had a vacation week coming so I thought I'd spend it recharging in North Carolina where a free condominium on a golf course and sunshine (so I thought) awaited me. I was going alone to a place where no telephone, no friends dropping in and no commitments would interrupt my week of reading and writing. No arithmetic, though.

But because I didn't want to leave my poor cat alone in the apartment (think of what she might do with five days' unrestrained access to my plants and furniture), I decided to take EiI had it all worked out. Litter leen, my three-legged cat, with box behind the passenger seat, food and water behind the driver's seat. She'd have the run of the car or she could sit on my lap for the 13-hour ride and bond with me. She'd have a

What is it they say about the best laid plans?

Maybe she didn't like it because I hadn't prepared her for the long trip by taking her on short trips the way I'd read to do. But I didn't think she needed that. Eileen was a survivor. She was an alley cat before the Humane Society picked her up. But she's only been in a car a couple of times, to go to the vet, and one other time when I brought her home from the Humane Society and she nearly jumped out the window on I-94.

She screamed all the way to the car. That's OK, I thought, she doesn't get out much, she's scared. I drove around the corner to drop off my apartment key to my friendly mail-getter and plant-waterer and discovered Eileen was scared youknow-what-less. And not even in the litter box I had so conveniently provided.

The first 60 miles (was it only 60 miles) all I heard was a steady stream of meows coming from Eileen. Non-stop. Every three seconds or so. And everytime I hit a bump (try avoiding them on 75 South) I was treated to an extra loud meow.

About the middle of Ohio which is a long, and I mean long, state to travel through she had hunched her little body on the transmission hump, where I could pet her more or less conveniently. She was tense and jumpy but at least she was quiet. (Bump. "Meeow.") Well, kind of.

I've subsequently heard that if you're taking a cat on a trip you're supposed to put it in a pillow case, because it's warm and comfortable and the cat doesn't know what's going on. Or maybe it's because it's easier to throw the cat off a bridge after 200 miles of non-stop caterwauling. Lighten up - I'm kidding.

In the middle of the mountains cut by the West Virginia Turnpike, I discovered how Eileen felt.

The height of the Mackinac Bridge gets me nervous, so imagine how I felt in a place where the altitude makes my ears pop, I look over a railing around a curve and can't see ground, and there are special exits for trucks whose brakes have failed.

And it's foggy. And raining. And it starts to hail.

And then, near a particularly treacherous (for me) curve, the car ahead spins out, flips over and comes to rest upside down not 100 yards in front of me.

Cars all around skidded to a stop and pulled over to the side of the road. I was the third person to the car, a man on the wet ground was digging inside the car. He pulled out a screaming baby and handed it to another man. Then he pulled out a 10-year-old child and gave her to me.

After 10 hours of shushing Eileen I had the right mixture of comfort and stern-ness required to stop the child from screaming about her mother, who was still in the car. The mother emerged with the only physical injury of the accident a tiny cut on her elbow.

When the family was safely in another car and on their way wherever they were going, got back in my car, shaken. Eileen looked at me from behind the front seat where she had moved when I stopped the

"All's clear," I told her as I started down the road, jumping at every truck that was practically in my trunk (were they on their way to the Runaway Vehicles Only ramp?) and every car that passed me like I was standing still.

"Meow," Eileen said, intermittently.

Once I meowed back. Translation: "I hear you, sister."

The rest of the trip was without incident. And the cat loved the condo as much as I did. The trip home was quieter and more pleasant and Eileen sat on my lap and we bonded.

Major Magic All Star Pizza Revue gave a party recently for some children who have cystic fibrosis - and their families.

The inspiration for the event was Mrs. Robert Rashid of Grosse Pointe, wife of Major Magic's founder and president.

Joan Rashid was chairman of the event, Co-chairmen were Mrs. Carl Rashid St. and Nancy W. Kellow, all of Grosse Pointe.

Cystic fibrosis, the most common fatal inherited disease in the nation, affects approxi-mately 30,000 children. It is estimated that one in 20 individuals (about 12 million people) carry the CF gene.

The families of the three chairmen of the event have been touched by cystic fibrosis.

Voter void creates a venal vacuum

Bite my tongue. Last week, even as I was accusing congresspeople of not thinking beyond hand-wringing (regarding the current frustrating state of government), Rep. Howard Wolpe was doing some deep thinking.

Wolpe, who represents the 3rd District, around Lansing and Battle Creek, believes the void in voter participation has created a vacuum that lobbyists have rushed to fill. He believes that perception creates reality: We feel powerless, so we become powerless by refusing to take part even in reading about and understanding what goes

"Lacking the information against which to evaluate political claims, the (voters) have collectively become far more susceptible to manipulation by emotion-laden campaign commercials, simplistic political slogans, or divisive appeals to fears and prejudices," Wolpe wrote in last week's Free Press. Wolpe isn't the only one to have noticed that the public chooses alternative ways to pick up information — and that what it wants information about has changed. Newspaper editors are terrified at shrinking circulation and bewildered about what to offer instead of the old standards.

What constitutes news, what readers care about, what readers ought to care about, and what to do about it are under constant discussion. News and government and daily life were once inextricably intertwined, or so we thought; what does it mean to society if more and more of the public wants to drop out and just be left alone?

Yet we still seem to have a public life. Perhaps only one segment of society talked about Clarence Thomas and Anita Hill, but everyone is talking about the Los Angeles riots. Everyone is talking about the justice system.

Everyone talked about the Gulf War — and not just about technological wonders, but about the pros and cons of being there and what it said about America's role in the

A letter to the editor (also in last week's Free Press) from a Macomb County prosecutor suggested that the problem with the Rodney King verdict wasn't racism, but manipulable jurors. Discussing the issue of reasonable doubt, he wrote:

"If a juror is confused by a skillful defense attorney, he or she is more apt to accept this as doubt and vote for acquit-

Manipulable jurors. Manipulable voters. If true, it's a frightening indictment. Manipulable citizens made possible fascism, nazism, maybe communism.

You can try to fix the problem by addressing the jury system (change the way jurors are selected) or the campaign system (public financing). Those changes probably need to come. But they don't address the problem of citizens so gullible that they can be made to dance like marionettes while a political leader or an attorney pulls the strings.

The key to an informed and involved citizenry is education. And we all know how well our nation is handling that chaldisenfranchised of the big city. We are so privileged. The least of us has a house, a car (probably three), too much food, a job or prospects of one. Even in hard times.

We worry about raises, about the right clothes to send the desired professional message. About cholesterol and airfare price wars to Europe. Which school to send the kids to. Where to buy a vacation house.

Yes, bad things happen in suburbia too. We also worry about drugs and alcoholism and crime. But what do we know of giving birth to malnourished babies or having a bullet ricochet through the bedroom while we sleep? What do we know of living on the edge, buoyed only by food stamps and a welfare check, with no prospects of a real job next week, next year, or ever?

At a university commencement two weeks ago, much was said about reaching out to the community. It was one of Michigan's major state universities, one that makes an effort to attract minorities. But almost everyone was white, even though there is a substantial black population in the neighborhood.

"They're just so hopeless, so demoralized, they don't even have the energy to try," said my son, searching for an explanation. He's probably right. He himself went through college in what I like to think of as the hard way, working, borrowing money, balancing needs of wife and baby and church and outside interests with the overwhelming need to study. He's in debt up to his ears, with graduate school and more debt

You could say that's having no prospects. It will be years, after all, before he has a decent job.

But what he has, what most of us expect to have, is family support, a network of expectations and nurturing, a reasonable hope of success at the end of the hard work. He can get through the difficult years with the belief that life will be good, that he, too, can get a middleclass house and a car and take vacations and send his little girl to a good school.

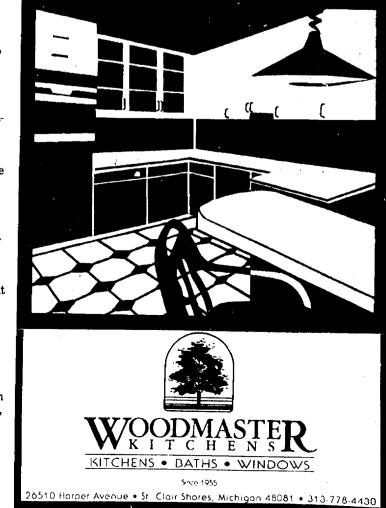

How can we sleep nights knowing that the same isn't available to everybody?

One of the main objectives of the SCS Parents Club is to develop an atmosphere of fun and good sportsmanship to make the seven long months we are involved a positive experience for everyone.

We cannot control every individual's behavior, and there will be times when people do not behave appropriately. Instead of criticizing and turning away, we should try to change this obnoxious behavior by informing, educating and keeping all communications open.

The St. Clair Shores Hockey Association and the St. Clair Shores Parents Club are ways that are available to do this. I invite Mrs. Shulman to return next year, along with anyone else interested in helping us in our effort to provide the kind of hockey league that our children will enjoy and benefit from for many years to come.

Nature trail

To the Editor:

Grosse Pointe Woods voters, where are you?

Let's see if I correctly understood my U.S. history lessons as it pertains to city government?

We the people elect our city council. Their job is to adhere to the United States Constitution and oversee the daily needs of our city. When the council is addressing an issue that a constituent disagrees with, it's the constituent's responsibility to speak up with the opposing viewpoint. If the council adheres to its stance on the issue, the constituent can either a) be quiet or b) petition their government body.

When the citizenry chooses to petition city council, it is the responsi bility of the constituent(s) to draft the petition, to collect the signatures, to have the signatures validated and, to present the signatures to city council. At which time it is the responsibility of city council to step back and recognize that their viewpoint on this issue may in fact be in conflict with the constituent's viewpoint. Now the city council has a choice: either adhere to the petition and change their vote on the issue or, put the issue on the ballot and let the people decide, thus demonstrating the responsibility of running the government is in the hands of the constituency where it belongs. The above is a synopsis of what I learned in United States history

Letters

Unfortunately we don't have a limited constitutional republic in the city of Grosse Pointe Woods -2,663 residents petitioned their city council expressing an opposing viewpoint on an issue that the council was addressing. The concerned citizens told city council that 1) we don't want the project that the council proposed, 2) we don't want our city finances expended on this project and, 3) if you don't believe us than let's put it on the ballot and let the residents decide.

Instead of adhering to the premise that the power of government lays in the hands of the people, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council told the constituency what they were going to do! And all these years I thought we had a government where we the people tell them, our elected officials, what to do, not vice versa.

Endorsement

To the Editor:

After reading last week's endorsements of the Grosse Pointe Shores council, I was a little surprised.

How can the Grosse Pointe News endorse Mrs. Galvin, knowing she has a conflict of interest law suit pending in regard to her sewer hook up?

The Grosse Pointe News might not see this as a conflict; however, I do.

I think this should have been looked into more thoroughly.

Candidate

To the Editor:

The articles on the upcoming village of Grosse Pointe Shores election featured in the May 7 issue of your newspaper were indeed extremely confusing.

In the past articles you have condemned the polluters of Lake St. Clair. Then you endorse a polluter candidate for the office of village trustee. Mrs. Patricia Galvin stated herself that she has been polluting the lake, and continues to do so, disregarding Wayne County's instructions to hook up to the village's sewer system.

She also made a motion at a past council meeting that the village taxpayers foot the bill to bring the sewer connection closer to her home than it currently exists, which, by the way is well within the legal dis-

Now, if that doesn't constitute a conflict of interest, I don't know what does. In my opinion, Mrs. Galvin has only her best interest at heart - not our com-

Cheaters

To the Editor:

When we were in school, there were always cheaters. While most of the students put in the study time and prepared for the tests, there were a few who tried to take the easy way out and cheat.

As adults, it seems the cheating element has taken another step downhill and entered the field of nonprofit organizations, particularly in the area of cancer research. You see, I am a volunteer for the American Cancer Society, and frequently I hear about one of these cheaters, or, as we call them, "look-alikes," soliciting money from an unsuspecting public.

What's wrong with someone else out collecting money to fight cancer? Not a thing. In fact, there are a number of honest organizations doing just that. But there are also some dishonest look-alikes who are collecting money just to line their pockets. Often, they spend a dime out of every dollar they collect on research, while the other 90 cents goes into their wallets and toward raising more money.

The National Charities Information Bureau recommends that the cost of fundraising should not usually be more than 30 percent.

The Michigan Division of the American Cancer Society spent 81 percent of its income for cancer control and research programs last year. Only 4 percent was used for administrative costs.

These look-alikes are exploiting the public by using names that are similar to those of reputable organizations. For instance, they often stick words like "Research,'' "Society,"
"National" or "American" in their titles. The lookalikes have discovered it is easier for them to get donations if people mistake them for a reputable nonprofit organization or are fooled into thinking they are affiliated with one.

One way to determine if they are reputable is by

Woods council reconsiders path in response to protests

By Donna Walker Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council is reconsidering its stance on the Ghesquiere Park walkway issue.

In April, the council awarded a contract to Ward & VanNuck Inc. to construct a 5-foot-wide asphalt walkway around the perimeter of the park this sum-

Some residents are opposed to the walkway, saying that the money that is to be spent for the path's construction would be better used on other park projects.

Residents have also said they fear that youngsters might use the path for bike-riding, rollerblading and skateboarding, making it unsafe for walkers.

And, some residents have said that an asphalt or concrete path would destroy the natural beauty of the woods.

Margaret Potter and Jim Perry, Woods residents, conducted a petition drive in January and early February 1991 to have the issue placed or the ballot that November, and collected 2.626 signatures.

If the path were related to a city ordinance, that would have been enough signatures to get the issue placed on the ballot.

However, the path is not related to any city ordinance. It is a "housekeeping" matter, and as such, the city council doesn't have to put the issue on the ballot if it doesn't want to.

Potter and Perry and other residents have repeatedly asked the city council to either votedown the path or let the citizens vote on the matter at the Residents who are opposed to the path were back in force at last week's council meeting.

After listening to them for almost an hour, councilman James Alogdelis made a motion to repeal the council's earlier decision to build the path.

Councilman Peter Gilezan then made a substitute motion to place the issue on the November ballot.

"I think the council has spent too much time on this issue," Gilezan said. "The voters spoke at one time, let's put it on the ballot once again, and let us get on with more productive business.'

Gilezan was referring to the $3.5 million in bonds voters authorized the city to issue in 1986 to pay for redevelopment of the city's two parks. Drawings of the proposed redevelopment projects were available for voters to see, and the walkway was one of the projects.

Several of the projects that were proposed, including the community center and gazebo at Ghesquiere Park, have been completed. Others, including platform tennis courts, may not be realized.

Even though the city was authorized to issue $3.5 million in bonds, it only issued $2.4 million, and of that, $36,000 is Gilezan's motion to place the walkway issue on the ballot was seconded by councilman Bill Wilson.

However, councilman Ted Bidigare said he was worried about the ramifications of backing out of the contract with Ward & Van Nuck.

City attorney George Catlin said that "if the contractor pushed us, he may be entitled to damages," even though the contract had not been signed as of May 4.

The city had agreed to pay the company $20,500 to construct the path.

Bidigare made a substitute motion to send the path issue li back to the committee of the !j whole (the council sitting as an э) informal body), so that the committee can discuss the city's op-W tions.

"We have sufficient time to n put the issue on the ballot, if, that's what we decide," Bidigare said.

The council voted unani-32 mously to send the issue back'n to the committee of the whole.

Farms pinches pennies to keep budget in line proposed

By Ronald J. Bernas

Staff Writer Grosse Pointe Farms city manager Rich Solak credits good planning and ingenuity of Farms employees with making the 1992-93 proposed budget smaller than the current year's budget. In 1992-93 Farms residents will see a tax increase of 3.48 percent, bringing to 10.71 the number of mills levied by the Farms. Last year the city levied 10.35.

A mill is equivalent to $1 for every $1,000 of SEV. The state equalized value (SEV) is roughly half the market value of a piece of property.

homeowner with a $150,000 home which is assessed at $75,000 would pay $803.25 in city taxes this year, an increase of $27 over last year's $776.25.

But Solak points out that while municipal taxes in Grosse Pointe Farms have increased 33.5 percent since 1981, that's well below the inflation rate of 46.2 percent since 1981.

Assessments in the Farms have increased by 73.5 percent during the same period.

The total proposed budget is $7.72 million, $344,000 less than last year's budget of $8.07 million.

There are several reasons for that, Solak said.

To begin with, the city is taking in less money due to the 1992 SEVs which were frozen by the governor. Even with the slight increase in the tax rate the city will take in nearly $200,000 less in taxes than it did this year.

Many projects which were financed by bonds — such as the water and sewerage improvements - are nearing completion, so the city will also levy fewer mills to reduce the debt.

The Farms also lost four large homes through demolition which accounts for some of the lost tax money.

In addition, the city has suffered a $270,000 loss in interest income and state-shared revenues over the past few years, while costs for things like insurance, infrastructure improvement and others have continued to rise.

But the Farms has also kept an eve on expenditures to ensure that residents continue to enjoy the city's services, without large tax increases.

For example, the Farms privatized its ambulance service, resulting in better life-support service at a savings of some $12,000 a year.

Ingenuity of its personnel is also one of the reasons the Farms is able to keep its budget in line, Solak said.

The Farms recently "recy cled" a garbage truck. Its body and engine were strong enough for less intensive use, so the city purchased a new, smaller dump box and put it on the old chassis, eliminating the need to purchase a new dump truck. That saved the city $48,000.

In addition, recycling and composting by Farms residents will save the city $90,000 over last year's costs of refuse incineration.

Major projects included in next year's budget will include the paving of most of Kerby Road and a portion of Kercheval, improvements at the water and sewer plants and additional improvements at Pier Park.

'We were very careful not to mortgage the future to keep the budget low," Solak said.

"We didn't put off projects that we normally would do just to make ends meet.'

Funding is also provided for a program to examine the future for the five Pointes and Harper Woods and a celebration — with Grosse Pointe City'q - of the city's 100th birthday.

The Farms council is expected to adopt the proposed 1992-93 budget at its 7:30 p.m. meeting Monday, May 18, at 8 city hall, Solak said.

notes of things he observes every day, and those notes have often led to the completion of cases that are later reported, Gualtieri read.

"You know, while reading this letter, I couldn't help but think of (the television character) Columbo," Gualtieri said. "You know how Columbo would always say, 'This one little thing bothers me,' as he was flipping the pages of his notebook? Officer Kwiatkowski reminds me of him.'

Kwiatkowski thanked the Optimists and Patterson and said, "I'd like to accept this award on behalf of everyone in my department, because they're out there every day, just like I am.'

Grosse Pointe Shores Police Chief Daniel Healy nominated Poloni for excellent work as a public safety officer and for his volunteer activities.

Hundreds, maybe thousands of people have benefited from a program Poloni founded in 1988 called "Feed a Family."

Through the program, 450 needy families received a Thanksgiving food basket and 500 families received a Christmas dinner last year.

Also, Poloni helped bring to life "Pluggy the Talking Fire Hydrant," a robot that teaches children about public safety.

"Are there talking dogs to go along with the talking fire hydrant?" Gualtieri asked, before saying, seriously, that Poloni "is the type of person who sees things as they should be and says, 'why not?"

Healy added, "On top of being a good public safety officer, Officer Poloni gives something back to the community that gives to him. We're proud to honor him, and like Jack (Patterson), I'd like to have two or three more like him, and if I did, we'd make some adjust-not only for the award, but for helping purchase Pluggy.

Poloni thanked the Optimists

'If you haven't already met him, I'd like to bring him around for you to meet — that is, if he's not next to your car right now, issuing you a parking violation," Poloni said.

He also thanked Healy, and said that he, too, wanted to accept the award on behalf of his entire department.

The awards were presented following Archer's keynote address, which followed a breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, fried potatoes, toast and coffee.

Some of the guests included Grosse Pointe Park public safety director Richard Caretti, Grosse Pointe City public safety director Bruce Kennedy, Harper Woods District Court Judge Roger J. LaRose, Grosse Pointe Park Municipal Court Judge Kirsten Frank, and Grosse Pointe Shores trustee John Huettemen III.

Former Michigan Supreme Court Justice Dennis Archer, who has expressed interest in the past about running for mayor of Detroit, shied away from the question of whether he was going to enter the mayoral race at last week's "Respect for Law Day Breakfast."

"If you want to talk about running, I'll tell you that I run miles a day, 24 days a month to keep in shape," he said.

Archer was the keynote speaker at the breakfast, which was hosted by the Lakeshore Optimists Club in honor of Law Day.

"In my view, respect for the law begins when we're born," Archer said. "Our mothers, fathers, or the people who take care of us should begin by instucting us in the law, by telling us, 'Don't touch that - it's hot,' or 'Don't do this or don't do that.' That's how we begin to learn."

What people learn and the the about the law is embellished by name what they learn at church and at school, he said.

Being poor or in a position of power does not give a person the right to disobey the law, said Archer, who has been

An only child, Archer grew up in Cassopolis, a rural Michigan town, and began working when he was 8 years old.

The following year, Archer was elected to an eight-year term. He resigned from the court in December 1990 to return to private practice.

A partner in the law firm of Dickinson, Wright, Moon, Van Dusen & Freeman since 1991, Archer has has written for numerous legal publications, and belongs to many civic and law organizations.

Following the bouncing ball when it comes to issues that involve older Americans can be trying. Almost daily there are news releases citing the pros and cons of proposals that affect the income and welfare of retirees. Many of them are enlightening and should be read.

A.I.M. (Aging in Michigan), a publication of the Office of Services to the Aging, describes how the program works in an article, "Dial Toll-Free number for Employment Assistance."

It has a computerized system which generates a match between employers and potential employees. The agency has customized services for clients, such as Comerica, the Michigan Health Center and Henry Ford Hospital, who provide occupational training by teaching the necessary skills for a job. ## South grad plans indoor classic car auction, expo May 21-24

Hamtramck — Auto enthusiast Bob Seroka says he got tired of being just a number down at the annual Labor Day Kruse auto auction in Auburn, Ind. It used to be fun when it was smaller, he says. Back when they said "thank you" to customers and called you by name.

So Seroka, a Grosse Pointe South graduate whose family business is furniture and who has a weakness for '55 Thunderbirds and a ton of interesting American memorabilia, is putting Michigan on the map of important classic car auto auc-

With several auctions aleady under his belt and a anding within the top 10 auctions in receipts, Seroka has firially settled on what he thinks is the perfect venue. Come Thursday, May 21, and running through Sunday, May 24, Seroka Productions will stage its first indoor auction and expo at the new 300,000-square-foot Novi Expo Center.

Actually, Thursday evening is a benefit on behalf of the new Motor Sports Hall of Fame, which plans to break ground in the area for a museum this September.

"It's a terrific evening for $20," Seroka says. "A ticket offers admission to a preview of some 450 vehicles up for auction - plus a chance to talk with their owners and get firsthand information.'

That same ticket includes refreshments, live music for dancing, a peek at the special-cars exhibit and a donation to the Hall of Fame.

On Friday, May 22, things begin in earnest. The Expo Center opens as early as 8 a.m. for further inspection time. The auction gets under way at noon and will run until about 9 p.m. There also are auctions on Saturday and Sunday.

"We've had tent auctions in Toronto, West Palm Beach and Flint," Seroka says. "Locally we've held them in Troy, where an enormous wind picked up the tent and carried it onto the adjacent high school playing field, and at Domino Farms in Ann Arbor — which is getting to be too controversial a site. This is our first indoor auction.

With his partner Bill Ziegenbein of Prestige Motors in Madison Heights, his "right arm" Carolyn Setty, plus a small staff in Hamtramck, Seroka is planning to put a big feather in the metro-Detroit area's cap. The Memorial Day weekend show and auction is designed to attract car lovers, investors, first-time classic buyers, collectors of memorabilia and anyone looking for an interesting and pleasant way to spend the holi-

This isn't just for big-time enthusiasts with thousands of dollars to spend, Ziegenbein says. There will be vehicles priced as low as $2,000. Fledgling collectors or someone look-coupe, a '67 bright-red Buick convertible and some sports cars.

General admission to the auction and expo is $6. A $25 bidder registration fee includes two passes with reserved seating near the auction action, admission to Thursday evening's party and, with proper proof of ability to pay (bank cashier's check, money order, letter of credit or good old cash), the chance to actually bid on some of these dream machines.

Behind the walls at Seroka Productions on Conant lie fantasies ranging from a 1962 silver-blue Thunderbird roadster to Seroka's own black 1941 Cadillac Series 62 convertible coupe with large but tasteful Cadillac emblems centered on the fender skirts, perfect chrome trim gleaming in the light of neon signs and very thick red leather-covered seats. To die for.

Seroka says it will be auctioned Memorial Day weekend, though he isn't yet sure at what time. The more affordable cars are likely to cross the auction block on Friday; the serious ones, including several Mercedes-Benzes that will go for six figures, will be up for bid Saturday or Sunday.

Complete programs listing all vehicles to be auctioned plus appropriate information like special engines and options and whether or not there is a reserve on the vehicle (the least amount the owner will accept.

from an auction bidder) are available to anyone attending the auction, says Carolyn Setty, who faithfully fields unusual questions from callers as she helps Ziegenbein and Seroka piece together major and minor details. Bidders can get a fair idea from the program of when the vehicles they wish to be bid on are going to cross the block, she says.

Sharing a spacious museum/ storage area with Seroka's Cadillac are more spectacular cars, juke boxes, neon signs, classic gasoline pumps, a cream-andaqua bumper car and Coke ma chines. Seroka says once word got out that there was a special museum here (it's actually more private than public), he opened his doors to find a long line of people waiting to come

"When they spotted the 10cent pop machine, they went nuts," he recalls.

"We couldn't keep it stocked. Kids were coming in and buying boxfuls to sell to their

Vendors with similar memorabilia will be at the Novi Expo Center along with a couple of Shelby Mustangs, a soft-yellow 1940 Buick Special 4-door convertible, Seroka's '56 sunset coral Lincoln convertible with self-latching top and coralblack-and-white interior, a chartreuse-and-white '57 Chevy and a '58 drop-dead-red Bonneville tri-power coupe.

There also will be original work by well-known automotive artists for sale. There will be drawings for major prizes. There will be lots of live music by a 1950s-style band and WOMC-FM will broadcast from the Novi site.

May 14, 1992 Grosse Pointe News News Substance abuse knows no boundaries in southeast Michigan

written by Leonard Smith, president of The Skillman Foundation and a Grosse Pointe Park resident.

While substance abuse has declined slightly in southeast Michigan, the more important news is that it is still a devastating problem that plagues every community in the area.

A recently published report by the L.C. Rand Corp., "Drug Abuse Problems, Programs, and Policy Recommendations for Metropolitan Detroit,' found that drug use has declined in the Detroit area since the mid-1980s, but is still above the levels of a decade ago.

The L.C. Rand study shows that cocaine use reported in emergency room records throughout the Detroit area ballooned from a few hundred cases in 1983 to almost 2,000 by 1990. Another study of 1,000 infants at Hutzel Hospital in 1990 found that 42 percent of the newborns had traces of some illegal substance in their systems.

According to the study, the drug-related problems facing the Detroit region, as in other major U.S. cities, are deeprooted and demand a sustained and coordinated response among all communities. We need to abandon unrealistic expectations about a "quick fix" to these problems and aggressively embrace long-term solutions.

More than a year ago, The Skillman Foundation approached the L.C. Rand Corp., a prominent national think tank, to conduct a study of drug problems and programs in the Detroit area. The foundation was quite clear in its mandate that it did not want another study which would "collect dust," but rather one to spur government, civic and community leaders into action.

The report also provided a broader perspective on the drug problem. While crack cocaine and crack-related violence have aroused great public concern, it is important that we do not allow any one drug to dominate our efforts.

The report recommends that our communities focus on a broad spectrum of activities especially preventive ones targeted to the larger problems of substance abuse, including alcohol.

According to the report, alcohol plays a role in 2,000 deaths a year in our area, compared to fewer than 1,000 deaths from other legal and illegal substances.

Our first line of defense in the battle against drugs lies in prevention programs aimed at young people. Several programs have shown great promise, but support for them has been sporadic. The L.C. Rand study found that substance abuse prevention programs have been widely implemented in school curriculums, especially at the elementary and middle school

But at the high school level, substance abuse information is disseminated with a more scattershot approach, often relying on course electives or "add on' programs.

The fate of the Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health Education currently presents a critical challenge to our community and others throughout the state. The Michigan model's curriculum, which incorporates substance abuse prevention inforschool health education curriculum at the elementary and middle school level.

In the tri-county area, 54 of the 83 school districts use the Michigan model. The state has authorized funding for the program through the end of the current school year. But continued state support for the Michigan model, the sole substance abuse prevention program for many schools, is in doubt.

Student assistance programs are another promising substance abuse prevention activity. These programs are one way we can intervene with students who are in the early stages of substance abuse.

However, these programs are being implemented at an extremely slow pace due to problems in recruiting teachers and administrators. We need to increase our emphasis on programs like these and develop mation, is the most widely used the early stages of substance abuse, quit using drugs or alcohol.

> Despite showing great promise, these programs have not been considered a top priority and thus have received little more than the prescribed minimum in state and federal funds. In 1989, state and federally funded coordinating agencies spent about $2 a person in Detroit and between 35 and 45 cents per person for the rest of the area, according to the report. That simply is not enough for the magnitude of the prob-

The Rand study emphasizes the need to shift more of the focus for drug abuse problems from enforcement to prevention. Despite a sharp increase in arrests for drug violations -60 percent in just two years from 1986 to 1988 — law enforcement is unlikely to provide a long-term solution to the drug new intervention activities to problems of the area. But law help young people, involved in 'enforcement working in cooper-of retail street activity. The report concludes that the drug problem is not just a city of Detroit problem. Drug problems cross city and county borders throughout the region. If we are to successfully fight our community's drug problems, it is imperative that we not only devote increasing resources to combating the drug epidemic, but that we work together to foster cooperative relationships between prevention, treatment, government and law enforcement agencies.

Only in this way can we establish the kind of unified front that is necessary to ultimately win the war against drugs.

Student Spotlight

Rob Weber

The following story was written by Rob Weber, 8, a secondgrader at Richard Elementary schol. His parents are Mark and Judy Weber of Grose Pointe.

A Fantasy

One day I was getting ready for school and I was not happy because we were going to have a spelling test.

When I got there, I saw Mrs. Swartz covered with mice. I laughed and went to my desk.

Weber ter lunch, we all came in and saw Mrs.

Swartz singing with a frog. I could tell we were not going to have the spelling test.

At 3 p.m., Mrs. Swartz started tap dancing. That was a disaster. Then she let the gerbils go. But we had no idea that the gerbils were in the art drawer. They were dressed up like clowns and they had some hidden talent, too. The gerbils popped out and started to do funny things. The frogs brought out a wading pool and started to do flips.

After that, it was time to go home. The bell rang and the children all left. When I got home, I was happy because we did not have the spelling test!

on annual assessment increases of 5 percent or the rate of inflation, whichever is lower.

To pay for this program, Democrats say they will raise $750 million by eliminating certain tax breaks for businesses. Republicans say the Democratic plan would unfairly penalize businesses and cost jobs.

The third proposal, crafted by former gubernatorial candidate Richard Headlee, is in the courts because the validity of signatures on a petition (to put the measure on the ballot) was questioned.

The Headlee proposal calls for a 20 percent property tax cut, and requires the state to reimburse local governments and school districts for lost revenue. It would also reduce the state equalized value (SEV), the yardstick by which property assessments are determined.

Cutting taxes seems to be popular in Lansing, but in the Pointes, St. Clair Shores and Harper Woods, the people who are toiling over budgets in the city halls and school district offices say the tax reform binge will result in a loss of uniformity in assessments, layoffs and the loss of some city services.

Catherine Nagurka, director of fiscal services for St. Clair Shores' Lake Shore School District, is one of those who think the paring of property taxes is going to hurt schools.

She says the property tax measures are a "very large" consideration right now, and that it will be difficult to put a budget together by June 30 without knowing which tax proposal's limits she will have to contend with next year.

"We're trying our best to prepare," said Nagurka. "It could be disastrous for all the districts in the area. There's just not enough information and you can't budget with that kind of uncertainty.'

The Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods schools are reeling from an 8 percent jump in expenses after the state decided to dump FICA expenses on out-of-formula schools. James E. Leidlein, Harper Woods city manager, said the city will try in June for a 3-mill increase to ease funding difficulties plaguing the schools.

As for the city itself, Leidlein said Harper Woods could lose between $100,000 and $200,000 because of the assessment freeze. He says the way the state has been handling tax reform has been maddening. "The tax proposals are as clear as mud," he said. "That's frustrating to people who work in government."

The Legislature is making a serious mistake by wresting control over taxation from the cities and townships, say local leaders.

There is doubt about the efficacy of the proposals, and wariness among some local officials about the state's vow to follow through with reimbursement of revenue losses.

"Even under the Robin Hood plan, at least we have the option of going back to the taxpayers to make up the loss," said Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent of finance for the Grosse Pointe schools. "This takes control away from local governments. We're hooked back into the state again with them saying they'll reimburse."

Because of the freeze, some cities have been forced to increase their tax rates.

This year, Grosse Pointe City's Blue Cross costs climbed 31.5 percent, workers compensation went up 30 percent and investment earnings plunged $40,000.

Dennis Foran, Grosse Pointe City's assessor, said there hasn't been any cutting - yet - but if there are drastic limits on annual assessment increases, it could spell layoffs in the not-too-distant future.

Foran said the city could probably swallow a 5 percent limit on yearly tax increases, but if the limit were lowered to 3 percent, there would be serious budgetary distress.

"We're anticipating that if those (proposals) pass, we may need to make some cuts," said Foran. "The problem is that with schools and cities, most of your money is in salaries and wages, and that's where you're going to have to cut. You're going to have to get into peo-

State revenue sharing could help, but the state has been cutting back.

Grosse Pointe City received about $409,000 this year from state revenue sharing - a drop of $70,000 from last year.

"We really don't know what's going to happen with the elections. I anticipate three proposals on the ballot," said Foran. "And '93 could be a mess, especially with assessing. Some of the proposals may be combined or conflicting.

Local governments are also facing the possibility that the proposals could be enacted in some sort of combination.

Individually, the proposals are merely confusing. In combination, they could be financially lethal.

Since the Republican plan amends the state Constitution while the Democratic plan just changes state law, it's possible that both measures could be enacted simultaneously this

For example, if both the Democratic and Republican plans are approved this fall, it could give homeowners a $30,000 exemption on their home's market value and the 30 percent tax cut on top of that, with a three percent limit on annual assessment increases.

That possibility strikes fear into the hearts of local officials.

The courts would have to step in to combine the proposals in a coherent way, and this could mean that even more money could be siphoned away from local governments and school districts.

This is disillusioning to administrators like Mark Wollenweber, city manager of St. Clair Shores. Wollenweber said his city has already been running on a shoestring, and that the tax proposals indicate the state will demand even more sacrifices from local governments.

"What the state does, they do, and you just have to try to live within it," he said. "They don't live by the same rules as the rest of us. We just happened to get the bottom end."

Voods to hold 1992-93 budget hearing on May 18

Donna Walker f Writer

Most homeowners will pay e same or less than they did is year under Grosse Pointe oods' proposed general opering millage for fiscal year

There are two reasons for

The proposed millage (for the cal year beginning July 1, 992 and ending June 30, 1993) s the same as this year's -.4610 mills.

Also, the state equalized valation (SEV) of all property in he city for fiscal '93 is about $515 million, slightly lower than fiscal '92's level.

That's the good news.

Want some more good news? Under the proposed 1992-93 budget, the millage that's levied to retire the park redevelopment bonds the city took out in 1986 is also going down, from .5785 mills in fiscal '92 to .5769 mills in fiscal '93.

Also, the millage the city levies for its emergency medical advanced services (paramedics) will be .5000 mills, the same as

Now, for the bad news.

Other millages that are administered by the city are going up under the proposed

The millage to retire bonds the city took out in 1974 to build a swimming pool at Lakefront Park is going up from .3040 mills in fiscal '92 to .3386 mills in fiscal '93.

A mill equals $1 for every $1,000 of SEV. State equalized valuation is set by the state and is supposed to equal onehalf the market value of real property (land and homes).

If a house has a market value of $160,000, then the SEV should be about $80,000.

A Woods resident whose property had a SEV of $80,000 in fiscal '92 would have been charged $24.32 for the swimming pool millage that year.

Because the state Legislature froze property assessments last year, most residents' property will have the same SEV in fiscal '93 as it did in fiscal '92.

People whose property has an SEV of $80,000 in fiscal '93 will be charged $27.09 under the swimming pool millage — an increase of $2.77.

The millage for solid waste/ recycling/disposal services in the Woods is also going up under the proposed budget, from 2.3842 mills in fiscal '92 to 2.5885 mills in fiscal '93.

The hypothetical resident with the $80,000 SEV home will pay $207.08 in fiscal '93 for solid waste/recycling/disposal services, as opposed to $190.74 in fiscal '92.

The $80,000 SEV homeowner would pay $596.88 for the general operating fund millage and $40 for emergency medical services in fiscal '93, the same as in fiscal '92.

Also, the owner would pay \$46.15 in fiscal '93 to retire the park redevelopment bonds, as compared with \$46.28 in fiscal  $^{\prime}92-$  a savings of 13 cents.

The total tax levy that the Woods council is proposing for fiscal '93 - including the millages for the general operating fund, the swimming pool fund, the park redevelopment fund, emergency medical services, and solid waste/recycling/disposal - is 11.4650 mills, which translates into $917.20 for the SEV $80,000 homeowner.

In fiscal '92, the total tax levy was 11.2277 mills, which translated into $898.216 for the same homeowner.

Why are the millages for the swimming pool, park redevelopment and solid waste/recycling/ disposal going up?

Woods interim city administrator Chester E. Petersen said the swimming pool and park redevelopment millages are going up to meet the payment schedule the city agreed to when it took out those municipal bonds (low-interest loans). The city agreed to pay more for the retirement of those bonds in fiscal '93 than it did in fiscal

The solid waste/recycling/disposal millage is going up due to the increased cost of composting yard waste; recycling paper, glass and plastic; and disposing of solid waste, he said.

How did the city manage to keep the proposed general operating fund below this year's

"We did not lay off anyone or cut any salaries," Petersen

Rather, the city council and administration decided to transfer less money from the general fund to the major and local street funds than it did in fiscal 1992, he said.

The city plans to transfer $106,550 less from the general fund to the major street fund in fiscal '93 than it did this year. and $172,750 less from the general fund to the local street fund in fiscal '93 than it did this year, said city comptroller Clifford Maison.

Will fewer streets be repaired in fiscal '93 due to the de-

No, Maison said, because the city is receiving more money from the state in fiscal '93 for road repair.

Also, more residents will be paying for sidewalk replacement in 1992-93 than did so this year, Maison said.

Many of the slabs that were replaced this year were paid for by the city, either because they were on city property or because the sidewalk had to be replaced through some fault of the city's, such as a leaky manhole that caused the cement to buckle.

Fewer slabs for which the city would have to pick up the tab have been targeted for repair in 1992-93.

The city's proposed fiscal 1993 budget is as follows:

 General operating fund $8,127,950 (as compared to $8,149,500 in '92).

Money from this fund is used to pay the operating costs of the general government (including employees' salaries), and of the departments of public safety and public works (which includes parks and recreation).

 Special revenue fund — $4,012,600 (as compared to $3,832,300 in '92).

The special revenue fund includes the major and local street funds, ambulance service, training for public safety officers, solid wastes/disposal/ recycling services, grants, and drug enforcement money.

Grants include community development block grant funds the city receives from the federal government through

Wayne County.

For fiscal '92, the city budgeted $8,300 in grants. For fiscal '93, it has budgeted $189,050.

Money from property that is confiscated from drug arrests must be used for drug enforcement. For this year, the Woods budgeted $1,050 for drug enforcement. That money has been forwarded to fiscal '93, which has a proposed drug enforcement budget of $4,150.

• Debt fund — $664,600 (as compared with $643,700 in fis-

• Enterprise fund-$4,295,800 (as compared with $3,950,250 in fiscal '92).

Out of the enterprise fund, the city pays the expenses associated with its parking programs (meters and municipal lots), water and sewage service, boat docks, and commodity sales.

The enterprise fund does not receive its money through taxes. Rather, it is funded through the fees the city charges for such things as parking at metered lots, water and sewage service, and boat dock rentals.

 Motor vehicle fund — $798,150 (as compared with $926,500 in fiscal '92).

· The grand total for the proposed 1993 budget is $17,899,100 (as compared with $17,502,250 in fiscal '92.

The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council has scheduled a public hearing on the proposed budget for its May 18 council meeting, which starts at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

Think as an artist

Even though photography has been around for about 150 years, it's only within the past decade that it has been accepted as a true art form with collections found in major museums throughout the world.

Its acceptance is revealed not only by public appreciation of photography but also by the economic impact of photography in the marketplace. Photographs that today sell for many thousands of dollars commanded only $100 to $200 just over a decade ago. People today appreciate fine photography and are willing to pay for it. Obviously, not all photographs are considered great works of art and are worth little except to the person who shot them. But the important thing is to develop a state of nand that presumes your photography can be important, that taking photographs can be an art, and that as a person deeply interested in photography, you are an artist. You paint with light and your subject is life itself. What a wonderful opportunity to create.

How can you begin to think of yourself as an artist? First, by likening yourself to a sculptor. A sculptor begins with a block of marble — his whole. By chipping away with a chisel, he produces his finished work. Thus, by process of elimination and "zeroing-in," a sculptor derives his completed A photographer, too, derives his completed work by process of elimination and by "zeroingin" on his subject. An initial look at the subject is the photographer's "whole." Then, by proper lens selection, camera angle, light direction, time of day, selective focusing, etc., the photographer "chips away" like the sculptor and ends up with his finished art.

Even film choice and paper selection are important for the photographer to express himself artistically. Remember, also, that it isn't the chisel carving the stone — it's the sculptor. Similarly, keep in mind that it's not the camera making the photograph — it's really you.

Learning to visualize in advance is very important in your photography and will help you think in terms of an artist. When you are composing a scene in the viewfinder, try to visualize the image of a finished print. This is especially true in working with black and white where an interpretation of tones and contrasts is neces-

Even when you don't have your camera with you, train yourself to look at things as if you were seeing through a ... viewfinder. You'll be amazed at what you will see.

Yet another way to bring out the artist in you is to try to say in your photography how you feel about your subjects, remembering that you and your subject are the two most important ingredients in making a photograph.

If you love trees, for example, communicate this love through your photographs. Try to make a meaningful statement about trees in your pictures.

The idea of a photograph, as in any art medium, is to create a visual interpretation of what you saw and felt and then to share your vision with others.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Park will hold a Public Hearing at 7:00 p.m. on Thursday, May 21, 1992, in the Council Chambers of the City Hall, 15115 E. Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park, to receive comments and discuss a proposed additional 1992 City operating millage rate.

In 1991, the City levied a total of 13.82 mills ($13.82 per $1,000 of SEV) for City operating purposes. In 1992 the City anticipates levying a total operating rate of 14.40 mills ($14.40 per $1,000 of SEV) for the City operating purposes. This represents a .58 mill increase in the operating millage rate and would allow for a 4.2% increase in operating property tax revenues.

Due to a freeze in the state equalized value of existing property in the City. State law (P.A. 5 of 1982) provides that the base tax rate for the 1992 City operating taxes remain at an estimated 13.82 mills. In order to fund the City's proposed 1992-93 budget and maintain essential City services, the City finds it necessary to restore its millage levy reduction. Accordingly, the City proposes to levy an additional millage rate of .58 mills ($.58 per $1,000 of SEV) above the estimated 1992 Truth-in-Taxation base tax rate. This may allow up to an estimated 4.2% increase in the City tax operating revenue and result in a 1992 operating tax rate of 14.40 mills ($14.40 per $1,000 of SEV).

In accordance with P.A. 5 of 1982, the City has the authority to establish the number of mills to be levied within its authorized millage rate.

been everyone from the Beatles to Miles Davis to Mozart," he

"Ultimately, classical music is my favorite. I spend more time listening and reading about classical music than any other music form," said Denomme, who had just finished reading a biography on Bee-

When Denomme tells an east side Detroiter the name of one of his groups, the Balduck Mountain Ramblers, he invariably gets a smile or a chuckle.

Eastsiders know that Balduck "mountain" is an evershrinking hill, composed of grass-covered garbage, at Balduck Park between Chandler Park Drive and East Warren. The "mountain" is across the street from the former Austin Prep, now a nursing home, where the three other "Ramblers" also went to high school.

"My true, favorite band the one I've had the fun with has been the Balduck Mountain Ramblers," he said. Started in 1984, the Balduck Mountain Ramblers are going stronger than ever, including playing on public radio station WDET several times during the summer concert series.

"Our most honorable and prestigious job was playing Meadow Brook and Brunch with Bach at the Detroit Institute of Arts," Denomme said.

He finds describing the group's music much more difficult than playing it.

"We're an eclectic quartet that will play anything that can be transformed for humor and voice," he said.

"It's made up of equal parts of instrumental and vocal and we move in and out of styles and play everything from bluegrass to a cappella to Motown to Western swing. It's almost impossible to describe. I can't even put it in a phrase."

Difficult to describe or not, the group won the Metro Times Detroit Music Awards "Talent Deserving Wider Recognition in the Folk Category" in 1985 and in 1986 and 1991 won the prestigious "Best Band in the Folk Category" award.

Denomme recently became involved in a record project in Nashville with another one of his groups, Cyporyn.

He joined Dennis Cyporyn, who writes the ensemble's music, two other local studio musicians and four Nashville studio musicians to cut the record in Nashville and a record release party is scheduled for this month.

"I'm basically a hired hand. It's the first really big recording project I've ever been involved in," he said. "Right now, the promotional gears are in full turn.

instrumental music best described as a hybrid between jazz and bluegrass. I hasten to point out, we're not jazz in musicality but we're jazz-like in structure.

Denomme, who lives with his wife and two daughters, Meighan, 15, and Sarah, 11, in Grosse Pointe Woods, drives beyond Milford to practice with the group at least once a week.

The Thursday evening summer concert series in the Village, called Music on the Plaza, was initiated by Denomme in

"It was conceived partially as a jazz series and continues to have a strong jazz influence. But this year we're also bringing in groups with more popular appeal, like the Chisel Brothers and the Sun Messengers," Denomme said.

The Village Merchants Association, of which Denomme is a member, sponsors the concerts along with the Bon Secours Foundation and various merchants to attract business to the Village and provide free, quality entertainment to the community!

"As retailers, we're all keenly aware of the competition and we feel our real competitive advantages are in service," Denomme said.

"We consider this series as nothing more than a service to our customers."

This year, seven concerts are scheduled, starting June 11.

Also this summer, Denomme will celebrate the 11th anniversery of Village Records and Tapes, which he founded with former partner George Young.

Young left the business in 1990 to pursue other interests.

One activity is the Musical Note lecture series, sponsored by the Detroit Free Press and featuring lecturer John Guinn, music critic for the Free Press since 1975.

The series runs from September to May and is designed to expose music lovers to the finer details of select classical programs. The lectures are held at the store and then repeated at the Bloomfield Township Public Library.

But more than anything, even more than practicing his guitar, which he calls a "passion and a habit," Denomme loves being with his family.

"Trying to patch a living together, between running a business and playing in bands, requires a prime ingredient

War Memorial lauds volunteers

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial honored members of its Service League at a dinner May 4 recognizing their volunteer efforts over the past year.

In remarks following the dinner, War Memorial President Mark Weber extended a heartfelt thanks to the association's volunteers who have and are working to benefit the community. He spoke of the important role the Service League plays in the center's operation.

The War Memorial Service League currently has 94 members. The responsibilities of the league are varied, including tapestry repair, host and hostesses, cashiers and ticket takers, plant care and a clerical group which assists with large mailings and other office assignments.

Anyone interested in being a volunteer at the War Memorial may contact Paula Galvin, volunteer coordinator, at 881-7511.

"Cyporyn is original, acoustic which is a patient and understanding family. There is no way I could, or anyone could, do it without that essential ingredient," he said.

The family takes an annual summer vacation at a northern Michigan cottage that Denomme's wife's family has rented since the 1940s. It's there that Denomme treats himself to a "Finnish Dip."

"It's my favorite thing in the world to do," he said. "You take a hot sauna and then jump into a cold lake. The sensation takes your breath away.

Not surprising, coming from someone who credits (with a wink) the Three Stooges as having the most profound influence on his life.

Aside from dipping the Finnish way, when he wants to relax, Denomme likes to play basketball, bike or take in a live jazz session at a local Park bar on the first and third Sunday of every month.

With all of his accomplishments - juggling the responsibilities of a store, family and musical career; winning various top honors with his musical groups; opening a store in the midst of a severe recession and making a success story out of it - what is Denomme most proud of?

"Watching my two kids being born. I was sitting right there. That was the proudest moment of my life," he said.

Danger lurks in Americans' infatuation with vitamins and minerals

Most of what we know about the use of minerals in the body has come from research within the last two decades. The Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council, a subdivision of the National Academy of Sciences, names 16 minerals, six of which are needed in amounts of 100mg or more daily. These are calcium, phosphorus, magnesium, sodium, potassium and chloride.

The other 10 are trace elements required in tiny daily amounts: iron, zinc, iodine, copper, fluorine, manganese, chromium, selenium, molubdenium and cobalt (usually as part of

One important role of minerals is to build teeth and bones. Some minerals help in enzyme action or they may combine with other chemicals to make hemoglobin, and red blood cells, and bring about the metabolism of glucose.

The work of minerals in the body is complex because they may combine with vitamins, enzymes or other body substances to produce an effect needed.

For the first time, a coalition of three national organizations of health professionals - the American Dietetic Association, the American Institute of Nutrition and the American Society for Clinical Nutrition, along with the National Council Against Health Fraud - have issued a public statement advising consumers about the safe use of vitamin and mineral supplements. The American Medical Association reviewed the coalition's statement and agreed with it.

Health professionals advise Americans to get their nutrients from food first in amounts shown in the inverted triangle that follows:

There is serious concern about the effects of high doses of single-nutrient supplements, not the one daily multiple vitamin/mineral pill which contains levels no more than the recommended dietary allowance

Bonnie's story illustrates what can happen when a person chooses to take doses of a supplement at levels that are

At 29 Bonnie developed high blood pressure and her specialist prescribed antihypertensive drugs to hold her pressure within the normal range. Later, another doctor suggested 25,000 IU (five times normal amount) of vitamin A and 800 IU (over 25 times normal amount) of vitamin E daily.

She was to return within four weeks to the doctor, but she did not do so. After eight months, she was having periods of blurred vision and blinding flashes of light. She continued the same daily amount of vitamin A for three years.

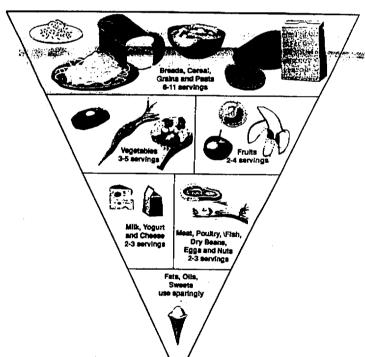

Finally, Bonnie went to a large hospital where her blood pressure showed elevation in spite of her hypertensive medication. Her eyes were swollen near the optic nerve, and her right eye had internal bleeding. Fluid pressure in her brain and spine was abnormally high.

Doctors diagnosed chronic vitamin A poisoning and convinced her to stop taking the supplement. As a result, her blood pressure became normal within five days, and her eves appeared normal after six months.

A survey by the FDA showed that from 66 to 72 percent of people 65 and older use supplements. Doctors report that many are taking potentially dangerous doses. Older adults often live with symptoms of

THE BASIC FOOD GROUPS

Picturing Amounts to be Eaten

multiple body problems which can worsen with unusually inappropriate doses of supplements

Definite word on how the FDA will reduce the daily requirements of vitamins and minerals listed on food labels and supplements will be finalized and made known in 1993. Why has this been proposed?

1. The recommended daily allowance (RDA) now in effect recommends the highest possible need that a given age or sex group at risk requires.

2. The reference daily intake (RDI) recommends a quantity appropriate for the average healthy American.

3. The change would correct for public perception that the RDAs show the lowest level of the nutrient required instead of the highest.

4. The government wants to bring the United States nutritional levels more in line with those in Europe and Canada, which are lower.

The following chart shows RDAs and RDIs for common vitamins and minerals. Note the direction of the percent change.

Dr. Victor Herbert, professor of Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York, claims that the RDAs have been kept artificially high by food supplement manufacturers. If the FDA drops the required dosage for supplements, he predicts an estimated 60 percent drop in sales of supplements.

To help the consumer make a wise decision, the dietary supplement task force of the FDA proposes that high-potency vitamins and minerals include warnings about possible toxicity. They advise that consumers be warned on the label that high dosages could be unsafe and the therapeutic value of megadoses is not established.

Memorial donations sought

The final piece of Michigan's Vietnam Veterans Memorial at Island Park in Mount Pleasant is nearing completion.

A twice life-size bronze statue titled "War Cry" is reaching its final stages in the studio of Michigan artist Derek Rainey of Portland. Vietnam Veterans of America, Chapter 438 of Mount Pleasant is now accepting donations to cover foundry and transportation costs required to bring the statue to the memorial.

Members of the Mount Pleasant veterans group began their memorial tribute to all Vietnam era veterans in 1990 with the construction of a foot bridge across the Chippewa River, connecting Island Park with the Pickens ball fields.

After completion of the bridge, construction began on the state memorial and flag gallery, which consists of a series of eight monuments with plaques bearing the names of the more than 2,700 Michigan Vietnam veterans who were killed in action or are still missing in Southeast Asia. The memorial was dedicated in July 1990 as a host of dignitaries, volunteers, vets and community members gathered for the cere-

Chapter 438 then commissioned Rainey to sculpt his 'War Cry" creation as the final phase of the memorial. The sculpture depicts a tender moment from the Vietnam war as a soldier embraces his comrade.

as a tribute to his buddies who served in the war. When his work is complete it will head for a foundry in Clarkston, for the bronzing process before reaching its final destination in Mount Pleasant.

Nearly $300,000 has already been invested in the memorial. The funds have been raised through private donations of cash, materials and labor. An additional $50,000 will be needed to complete the final phase of the memorial.

This entire project has been a healing process for all of us,' said Chapter 438 President Robert Howard. "Thanks to the generosity of veterans, businesses and volunteers, we have given Vietnam Veterans, their families and the entire state a fitting memorial to all who served."

Donations for the memorial project can be made to VVA, Chapter 438, P.O. Box 283, Mount Pleasant, Mich. 48858.

Judi McKenney of Century 21 East in the Village in Grosse Pointe City was honored recently for selling more than $2 million in real estate during 1991.

The last expansion, which added 30 feet and cost about $400,000, gives the store 12 aisles. It also boasts the only three-tier produce rack in the state, according to Bell.

"I don't want to see two rows of celery, I want to see two kinds of celery," he said. "Instead of six rows of lettuce, I want six kinds of lettuce. I want to see variety.

Bell, who plans to add an inhouse smoke house to the business, believes in variety. There are 18 types of sausage available today compared with three kinds a year ago.

Some things, however, have not changed from the early days. Village Food still has inhouse charge accounts and they still make deliveries.

But those services, too, have been updated. The in-house charges, once tallied on an adding machine and billed by hand, are now computerized.

And home deliveries can be ordered by fax as well as phone. The number of the newly installed fax machine is 884-8392.

The business makes about 120 deliveries a week, two trips day. The delivery charge is $1 for orders over $10 and $2 for orders under $10 and all specials.

Because the market sells about 20,000 bottles of wine a week, Bell, who doesn't drink wine, has made it his business to know as much as he can about it. He attends seminars and wine tastings regularly, gleaning information from experts and tracking trends.

Bell began working in his parents' market when he was about 10, after school and during summers. He attended Monteith Elementary and Parcells Middle School and graduated from Grosse Pointe South in 1960.

He said he remembers his father saying that he would get him so mad at the food industry, he would want to do some"He couldn't do it," Bell said.

The food business is very exciting.'

Bell's brother, Ron, who died 21 years ago, also worked at the market. Bell bought it from his parents 18 years ago. His father died in 1991 and his mother died in January.

With nearly 40 years' involvement in the food industry, Bell has seen a lot of changes. People are eating more than half of their 21 meals a week

City weighs 1992-93 budget

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe City residents will suffer a slight increase in taxes next year, thanks primarily to rising costs and the floundering economy.

On Monday the City council discussed the proposed 1992-93 $4.794 million budget. That is an increase of $301,570 over the 1991-92 budget.

The proposed tax rate is 13.86 mills. A mill is equal to $1 for every $1,000 of SEV. The state equalized value is equivalent to half the assessed value of a piece of property.

Using those figures, a home assessed at $150,000 has a SEV of $75,000 and would pay $1,039.50 in city taxes next year. That's up from the $972 that same homeowner would have paid this year. That's an increase of 6.9 percent in City

"We're the second smallest Pointe so we have a harder time absorbing cuts than some of the others," said city manager Tom Kressbach.

State money has decreased considerably in recent years from $473,263 in 1989-90 to $408,820 in the proposed budget. In addition, investment income is estimated to drop some 20 percent because of the economy.

Add those cuts to increases in medical insurance the city offers its employees and increased worker's compensation and pension costs, and that accounts for more than half the proposed 6.7 percent budget increase.

In addition, refuse collection fees have increased substantially. The City is proposing composting of grass, which would remove the heavy clippings from the waste stream going to the incinerator. The City pays the incinerator authority per ton to have its refuse incinerated.

"We worked the budget on the basis that we would include the same level of programming and the same level of services, Kressbach said. "We have not chosen to cut programs or dip into our reserves. We're an older community and we have to keep up on the infrastructure or we'll have some prob-

Next year the city has budgeted $165,000 for street resurfacing, curbs and nearly $200,000 for other improvements, some $100,000 for new equipment for the public works department, development of Neff Park and funds for the celebration of the city's 100th birthday.

"Of coulse we would like to be able to bring in a budget at a lower level, tax-wise, but we got nailed by costs on one side and less money coming in on the other," Kressbach said. "But this is an odd year. We have a long record of restraint

In the last 20 years the city's taxes have risen 269 percent, compared to the school's 400 percent and the county's 634 percent for that same time period, Kressbach said.

The council is expected to approve its budget at its 7:30 p.m. meeting May 18 in city

Alcohol cuts in at the dance

Students say most prom-goers will drink alcohol; 25 percent will deliberately try to get drunk

Five students from Grosse Pointe South were asked to place their prom-going peers into three catego-

2. Estimate the percentage who will be "social drinkers." (Students defined social drinking as having 6-8 beers during the whole evening, about a 12-hour period.)

3. Estimate the percentage of kids who will abstain from alcohol. They said anywhere from 25 to

The students were not a representative sample from either school. Some were not even planning to go to prom themselves. Some said they did not drink alcohol. Some said they drank alcohol occasionally. Some said they drank often. Some wished to remain anonymous.

Most of the students agreed that heavy consumption of alcohol, as a rule, does not take place at the prom itself, which is a dinner and dance combination at a restaurant or hall. Students are not allowed to come and go during the prom. Once they arrive at the event, they're required to stay the entire evening.

According to the South students, a theoretical worst-case prom night scenario would go something like

The young man picks up his date in a car or a rented limousine. He's wearing a rented tuxedo and carrying a corsage. His date is wearing a new dress, (probably a black one, with lots of ruffles), and she has a boutonniere for him.

Their parents oooh and aaah. The girl's parents take pictures as the couple pins flowers on each other. The couple may go back to the boy's home for more photos. They pick up the other couples they're double- or triple-dating with and go through the same photo routine several more times.

They stop at somebody's house, where the parents may - or may not be present - and have a few beers. Just to get loosened up.

They move on to the prom itself. A few students may smuggle flasks in. The flasks get passed around in the bathrooms, behind closed doors of the stalls. Generally speaking, however, there isn't a chance to drink alcohol during the dinner and dance.

After the dance, the couples pick up their stash of alcohol and head for a previously-rented hotel or a private party at someone's house. The stash may be already stored in the hotel, in suitcases. It's mostly beer, but also includes wine coolers, rum and vodka.

If the hotel party includes several dozen students, it may take place in several adjoining rooms. There's usually a room for drinking; two bedrooms for sex; and a balcony or porch to hide the alcohol. Drugs may also be available.

The music is kept low. There may be some drinking games. Noise is kept to a minimum, so the group won't attract attention from the hotel management.

The students listed a number of consequences that individuals may suffer from this theoretical worstcase prom scene:

Scott driving while drunk

The consequences of driving while drunk brings the possibility of accidents, injuries - even deaths, the students said.

"People could do things they don't normally do when they've been drinking," said Bill Scott, 17, a junior at South. "Often drinkers don't remember what they did or might do something they'll regret later." A South senior who wished to remain anonymous said he hadn't decided yet whether he'll drink or not at his prom. If he does, he said, he'll drink to get drunk — but not enough so that he won't be able to remember the evening later.

"Once kids are at the hotel, they plan on staying all night," said Van Steenkiste. "They'll start to

One of the most dangerous weapons you can place in an unpracticed player's hand is thirteen pasteboards comprising 16 or 17 H.C.P. opposite an opening bid. For some, "I'm going to conquer the bridge world" unseasoned reason the responder, so loaded, feels compelled to get to slam in an instant. Unfortunately nothing you do will slow him down or deviate him from that course.

I have dozens of examples of such inexpediency from just the first few months of '92.

Remember again what I preach in my teaching. "The better the hand, the slower you go." Of course to do so it is imperative to understand forcing as opposed to non-forcing sequences.

Today I'm going to show you a few actual calamities from this years duplicate games. Each will be followed with a suggestion for a better bidding technique.

War Memorial offers another summer of outdoor concerts

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

Who says there's nothing to do in the summer?

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial has offered summer concerts outdoors on its back lawn for 35 years and will continue the tradition this year.

The lineup, which was just announced, includes the music of Broadway, Dixieland, Trinidad and Ireland in performances meant to offer something for everyone.

"I had lots of people come up to me and say how much they enjoyed it and that they've never had an experience quite like that," Suczek said.

They will do the same thing this year with "Shrew."

Simon tops himself in 'Lost in Yonkers'

By Marian Trainor Staff Writer

Laughter and tears mingle in "Lost in Yonkers," Neil Simon's latest offering.

Winner of the 1991 Pulitzer Prize for drama, the play presents a dour story leavened with humor. Heartbreaking and heartwarming, it is set in 1942 when two brothers move in with their iron-fisted grandmother while their father goes off to sell scrap iron in the South.

Told from the viewpoint of two impressionable adolescent boys, Jeff (Jeff Maynard) 13-1/2. and Arty (Alex Dezen) 11-1/2, their comments on what goes on in Grandma's dysfunctional family provide humor and relief from what is essentially a sad situation.

All of Grandma's four children are emotionally scarred because of their mother's rigid and cold influence. The cane she wielded and the harsh words she spoke were meant to make them strong but they inflicted wounds that affected their entire adult life.

Grandma didn't allow her children to cry; if they did she locked them in a closet. She bragged that she never cried, not even when she saw her husband trampled to death by Nazi soldiers on horseback. But her pain and suffering have made her a mean-spirited woman and her children have suffered because of it. They have lived by rules with no show of love or affection.

Aunt Bella (Susan Giosa) has the mind of a 13-year-old girl whose mental shortcomings weren't improved by her mother's repeated pounding on her head. She lives in fear of the "home" her mother threatens her with. Eddie (Martin Shaikar), the boys' father, is a weakling, Louie (Ned Eisenberg) is a bag man for the mob and Gert (Polly Anderson), punished as a child for breathing too loudly, gasps for breath at the end of each sentence. Grandma (Mercedes McCambridge) has no problems. She has solved them all by an unflinching, uncaring attitude.

Eddie has fallen into the hands of loan sharks who are demanding the money he borrowed. Louie puts on a good show but lives the life of the underworld. Gert is pathetic in her efforts to make her listeners understand what she is trying to communicate and Bella's adolescent mind is in conflict with her 35-year-old body.

During the boys' 10-month stay they learn a lot about Grandma's mixed-up family and why they are the way they are. A good sense of humor helps the boys survive the or-

Much of the comedy is provided by Bella. She has all the enthusiasm and mood swings typical of a 13-year-old. She bubbles with enthusiasm one minute and the next has a tantrum over something that displeases her.

The boys survive the stay and even come to understand why Grandma cannot bend for fear she will break. Her armor of sterness has been her life's protection.

The cast is excellent. Mc-Cambridge never flinches in her role as the stern matriarch. Maynard and Dezen add so much boyish charm and wit to the play and Eisenberg's Louie is excellent as the tough hood with a heart of gold. Giosa puts her whole heart into the role of Bella and makes the character a standout.

Mozart Society gives concert

The Pro Mozart Society of Greater Detroit will present its 33rd Annual Concert on Sunday, May 17, at 3 p.m. in the Fries Auditorium at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Music of Mozart and Rossini will be performed. Last year marked the 200th anniversary of Mozart's death, and 1992 marks the 200th anniversary of Rossini's birth. Mozart's opera "The Marriage of Figaro" and Rossini's opera "The Barber of Seville" are based on the pre-French Revolutionary Beaumarchais plays and present a number of the same characters, so arias and duets from both operas will be performed. A string quintet, composed of Gerda Bielitz and Paul Champion, violins; Rolf Wunderlich, viola; Anthony Theodore, cello; and Donald Littlefield, double bass, known as The St. Michael's String Ensemble, will perform a string quintet by Mozart and one by Rossini.

Soprano Maggie Rees and baritone Mark Watson will sing arias and duets.

Lawrence La Gore, music director of the Pro Mozart Society, will perform at the piano. La Gore has performed extensively as soloist, ensemble performer and accompanist in the metropolitan area and throughout the United States and Can-

All performers proved to be in excellent form, and the level of music-making was of a high caliber throughout the afternoon. There was another goodsized audience in attendance, in spite of the sudden change in the weather. #### Beautiful and intelligent, it's the mother of all books

The Smithsonian Book of Books By Michael Olmert

Smithsonian Books 320 pages. $41.96.

At first glance, "The Smithsonian Book of Books" appears to be the usual run-of-the-mill coffee-table book: oversized, overpriced, extravagantly illustrated with glossy pages, and pretentious in its subject coverage. But, after closer inspection, one is forced to conclude that this is a book worthy of immediate possession, especially if one is a rabid bibliophile. Also, for normal people it is a fine source of fascinating information about the book and its long and

As a frequent contributor to the Smithsonian magazine, the author, Michael Olmert, was chosen to undertake the long, arduous research into the history of books, from ancient times to the present day. He was finally able to write his wonderful account based on scrolls, monkish scribes, manuscript illumination, Gutenberg's printing revolution, the modern masters of typography, craftsmen and their beautiful leather-bindings, the scientific books that influenced the world, children's books, and the worlds of publishing, auction houses, and the mystique of antique books. This entire gamut is very effectively handled by Olmert, whose consummate scholarship and deep love for books is reflected throughout his impeccable text.

In his long list of acknowledgments, Olmert pays a touching tribute to his father: "As a child, I often saw my father lost in books; ever since then, I've been trying to figure out what it was all about. This book is the result." Indeed, all book lovers have a genuine treat when they first come upon this magnificent volume and discover, with thrilled awe, all the richness of book lore between the covers. Give yourself a treat. Plunge into this book, marvel over the lovely illustrations, both color and black-and-white, and it is almost a guarantee that you will fall under its magic spell.

Many entertaining episodes concerning life with books are told with zest and picturesque detail. For example, there is the cautionary tale of an indomitable nun, Sister Juana Ines de la Cruz, of late 17th century Spain who stood up against her bishop's opposition toward her feminist writings, exhorting intellectual freedom for women. Unfortunately, her struggles against the Catholic hierarchy "did her little good. She was silenced and denied the use of her 4,000-book library for the remaining four years of her life." What a dreadful fate for any bibliophile.

One of our greatest early patriots, Benjamin Franklin, "taught himself to write by trying to re-create essays out of Joseph Addison and Richard Steele's Spectator, the literary high-water mark for journalism, and then comparing his versions with the original." Then we learn that "the American writer who learned most from Ben Franklin is Mark Twain. He, too, had been a printers' devil, apprenticed to the printer of his brother's paper. Twain knew what it was like to transform confused drafts into crisp prose that could persuade and move."

We read that "because of Shakespeare's disdain for print, we can never be completely certain about the extent of his playwrighting. Consider 'Love's Labor Won,' surely the Loch Ness of bibliography: first sighted in a list of Shakespeare's comedies compiled in 1598, the play has never been found." However, "in the end, Shakespeare's regard for books is clear: his writings hold no fewer than 366 references to reading and books.'

Just to show you to what lengths a bibliophile will go: "If a publishing archaeologist were to violate a tomb today, he would do well to start with the last and final resting place of James Edwards (1757-1816), bookseller and bibliographer who traveled throughout Europe buying and selling books. In 1786, the great Bedford Missal, now in the British Library, was in his hands. Books made Edwards so rich and famous that when he came to die he decreed that his bookshelves furnish the wood for his coffin. He lies there to this day, in the little church of St. Mary Harrow-on-the-Hill, permanently on the shelf, but definitely out of circulation.'

Of book bindings, we find that "Poet Robert Southey (1774-1843) created an interest in fine cloth bindings by having books from his library covered in bright cotton patterns and calicoes." This was in addition to the betterknown fine leather bindings crafted by European artisans.

In the Middle Ages, Italians realized that "libraries are powerhouses. A reflection of that power is visible today in the most beautiful of library buildings, Michaelangelo's Laurentian Library, built for the Medici family in Florence and completed in 1571. The stairs that lead up to the reading room appear curved and scroll-like underfoot. Scrolls blossom on the walls. Classical architectural motifs peer down on medieval chained books. In effect, the architect is handing down a caution. The heritage of the book is nothing to be trifled with, he says. Knowledge is power; the library is its home."

In spite of dire predictions of doom about the future of bookstores, Olmert encouragingly declares: "Contrary to expectations, the local bookstore has not been plowed under by the chains. Instead, a new generation of bookstores that cater to book lovers has emerged. Such places feature a huge inventory, plenty of alcoves to get lost in, and shelves bursting with favorites selected by customers and staff. The Tattered Cover Book Store, for instance, fills four floors of an old warehouse in downtown Denver. It has chairs and tables that encourage reading - and possible note-taking as well. There is even a chain - Borders Book Shops - growing throughout the Midwest, South, and East whose stock includes not only the best sellers but the back-listed classics and serious books from the university presses. The experience of Borders and the Tattered Cover - stores that have as much of the ambiance of libraries as dynamic sales centers - shows that there are enough book lovers out there to sustain these new wrinkles on the old bookshop."

Speaking for myself, a dyed-in-the-wool bibliophile, whenever I have visited Borders in Ann Arbor, Novi and Berkley, I always have the remarkable sensation of dying and waking up in heaven.

From the Sumerian clay tablets to the 20th century's printing accomplishments, Olmert has succeeded well in bringing forth so much fascinating information on the history of the book that all of us - librarians, bibliophiles, and all people who love the printed word - will be forever grateful to him and the Smithsonian Institution for producing this magnificent work.

Greenfield Village Summer's full of ol' fashioned fun at

In the good ol' summertime, visitors to Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village are in for some good ol' fashioned fun.

Throughout the summer at the 93-acre indoor/outdoor museum of American history and technology in Dearborn, visitors can explore Thomas Edison's Menlo Park laboratory, visit the Wright brothers cycle shop, take a ride on a 19thcentury steam locomotive, and investigate the ways Americans have expressed their enthusiasm for technology in the 20th century.

Stories of courage, resourcefulness and triumph can be discovered at the village's recently restored historic African-American sites: two Hermitage slave houses, the Mattox House and the George Washington Carver Memorial. The only known slave houses in the north (moved from Georgia by Henry Ford in the 1930s) and the adjacent Depression-era farmhouse offer visitors a glimpse into African-American family life during enslavement and after emancipation, while the Carver Memorial explores the famed scientist's pioneering efforts to improve southern agriculture.

Visitors to the village can also enjoy the many special activities planned throughout the summer beginning with a Celebration of Emancipation, June 20 and 21. The rich heritage of African-American music, dance, crafts, and storytelling will recreate an observance of "Juneteenth" - a traditional date for commemorating emancipation in Texas and the West. Presentations and demonstrations will draw attention to the skills and history of both forgotten and famous black cowboys. The museum's rare copy of the 13th Amendment will be on display.

The village will be building up steam for a Pageant of Power, July 4 and 5, as owners of historic machines from Stirring strains from the fife and drum will draw visitors into the era of the American Revolution during the village's Colonial Life Festival, July 11 and 12. Both the pageantry of the battlefields and the simplicity of the homefront will be vividly recalled with encampments, military demonstrations and costumed interpreters performing daily chores and recreational activities of the period.

Greenfield Village's Taste of History, July 25 and 26, offers a multi-sensory opportunity to experience historic delights. Visitors can trace a path from the garden to the dinner table in the 1760s and contrast that process with the convenience of today's pre-packaged foods. Demonstrations, tours, presentations and songs will explore two centuries of American eating. Savory samples of traditional American favorites will be available for purchase.

The summer will be capped with a celebration of our nation's working men and women in the village on Labor Day, Sept. 7. From a riveting experience on the assembly line to the daily grind at a gristmill, visitors can explore the historic role of both urban and rural American workers. Songs, stories and demonstrations will highlight working people's activities and achievements.

'Samson and Delilah" opens May 16.

MOT brings down the house with 'Samson'

It is one of the most torrid stories of seduction, betraval and divine justice ever told in the Bible.

In a searing operatic setting by French composer Camille Saint-Saens, replete with a lush musical score, pagan ballet and one of the greatest climaxes to be found on any theatrical stage, "Samson and Delilah" opens as the second production of MOT's 1992 Spring Grand Opera Season at the Masonic Temple on Saturday, May 16, Wednesday, May 20, and Saturday, May 23, at 8 p.m. The monumental opera is new to MOT's repertoire, and has not been seen in Detroit since the Metropolitan Opera presented it on tour in 1981.

Premiered in Weimar in 1877, the opera relates the ancient tale of the mighty Samson and the Philistine seductress, Delilah. The dramatic finale, in which Samson destroys the Temple of Dagon, is one of the most thrilling in theatrical history, and Michigan Opera Theatre's awe-inspiring production, designed by famed Italian artist Beni Montresor, promises to fulfill that exciting tradition. The production will be sung in the original French with projected English surtitles.

The title roles will be assumed by two stars of the Bolshoi Opera and Metropolitan Opera, tenor Vladimir Popov and mezzo-soprano Ludmilla Schemtschuk. A leading conductor with the New York City Opera and alumnus of the University of Michigan's School of Music in Ann Arbor, Mark Gib-

56 Auction raises $616,192

The 24th annual Channel 56 Auction raised $616,192 in an eight-day sellathon of donated goods and services which ended May 2.

Although the auction raised more money per day than last year's fundraiser, the total was $80,000 less.

High bids for the most talked about items included $6,350 for a trip to Australia; $4,600 for a trip to Italy; $7,100 for a oneyear scholarship to the University of Detroit/Mercy and $390 for the opportunity to climb to the top of the Mackinac Bridge. "At the top of our thank-you list are the merchants who donated goods and services during a period of economic uncertainty and the many volunteers who gathered the items and helped during the television event," said auction manager Levona Whitaker.

The Channel 56 Auction also benefited from a new minimum bid provision for large-ticket items valued at $1,500 or more. Bidding on that merchandise opened at 40 percent of the donor value.

Money raised by the auction funds programming for the stason will be at the podium. Jay Lesenger returns to stage the epic opera following his triumphant debut with last season's "The Magic Flute." Detroit ballet master Iacob Lascu returns to choreograph the famed Bacchanale of Act III in the Temple of Dagon. The settings and costumes of ancient Judea are lit by Christina Giannelli following her MOT debut as light-ing designer of "Show Boat" in 1991. The chorus, which plays a central and demanding role in "Samson and Delilah," is under the direction of Grosse Pointer Suzanne Acton. This is a joint production with Michigan Opera Theatre, Houston Grand Opera, Portland Opera and Opera Pacific.

Michigan Opera Theatre will host complimentary lectures for the public before the Saturday performances of "Samson and Delilah," May 16 and 23, at 7 p.m. in the Masonic Temple's Fountain Ballroom. Michigan Opera Theatre will also present the second performance buffet and lecture in its Wednesday evening series, May 20 at 6 p.m. in the Colonnade Room of the Masonic Temple. Dr. Wallace Peace will be the speaker. For reservations and prices, call the MOT marketing partment at 874-7850.

Tickets for "Samson and Delilah" range from $14.50 to $63.50. Single tickets may be purchased by calling the Michigan Opera Theatre ticket services office at 874-7850. Tickets are also available at all TicketMaster outlets, or by calling 645-6666. Group discounts are available for parties of 10 or more by calling 874-7889.

'Passed Away:' A wake full of laughter

By Marian Trainor

Special Writer
"Passed Away," a warm and endearing comedy, highlights the conflicts within an Irish family which has gathered at the wake of the patriarch of the

It is an interesting gathering of people who would not ordinarily be seen in the same room. A traditional Irish wake, it is held in the home of the deceased where the older women bustle around with the details of arranging floral pieces, providing food and keeping a watchful eye on any digression from protocol.

The younger members of the family - between mourning and following procedures - collide. It is evident that there is a love-hate relationship between them with emphasis on

The story begins as the credits roll. The elder son Johnny Scanlon (Bob Hoskins) is driving his father Jack (Jack Warden) to his office. It is Jack's first day back after a massive heart attack.

The two banter back and forth over Jack's forbidden cigar and it is evident that theirs is a close relationship. When Johnny drops his father off, he confides that he is tired of being "old reliable." He wants to take chances and do something different. He asks his father if he ever felt that way. The old man says yes and promises to tell him about it the next time they meet.

They never do. When he opens the door to his office, he is greeted by a welcome back party that has been arranged by his younger son, Frank (William Peterson). He drops dead from shock.

After Johnny calms Frank, who is distraught because he blames himself for his father's death, the two visit their mother (Maureen Stapleton), who is devastated, but true to the image of the stalwart Irish widow, doesn't let her grief keep her from attending to problems that arise.

The matter of a proper burial for Jack is put into motion. A suitable casket must be chosen, a chore assigned to Johnny and Frank, who disagree on how much to spend. An energetic funeral director (Louis Mustillo) injects humor into the scene as he leads them from room to room, showing off caskets already occupied with corpses.

In the large cast there are a variety of small parts like Mustillo's, which, all perfectly played, add to the film's enjoyment.

Among them is Warden's brief but warm presence in the opening scene and Tim Curry as a reluctant ex-husband who is dragged to the funeral by daughter Terry (Pamela Reed) because she wants to hide a divorce from her family.

Every character adds something, but the main action settles around the members of the family. There is Frank, described by his mother as "thick as a brick," who desperately yearns to take over his father's place as head of the family.

He is in a constant state of anxiety worrying about making the right impression on the people who control that decision. It doesn't help that his unmarried, pregnant daughter refuses to hide her condition.

Then there is Terry, the rebel of the family, who is making her first trip home since she left years ago to pursue a dance career. She harbors a resentment for her sister Nora (Frances McDormand), who was always held up as a model child and proved it by entering a cloistered convent. She arrives with an illegal alien in tow. She has left the cloister to work in Central America as a liberation theologian.

There is a mystery girl, Cassie (Nancy Travis), who raises all eyebrows at the wake when she arrives in a sexy black Hoskins portrays the dutiful son, the confused middle-aged husband who mistakes infatuation for love and is basically lovable. He is ably supported by Peterson, who is handsome, personable and admittedly "obtuse." Reid as the sophisticated, rebellious Terry livens up every scene in which she appears and McDormand as the fiery nun is dryly funny.

"Passed Away" is Charlie Peter's directing debut. He also wrote the script and was lucky enough to have an outstanding cast that makes a wake a fun time, which is what every Irish wake strives to be. The mourning comes later.

Heldentenor's mighty voice thrills at the DIA

By Alex Suczek Special Writer

The distinguished Pro Musica Society, after 65 years of presenting some of the world's most famous composers and artists destined to be tomorrow's headliners, came up with yet another highly original and thrilling concert Friday, May 1.

The occasion was the society's presentation of that rare bird of opera, the heldentenor in the person of a young American who is making his name on Europe's opera circuit.

Heldentenors are rare because it is extremely unusual for one person to combine the artistic temperament, physical strength and vocal power and beauty that is needed to sing the male leads in Wagnerian opera, or Beethoven's "Fidelio," for example. The effort to sing such roles as Siegfried is as heroic as the roles themselves.

Hearing a good heldentenor sing them well, on the other hand, is an unparalleled thrill that can raise the hackles and send shivers down the spine.

That experience was compounded at Pro Musica's final concert of the season in the Detroit Institute of Arts when heldentenor Keith Mikelson, flying in briefly from the Nice, France, Opera and the Festival of Freiburg, Germany, sang a recital of nine of the greatest and most demanding tenor arias in operatic literature, sang them all well and some gloriously, and capped them off with the demanding and gorgeous "Forging Song" from Wagner's "Siegfried" as an en-

Mikelson is blessed with an immensely powerful voice boasting a bright trumpetlike timbre along with the artistic sensitivity to use it expressively and with good taste. That was most apparent in the arias he obviously knew perfectly from having sung the roles recently. Fidelio's dungeon scene in the first set was particularly moving as the singer dramatized the hero's vision of his angelic wife while singing his despondency.

But his comparative youthfulness is reflected by the fact that his voice still has some lyrical quality allowing him to sing dramatic Italian roles, as well, and three in this category provided a rewarding middle group on the program. Johnson's Aria from Puccini's "Girl of the Golden West" awoke the audience to Mikelson's versatility in this area while providing a rare hearing of this seldom performed work.

The familiar themes of Puccini's "Tosca" followed to everyone's enjoyment but it was the third offering that benefited most from Mikelson's ringing tones. That he could both sing and act the tormented clown Pagliacci in the famous aria "Vesti la Giubba" with total commitment was a tour de

Turning at last to Wagner and appearing not in the least fatigued by his already strenuous program, Mikelson gave an inspired performance of Walther's soaring and poetic "Prize Song" from "Die Meistersinger" followed by an impassioned soliloquy from "Tristan and Isolde." That his presentation was so well phrased and acted helped ease the sense of awe at the remarkable endurance needed to present such a recital.

At the social hour after the concert, when asked how he could manage it, the singer observed blandly that he simply has a very strong throat and manages to do it quite comfortably as long as he doesn't get careless and use his voice improperly.

For those present, it was an experience of a lifetime and fully the heroic quality of a heldentenor voice.

As in years past, the Pro Musica Society also announced its coming season at this concert. Continuing its tradition of attractions that are unusual but nonetheless pleasing, the season will open with a piano quartet on Nov. 20 followed by a Van Cliburn Piano Competition winner in March 1993 and a mezzo soprano in April whose appearances at the Chicago Lyric Theatre and Glynde bourne in England have already won her international ac-quences as well," she said. What will it take to change the attitude about drinking at prom?

"It'll change only when someone dies," said a South senior who wanted to remain anonymous.

If someone died in an alcohol-related accident, it would affect kids. "But only for a while," Hackleman and McKim agreed.

"But that's not even strong enough," McKim said. "It would only last for a few weeks."

INTRODUCTORY OFFER ORDER BLANK

"I LOST 164 LBS. EASY! WITHOUT DIETING!" ASSEEN

ABSOLUTELY NO HUNGER • NO DRUGS • NO CALORIE COUNTING

ASTOUNDING WEIGHT LOSS WITHOUT DIETING OR EXERCISE

A major development for weight control has finally happened. Clinical studies are completed in the U.S. and Europe and the news of this discovery is sweeping the country. This discovery could eliminate all diets enabling anyone to lose pounds and inches without dieting or exercise.

RESEARCHERS DISCOVER CALORIE BLOCKING FORMULA

While medical researchers were compiling studies on lowering cholesterol levels in humans, they "accidentally" discovered that everyone in the test group lost weight. Significant amounts of weight! One patient lost over 30 pounds according to the published report in the British Journal of Nutrition. Further research concluded that a certain ingredient in the formula they were testing was producing this effect. These findings are published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition and ACTA Medica Scandinavia.

"Before taking Kaitrim 2, I weighed 230 lbs. I lost 30 lbs. in 30 days even though I ate anything I wanted. I now weigh 170 lbs. Total weight lost is 60 lbs." Keith Daley, CA

EAT ALL YOU WANT & STILL LOSE WEIGHT

The clinical tests conducted at prestigious universities in Sweden and Finland on this formula led to astounding discoveries. This ingredient bonds with a portion of your food, blocking absorption of calories. This means that substantial amounts of calories pass through your digestive system without turning to fat and in turn your body burns up stored fat. Rapid weight loss is the result. The report further states, "Body weight was significantly reduced even though the patients were specifically asked not to alter their dietary habits." This means that you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and as much as you want.

WARNING: Since Kaitrim 2 is so effective at removing fat and cellulite and has no side effects some people can lose weight too fast. Don't allow yourself to become too thin. If you start to lose weight too fast, simply skip a day or two of use. Before starting your weight loss program, check with your doctor to be sure you are in normal health.

PROVEN SAFE AND EFFECTIVE

This formula is not a drug and produces no side effects. It is entirely natural, in tablet form, taken before mealtime. It has been proven to induce weight loss without altering normal eating habits. Clinical tests and thousands of satisfied users have verified the safety of this formula for long term use.

A U.S. company has received worldwide exclusive rights to distribute this powerful all natural formula under the name Kaitrim 2.

FAST ACTING

How nice it will be to be able to eat anything and not have to count calories ever again. Just remember to take your Kaitrim 2. Those calories won't mean a thing as the fat cells are being shrunk. It's working for you 24 hours a day and you don't feel a thing except you see the difference in yourself. A slimmer you. A healthier you. Most people comment on how much better they feel! How great you'll feel about yourself in new and sensuous clothes. See the results the very first day! People have reported losing the first 10 pounds within a few days and up to 50 pounds the first month. Even if you want to lose 100 pounds or more Kaitrim 2 can be your answer.

ARE YOU WORTH IT?

You bet you are! Whether you want to lose 10 or 164 pounds you owe it to yourself to make that change and look and feel like a million. It has never been easier. Think what you will look like a few short weeks from today, slender with a more youthful figure. The research has been completed and thousands have joined in the fight against fat. Now it's your turn to take that step to a happier and healthier life. No matter what you might have tried in the past, be it diets, diet pills, or clinics, you will now be able to reach your desired weight. You will do it easier, faster, safer, and for less cost. We guarantee it. You are guaranteed prompt shipment by UPS. Order right now!

EREE

"Not long ago I weighed 349 lbs. and wore size 46 pants. I tried everything to lose weight; the only thing that worked was Kaitrim 2. I lost 164 lbs. and feel full of energy. The best part is that it was easy! I have recommended it to everyone I know. I plan to lose another 40 lbs. with the help of Kaitrim 2. Thanks." Joy Verch, FL

Water gardens: They reflect well on any yard

By Ellen Probert

Surrounded as we are in Michigan by water, it's no wonder we use it so lavishly in our gardens not only to ensure the greening and flowering of plants, but to provide coolness and beauty.

Reflecting pools, fountains, birdbaths and wading pools all find their places in our gardens and add a beautiful dimension to summer living.

Famed landscape architect Jens Jensen, whose specialty was designing large public parks and great estates, used water in all of his creations.

Reflecting pools, cascades and ponds provided a sense of motion to a still landscape by reflecting clouds, moving tree branches and sunlight, and by providing motion of their own in breeze-rippled water or pulsing fountains.

There are very few of Jens Jensen's gardens left in their original form, but Grosse Pointe Shores has one of them. The gardens at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House on Lakeshore are magnificent examples of his artistry, particularly the water gardens, which add so much to the charm of the estate.

The gardens are open to the pub-dens and house are available. Call 884-4222 for information.

Natural streams — or man-made approximations of them — are very appealing. At Belle Isle, the lagoons and lily ponds delight the eye.

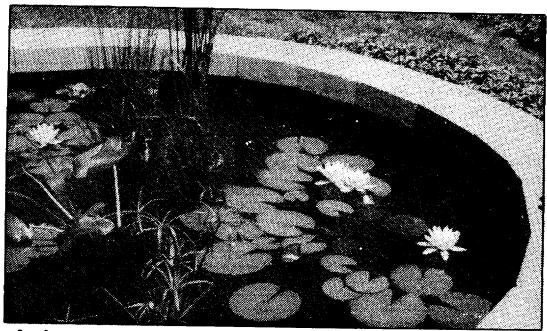

On a much smaller scale, Mrs. and Mrs. Urban Boresch of Grosse Pointe Farms have constructed a series of pools leading into each other at different levels. What appear to be natural rocks defining the different levels are actually cast cement and were made by the Boresches themselves.

Water hyacinths and other aquatic plants and ornamental fish and a colony of snails keep the water crystal clear without the necessity of pumps to prevent it from becoming stagnant.

Mand-made ponds, like natural bodies of water, can sustain their own ecosystems through all seasons if they are large enough and deep enough not to freeze during the winter.

Fall is the time to clean a pond and to prune plants and clean and store filters, pumps and fountains.

In winter, pools and ponds may be covered with plastic or plywood and straw. Pond heaters are available from garden catalogues.

In the water garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard McBrien in Grosse Pointe Farms, the brick-bordered pool, above, is a prominent feature. The beautiful pink and white water lilies and fish help prevent the water from stagnating.

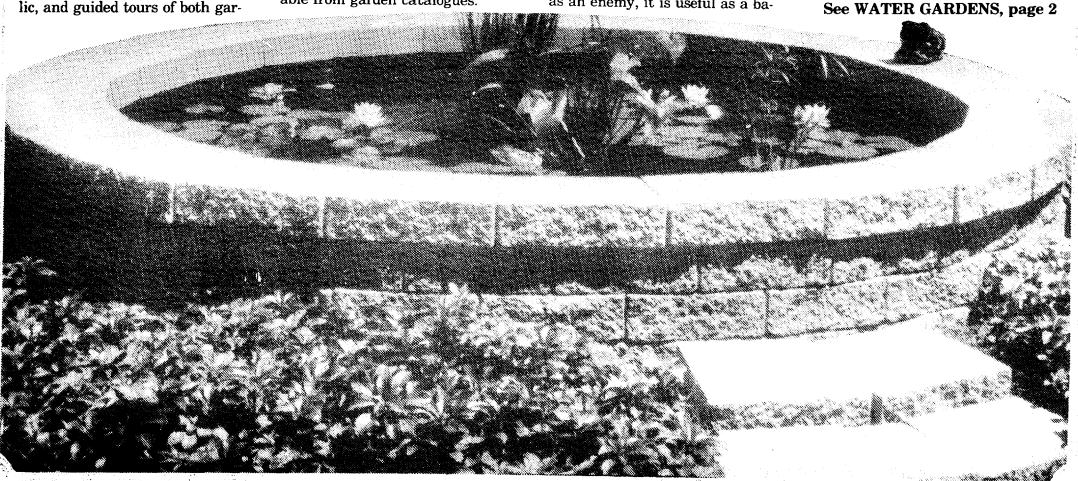

As the weather warms in spring, plants will revive and fish may be returned to the water if they have been kept indoors during the win-

Summer brings the full glory of your water garden. Summer maintenance consists mainly of monthly pruning and fertilizing.

Although algae is often regarded as an enemy, it is useful as a barometer of the pond's condition. Usually, snails, fish and the right plants will keep it under control.

water lilies were propagated from plants in Monet's water garden at Giverney. The colorful fish, purchased as inch-long fry when the pool was built, have over the years matured into 8-inch keepers with fingerlings of their own.

Water gardens can be any size and can serve as an accessory in a large garden or be the principal part of the garden itself.

Small sculptures around the edge or large ones centering a pool can be enhancers, and small ornamental bridges in a large water garden are attractive. These are often found in Oriental water gardens.

A garden bench beside a pool invites contemplation and pebbled paths leading to the water garden can help focus attention on it.

The whole subject of water gardens is an expanding one — far greater than it may seem at a glance.

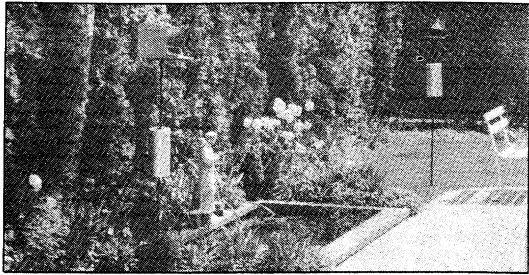

Growing vegetables and small fruit hydroponically has been referred to as the future of space agriculture. Courses in hydroponics are now taught in many agricultural schools, and the business of hydroponics is expanding, with more water-grown vegetables appearing in supermarkets across the country.

Water gardens can be vegetable producers as well as ornamental — and the possibilities are endless for them all.

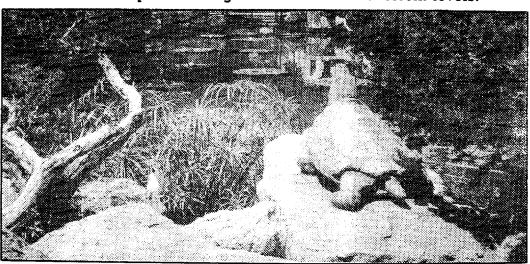

"Water Gardening," a two-week class scheduled by the Grosse Pointe Public School System's community education department, will be taught by Scott Zeller beginning at 7 p.m. tonight, Thursday, May 14, at Barnes School, located at 20090 Morningside Drive in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The fee for the class is $10. Call 343-2170 for space availability.

Historic Corktown Home Tour

The 6th annual Historic Corktown Home Tour will take place from noon to 5:30 p.m. Sunday, May 17. A fine collection of mid-to late 19th century architecture in Detroit's most endearing neighborhood awaits tour patrons.

A special tour package consisting of brunch at O'Leary's Tearoom, transportation between tour sites aboard the Classic Trolley and an accompanying tour guide is again being offered this year. The tour package is available for $25 by reservation only and seating is limited for this popular feature.

Tickets for the tour are $6 in advance and $8 on the tour date. Call 962-TOUR for advance tickets, or purchase them at O'Leary's Tearoom, 1411 Brooklyn, and the Corktown Citizen's District Council office, 1459 Bagley. Free parking for tour patrons is available at the parking facility on Porter and Sixth streets.

This year's tour begins at the Historic Canaan house and finishes with the stunningly restored Most Holy Trinity Church with tour patrons having the opportunity to view the newly renovated rectory in addition to the church itself. A focus this year will be on the variety of town houses in Corktown.

Home Tips

Dining room chandelier — We decided to move our dining room table to allow more space to walk through the room. However, we didn't know what to do about the chandelier which was hung over the center of the table.

We hung a swag hook over the center of the table in the new position, added some additional chain and swagged the lighting fixture over. I think it looks even nicer this way!

Annette J., Harrisburg, Pa.

Recycling — I've learned that if you use completely organic materials, leftovers, orange peels and coffee grounds, it can become wonderful soil for planting.

Just dig a hole about 1 foot deep by 2 feet wide and bury the scraps. Cover with a little soil and water thoroughly. It's a wonderful way to recycle garbage, and it's a quickie compost heap.

When you cover the scraps and wet them, bacteria breaks down the material, making it decompose faster. Bones and corncobs will take about three weeks longer than softer food.

Terry P., College Park, Md.

Pecan cups — When I used to package pecan cups for a cookie exchange, they would be broken upon arrival. This time, I put them in a clean egg carton, and not one broke!

Bloomin' wildflowers in the state

Wildflowers are here, they're there, they're everywhere, and they can be seen in all of their splendor in Michigan woods and along the state's highways.

More than 200 species of wildflowers grow here, according to AAA Michigan. And Michigan has millions of wilderness acres, where wildflowers can be enjoyed in spring, summer and fall.

"Wildflowers are an attraction taken for granted in Michigan, but the tremendous variety and easy access make viewing a pleasure for serious and novice observers," said Peter Erickson, AAA Michigan member services director.

Experts recommended that beginning wildflower viewers buy a field guide that details the colors, characteristics, growing season and likely locations of the different species.

Along with the guide, pack bug spray and drinking water before beginning a search. Wear old clothes and comfortable boots or sneakers.

And remember not to pick wildflowers. Many species are threatened or endangered and are protected by state law.

A good place to start looking for wildflowers is at a state park or natural area. These areas often combine diverse settings with a variety of wildflower species. Before hitting the trails, check with park rangers or naturalists for tips on where to find blooms.

May generally is a good month to view wildflowers growing in wetlands and woods. A good choice is beech and maple tree forests. Look for blue hepaticas, white trilliums, yellow trout lilies, gold marsh marigolds and yellow lady's slippers.

Viewing is best in June and later for shoreline and meadow/prairie wildflowers. Seek out the dwarf lake iris along the northern shores of Lakes Michigan and Huron.

Meadow/prairie varieties include the black-eyed susan, Indian paintbrush, evening primrose and golden-

If exploring the woods or shoreline sounds too much like work, travelers can view wildflowers from inside their cars. The Michigan Department of Transportation, in cooperation with other groups, has been restoring colorful wildflowers along roadways since 1975 as part of Operation Wildflower.

The following easy-to-find sites offer mature plants, high visibility, bursts of color and nearby parking: an eight-acre parcel at the Saranac rest area on eastbound I-96, and a two-acre plot south of Perry on M-52.

In addition, three other drive-by

The shapely, glassy McCord

Looking for a home that takes full advantage of a view facing out over a gentle slope? Or perhaps you're looking to build on a corner lot. Whichever it is, the uniquely shaped, richly windowed McCord is designed to fill the bill.

Wide windows along the back offer striking vistas from the living room, dining room, master suite and bedroom. High multi-paned windows on the front and side add street appeal while bathing the interior with natural light.

A tiled, sky-lit entry opens into a vaulted and high-ceilinged living room/dining room. Just around the corner to the right, a fireplace is tucked into the odd angle created by

To the left, and four steps up is an elevated kitchen designed to reconcile two conflicting needs: individuals working in the kitchen can easily maintain visual and verbal contact with family and friends socializing in the great room, but guests on the lower level can't see messes in the kitchen.

A large walk-in pantry in the kitchen augments the already generous storage space, and both the kitchen and the equally spacious nook offer views to the front. Parents of young children will appreciate this feature, along with the placement of the second bedroom close to the master suite.

The master suite is comfortably large and chock full of odd angles. A walk-in closet provides plenty of storage space and the suite has two lavatories, one in the sky-lit bathroom, and the other in a small dressing area.

An odd-angled deck is accessible from both the master suite and the

Host of 'This Old House' to speak

Steve Thomas, host of "This Old House," will tell how the television show began when he speaks Thursday, May 21, at the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan's (BASM) general membership meet-

A slide presentation will depict the renovation of Thomas' 1836 Colonial Revival home which inspired the production of the show. Thomas will also give a preview and behindthe-scenes look at future projects.

The seminar will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Somerset Inn. 2601 W. Big Beaver (west of I-75) in Troy. Registration fees, including dinner, are $20 for BASM members and $35 for non-members.

Home Tips

Bath mat — When staying at a friend's home, I noticed her rubber bath mat stuck flat against the tile wall. When you want it, it's right where you need it - in the tub! Also, it lets the mat drip dry into the tub area and not on the floor.

Now, I do that, too. Just push the mat gently to the wall (suction cups toward the wall) after you get out of the tub. Do keep in mind, though, that if you do this, you must clean the wall more often because of mildew.

Household Help by John Amantea

Q. We have a problem, and perhaps you can help us resolve it. When we moved into our home, the outside brick was painted white, and now it's starting to chip. Is there any way the paint can be removed? If not, how do we go about repainting it?

A. Take a good look at the exterior paint on your home. Most paint problems are usually highly visible, and the following tips will help you to readily identify the specific nature of your problem.

Most paint problems occur because of moisture of one kind or another. However, rain, snow, frost and other related weather conditions are usually not the cause. Sometimes the same products which so efficiently seal out the weather, seal in the moisture which is created on the exterior.

The problem you have is probably due to trapped moisture. Another cause could be paint that was applied over an incompatible finish or over a still-wet first coat.

There is really only one way to remedy the problem, and that is to remove the existing paint, prime, and repaint with any of the modern, flexible paints. Your local paint dealer can help you choose the right paint for your needs. Good luck.

Q. We have a badly drooping ceiling in our garage made of 1/2-inch thick drywall. The space above the ceiling is poured insulation, full of mineral content. How can I avoid a big mess and possibly fix this?

A. To do the correct job, as with most household repairs, you have to eliminate the cause of the problem first. After you find the probable cause, you can then repair the damage.

Most likely, the problem you described is that your ceiling joists have gotten damp (a common problem), and gradually sagged over a period of time. Generally, roof leakage is caused by the absence of a vapor barrier in the ceiling. If you install a vapor barrier, the joists should not germinate any further and you can hang a new ceiling right over the old one.

The first step to take is to staple a four-mil plastic sheet over the old drywall to form a vapor barrier. Before you install your second layer of drywall, check to see if you need 1 x 2 "furring strips" as your foundation. This is a simple method, and you could ask your local lumber supply for any simple tips on installation.

The remainder of your job is to install your new drywall and be aware of any electrical boxes (for ceiling lights, for example). You will have to drop the box (or lower it) to the present surface of drywall and secure.

Antiques by Ralph & Terry Kovel

Yesterday's recliner — What was the 19th century's answer to the reclining chairs of today? Few could afford a chair that required almost 6 feet of space. One very stylish "rocking sofa" was made about 1880 by the famous Vienna firm of Thonet. The bentwood used to make smaller chairs was for the arms, backs and rockers. The back could be adjusted with a movable ratchet similar to those used on the English-made Morris chairs. Gentlemen of leisure could recline or rock on this cane-bottom chair.

Q. About 30 years ago, I picked up about 50 cast bronze belt buckles in England. They were apparently commissioned by companies such as Coca Cola, Pony Express, Pinkerton's American Express, Colt Revolvers and others. Most are stamped on the back, "Tiffany, 221 Regent St. London." Some say, "Tiffany Broadway, New York," some, "E. Gaylord." I have seen copies of these, but never originals like mine. Can you tell me the value?

A. Join the large group of collectors who were fooled in the 1970s. Hundreds of thousands of these buckles were made in England and sold there and in the United States starting in 1967. They were accompanied by many stories of "authenticity" claiming that they were made in limited quantities and had sold in auctions for thousands. There was even a picture catalog that told the story of each buckle and when it was made

All of this was fake, including the book. All of these buckles are "concoctions." They are not even reproductions because there was no original buckle made before 1900 that could be copied. The wire loop on the back of the buckle is not the type used before 1900. Makers' names were almost never found on old, original buckles. Gaylord made cartridge boxes, not buckles.

Since the 1970s, we have been saying these buckles are fakes, but collectors continue to ask about them. Cheer up. The early fakes like yours are now worth about $25 to a buckle collector because they are attractive, well-made buckles — not because they are antiques.

Find the parts to fix your collectibles — everything from rubber tires for old cars to a glass liner for your silver salt dish. The just-released "Kovels Antiques & Collectibles Fixit Source Book" gives a comprehensive directory of craftsmen, products and services. Send $9.95 plus $2 postage to Kovels, P.O. # Prepare early for spring and crabgrass prevention

When spring comes, birds start collecting food for their young, baseball players warm up for a new season, and homeowners tackle their spring lawn nemesis - crabgrass.

Once crabgrass appears in a lawn, it is hard to get rid of without a dedicated plan. According to the lawn experts at The O.M. Scott & Sons Co., the best way to alleviate the problem of crabgrass is to attack before it starts.

Unlike dandelions and other broadleaf weeds, crabgrass must be prevented early in the spring before the seeds germinate. A pre-emergent weed control is the most effective answer, and it should be applied sometime before temperatures steadily reach 80 degrees — so application dates will vary from one region of the country to another (see map).

882-3500

Real Estate Resource

882-6900

"A pre-emergent crabgrass application puts an invisible barrier between the surface of the soil and the seed," said Mike Kelty, vice president of research and development at Scotts. "Established grass will grow, but the crabgrass seeds will not be able to break through this barrier."

"It is important to apply this early in the growing season because once crabgrass is growing, the pre-emergent application won't be effective."

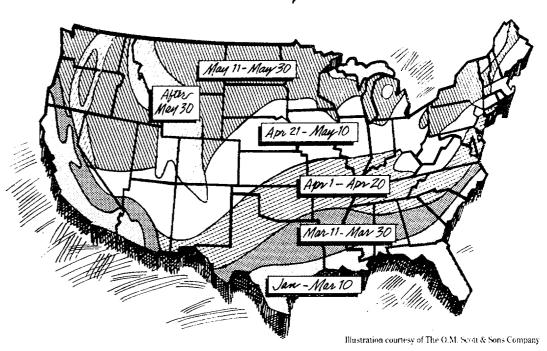

Crabgrass is an annual grass, which means it lives only one year. But while it is alive the parent plant produces and disperses thousands of seeds during the summer. These seeds germinate into new crabgrass plants the following spring.

The most efficient way of preventing crabgrass and applying your spring fertilizer is to purchase a product that combines these steps. A pre-emergent crabgrass control plus fertilizer will provide protection against crabgrass, and also add important nutrients your lawn needs in

Before applying the product, grass should be dry and should not be so tall that it touches the bottom of the spreader. It is also recommended that homeowners who have had crabgrass within the previous two years apply a crabgrass preventer this year, even if it wasn't a problem last year.

If crabgrass has not reappeared in two years, the need for a crabgrass preventer is greatly reduced. Crabgrass preventer should not be applied to newly seeded or sodded areas. Experts also suggest not to rake, thatch, or aerate the lawn in the first few days after application.

Grosse Pointe South goalkeeper Allison Lang comes out to cut down the angle on this scoring attempt by Grosse Pointe North's Maureen Zolik during the Lady Norsemen's 2-1 victory in the Macomb Area Conference White Division girls soccer showdown.

North booters clinch title; set sights on tourney run

By Chuck Klonke

Grosse Pointe North's soccer team is setting its sights on bigger targets after clinching the Macomb Area Conference White Division championship with three victories last week.

"I'm glad the league season is almost over because we have to play some tougher competition to work our way up so that we're playing better as we advance in the state tournament," said Lady Norsemen coach Guido Regelbrugge.
North's chief competition in the league has come from Grosse Pointe South, which bowed to the Lady Norsemen 2-1 last week after dropping an earlier game 5-1.

North opens state tournament play with a district game against South on Monday, May 18, at Barnes school. If the Lady Norsemen get past the Lady Devils a third time this season, they'll play at Fraser and then face Regina in the district championship game.

"It's very difficult to play the same team three times unless there's a wide difference in ability," Regelbrugge said. "When we played South last week they played with a lot of fire and we didn't. It was reflected by the score, too."

Goals by Felicia Paluzzi and Maureen Zolik gave the Lady Norsemen a 2-0 lead and South got a goal shortly before the first half ended.

"It was closer than I expected and closer than it should have been, but South played well," Regelbrugge said.

Regelbrugge is glad that his team has a tougher road to the district finals than Regina.

Earlier, North overpowered Utica 15-1 in a MAC White

game. The Lady Norsemen scored 11 runs in the first three innings of the contest that was halted by a mercy rule. Barr and Hansen each had two hits to support the two-hit pitching of Drouillard.

tourney

"South and Fraser will both give us a good game, although if we play well we should beat them," he said. "If we can't beat them, we don't deserve to be playing any more."

North followed the South game with an 8-0 victory over Fraser and closed out the week with a 4-2 triumph over Utica that gave the Lady Norsemen a 10-0 division record and an 11-1 overall mark. North is ranked fifth in the state in Class A in the latest coaches' poll.

"The Utica game was a terrible game," Regelbrugge said. "It's almost impossible to get the kids aware that they have to play well when you've beaten a team 9-0 the first time. They ask 'Why?' We scored a couple quick goals and fell asleep. Then Utica scored on a penalty shot and on a free kick to cut the score to 3-2 and we woke up for a little while.

"The inconsistency of our team bothers me a lot. The girls seem to think they can turn it on and off depending on how much we're tested and it doesn't always work that way. You develop bad habits when you win so easily and you can't always get rid of them when you play a better team."

Paluzzi scored twice against Utica, while Zolik and Kelly Konsler added a goal apiece.

Gretchen Sazama led the way against Fraser, scoring four goals. Paluzzi tallied three times and Zolik completed the

Lady Norsemen repeat in softball

Winning the Grosse Pointe Invitational tournament is becoming a habit for Grosse Pointe North's softball team.

The Lady Norsemen got some brilliant pitching from Melissa Drouillard and timely hitting by several players last weekend to win the tournament for the second year in a North improved its overall record to 12-3 with the tournament victory and is in second place in the Macomb Area Conference White Division with an 8-2 record. Romeo leads with a 9-2 mark and the two top teams clash on Friday at 4 p.m.

The Lady Norsemen opened the tournament with a 4-1 victory over a highly-rated Rochester club that sported a 15-5 record. North scored three runs in the first inning. Erica Barr singled and scored on Drouillard's triple. Alana Hansen followed with a single to drive in Drouillard and Buffy Miriani then doubled home Hansen.

Drouillard pitched a four-hitter and struck out 10. Rochester put together a single and double in the fourth inning for its only run.

North scored its final run in the sixth when Laura Cartwright led off with a single and eventually scored on Stacy Kent's single.

The Lady Norsemen had to go an extra inning to beat Birmingham Seaholm 5-4. North scored the winning run in the eighth when freshman Keri Muccioli walked with the bases loaded to force in Roberta Ricci.

North fell behind 4-1 in the second inning, but Drouillard came on in relief in the third and blanked the Maples on one hit the rest of the way. She struck out eight.

The Lady Norsemen picked up a run in the second on a leadoff triple by Hansen and Ricci's single. North added single runs in the third, fourth and seventh innings to tie the score

North's 14-2 victory over Grosse Pointe South in the final game featured sophomore pitcher Beth Bertelsen's first varsity win. She allowed six hits and two walks, while striking out three, in five innings. Drouillard pitched the final two Heather Arioli led the Lady Norsemen's attack with four hits and five RBI. Drouillard, Hansen, Kristen Loeher and Shalon Ciarimitaro collected two hits apiece.

Kim Apple had a pair of hits for South.

Seaholm finished second in the tournament after posting 4-3 victories over Rochester and South. Rochester beat South 13-3 to grab third place.

That triumph came after the Lady Norsemen came from behind to beat Fraser 8-4. North scored three times in the bottom of the fourth to tie the University Liggett School's Andy VanDeweghe shows his pitching form in one of the Knights' recent baseball games. VanDeweghe scattered seven hits and walked only one last week in pitching ULS to a victory over Warren.

ULS hurler stingy with walks

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

University Liggett School's Andy VanDeweghe might be the perfect high school pitcher.

"He keeps the ball down and allows very few walks," said Knights' coach Glynn Conley after the senior righthander scattered seven hits through six innings last week to pitch ULS to a 13-2 victory over Warren.

VanDeweghe only walked one and he struck out one.

"A pitcher who gets the ball over the plate is especially effective in high school because you don't have many Cecil Fielder-type power hitters. I did a study once that showed only 5 percent of the runs scored in high school baseball games came in an inning where there were no walks or errors," Con-

"There aren't that many good high school hitters, so you can't afford to walk people.'

ULS broke the game open with an 11-run outburst in the sixth inning, snapping a 2-2 tie.

"Warren had played a league game earlier in the day, so they might have been getting tired," Conley said.

Jason Drook led the Knights' attack with three hits and Tom Best had a pair of hits.

'Drook has been an excellent leadoff man for us," Conley said. "In two games last week he had four hits and two walks. He also has the good speed that allows him to steal a base and get into scoring position."

Earlier in the week, ULS dropped a 9-8 decision to Harper Woods in a game marred by walks and errors on both

"We scored our eight runs on four hits and they scored nine on five hits. That tells you what kind of a game it was,' Conley said.

Ryan Molitor had an RBI single and VanDeweghe, who has been a hot hitter for the Knights, delivered a two-run double. VanDeweghe has reached base in nine of his last 13 plate appearances on three doubles, a single and five

Norsemen showing progress

Grosse Pointe North's boys track team is making coach Pat Wilson happier every time he sees it in action.

'We're starting to run well," Wilson said after the Norsemen beat Macomb Area Conference White Division foes Anchor Bay (84 1/2-52 1/2) and Fraser (80-57) last week. "In the Fraser meet we had personal bests in all but one event.

"We have to keep improving because we need every point we

Phantoms fantastic in tourney

The Grosse Pointe Phantoms were for real last weekend as they took first place in the Under-10 division of the Midland Soccer Tournament.

Coach Tom Lapish's squad took the title with a 3-1 victory over the Rochester Rockers in the championship game.

Brad Staniszewski, Josh Hurd and Brad Drummy were the Phantoms' scorers against the Rockers, while Matt Lapish, Mike Tymrak and Adam Budday collected assists.

The Phantoms opened the tournament with a 5-2 triumph over the Rochester Rockets as Lapish scored three goals and had one assist. Budday tallied twice and Tymrak collected three assists.

Eric Krauss had two goals and an assist and Hurd scored once and drew two assists in the Phantoms' 4-0 shutout of the Whitehouse (Ohio) Warriors. Ken Potenga scored the other Grosse Pointe goal and Tymrak had an assist.

The Phantoms got strong midfield play throughout the tournament from Nick Clark, Jon Berg, Drummy, Tymrak, Potenga and Budday. Fullbacks Justin Schoenherr, Chris Bowerman and Brendon Fossee supported the fine goaltending of guest player Andrew Vlasak. Forwards Nick Rotondo and Staniszewski put heavy pressure on the opposing goalies. Hurd, Krauss and Lapish were steady throughout the tournament at forward and fullback.

can get in the league meet (at Romeo on Tuesday, May 19)."

Wilson expects Ford to give North its stiffest competition for the league title.

'Ford's the best team in the league, but we can beat them if we run our best and they're a little bit off," he said. "It reminds me of when we had the good teams at Lakeview and we'd meet North. We had to run a great meet to beat them and we did a couple times."

One of the impressive performances in the Norsemen's victory over Anchor Bay was Wilson's experiment with hurdler Hayko Ekmekjian in the 100meter dash. Ekmekjian, who had won the high hurdles in 16.1, came right back and had a winning time of 11.2 in the

"That's the fastest time in the league this year," Wilson said. "He and Jared Kolleth both did well in the 100 and could score in the league meet. We'll have to squeeze every point we can out of our sprint-

Wilson was also encouraged by the work of John Galvin in the 1,600 run. Galvin won the event in 4:53.9 against Anchor Bay and lowered his time to 4:47.7 in finishing second in the Fraser meet.

"John's another one who can score in the league meet if he keeps improving like that," Wilson said.

Doug Brown also ran strong races in the 1,600 and 3,200

North's other winners against Anchor Bay were Eric Lacey, shot put, 39-feet-1; Mark Mears, discus, 107-9 1/2; Shereef Simaika, 300 hurdles, 46.2; Kolleth, 800, 2:11.7; and Brian LaRose, 200, 24.9.

The Norsemen also won two relays. The team of Hosia Peters, Reeve Brandon, Geoff Grant and Brian Van Tiem won the 800 relay in 1:38.2 and the 400 relay team of LaRose, Eric Peters, Grant and Ekmekjian was first in 46.6.

North had two of its best field-event efforts in the victory over Fraser. Kurt Rheaume cleared 5-11 in the high jump and Hosia Peters had a leap of 19-1 1/2 in the long jump.

Other individual winners were John Ament, pole vault,

10-0; Ekmekjian, high hurdles, 15.6; Kolleth, 400, 54.5; and Brandon, 800, 2:08.5.

The Norsemen swept the four relays. The team of Brandon, Brown, Galvin and Justin Fines took the 3,200 in 8:47.9. Hosia Peters, Kolleth, Grant and Van Tiem won the 800 relay in 1:38.2 and LaRose, Eric Peters, Grant and Ekmekjian were first in the 400 relay in 46.4. North's 1,600 relay team of Mike Kim, Simaika, Gabe Gazoul and Jason McBrian closed out the meet with a winning effort of 3:57.9.

Girls track

North's girls rolled to a 78-43 victory over Anchor Bay to even their MAC White record at 3-3.

The Lady Norsemen had several first-place finishes, including all the running events from the 400 meters and up.

Peggy Finkelmann won the 3,200 in 13:36; Becky Clor was first in the 1,600 with a 5:57; Whitney Wegner was first in the 800 with a 2:56.7; and Joy Ramberger won the 400 in Hope Fenton won the discus with a throw of 76-feet-2 and Tonya Hamilton cleared 4-8 to win the high jump. Nicole Trachy was the winner in the 300 low hurdles.

North also won the 3,200. 1,600 and 800 relays.

Lineup change aids South

By Chuck Klonke

Mr. Goodwrench has nothing on Grosse Pointe South tennis coach Tom Berschback when it comes to tuneups.

Berschback knew the Blue Devils' lineup needed some minor repair work when it struggled to win doubles matches against the better teams on the South schedule, so the veteran coach began tinkering with his alignment.

He took fourth singles player Shawn Coyle and made him Chad Yates' partner in first doubles and the new combination clicked almost immedi-

"They've been playing together for about 10 days and I have to say I'm impressed with them," Berschback said after South finished second in a strong invitational tournament last weekend in Trenton.

"We've played some excellent teams in the last 10 days, and that's helped them greatly. They know just how good they are."

South finished second at Trenton behind Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook, which is ranked No. 2 in the state in all classes and also had a flight winner in sophomore Jeff Wheeler at third singles.

"He has to be the first or second seed in the state at third singles," Berschback said. "He was down 4-1 in the third set in the championship match and came back to win. He plays with a tremendous amount of intensity.

South's strong showing last weekend moved the Blue Devils into eighth place overall inthe state coaches' ratings and into fifth place in the Class A rankings.

South hosts a Class A regional tournament on Friday and Saturday, but Berschback doesn't expect to have any trouble becoming one of the two teams advancing to the state finals in Midland on May 29-
