Sister's secret could make a trip to the bakery less sinful

Staff Writer

Former Grosse Pointe Park resident Sister Mary Alan Stuart has found a way to turn pig and chicken feed into delicious, healthy banana nut bread, chocolate chip cookies. and other nutty bakery prod-

A member of the Adrian Dominican Sisters, Stuart is also a registered dietician and has been a professor of nutrition at the University of Kentucky's College of Human Environmental Sciences in Lexington since 1987.

From 1989-91, she researched ways to make defatted soybean meal pieces - the waste product that's left over after soybean oil companies are through with the pea-sized vegetable palatable for human consump-

Defatted soybean meal pieces are 48 percent protein, but have zero fat — good stuff, according to nutritionists.

The problem is that the food is so bitter, humans won't eat it. Farmers mix the pieces with pig and chicken feed to fortify the animals' diet.

"I don't think they have taste buds," Stuart said. "Maybe pigs do, but a pig would eat it anyway, rather than starve.

For many years, companies have been processing defatted soybean pieces in such a way as to make them palatable, but the processing is complicated and costly.

In 1989, the Kentucky Soybean Promotion Board asked the university if anyone there would be interested in doing pilot research into finding simpler, less expensive ways to make defatted soybean meal taste better.

The board represents soybean farmers in Kentucky.

Stuart and her assistant agreed to take on the challenge, and Stuart said "it was a lot of trial and error until we came up with a combination that was palatable.'

First, they tried using the meal as an additive to puddings and yogurt, but it didn't work.

Their big breakthrough came one day while Stuart was making fudge in a test kitchen at the college

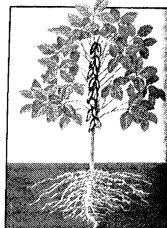

She had added the meal pieces - which are less than 1/ 4-inch long - to the fudge, which ruined it, because the defatted soybeans aborbed all the moisture.

Stuart took a bite of the dried-out fudge, and realized that the soybean pieces had the texture of nutmeats and had absorbed the flavor of the chocolate and butter that was used in the fudge.

From then on, she looked for water-soluble imitation nut flavorings to add to the defatted soybean pieces. She didn't use oil-based flavorings, because she didn't want to raise the fat content of the soybeans.

She and her assistant have found ways to make the pieces

Yes means no at polls

In case you've missed recent published reports on the current schools-of-choice issue facing voters in the Grosse Pointe School District in the June 8 election, here's a reminder on the somewhat trickily-worded ballot question.

A "Yes" vote would exempt the Grosse Pointe School District from provisions of the state schools-of-choice plan in the 1991 State School Aid Act, which requires all school districts to offer transportation to their schools-of-choice.

Since the Pointes have never offered bus transportation to students, this requirement would cost the school system approximately $500,000.

By exempting itself from the proposed state requirement, the Grosse Pointe district would be able to retain its own school-ofchoice plan, which has been in effect since 1986. This plan allows students to attend any school within the Grosse Pointe school district as long as space is available. It also requires parents to provide transportation for their children if they choose to attend a school outside their attendance area.

two hours to donate a pint of blood, in anticipation of a special need following the onground collision of two planes at Metropolitan Airport.

"Residents of southeastern Michigan are unusually giving people," Shafer said. "When the chips are down, when there's a desperate need for blood, they come out in droves like they did in response to the plane crash.'

A native of Great Bend, Kan., and a Grosse Pointe resident for close to 20 years, Shafer recently was named one of nine senior principal officers for American Red Cross Blood Services, the non-profit organization he has served since October 1975.

He says it won't change things too much for him; he's still concerned with providing increasing numbers of units of "zero-deficit" blood to the local five-county area.

"It" is a greenish-black gellike substance that has coated the shoreline for more than three weeks now.

"I went out to (a resident's) house when it first showed up and we could not stand on the dock, the smell was so bad,' said Shores village manager Mike Kenyon.

In Grosse Pointe Shores the sludge coated a 300-yard strip, 75 feet out from the shoreline.

Kenyon said the city called the DNR and the smelly blob was examined. It's algae, the DNR said. Stinking, rotting al-

There is no health hazard, the DNR told Kenyon and Grosse Pointe Farms manager Rich Solak.

In Grosse Pointe Farms it collected on the beach. Workers tried raking and scooping it out of the water. They even tried dragging it back into the lake, but to no avail.

On the Thursday before Memorial Day - traditionally one of the busiest days at Pier Park - the city set up two water pumps and created a swirling flow to break up the blob and send it back to the middle of the lake.

It worked, but only for a while and a few days later it was back.

Despite the DNR's assurances, no one is quite sure what the stuff is is, but they agree on two things - they've

They grow in a colony, attaching to each other. Then, when the colony gets too large, it rises to the surface and floats around until it dies. As it dies it releases noxious gases thus the smell.

Wandell said the blob will go away, others may form and there's not a whole lot that can be done about it.

St. Clair Shores scooped it up with back hoes and shipped it off somewhere, but Grosse Pointe Shores is unable to do that, Kenyon said, because they can't get the equipment to the beach. The mass can't be broken up with a barge because the lake is too shallow to accommodate a large enough boat to do the trick.

'We're hoping for the natural elements to break it up and disperse it," he said.

Shores' cops get their kicks as quick pix put felons in a fix

By Donna Walker Staff Writer

Pictures can do more than speak a thousand words. They can cut down on work hours, save legal fees, and increase convictions.

That's why the Grosse Pointe Shores public safety department is so proud of its newly completed video recorder/teleprinter system, said police chief Daniel Healy.

The system consists of: a super VHS Quasar camcorder, which the city bought for about $1,800 two years ago; a Quasar VCR, which the city purchased for about $400 two years ago; a Panasonic digital teleprinter, which the city obtained for about $1,200 last summer; and a color Sony television that is designed to hook up with teleprinters and which the city bought in April for about $450.

While all of the components are important, the teleprinter is the real star of the system.

It can freeze-frame a television program or a videotape

Previously, to copy a photograph of the missing person or suspect, an officer would shoot the photo with a 35mm camera and take the film to a same-day processing store.

That could take an hour or more, and "if something went down in the middle of the night, and we needed copies of a photo right away, we'd be out of luck because all of the stores would be closed," Frasard said. "With the system we have now, we can have copies instantaneously," he said.

To demonstrate, Frasard pinned a color photograph on a bulletin board of a girl from outstate who is missing. In front of the bulletin board was a camcorder on a tripod.

Frasard focused the camcorder on the photograph, and the image appeared on the television screen. He hit a button on the printer, and about 40 sec-

The system has already been used to help Grosse Pointe Woods in its search for a an armed robber who struck a dry cleaners, Frasard said.

"They had a videotape of the suspect, and we made a print for them from the videotape," he said.

Grosse Pointe Shores is the first Pointe to have a teleprinter, "and we're very willing to share it with the other Grosse Pointes. We're always sharing equipment with each other," Healy said.

The Shores uses the video equipment to record crime scenes and training exercises, trials, he said. An officer can make photographs of key frames in videotapes that are used as evidence, and then submit them to the judge and jury for closer review.

For the past two years, the Shores has been videotaping the arrests and statements of people who are suspected of driving while under the influence of alcohol, Healy said.

"It's already helped us get two or three convictions," Healy said. "We've had people say they were never read their Miranda rights, or try to deny that they ever gave a statement, and then we show the judge that we have it all on vi-

"It kind of snowballed from there," he said. "There's still room in this department for 35mm cameras, but the system we have now does it all.'

Most of the equipment was purchased out of the public safety department's normal budget, Healy said. The state paid for training components in the system, and a $1,000 gift from a resident who moved to Arizona was used to buy the super VHS camcorder, he said.

An incorrect phone number was given for Grosse Pointe Park's city hall in a story about elm leaf beetles that appeared last week. The correct number is 822-6200.

Grosse Pointe Shores trustee Jack Monahan believes statements attributed to him in last week's story about the Grosse Pointe Shores election were taken out of context.

The article discussed a letter Monahan and the two other winning candidates sent to residents of the Shores about the fourth candidate who was defeated. "The statement attributed to me that I regretted sending the informational letter to the electorate, and that I wished Mrs. Galvin were still on the council is totally out of context and erroneous and has caused me great personal embarrassment among my associates and friends," Monahan wrote.

He added: "I have no regrets about the election results or any part I played in it. I am totally pleased with the makeup of our new council and I look forward to my upcoming term with enthusiasm.'

Cities pay to keep kids out of Wayne County Juvenile Court

Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointes have agreed on how much they will pay the Community Services Department of the Children's Home of Detroit for 1993.

Their contributions, together with an anticipated donation from Harper Woods, will make up 46 percent of the $73,217 the department has budgeted for its Youth Assistance Program (YAP) and Status Offender Service (SOS) for 1993.

The children's home plans to make up the remaining $39,655 through donations from private individuals, companies and community service organizations, and through fundraisers, said Michael R. Horwitz, executive director of the children's home.

Most of the juveniles who go through the two programs are referred to them by police.

The Youth Assistance Program's stated purpose is to prevent juvenile delinquency and to offer an alternative to the Wayne County Juvenile Court for first-time offenders ages 7-16 who live in one of the five Grosse Pointes or Harper

If a youth successfully completes YAP, he will have a clean criminal record. If the youth fails to do so, he is sent back to the agency that referred him, which may in turn prosecute the youth's case through Wayne County Juvenile Court, leaving the youth with a mark on his record.

The Youth Assistance Program consists of three components, and a juvenile must successfully complete them all with a perfect attendance record, barring a really good excuse - to graduate from the program, said Celeste Sartor, YAP director.

In the first part, the youth meets with a volunteer mentor for eight to 12 weeks, and they discuss feelings in a nonjudgmental way and work on developing behavioral goals, Sartor

In the second part of the Youth Assistance Program, the youth meets with a peer group for a total of 10 hours. The meetings are facilitated by professional counselors, and participants discuss self-esteem, values, substance abuse and other topics of concern for adolescents.

In the third part, the youth is required to complete 15-20 hours of volunteer service to community organizations.

YAP had 84 clients in 1991. Three of the youths had been in the program since 1989, 31 had been in the program since 1990, and 50 of them were 1991 referrals, according to figures released by the children's

Of the 84 youths, 42 had been referred to the program by Harper Woods, 20 had been referred by Grosse Pointe Park, four were referred by Grosse Pointe Farms, six were referred by Grosse Pointe Woods, five were referred by Grosse Pointe City, and two were referred by Grosse Pointe Shores. Five of the youths were referred to the program by their families.

The juveniles' crimes included shoplifting (28 cases), theft (16 cases), possession of alcohol (six cases), fraud (six cases), malicious destruction of property (four cases), breaking and entering (four cases), family problems (four cases), fighting (four cases), carrying a concealed weapon (three cases). curfew violation (two cases), arson (one case), sexual misconduct (one case), harassment (one case), possession of marijuana (one case), and receipt of stolen property (one case).

The mean age of the participants in the Youth Assistance Program in 1991 was 14.11 years. There were four 11-yearolds, five 12-year-olds, 22 13year-olds, 17 14-year-olds, 18 15-year-olds, and 18 16-year-

As of Dec. 31, 33 of the 84 cases were still on-going, 27 had been successfully completed, and 24 youths had either quit or were dropped from the program for violating its rules.

The Status Offender Service is for lesser crimes, such as truancy and trespassing.

Participating youths are asked to perform five hours of volunteer community service, finding a non-profit civic or public organization for which to

SOS began last year at the request of local law enforcement officials, and 20 youths participated in the program in March 1991, Horwitz said.

The Children's Home of Detroit took over the Youth Assistance Program in 1990. Before then, the program had been operated for many years by the now-defunct Family Life Education Council (FLEC) in Grosse Pointe Woods. The Children's Home of Detroit's Community Service Department is housed in FLEC's former offices, located at 20171 Mack.

FLEC had been charging the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods for use of the Youth Assistance Program, based on their populations.

"That didn't make much sense to me, or the cities, because a city with a small population might use the service more than a city with a higher population," Horwitz said.

When the children's home took over the program, it billed the six participating cities in the following way, Horwitz

It decided how much it would cost to run the Youth Assistance Program for one year, and then divided that number by two. The Children's Home of Detroit would pay one half the cost, and the cities would be billed for the other half.

Then, the Children's Home of Detroit took the last amount FLEC had been charging each city, and used it as a baseline. To that baseline, the children's home added a 5 percent increase to make up for inflation and improvements.

The inflation-adjusted baseline was subtracted from the cities' share of the budget, which left a deficit. Each city was then billed for a percentage of that deficit, based on the number of the youths it had referred to the program in the

The cities continue to be billed for the Youth Assistance Program, and now are also charged for the Status Offender Service, on the basis of both population and usage.

City council members in at least two of the Pointes said they were skeptical over the way their cities are billed when Children's Home of Detroit representatives approached them with the 1993 contribution requests for the two programs.

"We asked the councils to let us know if they can come up with a more equitable way of funding the programs, but if know what it is," Horwitz said.

Michael R. Horwitz

The Children's Home of Detroit can't request payment solely on the basis of past usage, he said, because future usage can't be predicted that

Also, it's not fair to charge a city with a small population and a high past usage more than a city with a large population and a low past usage, because the larger the number of residents of a city, the higher the number of youths it has who potentially could get in trouble with the law sometime in the future, he said.

"Council people have to understand that they're paying for the availability of the program, and not just how many kids they referred last year. Frankly, I think they're getting quite a quality program," he

For 1993, Harper Woods will be asked to pay $12,160, which would make it the highest contributor of the six participating cities, according to the children's home. The children's home has not made its request yet because unlike the Grosse Pointes, which are completing their budgets for the upcoming year, Harper Woods will not begin its budget talks until the fall, Horwitz said.

For 1992, Harper Woods paid $10,650, which put it in first place among the six cities, according to figures from the Children's Home of Detroit.

Grosse Pointe Park has agreed to pay $8,640 in 1993, which is the most among the five Grosse Pointes. For 1992, it paid $7,600, putting it in second place among the Pointes.

Grosse Pointe Woods has switched positions with Grosse Pointe Park. For 1992, the Woods paid $8,400, the most paid by any of the Grosse Pointes. For the upcoming year, the Woods has agreed to $8,560, putting it in second place among the five Pointes.

Grosse Pointe Farms remains in third place among the Pointes. For 1992, it paid $4,375, and for 1993, it has agreed to pay $5,625.

Grosse Pointe City remains in fourth place among the Pointes. It paid $2,900 for 1992, and has agreed to pay $3,320 in 1993.

Grosse Pointe Shores remains at the bottom of the list. It paid $1,150 for 1992, and has agreed to pay $1,350 in 1993.

The community service department of the Children's Home of Detroit is located in FLEC's old office on Mack.

why we make endorsements

nce again, we'll try to explain why this community newspaper makes endorsements in local elections, as we've already done for next Monday's school election.

We regard it as part of our responsibility as a community newspaper to express our views on issues and candidates that affect the Grosse Pointe community, directly and indirectly.

It is true that there is no consensus among community newspapers about the issue of endorsing local candidates. In fact, it has been said that less than a majority of community papers across the country makes its preferences known and the number doing so apparently isn't

But this newspaper has been making endorsements since its beginning more than 50 years ago. Not that the voting public always accepts our views. The people have differed with us on many occasions. And so, of course, have the candidates, and especially the candidates whom we have not endorsed.

As we make clear, this newspaper seeks to interview all the candidates in order to make a fair and full report in the news columns and to help the editorial writer arrive at his opinions about the candidates and the issues. We try to publish these stories and editorials early enough so that the candidates and their friends may correct errors, offer rebuttals or provide additional information in the final issue before the election.

This week, for example, the News is publishing at least one letter to the editor from a candidate who offers additional comments because he feels that the outline of his positions had not been represented fairly in last week's issue.

Donald Q. Smith, publisher and editor of the Monticello, Minn., Times, recently defended the practice of writing endorsement editorials about local contests as being "an obligation of leadership which we (in community newspapers) can best perform on the editorial page.

"We are in a unique position within our communities to assess the strengths and weaknesses of people seeking public office," he continued. "We see the candidates in board settings; we can judge their decision-making capabilities; we can predict how they will function in the necessary areas of compromise and leadership.

Smith, who writes the Editor's Notebook column for the nationally distributed Publishers' Auxiliary, also contended that because candidates know they will be interviewed and judged by newspaper people, "that becomes part of the process of holding public office in their communities."

The newspaper's participation in the process, he added, "raises the quality of those who run," tends to "heighten interest in the election process" and permits him to play his most significant role in his town.

Like Smith, we would like to think that our reporting and endorsing process helps elect the most capable candidates in this community, whether they are running for school board, mayor, city council, or even the county and state offices to be filled after primary and general elections later this year.

In the end, however, ours is an advisory opinion and it obviously is up to each and every voter to make up his or her own mind before going to the polls in the school election next Monday and in every other election affecting this community.

Who is the real Ross Perot?

The headline on this editorial asks a question that no one has yet succeeded in answering.

Vol. 53, No.23, June 4, 1992, Page 6A

Even the chief Perot watcher for the New York Times editorial page, former Grosse Pointer Robert Semple Jr., couldn't answer his own question when he talked to the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library recently.

He did suggest that Perot, on the basis of his lead in public opinion polls in Texas and California and in a new national Time magazine poll, does have to be taken seriously even though the public to date is uninformed about his program and views on the major issues.

· He called Perot the "electronic man" riot only because his candidacy was created by the electronic media but because he has proposed an electronic town hall through which to offer recommendations for solutions to critical issues.

Yet, as Semple pointed out, Perot has yet to be examined in depth by the news media and the public on the specific issues in the way that both President Bush and Bill Clinton have been scrutinized during the long series of presidential primaries.

When Perot has responded to media inquiries, he often has been fuzzy about his future relations with Congress, which would have to approve and write into law most of his proposals, and has shown little understanding of the Constitution, including the Bill of Rights.

Furthermore, his record as a "can-do" businessman includes evidence that he himself has been feeding at the public trough for years. For example, the New York Times reported that local, state and federal governments have invested nearly $200 million in cash and tax breaks for a Texas airport in the heart of a 17,000acre land development owned by Perot's family interests.

Yet there he now stands, his visage peering out from Time's cover and leading in Time's poll of public opinion with 33 percent of the respondents saying they would vote for him if the election were held today. Only 28 percent of the respondents favored Bush and 24 percent backed Clinton.

Fortunately, the election isn't being held today, even though it now is less than six months distant, and new information about Perot's past is popping out

Our belief is that as time goes on, the public will read, hear and learn so much about Perot's many deficiencies they will conclude that he really lacks the high standards the nation sets for the presidency.

Postscript on Shores election

rosse Pointe Shores, the smallest of the Pointes in population, tends to be a leader of these communities in delivering a high quality of public services and improving the appearance of its lakeshore properties.

The Shores has been one of the leaders, too, in attacking the pollution of Lake St. Clair, a fact which unfortunately became an issue in the recent village council election with the circulation of charges and countercharges by council candidates.

In an editorial in last week's issue, the Grosse Pointe News criticized three Grosse Pointe Shores council candidates for circulating at the last minute a joint letter setting forth the facts as they saw them about the continued pollution of Lake St. Clair by a failed septic system on the property of the fourth candidate.

However, we have learned that the letter was distributed to respond to misconcentions that had been circulated during the campaign and that the candidates felt it was unfair for the News to "taint" their reputations by saying that their tactics were "lacking the usual high standards of Grosse Pointe campaigning.'

Reflecting on the comment and on the circumstances that led to our description, the News now feels that the criticism was excessive, and expresses regret that the phrase personally embarrassed the letter writers.

The paper's news story about the letters was also embarrassing to John F. Monahan, one council candidate seeking re-election, because through a misunderstanding with the News reporter, he feels he was quoted out of context about the election results and, mistakenly, in saying that he wished the defeated candidate were still on the council.

We regret that, too.

To report and comment accurately on all the news that occurs in the Pointes, this newspaper not only wants but needs the cooperation of all the Pointe governments to do its job of keeping the public informed. The Shores has assured this newspaper of its cooperation in achieving that goal.

Why foes fight term limits

It is good to see the organization of a coalition to oppose the term-limitation amendment that will be on the November ballot because Michigan has good reason to be against it.

With the retirement of several of its senior members who are not running for re-election, the state already will be losing congressional clout in Washington as contrasted with other states.

But the passage of the limitation would further cut into the state's seniority strength by depriving it of its senior member and most powerful voice in Washington, Rep. John Dingell, as well as the House whip, Rep. David E. Bonior.

The Pointes also would lose the seniority and experience in Lansing of Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. and state Sen. John Kelly, both of whom would be forced to retire after the next election if the term-limitation idea is approved.

As the League of Women Voters head said last week when the coalition filed papers for its campaign organization, "We think we already have term limitations. They're called elections."

Clarification

To the Editor:

I would like to clarify some of the points, made in my (David Hunt) candidate profile, from the May 28 edition of the Grosse Pointe News. Some of the quotes were not presented in the context in which they were said, and therefore, could mislead voters.

First, the issue of class sizes: average class sizes in junior and senior highschools will stand at 16.1 and 15.5 students per teacher, respectively. In contrast, the average class size in our elementary schools will be 22.5. In my opinion, class size is far more important on an elementary school level. In the case of the junior and senior high schools, current class sizes are too low to be cost-effective.

Second, special programs such as the gifted elementary student program: the presentation implied, I was not in favor of funding it. In the case of this program and other special programs, I will evaluate them based on the additional costs versus the benefits achieved.

According to the information I have received, the gifted program at my son's school, Defer Elementary, included a separate class with 27 students, one teacher and one aide. In this case, little additional costs are being incurred to operate a program that is doing a better job of educating these children.

Finally, my endorsement of levying the districts to available mills: I would not be in favor of buying (levying) any additional mills, because the community is clearly not in favor of this.

Current tax rates allow the expenditure of more than $6,500 per student. even with the loss of $4.1 million in state reimbursements. With some local districts achieving the same or better test scores, while spending less than $5,000 per student, it's no wonder voters don't support any further tax increases.

vvaluort: A tree grows in Detroit

Three things happened in the last few weeks that made me hark back to the days of my youth on the plains, er, cracked pavement, of Detroit.

It all started as I drove home on Jefferson from downtown Detroit. At Jefferson and Burns, I made a sharp left into Indian Village. Though I never lived there, that's where I grew up, attending grade school at the Detroit Waldorf School.

It's hard to explain, since most people don't empathize with feeling gushy and nostalgic about downtown Detroit, but, for me, driving around Indian Village and seeing Waldorf was almost mystical. If that's what people mean by the magic of childhood, then I had the Harry Houdini of child-

Except for the fact that, by some unearthly phenomenon, the school seems to have shrunk, Indian Village is comfortingly still the same. Three blocks of dignified, old homes and mansions (they all seemed like mansions when I was 10), shaded by ivy, bushes and big, old trees that keep the neighborhood cool and hushed, insulating it from the brash, hard inner-city streets that surround

Then, a classmate and one of my best friends from Waldorf, whom I've seen only once since the seventh-grade, recently called me and we found our memories of Waldorf are unbelievably similar.

Finally, a former teacher, whom I also hadn't seen since the seventh-grade, came in to see me last week. So I figured it was a sign or something.

Seeing the outside of the school, for only the second time since 1980, seemed like a confirmation that I really had gone there and it brought back all kinds of happy memories.

Stories of kings and queens, fairies, dwarfs, goblins, handsome princes, beautiful princesses and evil hags are what I associate with my early years at Waldorf.

In addition to regular school studies, I remember figures like St. Nicholas and his nasty sidekick, a grimy elf who always threatened to hand out lumps of coal to bad little boys and girls, visiting us at Christmastime; Odin, Thor and Norse mythology; reading, reading, reading; learning French and German from first through eighth grades; mandatory playing of an orchestral instrument by the fifth grade; woodworking; knitting and crocheting; painting, drawing and molding with top-notch German pencils, crayons, clay and beeswax.

To say watching television was frowned upon at Waldorf is like saying Stalin was just a little misunderstood.

Television was viewed by parents and teachers as, basically, a device spawned by satanic forces (I'm hardly exaggerating) to wreak havoc on civilization as we know it. But even worse, it killed children's creativity.

My mom would actually hide our television and, except for Tuesday nights, when she went to meetings and my brother and I would tear the house apart trying to find it in time for "Happy Days," we didn't miss it too much.

Recess was twice a day and I don't know what I would have done without it. We played long and hard. I can't imagine how kids survive school today, with less playing time and vastly more pressure, both academically and socially, than me or my peers ever had endured. Every spring and fall, as we got older, we played one continuous softball game daily and in the winter, a never-ending "touch" football game in kneedeep snow.

My classmates, white and black, came to school from everywhere. Some lived in Indian Village, where sleepovers were loads of fun because we could hide in the old house's secret (or so we thought) stairways and dumb-waiters; some lived by me, on the east side; some lived in the suburbs; some lived in Palmer Park and my best friend lived in Sherwood Forest.

I don't remember many, if any, race or black and white problems because we were all just classmates who sort of skipped along and lived it.

I remember coming home one day, in first or second grade, and telling my mom I was a honky and so was she.

Some kid at school had told me, very matter-of-factly, this was the case because I was white.

My mom feigned interest at the "new" word and then suggested I stay with the word 'white" so more people would understand me.

I also remember telling my

Right path is the one not taken

Why did they hold Memorial Day a week early instead of this week, where it belonged? May had enough days in it; there was, after all, a weekend to go with that last Monday and that's what it's really all about, isn't it? The long week-

I'm all in favor of long weekends, whenever they're held. Instead of flagellating ourselves for not working as hard as the Japanese, we should be modeling ourselves after the Germans, who believe in as much leisure time as possible, in order to cultivate the individual.

Leisure is good for mental and physical health - particularly when you work hard. The Germans prove the point by working only about 37 hours a week and taking five or six weeks annually for vacation --and still keep their productivity among the highest in the world.

One thing about Memorial Day, though: The weather gods know when we're celebrating it, even when we move it around. It always rains.

The uproar over the walking path in Ghesquiere Park was interesting for several reasons. For one, it showed that citizens demand their grassroots movements be taken seriously

People are so fed up with government at all levels, feeling so disenfranchised, perceiving that officials never listen to the "little guy," that Woods residents absolutely blew up when they thought council was ignoring them.

Walking paths are usually seen as a good thing, but in this case the disagreement seemed to center on the paving of the path. Residents believed a paved path would invite bicycles, rollerblades, skateboards, motorbikes; council refused to consider an unpaved path because it wouldn't be accessible to wheelchairs.

Well, the handicapped lobby will probably come down on my head, but I think the residents are right. An unpaved path is conducive to quiet strolling. Not every place in the world must be accessible to wheelchairs. Not every place in the world is accessible to me on two legs. I can't climb mountains; my husband has asthma. Should the DNR cut down the hills on state park nature Ghesquiere Park already has several paved sidewalks, making the general area accessible to everyone. That's probably enough.

A reader wrote a couple of weeks ago, suggesting (I think) that I approve of sexual perversions - a belief fostered a few months ago by my bit on a book about a sexual relationship between a teacher and a student. In reality, what I approve of (or can live with) is "to each his own" (so long as it doesn't hurt anyone) and what

I disapprove of is censorship. But what the letter made me think about is that some readers still may not know me. Herewith, an abbreviated autobiography: I'm an oldest child (opinionated, accustomed to being in charge), a college graduate (French language and literature, not journalism), a mother, stepmother, mother-in-law, and grandmother (an incredibly voung grandmother of

I worked as a teacher when it was the lowest-paying profession, then switched to journalism when it claimed the honor. My friend the social worker is delighted to know someone who is lower paid than she is. It keeps her going.

I don't live in Grosse Pointe, which is both an advantage (I have a balanced, objective view) and a disadvantage (I don't always know the inside line and readers use it against me if they disagree with me).

Though not a Grosse Pointer, I'm probably more like you than not: middle-class, suburban, educated, active in the community. On the other hand, I love my jeans - and sometimes I drive a pickup truck. My life, like yours, has been touched by divorce, alcohol, drugs. Like many of you I'm still pretty sheltered from poverty, abuse, crime, joblessness.

I'm nostalgic, sentimental, nit-picking, and more conservative than some of you think. I shout back at the television set.

I worry about the American educational system, about the environment, about the growing underclass, about the influence of lobbyists. I go to bed too early for Johnny Carson. A drapery consultant once turned me out of her shop because I wanted to "treat" my windows in an unfashionable style.

In the '60s, I held a baby on my lap and watched my generation march in protest. The idealism of that era is still intact; my kids tease me about it.

Unlike most journalists, I serve on commissions and work for politicians' election (or did, till I got fed up, too). I sometimes tire of the journalist's role as observer; I nod to journalistic ethics by keeping my activism outside of Grosse Pointe and its elected officials. So you can be sure I've never stuffed envelopes for your mayor or your congress(wo)man — and I don't have enough money to attend fundraisers.

"Boy, Grosse Pointe this, Grosse Pointe that — Grosse Pointe is all you ever talk about," Bob gripes.

Well, almost. Grosse Pointe is a symbol, a standard, a model. It's an older community that has managed to stay attractive, the kind of place people grew up in - or wish they had. It's the town in the grade school primers, with the pretty houses and picket fences. Of course, Grosse Pointers are annoyingly smug about it. And outsiders unreasoningly resentful (to the point that many young Pointers disclaim any connection when they travel outside the community).

Grosse Pointe has a national reputation, both for its excellence and — sorry! — for its attitude. Shoot, that's how it ended up on "Northern Expo-

Water testing to be discussed

The EPA-mandated drinking water testing and what it will mean for homeowners in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods will be discussed by David Pochmara, Harper Woods councilman, on Tuesday, June 9, at the War Memorial.

The event, sponsored by the Women's Republican Club of Grosse Pointe, is open to the public. The program will start at 1:30 p.m. On July 1, government officials will start testing homeowners' water for lead levels acceptable to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Our choice

To the Editor:

On June 8, along with voting on two school board positions, the residents of the Grosse Pointes will be voting on an important ballot issue - Schools of Choice.

The state now requires all school districts to have a schools of choice plan. Part of that plan must include bus transportation within the district.

Grosse Pointe has had a choice plan since 1986 stating that parents provide transportation. The Grosse Pointe Board of Education is asking voters to exempt the Grosse Pointe School System from this statemandated plan solely because of the transportation issue. The transportation requirement would cost the taxpayers between $400,000 and $500,000.

A yes vote would exempt us from the state schools of choice plan but would not affect the school systems local choice plan. Please vote yes.

Myth

To the Editor:

My letter is in regard to what I assume is a public service announcement in the April 30 election of the Grosse Pointe News. It was on page 14A and titled "Radon test kits avail-

I was very disturbed upon reading this. I think the Grosse Pointe News has an obligation to inform its readers of the myth surrounding the alleged hazards of radon gas.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) claims that radon gas is responsible for as many as 25,000 lung cancer deaths each year. Yet when asked to present proof, the EPA offered no scientific evidence whatsoever to support its claim.

In fact, there has been no long-term conclusive testing on the effects of radon gas on human beings. The only supportive evidence the EPA offered was an independent study done on uranium miners in the late 1940s. The study showed that the miners had a higher incidence of lung cancer because of their work in the mines. Because radon gas is common in uranium mines, the EPA's analysis of this study concluded that the primary cause of lung cancer in these miners was radon gas.

What they didn't tell the public, was that the majority of miners who did develop lung cancer were the very same group who also were heavy cigarette smokers and, furthermore, all of the miners were exposed to considerable amounts of mine dust.

This mine dust caused medical problems similar to the relationship of coal miners to coal dust (black lung disease). I repeat, this is the only evidence the EPA offers as proof.

This comes on the heels of the EPA claim about asbestos. They have now issued a statement to the effect that it was incorrect to call for the removal of all asbestos from public and private buildings. They have concluded that it possesses greater harm if removed. In other words, leave it alone!

Now they are calling for federal laws that would require the alteration of every American household to prevent the permeation of radon gas into private dwellings — at an average cost of $14,000 per home. The total nationwide liability is estimated to approach $20 million.

We can conclude from this that the EPA is a misguided government bureaucracy whose agenda is promoted by the personal beliefs of the agency head and its fanatical underlings.

I would appreciate it if the Grosse Pointe News could print my letter so that the residents of the five Grosse Pointes are not misled by the ideologies of the Environmental Protection Agency. Their radon gas claim is nothing short of mass hysteria, something this country doesn't

To the Editor:

The June 8 election contains a ballot proposal which is vitally important to the residents of this community.

The Michigan Legisla ture passed the Schools of Choice Plan, effective April 1, 1992. This plan has a transportation component that would cost Grosse Pointe taxpayers approximately $500,000.

The Grosse Pointe School System has had a choice plan in effect since 1986, allowing parents to request a school other than their neighborhood school (with the exceptions of Parcells and Monteith which are at capacity enrollment) with parents providing the transportation.

I urge all voters to support the board of education's recommendation to exempt ourselves from the state-mandated plan. Please vote yes to retain local school control, vote yes to support Grosse Pointe Schools, vote yes to save $500,000 in tax dollars and vote yes to maintain a policy which has been in effect for six years in this school district.

To the Editor:

A Michigan Sugar Beet

Aren't we going a bit too far on this "week" sort of thing? Don't mind a "Save the Whales Week." Whales are big and lovable. And a "National Education Week" or a "Study of the Bible Week" one can go along with, even though you wonder why.

But a "Michigan Sugar Beet Week" is a little hard to handle. I don't even know what a sugar beet looks like. If you really thought about it, they have to be about as unprepossessing an object as you can name. I think of them as sort of brown and dirty, coming as they do from under the ground.

Have all of us been missing something about these beets? After all, the people in the picture promoting "Sugar Beet Week" all look like nice, straightforward, shirt-and-tie sort of people. So when I made my recent visit is the horal horal in the opportunity to get Rosanding Pilcher's proper to develop a better under-latest novel (isn't she a marvelous writer?), I sauntered over to the Reference Desk and looked up sugar beets in the Encyclopedia Americana.

Note that it was the Encyclopedia Americana, not the big, familiar Britannica. I had a feeling that the sugar beet was strictly Americana.

I was wrong.

True lovers of sugar beet history can trace its cultivation to ancient times in Asia, of all places. Do you realize that an Austrian by the name of Carl Steffen was the first to extract pure lactose by a chemical process of his invention? I will hope some recognition be given during "Sugar Beet Week" to Steffen's great contribution. Perhaps a medal struck in his name presented to an Austrian Charge d'affairs, with the Marine Band playing "Ostereich Uber Alles!" in the background.

But the lore of the sugar beet doesn't stop there. When you get into its byproducts, you can go really wild! Butyl alcohol, lactic acid, gluconic acid. Why, you can produce fumaric acid, if your really insist on doing so.

I guess it's all right to have a Michigan Sugar Beet Week, after all. But I'm somewhat sorry I even heard about it.

School is almost out for the summer. But children with speech problems often still need help.

That's why Bon Secours created the Summer Speech Program for children from ages 2 to 18.

The Bon Secours staff of certified speech and language pathologists have helped scores of children improve their language skills. And improved speech means improved self-confidence.

The program includes two 50-minute sessions each week from June 22 to August 14 to be held at the Bon Secours Hospital Speech Pathology Department. The fee for the eightweek program is $200. Register your child by June 12 by calling Karen Schmanski, M.A., CCC-SLP, program coordinator, at 343-1622.

Quayle not consulted

She wasn't dropped from the sky by a stork. However, if you were to see the mother and daughter together you could easily imagine something just as magical. The baby's entrance into this world was considerably more difficult than we suburban creatures might envision. She was delivered by an 80-year-old midwife, in a shack on the side of a mountain, in Honduras. She was premature, weighing less than five pounds, but she was to become the answer to many prayers and her adoptive mother's greatest gift.

I have a friend, considerably younger than me, who believed that she heard the incessant clanging of her biological clock in her ear. Once upon a time she was our babysitter and her great love of and rapport with children was obvious to us many years ago. She was destined to devote her career and much of her adult life to the care and nuturing of children.

And, although Mr. Right had yet to appear, she knew that the time was right to consider motherhood. The options available for adoption as a single parent are almost nil. Being in the medical profession, my friend thought she knew of the many restrictions and detours that would be involved in pursuing her quest, but she never could have imagined the magnitude of

The young mother-to-be knew someone who had adopted a Korean child and soon she was networking with several people, both married and single, who had completed out-of-the-country adoptions. She was referred to an agency that could advise her and the process began to take shape. After exploring countless avenues, it was decided that Honduras afforded the best way to proceed. The residency requirements were less stringent and there was certainly an availability of children.

To offer a detailed account of the red tape involved and the endless weeks of frustration would take a mini-series to relate. I will simply say that enormous expenses were incurred, records were mysteriously lost and "miraculously" found and mountains of paperwork were conquered. From what I have been told, the situation and conditions of this baby's birth were fairly typical for those children available for adoption in Hondu-

With the population's overwhelming lack of education and concern regarding birth control, most of the unplanned infants are put into orphanages where life expectancy is tenuous because of disease. The more fortunate children are put into foster care to await adoption, as was the case with my friend's child. This particular little girl was given to foster parents five days after her birth and remained in their care until she was more than 6 months old.

She was so tiny at birth that she was unable to suckle and her foster mother is credited with saving her life, by feeding her bround the clock with an eye dropper and adding a proliferation of love from the foster family. This family had been foster parents to one other child and the pain of separation this time took a toll. The father was as devastated as the mother to see their child leave for the last time.

However, their tears were mingled with smiles as they considered the bright future that was opening for their young charge. The baby had begun her life with this educated Mexican couple and they read to her daily in English to ease the language barrier and the differing sounds that she would hear from her new

At the time of the final separation the couple said the pain was too much to bear and they doubted they could go through it again, but a recent letter informed their friend that if God asked they would certainly do His bidding.

I requested that the new mom give me a BRIEF accounting of what was involved on her side in the adoption process. An incomplete list follows: A home study and intensive interviews with questions pertaining to financial security, motivation for adoption, lifestyle, career intentions, etc.; approval by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service and the adoption agency operating through California; approval of the current junta and the first lady of Honduras; two lastminute (therefore super-expensive) trips to Honduras, because when the governments on either side said "Now," you obeyed or risked losing the adoption; approval from the consulate in Chicago; physicals by the embassy; visas; passports; meetings with lawyers in both countries; papers and money; and more papers and more money.

At last it appeared that the final hurdles had been cleared and all systems were in place. More than six months had elapsed and the sleepless nights would now make sense, for the mother's ear would be cocked for the sound of her child instead of her own nightmares. The call came summoning her to Honduras and the message was to proceed immediately. There were rumors that adoptions were about to be denied because the United States would black market the babies for body parts!

Mom caught the first plane out and filled the next day with meaningful gestures that would always be there for her new child. She met with and has in her possession a picture of the birth mother, who was grateful and relieved that her child would realize the impossible dream of having a life in the United States.

I am told that boy babies are kept in the family because of their usefulness and potential productivity; girls are relinquished more easily. My friend had fallen in love with the foster parents on the first visit and when she returned to receive her child she asked them to be the baby's godparents. The mother then baptized the child in her native religion in the country of her birth. The foster family had a farewell party for the baby and her mother following the christening. The last 24 hours in Honduras have been captured on videotape, as well as the arrival in her new country.

The past two months have whirled by with new schedules and an avalanche of love from friends and family. There have been showers and picnics and an outpouring of love from grandparents, aunts, uncles and adoring cousins who have a new "doll" to play

For the first few weeks there were cries of terror in the night, which had been expected and which have subsequently disappeared as security and trust replaced fear. Morn has enlisted in the MCI Central America calling plan and keeps in touch with the foster parents. She and her child have a wonderful support team of other adoptive parents and they meet often. My friend has returned to her job and the baby stays in a private home with a loving sitter. Down the road, when the timing is right, she will go into day

One almost feels like an intruder when observing mother and child. Each has enormous eyes, wonderful thick dark brown hair, and a glowing complexion. They coo and giggle and converse in that language that only mothers and daughters can begin to comprehend. The image is one of total contentment.

Michigan Consolidated Gas Company reminds customers to carefully check identification before allowing anyone claiming to be from MichCon into their homes.

First, request identification. All MichCon employees carry photo I.D. cards. "We encourage our customers to carefully examine the identification card and match the information and photograph with the person in front of you," said John von Rosen, senior vice president of utility operations.

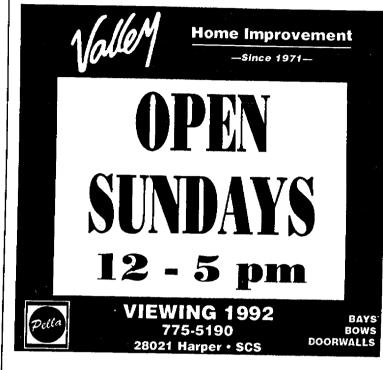

Secondly, ask the purpose of the visit. "If you called for service, the MichCon employee will be able to explain the reason for the call," vonRosen

"Lastly, if you're still suspicious of the person, don't admit. him or her into your home.

Call MichCon for verification,' von Rosen said. Utility imposters use several ploys to get into homes, such as cash refunds or meter reads. Von Rosen said that refunds due customers are credited on gas bills, or by checks sent in the mail. He also advises customers to know how MichCon reads its gas meters. "Approximately 95 percent of MichCon meters in the metropolitan Detroit area are read from the outside. The majority of inside gas meters have been converted to outside, remote meter reading devices.'

Romanian couple comes to America to find their dreams

By Ronald J. Bernas

Cristian and Mihaela Argesanu are only in America for a short while, but they have a heavy agenda.

The Romanian couple, both 24, is staying with the Moebus family in Grosse Pointe City on a six-month visa.

He is a dissident poet of some note who would like to find a publisher for a book he has written based on his life in Communist Romania and what it has been like since the fall of the dictator Nicolae Ceausescu two years ago.

She would like to enter medical school to continue working toward her degree. In Romania she's had five years of collegelevel education. Six are needed to become a doctor. In the United States, though, her five years will only be counted as about two years of undergraduate education. And she also needs a sponsor to enter college, she said.

Together they would also like to educate the American people about Romania. "People don't know the smallest thing about our country," he said.

"Yes," adds Mihaela, "they think our capital is Budapest. That's the Hungarian capital. Ours is Bucharest."

And they want people to know that Romania hasn't changed a great deal just because Ceausescu is dead and Democratic elections are scheduled for later this year.

The Communists are less popular, they said, but the promised elections have been postponed several times and may not be held until the couple returns to their country. "In appearance they are not Communist," he said. "But deep in the structure it's not quite democratic."

People can own businesses and stores now, they say, but most are owned by members of the secret police.

Investments in business by Romanians are taxed heavily, they say, but foreign investments are tax-free, making the country a gold mine for outsi-

Despite the fact that more newspapers are printed now, there is not much freedom of the press, Cristian said. He should know, he's a journalist who worked for a news agency there.

Many of the country's best educated people are emigrating, looking for something better,

It's hard to get news to America, they said. Mail from Mihaela's father and sister from Romania doesn't always make it to the United States.

The two have been married for three years and coming to the United States is a dream for them, but it hasn't all been as they expected.

"The people are like we dreamed," she said. "But I don't like the bureaucracy."

"You have to go from appointment to appointment and never finish this kind of network," he said. "Then they send you to another person."

"And you find out you can't things.

do what you wanted, anyway."

One thing Cristian wants to do is work; he says he's looking for anything to help cover the trip's cost.

"This trip to us was a dream that became a reality," she said. But there is another dream they want to see become real - a fully democratic Ro. mania.

"After a 45-year sickness you can't be healed quickly," he said. "It will take a long time. The people who will see changes will be those who are children now. When they are 20 they will have many good

Dream and Reality -

Do you love children? I'm sure you do. Imagine hundreds of thousands of children, beautiful like all children are, with innocent souls, shiny eyes, small bodies, great energy and a lot of questions in their minds every question beginning, naturally, with "Why ...?" But imagine at the same time that those children had to stay in houses which in winter had no heating, they had to stay sometimes in long lines with their parents to buy food, that in their games had to be very attentive, not to say something with political, social, economical or religious content, because it was possible that somebody interested in hearing such things was nearby, and if that person would report to Security of State their words, then their parents should be in big trouble.

No, this is not a scary movie or a nightmare. It was just the life of children under the communist repressive system of Nicolae Ceausescu in Romania. I was one of those children. And I can tell you that deep in our hearts, we had a hope and a beautiful dream: the life in democratic countries, first of all being America, certainly.

In training

Scott Sorenson, a criminal justice major at Lake Superior State University, has a summer internship with the Grosse Pointe Park public safety department.

American music delighted our childhood. We loved singers like Bob Dylan, Neil Diamond, groups like Dire Straits, Deep Purple, Queen and many others. The American movies were our favorite. For us, America was a kind of promised land, to which everyone of us hoped in his heart to reach one day, to be a free, respected man. Everything connected to America seemed to us was perfect. And one day, the revolution against Ceausescu's system began. He was killed, but he was just one of the almost four million communists in Romania. A new historical process began for our country - a period of social and political upheavals, in which those who want to maintain all their old privileges and high-ranking positions, fought fiercely against the new wave of people, who deeply want a democracy, an economic system, a certain guarantee for human rights, lives and freedom.

All those new people expected a lot of help from America. It seemed to be the most powerful and the most generous country all over the world, the most demo-

We loved America. And our eyes were fixed toward the U.S.A. The U.S.A. sent a lot of moral and political help. But not economic help. And that is the most necessary help for Romania now. We asked ourselves, why? And for a lot of us, one of the reasons could be that the new government in Romania seemed to be a neo-communistic one, and the president himself was a former communist.

It's a strong reason, but it was not enough. The economic aid would help the Romanian people and you cannot punish a friendly people for its leaders. It had to be another reason

Finally, I had the great opportunity to be able to arrive here, to see my dream with my own eyes. And because I love America, I feel sad for a lot of things I saw

I realized why America cannot economically help Romania. America itself has now a lot of problems. It is a big recession in economy, it seems to be almost a crisis, a very serious one. A lot of people have no jobs. If you want to do something on your own, you're stumbling over a big bureaucracy which carries you from one appointment to another, to find a lot of small things which finally make you feel bewildered and weak.

Something in the way that things are organized is not OK. It's too soon for me to say what is not OK and why, but there is something.

And again, because I love America, I want it to be as I always dreamed it is. The people deserve a life without fear for the next day. If I saw in the organizational system some disorders, I can't say something similar about the American people.

I love their way to be friendly, honest, always in terested in a small profit, but fair with others, always wanting something better for them and especially for their children. I've never seen a people with such worship for children. Perhaps this love for youth makes me feel very optimistic about America's future.

To end, I'd like to say a few words about the environment here. I was surprised that in a country with so much industry and especially in an area near Detroit, the world's center of automobiles, you have such fresh air, so many beautiful gardens.

In Romania, pollution is a big problem. Ceausescu, who was crazy, gave orders to people to build factories inside the cities, near our houses and apartments. These factories are not equipped in order to protect the environment, and tons and tons per day of irritant powders, sometimes carcinogens, fly up in the air we're breathing. So be happy that you and your family have such good air.

Even through my dream about America is not quite the reality I found, I still love this country and I trust it will have a better future, for it has wonderful people.

Start spreadin' the news: North singers make it in N.Y.,

By Maureen McNulty Staff Writer

Carnegie Hall has seen the likes of everyone from Arthur Fiedler to Robin Williams, Vladimir Horowitz to Bill

On Memorial Day weekend, it hosted another memorable performance as the theater's hallowed walls were graced by the sounds of the 92-member Grosse Pointe North Concert

Led by esteemed composer John Rutter of Great Britain, the concert choir successfully performed Rutter's "Magnificat" at Carnegie Hall Sunday, May 24.

"It went extremely well," said Ben Walker, North's choral director. "I got a letter from Mr. Rutter over the weekend saying how pleased he was with the concert."

Not the typical gig for a high school choir, the students prepared for the concert the whole school year.

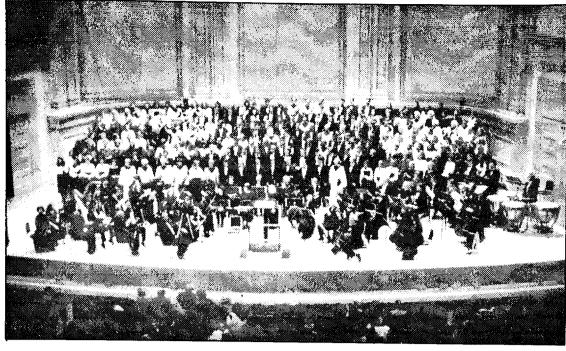

"Mr. Rutter invited us to sing with him last spring," Walker said. "I sent him a tape of the kids singing some of his compositions and he must have liked what he heard because he invited us to sing with him at Carnegie Hall."

Walker said the concert choir was invited to sing in Barcelona this summer at festivities before the Olympics, but the school board decided against letting them go because the Persian Gulf War was going on at the time a commitment needed to be made.

The significance of singing at such a prestigious hall was not lost on members of the choir.

"Mr. Rutter told us that people never feel like they've made it until they've performed at Carnegie Hall and anyone who's ever 'made it' as a performer has played there," said senior Kelly Babel, vice president of the choir.

"Singing in Carnegie Hall I can't even explain the from 10 a.m. to noon, while 10feeling or how incredible the

The choir was invited to sing with 200 other vocalists from seven other choral groups, ranging in size from eight to North's 92 members. Except for North and one other high school group, the choirs were college age and older and came to New York from all over the

"The cost of the trip was about $900 per person," Babel said, "but we raised a lot of that money through fundraisers like a Walkathon, a sweetheart auction, and selling T-shirts and discount cards.

Babel said two choir members' parents, Frances Moss and Marlene Paluzzi, "totally organized everything - right down to what we ate in the morning.'

"It was a big dance and so-cial gathering," Babel said. "We got to meet all the other people who were performing the same night as us and another group of jazz bands who were playing Carnegie Hall the next night. Some also were in high school so it was fun meeting them.'

The concert choir had a shorter rehearsal Saturday and, except for joining the group to

After one short rehearsal Sunday, the group performed "Magnificat" at 8 p.m. that night. After the concert, they took a boat trip around the Statue of Liberty.

"We were supposed to tour

Ellis Island the next day, but we were just too exhausted," Babel said.

According to the director of MidAmerica Productions, who invited Grosse Pointe North to perform, the choir was a "wonderful success" and would be welcomed back.

"Your community is fortunate to have the ensemble in its midst. We sincerely hope that you will continue to support their activities," said Peter Tiboris, music director for the Manhattan Philharmonic.

For Walker, it will be hard. to top the experience:

"I had to sit in the audience. while they sang and it was probably the proudest moment in my life. To see your kids singing on stage in New York City ... I couldn't have been prouder."

Manhattan's no isle of joy for out-of-town drivers

NEW YORK — Manhattan is: the intriguing condensed mass of humanity and buildings on an outcropping of granite that sticks up in the mouth of the Hudson River.

Manhattan is: an urban setting where neighborhood parks and green spaces tucked behind skyscrapers and the magnificent Central Park with its bikers and runners and horseback riders and strollers and ball playes offer refuge from the concrete.

Manhattan is: an island connected to the mainland by bridges and tunnels, and with other islands, like Staten Island, by ferries that move peacefully but purposefully transporting passengers to and fro for a couple of quarters in payment.

Manhattan is: an amazing collection of small dress shops and shoe shops; of chic restaurants and crowded delis and wine bars with little tables on the narrow sidewalk; of sundry stores with at least one of every time-saving gadget ever conceived; of galleries and artists markets and bookstores; of softpretzel and wurst stands on street corners and racks of Tshirts; of grocery stores bins stacks of oranges and grapes and bananas and buckets of fresh flowers thrust onto the walkway.

Manhattan is: a place where it's difficult to drive and impossible to park; where being towed means you're out maybe 120 bones plus half a day in line at some police yard; where pedestrians give new meaning to the word "assertive"; where parking for a graduation ceremony and forgetting that your meter is in a "no parking 4-7 p.m. zone" will cost you $45; where every street you want to turn down is one way the other way; where Marcus Garvey Park prevents you from getting to the church on time.

The church is St. Martin's Episcopal. It stands at the corner of Malcolm X (122nd Street) and Adam Clayton Powell boulevards (Lenox). The estimated time of arrival is noon. We think it should be a relatively easy drive from East 63rd Street in the luxurious '92 Chevrolet Suburban Silverado, if we allow 25 minutes.

Once out on Park Avenue, we discover otherwise. The midday lights are timed so that motorists catch a long red about every four blocks. When we finally reach the northern tip of Central Park, there are only minutes to spare.

We figure, put the pedal to the metal, get some acceleration from the fuel-injected 5.7-liter engine, zip west and be there. Then we discover Marcus Garvey Park, a New York green space that stands between us and the 40-bell Dutch carillon at St. Martin's. Circumventing the park requires finding a one-way street running in the right direction without any trucks parked in the middle.

Finally across, but too far north, Malcolm X Boulevard presents a new problem: no Uturn, which means driving around additional blocks on one-way streets and waiting for more traffic lights. Good thing the restyled Suburban has a 42-gallon fuel tank (no, this is not a typo; it also isn't cheap to fill).

We get to the church on time, more or less, but there's no place to park. No place that doesn't say some vile thing like, "No parking between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.," or "No parking this side Tues., Thurs., Sat."

We're talking high noon on Thursday. We're talking double parking, with one patient driver at the wheel as the noontime sun begins to burn. The street vendors, ersatz flea markets, crowds of residents and road repair crews give him something to watch.

The sometime-carillonneur is escorted by church warden Arlington Warner up wide wooden stairs and narrow metal.stairs, through a heavy trap door and straight up a 10rung ladder to the cramped playing chamber.

Warner says he'll just stay there instead of having to make a second round-trip. A note from church carillonneur Dio Lind advises the wire to the "A" bell above middle "C" has just broken. The concert begins, runs about 40 minutes, and concludes with a couple of duets combining the talents of an auto writer and Mr. Warner, who plays the organ, reads music very well and seems taken with the majesty of the lower bells of this "new" instrument. A convert.

The musicians descend, the guest from Detroit is graciously introduced to the rest of the church staff, and promises to keep in touch are extracted. Outside, the driver is explaining to a woman police officer why he has been sitting in the middle of the boulevard in a luxurious red-and-white Suburban with four-wheel ABS brakes and room for at least nine passengers for the last 50 minutes. She says she likes the carillon music.

A gentleman rinsing out some beer bottles at a flowing hydrant calls the truck "beautiful." Another chap approaches on the drive back to 85th Street and offers to wash the windshield. It has, in the past 24 hours, assembled a complete entomological collection from the states of Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

While he scrubs diligently (and really cleans the glass), we spot the first filling station

we've ever seen in Manhattan: an Amoco outlet where regular no-lead is running $1.43 a gallon this Memorial Day weekend.

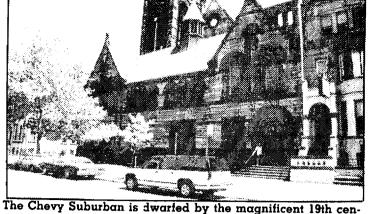

The rest of the glass on the Suburban has remained clear. Chevy says the new model has 30 percent more glass area all around. Flush-mounted and deep-tinted, it adds a sleek sophistication to this adaptation of GM's C/K full-size pick-up truck.

Earlier Suburbans looked illat-ease in the 'burbs. They seemed to be more comfortable carrying a crew wearing hard hats and looking for broken water mains or downed telephone wires than they did with folks in stone-washed jeans taking their bold-striped weekday shirts to be done.

Except for the horrendous omission of decent front and mid-seat cupholders, and a brake pedal that's just a little bit too high, the Suburban is an outstanding vehicle.

This cross between station wagon and truck is available with four-wheel drive, with a standard 5.7-liter 210-hp V-8 or optional 7.4-liter 230-hp V-8 (in the 3/4-ton 2500 series) and in Scottsdale and Silverado trims.

Rear-passenger controls for heating and cooling are available. The '92 has a lower step-in height, plus more leg room and hip room all around than the preceding model. Load floor length is 18.6 inches longer than the '91 and maximum cargo space is 175.9 cubic feet. Second and third seats are wide enough for most adults to com-charge.

Our Detroit-to-Manhattan journey was accomplished on a single tank of gas. We figured we were getting close to 19 mpg fuel economy. Chevy says its EPA rating is 13/17 for the two-wheel drive and 12/16 for the four-wheel drive 1/2-ton 1500 series.

Whatever we might have saved on fuel, we waste on parking. Following the carillon recital, we are due at the Mannes College of Music for a 2:30 p.m. commencement. We actually find a proper parking place at a nearby meter, empty our pockets of quarters (six buy us an hour), walk through the doors of the college at 2:27 p.m. and take our seats in the back row of a small concert hall, as a brass quintet plays Verdi. Most families are carrying cameras. The carillonneur is bearing a banana, but somehow this isn't the right setting for a missed lunch.

Two hours and a second meter feeding later, we return to find not a flier but an honest-to-goodness parking ticket on the windshield. It is a $45 reminder from the New York Police Department that we had come to rest in one of those areas signed, "No parking between 4 p.m. and 7 p.m."

The official number on the

One hopes the NYPD doesn't begin with No. 1 each January.
"We're lucky we weren't towed," observes our graduate, who last fall spent an entire afternoon and several dollars helping a friend visiting from Ohio retrieve his vehicle from a police pound.

We plunge from charming post-graduation wine and cheese reception into rush-hour traffic, intent on one more act of tourism. We are headed for the lower tip of Manhattan and the famed Staten Island Ferry. This is a time to rejoice over the large fuel tank, for we're averaging about 5 mpg and not even 5 mph. The afternoon sun is hot. The traffic is pure bigcity. The H. Hudson Pkwy is undergoing surgery. We're due back on 63rd Street around 7 p.m. for a special dinner.

At 7 p.m. we are stuffing our 50 cents into the stiles and running to re-board the Andrew J. Barber for a peaceful ride back to the Big Apple. We hope our graduate won't mind our being late for dinner — he certainly was over the years.

While we've brought a little basket with wine and pasta and mocha-flavored coffee as a dinner gift, we haven't really decided what to do for our Master of Music in the way of a serious graduation gift. How about a tape of one of our favorites from the '50s: "Get a

Joys of growing older far outweigh the downside

The young glory in their youth. Confident, vigorous, filled with enthusiasm, they look forward to each day as an opportunity to make all of their hopes and dreams come true.

The middle-aged, mellowed by experience, have a more realistic view. They know that along the way to personal achievement, choices must be made, alternatives accepted and goals reassessed.

Some arrive at this point content with their accomplishments. Others lament and look back with regret on the road not taken and what might have been. As Alice Longworth once said: "There's one advantage to middle age - you outgrow it."

Older people who have passed through that stage know this is true. Middle age, like adolescence, is a trying time, a sort of limbo where one is neither young nor old, when children leave home but still expect dad and mom to stand by.

And then come the golden years, a time when the burden of making it in the world of work is over. The responsibility of taking care of a family is fin-

It is a time when, regardless of your financial status, you are finally free to do what you want to do when you want to do it. Each day is a gift, not a demand designed to wear you out accomplishing what is expected of you.

Like all gifts, the gift of time must be used to fully enjoy it. It is important to keep active doing things you enjoy. Don't use the excuse of being too old for activity. You can be old in years without being old in spirit. Keep those fires of youth burning by fueling them with new and old interests.

Some older people work hard at creating an illsion of youth. Unfortunately they go about it in the wrong way. They demean the image of being older by deceiving people about their age when they might better capitalize on how important years are when leavened with spirit and joie de vivre.

Some older people shave a few years off their birth dates because they are infused with the idea that young is good and old is bad. If you are investing an enormous amount of emotional interest in the trappings of youth, then you are putting your self-esteem as a person of worth on the line. The result is often unconscious self-hate and self-rejection. Self-acceptance is the key to aging if we are to accepting oneself at any age. One psychoanalyst put it this way: "I find it very sad when a man or woman refuses to admit his or her age. It is proof that they have been caught in a need to satisfy superficial vanity. To cling compulsively to youth is a vicious cycle. The more time and energy people spend trying to stay young, the older they become. A person dedicated to looking young to the exclusion of real interest in life is old indeed."

Another author says: "My observation is that men in great power love work, and as long as they are fulfilled, their mind drags their bodies along. Hard work stimulates them.

Oddly enough, as people get older, according to experts, their appreciation of humor broadens. They are able to laugh at more things that would have troubled them in earlier years.

One of the great joys of growing older is being able to look back at sensitive areas that were painful and see the fun as well as the hurt. When you grow older you come to grips with life and you realize there's precious little that you haven't experienced and that there is much less in life that's going to hurt vou.

youthful spirit. There are those who take pride in their stamina, their ability to outlast those who are years younger, whether working or playing. It's a good show, but in the long run, those who temper their activities will win.

It is difficult for some people to slow down. They were programmed all of their lives to equal or surpass. Now they are told to adjust their lives to a slower pace. But when you stop to consider, competition is a two-edged sword. It is fun to win but there is always a need for a repeat performance. There are advantages to age and the opportunity to get off the superhighways of life and wander the slower, more scenic roads of pressure-free living.

One final thought, one that is endorsed by general psychological principles: It is not advisable to spend too much time examining ourselves; it is more in our best interests to remain essentially involved with others and lose ourselves in the activities we share with them.

Trombly School students recently presented a check for $220 to provide scholarship support for special education students attending Grosse Pointe SCAMP, a six-week camp program. Valerie Griffin, Christine Kaiser and Dianne McPharlin, teachers at Trombly, and their classroom assistants, Nancy Cosaboom, Sarah Verlinden and Nancy Kingsbury sponsored a bake sale for

SCAMP: Who, what, why and how

SCAMP is a six-week program offered by Grosse Pointe public schools for special education students.

It includes speech and language therapy, practice in social and recreational skills, prevocational and vocational activities, computer and academic enrichment.

It's open to all students in special ed, from 6 up. Students will be grouped by age and ability and taught by certified special education teachers, with the assistance of trained aides and student and community volunteers.

The program is important because many students and their families are in need of appropriate summer activities adapted to their special physical, social and educational

In addition, the academic and vocational support provided reinforces the education they receive during the school year.

Special ed parents are conducting a fundraising drive. A contribution of $390 will provide a full scholarship to a student who might not otherwise be able to attend the camp. Partial scholarships, donations toward the cost of transportation for field trips or supplies are needed.

Scholarships available

Graduating high school seniors and current Macomb Community College students are eligible for merit scholarships offered by the Detroit Section of the American Society of Quality Control.

The society will award a total of $1,500 in scholarship money for the 1992/93 school year. To qualify, students must enroll or be enrolled in the Me-trology and Calibration Technology program at Macomb Community College. The program prepares students for careers in the quality control of manufactured products.

To apply for an ASQC scholarship, a student must send a letter of application and the most recent high school or college transcript to Macomb Community College, 14500 Twelve Mile Road, Warren, Mich. 48093, Attention Ben Selleck, T-126. The deadline for applications is July 1.

For more information, contact Selleck, of Macomb's mechanical technology facility, at 445-7455.

South accredited

Grosse Pointe South High School has been granted accreditation by the North Central Association for the 1991-92 school year.

The school has been a member of the North Central Association since 1927 and has been accredited continuously since that time. Accreditation gives assurance that the school meets those preconditions for effective education established by the association.

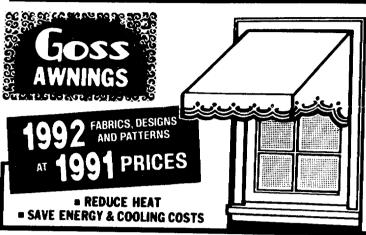

The North Central Association is the largest of the country's regional accrediting agencies. It is a voluntary membership league of more than 7,000 schools and 900 colleges and universities within a 19-state region.

The association works with schools to improve their educational goals through evaluation, accreditation, and school improvement plans.

Kenneth Cook

A memorial service will be held Sunday, June 7 at 1 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church in Grosse Pointe City for former Grosse Pointe North and South high school teacher Kenneth Cook, 75, of Grosse Pointe City, who died of a heart attack on May 27, 1992.

Born in Rockville, Ind., Mr. Cook graduated from DePauw University, where he was a rector scholar.

He also received two master's degrees, in education and chemistry, from the University of Iowa, where he was a member of Phi Delta Kappa.

After being discharged as a captain from the Army Medical Corps after World War II, he learned that some of his research contributed to the Manhattan Project and the work on the atomic bomb at the University of Chicago.

Mr. Cook taught high school for seven years in Waverly, Iowa, before moving to Grosse Pointe and teaching in the Grosse Pointe schools from 1953 until his retirement in

He taught chemistry, first at South and later at North when it opened, introducing the first advanced placement course at the school.

Mr. Cook also served on several national committees in chemical education and testing for the American Chemical Society and the Educational Testing Service.

During his teaching career, Mr. Cook received six grants from the National Science Foundation for advanced study at summer institutes in chemistry at several universities.

Upon his retirement, the science department at Grosse Pointe North established the Kenneth Cook Award, which is given annually to a senior who best completes two years of chemistry and contributes most to the class.

An accomplished organist and pianist, Mr. Cook was the organist at the Grosse Pointe Methodist Church and Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church from 1965 to 1976, and was a substitute organist at several other churches.

He is survived by his wife. Doris; a daughter, Michele Elizondo; two grandchildren; a brother, Cecil Cook, of Rockville; and a nephew.

He was predeceased by his son, Randall.

His body was cremated and his ashes will be placed in the Memorial Garden at the Unitarian Church.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Memorial and Friendship Fund at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, 17150 Maumee, Grosse Pointe,

Anna E. Clough

Services were held Friday, May 29, at St. Ambrose Church in Grosse Pointe Park for Anna E. Clough, 87, of Grosse Pointe Park, who died May 25, 1992, at Bon Secours Hospital.

Born in Sunbury, Pa., Mrs. Clough was a homemaker who raised seven children.

She is survived by four daughters, Dorothy, Rose, Patricia White and Joanie Clough; two sons, Donald Clough and Robert White; 12 grandchildren; and 26 greatgrandchildren.

She was predeceased by her husband, Edwin; a daughter, Katherine George; and her brother, James Reitmyer.

Burial was in Resurrection Cemetery in Clinton Township.

Arrangements were made by Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

Amond H. Touscany Jr.

Services were held Thursday, May 21, at St. Mary's Church in Greektown, Detroit, for Amond H. Touscany Jr., 76, who died suddenly on May 18,

Mr. Touscany was the son of the late Amond Touscany, the co-founder of the Good Housekeeping Shops, one of the largest retail appliance chains in the Midwest. He served as president of the organization until his retirement last year.

Mr. Touscany graduated from the University of Notre Dame and, after serving in World War II, he returned to the Detroit area, settling in Grosse Pointe and beginning his lifelong career with Good Housekeeping Shops.

In addition to his business interests, Mr. Touscany was an avid golfer, pool player and master gardener. He was also a member of the Country Club of Detroit, the Lochmoor Club and was an active participant in the Rotary Club.

He is survived by his daughter, Sandra Louise; his stepmother, Mary Touscany; two sisters, Donna Wilberding and Patricia Holway; and two brothers, William J. and James Interment was in Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit.

Col. Ardale V. Golding

Memorial services were held May 30 on Nantucket Island for Col. Ardale V. Golding, 89, of Sconset, Mass., a former Grosse Pointe resident, who died at his home on May 26, 1992.

Born in Edgbaston, England. Col. Golding served a full career in the British Army and had a second career with Western European Union in Paris before moving to Grosse Pointe in the 1960s.

He later moved to Nantucket Island.

He is survived by his wife, the former Anna Fletcher Snow; two sons, Francis of England and Ian of Nantucket; two daughters, Gillian Loch of Montreal and Alison Inglis of Nantucket; three stepchildren, Muir Snow of Wyandotte Neil Snow of Grosse Pointe and Charles Snow of Cyprus; and 21 grandchildren.

Kids get bicycle tags 'n' tips from Woods officers

By Donna Walker Staff Writer

Public safety officers from Grosse Pointe Woods and Grosse Pointe Farms conducted a line-up of sorts at Monteith Elementary School last Wednesday.

The officers, John Albrecht of the Woods and Kathleen Liedel of the Farms, offered bicycle licenses and inspections outside the school, and the students lined up to get them.

The Woods licenses were 25 cents each, and the Farms licenses were $1 apiece.

Albrecht said the license stickers can help officers recover bicycles that are stolen from the Farms or Woods and later found by police in other cities throughout the United

The bike's serial number and the name, phone number and address of its owner were recorded by Albrecht and Liedel along with the bike's license child's bike is stolen, the parents don't have any record of the bike's serial number, because they threw out the papers that came with the bike and never bothered to write it down," Albrecht said. "This way, they don't have to know what their serial number is, because we have it.'

Before issuing the licenses, Albrecht gave a 15-minute talk

Among other things, he told them to obey traffic signs and signals, and to be careful around cars, because drivers don't always see bicyclists.

During the bicycle inspections, the officers checked to see if the students could sit on their bicycle seats while keeping one foot flat on the ground.

They also made note of the physical conditions of some bicycles. For example, if a bike had a rusty chain, they wrote that down with the rest of the license information.

"We didn't deny anyone a license because they had a rusty chain," Albrecht said. "We just wrote down that kind of information to help us identify the bikes. Thieves like to steal old bikes with rusty chains as well as new ones."

ttend the "thickest" legs first. and, to increase sturdiness, place one of the legs pointed forward under the lens. Two kinds of tripod heads are available. The most common has separate handles for panning and tilting. A second type contains a single handle that unlocks a ball joint to permit turns and tilts in any direction. Which is best for you is a matter of personal preference.

When should you use a tripod? While a tripod will always produce a sharper picture, here's a good rule to follow: Jse your tripod when the shutter speed (as a whole number) is slower than the focal length of the lens on the camera.

For example, the nearest shutter speed to your 50mm lens is 1/60 second. This means you can hand-hold your camera at speeds of 1/60 or faster.

But if lighting conditions demand a speed of 1/30 or slower, better get out your tripod. When using your 200mm lens, it's okay to shoot at 1/250 second, but with slower speeds, bring out that tripod.

Night is a great time for tripods. Beautiful photographs are obtained after dark not only of street scenes but also of floodlit ouildings and monuments.

Another use of tripods is in hooting photographs that inentionally show motion. It's ommon to "freeze" flowing ater in a waterfall with a fast nutter speed, but what if that me waterfall were shot with time exposure on a tripod?

Officials meet again

While civic leaders assembled to discuss cooperation among their communities, they failed to show the same courtesy to the local media.

During the second meeting held by city officials from the Grosse Pointes to discuss working together on community programs, projects and problems, a media representative was told by Grosse Pointe Farms councilman John Danaher the officials could not be quoted.

Nine civic leaders, including at least one representative from each of the Grosse Pointes, attended the "Futuring Approaches" meeting headed by Edward D. Barlow Jr., a noted futurist, to brainstorm issues that have a common interest to each of the cities.

No representatives from Harper Woods attended the meet-

Through collective plans and strategies civic leaders hope that the six cities can work more effectively and efficiently on community issues.

At this point, plans for working as a multilateral unit are still very sketchy. First, the various councils must investigate what issues their communities would like to work on in cooperation with others.

The type of structure to use to gain feedback on these issues from the grassroots level and transmit it to community leaders is in the early stages of development way in how long it will be before some collective strategy can be implemented, how often meetings will be held to discuss plans, and who will attend those meetings.

taste like butter pecan, maple walnut and pecan flavorings without raising the fat content.

They weren't able to find a water-soluble peanut flavoring, but they found an oil-based variety. The soybean meal has a higher fat content when the oilbased flavoring is used, but the resulting product has less fat than a real peanut, Stuart said.

"We've made lots of recipes using the defatted soybean meal, including banana nut bread and cookies," and they got favorable results from test panels that were made up of volunteers, including faculty members and students, Stuart

She said she calls the defatted soybean pieces "imitation nutmeats from soy meal."

The university tried to patent Stuart's discovery, but the U.S. Patent Office recently rejected its claim.

"They said it was too much like someone else's patent for marzipan paste, but this has nothing to do with marzipan paste or almonds," Stuart said. "So we just won't publish our findings. We'll keep them a trade secret.

The University of Kentucky holds the rights to the imitation nutmeats from soy meal. and the next step the university will probably take is to look for a company to produce the imitation nutmeats, so that they can be marketed for commercial use, she said.

"We know we can produce

Sister Mary Alan Stuart sieves defatted soybean meal pieces in a test kitchen at the University of Kentucky.

a test kitchen, but we don't know how well they'll work in a factory," she said.

The imitation nutmeats have three benefits, she said. They can make sweets less sinful (by decreasing the fat from nuts and by packing more protein in them easily on a small scale, in the food); they can help people who are allergic to nuts enjoy things like banana nut bread; and they can drive down the cost of baked goods and candy.

Crushed pecans are about $4 to $5 on the commercial market, but her fully processed soybean product would cost less than $1 a pound, Stuart said. She and her six siblings grew up in Grosse Pointe Park, and their mother, Cecilia Stuart, still lives in the city

"People there will know me as Rita Stuart, which is my baptismal name, but my religious name is Sister Mary Alan Stuart," she said.

At the university, she goes by both Sister Mary A. Stuart and Dr. Mary A. Stuart.

"A lot of people got confused over the male name (Alan) so I decided to leave it off," she said. "In the old days, it was common for nuns to take a male name. It didn't matter if it was a male or female name. you just had to take the name of a saint.'

Why did she choose Alan? Because that's the name of my oldest brother, and I figured if my family liked it enough to give him that name, they wouldn't mind if I used it, too," she said.

Stuart graduated from St. Ambrose Catholic High School in 1951. Later that year, she moved to Adrian, where she ioined the Adrian Dominican Order and attended Sienna Heights College.

In 1952, she took her religious vows. She said she chose the Adrian Dominican Order because it emphasizes education. Most of the sisters in that order hold master's degrees and are teachers, she said.

Stuart earned her bachelor's and master's degrees in science from Sienna Heights, and received her doctorate in nutrition from Purdue University in traced the way the body absorbs radioactive zinc, and grew soybeans hydroponically (in water) as part of her experiment.

In November, Stuart will be 59, and she has been a teacher for 41 years, she said.

She has taught students of all ages, from kindergarten up, and has worked in Chicago, Florida, Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

"In the old days, sisters were like the army. They moved you around a lot," she said.

Before Vatican II, nuns didn't have much say over where they were sent. That was determined by their major superiors, Stuart said.

"Because we have taken a vow of obedience, we still have to go where they send us, but now, our major superiors consult us to try to send us someplace that fits our interests," she said.

Since 1986, Stuart has been interested in helping poor families in Appalachia, she said.

This month, she said she is resigning from the University of Kentucky and will begin working in the Appalachian outreach program that is sponsored by St. Joseph's Hospital in Lexington, which is owned by the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth, Ky., she said.

She said she is doing so with the permission of her major superiors and the financial backing of the hospital and the Adrian Dominican Sisters.

About 15 counties in the Appalachian Mountains have been targeted by the hospital's program, and Stuart will probably provide dietary counseling to people in three or four of those counties, she said. So far, the program has provided pastoral care and social services to its target population, but it has not provided nutrional counseling, she said. She anticipates moving to one of the targeted counties next year. Until then, she said she will probably commute from Lexington a few times a

In her spare time, Stuart said she likes to play golf, take care of her home and garden, visit with her neighbors, and use her amateur (ham) radio.

She said she became a licensed ham while working as a high school physics teacher in Puerto Rico. Being the physics teacher, she was placed in charge of the school's amateur radio group.

"The students got on me to earn my license, so I did," she

For interested hams, her call letters are KP4FMH. However, you may not be able to reach her for a while.

"I haven't been able to use my radio in a long time, because I'm in a rental (house) and I'm not allowed to put up my antenna," she said.

But maybe in Appalachia. Stuart said she doesn't plan on retiring.

"I'm an educator, and I like what I'm doing because I believe I make a difference in the lives of my students," she said. "They know I'm not in this for the money, because my salary goes back to the (order's) common fund. I'm firm, but my students know I love them, and I like sharing my time and knowledge with them.

Henry Ford's former chef puts a great deal of stock in soybeans

By Donna Walker Staff Writer

Talk to Jan Willemse, and you'll come away wondering if the fountain of youth is bottled up in the tiny soybean.

Willemse, who will be 92 in July, is executive chef of the Miesel-Sysco Corp. in Ypsilanti (one of the largest food service companies in the world, with offices in every state in the country), and served as the executive chef at the Dearborn Inn and as personal chef to Henry Ford and his family for 27 years.

Willemse has been growing, cooking and eating soybeans since 1933. "I put together the menu for the 1934 World's Fair, and everything on it was made from soybeans, from soup to coffee," he said.

In 1931, Edsel and Eleanor Ford stayed at the Nautilus Hotel in Miami Beach, where Willemse was a chef.

Edsel Ford was so impressed with Willemse that he wrote his father and recommended that he hire the chef, unbeknown to Willemse.

"I got a very nice letter from Mr. Henry Ford a short time later. They were building the Dearborn Inn at the time, and he said there was a nice job waiting for me there if I wanted it," Willemse recalled.

"But I didn't go then. I didn't know where Dearborn was, and when I asked my boss at the hotel, he said it was way out west.

Henry Ford wrote him again, asking him to reconsider, and Willemse accepted his offer in 1933. The chef moved to Dearborn and has lived there ever since. "I'm glad I changed my Willemse said. mind," children went to Henry Ford's private school, so I didn't have to worry about their education. I'm thankful for that.'

Visitors to the Henry Ford estate in Dearborn learn that Ford grew soybeans and experimented with them for many years at a former waterworks building near Greenfield Village that is now a Mexican res-

"Mr. Ford was once quoted as saying that next to the Model T, he considered his experiments with soybeans to be his greatest work," said Donn Werling, director of the estate, which is part of the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus.

Willemse helped Ford with those experiments, Werling

"Mr. Ford was interested in soybeans before he met me, but he didn't have anyone to prepare soybean dishes until he hired me," said Willemse, who worked with soybeans before he met Ford.

Willemse would think up a recipe using soybeans, and then Ford's brother-in-law, who was a chemist, would weigh and analyze the ingredients and the finished product, he said.

In addition to helping tend Ford's soybean plants, Willemse grew his own, and proudly says that he can grow more than 1,000 soybeans from a single soybean seed.

Most farmers are lucky to get half that much from one bean, he said.

He stopped working for the Ford family 32 years ago, and

"Here, in a relatively compact area, we're serving 4.5 million people, 60 hospitals, 20,000 beds and two medical schools," he said. "This demands a sophisticated blood services operation."

An avid collector, Shafer's framed Red Cross posters spanning a half-century of graphics line the walls of the administrative offices, meeting rooms and hallways at 100 Mack Ave. He proudly shows them to a visitor and generously shares them with his staff.

The posters feature idealized women in draped pure-white dresses and headpieces bearing the familiar Red Cross. They look down with large, pleading eyes as handsome, dark-haired, square-jawed young soldiers entreat onlookers to donate blood for the war effort.

Shafer keeps a few favorite posters in his office.

Before coming to the Red Cross, Southeastern Michigan Chapter, in the fall of 1975, Shafer was a professor, researcher, hematologist and administrator, serving in places like the Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation in La Jolla, Calif., the University of Oklahoma and the University of Kentucky.

"Grosse Pointe is the nicest place we've ever lived," he said. But his affection for Kansas and the plains states shines through. He and June, his wife of 41 years, have two daughters and six grandchildren, ages 3 through 10.

The younger generations gravitated back to the Kansas area, he said. He and June both are University of Kansas graduates and he graduated from that university's medical school as well.

Reflecting on the way his work with the Red Cross has changed in 18 years, Shafer says while communicable elements have always been a danger in blood banking, the HIV problem didn't arise until the

Park police help catch suspect

On May 18, Grosse Pointe Park police heard Detroit police broadcast information about a bank robbery that had happened at Eight Mile Road and Kelly that day.

In that incident, a white woman went up to a teller, demanded money, and told the teller to hurry up because she had two men waiting for her in the car, Park police said.

That rang a bell with Park police. In January 1991, they arrested a woman for passing forged checks in the Park, and she had a man waiting for her in her car when she tried cashing the checks, said Lt. Dave Hiller.

Park police learned the woman was on parole, and gave that information to Detroit police. The woman was identified in a photo lineup by a witness to the bank robbery, and she was arrested in Fraser on May 20.

Environmental products clean Earth as well as laundry

Staff Writer

At a time when most recent college grads try to establish job security within their chosen field, David Lester, 24, decided it was time for a career change.

He had been working as a stockbroker/investment adviser for American Express since completing college but it was always his dream to go into business for himself.

Lester had two goals for his new endeavor: he wanted to produce a product which would make people environmentally conscious; and he wanted to make a profit.

Lester decided on cleaning products, a $6.5 billion industry, as his field of dreams.

Along with friend and coowner Ed Straetmans, 25, Lester founded Earthnet, which produces and markets laundry detergents, dishwashing liquids and window cleaners that are non-polluting and environmentally safe.

Lester believes that the 1990s is the decade of the entrepreneur and he wanted to start a business with unlimited growth potential.

"I did a lot of research on environmental trends and I believe that consumers are becoming more and more environmentally aware and are starting to think more about future generations," Lester

"I wanted to be in the forefront of that industry.'

As a finance student at Michigan State University, Lester was not only concerned about the Earth's ecosystem — the Grosse Pointe Woods native had seen his own nearby lake, Lake St. Clair, suffer from pollution as well.

'We grew up around the lake and we saw the pollution. We decided that if we went into business, we wanted to do something we could be proud of," Straetmans said.

Lester spent nine months researching the feasability of environmentally safe cleaning agents. He talked to chemists at Wayne State University, Michigan State and the University of Michigan, recording what chemicals were high quality cleaners and whether they were good or bad for the environment. He also met with chemical manufacturing com-

He found that almost all the products we use to wash out ring-around-the-collar, shout out stains and shine our windows leave rings of toxic residue around the Earth.

"Even window cleaner, which has blue dye and ammonia in it, is extremely toxic. Ammonia is one of the most toxic substances and most harmful to the Earth, yet it's in many of today's cleaning products," Lester said.

According to the firm's literature, Earthnet products are super-concentrated; have no artificial dyes or fragrances or other ingredients which contribute to allergic reactions or irritations; have no ingredients derived from or that are tested on animals; and are made from organically derived raw materials, mainly oranges.

"They all have a citric-acid type base, which is a strong chemical that attacks and emulsifies dirt but it's totally biodegradable," Straetman

One of the ingredients is called Eco 2000, which, according to their literature, cleans the environment after it goes down the drain by breaking down oils, greases, fats and protein residues, making them biodegradable.

"Cleaning without compro-Estate planning seminars scheduled mise. We know that performance is the most important thing to the consumer, but the quality of the product is where we start," Lester said.

"It took months to find someone to actually believe in me and believe that this product would actually have a future."

Lester finally convinced a major supplier, the largest manufacturer of cleaning products in the Midwest which also supplies cleaning supplies to the Big Three automakers, to produce the detergents.

The pair are careful to keep their product's formula secret; they own the patent to it.

Lester said he used every last dime he made as a stockbroker, "and every last dime Ed has and more," to get the business off the ground in the last quarter of 1991

The Earthnet staff, which also includes Lester's younger brother, Thomas, 21, depends on referral marketing to sell their products. They currently have 127 distributors in eight states, including many family members and friends. By June, they hope to have 200 distribu-

"We can't compete against marketing like Procter & Gamble or Colgate. We're more like MCI Friends and Family, Straetmans said. "The more referrals our distributors give us, the more rebates, product vouchers or checks, if that's what they want, we give them. We encourage our distributors to have at least eight to 10 customers so it actually can become a part-time career for them.'

In addition to offering rebates, vouchers or checks to their distributors, Earthnet offers a 30-day money-back guarantee and will buy back 90 percent of a distributor's supplies.

Lester and Straetmans are not only concerned that toxic chemicals are hurting the environment, but deplore the colossal waste in cleaning product containers.

"We looked at a lot of cleaning products and saw that they have a different container for everything. And almost everything you buy is 97 percent water. That takes up a lot of supply space," Straetmans said.

clean a load of wash, you just need one ounce."

He said that one gallon of Earthnet's detergent is the equivalent of four gallons of liq-

David Lester, left, president of Earthnet, and Ed Straetmans stand in front of their current line of environmentally safe household cleaning products.

'Our goal is to educate people. All that packaging is aesthetic and filler. You don't need four ounces of detergent to

"We put our laundry detergent, fabric softener and whitener all in one highly concentrated container so we don't waste anything," Straetmans said, adding that it also made Earthnet's products cheaper. "It costs about 24 cents to do a washload with Earthnet. The leading brand costs around 35.

cents a load." Since Earthnet is a wholesaler, relying on catalogue orders, it has no overhead and its heavily concentrated products cut down on the cost of contain-

Some health food stores also sell environmentally safe clean. ing products but, according to Lester and Straetmans, the products don't get the job done.

"We saw some that tried but failed because they sacrificed quality. We're head and antlers above them because our ingredients are much more potent than theirs are," Lester said.

And, he added, cleaning products are only the beginning.

"We'd like to get into personal care and hygiene, including toothpastes and shampoos. We would like to offer an entire catalogue of products that are environmental alternatives. We'd really be on the cutting edge of environmental products," Lester said.

'We're also going to produce a book or pamphlet on environmental tips for the household." Lester thinks many people's perceptions of environmental products are inaccurate. 'I read an article saying that people still think environmental products were just for people like Jane Fonda and her jet-set friends," he said. In fact, before Lester marketed Earthnet's products, they had to pass the most important test of all: his mother. "My mother was wondering how my cleaners worked, so she tried them, and then when she found out how environmentally safe they were, she was like, 'that's great,'" he said.

To order Earthnet laundry liquid, dish liquid, dish machine powder, glass cleaner and all-purpose cleaner, contact Earthnet at: 1-800-779-0169.

londa Dick, 30, of Detroit .d spend up to life in prison her role in a Nov. 16 inciit at the Mack/Moross shopg center in Grosse Pointe

Dick was accused of driving e getaway car after a man inapped a 50-year-old Detroit man from a store in the opping center. With the vicn in the front passenger seat d the man in the rear pasnger seat holding a gun to the victim's head, Dick stole money from her purse.

Then, she and the other suspect told the victim that they needed more money, and that if they didn't get it, they would kill her and blow up her house.

They drove the victim to her house, where she gave them two $50 bills and an uncashed payroll check. They drove the victim to a bank on Mack in Detroit, where she cashed the check. Later, they pushed the victim out of the car on Hillcrest in Detroit.

On Dec. 10, Dick and a man were arrested by Grosse Pointe Farms police for attempted larceny by trick, after they allegedly tried to steal money from an elderly woman in a "pigeon drop" scam.

Farms police then used photos of Dick and of women who resemble her in a photo lineup that they showed to the armed robbery victim. She said Dick was the woman who robbed

Dick was charged with armed robbery and kidnapping.

Both are felony offenses, punishable by up to life in prison. Armed robbery has a minimum two-year prison sentence.

The victim said that the man who was arrested in the pigeon drop scam was not the man who robbed her. However, Farms police have a male suspect in the case that they are attempting to locate, said Farms Detective Michael Mc-

At the end of a bench trial last Friday, May 28, Recorder's Judge Isidore Torres found Dick guilty of armed robbery, and acquitted her on the kidnapping charge.

'I guess the judge thought the whole thing was just one crime. We thought it was a kidnapping, because the woman was forced to leave the store at gunpoint, ordered into a car, and driven around," McCarthy

Torres revoked Dick's bond, because she had stated that she planned to move to Alabama, and remanded her back to the Wayne County Jail.

Dick's sentencing hearing has been scheduled for June 22 in Torres' courtroom. "I have to give a lot of credit to the complainant in this case," Mc-Carthy said. "As tough as it is for a victim to go through a trial, she followed through. A lot of times, victims don't.

"That's what happened in the case of Leslie Allen Williams (the man who has confessed to murdering four young girls and burying them in Oakland and Genesee counties). Women he had assaulted earlier are coming forward now, but they refused to prosecute before. If they had prosecuted him, he might not have had the chance to murder those girls. He would have been locked up.'

Dick and the man who was arrested by Farms police in December for allegedly operating a pigeon drop scam are awaiting trial on the attempted larceny by trick charges, Mc-Carthy said.

t On The Pointe: Benefit for Northeast Guidance Center promises 'everything your art desires'

By Margie Reins Smith Feature Editor

The ninth annual Art On The Pointe will take place on the grounds of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford estate, 1100 Lakeshore, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, June 13 and 14.

The two-day juried festival featuring art, artists, music, entertainment, food and tours, is a benefit sponsored by the Assistance

League to the Northeast Guidance Center.

More than 150 artists from metropolitan Detroit, throughout Michigan and beyond will display and sell their work. The two-day event will also feature musicians, clowns, food, a tour of the Ford house, a chance to stroll the grounds of the Ford estate, and - new this year - a chance for children to get crea-

Proceeds will benefit the Northeast Guidance Center's community health programs.

Artists were selected after submitting samples of their work to a jury. Art on display will include paintings (oil, watercolor and mixed media), pottery, photography, handcrafted jewelry, sculpture, etchings, fiber arts, basketry and more.

For a fee, kids can paint, make pasta pictures, create caps, paper butterflies and more in children's art tents. Olive Garden restaurants will provide prizes for the most outstanding children's creations. Kathe DiVirgil is chairman of the children's events. She will be assisted by Paula Gerow, Geraldine Lacombe, Carla Palffy and Jane

Kids over age 8 will be able to work on art projects while their parents browse in the art stalls. Children 8 and under will be able to work on art and craft projects with their parents.

Other sponsors of the children's activities include Wolverine Oil & Supply, Village Toy Co., Damman Hardware, the Rainy Day Co., Mr. C's Deli, Perry Drugs, Hammertime Hardware and The Executive Committee (TEC).

Food stalls will be set up on the grounds of the Ford estate, near Ford's cove, and will include subs and salads from Hungry Howies; buffalo steak hoagies and alligator and chicken fajitas by John Kolakowski; Murdock's fudge; and the usual picnic fare: hot dogs, fries, soft drinks, ice cream, lemonade, beer and wine.

Guests may bring their own food and create their own personal picnics on the grass beside Lake St. Clair.

Guided tours of the 1927 Albert Kahn-designed Cotswold-style Ford house will be available for a fee.

On Saturday evening, after the show closes, an invitational dinner and auction party will be held in the Ford House Activities Center, with proceeds going to the guidance center. The auction will include works by Art On The Pointe artists as well as items donated by local merchants. The evening also will include hors d'oeuvres, cocktails, dinner and dancing. Invitations are $40 and are limited. Call chairman JoVona Cisco for tickets at 824-8000.

Admission to the art festival is $2. Children under 12 are free. Parking will be available in the field across Lakeshore from the Ford estate. Shorewood Kiwanis Club members charge $1 a car and proceeds go to their charities as well as to the Northeast Guidance Center.

For more information, call 824-8000.

What is the Horthest Guidance Center?

Since 1963, the Northeast Guidance Center has served people with mental health needs who live in northeastern Wayne County (eastern Detroit, Harper Woods and the Grosse Pointes.)

Adult, adolescent and child outpatient services help people deal with problems such as depression, anxiety, stress, substance abuse. attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder, academic difficulties, sexual, physical and emotional abuse, and NEGC also offers community support programs and consultation, education and prevention programs.

Services are provided by a staff of psychiatrists, psychologists, so-cial workers and other specialists. Referrals are made by schools, hospitals, physicians, community agencies or clients themselves.

Fees are adjusted to the client's income and all major health insurance plans are accepted.

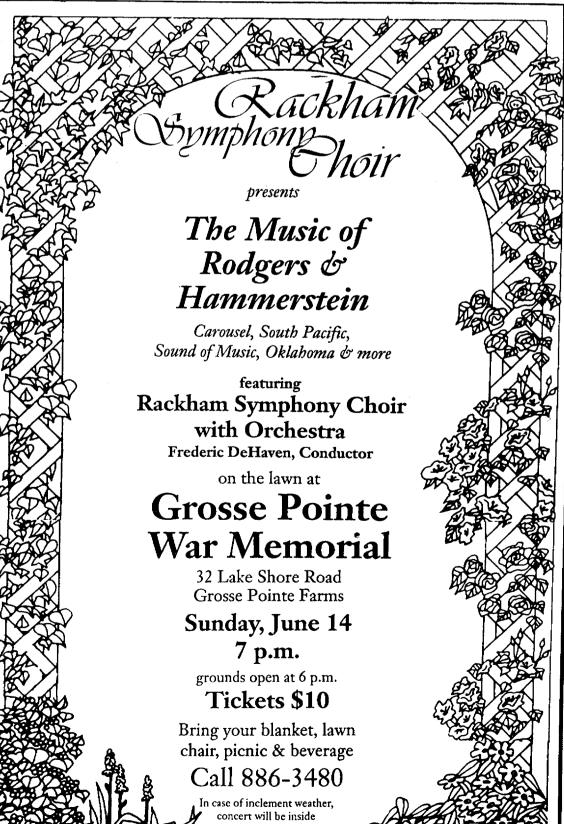

Anyone who would like to talk with a professional should call 824-5620.

Grand Prix driver helps raise funds for Children's Hospital

It's Racing for Kids Week at Children's Hospital of Michigan, with lots of activities to benefit the hospital's cardiology department. There was a weeklong raffle, with a 1992 Buickfor a month as the grand prize, as well as a color TV, a camcorder and more.

Race car driver Robbie Buhl of Grosse Pointe will visit kids in the hospital starting at 10 a.m. today, June 4. Buhl, the national Racing for Kids spokesperson, will display his car at the hospital from 8 to 11 a.m. and will compete in the Detroit Grand Prix Firestone Indy Lights series this week-

In the Racing for Kids fundraising program, drivers visit local children's institutions in the cities where they are racing. They pass out hats, pictures, and other items to patients; they contribute a percentage of their winnings; and they get involved with local children's fundraisers. Last year, the first full year of the program, it raised more than $100,000 in North America.

'Kids don't have a vote,' Buhl said. "Consequently, their health care needs are sometimes forgotten. I can't think of a better way to spend time away from the track than using my sport to focus publicity and hopefully money on improving the health care of our kids."

Golf benefit: Bon Secours Hospital will hold its ninth annual Golf Classic Monday, June 8 at the Country Club of De-

Golfers may choose from shotgun starts at 8 a.m. or 1 p.m. A barbecue lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Cocktails begin at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Proceeds from the fundraiser will be used to purchase a Coulter hematology analyzer for the hospital's laboratory. Tickets for the meals and the day of golf are $250. Tickets for dinner and cocktails only are $100. A raffle and prizes are included in the day's events.

General chairman is Jane Kay Nugent. For reservations, call Terri Berschback at 343-

DSO benefit: The Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Volunteer Council will hold its 11th annual Ball in the Hall Saturday, June 13 at Orchestra

The theme, "It's Miller Time," appropriately honors departing Unrysier vice president Steve Miller and his wife, Maggie.

The theme is also a salute to Mitch Miller, who donates his time and talent each year to the DSO's fundraising efforts.

Tickets are $200 and $300. Tables are for 10, with two DSO musicians at each table so guests will have a chance to get acquainted with members of the orchestra.

New this year is a chance for younger DSO supporters to join in the festivities. At 10 p.m., a $50 ticket buys late-comers dessert, an open bar and dancing.

Ball co-chairmen are Jean Shapero of Novi and Ida Krandle of Farmington Hills. Ann Garberding of Grosse Pointe is in charge of decorations and Joel Stone of Grosse Pointe is creating art nouveau backdrops.

For ticket information, call the DSO at 962-1000.

DSOH boost: Mark

Volpe, executive director of Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hail, announced that the organization has been awarded a two-year grant totaling $30,000 by the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan. The grant will be used to support the orchestra's 1992 summer concerts at the Riverfront Music Theatre in Chene Park, on the banks of the Detroit River.

The foundation is a permanent community endowment built by gifts from hundreds of citizens and organizations. It is governed by a 46-member board and has provided grants of more than $12 million for projects in education, arts, culture, health, civic development and human services.

Dr. Kim K. and Mado Lie will present "Romance on the Lake" at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 28 at their Grosse Pointe Park home. Mado Lie is the outgoing president of the DSOH Volunteer Council.

The afternoon will include hors d'oeuvres, wine, champagne and a recital by DSO concertmaster Emmanuelle Boisvert with pianist Pauline Martin. Tickets are $40. Suggested attire is romantic dresses for ladies; summer blazers and ties for gentlemen.

Reservations for Musical Feast events may be made by calling 851-6691 or 851-5833. For general information about the series of fundraisers, call Lidija Grahovac at 644-7234.

Benefit opening: Neiman Marcus, the Dallas-based department store, will celebrate the opening of its Troy store with a black-tie gala Thursday, Aug. 6. The event will be a benefit for the Cranbrook Educational Community, the Michigan Cancer Foundation and the Michigan Opera Theatre.

Honorary chairmen for the fundraiser will be Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frankel, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lamparter and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Penske.

Help the homeless: A coalition of local companies and agencies, spearheaded by the United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit, has launched a program to help support homeless shelters throughout Michigan.

Operation Reach Out will collect items (food, clothing and toiletries, for instance) throughout the year in bins provided by Coca Cola at 250 Mobil service stations in Detroit, Pontiac, Lansing and Grand Rap-

The items will be distributed by Mobil dealers to local shelters such as COTS, Cass United Methodist Church, Detroit Healthcare for the Homeless, the Detroit Rescue Mission, Grateful Home, St. John's Eastside Emergency Center, the United Sisters of Charity and others.

"The homeless situation is tough but not impossible," said Grosse Pointer Edward S. Egnatios, UCS chairman.

The public can make a difference. The special thing about Operation Reach Out is that it's taking place now - in the middle of the year - and not just at the holidays.

Operation Reach Out bins were put in place last month and donations will be welcomed throughout the year. Lists of needed items are available at participating stations.

Our Pre-Kindergarten is Individual

Individual needs form the basis for the pre-kindergarten programs at University Liggett School. Determining what is best for each child begins with the admissions process and remains a constant goal of our curriculum. We seek to discover a child's individual learning style through observation, assessment and parent communication...Our flexible daily planning offers challenges appropriate to a child's needs. Our program meets the diverse needs of 3-, 4- and even young 5-yearolds. For an individual appointment to learn more, call the Head of Pre-Kindergarten, Centie Strong, at 884-4444.

** Special Note**

Due to the tremendous success of our new, three-day option for 3-year-olds, we have decided to open another section for this limited offering. Please hurry, only four spaces remain available in this special program!

St. John Hospital Guild gives Lifetime Achievement Awards

Sister Verenice McQuade, director of community and patient services at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, and George Cueter of Grosse Pointe Woods are the first recipients of Lifetime Achievement Awards from the St. John Hospital and Medical Center Guild.

The guild introduced the new program to honor individuals who have made outstanding contributions throughout the years on its behalf. Presentation of the awards was made at the organization's 32nd annual fundraising dinner June 3 at the Westin Hotel.

Cueter's involvement with the St. John Hospital Guild started in the late 1940s. He was president of the guild from 1959-1971. Since the guild's inception, he has been a member of the board of directors and annually sells more than 250 tickets to the guild dinner. He has also been active in many eastside organizations, including the Kiwanis, Lions and Crisis Club.

McQuade has been director of the guild and the St. John Hospital and Medical Center Fontbonne Auxiliary for 20 years. She's been a member of the St. John board of directors since 1958 and has received numerous statewide and community awards for her many years of service to the hospital, the guild and the community.

This year's dinner raised funds for redesign of the hospital's emergency center, the eastside's only designated trauma center.

George Cueter of Cueter Investment Co. and Sister Verenice McQuade, director of community and patient services at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, were the first to receive Lifetime Achievement Awards from the St. John Hospital and Medical Center Guild at its 32nd annual fundraising dinner June 3 at the Westin Hotel.

Bridge

* Have a Pleasant Try at Perfection ** L BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD 🛧 🕈 💠 🛧

The self-indulgent arrogance of a seemingly esteemed collection of impudent over-drafters at their crudely concealed capitol hill cash box has a bridge correlation of somewhat similar incredibility. I speak of the self-centered overbidders of our game who's gooz monoonary is galling and almost as appalling as the puddin' heads of the Potomac who were recently exposed. These rapscallions I allude to are in some ways as flagrant in the misuse of their cards weight and shape as our elected officials of legislation are with the public's

In today's hand, a couple of well practiced defenders had been quietly waiting the occasion to nab the bad one sitting south who's reckless bidding was legend and on this one he finally paid for his blatancy. It was achieved, as you will read, by daring and accurate play which generated retribution to the tune of twenty-two hundred.

When the dummy came down South had his doubts, but bluster and bluff had saved him in the past and he expected it would spare him again. Such was not to be as my readers will soon see for today he was playing against merit.

East got off to a very clever lead (it's called shooting an ace something this columnist rarely recommends against a suit contract) which declarer never recovered from playing dummy's jack and won by East's queen. What would you do sitting south? East had bid the suit. At tricks 2 and 3, East's club ace and jack won by dummy's king; 4, A trump won by West's queen when declarer played the jack; 5, A club ruffed by East's heart ten; 6, A diamond to East's ace; 7, A small spade mis-guessed by declarer, dummy's ten losing to East's jack; 8, A small diamond by East won by dummy's king, declarer pitching a spade; 9, A small trump from dummy losing to West's nine; 10, A spade won by dummy's ace; 11, Another trump won by West's ace and the last two tricks conceded to declarer's remaining trumps. In all the defense won one spade, three hearts, two diamonds, the club ace and a club ruff. That's eight tricks, down four, doubles, redoubled and vulnerable... Ouch!

Who's to blame? South's second call just qualifies. His third call is irresponsible and the redouble was insane for his fault North's three heart bid for his partner had freely bid the suit twice.

Today's hand is history and the over-bidder paid a deserving penalty. May a similar fate be served upon the heathens of our political system this coming November. Then we the people of this good land may rejoice, but remember that can only be a reality if we exercise our rightful option.

The Grosse Pointe Rose Society's annual show, Friday and Saturday, June 12 and 13, at the Grosse Pointe Neighborhood Club is open to the public. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. Friday and 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Satur-

Non-members may enter: 1) single blooms of hybrid teas or grandifloras, 2) grandiflora sprays, 3) climbers, 4) single blooms of miniatures, 5) sprays of miniatures or other types including shrub and old garden roses. Even if you have only one rose bush, cut a long stem with at least one bloom and some foliage. Bring it to the Neighborhood Club by 10 a.m. Friday, June 12. Someone will help you identify and enter your rose variety. The best non-member entry will win a one-year free mem-

Rose Society. After judging, the show is open to the public; no admission will be charged.

For members, the horticul-bership in the Grosse Pointe tural division has collection classes and specimen classes. For example, an English Box displays six blooms; entries in the cycle of bloom category must display a bud, a half-open bloom and a fully-open bloom, all of the same variety. There are separate categories for hybrid teas and grandifloras, as well as other types. John Abeli, whose Olympiad has taken top honors in the past, is the chairman for this year's show. The theme for the arrangements section, prepared by Ellen Quinlan, is "A Sentimental Journey with Music, Art, and Roses." There are classes for traditional, modern and abstract, and Oriental arrangements in separate sections for regular or miniature roses.

All roses in arrangements must be garden-grown; in the traditional arrangements the roses must be grown by the arranger.

DIA OKs plan for renewal

Detroit Arts Commission president A. Alfred Taubman has announced the adoption of a multi-year operating plan designed to revitalize museum programs and public services. The plan was approved by the City of Detroit Arts Commis-

"This plan builds on the support the community has already demonstrated and, if fully funded, assures partial restoration of critical programs in the immediate years ahead," said DIA director Samuel Sachs II. In 1993, the museum will complete a strategic plan review which will chart a course into the 21st century.

Developed over the past several months by city Arts Commission members, Founders Society trustees and museum staff, the turnaround plan entitled "A Partnership for Renewal" - includes strategies to fund basic operations as well as to finance 11 goals identified in the museum's multi-year operating plan.

In addition to supporting current operations, the primary goals of this plan are: increased open hours for the museum and individual galleries; enhanced educational programs; restoration of various curatorial services such as the organization and hosting of special exhibitions; and revitalization of conservation and other support ser-

The "Partnership for Renewal" calls for a private sector fundraising campaign to support the goals of the plan. The campaign will be led by Joseph L. Hudson Jr., chairman of the museum's Founders Society development committee and vice president of the Arts Commis-

The fundraising effort will add $1.6 million in the first fiscal year of the plan beginning July 1, and additional amounts in succeeding years. An important component is the completion of a $4 million Kresge Foundation Van Dusen Endowment Challenge Grant, as a foundation for future expansion of the museum's general operating endowment.

"The Founders Society board enthusiastically endorses this plan," said Richard A. Manoogian, president of the Founders Society board of trustees. "We will seek both multipleyear and annual gifts and grants from leading founda-tions, corporations and individuals to support the current level of operations, restore selected programs that are crucial and to fulfill the Kresge Van Dusen Challenge Grant. This is a tall order, but we have reason to believe our goals are achievable based on some early responses."

As a result of a 41 percent ($6.8 million) reduction in state funding last year, the museum curtailed its access to the public by closing Tuesdays (in addition to Mondays), reducing open hours to 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and rotating open galleries so that half the museum is open in the morning and the other half in the afternoon. Eighteen months ago the museum was available to the public 48 hours per week; by the same measurement it is now open to the public just 12.5 hours.

We are very hopeful about and committed to this plan," Sachs said. "It will enable us to focus our programming on outreach to the community, which is critical to the education of the next generation. It will also allow us to begin reopening the DIA's galleries to all visitors. All in all, it empowers us to restore the types of public services befitting a world-class museum.

Those 'Damn Yankees' — they've still got heart

At the Birmingham Theatre,

He gets to do just that when the devil, in the person of Mr. Applegate (Jonathan Beck Reed), appears and offers to grant his wish. He will give Joe the chance to be the player on the Senators who will bring the Yankees down.

Joe is hesitant because it means leaving his home and his wife Meg (Laura Kenyon), but it's an offer he can't resist. Following Applegate's directions, he goes into a closet and when he comes out he is young and talented baseball whiz Joe Hardy (Robert Bartley). Before he goes he leaves a note for Meg that he will be back and sings a plaintive love song, "Goodbye, Old Girl."

As Joe Hardy, he takes his team from last place to being a pennant contender.

It's exhilarating, but he begins to have misgivings about his bargain. "A man doesn't know what he has till he loses it," he sings.
The cheers of the crowd, the feel of the bat in his hands, the sight of the ball clearing the left field upper deck are dizzying experiences, but they mean little when he realizes that having the love of his devoted, faithful wife is more valuable than being a young rookie hot-

Joe's story, adapted from

Douglas Wallop's novel, "The Year the Yankees Lost the Pennant," was first seen 37 years ago on Broadway. A combination love story and baseball fan's dream come true, it was a winner and still is.

The songs, dance numbers and choreography combine to give this '50s production a '90s look. The dancing is outstanding, the songs tunefully delivered by a talented and enthusiastic cast.

When the ensemble locks arms and belts out, "You've got to have heart," it makes a convert of the most persistent pessimist. Their tribute to Joe, in "Shoeless Joe From Hannibal, Mo." is equally rousing.

But it is Lola (Charlotte d'-Amboise), Applegate's assistant who stops the show with her song "A Little Brains, a Little Talent."

She gets even better when she gets Joe on a couch and sings in a throaty voice, "Whatever Lola Wants, Lola Gets," and is at her best in a mambo number, "Who's Got the Pain?" She's as light as a feather and twice as agile.

Regarded as one of Broadway's top dancers, d'Amboise shows why. She is the production's shining light.

Bartley sings well and makes an appealing Young Joe and Frank Anderson as the middleaged Joe and Meg Kenyon as his wife effectively portray the affection that comes from a long and happy marriage.

Series begins

The Music on the Plaza concert series takes a running start Thursday, June 11, with the vocal stylings of jazz crooner Eric Brandon, above. The performance will begin at 7 p.m. and will be held outdoors at the corner of Kercheval and St. Clair in the Village. John Denomme, owner of Village Records and Tapes and series coordinator, is enthusiastic about this year's opening act. "I'd heard a lot of good things about Eric," he said. "He's Detroit's answer to Harry Connick Jr., and he's also reminiscent of the young Chet Baker." Brandon will be accompanied by pianist Rick Roe, bassist Paul Keller and drummer Dan Spencer. The concert is sponsored by Detroit Monthly magazine. The Music on the Plaza series is presented by the Grosse Pointe Village Association, in cooperation with Bon Secours Home Medical and Bon Secours Pharmacy.

Alaska is the largest producer of whitefish in the United States. Alaskan whitefish is another name for the cod family. Haddock, cod, pollack and hake are other members of the group and form almost half the world's commercial catch of Abundance is only one reason for the success of cod. Fullflavored with a good yield of thick, slightly flaky white fillets, cod is adaptable to all methods of cooking and is excellent broiled, sauteed or steamed and served with a rich or piquant sauce. It's also good baked. Most cod weigh over 100 pounds and are called jumbo. In the United States, any small member of the cod family from 1-1/2 - 2-1/2 pounds is classified as "scrod."

Each year, billions of pounds of cod are harvested from the icy, pure waters off the Alaska coastline. With the recent attention to seafood safety, Alaska has adopted state-of-theart freezing and processing technology as a superior method of preserving its seafood as soon as it leaves the

The rapid freezing preserves the just-caught natural flavor and texture. It means extra convenience for the cook. Look for Alaska whitefish either at the seafood counter or in the frozen seafood department. To adapted as an entree or used as thaw, simply use your microwave on the defrost cycle, or place the wrapped package overnight in the refrigerator.

Alaska meets New Orleans for a delicious seafood Po' Boy, one of the most delicious sandwiches in the world. Whitefish (Alaskan cod or Alaskan pollack) teams up with New Orleans-style French bread and seasonings for an updated, healthier version of this satisfying southern sandwich.

It's hard to say where the Po' Boy sandwich got its name. One theory suggests that it is derived from the French word "pourboire," meaning "tip" or "gratuity." In other words, it could be bought for the price of Another theory states that a delicious, crusty French bread loaf filled with inexpensive meats or even simple potatoes could be bought in the pre-depression days in New Orleans for small change that even a "poor boy" could afford.

Choose Alaskan cod for a large, firm fillet or a more delicate flake and texture. Sprinkle the fillets with a Cajun style spice mixture, then saute in a small amount of oil until lightly browned on each side. Serve the sandwich while piping hot and enjoy.

Almond Alaska cod with lemon broccoli is a healthful one-dish meal which can be baked or microwaved and used as a lunch or dinner entree.

Company will offer two acting classes over an eight-week pe riod beginning Tuesday, June 9 and Wednesday, June 10 in the

The 13th annual Michigan ing for talented and creative people to perform at the 1992 festival.

Interested entertainers may audition at noon Saturday, June 6 at the Festival site in Holly on Dixie Highway, one mile north of Mt. Holly; at 7 p.m. Monday, June 8 at Oakland University's Varner Hall in Rochester; at 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 10 at Lansing Waverly Middle School on St. Joe Highway and Snow Road and at noon, Saturday, June 13, at Flint's Sloan Museum in the Flint Cultural Center.

At the auditions, actors will be asked to describe their theater experience and give a short example of their act and/or participate in improvisational sketches. Auditioners are encouraged to develop a Renaissance character and wear or bring a sketch of their intended costume. Some character ideas are available through the festival office.

The festival will also be looking for students to enter the Renaissance Academy, a tuition-free program designed to provide high school-aged entertainers with an educational supplement to their regular schooling.

The Michigan Renaissance Festival will open Aug. 15 and run Saturdays and Sundays through Sept. 27. It will also be open Labor Day.

For more information, call Michael Short or Dawn Koehler at 645.9640 or write the Michigan Renaissance Festival, 700 East Maple, Suite 203, Birmingham, MI 48009.

The Purple Rose Theatre theater rehearsal hall at 137 Park Street in Chelsea.

The two-hour sessions will run from 7 to 9 p.m. with enrollment limited to 18 participants who are high school graduates and up. The cost for the eight week class is $100.

The Tuesday class will be taught by Janet Maylie, an acting instructor with the University of Michigan Department of Theater and Drama. Maylie appeared in the role of Sally in the Purple Rose Theatre Company production of Jeff Daniels' 'Shoe Man — The Big Finish.

The Wednesday class will be taught by Terry Heck, an acting instructor with the Eastern Michigan University Communication and Theatre Arts Department. Heck recently portrayed Lois in the Purple Rose Theatre Company production of "More Fun Than Bowling."

Each class will cover a range of topics, including monologues, cold readings, content-less scene work and prepared two-person scene work. The limited size of the classes will allow the instructors to work closely with each participant, utilizing their personal experience to create a positive learning environment for the entire class.

For additional information about registration for the classes, call the Purple Rose Theatre Company administration office at (313) 475-5817, Tuesdays through Fridays between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Come home to Finland to rediscover your roots

My husband's father, Carolus Janssens, came to the United States from Belgium in 1929 at age 29. He entered through Windsor, Ontario.

We know this from his Immigrant Identification Card. We have little other documentation of his early life, other than a military record folder and one other piece of ID. Fortunately, these do provide the full names of his parents and where he was born.

We know that he changed his name to Carlo and settled in the Belgian neighborhood on the east side of Detroit near Harper and Conner. Carlo worked 35 years for Motor Products Corp. in Detroit.

But there was never any contact with relatives back in Belgium. Presumably, his parents were dead when he emigrated and he had no brothers and sisters. Unfortunately, he died leaving us with little to go on.

But we do know there may be distant relatives in Europe and we'd like to meet them someday. We have always talked of returning to Belgium to track down our branch of the Janssens family and, we hope, that will come to pass. An invitation from Belgium would be

If you are of Finnish descent, that is just what is happening this year. Finland is marking its 75th anniversary of independence by staging a mammoth homecoming celebration during which it is inviting all persons of Finnish descent to return to Finland to trace their

And they are providing all kinds of help. From the Homecoming Welcome Center at the Lutheran Cathedral in Helsinki, to the National Archives, to the rural churches, all are prepared to help people track down records and find their rel-

In the 1930s and 1940s, over half a million Finns emigrated to the United States, a great number of them settling in Michigan. It is estimated that today there are over 111,700 Finnish-Americans living in our state.

"We want to say to all of those Finns who live elsewhere, you are most welcome to Finland. Come see how your parents' country is and find your roots," says Martti Haikio. president of the Finland Society, which is spearheading the genealogical angle of the homecoming.

It is a country well worth returning to or visiting for the first time. One only need travel its backroads to see why so many of those Finnish emigrants decided to settle in Northern Michigan: gently rolling hills, lakes connecting to more lakes, roads lined with jack pines and silver birches, deer grazing in meadows. A major difference, however, is the presence of a ski jump on just about every mountain. And while Finland is located between the 60th and 70th parallels, roughly the same latitude as Alaska, its weather is temperate because of the proximity of the Atlantic Ocean and I went to Finland for a week in March and discovered it to be a beautiful and fascinating country and well worth a visit, even if your roots are else-

We spent time in three different parts of the country. In North Karelia, near the Russian border, we stayed in Joensuu, home of a major annual song festival (this year June 6-14). We visited the extraordinary studio and home of 76vear-old wood sculptress Eva Ryynanen (she has built a wonderful chapel on the grounds) then ended up at Katin Kulta, a new resort.

Katin Kulta boasts one attraction that I have never seen the likes of anywhere: it has a swimming pool/hot tub/spa complex that consists of over 30 pools. You can cavort in these for hours before taking your traditional Finnish sauna.

Then we spent a couple of days in Helsinki, the capital, and the main homecoming center. It is a typical European capital and here's where you can take in churches, museums and the like.

But the best came last: We flew to the town of Rovaneimi, the capital of Lapland, on the Arctic Circle. We met Santa Claus, who keeps a year-round home here (only we foolish North Americans think Santa lives at the North Pole). We went on a snowmobiling expedition to a traditional Lapp Village and underwent the mysterious "Arctic Circle Crossing" ceremony. Like Alaska, it is light here around the clock in June and July.

In order to promote its 1992 homecoming celebration, the Finnish tourist office and Finnair are holding a drawing for a free trip for two to Finland. Send a 3x5-inch card with your name, address and phone number to the Finnish Tourist Board by June 8. Call toll-free (800) FIN-INFO for details.

You can write the Finnish Tourist Board at 655 Third Ave., Suite 1810, NY 10017. Ask for the maps and brochures detailing homecoming festivities and tour and hotel packages.

Have a question about travel? We'll try to answer it in this column. Have you discovered a wonderful place that you are willing to share with your neighbors? Tell us about that, too. Write Travel Trends, Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms,

Pointe artist's work on display

"Auburn Hills - Landscape," an exhibition by seven Michigan artists, is on display now through June 11, at the UAW-GM Human Resource Center, 2630 Featherstone Road, Auburn Hills.

The show is sponsored through the Joint Ventures partnership of the Human Resource Center with the Creative Arts Center in Pontiac, and the Paint Creek Center for the Arts in Rochester.

Curated by the Paint Creek Center's director, Betty Ruedisueli, the exhibition showcases diverse array of contemporary andscapes in various media.

Among the selected artists is Russian-trained artist Luda cherniak of Grosse Pointe, ho displays seven oil paintings of subjects traditionally associated with the landscape genre: a tree-lined lake in "November," a wooded roadway in "Light and Shadows on the Road" and a Gothic cathedral in "Highway to Heaven." No people inhabit these scenes. Tcherniak has an Impressionistic concern with light, especially evident in her landscape "Light Breeze" with its yellow greens, dark greens and fuch-

Buhl will chase a dream on new Prix course

Sports Editor

Robbie Buhl hopes his dream comes true this weekend.

"I want to win a race in Detroit," said the Grosse Pointe resident, who is one of the top drivers on the Indy Lights Champion-

The circuit will have the third race of its series on Sunday as part of the Detroit Grand Prix.

"It's a thrill to win anytime, but having grown up 20 minutes away from Detroit would be extra special. Winning would draw some more attention to me and 'Racing for Kids' and it would show how serious we are about moving up to the Indy cars next

This is Buhl's third season on the Indy Lights circuit and he hopes it's his last. It's the final stepping stone to a ride in an Indy car and Buhl is planning to be in the field next May when the familiar call of "Gentlemen, start your engines" comes over the loudspeaker at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Buhl has made a rapid climb to the top in Indy Lights. He finished third in races at Phoenix and Long Beach, Calif., and is in second place overall.

"After the first year I felt I had become a decent driver and after last season I felt we were one of the odds-on favorites to win the championship," Buhl said.

Although he won the pole position twice during the second half of last season, won the Indy Lights race at Nazareth, Pa., and finished second at Long Beach and Toronto, Buhl made some changes before the 1992 campaign.

He poured last year's winnings into a new car and revamped his crew. Burke Harrison, who led the crew for the last two Indy Lights champions, is in charge and Ron Smith returns as the chief mechanic.

"This is a team sport with the owner, the crew and myself as the driver working together. Everyone has to understand each other," Buhl said. "We have a lot of confidence in one another."

Once again, Buhl is active in the Racing for Kids program which raises public awareness and funds for children's hospitals in North America. Buhl visits the nearest children's hospital at each stop on the Indy Lights circuit and participates in many fundraising activities for the hospitals.

He has several events planned for this week, including a visit to the track for about 30 youngsters from the hospital.

"It's something I really want to do," Buhl said. "I like kids and I want to give something back for all I've been blessed with. I'm especially happy I can tie it in with the sport I love. Now that we're in our third year, people are seeing the sincerity and the real direction of the program. And they're welcoming us back."

Racing for Kids is the brainchild of Dr. William Pinsky, the director of cardiology at Children's Hospital of Detroit, and Pat Wright, who coordinates Buhl's marketing and public relations

They approached Buhl about joining the program after he won the Barber-Saab Pro Series championship in 1989 and he was enthusiastic about it.

"One of our goals is to raise the awareness of health care needs of kids in North America. I see these kids in hospitals — some of them have been there most of their lives - and they have a great attitude," Buhl said.

"Visiting them is a good reality check for me. In racing, you wear blinders in terms of thinking about the sport and where

North is nearly perfect

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's soccer team had people shaking their heads in amazement after last weekend's 4-1 victory over Rochester in a Class A regional championship game.

"We played about as well as we can play," said Lady Norsemen coach Guido Regelbrugge.

"After the game the Troy Athens coach told me that's the best offensive game he's seen in a long time and when I phoned the score to The Detroit News the fellow who took the score couldn't believe it. He said, 'Rochester's a good team.'"

The Falcons might have been good, but the Lady Norsemen were better as they improved their record to 18-1 and moved into the semifinals against Rochester Adams.

A victory over Adams would send North into the state championship game Saturday at 1 p.m. against the winner of the Plymouth Canton-Brighton semifinal. The title game will be played at Northville High School.

"We were able to neutralize what we thought were (Rochester's) main weapons," Regelbrugge said. Junior midfielder Kelly Kon-sler had a lot to do with that as she shadowed the Falcons' Terra May, who had dominated the game in Rochester's victory over Sterling Heights Ford a couple days earlier.

"We felt we had to nullify (May) and Kelly limited her to one shot," Regelbrugge said. "Not only did we keep her from scoring, but we thwarted their whole offense because they depend on her so much to get things started.'

Once May was held in check, North got its offense in gear.

"We felt we could beat them one-on-one at all three forward positions, so we went out and put the pressure on them," Regelbrugge said. "On our first attack of the game we came down the left wing and (Amy) Shepley passed to (Gretchen) Sazama, who just missed the net. That set the tone for the whole game. Our girls realized they could run past them all day.'

Sazama scored the first of her three goals about 10 minutes into the game. She scored again eight minutes later and it looked like the Lady Norsemen might be ready to blow the game open, but Rochester capitalized on one of North's few mistakes to score a goal and it gave Regelbrugge an uneasy feeling.

"It wasn't a good goal, but sometimes that can change the momentum," he said. "I knew the next goal would be huge. We reeled a little bit after they scored, but then (Felicia) Paluzzi scored on a magnificent play where we simply dismantled their defense."

North, South win district diamond crowns Devils do OT in fin

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

Nothing seems to faze Grosse Pointe North softball pitcher Melissa Drouillard.

Last Saturday's cold, rainy weather didn't bother her. Neither did a couple of early runs scored by East Detroit in the district championship game.

1. The Shamrocks tallied twice in the second inning on a single, triple and passed ball to tie the score at 2-2 after two innings. When the Lady Norsemen came to the bench at the end of the frame, coach Bill Taylor gently admonished Drouillard for throwing a changeup to the No. 9 batter in the East Detroit lineup, which resulted in the passed ball.

Drouillard quickly put Taylor's mind at ease.

"l"Don't worry Mr. Taylor." she said. "We're going to score some more runs.

It was no sooner said than

. North scored three times in the third inning on a two-run double by Laura Cartwright and Heather Arioli's sacrifice fly and the Lady Norsemen were on their way to a 12-2 romp and a third straight district title.

North, now 18-5, plays Fraser in the regional semifinal at noon Saturday at Memorial Park in Royal Oak.

"The senior leadership on this team has solidified it," Taylor said. "Buffy Miriani (shortstop), Erica Barr (catcher) and Melissa have stabilized three important positions and that's enabled some of our ninth graders to play positions they enjoy and are comfortable

"They've brought the young kids up to a higher level rather than having them just fill a Drouillard pitched a five-hitter in the second game, striking out five and walking none.

"She threw 70 strikes and 27 balls in the second game after throwing 73 strikes and 26 balls in the first game," Taylor said. "She had excellent control in bad weather, but it didn't bother her. A couple times the umpire asked her if she wanted a dry ball and she said the one she had was OK."

· Cartwright led North's hitting attack in the East Detroit game with two hits and three RBI. Keri Muccioli, Alana Hansen and Miriani had two hits apiece and Stacy Kent tripled and drove in three runs.

'We played a solid defensive game and Laura played especially well in center field," Taylor said. "The East Detroit game might have been her best of the year.'

North fielders committed only one error in the two district games.

The Lady Norsemen might have gotten an assist from the weather in the 12-6 victory over Regina in the district semifinal that started in a steady rain.

The Saddlelites' starting pitcher, Jennifer Kotal, walked five batters in the first inning before she was relieved by Amy

"I think the weather helped us," Taylor said. "After that first inning they played us even. The last two years we played Regina it was a one-run game so we knew they'd be a real challenge."

North scored six runs in the first inning, with a two-run double by Miriani and a tworun single by Kent the key hits. Cartwright also had an RBI single and another run scored on a wild pitch.

A pair of two-run triples by Denise Cleary kept Regina within striking distance of the Lady Norsemen, but walks and errors helped North ice the victory with three runs apiece in the fifth and sixth innings.

"You can't give away runs and expect to win. The walks and errors hurt us," said Regina coach Diane Laffey. "If somebody had told me we'd score six runs off Drouillard, I'd have taken my chances with them.'

Cartwright was the only North player with two hits against Regina but Drouillard, who walked six times in the two games, had three bases on balls. Kristen Loeher had an RBI triple.

Earlier in the week, North beat Warren Woods-Tower 6-0 on the one-hit pitching of Drouillard. Loeher's two-run double and Hansen's two RBI supplied the Lady Norsemen with all the runs they needed.

Tunas end winning year

Top five state finish delights South's coach

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's tennis team must have believed coach Tom Berschback when he said it could finish among the top five in the state.

"I set high goals for my team and if they reach them I'm surprised," Berschback said after the Blue Devils finished in a, three-way tie for fifth place with Brother Rice and Kalamazoo Loy Norrix in last weekend's Class A state meet in Midland.

"At the start of the season I didn't think we had a chance to finish in the top five because we had so many new kids, but they put in a lot of hard work and kept improving. It's great. That's four years in a row we've been in the top five."

Cullen McMahon, a junior who'll move into the No. 1 singles slot for South next season, was the Blue Devils' only finalist. He bowed to Mike Pusztai of Ann Arbor Pioneer in the No. 2 singles championship match for the second year in a row. Pusztai beat McMahon 6-2. 6-2.

"Cullen made it to the finals easily," Berschback said. "He's 21-4 this season and three of the losses have been to Mike.

"Cullen's ready to play No. 1 next year. He's getting stronger as his body catches up to his height. We expect tremendous improvement by next year. He'll be making the shots he can't hit now and he'll serve better.'

Emiliano Lorenzini and Jeff Wheeler made it to the semifinals in first and third singles, respectively.

Lorenzini, the fifth seed, beat third-seeded David Oosterbaan of Loy Norrix 7-6, 6-1 in the quarterfinals but lost to Mark Schwagle of Northville 6-0, 0-6, 6-3 in the semis.

"They're all solid players in No. 1," Berschback said. "It's a heckuva job to even make it to the quarterfinals. Emiliano's match with Schwagle was really unusual. Mark couldn't do anything wrong in the first set and Emiliano couldn't do anything wrong in the second."

The third set was tied 3-3 when Schwagle broke Lorenzini's serve and the South player wasn't able to recover.

Wheeler, a sophomore, lost to his semifinal opponent from Brother Rice 1-6, 6-0, 6-1.

"Jeff finished 25-2 and he's just going to get better,' Berschback said.

South's first doubles team of Chad Yates and Shawn Coyle ran into its season-long nemesis, a team from Ann Arbor Pioneer, and dropped a 6-4, 6-1 decision in the quarterfinals. Yates and Coyle finished 17-3 and all three of the defeats were by Pioneer.

The Blue Devils' toughest loss came in the opening round when the second doubles team of Jeff Huntington and Tom Rhoades lost to a team from Grand Rapids Forest Hills 6-7, 6-1, 7-6 (11-9 in the tie-breaker).

"Both teams had several match points," Berschback Berschback said. "It was just a matter of who would take the extra South's third doubles team of Rob Hostetter and M.J. Morris lost to the third-seeded team from Niles 4-6, 6-2, 6-1 in the opening round and Todd Scallen dropped a 6-3, 6-2 decision in No. 4 singles to a player from Redford Catholic Central.

Okemos won the team championship with 29 points, beating Pioneer by three. Bloomfield Hills Lahser was third and Catholic Central finished

Sports Editor Grosse Pointe South's two victories in Monday's rain-delayed Class A district baseball tournament at Grosse Pointe North were as different as black and white.

The Blue Devils overpowered Detroit Southeastern 15-1 in the semifinal, then had to work overtime to beat East Detroit 6-3 in nine innings in the title game.

The district championship sends South into regional play Saturday at 9 a.m. at Memorial Park in Royal Oak. The Blue Devils' first opponent will be Roseville. If they get past the Panthers, they'll play the winner of the Brother Rice-Detroit King semifinal.

"Roseville had less than a .500 record in the (Macomb Area Conference) Red Division, but they're tough when their ace, Brian Sikorski, is on the mound," said South coach Dan Griesbaum. "He's already signed with Western Michigan."

Colm Moore, who was brilliant defensively at shortstop in both games, started the Blue Devils' ninth with a walk. Brad Dunlap beat out a bunt for a hit and Dan Minadeo's bunt was mishandled for an error, filling the bases. Kevin Brennan, who was the winning pitcher in both games, followed with a two-run single. Matt Recht then singled to drive in the final run.

Brennan, who replaced starter Fritz Coyro after East Detroit scored the tying run with two out in the seventh, retired the Shamrocks in order in the bottom of the ninth.

"East Detroit had won something like 13 of their last 14 games, so it was a couple of hot teams facing each other,' Griesbaum said. South has won 11 of its last 12 to improve to 23-4. The Blue Devils are ranked fifth in the latest Class A state coaches poll.

East Detroit scored a run in the first inning on an error, a walk and Brian Nulph's RBI single. South matched it with an unearned run in the second. Brian Blake led off with a badhop single, moved to second on a groundout and scored when Matt Haack's grounder went through the shortstop's legs for an error.

Recht's RBI single gave South a 2-1 lead in the top of the third, but East Detroit tied ottom of the inning on Eric Oke's eighth homer of the season.

Blake's single, a sacrifice and Tom Rajt's single put the Blue Devils ahead 3-2 in the sixth, but the Shamrocks tied the seesaw battle in the seventh on a two-out single by Dave Horn and pitcher Jim Papuga's RBI double. Papuga went the distance for East Detroit. "He's a lefthander and we hadn't seen that many this year so it concerned me a little, but it didn't seem to bother the kids," Griesbaum said. "He pitched a good game, but I think he was tiring a bit at the Kyle Hoye and Tom Kolajeski each pitched an inning for South before the game was halted by a 10-run mercy rule after the fifth inning.

Recht had a single and drove in three runs for South, which scored four runs each in the second and third innings and added six runs in the fourth. Minadeo had three walks and scored three times.

"We had some solid defensive play up the middle from Moore, Minadeo (shortstop) and Recht (center field) in both games,' Griesbaum said.

Pirates split in Federation

The Grosse Pointe Pirates opened the Macomb Amateur Baseball Federation season last weekend by splitting a doubleheader with the South Macomb Yankees.

The Pirates won the opener 10-7, but bowed 6-5 in the nightcap.

A six-run first inning helped the Pirates in the first game. Doubles by Terry Brennan and Dan Sylvester, singles by Kevin Collins, Todd Drake, Keith Smith and Tom DeLisle and a walk to Troy Bergman contributed to the Pirates' big inning.

Drake struck out eight in 5 2/3 innings and Steve Champine halted the Yankees' seventh-inning rally to pick up the

The Pirates rallied from a 3-2 deficit with three runs in the fifth inning of the second game on singles by Smith, Drake, Sylvester and Bergman, along with a sacrifice fly by Chris Campbell, but the Yankees tied the score with two runs in the bottom of the fifth and won it with a run in the sixth.

Local Olympians do well in meet

The Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods Special Olympians won several medals and ribbons in the recent Wayne County Games at Livonia Franklin high school.

James Pugel won gold medals in the standing long jump and softball throw; Mark Valadez was fifth in the 50-meter dash and third in the softball throw; Missy Helfer was first in the softball throw and second in the frisbee throw; and Alfred Large won fourth-place ribbons in the 50 dash and softball throw.

Several area competitors also did well in the swimming events.

David Novitzke won gold medals in the 25 freestyle and 25 backstroke; Susan McNanry was fourth in the 25 freestyle and third in the 25 backstroke; Jenny Urbanek was fourth in the backstroke, third in the 25 freestyle; Lisa Kushner was fifth in the 25 freestyle and third in the backstroke; Jeff Maci won the 25 butterfly and was second in the 25 freestyle; and Greg Rosati took bronze medals in the 25 freestyle and the backstroke.

Urbanek, Kushner, Maci and Rosati also swam on the thirdplace 100 relay team.

Knights' big day comes two weeks too soon

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

The University Liggett School tennis team was two weeks early in beating Detroit Country Day.

"We won the battle but lost the war," said Knights' coach Bob Wood after his team finished second to the Yellowiackets in the Class C-D state meet last weekend in Battle Creek. Country Day had 27 points to 22 for ULS.

"I don't think there's any question that we'd trade the regional victory for finishing first in the state. If we were to play each other 10 times, we'd probably each win five times. All of the matches in the regional and the state meet were extremely close," Wood said.

"We happened to win six of the seven at the regional and at the state meet Country Day was able to reverse four of the six matches they lost to us.

"Let's give them credit. They came through when it counted the most. I was confident going in that we could beat Country Day, but I also know the game of tennis and how it can turn around, especially when two teams are as close as these two.

Although the season didn't end the way the Knights had hoped it would, the year was very successful.

ULS was ranked No. 1 in the state poll in Class C-D and the Knights were No. 4 in all classes. The regional championship was the school's first since 1989 and among ULS' victories were dual meet wins over Grosse Pointe North, Grosse Pointe South, Brother Rice and Catholic Central. The Knights also won two tough invitation-

"Each year we set three or four major goals and this season we achieved all but one winning the state tournament," Wood said. "I thought all season we were a team of overachievers and to wind up ranked fourth in the state in all classes. is a significant accomplishment.

ULS had two individual state champions. Jason Go beat Andy Ehrinpreis of Country Day 6-2, 6-0 in the No. 3 singles final and Andy Loredo took a 6-4, 7-5 decision from the Yellowjackets' Vijay Bandamudi.

"Jason has played third singles all season for us and he's one of the best in that flight," Wood said. "Andy went back and forth between first doubles and fourth singles during the early part of the season, but we finally put him at fourth singles around May 1, and he's been 15-0 since settling on the one position."

ULS had three second-place finishers in the state meet. Ken Prather lost 7-6, 6-4 to Country Day's Suveer Tatineni in second singles; Pat Alle and Omar Sawaf suffered a 6-4, 7-6 sets back to the Yellowjackets' Wil Peppo and Matt Foster in No. 3 doubles; and John Maycock and Bill Robb lost 6-1, 6-1 in third doubles to Country Day's Jonas Ericksson and Sibin Zacharias!

South would enjoy duel for dual title

By Chuck Klonke

would be fun to see the Michigan High School Athletic Association adopt a dual-meet format for its state track championships.

"They do it in some states and there's been talk about it here, but so far there hasn't been enough support," said the Grosse Pointe South girls track coach, who might be celebrating a state title under different circumstances.

'I'd love to see a dual meet state championship because it takes an entirely different team to win a dual meet than it does to make a strong showing in the state meet the way it is

Here's a case in point.

South edged Detroit Cass Tech by a point in the regional, where a premium was placed on team depth. In last weekend's state Class A meet, Cass Tech won the state championship by an 11-point margin and South didn't even break into the top 10.

"The team that has the most outstanding athletes wins the state meet," Zaranek said. "But a team that just fields quality people in every event won't do very well.

Three field event relay records were set in the Ypsilanti meet as Drake combined with Sue McGahey and Amy Balok to high jump a combined height of 14-6. Drake then teamed with Scofield and Walter to set a school and meet record in the long jump relay as the three compiled a total of 48-4. Both events were first-place efforts.

Drake, Jenny Mangol and Suzanne Trojanowski set a school record in the shot put relay with combined throws of 88-11, finishing second in the event.

South finished the meet with 101 points, followed by Ypsilanti 76, Brighton 57, Plym-

The Lady Devils set two meet records and took first with 131 points. East Detroit was a distant second with 40 points. Grosse Pointe North tied for fourth with 39 points.

Emily Black, Zanglin, Lupo and Mueller set meet records in the 400 relay (53.1) and the sprint medley relay (1:56.2).

South's other first-place efforts came in the shuttle hurdle relay (Schultz, Becca Walter, Beth Voigt and O'Byrne), 800 relay (Lupo, Zanglin, Becca Walter, Mueller), high jump relay (Kathy Bandeen, Melanie Walter, Martha Kerfoot), 200 dash (Janeece Anderson) and middle distance relay (Shannon McGratty, Beth Elrod, Julie McLaughlin, Melissa Wise).

North boys and girls have big MAC efforts

By Chuck Klonke

Hayko Ekmekjian gave himself some high standards to shoot for next year when he led Grosse Pointe North's boys track team to a fourth-place finish in the Macomb Area Conference White Division meet.

Ekmekjian, a junior, won both hurdles races and anchored the winning 400-meter relay team. He also took fourth place in the 100.

'He worked hard during the winter to improve on his strength," Wilson said. "That was the big reason for his improvement - overall strength. It was more than just conditioning. The key to success in track is to prepare during the offseason.

Ekmekjian won the 300 low hurdles in 41.2, beating the school record of 41.5 set in 1990 by David Vier. He took the 100 highs in 16.4.

'His time in the lows was a drop of eight-tenths of a second," Wilson said. "We think he can continue to drop next

"We also found out he was fast and we've been working on his running style.

Ekmekjian was behind when he took the baton in the 400 relay, but passed the competition and kept the Norsemen's team unbeaten in league meets. Other members of the relay team, which was clocked in 45.6, were Hosia Peters, Eric Peters and Geoff Grant.

North had several secondplace finishes in the conference meet, including a leap of 20feet-1/2 by Hosia Peters. It was the first time he had cracked the 20-foot barrier.

Ypsilanti was one of six records

ULS has a state champ University Liggett School going into the seventh lap and senior Jennifer Miller concentrated on just one event and used that advantage to beat an old adversary in winning the 3,200-meter run at last weekend's state Class C track championships.

Distance specialist Miller skipped the 1,600 run in order to concentrate on the longer event and her duel with Lorenda Godefroidt of St. Louis.

We knew Godefroidt would be tired after defending (successfully) her 1,600 title," said ULS coach Philip Langford. "I told Jennifer a 5:35 first mile pace would keep Lorenda in the lead to battle the strong winds on the straightaway. With anything faster, Jennifer would lead and with anything slower, there would be a traffic jam. Jennifer's goal was to win the race and not concern herself with any of the splits after the first mile.'

Miller ran a 5:35 mile and placed herself directly behind Godefroidt. She took the lead had a final 800 split of 2:46. Miller's winning time of 11:22.7 gave her a 10-second margin of victory and placed her 13th on the alf-time list in Class C.

In the boys portion of the meet, ULS senior Jonathan Sieber finished 10th in the 3,200 with a season-best 9:58.9.

"He was seeded near the bottom and started the race dead last," Langford said. "He eventually worked his way up to eighth, but unfortunately two runners passed him on the final sprint and knocked him out of the medal position.'

RIGHT NOW, OUR RISING RATE CD AND FIRSTRATE FUND WILL BE MOVING EVEN FASTER.....

While there's sure to be a lot of excitement at First of America Free Prix Day, Friday, June 5, at the ITT Automotive Detroit Grand Prix, we're expecting even more in local First of America and Security Bancorp branches. That's because of the FirstRate Fund* and Rising Rate CD." Both are two shrewd ways to invest, no matter what your economic outlook.

up by July 31 and get these

Now if you think interest rates are going to drop or remain flat, get a Rising

Rate CD with rates guaranteed to rise every six months over the next two years. With a minimum deposit of $1,000, your money will start at a bonus rate of 5 percent per annum and end up earning an attractive 6½ percent for the final term.

On the other hand if you think the economy is going to make a speedier recovery, the FirstRate Fund is the right place to put your money. It gives you a great interest rate coupled with liquidity. You'll need to maintain a new minimum deposit of $10,000* to earn a bonus rate of 5¾ percent per annum on your money through July 31. After that, the rate is based on the 91-Day Treasury Bill, so if rates go up quickly you'll benefit.

FirstRate Fund Rate Call or stop in to learn more. Sign up now and get this bonus And then plan to join us on Belle Isle for First of America Free Prix Day as we invite the entire Detroit community out for a peek at the prix. You'll find plenty to get revved up about at First of America and Security Bancorp Banks this spring.

BOX SEATING FOR POWER-BOAT ARISTO-

CRATS are available at the Gar Wood Judges Stand on the Start/Finish Line (Area #5). Tickets are so prized that patrons pass them from generation to generation. Your private, covered box is and Sunday of race week and includes pit passes and Sunday lunch. Tickets are $100 each for groups of four or more.

YOU'RE IN GOOD COMPANY at Stockton Park (Area #6) where boat racing's savviest fans party with style and know how. Start/Finish line viewing is the main draw but the neighboring Manoogian Mansion provides mayoral class. Tickets are $35.

KIDS & FAMILIES love the view and the open park areas of Memorial Annex and Erma Henderson Park (Areas #7 & #8) where bargain prices make it easy for young and old to enjoy boat racing's dangerous Gold Cup competition. Parks are located along the Thunderboat Speedway where daring drivers battle the most feared section of the race course. Tickets are $30 for Area #7 and $20 for Area #8.

IT'S ONLY ROCK & ROLL and that's why the fans like it at Owen's Park (Area #9). Anything goes! Boom-box jams, sun bathing and dance-a-thons are but a part of the non-stop action on and off the shore. This is the place for Metro-area singles. Tickets are $20 each.

THE PRICE IS RIGHT—FREE VIEWING ON BELLE ISLE! For the wildest, largest beach party, the Belle Isle Bathing Beach is IT. And it will cost you $0, nada, zip. We're warning you now. . . arrive early to reserve your place. NO tickets necessary.

As you can see, there is a spot for everyone at Thunderfest, whatever your pleasure or your price. Best of all, you can see the entire course from any of our parks. What's more, parking is readily available wherever you go.

SO YOU'RE WONDERING .... WHO ARE YOU GOING TO CALL?

To order your tickets just call The THUNDERFEST Office At (313) 771-3750. Tickets are also available at any TicketMaster outlet or the TicketMaster office at (313) 645-6666.

FIND YOUR PLACE IN THE SUN...

Whether you're "hydro-hip," a swinging single or looking for an action-packed event for the kids, Thunderfest '92 is "the place to be" to kick off summer in Detroit. Where else can you enjoy fresh air, sunny skies and the earth-shaking, ear-splitting rumble of the thunderboats?

With ten park areas, general and reserved seating and a wide range of ticket options, it's no wonder that racing veterans know it's not who you know, it's where you sit that counts at Thunderfest.

Here's the inside track on the best ways to enjoy this year's hydro-happening:

HOBNOB WITH HYDRO SOCIETY—

That's Commodore's Club in Waterworks Park (Area #1), a prime reserved seating area that is often "sold-out" weeks before the race. Membership packages for two include a pair of first class reserved seats overlooking the Hot Pits and the treacherous Roostertail Turn. Commodore Clubbers enjoy catered lunch in a private hospitality suite, Gold Star pit passes and a one year subscription to "Signal Flag," Thunderfest's newsletter. All this for $170 for entertaining and Area #3 for singles, pairs & groups. Seats are located next to the Commodore's Club in Waterworks Park the true "hydro-nut" can catch all the rays and all the hot racing action. Viewing is so "closeto-the-thunder" that fans have been known to run from the stands when the hydros roar by. Reserved seats — without the smelling salts are $50 for Area #2 with discounts available for groups over 100. Tickets are $45 for Area #3.

SAME GREAT VIEW WITHOUT THE LUNCH is offered in Area # 2 for corporate

PARTY PEOPLE WITH HYDROMANIA

head to Scaplane Base (Area #4). This is boat racing's most spirited picnic spot, perfect for families, friends and Frisbees. Motor homes welcome, too. At Seaplane, general admission seats edge the waterline, as close to the front lines as you can get. Motor Homes by reservation only, tickets $40.

Join the Fight to keep BELLE ISLE FREE for the 1992 BUDWEISER APBA GOLD CUP June II-14

For the first time in its 77-year history, the hydroplane race on the Detroit River has been granted permission to charge the hundreds of thousands of fans who watch the event from Belle Isle Park each year. In the past, viewing from the island was free!

However, The Spirit of Detroit Thunderfest (the volunteer organizers of the Thunderboat races for the past 32 years) has mixed feelings about allowing this longtime tradition to fall — in spite of the weight of economic times.

"It was a tough decision," said Dennis Denyer, Marketing and Sales Director for Thunderfest. "Here was a sure way to increase revenue and solve our current fiscal difficulties. However, we took into consideration that many of our loyal fans face money problems of their own, and decided to preserve the tradition of free viewing for as long as we could."

In order to increase revenue and, at the same time, continue to allow the greatest number of metro Detroiters and visitors an opportunity to enjoy this popular event, Thunderfest began brainstorming other ways to keep the island free.

They decided to test the waters with a donation mail-in campaign targeting boat race followers and supporters. Thunderfest knew it was on the right course when over $12,000 in contributions came rolling in. It proved to them that Detroit boat race fans are behind keeping the island free.

The next step will be a canister collection project on the island itself during race days. "Let's see how the Belle Isle spectators feel about keeping the island free," said Denyer.

So, if Belle Isle is your viewing spot of choice, look for the 1992 winners of the "Miss Michigan Calendar Girls" contest to be coming your way—canisters in hand. The girls and their escorts will be moving among the crowd, collecting whatever size donation that fans are willing and able to give.

The calendar girls, and their escorts, will distribute numbered buttons as a means of identifying supporters. The button system will enable the group to more accurately tally the votes to

Keep the boat races free for those who

And, for that matter, for those who can pay, but prefer this unique freespirited, freewheeling, open style of watching the fastest boats in the world compete with each other on the treacherous Detroit River race course; With any luck, the tradition will prevail.

☐ YES, We would be proud to have our name appear on a list of civic-minded individuals and companies who want to help keep Belle Isle free for the boat races.

THE 1992 UNLIMITED LINEUP

The treacherous Detroit River sets the stage for this year's Budweiser APBA Gold Cup. A field of eight to ten unlimited hydroplanes are lining up to compete for the most prestigious trophy in powerboat racing. To many, the battle has already begun with the unexpected return of seventime Gold Cup winner Chip Hanauer. Hanauer will be piloting Bernie Little's "Miss Budweiser." Hanauer faces stiff competition from 1991 Gold Cup champion, Mark Tate. Tate, a native of bine powered race boats. Qualifying will be held on Thursday and Friday, June 11 & 12. Elimination Heats will be held on Saturday, June 13 and Sunday, June 14. The Budweiser APBA Gold Cup Trophy Race is scheduled for Sunday, June 14 at 3:10 p.m. Here's a look at this year's competitors:

A fleet of over 20 Grand Prix hydros the largest class of limited inboard race boats—will be rocketing across the Detroit River June 11-14 in pursuit of the prestigious Silver Cup.

The Grand Prix hydroplane class has been racing in Detroit since 1977. This year's competition is expected to be fierce. Local favorites Jimmy King with GP RACE ROCK MOTOR CITY DINER and Paul Smith will be "going for the silver" against Plymouth resident and veteran racer Joe Tate. Tate's new "state of the art" hull is expected to pose a strong challenge for the Silver Cup. Canadian entrants with promise include GP-929, piloted by Jean Theoret and the GP-444, driven by Jeff Richards. Defending champion GP-777's Bo Shide, from Centerville, Ohio, is also expected to be in top racing form after completely refurbishing last year's boat.

Grand Prix hydroplane racing is the last haven for free-spirited owners, drivers and builders. With only two rules-minimum weight of 2,200 pounds and a maximum of 500 cubic inches — the team to take this year's Silver Cup must have that winning combination of boat, motor, driver and crew.

Testing and qualifying of the Grand Prix Hydros can be seen on Thursday and Friday, June 11 & 12. Silver Cup Grand Prix Heats are scheduled for Saturday, June 13. The Grand Prix Final is set for Sunday, June 14 at 11:30 a.m.

Families have a terrific time at the hydroplane races. Here are some of the special Thunderfest events that people of all ages can enjoy:

Elias Brothers' FREE DAY Saturday, June 13, All Day

Big Boy invites you to watch the races FREE! That's right, just walk in the gates at any of our General Admissions Parks on Saturday, June 13 and enjoy a complimentary day of thundering thunderboats. Watch for the bright yellow Elias Brothers' banners that will identify the free parks. The general admission parks— Stockton Park, Memorial Annex, Erma Henderson Park, Owens Park—are located on E. Jefferson from the Belle Isle Bridge east to Parkview Drive.

Bring your best camera and your favorite Kodak film to Waterworks Park to shoot great high-action photos of the thunderboats. At the Kodak Photo Corner, you'll have an up-close and unobstructed view of the infamous Roostertail Turn. The pros know this is the best spot for great hydro-shots. Anyone with access to the Pits, Waterworks Park and Seaplane Base may enter the Kodak photo area. Call the Thunderfest ticket office at 313-771-3750 for further information.

"Tour the Pits" Thursday, June 11 & Friday, June 12 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Tour the Dodge Memorial Pits for an inside look at the men and the machines that make up the sport of hydroplane racing. Pit tours are provided continuously by Unlimiteds Detroit, an informed bunch of unlimited "superfans" who can tell you anything and everything you'd ever want to know about hydroplane racing. Kids 12 and under tour free with an adult, older kids and adults pay just $5 for a tour. The Dodge Pits are located on the east end of the race course, at the foot of Marquette Drive, off E. Jefferson. Call 313-771-3750 for information.

WXYT - AM 1270 Wednesday, June 10-

Sunday, June 14. News Talk Radio Throughout race week, be sure une-in to AM 12/0 - WXYT for the latest reports on all Thunderfest race results and updates. Russ Small, WXYT Sports Director, will be conducting insider interviews with drivers and top race officials. For the sixth consecutive year, WXYT - AM 1270 will be providing exclusive, "live" race coverage on Sunday, June 14.

New Kids on the Course

Thursday, June 11

10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m.

School-age children are invited to tour the pits, watch qualifying in the stands and tour the Dossin Great Lakes Maritime Museum.

It's a great field trip for young people ages 6 - 12. Large groups are welcome. Kids are able to watch the race teams working on the boats and meet the race drivers. Refreshments will be provided by the Coca-Cola Bottling Company.

A lakeside estate with private island? You bet!

By Debra Pascoe

At the end of a lane leading through a newer subdivision sits a grand neo-Italianate home where ivy climbs three stories to the nowoxidized copper roof.

A cobblestone path follows an expanse of well-manicured lawn bordering Lake St. Clair, past the pool house to a bridge connecting the mainland with a private island.

Between two ancient trees, a hammock swings gently in the Lake St. Clair breeze.

Just like the island, the owner of this home encompassing more than 10,000 square feet, is also private.

After 17 years, he is selling the estate - or just the home - which is highlighted by beautiful gardens featuring Italian-crafted fountains.

The home dates back to 1922 had it built as a guest house for the Murphy estate. His daughter, Frances Alger Boyer, later lived in the home with her husband, Harold Boyer.

Visitors to the 70-year-old dwelling are greeted at the awning-covered oak front door and led into a narrow vestibule featuring wellcared-for hardwood floors and dark paneling. To the left, a stairway leads to six upper bedrooms, nearly all with a private bath.

A stroll down the hallway of the main floor ends in a brightly lit, expansive living room containing one of the home's four fireplaces.

The main floor also includes a dining room with bay window, one of two master suites, a large kitchen featuring wooden ceiling panels from the ballroom floor of the former Dodge mansion - Rose Terrace — and two more bathrooms and an exercise pool/jacuzzi off the kitchen.

"This is my favorite part of the house," the owner said, leading the way down a twisting stairway to the hobby room, one of several rooms in the basement.

A flip of the light switch reveals a small pub complete with a bar ornamented with nautical bric-abrac and three bistro tables. Just off the pub is the appropriately named "throne room" where the commode is positioned on a wooden platform capped with a large carved crown.

A wine cellar with its own bistro tables is adjascent to the pub and invites guests to share in a glass of wine and conversation. The whimsical cellar door features portions of wine crates denoting their former contents.

Home improvement enthusiasts - or those who just like to tinker - will appreciate the tool room which is equipped to do just about any job.

A trip to the second floor reveals the servants' quarters, once sectioned into three bedrooms, a bath, a linen closet complete with builtin ironing board and a nice view of the gardens below. Two of the bedrooms were combined to make one and the glass doors which formerly

That area is ideal for a motherin-law suite.

A master suite boasts another fireplace, two adjascent bathrooms (one currently being revamped), a dressing room and closet space that would please Imelda Marcos. French doors open to a small balcony offering a breath of fresh air or a spectacular view of the front la vn and private island.

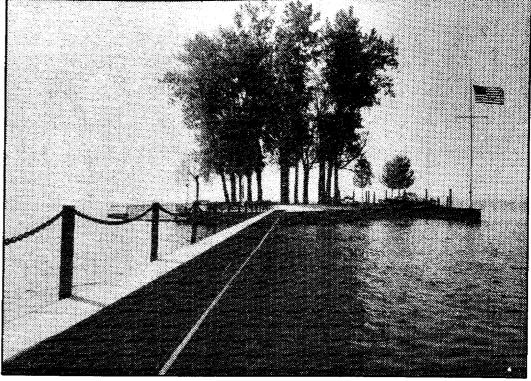

The remaining bedrooms each have a private bath and voluminous closet space with built-in drawe's. The boys' room carries out the owner's love for nautical memorabilia. A shelf laden with navigational charts hang over a twin bed decked out in red, white and blue.

The huge attic — formerly the children's playroom - spans the entire length of the house. Brightly colored paint helps disguise built-in drawers for toys and 4-foot-high storage closets. Small alcoves provide bench seating for little ones to read or watch the freighters on Lake St. Clair.

In addition to the visible rooms, the current owner said there are several smaller ones accessible only through secret passages and stair-

Selecting the right grass seed doesn't have to be tough

Buying the right grass seed doesn't have to be as frustrating as shopping for the perfect greeting card. By asking yourself a few questions, you can save a lot of time and be assured of buying the most suitable seed for your lawn.

How is the lawn going to be

If your lawn must withstand heavy traffic or children playing on it, you will need a resilient grass that stands up to wear and tear. A different type of seed should be purchased if appearance is more important than durability.

How much sun will reach the lawn?

If your lawn is mostly shaded, you should consider a grass seed for shady areas that thrives with less sunlight than other types.

How much maintenance will you give your lawn?

If you want a type of grass that requires little attention, your purchase should reflect this.

When reading the label, pay careful attention to the mixture analysis. Look for improved varieties of seed. Improved varieties are superior seeds and carry specific names like Bristol Kentucky bluegrass, instead of just the generic name. The percentages of seed are important, as well. Look for high percentages of "pure seed" and low percentages of "other seed."

Restaurants embrace the hospitality trends of the '90s

By Amy Gray Light AIA News Service

The 1990s will be a great decade for the restaurant customer. Restaurants are a low profit-margin enterprise, and smart owners recognize that if they don't pay attention to their clients, they will soon be out of business. Now more than ever, being flexible in meeting customers' demands boils down to several fastgrowing trends in the industry. In many cases, this need involves the design of the space as much as what's on the menu.

One restaurant buzzword of the '90s is "casualization" — in both food and restaurant decor. Fallen by the wayside are the power lunches that defined the '80s, chic and pretentious dining establishments, and the panache of the "celebrity chef." Children, too, play an increasingly influential role in the emphasis on casualization. Baby boomers are having kids - and want to spend as much of their free time with the family as possible. As any parent knows, kids help shape when and where families go out to eat. In the same vein, family-owned restaurants are becoming more popular as they follow a current trend of adding menu items that give more value for the dollar.

That restaurants are experiencing harder times than in their heyday during the '70s and '80s doesn't mean they won't always be in demand. According to Wendy Webster, media spokesperson for the National Restaurant Association, 43 percent of every American food dollar is spent outside the home - in restaurants, fast food establishments, and on take-out, delivery, and drivethrough services. The level falls closer to 50 percent for childless couples and single households. In contrast, eating out accounted for only 25 cents of every food dollar in 1955.

Baltimore interior designer Rita St. Clair agrees that people have become more interested in visual excitement as a backdrop to the dining experience. "The old ideas of maintaining a quiet atmosphere have been all but thrown out," she says. "We're not as concerned with acoustics as we used to be. People want a higher noise and lighting level. They want to feel part of a crowd, and they want to see what they're eating. People don't want pretension ... but to feel comfortable in a relaxed setting.'

Architect Ian Birchall of Washington, D.C., the talent behind many trendy restaurants in the D.C. area, agrees that people's level of sophistication is changing. "You don't have to build oak and brass and etchedglass restaurants to have customers feel comfortable and spend money," he says. "Restaurants, particularly on the East Coast, are becoming more theatrical. People want to be stimulated by their surroundings, so visual excitement is an important part of the dining event.'

Additionally, some of the biggest changes in the future of restaurant design will come about due to the 1990 Americans With Disabilities Act (ADA), which mandates, for example, spatial configurations to accommodate seating for persons in wheelchairs and assistance for people with vision and hearing impair-

Simple landscaping techniques add to home's beauty, value

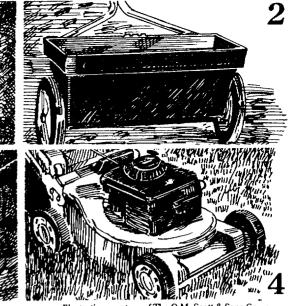

While your lawn may be getting a lot of attention during the spring planting season, you may be overlooking some simple landscaping improvements that can give your home and its surroundings a beautiful new appearance all year.

- Draw a sketch of your property to determine environmental factors. Even a rough sketch will help you identify shade patterns, areas with hard soil and poor drainage, water run-off and rainfall patterns, and the location of utility lines. The sketch should show existing vegetation that you intend to keep in your new design.
- Create a design on paper. Determine first what purpose you want the landscaped space to serve. Will it be a picnic area, a play area, a wildlife habitat, a privacy area, or simply decorative? Create the design by defining what vegetation best fits your intended purpose.
- Develop a plant list that puts the right plant in the right location. Use your design to select the approximate heights, shapes, and forms of the plants you plan to use. Match the plants with the environmental limitations (lack of sun or shade, drainage, etc.) of your site. Also determine what maintenance levels are best for you. For example, fast-growing shrubs and trees will need more pruning and some plants will offer better resistance to disease.

- Determine your budget and set priorities. Using the sketch, design, and plant lists you have made, consult with local resources such as your nearest cooperative extension service or garden center to verify your plant selections and obtain cost estimates. Don't over-extend your budget; you may need to phase-in your complete plan over several years.
- Using your local resources as a guide, shop for healthy, quality plants. Select plants that are insect, weed, and disease-free, that have no signs of injury to the trunk, that have a good green leaf color, an abundance of leaves, and a healthy root system that is not pot-bound.
- Prepare the soil before planting. Fix drainage or surface run-off problems and add soil amendments such as peat moss, compost, manure, or humus. It pays to buy quality soil amendments. Your local garden center can aid in the selection of these amendments. As a rule of thumb, about 2 to 3 inches of amendments should be mixed thoroughly into the top 6 to 12 inches of soil.
- Plant with tender loving care. For shrubs and trees, dig a planting

Sowing Grass Seed

- 1. Loosen top 2 to 4 inches of soil
- 2. Plant seed and apply Starter. Fertilizer
- 3. Keep the seed moist until it germinates
- 4. Mow when grass reaches 2 inches hole two to three times wider than the diameter of the root ball of the plant. Water-in throughly and create a water ring by mounding soil around the outside of the hole, creating a bowl to capture rainfall and irrigation water. For small plants such as annual or perennial flowers, the planting hole should be dug to the same depth at which the plant was growing when it was purchased. After firming soil around the roots and watering in, apply a controlled-release garden fertilizer, weed control, and/or mulch.

- Use mulch throughout your landscaped area, not only to provide insulation for your plants, but to add attractiveness to your site. Hyponex experts recommended applying mulch at least 2 inches deep.
- Establish a preventive maintenance plan. With the same effort and detail you used to sketch your site and create a design, develop a maintenance plan and stick to it. Your planting plan should group plants with similar watering and nutrient needs.

The Radford: modern, but also traditional

The Radford, a traditional home with modern touches, is ideal for a growing family. Its brick and turnedpost entryway, horizontal wood siding and shuttered windows look comfortably familiar. Contemporary accents are provided by the triple roof-line, cornice-trimmed gables, half-round windows and uniquely shaped stucco chimney.

Vaulted ceilings in the living room and dining area give an open and spacious feel to this medium-sized home. Two large windows at ground level in addition to three half-round windows higher up, brighten both areas and add to the airy feeling.

One unusual feature is the secondfloor bridge. It transects the vaulted area, connecting the master suite to the other bedrooms. On the ground floor it functions as an archway, providing a sense of separation between the living and dining areas while still leaving them visually open.

Placing the master suite so far from the other bedrooms gives it added privacy - a feature particularly appreciated in families with older children, where tastes in music and volume may clash. The fireplace adds elegance and invites cozy evenings while the generous bathroom offers room to spread out.

Family members naturally gravitate to the kitchen/family room area, minimally divided by an eating bar. A garden window adds charm and light to the kitchen. Sliding glass doors provide access to the patio area in summer, but on chilly winter evenings, the fireplace is the main attraction here.

Utilities and a small bathroom are convenient to both the garage and the stairway to the bedrooms.

The Radford is designed with a zero lot-line concept in mind. Two could fit back-to-back on one standard-sized lot.

For a study kit of the Radford (208-21), send $7.50 to Todays Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering).

Ratatouille in the garden: A recipe for planting and cooking

Fill your kitchen garden with vegetables ready for the skillet. Plant all the makings for ratatouille, a Mediterranean medley of vegetables cooked in olive oil and served as a main course or a side dish, hot or cold. The versatile ingredients for this recipe, eggplant, squash, tomatoes, onions and garlic, can also be used for other meals, from stir-fries to salads.

Planning the garden

The vegetables should be planted in a spot that receives at least six to eight hours of sunlight a day. The site should also be well drained and close to the house for easy maintenance and harvesting.

Nothing is more important than ensuring that the garden is fully prepared to receive and nurture crops. Vegetables require soil which consists of at least one-third organic matter. Peat moss is ideal because it holds up to 20 times its weight in water, releasing it slowly to thirsty roots.

Provide your vegetables with the proper growth environment by digging out the garden bed to a depth of 8 to 12 inches. Break up the clods of dirt and remove rocks, weeds and other debris. Mix in a ratio of one part peat moss to two parts soil.

Although using water-retentive peat will reduce the frequency with which plants need to be watered, it is still important that vegetable gardens receive at least 1 inch of water a week. When insufficient rainfall leaves the soil dry to the touch, give the garden a deep, penetrating soaking. Reduce evaporation by watering at ground level in the early morning.

Applying an organic fertilizer is also recommended. The first application should be added before tilling, so that the proper nutrients will be well mixed in with the soil. Check planting instructions for each vegetable you buy to see if the particular variety has specific fertilizer needs.

Veggies for the ratatouille

So many varieties of each ratatouille vegetable exist that the kinds you choose to plant will make the taste of your dish unique.

Zucchini: A "summer squash" which is available in shades of green, yellow, gray and black. Plant the zucchini after the threat of frost has passed. Pick the zucchinis as they ripen so the vine can concentrate on producing a steady supply of new young fruit.

Eggplant: This vegetable varies in color from popular dark purples, sweeter white-fleshed varieties, white and purple streaked kinds and even green or red breeds. They can grow as small as an egg or as large as a football.

Plant eggplants a week to 10 days after the last frost. The fruits should be harvested with clippers and can be picked while young, tender and shiny-skinned.

Tomato: Tomatoes can be the common red — or orange, yellow and green. They also come in various sizes and shapes that range from round, slightly flattened to pear-shaped.

Plant tomatoes after the last frost, when evening temperatures hit 55 degrees. Tomatoes should be planted deep so the first leaves are just above soil level. Don't worry if you bury a large portion of the stem, it will develop roots.

Peppers: Finger-shaped or blocky bells, green, red, yellow or orange, sweet or hot, there is a pepper to please every taste. Their shiny green leaves and white blossoms make them decorative additions to the garden as well.

Don't set out transplants before night temperatures are consistently above 55 degrees or the growth of the plants will be stunted. Harvest peppers with pruning shears or a knife.

Onion: An indispensable ingredient in the ratatouille and other recipes, onion bulbs grow beneath the soil as the weather warms, with lovely leafy tops announcing their location. They are ready to harvest when the tops begin to yellow and fall over.

Once the onion bulbs have been pulled up, let them dry in the sun for three or four days, after which they can be stored in mesh bags in a cool, ventilated space. Garlic: In the same family as onions, garlic should be planted in the fall. Its bulbs multiply into clusters or cloves. Garlic is harvested in much the same way as onions, but the tops can be braided together rather than removed. Garlic is a perennial bulb that can grow 2 to 3 feet high. The herb has pretty white or lavender blooms.

The ratatouille recipe

Ingredients:

1/3 cup olive oil

2 cloves garlic, peeled and chopped

1 large onion, chopped

- 2 zucchini, well scrubbed and sliced
  - 1 small eggplant, peeled and cut

3 tablespoons flour

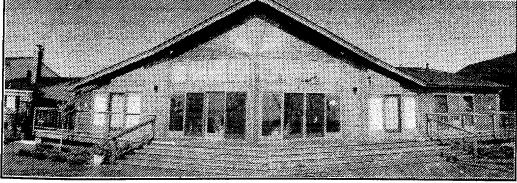

- 2 medium or three small peppers, seeded and cut in strips
- 5 ripe tomatoes, peeled and sliced Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

Directions:

- 1. Heat oil in a large skillet, add garlic and onion, saute until onion is transparent.
- 2. Lightly flour the zucchini and eggplant.
- 3. Add the zucchini, eggplant and peppers to the skillet, cover and cook slowly, about one hour.
- 4. Add tomatoes and simmer, uncovered, until the mixture is thick.
- 5. Season with salt and ground black pepper.

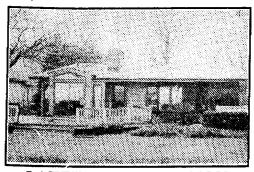

Dish out hot or cold. Makes 5-6 servings.
