Kristine and Ken Bresser won't be spending Thanksgiv. ing at their parents' house in Grosse Pointe Park this year because they're on a mission. Literally.

Kristine, 26, is a missionary with Samaritans' Purse, an interdenominational Christian relief organization that is helping the residents of Homestead, Fla., rebuild their lives in the wake of Hurricane Andrew. Ken, 24, is working with the interdenominational group Operation Mobilization, spreading the Gospel to residents of Novosibirsk, Russia.

That's just fine with their parents, Jerry and Jean Bresser.

"Today, " said their father, "you have kids who have gotten themselves in all kinds of difficulties, wandering around aimless. And in our society, more and more importance is placed on materialistic things. So we're glad our children are doing so well. We're proud of all of our children."

Kristine and Ken have two older siblings - Katrina, vice president of her father's corporation, Jerry Bresser Seminars; and Karolyn, a mother and a computer programmer with Ford Motor Co.

Besides being a missionary, Kristine is a licensed pilot, mechanic and advanced emergency medical technician.

She's been in Homestead one of the areas hit hardest by the hurricane - since Oct. 28. She has been a missionary/pilot in Tanzania; Honolulu; and New Delhi, India.

This is the first time Ken has served as a missionary, Kristine said. His father said he has been in Russia since January and will probably be there another year.

His mother said it would be impossible to reach Ken for an interview because phones are not readily accessible to him. However, he does phone

"He's bringing the Word of God to the people there. He's giving out Bibles, and the people there are pretty hungry for that, because the Communists tried to stamp out Christianity," Jerry said.

Ken attended Wayne State University and began to learn Russian before he left on his mission. He is currently staying with a family in Novosibirsk, his father said.

Speaking by phone from Homestead, Kristine said she is living in a volunteer camp next to a mobile home park.

The camp consists of five army tents that can comfortably house 75 volunteers, "but the most we had at one time was 150. Right now we have about 25 volunteers, but we expect to have 125 over the

Park studies rules governing underground tanks By Donna Walker

Staff Writer

Spurred by the belief that more leaky underground fuel storage tanks will be found in neighborhoods throughout Grosse Pointe Park in the coming years, the Park city council is looking into ways it can better protect residents during the cleanup process.

"But the problem is, it's a matter of sovereignty," said Mayor Palmer T. Heenan at last week's city council meeting. The installation, operation and removal of underground storage tanks (USTs) are regu-lated by the Michigan State Police Fire Marshal Division. When soil contamination has occurred, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources oversees its removal following federal guidelines.

The local government has no say in the cleanup plan unless the tank is located on property owned by the municipality. If the city does own the tank, then it can choose which contractor it hires to test the soil and remove the tank, if it is found to be leaking. Park Lt. David Hiller said, "When someone is going to remove an underground storage tank, they have to call us (the Park public safety department) first, because our fire marshal has to be there when they remove it to see if it has leaked.

tank - Hiller said.

The Park council has directed the city attorney and city manager to find out if there is any way the city can play a larger role in the cleanup process when a leaky tank is found buried in a resident's yard.

Park city manager Dale Krajniak said he has also been asked by the council to draft a resolution to be sent to the state fire marshal and Department of Natural Resources, asking that the city be sent copies and timetables of cleanup plans before they are implemented.

The council is taking these steps in response to complaints from residents about a cleanup project that is nearing completion the 1000 block of Bedford.

Near the beginning of World War II, a homeowner on that block had a 1,250-gallon gaso-line tank installed underground, next to his garage, because he had heard rumors that the government was going to start rationing gasoline. His widow, Helen DeKorse, 81, still lives in the house with her two disabled sons. She said the tank hasn't been used in about 50 years, and that she forgot it existed until she tried to sell her home last spring, when a building inspector discovered it.

The potential buyer called a Detroit Tank & Excavation removed Wilson's broken driveway, but before the company could pour a new one, it rained. A lot. Here, a Detroit Tank & Excavation employee tries to smooth out the mud driveway.

At that time, the potential fund that helps underground buyer said he and DeKorse would split the bill, Blewett said.

"We refused to pull the tank state, and we called Mrs. De- contaminated soil — including Korse and told her what needed to be done. That's why she's being protected by the MUSTFA fund, because we followed state and federal guidelines," he said.

Smaller tanks are called fuel oil tanks, and do not qualify for MUSTFA funds. The operation and removal of fuel oil tanks the most common type of tank in the Park - are regulated under Michigan flammable and combustible liquid rules, said 1st Lt. Art Nash of the Michigan Fire Marshal's Division.

For a copy of those rules, call the state fire marshal at (517) 322-1935, he said. DeKorse's MUSTFA claim was approved in October. She got in just under the wire, because the MUSTFA board announced last week that it would stop approving claims after 90 days.

The fund will pick up all but the first $10,000 of the cleanup cost, which DeKorse has already paid. However, it will not cover the cost of repairing her garage and her next-door neigh-bor's driveway, which were damaged in the cleanup process

DeKorse must pay for those epairs, but they should be under $2,000, Blewett said, because his company is performing the work at cost.

'Basically, we're a company that's concerned for our clients, and we're concerned that Mrs. DeKorse has already been through enough, and we feel she was a victim," he said.

However, at the council meeting last week, some few Bedford residents painted his company as the bad guy. They said the cleanup had been going on for six months and that that was too long. They also said that heavy ma-

Browning is back as mayor

With no discussion or fanfare, Lorenzo D. Browning reclaimed his mayor's seat Monday

Browning resigned last month, but the council was unable to pick a successor from its ranks, and had asked Browning to reconsider.

He did and Monday was his first meeting back on the job. Browning's term expires in November 1993.

"I look forward to the renewed opportunity to serve the citizens of Grosse Pointe and our working together in the governance and continued improvement of our city," Browning wrote in a letter to the council.

According to Sgt. Chris Powell of Park public safety, the new service means a paramedic will be available to answer nearly all emergency calls. The Park will retire its older ambulance and retain its newer one. It will continue its basic ambulance service, too.

In the past few years the Park ambulance has responded to between 450 and 500 calls a year. One third of those would have benefited from advanced life support, Powell said.

Staff Writer Grosse Pointe Park will continue to provide ambulance service to Grosse Pointe City after the City's council agreed to stick with the Park.

The Park has provided ambulance service to the City for years, and when the Park decided to upgrade its service from basic life support to paramedics, the highest level available, the City was set to go along with the plan.

But at the last minute the City received a less costly proposal from Grosse Pointe Farms.

The City's council on Monday studied the proposals from the two neighboring Pointes and decided that the Park still

A resident of the 300 block of Mount Vernon in Grosse Pointe Farms called police shortly before 8 p.m. Nov. 9 to say water was coming from a neighbor's house and the owner wasn't home.

The responding police officer saw a garden hose running up the side of the house and through a second-floor window.

The officer entered the house through the window and discovered what the problem was the owner had attached the hose to a waterbed, and had left the house without turning off the water.

The waterbed burst, and water was flowing onto the floor and the floor below it. The officer turned off the water and notified the owner.

Local Coldwell offices are official collection centers for the Toys for Tots program. The public is invited to donate a new, unwrapped toy to the program by dropping it off at one of its offices.

On Saturday, Nov. 21, the Hill office at 74 Kercheval will host a special visit with Santa Claus from 1 to 5 p.m. Children can have a free photo taken with Santa, receive a gift and enjoy refreshments.

Donations of toys will be accepted at the event and throughout the next several weeks.

Members of the local Marine Reserve will pick up the toys before Christmas and deliver them to charitable organizations and social welfare agencies in the area. The toys will be distributed to underprivileged children in the Detroit metropolitan area.

Village gears up for Santa

The 16th annual Santa Ciaus Parade will begin at 10:30 a.m. the day after Thanksgiving, on Friday, Nov. 27.

It will begin at Grosse Pointe South High School and follow Fisher Road to Kercheval and through the Village, where Santa will take up his holiday home at Jacobson's.

A troll will be the grand marshal and all sorts of costumed creatures will follow. Cartoon characters is the parade's theme.

Eight marching units, including high school bands from Allen Park, DeLaSalle Collegiate, Farmington Hills, St. Clair Shores and Troy, will appear.

News 3A 3 South sisters take the flutter and fluff out of cheerleading

By Shirley A. McShane Staff Writer

No one knows how it happened. They claim they are as different as night and day. But somehow the Oglesby sisters all made the varsity cheerleading squad at Grosse Pointe South High School.

All three also are active in Girl Scouts and in their local church youth group. Add to that the fact that they live under the same roof in Grosse Pointe City and often have shared the same classrooms during their school years. Are they best friends, miserable if separated from each other even for the shortest time? "Well.....," said Cathy, 18, a senior at South and the most outspoken of the three. "Sometimes you don't want them around when they're here. But then you miss them when they're not here.

Melissa, 15, offered a different perspective. Last summer she attended a cheerleading camp without her two sisters, who had other plans involving other cheerleading camps.

"It was the weirdest thing that ever happened to me,' Melissa said. "It was the first time I had spent any length of time without both of them.'

Tish, 16, and a junior at South, is the middle child. She said there hasn't been a time when one of her sisters hasn't been in one of her classes or in the same school. She said it is fun, but added that people do have the tendency to compare the three sisters and judge each one based on his or her experi-

(which also includes the girls' father, David, and little sister, Kristy) has moved a number of times, from Arkansas to Texas to Florida to Michigan, making the cheerleading squad was a good way to find new friends.

"Everyone on varsity is good friends – best friends," Melissa said.

Having a close-knit squad has helped the girls improve their performance, Colleen said, last year, the varsity squad occasionally cheered at girls basketball games, golf meets and a few boys soccer games. Their quest to make people understand that cheerleading is not flutter and fluff and just wanting to wear a short skirt to school sparked a number of articles and editorials in the student newspaper.

"We're working on improv-ing the image," Cathy said. 'It's a struggle. A lot of people don't believe it's a sport because we don't compete but one time a year. They think that all we do is yell Rah, Rah. Rah!"

"They said that cheerleading is nothing," Tish said. "They said we're just there for the guys and that we like to wear those short skirts to school."

Yeah, I like to freeze my legs off in December in a 12inch skirt, sure," Cathy said. "And besides, if we wanted to wear short skirts, we'd just go out and buy short skirts,' Melissa added. None of the sisters said there is hostility directed toward cheerleaders. They said they just want their peers to realize cheerleading is hard work, that it's several hours a week practice during football and basketball season, that it's practicing homecoming game routines in July and that it's intensive training and competition camps in the summer. But if people don't listen, it won't be the end of the world for the Oglesby sisters. All plan to go to college after graduation. Cathy and Melissa said they might try out for the college squad or someday coach younger girls. Tish, who is 5feet-8, said she is too tall to even consider trying out for a college team, which typically recruits 5-foot-tall, 100-pound girls.

Between their studies and cheerleading, the sisters also have reached the senior rank in Girl Scouts and serve on the Governor's Color Guard at Mackinac Island each summer.

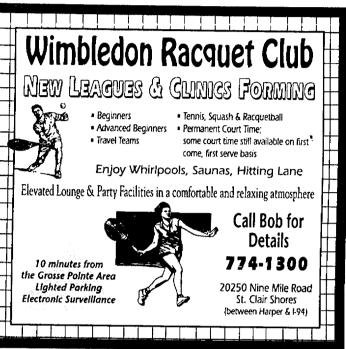

They also belong to the Radically Active Disciples (RAD), a youth discussion and community service group at Grace Community Church in Detroit. Cathy works as a co-op in a local nursing home and does clerical work for the South High School band director. Tish plays the cello in the school orchestra and the piano at home and babysits for extra money. Melissa works on the stage crew for school musicals and is involved in the clowning ministry at her church.

"Our parents want us to be as well-rounded as possible,' Cathy said, acknowledging that her schedule is full and that she wouldn't be able to survive without her appointment book.

"If all you did was play football (for example), you'd never meet anyone new," Melissa said.

"You'd back yourself into a corner," Cathy said. "If you went to college and didn't make the football team, what else would you do?"

Buy a case of food to feed the hungry

Once again, the fortunate are asked to help the unfortunate by buying a case of food.

The Gleaners Community Food Bank is sponsoring the food drive to help feed the hungry. The food is distributed to more than 180 soup kitchens, church pantries and emergency shelters throughout southeastern Michigan.

The cost for a case of food ranges from $7.20 for baby food to $40 for tuna. Fill out the coupon above and mail, with a check, to Gleaners Community Food Bank, 2131 Beaufait, Detroit, Mich. 48207.

Since opening its doors in 1977, Gleaners has distributed more than 100 million pounds of food to the poor, infants, the ill and the hungry.

Food is secured from farmers, grocery stores, food distributors and processors. The food becomes available as a results of surplus or production over-runs.

Bird feeder survey under way

How many birds visit your bird feeder each winter? Have you ever considered counting them?

If you have, perhaps you would like to join the hundreds of beginner and veteran feeder watchers who count birds visiting feeders across Michigan. They are participating in the 16th annual Michigan Audubon Society Winter Bird Feeder Survey.

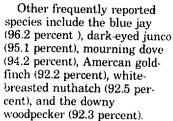

Participants in the survey count the maximum number of each species they observe at their feeder location at any one time on one day during each of the months of November to April.

Last year 345 participatns counted over 121,000 birds of 140 different species at their feeders. This averages out to be about 69 birds visiting each feeder location per count — an increase of four birds per count from the previous winter.

The goal of the Michigan Feeder Survey is to determine the seasonal distribution and abundance of Michigan's feeder birds as well as to monitor their long term population fluctuations.

The survey is a product of the research and survey committees of the Michigan Audubon Society, with support from the Research Department of the Kalamazoo Nature Center.

Michigan's most widespread feeder species continues to be the dynamic and feisty little black-capped chickadee. This species visited over 97 percent of all reported feeder locations last year and averaged 5.12 birds a location.

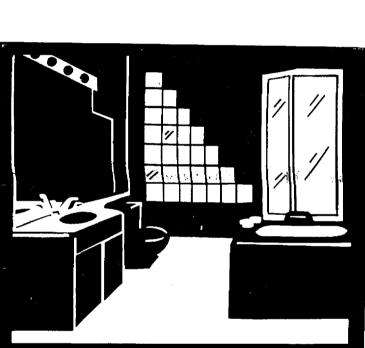

American goldfinch are still the most abundant feeder species according to participants. Feeder survey results indicate an average 7.73 of these lively and colorful finches per count.

The average remains higher than for other species, although goldfinch numbers have dropped over the past few years. One suggested possibility for this decline is competition with the increasing numbers of house finch in Michigan.

According to feeder watchers, house finch numbers in Michigan have shown a steady increase. In the 1984-85 season they averaged .14 birds per feeder per count. Last year they averaged 5.93 birds per feeder per count.

These relatively new invaders were reported at 68.7 percent of all feeder locations last season rivaling house sparrows, American robins and tufted titmouse.

If you would like to participate in this project, write Michigan Audubon Feeder Survey, Kalamazoo Nature Center, 7000 N. Westnedge Ave., Kalamazoo, 49004 or call 1-616-381-1574 and ask for the Research Department. The necessary forms and information to take part in the surveys will be mailed to you.

Can Clinton say no to all that advice? Π.

f11 resident-elect Clinton did well last week in his first opportunity to articulate his desire to make make e fi peace at home as well as abroad. -9

In his first TV press conference since m his election, he also indirectly replied to H some of the tons of advice being unloaded '19 on him and his incoming administration. to

The advice came from politicians, aca-.9 demics, assorted Americans of all political persuasion and especially from the news media, ranging from the Detroit news-91 papers to the latest issues of the news weeklies. The advice offered ways to meet practically every challenge to the American republic, presumably for the benefit of Bill Clinton and company, but often chiefly for the gratification of those offering the advice. 11

Republicans, too, have been free with in their advice about the pitfalls ahead especially if the new team doesn't follow the paths of righteousness trod by the GOP for 12 years. But Democrats aren't much better. Jesse Jackson and the nation's mayors proposed billions for rebuilding America's cities, without proposing ways to finance the plan. Mayor Young of Detroit was among the first to endorse that idea.

Everett Carll Ladd, president of the Roper Center for Public Opinion Research, warned that Clinton's victory was only a "mixed verdict," - basing his opinion on the Perot vote that "attests to a desire to rein in government and make it more responsive.'

Others, and especially Democrats, are more likely to add Perot's vote to Clinton's to show that a majority really voted for change on Nov. 3. They insist that Clinton can cite that majority to justify his claim to a "mandate."

Pointes still in Wayne County

T oned editions to serve different segments of their subscribers are ad-mittedly a headache for metropolitan newspapers, but we object to getting the "Oakland-Macomb" edition of The Detroit News.

For the information of the paper's circulation department, all five Pointes are in Wayne County except for a tiny slice of Grosse Pointe Shores known as Lake Township. It is in Macomb County.

During the election campaign, the Pointes were often fed special coverage of Macomb and Oakland counties but failed to get similar coverage of Wayne County contests in the editions delivered here.

On Oct. 14, for example, an edition delivered to the Grosse Pointe News contained coverage of county contests in Wayne County – but an edition delivered to Grosse Pointe residents contained coverage of contests in Macomb County.

After attending a movie that evening, one of our staff got caught in the rain and bought a copy of The Detroit News from a box in front of the Woods Theater to use as an umbrella. Checking its coverage, he found it reported on contests in Oakland County.

Again on Nov. 9 the edition delivered at least to some Grosse Pointers was identified as the "Oakland-Macomb edition" on Page One.

So this is a reminder to The Detroit News circulation department:

The Pointes are in Wayne County except for the residents of Lake Township who are part of Grosse Pointe Shores and located in Macomb County.

In his TV press conference, Clinton offered his own opinion about the mandate:

"I think that the clear mandate of this election, by the way, from the American people, was an end of politics as usual, an end to gridlock in Washington, an end to finger-pointing and blame.'

He followed his own advice by downplaying Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole's warnings that Clinton did not have a mandate and that he, Dole, would represent the Perot people as well as the Republicans in the Senate.

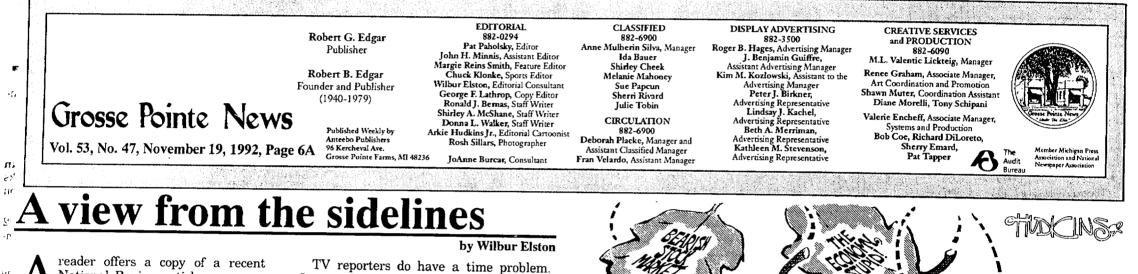

Clinton replied that he already had had "a good talk" with Dole by phone, and added that he "looked forward" to seeing President Bush and to a "bipartisan meeting" with Congressional leaders in Washington this week.

He also offered his own interpretation of a presidential honeymoon:

"I think that the American people hope that I have a honeymoon, not for me, but for them - if a honeymoon means a break in partisan political behavior, and an honest attempt by people of good will to reach agreement on something that's good for the country.'

Such comments won't satisfy all the unofficial advisers who have been peppering the president-elect with their opinions ever since Nov. 3 but by looking ahead rather than backward, Clinton is performing a valuable service for his new administration as well as for the American people.

The question is whether he can say no to most of the proffered advice and still stay on that high political road when his administration enters the All-American freeway on Jan. 20.

National Review article as a comearlier about the role of the media and Acres its supposed liberalism.

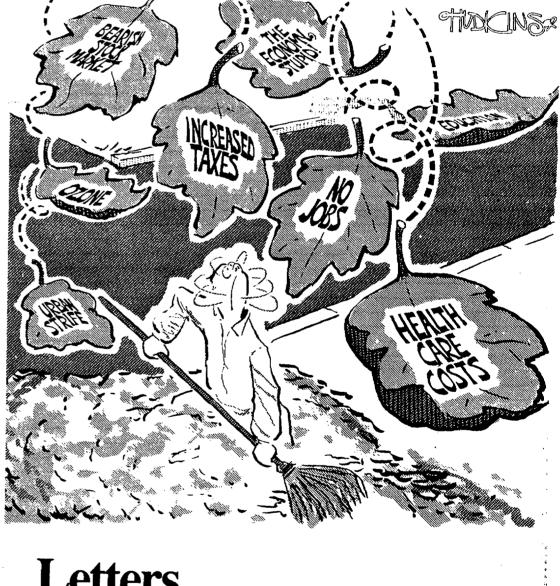

In the conservative magazine, Lorrin Anderson, an experienced print and TV newsman, contends that it is impossible "to believe that anybody with a trace of fair-mindedness left can deny the blatant politicization of the news and entertainment media.'

His examples, however, are limited to liberal bias. My view is that bias, like beauty, is often in the eye of the beholder. That means that if there is "blatant politicization of the news and entertainment media," it sometimes can be blamed on conservatives, too

In writing their brief items, they often mentary on what we've written have to eliminate the conditions and exceptions' that print reporters usually record in their news stories.

> Perhaps the greatest influence on the expression of opinion in news stories is the growing professionalism of newspeople. As they gain standing as professionals, they claim that their own views make a contribution to their stories.

Their argument is that on stories on which they are well informed, they have a responsibility to pass along to the public their own opinions or interpretations, as well as the reasons they reached their conclusions.

As a newspaperman, however, not a TV newsperson, I tend to put more of the blame for the subjective coverage of politics and almost everything else on TV and radio than on the print media.

In the first place, TV and radio do seem to be primarily entertainment media. Even the anchorpersons refer to their news programs as "shows." The implication is that their major interest is to entertain, not necessarily inform.

But, in the second place, it is true that in print as well as in electronic media these days, journalists are given greater latitude to express their opinions than they once were.

Some people blame that tendency on the increasing importance of TV news and the efforts of many in the print media to copy the practices they see on the tube and hear on the air.

Yet in both TV and print, it is also true that untrained reporters often get away with expressions of opinion or bias that careful editors or copy readers would eliminate.

But with many editors now too busy with corporate duties and, in this recession era, too few copy editors standing guard against exaggerations, mistakes and biases, opinions, too, often creep into political news stories.

Unfortunately, only a few TV stations regularly carry editorial opinion now and fewer than half of all U.S. daily newspapers expressed a preference for one of the three major candidates in the 1992 presidential election.

So more and more opinion is appearing in columns written by syndicated or local writers or even in news stories - and less in the place it ought to appear: on the editorial page or as commentary on the air.

New gridlock in Lansing?

ridlock is likely to persist in Lansing in 1993 even though the election of a Democratic president presumably has ended gridlock in Washington.

House Republicans on Nov. 3 made such a strong showing, despite Bill Clinton's statewide victory, that they won a tie with the Democrats who had controlled the House for more than 20 years.

The result is that the state faces another period of gridlock even worse than the last two years when a Democratic House squared off against a Republican governor and a GOP state Senate in a round of controversies that did little to solve the state's problems.

A new Democratic House proposal to claim control in the next session because it currently is in the majority appears to be unconstitutional since neither house of the Legislature can bind a future house to such an action.

Yet equally inappropriate are the efforts of both Republicans and Democrats to seek to extract a defector from the other party - or a person just willing to be absent on an organizational roll call early in January.

Unless a recount or even a new vote does change the 55 to 55 standoff, the Legislature could do worse than to copy the Indiana plan adopted in 1988.

Indiana set up co-speakers, one for each party, who presided on alternate days; cochairs of House committees; a deal by which bills receiving tie votes in committees would move to the House floor, and co-clerks in the House.

In addition, both sides pledged to keep the new rules for the duration of the twoyear session in order to discourage further partisan raiding attempts.

The dual-control move apparently raised the legislative budget and caused some obstructionism because committees could not conduct business without a majority, but Indiana did survive.

As complicated as it may seem, Michigan may have to limp along with a similar system for two years - unless a vacancy occurs before another election.

To the Editor:

It was with great relief that I read the article on the front of the Grosse Pointe News, Nov. 12 issue, regarding the students of Grosse Pointe South High School and their efforts to save the trees planted on the front lawn of the high school property.

The class of '52 had just planted two Norway maples as a donation to the school after a very succesful 40th reunion. We believed the trees would enhance the property, providing both beauty and peaceful shade. We were alarmed to read that members of the school board and administration wished to cut tees down. The absurdity of this idea has prompted me to write this letter.

It is my contention that the tower is clearly visable from almost every angle, unless, of course, one stands directly behind a tree. That view was similar to a photo that convinced Chis Fenton, assistant superintendent, to consider cutting the trees down.

When last I looked, the tower stood 133.9 feet above the ground. There is no need to cut down trees to see the tower. Students of SAVE, please know you have the support of the alumni in the class of '52. Margaret M. Woodhouse Grosse Pointe

Help us help others To the Editor:

As The Salvation Army approaches another Christmas season, we wish to express our thanks to you, the community, for your wonderful support through the year, and ask for your continued assistance in helping us serve the needy during the upcoming holidays.

Last year, through your in-kind and cash donations, The Salvation Army in metropolitan Detroit provided 4.6 million services to people in need and nearly 197,000 services during the holiday season. With your help, The Salvation Army was able to touch the lives of those who otherwise would have gone without.

We hope that you will join us in our efforts to meet the increased demand for Salvation Army services. You can make a difference - help The Salvation Army help others.

Family confessions

When your children grow up enough to drink beer and pay their own long-distance phone charges, parking tickets and dry cleaning bills, they start looking more like wise investments instead of embarrassing liabilities.

Sometimes they talk to you, adult-to-adult. They carry on two-way conversations. Unlike what has passed for teen-parent communication during the adolescent years, they now engage in the sort of exchanges where one person talks while the other person listens; then the listener talks and talker listens.

In addition to discussions about whose turn it is to put the dishes in the dishwasher and who filled the gas tank last, adult children often converse on topics such as politics; religion; philosophy; sex; literature; art; current events; and relationships.

The big payoff, however, is the v-e-r-r-r-y interesting stuff they tell you about the mischief they got away with when they were younger.

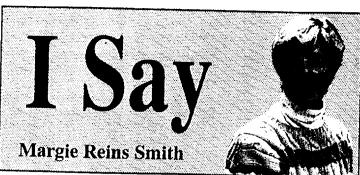

Now that you can't ground them or take away their TV privileges, they're comfortable - even smug - telling you what a dumb, trusting parent you were.

My friend Bonnie said she used to brag about what superduper babysitters her three teenagers were when her youngest son, John, was 6 or 7 years old.

"I can go out for the eve-ning," she would say, with a satisfied nod. "I don't have to hire a sitter. I prepare dinner. They serve it and take turns looking after him and they make sure he's in bed on time. They're such good kids. So helpful." Ha.

She says the older kids later confessed that they used to tie John to a chair. It simplified the babysitting business.

A couple I know once hired a sitter and went out for the evening. Their 10-year-old daughter had been grounded for some now-forgotten transgression. The sitter said the kid spent the whole evening in her bedroom, reading.

Ha. The kid said she crawled out the bedroom window onto the roof of the screened-in porch, hung on the gutter, jumped to the ground and went to the playground to meet her friends. She returned home via the front door, unnoticed, and went to bed.

I know a former teenager who, with a bunch of friends, took the family car out for a spin, without permission.

It rained during the outing. Around midnight, she and her friends filled the gas tank; returned the car; wiped it off with towels; even dried the tire marks in the garage with hair dryers.

Another twentysomething I know once claimed she parked her father's car in the lot of a local pizza take-out store. While she was inside, she claimed, somebody's car smashed smack into the middle of her driver's side door, then sped away.

"The dent is on the side of the car," she pointed out, with righteous indignation. "It couldn't possibly have been my fault. "Cars don't move sideways." Ha.

Early on, older brothers and sisters learn the art of uncovering, then poking around on the tenderest, most vulnerable parts of younger siblings' halfformed psyches. The older ones spend years honing and finetuning this skill.

My two oldest daughters admitted they teased their younger sister by telling her she was adopted. "Watch out," they used to warn. "You're returnable.'

They also told her she had an older brother. "He's in jail," they said. "Or maybe he's in college now. We can't remember.

They even stocked their bathroom with towels and a toothbrush for him "just in case he escapes," they told their youngest sister.

Fortunately, my youngest daughter learned to view all her older siblings' "secrets" with healthy scepticism.

My adult daughters recently confirmed something I had always suspected: they regularly raided my closet.

When I went out for an evening or away for a weekend, I often returned to find my clothes had depreciated ever-soslightly.

My shoes had developed scuff marks and water stains. My navy blue blazer had attracted long, blonde hairs to its lapels. The knees of my yellow corduroy slacks were dingy and stretched. My jacket pocket contained a ticket stub for a football game I hadn't attended. My best gold hoop earrings were missing.

To be fair, I must confess to some of the stuff I put over on them:

• Like fiddling with the family room clock and telling them it was bedtime.

 Like sneaking mushrooms into casseroles.

• Like not putting forth heroic efforts to assure them there were no monsters living behind the furnace. A monster hideout is, after all, a perfect spot to stash Christmas presents.

Ha, they say.

They claim they searched out, opened and examined the Christmas presents every year, no matter where they were hidden.

One Christmas Eve, after everyone was asleep, one of my daughters said she came downstairs, counted each child's gifts to be sure the distribution was fair, peeked into the packages she could pry open, then went back to bed.

At 7 p.m., she was casting her vote at Maire Elementary School. The baby was in the hospital, with his father.

Come on, you didn't think I'd let you off the hook on beef, did you?

A month ago, I sneaked in a reference to Jeremy Rifkin's new scare book about beef, "Bevond Beef." It actually kept me away from burgers for a couple of weeks. If you take it seriously - and there is good reason to do just that — you'll think twice about other kinds of meat as well.

Rifkin talks about all kinds of issues surrounding beef, which is so ingrained in the western way of life that he calls ours the "beef culture." Without rewriting his book, let's just list some of his issues: environmental effects (desertification, rainforest loss, water pollution), economic effects (wasteful use of resources), health (cholesterol, heart disease, cancer), public health (unsanitary conditions in slaughterhouses), political ramifications (rangeland and subsidy policy, disenfranchisement of the small farmer worldwide), animal cruelty (overcrowding, inhumane transportation).

Yikes. Jeremy Rifkin doesn't have anything good to say about beef.

Most of what he says is already known. Newsweek, for instance (not a particularly radical publication), ran a big story with many of the same details about a year ago. Prime Time Live and some morning talk shows did the same only a few months ago.

What makes Rifkin's book different — and radical — is his conclusion. He advocates giving up beef. Don't eat it, don't raise it, don't sell it. Period.

Even Rifkin doesn't expect us beefeaters to actually quit cold turkey (heh, heh). He has started a campaign, complete with newsletter and membership fee, to cut beef consumption in half. In the March/April Utne Reader, he listed some other organizations, including the Humane Society, that had joined with him.

Only they didn't. They thought about it and decided it was too radical. Their in-house beef info agrees with Rifkin's facts. But the argument against beef worldwide is Rifkin's own – and they don't buy it.

"It's too radical," said Eileen Liska, the state lobbyist for the Michigan Humane Society. "The public isn't ready for it and perhaps it's not even necessary in some parts of the world.

"And there are plenty of people in this organization who eat meat."

Most of us prefer to think of beef in terms of gourmet choices at the meat counter or, if we're concerned, the cholesterol/heart disease question. Liska says it's just too psychologically difficult to think of our burgers as a live animal. especially a diseased animal or a frightened one hoisted by one leg for the slaughter.

I know. I attended a livestock auction in Maryland some years ago. The sight of those frightened calves in the ring ended my veal consumption forever.

about it.

But the Humane Society does believe there are serious public health and animal cruelty issues to be dealt with. Liska is advocating a bill now in committee in Lansing.

Senate Bill 1092 would provide more humane transport and give some protection to "downers," animals that are too sick or injured to stand on the way to the slaughterhouse. It doesn't go far enough, in Liska's opinion, but she plans to work with the Farm Bureau next year on a new bill that would protect both animals and agricultural interests.

S.B. 1092 would also close a loophole in cruelty laws, making it a felony to mistreat any animal. Current laws are written from a property perspective, so that mistreating animals belonging to someone else is a felony, while mistreating one's own is merely a misdemeanor.

For a copy of the bill, call Liska at (313) 887-2184. Or express your opinion by writing your representatives in Lansing. State Sen. John Kelly and state Rep. Bill Bryant may both be reached at: State Capitol, Lansing, Mich. 48909.

If you are a food activist and want to join Rifkin's campaign, send $20 to Beyond Beef Campaign, 1130 17th St. NW, Suite 630, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Accidents involving livestock trucks are fairly common, according to the Humane Society. A frequent type is the collapse of the top layer of a two-decker truck. Downtown animal shelter manager Sherry Silk said that happened in Detroit just a

So most of us just don't think couple of weeks ago, killing and mutilating large numbers of hogs

> Silk and Liska said they always alert the local media, which, however, rarely follow the story, unless it has a dramatic element.

Mark Bateman of the Woods objects to a comment made in September, when I mentioned English-only laws unfavorably.

"It's ironic," he writes, "that in an article about the difficulties of getting along, you should imply that English-only laws are inimical to the cause of domestic tranquility, when in fact the use in the United States of a common language has greatly facilitated our progress as a nation. One need only look at the difficulties of Canada to see that the lack of a common language can hinder the progress of a nation."

Gee, I can't argue with that. And Bateman isn't the only one to point it out. Two hundred years ago there were so many German immigrants to America that Benjamin Franklin fretted noisily that German might overtake English as the common language.

As a practical matter, the United States is already an English-only country. Any immigrant who hopes to extend his social and business relationships outside his ethnic enclave must learn English. The attempts to put this into law, however, have struck me as veiled efforts to keep Hispanics down.

Bateman and I welcome further comment on this intricate subject.

What's next?

To the Editor:

Change the date of Halloween? C'mon! What's next – Christmas?

While I do understand the safety issue, parents are supposed to supervise their trick-or-treaters, are they not?

As far as changing to daylight hours, ask just about any kid - or adult for that matter - and he will tell you that half the fun of Halloween is being out after dark.

The 5:30 to 7:30 plan is reasonable. Anyone who does not want to pass out treats after dark need not turn his porch light on.

As far as changing the date of Halloween - this is a bit much. Aren't we scheduled enough as it is? Halloween just wouldn't be the same on any other night but Oct. 31st! Catherine Baril

To the Editor:

I would like to voice the concerns of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society concerning the continuing rumors of the possible sale and demolition of the old Cadieux school at 389 St. Clair in Grosse Pointe City.

Cadieux School was built in 1906 as the First District Elementary School. There were eight school rooms for approximately 240 pupils. The building to the north was added in 1916 to house the 400 high school students of the district. It remained the high school until Grosse Pointe (South) was built in 1928. It now houses administration for Grosse Pointe schools.

The school district needs modern equipment and electronic machines require a different space than Cadieux has; people need modern space as well. It is almost inevitable that economics rears its ugly number. But Barnes, which has been suggested as the recipient of those people and machines, would have to be removated, too, at surprisingly near the same amount as Cadieux. How much more pleasing to a

My mind is frequently occupied with trivial thoughts which provide a certain amount of relaxation or escape from the daily frustrations with which we are all confronted. Some of my female cronies and I were discussing the many ways in which men and women differ.

A portion of these I shall share with you, but I'll withhold those that might precipitate open war on the home front. Keep in mind, please, that these are strictly "observations" - not necessarily carved in stone, but patterns emerge, to be sure.

Let us first consider the ways in which the two sexes prepare themselves for an outing. He showers, grabs a pair of pants, a tie, a jacket (nothing has to match), runs a comb through his hair, brushes his teeth and off he goes. She draws a bath or takes a shower, anoints her delicate body with lotions to preserve the skin, manicures her nails, and then begins the makeup process. She starts by applying moisturizer, followed by a base, blush, eyeliner, mascara, shadow, brow pencil, eyelash curler and a dusting of powder. Then the hair - this could take hours to tease, fluff, curl or straighten as the case may warrant.

Next she must attempt to insert her body into a piece of nylon that would better fit a Barbie doll. Having encased the legs in pantyhose, she must assess the remainder of the underwear situation. Should she choose nude, white or black lingerie? This resolved, she must select the garment for the occasion. This must be executed with great care. It should be appropriate, feminine, chic and above all, not like anyone else's. Naturally, these criteria apply to accessories as well, such as jewelry, shoes, purses, scarves, etc.

Laundry time. he wouldn't dream of taking the time to separate the whites from the colored fabrics. Jam it all in the machine and pray. She sorts according to color, fabric content and hand washables. She irons; he doesn't bother.

He opens the refrigerator approximately an hour after she has dropped $100 at the grocery store, and declares there is nothing to eat. She suggests he do the marketing next time and he does, coming home with bags laden with impulse purchases and nothing from her list. His idea of a vacation is two hours alone in a hardware store.

They plan a trip. He throws some stuff in a duffle and is packed in five minutes. She has enough luggage to sink a cruise liner and has to "coordinate" clothes, shoes and accessories. She must also pack an entire drugstore "just in case," band-aids, safety pins, dental floss, curlers, hair dryers, nail polish, sewing kit as well as her cosmetics. All of this is considered basic maintenance and most of us tote our "faces" in a carry-on bag. Heaven forbid this precious item be lost.

He would rather drive 100 miles out of his way than admit he is lost or ask a stranger a queston. She will consult a map and talk to anyone.

Her closet has a least 15 pairs of shoes, most of them in this year's styles. His has five, most over 10 years old and resoled.

Exercise. Men can swim their daily laps, jog, take a shower and head for the offce. Nine out of 10 women can do the same with one big exception. They'll need an extra hour to set and dry their hair and put on a face before daring to leave home.

Shopping for a majority of women is an excursion often accompanied by lunch with a friend. For him, it is pure torture to be endured only during holiday seasons and preceding birthdays.

She secretly wishes that he could give birth to at least one child after a minimum of eight hours of hard labor. He would like to see her open car doors for him and carry his luggage through airport terminals.

They would both agree that some of their dreams could be realized if there were his and her phone lines and bathrooms in every house. And, isn't it our differences that fascinated us in the beginning? Enough said for today. Viva la...

13th Amendment, fewer than Letters 50 words, outlawed slavery

This is the 15th in a series of articles about the Bill of Rights, courtesy of the Commission of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

Adopted in the wake of the Civil Ŵar, the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments are commonly known as the Civil War Amendments

The command of the Thirteenth Amendment is simple and straightforward: "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.'

In less than 50 words, the Thirteenth Amendment outlawed a morally indefensible practice that had plagued the republic since its founding, and had been a recurrent subject of heated debate between Northern and Southern leaders, finally culminating in a bloody war.

In 1787, the participants in the Constitutional Convention at Philadelphia believed themselves unable to resolve the issue of slavery, so they chose to postpone it. Under Article I, Section 9 of the Constitution, Congress was barred from prohibiting the "(t)he Migration or Importation of ... Persons' into the United States for twenty years. In addition, Article IV, section 2 protected slaveholders by requiring free states to return escaped slaves to their masters.

At the time that the Constitution was ratified, there were about 500,000 slaves in the United States, and many hoped that slavery - which was already under attack from many quarters - would gradually perish of its own accord.

In 1793, however, Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin, which made possible the efficient separation of seeds from cotton lint. With the widespread introduction of the cotton gin, the southern cotton industry boomed, creating a corresponding increase in demand for slave labor.

By 1861, the first year of the Civil War, the slave population in the United States had grown to approximately four million, with the vast majority located in the South. This growth had occurred despite bitter opposition in the North to slavery and legislative efforts to curb its spread.

The growing ranks of abolitionists – led by individuals such as William Lloyd Garrison, Frederick Douglass and Sojourner Truth - decried the "peculiar institution" on the grounds that it was inconsistent with the ideals expressed in the Declaration of Independence and the moral dictates of the Bible.

In Congress, legislative measures such as the Missouri Compromise of 1820, the Compromise of 1850, and the Kansas-Nebraska Act of 1854 had attempted to strike a delicate political balance between North and South and stave off a civil war by controlling the expansion of slavery in the territories

In its decision in Dred Scott vs. Sandford, 60 U.S. (19 How.) 393 (1857), however, the Supreme Court made any further hopes of compromise legally unworkable.

In Dred Scott, in an opinion by Chief Justice Roger Brooke Taney, the court ruled that a slave who had lived with his owner in a free state could not sue for his freedom, because a slave was property, not a "citizen" entitled to sue in federal court.

Going a step further, the court ruled that, because the Constitution did not grant the federal government unfettered authority to interfere with private property rights, the Missouri Compromise of 1820 which prohibited slavery in the remaining Louisiana Purchase territory north of the States of Missouri and Arkansas – was unconstitutional.

By undoing the Missouri Compromise and casting doubt on the constitutionality of other political compromises on the issue of slavery, the Supreme Court's decision in Dred Scott brought the slavery issue to a head and accelerated the onset of the war that Chief Justice Taney thought he was avoiding.

The Thirteenth Amendment,

ratified on Dec. 6, 1865, gave meaning to the Union victory by confirming the principle espoused in Lincoln's wartime Emancipation Proclamation and formally abolishing the institution of slavery throughout the United States.

If the Thirteenth Amendment abolished slavery as a matter of law, however, it did little to accomplish racial equality, and it would be nearly another century before the efforts of the Civil Rights movement abolished the pernicious "separate but equal" doctrine and eliminated legally sanctioned racial discrimination once and for all.

community such as Grosse Pointe to lead the way in reclaiming a part of the past to serve the future.

The neighborhood which the school has served for all those years recently had a setback in the loss of the Kramer Roadhouse, next to the school, because the city had no legal right to stop its demolition. This then, is also an open letter to those who live in the Cadieux School area. Inevitably, if those who live within its shadow are willing to try and save a building, they will be joined by others who have interests as well, but without that central core of support the fight lacks intrinsic power.

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society wants to support the renovation, or if necessary, adaptive reuse, of Cadieux School, so it will remain the center of the neighborhood it has dominated for almost 90 years, as well as an historical reminder of what we were. We'd like to hear your comments, both pro and con. You can write to us at 18530 Mack Ave. in Grosse Pointe Farms, or call our vice president of preservation, Elaine Hartmann, at 882-2128.

Gloom, doom To the Editor: Now that the Reagan-Bush era has ended, who will the media, Hollywood elite and other liberals now blame for the multiple problems which continue to plague this county? If America does not become the United States of Utopia within the next year, will the media and Hollywood elite begin to blame their anointed leader and savior President Clinton?

On the day after the presidential election, the media is talking about an American economy that is "poised for a dramatic recovery." How can this be? Just the day before, (and for the entire preceding year), the media's message was gloom and doom stating that the current economy is the worst it has been in the past 50 years. And then in one day it is miraculously fixed?

'hanksgiving's special for older folks

In the litany of holidays, banksgiving is very special. It rings together families who ave not gathered for many conths. It marks the beginning the busiest season of the kçar, when shoppers become esmerized by beguiling wares, schorous carols and Christmas Licorations. But for all its gaiety and bry, Christmas is exhausting. Not so Thanksgiving.

Guests arrive refreshed and vigorous after the leisurely days of summer and the quiet tranquility of fall. They are excited to see one another and are eager to share what they have experienced since the last time they were together.

The house is fragrant and warm as food is prepared for a festive feast. The rich aroma of browning turkey is enhanced by dressing enriched with butter and oysters, spicy pumpkin pie and baking rolls. This is not the time to count calories but to enjoy in relaxed indulgence the goodness laid out on the table.

Thanksgiving is a gentle transition into the excitement of Christmas. Even the colors are subdued and soothing; brown and gold of autumn holding out against chilling winds, smoky orange, subdued green and mellow cranberry red.

Thanksgiving is more than delicious food. It is the joy that comes from family and friends assembled together.

More than any other age group, older family members experience a special feeling of gratitude for this very special −day.

Age has its advantages. One forth in time. They have perspective born of years of association and see not only the person of today, but understand and appreciate what made that person so.

For instance, a self-confident son who has brought pride and honor to the family is seen against a collage of early successes, nurtured by an interest in books and a fixed focus on what he wanted to be when he grew up.

He is the toddler, wrapped against winter's wind, waddling along as he held confidently to Daddy's hand on their daily walk. He is the eager student ready to compete in school sports and proud of the letter he earned. There is rememhome for college, the empty place at the table with an un-

To others, a daughter is a young woman on her own, at ease in her profession, a caring and loving wife and mother looking to the welfare of her family and her home.

This picture doesn't stand alone. There is the tiny pink bundle with kittens on the blanket, who looks up with the bluest eyes and heart-melting smile, reaching with tiny fingers.

Daughters are special in the collage of memory. We see them playing at being grown up, dressing dolls, setting out tea-time dishes or scolding their make-believe children. They're there, dressed for kindergarten in a new dress with flouncy skirt, hair curled and bouncy, held back with bright ribbons, glad to go, yet uncertain.

We see them still feminine but adjusting to a different mode of family life. In our memories we see them dashing and dodging down the court, determined to make a basket. We miss her, as we missed her brother, when she leaves home for college and later, a profession. There is wonder and perhaps envy that this accomplishment, if she so chooses, can be just a part of her life. She can also have the home and family which were her mother's whole life.

These are long thoughts and can only be inspired by long years of living. Out of the breadth of memories, older members of the family appreciate those that are theirs alone

In this time and place, it no longer matters so much that children are no longer the whole world. They are strong, independent individuals and we are thankful on this special day.

Happy Thanksgiving!

Jeep burgled

Sometime between 2 a.m. and 8 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 7, someone broke into a 1992 silver jeep that was locked and parked in a driveway in the 400 block of Saddle Lane and stole medical supplies and a cassette tape that were stored in the vehicle.

The Jeep's canvas top had been cut, police said.

Pointer Looking For A Community

Anyone who signed up for one of the more than 400 classes offered this fall might find Eddington seated in the next chair.

"I have to get a feel for what's going on," he said. "It's my responsibility."

Eddington was born in Canada and attended public schools in Winnipeg, Iowa, Chicago and Kalamazoo.

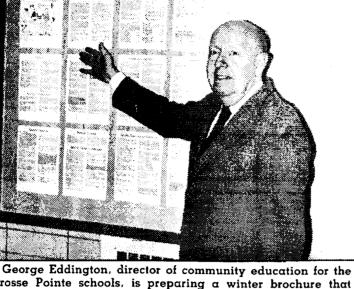

He began his career teaching high school English and foreign languages in Three Rivers, a town south of Kalamazoo. He came to Grosse Pointe in 1960, where he started a foreign language program in the elementary schools.

Eddington earned a bachelor of arts degree in English, French and Spanish; a master's degree in secondary administration; and an educational doctorate in curriculum development. all from Western Michigan University. He also attended summer sessions at the University of Mexico and the Alliance Francaise in Paris.

He attended Eastern Michigan University on a Mott Foundation incentive training grant in the late '70s and spent several weeks at the National Center for Community Education in Flint in the early '80s. He co-authored a textbook,

"Let's Learn French," published in 1959.

Eddington shifted to an ad-

George Ladington, director of community education for the Grosse Pointe schools, is preparing a winter brochure that will include more than 400 adult education and youth enrichment classes. He sits in on many of the classes and is always looking for new course ideas and new instructors.

ministrative position with the Grosse Pointe schools in 1963. "I prefer administration," he said. "It has so much variety. Look at the brochure." He pointed to the 32-page fall list the ings. "Here is everything from finger-painting to German literature; from parent/toddler programs to great books; from making baskets to analyzing the stock market," he said. One of Eddington's greatest of community education offer-challenges is finding teachers for many of these classes. "Sometimes people come to me with ideas for classes and for teachers," he said. "Sometimes I have an idea for a class, then look for a teacher. Sometimes I place ads in the papers. We offered about 450 classes this fall; lined up a couple hundred instructors; had an enrollment of about 5,500 people."

People often call to inquire about specific topics. "We take all requests seriously," Eddington said. If an instructor can be found, the class goes into the brochure. If nobody signs up, it's canceled.

"About 80 percent of the classes materialize," he said.

The winter brochure is being prepared now and Eddington said he's still searching for people who can teach Polish, crosscountry skiing, flower arranging and how to make silk flowers.

Until 12 years ago, there were no parenting classes offered through the department. "We offered something called S.T.E.P.," he said. "That's Systematic Training for Effective Parenting. The first time, nobody took it.

"Now people are anxious to take parenting classes."

The brochure lists 20 different parenting classes, including Activities With Your Infant/ Baby/Toddler/Preschooler/ Reading-Age Child; Helping Children Cope with Divorce; Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder; Wise Fathering; What Every Parent Should Know; and a Parent-Toddler program with four different meeting times.

The One Night Stand classes were Eddington's idea, and they caught on quickly. "Before, most classes were 10 weeks. I thought maybe not everyone was looking for a full semester's work. They might want to taste a subject, like pop psychology, for instance, and some special cooking classes," Eddington said. Many cooking classes are one-nighters: The Basics of Stock; Soups and Sauces; Fish; Crepes; Contemporary Meal Ideas from Paris Restaurants; Mexican Cooking: An Introduction; Holiday Desserts; Puff Pastry; Potatoes.

"Home and garden classes are popular now," Eddington said, "and so are classes on interior decorating."

Eddington lives in Grosse Pointe Shores with his wife, Marilyn. They've been married for more than 30 years. She is head of the foreign language department at the University of Detroit-Mercy and has her own Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina, Phi Beta Kappa. He walks three miles, from 5:30 to 6:30 a.m., every morning, rain or snow or shine. He gardens and likes to travel.

"We've been to Russia, Israel, Egypt, Iceland, Argentina, ce; Alaska, Europe 12 times, and ity on 20 cruises. I'm rekindling g; my interest in photography now. I always take cameras on ter trips.

Candy doctored

A resident of the 200 block of Kenwood notified Grosse Pointe Farms police about 10 p.m. Oct. 31 that he had found a sewing needle in a bite-size Three Musketeers candy bar his son got trick-or-treating.

Police took the candy bar and filed it as evidence. The source of the tainted candy is unknown, police said. "I'm thinking — thinking about taking tennis lessons and golf lessons," he said. He's also the immediate past president of, the Grosse Pointe Riverside Kiwanis Club.

"In this school district," Eddington said, "less than 25 percent of the homes have children in the public schools." Nearly, half (48 percent) of the Grosse Pointers who responded to a 1990 survey said they have participated in community education programs. Of those, 76 percent said the programs were excellent or good.

"We are a visible force in this community, providing services for everybody, from preschoolers to seniors."

If you'd like to suggest a new community education class or if you'd like to teach one, call George: 343-2178.

Meter madness

Maybe it was taken by a group of kids who thought it would be a better fundraiser than the typical lemonade sale,

Or maybe it was taken by an interior designer with an eye for unusual "objets d'art."

But in any case, Grosse Pointe City would like it back. So if you find the parking meter — pole and all — that was stolen from the 300 block of Fisher and which was noticed missing about noon Nov. 11, please call the Grosse Pointe City public safety department at 885-5800.

Kerby library expanded

By Shirley A. McShane Staff Writer

Although students and staff at Kerby Elementary School have to endure the sound of pounding, hammering and sawing, they think it's worth it to have a new library.

The current library is about the size of a typical elementary school classroom. Walls were knocked out recently to connect the library with an adjacent supply room, doubling the library space.

The new library will be carpeted, with child-sized furniture, a story-time platform and reference area and computer areas.

"We've been looking at this for several years," said Kerby principal Nancy Salamas. "The library really needed to be changed, expanded and updated. I believe it is the smallest library in all of the Grosse Pointe elementary schools."

Of the Grosse Pointe school district's nine elementary schools, Kerby is the fourthlargest in student enrollment, Salamas said.

In addition to not being big enough to accommodate the increasing student population, the library also is quite out of date, Salamas said.

"The facility itself is not up to library standards for any type of school," she said. Libraries for the '90s need room for computer terminals, CD- ROMs (compact disks that are plugged into computers to provide audio visual versions of an encyclopedia, for example), more literature and reference materials, she said.

Until the library is renovated, only one classroom at a time can use it for group projects. The new facility will be able to accommodate more than one activity at the same time.

"We're all very excited about this," she said. "We feel it will enhance programs for the kids at Kerby."

The library renovation, expected to be completed by January 1993, actually is the first phase in a much larger project.

Renovations to the library mainly will be done by the district's custodial staff and will cost the district $40,000, said Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent of business affairs. Contractors will be hired to install carpeting and complete other projects that the custodial staff may not be equipped to handle.

Structural changes and new carpeting and furniture will be financed through the site fund budget and augmented by donations from the Kerby PTO, Fenton said. Funds for the project were approved by the board of education last June, he said.

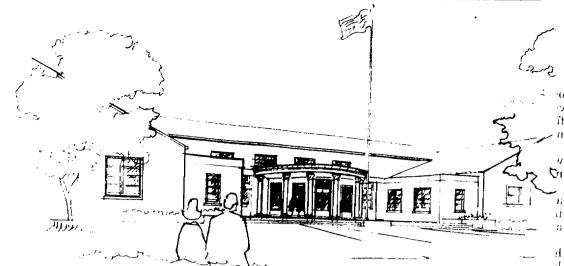

Fenton said money budgeted for Kerby renovations is the first thing to be cut when the district faces a shortfall. Apparently the school has been setting aside money for renovations for a few years, said school board president Gloria Konsler. After the project was scrapped by budget cuts the first time, Konsler said she and other board members decided that to delay the project any longer would be unfair to the students and teachers who had tolerated the cramped library conditions for so long.

The second phase of the project, yet to be approved by the board, involves redesigning the front entrance of the school facing Kerby Road. The new entrance would improve the aesthetics of the building and create additional work space for teachers, Fenton said.

The current architecture of the building provides no immediately recognizable front entrance. The two front doors are built into the sides of the school and are virtually undetectable if viewed from the road.

Plans include closing off the side doorways and converting the vestibules into teacher conference and working areas, Fenton said.

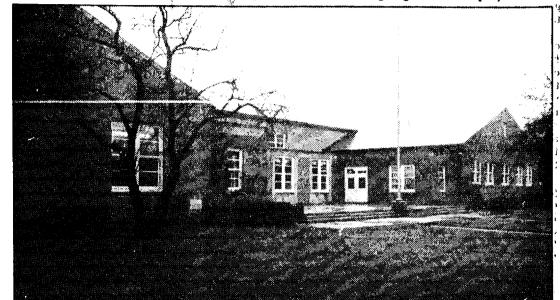

The front patio, marred by cracked and chipped concrete, would be replaced and landscaped to improve the overall appearance. If these plans are approved, Fenton said, they would cost about $65,000 and wouldn't be carried out until 1993 or 1994.

Crumbling concrete and lack of a focal point have plagued the front of Kerby Elementary School for the last few years. If approved by the Grosse Pointe board of education, a front door with portico and landscaping will be part of the school's ongoing renovation project.

There's a Big Degree Of Difference Between Our Emergency Department and Others.

That difference can be seen on the walls of our Emergency Department — in the credentials of board-certified physicians and nurses specially trained in emergency care.

More importantly, that difference can be felt by our patients who receive the most advanced medicine and the latest technology —

Like clot-busting drugs used to stop a heart attack in its tracks.

Or, highly advanced CT scanners, which produce faster images to detect everything from orthopedic injury to tumors. And treatment by staff who specialize in saving lives.

It's what we expect.

To Bosnia with love

When Vahida Livadic of Grosse Pointe Shores and other members of the Bosnian Relief Fund, U.S.A. Inc., asked for donations of food, clothing and money for the victims of the Bosnian-Serbian war in the former Yugoslavia, people listened. Last week, her garage was packed from floor to ceiling with boxes of donated food and clothing. Livadic, shown here among the donations, said they were taken by truck to the New York port last Wednesday, from which they were shipped to the war-torn region to be distributed to both Bosnians and Serbians. Her group is collecting items for a second shipment. For more information, call Livadic at 882-5038.

Group to aid victims of spouse, child abuse

A group of Grosse Pointe residents will again assemble Christmas stockings for abused children and their mothers living in shelters and safe houses in Wayne, Macomb, Livingston and Oakland counties.

Last year, more than 500 stockings were collected and delivered to shelters in time for their Christmas parties.

The project coordinators -Peri Craig, Alane Ross and Janet Maynard - ask for stock-

Guard purses: 2 Village shoppers robbed

Don't leave your purse unattended when shopping, even for à moment.

Shoppers in the Village in Grosse Poine City learned that lesson the hard way recently. On Nov. 6, about 10:30 a.m., someone stole a purse that was left unattended in a shopping cart in a store in the Village.

ings to be filled with fun and useful items for children. The mothers' gifts should be placed in reusable gift bags instead of stockings.

The group is looking for volunteers willing to help sew and for donations.

Several classrooms in Grosse Pointe, Brighton and Sterling Heights as well as sewing groups have volunteered to help make and stuff stockings this year. Ready-made stockings are acceptable as well.

This is the fifth year the group has been involved in the project. Anyone who is able to help can call Craig at 881-7162.

Woods woman's car robbed, items recovered quickly

A car owner's manual and auto insurance certificate were stolen from a Geo Tracker parked in a driveway in the 1600 block of Bournemouth in Grosse Pointe Woods, and the owner didn't know they were missing until the police told her they had been found.

On Nov. 7, Harper Woods police arrested two men riding in a car after receiving a call from a resident that the subjects where checking vehicles in the parking lot of an apartment building.

They were arrested because the driver could not produce a driver's license and because there was an unusual amount of sports equipment in the car, including tennis rackets, gym

The suspects were taken to the Harper Woods police station and their car, a gray 1988 Pontiac Sunbird, was impounded.

Inside the Sunbird, Harper Woods police found a Geo owner's manual and an auto insurance certificate belonging to a Grosse Pointe Woods woman.

Harper Woods police called Grosse Pointe Woods police, who told the woman her owner's manual and insurance certificate had been recovered.

She said they weren't missing, that they were in her locked car.

However, when she went out to her car, she found the passenger's door unlocked and a sunglass case which had been in her glovebox was on the floor and the manual and certificate were indeed missing. Latin Real and shares and starting the Civic, Accord and Prelude into the United States in 1970. The company says the vehicles 'struck a chord with American customers looking for fuel-efficient transportation with character.'

By 1974, a study already was under way to determine the feasibility of building first a motorcycle plant and then an automobile assembly plant in America. Three years later, Honda and the state of Ohio announced plans for a $30 million motorcycle plant near the city of Marysville, just far enough from Columbus that it wasn't exactly a suburb. In the fall of 1979, Honda began motorcycle production there.

Honda changed marketing of motorcycles in America with its "You meet the Nicest People on a Honda" campaign, which changed the motorcycle market's image from one of greasers to what it really was, a cross-section of America.

By early 1980, the decision was made to follow that venture with an auto plant, and car production began less than three years later, in November 1982. In the ensuing decade, wutput has grown like Topsy.

Today the four Honda of America Manufacturing production facilities (two for cars, one for engines, one for motorcycles) represent an investment of more than $2.6 billion and employ more than 10,000 "associates."

This year, production should hit 480,000 cars, making Honda the fourth largest producer of automobles in the United States. Its Accord has been the best-selling car in America since 1989.

And this year, Honda will export more than 50,000 U.S.made cars to 18 countries. Accord was the top export car in 1991 and its likely to retain that position this year.

At the anniversary celebration, speakers - particularly Honda executives - stressed how American Honda has become. The man who created the incredible company that bears his name, the late Soichiro Honda, would be as inscrutable to modern Americans as Henry Ford. And the men had a lot in common, even though they came from different eras.

Honda was a mechanic, a metalworker in the American tradition of Henry Ford, Ransom Olds, David Buick and Walter P. Chrysler. With them, he shared a loathing for bureaucracy and a love for speed. Honda was in many ways the spiritual descendant of Detroit's founders

When he commenced motorcycle production in Japan after World War II, the Ministry of Trade and Industry, which many American auto executives blame for their lack of success, was uncooperative, claiming that his fast-growth strategy "bordered on insanity." Years later, MITI again tried to block Honda's incursions into the auto business, claiming that Japan needed fewer automakers, not more.

Despite MITI, Honda Motor Co. blossomed and prospered, creating a succession of products, from the tiny, low-end Civic to the upscale Acura line.

Honda has stated the philosophical basis of his and his company's success in aphorisms such as "strength is weakness and weakness is strength." Honda explained why he never doubted that his small company could compete with the giants this way: "They are human, so am I."

Like Henry Ford, he loved his work and put that above all else. He also sought the path not taken, which led directly to success in marketing motorcycles in the United States, something his marketing experts told him was not likely.

The result was a new kind of motorcyle, not the big powerful "hogs" the existing limited maket base liked, but a small, light motorcycle the owner could carry in his car to remote wilderness areas. The Honda Super Cub not only invaded the American Motorcyle market, it changed and expanded it.

Honda dedicated his company to producing the best-engineered and best-constructed automobile possible. In doing this, the egalitarian Honda once explained: "We make no distinction between manual workers and white-collar workers. You can see it for yourself if you visit our plant in Ohio, where everybody from the president to the youngest member of the company dines at the same cafeteria, eating the same food. We don't have an executive dining room.'

In fact, executives not only do not have their own cafeteria or washrooms, they do not have private offices. Executives and production line workers are all called "associates." Everyone at the Marysville plant is accessible to everyone else.

In fall 1989, Honda and Gordon Buehrig, legendary de-Sin signer of the coffin-nose Cord 1515 and a number of classic Duesenbergs and Auburns, were mil inducted into the Automotive Hall of Fame. Buehrig was excited about meeting the Japanese auto pioneer, as he had long been an admirer. 1911

Buehrig had designed a .1913 Honda Civic CRX with a rum- 1, 1 ble seat which he wanted to make discuss with Honda. Buerig re-496 garded the Civic as a modern this Model T. However, Buehrig was confined to bed, suffering from the ailment that would take his life in January 1990. The meeting never took place. ((9)) Honda died in August 1991.

chinery and piles of debris frequently blocked the street and that workers were uncooperative and rude.

They also expressed anger toward the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, which they said has imposed rules that are too burdensome for average citizens.

Neighbors upset

One resident, Cathy Selvius-DeRoo, said the heavy machinerv used to excavate the tank and contaminated soil was putting too much wear on Park roadways, and that lighter machinery should have been used because of the tight fit between the houses.

"I am aware hydrocarbons are for the most part biodegradable and other options could have been applied here but probably weren't explored," she said.

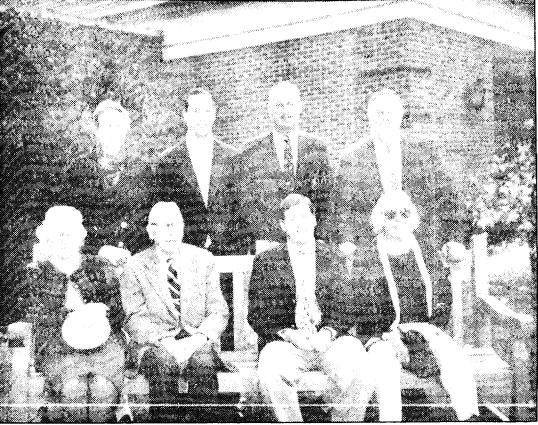

She also said that she believed that lawn and garden pesticides posed a greater environmental threat than gasoline that leaked out of a tank some 50 years ago and which was buried deep underground and capped by clay.

In addition, she said when she tried to drive home one day, a wooden barricade was blocking one end of her street and a Detroit Tank & Excavation truck was blocking the other end. She said she asked a worker to remove the wooden barricade, and that she had to get out of her car and move it herself because he refused.

Firm apologizes

Blewett and Kostric said if eir workers behaved rudely, body told them about it.

"If that's the case, I certainly pologize," Kostric said. "I feel ur people were very compeent, but they're not used to orking with the public. They sually work on large construction sites."

However, Blewett said an apology isn't enough.

"If one of our workers has behaved like that, I don't want that person working for me. If there's a problem, people should call me at my office and I will bring the perpetrator in and rectify the problem," he said.

He and Kostric agreed that the excavation rig and other the excavation and removal of large equipment used to remove the tank and contaminated soil were designed for commercial sites, and that when they're used in a residential area, it's a tight fit. But they said they didn't have any smaller equipment that could do the job.

In addition to not charging DeKorse the labor cost of repairing her garage and pouring a new driveway for her neighbor, Detroit Tank & Excavation professor who decides which will use its trucks to move her belongings to her new house for free, Blewett said.

'We didn't want her to have to hire a moving company, after all she's been through," he said.

vation did a "fine job" and that she wanted to thank her Realtors, Bobby Ligan and Dennis Andrus, president of Prudential Grosse Pointe Real Estate Co., for helping her wade through bureacratic red tape and for helping her find an attorney who specializes in environmental law.

Andrus said he thought Detroit Tank & Excavation got a "bad rap" at the council meeting, and that it "was only doing what it had to do to follow DNR and Strata Environmental guidelines."

Strata Environmental is the state-approved geologist that monitored the excavation.

Removal begins

DeKorse's tank was removed in May, and the contaminated soil was removed over a threeday period in October, two days after her MUSTFA claim was approved, Blewett said.

Her garage has been repaired, and the only thing left to do is pour a new concrete floor in her garage and a new driveway for her next-door neighbor, which cannot be done until the ground - soaked from recent rain and snow storms dries, he said.

There are ways other than contaminated soil to deal with fuel spills, Blewett said. In some instances, the soil can be washed or treated with a contaminant-eating bacteria, he said. "But those other methods take longer, and Mrs. DeKorse wanted this to be over as soon as possible so she could move into her new home," he said.

Detroit Tank & Excavation has on staff a Wayne State University hazardous materials method of cleanup would be the most effective and most cost efficient in each situation, Blewett said.

Why did the cleanup process take almost six months?

Blewett said the biggest DeKorse said she and her holdup was waiting for ney who was working for De-Korse at the time and whom she later discharged.

DeKorse's daughter, Carol Walther, said neither she nor her mother wanted to talk about that.

But Walther did say, "It would have taken another six months if Mr. Andrus and our environmental attorney hadn't got the state to speed up its approval."

Tank perforated

When DeKorse's tank was removed, it was apparent that it had leaked at one time because it was perforated, Blewett said.

Detroit Testing and Engineering, a division of Detroit Tank & Excavation, used adrilling rig to take soil samples in the summer, after DeKorse's first attorney was discharged, Blewett said.

To find the depth and width of the contamination, cylindrical soil samples with a diameter of 2 inches and a length of 2 feet were taken horizonally and vertically, until no more contamination was found.

The samples were tested on the site, using field equipment, Blewett said.

"We didn't find any contamination at all until we got to a depth of six feet below grade," he said.

Then, the contamination continued down six to nine feet, depending on the location, and gasoline had leaked into the soil several feet below De-Korse's garage floor, which is why it had to be dug up.

The contaminated area covered almost two-thirds of her back yard.

No contamination was found under her next-door neighbor's driveway. It was torn up because heavy machinery had been driven over it, causing the cement to break.

Detroit Tank & Excavation submitted its cleanup plan to the state, and resumed work at the site once the state approved the plan, Blewett said.

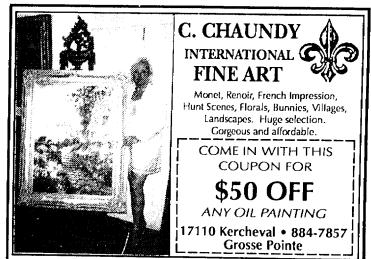

Workers dug down six feet, placing the clean soil in a pile in her yard. Then, Blewett said, they excavated the contaminated soil and hauled it to an approved hazardous materials landfill.

Once the contaminated soil was removed, the clean soil was placed back in the hole.

In all, about 450-yards of contaminated soil was removed from DeKorse's back yard.

No one knows how many gallons of gasoline leaked out of the tank, Blewett said.

"It's been a nightmare," DeKorse said. "I'm glad it's almost over."

THE BMW /4Ui WAS DESIGNED TO GIVE ITS DRIVER PEACE OF MIND, NOT JUST PEACE AND QUIET.

Cradled in the driver's seat of this luxury car, you may find one of . the quietest places on earth.

The noises associated with most suspension systems have been banished from ours. The vibrations inherent to most engines, made virtually extinct. In fact, every sound not helpful to the driver is not there.

All because we want your undivided attention focused on the road. Not on the car.

Of course, the peace of mind this BMW offers extends well beyond the decibel level of its rather lavishly appointed cockpit.

• If Vi Champane hadn't got ten lost one day this past Feb mary, she would not have walked into Gerry Beaupre's shop and the two women would probably not be in business together today

"It was fate," Champane said of her chance meeting with Beaupre. Both had been running similar businesses Beaupre owned Fabulous Finds on Wayburn and Kercheval and Champane operated Heirbom Accent out of her Grosse Pointe Farms home.

"We never even heard of ouch other," Champane said, adding: "We connected."

The two decided to pool their inventories and open a shop together. "Our families thought we were crazy," Beaupre said. They found a storefront on Kercheval at the corner of Beaconsfield and spent a month cleaning, painting and renovating. Heirloom Accent opened for business June 10.

Their efforts were rewarded by the Grosse Pointe Park Beautification Commission, which honored them last week during an awards ceremony at Tompkins Center.

The women have three rooms of used and antique furniture, collectibles and jewelry. Some of the overflow furniture is in the basement. "We take items on consignment and we buy and sell," Beaupre said.

Their inventory includes mahogany, oak and cherrywood dining room sets, coffee tables, odd tables, chairs, paintings, mirrors, art deco pieces, crystal lamps and chandeliers, a grandfather clock, linens, tea sets

They will go to people's houses. "We love to mix old with new," said Champane, who studied interior decorating at Wayne State University before her marriage.

"We've gone in and rearranged a person's living room and hung pictures and mirrors," Beaupre said.

When the inventory gets low, "we put on our running shoes and go looking," she added.

Besides garage sales, estate sales and auctions, the women say they read the Grosse Pointe News classified ads to stock their store.

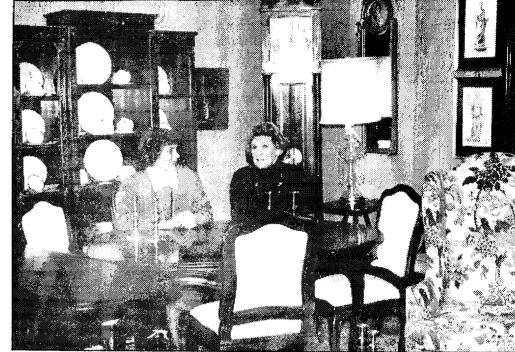

Their shared love of furniture goes back to their early years. Champane recalled that the Detroit Institute of Arts would change its furniture display every month to a different period and "I'd be down there."

Beaupre said, "I always loved furniture. My mother started me going to antique shows.

Before she remarried, Beaupre lived in Grosse Pointe Woods. Now she and her husband Doug, who owns Beaupre Interiors in Grosse Pointe Park, live in a 102-year-old house near Wayne State University. Between them, they have five adult children.

Champane and her husband James, who runs Variety Foods in Warren, live in the Farms. They have four children and four grandchildren.

Fontbonne's White Christmas Ball is Dec. 11 Benefit is for deaf, hearing impaired program at St. John Hospital

By Margie Reins Smith Feature Editor Ardis Gardella and Joan

Kelly share a dream.

Gardella is general chairman of the Fontbonne Auxiliary's 39th annual White Christmas Ball. Kelly is associate administrator, operations and plant services, for St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

Their long-term goal: "This year's White Christmas Ball is going to be the spearhead for what we hope will be a national ear institute here in Detroit at St. John Hospital," Gardella said. Their short term goal: "Proreeds from

Gardella the ball will be used for equipment for the deaf and hearing impaired," Kelly said. "For instance, we'd like to install four coin-operated TDD telephones for the deaf around the hospital

Kelly said that 4 percent of the population of Michigan is profoundly deaf; an additional 6 percent have conditional hearing impairments.

Both women agreed that community awareness, services and support for people with hearing impairments are in short supply nationwide. Adding to the problem, Kelly said, is the reluctance by many people with hearing difficulties to seek services and support.

"It's difficult to find classes for the deaf in most communities," Kelly said. "Many of these people don't even identify themselves as deaf when they come to this hospital. They read lips or they have other ways to compensate for their loss. They're reluctant to tell us they can't hear."

Currently, the hospital has two interpreters who work on call, assisting hearing impaired patients in labor and delivery, the emergency room and in surgical and inpatient situations.

Many deaf and hearing impaired people don't know about devices and aids that are designed especially for them.

There are alarm clocks that shake the bed," Gardella said. "I never knew these existed until recently. There are flashers for doorbells; dogs who assist the hearing impaired; a relay service that's offered through Michigan Bell.'

Proceeds from this year's ball will help fund some start-up needs for the proposed program for the deaf and hearing impaired at St. John: in-service education for the entire staff, for instance; community education programs about childbirth, new baby care, parenting and pediatric first aid; the purchase of interpreter flash cards for all nursing units; the purchase of amplified telephones; and the printing of a brochure identifying services for the deaf and hearing impaired.

Beyond the White Christmas

Ball, Gardella and Kelly have set their sights on establishing an endowment fund to sustain an expanded audiology and otolaryngology department at St. John, with services such as diagnostic evaluations, community education, self-help and support groups, research, a hearing aid recycling program, rehabilitation services, public awareness programs and more.

Gardella sees the program as "the finest ear medical-surgical center in the Midwest.

The invitation for the Fontbonne Auxiliary's annual White Christmas Ball, above, is an illustration from Carol Heyer's book "The Christmas Story." Ardis Gardella, chairman, said the painting captures exactly the sentiment she was seeking: the presentation of a gift to a child.

At the right, a hospital employee demonstrates a TDD, a telephone for people with hearing loss.

Actress Marlee Matlin, above right, is the only deaf actress ever to win an academy award. She is the celebrity honorary chairman for this year's ball. All proceeds from the event will be used to purchase equipment for the deaf and hearing impaired at St. John Hospital and kickoff a long-term program to aid the deaf and hearing impaired in the community.

area – Grosse Pointe, Warren and St. Clair Shores – that needs to offer more assistance for people with hearing problems. Parents of children who are deaf or hearing impaired should have access to some of this information and these aids.

The White Christmas Ball will serve as a kickoff for the program. The black-tie benefit will be Friday, Dec. 11, at the Country Club of Detroit. Entertainment will be by New York's society band, The Bob Hardwick Sound. Cocktails will begin at 6:30 p.m.; dinner at 8. Invitations and favors follow the theme, "The Spirit of Christmas," and use illustrations from a children's book, "The Christmas Story," written and illustrated by Carol Heyer. The California artist donated autographed copies of her book and has permitted its illustrations to be used on the ball invitations.

Tickets are $200 a person. Late-night buffet and dancing tickets are $50. Actress Marlee Matlin of Los Angeles is celebrity honorary chairman for this year's ball. Matlin is spokesman for the National Captioning Institute and is involved in raising funds to support closed captioning on TV and videocassettes. She supports a number of charities for the deaf and hearing impaired, primarily those which benefit children.

Matlin is acquainted with the Rev. Ken McKenna of St. John, who serves as pastor for the deaf in this diocese, Gardella said. "This group has made the hospital more conscious of the need for more sensitivity to the deaf community.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lamparter of Grosse Pointe Shores are honorary chairmen for the 1992 ball. Victoria Keys of Grosse Pointe Woods is president of the Fontbonne Auxiliary. Sister Jacqueline Wetherholt is director and Sister Verenice McQuade is community relations chairman.

Tickets to the White Christmas Ball may be purchased by calling the Fontbonne Auxiliary office at 343-3675 by Monday, Nov. 30.

Eighth annual Festival of Trees will be Nov. 26-Dec. 5

Festival of Trees, a benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan, is back for its eighth annual holiday visit. This year's extravaganza will include 90 professionally designed holiday trees, an elaborate gingerbread village, Santaland, children's activities, vignettes, an aisle of wreaths and continuous entertainment.

The festival will be open daily from Thursday, Nov. 26, through Saturday, Dec. 5, at the Riverfront Ballroom of Cobo Conference/Exhibition Center. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., except Thanksgiving Day, when hours are noon to 4 p.m.

A Teddy Bear Tea will be held at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 28, featuring a box lunch, songs, entertainment, a magic show and Santaland characters for children.

Tickets for the tea are $6.50 for children; $8 for adults. Seating is limited and reservations are necessary. Call 745-0178. An opening night preview party will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 25. Bella Marshall Barden and Don Barden are honorary chairmen of the preview party and Catherine Leahan of WJBK-TV will be mistress of ceremonies. Guests can preview the holiday trees, join in singing Christmas carols and bid on Christmas items. The trees, gingerbread houses and wreaths will be sold or raffled during the party.

Tickets to the preview are $100. For ticket information, call 745-0178.

The Detroit Festival of Trees, one of the largest events of its kind in North America, is the primary fundraiser for Children's Hospital of Michigan and has generated more than $2.4 million for the hospital's Evergreen Endowment Fund, which researches the causes and cures of childhood diseases.

Tickets to the festival are $4 for adults; $2 for children; $3 for senior citizens. Tickets are available at the door or at all TicketMaster outlets, 645-6666.

The Pastor's Corner

The drawing room

By The Rev. Nancy Allison Mikoski Grosse Pointe Memorial Church

About 12 years ago, while attending summer camp at Forest Home Christian Conference Center in southern California, I was given a wonderful little booklet about living with Christ as the Lord of our lives. About two weeks ago, I picked up "My Heart, Christ's Home" again.

The author of this booklet says that inviting Christ to be Lord of our lives is like inviting him to live in our homes. The rooms of our house are compared to the areas of our lives. For instance, the kitchen is a metaphor for our desires; the play room our friendships, hobbies and social life. The room that intrigues me the most is the drawing room. The author describes it as a cozy library with a warm fire crackling in the fireplace. This is a metaphor for our devotional life. It is in the drawing room that the Christian comes to meet with Jesus for daily Scripture reading and praver

But as the months go by, The Christian becomes busy and pre-occupied with other pressing matters. The time with Christ becomes shorter and more rushed and then is skipped altogether. Eventually, those meetings in the drawing room are more the exception than the -rule.

As I shared this story with the confirmation students from our church, I realized that the description of the Christian's life is not unlike my own experience. At times it is warm and soothing, like a fire in the fireplace on a cold, damp day. But at other times, I rush right past the drawing room, failing to meet the Lord.

One day, the Christian in "My Heart, Christ's Home," goes zooming past the drawing room on his way to an important meeting downtown. He notices that Christ is sitting there by the fire waiting for him to come in for a time of fellowship, learning and conversation. Christ gently tells the Christian that he has missed their time together. He comes and waits patiently every day, hoping for a day when the Christian makes time to come in and sit for a while.

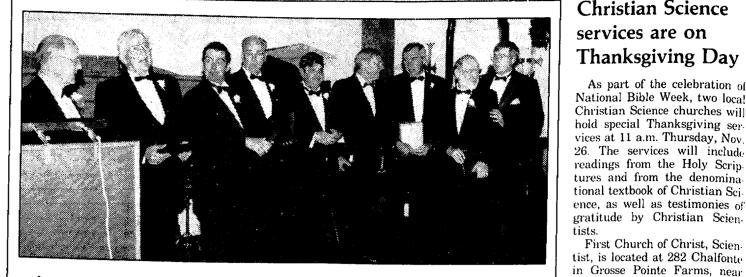

Many Christians experience dry spells in their devotional lives. It is comforting to know that Christ is faithful to us, even when we are undisciplined or unmotivated. But it is also challenging to think that Christ lovingly waits for us, longing to be a part of our busy lives. Perhaps it is time to look again at our schedules and carve out time to sit by the warm fire with Christ in the drawing room.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION Bridge by Woody Boyd 秦 🎔 🔶 秦

There are two things one must aim at in playing this wonderful game. First, to learn how to effectively perform and after that to enjoy it.

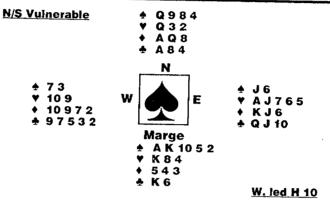

Marge Chariot, it seems to me, has taken giant strides towards achievement and after a play with her the other day I can assure you she's a refreshing pleasure.

Have you ever happened along at a time when two fine performers are prosecuting the improvement of a plebian's play? If so, you should listen intently as there is much to be gained. Not that experts spend extended time with those below, but on occasion they will, for they also have a sincere interest in promoting proficiency. The verbal perks they extol in bugling progress relate to such totally important measurements as training, discipline, technique, judgement and creativity. If you are a witness to such good opinion used in tribute to an advancing player get a date. You'll most likely have a very good game. Seldom have I been disappointed after someone has suggested I play with one who has been labeled, "new and improved." I would place Marge Chariot in that assemblage. She's well trained, disciplined and her judgement is commendable. Experience, especially against better players will develop her technique, but creativity is God's gift and it only shows at consequential times. Unfortunately, all of us aren't so armed with this genius, but it's not a major ingredient needed to succeed.

Kibitz Marge's craft on this difficult hand from our Friday game at Judy's a few weeks ago. You have the benefit of seeing fifty-two yet the right route to glory isn't easy. In fact, it's a severe test for even the best yet Marge managed it handily even though the outcome was in doubt till almost the end.

I like my partner's overcall as opposed to a take-out double. She had 13 H.C.P., but her hand wasn't shaped to support the other three suits and the high card requirement was lacking to bid one no trump. I might have cue bid hearts to show spade support and a superb hand to determine the value of her overcall, but we would have landed in the same contract no matter the bids employed to get there.

My thirteen card display wasn't what declarer had hoped for, but she showed no emotion and went about her work. She could easily lose two hearts and two diamonds. To her advantage was the knowledge that East held every missing high card to justify his opener.

Marge won the heart king in her hand and rattled off the following five tricks. Ace, queen of trumps then the ace, king of clubs and a club ruff climinating further play of that suit by the defense without it costing them severely. At trick (7) she played a small heart toward dummy. West played the nine and watch this technique. She docked full well knowing the queen couldn't win! This was some kind of a play, but it wasn't over yet! West switched to the diamond ten and my amazing partner played the ace! Next the queen of hearts and East was end played. Any other play by declarer and the defense prevails, winning four tricks in the red suits. The remaining pairs playing four spades were going down. No one played 3NT an interesting contract as the cards are which will also produce ten tricks with careful play.

Coppola bleeds 'Bram Stoker's Dracula' dry

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

8B

The title says it all, "Bram Stoker's Dracula" is a ponderous, pretentious title. So is the movie.

Francis Ford Coppola has taken the Dracula legend - the basis of more movies than you can shake a stake at - and drained all the life (so to speak), most of the horror and all the humor out of it.

Still, the film is visually stunning and always a feast for the eyes. But that isn't enough to carry it for a full 130 minutes.

The movie starts with the fascinating, if gruesome, ac-count of how Prince Dracula (Gary Oldman), the bravest of knights who fought in the crusades, became the Prince of Darkness. Of course, the transformation hinges on his love for a woman.

Four centuries later, when the woman has been reborn in the body of Mina Murray (Winona Ryder), the Transylvanian prince maneuvers events across several continents to recapture the love they once felt.

He begins by calling Mina's fiancee Jonathan Harker (Keanu Reeves) to Transylvania. Harker is a real estate agent and Dracula is purchasing a lot of property in England through Harker's firm. After a frightening journey, Harker is greeted at a forbidding castle by Dracula, a hideous specter who does the most bizarre things. Why Harker doesn't run after Dracula licks a straight razor Harker has just cut himself with, or after a mirror Dracula looks in shatters, is a little confusing.

Dracula keeps Harker a prisoner in his castle by making him the sex slave of three vampire brides while Dracula goes to England to meet Mina.

On his way to Mina's bed, Dracula seduces her young and ludicrously horny young friend Lucy (Sadie Frost). Lucy's fiancee and a coterie of her admirers watch Lucy grow strangely pale - not to mention increasingly horny — so they summon Professor Abraham Van Helsing (Anthony Hopkins), "the metaphysical philosopher." Oh, that Professor Abraham Van Helsing. He examines Lucy and convinces everyone a vampire is on the loose.

After Lucy dies - as much as any vampire can - her admirers, led by Van Helsing, try to thwart the vampire's plans to make Mina his bride. But Dracula is several steps ahead of them. And the vampirefighters are stupid.

For example, they know that a vampire can appear in any form and get in any place it wants to, so when they go off to destroy the demon, they leave Mina alone in an office in the insane asylum where Dracula's minion Renfield (Tom Waits) lives

And that's the problem with the whole film. It's populated with more idiots than the asylum.

On top of that, it's hard to follow what's going on, which is probably the reason for the title. It's almost as if Coppola is saying, "See, this is Bram Sto-ker's Dracula, not mine. I didn't write this mess.

There aren't any good scares and the overall feeling isn't even creepy. You leave feeling cheated.

The acting is fine, but not good enough to single anyone out. Oldman is a little difficult to understand, though, through his thick Transylvanian accent.

The sets, special effects and make-up — especially when Dracula appears as a bat - are amazing, but again, they aren't

Bram Stoker's Dracula Author writes for the kid inside

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

When Doug Cushman writes his children's books he has one particular child in mind: Doug Cushman.

"I write for myself, for the kid inside of me," Cushman said from his home in Connecticut during a recent interview. "I write what I'd like to read."

Cushman will be at the Grosse Pointe Central Library Saturday to offer a workshop for teachers in the morning and talk to kids about his books in the afternoon.

His visit is part of National Children's Book Week, Nov. 15-

Cushman considers himself first an artist and has illustrated 55 children's books, nine of which he also wrote. His big sellers are "Possum Stew" and "Camp Big Paw." His personal favorite is "Aunt Eater Loves a Mystery.'

"I am a mystery freak," he said. "Aunt Eater is my nod to Agatha Christie and Miss Marple.'

Born in Springfield, Ohio, he graduated in 1975 from the Paier School of Art and began a career in free-lance illustration by designing toy packages and drawing film strips. When he started illustrating film strips of classic books he felt he could also do picture books.

"Picture books aren't neces-sarily children's books," he said. "They are entities in and of themselves. The words can tell the story, but not quite, and the pictures can tell the story, but not quite. A picture book is the perfect marriage of words and pictures. They're a lot of fun.

He gets his ideas from everywhere. "Possum Stew," for example, is based on a folk tale he heard around a campfire while on a trip to Africa.

'It's amazing how many similarities there are in folk stories around the world," Cushman said. "A lot of the themes are the same and the morals are also similar.'

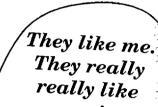

Describing himself as a "voracious drawer," he said he comes up with the characters first, and the stories later.

"My stories are characterdriven," he said. "I have to see the character on paper before it comes to life for me." And he finds the medium of a picture book challenging because it is so unlimited.

"Stylistically, you can do anything with a picture book," he said. "It can be cartoony, or more arty. I've even seen photographs and collages in picture books. That's why they're so exciting. And that's why so many people of all ages like them.'

Cushman will conduct a onehour workshop for adults from 9 to 10 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 21, at Central Library. He will sign books at 11 a.m. at Third Coast Booksellers on Kercheval in the Park. At 2 p.m. he will host Chalk Talk, a how-to for kids at Pierce Auditorium. All events are free.

For more information, call 343-2091.

The reviews are in — the critics like it f

Students in Defer Elementary School's second grade classes taught by Carol Fraser, Dorothy Black and Paula Black, and the second and third grade students in the magnet class taught by Sonya Franchett, recently read and reviewed books illustrated and/or written by Doug Cushman to prepare for his visit Saturday to Grosse Pointe.

Judy Turnbull, third grade, said, "Possum Stew" is about a tricky possum and a not-so-dumb bear and 'gator. I think anyone from 2 years old to a grown-up ould like this book because it has funny details in the pictures." Second grader Kelly Cenley said, "If you need a laugh sometime, read 'Possum Stew.' The critics were unanimous in their praise of "The" Fourth Little Pig" by Teresa Celsi with illustrations by Cushman. It's the sequel to the story of the three little , pigs and introduces their little sister who teaches them not to fear wolves. "The story is fun because of the rhyming words. It has' big pictures so everybody can see them," said second grader Allison Bukowski. And Lauren Harrington, second grade, saw the feminist side of the story: "This story is good because brothers usually teach sisters not to be afraid.' Cushman's "Camp Big Paw" also received good notices. "I like this book because it teaches a lesson," said sec-ond grader Paul Mardirosian. "It's a surprise and because the pictures are good."

Attic's 'Fences' is a rare gem

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

The Attic Theatre is on a roll

It took a chance and won big by casting Detroit area teens in "Runaways," the opening production of the theater's 1992-93 season.

it's taking another Now chance with August Wilson's stirring Pulitzer Prize-winning drama "Fences.

A play so huge in scope and so tightly drawn could have been deadly if the cast weren't up to the challenge. But the Attic has brought together a coterie of the most talented actors in the Detroit area and the result is an evening of powerful theater.

Most of the cast members are reprising roles from the 1989 award-winning production of the play by the Detroit Reper-Theatre. Council Cargle tory and Jennifer Jones reprise their roles as Troy and Rose Maxson; Tim Rhoze returns in the role of Lyons, Troy's drifting oldest son; and Anthony Lucas also returns as Gabriel, Troy's dimwitted brother.

It's tempting to compare 'Fences'' to Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman." Both are about men who are unwilling to give up illusions despite the fact that the truth keeps hitting them between the eyes. Both Troy Maxson and Willy Loman have 34-year-old sons who can't seem to find their purpose. Both wives support their husbands even as they

Ethel who? This 'Annie's' a winner

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

What do you do with a musical that made Ethel Merman a star? A show she in turn made so definitely her own that it was thought no one could ever put their stamp on it?

Well, if you're Susan Dawn Carson, who plays Annie in the Birmingham Theatre's production of "Annie Get Your Gun," you just stomp onstage and belt out your numbers country style.

Goodbye Broadway, hello Nashville.

Another who should be credited for this new and rousing "Annie" is director and choreographer Worth Gardner. He has given it authentic early-American style.

Although it is set in the Wild West of Buffalo Bill's time and remembers its Broadway roots, "Annie" is politically correct for 1992 audiences. The meantto-be funny references at the expense of Indians have been edited out and Annie becomes Chief Sitting Bull's daughter in a dignified ceremony befitting an honorary induction.

A spare stage with a balcony wrapped around it serves as a setting for scene changes with few and unobtrusive movements of props. Songs and dialogue achieve added dramatic impact with the addition of a runway that extends beyond the stage into the audience.

In this wild and wooly re-vival of "Annie," Gardner displays the same exciting creativity that worked so well in his productions of "The Wizard of Oz" and "Man of La Mancha," seen last year at the Birmingham.

Gardner's creative production of "Annie" is outstanding, but the laurels that make the show timeless belong to Irving Berlin. A musical treasure, this double-barreled, tune-filled starburst has been a source of material for singers since it hit the stage in 1946.

The rousing "There's No Business Like Show Business" and "The Girl That I Marry" are just two of the many timetested numbers that call up memories.

But a production, no matter how well it is directed and choreographed, or how great the music, can only be as good as the cast. And the cast at the Birmingham is very good indeed.

Carson as Annie Oakley is a dynamo of energy and is delightfully entertaining. No hint of Ethel Merman here. Broadway gives way to country music and when you hear her sing "Doin' What Comes Naturally" you'll agree that's the way it should be done.

The story around which the music revolves presents a number of comic situations. There is the competition between Buffalo Bill's Indian show and Charlie Davenport's cowboys, especially when the two shows hit the same town on the same date. There is Annie challenging sharp-shooter Frank Butler to a contest that will prove who is the better shot. She wins but then realizes her mistake. She has fallen in love with Butler and knows that "You Can't Win a Man With a Gun." Both shows fail to attract audiences and turn to Chief Sitting Bull for backing. He is sitting on land deeded to him by the government, which he says is not good. "You can't grow anything on it. All it produces is oil," he says.

Peter Reardon as Frank Butler has all the dash of Rhett Butler plus a fine voice with a range that accommodates both the boisterous "My Defenses Are Down" and the sweet and lovely, "They Say It's Wonderful.'

Others who add to the show's enjoyment are Hal Davis as the pragmatic Sitting Bull, who becomes Annie's friend and mentor; Tad Ingram as Buffalo Bill; and Ken Jennings as Charlie Davenport, trying to drum up backing for Buffalo Bill.

But the show belongs to Carson. From the moment she comes onstage shouldering her gun and wowing the locals with her prowess, she is the show's center, and never more so than when she is all over the stage with her exhilarating, "I've Got the Sun in the Morning.'

"Annie Get Your Gun" will be at the Birmingham through Dec. 6. It's a whiz-bang show that shouldn't be missed.

Fences

by colleges, but Troy sees his own history in Cory and forbids further thoughts along that line, ordering him to learn a trade instead.

Between these two is Rose, Troy's second wife and Cory's mother. She is a rock that is battered by all sides. In pleasing one, she harms another. When Lyons, Troy's son from his first marriage, wants money, he knows he'll get it only through Rose's intercession. But by helping out, she pushes Troy away.

But Troy's search for meaning and happiness is a destructive one that leads him to another woman. His search for something to connect with leaves him sad and alone.

There are two characters who seem happy with their lot. One is Troy's friend Bono (Mi-chael Jay). He has a wife he loves, a job he doesn't like, but can live with and that's enough for him. The other is Gabriel, Troy's brother who was permanently damaged by World War II and has conversations with St. Peter.

The fences of the title are literally the fence it's taken Troy years to build around their piece of land. But figuratively they're the walls the characters put around themselves and others as they try to get through life.

Cargle takes on the challenging role of Troy and makes it come vividly to life. He moves from braggart to defeated loser seamlessly, spicing his performance with humor and warmth.

Jones, as Rose, is Cargle's equal. Their love feels real, which makes their estrangement all the more wrenching. It's easy to see why she won two best actress awards when she first performed this role.

The rest of the actors turn in polished, right-on performances, especially Jay as Troy's friend and Rhoze as Troy's oldest son. "Fences" runs through Dec.

McCullough, Truman are both winners

Truman

By David McCullough Simon & Schuster. 1117 0ages. $30.

For almost 40 years I've hung my head in shame, all because of an unheard of act of rudeness aboard the Cunard liner Franconia, as it neared Montreal in 1953.

During the farewell dinner, the ship's captain delivered a short address to the passengers, Americans, Canadians, and British, bidding us goodbye. I shared a table with my three travel-mates, and when the captain proposed a toast with "God Save the King," the entire din-ing room crowd arose. But when a toast was offered to the president of the United States, only one person remained stubbornly seated - me. I remained seated in defiance even though one of my companions was the daughter of a Democratic exsenator from Michigan who hissed indignantly at me to get Considering myself a staunch Republican, I short-sightedly refused to acknowledge Democratic president Harry S. Truman. Since then I've come to realize what a unique man Truman was and I've grown to thoroughly admire his many accomplishments.

Maybe maturity caused my sea-change, but whenever I recall my shameful act of disrespect, I suffer twinges of self-reproach.

Now David McCullough's magnificent biography "Truman," has completed my turnaround in regard to this president. Although he was a simple man of modest origins, he grew greatly while in the White House.

Truman was a man of strong character. Although largely self-educated, he had the strength of his convictions. Very early he became an avid reader devouring scores of books, particularly history and biography.

"For his tenth birthday, in the spring of 1894, his mother presented him with a set of large illustrated volumes grandly titled in gold leaf Great Men and Famous Women.' He would later count the moment as one of life's turning points," McCullough says. Truman's parents always wanted books in the house, so they "kept loose change in a tray from an old steamer trunk to save for a set of Shake tory until more than 50 volumes were piled in his office. 'I'm going to be better informed on the transportation problem than anyone here,' he vowed privately. What surprised and disappointed him was to find how few others from Congress used the library.'

McCullough is in the running for the Pulitzer Prize for his "Truman," and it will certainly be a grave error in judgment if he fails to win. His book is a full-length portrait of a humble man from Missouri who fought overseas during WWI, won a judgeship in his state, became a senator, then vice-president, and, finally at the death of FDR, president.

To some he appeared utterly unprepared for the high office, but he astonished many with his shrewd grasp of government and brave bold decisions. He had the intellectual fortitude to succeed and become one of the most outstanding presidents in our country's history.

In conclusion, McCullough asks: "Was Harry Truman an ordinary provincial American sadly miscast in the presidency? Or was he a man of above-average, even exceptional qualities of character, who had the makings of greatness?"

I agree 100 percent with the "testament from experienced observers that this was a president of considerable substance." One of Truman's associates remarked on his president's ability to handle problems during his administration: "The wonderful, wonderful development in those years was Harry Truman's capacity to grow."

Turkeys and parades from the River Place

If you love the water or simply want a spectacular place to stay, visit the River Place Inn in Detroit's former warehouse district.

Many Grosse Pointers have discovered the unique European-style hotel offers privacy and charm rarely found in larger convention hotels. It's perfect for accommodating large numbers of out-of-town guests for special occasions such as weddings or graduations.

In 1981 the original Parke-Davis laboratory and administrative offices became Stroh River Place. A $250-million investment rejuvenated the 19th century architectural beauty and created a suburban community in the heart of Detroit. Of course, transforming a structure that was once a pharmaceutical laboratory into a hotel meant major changes.

To maintain the unusual character of the structure, the building's grand staircase and detailed exterior facade were preserved. The result was the luxurious River Place Inn, an artful combination of 19th century charm and 20th century comfort right on the banks of the Detroit River.

This year, enjoy Michigan's renowned Thanksgiving Day Parade in grand style with a special package from the River Place Inn. Spend a festive evening with the family (children stay free with parents) and wake to a gourmet boxed breakfast and chauffeur services to and from reserved bleacher seats for the parade.

Jimmy Schmidt of Grosse Pointe, who supervises all dining at the River Place, will prepare a special breakfast of fresh baked seasonal breads, madelines, coffee, tea or hot chocolate to enjoy at the parade site.

The complete package is $99 including overnight accommodations, chauffeur service to and from the parade, reserved seating and the boxed continental breakfast. Reservations must be made before Monday, Nov. 23. The package includes seating for two, but additional bleacher seats may be reserved at $12 a person.

All River Place Inn guests will also receive complimentary passes to the Thanksgiving Day Carnival at Cobo Hall following the parade. Enjoy the sights and sounds as Santa rides his sleigh to the gates of Cubo Hall to begin three days of rides, games and carnival fun.

For those staying home, Schmidt offers the following Thanksgiving Day recipes from his book "Cooking for all Seasons.

Roast Turkey with Maple Glaze, Apples and Ginger Butter One 16-pound turkey (see note below)

1 T salt

1 T freshly ground black pepper

1 T chopped fresh rosemary 4 T (1/2 stick) unsalted butter For the glaze:

1 cup pure maple syrup 1/4 cup applejack or calvados

- For the sauce:
- 2 T unsalted butter 3 medium-size Granny Smith

apples, peeled, cored and sliced into wedges

2 cups poultry stock 1/2 cup applejack or calvados 1 cup ginger butter (recipe follows) Preheat oven to 475 degrees with the rack in the lower third of the oven. Rinse the tur-

Sprinkle the cavity with salt, pepper and rosemary. Truss it, then rub entire skin with butter. Place the turkey in a roasting pan and roast for 45 minutes breast-side up. Reduce the temperature to 375 degrees. Combine the syrup and applejack and frequently baste the turkey with it. Cook until an instant meat thermometer inserted into the thickest part of the thigh reads 160 degrees. (About 1-1/2 to 2 hours later.)

Stuff bird about 1/2 hours before the turkey is finished. Transfer the turkey to a heated serving platter.

In a large skillet over high heat, melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Add apples and saute for 3 minutes. Add the stock and reduce by threefourths, about 10 minutes. Add applejack and cook until sauce is thickened enough to coat the back of a spoon, about 3 minutes. Whisk in the ginger butter. Remove to a metal bowl and continue whisking for 1 minute to stabilize before serving. Transfer to a sauceboat and serve immediately.

Cooking notes: Select your turkey by size and age. The older they get, the firmer fleshed they become. A fryer or roaster turkey is under 16 weeks old, a young hen or tom turkey is between 5 and 7 months of age (my preference), and a yearling turkey is 15 months old. I also select my bird on the basis of its diet, as what it has been fed will flavor the bird. Fresh turkeys are more moist than frozen varieties. They must be stored very cold and for just a few days. The high initial heat helps to seal in the moisture while the low heat penetrates to cook the bird. Avoid stuffing birds over 18 pounds because the stuffing never gets hot enough to kill the bacteria. The juices from the turkey do enter the stuffing so contamination can easily occur.

Ginger Butter

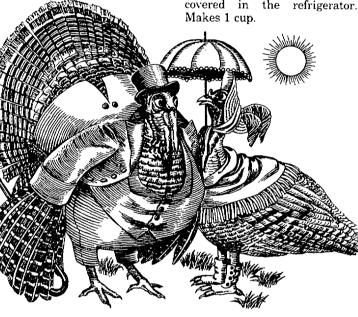

1/2 cup peeled and diced fresh ginger

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 3/4 cup water

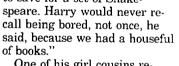

12 T (1-1/2 sticks) unsalted butter

In a small saucepan, combine ginger, sugar, and water. Bring to a simmer over medium heat and cook until tender, about 30 minutes. Transfer to a blender and puree until smooth. Strain through a medium sieve.

With a mixer, in a small bowl, beat the butter until light. Add the ginger puree and combine well. This can be made 3 days in advance and stored, covered in the refrigerator.

One of his girl cousins remembered him as a "bookworm" who read constantly. According to Truman, "Reading history, to me, was far more than a romantic adventure. It was solid instruction and wise teaching which I somehow felt that I wanted and needed."

He came to the conclusion that men make history, otherwise there would be no history. He was convinced that history did not make the man.

Even in later life he was seldom without a book. His daughter Margaret recalled how, during the evenings, "he would turn to his books and become wholly immersed," and she could never remember him sitting down quitely at home without a book in his hand. Evidently, his early years as a "bookworm" remained highly influential.

As the junior senator from Missouri, Truman "worked exceedingly hard at his assignments. Indeed, his first years in the Senate were devoted almost exclusively to committee work. Seldom did he miss a meeting of the two major committees, where, it was also noted, 'He speaks rarely but listens much.' He was getting acquainted with the way things were done, which most veteran senators and staff people knew to be an art in itself. He was acutely aware of his limited formal education, and in a determined effort to compensate for it, he never let up. Assigned by Senator Wheeler to a new Interstate Commerce subcommittee investigating railroad finances, he searched the Library of Congress for books on railroad management and railroad his-

It was a familiar sight to have Heidi Wise leading the pack at the end of one of Grosse Pointe South's girls cross country

Wise thrives on strong finish

Heidi Wise didn't make it to be in trouble," he said. he finish line the first time Heidi said that experience the finish line the first time she competed in a state cross country meet.

This year she made it ahead of nearly all the other competitors as she finished 10th in the team race and earned All-State honors.

"I think it was as much that I was mentally prepared as anything," said Wise, a senior at Grosse Pointe South. "I felt real confident going into the race. I had a positive attitude. I wasn't concerned with making All-State. I just wanted to run a good race for myself and the team.

Coach Steve Zaranek knew that Wise was going to close out her high school cross country career on a high note.

'You could see it in her eyes at the start of the race," he said. "She was confident and felt good about herself. Then when I saw her in the middle of the race she had a little smile. She was pleased with the way things were going."

Wise completed the threemile run at the Flint IMA Brookfield golf course in 19:35.34.

"That was probably the best she's ever run, considering how difficult a state course is," Zaranek said. "She may have run 20 or 30 seconds faster on the course at Metropolitan Beach, but that's a faster course."

Wise remembers her first state meet. It was her sophomore year on a hot, muggy day

"I took off real fast and had a great two miles, but I fainted before I got to the finish line,' she recalled with a smile.

Her father, Tom, who coaches South's boys cross country team, also remembers that race.

"I saw her at the two-mile mark and she was white as a ghost. I knew she was going to

was a factor in her emergence as one of the top prep runners in the state. "It took me three or four years to realize that I'm the only person I have to worry about when I'm running," she said. "A runner really needs experience."

Wise took a different approach toward running this year.

"Mr. Z had me try a different strategy," she said. "I'd take off real relaxed, then would speed up the second mile and have a fast finish. It worked well."

Zaranek said that Wise's accomplishments were well deserved.

"From Day One she's been extremely dedicated to the sport and she's always put the team first," he said. "She's in-tensely competitive and has earned every honor she's been given.

"Heidi has experienced the extreme highs and lows in running. There aren't many who can handle the low points and come back even stronger."

Hard work has been another factor in Wise's success. During the off-season she ran six days a week, sometimes running twice a day so she could get her mileage in around her summer job. She did a lot of cross training, combining swimming and walking with her running. Wise skipped biking, however, after a cycling accident forced her to miss her freshman year. "Usually a few of the girls run together during the offseason because it's difficult to run alone, but Heidi wasn't able to do that because of her job. But she still got her running in on her own. That's how dedicated she is," Zaranek said. Although her father is active in running, Heidi said he never pushed her into the sport.

"I ran in a turkey trot in the sixth grade and did pretty well, but I never did much running until high school," she said. 'My dad left it up to me. The only thing he ever did was tell me as a freshman that he thought I had some talent as a runner. I think he'd have been just as supportive if I'd played basketball or softball, but I think he's really happy that I enjoy running so much.

Wise said one of the turning points in her final season came in South's dual meet with Grosse Pointe North. She beat the Lady Norsemen's outstanding senior, Jessica McLalin, and that spurred Wise to bigger and better things.

"I wasn't even thinking about beating (McLalin) because she had been running in the low 19s, but after the second mile I was close enough to her that I decided to go for it. That was a major turning point in the season for me," Wise said.

Zaranek agreed that the North meet was a confidencebooster. "That gave Heidi the final push as far as confidence goes,' he said. "She knew then that she could run with the elite group of runners in the state."

Wise hopes to continue running in college - she's been accepted at Western Michigan but hasn't made a final decision yet - but first she has some unfinished business in track.

"I'm working to get ready for track," she said. "Our 3,200 relay was close to the school record last year so the other girls on the team and I would like to get that and hopefully place in the state meet.'

Zaranek won't be surprised if Wise accomplishes whatever she sets out to do.

"She's so determined and dedicated that she set herself up to succeed," he said.

Tracy's first Harvard start is a shutout

Tripp Tracy had a perfect debut last week for Harvard's hockey team.

The Grosse Pointe Farms freshman turned away all 26 shots he faced to lead the Crimson, ranked sixth in the nation, to a 4-0 victory over Union College.

Tracy was barely tested in the first period when Harvard kept Union in its own end for most of the 20 minutes, but the Skating Dutchmen took advantage of several Crimson lapses in the second and third periods to pound away at the freshman goaltender.

Tracy made two spectacular glove saves midway through the second period and staved off a five-minute power-play by Union late in the third period.

"He's an outstanding, tough goaltender," said Harvard coach Ronn Tomassoni. "It was nice to see his concentration in the second period after not seeing a lot of shots in the first. He was really tested."

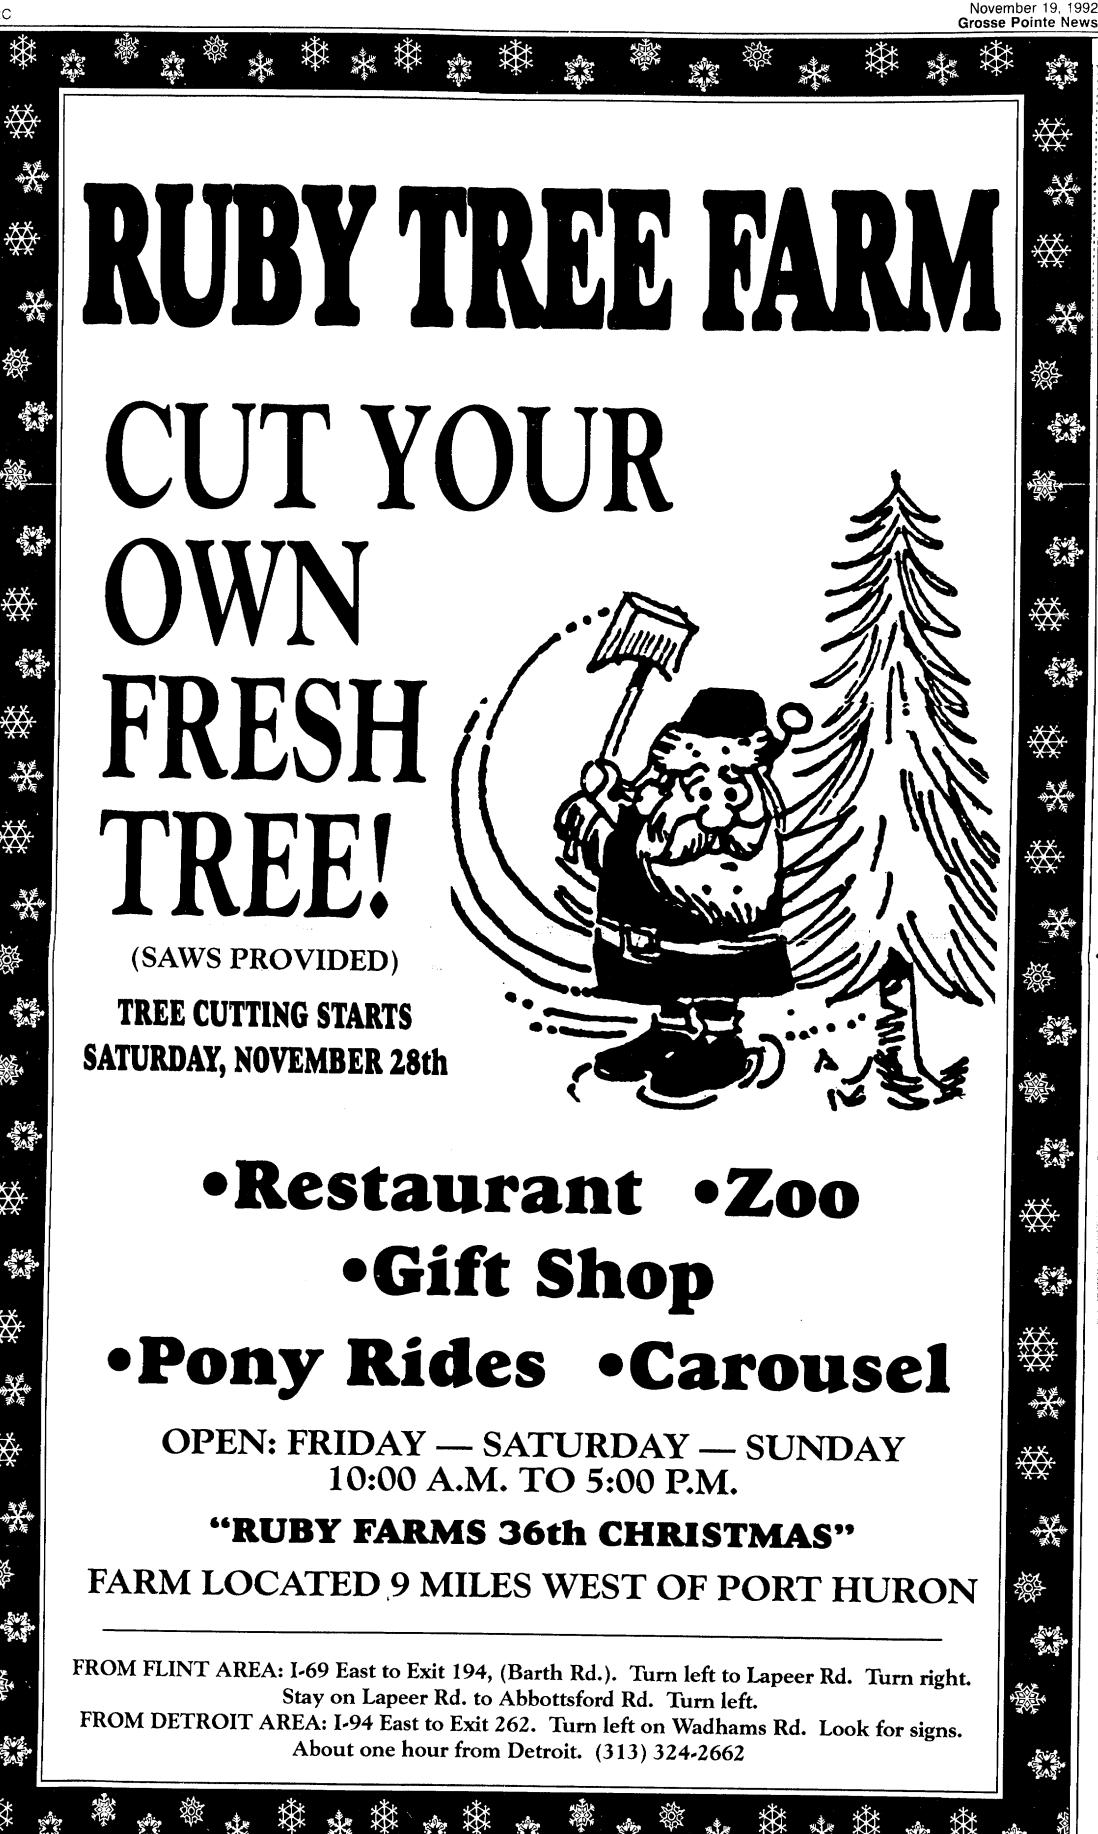

Tracy was the goalie for University Liggett School when it won the state championship in 1990 and he played the last two seasons for Compuware's Midget team.

Joe Bresciami faces the television cameras after driving his boat to a first-place finish in the Offshore World Championships last week in Key West, Fla. The event will be shown on ESPN on Dec. 22.

Bresciami wins uphill battle

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

Former Grosse Pointer Joe Bresciami faced an uphill battle in last Saturday's final round of the Offshore Powerboat World Championships in Key West, Fla.

"We had to get one of our best performances because we weren't in a great position after the first round," said Bresciami, who piloted his Eastern Express to the championship in Class D.

"This has been quite a year for us. We went from our lowest point when we crashed in April to the highest, winning the world championship. It's a great feeling. This will help make the winter a little shorter.'

Bresciami, who now lives in St. Clair Shores, and his throttleman, Rob Kehrig of New Baltimore, were third in Class D after the first of two days of competition in their 32-foot Douglas Skater catamaran. They finished first on the second day of racing and wound up with 872 total points to 845 for the runner-up boat, Predator.

"Predator was first on Wednesday," Bresciami said. 'It's a V-bottom and it was the better package because the water the first day was so rough.

"It was a little smoother on Saturday and we made only one real adjustment, going to a smaller wheel (propeller). We were really dialed in for the second race. The wind on Saturday was more to our side, instead of in our faces like it was on Wednesday.

Predator finished fifth on Saturday and the boat that was second in the opening round took sixth place in the 11-boat field.

Eastern Express' average speed was 81.83 mph. The boats ran seven 15-mile laps each day.

"It was a typical Key West race," Bresciami said. "You got a little bit of everything because the course takes you three or four miles into the ocean.'

3C

Bresciami won the Race Rock Offshore Challenge on Lake St. Clair last August and finished third in a race at Virginia Beach in September. In 1991, he was second in the world championships.

Former world champion Bob Kaiser of Grosse Pointe finished second in the Open Class at Key West, driving the 38foot Cougar catamaran Budweiser at an average speed of 89.39 mph. The Spirit of Norway won the Open Class with an average speed of 97.28 mph.

Grosse Pointe North girls basketball coach Gary Bennett hopes it was just pre-tournament doldrums that struck his team in its last two regularseason games.

"I thought a week ago we were playing real well, but we weren't as sharp last week," Bennett said. "I hope we didn't peak too early. But the incentive for last week's games wasn't real strong; it will pick up for the tournament."

North, which finished 12-2 in the Macomb Area Conference White Division and 17-3 overall for the regular season, played Detroit Finney in its first tournament game at the Regina district.

Christine Jamerino won the 200-yard individual medley and also took first place in the 100 breaststroke to lead Grosse Pointe North's girls swimming team to a 96-87 victory over Birmingham Groves in a nonleague meet.

The victory gave the Lady Norsemen, who will compete in the state Class A swimming meet on Friday and Saturday at Michigan State University, a final dual meet record of 7-5.

Jamerino will try to defend her state championships in the 200 IM and 100 breaststroke.

North's other winners were Leah Reynolds, who had a season-best score of 161.90 in diving, Jeanine Taylor in the 200 freestyle and Suzette Atrasz in the 500 freestyle.

Senior Chris Provenzano of Grosse Pointe Park and sophomore Ian Hall of Grosse Pointe Woods, who played for Notre Dame, received honorable mention on the All-Catholic League soccer team.

"Chris did a great job for us defensively this year," said Irish coach Mike Watkins. "He's particularly good in the air.

"(Ian) played sweeper - the last line of defense - and did a great job. It is very rare for a sophomore to start at this position but Ian's temperment and skills were perfect for the job,' Watkins said.

Notre Dame posted a 7-10 record this season.

Five-year-old Regan Gibson of Grosse Pointe, who is in kindergarten at Montieth school, was ranked ninth among her age group skiers in the Coca-Cola Jr. NASTAR ratings for the 1991-92 season.

"My husband got her on skis before she was two," said Regan's mother, Taryn Gibson. 'Our son Jack, who is in the second grade at Montieth, also started early.'

November 19, 1992 Grosse Pointe News 50 South rules MAC American swimming meet

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

lews

There could be some happy days ahead for Grosse Pointe South's girls swimming team.

"If I can keep this group in the water the year round, we could have a super team in a couple of years," said Lady Devils' coach Fred Michalik after his team coasted to its second straight Macomb Area Conference American Division championship.

"This group has the potential to be a state contender, but lots of times when the girls start swimming in high school that's the only time they want to swim. They don't want to go back and train in the summer."

Michalik said that his team has drawn swimmers from the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club team, the Grosse Pointe Park

Senior standouts

The seniors on Grosse Pointe South's girls cross country team posted some impressive accomplishments during their four years on the squad. They had a league record of 28-0 and an overall 39-1 mark. They won four league championships, three state regional titles, 15 invitational meets and compiled a grade-point average of 3.61. In the top row are Maria Ksenzenko, left, and Heidi Wise. In the middle, from left, are Sara Black, Amy Balok, Sandy Dierkes and Cynthia Gordon. Kneeling are Mary Rowe and coach Steve Zaranek.

Lady Devils perfect in MAC

sion and coasted to their 14th recreation team and from the Pointe Aquatics swim club.

"The kids coming from those programs have excellent backgrounds; I can spend more time coaching in high school than teaching," Michalik said.

South had excellent depth this season and much of it was provided by a strong freshman class

"All of the younger kids we took to the league meet placed and we probably could have had six more places," Michalik said. "We started out with 42 girls and 41 of them stuck it out all year. Now we just have to keep them interested."

Kim Higel won two individual events and swam on two winning relays to lead South.

Higel, a senior who will defend her state championship in the 100 backstroke this weekend at Michigan State University, took firsts in the 200-yard freestyle (1:57.74) and the 100 backstroke (59.24).

The Lady Devils finished with 425 points to 282 for runner-up Grosse Pointe North. Ford II was third with 179.

Higel's victories were the only two individual firsts taken by the Lady Devils, but they won all three relays and took at least two places in every individual swimming event.

Kathy Storen, Kathryn Tusa, Stephanie LaFond and Susan Blean won the 200 medley relay in 1:56.22. Higel, Peggy Francis, Blean and Rachel Smith won the 200 freestyle relay in 1:45.17 and South's 400 freestyle relay team of Francis, Higel, LaFond and Erin O'-Loughlin was first in 3:46.83.

North swimmers won five events, including two firsts apiece by Lidia Szabo and Suzette Atrasz Lady Norsemen coach Mike O'Connor was especially pleased with Szabo's winning time of 2:18.76 in the 200 individual medley.

"She swam a real nice race and qualified for the state," the coach said.

Szabo also won the 500 freestyle with a state-qualifying time of 5:21.49.

Atrasz won the 100 freestyle in 55.93 and took first in the 100 breaststroke with a state qualifying time of 1:10.88.

North's other first was Christine Jamerino's winning time of 25.57 in the 50 freestyle.

Jamerino, who won the 200 IM and 100 breaststroke in last year's state meet, will try to duplicate those efforts this weekend.

"It will be tough because Ann Arbor Pioneer has a girl who moved in from Colorado who was fourth in the senior nationals in the 200 IM," O'-Connor said.

Following are the swimmers from North and South who placed in the conference meet.

two senior standouts have been getting solid support from their teammates.

"We're getting good balance," said Lady Devils' coach Peggy VanEckoute after her squad completed a perfect Macomb Area Conference White Division season with a 52-29 victory over Ford II and a 62-32 romp over Utica.

"There's always been somebody else to pick up a few points, whether it's Amanda assists and seven steals in the victory over Ford.

"Stephanie played, but her leg was still bothering her so Angela decided she had to take over," VanEckoute said.

Defever scored seven points and McGratty added six points and 10 rebounds.

South built a 32-9 halftime lead against the Falcons.

The Lady Devils didn't have any trouble solving Utica's Defever, Shannon McGratty, triangle and two defense as Coddens appeared fully recovered as she led the Lady Devils with 22 points and also had eight rebounds. Drake scored 18 points, had 10 rebounds and three blocks. Mc-Gratty had eight points and 12 rebounds.

South finished the regular season with a 19-1 record and the Lady Devils took a 19-game winning streak into their district tournament opener against Regina. The Saddlelites handed South its only regularseason defeat.

League champions

North Stars
Adam Doughty and Lukas Mor- awski collected assists. North Stars' goalies Kyle Tannheimer and Jason Kies played a strong game, while forwards Dan Stahl, Brett Fletcher and Alex Nikesch turned in an aggressive perfor- mance. A hockey game.

Brett Collins, a sophomore at Grosse Pointe North, was the only swimmer from Michigan who participated last month in the United States Swimming Silver Select Camp at the U.S. Olympic training center in Colorado Springs.

Collins is one of 32 swimmers born in 1977 to be invited to the camp.

Coilins qualified in the 1,500and 800-meter freestyle events. He swims for Pointe Aquatics and is a member of North's swimming team.

How Do You Remember The Whittier?

Mr. & Mrs. Robert Heiss • Southfield, MI Married at The Whittier Hotel in 1948.

Memories ... remembrances of significant times from our past ... each one evokes a different image. Often, they trigger good feelings for our us now, and help us to prepare for our future.

For the Heiss', their Whittier memory is special indeed. The Whittier is an historic part of many metro-area residents' memories. Daily, visitors tell us of the indelible experiences shared at The Whittier. Whether it was a party in the Gold Cup Room cocktail lounge, an exciting day at the yearly hydroplane races, or trying to catch a glimpse of one of our famous guests, each generation has a story to tell.

Today at The Whittier, our residents create new memories everyday! Mature adults, both working and retired, graduate students, and temporary residents enjoy their lives to the fullest.

We would like you to become a part of our history!

In March 1993, The Whittier will celebrate its 70th Anniversary. We are collecting photographs, letters and memoribilia to display during our various special events. If you have a cherished Whittier memory, please send us an item for our archive. We promise its safekeeping and return. For further details, please contact the Marketing Department.

The Whittier ... for almost 70 years ... continuing a tradition of excellence.

I, NO. 36 November 19, 1992 local builder started from the ground floor By Debra Pascoe fluenced by his uncles, who are At age 13, Mike Gualtieri swept both builders. While attending U of M, he studup around construction sites. Later he became an apprentice for a local builder.

Now, at age 24, the University of Michigan graduate has his own home renovation and modernization business, Styles and Craft Inc.

"When we first got possession, we went gung-ho," Gualtieri said about his latest project, a 1923 neo-Greek Revival home on University in Grosse Pointe City that he purchased in July 1991.

And when he and his staff of skilled tradesmen weren't working on another project, they were busy changing the antiquated six-bedroom home into a five-bedroom beauty with a master suite that has enough closet space to satisfy any clothes horse.

They also removed the three layers of shingles from the roof and replaced them with cedar shingles, stripped and repainted the sun rooms on both sides of the house, moved walls, installed new windows and completed several other projects too numerous to mention.

The kitchen, which he said must have been designed for a maid and butler, has been completely mod-

hoto by Peter J. Birkner ernized and expanded to include French doors, two skylights, a cooking island and pantry.

What I tried to do is create a home with modern-day amenities while keeping the old-world charm," Gualtieri said, pointing to the Greek Revival columns that grace the fireplace and other areas of the home.

When Gualtieri begins a project, he starts from the bottom and works up. The entire home has been rewired, new plumbing installed and the steam heating units removed and replaced with a modern furnace. Looking back on what he's done to the home, Gualtieri said he's amazed.

"I just look at these and I can't believe it," he said, while leafing through a stack of photos he took of the work in progress.

"It's a new home in an old home shell," he said.

Gualtieri said he's always been interested in building and was inied design and architecture, but feels most of his knowledge was learned by working on various construction sites and on his own projects.

"I think a lot of people - especially young people - think that it's easy. They don't understand all the work that's involved," he said.

Some of the things he learned may seem elementary, like mixing the cans of paint needed for one room together to ensure a match. But in the end those tips pay off both financially and in the feeling of satisfaction when a job is well done, he said.

Gualtieri said he became frustrated at times when he was working on the home. But now that it's almost finished he's a little reluctant to sell it.

Would he do it again? You bet! "It's really gratifying to see what you started with and what you created," he said.

Gualtieri's idea of a dream job would be being hired to renovate a home from top to bottom.

Modest-sized plan includes bonus room, covered porch

By W.D. Farmer

A stoop entrance allows direct approach to the bedroom wing, basement stair, great room and the kitchen-breakfast-dining room areas.

The great room is larger than most and extends to the covered porch and stair to the bonus room located within the steep roof design. Light is provided to the bonus room through four dormer windows.

The kitchen is central to either the formal dining room or breakfast room. The isolated laundry room and pantry are between the breakfast room and the double garage.

There are three large bedrooms on the first floor. A central bath is provided for daytime use and two of the bedrooms. A luxury bath is private to the master bedroom.

The traditional exterior is constructed of brick. Corner quoins, multiple roof breaks and Multi-lite windows add to the overall beauty of the plan.

The plan is No. 981 and is computer-generated. It includes 2,477 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans are furnished with special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements.

For further information write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, Ga. 30345.

A good real estate attorney gives buyer, seller protection, confidence

By Doug Stanahan

Regional Director Century 21 of the Great Lakes

Purchasing or selling a home will probably be one of your largest and most important financial transactions. Before signing a contract to purchase or sell a home, both buyer and seller should consult an attorney to assure that the real estate transaction will be handled legally and professionally.

Although an attorney is not a required part of the process, particularly in many states where escrow companies will attend to all closing transaction details, an attorney can protect your interests and help you resolve any potential legal problems before entering a legally binding contract.

Sometimes buyers feel the need to sign a contarct quickly and don't have time to initially consult an attorney. In these cases, buyers can include language in the contract that will allow their attorney time to give final approval on the agreement usually within three to five business days. This allows both buyers and sellers to expedite the contract process without fear of inadequate legal representation.

Sellers and buyers alike should familiarize themselves with the real estate transaction process before selecting an attorney. Learning the formal steps in the transaction will help buyers and sellers choose the right attorney and proceed with confidence. Throughout the process, attorneys should attend to a variety of responsibilities, including consultation before the signing of the contract, preparing or approving the contract, examining documents and supervising the closing of the transaction.

The attorney should be responsible for preparing or evaluating documents which are necessary for completing transfer of the property. There are usually several documents to prepare in any real estate transaction, and the attorney can evaluate and explain each document to the buyer or seller whom he or she represents. The deed, the bill of sale, mortgage, promissory note, title commitment and the closing statement are only a few of the important documents that an attorney should review with the seller or buyer before the closing.

One of the attorney's most important responsibilities in the real estate transaction is to determine the condition of the seller's title to the property. Through this process, the attorney will discover if the seller is the legal owner of the property and if there is an unpaid mortgage or lien which must be settled before the title to the property can be properly transferred. The attorney will also discover any restrictions or easements that are on the property and the status of any unpaid property taxes or assessments.

The buyer, the seller and their attorneys usually appear together at a final meeting to review all closing documents. At this meeting, usually referred to as the "closing," the attorneys help explain, sign and exchange the documents and approve or clear up any remaining financial matters relating to the transaction. After the transaction is closed, an attorney will attend to any final details, such as properly recording the deed, mortgage or other necessary documents and issuing title insurance policies.

Many attorneys are specialized, and it is important that you choose one who knows real estate terminology and real estate transaction processes. Before hiring someone, you should discuss all the details of the transaction with your possible candidate, including all legal costs you will incur.

The attorney's duty in any real estate transaction is to provide legal expertise. Through sound advice and thorough execution of all legal responsibilities, a good attorney will help you complete your transaction swiftly and with confidence.

Condominium markets healthy in Midwest, Northeast regions

Sales of existing condominiums and co-operatives remained stable on a national basis between the third quarter of 1992 and the same period one year ago, the National Association of Realtors has reported. Strong activity was posted in the Northeast and Midwest.

The 1992 third quarter annual sales rate for condominiums and cooperatives slipped 0.9 percent to 335,000 units, compared to the third quarter of 1991. Helping to cushion that slide was an 8.5 percent increase in the Northeast and a 5.3 percent rise in the Midwest, compared to a year ago.

The improvement in two regions hit hard by the recession indicates that consumer confidence in the real estate market is coming back, said NAR president Dorcas T. Helfant.

"Spurred by low mortgage interest rates and a leveling off of home prices, more and more first-time buyers are venturing into the homeownership arena through the purchase of condos and co-ops, which are often more affordable than single-family starter homes," Helfant said.

According to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., the national average commitment rate for 30year, conventional fixed-rate mortgages was 8.01 percent for the third quarter of 1992, compared to 9.28 percent a year ago.

"Conditions are right for first-time buyers to enter the housing market. We have low mortgage interest rates, a leveling off of prices and recent changes to the Federal Housing Administration mortgage program that will open more doors of opportunity to consumers," Helfant said.

Changes to the FHA mortgage program expected to help boost firsttime home buyers into the market include allowing 100 percent financing of closing costs and an increase in the program's loan limit in highcost areas, Helfant noted.

Dickinson collection to benefit downtown restoration projects

The East Jefferson Preservation Association announces the Detroit premiere of the Diane Dickinson Caravan Collection now through Sunday, Nov. 22, in the Gold Cup Room at the Whittier, 415 Burns Drive, Detroit.

Proceeds from all sales will benefit the non-profit group's efforts to restore historic buildings and develop community awareness of important architectural sites.

Diane Dickinson, a nationally known designer of women's clothing for more than 15 years, has established an impeccable reputation. Her designs have sold briskly at the most elite boutiques and department stores worldwide. Dickinson's customers include several former first ladies and many top television personalities.

This year, Dickinson has implemented an innovative direct marketing concept. To eliminate the inflated costs of retail markups and give her more direct contact with her customers, Dickinson has made her collection available exclusively through a select group of fashion consultants nationwide, selling directly to customers rather than through stores.

Admission is free of charge and refreshments will be served. The following dates and times are available to view and purchase the designs.

• Thursday, Nov. 19, from 11 a.m.

to 2 p.m., 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. • Friday, Nov. 20, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., 5 to 7 p.m.

• Saturday, Nov. 21, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

• Sunday, Nov. 22, from noon to 3 p.m.

Due to the nature of the presentation, credit cards will not be accepted as a form of payment.

For further information, or to make a reservation, contact Margaret Ann Wilson at (313) 822-4794.

Michigan home construction bounces back in September

New residential construction starts bounced back firmly in September with a 20.1 percent increase, resuming the upward building trend which began in early 1991.

"Aided by 3,630 new housing starts in September, Michigan's residential construction market continues to boost a sluggish economy," says Thomas Caterino of Saginaw, president of the Michigan Association of Home Builders (MAHB). The result in Michigan: an 11.9 percent increase with 24,014 new residential projects under way as compared to 21,459 projects in 1991.

The 1992 year-to-date value of all construction of new homes, apartments and condominiums is a 9.7 percent increase over 1991.

"In general, Michigan builders continue to provide affordable housing at a steady pace despite the recessionary news talk," Caterino said. tives during the third quarter 1992 was about $85,000, 2.3 percent less than a year ago, and 17.7 percent below the $103,500 median price for single-family homes during the same period. The median is the midpoint of the price range — half the homes sell for more, half for less.

NAR chief economist John A. Tuccillo said the growth in sales of condominiums and co-operatives in the Northeast and Midwest are good signs that the housing market is getting the "kick start" it has needed for some time.

"The rise in sales experienced in these two regions of the nation indicate good things on the horizon. The increase shows that a rising number of first-time buyers are starting to take advantage of low rates and realistic pricing to open the door of a home of their own," Tuccillo said.

"More importantly, however, this activity shows that consumers are feeling more comfortable with the market and are starting to regain confidence in the economy," he added.

In the Midwest, condominiums and co-operatives sold at a rate of 600,000 units during the third quarter of 1992, compared to 57,000 a year earlier. The Midwest's median condominium price was $74,500, down 0.3 percent from the third quarter of 1992. The existing single-family home median sale price for the Midwest was $81,600 for the third quarter.

Are you game? - Card tables and game tables have been useful pieces of furniture since the early 18th century. Gambling was a popular activity, and gentlemen often had guests over to play cards or other games. Chairs and tables were not kept in the center of the room, but were pushed to the edges to leave more center space.

Card tables were often made in pairs. The tops folded in half and the narrow tables were placed next to a wall on either side of a doorway. The legs were made to swing to support the opened top. Four or five legs and a tripod or a pedestal base were used on a card table. The legs and shape of the top varied with the styles later tables had thicker, heavier legs and darker wood. A good period game table is worth thousands of dollars.

Q. We just bought a velocipede shaped like a horse on three wheels. The head and neck are made of cast iron. The body is wood. The wheels are wooden with metal rims. I am worried that it might be new. Can you help?

A. Old horse toys like yours are very rare. They were first made in America in 1868. There are several different types of reproduction wheeled horse toys now being sold. Be wary of any toys of this type. Most of the copies are excellent.

We spoke with one company that told us they import an iron and wooden horse from the Philippines. The wheels are iron and the horse's saddle is leather. The toy is 30 inches high, large enough for a child to ride. The piece was imported with a paper label that says "Made in the Philippines." There is no permanent mark.

Q. There is a rectanglular mark on the bottom of my grandmother's dishes. It says "K Knowles." The box containing eight place settings was dropped, and some of the pieces were broken. Can you tell me how to learn whether the dishes are still being made?

A. Edwin M. Knowles China Co. worked in Newell and in Chester, W.Va., from 1900 to 1963. The mark on your dishes was used from 1900 to 1963. The name, Edwin M. Knowles, was purchased and is still being used on limited-edition plates.

You might find it difficult to match your dishes. Make a photocopy of the pattern and show it to dealers at shows and shops. You might write to some of the national matching services, but we don't know one that specializes in Knowles. Fortunately, the decorators say "mix and match" is in. Look for similar colored dishes and use them with grandma's set.

Q. I have a lamp that looks like a nude girl. She is made of green metal and is holding a huge bubble of glass that covers the light bulb. When was this style popular?

A. Max Le Verrier of Paris made the first of these lamps in the 1920s. It became a classic art deco style copied by many others. The color gave it the name "greenie." In the late 1920s, Frankart Inc. of New York City began making this type of lamp and other deco ashtrays — standing, some sitting or lying down with the bubble lampshade balanced on her feet. Many of the styles have been reproduced.

Identify your antique. Go to the library and learn who made it, what it is worth, how it was made. Shores company invents Vari Vent, a new kitchen ventilation device

A new state-of-the-art air ventilation system that improves air circulation and smoke removal in kitchens and basements has been invented by Don Hurst and Bill Finley of Hurst Appliance in St. Clair Shores.

The new product, Vari Vent, is now available to homeowners, retailers and wholesale distributors nationwide.

Hurst and Finley first came up with the idea for the Vari Vent when trying to improve both ventilation and installation for kitchen equipment.

"After contacting manufacturers and industry sources for a product that could meet our needs, we determined that no such product existed and decided to design our own," said Hurst, president of Hurst Appliance. "The initial response to the Vari Vent by customers, appliance retailers and wholesalers is very encouraging."

The Vari Vent ventilation system offers flexibility in design and can be mounted vertically or horizontally to fit most range hoods and downdraft systems.

Vari Vent is compatible with both current and prior room and equipment designs. The unique design of the Vari Vent solves installation problems while at the same time delivering superior air movement.

The product is patent pending, fully insured and has been tested by Testing Engineer Consultant (TEC).

For more information on the product, or to inquire about distributor and retail opportunities, contact Don Hurst at Hurst Appliance, 23210 Greater Mack Ave., St. Clair Shores, Mich. 48080, or call 778-8670. (fax: 778-8671).

Professionals to be honored

Several builders and other professionals in southeastern Michigan will be honored Dec. 2 during the 1992 Leadership Recogniton and Awards Night sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM) and the Apartment Association of Michigan.

The Builder of the Year award will be presented to Robert R. Jones, owner of Robert R. Jones Associates in West Bloomfield, for his service to the organization and his contributions to the single-family homebuilding market.

He is a BASM board member and serves on BASM's Builder Community Forum for Rochester Hills and BASM's Builder Community Forum for Rochester Hills and BASM's Builder/Developer-Detroit Edison Task Force. He is also a member of the National Association of Home Builders Sales and Marketing Council and also serves as one of the national directors for the organization.

Receiving the highest honor bestowed upon a member, James S. Bonadeo will be inducted into the association's Hall of Fame. BASM's president emeritus and lifetime board member, he is president of Bonadeo Builders in Plymouth.

Other honors at the banquet will include special recognition for his service as BASM president to Bernard S. Glieberman, president of Crosswinds Communities Inc. in West Bloomfield; Developer of the Year to Joseph Slavik, owner of The Slavik Co. in Farmington Hills; Young Builder of the Year to Stephen J. Taglione, president of BBC Group Inc. in Farmington Hills; and Associate Members of the Year to Tom Molloy, vice president of First American Title Insurance Co. in Troy, and Susan Deakins, associate publisher of The Adler Group Inc. in Southfield.

Several professionals have been selected to receive Distinguished Service Awards from the builders association:

David Sparrow, president of Plaza Investment in Bloomfield Hills, for service to the apartment industry; Congressman William Broomfield for his career in Congress; Gail Kosmensky for service to the Women's Forum; Rosalie Lamb, senior staff vice president of BASM in Farmington Hills, for service to the building industry; Anthony Adams, of Dykema Gossett in Detroit, for service to the Victoria Park Homearama; Ron Flies, executive assistant to the Mayor of Detroit, for service to the Victoria Park Homearama; and Henry Hagood, director of community and economic development to the City of Detroit, for service to the Victoria Park Homearama.

Other award winners are Spikes of the Year (for membership recruitment) to Paul Hoenke, sales manager of MS Flooring in Walled Lake, Jill Smith, sales representative of Eagle Window in Lewiston, and Larry Cohen, president of Cohen Associates Inc. of West Bloomfield; and Sales Person of the Year to Pamela Solberg of the S.R. Jacobson Development Corp. in Birmingham.

Builders and committee members for the 1992 Homearamas, held in Oakland Township in the spring, Detroit in the summer and Sterling Heights in the fall, also are slated for recognition.

The awards night will begin with a reception at 6:30 p.m., followed by a banquet, program and entertainment at the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn. Reservations are $70.

For reservations and information call (313) 737-4477.

A new state-of-the-art air ventilation system, Vari Vent, that improves air circulation and smoke removal in kitchens and basements has been invented by Don Hurst and Bill Finley of Hurst Appliance in St. Clair Shores.

Home Tips

Picture this — I came up with the following recycling idea. I sew a lot and trace patterns for different sizes because I have five grandchildren to sew for.

For pattern paper, I use the large plastic bags I get when shopping. It works really well! I can see through it to write details, it doesn't tear easily, and I know plastic won't deteriorate.

Charmaine D., Louisiana, Ky.

Mom's magic — To save time when preparing to take the children with me on short trips, I always have a small diaper bag pre-packed.

I fill it with diapers, wipes, a bottle of prepared juice, some small toys (such as those received in fast-food meals), wrapped crackers and a plastic bag for any wet or dirty item. The bag is ready when I am, and any excursion is more pleasant when I'm prepared.

Cynthia K., San Francisco, Calif.

Slippin' and slidin' – To make sure my patio door always slides smoothly, I spray the tracks with some spray lubricant.

Mary Jane W., Tulsa, Okla.

Outdoor furniture – I have some old metal furniture with a large seat. To keep the seat from rusting, I drilled several small holes in it to allow rain water to drain. This should prolong its life.

Glenn M., Curtis, Neb.

Easy cleanup - I found a great way to clean the window glass on a fireplace. I crumple up come newspaper and dampen it slightly with water, and then put it in the ashes and use it on the door. It's an old method, but really works faster and better than commercial cleaners. I learned this from my grandmother.

Hilda J., Brighton, Mich.

Start this repair by mixing a small amount of plaster or spackle and fill in the space between the crack. You may want to use only your index finger to spread the compound into the cervice. Allow the material to cure (about 24 hours) and then sand smooth with extrafine sandpaper or steel wool. Wipe the area clean.

I eventually succeeded in re-You first need to plan the job with moving the brush from the holder, a scale drawing of the room. This only to break off a chunk of ceramic. will save you valuable time and I managed to glue the piece back to eliminate the waste factor in the cost the holder with a good commercial of materials. One method to install adhesive, but an unsightly, obviously paneling is to first secure furring strips to the existing walls before installing paneling. However, paneling can also be installed directly over drywall or plaster walls, provided they are just about "perfect." This technique is done by applying an adhesive to the wall and then installing the panels.

After you purchase your stock, lay the panels flat on the floor in the room where they will be installed (your den). It is necessary for air to circulate around the panels. Slipping little blocks of wood between the panels will do the trick.

Some important tools required for this job are a level, coping saw, circular saw, and a saber saw. Your home decorating center can be of assistance regarding any other tools or materials. Be especially careful when making cuts in your panels for any openings that are needed. Tiny errors in over-cutting can be corrected or hidden with trim and/or finishing moulding.

Sheet paneling is basically easy for a do-it-yourselfer to install, but even the most simple jobs can throw a curve at you. So, take your time with this very rewarding challenge, and you will enjoy many years of nomaintenance pleasure in your den.

Send Household Help questions to John Amantea, King Features Weekly Service, 235 East 45th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Haven't the best purchases of your life been those that both made you happy and were of a lasting quality?

Certainly the home you buy should be visually pleasing and well constructed.

Piku Management Co. is offering spacious, custom built two-bedroom "ranch villas," off of Masonic, just one block from Jefferson and St. Clair Shores Memorial Park.

The location couldn't be better, and due to current low interest rates, the time might never be better to move into a new home and enjoy a high quality of life for many years to come.

Let's discuss location first.

If your work constantly has you on the go, or you are retired and don't want to spend a lot of time traveling, the purchase of a new condominium for under $100,000 from Piku Management Co. is the right move for you.

Recreation and shopping are close by. The homes are within walking distance of Memorial Park on Lake St. Clair, area shopping, and the St. Clair Shores public golf course. The St. Clair Shores Community Education site is right next door offering adult education classes.

An added plus for the development is that it can only be entered off Masonic, thus eliminating through traffic, lessening noise, and providing greater security.

Everyone agrees location is important, but why buy now?

Aside from being able to take advantage of low interest rates, once the 16 remaining homes (eight onecar garage, eight two-car garage) of this 40 home development are sold it will be near impossible to find a similar quality housing development in the Shores area.

When Piku Management Co. bought the five and-one-half acre site to develop 10 ranch-style buildings with four homes each, they got some of the last land zoned for residential development in St. Clair Shores.

Additionally, Piku Management Co. is offering a Grand Opening Special. On the next three one-car garage homes sold, you can save 50 percent off the Deluxe Options.

A major reason for buying a home at North Shore Villas in St. Clair Shores is the opportunity to choose the design you want from five available floor plans. Each home has two bedrooms, a basement, dining room, living room. kitchen with eating space, and the option to include two baths and a first floor laundry.

Every buyer gets to make adjustments to their floor plan to achieve a home more reflective of their personality, such as deciding to move a wall back to create more space, or to take a wall out altogether. Buyers can choose to put in a fireplace, or an interior finish to their liking, such as cabinets, counter tops, tile and linoleum.

Chris Piku, the builder, and his father Frank Piku, a developer for 37 years, are always accessible to their clients. They have built three condominium projects on the each side and have the experience to offer the very best in condominium living.

A standard one-car garage home is $98,900 while a Deluxe one-car garage home is $102,550 which includes a 50 percent savings on the Deluxe Option Package. And a standard two-car garage home is $109,900.

With 20 percent down, a buyer can move into the standard one-car home which sells for $98,900 with payments of $645.00 a month on a 20 year 7.65 percent mortgage. The Association Fee includes all exterior building and ground maintenance, landscaping, sprinkler system, snow removal, water, sewer and insurance on the entire home for only $85.00 a month.

North Shore Villas is between Harper and Jefferson off Masonic (13 1/2 mile) in St. Clair Shores. Piku Management Co. can be reached at 293-6760.

Right away Jim and Shirley Kollar admit they have made more changes to their original floor plan than any other buyers at North Shore Villas, located on Masonic west of Jefferson in St. Clair Shores.

That's a big reason why they bought a twogarage home for just over $100,000 from Frank and Chris Piku, the father and son team who run Piku Management Co. They couldn't resist the freedom (and encouragement) they received to make the changes that were important to them.

The Kollars, who moved to Michigan from Virginia last year, knew in advance the features of a new home that they couldn't live without.

The ranch-style condominiums being offered by Piku Management Co. already satisfied most of the Kollars desires, and the modifications they did request were taken care of professionally and without question.

"You never get shortchanged with Piku," said Shirley. "Their attitude is that what you want is the way it will be."

Right from the start of construction Chris Piku worked hand-in-hand with Jim and Shirley to accommodate the requirements they had for a perfect home.

"Chris had a kitchen and bath designer come out to the construction site to take our suggestions," said Jim. With the designer, Jim and Shirley drew up all the kitchen specifications on the floor of the future kitchen.

"As they were building our home we got to know all the carpenters, electricians, and everybody who had a part in it," said Shirley.

What the Kollars couldn't live without was already a basic part of every home built at North Shore Villas.

One, they had to have an attached garage to save wear and tear on their car during the winter. Shirley said it was no fun bringing in groceries from the outside during the cold and snowy winters.

Secondly, the Kollars wanted the convenience of having everything on one floor, especially the master bedroom.

"We felt we were getting older and we didn't want to have a move in a few years because we couldn't take three floors, or a larger place," said Shirley.

And finally, Jim said that a full basement was a "must" to store much of their belongings.

Changes they were allows to make to the original floor plan only confirmed their belief that they were right to buy a home through Piku Management Co.

Changes like moving a wall closet out of the living room to create more space, adding two extra linen closets, having the washer and dryer installed in the basement to free up space to expand the kitchen and allow for an extra long counter top and cabinets, having hardwood flooring put in, putting a cedar closet in the basement, and replacing a wall between the kitchen and dining rooms with a food bar to create a feeling of openness so that it seems the kitchen, dining and living rooms flow into each other.

Jim mentioned other reasons for buying at North Shore Villas. The convenience of nearby shopping, the fact that he is only 15 minutes from his job at General Dynamics, that he and Shirley like to play golf and a course is only three blocks away, and that the two of them can leave on trips without security concerns.

Shirley said it's nice having Memorial Park little more than a block away because she enjoys the view of Lake St. Clair.

The Kollars couldn't be happier with Piku Management Co., who still have homes available.

"This is everything we wanted in a house," said Shirley. "We love this house, it's really nice."

Contains 35mm Motion Picture film made in U.S.A. by Eastman Kodak Co., independently adapted by Signature Color. Signature Color is wholly separate from the manufacturer and is responsible for the product. Processing available at Signature Color with limited availability from other labs. Process ECN-II. 53 any 35mm camera! In order to meet the high standards of the Hollywood movie industry, Eastman Kodak Company developed a very special motion picture film. Now, thanks to our state-of-the-art photofinishing technology, Signature Color has independently adapted this same film for use in any 35mm camera!

What's so special about this film?

Although it may look like any other film, it's far from ordinary. For one thing, the extremely fine grain produces crisp, true details that make it great for reprints and enlargements. For another, the rich color saturation comes through with the full spectrum of colors so brilliant and eyepopping that it brings the excitement of the big screen to your snapshots! And, for another, it has
