

Grosse Pointe Cable to raise rates 4.7 percent, costs cited

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Along with a new and modern and efficient local origination studio at the War Memorial, Grosse Pointers can look forward to a 4.7 percent increase in the cost of basic cable.

Beginning April 1, Grosse Pointe subscribers will pay $21.95 for basic cable, an increase of a dollar a month.

Grosse Pointe Cable president John Nicholson said the rate increase was necessary because of rising programming fees, wages and employee benefits and new costs associated with the new local origination broadcast studio.

"We are not passing on the full costs of the rise in our expenses to our customers," Nicholson said. "I think that if you look at Grosse Pointe Cable's rates, we've always been competitive with surrounding areas. I know that we are less expensive than the St. Clair Shores system, which includes Grosse Pointe Shores.

"We're in an environment of running a business, and that business is providing cable television. Congress passed a law last fall that will bring a great deal of regulation to the cable business. We have to respond to the needs and desires of the community. We provide, I think, some of the best cable service in southeast Michigan."

According to Nicholson, the rise in expenses averages $1.77 per month per customer and Grosse Pointe Cable is only raising rates by a dollar. He said about 50 cents of those increased costs is associated with the Center for Arts and Communications recently opened at the War Memorial.

Grosse Pointe Cable grossed about $6 million in 1992. Pretax profits were about $1.88 million. Under the terms of the franchise agreement, Comcast Cable Comp. collects 33.3 percent of pretax profits. Dividends paid out to the three stockholders, the War Memorial, Comcast and the five cities, was about $470,000. In addition, 5 percent of Grosse Pointe Cable's revenues are paid to the five cities in the form of a franchise fee.

James Alogdelis, the Woods representative to Grosse Pointe Cable's advisory board, said that expenses to the public could be kept down by not paying a dividend or collecting a franchise fee, but he said in the long run that would not be smart.

"Technology changes," Alogdelis said. "What's new today is obsolete tomorrow. When the franchise, which expires next year, is renewed, it will have to be updated with new equipment. That will take money. Plus the money paid to the cities goes right into those cities' general fund."

Russ Velardo, Harper Woods representative to the cable advisory board, said reducing costs to the consumers is difficult with three entities involved in ownership.

"It's a complicated situa-

Remarks rile Poupard parents

By Debra Pascoe

About 125 Harper Woods parents met last Friday to vent their anger over what they felt was a disparaging comment made by a Grosse Pointe school district official.

The meeting was called by members of the Poupard PTO after reading board president Gloria Konsler's response to a petition signed by Monteith Elementary parents and quoted in a local newspaper.

The petition suggested students in the Monteith district remain there even if plans to redraw the school district's boundaries are approved. Petitioners objected to their children crossing Vernier to attend Mason or Ferry, or crossing I-94 to get to Poupard.

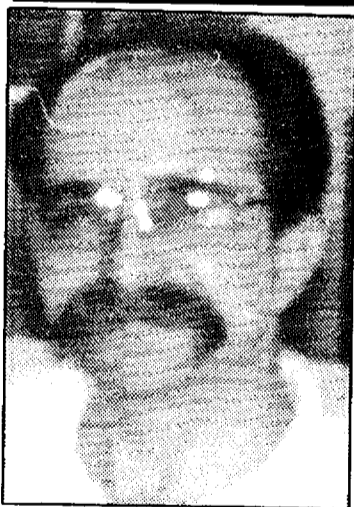

"Probably not everyone, but a small percentage of people, don't want their kids going to school with Harper Woods kids," Konsler was quoted as saying.

While she doesn't deny making the comment, Konsler said it was misinterpreted by Harper Woods parents.

"It was not intended to be a judgmental comment and I wasn't trying to degrade the Felix Malinowski's name does not appear in the credits at the end of such films as "Hoffa" and "Presumed Innocent," yet he played an integral part in the making of these and many other movies that have been filmed in Detroit.

Malinowski is the vice president of Marontate & Co. Entertainment in Auburn Hills. Marontate is a full-service advertising agency with both entertainment and retail clients. He is a publicist and promoter in the Detroit area for such motion picture studios as Warner Bros., Twentieth Century Fox, Columbia and TriStar.

Malinowski arranges the itineraries for visiting film actors, producers and directors and he arranges screenings for critics and promoters. He helps coordinate and assist with films being shot in Detroit. "Hoffa," "Presumed Innocent" and "Zebrahead" are among the films he has helped produce.

"We're sort of the eyes, ears, arms and legs of the studio here in town," Malinowski said.

His role when films are being shot in town varies depending on the film.

"Each one brings its own personality," he said. "Some are like 'stealth' projects.

"When 'Presumed Innocent' came to town, the whole mission I was given was to control port has raised renewed protests from Grosse Pointers concerned about noise and property values.

The Detroit News reported Sunday that Detroit wants the FAA to approve a revised City Airport expansion plan. The project would cost about $379 million, and would feature a new 7,200 foot runway and a 22-gate passenger terminal.

Detroit has for the past several years been trying to enlarge City Airport so that it could handle most commercial jets.

Christine Flannery, Grosse Pointe Park resident and secretary of the City Airport Opposition Association, has spoken with other members of the organization and said the general feeling seems to be "here we go again."

"We've been dormant for about a year," said Flannery. "We're ready to go. If there is a need for us to pressure the city councils to provide funding to the Detroit City Airport Study Committee to fight the airport, we will be ready to do so."

Flannery said that many members of her organization, last numbered at over 100, fear that allowing planes to fly over Grosse Pointe at night will hurt local property values.

"The city is shooting itself in the foot," Flannery said. "We provide Wayne County with a lot of its revenue through our property taxes. If our property values decline, that hurts county revenue, which in turn hurts Detroit.

"I don't believe that Detroit planners think things through. They think they'll make up for any loss with the service jobs an airport will create. Most of those jobs will be low-skill, low-paying jobs."

Former City of Grosse Pointe mayor John L. King currently chairs the Detroit City Airport Study Committee. He said the committee, which receives funding from the five Grosse Pointes, as well as Center Line, Warren and Macomb County, has not had a chance to carefully review Detroit's latest proposal.

"Based on the last study we did on Detroit's last proposal, I am not confident that the city has made its case with this proposal," King said. "The committee is currently seeking a copy of Detroit's proposal from the FAA through the Freedom of Information Act.

"When we get the proposal, we will send it to our attorney, former Reagan secretary of transportation James Burnley, to look at it. He will consult with experts on airports, and then issue his report to the committee."

Burnley's report on Detroit's previous proposal stated that Lead in Farms water exceeds EPA limits

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

The City of Grosse Pointe Farms has exceeded the allowable level for lead in drinking water set by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, according to water superintendent Darrel Schuurman.

The EPA lowered the allowable levels of lead from 50 to 15 parts per billion. The Farms' lead level was 26. Since no lead comes from the water plant, the source of the lead is either building plumbing or the service line into the building. Schuurman said most concentrations of lead come directly from home plumbing.

"The Farms has always passed before," Schuurman said. "The testing has never been this extensive."

He said that 36 communities that get their water from Detroit failed. The Farms has its own treatment facility.

Samples were taken from the kitchens and bathrooms of 60 residences. One half of the homes had lead water services and the other half had copper services with lead soldering. Lead and lead soldering was banned after 1988.

The relative risk from lead in drinking water is minimal under normal water use. Residents are advised to allow water to run for several minutes before using each day.

Lead enters the water supply from corrosion of pipes or tanks. Although the Farms is not required to begin corrosion control treatment until 1998, methods are currently being reviewed to begin treatment this year.

The city is talking with engineers about methods for corrosion control. Coating the service lines to prevent lead from leeching into the water is also being discussed.

New Detroit City Airport plan rekindles protests

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The city of Detroit's latest request that the FAA approve plans for expanding City Airport for cargo and passengers, using Selfridge makes a lot more sense," King said. "The Pentagon is already cutting military services there. It's built, and could probably handle traffic right away. Plus it's right on I-94."

Bob Berg, spokesman for Mayor Young, said that airport expansion should be good for Grosse Pointe. Because it will provide close transportation, something that positively affects property rates.

Berg also said that according to his understanding, planes would not fly over any of the Pointes in order to land.

"From what I've been able to learn, the proposed runway would run northwest-southeast," Berg said. "That would take planes over the lake, not the Pointes. Besides, planes have been landing at that airport for a long time. If people were going to hear noise, they would have by now."

Berg denied statements in The Detroit News linking the proposed expansion with gambling in Detroit or Windsor. He said the two are not connected, and that the public should learn to separate them.

Youths guilty in pipe bomb case

Two Grosse Pointe youths pleaded guilty to malicious destruction of property charges at their March 9 hearing in Wayne County Juvenile Court in connection with a July 1991 pipe-bomb explosion at Mack and Moross.

The juveniles were originally charged with two counts each of placing explosives and causing property damage. Following motions entered by their attorneys, the juveniles were offered a plea bargain agreement and reduced charges. The pair agreed to the arrangement, which included restitution to the parties for destruction of property.

An article published in the July 18, 1991, Grosse Pointe News said Farms police responded to a 3 a.m. pipe bomb explosion behind the stores on the southwest corner of Mack and Moross. Police found an overturned newspaper box and some broken store windows. Metal fragments from the bomb were scattered in the area.

tion," Velardo said. "But you have to remember that when the system was created, not many cities had cable. We went out on a limb to create it."

Longtime Grosse Pointe City representative to the board Bill Montgomery said that the system is unusual, but does it does serve the community interests.

"When we created the system, we set it up with the War Memorial because the War Memorial is a community resource beholden to no one city," said Montgomery. "I think that the community has been well served. Look at other systems and we're in the running."

One of these systems belongs to the city of Wyandotte which owns its cable system outright. Wyandotte cable operates out of the city's department of power and light. Wyandotte's fee for basic cable is $12 per month.

"We do have the advantage of having a staff in place that handles a lot of the administrative costs of running a system," said Wyandotte superintendent of finance Lisa Brendle. "But the main reason our costs are the lowest in metro Detroit is because we don't have any stockholders demanding dividends."

Wyandotte's cable system went on line in 1983, four years after Grosse Pointe's. Brendle is also proud of the service provided to Wyandotte residents.

"You have to remember that these aren't customers, these are my neighbors," Brendle said. "Our customer service is outstanding. I rate it as higher than the industry's average."

New TV, arts center unveiled

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

To meet growing community needs, Grosse Pointe Cable and the War Memorial have just spent over $1 million building a state-of-the-art cable studio and arts and communication center at the War Memorial.

One of the reasons the War Memorial became involved in local cable was to ensure local origination television that reflected the wishes of the community, said Grosse Pointe Cable president John Nicholson.

"With this studio, we'll have one of the finest local origination studios in the country," said Mark Weber of the War Memorial at the studio dedication March 11. "This has been a dream of many people for a long time, and Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods will be well served by it for years to come."

The new facility, which has two separate studios, will enable Grosse Pointe Cable to produce shows on a regular schedule.

Previously, the entire War Memorial was a studio, said local origination producer Amy Parvel. When the Seven Mile and Mack studios were closed by St. John Hospital expansion two years ago, shows were taped catch-as-catch-can in the War Memorial, said Parvel.

"For the last two years,

shows were taped when rooms were available," Parvel said. "The main thing was that all the programs were maintained, and we even managed to add two shows to the schedule. It was a real challenge, but we did it."

"Now we don't have to manipulate rooms in the War Memorial. We can schedule the taping of shows rationally. It's a controlled environment, as compared to before when it was unpredictable. We will also be using better equipment for a better quality picture in the homes of our viewers."

On hand to commemorate the opening of the Center for Arts and Communications were representatives from Grosse Pointe Woods, Farms, City, Park and Harper Woods, as well as officials from Grosse Pointe Cable and the War Memorial.

The arts center, in addition to studio space, has a relocated art and dance studio and two meeting rooms. The meeting rooms will be available to any non-profit organization that wishes to use them.

Non-profit groups will also be able to use the studios for any video projects they might have.

"We have really designed the center for the use of the many non-profit groups in the Pointes and Harper Woods," said publicity coordinator Suzy Berschback. "It's not just for those interested in video shows. It has really enhanced our ability to serve the community of Grosse Pointe."

Local origination shows include two exercise shows, two interview shows, a travel show, two shows that emphasize good news in the community and a show for senior citizens. They are broadcast on Channel 32.

Cable faces uncertain future

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Thanks to an explosion in the field of communications technology, cable television as the public knows it could be unrecognizable 10 years hence, and that has Grosse Pointe Cable nervous.

"Ten years from now, cable television will exist," said Grosse Pointe City representative to the cable advisory board Peter Waldmeir, Jr. "The question is in what form will it exist. It won't be what it is today. So how does a cable system get there? Right now we don't know, but when Grosse Pointe Cable's franchise agreement expires a year from now, we'll have to have some plan ready to go."

Grosse Pointe Cable president John Nicholson said that the growth of different technologies from wireless cable to fiber optics to signal compression, means that cable service will be better. It will also probably be more expensive, he said.

"We are committed to expanding the number of channels available to the public to at least 62," Nicholson said. "That will mean spending, at current estimates, about $5 million for new equipment. There's no way around that if we are going to expand beyond the 35 channels we are currently offering."

Grosse Pointe Cable can lay in fiber optic cables. This would allow the system to provide more channels to the consumer.

Fiber optics wiring can handle more information than the cable currently used by Grosse Pointe Cable, Nicholson said. When the system was built in 1979, it had a capacity to handle 35 stations, Nicholson explained. At that time, he said no one dreamed that the number of cable stations would grow.

"In 1979 we were state of the art," Nicholson said. "Unfortunately, state of the art has changed a lot since then. Other systems do provide more stations and services, like pay-per-view and request cable, but they weren't built until years after we were. Remember Grosse Pointe was one of the first communities in the area to have cable."

Grosse Pointe Cable's franchise agreement expires in about a year. By that time, the company hopes to have a plan in place to upgrade the system. Settling on technology won't be easy, said Nicholson.

"We have a lot of options to consider," said Park councilman Vernon Ausherman. "The phone companies are currently laying fiber optic cables that will be able to carry television signals as well as phone signals. That's a backdoor way to get into the cable business. In New York they are experimenting with wireless cable. That works in much the same way cellular phones work."

"General Motors through its Hughes subsidiary is in the process of setting up a satellite system that could directly send signals to satellite dishes not much bigger than a large dinner plate."

"Video compression technology, when it becomes available in 1995 or 1996, could make it possible to have 500 channels sent over our cable wires. Technology is changing things quickly."

Right now, the cities, Comcast and the War Memorial are exploring all the options available to them, Waldmeir said.

"When I say we are reviewing all options, I mean all options. That means everything from selling the system to installing fiber optic wires to purchasing signal compression equipment. We are nowhere near picking a plan of action, but it would be irresponsible to not consider every option before deciding. We are looking at where we have been in order to decide where we are going," Waldmeir said.

G.P. Theatre marks 45 years of role playing in the community

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

From "Clarence" by Booth Tarkington in 1948 to Neil Simon's "Rumors," which opens in April, Grosse Pointe Theater has developed a reputation for professionalism even though the group is made up entirely of volunteers.

Plays by Grosse Pointe Theater were performed at the Cannon Recreation Center in Detroit, Pierce Middle School and Grosse Pointe High School before the group found permanent theater in 1963 at the War Memorial's Fries Auditorium.

And the group rehearsed and built sets in a number of places before moving to its home at 315 Fisher Road in 1981.

"It took a lot of imagination to see that this could work," said board member George Hunt of the vision the group had when it purchased the run-down building a dozen years ago.

The theater group purchased the building, which had been empty for several years, on a 10-year land contract. It had served as a nursing home, small hotel and a boarding house since being built in 1915.

Before moving into 315 Fisher, Grosse Pointe Theater rented space in Grosse Pointe Woods for its headquarters, "but the technical items were scattered in churches, schools and homes," Hunt said. "The scene shop was in the carriage house of the War Memorial."

After a year of renovation, and later, an addition to the rear of the building, Grosse Pointe Theater was finally all under one roof. By 1991, the building was completely paid for.

Unlike many groups, Grosse Pointe Theater does not spend any time fundraising.

"We've never had a fundraiser," Hunt said. "Aside from a few ads in the programs, ticket sales are our only source of income."

The theater group stages five productions a year, two of which are musicals. Budgets for musicals can approach $25,000, but they help sell performances for the rest of the season. All of the money is funneled back into the group.

Although costs have increased, including the rental fees at the War Memorial, Grosse Pointe Theater has tried to keep ticket prices down. Because of this, the group is only able to rehearse at Fries Auditorium about a week before each performance. Everyone must act professionally, "as if they are being paid," Hunt said. "There is no fooling around when we are focusing on a show."

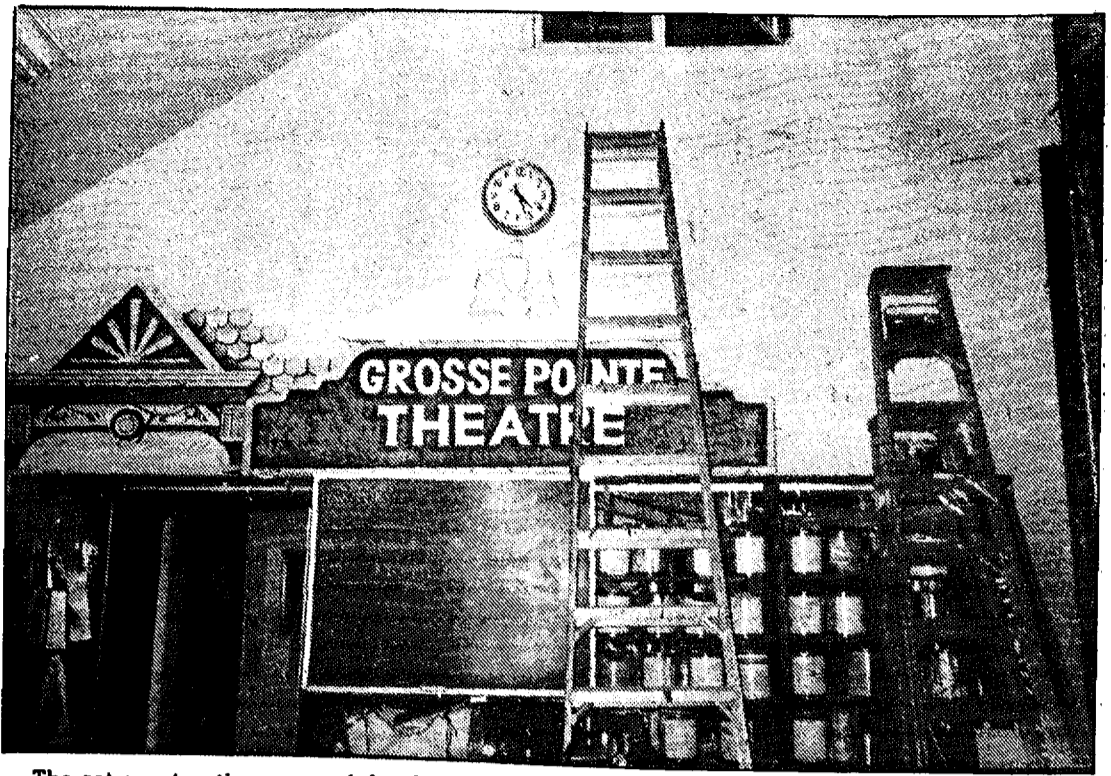

The 350-member group has an elected board of directors consisting of 11 people. All board members have a functional duty, usually something to which that person is suited.

Two committees, one for musicals and one for non-musicals, are appointed, and in the fall of each year, plays are read for the upcoming season. Member input is encouraged as 15 plays (six musicals and nine non-musicals) are presented to the board. In January or early February, the board selects the five plays for the season. A list of the plays is sent to members in July and the board picks directors for each play.

"The renewal rate is pretty high," Hunt said.

Fliers are then sent to Grosse Pointe Theater members, neighboring theater groups, dance studios, universities and the media. Casting is open. Anyone can try out.

These efforts have resulted in many new members joining the group.

The set construction room of the Grosse Pointe Theater building was added following the renovation.

"New people help keep the quality high," Hunt said, "but all qualifications equal, members will be casted."

After the personnel have been selected, sets are constructed in the rear addition to the building, routines are practiced in the downstairs dance and music rooms, and a replica of the Fries stage is built in the 30-by-50-foot rehearsal room upstairs.

Hunt stressed the teamwork involved after roles have been assigned.

"Everybody wants a good show," he said. "Personal feelings are cast aside, and it creates something beautiful."

The downstairs hallway walls are covered with pictures of past performances and the walls of the board room contain programs from every play since "Clarence."

Grosse Pointe Theater holds a monthly workshop, where members can learn playwrighting, directing, set construction and the technical aspects of the theater.

"We would like to do more new plays," Hunt said.

It's at the workshops where new plays can be tried out.

Grosse Pointe Theater offers scholarships from $750 to $1,500 for students interested in pursuing the theatrical arts who attend a Grosse Pointe high school, whose parents are Grosse Pointe Theater members or who have performed in a Grosse Pointe Theater production.

"I feel that we're a positive presence in the community," Hunt said.

SAC² poses challenge: 'Raising Your Children in the 1990s'

"You can't change society, but you can make a difference."

How many times have you heard this statement? Many community-based organizations are currently striving to "make a difference." The Substance Abuse Community Council (SAC²) of Grosse Pointe seeks to make a difference by helping to change societal attitudes regarding alcohol and other drugs.

Alcohol and other drug use is the No. 1 concern of parents today, with violence placing a close second, according to a recent survey (USA Today, Jan. 25). Many times the relationship between the two is causal and direct.

Parents are seeking proactive prevention advice in an effort to protect the health and safety of their children. With this in mind, SAC² is pleased to announce a new approach to parent education, by offering our new workshop through our education sub-committee. "Prevention Plus for Parents" (P²), beginning March 23 through the Grosse Pointe school system.

"Raising Your Children in the 1990s" is a two-part, media-rich program that challenges parents to examine the activities and environmental conditions that could jeopardize the health and safety of their children. The program brings parents together to discuss concerns and to consider proactive prevention strategies. Supervision, setting limits, age-appropriate activities, and the availability of alcohol and other drugs are addressed.

"Raising Your Children in the 1990s" is a new program developed by P² over the past five years as a culmination of hard work and concentration of well-researched prevention strategy application.

The seven members of the SAC² committee that developed the program together have 56 years of experience in prevention education and degrees in social work, health education and nursing; four were teachers, and five are board members of SAC². Additionally, they have 17 children and three grandchildren.

With this rich and diverse professional and personal history, they choose to volunteer their time, skills, and cumulative knowledge toward educating parents about drug use prevention, with the intent of effecting positive change and creating a safer, healthier environment for the youth of our communities.

Last year, SAC²'s workshop attracted more than 1,000 concerned Grosse Pointe parents. As SAC² enters its second decade of community service, it hopes to be part of the solution.

The two-part program series dates, times and locations are:

- For parents of 4th-through 8th-graders from Defer, Trombly, Maire, and Pierce schools: March 23 and March 30 at Grosse Pointe South cafeteria from 7:15 to 9 p.m.

- For parents of 4th-through 8th-graders from Richard, Kerby, Monteith and Brownell: April 21 and April 28 at Brownell cafeteria from 7:15 to 9 p.m.

- For parents of 4th-through 8th-graders from Ferry, Mason, Poupard, and Parcels: April 26 and May 3 at Grosse Pointe North cafeteria from 7:15 to 9 p.m.

Pre-registration (forms will be coming home from school) is required. Seating is limited.

Futuring process moves into next phase

Participants in the futuring process for the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods are ready to begin developing desirable outcomes and strategies following a special booster report session. That meeting will be held Sunday, March 28, from 2:30 p.m. to 5 p.m., at Grosse Pointe South High School.

Since November 1992, the seven project task forces have worked on the discovery phase of the project, improving their understanding of current conditions and studying trends which may affect the future of communities. They will report their findings at the booster session, which is expected to heighten enthusiasm for the next phase.

"The discovery phase is a challenge for all participants," said Edward D. Barlow Jr., process facilitator. "So often individuals and groups want to develop strategies and answers right away. But this process approach requires that they extensively consider the past, present and future possible conditions before developing a vision of what the communities should look like in the future."

This approach seems to be working. At a recent steering committee meeting, John Bruce, co-chairman of the Leisure and Culture Task Force reported, "...each meeting provides new insight to task force members. We go away with an understanding about our respective communities that we didn't have before the meeting. It's been an exciting approach for all of us."

According to Peter Waldmeir, Grosse Pointe City councilman and steering committee member, the discovery phase has been so exciting that "participants have variously described it as either the light at the end of the tunnel or the headlight of an oncoming locomotive."

After the March 28 report session, the task forces will spend the next several months developing desirable outcomes and action strategies to achieve them. Their conclusions will be part of a report that will be submitted to the participating communities. A special committee is currently working out a full communication plan for sharing the findings with the community at large. A final report is anticipated early in the fall.

Rich Solak, city manager of Grosse Pointe Farms and project coordinator, said that 160 are involved in the seven task forces: community; public facilities and service; financial and economic vitality; public safety; beautification and preservation; human services and leisure and culture. Each task force meets at least once a month, and many have broken into subgroups. Those involved in the process are supported by professional staffs from the participating communities.

New chef dishes up an eclectic selection at ONE23

By Shirley McShane
Staff Writer

Michael Trombley is the new kid on the block at ONE23 restaurant on the Hill.

He's 24 and working as acting/sous chef, replacing Zachary Smith. The Grosse Pointe Park resident has an enviable job, but admits he still has to prove himself.

"I consider myself lucky to have such a position," said Trombley, during a break from a typical 14-hour day in the kitchen.

Dressed in checked pants, a white chef's jacket and a baseball cap with the ONE23 logo stitched on the front, Trombley's attire, combined with his easygoing personality, reflect his attitude toward his work: A mixture of tradition and originality.

"I'd like to change a few things here while still keeping the customer familiar with the menu," he said. "A lot of chefs make the mistake of losing touch with the customer."

If a chef becomes too obsessed with creating unusual and bizarre dishes, presumably to impress other chefs, he runs the risk of alienating the clientele, he explained.

"I'm here to please the customer, not myself," he added.

Trombley is in the process of planning the spring menu at ONE23. He'll include spring lamb, an emphasis on Great Lakes fish and a mixture of ingredients indigenous to the region: fiddlehead ferns, morel mushrooms, venison and rabbit.

The menu will remain eclectic, he said, with a combination of French, Chinese, Japanese, Italian and a variety of other influences.

While his formal training is limited, Trombley's on-the-job experience started early and is as varied as the menu he is creating at ONE23.

"I believe you learn from doing," he said.

Even as a child, Trombley said he knew culinary arts was his calling. Charged with babysitting a younger brother, Trombley said he enjoyed preparing meals for his sibling and challenging himself to recreate — and improve upon — sauces and dishes from local restaurants.

Next came culinary arts classes through a vocational program at L'Anse Creuse High School. He also took classes at Lansing and Oakland community colleges. His resume includes three summers cooking at the St. Clair Shores Country Club. During the winter, he worked at a variety of local specialty restaurants, fine-tuning his skills.

Next, he worked for a little more than two years as sous chef at the Dusty Restaurant in Okemos. A sous chef works directly under the head chef, he said.

He learned to handle pressure, big crowds and discriminating tastes while working his way up to the position of night saute station at the Golden Mushroom.

When he left the Golden Mushroom, Trombley said he was considering two career moves. He wanted to work at Tapawaingo in Charlevoix and he also wanted to work with Jimmy Schmidt, whose talents he admired.

In the end, he decided the best place to round out his education would be at the River Place Inn in Stroh River Place.

Unfortunately, his first day on the job was also his last.

The day he was hired, restaurant management made a last-minute decision to close down operations.

Schmidt could only offer Trombley a part-time position at the Rattlesnake Club, Trombley said. He began working at ONE23 on Jan. 1.

"This business is competitive and it is hard, at my age, to get a job like this," he explained. "I'm constantly having to prove myself. A lot of people would be overwhelmed. But on my first day, I concentrated on learning and acclimating myself to the surroundings."

Ultimately, he would like to open his own restaurant, he said.

"This is my life, my second home," he said. "I've learned a lot along the way, most of all to be patient."

His philosophy on what makes a good restaurant: "That could take four hours to explain. Let's just say it has to have good atmosphere, good food and pleasant people working there."

New ways to file your tax return

These are typical of questions asked by taxpayers and are presented as a public service of this publication and the IRS.

Q. I understand the Internal Revenue Service now has several ways for people to file their federal tax returns. Can you explain my choices?

A. In addition to the traditional paper tax return, you can now send in your taxes electronically or figure them by personal computer.

Electronic filing is a service offered by many tax return preparers. They send your tax return information electronically over telephone wires directly to an IRS Service Center. The IRS usually notifies the preparer within 24 hours that the return was received. One advantage is that you'll receive your refund within three weeks, maybe even faster if you have it directly deposited into your checking or savings account.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q. I have also heard that the IRS tests filing programs before they become available across the nation. Are there any programs being tested now? What are they?

A. TeleFile is a pilot program offered only to people filing Form 1040EZ in Ohio. People fill out a Form 1040-TEL with total wages, interest and tax withheld.

Using a toll-free number, the information is entered into a touch-tone phone and transmitted to the IRS. While the taxpayer is still on the phone, the IRS calculates adjusted gross income, the tax and any refund or additional tax due.

Form 1040-TEL is then signed and sent to the IRS along with W-2 forms from the employer and a check if tax is owed.

New Michigan law applicable to teachers stirs constitutional concerns

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Bob Smith has applied for the position of biology teacher in a local school district. After the initial interviewing and screening process, Smith is declared the top candidate.

According to a new Michigan law, effective with the 1993-94 school year, Smith must pay a nominal fee and be fingerprinted at the local police station.

A record of his fingerprints is then sent to the Michigan State Police records bureau. In about 30 days, the school district will receive a copy of Smith's criminal history — if he has one.

Initial discussions of how the Grosse Pointe Public School System will implement the law raised concerns about the 30-day time delay.

Ronald Tonks, district personnel director, said problems could arise if a teacher decides the week before Labor Day to retire. Without a pool of eligible applicants cleared through the state police, the district could be stuck juggling substitutes until a permanent replacement is hired, he said.

Since then, a superintendent in a Macomb County school district expressed concerns about schools possessing information on new employees that they normally would have access to — like race and date of birth and previous arrests.

Could Smith accuse the local school district in which he applied with violating his civil rights?

Personnel directors only are to consider criminal convictions when looking at a potential employee's record.

"This puts everyone in a Catch-22 situation," said Carol Logan, director of teacher administration and certification for the Michigan Department of Education. "(School districts) have to take what the state police data base gives them. They can't sort out convictions from certain kinds of arrests. That is their format."

Logan said that the intent of the law, public act 99, is to protect the welfare of children and help schools screen against persons convicted of certain crimes, including assault, abuse and criminal sexual conduct.

"There is concern out there that schools would be getting more information on a person than is necessary," Logan said. "The alternative is no access at all. (Schools) cannot do anything at all with the record of arrests; they have no authority to consider that. But if you saw a pattern of arrests, there could be a decision made on that."

What if Smith didn't get the job following the district's receipt of his state police record? Could he sue the district on the assumption he was discriminated against based on information the district now had about him?

"We can ask (on a job application) if a person has been convicted, but not if they've been arrested," Tonks said. "Let's say that person was arrested but never convicted. Well, now we've got that information. If you haven't made that person an offer and you don't hire that person, the school district could maybe have a problem."

In the past, the school district has run criminal history checks only on persons offered a position, Tonks said. If a person lied about a conviction, the district had the grounds to charge that the employee falsified an application.

And because public act 99 permits school districts access to state police records, it in essence makes the information contained in the reports legally accessible and open for the district's consideration, said Stacy Owen, legislative assistant to State Rep. Terry London, R-Marysville.

"When the law was drafted, it gave the state police permission to set up that procedure," Owen said. "There are already laws in place that say you can't discriminate against a person based on race and age. If a person thought there was discrimination, there are legal channels."

Owen said several meetings have been held between the state department of education, the state police, representatives of school districts and education interest groups like the Michigan Education Association on a number of concerns with the new law.

"We want to stress that we are working to make changes," Owen said. "We want to get the word out that these concerns are being addressed and we're not just throwing this at the school district and saying 'good luck.'"

London sponsored public act 99 and is currently considering a bill to amend the original law to allow a grace period for new employees to work in the classroom until the criminal history check is returned.

"The employee would first have to sign something stating that the history check will be clean," Owen said. "If it comes back with something on it, the contract is considered null and void."

Woods OKs $500,000 cleanup

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

In order to comply with federal regulations, the Woods city council voted to spend $500,000 to replace the Kerby Road sewage pump station.

James T. Murray of the Wayne County Department of Public Services addressed the Woods council Monday, and told the council that they, along with the other cities in the South Macomb Sewer District, have to spend the money needed to repair the Kerby pump station by the end of next year. If they do not, they could be liable for fines up to $25,000 a day.

"The federal government changed pollution standards several years ago," Murray said. "When they did that, the EPA issued a permit to the South Macomb Sewer District that said the district has until December of 1994 to clean up the Milk River sewer line. One of the things they have to do is increase the Kerby Road pump station's pumping capacity so that the station can pump all of the District's sewage during heavy storms and other times to Detroit for processing."

Murray said it will take $6.4 million to replace the station and that repairing it would cost even more.

The South Macomb Sewer District, consisting of Grosse Pointe Woods, Grosse Pointe Shores, Eastpointe, Roseville, St. Clair Shores and Harper Woods, was created in the 1960s to handle sewer projects no one city could do alone.

Cost will be spread among the members based on sewage use. The Woods' contribution to the project is estimated to be $505,122.

According to Murray, all the cities in the district must approve the project.

Several council members asked Murray if there was federal money available to complete the project.

Murray had only bad news. He said given federal budget problems, the best the Woods could expect was a loan from the state and the federal government. He said current interest rates are around 6 or 7 percent and the federal loan is at 2 percent.

The project will take 20 years to pay off, Murray said.

"There is no way to get around this," Murray said. "The federal permit expires in 1994. If the district doesn't meet federal pollution standards by then, the government will haul the district into federal court. I don't think the council wants that."

City adds assessment appeal dates

Grosse Pointe City has added four additional dates for property owners who would like to schedule an appointment to appeal their assessments.

Residents who were unable to schedule an appointment for the week of March 15-19 may do so for March 22-25.

The city asks that residents fill out a form at the city offices and return it before their appeal date. To schedule an appointment, call the City of Grosse Pointe at 885-5800.

Anonymous caller threatens principal

A young-sounding man called the Grosse Pointe South High School attendance office on March 10 and warned that a bomb was in the building and that he would personally kill principal John Artis.

The attendance secretary reported the matter to school administrators and to the Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department. School custodians conducted a search of the buildings and grounds, but found no bomb.

The secretary told police the caller sounded between 16 and 20 years old and was using a foreign accent in an attempt to disguise his voice.

Farms public safety Lt. Mark Brecht said bogus bomb scares at the high school occur from time to time and increase around graduation time each year.

A person found guilty of making threatening telephone calls could face a maximum of six months in jail and/or a $500 fine. A person convicted of reporting a fictitious crime or bomb could face a maximum of 50 days in jail and/or a $100 fine, according to two Michigan statutes.

State buoyed by economic good news

Michigan finally is getting some good economic news, buoying hopes that the recession at last is receding in this state.

One of the most optimistic reports showed that Michigan's unemployment rate in February for the first time in 15 years was lower than the national figure in a given month.

Michigan's jobless rate declined for the third straight month, falling to 6.8 percent as contrasted with 7.1 percent in January and 8 percent in December. The U.S. rate of 7 percent was a decline from the 7.1 percent figure for January.

A second favorable economic report showed that in the first two months of 1993 the Big Three's share of U.S. car sales rose three percentage points, to 58 percent, while the Japanese auto industry's share dipped to 27 percent after hitting 30 percent in both 1991 and 1992.

True, two months is a "short wheel-base" for measuring annual output but it indicates a hopeful trend in the U.S. market for the battered auto industry which plays such a vital role in this state's economy.

The Detroit Free Press quoted figures showing that in 1992 the Michigan automotive output expanded 12 percent and the state's economy grew 6.3 percent after inflation, as contrasted with a 2.1 percent improvement in the nation.

Those figures showed, the story said, that Michigan had a "bit of a jump start" on the rest of the nation last year. The new employment and auto output figures show that the improvement is continuing this year.

The economic picture also was brightened by reports of increased productivity last year in both the state and nation. Nationally, productivity reportedly grew at the fastest rate in 20 years, the New York Times said.

Many economists, as well as Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, believe that the nation may be poised for faster economic growth than previously anticipated.

That optimism is based on the belief that many businesses by now have learned how to make better use of their computers and the other new high-tech equipment utilized in production processes and manufacturing.

Michigan also will benefit from the plunging national interest rates which are putting money into the pockets of millions of Americans and corporations, although it is also hurting older people who count on interest income to pay their expenses.

The decline in interest rates means that the interest on the national debt will likely be the same this year as it was last year, even though the actual debt is still growing.

The good economic news also enables more Michiganders to see some light at the end of the economic tunnel, even though there were 8,000 fewer jobs in the auto industry in Michigan last month than in January.

In fact, the new jobs in retail trade, services and other fields more than made up the difference for the auto industry's losses, a development that raises hopes that the state no longer must be regarded as a continuing hostage to the fortunes of the auto manufacturers.

Airport plan still a bad one

Grosse Pointe foes of the Detroit City Airport development renewed their opposition this week to a revamped airport expansion plan proposed by the city of Detroit.

The Detroit News used the Freedom of Information Act to obtain documents that details Detroit's plans for a $379-million airport expansion project. It calls for a 22-gate passenger terminal and a new 7,200-foot runway that could handle most commercial planes.

Grosse Pointe opposition in the past has centered on noise and air pollution from proposed use of bigger jets on longer runways, as well as the increased danger to a residential community that lies in the path of proposed night flights to the southeast toward the Pointes.

Two factors apparently account for the new Detroit pressure for an enlarged City Airport.

One is the prospect of increased air traffic attracted by legalized casino gambling which is coming to Windsor and is again being sought for Detroit.

The other is the expiration of the Southwest Airlines contract on June 30.

That has inspired stories that Southwest would expand its City Airport operations if the airport could handle more traffic.

If, as reported, Detroit is seeking support from a combination of federal and state aid, city revenue bonds and an airport passenger tax, it could face opposition from Gov. John Engler, who promised last year that no state funds would be available for the airport expansion.

In addition, there will be plenty of criticism from within Detroit itself. That opposition will come from many of the owners of the 2,500 homes and 118 businesses that would be razed to make way for the runway extension.

In addition, the expansion would require city and state funds for the relocation of Conrail tracks, rerouting streets and Highway M-53, and making various other public improvements.

In view of the airport's location in the midst of a heavily populated residential and business area, we still think the project smacks more of a public works boondoggle for the city of Detroit than a planned development to improve air service for the Detroit metropolitan area.

Konsler apologizes for misinterpretation

To the Editor:

In a story about Monteth School enrollment last week, I made a statement about Harper Woods students which lent itself to misinterpretation. That statement has hurt and angered the Poupard School community, and I wish to apologize to them.

I never intended to disparage Poupard staff, students, their parents, or the Harper Woods community in general.

In referring to the difficulties of redrawing school boundary lines, I was trying to explain the reluctance some people feel at having to leave what they perceive is their neighborhood school to attend a new and different school.

Unfortunately, I failed to convey that clearly. As I said in the same newspaper article, "Poupard is an excellent school," and it is a source of great pain to me that anyone thinks I believe otherwise.

Poupard parents have also shared with me a number of other concerns which they feel the school system has not addressed. I want to assure them that the superintendent and principal will be working with their PTO to resolve these problems as quickly as possible.

News. Specifically her contention that "there are some people who do not want their children to go to school with Harper Woods kids."

Where is it written that one's street address guarantees superiority? The children of Harper Woods are not inferior by any standard that could ever be applied — intellectually, morally, ethically or by home-training — which in America has always emphasized the things that make us one, not the superficial things that divide us.

My children have had many opportunities to "co-exist" with children who live in Grosse Pointe. We have and continue to maintain beautiful friendships based on human equality.

Basically, after all the rhetoric, we are talking about children here and their precious childhoods, which to all intelligent thinking people must be nurtured, protected and guaranteed the best education any community can offer — achieved by working together.

Who could possibly think otherwise?

Susan C. Stafford

Public apology requested

To the Editor:

As a former Poupard School parent who was educated in the Grosse Pointe public schools, I am disturbed by the comments about the "Harper Woods kids."

How sad that the president of the Grosse Pointe school board has publicly discriminated against them. Her insensitive comments do not promote a unified school district, and she owes the community a public apology.

Local skeptics 'greet' Conyers

You have to give Rep. John Conyers Jr. credit for sponsoring town meetings in Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods to explain and hear public reaction to the Clinton economic program even though the program isn't too popular here.

In both meetings, as reported in last week's Grosse Pointe News and in the Connection, Conyers was greeted by more skepticism than approval. At the Harper Woods' session, hecklers even booed and grew so unruly that Mayor James Haley had to threaten to call the police to eject them.

Unfortunately, the heckling even included racial slurs for the man who represents both the Shores and the Woods, now part of his 14th Congressional District.

Whatever voters may think of Conyers personally, the veteran congressman is entitled to public respect as well as credit for sponsoring the meetings to inform his constituents as well as to hear their opinions.

The apparent leader of the hecklers was a Detroit, Don Lobsinger, who has put on similar performances at public meetings ever since Dr. Martin Luther King appeared in Grosse Pointe shortly before his assassination.

Conyers himself expressed some concern not only about the president's economic proposals, which he felt don't do enough to create jobs, but also about health care reform and the energy tax proposal.

But most of both audiences seemed more concerned about the effect of the president's plans to raise taxes, especially the fairness of his proposal to raise taxes on Social Security recipients, and whether his budget cuts will be sufficient to trim the deficit.

On the latter point, Clinton last week did agree, under pressure from both Democratic and GOP congressmen, to increase the proposed cuts in spending, a promise expected to help him win approval for his program.

The problem now, of course, is to find the specific spending cuts that both the president and Congress will accept.

Suburbs still support Detroit

It is encouraging to learn that almost three-fourths of the suburbanites interviewed in a recent Detroit News poll said that it is "very important" to them that the city "thrive and succeed."

In a second public opinion poll, made of 400 registered voters in Detroit, only 58 percent of the city respondents said it was important to them that the suburbs succeed, as contrasted with the 72 percent of suburbanites who said it was "very important" to them that Detroit succeed.

The Detroit News saw that city response as "perhaps reflecting a belief that 30 years of suburban flight has caused or contributed to Detroit's problems."

Perhaps so. It also may have been caused by the criticism of the suburbs that has erupted from Mayor Coleman Young every time an election approaches.

This year, however, the mayor is unpopular in both the city and the suburbs. In a poll reported early in February, the Detroit paper found 81.8 percent of the city residents and 93.5 percent of suburbanites opposing a sixth term for the mayor.

About three-fourths of the city and suburban respondents in the current polls also agreed that conditions in Detroit are "worse" now than four years ago while fewer than 40 percent of each group thinks conditions "are likely" to get better.

Overall, however, the polls do indicate a favorable climate for election of a mayor who would promise to cooperate with the suburbs and who would, in turn, receive good support from suburbanites who believe it is "very important" to them that Detroit "thrive and succeed."

the press, to keep them away. But with 'Zebrhead,' the mission was sort of the opposite, where we were out actively soliciting people, asking them to come to the shoot and talk to the stars."

Malinowski was also involved with the film "Roger & Me," an independent film picked up by Warner Bros., one of Marontate's clients.

"It was a nightmare project," he said, recalling how he provided free popcorn and pop to 4,000 people for the film's screening at the Showcase Cinemas in Flint.

When there are no films being shot in town, he handles the publicity and promotions for the movies released here by his clients, the studios.

With an early interest in the movies, Malinowski began his career selling popcorn at a drive-in theater in Lansing. At the time he was a student at Michigan State University, and his roommate's girlfriend was the manager of the drive-in.

He eventually became the manager of the Lansing and Star Lite drive-ins part, of the W.S. Butterfield theater circuit. Neither drive-in exists today. Malinowski was handling the advertising and promotions for the theaters when he learned of an opportunity with the Praught-Marontate Co.

He joined the advertising agency in 1981. Mike Marontate had just purchased the agency from Woody Praught, and was looking for someone who had a theatrical/advertising background. Malinowski had been looking to make a move, feeling that he had gone as far as he could go on the theater circuit.

"It was the right place at the right time," he said.

When there aren't any plans for filming in the Detroit area, Malinowski is busy implementing national promotions and publicity programs.

"For publicity, we're always working on projects," he said. "There's nothing scheduled for production in Detroit immediately, but things change on a fairly rapid basis. All of a sudden someone gets a divine inspiration, wakes up in the middle of the night, and says, 'Detroit! Let's go!'"

Woman thwarts would-be robber

A 62-year-old Detroit woman leaving the Pointe Plaza building on Mack near Moross on March 12 refused to succumb to an unarmed robber who was stalking her.

The woman told police she was approached from behind by a man who repeatedly asked her to hand over her purse.

The woman refused his orders. The mugger then told her if she did not hand over her purse, he would kill her. He put his hand inside his coat pocket suggesting to the woman that he was retrieving a weapon. The woman thought he might have a knife and began screaming. Her cries alerted a customer leaving a nearby retail store, whose presence caused the mugger to flee the scene.

is the publicity and promotion of the movies on an on-going basis — the things that are released every week."

The last big project Malinowski worked on was for the movie "Groundhog Day," starring Bill Murray and Andie MacDowell. He set up a contest with Channel 50 and WHTF-FM 96.3, offering people a chance to win tickets to see the film. He sent out "Groundhog Day" ties to weathercasters and television stations, "and some actually held them up," he said. Malinowski also worked with TGIFridays restaurants coordinating the national campaign on a local level.

"There's a lot of grass roots involvement," he said. "The idea is to try to add a sense of excitement to the picture. A comedy like 'Groundhog Day,' you try to present it as a fun picture."

Malinowski said an interesting aspect of his job is "positioning," making sure the right audience sees the right movies.

"Obviously, you don't do the same things for Groundhog Day that you'd do for 'The Killing Fields.'"

He says he misses the "order-DNC chief to keynote Dems' dinner Harper Woods students or the Harper Woods residents," Konsler said. "It was never intended as a cutting or belittling remark. I apologized, but I don't know if they accepted or not."

"It's just a statement of fact; there are some Grosse Pointe families that don't want their kids to go to Harper Woods schools."

During the one hour and 20 minute meeting, Konsler said, "Some parents related horrible stories how their children were verbally mistreated by Grosse Pointe students."

"They said they knew the perception existed 40 years ago, but I didn't know there was any animosity between the students."

Harper Woods resident and Poupard PTO secretary Carol Fanner said she and other parents felt that Konsler's statement was "very prejudicial."

"Many parents felt it was an irresponsible act on her part to focus on that rather than focusing on the fine points of Poupard," Fanner said. However, she did agree that some Grosse Pointe students tease the Harper Woods kids.

"The kids are called the poor kids or the kids from the poorer section of the school district," Fanner said.

"There was the feeling by the Poupard parents that it was the Grosse Pointe parents saying that to their children, but now it's being said by the big rush. There were these peaks and valleys. Now there's a fairly steady stream of product," he explained.

Schedules are moved around more these days, he said, and movies get "played" differently.

"It used to be that movies started out at a downtown theater, where it would play a kids, too," she said.

Fanner said that none of her three children have heard disparaging remarks.

After the meeting, Fanner said the Poupard PTO agreed to further investigate the incident and plans to meet with the board of education in the future.

While she regrets the meeting had to take place, Konsler said that in the course of listening to the parents, she learned about many of their concerns.

"They brought to light some problems we didn't know existed," she said.

couple months, then go to the second-round and neighborhood houses. They called them 'tracks.' Now pictures are released area-wide," he said.

Changes in release dates make it more difficult for Malinowski in coordinating promotions and contests with retailers, but occasionally things fall into place.

He mentioned a picture that opened at the Maple Theater in Birmingham last month, "Tous Les Matins du Monde," a film set in 17th-century France. Malinowski was able to get the costumes and display them in a store next to the theater.

Malinowski is currently working on a word-of-mouth screening program for a Twentieth Century Fox movie called "Sandlot."

He will go to Los Angeles at the end of this month for a Columbia/Tri-Star field meeting — where advertisers can see how they can coordinate promotions for upcoming films.

Born in Hamtramck, Malinowski grew up on Detroit's east side. He went to Orchard Lake St. Mary's and then to Michigan State University graduating in 1973 with a communications degree.

He lives in Grosse Pointe Woods with his wife, Judy, and two children, Jim and Lisa.

Retired, lonely? Just do what the song says — 'Be happy'

In our fast-moving, hello-goodbye world, catch phrases provide a line of communication with those whom we meet in our day-to-day travels. One of the most frequently heard is "Have a nice day!"

It has become a favorite of clerks, business associates, friends, even family members with whom we share our lives. There's nothing wrong with the expression. It's rather pleasant to think that people wish for your day to be nice.

However, it might be even more cheering if we were left with the heart-felt wish, "Be happy."

Having a nice day is all well and good, but it could mean just the absence of anything upsetting us. Whereas, if we are told to "be happy" we are put in a frame of mind where we actively look for good things to happen. Not only that, it could serve as a reminder that it is up to us to help make our day a happy one.

Such a spoken gesture could be of particular value to older people. Despite the fact that older people are frequently told that these are the golden years, a time when they can sit back and enjoy the fruits of their long years of labor, there are not many who would not privately admit that while later years can be satisfying, they are not the best years of their lives.

As one grows older, day-dreams are not of the future but of the past. The mind and memory become suffused with warm and comforting pictures of what has been rather than the less promising prospects of what lies ahead.

We tend to draw on memo-

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

ries of those times when our families were around us and the happy times we shared. We think with pride about our accomplishments and successes in the world of work. We recall with amazement how we could fill our days with work and play and never get tired. It was a never-never land that would go on forever, a land where it was possible for all dreams to come true, a land of bright horizons.

But like the evening that darkens the landscape, the years drifted by. Families grew up and moved into worlds of their own. The work that filled our days and occupied our minds came to an end as we reached the age of retirement. Death claimed the lives of many of those close to us. Many of the activities we once enjoyed became too strenuous.

Considering what has been lost, for someone to wish us to have "a nice day" sounds pretty good. We realize it won't be an exciting day, but it won't be a traumatic one either.

However, the wish expressed in "be happy" means much more. It means, while we treasure the past and live in the present, we can have a brighter future, if we accept that not as a platitude but rather as a reminder that we can be happy if we actively plan and work at it.

While working at being happy may sound like a contradiction of terms, it is not. We know from past experiences what contributed to happiness in our lives. More than likely it was the love and closeness of family life, friendship, the satisfaction of work well done, the buoyancy of good health.

It is possible to put most of those satisfactions back into our lives. At first it is difficult, particularly if we have sat back and watched all that makes life good slip away. We don't really want to go out into a strange world to try to make new friends, to join church groups, or go to senior centers or arrange to meet a friend who has moved away.

It is comfortable sitting at home. We don't need the hassle of all that effort. But we do. Otherwise our lives become dull and drab and limited. The satisfaction of being alone with memories can turn to bitterness because no one comes to visit or calls. We can avoid this happening if we make the first big effort. After that it becomes easier. We find that if we seek them out, there are new friends waiting and new experiences to be shared.

Often these friends become a surrogate family, which become interested and concerned for us and can be called upon to share the worries, the troubles and the joys we once shared with our own family and former friends.

There are some older people who are so work-oriented that without a place to go each day and hours to keep, they are lost. Nothing takes the place of the worthwhile feeling that comes from having assigned work to do. Nothing else affords the satisfaction of having done that work well and having an important place in the work world.

Unfortunately, because of age, physically capable and mentally alert people are pushed out of work they have come to depend upon to give them worth as a person. To add to the problem, there has recently been a movement to either offer incentives for early retirement or to reassign older workers to meaningless jobs that destroy that sense of worth.

Relegated to the questionable euphoria of unlimited leisure, they wander aimlessly in a new, strange environment that has little to offer.

To tell them to "be happy" may be an empty phrase. But it need not be so, if they take it in the spirit in which it is given, for it implies exactly what they most enjoyed — work.

If these displaced people look about them, they can find endless jobs that need doing. It won't be work that pays money, but it will be work that pays off in the non-negotiable coin of happiness that comes from doing for others.

It comes from doing volunteer work where you are truly needed and will reap the benefits of knowing that once again you are a VIP — a very important person.

There are many organizations that need workers and will be grateful for your help. If you answer their call, you will not only be helping others, you will be helping yourself. As a volunteer worker, you will meet and enjoy the company of others who are giving their time also. More than likely you will have much in common with them because both you and they will be working at something you chose.

"Be happy." If you don't take care of yourself, exercise, eat properly and see to minor ills before they become major ones, it's hard to be happy. It would be wonderful if we could say "be happy," and by some magic, our wish would come true.

Resolve to have a happy day. Choose activities you enjoy and plan ahead what you will do the next day. Get out of the house every day. Fill each day with activities, whether it be social contacts, volunteer work, hobbies or exercise. It's all there waiting for you.

Comments called biased,

To the Editor:

As a Harper Woods resident, I was offended by school board president Gloria Konsler's comments in the March 11 article concerning Monteith School. She was quoted as saying "a small percentage of Grosse Pointe parents do not want their kids going to school with Harper Woods kids."

I find it hard to believe that a school board member would repeat and thus give credibility to such a biased and prejudiced point of view.

I thought one of the objectives of the school system is to help prepare our children to grow up respecting and accepting differences in people. Apparently, the Grosse Pointe school system does not strive toward this goal.

Recall fever

To the Editor:

As a person who lived through the Detroit riots in 1967, I would have thought racial and economic prejudices would have been abolished by 1993. Yet today, people are still judged by the color of their skin and the contents of their wallets, instead of their hearts.

I am a Harper Woods resident who pays Grosse Pointe school taxes. My children attend Poupard School. I am requesting the immediate removal of the Grosse Pointe board of education president Gloria Konsler. The remarks she made available for publication were unbecoming a person of her position. She does not have the insight necessary to hold the position to which she was appointed.

On Friday evening Poupard held a meeting for parents to discuss their feelings on your article, "Monteith: It keeps growing and growing..." and that's not all good." Ms. Konsler was invited to explain herself and "clear up" any "misinformation."

I found her to be pretentious, abrasive and very condescending. She began her talk with not being sure of what to wear, whether she should dress "up" or "down" for us. (I think you looked nice.)

Then she proceeded to tell the crowd that she, too, lives in a small house and decided to add on an addition instead of moving. She summed up her speech by telling us that Jay Flowers actually wanted to be principal at Poupard. No one had to twist his arm. (Thank you for viewing Mr. Flowers' career decision as a mishap on his part.)

The real danger of having this person as president of our school board is that she truly does not realize she is the problem personified. She definitely is biased and very opinionated. She does not meet the criteria a president of the board of education should have. Instead of shadows of our predecessors, parents in this day and age should strive to correct past prejudices if we truly have become an enlightened community. We should be bridging gaps of differences, economic and racial, not widening them.

Ms. Konsler is unable to solve the problems facing the entire school district. She is an embarrassment to all of Grosse Pointe and the board of education. I want Gloria Konsler recalled. Hopefully, Ms. Konsler will have the dignity to just resign.

A vote for Poupard

To the Editor:

Freedom of speech: the price we pay is high.

Last week Gloria Konsler used this freedom at the cost of our children by making a naive, insensitive statement. She suggested that the children who live in Harper Woods are anything but desirable. Well, we have news for you. The children who live here are superb, just like all children.

Poupard Elementary sits in Harper Woods, but belongs to the Grosse Pointe school system. Our children are no different than those at any of the Grosse Pointe schools. Perhaps it's the parents that are different. The morale and spirit at Poupard Elementary is overwhelming. The enthusiasm soars at all of our many functions.

When a public speaker uses the freedom of speech in a way that demoralizes or slanders a group of people, that speaker is usually asked to step down, apologize, pay a fine, or is fired.

Well, Ms. Konsler, you spoke at a public function and you demoralized the children in Harper Woods. You left a permanent scar in the memory banks of everyone who read your comment who lives in Harper Woods, not to mention the embarrassment you caused many, many others.

Since you used your freedom of speech Ms. Konsler, we will all be using our freedom of vote at the next school board election, if not before.

Mary Casinelli
Poupard Parent

Harper Woods board president?

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my concern regarding the article in your paper on last Thursday.

I live in Harper Woods, and my three children attend Poupard School. The statement made by Gloria Konsler about "Harper Woods kids" was very insensitive on her part. I feel as a parent that what she said about our kids was a very unprofessional comment to make.

I would like to express to all of Grosse Pointe parents: Did you ever think we may not want our kids with Grosse Pointe kids?

I think Gloria Konsler should step down from board president, and we should let someone who thinks about all kids take that job. Maybe even someone from Harper Woods!

School mission is unity

To the Editor:

I am writing you in regards to your statements made to the Grosse Pointe News, Thursday, March 11. It saddens me deeply, to read that an elected official would be so insensitive to a group of people and feel it necessary to expound on a negative problem.

I have been present at a number of the board of education meetings and time and again I hear you say you will not be "pressured by peer groups." That has been expressed to the lacrosse team in its bid to win varsity status. Your position as a board of education president is to work for the welfare of the majority of students. Must you then reiterate the feelings of a "small percentage of people" and hurt a number of Harper Woods kids who have done you no wrong nor anyone else for that matter.

As sensitive as the issue of redrawing of school boundaries already is, it looks to me not only do you have to concern yourself with the children and parents of Monteith, but now add to that the feelings and concerns of the parents and students of Poupard.

I sincerely hope you find it in your heart to not only apologize to those of us at Poupard, but remember that the mission of the Grosse Pointe schools is to promote "unity."

In defense of children

To the Editor:

As adults, we have the ability to defend ourselves when our character is attacked, children do not. Therefore, on behalf of and in support of "Harper Woods kids," I feel compelled to respond to Gloria Konsler's perception of the children of Harper Woods.

The comments made regarding "Harper Woods kids" by Gloria Konsler, Grosse Pointe school board president, in the Grosse Pointe News last week, was an assault on innocent children. We teach our children not to put up barriers nor to prejudge anyone.

So often, what we do as adults is learned and imitated by our children. To have someone, who represents the entire Grosse Pointe school district, display such unprofessional behavior should be an embarrassment to the Grosse Pointe school district. Those with prejudices and biases cannot provide equal representation.

Educating our children should be a united effort, providing every child in the Grosse Pointe school district with the same opportunities.

I cannot believe the people of the Grosse Pointe school district would accept these statements from an elected official whose responsibility is to work towards quality education for all our children.

Through Gloria Konsler's statements, comments and actions, it is evident that she believes in what she has said. With such strong credence, future representation by Gloria Konsler on the school board should be evaluated.

Apology owed

To the Editor:

As a resident of Grosse Pointe Woods with children in the Grosse Pointe School System, I always have believed that the Grosse Pointe School System was a community school system serving students in all the Grosse Pointes and parts of Harper Woods. Gloria Konsler, president of the Grosse Pointe school board, proved me wrong at a recent school board meeting when she talked about parents not wanting their children to attend a school with "Harper Woods kids."

In addition to the remark being offensive, it is also divisive. I now have to worry that "Grosse Pointe Woods kids" could be the next group to be singled out by Ms. Konsler.

I believe Ms. Konsler owes this community an apology. If she really believes what she says, she should not be making decisions about students' education. Diane M. Maurer

Middle schools earn 'high' honors

Two Grosse Pointe area middle schools earned a superior ranking in the 1992 National Council of Teachers of English for their student-produced literary magazines.

Pierce Middle School's Inklings and University Liggett Middle School's Kaleidoscope placed among the top 13 winners, the rest of which were high school entries.

A superior ranking recognizes the magazines for their quality of writing, editing, variety of genre, design and graphics. Other local literary honors from the NCTE went to Imprints, Grosse Pointe South High School's magazine; Parcels Middle School's Scribe; and Phases, ULS Upper School's student magazine.

McWinners

The fifth annual McDonald's sponsored "When I Grow Up" speech contest was held recently at St. Clare of Montefalco Elementary School. This year's winners were, left, Sarah Moran of St. Mary's parish, second place; Sherita Rankins, first-place winner from St. Clare; and Lauren Van Archer of St. Angela School, third place. Rankins, a fourth-grader, spoke of her goal to be the first black female Supreme Court justice. She will now compete in the regional semi-finals.

Yumna S. Jafri

Jafri is finalist

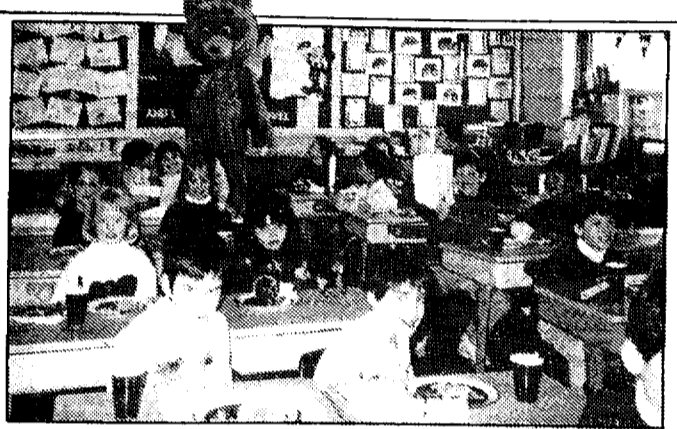

University Liggett Upper School senior Yumna S. Jafri recently was named a finalist in the 1993 National Merit Scholarship Program. She is among the nation's finalists in competition for 6,500 merit scholarships. She qualified based on her outstanding academic record, an endorsement from the high school principal and SAT scores.

Button's standards merit high praise

Robert L. Button, journalism teacher at Grosse Pointe South High School, has achieved master journalism educator status from the Journalism Education Association (JEA). Button will be honored April 24 at the JEA/NSPA national convention in Long Beach, Calif.

Journalism certification recognizes teachers who meet national standards of preparation to teach high school journalism classes and advise student publications. Master journalism educators achieve national recognition and join teachers who regard journalism as an academic subject.

Certification requirements include a minimum seven years' experience in journalism teaching and advising, previous achievement of certified journalism educator status, completion of a JEA-approved project and passing an examination which demonstrates the educator's proficiency in journalism teaching and advising.

Hey there, bear

Laura Pelyak's second-grade class at Monteith Elementary School had plenty to celebrate last week. The students collectively read enough books that, if laid end to end, would pave a road from Michigan to Disneyland — that's 2,311 miles of books and assumes each book was a mile long. For their efforts, the students were rewarded with a visit by Ted E. Bear, a pizza lunch and a Walt Disney movie.

CO-OP OPEN HOUSE

SUNNY DAYS, a Christian Co-op Program for three and four year old children, is holding a Spring Tea and Open House for interested parents at the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church (19950 Mack Avenue) on March 23 from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m.

SUNNY DAYS is an interdenominational Christian program. The program incorporates such group involvement activities as story telling, singing, crafts, free play, games, nature studies and field trips, along with praise and recognition efforts.

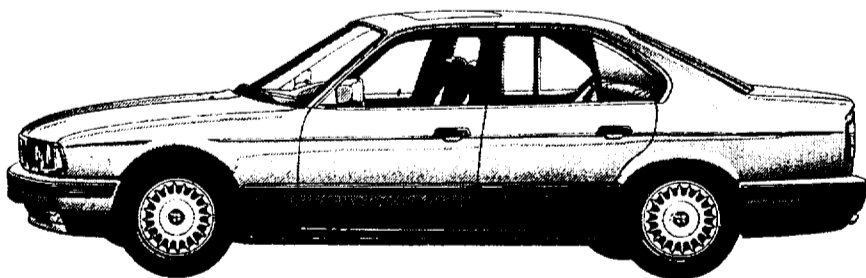

SUNNY DAYS program consists of two hour classes twice a week. An optional Wednesday "kindergarten readiness" class may be offered for four year old children if there is an interest shown by the parents. A Co-op program allows parents to see their child in a social setting, meeting friends, while mom and dad talk to other parents and learn more about raising children while actively participating in their life.

In fact, The Grosse Pointe Academy was designated an "Exemplary Elementary School" by the President of the United States and the U.S. Department of Education. We start with a varied and challenging scholastic program. Along with a well-balanced academic program, we add many other ingredients into the mix. Small class sizes, where teachers get to know each student individually, help our students build self-confidence and healthy personal relationships. We supply firm moral foundations, which help children to develop a lasting system of values. This creates a happy, positive environment in which children can interact constructively. Supply your child with our recommended daily allowance of academic nourishment—The Grosse Pointe Academy. Call Molly McDermott at (313) 886-1221 today for enrollment information or a personal tour.

Student Spotlight Chrissy Dunham

Each week in this column, we focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodwork project, a book review.

Chrissy Dunham is a fourth-grader at St. Paul School. She is the daughter of Frank and Joanne Dunham of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Toby Learns a Lesson

Toby is a 10-year-old kangaroo. She lives in the open forest of Australia with her mother and father. Toby also has a brother and a sister. Her sister likes ballet and her brother likes to play soccer. Toby has lots of friends. She likes to spend most of her time playing games with her friends.

Toby doesn't like to help her mother around the house. Toby's mother told her she must keep her room clean. All week long, Toby watched television.

On Saturday, her friend Emily called to see if she could go swimming at the water falls. Toby asked her mother if she could go. Her mother said no. Your room is not clean. Toby was very sad, but she learned a lesson. Never put off the work you need to do today because it may stop you from having fun tomorrow.

Bobby Kettle

Bobby Kettle is a sixth-grader in Patricia Stumb's class at Our Lady Star of the Sea. He is the son of Raymond and Joan Kettle of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Everyone Needs a Friend

If you were a good friend of mine, You'd be faithful, loyal, and very kind.

My friend is orange like the bright morning sun. When we play together we have so much fun.

He is sometimes the color dark brown. Those are the days that he wears a frown. My friend is green like a tall pine tree. He is strong and he really cares for me.

The color of friendship is sky-blue. For a friend who is honest and true.

Days without friends are painted all gray. But when you're with them the gray fades away.

To me a good friend is special and fun. I think everybody should have at least one.

Art for a day

Pierce Middle School students spent Feb. 23 participating in art demonstrations of glass blowing, chorale singing and orchestra instrument playing. Students created glass ornaments, experimented with new ways to sing in a chorale group, and completed "fine arts day" with a choir and band performance in the auditorium.

Pierce trio win contest

Three students from Pierce Middle School have been named local winners in the 24th annual "America and Me" essay contest sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance.

Jamie Lowden won first place, Mullaney Hardesty placed second, and Alexis Ramsey took third. All three received award certificates. Lowden's name will be engraved on a plaque for permanent display at the school.

Her first-place essay now advances to the state competition, from which the top 10 in the state will be selected. Statewide winners will be announced in May and will receive plaques and U.S. savings bonds worth $500 to $1,000.

Murg wins big

Stephanie Murg of Grosse Pointe Shores was honored this week at the governor's residence in Lansing as first-place winner in the Michigan Women's Commission's essay contest.

Murg, a student at the Grosse Pointe Academy, met First Lady Michelle Engler and Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfield, and was given a U.S. savings bond for her winning essay about her cousin, Kaitlin. In honor of women's history month, all contestants were asked to write about an inspirational woman in their lives.

HEALTH WATCH

Over 200 viruses are after your child. (Quick. Read this.)

Nothing to sneeze at

No wonder it seems like your kids live in a lab dish. With over 200 cold viruses floating around, it'll be a long time before they're immune to them all. In the meantime, kids can count on 6-10 colds a year, lasting 3-4 days each.

Beyond applying a generous dose of patience, the most important thing you can do is give your child plenty of liquids to avoid dehydration. An over-the-counter decongestant or antihistamine may ease your child's congestion and sneezing. A bulb syringe will help clear an infant's nose. But do not give your child aspirin when he has a cold - it could result in Reyes Syndrome which can be fatal. (Aspirin-free pain relievers are fine.)

When TLC isn't enough

Sometimes a cold develops into something more. Any one of these symptoms is reason to call a doctor:

- A fever higher than 101°
- Constant or painful coughing
- A severe sore throat
- A sore throat and a fever
- An earache or tugging on the ears
- Difficulty breathing

Subtle changes still hurt

Just call me a boomerang Grosse Pointer. I've lived here off and on for most of my life. I was born at St. John Hospital an undetermined number of years ago. It was so long ago, the hospital was just a small Detroit facility that was built after the war to serve the growing eastside population. My parents, like many who went to work in the post-war boom years, moved around a lot to take advantage of job opportunities that would allow them to provide their children a better life.

That meant that we children moved as well. In those days it was expected. By the time I was 13, I had lived in Grosse Pointe Farms; Grosse Pointe City; Akron, Ohio; Lansing and Weston, Conn. I attended University of Detroit High School, and later attended Michigan State University. I lived in Washington, D.C. for 3 1/2 years, before returning to Michigan State for a master's degree. After graduating from Moo U once again, I wrote for a small daily newspaper in a town near Battle Creek.

Which brings me to my cur-

I Say

James M. Stickford

rent job, right back in Grosse Pointe. Living and working here, I can't help but notice that while a lot of things have stayed the same, a lot of things have changed. I have talked with people who have stayed in the area. They have commented that good old Grosse Pointe doesn't change much, and that's part of its charm. It is reassuring. It makes one feel grounded.

While that may be true for them, for me Grosse Pointe has changed considerably. Places where I spent some of my happiest childhood days are gone. Remember Kent Drugs? It was on the corner of Fisher and Kercheval. It was replaced with a store that sold duck decoys and duck pictures. There is a bank, or a stockbroker's office there right now.

I remember being able to go to Kent's and buy two candy bars and a role of Lifesavers for a quarter. The candy bars cost a dime each, and the Lifesavers cost a nickel. A can of pop cost two dimes. Those were the days.

I remember as a youth of 4 or 5 going down to Kresge's in the Village. For less than a dollar, my mother would buy my brother and me some little toy. That was a great thrill. I remember my family riding bicycles down to the Village for ice cream at 31 Flavors during hot summer nights.

I remember watching the real original "Star Trek," not this politically correct, drama without conflict "Star Trek" kids today have to watch.

All these places are gone now. They went one at a time. Their passing was noticed, but probably not felt much by the community as a whole. But for this boomerang Grosse Pointer, every time I returned, it seemed like another part of my childhood had disappeared.

These places exist in my memory now. But that's Ok. Time marches on, and the recollections become more precious. The only regret I have is that I sound like my grandparents.

Overtaxed?

Grosse Pointe City property owners who are wailing about big increases in SEVs — here's something to make you feel worse.

Oliver Rivard, a member of one of Grosse Pointe's pioneer French families, paid a whopping 2 cents for his half acre of choice Grosse Pointe property just 103 years ago.

George Rivard paid 6 cents for his four acres in the same year.

One of the biggest taxpayers was Joseph H. Berry, whose 57-acre estate was located near today's War Memorial. He was burdened with a tax bill of $2.40.

In 1896, property tax revenue for all of Grosse Pointe Village, which covered the same land as today's City, was $52.27. The whole city was valued at $50,000.

Don't be a fool

The American Lung Association of Michigan is looking for people who want to remember April Fool's Day 1993 as the last time they fooled around with tobacco.

The Cigarette Send-Off, a smoking cessation program that combines hypnosis, behavior modification and medical education, will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 31, at the Days Inn of Roseville, 31960 Little Mack.

The program helps smokers handle the primary side effects of quitting: nicotine withdrawal symptoms and urges to eat.

The cost is $45, which includes a follow-up package for in-home reinforcement of smoking cessation strategies. For tickets, call the Lung Association at 559-5100. Tickets may also be purchased at the door.

The Lung Association has also planned a day of biking, The Clean Air Challenge, a fundraiser, at Kensington Metropark on Sunday, May 2.

The registration fee is $12 and participants will be asked to raise an additional $25 in donations. Call 678-LUNG.

Glow turns to gotcha

It was your typical doctor's waiting room. There were eight or 10 of us awaiting our turns, thumbing through magazines, each in his own world, checking our newcomers and averting eyes if we were caught in the process. When they arrived, there was no ignoring them. They appeared to be in their 80s, both agile and walking under their own power.

As they entered the office they were arguing in loud voices. He accused her of losing the appointment card. She told him that she had seen him with it in his hand, minutes before. He approached the nurse's window and was told he didn't need the card, he had been expected and would be called shortly. He returned to his seat, grumbling under his breath and she told him to be quiet. He told her to shut up and she said she would wait in the hall because she didn't need to put up with his behavior. She stayed in her seat.

A few minutes later they were enjoying their magazines and discussing a recipe she had found. He suggested they might stop on the way home, pick up the ingredients and make it together. When they were called in to see the doctor, he took her hand and called her "honey."

I stopped to visit another couple a few months ago. They have been married for over 60 years. Every time one of them left the room the other would say something negative about the spouse. Several times during the visit they turned lights off and on and fussed with the thermostat, one accusing the other of being a tightwad. In the space of an hour she raved about him and his expertise with his hobby and chastised him for not hearing and responding to her.

What happened over the years to tarnish the glow? Where did the tenderness go? I think of how many people are widowed and how grateful these people could be to still have each other. At a deeper level I know that they probably share mutual love and their own definition of bonding, but isn't it sad to waste precious energy in a game of sabotage — and for what? Life itself delivers enough damage; we owe it to ourselves to preserve all the good stuff we've been given. Let's not abuse our relationships; they're important to our healthy survival.

Get the lead out — carefully

I knew I shouldn't have watched that show.

It just upset me, and the worst of it was that I had to confront myself. As usual, I learned something uncomfortable: I know diddly about science and I'm cold and uncaring.

It was a program about lead dangers in home restoration. Not the usual stuff of self-confrontation, I admit, but it sounded so scary that I thought the bottom would drop out of the rehab market, and I just love old houses. And I didn't give a thought to the human toll.

As to the scientific ignorance, it doesn't apply only to me, unfortunately. The average American doesn't have enough scientific background to be able to evaluate the information thrown at him every day. And the press is full enough of techno-scare that somebody has written a book to debunk it ("Science Under Siege," Michael Fumento).

Between scare and debunking, the average science idiot doesn't know what to believe.

And now to our list of fears we must add the renovation of old houses. Considering the scope of the home restoration trend, we're talking serious ramifications in the housing market in cities built before the 1970s — which means right here and just about everywhere else. (Not to mention human health.)

What's an old-house lover to do? There's lead in the paint, lead in the water, radon seeping through the cracked basement floor, asbestos wrapped around the furnace pipes. The houses we love for their character could kill us, if you believe all the warnings.

If you're like me, you're probably running the tap a little longer in the morning to be sure the overnight deposit of lead is flushed from the old pipes. That's an easy-enough precaution to take when you live in an older house.

But what about the lead dust from renovation? Scare stories aside, many of the home rehabbers I know (and I live in a rehabbing hotbed) have no information at all about lead dangers. They don't even know they should take precautions.

Surely there is some reasonable middle ground.

Glen Brown is the man to talk to at the Wayne County Health Department if you want to know about lead. He says there's nothing new about our understanding of the dangers of lead poisoning, but that some states are beginning to codify precautions (including, he predicted, Michigan).

The problem, as he sees it, is that while most people know about the danger of lead to children, especially those young enough to chew the lead paint off the windowsill, we are less informed about the dangers to adults. And when you renovate an old house, the chances are great that you'll end up with lead somewhere as a result of paint removal.

When you remove paint with a heat gun, lead fumes enter the air.

If you use a chemical stripper, there will be lead in the sludge, which can be absorbed through the skin.

Sanding and chipping the paint results in dust and particles in the air.

"It's most hazardous to the person doing the work," Brown said, "so if you do it yourself, use a lot of caution."

Precautions can include high-power vacuums, wet mops, and a mask. But not your home vacuum sweeper — it isn't strong enough. Rent one.

"There are plenty of articles in the do-it-yourself press explaining how to do it," Brown said.

Trouble is, lots of people must have missed them. I've done a good many interviews with people who have renovated old houses, and when I ask them about lead precautions, most of them look blank.

But take heart. Brown doesn't believe the problem is dangerous enough to put a halt to people's home rehabilitation projects.

"I wouldn't pass up an old house on that basis," he said. "But you have to recognize that the precautions will mean an extra expense, maybe hiring somebody to do the work."

It didn't stop Garry Hermeston, who is still working on his 100-year-old house. Hermeston, an engineer with TRW, knew something about the danger, but went ahead anyway.

He sanded and chipped and stripped and knocked down parts of his house, all resulting in massive amounts of dust. And he didn't wear a mask.

"I was in there, working on the ceiling, practically upside down sometimes, getting the dust up my nose," he said. "I knew it was a concern, but I didn't realize how sick you could get — and the particle mask was so impeding that I didn't wear it all the time."

When he was three-quarters finished with his big house, he began to feel a little tired. He took a paint sample to a lab (it contained lead, as he expected) and then decided to get a blood test.

On a scale of 5 (normal) to 50 ("toxic out"), Hermeston was at 25. His wife, who had also helped with the work, but not in the thick of the dust, tested normal.

The lessons: He began to wear a mask. They decided not to start their family until the renovation project is completed, as children are more susceptible to lead poisoning. They were more careful about the cleanup.

"The dust is the biggest problem," he said. "You have to clean everything up."

It takes a long time for lead to leach out of your system, but Hermeston's level has already started to come down. Meanwhile, he feels fine and has no intention of abandoning his project.

That's good news to him, to all do-it-yourselfers, and to older neighborhoods, where people make an after-dinner sport of touring the blocks to check up on their friends' rehab progress.

Maybe it's a lesson to us as science consumers, too.

Jesus on public prayer

To the Editor:
I am an active member of a Christian church, and probably there was a prayer at my graduation from Grosse Pointe High School, though it was so long ago I really can't remember. Having said that, I find it hard to understand why the Grosse Pointe board of education needs legal counsel to decide that having a prayer at the Grosse Pointe North graduation ceremony is clearly unconstitutional.

The group promoting the graduation prayer has characterized the issue as one of freedom of expression, but I think there can be no doubt the matter is a question of the separation of church and state. Two of their main arguments seem to me to be false assumptions.

First, the implication that the graduation exercise is not an official school function because a student is not required to attend. It is a big stretch to argue that a function held on school property, organized and attended by the school staff and the board of education is somehow not an official state-supported school function.

The second questionable argument is that a prayer is not a prayer if it is non-denominational and spoken by a lay person instead of a clergyman. Calling it something else doesn't change the fact it is still an expression of religion, regardless of who presents it.

Finally, if the Constitution of the United States and the decision of the Supreme Court are not enough to convince anyone that a prayer at the graduation is inappropriate, perhaps Jesus himself can offer some guidance through his words in Matthew, Chapter 6, verses 5 and 6:

"And when you pray, do not be like the hypocrites, for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and on the street corners to be seen by men. I tell you the truth, they have received their reward in full. But when you pray, go into your room, close the door and pray to your Father, who is unseen. Then your Father, who sees what is done in secret, will reward you."

I rest my case.

Upheaval on Fox Creek

To the Editor:
In response to your article concerning Fox Creek's CSO on March 11: I would like to address Mr. Ausherman's concern that disconnecting downspouts to decrease the amount of water discharged into Fox Creek would cause the residents of Grosse Pointe Park a "major upheaval."

I believe this redefines the term upheaval. A major upheaval, as I see it, is when Grosse Pointe Park discharges raw sewage into Fox Creek and human waste is left on my docks, my yard and my deck. An upheaval is when you have to remove a used Kotex from your dock.

The 9-million-gallon discharge of combined sewage June 18 left us with a stench, solid waste and a lot of dead fish. Sept. 9, 20 million gallons of raw sewage was discharged. Sept. 15 there were two discharges. What a sight! So many millions of gallons were discharged in such a short time it rose three feet over my seawall, flooding my yard. My neighbors had raw sewage running down their driveways literally flooding Ashland. Having to clean up human waste in our yards, driveways and streets to prevent flooding in Grosse Pointe Park - now that could be defined as a "major upheaval."

I hope you are underestimating your residents' environmental consciousness when you say changing their downspouts at a cost of less than $20 per home would cause them an upheaval.

I do not see disconnecting downspouts as a solution to the problem. But what this article points to is your unwillingness to attempt even the smallest effort in changing your attitude toward stopping the CSOs in Fox Creek.

The 1928 agreement was a long time ago. CSOs are now considered a major pollutant to our lakes and rivers.

There are approximately 300 homes on this canal system. You are endangering our health and our private property. There is nothing in the DNR permit that allows you to do that. Major upheaval - huh!

Disturbing sediments

To the Editor:
In response to the article of March 11, "Park Weighs Fox Creek Options," by Jim Stickford, I feel compelled to point out important omissions and to refute some disturbing statements. To wit:

Grosse Pointe Park currently does not always send its "excess rain and sewage overflow into the Fox Creek canal in Detroit, which, in turn, drains into the Detroit River."

Grosse Pointe Park sends its excess rain and sewage into Fox Creek and sometimes it is then sent over the bank into the backyards, driveways and basements of homes on Ashland Street in Detroit, as well as into the street itself.

Imagine a deluge of raw sewage cascading through a yard, damaging structures, filling basements and then entering the storm drains in the street. This, in fact, happens when the Park discharges combined sewage overflow during heavy rains. Otherwise, as the article states, "homeowners south of Jefferson Avenue could find their basements flooded."

Also, Fox Creek does not usually drain into the Detroit River. When the creek is being backflushed, there is a current that flows to the north into Detroit sewers. The sewage is then removed and processed with no cost to Grosse Pointe Park.

Even when the sewage does not overflow the bank, if it is not immediately backflushed, it remains for some time polluting the creek, certainly some of it settling to the bottom and creating, at the very least, an aesthetically disturbing reality for residents. Certainly, the rest filters down the canal and ultimately pollutes the river.

This is an outrageous, potentially dangerous, serious threat to public health. There are about 300 residences in Detroit on the Fox Creek canals alone. There are two public parks, as well as the light house facility bordered by the canals. Many recreational boaters use the canals. The potential for disease is frightening.

The statements of councilman Ausherman, and the apparent agreement of the council when the issue of rescinding the ordinance requiring the connection of downspouts into the sewer system was tabled, were, if not ill-informed, then disturbing and appalling. Disconnecting the downspouts could cost as little as $20 a home. Grosse Pointe Woods has a similar program which seems to be working.

Councilman Ausherman is quoted as saying this would be a "major upheaval for Park residents," and "in good conscience, I would like the council to take more time to consider the magnitude of the job."

In good conscience, councilman Ausherman and the council need to consider the major upheavals experienced by Ashland residents and the magnitude of the problems experienced by Ashland, Harbor Island, Klenk and Riverside Boulevard residents facing pollution, odors and health risks, as well as cleanups.

We try to be good neighbors. Our riverfront parks are open to everyone. We are working diligently to save our neighborhoods, repair what is broken, replace what has been lost. We would prefer to do this in a spirit of peace and cooperation, but we will do whatever is necessary to accomplish our goals. Those goals include stopping completely - the dumping of sewage into our Fox Creek.

Neighbors, we invite your cooperation in seriously working with us to resolve this problem.

Builders show is family affair, has everything from herbs to homes

By Rose Ann Weatherly

Ask exhibitors at the upcoming Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show at Cobo Hall what they like most about it, and the answer is unanimous: the people.

Over half a million people come to the show each year to see the latest technology, products and services for kitchens, baths, doors, windows, yard/gardens, remodeling, arts and crafts, decorative accessories, appliances, and heating and cooling. This year's show opens Saturday and runs through Saturday, March 28.

Those people will get a jump on spring fever from area florists who are digging in with new ideas for visitors to grow on this spring.

Also featured will be the show's tribute to NASA, with a full scale mock-up of a space station and laboratory, moon rocks, Apollo space suit, scale model of a space shuttle and other NASA displays.

The Parade of Homes, over two acres of gardens with herbs and annuals, demonstrations on gardening, crafts and cooking, entertainment and contests are also featured.

"We like to present things that the public can judge as new and unique," says John Adamo, president of Conner Park Florist on Mack in Grosse Pointe. Adamo is also president of the Professional Allied Florists Association and representative for FTD's area district, both sponsors of the floral displays. "It gives the consumer a lot of new styles and ideas for use of flowers in their homes or as gifts."

Hands-on floral design demonstrations by designers will be given every day from 7 to 9 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays from 3 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

Conner Park will have six arrangements on display from its three locations (Conner Park in Detroit and Morang Greenhouse in Detroit). Elizabeth Haron, executive director of the Professional Allied Florists, says there will be a total of 70-100 floral displays.

Categories give different looks at flowers, like tropical flowers, for which Conner Park won an award last year. This year Adamo's doing "Let's Entertain." "People are always planning a party," says Adamo. Adamo says designers talk about the flowers and visitors can ask questions about use, care and handling.

Moehring Woods Florist owner Bruce Anderson will leave no stone unturned in his tribute to NASA, and it's guaranteed to be authentic. His interpretation of the landing on the moon will use materials resembling the lunar lander. He's even contacted Cape Canaveral in Florida to try to get a copy of the plaque that was left behind. Anderson has won awards for six years. "I try to do things that are not only different, but beautiful," he said.

Anderson says visiting the show is useful since people are buying flowers for more than a special occasion. "We're finding they're buying once a week, sometimes as often as a loaf of bread."

Another reason to attend is great deals on arrangements that are auctioned at the end of the show, and are given away. By choosing their favorite arrangement and casting a "People's Choice" vote this weekend only, anyone participating will receive a re-creation of the arrangement for which they voted. Eight people will also win a year's worth of flowers.

Charities benefit, too. Daily auctions of the arrangements made at the demonstrations benefit the Children's Miracle Network, with proceeds going to William Beaumont Hospital and Children's Hospital and also visitors, who get great deals on the freshly-made arrangements.

"Funds received at the auction, held the last day of the show (Sunday, March 28), by the Multiple Sclerosis Society provide services like outpatient clinics, counseling and medical equipment," said Pat McDonald, of the Michigan chapter in Southfield. "You can get arrangements, flowers, shrubs, etc., at unbelievable prices, like a $30 to $40 arrangement for $5 to $10, or as little as $1 or $2." People should bring their own containers. Admission to the seventh annual Builders, Home, Flower and Furniture Show is $5.75; seniors and children 6 to 12, $3.50; and under age 6, free. Hours are Monday through Friday, 2 to 10 p.m., Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Sundays, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Family tickets for two with accompanying children at Farmer Jack/ A & P are $8. Contact the builders association at 737-4477 for further information.

Comments on injustice

To the Editor:

Gloria Konsler's quoted remarks in regards to Poupard Elementary School, Harper Woods and Harper Woods kids as printed in the March 11 Grosse Pointe News were thoroughly unprofessional and discriminatory.

As president of the board of education representing all children in the Grosse Pointe schools, Mrs. Konsler appalled us with her insensitive remarks and await her apologies as well as possibly her resignation from the board.

Mrs. Konsler is elected to a most powerful seat within the school district and should think much harder before making such inflammatory comments in the future. Professional people have been fired for similar types of remarks.

At a public meeting with Poupard parents last Friday, her continued demeaning statements regarding our homes, our principal and her decision on what to wear to Poupard further bear witness to her original sentiments.

What Mrs. Konsler has done by her remarks is a great injustice and an embarrassment to the Grosse Pointe School System and the entire community.

Gina A. Rheahme
Vice-President, Poupard PTO

Prejudices still exist

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to your (school board president Gloria Konsler's) statement in the Grosse Pointe News, Thursday, March 11, in reference to the redistricting of Monteith School and how a "small percentage of people don't want their children going to school with Harper Woods kids."

I was not only shocked but quite surprised that an elected member of our school board would ever consider making such a biased statement, irrelevant as to whether it was accurate or not, more especially one that would most certainly be quoted by a newspaper.

This statement caused both great pain and anger to all of us at Poupard School. You have only added growth to a seed which all of us had great hopes of growing. Good morals and standards do not originate from an address but from appropriate upbringing. The majority of us have the same goal in common when it comes to our children - a quality education.

Mrs. Konsler, you have made our jobs as parents that much more difficult. How do we explain to our children that even people we elect make such prejudicial remarks regardless of their education? I suppose in some sense it makes our children stronger to be exposed to this type of prejudice.

As spoken at the meeting at Poupard School Friday evening, March 12, this is not a new issue. Our children have been faced with this prejudice for many years, and a great majority have still come out on top. How many of Poupard's students have served as valedictorians, student council presidents, etc.? Our representation precedes us.

Maybe it's time for our students to be recognized for their contribution. Maybe it's time for you, Mrs. Konsler, to recognize the fact that these prejudices still exist, and concentrate on making that "small percentage of people" educated on these prejudices in lieu of ignorance.

The fact as to whether I voted for you in the past is irrelevant. As to whether I will vote for you in the future - well, this will be left entirely up to you.

Your actions and statements in reference to Poupard were totally unprofessional and as I see it, not only an embarrassment to us, but to the entire school system to whom you represent. Please consider beforehand what you choose to say or repeat in the future - after all, you not only hurt yourself, but more importantly, our children - our children of the Grosse Pointe (and Harper Woods) School System.

Tammy Koerber
Poupard P.T.O.

Poupard proud

To the Editor:

We as teachers at Poupard, employed by the Grosse Pointe Public School System, are extremely proud to work with Harper Woods children and their parents.

Poupard is a Grosse Pointe school built, funded and run by the Grosse Pointe School System. Residents of the Poupard area pay Grosse Pointe school taxes.

This is a neighborhood that appreciates quality education and supports it through cooperation with teachers, involvement in school activities, and repeated support of school millages.

We're here by choice and proud of the accomplishments of our children and their parents.

The Poupard Staff
South student on prayer

To the Editor:

As a student of Grosse Pointe South High School, I would like to take exception to a comment made by Marianne Ruffini in her letter to the editor in the March 11 edition.

She said, "that while the U.S. is fast losing the spiritual and moral base on which our forefathers built this country..."

The truth is that the founding fathers of this great nation provided for the separation of church and state so that no one religious group could impose its beliefs on the nation. That is why prayer at graduation ceremonies is "unconstitutional."

Julian C. Zebot
Grosse Pointe Park

Protecting minority rights

To the Editor:

In recent days the Grosse Pointe school board has been grappling with the issue of whether to allow a prayer at the Grosse Pointe-North High School graduation. I am glad to see that the school board has taken up this issue, although I do not think that there is much to talk about.

I hope that the school board will resolve this issue quickly by having a graduation without a prayer in compliance with the law as set down by the Supreme Court last June. I also hope that the school board takes this opportunity to teach a valuable civics lesson to the students at North High School.

I would like to comment specifically on a comment made in the Detroit Free Press on March 9 by Denise Mills, a student at North High School. In that article she was quoted as saying, "I am sure that this board would not like to inhibit our rights. If a majority wants an invocation, no constitutional rights would be violated."

This statement about constitutional rights is ignorant of the fundamental principles behind the Bill of Rights.

One does not have to be a lawyer or a Supreme Court justice to know that the basic reason for the Bill of Rights is to protect the rights of the minority against the tyranny of the majority. It is clear in the case of prayer at graduation that a majority in favor of prayer is exactly the kind of tyranny that the Bill of Rights is designed to protect against.

This principle should be and was when I was a student at Grosse Pointe South High School - a central topic of the freshman civics class that all students are required to take.

Apparently, Miss Mills missed this civics lesson. I hope that she and her compatriots can relearn this valuable lesson through this experience.

I would like to suggest some reading that might help them. If you have a chance, please look up Thomas Jefferson's book "Democracy" and examine the section on the Constitution. You also might want to examine a letter written by Jefferson to James Madison on July 31, 1788, when Jefferson was in Paris. In both of these places, Jefferson explains clearly how this and other basic constitutional principles work. This reading will help you understand some of the civics lessons that you may have forgotten.

Park man robbed by snow shoveler

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park police are cautioning residents to be wary of persons soliciting door-to-door for yard work and snow removal, following the March 5 robbery of a Park man.

The 50-year-old resident, who lives in the 1100 block of Maryland, told police a man knocked on his door at 9:30 p.m. and asked if he wanted his snow shoveled.

The resident declined the offer and the man left. A short while later, he returned and when the resident opened his front door, the man forced his way inside.

The intruder demanded money and placed one hand inside his coat pocket, suggesting he had a weapon. The resident gave the man $500.

The suspect fled the neighborhood on foot and is described as a black man, between 30 and 35 years old. The resident told police he believes the suspect has shoveled snow at his house in the past.

In an unrelated but similar incident on March 10, a resident in the 1300 block of Buckingham called police when he spotted a man soliciting snow removal jobs in his neighborhood.

County executive for a day?

As part of National County Government Week in April, Wayne County executive Ed McNamara is offering local students a chance to be county executive for the day.

Though the winner might not be able to issue an executive order banning school, he or she will be able to spend part of a day with McNamara as he conducts his business — and maybe even offer him some advice.

The contest is open to Wayne County students in grades nine through 12. All applicants are asked to write an 800-to-1,000-word essay (four to five pages, double-spaced) entitled, "Why I

Police approached the man, informed him he was in violation of a city ordinance and then ran his name through the Law Enforcement Information Network, a statewide computer system that lists outstanding warrants. LEIN indicated the snow shoveler was wanted by Detroit police on several warrants.

A Grosse Pointe Park city ordinance, adopted in 1964, prohibits door-to-door soliciting by merchants and persons offering to do lawn and garden work or shovel snow. The ordinance does not apply to neighborhood youths under 18.

"If you don't know who it is at the door, don't deal with him," said Park public safety Lt. David Hiller. "The ordinance is not designed for the neighborhood kid going door-to-door; that's fine. Most people don't know (about the ordinance) but if you call us, we'll send them on their way."

Hiller said the best advice the department can offer residents is to avoid conducting business with uninvited strangers who knock at the door. What often happens, Hiller said, is once a resident is known to hand out money, he or she will be targeted as a source of cash in the future.

want to be the Wayne County executive."

Essays must have a cover sheet including the student's name, address, grade, school and principal's name. Entries must be received by Monday, April 5, and addressed to: Wayne County Executive's Office, Attention Donna Miller, 600 Randolph, 3rd floor, Detroit, Mich. 48226.

Winners will be announced and notified by Friday, April 9. During National County Government Week, the winner will take the oath of office, tour the county building and then accompany McNamara and his staff.

Park acts to ease parking shortage

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

A proposal to increase the number of parking spots new businesses must have was discussed at last week's Park city council meeting.

The proposed ordinance would require new businesses in the Park to provide more private off-street parking spaces than current law dictates.

"We're trying to develop parking standards that reflect the needs of the community," said city manager Dale Krajniak. "We already have a parking shortage in the Park. By requiring new businesses to have more spots, we won't make a bad situation worse."

Every new business or office, if it doesn't have enough parking, ends up taking parking away from businesses already in existence, Krajniak explained. He said the new ordinance would protect them from losing their parking spots to new businesses.

Businesses currently operating in the Park will be protected by a grandfather clause. But if they close for more than six months and reopen, they lose their grandfather protection.

The council unanimously voted to recommend the ordinance to the planning commission for public hearings. The planning commission has not yet scheduled a hearing date.

It's a little odd-looking, but the Saab 900S convertible doesn't disappoint on the road.

Saab 900S doesn't disappoint on road

A convertible in February, you ask? Well, that's just the way it worked out, we reply. But at least it was a Swedish-built Saab, and the late-February freezer-like weather was custom-made. Heated front bucket seats, rear-window defroster, front-wheel drive and anti-lock brakes; what more could you want? (Answers of warm, sunny, dry weather are not acceptable.)

While the basic 900 coupe body style has been around for about a decade, it continues to please the eye — something many decade-old vehicles can't claim. This particular 900S convertible was a gorgeous slate-blue with matching soft top. Inside, leather seats from Southfield-based Lear Seating and suede-like trim pieces provided the right touch of rugged luxury. Saab's beautiful curved windshield, perhaps descended from the company's years of building beautiful airplanes, plus the layout of instrumentation gives a cockpit effect to the cabin. Fit and finish? Superb. Light-weight, solid doors open and close easily and securely.

Speaking of security, that

Autos

By Jenny King

was the least attractive feature on the test car, an option I would certainly avoid if considering this — or any — vehicle. It had one of those strong-willed devices that beep incessantly if not operated properly. I made the simple mistake of trying to open the driver's door with THE KEY, instead of pressing the key fob, and I was publicly humiliated (except no one was there). I drove off feeling like a common car thief. Well, actually I had some trouble getting out of the parking lot. This was humiliation No. 2. Did you ever do this? I thought my right foot was on the accelerator. In fact, it was on the rather wide brake pedal. No wonder each time I released the clutch, I ground to a halt.

When feet are where they should be, the accelerator prompts an adequate response from a small-but-powerful 16-valve 140-hp 2.1-liter engine.

The 900 series Saabs have two odd features you may wish to know about in case you ever have a chance to drive one and want to look cool in the process. The ignition slot is, for some reason, on the floor between the seats. And it isn't illuminated, folks, so good luck at night. (This is a surprise considering these cars are built in Sweden, a country that spends most winter hours in near or total darkness, I'm told.)

Second, the car must be in reverse to remove the ignition key. So if you see someone who has passed the first part of this quiz, gone for a drive and returned but not exited from the vehicle, it may be that he or she cannot figure out how to get the dingdong key back out.

The Saab 900S had a driver-side air bag. The steering had a fine resistance, giving a driver the feeling of precision Saab drivers praise. The defroster system cleared all windows efficiently. It should: Swedish designers have plenty of experience.

According to an Automotive News price list from late 1992, the Saab 900S convertible will set you back a cool $32,160. If you want automatic transmission, add about $700 to that. Willing to settle for the 900S three-door hatchback hardtop? Write a check for some $20,400, give or take a few bills.

If your heart is set on a sporty European-built convertible, here are a couple of other species and their prices: The Volkswagen Cabriolet runs about $18,500; the BMW 318iC convertible is $36,300, and the Ferrari Cabriolet V-8 convertible is "about" $108,800. Saab? Sob.

Mobil customers get credit on GM cars

An exclusive marketing partnership that ties purchases at Mobil service stations to credits on General Motors (GM) cars or trucks became available to Mobil customers March 1.

Under the arrangement, motorists who use the new GM Card at Mobil stations earn a credit of 10 percent of each transaction toward the purchase or lease of a new GM car or truck (except Saturn).

"The agreement is exclusive to Mobil as the only gasoline supplier taking part in the GM Card program," said Jim Mann, Mobil's U.S. Marketing vice president. "All the Mobil customer needs to do is use his or her GM Card for payment at the service station and an amount equal to 10 percent of the purchase is automatically credited to a GM Card account."

The GM Card, a full service MasterCard with no annual fee, normally earns the cardholder a 5 percent credit on all purchases. However, the credit is doubled to 10 percent for purchases at exclusive GM partners such as Mobil. Other GM partners include AVIS, MCI, Marriott, Time-Warner, and Continental Airlines.

Customers may earn purchase credits of $500 a year and $3,500 over a seven-year period on purchases made with the GM Card. For cardholders making purchases at Mobil and other exclusive GM partners, however, there is no limit to the credits they may receive toward the purchase or lease of a GM vehicle.

"We are pleased to have Mobil join us as a corporate partner of the GM Card," said Ronald N. Zebeck, general manager of GM Card Operations. "With Mobil, holders of GM Cards are assured quality products and service. And, since the average family spends $1,200 per year on gasoline, the GM Card/Mobil partnership now means Mobil consumers will save even more in their credit account without even changing their spending habits."

Mobil's 9,000 participating service stations accept Mobil's own Mobil credit card and other major credit cards. The company also has the nation's largest retail ATM card network which can be used by more than 123 million ATM-card cardholders.

An added customer convenience is that GM Card cardholders can use their cards to "pay at the pump" at more than 1,300 participating Mobil stations across the country.

Jerome-Duncan Ford will add a bit of history to its Old Garage Museum behind the dealership on Van Dyke in Sterling Heights: an unregistered 1921 Model T coupe with no miles on it and an engine plate designating it the five millionth Model T built. Dealer and collector Dick Duncan acquired the car recently at a DuMouchelle auction. The museum, which features a number of historical Fords and automobiles, is open to the public 1 to 8 p.m. Thursdays.

Farms funds projects, ramps top list

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

Almost half of the $99,500 allocated by the city of Grosse Pointe Farms under the Community Development Block Grant Program will be spent on handicapped sidewalk ramping, the Farms council said Monday.

Last year 110 ramps were installed at intersections along Chalfonte, Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Boulevard and Lakeshore. Under the Americans with Disabilities Act, curb ramps for all existing sidewalks should be in place by January 1995.

About one-third of the Community Development Block Grant funding has been allocated for streetscape improvements along Mack Avenue, from Fisher to Moross. A master plan provides for median, lighting and parking improvements as well as sidewalk replacement.

Due to the magnitude of the plan, it will be carried out in phases, using several years of block grant funding. This fiscal year $30,000 will be added to the $131,700 already allocated to the project.

The Pointe Area Assisted Transportation System, operating since 1989, will receive $12,000 in block grant funding. The service provides door-to-door assisted minibus transportation for the Pointes and Harper Woods.

Services for Older Citizens, a non-profit organization created to help older citizens maintain their independence by providing meals at home and meeting nursing needs, will receive $10,500 in funding.

2 win TREE CITY USA honors

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

For the eighth straight year, Grosse Pointe Farms and Grosse Pointe City have been awarded the Tree City USA designation by the National Arbor Day Foundation.

To become a Tree City USA, a community must have each of the following: A tree board or department, a city tree ordinance, a comprehensive community forestry program and an Arbor Day observance.

"The (Farms) has had an active tree maintenance and tree planting program ever since Dutch elm disease was introduced to this area 30 years ago," said Farms mayor Gregg Berendt.

"An aggressive prevention and containment program has kept elm losses to 2 percent or 3 percent while other communities' elm populations have been decimated. Meanwhile, an annual tree planting program has resulted in over 2,000 trees being planted over this time frame."

"We always plant more than we remove," said Chris Bremer, assistant city manager for Grosse Pointe City.

The Tree City USA program is sponsored by the National Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with the USDA Forest Service and the National Association of State Foresters.

Michigan Senate approves sewage overflow curbs

The Michigan Senate has approved a package designed to stop combined sewage overflows.

The bills passed by the Senate are currently in the state House and must be approved there, then signed by Gov. John Engler.

The bill requires communities to notify governments and media in downstream communities of sewage overflows.

"At last, Michigan citizens...will finally be aware of the discharge of raw sewage," said Richard Moore, water resources specialist for Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC).

According to MUCC, billions of gallons of untreated sewage is discharged into public rivers and lakes. The problem is especially severe in Detroit, which has the nation's largest municipal wastewater treatment plant.

Up to $13 million in unexpended funds and interest will help pay for the new plan.

Municipalities will be allowed to create utilities to manage and treat stormwater as they do now for waste and drinking water.

With this name I thee wed

... not necessarily

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Hillary Rodham Clinton located her maiden name recently and stuck it back between her given name and her husband's surname.

Michelle Engler and Marilyn Quayle found work and their maiden-names almost simultaneously.

Women are first-string players in the name game.

Men are permitted perpetual ownership of a name, from birth to death. Women (happily or unhappily) get to make choices.

Marriages, divorces, business affiliations, careers, parenthood, blended families, and plain ol' personal preferences are taken into account. Women can weigh the advantages and disadvantages of adding, deleting, replacing — even hyphenating — their own personal string of given and accumulated names.

Kay B. Van De Graaf of Grosse Pointe Park is an artist/designer who owns Van De Graaf Galerie, a resale business for antiques and collectibles.

She has been Mary Catherine Beissel, Mary Kay Beissel, Kay Beissel, Kay Smith, Kay Beissel Smith, Kay B. Van De Graaf — even Mary Van De Graaf (which is an error, she says).

"It's a problem. People have trouble finding me in phone books and club directories, for instance. At least I've had the same phone number for the last 31 years," she said.

Born Mary Catherine Beissel, she grew up in Ann Arbor with a nickname: Mary Kay. It was later shortened: Kay.

She married a man named Smith and became Kay Smith, succumbing to the custom for

Sam Smith

Jane Jones

Bob Butler

Amy Andrews

John Jones-Smith

Betty Andrews-Butler

Andy Andrews-Butler-Jones-Smith

young brides in the early 1960s.

"When I was divorced I wrestled with the options and decided I wanted to retain Smith because I had young children. I also had affiliations in the community and I had my artwork. So I stuck my maiden name in the middle and became Kay Beissel Smith," she said.

When she married John Van De Graaf, she again looked at her choices.

"I tried them all. It was a comedy of errors. I didn't want to hyphenate anything," she said. "It is nice to have choices."

Karen Kendrick-Hands of Grosse Pointe Park is an environmental attorney. Her husband, Lawrence Hands, is an environmental engineer with his own consulting firm.

"Karen decided to hyphenate her names to keep her own identity and to acknowledge the fact that she's married," Hands said. "When we got married, in the mid '70s, we discussed hyphenating my name as well. But in a male-dominated society, men can keep their own names. It's different for women."

Kendrick-Hands and Hands have two children. Each child has a given first name. They have two middle names — the second one being Kendrick. And their last names are Hands. No hyphens.

"My wife is very insistent about keeping the two names for business and professional work," Hands said. "But when she orders a pizza, she uses 'Hands.'"

Beverly Hall Burns of Grosse Pointe City is a senior partner in labor and employment relations with the law firm Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone. Burns thinks everybody is making too much of an issue of women's last names in general, and of Hillary Rodham Clinton's in particular.

"It should be her call," Burns said.

Burns' given name was Beverly Lynn Hall. She used it — even while married — through a newspaper career with the State Journal in Lansing and while she was in law school.

"Shortly after I graduated from law school," she said, "I went to an affair of women lawyers. A woman came up to me and said her name was Beverly Hall. She was a lawyer too.

And her middle name was Lynn.

"So, when I went to Miller, Canfield, I decided to drop my middle name and use Burns. This solution also avoided the problem of our children having parents with different last names.

"I never hyphenated my names and I got teased because of it."

Miller Canfield had a letterhead with an alphabetical list of its attorneys. Burns' colleagues teased her about choosing Burns without a hyphen so she could be closer to the top of the list.

Martha Klingbeil Murphy of Grosse Pointe City uses her maiden and married names, without a hyphen. She's been married 12 years. For the last four years she has been owner of The Write Impression, a company that sells personalized stationery, invitations, calligraphy services and personalized gifts. Murphy has two sets of business cards: one says Martha Murphy; one says Martha Klingbeil Murphy.

"When I got married I couldn't wait to change to Murphy," she said. "Klingbeil was always being mispronounced and misspelled. But people have trouble with Murphy too. Is it Murfee or Murphey or Murphy? I keep the Klingbeil so people will recognize me."

DaVIDA F. KRUGER of Grosse Pointe City is a clinical nurse specialist with Henry Ford Hospital. When she married Steven Nadeau 18 years ago, she toyed with the idea of hyphenating the two last names. "But I kept getting filed in the wrong places. Nobody could find me," she said.

"My identity is tied up with my name and I've never heard a good enough reason why I should change my name. After all, the issue isn't your name, it's what you do."

Kruger and her husband have three children. They each have Kruger as a middle name; Nadeau as a last name.

Myrna Smith, a Realtor with Johnstone & Johnstone, was born Myrna Lou Moxley.

"I've never used Lou," she said with a shudder. "My mother thought Myrna Lou was a neat name."

When Smith was married in the early 1960s, she took her husband's last name; she kept it after being divorced.

"I had already established my career prior to the divorce. It was easier to keep the Smith," she said. She compromised, however, by inserting an M. for Moxley in the middle of her two names.

What if she marries again? "It depends on what his name is," Smith said.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

The suburban Detroit bridge world has been most fortunate to have amongst us one of Poland's bridge celebrities. Joseph Sobolewski, author, lecturer, teacher and coach, and his wife have been here these past few weeks visiting their daughter, son-in-law and grandson. Naturally, he was interested in our game and when his daughter Monica called, I was delighted to play as I knew it would be a very enlightening experience. This, of course, required that I abort standard American as he wasn't in sync with our system. In turn, he had to forfeit the Polish Club convention as in spite of its renown on the European continent the ACBL hasn't sanctioned it here. This left us with either British ACOL or Precision and while limited in C.C. Weis' famous methods, I felt more comfortable in its use. Needless to say, I have been studying at a clip equivalent to passing final exams.

Few I have ever visited with on the fifty-two we deal are as knowledgeable or as interesting especially when discussing the international game. Actually precision and the Polish Club have something in common as the bidding conduit in both systems is the conventional one club opening. The principle difference is that precision one club is 16 H.C.P. + and the only unlimited bid while the Polish Club can be either of four shapes and sizes that is clarified by subsequent calls. These variations for you who have had your interest stimulated are: (A) Natural five card or better club suit, 12-17 H.C.P.; (B) Weak no trump, 12-15 H.C.P.; (C) Some five card or better suit, 18-21 H.C.P.; (D) Balanced 19-21 H.C.P. Their two clubs and two diamond calls are much the same order as British ACOL, but space restricts a more definitive explanation of Alexander Ruzicki's very creative system. Joseph's enthusiasm is exuberant, "Woody, it's very exciting, you must learn." And with that, he's captured my inquisitiveness.

I also asked about their cadre of top flight players and Joseph suggested there were about twenty of them. Peter Gawrys and Christopher Martenn were unquestionably their best. Both have played on this side of the ocean as you might have read about them in Alan Truscott's New York Times column. In their adaptation of the Polish Club, there are circumstances in which they pass an opening bid in first or second seat which has caused much notoriety, but this isn't the systems standard procedure.

Naturally Joseph had a fine hand from a recent major European event that is a colossal problem to play even seeing all hands. Remember as you witness this, you're not in the Land of Oz, but the play is the work of a brilliant young Polish performer who was competing against Europe's best.

Eleven tricks are in sight and against modest competition the twelfth isn't too difficult to find. Win the club ace. Trick (2-3), The ace, king of spades. (4) The trump eight to dummy's heart ten and ruff a club high. (5) The diamond ace and then put West in with his spade queen. At trick (8) West's forced club return gives you a ruff in dummy and a diamond sluff in your hand to capture twelve tricks. But the pros don't defend that poorly. At trick (3), West pitches his spade queen under your king and is off the end play and can't be thrown in. Has declarer a counter? Measure carefully and if so how?

If West is going to be brilliant you can be too. At trick (6), instead of the diamond ace, play your heart deuce to dummy's seven. Then the diamond ten which East must cover and run the rest of your trumps. At trick (11), here's the three card ending.

Cookies 'n' Mint makes magic desserts

Yesterday was St. Patrick's Day, when almost everyone becomes Irish, but that's no reason to stop celebrating.

You can make desserts with a whole new taste experience, featuring cookies 'n' mint, a blend of crunch chocolate cookie bits in a milk chocolate bar with just a touch of mint.

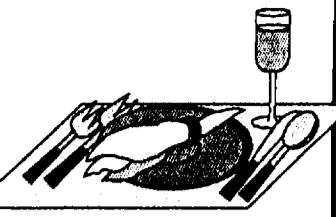

The cookies 'n' mint chocolate bar debuted nationally in November 1992 to the delight of chocolate lovers across the country. Now dessert lovers can have a whole new variety of taste and texture sensations with the fresh flavor of milk chocolate and light mint added to some dessert classics.

Since the color green and the flavor of mint go perfectly with St. Patrick's Day, it's the perfect time to make these desserts.

The United States purchases about 30 percent of all the cocoa beans produced in the world. Chocolate producing companies are very protective of their blending formulas. It all started with Montezuma, and he had no idea what he was getting into.

In 1519, the fabled emperor of the Aztecs served chocolate and cocoa to Hernando Cortes and his officers. Montezuma couldn't foresee his fate, nor could he predict that chocolate drinks, candies and desserts would become so popular.

ELEGANT EATING

By Irene H. Burchard

The chocolate recipe for "St. Patrick's Layered Pound Cake" is quick to put together since it's simply a frozen pound cake layered with whipped topping and a chopped seven-ounce chocolate bar.

The "Irish Cookies 'n' Mint Pie" is almost as easy to prepare using half of a seven-ounce bar as the chocolate layer; the rest of the bar is chopped and folded into a delectable whipped cream filling. This pie is an easy-to-prepare, minty variation of "Hershey Bar Pie," a classic pie recipe.

If you yearn for a hint of mint flavor in your chocolate cookies, give the recipe for the "Mint Chocolate Shamrock Cookies" a try. You can either shape these cookies into shamrocks, or make rolls of dough for slice-and-bake cookies; and they've cooled, you can adorn them with tubes of decorator icing.

It doesn't have to be St. Patrick's Day to make dessert classics with a whole new twist.

St. Patrick's Mint

Layered Pound Cake

1 frozen loaf pound cake (16 oz.) partially thawed
Few drops green food color (optional)
3-1/2 cups (8 oz.) frozen non-dairy whipped topping, thawed

1 Hershey's Cookies 'n' Mint chocolate bar (7 oz.) chopped

With serrated knife, slice pound cake horizontally into 4 layers. Stir green food color into whipped topping (if desired), stir in chopped chocolate bar pieces.

Place bottom cake layer on serving plate; top with about 1 cup topping mixture. Repeat layers, ending with topping mixture. Cover, refrigerate. Refrigerate leftovers. About 10 servings.

Irish Cookies 'n' Mint Pie

1-1/2 cups miniature marshmallows
1/4 cup milk

1 Hershey's Cookies 'n' Mint chocolate bar (7 oz.) broken into pieces and divided

1 cup (1/2 pt.) cold whipping cream, divided
1 package crumb crust (6 oz.)

Few drops green food color (optional)

In medium microwave-safe bowl, place marshmallows and milk at high one minute or until marshmallows are melted and mixture is smooth when stirred. Set aside and cool completely.

Meanwhile, in small microwave-safe bowl, place half of chocolate bar pieces and 2 tablespoons whipping cream. Microwave at high 1 to 1-1/2 minutes or just until chocolate is melted when stirred. Spread over bottom of crumb crust.

In small bowl, beat remaining whipping cream until stiff. Fold into cool marshmallow mixture. Chop remaining chocolate bar pieces and fold into whipped cream mixture with food color, if desired.

Spread into crust over top of chocolate layer. Cover and refrigerate until firm. Garnish as desired. Refrigerate leftovers. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Minty Chocolate Shamrock Cookies

3/4 cup (1-1/2 sticks) butter or margarine, softened

1 cup sugar
1/4 cup light corn syrup

1 egg
1 t vanilla extract
2 Hershey Cookies 'n' Mint chocolate bars (7 oz. each), broken into pieces

2 cups all purpose flour
1/4 cup cocoa

2 t baking soda
1/4 t salt

Green decorating icing (optional)

In large mixer bowl, beat butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add corn syrup, egg and vanilla, blend well.

In medium microwave-safe bowl, place chocolate bar pieces. Microwave at high 1 to 1-1/2 minutes or until chocolate is melted when stirred. Blend into butter mixture.

Stir together flour, cocoa, baking soda and salt, add to chocolate mixture, blending well. Cover and refrigerate one hour or until firm enough to handle. Heat oven to 350 degrees.

For each shamrock cookie, shape three 1/2-inch balls. Place in triangle position on ungreased cookie sheet with approximately 1/4 inch between each ball. Form and add 1-1/2 inch stem. Bake 8 to 10 minutes or until set around edges. Cool slightly, remove from cookie sheet to wire rack. Cool completely. Pipe decorating icing around edges of cookie, if desired. Makes 8 dozen 2-inch cookies.

Minty Chocolate Slice 'n' Bake Cookies: Prepare dough as directed above. Shape dough into 2 rolls each 2 inches in diameter. Wrap both rolls in wax paper or plastic wrap and refrigerate until firm. Cut rolls into 1/4-inch slices; place 2 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake and cool as directed above.

Visit Alaska in winter? Go for it

There is just no accounting for the weather. A couple of weeks ago when the Detroit area was getting pounded with snow I was in Anchorage, Alaska. During my week there, not one flake of snow fell.

This was a bit unfortunate, actually, as I was attending the Fur Rendezvous, North America's largest winter festival, and they really could have used some snow to spiff things up. But the weather certainly didn't dampen Alaskan spirits — rather, those folks reveled in the clear, sunny days and celebrated all the more.

Most of my friends thought I was slightly nuts to head to Alaska in the winter, but I decided to attend the Rondo — as the Fur Rendezvous is affectionately nicknamed — because I enjoy winter sports in Michigan and was sure I would probably enjoy them in Alaska. I did, and met people from all over America who were doing the same.

Alaska is working hard to promote itself as a winter vacation destination and the Rondo is one of its key events. The Iditirod dog sled race, which always begins a few weeks after Rondo, is the second-biggest tourist draw.

The Fur Rendezvous, in its 85th year, has grown from a turn-of-the-century winter gathering of miners and trappers to a 10-day festival packed with events that range from the bizarre (the "Outhouse Classic" race in which custom-designed outhouses are pulled or pushed around a course by a "dog team" of humans) to the most traditional, a parade. On weekends, visitors can spend their days literally wandering from one venue to another.

TRAVEL TRENDS

By Cynthia Boal Janssens

For example, on Saturday I began by attending Frostbite Footrace at 8:30 a.m. (in which many colorful characters ran, trotted or crawled through a short or long course), then stoked up at the Pioneer Pancake Breakfast, after which it was time for the annual parade. That went on for about two hours featuring everything from exotic military vehicles to llamas but my toes became so cold that I ducked into the Convention Hall where I surveyed the rather tacky (sad to say) craft show.

And that was just the morning.

There's lots more going on — a cat show, a rabbit show, a calculator contest. There are reindeer sled races and the Oosik Rugby Classic (played with a certain appendage of a walrus). There are wrist-wrestling competitions (not surprising, held in a local bar) and radio-controlled car racing.

If it seems that literally every group has tacked some kind of event onto the Fur Rendezvous, that's probably true. Remember, Anchorage isn't a great big city. It has a population of about 230,000 (40 percent of the state's population) and still has a hometown feel so it is no surprise that everyone wants a piece of the action.

Make no mistake, if you spend all of your time in Anchorage, you will feel like you have missed out on the "real" Alaska, the incredibly beautiful wilderness that has enchanted so many. But Anchorage is the way point (not the capital, however) where most commerce takes place and as such is key to understanding what Alaska is all about.

I had been to Anchorage before, but the Fur Rendezvous turned out to be the event where I came to believe that I was learning to understand the state and its many peoples. The native Alaskans belong to many tribes — Athabaskan, Inupiat, Yup'ik, Aleut, Tlingit, Eyak and more; they are not just "Eskimos" — but come from distinct cultures.

Most tourists only encounter native Alaskans when they venture off into the remote villages or attend craft shows, where the natives often display. Otherwise, these people keep to themselves, mostly living in small villages.

However, native Alaskans show up in force during the Rondo. Most have relatives in Anchorage, and they always plan a visit accordingly. So it is a pleasure to see the streets filled with the families of native Alaskans who are so willing to chat with visitors.

There was Leona, the lovely woman who helped me bid on a Finnish fox pelt during the fur auction. There was the man at the auction missing a front tooth who so proudly posed for pictures featuring the magnificent silver fox ruff on the hood of his parky. (In Alaska, a traditional Eskimo parka, calico on the outside, fur inside, is called a "parky," not a parka.) And there were Mabel and Betty, selling their pomanders and homemade caribou skin masks at the real native crafts show at Diamond Center Mall. These people remain with me.

But I have saved the best for last. The highlight of the Fur Rendezvous festivities was the dog sled races. Dog-sledding is the state sport of Alaska and many families pursue it professionally. You have all heard of the Iditirod, I'm sure, but there are many other competitions and during the Rondo all eyes are on the World Championship Sled Dog Races, which are actually sprints: speed wins. For three days in a row, the 18 competitors raced a 25-mile course which took about an hour-and-a-half. The prize money was $75,000.

Lack of snow was no impediment: trucks hauled in fresh snow each morning so that by 12:30 p.m. the racers could take off from the center of town and race right down Fourth Street in front of bleachers filled with fans. Roxy Wright Champaine, a 42-year-old grandmother and last year's champion, won handily all three days but the competition was still thrilling.

I encourage anyone who would like to see another, more personal aspect of Alaska to visit in the winter, either during the Rondo or for the start of the Iditirod.

To be in the middle of the action, stay at either the Anchorage Hotel, the Hilton or the Holiday Inn. For more information, contact the Anchorage Convention & Visitors Bureau, 1600 A St., Suite 200, Anchorage, AK 99501-51262. Phone toll-free (907) 276-4118.

'Forbidden Broadway' has a lot of fun, a little meanness

By Gwenn Bashara Samuel
Special Writer

Because Broadway, the "fabulous invalid," produced a rather lackluster 1992-93 season, the all new 1993 edition of Gerard Alessandrini's "Forbidden Broadway" makes great fun of the lack of originality of the Great White Way.

Delicious musical barbs are aimed at unending revivals, re-read musical actors (Robert Goulet is zinged masterfully) and shows which spring from everywhere except New York.

It also makes fun of a large number of sacred cows from prior years, as well as a few evergreens, and this is achieved through the ensemble and individual efforts of four extraordinary and talented performers who work the stage and the audience in the lovingly restored Gem Theatre.

A few of the satires seem a bit mean. "I Get a Kick Out of Me," lampooning the very talented Patti Lupone, seems to spring from some insider knowledge, or might, instead, just be a vehicle to display Alessandrini's nimble facility with words. However, most of the spoofs are right on the mark.

The clever lyric using the song "Trouble" from "The Music Man" to a cadence categorizing Broadway's ills (the idle theater is the devil's playground) is a delicious way of presenting the thesis of the production. And, "I Know I've Seen This Show Before" highlights Tony-winning "Guys and Dolls" as a show which has been done over and over and over to death by every high school, community and little theater group in every basement throughout the country.

The energetic singers (who also dance a little) prove the old theatrical adage that the most difficult thing to do is to clown and still be good. Jeff Lyons takes several hilarious turns, including impersonations of comic Jackie Mason, a bewigged female lead in "Miss Saigon" and the venerable Jerome Robbins. He also does a consummate take on Mandy Patinkin, even achieving a perfect reproduction of the singer's hands.

Kate Willinger, who spent two years at Hilberry, does a wicked Tyne Daly and an awesome Ethel Merman. Willinger has a mobile and animated face as well as a strong voice of excellent range, all of which lend themselves to this kind of theater.

Broadway icon Tommy Tune is royally punctured by William Selby — on six-inch platform shoes — who sings "Once in Love With Tommy." Selby also is right on with his impersonations of Michael Crawford as the young Cornelius Hackle in "Hello, Dolly," and the older Crawford in "The Phantom of the Opera."

"Phantom" brings up an interesting point: this production does not mind being silly, and that very nonsense and the "wink-wink" knowledge of it between cast and audience makes the show that much more fun. The chandelier from "Phantom" is all of a foot high, lopsided, with a few burned-out bulbs. In the "Sweeney Todd" parody, "Teeny Todd," two sets of puppets, one less than a foot high, the other only half that size, slash at each other with a pink plastic razor.

'Falling Down' will elicit sympathy, not support

By Jeff Harper
Special Writer

"Falling Down" is a film about anonymity and frustration.

Michael Douglas plays an unempowered, unemployed defense worker unable to cope with a changing America. Known only by a vanity license plate, Douglas' tragic hero, D-FENS, begins a quest across unfamiliar territory in southern California in hope of regaining some sort of stability in his life through a reunion with his estranged wife (Barbara Hershey).

D-FENS is a proud American who has so specialized himself as a particular cog in the American machine that he is unable to cope with change.

This typical American motif is stressed throughout the movie.

D-FENS is a veteran, a white male, laid off from a defense position, sports a crew cut and stylish horn-rimmed glasses, a white shirt and tie, and plastic pocket protector. He is a product of those traditional American male attributes: responsibility, rugged individualism, patriotism.

"Falling Down" is the depiction of how a seemingly normal person can react when the world no longer cherishes this model and erodes the footing from which he strives to achieve his lofty goals.

Robert Duvall is Detective Prendergrast, a retired cop who, strangely, is the only officer with enough common sense to link together a series of blue-collar crimes through the description of a white-collar perpetrator.

The aim here is obvious. The filmmakers are trying to establish the complete anonymity of their anti-hero, even during his desperate plea for attention. The duality of the two central characters is evident. Prendergrast and D-FENS are opposite reactions to similar circumstances.

Director Joel Schumacher wastes no time in establishing this as a dark film. The close-ups of Douglas' nervous, nerdy character, and finding humor amid violence are typical of film noir, techniques reminiscent of Stanley Kubrick ("A Clockwork Orange," "Full Metal Jacket").

Much has been said about "Falling Down," that it champions vigilante reaction to social problems, and that it justifies racism. It does neither. "Falling Down" is not "Death

Michael Douglas is a nerd gone arwy in the violence-plagued streets of south central Los Angeles in the controversial new black comedy "Falling Down."

Wish 1993." You don't bond with D-FENS, you understand him. The film's intent is not to elicit support, but sympathy.

D-FENS is feeling taken advantage of by a cross section of American minorities forcing recognition of their own cultural axioms while ignoring his. D-FENS asks Prendergrast, "When did I become the bad guy?" Obviously, somewhere between the Uzis and anti-tank missiles.

Douglas proves he is one of Hollywood's top actors, and not afraid to take chances, giving a quality portrayal of such an unflattering character. "Falling Down" is the best — and most controversial — film of the new year.

Michigan Bach Festival returns for 11th season

The Michigan Bach Festival began its 11th season on Sunday, March 14, and will continue with a series of concerts and special events through Monday, March 29.

Curtis Posuniak, general director of the festival, says the 1993 season boasts a "team of multicultural talent," including members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the Detroit Chamber Winds, and many of the finest musicians in the area.

At 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, March 21 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, William Whitehead will present "The Mendelssohn/Bach Program." It is the historic program played by Felix Mendelssohn in St. Thomas Church in Leipzig on Aug. 6, 1840, which prompted a renewed interest in the music of Bach. Tickets are $8 and $10.

Before the concert, Bach will be feted at a birthday party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E.W. Bierkle in Bloomfield Hills. Tickets for the party are $50 and all proceeds go to the Michigan Bach Festival. Reservations are necessary; call 271-1939.

At 7:30 p.m. Friday, March 26, MBF will present the Detroit Chamber Winds playing the music of Bach and Gabrieli at Christ Church Cranbrook, sponsored in part by World Heritage Foundation of Southgate.

At 3 p.m. Sunday, March 28, Dave Wagner and members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra will perform three of Bach's Brandenburg Concertos at St. Paul on the Lake in Grosse Pointe Farms. Tickets are $12 and $10.

The Townsend Hotel in Birmingham will be the site of the final 1993 Bach festival event. A tea and concert featuring the Michigan Bach Festival Vocal Quartet will begin at 2 p.m. Reservations are needed; call the MBF office at 271-1939. Tickets are $28.

'Mad Dog' is a comic treat

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Thanks to screenwriter Richard Price and producer Martin Scorsese, who worked together on "The Color of Money," the characters and dialogue of the black comedy "Mad Dog and Glory" bring to life the world of guys and dolls that Damon Runyon made so entertaining.

The setting is Chicago and the gangster is Frank (Bill Murray), who owns a comedy club and has aspirations of becoming a stand-up comedian.

He gets involved with Wayne (Robert De Niro) who is ironically known as "Mad Dog" because of his mild-mannered approach to his job as a police photographer.

The "doll" is Glory (Uma Thurman) who has had a hard life, but remains sweet and unspoiled.

The film begins as Wayne walks into a convenience store where he finds a man with a gun standing behind the counter with one foot on Frank's head.

Eventually Wayne persuades the gunman to leave and Frank, in thanks, brings Wayne to Frank's "Comedy Cazie" club to watch him perform. He finds himself part of an audience of hoods who laugh uproariously at Frank's not-too-funny jokes. After the performance, Frank and Wayne get stone drunk and Frank declares himself the "purveyor of Wayne's dreams."

He begins by sending Glory to Wayne as a "gift that keeps on giving."

At this point, the film gradually softens into a love story. Wayne's first reaction is to send Glory back, but she pleads to stay. In a series of scenes that are both touching and funny, we see Wayne's defenses break down. At the end of the week, Wayne refuses to let her go. When Frank rolls up in his stretch limo, to reclaim Glory, Wayne tells him, in no uncertain terms, he can't have her. They strike a deal — Frank agrees to let her stay if Wayne pays off Glory's brother's debt. He has a week to raise it.

The sum of its parts make "Mad Dog and Glory" an enjoyable film. There is violence, but it is relieved by humor, romance, tenderness and offbeat interludes.

Space should be given to Mike Starr as Harold, Frank's heavyweight watchdog who hovers over the happenings like a pit bull, and to David Caruso as Mike, Wayne's partner whose boy-next-door appearance belies his belligerent toughness.

Murray stands out in a role that is as funny as it is sinister. His timing is superb.

Thurman is more than a blonde decoration. She proves herself as an accomplished actress in scenes where she shows timidity, gentleness and, in the end, surprising toughness.

For all this, DeNiro dominates the film. He's onscreen most of the time and makes good use of it.

If you're a De Niro fan, you

Everybody's Wearing Them

The Pastor's Corner Recognizing Holy Spirit

By the Rev. Ron Cori
Redeemer United Methodist Church

Jesus, in a conversation with a Samaritan woman at Jacob's well near Sychar, made the statement that "... true worshippers must worship God in spirit and truth." (John 4:5-26)

There are many who say that they worship God in the spirit. Some are authentic, while others are not. The question is, "How does one tell the difference between the Holy Spirit of God and a spirit which is demonic? How can one tell when one is being guided by God's Holy Spirit and when one is being led astray by a demonic spirit? Is there some way one can determine the origin of a spirit? Is there some help for us that can be found in Scripture?"

The answer, for Christians, is Jesus.

In Jesus, we know what it looks like for a person such as you and I to live one's life guided, empowered and sustained by the Holy Spirit of God. It is the life of a servant which acts out of compassion, patience, kindness, generosity, love, joy, peace, self-control and faithfulness to God.

It is a life that is willing to give itself up for others. Such was the life of Jesus. As the apostle Paul wrote in his letter to the church at Philippi, in referring to Jesus:

"... who, though he was in the form of God, did not regard equality with God as something to be exploited, but emptied himself, taking the form of a slave, being born in human likeness. And being found in human form he humbled himself and became obedient to the point of death — even death on a cross." (Philippians 2:6-8)

Such was the life of Jesus, a humble, self-giving servant on behalf of God's love for all people.

How unlike the lives of a Jimmy Jones, a David Koresh, some TV evangelists and others who, in the name of God, using the name of Jesus, and professing to act with the guidance of the Holy Spirit, set up kingdoms and harems and collect large offerings for their own personal use and indulgence.

To live and worship God in the spirit is more like that of a Mother Theresa and others who live simply, caring for even the least of people and asking nothing in return.

Yes, we too must worship God in spirit, for God is spirit and the "truth" of the "spirit" is found in Jesus the Christ.

Pharmacists give tips on keeping kids from poisons, medicines

Children act fast. So do poisons.

This is the theme of the 32nd annual national Poison Prevention Week to be held March 21-27.

The event is intended to raise awareness of the dangers of accidental poisonings and of measures needed to prevent them.

The Southeastern Michigan Society of Hospital Pharmacists (SMSHP) wants the public to be aware of housekeeping rules to prevent poisoning accidents:

- Keep all household chemical products and medicines out of the reach and sight of youngsters. These items should be locked up when not in use.

- When these products are in use, never let them out of your sight. If you must leave the room for some reason, either take the product with you or store it out of the reach of children.

- Store all medicine separately from household products and store all household chemicals away from food items.

- Keep all medicine and chemical products in their original containers.

- Leave the original labels on all products and read these labels before using.

- Always leave the light on when giving or taking medicine.

- Avoid taking medicine in front of children, since youngsters tend to imitate grown-ups.

- Refer to all medicine as "medicine" and not candy.

- Clean out the medicine cabinet periodically. Safely dispose of all unneeded medicine when the illness it was prescribed for is over. If you have any questions about disposal of medicine, ask your pharmacist for help.

- Use safety packaging properly by closing the container securely after use.

If a household chemical or medicine has been swallowed, follow the first-aid instructions on the label and then seek medical advice. This can be done by calling the local Poison Control Center, whose phone number is located on the inside cover of the telephone directory.

For quick access, place this number on or by other emergency phone numbers.

More information on making your home safe for youngsters can be obtained by writing to: U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, Midwestern Regional Office, 230 S. Dearborn Street, Room 2945, Chicago, 60604.

South's Hepner dives to a state championship

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Chad Hepner didn't have far to climb before he reached the top among the state's high school divers, but sometimes the last step is the biggest. The Grosse Pointe South senior made that step last weekend when he won the diving competition at the Class A state meet at Eastern Michigan University, defeating last year's champion, Chris Goode of Dearborn.

"He was outstanding," said Blue Devils' coach Fred Michalik. "His last three dives were just super. Chad gets a lot of credit, but (diving coach) Don David did a great job of working with him."

A year ago, Hepner was a close second to Goode in the state meet. Goode's winning total was 458 points, while Hepner's runner-up total was 452.55.

Goode's efforts weren't quite as good this year as he finished with 455.75, but Hepner's were a lot better as he totaled 493.95 points. Only two other divers had more than 400 points.

"Chad has better control this year," Michalik said. "His composure is better. He wasn't as nervous at the finals as he was a year ago. He's been doing well all season and really wanted to finish first in the state meet."

Hepner, who gained more than 1,000 yards as the top running back on the Blue Devils' football team last fall, didn't start diving until his freshman year at South.

He improved rapidly and was 15th in the state meet as a sophomore.

Hepner had some familiar company on the all-state swimming team.

Teammate Geoff Prysak was fourth in the 100-yard breaststroke and Grosse Pointe North's Steve Williams and Brett Collins finished fifth and sixth, respectively, in the 500-yard freestyle.

Prysak, a junior who is swimming for South for the first time this season, posted a personal best of 59.59. His best previous effort was a 60.5.

"I don't think he realizes how fast he is," Michalik said. "Imagine what he'd be doing if he hadn't played basketball for two years. I hope he plans to continue swimming. It's amazing what he did for just coming out this season."

Williams set a North varsity record when he was clocked in 4:41.76, breaking Collins' old mark of 4:43.4. Collins also bettered that record with his sixth-place time of 4:43.05.

"This is the first time we've had two all-staters in swimming the same year," said North coach Mike O'Connor. "Steve dropped five seconds off his best time last year and Brett dropped nine seconds since last season."

By next season, North could have the strongest contingent of distance swimmers in the state. Williams is a junior, Collins a sophomore and freshman Jeff Shelden also qualified for Chad Hepner is on top of the high school diving world after winning the state Class A championship last weekend. The Grosse Pointe South senior was second in the event a year ago.

Skuce second on the mat

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

One mistake was the difference between a state championship and a runner-up finish for Grosse Pointe North wrestler Dan Skuce.

"Dan got his legs in the wrong place and the guy (Bay City Western's Brian Beaver) is a leg wrestler," said North coach Art Roberts after Skuce finished second in Class A in the 130-pound class at last weekend's finals in Battle Creek.

Beaver, who had beaten Skuce 9-5 in a tournament earlier in the season, wound up with an 11-6 victory after going into the third period tied 4-4.

Beaver got a takedown early in the third period and a near fall. A reversal and a three-point near fall, coupled with a controversial non-call by the official, decided the match.

"(Beaver) took a reversal into an illegal hold and the referee didn't see it," Roberts said. "If we'd gotten the penalty point and the three points had been disallowed it would have been 8-7 and it could have been a different story."

Skuce, who completed his high school career with a 120-

25-1 record, had no trouble winning his first three bouts at the state meet. He pinned Clarkston's Steve Locher in 3:22, won on a fall in 5:33 against Battle Creek Lakeview's Bob Holczman and had a pin in 1:27 in his semifinal match with Northville's Matt Allison. Skuce finished his career with 86 pins, including 34 this season that tied him with Dave Fleming for the school record. Skuce had a 46-3 mark as a senior.

"He was devastated when he lost because he was so prepared to win it all," Roberts said. "He knew he could beat the guy, too. They were definitely the two best in the state at that weight. The Bay City Western coach came up to Dan after the match and told him that he was the toughest wrestler Beaver faced all year."

Beaver finished the season with a 52-0 record.

"Dan learned from his loss," Roberts said. "He's going to wrestle in the NCAA finals for the Air Force Academy before he's through. I'm sure of that."

Skuce scored 305 1/2 team

Lady Devils reach volleyball quarters again

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Cindy Sharpe wants the lights out early Friday night in the hotel rooms of her Grosse Pointe South volleyball team.

"I want a curfew Friday for a change," Sharpe said as she began preparing the Lady Devils for their third straight trip to the Class A state volleyball quarterfinals. They'll meet Catholic League champion Birmingham Marian at 5:30 p.m. Friday at Portage Central High School.

A victory over the Mustangs would send South into the semifinals for the first time. The Lady Devils are 0-4 in their quarterfinal games.

"Marian's Stephanie Storen is a great player and if we can slow her down we have a good chance of winning," Sharpe said. "We're looking forward to beating them because I don't think we've received the credit statewide that we deserve. The kids are looking forward to it and they believe they can win."

A victory over Marian could create a semifinal matchup against Macomb Area Conference rival Fraser on Saturday at 10 a.m. at Portage Central. South has beaten the Ramblers twice this season.

"But they still scare me," Sharpe said. "They're a talented team and they're well-coached."

The championship match in Class A will be played Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at Kalamazoo Central High School.

The Lady Devils advanced to the quarterfinals with a 15-12, 15-8 victory over a surprising Roseville squad in the regional at South. In the regional semifinals, South breezed past Detroit Northwestern 15-0, 15-2 and Roseville surprised Detroit Cass Tech 15-6, 15-13.

"This was the best we've played all year," said Roseville coach Jerry Mrofska. "We're a young team that's been improving."

Sharpe said the Panthers capitalized on every mistake South made in the regional.

"We made quite a few errors and Roseville played well," she said. "They didn't cut us any slack."

One of South's problems was a hip flexor suffered by Angela Drake, who is one of the Lady Devils' top hitters.

"She couldn't put the ball down on the floor like she usually does, so she resorted to blocking and did a great job in helping shut down Roseville's two big hitters," Sharpe said.

"She only had four kills, but she had six blocks for points."

With Drake slowed by her injury, Stephanie Coddens took over and had eight kills in the Roseville match. Amanda Defever had three kills in the first game and Megan Twiddy matched that in the second game with the Panthers.

"Megan gave us some great net play," Sharpe said. "She was real aggressive and had a couple assist blocks against (Roseville's) strong side. Kate Grenzke came in and gave us a lift in the front and back rows."

Sue Faremouth, who is one of the premier setters in the state, had 20 assists in the Roseville match and also had three blocks.

"She's doing a nice job on blocking the over-pass," Sharpe said.

Injuries which have slowed Drake and Coddens for much of the season could turn out to be a blessing in disguise for the Lady Devils as they head into the final week.

"The injuries have given the other girls more experience in pressure situations," Sharpe said. "I can go 11 deep with no hesitation. That could be a plus for us this weekend."

The two regional victories boosted South's overall record to 35-2-3.

Doubles team rules tourney

Jan Brady and Bruce Shull have a lock on first place at the Lochmoor Club's annual Compass Tennis Tournament.

Brady and Shull won their fifth straight championship in the Wimbledon Flight, defeating the team of Marilyn Schervish and Udo Koopman.

Marc Gelina, director of tennis at Lochmoor, said that this year's field was the strongest in his 12 years at the club. Eight matches were decided by tie-breakers.

Don Garver and Julia Caprara defeated Jim and Colleen Kordas in the championship match of the U.S. Open Flight; Ken and Joy Rem beat Jim D'Allesandro and Fran Tyler in the French Open Flight; Mickey Mikula and Bev Laurence won the final match against Pat Sweeney and Alice Ricci in the Australian Open Flight; Jim Smith and Elizabeth Bjork defeated Art Van-Elslander and Sherry Lucas in the Italian Open Flight final; and Dick Doerer and Betty Dunwoodie downed Barb Stickford and Steve Stepanek in the Masters Flight final.

Twenty-four teams participated in the 18th annual tournament.

the state meet. And next year, O'Connor's son Mike will be a freshman.

"The competition in practice really helps," the elder O'Connor said. "With three of them swimming the 500, it's seldom you have more than one who has a bad day."

The coach said that hard work is the secret to success for Collins and Williams.

"The 500 is one event where hard work is more important than raw talent and we probably work the kids as hard as anyone," O'Connor said. "They'll be even better as they get physically stronger."

South, which finished 11th in the team standings, had a seventh-place finish from senior Brenn Schoenherr in the 100 backstroke. Schoenherr was clocked in 53.32, about a second and a half better than his previous best.

"That would have placed him in the top six last season, but this year's backstroke field was exceptionally strong," Michalik said.

South also got an 11th place from the 200 medley relay team of Schoenherr, Prysak, John Peabody and Tim Har-mount with a 1:38.77.

"Their best had been a 1:42 and we were hoping they'd come in with a 1:39 or 1:40," Michalik said. "They did a real nice job."

North finished 19th in the team standings and O'Connor is encouraged about the future.

"I'm pleased with the progress we made this year and it's going to continue next season," he said.

Steve Williams, left, and Brett Collins of Grosse Pointe North finished fifth and sixth, respectively, in the 500-yard freestyle at the state Class A swimming meet last weekend. The following day Williams qualified for the United States Swimming Junior National meet in Gainesville, Fla., on March 27, when he was clocked in 16:07.73 in the 1,650 freestyle. Two of Williams' Pointe Aquatics teammates, Collins and Lidia Szabo, just missed the qualifying standard in the same event.

points for North this season, the most by any wrestler since Roberts has been coaching the team.

North's two other representatives in the finals, Dave Sandercott and Jeff Rizzo, and Grosse Pointe South's Jesse Culver didn't fare as well as Skuce, as each lost both their matches.

Sandercott was leading East Kentwood's Joe Warren 6-3 with 15 seconds left in the second period of their opening match at 103 pounds when Warren got an escape and a takedown to go ahead 7-6 and he rode out the third period. Sandercott then lost 9-7 to Temperance-Bedford's Jason Buchanan.

Rizzo wrestled well in his opening match at 119, but lost to Lansing Waverly's Heath Haner 6-4. He was eliminated by a third-period pin by South Lyon's Jeremy Brown.

Sandercott, who placed eighth in the state last year as a sophomore, finished 41-6 with 22 pins. Rizzo wound up 38-10 and had 13 falls.

South captures district crown

By Chuck Klönke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's basketball team is playing the best it has all season, but coach George Petrouleas hopes there's more good things to come.

"We're playing well, but I hope we haven't peaked," Petrouleas said after the Blue Devils won the Class A district championship at East Detroit with a thrilling 69-64 overtime victory against Detroit Finney.

"The kids are starting to believe in themselves and they're doing the little things that win basketball games. This was a tough one for either team to lose."

Few people gave South, which ended the regular season with a 4-16 record, much chance in the state tournaments, but the Blue Devils are among the last 32 surviving Class A teams. They played Macomb Area Conference White Division rival Ford II in a regional semifinal at East Detroit on Wednesday.

South opened tournament play with a come-from-behind 48-39 victory over Grosse Pointe North, but the emotional win didn't drain the Blue Devils for the game with Finney.

Aaron Letscher sank two free throws with seven seconds left in regulation to tie the score at 61-61 and South scored the first eight points of the overtime period to spoil the Highlanders' hopes for a district title.

"Aaron wasn't having a great offensive night, but he got some big free throws during crunch time," Petrouleas said.

Letscher, who had seven points, dropped in the first of two free throws with 15 seconds to go to tie the score at 59-59. James Knight followed with a pair of free throws to give Finney a two-point lead. Letscher drew a non-shooting foul and calmly dropped in both shots. The Highlanders committed a turnover with three seconds remaining, but Jim Dailey's desperation three-point attempt at the buzzer failed to hit the mark.

Lee Rupert and Paul Motley scored on South's first two possessions of the overtime and Dailey dropped in two free throws with a minute and a half left to put the Blue Devils ahead 67-61.

By that time five Finney players had fouled out and the Highlanders had lost most of their offensive power.

"You see that happen to Public School League teams quite a bit when they come out here for the tournaments," Petrouleas said. "The PSL officials let a lot of things go and when the games are called tighter they aren't able to adjust."

South shot 41 free throws to Finney's 21 and the Blue Devils outscored the Highlanders 28-11 from the line.

South held a six-point lead early in the second quarter but by halftime the Blue Devils trailed 32-31.

Rupert, who led all scorers with 21 points, scored on a layup with 11 seconds to go in the third quarter to give South a 45-43 lead. A six-point run by Finney gave the Highlanders a 54-48 lead with about four minutes left in the fourth quarter and Finney was still ahead 59-54 with 51 seconds remaining.

Baskets by Scott Lupo and Rupert after Finney missed the first free throw on two straight bonus situations brought South back to within a point when Letscher stepped to the line for the first of his four attempts in the last 15 seconds.

"We got some key stops down the stretch and we got a couple lucky breaks when they missed free throws," Petrouleas said.

South made a few adjustments at halftime to break Finney's full-court press and Petrouleas also changed the Blue Devils' defensive focus.

"We wanted to make them play more half-court offense," he said.

Dailey, who was battling the flu all week, finished with 16 points for South. Lupo had nine and Motley added eight. The Blue Devils had a balanced effort on the boards with Dailey, Lupo, Letscher and Motley each grabbing six rebounds.

Conya Robinson led Finney with 18 points, including 12 in the second half. Terrance Devoe had 14, Ramone Griffin 12 and Marion Lewis came off the bench to score 10.

For a while it looked like

Grosse Pointe North might beat South for the second time this season, but the Blue Devils held the Norsemen without a field goal for the last 4:12.

"We didn't do a good job of playing with the lead," said North coach Dave Stavale. "We were ahead by 10 points and less than three minutes later the lead was two. We didn't take care of the basketball and we shot too quickly and took bad shots. It's a shame to waste a defensive effort like we had."

Both teams seemed tight in the first half which ended with South holding a 15-14 lead. The Norsemen scored the first 11 points of the second half to go ahead 25-15 and it looked like they were in command, but the Blue Devils had different ideas.

"We had some seniors who stepped up and gave us the leadership we needed," Petrouleas said.

One of those was Lupo, who scored 15 of his 21 points in the second half and was a factor on defense and on the boards.

"Scotty was just great," Petrouleas said. "He was the difference."

South trailed 31-29 after three quarters and the lead changed twice in the fourth quarter before Rupert, who scored all seven of his points in the fourth quarter, drilled a jumper with 2:21 left to put South ahead to stay. Rupert scored on a layup with a minute and a half to go, was fouled and hit the free throw to give South a 40-35 advantage.

Jeff Young played a solid game for North with 17 points, 15 rebounds and four blocked shots. Matt Peters scored 12 points for the Norsemen, including seven in the fourth quarter, and was the object of several gimmick defenses that South employed.

"We tried to give him a lot of different looks," Petrouleas said. "We went after him and just hoped it worked because he's a talented player. Young hurt us on the offensive boards in the first half, but we did a better job on him in the second half."

Free-throw shooting was another pitfall for the Norsemen, who made only 10 of 22 attempts.

"It was a disappointing way to end the season," Stavale said. "It's the same thing that's happened in five or six other games this year. Some teams will turn a 10-point lead into a 14- or 18-point lead, but we haven't been able to do that."

North ended the season with an 8-13 overall record.

Bulldogs in Mite final

The Grosse Pointe Bulldogs will play the Wyandotte Warriors in the Little Caesars Mite championship game at Joe Louis Arena at 5 p.m. Monday.

The Bulldogs take a 5-0-1 playoff record into the title game. They reached the final with a 2-0 victory against the Garden City Stars.

North coach has hopes for future

By Chuck Klönke
Sports Editor

Two days after Grosse Pointe North's basketball season ended with a disappointing district tournament loss to cross-town rival Grosse Pointe South, two returning players made coach Dave Stavale's day.

"I was still feeling pretty low after that loss, but these two kids came up and asked me when the gym would be open for them to practice," said Stavale, who completed his first season at the helm of the Norsemen with an 8-13 record.

"We have to get the kids committed to basketball. That's something we haven't had in the past and it was reflected in our play this season. We've got the program on the right track. We're rebuilding now, but by my third season I don't want to rebuild. I just want to reload every year."

Stavale was encouraged by the success at the lower levels of the program. The junior varsity finished 11-9 despite losing some key players to the varsity and the freshman team had a 19-1 record.

The Norsemen finished their first season in the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division with a 7-7 record after splitting their last two league games.

North beat Clintondale 61-50 before losing the regular-season finale to Lakeview 84-82.

Matt Peters scored 17 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter against Clintondale.

"We struggled for three quarters and Clintondale was shooting well," Stavale said. "We couldn't get more than a two- or three-point lead until the end."

Jeff Young added 16 points and nine rebounds for the South frosh post 17 wins

Grosse Pointe South's freshman basketball team came after its opponents in waves this year.

"I was a little surprised at how deep we were," said coach Vito Tocco. "We could send 13 players out on the court without losing a lot and we went 10 or 11 deep in our regular rotation."

The Blue Devils finished with a 17-3 record, one of the best freshman marks in the school's history.

Tocco said that winning the first four games was a key to the team's success.

"That boosted their confidence," he said. "A lot of times ninth-graders don't know how good they are."

Among South's biggest victories were a 40-38 overtime win against Mount Clemens and a 32-point triumph over Lake Shore. The latter was especially satisfying because the Shorians handed South its first defeat of the season.

"That loss did as much to shape us as anything because we won our next 13," Tocco said. "It was something of a wakeup call. We didn't have a bad day of practice the rest of the season."

South's other two defeats came against L'Anse Creuse and L'Anse Creuse North. In each game the Blue Devils were without starting 6-foot-5 center Matt Armstrong, who was ill.

Armstrong led South's freshmen in scoring with a 10.5 average, was the leading rebounder with 7.8 per-game and had 59 blocks.

"His offense really picked up in the last seven or eight games when he averaged about 15 points," Tocco said. "He was also a dominant force on defense with his shot-blocking."

Point guard Pat Worrell and shooting guard Matt Agnone were also among the Blue Devils' leaders. Worrell led in assists, while Agnone was second in scoring and assists and fourth in rebounding.

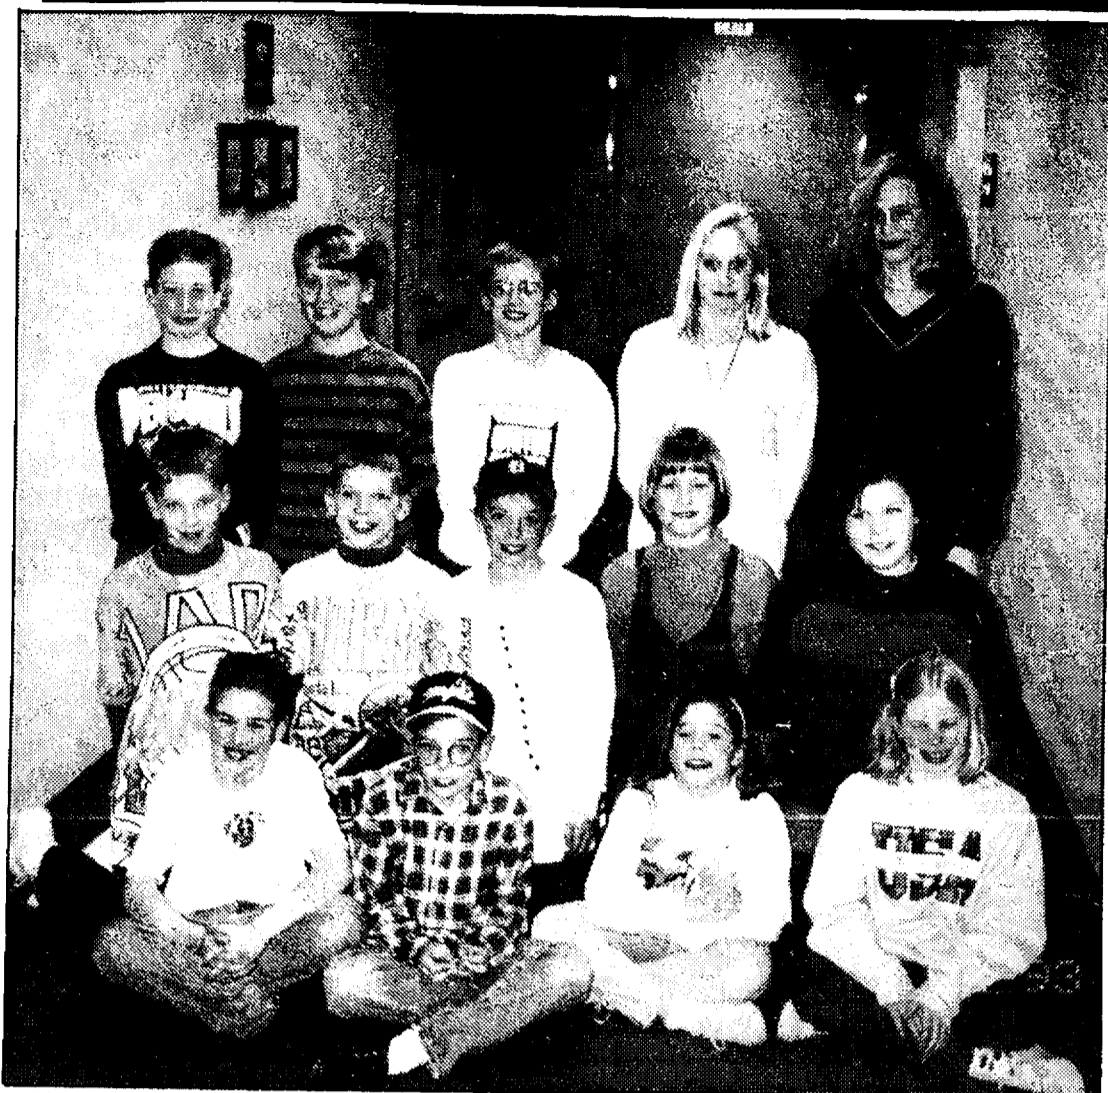

"Worrell has great passing skills," Tocco said. "He can hit the open man with a pass three-quarters of the length of the court."

Charlie Wascher, who played power forward and was used occasionally at center, was second in rebounding and third in scoring.

Atrasz leads local swimmers

Rachelle Atrasz placed fourth overall and won the 100-yard butterfly for the best showing

Cummings in top 10 at state meet

Grosse Pointe South freshman Marla Cummings finished ninth in overall performance at the state Class A gymnastics meet in Trenton.

Cummings' overall score was 36.10 points. She also qualified for the finals in floor exercise and parallel bars and finished fifth and eighth, respectively, in those events.

Palatial beyond compare

By W.D. Farmer

The first dazzling impression of this sumptuous home is the magnificent two-story foyer with its palatial curved stair soaring into an open balcony above. A tray ceiling tops it all.

The first floor contains a guest bed room, office, large laundry and kitchen, banquet dining room, two full baths, a sun room with vaulted ceiling, a sun deck and an office. Each room has all the amenities and the second floor is handy from the large family room as well as the foyer. Notice the unique wet bar at the corner of the family room.

The second floor is embellished with three large bedrooms, three full baths and a sitting area in the master bedroom suite. All bedrooms are shown with walk-in closets and the master bath is luxurious. The great room soars two stories high and is in full view from an open rail balcony.

The basement stair leads to the further extension of this home plan and the basement includes an additional office, exercise room, a pet room and lots of storage space.

The European exterior is complete with hip and gable roof style, dormers over the garage, elaborate window treatment, corner quoins and stucco finish.

The plan is No. 5001. It includes 5,003 square feet of livable space on the first and second floor, with the upper activity room, upper foyer and finished basement adding 376 square feet, 244 square feet and 1,232 square feet, respectively.

All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency. For further information write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, Ga. 30345.
