State schools superintendent visits Defer Elementary with a message

By Shirtey A. McShane Staff Writer Robert Schiller sat in a highbacked easy chair at the front of the Defer Elementary School gym and talked to the class of 2000 about the future.

Schiller, the superintendent of public instruction for the Michigan Department of Education, visited Defer last week as part of his duties overseeing Michigan's 3,700 public schools. Surrounded by a group of attentive fifth-graders seated on the hardwood gym floor, Schiller stressed the impor-tance of education and leader-

"Learning does not stop after you get a (college) degree,' Schiller told the children. "Our world is changing so fast, I have to make sure my knowledge level is as high as possible. I have to serve as a role model. If I want you to go to school and teachers and administrators to further their education, I have to set an example." Some fifth-graders exchanged looks of surprise when Schiller told them of his extensive educational training and how he wants to go back to school to learn more.

"I don't know what it will be like in the year 2000 or 2010," he said. "But I'll tell you, if we stop going to school or stop learning, we (as a nation) won't be strong and competitive."

Schiller's talk with the fifthgraders was part of the day's activities on May 7.

He was invited to tour the school by principal Sheila Turney. He read aloud to first- and second-graders, visited classrooms and talked with teachers, and addressed third- and fourth-graders.

Based in Lansing, Schiller works with the state board of education, legislators and the governor.

"I could spend all my time with politicians," he said. "But the best part of my job is getting out and visiting the schools. I need to know what is going on in the schools."

Schiller told the students he learned more about their school by visiting it in person than by reading about it in a report. He said he had a chance to see the all-day kindergarten program and learned that there needs to be more opportunities for the program.

"We see what we need to do better when we see what's going on, talk with the students, parents, teachers and administrators," he said.

During his talk with the fifth-graders, Schiller explained the scope of his duties.

The students learned there are 1,700,000 students enrolled in Michigan's 3,700 public

Star of Sea parents seek injunction against shutdown of high school

By Shirley A. McShane Staff Writer

A group of parents and students at Our Lady Star of the Sea High School has filed a lawsuit in Wayne County Circuit Court to prevent the all-girls' school from closing on June 30.

Papers were submitted May 4 asking the court to grant a preliminary injunction against the Archdiocese of Detroit to prevent it from closing the . Catholic school in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Plaintiffs in the lawsuit were not named and were not available by press time. But Donn Fresard, a St. Clair Shores attorney hired by the parents, said he will ask the court to certify the matter as a class-action lawsuit representing all parents and students who want the school to remain open.

A hearing is scheduled for Friday, May 21, before Circuit Judge Cynthia D. Stephens.

In the motion for a preliminary injunction filed by Fresard, the plaintiffs contend that they were promised by the Archdiocese that Star of the Sea would remain open until the year 2000.

The lawsuit said the parents relied upon the representations of the Archdiocese in enrolling their children at Star rather than selecting another parochial school and want the Archdiocese to fulfill its conthe presently enrolled students to graduate.

"A lot of the girls and their parents were considering Star as an option along with other all-girls' schools like Regina and Dominican," Fresard said. "They were promised by different people within the school that they could complete their education here. The bottom line is the plaintiffs elected to go to Star and want the Archdiocese to live up to their end of the deal."

In addition, the lawsuit said when Star of the Sea's parish council and the Archdiocese were considering the future of the high school, "local Grosse Pointe residents and parish members began to fuel ugly rumors that the regional school would become some sort of magnet school, devoted almost entirely to busing in inner city students."

During negotiations, both parties had considered changing Star from a parish school to a regional school, to be governed by a board of directors.

The rumors were accompanied by racial slurs and threats of declining property values, the suit said.

"As far as the racial matter is concerned, there are a number of students who attended Star who did not live in Grosse Pointe," Fresard said. "They said they were approached by parishioners and told that they don't belong (in Grosse Pointe)."

Ned McGrath, spokesman for the Archdiocese, said the Archdiocese is aware of the lawsuit, but had not received a copy of it by press time.

"The merits, or lack thereof, of the lawsuit can and will be argued by our attorneys," Mc-Grath said. "I am not going to argue every point of the lawsuit in the media."

McGrath did say that litigation, at this point, is a distraction and misguided.

"We are firm in our belief that the faculty and students of Star need to be supported at this time," he said. "We need to channel our attention and energies in that direction. (A lawsuit) could stifle dialogue and reconciliation that could and should go on between now and June 30.'

At an April 5 meeting, the parish council adopted a resolution to close Star as a parish school and make space available for the new regional high school for a period not to exceed two years.

On April 15, Maida informed the parish that the offer of a two-year lease was too short to expect the regional school to stabilize itself. Therefore, the school would not continue to operate next year.

"This was not a decision reached quickly, easily or uni-laterally," McGrath said. "We recognize this was a difficult decision on the parish council's part and it is difficult for the students and faculty to accept. We recognize that and now it is time to move forward.'

Star students vent their anger

By Amy Garron Special Writer

Students are angry and upset over what they feel is the late decision to close Star of the Sea High School.

'Your concerns are all screwed up because you're wondering 'Where will I go to school next year' and 'Will I fit and 'Will I fit in,' and you just lose a lot. Your priorities completely change," said Tracey Johnson, a Star junior.

"I think it's unfair. I think the archbishop made the decision rather hastily. From what I've heard, this whole big deal wasn't a big deal to him. He thought we were just another school. He didn't realize what he'd be stirring up," said Jennifer Fasulo, a sophomore.

Arrangements have been made with other schools in the area so the class of 1994 will be able to receive diplomas from

Sister Jane Herb, Star's principal, believes the archdiocese needs to look at the circumstances and situation surrounding the closing of Star.

I know a lot of schools are looking at us. If somebody else learns from this process, then it was worth it," she said. "All our schools are not going to stay open and strong like they are now, so there will need to be some decisions made. It's unfortunate for us, but if someone else learns, I think it's valuable.

Many students feel betrayed by the Catholic Church and the archdiocese, because they feel Catholic schools lay the foundation of values needed in later

Through the whole ordeal, the students have managed to remain positive and focus on the satisfaction their years at Star have brought them.

"On one hand, I wish I would have made the decision to go somewhere else to start with so that I wouldn't have to be going through this. But when I think about it, I'm so happy that I even had two years. It's not really all I wanted, but I'm happy and lucky because some other people are not going to even get a chance to have what I had," said Alessia Costantini,

Preparation helps land business loan

A common mistake made by small business owners when applying for a business loan is they approach their request as they would for a credit card they fill out an application and then wait to see if it's approved.

Local bankers suggest that before asking for a business loan, you compile information to explain to the lender who you are and the nature of your business.

"Small business owners should walk their banker through the decision-making process that led them to conclude that it was in their firm's best interest to expand or purchase that large piece of equipment," said Elaine A. Mc-Mahon, senior vice president, commercial banking, at Comerica Bank. McMahon suggests that the information assembled contain the following important pieces:

Business description:

First-time borrowers should provide a description of their business, commonly called a Business Plan. These plans typically include a description of the product or service offered; a discussion of the key management team and their background; an overview of the market and competition; and an outlook for the industry and

Financial information:

Financial statements provide a perspective on a company's past performance and its potential for future success and also should be included. These statements should include a balance sheet, income statement and any footnotes necessary to provide a clear understanding of the company's financial condi-

Two or three previous yearend financial statements should be provided along with the company's most recent interim statement. Forecasts of how the company will be affected financially by this expansion also are critically important.

Financial statements should be prepared by someone knowledgeable of Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP), such as a certified public accountant or a business consultant. McMahon stresses that: business owners should be sure they understand what these statements represent and use them actively in managing their businesses.

Personal financial statement:

McMahon notes that bankers want to understand the financial condition of the owner, as well as the company, because the finances of a small business owner and his or her company are so closely intertwined. To accomplish this, she suggests including a personal financial statement, consisting of a balance sheet detail of assets (property values, stock descriptions, etc.), liabilities and a breakdown of total personal in-

Girl's day on the job reveals a broad range of challenging career opportunities

There once was a 12-year-old girl who dreamed of becoming a lawyer. But when she told an adult - a man she trusted and respected - of her aspiration, she was advised that girls can't be lawyers.

The little girl grew up believing what the man told her and pursued other interests. Many years later, she decided to become a lawyer anyway, despite the advice she had been given as a child.

Beverly Hall Burns, senior partner at the downtown Detroit law firm Miller Canfield Paddock and Stone, shared her story with a captive audience of 40 girls, ages 5 to 18, during "Take Our Daughters to Work Day" April 28.

in becoming a lawyer, I was told that it was not a profession for a girl to aspire to," said Burns, a Grosse Pointe Farms resident and organizer of the "Daughter Day" program at her firm.

"We wanted to put out the opposite message at our firm, she said.

The mother of two sons, ages 9 and 13, Burns does not have a daughter of her own to take to work, but she did encourage co-workers to bring in their daughters, nieces and friends' daughters.

Burns was inspired after reading a New York Times article about the Ms. Foundation's idea of parents taking their daughters to work.

"The purpose of the day was to help foster positive roles for field was discovering there is young women and to build selfesteem," she said.

Kristen Abel, a 12-year-old her interests.

In fact, two of her neighbors who work at The Detroit News learned of her interest in journalism and encouraged her to spend a day on the job.

"I have always wanted to go there," Abel said. "The whole day was great; I want to go back."

While Abel was learning how reporters, editors, photographers and a production staff put together a newspaper, a group of girls at Miller Canmuch more to a law office than attorneys.

Burns said the day's itinerseventh-grader at Pierce Middle ary included an orientation and School, is interested in becom- tour of the office, observing ating a journalist. No one has torneys, clerks, legal assistants, told her she shouldn't pursue paralegals and secretaries at work.

In the afternoon, the girls were taken to Federal Judge Gerald Rosen's courtroom where they were allowed to conduct a mini-trial.

'The human resources director at the firm came up with a wonderful idea of showing the girls that a day on the job is worthy of compensation,' Burns said. "So each of the girls was cut a check for $5."

Meanwhile, at the News, Abel watched reporters gather information by making telephone calls and going out on the street. After being shown how to use the computer, Abel said she was allowed to write a news story. At the end of the day, she was given a dummied copy of her article as it would appear if printed in the news-

"I thought it was cool," Abel said. "I think (this day) was a good idea, especially if a young woman wants to go into something that she isn't going to learn about in school. This way she can find out firsthand instead of reading about it in a book. I got to see what it's like.'

Dennis Loy, a Farms resident, brought his 10-year-old daughter Maureen along to work at Miller Canfield.

"I think this is a good idea that ought to be an annual affair," said Loy, who is a senior partner in the business law department. "It ought to be extended to the sons as well When I was growing up, didn't know what my dad did on a daily basis; kids don't get an appreciation as to what work life is all about."

Abel also thinks boys should be included.

"Most boys don't know what they want to be either," she said. "They also need to see career opportunities."

While the purpose of the day was to bolster the girls' self-esteem and encourage them to pursue what they want, Burns and Loy said the day also boosted the company's morale.

"There was a lot of positive fallout," Burns said. "When we sat down and told the girls what we do, it made us all realize our value."

Loy said having the children around the office livened the place and perked everyone up.

The hospital's human resources department put on quite a show during national "Take Our Daughters to Work Day" on April 28. May 13, 1993 Grosse Pointe News Eastside Republicans hear both sides of ballot Proposal A By Chip Chapman Staff Writer More than 60 people packed the main room of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Wednesday, May 5, to listen to the pros and cons of Proposal A, which calls for a 20 percent property tax cut and a 2-cent increase in the state sales tax.

State Rep. William Bryant, R-Grosse Pointe Farms, assistant Wayne County executive Michael Duggan, and Comerica economist David Sowerby spoke to the members of the Eastside Republican Club, each providing his insight into how this proposal will affect Grosse Pointe property owners and the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

supports the proposal, was asked by Gov. John Engler's office to address the Eastside Republicans. Duggan explained how the proposal will benefit Michigan property owners, who pay taxes about 30 percent higher than the national aver-

"The schools systems should not rely so heavily on property taxes," Duggan said.

Bryant, a staunch opponent of the ballot proposal, feels that it is not in the best interest of a school system such as Grosse

"It tries to hurt the districts that are doing fine out of some egalitarian spirit," he said. "I am convinced this is cost containment, not help for the kids."

Sowerby believes that competition is the answer to the state's property tax problems. And he feels that money doesn't necessarily translate to competitiveness.

"I want property taxes decreased," he said. "I'm just disappointed that the increased sales tax is the trade off."

ine final language appearing on the June 2 ballot states that, if passed, Proposal A would:

· Limit for each property parcel (excluding new construction) annual assessment increase to 5 percent or the inflation rate, whichever is less. When property is sold or transferred, adjust assessment to current market value.

- Reduce maximum school operating taxes to 18 non-voted mills. Permit districts to levy up to 9 additional voted mills.
- Reduce 50-mill maximum property tax limit to 40 mills.
- Increase state sales and use tax rates to 6 percent. Dedicate this additional revenue and lottery proceeds to schools.
- Establish minimum state/ local per-pupil funding guarantee, annually adjusted for revenue changes. Provide a minimum 3 percent per-pupil funding increase in 1993-94.

For the Grosse Pointe public schools, the passage of Proposal A would mean a reduction from Gross Pointe Building Co.

32.3 operating mills this fiscal year to 27 operating mills in fiscal year '94. Spending per pupil, however, would increase from $8,356 to $8,607.

The average owner of a $150,000 home would see a decrease in school property taxes of about $400 if Proposal A pas.

Proposal A is supposed to guarantee that each school district in the state will receive at least $4,800 per pupil.

Bryant, who has published a list of reasons not to vote for Proposal A, said that the state forcing a district like Grosse Pointe to be limited to 27 mills, with no state help, doesn't take retirement and FICA increases into account that would be paid for by the local districts.

Of interest to many members of the audience at the May 5 meeting was the possibility that Social Security taxes will be used to pay for the proposed national health care system. If this is true, as Bryant said it was, the state would be unable to help pay for the increases in FICA (the Federal Insurance Contribution Act) because the constitutional amendment created by Proposal A would prohibit it.

Audience members, many of whom said they have always supported Gov. Engler, seemed somewhat surprised that he would put such a proposal on the ballot.

While not denying the need for school finance reform, Bryant said that of the alternatives for paying for it, a sales tax increase would be determined by the voters. If an income tax increase was proposed to cover school finance reform, the governor would have to sign it. And many feel that contributed to former Gov. James Blanchard's defeat in the 1990

Schools face several 'unknowns' in preparing next year's budget

By Shirley A. McShane Staff Writer

The time is drawing near for the Grosse Pointe Public School System to complete its budget for the 1993-94 school year.

And as in previous years, the school district is facing several 'unknowns" as the June 30 deadline approaches.

The district is currently looking at three budget scenarios, said Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent for business affairs. Whether state ballot Proposal A passes or fails on June 2 constitute two of the three scenarios, he said. The third, and the least likely to occur, is that nothing dramatic will happen, he said.

The projected budget for 1993-94 is about $67 million, with $63.3 million for the general fund and school service fund; $2.9 million for the library fund; $1 million for the debt fund and $700,000 in the building and site fund.

This year's projected budget will increase an estimated 3 percent over last year's, which ent increase over the last form cent increase over the last few years.

The district will present as budget to the board of education next month, following a public hearing. On Monday, the board finished its hearings on the central budget and all the district's building site budget presentations have been delivered to the board.

"We are faced with three scenarios," Fenton said. "If the June 2 ballot proposal passes, we'll be OK the first year, but in the second year, there'll probably be cuts. So we'd probably have to make cuts in the first year to prepare for that."

The district probably will not have a good feel for what and where cuts will be made until mid-to-late summer, Fenton said. Because the district uses the site- based budgeting method, the system is already in place for each school to come back to the board with its own

Rather than making cuts the way 95 percent of school districts do - central office deciding what will be cut - the individual schools have the opportunity to look at their own programs and decide what to eliminate, Fenton said.

"Some view talk of cuts as a scare tactic," he noted. "But generally speaking, the first to be cut are the support staff, the part-time employees. Capital improvements and major repairs are postponed.'

If Proposal A does not pass, the district is still facing "unknowns" with regard to the state aid formula, Fenton said, and predicted that the district will again have to pay more toward Social Security and retirement costs, which ate several million of last year's budget.

Fenton said it is difficult at this point to be too specific about the overall budget and predicted the board will not act until after the June 2 election.

"Once we have that narrowed down, we'll figure out what's next," he said.

"There are still a couple of unknowns. We could go ahead with these numbers for next year, but we'll probably have to make cuts. Plus, we don't have the teachers' salaries settled."

Another major issue facing the district is the teachers' contract, which expires Aug. 31, in addition to a wage settlement for the administrators, secretaries and custodians which needs to be renegotiated.

Other concerns are what passage of Proposal A will do to the public library system. Grosse Pointe schools currently levy 32.3165 in operating mills - 31.0165 for the general fund and 1.3 for the library fund. Should the proposal pass, the district will have to roll back its millage rate to 27 mills, thus affecting both the schools and the libraries. Most library systems are under municipal control and would not be affected by the proposal.

Another unknown is the future of the district's administrative offices at 389 St. Clair, Fenton said. If the board approves the sale of the building and the administrattion's move to available space at both high schools and Barnes school, the district will have additional costs for moving, modifications to rooms and for electrical wir-

Large-scale projects the district would like to take on next year include replacing the windows at Monteith school, constructing a new front entrance at Kerby school, resurfacing the front parking lot at North high and replacing some of the seating at the performing arts

'I lived for a year in Nagoya, Japan. I came home and decided to marry Russell Yamazaki."

When he went to the University of Virginia to become an assistant professor in pharmacology, she went with him and found a job as a computer programmer.

"I signed up for a course in Japanese history and language, just for fun," Yamazaki said. Her love for Japan and all things Japanese burned even brighter.

"I ended up with a master's degree in Japanese history from the University of Virginia," she said.

When the couple moved to the Detroit area 15 years ago, Jane Yamazaki looked for jobs teaching Japanese history and language.

There were none.

"The environment was not right. I gave up. I worked for Digital Equipment, designing computer software and doing consulting. I chose an early retirement option a few years ago when the company downsized," she said.

The Yamazakis lived in Japan again several years ago, when Russell was doing some

According to the city managers of Grosse Pointe Woods, City and Park, neither the public nor the city councils have requested that city meetings be taped and broadcast.

For Farms resident Elizabeth Ollison, getting answers about public access proved to be difficult. She wanted the cable company to broadcast a partisan Republican satellite signal sent from Nashville, Tenn.

I called the War Memorial on the mornings of April 27 and 28," said Ollison. "I was told to call the cable company. They told me to call another Grosse Pointe Cable number. I was told to call back. Eventually I was told to contact Grosse Pointe South.

"Finding out who was responsible was a chore. They also told me that I was the only one who requested this program, and that it wasn't produced in Grosse Pointe. The lesson I learned is that if you want something on public ac-

South was able to pick up the satellite signal, said Ollision. She and her friends watched the program there.

"We don't have a satellite dish that is able to pick up the Nashville signal," said Schultz. "That's why I recommended she call South. I also did not know if we could pick up the signal until I consulted with our technical expert. He was in the field the day I talked with Ollison. That is why it took so long to get an answer to her. eager to conform to the society they're in," Yamazaki said, "so it's not unusual to find an American businessman bowing to his Japanese counterpart as the Japanese businessman holds out his hand for a handshake."

Orientation Associates provides support and training to people of both countries. It provides cross-cultural awareness, sensitivity and training for people who are going to travel, socialize or conduct business with each other. Yamazaki uses adult learning techniques instead of the old lecture-andtake-notes approach.

"I use experiential learning, role playing and practice," she Yamazaki said that Detroit doesn't have a good reputation in Japan. "People who are transferred to Detroit are frequently terrified. Also, in Japan, the wife usually takes care of the family's physical needs, including finances. The husband works long hours. Often the wife doesn't even know how to drive a car.

to put it in a positive light." Japanese people who have relocated to Detroit get help with language, an introduction to the Detroit area, tips on safety and security issues, help with transportation, shopping and assistance figuring out American ways of doing things.

Yamazaki said she provides ways for Japanese people new to Detroit to interact and associate with Detroiters. "If they don't, Detroit's negative image gets reinforced."

Last weekend, for instance,

Yamazaki took a group of Japanese businessmen, their wives and children to a Tiger baseball game and to visit one of Grosse Pointe's lakefront parks.

Orientation Associates prepares Americans for traveling or living in Japan by providing information about Japanese business practices, work styles, etiquette and language as well as developing cultural sensitivity to the Japanese way of doing things. For instance, Yamazaki said, "Business cards are more important in Japan than they are in America. In America, businessmen meet; shake hands. Each begins to evaluate the other person according to how he or she is dressed, how friendly he is, whether she looks you directly in the eye, whether the two of you have any common background. "In Japan, the first thing businessmen do is exchange business cards. Friendliness and niceness are not as important as 'who do you work for?" Yamazaki recommends that Americans who deal frequently with Japanese businesses have business cards printed in Japa-

After-hours socializing is extremely important in Japan, Yamazaki said. Businessmen build relationships by drinking together after work, by socializing and participating in Karoake singing.

"Americans should be prepared to sing," she said.

Any American who wants to do business in Japan should also take time to learn to use chopsticks, to pronounce Japanese names correctly and to eat

Japanese food without questioning the origin of every item, she said.

"You can learn to use chopsticks in about an hour. You can learn to eat Japanese food without looking like a country bumpkin (asking what it is or where it came from or if it's raw or cooked.) It's not only courteous, but also fairly easy, she said, "to learn the correct pronunciation of Japanese names.'

Jane and Russell Yamazaki recently moved to a Grosse Pointe Park home inspired by the work of Frank Lloyd Wright. Russell Yamazaki is a professor of pharmacology at Wayne State University. "Most surprising," said Jane Yamazaki, "he doesn't even speak Japanese. I worked as a translator for a while.

"The house has an Oriental flavor. There's lots of access to the outdoors through sliding doors - and an emphasis on closeness to nature. The house has a low, modern, stark plainness. Wood floors. A spare style."

The Yamazakis collect Japanese furniture, screens, art and modern Japanese prints.

Yamazaki recently taught a six-session 12-hour class for Grosse Pointe Community Education, "An Introduction to Japan and the Japanese," in which she offered an overview of the language, geography, history, institutions, stereotypes and what she calls "the internal landscape of the Japanese mind."

"Becoming more internationally aware and more globally competent is important for our economic well-being," Yamazaki said. "And it's teachable."

This is a case, she said, where even a little knowledge is helpful.

"Japanese people appreciate our attempts at understanding their culture and they're very forgiving when we make mistakes." she said.

Many people who retire from work do not retire from interests that have provided them with pleasures and the opportunity to keep in touch with the world.

Some continue with hobbies that they have developed during their working lives. Others may have campaigns and causes that they deeply care about and find satisfaction in pursuing.

Those who devote time to bringing about social change are more apt to run into controversy than those who spend their time fishing, playing golf, traveling or some other interest. But leisure pursuits can also lead to controversy.

For instance, a few years back a growing number of retirees in Arkansas chose to dig for diamonds as a hobby.

In Marfreesboro, Ark., the state had plowed a 30-acre field for amateur diggers in a park called the Crater of Diamonds where a number of stones had been found.

One prospector spent eight to 10 hours each day. "You know how people get hooked on drugs?" he said. "This thing has got me hooked."

Another, who pounded at the clay with a spare-tire tool near a spot where a 16-carat diamond was found in 1975, said, "I don't think people find that many diamonds here. It's just for fun.'

Still, another 84-year-old claimed he found a 6.07-carat diamond in 1981. He sold it for $15,000. Too old to dig, he walked the field daily poking at clods of dirt with a cane.

A young girl commented, "It's a place where grownups can be little kids again and play in the dirt."

It was not all fun. "Sixty

Minutes" did a segment that showed how much time and effort it took trying to dig and pan, hoping to retrieve treasures from the earth.

Pails of dirt were dug from deep holes, then carried with hand-made yokes to a pan of water. The clay and soil were washed out and the stones sorted. Occasionally two or three diamonds averaging about a quarter carat each were found.

The diamonds were sold to tourists for $200 to $1,000 a carat, depending on the size and color of the stones - not much money for years of backbreaking work.

But the prospectors didn't come to the park for money. They looked forward to their day in the park despite the hard work. Then this pleasurable and harmless activity stirred controversy.

Mining companies maintained that the park wasn't living up to its economic potential and that the state didn't reap any tax dollars from its meager diamond discoveries. A commercial mine, they contended, would not only provide tax revenue but would attract tourists.

Some of the local residents thought otherwise. They argued that a commercial mine would be played out in a few years and the tourists who came Progress continued on this issue, which was leisure vs. economics.

Just as controversial is one that involves environmental issues vs. economics. It is one in which many grandparents are interested. They worry about the kind of world they will about pollution-endangered species and land preservation.

For instance, in Oregon theres was considerable controversy over old growth forests and the spotted owl. Little by little the owl's habitat had been dimin-f ished to the point where the! Fish and Wildlife Service for-1 mally proposed that the owl bedesignated a threatened spe-

State seeks outstanding seniors

The Michigan Office of Services to the Aging (OSA), in conjunction with the Michigan State Fair, is searching for two senior citizens, one who is outstanding in the area of service and one who models leadership, to be nominated for selection as 1993 Senior Citizens of the "Strong personal commitment to serving others, as demonstrated by the actions of the nominee, is all that is needed to be considered for this award," said OSA interim director Carol Parr.

"Helping others is one of life's most enriching experiences," Parr said.

We know that there are thousands of older Michiganians out there who help run senior programs, provide consultation and leadership through committees and policy boards, and deliver services. They are all eligible for the special recognition this award brings.

The two older adults selected for this award will be honored at a ceremony at the Michigan State Fair on Aug. 30, Senior Citizens Day.

To be nominated you must be age 60 or older as of July 23, 1993; may not be nominated for providing service in a paid position, may not be a member of the State Commission or Advisory Council on Aging, nor be an employee of the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging or the Michigan State Fair.

Nominations will be accepted from organizations only and must be signed by the presiding officer of the organization and made on applications provided by OSA. Applications (OSA Report 292) can be obtained by contacting OSA at (517) 373-8230.

Reuther Center offers program to prevent elder abuse

Elder abuse is a tragic reality of our times, but the efforts of The Reuther Center may provide a glimmer of hope in prevention for some potential victims.

The Reuther Center is a social service agency which cares for and about the community's needy elderly and is a member of the United Foundation family of agencies.

Toll-free senior help line available

May is Older Americans Month - a time to recognize senior citizens' skills and talents and their many contributions to society.

This year, the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, in cooperation with the state's 14 Area Agencies on Aging, is using this commemorative period to make seniors and their families aware of available services.

Thousands of families across Michigan have aging family members who need information or help. Often there is confusion about where to turn for answers.

While declaring Older Americans Month in Michigan, Gov. John Engler noted a new service which can assist families anywhere in the country.

The Eldercare Locator is a toll-free hotline that provides

The typical victim of elder abuse is often over 75 years old. He or she is often frail with one or more medical problems. The victim's money or other possessions may be taken; food, medication and other personal hygiene items withheld. He or she may be locked in a room, denied visitors, forbidden phone calls and may be subjected to a continuing barrage of threats.

information about appropriate community resources available to seniors anywhere in the United States. The toll-free number, 1-800-677-1116, is available weekdays from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. (EST).

The caller must know the name and address of the older person needing help, and be able to give a brief description; of the problem or type of assistance needed.

Most of the service agencies accessible through the toll-free number are public or non-profit organizations that receive funding under the Federal Older Americans Act. If you know of a senior who needs services, or a family trying to get help for an elderly relative, please have them call 1-800-677-1116. It could be a life-saver.

Worst of all, there might be physical abuse. Tragically, the perpetrator of this crime is usually a family member. While most of us expect to be part of a loving and nurturing family structure in our old age, some aren't so fortunate.

The Reuther Center is a catalyst in preventing elder abuse, acting as an integral component in supporting isolated or vulnerable elderly people. Via the center's relationship with hundreds of elders and their families and neighbors, staff and volunteers ensure, first of all, that elderly people are not alone.

The Reuther Center educates and nurtures relationships with the center and with other family and community support systems. It provides preventionoriented lifestyle.

When necessary, the well-established relationships with the police, victim assistance programs, adult protective services and the legal and medical community can ensure a reactive system of high quality to provide access to these systems.

Because elderly people are so frequently unable to protect themselves, these measures take on special significance. The center has discovered far too many isolated and fearful old people in our community. Unfortunately, the numbers imply that there are many others who are not readily visi-

It is the goal of the Reuther Center to locate elders who are afraid - to reach out to them and include them in a supportive system which not only increases their security but also acknowledges their value.

Can foes beat Proposal A on June 2?

with Detroit's two dailies and leaders of both political parties supporting Proposal A, is there much chance it can be beaten on June 2?

Nobody knows, of course, but chances seem to be improving that it could be beaten even though pollsters and Proposal A's major sponsor, Gov. John Engler, still see it as a close contest, and former Gov. William Milliken has just endorsed it.

A new Detroit News statewide poll of public opinion gives the issue only about an even chance with 38 percent favoring it and 38.8 percent opposed.

The division found opposition expressed by voters in the tri-county Detroit Metro area by a margin of 28.9 percent to 46.8 percent and the even stronger opposition of all renters expressed by a margin of 29.9 percent to 53.7 percent.

Outstate voters offset this opposition by a 45.6 percent to 31.9 percent margin of support while homeowners endorsed it by 40.4 percent to 36 percent.

The reason for the homeowners strong backing is illustrated by the property tax cut that would occur in the Pointes if the referendum is approved. Owners of a $150,000 house here would benefit from a tax cut of an estimated $400.

These latter expressions of support give Proposal A sponsors hope of victory despite the defeat of several similar taxshift proposals in statewide referenda in recent years.

Like other out-of-formula districts, the Grosse Pointe school district has expressed its opposition, seeing the proposal as limiting local control of the schools and the means of financing them.

In supporting the resolution of opposition drafted by superintendent Ed Shine, board president Gloria Konsler pointed out the state plan would limit the local district's levy to 27 mills, as contrasted with its current 32.3165 mills, and that the district would be unable to ask the voters for more millage for operating revenue even if needed.

While debt service is not included in the limitation, she added, the Pointe district probably would be required to seek voter approval of bond issues for capital improvements and other necessities when needed.

While all districts are guaranteed at least a 3 percent increase in revenue in 1993-94 as compared with this year, the guarantee does not necessarily continue into the future.

Statewide, the proposal recently has won the backing of the Michigan Education Association and the Michigan Teachers Federation, but only after the two big teachers' unions sought and won approval of another $200 million in state aid for schools in the coming year.

In addition, the Michigan and Detroit Area Chambers of Commerce have endorsed the measure and joined the fight for its approval in the June 2 referendum, because of the benefits they see from lower property taxes and a more equitable system of school finance.

Offsetting such support, however, was the opposition expressed by districts such as the Pointes and by Dick Headlee, one-time GOP nominee for governor and author of tax-limitation amendments. He strongly opposed Proposal A even though it is sponsored by his friend, Engler.

Appearing on the "Off the Record" public television show featuring state capitol news correspondents in Lansing, Headlee said Proposal A was "a boondoggle" and "a turkey" and would benefit wealthy land owners but not most senior citizens.

The Grosse Pointe News up to this time has seen no reason to revise its view that Proposal A is not a good deal for the Grosse Pointe school system, although it will benefit some local property owners and some school districts elsewhere in the rosse Pointe Shores is staging one of its typical municipal election campaigns with friendly competition, no major issues and a lone challenger seeking a seat on the village council on Tuesday, May 12, against three experienced incumbent trustees.

In separate interviews with the Grosse Pointe News, all four candidates proved to be able cheerleaders for the Shores. All said they seek the betterment of their community and its quality of life and even the challenger found no fault with the administration or municipal services.

As the smallest but wealthiest of the Pointe municipalities, the Shores is unlike its sister Pointes in still being a village, in lacking a business district and in not having any public school buildings, although Vernier School is still maintained as a historic memento.

Four-term Trustee John Huetteman III, council president pro-tem and one of the trio seeking re-election, contends that "the quality of life in this community is seldom equalled and seldom surpassed."

He knows the community as a life-long resident whose father, like himself, also served on the planning commission and the village council, as well as council president.

Challenger Virginia Barrett does not disagree. Her view is that the Shores is the "finest and safest place to live in," the community has "the best" police and fire departments and the municipal staff "is hard to beat for efficiency."

She did protest the 1993 increased assessment of her residential property but since she won a reduction on appeal, she says says she can't complain. In fact, she finds little to criticize.

Active in Detroit area civic, cultural and medical auxiliary organizations for years, Barrett was named "woman of the year" by the Democratic State Central Committee in 1992.

Asked about being a Democrat in a Republican community, Barrett said that as a councilmember she would "think independently, do what's right," and be "fair and honest." She added that it was a tradition in her Democratic family to attend GOP meetings, too.

She regards her earlier experience as "preparation for now" and hopes to be "graduating to do something for myself that I would love to do — serve the people."

She declined to take a position on possible senior housing and several other matters but said if elected, she would commit herself after study.

Huetteman and his two council colleagues who seek re-election, Rose Garland Thornton and N. William O'Keefe, acknowledge that the Shores faces some problems ahead but believe that the village has done an excellent job in anticipating how to meet them.

They point to upgrading of its emergency medical service; advance planning to improve the village infrastructure, including completion of the sewer replacement along Vernier Road, without a bond issue; and keeping taxes at a minimum while maintaining quality municipal services.

However, they also see the need to make improvements in the 30-year-old pool and bathhouse in the municipal park; reach a decision on what to do about the Vernier School, perhaps by a vote of the people; perhaps sponsor a study of the Shores' need for senior housing; and continue monitoring such useful activities as recycling and futuring.

In 1991, Huetteman, O'Keefe and Thornton ran for re-election without opposition as "the experienced team." They are following the same practice this year, citing their records, their combined 18 years of service on the council and their combined 100 years of residency as proof of their experience.

True, such a united front makes it difficult for any challenger to break into the council. But in view of the incumbents' records, their grasp of the Shores' future needs, and their pledge of continued fiscal integrity, the News believes they have earned re-election.

Pointe libraries get a failing grade

To the Editor:

Grosse Pointe, being one of the most affluent suburbs in the United States, has a library system that is pathetic. I am a student in the eighth grade, and whether I am writing a report, or looking for a mystery novel, it must be done at a Detroit library, or at a library in one of the neighboring suburbs.

Considering the amount of taxes paid by the people of this area, and our town's major concern is the landscaping of city property and parks, education should be much higher up on our list of priorities. I cannot understand how Grosse Pointe City can relandscape its park, while the Central Library has a history section and social sciences section with a majority of books being printed before 1960.

I often use the library system in Livonia where my grandparents live. It is triple the size of Central Library, and a majority of its books were printed in the last five to 10 years. My grandparents pay $2,300 in property and school taxes to the city of Livonia. My other grandmother, who lives in Grosse Pointe Woods with an equal size house and property, pays about $3,000 in property and school taxes. This shows how much other cities care about education and use their resources to improve

With Grosse Pointe's ample finances, we should definitely care more about books and education than landscaping and gardening. If we do not improve our libraries now, when it comes to excellence in education, Grosse Pointe, like its libraries, will get a failing grade.

To the Editor:

America's founders did not separate God from the law or from daily life. Nor was it their intention to create a nation where secularism prevailed. Star closing ill-founded

To the Editor:

The recent developments at Star High School have caused me great concern and distress.

We are supposedly a Christian community whose efforts should be directed toward securing the common good. Certainly

Catholic education would qualify in this regard, especially secondary Catholic education of young women whose future role will include mothering and nurturing in faith the children of tomorrow.

And yet, the high school is closing. For what reasons? Grade school expansion. Room for parish activities. Financial reasons. (The parish had already been relieved of its burden by the regional school concept.) And all this without so much as giving parents, alumnae, friends and supporters of the high school a chance to demonstrate financial responsibility which they were more than willing to assume.

On reviewing the above, there is not one legitimate reason for closure of this school. Spurred by the misdirected enthusiasm of a few hard core parish council members whose sole purpose has been to stampede the high school out of existence, the school shas been forced to close down. No rational or Christian person could accept these ill-conceived and ill-founded notions.

Our spiritual leaders must in good conscience mexert authority and exhaust every means to make right this terrible mistake. The high school should be kept open and allowed a fair opportunity to demonstrate financial independing hy should several officials and businessmen from the Grosse Pointes support the campaign of Dennis W. Archer for mayor of Detroit?

We think they should be taken at their word which basically is that they are hoping for a revival of Detroit and better relations between the city and its suburbs if Detroit elects a new mayor.

Sparky Herbert's owner, Darrell Finken, expressed his concern about the decline on the neighborhood on the Detroit side of the border since he opened his restaurant on Kercheval, only a few blocks from the Detroit city limits, 14 years ago:

"It has been sad to watch that happen. I'd estimate that about 50 percent of the housing on the Detroit side has been abandoned. Something must be done. I think Archer will give local neighborhoods the attention they deserve."

Park Mayor Palmer Heenan, who attended the fundraiser for Archer that Finken sponsored at his restaurant last week, emphasized that "the fate of Detroit affects us all."

He added that he thought "it's time for a change in Detroit's leadership," and expressed the hope Archer will be a good leader.

Many other Pointe residents own businesses or other property in Detroit, work in the central city or have other ties that maintain their interest in housing, crime and other problems there.

Business people in the Pointes also know that many of their customers have jobs and other interests that are affected by Detroit's economic outlook and so they, too, agree with Mayor Heenan that "the fate of Detroit affects us all."

All of which ought to be sufficient explanation for the Grosse Pointers' involvement in the Detroit mayoral campaign.

3 incumbents, 1 challenger vie for 3 Shores council seats

Staff Writer For the first time since 1989, candidates seeking election to the village council will run a contested race. On May 18, Shores residents will chose among four candidates to fill three seats on the council.

Incumbents John Huetteman II, N. William O'Keefe and Rose Garland Thornton, all of whom ran unopposed in 1991, and challenger Virginia O. Barrett are seeking two-year terms as village trustees.

Shores residents can vote at the village council chambers 795 Lakeshore, between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. Absentee voters must pick up a ballot by 8 p.m. Saturday, May 15, and return it to the council chambers by 8 p.m. Tuesday, May 18.

Virginia Barrett Viginia Barrett

Virginia Barrett, the lone challenger, has lived in the Shores more than 20 years. A licensed, registered nurse, she has served on a number of agencies and committees, including the Wayne County Medical Society, the Women's Auxiliary of Children's Hospital of Michigan and the U.S. Congressional Committee for the selection of young men and women desiring careers in one of the military academies.

Noting that the three incumbents are running as a team, "I like a challenge," she said. "All of my life has been service to people."

Barrett said she has the highest regard for the village's services and government, and if elected will respect those already on the council, "but I will fight tooth and nail for the protection of the quality of life in Grosse Pointe Shores," she

"I like government and being involved with things that concern me," she added.

John Huetteman III

Grosse Pointe Shores Village President Pro tem John Huetteman III, who has lived in the Shores his entire life, is running for his fifth term on the council. Prior to joining the council, Huetteman served on the Shores planning committee for a year and a half.

Huetteman is president of John Huetteman Co., a food brokerage business his father and grandfather started in Serving on the village council, as with his food brokerage business, follows the same path taken by his father, who was involved with village government for 20 years and served as village president.

He is proud of the job he and the council have done, but added that "it's never perfect. We're always trying to finetune the machine. You can never stop tuning. We have a head start, and we're going to keep it."

He cited as an example the infrastructure study the council undertook in the mid-80s.

We did a very extensive study of the sewers, with video tape, to find every crack and break along the line," he said. "We prioritized the damage and fixed it. Vernier Road had to be done by '95, we did it by

Other accomplishments Huetteman noted are the ambulance service's "echo unit" and the recycling campaign.

On the evening of July 21, 1992, the village council approved the immediate use of a response unit, an "echo unit," with more highly trained paramedics, which would assist emergency medical technicians on calls. The next morning, just 12 hours after approval, the echo unit responded to a cardiac arrest call on Lakeshore Lane. Elfreda Leete's heartbeat was restored. Had it not been for the echo unit, she may not have survived.

Recycling is another area which Huetteman and the council have addressed.

"It wasn't an issue when I first joined the council," he said. "Now we have 65 to 70 percent support from the resi-

Concerns Huetteman has for the future include the park's pool and bath house and the ernier School.

"The park has a 30-year-old pool and the bath house is an aging facility," he said. "We want to be fiscally responsible, but we're going to have to come to grips with this during the next one or two years.'

The fate of the Vernier School was to be decided by the voters on the May ballot, but was removed because village officials wanted to make the language on the ballot more fairly worded. The issue will be on a future ballot. "I think it's important to let them (the residents) decide," he said. "It has a place in their hearts, but again, we have to be fiscally responsible. Will it be used enough (to justify the cost of restoration)?"

Two problems he cited with the school were the cost (estimated at more than $1 million) and the lack of parking.

The only way to add parking would be to take way the sled hill behind it," he said. "I believe residents get more use out of the hill."

Huetteman said that he and the two other incumbents, N. William O'Keefe and Rose Garland Thornton, are running as a team.

"The chemistry of the council is beyond belief," he said. "We are all focused on the betterment of Grosse Pointe Shores. The residents deserve it.'

N. William O'Keefe

Trustee N. William O'Keefe has been on the council four years since being appointed in January 1989. He also was on the planning commission before becoming a trustee and has served on the Shores Foundation for the past seven years.

O'Keefe, a self-employed insurance consultant, has lived in the Shores for 18 years. He is chairman of the village's insurance advisory committee and the public works committee.

He is part of the team, along with Huetteman and Thornton, running for re-election.

"We chose to do that because everyone has a role on the council," he said. "We're independent, but there's a team approach.'

He agrees with Huetteman that there are a couple of main concerns the council must address in the near future.

"The bath house (at the park) needs upgrading," he said, "and there's state mandates for pool safety we need to meet."

As for the other concern, the fate of the Vernier School, he feels the voters should decide what to do with the building. It might be on the ballot in the fall, he said.

O'Keefe is proud of the coun-

cil's accomplishments, including the infrastructure improvements along Vernier Road and having every residence hooked up to the sewage lines.

We have to make the best use out of the assets we're entrusted with," O'Keefe said.

O'Keefe is a member of the Shores Foundation, which has been entrusted with $500,000 over the past 10 years. The foundation has been responsible for many of the improvements along Lakeshore.

Rose Garland Thornton Rose Garland Thornton has not missed a meeting in the six years she has served on the council. A resident of the Shores for 41 years, she has served on the board of review for 14 years and is a representative to senior citizen groups.

She feels the Shores "has the best team we've ever had. we solve things as they come along, and right now, things are coming along well.'

She cited the Vernier Road improvements and the sewer line hook-ups as examples of the council's accomplishments, and mentioned that they were not financed by floating a bond issue, but budgeted by the vil-

Looking ahead, she also mentioned the need for a new pool over the next two years and resolving the Vernier School question.

Thornton is a member of Services for Older Citizens (SOC), a group that provides grass cutting, snow shoveling and minor home repair to senior citizens "so they can continue to live in their own homes," she said. "Some people in the Shores do need this.'

Thornton is also a member of Pointes Area Assisted Transportation Services (PAATS). which provides transportation to seniors and the disabled in the Pointes and Harper Woods.

She acknowledges the need for senior housing but "we really don't have the land," she said. "The Vernier School doesn't have enough land and I don't think the Ford field (the land across Lakeshore from the Edsel and Eleanor Ford estate) is available."

Rose Garland Thornton

She said that the Shores may look into the issue with another one of the Pointes.

Still, Thornton loves the 'wonderful small town feeling' of the Shores and hopes to continue serving its citizens.

The dirt on dogs

I always knew that once America elected a president who cared about people, life would get better. But I had no idea things would improve so quickly.

I point to a recent issue of TV Guide as evidence that Americans are so content they have little left to worry about. The magazine ran a letter from a reader lambasting the editors for declaring Bear, the dog who plays Dreyfuss on the television show "Empty Nest," a better actor than any of the dogs which played Lassie.

"Lassie was always doing something, ending up dirty or wet, while Dreyfuss doesn't leave the soundstage," wrote M.M. of Amherst, Mass.

That letter got me wondering - first about the mental state of M.M. of Amherst, Mass.

and then about the difference between dogs and cats, the difference between cat people and dog people, and on a grander scale, the difference between eastsiders and westsiders. So, because Americans have no other problems, peace has spread across the world, the economy is thriving, and all we have to worry about is what dog is a better actor, this column is dedicated to pets.

I've been a dog owner and a cat owner - though never at the same time - so I write from experience.

Admittedly I'm not much of a dog person, but I'm not much of a cat person, either. I like my cat, Eileen, the three-legged wonder cat, and that's pretty much where it stops.

My cat is interesting because she's got an attitude. She wants me when she wants me and that's that. And if I'm not living up to her expectations she nags me with meows until I correct myself.

Dogs are different. They're just there.

"I love my dog because she's always happy to see me," said mutt. "Oh, his mouth is cleaner a friend of mine. "My own kids than a human's mouth," they aren't that nice to me.'

That tells me that either her kids are ungrateful louts (and blame for that) or her dog is really stupid. Maybe both.

I'm of the opinion that anything with such blind loyalty has to be mentally deficient. But then again, all dogs do is eat, sleep, walk and bark and all humans do is cater to them. So who's fooling who?

wants to pet their dog, be sniffed by their dog and get sloppy wet kisses from their feline's natural life, it goes say. (There's a study I'd like to see). But I'm of the opinion that with all the things dogs lick, there are at least two people to their mouths can't possibly be clean. And besides, I don't let most humans lick my face, why would I let a dog do so?

But the main difference between cat owners and dog owners is how they treat their animal's waste.

Cat owners have a little box in the corner of the laundry Dog owners think everyone room where cats do their duty. You show a cat where the box is once and for the rest of your where you want it to.

It's not like that with dogs. A very proper woman came into the newsroom a while back and asked us to do a story on dog owners. It seems her friend was walking out of a posh Grosse Pointe store and broke her hip because she slipped in a pile of - here she looked over her shoulders to make sure no one was within hearing distance and she lowered her voice to nothing more than a whisper "doggie dirt."

We sympathized with the woman, but couldn't help her. A family newspaper simply doesn't have room for stories about dog poop. They're taste-

The problem isn't with the dogs, of course, they're just answering nature's call. The problem is with the owners who think their dog is so great they want to share it with everyone.

unior maybe it's just that on the east side people don't have decent lawns.

On the west side where I grew up on lawns that were big enough for a game of pick-up football, one would come across the occasional pile of doggie dirt. But on the east side, where lawns are approximately the size of a dining room table. that's all I find, From afar I must look like a drunk, or a slalom skier, the way I swerve to avoid all the little packages of love left by dog owners.

"I pay my taxes, my dog can go where he wants," sniffed one dog owner after I asked whether she was going to pick up a pile her dog had just unabashedly left in the middle of a school playground.

But what really grinds me is that I don't own a dog, the lady who lives in the flat below me doesn't own a dog, and yet there were seven piles of doggie dirt in various sizes, shapes and stages of decay on my trademarked postage-stamp sized Grosse Pointe front lawn this morning. But who's count-what's the point of this? Nothing. But when all's right with the world, what can I do?

PRESIDENT Fords create river of controversy

There's nothing like heading for the country to get away from it all. And for getting away in the summer, nothing beats Michigan's own Up

Now some of Grosse Pointe's est-known offenring are ing out that the northern solitude isn't as complete as they'd hoped. Those northerners won't leave the Ford family alone.

Of course Billy and Sheila Ford want privacy at their 2,000-acre northern retreat. But the way they want to achieve it is mighty controversial.

The brother and sister, children of Detroit Lions' owner William Clay Ford, want to eliminate all public access via water to their property north of Gaylord on the Sturgeon River. They told a Cheboygan County court two weeks ago that gawkers and slob picnickers litter their land, invade their privacy, and spoil the pristine river.

Unfortunately, it's not hard to believe. If memory serves, their grandparents had the same problem with boaters invading the canal at Gaukler's Point, staring at the family and no doubt throwing empty beer cans in the water.

I myself live one milkshake away from the local soft ice cream stand. After every hot day, my yard grows a crop of tall plastic cups and sundae dishes. So every morning, not having important corporate duties elsewhere, I go out front and pick up the trash.

There's more. The northern Michigan Parmenter compound fronts a navigable trout stream. As soon as trout season opens, fisherfolk start wading upstream past our cabin. A few hundred feet from us is a public access easement, but as it is neither convenient nor marked, most of the fishermen climb out on our stretch of the bank and walk up our path to the road. Those who fish with bait seem to believe our streamside bench was placed there for their worms, which we find, stinking, the next day.

All this by way of establishing my credentials as an aggrieved property owner.

Retreating behind a moat and pulling up the bridge is an understandable reaction, particularly when you can afford it. The Ford progenitor, the original Henry, did it himself, notably at Big Bay in the U.P. He owned thousands of acres of forest, much of which he clearcut for use in his auto empire but left a woodsy, guarded enclave for himself and family.

But, Henry aside, just about everything is wrong with the Fords' current request.

Billy Ford is right that keeping people out would result in a cleaner river. But he'd better watch his arguments, lest they bite him in the backside. That one, if carried to its logical conclusion, would ban people and human activity (like industry) from all Michigan rivers and lakes.

Better we should try to educate the common man about good environmental habits.

In a democracy that depends theoretically upon equal treatment for everyone (elusive, I know), private ownership of waterfront property has already gone too far. One of Grosse Pointe's flaws is that nowhere is there any unlimited public access to the water — not a boardwalk, not a pier, not a plot of grass, not a beach to walk along in front of the

Now, about the legal argument over river navigability. This is truly bizarre.

According to Michigan law, a navigable river is one that floated logs during the commercial lumbering period in the early part of this century. In terms of northern Michigan, this means just about every trickle of water.

The Ford position is that the Sturgeon wasn't used for commercial logging. The s it was, but can't prove it because there aren't any living eyewitnesses.

Say what?

There aren't any eyewitnesses to the Civil War, either, but nobody seriously disputes that it happened.

Records exist telling where logging camps were, what the loggers ate for dinner, how much they earned, how many bags of flour were purchased. and how many board feet of lumber were cut. But nobody can find out which streams floated the logs?

I don't believe it.

Back to Parmenters' creek. I'm talking about Big Creek, a trout stream and tributary of the Au Sable.

Big Creek is about 20 feet wide and one to two feet deep. It's smaller than the Sturgeon. The forests along its banks, and everywhere in the Au Sable watershed, were commercially logged.

To float the lumber downstream, the companies dammed the rivers and stored the logs in the resulting ponds. At a given moment, they opened the weirs, and the water and logs all rushed downstream at once.

That's history. Information compiled from written records and photographs and vestiges of dams, as well as oral tradition, which the courts now scorn as "hearsay."

But I like to deal in solutions.

Perhaps the Fords ought to abandon the vinegar approach and try honey instead. Rather than a wholesale ban, they could invite the plain folk of Cheboygan County to a barbecue. Once they've seen the place, they won't need to keep sneaking in.

Helping songsters

A group of Grosse Pointers will travel to Bethany, Pa., in a few weeks to celebrate the 85th birthday of Dr. Perry Gresham, president of Bethany College. Dr. Chester Bogan will write and produce a musical celebration June 25 for the entire town of 20,000 and its surrounding citizenry. Evelyn Bogan, Alice Truscon, Dean Taylor, Audrey Jennings and a few others plan to attend. More than 100 "old friends and alumni will participate," says Mrs. Bogan, currently wrapped up in work with the May 21-23 Fontbonne Fantasia; the Choraliers songfest at the Grosse Pointe (Little) Club; May 8, a Northeast Child Guidance booster; and the Country Club of Detroit May 27 Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Auxiliary fundraiser. Busy, busy.

Monday, May 10, in color, the Detroit Free Press featured Erik Mathews of Grosse Pointe Park sunbathing in his rubber raft in Lake St. Clair on the front page, no less. It was celebration of spring's arrival in the Pointes.

Lite isn't simple

"Wasn't it a great day," I said to Norm Leggat, walking in the sun on Essex near Bedford. Ten minutes later I pondered my words, being a se-mantics freak. "Wasn't it" means "was not it," just as "isn't it" means "is not it." Thus, "didn't he" means "did not he" (and I opened a big topic of discussion, which has no conclusion).

Inner sanctum

Prominent psychiatrist-attorney-teacher, Emanuel Tanay, commenting on the Dearborn post office shooting, made his point with brevity and clarity:

"Of course many postal workers are involved in such sprees, with nearly a million employees and many of them military. backgrounded."

Later discussions brought up other reasons, such as loose standards of work performance, 75,000 union grievances filed each year, inability to fire workers for poor records of behavior.

Did you know Tanay is one of the most sought-after professionals in the world for abnormal psychology testimony in homicide trials?

A better world

"You have this meeting tomorrow night, and we both promised to go.

That was my wife's comment as I slipped on my necktie and coat, preparing to attend one of the eight seminars, panel discussions and roundtable talks about politics, schools, vtaxes, government and all the other subjects on which all of us should be well-informed.

How fortunate we are in this advanced age of communications to have so much information, so many resources for data. This does make it a better world today, doesn't it?

Racing fever

Robby Buhl hit the big time of auto racing last year, and now he's vying for honors in the Indianapolis 500. He's says he hit speeds of over 207 mph and now takes charge of final runs to qualify in his Lola-Buick for the May 30 run-onthe-bricks.

He wants a lower profile, working with such names as Mario Andretti, Michael Andretti, Emerson Fittipaldi, Roberto Guerrero and Bobby Rahal. He knows the value of "long, hard, physical work, learning each time out until you're ready to put all the pieces together," when all conditions are right, says the Grosse Pointe Shores racer.

A little suds

Jim DePuys, owner of Marge's bar in Grosse Pointe Park, is highlighted in a new television commercial by Miller Brewing. Miller says the Detroit area special promotion will feature many of your favorite barkeeps in such vignettes over the summer pushing "Where it's at in Detroit," a booklet of local events.

Motor age

On the front lawn of John Thompson's Trombley Road home we chatted.

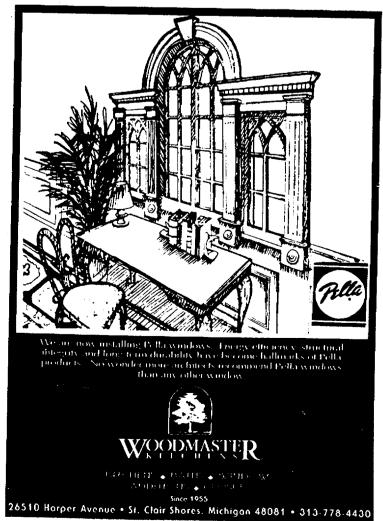

The roar of a chain saw rattied into our conversation from the next street, then it was joined by two lawnmowers half a block away, just as the refuse truck rumbled down the street and stopped with a big airbrake hiss, followed by a compactor motor roar. A lawn service crew arrived next door and began trimming, cutting, edging, then blowing.

Suddenly, it all seemed to

We could hear ourselves talk. maybe even hear the birds, then big bellows came from two ore carriers conversing half a block away on the lake. An airplane droned toward City Airport, as a low-flying helicopter whirled over the shoreline. Two off-shore boats slammed across the waves with deafening roars and two boys came up the street on mopeds.

Then it was quiet again, just before the chain saw and leaf blower began their work in another yard. Yes, either get up early, or stay up late if you like peace and quiet.

As residents of Barrington between Korte and Avondale, we have never been asked to sign petitions either way as to the closing of Korte to through traffic. In fact, neither of us really had strong feelings either way.

The words haven't been invented to describe the initial feelings upon seeing your own babies becoming parents. We hit the mall in pursuit of clothes and attempted to guess what the mothers would look like down the line. No problem, the stores had already figured that one out. Plastic bags and pillows were inserted into the dresses and underwear to simulate various stages of the pregnancies. Emotions ran the gamut from shock to giggly hysteria.

We were all grateful for the changes in styles since this grand-

Wallis' statement in his letter published on May 6, Korte is not "the only access south of Jefferson to a major black community.'

There are three other streets, Avondale, Essex, and Fairfax, which lead directly from Detroit into Grosse Pointe Park. To travel into Detroit from Grosse Pointe Park one merely has to travel one, two, or three residential blocks south on Alter to reach the Korte bridge or to follow Alter Road south into Detroit.

Conversely, a car traveling in Detroit east on Korte merely has to turn left on Alter and travel the length of one residential block to reach Avondale, two residential blocks to reach Essex, or three residential blocks to reach Fairfax. All three streets run east, directly into Grosse Pointe Park, south of Jefferson.

2. Contrary to the letters published on April 29, Grosse Pointe Park has not been "walled off." The sidewalks on both sides of Korte are open. Korte is open to pedestrians and persons on bicycles, skateboards, rollerblades, etc. The only thing that the Korte barrier will stop is automobiles. Period. We are very saddened by the hostility expressed in those

For all those whose major concern is symbolism, we would like to make one point. Anyone who actually lives in the area of Korte in Grosse Pointe Park will tell you that there are many children in the area. The cars which traveled (and sometimes sped) down Korte were not symbolic.

Korte closure best solution

To the Editor:

I feel I have to respond to the letter from Mr. Weld-Wallis that ran in your paper last week.

Mr. Weld-Wallis states that people's perceptions also need to be dealt with. I agree, the reason for my letter two weeks ago was to change their perceptions. I did not think I was being naive; I thought they would believe what I said.

I also had some trouble convincing the City of Grosse Pointe Park that there was a high volume of traffic on Korte. They, too, were concerned about Detroit residents perceptions of a street closure. After the traffic study was finally done, there was proof we had a huge traffic problem.

Our city planning commission did talk with the City of Detroit about oneway and no-left-turn signs. These signs would have to be placed in Detroit and it is my understanding that Detroit did not approve this plan.

Our city council voted to close Korte because it was the best solution to the traffic problem.

Our neighborhood was designed over 60 years ago using a grid pattern for the streets. More modern subdivisions are set up with many cul-de-sac and deadend streets to provide a way to control traffic flows.

Detroit has been highly praised for their new developments — Grayhaven and Victoria Park —that are surrounded by beautiful iron fences and have one exit and entrance with a posted security guard.

It is time Grosse Pointe Park should be able to make improvements to their city and be proud of them, as Detroit has been allowed to do.

Answer needed

To the Editor:

The Grosse Pointe board of education plans to move to Barnes school and sell the administration building at 389 St. Clair. What they have not openly discussed is the action they are taking in September of a doorto-door census of the children in the Poupard, Ferry, Mason and Monteith districts to determine if Barnes school will reopen as an elementary school. The results of this census will be released in Decem-

In a phone survey last week, it was discovered that if Barnes were to open as an elementary school it would have a minimum of 30 percent more students than when it was closed.

In discussing their plan to move to Barnes and sell the St. Clair property, the board refuses to answer the question: Where will you go if you've sold the administration building and Barnes school is reopened?

Even though the board admits this is a possibility, they have not made any plans for this situation. If the board is looking to the future, how can this question remain unanswered? Are they going to ask us for a new building? Is this what the board has wanted all along - a new building?

Our senior citizens have been made to be a scapegoat for the board actions. The board is saying that they need to save money and that the senior citizens are demanding this, even at the expense of overcrowded schools and large classroom sizes. It is time the seniors set the board straight.

Many of our senior citizens have raised their children here because of the quality of our school.

Many of our senior are relying on selling their homes for a high price because of our schools.

Our seniors have voted for our millages because of the importance of our schools. Our seniors are involved as volunteers in our schools to help our children develop into good students.

Our seniors are for smaller class sizes and safe schools for the benefit of their grandchildren.

Our seniors are also wise enough to know that you don't sell the last parcel of land available to the school, for all time.

The saving of money should not be at the children's expense.

What happens to the finances of this system if 10 years from now we need space for new technology or a vocational school? We have seen the computer age take over in our schools, why wouldn't new technology do the same?

Eighteen years ago, in our elementary schools, we did not have computers. Now we have so many that our classrooms do not have enough space for them and they are lined up and used in our hallways. I believe that it is short-sighted of the board not to understand that new technology may do the same.

The school board has been treating this as a budget issue and it is not. The issue of the last parcel of land should not be treated as a budget item.

What It Means For Your Home

Removes More Moisture

Unico System removes up to 30% more moisture than conventional central air conditioning systems. That means more comfort for you, even at higher thermostat settings. And because Unico System is adaptable to a variety of air cleaning devices, your home's air will be fresh and pure.

You'll feel the Unico System's cool comfort, but you'll hardly hear it. The last 36-inch section of duct has flexible, sound absorbing tubing that provides quiet air flow from each individual outlet. The central return air grill also connects to sound absorbing duct to maintain quiet operation.

Unico System works on the principle of aspiration. Cool streams of high velocity air enter a room, creating gentle circulation without drafts. You enjoy even room temperatures from floor to ceiling.

Fits Any Decor

The barely noticeable outlets blend in with any decor, whether they're installed in the ceiling, floor, or wall. The Unico System avoids the staining of walls and ceilings that can occur with metal registers and diffusers.

No matter when your home was built, or what its physical configurations are, installing the Unico System is always a possibility. Authorized Unico System contractors have installed thousands of these ystems across the country and in Canada, in homes that were built without central air conditioning and in those homes where existing systems have proven inadequate. There's a Unico system solution for your home - let us show you.

To the Editor: Grosse Pointe opposition helped to defeat Detroit's first two proposals for City Airport expansion. The Pointes and Harper Woods formed and funded a joint Detroit Airport Study Committee to fight the expansion. The cities of Center Line and Warren, and Macomb County, have also joined and contributed financially to the study committee.

Opposition will continue to be effective against the third airport plan which Detroit has now submitted if Pointers continue their active efforts. Please write to Gov. Engler to remind him of his campaign pledge to deny state funding to expand the airport, and to Sens. Levin and Riegle, asking that federal funds not be granted.

A three-stage plan is now proposed by Detroit for the airport:

• In its final phase, the plan calls for an 8,600-foot runway, adequate to service all commercial aircraft except 747s.

 Aircraft would be routed over the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods in order to accommodate Windsor's request that it not underlie flight paths. 118 factories and businesses and 2,500 homes would be destroyed.

• Detroit estimates the total expansion costs at $379 million.

Detroit has no money to pay for this proposed project. Federal and state funding is necessary. In the past, Pointers have made it clear that they do not want public funds used to construct a facility that will destroy the quality of life in their communities. They object to the noise, water and air pollution attendant upon an expanded airport. and are unwilling to have their community underlie an airplane expressway.

Our community made its objections to the expansion known by encouraging city councils to offer active opposition on Grosse Pointe's behalf at the crucial federal funding level. The councils responded by forming and funding the study committee, which has hired economic and environmental experts to analyze Detroit's airport plans and projections. These experts have concluded Detroit's economic and environmental assessments were in error. Their findings influenced the decision to deny federal funding for Detroit's previous two plans. Their review of the third plan is now under way.

Grosse Pointers have also written letters to state and federal elected officials stating their objection to funding for airport expansion. Letters are needed again if Detroit's third plan is to be defeated.

Please write to Gov. Engler (Honorable John Engler, Office of the Gover-State of Michigan, P.O. Box 30013, Lansing 48909) and to Sens. Carl Levin and Donald Riegle (U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510). Inform them of your continued opposition to the use of any state or federal tax dollars to expand the airport.

If residents take the time to write these letters, we can expect the same success through our opposition as was experienced with the other two defeated expansion plans.

Officer Loch appreciated

To the Editor:

We would like to thank officer Loch of the Grosse Pointe Park Department of Public Safety for his participation in our Law Day program "Youth and the Law."

Officer Loch spent all of Friday, April 30, at Pierce. He spoke with groups of students all day, answering many questions. He clarified many things for our students. Officer Loch made himself available to Pierce students at lunchtime. Pierce students were clearly enthusiastic about officer Loch's visit.

Again we thank the Grosse Pointe Park Department of Public Safety for its cooperation and officer Loch for an outstanding

On April 17, my 44-yearold husband suffered an aneurysm at our home. From the moment I dialed 911, the dispatcher helped calm me down with her clear questions. Within one minute, three police cars and two paramedic vehicles were at my home.

Unfortunately, there was nothing they could do as he had already expired in one minute. They did continue working on him until we got him to St. John, but he was already gone by the time they reached our home.

How very lucky we are to have this kind of emergency care so close by.

Detroit boy drowns in canal

After nearly 30 minutes of searching the Fox Creek Canal Monday night, U.S. Coast Guard personnel retrieved the body of an 11-year-old Detroit boy from the waterway along the Detroit-Grosse Pointe Park border.

The child, identified as Keyon Hutson, was taken to St. John Hospital where he was pronounced dead. Park public safety Lt. David Hiller said Hutson was one of three boys who had been swimming around 7 p.m. in the canal near the foot of Alter Road. The other boys were able to get out of the water, Hiller said, but when they saw that Hutson was struggling, they began hollering for help.

Their cries were heard by security guards at Windmill Pointe Park on the other side of the canal. The guards called the Park public safety department, which dispatched officers and a medic unit to assist in the search.

"It came in as a report from the (Windmill Pointe Park) guard," Hiller said. "We would send officers anytime to assist on something like this.'

Park officers boarded a private boat and searched up and down the canal, while coast Guard officers from the Belle Isle station dragged the canal.

Hiller reminded residents that swimming in the canals is illegal. Despite the great temptation to cool off in the water on hot days, extreme caution should be used around the unsupervised waterways, he said.

What exactly does "eating for two" mean?

While it's true a pregnant woman is eating for two, she's not eating for two adults. Too often, women double up at meals and snack time, when moderation is a healthier choice.

Expectant mothers should consume only 250 additional calories a day, and 400 more calories when they're breastfeeding. Anything more is likely to turn into fat, which may be hard to lose after the baby's born.

Weighty matters

It's also important to gain enough weight to ensure a healthy child. Doctors once believed that low weight gains prevented high blood pressure and other problems. Unfortunately, the result was often a low birth

If your weight is normal, 25-35 pounds is the ideal weight gain. If you're overweight, only a 15-25 pound gain is recommended. If you're underweight, it's best to gain 28-40 pounds. In general, you should gain a pound a week after your 13th week. Food for thought

Jacobson's has been here for 50 of Grosse Pointe's 100 years

By Chip Chapman Staff Writer

The Village is home to a number of small shops, with owners on the premises active in the day-to-day business. In the middle block is the Village's largest store, Jacobson's, which, while not being headquartered in Grosse Pointe, still play's a major part in the Village's community appeal.

In February 1994, Jacobson's will celebrate its 50th anniversary in Grosse Pointe.

In 1944, Grosse Pointe became the site of Jacobson's ninth store.

News

What was originally just a women's store has expanded with a men's department, a children's department, and a full line of gifts and accessories. But don't refer to Jacobson's as a department store, said sales promotion manager Peter Northcott.

"Jacobson's is a specialty store, not a department store, he said.

In fact, one could say Jacobson's is a collection of specialty stores.

Jacobson's Store for the Home has been down the street from the main store in the former Himelhoch's building since 1946, and the children's department has recently moved across the street from the main > employee hired, as a general maintenance man, when the Grosse Pointe store first opened. She and her family also helped open Jacobson's Store for the Home.

"We were working up until the night before it was to open," she said.

Grant's mother also worked at Jacobson's and has the D'. Hont Breezeway, between the main store and the parking structure, named after her.

The Grosse Pointe Symphony used to perform in the breezeway on summer evenings outside the St. Clair Room restaurant as part of "Dinner Under the Stars." Jacobson's main store continues to undergo changes as customer needs change.

In 1974, the main store added 35,000 square feet of selling space. This provided additional room for the men's department, beauty salon, and dress and designer store.

"We worked through all of the dust and pounding," said another Jacobson's worker of 30 years.

Although the store continues to grow, "we're still small enough to be personal," Northcott said. "We don't want to lose track of our roots.'

Jacobson's roots as a company go back to 1868, when the first store opened in Reed City (in Osceola County). In 1939, Jacobson family sold the company to Nathan Rosenfeld, who still owns it today. There are now more than 20 stores in four states.

The first store stressed personal customer service, something that has not changed, Northcott said.

"Jacobson's is, and will continue to be, a customer service store," he said.

Stability is one reason why a store of Jacobson's size has been able to offer personal service. In almost 50 years, the Grosse Pointe Store has had just four general managers; John Hannan, Clarence Wascher, Thomas Drummy, and now, William Hebert.

Another part of Jacobson's success is its community involvement.

"We're very communityminded. We've always supported the local charities, artists and hospitals," Northcott said. "Jacobson's has always had a lot of volunteers. That's been a constant for us." Jacobson's has been involved with the Michigan Cancer Foundation's "Race for a Cure" to fight breast cancer, and this summer Jacobson's is hoping to have a fundraiser to benefit children with AIDS. Jacobson's is very involved with the Village Association hosting the upcoming Grosse Pointe's Greatest Garage Sale on May 30 and 31. Proceeds from the sale will help pay for the Santa Claus parade in Novemeber.

"Our community involvement adds to the betterment of the store," Northcott said, "and to the betterment of the customers and the community."

St. Clare given U.S. funds for asbestos removal

St. Clare of Montefalco school in Grosse Pointe Park recently was awarded a $20,000 loan and a $20,000 grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to help defray the costs of asbestos removal.

St. Clare was one of eight schools statewide to receive the funds. The EPA has budgeted approximately $77 million for its Asbestos School Hazard Abatement Reauthorization Act of 1990. The money is given in the form of loans and grants to public and non-profit private schools across the country to combat asbestos problems.

Since the act was established in 1984, the EPA has awarded $422 million to 1,409 local education associations across the country. This year's grants bring Michigan's total allotment to $12,396,139.

St. Clare will use the funds to remove asbestos from hallways, classrooms, boiler rooms, gymnasiums, crawl spaces, cafeterias, lavatories and stairwells.

Kaess to seek re-election

Farms councilwoman Gail Kaess has announced her candidacy for a fifth term on the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council.

Her candidacy for re-election follows last week's announcement that she has been named recipient of the 1993 Taubman Fellowship for Executive Excellence, for which she will attend Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government for three weeks in July.

"I am excited about the opportunity to share my experiences in local, regional and state government with my peers throughout the United States," she said. "One experience I will share is the intense futuring effort we are now undertaking among the citizens of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods.

Robson files for third term in Park

Veteran Grosse Pointe Park city councilman James E. Robson has announced his candidacy to serve the citizens of the Park for a third four-year term.

"It has been an honor to serve the citizens of the Park for eight years now, and I am committed to maintaining and improving the quality of life our residents currently enjoy,' Robson said.

Robson is the council representative on the planning commission and is on the public safety building improvement committee. He has served on the recreation committee, the ordinance review committee and chaired the judicial search Hostage Negotiations Team.

Robson said he has enjoyed working with his colleagues on the Park city council.

"In Mayor Heenan and the other councilmembers, the people of Grosse Pointe Park are well served by six strong, diverse, independent and dedicated leaders," he said.

Robson lists as his council goals the continued reduction in crime in the Park, finding a viable solution to combined sewer overflows, winning the fight against Detroit City Airport expansion, and the continued adherence to a lean budget.

"Bringing citizens the best possible services for the lowest committee. Robson is a Wayne possible tax dollars has always county police lieutenant and is been the golden rule of Park a member of the Metro Airport government," he said.

Pets, pests clash when spring's sprung

Spring is here in all her glory, breathing new life into every living thing. Accompanying this wondrous rebirth comes some of nature's inescapable hazards, both for ourselves and our unsuspecting, playful

Summer just wouldn't be summer without those buzzing pests that threaten even the most secure environments. We humans have a couple of options when faced with the terror of an oncoming insect the size of a small plane - stand still or run like crazy.

Our pets, on the other hand, don't quite understand the meaning behind options - or possess the knowledge to fear these pests, for that matter.

Our pets feel a little tickle at their ear of see something whiz by and think it's a new concept in toys. They playfully chase and bite at this buzzing, whimsical distraction until, you guessed it, they get stung. And sometimes even after they've been stung, they don't always know it or show signs of it right away.

Based on findings in veterinarian Craton Burkholder's "Emergency Care for Cats and Dogs," our pet is most likely to be stung in the mouth, or on the nose or feet. Signs of stinging include pain; scratching; licking or rubbing its head on the ground; swelling; the presence of a bee stinger; and excessive salivation (if stung inside the mouth).

To treat a sting at home, Burkholder advises removing the stinger with forceps (or a pair of clean tweezers for the rest of us who don't have access to professional instruments); neutralize the sting with baking soda (for bee stings); or vinegar or lemon juice (for wasps); apply a cold pack or compress; and gently dab on calamine lotion or an antihistamine cream. As always, if there's any question in your mind about the situation or if you feel even slightly uncomfortable about treating a sting yourself, contact your veterinar-

Even something as natural as a bee sting can be fatal for dogs the boxers, bulldogs and pugs, especially if they're stung on the tongue or in the mouth. A sting in these areas can cause severe swelling, resulting in breathing difficulties, and in extreme cases, cause asphyxiation and death.

That covers much of the airborne threat, but what about land-based pests? Ants and spiders usually take over the yard by early spring, but generally pose little or no threat to our beloved companions. Spider bites are rare and ant bites occur more commonly in puppies.

Signs of bites include localized pain and small circular reddish swellings (otherwise known as welts). Bites can be very painful for your pet and. in some cases, can become infected (if not treated properly) or cause an allergic reaction. If you think your pet is suffering from an allergic reaction to a bite, call your vet immediately.

There isn't much involved in treating a common ant or spider bite - gently apply cortisone cream or an antihistamine cream, and send Stimpy on his way with a big hug and kiss.

Also, bite wounds generally heal slowly; however, if you notice any signs of infection, contact your vet immediately.

In any event, common sense and a panic free response will always prevail.

2 new Ford sport pickups aim at upscale, discriminating buyers

It has been clear for some time that many pickup trucks are being purchased by people who just like them and usually use them as they would cars.

Ford Motor Co. has brought out a couple of models aimed right at this youngish upscale market - the Splash and the Lightning. The Splash is a special Ranger XLT compact pickup and the Lightning is a full-size F-150 pickup with '60sstyle muscle under the hood.

A Ford spokesman said the Splash is designed to appeal to women and younger buyers, while the Lightning is a man's truck. I liked both, but preferred the Splash. The Ford spokesman declined comment, since I am an old guy. (In the press release, it says the Splash is also aimed at "non-traditional pickup truck buyers who are crossing over from the car market.")

Basically, the Splash is a Ranger compact pickup tweaked to appeal to the buyer who is going to use it to commute to work or go to the opera, not to haul manure (although it is perfectly capable of such chores).

Compared with the Ranger STX, which is nattily attired in colorful graphics but is otherwise a straight Ranger, the Splash is lower to the ground, feels much more like a car, does not bounce around as much on Detroit's crater-pocked roads and is more fun to drive.

The Ranger, top-selling compact pickup for the past six years, was completely restyled

"The 1993 Ford Ranger blends Ford compact truck toughness and versatility with contemporary styling and carlike comfort and convenience," said Ross H. Roberts, Ford Division general manager.

The '93 Ranger has a new lower hood and redesigned headlamps, grille bumper and front valence panel. Contributing to its aerodynamic appearance and its passenger car ambience are a windshield which is angled more sharply and is flush, as is side window glass, and limousine-style doors which blend into the roof and have concealed drip rails.

Complementing exterior styling are new cast-aluminum and stamped-steel wheels. The new Ranger also has a wider stance. Different grilles distinguish two-wheel and four-wheel-drive models.

Standard powerplant is a 98horsepower 2.3-liter Twin Plug four-cylinder engine. Optional is a new 3.0-liter electronically fuel-injected V-6 rated at 145 hp and a 4.0 liter V-6 which puts out 160 hr.

Ford Splash is a lower, flareside Ranger designed for fun.

The most distinctive feature of the Splash is that it has a flared pickup box, with fenders that flare like muscles and set the truck apart from the rest of the compact workhorses. And it is lower.

The Splash can be used as a workhorse too, although it costs about $1,500 more than an XLT, with base price starting at $12,175 for the Splash 4x2 and $16,434 for the 4x4.

The Splash's cargo box is 4.7 inches narrower than the standard Ranger's because of the flared fenders, so it won't carry as much. But it does all right. Its 108-inch wheelbase is the same as the XLT and like the XLT the 4x2 offers a standard payload of 1,050 pounds, while the 4x4 can carry 1,250 pounds. Towing capacities range up to 6,000 pounds.

The Splash is the first Ranger with standard 15-inch wheels and P235/60 tires on the 4x2 and P235/75 tires on the 4x4, tires big enough to run through just about anything in this summer of road repair.

The name "Splash" may have you thinking about fording streams (or freeway under passes), but that is not the case I IIV

Splash was an internal code name used during development, which was largely without official sanction.

Height of the 4x2 Splash is three-quarters of an inch lower in front and 1.5 inches lower in the rear. Lowering the ride height required a sport suspension package that includes new springs, shock absorbers and camber adjuster, all contributing to improved handling.

The 3.0 V-6 is standard on the Splash, but a good option is the 4.0 V-6, which enhances its performance and its passenger car feel.

Ford expects to sell about 35,000 Splash models.

Ford's other new sports truck, the Lightning, is an F-150 full-size pickup which has had a going-over by the Ford Special Vehicle Team, the same folks who brought us the Mustang Cobra. And the Lightning does go like its name implies.

Ford says that the Lightning has a narrow mission - "to entertain a select group of discriminating drivers." Philosophically, Ford says, the Lightning is a Mustang GT with a cargo bed instead of a back seat.

Built on the short-wheelbase regular-cab F-150 Styleside pickup, the Lightning is powered by a 5.8-liter 240-hp V-8 with port fuel injection, GT40 cylinder heads and a tunedlength tubular aluminum upper intake manifold. Adding to the truck's aggressive look are Firehawk GTA radials on 17inch cast-aluminum wheels.

Ride height is lowered to enhance cornering and larger anti-roll bars give a better balance to handling dynamics.

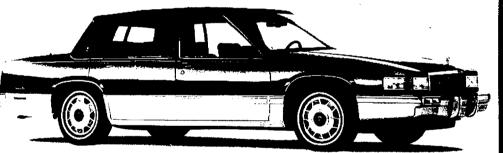

Production of 5,000 to 7,500 units is anticipated for the 93 model year.

Motorists asked give gift of life, put organ labels on driver's licenses

Every year the Michigan Department of State distributes up to two million donor labels to motorists for placement on the back of driver licenses and personal identification cards as a way to encourage organ and tissue donation.

This year, in addition to issuing the labels, Secretary of State Richard H. Austin is join-

Japanese production examined

Do production methods used by car makers in Japan make for a more productive, fulfilled work force, or does the Japanese system merely thrust added responsibilities upon workers without proportionate rewards?

Experts from Japan, Europe, and North America will take a close look at the Japanese model of factory management at a May 20-22 conference in Wayne State University's Mc-Gregor Memorial Conference

Panelists participating in the event, which is sponsored by the Labor Studies Center at WSU, will examine the strengths and weaknesses of Japan's so-called "lean production" approach to manufactur-

The Japanese approach is designed to use fewer workers and less inventory to produce cars at lower cost. Under this system, which is gaining favor among automakers in the West, employees work in teams and take on added responsibilities for inspection, housekeeping, and problem solving.

Proponents see the Japanese method as one that gives workers a greater sense of fulfillment, while improving quality and efficiency and reducing the boredom of assembly operations. Critics say the system can lead to management abuse and a stressful workpace, especially in the absence of a union.

The conference begins at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 20, with a panel discussion on "Lean Production: Empowerment or Exploitation?" This panel is free to the public, as is the Friday evening panel (also at 7:30 p.m.) on "European Labor and Lean Production." Daytime panels on May 21 and 22 cost $5 each and will examine particular issues and case studies of lean production in Japan, North America, and Europe.

Registration for the entire program is $30, with an additional charge for a 6 p.m. dinner on May 21 and a 1 p.m. lunch on May 22. For information, call Steve Babson or Onzell Patty at 577-2191.

Safe brakes essential

The cost of crashes is staggering, according to figures from National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

In 1990 the figure was $137.5 billion. Deleting the third attributed to "driving un-der the influence," there's still a $91.5 billion tab against the sober driver.

YPSILANTI

Sesi 950 E. Michigan 565-0112

An estimated 5 percent of these accidents are attributed to poor condition of the vehicle loose steering, a bald tire, bad brakes or other discrepancies. If, through proper preventive maintenance, we could avert just 10 percent of these accidents, says the Car Care Council, savings to society could be as much as $475.5 mil-

When having brakes inspected, which should be done at least annually, go to a professional. He'll look beyond the drums, lining and pads with which the layman is familiar. He'll examine the critical hydraulic system and the various hardware components that can wear or bind. New brake lining is worthless if the hydraulic system is leaking. He can spot worn bushings that can cause disc brake pad failure, and sticking calipers that can shorten brake lining life.

ing with Gift of Life, the organ procurement agency of Michigan, to remind motorists to use the labels.

"Since 1976 donor labels have been issued to motorists to promote organ and tissue donation," Austin said. "Last year 432 lives were saved in Michigan because someone was willing to donate an organ upon their death.

'Unfortunately, there are thousands of Michigan residents who will not survive without a transplant and this is why the donor label is so important. If a motorist has a signed label affixed to the back of their driver license they are more likely to have their wish for organ donation fulfilled in the event of their unexpected

The donor label is designed to encourage individuals to discuss organ and tissue donation with their family and friends. Once signed by the motorist and two witnesses, it is placed on the back of the driver license or I.D. card. New labels are provided when driver licenses and I.D. cards are renewed and are also available at any Secretary of State branch office.

Organs and tissues may be recovered from anyone 75 years of age or younger at no charge to the donor or their family. Organ and tissue donation is supported by all major religions and does not affect customary funeral arrangements or alter body appearance. Among the organs and tissues that may be transplanted are heart, lungs, kidney, liver, pancreas, bone, eyes and skin.

The Gift of Life Agency estimates more than 1,400 people are awaiting transplants in Michigan. Last year, some 72 people died away who were awaiting a transplant. Nationwide the numbers are more dramatic with more than 30,000 people on a transplant waiting list.

This year, we want to privide more information about organ and tissue donation so customers will be encouraged to make the important decision to give the gift of life," Austin.

Q. There are several pieces of children's furniture in my child's room that need repair. The items are not very expensive, but are not yet ready for a garage sale. There are some deep gouges and nicks in the wood, and I'd like to repair them.

A. There are several brand-name wood fillers that you can use to repair the damage you've described. You may want to visually check the condition of the legs, drawers and other movable or stationary parts. Be sure to also repair any splinters or split wood that may be hazardous. Wood filler can be applied with a putty knife or even your index finger. You may need to add more filler if the damage is very deep and the first layer recedes a little.

Follow the manufacturer's instructions for the drying time needed and then you can finish your job. Sand and feather the edges very smoothly, and try to blend with the wood's grain. There isn't an important need to apply a wood finish for children's

Some quick lessons in selecting windows

Thinking about remodeling a house or perhaps building a new home? Wouldn't it be nice to look into a crystal ball to find the right answers to all the questions?

Making major structural changes to a home or building a dream house can be extremely stressful and somewhat confusing.

To date, no one has discovered that elusive homeowner's crystal ball. However, there is help available to make the renovating and building process less stressful and confusing when it comes to window selection.

According to Patrick Bushey, territory sales manager, Pella Window Store, one easy way to add both aesthetic and energy efficient value to a current or new home is by selecting high quality wood windows:

"With so many window brands on the market, it's tough to know what to look for when someone is searching for a quality window. We encourage people to look at the overall construction of a window. A good window will have glued corners, joints which are designed to interlock and will use high grade fasteners.

Also, nail holes should not be visible. "High quality windows for homes have frames and sashes made of wood. Wood is still the material best able to combine beauty and insulating properties. Also, a high quality wood window will have been treated to resist moisture and insect damage."

High quality windows use glass that is free of optical distortions and is available in a choice of shaded or clear coatings to provide a choice of sunlight, color and ultraviolet radiation control.

Pella Window Store manager offers advice on purchasing quality windows, such as those shown above.

A fake, by George!

A fake George Washington! It seems ironic that the Father of Our Country, known through legends as the honest boy who chopped down the cherry tree, should be depicted by pottery fakes. About 1785, Enoch Wood, a potter in the Staffordshire district of England, made some pottery busts of Washington. In the days before cameras, the ceramic portrait was a popular decoration in upper- and middle-class houses. Wood's bust on a marbelized base pictured Washington in a blue coat and a ruffled jabot. The Staffordshire piece was so popular with collectors, it was copied many times. The first copies were made soon after the original by other potters in the area. A huge number of well-known fakes date about 1870.

The blue-coated bust is still being made and sold in flea markets in London. It has become increasingly difficult to recognize the old and new versions, but it is said that the newer busts show a waistcoat with three to five buttons. The newer pieces are also heavier and a bit smaller.

Q. According to an artist friend, my tubular metal table was made in the '50s by Warren McArthur. Is it valuable?

A. There is new interest in the furniture by Warren McArthur. He started making furniture in the middle 1920s. His first company opened in Los Angeles in 1930 and moved to New York City in 1933. McArthur went out of business in 1948, then opened a new company that continued in business until he died in 1961.

In the 1930s, the frames were made of aluminum or chrome-plated steel, but he soon switched to steel-reinforced anodized aluminum tubing. The frame was treated so it kept the silvery finish and resisted corrosion and scratches. A colored finish could also be ordered. The seats and cushions were made of colored leather or fabric. During World War II, the firm made seats for aircraft hombers.

Today, the designs of McArthur are gaining new recognition. Many of the early pieces were melted down and recycled during the war, so supplies are low. A table is worth from $1,200 to $1,500.

Home Tips

Special Stationery quite a few junk-mail catalogs as well as the newspaper. Rather than just throwing them away when I'm through, I try to do my bit by recycling. I clip out all the pretty or interesting pictures that could be used as a decoration on plain or lined paper and make my own stationery. It's easy to find pictures of interest to everyone you write to. This way, my stationery is different from anyone else's. I'm getting my money's worth out of junk mail and newspapers and saving money on expensive writing paper. I also do this to make unique birthday and anniversary cards.

Perfect cupcakes — Use an ice cream scoop when making cupcakes. All the cupcakes will then come out the same size.

Flatten boxes — I have found that before disposing of boxes, you can conserve space by flattening them

Just take a letter opener and open the opposite end of an alreadyopened end and then fold the box. Put the flattened box at the side of the trash and keep piling any others behind it. This should conserve trash space and reduce the number of trips outside.

A guide to America's most common home styles

Regional Director

Century 21 of the Great Lakes
Styles of houses vary across the country. From the New England Cape Cod to the Victorians of San Francisco, the choices are almost endless. Knowing which style you prefer is one of the basic elements in your hunt for the perfect home.

Following is a quick guide to help you recognize and use the professional terms for many of the most prevalent house styles:

• Ranch: These long, low houses rank among the most popular types in the country. The ranch, which developed from early homes in the West and Southwest, is one-story with a low-pitched roof. The raised ranch, which is also common in the United States, has two levels, each accessible from the home's entry foyer, which features staircases to both upper and lower levels.

 Cape Cod: This compact storyand a half house is small and symmetrical with a central entrance and a steep, gable roof. Brick, wood or aluminum siding are the materials most commonly seen.

• Georgian: Popular in New England, the Georgian has a very formal appearance with two or three stories and classic lines. Usually built of red brick, the rectangular house has thin columns alongside the entry, and multi-paned windows above the door and throughout the house. Two large chimneys rise high above the roof at each end.

• Tudor: Modeled after an English country cottage, Tudor styling fea-tures trademark dark-wood timbering set against light-colored stucco that highlights the top half of the house and frames the numerous windows. The bottom half of the house is often made of brick.

Queen Anne/Victorian: Developed from styles originated in Great Britain, these homes are usually two-story frame with large rooms, high ceilings and porches along the front and sometimes sides of the house. Peaked roofs and ornamental wood trim, often referred to as "gingerbread," decorate these elaborate • Pueblo/Sante Fe Style: Popular in the Southwest, these homes are either frame or adobe brick with a stucco exterior. The flat roof has protruding, rounded beams called vigas. One or two story, the homes feature covered/enclosed patios and an abundance of tile.

 Dutch Colonial: The Dutch Colo nial has two or 2 1/2 stories covered by a gambrel roof (having two slopes on each side, with the lower slope steeper than the upper, flatter slope) and eaves that flare outward. This style is traditionally made of brick or shingles.

• New England Colonial: This 2 1/ 2 story early American style is box-like with a gable roof. The traditional material is narrow clapboard siding and a shingled roof. The small-pane, double-hung windows usually have working wood shutters.

 Southern Colonial: This large, two- to three-story frame house is world famous for its large front columns and wide porches.

Split-Levels: Split-level houses have one living level about half a floor above the other living level. When this type of home is built on three different levels, it is called a tri-level.

These are just a few of the many styles of homes available across the country — some are more prominent in different areas than others. Knowing home style terms will help you zero in on the type of house that will fill your needs and suit your taste.

First easy step to a perfect lawn: The right fertilizer

Most homeowners want a beautiful, healthy looking lawn, not just for the aesthetic pleasure it gives, but for the environmental benefits and value it can add to a home.

Lawn care experts at The Scotts Co. say the activity of growing a thick, green lawn can be cut down to size by understanding one fact: a beautiful lawn begins with the type of fertilizer you choose.

A good fertilizer has two basic characteristics: time-released nitrogen and uniform particles, with each particle containing all the primary nutrients your lawn needs. Unless the fertilizer you choose has those two characteristics, your lawn may be subject to surge growth or uneven greening.

Fertilizers without time-released nitrogen supply the lawn with large amounts of nitrogen all at once. The result is a wild spurt of growth at first, and then, because the nitrogen has been used up, a lack of nutrition through the rest of the growing cycle.

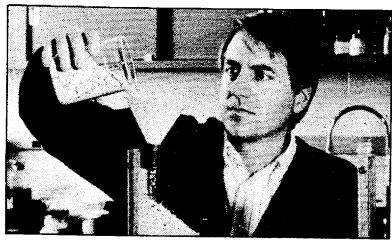

That's why Scotts, with its Turf Builder products, became a pioneer in proper lawn feeding. All Turf Builder products feature time-re-leased nitrogen to provide your lawn with nutrients on a steady basis. The lawn gets only as much nitrogen as it needs, when it needs it. That leads to steady growth for up to two months before another application is needed.

Turf Builder products are also different from ordinary fertilizers because they feature uniform particles in every bag. Ordinary fertilizers often contain mixtures of particles of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium. One part of the lawn can get too much of one nutrient and not enough of another. That can lead to uneven growth patterns and an undesirable appearance.

But Turf Builder products, employing Scotts' patented scientific formulation processes, spread the nutrients uniformly across all areas of your lawn. Every particle in every bag is made up of the same ratio of nutrients your lawn needs for healthy growth.

"Scotts wants people to be able to enjoy the beauty and benefits of a healthy, attractive lawn," says Dean Mosdell, turfgrass scientist at Scotts. "The secret to achieving a beautiful lawn is the combination of time-released nutrition and uniform, 'homogeneous' particles. Scotts Turf Builder products provide both those key elements in every bag."

For more information on selecting a lawn fertilizer, or for answers to other lawn care questions, call Scotts toll-free Consumer Hotline at 1-800-543-TURF.

Dean Mosdell, turigrass scientist at The Scotts Co., conducts a lab experiment showing the uneven particle distribution of simple mix fertilizers (note the streak of particles under the funnel). Application of a simple mix on your lawn can be inconsistent due to the different size, shape, and weight of nutrient granules. Instead, look for fertilizers that combine all essential nutrients in each particle to provide consistent feeding to every square inch of grass.

Scott Shuptrine, CCS to host 'one-of-a-kind' student works

Furniture and art enthusiasts can view a showcase of fresh creative talent as Scott Shuptrine Furniture and the Center for Creative Studies (CCS) team up on Thursday, May 20, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. for an evening of one-of-a-kind student creations.

Scott Shuptrine's Troy showroom, located at 977 East 14 Mile, will host a one-time opportunity to preview and purchase unique furniture pieces created by CCS industrial design students as part of scholarship competition sponsored by Scott Shuptrine. As an added highlight, John Mascheroni, Swaim Furniture's leading designer and fashion trend-setter, will be on hand as a special guest host.

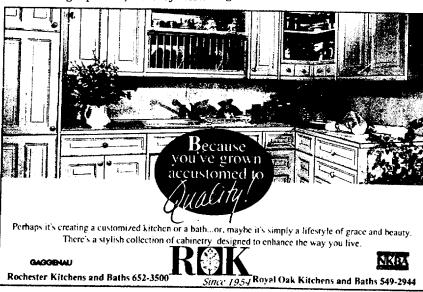

On display at the event will be the students' 25 full-size pieces, 45 miniature pieces of "maquettes," and many of their preliminary sketches. Guests will be able to see the students' design process, as they view the steps taken from initial concept to final production.

Those who attend may purchase many of these student maquettes in a silent auction. The 25 full-size student pieces will be judged by a panel of top furniture designers and buyers and awarded first, second and third place cash prizes, provided by Scott Shuptrine Furniture.

Admission is $35, with all proceeds benefitting the Center for Creative Studies Student Scholarship Fund. The dress for the evening is business attire, and wine and hors d'oeuvres will be served. As a special treat, all in attendance will be eligible to win a magnificent customized Swaim sofa.

Arranging flowers has blossomed through the ages

For centuries, people have admired nature, and then tried hard to arrange it according to their own designs. This can be seen very clearly in the art of flower arranging, as it has evolved over more than 2,000 years.

The ancient Egyptians used flower arrangements, with special emphasis on the blue water lily, for religious ceremonies. The Romans created extravagant wreaths and garlands for decorations, using a great variety of flowers and herbs.

Chinese Buddhist priests initiated floral decoration in Japan in the first century A.D., even though it was not until the Tea Ceremony was formalized in the 15th century that rules were drawn up for Japanese flower arranging, now world-famous as the ultimate in this art.

The tradition of flower arranging most familiar to Americans is the British art, and if the past is any guide, we expect the new popularity of flower arranging in Britain to presage a new wave of interest in this country.

In the last decade the British, by their own account, have had a tremendous revival of interest in this ancient art, which has touched thousands of lives, raised the standards of floristry, and caused a revival of interest in flower paintings, procelain containers, many aspects of the history of flowers, and in the development of new plants.

Also, there has been a great interest in the 18th century craft of creating arrangements with dried flowers and herbs, as evidenced in the popularity of Williamsburg arrangements.

The National Association of Flower Arrangers Societies was founded in 1959 under the auspices of the Royal Horticultural Society to unite the scores of arrangement societies that came into being after World War II and to provide a medium for the exchange of new ideas with other countries.

But the whole thing really began at least as long ago as the Tudor era. The Elizabethans used innumerable posies and nosegays, and one entry in a household account book of 1556 was for "a blew potte for flowers."

With the opening of new trade routes and the settlement of new lands in the 17th century, many newly discovered plants reached England and in the reign of William and Mary, growing exotics became a hobby among the rich. Queen Mary was the first to commission potters to make containers specifically for flowers.

The cut-flower trade began in the early 18th century and by the Victorian era, the wearing of small flower arrangements, or corsages, and the use of arrangements in the house were widely seen in Britain and in America. Professional florists were legion by the beginning of the 19th century, and greenhouses were built as important adjuncts to elegant homes.

Classes in flower arrangement are popular today all over the world, and this great interest in flower artistry has led in turn to a tremendous array of related industries. Interest in this lovely art shows no signs of abating and the future possibilities are endless.

In art, flowers have important significance. During the Renaissance, the carnation, or pink, as it was called then, signified betrothal. In portraits of this period, many show the subject holding a single carnation, or there will be one carnation in a vase in the foreground to indicate that the portrait was painted on the occasion of an engagement.

The lily is almost always included in pictures of the Virgin Mary, and the rose appears in many portraits with political significance. Flowers form the backgrounds of many medieval tapestries and the lace which was made in Spain, France, Belgium and Switzerland in the 16th and 17th centuries is filled with flower motifs. In India, the lotus flower occupies a prominent place in art and in sacred writings.

The Victorians developed a language of flowers which everyone understood. The recipient of a bouquet would know at a glance whether the sender was expressing jealousy, gratitude, love or despair. The type of flower and its color were the key symbols. Many charming little books were published at this time depicting the language of flowers in watercolor or steel engraving, with equally flowery text. They are collector's items now.

Furniture fashion frenzy slated at all four Scott Shuptrine stores

"Fashionable" is no longer a term that applies to clothing — Metro-D-troiters have become as fashion-conscious about their homes and furnishings, as they are about their apparel.

To help consumers keep up on the latest furniture trends, Scott Shuptrine Furniture presents "Home Fashion Now," a series of free seminars, shows and demonstrations. The various seminars will take place on Friday and Saturday, May 14 and 15, and Friday and Saturday, May 21 and 22, at the Scott Shuptrine stores in Troy, Novi, Bloomfield Hills and Grosse Pointe Farms.

Nine different seminars will take place in this special home fashion series:

• "Junk Into Funk" — Local artist Chris Freeman uses beads, baubles, faux finishing

• "Fabulous Faux" — Special finishing techniques from Baker, America's premiere manufacturer

• "Hand Carving" — Michigan's John Widdicomb Furniture demonstrates the hand-carver's art

• "Leather Craft" — From the frame up, Hancock & Moore and Lackawanna Leather build a chair

• "Oriental Rug Show & Sale" — Trunk Show, seminar on international history, derivation of styles

• "Chinoiserie" — Secret techniques applied by renowned craftsmen from John Widdicomb Furniture

• "Slip Covers For Today" — The newest techniques and fabrics are shown for this chic, versatile trend

• "Trompe L'Oeil" — Art of illusion, hand-painting, decorating techniques from Lexington's Art Cetera

• "In Person John Mascheroni" — America's leading contemporary furniture designer from the house of Swaim, demonstrates and discusses the very latest trends in pattern, color and design color and design.

In Grosse Pointe Farms at 18850

Ashes to ashes:

Many Grosse Pointe churches offer on-site alternatives to traditional in-ground burial

By Margie Reins Smith

Feature Editor Memorial gardens and columbaria are popular choices for families who want to preserve the memories of and pay tribute to deceased loved ones.

Many Grosse Pointe churches have dedicated garden areas near the church for placement of the ashes of deceased members and their families.

Cremation, in fact, has become much more common in the last 25 or 30 years.

David Otto, vice president of Chas. Verheyden Inc., said that cremation doesn't have anything to do with the type of funeral service the family chooses.

"It's only one of several methods for disposal of the remains of the deceased," he said. "And this is a very personal matter to be decided by each family."

Three choices exist for dealing with the remains of the deceased, Otto said - burial, entombment (above the ground in a mausoleum) or cremation.

"If cremation is the choice," he said, "there are four choices for the disposal of the cremated remains. They can be buried in a cemetery; they can be placed in the niche of a columbarium; they can be spread in a garden or in some place wellloved by the deceased; or they can be kept by the family."

According to Lawrence Frohriep, manager of the Cremation Society of Michigan Inc., cremation is chosen by 20 percent of the families of people who die in metropolitan Detroit.

"I've been in this business 30 years," Frohriep said. "Thirty years ago, the cremation rate was 1 percent. I think it has become more acceptable because more people do it . . . if that makes sense."

In other parts of the country - California, for instance - nearly 50 percent choose cremation, he said.

Frohriep described cremation as an acceleration of a natural process. The remains of the deceased are subjected to heat inside a special receptacle called a retort. The sixhour process reduces the human body to ashes that will fit inside a 6-inch cube.

The average person's ashes fill the cube from 1/2 to 2/3 full," he said.

Christ Church Grosse Pointe has had a columbarium and a memorial garden since

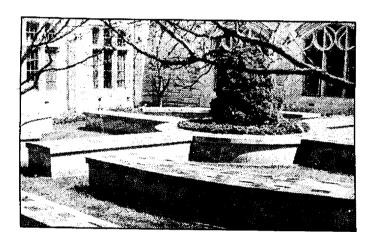

See ASHES, page 2B

Grosse Pointe's churches have memorial gardens and columbaria which serve not only as resting places for members' ashes, but as places for survivors to meditate.

At the left is the columbarium at St. Paul Catholic Church. Above, a sunken landscaped garden contains ashes of about 100 of Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church's deceased. At the right, Grosse Pointe Memorial Church's columbarium is designed in the shape of the seal of the Presbyterian church.

1966. The idea was so well-received, in fact, that the area has undergone two expansions.

Nadine Hunt, secretary to the Rev. Edward A.M. Cobden Jr., rector of Christ Church, said the garden was enlarged in 1971 and again in 1980. The church is planning a third expansion.

Christ Church offers two places for the ashes of its deceased - niches in the wall of its columbarium or burial in the memorial garden, which is planted with pachysandra and surrounded by a stone wall.

Hunt said the church's rose garden is nearby and forms a centerpiece for the area. The rose garden provides benches and a peaceful, beautiful setting for those who visit to remember or pay tribute to loved ones.

Lois Batten, chairman of the memorial garden at Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church, said placing the ashes of a deceased person in a garden makes wonderful sense to her.

"It's a beautiful way to go," she said. "It's very practical. I can't say enough in favor of it. My husband is buried there and I'm going to be there."

United Methodist's garden was dedicated in 1972, she said. The sunken, landscaped garden is in front of the church and is furnished with several statues and benches. Names of the more than 100 people buried in the garden are recorded and kept inside the church.

'Many of the flowers in the garden were planted in memory of people who are buried there," Batten said. Volunteers help with the garden's upkeep.

Batten said membership in Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church is not required for burial in its garden but fees are charged according to the deceased person's relationship to the church: $100 for members; $200 for relatives of members; $300 for someone not affiliated with the church.

Frohriep said Michigan has no rules regarding the disposal of a person's ashes, as long as it doesn't constitute littering.

You can keep the ashes," he said. "You can scatter them in your garden. You can place them in a columbarium. You can bury them. You can take them up north or out on the lake.

"Some people choose cremation because of the cost, which is considerably less than traditional in-the-ground burial. Some people just don't want to be put in the ground and a mausoleum (an above-ground tomb) is even more expensive. Cremation is sim-

He added that some people believe land will become scarce because of burials. Others feel cremation is more dignified than burial.

"Wayne County recorded 3,500 cremations in 1992," he said.

'The only objections to cremation I've ever heard deal with its break with tradition. Some ethnic groups and some people like the idea of traditional burial because it has always been done that way.'

Monsignor F. Gerald Martin of St. Paul Catholic Church said that historically, cremation went against the teachings of the Catholic church because it was seen as a denial of the resurrection.

"No longer," he said. "Not in the last 30 years or so.

St. Paul church has a columbarium with more than 1,000 niches. "Someone noted that people often visit our columbarium, presumably to pray for their loved ones,' Martin said. "For those who live in Grosse

Pointe, they're probably able to visit more often than if they had to drive across town

Grosse Pointe Memorial Church's columbarium is inside a walled garden adjacent to the entrance to the church. It's designed in the shape of the Presbyterian Church seal - a low wall of limestone and bluestone blocks with niches inside. Each niche holds two urns. Many people purchase niches before they die and all of Memorial Church's have been sold even though many have not yet been used.

Memorial Church offers two options for placing ashes in its garden. They can be sealed in a niche or scattered. A bronze plaque identifies the occupants of each niche, along with their dates of birth and death. A bronze plaque on a large rock beside the garden lists the names of those whose ashes have been scattered there.

Otto estimated that between 20 and 25 percent of people who come to Verheyden's funeral home choose cremation. They have a variety of reasons, he said.

'Some people feel we're using too much land for cemeteries. Others are uncomfortable with burial. Some are uncomfortable with cremation. Others are concerned about cost. Cremation can be less expensive," he said.

Many people want to remain in Grosse Pointe, a community they loved, Otto said. By placing your ashes in the garden of your church, he said, you can remain in the community you loved even after death.

A 'Night' full of comedy

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

"The Night We Never Met," a new romantic comedy, reinforces the oft-quoted comment "New York is a great place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there.'

Indeed, if the housing shortage is as acute as portrayed in writer-director Warren Leight's film, living there seems more like a prescription for murder than a decent way of life.

However, if you're a young, sophisticated yuppie as the characters are - and they really are characters - you won't mind sharing a crowded apartment where you have to step over bodies to get to the bathroom or listen to stereos blasting at all hours.

If you're stockbroker Brian McVeigh (Kevin Anderson), you can afford to lease a rent-controlled apartment to keep as a hideaway after marrying Janet (Justine Bateman). Since he will only need it for two nights a week, he sublets it for two days to Sam Lester (Matthew Broderick). The other two go two Ellen Holder (Annabella Sciorra).

Sam, who is having a difficult time getting over a broken romance, works in an upscale deli where he tries to talk customers out of buying the expensive French cheese instead of the cheaper local product. Ellen is a dental hygienist who lives in Queens with her dominating and insensitive husband, Aaron (Michael Mantell).

The three tenants come and go and never meet. Brian and his friends use the apartment to party. Sam, who loves to cook, enjoys quiet dinners there, and Ellen, who aspires to be an artist, paints.

While the focus is on those three, other characters who move in and out of their lives provide interest and humor. And the story kicks into high comic gear when the roomies switch nights.

In this strange configuration of events, anything is possible, and so is the prospect that Sam and Ellen, after working through their problems, will find that they are just right for each other.

All the main characters turn in terrific performances. Broderick is a lovable laid-back comic. Sciorra is both appealing and funny as the inexperienced wife trying to play a game more suited to one who knows the score.

Jazz explosion

The third annual East Side Jazz Explosion ignites Sunday afternoon, May 23, at Detroit's Alger Theater. Featured will be the Sun Sounds Orchestra, above, with trumpet superstar Marcus Belgrave, and Alembic Records artists the Steve Wood Quintet.

The Jazz Explosion has become a big event on the east side," says Alger Theater enthusiast Dennis Costello. "We've got a lot of talent in the area, as the roster for this year's concert reflects. These folks live here and come out to perform every year to show how exciting a community theater like the Alger can be. A portion of the proceeds benefit the Alger, so it's a great way to support the neighborhood, support jazz in Detroit, and have a great time on a Sunday afternoon."

The concert will begin at 3 p.m. at the Alger Theater, 16541 E. Warren at Outer Drive. Ticket information is available at Village Records and Tapes (313) 886-6039, located on Kercheval at St. Clair in the Grosse Pointe Village shopping area. The event is sponsored in part by the Detroit Council of the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs. Admission is $6 in advance and $8 at the door.

Legendary chef offers smoky secrets

Legendary chef Madeleine Kamman got her act together and took it on the road.

Her U.S. Food and Wine Tour chose to acquaint food writers and food lovers at 10 world-class restaurants with the School for American Chefs at Beringer Vineyards in Napa,

"Beringer Vineyards has had a long history of supporting and enhancing the relationship between good wine and good food," says Tor Kenward, a vice president with Wine World. Kamman, director of the School for American Chefs, and Kenward together created a scholarship program which presents not only a food experience, but a wine experience to young

"Give and you will receive" is Kamman's philosophy. An internationally recognized chef, her training has produced some of America's most creative chefs. Kamman came to America 25 years ago from France, and since that time has raised a family, operated two restaurants, taught hundreds of students, and given cooking demonstrations from Maine to Alaska.

"What I brought with me from France was good cooking technique," she said. "What I found here was a vast store of native American products. For me, this is what defines American cuisine; a combination of fresh available ingredients with good basic cooking skills.'

One of her former students, Grosse Pointer Jimmy Schmidt of the Rattlesnake Club, said, "A great teacher imparts the riches of her education and experience to her students, which is exactly where Madeleine Kamman began her teaching. Not only did she share her knowledge of food from a taste as well as a technical perspective but she opened the world of gastronomy, where food, wine and dining live in har-

Beringer Vineyards' School for American Chefs is located amid the breathtaking landscapes, grapevines, olives and thriving agriculture of California's Napa Valley. This prestigious graduate scholarship program for professional chefs is located in the premier Culinary Arts Center of the Hudson House, the winery's oldest building.

A series of intensive twoweek classes is held annually for students hand-picked by Kamman, who is recognized as one of America's finest chefs and cooking teachers.

Extreme creativity, business acumen, stamina and writing skills are some of the characteristics reviewed by the discerna ing educator.

Kamman teaches her students to think beyond a formula or recipe, to pursue creativity, to reconcile the food execution with the food cost, to respect the labor cost as closely as possible and to develop cooks as professionally as possible. 'I want to offer these young American chefs the opportunity of a good background while making a good living," Kamman said.

Quail with morels is a recipe that serves four people. It is a recipe that uses a back yard barbecue and a large pot in combination to the same end. The poultry can be chickens, rock Cornish game hens, guinea hens, pheasant or quail. Dried morels are readily available in fancy grocery stores and their light smokiness enhances the flavor of the dish.

For best results use a 10-inch saucepan. Follow the method as closely as possible for best re-

Cover the morels with lukewarm water. Wash their caps well by shaking them back and forth in the soaking water. Let stand for 3 hours. Remove the morels from the water one by one; separate the stems from the caps and reserve both. Pat the mushrooms dry. Strain the water well, reduce it to a quarter of a cup and set aside for later use.

Remove the neck from each quail. Rinse the birds well under clear running water. Pat dry with paper towels. Stuff a clove of garlic and an eighth of the mushroom stems into the cavity of each bird; add salt and pepper; truss.

The next day prepare a fire in your barbecue. Put all the quail on a cake rack; set the rack over a cake pan containing as many ice cubes as it will hold. Once the charcoal in the barbecue is smoldering white and just before you start the short smoking period, spray water over the sprigs of applewood and spread them over the charceal.

Wine Suggestion: Beringer's 1990 Napa Valley Chardonnay, 1988 Zinfandel and 1990 Ga-

May is Museum Month, the DIA celebrates it with glass

It started 13 days ago with a concert during Polish Day at the DIA, continues with Family Day on Sunday, and concludes with a film discussing the abstract expressionism of painter Barnett Newman on May 30.

It's the Detroit Institute of Arts' celebration of Musuem Month.

Special events and exhibits will be held all month to encourage people to come to the museum.

On Sunday, May 16, Family Day is planned, with something for everyone, including free admission.

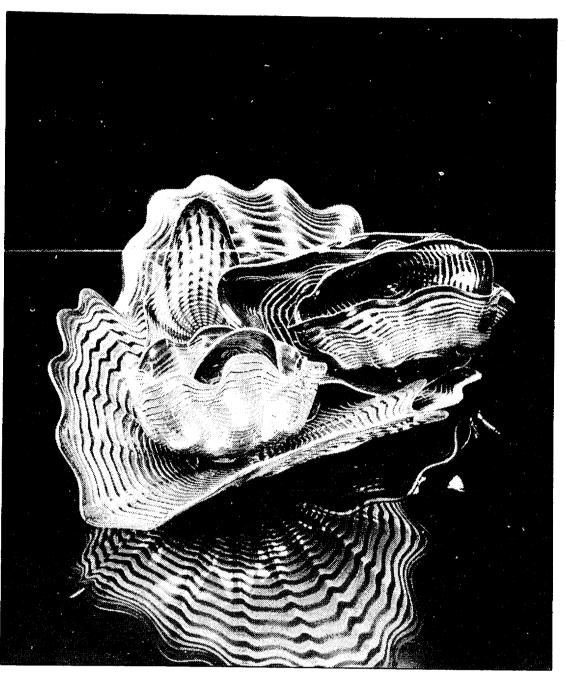

Artists' demonstrations will feature painter Jon Strand and glass artist Don Schneider. Guided tours, specially designed for families with kids, will be given and a group of young writers from the Detroit public schools will read poetry and prose written about works in the DIA's collection.

Special entertainment in the form of puppetry, magic and more will be provided by the Amazing Clark. African-American storytelling and a treasure hunt will also highlight the Music by the Cass Tech Jazz Band and a performance by students from the MBS School of Dance will cap off the day, which runs from 11 a.m. to 5

One of the most ambitious exhibits in DIA history was installed last weekend and will be on display through Aug. 15.

"Dale Chihuly: Installations 1964-1992" will fill 11 galleries with more than 7,000 square feet of colorful, whimsical glass

The exhibit will continue with a special lecture at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 23, given by Herb Babcock, professor and chair of the crafts department at the Center for Creative Studies, as well as a glass artist himself.

Also on Sunday, May 23, the DIA will host Cap & Brunch for all graduating students high school or college - featuring a brunch from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tickets are $10 for Founders Society members and $12 for the general public.

Another exhibit opening in May is "The Passionate Observer: Photographs by Carl van Vechten," an exhibition of 76 vintage prints of leading personalities in the arts - people like Paul Robeson, Eugene O'Neill, Salvador Dali, Marlon Brando and Billie Holiday.

The exhibition is free with general admission and will run through July 3.

For those who don't want the hassle of driving and parking downtown, the DIA Shop and Shuttle Express departs twice every Wednesday from Eastland Mall in Harper Woods. Tickets are available at the mall's customer service center. For $6 ($4 for Founders Society members) patrons get a trip to the museum, a docent-guided tour and enough time for lunch and time to yourself.

The DIA is open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Daily concerts make big weekend

By Alex Suczek Special Writer

The classical music scene last weekend was unusually busy and highly rewarding for any concert fan with eclectic tastes. No excuses were needed, however. The offerings were all of extremely high quality.

Friday evening's presentation by the Pro Musica Society featured the young and highly accomplished mezzo soprano Phyllis Pancella in a debut recital at the DIA. Her voice is rich and highly flexible, allowing her to use her impressive technique to outstanding advan-

In the very sentimental and touching song cycle by Robert Schumann, "A Woman's Love and Life," she brought a beautifully naive sentimentality to this expression of pre-Victorian wifely devotion to and dependence on her man. Then in a complete change of pace, she expressed unbridled passion for freedom in the poignant "Gypsy Songs" of Antonin Dvo-

The beauty of her vocal output was enchanced especially by her ability to put herself totally in the character of each song cycle. She exhibited, in fact, remarkable concentration on the interpretation of each song and displayed exceptional acting talent that added greatly to the performance.

Her accompanist Hal France, who is also a widely respected opera conductor, provided support at the piano that almost made the event a co-recital. His accompaniment of her expressive performance was highly sensitive and when he had solo passages, matched the drama and artistry of Pancella's performance.

It was a totally different experience at the DSO on Saturday night. The massive Choral Union came from Ann Arbor to join the symphony and four soloists in the overwhelmingly theatrical Verdi "Requiem." And everyone performed with distinction to create a highly moving experience.

Conductor David Zinman (music director of the Baltimore Symphony) maintained control of the work's wide-ranging operatic style. The drama thundered in the "Dies Irae" as brass resounded from the back of the balcony issuing the call to judgment.

Most impressive, also, was the exceptionally beautiful phrasing and clear enunciation of the chorus, directed by Thomas Hilbisch.

In all, this was a performance of Verdi's "Requiem" that seemed more likely to raise the dead than bury them.

Topping off the weekend on Sunday afternoon, the symphony organization presented the last of its recital programs in Orchestra Hall - truly the last for some time since the series has been cancelled for next year as an economy measure.

The artist was pianist Andre Watts in a program that quite ignored that this was Mother's Day. It was, in fact, a very serious and demanding program that enabled Watts to demonstrate his considerable tech-

His playing is brisk and sensitive and in the classical and 20th century works of Mozart, Schubert and Janacek, unadorned, clean and straightforward. When he turned to two etudes and the "Ballade in G" of Chopin, however, the transformation to a tender and romantic style was amazing.

It was a brilliant display of piano artistry diminished only by a tendency common among pianists of his generation to accelerate the tempo in a vivace or finale to a point where the shape and flow of the music are indistinct.

He made a stunning impact, nonetheless, with his final piece, the Rachmaninoff "Variations on a Theme of Corelli."

The enjoyment of this rich musical weekend was marred. however, by the realization that artists of the stature of Andre Watts will not be available in recital to Detroit audiences next season. There is no other series that presents them in our city. It seems like just one more disappointment to lay at the door of government withdrawal from support of the arts at both municipal and state levels. It amounts to a major loss in the enrichment of our community life.

But pleasures are still available. The Symphony Pops is on this weekend with pianist-conductor Roger Williams appearing Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon. For times and tickets, call 833-

Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra wraps '92-93 season

Music from Hollywood is final concert

By John T. Miller

The 40th season of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra came to an exciting close Sunday afternoon in the Parcells School Auditorium where an enthusiastic audience heard "Music from Films."

Maestro Felix Resnick was again on the podium, and the featured guest artist was the brilliant young pianist, David Paul Horn.

The program opened with Leopold Stokowski's orchestration of the organ piece "Toccata And Fugue in D Minor" of Johann Sebastian Bach. This piece was used as an introduction to the amazing Disney film "Fantasia," in which the various contrapuntal lines were graphically presented in abstract designs and figures. The Toccata was played with fine into the performance. spirit and precision. Oddly, the following Fugue was performed

"Symphonic Dances" from Leonard Bernstein's "West Side Story," and George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." The landmark Broadway musical "West Side Story" easily and effectively made the transposition from the theater to the cinema. The suite was played with much expertise, thanks in large part to the capable direction of Resnick, and it included some interesting vocal and percussive effects from the members of the entire orchestra.

To close the concert, Horn made his second appearance of the afternoon in a splendid performance of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." This seminal piece in American music, which occurred in the film of the same name, was one of the first cross-over musical compositions, which attempted to combine traditional symphonic styles with elements of American jazz. Horn demonstrated a dazzling, bravura technique, and the superb support of the orchestra resulted in a most satisfying and thrilling presentation.

There were also many fine solo contributions from individual members of the orchestra, including those by new concertmaster-designate, Cheryl Zetterholm. The audience gave the musicians a deserved standing ovation.

Outgoing president Johana Gilbert told the concertgoers that the 41st season will be just as grand as this season turned Laparoscopic surgery offers hope for chronic peptic ulcer sufferers Until recently, there weren't would remove part of my stomwas bowling — with my own 14-pound ball. It was not pain-

This surgery, called a vagotomy, involved cutting the nerves that provided acidity to the stomach and often included removal of part of the stomach. If the ulcer was left untreated, the sufferer faced the chance of perforation or bleeding.

Now, through the use of a laparoscopic procedure, ulcer patients don't have to lose part of their stomachs and they have a quicker recovery time.

Patricia Stone of Flint became one of Michigan's first patients to receive a laparoscopic highly selective vagotomy in December 1992 at Bon Secours Hospital. It was performed by Dr. A. Hawasli, a board-certified general surgeon in private practice on Detroit's east side who has a special interest in laparoscopic surgery.

"The use of a laparoscope to perform this surgical procedure means the patient has a much smaller incision, much quicker recovery - one to two weeks instead of four to six weeks and a shorter stay in the hospital — usually three to five days instead of seven to 10 days," Hawasli said.

"I've had severe ulcer problems for five years and my doctor recommended surgery that

In August 1992, she passed out from a bleeding ulcer and found herself in a hospital intensive care unit for four days. Her doctor then told her about the possibility of having this same surgery without losing her stomach and with the use of a new laparos-'I knew I needed something. There were many nights that

"This procedure is not recommended for everyone with ulcers. Most people can be effectively treated by the use of oral medications alone," Hawasli said. He also warned that patients may still have a recurrence or delay in gastric emptying, in which case a more conventional operation may be needed.

"But for those patients who need to have an operation or those patients with recurrent ulcer problems and long-term medical treatment, the laparoscope offers them a minimally invasive procedure which may save potential problems in the future," Hawasli said.

"I feel better than I have in five years," Stone said. "I had the procedure on Tuesday. By Wednesday of the next week I

The Pastor's Corner Cultural identity

By the Rev. V. Bruce Rigdon Grosse Pointe Memorial Church

Can you imagine what it would be like to wake up one morning to discover that you no longer had a national identity? What would it be like if you could no longer say, "I am an American?"

Sound far-fetched? That's precisely what has happened to millions of people in Central and Eastern Europe since the fall of the Berlin Wall. The peoples of the former Soviet Union, Yugoslavaia and Czechoslovakia, to name a few, are seeking new answers to the question history is addressing to them, "Who are you?"

Under similar circumstances how would you respond? Would you choose to become a Michigander, a Scot, a Presbyterian — or what?

For millions in our world at the end of this century, a desperate search for a new identity (and new borders) is under way. But identity always has its roots in the past, so most peoples are rediscovering themselves in very old nationalisms, in ancient ethnic cultures preserved across the centuries.

Tragically, for Central and Eastern Europe, these cultures and ethnic identities are based as much on whom to hate as they are on whom to love. To belong to one of these national communities one must remember with deep emotion the battles and atrocities of a thousand years which makes every neighboring group an enemy to be despised.

How else shall we understand the grotesque notion of ethnic cleansing?

Ironically, our century opened with precisely these bitter conflicts and dark emotions which eventuated in the unprecedented violence of the World War I. Their rise at the close of our century raises the question as to whether or not, after all this human suffering, we have learned anything from our own history.

Two quick observations, if I may. The first is to raise an alarm. At the heart of each of these emerging nationalisms is an ideology which exercises powerful legitimacy because it claims to represent one of the great religions of the world. Ethnic fervor is thus represented as religious zeal and violence is justified as a defense of the faith. The scene is being set for the world's conflicts to become confrontations between religious communities: Christian against Moslem, Roman Catholic against Eastern Orthodox, Christian against Jew, etc.

Indeed, our present conflicts from the Middle East to Eastern Europe already exhibit the deepening conflict of conservative forces within our religious communities. Now more than ever it matters what we teach our children about our faith!

What is at stake is whether or not the hot and cold wars of the 21st century will be fueled by religious fervor or whether religious communities will form the human bridges and connections that allow us to see cultural diversity as a gift and not a threat. Put theologically, the issue is whether or not our faith enables us to see the image of God in every human being and thus the infinite value of every person.

Second, the human family is not so different from our own families. We need to discover who we are as persons in relation to one another and not in opposition to each other. Even so, nations need to discover their uniqueness not at the cost of hating their neighbors but rather in building relations based on justice and mutual interest.

Let our religious communities demonstrate that such a thing is possible. Why not begin now, here in metropolitan Detroit!

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION* BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠ ♥ ♦ ♣

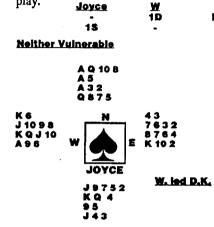

Joyce Bell of Oak Park recently made a sage observation that has much merit. "No one in our game should be given The Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval for skillful ability alone. First one should exhibit fair play and good demeanor. After that, the rewards for one's artistry." I think that tells you much about this vivacious, fun loving bundle of womanhood who is one of our most ardent duplicate enthusiasts. There are few who have given an unselfish helping hand as often to any number of our bridge projects. These past few years, her name has been prominent on almost every S.O.M.B.A. tournament schedule printed and that's for two very becoming reasons. She's ever so willing and exceptionally able. Be it partnership, hospitality, refreshments or any number of other major undertakings she's always there and that's a significant plus for our wonderful unit and for the advancement of the duplicate

Next week will be our prestigious Wolverine Regional (Southfield Civic Center Pavilion 5/18-23) and it will draw every grade of player from all over for six days of brain bending, but glorious fun. Joyce is co-chair of novice partnerships and that's no easy task placing the right person in partnership with another for the joy of playing and a chance at winning. This lovely lady just thoroughly enjoys the adventures of life. She's a swimmer, snorkeler, fisherwoman too who still finds time to read a number of The Book of the Month Club's best and play duplicate at least three times a week. That's a pretty busy schedule for the fairest young grandmother I've ever had the pleasure of playing with.

Our star of today's publication first started playing in the early sixties, but raising a family forced her to abort this pleasurable pastime and she didn't return to the table for a second sojourn until four years ago this spring. But Joyce is very adept at making up for lost time and in just this most recent period, she has captured two hundred plus points on the way to her life mastership. At this rate, she should attain that remarkable goal within the year. How I would like to harness her talent, and I've told her, to develop her technique and discipline. Surely the urge will come someday and then we'll see her crowned a winner ever so more often.

I have held in abeyance a fine example of her talent as declarer in a wee bit of a sticky over-bid from a Southfield Pavilion game last fall. North with his handsome 16 H.C.P. was a little over zealous with his second bid and should have been content with an invitation of three spades. Sometimes the informative doubler fails to remember that he's forcing his partner to bid who may be barren of high cards. See if you can solve the problem as Joyce did with a very effective expert

Joyce realized that ten tricks were likely if the ace, king of clubs were with west and the king of trumps too. But the opening lead suggested West had the king, queen of diamonds and with all those cards he would have bid a no-trump. With the ten, nine of clubs also missing, guessing the suit could be impossible. Joyce won dummy's diamond ace and played three rounds of hearts in which she pitched a diamond on her queen. At trick (5) the spade jack and then the nine winning West king with dummy's ace. It was now a mandate that she play dummy's last diamond and her nine forcing West to win. Note that the opponents must now break the club suit which gives declarer her tenth or the equally unattractive sluff and a ruff. Many didn't find this play and were held to nine tricks. When the opponents can help you, throw them in and let them do so and that's what Joyce did.

North's Gauerke puts students' interests first

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

Tom Gauerke runs the athletic department at Grosse Pointe North by one rule of thumb.

"Whenever we're meeting about sports, I always say 'What's best for the kids?" said Gauerke, who was recently honored by the Michigan Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association as athletic director of the year for Region 9, which includes most of southeastern Michigan.

'The reason we have co-curricular activities is for the kids," he said. "College recruiters tell us that the greatest predictor of success is not grade-point average or college board scores, but active involvement in co-curricular activities. That's why you'll never hear me refer to them as extra-curricular. They aren't extra, but an important part of a student's all-around education."

Tom Gauerke of Grosse Pointe North was recently honored by the Michigan Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association as athletic director of the year for Region 9.

Gauerke, a native of Waukesha, Wis., received his bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse. He began his teaching career at Poupard Elementary School in 1960 and two years later started coaching as an assistant in football, swimming and track at Grosse Pointe High School.

Gauerke was the head track coach his last two years at the school and when North opened in the fall of 1968, he moved there as head track and cross country coach. During his coaching career at North, Gauerke built a prep dynasty in track and cross coun-

In 1976, Gauerke added the athletic director's duties. Three years later he became administrative assistant for athletics and gave up his coaching duties. In 1988 his title was changed to assistant principal — athletics.

"What comes through in every encounter with Tom is his love of kids and his commitment to education," said Grosse Pointe Public Schools superintendent Edward J. Shine. "Tom has accepted every challenge, worked with every would-be adversary, found workable solutions to almost every problem and enriched our lives by his strength and conviction." Gauerke has seen several changes in high school athletics since he became AD at

"There's more opportunity for kids to get involved today," he said. "There are more sports being offered and enrollment has dropped. When I first started coaching at Grosse Pointe, we had an enrollment of about 3,000 students and all that participated were about 300 boys. Now, at North we have 1,080 students and more than 500 participate in boys and girls sports.

Thirty years ago, 90 percent of the students were spectators. People talk about there not being as many spectators at the games. One of the reasons is that so many more students are participants.'

Another major change involves the coaching staffs.

"As enrollment declined, many of the younger teachers left the profession," Gauerke said. "It's demanding to be in the classroom from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. and many older teachers don't have the energy to spend another three hours in coaching.'

So Gauerke, and many other athletic directors, have to go outside the school to fill coaching vacancies.

"Trying to find coaches is the most challenging part of this job," Gauerke said. "More than 80 percent of our coaches don't teach in the school. That makes it more difficult to recruit kids and to develop a rapport with them."

Gauerke looks for one thing when he's hiring coaches.

"The most successful coaches are the ones who coach kids, not a particular sport," he said.

Because many coaches come from different walks of life, Gauerke has a dinner meeting with his entire staff before the start of the school year. He also has each coach over to his house for meetings during the season.

"The closeness just doesn't exist because the coaches don't all teach in the same building," Gauerke said. "But it could happen again. Many of the older teachers are reaching retirement age and when we hire new people, I hope they'll have an interest in coaching."

Although enrollment has declined and diluted the athletic teams and it's more difficult to find coaches, North has maintained excellent programs in nearly every sport.

"People expect the same level of excellence we've always had at this school and I think we've done a good job of keeping the standards as high as they've always been," Gauerke said.

"I talk to other ADs and pick their brains. I've learned a lot from my colleagues. Nobody has all the answers. That's why it means so much to be selected by my peers for this award.' Gauerke is also proud of the fact that his athletic teams have excellent grade-point averages.

"That doesn't just happen," Gauerke said. "Academics are an important part of the whole athletic program here.'

Gauerke was one of the guiding forces behind the formation of the Macomb Area Conference.

"I felt that the old league alignments didn't satisfy the needs for the future," he said. "They were no longer in the best interests of the kids. Schools with enrollments of 600 were playing schools with 2,000 students.' Not only does the MAC split its divisions according to enrollment, but also by strength of individual sports. That's why the Grosse Pointe schools, although their enrollments are among the smallest in the league, are in the top divisions in tennis and

"We're the first league to realign according to sports," Gauerke said. "Our goal is to provide the best and safest competition possible for all the athletes.'

Gauerke is in charge of the alignment committee, which meets each year to decide which schools belong in each of the MAC's three divisions.

Gauerke is one of fewer than 20 athletic directors in Michigan to be accredited by the National Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association. Among the others are South's Jo Lake and Joe Spada of Notre Dame.

Accreditation is achieved by passing a test administered by the national association.

"It isn't the kind of a test you can study a manual to prepare for," Gauerke said. "It's a tough test and I think a lot of ADs have been scared away from taking it."

Running the athletic program at North is more than a 40-houra-week job for Gauerke.

"I'm in the office from 8 to 5 almost every day and I try to see each of our teams play at least a few times each season. The winter is most demanding because there's something almost every night," he said, "but I love it. I can't imagine getting up in the morning and dreading going to work. I've been in education now for 33 years and I haven't even thought about retiring."

When that day finally comes, Gauerke's successor will have some big shoes to fill.

Depth a major factor in South's track success

Sports Editor
There's one word that keeps coming up whenever Grosse Pointe South's track coaches talk about their teams.

It's depth and it's a major factor in keeping the boys and girls squads undefeated in dual competition this year.

"We've never had a real good dual meet record, but this year the ball got rolling and the kids would like to keep it going," said Werner Schienke, who has guided the boys team to a 5-0 record in dual meets after last week's 86-51 victory over Grosse Pointe North. The Blue Devils also beat Romeo 100-31 in a Macomb Area Conference White Division meet.

"The depth factor, getting a lot of seconds and thirds, has been a big part of our success," Schienke said. "We also have a good core of seniors, who've held it all together.'

It's the same story with coach Steve Zaranek's girls team, which is 4-0 in league meets and 6-0 overall.

"We've outscored the opposition 95-5 in the relays, which is a good indication of our depth," Zaranek said after South's 8642 win over North. "The depth was the difference today and it's been a factor with our team for several seasons.'

South's boys had several fine performances in the meet with North, including a winning time of 2:05 by Matt Stentz in the 800-meter run.

The Blue Devils' other individual firsts were by Alex Olmstead, pole vault; Dan Quinn, 1,600; Matt Reynolds, discus; Pete Gillespie, low hurdles; Chris Alff, 3,200; Paul Motley, 400; and Tim McGahey, high Motley was second in the high jump, while McGahey finished third in the high hurdles with an excellent time of 15.87.

Gillespie, Anthony Murray, Andy Lee and Alex Keros turned in an excellent time in winning the 1,600 relay. South also won the 3,200 relay.

North's firsts came from Hayko Ekmekjian, high hurdles; Eric Peters, long jump; Geoff Grant, 100; Jon Rapp, 200; and Tom Fennell, shot

North won the 800 relay with Rapp, Eric Peters, Grant and Hosea Peters and the 400 relay team of Rapp, Mike Song, Grant and Ekmekjian also took first place.

South's girls took 10 of the 12 running events in their meet against North.

The Lady Devils put the meet out of reach when they swept the 300 hurdles with Becca Walter, Lisa McCurdy and Rebecca Schultz finishing South won all four relays with the 3,200 team of Rachel O'Byrne, Shannon McGratty, Amy Balok and Eileen Lang winning in 10:26. Schultz and O'Byrne then went 1-2 in the 100 hurdles.

Melissa Van Hoek, Walter, Kristine Mueller, Gretchen Carter, Katy Lupo and Amy Zanglin made up the winning 400 and 800 relay teams. Mueller and Lupo gave South a 1.2 finish in the 200.

Claire Schrom won the 400. O'Byrne took first in the 800, and Mary Rowe won the 3,200 for South, which wrapped up the meet when Lupo, Schrom, Balok and Zanglin won the 1,600 relay.

Balok gave the Lady Devils their only first in the field events when she cleared 5-feet in the high jump, but Martha Kerfoot, Jenny Mangol, Heidi Wise, Katie Weed and Meghan O'Loughlin placed for South.

North had two double winners as Linda Krieg won the shot put and discus and Anne Maliszewski took firsts in the 100 and long jump. The Lady Norsemen's Jessica McLalin won the 1,600 and was second in the 800.

South received personal bests from 72 of its 99 athletes in the North meet.

Earlier, South's girls beat Romeo 83-45. Balok recorded a personal best of 5-3 in winning the high jump. Other top efforts came from Kathy Bardeen, high jump; Keri VanderMale, discus; Anna Manion, 400; and Lauren Beckenhauer and Anne South's boys had several fine performances against Romeo. Gillespie won both hurdles races and anchored the winning 800 relay. McGahey was second in both hurdles and the high jump, while Motley won the high jump and was second in the 400.

Quinn was second in the two distance races and Ron Watters won the long jump. Chris Johnson, Stentz, Dan Taylor and Ted Hill turned in a good time in winning the 3,200 relay.

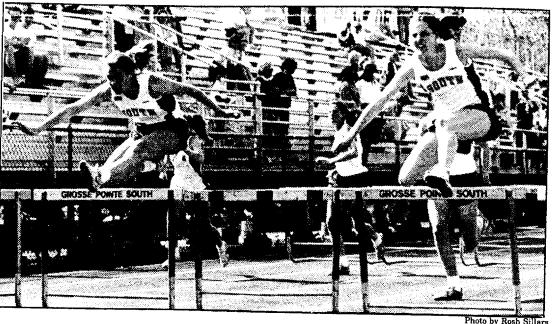

South took a partial squad to the Troy Athens relays and the team of Gillespie, McGahey, Ed Trojanowski and Larry Drummy finished fifth in the shuttle hurdle relay.

Freshmen Nat Spurr, Ben Butler, Jon Van Hoek, Brian

Czerny and Tim Nicholson ran well in relay races.

North 80, L'Anse Creuse 57: Multiple wins by Bill Stevenson and Hayko Ekmekjian and wins by Tom Fennell, Eric. Peters, John Ament, Geoff Grant, Shareef Simaika and the 400 relay team of Jon Rapp, Mike Song, Peters and Grant led the Norsemen to the important MAC Blue Division

L'Anse Creuse 66, North 62: Jessica McLalin (800, 1,600, and 3,200) and Anne Mali szewski (100, 200, 400) each won three events, but L'Anse Creuse handed the Lady Norsemen their first setback in the MAC Blue. Tanya Hamilton won the high jump for North; which also had a first from the 3,200 relay team.

Rachel O'Byrne and Rebecca Schultz gave Grosse Pointe South a 1-2 finish in the 100-meter hurdles in last week's meet against Grosse Pointe North.

Sports Perfect week vaults South into state's top 10

Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's baseball team is experiencing the best of two worlds these days.

The Blue Devils are getting excellent pitching, especially from seniors Kevin Brennan and Fritz Coyro, but the hitting has been just as solid.

"Kevin pitched his best game of the year last Friday against L'Anse Creuse North. He had great command of his pitches." coach Dan Griesbaum said of the six-hit, 14-strikeout performance in South's 4-2 victory over the Crusaders. Brennan only walked two.

This week, Coyro won for the fifth time in six decisions when he went the distance in a 15-2 romp over Anchor Bay. Coyro allowed three singles, struck out eight and walked only one.

"We're batting .330 and have only one batter over .400 so there's a lot of balance in the lineup," Griesbaum said.

South improved its league record to 6-0 and the Blue Devils' sweep of the three games in last weekend's Fraser tournament boosted their overall ranked seventh in the state in Class A.

"Sometimes that's the kiss of death, but it's nice to see the kids recognized," Griesbaum said. "They've worked hard."

Brad Dunlap led the hitting attack against L'Anse Creuse North with a triple and single and two RBI. Brennan and Corey Geer each had RBI singles and Jay Harrington added two hits.

There were several hitting heroes against Anchor Bay. Erik Lindsay had three hits, including a double, and knocked in two runs. Matt Haack had a double and single and three RBI, while Harrington, Brennan and Dunlap each drove in two runs.

South broke the game open with a six-run third inning.

The Blue Devils began play at Fraser with a 3-2 victory over the host Ramblers, scoring the winning run on a throwing error during a two-run rally in the sixth inning.

Eugene Agnone allowed three hits and struck out five to record the victory. Coyro came on to get the final out. Lindsay had two hits, including a double, and Mike Hendrie had an RBI single. Haack and Mike Formolo each collected two hits for South.

Harrington got the win and Randy Vasser pitched one inning and fanned three to earn the save in South's 7-5 victory over Grosse Pointe North.

Haack and Lindsay each had two hits and two RBI, while Harrington helped himself with a two-run single.

Tony DiLaura hit a homer and double for North, while Mike Haskell hit a two-run triple in the Norsemen's four-run fifth inning that made the score

The Blue Devils wrapped up the tournament championship with a 13-3 win over Lakeview. Paul Coyro pitched a three-hitter for the victory.

South scored 11 runs in the third inning on six hits, three walks and three hit batsmen.

Geer and Steve Booher each had two hits and two RBI. Vasser hit a two-run double and Agnone singled home two runs.

South nips North to take title

Tournaments seem to bring out the best in Grosse Pointe South's softball team this sea-

The Lady Devils, who took first at Port Huron Northern earlier this season, won their own Grosse Pointe Invitational with a 3-2 victory over crosstown rival Grosse Pointe North.

Both teams finished 2-1 in the round-robin tournament, but the first tie-breaker was head-to-head competition and that gave coach Peggy Van Eckoute's South team the first place trophy.

Starters Kristin Candea of South and North's Beth Bertelsen each pitched well in the championship game and both teams played well on defense.

South's Kim Apple and Stephanie Coddens each made several fine catches in the outfield.

Angela Roxas squeezed one run home for South, while Jenna Nutter tripled and scored on Coddens' single. Meredith Wolfe scored the Lady Devils' other run after reaching first on a fielder's choice.

Laura Cartwright, Stacey Kent and Roberta Ricci were North's top hitters.

South opened the tournament with a 4-2 victory over Birmingham Seaholm. Nutter and Laura Stuckey each hit doubles for the Lady Devils, while Sara Provenzano knocked in two runs. Wolfe and Roxas had South's other RBIs.

A key defensive play in the last inning preserved the victory. The Maples had runners on first and third when the batter hit a grounder to Nutter at third. She faked a throw to first and got the runner at third in a rundown. She was then tagged out by catcher Wolfe on a fine play.

Candea picked up the victory with relief help from Susan Khalifah.

Rochester handed South a 10-6 setback for the Lady Devils' only loss of the tournament.

Coddens had an RBI double, Stuckey scored two runs and Kim Apple stole two bases. Molly Katchmark, Wolfe, Provenzano and Kristin Apple had South's other hits.

North blanked Rochester 7-0 in its first game as Bertelsen fired a three-hitter, struck out two and didn't allow a walk.

Heather Arioli hit a two-run double in the fifth inning to

Grosse Pointe South coach Tom Berschback is trying to fit the right people into the right spots as the high school tennis season heads into the stretch

"I'm still trying to find the right doubles combinations and I'll have to have the team set by the end of this week,' Berschback said after the Blue Devils took second place in the University Liggett School tournament last weekend and moved into fourth place in Class A in the weekly state rat-

One of Berschback's new doubles teams, Tom Rhoades and Andy Giraldo, won second doubles at ULS with a 4-6, 6-4 6-2 victory over Ann Arbor Pioneer's team in the championship match.

"It was a gratifying win for them because they'd only been playing together for four days, Berschback said. "Beating Pioneer should get them a state

Berschback planned to experiment with some other doubles teams in this week's Macomb Area Conference tournament and in the Trenton tournament on Saturday.

"It's difficult just to have challenge matches in practice," the coach said. "I like to see how they play against other teams for very important stakes. Communication is everything for a doubles team. When you have a team that works well together, you really have something."

South's Jeff Wheeler won the No. 2 singles flight with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over a Pioneer player and the Blue Devils' No. 4 doubles team of Andy Schumaker and Rob Hostetter also beat Pioneer in the finals.

South's Cullen McMahon lost to Pioneer's Miki Pusztai 6-0, 6-2 in the championship match at first singles. Pusztai won the No. 2 singles flight in last year's Class A state tournament.

The Blue Devils' Andy Loredo also reached the finals in No. 3 singles before losing to a Pioneer player.

Pioneer finished with 21 points to South's 18.

Earlier, South clinched the MAC Red Division championship with 8-0 victories over Sterling Heights and Chippewa Valley. The Blue Devils finished 7-0 in the division and every victory was 8-0 except a 7-1 win over Grosse Pointe

"Even though we won most of the matches 8-0, the competition in doubles around the league is getting a lot better," Berschback said. We would be of close matches. In singles we were too strong for most teams, but we had to work to win dou-

South also took first place in the Grosse Pointe Invitational, finishing with 14 points to seven for runner-up North. Grand Blanc was third with six points and Redford Catholic Central had five.

The Blue Devils swept the four singles flights as Shawn Coyle won a three-hour match in fourth singles and Loredo took a three-set match to win No. 3 singles. In doubles, Jeff Halso and Paul Power won a three-set final at No. 1 and Todd Scallen and Schumaker won at No. 3.
