Park officer shot by murder suspect

A 16-year veteran of the Grosse Pointe Park public safety department was expected to be released from St. John Hospital this week following treatment for a gunshot wound to the right hand.

Sgt. Steve Johnson suffered extensive damage to his hand June 3 when he, along with Park and Detroit police officers, was pursuing a Detroit man who was seen stripping a stolen car in the Manistique and Vernor area of Detroit.

Surrounded by police, the 16year-old suspect turned around, faced Johnson and fired three rounds, with one striking Johnson's hand.

"I want to let go of this job," he said. "What I'm doing is important and valuable, but I don't have time to do what I want. I'd like to read a book that has nothing to do with education. I'd like to tour all the great opera houses of Europe. I'm not torn about this, I'm not second-guessing. I want it to be my turn."

McCaig was born in Chicago and was educated in the Chicago public schools. He was very active in high school as director of the student choir, a varsity athlete and sports editor of the student newspaper.

After graduation, McCaig completed a double major in three years at Monmouth College in Illinois, earning a bachelor's degree in English and philosophy. He completed master's degree work in English literature at the University of Chicago and had planned to get a doctorate in English literature and teach at the university level. But when his wife announced she was pregnant, McCaig set aside his plans, obtained his teaching certificate from Oberlin College in Ohio and was hired by the Grosse Pointe schools.

He taught at Parcells for 16 years, inspiring a number of his students to read, write or go on to study English and pursue careers in education.

In 1968, he became an administrator in the district. Highlights of his work in the research and evaluation departing and writing coach for both ment include inventing the first evaluation model for student writing and the first research-based curriculum for teaching writing, conducting a district-wide study on racism and sexism in textbooks and researching the cause and coming up with a cure for gender problems in math learning.

In recent years, his accomplishments include the formation of a magnet program for gifted students, elementary school curriculum programs that cater to the needs of all learning ability groups and a district generated math assessment test.

Meade leasing moves sales office from Hill to Utica

Seeking a more centralized location, Ken Meade has moved the sales office of Meade Auto Leasing & Rental Inc. from 130 Kercheval on the Hill to his 22acre Lexus dealership in Utica.

"I had a vacant building in Utica," Meade said. "All we moved was the sales office."

Meade said that the building and property are up for sale.

The building was built in 1948, when Emmet Tracy moved his Lincoln-Mercury dealership, Tracy Motor Sales, to the Hill.

Tracy sold the dealership to Frank Adam in 1955, but retained ownership of the building and property.

Frank Adam Lincoln-Mercury was the building's tenant until 1970, when the dealership was sold to Mike Dilber, who operated it under his name.

In 1982, Lincoln-Mercury closed the dealership, and the building remained vacant for about a year.

Ken Meade bought the building in 1983, to house his leasing and rental business.

Grosse Pointe schools cautious despite defeat of Proposal A

Although school district officials are relieved that Proposal A was defeated by voters on June 2, they are still bracing themselves for further "unknowns" in state funding for

On the brink of finalizing its 1993-94 budget, Grosse Pointe Public School System officials were waiting for last week's state ballot proposal results before making further adjustments.

The district's projected budget for next year is $63.3 million for the general fund and school service fund; $2.9 million for the library fund; $1 million for the debt fund; and $700,000 in the building and site fund.

"We were pleased (that it failed) only from the standpoint that we didn't think it was a good idea," said Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent for business and support services.

"We are relieved that it didn't pass but we know there's going to be other financial constraints out there. Whether it's assessment limitations or additional retirement costs that we'll have to pick up."

The district currently levies 32.3165 in operating mills. Proposal A would have rolled back and capped the rate at 27 mills.

In addition, the board felt that a property tax decrease coupled with a sales tax increase would likely increase overall taxes for Michigan residents.

Grosse Pointe school officials also were concerned about Proposal A's impact on the Grosse Pointe public library, since its millage rates are tied to the school system's millage.

The proposal's failure does not mean the district will drop its defenses. Fenton said the district is anticipating further action from Lansing in the next couple of weeks.

The district's list of unknown threats still includes the possibility of property tax assessment freezes and changes in the school state-aid formula that would require the district to pay more for retirement and other costs, he said.

The district will adopt its budget by the June 30 deadline based on the information it has available. Adjustments based on forthcoming changes will have to be made later, he said.

'There are other unknowns,' he said. "The Clinton healthcare proposal — when will that be and who's going to pay for it? There's talk of the BTU tax - we address these as they come up and obviously do some planning for them.'

Fenton theorized that voters defeated Gov. John Engler's proposal because of a statewide distrust for government. Many people don't like government period, he said, but locally, at least (people) can control it bet-retirement costs.

Fenton had said earlier that the district had indentified certain areas of the budget that would be cut if Proposal A passed. The district still has $400,000 worth of proposed cuts throughout the system. None have been made yet, he noted.

Whether the proposal had passed or not, cuts would have to be made, he said.

We think there's something else coming; this isn't over," he said. "The state has tried all sorts of proposals. I think we will see a resurrection of the Olmstead-Kearney Proposal. The backers came out in favor of Proposal A."

The O/K Proposal, introduced by two Michigan educators, proposes to require the state to match local taxpayer support for schools and to use the lottery proceeds as they were originally intended. In addition, O/ K would allow school districts to roll back operating tax rates to 30 mills, without reducing per-pupil spending.

Cities were set to make cuts if tax-shift plan had passed

By Jim Stickford and Chip Chapman

Thanks to the defeat of Proposition A, Grosse Pointe fiscal planners won't have to cut city budgets to make up for revenue losses that would have resulted if the measure had passed.

If voters had approved Proposition A, the Woods would have had to cut about $180,000 from the city budget, said Woods city manager Phil Belcher.

The Woods receives a collection fee equal to 1 percent of the money the city government collects on behalf of the public school system.

Proposition A primarily would have reduced school millage rates. City millage rates would have been unaffected. Proposition A would have also limited the increase in property assessments to 3 percent for Assessments in the Woods, after a two-year freeze, went up an average of 6.5 percent, Belcher said. Overall, if Proposition A had passed, the Woods would have lost about $180,000 in revenue out of a general fund budget of $8.3 million.

"We operate on a tight budget," Belcher said. "There isn't a whole of of fat that we can cut. If the proposition had passed, we would have cut down on employee training and we would have replaced one less city vehicle. We can now stick with the budget schedule we established before we learned about Proposition A."

Now that the voters have rejected Proposition A. Belcher is worried about what the Legislature in Lansing will do.

"I'm afraid we will have a situation similar to the auto insurance proposition," said Belcher. "When the voters overwhelmingly rejected an November, the state House and 1.26 from a year ago. Had Pro-Senate, along with the governor went and passed legislation similar to the proposition voters rejected."

Belcher plans to get in touch with local legislators to find out what the politicians in Lansing are planning. He said being able to plan a budget depends on knowing what and how taxes are collected.

Park city manager Dale Krajniak said that the Park's budget figures are based on revenue rates that would have largely been unaffected by Proposition A. Because the Park's population is smaller than that of the Woods, the collection fee from the school district is smaller.

The city council also raised spending by only 3 percent, despite assessments going up by an average of 13 percent. If Proposition A had passed, it would not have affected revenues much. Krajniak estimated the passing of Propostion A would have cost the city about $30,000 out of a general fund budget of $6.2 million.

To reach budget goals, the millage rate in Grosse Pointe City will increase to 13.24 ($13.24 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation), up 0.57 from the previous year. Had Proposal A passed, the millage rate would have been 14.02.

The tax rate for debt purposes will be 0.14 mills making the total millage rate for the City 13.38. This tax rate would have remained 0.14 even if Proposal A had passed.

Residential assessments for the City rose an average of 9 percent over last year. The state equalized valuation for the City's real and personal property has been estimated to be $249,872,750.

Konsler said she is concerned about continuing to spend the district's educational funds on maintaining a building the district can do without.

"Is renovating 389 going to have an impact on our students acquiring knowledge and skills?" she asked. "Or is it an adult concern?"

Following the heated debate, the board agreed to put superintendent Ed Shine's recommendation on the table next week, discuss it and take a

A group of residents have voiced their concerns at other board meetings, at a public hearing and through letters to the editor of the Grosse Pointe News.

Concerns centered on the historic value of the buildings, constructed in 1906 and 1915; losing another piece of public property in the land-locked Grosse Pointes; spreading the cost of renovation over a five-to-10-year period to save money; questions about the superintendent's calculations for renovation costs vs. relocation costs; fear that future enrollment booms would leave the district without enough classroom space or the administration without offices; and what new owners would do with the property on St. Clair, which is a residential neighborhood.

Grosse Pointe Historical Society member Elaine Hartmann proposed the creation of a charitable foundation that would ask the 22,000 homeowners in the school district to voluntarily donate $50 apiece to raise the renovation money. In addition, Farms resident

Cindy Pangborn suggested forming an adopt-a-room program in which professionals could volunteer their expertise in fixing up the buildings.

Shine said the school district has been exploring every option possible since he and the board began discussing the matter in early 1992. The board indicated last fall that it wanted to move forward, Shine said. Between that time and April 1993, plans and calculations were drawn up for relocating the offices.

The second part of good health is exercise, Vermiglio said. So in addition to nutritionists, the center's exercise instructors Kathy O'Boyle and Joan Thornton will be available to offer advice on exercise needs Million Frenchmen can't be wrong," whatever that means. But when it is said that 65 million Americans can't be wrong, we know exactly what it means. They're talking about the emphasis on walking for exercise and recreation.

That's the number of people who consider walking their No. 1 activity for keeping fit. More than five million walk to and from work each day. There are 10,000 walking events in the United States for fitness, fun and fundraising.

Walking is a form of exercise just about all medical doctors endorse. They agree, along with the American Heart Association, that walking is the very best way to keep fit for anyone at any age.

When you walk, every body part moves naturally. Muscles stretch and turn and knead with every step, increasing circulation and helping the heart to pump blood. Leg muscles are often referred to as a "second heart." Bypass patients are frequently advised to walk every

Walkers are promised amazing physical improvements by advocates of this form of exercise. It is a good way to lose

A program of daily walking can change your level of fitness to that of an individual 10 to 20 years younger, advocates walking is a good way to get rid of anxiety and anger. It can be a natural tranquilizer. The late Dr. Paul Dudley White, a famous cardiologist, said, "A vigorous five-mile walk will do more good for an unhappy but otherwise healthy adult than all the medicine and psychology in the world.'

Walking is a congenial sport. You can walk and talk, hold hands or link arms. Moreover, unlike jogging, walking is riskfree. It is a natural exercise that exerts no undue pressure, mentally or physically.

Not to be overlooked is the opportunity walking provides for getting acquainted with neighbors. When you're zipping around in a car, you really don't see much. House, gardens, shops are a blurred panorama. If you are walking, you see everything close-up. You can take time to note the various types of architectural styles of the homes in the Pointes. You can stop to admire a lovely garden or window shop in stores.

Katherine Mabarak

Services were held Saturday. May 29, at St. Maron Church in Detroit for Katherine Mabarak, 90, of Grosse Pointe Park, who died Thursday, May 27, 1993, at Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe City.

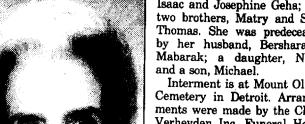

Born in Tripoli, Lebanon, she moved to Lexington, Ky., with her parents when she was 6 months old. The family moved to Winchester, Ky., when she was 10 and she later worked at the Winchester Dry Goods Co. She moved north to Mount Clemens to visit relatives and got a job with the Murphy Bed Co., located in the Kresge Building in downtown Detroit.

In 1922, she went to see a play at St. Joseph High School on Gratiot. She didn't want to go, but her relatives convinced her to. An usher at the play kept casting glances at her, and after the play, her aunt introduced her to him. She dated the usher, Bershara Mabarak, a few times, but moved back to Winchester. In 1923, she returned to Detroit, and in 1925, she and Bershara were married.

They lived in Detroit until 1941, when they moved to Grosse Pointe Park.

They chose a large house because they had 10 children at the time. Eventually, the Mabaraks had 14 children. A few of her sons went to work for their father, who had a successful real estate business on Mt. Elliott in Detroit. Now Mabarak Real Estate Co. is located on Mack in Grosse Pointe Park.

Mrs. Mabarak enjoyed going to Eastern Market each Saturday and loading up the car with fresh produce. During the Depression she was a member of the St. Maron's Ladies So. ety, which delivered food to needy families. She also was a member of St. Clare of Montechool and municipal officials in the Pointes and the metro area this week are wondering what the future will hold after their constituents helped reject Proposal A in the June 2 referendum.

After defeat of tax shift, what is next?

Overall, the Pointes voted more than 3 to 1 against the proposed tax shift with the biggest proportion of opposition votes being cast in the Woods and the Park, the largest Pointe municipalities.

But it was the overwhelming opposition vote piled up in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties that offset the strong outstate support and sent Proposal A down to a crushing defeat with a 54 percent NO vote to a to 46 percent YES vote.

A Proposal A victory would have created an immense problem for public schools and municipalities in limiting most increases in residential property assessments to 3 percent despite the recent completion of municipal assessment re-

· 4440克纳约尔·勒拉

-- Chris (86) 107

It also would have nullified and, in effect, wasted the complete reassessment processs that Grosse Pointe Farms had just completed this spring for the first time in 30 years.

Instead, Pointe municipal officials are scrambling to send out by next month tax statements reflecting the original assessments which showed increases ranging from 6.5 percent in the Woods to 13 percent in the Park.

In Lansing, however, legislators are talking about another property tax proposal, but the participants are having trouble finding ways to finance it and some kind of a reimbursement for local districts.

While some have talked about an increase in the income tax, a more likely source seems to be a cigaret tax increase and perhaps boosts in other so-called 'sin" taxes.

Yet the federal government is also talking about financing its new health care program with much higher cigaret taxes. If Michigan and other states get there first, they might be able to transfer at least some of the onus for the hike to Washington.

While pleased with the defeat of Proposal A, Grosse Pointe school officials are worried about possible changes by the Legislature or state policy makers that might affect their budgets in future years.

They believe the prospective loss of local control was the most influential factor in persuading voters in the Detroit metropolitan area of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties to oppose the tax shift by such large margins.

We agree that the huge vote against Proposal A in the tri-county metro area reflected concern about loss of local control. But it also expressed the doubts and questions that many people had, and especially renters and senior citizens, about the complicated plan.

Gov. Engler reportedly is talking about seeking another property tax cut so that in his 1994 re-election campaign he can say that he has carried out the pledge of his 1990 election campaign.

But whether he can get it is another question, especially since he recently has taken two defeats on the property tax cut issue, the first last November and the second on June 2.

Yet it is clear that not all the votes against Proposal A were cast by people with views like those heard in the Pointes. For example, the Macomb County Taxpayers Association is dedicated to a property tax cut with no replacement revenue.

Such an action would require cuts in spending by the public schools and municipal governments, which now rely chiefly on property taxes, and perhaps by other state government agencies.

That's a solution that would cause new problems with school and municipal funding - and prompt the same kinds of criticism that defeated Proposal C in last November's referendum.

Bryant cracks back at Engler

THE COLUMN TWO IS NOT THE TANK OF THE COLUMN TWO IS NOT THE COLUMN

ep. William R. Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe last week defended south-Leastern Michigan against Gov. John Engler's attack on the Detroit metro area for defeating Proposal A.

After his tax-shift proposal had been soundly beaten at the polls June 2, Engler told Lansing reporters that people in southeastern Michigan rejected Proposal A because they are "alienated and lack a sense of community."

Bryant, whose 50 reasons to oppose Proposal A won statewide attention, responded to the governor's complaint this

"He seems to be saying, 'How dare those people in southeastern Michigan vote against something that was good only for outstate Michigan?"

Engler had said that there was "more of an effort against the campaign" in the Detroit metro area, that the criticisms were not accurate, but that the purpose was just to raise them, "because by creating doubt you win."

But Bryant in effect replied that it was

"gross and faulty reasoning" by the governor and his Republican advisers in the Senate that had placed Proposal A on the ballot in the first place.

financing, Bryant, co-chair of the House Education Committee, and Rep. Lynn Jondahl of Garden City, co-chair of the House Taxation Committee, have introduced bills to double the state cigaret tax from 25 to 50 cents per pack with additional taxes on other tobacco products.

To meet the expected deficit in school

Bryant, who introduced the last pre-vious cigaret tax hike in 1982, said his new proposal would boost state revenues by $200 million to $220 million a year, which would be dedicated to support education and preventive health measures.

He also believes that the state must seek more sophisticated solutions to the problem of school funding. He would aid poor districts through a new state aid formula based on median household income per pupil.

It's an idea that Bryant has discussed for several years but perhaps the time has come to try it.

Perot not a hero everywhere

oss Perot's political bandwagon is running into some tough investiga-Utive journalism, but it apparently had little effect on three weekend rallies of his Michigan supporters.

At Macomb Community College and at earlier rallies in Flint and Grand Rapids, overflow crowds turned out to hear Perot attack President Clinton and the NAFTA agreement to lift trade restrictions among the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Yet Perot was sharply criticized in two major national media news presentations which last week exposed trouble spots behind the Texan's smooth campaign fa-

In addition, Perot's United We Stand America may have violated its tax-exempt status by announcing its members "support" for Kay Bailey Hutchison, the victorious Texas GOP Senate candidate, even though a spokesman claimed it was not an "endorsement."

Who's kidding whom, Ross? In a front-page story on June 1, the

New York Times reported that Perot's

"grass-roots political organization is in turmoil, riven by disputes that are beginning to cost it some of its most-committed volunteers.'

In the same week, the June 7 issue of Newsweek joined with ABC News' "Nightline" to report that Perot is building his "United We Stand America, Inc." into "a secretive, highly centralized force" that "is not merely the spontaneous grass-roots organization it purports to

Instead, said Newsweek, Perot is creating an organization "that quickly connects the commander - Perot - with frontline troops" in an elaborate structure that Newsweek sees as just what Perot needs for a different kind of campaign -"one aimed at the White House in 1996."

True, leaders still supporting Perot in Michigan and elsewhere say these complaints are coming just from a few malcontents and dissidents, but too many sources have offered strong evidence of the truth of the allegations to be explained away.

The Woods wins AV derby!

rosse Pointe Woods easily won the absentee voter derby in the Pointes by counting more absentee ballots than the other four Pointes put together in the June 2 referendum on Proposal A.

The Woods reported that 2,482 absentee votes were cast in the election but its total was not surprising since it had automatically issued 2,550 applications for ballots to those on its list of eligibles.

The Farms scored the second high total with 611, the Park was third with 269 and the City and the Shores, the smallest of the five Pointes in population, trailed in the number of absentee votes cast with 97 and 93, respectively.

The Woods also led in total votes with 7,258 and tied the Farms by attracting 50 percent of its registered voters to the polls. The Shores reported 49.07 of its registered voters cast ballots to place third in this scoring.

Overall, the Pointes voted more than 3 to 1 against Proposal A, with the biggest opposition vote cast in the Woods and the Park, which are the largest Pointe municipalities.

The Woods' big turnout of absentee voters stems from the active promotion of absentee voting over several years by senior citizens and the city's cooperation by automatically mailing out applications for absentee ballots to a permanent list of qualified voters prior to each election.

The efforts pay off, as the June 2 results prove.

Move shows lack of judgment, common sense

To the Editor: We, the concerned citizens of the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods, have joined together. After reading in the Grosse Pointe News on April 8 that the board of education was planning to move from 389 St. Clair and taking office space in Barnes school, Grosse Pointe North, and Grosse Pointe South and to build a storage facility and 12 vehicle garage next to the boiler room building on the back of Parcells school property. Imagine how this would look? And how conjested this could be and add to the traffic problem in the parking lot!

Moving the board of education into Barnes, North and South is a move without good judgment and plain common sense. It is quite obvious that in the near future this space will be needed for classrooms for our students and teachers and modern technology equipment that will take them into the year 2000. We will also see more adults from our communities sharing their expertise and experiences with teachers and students. We will see more adults taking classes to enhance their reservoir of knowledge.

More letters on page 8A

We the concerned citizens have had experts thoroughly check the two large buildings at 389 St. Clair and have found them structurally sound. The buildings are in need of minor repairs and handicapped access to the first floor and restrooms. This can be accomplished, one step at a time.

A hearing held at Pierce Middle School on June 1 with the board of education produced an audience of about 200 people. Some 26 speakers opposed the board of education and did an excellent job of explaining why. Perhaps seven speakers favored the board.

Some of the speakers suggested they would be willing to volunteer some time and effort to help with repairs and spruce up the buildings at 389 St. Clair. The hearing was very informative and there was a prepondance of evidence to make our message clear to the board that it would be

Barney: cult or savior?

(The author swears everything in this column is true except for the stuff he made up.) I was sitting in my library reading the collected works of Socrates, and thinking of what the relationship between God and man is in a technological 20th century society, when I heard a crash in the other room.

I investigated and discovered my friend, Marlowe, out like disco in the 1980s. Marlowe and I had studied international relations and surfing at the Brian Wilson College of Good Vibrations and Mental Health at Harvard University. Last I heard, Marlowe had gotten a "company" job with, as he put it, "a nice firm in Langley, Va."

I dragged Marlowe to my couch and waited for him to wake up. When he did, he told me a story, that if true, threatens the very fabric of this great nation.

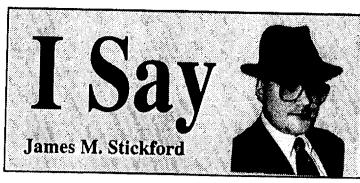

"They're after me," Marlowe said in a whisper so quiet someone with really, really good hearing would have a hard time making it out. "They're going after the children. If we don't act now, a whole generation will be lost. The horror, the horror."

Wanting to be a good friend, nurturing and supportive, I listened. Also, the Tigers were in tened. Also, the Tigers were in the midst of a three-game losing streak, so I wasn't going to watch PASS that night anyway.

way.
"The kids, they watch. They listen, and then they mindlessly follow him," he said with the gleam of a man who had ingested too much lead as a child. "They get their parents to support their habit. They actually get their own parents to pay for their brainwashing; it's hideous."

"What's hideous?," I asked with the tone of voice I reserve for those who get caught up in the "tastes-great, less-filling debate."

"Barney," he moaned. "Barney the dinosaur. Kids watched and they're hooked. They listen to Barney more than they listen to their parents. I knew I was on to something when I was at a video store and saw a sweet child suddenly perk up and yell 'Barney, Barney, Barney' until her father rented a Barney tape.

"A few days later, I saw two kids in strollers encounter each other and notice they both had Barney toys. They started yelling the word 'Barney' at each other. It was then that I knew we had lost a whole generation."

I was silent for about a minute. Then I said, "Suuure."

He ranted about how I didn't believe him. How the show was so goody-goody adults couldn't stand it. About how inane it was.

"Marlowe, it's a show designed to appeal to 3-year-olds," I said. "Who cares if it's inane by adult standards. Not everything has to be for both adults and children. In fact, most things that kids and adults watch together, like Bugs Bunny, are too sophisticated for young children. Barney's no more inane than Mr. Rogers, for heaven's sake. Get a life."

He stammered, "What about the selling of merchandise. It's a plot, I tell you." "Like all that Batman stuff we had to have when we were young kids," I retorted. "It was the Adam West Batman, which makes it worse."

makes it worse."

He looked at me and started yelling about how I was "taken over." It was time to search the basement for pods. Then he got quiet, as quiet as someone who was trying to guess the answer in final Jeapordy!

He whispered, "They're coming to get me now."

Who was coming to get him, I queried. The Barney people or Oliver Stone — either way he was not going to be taken alive. Suddenly, he jumped through the window into the night, and ran.

That was the last I saw of him. My final thought was why the heck didn't he just leave by the back door, or better yet quietly open the window and slip away.

Can't keep them under wraps

One of the theories I mean to float when the "Wild women" assault Vermont next month on our bikes is that the '50s was a terrible time to grow up a girl.

In the evenings, around our symbolic campfire at some small-town motel, after the asphalt has stopped humming under our tires, the wind whistling in our ears, the bugs catching in our teeth, we'll talk.

That's the reason for the trip. "The Wild women" is a particularly adventuresome-sounding phrase (and, yeah, we like the fierce, feminist overtones) for what is actually three sisters and a mother bound together by a surname. It's been a conversation piece all our lives, especially after Susan bought us matching purple T-shirts announcing that "Wild women don't get the blues."

"Ya got that right, honey," a checkout clerk in Oklahoma told me one day. She'd been studying my shirt all the way through the line.

But, although we're all getting more in-your-face independent as we grow older, we haven't always been, well, wild. I think it's because we grew up in the '50s.

When Betty Friedan burst on the scene with her feminist message, somehow everyone thought she was the first. It was a liberating message, all right, a message that told us we didn't have to be so "nice," so willing to let others have their way while we just smiled. To those of us who grew up in the world according to Ozzie and Harriet, it was terrific to find out that it was not only OK, but actually healthy, to speak your mind.

But the real point is that we thought then that life in the '50s represented the way it had always been. But I don't think so any more. The '50s represented some sort of last ditch effort to wrap women in cotton wool — because (and I can see this now) they'd been breaking out all over.

Not just Rosie the Riveter, although that's part of it. But women worked during previous wars, too, including the Civil War; in fact, history shows that every war represented an advance in women's liberation. Probably someone somewhere knew this and tried to head it off during the '50s.

The idea that women have never been allowed to do anything came a-cropper when I saw a photograph of two 1880s women in long skirts hog-tying and branding a calf. They were co-owners of a ranch out in the Great Plains.

Women were canoeing the Boundary Waters, climbing mountains, and playing tennis in those long skirts.

Jill Ker Conway, an Australian who grew up on a sheep station in the Outback and left her country in the '50s because there were no university opportunities for women, has compiled an anthology of women's autobiographies, called "Written by Herself." Some of them, like Babe Zaharias and Margaret Mead, are famous; all of them are women who went ahead and accomplished things, women who didn't let themselves be wrapped in cotton

Here's Margaret Morse Nice, born 1883, who grew up roaming the fields and woods of the Connecticut River Valley, learning about birds. Trapped as a young mother in a domestic role, she carried out a study on language acquisition in infants (using her own children as subjects). Her interest in the field study of birds was rekindled when she took on the state of Oklahoma after it lengthened the open season on mourning doves. Her research eventually made her a leading national and worldwide reputation.

Here's S. Josephine Baker, born 1873, a public health doctor who pioneered the idea that preventive health care for babies and children is a function of government. But it wasn't expert on bird behavior, with a

When Baker was first appointed to an executive level position in New York, her entire staff (all men, of course) quit. One of the first thrusts in bringing health care to the people almost brought down the walls. As Baker was also a lively writer, I'll let her tell the story.

To set the scene, this was the beginning of the time when doctors "improved" upon youngsters by removing their tonsils. The public health clinics were swamped. The doctors (without informing her) decided to perform the surgeries at the schools instead of "cluttering up the clinics."

She wrote: "I first heard of it when I got a phone call that there was serious trouble at one of the schools on the lower east side . . . The school yard was clogged with a mob of six or seven hundred Jewish and Italian mothers wailing and screaming in a fine frenzy and apparently just on the point of storming the doors and wrecking the place. Every few minutes their hysteria would be whipped higher by the sight of a child ejected from the premises bleeding from mouth and nose and screaming with sheer panic . . . The doctors had coolly descended on the school, taken possession, lined the children up, marched them past, taken one look down each child's throat, and then two strong arms seized and held the child while the doctor used his instruments to reach down into the throat and rip out whatever came nearest to hand, ... no attempt at psychological preparation, no explanation to the child or warning to the par-

Baker took charge. "Instead of this wholesale slaughter of innocents, which, I shrewdly suspected, included many cases which did not need operations at all," all school tonsillectomy cases would be handled at hospitals, with anesthetics and 24-hour post-operative care. And she made it happen.

Looking back later upon her career, Baker wrote, "I presume I always had the spirit of the pioneer... There seem to have been a surprising number of 'firsts' in my life. I suspect that was because women were then making an effort to get out of the shadow-land where they had dwelt for so long..."

Now isn't it a remarkable commentary that women 60 years later were still saying exactly the same thing?

Back to work

John Diebel has been a topnotch public affairs writer/producer for the vast Al Taubman empire this past seven years, but he's chucking it all to pursue a long standing first love: finishing scripts for a rousing, full-fledged Broadway musical and wrapping up two or three other plays, features and novels.

"I've been jotting down notes, carrying tunes in my head, reshuffling all kinds of plots, theories and scenes over the years," he says.

Piles of papers, unfinished themes, crisp and clean typed paragraphs are neatly filed and cataloged, but need polishing, rewrites and final touches, his wife Ann related. Both went to Manhattan about 10 years ago, attending the famed BMI Lehman Engel Musical Theater Workshop, but illness in her family compelled Ann to return home. So this may be considered an encore," she says.

Both have been active in writing, acting, singing and music scoring in Grosse Pointe; Theater and the Fine Arts Society over 20 years' time.

John's secretary told FYI a farewell party, definitely not a retirement party, is planned for this week in Bloomfield Hills Taubman headquarters.

"A new beginning, not an ending," John says.

Local choir fame spread worldwide

The international awardwinning Detroit Concert Choir will perform locally Sunday, June 13, at Sweetest Heart of Mary historic church and then on June 25 at St. Philomena.

On July 4 the 80 voices leave for North Wales for international competition at Llangollen's music festival. More than 35 nations will compete in choral contests that brought first place to Gordon Nelson's mens' group in 1991, second place in folk music and third in mixed (men and women) choir work, with a second also in solo competition by James Moore Jr.

Off the wall

It seemed logical that they go to Richard school and for the first time to vote together; after all, they had done almost everything together for 15 years.

Leigh Leonard and Julia White filled in forms at the voting precinct, then paused a moment, glancing to the walls of the school they attended for many years. Their names were inscribed on the sports records board for all students to read for years to come.

A STATE OF THE PARTY OF THE PAR

Ten years had passed since Leigh won long jump and relay, and Julie was listed for 50-yard dash and relay. It was really "old home week" for the 22-year-olds, now in college and living a stone's throw from home near the Hill. Memories flooded back as they laughed and talked quietly, recalling that Julie had gone to live in Nairobi when her father worked with GM for three years.

in its best interest to remain at 389 St. Clair.

Our opinion is that if more voters were to take an interest and to learn all the facts about this proposed move from 389 St. Clair, we predict the majority would oppose this move. Therefore we request that the board drop its proposals to move and sell the buildings and property and move forward with the business matters at hand.

Don't move!

To the Editor:

I am opposed to the school board's plans to sell 389 St. Clair and the numerous expenses involved

Service was a joke — really

The four of us were sort of listless. We'd worked in the yard, flailed around golf courses, putzed around the house your typical good Saturday stuff. We decided to see a movie that would make us giggle and would not require a change of clothes, nice relaxing kind of night. The movie was just what we wanted, "Dave," all adored it and shared many laughs. Now we would grab a quick bite to eat and head home early.

We were escorted to a remote booth in the back of the restaurant, although the place looked almost deserted. We remarked that one of us must have forgotten deodorant or breath spray and obediently followed the waiter to our outpost, where we began our wait. From out of nowhere she blew on to the scene, our very own waitress. She virtually exploded with personality. "Hi I'm Cutie Pie, here to serve you, blah, blah," She remarked on how young and 'fresh" we looked. That got our attention. Fresh??

After much banter she took a drink order and disappeared - for almost half an hour. When she returned she had the order wrong, did a little toe dance for us, sprinkled with giggles, and set off to right the wrong. Another interminable wait. When she reappeared, we requested that she take our dinner order. Then the song and dance really began. Miss Congeniality did her spiel touting the specials and then told us about her very own favorites. We made our choices and she danced away from the table. We waited and waited and waited, not really caring about food anymore, but thinking longingly of our beds. Alas, she returned with a portable salad bar and enough jokes to keep George Burns in material until he's 100.

At this point we were all eating bread and crackers and junk we wouldn't have consumed in other circumstances. We were eyeing the tablecloth, wondering how it would taste with salt and pepper, when our waitress materialized with our main course. To her credit, she was full of apologies, blaming the kitchen staff, holiday weekend, etc. It was now close to 11 p.m. and you could have shot a cannon through the place. We just wanted our meal and for her to leave us alone. However, she clearly thought part of her job description was to entertain the customers. We enjoyed a good meal and the girl was certainly well-meaning and sweet, but perhaps some of these restaurants ought to look again at their training sessions, cut back on convivialty and concentrate more on productivity.

in dividing the administrative staff into four separate locations.

The school system has previously acknowledged yet consistently ignored the dangerous safety code violations of the harsh industrial slag playground at Mason School.

Also, if the school system is serious in its endeavor to teach environmentalism to our youngsters, it seems to me that they should set an important example by keeping Barnes School available as an elementary school. This would encourage young families to purchase homes in the Grosse Pointes and discourage ongoing destructive suburban sprawl.

The school system needs a stable community to remain strong, and the community needs a strong school system to remain

Ultimately, children, children, children need to be at the top of this school system's priority list!

Rosalind McHale Grosse Pointe Woods Hearing 'remarkable'

To the Editor:

In over a quarter of a century of residing in the Grosse Pointes and attending and reading about many civic meetings, I've never encountered a more remarkable public hearing than the Grosse Pointe School Board meeting at Pierce Middle School on the evening of June 1.

Held largely at the instigation of citizens Jim Perry and Cindy Pangborn, the hearing was planned to get citizen reaction to the Board's proposed plan to move the school system's administrative offices to Barnes School and two other locations and to sell the land and buildings at 389 St. Clair.

I went to this meeting with a completely open mind as to the value of this move. I was especially interested in the statement of Superintendent Edward Shine that the move would save money.

What made this hearing remarkable was that, of the more than 20 citizens who rose to speak for the alloted four minutes or less, all but three presented eloquent, forceful, informed arguments for NOT moving the administrative offices.

I estimated that about 200 citizens attended the hearing, but it's a shame that more Grosse Pointer's weren't present to hear the impressive presentations.

One of the first speakers was Philip Galeo, who presented to the board and to the audience a printed, very detailed analysis of the move. It showed that it would cost relatively little more to convert "389" into a first-class office building, allowing the administration to remain there. Other speakers claimed it would even cost less to bring the building up to a suitable level.

Michael Fuller, a facilities manager at Chrysler Corp., also criticized the move, asserting that a major reason for Chrysler moving to its new facility in Auburn Hills was the pressing need to bring all the key people under a single roof.

Outstanding factual arguments for not moving were also made by Bob Evanski, Jim Perry, Clinton Andrews, Sears Taylor and a dozen other citizens. Andrews and Taylor are now running for the School Board, and they were impressive enough for me to vote for them.

A gentleman by the name of Mr. Ferry made a strong, touching argument for not moving by saying that his family donated part of the land for the current building almost a century ago. He added that this building also was historically significant.

A significant point made several times was that there are indications that Grosse Pointe's student population is increasing and the Barnes School may soon be needed for classrooms.

It was truly an eloquent and unprecedented (to me) outpouring of sincere, spontaneous reaction to an issue. It now remains to be seen whether the Board will accept or reject this re-

Connie George set up shop recently on the front lawn of her Lakeshore home in the Farms. She is a member of Troop 424 at Kerby School and sold 1.052 boxes of Girl Scout Cookies this spring, making her the third highest master cookie seller of the more than 20,000 Girl Scouts in the Detroit Metro.

She was honored recently at a Girl Scout banquet at Henry Ford's mansion, "Fairlane," on the grounds of University of Michigan Dearborn Campus. Along with 10 other Girl Scouts, her achievements also earned her extra badges and a two weeks stay at camp.

Finally, it's less painful to get rid of hemorrhoids than it is to live with Hemorrhoids can be as uncomfortable to live with as they are to discuss. And when they become severe, conventional surgery often seems like the only option. But now the St. John Laser Center of Southeast Michigan offers a different option - hemorrhoid treatment through laser surgery.

Are there many advantages to laser hemorrhoidectomy surgery? Yes. It's usually an outpatient procedure. In most cases there is a decrease in blood loss, less pain and reduced swelling and drainage.

And most importantly, laser surgery patients may recover faster and may be back doing the things they want to do without the pain or discomfort of hemorrhoids.

The St. John Laser Center of Southeast Michigan offers an independent staff of skilled laser trained surgeons, specially trained nurses and state-of-the-art laser

Tea and secrets

Ferry Elementary School third-graders Natalie Sumberg, left, and Jacqueline vandenBerg ate pastries and sipped tea on May 19 before departing for a matinee performance of "The Secret Garden" at the Fisher Theatre. Before seeing the play, the third-grade classes read an abridged version of the classic story by Frances Hodgson Burnett, listened to music from the play, looked at pictures of the original Broadway musical and conducted an English high tea.

Come to the pops

University Liggett School will host the 1993 senior farewell pops concert on Friday, June 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the main auditorium on the school's campus, 1045 Cook Road, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The Upper School Chorale will present "Broadway," a medley of 12 songs from Broadway shows, accompanied by a professional trio. In addition, soloists Joanne Davies, Heather Bond, Rachel Calderon, Tom Best and Mike LaHood will perform current favorite pop songs by various artists. The Upper School band will perform "A Whole New World," from the movie "Aladdin," as well as a new arrangement by student Eric Lindauer of the title song from the film "Beauty and the Beast."

A special feature of the evening will be the debut of a new composition written by band member John Addis, a ULS junior. The public is invited to attend. Admission is $3.

'Small class size enables teachers to truly know our children!'

--Mary Parsigian Grosse Pointe

Mary Parsigian is the mother of two University Liggett School students: Jeanifer, a third-grader, and Mary Taylor, a first-grader. Mary and her husband, Jeffery, have sent their girls to ULS since each child was 3 years old. "Jennifer was 18 months old when we decided that ULS was the best place for her," she says.

Mary goes on to say, "we feel, that in addition to the academics, our children are provided with an extension of what we try to teach them at home - values and a positive attitude." She says that "if it had not been for the small class size and the way the teacher truly got to know my child, we might not have realized the aptitude our daughter had for art. This was brought out by her teacher."

We invite families interested in quality education to visit ULS at any time. Our new Primary School -- for ages 3 through kindergarten -- is open to the public for visits and tours. If you would like to visit our school, or learn more about ULS, please call Ann Willett at 884-4444.

On June 1, the school board held an open hearing on selling the school administration building and related issues. Only two school board candidates spoke at this meeting: Clinton Andrews and Sears Taylor. Not only did they speak boldly about their individual ideas, they had the facts to substantiate their thoughts.

The other candidates, including the incumbent, did not address the forum. We can only guess at their opinions. One of the candidates is on the Friends of Bon Secours Hospital board. This is clearly a major conflict because Bon Secours Hospital wants to buy the property on 389 St. Clair. Enough said!

The incumbent is the incumbent. Take a look at the money the board has spent in the last four years on architectural fees and feasibility studies that never came to a resolution. Enough said!

Please remember to vote Monday, June 14. Please vote for Sears Taylor and Clinton Andrews. Remember, the board of education spends $65 million a year!

Cindy McDougall Pangborn Grosse Pointe Farms

Candidate for entire district

To the Editor:

I was surprised to read in the June 3 school board candidate interview that of the five candidates running for a seat on the Grosse Pointe board of education, I was the "only candidate representing the Harper Woods population served by the Grosse Pointe schools." The intent of this statement, I believe, was to point out that I live in Harper Woods. To suggest that per Woods residents in correct. To suggest that the other candidates would not represent Harper Woods is also, I hope, incorrect. I am running for a seat on the Grosse Pointe board of education. When elected, I will represent all of the district. As the article about me mentioned, one of the reasons I am running is because of the comments made earlier this year about Poupard and the Harper Woods community. However, I am not running because I believe Poupard has to be defended against the rest of the district. We are one district. I felt that by working to be a member of the board of education, I could bring a perspective to the board that would foster a greater sense of unity within the district.

What the article failed to mention is that I listed other reasons why I am running, and why I should be elected. Of all the candidates running, my educational background prepares me to address the complex opportunities that confront our district. As the district faces the need to control and reduce expenditures. there needs to be a person on the board who can analyze the impact decisions will have on our children.

My background as a director of undergraduate tutoring at Wayne State, the knowledge I have gained earning my doctorate in teacher education, and my experience within the Grosse Pointe school district on the "High School of the Future" and Poupard Parent Advisory committees and as part of the French Back-to-Back program gives me the foundation that is needed to help the board make good decisions. I belong to and serve in the International Reading Association, the National Association of Developmental Education, the Michigan Developmental Education Consortium, and the American College Personnel Association. I have the credentials to help this board face the challenges the future will bring.

I welcome the opportunity to serve all of the citizens of the Grosse Pointe School District.

Steve Matthews Harper Woods Vote in

school board election

To the Editor:

It is very clear that we, the concerned citizens of the five Grosse Pointes, have reason to believe our board of education is not representing us like it should.

At the April 10 board meeting, we requested that the 389 St. Clair issue be voted on in the June 14 school board election. The board president said "no."

At the hearing June 1 held at Pierce Middle Clair, the president, Gloria Konsler, said, "No, we are not going to put the issue on the ballot!'

The Constitution gives us the right to vote. The board of education has not afforded us that opportunity. Many veterans died in many battles so that we may exercise our right to vote. You don't have to go to war - you only need to go to vote. Are you aware that only 15.06 percent voted in the last school board election? Only 6,777 of the 45,000 registered voters cast their ballots last time.

Where is your American spirit? Don't you want to set a good example for your children? Don't you want to have a say in where your tax dollars go in your community and who represents you?

It is time for a change. On June 14, elect two new members to the board of education. These two gentlemen - Sears Taylor and Clinton Andrews - have been working closely with us. They are qualified and they do care and will listen to the people and act.

We the concerned citizens of the five Grosse Pointe communities ask you to join us in voting for Taylor and Andrews for fiscal responsibility and true representation. Let's make this the biggest voter turnout in our history. You can do it. You owe it to the veterans who fought for this country and to the many who died for our democracy. If you don't do it, who will? Vote!

Lite savers

To the Editor:

Nov. 4, 1992 seemed to be a normal evening at first. My husband John had just finished speaking on the phone with a client when he started to cut an orange. A slice fell on the floor, and I joked with him when I noticed his vacant stare. When I saw him struggling to get up, I asked if he was all right, receiving no answer. It was then that I knew that something tragic had happened to John.

I called my son-in-law. Ken Schmidt, for help and he told me to call 911. I did immediately, and an officer kept me on the line speaking reassuring orders to

The ambulance arrived quickly along with Officer Boyer and Officer Onderbeke, who worked on my husband and contacted St. John Hospital for clearance. The rest is great his-

John has recovered beautifully thanks to the fantastic efforts of the officers, who I am sure saved his life. Saving his life also saved mine, and we were able to celebrate 50 years of marriage on Valentine's Day 1993. John has now returned to practicing law.

I am so happy to know that we still have the same wonderful care that we have had throughout our years in the Pointes. John is à former commissioner of public safety, and now their wonderful help has come through for him.

We were completely overwhelmed by the tremendous response we received throughout the 48236/48225 area. Not only did carriers pick up single cans and boxes, but grocery and garbage bags full. Some patrons were even moved to leave cases of food.

We are proud to serve such a generous community. Through your kindness, 48236/48225 turned in over 14,500 pounds of food to the Gleaner's Community Food Bank. Imagine the lives that were

To the Editor:

My pen has been silent of late. Who can compete with the Hilly Billy Circus in the Beltway? It is certain we need not reserve space at Mount Rushmore. It is also said that Billy Bob has made Jimmy Carter look like Abraham Lincoln.

I write on a far more serious note. It is clear that we can reduce the price of automobiles at once cease making turn signals. no one uses them. Driving defensively has taken on a new meaning when no driver will tell you what he intends to do.

There is another culprit that must be denied turning signals. The one that pulls up at a light ahead of you, and waits for the green light to indicate his desire to turn. I realize I am a voice in the wilderness on this subject - an aged Captain Kirk drifting through space, going where no man has dared to go, with the left turn signal blinking on his U.S.S. Enterprise.

The roads are crowded, and cars and people are breeding indiscriminately. Please, dear people, use your turn signals.

Even the household pet seems to be on a better immunization schedule than grown-ups. And yet, every year thousands of adults die from easily-prevented diseases. We never outgrow the need for immunizations.

Montero likes being a truck; del Sol doesn't always shine

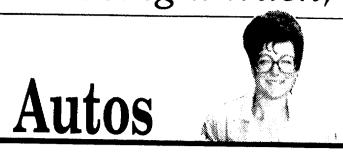

How many items can a young woman acquire in her last year at college? Enough to fill a couple of vehicles right up to the brim, even when one of them is a capacious Mitsubishi Montero.

Truth be known, the Montero was nearly full when we arrived in Notre Dame for graduation at beautiful St. Mary's College a few weeks ago.

More truth be known: The fullness wasn't Ann and Emily Richard's fault. The girls' overnight equipment was dwarfed by items packed by none other than the graduate's own mom, who anticipated third-world conditions in the dorm rooms set aside for visiting parents. She also allowed for the vagaries of weather in the Midwest.

So Mom stuffed two thick quilts, several pillows, towels and wash cloths into the rear compartment of the Mitsubishi sport utility along with outfits for various graduation activities, a new hat, a portable computer ("just in case I get a chance to work"), a large gift for the grad, a camera bag heavy with film, and a supply of fruit, muffins and napkins ("just in case we get hungry").

On the return trip, the group found additional space for one guitar, a heavy armload of coats and jackets ("so that's where my green blazer was"), a modest-size boom box, a sport bag full of shoes and a carton of assorted clothes.

What the Montero lacks in visibility for the driver, it more than makes up for in interior space and its unselfconscious, go-anywhere attitude. While most current sport utilities bend over backward to be carlike, the Montero seems to enjoy being a truck. Its high ceiling likely pumps up the vehicle's coefficient of drag number, but it sure adds to the spaciousness of the passenger cabin.

Seats are good front and back. Rear-seat riders like Ann and Emily will enjoy discovering and using the outboard armrests that pull down. Each provides a handy cupholder.

While passengers enjoy road visibility, the driver must contend with a couple of annoyances. First, the outside rearmounted spare tire covers enough of the back window that you'll feel lost when backing up, even with the sideview mirrors. The upper half of the steering wheel is directly in the line of vision from driver to speedometer. If you are a gauge watcher, the only time you know precisely how fast you're driving is when you're below 20 mph or above 80 mph. My guess is you'll know those speeds without a gauge, anyway. The wheel also hid the electric sideview mirrors switch.

Montero, which is available in four trim levels, is powered by Mitsubishi's 3.0-liter 151-hp V-6 with electronic multi-point fuel injection. Choose between a five-speed manual or fourspeed automatic transmission. The driver can shift from twowheel to four-wheel drive while the truck is in motion (up to 62 mph) or can drive year-round in four-wheel drive.

The Honda Civic del Sol is a fair weather friend: It's more fun when the 14-pound aluminum roof panel is secure in the trunk.

According to Mitsubishi, Multi-Mode anti-lock braking provides ABS operation in all two- and four-wheel drive modes. A three-mode adjustable rate shock absorber system is available on Montero LS and SR models. It allows the driver to choose among three (hard, medium, soft) shock absorber settings to suit ride and handling needs. The 24-gallon fuel tank can be misleading. Even though you won't have to fill up as often, you're still looking at 15-20 mpg fuel economy. Montero prices begin at $19,000 and stop around $26,000.

All we needed was some sun

The new Honda Civic del Sol, as its name implies, needs rays. It craves sunlight and warm air so its rigid removable 14pound aluminum top panel can be tucked in the trunk, exposing the driver to whatever May through October in Michigan has to offer.

This year, May was not so generous with either sunlight or warm breezes. Consequently, we weren't able to be charmed as much as we had anticipated by the little two-seater. Frankly, this next-generation CRX from Honda is not a vehicle with which I'd care to have a long-term relationship.

As cute as it appears, the del Sol is hard to get into and out of. In spite of every effort to be graceful and lithe, I developed a dandy bruise on the right thigh from its repeated encounters with the del Sol steering wheel. Once inside, there is absolutely no space for anything other than two medium-sized people. A tiny parcel area behind the seats is it for the cabin, though there is a very generous trunk for serious package hauling. In fact, the truck even has space aplenty when the roof panel is horizontal on its secured holder (a very clever and easy-to-use design). Bruised thighs are one thing; rain in the lap is another. When the windows were even slightly lowered, outside water quickly rolled in at the top of the A-pillar. (I know — del Sol. So what's the word for rain in Spanish?)

Under the hood of the del Sol beats a 1.5-liter single overhead cam 16-valve four capable of 102 hp. The del Sol Si model has a peppier 1.6-liter 125-hp engine. A five-speed manual transmission is standard; fourspeed automatic is optional in both base and Si trims. Despite its size, the base engine performs very well, indeed, giving good, steady acceleration needed for freeway driving. Handling is precise, and the del Sol is very pleasant to drive for such a little thing. Honda says the four-wheel double wishbone suspension system contributes to both handling and ride. So do the vehicle's Progressive Valve shock absorbers, long wheelbase, lowered spring rates and increased suspension travel.

While the rain may get in when the top is on, the wind doesn't when it's off. The del Sol isn't transformed into a wind tunnel when it drops its top. Side windows and the power-operated rear window further help "manage" airflow! in the car. Heater outlets on the center console will warm folks who insist on pressing their luck, driving the del Sol topless in colder weather.

Pricing for the Civic del Sol starts at $13,200; the Si with automatic transmission is $15,750. A driver's side airbag is standard on all models.

History of Farms police force stretches back 82 years

Staff Writer

When the Farms police force was first established, the city lived up to its name.

Large areas were open fields. The residents were still largely the descendents of the original French settlers, said retired police chief Ignatius Backman. A number of police officers at the time he joined the force were descendents of the original set-

"Until after WWII, there was a lot of vacant land in the Farms," said Backman. "The city was sparsely built up between Merriweather and Kerby. The end of Kercheval was located at Muir Road by Cottage Hospital for a long time.

Backman, who joined the force in 1947 and retired last February, said that while the city was relatively undeveloped, it had some interesting residents.

"I was told that during prohibition there were a number of speakeasies in the Farms," said Backman. "A famous one was in an area on Lothrop called the Pines. It was allegedly run by Al Green. In addition to serving as a 'blind pig,' there was supposed to be an illegal casino operating out of there.

"But that was before my time, so I can't say if those stories are true," Backman said with a laugh.

As the Farms developed, it became harder for police to stay in touch with the community, Backman said.

'When I first joined the force, I made a point to stop by and visit every house in the city," Backman said. "But the city's growth after the war made that impossible. Also, for my first few years on the force. the police department issued driver's licenses. So we got to meet everyone as they were getting their driver's license. That made it easier for us to get to know people."

Police training has changed quite a bit since he joined the force, Backman said.

'My uncle Ledger was Farms police chief in 1915," Backman said. "So after the war, my cousin and I decided we had to get jobs, and applied to police force. We were accepted, and they gave us guns and badges. We rode around with a veteran officer for a few weeks before we were allowed to ride solo. That was our training."

Today the Farms public safety department does not hire anyone who does not have at least a two-year degree from a state certified police academy. After receiving police training, all officers also get firefighting training.

The fire and police departments were combined into the public safety department in the late 1980s, said Backman.

"The department has been

The last one I can remember took place in the 1960s. Officer Tom Kelly was investigating a break-in at the Mack Avenue post office. Kelly surprised the suspect, and his gun discharged.

"The bullet richocheted three or four times before hitting the suspect in the head. The suspect was knocked unconscious, but other than that, suffered no ill effects from being shot in the head. It's funny now, but it wasn't at the time."

Things have certainly changed, said Backman. The Farms still has most of its origanal police logs. He has looked at the earliest logs in which car accidents were reported as "machine" accidents.

"There are reports well into the 1920s that concern arguments over chickens getting into a neighbor's yard," Backman said. "Cops today don't go out on calls like that.'

Hudson enthusiasts gather

If you own, have owned, or might like to own a vehicle like this 1937 Hudson Terraplane, then mark June 17-19 on your calendar. That's when the Hudson-Essex-Terraplane Central Region gang drives into the parking lot of the Holiday Inn on Ford Road near Southfield for three days of business and pleasure. Activities will include a bus tour of former Hudson plant sites in the Detroit area, a visit to the archives in Highland Park, a flea market, a chance to inspect each other's vehicles and plenty of socializing. A '50sstyle banquet with hot dogs, burgers, fries, Jell-o and baked beans is scheduled for Saturday night. Call Harper Woods resident Ken Poynter at 886-9292 for details.

Proper care is still necessary

It's more fun to wave to your neighborhood mechanic as you drive by than to hand him a check for costly auto repair

With this in mind, AAA Michigan presents another in a series of "Straight Talk for Older Drivers." "Maintaining Your Vehicle," is a public awareness brochure available free at AAA Michigan branches statewide.

Today, there are more than 30 million older Americans. By the year 2020, 50 million Americans will be 65 or older - and at least 90 percent of them will be driving.

"The tips provided apply to motorists of all ages, but are particularly germane for the older driver," said Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan community safety services manager.

"A smooth running car takes a lot of the stress out of driving. Also, statistics show that older motorists drive fewer miles than they once did. Because of this, there is a tendency to think that regular, proper maintenance is not necessary. But this is not so.' Today's car prices, in some cases more expensive than a house not too long ago, would dictate proper maintenance as a wise investment, Basch

Among suggestions, whether you do the work yourself or have it done at your neighborhood service station:

- Change oil every 3,000 miles or three months, whichever comes first, using the oil grade recommended in the owner's manual.
- Check power steering fluid and brake fluid when you change oil. The need to add either power steering or brake fluid on a regular basis could mean there is a leak, and a mechanic should be consulted.
- Examine radiator hoses for bulges, cracks or leaks. A 50/50 motorists drive fewer mix of antifreeze will keep the engine cool in hot weather and prevent damage when temperatures fall as low as 40 below

- · Check the air filter for accumulated dirt and replace, if necessary. Look for cracks or looseness in engine belts. Broken belts are a major reason for roadside breakdowns.
- Keep battery terminals clean. Corrosion around terminals and cables can be removed with a toothbrush and a mix of baking soda and water.
- Tire pressure should be maintained at manufacturer recommendations in the owner's manual. Regularly check headlights, brake and parking lights and turn signals. Replace burned out bulbs and keep headlights clean.

In addition, AAA Michigan recommends taking your car to a diagnostic center for an annual bumper-to-bumper inspection, a center that specializes in diagnosing problems, not selling parts to fix them. If there is a problem, take the report to your mechanic.

Electric cars get charge at Edison stations

Detroit Edison supplied bility, design and cost, as well charging stations for the "1993" as the teams' oral presentations Hybrid Electric Vehicle Challenge," a competition among 30 college teams to design and built high-caliber, practical hybrid electric vehicles.

The utility was an associate sponsor of the challenge, sponsored by Ford Motor Co., the U.S. Department of Energy and the Society of Automotive Engineers. The competition consisted of a series of events June 1-5 in Dearborn. Four teams from Michigan competed.

Detroit Edison provided electric vehicle charging stations developed jointly by Ford, Square D. Co. and Hubbell Inc., said John Olsen, Detroit Edison's electric vehicle program manager.

"The HEV Challenge presents a unique and important opportunity to test how well the charging stations will perform in the future when they become integral parts of the infrastructure needed to accommodate drivers of electric vehicles," Olsen said.

The event marked the first time so many charging stations have been installed at one location, he said.

The HEV Challenge called for teams to convert Ford Escort station wagons or construct vehicles from the ground up. Teams from Wayne State University and the Jordan College Energy Institute converted vehicles. New vehicles were built by Michigan State University and Lawrence Technological Institute.

Vehicles were rated on their emissions, fuel efficiency, vehicle range, acceleration, drivea-and written reports.

Some events, including a stop-and-go commuter driving test, were open to the public. Additionally, Detroit Edison featured a booth with a Ford Ecostar electric van. as well as displays of historical electric vehicles, home charging stations and "park and charge" meters.

Following the HEV Challenge, Detroit Edison is installing the charging stations in its parking lots and providing some to commercial businesses participating in the Ford Ecostar demonstration program.

Detroit Edison will have the only fleet of Ford Ecostar electric vans in Michigan as part of Ford's 30-month demonstration program, which begins later this year. The utility will lease part of its fleet of electric vans to commercial businesses during the program.

Ford asked Detroit Edison to participate in the HEV event because of the utility's extensive experience with electric vehicle technology, according to

In 1982, Detroit Edison engineers developed a unique "Park and Charge" charging station which was operated by a credit card and controlled by a small computer.

"Additionally, Detroit Edison has 700,000 miles of electric vehicle road experience, including two major demonstration programs with the U.S. Department of Energy in the 1980s," Olsen said.

Pet owners ticked over Lyme disease; free brochure offers strategies

Tick, tick, tick - it's prime time for these wingless, louselike, bloodsucking parasites.
Fort Dodge Laboratories, a leading manufacturer of animal health products, wants to help educate pet owners about ticks and the spreading of Lyme disease. They've produced a free brochure from which all pet owners could benefit, titled "Tick, Tick, Tick," It details this debilitating disease - how it's spread, the effects it has on its hosts, and some preventive measures (like vaccinations).

In addition, the brochure tells pet owners how they can get their copy of "You and Your Dog," or the videotape, "Puppy's First Year," when they've had their dog vaccinated with LymeVax. LymeVax is the only vaccine available to prevent the disease in dogs, and is only available through your veterinarian.

Lyme disease (clinically known as borreliosis) is a horrific bacterial malady spread by ticks. It can cause permanent and painful disability in both humans and animals. A dog affected with the disease that has produced an infection in his kidneys or heart will often die.

The speed at which Lyme disease spreads is just as frightening as the disease itself. According to Fort Dodge, Lyme disease was discovered in 1975 and since has been reported in at least 47 states, and affects an estimated 30,000 humans and up to 300,000 dogs. Areas with high concentrations of ticks are primary breeding

The Hill Association, made up of merchants and businesses located on Kercheval between Fisher and Muir, will be celebrating its 18th annual Sidewalk Sale, offering a wide variety of merchandise at great savings. Free parking will be available in the municipally owned lot.

In honor of the Centennial Celebration of the Farms and City, two horse-drawn carriages will be available for rides on Saturday. One will be a 2seater surrey and the other is an opera carriage complete with driver and footman. Rides will be $5 a person.

The opportunity to ride through the area, the way it was done 100 years ago but with the convenience of paved roads, is brought to you by JP Farms of New Baltimore.

You will also be entertained by Inky & Dinky the clowns, a mime and the ever-popular psychic. Enjoy the food that will be available and you may be the lucky recipient of a gift certificate from the mystery Kris Kringle.

The Humane Society will also be on the Hill with a boutique and some furry friends.

Alexander Technique to be taught

Do you play tennis or golf every week and yet your game never seems to improve? Do you work at a computer and by noon your back is hurting and your arms don't feel right? Are vou an actor and when you perform, your voice disappears and you have trouble remembering your lines?

The Alexander Technique helps you use the appropriate amount of effort for a particular activity, giving you more energy for all your activities. The class begins Tuesday, June 15, and meets from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

In this five-week workshop, instructor Stephen Hurley will take you through a series of simple movements to learn how to change habits that interfere with optimum functioning. Becoming aware of and changing the habits that interfere with these simple activities builds a foundation for tackling more complex problems. Wear comfortable clothing.

The class is $50 for five weeks. Call 881-7511 for more information.

grounds for Lyme disease, with summer months generating the highest infestation rate.

The tick itself is a tiny parasite that attaches itself to a "host" and drinks its blood. The host could be human, canine or even fowl. A tick infected with the bacteria passes it on to the host when it bites.

Here are some clinical signs to watch for in your dog: the sudden onset of severe pain or lameness, a fever, lethargy, loss of appetite, depression or arthritis. If you suspect or find any of these symptoms in your dog, contact your vet immediately. Treatment is effective only when the disease is arrested in its early stages.

Prevention begins with your vet and can be continued at home thereafter. Vaccination is the best way to prevent the disease; however, there are several things you can do to help protect Stimpy all year long.

Regular brushing is a great place to start. Remember, a tick "buries its head" under the skin of the host so if you find a tick while brushing your tly with tweezers. If you yank the tick out, it may leave its mouthparts buried in your pet's skin. Destroy the tick and disinfect the bite area and your hands.

Other precautions are to cut back tall grass and shrubs when possible where your dog plays. Bathe your pet and use special shampoos or flea dips as recommended by your vet. Apply a professionally recommended (again from your vet) pesticide to your back yard, i necessary.

Ask your vet about the vac cine LymeVax to obtain maxi mum protection. And don't for get to ask him for details or getting your free copy of the brochure.

Shy worshippers?

A custodian working inside the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church June 5 heard strange noises and upon further investigation found the back doors had been pried open.

Nothing appeared to have been disturbed or stolen from the church on Maumee and St. Clair, according to Grosse Pointe City police reports. Almost a week earlier, the church custodian noticed pry marks on the back door. City police have the church under a special watch and the church doors will be fitted with dead bolt

Farms police investigating student's revenge

The 17-year-old, who is a special education student, said that the other youth's parents had called his parents two weeks earlier regarding the graffiti painted on their driveway. The 17-year-old denied he was involved.

At 2 p.m. June 1, the 17year old said he was approached by the other student, slapped several times on the head and then ordered to get into a car.

The 17-year-old got in and was driven to the other youth's house, where he was handed a can of paint thinner and a scrub brush and told to clean the paint off the driveway.

The youth, who said he was afraid to leave, scrubbed the driveway for an hour. He said he was afraid to tell his parents what happened, but later told the high school assistant principal because he had missed his last class and an appointment. 4 III GPN16/10/93

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Council will hold a Public Hearing in accordance with the provisions of Section 6-12-5 of the 1975 City Code of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods, in the Council Court Room of the Municipal Building, 20025 Mack Plaza, Grosse Pointe Woods, on Monday, June 21, 1993, at 7:30 p.m., to hear the request of Paul Shields, 601 N. Rosedale, Grosse Pointe Woods, who is appealing the denial of the Building Inspector to issue a driveway permit for 601 N. Rosedale. A driveway permit was denied because Section 6-12-3 of the 1975 City Code prohibits a paved parking area that exceeds thirty percent in coverage of the required front yard area for a residential lot in an R-1 zoned district. According to the provisions of Section 6-12-5 of the 1975 City Code, such drive cannot be constructed unless a variance is granted. This will be a public hearing and all interested parties are invited to attend.

St. John addition protested

By Jim Stickford Staff Writer

Protesters from Grosse Pointe Woods, Harper Woods and Detroit packed a Grosse Pointe Woods council meeting Monday night to protest construction by St. John Hospital of a new parking structure that would divert traffic onto Linville Street.

In a terse press release, St. John stated last Wednesday that access to the hospital's west parking deck would be blocked from the north parking lot. The north lot is now accessible from Mack Avenue.

Now anyone who wishes to park at the west parking deck will have to use Linville Street. Linville is a residential street off Moross. It runs from Detroit to Grosse Pointe Woods at Bournemouth Street.

Previously, those wishing to get to the west parking deck could do so from either Moross or the north lot entrance. Construction of the expanded trauma center and expanded parking deck have required the hospital to change its traffic patterns

Silwester told the Woods council and those attending the council meeting that the plans drawn up by the hospital's architectural firm, Smith, Hinchman and Grylls, did not require that a Linville exit and entrance access point be built.

The hospital's construction firm saw the plans and said that in order to place all its equipment at the construction site, it would be necessary to change the hospital's traffic flow. The firm said an access point would have to be installed on Linville.

Silwester said that the hospital hired Walker and Associates to look at the traffic patterns. Their report confirmed the construction company's conclusion. The city of Detroit issued the construction permits in late May.

'What I want to know is why St. John Hospital did not tell the city of Grosse Pointe Woods about these changes," said Woods mayor Robert Novitke. "A good portion of Lin-ville is in the Woods. Traffic at Linville and Bournemouth, which is completely in the Woods, will be greatly affected. I remember councilman Peter Gilezan asking hospital representatives over a two-year period if construction would affect traffic patterns. Why is it the first I heard about this change was today. Why did I hear about it from concerned area residents?'

"The larger issue is community relations," said Woods resident Robert Musial. "My wife and I found out about the Linville entrance on Friday when my neighbors from the Detroit side of Linville showed us a letter they received from the hospital on Wednesday. How could they not tell Woods residents who live on Linville about this when the Woods border is 100 feet from where they are building.?"

"Let's not pretend that St. John does not have plans for this neighborhood," said Musial. "They have already purchased a number of homes and are renting them out. These renters do not have the same interest in upkeep that the homeowners do. It affects the neighborhood. Maybe we should restrict rentals, but we have to protest what the hospital is doing to the neighborhood."

"Once the project begins, it becomes a fait accompli," said Woods resident Ken Skuzenski. 'The Woods can make Linville one way either coming or going, but what it boils down to is that the hospital has the neighborhood residents either coming or going. We will end up with more cars on residential side streets.'

Skusenski said the Woods might do well to consider closing off Linville at the Detroit border, but that could look like an effort to freeze out Detroit residents. He said the hospital might make that suggestion to prevent the Woods from looking bad.

Silwester said that in the spirit of community relations, St. John would halt repaying of the parking lot until it can meet with community and city officials to talk about the construction project. Silwester also said that the hospital would defer asking the Woods for variances on building a fence, and on lighting for a hospital parking lot in the Woods.

The building of a new trauma center at St. John Hospital has altered the hospital's traffic patterns. Construction has begun on an access point to the hospital from Linville Street. Area residents fear an increase in traffic along residential streets will endanger children and reduce property values.

Perennial Pointe artist

By Jason Meisner Special Writer

If the hallmark of a successful painter is exposure, then John Borher is a hit.

The portraits and other paintings of the Grosse Pointe native hang on walls from Seattle to Chicago, from California to Connecticut. One Borher original even hangs in Pakistan.

Borher, who lived in Grosse Pointe through the 1930s, got his start doing commercial advertising art in a little studio on the Hill. Because his studio was above an old-fashioned candy store, Borher's artistic ability began to take a new direction. "All of the grandmothers would bring their grandchildren in because of the exotic candies," Borher recalls. The children soon became the main subjects of his portrait work.

When World War II broke out, Borher went to work for the Hudson Naval Arsenal, doing mostly chart work. After an illness in the family caused him to move to California's San Fernando Valley, Borher continued to contribute to the war effort.

"I worked for Lockheed, which was designing the P-80 jet fighter," he said.

After the war, the hot weather drove Borher out of southern California, and he headed north where he settled in Palo Alto, Calif.

"The weather reminded me so much of Michigan," he said, "that I decided to move there for good."

It was in Palo Alto that Borher became an established portrait painter.

John Borher

Borher never forgot his roots, however. He visits Grosse Pointe every year, staying in a private home and painting portraits for local customers.

"I come here to finish up paintings that were promised on my last trip," Borher said. "I also make new contacts and take photographs for new assignments.

Although he specializes in children's portraits, Borher has other clients as well.

"I've done quite a number of adult portraits of mothers and grandmothers in Grosse Pointe," he said.

Borher has also done portraits for several well-known members of the Ford family, including William Clay Ford, Walter Ford, And Josephine Ford.

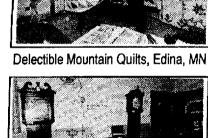

Borher's interests are not confined to only portraits. "I also enjoy doing landscapes, seascapes, and animal studies,'

Athletes who drive

Athletes come in many shapes and sizes, yet constant visions of physically superior "super-beings" pushing themselves to the limits seem to plague the minds of most Americans. This fallacy has led to the threatening decisions throughout a challenging three-hour race, displaying a level of concentration worthy of any athletic event.

Brayton set his sites on car racing early in life. The son of former Indy car driver Lee Brayton, Scott has been racing cars since he received a go-cart for his fifth birthday. Scott moved up from racing go-carts to open-wheel formula cars and the Formula Ford series. In 1981, Brayton, who hails from Coldwater, Mich., began racing ing a test of athletic ability? The car expends all of the energy, not the driver. The rationale becomes clear when you examine the word "athlete." An athlete is someone who takes part in competitive sports. No one can deny that racing cars is a competitive sport. Brayton started his Indy car career by driving partial campaigns almost exclusively for his family's team. However, he made his mark in 1985 when he set a track-record lap time of 214.99 mph and qualified with a four-lap average speed of 212.354 on opening day of the Indy 500. This year, Scott, sponsored by First of America Bank, will drive No. 22, Amway's Winning Spirit Indy Car in the Detroit PPG Indy Car race, the Indianapolis 500, the Milwaukee 200 and the Michigan 500.

Star of the Sea parish is team won the Class C district scheduled to close the high

The Tunas advanced to the Class C regional at Erie-Mason where they'll play third-ranked Ida in the semifinal scheduled for noon Saturday.

Freshman Lori Caloia, who missed part of the season because of illness, was in top form during the district as she pitched two three-hitters and a one-hitter and struck out 13 in each of the three games. Her one-hitter came in the championship game.

"I guess 13 is her lucky number," said her father and coach. Southfield Christian scored first in the district championship game, picking up an unearned run in the first inning on two walks and an error. Star of the Sea took the lead with two runs in the second. Anne Toelle walked, raced to third on Sarah Klusek's bunt single and scored on a passed ball. Klusak was thrown out at the plate attempting to score on a fly ball, but Tricia Beaupre walked, stole second and third and scored on Cathie Colby's single.

The Tunas added two more runs in the fourth. Kelly Barbetta walked and scored on Klusek's double. Klusek took third on the throw to the plate and scored on a passed ball.

"We had to take some chances with aggressive baserunning and it paid off," Bert Caloia said. "We keep applying things happen."

Star of the Sea added its final run in the fifth. Angie Krese reached base on an error, stole second and scored when Southfield's second baseman made an error on Caloia's grounder.

cellent plays on low throws to first base, while Colby did a good job behind the plate.

The Tunas advanced to the championship game with a 12-0 victory over Lutheran East. Caloia pitched the first six innings, while Beaupre pitched a hitless seventh and fanned two.

"I didn't know if Lori had the stamina to go seven in-Sarah Childs made some ex-nings in both games, but she was still strong at the end of the Southfield Christian game," Bert Caloia said.

Klusek, Childs and Colby

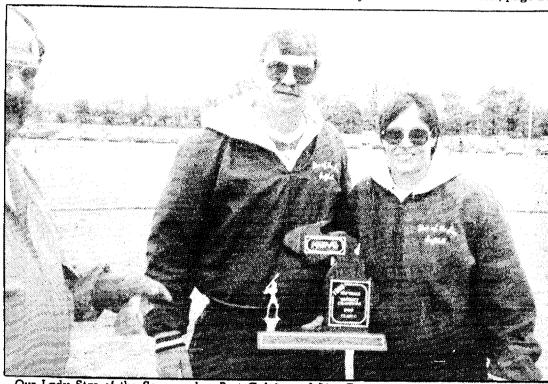

each had key hits in Star of the Sea's four-run second inning. The Tunas led 5-0 going into the sixth when they scored four more runs. Leadoff batter Laura Faber scored four runs for the Tunas. Earlier, Star of the Sea

crushed Detroit Country Day

11-1 in a pre-district contest.

troit King 19-0 in the title game.

"Stephanie, who was a great addition to our team this year, raised her average to the high .400s and Kim is up in the high .300s after Saturday," said South coach Peggy Van Eckoute.

The district championship was South's first in softball since 1985. The Lady Devils advance to the Hazel Park regional where they'll play Ferndale in a semifinal game at 10 a.m. Saturday.

"I think we have a good chance to win the regional,' Van Eckoute said. "Our record is 13-17 now, but we played a real tough schedule. Our league (the Macomb Area Conference White Division) was tough and we played some good teams in weekend tournaments.'

South won two of the tournaments and finished second in the Home Plate tournament in St. Clair Shores.

Kim Apple went 4-for-4 against Kettering, while Coddens had a homer and double and six RBI. Kristen Apple had two hits, including a double, and knocked in five runs.

Senior Kristen Candea pitched all five innings against the Pioneers, allowing two hits and a walk while striking out

Kim Apple had four more hits against King, collected three RBI and stole two bases. Coddens had a double among her three hits and posted four RBI. Another senior, second baseman Angela Roxas, had two hits, including a double, and drove in three runs.

Maureen Ryan pitched a onehitter against King. She struck out six and walked two.

PSL foe nips South in district

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

Last Saturday started out gloomily for Grosse Pointe South's baseball team and it never got better.

"Southeastern played very well," said South coach Dan Griesbaum after the Detroit Public School League team nipped the Blue Devils 5-4 in the championship game of the Class A district hosted by

"They played errorless ball. Everything we hit was right at somebody and they picked up everything we hit. We didn't kick the ball around, but Southeastern deserved (to win)

The highlight of the day for the Blue Devils was a five-inning no-hitter by senior Fritz Coyro as he beat Detroit Kettering 15-0 in the semifinal game. Coyro, who finished his high school career with a 20-1 record, struck out 12 and walked four.

Kevin Brennan had a pair of singles and drove in four runs for South, while Brad Dunlap had two hits, including a double, and three RBI. Erik Lindsay had two doubles and drove in three runs.

South took a 1-0 lead in the first inning of the title game on Chris Fox's sacrifice fly, but the Jungaleers scored twice in the top of the third to lead 2-1. Another sacrifice fly by Fox, after a double by Jay Harrington and a groundout, tied the game in the bottom of the third.

Southeastern, which finished third in the PSL playoffs, went ahead to stay with a fourth-inning run and the Jungaleers added two more in the top of the seventh.

The Blue Devils threatened in the bottom of the seventh. Corey Geer led off with a triple and scored on Harrington's sacrifice fly. Brennan followed with a home run to close the gap to one run. Dunlap was hit by a pitch and stole second, but the next two South batters flied out to end the game.

"I thought we'd at least tie it when we got Dunlap to second with one out, but it wasn't to be," Griesbaum said.

South finished the season with a 23-11 record.

ULS second in state

University Liggett School continued its string of success in boys tennis last weekend when the Knights finished second to Detroit Country Day in the Class C-D state championships in Kalamazoo.

The Knights made it to the semifinals in all seven flights. Danny Khatib at No. 4 singles, Peter Brown and Stephen Verb at No. 2 doubles and Jeff Mertz and Samir Patel at No. 3 doubles advanced to the finals before losing to their rivals from Country Day.

"We played fairly well," said coach Bob Wood, whose team finished second for the seventh time to go along with 20 state championships during his 28year career at ULS.

"We won three three-setters on Friday, including a tremendous comeback by Danny Khatib, who trailed 6-7, 2-5 before rallying for a 6-7, 7-5, 6-2 vic-

The Sliders, who are coached by Chuck Maniaci, completed a triple play.

Shortstop Erin VanAssche caught a line drive, threw to second baseman Amy Bomanis for the second out and Bomanis relayed to first baseman Hannah Alphs to get the third out.

The other three-set victories came in first singles where Ryan Dłoski lost the first set 0-6, but rallied to win the next two 6-2, 6-4; and in second doubles where Verb and Brown pulled out a 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 victory to advance to the finals.

Country Day finished with points to 18 for ULS. Whittemore-Prescott was third with 15, followed by Bay City All Saints 12 and Hemlock 11.

North wins district title

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

Here's a warning for Grosse Pointe North's opponents in the state Class A baseball playoffs.

Don't get Donny Tocco's dander up by walking the batter in front of him.

'Teams have walked Mike Haskell twice this season to load the bases and both times Donny has hit a home run," said North coach Frank Sumbera after his team won the Class A district tournament the Norsemen hosted last weekend.

Tocco's slam was one of four homers North hit in its 11-0 victory over Detroit Denby in the district semifinal. Haskell added his second homer of the day in the Norsemen's 4-3 victory over East Detroit in the championship game.

North advances to the Port Huron regional where it will play De La Salle at 10 a.m. Saturday.

"We lost to them 9-5 a couple weeks ago, but neither one of us threw our top pitchers," Sumbera said. "I feel real good about our chances, but we have to work hard and keep things in perspective."

Sumbera admitted he was worried about facing East Detroit in the district final.

"I'm not so sure they weren't the best team in their division (the Macomb Area Conference Red) at the end of the season," he said. "They played as well as anybody in the second half."

Haskell gave North a 1-0 lead with a two-out homer in the first, but the Shamrocks' Andy Wisniewski matched Haskell's shot in the third to tie the game.

Back-to-back doubles by Tocco and Nick Chapie gave the Norsemen a 2-1 lead in the fourth, but East Detroit tied the game in the bottom of the North rallied for two runs in the top of the fifth after the first two batters had been retired. A walk to Tony DiLaura, a single by Haskell and a walk to Tocco loaded the bases. Scott Spada then hit a 3-1 pitch up the middle to drive in two runs. Tocco was out attempting to move to third, but he kept the play alive until the second run scored.

East Detroit's Jim Kirkland hit a leadoff homer in the bottom of the fifth, but winning pitcher Jason Jaworski, who scattered seven hits and struck out 13, fanned the next three batters.

The Shamrocks threatened again in the seventh but had a runner thrown out at the plate on a fine relay from right fielder Spada to first baseman Tocco to Haskell.

"Scott made a great throw and Donny cut it off and whirled and fired to Haskell."

Sumbera said. "It's one of those plays we spend a lot of time on in the gym in March. That's why we practice from 6 to 8 a.m. So we can have all three gyms to ourselves to work on things like that."

Jaworski then struck out two of the three batters he faced in the seventh.

Spada and Joe Maceri combined on a five-inning no-hitter in the victory over Denby. Spada fanned eight in his three innings, while Maceri struck

North jumped ahead quickly with three runs in the first on an RBI double by Tocco and a two-run single by Spada. Haskell made it 5-0 when he homered after DiLaura's single in the third.

The Norsemen broke the game open in the fourth. A double by Jaworski, DiLaura's single and the intentional pass to Haskell set the stage for Tocco's blast. Spada followed with a tremendous blast to the gym roof in center field and one out later, Chapie homered.

"Spada's homer must have carried 450 feet," Sumbera said. "If Tocco's homer didn't get everybody pumped up, Scott's blast certainly did."

North, which finished the season ranked sixth in the state in Class A, improved its record to 28-7.

Bishop Foley ends ULS' state tournament run

By Chuck Klonke

David Backhurst was disappointed but realistic when Madison Heights Bishop Foley

School girls soccer team out of the state Class B-C-D playoffs last week.

"It hurts to lose, but the bet-in the regional semifinal at ter team won," Backhurst said happen in order for us to win. after Foley posted a 2-1 victory We needed excellent defense, including goaltending, and we had that; Heather Heidel had "We needed several things to to be a force on offense and she field play. That was the critical thing. They exploited our youth."

Even though the Ventures dominated play for much of the game, ULS could have won.

Moments before Darey Resch headed in Foley's first goal after an excellent crossing pass from Tania Ciansarani about 15 minutes into the first half, Heidel took a point-blank shot that sailed over the net by

"If we score that goal, everything changes," Backhurst said. "It's a big lift to get that first goal. Scoring first really helped in our two games with Lutheran North."

Maria Fratarcangeli gave Foley a 2-0 lead at the 14-minute mark of the second half when she converted a pass from Resch, who played an outstanding game.

made several excellent saves to keep the game close and Heidel scored on a high shot from just outside the 18-yard line with about four minutes left. It was her 34th goal of the season, breaking the school record.

ULS continued to apply pressure and the Knights had an open net with about 10 seconds left, but were unable to get the shot away.

"I didn't realize how good a chance we had until I finally watched the film of the game,' Backhurst said.

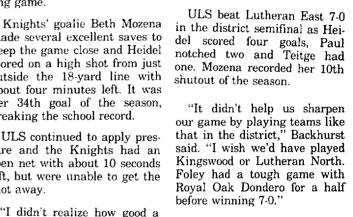

Backhurst felt that playing in the tough Catholic League helped Foley.

They're tested nearly every game, while we play some pretty easy teams in our league (the Metro Conference)," Backhurst said. "They learn the physical nature of the game and how to give that subtle shoulder or hip that can knock a player off stride."

ULS finished with a 17-2-1 record and was ranked third in the state in the final Class B-C-D poll. Foley was second behind defending state champion Richland Gull Lake.

The Knights won their district with a 10-0 victory over Bishop Gallagher. Beth Paul, who played a fine game on defense against Foley, scored three goals. Heidel and freshman Shera Teitge added two apiece and Bevan Garrett, Lauren Gargaro and Kate Frederick each scored once.

ULS had five all-Metro Conference selections, including seniors Heidel, Paul and Mozena. Sophomore Laura Haggerty and Teitge, a freshman who scored 23 goals, were the other Knights honored.

Firsts add up to a sixth for South was playing his best tennis of player in the second round in Andy Giraldo bowed to Huron

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's tennis team had several firsts in last weekend's Class A state meet in Midland, and they added up to a sixth-place finish for the Blue Devils.

"This is the first time we've had five quarterfinalists since 1990, it's the first time we've had more doubles winners than singles winners, and I have to give (assistant coach) Jeff Hodges credit for that, and it's the first time since I've been coaching that everybody won their first match," said South coach Tom Berschback.

The Blue Devils finished with 13 points. Ann Arbor Pioneer and Bloomfield Hills Lahser tied for first with 22 points.

South's third doubles team of Todd Scallen and Andy Schumaker advanced the farthest for the Blue Devils, losing 6-0, 3-6, 6-3 to a team from Pioneer in the semifinals.

Earlier, Scallen and Schumaker beat the second-seeded team from Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central 6-0, 6-2 and they downed West Bloomfield's No. 3 doubles team 6-0, 6-2 in the quarterfinals.

"They had a great match in the semis after losing the first set in about 16 minutes,' Berschback said. "They were really nervous, but they settled down.'

South's Cullen McMahon bowed out in first singles with a 6-3, 6-2 quarterfinal loss to Northville's Mark Schwagle, a three-year state finalist.

The Blue Devils' Andy Loredo had some tough luck after beating third-seeded Evan Hayes of Pioneer 7-6 in the first set of the quarterfinals. Loredo's legs cramped up and he was unable to continue.

"Both legs cramped up in the second set," Berschback said. "We had him just lose every point in that set and hoped he might be able to work out the cramps. He was tied 1-1 in the third set when he cramped up again and couldn't continue. He

the season and he had the Pioneer guy beat."

Jeff Wheeler in No. 2 singles lost 7-6, 6-3 to Matt O'Sullivan of Battle Creek Lakeview in the second round and Shawn Coyle dropped a 6-4, 2-6, 6-4 match to an Ann Arbor Huron

Paul Power and Jeff Halso lost 6-4, 6-1 to Huron in No. 1 doubles, while South's No. 2 team of Tom Rhoades and Berschback said.

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innothanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spaved or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

'Eyes on the Classics' will focus on automotive design

By Margie Reins Smith Feature Editor

Eyes on the Classics is one-of-akind - the only automotive show anywhere that's dedicated exclusively to car design.

Automobiles must be invited to participate.

All kinds of people (no matter how well- or poorly-designed they are) may attend. The purchase of a ticket lets visitors stroll the grounds of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Sunday, June 27, and gawk and gander at approximately 200 privately owned classic, historic and specialty vehicles.

Proceeds from the whole affair will go to the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology, a non-profit organization dedicated to preserving vision through education, research and support for the visually impaired.

Fancy vehicles aren't the only attraction, however. Other highlights of the increasingly successful 6-year-old DIO fundraiser will include:

 A collection of concept cars. A dozen Buick concept cars dating from 1938 to the 1990s will be displayed, including the industry's first concept car, the Buick Y-job, and a production vehicle that evolved from its design, the Super Buick is honored marque of the 1993 show, in recognition of its 90th anniversary.

Concept vehicles from ASC Inc., Chrysler Corp., Ford Motor Co., and General Motors Corp. will also be on display.

• An art show. An art exhibit and sale featuring 100 pieces of original work by automotive designers will offer items with prices ranging from $125 to $6,000

Student work from automotive design departments at the Center for Creative Studies and the Art Center College will also be exhib-

• A "Studio of the Future." A hands-on exhibit will feature the latest in electronic automotive design equipment.

• A chance to win a car. A 1993 Buick LeSabre is the grand prize of the raffle.

• Car competition. Sixteen car categories — eight are new this year - will earn awards for the best in each. Traditional categories include American Style Prewar, American Style Postwar, Racing Cars, and Commercial Vehicles.

Some categories are new this year: Pony Cars (sporty, American downsized automobiles), Tiny Tots (extremely small vehicles), Land Yachts (extremely large vehicles), Military Vehicles and Motorcycles. Each category features at least 10 vehicles and the winner of each class is chosen by a jury of automotive designers.

• An awards banquet. The "Vision Honored" banquet will be held on Saturday evening, June 26, at ITT Automotive World Headquarters and Technical Center in Auburn Hills. Tickets to the black-tie awards ceremony and banquet are $175 a person and reservations must be made by today, June 10. Call 824-5554.

• A brunch on the day of the show. The "Private Eyes" brunch will be held from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tickets are $85 a person and are limited. Reservations must be made by today, June 10. Call 824-

• A poster. The 1993 Eyes on the Classics commemorative poster is $10 unframed; $75 framed.

• Prizes. An awards presentation will take place at 1 p.m. on the day of the show.

Honorary chairman of the event is Robert J. Eaton, chairman and CEO of Chrysler Corp.

A group of eight visually impaired young adults will serve as judges for one of the 16 classes. They've chosen the "Land Yachts" category - 10 extremely large vehicles built between 1927 and 1973. Using their sense of touch, members will determine the most interesting car from a sculptural point of view. The winning vehicle will receive a special crystal award etched in Braille.

Design chairman is Thomas C. Gale, vice president of product design and general manager of minivan operations for Chrysler Corp.

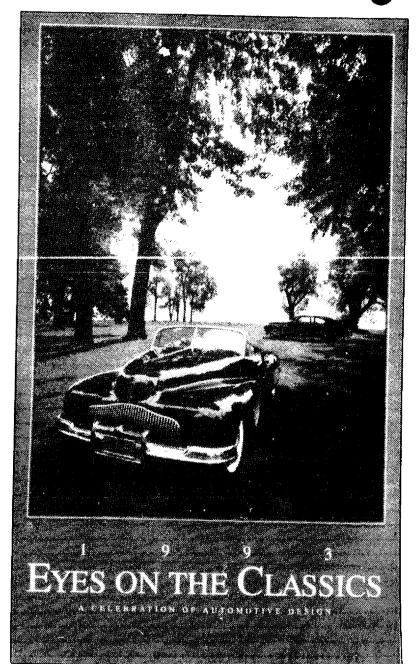

General chairman of the fundraiser is David I. Wenzler, vice president of Libbey-Owens Ford. Dr. Philip C. Hessburg is president of the DIO board of directors. Detroit Pistons guard Joe Dumars is the grand marshal for Eyes on the Classics.

Tickets for Eyes on the Classics are $8 in advance; $10 at the gate. For more information about the show itself, the special events. sponsorship activities or the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology, call 824-5554.

> The 1993 Eyes on the Classics commemorative poster features a 1938 Buick Y-job in the foreground and a 1948 Buick Super Sedanet in the background.

> The sixth annual fundraiser for the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology will be Sunday, June 27, on the grounds of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House.

Don't risk cancer: Worship your skin, not the sun

By Joseph McGoey, M.D. and Robert O'Bryan, M.D. Henry Ford Medical Center —

Pierson Clinic If you allow yourself to get sunburned this summer, you could be playing with fire.

Skin cancer is currently the most common type of malignant disease and the damaging effects of the sun's ultraviolet (UV) light bear most of the blame. More than half a million Americans develop some type of skin cancer every year. Sun damage to skin is cumulative, which means that each time you burn, you increase your odds of developing skin cancer.

In general, fair-skinned, light-eyed people who burn easily are most susceptible to skin cancer, but dark-skinned persons develop the disease as well.

As the weather gets nicer and children play outdoors more, parents should remember that kids are even more vulnerable to the effects of the sun than adults. Children under the age of 8 who get a single severe sunburn have up to three times the risk of developing skin cancers in adulthood as peers who don't burn.

Researchers believe a child's skin is more susceptible to the effects of the sun because the melanocytes - the skin cells that produce melanin, the pigment that gives skin its color are still developing. Somehow, excessive exposure to the sun alters the development of those cells, making them more likely to develop cancer in later years.

There are three types of skincancer. Before you bare your skin to the sun, consider whether you really want to risk getting burned by any of them. They include:

- · Basal cell carcinoma. By far the most common form of skin cancer, basal cell carcinomas are almost always curable. However, if left untreated for too long, severe disfigurements may occur. This form of carcinoma appears as a red scaly patch of skin with raised borders. Be suspicious of any ulcertype sore, especially on the chest and back, that doesn't heal.
- Squamos cell carcinoma. This form of skin cancer can spread to other parts of the body and is fatal to approximately 10 percent of the people who develop it. Squamos cell carcinomas usually develop on the skin of the face, hands, forearms and other heavily sundamaged areas. When the disease develops on normal skin, it appears as a nodule that grows and eventually becomes an open sore

Squamos cell carcinoma often begins as a pre-malignant skin disorder called actinic keratosis. Characterized by small reddish pink scaly patches, actinic keratosis usually appears on areas of the skin most frequently exposed to the sun, such as the face, neck or back of the hands.

• Malignant melanoma. This year, the American Cancer Society estimates that 32,000 Americans will be diagnosed as having malignant melanoma and approximately 6,800 people will die from the disease.

Over the past several decades, the incidence of malignant melanoma has continued to escalate dramatically. By the year 2000, experts expect that one out of every 150 people will have a melanoma. If the ozone layer - which filters out some of the sun's most harmful rays continues to be depleted, doctors expect the incidence of melanomas and other skin cancers to increase even faster.

Despite what many people seem to think, malignant melanoma doesn't just strike the old. It is currently the fifth leading cause of cancer deaths among men age 15 to 44.

Individuals who suffer frequent severe sunburns and who have more than 100 moles on their bodies are at highest risk for melanomas. However, heredity also appears to play a role. Studies show individuals with a close relative who has had a melanoma have almost twice the risk of developing the disease.

The dangerous thing about melanoma — unlike other types of skin cancers — is that a melanoma grows down, burrowing into the underlying layers of the skin. If it isn't detected and removed, it keeps growing until it reaches the bloodstream and the cancer cells are then carried to other organs in the body.

Many malignant melanomas originate from moles on the skin. Danger signs to look for in moles include:

- Asymmetrical in shape (the two halves are not mirror im-
- · Color variations from one area to another (shades of tan, Border irregular (scalloped, notched or poorly defined edges) brown, white, red, blue and especially black)

• Diameter larger than a pencil eraser.

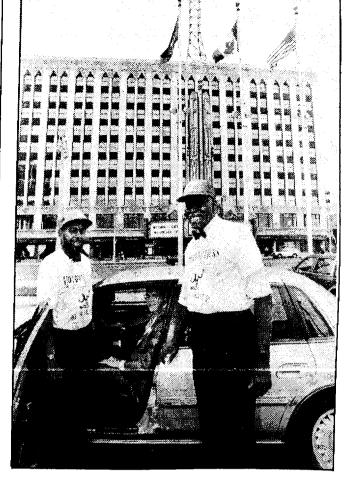

For the doctors who treat patients with skin cancer, the most dismaying aspect of the disease is that it could easily have been prevented in many cases. To enjoy the sun, without endangering your health, follow these sun survival guidelines:

- Always wear a sunscreen with an SPF (sun protection factor) of at least 15. An SPF of 15 means you'll be protected from burning 15 times longer than without a sunscreen. You'll still get some color, but at least you have less chance of a burn. Without a sunscreen, most people burn within 20 to 30 minutes.
- Choose a sunscreen that is PABA-free and that is rub-proof and sweat-proof.
- · Wear sunscreen even on cloudy days. Eighty percent of the sun's radiation passes through clouds.
- Don't make the mistake of thinking that a tan will protect you from the sun's damaging effects. The benefits of any tan are purely cosmetic.

- Be more careful if you travel to a high altitude or close to the equator because the sun's rays will be much stronger.
- Many drugs make skin more sensitive to sunlight. If you're taking birth control pills, antibiotics, water pills, tranquilizers, or medications for diabetes, check with your doctor to find out if you need to take extra precautions.

Ultimately, whether you choose to be sensible about sun exposure comes down to this: Do you want that "healthy" glow a tan provides or would you rather really be healthy?

The goal of the campaign is to achieve a 10 percent increase in front seat safety belt use among drivers and passengers. Currently, the belt-use rate among metropolitan Detroit motorists is 48 percent; statewide, the rate is

The Pastor's Corner The spirit of giving

The Rev. Frederick J. Harms St. Paul Lutheran Church

There is a story about a devout and righteous monk finding a very precious gemstone. He was delighted at this unexpected discovery and placed the valuable jewel in his knapsack.

As the monk continued on his journey, he met a traveler in need. The traveler asked the monk to share some of his provisions. Immediately, the monk opened his knapsack to share his food with the hungry man.

Instead of bringing out a morsel of food, his fingers found the gem. So the monk lifted out the stone and gave it to the traveler.

Overjoyed by his good fortune, the traveler went on his way. A few days later, however, the traveler caught up with the monk. He begged him again: "Please, give me something more precious than this stone. Please give me that which prompted you to give the stone to me.'

True joy is found in the spirit of giving. It is the spirit of generosity that makes communities strong and keeps compassion alive.

When individuals, organizations and churches look beyond their own needs to serve others, we are all blessed in the process. When thoughtfulness and caring are evident in life, the community has a powerful witness. That witness, as the monk and traveler discovered, is more valuable than material possessions.

Each one of us is blessed to be a blessing. Think of ways to serve and care for one another. Take time to give an unexpected gift. Remember the many charities, ministries, churches and other service-oriented organizations which can put our generous contributions to good work. We can make a difference to some lonely, needy and hungry soul.

The apostle Paul reminds us: "Each of you must give as you have made up your mind, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver. And God is able to provide you with every blessing in abundance, so that by always having enough of everything. you may share abundantly in every good work." (II Corinthians 9:7-8).

"Have a Pleasant Try at Perfection" BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠ ♥ ♠ ♣

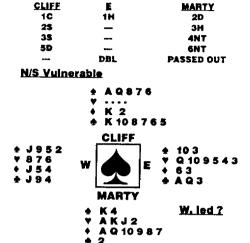

To build ease and confidence in your bidding and play, you must develop abilities and then excellence in the use of those abilities. Martin Hirschman of Southfield has done just that in the past few years and the result in the judgement of the critics of our game is that he has become one of Michigan's first class masters.

Many of you are familiar with Marty's excellent authorship of M.B.A.'s Table Talk this past half dozen or so years, but his glory isn't confined to his pen and play. He just may also be Michigan's best bridge teacher. I visited with him a few days ago when I learned that he was considering marketing two manuals he had written on basic and intermediate bridge. What started out to be a brief verbal excursion into this work became a most interesting thirty-five minutes about his impressions, perceptions and revelations about bridge and it's participants. He's the first to acknowledge that one's advancement to recognized authenticity is a mystical experience the equal of J. Arthur Rank's, "Thirty-Nine Steps." I particularly like three things he said. "Every day players remain that way if they haven't the determination to improve... Concentration is a tremendous force in the management of a players affairs at the table... If partner is dubious about what you're doing, it's often most likely your fault."

I have had the pleasant experience of playing with and against him and no matter the outcome you're left with a feeling the occasion has been to your advantage. He never shows strain and this is an ideal setting for success and a major force in motivating your most ardent effort.

I immediately recognized that any interview with him resulting in such a narration had to be liberally punctuated with fun bits and pieces about his lovely wife Marcia and son Sam. She being the well known feature editor of one of our major dailys, Marcia Abramson who is also an extremely talented writer too. Sam is nearly as well known as Dad for once he was the A.C.B.L.'s youngest life master. Achieving this honor, Dad cradles in glory for he will tell you both worked diligently attaining this rank for

I have witnessed Marty at the helm of many fine hands, but today's is one of his favorites for two memorable reasons. It was played in Pittsburgh some years ago in partnership with our own memorable Cliff Bishop shortly before we lost him and it was against a player of substantial talent from the east coast who had doubled the final contract (the Lightner type) for a lead he never got. This gave Marty a glimmer of hope and he took full advantage.

If you don't like the bidding join the crowd. Marty will be the first to tell you his third bid should have been four diamonds then they would have reached the unbeatable minor slam, but Marty at that stage in his advancement hadn't finished his post graduate class and six no trump was doomed with a club lead that for some reason expert West didn't find. With the diamond lead success was very shaky if spades didn't break, but Marty found the only way. Win the diamond king, three spades and five more diamonds as he did and at trick ten East is very uncomfortable. He has to come down to the club ace to protect the heart queen and declarer read it right throwing East on lead and winning the last three hearts when East was forced to play that suit himself.

A gorgeous newcomer to the summer produce pageant is the Rainier cherry. This plump, golden cherry with a pinkishred blush was developed in the 1960s at Washington State University by grafting Bings and Vans, another darkskinned cherry.

Some consumers are confused by the Rainer's light color, thinking the cherries are inferior or unripe. Nothing could be further from the truth, because these beauties are every bit as sweet and delicious as the deepred varieties. The flavor is wellbalanced between sugar and acid, and the whole is compounded by a pleasing cherry aroma.

Bings, lamberts and rainiers comprise nearly 95 percent of the fresh, sweet cherry production in the northwest.

"Anything Goes" is a farce that takes place aboard a ship bound for England.

Aboard are a nightclub singer, Reno Sweeney (Alison Bevan), her friend Billy Crocker (John Scherer), debutante Hope Harcourt (Mary Lou Barber), British Lord Evelyn Oakleigh (Anthony Dodge) and assorted characters, including Moonface Martin (John Deyle) and Mrs. Evangeline Harcourt (Darrie Lawrence).

Romantic tangles, mistaken identities, a stowaway, Public Enemy No. 13, and a pair of Chinese sharpshooters enliven the proceedings.

The play begins on a lively note in a bar, with Reno belting out "I Get a Kick Out of You." With her is Crocker, a young stockbroker, whom she has fallen for because he never made a pass at her.

Keith Carradine and Dee Hoty star in "The Will Rogers Follies - A Life in Revue" at the Fisher Theatre. They are playing the roles they created on Broadway.

It's a folly to miss this 'Life in Revue'

By Ronald J. Bernas Assistant Editor

It would be safe to say that nothing like "The Will Rogers Follies - A Life in Revue" has come to the Fisher Theatre in a long while.

That's because for a long while there hasn't been anything like the musical extravaganza that won several 1991 Tony Awards, including Best

The show is a vaudevillian recount of the life of Will Rogers, possibly America's best known, most quoted humorist. It's an odd way to write a biog-

But that's the point of the play. Will Rogers lived the American dream - he was a young man who everyone thought would never amount to anything, yet became America's favorite son on the strength of his talent, his persistence and his perseverence.

So who better to present the American dream than Broadway giant Flo Ziegfeld? King of schmaltz and overproduction, Ziegfeld (who appears in the play only in voice-overs taped by Gregory Peck), keeps a watchful eye over the proceedings, cutting in and telling Will to get to a song quick everytime the story threatens to become the main focus of the

There's no Sturm und Drang (even the death of his son is treated in a cute, folksy manner); Ziegfeld wouldn't allow it. There's not much character development, but then again there's not much of a plot, either, for the characters to develop from. They just spring up onstage fully realized.

What there is, is a lot of showmanship, created by another Broadway legend, Tommy Tune, who conceived, choreographed and directed the extravaganza.

The girls are beautiful and scantily clad, as Ziegfeld would have liked, and they dance upon a stage that is nothing more than risers which light up when necessary for added glitz.

And glitz and special effects are what you get. The opening of the second act is a fascinating display of rope tricks done in the dark with a glow in the dark rope twirled by a glow-inthe-dark cowboy.

It's another of the excellent show-stopping dance numbers the musical is built around. The numbers show off Tune's ingenuity, love of spectacle and passion for entertainment. Who else could choreograph a number in which the dancers never stand up and have it stop the show? Tune does it with the charming "Favorite Son," which falls near the beginning of the second act when Will tells about his failed bid for the presidency.

The music, by Cy Coleman and lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green, serve their purpose, but with only a few exceptions, are not anything that get stuck in your head.

An added treat is to see Keith Carradine and Dee Hoty in the starring roles — the roles they created and for which they were nominated for Tony Awards. Carradine is charming and laid back as Rogers and Hoty, as his wife Betty Blake, is his equal. She's so laid back that she succumbed to giggles when a stray dog (did I mention there's a dog act?) ran across the stage. But it's the kind of show that will allow for that, and her giggles spread to the audience.

The other two people with actual parts are also a joy to see. George Riddle is Walter Brennan-esque as Will's father and Leigh Zimmerman, as Ziegfeld's favorite chorus girl, proves that pretty can also be funny.

The show runs through June 19. It's a great chance to see what Broadway was and what it could be again. Call 872-1000 for tickets and information.

Music in the Plaza resumes

Summer evenings will be filled with the sound of music as the Music on the Plaza concert series swings into its sixth season beginning Thursday, June 17.

The weekly series will present some of the finest talent in the Detroit area.

'We're in our sixth year with the series," said John De-nomme of Village Records and Tapes, "and every year I'm more excited about our talent. We've got some great jazz people, some blues, a concert band and this year we've added a Saturday afternoon children's

The first concert will feature alto saxophonist Larry Nozero and his quintet, featuring trumpeter Don Swindell.

"Larry's been a real guiding light for jazz musicians and fans alike for a number of years now," Denomme said.
"For the last several years he's been music director for the Grand Hotel at Mackinac Island and he's spent his winters in Florida. We're delighted he's opening our '93 season."

Denomme urges shoppers, music lovers and families to bring a blanket and lawn chairs to the Plaza at the intersection of Kercheval and St. Clair each Thursday for the free concert series. All concerts begin at 7 p.m. unless otherwise noted.

Stratford opens in magnificent style

By Alex Suczek

Special Writer STRATFORD: "Antony and Cleopatra" is included controversially among Shakespeare's greatest tragedies.

Certainly it displays the Bard's absolute mastery of that rhythmic prose he brought to perfection in "Othello," beth" and "King Lear." It is less often presented, however, because it is also extremely difficult. Yet it remains one of the stage's most poignant and famous stories of middle-aged love. Stratford is up to such challenges and in doing justice to a superb script and breathing life into a monumental love story, the festival's new production is connoisseur's theater. There's historic pageantry as well. The restless movement of battles and meetings from Syria to Rome, to Alexandria, to Caesar's Camp fills the stage with intrigue and martial exploits, and sets a gorgeous panorama of Egypt as background for the greatest love in history.

Antony and Cleopatra present, with a touch of satire, the entire scope of civilized passion and both are highly skilled at it. They are mature, sophisticated lovers trapped by their own hubris.

The self-glorification of their emotions is an obsession to the point where Antony arrogantly ignores the threat his obsession poses to his military success and his public image. Meanwhile, Cleopatra, the consummate seductress, uses every wile and attraction to hold Antony's affection and draw his attention from his wife, his wars, his declining reputation in Rome and affairs

Ironically, her success is their destruction. As a female role, Cleopatra may be the most challenging in all dramatic literature; Shakespeare's queen of "infinite variety" has wide swings of mood and falls prey to extremes of emotion. Goldie Semple, in what must be the biggest challenge of her career, has surmounted a past image as a fine comedian with superb artistry. She is at once the regal seductress, the scheming monarch and the mature, passionate woman fighting to hold the last and greatest love of her life and the kingdom that is part of the empire he controls.

Semple is not a pretty mannequin queen. This is a real woman, free of affectation and stagey mannerisms.

Opposite her, Leon Pownall is superb as Antony. His soldierly style, straight and clear, and his impulsive, passionate reactions to Cleopatra's sometimes seeming treachery, are supported by a magnificent, fluent delivery of Shakespeare's rich prose. His is one of the great achievements of the Stratford stage.

One can share his bitter shame and anger after his disgraceful flight from the battle at Actium when Cleopatra's fleet deserts him. And one understands when, as she begs his forgiveness, he responds, "give me a kiss. Even this repays me." We understand so well, in fact, that Pownall's Antony fully achieves the tragic nobility Shakespeare contrasts with the moral decay of Rome It is a world in which no loyalty but self-interest prevails. Antony's fellow Triumvirs, Ceasar and Lepidus, seek only to enlarge their own power while Pompei makes his own play to become emperor. This atmosphere is summarized superbly by Lewis Gordon's Enobarbus. As Antony's comrade in arms, he is a scoffing, realistic commentator with extraordinary loyalty. His famous description of Cleopatra's coming to meet Antony on a barge "like a burnished throne" is a masterpiece of pragmatic, yet wide-eyed, soldierly delivery. Other supporting roles are also developed to the fullest. Stephen Ouimette's Octavius Caesar is chilling in his ruthless and sexless drive to absolute power. Edward Atienza's Lepidus is the ultimate decadent in his conniving attempts to conciliate between his rivals and his satirically funny drunken debauchery. The production is remarkably true to the script in another critical aspect. Throughout the action which jumps with dizzying frequency among distant sites of the Roman Empire, Shakespeare maintains an emotional unity.

Designer Stephanie Howard made it possible to retain that unity with a highly functional, simple set. Its only feature is an inner stage with a movable platform which can be hidden by curtains, and exposed for an instant scene change.

The costumes alone provide the pageantry and Howard's choice of 19th century Egypt and the British Empire as the source of styles for military uniforms, native Egyptian dress and Cleopatra's fabulous wardrobe, is highly successful.

Cleopatra's gowns are lavishly, even extravagantly befitting the fabled queen. They assume increasing importance as the play progresses, until they are critical to her last and most drastic acts. Her ultimate discovery in majestic death by the frustrated Caesar is a moment of brilliance. One bright spot amid the fading light seems to elevate her to divinity and reunion with her Antony. It is a piece of memorable theatrical imagery and great credit to director, and next year's artistic director, Richard Monette.

Realtors in the news

Nancy Velek, a top-producing sales associate with Johnstone & Johnstone Inc., recently completed the Floyd Wickman Master's Sales Academy and has earned the designation "Master Salesperson."

Velek was joined by more than 700 elite agents from all over the country and Canada.

"The academy is considered by many as the most advanced sales training program available to real estate agents today," Velek said.

To be accepted to the master's academy, agents must first complete an intensive 70-day training program conducted by Floyd Wickman, a nationally known and respected sales trainer.

"I strongly believe that education is the key to service," Velek said. "The more knowledge that I have to work with, the better I meet my clients' needs."

"Velek began her real estate career in 1985 and quickly established herself as one of the area's top producers," said office manager Paris DiSanto. "With her wealth of knowledge and years of experience she is a tremendous asset to our company."

Now's good time to consider an adjustable-rate mortgage

Current interest rates on adjustable-rate mortgages (ARMs) can still offer substantial savings over conventional fixed-rate mortgages. Even though the rates on fixed-rate mortgages are at historic lows, it is still a good time to consider ARMs

"How much you save with an ARM will depend on where future interest rates go," said William R. Yaw Jr., senior vice president for Standard Federal Bank. "If interest rates rise in the future, ARMs can still offer annual savings over fixed-rate mortgages for at least the first four to five years of the loan."

ARMs offer initial interest rates that are typically two to three percentage points less than fixed-rate mortgages of comparable maturities. But unlike fixed-rate mortgages, the interest rate on ARMs can change annually throughout the life of the loan based on an index such as the average yield on United States treasury securities.

"Many ARMs offer protection against future increases in interest rates by limiting annual rate increases to two percentage points and capping life-time increases at six percentage points," Yaw added.

Homeowners may also have the option of converting an ARM to a fixed-rate mortgage without actually refinancing the loan.

ARMs are still very attractive for first-time and upwardly mobile home buyers because the lower initial interest rates could allow them to qualify for a larger mortgage. Home buyers who only plan to live in a home for a few years before moving or trading up are also in an excellent position to take advantage of the lower initial interest rates available with ARMs.

MAGNIFICENT GROSSE POINTE PARK WATERFRONT ESTATE

This Windmill Pointe home is one of Grosse Pointe's finest architectural treasures. This generously proportioned Georgian Colonial is beautifully tucked away on nearly 2 acres of rare Grosse Pointe lakefront property. This glorious twelve thousand square foot home was designed in 1929 by Smith Hinchman and Grylls and built for an attorney and avid book collector named Hal Smith.

Upon entering, visitors are greeted by the grand entrance hall with its black and white marble floor, fauxed pillars, cut crystal chandelier and gracefully suspended spiral staircase.

Throughout the home, each room's ten foot ceiling is embellished with a different selection of decorative moulding to match the room's unique style — primarily the Georgian, Georgian Revival and Adamesque architectural styles.

With their grand dimensions, exuberant detail, and splendid view of Lake St. Clair, the living and dining rooms provide an excellent forum for entertaining. For large fair weather gatherings, French doors open out to a lakeside terrace — a perfect venue for watching doors open out to a lakeside terrace — a perfect venue for watching freighters and sailboats glide by.

After supper, few of us have ever had the opportunity to retreat to fireside reading in such a magnificently scaled (25' x 50') two story library. This library is one of the Pointes' most splendid architectural treasures. The room begins with floors made of narrow cut select hardwood in a herring bone pattern. The two story walls are a combination of hand-crafted bookshelves and raised paneling — all solid mahogany. Two suspended mezzanines with concealed staircases provide access to upper level shelves. This palatial room is crowned with a barrel vaulted ceiling and exuberant plaster frieze which challenges comparison.

Smith Hinchman and Grylls deserves recognition for this home's design. The home's present owners (since 1976) deserve credit for the work they have done to restore and maintain this Grosse Pointe treasure.

Buying foreclosure homes cheap: Buy the book

There are knowledgeable people buying foreclosed property every day for pennies on a dollar. Banks, government and thousands of individual homeowners have properties that must be sold at any price. Economic conditions, loss of jobs and underemployment have caused property owners to default on their mortgages. Every day somewhere in the nation an auctioneer is selling homes or commercial properties.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) fore-closed on more than 70,000 homes last year while the Veterans Administration foreclosed on more than 30,000. Add to this banks and other lenders. In a small state such as New Jersey, there were about 20,000 foreclosure suits filed in 1992. In other states such as Florida, Texas or California the figures are much higher. All this property is going on the market at a time when demand is low.

According to Ted Thomas, of the non-profit Consumer Education Research Center, while foreclosure is sometimes a tragedy for the individual property owner, it has created a bonanza for those who know how to profit from what he called the "hidden market." He adds that it is easy to find this hidden property because it is all posted in public records in court houses all across the country.

Thomas has written a book, "Your Illustrated Guide to Foreclosure Goldmining," available from Consumer Center, 350 Scotland Road, Orange, N.J. 07050, 1-800-USA-0121 ($39.95). The huge 432-page book uses hundreds of illustrations to show the novice how to buy a home or commercial property at prices much below even the present depressed market.

He tells us that you don't need insider information to become an expert in the foreclosure market. The county records are open to the public every weekday. You can buy lists of foreclosure suits as soon as they are filed. Lists of bank and government-owned foreclosure properties are also available.

It's all there for the taking. Just a little research plus perseverance, mixed with a bit of negotiating skill and you have a profitable winwin arrangement, according to Thomas.

After a foreclosure action has been started but before the sale, the defaulting homeowner will often be willing to let someone else take over the mortgage for little or no money. In fact, in many cases, the bank will reduce the amount of the debt and the interest rate for someone with good credit who is willing to take over the debt. This way, the bank gets a new buyer without waiting the year or more until it can put the property up for sale

At the actual sheriff's auction sale, Thomas says, many banks will accept 50 percent or less of the value of the property because they are not eager to add another home to the roster they already have. Even after they have bought back property at the auction, banks are willing to make attractive deals in order to get rid of a property that will cost them thousands for taxes and maintenance until they get rid of it.

Year-round fruit took millenia to get here

It wasn't so long ago that fresh fruits now available far from their growing sites were unheard of in this part of the country. What midwest family ate bananas even at the beginning of this century?

That was the era when an orange was a special Christmas treat and very expensive. We take for granted the prodigious display of fruits, vegetables and flowers from everywhere that is offered in every supermarket.

Bananas as a food have a past that is older than recorded history. Originally, they are thought to have come from the tropical regions of southern Asia. In 327 B.C., the armies of Alexander the Great found this fruit growing in the valley of the Indus River, and about that time people learned that they could carry the dried roots to distant places where they would grow. The great migrations from southern Asia carried bananas to the islands of the Pacific.

The Arabs brought the fruit from India, and it is believed that the bananas grown in the Middle East and in Egypt came from this source. The banana was found in these regions before the Mohammedan Conquest of 650 A.D.

Indian Ocean trade established bananas along the east coast of Africa sometime during the beginning of the Christian era. Arabs carried the fruit from tribe to tribe and used it as a medium for barter for ivory and slaves. This commerce carried the fruit to the Canary Islands, and the banana was well on its way to being the worldwide product it is today.

Bananas were not known in America for a long time. Ancient Indian tribes of the Western Hemisphere had no word for the fruit nor did they leave records or pictures of it. The credit for bringing bananas to the New World belongs to a Spanish priest, Thomas de Berlanga, who came as a missionary to

Flower Day II set for Sunday

If you missed Flower Day in May, here's another chance to take advantage of the largest single oneday flower sale in the world.

Flower Day II will be held at the historic Eastern Market at I-75 and Mack in Detroit on Sunday, June 13.

More than 100 growers will display and sell a breath-taking variety of locally grown annuals and perennials and some garden plants.

The event will run from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is free.

For more information, contact the Metropolitan Detroit Flower Growers Association at 665-2262.

By Ellen Probert

San Domingo in 1516 carrying some banana roots from the Canary Islands. He later became bishop of Panama and introduced bananas there.

Have you seen the bananas growing on the trees in the Anna Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle? And, if you have, weren't you surprised to find that they grow upside down?

When the banana trees are in bloom they can be a spectacular sight. The enormous flowers with their thick petals (which have the consistency of banana peels) are a deep red-purple color, almost black.

Oranges, the expensive holiday treats of the last century, are now so ho-hum commonplace as to be taken totally for granted. Oranges are indigenous to India and China.

They reached Europe and, in time, America, by way of Persia. In 1178, oranges were listed in herbals and medical books of the time as remedies for many things. Some of the listings indicate that even though ancient physicians knew nothing about vitamins, they were really on the right track.

Lemons came originally from western China and recipes for lemonade appear in many writings before the 17th century.

Apples grow wild in most European countries and in America, all descended from the wild crabapple. Grafting has made possible many new varieties throughout the centuries and even the ancients recorded many. Pliny the Elder, a Roman naturalist and writer (23-79 A.D.), mentions 22. Now there are more than 2,000 kinds of apples known worldwide, and apples figure largely in the folklore of most countries

It is thought that the "golden apples" of the ancients were really apricots, but apples as we think of them are universal, and cider is a beverage older than wine.

In Persia, apricots were called sun eggs and found their way to ancient Rome by way of Armenia, reaching England early in the 16th century. Like the banana, pears were brought to America by Spanish missionaries more than 400 years ago.

Another fruit that we think of as tropical is the avocado, which was mentioned in 1519 in the first Spanish book to be written about America. But avocados, then called alligator pears, didn't reach Florida until 1900. They are now so common in California that people complain about the mess avocados make falling from the trees. How would it seem to rake up avocados instead of falling leaves in the autumn?
