Local support mixed on drive to block school property tax repeal

Local support and interest in a statewide petition drive to reject Public Act 145 - the Legislature's repeal of property taxes to fund education — has been limited, so far, to Grosse Pointe public school teachers.

Two local vets reflect on those long-ago days of World War II

Many men served the United States during World War II, but few were in both the Pacific and European theaters.

Just one year earlier, Vigliotti was preparing to head to Helsinki, Finland, as a member of the United States Olympic rowing team. The Soviet invasion of Finland in 1940 forced

Schools superintendent unveils survival plan in case of cash crunch

By Shirley A. McShane Staff Writer

If a system - such as the Grosse Pointe public schools is an entity composed of several parts, some more vital than others, then that system can be reduced without losing its operational capability.

That's the simplified version of a complex plan unveiled by Grosse Pointe schools superintendent Ed Shine at Monday night's school board meeting.

The plan is called a systems thinking model - defined as a principled approach to improving the system given changing levels of financial support.

The model is based on years of research and development by district administrators and is being introduced as a way to prepare for changes brought on by Public Act 145 and Gov. John Engler's proposed education finance and reform pack-

Grosse Pointe schools face the possiblity of losing as much as 90 percent of its revenues since the Legislature eliminated property taxes as a means of education financing. No replacement plan has been implemented.

Shine presented the plan, outlined in a 16-page report, to an audience composed ily of administrators and PTO presidents and members.

"Ever since Senate Bill 1 and Public Act 145 passed, members of the board and myself have received questions from teachers, administrators, parents and members of the community asking what are we going to do?" Shine said.

We have been in the process of developing a model we could use if something happened to our revenues.'

The systems thinking model provides a blueprint for downsizing the district - if such a measure is necessary - that Shine hopes every school building in the district will consider during the upcoming budgeting process before recommendations for cutbacks are made.

The model divides the district into five performance areas surrounding the common goal of student learning. The areas are: board, superintendent and administration; curriculum and instructional materials; systemwide programs; classroom instruction; and infrastructure.

Each of the areas is then divided into its various functions within the school district and those functions are further classified as either primary core, extended core or beyond core. Primary core is defined as the most vital function in each area. So, for curriculum and instructional materials, primary core functions would be teaching of reading, writing and arithmetic; foreign language and instrumental music would be considered beyond core func-

"It is a breakdown for each area to discern what is most vital, what is less vital and what is least vital to the system," Shine said. "We wanted to see how the system was functioning and having looked at the system in several different ways, we are going to be asking the (school budgeting teams) not to forget what is of value in this district."

Teams from each school building are scheduled to meet later this month to review and discuss the plan. In late January, Shine said he hopes the teams will be prepared to discuss and make recommendations for changes to the building principals. Those recommendations will be passed on to Shine and then to the school board.

Following the presentation, board members praised Shine for his research but expressed concern that non-educators may have a hard time understanding the complexities and jargon of the systems thinking model.

This is not the way we have dealt with budgeting in the past," Shine said. "We are used to trimming around the fringes, having not had the potential for gigantic losses. But the system has to respond to the resources available and maintain the vitality of the schools.'

After the breakthrough, Vigliotti was sent to Brest, on the Brittany peninsula, where the Germans had submarines sta-

"We were told we wouldn't do much fighting," he said. "We were told to just parade and show some strength so the Germans could observe us."

Vigliotti remembers this was the only time he saw the Germans fly the white flag.

"We captured about 40,000 Germans," he said, "The battle lasted over a month and we were told it would only be a one-day affair.'

Vigliotti's outfit, as well as most Allied units, headed toward Germany. He recalls that on the way British spitfire planes came close to hitting his unit.

"We had to go out in the field and mark 'G.L' in the snow, hoping they wouldn't shoot at us." he said.

Vigliotti was then attached to the 4th Infantry Armored Division with which he went into Belgium and then into the Huertgen Forest in Germany.

Vigliotti fought in the Battle of the Bulge, holding his position even after he was told to destroy his guns and pull out. He was later commended for his efforts.

Vigliotti remembered the Malmedy Massacre in December 1944, when the Germans killed more than 70 American prisoners. After Malmedy, he said the American troops got mad, and the tide turned against the Germans.

'We were pushing for the Ruhr River crossing," he remembers. "We could see the big temple in Cologne.

'I got hit then with shrapnel," Vigliotti said. "I ignored it at first, but I had to go back to the field hospital.

He eventually had to go into a hospital in Paris to have the shrapnel removed from his leg.

He caught up to his unit. which was just about to reach the Remagen Bridge over the Rhine River. The Germans had tried to blow up the bridge to prevent Allied troops from following them. By the time it collapsed, enough Allied troops had crossed to push the attack.

As the war was winding down, Vigliotti was transferred to the 2nd Division, 9th Infan-

"When this happened, I said, that's enough for me," he said. "I had enough points. They discharge you by the point system and I had enough to get out.

A soldier accumulated points for months in service, service overseas and decorations. By May 1945, when he was discharged as a captain, Vigliotti had served in the Army almost four years, much of the time overseas, and had won the Croix de Guerre and the Bronze Star.

Vigliotti said he had been reluctant to talk about his experi-

"For a long time, I didn't want to talk about the war or go to a war movie," Vigliotti said. "I had enough of it."

Vigliotti went back to work in real estate and is now semiretired. He continued rowing until two years ago.

"There is an old Spitfire tied to the ceiling of the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago which flew in the Battle of Britain," said William Savage. "I looked at my old log book and found out I had flown that plane four times in training school during the summer of Savage, a native of Guelph, Ontario, joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in January 1941 and was trained as a single-engine fighter pilot. After his training, he went overseas toward the end of that year.

"When I got to England, the Canadian Air Force did not have any squadrons formed, so we were handed over to the RAF (Royal Air Force)," he

As a flight lieutenant in the RAF's 74th Squadron, he piloted Spitfires in North Africa, the Middle East, Italy and back to England before D-Day. Savage had an opportunity to rejoin the RCAF, but chose to remain with the RAF through the end of his tour.

A tour in the RAF was 200 operational hours. The average Spitfire flight was about an hour and a half.

Savage arrived in England after the Battle of Britain, which took place between September 1940 and May 1941.

"Most of my flying career was sparring," he said. "We thought we might get into some heavier fighting at D-Day. When we were briefed the day before, we were told there were about 600 German fighters immediately available. I flew four missions on D-Day and I never saw a German airplane. They'd all come out at night, after we went home

During the war, Savage said the only time the Allies were outnumbered in air power was New Year's Day 1945.

"I was in England at the time, but the Germans knew and Hurricane fighter planes during his tour.

There were 10 different types of Spitfires, starting with the 1,600 horsepower Spit 1, which was used during the Battle of Britain, up to the later model Spit 10 with 3,500 horsepower.

Though built as fighter planes, some Spitfires could carry bombs.

"Before D.Day, we had nothing to do," Savage remembered. "They strapped bombs on us and had us drop 500-pound bombs over France. We had no we had on how to drop them was that you wait until the target was in your gunsight. You had to be level when you dropped it to make sure it didn't slam into your propeller. They established all-time records for inaccuracy.'

Savage made about 10 of these bombing runs.

"I guess it was a way to keep us out of the barrooms," he joked.

Just before D-Day, convoy patrols kept Savage and the RAF busy. After the war, he and another pilot went across the channel to Abbeville, France, where the Germans had a fighter base.

"The Germans painted the cowlings on the planes a brilliant yellow," he said. "They were known as the yellow-nose 190s. As an RAF pilot, when you saw a yellow nose, you knew you were up against something different.

"So this other guy and I flew the bottom of the English down the runway just to see what it would feel like. It would have been tantamount to Savage flew only Spitfires putting the barrel of a gun in your mouth and pulling the trigger during the war.'

After D-Day ended, Savage's tour was over. He went to northern England for six months to instruct other pilots. He was then assigned to a Canadian squadron in England awaiting another assignment when the war ended.

This summer, Savage and his wife were touring English cathedrals. They went to Tattersall Castle, near an RAF base.

"I could see these jets roaring off in pairs," he said. "I bomb sights. The only training couldn't take my eyes off them.'

> A member of the tour group knew of Savage's RAF involvement and made arrangements for the group to visit the base.

"We saw the only Spitfire that ever flew in the Battle of Britain that is still flying," he remarked. "You can't go near it. But an RAF man who was escorting us said, 'where's the Spitfire pilot?' He took me over and said, 'climb in.' For just a few minutes, I was a boy again."

Savage said that pilots who flew during the Battle of Britain are very recognizable.

Three years ago, at the 50th anniversary of the Battle of Britain, he met the widow of Douglas Bader, who was considered the hero of the battle. During a tour, a young boy kept asking his father when he was going to see a Spitfire.

"Mary told the boy I used to be a Spitfire pilot, and the boy's jaw just dropped," Savage said. "He just stared at me, not saying a word.''

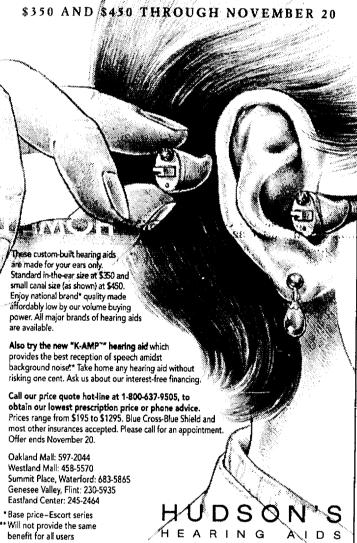

Savage married Mary Mc-Kenzie after the war and moved to Grosse Pointe. Now retired, he worked at Hudson's as a manager in the home improvement department of the downtown store

Andrews is leery about Prudential's settlement offer.

"Prudential customers have been somewhat coerced into feeling comfortable," he said. "These poor people are saying, 'My worries are over.'

But, Andrews maintains, the Pru investors are being lulled into a false sense of security.

He pointed out that Prudential's ante of $340 million in settlement money vs. the $7 billion in limited partnerships sold is only about 5 cents on the dollar. Even if Pru doubled its payout, that's only a dime on the dollar; triple the settlement would only be 15 cents on the dollar.

Further, the court-approved arbitrator, through the SEC-Pru settlement, will handle all the cases filed, making in-depth evaluation of individual claims unlikely, Andrews said. Also, the investor must fill out complicated forms and is not there to argue his own case.

"It's not real conceivable the client can get a fair shake," he

Investors can get a better chance before a tribunal of professional arbitrators, Andrews said.

While the initial screening of cases is free, Partnership Arbitration charges a $500 fee if clients wish to proceed. The fee includes research, a complaint letter, statement of claim, expenses and expert testimony, if necessary.

There's an additional arbitration fee of $300 to $1,000, if the case gets to that. If referred to a lawyer, the client would pay the attorney 20 percent to 25 percent of the settlement.

But Andrews points out that 80 percent of the cases involve amounts between $25,000 and $50,000. The $1,000 up-front cost, including a $500 arbitration fee, pales in comparison. Five cents on the dollar of a $25,000 investment is $1,250.

"I think the people are taking a lot of risk in doing it on their own," Andrews said.

Why did so many investors fall for such risky ventures? Both Baumgardner and Andrews agree: "Hey, it's The Prudential. No one doubted it.

Home Improvement: Customcraft gets a facelift and a new owner

By Jim Stickford Staff Writer

Thanks to a new owner, Customcraft, a Grosse Pointe design firm for 37 years, is expanding its storeroom and offering more selections than ever for Grosse Pointers

City of Grosse Pointe resident Donald Schipper, M.D., purchased Customcraft about three months ago, fullfilling a long-held desire to get into the construction and design busi-

"I am getting involved in the most difficult and expensive part of home design," Schipper said. "We specialize in kitchens and bathrooms, the two most expensive areas of the house, and the areas where the most mistakes are made.

The two areas are expensive because that's where the plumbing is centered, Schipper said, and where most of the very expensive appliances are kept. He said the kitchen is one of the most used areas in most homes, and when design mistakes are made, it really shows.

Common mistakes include lack of counter space, poor lighting, poor choice of materials and poor floor design and agreement with William Ohs layout, said Schipper. For that Cabinets. reason, he said, it's vitally important for a business like his, which deals with an upscale clientele, to have good people on staff.

"We are expanding our showroom five-fold," Schipper said. "We are also hiring additional design staff. I am seeking the most talented design people I can find. We will hire two designers this month, and I hope to hire three more by the end of February, when our remodeling should be complete. Most of the employees here have at least one degree.

"Usually staff members have a bachelor's in architecture. Our latest hire has two degrees, one in architecture and the other in interior design."

Besides expanding showroom floor space, Schipper has changed the front exterior of the store and is in the process of completly renovating the rear elevation of the store.

While based in Grosse Pointe, Customcraft does business throughout southern Michigan and northern Ohio, thanks to an exclusive distribution Cabinets.

"They make the best and most distinctively designed cabinets in the country," said Schipper. "We will also be selling La Cornue stoves. They are made in France, and are some of the best made and most distinctive looking stoves in the world. They do not come cheap and they are not easy to get. It takes three months to order

Schipper has been subcontracting the work for most of his jobs, but is in the process of looking for skilled tradesmen to add to his staff. But he was quick to add that while he uses subcontractors, the work is overseen by his company's own site managers.

'My business concept is that if I can get the most talented design people and the most skilled craftsmen money can buy, I will have a business that will be successful for another 37 years," Schipper said.

Even though his showroom on 89 Kercheval is being renovated, it is open for business, said Schipper. For more information, call 885-1010.

Dr. Donald Schipper recently purchased Customcraft on the Hill. Schipper has initiated α remodeling project that, when finished early next year, will increase interior floor space fivefold, and give Grosse Pointers more choices than ever in kitchen and bathroom remodeling.

Hundreds of thousands take bath with Prudential Securities

By John Minnis

You thought you were buying a piece of the rock, but instead you were sandbagged.

Some 360,000 investors who bought into 650 limited partnerships in the 1980s through Prudential Securities Inc. are now finding out they will perhaps receive only cents on the dollar instead of the allegedly promised 14 percent to 16 percent annual return.

On Oct. 21 through a Securities and Exchange Commission order, Prudential Securities -"Pru" for short — agreed to pay at least $340 million in restitution and $31 million in fines, but stopped short of admitting or denying wrongdoing, according to a Nov. 8 Business Week

Rounding out the vote were Elaine Hartmann with 1,358 votes, Christopher Corden with 793 and Erin Barthel with 744. John DeHayes withdrew from the election last month, but it was too late to have his name taken off the ballot. He gathered 394 votes.

The Aug. 3 primary reduced a field of nine candidates to eight. DeHayes' withdrawal in October made it seven.

The Farms elects its mayor from within the council by a majority vote following each election. Berendt, a councilmember since 1987 and mayor since 1991, was selected by the council at Monday's meeting to remain as mayor and Danaher was named mayor pro tem, replacing Crowley, who chose not to run for re-election.

'Think Trim' stay slim throughout the holidays

As the holidays approach, we shop more, party more, visit more and eat more. Most Americans will gain between six and 10 pounds between Nov. 1 and Dec. 31. So, should we just give up and eat every cookie and candy cane along the way?

"No," says Lorraine Stefano, founder and director of Think Trim.

She will offer "Think Trim Through the Holidays" on Monday, Nov. 15, from 1 to 3 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32-Lake shore, Grosse Pointe Farms.

"Through this class people will learn how to join in all the fun of the holidays and without gaining weight," Stefano said.

She also offers these tips for healthy holiday eating:

1) Try some but not all. During the holidays, there are all kinds of new foods around. Sampling can be fun but try three hors d'oeuvres, not 12; have a taste of four desserts. not four pieces of dessert. Leave the party satisfied, not stuffed.

2) Don't be fooled by the gift wrap. Many "holiday foods" are around all year long. The red and green foil-wrapped chocolate Santa is the same as the chocolate egg you ate at Easter. The reindeer Christmas cookie is only a sugar cookie in disguise.

3) Recognize you can have it again. The minute you make a food forbidden, it becomes too important. Don't tell yourself you can only have this over the holidays. Then you may want to eat it all now. Remind yourself that you can have your favorite foods anytime you want, even in July.

4) Give a gift of health. If you do give a gift of food, make it a healthy one. Redo that old family recipe with some healthy substitutions - instead of whole eggs, use an egg substitute; instead of whole milk,

He's the greatest — just ask Guinness

By Margie Reins Smith Feature Editor

Joe Girard was NOT born to sell cars.

He was born to fail, he said. His father told him, over and over, that he was no good and that he would never amount to anything worthwhile.

Instead, Girard became the world's greatest salesman. To prove it, he points to page 149 of the British Master Edition of The Guinness Book of World Records, where it says he holds the all-time record for retail automobile sales in units: 1,425 in 1973.

Girard includes this and other achievements on the back of his business card: most retail sales in one day (18); most retail sales in one month (174); most retail sales during his 15year career (13,001); honored by the American Academy of Achievements with the Golden Plate Award; nominated for the Horatio Alger Award by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale; spoke on a platform with Peale, President Gerald Ford and the late Lowell Thomas; purchased the original 60 millionth copy of the Guiness Book of World Records for $82,059.80 and donated proceeds to Save the Children of the World and Intermediate Technology.

Business cards are important selling tools for Girard.

He's still unbeaten, even though he's not in the latest edition. "Ten precent of the listings are removed each year, even if the records are still standing," Girard said. "Otherwise the book would be huge.'

ghetto," he said.

His father abused him physically and verbally. "He beat the hell out of me," Girard said. "The physical hurts heal, but the words don't. He called me names. He said I was a bum. He said I'd never amount to anything.

"My mother was the driving force in my life. After my father had beaten me, she would come down to the basement and tell me that I was good, that there is something out there for everyone, that I could do it. She told me I should be successful and show my father he was wrong."

Girard began earning money while he was in grade school. He delivered newspapers. He shined shoes.

"When I was 9 years old I made the rounds of neighborhood bars to shine shoes. I watched people. I learned how to sell," he said.

"I would get on my knees. I'd say 'I'll shine this shoe free.' 'Sure,' they'd say. Then I'd charge 10 cents to shine the other shoe. I got them obli-

The owner, who had no family or children, died and left the company to Girard.

"But I tried to get too big. I was over-extended. Made a few bad moves. I lost it all," he said.

He had a wife, two kids, no house, no job and no money for groceries. He went to a Chevrolet dealer and asked for a job. He was turned down, flat.

"I begged him," Girard said. "If you give me a desk and a phone,' I said, 'I won't take any customers away from your staff

Funeral services were held Saturday, Nov. 6, at Mariner's Church in Detroit for Peter R. Fink, 60, of Grosse Pointe Farms, who died of cancer Thursday, Nov. 4, 1993, at Cottage Hospital in Grosse Pointe

Mr. Fink was president of Quantum Corp., an investment and management firm he established in 1988. He was elected president and chief executive officer of R.P. Scherer Corp. in 1979 and served in that position until 1988.

Previously, he had been president of Travco Corp., a manufacturer of fiberglass products. Mr. Fink's career began in advertising, where he was an account executive with Campbell-Ewald Co. and later with Fink, Carpenter & Rau Inc., a Detroit-based agency he founded.

After earning a bachelor of science degree in economics at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at the University of Pennsylvania, Mr. Fink pursued graduate studies at the University of Michigan.

He was a member of the board of directors of MascoTech Inc. He had also been active in civic and educational affairs, serving on the board of trustees of the Henry Ford Health System, the undergraduate executive board of the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, and for 17 years was a trustee of the Taft School in Watertown, Conn. From 1980-90 he chaired the board of trustees at Taft. He was the

Elizabeth Worcester Sladen

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Nov. 12, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Elizabeth (Betty) Sladen, 79, of Grosse Pointe Park, who died Sunday, Nov. 7, 1993, at Bon Secours Hospital in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Born in Wesley, Maine, Mrs. Sladen moved to Iowa as a child. She studied music at Coe College in Iowa, then returned to Maine where she became a music teacher for the public school system. She drove her Model T between her school assignments in rural Maine. She also taught at the Riverdale Country School in New York

She met Frank Sladen while working at a summer camp in New Hampshire. They married in 1947 and came to Grosse Pointe when Mr. Sladen joined the staff of The Liggett School.

Following his retirement as headmaster at The Liggett School, the Sladens operated The Book Shelf on the Hill for 14 years.

Mrs. Sladen's first love was music. She was one of the founding members of the Grosse Pointe Community Chorus and its first accompanyist. She was a professional pianist and organist and an active member of the Morning Music Club.

Mrs. Sladen also assisted her husband in his many community involvements.

'She was my partner in so many of my undertakings," said Mr. Sladen, a current member of the Grosse Pointe board of education.

Mrs. Sladen was a deacon at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church and co-chairman of the Caring Committee at the church. In addition to her husband.

she is survived by two sisters, Georgianna Jones and Patricia Cottage Hospital helps you discover the new face of childbirth.

Family Childbirth Center. Only at Cottage.

The birth of your child is a time for a kinder, gentler touch—like you'll get from the people at Cottage Hospital.

Relax in the comfort and privacy of your own Labor/Delivery/Recovery/Postpartum (LDRP) room. At Cottage Hospital, you won't get the run-around. Your baby's birth and your recovery all take place in the comfort of your specially designed and equipped LDRP room. But to look at it, you wouldn't know this was a hospital room. The necessary medical equipment is built in and kept out of sight until you need it. And thoughtful touches like a cozy, reclining guest chair and a private family dining table help you and your guests feel at home.

The personal, professional care you'd expect from Cottage Hospital—and Henry Ford Health System. A safe and healthy childbirth is the goal of our staff of highly trained, board certified obstetricians, certified nurse midwives and pediatricians. Our supportive mother-baby nurses are cross-trained in both maternal and newborn care, and are available to you 24 hours a day. And you'll be secure knowing that perinatal and neonatal specialists are available from Henry Ford Health Discover for yourself just how comforting the new face of childbirth can be. At Cottage Hospital.

Cottage Hospital. For growing families, it's good medicine.

Palmer & Red show clout in city elections

eteran mayors of Grosse Pointe Park and the City of Grosse Pointe showed their clout in the annual city elections last week.

In one respect, the most impressive showing was made by Mayor Palmer Heenan in the Park. He ran unopposed but endorsed two council candidates who defeated two of the three incumbents seeking re-election.

After the election, Heenan played down his role, saying that the two winners. Stephen J. Safranek, an associate professor of law at U of D Mercy, and Shirley Kennedy, a local Realtor, were simply excellent candidates.

But during the campaign he had also criticized the incumbents for supporting the Park district court proposal which he helped defeat two years ago and for appointing Daniel Clark to fill a council vacancy after he lost a re-election bid.

James E. Robson Jr., a two-term councilman who was defeated along with Barbara L. Miller, had said earlier that the mayor had "left" him but he had not "left" the mayor. But the mayor's two candidates "left" Robson in their wake.

In the City, Lorenzo "Red" Browning was returned to office as mayor to continue his more than 20 years of service as mayor and councilmember.

It was the second time that Browning had defeated Myrna Smith, a senior council member who had first run against Browning in 1989, when she lost by a larger margin than the 257 votes by which she went down to defeat last week.

With a record number of candidates attracted by council vacancies in both the City and the Farms, close races were fought with most candidates campaigning door-to-door and using plenty of campaign literature.

In the City, the veteran Dale Scrace was re-elected handily while Joseph Jennings Jr. and Patrick Petz won narrow victories over challenger Bettie Ball, who trailed Petz by only 15 votes.

Incumbent Larry Dowers, who ran fifth, apparently was the victim of a campaign criticism of the practice of filling vacancies by appointments shortly before elec-

In the Farms, Gail Kaess and John Danaher were returned to the council with Danaher leading the ticket. Elizabeth Gandelot and Ronald Kneiser joined them by filling vacancies on the council. Elaine Hartmann ran fifth and outdistanced the other three challengers.

In a quiet election without opposing candidates in the Woods, Robert E. Novitke was returned as mayor without opposition as were Woods' councilmembers Jean Rice and William W. Wilson.

In easy contests against their challengers, Municipal Judges Kirsten Frank in the Park and Matthew Rumora in the Farms also were returned to office.

Overall, however, incumbents fell to challengers more often than in most Grosse Pointe elections, with two councilmembers upset in the Park, and one losing in the City.

With 10 women running in the three Pointe elections, five won and five lost.

A woman incumbent and a woman challenger won both in the Park and the Overall, the caliber of the candidates was exceptionally high, and the community owes them all, losers as well as winners, a debt of gratitude for helping inform the people about the issues.

They also deserve public credit because neither councilmembers nor mayors are paid in the Park, City and Shores, while only token payments are made to those officials serving the Farms and the Woods.

Report card deserves study

he annual financial report of the Grosse Pointe School System that appeared in Oct. 28 issue of the Grosse Pointe News deserves the careful study of all district taxpayers.

In effect, the financial report card shows that the great bulk of the district's revenues came from local sources, with state and federal funding and other sources such as interest making up a minor portion of the total.

The report emphasizes what really is at stake in the Pointes as the Legislature wrestles with proposed substitutes for the repealed school property tax which had formerly financed the major share of the schools' budget.

The current outlook is that the schools are likely to suffer a substantial loss in state revenue regardless of which plan the Legislature adopts, although the district apparently will get the privilege of voting itself a bit more than 7 mills in additional revenues.

The uncertainty over the future financing of the district's schools already has been translated into layoffs of six administrators, effective June 30, 1994, although the layoffs can be rescinded if new revenues permit.

As the report shows, the schools were a business financed by $60,448,781 in revenues in the year ending last June 30, as contrasted with revenues of $55,993,082 in the previous year.

By far the largest single share of the $53,848,922 in expenditures went for teachers' salaries, which is not surprising in a labor-intensive industry.

Nor is it surprising that the dispute over renewal of the board of education's contract with the teachers union, the Grosse Pointe Education Association, is once more in the hands of a state mediator who may not complete his task until early in 1994.

The three-year contract that ended June 30 called for 7 percent increases but new contracts being negotiated elsewhere in the state have averaged less than half of that.

Overall, the system had 408.9 classroom teachers, or their equivalent, who received a total of $21,673,109 for the year ending June 30, 1993, as contrasted with 407.25 full-time classroom teachers, or their equivalent, who received

$20,599,520 in the previous year of the Those totals figure out to an average teacher salary this past school year of $53,003, a record high in the Pointes, as compared with $50,582 in the previous

The range this past year was from the $28,814 salary of the beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree to the $64,034 paid to a teacher with a doctorate who, like all teachers, would be eligible for additional longevity pay after 11 years of

While the sums involved are huge, Pointers know from experience that the cost of maintaining a top-grade educational system is high.

But it also is a cost that Grosse Pointe taxpayers have been willing to pay for years not only to provide a quality education for their children but to help maintain the community's property values.

The question now is whether the Legislature will produce a statewide solution that will enable the Pointes to maintain a system with its present high educational quality.

The lawmakers should act but will they?

Park Halloween coverage sensationalized

Editor's note: The following letter was mailed Oct. 25, before Halloween, but did not arrive at the Grosse Pointe News until Nov. 3. To the Editor:

The Racial Justice Center of Grosse Pointe encourages media coverage of trick or treating on Halloween night in the Grosse Pointe community.

We believe you will find large numbers of children of all races, from Detroit and from Grosse Pointe, being welcomed by the community. Recent press coverage of a planned citysponsored party in Grosse Pointe Park painted a picture of an unwelcoming, even racist community.

The Racial Justice Center was concerned about racial perceptions of this party, and we are pleased that Grosse Pointe Park changed the timing of the party so as not to conflict with trick or treating.

We feel, however, that the coverage was divisive, incomplete and sensationalized, and that it conveyed an unwanted and unfair image of the Grosse Pointe community.

The media is often accused of focusing on the negative and ignoring the positive. We encourage you to take this opportunity to focus on the positive. Visit this community on Halloween night and witness a fun-filled evening for children of all racial and ethnic backgrounds.

We also ask that this be given the same prominent treatment which the more negative story received.

Skulduggery no joke

To the Editor:

It is a real shame that a few "bad apples" can spoil the fun and enjoyment of many.

For the last several years, I have gained much pleasure from the many, positive comments regarding the Halloween decorations in front of my home. Most of the items in my "graveyard," like a ghost and tombstones were hand made. This year I found and bought a skeleton, two skulls and another ghost to enhance the display.

On the night of Oct. 28, some person or persons decided that one of my tombstones, skulls, ghosts and the skeleton would look better in their basement than in my "graveyard."

It's not the expense of these things or the time spent hand painting a tombstone that bothers me, but the fact that someone would be so selfish as to take the fun and spirit out of Halloween for others. If you wanted a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" tombstone, why didn't you make your own? Or buy your own skeleton?

My wife suggested putting the "graveyard" in the back yard next year where no one else will see it. No. Maybe everything will just stay in the attic!

Archer is off to a good start espite some critical backbiting, Detroit's newly elected mayor Dennis Archer got off to a good start last week by making the necessary "connections" and picking a transition team dominated by corporate executives.

Criticism promptly arose because the Farms wins!

rosse Pointe Farms apparently won the "voting derby" in the annual city elections last week.

The Farms reported that 39 percent of its registered voters cast their ballots, which was a larger percentage of participation than in any of the other three Pointe city elections.

Second place was earned by the Park where 37 percent of the electorate went to the polls, while close behind in third place was the City with a 35 percent voter participation rate.

The Woods, with no contested positions, still reported 15 percent of its registered voters went to the polls.

While presidential elections usually attract larger percentage of Pointe voters than local elections do, the proportion of registered voters going to the polls was regarded as excellent in view of the lack of ballot and campaign issues.

transition team contains more suburbanites than Detroiters and because Archer is "too Catholic" for at least one Baptist preacher. Fortunately, both criticisms reflect parochial views not widely shared. After one of her spokespersons had joined the critics, Sharon McPhail to her credit urged everyone to support the mayor-elect so long as he is working in the interests of the people of Detroit. To make his necessary "connections," Archer quickly called on the Republican governor, John Engler, and agreed to a cooperative relationship that should help the mayor-elect in his Lansing campaign for more state aid.

He also made a "connection" with President Clinton via a telephone call in which the president congratulated the victorious Democratic candidate - even though Archer defeated another Democrat.

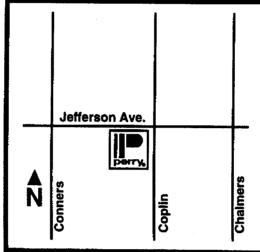

In six significant votes since the 1992 presidential election, the Democrats have lost mayors in Los Angeles and New York, governors in New Jersey and Virginia, and senators in Texas and Georgia.

Local and state factors are often more controlling than national issues in such contests, but the GOP is gleeful and the Democrats disappointed at six elections that could also dim Clinton's 1996 reelection hopes.

Candy thieves prey on pair

A 14-year-old boy and girl trick-or-treating in the 1300 block of Berkshire on Halloween were approached by a group of five boys who de-manded they hand over their candy sacks.

One of the boys punched the boy and girl and then grabbed their candy bags and fled. The pair told Grosse Pointe Park police that the suspects were black, between the ages of 12 and 15, and wearing blue and gray football jackets.

Images control politics

If you don't believe that politics is now dominated by images rather than facts, read the profile of David Gergen, the current top image maker in Washington, in the Oct. 31 New York Times magazine.

Gergen, now burnishing President Clinton's image in his role as counselor to the president, has confessed to having been a Democrat and a Republican before evolving into what he says he now is, an "independent voice" that is "moderately right of center.'

Gergen is one of an increasing band of Washington political experts who switch back and forth between news media and government posts, a practice frowned on by professional newspeople when I served as a Washington correspondent years ago.

In his comments to Michael Kelly, a staff writer for the Times magazine, Gergen seems to regret "that the people who are in the business of government and the people in the punditry business are almost co-conspirators" who "are feeding off each other."

idency and to Washington was inevitable, but reporter Kelly has another explanation.

"The empty exercise Gergen now deplores is not simply the product of historical forces nor merely the result of of the irresistible rise of news-media power," Kelly writes.

"It is also the conscious design of a small group of smart, purposeful men - advertising men and scriptwriters and pollsters and strategists - who the image-age presidency. But

The image maker thinks that worked over a period of two what has happened to the pres- decades to invent a new type of presidency, one that would be primarily defined," he concluded, by TV.

Image makers also are invad-ing Michigan and Detroit political markets, but, fortunately, have not yet made their appearance in the Pointes, so far as we could judge in the recent municipal elections.

Kelly says, however, that Gergen did not invent any of the big ideas or techniques of he was in the Nixon White House at the beginning of the change, and "almost inconspicuously grew toward the great role to which he now aspires wise man of the age of image."

I'm not yet ready to concede that Gergen has achieved that goal even though he is an intelligent and hard-working man with great charm, but I think Kelly did not put sufficient em-cede that television now has or his own re-election commerbecome the chief informer of the public on national and international affairs, but that, like radio, it has great difficulty in covering and explaining ideas.

As a consequence, national TV has taken a page from Time magazine's book to tell the story of political ideas and developments in terms of personalities. In Washington one personality towers over all the rest: the president of the United States.

Thus, the president becomes the darling of TV and usually occupies center stage in the news shows while Congress and its 535 members get short shrift indeed.

True, opposition leaders sometimes play supporting phasis on another factor that roles to help create the image explains the rise of the image of Capitol conflict, but I seldom see my own congressmen on into the rise of the image mak-Most informed observers con- the tube except in a local show

In recent years we've learned about spin merchants who tell the presidents how to talk to the people through the news media, but the Times review should alert us to the dangers of image making to the theory of democracy.

The success of Gergen and his cohorts means that people are responding to the spins that are being put on the "facts" distributed for public consumption, "facts" which often fail to reflect the reality about the man in the White House or the programs he espouses.

Unless more light is cast on this shady side of the Washington street, I fear this country could be in even deeper trouble than it already faces.

2 star teachers speak out

Readers call:

Some readers are unhappy about my anti-teachers' union sentiments. Sheesh, I'm not against the union - if it weren't for salary gains attributable to unionization, Bob and I would be selling matches on the corner. But I think the union — and school people in general — are• defensive and refuse to concede that there could be anything wrong with American schools. Now, all this criticism about teachers and salaries and poor performance isn't made up out of whole cloth. There's a basis

Here's what one man has to say about American public schools:

"Schools and schooling are increasingly irrelevant to the great enterprises of the planet. No one believes any more that scientists are trained in science classes or politicians in civics classes or poets in English classes. The truth is that schools don't really teach anything except how to obey or-

That man was John Taylor Gatto, Teacher of the Year in New York City in 1989, 1990, and 1991, and in New York State in 1991. His remarks were published in newspapers at the time; I found them in Teenage Liberation Handbook: How to quit school and get a real life and education" (Grace Llewellyn, 1991).

Or, in a more upbeat vein, Michigan's own Teacher of the Year, Robert Van Camp of the Utica schools:

"I want to open (students') minds to worlds of opportunities. . . I like to engage them, make learning real, interesting and practical," Van Camp is reported as saying. "If there's one thing I've learned in my years teaching, it's that all children learn differently. I used to stand up in front of the class and lecture the same way I was taught until I realized I was missing so many kids that way.' What isn't being said is how different Van Camp is from many other teachers - and how much kids would benefit if he were typical.

Last week the U.S. Department of Education reported that the public school system fails the smartest students by dumbing down textbooks and teaching to the average (or lowest common denominator). We know that, we all know it. yet even in education-conscious Grosse Pointe, the classes for gifted kids keep running into charges of elitism. Yikes.

My old friend, Doris Cook, called with a specific complaint. Cook is the retired head of the Grosse Pointe teachers' union - and she just hates it when people say, as I did, that unions protect marginal teachers.

The union is required by law to defend union members," she said. "Tenure is really only due process. People used to be fired for their religion, for being seen in taverns, even for getting married. The tenure law forces the administration to state clearly why an employee is being dismissed."

As for administrators (and the public) frustrated at being made to retain mediocre or marginal teachers, Cook insists that's purely because the administrators haven't done their

"We win more cases on procedure than we ever do on substance," she said. "If an administrator is doing his stuff, he will have constructed the paper

And for people who are still upset about marginal teachers, Cook points out that the new tenure law now requires four years of teaching before tenure starts. Not that she personally thinks that's an improvement, but it seems to me that it should help weed out people who don't belong in the field.

So do I think all schools are bad? No. Do I want to abolish public education? No. Do I think teachers should be shot? Of course not

But I think it's time for some creative change.

A call from a reader who prefers to remain nameless took me to task for remarks in the column about leg-shaving and feminism. I had suggested that Rush Limbaugh refers to feminists as "femi-nazis."

Not at all, explained my caller. Limbaugh invented the term, so he gets to define it, and what he means by "feminazis" is women who have as many abortions as they can in order to express their power.

Yikes again.

The caller also wished to lash me many times with the proverbial wet noodle after he elicited the information that I'm an infrequent Limbaugh listener. "You can't use my name unless you first listen to his show for a week," he said goodhumoredly.

I'm working on it.

Ken Van Dellen reports that his young protege from Sierra Leone, Kabbah Jalloh, is in improving health, has graduated from college, and hopes to return soon to his homeland. Readers may remember that the young man nearly died from an autoimmune disease and in fact completed more than a year of his studies from a hospital ward 300 miles away from his Dordt College (Iowa) campus.

Van Dellen is trying to help raise $2,687 to pay off the remainder of Kabbah's college debt. If you'd like to help, make out a check to Third World Fund (that's a Dordt College scholarship fund) and send it to Van Dellen at 1018 Nottingham, Grosse Pointe Park. For $25, you'll receive a booklet about Kabbah Jalloh's life ing been afforded the opportunity to serve a wider audience as administrator and consultant for the High Success Network on Outcome-Based Restructuring.

I would like to take a moment to offer my sincere appreciation to the entire Grosse Pointe South community for your support, your words of encouragement, and your friendship during my years as principal. I would also like to thank Dr. John Whritner (former Superintendent) and the Grosse Pointe board of education for giving me the opportunity to serve as principal of Grosse Pointe South for the last four years.

Finally, I want to thank Julie (my wife), Heather, Sloane, and Mycah (my children), and all of my friends from Grosse Pointe South, the Grosse Pointe community, and throughout Michigan who gave me such a wonderful party of celebration on Oct. 3. Thank you also for all the gifts and momentos. I will never forget the friendships and professional collegiality I was privileged to share over these past four

Now, I would like to close these remarks with a few thoughts regarding the treasure this community has in Grosse Pointe South. In recent days and weeks, these editorial pages have had their fair share of teacher-bashing and schoolbashing by various writers. I would just like to give the picture I saw while serving as principal.

First, I saw teachers and support staff at Grosse Pointe South who had one mission — to do everything they possibly could to help each student prepare for and meet the challenges of life after high school. None of the staff would claim they always had the full or complete answer regarding how to realize this mission for every student, but all of the staff was dedicated to continuously working toward that mission.

Second, I saw teachers and support staff willing to put all the time and energy necessary to find the keys successfully reaching and helping every learner. As early as 6:30 a.m., teachers and support staff are already on duty at South, and as late as 9 p.m. one can still find teachers working with students. Additionally, almost every teacher regularly spends two or three hours every evening reviewing student work and preparing the next steps for the learning journey of their students

Third, teachers and support staff do not just work nine months with the summer off. They continue to learn, attending conferences, taking graduate work, pursuing educationally beneficial travel, participating in workshops and preparing revisions of what they used as lesson plans the year before. The support staff spends its summers working with administrators and others to perfect the efficiency of the school operations, attending various workshops to hone their skills regarding technology and other aids to learning, and answering the many questions that come from parents and students.

Finally, the outstanding administrative staff of Grosse Pointe South was, and is available, willing and able to do whatever it takes to provide the leadership, the support and the expertise necessary to realize our mission for every child. During my four years at South, I observed the three assistant principals spend literally 60 to 70 hours a week making sure all ran smoothly and effectively at South. Days began for the administrators before 8 a.m. and rarely ended prior to 9:30 p.m. Every student and every student event received support and attention from these three fine people. They worked with me to lead, manage, support, demand and facilitate our schoolwide quest for quality learning for all.

To my fellow citizens of Grosse Pointe, I say to you, as an observer of the educational enterprise at Grosse Pointe South, you have a treasure and a gem. Parents who have children at South regularly show their support of that treasure through the outstanding effort of our Mothers' Club, Boosters' Club, and other support organizations. They need your help, your understanding and your support (financially and otherwise) to protect the integrity of this precious enterprise called Grosse Pointe South High School. I for one, as a citizen of Grosse Pointe, will continue to offer support to South and all other public schools of Grosse Pointe.

"At the bottom of all tributes paid to democracy is the little man walking into the little booth with a pencil, making a little cross on a little bit of paper. No amount of rhetoric or voluminous discussion can possibly diminish the overwhelming importance of that point.

The recent elections are over. The people have spoken. While some of us were disappointed with the results as well as the turnout, this is what democracy is all about.

So many people contributed to my campaign in so many ways that it was overwhelmingly gratifying to me. New friendships were formed, old friendships renewed, and a real bond formed. We were all winners.

My thanks to Jim Bayes whose tireless efforts and unflagging spirit as my campaign chairman kept me on track for those many weeks of effort. To my entire committee and many other volunteers, you were terrific. Not only did you do what was asked, you volunteered to do even more on your own. I can never fully express how grateful I am to all of you.

I look forward to working with new councilmembers Patrick Petz and Joe Jennings as well as continuing a fine working relationship with Dale Scrace. Congratulations to all of you.

Mayor Browning and our entire council face some tough challenges in the next two years. The potential loss of a major portion of our city funding is of great concern. We continue to explore the possibility of senior housing at 389 St. Clair and possibly elsewhere. We must work with the school board to be sure that our public libraries continue to be funded. We also are awaiting the results of the Futuring Study, and the further opportunities for our six communities to work cooperatively for our mutual benefit.

I have enjoyed serving all the residents of our fine city as a councilmember and fellow citizen. I hope you will feel free to bring to my attention any concerns or suggestions which will be of benefit to all of specific To the Editor:

When I read your opinion page of Nov. 4, "Survey of Principles is a Dud," I must admit I chuckled heartily.

As a 29-year-old veteran teacher, I did understand the educational jargon. After all, education is my business. When these "principles" were placed in my message box, however, my immediate reaction was 'so what?"

I spoke to a few of my colleagues who were on the committee because I was curious about how such intelligent, caring people could come up with virtually nothing. My colleagues informed me that as far as they were concerned, the committee was orchestrated in such a way as to ultimately arrive at the 16 "principles." They all felt they had been used and also felt that the "principles," as published, did not and do not represent nor demand meaningful change in the way we do

In my own unsolicited opinion, until we do state very clearly and in no uncertain terms what we want a Grosse Pointe graduate to know and demonstrate, we are doomed to business as usual.

Rita Richards Grosse Pointe South High School

Don't rush on library

To the Editor:

I would hope that the Grosse Pointe board of education will not rush to separate the public library from the school district.

The library has its own millage. If Senate Bill 1 (Public Act 145) has not specifically stated that school system libraries may not collect millage for operating expenses, let us not panic into trying to do something before we know what the library actually

How would a district library be funded - by a millage? This topic needs more discussion.

The legislature will be wrestling with how P.A. 145 affects non-school entities such as libraries, municipal governments, etc. Rather than anticipate what will happen, a conjecture, it would make sense to wait and see so that the school board can then make an informed decision based on an actual not a presumed scenario.

At that time the school board should make full information available to the public on the advantages and disadvantages of keeping the library with the school system or creating a district library, allowing time for citizen input.

There are many advantages to our community and to the library under the current arrangement of being part of the public school system. Let us not panic into prematurely going to something that might not be as beneficial for the library and for the community

Ann Kondak Grosse Pointe Woods The right to health care?

To the Editor:

Thomas Jefferson wrote in the Declaration of Inde-

"All men...are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, and that to secure these rights governments are instituted among men."

Is health care for all another God-given right that should be guaranteed by the government? Since we all have the right to liberty and the pursuit of happiness, shouldn't we also have a voice in whether government, at our expense, should confer "health care" for every person in the United States?

What is this health care that every American is entitled to? Is it the "best that money can buy?" As scientists discover more and more techniques and procedures that will improve health and lengthen lives, isn't it self-evident that we, as individuals, can't earn enough in our lifetime to continue to finance increasing costs of health care just for ourselves, much less for everyone in the country?

We must stand back before we go any further and examine the full implications of turning over what is now already 14 percent of our gross national product to the federal government to administer. We should be privatizing things the government is doing now, like the postal service, instead of going the other way.

If we don't like the way the present system is working, we should prohibit employers from providing insurance for their employees. This would certainly reduce health care costs in a hurry. For employees and retirees who already have health care insurance from their employers, simply require the employers to add the present per capita cost of health care to employee's salaries and retirees' pensions. This would work and would stop escalating health care costs in its tracks.

If the government wants to set up some kind of basic level of health care insurance for the poor, fine, but have the plan adminis-

Heenan cited the proposal to televise council meetings as an example of something that could end up costing a lot of money without providing a great benefit to the public.

Safranek also believes that the electorate supported him because they felt he was best qualified to deal with the issues the voters care about, and because they believed he would work hard to help effectively run the Park.

Safranek is a law professor at U of D/Mercy Law School.

Safranek had kind words for all the candidates in the election, saying that it was a hardfought, but clean campaign. He also offered his thanks to Robson and Miller, saying that

Frank wins big in Park judicial race

By Jim Stickford Staff Writer

Despite a hard-fought campaign by challenger John J. Simon, Grosse Pointe Park voters, by a 2,241 to 1,415 margin, re-elected municipal judge Kirsten Frank on Nov. 2.

"I am grateful for the continued support of Park residents," said Frank. "I will continue to do my best to serve residents of the Park."

Frank, who was running for her third term as judge, did admit to being a somewhat surprised by her margin of victory. It was a little bigger than she expected.

'It seems that everytime I run for office, I have a strong race," Frank joked. "But a lot of wonderful people helped me during the campaign. People like my husband Bill Kelly, Lison Drummond, Bridget Maple, Maria Valente, Theresa Klaasen and my entire family, as well others too numerous to mention, made this victory possible.'

Frank said she spent about $6,200 on the campaign, spending more toward the end of the race, when she did another mail drop.

"When I went door-to-door, people seemed supportive, Frank said. "They were interested in the issues. I believe that the Park has a well-informed electorate who really cared about the election."

Frank said she intends to continue the court's level of excellence, but also intends to expand community education programs, like Court Day, which began during her tenure as judge.

SUMMARY OF CABLE TELEVISION REGULATORY ORDINANCE

City of Grosse Jointe Farms, Michigan ORDINANCE NO. 320

City of Grosse Pointe, Michigan ORDINANCE NO. 285

On October 4, 1993 and on October 18, 1993 the City Councils of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms and the City of Grosse Pointe, (the "Cities") respectively, enacted a uniform Cable Television Regulatory Ordinance, Ordinance No. 320 and Ordinance No. 285, respectively, (the "Ordinance"). As authorized by 1991 Public Act No. 182, being Section 117.3(k) of the Michigan Compiled Laws, the following summary of the Ordinance shall serve as official notice of its enactment and is submitted in lieu of publication of the full text of the Ordinance. True copies of the full text of the Ordinance are available for inspection or photocopying at the Offices of the City Clerk, City of Grosse Pointe Farms, 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan 48236 and City of Grosse Pointe, 17145 Maumee Avenue, Grosse Pointe,

The construction, installation, maintenance and operation of one or more cable television systems within the Cities require the grant of a franchise by the Cities to the cable operator(s). The Ordinance sets forth certain procedural and substantive requirements that must be satisfied in connection with the grant of any such franchise. The City Council must approve the specific terms of any proposed franchise. Once a franchise is granted, the cable operator must comply with the terms of a written franchise agreement and the Ordinance, as well as applicable state and federal laws and regulations.

The Ordinance represents a joint effort on behalf of the Cities of Grosse Pointe, Grosse Pointe Farms, Grosse Pointe Park, Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods. (An existing cable television franchise operates within the combined geographic boundaries of these five cities.) It is anticipated that each of these five cities will adopt the Ordinance. The Ordinance will become effective on January 1, 1994, or on such later date that three of the five cities have adopted the Ordinance. The existing cable television ordinances for Grosse Pointe Farms (Ordinance No. 241, enacted January 21, 1980, as amended) and Grosse Pointe (Ordinance No. 204, enacted October 8, 1979, as amended), will be repeated upon the effective date of the new Ordinance.

Any franchise granted under the Ordinance will be nonexclusive, and multiple franchises may be granted. The duration of each franchise will be as set forth in the applicable written franchise agreement. A franchise fee must be paid to the Cities in an amount set forth in the applicable franchise agreement. Franchises are subject to renewal in accordance with applicable federal and state regulations. Any proposed transfer of a franchise is subject to approval by the City Council under certain conditions set forth in the Ordinance.

The Ordinance contains specific requirements pertaining to the design and construction of cable television systems. The written franchise agreement may contain additional requirements, including those pertaining to the capacity of the system and periodic upgrades to the system. The Ordinance requires each cable operator to comply with detailed consumer protection and service standards set forth in the applicable franchise agreement. The Advisory Board established under the current ordinance to monitor the operations and policies of the cable system is continued under the new Ordinance.

The Ordinance sets forth certain remedies available to the Cities, including the possible revocation of the franchise, in the event of an operator's violation of its franchise obligations. The Ordinance includes reporting, insurance, indemnification and security requirements pertinent to the operator's franchise

The Ordinance permits the Cities to regulate cable television rates and charges as provided under

The Ordinance contains certain nondiscrimination requirements and describes certain rights of individuals that each cable operator must recognize.

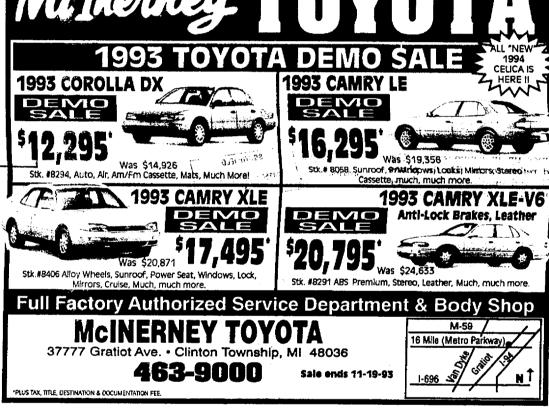

The Ordinance establishes criminal misdemeanor penalties (a fine of not more than $500 or not more than 90 days' imprisonment or both) for any unauthorized physical connection to any franchised cable system, any willful damage, destruction, removal, obstruction or interference with any franchised cable system, or any unauthorized modification to equipment connected to a cable system so as to induce receipt on an uncompensated basis of cable service for which the operator has established compensation or from the front door, and within 30 days I'll beat your top guy.

He got the job and sold a car the first day. "I begged this customer to buy the car," he

Three years later, Girard was the No. 1 retail car salesman.

His secrets for success are no longer secret, since he's written three books about salesmanship: "How to Sell Anything to Anybody," published in 1977; "How to Sell Yourself," in 1979; and "How to Close Every Sale," in 1989.

"A good rule: Keep your troubles to yourself and make people believe you are having a wonderful time.'

Girard believes in projecting an upbeat, friendly, accepting attitude to all customers, at all times. It's like acting, he admits. But it's business.

"If you don't like yourself, it comes through in your face, your voice, your gestures," he

Business cards are important to Girard. He never shakes hands with anyone, anywhere, without offering his business card. The card itself is printed with more than his name and phone number. It lists his awards and achievements. It includes a photo of himself, pictures of the Guiness Book of World Records and the three books he wrote, a list of books, cassettes and videos he sells, and one of his favorite quotations: "The elevator to Health, Happiness & Success is out of order - you'll have to use the stairs - one step at a time."

The extra printing costs are worth it, he said, noting that a good salesman keeps his name in front of potential customers.

Girard keeps an extensive card file of customers - former and potential. Each time he speaks to someone, he takes notes for his file - number of children; hobbies; wife's name; what kind of car he drives; his likes and dislikes; whatever comes up in conversation. Girand reference the file for ophone to calls and mailings and is careful to personalize his messages.

He sends mail to past and potential customers - birthday cards, Valentine's Day cards, Happy New Year cards - a card every month.

"In a plain envelope, without a return address," he said. "A different kind of envelope each month. My mail gets read. It doesn't get thrown away.

He developed what he called the birddog system to get old customers to recruit new customers who would ask for Joe Girard by name when they dy to buy a car.

Each person who purchased a car from Girard got a stack of business cards. If a new customer returned a card with the birddog's name written on the back, and the customer purchased a car from Girard, Girard sent the birddog a check for $25. Immediately. No quibbling.

He also treated customers like royalty, he said. His office

Hardware store nabs embezzlers

A pair of employees at Pointe Hardware on Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Park were recently charged with embezzling company funds following a lengthy investigation by private investigators and the Park public safety department.

The store owner had noticed loss of profits over an extended period of time and an audit confirmed his suspicions. Private investigators were able to identify two employees who were allegedly shortchanging the cash register and manipulating store records.

Public safety deputy director Bill Furtaw said he could not state the exact amount of funds taken from the hardware store but said it amounted to several housand dollars

Furtaw said after an audit was conducted, store owners were informed that their profit margin was very low and nowhere near where it should be, given their volume of business. An initial investigation was conducted by private investigators in the hardware industry which helped to identify the employees, he said.

was stocked with several different brands of liquor, pop and cigarettes, just for customers. (He drank from a vodka bottle filled with water.) Customers' children got balloons, lapel buttons, suckers.

"I didn't use a hard sell. I was slow, low key," he said. "But when someone walked in my office, I believed I was going to sell him a car."

Service after the sale was important to Girard. He wined he said, "because I wanted to employees, who responded by treating his customers with ple."

prompt, efficient service.

Girard said he has made an excellent living selling cars. He still is, he said, but now he gives speeches, lectures and seminars all over the world.

"Some people detested me," he said. "I was often booed at banquets, when I went to get my awards.'

But Girard said he's proud of his career. "I moved into Grosse Pointe Shores in 1964," and dined service department live near the Ford family, near softly. "I did it. I'm proud of power. I wanted to show peo-

The person he really wanted to "show" was his own father, Girard admitted.

"After I won my first salesmanship award I went to my father's house at 2 a.m., with the plaque, in my tuxedo. I knocked on the door. I showed him the award that said World's Number One Salesman.' I did the same thing the next year. I won the award 12 years in a row.

"I showed him," Girard said, that. And like Frank Sinatra, I did it my way."

Dependability — word coined to describe early Dodges

When Chrysler Corp. acquired American Motors in 1989, several strands of automotive history that began with William Durant's creation of General Motors in 1908 and eventually involved all the Big Three auto makers were brought together and neatly

When Durant decided he could sell Buicks and used Buick as the base for his empire building, he put a bright young associate from his carriage business, Charles Nash, in charge of Buick. Later, he moved Nash to president of General Motors and hired a railroad mechanic and mechanical wizard named Walter P. Chrysler to head Buick.

Durant's Wall Street adventures, of which Chrysler never had approved, caused Durant to be ousted by a group of Eastern bankers in 1912. With characteristic elan, Durant formed a car-making firm with Louis Chevrolet. But he couldn't work with Durant and quit the firm just as the Chevrolet cars began to sell well. With profits from Chevrolet, Durant bought up enough GM stock to regain control in 1916.

Durant's first act was to fire

Nash, whom he felt had betrayed him by working with the Eastern bankers. Nash took over the ailing Jeffrey Motors, which became Nash, then Nash-Kelvinator and in 1954 merged with Hudson to form American Motors.

His second act was to give Walter P. Chrysler a raise. Nash, no spendthrift, had paid Chrysler $50,000 a year to run Buick. Durant had heard that Chrysler was making a bid to take over Packard and he offered him $500,000 a year to continue at Buick. Chrysler stayed.

After Chrysler resigned from GM in 1920, he agreed to manage the financially troubled Willys-Overland. While there, he put together an engineering team under Fred Zeder, who had been with Studebaker, which developed an advanced, high-compression engine.

As Willys Overland returned to financial health, the bankers who had drafted Chrysler for the job asked him to do the same for Maxwell, a Detroit auto maker which was in serious difficulty. Chrysler bought the Willys engine plant and began building a new car at the old Chalmers plant in De-

Several models of this Maxwell, which had the name "Chrysler" on it, were shipped to New York for the 1924 auto show. But because the car had never been sold as a production model, it was not eligible for

The Dodge brothers were legendary figures in the early auto industry. Born in poverty in Niles, Mich., they amassed enormous fortunes building transmissions for the Curved Dash Olds and engines for Ford Motor Co.

Dodge brothers began building

This was bad news, because Chrysler was not only looking for sales orders, he needed financing. He showed the cars in the lobby of the Hotel Commodore and manned the exhibit himself, selling a number of cars and securing from Ed Tinker, president of Chase Securities, the financing he needed.

"It was the only way I could get away from him," Tinker later joked of his wise investment in the super salesman and his car.

Later that year, Maxwell-Chalmers was reorganized into Chrysler Corp. Detroit had its Big Three.

"Dependability" is a common enough word today, but it did not begin appearing in dictionaries until the early '30s. It was a word coined by the men who sold the cars that John and Horace Dodge began building in late 1914.

Letters from buyers of those early Dodges praised the car's power and rugged construction, but their most consistent comment was that the car could be depended upon. It did not take Dodge marketing people long to begin talking about the car's "dependability." (The word was coined by Theodore MacManus, who also wrote the famous "penalty of leadership" ad for Cadillac.)

They were stockholders of Ford Motor Co. and John was a vice president of Ford. They would regularly offer improvements to Ford cars — until the Model T. The Model T was Ford's baby and he would brook no tampering with it.

In November 1914, the

their own car, which incorporated many improvements they had offered Ford.

John and Horace Dodge were famous for their saloon escapades, drinking and roughhousing. The public announcement that the Dodges would build their own motor car was made at a party in Detroit's fashionable Book-Cadillac Hotel, capped by John Dodge marching up and down the banquet tables, darkening the hall by smashing light bulbs in the chandeliers with a cane.

But "dependability" described the Dodge brothers in their business dealings as well as their cars and they were just as well known for their integrity as for their escapades.

Gen. John Pershing used Dodge cars to chase Pancho Villa and other Mexican bandits back over the border. American troops used three Dodge touring cars to charge bandit headquarters 200 miles south of El Paso, destroying the rebellion without American casualties and making history as the first motorized combat operation by the U.S. Army.

The Dodges played another important role in military technology when French Marshal Joseph Joffre visited Washington in search of an American firm that could make the delicate recoil firing mechanisms for French 75 and 155 cannons, which were the backbone of the Allied artillery effort in World War I. Secretary of war Newton D. Baker called on John

Dodge told Joffre and Baker that if the French provided his firm with accurate blueprints and left the project entirely to Dodge management, the mechanism could be produced in any quantity desired. Joffre and Baker did not think it was possible to mass-produce the mechanism and so informed Dodge. "The hell it isn't," Dodge

"I am not accustomed to being spoken to in that kind of language," said Baker.

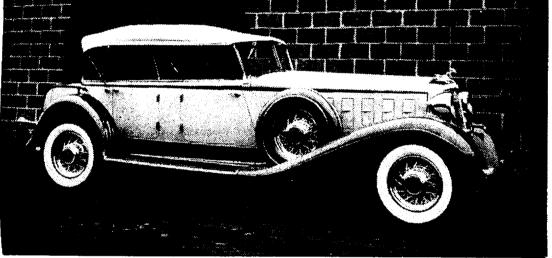

"The war would be a hell of a lot better off if you were," Dodge shouted back. "Do you want us to do this job or don't you?"

The Dodges did the job and after the war the French government awarded the Legion of Honor to John Dodge and his 8,000 workmen.

The Dodge brothers had their differences and quarrels, but through most of their lives they were inseparable and they were in death also. They died within a year of each other in 1920. Their widows asked Frederick Haynes, manager of the Dodge plant in Hamtramck, to run the company. Under Haynes, the company continued to grow and acquired Graham Truck in 1925, which became Dodge Truck. Joseph, Robert and Ray Graham worked for

In 1925, the widows of John and Horace Dodge sold Dodge Brothers Motor Car Co. to the New York banking syndicate of Dillon, Read and Co. for $146 million, biggest cash deal up to that time in the auto industry. Less than three years later, the bankers sold it to Chrysler Corp. for $170 million.

About the same time as the acquisition of Dodge, Chrysler Corp. introduced its DeSoto model into the mid-range market segment that Dodge was in, thus sealing DeSoto's eventual doom.

In 1933, Buckminster Fuller designed a car called the Dymaxion. Powered by a Ford V-8, it was capable of 120 mph and got 40 mpg — both those figures about double the average for those days. It was one of the small-volume entries only three were built and only one remains, in the Harrah collection in Reno, Nevada but it was influential. Chrysler Corp.'s Chrysler and DeSoto Airflow lines, launched in 1934, were the big-volume effort which resulted in a major fi-

The Chrysler Airflow was a triumph of engineering over styling and marketing, an event that has not happened often, but when it does is almost always a Pyrrhic victory. The result is often a car that buyers think is ugly or that is so difficult to manufacture that it never gets off the ground.

The '34 Airflow was an excellent car, with good engine and running gear, trademarks of the still young Chrysler Corp., and reflecting Walter P. Chrysler's approach, which was solidly grounded in good, conservative engineering and manufacturing. It was comfortable, roomy, structurally solid and a neat piece of art deco, but to most auto buyers, it was also ugly.

A young engineer, Carl Breer, had a vision of the relationship of the automobile and aircraft, and he persuaded Chrysler to use wind tunnels and some genuinely pioneering thinking to create a totally new, more efficient car.

Chrysler put a team headed by Fred Zeder, Owen Skelton and Breer to work on the revolutionary car. Zeder was the leader, utterly dedicated to quality, safety and reliability. Skelton was an innovator who developed four-wheel hydraulic brakes and Floating Power rubber engine mountings for the Breer, a passionate car nut and intellectual, selected a semi-unitary construction technique, an early unibody design The result was the 1934 Airflow - streamlined, fuel efficient, fast, comfortable and competitively priced. But the public was used to sweeping fenders and elegant grilles. Styling sells and the Airflows did not. Plymouth and Dodge, which had conventional, not Airflow, designs, sold 392,000 cars. Chrysler and DeSoto combined sold 39,500.

In an attempt to save face, Chrysler brought out the Airstream, which incorporated many of the Airflow's groundbreaking features with more conventional styling.

Perhaps they should have paid more attention to what Vincent Bendix was up to. In 1934, he built a one-of-a-kind car to showcase Bendix products, including electric vacuum shift, four-wheel hydraulic brakes, a clock in the steering wheel hub, built-in ventilation system and front-wheel drive. Its styling had hints of the Pierce Silver Arrow, but, if anything, was even betterlooking. The Bendix was probably the best American streamliner of the time. It never went into production.

AMJ

Chrysler learned its lesson. Solid engineering and design is good, but it is dangerous to get too far ahead of the pack. With its more conservatively designed cars, it passed Ford Motor Co. in sales in 1933 and held the No. 2 position until 1950, when it got a little too conservative.

Now Chrysler has again achieved success with a good solidly engineered and attractive lineup of automobiles. Important to its success has been the Jeep, the main prize in its acquisition of AMC.

Chrysler's acquisition of AMC brought together the heritages of Walter P. Chrysler and Charles Nash, both of whom started at Buick. And it also blended that of the Dodge brothers, former associates of Henry Ford, just for good mea-

North, South swimming teams fit to be tied

Last week's first-place tie with Grosse Pointe South in the Macomb Area Conference American Division girls swimming meet wasn't like kissing their brothers for the members of Grosse Pointe North's team.

"Going in we figured we had a zero chance of winning, so our kids went crazy when we wound up tied," said North coach Mike O'Connor. "It was a great meet for the specta-

North won the final event of the meet, the 400-yard freestyle relay, to tie the Lady Devils points, followed by Ford II 151, Stevenson 96, Fraser 78, Sterling Heights 50 and Utica 48.

"Our kids just did a super job," O'Connor said. "Our frontline kids really came through, but all the way down the lineup our kids stepped up and had some of their best performances of the year. This was a meet where we needed every point we could get. Even a 12th-place finish was important. We had some big drops in every event."

South coach Fred Michalik wasn't quite as pleased with the outcome as O'Connor was.

"Mike won the meet, we just with 339 points apiece. Eisentied," said Michalik, whose hower was third with 177 friendship with the North coach goes back many years. "He

North junior Christine Jamerino had firsts in the 200 individual medley (2:14.69) and the 100 backstroke (1:02.84) and she swam on the winning 200 medley and 400 freestyle relays. Jamerino swam the anchor leg on the final relay and helped the North team set a MAC record of 3:45.8 and O'Connor stacked two of his relay teams with some of his best swimmers because South was seeded ahead of the Lady Norsemen in each of the three relays.

"That was another place where we gambled, but we had nothing to lose by doing that," O'Connor said. "Every point we could win meant something."

South led 313-307 going into the final relay. The Lady Devils picked up 23 points in the 100 breaststroke final, despite a MAC record performance by North's Suzette Atrasz, who won the event in 1:09.79. A third-place by South's Kathryn Tusa and a fourth from teammate Becca Walter offset the 16 points Atrasz earned by taking first. Atrasz broke her own record of 1:10.67 she set a year

Michelle Vasapolli gave North the lead in the 400 freestyle relay when she achieved a state cut in her opening leg. Anita Warner and Heidi Milne maintained the lead through the next two legs and Jamerino outdueled South's Meghan O'-Loughlin over the final 100 yards. Grosse Pointe North's girls basketball team is going to be tested early in the state high school tournament.

The Lady Norsemen, who wrapped up the Macomb Area Conference White Division championship last week with two games remaining, begin district play Monday at 8:15 p.m. against tournament host Regina.

"They're probably the favorite in the tournament, even though we're going in with the said. "It's probably better to better record," said North meet them before they can beat us in the first game of the season and they play a much tougher schedule than we have so if they have six or seven losses it really doesn't mean a North dropped the opener to the Saddlelites 49-24, but the Lady Norsemen have won 16 in a row since that game.

One might think Bennett is walking around with a long face after the tournament draw, but that's hardly the case.

"It's not that bad for us," he

It's not going to be easy to beat them because the matchups are tough. They're so much bigger than we are, but we'll be ready to play them.'

Bennett gains considerable solace from last year's tournament meeting with Regina.

North gave the heavily-favored Saddlelites all they could handle before Regina escaped with a 40-37 victory in last year's district championship

"Our girls remember that." Bennett said. "They know they can play with Regina.'

The winner of the North-Re- minute. gina game will play Grosse "It was a good game for us Pointe South at 8:15 Wednesbecause it put us in a pressure day and the championship consituation," Bennett said. "We test is scheduled for 7 p.m. Fri- haven't had many of those this day, Nov. 19. On the other end year." of the bracket, Detroit Public North trailed 54-50 with 58 School League rivals Finney seconds left, but the Lady and Denby will meet at 6:30 Norsemen scored to cut the p.m. Monday. The winner of Tars' lead to two. North's presthat game will face East De sure defense forced Anchor Bay troit at 6:30 Wednesday.

into a traveling violation and North got a scare in its bid the Lady Norsemen took adto complete a perfect league vantage of the turnover when season last week when the Sue Karber scored to tie the Lady Norsemen squeaked past game. North fouled the Tars Anchor Bay 56-54 by outscor- with 40 seconds left and they ing the Tars 6-0 in the final missed the first of a one-andone situation.

The Lady Norsemen got the rebound and called a timeout to set up the final shot. Freshman Molly Peters took a 15-footer with five seconds to go, but just missed and Karber put up the rebound for the winning basket as time expired.

"We wanted to take the shot with about five seconds left so we'd have time to get a rebound, but Anchor Bay wouldn't have time to get the ball down court for the winning basket," Bennett said. "Sue worked real hard to get the rebound. She took the ball away from an Anchor Bay player. She simply refused to let them get the ball."

Anchor Bay outplayed the Lady Norsemen for most of the

"They shot extremely well," Bennett said. "Even the shots they just hoped would go in went in. And they played harder than we did until the end. We didn't move the ball offensively like we usually do so that allowed them to get into the flow of the game.

"We usually try to make teams work hard on offense and on defense. We didn't make them work hard enough on defense."

North had some outstanding performances. Karber finished with 20 points and 10 rebounds. Tanya Hamilton came off the bench to score nine points and grab six rebounds and Peters tossed in eight

"Hamilton has been an excel-lent player for us," Bennett said. "She's played well enough to start, but she's more valuable in the role of coming off the bench."

North improved its league record to 12-0 and clinched the championship with a 52-23 victory over Fraser.

The Lady Norsemen built a 35-6 halftime lead against the Ramblers, who were missing their best player.

"We moved the ball a lot better offensively than we did against Anchor Bay," Bennett

Ten of North's 11 players scored and the only one who didn't, Keri Muccioli, led the Lady Norsemen with five assists and four steals.

"She's so unselfish," Bennett said. "She passed up some uncontested layups to let a teammate score a basket.'

Karber had 10 points and 10 rebounds, Kristen Loeher and Peters each scored eight points and Laura Kramer tossed in

Perfect seasons

Our Lady Star of the Sea's two volleyball teams each won their Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) division championships. The seventh and eighth grade squad (top photo) was 10-0 during the regular season and advanced to the championship game of the city playoffs before losing to defending champion Our Lady of Refuge. Star defeated St. Clare and St. Peter in the first round of the playoffs and St. Scholastica and St. Joan No. 1 in the second round. Star advanced to the final with a victory over St. Clement in the semifinals. Star of the season was 20-3 overall. In the front row, from left, are Lindsay Hawkins, Jennifer Sloan, Anna Rose Shaheen, Angela Evola and Annie Peacock. In the middle

Sports Editor

One of the reasons Peggy Van Eckoute has been so successful as girls basketball coach at Grosse Pointe South is that she doesn't make the same mistake twice.

Take last week's Macomb sion game with Romeo. The Bulldogs beat South by three points in an earlier meeting, but the Lady Devils avenged the defeat 48-38.

"What we should have done last time we did this time," Van Eckoute said. "We pressed them full court right from the start of the game. Last time we had some trouble in our halfcourt defense."

South's press didn't take full effect until the second quarter. The teams were tied at 11-all after the first period, but the Lady Devils went on a 15-5 run in the second and maintained a comfortable lead the rest of the

With two games remaining before the state tournament begins, South is setting its sights on a .500 season and second place in the division.

"Now we're tied with Romeo for third place," Van Eckoute said. "At midseason we set our goal to finish second in the division.'

South trails Utica by two games, but the Chieftains had games remaining with division-champion Grosse Pointe North and the contest with South tonight, Nov. 11. If the Lady Devils beat Ford II and Utica, they'll end up tied for second.

The victory over Romeo featured a balanced scoring attack. Amanda Defever led with nine points, Shannon McGratty scored eight and Katie Lupo, Molly McKenzie and Lucy Ament added six apiece.

"It's the most balance we've had all year," Van Eckoute said. "I'm really pleased with the progress we've made. More of the girls are starting to step up and make contributions. We're playing well as a team.'

McKenzie, a sophomore, has developed into a dependable oint guard.

"Molly is doing a good job of breaking the press and she distributes the ball well," the coach said.

McGratty had 16 rebounds and five steals against Romeo, Lupo collected eight rebounds and three assists, McKenzie had five steals and Ament contributed four rebounds, two assists and three steals.

South began the week with a 52-31 victory over Warren-Mott as junior Becky Soltis had an outstanding performance with 10 points, 13 rebounds and five

North's JV grid squad wins a championship

By Beth Caramagno Special Writer

Grosse Pointe North's junior varsity football team completed a fine season as it posted a 7-2 record and won the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division championship.

Offensive standouts for the Norsemen were quarterback Mike Aubrey, who had nine touchdown passes; tailbacks Jon Rapp (19 touchdowns) and Joe Slomski (three touchdowns); wide receiver Matt Thibodeau (four touchdowns); and tight end Tom Zorwick, who had one touchdown reception.

Center Kevin Halicki anchored a strong offensive line.

Solid defensive play was provided by linebacker Dan Shefferly, middle guard Lindsay Irwin, end Goran Jancevski and cornerbacks Robert Elizondo and Eric Bingham.

Kicker Paul Stencel also had a good season.

Freshman football

North's freshman football team finished with a 2-7 record. The squad played well as a team. Leaders on the Norsemen were Chris Morkut, Kevin Brandon, Joe Ellis, Jeff Soorgeleos and Steve Dube.

JV basketball

North's junior varsity basketball team had a difficult season, but the girls kept working hard. Top performances were turned in by Sarah Merz, Sharon Smith, Sima Saberi, Becky Arioli, Rema Elian and Marcy McCormick.

Freshman basketball

North's freshman girls basketball team turned in a solid effort all season.

Offensive leaders were Erica Ficaro and Becky Iskendarian. Sarah Gruner and Jenny Mielke dominated the boards for the Lady Norsemen.

Local runners fare well in state competition

Sports Editor
Local teams didn't win any championships at the state Class A cross country meet at Saskatoon Golf Club near Grand Rapids, but there weren't any long faces from the local coaches or athletes

"Our kids went up there and raced people," said Pat Wilson, the Grosse Pointe North boys coach. "It's easy to go to the state meet and just go through the motions when you know realistically you don't have a chance to win, but our kids competed.'

North's boys wound up 23rd in the 28-team field and beat Cousino, which finished ahead of the Norsemen in the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division meet, and Grosse Pointe South, which beat North in a dual meet and in the re-

South's girls made the best showing of any of the Grosse 14th among the 27 Class A squads.

'Our goal was to be in the top 20 and we knew we had an outside chance at the top 10," said Lady Devils' coach Steve Zaranek. "We were very pleased with the 14th-place finish, especially considering how close we were to finishing way up in the top 10.'

The biggest disappointment was the showing of South's boys, who finished last, but despite that, coach Tom Wise saw reason for encouragement.

"The numbers are assigned Adam Rhodes and Matt Deband our three girls had the two bad races out of 14 this learned a lot from just being at the state meet.

our young kids had some trou-Pointe teams as they came in ble in the corners. But I think they've learned how to maneuver when they're not in front."

South's girls were led by senior Rachel O'Byrne, who was clocked in 19:47. Zaranek said it was not only the Lady Devils' best race of the season, but it was the top time of the year for the squad.

Following O'Byrne were Katie Weed (20:06), Aimee Vasse (20:43), Eileen Lang (20:56), Laura Stuckey (21:20), Kate Crowley (21:25) and Sarah Gordon (21:38).

"Although our fifth through seventh runners were better than those of most teams, we

"Our two top three or four runners of the most experienced runners, top 10 teams," Zaranek said. "Most of those teams had their ski, both ran well. We had only top three or four all under 20 minutes. We demonstrated our year, so we're still happy with usual excellent depth, but our season. And our young kids couldn't match up with the very elite runners.'

North's girls were led by "It was a tight course and Vinnie Lapiana, who ran a career-best 21:15.

"She's been injured and maybe should have dropped out, but she kept wanting to run one more race," Cooper said. "She was number 94, the last girl to get a number, but she was a long way from last place.'

Freshman Katie Daniels had a personal-best 21:16 and Cara Colaluca ran a 21:23, which was within 10 seconds of her best effort.

"I didn't expect personal records because this was one of the toughest courses we've run. so I was pleasantly surprised their career bests. Bonkosky by our times," Cooper said. "I and Wiegand had their best told the girls that if they just times of the season.

laxed, they wouldn't be in the 90s at the finish.

"Our girls ran together until the end and at the mile there was only one girl behind them, but as the race went on they started picking off runners one at a time.'

Bill Stevenson made the best showing for North's boys as he finished 31st in 16:28.

"It was a good quality race for Bill," Wilson said. "He was in the top 22 or 23 for a good part of the race. That was the second-best time he's had, but this was a much tougher course."

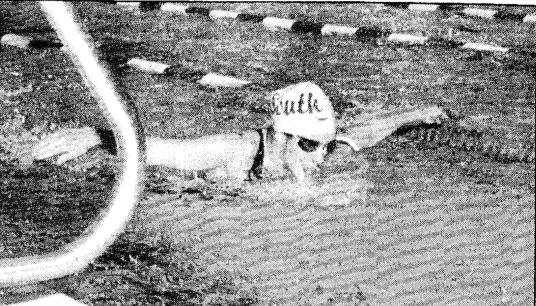

Bob Stevenson was the Norsemen's second runner to finish, followed by Marty Bogen, Kevin Grant, Jeff Henson, Dave Bonkosky and Mike Wiegand. Bob Stevenson matched his second-best time, while Bogen recorded his second-best. Grant and Henson each had

"I feel good about our season because we improved right to the end," Wilson said. "All the talk after Saturday's race was about how much the kids were going to work during the offseason to improve for next year.'

South's boys were an easy winner in last week's Freshman-Sophomore meet at Center Line. The Blue Devils had 87 points to 164 for runner-up Clawson.

Tim Nicholson made South's best showing with a fourthplace finish. Nat Spurr was seventh, Jon Van Hoek 11th, Rob Lloyd 15th and Gabe Slimko, replacing the injured Ben Butler, turned in his best effort to take 50th.

North's boys finished sixth in the meet with Grant taking 13th for the Norsemen's top finish. North runners who had personal bests were Nick Accardo, Rob Tomassi, Guy Morrison, Steve Burlingame and Chady Haurani.

Habs cruise past Squirt rivals

The Grosse Pointe Habs Squirt AA travel hockey team won its first six regular-season games after going undefeated in three pre-season contests and is approaching the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association record for victories at the start of a season.

Dick Scarfone and Don Jaeger coach the squad with the assistance of "dad coaches" Mike Barger, Bob Ritter and Steve Doughty. They've combined to make the experience well-organized and enjoyable for the players.

The Habs began non-league play by trouncing the Westland Blackhawks 7-1. Alex Chapman scored three goals, two coming on passes from Tommy Ihrie. Mike Barger, assisted by his brother Chris, scored another goal. Donny Jaeger and Adam Doughty had unassisted goals. A week later the Habs beat Ann Arbor 5-3. Right wing Joey Silveri had two goals and Doughty assisted on both. Andy Scarfone took a centering pass from Mike Barger to score and John Thomas set up Chris Barger's goal.

The Habs' defense was instrumental in a 5-1 victory over Lansing. Bobby Ritter's excellent poke checking broke up several plays in front of the Habs' net and Adam Raab repeatedly swept the puck out of danger. Jaeger carried on the family tradition of superb defensive play with his shadowing of Lansing players. Brad Sidelko and Thomas also kept the opposition tied up. Goalkeeper Stratt O'Brien showed that a summer of goaltending schools and back yard practice paid off.

The Habs beat the Flint Icelanders 3-2 in the regular-season opener. Mike Kasprzak opened the scoring for Grosse Pointe when he blew past the Flint defense for an unassisted goal. He also assisted on one of Mike Barger's two goals. Sidelko and Chris Barger also had assists, while Raab and Ritter kept the Icelanders out of position in front of the Habs' net. O'Brien stopped a breakaway and gloved another good scoring chance to ensure the victory.

boards and got a lot of her points on second shots," Van Eckoute said. "She's played her two best games against Mott."

McGratty and McKenzie each scored nine points, while McKenzie had three assists and five steals. Amy Zanglin had four points, six rebounds and two steals. Sophomore Carrie Geer made her varsity debut with six points, including four of five from the free-throw line, two rebounds and two steals.

Ten of 12 players scored for the Lady Devils, who led 28-13 at halftime.

Chapman opened the scoring in a 3-1 victory over the Grosse Pointe North Stars with a shot over the goalie's shoulder. Mike Barger notched the other two Habs' goals. Ihrie, Scarfone and Kasprzak drew assists. Left wing Scott Vallee had a near miss with a strong shot that hit the goalpost. In the defensive end, Ritter made a sliding save in front of the net and Jaeger muscled the puck out of dan-

Chapman and Barger each scored hat tricks as the Habs beat the USA Bulldogs 8-2. Vallee did a good job in the corners, while Scarfone doggedly pursued the opposition. Chris Barger had a goal and two assists, Ihrie collected three assists, Scarfone two and Kasprzak one. Defensemen also figured in the scoring as Thomas scored a goal and Raab picked up an assist. O'Brien had a fine game in goal and was helped by defensemen Ritter and Sidelko.

Silveri, who has one of the hardest shots in the Squirt league, scored three times and assisted on Vallee's goal in a 6-1 victory over the Eastpointe Blazers. Scarfone set up Mike Barger and Ihrie drew an assist on Chapman's goal. Doughty collected two assists. O'Brien's quick glove held the Blazers to one goal and Raab, Ritter, Jac

Roundup provided rugged defense in front of the netminder. The Habs beat Southfield 5-1 on Halloween eve, then blanked the North Stars 3-0 in a rematch of the Grosse Pointe rivals. O'Brien recorded his first shutout of the season and lowered his goals-against average to 1.4. Raab scored the first goal, assisted by Ritter and Scarfone. Chapman one-timed a pass from Chris Barger for the second Habs' goal and Silveri completed the scoring with assists from Vallee and Thomas.

Grosse Pointe Hawks

The Grosse Pointe Hawks Bantam AA team returned to league action after winning one of its four games in the Fraser Early Bird Tournament.

A 3-2 victory over Battle Creek was the Hawks' only Aaron Clark scored second-period goals. Battle Creek scored had the other Hawks' goals.

ger, Sidelko and Thomas both of its goals early in the third period.

Defenseman George Andary scored the Hawks' only goal in a 4-1 loss to Southfield in the tournament opener. Grosse Pointe goalie Pete Torrice turned in a strong performance in a 4-0 loss to the Oak Park (Ill.) Eagles. Clark scored the only Grosse Pointe goal in a 7-1 loss to the Chicago Flames.

The Hawks beat Bowling Green (Ohio) 5-2 with Jim Raymond collecting two goals. Bergman, who scored with 11 seconds left in the first period, and Greg Krol each had a goal and two assists. Chris Holloway scored the other Grosse Pointe goal. Sarkes Solomon had two assists Bergman had two unassisted goals in the Hawks' 5-2 loss to Saginaw.

Trenton scored on Grosse Pointe goalie Joe Messina with triumph in the tournament. 51 seconds left in the third pe-Center Troy Bergman opened riod to tie the Hawks 3-3. Tom the Grosse Pointe scoring at Burns, with an assist from Solthe 28-second mark of the first omon, had given Grosse Pointe period and Chris Holloway and a 3-2 lead with 3:04 remaining.

Jean Harris looks at prison reform from the inside

Jean Harris came back to Grosse Pointe last Thursday and observed that her former home had not changed much over the years.

Not nearly as much as she had. 'If you want variety in your life," she said, "go to jail."

A sell-out crowd of 400 people gathered at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial to hear the former Grosse Pointe University School teacher and onetime Farms resident speak on a subject she is uniquely familiar with: prison reform.

Convicted of the 1980 murder of Dr. Herman Tarnower, Harris was released earlier this year from the New York state prison system after serving 12 years of a 25-year sentence.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo granted Harris clemency, citing her work with other prisoners and their children, but Harris was certain that the massive letter-writing campaign initiated by her friends was the deciding factor.

"Gov. Cuomo received more letters on my behalf than on any other issue in New York state," she said. "He was happy to see me go and I was happy to oblige.'

Harris' work on behalf of her fellow inmates didn't stop when she was released. She travels the country, lecturing on the needs of women in prison, the hopelessness of their future and the toll it takes on their children.

Those children became a special focus for Harris while she was in prison. She joined forces with a prison counselor to establish parenting classes which not only taught inmates how to be better parents, but also worked with the children to convince them that they truly were loved and were not forgotten, even if they could not be with their mothers.

It was hard to imagine Harris in her two-piece sweater set, pearls and perfectly coiffed hair signing copies of her books - playing bingo with inmates from the prison psychiatric unit on Friday evenings, using toiletries furnished from the outside by her loyal friends as prizes.

'These women don't need prison," Harris said. "These are the women found wandering the streets, sleeping in doorways. When they are released they are given a coat, dress, shoes and $40, but no options.

"They are usually back within the week.

Of equal concern to Harris is the physical health of prisoners.

"Not only are prisoners pregnant, but they also suffer from TB and congenital syphilis," she said. "One in five prisoners today is HIV positive.

"But the biggest surprise for me was the number of inmates who suffered seizures. I'm convinced they are caused by all the physical abuse they endured as children."

Harris believes that an abusive childhood is the common thread that can be identified in prison

Another view

A sell-out crowd of 400 people, mostly women, came to the War Memorial last Thursday to hear Jean Harris discuss prison reform. Her appearance was part of the War Memorial's continuing lecture

But not everyone was pleased that Harris had been invited to

"We received some calls protesting Mrs. Harris' talk," said Barbara Denler, director of programming for the War Memorial. "Some people were not happy that we had invited her, but not one of them even left a name. I didn't feel it necessary to respond to anyone who wouldn't identify himself or herself."

A number of people who attended the luncheon before Harris' address said they knew her when she lived in the Farms, while others knew her from news accounts of her life.

"I've continued to read about her over the years," said Marie Bergeon of Grosse Pointe Park. "It's such an emotional story.'

"I agree," said Ann Dingeman of the City of Grosse Pointe. "And while there is a curiosity about her, I also think she will give a very honest report on prison reform.'

populations. This is why she is such an advocate for parenting classes for all prisoners, male and female.

"I believe that prison reform should begin with adequate prenatal care for all children," Harris said. "The number of physically and emotionally abused children being born is a national disgrace.

We have too many young children entering school who are already primed for failure."

Harris now lives in northern New Hampshire, in a remote riverside cabin that she bought sight unseen while in prison and furnished with items she bought at a friend's house sale.

"I wanted to live in a place where I wouldn't be looking in someone else's bathroom window," she said. "I wanted a place where I could walk the dog without a leash."

But these days she is more likely to be on the lecture circuit than at home in New Hampshire, reminding her audiences that what affects one segment of society affects us all.

"Our laws and our government are not in sync with the way peo-ple live today," she said. "It makes for such confusion among our child-"We have to do a better job of educating our children, especially our daughters. Harris, however, harbors no myths that everyone can be helped or every problem solved. Nor does she hold any myths about herself.

A member of the audience approached Harris to say that she considered Harris her hero.

"You need to find another hero," Harris quietly responded.

Jean Harris, convicted murderer and author, spoke to a full house at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial last week. Harris, left, is with Barbara Denler, programming director of the War Memo-

Acting, plot are wonderful, but 'The Remains' just isn't

Then I saw the movie.

Now I know I'll be in the minority because "Remains" is a Merchant Ivory Production they're the guys who brought us the E.M. Forster series "A Room with a View," "Maurice" and "Howard's End." All three films sent critics to their thesauri looking for new adjectives to describe them. "Room" and "End" earned, between them, 17 Academy Award nominations.

"Remains" will most likely follow in their footsteps. This is the kind of film critics will love. This is the kind of film that attracts nominations like a magnet.

But it's also the kind of film that the average moviegoer wil leave wondering what the critics saw. Kind of like my

The story begins in 1958
I wanted to like this film, I when Mr. Stevens (Anthony really did. > Along the way he thinks about his relationship with Miss Kenton, his former employer who Stevens idolized but who later came to be reviled by his countrymen for wartime activities. He comes to realize that his life was based on a faulty principle, that of duty and honor.

And it was that duty which kept Stevens from acknowledging his feelings of love for Miss Kenton because it is undignified for a butler and a housekeeper to carry on. It was that duty which kept him blinded to his employer's goings on and how it led to the rise of the Nazis and World War II.

The movie is undeniably beautiful to look at - Darlington Hall is a stunning piece of architecture, nestled among green rolling hills in the English countryside. The rooms are put together so beautifully and with such realism (one assumes, never having been in an English manor) that you almost feel at home among Lord Darlington and his servants.

But the film shines light on the novel's only failing - at times it's too slow.

When reading, one can skip over some parts and wallow in the sentimentality, but at the theater we have to sit through everything at director James Ivory's pace and it's just too slow. At two hours and 15 minutes the film runs too long. And it's treated with a very English pair of kid gloves, held at an arms length, as though it's saying, "This is classic literature, it's good for you, so pay

Judy Kaye stars in the MOT's production of "The Merry Widow."

MOT presents 'The Merry Widow'

The Michigan Opera Theatre will present Franz Lehar's romantic comedy "The Merry Widow" for nine performances Nov. 12-20.

Judy Kaye, who won a Tony Award for her role as Carlotta in Andrew Lloyd Webber's "The Phantom of the Opera" and MOT favorite Ron Raines star as the widow and her lover, Count Danilo. Stage and screen actor Marshall Borden plays Baron Zeta.

It is the third production of "The Merry Widow" in MOT's 23-year history. It was last performed in 1984 starring Cleo Laine and Raines in the lead roles.

The story, set to music of Viennese waltzes in turn-of-the-century Paris, is the tale of Hanna, a wealthy widow, whose millions could save her impoverished homeland of Pontevedrian, if only she marries a Pontevedrian

Subscription and single tickets are available by visiting the MOT box office at 6519 Second Avenue in Detroit's New Center Area or by calling the box office at 874-SING, or at any Ticketmaster outlet, 645-6666. Seniors and students receive half-off tickets one hour before

South's Pointe Players perform 'Noises Off'

The Pointe Players of Grosse Pointe South High School will present "Noises Off" Nov. 17-20 in South's auditorium.

The play is a comedy/farce written by British playwright Michael Frayn and depicts the antics on and offstage of the members of a touring troup performing a play called "Nothing On." Act one takes place at the final dress rehearsal, the second act shows what happens backstage later in the play's run after the actors have become disenchanted with each other. In act three, the actors throw down the gloves and do whatever they can to make the others look bad.

The cast is made up of Greg Sharrow, Neely O'Brien, Bill Drummy, Courtney Jo Dempsey, Heather Bossler, Joe Calarco, James McGovern, Katie Kingsley and Paul Cure.

The production is directed by Pointe Players' advisor Mary Martin with technical design and direction by Dan Vicary. The student production team is led by stage manager Tim Reynolds and assistant stage manager Tracy Henwood. Committee chairs are Katie Sperti, Sarah Foley, Geoff Button, Bill Vogel, Katie Kingsley, Joe Calarco and Jed Scott.

Performance dates and times are Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 17-18 at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Nov. 19, at 4 and 8 p.m. and Saturday, Nov. 20, at 2 and 8 p.m. Tickets are $6 for adults and $5 for students and seniors for all evening performances and $4 for all afternoon performances. Not only did they perform five highly pictorial works with depth and interest, maestro Miller demonstrated with his selections that there is immense variety in this broad category.

The program was also fun from the start as the orchestra performed the "Oh Lois" movement from Ann Arborbased composer Michael Daugherty's "Superman Suite," a work inspired by the recent 50th anniversary of the quintessential American comic strip.

It has the air of contemporary comic book heroics and science fiction with eerie whistles and percussion sounds from gongs, triangles and the whip. But it captures, as well, the tongue-incheek spirit. Yet there are substantial musical values, themes and developments that suggest the identities of the various characters faced by Superman and his double identity relationship with Lois Lane.

The brief selection only whetted the appetite to hear the rest of the suite.

The diminutive Delarrocha who followed is a titan at the piano and at her absolute artistic best with the music of her fellow Span-

"Nights in the Gardens of Spain' by Manuel De Falla is fanciful both in the scenes it represents and its musical style. She gave it an elegant feeling, weaving a web of magic in Iberian melodies and harmonies. Her second solo, "Rhapsodia Sinfonica," by Joaquin Turina has more mystery, which she filled with moments of suspense and lyricism.

Guest conductor Miller was more than ready to meet the challenges of leading an unfamiliar orchestra and accompanying De-Larrocha. He achieved smooth ensemble with her expressive performance while never relinquishing his own command of the orchestra and always maintaining the spirit of the music throughout the orchestral segments.

He brought out highly expressive phrasing and dynamics that fulfilled the tension and excitement of the romantic score.

Interesting contrasts were provided in the second half with Leonard Bernstein's suite from the film score for "On the Waterfront," and Aaron Copeland's suite from which he created his ballet "Billy the Kid." Considering that this added a film score and an American ballet to the comic strip suite and Spanish fantasies, it was fascinating to try to define the distinctions in these musical scenes for different formats.

Miller's forceful direction of the Bernstein score brought out a sense that Bernstein's rich musical interpretation of the tough waterfront labor scene must have competed with the action of the film more than a moviemaker might wish.

He was equally adept at bringing out the rhythmic excitement and snatches of all-American cowboy tunes that brighten the animated Copeland ballet music.

This weekend's set of concerts opens tonight with guest conductor Hans Vonk leading the orchestra in symphonies of wind instruments by Stravinsky, Violin Concerto No. 1 by Prokoviev and Symphony No. 2 by Schumann.

The program will be repeated Friday and Saturday evenings. For tickets, call 833-3700.

Small-ship cruising has its rewards

By Cynthia Boal-Janssens Special Writer

As we were leaving the port of Hood River, Ore., it was discovered that one of the crew members had missed the ship literally. There on the wharf stood one very embarrassed young lady, shopping bag dangling from her hand.

Despite strong winds, Capt. Travis Stephens nimbly nudged the bow of the "Spirit of '98" right up to the dock and several of the deckhands hauled her over the bow.

"Try to do that on a big cruise ship," said another crew member.

This past week I sailed on the "Spirit of '98," the new flagship of Alaska Sightseeing/ Cruise West, and was reminded of all the reasons that I prefer this very special way of traveling. The "Spirit of '98" is 192 feet long. Some say "ships" begin at 200 feet, but I think that's nitpicking. Stephens calls her a "boat" rather than a "ship" because "she can go where ships can't.'

This, of course, is one of the primary reasons for sailing on a small vessel. Our itinerary was the Columbia and Snake rivers. We boarded in Portland and traveled through sections of Washington, Oregon and Idaho. The "Spirit of '98" is the largest cruise ship sailing on these waters, which were first explored by Lewis and Clark.

Built in 1984 to resemble a turn-of-the-century steamboat, "Spirit of '98" can carry just 101 passengers in 49 cabins. This particular week we had only 68 people aboard, which made it easy to meet everyone before the week was over. Before it was acquired by Alaska Sightseeing last spring, it was the "Victorian Empress" operated by St. Lawrence Cruise Lines in Canada.

The smaller the ship, the fewer the public areas. In this case, the "Spirit of '98" has only four: a spacious lounge, an elegant dining room, a tea room and an open sun deck with tables, chairs and chaise lounges on the bridge deck. They were more than sufficient.

The Grand Salon was introduced to us this way: "Welcome to your living room for the week. Make yourselves at home and feel free to hang out here whenever you wish.

And that is precisely what we all did. Coffee and tea were available at all times. There was a player piano. It would not be unusual to find, at any one time, several people curled up in armchairs with newspapers or books (the ship carries a very nice collection on the Pacific Northwest), others wrapped up in a bridge game, while still others were standing at the wide front windows discussing the passing scenery. The ever-cheerful bartender, Mark Ronk, dispensed mixed drinks, made espressos, cappuchinos or caffe lattes as well as serving free soft drinks.

The Klondike Dining Room was quite gracious, decorated in restful mauves trimmed with lots of ornate mahogany. With the exception of an ondeck barbecue and one brunch, all meals were served individually. The quality was exceptional. For breakfast it was either the feature of the day (pancakes, quiche, waffles and such) or eggs to order. Lunches were varied and often eaten ashore. For dinner, we had a choice of either a meat or seafood entree. Choices included rack of lamb, prime rib, stuffed pork chops and flank steak on the meat side, while the fish choices included sauteed scallops, poached salmon in saffron sauce, calimari picatta and halibut poached in parchment. They also turned out an assortment of vegeterian plates, salads and special diet meals.

Soapy's Parlour was a nifty little room behind the dining room that hardly anyone bothered to find - a great corner for quiet reading or jotting postcards. I holed up there with my laptop computer to do some writing. It was designed to be an intimate bar, but the cruise line soon observed that it did not need two bars and now only uses the room to occasionally serve afternoon tea.

The sun deck, about half of the barbecue (the salmon was grilled to perfection). There was no fitness center and the decks promenades, but the sun deck offered a stationary bike and a stair-climber for those who wanted a little workout.

Henrik Ibsen's psychological drama "Hedda Gabler" will open at the Hilberry Theatre on Friday, Nov. 12, and run through Thursday, Jan. 27.

Written by Ibsen in 1890, "Hedda Gabler" is a startling character study of a brilliant, destructive woman.

Tied by strict Victorian convention, Gabler finds herself in a loveless marriage, craving excitement and release from boredom. Fearing scandal, she manipulates others to satisfy her suppressed passions and desires.

Jealous of the secure relationship her past lover Eilert Loevborg enjoys with Thea Elvsted, Hedda schemes. She maneuvers Loevborg and Thea,

Fontbonne's annual Holiday Spree will be Sunday, Nov. 14

The Fontbonne Auxiliary of St. John Hospital and Medical Center will hold its fifth annual Holiday Spree from 5 to 9 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 14, at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The fundraiser will include hearty hors d'oeuvres, a sweet table, a cash bar and silent and live auctions.

Proceeds are earmarked for a remote respiratory monitoring device for the hospital's pediatric unit.

Auction items include dinner packages, wines, sports collectibles, Christmas items, a billiard table, jewelry, a 12-person golf outing and a home improvement package.

Co-chairmen of the event are Lois and Dean Valente of Grosse Pointe Park.

Other Fontbonne members working on the annual benefit include Bonnie Burke, Rose David, Judy Dobbins, Elka Edwards, Donna Holley, Margaret Lamparter, Mary Matta, Helen Paczala, Sara Patrosso, Maria Valente, Deanna Van Assche and Carol Vandenberg.

Tickets are $25. For information or to order tickets, call Honorary chairman is Mrs. Brigida Bianco.

Hug a tree: The ninth annual Festival of Trees, a benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan, will run from Saturday, Nov. 20, through Sunday, Nov. 28, including Thanksgiving Day. The festival will be in the Riverfront Ballroom of the Cobo Conference and Exhibition Center.

The highlights of the festival, of course, are the more than 100 professionally decorated holiday trees, which are for sale after the event.

In addition to enjoying the trees, wreaths and continuous entertainment, visitors will also have the opportunity to visit Santa and to participate in holiday activities such as making Christmas cookies and tree ornaments. A special kids-only gift shop will give children an opportunity to shop by themselves for gifts with kid-size prices.

A gingerbread village will feature creations by local chefs. And the annual teddy bear tea will begin at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 27, with box lunches. entertainment, a magic show and special appearances by Santaland characters.

The festival gift shop will feature decorated 2-foot Christmas trees and Festival logo

Lifelong partners since kindergarten, Stan & Dave would like a chance to become lifelong partners with you!

Dave Levy and Stan Schwartz, the owners of Classic Window & Siding, have been friends and partners in business ever since they were little kids. Though, as youngsters, back in the days of Kool-Aid stands, they probably never suspected that they would grow up to be the men behind the East area's most respected name in windows and siding. On the other hand, if their Kool-Aid was any indication of what was to come, on a hot summer day, they knew even then what it meant to be in demand.

For years, Classic Window and Siding has been providing Eastside neighborhoods with the best in sales and installation of vinyl windows and sid-ing. They also specialize in hand-crafted, customdesigned bay and bow windows. With each sale they make, they provide the customer with the "complete package." There are never any hidden additional costs on materials and labor which are covered by Classic's famous 30-year guarantee.

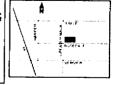

But Dave and Stan will tell you "an excellent product alone does not make a great business." What distinguishes Classic Window and Siding from the pack is their unwavering commitment to their customers. Dave, Stan and the staff at Classic make themselves available to their customers on a 24-hour basis to answer any questions or to assist with any service.

Classic's experience in serving homeowners has enabled them to anticipate the concerns of new customers. Often, they can answer questions before they're even asked. For example, to assure their new customers they are getting the finest in windows, siding and service, they maintain a computerized list of all their previous customers to be used as references. Once the work on a house is completed, Dave and Stan inspect it themselves to insure that the job not only meets the customer's expectations, but lives up to Classic Window and Siding's countrien as well. dow and Siding's reputation as well

In the past year alone, Classic has earned the tal satisfaction of over 1600 residential customers. In addition to quick, responsible and dependable service, much of their success is due to making their windows and siding affordable to almost every budget. "We believe that the bot-tom line is providing our customers with exactly what they want, at a price they can comfortably handle," says Dave.

Kitchen hardware 'wizdom': Here's the nuts and bolts

Problem: We don't know what color or style of hardware to use on our white kitchen cabinets?

Solution: Here is the "wizdom" as far as the color is concerned, keeping in mind that contrast always draws attention. In a small kitchen, for example, "dotting" white cabinets with contrasting black handles or knobs will turn your attention to them, making the area seem busy and "color cluttered." Rather, select something that blends with them.

However, if you want drama and color, here's how to get away with it. You must buffer the contrast by repeating that color a couple of times somewhere else in the room. But do it in different amounts, such as repeating it in wallcoverings, placemats, towels or even on the edging or bullnose of your counter tops.

Another way to tone down the stark white contrast is by selecting a cabinet finish that has a stronger underlying base color, such as creamy white. This makes the contrast less extreme between the cabinet and hardware.

In selecting metallic hardware, blend warm gold toned hardware, warm colored laminate, stained wood or painted cabinets. For coolbased color cabinets use the silver metallics.

All colors contain warm or cool base colors. The mixtures of reds, yellows and oranges in all tints, shades and intensities are considered warm. We associate them with the sun and fire. And the opposite is true for greens, blues and purples, which are cool colors that we associate with the sky, water and

The "wizdom" for selecting a particular style depends on the style of your room. Contemporary kitchens look best with simple, straighterlined hardware, as compared to the curvy lines of traditional pieces which complement the curvy lines of traditional cabinetry.

For more color tips to "color your home happy," inside or out, contact The Color Wizard for a house call at 885-8772, or write SMART HOME MOVES at P.O. Box 104, St. Clair Shores, Mich., 48080.

Prepare for end of CFC supply

Property owners and managers must begin planning now to prepare for refrigerant shortages later on, according to the Building Owners and Managers Association (BOMA) International's newest publication, "The Refrigerant Manual: Managing the Phase-Out of

The manual is designed to prepare building owners, managers and industry professionals for the impending phase-out of chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) and to assist them in the planning and implementation process.

"At the end of 1995, the production of CFC-based refrigerants ends, and the availability of CFCs will be limited and expensive," explains Heyward Dortch, chairman of BOMA Detroit. "We must take action now to avoid the shortages and frustrations that will inevitably occur for those who wait."

"The Refrigerant Manual: Managing the Phase-Out of CFCs" covers all aspects of the CFC phase-out from the final EPA rules, to definitions and interpretations, to the disposal of used refrigerants. Included in the manual are real-life case studies, recordkeeping materials, equipment certification forms, inventory surveys, resources and references. Also included are standards from the Air-Conditioning & Refrigeration Institute (ARI) and the American Society of Heating, Refrigeration and Air-Conditioning Engineers, Inc. (ASHRAE).

"The Refrigerant Manual: Managing the Phase-Out of CFCs" is available to members for $55 and $85 to non-members. To order, call 965-BOMA.

Household Help

Seasonal tips

- Clean out your gutters, leaders and any debris that may have landed on your roof.
- If your home requires any exterior painting or weatherproofing, now is the time to do it.
- Trim and prune those bushes or shrubs that may rest against your siding and foundation. They will eventually cause erosion and rot to your siding and walls.
- Repair any major cracks in your walkways and front steps. They will expand and cause damage if not taken care of.
- · Be sure that all of your storm windows close securely and are, of course, not broken or cracked.
- · Have your furnace or oil burner inspected before the weather gets any harsher.
- Protect and wrap any fragile or small trees with old blankets or burlap.

Nationwide, there is a fire death every 118 minutes

Fire safety begins with prevention. Because fires can start easily and spread quickly, your best defense is to know and practice the do's and don'ts of fire safety.

Protecting yourself and your family from potential fire hazards can save your lives. The safety experts at Underwriters Laboratories Inc. (UL), the organization that has evaluated products for risk of fire and electrical shock hazard for nearly 100 years, recommends that you and your family avoid potential fire hazards by practicing the following fire safety steps.

Conduct a fire safety audit of vour home:

- Keep flammable items away from hot surfaces such as an oven, fireplace, space heater or barbecue
- · Always follow the manufacturer's instructions exactly for the safe use of electrical appliances.
- Never overload an electrical outlet or extension cord or run electrical cords under rugs. An extension cord should not be covered or exposed to anything that will raise its temperature.

Place UL listed fire extinguishers in visible and accessible places: the kitchen, the hallway, the garage and workshops. The UL mark means that samples of the fire extinguishers have been tested against nationally recognized safety standards and that the UL has conducted follow-up evaluations to check that samples of the fire extinguisher continue to meet these safety requirements.

• Know the difference between the three kinds of household fire extinguishers and when to use each type. Using the wrong extinguisher may cause a fire to spread. Extinguishers marked for Class A fires are intended for use on fires involving combustible materials such as paper and cloth. Class B extinguishers are for use on flammable liquid fires, such as kitchen grease. Class C extinguishers should only be used on fires involving electrical equipment. Multipurpose extinguishers marked ABC are also available and can be used on all three types of fires.

• Inspect your fire extinguishers regularly to keep them in proper working condition.

- Because smoke can put you and your family into a deep sleep, it's important to install UL listed smoke detectors on each level of your home - including the basement - and outside each bedroom and sleeping area, to alert you of a
- Test, clean and maintain your smoke detectors as instructed in the owner's manual. Familiarize your family with the smoke detector's alarm so they recognize its signal and know what to do when it sounds.
- Install fresh batteries in battery-operated smoke detectors at least once a year.

Develop a fire escape plan for vour home

Confusion during a fire usually results from fear and uncertainty about what to do. Part of an effective fire safety home audit includes establishing a fire escape plan.

- Develop and practice emergency escape drills with your family. A good rule of thumb is to plan two ways out of every room. Practicing a fire drill at home will familiarize you and your family with the fire escape routes and help you escape quickly if a fire should break out.
- Establish a meeting place away from your home where you and your family can safely gather.
- In the event of a fire, do not take shelter anywhere in your home (under a bed, in a closet, etc.) Fire spreads quickly and firefighters may not be able to find you in a smoke-filled room.
- Once you are out of a burning building, stay out and immediately call your local fire department. Never re-enter a burning buildingfor any reason. Trained firefighters with proper equipment will check for family members still in the burning house.

Clearly, furniture colors don't have to fade away

Those dollars invested in colorful new furniture may be going out the window fast. That is, if the windows were installed before advanced glazing techniques were used.

"Homeowners usually have one of two perceptions about fading fabric," said Patrick Bushey, territory sales manager for Pella Window & Door Co. "They believe nothing can be done to prolong resistance to fading, or all the curtains need to be closed to eliminate light. Both perceptions are wrong.

Sunlight is the cause of fading, but by controlling how sunlight is let in, fading can be managed. Bushey said visible light, the only part of the spectrum we can see, is the most desirable. The light you can feel as heat is infrared rays. While infrared does lead to fading over time, immediate fading problems are caused by ultraviolet rays which you can't see or feel.

Bushey said a widely used solution to fading is a transparent glass coating called Low-E, or low-emissivity. The coating acts much like a mirror, reflecting heat and fading rays away. Because the coating is clear, it allows nearly all visible light into the home.

Be alert for coatings that tint the glass gray or brown," Bushey said. "Quality windows are attractive features because they bring natural light into the home. Tints can significantly block out harmless visible light and hurt that ef-

Bushey said protective glazing is increasingly standard in high quality performance windows, and is usually available as an option in other units.

Tree-friendly bird feeder offered

Needlessly destroying a natural resource to make bird feeders and bird houses just doesn't make sense to Mark Huyck.

"It seems like the ultimate irony to destroy trees - birds' natural habitat - to make bird feeders in order to attract birds to suburban back yards," he said.

Huyck was challenged to invent a better bird feeder -- and became an eccentrepreneur in the process.

Instead of using cedar - the traditional lumber used to make bird feeders and bird houses - Huvck's new firm, The Breezy Hill Co., uses plastic lumber, which looks remarkably like wood and is made from a new process which transforms old plastic milk containers into a durable lumber substitute. Tougher than wood, plastic lumber requires no maintenance, and it lasts a lifetime.

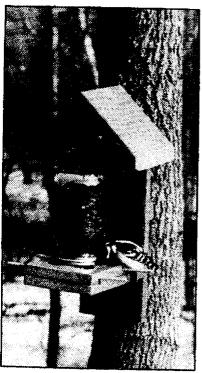

The Breezy Hill bird feeder has a natural-looking wood finish and texture that will not crack, splinter, rot or require paint or stain. It is guaranteed to never fall victim to wood-destroying insects.

The feeder comes in a ready-toassemble kit. Each piece is pre-cut and pre-drilled. In less than 30 minutes, with just a screwdriver and a hammer, the bird feeder can be completely assembled.

The only part not included with the kit is a one-quart mayonnaise or Mason jar which serves as the bird-seed dispenser.

"I wanted this one critical component to be provided by the consumer in order to help close the recycling loop," Huyck said.

The Breezy Hill bird feeder is a perfect holiday gift for eco-aware children, family and friends. It is guaranteed to be a fun and entertaining project that will provide a lifetime of pleasure and pleasant memories for both novice and experienced bird watchers.

The Breezy Hill bird feeder sells for $19.75 plus $4 shipping and handling. Send a check, money order, or Visa/Mastercard number (with your card expiration date and authorized signature) to The Breezy Hill Co., 12080 Saubee, Lake Odessa, Mich. 48849. Michigan residents, please add 79 cents sales tax. Allow up to three weeks for shipping. (To ensure Christmas delivery, please order by Nov. 27.)

Eastside builders to meet Nov. 16

Eastside builders can receive an update on building activity in their area at a luncheon meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 16, sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM).

John Bollan Jr., vice president of Bollan Building Co. in Troy, will lead the meeting, providing an opportunity for fellow builders to network and exchange ideas and con-

The meeting will be held from noon to 1:30 p.m. at the Brewery Restaurant, 39950 Hayes, in Clinton Township. Registration, including lunch, is free for BASM members and $10 for non-members.

Check out this ranch plan that comes with a loft

By W.D. Farmer

The recessed arch-top entry leads to a formal foyer with a 12-foot ceiling in this elegant ranch. The fover leads to the vaulted family room with an overlooking loft. The kitchen, breakfast room and dining room are nearby.

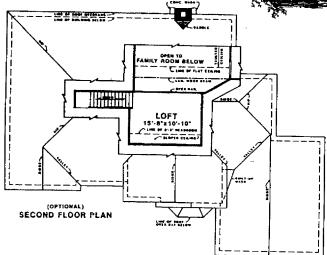

The kitchen includes a sink set at an angle near the snack bar. The breakfast room has a volume ceiling and access to the laundry room or two-car garage. The dining room is convenient to the kitchen area as well.

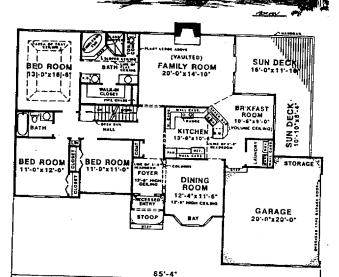

The basement stair is located under the stair up, which leads to the impressive loft.

The bedroom end of the home includes three bedrooms and two baths. Each of the two bedrooms on the front of the home includes a closet, and they share a central bath. The master suite on the back of the home includes a tray ceiling. The garden bath is luxurious for a home this size, and includes a sloped ceiling. There is a corner whirlpool tub, a separate shower, a toilet compartment, and twin vanities. A large walk-in closet is provided with an immense amount of hanging space.

The distinctive European exterior of this home is stucco and stone with compound gables to the front. A bay window and arched entry complete the eye-catching appearance of this home.

Plan No. Z-703 is computer generated and includes 1,787 square feet on the first floor and an additional 172 square feet in the loft. For further information on this plan, write to W.D. Farmer Residence Designer Inc., P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, Ga. 30345.

Builders awards program set

The annual tribute to outstanding professionals involved in the building industry will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 7, when the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM) and Apartment Association of Michigan host their 1993 Leadership Recognition and Awards Night.

Builders, business executives and civic leaders will be on hand for the award festivities at the Marriott Hotel in Troy. The evening begins with a reception at 6:30 p.m., followed by a banquet, awards program and entertainment.

This year's program will include honors for Builder of the Year, Young Builder of the Year and Associate Member of the Year. There also will be an inductee into the BASM "Hall of Fame," Distinguished Service Awards to several area professionals and special recognition to BASM's president, Fred I. Capaldi. Other awards will feature Developer of the Year, Sales Person of the Year and several other distinguished citations.

The cost is $70 for the reception, dinner and program. For reservations and information, call (313) 737-4477.

Unique Pottery

Gouda art pottery is the name given by collectors of art nouveau and art deco pottery made in different shops near Gouda, Arnhem and other towns in the Netherlands and Belgium. The distinctive designs and colors used by potters in the area attracted buyers from all parts of the world. The pieces are usually marked with factory names like

"Zuid Holland," "Goedewaagen,"
"Schoonhoven," "Regina" or "Olat-telbakkery." "Zuid" also means south and it refers to the province where the town of Gouda is located.

Additional marks are the artist's initials, the pattern name and dating information. Prices for Gouda pottery have been rising since the The strong colors and unique decorations remain popular.

Better Homes & Gardens world love this custom built four bedroom Colonial home featuring two and one-half baths, family room, newer high efficiency furnace with central air, hardwood floors, marble foyer and window sills, aprinkler system in front yard, and oversized two and one-half car garage. 'Industria' art exhibit, lecture at Michigan Design Center

The Michigan Design Center (MDC) invites the public to attend the season-finale ViewPoint Lecture Series, featuring Ron Rea, on Friday, Nov. 19.

An award-winning principal of Peterhansrea Design in Birmingham, Rea's inspired work can be seen throughout the Detroit metro area, particulary in his designs for Sebastian's Grille, Old Woodward Grille, 59 Dine and many more. He will discuss "Commercial Design—Designer's Role in the Business World."

The lecture series will begin at 3 p.m. with a reception, followed by the lecture at 4 p.m. The fee is $7. To RSVP, make check payable to Michigan Design Center, and mail to MDC, 1700 Stutz Drive, Suite 25, Troy, Mich. 48084. For further information, call 649-2020.

In addition, Detroit Focus on the Move will preview the exhibit "Industria, Recent Works of New Modernism," during Viewpoint. At 5 p.m., all are invited to the Focus Gallery Reception and viewing at MDC. There is no charge. Included in the presentation are works by artists David Cole, Tammis Donaldson, Susan Logan, Rochelle Martin, Donald Miedema, Serdar Omer, Propeller, Blake Shauman and Mark Wilson. The exhibit was curated by Damon Leverett. "Industria" will be featured for public viewing at MDC from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, through Dec. 16.

The Michigan Design Center is a resource marketplace for the interior design profession. Open to the trade only, consumers are welcome in the company of their interior designers, architects or builders. For complimentary Designer & Architect Referral Service, call (313) 649-4772. Michigan Design Center is located north off Maple Road (15 Mile), three blocks east of Coolidge in Troy.

Home Tips

THE PROTECTOR — The long, narrow plastic bags that newspapers often come in make perfect dust protectors for men's neckties. Simply slip the bag over the tie, make a small side opening and slip it on the tie rack. Len M., Oliphant, Pa.

OPEN HOME — When I was growing up, my mother would have dinner all ready when unexpected guests dropped in. Not quite sure if there would be enough food to go around, my mother would announce at the table, "FHB."

While the guests didn't know what she was saying, we all knew it meant, "Family, hold back." We wouldn't put too much food on our plates, making sure our guests would have enough and feel truly welcome. Audrey N., Stillwater, Minn.

Woods' city adminsistrator Peter Thomas may be new to the job, but he is certainly not new to the community or to the Woods government. Thomas will celebrate his 30th year as a Woods city employee on Dec.

Thomas joined the public safety department on Jan. 1, 1964, where he stayed until he was promoted to city administrator on Nov. 1, 1993 when the Woods council voted 7.0 to approve his contract.

"I feel one of the big advantages I have is a familiarity and working relationship I had with fellow employees," said Thomas, "I think that will help greatly with the job.

Being with the public safety department. Thomas said, means that he is not totally familiar with the issues.

"I have worked with the city's employees for many years, and I feel that relationship will help me come up to speed." Thomas said.

Thomas said he will be meeting with the city council over

Driver caught in the act

Unaware that a Grosse Pointe Woods police officer was watching on Nov. 6, an intoxicated motorist driving on Mack slammed into a stopped car and then attempted to drive away.

The motorist, a 30-year-old Detroit man, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor and leaving the scene of an accident. He was taken by police to St. John Hospital for a chemical blood test, held overnight at the Woods police station and then released on bond. He was scheduled to be arraigned on Wednesday, Nov. 10.

The incident began when a Woods patrol officer in the median crossover at Mack near Torrey around 2 a.m. spotted a 1977 Oldsmobile burned-out headlight.

As the officer prepared to stop the driver for driving with defective equipment, he saw the driver swerve and crash into the back of a Dodge Aries stopped at a red light in the northbound lane.

The impact caused the Aries to spin around and wind up facing south on Mack. The Dodge driver was not injured. The Oldsmobile driver, however, was thrown into the windshield and knocked over to the passenger side of his car. After a moment, the driver sat up, pulled his car away from the wreckage and continued driving north on Mack.

With emergency lights flashing, the officer attempted to stop the driver, who drove a short distance, pulled to the curb and then jumped out of the car. After a brief foot chase, the officer tackled the driver and placed him in handcuffs.

When back-up officers arrived at the scene, the driver told them that the arresting officer had kicked him in the mouth. Because the motorist was bleeding from the mouth. officers could not administer a field Breathalyzer test and took him to St. John Hospital for a blood alcohol test.

Veterans Day remembrance in Detroit

The Cathedral Church of St. Paul, located at the corner of Woodward and Warren, will mark its 30th annual Veterans Day celebration at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 14.

This year's speaker is the Rt. Rev. Charles L. Burgreen. He is the former Episcopal bishop for the Armed Forces and a retired colonel with 22 years of service in the Regular Army.

Groups and organizations who are interested in participating are asked to call the Cathedral office to ensure seating. Color bearers are especially invited to join in the procession. For more information call 831-5000.

the next few weeks to discuss what the council perceives as the issues that need to be addressed quickly. Thomas feels that at this stage it is his job to be a good listener. That, he feels, is the proper course to determine the best ways to address the concerns of the Woods.

"This is a tough job," said councilmember Thomas Fahrner. "I have known Mr. Thomas for many years, and have complete confidence that he will do a very good job as administrator and look forward to working with him."

the administrator is responsible to the city council for the "efficient administration of all administrative departments of the city government," except for the clerk's office, the treasurer, the assessor the and the city attorney.

The administrator is also responsible for seeing that all city codes and ordinances are enforced, and to recommend and administer the city budget, as well as recommend to the city council ordinances he deems necessary.

Thomas' contract is for two years, with periodic performance reviews. His salary is $70,000 for fiscal year 1993-1994. His predecessor Philip Belcher's salary for fiscal year 1992-1993 was $66,000. Thomas said. But there probably would have been a raise for Belcher if he had stayed at his job.

Thomas received a master's degree in public administration from Central Michigan University in 1978. In order to earn the degree, he had to study everything from management to statistics to computers.

There is no return clause in the contract, so if for some reason the council decides to let him go, Thomas can't resume According to the city charter, his old job with public safety.
