

School district seeks to explain its Magnet program; foes cry foul

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Efforts made by the Grosse Pointe schools to ease the concerns of a parental group opposed to the Magnet program appear instead to have triggered further frustration. The Grosse Pointe school board on Nov. 8 adopted a public statement drafted by the school administration in response to a 19-page memorandum submitted in October by the Grosse Pointe Alliance for Educational Excellence — a group of parents who are concerned about how the district operates its Magnet program for gifted and talented children.

The memorandum, which was summarized in a one-page flier passed around the community last month, called for the abolition of the Magnet program based on what the alliance called "invalid and inappropriate testing," and which fosters "elitism" by "benefiting a select few at the educational expense of others."

In response to the alliance's concerns and earlier requests made by parents, the administration formed a Magnet program advisory committee charged with hiring an independent consultant to evaluate the program's testing methods and classroom practices.

In addition, superintendent Ed Shine, along with Susan Allan, director of instructional services, and C. Suzanne Klein, assistant superintendent of instructional services, drafted a four-page public statement that explains the district's differentiated programming, which includes the Magnet program, testing, resource allocation, and general comments on the program.

The public statement did not, Shine said, counter point-by-point every statement made by the alliance in its memorandum.

"It just didn't make sense to get into that kind of situation,"

Shine said. Rather, the administration took the opportunity to explain to parents how the program operates, how it is still in its implementation stages and is always open to evaluation and change.

The statement was given to all elementary school children

Village prepares for Santa's arrival

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas in the Village as the merchants prepare for Santa's arrival. The Santa Claus Parade will begin at South High School at 10:30 a.m. on the Friday after Thanksgiving and proceed to the Village, ending at Kercheval and Cadieux. The parade lineup will be printed in next week's paper.

You can help support the parade by purchasing $10 to $100 ornaments to be hung on a tree in Jacobson's window, above. For more information, see page 17A.

Decision on fate of libraries draws near; public meeting set for Nov. 22

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

While the future of library funding in Grosse Pointe remains uncertain, the Grosse Pointe public schools continue to move forward with their own solution.

The school board, acting as the library board of trustees, will meet at 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 22, in Grosse Pointe South's Wicking Library to continue discussions and planning toward the creation of a district library system.

In fact, superintendent Ed Shine said it is possible the board may put the issue to a vote next week. The meeting is open to the public.

Grosse Pointe is one of 33 school districts in Michigan that operates a public library system. And like Grosse Pointe, several other school districts, including Wyandotte, Battle Creek, Hartland and Harbor Beach, are also exploring the possibility of separating their libraries from the schools.

'Although a bill has been introduced in the Senate to allow school systems that operate public libraries to levy a library millage, there is no guarantee that bill will ever become law.'

Superintendent Ed Shine

Public Act 145, signed by Gov. John Engler on Aug. 19, eliminated property taxes as a source of funding for public schools and does not define specifically if a library millage is considered part of the schools' operating millage.

Schools superintendent Ed Shine said there are several interpretations of how school-operated libraries could be affected and no one is certain about the final interpretation.

"Although a bill has been introduced in the Senate to allow school systems that operate public libraries to levy a library millage, there is no guarantee that bill will ever become law," Shine said in a written statement mailed to all residents in the school district. "Without that protection, our public library will probably be funded by a formula based on our school system's enrollment, a formula that makes no sense for a library that serves every person in the community, not just school-age children."

At press time, several bills addressing the library millage question were being considered in the Legislature.

Woods toughens smoking war

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Smoking by minors just became a little tougher in Grosse Pointe Woods, thanks to two ordinances passed by the Woods city council Monday night.

The council passed emergency no smoking ordinances at the request of city attorney George Catlin, who made the proposals in response to complaints he has received from school officials.

"It is currently illegal for anyone under 18 to smoke on school property," Catlin said. "But teachers at Parcels have told me that they have seen students going off school property and buying tobacco at a nearby gas station, and smoking off school property."

The advantage of these ordinances is that if a minor is caught, the situation can be handled in the Woods Municipal Court, Catlin said. If there were no ordinances, anyone arrested under the recently passed state laws would have to go to courts in downtown Detroit. That's hardly a practical solution to the problem.

The two ordinances are based on state laws. One ordinance makes it illegal for minors to smoke on school property. The other ordinance makes it illegal for minors to purchase or possess tobacco products.

Each offense is considered a misdeanor, and is punishable by a $50 fine, Catlin said. The ordinances also make it a misdemeanor punishable by a $50 fine to sell tobacco products to minors.

Councilmembers asked Catlin if chewing tobacco and snuff would be covered under the ordinances. Catlin informed them that all tobacco products, including the non-smoking kind, would be covered under the ordinances.

The council passed the proposals, and because they were presented as emergency ordinances, it was not necessary to wait until the next council meeting for a second reading of the proposals. They go into effect immediately.

Farms accepts plan to spruce up Mack

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

From Allard to Fisher, the look of Mack Avenue in the Farms could improve significantly if business owners along the 7/8-mile stretch take to heart the recommendations made by the city as part of the Mack Avenue Storefront Design Master Plan.

The Grosse Pointe Farms City Council on Nov. 8 accepted the plans drawn up by architect Bret Rasegan to improve the appearance of business and store fronts along Mack.

Last spring, the council was presented a master plan by John Grissim of Grissim/Metz Associates, paid for with funds from the Community Development Block Grant program.

In addition to the storefront improvements, CDBG funds will help with median and sidewalk improvements, roadway and infrastructure improvements, new signs and parking meters, handicapped ramps, brick screen walls and other elements to improve the aesthetics of Mack over the next several years.

The first phase of the plan will be the installation of overhead street lights in the medians, which should be completed this winter or next spring. Extensive negotiations with the City of Detroit and Detroit Edison resulted in an agreement by which Detroit Edison will install the lights and Detroit and the Farms will split the construction and operating costs. The Farms' share for the streetlights is $25,265, to be paid from federal block grant funds.

"This project has significant symbolic impact, in addition to being mutually beneficial to both communities," said Farms city manager Richard Solak. "We must work more cooperatively, not only among the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods communities, but also with the city of Detroit if we are to secure our destiny."

"I would especially like to thank Anthony Soave, one of our residents, for his help in interceding on behalf of this project with Mayor Coleman Young."

The next phase after the lighting is installed will be to improve the medians and some sidewalks north of Warren.

To complement the planned infrastructure improvements, in June the Farms commissioned Rasegan to design a storefront master plan, which recommended a Colonial theme for business facades similar to those in the surrounding neighborhoods.

Recommendations range from adding cupolas to a couple of buildings to installing wooden sign boards and canvas awnings to others.

The Farms' ordinance committee plans to meet in the next few weeks to decide how best to implement the master plan.

Solak said he has spoken with some business owners along Mack and the response has been "relatively positive."

"The hope is that the combined effort by the city in implementing the streetscape improvements, and by store owners in implementing the facade renovations, will effect a transformation of Mack Avenue which will enhance and revitalize that significant area of our community," Solak said.

to take home to their parents on Nov. 10 and 11.
"We want to let all parents know that people have approached the board asking for a program review and evaluation and the board has agreed to do that," Shine said.

In a move that surprised many parents attending the Nov. 8 school board meeting, the board unanimously voted to place the statement on the agenda. The board then voted 6-1, with trustee Sears Taylor objecting, to adopt the public statement.

"Speaking individually, I thought everybody should have let the committee and the consultant do their work," said board president Timothy Howlett. "The problem is, after we appointed a committee and a consultant to evaluate the program, the fliers were distributed. Once that was done, I don't think we could have waited for the consultant and the committee to do their work. Issues were raised and I believe we needed to explain them to the community."

Howlett said he still believes that the committee and consultant should be allowed to go ahead with the evaluation — without interference. Any further actions or comments on the issue before a completed evaluation are merely speculation, he said.

Trustee Taylor objected to the adoption of the statement, calling it "premature." He said he is not philosophically against the Magnet program, but had hoped to see the statement come out after the committee came forward with its recommendations.

Furthermore, Taylor said he does not feel the four-page public statement addresses the concerns of the alliance and portrays it in a negative light.

"If something doesn't work in a particular area, you fix it," he said. "When parents are concerned enough to form an alliance, there's a serious problem that needs to be addressed and I don't see evidence that

National Diabetes Month

Grosse Pointe Woods Mayor Robert Novitke is shown with 9-year-old Woods resident Andrew Adams after the mayor signed a proclamation declaring November as National Diabetes Awareness Month.

The proclamation draws attention to the severity of a disease which affects close to 14 million people and can have serious longterm complications.

Adams, a student at Monteith Elementary School who enjoys soccer, football, basketball and hockey, works daily to maintain a balance between insulin therapy, food intake and physical activity. At present, this regimen is considered the most effective means of delaying and alleviating the longterm complications from diabetes.

that's happening."

Late last week the alliance issued its own statement in response to the board's action, charging that the district did not answer the alliance's questions and did not offer concrete evidence supporting the claim that the alliance's fliers and memorandum contained misleading information.

"Given that the board's primary function is to provide independent oversight for the administration, the alliance finds it very disturbing that the board voted to issue a public statement drafted by the administration reaching a conclusion held by the administration prior to any such independent evaluation occurring," the statement said.

The statement further asserts that the alliance stands by its original statements made in the memorandum, will continue its mission of promoting equitable education in the school system and awaits the outcome of the independent evaluation.

Allan said the consultant is expected to begin her evaluation in early December. The district has allocated $3,000 of state grant money to pay for the consultant.

Libraries

The Senate currently has three bills addressing this issue, two in committee and one on the floor. The House of Representatives also has introduced a bill that would permit a school system to continue to levy a previously voted library tax.

"Part of the problem is that school operating millage is not clearly defined in the state school code," said Patricia Halm, policy analyst with the Senate Democratic Office. "That is where the battle is right now."

Halm said the Senate bill on the floor, which she predicts will not be voted on for a while, does not include all types of library systems associated with school districts, thereby leaving some libraries unprotected. It further proposes that library millages be continued only until 1996, at which time school districts would have to explore other options.

The other two bills, she said, separate library millages from school operating millages.

In Grosse Pointe, Shine and library administrators have been exploring the possibility of forming a district library system that would be separate from the schools. A governing board and library millage would be decided upon by the voters within the district.

One option under the district plan would have been to include Harper Woods in the district. Library officials in that city, however, declined to participate based on Grosse Pointe's tight timeline of implementation.

The remaining option is for the school district to obtain permission from the five Pointes to use their boundaries to form the library district. The municipalities would not be financially or legally responsible for the library district.

School district administrators met with city managers, city council members and mayors on Nov. 11 to discuss the plan.

Kenneth William Kurtz

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 20, at Christ Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Kenneth William Kurtz, 81, of Grosse Pointe Park, who died Saturday, Nov. 13, 1993, at Cottage Hospital in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Born in St. Paul, Minn., Mr. Kurtz married Aileen M. Nord in 1938 and the couple lived in St. Paul and Cincinnati before moving to Grosse Pointe Park in 1955.

Mr. Kurtz worked for Swift & Co. in St. Paul before joining Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing. During his 35-year career with 3M, he held a series of positions with increasing responsibility, retiring in 1975 as a national sales manager.

After moving to Michigan, he was active in Republican politics, serving as a precinct delegate for 11 years.

An avid sailor, Mr. Kurtz was a member of the Grosse Pointe Sail Club, where he was commodore, and was a life member of Crescent Sail Yacht Club.

Mr. Kurtz also had a passion for the circus and was a member of the Circus Historical Society and Circus Fans of America (CFA). He was a past president of Michigan's CFA chapter, the Joel E. Warner Top. He was also an amateur clown, and through his associations with many circus professionals, he was invited to be a guest performer with a number of circuses, including Ringling Bros. and Barmun & Bailey.

A longtime member of the Detroit Zoological Society, he served as a Detroit Zoo docent for many years.

His other memberships and affiliations include: The Players, the Fine Arts Society of Detroit, the Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts, Toastmasters, the American Philatelic Society and the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club.

He is survived by three sons, Kenneth Nord Kurtz, Jeffrey St. Clair Kurtz and Christopher Karl Kurtz; four grandchildren; and a sister, Ruth Bonini. He was predeceased by his wife, Aileen Nord Kurtz.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Detroit Zoological Society, P.O. Box 8237, Royal Oak, Mich. 48068.

Helen Eriksen Poe

A memorial service was held Tuesday, Nov. 16, in Hendersonville, N.C., for Helen Poe, of Hendersonville, who died Friday, Oct. 29, 1993.

A graduate of Battle Creek College and Wayne State University, she was a home economics teacher at Brownell and Parcels middle schools and Grosse Pointe North High School.

She is survived by a son, James Eriksen; a step-daughter, Joan Yerke; a step-son, Howard R. Poe; three grandchildren; six step-grandchildren; and seven step-great-grandchildren.

Edward Louis Clor

Services were held Monday, Nov. 15, at Our Lady Queen of Peace Church in Harper Woods for Edward Louis Clor, 74, of Grosse Pointe Woods, who died Friday, Nov. 12, 1993, at his home.

Born in Detroit, Mr. Clor was an all-star football player at St. Anthony High School before becoming a Detroit police officer. He was drafted into the U.S. Army during World War II, serving in the Philippines before resuming his law enforcement career.

After 25 years with the Detroit police, he became a Wayne County sheriff's deputy with the Friend of the Court division for 11 years before retiring.

Mr. Clor is survived by his wife, Charlotte; a daughter, Judy Pink; four sons, James, Jerry, John and Joe; 12 grandchildren; a sister, Gen O'Hearn; and two brothers, Paul and Elmer Clor.

Interment is at Resurrection Cemetery in Clinton Township.

Romayne Mary Schultz

A memorial Mass was held Saturday, Nov. 13, at St. Philomena Church in Detroit for Romayne Mary Schultz, 71, of the City of Grosse Pointe, who died Wednesday, Nov. 10, 1993, at St. John Hospital in Detroit.

Born in Detroit, Mrs. Schultz was a member of the Christ Child Society and the Bon Secours Assistance League.

She is survived by a son, William J. Schultz Jr.; a sister, Marilyn M. Mason; and two brothers, Robert J. Meier and Richard L. Meier. She was predeceased by her husband, William J. Schultz, and a brother, Louis F. Meier III.

Interment is at Resurrection Cemetery in Mount Clemens.

Arrangements were made by the Chas. Verheyden Inc. Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Capuchin Monastery.

Henry E. LaPonsey

A Mass was held Thursday, Nov. 11, at Our Lady Star of The Sea Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Woods for Henry E. LaPonsey, 85, of Grosse Pointe Farms, who died of lung cancer Monday, Nov. 8, 1993.

Born in Pinconning, Mr. LaPonsey was nicknamed "Sye," because he was always sighing at the nuns when they told him to do something.

"He grew up in the outdoors doing all the things that are to be done there," said his daughter Denise Donley-Daughettee. "Life without hunting would have been very dull, indeed, for Sye LaPonsey."

Mr. LaPonsey worked at G&H Tool & Die in Flint and McGraw Industries in Detroit before retiring in 1970.

His family owned a fishing business and boarding house on Saginaw Bay. His family also made suits for Henry Ford. They sent barrels of food to the lumber camps by railroad and built houses from the Sears, Roebuck catalog.

Mr. LaPonsey was a blacksmith and also worked at AC Sparkplug in Flint during World War II.

He hunted ducks from the age of 9 and tracked deer and turkeys in the Alcona County towns of Lincoln and Harrisville, his favorite place to hunt.

He won many skeet shooting contests going back to 1964 and held the world championship for shooting 100 straight. His favorite shooting partner was actor Robert Stack.

He was active in the Detroit Gun Club, the Detroit Sportsman Congress, the Maple Grove Gun Club and the National Rifle Association.

He enjoyed Michigan's four seasons and recently brought home two turkeys he had shot for Thanksgiving.

He was very generous and always willing to help others. He touched many hearts with kindness. He lived a full life.

In addition to his daughter, Mr. LaPonsey is survived by his wife, Mary Ellen; a daughter, Dianne Vaverek; six grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; two sisters; and a brother.

Arrangements were made by the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of South-eastern Michigan.

Eunice L.H. Hefferan

Private services were held at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Eunice L.H. Hefferan, 84, of Grosse Pointe Farms, who died Thursday, Nov. 11, 1993, at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit.

Born in Ypsilanti, Mrs. Hefferan earned a bachelor's degree from Scripps College in Claremont, Calif., and a master's degree from the University of Michigan.

She was a member of the National Society of Colonial Dames of American in Michigan, the Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Grosse Pointe Garden Club and the Junior League of Detroit.

She is survived by her husband, George B. Hefferan; a daughter, Judy Rollinson; a son, George B. Hefferan; 13 grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren. She was predeceased by a daughter, Eunice H. Jewett.

Interment will follow at a later date at the columbarium at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Arrangements were made by the Wm. R. Hamilton Co. Groesbeck Chapel.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Neighborhood Club of Grosse Pointe, 17150 Waterloo, Grosse Pointe, Mich. 48230.

What you should know before buying a business

Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

Whether you're an experienced business owner seeking to expand your operations or an entrepreneur about to make your first business purchase, the Michigan Association of CPAs recommends that you approach the acquisition process carefully.

You will need to consider your personal financial and business goals, your management and industry experience, as well as the financial stability of the business being sold.

Before you even consider the first acquisition opportunity, assess your business experience. Buying a business you know nothing about can doom it to failure, no matter how willing you are to learn about a new industry.

On the other hand, your experience may equip you to run a variety of businesses. For example, a manager of an automobile manufacturing plant may discover that his skills can translate easily into other businesses with assembly line operations, whether it's making home appliances or golf carts. Consider using the Standard Industrial Classification Manual, available at most libraries, to search for related businesses.

Once you've decided on a specific industry, it's time to shop for the right company. It is a good idea to talk to CPAs, attorneys, bankers as well as suppliers in the industry that interests you. They can provide good leads on owners interested in selling their businesses.

Before settling on a particular company, ask yourself what you expect to earn from the business. If you already own a business, consider whether the new one will place a financial drain on your current business operations or personal finances. If the new business will be your sole means of income, consider how your current earnings level, lifestyle needs and personal financial goals are likely to be affected by the purchase.

After you've decided on a business, the hard part begins. First, consider the age and reputation of the company, as well as the reason it is for sale. For example, the owner may be relocating or retiring or the business may be losing money. In the latter case, don't dismiss the possibility of purchasing the business until you discover the reasons for the loss. You may discover that you can easily rectify the situation.

Once you've looked at these preliminary issues, it's time to take a closer look at business operations — and the bottom line. Start by reviewing company records — at least five years of financial statements, tax returns and budgets. These will give you a good idea of the company's ability to survive in changing economic climates.

Also review records of accounts payable and receivable. Are there suppliers or customers upon which the business places significant reliance? Then look at current inventory. Is it overstocked, depleted, or even worse, obsolete? What about the company's equipment? Determine how much it is worth, whether it is in working order, and if it is leased or owned.

You'll also need to identify any outstanding loans and debts to either customers or suppliers. Additionally, have your lawyer find out whether the company is the target of any lawsuits and the size of damages being sought by litigants.

With the industry. For more information on buying a business, send a letter-size, stamped, self addressed envelope to the Michigan Association of CPAs, P.O. Box 9054, Farmington Hills, Mich. 48333, and request a copy of the brochure, "Purchasing a Business: Making the Acquisition Work for You."

Hill Association uses mass mail promotion for the first time

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

In an effort to attract more retail customers the Hill Association has sent out for the first time a direct mass mailer offering discounts to Grosse Pointers.

"The Hill Association has been meeting for the past several months trying to think of ways to promote the Hill," said association spokesperson Betty Young. "Sandy Gillespie of Something Special noted that businesses in Plymouth had done something like what we are now doing. So the association decided to try direct mailing for Christmas. This will be the first of many planned mailings."

The mailing, Young explained, tells of special discounts offered by 15 retail stores on the Hill. It also announces a special drawing that offers a prize of two $250 gift certificates good at the 15 participating stores.

Besides Something Special, businesses involved in the promotion are Young Furniture, Sports on the Hill, Pointe Pedlar, Tassels, The League Shop, the Atrium, La Strega, One23, Something Special Too, Pon-graz Jewellers, Customcraft, Coliseum International, Kiska Jewellers and Kennedy and Co. Interiors.

Business Notes

Metro Computer Services is offering a new bulletin board service for Grosse Pointers. The Grosse Pointe Talking Community Bulletin Board began operations on Monday, Nov. 1.

The board is accessed by dialing 779-5097, and offers information on daycare, transportation and the weather, as well as information on athletic activities of North and South high school students.

Thomas Curcuri of Grosse Pointe Woods and president of Ultimotion Inc. announced the introduction of a newly developed and patented tire mounting and inflating system — Ulti-Mount.

Ulti-Mount represents a breakthrough in the tire and wheel mounting field. It is running in a fully automatic mode Nissan's plant in Mexico.

First Milk River payment comes due for G.P. Woods' residents

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Woods residents can look forward to much larger sewer and drain fees on their upcoming Nov. 29 winter tax bills. The larger fees, to pay for the city's sewers, are due in large part to state and county edicts.

"Woods residents will be paying 4.1877 mills this year to maintain drains and to pay for the various bonds issued by the county as per the DNR's mandate," said city comptroller-treasurer Clifford Maison. "Last year residents paid 3.7087 mills. That amounts to a 13 percent increase in what residents are paying, thanks to Milk River fees."

The 4.1877 millage consists of several components, explained Maison. The city is levying 3.08 mills to pay for Milk River bonds. Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe Woods are responsible for paying for the mandated improvements to the Milk River drain system because the drain is used by the two cities.

Grosse Pointe Woods is responsible for paying off about 60 percent of the $33 million worth of Milk River bonds, and Harper Woods is responsible for paying off about 40 percent.

This year's payment, Maison said, amounts to about $1.11 million. The bonds are due to be paid off in 2012. Woods residents are also paying off bonds the county required the city to issue in 1967.

"The county also floated a bond in the 1960s to pay for improvements to the county's Grosse-Gratiot drain system," Maison said. "That system was built years ago, and in order to improve the system, the county issued bonds in 1967, and charges the Woods a fee for the part of the system that goes through the city."

There are three payments left after this year on the Woods portion of the Grosse-Gratiot bond, according to Maison. This year's payment on principle and interest is $40,000.

The county also charged the city $530,000 to maintain and operate the Milk River drain.

The three obligations, when added up, are costing city residents $1.682 million, Maison said. The city merely collects the money from Woods residents and turns it over to the county.

Added to that is a 1.0992 millage that is used by the city solely for the improvement of the city's existing storm and sanitation drains. Woods residents should note that their property tax bill has two items denoting these separate payments.

Funds from one listing, which reads Milk River, go to Wayne County. Funds from the other listing reads Grosse Pointe Woods drain, which stay in the city for use by the city.

"The residents face a large increase," Maison said. "But the bottom line is that the city is obligated to repay the Milk River drainage district for the issuing of bonds. The city is also obligated to pay for the drain's maintenance."

Vets Day breakfast

The first Veterans Day Pancake Breakfast at the War Memorial was a successful tribute to the men and women who served in the military during times of war. More than 100 attended the breakfast, which will become an annual event.

Parking on Aline creates problems

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Sometimes it's not easy coming up with the right solution to a problem — just ask those involved in a parking dispute on Aline Street in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The original complaint, as presented to Woods city officials in early September, concerned employees of businesses on Mack parking their cars in front of residences on Aline, said public safety officer John Albrecht.

"The city received a petition from some Aline residents requesting that something be done about parking on Aline during business hours," Albrecht said. "I did a study, and, after consulting with acting city administrator Jack Patterson, placed a sign forbidding parking in front of the first five homes on Aline for more than two hours between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday."

The sign was put up on Sept. 27, Albrecht said, and a subsequent traffic study showed that employees of Mack businesses were no longer parking in front of homes.

Problems arose, however, because some Aline residents were unable to park their own cars on the street during the day.

"A lot of residents of Aline who live near the affected area own a lot of cars," said Aline resident Jeffrey Hoenle. "Removing some of the available parking makes the parking shortage that much worse."

Hoenle circulated a petition in the neighborhood asking the city to reconsider the parking restrictions in front of the first five homes on Aline.

Among Hoenle's complaints was his belief that the city did not ask enough Aline residents whether they wanted parking restrictions.

Albrecht said it is city policy to seek input from people affected by any change in parking regulations, in this case the five homeowners who were unable to park in front of their own homes during the day. In the past, the city has not consulted with residents of an entire block.

Hoenle brought his concerns to the Nov. 1 city council meeting. Mayor Robert Novitke asked that Patterson and Albrecht meet with Aline residents to see if a compromise was possible.

On Nov. 9 the various parties met at city hall and agreed to create additional parking by moving the parking restriction sign one home closer to Mack. Now parking will be restricted in front of the first four homes closest to Mack, instead of the first five homes.

"It was a compromise solution," Albrecht said. "It will still, we hope, keep Mack employees from parking in a residential neighborhood all day, and it will free up two additional street parking spots for Aline residents. The people who live in that fifth house are willing to go along for the sake of the neighborhood."

She liked Peace Corps so much she reupped

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

For Lora Parisien, 27, her time in the Peace Corps has become more than an adventure, it has become a job.

Parisien, who served in Tunisia with the Peace Corps between 1989 and 1991, now works full-time for the agency in downtown Detroit.

"I am still working for the Peace Corps," Parisien said. "I bounced around for a bit after I left the Peace Corps in 1991. Then I met with the Peace Corps' area manager for Michigan and approached him about a job. I was brought on to work with volunteers who were going into the former Soviet Union."

That led to her being hired full-time. Her duties include publicity and recruitment for the Michigan/Ohio district. She is also the office's liaison with headquarters in Washington, D.C. She works in the McNamara Federal Building.

Parisien started applying to the Peace Corps in her junior year of college. She graduated from Central Michigan University with a degree in journalism in 1988.

"I always wanted to go into the Peace Corps," Parisien said. "My family traveled a lot when I was young. I have French-Canadian relatives, and we visited them a lot. My parents, Margaret and Paul, piled us four kids into the car and took to all sorts of places around the country. They thought nothing of taking us out of school to go visit some historical site."

"I also traveled to Europe and Australia during my high school years. I played the oboe, and the opportunity for both trips came my way because of music."

When she was accepted into the Peace Corps, Parisien asked to be posted to a French-speaking country, but was quite willing to accept any assignment given. She ended up in Tunisia.

Before going to her new post, she had to go through a rigorous training program, which consisted of three parts. One part, language training, took up the bulk of her day.

POINTER OF INTEREST

Lora Parisien, left, spent a lot of time with Naima Smadhi of the town of Beja, Tunisia, while serving in the Peace Corps. Parisien was posted in Tunisia from 1989 to 1991. She currently works for the Peace Corps in Detroit. Anyone interested in joining the Peace Corps can call (800) 521-8686.

"We not only learned spoken Arabic, we learned reading and writing as well," said Parisien. "Arabic has its own alphabet quite different from ours, and it is read right to left, not left to right, like English is. That lasted 10 weeks."

Another part of the program was cultural training — how she, as a Western woman, would relate to an Islamic society. The final part of her training was adapting her skills to the culture and to her assignment.

She taught English at the University of Tunis for her first year in the country, and she had to learn how to teach in the Tunisian education system.

The University of Tunis is a foreign language school started by the Peace Corps. It is also the only university in the country where students have to pay tuition.

"I lived in the oldest part of the city," said Parisien. "It was closed to motor traffic and the street I lived on was called Rue de la Kasbah. As an American single woman in a male-dominated society, I had to learn how to adjust, but that's why I joined up, to learn about different cultures."

While in Tunis her language skills greatly improved. She also learned to move within that society, and she found it an enriching experience.

"Not only did I learn a new language, but I also lived in a society where only one religion was practiced, and people were called to prayer five times a day. In this country it is hard to talk about religion, it's almost invisible. That's not the case in Tunisia, and I found that very interesting."

After a year, she was transferred to a smaller school outside of Tunis. The school was located in a smaller town called Beja. She taught at a small university annex.

"When I was there, I was the university," Parisien said with a laugh. "This school was in a much smaller city, and people there had not met many westerners, or come into contact with many Peace Corps volunteers before me. Both as a woman and as a non-Tunisian, I was something of a curiosity."

While in Beja, Parisien was "adopted" by the Smadhi family. She spent a great deal of time with the family, which consisted of a mother, a father, five girls, two boys and a maternal grandmother. The family lived in, by Grosse Pointe standards, very close quarters.

It was in Beja that she was able to see how the regular citizens lived their lives.

"The way people prepare and eat food is completely different," said Parisien. "Here, we buy a lot of canned food, or prepared food. There, they use fresh ingredients, and fixing dinner is a major undertaking. My 'mother' went to the market every day to get fresh food for the family meals. Refrigeration was not something everyone has over there."

When Parisien cooked some American dishes like apple cobbler, her adopted family's reaction was polite.

"They don't have pies and cobblers in Tunisia," she said. "The idea that fresh fruit would be baked into a pie was a strange concept to them."

Her tour in Tunisia was cut short because of the Gulf War. Tunisia is an Arab country, after all, Parisien said. All Peace Corps staff were evacuated from the country during the war as a precautionary measure.

Ironically, Parisien came to live in Grosse Pointe because of the Peace Corps.

"I grew up on the west side of town. It wasn't until I came back and started renting a place on Notre Dame in the City that I came to know Grosse Pointe. I really love it here, it's a wonderful community," she said.

In fact, that is where she met her husband, Alan Sehoayan. That's right, she married the boy next door. Alan is a lifelong Grosse Pointer, and works as a project manager for Ford Motor Sport.

"Alan was great, because when he asked where I wanted to go for our honeymoon, I said Tunisia," Parisien said. "I never had a chance to really say goodbye to the Smadhis; this allowed me to do so. They were of course delighted to learn that I got married. I got to participate in some Arab marriage traditions, including staining my hand with henna. It's to bring luck with children."

One thing Parisien doesn't miss is the heat. The only relief during the day is the shower, and once you get out, that's gone, she said.

"I'm lucky I have some wonderful memories, and I am doing something I really enjoy, who could ask for more?"

AARP 2151 to discuss estate planning

Grosse Pointe AARP Chapter 2151 will meet at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, on Monday, Nov. 29, at 1 p.m.

Chauncey Miller, manager of the Elmwood Cemetery and a Detroit historian, will speak about the history of the city.

The Chapter 2151 newsletter has received a commendation from the Michigan AARP newsletter for having the largest and most professionally edited newsletter in Michigan. Congratulations to our editor, Willard Swenson.

sion of the turmoil in the former Soviet Union. O'Connor discussed the issue with Michael Dobbs, Moscow bureau chief for The Washington Post and Dimitri Simes of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

The seminar was televised on C-SPAN Oct. 30 and 31.

O'Connor was in Washington to participate in the week-long Close Up Program for Older Americans which offers people age 50 and over the opportunity to spend a week examining the issues facing the federal government. Included in the week's schedule were sessions with members of Congress, reporters, lobbyists and experts on the judicial and executive branches and on foreign and domestic issues.

Close Up originally began as a government studies seminar for high school students and their teachers, and has expanded to include several series of programs aired on C-SPAN. More than 260,000 students, educators and senior citizens have participated in Close Up since it began in 1971.

The Program for Older Americans began in 1984 and more than 6,000 people have participated in the sessions that are being conducted in cooperation with the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP). These sessions are held during various weeks in the spring and fall.

Pastor Quick to address senior men

The Rev. Dr. William Quick, pastor of Metropolitan Methodist Church, will address the

Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club on Tuesday, Nov. 23, at 11 a.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The presenter will be Bill Carleton. Quick's topic will be "Life's Greatest Difficulty." A drawing for 10 Thanksgiving turkeys will be conducted at the meeting, so attend, you may be lucky. Call ahead to make reservations for the meeting.

The Senior Men's Club is also planning its annual Windsor Raceway trip for Jan. 21. Along with 12 harness races, the outing will include a prime rib dinner and cash bar.

The cost is $30 and includes dinner, taxes, tips and round-trip bus transportation. Departure will be from the Grosse Pointe Farms Pier Park promptly at 5 p.m.

Holiday gala slated for seniors at the Neighborhood Club

The Village Club (senior members of the Neighborhood Club) will host its annual Christmas Social on Wednesday, Dec. 1, at 1:30 p.m. Live entertainment will be provided by The Music Makers.

Seniors are asked to bring hors d'oeuvres to share. Punch will be provided, and door prizes will be awarded. If you choose not to bring hors d'oeuvres, a $3 fee will be assessed when making reservations at the registration desk or by mail. Deadline for reservations is Wednesday, Nov. 24. If you plan to bring food, call in your reservation to the Neighborhood Club at 885-4600, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Is MEA the scapegoat for schools' ills?

It is disappointing that the leaders of many powerful Michigan business and industrial enterprises last week backed the Engler administration's battle against the state's public school teachers.

They did so by going to Lansing to lobby the lawmakers in support of Gov. John Engler's effort to convert the battle over the future of the state's schools into a war against the Michigan Education Association.

In our view, this is a mistaken attempt by the Engler administration and its supporters to make both the MEA and the public schools the major scapegoats for all the failures of Michigan's educational system.

True, the schools do bear some blame. They do not always hire the best prepared teachers, they often employ too many supervisors and administrators, and they have not often carried the kind of staff downsizing that has produced savings for business and industry.

Yet this newspaper and many other observers believe that the major culprits for most of the schools' failures have been the nation's parents, although we exempt the many involved and caring parents in the Grosse Pointe community and elsewhere from charges about such irresponsibility.

True, there are other culprits to be blamed for the current low status of education. The mores of modern society, the increase in single-parent homes, and the widespread use of television as a substitute for child care surely can be blamed, too.

While the MEA is a trade union, with many of the drawbacks as well as the advantages of union organizations, it consists of professional educators, most of whom are truly concerned with and knowledgeable about education.

Furthermore, public education is a labor-intensive industry which, it must be emphasized, is required to accept all who apply, unlike the private and parochial schools which now want to share in public funding but still would pick and choose their pupils.

The Detroit Renaissance and the other business groups supporting the governor are obviously well intended but few of them are experienced as educators or as policy makers in the field. Instead, they are businessmen who now are using their salesmanship to sell the Engler program.

True, the future prospects for the state's businesses and industries obviously cannot be ignored. Without successful, expanding businesses and industries, Michigan would lack the employment opportunities as well as the tax resources required to assure Michigan's future economic expansion.

It is also true that some leading businessmen, and especially the Detroit Renaissance leaders, have contributed to the debate over the new financing needed for the schools.

To their credit, some have expressed a willingness to accept an increase in the state income tax as well as some sales tax hike as partial substitutes for the repealed property tax that formerly financed most of the state's K-12 spending.

We don't understand, however, when a spokesman for the businessmen who lobbied Lansing last week in support of Engler's plan said: "We don't benefit directly from what comes out of this."

Wouldn't they benefit directly from both Engler's proposal to cut education spending by $300 million this year, as well as from the Renaissance call for a $500 million cut in education spending?

And wouldn't they also benefit from the improved caliber of graduates who would emerge from adoption of the quality programs sought by all sides in the school debate?

We have disagreed with many of Engler's proposals but chiefly in the limitations they would place on local control and especially the local people's ability to decide the level of spending for schools.

Furthermore, we have not been able to understand how Engler could achieve his savings at the expense of the schools — and especially in excellent schools like those in the Pointes — and at the same time achieve the improvements he seeks in quality.

It must be remembered that the Pointes' success in building an educational system that emphasizes excellence has occurred in large part because of the consistent financial support the system has received from its own property owners.

Yet along with many other excellent schools, the Grosse Pointe system will be in jeopardy if the governor's program is adopted without radical revision.

Will Engler next go national?

As House committees continue working on school finance and school reform proposals, it is becoming increasingly likely that important legislative revisions will be made in Gov. John Engler's proposals when they come to the House floor.

In fact, the governor may remodel his own school plans if he begins to take seriously the national talk about his availability as a GOP vice presidential or even presidential nominee in 1996.

Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe, co-chair of the House Education Committee, believes that the House bipartisan advisory committee is nearing agreement on several financing and reform proposals which may not be especially palatable in the Pointes but which are still likely to be approved.

For example, the bills to emerge this week probably will reinstate some of the repealed property tax, but also increase the single business tax, the state sales tax and possibly even the income tax.

If the full 2 percent sales tax hike recommended by Engler wins committee and House approval, the income tax probably would be boosted only one-half of 1 percent, but it could go to 1 percent if the sales tax does not win approval.

However, Bryant sees a strong possibility that Grosse Pointe taxes overall will be raised from their present level, even though the increased amount would come from multiple sources.

The committee probably will permit districts like the Pointes to raise millages to increase revenues above the $6,500 state foundation grant that would be promised to districts now spending more than that sum in support per student.

Despite Bryant's opposition, the district may be required to share some of its additional revenue with needy districts, a requirement that would, of course, cut into the district's support for its own schools.

With Engler reportedly getting national political ambitions, he may seek to tailor his own program for a national audience, Bryant said, although such moves would not necessarily be beneficial to education in the Pointes.

Involving school legislation in next year's gubernatorial election was bad enough. If it also becomes a vehicle to promote Engler's national political ambitions in 1996, nobody knows what new educational proposals the governor could offer if and when he succumbs to the lures of such a campaign.

In our views, Engler ought to ignore such appeals in order to help solve the educational issues and the other problems on his plate in Michigan in 1994.

Furthermore, his 1994 record in Michigan could become his best — or his worst — recommendation for national office.

V-P Gore gains new respect

The highly publicized debate between Vice President Al Gore and Texas billionaire Ross Perot over the North American Free Trade Agreement gave Gore what most observers termed was a clear-cut victory.

Gore adopted an aggressive attitude, advocating support for NAFTA on the basis of "opportunity" and "hope" and accusing the Texan of playing "the politics of negativism and fear" in opposing NAFTA.

Whatever happened in the House vote, scheduled after the Grosse Pointe News press time, Gore boosted his stock with President Clinton and the administration. He may have even earned enough standing to enable him to hope to succeed Clinton if the president is re-elected in 1996.

Unfortunately, both sides exaggerated their claims about NAFTA.

In Perot's view, supported by the United Auto Workers and the American Federation of Labor in Michigan and nationally, approval of the agreement would cost hundreds of thousands of American workers' jobs.

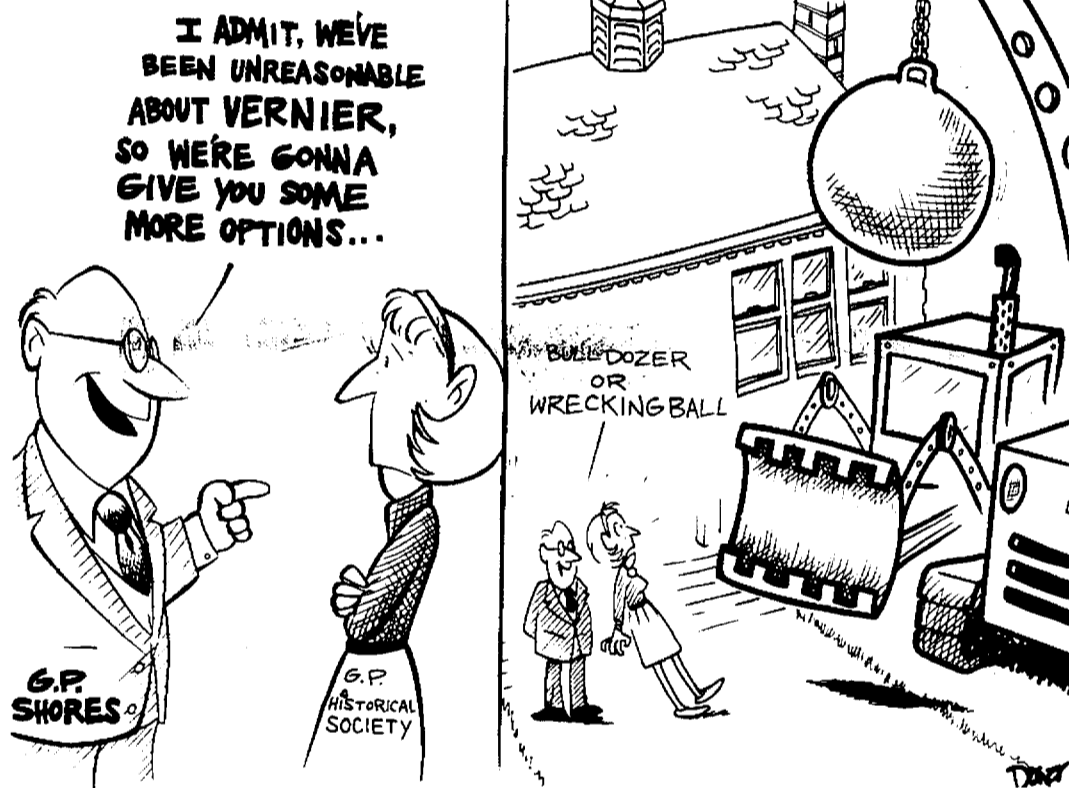

But Gore also exaggerated with his claims of hundreds of thousands of new jobs coming to the United States as a result of the bigger markets and increased trade that NAFTA would produce.

Gore did make a legitimate foreign policy point: The United States needs NAFTA to prove to all our world trading partners that the administration can back up its promises with actions.

A letter signed by 300 economists, including conservatives and liberals alike, also backed NAFTA but said that the "effects on the U.S. economy — both good and bad — would be small for many years."

The economists stated that NAFTA would boost U.S. productivity and income, would strengthen a pro-American, pro-free market government in Mexico, and would reduce pressures on illegal immigration, a result which, if it became true, would be good for both countries.

That sounds good to us, too, but whether it was good enough for the House was still questionable at press time.

War Memorial accounting needed on Griffin house

To the Editor:

I, and many others like me who are members of the community and the War Memorial, feel that we are entitled to some sort of explanation from the War Memorial board of directors and an accounting with respect to the 1990 purchase of the adjacent Griffin house, which was the subject of the lawsuit the War Memorial subsequently lost.

It is common knowledge that the War Memorial paid $1.3 million in cash for that property. As I understand it, the rezoning lawsuit was lost in the Wayne County Circuit Court in February 1991. The War Memorial appealed this matter and lost again in the Court of Appeals in July 1993. More than three years have elapsed since the purchase in May of 1990, and we have still not been advised by the War Memorial as to what expenses were incurred for attorney fees, architect fees, zoning consultants, etc.

I think that the community is entitled to know the total cost of this venture and who is to blame for this very expensive mistake. To bury all of those figures in the War Memorial's annual account does not fulfill the War Memorial's responsibility to the community to supply a complete and honest accounting. I am sure that Grosse Pointe News would be happy to make space available.

Alliance responds to board

To the Editor:

This is the Grosse Pointe Alliance for Educational Excellence's response to the public statement released Nov. 8 by the board of education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System. The statement addressed the board's position on the Magnet program and the status of differentiated programming throughout the schools.

The Alliance is extremely disappointed with the board's statement. Not only does such a premature response jeopardize the possibility of a fair and unbiased evaluation of the Magnet program, which is in process, it brings into serious question whether the board has fulfilled its fiduciary duty to the community in adopting such a public statement.

The statement, which was drafted by the administration, was adopted by the board at its Nov. 8 meeting, absent any discussion with members of the Alliance regarding the basis of its 19-page document concerning the Magnet program submitted to the board on Oct. 4. Despite such failure of the board to do independent research on the Alliance's findings, the board adopted a statement which specifically states the documents prepared by the Alliance and "passed out around the community were misleading."

In fact, the Magnet program issues and concerns documented by the Alliance were raised after months of thorough research of 1) information obtained through repeated Freedom of Information Act requests to the administration; 2) in-depth interviews with experts in the educational literature; and 3) published educational literature. Due to the board's failure to specifically ad-

ULS entrance exams Dec. 4

University Liggett School will offer admissions testing for prospective students in grades six through 12 on Saturday, Dec. 4, at 9 a.m. at the school's main campus at 1045 Cook Road in Grosse Pointe Woods. Testing takes approximately 2 1/2 hours. A $35 testing fee is required in advance. For more information, contact admissions at 884-4444.

Hop on over to South's dance

The Grosse Pointe South High School Booster Club and the varsity cheerleaders will co-host their second annual fundraising dance for adults to be held in the school's main gymnasium on Friday, Dec. 3, from 8 to 11 p.m.

Proceeds from the dance will go toward helping the Booster Club in its role of funding sports-related programs, activities and scholarships and assist in providing additional funding for cheerleaders.

The dance will be reminiscent of the sock hops of the 1950s and '60s, with music from that era provided by a local disc jockey. Varsity cheerleaders will act as chaperones for the event. Those who come are encouraged to dress up in their high school letter jackets and sweaters, poodle skirts and saddle shoes.

Snacks and beverages will be provided.

Tickets for the dance are $8 a person or $15 a couple in advance or may be purchased at

Trombly goes Greek

Advance tickets may also be obtained by mailing a check or money order to Dance Tickets, 753 St. Clair, Grosse Pointe, Mich. 48230, or by contacting David Oglesby, activities chairman, at 882-0798.

Fourth- and fifth-grade students at Trombly Elementary School in Grosse Pointe Park have completed their teller training classes and are now ready to make savings deposits at NBD's new in-school bank located within Trombly school.

The in-school banking program is a partnership between the school and NBD's Kercheval and St. Clair branch. The goal of the program is to provide hands-on learning experience for the students, teaching them sound money management skills and the role of financial institutions in their communities.

Students will use real account signature cards, deposit slips and receipts and will maintain individual deposit record books for the accounts.

Parents, too, will be involved in the process. Students must have a parent's signature to open an account. NBD also has supplied employee uniforms and a modular branch set-up with three teller windows.

Students also will learn job-interviewing skills. Nearly half of the fourth- and fifth-grade students completed job applications and were interviewed for the bank's 15 positions, including branch manager, assistant managers, tellers and a security officer.

Entertainment '94 books for sale

The Grosse Pointe North High School Parents' Club is offering Entertainment '94 coupon books to help fund college textbooks for North high graduates and educational aids for current students.

Entertainment '94 books are available for $40 and include discount coupons for restaurants, entertainment events and lodging in major cities in the United States, Canada and island resorts.

Each coupon book sold will add $8 to the club's scholarship and enrichment program. Three editions are available: east side, west/northwest side and southwest side.

Parents' Club member Madelyn Kleitch said that last year 170 books were sold, netting nearly $1,200 for the club's fund, which is spent primarily on college textbooks.

The fund is also used to buy educational equipment for North students and to fund National Honor Society ceremonies for outstanding students.

This year the club hopes to sell 500 entertainment books, one for each family registered in the club. To order a copy of Entertainment '94, call Kleitch at 882-5422. Books also will be available at the Grosse Pointe North holiday fair Nov. 20 through Jan. 10.

And the band played on

The bands and orchestras from Grosse Pointe North and South high schools performed their Pops and Pastries concert on Friday, Nov. 12, in South's main gym. Those in attendance also were served food prepared by the commercial foods classes at South.

God's creatures

Children enrolled at Christ the King Lutheran preschool in Grosse Pointe Woods participated in a Halloween dress-up theme party. But instead of coming as the usual ghosts, ghouls and goblins, the children disguised themselves as their favorite animal and had a "Noah's Ark" party. The room was decorated to look like an ark and teacher Donna Vanick donned a beard and robe and played Noah.

ULS's Schmidt nationally honored

University Liggett School teacher James F. Schmidt has been selected as the 1993 Outstanding Earth Science Teacher for the East-Central Section of the National Association of Geology Teachers.

As part of the award, Schmidt has been asked to share his teaching skills in an article which will be published in the Journal of Geological Education.

Schmidt is a resident of Harrison Township and has taught at ULS since 1974. He has bachelor of science and master of arts degrees from Western Michigan University. A science teacher at both the middle and upper schools at ULS, Schmidt also is dean of student activities at the middle school.

Commended merit scholars named at North

Grosse Pointe North High School principal Caryn Wells has commended six students in the 1994 National Merit Scholarship Program. Students receiving a letter of commendation are, Patrick Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham; Jason Dietrich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dietrich; Joseph Haurani, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ghassan Haurani; Erin O'Malley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward O'Malley; Joseph Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perry; and Anita Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Warner.

About 35,000 commended students throughout the nation are being honored for their outstanding performance on the 1992 preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. These students have shown exceptional academic promise by placing among the top 5 percent of more than one million program entrants.

Tree time

Students in Grosse Pointe South High School teacher Greg Heffner's environmental science class planted trees on the grounds of Monteith Elementary School in Grosse Pointe Woods on Oct. 21 as part of an annual project to beautify all school system grounds. This is the seventh year students have planted trees in the fall.

The colors of autumn

When someone mentions 1968 and "the colors," it conjures up images of teens on hallucinogens at an MC5 show at the Grande Ballroom.

The colors I remember that year were in nursery school in the basement of the Methodist church on Moross.

By mixing pitchers of water, one with red food coloring, another with yellow and a third with blue, I learned that pairs of these primary colors could be mixed to make the secondary colors of green, orange and purple. And mixing all three primary colors together would result in brown.

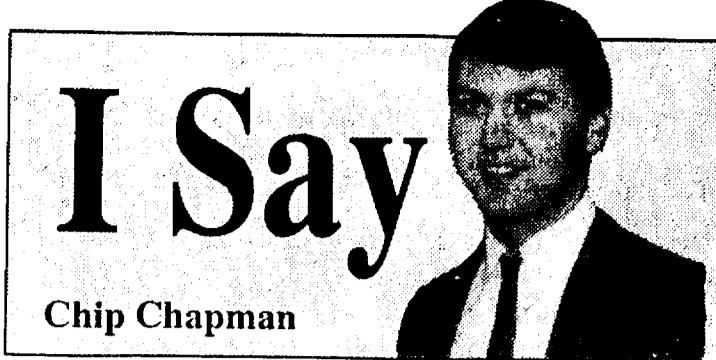

At the time, I believed there were only those seven colors along with black and white, which I was told were shades, not colors. Of course, Crayola screwed that up for me and millions of other kids.

My first box of crayons contained red, blue, yellow, green, orange, purple, black and brown. I became a bit suspicious when purple was referred to as violet. Then, when I got the full 64 crayon box (with the sharpener in back), I knew something was up.

I had to get used to color names like salmon, maize, and burnt sienna. And I could never tell the difference between green-blue and blue-green.

This confusing experience with crayons, however, would prepare me for life's bigger differences.

A dozen autumns later in Connecticut, I assumed my new school's colors were maroon and white. A dispute some years earlier between two administrators, one a Harvard graduate, the other from Stanford, left the school teetering between whether maroon was actually crimson or cardinal. I don't think anyone else really cared.

I Say

I think it's admirable for a school to show its colors. But when those colors are purple and white, some restraint should be exercised, especially regarding the interior of the buildings. In the fall of 1990, I walked into Fisk Hall at Northwestern and commented on the purple walls. I was soon corrected that the walls weren't purple, they were mauve, as if a chic name for pale purple made it easier on my eyes.

It seems people are not satisfied with the standard color names the good lord intended us to use. Striving for uniqueness, companies tend to chose colors no one else would have the sense to use.

A friend of mine brought his new car over for me to see a few years ago. I commented on the dark gray exterior of the vehicle only to be corrected that the color was "deep titanium."

A couple I know had some rooms inside their home painted light pink. I later found out there were two shades of light pink, "angel's wings" and "coral whisper."

Grab a color wheel from a paint shop and check out some of the names, like orange whip, egg shell or sea mist. What color does sea mist evoke from you?

When companies are not satisfied with the standard colors, they often look to food, flowers, weather, times of day and even moods, for names to use.

I'm still waiting to see what colors "depressed" and "hung over" look like.

The champions of bizarre color names are companies, with their fall catalogs, who feel compelled to come up with a color name different from the other.

If you want to order a blue sweater, you had better be prepared to specify indigo, cobalt, marine, glacier, dusky sage, sapphire, blueberry, teal or periwinkle.

A shade of purple can be anything from heather, lilac, plum, magenta and orchid to eggplant, black raspberry, bordeaux, fuchsia and mauve.

And how about tan, beige, taupe, flesh and ecru? Apparently, they are all the same.

Teal and ecru are crossword puzzle answers. All other creative color names should be reserved for poets.

If anyone can point out the difference between off-white, bone, egg shell, parchment or stone or between crimson, cardinal, burgundy, maroon, blood or scarlet, please let me know.

Library limbo forces action

What's the rush?

Letter writers and callers want to know about the school district's haste in spinning off the library. Why the headlong rush toward the unknown?

This is a tough year and a tough subject. In a model of a headlong rush, the state has plunged all of its school districts (not to mention cities) into utter confusion with its hurried last-ditch attempt to restructure school financing and reform education. Legislation is still amorphous. No one knows what will happen — yet we are expected to cast an informed vote in a few months.

In Grosse Pointe, the library has been a contentious subject for several years, even without the added questions surrounding school reform. Committees have studied library millage, library building, and library restructuring (that is, spinning off from the schools) without making discernible progress. It's been a high-profile discussion, with plenty of controversy.

All of a sudden, an issue that couldn't be resolved by blue-ribbon panels must now be decided this winter, and many of the people involved are worried.

Residents are worried about taxes — although it looks to me like the same millage now levied for the library would see it through as a district library.

Libertarians are concerned about the creation of a new bureaucracy — although a library board of five or seven people earning $50 or $75 a meeting doesn't sound too threatening, and a towering library administrative staff would be limited by the millage voted.

Librarians and other employees are scared about salaries and retirement. This is a biggie. Right now they are part of the generous school system salary schedule and, perhaps more important, vested in the state's school retirement system.

Everybody's afraid the schools will close the branch libraries in the Woods and the Park. Keeping them open doubtless isn't something the schools would really commit to long-term, since future space needs can't be known. Those who believe in the conspiracy approach to governing fear that closing the branches could ultimately be part of a plan to force the building of a new central library, made necessary by super-crowding.

Nancy Parmenter

The straw many people are clutching at is a bill now in the Legislature to allow school districts to keep their libraries open with separate millages. There are two problems with that — three, if you count the possibility that it might not pass.

The bill does nothing but buy time before districts must spin off libraries. Julie Chalgian, aide to State Rep. Sharon Gire, who is sponsoring the bill in the House, says the bill is just part of the patchwork job necessary to make sense of Senate Bill 1 (which created this mess by abruptly canceling the schools' portion of property tax revenues).

"A lot of this stuff was just brushed over by that bill," Chalgian said. "The governor wants everyone to eventually go to a district library — this just gives some time to the process." The amount of time would be the number of years until current library millages expire.

meant to cover or exempt school-operated public libraries. No one is sure at this point.

"It's because of all this ambiguity" that the school board decided to act now to spin off the library, Shine said, "as opposed to just sitting back and saying I hope this bill passes."

Shine explained that he recognizes the many concerns both of voters and employees about the plan, and that's why they are invited to the Nov. 22 library board meeting, which will review the whole proposal. "This is one of those situations where the voters will have the opportunity to participate in the decision," he said.

Putting a difficult situation in its best light, Shine said that:

- The library committee had already recommended some form of separate governance in any case;

- The yet-to-be-named library board would be able to vote to protect the employees' retirement by leaving current workers vested in the school retirement system;

- The employees would have the right to organize and negotiate salaries and other issues with the new board and could use their seniority to "bump" into the schools.

None of that is completely soothing to the people involved, of course. But Shine says he's being damned for taking hasty action and would be condemned as well if he didn't take any action at all and the time-buying bill went down to defeat.

Sigh. I'm inclined to agree with him — though, in point of fact, the Mount Clemens schools (which are in the same position) have opted to wait. So those inclined to finger-pointing can watch to see which course turns out to have been the wiser.

Living with ambiguity is hard on the nerves. The separation of library and schools is an idea whose time came a bit before we were ready for it.

Durable name is etched in stone

The curb in front of their Grosse Pointe Park home on Berkshire was noted throughout this neighborhood

A large granite block proclaimed this "Lungershausen."

Though a nemesis of lawn cutters and those parking here for the first time, often bumping their car door on the "rock," this 12x12x36-inch nameplate was part of this family's heritage, an old carriage step from the original farmhouse of ancestors moving into Macomb County, near what was to become Mount Clemens.

Arnold W. Lungershausen and Alice raised their family in Grosse Pointe and marked their home with this stone, retrieving it when the homestead was sold. Arnold rose to Detroit area prominence in law and taught many years at Detroit College of Law. His wife, an accomplished musician, earned her own notable respect.

Working his way through college in the Great Depression was no simple task, but Arnold graduated from DCL in 1937, and went on to earn a spotless professional reputation over the next 55 years, reserving a large part of his time for teaching and nurturing a scholarly kinship among teachers and students.

Former dean of the school Arthur Lombard of the Farms, voiced particular respect for Arnold, who died this summer. Noting that the stone was now gone from Berkshire Road, FYI asked Alice about it and she replied that the carriage step now sits as the headstone on Arnold's grave near the old Macomb farm, which is no longer the family plot, but part of the huge, expanded Clinton Grove Cemetery.

The weathered stone will endure, as will the name, family and heritage.

35th birthday for Press Club Pointers

They should change the name of Detroit Press Club, looking at the names of the eastsiders on hand for the 35th anniversary dinner gathering held concurrently with the 33rd birthday of the old Detroit Times closing.

Chef Keith Zessin and lovely hostess Lisa, of St. Clair Shores, schooled a dozen waitpersons and barkeeps before the RenCen gathering Friday night. About 250 attended amid gleeful greetings of old friends and business associates and newspaper, magazine, radio, television, advertising, politicians and civic figures.

Ranks are thinning among the oldtimers, but from the Farms came Ed Batchelor, now in Hilton Head, and publicist Sue Radibeau, along with Harper Woods' Alice Curtis and City residents Bill Quigley, John and Kathy Montgomery, Margaret Anzinger and Corinne Smith and Marian Trainor, of the Park. Trainor's daughter, Wayne Circuit Judge Kathleen Macdonald, of the Woods, as well as Margaret D'Arcy, Joe Callaghan, John and Sadie Baker, greeted Fran Shaheen of the Woods, just as Bobbie Stevens, St. Clair Shores videographer of WDIV-TV showed up. Former president Charlotte Craig and husband Tom joined them.

dress the concerns raised by the Alliance in its Oct. 4 document, the Alliance still awaits the board's response.

After reviewing the board's statement, the Alliance challenges much of the information put forth. Below are a few of the numerous points made in the board statement with which the Alliance takes issue.

1. "...there are multiple paths by which a student is eligible for the Magnet program: a designated score on a school ability test; a designated score on an individual IQ test; an achievement test score in reading or math at least two years above grade level."

Alliance response: Contrary to state guidelines, the Magnet program criteria relies primarily on single test scores or other individual criteria rather than a combination of multiple criteria. In her Aug. 5 letter to Dr. Allen critiquing the Magnet program, Mary Bailey-Hengesh (consultant, gifted and talented education, State of Michigan Department of Education) states, "...the fact that your (Grosse Pointe's) identification criteria relies on a single test score, rather than on multiple measures, is a matter of concern." She also points out this is inconsistent with the state guidelines for the identification and selection of gifted and talented students.

2. "There are 150 students in our Magnet (Program) . . . This is a total of 6.5 percent of the approximately 2,400 students in grades 2, 3, 4, and 5 system-wide."

Alliance response: This 6.5 percent estimate is misleading in that 10 percent of the grade 3 and 4 population is enrolled in the Magnet program and even higher percentages in home-Magnet schools such as Richard. (For example, 20 percent of the Richard third-graders and 19 percent of the Richard fourth-graders are currently enrolled in the Magnet program.) These numbers do not even take into consideration the number of children who qualified but elect not to participate. The third- and fourth-grade enrollment is more reflective of potential participation in upcoming years and supports the Alliance's position that the Magnet program has grown beyond that originally approved and is now over-inclusive.

3. "The core curriculum of the Magnet program is the same, but at two to three grade levels above the norm for the same age children."

Alliance response: The Magnet materials used are not all aimed at two to three grade levels above the norm. For example, the second-grade Magnet classrooms at Richard Elementary use the second grade Chicago-based math series. Granted, some children may be performing at higher levels than their grade implies, this is also occurring in most mainstream elementary classes throughout the district.

4. "The per pupil cost to operate the Magnet program is the same as that to operate the regular program."

Alliance response: Although the board asserts this to be true, neither the board nor the administration has provided any supporting figures. The regular classroom resources are allocated by the site-based budget process whereas the Magnet classroom resources are allocated by central administration. Alliance's review of the Magnet classroom materials indicates that the Magnet students have access to the latest texts, computer software and manipulative to a greater degree than mainstream students.

The board's adoption of the policy statement at its Nov. 8 meeting was premature and demonstrates the board's willingness to follow administration's recommendations without independent findings. One would think that the community concern relative to the elementary curriculum issues would merit such additional effort on the part of our board. A stronger focus on the implementation of differentiated instruction is warranted. Alliance welcomes the board to meet with them on the still unresolved issues.

School board should act independently

To the Editor:

On Nov. 8, the board of education issued a public statement emphatically supporting the Magnet program, a separate educational program for the district's very able learners.

The board issued this statement without addressing any of the concerns raised by numerous members of the community (many of which are shared by the Michigan Department of Education) and despite its agreement to conduct an independent evaluation of all aspects of the Magnet program (which had yet to begin). Rather than investigate facts on its own, the board appeared to rely solely on information supplied by the administration, which has supported the Magnet program and other forms of ability-grouping from the onset.

By issuing support of the Magnet program in its public statement, the board has clearly compromised what promised to be a fair and unbiased evaluation. We believe this action taken by the board shows a complete disregard for its responsibility to act independently from the administration.

Besides the Magnet program, there are many other problems within the school system that need to be re-evaluated, particularly since the approach taken to solve them is very different and, arguably, better in many other comparable funded school districts. These problems will only be compounded by anticipated changes in school funding.

If the board continues to avoid its responsibility to act critically of and independently from the administration in confronting and resolving our schools' problems, the quality of our children's education will continue to suffer.

District library: Balderdash!

To the Editor:

On Friday, I received an open letter from superintendent Shine once again urging the Grosse Pointes to approve a new district library to replace a 60-year-old structure overnight. We are told that without this radical change, our library system will suffer untold consequences.

What happened to the two years of research and study by a blue-ribbon commission that recommended a separate library board under the school board? This would give the library system the separate attention which many feel it needs, but retain the strong relationship to its school board with the attendant economies of scale and financial strength.

This approach has been summarily dismissed by the superintendent because of the property tax cut passed in July 1993. This law neglected to fund properly and separately the 33 library systems that currently operate under school boards. The new separate legal entity is the only solution.

Balderdash!

First, the Legislature is working to correct its error for proper separate funding for the 33 libraries, either through amendments to the property tax bill or through Senate Bill 894 sponsored by some heavy-weight legislators. Second, the library district will undoubtedly cost more to run (some estimates show a $180,000 increase), and it is likely that a new entity will have more difficulty raising additional funds without the backing of its super parent, the Grosse Pointe school board.

What will happen to our libraries if they don't raise the funds? Branches will close and library staff will be reduced. We need a better library system, not a smaller one. The school board and the superintendent might expend some of their considerable political clout in getting the "260 library" recommended by its commission properly instituted instead of severing all association with the library by creating a district library.

Frankly, all this undue haste leads me to wonder if the school board and/or superintendent don't have some hidden agenda which they are not discussing. Is something "Rotten in the state of Denmark," and the district library is a simple way to wash their hands of an untenable situation?

Probably not; but I can't understand why there is such incredible pressure for a completely different library structure than the library commission recommended, unless we are just not hearing the whole story.

Robin Hood: Taylor in tights

To the Editor:

At its Nov. 8 meeting, the school board voted on a resolution about school finance and school reform: namely, that the governor and state legislature extend the deadline for reform by at least one year and initiate a thorough and orderly study of the state's educational system that includes educators as partners in finding solutions, not as outsiders to

PLUMBING CODE ORDINANCE, BUILDING CODE ORDINANCE, ELECTRICAL CODE ORDINANCE AND MECHANICAL CODE ORDINANCE.

(ORDINANCE NOS. 321, 322, 323 and 324)

On November 8, 1993, the City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms enacted a Plumbing Code Ordinance (Ordinance No. 321), a Building Code Ordinance (Ordinance No. 322), a Electrical Code Ordinance (Ordinance No. 323) and a Mechanical Code Ordinance (Ordinance No. 324). As authorized by 1991 Public Act No. 182, being Section 117.3(k) of the Michigan Compiled Laws, the following summary shall serve as official notice of enactment of the foregoing Ordinances and is submitted in lieu of publication of the full text of each Ordinance. True copies of the full text of each Ordinance are available for inspection or photocopying at the office of the City Clerk, City of Grosse Pointe Farms, 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan 48236.

Each of the foregoing Ordinances adopts by reference updated versions of uniform codes recognized by national, state or industry organizations. The purpose of each Ordinance is to ensure public safety, health and welfare insofar as such matters are affected by building construction and the installation, maintenance, alteration and/or removal of plumbing systems, mechanical systems and electrical equipment.

Each Ordinance establishes criminal misdemeanor penalties (a fine of not more than $500 or not more than 90 days' imprisonment or both) for any violation of any provision of the applicable Ordinance.

Our daughters were playing doctor and got into the cough syrups I keep in the refrigerator. We were really frightened, but everyone at the Bon Secours Emergency Department was great. We weren't treated like numbers; we were treated like people." Patty Harris, Harper Woods

It's a parent's worst nightmare. Patty Harris came home from work early one August afternoon and found a mess in the kitchen sink. Her husband, John, thought it was the red popsicles he had given Ashley, 7 and Amanda, 4. But Patty knew something was wrong. Amanda seemed really woozy and Ashley was very quiet when admitting she and her little sister had been playing "doctor" and took adult and children's cough medicines "to get better."

Patty reacted quickly. Poison Control said they needed emergency care — fast! So the Harrises packed up the girls, and the medicines, and headed to Bon Secours Emergency Department.

"From the moment we walked in, everyone was great. They stopped what they were doing and attended to our needs." Because they had taken nearly triple the normal dosage, the Emergency Department physician ordered their stomachs pumped.

Ashley had elevated blood pressure and Amanda was extremely drowsy, so they were admitted to the Pediatric Unit for the night.

At Bon Secours, we offer pediatric emergency services to nearly 4,000 kids each year. And, unlike other area hospitals, we have a board-certified pediatrician on site all the time, day or night. So, whether your child ingests too much medicine at 8 p.m., or has an unusually high fever at 4 a.m., we can help. Our pediatric nurses have an average of 10 years experience caring for children and pediatric advanced life support training. Plus, their warmth and compassion make kids — and their parents — feel right at home. Today, Ashley and Amanda are happy and healthy. And, according to their mom, "They don't play doctor anymore. In fact, they don't even go near the refrigerator!" But, should they need medical care again, the Harrises know where to go. Because at Bon Secours, we treat your kids like our kids.

Today, when Ashley and Amanda play, it's with dolls. Not medicine.

Better not pout, better not cry, Santa Claus is coming to the Village

On Friday, Nov. 26, a special Holiday Genie will ride his magic carpet into the Grosse Pointe Village shopping district. He and his many friends will lead the way for Santa's traditional visit to the Village the day after Thanksgiving.

The Santa Claus Parade will start at 10:30 a.m., beginning at the corner of Fisher Road and Grosse Pointe Boulevard, marching down Kercheval through the Village shopping district and ending at Kensington Road in Grosse Pointe Park.

This year's parade theme, "A Magic Carpet Ride," characterizes the fantasy trips that will be brought to us via the festive parade marchers and floats. Some of the many fantasies to please the young and the young-at-heart will include dancing genies; Disney characters; dinosaur, sunshine, Mickey Mouse, Victorian house and nativity floats; an engine carrying a six-car load of costumed children; Nutcracker box, Big Bug and Camelot horses; trotting miniature horses; and color guard horses and Percherons.

Spirits will be raised with the music and syncopated marching of numerous bands, pompom teams, bagpipers, fife and drums, and a calliope. More than 1,000 balloons will be given to young parade-watchers.

After Santa Claus has completed the parade route, he will join master of ceremonies Anthony Amato in front of the Shops of Walton Pierce, where he will accept the key to the city from the Grosse Pointe mayors.

The 17th annual Santa Parade is hosted by the Grosse Pointe Village Association and local sponsors. This year the public may help support this holiday event by purchasing special tree ornaments. These ornaments ($10, $25, $50, $75 and $100) will be personalized with the contributing family/company name and hung on the "Friends of the Parade Tree" to be displayed in Jacobson's window. Ornaments will be sold at various hours at Jacobson's by the St. Clair room or may be purchased by sending a check, payable to GPVA-Santa Claus Parade, to Chris Burt, 1023 Roslyn Road, Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich. 48236.

Village to be lit up for Christmas on Nov. 21

The Grosse Pointe Village Association invites the entire community to its third annual Christmas Open House and Live Tree Lighting Ceremony Sunday, Nov. 21. During the open house, noon to 5 p.m., the more than 40 stores on Kercheval between Cadieux and Neff will kick off the holiday season.

Enjoy shopping among friends in the festively decorated Village. In the spirit of the afternoon, most of the stores will be providing one-day surprises, as well as refreshments, drawings, music and free gift wrapping. A few stores may have artists or craftsmen in residence for the occasion, while others will feature informal modeling of holiday and winter fashions. For those looking for holiday bargains, some plan to offer open house specials.

The finale of the fun-filled day begins at 5 p.m. with the Village's annual Tree Lighting Ceremony. Everyone is invited to stop by the corner of St. Clair and Kercheval, adjacent to Damman's, where the Grosse Pointe Boat Club will be serving hot chocolate to ward off the chill. There, promptly at 5 p.m., the Ron Jimison Brass Quartet will ring out with the resounding sounds of Christmas. At 5:30, Grosse Pointe South's wonderful Pointe Singers, under the direction of Ellen Bowen, will chime in with favorite carols and, of course, you are invited to join in the singing.

At 6 p.m., Village Association president Jerry Valente will invite the mayor and members of the city council to throw the magic switch which turns the Village into a sparkling winter wonderland, simultaneously lighting the beautifully decorated living Christmas tree and all the trees along Kercheval in the Village.

Festival of Trees outing planned

Let the Grosse Pointe War Memorial take you on an enchanting day trip on Tuesday, Nov. 23, from noon to 4:45 p.m. to Cobo Center, which will be transformed into a winter wonderland for the annual Festival of Trees benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan.

More than 100 trees are professionally decorated and displayed. There's an aisle of wreaths, a gingerbread village collection of mouthwatering miniature houses, entertainment and a gift shop.

Begin at noon with lunch at the War Memorial. Dessert is saved for afterwards as a special treat at the Van Dyke Place.

Tickets are $37 and include lunch, dessert, admission to Cobo Hall and motorcoach. Call 881-7511 for reservations or for more information.

'Little creatures need love'

Children ages 5 and up can get hands-on experience with "Little Creatures Need Love" on Saturday, Nov. 27, from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The new program will intrigue and inform the children about the characteristics and habits of animals and wildlife. See living reptiles, amphibians, insects and natural artifacts as instructor Dan Briere interprets the natural history of each specimen.

Tickets are $7. Call 881-7511 for reservations or for more information.

Holiday bake for Capuchins

Georgian East Nursing Home, located at 21401 Mack in Grosse Pointe, will host a holiday baked goods and poinsettia flower sale Friday, Nov. 19, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with proceeds benefiting the Capuchin Soup Kitchen.

The Capuchin Soup Kitchen, established in 1929, evolved from one Capuchin brother's untiring commitment to feed the hungry. Father Solanus Casey would take food directly from the brother's kitchen of the Detroit-based monastery to give to the poor and marginalized victims of the Great Depression. Today, the Capuchin Soup Kitchen provides an average of 900 meals a day with the number soaring to 1,200 at times.

Georgian East Nursing Home invites the community to browse through their aromatic display of holiday cookies, cakes, and sweet-treats for a worthy cause.

"Georgian East will be offering delicious goodies and gorgeous red and white colored poinsettias," said Karen Szkutnik, administrator of Georgian East and coordinator of the event. "Folks can pick up pastries and plants for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays while helping feed the hungry."

Capuchin brother Rick Samyn, a native Detroit, is looking forward to Georgian East's Holiday Bake.

"We rely almost exclusively on private donations. The $5 and $10 dollar people definitely keep us going."

For more information on the Holiday Bake, call Szkutnik at (313) 778-0800 or to speak directly with an associate of the Capuchin Community Center call (313) 579-2100.

Country western line dancing classes at the War Memorial

Tom and Theresa Kynaston, members of the National Teacher's Association and the Wolverine Silverspur Dancers, will teach beginners a new country western line dance every week in two classes — one for singles and one for couples — at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Have fun, get exercise and learn the new dances along with the older popular ones. No partners are needed for the class meeting Mondays, Nov. 29, through Jan. 3, from 7 to 8 p.m. The class is $35.

In the couples class, learn the two-step and other basic patterns of popular couples dances on Mondays, Nov. 29 through Jan. 3, from 8:15 to 9:15 p.m. The class is $45 a couple. Call 881-7511 for reservations or for more information.

OUR INTERNATIONAL CHILDREN'S PARADE BEGINS FRIDAY AT 7.
BUT THE BEST PART IS AT THE END.

It's Santa, arriving this Friday night, November 19, at 7 p.m., at the tail-end of our spectacular international children's parade. And to introduce him, you'll see a parade of children wearing costumes and singing holiday songs as they represent countries around the world. They'll wind their way through Lakeside from the Big Boy entrance to Lakeside Holiday Central in Center Court. And Santa will then make his grand entrance riding not a sleigh hitched to reindeer, but his special Worldmobile. This festive evening will help kick off Lakeside's international holiday celebration, featuring displays, choirs, a giant walk-through tree, visits, photos, even videos with Santa, our fascinating North Polestal Service where you can mail your letter to Santa, and more. So bring the whole family and get there early. Because from beginning to end, this is one evening you don't want to miss.

the process, as they are now. Obviously, the political impact of such a resolution is considerably reduced by lack of unanimity.

While the six other board members voted for the resolution, Sears Taylor dissented. On what grounds? A philosophical paeon to instant property tax cuts at all costs regardless of the effect on schools? A deep-seated preference for keeping educators out of the educational reform/finance process? I could have understood such motives, while disagreeing with them, but no such words fell from Mr. Taylor's lips, though he made some vague reference to being uneasy about the resolution as a whole.

No, the point on which Mr. Taylor hung his hat was curious indeed: He was opposed to an incidental aspect of the resolution that asked the state to continue to fund the retirement costs of our system. According to Mr. Fenton, assistant superintendent for finance, these costs are about $4.5 million a year, a pretty penny. So Mr. Taylor aligns himself with those in favor of "Robin Hood" laws that take away from our district; or perhaps more exactly, to be perfectly fair, he simply prefers to be silent, uncounted, in the face of others' proposals to do so. It we lose such a large chunk of state aid, we must make up these contractually binding costs from what will be our inevitably reduced per pupil allotment.

Mr. Taylor's reasoning? First, we, you and I, are the "state." (Yes, but there is a significant difference, as another board member felt obliged to point out to Mr. Taylor, between costs spread over all Michigani-ans vs. only local residents.) Second, Mr. Taylor is bashful about the school board's lobbying: Step aside, he says, and let our legislative representatives and professional lobbyists do it. (A less than energetic attitude from our elected school board member).

Mr. Taylor seems adrift, trying to make a virtue out of being contrary even when it hurts local kids, the quality of our schools' academic programs, and local property values. Just whom was he representing with this performance?

Paying for good schools

To the Editor:

We've had the bad news: Michigan public schools have no financing for 1994-95. We have the good news: It's an opportunity to establish a more adequate and more equitable basis for the financial support of our public schools. Devising such a structure is not easy, but it is long overdue.

A state property tax on industrial and commercial property and vacation homes is a good way to share the state's wealth with all school districts. A tax by school districts on their residential property seems an appropriate basis for local control because that's where the kids are. They could both be 16 mills. All school districts should be able to vote to tax themselves to supplement the state foundation support.

To assure that property taxes do not become as burdensome as they were, other sources of revenue must be tapped. Because property taxes are the most stable and reliable source of revenue, they are the best foundation for support. Business, sales, and income taxes all will fluctuate from year to year.

A sales tax also tends to be more regressive by impacting harder on those who must spend most of their income on living expenses, but an income tax works just the opposite.

Let's use both for balance. A slight increase in each would not put us out of line with our neighboring states. Necessities like food and prescription drugs are not taxed, and the really poor have other help.

Tax increases on tobacco and alcoholic beverages had better be left to the federal authorities to help pay for health care costs to which they contribute. The proposed 4 percent tax on housing transactions is likely to have too severe an impact on the economy. If such a tax is imposed, surely it should not exceed 1 percent. Likewise, adding to the single business tax is of doubtful wisdom. Anything that negatively affects the business climate of Michigan is to be avoided.

Whether a perfect balance of different taxes can be worked out by the legislature before the end of the year seems most unlikely at the present time. And time is getting quite short.

However, it is imperative that something be put together by that time.

Schools must not close while politicians seek personal advantage in stalemate. School "reform" can wait for another year.

The problems of the schools are largely the problems of the community and a society in turmoil. Our first priority should be establishing a sound financial support for schools.

Open letter to Gov. Engler

Dear Gov. Engler:

I received your letter Oct. 20, and I am very proud of the repeal and reforms that I have read about. It surely is a huge step forward for all the citizens of Michigan, but I must again remind your administration of the huge problems in workers' compensation fraud costing Michigan business people opportunities to create jobs and to expand in Michigan.

I would dare say that the fraud and our liberal workers' compensation and entitlement system is costing at least 3 percent of the total unemployment in this state easily. All I ever hear is Americans and Michigani-ans want to work. Why is it so impossible for companies to find those individuals while the media have no problem?

Item 2, school finance reform - obviously, the first chore is to cut $1-1/2 billion or more out of the bloated expensive Michigan system.

I live in Grosse Pointe, and it is a disgrace that half of the dollar reaches our students while the other half goes to non-instructional supervisors and administrators. These people are foreigners and obviously unnecessary for our kids. A fraction of these people could cover the current responsibilities, of course, teachers will have to realize what they are really worth and live within responsible guidelines. No one else, other than the semi-retired, have the cushy jobs of teachers. Lowering the cost and finding funds that are already available is the answer.

With that in mind, I again reiterate that the state property transfer tax is not necessary. It is extremely discriminatory and will cause great harm to our economy, senior citizens and those who enjoy developing private homes to move up in housing; real estate sales and business expansion would end.

The amount of damage this tax would cause would be similar to the results of the luxury tax which liken to destroy the $10 billion boating industry, which were not imported but jobs, they are here "at home."

Please scratch it from the act and use reductions in cost in school operations to compensate for this unnecessary tax.

Mostly agrees

To the Editor:

In reading letters in the Nov. 11 issue of the Grosse Pointe News, I mostly agreed with Bill Weld-Wallis on his assessment of negative, sensationalized press coverage of Halloween in the Park.

I took special note of the last sentence of his letter: "We also ask that this be given the same prominent treatment which the more negative story received."

With this I agree wholeheartedly, but how can the Grosse Pointe News accomplish it? Unless, perhaps, he has sent the same letter to the editor of The Detroit News. Only there could it be given the same "prominent treatment" as that negative article of Elizabeth Atkins (in which he was quoted) which was published Oct. 10 on the front page of the Sunday edition.

Why is it that most disagreements turn into racial issues?

Elena Herrada's letter from the Nov. 4 issue of the Grosse Pointe News, in general, accused the people of Grosse Pointe of being prejudiced. I was offended by her letter. I am not prejudiced just because I live in Grosse Pointe.

Thanks for your support

To the Editor:

I would like to congratulate John Danaher, Gail Kaess, Lisa Gandelot and Ron Kneiser for their election to the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council.

As a candidate in this year's election, I had the pleasure of getting to know each of them, and I believe that they will do an outstanding job of serving our community. I wish them and the rest of the council members the best of luck.

I would also like to congratulate the other candidates, including Elaine Hartmann, Erin Barthel, John DeHayes and Ken George, each of whom should be applauded for their campaign efforts and desire to make a contribution to our community.

I would like to sincerely thank everyone who supported me throughout the campaign and those who voted for me in the election. A special thanks to my dear wife Lori and our daughters Katherine and Elise for their support, encouragement and patience during the past several months.

Despite being unsuccessful in the election, I remain committed to the City of Grosse Pointe Farms, and will continue to seek out means by which I can make contributions to our community.

Girl Scouts say thanks

To the Editor:

The leaders and girls of Scout Troop 1623 would like to publicly thank Nancy Swartz, second-grade teacher at Richard Elementary, who offered to accompany our fourth-grade troop to Camp Innisfree in October.

Mrs. Swartz generously spent the entire weekend with us to share her love of science and the outdoors with the girls. She taught the scouts about constellations, bringing her own telescope to camp.

The girls had such fun being with their former teacher roasting marshmallows, listening to her ghost stories around the campfire, whittling sticks with her, and making nature collages. Thank you, Mrs. Swartz! How about next year, "Mummy?"

Legislature takes aim at Grosse Pointe schools

If the repeal of school property taxes largely remains in effect and there are offsetting increases in income tax, in single business tax and, if a constitutional amendment ballot proposal passes, in sales tax, the result is going to be expensive for residents of our area.

The reason it will be expensive is that with an overall switch from reliance on a local property tax to state taxes, two things are likely to happen.

First, as a relatively wealthy area, we always get back less in state taxes than we pay to the state.

Second, there is no willingness on the part of most legislators or the governor to have the state pay the Grosse Pointe school district anywhere near the $8,500 per pupil that would hold it harmless next year compared to what revenue would have been expected under the finance system now in place.

The maximum state grant will probably be $6,500 per pupil. So, in addition to sending more to Lansing and getting back less than we send, in order to come close to retaining existing programs we will have to authorize local taxes to make up the $2,000 per pupil loss in revenue we would otherwise suffer.

And that is not all. There is another, continuing, highly dangerous factor. Most legislators continue to want to deny us even the right to continue our present educational program. I am one of what seems to be only a handful of legislators who believe districts like Grosse Pointe should have the right to use local taxes to increase programs, if that is what our residents want, and certainly should have the right to retain what we now have.

The referendum petition drive to put Senate Bill 1 on the ballot in November of 1994 is not a magical answer. First, Senate Bill 1 might pass on the ballot. My guess is it would. Second, the Legislature may be able to defeat a petition drive by repealing Senate Bill 1 and turning around and re-enacting a different version of it, making petitions (seeking repeal of an act already repealed) meaningless and of no effect.

I am trying to be a part of the solution, because, if I am not, the Legislature is much more likely to be successful in its drive to do real damage to high expenditure districts like ours. I am not convinced I can prevent that damage from occurring. But I am trying, in every way I can, and that is my top priority. My second top priority is to find a new system that helps those schools that really need help. And my third top priority is to try to keep all of this from being any more expensive than it needs to be.

I deeply resent our being put in the position we are in. It is unfair and uncalled for. And there may not be any really good answer to it all at this point.

It may be time, in November of 1994, to call for a new state constitutional convention. That convention could calmly deliberate the myriad issues involved and do so in a sane atmosphere and with the time that is so sorely needed.

School board asks Lansing to delay education finance reform for a year

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe school board at its Nov. 8 meeting adopted a resolution in response to Gov. John Engler's proposed education reform package that asks the Legislature to extend the deadline for reform by at least one year.

The resolution, drafted by school district administrators, suggests the following funding guidelines:

- All public school students should have an adequate foundation grant supporting their education. A foundation grant is a per-pupil dollar amount allotted to a school district. Grosse Pointe currently spends $8,165 per pupil. Under Engler's proposed plan, Grosse Pointe would get $6,500 per pupil, plus have the one-time option of seeking an additional 7.2 mills.

- The foundation grant must include all of a school system's revenue sources — including property taxes, categorical payments (from the state to support such programs as special education and transportation), expenditures from fund equity, interest earned on investments, and so on.

- The state must allow all school districts to ask their voters for additional funding, and the voters, not the state, should determine the amount and duration of that funding.

The resolution also calls for a delay in any new funding plan by at least one year, since many of the proposed new funding methods are subject to a vote of the people, which wouldn't occur until after February 1994.

In addition, the resolution asks for local control of schools and that charter schools operate under the same rules, regulations and funding formulas as other public schools.

The resolution concludes with the statement that "(T)he current process, which is purely political, cannot possibly yield the results we need to secure a quality education for every child in this state and that the governor and state Legislature extend the deadline for reform by at least one year and initiate a thorough and orderly study of the state's educational system that includes educators as partners in finding solutions, not as outsiders in the process, as they are now."

In a 6-1 vote, with trustee Sears Taylor objecting, the board adopted the resolution, which will be mailed to Lansing.

Earlier this month, superintendent Ed Shine told the board that it would be a good idea if the board let the community know where it stood on some of the school finance and reform issues.

All other board members agreed with Shine and expressed their belief in the importance of sending such resolutions to Lansing. Board members Gloria Konsler and Julie Bourke said they believed adopting such resolutions was part of their job as school board trustees. But Taylor called it a "waste of time and energy."

"Between state Rep. Bill Bryant and state Sen. John Kelly, professional politicians who are certainly on top of the interests of the Grosse Pointes, I think it is foolishness for us to spend our time and resources drafting these resolutions," Taylor said.

Taylor said he had several concerns with the resolution language, particularly asking the state to continue to pay its share of retirement costs, and felt that asking for a one-year extension to maintain the status quo is unacceptable.

Konsler objected to one statement within the resolution that asked for mandatory school district consolidation. The board agreed to pull that statement from the resolution

Woods planners reject bid for new bank

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Woods' planning commission, on Oct. 26, turned down a request by Michigan National Bank to recommend to the Woods City Council a site plan of a new bank on the corner of Mack and Brys, a block from their current location.

"We want to keep the bank in the Woods," said Allen Dickinson, head of the planning commission. "But we had concerns about traffic patterns. The entrance to the proposed bank is on Brys, and the only exit would be on Mack. We had concerns about the cars that wanted to go south on Mack would have to cross the north-bound Mack lane."

Dickinson also said that traffic could stack up on Brys as cars waited to use the bank's drive-through services. He said that city ordinances require banks to be able to have nine spaces available for drive-through services. Michigan National Bank's plan had room for only four spaces.

Dickinson also noted that the bank's plan called for the alley behind the proposed site, and a home behind the alley to be rezoned for business use. He said that the bank's proposed 3-foot fence dividing bank property from residential property was inadequate.

Dickinson also said that the site plan made no note of where public utility lines were to be moved if the bank were built.

Ron Sellers, the Michigan National Bank representative who attended the planning commission meeting, said that the bank located on Roslyn and Mack is much too small to service the bank's customers.

"The bank was built about 15 years ago on the site of an old gas station," said Sellers. "The current bank is about 1,400 square feet. There is no room to hold a confidential conversation with customers. There is no drive-through automatic teller machine service. We've outgrown our current location."

Access to the current bank is poor, and there is a lack of parking, Sellers said. Sellers also said that rumors that the Woods pressured the bank to move a block so that the city could build parking at the current location is just plain wrong.

"The city hasn't tried to force us out," said Sellers. "They've worked with us. We've been looking at other locations in the area, but have been outbid at other sites. There is no collusion going on."

Sellers said that about the bank see about 250 customers a day. Even if the number of customers double, that would only add about 500 cars a day to Mack traffic, he said.

"It would be drop in the bucket," said Sellers.

Woods resident Thomas P. Sullivan, who lives on Brys, is happy with the planning commission's decision. Traffic at Mack and Brys is bad enough, Sullivan said, and adding a bank to that corner would only make things worse.

Sullivan also voiced concerns that the changing of residential-zoned property to commercial-zoned property would violate the deed restriction of that subdivision.

Sellers pointed out that the deed restriction, which was drawn up in the 1920s, also forbade the selling of property to non-Caucasians. Sellers also disputed Sullivan's claim that developing the Brys site would cause a decline in the property values of nearby homes.

"I've been in commercial real estate for a long time, and anyone who says developed real estate hurts property values is full of hokey."

Michigan National Bank officials have not decided what to do next, Sellers said. Because the planning commission turned down their site plan, they will not be asking for a recommendation to rezone, and there are no plans currently to go to the city council for a variance.

Police stop car, find loaded gun

During a routine traffic stop on Nov. 12 a Grosse Pointe Shores public safety officer found a loaded .38 special tucked into the car's glove compartment.

Neither the driver nor his passenger admitted they knew anything about the gun, which was confiscated by police.

The driver was pulled over at 2:50 a.m. for turning onto Vernier from Lakeshore on a red light. The intersection is posted "No turn on red." The police officer said the driver did not immediately pull over, and it appeared that he and his passenger were scrambling around in the front seat, as if to conceal something before stopping the car near Morningside.

The driver was arrested for driving with a suspended license and his passenger asked police if she could retrieve some things from the car before it was towed. The woman gathered a few articles of clothing, began to open the glove compartment and hesitated when she saw the police officer watching her.

The officer opened the compartment and found a gun loaded with six live rounds of ammunition.

While at the police station, a fake weapon nets real charges

Two 17-year-old boys who allegedly pointed a water pistol at a 71-year-old motorist in Grosse Pointe Shores on Nov. 11 face the possibility of being charged with assault.

The two teens admitted pointing a pink plastic water pistol out the window of their Jeep while driving on Fordcroft, but denied they aimed the toy at a motorist.

The man who reported the incident to Woods police said the two pointed a gun at him, yelled obscenities and pounded their fists against the doors of the Jeep to get his attention.

A Woods police officer on patrol heard the radio broadcast of two teens who pointed a gun at a driver and pulled over the Jeep in the area of Torrey and Mack. The officer found a water gun in the pocket of one of the boy's jackets. No other weapons were found.

The teens were issued violations by the Grosse Pointe Shores public safety department and have been ordered to appear in Shores Municipal Court on Jan. 13, 1994.

Shores officer overheard the driver use a different name while making a phone call. Officers discovered that the man was using his nephew's driver's license. A check on the police information network revealed the driver and his nephew both had suspended driver's licenses.

The driver was arraigned Nov. 12 in Grosse Pointe Shores Municipal Court on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and was released on $5,000 bond. He is scheduled to appear for a preliminary hearing on Nov. 18.

Laparoscopic hysterectomy.

Now it's easier to get over the surgery and get on with your life.

There's nothing easy about facing a hysterectomy. But now there's a gentler surgical technique that could make recovery from hysterectomy much easier. And, it's available at the St. John Laser Center of Southeast Michigan.

The laparoscopic hysterectomy procedure uses lasers and state-of-the-art surgical scopes that require much smaller incisions than traditional abdominal hysterectomies. This may mean less blood loss, less pain, a reduced hospital stay and a much faster recovery.

but the turbocharger is driven by exhaust gas, not the engine.

In 1930, Studebaker introduced free-wheeling which allowed the car to coast when the accelerator was released, an attempt to improve fuel economy which achieved mixed results. Before the decade was out, however, most American cars had free-wheeling.

Rubber engine mounts came into use, first by Graham-Paige in 1930, then in 1931 Plymouth offered "floating power" engine mounts designed to give the engine an independent axis.

Oldsmobile introduced a synchromesh transmission in 1931 and in 1932 Pierce-Arrow introduced hydraulic valve lifters. A number of makes offered vacuum-operated clutches and automatic chokes were introduced on Oldsmobile and Packard '32 models.

Chrysler brought out its radical, streamlined Chrysler and DeSoto Airflows in 1934. They did not sell well, but established a number of design principles — unibody construction, engine forward of the front axle and all seats within the axles, among others — which quickly spread through the industry.

Independent front suspension, an important improvement in ride and handling, became widespread in the early years of the Depression and in 1934, Reo offered its gear shift in the dashboard instead of on the floor.

In 1935, Hudson introduced an "electric hand" fingertip control for gear shifting, mounted on the steering column. Moving the gear shift to the steering column was actually a complex bit of mechanics and by the end of the decade, all American cars had column-mounted shifters. In the '60s, floor-mounted shifts returned, first as an extra-cost option.

Car radios were first introduced in police cars in 1930, but were being installed in most cars by the end of the decade. In 1937, Studebaker was first to offer windshield washers and in 1938, Plymouth unveiled the first electro-vacuum power convertible top. In 1940, Packard became the first maker to offer true air conditioning. Also in 1940, Nash pioneered the mass-produced unitized body with its 600 series.

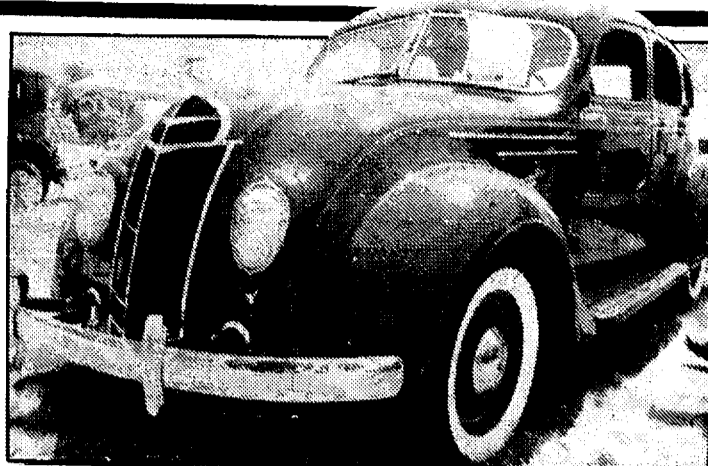

Many auto makers had been trying to develop an automatic transmission and a number came out with partially automatic shifts in the '30s or with automatics that did not really quite work. When Oldsmobile offered the first Hydra-matic transmission as optional equipment on its 1940 models, it changed motoring forever, greatly simplifying driving. One of the most important advances in auto design, it was the first true automatic that worked.

In Europe, the industry had taken a somewhat different path than the American car makers, with U.S. companies generally leading in mass-production techniques. But the Depression was also a fertile automotive time in Europe.

French Citroen became the first European maker to mass-produce front-wheel-drive automobiles in 1934 and Mercedes-Benz refined the diesel for passenger-car use. And, in 1934, Adolf Hitler ordered Ferdinand Porsche to design a radical air-cooled "People's Car," or "Volkswagen."

One of the most advanced cars of its day was this '35 DeSoto Airflow, which featured unibody construction, four-wheel hydraulic brakes, and body design which put all passengers between axles for a smoother ride.

Shores nabs elusive driver

A 19-year-old Detroit man was arrested Nov. 10 in St. Clair Shores after he allegedly led Grosse Pointe Woods police officers on a two-city chase by car and on foot.

Jackie Lamar Castleberry was arraigned Nov. 11 on charges of unlawfully driving away an automobile, receiving and concealing stolen property valued at over $100 and fleeing and eluding police officers. A not-guilty plea was entered for Castleberry, who was being held in Wayne County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond. He was scheduled to appear in Grosse Pointe Woods Municipal Court on Nov. 17 for a preliminary hearing.

The incident began when Woods officers were notified to be on the lookout for a suspicious person driving a stolen Jeep station wagon. A Woods officer saw the Jeep turning from Broadstone onto Mack and attempted to stop the driver by activating the scout car's emergency lights and siren. The Jeep driver ignored the pursuing police car and continued driving at a high rate of speed north on Mack, past Vernier and into St. Clair Shores.

The chase ended at Englehardt and Mack when the fleeing Jeep driver lost control of the vehicle and crashed into a light pole. As officers were helping the man out of the vehicle, he wrestled free of their grip and began running toward an apartment complex.

Officers were not able to locate him. Several hours later, St. Clair Shores police, who were advised to be on the lookout for the man, arrested him at Nine Mile and Mack and turned him over to Woods police.

When economy's in low gear, auto makers shift into high

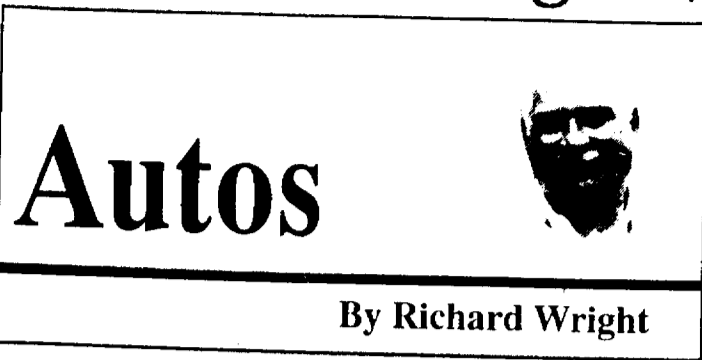

There has been an increasing interest lately in the Great Depression of the '30s, presumably because of the current hard times which have hung on longer than the experts and the politicians told us they would.

Public television has been running a series of documentaries on the Depression which have received very good reviews and a compact disc containing numerous variations on the song that became unofficial theme of the Depression, "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime," has been released.

Despite the continuing slide in U.S. car production, the American automobile has made enormous strides in recent years. Or could it be because of the slide?

In the last few years, such major safety advances as anti-lock braking and air bags have become widespread, and advances in electronic engine controls have made engines run more efficiently, greatly improving performance of smaller engines and fuel economy.

Advances in suspension design have resulted in subcompact cars that have rides once thought possible only on larger cars and skid-control systems have made some passenger cars the equal of utility vehicles in negotiating snowy and icy roads.

The last period of comparable technical advances by the auto makers was during the Great Depression of the '30s, which saw development of such now-taken-for-granted features as hydraulic brakes, the automatic transmission, low-priced V-8 engines, synchromesh manual gearboxes, dual carburetors, air conditioning and much more.

Models introduced in 1940 were vastly more modern, different in almost all major components, than in 1930.

In 1929, the year the stock market crash in October triggered the Great Depression, new-car sales in the United States totaled a then-record 3,848,937. They would not reach that level again for 20 years.

The crash hit the auto industry with incredible impact. In September, General Motors stock sold for $73. It fell by half in October. In 1932, it bottomed out at $8. In 1929, U.S. auto plants produced more than 5.5 million cars and trucks. By 1932, output fell to less than 1.4 million.

Many nameplates fell by the wayside during the Depression. Essex gave up in 1931, Franklin (of air-cooled fame) in 1934, Reo (Ransom E. Olds' second automotive venture) in 1936 and the magnificent Pierce-Arrow went under in 1937. The Auburn Automobile Co., Auburn, Ind., produced three American classics, the Auburn, the Cord and the Duesenberg, all of which went out of production during the Depression.

As the auto market became more competitive, the push for mechanical progress became intense and the Depression was a fertile period.

The '29 Cord featured front-wheel drive, as did the later '36 "coffin-nose" Cord. Ford put a V-8 in its '32, the first low-priced V-8. (It would be all alone in that market until Chevrolet and Plymouth got V-8s in 1955). Pierce-Arrow, Lincoln and Cadillac experimented with V-12 and V-16 engines.

A number of makes used superchargers, blowers driven by the engine which forced air into the carburetor to allow the engine to burn more fuel faster. The modern turbocharger is based on the same principle,

1940 Cadillac came with choice of automatic or synchromesh manual transmission, window washers, pushbutton radio, floating engine mounts, Sealed Beam headlights and rear fender "pants," all developed during the Great Depression. In background is Victoria Inn, Union City, Mich.

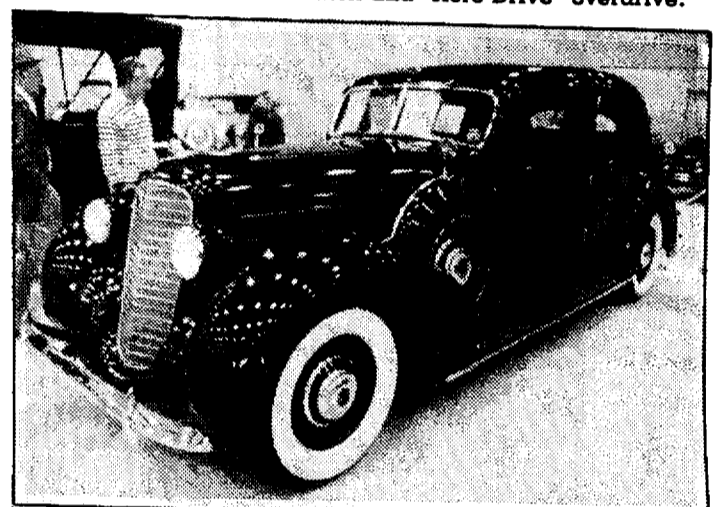

'41 Packard, introduced in late 1940, was the first production car to have true air conditioning. It also featured a new "Electromatic" semi-automatic clutch and "Aero-Drive" overdrive.

Ford got the jump on the rest of the industry with its '32 model, the first low-priced V-8. The Ford V-8 symbol became an automotive icon. Rivals Chevrolet and Plymouth did not get V-8s until the mid-'50s.

Coffin-nose '37 Cord was one of the most advanced cars of the '30s, with front-wheel drive and supercharged V-8 engine. It was the last car to come from the fabled Auburn-Duesenberg-Cord company.

Typical of the multi-cylinder engines of the '30s was this '36 Lincoln V-12.

Tough schedule helps Regina get past North

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

There are always a few times a year that Regina basketball coach Diane Laffey is thankful her team plays its grueling Catholic League schedule.

One of those times was Monday night when the Saddlelites opened Class A district tournament play with a 46-36 victory over a strong Grosse Pointe North squad that had gone undefeated in the Macomb Area Conference White Division and hadn't lost since bowing to Regina in the season opener.

"I feel bad that North can't play a schedule like ours, but there's nothing they can do about it," Laffey said. "They're an excellent team. You don't go 18-1 without being good, but they'd have been even better playing our schedule."

"We're 13-8, but every one of our losses have come to state-ranked teams. In our league there are no breathers. You have to go all out in every game. It takes a lot out of you and sometimes you wish it were a little easier, but now is when it helps to face that pressure game in and game out."

It was the second year in a row the Saddlelites have ousted North from district play in a hard-fought battle.

"I knew it wouldn't be easy. It never is," said Laffey, who knocked off MAC White champion Grosse Pointe South in the tournament opener last year, then beat North in the second game. This year the roles were reversed as Regina faced South on Wednesday. The championship game at Regina is at 7 p.m. Friday.

"You can't overlook anybody in the tournament, but most people felt these were the two strongest teams in this district," she said. "I guess maybe it was good to play them in the first game because the kids are always fired up at the start of the tournament. I think both teams were really hyped up at the start. That's probably why there were more turnovers than usual early in the game." North coaches Gary Bennett and Ray Ritter were disappointed in the outcome but pleased with their team's effort in the game.

"We played hard, but it wasn't our best game," Bennett said. "We thought the boards would be more of a problem than they were. But then we didn't shoot well. We missed a lot of easy shots that usually go in for us."

Ritter pointed to a pair of missed layups in the fourth quarter that may have been the turning point in the game.

"We were down by six and missed those two layups. If we hit them, we're down by two points and anything can happen," he said.

North got an outstanding offensive performance from junior center Sue Karber, but she didn't get her usual support from her teammates. Karber finished with 21 points and 11 rebounds. No one else had more than four points for the Lady Norsemen.

"We needed a good performance from somebody else, but tonight we didn't get it," Bennett said. "Our balanced scoring has been one of our strengths all year, too."

North's balance was one of Laffey's biggest fears coming into the game.

"We tried to neutralize (Kristen) Loeher and (Maureen) Zolik, because if Karber was going to hurt us inside we couldn't afford to let one of them hurt us outside," she said. "We don't always score a lot ourselves, so we had to play good defense."

"North is an excellent defensive club. There's nobody on this side of town that plays defense as well as they do."

Regina put on a spurt at the end of the second quarter to take a 25-20 lead to the locker room. The Saddlelites outscored

Knights' skaters are looking good

By Chuck Klone
Sports Editor

It won't mean a thing until they step on the ice and start playing games for real, but University Liggett School hockey coach John Fowler can't help being excited about his team.

"On paper we look strong," he said. "We have three experienced lines and a fourth line that's young but big and strong. And we have three solid defensive pairings. Our depth is like a Class A team."

The Knights' promising outlook begins with the No. 1 line of Eric Kisskalt centering Jay Ricci and John McNaughton. Kisskalt, a senior, was the club's Most Valuable Player last season after scoring 41 goals and collecting 38 assists. Kisskalt could break some of ULS' career scoring records this season.

His linemates know what to do with the puck, too. Ricci had 24 goals and 21 assists and McNaughton scored five goals and assisted on 26 last year.

"You know that line's going to put the puck in the net, but we're not a one-line team by any means," Fowler said.

The next two units bear that out.

Fowler hesitates to call one his second line and the other his third because they're so well-balanced. Jim Bologna centers a line with Kip Gotfredson and Tom Delisle on the wings, while veteran Omar Sawaf is between freshman Eli Wulfmeier and sophomore Mark Best.

The fourth line consists of newcomers Andrew Ricci, Cliff Magreta and Fran Blake.

"One weighs about 220 and the other two go about 200 pounds, so they won't be pushed around," Fowler said.

ULS' top defensive pairing is senior Matt Spicer and sophomore Chris Ford, who played regularly as a freshman. Junior Tom Waldron and freshman Ian Fines make up the second blue line unit and the other pairing is Don Wolford and Ian McMillan.

There's a new look in goal this season after Tom Best and Chris Eldridge graduated, but Fowler expects junior Ken McIntyre to step in and carry on the tradition of solid netminding at the school.

"Ken played travel hockey last year and he's going to be a good one," the coach said. "Right now he's working hard to learn to work with his defensemen. He's a good positional goalie."

Backing up McIntyre will be junior Behi Rabbani, sophomore Andy Arbanas and freshman Paul Huebner. Arbanas is a transfer from Grosse Pointe North who won't be eligible until January.

"We are excited about the start of the season," Fowler said. "We had a scrimmage last Saturday and beat five of the six teams we played. We're going to be a very aggressive, fast club."

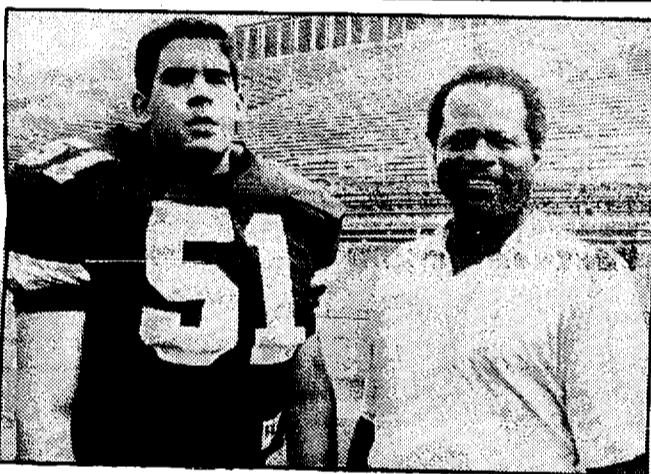

ULS opened the season against Southgate Anderson on Wednesday. The Knights host Riverview Gabriel Richard at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Unbeaten champions

Success came quickly for the new Grosse Pointe Soccer Association travel team which made its debut this season in the Michigan Youth Soccer League Under-10 Boys Minor Division. The squad, which was coached by Hassan Kamara, was undefeated in league play and made dramatic strides in improving individual skills and team play. The goalkeeping was shared by Ted Kotwick and Cole VanAssche, while the strong defensive play of Todd Callahan, Aris Karabetos, Matthew Slater, Eric VandeVorde and Anthony Viviani made the goalies' job easier.

Local Bronco

High school hoops signup

Registration is now being taken for the Neighborhood Club's high school basketball program.

The season begins Saturday, Jan. 8. Games will be played Saturdays at Grosse Pointe South between 1 and 5 p.m.

There will be separate leagues for boys and girls. Students will form their own teams. The team fee is $225. There will be a minimum of 10 games with the season concluding in late March. All teams will participate in post-season playoffs.

The registration deadline is Friday, Dec. 10, at 4:30 p.m. Registration may be done in person or by mail at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, Grosse Pointe, MI 48230. Office hours at the club are Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. For more information, call 885-4600.

Has a blast

Matt Lapish, left, a member of the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Under-12 Phantoms, was the goalie for the Detroit Rockers in their recent match against the Legends of Soccer team. The game was the featured event at Soccer Blast USA, which was held at Cobo Hall last month. Several former World Cup stars and members of the United States men's and women's national teams played for the Legends. Lapish is shown with Joe Max Moore, a member of the men's U.S. national team. Soccer Blast USA is touring the country promoting soccer with games, skills competition, clinics and celebrity matches.

FOOTBALL CONTEST

WIN $100.00 GIFT CERTIFICATE

It's simple to play. Just write in the teams you think will win the 8 games that are listed at the bottom of each of the ads on this page. Then guess the TOTAL number of points (both teams combined) you believe will be scored in the Tie-Breaker Game without going over. The person who picks the most games correct and comes closest to the tie-breaker total without going over receives a $100.00 gift certificate from one of our fine merchants on this page.

Mailed entries should be postmarked by midnight, Friday. They may be sent to: Football Contest, Box F800, Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236. You may also hand-deliver your ballot to any of the participating merchants on this page or at the Grosse Pointe News office by 5:00 p.m., Friday.

Winners will be announced in the Thursday sports section following the contest weekend.

Sorry, the contest is not open to Grosse Pointe News or The Connection newspapers employees or their immediate families. No purchase is necessary. One entry per person.

BIKES, BLADES, BOARDS & BUCKS!

Even if you don't win this weeks Football Pool, you'll win at Bikes, Blades & Boards with B<sup>3</sup> Bucks!

Simply cut out your B<sup>3</sup> Bucks above and bring it to Bikes, Blades & Boards at the corner of Mack & Cadieux. Spend it just like CASH on anything in the store. Choose from our great selection of Hockey Equipment, Snowboards, Bicycles and Rollerblades!

Jaguars win battle of area's Mite travel teams

The Jaguars won the first battle of Grosse Pointe's Mite travel hockey teams when they posted a 4-1 victory over the Rangers.

Adam Mullen, Christopher Ahee, Jacques Perreault and Nick Thomas scored the Jaguars' goals, while Andrew Sweeny, Anthony Savalle, Ryan Cianfarani, Mullen, Thomas and Ahee collected assists. Taylor Morawski also played a strong game on offense for the Jaguars.

The Jaguars' defense was led by Scott Cederwall, Jeff Linde-man and Jordan Winfield. Goalie Jonathan Starr played well.

Kenny Wicznerza scored the Rangers' goal with Avery Schmidt assisting.

Earlier, the Jaguars beat the Lansing Capitals 4-1 behind Perreault's hat trick. Morawski scored the Jaguars' other goal.

Savalle collected three assists, Mullen had two and Sweeny and Cianfarani each picked up one. Ahee and Thomas also provided offensive muscle for the Jaguars. Cederwall, Winfield and Lindeman were strong on defense in front of goalie Starr, who allowed only a goal by Derek Brownlee.

GPHA Huskies

Jim Millard scored late in the third period on an assist from Mike Bowman to give the Grosse Pointe Huskies a 2-2 tie with Dearborn in the Little Caesars Pee Wee A Hockey League.

Dearborn opened the scoring midway through the second period, but Ben Karle scored early in the third period for Grosse Pointe to tie the game at 1-1. Matt Keller assisted on Karle's goal.

Dearborn then took a 2-1 lead, which lasted until Millard scored.

The Huskies outshot Dearborn 41-16. Matt Miller played a strong game in goal for Grosse Pointe, while Lukas Morawski, Jeff Maxwell and Charley Starr were standouts on defense.

The Grosse Pointe Huskies Pee Wee A hockey team rallied with two third-period goals to tie Ann Arbor 2-2.

Ann Arbor led 2-0 on goals in the first and second periods, but Grosse Pointe's Matt Keller scored an unassisted goal at the 25-second mark of the final period.

Nick Arnone tied the game on a 15-foot wrist shot with Keller assisting midway through the third period.

SCS Saints 6, Huskies 1

Goals: C. Chapin, J. Simon 2, J. Zebrowski, C. Radel (Saints); Bryan Bush (Huskies).

Assists: T. Stolarski 2, J. Mertes, Radel 2, D. Bologna, D. Franklin, M. Rutkowski, B. Fox (Saints); Nathaniel Latowski (Huskies).

Comments: John Berg, Brian Costello and Ben Karle played well for the Huskies, while Jeff Bidigare had a good game in goal.

Battle Creek Thunder 3, Huskies 1

Goal: Nick Arnone (Huskies). Assist: Jim Millard (Huskies). Comments: Huskies' goalie Matt Miller had a strong game, while D.J. Hunter, Mike Bowman and Jeff Maxwell also played well.

Bulldogs 3, USA Lightning 0

Goals: Todd Lorenger, Brett Schalk, Neal Gram (Bulldogs).

Assists: Mike Hackett 2, Schalk 2, Trevor Mallon, Joey Versical (Bulldogs).

Comments: Outstanding defense from Phil Mannino, Marc Kaplan and Brent Franklin held the Lightning to only three shots on goal and made it easier for goalie Ryan Kramer to record the shutout.

Bulldogs 4, Antonio's Firebirds 0

Goals: Brett Schalk, Neal Gram, Todd Lorenger, Mike Hackett (Bulldogs).

Assists: Hackett 2, Schalk 2, Johnny Matteson (Bulldogs).

Comments: Defensive standouts Trevor Mallon, Phil Mannino, Marc Kaplan and Brent Franklin held the Firebirds to four shots as Ryan Kramer posted his second straight shutout.

Bulldogs 3, Fraser Falcons 2

Goals: Neal Gram 2, Brett Schalk (Bulldogs).

Assists: Richie Giffin, Joey Versical, Trevor Mallon, Mike Hackett, Todd Lorenger (Bulldogs).

Comments: The Bulldogs overcame several questionable penalties to hold on for the victory. Defensive standouts were Brent Franklin, Phil Mannino, Johnny Matteson and Marc Kaplan.

ULS honors its top fall athletes

Fall sports participants at University Liggett School were recognized for their achievements at the recent fall athletics awards night at the upper school.

Following are the ULS students named the most valuable and most improved on their teams:

Girls varsity tennis: Rachel Calderon, most valuable; Nicky Delal and Allison Ridler, most improved.

Girls junior varsity tennis: Monique Abi-Raji and Stephanie Powell, most valuable; Angela Castaneda and Theresa Oney, most improved.

Boys varsity soccer: Matt Spicer, most valuable; Hank

Ackerman and Eric Lindauer, most improved.

Boys JV soccer: Muamba Kabongo and Brendan Thomas, most valuable; Sergei Lie and Mike Rainey, most improved.

Varsity golf: Tom Delisle, most valuable; Dean Hartley, most improved.

Varsity football: Brent Jahnke, most valuable; Mark Jones and Reuben Randolph, most improved.

Varsity field hockey: Liz Eldridge and Natalie Hubbard, most valuable; Betsy Belenky, most improved.

JV field hockey: Abby Tompkins, most valuable; Ransana Roy, most improved.

Girls varsity basketball: Julianne Grant, most valuable; Stacey Corbin, most improved.

Girls JV basketball: Anne Toelle, most valuable; Rebekah Camm and Eldra Walker, most improved.

Park meeting

The Grosse Pointe Park Little League will have its annual meeting Monday, Nov. 29, at 7:30 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club.

Among the items on the agenda is the election of officers.

GPHA Bulldogs

The Grosse Pointe Bulldogs posted three shutouts among their last four victories.

Bulldogs 3, Southfield Indians 3

Goals: Joey Versical 2, Brett Schalk, Neal Gram (Bulldogs).

Assists: Versical, Johnny Matteson (Bulldogs).

Comments: Southfield took several penalties in a rough game, but the Bulldogs were unable to capitalize on their power-play chances. Matteson and Trevor Mallon played fine defense for the Bulldogs.

Bulldogs 5, Elwood Blues 0

Goals: Joey Versical 2, Phil Mannino, Todd Lorenger, Neal Gram (Bulldogs).

Assists: Gram 2, Mike Hackett, Richie Giffin, Versical (Bulldogs).

Comments: Brett Schalk, normally a forward, moved into goal and posted the shutout with defensive help from Marc Kaplan and Brent Franklin.

Coach needed

Regina High School is looking for a track coach for the spring season.

Anyone interested should send a resume to athletic director Diane Laffey at the school, 20200 Kelly Road, Harper Woods, MI 48225. For more information call her at 526-0220 during school hours.

South seeks coaches

Grosse Pointe South is looking for a head and assistant coach for the varsity lacrosse team and a head and assistant coach for the varsity boys soccer team.

Anyone interested should call athletic director Jo Lake at 343-2181 during school hours.

Battle of boards beats Knights

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

University Liggett School girls basketball coach Mike Brozowski pointed to two factors that brought his team's season to a premature end Monday night.

"They hurt us on the boards and we didn't fast break enough. We were a lot faster than they were, but it's hard to fast break when you're not getting rebounds," Brozowski said after Center Line St. Clement beat the Lady Knights 56-52 in the opener of the Class D district tournament at ULS.

"But it all came down to the rebounding. We gave them too many second shots. There were a couple times when they had four shots. You're not going to beat a good team when you let them do that. But even as bad as we were rebounding, we were still in the game right to the end."

St. Clement had 13 second-chance points in the second half, including a three-point play by Connie Gryniewicz that gave the Crusaders a 49-47 lead with 2:44 left.

The ULS loss spoiled an outstanding game by junior guard Julianne Grant, who led all scorers with 27 points.

Whenever the Crusaders threatened to break the game open, Grant would hit a jump shot to get the Lady Knights back within a point or two.

Grant tied the game at 47-all after Gryniewicz's three-point play, but St. Clement answered with baskets by Gryniewicz and Andrea Desy to trigger a 7-0 run that clinched the victory for the Crusaders.

ULS jumped ahead early and led 12-4 midway through the first quarter. That turned out to be the Lady Knights' biggest lead of the game as St. Clement caught them and went ahead 16-14 on an offensive rebound by Gryniewicz in the final seconds of the first quarter.

ULS regained the lead quickly in the second quarter and led 26-23 at halftime on a layup by Stacey Corbin after a steal by Grant.

Second-chance baskets by Desy and Cindy Chapp gave St. Clement a 34-32 advantage late in the third quarter. There were eight more lead changes and two ties before Gryniewicz put the Crusaders ahead to stay with 2:13 to play.

St. Clement held a 23-9 rebounding edge in the second half, including a 15-5 advantage in the third quarter.

Desy led the Crusaders with 20 points, Gryniewicz had 13 and Chapp and Stephanie Polish each tossed in eight points. Gryniewicz and Desy each pulled down 10 rebounds.

Sarah Childs had nine points for ULS, including eight in the first quarter, and Magda Chojnacka added six. Corbin had 10 rebounds and Jamila Hoard grabbed six for the Lady Knights.

ULS split its final two regular-season games, losing its Metro Conference crossover contest with Lutheran Westland 48-43, but bouncing back with a 59-18 rout of Detroit Dominican.

Chojnacka sparked the Lady Knights to an early lead against Dominican with 10 points in the first minute and a half.

"She had 14 points in the first quarter and nearly all of them came as a result of steals off our press," Brozowski said. ULS led 22-8 after one quarter and 34-12 at halftime as Chojnacka and Grant combined for 31 first-half points.

Grant finished with 18 points, eight rebounds, five steals and four assists. Chojnacka had 19 points and five steals. Hoard and freshman Raven Lewis each scored seven points and had three rebounds apiece. Corbin had seven steals.

The storyline was reversed in the Lady Knights' game with Lutheran Westland, which matched the second-place teams in each division.

ULS fell behind 12-0 and never completely recovered.

Grant led ULS with 23 points and nine rebounds. Corbin had eight points and Sarah Burnham five. Freshman Brandy Preyer played well and scored three points.

The Lady Knights closed out the season with a 9-5 conference record and a 13-8 overall mark.

Old problem returns in Lady Devils' loss

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

An old problem turned up for Grosse Pointe South's girls basketball team in its regular-season finale against Utica last week.

Points have been hard to come by for the Lady Devils all season and it was never more apparent than it was down the stretch at Utica when South failed to score a field goal for the last four minutes of the game and lost 44-38.

"We've improved a lot during the season in many phases of the game, but we've had trouble scoring points," said coach Peggy Van Eckoute. "We just don't have the natural scorers."

South's only consistent scorer this season was junior Shannon McGratty, who scored 18 points and grabbed 19 rebounds against Utica.

"I think we have some kids with the potential to become shooters," Van Eckoute said.

"Now we just have to work with them to build confidence. When you don't have players who are shooters, they'll stop shooting when they miss a shot. A player with a shooter's mentality will keep firing away and eventually the shots will start dropping again."

South, which finished 8-6 and tied for third place with Anchor Bay in the Macomb Area Conference White Division, led 18-16 at halftime and extended the margin to 28-22 midway through the third quarter after a pair of quick baskets by McGratty and Katy Lupo.

The Lady Devils then turned cold from the field and Utica went on a 12-2 run that put the Chieftains ahead to stay. Kelly Tanner, who led all scorers with 20 points, and Maria Debaut each tossed in three-point goals during Utica's surge. An-

North

North 12-5 during that stretch as they went ahead to stay.

Regina's lead reached 12 points (32-20) midway through the third quarter, but North's press forced some turnovers and the Lady Norsemen sliced the margin to 34-30 at the end of the period.

The Saddlelites went back up by nine early in the fourth quarter as 6-foot-2 freshman Renee LaBelle hit a free throw and put up an offensive rebound for a basket. North came back with buckets by Karber and Loehner to make it 39-34 with about four minutes left in the game. The Lady Norsemen then missed a layup and Tamika Bates, who sat out a big chunk of the second half after drawing her fourth foul, grabbed a rebound.

Regina was fouled and missed the front end of a one-and-one, but the Saddlelites' Sue Madgett got the carom and put it in for 41-34 lead. Keri Muccioli got a layup off a steal with about two minutes left to bring the Lady Norsemen back within five, but Regina's Maria Kady hit three free throws in the last minute and a half to ice the victory.

Bates led Regina's balanced scoring attack with 12 points, while Kady had 11 and Nicole Adams added nine points. Madgett had 11 rebounds, LaBelle pulled down seven and Bates and Adams each grabbed six for the Saddlelites.

Another freshman, Lisa Francis, also played well for Regina.

"We brought her up from the JV for the tournament and she helped us bring the ball up against the press," Laffey said.

North finished the season with an 18-2 record. The Lady Norsemen figure to be a strong team again next year as only two players will graduate.

"We'll probably get another shot at (Regina) next year," Bennett said. "Maybe we'll get them then. We'll sure keep trying."

North closed out the league season with a 46-21 victory over Warren-Mott and a 58-46 triumph against Romeo.

Ten of the 11 Lady Norsemen who played against Mott broke into the scoring column.

Zolik led the way with 10 points and also had five steals and two assists. Muccioli had nine points and three steals, while Erin Peters collected four points and five steals.

North came back from an 11-point first-half deficit against Romeo, outscoring the Bulldogs 35-20 in the second half.

"The comeback was possible because of great defensive intensity and pressure," Bennett said.

Loehner sparked the comeback with 12 points in the second half. Zolik and Karber led the Lady Norsemen with 16 points apiece and Zolik had eight steals.

Peters and Muccioli also played excellent defense as North ended the league season with a 14-0 record.

Nearly perfect

The varsity and junior varsity soccer teams at University Liggett middle school each had excellent seasons this fall. The varsity squad (top photo) posted a 13-1-2 record and outscored its opponents 40-5. ULS defeated Detroit Country Day and swept its games with Cranbrook and the Grosse Pointe Academy. In the front row, from left, are Alexander Samul, Clark Durant, John Stanszewski and John Booth. In the middle row, from left, are Thomas Pozios, Matt Harris, John Riddle, Nicholas Clark and Benjamin Murphy. In the rear, from left, are Adam Santangelo, Brad Cenko, Willie Glass, coach Mar-

South's top gridders honored at dinner

Head coach Mike McLeod and position coaches Gary Marchetti, Dan Loria, Roger Hunwick and Pat Schaldenbrand introduced each of the players and talked about the season's highlights.

Team award winners were John Wortman, outstanding offensive back; Bill Shepard, scout team player of the year; Joe Vlasak, most improved; Mike Hendrie, outstanding defensive lineman; Jesus Graham, outstanding offensive lineman; Todd Drake, outstanding underclassman; Tyler Brownscombe and Peter Mertz, Alma Award (for playing with courage and determination over injuries); Corey Geer, Joe Wood Tough Guy-Good Guy award; and Ryan McCartney, team most valuable player.

Players receiving all-Macomb Area Conference White Division team honors were McCartney and Wortman, first team; Steve Booher and Graham, second team; and Paul Gentile and Erik Dahlstrom, honorable mention.

Members of the MAC All-Academic team were also announced and McLeod said, "there were more players in this group than on my entire team at St. Clement last year."

The Blue Devils' 1994 captains, chosen by a vote of graduating seniors, are Dahlstrom, Drake and Bob Kazma. A fourth captain will be selected after pre-season practice.

South

other triple by Meghan Boehling with 2:08 left gave the Chieftains a 39-33 lead.

South took 10 free throws during the last minute and a half, but made only half of them. The Lady Devils failed to take advantage of a golden opportunity with 48 seconds left when they drew a foul and a two-shot technical was called against one of Utica's spectators. That gave South the chance to score four points from the foul line — which would have closed the gap to 41-40 — and the Lady Devils would have had the ball out of bounds on the technical. South made only one free throw and the Lady Devils also failed to score on the possession.

"We had our chances, but couldn't capitalize on them," Van Eckoute said.

Lupo, who didn't start because of illness, came off the bench and played well. She had six points, three assists, three steals and seven rebounds. Jeaneane Farr added five points for South, which took a 9-11 overall record into its first state tournament game against Regina on Wednesday.

Earlier, South rolled past Ford II 47-25.

The Lady Devils led 15-5 after the first quarter and increased the lead to 30-14 at halftime.

McGratty led the way with 22 points, 10 rebounds and five steals. Lucy Ament had eight points, seven rebounds, three assists and three steals. A pair of sophomores also played well. Molly McKenzie had four points, five assists and four steals, while Carrie Geer added four points and eight rebounds.

"McKenzie has come along nicely at point guard," Van Eckoute said. "She's been able to break the press. Early in the season everybody pressed us, but now they haven't been doing it nearly as much."

Career night spotlights sports medicine

High school students can learn what it takes to have a career in athletic medicine by attending a career night sponsored by Cottage Hospital Athletic Medicine Program (CHAMP).

The informational session for students and parents will be held Wednesday, Dec. 1, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the lower level hospital boardrooms.

Presenting the program are

Beth Ayn Deutsch, a certified athletic trainer and director for CHAMP; Dave Wegzyn, a physical therapist at the Cottage Hospital Athletic Medicine and Physical Therapy Center; and Russ Baumann, also an athletic trainer for CHAMP.

The career-planning program explores the different but related roles of the athletic trainer and the physical therapist, as well as other opportunities in the expanding field of athletic medicine. Discussion includes educational requirements for a career in athletic medicine and where to go for the specialized training. Videos provided by the National Athletic Trainers Association and American Physical Therapy Association will be shown.

Career night is presented as a free public service by Henry Ford Cottage Hospital. For more information, call Baumann at 884-7541.

Regular classroom often beneficial for autistic children, classmates too

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Dennis and Gay Debbaudt were concerned about their son, Kelly. "When he was 2 or 3, language was slow in coming," Dennis Debbaudt said. "He repeated a lot. It's called echolalia. We'd say 'your name is Kelly' and he'd say, 'your name is Kelly.' He did a lot of pronoun reversals.

"I remember he would go outside where there were lots of kids his age, but he wouldn't play with them. He'd play by himself, near them."

The Debbaudts worried about Kelly's hearing, about his mental ability, about his social skills. They finally called Project Find, a federally funded program that helps parents and teachers arrange for the diagnosis and evaluation of children's disabilities.

By age 5, Kelly was diagnosed as autistic.

"Autism is a developmental disability," said Andrew Maltz, Ph.D., director of Bon Secours Grosse Pointe Center for Individual and Family Therapy. "It's a neurological disorder that occurs during the process of the brain's development. Autistic children are born without the ability to process social communication."

Maltz works primarily with autistic children and their families. He does diagnoses and helps parents understand the disability and obtain services for their children, including speech therapy, occupational therapy and physical therapy. He also helps parents find special education programs and schools.

The cause of autism is unknown, he said. And there is no cure.

"Autism doesn't go away," he said. "But it can get better. Some autistics can read and write and may eventually live independently. But they will always appear odd, eccentric and strange. They are OK, but not in complex social groups. They may get jobs, but they can't fit into the social environment of a work setting."

Children with autism don't relate to the world — to objects or to people — in a normal way.

"Autism occurs in about 15 of every 10,000 births and more often in boys than girls. About 60 percent of autistics are also mentally retarded, but at least 20 percent are between average and genius mental ability," he said.

Dustin Hoffman played an autistic man in the movie "Rainman." The character was an excellent portrayal of an autistic person, but a man with some savant skills — Maltz said. The movie character had exceptional abilities concerning numbers.

Maltz said that children as young as 15 to 18 months can be diagnosed as autistic. The diagnosis is based on symptoms," he said.

"Autistic children lack eye contact and social responsiveness that other children have. They don't show affection in the usual way. They don't cuddle. They may stare at things like their own hands, a light, a reflection, water, the spinning wheels of a toy. They may twirl things. They are fascinated by spinning motions. They may have a different pain threshold. They may exhibit mannerisms such as rocking, spinning or self-injurious behavior," Maltz said.

Dennis Debbaudt is president of the Wayne County Society for Autistic Citizens. He sees his role as the parent of an autistic child as one of interpreting.

"I have to interpret his wants and needs. I have to decipher things because he has a communication problem. Other than that, he's no different than any child. I also have to interpret his unusual behavior to other children and adults."

For instance, Debbaudt said his son plays with objects in unusual ways. He holds a certain stuffed animal close to his face when he goes outside. He doesn't understand the rules of games like hide-and-seek. In fact, he doesn't understand the reasoning behind games at all. Kelly speaks, but he has an unusual tone of voice, choice of words and delivery.

"Kelly doesn't understand body language," Debbaudt said. "He doesn't process the meaning of a stern look, or raised eyebrows, or the hand motion that means 'come.'"

Kelly has an unusual ability to identify certain sounds. He can distinguish the sounds of individual cars that belong to friends of the Debbaudts. Certain commercials on television are sure to catch his attention. He has an exceptional ability to draw and sketch and is fascinated with numbers and letters, Debbaudt said.

"I think he's comforted with numbers and letters and certain commercials because they are constant. They don't change," he said.

Kelly does not attend a school for children with disabilities. His father said Kelly has made more progress because he is around normal children. He reads and writes at grade level.

"He goes to Montessori School and has an excellent teacher," Debbaudt said. "According to the law, all children are entitled to an education in the least restrictive environment possible. We tried a pre-primary class for impaired kids, but we didn't like it. We wanted him to be able to model his behavior after so-called normal children. It's called 'inclusion.'"

Maltz agrees. "Autistic children who are included in regular education as much as possible do better than those who are segregated or isolated," he said.

Debbaudt believes that normal children also learn from Kelly. "Normal kids learn that some people are different. These normal kids are our future teachers, doctors, storekeepers and so on. They learn to be more open and accepting of people who are different. I see it working," he said.

In addition to his classroom teacher, Kelly gets special help from a teacher-consultant, a speech and language therapist, an occupational therapist and a social worker.

Autism used to be blamed on the parents, Maltz said. "It used to be considered the result of poor parenting. They used to call them 'refrigerator parents' — who were cold, not giving, unresponsive. By the late 1960s, we realized that autism is a neurological disorder," he said.

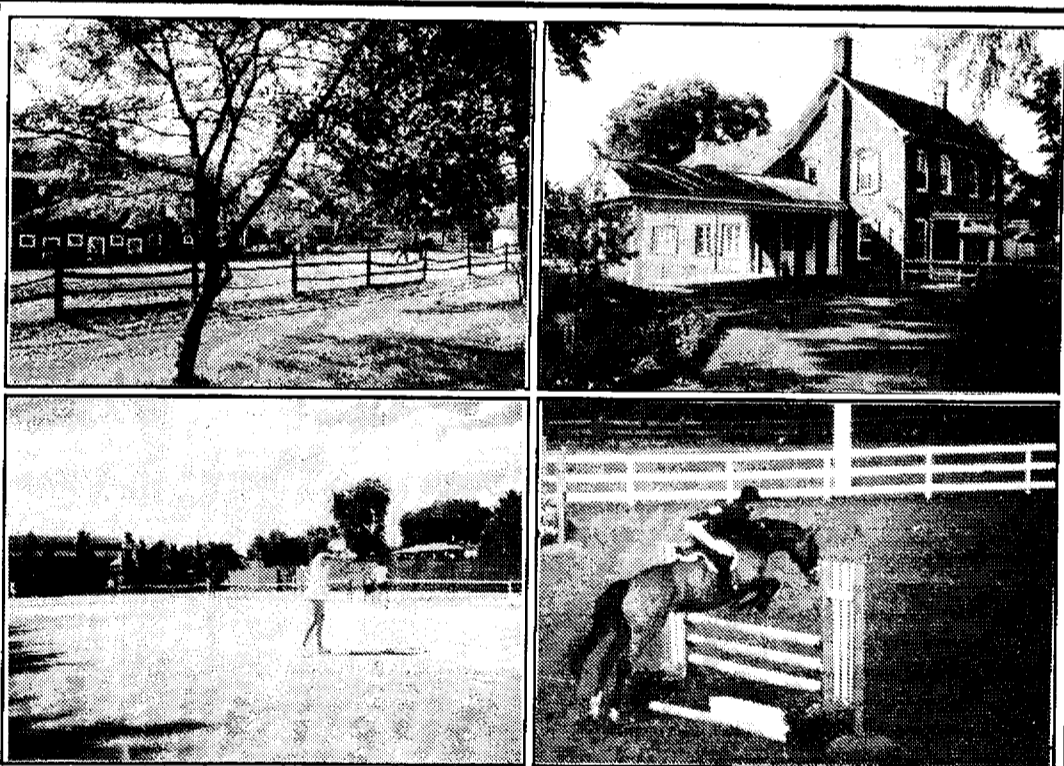

"Autistic children feel happiness, sadness, rage and anger, just like anyone else," Maltz said, "but they can't communicate these in the usual way. They are bonded to their parents but they express their attachment in unusual ways."

The Debbaudts keep Kelly's environment simple and predictable because autistic children don't like surprises, Dennis Debbaudt said. "Our routines for baths, meal times, story time, bowling on Wednesday and so on are fixed. It makes him feel in control of his environment."

Debbaudt said he hopes more people will learn to keep their minds open and to see disabled people as people.

"The most important issue," Maltz said, "is to emphasize that autism is not an emotional disorder. It's not a disorder of attachment. Autistic children are loving and gentle. They just don't fit into groups because they don't have social communication."

For more information about autism, call the Autism Society of Michigan at 1-800-223-6722 or 882-9135.

Grace Church remembers veterans

Grace United Church, 1175 Lakepointe in Grosse Pointe Park, recognized and remembered the nation's war veterans on Oct. 31.

The special Sunday service had patriotic and religious aspects. Included in the service were the Pledge of Allegiance, the singing of the National Anthem, the presentation of flags and greetings from elected officials by letter and in person. Present at the service were:

Rep. John Conyers, Grosse Pointe Park mayor Palmer Heenan and Park council members Valerie Moran, James Robson Jr. and Barbara Miller.

The Rev. Henry Reinwald, interim pastor at Grace United Church, led the worship service. Those from the church who served in the armed forces — fallen comrades and living buddies — were remembered with a flower.

The Eastside Ministry to Singles, a single adult ministry of Grosse Pointe Baptist Church, will present "Talk it Over" at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 19, at the church, 21336 Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The guest speaker will be Jeff McKay, who has worked with Single Point Ministries of Livonia for many years. His topic will be "Discovering a New Focus."

Small group discussion and a social hour will be available after the lecture. Child care will be available for infants through age 12, for $1 a child.

Eastside Singles events are open to all singles in the community. The goal is to provide single adults with an opportunity to come together to make new friends, grow spiritually and emotionally and enjoy the fellowship of other singles. For more information, call 881-3343.

DAR chapters rededicate grave

Louisa St. Clair chapter, along with the Ottawa chapter of the DAR, rededicated Jonathan Barron's grave at Hillside Cemetery in St. Clair on Saturday, Oct. 23.

Barron fought for his struggling, new-born country as a member of the New Hampshire militia. He traded musket balls with the British at the Battle of Bennington in Vermont on Aug. 16, 1777.

Saturday was proclaimed Jonathan Barron Day in St. Clair. Mayor Bernard Kuhn presented a proclamation from the city at the graveside ceremony.

Those participating in the ceremony were Mrs. R. James Colter, regent of the Louisa St. Clair chapter; Mrs. Norman Kruger; Mrs. George Ryckman; Mrs. Frank S. Clark; Mrs. Harvey T. Bonser; Mrs. Karl B. Kirk; Mrs. John DeWald; Mrs. Burt Thomas Weyhing III; Richard Omler; Mrs. Richard Omler; Mrs. Leonard Michalski, regent of the Nipissing Chapter; Mrs. Robert Ernst, regent of the Ottawa Chapter; local dignitaries and descendants of the Barron family.

A luncheon was held in the St. Clair Historical Museum after the dedication.

School of Government hears speaker

The School of Government Inc. met on Nov. 17 at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club to hear Frank Smith, president of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, chose as his topic, "A Review of the North American Free Trade Agreement."

The chairman of the day was Catharine McMullen. President is Ida Mae Massnick of Grosse Pointe Shores.

Alliance Francaise will present Beaujolais Nouveau celebration

The Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe will celebrate Fete du Beaujolais Nouveau at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial today, Nov. 18, from 7 to 9 p.m. This celebration started in France, was adopted by the British and spread to North America and the rest of the world. The event is traditionally held following the grape harvest and production of the first wine from the new harvest.

Proceeds will be used for the alliance's scholarship fund which is distributed to local high school students during its annual "Distribution Des Prix."

Josiah Harmar meets Nov. 20

The General Josiah Harmar chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution will hold its fall luncheon meeting at noon Saturday, Nov. 20, at the home of Cheryl Fuller of Detroit.

Chapter regent Ruth Szabo will call the meeting to order and the program will consist of the new by laws and handbook. The speaker will be Mrs. Roger Harter. For more information, call Florence Davis at 422-0006.

The wine will be released on Nov. 18 and flown to Detroit for the celebration. Beaujolais is produced from Gamay grapes in the Beaujolais region south of Burgundy in France. Unlike other wines, Beaujolais should be drunk young, when its fruity, light characteristics are most pronounced.

Besides wine and food, the celebration will include Grosse Pointe South's Dixieland band. Bonnie and Chip Delsener, who have traveled and studied wines extensively, will be present to answer questions. The cost is $15 for members of the Alliance; $17.50 for non-members.

Call Shirley Momjian at 886-0269 for further information.

Volunteers needed

The Detroit Institute of Arts needs gallery service volunteers to greet and assist museum visitors. No special qualifications or background are required.

A training session will be held from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, Nov. 20, in the Holley Room of the Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward in Detroit. For more information, call 833-0247.

Today is Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout

If you're thinking of quitting smoking, today — Thursday, Nov. 18 — is the day to do it.

Today is the day of the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout, an upbeat, good-natured effort to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours, if only to prove to themselves that they can.

And who knows, they might quit for good.

Nonsmokers can join in the fun by adopting family members, friends, and co-workers who smoke and encouraging them to quit. Nonsmokers can show support by making an extra effort to keep close contact by phone or in person; by being a calm, smiling, reassuring influence; by continually offering praise and encouragement; by helping the quitter keep a good sense of humor; and by agreeing to give up something they love, such as chocolate, coffee, soft drinks or soap operas, for the day.

"Above all, it's the smokers' day," says Karen Murphy of the American Cancer Society. "The American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout focuses attention on those who are trying to lighten up instead of lighting up. Everyone enjoys being supportive as they try."

"There's no event like the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout," says Karen Murphy. "We're proud of how it demonstrates our leadership in helping smokers to quit."

For more information on the Great American Smokeout, call the American Cancer Society at 557-5353 or call the society's toll-free information line at 1-800-ACS-2345 to receive an educational survivor kit.

Everything's jake with Simon's 'Women'

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Everyone should be as lucky as Jake in "Jake's Women," the latest Neil Simon comedy now playing at the Birmingham Theatre through Dec. 5.

Jake is a compulsive writer who, whenever he has a problem, calls on one of the seven women in his life for help. They always appear and they always say what he wants to hear because he makes up the conversation.

Early in life Jake decided to become a writer because he could control imaginary characters better than their real life counterparts, whom he didn't trust.

As a result, he never really listened to what was being said by those who were trying to get through to him. Every conversation was filtered through his brain as though he were writing dialogue. Add to that his refusal to let go of the memory of his first wife and you have one confused individual.

Talk about a difficult setup to work out on stage as a comedy. You have Jake's encounters with seven different women appearing as themselves, ghosts of themselves, or projections of Jake's psyche.

Thanks to director Arthur Storch and seven immensely talented actresses who light up the stage in their dual roles, it works. In spite of the many comings and goings of real and unreal characters, "Jake's Women" comes off as vintage Neil Simon comedy.

We first meet Jake when he descends from his writer's loft to center stage below — a drab gray room furnished with a drab gray couch. His first words are about himself and his fear that his wife Maggie is going to leave him. Enter his sister, Karen. You see her but she is really not there. She is a projection of writer Jake's mind, and sure enough she pushes all the right soothing buttons to assure him that everything is going to be fine in words he puts into her mouth. Later she appears as herself with good practical advice which he ignores.

And so it goes, through two acts of fantasy, truth and consequence. The convoluted concept is worked out in a series of sharp witticisms, comic situations, hilarious double talk and heated arguments that add spice to the goings on.

One who tries hard to put him on track is his analyst, Edith. He has some explosive but funny sessions with her, both in person and on the phone.

In a brooding mood, he goes back in time for a meeting with Julie, his deceased wife, and in another scene recalls happy days with his daughter Molly at age 12 and again when she is 21. We meet the real life Maggie, his present wife who, true to his premonition, is leaving him because of the distance he has put between them by holding on to his mindscape.

Sharp, cracking dialogue and humorous situations keep the play moving along and engage audience attention. Steve Elmore's Jake is a lumbering 54-year-old, reaching out in all directions to straighten out his life in a manner that resembles Walter Matthau in "The Odd Couple." He gets into some humorous arguments about love, but he is funniest when he becomes agitated, as he does in a scene with Sheila, a dynamite blond whom he takes up with after Maggie leaves. While he is trying to convince her, and himself, in half-hearted, unfocused, unrelated speeches that he really does want a commitment, Maggie appears out of his subconscious, making remarks and gestures. He gets into a screaming match with her and Sheila, who thinks he is shouting at her and heads for the door. Sherry Skinker is a terrific Maggie. She radiates energy, is smart and courageous enough to take the chance that Jake, left on his own, will realize what commitment means, and break down the walls of the past and become a full partner in their marriage.

De Ann Kemp, who plays Jake's daughter Molly at 12, and Dana Ertischek, who is Molly at 21, bring charm and youthful enthusiasm.

"Jake's Women" is Neil Simon's twenty-fifth play, and it will not disappoint his faithful followers who have enjoyed being privy to his dramatic accounts of his rites of passage over the years.

Derbyshire takes prize

Grosse Pointe Woods artist Michael Derbyshire's watercolor painting "Outbuilding" took the second place award at the recent Our Town Art Exhibition at The Community House in Birmingham.

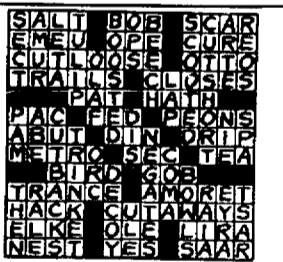

The exhibition, sponsored by Franklin Bank for the benefit of The Community House, was juried by Allen Rubiner of Rubiner Gallery.

Family recipes make smart cookies

Elaine Caulfield is an interesting person who wears many hats.

She is a wife, mother, teacher of Community Education with the Grosse Pointe, St. Clair Shores and Eastpointe public schools and also is an entrepreneur who has a successful business called Time Brokers, which specializes in party planning and catering.

Each party is planned individually to suit the needs of the client. Caulfield has her own staff of chefs, servers and bakers and has created wonderful parties and receptions.

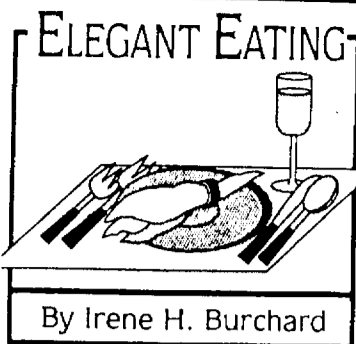

On Dec. 6 and 8 at The Pointe Pedlar, 88 Kercheval "on the Hill," in Grosse Pointe, from 7 to 9 p.m. (call 885-4028 to make advance reservations) she will demonstrate some of her favorite Christmas cookies.

"Some will be the old-fashioned variety and others will be some of my family's treasured recipes," she said.

They include the following: Chocolate Marzipan Mocha Bara, Cranberry Orange or Apple-Mince Tartlets, Linzer Stars, Date-Nut Pinwheels, Toffee Bars and Apricot or Raspberry Squares.

Caulfield was one of 15 children whose parents owned a dairy farm. She said she remembers her mother's wonderful cooking and baking, all from scratch, never the quick mixes.

"My mother always had the fresh dairy products, fruits and vegetables for use in food preparation," she said. "These ingredients always enhance the finished food products." An interest in cooking came very early, as she learned basic skills from her mother.

Chocolate-Marzipan-Mocha Layered Bars

A delectable combination of flavors makes an unusual bar cookie to serve with tall glasses of milk or steaming mugs of coffee.

For the bottom layer:
2-1/2 cups flour

1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa powdered, softened

1 t baking powder

1/4 t salt

1 cup (two sticks) butter, room temperature

1 cup sugar

2 eggs

1 t vanilla extract

For the middle layer:
1 8 oz. can almond paste or one 7 oz. tube, at room temperature

1/2 cup sugar

1 egg white

1 t vanilla extract
3 eggs
For the mocha frosting:
4 oz. (one bar) sweet cooking chocolate, chopped
1/4 cup heavy cream
2 t powdered instant coffee
1/3 cup finely chopped toasted almonds

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees F and grease one 10-1/2 x 15-1/2 x 1-inch pan.

For the bottom layer, stir or whisk together the flour, cocoa powder, baking powder and salt; set aside. In a large bowl, cream the butter and sugar. Add the eggs and vanilla and beat well.

Gradually add the dry ingredients, blending well after each addition. Dip your fingertips in cold water and pat the dough evenly into the prepared pan. Use a rubber spatula dipped in cold water to smooth the dough.

Make the middle layer. In a large bowl, beat the almond paste, butter, sugar, egg white and vanilla until smooth. Add the eggs and beat until thoroughly blended. Spread the mixture over the dough in the jelly roll pan.

Bake for 20-25 minutes, until the top is lightly browned and a toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean. The top will be slightly puffy, but it will flatten as it cools.

Let the layers cool completely on a wire rack. When the layers are cool, make the mocha frosting. Melt the chocolate with the cream and coffee powder in a small saucepan over very low heat, whisking constantly. Pour the frosting over the cooled layers and spread it evenly with a metal spatula or the back of a spoon. Sprinkle with the chopped almonds.

Elaine Caulfield will hold a Christmas cookie cooking class Dec. 6 and 8 at the Pointe Pedlar. Call 885-4028.

Let the frosting set for half an hour and then cut into bars. Remove the bars carefully from the pan.

Linzer Stars

1/2 cup sugar

1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened

1 T milk

1-1/2 cups all purpose or unbleached flour

1 t cream of tartar

1/2 t baking soda

1/4 t salt

Powdered sugar

1/2 cup cherry or red currant jelly

In large bowl, beat sugar and butter until light and fluffy. Add milk, vanilla and egg and blend well. Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup, level off. Stir in flour, cream of tartar, baking soda and salt; mix well. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate 3 hours for easier handling.

Heat oven to 425 degrees F. Using stockinette-covered rolling pin and well-floured pastry cloth, roll out 1/3 of dough at a time to 1/8-inch thickness. (Refrigerate remaining dough).

Cut with floured 3-inch star-shaped cookie cutter. Using 1-inch round cookie cutter, cut out center of half of dough stars to form cookie tops. Place stars 1-inch apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Repeat with remaining dough. Bake at 425 degrees F for 5 minutes until edges are light golden brown. Cool one minute, remove from cookie sheets. Cool completely.

To assemble cookie, sprinkle powdered sugar over cookie tops. Spread 1 tablespoon jelly over each cookie bottom. Place sugar-topped cookie over jelly.

Makes 4 dozen sandwich cookies.

Cook's Note: Butter or quality margarine give good flavor and a crisp texture to cookies. Vegetable shortening provides little flavor and produces a more crumbly cookie. Diet or whipped margarines are not recommended for baking because their lower fat content gives variable, unsatisfactory results.

Sales pitch is misleading, but book is intriguing

Perfect
By Judith McNaught
516 pages, $22.

What possible connection does Coors, the Colorado brewery, share with a highly romantic novel, "Perfect"?

Recently, I received a colorful brochure from Coors encouraging me to purchase this book, and then mail in an enclosed card: "Help to turn this card into $25,000. Simply by completing and returning this card (with your name and address), you can help teach a woman to read because the women's program of Coors' 'Literacy Pass It On' will donate, on your behalf, up to $25,000 to women's literacy organizations, based on the number of cards we receive."

By Elizabeth P. Walker

This was enough inducement for me to purchase the novel, although I did have a queasy feeling after noticing the blurb on the back jacket: "fast-paced romantic entertainment."

As I certainly am not, by any stretch of the imagination, a devotee of lush passionate love scenes that spew with such heated abandon from the pages of so many women's best-sellers, I was led to believe from Coors' endorsement that "Perfect" would contain a generous number of passages about the literacy movement.

Alas, I was sadly misled. Although, to be fair, I must admit that Judith McNaught does a rousing good job of story telling, a fast-moving narrative full of fiery passion, submerged identities, and wild adventure. But I was much disappointed at the scarce mention of literacy programs in a half-dozen or so skimpy paragraphs. Her personable heroine, Julie Mathison, is a comely, young, idealistic third-grade teacher in a small town in Texas. Her exuberance leads her to teaching, after school, several grown women how to read. Julie feels joy from such worthwhile activity, and we admire her advocacy of these women whose lives are improved and changed unalterably for the better. Therefore, because of my own interest in literacy, I kept expecting to read more of these particular passages, but I was never satisfied.

However, intrigued in spite of myself, I did manage to finish the book. The author has a magic way with plot, characterization, and action. Her Julie Mathison is a creation to win the hearts of readers: she began life as an orphan who found herself, at the age of 11, a homeless, street-wise child, scrounging on the mean streets of Chicago in order to survive.

She is eventually rescued by a compassionate social worker who recognizes the glowing potential beneath the dirty, tangled hair and the weebegone face of the waif. A happy adoption is arranged by a kindly couple from Texas, the Rev. and Mrs. Mathison, whose two sons immediately treat Julie like a younger sister.

A man whose life impacts with great explosive force on Julie is Zachary Benedict Stanhope, a product of country club society from western Pennsylvania. After they fall in love, he is evicted unceremoniously from his home by his grandmother who tells the teenager never again to darken their doorstep. He hitches a ride from a friendly truck-driver who drives him to Los Angeles where he lands a job in a movie studio.

Through hard work and his handsome looks, Zack Benedict soars high in the Hollywood scene, both as actor and director. Later, through a number of remarkable coincidences, Julie Mathison, a prim school-teacher, crosses the path of Zack Benedict, the renegade Hollywood demi-god, who is fleeing for his life. Inevitably, fate draws them together, and they discover true love, so it seems, and the author does not neglect to furnish plenty of steamy sexy escapades.

Serving up a racy pulse-pounding if there ever was one, McNaught succeeds admirably in providing thrills galore, whether in the bedroom or on top of a snow-clad mountain.

My praises aside, though, I do resent being a sucker for a public relations scam. Coors, of course, has the right to promote any book it wishes, but the company should not paint a false picture of the book's contents to snare unwitting buyers. My only motive was to buy something of value concerning literacy, and in that I was disappointed.

Oh yes, I did mail the card!

Sexy thrillers get the treatment in 'Fatal Instinct'

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

It's exit laughing after watching Carl Reiner's good-natured spoof of recent sexy thrillers.

Working from the conviction that detective stories are intrinsically funny and that sexy detective films take themselves too seriously, Reiner has strung together random memories of hot-blooded thrillers from "Fatal Attraction" to "Basic Instinct" and made them comic minicmeat.

To play the part of straightman in a dizzying series of skits and ad-libs is Armand Assante.

He is Ned Ravine, a suave, perfectly dressed cop who also practices law so he can make more money. Playing the part as a parody of himself, he adds immensely to the fun. He wears boxer shorts with scales on them and calls them legal briefs.

Films which have appeared on the screen in the last decade, such as "Body Heat," "Sleeping With the Enemy," "Cape Fear" and classics like "Chinatown," "Double Indemnity" and "The Postman Always Rings Twice" are fodder for this erotic collection of send-ups.

terminal with a closeup shot of shapely legs in high heels. Those legs belong to sexy Lola Cain (Sean Young).

She sets her sights on him, but to no avail, because he's too dumb to know what she's up to.

As dense as he is about Lola's come-ons, he is equally dense on the homefront. His wife, Lana (Kate Nelligan), like the seductress out of "Double Indemnity" is enlisting her lover Frank (Christopher McDonald) in a plot to get rid of Ned.

The third woman in Ned's life is his adoring secretary, Laura (Sherilyn Fenn). He is as oblivious to her attempts to get his attention as he is to Lola's overt sexual advances and Lana's infidelity.

There is physical as well as verbal humor in "Fatal Instinct." When Lola finally lures Ned to her home she leaves him to leaf through a book while she changes. The title: "Dangerous Sexual Positions." Later we see Ned doing flips in bed.

In the meantime, Lana and Frank have firmed up plans for getting rid of Ned and collecting on his $3 million insurance policy. It involves getting him on a train, shooting him and dumping him into a river. However, they are not the only ones on his trail. Shady (James Remar), a tabloid stalker out of Scorsese's "Cape Fear," is out to get Ned, too.

Armed with gags and send-ups, Reiner pulls out the throttle and ends the film in a series of high-energy violent show-downs.

Assante strikes just the right chord as the cop/lawyer who ignores the obvious and in spite of catastrophes which whirl around him, comes out on top. The three women — Young, Nelligan and Fenn — play their

Benefit to raise funds for Fort Street Presbyterian program

Proceeds from a concert by the Oak Ridge Boys on Friday, Dec. 3, at the Palace of Auburn Hills will benefit the 25-year-old Open Door program at Detroit's Fort Street Presbyterian Church.

Co-chairmen of the benefit are Grosse Pointers Pat Tipton and Gary Spicer. Tipton has been actively involved in coordinating the Open Door program for many years, and Spicer has served as an elder during his 25 years as a member of the church.

The Open Door program, designed to serve Detroit's homeless, operates each Thursday from 9 to 11 a.m. at the church, serving an average of 550 guests each week. It offers nourishing meals, free clothing, medical service, a barber shop, showers, and counseling to anyone who shows up.

Treasure seekers: The Michigan Cancer Foundation's Circle of Fellows will kick off the holiday season with a treasure hunt party beginning at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 21, at Saks Fifth Avenue in the Somerset Collection.

The party will feature a treasure hunt on all three levels of Saks. Guests will get a chance to test their knowledge of movie trivia and search for prizes, while proceeds from the event support the foundation's research, education and patient care programs.

The Circle of Fellows celebrated its 10th anniversary this year. It has raised more than $850,000 in support of the foundation.

Host committee members for the treasure hunt include Grosse Pointers Judy and Randy Agle, Dale and Dr. Don Austin, Stephanie and Frank Germack, Mary and Ron Lamparter and Mary and Bob Matuja.

Tickets are $500 a couple for sponsors; $1,000 a couple for patrons. For more information, call Jackie Sunday at 833-0715, ext. 414.

Chocolaholics: The eighth annual Chocolate Jubilee, a fundraiser for the Alzheimer's Association, will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 21, at the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn.

The event will spotlight tasty creations from more than 30 chocolatiers, a chance to mingle with local celebrities (Rich Fisher, Doris Biscoe, Jerry Hodak, Cheryl Chodun and Ruth Spencer), free samples of a variety of chocolatey stuff and a chance to purchase holiday gifts of chocolate.

Tickets are $25. More than 90 percent of the money raised at the event will support patient and family services of the Alzheimer's Association.

Grosse Pointers involved in the benefit include Edward Deeb and Dale Austin.

For reservations or information, send a check to the Alzheimer's Association, 17220 W. 12 Mile, Suite 100, Southfield, 48076, or call 557-8277.

The Society of St. Vincent de Paul will hold its annual Christmas gift sale on Saturday, Nov. 20, at St. Vincent Ferrer Church, 1701 Gardenia in Madison Heights.

More than 5,000 stuffed animals and dolls will seek new homes, as will a variety of collectible costume and antique jewelry, Christmas decorations, quilts, and linens.

Pete Sullivan of Grosse Pointe Park, a volunteer, said that proceeds from the private, non-profit organization will help finance a free summer camp experience for about 1,400 underprivileged kids as well as St. Vincent de Paul's food and employment programs.

cated to finding cures for the catastrophic diseases of children, will benefit from a marathon to be run by Sgt. Dave Kelly of WWWW-FM radio on Sunday, Nov. 21.

As a kickoff for the station's fifth annual W4 Country Cares for St. Jude Kids Radiothon, Kelly will run 26.2 miles, beginning at the northeast corner of Chicago and Ryan in Warren and ending at the studios of W4 Country on Jefferson in Detroit. On the way, he'll run through Roseville and Grosse Pointe. After catching his breath, he'll go on the air at 11:30 a.m.

Sponsors of Kelly's marathon run are asked to pledge $1 a mile. To pledge, call 1-800-424-1067.

The radiothon begins Nov. 21 and will continue until 9 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 23. The station has raised about $800,000 for the hospital over the last four years, and hopes to boost the total to $1 million this year.

Help HOPE: Focus: HOPE, a metro Detroit civil and human rights organization, will match senior citizens and low-income families with donors who are looking for ways to brighten the holidays for others.

For the 12th year in a row, donors can help in one or more ways. Many want to buy and personally deliver a holiday basket of food to a senior who lives alone (Share With a Senior program) or to a needy family with young children (Family to Family program). Others contribute food or gifts and Focus: HOPE does the delivering. Others volunteer their time to assemble baskets or help make deliveries.

Focus: HOPE distributes food to low-income mothers, children and seniors and provides technical training programs for young adults. For more information about contributing to the holiday projects, call 883-3131 or 883-7440.

Red kettle days: The Salvation Army will kick off its 1993 Christmas fundraising efforts at 11:45 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 24, at the Harbor Light Center, 2643 Park Ave. in Detroit.

The Salvation Army's 1993 Christmas kettle fundraising goal will be announced and Santa Claus, local business and community leaders, volunteers and supporters of the charitable organization will join the Salvation Army Band and a parade of traditional red Christmas kettles.

"The Salvation Army is working harder than ever to meet the increasing needs of the metropolitan Detroit community," said Lt. Col. Clarence W. Harvey, divisional commander for eastern Michigan. "We anticipate that more people will look to us to help them make ends meet during the holidays and into 1994."

During the 1992 holiday season, the army touched the lives of nearly 231,000 people.

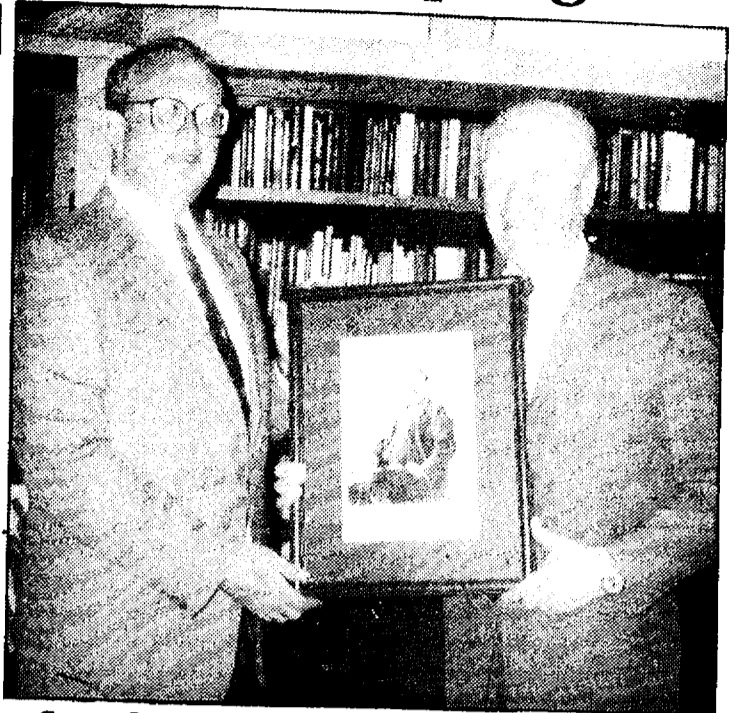

The red kettles will be visible throughout the city and suburbs from Thanksgiving Day until Christmas Eve.

Deke doings: Pointers David Easlick Jr. and his wife, Susan, were on hand in Rancho Mirage recently to present former president Gerald R. Ford the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity Presidents' Award. Ford is a 1935 graduate of the University of Michigan, and a member of DKE.

Easlick is executive director of DKE and president of the fraternity's educational foundation, the Rampant Lion Foundation.

Ford has agreed to serve as honorary chairman and former first lady Betty Ford will be honorary chairwoman of a new ladies committee, the Maidens of DKE, made up of wives, mothers, widows and daughters of Dekes. Elizabeth Nicholson of Grosse Pointe Park is chairman of the committee. Nicholson's grandfather, husband and son are Dekes.

Other organizing Maidens include Grosse Pointers Mary

Grosse Pointer David Easlick, left, executive director of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, presented former President Gerald Ford, who is also a Deke, a portrait of former President Teddy Roosevelt, also a Deke. Ford is honorary chairman of the Deke's 150th anniversary celebration.

Anne Zinn, Ruth Blood, Ruth Bradfield, Mary Hurley, Stephanie Kost, Wendy Krag and Susan Easlick.

The fraternity will hold a grand gala in New Orleans in November 1994, to celebrate its 150th anniversary. The Maidens will organize a nationwide alumni network to plan the event.

The fraternity will hold its 121st annual stag banquet on Tuesday, Nov. 23, at the Detroit Club. Among the Grosse Pointe residents who will attend are George Nicholson, Bill Hurley, Carl Eckert and sons Andy and Tom, Brian Connors, George McKean, Ed Puthuff, Pete Dow, Bill Grag, Dick Kost and sons Rob and Stephen and George Zinn.

Michael Keaton and Nicole Kidman star in "My Life."

It's a relatively wonderful 'Life'

By Ronald J. Bernas
Assistant Editor

Bob Jones has cancer and has been given four months to live. The problem is that his wife Gail is expecting their first child in five months. So Bob videotapes himself talking about his life so his child will have a chance to know him.

That's the none-too-happy scenario for "My Life," the new film from the makers of "Ghost." Believe it or not, it's an uplifting — if not incredibly sappy — film.

Michael Keaton stars as Bob, a public relations executive who's a nice guy, except, like many public relations people, he's shallow and self-centered. He's unable to see his faults, and when he admits to any, he gives them a positive spin.

Even the videotaping of his life story stems from his shallowness. You know what Plato said: An unvideotaped life is not worth living.

Bob tells his child not to listen to the show tunes his mother will play for him, shows him how to shave, how to play basketball and all the other things he'll never have a chance to show the child himself.

Along the way we get to laugh at some very dark humor, like when Bob and Gail talk about changing their answering machine message to "Hi, this is Bob. I'm dead right now so I can't get to the phone."

The film is set partly in Detroit, although it was filmed in Chicago, which does look an awful lot like parts of Detroit. And although Bob says he lived his whole life trying to get away from Detroit it's not the city that takes the brunt of his anger, it's his family.

One Detroit scene — when Bob returns to his childhood home and the new owner happily lets him walk around the house — drew laughs of disbelief from the audience.

Bob's journey to death comes complete with a trip to the bizarre side of medicine in the guise of Mr. Ho (Dr. Haing S. Ngor), a Chinese healer who tells Bob that in order to get better, he must let go of his anger and make peace with those he loves so his next life will be better.

He comes to the realization that he doesn't know who he is or why he lost his hope or why he's embarrassed by his immigrant parents and his brother who wants nothing more than to follow in their father's footsteps.

He comes to the realization that even though he may not be a good person, he did the best he could, and so did his family.

The film is a showcase for the cocksure character Keaton has been developing ever since his first role in the comedy "Night Shift." Here, however, he's more human and becomes the kind of guy you like despite his many annoying traits.

Gail, however, is another matter. She's little more than an incubator, but don't blame poor Nicole Kidman too much. She's dull as anything, but it's as much the fault of the script because the role is poorly developed and Gail serves only as a straight man. Kidman plays her mousy and whiny and she frankly gets in the way.

That's not the script's only fault. Joel Rubin, who won an Academy Award for "Ghost," should be credited for keeping the film light, but it gets mawkish near the end, which will either elicit tears, laughs or scoffs depending on how corny you like your film deaths. Because if you believe cancer deaths are this uplifting, you probably believe in ghosts.

Concert evenings when violinist Emmanuelle Boisvert leaves the first chair to stand up as soloist have always been interesting on many levels and last weekend was no exception.

Appearing in a striking gown that many were inspired to characterize as worthy of Spiderwoman, she spun a web of musical intricacy that has daunted lesser artists while cutting a very dazzling figure indeed.

Her subject was the Prokofiev Violin Concerto No. 1. Like his Classical Symphony, it is somewhat more lyrical than much of Prokofiev's music but still highly avant garde for its time and filled with the unexpected turns of melody and harmony that bothered his many critics.

Boisvert's enormous talent for lush tone and graceful phrasing emphasized those qualities in the score over

'Merry Widow' is an all-time great musical; MOT proves it

By Alex Sucek
Special Writer

The challenge of producing a musical (opereetta in this case) that probably holds the record for number of performances worldwide, is to mount a production that meets its standard.

In remaining popular for 88 years, Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow" has proven its lasting quality with some of the most appealing music ever put on stage, a captivating fairytale love story, and characters that transcend their opereetta caricatures to display genuine, believable emotion, humor and passion.

MOT's production, which opened last Friday at the Judy Kaye as the millionairess widow and her reluctant suitor, Count Danilo, heir to the Pontevdrian throne. And as improbable as the whole situation is in today's world, the suspense of lovers who can't speak their love is real.

It happens, to be sure, because the production is so beautiful, the pace of the performance is so nimble, and the singing, dancing and acting are so good. They enchant the viewer into accepting this fantasy, briefly, as reality.

But what distinguishes the production most is the warmth and humanity of the lovers. True, in opereetta tradition, they are bigger and simpler it the first big break of his career.

He admits to feeling somewhat intimidated being on stage with a star like Kaye, who won a Tony for her work

Fisher Theatre, has definitely risen to the challenge.

From the moment conductor Mitchel Krieger gives the downbeat, the orchestra brings the lilting tunes to life with vitality and style. As the curtain rises, it reveals an opulent set in magnificently rendered art nouveau decor of turn-of-the-century Paris. The performers wear elegantly executed costumes that come to life off the pages of French fashion history.

Best of all, the cast gives a performance that transports its audience to a wonderful world of make-believe, and makes them believe.

Marshall Borden as the Pontevdrian ambassador Baron Zeta is a delightfully funny, genteel buffoon. Moreover, he is lovingly sympathetic as he inadvertently and clumsily paves the rocky road of true love for than life. But Kaye, and Ron Raines as Danilo, are more than attractive singers in elegant costumes. They become a real man and woman overcoming pride and rancor to admit and enjoy their true feelings.

Then there's all the fun traditional to this show — the can-can girls from Maxim's, the men's can-can danced to their famous chorus, "Oh, The Women," and all the titillating flirtations.

One of the nicest surprises is discovering 1988 University Liggett School graduate Jonathan Hammond in the key supporting, comic role of Njegus, secretary of the embassy and crucial manipulator of the plot. Backstage after the performance he explained that he was "discovered" for this role by director Dorothy Danner when she saw him in "Forbidden Broadway." You might call in "Phantom of the Opera" the year he graduated from Liggett, and Raines, who has starred in opera and opereetta from Broadway to Opera Pacific.

But that lasted about five minutes. The pressure of rehearsing a show of this complexity to open in less than three weeks soon overcame that uneasiness. On stage, Hammond shows superb comic timing. He comes across like a seasoned character actor and his dance with the can-can chorus line at the night club party helps end the show on a lighthearted high.

Another good thing to report is that there are still three performances left; Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. and Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. The box office number is 874-7464 or call Ticket Master at 645-6666.

Grosse Pointe's Viennese ball is Dec. 4

When the 15 musicians strike up the first waltz at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's annual Christmas Viennese ball on Saturday, Dec. 4, they will be celebrating the 25th season of this popular event.

No one guessed when Felix Resnick led members of the DSO in a Viennese Gala evening as a part of the Summer Music Festival in 1969 that it would become a great tradition. But the appeal of the music of Johann Strauss and the opportunity to waltz to the music of a real string orchestra appears to have been irresistible.

The event was repeated in 1970 and became so popular that it was made independent of the festival and scheduled twice a year on the first Saturdays of December and May.

To guarantee quality music year after year, festival founder Alex Sucek made a trip to Vienna to purchase authentic Salon Orchestra scores from Strauss' publisher and recruited a special orchestra to play them. Several musicians from the original group still play with great enthusiasm at every ball. The orchestra makes such a good impression that it has been loaned to other organizations like the Michigan Garden Club for a Benefit Waltz Evening.

More than the music of Strauss is programmed, however. The dance card also offers waltzes of the great Viennese opereetta composer Franz Lehar, and Johann Schrammel. And to spice up the fun, there are tangos, cha-chas, a paso doble, polkas and fox trots. For many, it is as much fun to watch and listen as dance.

Special entertainment has been a frequent and popular surprise at intermission breaks as well. The ball has included among its guests quite a few leading a holiday sing-along.

Detroit Chamber Winds is an organization of wind and brass players drawn from the ranks of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Michigan Opera Theatre Orchestra. The ensemble has received critical acclaim for its singular dedication to artistic excellence.

Tickets for Holiday Brass are $18 ($12 for students and senior citizens), and may be purchased by telephoning Detroit Chamber Winds at 362-2622. Mastercard and Visa are accepted. The concert is sponsored by Butzel Long and by Bowne Inc.

Holiday Brass to perform

Holiday Brass, Detroit Chamber Winds annual seasonal celebration, will be presented at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church on Sunday, Dec. 5, at 7:30 p.m.

The evening will feature Detroit Chamber Winds' magnificent large brass choir — 12 of the area's most respected brass players and percussionists performing works spanning four centuries.

Included are a number of works prepared especially for Detroit Chamber Winds. Special guests will be The Grunyons, a popular male chorus that will join the ensemble in

Boisvert shines in Prokofiev concerto

By Alex Sucek
Special Writer

the stark and harsher elements of the composer's style, giving the work exceptional tenderness and beauty. It was like hearing a new side of this innovative Russian composer.

She also sailed through the work's considerable technical difficulties in long passages of harmonics and double stops with deceptive ease. That is not to suggest that Boisvert plays only tenderly. The harshly rhythmic passages of the second movement were appropriately guttural and arresting.

Guest conductor Hans Vonk provided excellent accompaniment for this difficult concerto, but was less successful in the rest of the program. His opening offering was Stravinsky's Symphonies of Wind Instruments. It is a work recognizable for characteristic Stravinsky tone colorings that are familiar from "Rites of Spring." It does, in fact, conjure images from that episode in Disney's "Fantasia." That is probably fortunate since the work is stark much of the time, highly rhythmic and studious, which was emphasized by Vonk's stiff leadership. Other impressions overheard were, "It sounds like the orchestra was warming up," and "reminds me of bird sounds in South Africa."

The big symphonic work for the evening was Schumann's Symphony No. 2. If you subscribe to a view based on the composer's report of his moods while working on it, Vonk's treatment can be interpreted as reflecting Schumann's temporary lapse into and recovery from a traumatic neurotic episode while he composed. The pace of the scherzo was frenzied at the close of the second movement only to change drastically in a masterful contrast to melancholy in the third. The mood changed again in the final movement with another accelerated tempo that had the string players' fingers racing.

It was, however, an exaggerated Schumann and while it conveyed at last the triumphant spirit of the work's conclusion, it missed the singing quality that is basic to the composer's style.

This weekend's concerts are a mixed treat. Soprano Kiri Te Kanawa and guest conductor Stephen Barlow present a concert of famous songs and arias tonight. Friday through Sunday the Kingston Trio and Erich Kunzel will romp through another program of the Pops Series. And Sunday evening, the Detroit Symphony Civic Orchestra will play music by Weber, Mozart and Mahler.

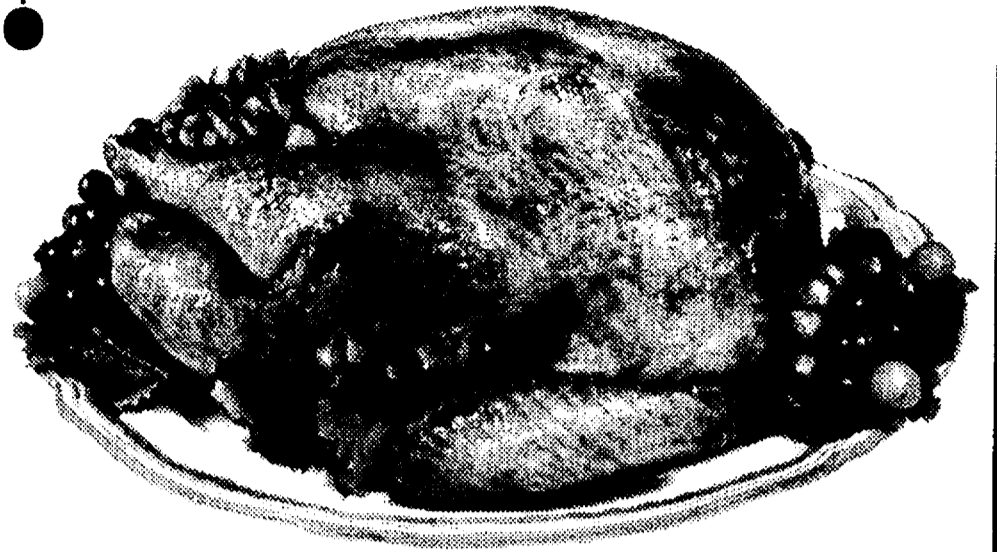

The regular classical series resumes on Friday, Nov. 26 with pianist Ruth Laredo performing Beethoven's fourth piano Concerto. For times and tickets call 833-3700.

LWV to hold meeting at Hunt Club

The League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe will hold its holiday dinner meeting for members and friends on Tuesday, Dec. 7, at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club, 655 Cook Road, Grosse Pointe Woods. The social hour, which will include a cash bar, will begin at 6 p.m., with dinner at 7 p.m.

After dinner, Barbara R. Moorhouse, an expert on state education funding and vice president for advocacy of the Michigan League of Women Voters, will discuss "Education Quality and Taxation Issues in Michigan."

The cost for the evening is $21 and the deadline for reservations is Monday, Nov. 29. For reservations or further information, call Pearl Warn at 885-8077 or mail your reservations and checks to Rachel Webers, 1244 Lakepointe, Grosse Pointe, 48230.

November is diabetes month

Michigan residents who have diabetes — and their families — can get free information on the latest diabetes treatments, programs and publications by calling the American Diabetes Association's DIAL (Diabetes Information and Action Line) program at 1-800-525-9292.

"Since November is National Diabetes Month, there's no better time for people with diabetes and their family members to call and find out about the wide range of programs and services the American Diabetes Association has to offer," said Scott Jacober, D.O., president of the American Diabetes Association, Michigan affiliate. "DIAL is easy, it's up-to-date and it's free."

Optimists make house calls for Coats for Cold

Lakeshore Optimists will begin collecting warm, useable outerwear earlier than in the past for their fifth annual Coats for the Cold drive. They'll even come to your house to pick up donations, according to Marv Redlawski, founder of the drive.

"You just can't believe the need that's out there," Redlawski said. "These coats are given away to needy families in the inner city within 24 hours of our delivery to the various churches we've selected. We have been told that people were turned away because of the shortage, so we're committed to this project from this day forward."

As in the past, the Optimists are collecting coats, hats, boots, scarves and shirts of all sizes, condition, colors and styles, he said.

This year, donations will be given to Fort Street Presbyterian Church's Open Door program, which helps Detroit's homeless and underprivileged by providing a variety of goods and services, including food, clothing, medical care and counseling.

Those who would like to donate items should call the Optimists' coats hotline at 881-6964 to leave their address on a recording machine. Then place items in a plastic bag and leave it on your front porch between noon and 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 4. If you want a receipt, list the items and put your name and address and the estimated value of the donation on the outside of the bag.

Christmas Bazaar

The Parents' Club of Grosse Pointe North High School will hold its annual Christmas Bazaar from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 20, at the school's Performing Arts Center, 707 Vernier in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Items will include country folk art, patchwork quilts, dolls, carved birds, jewelry and a variety of Christmas decorations and ornaments.

Children's Hospital benefits from Singles coalition dance

A coalition of metropolitan Detroit singles organizations will sponsor a dance the evening of opening day of the Festival of Trees on Saturday, Nov. 20, at the Riverfront Ballroom in the Cobo Conference Center.

Festival of Trees, a benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan, runs from Saturday, Nov. 20, through Sunday, Nov. 28, and includes more than 100 Christmas trees trimmed by professional designers, decorated wreaths, children's events, entertainment and a gift shop. Dozens of singles organizations, including Farmington Single Professionals, First Society of Detroit, Westlake Singles, Ford Singles, Selective Singles and Metropolitan Single Professionals will get together from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. to dance, socialize, meet new people, check out the trees and wreaths and entertainment at the Festival of Trees, and raise money for Children's Hospital of Michigan.

Admission is $12 in advance; $15 at the door. Tickets include hors d'oeuvres from 8 to 9 p.m., a cash bar and a DJ. Attire is semi-formal and men must wear a coat and tie.

To order tickets, make checks payable to Farmington Single Professionals, 30739 Shiawassee, Apt. 38, Farmington, 48336. For more information, call 478-9181.

G.P. Chess Club seeks members

Program will help parents understand adoption issues

Adoption doesn't end on the day a child joins a new family. Sooner or later, the child will ask questions about his or her birth parents. Understanding and adapting to the situation is a life-long process for the entire family.

LSS seeks foster families

Lutheran Social Services is looking for foster families for children with special needs in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. Many of the infants, toddlers and school-age children have experienced abuse and neglect and need families who can provide safety, security and special understanding. Anyone interested in becoming a foster parent should call 423-2760 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

To assist adoptive parents, parents who are considering adoption and professionals who work with adoptive families, William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak and the Family Tree, a Lathrup Village-based support group for parents considering adoption or who have an adopted child, are offering "Parenting the Adopted Child" from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 20, at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak.

The fee for the program is $20 a person. The fee for members of Family Tree is $15 a person. An optional box lunch will be offered for $5.50 a person. Participants who register after Nov. 11 must pay a $5 late registration fee. Call 557-3501 for further information.

DAVE and STAN

Lifelong partners since kindergarten, Stan & Dave would like a chance to become lifelong partners with you!

Dave Levy and Stan Schwartz, the owners of Classic Window & Siding, have been friends and partners in business ever since they were little kids. Though, as youngsters, back in the days of Kool-Aid stands, they probably never suspected that they would grow up to be the men behind the East area's most respected name in windows and siding. On the other hand, if their Kool-Aid was any indication of what was to come, on a hot summer day, they knew even then what it meant to be in demand.

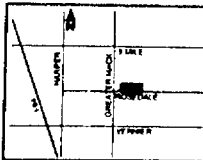

For years, Classic Window and Siding has been providing Eastside neighborhoods with the best in sales and installation of vinyl windows and siding. They also specialize in hand-crafted, custom-designed bay and bow windows. With each sale they make, they provide the customer with the "complete package." There are never any hidden additional costs on materials and labor which are covered by Classic's famous 30-year guarantee.

But Dave and Stan will tell you "an excellent product alone does not make a great business." What distinguishes Classic Window and Siding from the pack is their unwavering commitment to their customers. Dave, Stan and the staff at Classic make themselves available to their customers on a 24-hour basis to answer any questions or to assist with any service.

Classic's experience in serving homeowners has enabled them to anticipate the concerns of new customers. Often, they can answer questions before they're even asked. For example, to assure their new customers they are getting the finest in windows, siding and service, they maintain a computerized list of all their previous customers to be used as references. Once the work on a house is completed, Dave and Stan inspect it themselves to insure that the job not only meets the customer's expectations, but lives up to Classic Window and Siding's reputation as well.

In the past year alone, Classic has earned the total satisfaction of over 1600 residential customers. In addition to quick, responsible and dependable service, much of their success is due to making their windows and siding affordable to almost every budget. "We believe that the bottom line is providing our customers with exactly what they want, at a price they can comfortably handle," says Dave.

Thanksgiving: A time for gardeners to rejoice

How many of us really stop to think about why Thanksgiving Day got started?

We are treated to lavish feasts complete with turkey and pumpkin pie and, for one day, we can forget all about diets and calories and cholesterol. Thanksgiving Day brings us the thickest newspaper of the year, full of ads for sales the day after, which is the biggest shopping day of the year.

The TV set is tuned to football games and parades, and family gatherings are the order of the day.

The first Thanksgiving was just that — a celebration of gratitude to God for a bountiful harvest after a series of near disasters. Perhaps we should take a little time to reflect on the original significance of Thanksgiving and count our blessings.

Gardeners take a special note of this holiday, since bountiful harvests are close to their hearts.

Through the parade of months from the first radish to the storage of winter squash, there is much to rejoice in. And to gardeners and farmers, there is always another season to come. This one, always, was the best one yet, but next year promises even greater triumphs.

Detroit's first large-scale flower show was a huge success. Under the auspices of the Detroit Journal, a newspaper now long gone, and its editor, William H. Brearly, the show had been a citywide project and was one of the highlights of the social scene of 1890.

At one exhibit, the ladies acting as hostesses wore lavender dresses and big hats decorated with pansies in shades of purple and lavender. The descriptions of the show in the local press were flowery, in more ways than one.

In the 1890s, Detroit was a garden-filled city. Just before the turn of the century, the Detroit city garden was created, in an area about 150 feet square occupying space in the center of the city near the river. There was a small outdoor theater, arbors and shade trees, with roses and flowering shrubs bordering the paths. It was a popular place and shared honors with its rival and competitor, the Michigan garden, which was located at what is now the corner of Jefferson and Brush and was, in the lavish language of the time, "an example of noble planting."

At that time, on many of the streets radiating from downtown Detroit, the spacious gardens of prominent citizens enhanced their large and comfortable homes. Iron stags pawed the spreading lawns enclosed by wrought-iron fences and enhanced by fountains or rowboats filled with bright petunias.

Later on, Belle Isle was developed as a city-owned park with its woodlands, lawns and playing fields. During the early years of this century, flowering crabapple and cherry trees were planted along the lakeshore and at the zoological park.

The first of all the commercial orchards in Michigan was planted in 1824 and heralded the vast apple and pear orchards that comprise a leading industry today. William Woodbridge, later governor of Michigan, planted 2,000 apple and pear trees on his Detroit farm. The Detroit farm of Theodoros Lyon became famous far beyond the boundaries of the state as a testing ground for many varieties of fruit

Another governor of Michigan, Hazen S. Pingree, was famous in his day as "Potato Patch Ping." He organized on vacant ground the first community subsistence plots, selling his favorite saddle horses to finance the project.

There once was a very large and beautiful floral clock on the lawn at Waterworks Park. People were enthralled by it, asking, "What time does it say now?" or "How soon will the four o'clocks open?" and "When will the day lilies close?"

Flower shows are a continuing tradition here, and there are more garden clubs in Grosse Pointe than in any other community in the country except Stamford, Conn., which has two more than we do.

One flower show not to be missed is the annual display of chrysanthemums in the Anna Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle. Opening this month, it runs until mid-December as it has for many years. It offers everything from tall-stemmed giants to miniature buttons. Colors range from gentle pastels to rich, deep tones in daisy types, anemones, Japanese fugis, cascades, hanging baskets and more.

Chrysanthemums belong to the daisy family and are native to Japan, China, northern Africa and southern Europe. They were cultivated in China at least 500 years before the birth of Christ, and about 1,000 years after that, in Japan.

The first blooms arrived in Holland in 1688, but did not survive. Another 100 years passed before cultivated varieties from China were introduced to France, and from there, in 1795, to England. Chrysanthemums arrived in America in 1798 with John Stevens, of Hoboken, N.J., and are listed in his nursery catalog.

Dates sets for home shows

The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM) has announced the dates of its 1994 home shows.

"As remodeling and new home construction remain on the increase, homeowners find home shows to be an invaluable resource for finding the right contractor or product," said Fred I. Capaldi, president of BASM and head of Capaldi Building Co. in Rochester Hills.

BASM will sponsor the second annual Spring Home & Garden Show, Feb. 3-6, at the Novi Expo Center in Novi; the 76th annual International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show, March 19-27, at the Cobo Conference-Exhibition Center in Detroit; the 12th annual HOMEARAMA, May 26-June 12, at Brentwood subdivision in Shelby Township; and the second annual Fall Remodeling Show, Sept. 29-Oct. 2, at the Novi Expo Center in Novi.

The shows at the Novi Expo Center feature products and services for the home and garden. The Cobo Builders Show will have over two acres of gardens, over 100 cut flower arrangements, entertainment and demonstrations, as well as products and services for the home and garden.

HOMEARAMA is a public showing of new homes built especially for public display by members of BASM featuring the latest ideas in home design and building techniques, as well as decor and landscaping.

"Homeowners are able to see products and services for the home and garden at Homearama in actual settings for their current or new home," Capaldi said.

Your home can be used to help pay the bills

By Doug Stranahan
Divisional President
Century 21 Great Lakes Inc.

The "American Dream" of owning a home has many advantages. Tax deductions, potential for selling at a profit and the pride of owning your own place are a few that first come to mind. But your home can also become a source for paying off nagging credit card bills, sending your kids to college and buying a new car.

Now more than in years past, families are taking advantage of home equity loans as a low-interest financial alternative to conventional loans. Equity is the difference between the current market value of your house and the remaining balance on your mortgage. If your home is worth $90,000 and carries a mortgage balance of $40,000, your equity would be $50,000. A percentage of this amount can be borrowed against to pay for anything from a new patio to a wedding.

Lending rules vary around the country. Typically, lenders will grant second mortgages of no more than 75 percent of home equity. But because we are currently in a competitive marketplace, some institutions will offer loans equal to 100 percent of a home's equity.

There are two types of home equity loans: traditional lump sum and revolving lines of credit. With a lump sum, or "installment loan," lenders extend a specific amount to the borrower over a certain number of years. Fixed interest and principal payments are figured into a monthly payment schedule. Homeowners can borrow up to 80 percent of their equity with an installment equity loan.

Revolving lines of credit allow homeowners to draw from a pool of available funds up to 75 percent of a home's equity. The advantage of a revolving loan is that borrowers only have to pay interest on what they spend. Similar to opening a new account, lending institutions will set up special checking accounts or credit cards for withdrawals on the loan. Typically, these loans carry variable interest rates.

For each type of home equity loan, borrowers must have a good credit history and minimal debt. The sum of monthly payments on current mortgages and the new loan should not exceed 36 percent of gross monthly income.

Interest rates for a home equity loan are usually about 2 percent higher than the prime rate.

Condo sales up; first-time buyers like low mortgage rates

Sales of existing condominiums and co-operatives jumped notably during the third quarter of this year, as more purchasers — particularly first-time buyers — took advantage of extremely low mortgage rates, according to the National Association of Realtors.

The association recorded a national seasonally adjusted annual sales rate of 409,000 previously owned apartment condominiums and co-operatives for July, August and September. The third-quarter resale rate was 19.6 percent higher than that for the third quarter of 1992, and 9.7 percent higher than that for the second quarter of 1993.

Continued low mortgage rates during the third quarter broadened home ownership opportunities for many budget-conscious, entry-level buyers, said NAR president William S. Chee. "A condo or co-op is an excellent starter home," Chee said. "It's a smart way to accumulate equity that can be applied to a second home."

Buying conditions currently are very favorable for people buying their first homes. Chee noted that many singles who were previously priced out of the market now are finding that purchases can be made with one income.

According to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., the national average commitment rate for 30-year, conventional, fixed-rate mortgages declined from 7.21 percent in July to 6.91 percent in September. On the whole, mortgage rates hit their lowest point in more than 20 years, and remained more than one percentage point below the level of one year ago.

The national median price for existing condominiums and co-operatives was $84,100 during the third quarter, down 1.2 percent from the third quarter of 1992. The decline reflects heavy activity by first-time buyers, most of whom presumably purchase in the lower price range. In general, condominiums and co-operatives tend to be less expensive than single-family homes. The condo price was 22.4 percent below the third-quarter national price for existing single-family homes, which was $108,400.

Because condominiums tend to have lower maintenance requirements than single-family homes, the units are a wise choice for buyers whose busy lifestyles often keep them away from home, Chee noted.

The northeast, which has the largest share of condominiums as a percentage of total housing, experienced a remarkable increase in activity, posting the largest gain in condo and co-op resales on a regional basis. Units were sold at a rate of 99,000 units during the third quarter, rising 28.6 percent from the third quarter of 1992 and 32.0 percent from the second quarter of 1993.

The second-quarter median price for condominiums in the northeast was $102,700, 1.6 percent lower than that posted a year earlier. The northeast price was 26.9 percent less than the median price of $140,400 for single-family homes in the region during the third quarter.

In the south, condominiums and co-operatives were sold at a rate of 129,000 units during the third quarter, which was 24.0 percent above the rate for the third quarter of 1992 and 5.7 percent above the rate for the second quarter of 1993.

Much of the south's condo market is in Florida, where many sales are made to retirees. The median condo price in the south was $69,500, 0.3 percent above that for the third quarter of 1992. The condo price was 28.6 percent below the third-quarter price of $97,400 for single-family homes.

The midwest also posted a healthy increase in the resale pace of condos and co-ops. The rate in that region was 71,000 units in the third quarter, up 12.7 percent from the third quarter of 1992 and 4.4 percent above the rate for the second quarter of 1993.

The median condo price for the second quarter was $75,600, 0.3 percent above that for one year ago. Condominium prices are closer to single-family home prices in the midwest than in any other region. The third-quarter condo price was 11.6 percent below the single-family home price, which was $85,700.

The condo and co-op market in the west also was active. That region posted a third-quarter resale pace of 110,000 units for condos and co-ops, which was 12.2 percent above the rate recorded one year earlier and 1.9 percent above the rate for the second quarter of 1993.

The second-quarter median price for condos in the west was $105,200, 4.5 percent below that for the third quarter of 1992. The condominium price was 26.5 percent below the third-quarter price for single-family homes, which was $143,000.

'1994 Publications Catalog' for appraisers is available

Real estate professionals can keep informed of changes and advancements in the appraisal field by consulting the "1994 Publications Catalog" just released by the Appraisal Institute, the world's leading publisher of appraisal literature.

Representing the most comprehensive collection of appraisal products on the market, the "1994 Publications Catalog" offers today's practitioners access to a wide range of products — from appraisal textbooks to videotapes and audiocassettes.

Appraisal Institute publications are developed by appraisers, and are continually revised to meet the needs and interests of the real estate appraisal profession. New offerings include a timely videotape examining the impact of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) on real estate appraisal, and specialty texts on the valuation of shopping centers, subdivisions, and outdoor advertising signs.

One of the Appraisal Institute's most respected texts, "The Dictionary of Real Estate Appraisal," has been updated to include more than 5,000 real estate and business-related terms. This third edition includes a topical index in which terms are listed under specific subject classifications and extensive addenda on state certification and licensing, the 14 FIRREA guidelines for review appraisers, recent Supreme Court decisions affecting real estate appraisal, and much more.

Another noteworthy new book is "The Office Building: From Concept to Investment Reality," published jointly by the Appraisal Institute, the Counselors of Real Estate, and the Society of Industrial and Office Realtors Educational Fund. This textbook examines every aspect of office building development from building design to market analysis and investment strategies. Its 32 chapters address all the pressing issues that characterize the market for office buildings in the 1990s.

With products covering more than 70 appraisal-related subjects, the "1994 Publications Catalog" is a valuable reference source for real estate professionals. To obtain a free copy of the "1994 Publications Catalog," write the Appraisal Institute, P.O. Box 10956, Dept. 93DMPC, Chicago, Ill. 60610-0956. ## Home Tips

SAFE HEMS — I use jumbo paper clips instead of straight pins when I am hemming a dress for my young daughter. This eliminates any worry about her legs getting scratches when she moves or takes the dress off. Phyllis P., Jamaica, N.Y.

FALLEN BAGS — After many frustrating years of having grocery bags that tipped over in the trunk of the car, my husband came up with the perfect solution. He bought two long, rectangular plastic crates that fit side-by-side in the trunk. Each one holds three bags, and nothing spills out. Jenna R., San Bernadino, Calif.

FOND MEMORIES — When I find pictures of friends or family members or articles about them in the newspaper, I like to clip the article and present it to the "celebrity." I laminate the clipping on both sides with clear adhesive-backed plastic and trim the edges. This creates a well-preserved, long-lasting memento.

Southern Colonial charm and a 2nd floor bonus room

By W.D. Farmer

The front porch with large columns and gable roof provide sheltered entry into the two story foyer of this Colonial home. A stair leads to the second floor, and a basement stair is tucked beneath the stair up. Coat storage is accessed from this area as well.

A large dining room opens to the foyer and to the kitchen. The kitchen is immense and includes a wealth of cabinet space together with a snack bar counter top. The breakfast room with bay window has a large cased opening into the vaulted family room with fireplace.

The breakfast room also leads to a large pantry and a convenient laundry room. Direct access is also provided to the double garage with storage room.

The foyer helps create a great traffic pattern to the central half bath and the living room, which in turn leads to the master bedroom or the family room. The master suite is fit for royalty. The large bedroom is enhanced by the octagonal tray ceiling. The master bath has an abundance of features, including a sloped ceiling, whirlpool tub, glass shower with seat, twin walk-in closets, double vanity and separate toilet compartment.

Upstairs the balcony overlooks the foyer and the family room. There are twin bedrooms with a larger-than-average half bath. A disappearing stair to attic storage is provided as well. The bonus room over the garage is enormous and is shown with a sloped ceiling.

The exterior of the home is southern Colonial with balanced wings and a gabled front porch including four large columns.

Plan No. 2380 includes 2,369 square feet without the bonus room, and 2,709 square feet with the bonus room. The computer-generated plan is drawn in accordance with FHA and VA requirements.

For further information, write W.D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc. P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, Ga. 30345.

Education catalog offered for real estate professionals

Individuals serious about careers in real estate appraisal need a solid educational foundation to compete in an increasingly complex field. A leading educator of appraisers, the Appraisal Institute has just released its "1994 Education Catalog," which offers an extensive collection of basic and advanced appraisal courses and continuing education seminars.

Appraisal Institute president Bernard J. Fountain said, "The offerings in the '1994 Education Catalog' can help appraisers meet state certification and licensing requirements and develop the skills necessary to achieve the highest distinction in the field — a professional designation."

The "1994 Education Catalog" describes the Appraisal Institute's two-tiered educational curriculum consisting of basic (Level I) and advanced (Level II) programs. Level I and Level II courses are available in both general and residential paths to professional designation and include offerings that range from Standards of Professional Practice to Advanced Sales Comparison and Cost Approaches.

In addition to week-long Level I and Level II courses, the Appraisal

Institute offers a wide variety of one- and two-day seminars for real estate professionals who wish to expand their professional expertise and satisfy state continuing education requirements. The many new and updated seminars available include Environmental Impact on Property Value, The New Uniform Residential Appraisal Report (URAR), Discounted Cash Flow Analysis, Appraisal Practices for Litigation, and Advanced Income Capitalization.

Each course description in the catalog is followed by a list of required and optional course materials, fees, and schedules. Housing and course site information is also provided. Courses and seminars are offered at sites throughout the United States so interested individuals can obtain training in their area. In addition, many Appraisal Institute chapters sponsor extension courses and seminars periodically.

To obtain a free copy of the "1994 Education Catalog," write the Appraisal Institute, P.O. Box 10956, Dept. 93DMEC, Chicago, Ill. 60610-0956. To order by phone, call Audry Moore at (312) 335-4216.

Here's a country plan with four bedrooms

By W.D. Farmer

Cross the large country styled front porch and enter this home through a long formal entrance foyer. The dining room is through a cased opening and features a bay window. Another cased opening leads directly into the activity room, or to the stairs up to an undeveloped attic area. The ceiling in the activity room is a stepped tray, providing an elegant feeling.

The kitchen and breakfast room open to the activity room, also contributing to the feeling of spaciousness. The breakfast room has a bay window and overlooks the sun deck, which is accessible either from the master bedroom or the activity room.

The kitchen includes all the modern conveniences. In an extra touch for the cook, the sink is located overlooking a snack bar between this area and the activity room.

The master bedroom is located off a hall which connects to the laundry room and oversized double garage. A half bath is located here as well for daytime use.

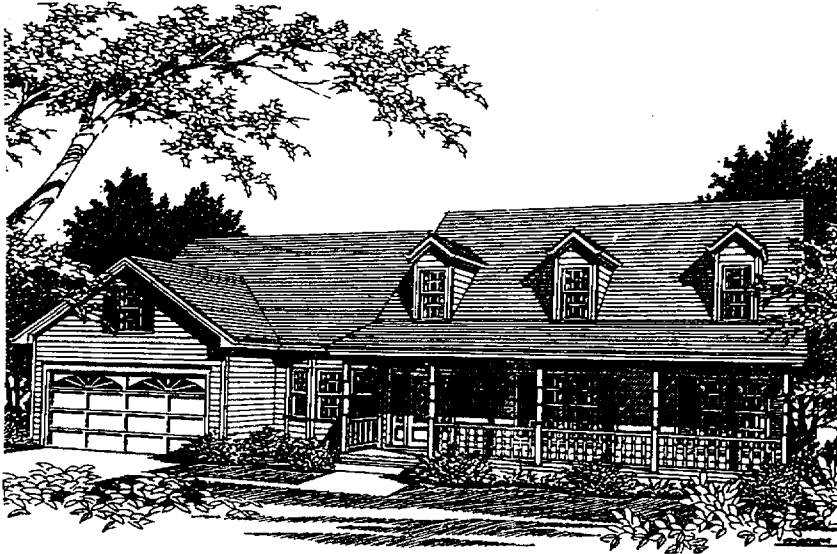

The master suite has another stepped tray ceiling and a lavish bath including separate glass shower and garden tub. A closet with abundant hanging space is coupled with the bath area.

The three remaining bedrooms, which share a central bath, are accessible from a hall off the activity room.

The exterior is country with triple dormers, a covered front porch and horizontal wood siding.

Plan No. 2558 is computer generated and drawn in accordance with FHA and VA requirements, and contains 2,595 square feet. For further information, write W.D. Farmer Residence Designer Inc., P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, Ga. 30345.

Household Help

Q. I am preparing to put my home up for sale. In order to make it more saleable, I'm doing some repairs and also plan on painting. Recently, I've gotten some conflicting advice regarding painting over wallpaper. Can you give me the proper method?

A. There are several factors to consider before I can give you the green light to paint over wallpaper. Yes, you can paint over wallpaper, if it is firmly bonded. Another very important pointer is that you should only paint over one layer of material. If the surface you are planning to paint has an embossed finish, you will have to remove the paper, because the raised texture

Of course, if there are several layers of paper on the wall, you will have no choice but to remove the wallpaper. You have two options for safe and easy removal. One is to rent an electric wallpaper steamer, which is generally the most preferred technique. It is usually affordable and should do the job in a day's rental time. The other way is the use of chemicals that you can buy especially for paper removal. The manner in which this approach works can be a little tricky and requires patience. Be sure to wear eye protection when using these chemicals.

When are you ready to purchase a home?

By Doug Stranaham
Divisional President
Century 21 Great Lakes Inc.

With low interest rates, plenty of available housing and an abundance of affordable mortgage plans, especially for first-time buyers, you may feel ready to buy a home. But are you really prepared? There are many factors to consider before taking the first big step.

Begin by examining your finances. Saving for a down payment is only the beginning. There are closing costs, insurance, moving expenses and property taxes to consider. Will your income support your monthly mortgage payments? No more than 28 percent of your gross monthly income should be applied to house payments.

Also, take into consideration other outstanding bills such as credit card debt and car payments. Estimate your new monthly utility bills. And remember, you'll no longer have a landlord to mow the lawn and fix leaky faucets. It's important to also have a cash reserve set aside for unexpected emergencies such as broken pipes or a new furnace.

How's your credit history? Past delinquent payments stay on your record for seven years and can affect your eligibility for a mortgage. Check your credit record and clear up any discrepancies before applying for a loan.

Estimate how long you plan to live in the home. The length of your stay affects the type of mortgage you should choose. For example, if you anticipate starting a family and moving into a larger home in five to seven years, an adjustable rate mortgage can mean lower monthly payments during the first few years.

With your finances in order, decide upon your new place of residence. Can you afford to buy where you currently rent? If not, are you ready to relocate to a new area, away from familiar people and places? Are you willing to commute a longer distance to work? It's a good idea to rent in your new community before committing to a purchase. That way you can check out the neighborhood and what it has to offer and determine if it's for you.

You may find the homes you can afford and the communities in which you'll live are not what you had envisioned. Be reasonable. Waterfront properties and extras, such as large lots and multiple bedrooms and baths, are nice but not worth it if you must overextend yourself financially. Not only does a larger home mean larger monthly payments, it may mean larger utility bills.

Examine the home's layout, appliances and decor. Will you have to come up with even more money to replace floor coverings or kitchen and bathroom appliances and fixtures? What about the furnace, hot water heater, washer and dryer? These are major purchases that can set you back financially.

An experienced real estate agent can help you decide whether you are really ready to buy and determine how much house you can actually afford. Although now is the best time to buy a home — the affordability index is the strongest it has been in 20 years — purchasing a home is probably the biggest investment you'll ever make. Don't walk in with your eyes closed.

Antiques by Ralph & Terry Kovel

ANTIQUÉ WHEELCHAIR A BARGAIN — Wheelchairs and adjustable beds sound like modern ideas, but our ancestors made many special pieces of furniture for the use of the injured or ill. As early as the 18th century there were special stools to elevate the leg. They were popular with those who suffered from gout. Wing chairs were designed to keep drafts away. All sorts of canes, walking sticks, walkers and even crutches were used.

Wheelchairs were known in the 19th century. The Montgomery Ward catalog of 1894 offered an oak, wicker and iron chair with three wheels. Many types of wheelchairs were made, and most of them used light-weight wicker and iron wheels. There are only a few collectors of these special pieces, so many are sold at bargain prices, often under $150.

Q. How old are Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy?

A. Johnny Gruelle created Raggedy Ann in 1918 as a character in stories he told to his sick daughter. In 1920, he added Andy, a younger brother, to the stories. Raggedy Andy became one of the first popular boy dolls in America. The Raggedys have remained popular and have appeared in cartoons, many books, a 1921 musical, a 1940 animated film and in many plays.

There are many Raggedy dolls, puppets, Christmas ornaments, greeting cards, paper plates, calendars and figurines. Most of them were made in 1988, the 70th anniversary of the creation of the characters.

Park weighs a bid to require bicyclists to wear helmets

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

At the request of the Trombly school PTO, the Grosse Pointe Park City Council has been reviewing the possibility of passing an ordinance requiring bicyclists to wear helmets while riding in the city.

Dr. Catherine Nordby, at the request of the PTO, recently contacted the council and asked that councilmembers consider a helmet ordinance.

"Closed head injuries are a serious problem in this country," said Nordby. "According to a Centers for Disease Control study done between 1984 and 1988, there were 900,000 bicycle-related closed head injuries. And 750,000 of these injuries could have been avoided if the riders wore helmets."

The report, Nordby said, also stated that the cost of treating these closed head injuries was $7.6 billion a year.

The first bicycle helmet law passed in the country was enacted in Howard County, Md. Nordby said, when two middle school students died in bicycle accidents within six months of each other. This law has become a model for communities across the country, Nordby said, and she would like to see the Park pass an ordinance similar to the Howard County law.

"It's important for riders to wear helmets," Nordby said. "Bicycle safety is something we must teach our children."

Nordby has three children, two of whom attend Trombly. She is aware of the difficulty parents have in getting children to wear helmets. Education without a law won't do it, just as a law without education won't be enough, she said.

Park resident Sears Taylor strongly takes exception to any proposed helmet ordinances.

"I think the character of the Park, as opposed to the other Grosse Pointes, is more independent," Taylor said. "We don't need the government telling us to wear helmets. The police have better things to do than enforce a helmet rule. I don't like the government, whether it's Bill Clinton or the Park council, telling me what to do, healthwise."

Both he and his wife wear helmets when they go bicycling, Taylor said. The issue is not the value of helmets, he said, it's government interference in something that should be a private decision.

Nordby strongly disputes that argument. She notes, that with the government paying for more and more health care, it has a strong interest in improving the state of public health.

Councilmember Vernon Ausherman, who reviewed Nordby's request, said that passing an ordinance for the Park poses problems.

"The ordinance review committee looked at a helmet proposal, and found there were a number of problems," Ausherman said. "The state police and the Michigan Association of Municipal Attorneys have taken the position that any helmet law be statewide."

Having individual cities with individual laws would prove difficult, Ausherman said. A bicycle rider traveling from the City of Grosse Pointe to the Park without a helmet would be obeying the law in the City, but breaking it in the Park.

Ausherman said the council will urge support for House Bill 4953, which would require a helmet for bicycle riders 4 years old and younger. Ausherman said that citizens who want stricter helmet laws should encourage their state representatives to enact stronger rules.

Park resident Louise Snyder said — whether or not some sort of government rule is passed — parents should encourage their children to wear helmets.

"I know it's tough to get kids to wear helmets," Snyder said. "But the younger they start the easier it is. Helmets make good sense. Parents shouldn't have to be told by the government to encourage helmet use."

Safe at any speed

Bike safety begins at home, where parents and older siblings can set a positive example, according to local police youth safety officers.

Although none of the Pointe municipalities has ordinances on the books requiring bicyclists to wear protective headgear, at least one community, Grosse Pointe Park, is considering the possibility of adopting such a law.

In the mean time, accidents can be avoided if all bike riders heed the following advice:

- Wear a bicycle helmet
- Obey all traffic laws
- Ride with the flow of traffic
- Children under 12 are required to ride on the sidewalk, even if accompanied by an adult
- Night riders should wear reflective clothing and outfit their bikes with reflectors and/or lights
- All children should obey crossing guards

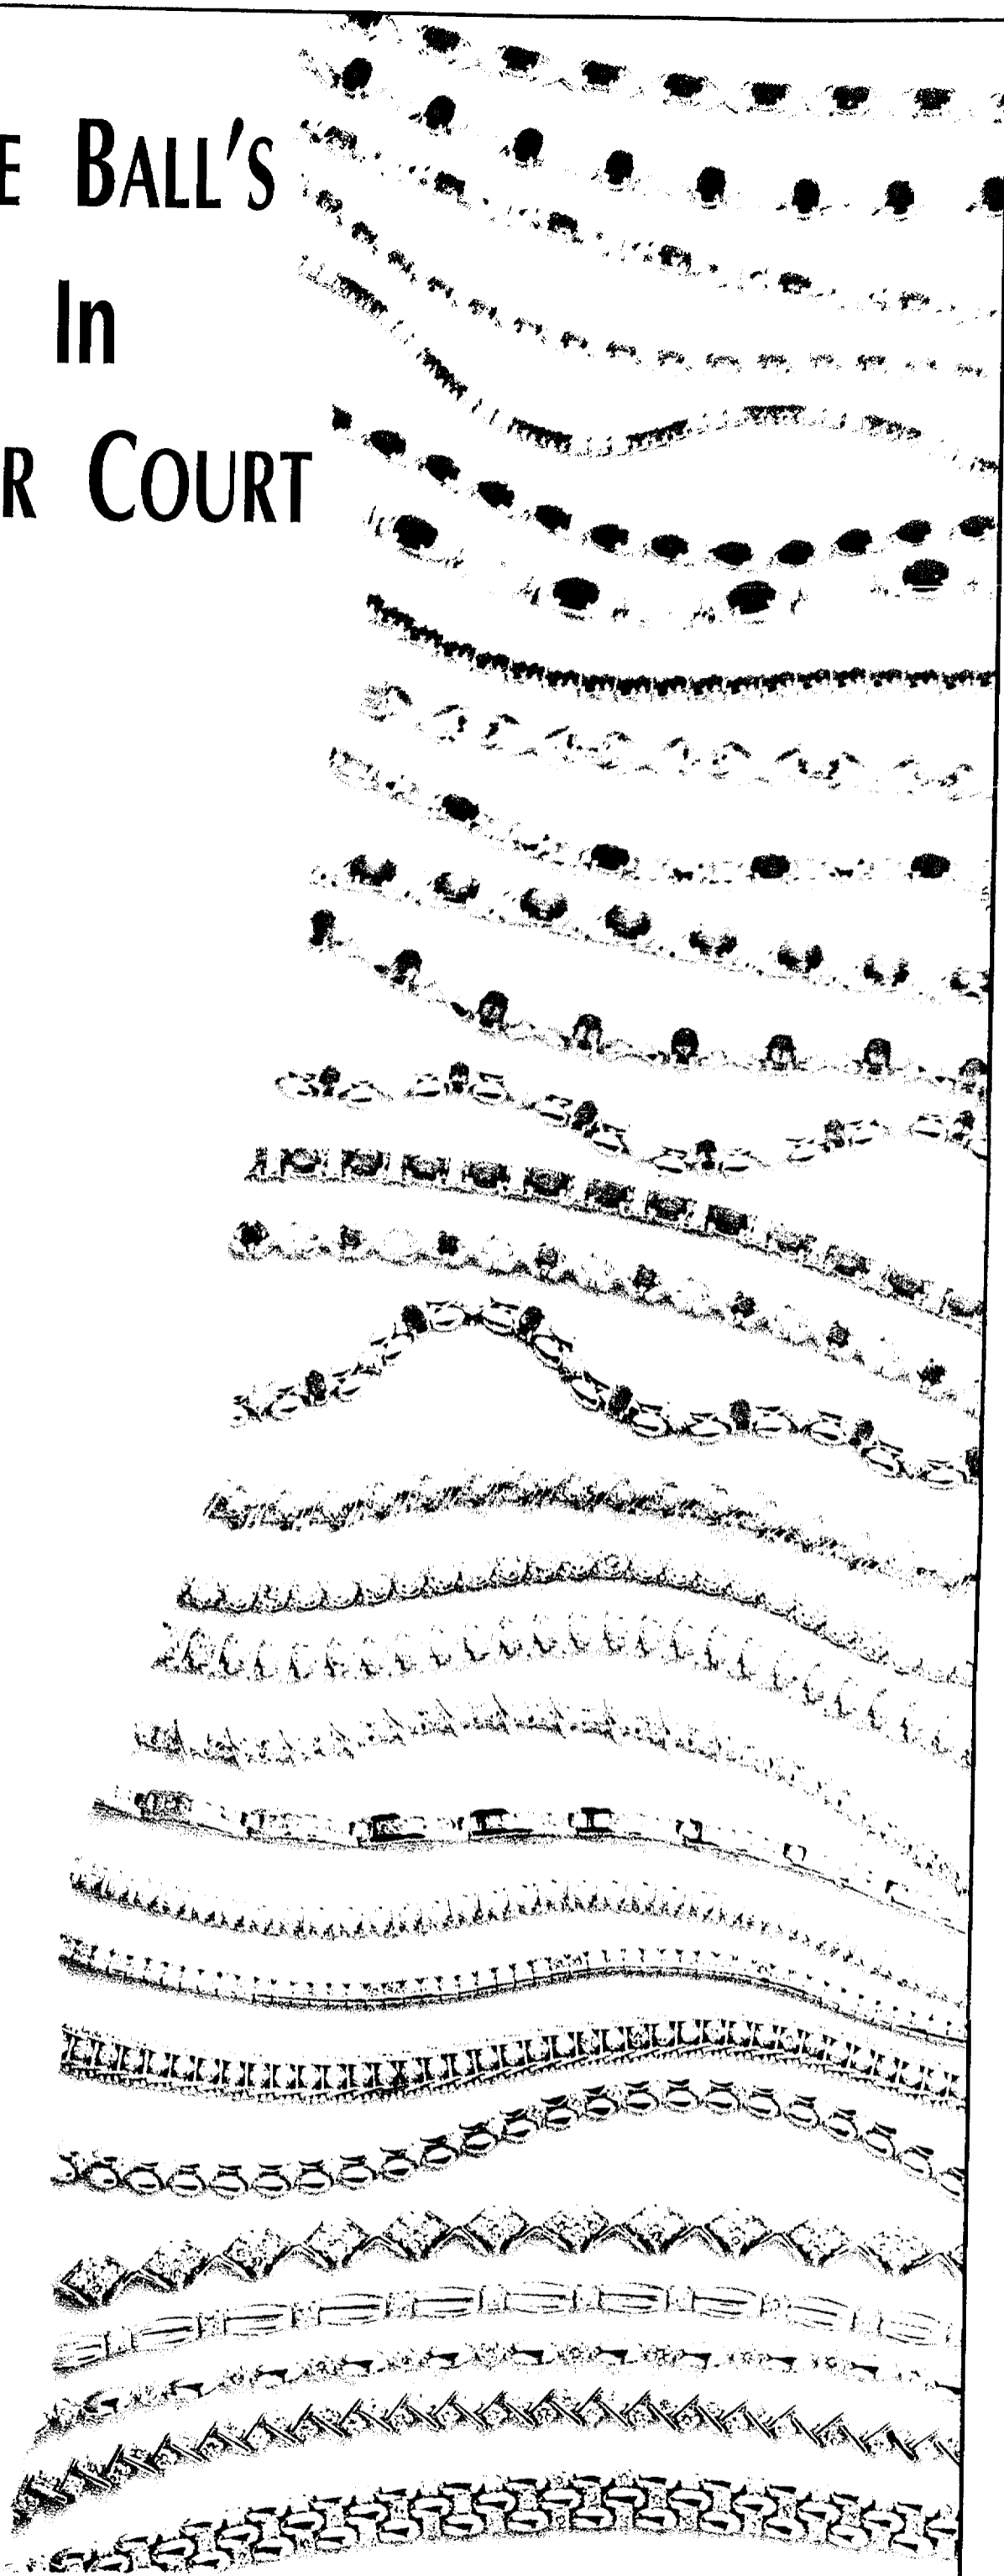

"Bicyclists should ride defensively," said Grosse Pointe Woods public safety officer John Albrecht. "Assume people won't see you. When you make a mistake on a bike the consequences are much more serious. Most bike accidents happen because the rider was not careful. The majority of accidents happen at stop signs and traffic lights."

History available

Local author Bruce L. Sanders has written a series of books on the history of the homes and families that lived on Bishop, Kensington and Yorkshire in the Park between 1915 and 1993.

The books are available in large or small editions. Costs vary based on the number of streets and blocks included in the book. For more information, call Bruce Sanders at 882-7838
