

One step at a time — April 10 MS Walk reaches for a cure

Much is known about multiple sclerosis. Doctors know that certain people are more likely to be afflicted than others. Doctors know what causes the disease that affects 250,000 Americans and how to give appropriate medical support to those suffering the symptoms. What isn't known is a cure. Everyone can do their part to further research toward finding a cure for MS by participating in the annual MS Walk to be held this Sunday, April 10, in Grosse Pointe. The walk begins at 8 a.m. at Grosse Pointe South High School and will follow a 12.5-mile course that goes down Lakeshore. Last year's Grosse Pointe walk attracted 1,579 participants and raised $176,220. Participants collect pledges from sponsors and receive prizes based on the number of pledges they collect. Pledge money is put toward funding the Michigan chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society which provides information and referral services, counseling, advice, assistance in acquiring and maintaining medical equipment, educational and recreational programs, social activities and a summer camp program.

Advance registration for the walk is encouraged, but forms will be accepted the morning of the walk. For additional information, call the MS Society at 358-9050. Multiple sclerosis is a disease that randomly attacks the nervous system, wearing away a person's control over his or her bodily functions. It is a devastating disease that cannot be predicted.

Every week 200 Americans are diagnosed with MS, although symptoms vary among individuals. MS is caused by interruption of nerve impulses to the brain due to the destruction of myelin, a fatty substance that surrounds and protects nerve fibers of the brain and spinal cord, similar to the way insulation protects electrical wires.

Common symptoms include tingling sensations, numbness, slurred speech, blurred or double vision, muscle weakness, poor coordination, unusual fatigue, muscle cramps, spasms, problems with bladder, bowel and sexual functions and paralysis. Symptoms range from mild to severe, but at least two separate attacks are necessary for a diagnosis.

Ready to roll

You know it has to be a fine spring day when firefighters pull their shiny trucks outside to show them off. Such was the case last Friday at the Grosse Pointe Woods public safety department fire-hall. The Woods' trucks aren't fire-engine red, but they're sparkling, nevertheless, and they do stand out.

Woods briefed, OKs funds for Children's Home

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Diverting youths from a life of crime is a worthwhile investment, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council decided Monday night.

The council voted 6-1 to fund the Children's Home of Detroit's Youth Assistance Program to the tune of $7,440 despite severe criticism of the home by councilmember Jean Rice.

Two weeks ago representatives from the Children's Home approached the council for the Woods' annual contribution to the Youth Assistance Program. The sum of $7,440 was based on the number of Woods residents who used the program last year.

The program diverts Grosse Pointe youths who have committed minor crimes out of the Wayne County juvenile system. The home offers counseling and other services for offenders.

But the Woods council voted to table the funding request for two weeks so that city officials could have the chance to meet with officials from the other Pointes and Harper Woods and be briefed on the program.

The Children's Home took over the program four years ago. It was started by the Family Life Education Council eight years ago, and the Woods has been a participant from the program's inception.

Before the council voted on the request, councilmember Rice asked Children's Home representatives several questions, and made several comments about the home. She asked coordinator of community programs Jane Iaquaniello about funding. Rice said she had heard that parents whose children used the program were to be billed.

Iaquaniello replied that the home was going to levy a fee, but decided not to because some parents wouldn't pay, and they did not want to deprive a youth of the program because his or her parents did not want to pay for it. So the home decided to seek donations from the parents instead.

Iaquaniello said that the home was going to levy a fee, but decided not to because some parents wouldn't pay, and they did not want to deprive a youth of the program because his or her parents did not want to pay for it. So the home decided to seek donations from the parents instead.

The council voted 6-1 for the appropriation. Peter Gilezan was unable to attend Monday's meeting.

Rice asked if any parents came through with donations, and was told by Iaquaniello that many did.

Rice then suggested to the council that the city make a token payment to the home for the program, and then be billed as Woods youths go through the program instead of making one lump payment based on last year's use.

"I will vote against this request," Rice said. "I think parents should pay for this, and I think parents should take care of their children. I don't want to support an entity that ruins a neighborhood. We get all kinds of letters from people who live by the home saying that their property values are being affected by the home. We also get all kinds of complaints about traffic from people attending evening meetings. I know I will be the only one to vote against this, but someone has to look out for the interests of citizens."

Iaquaniello told Rice that the youths served by the program are Grosse Pointe residents. She said they are the citizens of the future and that the home offers Grosse Pointe youths better service than that provided by Wayne County. She also reminded Rice that the cities only pay for 50 percent of the costs of the program. The Children's Home pays for the other half.

Mayor Robert Novitke said he appreciates the fact that the Children's Home provides the kind of social services that are lacking in Grosse Pointe, and he appreciates the service youths get, especially when considering what kind of service they would get from Wayne County.

Councilmember James Alogdelis said that he has taught at the home and agreed with Novitke that it is a better alternative for Grosse Pointe youths than Wayne County.

The council voted 6-1 for the appropriation. Peter Gilezan was unable to attend Monday's meeting.

Mom's tradition helps ease tragedy

Each year, about Easter time, the library at Grosse Pointe North High School receives a gift from the mother of two former students.

This year, "Ukraine: A Historical Atlas," was presented to the school and placed atop a display case with other items of Ukraine origin.

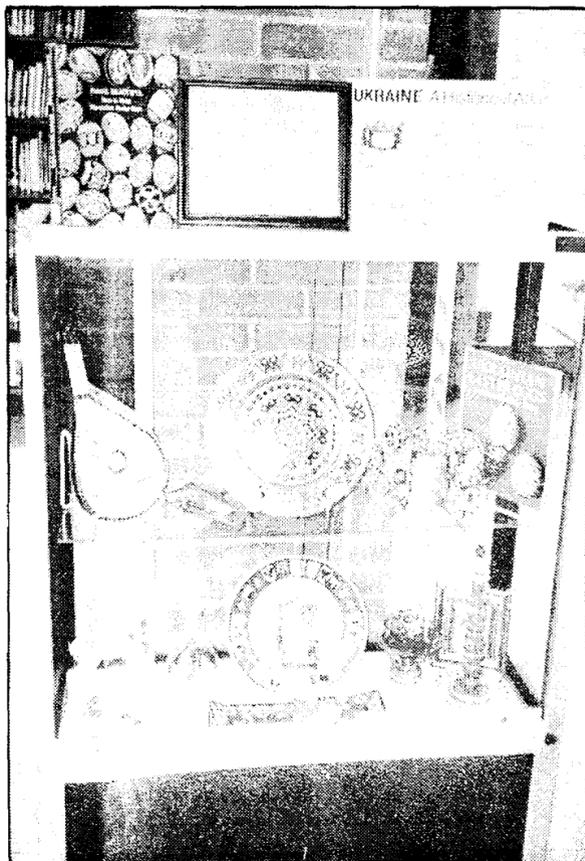

Lydia Lazurenko, who came to the United States from the Ukraine in 1949, started the tradition after her son, Stephen, was killed in an automobile accident between his junior and senior years at North. He was to graduate in 1979.

"Ever since, I wanted to do something for the school," she said.

Lazurenko, now of Dearborn, lived in Grosse Pointe Woods from 1967-82. "I started with decorative Easter eggs, then I added artifacts, wooden carvings typical of the mountain region of the Ukraine," she said. "The library personnel put up the exhibit each year during Lent."

Over the years, she has given the school a bandura (a Ukrainian stringed instrument), video tapes, books and figurines.

She said that with many students of Ukrainian descent in the area, she will continue this tradition.

The display case in North High School's library contains many of the Ukrainian gifts presented to the school by Lydia Lazurenko.

WE'RE CONCERNED ABOUT YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

News can appear one day and be gone the next. But the paper news is printed on can and should live on.

Last year more than one third of all U.S. newsprint was recycled. And that number is growing every day.

Recycling is the one way we can all give something back.

Get in their faces for portraits

Want a way to add a lot of impact to your "people" pictures? It's easy to do and will get your photographs rave reviews from friends and family.

Just move in close and simplify. Too often, people pictures contain too much background or a distracting background and the results become just snapshots. In short, you're just not close enough.

But by moving in close, often real close, you can produce attention-grabbing shots. The best way to do this is by using a telephoto lens. Any lens between 85mm and 200mm will work just fine. Not only will you fill the frame with a telephoto lens, but telephotos naturally reduce depth-of-field so that backgrounds will most likely result in a pleasing blur.

A zoom point-and-shoot-camera will work, too. Just be sure to use the full zoom mode. Don't attempt close portraits with a normal or wide angle lens. You'll have to get uncomfortably close to your subject and, because of the lens' short focal length, you'll get unflattering distortion in the resulting shots.

A 135mm telephoto worked perfectly for me in this delightful portrait of 5-year-old Jasmine Harvey of Detroit. Careful focusing, a dark background and a single flash made everything come together just perfectly. Jasmine's hands on her cheeks add that special touch for this pleasing portrait of this charming young lady.

An SAT Success Story

Harold was worried about taking the SAT. Standardized tests were just not his thing.

Harold's parents suggested staying home on Friday nights to study.

Harold's friend Mindy suggested taking The Princeton Review instead. She took their course last year and raised her SAT score more than she ever thought possible.

Harold took Mindy's advice and prepped with The Princeton Review for the spring SATs. Now he's got great scores, happy parents, and Friday nights with Mindy.

Summer classes begin July 25 at Grosse Pointe South High School

Students shine in competition

Fourteen Grosse Pointe high school instrumental music students participated in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association Solo and Ensemble festival March 26 at Eastern Michigan University.

Rated on a scale of one to five, with one being the highest possible rating, the students earned 11 first divisions and three second divisions.

Receiving a rating of one were Grosse Pointe South students Gabe Slimko, violin; Pat Butler, trombone; Ben Butler, saxophone; James Olzmann, violin; Meg Sippey, flute; Danielle Slavik, piano; Erica Beer, flute; Erin Jones, viola; Stephanie Ziegler, violin; Erin Patrick, violin; Laura Birnbryer, cello; and Maggie Mowbray, violin.

North student Lisa Johnson, on piano, earned a one rating. Earning a rating of two from South are Stephanie Ziegler, violin; Tracy Riddell, violin; and Laura Birnbryer, cello.

Employees

Employer provides insurance up to two or three times your annual salary. This may be enough for single people. However, if you have a spouse and children who count on your income, you may want to purchase additional insurance. The MACPA suggests that as a rule of thumb, if you support a family, you should buy coverage equal to about five times your annual income.

Disability insurance
Disability insurance replaces a portion of your salary if an illness prevents you from working. Typically, employers provide wage continuation coverage that provides full or partial income for a set period, usually no more than a few months. Since this type of disability income is dependent on your length of service with your company you may need to purchase a short-term disability policy if you recently joined your company. In either case, you also need long-term disability insurance, particularly if your family relies on your earnings for day-to-day expenses.

Some employers allow employees to choose among several disability insurance policies as part of a cafeteria plan. One variable in these policies is the elimination period - how long you wait before benefits kick in. Elimination periods can vary from 30 to 90 days or more. Generally, the cheaper plans have longer elimination periods. Select the lower-cost plan only if you have sufficient cash reserves to see you through an emergency until your insurance policy will pay. You'll also want to be sure that you're covered for about 60 percent of your predisability income, although some high-income earners may be limited to a lower percentage.

Employer-sponsored 401(k) plans offer you one of the best ways to save for your retirement. That's because you can save pretax dollars and your savings grow tax-deferred until you withdraw the funds at retirement. If your employer also makes a contribution on your behalf, your savings will grow even faster. Take the time to monitor how your 401(k) investments are performing. If you're not satisfied with their returns, or if you have had changes in your life that warrant a different investment strategy, you usually have the option of re-allocating your 401(k) savings.

The MACPA points out that effectively structuring your employee benefits can help you to maximize your earnings and ensure your family's financial security.

made at the school building level are made using site-based decision making that includes the participation of teachers, school administrators, parents, pupils, and others in the school community.

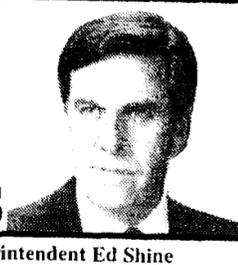

The Grosse Pointe Public School System has been using site-based decision making since 1990 when Program Advisory Committees (PACs) were formed to establish educational priorities for each school. School principals then recommended how the revenue allocated to their schools can be used in order to fund those agreed-upon priorities.

We know that nothing under the sun is perfect, and we have listened to suggestions for improvement every year. As a result, in the five years we have been using the process, we have made many changes to both the allocation formula and the people included in the decision-making process.

The overarching principle of site-based decision making is the belief that the best instructional decisions are those made closest to the students. That belief has enabled those who have the greatest knowledge about learning (teachers) and those who have the greatest knowledge about the students (parents) to play much larger roles in establishing priorities and directions for educational improvements. The objectives of site-based decision making include:

Views on Schools

Grosse Pointe Schools Superintendent Ed Shine

- Achieving more efficient use of resources.
- Providing the schools and the public library with the flexibility to respond to improvement needs.

• Encouraging an examination of the relationship among program objectives, program outcomes and costs.

• Increasing the role of those most familiar with student needs - faculty and parents.

Part of my ongoing commitment to the board of education is that when we try new ways of doing things we will evaluate them. In the fall of 1992 we completed an evaluation of PACs and site-based budgeting that provided a great deal of positive feedback as well as recommendations for improvement. We have done our best to integrate those into the process. Despite the recommendations for improvement there is agreement among those involved that the process provides parents and teachers with power they did not have before.

I don't believe any school system in the state allows the kind of participation in decision making that Grosse Pointe does. When people are allowed to participate, it must be understood that there will be differences of opinion. Even when efforts to achieve consensus fail, however, we are all better off for having had the opportunity to participate.

Our school system's mission calls for a partnership with the community as we pursue one of our most important responsibilities as citizens: the education of our children. Each school is working toward a full partnership with parents and community in deciding educational priorities and how to fund them. I believe that partnership is growing every year and, as revenue from the state becomes harder to come by, it will become more and more important in helping us plan successful teaching and learning activities in the future.

Grosse Pointe offers barbershops that are a cut above

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe is known for its love of tradition, and one of the great traditions that Grosse Pointers value is going to the local barbershop.

In this day and age of blow-dried perfection, a surprising number of Pointers have stuck with their local barber.

Joe Labara, owner and operator of Labara's on Mack in the Woods, has run his shop since 1965. He enjoys a loyal clientele, and the ambiance of the shop is definitely masculine.

"My mom wanted me to go a hair salon," said 14-year-old Stephen Bernhardt. "I went once, then started going to my regular barber, Joe Labara. I mean he cuts my hair better, and it's a lot cheaper."

Labara's customers all seem to have similar attitudes. One customer, who wished to remain anonymous, said a haircut is a haircut. Why pay a lot for it? Stephen's older brother Scott, 22, has been coming to Labara's for eight years, and would never think of going anywhere else. It's his barber-shop, after all.

The decor of Labara's isn't fancy, but there are some interesting touches. Waiting for a haircut? No problem; Joe has some golf balls and a couple of putters ready to go for practice.

Want something to read? Again no problem; Joe has the morning paper there, as well as some magazines that appeal to, shall we say, men with an appreciation of the female figure.

"I took those magazines out of the store," said Labara. "But my customers complained. One guy even dropped off his old collection, so I brought them back out. I really haven't received a lot of complaints about them, so I'll keep them out for a while."

Another popular spot for Pointers to go when they need a haircut is Tony's Barbershop on Mack in the City of Grosse Pointe, across from Pointe Dodge. Owner and operator of the shop, Tony Palazzolo, has been cutting hair in Grosse Pointe since 1949.

Palazzolo first cut hair at Andy Paoma's shop, which eventually became Labara's. Palazzolo opened his shop in 1967, and enjoys unusually loyal customers. One Saturday, patrons came from Ann Arbor,

Joe Labara has operated his barbershop on Mack in the Woods for 29 years. He offers service in a traditional setting complete with golf clubs and golf balls for those who wish to practice their putting while waiting for a cut.

Clinton Township and New Baltimore for a Palazzolo haircut.

"I came from New Baltimore, because this is the only place that I can get a good haircut," said Jeff Nosek. "I heard about Tony from a friend who has been getting his hair cut here for a long time. I don't like hair salons because they don't take the time to cut a man's hair right, and they don't do as good a job as Tony."

City of Grosse Pointe resident Robert O'Bryan continues to go to Palazzolo's despite the fact that his sons go to hair salons.

"I just don't want to support a hair salon," O'Bryan said with a shrug. "This is tradition, like the neighborhood hardware store. There aren't many places like this left; places where a father can take his son for his first cut, and where you get good, dependable service."

The days of men going to barbershops and initiating their sons into the glories of male hair care are numbered. Mike Carrato, a barber at Labara's shop, said that most barbers these days are old-timers. There aren't any barber colleges anymore.

"It used to be that women couldn't work in barbershops," said Carrato. "But that changed, and most new barbers you see are women. A lot of men feel, right or wrong, that women don't know how to cut their hair. Plus a young person can't make a real living being a barber anymore."

People who go to beauty school, as opposed to barber school, aren't taught to cut men's hair, with the end result being a good men's haircutter is hard to find, said Carrato.

Palazzolo and Labara agree with Carrato's assessment. Both said that while they plan to stay in business for the next few years, they have doubts about finding someone to take over.

"I don't anticipate selling this place to another barber," said Labara. "If I had to buy this place today, instead of 1965, I couldn't afford it."

City of Grosse Pointe resident Dorothy Jantz was promoted to vice president of operations at MCA Financial Corp., a full service financial company in Southfield.

Grosse Pointe Park resident John Youngblood recently spoke at the 1994 annual meeting of Commercial Law Affiliates in Palm Beach, Fla. The CLA is the largest international affiliation of independent mid-size commercial and business law firms. Youngblood led a session on how law firms without an internal marketing staff can best coordinate and maintain practice development activities.

Grosse Pointe Woods florist Bruce Anderson earned four artistic achievement awards, including the Society of American Florists' best of show award, at the recent Builders' Home and Flower Show at Cobo Hall. Anderson works at the Moehring Woods Flowers florist shop at 20932 Mack in the Woods. He won best of class in the country western flower category.

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Tanya Naumenko has been hired as the special events coordinator at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit. Naumenko had been freelancing as a special events assistant since March 1993.

City of Grosse Pointe resident Tamera Duffield was named the teacher representative to the advisory committee of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, Michigan Committee. Duffield is the only teacher representative from the state on the committee. She is a teacher at Trombly school.

Employees have wide options in maximizing their company benefits

Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

Employees have more flexibility than ever before to structure a benefits package that meets their financial and personal needs. To ensure that you are maximizing your company benefits, the Michigan Association of CPAs (MACPA) suggests that you review your benefits program annually. Here are items to be considered.

Health insurance

Obtaining the right health insurance at a price you can afford is critical to your financial well-being. Many companies offer both traditional indemnity plans and managed-care programs, such as those provided by health maintenance organizations (HMOs). Under a traditional indemnity plan, you must meet an annual deductible and then are reimbursed for a large percentage (typically 80 percent) of your costs. These plans are expensive and can cost a family of four several thousands of dollars in premiums every year, even when an employer is contributing to the cost. An advantage of these plans is that you select your doctor or hospital. However, such plans usually do not cover well-care visits.

If you're looking to cut costs, look into managed-care programs. In exchange for limiting your physicians and hospitals to those specified by the health maintenance provider, you'll pay a flat fee - usually $5 to $10 - for doctor visits, including well-care visits. Premium amounts are usually lower than those for traditional indemnity plans and there are no deductibles.

Health care spending accounts

Some companies offer flexible spending accounts which allow you to set aside pretax wages to pay for medical expenses. Whether you anticipate medical bills of $500 or $5,000, you'll cut your medical expenses by paying for them with untaxed dollars. The higher your tax bracket, the more money you can save. If you need to, you can usually change the amount you deposit each pay period into your medical spending account. However, if you don't use all the money in the flexible spending account prior to the end of the year, you'll forfeit the unused funds.

Dependent care spending accounts

More employers are also providing the opportunity to set aside pretax wages for dependent care expenses for a child or a disabled parent or spouse. Similar to medical spending accounts, you must estimate your dependent care expenses in advance and determine before the plan year begins how much of the following year's salary will be set aside to cover such expenses.

Life insurance

Many companies provide a basic amount of life insurance and give you the option of buying additional insurance at the group rate. Frequently, an em-

Park OKs Excaliber expansion — with conditions

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Thanks to two years of give and take, the owner of the Excaliber Park, Brian MacLean, may proceed with plans to expand the size of his Charlevoix restaurant and bar.

MacLean and his attorney William Schaefer first approached the council with plans for expanding the bar in June of 1992. The plan called for expanding into the lot next door to the main dining area. The area in question was and continued to be used for storage.

The council did not approve the request, but rather suggested a six-month probation period in which MacLean would demonstrate that expansion would not adversely affect the surrounding neighborhood.

The council requested that MacLean update and remodel both the men's and women's rest rooms, provide uniformed security between 9:30 p.m. and 2:30 a.m. Thursday through Saturday, as well as limit total capacity to 130 patrons.

MacLean was also asked to provide a sound-deadening fence in the rear courtyard area, which patrons use in the summer months. All outside athletic activities, including horseshoes and basketball, were to end at 10 p.m.

Schaefer and MacLean appeared before the council in December of 1992, asking the council to approve the expansion, noting that they had complied with the council's conditions.

The council was apprised of several minor incidents reported to the public safety department during the summer of 1992. Chief Richard Caretti said that the bar's staff had cooperated with police during these incidents, which he described as not very serious.

But despite the support of Mayor Palmer Heenan and mayor pro tem Vernon Ausher, the council voted 4-3 against granting the needed variance.

MacLean again came to the council and requested a variance late last month. Between the December '92 request and last month's request, two council members who voted against the variance, Barbara Miller and James Robson, left the council.

While some neighbors of the bar told the council that they had problems with noisy patrons, most of those who spoke on the matter expressed their support for permitting the expansion.

Councilmember Robert Klacza continued his opposition of 1992. He noted that the city charter defines the Park as a residential community and allowing a popular bar and restaurant to expand its floorspace over the objections of residential neighbors flies in the face of the charter.

Councilmember Dan Clark said that MacLean had purchased residential property near the bar and evicted long-time renters. He said that was not the action of someone who wanted to be a good neighbor.

But Clark and Klacza's opposition aside, the current council proved to be much more receptive to MacLean's request. They voted 4-2 to approve the variance, but did impose certain conditions on MacLean.

He must maintain the Thursday-Saturday security guard. He must eliminate all music outside after 11 p.m. and retain the sound-deadening fence he built. All outside athletic activities must cease by 11 p.m. and he must install four windows facing the parking lot.

The conditions proved acceptable to Schaefer and MacLean and construction is expected to begin shortly.

Park council declines to spend $10,000 on Mack Ave. study

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

When given the opportunity last week to contribute $10,000 in Community Block Grant Development funds to the Joint Cities Development Corp. for a study of how to bring business to the Detroit side of Mack Ave, the Park City Council politely declined.

The JCDC is a non-profit group formed by eastside community organizations to seek ways to improve the quality of life along the Detroit-Grosse Pointe border.

JCDC board members Deborah Olson and Charles Merz approached the Park council for $10,000 to match funds sought from the Comerica Bank Community Economic Development Fund of the Community Founation for Southeastern Michigan.

The JCDC would use the money to fund a market study and site analysis of Mack from Balfour to Alter on both the Detroit and Grosse Pointe sides of the street.

The study, said Merz, is part of an effort to find out what the neighborhood needs to attract investments and businessmen. Olson told the council that the study would help Detroit in general, and the eastside in particular, with Detroit's federal empowerment zone application.

Detroit, among several cities across the country, has applied for federal aid from President Clinton's empowerment zone economic program. Having a study completed like the one proposed would help Detroit's chances of being selected, Olson said.

Even if Detroit was not chosen, the study could only help businesses and neighborhood groups by providing them with much needed information on how to attract investment to the area, she said.

Olson told the council that the idea is to develop a comprehensive approach to redevelopment by looking at what needs to be done in terms of housing rehabilitation, new housing construction, neighborhood cleanup and beautification, the development of pocket parks and recreational facilities, street repair and job development and training.

The Park council is just one of several local groups and governmental bodies the JCDC has approached or will approach for funds, said Merz. He said that the Park's participation would be greatly appreciated because it would make it easier for JCDC representatives to approach other groups for funds.

Councilmembers applauded the JCDC's efforts, but a number of them expressed concern about spending Park funds for projects outside the Park. Councilmember Steve Safranek said he wouldn't mind spending the money for improvements if entrepreneurs were willing to move into the neighborhoods.

"I'm all for development," Safranek said. "But this money isn't going for specific projects that will attract entrepreneurs. It's going for a study, and when it's complete nothing to improve the area will have been done."

Mayor Palmer Heenan told Merz and Olson that $10,000 was a lot of money, even if it is CBDG funding. He noted that the council was to vote on CBDG spending for the year after they considered the FCDC's funding request. All the CBDG money was allocated for the year.

Councilmembers Dan Clark and Robert Klaczka showed enthusiasm for the request. Clark said that he was on the planning commission when it came up with the city's master development plan, and he thought spending $10,000 for a similar development plan for the other side of Mack was an excellent idea.

Klaczka noted that there were about 5,000 households in the city, and a study would cost only $2 per household. He said that didn't strike him as a lot of money, considering the potential benefits for both sides of Mack.

In the end, the council turned down the request in a 4-2 vote, with Klaczka and Clark supporting the request, and councilmembers Vernon Ausherman, Shirley Kennedy, Heenan and Safranek voting against it. Councilmember Valerie Moran was absent.

Heenan thanked Merz and Olson for making their presentation and urged them to stay in touch with the council in case there was any other way the council might be able to help.

Milk River votes to install a rip-rap erosion control system

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The Milk River Intercounty Drain Board, despite the demands of St. Clair Shores residents for a more expensive steel sheeting system of erosion control, voted 2-1 to install rip-rap along the banks of the river at a meeting last week held in the Grosse Pointe Woods city hall.

Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods are paying $30 million to build a retention basin and water processing system to greatly reduce combined sewage overflows into the Milk River. Currently, when it rains, the two cities' sewer systems can't handle all the water, and with a state permit, they dump unprocessed sewage and storm water into the Milk River, which is in St. Clair Shores.

When the project is completed, sewage overflow will go into a 15-million-gallon retention basin, where it will be treated before being discharged into Milk River. The larger retention basin should dramatically reduce the number of discharges by the two cities as well.

Late last year the board voted 2-1 to install a gabion basket erosion control system along the Milk River. The board has three members, one from Macomb County, one from Wayne County and one from the state's Department of Agriculture.

Macomb representative Anthony Marrocco, representing the views and interests of St. Clair Shores residents, wanted the board to approve a steel sheeting erosion control system. Steel sheeting would have cost an estimated $1.6 million. A gabion basket system would cost about $500,000.

Wayne County representative Jim Murray voted for gabion, as did the state's representative, Michael Gregg.

"The board has a responsibility to install an effective erosion control system along the Milk River," Gregg said at the time of the vote. "But we also have a responsibility to the taxpayers who are going to pay for it. I've never heard of a board like ours voting to install the most expensive system, when very acceptable cheaper alternatives exist."

Problems arose when project engineer Roger Van Omen inspected the river and found that it's banks would need considerable reshaping before gabion baskets could be installed.

Gabion basket is a wire mesh system that is placed along river banks and filled with crushed limestone to keep soil in place and maintain the shape of the bank.

The rip-rap system works by covering a river's bank with porous cloth that keeps the soil in place while at the same time allowing water to soak through. Large limestone rocks are placed on top of the fabric to keep it in place and protect it from damage.

St. Clair Shores director of community services S. Marlin Sumner said that rip-rap is an excellent erosion control system.

"Rip-rap is cheaper to install than steel sheeting," Sumner said. "All erosion control systems need maintenance, so the question is what's cheaper to maintain over say 20 years. If the board did that cost-analysis, then I have to support their decision; that's what they get paid to do. Rip-rap is an excellent system, and I'm glad they've decided to use that instead of gabion baskets."

Several members of the audience, including St. Clair Shores city attorney Robert Ihrie, expressed anger that steel sheeting was not being installed.

"I think the board has given members of the audience little hope that their comments will be considered," Ihrie told the board. "People have been suffering from the stench of the Milk River for over 30 years. Those people have been putting up with the results of the drain board's neglect for years. Erosion has been slow and steady. Now the attention of the board is on the river and the people who live by the river have told the board that they want steel sheeting, but they are getting rip-rap instead."

"I hope that the board won't neglect the rip-rap the way they've neglected the river in the past. I think it's time that the drain board do what's right for the folks who have been smelling the slime and garbage in the river and put in steel sheeting."

Ihrie said that St. Clair Shores Mayor Ted Wahby and the St. Clair Shores City Council will keep an eye on the river and hold the drain board responsible for maintaining the rip-rap.

Woods councilmember Thomas Fahrner also attended the meeting that evening and strongly rebuked Ihrie for his remarks.

"When I listened to that nice speech by their city attorney, who lives in Grosse Pointe Woods, I felt I had to say something," Fahrner said. "It's time to say that this is not a one-way deal. In 1988, all the parties involved, including St. Clair Shores, got together and agreed to budget $500,000 for erosion control. Ihrie was St. Clair Shores city attorney at that time, and he didn't complain then."

Fahrner also noted that St. Clair Shores has several storm drains that feed surface water directly into the river whenever it rains.

"I saw the river a few days ago after it rained and its level was very high. Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods didn't pump anything into it because of construction. All that water came from St. Clair Shores storm drains. It took two days to drain away," Fahrner said.

Sumner said that water from the Shores' storm drain does not result in the kind of erosion caused by water pumped into the river by high powered pumps, which is what the Woods and Harper Woods do.

"The Milk River is basically a lake inlet, and when water from our storm drains goes into the river, it seeks its own level slowly," Sumner said. "Pumps add a lot of volume quickly, and with volume comes velocity and velocity causes the most erosion."

When asked if the drain board is doing what should be done to address the dual problems of contaminated water and erosion, Sumner said he felt the current board has done a good job in addressing the problems, and said when the project is completed, the quality of the Milk River will be improved "1,000 percent."

Public safety reports

Warm weather calls burglars

A burglar entered a home through an unlocked patio door in the 700 block of Berkshire in Grosse Pointe Park on March 30 and stole $300 from a purse.

William Furtaw, deputy public safety director, said the first hints of spring entice many homeowners to leave their doors and windows open at night, making their homes vulnerable to burglars.

In this incident, the residents left their patio door open, protecting it only with a locked screen door, Furtaw said. It is the first break-in of its kind in the Park in months, he noted.

Smell betrayed hidden smokers

A Grosse Pointe Park police officer, responding to a parking complaint behind a business on Mack on March 25, caught the scent of burning marijuana and followed his nose to two men smoking the suspected substance in a parked car.

The drug and accompanying paraphernalia were confiscated by the officer and sent to the Michigan State Police crime lab for analysis. Should the substance be confirmed as marijuana, the 19- and 20-year-old Grosse Pointe Park men will be charged with possession under a city ordinance. They face a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail and a $500 fine.

Customers fight in Farms store

What started as a minor disagreement inside a party store on Mack on April 2 in Grosse Pointe Farms turned into a full-blown fight in the parking lot minutes later.

A 38-year-old Detroit man told Farms police that he and another man had gotten into an argument over who was first in line and the argument escalated once the two left the building.

The fight occurred at 8:20 p.m. in front of several witnesses who said the fracas ended when one of the men kicked the other in the knee and fled the parking lot in a red Ford Probe.

No such thing as free lunch

A 75-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods man apparently attempted to prepare a free meal for himself after removing nearly $60 worth of groceries from the Village Food Market on Mack.

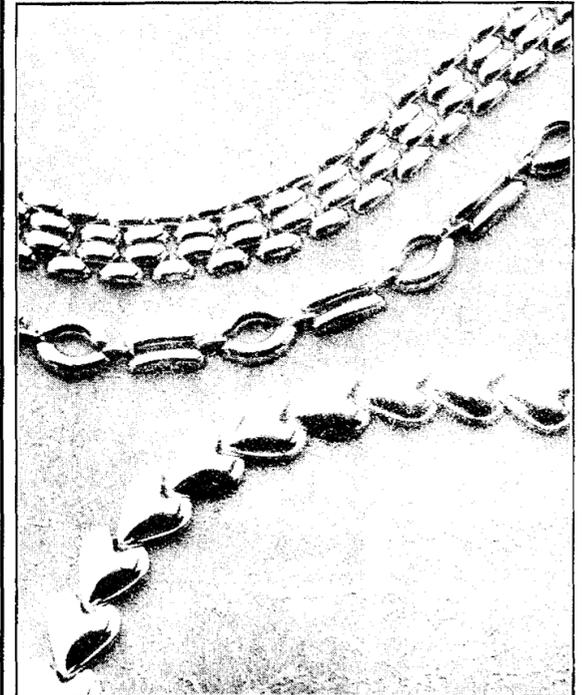

A market employee watched as the man loaded various items into his shopping cart and then put them into a paper bag he carried with him into the store. The man then walked out the back entrance without paying for the food. Employees captured the man and brought him back to the store and called police.

Employees retrieved one green pepper, a package of instant stuffing, several stalks of asparagus, coffee creamer, milk, coffee and two bottles of wine.

The man was arrested by Grosse Pointe Farms police and held until he could post $200 bond. He has been released from police custody and is scheduled to appear in Grosse Pointe Farms Municipal Court later this month on charges of retail fraud.

For Bill Catalfio, Grosse Pointe Woods is the place to be

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

When Bill Catalfio was growing up in Detroit, he dreamed that if he worked hard enough he could end up living in Grosse Pointe. Catalfio, along with his brother Tom, started the Mr. C's chain of delis and has been living in Grosse Pointe Woods for the past 17 years.

"When I was growing up, my father ran a liquor store on the eastside of Detroit," said Catalfio. "As I got older, I worked in the liquor store and worked in the construction business. I liked working construction because every project is a challenge, and people are always doing something new."

But the feast or famine nature of construction bothered him. With snow days, and rain days and having to hustle for job bids, Catalfio realized that the business was not for him.

In 1974, he and his brother Tom pooled their resources and with a combined $20,000 opened their first store. It was on East Warren in Detroit and was originally called Pills & Puffs Patent Medicines. They opened there because the location already had the coolers and other items needed for a liquor store/deli.

"We opened our second store a year later in Clinton Township," said Catalfio. "I hate to say it, but we opened the second store because my brother and I needed a break from each other. Loving a brother is easy, working with him can be hard."

Their second store was an old Lawson's convenience store. They chose the store because they could again rent a store that had all the equipment they needed.

"I like working with my brother," said Catalfio. "He is good at doing the nuts and bolts work. He's conservative and well grounded. We wouldn't have all our stores if it weren't for him."

Mr. C's is known for its pizza. They got the idea from a cousin, Joe Carollo, who gave the two brothers the recipe for pizza dough. They were able to buy a Hobart dough mixer for $300 down. The rest is, as they say, history.

"I've worked very hard to Bill Catalfio is best known as co-owner of the Mr. C's chain of delis, but few know about his love of kart racing, a hobby he enjoys with his family.

make the business successful," said Catalfio. "The stores are busiest during the weekend, and until recently, I haven't been able to take time off during the weekends because I've always been afraid that I would neglect the business. But beginning about three years ago, I've been able to do something I've wanted to since I was a kid — race go-carts."

Catalfio, 43, said he always wanted to race carts, as they are known among fans, since his cousin had one when they were young. Racing karts is time-consuming, and until recently he felt he did not have the time to spare.

"There are two kart tracks near metro Detroit," said Catalfio. "There is one in East Lansing and there is one in Flat Rock. For the past three seasons, I have been racing at those tracks."

Kart racing is quite different from racing go-carts at local amusement arenas, Catalfio is quick to say. Those karts are much slower and the tracks are much safer due to the fear of lawsuits.

The karts he races can go up to 80 miles an hour, and the racers are very competitive.

"It's quite an experience going 80 miles an hour, taking turns at 60, and having the kart's tires rub against the tires of other karts," said Catalfio. "I like the sport because it is something the whole family can get into. My daughter Joanna is going to try racing. I've taken my son Vito to the track and he's raced a couple of times."

His wife Connie does not quite have the same view of the sport. It is, in her words, "dirty and it stinks." But she's a trooper, said Catalfio, who manages to show up at one race a year.

Catalfio takes great pride in his family. His wife, Connie, loves playing the piano, and recently played a nun in the recent Grosse Pointe Children's Theatre production of "The Sound of Music."

His daughter Joanna is on North High School's excellent women's varsity soccer team. His daughter Nina is a freshman at U-M, and his son Vito is 10, but plans on being a builder or architect.

"With Vito, I just might get my building business yet," said Catalfio.

His brother Tom and his family also live in the Woods, as well as several other relatives, including sisters and cousins.

"Someone once said to me that my family always comes first in my life," said Catalfio. "That remark went right over my head, because it never occurred to me that it would be any different for anyone else."

Don't wait, warns the IRS

Less than a month to go and you still haven't gotten around to it? You know — filing your federal income tax return. Well, if you are one of the 2 million Michigan taxpayers who still has to file, the IRS has some advice for you.

"Why wait six to eight weeks for your refund, when you can have it in two or three weeks," said the IRS district director John Hummel. "By filing electronically and electing to have your refund directly deposited into a savings or checking account, you'll have your money in about two weeks." When filing electronically, tax return information is transmitted directly into the IRS computers. "Computers do much of the processing work and ensure that refunds go out quickly," Hummel said. "Last year, over $66,000 Michigan taxpayers took advantage of electronic filing and already this year, almost 327,000 have done the same. These taxpayers realize there are many benefits in the program, including a mathematically correct return, acknowledgement by the IRS of receipt of the return, and of course, that quick refund check." TELEFILE, a new program that allows many Michigan taxpayers to file their tax returns by telephone, is doing well it's first year in Michigan. "Almost 75,000 Michigan taxpayers have filed through TELEFILE," Hummel said. "They also received their refunds in about three weeks."

Hummel added that even individuals who owe the IRS money can file electronically, and he encouraged all taxpayers who have not yet filed to take advantage of this easy, and virtually paperless, tax filing method.

Tax breaks can help care for elderly parents

Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

If you're financially supporting an elderly parent, the Michigan Association of CPAs points out that certain tax breaks can help alleviate the financial pressure on you and your family.

Although taxpayers commonly take dependency exemptions for their children, many fail to realize that if they are providing at least half of the support of a parent, or another close relative, they may take an additional dependency exemption on their tax return, as long as that relative does not file a joint return with his or her spouse.

The dependency exemption, which directly reduces your taxable income, is $2,350 in 1993. However, with the exception of legally adopted children, qualified dependents must be citizens or nationals of the United States or residents of the United States, Canada, or Mexico.

Individuals who qualify to file as head of household are subject to a different tax rate which is usually lower than the rate for single individuals. If you are unmarried or if you pay more than half the qualified costs of maintaining your home, which is a principal place of abode for a qualified relative for more than one-half of the tax year, you may file as head of household. A qualified relative is a son, daughter, grandchild, adopted child or stepchild.

In general, any other relative must qualify as a dependent. However, dependent parents may live elsewhere if you maintain their household. If you are married, you can qualify as head of household if your spouse was not a member of the household for the last six months of the year and if your home is the principal place of abode for a child for whom you are entitled to take a dependency exemption.

If your dependent parent is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself and you need someone to look after him while you work, you may be able to recover some of the cost by claiming a tax credit.

If your adjusted gross income is $10,000 or less, an income tax credit is available equal to 30 percent of certain employment related expenses incurred for such care. The amount of the credit will decrease by 1 percent (but not below 20 percent) for each $2,000 of adjusted gross income (or fraction thereof) in excess of $10,000, until it decreases to 20 percent for taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes over $28,000.

The maximum amount of employment-related expenses that can be taken into account to determine the credit is $2,400 for one qualifying individual, and $4,800 for two or more qualifying individuals.

Even with medical insurance coverage, many families are finding themselves sharing the burden of a parent's medical bills. If you pay for your dependent parent's qualified medical expenses, you may take an itemized tax deduction to the extent that such expenses, along with your own medical expenses and those of your other dependents, exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income.

Qualified expenses include the cost of medical insurance premiums; fees paid to physicians, dentists, chiropractors and other medical professionals; prescription drugs; and supplies and equipment, such as false teeth, eyeglasses, crutches, hearing aids or orthopedic shoes.

CPAs point out that as a caretaker of elderly parents, you should help them maximize their income with a proper financial plan and encourage them to draw up appropriate legal documents, such as a will. This will help your parents take charge of their financial future and give both you and your parents greater peace of mind.

FINANCING THE AMERICAN DREAM

Julienne Chapman Henkel

A memorial service was held Tuesday, April 5, at Christ Church Grosse Pointe in Grosse Pointe Farms for Julienne Chapman Henkel.

Mrs. Henkel, 58, of Grosse Pointe Woods, died of cancer Thursday, March 31, 1994, at her home.

A lifelong resident of Grosse Pointe, she was heavily involved in the community as a dedicated volunteer member of Reach to Recovery and also served on the vestry of Christ Church, where she was the first woman senior warden.

Mrs. Henkel also was an executive secretary for Adult Well Being Services.

"Julie" Henkel spent much of her life helping others. Her caring devotion to causes in which she believed resulted in her passionate involvement in those pursuits.

She found her recreation on the golf course and the love of the sport, which she shared with her husband, Milt, and countless friends, opened the door to an avocation that consumed much of her time and heart.

Having served as past chairman of the Women's Golf Committee at the Country Club of Detroit and president of the Women's Golf Association of Michigan, Mrs. Henkel was especially proud of being asked to become a member of the United States Golf Association Women's Committee.

Last fall, an anonymous trophy was given in Mrs. Henkel's honor at the Country Club of Detroit. She was gratified by the recognition she received for her devotion to the sport of golf.

Mrs. Henkel was a member of the Country Club of Detroit, the Junior League of Detroit and the Grosse Pointe Garden Club.

Her legacies surround her family, friends and community. Her contributions are clear in many areas through her lifelong commitment to excellence, whether it be in her community involvement or in the intricate handwork she did for relaxation.

Shortly after learning she would require further chemotherapy treatments last year, she started and completed several handknitted presents for her grandchildren, family and friends.

Perhaps her greatest gift was her combination of patience and determination, reinforced always by her faith.

In addition to her husband, Milton, Mrs. Henkel is survived by a daughter, Kathleen Tweed; two sons, Taylor W. and Steven O. Henkel; three grandchildren; a sister, Nancy Chapman Fisher; and a brother, Benjamin G. Chapman.

Interment is at Elmwood Cemetery in Detroit.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Michigan Cancer Foundation, Frankel Center, 18831 W. 12 Mile, Lathrup Village, Mich. 48076-2558; Hospice of Southeastern Michigan, 16250 Northland Drive, Suite 212, Southfield, Mich. 48075; or Adult Well-Being Services, 1423 Field Ave., Detroit, Mich. 48214-9990.

Frederick Charles Kaess

A memorial service will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 16, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Frederick Charles Kaess, 56, of Grosse Pointe Farms, who died Wednesday, March 30, 1994, at Hilton Head Island, S.C.

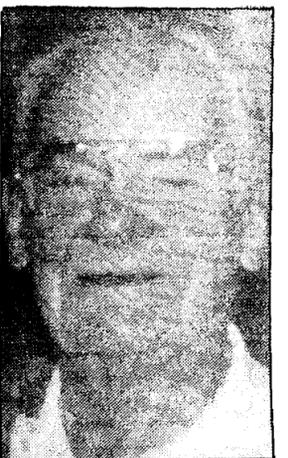

A native of Lansing, Mr. Kaess received an MBA from Michigan State University. He was a retired executive with General Motors Corp.

Mr. Kaess was a member of the Grosse Pointe Kiwanis Club and the Country Club of Detroit.

He is survived by his wife, Ada Gail White Kaess; a daughter, Kathryn Kaess; a son, Frederick Charles Kaess IV; and his mother, Phyllis Dankmeyer Kaess. He was predeceased by his father, Frederick William Kaess.

Arrangements were made by the Island Funeral Home in Hilton Head.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation, 90 Kerby, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236.

Charles Porter Strother

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. today, Thursday, April 7, at Christ Church Grosse Pointe for Charles Porter Strother, 84, who died Saturday, April 2, 1994.

He was a resident of Grosse Pointe for 47 years and a member of Christ Church, where he served on many committees.

He was a past president of the Navigator's Club of the U.S. Power Squadron, a past president of the Civil War Round Table, a past commander of the Cadillac Post of the American Legion, a charter member of the Engineering Society of Detroit and a member of many other civic organizations.

Mr. Strother is survived by his wife of 58 years, Mary Lee Ryan; a daughter, Sarah King; two sons, David and Richard; and four grandchildren.

Interment is in Martinsburg, W.Va.

Memorial contributions may be made to Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

Richard S. Kray

Graveside services were held Wednesday, March 23, in Knollwood Cemetery in Mayfield Heights, Ohio, for Richard S. Kray, 82, who died Saturday, March 19, 1994, at the Manor Nursing Home in Monroe, Wis.

Born in Denver, Mr. Kray was a former resident of Grosse Pointe Woods for 30 years.

He was a restaurateur and manager of restaurants in the Detroit area.

A U.S. Navy lieutenant and commissary specialist during World War II, Mr. Kray attended Case Western Reserve University.

He was a watercolor artist and many of his paintings exhibited in the Detroit area won awards. He also enjoyed playing the piano, gardening and reading.

Mr. Kray is survived by his wife, Lorna; a daughter, Beth Miller; a son, William Richard Kray; and a grandchild. He was predeceased by a sister, Elizabeth Ussachevsky.

A memorial service will be held Saturday, April 9, at the Dakota Community Presbyterian Church in Dakota, Ill. A memorial fund has been established at the church.

Phyllis Barr

A memorial service will be held at 4 p.m. Saturday, April 30, at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church in the City of Grosse Pointe for Phyllis Barr, who died Friday, April 1, 1994.

Born in Meaford, Ontario, Mrs. Barr was secretary to the director at the Grosse Pointe Public Library until her retirement in 1976.

She was also secretary to the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library for 10 years and "performed her duties with skill and unselfish devotion," according to the resolution honoring her.

She served both the Grosse Pointe Board of Education and the Friends of the Library board of directors for more than 20 years. She never missed a meeting of the Friends board in her 10 years as secretary.

Mrs. Barr was named honorary director of the library by the Friends at her retirement and her name appeared on all library publications with that title until her death last week. She was the only person ever named honorary director.

In her position as secretary to the director Mrs. Barr "successfully met professional challenges presented by changing times...generously and unstintingly used her intelligence and energy for the benefit of our youth and enjoyed exceedingly fine rapport with colleagues, students and friends," according to a board of education resolution honoring her.

It continues: "Her wisdom, talent and enlightened maturity constitute a valuable human resource."

Mrs. Barr was a legal secretary in Toronto until 1934 before her marriage to John Alwyn Barr. They lived in Detroit and then to Lochmoor Township (now Grosse Pointe Woods) where they built one of the original homes on Fleetwood when it was a dirt road. Mrs. Barr lived in that home until her death.

After her retirement, Mrs. Barr devoted her life to the care of sick and aging friends. She also worked part time as a proof reader for Mac Rae Secretarial Service in Harper Woods.

Mrs. Barr is survived by a son, David Barr; five grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

The family asks that anyone wishing to honor Mrs. Barr may do so by contributing to the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library.

Arthur Henry Schaupter

A funeral Mass was said Thursday, March 31, at the Bagnasco-Tabbi Funeral Home in St. Clair Shores for Arthur Henry Schaupter, 73, who died Tuesday, March 29, 1994, at his home in Grosse Pointe Shores.

Following his return from World War II and active duty in the U.S. Army Air Corps in the airplane repair and maintenance group, Mr. Schaupter worked at the Ford Motor Co. and served his apprenticeship in tool and die engineering.

Transferring later to Fisher Body, he became a supervisor before founding A.H. Schaupter Engineering Co. Ten years later, in 1957, he founded Ron-art Industries in Detroit, a successful tool and die shop, which he owned and operated until his retirement in 1985.

During much of his life, he was even better known for his love of boats and the water. He owned, operated and maintained many boats in his career from the modest to the very splendid.

He took great enjoyment and actively participated in designing and building his own boats, perhaps, even more than in using them. He owned and operated Schaupter Shipyards in Pascagoula, Miss., where the workers built and repaired small ships.

Mr. Schaupter was active in the Detroit Yacht Club, the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, the Old Club on Harsens Island, and the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club.

By far, his greatest achievement, enjoyment and pride came from his large family. He consciously worked at instilling high values and a strong work ethic in each of his children.

His joy was obvious as he spoke and reminisced about their successes both large and small.

Mr. Schaupter is survived by six daughters, Linda M. Fentner, Susan H. Lindahl, Anna Schaupter, Jennifer Schaupter, Jessica Schaupter and Karen Leslie Schaupter; two sons, Arthur H. and Ronald A. Schaupter; and nine grandchildren. He was predeceased by a daughter, Jody.

Interment is at Michigan Memorial Cemetery in Flushing.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Michigan Cancer Society or the charity of the donor's choice.

John Mazer

Services were held Wednesday, April 6, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for John Mazer, 79, who died Saturday, April 2, 1994, at St. John Hospital in Detroit.

Born in Edenborn, Pa., Mr. Mazer was a resident of the City of Grosse Pointe.

Mr. Mazer, an attorney specializing in criminal cases, was admitted to the State Bar of Michigan in 1949 and began his legal career as an assistant prosecuting attorney for Wayne County, a position he held for more than 15 years. He also was a former public safety commissioner for the City of Grosse Pointe.

Mazer twice ran for public office and was involved in Democratic Party politics for most of his adult life.

He was a graduate of Wayne State University, where he earned his bachelor's and law degrees. While a student, he was active in the Wayne theatre group and often appeared in both stage and radio productions.

Mr. Mazer was a combat veteran of World War II, serving in the U.S. Army in Europe.

He was deacon of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church and taught Sunday School classes for more than 40 years. He was involved in a number of volunteer efforts and devoted a great deal of time throughout his life to working with the youth of the community through such organizations as the Boy Scouts.

Mr. Mazer is survived by his wife of 51 years, Stelene Maslowski Mazer; a daughter, Juliet Mazer Schmidt; two sons, John Jr. and William Mazer; two grandchildren; a sister, Stella Miserofsky; and a brother, Andrew Michaels.

Arrangements were made by the Chas. Verheyden Inc. Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

Memorial contributions may be sent to Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236 or Wedgwood Christian Youth and Family Services, 17117 W. Nine Mile Road, Suite 1325, Southfield, Mich. 48075.

Barbara Lee Bockstanz

Barbara Lee (Puckett) Bockstanz

Private family services were held for Barbara Lee Bockstanz, who died of cancer Monday, March 28, 1994, at her home in Grosse Pointe Farms, She was 72.

The Wichita, Kan., native will be remembered for her active participation in her community and for her warmth and compassion.

She was a member of the Junior League of Detroit, IBEX, Sigma Gamma, and the Village Garden Club. She was vice president of the Junior League and IBEX.

Mrs. Bockstanz was a member of the board of the Detroit Institute for Children for 10 years and vice president of the medical services committee for eight years.

Mrs. Bockstanz was a past Brownie and Girl Scout leader and past PTA chairwoman and board member of Grosse Pointe High School. She was also active in the local American Field Service chapter as its president and vice president.

In 1954, along with her late husband John, she founded the Foundation for Exceptional Children — a school for children with physical and mental challenges. She remained active in state and local community services for the handicapped.

In 1956, she was named volunteer of the year and in 1960 she received the Junior League Placement award.

Mrs. Bockstanz is survived by two daughters, Sharon Hughes and Janice Lyn Bockstanz; two sons, John N. and William David Bockstanz; nine grandchildren; and a sister, Joann Bowman.

A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, June 11, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Arrangements were made by the Chas. Verheyden Inc. Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Foundation for Exceptional Children, 16 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236.

Marion W. Pahl

Services were held Wednesday, April 6, at the Whittier Towers in Detroit for Marion W. Pahl, 89, who died Thursday, March 31, 1994, at Bon Secours Hospital in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Born in Utica, N.Y., Mrs. Pahl was a former resident of Grosse Pointe.

She was a 1922 graduate of Albion College and was a music teacher.

Mrs. Pahl was a member of the Jackson Community Concerts Association Board, the Literary & Arts Association Board, the Tuesday Morning Musical, PEO, the Chancel Guild, Delta Gamma Alumni, the Tuesday Club, Diggers Garden Club and was St. Paul's music chairman.

She enjoyed music, travel and was an avid horsewoman.

Mrs. Pahl is survived by a daughter, Mary Anne Zinn, and three grandchildren. She was predeceased by her husband, Luther A. Pahl.

Memorial contributions may be made to Friends of Vision, 15415 E. Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park, Mich. 48230 or Michigan's Parkinson's Foundation, 3990 John R, Detroit, Mich. 48203.

Joseph J. Saad

Services were held Monday, April 4, at St. Maron's Church in Detroit for Joseph J. Saad, 72, who died Friday, April 1, 1994, at Bon Secours Hospital in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Born in Canada, Mr. Saad was a resident of Grosse Pointe Park.

He served as a corporal in the U.S. Army during World War II.

He is survived by his wife, Madeline; two sons, Barry and John; two sisters, Josephine Causro and Eunice Meyers; and four brothers, Hank, John, Mike and Tom.

Arrangements were made by the Chas. Verheyden Inc. Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

George M. Van Lokeren

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, April 8, at Mariners' Church in Detroit (parking is available in the Ford Auditorium garage) for George M. Van Lokeren, 79, who died Wednesday, March 30, 1994, at Doctors Hospital in Nassau, Bahamas.

Born in Detroit, Mr. Van Lokeren was a resident of Grosse Pointe Farms and a retired businessman.

He started his career in retailing after World War II and founded three businesses: Van Lokeren Carpeting, Van Lokeren Maple & French Provincial Furniture and Van Lokeren Mattress Co.

In the late 1950s, he built a chain of six restaurants. He was also active in commercial real estate on the eastside.

Mr. Van Lokeren loved the Detroit area and lived on or near the water all of his life, enjoying the river and lake with his boat. His favorite pastime was anchoring off Peche Island, taking a swim and having a picnic. He also was an avid tennis player.

He was a member of the Grosse Pointe Crisis Club and a former member of the Lochmoor Club.

Mr. Van Lokeren is survived by his companion, Ruth Wigle; two daughters, Vickie Oederfer and Mary Alice Fox; three sons, Michael, David and Tom; 13 grandchildren; and one great-grandchild. He was predeceased by his wife, Clarabelle, and a sister, Fran DeWulf.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Asthma Foundation or the American Heart Association.

Eric C. Irvine

A memorial Mass was said Wednesday, April 6, at St. Clare of Montefalco Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Park for Eric C. Irvine, 80, of Grosse Pointe Park, who died of cancer Monday, March 28, 1994, at St. John Hospital in Detroit.

Mr. Irvine was a Realtor with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Grosse Pointe Farms and a sales representative for Rocket Products, Robert Flavors and Alabama Garments.

A veteran of the U.S. Coast Guard during World War II, Mr. Irvine was formerly a Realtor with C.F. Meirer Real Estate in Detroit.

He was a member of the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors and the Michigan and National associations of Realtors.

Mr. Irvine was a life member of the Detroit Yacht Club, where he enjoyed boating.

Mr. Irvine is survived by a son, Michael F. Irvine. He was predeceased by his wife, Catherine R. (Ulrich) Irvine.

Interment is at Mount Elliott Cemetery in Detroit.

Arrangements were made by the A.J. Desmond & Sons Funeral Home in Royal Oak.

Media whack each other's news stories

It is encouraging to find the news media now criticizing the work of their competitors on the Whitewater case.

Some intramural infighting always goes on among the news media but President Clinton's performance at his recent televised press conference ignited a new round of critical give-and-take.

In one TV roundtable talkfest, for example, some media people scorned the questions asked at the press conference for being silly, badly informed and lacking substance.

Others agreed, but attributed that performance by the media to their lack of information, and they blamed that lack on the administration's failure to follow an open door policy until it got into real trouble over Whitewater.

One reporter who covers the Supreme Court, said, however, that if the present spate of irresponsible reporting continues, she would not be surprised to have at least one high-ranking administration official file a libel suit against one or more of the worst media offenders.

Opinion

William Raspberry, a Washington Post man whose pieces appear in The Detroit News, recently asked this basic question: "Why are we (in the press) so breathlessly peddling details of what, so far, appears to be not much of a scandal?"

At that time, Raspberry said, "There's no suggestion so far that the Clintons improperly enriched themselves in the Whitewater deal."

That's still the case, although since publication of that column, Mrs. Clinton reported she had made a 10-month profit of $99,000 on a $1,000 investment in trading cattle futures.

That profit, however, had nothing to do with Whitewater, so far as we know, but several questions have been raised about it.

One criticism was that the profit proves the Clintons had themselves indulged in greed as bad as any of the examples they had charged against their GOP predecessors.

Another criticism was that Mrs. Clinton had not invested any money of her own in the market, but Newsweek, which first trumpeted that charge, conceded its error came in "misunderstanding" a source.

In answer to another of his own questions, "Where's the scandal?" Raspberry offered this reply:

"An unsophisticated visitor to America could be forgiven for believing the media, whether as agents of the GOP or driven by their own animosities, are trying to ruin the Clinton presidency."

Instead of doing serious investigations, the media, in too many cases, he said, have used "gossip, unsubstantiated allegations and the carefully cultivated sense that there's something wrong in the air," all of which "affects the president's ability to do what he was elected to do."

Republicans, he added, might consider the damage done to the president and the country as "a price worth paying, if it improves their own political prospects."

"But what of journalists?" he asks. In view of the journalists' own criticism of their performance, we think it's not surprising that public opinion polls blame exaggerated news media allegations as well as politics for the attention being paid to Whitewater in Washington.

In fact, those findings may explain why the president scored so well in his press conference and raised his personal approval rating to 57 percent in polls following that session.

It's planting time on the farm

In the spring, Emerson wrote, a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love but it's also the season when farmers, old and young, turn their thoughts to planting.

Washtenaw County agricultural agent Bill Ames informs us that while wheat as usual was planted last fall, oats and spring barley probably will go into the ground as soon as the fields dry out. That probably means planting of these crops should begin shortly or by mid-April.

Corn probably will go in about on time in late April, weather permitting, Ames adds.

Fortunately, he says, Michigan farmland for the most part came through the winter in good shape, although farmers found that the extremely cold weather did freeze a few more water pipes than usual as frost sank even below 40 inches.

In a food price outlook story the other day, the Wall Street Journal predicted that food prices this year will continue to rise and they'll go up farther and faster unless bumper crops are harvested.

In Michigan, Ames agreed with that view, but added that because this state's farmers escaped the damage suffered by states hard hit by the Mississippi River floods and last year's heavy rains, they should start the crop year in better condition than those in the flooded states.

Recent increases in food prices have occurred, the Journal reported, as a result of last year's floods, but much of the Farm Belt hasn't dried out since last year's rains and flooding. Even worse, the floods destroyed thousands of acres of productive farmland, which also raises doubts that a big national output can be achieved.

But farmers still have to rely on that critical factor that has been of major importance down through the ages — the weather — if they are to survive and prosper.

That means Michigan urban residents should join in the farmers' prayers for the good planting, growing and harvesting weather required to produce large crops — and help maintain moderate food prices.

Is it pressure or blackmail?

Tigers' owner Mike Ilitch has drawn an exciting picture of a new Tiger stadium and the redevelopment of an important downtown area, but some serious questions remain unanswered.

Despite Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer's endorsement of the plan, metro area residents must be given the opportunity to review the proposal to see what it would cost them and what advantages, if any, would accrue to them as well as to Tigers' owner Ilitch.

Furthermore, a good many people complain that Ilitch's threat to pull the Tigers out of Detroit if his plan isn't accepted was a not-very-subtle blackmail attempt to force approval for the $200 million public subsidy he seeks to prepare the redevelopment site.

Whether we regard Ilitch's tactic as blackmail or business pressure, the plan would have been more acceptable if Ilitch had identified some other developers who would support the project.

While it would be up to the Legislature to design any specific financing package, public opinion polls have suggested strong opposition to such a large public investment to support a privately operated baseball stadium.

In a letter to the Detroit Free Press last week, Andrew C. Richner, Wayne County commissioner whose district includes the Grosse Pointes and part of Detroit, argued that there are "more pressing priorities than a new stadium."

Richner pointed to a recent study made for The Heartland Institute by Robert Baade, a national expert on sports economics, who found that "public funding of sports, including funding of stadiums, is not a sound civic investment."

On the basis of his study, Baade said "the data suggest that stadium subsidies and other sports subsidies benefit, not the community as a whole, but rather team owners and professional athletes."

Richner's closing advice: "Let's invest in our neighborhoods, not a field of dreams."

At the very least, the entire project should be studied to learn whether it really would serve the public interest as well as the interests of the owners of a profit-making undertaking.

Midwest no longer Rust Belt

The Rust Belt description of the Midwest has ended — and so has much of the appeal of the Sun Belt to Midwesterners.

The recent economic comeback of the Big Three auto producers has been widely reported but the fact that the entire Midwest is in an economic revival has not been so generally acknowledged.

Yet regional figures reveal that the Midwest has in effect escaped most of the recent sharp reductions in jobs and defense contracts that have been so damaging to California and other defense-centered states.

Called the "arsenal of democracy" in World War II, Detroit and the Midwest lost 700,000 jobs between 1970 and 1985 as many old-line manufacturing firms and agricultural enterprises closed.

At the same time, their populations fled in droves to the Sun Belt states that offered many more employment opportunities.

As an Arizona State University geographer, Patricia Gober, told the Washington Post, it was then that Midwest industries "made the difficult decisions" about downsizing and streamlining that had to be made.

The result has been economic improvement in Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin, with their economies even pulling people back from California and the oil states that still are in an economic slump.

Letters

Concerned Citizens not extremist

To the Editor:

This is in response to the letter by John Bruce in last week's paper.

The Concerned Citizens of Grosse Pointe is an all-volunteer group receiving no pay and putting their own money on the table to see the taxpayers of Grosse Pointe get a fair shake. The only extremism of this group is concern in dotting I's and crossing T's where rhetoric is sold as gospel.

The fact that teachers in Grosse Pointe are being paid $346 a day including benefits and administrators are being paid $500 a day including benefits is not misleading. The fact that a 7 percent increase was received for three years while the rest of the community was having wages frozen or cut is not misleading. The facts require our school board to seriously not raise any salaries for this school year and very, very moderate increases over the next three years is a must.

If teachers and administrators find that the citizens of Grosse Pointe are being unfair, then the teachers and administrators should leave Grosse Pointe and go out in the real world and find a job. Superintendent Ed Shine argues in his publication To The Pointe that the new deal of early retirement, although beneficial, is not innovating nor original; it's an old standby with few guarantees. John Bruce, a former school board member, echoes the bias of the school board members and the typical prejudice found in our elected officials opposing the taxpayer.

The information provided in this letter is statistically correct and — given the need to focus money spent well for good education — is, and has been, our No. 1 priority.

Please note: On Monday, April 11, the school board votes on the teacher contract. The public should attend and encourage a no vote for any increases. Should all teachers and administrators of Grosse Pointe leave in one fell swoop, excellent replacements are available immediately.

Runner-up for City council

To the Editor:

I was surprised and disappointed when the Grosse Pointe City Council failed to act in a more democratic way when appointing a successor to serve out the term of Mayor Red Browning. There is, however, another opportunity for the council to reflect the "people's choice" by filling the now vacant council seat with the election candidate next in line with votes in the last election.

Major crime in Shores in 1993 is half its 5-year average

By John Minnis
Editor
Major crime last year in Grosse Pointe Shores was one half its five year average. Major, or Part I crimes based on FBI reporting standards, totaled 13 in 1993. The Shores' five-year average for major crimes is 26.2. In 1992 in the Shores, 24 major crimes were reported.

Healy credited the reduced crime throughout the Pointes with helping keep his city's rate low. "Once again the departments around us were very successful," he said, "and we've had the cooperation of the residents. And the officers have done a good job. It was a good year. The guys worked hard."

Part I crimes include criminal homicide, rape (criminal sexual conduct), robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny, auto theft and arson. There were no homicides in the Shores last year, nor were there any in the last five years. There was one reported rape in 1993, the first in at least five years. There were no aggravated assaults in 1993 and 1992. Burglaries remained at the same level, with four reported last year and four the year before. Larcenies (thefts of any dollar value) plummeted from 20 in 1992 to just seven last year. One auto theft was reported last year, the first since 1990. No arsons have been reported since 1990. Part II crimes, including drunken driving and vandalism, totaled 168 last year, the lowest level since 1989. The five-year average of Part II crimes in the Shores is 194.8. Thirty drunken driving incidents were reported last year, down from 37 the year before, representing a four-year decline since 1990's high of 71 and 1989's level of 70. Only eight vandalism incidents were reported in 1989, down from 14 the year before, 21 in 1991 and 27 in 1990. Fifty-two fires were reported last year, down from 54 in 1992 and 71 in 1991. Of last year's fire calls, 35 were false alarms and five were buildings. Also, five were mutual-aid runs to other cities. The five-year average in fire calls is 56.4.

Major crime dips 29 percent in Farms

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer
Major criminal activity in the Farms fell by almost one-third last year. Part I Index crimes, which include criminal homicide, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny, vehicle theft and arson, fell 29 percent.

Thirteen burglaries were reported in 1993, the same number as in 1992, and there was one rape reported last year, also the same number as in 1992. The Farms experienced one fewer incident of robbery last year than in 1992, but motor vehicle thefts increased, with 11 more in 1993 than in the previous year. Major property crimes, which accounted for more than 98 percent of all major criminal activity in the Farms, decreased 33 percent. Despite the increase in motor vehicle thefts, reported larcenies dropped 34 percent in 1993, with 132 fewer incidents than in 1992. Instances of malicious destruction of property dropped 24 percent in 1993, with 77 cases reported. OUIL (Operating a vehicle Under the Influence of Liquor) incidents increased by three, with seven reported incidents in 1993.

Fire loss totaled $600 last year, compared with $236,500 in a couple of larger fires in 1992 and a five-year fire-loss average of $75,588. Emergency medical personnel, including public safety officers, responded to 177 calls last year, up six from 171 in 1992 and a big increase from the 128 in 1991. The five-year average in ambulance runs is 148.6.

There were 110 fewer larcenies last year than in 1992, which led the overall decrease in crime. "While in 1993, the Farms saw a 29 percent reduction in major crime, representing 103 major crimes, the crime of retail fraud alone fell by 97 incidents," said Farms director of public safety Robert Ferber. "The primary factors for the decrease relate to the closing of the Sears outlet store at Mack and Moross, and the discontinuance of the use of full-time security personnel (in preparation for closing) at the A.L. Price store at Mack and Moross."

Park purchases a new backup ambulance

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer
Grosse Pointe Park residents will be spending $62,750 to purchase a new ambulance for the city's public safety department, thanks to a vote by the Park City Council last week. City manager Dale Krajniak told the council that since the city recently ended its contract with Taylor Ambulance, it had only one ambulance to make runs. "There are only a few times during the year when two ambulances go out on runs at the same time," Krajniak said.

"But it does happen and the city has to be ready." Krajniak also told the council that the Park will provide ambulance service to the City of Grosse Pointe, as they have in the past. The Park had been doing so even when Taylor provided service and always maintained a backup ambulance of its own. Now that the Park is no longer using the ambulance service, Krajniak said, the backup ambulance is now the main ambulance, so the Park needs a new backup ambulance.

When asked what was included with the $62,750, Krajniak told the council everything. The ambulance will come fully equipped with lights and medical equipment. Krajniak also told the council that fees paid by City residents should cover the cost of the ambulance over a seven-or-eight year period. City residents will be charged $150 for each billable ambulance run. "We make more runs than we can bill," said Krajniak. "For example, a guy will fall off his ladder while climbing down and a neighbor will call for an ambulance. By the time it gets there, the guy who fell

Teenagers! Learn to drive

The State Board of Education has approved Courtesy Driving School to offer a course at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. After 12 hours of classroom instruction, a performance test will be given to determine if the student has acquired the knowledge needed to drive. After 2 1/2 hours of behind-the-wheel driving, students 15 and older are given tasks to complete under normal driving conditions in order to pass the behind-the-wheel portion of the test. After successful completion of the course, the student will be issued a Michigan Driver Education Certificate. One session meets on Mondays and Wednesdays, from 6 to 8 p.m., April 13 through May 2. Another session meets on Mondays and Wednesdays from 6 to 8 p.m. May 4 through May 23. The fee is $109 for six two-hour classes, including 2 1/2 hours of road training. Call 881-7511 for reservations or for more information.

Multiple sclerosis is a disease that randomly attacks your nervous system, wearing away the control you have over your body. Symptoms may range from numbness to paralysis and blindness.

MS is a devastating disease because it is so unpredictable. The progress, severity, and specific symptoms of the disease cannot be foreseen. You never know when attacks will occur, how long they will last, or how severe they will be.

Most people are diagnosed with MS between the ages of 20 and 40, but unpredictable physical and emotional effects can occur for the rest of their lives.

to sell part of their fleets. Collector car auction prices peaked in late 1990, then dropped precipitously. Now prices have begun slowly climbing after hitting bottom in early 1992, according to Cars and Parts Magazine in Sidney, Ohio.

Most of the fluctuations were at the high end of the market, the magazine said, which explains why sales activity can remain depressed, while prices are holding or improving. The owners of the expensive Packards, Rolls-Royces, Dusenbergs and so on are putting high reserves on their cars and are simply not selling them.

Bob Stevens, editor of Cars and Parts, said that at the Autumn in Detroit auction one buyer bid $250,000 on a '48 Tucker. "But the word was that the seller was hoping to get $300,000 for his rare piece."

The Kruse labor Day auction is the granddaddy of collector car auctions. Auctioneer extraordinaire Dean Kruse, son of an auctioneer (and father of Mitchell who is now president of Kruse International), began specializing in classic cars in 1970 when the Auburn Chamber of Commerce asked the family to raise funds for an annual festival revolving around the Auburn-Dusenberg-Cord Museum. Why not an auction sale of the cars that had put Auburn on the automotive map, Kruse suggested.

"It rained the day of the first sale, so we were worried nobody would show up," Kruse recalled. "They did. All the roads into town were clogged, miles of cars. The National Guard had to be called out to clear up the jam. The city was sold out of food and emergency calls went out for more hamburger."

Kruse boasts that his auction, which became an annual event, is what brought order to the collector car field by establishing prices which everyone can consult, in much the same way that dealer auctions set used-car prices. Kruse International now holds collector car auctions across the country year-around.

Kruse recently auctioned a collection owned by Herbie Livingston at Herbie's Antique Car Museum in Charleston, S.C. A little over a third of the 230 cars were sold, said Mitchell Kruse. The most expensive car sold was a '47 Lincoln Continental V-12 convertible which brought $21,115. All other sales were under $20,000.

Bids did not make reserve on such high-ticket items as a '28 Hispano-Suiza ($154,500 bid) and a '27 Stutz Blackhawk Speedster ($133,900 bid).

So if your taste runs more to Pontiac GTOs or big-finned DeSotos than to Hispano-Suizas, now might be the time to take the plunge. There are plenty of nervous owners out there.

Environmental car care brochure

Looking for a way to celebrate Earth Day? Here's help. "Car care is a win-win situation. Besides helping the environment, a properly maintained and operated vehicle runs better, is safer, and will last longer — up to 50 percent longer."

This advice comes from a free brochure, "Keeping Your Vehicle in Tune with the Environment," available from the non-profit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE). The brochure includes advice on what you or your auto technician can do to ensure that your vehicle is "environmentally friendly."

Among the suggestions:

- Keep your engine tuned-up — a misfiring spark plug can reduce fuel efficiency as much as 30 percent. You'll help reduce air pollution too.
- Replace filters and fluids as recommended for efficient engine performance.
- Keep your tires properly inflated and in alignment to save gasoline. The tires will last longer too, meaning less discards at landfills.
- Properly dispose of used motor oil, anti-freeze/coolant, tires, and old batteries. Many repair facilities accept these items; otherwise, call your local government for recycling sites. Never dump fluids on the - ground or in open streams.

- If you are not a do-it-yourselfer, find a good technician. Ask friends and associates for recommendations. Check the reputation of the shop with your local consumer group. Look for places which employ ASE-certified technicians. ASE technicians have passed national certification exams in specialties such as Engine Repair, Air Conditioning, etc. Repair facilities with certified technicians usually display ASE's blue and white sign and post their technicians' credentials in the customer service area.
- Keep your air conditioner in top condition. Have it serviced only by a technician certified competent to handle/recycle refrigerants in order to lessen the chance of ozone-depleting chemicals escaping into the atmosphere.
- Avoid sudden accelerations and jerky stop-and-go's. Use cruise-control on open highways to keep your speed steady.
- Remove excess items from the vehicle. Less weight means better mileage. To reduce air drag, store luggage in the trunk rather than on the roof.
- Avoid excessive idling. Shut off the engine while waiting for friends and family.
- Plan trips. Consolidate daily errands to eliminate unnecessary driving. Try to travel when traffic is light to avoid stop-and-go conditions.

Michigan State Fairgrounds to host auto show April 10

The Michigan State Fairgrounds will host the 20th annual Competition Specialists Auto Show on Sunday, April 10, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. The auto sale and swap meet will take place in the Michigan Mart, Mall and Agricultural Building and is open to the public. Admission is $4.

There will be more than 80,000 square feet of auto related items from vendors across the United States. Everything from Model T's to hot-rod muscle cars, Cobras to Mustangs, tools, parts and accessories will be represented. Recently added to the show is a 25,000 square-foot area featuring collectibles such as toys, comics and antiques.

Michigan State Fairgrounds general manager John Hertel welcomes the annual return of the Auto Show.

"It's great that these wonderful events continue to utilize the fairgrounds as their exhibition site," he said. "It's encouraging that their success continues to bring them back year after year. We couldn't be more pleased."

The Michigan State Fairgrounds are located on the east side of North Woodward, just south of Eight Mile. Parking for the event is $4, and visitors can enter through Gate 5 off Woodward. On site, secured parking is available in the newly paved well-lit Woodward Gate lot.

For additional information call 775-7472.

We're only human

I've been a newspaper reporter for about four years now. During that time, I've received some praise and a lot of complaints.

The Grosse Pointe News is the third newspaper I've worked for. The other papers included a small daily in the western part of the state and a small weekly up north.

No matter where I've been, however, the criticisms remain the same. Some people complain that the local papers, apparently under the direction of the secret powers that run the local economy and government, have muzzled the reporters and keep the really bad news out of the press.

People have said to my face that they won't read the paper I write for because we are under the thumbs of some interest. To the best of my knowledge, we reporters and editors never were under the control of whatever powers there were. The only thumb we work under is the deadly thumb of deadline doom.

On the other hand, I've also been told that the papers I've written for carry too much bad news. We don't put enough positive stories about the nice young folks, the hardworking adults and the colorful senior citizens that live in the community.

Again, this complaint is one

I Say

James M. Stickford

I've heard at all three papers I've worked on. It is not unique to one paper. So on the one hand we kept the bad news out of the paper, and on the other we didn't put enough good news in the paper. Oh well, if I wanted to be loved I would have become a veterinarian.

A couple of months ago I was interviewing a man for a business story and he told me right off that he felt reporters preyed on human misery. I later heard from him that he liked the story I wrote and he was surprised that I was accurate. I never know how to take statements like that.

I will say that reporters hate making mistakes. We try very hard to get everything right. But I still make mistakes. I sometimes get names wrong. I sometimes report the wrong figures in a story. It's not intentional, believe me.

But if it's your name that's misspelled, or your city's crime statistics that are accidentally doubled, you're mad. It's hard to listen to me say oops, we'll run a correction.

You don't want to hear that I got 99 percent of the facts in my story right. And I don't blame you for being mad. But please don't think it's intentional, because it's not. We at the News try very hard to be sure of our facts, and when we make mistakes, it really bothers us.

I remember, in my first month at the western daily I worked for, I interviewed the new school superintendent. He said that some terrible thing would not happen, even if state law changed. I remember him telling me that. My notes said that.

So what do I do? When it comes time to write the story, I write this terrible thing will happen, even if the Legislature changes the law. The superintendent was nice, he called me to say that I got the quote wrong. I couldn't see how. So I reviewed the story, and he was right. The sentence made sense without the crucial word "not," so the editors didn't catch the mistake.

I wrote a correction, apologized to the superintendent, who showed a lot of class and said these things happen, and didn't hold it against me.

So reporters make mistakes and will continue to make mistakes. Please be assured that it's not part of an Oliver Stone conspiracy to advance some secret agenda. But if the story seems short, or does not receive front page play, well that's the editor's fault — him you can blame.

Recycling: Test of snobbery

You know summer's coming when the home decorating catalogs start showing porch furniture. I've been looking at hickory rockers.

But wait — there's a new option: faux hickory made of plastic! It even costs a little more. No kidding, plastics recyclers have taken several steps past the clunky park benches and parking lot bumpers.

The chairs supposedly look just like wood, with the added advantage that you can leave them outside in the rain.

That's not all. On an arare visit to a carpet store, I discovered I can carpet my entire house in Number 2 plastic bottles, all spun out in threads of my color choice.

The question is, will I, or anyone else be able to overlook the historical downsideness of plastic and do the right thing? It doesn't make much sense to faithfully fill our recycling bins every week while refusing to buy the products of our environmental zeal.

But a Number 2rug? I'm still plumbing the depths of my snobbery.

A complaint poured in about last week's column. Seems someone feels I was too busy showing off my knowledge of famous American women to bother spelling their names right. Or was it thoughts of summer ocean breezes that caused us to call the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Harriet Beecher Stowe?

I plead not guilty. If correct spelling were worth its weight in gold (which it isn't, unfortunately), I'd be rich. Call it a deadline typo that didn't get caught.

No complaints were heard — but perhaps some should have been lodged — that my list of 20 famous American women was exclusively European in ethnic background. I noticed it when I read the column in print.

Not good. Herewith some women of color:

Nancy Parmenter

Patsy Mink (politician); Marian Anderson (singer and civil rights symbol); Pocahontas (diplomat); Josephine Baker (singer and adoptive mother extraordinaire); Maria Tallchief (ballerina).

I hope you're having as much fun with this as I am.

Media fever is following its usual course in the Whitewater affair. First came the rumor-mongering articles. Then the articles in defense of the rumor-mongering. Then the soul-searching about the media's role in our political system.

Right now there's a spate of don't-blame-the-media-for-the-continued-coverage-because-Whitewater-has-taken-on-a-life-of-its-own.

The worst of it is that we have months to wait for any substantive reporting generated by hearings or the special prosecutor.

The entire spectacle is the kind of posturing that causes Americans' distrust of politics. People understand that the system needs an oversight mechanism; people want scandals to be punished; but people resent the way Washington is glorying in it.

If the Clintons are guilty, the wave of disillusionment will set back voter confidence in government for another generation. If the Clintons turn out to be innocent, the disgust for the fomenters of the inquisition will be just one more proof that you can't trust politicians.

We seem to be in a lose-lose situation.

Genealogy alert...

Lots of us have fun tracing our ancestors, but how many of us keep up with the contemporary branches of the family tree? My sisters and I spent a few fruitless hours not long ago just trying to figure out who some of our third cousins are.

Nobody knows his third cousin.

Last weekend a friend visited from Syracuse. In spite of her address, she comes from a family which settled in Macomb County while Michigan was still a territory.

She went uptown to the drugstore, ran into her third cousin and decided to have lunch. While they were in the restaurant, one of their fourth cousins came in and joined them. And when Janice got back to our house, she detailed the whole relationship from memory. All those great-greats are as real to her as if she knew them — which she feels she does.

In fact, her great-great grandparents met each other at a rare Michigan historical event. Capital punishment has been banned ever since we became a state but a handful of public hangings was carried out during the territorial days.

Her great-great grandfather was in attendance at one of these gruesomely edifying spectacles when a young lady in front of him fainted in his arms. You can guess the rest.

Of such stuff was romance made in the pioneer days.

Letters welcome

The Grosse Pointe News welcomes letters to the editor. All letters must be signed and, preferably, typed and double spaced. Include a telephone number for verification purposes.

The deadline for letters is 3 p.m. Monday to be considered for that week's paper. Letters are subject to editing and space limitations.

Hand-deliver or mail letters to: Editor, Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236; or fax them to 882-1585.

fyi

Pointer on CNN

There he was, introducing U.S. Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor. CNN carried her cogent talk Saturday night and City resident George Bushnell Jr. marshaled the American Bar Association's spring meeting. He's president-elect, assuming the top office in August. Justice O'Connor, first woman to sit on the High Court, reiterated court burdens must be curtailed, with more arbitration/mediation and lower court resolutions.

Richner puts it on the line

One could argue the point but the forthright approach of our county commissioner from the Park, Andrew Richner, makes good sense. He likes the old Tiger Stadium, thinks public funding of the new litch plan is for the birds (even if it's just half of the total cost) and flatly says Foxtown is no panacea for Detroit problems. Not many politicians stuck their necks out, did they?

Pointe of information

The Pointes have always been a sociable community and now new ways of connecting are arriving at near-lightning speed.

I began to realize this one evening a few years ago when across-the-street neighbors Norton and Susan Berman invited me to dinner and in the process proudly showed me their new fax machine. As a lark when I got back home, I wrote them a little thank-you note on my PC and tried sending it to their fax number using MCI's computer mail.

Amazingly enough, even though I had never done this before, it went right through all the MCI uplinks and downlinks and appeared in print a few minutes later at their house. To the delight of all concerned, the day of the instant bread-and-butter letter had come.

Lately I've been communicating with another friend, Christ Church rector Ted Cobden, on the DELPHI information service. He got interested in DELPHI because it hooks directly to the Internet, which is the main drag of the information superhighway, but for our purposes it's also a handy way to link up and chat locally.

On DELPHI, Ted is ECOB-DEN and I'm just plain EATHERLY, in case anyone wants to interface. A member search shows other Pointers there as well, with compu-monikers like GDRORIAN and PDRUMMOND and RWATERMAN and BJBELCOURE.

It was Ted who clued me in that the Grosse Pointe Public Libraries are now accessible to home computers using the dial-in number 343-2079. It's still another link, this one letting us (and anyone else with a PC and modem) search the electronic card catalog of the public and school libraries here for books, videos, CDs and tapes by title, author or subject.

The America Online service now lists 97 Pointers, and that's just the ones who have entered their profiles in the system. On line there, you can contact such notables as John B. Ford III, whose PC handle is JOHNBF; Tim Kiska, alias TIMKISKA; Dwight Angell, or ANGELL443. Oh, yes, and I'm there as KRE8OR.

CompuServe, one of the old mainstays of the info highway, doesn't list its users by community, but along the way, in my alter ego as 76566.3202, I've found such neighbors and friends as John Shorter, Dr. John Corbett, Dick Wright, Fred Girard and this paper's editor John Minnis, otherwise known as 72636.1047. Something tells me there are lots of others.

And then there's Prodigy, perhaps the most popular information service for PC owners these days.

I've been using its E-mail feature for years to keep in touch with friends around the metro area (as well as the rest of the country), but I just took a look at the list of users on the service and found over 500 members throughout the various Grosse Pointes, including familiar names Alexander Blain, Dr. Arthur Porter, Sheila Osann, David Votruba, Scott Vance, Jon Gandelot, Dr. Steve Tsangalias, Noel Baril, Richard Hernquist, William Wenk, John and Mary Jo Youngblood and Jeffrey Gaydos.

FYI, on Prodigy my Silicon Era I.D. is KSCD36A.

If you haven't gotten into the modern mode of communication yet, this might seem like so much gobbledygook, but it doesn't take long for such things to become second nature.

And at the rate that the PC network is growing, it might not be too long before it doesn't matter what the Postal Service decides to charge for stamps.

We won't be using many of them.

Squirrel news

Those of you who read Peter Haley's letter of March 17 know that the white squirrel of Lothrop seems to have survived the winter (and avoided that nasty hawk flying around overhead), although he also seems to have relocated and become the white squirrel of Mt. Vernon, and more specifically, the Haley back yard.

The latest news is that, despite having a corner on the bleached look here, it looks like "Whitey" has plenty of relatives out of state.

My friend Joe Swickard tells me the town of Olney, Ill., is so jam-packed with white squirrels that a picture of one of them is used as the official emblem on police car doors there. Olney, apparently, styles itself as the home of the white squirrels.

And City resident Jean Dupuis sent me an article about how the citizens of Kenton, Tenn., bill their town as the official home of the white squirrels and are hopping mad at certain residents of Marionville, Mo., because they have been billing THEIR town as — you guessed it — the home of the white squirrels.

Illinois, Tennessee, Missouri — where did Grosse Pointe's very own white squirrel come from?

Maybe someone can check his family tree.

Middle ground on animal testing

To the Editor:

In response to letters opposing the views of Kathleen Ferrilla's column on animal testing: An extremist is an extremist.

The most recent information is this: Establishments involved in animal testing understate the suffering endured by animals and animal rights groups overstate the same. I am an animal rights person and a first-year medical student.

The world most certainly is not ready for the complete stoppage of the use of animals in medical research. But, unlike the comments of those letter writers, the world is more than ready to rid itself of cruel and unnecessary tests (Yes, the alternative, non-animal product tests are quite good.)

People involved in medical research need to set specific standards for all members of their community. If this was done, then the atrocities that have been found, even at top universities, would not be fuel for the fire. People involved in animal rights need to watch for the unstable people in our crowd so as to avoid incidents, e.g. fires, which weaken our case.

As with just about everything in life, a middle ground needs to be found and both sides need to communicate with each other and among themselves to solve important issues.

Alice M. Kachman Grosse Pointe Farms Where is the outrage?

To the Editor:

Am I the only one that has been reading in the newspapers and hearing on the news about higher federal tax for Social Security recipients? About businesses moving out of Michigan due to over-regulation and high taxes? Business executives being terminated due to mergers, down sizing? State civil employees working with a 1 percent pay raise in four years?

Yet the MEA/GPEA continuously request and our school board continuously agrees to pay increases for the teachers. Please don't misunderstand me, being a teacher is a fine profession. But why is it that throughout the private and public sector while employees are taking pay freezes, benefit concessions, even being terminated, the MEA/GPEA members keep receiving pay raises? A 21 percent pay raise during these past three years alone.

Where is the public outrage? The public trough is dry. When will the school board members acknowledge this fact? When will they represent their constituents and say no to the GPEA: no pay raise.

The school board members will vote on the new GPEA contract this Monday, April 11 at their school meeting — a contract that calls for a 2.75 percent pay raise. To quote from Dr. Shine's To the Pointe Newsletter, "...a wage freeze as proposed by the employer would cause a loss in purchasing power for teachers..." Well, doesn't Dr. Shine and the school board realize that the taxpayers, (the employer) know what it is like to make a budget when our income hasn't increased with the rate of inflation?

Where is the public outrage? If you're unable to attend the April 11 school board meeting, at least pick up the phone and call the school board members and instruct them to vote no on this contract.

Where is the outrage?

Unicameral Legislature

"A Unicameral Legislature — Is it Good for Michigan?" will be the topic at the April 14 meeting of the Grosse Pointe League of Women Voters.

Karen Opdyke will argue in favor of a one-house Legislature and Erin Barthel will present views in favor of the present bicameral system.

The discussion begins at 7 p.m. at the home of Kay Gee, 710 Barrington. For more information, call 821-5059.

Fun for toddlers and moms

Fun for toddlers will soon begin at the Neighborhood Club. Mom and tots meet together in class for Mom & Tot Exercise, a program that is designed to aid children in the development of motor skills. The class introduces toddlers to gym activities, exercise and group games. Children ages 1 and 2 can enroll for this class, which will run on Thursdays, April 14 through May 19. The program fee is $25, assessed to the child only.

For 2- and 3-year-olds, there's the Play Group. Carolyn Szczepanski and Jackie Wood instruct this program of play activities, songs and storytelling. This group meets on Mondays beginning on April 11 and ending on May 16. Cost for the program is $25.

Michelle Ryszewski will instruct 3- and 4-year-olds in Kid-die Gym. Kids will develop skills through fun games, gymnastics apparatus, and gym activities. Kiddie Gym will take place on Wednesdays, April 13 through May 18. The cost for this program is $20.

You may register for any of the above activities in person or by mail to the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, Grosse Pointe, Mich. 48230. Participants must have a current 1993-94 club membership, which may be purchased at the time of registration. Adults do not need a membership to participate in the Mom & Tot Exercise class.

For more information, call the club at 885-4600.

My very own mortgage

I remember the day my husband and I bought our first home and what mixed feelings we experienced. On the one hand we were filled with elation, and on the other terrified about what we had done. Now that our children are owners and potential owners of their own homes, I have been emotionally reliving some of those early experiences and recalling how scary it was to make such a huge commitment.

First, there is the problem of sticker shock. We now buy cars for what we paid for a house in the early 1960s. I frankly don't know how young people manage, although most are now two-income families by necessity.

An attitude adjustment is also necessary. When we were buying our first home, my husband took care of all that nasty business stuff while I concerned myself with decorating our new turf and all the cosmetic changes we would make — in other words, the fun stuff. Happily, lives have taken on new dimensions today and young men and women share not only parenting duties, but business decisions as well.

Purchasing a home is fraught with emotional highs and lows. A conscientious broker and attorney can help make some of the more stressful decisions and unravel confusion. When they move past worrying about loan qualifications and utility bills, proud homeowners can ruminate on the plus side of this major decision: the wonderful pride of ownership, roots to put down, being part of a neighborhood with one's own turf, trees, roses. Then there is the matter of responsibility in maintaining property, fixing leaking roofs, cutting grass, shoveling snow, raking leaves. There are new kinds of insurance and, as always, the taxes. I'll wager that new homeowners have good voting records and feel more involved with their communities.

It is an exciting time, albeit a stressful time, as buyers and sellers await inspections and news concerning bids and counter-bids. These are the kinds of concerns we are happy to entertain. It is a privilege we embrace. What could be more rewarding than owning your own home in this special little community?

— Offering from the loft

Mom Always Knew Best!

"Being a mother, balancing a career, and trying to interpret my husband's schedule really keeps me busy... Recently though, I've spent a great deal of time being concerned about my mother."

Although she's still able to do many things she's always done, she doesn't seem to enjoy them as much as she once did.

So when she suggested we visit The Whittier, I wanted to find time to help her make a decision she'd be happy with. Well, it didn't take more than one look at their spacious riverfront suites to convince her that The Whittier was the best move she could make. For example, she needn't bother with cooking her own meals each day. The Whittier has the availability of three meal service. The biggest plus, should the need arise, is the availability of on-site 24-hour medical supervision.

I know they've got programs suited to just about everyone's desires. As a matter of fact, my best friend and her mother are visiting The Whittier this week.

And me, I don't spend any more time being concerned about my mother, I just spend more time loving her.

Writer parts with Charger — at cost

By Richard A. Wright

It was kind of a snap decision to sell my silver-gray Dodge Charger 383 V-8 at the seventh annual Collector Car Auction and Muscle Car Show at the Ford Proving Grounds (better known perhaps as the Packard Proving Grounds) in Utica, staged by Tom Williams Contemporary Classic Car Auctions.

Williams had invited me to speak at the event and I had decided to drive my Charger, just to get into the swing of things.

I had come by the Charger in a rather odd way, but that is almost normal in car collecting. I was sitting on the porch of my home one day with a friend who had a highly customized Pontiac Firebird parked in front of my house in Grosse Pointe Park.

A young man pulled up behind it in a red and black '67 Dodge Charger and came over to talk about the impressive-looking high-performance Firebird. He noted a '66 Corvair in my driveway and asked if I would be interested in a Dodge Charger.

"Not this one," he said, gesturing at his sparkling and well-restored Charger. "I have another one."

"I don't know, I've already got a lot of junk in my driveway," I said. "You interested in a Corvair?" The Corvair looked very good but it wasn't. I didn't like it at all. It was not very dependable and I didn't want to put any money in it.

"Maybe," he said. "How much do you want for it?" "What do you want for the Charger?" I asked. "One thousand dollars."

"That's what I want for the Corvair," I said. "Does the Charger run?"

"Of course," he said, "I'll go get it."

The deal was made. I wasn't sure I really liked the Charger, but determined that if I were going to drive it I would have to get new brakes. I took it to Dave and Dewey Santoro's shop on Harper on Detroit's east side.

Dewey finally tracked down a set of the elaborate dual-piston front discs the charger has. "I had to pay $600 for them," he said. I was not surprised.

I then had new floors welded in, a little rust in the lower body panels cut out and new metal welded in and had it painted. I now had roughly $2,700 plus a Corvair in the car.

A few months later the auction came up and I decided to sell it while it looked and ran good. I paid the $50 fee to enter it in the auction and put a reserve of $5,000 on it.

It was put in a special area where buyers could inspect the cars going on the block. I was pleased that it seemed to attract more lookers than any of the others.

The auction was run by Emmitt Napier, a fast-talking, honey-voiced professional whose job it is to keep the bidding moving at a fast pace, to hype the crowd, to get them excited with his auctioneer's chant.

Once in a while he would stop to admonish the crowd when he did not think the bidding was strong enough. "Common folks, you're here to buy some cars, not to steal 'em."

The auctioneer was assisted by two ringmen, Mike Hagerman and Frank Rizzo. Their job was to solicit and take bids, and to hype the crowd as they worked on the floor among the bidders.

Bidding was a bit desultory for what looked to me to be desirable Mustangs, Mercedes-Benz and Buicks until my Charger went on the block. Bidding was spirited but never went really high, not close to my reserve. The crowd really seemed to like my Charger, but not $5,000 worth.

When one young man bid $2,700, things stuck. A ringman came to me and said, "That's as high as it's going. Do you want to sell it?"

The auctioneer said that this was the first excitement of the day. He was not having fun. "Yeah, let it go," I said. "I don't want to take it home."

We went to a tent where auction officials drew up the papers and the young man paid for the car. The auction took 10 percent minus my $50 entry fee. I went home with about $2,400.

All things considered, I guess I was happy. I had a good time, anyway.

Like classic cars? Now is a good time to invest

Autos

By Richard Wright

Thinking of indulging yourself with a classic car? A finned and chromed monster like the one your parents owned when you were a kid? Or a muscle car from the '60s or '70s? Not as an investment, but as an exercise in nostalgia?

Well, this might be the right time. Interest rates are low, prices are generally reasonable and the market is a bit slow.

A number of major players in the classic car field are selling off their holdings. Richard Kughn, owner of one of the finest private automobile and truck collections in the world, recently sold some 85 vehicles.

Tom Monaghan has been selling off his Domino's collection for the past several years. George Crocker, who had been Monaghan's partner in the Car Barn in Ann Arbor, sold most of the cars in his Rearview Mirror museum in Nag's Head, N.C.

Wayne Morris, a leading restorer of classic cars in Sidney, Ohio, until his retirement several years ago, auctioned off his collection, which included a '29 Packard 626 rumble-seat convertible, a '30 Pierce-Arrow Berline Model B and a 1914 Hupp roadster.

Buyers of the cars from the Kughn collection were Rob Myers and Mike Fairbairn, of R.M. Classic Car Productions, Weston, Ontario. The Canadians reportedly paid more than $2 million for vehicles ranging from rare Cadillacs and Rolls-Royces to a 1934 Ford oil tanker, a 1948 Kaiser-Frazer Manhattan and the 1938 Chrysler Imperial limousine once owned by Joseph P. Kennedy when he was U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain.

R.M. Classic immediately began selling vehicles to collectors from both the Detroit area and across the continent. Jim Miller, an antique dealer from Kitchener, Ontario, snapped up 20, which he likely will re-sell.

Auction operators say prices are holding steady or picking up, but the high priced Packards, Rolls-Royces, Ferraris and Pierce-Arrows, are not selling. Bids are not reaching reserves set on these high-value cars. (A reserve is a price set by the seller below which he will not sell the car.)

"I think we're seeing a reaction to the general economy," said Phil Zoufal, operator of Village Marathon in the City Grosse Pointe. Zoufal repairs and maintains classic cars for a number of local collectors. "I have customers who have good incomes and jobs that used to be secure, but now they are worried. The interest in the cars is still there, but people are worried."

Zoufal told of one customer who works for IBM and owns a couple of collector cars. "He didn't even bring them out to show last summer," Zoufal said. "He's not spending anything because he is afraid of getting cut by IBM. He doesn't want to sell his cars, but he knows he may have to."

Zoufal said that if something interesting presented itself for sale he would seriously consider buying now. "Financing is available at a good rate and there are bargains to be found."

One of the best places to find a bargain is at a classic car auction of the type held by Kruse International in October called Autumn in Detroit, a two-day auction of specialty cars, trucks and assorted memorabilia at the Northfield Hilton in Troy.

Bill Ziegenbein, owner of Prestige Motors in Madison Heights, is one of the founders and local organizers of Autumn in Detroit along with Bob Seroka, who is selling part of his fine collection. Kruse joined the two local organizers last year in their effort to put Detroit on the classic-car map.

Ziegenbein thinks the collector market finally is rebounding after a few years made very poor by speculators buying cars at outrageous prices in the late 1980's. When the economy softened, so did enthusiasm for specialty cars as high-yield investments.

"Close to 50 percent of the cars at the Kruse Labor Day weekend auction in Auburn (Ind.) last September sold," Ziegenbein said. "In this business, 30 percent is acceptable."

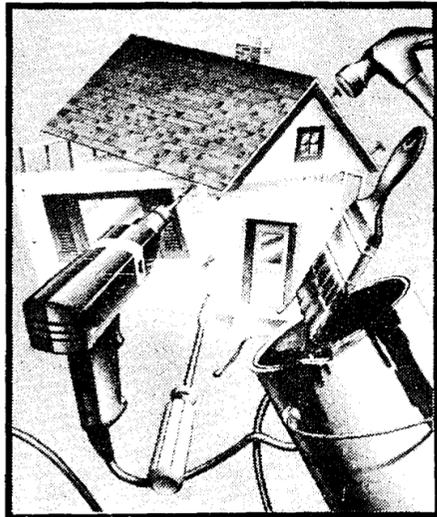

One reason that sales are picking up, he said, is that owners have decided to lower or drop reserves on vehicles they want to sell. And a lot of bigger collections have decided

Farms man recalls 47 missions over Borneo, Philippines

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

"If you weren't scared, you weren't paying attention," said James Fielding of his bombing raids in the Pacific during World War II.

In May 1944, a brand-new silver B-24, also known as a "Liberator," took off from Fairfield, Calif., with the Farms resident as co-pilot.

"You're not supposed to open your orders until you're out a certain distance," he said, "but we got over the Golden Gate Bridge, opened our orders and saw the magic word, 'Guadalcanal.'"

Fielding and the crew he had trained with knew they were headed for Hawaii, but had no idea what was in store after that.

The Allies had launched their first offensive action in the Pacific at Guadalcanal in August 1942 and everyone was well aware of what the U.S. Marines went through there.

"Guadalcanal was like the end of the Earth," he said. "Here we were, with 10 guys aboard a new airplane, the only time we had flown over water before was to Catalina Island."

Fielding, a native of Bridgeport, Conn., enlisted in the Army Air Corps in 1942 and entered the service in January 1943 at Fort Devons, Mass.

He trained in Nashville and Santa Anna before going to flight school in Wickenburg, Ariz.

"We flew Stearman aircraft, with open cockpits, a wooden propeller and 225 horsepower Jacobsen engine," he said. "The instructor sat in the back and spoke to us through a go-sport tube. There was no radio."

The pilots-in-training were given leather jackets, white scarves, helmets and goggles.

When pilots were on the ground, goggles were worn around the neck. The day that a pilot flew solo, he could wear the goggles on his forehead after the flight.

The first time Fielding flew solo, he had trouble getting the throttle to go forward.

"I taxied around to the instructor, Mr. Huff, and he stepped up on the wing," Fielding recalled. "I said, 'everytime I try to push the throttle forward, it comes back.' He looked into the seat. From force of habit, he had wrapped the go-sport tube around the throttle. He thought it was funny."

From Wickenburg, Fielding went to Merced, Calif., and said "it was like going from a cheap motel to the Plaza."

Flying a Vultee "Vibrator," Fielding received his first feel of what a military plane felt like.

He was then sent "from the Plaza back to a cheap motel" when he was transferred to Douglas Army Air Base in Arizona. After further training there, Fielding graduated in January 1944, and was assigned to Hammerfield, Calif.

He was assigned to a B-24, plane he had not flown. There, the crews were put together.

Warren (Mac) McMillan, of Chicago, was Fielding's pilot, Leo Hinchey, of Massachusetts, was the navigator, and Loren Patten, of Wisconsin, was their bombardier.

"We were impressed by his name, not his ability," Fielding said. "At 2,000 feet, he almost missed the entire Earth."

The crew of four officers and six enlisted men trained together at March Field in Riverside, Calif., dropping sand bombs in the Mojave Desert.

In May 1944, they left California for Hawaii, then to Canton Island and the Fiji Islands, before heading to Guadalcanal.

However, that was not their final destination.

"We stayed there for about a week, taking supplies to the Admiralty Islands to the outfit to which we were assigned, the 424th Bomb Squadron, 307th Bomb Group, of the 13th Air Force," he said. "That was the beginning of our combat service."

The first mission was to bomb a Japanese naval base at Truk, north of New Guinea.

"We were told that if we saw a Japanese parachute, we could kill them," he said, "because that's what they were doing to us. They said, 'don't hesitate.' Because, if you do, the rest of our guys will know it."

Fielding's outfit was supporting the central Pacific from the south.

"As we covered these targets in the mid-Pacific (Truk, Yap, Peleliu), we moved from the Admiralties west," he said. "We moved to a place called Wadke Island, where Bob Hope said they had the shortest palm trees because of the fighting there."

They continued west to Noemfoor, northwest of New Guinea. From there, the Philippines were in range.

"We bombed the Philippines and Borneo from Noemfoor," he said. "The strikes against Borneo were on the oil fields."

These oil fields were critical to the Japanese war machine, but no Allied forces had been there before.

"They called us in one night and told us what they had to do," Fielding said. "It was a volunteer mission. And everyone stood up."

This would be the longest overwater flight ever attempted by a B24. Gas tanks were attached to the two forward bomb bays and the ammunition loads were cut in half to reduce the weight.

"We were one of the crews to go on the first mission," he said, "but about three hours into the flight, our left engine blew a cylinder. We dumped everything overboard — guns, ammunition, everything. The ship began to vibrate. We were about to bail out."

The plane stopped shaking, and they were able to return to home base. The other two crews on the mission encountered heavy cloud cover and had to return also. The next strike was scheduled for a week later.

Aboard "Roger the Lodger," a different B24, Fielding and McMillan joined a plane from another squadron.

"We had to fly across the Borneo Sea to Borneo and then we would pick a spot on the coast to make a landfall," Fielding said. "Then we'd turn down the coast to hit the plants, which were all on the edge of the water."

The ammunition loads were cut in half because there wasn't any interference expected from Japanese fighters.

"As we came in on the target, our lead ship (plane) was hit," he said. "But he kept flying all right. We flew in over the target and dropped on them."

"As we turned off the target, about 80 (Japanese) fighters tracked us, and we had no cover."

There were four squadrons, with six planes in each squadron. Fielding was in the number four squadron on this mission.

"As each plane was shot down, we moved up," he said, "until we and the lead plane were the only two left."

"The only ammunition was in the belly gun. The guys were trying to get it moved up to the waist gun."

A shell burst through the windshield, cracking McMillan's seat. Fielding was flying the plane from the copilot's chair.

The lead ship began descending.

"We kept following them, but finally, we had to give up," Fielding said. "They were going to crash. They were obviously all dead or hurt. We couldn't do anything. We were the only one to return that day."

Other members of the 13th Air Force group from a base north of Noemfoor had heard what had happened during the Borneo mission and they volunteered to cover the bomb group if they decided to try again.

James Fielding in Sydney, Australia, in 1944.

"Mac and I said, 'we're going,'" Fielding said.

Fielding's plane was leading the squadron during the next mission when his nosegunner noticed that something was on fire.

"Sure enough, one of our P-38s had a Japanese plane going down in flames," Fielding said. "We looked up and we could see our fighter planes. They caught them (Japanese planes) on the ground. They caught them in the air. We had no fighter attacks against us. The Japanese never expected this."

They then moved up to the Philippines to support the invasion of Leyte in October 1944. The American forces had landed on the east coast of Leyte. From Noemfoor, Fielding flew on a shipping search.

"We saw 20 Japanese warships and, in the middle two battleships," he said. "The only time I had seen a battleship was in New York Harbor."

Four squadrons switched from a box to a trail formation and crossed in front of the Japanese ships.

The primary target was the battleship of the Yamato class. Although three of the six planes in Fielding's squadron were lost during the attack, two Japanese ships, one from the Kongo and one from the Yamato class, were hit.

Fielding's plane was hit in the nose.

"Why we didn't go down, I don't know," he said. "The grace of God was with us."

After 10 months overseas and 47 strikes, Fielding, a first lieutenant, came back to the United States aboard the U.S.S. Pueblo.

"We cheered when a Coca Cola commercial came on the radio," he said. "We knew we were near San Francisco."

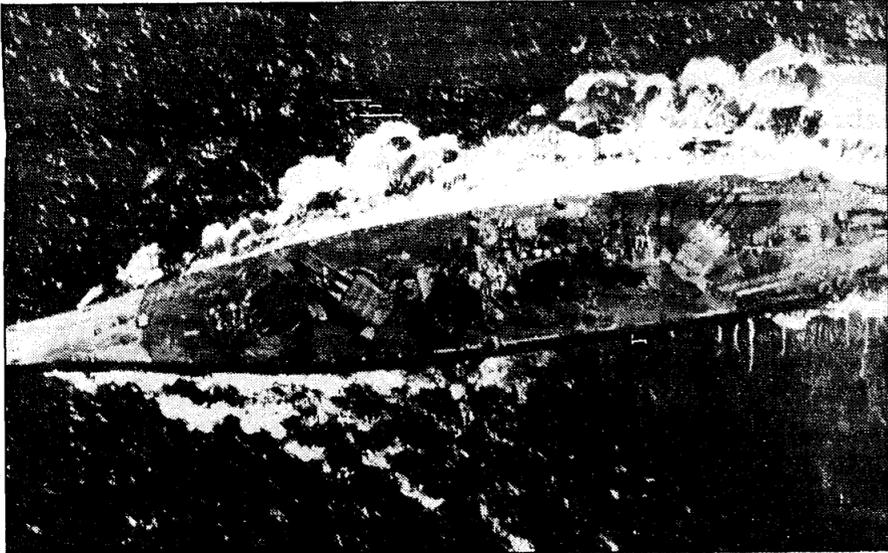

Fielding moved to Grosse Pointe Park in 1961, when he took a marketing job with Cunningham Drugs. After working at Parke-Davis, Fielding went to New Jersey in 1971 with Warner Lambert, who had acquired Parke-Davis.

He and his wife Nancy moved back to Grosse Pointe last summer.

"We're about the only people I know that have retired to Grosse Pointe," he said.

James Fielding is looking for anyone who was part of or has information regarding the 13th Air Force, 307th Bomb Group, 424th Squadron; he would love to hear from you.

He can be contacted at 882-1994.

Dogs and cats have super-sharp hearing, so take care of their ears

Animals, as we know, have highly developed senses. Of their senses, their hearing capacity is far less taken into account during daily living than it should be.

Both cats and dogs have extremely sensitive hearing. It's important that pet owners, especially those with children, come to understand and respect this extraordinary and necessary ability in our pets.

A dog has a hearing range similar to ours (about 8 1/2 octaves) but their sensitivity within that range is quite acute. For example, dogs can differentiate between two notes which differ by only 1/8 of a tone.

Dogs don't like high-pitched

Pet Pourri

By Kathleen Ferrilla

screams or noises like thunderstorms or firecrackers. They aren't necessarily "afraid" of these noises, but they are irritated by them nonetheless.

Dogs hear sounds at almost four times the distance as humans; that's why they know a storm is approaching before we do.

As with people, music can be calming and reassuring to our pets. Dogs who howl to Beethoven—or any other music—are actually "singing along." In other words, a dog "joins in" because he wants to, not because he's upset. If the sound was unpleasant, the dog would simply get up and leave.

What if your dog is suddenly displaying fear associated with certain loud noises? Chances are it's a "learned" behavior and behavioral patterns can be modified and "unlearned." By simply and patiently reconditioning your pet, he should make a full recovery.

According to veterinarian Bruce Fogle, author of "101 Questions Your Dog Would Ask Its Vet," "Firecrackers are only set off on certain days of the year and a car backfiring is infrequent and unpredictable. Thunderstorms are the noisy events that are most likely to occur frequently, and so are the events that a dog can be re-trained to accept without distress or fear. However, hard as it is for them, people should not respond to the dog's fear by being protective or by trying to distract him from the sounds. These well-intentioned gestures only reinforce the fear."

Fogle suggests purchasing a recording that mimics the frightening noises. Begin by introducing these sounds to your pet at a much lower sound level so it doesn't induce fear.

"They should not comfort the dog when he panics," Fogle says. "However, day by day, as the sound level increases, the dog should be rewarded for not showing fear." The process generally takes about three weeks before the recording can be played at "real noise level" with no fear response.

Cats have a hearing range which far exceeds that of a human. For example, when our common array of harsh daytime sounds diminishes (as dusk falls), cats are able to hear a rodent's high-pitched squeaking sounds, which are inaudible to us.

Cats even utter "silent" meows, which we can't respond to because we don't hear them. Your cat probably chuckles to himself because we "see" the silent meow and think that it's being expressed just for us. Your cat on the other hand knows the meow is silent only because our hearing is so limited. It's a perfectly good meow to any other cat.

What about deafness? In young dogs deafness is unusual and generally occurs only in certain types of breeds like bull terriers, dalmatians and sealyhams. These dogs are born "hearing," but go deaf by about 12 weeks of age. This type of deafness is a hereditary trait and the risk will be passed on if the dog is bred.

Deafness in our pets is difficult to recognize, especially in older animals because we can't decide whether a lack of response is due to increased independence or hearing loss.

As age-related hearing loss occurs, and this is very common in golden retrievers over 12, dogs compensate for the loss by using their other senses more acutely. For example, they can sense when people are nearing by the vibrations they feel in the floor. Hearing loss is as natural in dogs as in us. The most common cause of hearing loss is old age. Dogs can best indicate their loss of hearing by not responding to quietly spoken words of joy like, "treat, walk, brush and eat."

In cats, there is a genetic link between deafness, a white coat and blue eyes. Blue-eyed white cats aren't always deaf nor are white cats with two different colored eyes; although it is common for white cats with one blue eye to be deaf on one side. When blue eyes and deafness are linked, kittens are born hearing but lose the ability quickly. Their brains adapt so magnificently and their other senses become so acute that we sometimes don't realize our cats are deaf at all.

Masses of ear wax will certainly reduce hearing although by itself, this doesn't cause deafness. Routine cleaning of the ears controls this cause of hearing impairment.

To help maintain our pets' good hearing, regularly take your pet to the vet for check-ups. Certain breeds of dogs (poodles, terriers and spaniels) with long drooping ears or which have hair growing inside the ear canal are especially prone to bacterial and fungal infections. Hair retains moisture and increases chance of infection.

Between vet visits keep your pet's ears clean by trimming away excess hair and periodically wiping the ear using a cotton ball saturated with rubbing alcohol (unless the ear is inflamed).

Cats are prone to ear mites and can mutilate themselves, resulting in infection and abscesses. Seek treatment from your vet if you suspect any sort of insect or parasite invasion. Temporary relief of pain can be provided by pouring a bland oil (mineral, baby or olive) directly into the ear canal. Visible material may be removed with a cotton swab. Never probe or remove anything from deep within the ear.

Is the check in the mail?

"So far, over 1 million Michigan taxpayers have received their 1993 federal tax refund, averaging about $1,000 each" said IRS district director John Hummel. "But many Michiganders are still checking their mailboxes."

"I encourage all those who haven't yet received their refund to use our automated refund information system to find out the status of their check."

Individuals can call the IRS toll free on 1-800-829-4477 to receive pre-recorded information, such as when their federal income tax refund is scheduled to be mailed.

"Taxpayers calling our automated refund system, or tele-tax, should have a copy of their tax return available when they call since they will need to know the social security numbers, filing status, and exact amount of refund expected," Hummel said. "We're working to make taxes less taxing this year, and our automated refund system should help."

Stacey Fielder heads for home; Cecil, kids are top of the order

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Stacey Fielder, wife of Tigers' slugger Cecil Fielder, mother of two, was named Mrs. Michigan America in February — the first black Mrs. Michigan America ever.

She's delighted. She sees the title as a chance to serve as a positive role model for married women and for black women. She'll compete for the Mrs. America title Sept. 10 in Fort Worth, Texas.

"I'm preparing mentally and physically for the national pageant," she said, of the competition, which includes swimsuit and evening gown sessions and an interview.

Cecil Fielder is her biggest fan. But Stacey is quick to point out her own priorities.

"My husband and my children come first. They're supportive of me and I'm supportive of them," she said.

"I'm Cecil Fielder's wife. I'm very proud of it. I helped him to be Mr. Cecil Fielder so I could be Mrs. Cecil Fielder."

They've been together 14 of her 28 years.

Stacey was born in Los Angeles and grew up in Pomona. Her family moved to Colorado for three years, then returned to La Puente, Calif. She and her husband-to-be met while attending Nogales High School in La Puente.

"I was 14. He's two years older," she said. "A few of the girls had been talking about him. Like girls talk. They said he was real cute."

"At first, I wasn't interested. I thought he had a reputation that was not what I was looking for. He was popular; had lots of choices of girls."

"Later I found out Cecil had

some substance behind him. His popularity made him a better person, not a bad person.

"He asked me to go to the movies. I had another boyfriend then. But Cecil was easy with me. He liked me even though I was naive."

Stacey said her mother noticed the budding romance first.

"I thought 'Why not?' Then he got serious. We started holding hands. Started kissing. We became an item in high school," she said with a smile.

Cecil was a basketball player in high school. Stacey played basketball and softball and ran track. Cecil graduated in 1981; Stacey in 1982, a year ahead of schedule.

Cecil went to the University of Nevada at Las Vegas for a few semesters, then went on to play baseball for Kansas City.

"I knew him as a basketball player, not a baseball player," she said.

Stacey went off to UCLA, then to the Columbia School of Broadcasting. She joined the U.S. Marine Corps and completed six weeks of boot camp.

"When he was away, I was missing him. I was deeply in love — lost in the brain," she said, with a sweep of her arm. "I only saw him on weekends. I cried a lot."

"One day I was sitting at the ball park. The team manager came over to me and pinned a rose on my shirt. He said 'congratulations.' I didn't know why."

"That evening Cecil brought me an engagement ring."

The Fielders have been married for more than 10 years and have two children. Prince is 9 1/2; Ceclynn is 2.

"Our relationship is based on friendship," Stacey said of their marriage. "We love each other but our friendship is more than love. I see myself as a wife and mother in pursuit of total excellence. I'll never achieve it, but I'll never stop trying."

Stacey said she has a strong faith and lives by the Bible.

"Many people see success in light of sainthood. I never look at an accomplishment as the means to an end. Instead, it's a step to the next level. I keep pursuing to be the best I can be. I never stop. If I accomplish one thing, there's always something bigger to try — and this doesn't necessarily mean tangible things."

She's currently taking correspondence courses and hopes to

Fort Pontchartrain-Elizabeth Cass NSDAR to honor top students

The Fort Pontchartrain-Elizabeth Cass chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will meet at noon Friday, April 15, at the Golden Lion restaurant.

Student Good Citizens will be honored. They are: Peter Blake, Grosse Pointe North High School in Grosse Pointe Woods; Juliette Slomka, Hamtramck High School in Hamtramck; Olena Ploshchansky, Immaculate Conception Ukrainian Catholic High School in Warren; Brian Dykstra, Harper Woods Secondary School in Harper Woods; Tracy Little, Bishop Gallagher High School in Harper Woods; Nicole Adams, Regina High School in Harper Woods; and Jennifer Colombo, Warren Mott High School in Warren.

The students were chosen for high scholastic achievement, outstanding participation in home, school and community activities as well as character traits of dependability, service, leadership and patriotism. They all wrote essays on "Our American Heritage and Our Responsibility to Preserve It."

Blake was the first-place winner on the chapter level. Second-place winner was a tie between Tracy Little and Brian Dykstra.

All three chapter winners were entered in the DAR State Contest. The state winner will be entered in the divisional competition, followed by the national award at the DAR Continental Congress in Washington, D.C. — a $5,000 college scholarship and a silver bowl.

Officers for 1994-95 will be installed. The program reflecting on the Revolutionary War will be given by chapter members Marjorie Allen and Ruth Allen.

For more information, call 852-8142.

earn a degree in psychology. She said she's honest. "I tell it like it is. What you see is what you get. I'm not misleading."

About living in Grosse Pointe — "So far, so good," she said. She likes the big, old homes, with their individuality and character; the close-knit community; and her children's school.

She doesn't go to the ball park every night to watch her husband play.

"I can see it on TV. But I travel a lot with him. The children go too and we take a tutor. It's important to keep the family together. It's important for kids to get self-esteem when they're young," she said.

Cecil and Stacey are both involved in projects that help young people build self-worth and self-esteem. He works with the Police Athletic League (PAL) and she recently appeared on the "Jerry Springer Show" to speak out against negative rap music.

"Negative anything should be banned and censored," she said. "My mother instilled in me the idea that it's not the outer part of a person that counts, but what's inside your head."

Grosse Pointe's 15th CROP Walk will be Sunday, April 17

You can work up to it, gradually.

First, do the Race for the Cure, a 5K run-walk-racewalk-meander on the grounds of the Detroit Zoo on Saturday, April 9.

Then fine-tune your ambulatory technique with the 20K MS Walk on Sunday, April 10.

By Sunday, April 17, you'll be in tip-top form for Grosse Pointe's annual 10K CROP Walk.

Race for the Cure proceeds help raise funds for early screening programs to detect breast cancer. The MS Walk supports research on the cause and cure of multiple sclerosis.

The CROP Walk helps feed the hungry.

Actually, CROP Walk is sponsored by Church World Service, an international relief, development and resettlement agency of 32 Protestant and Orthodox groups. The money is used for things like food, safe water, health care, improving farming methods and providing emergency aid in times of disaster.

The 1994 CROP Walk will begin and end at Grosse Pointe United Church, 240 Chalfonte in Grosse Pointe Farms. The route winds through the Farms, City and Park with plenty of rest stops and beverages (even rides back to the church, if necessary) for participants. Walkers solicit friends and family members to pledge money for each kilometer completed.

Last year, 59 hunger relief agencies in the Detroit area received more than $94,218 from community CROP Walks.

Last year, Pointers raised $27,126 — about $55 for each walker.

Gagen expects about 500 people to participate this year.

The walk begins at 2 p.m. at the church. Registration will begin at 1:30 p.m.

For more information, call the church at 884-3075. Or just show up.

Jacket art: The DIFFA Collection, a national tour and fundraising auction of celebrity-designed Levi's denim jackets will be in Detroit on Friday, April 15, at the State Theatre.

One hundred original, one-of-a-kind wearable works of art have been created by international and local designers and entertainers. The jackets will be displayed in a runway fashion show. A live and silent auction of the jackets is part of the evening's activities.

DIFFA is a national design industry-based foundation that raises funds for programs for people with the HIV infection and AIDS — care, treatment, education, prevention and advocacy. Other cities on the tour are Dallas, Houston, Phoenix, Atlanta, Boston, Seattle and Los Angeles.

The evening includes a fashion show, silent and live auctions. VIP tickets include an open bar and food from some of the city's best eateries, like the Rattlesnake Club, Tom's Oyster Bar, Merchant of Vino, Steamer's and more.

Tickets are $150 for floor seats; $75 for mezzanine seats; $25 for balcony seats. For more information or to purchase tickets, call (810) 932-2718.

Gala, auction: The Arthritis Foundation will hold its ninth annual Gala and Auction beginning at 7 p.m. Friday, April 22, at the Dearborn Inn.

Fabulous 40s is the theme and the evening will include cocktails, dinner, entertainment, dancing to Joe Vitale's band and a silent auction.

Honorary committee members include Leonard and Sybil Jaques of Grosse Pointe Shores.

Proceeds from the event will be used for the foundation's mission of research on preventing and curing arthritis and improving the quality of life for

Mothers' Club benefit

The Grosse Pointe South High School Mother's Club will hold its spring benefit — a luncheon, fashion show and entertainment by South students — from 12:30 to 3 p.m. Thursday, April 21, in South's gymnasium.

The theme, "There's No Place Like Home," will include a showcase of fashions and merchandise from the Hill Association and the Village Association retailers. Lunch will be catered by the Main Course.

Proceeds from the annual event will be used for scholarships and programs at the school.

The cost is $20 a person. To purchase tickets, make checks payable to the Grosse Pointe South Mothers' Club, 16620 Maumee, Grosse Pointe Park, 48230, by Monday, April 11.

Wait a second: The American Diabetes Association will hold its second "Patient Care Services Celebrity Waiters Dinner" on Saturday, April 23, at the Renaissance Club.

The black-tie optional event will feature Detroit media personalities, business leaders and health professionals as volunteer waiters and waitresses. The evening will include cocktails, dinner, an auction and some surprises from the good sports who have agreed to serve the meal. "A tremendous amount of planning has gone into this event," said Grosse Pointer Davida Kruger, co-chairman of the benefit. "It promises to be an entertaining evening. Let's just say this is one event where the tables are turned. Diners will find familiar faces in our staff of volunteer waiters."

The American Diabetes Association supports diabetes research, advocacy, education and patient programs. Its mission is to promote the search for a cure and to improve the well-

formation, call Cindy Miner at 642-1150.

Eton auction: Eton Academy, an accredited independent school in Birmingham for children with specific learning disabilities, will hold its fifth annual "A World of Difference" auction from 3 to 5:30 p.m. Sunday, April 17, at the school.

Auction items will include original artworks, jewelry, antiques and trips. Tickets are $50.

For patrons ($350 a couple), there will be a catered dinner at 6 p.m., followed by live entertainment with a carnival theme, a live auction and a raffle.

Karla Scherer and Theodore Souris are honorary chairmen of the event. For in-

Benefit at Assumption: Assumption Cultural Center, 21800 Marter, will hold a benefit auction Saturday, April 16, beginning at 6 p.m.

Silent and live auctions will feature a variety of items, from vacation condos to gems to sports memorabilia; complimentary hors d'oeuvres; a dinner; and an open bar.

Honorary chairman of the benefit is Don Jensen. Ted and Anna Niforos are general chairmen.

Jim and Pat Giftos are program book chairmen; George and Santhy Volis are program book co-chairmen.

The Pastor's Corner

Prayer as we grow older (Which each of us does with every tick of the clock)

By the Rev. John Corrado
Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church

Dear tenderness at the heart of things, hold us close.
Incline us to hold one another close.

Our living plunges us from yesterday to tomorrow faster than we're ever ready for.

We were kids on the playground just a few minutes ago.

Now look at us:
kids in aging skin.

The story we become with every second seems as though somebody is speed-reading it.

We hardly have time to bump against one another, let alone make any real connections.
We grab desperately for meaning in this haste we seem to be.

Hold us close.
Slow us down.
Give us, at least, a sense of pause.

Help us see each day with grateful wonder as if it were the first page of the story.
Help us live each day in thoughtful fullness as if it were the last page of the story.

Hold us.
Slow us.
Help us.
But keep us going as long as we can.

Admiral talks to men's breakfast club

Coast Guard Adm. Rudy Peschel will speak to the Men's Ecumenical Friday Breakfast at 7:30 a.m., April 8, in the fellowship Hall of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms. Peschel is the commanding officer of the Great Lakes area and a former resident of Grosse Pointe.

Rabbi Sherwin Wine to present Thursday lecture series

The Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church will sponsor a lecture series by Rabbi Sherwin Wine on Thursdays, April 14, 21 and 28, at 7:30 p.m..

Wine will speak on contemporary philosophies: Existentialism, Objectivism and New Age.

The fee for the series is $25 a person, or for one lecture, $10. Refreshments will be served.

Wine is a native Detroit. He graduated from both the University of Michigan and the Hebrew Union College. In 1963 he founded the Birmingham Temple in suburban Detroit, the first congregation of Humanistic Judaism. Humanistic Judaism is a fifth alternative in Jewish life, as distinct from Orthodox, Conservatism, Reform and Reconstructionism.

In 1976 he organized the center for New Thinking, a public forum for the presentation of new ideas in the arts, science, politics, philosophy and religion.

As a board member of the Michigan Foundation for the Arts, he served as the keynote speaker for our annual Michigan Arts Awards.

For reservations, call the church at 881-0420.

Politics and peace lecture planned at Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church

Daphne Sharfman, professor of political science at Haifa University in Israel, will speak Wednesday, April 13, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, 17150 Maumee. The lecture will focus on the current political structure of the Israeli government and its bearing on the peace process. Sharfman is a member of the executive and central committees of the Labor Party and chair of the civil rights committee. She received her M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

The lecture is co-sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Jewish Council and the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Detroit. The public is invited.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD

If one insists upon standing still in bridge, best to step aside as others may be going someplace.

Even though at my age and mistaken perception of importance I feign to dally as there is much to be done and only a modicum of time till sunset. However a few days ago I had an idle hour at hand and put it to use at my bridge wheel of fortune, spinning to see which whist celebrity might crop up. Fortunately for all I struck it lucky and it now only remains to be seen whether I can do this epistle and that personage the veneration deserved.

Martha Speer isn't Grosse Pointe's best player, nor is she about to be in the immediate weeks ahead, but I will tell you of her gifts and glory. She is working hard at getting better as any one of her many-playing friends know. The result is paying 20 percent dividends as her technique, as we will see, has shown significant development in recent stages of her play. Coupled with this is a wonderful partnership attitude which as the immortal Howard Schenken once said, 'A virtue of limitless value.'

Most of the Speer family challenges have been undertaken as one, and Martha and Dick have much to show for that. It all began some forty-odd years ago with a roof over their head they turned into a beautiful home with the coming of Suzanne, Melissa, Richard Jr., and Emily. when the young moved to maturity and mother had more time, she became determined to master duplicate. If only I had known, I would have warned her to abandon the thought of playing well, as it takes every moment of my life at least a lifetime and a half. Dick, who plays the kitchen game like so many busy men, cautioned her, but such went unheeded.

Today Martha's favorite partners are the likes of some of Grosse Pointe's better lady partners; Connie Griffith, Punky Mikesell, Rosie McNair, and Libby Danaher and they try and team up at least once a week for 24 boards.

Any hack can handle a slam that requires one to play nothing but high cards, but when technique and sound judgment are in need, we easily distinguish between the able and the average. Here follows a hand Joan DeWitt McKean gave me that shows Martha playing a stickler as pretty as the first flower of spring.

—	3S	—	4S
—	6S	—	—

Martha's hand: ♠ A Q 10 8 4, ♥ K 7, ♦ A 7 5, ♣ A Q 3

agreement and at least 13 H.C.P.-plus. After that, all calls were a projection of that system. South might have checked for aces, but the slam was sure to be an excellent bet.

When dummy was tabled, Martha saw no problem for a dozen if either diamonds divided 3-3 (a 36 percent probability) or the club king was with East (a 50 percent probability). As my readers can see, that wasn't about to happen, but declarer didn't have the advantage of viewing all 52. After a tidy sum of study, Martha saw a third means which increased a plus score possibility considerably. Do you?

She won the heart queen with dummy's ace. Played two rounds of trumps and her heart king. At trick five, her diamond ace followed by dummy's king, queen, and if the outcards were so disposed (3-3) she could throw her club loser on dummy's fourth diamond. They weren't, but she was still a winner when it became apparent West still had one higher. At trick eight, she played dummy's last diamond and pitched her small club. West was a winner, but at trick nine, had no safe exit. A club gave Martha a free finesse and any other suit gave her a ruff and a sluff for 12 winners. It's called the elimination throw in play and Mrs. Speer executed it regally.

Sculpture dedicated

The Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church has dedicated a wood and brass sculpture created by the late G. Alden Smith. The 10-foot piece, above, is entitled "Quartet 4" and is made from polished brass and an exotic wood called granadilla, which is similar to ebony. It was presented to the church on Sunday, March 27, by Smith's family and will be permanently installed in the main chapel. Several of Smith's larger works were dismantled and placed in storage upon the closing of his Greentown studio. John Slick, Wayne State University professor of art and a colleague of Smith's, reassembled the piece to its original configuration. Above, from left, are Russell Peebles, president of the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church board of trustees, Slick, the Rev. John Corrado, minister at GPUC and Jean Smith, widow of the artist.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pellegrino

Kunert-Pellegrino

Cherylynn Kunert, daughter of Maureen Kunert of Grosse Pointe Woods, married William Pellegrino, son of Vito and Lois Pellegrino of St. Clair Shores, on May 8, 1993, at Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

The Rev. Bryant W. Dennison Jr. officiated at the 4 p.m. ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of Italian satin and beaded Alencon lace that featured on/off shoulders, short puffed sleeves, a Basque waist, a back bow, a full skirt and a cathedral-length train. Her headpiece was a satin bow with appliques of Alencon lace. It held a cathedral-length tulle veil and she carried a bouquet of orchids, purple anemones, and variegated ivy.

The bride's sister, Kathleen Kunert of Lake Tahoe, Calif., was the maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were the bride's sister, Susan Kunert of Paris, France; Dr. Katherine Boyd of St. Clair Shores; and Rose Serra of Harper Woods.

The flowergirl was Caitlin Cherry of St. Clair Shores.

Attendants wore tea-length cotton chintz print dresses with a violet pattern, scooped necklines and short puffed sleeves. They carried bouquets of anemones and ivy.

The groom's brother, Richard Pellegrino of St. Clair Shores, was the best man.

Groomsmen were Tom Hattie of St. Clair Shores; Dr. Tom Kein of Columbus, Ohio; and Kurt Krueger of St. Clair Shores.

The ringbearer was Daniel Cherry of St. Clair Shores.

The mother of the bride wore a royal blue chiffon tea-length dress.

The groom's mother wore a pastel floral print chiffon tea-length dress.

Susan Kunert was the Scripture reader.

The bride graduated from Western Michigan University with a bachelor of arts degree in communications; and from Springfield College with a master's degree in health promotion and wellness management.

The groom graduated from Oakland University with a bachelor of science degree in management.

Johnson-O'Shea

Bridget Sara Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Johnson of the City of Grosse Pointe, married John Joseph O'Shea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice P. O'Shea of Bethpage, N.Y., on Dec. 18, 1993, at St. Paul Catholic Church.

The groom's brother, the Rev. James P. O'Shea, officiated at the 3 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Detroit Yacht Club.

The bride wore a white gown featuring a crocheted bodice encrusted with pearls, crystal beads and sequins, a tulle skirt and sleeves. Her short veil was held in place with tulle rosettes decorated with beads and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white and pink roses and alstromeria.

Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph O'Shea

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Kristin Johnson of Chicago.

Bridesmaids were Alejandra Downey of New York City; Lisa Hayden and Joan McCormick, both of Boston; Mary Lenhard of Harper Woods; and Patricia Mertz of Chicago.

Attendants wore tea-length burgundy silk dresses and carried bouquets of pink roses, alstromeria and baby's breath.

Groomsmen were the groom's brother, Michael P. O'Shea of Stony Brook, N.Y.; the bride's brother, Ned Johnson of the City of Grosse Pointe; Thomas Antonini of Sylvania, Ohio; Steven Melore of Northport, N.Y.; and Paul Skelton of Glen Cove, N.Y.

The mother of the bride wore a silk suit with a beaded burgundy jacket and a white orchid corsage.

The mother of the groom wore a royal blue silk suit with a gathered jacket and pleated skirt and a white orchid corsage.

The organist was David Wagner. The soloist was Halina Olzark. The violinist was Joseph Karaszewski.

The bride graduated from Denison University. She is a candidate for a master's degree at DePaul University. She teaches Spanish in a Chicago high school.

The groom graduated from State University of New York and from the University of Notre Dame Law School. He practices law with the law firm of Pope & John.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Hawaii. They live in Chicago.

McDonald-Gmeiner

Lynn Ann McDonald, daughter of Mrs. Thomas J. McDonald of Grosse Pointe Woods and the late Thomas J. McDonald, married Ronald Wagner Gmeiner, son of Mrs. Linda Gmeiner of Grosse Pointe Farms and F. "Skip" Gmeiner of Detroit, on Nov. 26, 1993, at Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Jack Ziegler officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Detroit Yacht Club.

The bride wore a white satin gown with a v-neckline and a bodice decorated with iridescent sequins and pearls. A crown of pearls, flowers and sequins held her fingertip illusion veil, which was edged in white satin and dotted with pearls. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried a bouquet of white tea roses and stephanotis.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Steven McMillan, was the matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Matthew Hodges and Barbara Wallace.

Flowergirls were Lindsay Vanden Broeck of the City of Grosse Pointe and Katherine Ann McDonald of Fairfax, Va.

Attendants wore violet velvet off-the-shoulder sheaths accented with Austrian crystal buttons and jewelry. Flowergirls' dresses were white organza over satin with violet velvet sashes.

The best man was Scott Leahy.

The groom's brother, Steven Gmeiner, and Rudi Vanden Broeck were ushers. Alix McMillan of Grosse Pointe Park was the ringbearer.

The bride's brother, Douglas J. McDonald of Fairfax, gave the bride away.

Stephen Grafe was the soloist.

The newlyweds traveled to Cape Cod. They live in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard William Sachs

Mitseff-Sachs

Faye Louise Mitseff of Chicago, daughter of Carl and Phyllis Mitseff of Grosse Pointe Woods, married Leonard William Sachs of Chicago, son of Louise Sachs of Grosse Pointe Park and the late Leonard Sachs, on Oct. 9, 1993, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

The Rev. Michael Foley officiated at the 6 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Detroit Athletic Club.

sheath decorated with Alencon lace. Her pearl crown held a waist-length veil and she carried a cascade of calla lilies, white roses and dendrobium orchids.

The maid of honor was Laura Purcell of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Bridesmaids were Amy Andris of Grosse Pointe Woods; Colleen Roney of Arlington, Va.; Dina Chianetta of Utica; the bride's sister, Emily Lington of Grosse Pointe Woods; and the groom's sister, Stephanie Ahlbrand of Grosse Pointe Park.

Attendants wore ivory ankle-length cocktail suits with rhinestone buttons. They carried cascades of white roses and dendrobium orchids.

The best man was Lawrence Honig of Pittsburgh.

Groomsmen were Kurt Leibold and Jason Shilson, both of Chicago; Mike Basil of St. Louis, Mo.; and Mike Williamson of Pittsburgh. The usher was David Sachs of Chicago.

In Grosse Pointe Theatre's production of "Lend Me a Tenor," running April 20-30, Saunders (Mark Hammell), the opera company's manager, convinces Max (Anthony Amato), the company gofer, that he's not right for the part of Verdi's "Otello."

GPT offers to 'Lend a Tenor'

"Lend Me a Tenor," a door-slamming operatic farce, is Grosse Pointe Theatre's fourth production of its 46th season. The show opens Wednesday, April 20, and runs each evening through Saturday, April 30, with the exception of Monday, April 25. Shows are at 8 p.m. except Sunday, April 24, when shows are at 2 and 7 p.m. The dizzy farcical plot takes place in the 1934 Cleveland hotel suite of a world famous operatic tenor, the comical and flamboyant Tito Merelli. Tito passes out, but the show must go on. Enter Max, the general manager's assistant with vocal aspirations. Mistaken identities and vintage hokum takes over.

Opera was never this funny. The War Memorial offers a candlelight buffet dinner before most shows; call 881-7511 for dinner reservations. For Grosse Pointe Theatre tickets, call the ticket hotline at 881-4004 or visit the theater box-office at 315 Fisher Road on most Saturdays from 10 a.m. till noon.

Scholarships offered for student performers

Auditions will be held Saturday, April 23, at 10 a.m. for the Grosse Pointe Theatre Scholarship Competition at the group's rehearsal studio at 315 Fisher in the City of Grosse Pointe. Any high school student living in Grosse Pointe, any student attending Grosse Pointe high schools, any high school student who has performed in a major theatre production, or any high school student whose parent(s) is a current GPT member is eligible. The categories are Senior (any senior enrolled in college-credited classes for the performing arts for school year 1994-95) and underclass (any junior, sophomore or freshman enrolled in a program for the performing arts for the summer of 1994). Senior scholarships to be awarded include $1,500, $1,000 and $750, and underclass scholarships will be for a total $750. Students will be judged and winners announced on the day of the audition. Completed, signed, sponsored scholarship applications must be submitted no later than April 20 to Gwenn Samuel, Scholarship Chair, GPT, 315 Fisher Road, Grosse Pointe, MI 48230. Call 885-6086 for more information.

'Hudsucker' is one of those movies Hollywood doesn't make anymore

By Ronald J. Bernas
Assistant Editor

If you're one of those people who longs for movies the way they used to be — screwball comedies that show a poor schlemiel rise to the top because of his goodness, and who brings out the good in everyone he touches (with a few slips along the way) — "The Hudsucker Proxy" is just your tonic.

Part Frank Capra, part Howard Hawks, "Proxy" pays homage and pokes fun at the comedies that Barbara Stanwyck and Jimmy Stewart and Katharine Hepburn made. In doing so, it's created something that raises the genre to another level, and turns it firmly on its ear.

The year is 1958 and Tim Robbins stars as Norville Barnes, a recent graduate of the Muncie School of Business, who discovers that all the schooling in the world doesn't help because everyone is looking for people with experience.

But Norville has strength — a trait that Muncie-ans have in spades — and he has an idea that will surely put any business on top, if he can only get someone to take him seriously.

He gets a job in the mail-room (his on-the-job-training is hilarious) at Hudsucker Industries, a huge conglomerate whose president (Charles Durning) just jumped out the window.

The departed president's will states that his shares be placed on the market, making the company public and incurring the displeasure of second-in-command Sydney Mussberger (Paul Newman), who hatches a plan to install the most inept person he can find as president, thus de-valuing the stock so Mussberger and his friends can snatch it up.

Norville Barnes (Tim Robbins) and Amy Archer (Jennifer Jason Leigh) discuss the future of Hudsucker Industries.

Of course, that's when Mussberger meets Barnes.

There's another story going on at the same time. This one involves hard-working, fast-talking Amy Archer (Jennifer Jason Leigh), a reporter who intends to find out exactly who this yokel is who was named president of Hudsucker. She gets a job as Barnes' assistant, all the while writing defamatory stories about him. And, of course, she falls in love with him along the way.

The plot goes along just as you'd expect with the only surprises coming from how well the Coen brothers — who wrote and directed the film — parody yet still honor the films that inspired "Proxy."

The minor problems are the same that are in all Coen brothers films (they also did "Miller's Crossing," "Raising Arizona," and "Barton Fink"). Style and mood are more important than character and plot. "Proxy's" lack of characterization isn't too bad. All the people in the show have been indelibly imprinted in our minds for 60 years, but the plot moves jerkily along and is, at times, confusing.

But the acting is everything. Robbins is charming as Barnes, and the role also shows him to be a capable physical comedian. Leigh almost has the Barbara Stanwyck character down. But even half a Stanwyck is better than no Stanwyck. Newman is also good as the bad Mussberger.

"Proxy" is the kind of movie that Hollywood made in the '30s to help people forget their problems. We may not be in a depression, but that's no reason not to escape to the theater where the good guys always come out on top, despite the odds.

Concert and a haircut, two bits

The Grosse Pointe Barbershoppers will present their annual show, "Always Leave 'Em Laughing," at 8 p.m. April 8 and 9 in the performing arts center at Grosse Pointe North High School. The 60-plus members of the chorus will perform fun-filled music in Spike Jones style as well as a tribute to George M. Cohan. Tickets may be obtained by calling Joe Bichler at 884-6838.

Everything old is new again in the witty, irreverent 'NOT Mikado'

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

When it comes to recycling, director Worth Gardner is becoming a master, especially when it applies to musical comedy.

He has a gift for taking successful musical productions and bringing them into the mainstream without losing any of the appeal that has made them favorites.

In 1991 he took the movie classic "The Wizard of Oz" and gave it a burlesque spin with a toy stuffed Toto and a male Wicked Witch.

In 1992 he successfully tailored "The Man of La Mancha" to give a tattered knight idealist a full-scale appearance on a small stage, and later a bare-bones "Oklahoma" was presented as a country-western concert.

The basic theme that East Is East and West Is West and cross-pollinated cultures are fodder for satire was successfully presented by Gilbert and Sullivan in 1885 in the operetta "The Mikado," when they transported Victorian British manners and mores to Imperial Japan.

"The NOT Mikado" tunes in on the theme to give an ironic nod to Japan's embrace of Western rock 'n' roll and the punk movement.

The original music of Gilbert and Sullivan is set to different tempos, shifting from rock to punk, country-western, reggae and calypso. The characters wear punk-Western style; black leather and roller blades, pink miniskirts and platform shoes.

Gardner quips that he had wanted to get Adam Ant, Meat Loaf, Gladys Knight and Little Richard for the production, but they were unavailable. It would have been a combination to rival the glamour of the 1938 "Hot Mikado" that featured Bill "Bojangles" Robinson.

As it is, he has a cast of proven talents. Four of them, Courteny Collins, Wendy Perleman, Billy Miller and Kurt Johns, were featured in "Little Me" earlier this season. Bob Arnold and Howard Keye were in "The Wizard of Oz."

The story line follows the original. Nanki-Poo, the son of the Mikado, flees the court to become a wandering minstrel to escape the ugly Katisha. He falls in love with Yum-Yum who is engaged to marry Ko-Ko. Nanki-Poo threatens to kill himself because he cannot live without Yum-Yum. Ko-Ko, warned that the Mikado is expecting an execution to take place, makes a deal with Nanki-Poo that he will take his place, since he wants to die, and he will let Nanki-Poo marry Yum-Yum. Yum-Yum is

'Paper' is a heck of a good movie

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

If you think you're stressed out, you'll appreciate your job a lot more after experiencing a 24-hour deadline crisis with the staff of the New York Sun, a brash Manhattan tabloid closely modeled on The New York Post, in director Ron Howard's fast-paced film "The Paper."

In that short period, the hero, metropolitan editor Henry Hackett (Michael Keaton), has to worry about a local racial crime — or is it a mob rubout — while all around him is confusion.

The managing editor, Alicia Clarke (Glenn Close), is on his case; editor Bernie White (Robert Duvall) warns him at a staff meeting not to let his ongoing battle with Alicia influence his judgment; his secretary darts in and out of his office with urgent messages

Add to that Henry's pregnant wife Martha (Marisa Tomei), an ex ace reporter who wants Henry to take a job on an uptown daily where he will work decent hours.

The film centers on how the paper deals with a story in which two young men are arrested for a hate crime they didn't commit.

Alicia is all for running the story under the screeching headline, GOTCHA! Henry has reservations, though, based on information provided by his wife, who says the police know the two suspects are innocent.

What is needed is proof be-

There's no need to stop the presses on the breezy, and entertaining "The Paper."

ecstatic until she learns that the wife of an executed man must be burned alive. Then Mikado arrives.

Without a talented cast, comedy that rides on satire can be lost. Happily "The NOT Mikado" has an outstanding cast and none of the wit is lost. They zero in to make the most of the lines, songs and ensembles.

Worth Gardner and his musical partner, Scot Woolley, have transformed a classic original version into a Hip-Hopperetta that is original in concept. It's totally "rad" and it runs at the Birmingham Theatre through April 24.

Touring

Marie Boyle, left, of Grosse Pointe Park, and Stephanie Elaine Samuel, of the City of Grosse Pointe, are two of the five cast members of "The World Goes Round," a revue of the music of Broadway legends John Kander and Fred Ebb, which goes on tour this week in Rhode Island and Indiana.

Kander and Ebb are the creators of such hit shows as "Cabaret," "Chicago," "New York, New York" and "Kiss of the Spider Woman."

The tour is an outgrowth of a recent production of the revue by Stagecrafters in Royal Oak. Samuel is the only cast member to be carried over to the new production, although she is playing a different role. A production at a local theater is in the works for the fall.

Dial-a-Ham and make your meal a breeze

Specialty hams are just a phone call away. Whether it's honeybaked, cob-smoked, maple syrup-glazed or country style, a specialty ham awaits on the other end of the line. But before dialing up a "ham operator," consider ordering two half-hams of a different variety.

It's fun to try hams from different regions and smoked over different kinds of woods. Offering your dinner guests two ham choices makes an interesting balance and promises fun leftovers.

Here's a sampling of some mail-order ham sources:

• Burger's Mountain Smokehouse — This Missouri family has been smoking and cooking award-winning hams since the 1940s. They offer both country-style (dry-cured) and what they call "city-style," a traditional wet-cured ham with familiar ham flavor. Burger's also offers spiral slicing and a honey glaze you can add. 1-800-624-5426.

• Cavanaugh Lakeview Farms — These hams from Michigan are cured with honey and spices and then covered with honey and mustard glaze. A spicy peppered variety also is available. 1-800-243-4438.

• Dakin Farm — For a unique northeastern flavor, these tender and full-flavored hams are cob-smoked in Vermont. To top off that regional flavor, hams can be maple syrup-glazed. Spiral slicing available. 1-800-425-3971.

• Honeybaked hams — These hams are sweet and tasty, first spiced and then baked for more than 30 hours. They're spiral cut and table ready. The company also offers sauces; barbecue, honey-mustard or honey-glazed spice. 1-800-424-4267 (HAMS).

• Mom 'n' Pop's Country Collection — From North Carolina comes a collection of whole hams, ham slices, small boneless hams convenient for the small family and for quick breakfasts. Mom 'n' Pop's also offers other fine North Carolina food items. 1-800-438-9207.

• New Braunfels Smokehouse — Moist and tender hams from north San Antonio. Slowly smoked with hickory, the hams from New Braunfels would star on any holiday table. Spicy varieties are also available. 1-800-537-6932.

• Nodine's Smokehouse — From Connecticut comes a taste of New England; both hickory and maple are used to smoke these lean and delicious hams. Small boneless hams are also offered. 1-800-537-6932.

• The Smithfield Collection — The classic. This Virginia company has been producing its distinctive country ham since 1889. These genuine Smithfield hams are dry-salt cured, spiced and slowly smoked, aged for months, then cooked. 1-800-628-2242.

• S. Wallace and Sons — Exceptionally fine hams from a family using time-honored methods for smoking and curing. They offer a small boneless ham suitable for a small family. 1-800-222-4267.

Handling tips:
• Place purchased ham in original wrapping in refrigerator for seven to 10 days. Slices should be used within three or four days.

• Vacuum-packaged hams, unopened, will keep at least two weeks in the refrigerator.

• Canned hams should be refrigerated until ready to use.

• Leftover cooked ham should be tightly wrapped and refrigerated promptly after the meal and can be stored in refrigerator four to five days.

• Freezing deteriorates ham quality. If you must freeze, wrap tightly and store in freezer up to two months.

Hot or Cold Tomato Cocktail

1 can (46 oz.) tomato juice cocktail

3 cups beef broth

1 T prepared horseradish

snipped chives, if desired

Heat all ingredients except chives in medium-size saucepan over low heat until hot. To serve, pour into mugs and sprinkle with chives. Makes 12 servings.

Option: Stir all ingredients together except chives, chill until serving and serve sprinkled with chives.

Spiced Deviled Eggs

12 hard cooked eggs

2/3 cup fat-free mayonnaise or salad dressing

1/3 cup finely shredded

smoked cheddar cheese

1 t lemon juice

1/4 t seasoned salt

1/4 t ground cumin

1/8 t ground red pepper

Pimento strips

Shell eggs and cut in half. Remove yolks; set whites aside. Mash yolks in medium bowl; beat in all remaining ingredients except pimento strips until fluffy. Using a pastry bag, pipe yolk mixture back into whites. Cover and chill. Before serving, garnish eggs with two strips of pimento crisscrossed atop. Makes 24 servings.

Caesar Vegetable Dip

2 cups fat-free mayonnaise

2 (2 oz.) can anchovies undrained

1/4 cup Dijon-style mustard

1/4 cup fresh lemon juice

1/4 cup minced green onion, white only

1 t ground white pepper

2 T capers, drained

Vegetables

In a blender or food processor, blend together the first six ingredients. Turn into serving dish, stir in capers and cover and refrigerate until serving. If desired, top with additional drained capers before serving. Makes 2 1/2 cups.

Peppy Potato Salad

about 3 to 4 pounds

1 (8 oz. carton) fat-free sour cream

1 cup fat-free mayonnaise or salad dressing

1 red onion, thinly sliced and separated into rings

2 cups thinly sliced radishes, about 8 ounces

1 t seasoned salt

1/2 t ground white pepper

1 t prepared horseradish

1 t celery seeds

Scrub potatoes and place in large saucepan or Dutch oven. Cover potatoes with water and boil until tender, about 30 minutes. Drain, cool slightly, peel and slice into 1/2 inch rounds.

Stir together next eight ingredients and set aside. Place one-third of potato slices in a large bowl and spread with one-third of the dressing mixture.

sprinkle with one-third parsley. Repeat layers twice with remaining ingredients. Makes 12 servings.

Smokey Calico Beans

4 slices bacon, pan broiled until crisp, crumbled

1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar

2 onions, chopped

1 1/2 t dry mustard

1/2 t liquid smoke seasoning (omit if using smoky barbecue sauce)

1 cup purchased barbecue sauce

1 (1-lb. can) butter beans, drained

1 (15 1/2 oz. can) kidney beans, drained

1 (28 oz. can) pork and beans, undrained

Stir together all ingredients well in a large bowl. Place bean mixture in a large 3 to 4 quart casserole. Bake, covered in a 350-degree oven until hot and bubbly, about 1-1/2 hours. Makes 12 servings.

Praying for Sleep

Hardscape

By Justin Scott

Viking, 278 pages. $19.95

Imagine, if you can, that you are hotly pursued by a paranoid schizophrenic who has just escaped from a mental hospital. He has an obvious score to settle with you because you had the affrontery to testify against him in court, and now he has sworn to set the record, as he sees it, straight.

Jeffrey Deaver, the author of "Praying for Sleep," writes in a bone-chilling style and has a layman's educated grasp of psychiatry that will probably shatter any remaining sense of security you may have within the walls of your home.

To add to your growing sense of terror and helplessness, a devastating hurricane and a flood threaten your area. With only your younger sister by your side, you are forced to face the perils of natural threats as well as the danger of an angry madman full of blood-thirsty vengeance. Your husband, armed with a gun, has gone out hunting for the assassin before he reaches your isolated countryside property.

Michael Hrubek is the young mental patient, a giant at 6'4" and 300 pounds, who has cleverly escaped his place of confinement by smuggling himself out in a body bag destined for a funeral home. Even though he is morbidly insane, Hrubek possesses the cunning and slyness to plan his presumed revenge on Lis Atcheson, whose words condemned him. He also has a reputation of hating women, thanks to the twisted, bizarre upbringing by his mother. The action, as the maniac draws ever closer to his waiting prey, takes place in 12 nerve-wracking hours which tightly condenses action and time into a tightening circle of almost unbearable suspense.

Within the small, placid New England village of Ridgeton, where Lis and her husband Owen Atcheson live, other characters begin arriving to await the appearance of Hrubek. Those involved in the desperate trek of the madman include the state troopers, a personable professional tracker named Trenton Heck and his award-winning bloodhound, and Dr. Richard Kohler, Hrubek's psychiatrist. Of course, this group includes Owen, who, for particular reasons of his own, is determined to find Hrubek first. By nightfall, a raging storm descends, sweeping along a torrential flood from the overloaded dam near the Atcheson home.

Writing in top form, Deaver's harrowing tale of madness, vengeance and dark family secrets unfolds in rapid, heart-stopping movements, a genuine page-turner in every sense of the word. Also, to top it off, Deaver provides an absolutely stunning twist at the end, a conclusion that will undoubtedly astonish even the most seasoned reader of mystery and suspense.

Next we come to Justin Scott, another Viking author, with his new mystery featuring Ben Abbott in an introductory volume for a new series. "Hardscape" is about how a real estate agent, Abbott, in the small New England town of Newbury, Conn., becomes unaccountably entangled in a scheme to videotape, secretly, a lover's tryst between Rita Long and Ron Pearlman. Because of his past experiences as an officer with naval intelligence, Abbott is approached by a shady figure, Alex Rose, a private investigator, hired by Jack Long to do a lucrative spying job. Since he is short of cash at the moment, thanks to a slow real estate market, Abbott allows himself to be persuaded to accept the assignment.

The wealthy Longs live in an impressive castle-like structure surrounded by thick trees and shrubbery. In order to tape the illicit love affair, Abbott manages to conceal himself one evening among the branches facing the well-lit studio where Rita fancies herself as an artist. He trains his video-camera on her naked back. While she is sketching the body of a handsome nude man posing before the easel. However, the sketch of the subject's head draws a gasp from Abbott: it is a skull.

Shortly afterward Abbott meets Rita Long at a Labor Day picnic, and she bids him to come to the castle for an appraisal of the property. She shows him her studio, and again he sees the picture of the skull.

Later, Abbott finds that "Hardscape isn't in Webster's. It's a word coined by landscape designers to distinguish elements constructed from those that are grown — masonry from nursery, cobblestones from coreopsis. (The designers are divided on the corresponding use of 'softscape' for gardens, grass, and trees. The better ones I've known would cross a swamp at night to avoid even hearing the word.) Hardscape is what you see in winter when the flowers are dead and branches bare. It forms the character of a house, like the bones behind a face."

Later, Abbott flees from his perch after dropping and losing his video, and stumbles across the body of Ron Pearlman shot dead upon the lawn. Abbott realizes that he would be a natural suspect and decides to hunt the killer himself. He does not receive any cooperation from Alex Rose, Jack Long, the elusive Rita, nor the police. Therefore, Abbott is forced to embark on a dangerous one-man mission to catch the murderer first.

Scott lacks the smoothness and sure control of his plot and characters, so evident in the work of Deaver, who is by far the superior writer, blessed with a classy style and an ingenious plotting skill. By contrast, Scott is simply run-of-the-mill, and his book is merely a ho-hum with no excitement or surprises.

Grosse Pointe Chamber Music plans concert

Grosse Pointe Chamber Music will present a concert at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, April 10, in the Crystal Ballroom of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The program's theme is "For the Young at Heart" and will showcase unusual combinations of instruments playing light-hearted music.

Opening the program will be Arianna Kalian, oboe, with Fontaine Laing piano, in a sonata by Besozzi. A Haydn string trio will be played by John Miller, violin, Sylvain Bouman, cello, and Josephine Howes, piano. Five selections for harp and soprano saxophone will be presented by Christa Grix and Paul Onachuk. Dorothy Iggnasiac, soprano, with Frances Wilson, piano, will be heard in "Voi Che Sapete" from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" and in "Musical Adventures of Jack and Jill," by Sigmund Spaeth. Concluding the program will be "The Story of Ferdinand" by Alan Ridout, for solo violin and narrator, performed by Gerda Bielitz and Helen Gregory.

Grosse Pointe Chamber Music is sponsored by the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association. The public is invited. Light refreshments will follow the program.

Admission at the door is $5 for adults and $3 for children.

Knights do well on All-State hockey ballots

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Matt Spicer's hockey career took a drastic turn one day in February when coach John Fowler came to him with a request.

Fowler's University Liggett School hockey team was struggling offensively because of injuries to Eric Kisskalt and Omar Sawaf. In an attempt to boost the offensive production, Fowler and his staff decided to switch Spicer from defense to center.

"It was a risky move because he was our best defenseman, but we needed somebody with the quickness and strength to skate on our top line with Jay Ricci and John McNaughton," Fowler said. "We knew it would help our scoring, but we were also aware that there might be a few more goals scored against us. We had tried some other options and they just didn't work out.

"Matt made the change willingly and it turned out well for us. Our scoring picked up and Chris Ford — Matt's partner on defense — took over as a leader back there and Don Wolford (the team's Most Improved Player) moved up and did a good job, too."

Spicer, who had scored a total of seven goals in his three previous seasons with the Knights, finished the season with 10 goals and 16 assists and was named to the Class B-C-D All-State first team selected by the Michigan High School Hockey Coaches Association for the second straight season.

Four of Spicer's teammates — Ricci, McNaughton, Kisskalt and goalie Ken McIntyre — received All-State honorable mention and Kisskalt was selected to the Academic All-State team.

Spicer was elected co-captain with Kisskalt after last season and his leadership was a factor in ULS' success on the ice.

"Matt was a very good leader," Fowler said. "He's enthusiastic, positive and competitive within himself and with others."

Spicer was on ULS' third defensive team as a freshman, but improved steadily the next two years.

"He loves to win. He isn't very big (5-feet-10 and 165 pounds) but he's all muscle and heart," Fowler said.

Spicer adapted well to the move to center. He finished second to Ricci in shots on goal with 101 and was a solid defensive forward.

"His natural coverage tendencies helped him cover his man down low," Fowler said.

Spicer is also an All-State soccer player and will probably play that sport in college.

In one game, Ricci became ULS' top scoring threat and adjusted well to the unfamiliar role.

"When Eric and Omar went down in the same game, all of a sudden other teams started focusing on Jay. Instead of getting room to operate because teams were doubling and tripling on Eric, Jay was the one getting the extra attention," Fowler said.

Ricci, who was an All-State honorable mention pick a year ago after a 24-goal season, finished with 24 goals and 12 assists. Two of his goals were game winners and he led the squad with 107 shots. He had two hat tricks, including all three of the Knights' goals in a loss to Michigan Prep Hockey League champion Notre Dame.

"The shuffling of the lines was difficult on Jay at times," Fowler said. "We tried him at center when Eric first got hurt, but he's more effective staying outside at left wing than he was in tight."

"He was vital to our team. He's not quite as swift a skater as Matt, but he's the best stick-handler and passer on the team. He's a (Peter) Stastny-type player who has great hands and a variety of shots."

One of the things that pleased Fowler most about Ricci was the way he cut down his penalty time. He went from the high 40s as a junior to only 14 minutes this season.

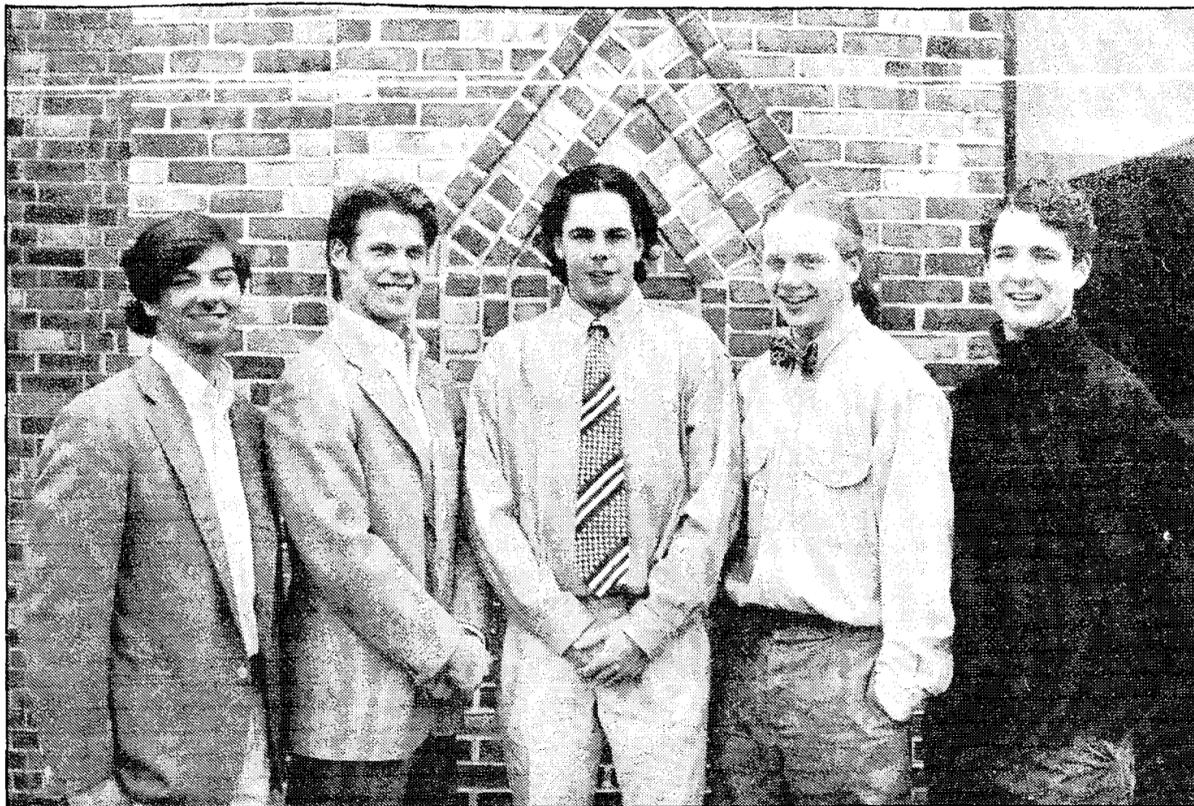

"He realized that he's a lot more valuable to us on the ice than in the box," the coach said.

An outstanding baseball player, Ricci will probably pursue that sport in college.

McNaughton, a junior, didn't possess the eye-catching statistics that some All-Staters have posted but his value to the team goes beyond the score sheet.

"He's a hard-hitting, rugged right wing," Fowler said. "He's tough in the corners and behind the net. John wasn't a big scorer this year, but he's a good setup man. He's good at driving around the defense, taking the initial shot and taking the defenseman out of the play so Ricci or Spicer could go after the rebound."

McIntyre, Eric Kisskalt, Jay Ricci and John McNaughton received honorable mention. Kisskalt was also an academic All-State selection.

Highlights

The Neighborhood Club recently completed its first seventh and eighth grade basketball extension season with the Cavaliers beating the Knicks 65-55 in the championship game.

Students from Pierce, Brownell and Parcels middle schools formed the six squads. Many of the players were on their school team earlier in the year.

Matt Rudnick led the Cavaliers with 28 points in the championship game, while Matt Ostrowski was also an offensive force, especially from the free-throw line.

The Cavaliers led by 16 points at halftime, but the Knicks came back to cut the lead to one point. David Kraft's defensive efforts were instrumental in the Knicks' surge.

Matthew Vandaway led the Knicks with 23 points.

"I think our team came a long way since the first game of the season," said the Knicks' A.J. Rohde.

The Knicks, who were coached by Jeff Kerfoot, were without high-scoring Gavin Ryan, who had a 47-point game earlier in the year.

The Cavaliers completed an unbeaten season with the title game victory. Coach Matt Debets said the team's ability to work together and the strong defense provided by Mark Touhey were major factors in the Cavaliers' success.

under the direction of Jerzy Radz, head coach of the Wayne State varsity team. The group will meet Wednesdays from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., from April 13 through June 15.

Intermediate and advanced fencers can also join the Grosse Pointe Condottiere, Detroit's oldest active fencing program. The club works with its members to improve skills and prepare them for competition. Joel Stone is the club's director.

The cost for the fencing programs is $40 each. Registration may be done in person or by mail at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, Grosse Pointe 48230.

Anyone interested in joining the fencing club should make checks payable to the Grosse Pointe Condottiere Fencing Club. For more information, call 885-4600.

Aerobics

The Neighborhood Club is offering Aerobic Slimnastics, a low-impact class led by Kathy White, a recipient of national and international aerobic honors.

The class will run from April 18 through June 13. Class members may attend two or three days a week from 9:05 to 10:05 a.m. The cost is $48 for two-day sessions and $60 for the three-day class.

A nursery is available for children older than 1. To use the nursery, pre-register by calling Mary Beth at 824-5937 before April 12.

Participants can enroll by mail or in person at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, Grosse Pointe 48230. All participants must have a 1993-94 club membership, which may be purchased at registration. For more information, call 885-4600.

Fencing

Students and adults can learn fencing in beginner and advanced classes offered by the Neighborhood Club.

Bryan Collins will instruct beginners on Mondays from 7:15 to 8:45 p.m., beginning April 11 and continuing through June 13.

Advanced fencers will meet

North is site of Kicks for Kids

Young soccer enthusiasts can register now for the second annual Kicks for Kids soccer skills competition presented by Elias Brothers Restaurants and Selectcare to benefit the Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan.

Grosse Pointe North will be one of the four regional locations where preliminary competitions to test skills in kicking accuracy, dribbling and juggling will be held on Sunday, May 15.

Boys and girls, ages 6 through 16, may sign up for the event.

Youngsters qualifying from the preliminaries are eligible for the finals, which will be held Friday, May 20, at a home game of the Detroit Wheels professional outdoor soccer team which is coached by former Grosse Pointe South soccer coach Mark Christensen.

Each competitor in Kicks for Kids pays a $10 entry fee and collects pledges from sponsors. All proceeds benefit the patient and family programs of the CLF.

Registration forms are available at all southeast Michigan Elias Brothers Big Boy restaurants or by contacting CLF at 1-800-825-2536.

Skier honored

Megan McRill of Grosse Pointe Park was named Skier of the Year in the J-3 division at the Killington Mountain School in Killington, Vt.

A freshman at Grosse Pointe South, McRill made a strong showing in several major ski competitions in the eastern United States.

On title team

Grosse Pointers Matt Caramagno and Eric Knoll were members of the St. Clair Shores Flames Mite hockey team that won the Allen Park Christmas Tournament.

The Flames won all five games in the tournament, including a 3-2 victory over the St. Clair Shores Flyers in the championship contest.

Coaches honor Park resident

Ronald C. Lucas of Grosse Pointe Park was honored as an Assistant Coach of the Year by the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association.

Lucas has been a teacher, coach and athletic director in the Warren Woods school system since 1964 and is currently athletic director and head coach at Warren Woods Middle School.

The awards are presented annually to high school assistant, junior varsity, ninth grade and junior high/middle school coaches. Lucas was the only middle school coach honored among the 34 recipients.

The 1994 DeVille creates a higher standard at Don Gooley Cadillac.

- All-new six-passenger Cadillac
- Proven 200-hp, 4.9 liter V8, 4T80-E automatic transmission
- Speed-Sensing Suspension
- Speed-Sensitive Steering
- Fully independent suspension
- Anti-lock brakes
- Airbank System — dual front air bags*

And SmartLease creates a higher standard:

$379 A MONTH SMARTLEASE WITH $2,000 DOWN** / $10,808 SMARTLEASE PLUS

CADILLAC
CREATING A HIGHER STANDARD

**1994 DeVille SmartLease: $379 per month, 24 months $2,000 down payment. First month's lease payment of $379 plus $425 refundable security deposit and consumer down payment of $2,431 for a total of $3,255 due at lease signing. Taxes, license, title fees and insurance extra. You must take retail delivery out of dealer stock by 4-15-94. GMAC must approve lease. Example based on a 1994 DeVille, $34,903 MSRP, including destination charge. Monthly payment is based on total of monthly payments of $9,949.04. Your payments may be higher or lower. Option to purchase at lease end for $24,571.71. Mileage charge of 10¢ per mile over 30,000 miles. Lessee pays for excessive wear and use.

Pointe Aquatics does well at state

Meghan O'Loughlin took high-point honors in the girls 15-18 age group to highlight Pointe Aquatics' fourth-place finish in the recent Michigan 13-18 United States Swimming championships.

O'Loughlin won the 400-yard individual medley in 4:38.16 and was second in the 1,650 freestyle (18:20.38), 1,000 freestyle (10:48.13), 500 freestyle (5:12.43), 50 freestyle (25.15), 100 freestyle (53.61) and 200 freestyle (1:55.78).

Tina Hanczaruk took first in the 1,650 freestyle (17:56.23), 1,000 freestyle (10:43.88) and the 500 freestyle (5:07.75).

Michelle Vasapoli finished fourth in the 100 freestyle (54.76), seventh in the 200 freestyle (1:59.33) and ninth in the 50 freestyle (25.63).

Stephanie LaFond was third in the 50 freestyle (25.21) and the 100 butterfly (1:00.6) and eighth in the 200 butterfly (2:21.70).

Elizabeth Bourke was eighth in the 1,650 freestyle (19:07.73), ninth in the 500 freestyle (5:27.72) and 10th in the 200 butterfly (2:21.52). Anita Warner was 15th in the 100 butterfly (1:02.60) and Erin O'Loughlin finished 13th in the 100 freestyle (56.07).

Pointe Aquatics' 400 freestyle relay team of the O'Loughlins, LaFond and Vasapoli was first in 3:39.61 and the 800 freestyle relay team of Vasapoli, the O'Loughlins and Bourke had a winning time of 8:03.60. The B team of LaFond, Hanczaruk, Kathy Storen and Warner was sixth in the 800 freestyle relay in 8:23.52.

Cortney Piper's winning time of 17:16.28 in the 1,650 freestyle, which was also a Junior national qualifying standard, highlighted Pointe Aquatics' girls 13-14 performances.

Piper also won the 1,000 freestyle (10:43.82) and the 500 freestyle (5:06.63), was eighth in the 200 freestyle (2:00.69), 10th in the 400 individual medley (4:53.16) and 11th in the 100 freestyle (57.21).

Rachelle Atlasz won the 200 butterfly (2:14.38), was second in the 1,000 freestyle (10:49.57), third in the 500 freestyle (5:13.05), sixth in the 400 individual medley (4:53.11) and seventh in the 100 butterfly (1:03.11).

Melissa Beck was fourth in the 200 butterfly (2:14.38) and the 1,650 freestyle (18:53.08), fifth in the 1,000 freestyle (11:19.21), seventh in the 400 individual medley (4:53.51), 10th in the 500 freestyle (5:27.16) and 16th in the 200 freestyle (2:05.96).

Beth Janutol was 11th in the 1,650 freestyle (20:24.8) and the 1,000 freestyle (12:07.09).

The 13-14 girls 800 freestyle relay team of Atlasz, Beck, Tracy Hengel and Piper finished third in 8:19.59.

In the boys 15-18 age group, Jeff Shelden made a strong showing with firsts in the 1,650 freestyle (16:42.06) and 1,000 freestyle (9:58.13). He was also third in the 400 individual medley (4:19.71), fourth in the 500 freestyle (4:49.27), fifth in the 200 butterfly (2:01.44) and 10th in the 200 individual medley (2:03.25).

Darin Defecator won the 100 butterfly in 53.20, was fourth in the 200 individual medley (2:01.70) and the 200 backstroke (1:58.05), fifth in the 100 backstroke (54.54) and seventh in the 200 butterfly (2:01.81).

Mike O'Connor was runner-up in the 1,000 freestyle (9:59.79) and Tony Atlasz was 13th in the 100 breaststroke (1:03.75), 14th in the 200 breaststroke (2:21.34) and 16th in the 400 individual medley (4:44.71).

The boys 15-18 800 freestyle relay team of O'Connor, Atlasz, Defecator and Shelden was eighth in 7:33.8.

Andy Shelden was eighth in the boys 13-14 1,650 freestyle (18:28.40), 11th in the 1,000 freestyle (11:05.24), 12th in the 400 individual medley (4:48.54) and 16th in the 200 butterfly (2:21.40). Casey Huang was 15th in the 100 breaststroke (1:08.45) and the 200 breaststroke (2:31.01) and 16th in the 200 individual medley (2:18.74).

Park gymnast sixth in state

Brian Goldstein of Grosse Pointe Park finished sixth overall in his division at the recent Michigan State Boys Gymnastics Championships in Kalamazoo.

Goldstein, competing in Class II for ages 14 and 15, had an overall score of 78.65.

He was third on vault (15.95), fifth on pommel horse (10.4), parallel bars (13.6) and floor exercise (12.8); and sixth on the high bar (11.3).

Goldstein competes for the Conrad Gymnastics Academy in Farmington Hills.

Nearly perfect

The St. Clare varsity boys basketball team recently completed another fine season by winning the Catholic Youth Organization Eastside Division with a 10-0 record and finishing 22-1 overall. The squad also won two invitational tournament championships and made it to the final four of the CYO playoffs. In the last three years the team won three league titles, seven invitational championships, two CYO district playoff titles, a CYO regional

Hockey

McNaughton finished the year with seven goals and 28 assists. His leadership qualities made him the team's captain-elect for next season.

McNaughton was the winner of ULS' 1990 Trophy, which is presented to the player who best typifies the dedication and commitment of the school's last state championship squad.

McIntyre was the Knights' busiest goalie in recent years, playing 833 minutes. He saved 83 percent of the 505 shots fired at him and had a goals-against-average of 4.64, which was misleading.

"He had to absorb the 14 goals (Jackson) Lumen Christi scored against us because we didn't have another goalie to relieve him," Fowler said. "Ken was just superb in so many games. He had a lot of shots against him and held us in a lot of games while we were trying to find ourselves defensively early in the season. He often had to make a second or third save and some of those were almost beyond belief."

McIntyre had a knack for stopping breakaway attempts.

"He probably stopped 90 percent of the breakaways he faced," Fowler said. "He leaves the guy with very little to shoot at. Ken has a good glove hand, he's quick inside the crease and he's technically sound. He's quick up and down so he can cover rebounds well."

McIntyre, a junior who played his first year on the varsity, had outstanding performances in the Knights' victories over Cranbrook and Country Day.

Kisskalt's hockey season was limited to three games this year because of a serious knee injury, but the two-time All-Stater was recognized for his academics.

"I don't think there's any question that if he had been healthy he would have been on the (first) All-State team again this year," Fowler said, "but it's a testimony to his desire that he was named to the academic team. Even though he missed quite a bit of school when his leg was in a cast in December, he kept his grades up and held himself together academically, although he was done athletically. He wasn't into self-pity, but concentrated on getting into college."

A player must have at least a 3.5 grade-point average to be considered for the academic All-State team and Kisskalt made that with room to spare, earning a 3.733 GPA. Kisskalt has worked hard to rehabilitate his knee and he hopes to play hockey for Hobart College in Geneva, N.Y.; next season.

"The coaches there are very happy he decided to go to (Hobart) and Eric told me he probably has an even greater desire to prove to himself that he can come back and be as good as he was before getting hurt."

In his three games with ULS this season, Kisskalt scored five goals and two of them were game winners. Last year, he had 41 goals and 38 assists in 27 games and his career totals read 95 goals and 100 assists in 85 games.

ULS players received several post-season honors from the Michigan Prep Hockey League, including the conference's Sportsmanship Award.

Spicer, Ricci, Kip Gotfredson and McNaughton were all-league picks, while McIntyre, Kisskalt and Sawaf received honorable mention.

Mark Best, Behi Rabbani, Kisskalt, Gotfredson, McNaughton, McIntyre and Wolford made the league's all-academic team.

Goalie Chuck Schervish, shown here making a save in an early-season game, was named Most Valuable Player on Grosse Pointe North's hockey team. It was the third year in a row that Schervish, a junior, has been the squad's MVP. Other top team awards went to David Ferguson, Sam Gazepis and Zac Hubbell.

Norsemen honor hockey standouts

Although Grosse Pointe North's hockey team didn't have a winning season, there were some fine individual and team performances by the Norsemen.

At a recent awards ceremony, coach Dan Abraham paid tribute to the squad's teamwork and lauded it for not quitting in the face of adversity or when playing against more talented teams.

Two seniors and two juniors won the four major awards presented to the squad.

Junior goalie Chuck Schervish was voted Most Valuable Player by his teammates for a record third straight season. Although he missed several games because of illness and injuries, Schervish finished the season on a high note and was brilliant in a late-season upset of Southgate Anderson.

Junior David Ferguson earned the John Russell Memorial Award as the team's leading goal scorer. Ferguson matched the achievement of his brother John, who won the Russell award for the 1990-91 season.

In other awards voted on by the team, senior defenseman Zac Hubbell won the All Norseman Award for his overall contribution and leadership. Senior Sam Gazepis, who finished the season with a burst of scoring, was voted the Most Improved Player.

Junior defenseman Donny Tocco received second-team honors on one of the all-state teams. The 6-foot-2, 205-pounder delivered some heavy body-checks and was second on the team in goals. In one game, he had two goals and three assists.

Abraham praised the efforts of his seniors, including rugged defenseman Tom Fennell for his physical play, speedy winger Rob DeLaurier for his hustle on the regular line and on special teams and tri-captain Paul Megler, for his tenacity, consistent play and leadership on and off the ice.

With late season victories against Anderson and Livonia Stevenson, Abraham is looking forward to an improved record next season. Tocco, Ferguson, Schervish and nine other underclassmen are expected to return with more experience.

South girls open season with impressive win

Grosse Pointe South's girls track team opened the season with an impressive 91-37 non-league victory over Regina last week.

The Lady Devils outscored the Saddlelites 20-0 in the four relay races and had 1-2 finishes in each of the hurdles events.

Rachel O'Byrne and Lisa McCurdy took the first two places in the 100-meter high hurdles, while McCurdy finished ahead of teammate Becca Walter in the 300 lows.

McCurdy, a sophomore, also won the long jump with a leap of 14-feet-6. South's Gretchen Carter was second with a 13-1 effort.

Aimee Vasse led South sweeps in the 1,600 and 3,200 runs. Kate Crowley and Eileen Lang were second and third, respectively, in the 1,600, while Sarah Gordon and Katie Quinn were 2-3 in the 3,200.

South received excellent 800 performances from Darby Brownscombe and Sandra Hammel.

Veterans Kristine Mueller, Katie Lupo and Amy Zanglin controlled the sprints, while Melissa Van Hoek and Melissa Wahl also picked up points in the shorter races.

South's girls have set some high standards under coach Steve Zaranek and he expects the team to follow suit this year.

"We have an excellent senior class to provide leadership and a fine group of underclassmen," Zaranek said. "That's a mix that should give our team another great season."

Zaranek has 101 athletes on the team — the biggest turnout ever. That depth should be instrumental in the Lady Devils' pursuit of a fourth straight undefeated season.

South has won seven of the last eight league championships and Zaranek expects his team to contend for a state regional title, although Detroit King will provide some tough competition.

"Our toughest competition in dual meets should come from Romeo and Grosse Pointe North," Zaranek said.

South has an excellent core of returning athletes. In the sprints, Zanglin set the school's 400 dash record in 1993, Mueller is in her fourth season as a sprint relay anchor and Lupo was a member of the record-setting 1,600 relay team. Carter and Van Hoek are also experienced sprinters.

In distance events, South has O'Byrne, the top returning hurdler; top cross country runners Vasse and Katie Weed; and top freshman prospects Crowley, Hammel and Brownscombe.

Hurdlers Walter and McCurdy are also key field event contributors. Walter is counted on to provide points in the long jump and discus, while McCurdy is the top returning long jumper.

The Lady Devils will also be led by Kathy Bardeen in the high jump and Phaedrah Gray and Lisa Giesler in the shot put.

Coaches needed

The Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores Babe Ruth League needs coaches for its 14-15-year-old division.

Here's a master suite for the self-indulgent

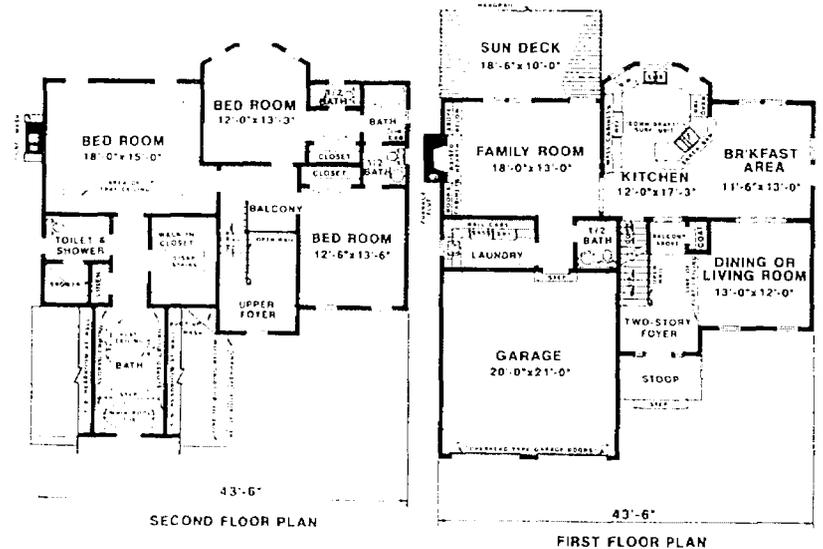

By W.D. Farmer

Upon entry through the arched front door of this home, your immediate view is of the two story foyer with balcony upstairs overlooking this impressive entry. To the right is an open room which could either be a formal dining room or a living room. It connects to the extra large breakfast area and unique kitchen, which is highlighted by a bay window sink arangement and a snack bar.

The family room is adjacent and boasts one whole wall of bookshelves and a fireplace. Access to the sun deck is from here. An oversized laundry and convenient half bath lead the way to the garage entry.

There are three bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths upstairs. The master suite is fit for royalty. The tray ceiling gives a feeling of spaciousness. The master bath complex consists of a private toilet and shower area, a large linen closet and a walk-in closet with an abundance of hanging space. The tub area, with sloped ceiling, contains a large step-up whirlpool tub and twin vanities. One vanity also includes a knee space for comfort and convenience.

Plan No. 2379 is computer generated and drawn for a basement foundation. For further information on this plan, write W.D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc. P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, Ga. 30345.

Mortgage firm to sponsor fair on affordable housing

RIMCO Financial Corp. — a Detroit-based holding company whose subsidiaries specialize in real estate, home improvement and mortgage banking — will sponsor a HUD Home Auction Fair designed to help Detroit residents find affordable housing.

The fair will be held Tuesday through Thursday, April 12, 13, and 14, from 6 to 8 p.m. at RIMCO Financial Corp., 16401 Harper Ave. in Detroit. Information will be provided on government-owned homes and other properties available through RIMCO, with an emphasis on helping first-time buyers.

"We have had a longstanding interest in rebuilding the city of Detroit," says Lee Rogers, RIMCO's president. "We want to show people how home ownership can benefit them and their community. Our goal this year is to help at least 300 people who have never had the opportunity to own property before become homeowners."

"We've established an affordable housing team specializing in HUD homes. We also work with lending institutions that provide Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac loans. The national lending institutions are also committed to affordable housing. We are also very aware that Mayor Archer and his transition team feel the future of the city of Detroit depends on the health and vitality of its residential neighborhoods. Home ownership is one of the keys to keeping our neighborhoods healthy. I'm hoping that in 1994 we can make homeowners out of many people who thought they'd never afford a home."

At the home auction fair, visitors will be able to meet with representatives of RIMCO Financial Corp.'s principal subsidiaries, RIMCO Building Co. and RIMCO Realty & Mortgage Co., to discuss HUD homes available for sale, home financing and remodeling opportunities. RIMCO Building Co. will also offer a one-year warranty covering repairs on HUD homes purchased through the fair.

"This is the perfect time to buy a home," says Rogers. "A lot of people who are renting right now probably don't realize that they could be buying their own slice of the American Dream for the same monthly payment, or an even lower payment. With the extraordinary decrease in the city of Detroit property tax rate from 47 mills down to potentially as low as 6 mills, many people should be challenged to rethink their options."

ON THE COVER

315 WASHINGTON ROAD

One of the great houses in America, its facade is English Renaissance influenced, with steep medieval roofs and gables.

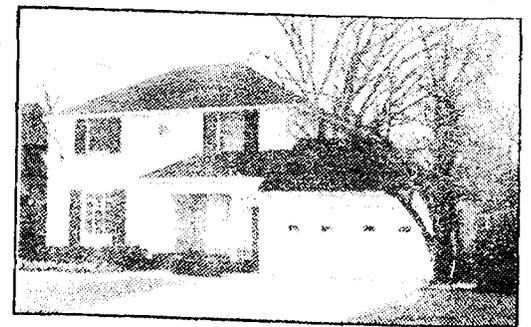

Designed to be a private home and also the repository of a great art collection. The main entrance hall and grand staircase are constructed of black Italian marble. The stone porticos in the living room came from an Italian palace in Madia. The 16th century fireplace in the Great Room thought to be from the studio of Donatello. The paneling and fireplace in the library was removed from the Standish Hall in Lancashire, England. It dates back to the 17th century. The Hall was the residence of Miles Standish's parents.

A home, a museum, a masterpiece. Beautifully maintained and magnificently restored this property is truly one of a kind.

Proper food handling? Here's the meat of it

Q. Summer is coming and I want to be clear on the proper (safe) procedures for handling food products. Can you give me some tips?

A. First, remember that these tips apply year-round. You can never be too safe with proper food handling. Never drink unpasteurized milk. Pasteurization temperatures kill bacteria.

Immediately freeze or refrigerate meats and meat products after shopping. Never thaw meats on the counter or leave them at room temperature for more than two hours. Use refrigerated ground meat within two days after purchase. Larger cuts of meat can be refrigerated for three to five days. If you cannot use the meat immediately, wrap it tightly and store in the freezer. Ground meat can be safely stored in the freezer for three to four months.

Immediately refrigerate all leftover cooked meats and meat dishes. "Hot food" leftovers should be cooled in shallow pans. Leftovers should be used within two days. Wash and scrub dishes, utensils, and work areas with hot soapy water before and after contact with raw meat to prevent cross-contamination. Be sure to rinse these surfaces with lots of hot water and allow to air-dry. When possible, use paper towels for drying. Wash hands thoroughly with soap and warm water after handling raw meat, after using bathroom or after

Thoroughly cook meats and meat dishes to 160 degrees or more. Cook until the center of the meat is gray or brown. Juices should run clear with no trace of pink. Return any undercooked meats or meat dishes served at a restaurant for further cooking. Serve foods with clean plates and utensils.

Q. Should children be allowed to have dessert if they don't finish a meal?

A. Yes. If you make dessert a reward for eating, you will encourage children to overeat twice: once to get the reward, and then to eat dessert when they are already full. Don't get into a battle over desserts. Make desserts a healthful part of the meal. This may sound crazy but serve dessert with the meal. You will be surprised to find that the child will eat both when the dessert is not viewed as anything special.

Q. How can I avoid lopsided biscuits?

A. Roll or pat the dough to an even thickness and, when cutting biscuits, dip the cutter in flour, press it firmly into the dough, and remove it without twisting, as twisting distorts the dough, preventing the biscuits from rising evenly. Also be aware that biscuits made from the gathered scraps of dough are more likely to be uneven. Avoid overworking the scraps in an attempt to get an even thickness, as you will end up with tough biscuits.

When landscaping, don't use creosote-treated ties

Q. I can get some used railroad ties for almost nothing. Is there any reason why I shouldn't use them for landscape retaining walls and raised bed flower gardening?

A. Yes. They were probably treated with creosote to prevent decay. Creosote will injure or kill plants grown next to the ties. Instead, use landscape timbers treated with preservatives that won't harm plants. Your local nursery or lumber yard operator can advise you.

Q. When my neighbor uses soap to control aphids in her flower garden, is she using regular household dish-washing soap or something else?

A. She's probably using a soap specially designed for controlling insect pests. It is biodegradable and nearly nontoxic to humans and most beneficial insects. Dish soap is not soap but rather detergent, and it may harm plants. Insecticidal soap is usually effective against aphids, white flies, mealybugs and mites on a wide variety of ornamentals, house plants, garden flowers and fruit trees.

Q. I moved into my new house in the winter so I didn't get the lawn seeded last fall. Is spring a good time to do this?

A. Fall has been shown to be the best time to seed a new lawn, but spring seeding offers some advantages. After being cooped up all winter, you may be more ambitious to work on the lawn in the spring. The soil shouldn't have to be watered so much. The soil is cold, however, so it may take seeds longer to germinate. That won't slow down spring-germinating weeds, of course, and weed competition with grass seedlings can be a problem in spring-seeded lawns.

Grass plants need to be well established before summer's hot, dry weather, so start as early as you can work the soil.

For your health's sake, watch those raw eggs

Several recent outbreaks of Salmonella enteritidis have been reported across the United States, causing concern and raising questions about this illness.

This form of salmonella has been associated with eggs and reported with increasing frequency in Great Britain and the United States in the past few years, says Beverly Mair, home economist with the Macomb MSU Extension Service.

The exact source of the bacterium has not been determined, but it is suspected that the organism is incorporated into the egg before it is laid.

An egg infected with Salmonella enteritidis looks no different than a non-infected egg, so it cannot be identified and removed from the egg supply.

Each year several million Americans suffer from food-borne illness. Many things cause food-borne illness, but improper handling, cooking and storage of food is by far the biggest culprit. Eggs, like any other perishable food, must be properly handled, cooked and stored to minimize the possibility of food-borne illness.

Some individuals are more susceptible to food-borne illness than others. People who should take extra precautions to reduce their risk include people over the age of 55, pregnant women, very young children and people with weakened immune systems, including persons with cancer, liver disease, diabetes and AIDS. These individuals can become ill from eating even a small amount of bacteria and so may want to limit their consumption of foods made from raw or lightly cooked egg products.

Use the following guidelines when purchasing, handling and storing eggs:

1. Buy eggs from a refrigerated display case. If the trip home will take more than 30 minutes, put the eggs in a portable cooler with other refrigerated or frozen products.

2. Inspect the eggs in the carton before buying them. Buy only eggs that have clean, uncracked shells.

3. Consider purchasing pasteurized eggs, products that contain pasteurized eggs, or pasteurized products that contain eggs, such as commercial eggnog.

4. Refrigerate eggs as soon as possible at home and keep them refrigerated until you use them.

5. Leave eggs in their original carton in the refrigerator away from foods with strong odors, such as onions and fish. Odors can penetrate eggshells and may give the eggs an unpleasant taste or smell.

6. If an egg is accidentally frozen, keep it frozen until it's needed, then thaw it in the refrigerator. If the shell is cracked during freezing, discard the egg.

7. If you accidentally crack the shell of an egg before you plan to use it, break the egg into a clean container, cover tightly, refrigerate and use within two days in a recipe that is baked. Do not use an egg if the shell is cracked, if the egg's contents are leaking through the shell, if the egg is stuck to the carton, or if the eggshell is dirty or prominently stained or has foreign material sticking to it.

8. Use eggs within a reasonable time. Raw shell eggs will keep up to three weeks after you bring them home.

9. Separated egg whites and yolks should be refrigerated in tightly covered containers and used within four days. Cover the yolks with cold water before storing and pour the water off before using.

10. Hard-cooked eggs, in the shell or peeled, should be eaten within one week of cooking. Hard-cooked yolks should be used within five days.

11. Follow good hygiene when preparing eggs and egg-rich foods. Wash hands, utensils, equipment and work surfaces with hot, soapy water before and after they come in contact with eggs and egg-rich foods.

12. Break eggs into a clean container before cooking or mixing with other ingredients. If any shell fragments or blood spots are present, they can be removed with a clean utensil. Do not add eggshells to beverages or other dishes, even if the recipes say to include them.

13. When serving eggs and egg-rich foods, hold them unrefrigerated no more than two hours total — not including cooking time. If serving time is more than two hours, as for a buffet, offer these foods in small serving dishes that are frequently replenished directly from the stove or refrigerator.

14. Serve hot eggs and egg-rich foods immediately after cooking, or hold them for serving at 140 degrees F, or higher, during serving. To serve cooked egg dishes cold, put hot foods into shallow containers and refrigerate immediately after cooking. Cold cooked food can be held for serving at 40 degrees F or below during serving.

15. Leftovers should be refrigerated in covered containers immediately after serving. Do not mix leftover egg dishes from the serving table with leftovers still on the stove or in the refrigerator. Use leftovers within four days.

Egg producers and regulatory agencies are striving to learn more about the connection between Salmonella enteritidis and eggs and how to eliminate the organism from our food supply. A program is currently under way to inspect and destroy infected flocks to prevent the spread of Salmonella enteritidis.

Finding a capable agent to meet your real estate needs

By Doug Stranahan
Divisional President
Century 21 Great Lakes Inc.

Whether you're a first-time buyer, selling your current home or relocating to a different part of the country, the support of a qualified, knowledgeable real estate agent can alleviate many of your concerns and ensure a smooth transaction. A professional agent can market your present residence help you locate the home of your dreams and assist in making your transfer to an unfamiliar area easier.

To find a trained sales associate or broker, you may need to look no further than your own neighborhood or hometown. If a well-established brokerage is involved in many listings and sales, this is a good sign. Speak with some of the agent's past customers about the quality and integrity of service and performance. Successful real estate agents rely heavily on customer referrals and will therefore strive to provide the very best in customer service and satisfaction.

Set up appointments to "interview" agents and brokers much like an employer would interview a prospective employee. Inquire about their training, marketing programs and specific service policies. Also determine how many years of experience they have, the number of listings they have had, and the number of homes they have sold within the past few years. More important, find out how well they know the area. Ask for references, and check them out.

Your goal is to determine just how knowledgeable the agents are. Question them on financing, closing costs and/or local market conditions, depending on whether you're a prospective home buyer or seller, to determine their expertise. If they know their stuff, they should be able to easily answer your questions.

If you're selling your home, learn what they will do if you decide to list with them. How do they plan to market your home? Will they provide you with a market analysis to help you determine the most effective listing price for your property? Will they supply regular progress reports and assist with negotiations once you've received offers?

If you are relocating to a different part of the country, is your agent connected with a national relocation service that will not only expose your present property to incoming transferees, but assist with your search for a new house?

A qualified real estate agent should be able to answer all your questions and provide you with quality service that is courteous and responsive. Finding the right person may take time and patience, but when purchasing or selling a home, the selection of a dependable agent should be tops on your list.

Basic instruction in roofing offered

Grosse Pointe Community Education, in cooperation with Michigan Builders Institute, will offer a one-day class on the basic techniques for applying roofing materials. The class will be held on Monday, April 18, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Barnes school, 20090 Morningside, Grosse Pointe Woods.

Participants will learn the basic methods for applying roofing materials to the house through classroom lecture and hands-on demonstrations using a mock-up. The class covers estimating, types of roofing materials, working with roofing valleys and provides information on installing proper venting to prevent damage resulting from poor circulation of air under roofs. The class costs $45.

Pre-registration is required no later than Thursday, April 14, at Grosse Pointe Community Education. Those interested should call the school at 343-2178 to register during office hours.

The instructor is a licensed builder with experience in all aspects of roofing. He will be able to answer any questions about roofing and its application. Michigan Builders Institute teaches builders' education in 70 school districts in

Spring has something for everyone — even the birds

In the flower calendar of medieval Europe, the flower for April is the daisy; the Chinese flower calendar lists cherry blossoms and the flower calendar in Japan maintains that the flower for April is the wisteria. The only thing they all have in common is the thought that spring and flowers are synonymous.

In the Victorian language of flowers, daisy means gentleness, purity and innocence; wisteria symbolizes youth and poetry; and the cherry blossom symbolizes education, wealth and prosperity. Something for everyone!

Any day now we will be seeing birds gathering wisps of this and that for nest building. Sometimes one wonders if there is some sort of competition among neighborhood birds for the most attractive nest, considering what interesting odds and ends get woven into them.

There is, for instance, the local lady who has a favorite classic cotton dress. Even after several seasons of wear it is still her favorite and last spring she washed it and hung it outside to dry. When she brought it in she noticed that the matching narrow sash was missing. A few days later she discovered a bird's nest under the eaves of her house and there was her missing sash neatly woven in and out around the edge of the nest.

Out of consideration for the artistic talents of the birds, she wore her dress all last summer with a different belt. But in the fall, when the birds moved out and went south for the winter she retrieved her sash and plans to wear her favorite classic cotton dress this summer with its own sash.

One refreshment stand owner reports that when setting up for business in a park he has a problem with birds stealing plastic drinking straws and that some of the birds' nests nearby seem to be made almost entirely of them.

Ribbons, twine, string, foil candy bar wrappers and raffia pilfered from ornamental front-door wreaths all seem to be prized by these very enterprising birds. One provident nest owner even flaunted his bank account in the form of a dollar bill woven into his home.

If you are a birdwatcher as well as a gardener, you will plan for bird-friendly plants in your garden. Catbirds, cardinals and thrashers enjoy dogwood, honeysuckle and hawthorne. Columbine, trumpet vine and cannas attract hummingbirds.

Birds are a great asset to our gardens, not only for their songs and bright plumage, but for their immense value as insect-eaters.

Some plants, however, repel birds and some are harmful to them. Most birds seem to know which plants to avoid, and birds and plants seem to co-exist very happily. But there are a few that birds seem to really hate and which they will destroy.

In this category are any plants which the birds perceive as stringy. Spider plants, ferns of many kinds, palms and bamboo are some of them. An asparagus fern will vanish completely in a few days. And while birds will eat most kinds of herbs, they will not touch rosemary or mint.

Sunflowers are wonderful natural bird-feeders. The Russian mammoth is a good one and produces flower heads more than a foot across on stems 10 to 12 feet high. During the growing season, the sunflower's practice of turning its head toward the sun as the sun's position shifts in the sky makes it an interesting plant to watch. Cardinals, finches and sparrows all love to feast on the maturing seeds.

Wildflowers will soon be making their appearance in the woods and the little golden lady's slipper orchid is one of the loveliest.

Orchids are one of the oldest of the world's flowers and as long ago as five centuries before the birth of Christ they were grown and loved in China. Confucius mentions them frequently and Theophrastus, a student of Plato, is credited with giving them their European name.

In medieval Europe, orchids were considered to have aphrodisiac powers. In the 19th century there was a craze for collecting orchids, and auctions in Liverpool and other English cities brought astonishing prices for a single plant.

Jacob Breynius, a 17th century German botanist, describes orchids very poetically: "If nature ever showed her playfulness in the forming of plants, this is visible among the orchids. They take on the form of little birds, of lizards, or insects. They look like a man or a woman; sometimes like a clown. They represent the image of a lazy tortoise, a melancholy toad, an agile monkey. Nature has formed orchid flowers in such a way that, unless they make us laugh, they excite our greatest admiration."

Did you know that vanilla, the flavoring we like so much in ice cream and myriad other foods, is an orchid? It is the only widely used commercial product of the orchid family and was first discovered by the ancient Aztec Indians in Mexico. The name "vanilla" is derived from the Spanish word "vaynilla," a diminutive of the word "vayna," which means sheath, and is descriptive of the shape of the seed pods.

It was long thought that orchids could only be grown in special greenhouses, but recently it was discovered that many varieties can be grown on windowsills as house plants, providing exotic and romantic beauty in even the must hum-drum rooms.

Proper food handling? Here's the meat of it

Q. Summer is coming and I want to be clear on the proper (safe) procedures for handling food products. Can you give me some tips?

A. First, remember that these tips apply year-round. You can never be too safe with proper food handling. Never drink unpasteurized milk. Pasteurization temperatures kill bacteria.

Immediately freeze or refrigerate meats and meat products after shopping. Never thaw meats on the counter or leave them at room temperature for more than two hours. Use refrigerated ground meat within two days after purchase. Larger cuts of meat can be refrigerated for three to five days. If you cannot use the meat immediately, wrap it tightly and store in the freezer. Ground meat can be safely stored in the freezer for three to four months.

Immediately refrigerate all leftover cooked meats and meat dishes. "Hot food" leftovers should be cooled in shallow pans. Leftovers should be used within two days. Wash and scrub dishes, utensils, and work areas with hot soapy water before and after contact with raw meat to prevent cross-contamination. Be sure to rinse these surfaces with lots of hot water and allow to air-dry. When possible, use paper towels for drying. Wash hands thoroughly with soap and warm water after handling raw meat, after using bathroom or after

Thoroughly cook meats and meat dishes to 160 degrees or more. Cook until the center of the meat is gray or brown. Juices should run clear with no trace of pink. Return any undercooked meats or meat dishes served at a restaurant for further cooking. Serve foods with clean plates and utensils.

Q. Should children be allowed to have dessert if they don't finish a meal?

A. Yes. If you make dessert a reward for eating, you will encourage children to overeat twice: once to get the reward, and then to eat dessert when they are already full. Don't get into a battle over desserts. Make desserts a healthful part of the meal. This may sound crazy but serve dessert with the meal. You will be surprised to find that the child will eat both when the dessert is not viewed as anything special.

Q. How can I avoid lopsided biscuits?

A. Roll or pat the dough to an even thickness and, when cutting biscuits, dip the cutter in flour, press it firmly into the dough, and remove it without twisting, as twisting distorts the dough, preventing the biscuits from rising evenly. Also be aware that biscuits made from the gathered scraps of dough are more likely to be uneven. Avoid overworking the scraps in an attempt to get an even thickness, as you will end up with tough biscuits.

When landscaping, don't use creosote-treated ties

Q. I can get some used railroad ties for almost nothing. Is there any reason why I shouldn't use them for landscape retaining walls and raised bed flower gardening?

A. Yes. They were probably treated with creosote to prevent decay. Creosote will injure or kill plants grown next to the ties. Instead, use landscape timbers treated with preservatives that won't harm plants. Your local nursery or lumber yard operator can advise you.

Q. When my neighbor uses soap to control aphids in her flower garden, is she using regular household dish-washing soap or something else?

A. She's probably using a soap specially designed for controlling insect pests. It is biodegradable and nearly nontoxic to humans and most beneficial insects. Dish soap is not soap but rather detergent, and it may harm plants. Insecticidal soap is usually effective against aphids, white flies, mealybugs and mites on a wide variety of ornamentals, house plants, garden flowers and fruit trees.

Q. I moved into my new house in the winter so I didn't get the lawn seeded last fall. Is spring a good time to do this?

A. Fall has been shown to be the best time to seed a new lawn, but spring seeding offers some advantages. After being cooped up all winter, you may be more ambitious to work on the lawn in the spring. The soil shouldn't have to be watered so much. The soil is cold, however, so it may take seeds longer to germinate. That won't slow down spring-germinating weeds, of course, and weed competition with grass seedlings can be a problem in spring-seeded lawns.

Grass plants need to be well established before summer's hot, dry weather, so start as early as you can work the soil.

For your health's sake, watch those raw eggs

Several recent outbreaks of Salmonella enteritidis have been reported across the United States, causing concern and raising questions about this illness.

This form of salmonella has been associated with eggs and reported with increasing frequency in Great Britain and the United States in the past few years, says Beverly Mair, home economist with the Macomb MSU Extension Service.

The exact source of the bacterium has not been determined, but it is suspected that the organism is incorporated into the egg before it is laid.

An egg infected with Salmonella enteritidis looks no different than a non-infected egg, so it cannot be identified and removed from the egg supply.

Each year several million Americans suffer from food-borne illness. Many things cause food-borne illness, but improper handling, cooking and storage of food is by far the biggest culprit. Eggs, like any other perishable food, must be properly handled, cooked and stored to minimize the possibility of food-borne illness.

Salmonella enteritidis is easily destroyed by cooking, but several traditional egg dishes use raw or only partially cooked eggs. Home-made eggnog or ice cream and caesar salad dressing frequently use raw eggs. Lightly cooked eggs are components of meringues, French toast and hollandaise sauce, or are eaten as soft-cooked eggs and sunny-side-up eggs.

Some individuals are more susceptible to food-borne illness than others. People who should take extra precautions to reduce their risk include people over the age of 55, pregnant women, very young children and people with weakened immune systems, including persons with cancer, liver disease, diabetes and AIDS. These individuals can become ill from eating even a small amount of bacteria and so may want to limit their consumption of foods made from raw or lightly cooked egg products.

Use the following guidelines when purchasing, handling and storing eggs:

1. Buy eggs from a refrigerated display case. If the trip home will take more than 30 minutes, put the eggs in a portable cooler with other refrigerated or frozen products.

2. Inspect the eggs in the carton before buying them. Buy only eggs that have clean, uncracked shells.

3. Consider purchasing pasteurized eggs, products that contain pasteurized eggs, or pasteurized products that contain eggs, such as commercial eggnog.

4. Refrigerate eggs as soon as possible at home and keep them refrigerated until you use them.

5. Leave eggs in their original carton in the refrigerator away from foods with strong odors, such as onions and fish. Odors can penetrate eggshells and may give the eggs an unpleasant taste or smell.

6. If an egg is accidentally frozen, keep it frozen until it's needed, then thaw it in the refrigerator. If the shell is cracked during freezing, discard the egg.

7. If you accidentally crack the shell of an egg before you plan to use it, break the egg into a clean container, cover tightly, refrigerate and use within two days in a recipe that is baked. Do not use an egg if the shell is cracked, if the egg's contents are leaking through the shell, if the egg is stuck to the carton, or if the eggshell is dirty or prominently stained or has foreign material sticking to it.

8. Use eggs within a reasonable time. Raw shell eggs will keep up to three weeks after you bring them home.

9. Separated egg whites and yolks should be refrigerated in tightly covered containers and used within four days. Cover the yolks with cold water before storing and pour the water off before using.

10. Hard-cooked eggs, in the shell or peeled, should be eaten within one week of cooking. Hard-cooked yolks should be used within five days.

11. Follow good hygiene when preparing eggs and egg-rich foods. Wash hands, utensils, equipment and work surfaces with hot, soapy water before and after they come in contact with eggs and egg-rich foods.

12. Break eggs into a clean container before cooking or mixing with other ingredients. If any shell fragments or blood spots are present, they can be removed with a clean utensil. Do not add eggshells to beverages or other dishes, even if the recipes say to include them.

13. When serving eggs and egg-rich foods, hold them unrefrigerated no more than two hours total — not including cooking time. If serving time is more than two hours, as for a buffet, offer these foods in small serving dishes that are frequently replenished directly from the stove or refrigerator.

14. Serve hot eggs and egg-rich foods immediately after cooking, or hold them for serving at 140 degrees F, or higher, during serving. To serve cooked egg dishes cold, put hot foods into shallow containers and refrigerate immediately after cooking. Cold cooked food can be held for serving at 40 degrees F or below during serving.

15. Leftovers should be refrigerated in covered containers immediately after serving. Do not mix leftover egg dishes from the serving table with leftovers still on the stove or in the refrigerator. Use leftovers within four days.

Egg producers and regulatory agencies are striving to learn more about the connection between Salmonella enteritidis and eggs and how to eliminate the organism from our food supply. A program is currently under way to inspect and destroy infected flocks to prevent the spread of Salmonella enteritidis.

If you have questions on food safety, preservation, preparation or nutrition, call the Macomb Michigan State University Extension food and nutrition hotline at 469-5060, Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.
