What's in the future? Find out Nov. 13 at War Memorial

The results of the Grosse Pointes-Harper Woods Futuring Project will be unveiled Sunday, Nov. 13, between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Fries Ballroom.

The presentation outlining the recommendations contained in the futuring report will be given by members of the seven citizen task forces.

Robert Keller, president of Detroit Renaissance, will deliver the keynote address.

Two years ago, about 200 citizens gathered at Grosse Pointe South High School for five hours to learn about a unique planning process called futuring.

Futuring is a citizen-driven process which involves an in-depth review of the past and current experiences and future trends and developments.

After the review, participants developed visions of their preferred future for their communities within seven broad categories: public facilities and services, financial and economic vitality, public safety, beautification and preservation, human services, leisure and cultural and community.

"When this project began, the participants were told that the future could be described as the headlight of an oncoming locomotive or the light at the end of the tunnel," said Rich Solak, Grosse Pointe Farms city manager. "After 18 months of serious study and careful deliberation, these citizens have seen the light at the end of the tunnel. And for the Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods and generations to come, it is bright."

All citizens interested in learning about the vision for our collective future are invited to attend this community celebration.

WE'RE CONCERNED ABOUT YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

News can appear one day and be gone the next. But the paper news is printed on can and should live on. Last year, more than one third of all U.S. newsprint was recycled. And that number is growing every day. Recycling is the one way we can all give something back.

Highly-paid G.P. librarians negotiating a new contract

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe librarians are probably the highest paid in the state and they've been bargaining with the newly independent library board to keep it that way.

A survey by the Grosse Pointe News found that the salaries and salary ranges for library directors, department heads and reference librarians were higher in Grosse Pointe than in neighboring and comparable communities.

The salary for library director in Grosse Pointe is currently $90,000. In St. Clair Shores, the director earns $53,061; in Harper Woods, the range is from $27,048 to $37,573; in Birmingham, the director earns a combined $70,000 to oversee the Baldwin Public Library and the Bloomfield Township Public Library.

Librarian salaries in Grosse Pointe range from $34,115 to $71,041; in Harper Woods, librarians earn between $22,239 and $32,100; in St. Clair Shores, librarians earn between $26,500 and $38,500.

In the November 1994 issue of American Libraries magazine an article on librarians'

Harper Woods	$27,048- $37,573	$22,239- $32,100 salaries indicates that the mean salary for library director in 1994 is $55,672; for department heads it's $40,544; and for reference librarians it's $34,233.

"Historically, libraries operated by school districts paid their librarians more," said Stephen A. Kershner, director of the library system for Birmingham, Bloomfield Township, Bloomfield Hills, Beverly Hills and Bingham Farms. "They are paid higher because they are tied in to school district funding."

Charles Hanson, Grosse Pointe library director, said salaries reflect longevity, extra pay for extra duty and levels of education.

Park's mayor applauds eastside Detroit development efforts

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The Warren/Conner Development Coalition (WCDC) is moving, and that's good news for eastsiders.

The organization, which was founded about 10 years ago to attract development to Detroit's eastside, is leaving its old office at the Eastside YMCA because it needs more room. And that's good news to Grosse Pointe Park mayor Palmer Heenan.

"I always feel good about people who work to make something out of a fallow part of the city," Heenan said. "I am pleased at their work at Mack and Alter. Anything that attracts investment and fresh efforts on Detroit's eastside benefits Grosse Pointe Park, and I wish them every success."

Karen Brown, the WCDC's economic development director, said that the group's projects have overwhelmed its 8,000-square-foot offices, necessitating a move to a 13,000-square-foot office at 11148 Harper at the corner of Conner.

"We have a lot of projects going," Brown said. "That means a need for more office space."

Brown is especially proud of the WCDC's development at the corner of Mack and Alter in Detroit. Using money from Detroit, the state and the federal government, as well as donations from religious groups like the Sisters of Charity, the Adrian Dominicans and the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan, the WCDC has built a shopping center on the site.

"If I've left someone or some organization out, it's by accident," said Brown. "So many people and groups have given their time and money to this project. Right now there is a secretary of state office at the Alter development, as well as a Family Dollar store, a Rent-A-Center and a pre-natal clinic. We are negotiating to bring in a grocery store, and hope to have one there soon."

The WCDC is also planning a housing development project on the eastside and is one of five community organizations that qualified to participate in the Annie E. Casey Foundation's Rebuilding Communities program. The seven year program focuses on breaking the cycle of individual and family poverty through a systematic change in academics, human services, neighborhood development and government reform. The WCDC also is active in Youth on the Edge of Greatness, a national demonstration program that provides 60 at-risk teenagers with job training, life planning, leadership training and academic support.

"In addition to these programs, we are working toward establishing a $350,000 endowment fund," said Brown. "We recently qualified for the Van Dusen Endowment Challenge. That means if we meet our fundraising goal by the end of 1996, we will get a 30 percent cash prize that will be added to what is raised."

For more information on the WCDC and its projects, call 313-571-2800.

Parade Route

Eastland parade to begin in Pointes

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

It's been said that everyone loves a parade, and with that in mind the Eastland Center is sponsoring a Thanksgiving parade that begins in Grosse Pointe Farms and will end at the mall.

Rita Similides, marketing manager for the mall, said that she got the idea in August when she and some secretaries were talking about how to promote the upcoming holiday season.

"We were sitting around, and one of the secretaries, Rene Martin, said that she loved parades," said Similides. "We decided that a parade might not be a bad idea and took it from there."

Eastland will sponsor the parade at a cost of about $23,000, Similides said. The money will come from the mall's marketing fund. Eastland will reimburse the cities along the route for expenses incurred in connection with providing security and traffic help.

Joe Ricci will donate the cars and trucks used in the parade, so when looking for a starting point, it was decided that Ricci's Jeep/Eagle dealership on Mack might be a good place, said Similides.

"The parade will begin at Mack and Moran in Grosse Pointe Farms at 8 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 19," said Similides. "The parade will continue north on Mack through the Farms and through Grosse Pointe Woods. Once they get to Vernier, the marchers will drop out and the parade will continue to Eastland along Vernier with the motorized elements only."

The Farms and the Woods will close northbound Mack to traffic, said public safety officials from the two cities. Farms deputy director of public safety Sam Cardella said he guarantees that the parade will begin at 8 a.m. People in the parade will begin to line up at about 6:30 a.m., Cardella said.

Lt. Michael VanDeGinste of the Woods public safety department urges drivers who use Mack to adjust their schedules and driving routes accordingly.

"We'll be closing off the side streets that feed onto Mack," VanDeGinste said. "I hear the Farms is doing the same thing. There will be parking in municipal lots and sidestreets, and we won't be enforcing the parking regulations in these areas for the duration of the parade, but we hope that many people will walk to the parade."

Similides said that the parade route is four miles long, and the parade should last about 90 minutes. Six local high schools will enter floats in the parade. The three best floats will earn the winning schools $1,000, $750 and $500 respectively.

After the parade is over, there will be a special breakfast for children. Parents interested in the breakfast should call 313-371-1501 and ask for the mall manager. The cost is $2 per child.

"This is just a good way to bring Santa to the mall," Similides said. "We'd like to see it become an annual event, and I think people will really enjoy the parade. The three best recent information available through the department of technical services is for the 1992-93 fiscal year. It shows a $89,700 annual salary paid to the director of the Detroit Public Library.

"Grosse Pointe was not at the top, but it's difficult to tell with libraries like Grosse Pointe, which (most recently were) connected to school district funds," said Linda Neely, of the Library of Michigan. "School district libraries may pay their directors out of two pots, so to speak. Or they may get two salaries — one for running the school district's libraries and one for the public library."

Meanwhile, negotiations between the librarians' union and the library board have been underway for about a month.

"There are no short-term conclusions to the negotiations," said John Bruce, president of the library board. "I anticipate we will be negotiating for some time."

Bruce declined to disclose details of the negotiations, which are not a matter of public record. Negotiations officially started Oct. 4 and Bruce said both bargaining units continue to meet on a regular basis.

"Basically they are starting from ground zero," said Susan Hoard, executive director of the Michigan Education Association/National Education Association Local 1 office in Clinton Township.

Hoard spoke on behalf of the Grosse Pointe Librarians Association and the Grosse Pointe Public Library Support Personnel Association.

The librarians and clerical workers last August voted to join the Michigan Education Association, to which they belonged during their employment with the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Both sides must draw up a new contract because last July 1 all public library employees had their employment with the Grosse Pointe school system terminated. The action was a formality but, in effect, the library employees were laid off by the school system and rehired by the district library.

"They have no contract whatsoever to work from. They have to start a new contract and it's a long process. We can use the Grosse Pointe schools' contract and others as a point of reference. But because they are no longer part of the school system, there are changes that have to be made," Hoard said.

The district library agreement included language that provided compensation, salary and fringe benefits for the librarians and clerical workers at the same level as was provided by the school system as of June 30, 1994, Bruce said.

"The new district library was obligated to continue that until June 30, 1995," Bruce said. "But we are a new entity and we need to operate the library in a way that provides the best services in the best way possible. Perceptions would be entirely different if everyone was starting anew, but they have that background of where they came from."

The district library serves the same geographical area as the public school system: the five Pointes and a third of Harper Woods.

Voters approved a 1.7-mill tax levy to support the library. This year's budget is $2.6 million and $2.4 million came from the school system as part of the district library agreement. Beginning July 1, 1995, the district library will set its own budget and is expected to levy 1.3 mills to support that spending plan.

Ex-medic recalls World War II stateside, overseas duty

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

When Gordon Michaelson entered the National Guard, he never figured he would be a member of the active reserves more than 20 years later.

Michaelson, a Wisconsin native and resident of Grosse Pointe Woods, joined the National Guard in 1935.

"It helped pay my tuition at the University of Wisconsin at River Falls," Michaelson said. "At that time during the Depression, there was a waiting list to get into the National Guard."

He moved to Detroit in 1938, attending Wayne University and joining the Michigan National Guard's infantry division.

While working at the Packard auto company, Michaelson met a doctor who was also in the National Guard.

"He told me he was having trouble with his supplies," Michaelson said, "so I transferred from the infantry to medical supplier."

In 1940, Michaelson was inducted into the federal service and sent to Camp Livingston in Louisiana as a battalion sergeant.

"I met Lt. Col. Eisenhower there," Michaelson recalled.

After an act of Congress extended his federal service stint another year, Michaelson traveled west to Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio, Texas, where learned to become a surgical

Michaelson was at Fort Sam Houston on Dec. 7, 1941, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

"They took about 24 hours to figure out what to do with us," he said.

After a short stay back in Louisiana, Michaelson headed west to Boulder Dam and then to California.

"We were guarding the coast and the aircraft factories there," Michaelson said. "We were set up in temporary camps at Griffith Park, Santa Anita racetrack and the county fairgrounds at Fresno.

While Michaelson was there, Japanese-Americans were being placed in internment camps.

"They were put into the new barracks, while we slept in the sheep bins," he said.

With the military looking for medical administrative candidates, Michaelson received his orders to go to the medical administrative school in Carlisle, Pa.

"There were some British instructors there, along with our own," he said. "We learned from their experience."

After graduating in September 1942, Michaelson went south to Camp Van Doren in Mississippi, where he was an assistant medical supply officer for two rehabilitation wards.

After being transferred in 1943 to Ream General Hospital in Palm Beach, Fla., "next to the Kennedys," Michaelson joked, he helped set up a rehabilitation center in Lake Placid, N.Y., for soldiers returning from overseas — mostly from northern Africa.

Michaelson then went to Camp Barkley in Texas for his overseas assignment, but first, he helped form the 16th General Dispensary.

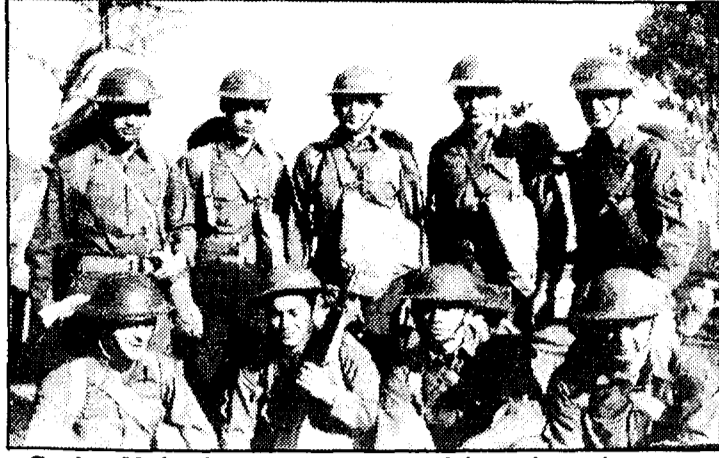

"We set up clinics in large metropolitan areas, working in conjunction with existing hospitals, for soldiers who were returning for R&R," Michaelson said.

After 4 1/2 years stateside, he was sent to Australia in April 1945.

"We made four stops there," he said, "but MacArthur wouldn't let us get off the boat."

From Australia, Michaelson traveled to Calcutta, India, where he remained until August, when the Japanese surrendered.

"About a day or two after they surrendered, we were ordered to set up a convoy of ambulances for soldiers who survived the Bataan Death March," he said. "We watched for planes over the Bay of Bengal. It was a really sad sight. We took them to a hospital outside Calcutta. Their eyes were bigger than their stomachs. They weren't able to eat very much, although they enjoyed ice cream."

Soon after this experience, Michaelson received his orders to go home. He was released from the Army in February 1946 and was officially out of the Army by that December.

Then, in early 1947, he was called to help reorganize the Michigan National Guard.

"At first, I refused," Michaelson said. "After 5 1/2 years, I had had enough. But they kept on bugging me."

He gave in and helped reorganize the group. Michaelson was the division medical supply officer and then the battalion medical officer in the 107th Medical Battalion.

Michaelson returned to work at Packard, but stayed on active reserve with the National Guard. Then in 1952, Michaelson was sent to Fort Hood in Texas as an umpire for divisions training for the Korean War.

"We analyzed medical support in case of atomic attack," he said. "You could no longer have medics on the front lines."

He returned to Detroit after two months and was made a battalion commander.

In 1956, Michaelson retired from the active reserves as a major.

Michaelson is commander of the American Legion's Red Arrow Post No. 361. The Red Arrow 32nd Division was formed during World War I with National Guard troops from Michigan and Wisconsin.

Nicknamed "Les Terribles," from the French for their fierce fighting during World War I, the Red Arrow 32nd Division served in Australia, New Guinea and the Philippines during World War II.

In 1953, U.S. 12, which runs between Detroit and Chicago, was named the Red Arrow Memorial Highway.

"Being in the medics, I wasn't in much danger," Michaelson said, "except when traveling by ship unescorted."

What sticks in his mind is the condition of the soldiers from the Bataan Death March. He remembers interviewing servicemen in the rehabilitation center and found many of them traumatized as a result of the war.

"The only fault I found with the military," Michaelson said, "is that they spend millions getting a man into the service but not a dime getting him out."

DNR calendar now on Internet

The Department of Natural Resources calendar, a bi-weekly publication of decisions pending before the office of the DNR director and upcoming public meetings and hearings, is now available on the Internet. The DNR calendar has been available by mail in its current, expanded form since October 1993, and continues to be published and distributed on paper.

"Making the DNR calendar available on the Internet is just one more way of encouraging public involvement," said DNR director Roland Harmes. "Of course, anyone who asks to be put on the calendar mailing list can still receive the bi-weekly paper copies. But for those who log onto the Internet on a regular basis, or for those who live near one of the more than 120 public libraries in Michigan that are currently on the Internet, this is one more means of accessing the most up-to-date information about pending DNR decisions and meetings."

Anyone who subscribes to an Internet provider (such as Merit, CompuServe, or Delphi, for example) can access and download an electronic copy of the DNR calendar, which can then be viewed on-screen or printed out on paper. The DNR calendar can be accessed at what is known in technical terms as the DNR's "anonymous FTP (file transfer protocol) site," located at either INFOLINE.DNR.STATE.MI.US or 148.149.113.10, depending upon the user's specific software. Log on as "anonymous" and, when asked for a password, enter your Email address or any word. To access the DNR calendar, first go to the "pub" directory, and then get into the "dnrcalendar" directory. A "readme" file in the "dnr calendar" directory provides further instructions.

For more information about how to access the Internet from a home or office computer, inquire at your local computer store about getting on the Internet.

To access the DNR calendar on the Internet from a public library, first call and ask if that library is on the Internet. If it is, go to the library and one of the staff will assist you in getting a copy of the DNR calendar. This will almost always be available free of charge. Tell the librarian that you want the most recent issue of the DNR calendar, which is available at the DNR's "anonymous FTP site" at either INFOLINE.DNR.STATE.MI.US or 148.149.113.10. The DNR calendar is in the "pub" directory, under sub-directory "dnrcalendar."

To receive the DNR calendar on paper by mail, call 517-373-1214, and ask to be placed on the DNR calendar mailing list.

Making donations to charitable organizations may not stretch your purse strings as much as you may think. The Michigan Association of CPAs (MACPA) points out that as long as you itemize on your tax return, you can claim a tax deduction for your charitable contributions and lower your taxable income.

Suppose, for example, you make a donation of $1,000 to a qualified organization. If you're in the 31 percent tax bracket, you may save up to $310 in federal taxes. If you're in the 36 percent tax bracket, you may save up to $360.

MACPA points out that donating money directly to individuals, even if they are sick, disabled, or homeless, will not entitle you to a tax deduction. To claim a deduction, you must make your contribution to a qualified organization.

These include nonprofit religious, education or charitable groups such as churches; schools; hospitals; government agencies; veterans' groups; the Salvation Army and the United Way, as well as the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. For a complete list of qualified organizations, see IRS publication 78.

To obtain a deduction, you can donate more than cash. Gifts or property, such as furniture or an old car, can qualify for the deduction. Your write-off is equal to the fair market value of the property, which is the amount you would receive for the property today from a willing buyer.

Making gifts of appreciated property, such as stocks, real estate or antiques can afford you additional tax benefits. When you donate capital gains property you have owned for at least a year, you deduct the fair market value of the property.

What's more, you needn't pay taxes on the gains realized since you purchased the donated property. So, for example, suppose you purchased some antiques for $2,000 ten years ago and they are worth $10,000 today.

If you donate the antiques to a local museum where they will be displayed, you can claim a tax deduction of $10,000 and you needn't pay any tax on the $8,000 gain.

Be sure to keep accurate records of all your charitable contributions, including the name of the charitable organization and date and amount (or fair market value) of your contribution. If you make a cash gift of $250 or more, you generally must have a receipt from the recipient.

Canceled checks are not sufficient proof of your donation. If you give property rather than cash, be sure the receipt adequately describes the donation.

If you donate property worth more than $500 in a year to any organization, you'll need to complete additional paperwork: IRS Form 8283, Noncash Charitable Contributions. The form is then submitted with your tax return.

For property donations exceeding $5,000, you must have a written appraisal from a qualified appraiser. A fully completed summary of the appraisal and a donee acknowledgment of the contribution should be attached to your tax return.

Keep in mind that the IRS may hit you with a penalty if you overvalue the donated property.

There are limits on your deductible charitable contributions that vary depending on the recipient of the contribution. Deductions for charitable gifts to public charities, such as schools, churches and hospitals, cannot exceed 50 percent of your adjusted gross income (AGI).

Gifts of appreciated property can't total more than 30 percent of your AGI. Gifts to veterans' groups are limited to 30 percent of your AGI, with a further limit of 20 percent of AGI for certain appreciated property.

You may, however, carry over deductions in excess of these amounts for five years. Additional rules apply, so check with your CPA before making any large contributions.

Following are examples of common questions people ask the Internal Revenue Service. They are presented as a public service of this publication and the IRS.

Q. At the beginning of this year, I was laid off for two months. I received unemployment compensation, and I noticed that they did not take out any taxes. Will I have to pay income tax on this money?

A. Unemployment compensation is taxable income, and if your income from all sources is high enough for you to owe taxes, yes, you will owe taxes on the unemployment also.

Q. If the Unemployment Compensation Board does not withhold taxes, how do I pay them?

A. You may have two options. If you are an employee, you may request additional withholding to cover your unemployment benefits. If you do not want to or cannot do this, you can make estimated tax payments to cover the additional tax.

Q. Is this something that everyone has to do?

A. Generally, anyone who has income that is not subject to withholding and who will owe $500 or more should make estimated tax payments. However, if you will have paid 90 percent of your 1994 tax or 100 percent of the tax shown on your 1993 income tax return by the end of the year, you may not have to make estimated tax payments.

Q. Based on that, I probably do not need to make estimated tax payments now because I usually have more than I need withheld. But, I am planning on selling my home and moving into an apartment. I will not buy a new house. Will I have to make estimated payments on the sale?

A. Generally, if you sell your home at a profit and do not buy a replacement home, your profit is taxable. If you are 55 or older, you may be able to exclude all or part of the profit. Figure your profit on Form 2119, "Sale of Your Home," and then use the worksheet of Form 1040-ES, "Estimated Tax for Individuals," to figure out how much your estimated tax payments should be.

How would you like to buy a waterfront condominium in St. Clair Shores for $100,000 off?

In a rare opportunity, Piku Management Co. is auctioning a luxury condominium in the Lakeview Club at 11 1/2 Mile and Jefferson. Piku originally built the condominium development.

"The owner's out of town and he doesn't want to carry it over the winter," said Frank Piku. "It's a real good philosophy of marketing. It's making a sale happen in a 30-day period."

The condominium to be auctioned Sunday, Nov. 20, at 3 p.m. has two fireplaces and a state equalized valuation of $335,000.

Piku said real estate auctions are new to the Midwest and said his will be perhaps the "Somebody could get a real steal," Piku said.

Woods gets new probation system at half the cost of the old

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

With less than two weeks to go before the Grosse Pointe Volunteer Probation Department dissolves, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council unanimously agreed to hire probation expert Bridget Maple to provide such services for the city.

Woods Municipal Judge Lynne Pierce recommended to the council that they approve a contract with Maple to take over the services of the Grosse Pointe probation department. Pierce said the city would not only receive excellent service, it would be saving money as well.

"Right now the Woods has 75 to 100 people on probation each month," said Pierce. "We are spending $29 per probationer. Bridget Maple will charge the city $15 per probationer. Probation is supposed to pay for itself, but the Pointes are already charging more for probation than other communities. You can't get blood from a stone, and with the old system we were losing money."

The problem began when Grosse Pointe Park pulled out of the probation system, Pierce said, because they weren't satisfied with the service. Without the Park, the probation system's overhead costs, which were mostly staff costs, remained the same, but income declined.

Pierce, who was visiting judge in Grosse Pointe Shores last summer, said that the Shores also felt costs were too high, so Shores officials decided to pull out of the system as well. As visiting judge, she had a great deal of input into how the Shores set up its probation system.

"Bridget Maple presented her proposal to me and I was impressed," said Pierce. "She had experience and the proper training, so I recommended her to Shores officials, and they took my recommendation."

With the Shores and the Park out of the Grosse Pointe probation system, expenses were greater than ever. So the remaining three Grosse Pointe administrations decided to dissolve the department and establish their own systems.

Pierce, who remembered recommending Maple to the Shores, recommended her to the Woods city council Monday night. In a memo to the council, Woods administrator Peter Thomas said a reference check of Maple "found her to be highly recommended."

Thomas also told the council that the proposed contract with Maple called for a review of her work at 45 days and six months.

Maple told the council that not only are her prices per probationer lower, but she has modeled her program after the Park's, which will provide more direct supervision of probationers.

"Most people who receive probation are there for some sort of drunk driving offense," said Maple. "I am certified by the state's department of health to evaluate drunk drivers and recommend a course of treatment. So I see them at the beginning of their probation, and I will be the one who will make sure that they follow the judge's probation instructions. That wasn't always the case under the old system."

Maple said she would set up individual interviews with all Woods probationers, instead of having them all come to the Woods courthouse on the same day, where they would be seen on a first-come first-serve basis.

This was a relief to council member Jean Rice, who said that she has heard that cities which use the first-come system have had problems in the past with clogged hallways and probationers who were angry at having to wait hours before seeing their probation officer.

Pierce also said that with the Woods providing office space in the courthouse, it would be easier for probationers to pay their fines, and it would be easier for Maple to check with the court clerk to see if they had paid their fines.

"Under the old system, the Grosse Pointe probation department was housed first in the Park, and later in offices on Mack," said Pierce. "So they had to call five different court clerks in the five Pointes to check if people paid their fines. Because the offices were away from the various court buildings, they couldn't exactly take the probationer across the hall and watch them pay their fine, which can be done with Bridget."

Pierce also told the council that she will have direct supervision over the probation system — something she didn't have under the old system.

"In the past I sometimes had problems with reports of probation violations coming to my attention in a timely fashion," Pierce said. "You have to remember that the old system answered to five different judges, so no one judge had control over it. Now the system will answer directly to me."

Maple said that she will provide service only for the Woods and the Shores. She said she will not offer her services to the Farms and the City.

Detroit to stand trial in 1992 bus stop slaying

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

A 30-year-old Detroit man was ordered Nov. 8 to stand trial in Detroit Recorder's Court for a 1992 fatal robbery of a Grosse Pointe Park woman.

After hearing testimony from 13 witnesses, Park Municipal Judge Kirsten Frank determined there was sufficient evidence presented by the prosecution to bind over Tony Raynell Hampton for trial.

Hampton is charged with one count each of first degree murder, armed robbery and violation of Michigan's felony fire-arm law.

Charges were brought against Hampton nearly three years after 32-year-old Phyllis Ann Lenart was shot and killed in an early morning hold-up at a bus stop on Jefferson and Wayburn.

A break in the case came following a special one-man grand jury investigation last summer which compelled reluctant witnesses to testify.

Park detective Lt. David Hiller has said that Hampton was a suspect in the slaying but the investigation was stalled when witnesses wouldn't cooperate.

Hampton currently is serving a 15- to 30-year sentence for a Feb. 26, 1992, armed robbery of a woman at Jefferson and Alter. The victim in that incident appeared in court on Tuesday and identified Hampton as the man who robbed her at gunpoint.

In both incidents, Grosse Pointe Park police called upon officers from the Detroit police K-9 unit to track footprints in the snow. In both instances, tracks led the dogs from the area of Jefferson between Alter and Wayburn to a house in the 1100 block of Ashland in Detroit — where Hampton had lived off and on in 1991 and 1992.

Witnesses who testified included a woman who was on her way to the bus stop on Jan. 16, 1992, who saw two black men struggling with a white woman inside the bus stop. The woman said she ran to a nearby gas station, heard a "popping" sound like a gunshot and told the gas station attendants that she thought a woman was being attacked in the bus shelter.

The attendants crossed Jefferson to investigate and each told the court they saw a woman lying face down and unresponsive inside the shelter.

A woman who lives in an apartment house on Alter Road and Hampton said she saw two black men fighting over a purse in a field around the time of the fatal hold-up.

Three residents of the house on Ashland — Hampton's mother, his brother and a woman boarder — testified that Hampton had owned a .22-caliber gun in late 1991, that he had left the house early on Jan. 16 and returned later that morning out of breath, sweating and announcing that he had to change his clothes.

Hampton's attorney, Lyle Harris, objected to what he called circumstantial evidence.

"The problem here is you do not have enough here to show that my client is the one. There is no physical evidence to link him," Harris said.

Wayne County assistant prosecutor Robert Donaldson argued there was more than sufficient proof to determine probable cause.

"He was known to carry a .22 caliber handgun. A .22 slug was fired in the fatal armed robbery. (A victim) testified and provided the identity of the defendant and established his scheme and pattern of hold-ups," he said.

Hampton is scheduled to be arraigned on Wednesday, Nov. 23, in Recorder's Court.

If GOP won, how far right will it move?

If Republicans won control of Congress in Tuesday's election (returns were unavailable as this newspaper went to press), what kind of leadership will it offer the country in 1995?

Rep. Newt Gingrich of Georgia, who would become the speaker in a GOP House, already has offered a "contract with America" which, in making exaggerated and contradictory promises about tax and spending cuts, becomes a better document to run on than to rule with.

Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, on the other hand, has suggested more modest plans for January when he would become the majority leader in a GOP Senate.

If the GOP has won control, the GOP will also have to consider just how far to the right it will move to satisfy its ultra-conservative right wing without endangering its more moderate support.

For example, a number of current and former GOP leaders who have defected to represent GOP versions of Democratic mea culpa during the current campaign would in many cases welcome a more moderate and positive approach than party leaders exhibited in recent months.

After studying the defections, a New York Times reporter concluded that they expose party fissures that point to a battle for the party's soul when the GOP first tries to set legislative priorities for the next Congress and then field a nominee to oppose President Clinton in 1996.

In Michigan, the Times named Helen Milliken, wife of the former GOP governor, who is even quoted in a Howard Wolpe commercial as supporting the Democratic nominee, emphasizing the issues of abortion and women's rights.

While Dole has not yet publicly responded to the wave of defections, a Newsday report said Dole in a GOP Senate would propose a middle-class tax cut — perhaps as an increase in the standard deduction for children — but wants to find a way to pay for it.

The GOP leader also believes that a GOP Congress should take the lead in drafting a more modest proposal than President Clinton's far-reaching but unsuccessful health care plan.

In addition, Dole proposes to "fix up" campaign finance reform, which the GOP defeated when it was in the form of a Democratic bill in the closing weeks of the regular session.

Finally, Dole said that the GOP will seek to force additional hearings into the Whitewater controversy if it controls the Senate.

While such proposals hardly indicate any rightward swing, many of them repudiate that the GOP either defeated or helped derail in the recent session.

Such proposals appear to forecast more conflict between the two parties, more deadlock on legislation that many voters favor, and more GOP efforts to prevent President Clinton from achieving victories that might raise his 1996 hopes.

However, in view of the early GOP desertions, it would make sense for Dole, if the GOP won control, to seek accommodations with the Democratic leadership to make it possible to enact legislation that the country wants and needs.

Realistically, neither Dole nor Gingrich could be expected to even hint at such an accommodation prior to the election, but by doing so now that the election is over, Dole could revive the appeal he once had among independents and moderates in both parties.

The question would be, however, whether the leadership could handle such GOP right-wing committee chairmen as Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, foreign relations; Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, armed services; and Sen. Alfonse D'Amato of New York, banking, housing and urban affairs.

If Dole could move to the center and control his ultraconservative chairmen, however, the country surely would welcome a GOP Congress.

A disappointing '94 campaign

As the 1994 national political campaign wound down last week, few mourned its passing.

It concluded, as it began, as the nastiest and most personal campaign in the recent history of this country.

Veteran reporters who covered politics in Washington, D.C., and Michigan for many years found it to be one of the most irresponsible campaigns on record.

As an example, neither political party gave the American people an honest assessment of the future prospects of balancing the budget so long as the present Social Security program and other entitlements remain in place.

When Alice Rivlin's personal memo to the president on the subject was leaked to the news media, the GOP leaped to the attack even though the memo only listed — but did not recommend — ways in which the looming deficits might be met.

Unfortunately, in response, President Clinton immediately promised no cuts in Social Security programs and, instead, insisted that the GOP was itself proposing cuts.

That exchange left both parties pledged to avoid the curtailment or reductions that experts agree would be required to balance the budget.

Beyond the political parties, however, much of the blame for these extreme positions must be put right back on the individual voters and beneficiaries of entitlements who opposed any tax increases or reductions in their entitlements.

True, the Democratic Congress in the 1993-94 session had increased tax coverage of higher income Social Security recipients from 50 percent to 80 percent of their benefits.

However, many observers and recipients in this category had recommended taxing 100 percent of the Social Security payments received by recipients in upper income levels.

But even at the 80 percent rate, many of the affected recipients protested so strongly that the GOP contract now recommends repeal of that increase.

With a national commission on entitlements due to report next month, a compromise to curtail or trim future entitlements still might be worked out in either a Democratic or GOP Congress — but it is a long shot.

In assessing responsibility for the nasty campaign, we think the news media must bear their share of the blame, too.

In covering President Clinton, the news media and talk show hosts made many personal and other attacks on the presidential family that were mere allegations or based on flimsy and disputed evidence emanating from sensational TV and print journalism.

During the campaign, the nasty charges intensified and while both political parties were equally guilty, challengers generally made the most extreme contentions with the result that experience became a liability, not an asset.

Too much of that reporting and commentary simply pandered to the electorate's lowest common denominator. It poisoned the political atmosphere in both parties, making gridlock predictable and honest compromise difficult to achieve.

That kind of atmosphere holds out little promise for solid cooperation and achievements in the next two years, regardless of which party controls Congress.

Charter schools now at risk

Gov. John Engler and other backers of charter schools are expected to appeal the Ingham County Circuit judge's order that has declared the charter schools law unconstitutional.

The decision apparently puts at risk state funding of eight charter schools that already had been allocated $3.5 million of state education funds, as well as the financial expectations of other applicants.

However, the decision raised hopes of charter school foes that the law will be upheld in the higher courts, thus forcing sponsors to seek new legislation to gain state funds or a constitutional amendment to authorize them.

A Democratic state board of education member, Barbara Roberts Mason, commented that "the law, as written, clearly would have diverted public money into private schools and been a circumvention of the Constitution."

Defending the law, Engler promptly said it is constitutional, "the best in the nation," and he is going "to lead the fight" to save it.

Whatever happens to the law, we are still critical of the theory that establishing charter schools would benefit public education by providing competition.

If the new system siphoned off more of the better students, which would be likely because many concerned parents would enroll their children in charter schools, the regular public schools would be left with poorer students and less money with which to operate — and compete.

Even if some charter schools might offer better opportunities for some students, we fail to see how the plan would improve the regular public schools that will continue to educate most American youngsters.

What now for Ross Perot?

Ross Perot, the Texas billionaire, was up to his old tricks in the closing days of the Nov. 8 general election campaign — but nobody seems to know what the 1994 tricks meant.

Perot, who made a strong third party race for the presidency in 1992, endorsed Democratic Gov. Ann Richards of Texas, his home state, against George W. Bush, son of the president.

That wasn't especially surprising since Perot had jumped into the 1990 race to try to unseat President Bush but he denied his backing of Richards was part of a grudge match with the Bush family.

But then, to complicate efforts to determine his motives, he endorsed the independent candidate, B. Thomas Golisano, for governor of New York, and the GOP candidate against Democratic Speaker of the House Tom Foley in Washington.

All of these moves came after he had failed last July to persuade any major network to carry a $1 million, prime-time program that he was prepared to turn over to the GOP to broadcast information about health care.

Other prominent politicians have jumped party lines this year, but Perot's lack of consistency in his choices raises the question as to whether he is not more interested in personal publicity than in political principle.

It is true, of course, that many voters split their tickets, as Perot apparently would have done if he had been voting in Washington or New York rather than in Texas.

It is also true that he claims he made only personal endorsements which were not binding on his organization, but in Texas many of his followers still were expected to vote for George W. Bush.

In Michigan, a Perot rally in Lansing during the fall campaign apparently was intended to showcase GOP candidates and emphasize Perot's opposition to the Clinton administration's policies on health care, trade and foreign policies and to Michigan Democratic nominees for Congress.

Our bet is that Perot is just gearing up for another run at the presidency in 1996, and is trying to prove he's an independent by endorsing GOP and Democratic as well as independent candidates this year.

Perot's political vagaries would attract little attention except for one factor: He's a wealthy man who already has spent millions in pursuing his political dreams — and, in fact, is still pursuing them.

We hope he continues to be unsuccessful in that pursuit.

A view from the sidelines

by Wilbur Elston

When Herbert Hoover, a GOP native of Iowa, and Al Smith, a New York Democrat, ran for the presidency, I saw the most blatant appeal to religious bigotry that I ever observed in a political campaign.

It occurred in a Methodist Episcopal Church in Hastings, Minn., when about 20 white-robed KKK members marched into a Sunday service and seated themselves in the first two rows of pews.

The preacher, also wearing a white robe, then appeared to briefly address the congregation and the Klansmen.

At 15, I didn't understand what was going on, but afterward my parents explained that the Klan had appealed to Protestants to unite against Democratic nominee Smith, a Catholic, who eventually lost the election.

The point of recalling that incident is that while the 1994 personal attacks on candidates were the lowest in years, I think that 1928 exhibition of bigotry was even worse.

By 1960, John F. Kennedy's successful campaign that made him the first Catholic president proved that most Americans had abandoned religious intolerance as a test for filling that office.

Members of the Madame Cadillac Dance Theatre entertained seniors and guests with a lively performance at the anniversary MusicFest hosted by St. John-Bon Secours Senior Community.

Sharon Syfert, of St. John-Bon Secours Senior Community, left, assists Lola Rudolph as she prepares to cut into the center's sixth anniversary cake during October MusicFest, a community event. Rudolph was one of the first residents of the center, which offers residential living, assisted care and nursing care.

MusicFest turns 6, wows gleeful seniors

More than 200 people took part in festivities at St. John-Bon Secours Senior Community on Sunday, Oct. 23, when it hosted a free October MusicFest to celebrate its sixth anniversary.

Two of the center's rooms were transformed into theaters with stage performances by a variety of dancers and musicians, including Madame Cadillac Dance Theatre, Hole in the Bog, and the Blarney Boys. Refreshments were served in the library, decorated in a harvest theme. One of the first residents, Lola Rudolph, cut the first piece of a three-layer cake and guests signed a 5-foot tall anniversary card.

To commemorate the occasion, Sister Suzanne Zieski, who officiated during the center's opening in 1988, said a blessing, expressing gratitude for being able to serve elder adults in a way that celebrates life.

Robert Nugent, chairman of the board of trustees of the senior community, attended with his wife, Jane, also a board member. Nugent noted that the six years of providing residential care and nursing care have been very successful and gratifying.

Chief executive officer Judith Smith invited guests to tour the center, which provides nursing care for up to 150 elder adults, and assisted living and residential care for up to 100 seniors. The modern senior living complex houses an extensive therapy room, dental clinic, chapel, library, activity center, beauty shop, gift shop and two dining rooms and has spacious grounds with a rose garden and two gazebos.

The senior community is a collaborative effort of the Sisters of St. Joseph and the Sisters of Bon Secours and provides a continuum of care for elder adults. Located at 18300 E. Warren in Detroit, the facility is the former site of Austin High School and later of the Austin Center of Wayne County Community College.

Health survey clarified

To the Editor:

One of my responsibilities at the Wayne County Department of Public Health is to assist local communities as they implement the APEX project. I am writing to explain APEX and to clear up some misperceptions that may exist about this project.

APEX (Assessment Protocol for Excellence in Public Health) is a model process for bringing together local health departments and the communities they serve. APEX is currently under way in hundreds of communities across Michigan and the nation. The goal of APEX is to help area residents gain a better understanding of health issues in the community from the public health perspective, and to assist the health department in its mission of assuring the existence of programs and services needed by that community. The Connection newspaper recently performed a valuable community service by running a story about the local APEX project, and by distributing a community health survey that is an important part of the project.

APEX began in the six eastside communities with the selection of one Community Health Status Advisory Board (CHSAB) member from each community. These representatives were recommended by the mayors and city councils of each community and formally appointed to the board by Wayne County executive Edward McNamara.

Some residents have formed the mistaken impression that CHSAB members are reviewing personal medical information about individuals. This would be a violation of state law, and is absolutely not happening. The board is reviewing summary information in statistical form only, such as infant mortality rates, major causes of hospitalization, the incidence of communicable disease cases locally compared with the incidence in the county or state as a whole, and so on.

No document about any individuals has been shown to the board, and neither has any information been presented which could be used to identify any individual. The community survey that appeared in The Connection did not even provide space for anyone to put his or her name on it.

Preliminary results of the CHSAB's work will be out soon, also in community rather than individual format.

Many thanks to The Connection for cooperating with APEX so far, and for allowing me to correct misinformation about APEX.

Steven C. Gold
Director, Office of Planning & Evaluation

Thanks from Children's Home

To the Editor:

The Children's Home of Detroit wishes to express heartfelt thanks to our special friends at Allemon's Landscape Center on Mack Avenue for sponsoring the fifth annual pony ride benefiting the Children's Home of Detroit Oct. 16. You have no idea what this has meant to us; not merely the much needed funds, but the wonderful relationship it has developed between the Children's Home and our community.

Over the past five years, this event has raised more than $11,000 for our programs. This was all made possible because the friends and family of Allemon's have cared about the needy and troubled children we serve.

It was a beautiful day with blue skies and 70-degree temperatures, more than 1,000 children and adults enjoyed a fun-filled day. This is a tradition and partnership between Allemon's and the Children's Home that we hope continues for many years to come.

Our heartfelt thanks to Joni, Ed, Mike and Joe of Allemon's and to everyone who helped make this event a success! We are very proud to witness the high level of community spirit shared by these folks.

Farms PSOs appreciated

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to the Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department.

My parents died within a very short time of each other in their Grosse Pointe Farms home. Officer Steve Puckett came when my father died and officer John Walco came when my mother died. Each officer was very professional but also showed a great deal of compassion, care and concern. I will always fondly remember these two fine gentlemen.

In the past few years it was necessary to call the Grosse Pointe Farms EMS several times. To that fine crew I also send my heartfelt thank you.

Recyclers say thanks

To the Editor:

This is a brief note of public thanks to several area businesses and the City of Grosse Pointe Farms for their help with two recent events.

In October, Ameritech and the City of Grosse Pointe Farms sponsored a drop-off site for telephone book recycling open to all of us in the Grosse Pointes/Harper Woods area. Special thanks go out to Rich Solak and Shane Reeside for their initiative in setting up the recycling site. We hope that many of you took advantage of this program to clean out your closets and basements and recycle your old telephone books.

We also want to thank Damman Hardware on Kercheval for their generous support of our Halloween composting promotion. As part of the annual "Trick or Treat" event in the Village, we dressed up at Damman's in a "compost bin" costume. When you compost, you get worms, and Damman provided us with "gummy worms" to hand out to the kids. Parents and adults got flyers with information on composting and "yard recycling." Despite the rain, the event was a success. Thanks again to Damman Hardware, and thanks to Mail Boxes Inc. on Mack for our low-cost flyers.

St. Clair's sewage

To the Editor:

Water contamination was cleaned up, right? Wrong! If it's all gone, how do you explain loads of fish dead on the side of the Milk River?

Going on Rollerblades or on bikes or even walking, it's no picnic on Metro Beach's trail. The smell of the sewage is unbearable! The sewage was so bad at Metro Beach they had to ban swimming for almost the entire summer. When swimming started backup, was the water really cleaned up? Is it really so safe even now?

How can I be sure that the water that comes out of my faucet is safe to drink?

I think if people were more caring and less selfish, maybe this sewage problem may have never existed. You may say it's too late, but no it's not too late to think about our future. What about the next generation?

We don't want to wait and regret our actions years from now. We shouldn't wait to act when water isn't really safe to drink anymore, and then say, "I wish I had done something long ago."

Make lot into a park

To the Editor:

There is a big open lot on Vernier across from North High School. I think Grosse Pointe Woods and Shores should get together and build a park there.

Grosse Pointe really doesn't have any parks except the ones at the schools. At all the city parks, you need a pass to get in.

The Vernier lot has not been cared for for at least six months (or since school ended last spring). Kids go there to play soccer and football, but can't. I think a park would be a great idea.

Longer lunch hour needed

To the Editor:

I am a sixth-grader at Parcells Middle School in Grosse Pointe Woods. I think that the school board does not give me and my classmates enough time to eat our lunches.

The reason for this is that if you buy your lunch, you will end up waiting in line for about 10 minutes (we only get 15). It ends up you either throw away half your lunch or rush to eat it all and get indigestion.

What is a kid to do? In other words, the kids are at a lose-lose situation. This is unfair and something must be done.

I think that the school board should hire more cashiers to take care of the massive number of kids.

Little artists

Detroit-based ceramic artist Caroline Court visited University Liggett School in September as the school's Hoag-Bickett ceramic artist-in-residence. She worked with lower, middle and upper school students in the construction and operation of a paper kiln. Court is a 1964 graduate of Grosse Pointe University School (a predecessor of ULS). The Hoag-Bickett residency is sponsored by John Hoag, a 1929 graduate of Grosse Pointe Country Day School (another ULS predecessor).

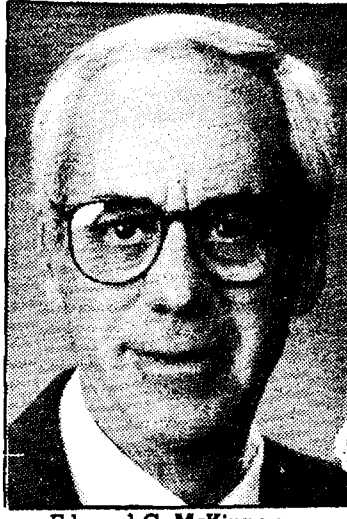

Ohio school dedicated to South principal

Former Grosse Pointe High School assistant principal and math teacher Edward Curtis McKinney was honored by the Yellow Springs, Ohio, school system with the dedication of the Ed McKinney School on Oct. 14.

The McKinney school houses the seventh and eighth grades as an annex to Yellow Springs High School.

McKinney died Feb. 23, 1993, at the age of 63, following a yearlong battle with lung cancer. He was a math teacher at what is now Grosse Pointe South from 1959 to 1964 and assistant principal from 1965 to 1967. During that time he also served as president of the teachers' union and was on the negotiating team.

He retired in 1984, earned a law degree from the University of Cincinnati College of Law in 1988 and began a second career as a fact-finder, mediator and arbitrator in labor/management disputes and grievances.

Edward C. McKinney

Brownell science teacher honored

Judith J. Morlan, a science teacher at Brownell Middle School in Grosse Pointe Farms, received the 1994 presidential award for excellence in science and mathematics teaching. She is one of 215 educators nationally to receive the award given to elementary and secondary science and math teachers.

Morlan was given a citation and a $7,500 grant to enhance the science and math programs at Brownell. She also will visit Washington, D.C., next spring to participate in award ceremonies.

The award was established by President Reagan in 1983. It is administered by the National Science Foundation and managed by the National Science Teachers Association.

Meet the artist

The freshman class council of Grosse Pointe South met artist James Mitchell at the Oct. 30 opening of his show at Galerie 454 in Grosse Pointe Park. Mitchell painted a distinctive picture of the front of South last summer and the freshman class is raising funds to purchase the work as a gift to the school. Council members are, left to right, Eric Schulte, Matt Rudnick, Patrick Howe, Mitchell, Mike Hindelang, Seth Lloyd and Tim Lindow. Mitchell's work will be on display at the gallery, located at 15015 Kercheval, through Nov. 26.

Farms selects Luedtke Associates as planner for Mack/Moross property

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

Citing familiarity with the community, the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council chose the City of Grosse Pointe firm of Gerald Luedtke and Associates Inc. Monday night as the planner for the 5.5 acre parcel of land for which the Farms bid $3.7 million last February.

"I liked his vision," said councilman and property task force member Ed Gaffney. "I think the most important thing is his understanding of the community."

Gerald Luedtke and Associates and Premise Associates Inc. were the two finalists selected by the task force of three councilmembers and 11 Farms residents.

Each planning firm gave a 45-minute presentation, each conveying a vision of what the corner of Mack and Moross will look like in the near and distant future to the full council and three task force members.

Although the council and other task force members were impressed with the qualifications and resources of Premise, most members felt they would be more comfortable working with Luedtke, who is also a resident of the City of Grosse Pointe.

"I think local knowledge is invaluable," said councilmember Terry Griffin.

"I have the feeling that he (Luedtke) knows what we're all about," said task force member Stuart Dow.

After its formation, the task force a produced report with 17 different recommendations on what should be built on the site. These ranged from senior housing to a new site for a public library to a community center.

Luedtke will work with the Farms to help decide which use of the land will best serve the community.

"The task force report unearthed every option we could think of for this site," Luedtke said. "We took two options to help develop a concept."

He presented, as an example, plans for senior housing and a community center. Luedtke said he would present as many options as the council and task force requested.

"This is a prime piece of real estate," he said. "I feel this area, with the surrounding communities of Detroit and Grosse Pointe Woods, is coming back. I think this will be the crowning jewel."

Luedtke and Associates Inc. has planned and design projects in St. Clair Shores, Royal Oak and many other communities in the metropolitan area.

He also prepared the Mack Avenue lights study between the Farms and Detroit and he prepared the initial redevelopment study of the Seven-Mack shopping area.

His services will cost $39,750 with the work commencing as soon as possible. The plans should be complete within six months.

Police have suspect in multi-city burglaries

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Police in the Park and the Farms believe they have found the person responsible for more than a dozen daytime break-ins across the Pointes dating back to early 1993.

Acting on a tip, police obtained a warrant on Nov. 1 and searched a home on Greensboro in Detroit.

The search uncovered hundreds of items that had been reported stolen, including jewelry, cameras, pen and pencil sets, portable stereos, knives, calculators, coins, watches and a mountain bike.

Police questioned the people in the house and arrested Craig Patrick McCart, 20, for breaking and entering.

McCart was arraigned in both Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe Farms municipal courts on Nov. 3. Automatic not-guilty pleas were entered on his behalf. He is being held in the Wayne County Jail on $100,000 bond.

He also is scheduled to be charged with breaking and entering in the City of Grosse Pointe and in Grosse Pointe Shores.

When police detectives questioned McCart, he allegedly admitted to the break-ins, giving specific addresses and details of each burglary. McCart said he rolled into the Pointes on in-line skates in the early afternoon and selected a house.

He said he would knock on the door or ring the doorbell to determine if anyone was home. Sometimes he said he found a back door unlocked and other times smashed a window to get inside. He said he was not interested in large appliances and focused his attention on jewelry and small items that would easily fit into a duffel bag.

Grosse Pointe Park detective

Lt. David Hiller said some of the jewelry was recovered from a Detroit pawn shop, but most of the expensive pieces were not found.

"Some of the pieces didn't have a high monetary value, but were priceless to the owners because of their sentimental value," he said.

After police sorted out the stolen property found at the Greensboro house, they displayed it on three banquet-sized tables so that the burglary victims could reclaim their possessions.

City Airport won't get new carrier, airline says

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

A press release issued by Detroit's department of public information declaring the Midway Connection would start flying out of Detroit City Airport was news to many — especially to officials at Midway Connection.

In the release dated Oct. 27, Detroit officials declared, "Once again, Detroit City Airport is slated to expand air passenger service Beginning Nov. 14, air carrier Midway Connection will add five cities to its lists of destinations."

When contacted by a Grosse Pointe News reporter about the announcement, Dennis Green, Midway Connection's director of marketing and sales, expressed surprise.

"We start service out of Detroit Metro Airport" on Nov. 14," said Green. "We aren't flying out of City Airport. Months ago, we were looking at City Airport, but another airline beat us to it, so we decided to go out of Metro. I don't know how Detroit officials could announce that we would begin service at City Airport."

Green said that his company had sent a press release to Detroit officials announcing that the company would add routes in Detroit, but the release clearly indicated that the company would be using Metro, not City airport.

Craig Bryson, who was listed as media contact in the Detroit press release, said that he did not know about the mistake until contacted by the Grosse Pointe News for a comment. Beyond that, Bryson had nothing else to add.

Attorney John L. King, who chairs the Detroit City Airport Study Committee, said that even if Midway Connection were using City Airport, it would not make much of a difference in promoting airport expansion.

"Midway Connection and U.S. Air Express, which currently uses City Airport, are commuter airlines," King said. "They fly prop planes, which don't need the big runways that jets do. So I don't see these airlines strengthening Detroit's argument that a runway expansion is needed."

The airport committee, which is funded by the five Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods, Warren and other eastside communities, recently issued a report stating that the jet traffic figures Detroit used to justify the expansion of City Airport were out of date since the airport had lost its main airline, Midwest, which used jets.

Great pretender

Tom Luke of Grosse Pointe displays the non-alcoholic drink that qualified him as one of five finalists in AAA Michigan's regional "Zero Proof Mix-Off" contest held recently at the Ritz Carlton Hotel in Dearborn.

Luke's recipe will be included in the "Great Pretenders Party Guide" to be distributed free at all AAA Michigan branch offices in late November. The contest and guide are part of AAA Michigan's alcohol-awareness campaign during the winter holidays.

Barrington burglary solved

Grosse Pointe Park police arrested a 22-year-old Detroit man for allegedly breaking into a home in the 400 block of Barrington on Oct. 28.

A neighbor on Barrington called police around 2 p.m. when he heard the sound of breaking glass and saw a strange man leaving the house. Responding police officers attempted to stop a man walking in the area of Ashland and Avondale who matched the witness' description. The man fled when he saw the police approaching him.

After a brief chase, officers found the man hiding under a porch and placed him under arrest.

James Dale Harris pleaded innocent at his Oct. 29 arraignment before Grosse Pointe Park Municipal Judge Kirsten Frank. He is being held in the Wayne County Jail in lieu of bond. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 9.

Police recovered several personal items belonging to the Barrington residents which were found in the man's coat pockets.

The case of the missing meters

Eight parking meters have been stolen in the past week behind businesses in the Village. City of Grosse Pointe police recovered the damaged-beyond-repair meters near where they were uprooted and on sides-treets. Police Lt. Jerry Mehl said the vandalism occurred between Oct. 31 and Nov. 5. Each meter costs about $280.

Whoever stole the meters collected between $5 and $10 from each machine, Mehl said. Police are investigating.

Woods arrests 2 under new teen drinking law

Two Grosse Pointe area teens were arrested by Grosse Pointe Woods police on Nov. 5 for drinking and driving.

Police acted under a law that went into effect on Nov. 1 prohibiting anyone under 21 from driving with a blood-alcohol content of .02 percent or higher.

The teens were questioned after Woods police received a call at 12:13 a.m. that a driver administered a preliminary breath test, which registered a blood alcohol content of .098 percent. In Michigan, .08 percent is considered impaired and .10 percent is considered legally drunk.

Meanwhile, another Woods police officer located the driver of the Talon in the area of An-harassing him since they had ita and Morningside and sus-pended at a restaurant on Har-per.

The teen said when he realized he was driving on a dead-end street, it was too late to brake and the car skidded into the barricade.

Both teens were turned over to their parents. The new law carries penalties of a 90-day license suspension, 90 days in jail and/or a maximum fine of $250.

800 numbers aren't always toll-free

Be careful calling 800 numbers. They're not always free.

Some adult-oriented services, as well as some psychic services, directory assistance services, sports lines, and others, are now charging customers for 800 number calls. Efforts are being made to stop this deceptive practice. Meanwhile, the following tips can help:

- Check your telephone bill carefully each month for charges to 800 or long distance numbers. If you don't think you're responsible for these types of calls, contact your phone company. The company may remove the charges from your bill. If the company refuses to remove the disputed charges, the Michigan Public Service Commission wants you to know that your basic local phone service cannot be disconnected for nonpayment of these charges.
- When placing a call to an 800 number, listen for an explanation of charges at the beginning of the call. If you hang up during that introduction, or immediately following the introduction, you should not be billed for the call.

- When placing a call to an 800 number, listen carefully at the beginning of the call for a request to "punch in" a personal identification number or additional numbers to select services. Some companies (information providers) that charge for 800 number calls, assign callers a personal identification number (PIN) at the beginning of a call.

Toll-free 800 numbers are known to be an efficient and cost-free means for consumers to learn information about a multitude of products and services. And, although some caution is now necessary, the vast majority of 800 numbers still remain free.

The Countach is one of the best known exotic sports cars in the world, having been in production since 1973 with only minor changes in styling. Its long, low, wicked look is one of the most widely recognized, because it has been such a popular poster image. Many who have never seen a Countach in metal would recognize it immediately.

And it is not just a pretty face. With its 400-hp V-12 engine, it is one of the fastest production cars in the world.

Fairbairn guessed that the car would bring $70,000 or $80,000, indicating that he rates the car as in No. 3 condition (very good). No. 1 or No. 2 would probably bring more than $100,000.

Most collectors use a six-level grading system to describe the condition of classic and special interest cars. The levels, according to Old Cars Weekly, are:

- No. 1 - Excellent: Perfect original with all components operating and appearing as new or restored to current maximum professional standards of quality in every area. Literally, No. 1 means showroom new condition.

- No. 2 - Fine: Well-restored or combination of superior restoration and excellent original with only minimal wear. Except on close inspection, a No. 2 vehicle looks like No. 1 showroom condition.

- No. 3 - Very good: Completely operational, a very good used car. This is a "20-footer"

- that is, from 20 feet away it may look perfect. If your used car is a No. 3, you will get top dollar in trade (wholesale, of course).

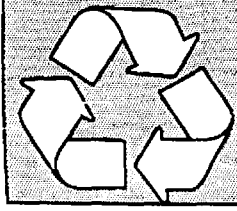

- No. 4 - Good: A driveable vehicle needing no work to be functional. Most of our personal, everyday drivers would probably fall in this category after a couple of years. It doesn't look bad, but even from 20 feet away, it looks like a used car.

- No. 5 - Restorable: This sounds bad, but in fact many of these are in everyday use or for sale on used-car lots. Needs complete restoration of body, chassis and interior to reach No. 1 or No. 2 show-car status. It may or may not be running, but it does not have extensive body and chassis rust.

- No. 6 - Parts car: This is junk, weathered, wrecked or stripped to the point of being useful only for its still usable parts. It is rusted and deteriorated, not worth restoring unless it is a rare model. A surprising number of these are still on the road in everyday use.

Nissan's Infinity J30 trades interior space for graceful lines

The adjectives dainty, demure and feminine may not be exactly what the Nissan design team had in mind when it planned the Infiniti J30. Those are even less likely to be the descriptive terms their marketing folks would choose.

But that's the way we responded to the elegant, almost diminutive Infiniti J30 sedan when we first were introduced. And after several turns at the wheel and as passengers, our impressions were pretty much unchanged.

The exaggerated styling of the rounded luxury sedan does distinguish it in a crowd. The J30 is not all alone in its curved, sloping rear end treatment, but it is more daring. Nissan's own Altima sedan shares those lines. So, to some degree, do the Mazda 626 and 929 and Pontiac's Bonneville. But it has gone a little further and, I'd say, has succeeded in creating an image of its own, albeit one that's reminiscent of earlier Jaguar sedans, both in the curves and the dainty sedan proportions.

There is some sacrifice of interior space to accommodate the nice exterior lines. Front-seat passengers may find the mating of the roof and steeply-raked windshield a bit close to their foreheads. A power moon-roof relieves the closed-in feeling, but that works only when it's open. The headliner doesn't slide separately so one can enjoy the light without actually opening up the roof.

Climbing over the shiny silver-colored Infiniti plate on the door sills, one is treated to soft, leather-trimmed seats front and back. Do whatever it takes to sit up front: there's not a lot of leg/knee room in back. Like many makers of finer automobiles, Infiniti has managed to design tall back seats with great vertical back support, but the horizontal plane is short, leaving lots of thigh exposed, so to speak. And if those thick front seats are powered fully back (you, of course, won't do this when you are up front), there's not much in the way of room for knees, lower legs and one of our favorite means of support, feet.

The J30 is equipped with three seatbelts in the back. Pray that you won't be the monkey in the middle, for you'll have to deal with zero hiproom and the high ridge from the axle in this rear-wheel-drive sedan.

But say you've managed to get up front, within easy reach of a good sound system that includes a CD player. Say you've even managed to land a spot behind the steering wheel. If the seat with its power adjustments isn't warm enough, push a button near the floor to your left and turn on the heating element.

Once driving, you may notice that you can hear the engine and feel the road. The Infiniti seems to have a modified-German approach to the design of its suspension. While it absorbs bumps and pits, you still have a sense of the road beneath you. The ride is neither American marshmallow soft nor is it Teutonic stiff. With 4-wheel independent suspension, the handling is quick and pleasant. There's not a lot of resistance in the electronically controlled, speed-sensitive power steering.

The J30 touring package on the J30t model is designed to add agility to the ride comfort, handling and control.

The standard 3.0-liter engine is a V-6 with 24 valves. It cranks out 210 hp, more than enough to push the sedan about town or across country. Vented disc brakes all around and an anti-lock braking system will bring you to a stop.

We had some difficulty getting the cabin temperature where we wanted it. The system is confusing. And whoever determined the location of the trunk and fuel door releases should be spanked. After a long search, they were discovered at the base of the grip on the driver's door — invisible without some neck-cranning. Good luck on a dark night.

There are two air bags up front. A keyless remote entry/anti-theft system is a plus. All three Infiniti nameplates — the flagship Q45 sedan, the smaller J30 and the F20 sport sedan — feature a four-year/60,000-mile basic limited warranty. The J30 starts at around $38,000.

RM Classic holds pre-holiday auction

In case you missed summer's multiple classic car auctions and you still have some residual car fever from those longer, warmer days, consider a trip to the Exposition Center in Novi this weekend (Nov. 11-13).

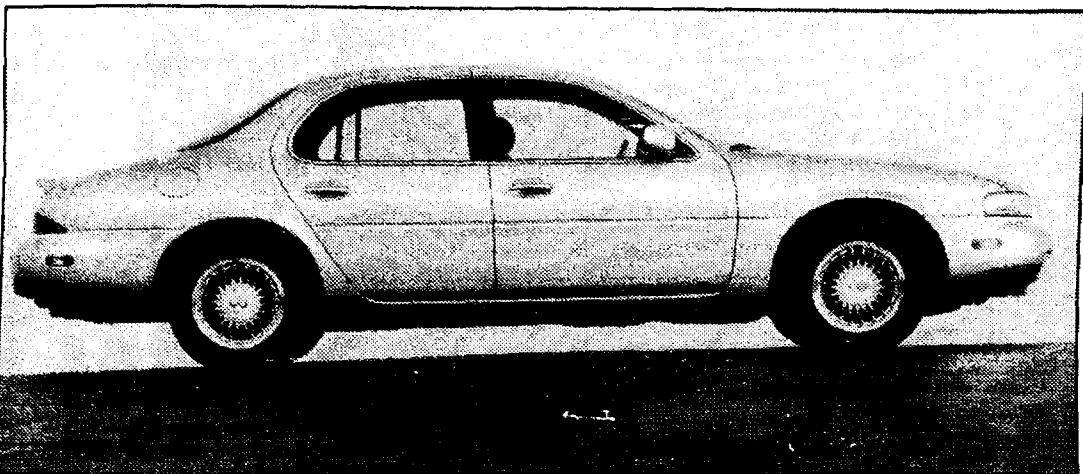

Some 400 collector cars and trucks will be presented for sale. Among them is a bright-red Lamborghini Countach, said Mike Fairbairn of RM Classic Car Productions, organizer of the event. Kruse International, of Auburn, Ind., will conduct the auction. The sale will run 4 to 11 p.m. Friday, 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. The event will be held indoors at the Exposition Center. Some 400 cars are slated to be auctioned.

The Lamborghini will be sold, "at no reserve," to the highest bidder, Fairbairn said. "No reserve" means the car will be sold to the highest bidder, no matter what that bid is. Most cars sold at auction have a reserve, a figure below which the owner will not sell the car. It is unusual to sell such a valuable car as a Lamborghini Countach with no reserve.

"Obviously, there's some risk involved," said Fairbairn. "But the owner feels that the extra attention the car will get by being sold at no reserve will ensure that the car will bring a fair price."

Infiniti's V-6 powered J30 luxury sedan has an elegant, feminine feel and look. It's a good contrast to its big brother, the Q45. Pictured is the J30t with special handling package.

Pointe police departments join forces with Macomb County tip line

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe's five police departments have joined a well-established crime solving network that features an anonymous tip line and cash rewards.

In late October, representatives of the Crime Stoppers program approached the Pointe police departments in an effort to expand the program, which originally served St. Clair Shores, Roseville and Eastpointe.

"Crime Stoppers wants to expand its program and include all of Macomb County and the Pointes and Harper Woods because many of our crimes cross over into their communities," said Park police detective Lt. David Hiller, who serves as the department's Crime Stoppers liaison.

"The main focus of the program is the anonymous tip line."

Crime Stoppers is an organization comprising business and community leaders who assist police departments by providing a reward fund which pays for information that leads to an arrest in an unsolved crime or ongoing criminal activity.

Crime Stoppers operates a 24-hour-a-day anonymous tip line. The caller is assigned a secret number and asked to call back in 48 hours. Additional information may be needed at that time or the detective investigating the case may have follow-up questions.

Crime Stoppers files are not public record.

Hiller said the anonymous tip line will ease the fear of those who may be reluctant to call a police department with information. Some people are afraid to reveal their identity or believe that the police "know" who is calling even if no name is given, he said.

The Crime Stoppers board of directors meets monthly and assigns dollar values to the tips that lead to arrests. Rewards range from $50 to $1,000.

"It's simple — money loosens tongues," said founder Fredrick Marengo, deputy police chief in St. Clair Shores. "Somebody always knows what's going on when there's a cash reward."

"We are excited about the program," said City of Grosse Pointe police chief Bruce Kennedy. "I think it will work toward the coordination of information between the participating communities. A lack of information is detrimental to solving any crime."

There is no cost to participating departments to join the program; however, community members and businesses are encouraged to purchase $25 annual memberships. Reward money is raised through memberships and fundraisers.

Each department must appoint a liaison, Hiller said. Communities with a population of less than 50,000 are requested to have one citizen on the board of directors.

"Thank heaven we haven't had a heinous crime here," Kennedy said. "But we certainly want to be in a position to do whatever we have in our power to solve a crime."

"I think people who may be reluctant will call this number," Hiller said.

The 24-hour anonymous tip line is 810-445-5227.

Comcast blames FCC for cable rate increase

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Despite what Grosse Pointe cable customers may have heard, the recent increase in cable rates is due to Federal Communications Commission regulations, not the sale of the system to Comcast.

"All rates are regulated by the FCC," said Comcast senior vice president Gary Mizga. "We have no control over rates and for people to infer that we do would be grossly inaccurate."

Mizga went on to say that since September 1993, the FCC has issued 1,200 pages of rate regulations. The FCC passes the cost of enforcing these regulations on to the cable companies. Cable companies are permitted under to law to, in turn, pass these costs on to the consumer.

Beginning in December, cable customers will pay a 3-cent fee to finance regulation costs. In March this will rise to 4 cents a month, said Mizga.

"This adds up to 37 cents a year," Mizga said. "It's not something cable companies want to do, but it's what happens when the government starts regulating private industry."

In addition to these FCC cost increases, Grosse Pointe Cable customers will also pay 8 cents a month more for basic cable service. This, said Mizga, is due to an increase in the cost of basic cable programming.

"The new FCC regulations do permit cable companies to pass on any increase in programming costs to customers," Mizga said. "People have asked if we have to do this, and the answer is no, but that's somewhat like asking McDonald's not to charge for their hamburgers."

The ESPN all-sport network accounts for 5 cents of the 8 cent basic cable increase, Mizga said. CNBC, a cable subsidiary of the NBC broadcasting network, accounts for the remaining 3 cents of the increase.

Mizga said that while Grosse

Pointers are facing small rate increases, they can look forward to increased service down the line.

"Our systems upgrade is going on as planned," Mizga said. "For the past several months, we've been planning the upgrade, which takes time. First you must plan the upgrade, design, map it out and finally lay the cable. We expect to lay the first fiber optic cable by the end of the month."

In the past, Grosse Pointe Cable representatives have said it should take about 18 months for the entire cable system to be rewired, once the first fiber optic cable is laid.

Engler will be influential in '96 GOP race

By Dave Conklin
Capital News Bureau

Lansing — Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, national GOP senatorial committee chairman, helped raise major campaign dollars for Republican U.S. Senate candidate Spence Abraham. Earlier this year, former education secretary Lamar Alexander campaigned for John Engler, and U.S. Sen. Bob Dole rallied Republicans at a "Get Out the Vote" demonstration late last week. All three of the candidates as well as others believe the endorsement of John Engler could help them launch their respective campaigns for president.

One candidate may have the inside track. Former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander's campaign effort will now be led by Engler campaign manager Dan Pero.

EPA outboard ruling will hurt boat industry

Lansing — Proposed Environmental Protection Agency rules would require marine-engine manufacturers to cut smog-producing hydrocarbon emissions by three quarters. The new engines would raise the cost of outboards and could discourage the purchase of pleasure boats. The new guidelines developed by EPA are scheduled to become law by the end of 1995.

Lame duck session update

Lansing — The length of the lame duck session of the state Legislature will depend on how much debate occurs on various issues, such as: extending the ban on assisted suicide, a new Tiger Stadium, and cleaning up school finance reform problems. State House taxation committee co-chair Willis Bullard, R-Milford, says one problem with the recently approved school finance reform plan is the definition of a property transfer as it relates to the cap on assessments.

Judge rules charter schools unconstitutional

Lansing — Ingham County Circuit Judge William Collette ruled recently that Michigan's new charter school law violates the Michigan Constitution by failing to adequately establish the charter schools under the "immediate, exclusive control of the state" as required by Michigan's stringent constitutional provisions.

The judge also ruled the charter school law unconstitutional permits charter schools to be supervised by groups other than the State Board of Education.

Michigan Education Association (MEA) president Julius Maddox called the ruling a victory, while charter school officials across the state are upset. Some blame the controversial Noah Webster Academy, a computer-based home school, as the reason the lawsuit was filed essentially against all charter schools.

Regarded as an innovative approach to educational change, Michigan's charter schools have garnered the interest of educators and parents nationwide. Expect state policy leaders to decide soon after the election whether the charter school law or the Michigan Constitution or both will need to be changed to resume this educational experiment.

Kelley sues milk suppliers

Lansing — Milk suppliers across the state were hit with a major lawsuit last week by state attorney general Frank Kelley on behalf of 242 school districts. The lawsuit is in response to recent convictions of milk suppliers in Michigan who were found guilty of fixing prices. The federal action seeks damages of up to three times what school districts lost.

Kelley says he hopes the lawsuit will restore competitive bidding to school milk contracts.

Raises all around?

Lansing — The public can let their voices be heard at a Lansing meeting of the state officers compensation commission on Wednesday, Nov. 30, starting at 10 a.m. The meeting will be held in the Capitol Commons Center, Rooms A-B. Call 517-373-8072 for more information.

Water diversion request surfaces

Lansing — Officials from the Michigan Office of the Great Lakes, Illinois attorney general and the U.S. Department of Justice met in Chicago last month to attempt to stop an effort by Illinois officials to increase water diversion from Lake Michigan.

Gov. Engler has also requested a meeting with Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar to discuss the matter. Edgar says his state will go to Congress and seek permission to increase diversion.

Metro Detroit Junior Group Goodwill Antiques Show is Nov. 18-20

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

A New England Colonial-style farmhouse and a many-gabled Victorian mini-mansion will be up for bids in the silent auction at the Goodwill Antiques Show.

The houses are doll-sized, to be sure, but they boast hand-rubbed wood floors, hand-crafted shingles and custom doors with glass panes. The Victorian house comes complete with hand-crafted turn-of-the-century furniture, Victorian-style wallpaper and window treatments, even tiny hand made needlepoint rugs.

The doll houses — spectacular as they are — aren't even the main attraction.

Antiques dealers — 50 of them — will offer their finest regular-sized furniture and collectibles at the annual fundraiser sponsored by the Junior Group of Goodwill Industries on Friday through Sunday, Nov. 18-20, in the Michigan Mart Building of the Michigan Exposition and Fairgrounds in Detroit.

Junior Group members promise opportunities to purchase antiques from A to Z — artworks, brass, candlesticks, Delftware, English furniture, fur coats, handcrafted Christmas decorations, inkwells, jewelry, and so on.

"The Goodwill Antiques Show is in its 47th year and is the longest consecutive running antiques show in the country," said Grosse Pointer Peg Noble, one of three co-chairmen for the 1994 show. "It's Michigan's oldest charitable antiques show."

Other co-chairs are Cathie Layman and Linda McCormick.

Proceeds from the antiques show are dedicated to Goodwill Industries' educational and vocational training programs for people with disabilities.

Over the last 10 years, the Junior Group has donated more than $2 million raised through this annual event to support various Goodwill programs.

Exhibitors come from the New England states, Pennsylvania and Minnesota as well as from nearby Ohio, Illinois and Michigan. Many have been attending the show for dozens of years.

In addition to the antiques for sale, Junior Group members have worked for a year to prepare items for the Goodwill booth, the pantry, bakery and boutique. They will offer refinished furniture, collectibles, home made baked goods and special hand-crafted Christmas decorations and boutique items.

New owners of the two doll houses, which were created by Hilton Hunter of Grosse Ile, will be decided by a silent auction. Ruth Johnson of Grosse Pointe Park made the needlepoint rugs for the houses. Furnishings for the Victorian house were created by Junior Group members Jean Clark of Bloomfield Hills and Delphine Andrews of Grosse Pointe Park.

Honorary committee members for the fundraiser are Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. DuMouchelle, Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Gaidica, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis J. Gormley, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hertel and Mr. and Mrs. G. Richard Wagoner.

Patron chairmen are Mrs. William E. Blevins, Mrs. Frederick G. Ruffner and Mrs. F. Robert Steiger. Show manager is Edwin T. Palko and show consultant is Russell Carrell.

A patron preview party will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 17, giving patrons and benefactors a running start shopping for antiques and hand-crafted specialty items as well as enjoying cocktails and gourmet hors d'oeuvres.

Tickets to the preview are $75 to $150. To order, call (810) 258-6637.

General admission tickets to the Antiques Show are $6 and may be purchased from Junior Group Goodwill members or at the door, which opens at 11 a.m.

Bouquets to those who sign up for mammograms

Being a woman places one at risk for getting breast cancer. One in nine women will develop the disease in their lifetime. Screening mammography is the only way to find breast cancer before it can be felt.

The American College of Radiology and the American Cancer Society suggest these guidelines for early detection:

- Beginning at age 40, have a doctor examine your breasts every year, and have a screening mammogram every one to two years.
- Practice monthly breast self-exams.
- From age 50 on, have a screening mammogram every year.

As encouragement to have a mammogram, any women getting the procedure at a St. John Health System Breast Center through Nov. 30 will receive a complimentary vase and "gift cheque" for free fresh-cut flowers at any FTD florist.

A doctor's prescription is required for the exam. Help will be offered to anyone needing to find a doctor who best meets her needs. To schedule an appointment for a mammogram, call 1-800-237-5646.

OSTEOPOROSIS STUDY: ARE YOU AT RISK?

Half of all women will develop one or more fractures of the spine by the age of 75 because of osteoporosis. Osteoporosis is called the silent epidemic because, until you suffer a fracture, osteoporosis causes no symptoms. The more we know about this painful disease, the better we'll be able to assist those who suffer from it. Women are needed to participate in a national study comparing an investigational drug and estrogen for osteoporosis prevention and treatment.

Call us if you are:

- Healthy and between 45-75 years of age
- Three years postmenopausal
- Undergone a hysterectomy at least three months prior to entry
- Not taking estrogen, progestin, anabolic steroids, or calcitonin

Each participant will receive a free screening bone density test. Those participants whose bone density is low, and if other requirements are met, will be asked to join the study. All study related treatment including complete physical exam, mammogram and laboratory testing will be provided free of charge. Parking is provided. Study conducted by the Bone and Mineral Division of Henry Ford Hospital and Medical Center at Lakeside and Cottage Hospital, Grosse Pointe Farms. For more information, please call Sandra Spiteri at (313) 876-7135.

The Pastor's Corner

Backward

By the Rev. William C. DeVries
First Christian Reformed Church

I learned much of what I needed to know before kindergarten.

Not everything. But a lot. Not because I am a quick learner, a fact that is blatantly evident to all the people at First Christian Reformed Church with whom I work.

No, I learned so much so early because my parents were good teachers.

One of the key lessons they tried to impress upon me is that parents do not exist to wait on their children. One phrase that I heard repeatedly was: "Do you think I am here to pick up after you?"

Try as I might, I simply could not find a way to answer that question with a "Yes."

It is not that my parents refused to pick up after me. They did, constantly and nearly endlessly. They fed me, clothed me, loved me.

It is not that they did not want to care for me. What they knew, and I needed to learn, was that if I began to see myself and my needs as the reason for their existence I would be in deep trouble. I would then have it backward. I would begin to shape my thinking and living as if I were the center of things and everybody else was there for my convenience.

It strikes me that many of us have it backwards in our religion. Somehow we have gotten the idea that God and religion are there to meet our needs and our desires, as if God's business is to pick up after us; as if faith and religion are primarily ways to give sanction to the things we want to do and have; as if church is a place for us to find exactly what we wanted.

God will care for people. But that is not God's main line of work. God is the perfect creator who is ruling the world in justice and mercy.

Religion (at least the historic Christian faith) may permit us many of our desires. But that is not its purpose. It is the means by which we find a great theme of God's purpose which redefines and gives value to a whole new life for us.

Church may give us what we want. (By the way, many church leaders seem to think churches ought to poll what people want and then give it.) But that is not its purpose. It is a gathering of people determined together to learn what God has done and is doing, and then to live God's life.

Throughout its history the church has fought to keep things frontward. And the struggle still goes on to resist the temptation to make God, faith and church nothing more than means to live the way we want. The voice of God is still trying to teach us, mold us, shape us.

Do you really think God exists to wait on us? Is God really in the business of endorsing our lifestyles and wants? Is God here to serve us? Or, have we got it backward?

Dina Soresi-Winter, right, stepped in at the last minute to play Mary Stuart in the world premiere of a 100-year-old opera. The part launched her career.

Music and spirituality meet in Pointe singer

By Ronald J. Bernas
Assistant Editor

Dina Soresi-Winter believes she has lived a charmed life.

Whenever she was at a crossroads, something definite happened to lead her onto the right path and to happiness.

The path has led from New York to Italy and Germany to Grosse Pointe Farms where she now lives.

And it has led her to the Fisher Theatre stage where, for the next two weekends, she will appear as the Duchess of Karakenthorpe in Gaetano Donizetti's comic "The Daughter of the Regiment."

Although her role is a non-singing one, Winter has devoted her life to vocal music and its place in the world.

"If more people would sing," she says, "the world would be a much better place."

Raised in the area of the Bronx known as Little Italy, Winter grew up studying to be an opera singer, but with so many others with the same aspirations, the odds were against her.

"It was a tough world then," she said. "But it's always been tough. In fact, I almost gave up singing early on."

Winter, looking at the competition for singing jobs, made up her mind to end her pursuit of a musical career. She decided her last foray would be her participation in the prestigious Blanche Thebom National Scholarship Award.

"I went in knowing that this was my farewell to opera," she said. "And I would suggest that to anyone who enters competitions like this. Go in not expecting to win, then you're not so nervous. That's why I won."

The prize was $1,000 which, in 1957, went far enough for Winter to take Thebom's advice and go to Italy to study performing opera.

"I went for one year, but stayed for 10," she said.

She played many of the great roles with Opera Italiana, which toured throughout Holland. She played the title role in another Donizetti opera, "Maria Stuarda," which was the first time the opera had been performed in more than 100 years. What makes the "Maria Stuarda" story so interesting is that until dress rehearsal, Winter was the understudy. She was asked to take the role when the directors thought Winter was better than the person who was cast originally.

The role made her an instant star and she received excellent reviews for such a young artist. But she couldn't capitalize on her fortune, for shortly after her success the Italian government underwent a change and ended all subsidies for the arts. Theaters closed and went bankrupt, causing many observers to call opera a dead art.

She took the advice of a friend and moved to Germany where she again had a successful career, adding more top roles to her resume.

"But something was really bothering me," she said. "It was uncomfortable to sing those beautiful Italian operas in German. Italian was the first language I ever heard, I'm sure, and it didn't seem right. My joy in singing was gone."

So she took a year off to study in England, where she was able to look harder at the concept of Waldorf education that she had discovered at work in Germany.

"It's such a wonderful philosophy of education," she said.

She returned to Germany and concertized to great reviews, but still, something didn't seem right. That's when she got a cable from a friend asking her to come help set up a Waldorf school in Detroit. She was allowed 24 hours to make up her mind.

"I asked them, 'What do I know about education? I'm an opera singer,'" she said. "But they said I could do anything the teachers wouldn't have time to do — public relations, raise money, anything. I went and I've never regretted it."

She did miss singing, though, and a friend introduced her to an organist named Eric Winter, and the two performed concerts throughout the area.

"After I got to know him, I thought, 'Waldorf School needs a treasurer and this man can count.' And at the end of a year, the board had a treasurer and I had a husband," she said.

She has since left the school, but keeps active by serving on

'Frankenstein'

Kenneth Brannagh stars in and directs "Mary Shelley's Frankenstein."

Monstrously good, but not enough horror

By Ronald J. Bernas
Assistant Editor

If "Mary Shelley's Frankenstein" were a little less plodding than its title, it could have been a great film.

Instead, Kenneth Brannagh, the most acclaimed director to come out of England since Alfred Hitchcock, has come up with a monster all his own. And like the monster created by the mad doctor he plays, the whole of his creation is less than the sum of its parts.

"Frankenstein" may be the most often retold tale in cinematic history, but other versions have portrayed the monster as a growling, if misunderstood, fiend. Brannagh sticks fairly close to Shelley's original 1818 novel, allowing the monster, as Shelley did, a chance to learn to speak and read and write, creating a more complete, if still fiendish, character. By doing that, it allows the monster a chance to come about his anger and thirst for revenge in a rational way.

But the film is not just a spooky tale. It is also an epic love story between the mad doctor Victor Frankenstein (Brannagh) and his adopted sister Elizabeth (Helena Bonham Carter). But while it's easy to see why Victor loves Elizabeth, it's almost unbelievable that she would love an obsessive, temperamental, secretive man like him.

The script, by Steph Lady and Frank Darabont, seems to be a direct reaction to other versions of "Frankenstein" which focus on the horror of the story. But it goes too far, almost becoming a character study. The scary moments of nail-biting suspense come few and far between and there are almost no jump-from-your-seat surprises. But Brannagh manages to manipulate the audience into feeling fascinated and repulsed at the same time.

The story is familiar. Victor Frankenstein, a scientific whiz kid, becomes obsessed with death after his beloved mother succumbs while giving birth. He dedicates himself to stopping the pain caused by death and toward that end he goes to the university to become a doctor. He falls in with a mad scientist (played by an almost unrecognizable John Cleese) who has been working on his own death-delaying experiments.

Frankenstein raises the work to a higher level and actually brings a human being back to life. The problem, and it's the same in the book, is that the actual reanimation is anti-climactic.

The monster escapes and Frankenstein, believing he's dead, goes about his own life, abandoning his work.

But the monster has taken up residence in a barn and spends his days learning to read and helping a poverty-stricken family through a hard winter. When the family rejects him because of his ugliness, he seeks revenge on his creator.

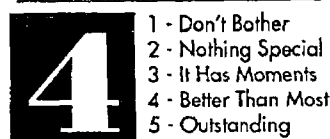

The script stays close to the book, with minor changes to make the story more linear. But there is a ridiculous twist at the end that goes nowhere and makes very little sense.

But even when the film is less than engrossing, there is more than enough to hold one's interest. The sets — especially the Frankenstein mansion — are magnificent. The costumes are beautiful. Even Bonham Carter seems attractive.

The aspect of this production that created the most anticipation was the selection of Robert De Niro to play the monster. Although he brings more to the role than anyone else has done, one still expects more.

And that's the problem with the whole film. You get more for your money than any other film on the same subject. But with the players involved, you expect more.

Pointe Players present comedy 'I Hate Hamlet'

The Pointe Players of Grosse Pointe South High School will present "I Hate Hamlet" Nov. 16-19 in the high school's auditorium.

The play, by Paul Rudnick, is the story of a young television star who is trying to prove himself as an actor by playing Hamlet in a Shakespeare in the Park production. He moves into the former New York apartment of John Barrymore, one of the greatest Hamlets ever, and with the help of Barrymore's ghost, he attempts to master the role.

The cast stars Kevin Young and Bill Drummy, with Katie Kingsley, Lara Sfire, Neely O'Brien and John Riley.

The production is directed by Pointe Players' adviser Meaghan Dunham, with assistance from student director Joe Calarco. Set design and technical direction are headed by Dan Vicary. The student production team is led by stage manager Tim Reynolds. Student designers include Bridget Kaiser, Sfire, John Harrison, Katie Sperti, Katie Connor and Allison Getz.

Performance times are 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 16, and Thursday, Nov. 17; 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, and at 2 and 9 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 19.

Tickets are $6 for adults; $5 for students and seniors and may be purchased at Third Coast Booksellers, 15129 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Park or at the school. To request tickets by mail, send a check made out to Grosse Pointe South to 11 Grosse Pointe Boulevard, c/o Pointe Players, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236 and tickets will be held at the door.

Clarity prevails with Janowski

Accuracy and faithfulness to the score are particular and admirable hallmarks of German conductors.

Both reward the listener with clear insights into the composer's inventiveness and skill in orchestration.

These rewards were liberally available at last weekend's concerts, guest-conducted by Marek Janowski who studied in Germany and Italy, holds important posts with German orchestras, and has obviously made the most of his training and experience.

The effect in his leader-enhanced the varying moods of ennu, mystery and awakening excitement latent in the score. Moreover, the effects were highlighted with enchanting solos by concertmistress Emmanuelle Boisivert, flutist Ervin Monroe and oboist Donald Baker. Moreover, the genius of Debussy's craftsmanship was always apparent.

In Haydn's Military Symphony (No. 100) the character of the music is a total contrast, but the approach was the same. The mannered elegance of a century earlier than Debussy's time, perfectly captured in Haydn's score, came through vividly.

Supporting cast carries South to MAC title

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

A strong supporting cast is always necessary for a good theatrical performance.

It's also a key ingredient to a team's success at the Macomb Area Conference Red Division swimming championships.

Grosse Pointe South had that strong supporting cast last weekend as it beat dual-meet champion Grosse Pointe North 366-345 in a meet dominated by the two Grosse Pointe schools.

Eisenhower, which hosted the meet, was third with 180 points, followed by Fraser 149 and Ford II 123.

"Our depth paid off," said Lady Devils coach Fred Michalik. "Several of our ninth and 10th graders have been showing a lot of improvement during the last few weeks and they did a good job in this meet.

"In a dual meet you only swim three people in an event, but in this meet you go deeper and our fourth people are pretty good."

North coach Mike O'Connor

wasn't unhappy with his team's showing.

"We tried, but just came up short," he said. "I was pleased with the way my kids came back (in the finals) after being down by 40 points (after the preliminaries). I could see us losing by 60 points after the first day, but we cut it to 21."

North and South swimmers won every event except the diving, where Eisenhower's Tami Fowler set a meet record with a score of 415.90 points.

The Lady Devils won four events, with Stephanie LaFond taking the 100-yard butterfly (1:00.68) and the 50 freestyle (25.35). Each of LaFond's winning times made state meet qualifying standards.

"She had some super swims," Michalik said. "Both of her times were better than she swam at the MISCA (Michigan Inter-Scholastic Coaches Association) meet."

South also won the two freestyle relays in meet-record time. The team of Erin O'Loughlin, Lauren Rashid, Meghan O'Loughlin and LaFond won the 200 in 1:43.29, breaking the old mark of 1:43.85 set by North in 1990.

South's 400 freestyle relay team of the O'Loughlin sisters, Elizabeth Bourke and LaFond had a record time of 3:45.52. North's team of Courtney Piper, Jaime Taylor, Rachelle Atrasz and Michelle Vasapolli was second in 3:46.3 and also bettered the old meet record of 3:46.77 set by North last season when the Lady Norsemen tied South in the final event of the meet.

North's Christine Jamerino and Piper each won two individual events, while Atrasz took the 200 individual medley in a state-cut time of 2:18.55 and Vasapolli won the closest race of the day, edging Ford's Monica Beaudoin and South's Lindsay Adams in the 100 backstroke. Vasapolli's winning time was 1:03.4, also a state cut time.

Jamerino, who was the swimmer of the meet in a vote of division coaches, posted a state cut in winning the 100 breaststroke in 1:09.79. She beat runner-up Deanne McCarroll of Eisenhower by more than four seconds. The North senior's preliminary time of 1:08.24 broke the meet record of 1:09.79 set by ex-teammate Suzette Atrasz in last year's meet.

Jamerino also won the 100 freestyle in 55.75, posting a state qualifying time. Her time of 54.96 in the preliminaries was a meet record, breaking the mark of 55.32, set by North's Karen Dundon in 1988.

Piper, a freshman, led an impressive field in winning the 500 freestyle in 5:11.26. The second and third place finishers, Meghan O'Loughlin and Bourke of South, also had state-cut times of 5:22.84 and 5:24.01, respectively. Piper's preliminary time of 5:06.51 was a meet record, erasing the previous mark of 5:09.2, set by South's Kim Higel in 1991.

Piper's other win was in the 200 freestyle. Her time was 1:59.04, beating Meghan O'Loughlin, who was clocked in 2:00.24. Both had state qualifying times.

South made its best showing in the backstroke, where Adams, Lauren Beckenhauer and Storen finished 3:45 and Tatyana Matish helped out with a seventh place.

The Lady Devils also took four places in the breaststroke with Kristen Apple, Rebecca Walter, Jenny Rolka and Melissa Mabley.

Michalik said he never felt like he was home free, despite a comfortable lead heading into the finals.

"You never know for sure how they're going to swim, but we have some kids with a good background in swimming who are able to come back and

Pumpkins are wonderful transitions between Halloween and Thanksgiving

Traveling around the Grosse Pointe area calls to our attention the fact that Halloween is a time to bring out the best of our creative talents in decorating our houses and lawns. It would seem, too, that pumpkins form the focal point of most of the wonderful displays. There are so many of them, in so many sizes, that it is easy to believe the interesting statistic that 90 percent of all pumpkin sales in the United States occur during October, especially in the last two weeks, and then sales drop off abruptly after Nov. 1.

Pumpkins, or pompions, as the earliest settlers here called them, were a staple food of the Indians, second only to corn, and with other squashes, were quickly adopted by the colonists. In Roger Williams' book, "The Key to the Language of the Indians in New England," he refers to "Isquontersquashes" (lovely word) as the Native American name for the English "pompion." Well, a pumpkin by any other name makes just as good a jack-o'-lantern or pie.

Garden Shed

By Ellen Probert

The use of pumpkins as jack-o'-lanterns is an American idea, adapted from the lanterns that had been made of hollowed out turnips in England (the big yellow ones we call rutabagas) since medieval times. They were made even earlier in Scotland and Ireland.

An astonishing fact is that pumpkins are actually berries. When we think of berries we tend to think small — cranberries, blueberries, raspberries, — but pumpkins can be enormous and weigh 100 pounds or more. Imagine a 100-pound strawberry.

Pumpkins come in all sizes from the newly developed miniatures which are so popular for holiday decorations and centerpieces, to the country fair-winning giants, which sometimes grow to unbelievable sizes.

Every year the World Pumpkin Confederation sponsors awards for the world's heaviest pumpkin. The main weighing ceremony is held in Collins, N.Y., with contestants coming from all over the globe. It takes place in the fall but another session is held in the spring in the Southern Hemisphere weighing since the seasons are reversed below the equator. Pumpkins are harvested in April there.

The confederation publishes a newsletter and has more than 1,000 members in 15 countries. The largest pumpkin on record so far weighed 671 pounds and was 12 feet in circumference. (How about a raspberry that size?)

In an Italian book published in an English translation a few years ago called "The Complete Book of Fruits and Vegetables" there is a section devoted to pumpkins in which various varieties of squashes are also listed as pumpkins. As a species they are described as being much in demand for "making the famous American pumpkin pie" and are also used at Halloween for carving into jack-o'-lanterns."

In Europe and England the turnip variety of jack-o'-lanterns is carried on the end of a pole by trick-or-treaters. These turnips are called, variously, depending on what country you are from, swede, rutabaga, or Russian turnip. They are one of the oldest foods and originated in Europe, where they have been known and eaten since pre-historic times. They have been used as jack-o'-lanterns for a very long time.

In medieval Britain, elves, fairies and ghosts were believed to haunt the earth at this season of the year and it was customary to build huge bonfires to ward them off. Jack-o'-lanterns are small individual bonfires.

Halloween evolved from a Scotch-Irish festival which dates to pre-Christian times. The festival of Samhain, the god of the dead, was held on Nov. 1, the first day of the Celtic year. It was later combined with the Christian feasts of All Saints Day on Nov. 1 and All Souls' Day on Nov. 2.

Pumpkins are a wonderful transition from Halloween to Thanksgiving which looms now on our horizons as November arrives. The holiday season has been well launched.

Home Tips

DECORATIVE BASKETS — My favorite tip is to have two small decorative baskets, dishes or whatever on top of the refrigerator. In one I keep elastics; in the other, old twist-ties.

When I am through using a tie or an elastic, I have a quick, out-of-the-way place to put them, and I know where I can easily grab either one whenever I need them. Betty C., San Felipe, Texas

Feed a bird, beautify a yard

From the simplest back yards to the most complete of gardens, any landscape can be made far more beautiful by the presence of singing birds. Attracting an assortment of colorful birds to your lawn is an effortless project that the entire family can enjoy. All it involves is the hanging of a prefilled plastic bird feeder.

Prefilled feeders such as the Easy Feeder from Easy Gardener, invite a wide variety of colorful birds to visit your yard year-round. Feeders like the Easy Feeder come stocked with the appropriate mixture of seeds and grains. They are refillable and recyclable and can be found in any garden center or hardware store.

Such prefilled feeders are a realistic alternative to decorative, large, and often very expensive bird feeders that often adorn avid bird watchers' properties. The Easy Feeder not only brightens your landscape, it also provides a healthy source of food, which is often much needed by birds, especially during winter. Simply hang it in a place convenient for observation, out of the reach of the neighborhood cat.

The Easy Feeder is also perfect for homeowners who want to enjoy the benefits of having birds around without having to work too hard. It comes ready-to-use, is durable and is light enough for children to hang. Such feeders are also a logical choice because they dispense seed mix only when needed, and the plastic shell easily protects the food from rain, wind, snow and contamination by bird waste.

Bird feeders provide great educational projects for children. A child who is given the responsibility of choosing the location of the bird feeder, as well as hanging it, is likely to take a real interest in the different species of birds that frequent the feeding spot. Armed with a bird guide or encyclopedia, your child will be identifying the feasting birds in your yard in no time. Your child can subsequently take credit for, as well as explain, the new bird retreat located on your property to family and friends.

Being able to identify the bird at your feeder can serve as a source of pride for people of all ages and interests, not just for children. The most commonly sighted bird at a typical feeder is a robin. They are easily identified by their deep colored red breast. Not as widely known is that they can nest in any of the various terrains. From the ocean coasts to the peaks of mountains, robins are at home.

Blue jays also seem to flock to bird feeders in great numbers. They crave the sunflower seeds found in the Easy Feeder. Their vibrant colors and distinctive markings make them easy to spot. It is, in fact, more difficult to take your eyes off a blue jay than it is to find one. Doves, cardinals, goldfinches and brown-headed cowbirds are other types of birds that will become common sights to the owner of a simple bird feeder.

Birds are unquestionably beautiful creatures. They also warble a variety of interesting and often soothing songs. The different pitches and tones are often enjoyed by homeowners as background noise. But, they can also be understood for what they truly are: forms of communication. For example, short fierce bursts serve to signal other birds of impending danger, whereas a strong piercing cry serves to ward off other birds and establish territory. A male bird might attempt to attract a potential mate by singing a rich, sweet song. All of these different calls are pleasant sounding, and, at the same time, they can also be a fascinating reference to the trained ear.
