Schools' 'report card' boasts A's and B's in public opinion poll

By Shirley A. McShane Staff Writer

A majority of registered Pointe voters recently surveyed give the Grosse Pointe school district A's and B's for the overall job it does educating students and communicating with the public.

The survey was conducted between Oct. 5 and 19 among a random sampling of the school district's 38,527 registered voters. The 380 voters who responded to the telephone survey reflect with 95 percent accuracy the opinions and attitudes of the community.

"We can now say, with plus or minus 5 percent, we have a representative view of 38,000 people - not the view of a tennis group or a church group. This represents a research base and an opportunity to look at areas for improvement," said superintendent Ed Shine, following a special presentation to the school board on Nov. 21.

The scientific poll was conducted by School Public Relations Consultant Services of Menominee and Williamston at a cost of $8,000 to the district. The survey has a margin for error of plus or minus 5 per-

Results were interpreted by Kathy Feaster, a principal at School Public Relations Consultant Services. She presented her findings to the school board on Nov. 21.

Results were based on a 47question survey asking respondents such questions as:

• Do the Grosse Pointe schools do an excellent, good, fair or poor job of keeping people informed about what happens in the school district?

• How would you grade the school system as a whole? The teachers? The building principals and administrators? The superintendent? The school board?

• How well does the school district manage its money?

 How much did the reputation of the school influence your decision to move here or to remain in Grosse Pointe?

"This is a very good report," Feaster told the board. "But I would like to caution that what we do here is measure attitudes and opinions; they are not

Voters in the district were asked to rate the schools' information delivery system.

Results show three out of four voters believe the schools do a good to excellent job of disseminating school information to the public. Sixteen percent thought the schools did a fair job and 3 percent said they did a poor job.

All respondents were asked how they thought the schools could do a better job. A majority suggested the schools include more information in the newspaper and mail more fliers and bulletins to households.

State trend paper identifies key land-use issues

A working paper identifying key land-use issues in Michigan cites short-term planning and the lack of coordinated local, regional, and statewide planning as among most pressing concerns facing Michigan communities today.

"Land Use Issues Identification" is the first in a series of working papers for Michigan's Trend Future Project, a 15month, $470,000 research project on land-use and environmental planning in Michigan.

The project is sponsored by the Michigan Society of Planning Officials (MSPO) and funded by grants from the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation of Flint and the Frey Foundation of Grand Rapids.

Six o'clock in the morning at Lake Herbert in Banff National Park gave Monte Nagler the perfect opportunity to get this dramatic reflection. No other time of day would do.

Early to rise gets the prize

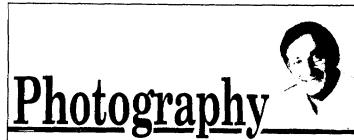

Ever wonder when is the best time of day to photograph? It's the early morning - without doubt!

Early morning has always been my favorite time of day to get the best shots. There's a stillness in the air, a calmness in the lighting and a mood in the sky that is offerred by no other time of the day.

Here are some reasons why I recommend photographing early in the morning.

To begin with, there's usually an absence of wind and breeze, meaning that tall grasses and tree branches will hold still for your camera. This will enable you to take full advantage of depth-of-field by placing foliage in the foreground of your composition and know that everything will come out sharp and in focus.

The stillness of water in the early morning will produce endless, opportunities for reflection or paconitett shot recen pictures. The photograph shown here is amalmost perfect reflection of trees and sky at Lake Herbert in Banff National

Flowers, often covered with dew, are also very still in the morning and, if you're lucky, you'll find one with a butterfly. Because a butterfly's wings are weighted down with moisture in the early morning making it difficult for it to fly away, you should be able to move in close with your camera for an im-

In October, Tony Raynell Hampton, 30, also of Detroit, appeared in Park municipal court on identical charges and was bound over for trial by Judge Kirsten Frank.

Both Hampton and Mc-Cullough were arrested and charged based on indictments delivered by a special one-man grand jury empowered last summer by the Wayne County prosecutor.

Both face trial in Detroit Recorder's Court.

In an agreement reached last week before she was scheduled to appear for a preliminary hearing, McCullough agreed to testify for the prosecution

When it comes time to file Here's what you should keep in

If you are married, you and your spouse may file either a joint return or each spouse may file separately. When you file jointly, all income, exemptions, deductions and credits for both you and your spouse are combined on the joint return.

Filing jointly generally produces a lower tax liability than if you file separately because tax rates for joint returns are lower and more credits and deductions are available. But there are cases where married make a significant difference in individuals may find that filing MACPA recommends that a married couple compute their tax liability both ways to determine which option results in lower taxes.

Filing separate returns may allow some married individuals to claim more deductions than they would be able to claim if they filed jointly. For example, only those medical expenses that exceed 7.5 percent of AGI are deductible.

You fall into the category of single filer if you are unmarried or separated from your spouse either by divorce or a separate maintenance decree, and you do not qualify as head of household or surviving spouse. Tonnancour (250pp.1$40) is a lavishly illustrated volume that lets readers experience the fascinating history, lore, and legends of Grosse Pointe. This unique collection of first-hand accounts, previously published and unpublished material, and original essays and articles has been collected and edited by Arthur M. Woodford, director of the St. Clair Shores Public Library and author of several books on the history of Michigan and Detroit.

The title of the work refers to the Grosse Pointe summer estate of Theodore Parsons Hall. Hall and fellow Detroiters like Caroline Hamlin and Silas Farmer made the residence a local cultural center. Built in 1880, Tonnancour is no longer standing.

Tonnancour starts with the very first written record of the Grosse Pointe region, an account by Father Louis Hennepin, who sailed across Lake St. Clair with the French explorer LaSalle in 1679. Other early narratives are followed by a wealth of nineteenth- and early twentieth-century material detailing the history of Grosse Pointe. Since Grosse Pointe is situated on the shores of Lake St. Clair, several articles are devoted to the lore and legends of the lake. Throughout Tonnancour more than 200 illustrations help bring the story of Grosse Pointe to life. These include pen and ink sketches, woodcuts, photographs, and maps. Early postcards from the turn of the century have also been reproduced.

Containing a combination of historical and newer material, Tonnancour appeals to a wide range of readers. Volume One of a series, Tonnancour is the first of several volumes that Omnigraphics will publish on subjects of local and historical interest.

Temporary lights on athletic field are legal, says Woods city attorney

Staff Writer

Opponents of lights at North High School received some bad council meeting. The city attorney, George Catlin, issued an opinion that the use of portable lights powered by diesel generators is legal.

Earlier this year the Grosse Pointe North Boosters Club petitioned the city council to permit the installation of lights around the school's football field for the purpose of night football.

The request was controversial and aroused much opposition from residents who live by the school and the field. At several public hearings, these residents said that they were afraid of the noise, light pollution and rowdy students who might misbehave under the cover of darkness.

In order to build the light towers, the school needed $\bar{t}he$ council to grant several vari-

Albanian immigrant fits right in

By John Minnis Editor

Louis R. Dimitry found a perfect fit in America after leaving his native Albania in 1922 at the age of 16.

"My parents didn't want me to come to America," he said. "I told my father I wanted to avoid the military draft. I never saw them again.'

He moved in with an uncle in Jamestown, N.Y., and was assimilated into the Albanian-American community.

"I could speak three languages," he recalled, "but I couldn't speak one word of English. I went for seven to eight years to school to learn English and (after moving to Detroit) apprenticed for my brother. My brother was a master tailor."

Half of the American School students are Brazilian and a third are American children whose parents work in Brazil. The students will perform, "Christmas Song," "Going to Kerby School," "Christmas Time" and "Think Happy Thoughts." Melodies were orchestrated on Orff instruments xylophones, metallophones, glockenspiels, bells and finger cymbals.

Will GATT's victory end the gridlock?

Till last week's big victory for the world trade treaty herald a new spirit of cooperation among the Republicans and Democrats in the new session of Congress in January?

It could, of course, lead to action on several other issues on which the new GOP Congress and the Clinton administration see eye to eye, but there aren't too many issues subject to that proviso.

Yet Speaker Newt Gingrich was so successful in persuading his House GOP colleagues to support the extension of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade that the proportion of Republicans backing it was greater than the Democratic proportion of support.

In the Senate, almost as many Republicans as Democrats supported the treaty after Sen. Robert Dole, the incoming majority leader, satisfied his doubts and announced he would vote for it.

However, many Americans still harbor doubts about the effect of the trade act on U.S. production and U.S. labor. Those doubts accounted for the opposition of seven Michigan Democratic congressmen who voted against it, although the six GOP congressmen, three Democratic congressman and the two Democratic senators did support it.

It also was encouraging when, as the Wall Street Journal reported, Democratic Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia and GOP Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana agreed to seek a bipartisan middle ground on many foreign policy issues just as they had done when Nunn headed the committee.

That report was especially welcome after the incoming chairman of that committee, Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, had insulted the men in military service, the president and many other American citizens by questioning Clinton's competence as commander in chief and even suggesting it might not be safe for him to visit U.S. military posts in Helms' state.

However, as Congress wound up its last 1994 session last week, it appeared that the ground was being prepared for many congressional and legal changes in January when the GOP, led by Gingrich and Dole, will take over.

But some new GOP leaders have been having some of the same troubles that plagued President Clinton early in his reign and, in fact, often slowed down the progress of his agenda.

Since the election, Gingrich has been backing and filling, changing his political posture on issues and even apologizing for some of his earlier personal criticisms of the Democrats and the Clintons.

Even Dole, regarded as a more responsible legislator, appeared to be playing presidential politics by visiting NATO headquarters in Europoe, criticizing the president and offering his own Bosnian

Yet the approval of GATT by substantial margins in both houses could presage the possibility of more compromise agreements between the GOP and the Democratic administration in the future.

By the time they take over next month, Dole, Gingrich, Helms and other Republicans should have wound up their celebrations and quieted down after the election of the first GOP Congress in 40 years.

Furthermore, when Gingrich, Dole and other GOP leaders began talking about what they were planning to do, they suddenly discovered that there were some differences among Republicans, just as there have been among Democrats.

In fact, the GOP leaders still might need Democratic help to pass some of their own agenda, in view of the differences among Republicans. And they also might have to seek compromises on some issues to avoid presidential vetoes that Clinton has warned he will impose on oc-

Yet after years in the minority, perhaps Gingrich and Dole and other GOP veterans can be forgiven for indulging in a zeal for change that may not be universally acceptible, even to Republicans.

No millage hike in school vote s Grosse Pointe school district backers seek renewal of the current millages in the Feb. 7 school election, their spirits are buoyed by three important facts.

One is that the proposed 8.5-mill extension of the homestead levy and the proposed 18-mill levy on non-homestead property merely maintain the tax rates now in effect for both kinds of property. Confusion arises because the ballot questions say the two levies shall be "increased," but that word is used because the expiration of the previous levy meant that the district starts the year without a local levy until these are approved.

The second important fact is that in both cases the new rates and the lower taxes authorized by 1994 legislative actions are listed in the individual property tax statements just being circulated by the district's municipalities.

That means residents already know that for homestead taxpayers, the 1994 rate of 8.5 mills, which will be continued for five years if approved on Feb. 7, represents a 50 percent cut from 1993 in the average tax payment in the Pointes.

And for the non-homestead property, which includes commercial real estate and second homes, the 18-mill levy reflects a 20 percent cut from 1993 and will also be continued for five years.

The Grosse Pointe school tax rate in 1993 was 29.49 mills on all property.

In contrast, the tax rates for homestead property in 1994 amounted to 14.60 mills. including both the state levy of 6 mills and the .20 of one-mill debt levy.

The 1994 rates on non-homestead property totaled 24.20 mills, including the same debt and state levies.

A third fact that buoys backers of the proposed tax extensions is that approval of the two ballot proposals will fill the "gap" that will enable the school district to maintain its spending and its services at the current level.

However, the amount of future state funding is up in the air because local districts have no guarantee that the state funding will even match the annual increase in the cost of living.

If the district assumes that state funding will rise at only the 1.8 percent it did in 1994, and the cost of living continues to go up at least 3 percent a year, the district's revenue will start to fall behind.

Another problem for school supporters is criticism that the school system is collecting $2.4 million in state support that replaces $2.4 million in local taxes that supported the library when it was under school board control.

The simple explanation is that the state continues the amount raised by the local levy which covered the library under the expiring levies, and will continue to do so because the state counted the funds as part of the local schools' needs.

Assuming approval on Feb. 7, the school board already has earmarked that fund to finance long-range improvements that include investments in technology and building improvements.

In backing that set-aside, school millage backers point out that both of those proposed usages were approved by majorities of respondents in the recent community survey of registered voters.

In our view, such facts are sufficient to justify approval of the extension of the 1994 levies for five more years.

MEA, no doubt To the Editor:

Your recent front page article comparing librarian salaries in our area was most illuminating.

The figures for Grosse Pointe are most certainly a tribute to the MEA's negotiating skills and, at almost twice the level of surrounding communities, are probably an indication of the MEA's prior ability to close down the school system. Looking at the Grosse Pointe head librarian's salary, one might note that his take is in the same range as what Gov. Engler gets for heading up the entire state. (And just what does the head librarian do?)

Comparing Grosse Pointe librarians' salaries must, in fact, make one wonder what unique qualifications, other than voting for the MEA, entitle them to wages far in excess of those paid, for example, to a nurse with a BSN degree handling critical responsibilities for patients in a hospital's intensive care unit.

As a taxpayer, I dread the day when our city manager, the head of our public safety department, et al., might have the MEA negotiating for them. I would wager that most of them now earn considerably less than our head librarian even though their services to the community might be somewhat more vital.

Gov. Engler, supported by many voters in this community, substantially whomped Mr Wolpe, the candidate supported by wads of MEA money. Perhaps the governor's stand against the MEA and their threats of illegal strikes contributed a little bit to his winning margin. Perhaps, inspired by the governor the library board might now negotiate salaries more in line with those paid in other communities.

Good news; bad news

To the Editor:

The yellow "good news" postcard from Grosse Pointe's superintendent of schools received recently by most local taxpayers is, at best, misleading.

Since Proposal A passed we have been courted, blandished, and beseeched by school officials, state legislators, county executives, city managers, coliege heads, et al., to share our largesse with them. Critical need after critical need has magically emerged, all in pursuit of our "good news" savings. I say beware!

The "bad news" no one mentions is that our Homestead Property Tax Credit has been emasculated. In our personal case, the loss of tax credit offsets completely the savings touted by the school district. It's a wash. There are no savings, at least for the average homeowner.

That leaves all of us with a 50 percent increase in our state sales tax to pay forever. It is a difficult amount to calculate but, believe me, it's folding money. Yes, as Peter is proclaiming "good news," Paul is robbing us blind.

That brings to mind another sore point of which other writers have complained - the approximately $2 million public library windfall the school board is so blithely pocketing. Asking us to pay the library budget twice in one year is the height of fiscal irresponsibility.

The obvious way to handle this circumstance is to let the millage being proposed in the February election be reduced to reflect the fact that we, the taxpayers, have already paid the $2 million. Forget the wish list. Act responsibly and that will truly be ''good news.'

State economy still booming

The economic news continues to show that Michigan's business and industrial boom is continuing, with unemployment setting a record low of 4.6 percent in November.

In fact, that was the lowest seasonally adjusted figure recorded since the state began compiling unemployment statistics back in 1970.

In our view, the improvement in both the state and national figures reflects the leadership of both Gov. John Engler and President Clinton.

That view conflicts with that of The Detroit News, which claimed in an editorial two days before the election that it a visit to Michigan to claim some credit for the state's economic rebound. However, the New York Times on Sun-was "an insult" for President Clinton on day reported that many of the business chief executive officers who supported Clinton prior to the election still feel he is doing a good job - but has not done well in articulating his "many successful probusiness accomplishments."

Among the accomplishments the CEOs listed, we noted, were reducing unemployment, creating jobs, keeping interest rates low and the economy strong, and backing the North American Free Trade Agreement and GATT.

A good deal: Casinos delayed

s the city of Detroit and the state debate casino gambling issues, de-A velopers are proposing more casinos and more locations in addition to those approved last fall.

A reluctant Mayor Dennis Archer was finally persuaded by his city's voters that casino gambling can be helpful to development, but now he is discovering, as other cities' leaders have learned, that losses in casino development are just as likely as gains.

Crain Communications has threatened to pull its 340 employes out of Detroit if the proposed riverboat casino is located next to the Renaissance Center and near Crain's office.

Archer, wanting to keep Crain Communications, is now joining the search for a new location for the riverboat.

The sharing of casino profits also is a problem with both cities and states competing for revenues, but Gov. John Engler is withholding approval of any application until his gaming commission reports in

In our view, any delay is a good delay.

North, South seniors receive a new attitude: For success

By Shirley A. McShane Staff Writer

Although many high school students don't believe it, what they do today impacts who they will become tomorrow.

Sadie Bolos-Ottjepka is determined to get that message out to a small group of Grosse Pointe high school seniors. If her program is successful this year, she's hoping it will expand to include all high school students in years to come.

The program - Attitude At Its Best - is a six-hour seminar focusing on setting goals and working toward reaching them. Thirty co-op students from Grosse Pointe North and South high school attended the seminar on Tuesday at the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center.

Attitude At Its Best is conducted by Bolos Associates of Harper Woods, a marketing, out to be the biggest helper: She cut vegetables for the stuffing, pared and diced apples, rolled out crust for a pie, and taught Keri to draw a turkey.

Wish we could get her to help like that at home," her dad said, rolling his eyes. But isn't that the way it always is?

When it came to slicing the turkey, Jim watched as Bob, dressed ceremonially for the occasion in his striped apron, wielded his knives with a flour-

"The older generation is all that's keeping the traditions alive," Jim observed. "I don't know what we're going to do -I'm almost 30 years old and I've never carved a turkey.'

But ignorance didn't get in the way of the fun. We caroled and laughed along as people recited poetry and told stories and declaimed verses they had learned in long-ago German schools. I couldn't help thinking of my very German grandfather - who didn't actually know any German poems, but loved to recite "The Cremation of Sam McGee" in all its lengthy melodrama.

As Johanna wrapped up some plaetzchen for me to take home, their 93-year-old baker confided that she had the recipe from her great-grandmother in Transylvania, back when that was a German area. The little cookies take a whole afternoon to make.

"My great-grandmother made them, and my grandmother, and my mother, but I will be the last," she said. "My grandchildren don't like to bake anything that takes so much time.'

How true, and how sad As Tevye said, 'Tradition . . . tradition . . I'll tell you what tradition is - I don't know." Well, tradition is baking special cookies and carving turkeys, things our par-olice. "I walk my schnauzer, Ziggy (actually it's Ziggy II now since the original Ziggy went to the big kennel in the sky not long ago) all around Jefferson near the city offices. There used to be city street containers for trash at most of the corners," Jim said. All but one of the cube-shaped receptacles are about two feet square, have fancy beige pebble-finish sides and probably weigh a good 200 pounds each.

Jim ticked off locations, all on Jefferson: at the Michigan National Bank on Barrington, the Old Place restaurant, the Wilhelm Funeral Home, the Village Wine Shop, the corner of Maryland, the office complex on Beaconsfield and two at the former Park Pharmacy.

One by one, they have been vanishing, he said.

"The two by the pharmacy disappeared most recently, and now only the one near the bus stop by the bank is left. That's seven out of eight gone.'

Here's the mystery: No one, from trash contractors to police to city officials, seems to know where the bulky objects, estimated as costing about $200 each when new, are going.

When they were there they were usually full, so whoever's been taking them has had to take the trash too," Jim laughed, adding that since the trash containers have vanished he has been picking up litter he finds lying around and disposing of it himself.

When he first noticed they were getting scarce, he asked one of the city's sanitation contractors if they were taking them and got a sharp denial. "He said something about them being enough trouble to empty without having to haul them away too," Jim reported.

City manager Dale Krajniak wasn't able to help much more, even after checking with the Park public service department and police.

"Maybe we should put a (Lo-Jack) beeper in them," he said. I sensed he was only half-

Woods veteran searched Bermuda Triangle for lost planes

Staff Writer
On the evening of Dec. 5, 1945, senior flight instructor David White was playing bridge with friends at the Fort Lauderdale Naval Air Station in Florida when a duty officer knocked on the door.

"He told us that five of our planes were missing in flight,' the Woods resident said. "There had been a storm that afternoon '

Earlier that afternoon, five U.S. Navy torpedo bombers embarked on a routine training flight. The group of planes, known as Flight 19, were to head east to "bomb" an old wreck about 60 miles off Fort Lauderdale.

Flight 19 would later be known as the "Lost Patrol," and the legend of the Bermuda Triangle would be revived.

At 5 a.m. the next morning, White would lead a search for the missing planes and the 14 crewmen.

"Over the next few days, we flew out 150 miles, then up 150 miles and back," White said.

White's theory is that the pilots believed they were over the Gulf of Mexico when they were actually over the Bahamas.

"We knew this from their radio transmissions," he said.

The pilots kept heading north and east, thinking they were heading toward Florida, while in reality, they were traveling further away from

"Radio contact was picked up in Daytona," White said. "We think they went down about 100 miles off Daytona.'

It is presumed the five planes ran out of gas, then crashed into the ocean. No trace of any of the planes or their crews has been positively identified.

In 1984, parts of an old military plane were spotted in the Everglades by a Broward County sheriff's pilot. The plane was thought to be one of the five from Flight 19, but with no tail nor engine serial number found, there's no conclusive proof the plane was part at Wayne State University. of the Lost Patrol.

White was sworn into the service in December 1942, but he wasn't called to active duty until the following August.

He trained at various naval air stations around the country, eventually becoming an assistant flight instructor in Fort Lauderdale. By the time the war ended, he was a senior flight instructor.

In September 1345, White was scheduled to oversee the rier training, I would be sent to transport of five airplanes from a carrier in Florida to Norfolk,

"There was a hurricane coming," he said. "We took the planes to 'hurricane proof' hangars at the Richmond (Fla.) Naval Air Station near Mi-

With the Navy windspeed indicators at the air station breaking at 130 m.p.h. White figured the worst part of the storm must have passed, so he went to the Bachelor Officers' Quarters for the night.

"The next morning, I saw fires," White said. "The wind had stopped blowing. It was the eye of the storm. Within 10 minutes, the wind blew from the other direction.'

All three hangars had burned down, the result of collapsing on airplanes filled with

"My plane was a pile of ashes," White said.

With no way of getting back to Fort Lauderdale, he hopped aboard one of the firetrucks.

"They took me right to my house," White said. "My wife thought I was in Norfolk.

Following the search for the Lost Patrol of Flight 19, White went to Navy Line School in Monterey, Calif., and studied electronics in Memphis. White also trained with high-altitude attack bombers, being sent to Morocco for 6 months, and special weapons and atom bomb training. "They didn't allow atom bombs on Moroccan soil," he said. "We had to fly out to the carriers for this training.'

White made 125 carrier takeoffs and landings.

"With a carrier takeoff, with the catapult, you'd better have everything in the cockpit fas-tened down," he said, "and when the tailhook catches on a landing, it's a very secure feel-

During his post-war Navy experience, White was able to finish his education at the University of Michigan.

In 1954, after 12 years in the service, White finished his naval career as a lieutenant.

"I thought because of my car-Korea," he said. "I also thought I'd be going to Hawaii (before World War II), but they sent me to Norfolk.'

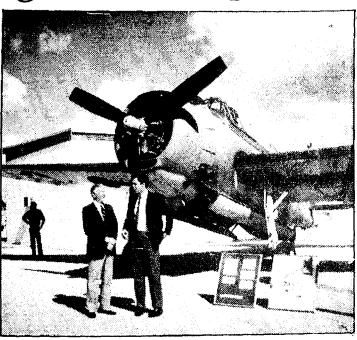

White now has his own employee benefits company in Madison Heights.

Next month, he and his wife, Tish Fiscus White, whom he met at Wayne State, will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

athlete and coach at Grosse Pointe North. I have always enjoyed watching sports at all levels - high school, college and professional. Lately, it has been difficult for me to pinpoint why I should pick up the sports page on a daily basis. The headlines concerning sports page have taken the tone of the business page. Lockouts, contracts and clauses is the jargon included in what used to be the fun section of the newspaper.

This autumn, I attended the majority of the Grosse Pointe North Lady Norsemen home basketball games. I have attended many games within the last 10 years due to my sister being a four-year varsity player and my own ties to the school's athletic programs. The timing of the success of this fine team and excellent program could not have been better. The sad labor situations and the poor seasons our local college and professional teams have experienced made appreciating the super effort of these young ladies very satisfy-

Coaches Gary Bennett and Ray Ritter should be applauded for year in and year out successfully cultivating a true "team" atmosphere while simultaneously motivating a group of enormously talented players. This talent was truly evident in their heartbreaking state quarterfinal loss to Detroit Martin Luther King High

I've had the privilege to sit in the stands and watch Michael Jordan score 61 points against the Pistons, Vinnie Johnson go on a rampage against the Celtics in Joe Louis Arena and was present to witness Detwit Tiger Frank Tanana confuse the Toronto Blue Jays for the 1987 division championship.

These were great sports moments but all of these games take a back seat to the amount of excitement I felt watching the North-King game. Sportswriters often use the cliche "great players make great plays," In this game, the North players made many great and clutch plays.

I don't know if it is correct to say this was athletics at the "grassroots" level, but whatever it was, it was a suitable replacement for the World Series and NHL hockey. I have learned that being a sports fan also means being able to relate to the successes and failures of the players. Unfortunately, I believe this may not be possible in today's ESPN Sportscenter

Thank you, ladies, for enabling me to be a fan without hearing soundbites or commentaries from opinionated-yet-uninformed sports journalists trying to impress upon us the importance of game 42 of a 162game season. Last Tuesday's quarterfinal game was a fine example of what sports is meant to be from the players on the court right down to the enthusiastic crowd providing the type of support that would make Dick Vitale very proud. What a great season!

Exempt seniors from school taxes

To the Editor:

This concerns school taxes and senior citizens.

School tax should be eliminated — if a person is 65 years old or older, has no children in school, has paid school taxes for 15 years or more, has income of less than $20,000 net.

Many senior citizens only have small pensions and pay for Blue Cross, eye glasses and dental.

It is unfair for seniors to continue to pay for education and the big salaries and benefits and then forced to buy their own benefits from their small retirement.

They would like to continue to live in their own home, but with the high cost of everyday living it is becoming more difficult every year.

I do not know who has the authority to implement this proposal, but it has to be done soon before another tax bill in December. Many seniors have paid school taxes for 20 to 40 years. I have paid school taxes for 43 years.

The GOP plate

To the Editor:

I write with concern, after feeling a pleasant euphoria about the Republican voting avalanche. The basis of concern is rooted in Abraham Lincoln's definition of the role of government. It is concise, eminently wise, and worthy of being branded on the consciousness of the new legislature. It, like its author, is spare, but meaningful:

"The function of government is to do for the people what they cannot do for themselves.

One notes sadly that the first substantive issue the to be speaker of the House discussed with Warrior Bill in the White House involved prayer in school. This is bothersome. I was taught prayer by my parents, and I know my grandchildren are being taught by their parents. This practice was important to my parents, even when the teaching profession had a far less socialistic, politically correct agenda.

The political party that was elected on a guarantee to lessen government makes its first move to amend the Constitution to mandate something that, if not taught in the home, will certainly be mutilated by the NEA in their search for power at the risk of teaching. Get government interference away from schools. Prayer is something people can do for themselves. There are substantive issues in spending, taxation and oppressive regulation to deal with. Fulfill your promises, Gingrich and Dole. Use the next two years wisely to ease the load of run-away government on the country.

Dioxin threat

To the Editor:

Right now, every human being in the world is being exposed to dioxin. Dioxin is one of the most toxic substances known to humans. It is stored in fatty tissues, and concentrates its way up the food chain. We as humans, being at the top of the food chain, end up taking in more than 90 percent of this dioxin through our food, particularly animal and dairy products. Whether through the air you breathe or food you eat, this is a problem that will not go away without direct action.

In September 1994, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) released a draft of its three year study on dioxin. The report reaffirmed the link between dioxin and cancer, while focusing on dioxin's potential non-cancer health effects, which include birth defects, learning disabilities, decreased fertility, and reduced sperm counts.

Dioxin is created in the manufacture, use, and disposal of chlorine and chlorinated compounds. The major sources of dioxin include: the use of chlorine in the manufacture of paper, the production of polyvinyl chloride (PVC) plastics, and the incineration of municipal, medical, and hazardous wastes containing chlorine.

Letters welcome

The Grosse Pointe News welcomes letters to the editor. All letters must be signed and, preferably, typed and double spaced. Include a telephone number for verification purposes.

The deadline for letters is 3 p.m. Monday to be considered for that week's paper. Letters are subject to editing and space limitations.

Hand-deliver or mail letters to: Editor, Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236; or fax them to 882-1585.

Every paper product currently made with chlorine bleach from tissue paper to TIME magazine, can be produced without using chlorine. Plastic products, from water pipes to the packaging of Barbie dolls, can also be made without chlorine, and therefore without perpetuating the deadly dioxin contamina-

The EPA must act now. We need to see the action happen immediately by:

 Phasing out the use of chlorine in the manufacture of solvents and PVC plastics;

 Require reporting for dioxin under Toxic Release Inventory and make it publicly accessible.

We, as American citizens, have a right to be informed of what is going on, and also the responsibility to act to do something about it. The EPA is accepting public comment until Jan. 13, 1995, on its dioxin study and proposals. We have that opportunity now. We need to contact EPA administrator Carol Browner and tell her that half measures will not do. We need to get to the source of the problem and phase out the use of dioxin producing chlorine. Nothing less than the health and welfare of future generations is at stake.

Arthritis surgery: Ending the pain is sole goal

Although it is not exclusively an ailment of the elderly, older people are more apt to suffer from arthritis than those who are young. This is not entirely understood, but we are told it is associated with the breakdown of the joints.

A joint is a movable connection between the ends of two or more bones. These ends are covered by a smooth material called cartilage and are connected to each other by flexible ligaments.

The joint is lined with a tissue called the synovia, which produces a lubricating substance called synovial fluid. Muscles and tendons that sur-

Senior men to host North chorus

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe will have its next luncheon meeting at the Grosse Pointe Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Tuesday, Dec. 13 at 11:15 a.m.

Every year at this time, the club has been honored by the visit of one of the musical groups of our local high schools. The special holiday program this year will be presented by the North High School Choral Groups, featuring versions of popular and traditional holiday songs. The group is under the direction of Ben Walker, director of music. The group will be presented by Edward Acomb and Wesley Stein.

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe is the largest organization for retired men in the area, currently numbering over 1,000 members. It has 17 sub-clubs that provide yearround activities ranging from active sports to music or to more sedentary pursuits such as reading and investments. The new membership year began Nov. 1 so that now is an opportune time to join. Interested retired residents of the Grosse Pointes should contact membership chairman Joseph Callahan at 885-1939.

There will be no meeting on Dec. 27. The next meeting will be on Jan. 10.

round and cross the joint power its movement. For the human body to have free and easily mobility, all these components must be working well.

Experts agree that arthritis breaks down the fine-tuning between bone, cartilage and muscles. Just how the arthritis process works is still not clear, but researchers do know how it affects the joints.

In osteoarthritis, the smooth cartilage covering the joint becomes rough and worn thin, so that the bones rub directly against each other, causing pain and inflammation.

In rheumatoid arthritis, the synovia becomes inflamed and attacks cartilage. In either case, the joint can become stiff and painful. The arthritis sufferer then avoids moving the joint to avert the pain, which only exacerbates the condition by making the structure adjoining the joint weaker and movement increasingly difficult.

When this happens, joint replacement surgery may be necessary. However, Dr. Adolf Yates Jr., assistant professor of orthopedic surgery at Johns Hopkins, says, "The first and foremost reason - and indeed the only reason — for joint replacement is unremitting arthritis pain. It very well may improve motion and flexibility, but that in itself is a secondary gain and not, in and of itself, enough of a goal to warrant surgery.

Yates offers these symptoms to determine whether surgery is called for:

 Arthritis that doesn't respond after three to six months of conservative management with different combinations of drugs and injections. He advises that patients should not give up if they don't experience relief after the first anti-arthritic drug because there are lots of different ones, and it's often hit-or-miss as to which

Eldercare helps find local support for older people

Aging Fernando M. Torres-Gil announced today that the Eldercare Locator — a nationwide, toll-free, directory assistance service providing access to information about home and community services that help older persons - has been funded for an additional three years.

Torres-Gil also stated that since its inception as a demonstration project three years ago, the Eldercare Locator reached a landmark number of 100,000

"We are very pleased with this record number of phone calls primarily because it means that the Eldercare Locator service has helped thousands of callers locate resources that help people lead healthy, independent lives in their later years," Torres-Gil added.

Anyone can call the Eldercare Locator at 1-800-677-1116,

U.S. Assistant Secretary for Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. The service helps link callers to information about community organizations that provide meals, transportation, housing, home care, legal and other community services, enabling older persons to remain independent in their own

> The Eldercare Locator is a public service of the Administration on Aging, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, and is administered by the National Association of Area Agencies on Aging and the National Association of State Units on Aging.

The real work of joint replacements starts after the surgeon is finished. Rehabilitation usually begins while you are still in the hospital. With hip, knee or ankle replacements you will begin to walk within several days; motion is regained more quickly after shoulder, elbow or wrist replacements.

Recovery from replacement surgery usually takes about six weeks. During this period you must follow a timetable of exercise, rest and medication.

Your reward for this investment of time, money and energy will be pain-free movement and better flexibility, which should make it all worthwhile.

Measuring Student Learning: There's a lot to it

Superintendent, Wayne County Regional Education Service Agency

It's fall and, for those of us in the business of education, that means that Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) test results will soon be released. It also means that the debates about what the scores mean, how they are used, and whether they should be compared are also about to begin.

For this year, I'd like to propose a cease-fire. Whether the students in your school scored well or poorly, whether the numbers are greater or smaller than last year, or greater or smaller than the neighbors', I'd like to spend less energy this year on the rhetoric about what the scores "really mean."

Basing student progress on the results of one test is like basing the diagnosis of a serious illness solely on body temperature. Suffice it to say, low scores indicate that there are educational needs.

If that seems too obvious to be worthy of note, let me propose still another "obvious" fact: Before the advent of MEAP, it was possible to determine how well or poorly a school was serving students.

Parents will tell you that they place more weight on the daily, weekly and monthly assessments of progress done in the classroom by the teacher than they do on any one standardized test. And, any teacher will tell you that MEAP is only one of many standardized tests used regularly in classrooms to measure students' academic

If you really want to know what's going on in the schools in your community, ask about those things that we know result in student growth.

For example, if you want a genuine indicator of student success, look for the amount of parent involvement. The greater the involvement of parents, the greater the academic achievement of students.

Find out if the principal and teachers in your school have high expectations of students. It's as true in the classroom as it is in the workplace: people produce what we expect them to produce. If a school's staff has low expectations of their students, students will perform accordingly.

If you need numbers to tell you about student progress, ask tunities for job shadowing, how many are taking the tough academic subjects, how many are in advanced placement classes and how many participate in extracurricular activi-

You may be surprised by the number of high school students that are currently enrolled in college. These students are taking college-level work in both academic and technical areas and are earning college credit while still in high school. You should know how many students are going on to college after graduation.

Do students in your school district gain practical work experience in cooperative education programs? Are there oppormentoring and career-exploration activities?

The MEAP test battery is an important assessment tool for parents, teachers and the general public; however, in 1994, it is essential that we all acknowledge that it is only one measure of progress. Those who are truly interested in whether our schools are changing to meet the changing needs of our students will take the time to look at more than one indicator before making judgments about the value of what is happening in our classrooms.

Health care reform: It's now up to the states

By Spencer C. Johnson President, Michigan Hospital

Since the Congress has admitted defeat on health care reform, the spotlight turns to the states. The problems that brought health reform to the future availability of health intop of the public's agenda have not disappeared because Congress failed to act. They continue. In Michigan:

• Two thirds of the state's residents are worried about the surance for themselves and their families.

• Almost half of the state's residents are concerned that a pre-existing condition could prevent them from getting health insurance.

• There are 1 million Michigan residents without insurance

• 76,000 state residents lose their health insurance each month

• More than $600 million in uncompensated care will be delivered by Michigan hospitals

• The cost issue cannot effectively be addressed without universal coverage.

Across the country - in Florida, in Massachusetts, in Minnesota, in Washington, in Tennessee - states are developing their own reforms. Is Michigan any less able? Nearly 70 percent of Michigan residents say it's important that state government tackle health reform, according to a recent statewide poll.

What is needed is not some grandiose plan, but a Michiganbased approach to reform. According to several surveys, Michigan residents are clear on the components of reform they support. They want a continuation of the workplace partnership between employees and employers to fund health coverage, government to guarantee coverage for the uninsured, and a restructuring of the delivery system by health providers.

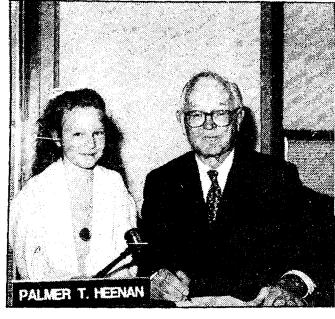

Michigan has a progressive health care community ready to partner with state government on a workable approach to health reform. Health reform is not about advancing a partisan political agenda. It's about making sure everyone gets the health care they need. If our state legislature starts from that premise, true health reform is possible for Michigan

Woods denies franchise agreement

By Jim Stickford Staff Writer

Taking a position of better safe than sorry, Michigan Consolidated Gas petitioned the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council to grant a 30-year franchise to the company — which puzzled the council because Michigan Consolidated has been providing natural gas service in the Woods for years.

But the company's request for a franchise agreement was denied by the council last Monday, due in part to the confusion by the council for the reason. Councilman Peter Gilezan asked representatives if the agreement was exclusive, and when he was told no, expressed surprise over the need for an agreement. After some debate the council turned down the motion because they saw no need for the ordinance.

What would we be giving itke. "If it's really nothing, why have an ordinance. It we are giving them something, how will affect residents? We saw no need for this."

Norman Davis, Michigan Consolidated's manager for civic and governmental affairs said after the council's decision that he was disappointed.

"I wish we could have done a better job of explaining why we needed this," said Davis. "The agreement we are asking for provides us nothing that we don't have now."

The reason for the request, said Davis, is to avoid a repeat of what happened in Highland Township. Michigan Consolidated had been providing gas service, along with Consumers Power, for many years. Consumers Power then petitioned the township's board of trustees for an exclusive franchise granted.

"This put us out of business for years," said Davis. "We don't want that to happen in That's why we approached the Woods council. The agreement is not exclusive, so other companies can operate in the city if they want to.'

The Woods gets the company's obligations spelled out clearly, giving the city a way to measure the quality of service. If the service is good, the franchise agreement can be cancelled.

It also says that Michigan Consolidated can operate in the Woods for the length of the agreement, in this case, 30

The Woods council held a hearing Monday night to determine if the city should revoke the restaurant's valet parking license. Andiamos is the only restaurant in the city with valet parking.

The council held the hearing after receiving a memo from public safety director Jack Patterson recommending that the license be revoked. The memo contained a report from traffic safety officer John Albrecht detailing a number of violations of the city's valet parking ordinance by the restaurant.

Automotive

Born again Monte Carlo brings back Chevy value

Chevrolet's new Monte Carlo buyers' desires as well as the first Monte Carlo did in the Carlo.

It is as if some automotive Ecclesiastes told the auto industry "now is the time to praise great nameplates" and Chevrolet heeded this admoni-Cheverolet has dusted off a couple of its great nameplates from the past and pasted them onto 1995 models which are vastly different from the originals.

And in the case of the Monte Carlo, it worked and it worked well. The new Monte Carlo is a different animal from the previous Monte Carlo, which was introduced in 1970 and went out of production in 1988. But it definitely harks back to the days when Chevrolet rarely misstepped and did have its finger on the pulse of America.

Chevrolet general manager Jim Perkins has a strong sense of what made Chevrolet great back in its heyday and the new Monte Carlo reflects this. It is not like the old Monte Carlos, which in fact had several personas. But neither is today's market like the market in those days. And the 1995 Monte Carlo should fit today's peak years of the muscle car

The first 1970 Monte Carlo was a personal luxury car based on the Chevelle chassis with a 6-foot-long hood and, if you were cool enough to buy the SS model, a 360-horse 454 V.8, classic Detroit iron, almost two tons of it.

Its classic long-hood-shortrear-deck styling was distinctive from other Chevrolet models. In later years, it changed with the styling trends, gradually getting smaller until it disappeared in 1988. But before it vanished, it traded in its V-8s for V-6s, including a turbocharged V-6 in 1980 and diesel V-6 and V-8 in 1982.

'Value" is the key to today's market, value with some sizzle. The new Monte Carlo relies on high-volume hardware topped with low-cost sizzle. And a big part of that sizzle is the car's

With a base price starting at $16,760, it's a very affordable package that includes what most people want in a car and it's a little, but not too much, different.

Unlike the earlier Monte

By Richard Wright

Carlos which went out of their way to be different from all other Chevrolets, this Monte Carlo is a two-door version of the new Lumina. It is a Lumina coupe in look and lineage. It doesn't cost Chevy anything to paste the Monte Carlo name on a perfectly adequate coupe and if customers associate the name with something special, so much the better.

As I said, it is no Monte Carlo in the old sense, but it is a very nice Lumina coupe, with good ride, nice clearly-a-GMproduct styling and traditional Chevy virtues such as good looks, comfort, economy of oper-

A lot has been written in recent years about General Motors' and Chevrolet's problems Chevy represents about half of GM in sales volume - but Perkins pointed out that at the bottom of its performance trough, Chevrolet was selling more than two million cars and trucks a year and is now climbing back toward three million.

Chevy got that big by satisfying a lot of customers. That's the day-to-day business. Value at a good price. The Monte Carlo was carefully engineered to do just that.

The Monte Carlo name has been revived to grace a welldesigned contemporary coupe that sports a long list of standard equipment, including dual air bags, GM's ABS VI antilock brakes, air conditioning, windows and locks, tilt column, AM/FM/cassette radio, and a trunk that can be opened into the rear-seat space to provide surprising cargo capacity.

Unlike the old Monte Carlos with their distinctive squaredoff styling, this one is taut and sleek aero. The old Monte Carlos were deliberately distinct from all other Chevys, but this one is pure Lumina two-door.

An extensively tweaked 3.1liter pushrod V-6 mated to a four-speed automatic is standard equipment. Output is up 20 hp to 160, a peppy little engine directly descended from the classic Chevrolet V-8 born in the classic '55.

This front-drive Monte Carlo no longer has a V-8 option, so if performance is your bag, you must look to the Z34 powered by the dual overhead-cam 24valve 3.4-liter V-6 carried over from the past Lumina. Output is 210 horsepower.

It is fast, but it is not the brute, torquey fast of the 454 V-8 Monte Carlos of yore. This is a much more civilized car, tighter, more controlled, better mannered.

The ride is generally smooth and quiet. So if you've got an old Monte Carlo stashed somewhere, hold onto it and bring it out every once in a while when you want some thunder and lightning. The Z34 is a neat package too, but the base LS does everything well and feels Chevy. And that's good.

The instrument panel positions knobs and switches within easy reach. Headlight and climate controls have a quality perfect-fit feel that is very reassuring. A new GM radio is a revelation, actually designed for human-gauge fingers with knobs instead of almost invisible electronic buttons. Control labels are large and visible, clearly illuminated at night. It is actually a pleasure to use the radio, not a mystical electronic game.

There are a lot of nice touches, like a low-oil-level warning on the dash, a gas-cap holder inside the fill door so you are less likely to drive out of the fuel station with your cap clattering off of the aerodynamic trunk lid, and a net in the trunk to keep groceries or your briefcase from sliding

Chevrolet has gone to pains to make the new Monte Carlo a pleasant, attractive car that offers real old-fashioned Chevy value. It succeeded.

Coming or going (this with the Marie) Callo is a good Palue package at an attractive

The 1995 Chevrolet Monte Carlo is, like its namesake, a very handsome coupe.

EASON'S GREETINGS: PICK A CARD

By Margie Reins Smith Feature Editor Some holiday cards send a religious message. Others offer secular greetings. Some are serious. Others are witty, wry, even darkly humorous. Some cards are fancy; some plain; others modern. Choices range from traditional to bland to baroque, from fussy, flippant or elegant to minimalist.

Some cards are printed on recycled no nonsense paper. Some are huge heavy gold-leafencrusted reproductions of famous works of art. Some feature photographs. Some senders pride themselves on annual hand-made one-of-a-kind designs. Some families foist newsletters on their friends and families - pale dot-matrix computer-generated single-spaced epistles that brag on and on.

Holiday cards can serve more than one purpose. While sending good wishes for the holidays, they can also generate funds for the senders' favorite non-profit organizations.

Here's a list of charitable groups that sent us information about their holiday greeting card sales:

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION - Bridge by Woody Boyd 🏚 🛡 💠 🗳

Deliberation and consideration in bridge is the exchange of knowledge and the gift of experience. Castigation to the contrary is the exchange of ignorance fueled by egotism.

I am ever watchful for those who play well, make no particular point of doing so and conduct their competitive affairs at the table with dignity and demeanor. One who has been doing that for a lifetime in our suburbia is Michael Crane. A member of MBA and a life master for more than 20 years, he has quietly built himself a reputation as a skillful duplicate player amassing well over 4,000 points. His peers praise his play with words like "thoughtful," "steady," "decisive" and "one of Michigan's 20 best." Such acclaim is the result, in this one's opinion, of a decided purpose and regimented discipline. Ability shows quickly if one is so provided and also has instinct. Yet only rarely will you find him partnered with an equal for he enjoys the challenge of playing with many and some are just good friends.

One of the engaging delights when writing about people in our bridge midst is the diversions you uncover when interviewing such a prospect. Mike is no different. He has a special and extremely satisfying sideline - raising tropical fish, specifically ornamental goldfish #50. I didn't force the issue, but such a hobby has got to require special attention and an aquarium of considerable sophistication.

Like so many fine players Mike's preference and most satisfying reprisal is to cane the competition in a contract that is equivocal. Today's exempligratia is a first rate performance you'll find commendable in play with Anastasia Tessler who has been a glorious force in his game.

N/S Vulnerable W. Jed D 2 Mike DBL 3D 35 DBL

Two spades by North, though supportable, was already above their limit, but Mike was looking for something more rewarding. He knew at best his partner might have 4 or 5 H.C.P. and conceivably shape. Two no trump showed minors and when North competed again over three diamonds he had committed a major indiscretion that had to be punished. Mike isn't one to usually shoot an ace, but after some contemplation he decided it was right. The lead turned out to be diabolic and the commencement of as pretty a defense as my readers could witness. When the smoke cleared N/S contract was in shambles and ashes.

East won her king and switched to her singleton heart. After the queen, ace, Mike gave East a ruff. Now a diamond to Mike's ace and another heart ruff. E/W had captured the first six tricks and Mike still had his spade king to win for a triple trick set of 800. Best to use caution when competing with flat hands and a modest high card

Preparation for the visit

By the Rev. Fred Harms St. Paul Lutheran Church

The days seemed to fly by during my father's visit here over the Thanksgiving weekend. That was a special time for our family, with a niece joining us from Minnesota and a son returning home from his first term at college.

Preparations were made for their arrivals. Trips to the airport and to Springfield, Ohio, needed to be worked into the schedule. Baking, cleaning, and room arranging to accommodate extra people at our house became a priority.

The arrival of our special family guests coincided with the Thanksgiving Eve worship service at St. Paul Lutheran Church. During the service, there was a time for giving thanks for our many blessings (either verbally or via a written prayer request). \overline{I} was especially thankful for this opportunity to worship together and to give thanks, a time to pause from all the stresses of schedules and the hectic pace of daily demands.

Last night, as my father and I said our goodbyes at the airport, I realized again how important relationships are with our loved ones. Taking quality time to be together should be a priority. My father, a little less steady now, supporting himself with a cane, made his way to the gate for boarding. We embraced and shared a word of love. I thank God for those special times, times never to be forgotten.

In this season of Advent, we prepare ourselves for another special guest. This is the most important guest to enter our lives. We prepare ourselves to receive the Christ. This is God's gift to us. This is God's gift of love, so that we might also love one another. This is the reason for the season we celebrate and call Christ-

As we receive the gift of Jesus Christ at Christmas, let us remember that gift throughout the year. Let us make room for God's special gift to us, so that the true meaning of this season is never lost or forgotten.

Dave Hohlfeldt of the Optimist Club said that the Grosse Pointe, St. Clair Shores and Harper Woods communities have given well over 1,000 coats for the homeless and impoverished of Detroit over the last five years.

He added, "We have had a lot of fun with this program in getting all the guys together to collect the donations and give them away to those without. What was an idea developed by Marv Redlawski to give back has turned into a tradition."

You've heard the expression will again collect coats, hats, scarves, boots and gloves to be given away at the clothing center of the Fort Street Presbyterian Church. Redlawski said that it is impossible to keep up with the need and that last year the donations collected were given away within just a couple of hours.

So if you're tired of looking at those winter items around your house that you know will never be used again, and you want them to be given to someone in need, contact the Grosse Pointe Optimist Club Coats hotline at 313-884-1398.

Leave your name and address on the recorder and the items will be picked up from your front porch on Saturday, Dec. 10, between noon and 3 p.m. If you require a receipt, place an inventory list with your name and address and approximate value of the donation on the outside of the bag and one will be mailed to you This year, the Optimist Club from the Fort Street Church.

Corneau scored eight goals, five of them when he was playing forward. But his strong kicking leg made him a natural for taking free kicks and moving up when ULS needed some extra scoring punch.

Corneau can kick with either foot and his quickness made it difficult for an opponent to get around him.

"Chris is a quiet person, who leads by example," Backhurst said. "He's a man of few words, but he's a steadying influence on and off the field.'

Tymrak's second half paralleled the comeback of the team. "Frank had an unusual year," Backhurst said. "We ex-

By mid-season, Tymrak had only one assist. In the last 13 games, he scored eight goals and had 10 assists.

Verb was a pleasant surprise for the Knights this season.

He had played goalie on the junior varsity as a sophomore until he got hurt midway through the season. Last year he went out for golf, but this year decided to give soccer another try.

"Steve showed up at the summer pickup games and showed an interest in playing for us," Backhurst said.

Verb wanted to play forward, but Backhurst saw a defender's skills in him and persuaded him to give that position a try.

"He tried to tell me he couldn't play defense, but with his size and ability to get into the air and head the ball, I thought he'd be a natural on defense," Backhurst said. "He came on like gangbusters for us. He's a real good athlete and very agile for a big guy.'

ULS girls are first in Fraser

The University Liggett School girls varsity hockey team rode strong performances by the offense and the defense to the championship in the fifth annual Fraser Friendship tournament.

Since the tournament opened the season, the victory came as a pleasant surprise to the team and coaches Joe Ricci and Tim Wetherill.

"It's encouraging to see a team with so many rookies and such strong veterans come together to pull off a win," Wetherill said. "I'm expecting great things from them.

Led by senior captains Allison Ridder and Becky Simpson Fraser Friendship tournament. and junior alternate captains Shera Teitge. Karin Salden and Sara Mitchell, ULS beat the Howell Flash 3-1 in the opener. Teitge scored all three goals.

The next game was more of a challenge.

The Knights trailed the Mount Clemens Goaldiggers 2-1 after one period, but Salden's shorthanded goal tied the game at 2-2. The Goaldiggers regained the lead, but ULS rallied to tie the game on a goal by Simpson and won it 4-3 on Salden's second tally.

As the only undefeated team in their division, the Knights earned a bye and went straight to the finals for another meeting with the Goaldiggers.

The defense played a major role in the title game as Ridder, freshmen Anne Turner, Mieke Teitge and Rebecca Kelly and Mitchell and Salden were strong in front of sophomore goalie Abby Tompkins, who shut out Mount Clemens 2-0.

Simpson scored both goals and she was assisted by Shera Teitge on each. Senior Ellena Gatzaros started the play that led to the winning goal and ULS' first tournament championship in three years.

Rookies Anne Toelle, Gina Ghanem, Kristin Byron, Molly Marco, Athina Papas, Stella Papas and Megan Watkins each gave promising performances in the tournament, while returning players Carolyn Lees, Kristin Wright and Nona Bararsani have improved greatly.

A season to remember

Chuck Klonke

I hope you got a chance to watch Grosse Pointe North's girls basketball team this year.

If not, you missed a real treat.

The Lady Norsemen finished their best season ever last week with an overtime loss to Detroit King in the state quarterfinals at East Detroit. It might have been the best high school girls game I've ever seen.

And when it was over, I was left with an empty feeling. It wasn't that North had failed to earn a trip to Battle Creek for the semifinals and finals. The girls had done the best they could and they should be proud of themselves.

The sad part was that it's over. We'll never see this team together again.

The best of the eight seniors - Sue Karber, Maureen Zolik and Kristen Loeher - will probably go on to play in college, but it won't quite be the same.

It was as a group they were so much fun to watch.

Nobody was able to stop Karber when she got the ball in the low post. She even managed to score 15 points against King's Weems twins, both of whom stand 6-foot-2 and weigh close to 200 pounds.

If Sue missed a shot, which didn't happen that often, she'd battle for the rebound, determined to put the ball in the bas-

Few high school players, male or female, have been more fun to watch than Zolik. With ponytail bobbing, Mo would harass enemy players until she stole the ball from them or forced them into some other type of turnover. Her quick hands would snatch the ball away and she'd be going in for a layup before the girl she stole the ball from knew it was

On the other hand, nobody took the ball away from Zolik when she was bringing it up court. And she had the uncanny instinct of finding an open teammate.

If she had played for any other team in the area, Loeher probably would have been its leading scorer and rebounder. But with Karber around to shoulder the offensive load, Loeher was satisfied to do the little things necessary to win basketball games, like playing defense and setting picks.

Coaches Gary Bennett and Ray Ritter appreciated her unsung heroics, but so did a group of North's male athletes who kept track of Kristen's Krashes, noting with signs every time she took a charge or hit the floor diving after a loose ball. Her record was 14 "krashes."

The fourth senior starter, Keri Muccioli, was always the smallest player on the court, but nobody worked harder. She wasn't afraid to battle somebody several inches taller and she could be deadly from three-point range if the situation warranted outside shooting.

Sophomore Molly Peters rounded out the starting five, but she was a sophomore in name only. She possessed the court awareness and confidence of a much older player. She'll be the cornerstone for next year's Lady Norsemen.

It was fun to watch the players come off the bench for North. The enthusiasm and defensive intensity never dropped off when Erin Peters, Tanya Latinis or Robyn Maples came into the game. They were having fun, too.

And the rest of the players on the bench - Sarah Merz, Jennifer Champine, Laura Kramer and Lindsay Simmon would always be in the game, cheering on their teammates.

Bennett and Ritter also deserve a large share of the credit for North's success this year.

The Lady Norsemen were always well-prepared for their games. You won't find two better defensive strategists around. Familiar opponents might know what North is going to do, but beating them at it is another thing.

The defense isn't predictable. North's players have the freedom to react to different situations. That takes a lot of preparation and intelligent players. There's been talk that this is Ritter's last year. Bennett has tried to persuade him to put off retirement. If he does quit, the loss will be a major

Not only do Bennett and Ritter teach their players the fundamentals of the game. They teach them how to win and lose — with class. There's no taunting or gloating when the Lady Norsemen win. And when they lose there are no complaints or excuses.

Detroit King players after their exciting state Class A quarterfinal game at East Detroit last week. King pulled out a 52-49

Grosse Pointe North's girls basketball team congratulates overtime victory against the Lady Norsemen, ending the best season in North's history

North shines in loss to King

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

At the end of every girls basketball season, Gary Bennett asks his Grosse Pointe North players to write down their fondest memories of the year.

This year, Bennett was a little surprised, but pleased, with the responses.

"There were very few players who didn't write something about the King game," Bennett said. "They said how nice it was to get to the quarterfinals and then take one of the best teams in the state into over-time. We lost the game, but they viewed it as a big positive and that's the way it should down, but reading what they had to say made me feel better, North's coach was talking about one of the finest high school games ever played by a Lady Norsemen's team.

Class A for nearly the entire season and the Crusaders were prepared." odds-on favorites to earn a rewestern.

All North did was overcome in the third quarter after a 13-0 tion shot from midcourt hit the an 11-point third-quarter deficit run, the Lady Norsemen rim and bounced off. and force an overtime on Sue Karber's steal and layup with fourth quarter. King finally won the quarterfinal game at East Detroit 52-49, but the Lady Norsemen had proved a point. They could compete with the best teams in the state.

"The more we played the bet-ter we got," Bennett said. "They just seemed to rise to the occasion. Before the game I didn't know how we'd match up against King, but after playing them I think if we played 10 games, we'd each win five. I think we'd be competitive with have been. I was a little bit any of the best teams in the state.'

King coach William Winfield wasn't surprised by the way North played.

North continued to play its 23 seconds remaining in the solid brand of defense and 11 seconds into the fourth quarter, King's lead was only 35-32. The Crusaders answered with a 8-2 spurt to lead 43-34 after a pair of free throws by Danielle Jones with 2:37 remaining in regulation. But King wouldn't score again until overtime.

Tiffany Weems, who led all scorers with 20 points, put the Crusaders ahead to stay with an inside basket. She then gave King a four-point advantage on a putback with 1:27 remaining.

King beat North at its own game - transition baskets. The Crusaders also held the Lady Norsemen to only 30 percent shooting from the field.

"We gave up too many transition baskets," Bennett said. "We knew their big girls would score but I wasn't expecting them to get as much as they did off the transition."

Winfield almost jumped for joy when Karber was forced to

PUPPY - BEGINNERS

810-294-0550 PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER

YOUR PET TODAY! An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

Grosse Pointe South hockey coach Bob Bopp feels that he has at least one edge no matter who his team faces this season.

"Not many teams, including the upper level ones, can play six defensemen regularly like we can," Bopp said after another strong defensive effort carried the Blue Devils to a 3-2 victory over Riverview Gabriel Richard in a Michigan Metro Hockey League game.

"This is the first time in my three years with the program that I could send any of the three defense pairings on the ice at any time and not worry about it.'

Senior Justin Braun is the leader of the Blue Devils' defensive corps and was outstanding against the Pioneers. His partner, Josh Prues, and the other pairings - Bill Faber and Pat Brennan, and Nick Linn and Ryan Robson - also played

"We outshot them 33-12." Bopp said. "That's more of an indication of how we dominated the game than the final score. We always seem to start slowly to give the Blue Devils a 3-1 against Richard. It's our first lead. It turned out that they league game and maybe the needed the goal because Richkids are nervous."

"The key to our game was going inside, especially when Sue was resting," Winfield said. "We took advantage of some extra shots then. (Karber) gave us a lot of problems. She has so many herky-jerky moves."

Karber finished with 15 points and she pulled down 12 rebounds, despite the 6-foot-2 presence of King's Weems twins - Stephanie and Tiffany. Peters had 14 points and four assists, while Zolik scored 13 points and had six steals. Zolik also forced several other turnovers with her relentless defensive pressure.

Jones added 10 points for King and Courtney Anthony had eight. Tiffany Weems grabbed 10 rebounds and Stephanie Weems had eight.

Verb scored five goals as he came up from his defensive position to take advantage of his heading ability on corner kicks.

"It's still an honor, no matter how many times you win it,' he said. "I'll have to admit I did more work with this team, but it was so focused and had excellent senior leadership.

"Last year's team had more expectations and a lot of talent, but never jelled like this one did. We did a lot of experimenting this year - in fact it was a whole season of experimentation — but that just made our success more satisfying."

Knights sweep pair in Grand Rapids

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

University Liggett School's 3-0 loss to Cranbrook last week taught the Knights' hockey team some valuable lessons it used to beat a pair of Grand Rapids opponents.

'We employed the lessons we learned in the Cranbrook game," said ULS coach John Fowler after the Knights beat Grand Rapids Northview 9-1 and eked out a 2-1 victory over East Grand Rapids.

"We learned some good things in the loss to Cranbrook. I think we can reverse the outcome when we meet them later in the year. We weren't as aggressive as we needed to be and Cranbrook capitalized on our mistakes.'

There weren't many mistakes in Grand Rapids.

Jim Bologna opened the scoring at 5:44 of the first period against Northview, then goals by Tom Delisle and Andrew riod." Ricci 19 seconds apart late in the second period made it 3-0. ULS didn't get complacent between periods. John Mc-Naughton scored a pair of goals during an 18-second span early in the second period before a power-play goal by the Wildcats made it 6-1.

Delisle completed his hat trick in the third period, while Ricci and Tom Waldron wrapped up the Knights' scor-

Fowler said. "We realized early that we were a better team and used to a faster tempo. When we saw that they were hesitant, it played into our hands."

It was a little tougher the following night as ULS ran into a hot goaltender from East Grand Rapids.

Bologna again opened the scoring, firing a rebound into the net at 11:10 of the second period. McNaughton and Blake assisted

The Pioneers took advantage of a ULS penalty to score a power play goal with 2:47 left in the second period.

"It was a tough penalty because John McNaughton was working so hard and just happened to hook a player," Fowler said. "We killed off all but 23 seconds when they scored. but we talked about it between periods. I said, 'Let's not be disgusted over the goal. Let's just go out and win the third pe-

Many plants have ties to the winter holidays

When you think about it, there is a remarkable variety in the plants which symbolize this glamorous season of the year. Some of them connect with very ancient traditions and customs and some are fairly new, such as poinsettias, which have only been the customary Christmas plant for a couple of generations.

Ivy and mistletoe were sacred plants to the ancient Druids and their uses as part of the annual midwinter festivals have been translated into our use as Christmas decorations. In the European flower calendar holly is the symbol of December. In the Victorian language of flowers, holly indicates foresight and defense and mistletoe means good luck to a woman and bad luck to a man. It also stands for affection and love and to this day is a sacred plant in India.

Holly has also been an important plant for celebrations and festivals. Virgil refers to it often in his writings by its Latin name, ilex. There are hundreds of varieties of ilex, or holly, and they are native to many lands in Europe, Asia, North and South America, the Canary Islands and Madiera, to name a few.

Some have red berries and some have prickly leaves and some are smooth. They may be green, or golden, or variegated in hue. Holly and ivy are often used together for great decorative effect and are thus immortalized in the old Christmas carol, "The Holly and the Ivy

It was a common belief in the Dark Ages that mistletoe did not grow from seeds since it only occurs high up in trees and never on the ground. Mistletoe was a sacred plant to the ancient Celtic and Teutonic peoples and was used in ceremonies by the Druids. Branches were hung in homes to ward off evil spirits. They are still used to decorate houses, but never appear in churches because of the pagan aura that still surrounds them.

By Ellen Probert

In the Chinese flower calendar the poppy is the symbol for December and is the emblem of celebration and festivity

All of the varieties of evergreen tree are used for Christmas trees, a relatively modern custom introduced into England from Germany by Queen Victoria's consort, Prince Albert. Cedar trees are perhaps the most popular, possibly because of their wonderful aromatic scent.

Cedars are mentioned frequently in the Bible and the famed Cedars of Lebanon are still as they were in biblical times. (The temple of Jerusalem was built of cedar wood.) The 12 oldest and largest of the Lebanon cedars have been revered by every monotheistic religion. Called by the Jews "The 12 friends of Solomon," by the Christians as "the 12 Apostles" and by Moslems as "Saints," it has been believed for centuries that an evil fate will befall anyone who injures one of these ancient trees. Every year, at the Feast of the Transfiguration, the Greeks, Armenians and Mormons go on a pilgrimage to the cedar groves of Lebanon.

Spruces are also very popular for Christmas trees. They are members of the pine family and the Latin name for them, "pinaceae," comes from the Latin word pix, or pitch, and refers to the resin that is obtained from them.

Like the cedars, the spruces and pines are of many varieties but all share in beauty and in their spicy scent which always makes us think of holiday festivities.

Christmas cactus, or Christmas rose as it is sometimes called, is another winter-flowering plant. The lovely arching branches tipped with satiny flower clusters in rose, white or pink dress up any room.

There are some beautiful Christmas cactus plants, as well as nearly a hundred magnificent poinsettias in gorgeous bloom decorating the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House for the holiday season, and five glittering Christmas trees, huge wreaths and flower arrangements are delighting visitors. For information about holiday tours call 884-4222.

Poinsettias were introduced into the United States by the then ambassador to Mexico, Joel Robert Poinsett, in 1825. They grow wild in Mexico and Poinsett brought some back for his own garden in South Carolina. He gave plants to friends and to botanical gardens and from that time on poinsettias have had an increasing popularity and are now regarded as the official flower of the Real Christmas trees are the environmentally sound choice

From the Michigan

Christmas Tree Association

In this age of environmental awareness it's appropriate to know a favorite family holiday tradition of choosing a real Christmas tree over an artificial tree also is the environmentally sound choice.

A benefit to the atmosphere, real Christmas trees absorb carbon dioxide and other gases, emitting fresh oxygen. This helps prevent the earthwarming "greenhouse effect."

One acre of Christmas trees produces the daily oxygen requirement for 18 people. With approximately one million acres producing Christmas trees in the United States, that translates into oxygen for 10 million people every day. For every real Christmas tree harvested, three seedlings are planted in its place.

Real Christmas trees are an all-American, recyclable resource. Artificial trees, most of which are manufactured in Korea, Taiwan or Hong Kong, consist of plastics and metals that aren't biodegradable. When disposed of, the artificial trees will never deteriorate. Their effects on our environment are evident and will remain for countless generations.

Christmas tree farms stabilize soil, protect water supplies and provide refuge for wildlife while creating scenic green belts. Often, Christmas trees are grown on soil that could not support other crops.

Real trees are easily reused and recycled; artificial trees cannot be recycled. Here are some post-holiday ideas for real Christmas trees:

- Christmas trees biodegradable - the branches may be removed and used as mulch for gardens, parks, or in horse and animal stalls. The trunk can be chopped for the same purposes. Mulching programs have become popular with communities throughout the nation. Check with your local department of public works for information.
- · Large quantities of Christmas trees make effective sand and soil erosion barriers, especially at beaches.
- Sunk into private fish ponds, Christmas trees make excellent refuge and feeding areas for fish.
- Christmas trees also make excellent bird feeders, adding color and excitement to the winter garden. You may attract birds with orange slices, suet and bird seed. They will come for the food and stay for the shelter in the branches.
- · Living Christmas trees that come with their roots intact may be planted outside and enjoyed for years. Note: Living trees have a better survival rate in mild climates.

How to keep Christmas plants going past the holidays fluttering around in my house. What are they? Will they cause any problems?

A. They are probably Indian meal moths, a pantry pest. In the larval stage, this insect feeds on flour, cereal, dry pasta and other stored grain products, dry pet food, dry milk, dried fruits and nuts, and bird seed. They contaminate the foods they feed on with excrement, cast skins, cocoons, webbing and bacteria. Webbing connecting the top surface of the food to the top of the container or covering the upper surface is the insect's trademark. The moths you are seeing have already passed through the destructive stage, but they're probably looking for places to lay their eggs and start the life cycle again. Elimination of all infested products and food spills in cracks and crevices and placing food, pet food and bird seed in glass or metal containers with tight-fitting lids should take care of the problem. Uninfested products will stay free of insects, and any insects that escaped your notice during the cleanup will not be able to escape the containers to infest other products.

Q. What is the difference between a dish garden and a terrarium?

Dish gardens are groups of plants arranged and growing in an open or at least partly open container. A terrarium is a completely closed container that provides a controlled climate for the plants growing inside. Terrariums are usually used for tropical plants that need constant high humidity. Dish gardens can from moisture-loving tropicals to cacti. The key in either of these is to group plants that require the same general growing conditions. Mixing plants that prefer their roots to be constantly moist with plants that have to dry out between waterings means that the needs of at least one type of plant won't be met. Keep in mind that these plantings will not last forever and will require transplanting of a number of different types of plants in the near future. Because of this responsibility, it may not always be the best gift for a non-plant-lover.

Q. What caused many maple trees to show their fall colors early this past autumn?

A. Early fall color is an indicator that a tree is under stress from too much or not enough water, infertile or compacted soil, disease, construction damage to the roots or some other cause. Normal fall color occurs in response to the reduction in day length as summer gives way to autumn.

Q. What can I do with a living Christmas tree to increase the chances that it will survive when I plant it outside after the holidays?

A. Keep it indoors no longer than seven to 10 days and keep it as cool as possible so it doesn't break dormancy. Whenever you move it, whether it's from the outdoor cold to the indoor warmth or vice versa, give it a day or two in an enclosed but unheated area to reduce the shock of transition. Keep the roots moist (but not waterlogged) and mist the foliage to keep it from drying out. Plant it as soon as possible after the holidays. Prepare the planting site by either digging the planting hole and storing the soil somewhere so it won't freeze, or by mulching the planting site heavily before the soil freezes to keep the soil workable.

Q. What is the prescription for keeping indoor cacti alive through the winter? Mine invariably get soft and rotten.

A. Cacti grow hardly at all during the winter, so they need very little water - a light watering every three or four weeks to dampen the roots slightly - and no fertilizer. Too much tender loving care, in the form of weekly watering and overfeeding, will kill them. Try to practice intelligent neglect.

Home Tips

RIPENING TRICK - Put hard avocados in a flour canister, cover well with flour, and in two to three days you'll have soft avocados ready to eat. Gina T., Brookline, Mass.

BREAD BAGS - I save all my plastic bags, even bread wrappers. I cut them in strips and crochet them into rugs for foot wipers at the doorstep. I make them round and use a double stitch. That way, there is a right and wrong side to them. Sally C., Okeechobee, Fla.

CARPET SHAMPOOING - After shampooing my carpet, until it dries, I place step-size squares of an old sheet just far enough apart in order to be able to walk on the carpet without getting it dirty. I store the "steps" with my shampooer until next time. Hilda W., Buena Park, Calif.

A REMEMBRANCE - I make quilts for family and friends and as an added feature, I've learned to crochet in my name, to whom I gave it, and the date. This makes wonderful memories in years to come. Helen R., Blackfoot, Idaho

Dear Mrs. Claus,

Last week I wrote to Santa and sent him these pictures showing some of the great stuff they have at Bikes, Blades & Boards. I know how busy he is this time of year, so maybe you can remind him. Bikes, Blades & Boards has everything on my list, like Ice Skates, Hockey Equipment, Snowboards, equipment & clothing, Inline Skates and the coolest bikes around. They've even got the new Morrow snowboards (numero uno on my list!)

Hey, for all I know maybe you do most of the work up there and Santa gets all the credit (that's the way it is at my house). If so, you can save yourself and the elves a lot of time by stopping at Bikes, Blades & Boards before you load up the sleigh.

Always good,

Timmy

P.S.
Why not buy Santa a snowboard?
It'll be a great way for him to unwind from the holidays.

Whiskers, Meet Your Match!

Consider the face. Tender skin? Tough heard? Or really heavy, rough whiskers? How can you select a single electric shaver that's just right, especially if it's a gift? Since whiskers grow in different

Since whiskers grow in different thicknesses and densities, satisfying every face with a single foil just isn't possible. The Wahl Custom Shave System, however, has three interchangeable foil heads that allow its user to customize the shaver to provide the perfect level of closeness and comfort.

Some men want close shaves. Others with sensitive skin want a clean, irritation-free shave. Still others want the closest possible shave they can get. This is the only electric shaver that delivers all three levels of comfort and closeness.

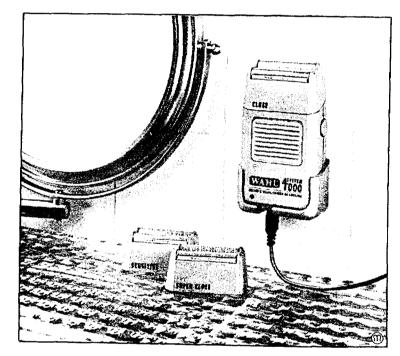

Snap on the Sensitive foil for a smooth, light shave; change to the Close foil for a good, close shave; or, for blade-close shaving, select the Super Close foil.

The Sensitive foil is ideal for men who experience irritation with other foils or who have a tendency toward ingrown hairs. It's also great for those who are trying an electric shaver for the first time. It makes the "break-in period," when the face becomes accustomed to electric shaving, more comfortable. The Sensitive foil is also great for touch-ups or before an evening out.

The three foils are packaged with Wahl's new top-of-the-line Custom Shave System and are also available individually. The shaver's patented DynaFlex dual cutter-bar drive system provides the speed for a fast, smooth shave and the ability to follow facial contours for a close, comfortable shave. The new custom foil heads provide the finishing touch — an individualized shave.

So, if you're looking for a great gift that's sure to be used, or a new shaver for yourself, look for the Wahl Custom Shave System from Wahl Clipper Corporation. It's the only one you can customize to perfectly match your face.

A CUSTOM SHAVE SYSTEM is a gift you can be sure will be used and appreciated. This holiday, Wahl offers the only electric shaver with three interchangeable foil heads to exactly match its user's face and beard.

Fax Your Way to a Joyous Holiday

It's Christmas Eve, the phone rings, and it's Aunt Edna wondering if you've received her fruit cake. Suddenly, you panic, remembering that you forgot to bestow her with the usual exchange a lovely fruit and wine basket.

Just think, with the help of a fax machine and "The Consumer's Guide to Fax-On-Demand Services," you can access a holiday finery catalog, order that fruit basket and have it beautifully packaged, express mailed and delivered to reach Aunt Edna so fast, you'll never have to admit how amidst all the holiday rush, you must be losing your mind to have forgotten her.

We've all heard of home appliances but home information appliances?
 The facsimile machine or "fax" is probably the most used office automation machine since the typewriter the computer, for that matter. But this big-business machine has entered the domestic market, too, now that 30 million households are part- or full-time businesses. That escalates the domestic fax market to the unbelievable 5 million mark.

With such explosive growth of fax sales for the home, faxing isn't just a business ritual anymore. Thanks to faxon-demand services, consumers are now instantly receiving information by fax — from sport scores, restaurant menus and theater schedules — to local news, airline flight timetables, classified ads and real estate listings.

Armed with only a low-cost home fax machine, users can easily access fax-on-demand information by calling a specified telephone number and following a series of prerecorded voice prompts. The user is presented with a number of information choices and billing information. The telephone keypad on the fax is used to select the desired information, with charges automatically billed to a credit card or your next

telephone hill

One fax company anticipated the emerging market for the household use of fax machines as domestic informa-tion appliances — Sharp Electronics Corporation, the leader in U.S. fax sales since 1987, introduced its NX-I Home Fax. With this innovative product, users get a lot for a mere $300 list price - including a complete wallmounted home communications center, which integrates a phone, fax, copier and answering machine hookup capability, that's designed exclusively for the household.

Besides having a multitude of yearround uses, as a holiday gift this machine promotes a whole host of seasonal conveniences, such as faxable greeting cards, party invitations, directions and catalog shopping. Travelling for the holidays can be even easier by using a fax machine to make hotel and airline reservations. And with new fax-on-demand services, users can get all the information they need when they need it.

Unlike other fax machines, the innovative NX-1 integrates useful features such as a pencil-free "memo pad" function, which allows the user to enter phone and fax numbers during a call using the keypad, then dial them later using the autodialer or print them out for future reference. This eliminates the need to store pens and paper near the telephone. In addition, the wall-mountable design adds spacesaving convenience (the unit occupies about as much space as an 8-by-10 photograph).

The NX-1 Home Fax is available at consumer electronics stores and retailers nationwide. For more information or to find a retailer nearest you, contact Sharp Electronics Corporation. Sharp Plaza, Mahwah, NJ 07430, or call I-800-BE-SHARP.

ARMED WITH only a low-cost home fax machine, the home can suddenly become a haven for fax-on-demand information and a wide range of services. As a holiday gift machine, the NX-1 Home Fax, by Sharp Electronics Corporation, can promote a host of seasonal conveniences including faxable greeting cards, party invitations, directions and catalog shopping.

Make Holiday Toy Shopping Easier

If the thought of holiday shopping frightens you, you are not alone. As winter draws near, Americans begin to make their gift lists and plan to conquer crowded stores and long lines. Holiday shopping for children can be especially difficult. given rapidly changing trends and large selections. Playskool has a number of tips that may help shoppers get ahead of the holiday rush:

Shop early. If you wait until the last minute to shop, gift selections may be limited and quality compromised.
Don't shop at peak hours. This will help to avoid long lines. Weekends, lunch time and immediately after the dinner hour are generally when stores are most erowded.

· Always save receipts in case an exchange is necessary. The recipient will appreciate the time saved waiting in line.

• Pay close attention to manufacturer age recommendations, especially where small children are concerned. Playskool helps shoppers with Ages & Stages, a new program that organizes Playskool products into categories according to the toy's appropriate age and stage of development: Newborn, Infant, Toddler and Preschool. In addition, the packaging features illustrative icons with a brief description that indicates the product's primary developmental benefits.

• Look for products that have extended play value and that are appropriate for more than one of a child's developmental stages. For example, Playskool's 4-in-1 Busy Center ($35) converts from an infant's busy center to a toddler's activity table, and then to a desk or easel for preschoolers. Another smart choice is the Truck Wagon ($25), which combines dump-truck and wagon play by easily converting from a large-styled dump truck to a sturdy wagon. This dual-activity product is ideal for indoor and outdoor play.

• Ask the child's parents where his/her interests lie. Some parents may prefer a learning toy such as Talking Alphie ($29), an electronic learning aid that teaches basic skills and actually tells a child whether he/she has the correct answer. Or, for kids who like to tinker. Cool Tools to $3) are perfect Cool Fools are a line of miniaturized real metal tools and accessories made especially for little hands. Also available is the Cool Fools Power Warthench ($30). Workhench ($30), Toolhox ($13) and Tool Betr ($10).

Playskool, the infant and preschool division of Hasbro, Inc., serves the needs of children prenatally to six years of age. For additional information or to find out where to purchase a product, consumers can and 800-PLAYSKL. s a.m. to 5 p.m. EST.

NOT ALL PRESENTS GO UNDER THE TREE OR TUCKED IN A STOCKING

Here are some suggested gift ideas from "365 Ways To Prepare For Christmas" (HarperCollins) that will not be found under the tree:

- Delivery of one perfect rose to the office every Monday morning for a year.
- A gift of long-distance calls for someone with family far away.
- A winter's worth of firewood for a city dweller with a fireplace.
- A cult certificate for spring delivery of a flowering plant or tree for the garden or roof terrace.

Breadbaking: A Healthy Holiday Tradition

When you smell fresh bread rising and feel the embracing warmth of the family kitchen, you know you're home for the holidays. Holiday bakers can easily capture the aroma and irresistible flavor of home-baked bread with an automatic breadmaker and a few special recipes.

Many more people are becoming aware of how easy bread-baking becomes with automatic breadmakers Now. Sanyo is offering breadmakers with special dough settings that allow creative shaping of twist-breads and buns that are made to be baked in a standard oven.

"Holiday breadmaking is now easier than ever before. Just place the ingredients into the bread machine and it does the mixing, kneading and baking, When you do have time to indulge your creative instincts, use the dough setting to create homemade masterpieces.

says home economist Vicki Gagliano. Sanyo's SBM-20 (under $280) and SBM-15 (under $200) cook up 2-pound and 1.5-pound loaves respectively. Both models come with extensive recipe books tested for success in dif-ferent climates. Just pour in the ingredients, choose the desired settings, and let the built-in microprocessor take over. Mixing, kneading and baking (if desired) are all done automatically.

A Holiday Gift Sure to Keep Babies Happy and Safe

As the holiday season approaches, purchasing an entertaining and safe product as a gift, or for your own baby, can be very difficult. Before they begin to walk, most babies between the ages of 6 and 15 months might enjoy the independence and stimulation of cruising around in a baby walker. But pediatricians and safety councils, including the American Academy of Pediatrics, the Consumer Federation of America and Dr. Benjamin Spock, warn that these walkers cause thousands of injuries each year — many caused by falling down the stairs — and they warn parents against using them.

Babies at this age are not necessarily ready for the mobility that walkers provide. They don't recognize danger, and their behavior is highly impulsive. The Child Development and Mental Retardation Center in Washington reports that babies can travel 3 feet per second in a baby walker, flying across room or down a staircase faster than the reaction time of even the most vigilant parent. Add this speed to the possibility of a safety gate being left unse-cured by forgetful family members, and the results can be disastrous.

Still, millions of parents, grandparents, family members and friends buy walkers for babies because of the versatility they can provide - they allow the baby to sit upright, he part of family activities and play with an attached toy or eat on a snack tray. Until now, parents have had few options. They have either decided against using a baby walker altogether, or have used one with careful supervision and 20881bly some guilt of worry.

Now, there is a new alternative. Summer Infant Products, Inc., has developed a product called the "Play It Safe Exercise and Activity Center." As the baby moves its legs and feet, the seat turns on a "lazy susan" like track. The product itself remains stationary, while enabling the infant to walk a full 360 degrees within the product. The seat allows the baby to bounce up and down easily, similar to the motion of a doorway jumper.

Play it safe provides an upright, stimulating play environment, which includes a feeding tray and five ageappropriate play stations mounted on

By designing this product to be stationary, we have given concerned parents another option for entertaining their baby," says Neil Kiely of Summer, "The stationary design can offer the child the same entertainment value, while eliminating the risk of falling down stairs or being exposed to other hazards.

For more information on Summer's Play It Safe Exercise and Activity Center or other infant produets, call Summer Infant Products at 1-800-9-BOUNCR, or write, 788 Reservoir Ave., Suite 155, Cranston, RI 02910, Attn: Department Play It Safe/PAR 194.

Parents Perplexed Over Plethora of Playthings Look to Kids for Toy Picks

Tis the season for parents to sift through the avalanche of new toys and games and brave miles of toy aisles nationwide. But parents — take heed — the task of selecting the best toy is much easier than it appears if you know where to look.

"Many parents look for the answers to their toy-buying needs on toy store shelves. However, a better place to start the search is much closer to home — it's with their children," says Dr. Istar Schwager, educational psychologist and parenting expert. Parents will succeed at finding a suitable toy if they observe their children's hobbies, interests, and personalities before going into a toy store.

Schwager offers the following guidelines on finding just the right toys for the kids on your holiday gift list.

Look for toys that encourage

• Look for toys that encourage social skills. It's important for kids to get along with other kids. Playing with toys that require two or more players encourages children to interact with one another. Through playing, kids learn important skills, like communicating, cooperating and negotiating with others.

with others.

• Consider your child's hobbies and interests. Your child's favorite activities will provide clues to the kinds of toys he/she would enjoy. For example, a child who is fascinated by bridges and the way they are built will appreciate a construction set. Children who show an interest in science might enjoy using a junior microscope set.

· Follow age guidelines. Always look on the toy box for age recommendations. They are provided by toy manufacturers for both developmental and safety reasons, and should be taken seriously.

• Provide the power to play. For any toys that require batteries, such as hand-held games, make sure you have the right number and size of batteries. Long-lasting alkaline batteries, such as Duracell, are recommended. For even better value, look for batteries in multipacks.

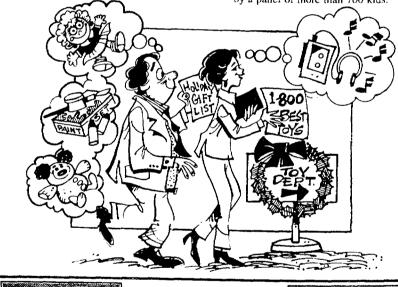

• Offer options. If you object to a toy your children choose, be honest and tell them why. Then try to offer some alternatives. You might be able to find a toy you can both agree on. For example, if your child wants an elaborate racetrack set, compromise and offer a radio control racecar.

• Select a few toys that travel well. The holiday season is a popular traveling season. Keeping your child busy during that long ride to grandmother's house can be a breeze if you bring along some well-chosen portable toys. Many toy companies now offer travel versions of their more popular games.

versions of their more popular games.
• Don't overlook time-tested treasures. What's hot in December may be old news by March. Time-honored favorites are always a good choice if you want to stay away from very trendy toys.

trendy toys.

• Ask 700 kids how they voted. For a sure-fire list of kids' favorite toys, call Duracell's 1-800-BEST-TOYS toll-free hotline. This hotline offers callers a list of the top 10 toys selected by a panel of more than 700 kids.

Spice Up Your Holidays With Cappuccino Cake

fect for holiday entertaining and giftgiving. Expanding the popularity of cappuccino and all things Italian, the makers of Filippo Berio Olive Oil have developed a delicious cappuccino cake made quickly and conveniently with a yellow cake mix. Quality ingredients, like espresso powder, hazelnuts and chocolate chips, add a unique flavor to the mix. The result: a coffeecake-like confection that's not too sweet and molto deliziosa!

In keeping with its Italian character, cappuccino cake calls for olive oil instead of butter or margarine. It may seem surprising, but mild-tasting offive oils, like Filippo Berio Pure or Filippo Berio Extra Light-tasting, are excellent choices for baking. As in other types of cooking, olive oil provides the health benefits of monounsaturated fat, along with a few culinary extras — like toco-pherols (vitamin E) for a smooth, homogeneous batter and small fat crystals for fine texture.

Next time your holiday plans call for a grand-finale dessert or gift-giving treat, try this easy-to-prepare recipe for cappuccino cake. For special pizzazz and flavor intrigue, top each piece with a generous spoon of sweetened ricotta topped with a bold splash of cinnamon. E magnifica! Serve with cups of cap-puccino, espresso or your favorite cofee, and you've created an elegant holiday tradition.

An Innovation for Those Who Can't 'Stand' Christmas Trees

Balsam pine or evergreen, one foot or 12 feet, decorated with strings of old popcorn or homemade ornaments made by children who just discovered also and elitter.

glue and glitter...

No matter what the size or type. Christmas trees bring the season's joy into the home. But they can also usher in holiday frustrations as families struggle with piercing pine needles, rusty screws, undersized and unstable stands, and the hassle of adjusting and readjusting the tree to stand straight—and crue that way.

and stay that way.

A new tree stand on the market this year, however, alleviates all of these frustrations. Swivel Straight^{1M}, developed by County Line Limited¹, was designed to allow one person to set up a tree — hassle-free and perfectly straight — in about one minute.

Swivel Straight's revolutionary design consists of two parts — a trunk receptacle and a base into which the receptacle fits. The trunk of the tree fits into the receptacle — without the need for trimming bottom branches — and is secured by a ring that is spun to grip three clamps around the trunk simultaneously. Once the clamps are tightened, the receptacle holding the tree can be leveraged into the base. By depressing the foot pedal located in the base of the stand, the tree can be adjusted and locked into place without stooping, crawling, loosening and tightening difficult screws, or injuring hands.

The 24-inch base adds to the stability of Swivel Straight, enabling it to support trees as tall as 12 feet. The size also allows for extra water capacity. Most trees require 1 quart of water per day for each inch of trunk diameter. Swivel Straight holds up to 6 quarts of water, while most other stands hold 2 quarts or less. Besides safeguarding against tree-fire hazards, this excess water reserve means less frequent water retills and a fresher tree. A tree kept fresh with water retains its pine needles longer.

So, for those 35 million households that, according to a Gallup study, preferred real trees over artificial trees in 1993, Swivel Straight brings glad tidings and cheer. It allows for all the benefits of a real tree—the family tradition of selecting or cutting down a tree, the fresh smell of pine and the "authenticity" it brings to the season—without the usual hassles of putting one up.

Swivel Straight, which retails for $89.95, is made of green, impact-grade, rust-proof polymers and is backed by a lifetime limited warranty. To locate a retailer in your area, call County Line Limited at 1-800-692-

Microwave Low-fat Holiday Meals

"Eat, drink and be merry," the popular holiday toast, is perhaps more accurately stated as "Eat, drink and gain several pounds." To take some of the worries out of your holiday dinners, why not consider cooking some low-fat holiday cuisine?

Microwave cooking is an ideal way to prepare holiday dishes since it is a fast, hassle-free method that requires little or no oil — resulting in low-fat meals that are easy to make.

"Microwave cooking fits right into today's healthy living trends. Today's microwaves can be used to steam vegetables, air-pop popcorn or sauté chicken without added fat, butter or margarine," says Vicki Gagliano, a home economist.

Sanyo just introduced two new microwaves that offer up to 1,000 watts of cooking power, and defrost and hold warm settings that are perfect for heetic holiday cooking. The EM-V830 ($230), and EM-V1K ($250) not only speed up cooking time, but include safer boomerang turntable action that returns dishes to the oven front so they are easy to reach and remove.

Other useful features of both Sanyo microwaves include one-touch programming of various food settings, including popcorn. The hold-warm set-ting keeps food hot and ready to eat for several minutes.

Try the recipe below for a low-fat alternative to traditional stuffing. By substituting turkey sausage for pork sausage, and sauteing the vegetables in your microwave oven without oil or butter, you can reduce the fat content. Another way to reduce calories is to use the liquid from the cooked mush-rooms to moisten the stuffing mix instead of the traditional melted butter or chicken broth.

TURKEY SAUSAGE STUFFING

Stuffing for 13- to 15-pound turkey

½ pound turkey sausages, sliced into ½-inch slices 1½ cups chopped onion

1½ cups chopped celery

1 medium apple pecied, cored and enopped
4 pound sliced mushrooms
3 cups herb seasoned stuffing mix

3 cups corn bread stuffing mix

Place turkey slices into 1½ quart casserole. Cover and microwave on High for 1 minute. Add onion, celery and mushrooms. Microwave on High for 3 to 4½ minutes or until sausage is no longer pink and vegetables are tender. Drain liquid, reserving to moisten stuffing, if needed. Add the remaining ingredients, mixing well. If stuffing seems too dry, add enough of the reserved liquid to slightly moisten. Do not over-moisten. Lightly stuff into cavity of turkey.

CRANBERRY-ORANGE SAUCE

4 cups fresh cranberries

2 medium oranges, peeled, seeded and chopped
1 large apple, peeled and diced
1 large pear, peeled and chopped

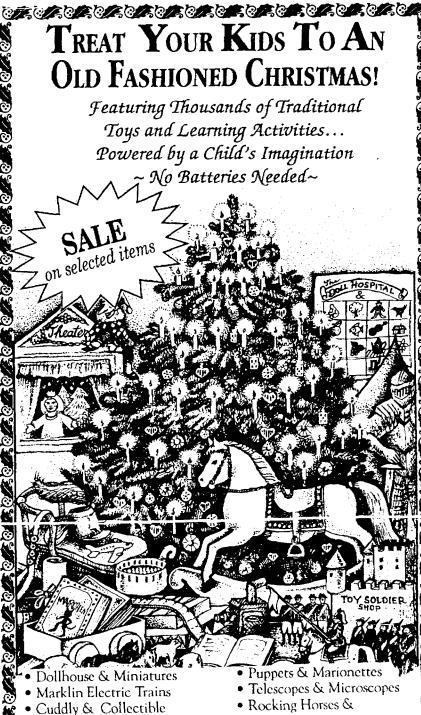

14 cups sugar
4 cup golden seedless raisins

2 tablespoons orange-flavored liqueur or orange juice

1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

Combine all ingredients in 3-quart casserole; stir well. Cover with wax paper and cook on High for 15 to 17 minutes or until cranberry skins pop, stirring every few minutes. Sauce can be served warm or cold, but flavors mellow after being refrigerated 21 being Will began in the many cold. being refrigerated 24 hours. Will keep up to two weeks.

Celebrate in Style With a Festive Brunch Fit for a First Family

Want to start a new tradition for the holidays? How about a festive brunch the perfect casual get-together to celebrate the season!

"Brunch is one of my favorite meals," says Henry Haller, who was the White House chef for five U.S. presidents and now consults around the world, "There are so many possibilities, but you can keep it light and fresh and then enjoy the rest of the

A few pointers from the presidential · Keep it light and easy. For the main dishes, pick recipes that can be made in one dish or pan — you don't want to be a short-order cook tied to the stove!

• Prepare in advance. Put together the ingredients for a quiche the evening before and pop it into the oven in the morning. Make muffins or popovers the night before, too. That way, the host or hostess can sleep in and still have a great time.

Make sure you have plenty of champagne or sparkling wine for the celebration. These elegant wines aren't just for midnight toasts! They're ter-rific with a variety of foods, and their light effervescence is perfect for a late-morning or early-afternoon repast.

Haller recommends a California sparkling wine like Loederer Estate. the California winery of the famous French house of Champagne Louis Roederer. Roederer recently sent a special wine to the White House for a state celebration. The winery's nonvintage Brut has been hailed by critics as equal to the best French champagnes. Usually available for $15 or less, it won't break the bank, but it will make an impression.

Haller offers the following recipe, a simple yet special centerpiece for your

A Day in the Valley of the Weavers

I Remember

By Kamran Karimpour

the mountain road and how it twisted around the rock walls and carried us ever closer, ever closer to the Arzhang Valley. If I close my eyes now, I can see the peaks, I can see the valley broadening and welcoming us, and I can hear the surging waterfall.

I was 10, maybe 11, this brilliant day, and on a family outing to visit the Gashgai tribe, an ancient people who make their home in this verdant valley of southern Iran, on the outskirts of Shiraz, the town where I was bom. The Gashgai are a gentle and homey people, whose weaving talents have given remarkable beauty to the world for hundreds of years.

As we neared the Gashgai encampment, our eyes and hearts filled with color. There were the beautiful Gashgai women, wearing their traditional clothing of brilliant reds, blues, yellows, and oranges. Against the background of their black tents, the clothing and the Persian rugs the women were weaving presented a kaleidoscope of dancing hues I carry with me to this day.

We were greeted by the Khan, the tribal chief, who was a good friend of my uncle, a high-ranking government official. The Khan invited us into the main tent for tea. Exquisite Gashgai rugs covered the tent. Huge Gashgai pillows on the floor were almost too beautiful to sit on.

While the adults sipped their tea and chatted, I went out of the tent to explore the encampment. I was drawn first to the compelling aroma of the central campfire, where whole lambs were roasting and giant pots of rice steamed over the glowing wood chunks.

I turned and saw one of the weavers, working on a horizontal loom. Her hands were magical, sending her bright woolen yarn flying back and forth through the fibers of the warp. From memory, she created stylized figures of dogs and chickens, bursts of flowers, and random runs of rick-rack. There were no tall buildings in the scene she was creating, no cars or jet planes, or anything else that existed beyond the valleys and mountains that she had never left.

If there were flaws in her work, they were the flaws which signal that true art has happened. Unlike machine weavings, the Gashgai rugs sing of the inviting irregularities of the natural world, and of the primitive purity of simpler times.

Turning again to take in more of the little settlement, I saw two Gashgai women walking away with completed rugs. I wondered where they were going and followed them down to the basin of the waterfall. They threw the rugs into the water. Then lifting their long skirts, they went into the water and danced about on the rugs, cleaning them of dust and loose threads.

In their dance, I saw the music of their work. The vivid colors of the rugs glistened in the water. It was not a chore that the women were doing now; it was more as if they were using their feet to sign their paintings. It was a thrilling moment! In the excitement, I jumped into the waterfall and scooted about on the rocks.

A young Gasghai woman in her tent

Cool and relaxed, and filled with the glorious spirit of the camp's artfulness, I wandered back to the main tent, giving thought as well to the glory of good food. Huge plates of rice and vegetables, and platters of fire-roasted lamb had been arranged on the floor of the main tent, on a Gashgai rug. The sensational taste of the food was equaled by the grandness of the setting.

So happily filled, body and soul, I unrolled a small rug in the shade of a mighty tree and lay back to nap and dream of the day I might become a merchant, selling Gashgai rugs in my shop in the bazaar of my town. Little could I anticipate, at age 10 or 11, how reality would rewrite my dream.

Now, some 20 years later, I have my shop and I sell the art of the Gashgai, which is the same today as when I was a child. Instead of the bazaar in Shiraz, I work in my store, Woven Treasures, in Birmingham, Michigan, thousands of miles away. My love of the ancient ways and the beauty from the old times is undeniable, but I have come to greatly enjoy the western lifestyle that I have settled into in America. I find much pleasure in educating the many visitors who come to my shop, teaching them to also appreciate the beauty of the ancient ways that these and other rugs represent.

A Great Gift Idea for Women

Whether you're choosing an electric shaver as a gift or for yourself, now you have a real choice...a single electric shaver with three interchangeable foil heads to accommodate all of a woman's special shaving needs...during the holidays and year-round.

ing the holidays and year-round.

Wahl Clipper Corporation recently introduced just such a unit...the Lady's Choice Custom Shaver. It features three interchangeable, hypoallergenic gold foil heads — Soft, Super Smooth and Sensitive. Each of the foil heads is extra-wide for fast shaving, and each was designed especially for the areas that a lady shaves.

"This is the only shaver that offers ladies a choice for day-in, day-out comfort," says Cindy de Long of Wahl Clipper, "The Soft foil is for everyday use for a good, close shave; the Super Smooth foil is for the closest shave possible on the legs; and the Sensitive foil provides irritation-free shaving of sensitive areas, such as the underarms. The Lady's Choice has the power of a man's shaver, but is designed for a woman's needs."

There's also a choice for ladies who like to shave in the shower. Lady WAHL Wet/Dry shavers feature a super thin foil screen for a clean, smooth, extra-close shave with or without shaving cream or soap and water. A sleek, ergonomic design is comfortable to hold, and a flip-open head allows easy cleaning under running water.

Two models are available. The Lady WAHL Cordless Wet/Dry Shaver has a single precision trimmer for longer hair. The Lady WAHL Rechargeable Wet/Dry Shaver has two trimmers: straight for longer hairs; curved for delicate areas.

Family-Affordable Laser Printers Brighten Holiday Messages

High-tech holidays are in this year! With more than 40 million home computers in use today, high-performance laser printers at family-affordable prices are in demand. With a laser printer and a personal computer, you can enhance every holiday message — from party invitations to children's letters to Santa. Documents printed from laser printers don't smear or fade with time, and their sharp, high-quality appearance will impress family, friends, teachers and business associates when used to create holiday messages.

Here are some ideas from Hewlett-Packard, maker of HP LaserJet printers, that can help you make a lasting impression by adding that "professional look" to your holiday greetings:

• Holiday letters — Remember the annual holiday letter that, in typical holiday haste, often ends up typed and copied onto plain white paper and circulated with holiday cards? This year, design your letter on a word processor or in a page layout program, and print copies on your laser printer. To give your letter that extra-festive touch, print it on one of the beautifully designed styles of holiday laser paper, easily available through catalogs from stationery companies, such as PaperDirect. Use the mail-merge feature on your word processor to personalize each letter individually for special friends and family. The same mail-merge data can be used to create mailing labels for letters and packages. Labels designed for laser printers can be purchased at nearly every office supply store.

• Festive invitations and customized greeting cards — Create and personalize your own holiday greeting cards and invitations with software such as Broderbund's Print Shop Deluxe, Salutations and messages can be individually tailored to make just the right impression. Instead of handwriting holiday invitations, simply choose an elegant typeface for your creation from the wide variety of standard fonts on HP LaserJet printers or from shareware and public domain fonts available from on-line services. computer user groups and at most computer dealers. Your friends will think you've ordered your festive holiday greeting cards and invitations from a specialty stationery shop.

· Holiday menus - For those planning a truly elegant holiday feast, why not produce a professional-looking menu and seating placards on colorful paper to enhance table settings? Try using some of the clip art available with illustration programs, such as Corel's CorelDraw, to develop artistic borders and ornamental highlights.

• Holiday lists — Holidays are made for list-making. Here are a few lists that you may not have thought of, but, when laser-printed early in the holiday season, may ease and enhance your yuletide activities:

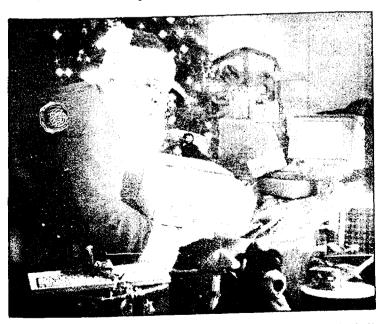

- your holiday gift shopping list - your child's important messages and wish-list for Santa — your holiday food, beverage and entertainment needs your vacation itinerary

important information for your baby sitter or housekeeper deadline schedules for mailing gifts to faraway friends and relatives When you do add a laser printer to your wish list this year, don't wait until the holidays to open the package. For more information on how Hewlett-Packard's LaserJet printers can brighten your holiday messages, call 1-800-752-0900.

SANTA KNOWS how useful a home laser printer can be during the holiday season! With an HP LaserJet 4L printer and a computer, anyone can make customized, professional-looking holiday greetings that will impress everyone on their list!

What's in Style? Look Under Your Nose

For millions of men of all ages, beards and mustaches are always in style. Facial hair makes a personal statement, as well as a fashion statement. But why is it more popular than ever?

"Baby boomers are looking for ways to recapture some of the excitement and vitality of their younger days," says trend-tracker Ross Goldstein. "Growing facial hair was one of their first acts of rebellion. Sporting facial hair today is a way to say that they haven't sold out."

For many, growing a beard is the easy part. Maintaining it takes dedication and the right tools. Wearing the right style and keeping it neatly groomed are essential to making a positive fashion statement.

Waht Clipper Corporation, maker of Groomsman Beard and Mustache Trimmers, has offered the right tools for a dozen years

"Whacking at your beard or mustache with a scissors and comb is risky business," says Pat Anello of Wahl Clipper. "It took a long time for us to develop the trimmer with just the right blades and attachments that make it virtually goof-proof. Our unique five-position trimming guide makes it possible to achieve blending, tapering and defining that were previously only available from a skilled professional stylist."

"Our research tells us 35.7 million men have facial hair, and 11.8 million have graying mustaches, beards or sideburns," says Dominic DeMain, group vice president of Combe Inc., maker of Just For Men Brush-in Color Gel for heards and mustaches, "For many, gray isn't the statement they want to make."

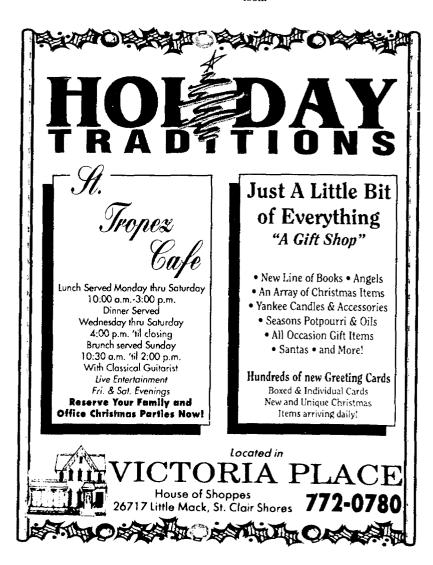

Wahl and Combe feel trimming and coloring naturally go together. "Beards and mustaches are back, and we're both dedicated to helping men who grow them look good and feel good about themselves," Anello says.

both dedicated to helping men who grow them look good and feel good about themselves." Anello says.

Tips on shaping and styling are contained in a booklet called "A Wahl Guide to Beard and Mustache Styling and Grooming." For a free copy, call 1-800-SAY WAHL. And look for Groomsman Beard and Mustache Trimmers and Just For Men Brush-in Color Gel at retailers everywhere.

'Home Office' for the Holidays

Call the '90s, if you will, the decade of the home office — a phenomenon that finds more and more adults operating their own home-based businesses, or bringing work home from the office.

Setting up a home office can mean moving away to a better area and fewer commutes, all made possible by advances in telecommunications and computing products.

Today's home office setup can serve

Today's home office setup can serve one or more family members, and should offer convenience with practicality and affordability. Space should be properly planned and equipment properly positioned to avoid getting the phone cord tangled up with the fax machine.

Sanyo is offering a wide range of space-saving, affordable core components to help people pick up on the home office trend. Whether you're shopping for a friend, or making a wish-list of gift ideas for yourself, home office products are a great gift idea.

Facsimile or "fax" machines have revolutionized communications technology, and doing modern business without one is certainly an outdated notion. Sanyo's SFX-30 offers the ultimate in quick, convenient document transmission and functions as a 3-in-1 telephone, facsimile and photocopy machine — all for less than $600.

Since no one has time to stand and send a fax sheet by sheet, the SFX-30 toads up to 10 sheets at a time. The unit's 28-number one-touch speed-dial memory saves valuable time.

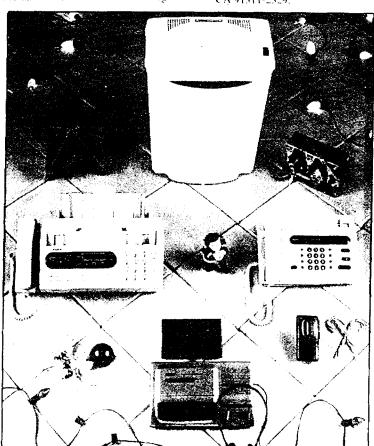

Shredding confidential documents isn't just something unique to politics. More and more businesses are using automatic paper shredders as a foolproof security measure. Dad can use it in his home office to shred old confidential bank statements, credit card statements and legal papers. Sanyo offers the SBS-620 shredder tyriced at about $330) that is capable of shredding nine sheets of 20-pound letter-size bond paper into thin, unreadable 1-inch strips in just 2.6 seconds. The shredder sports an automatic sensor switch that starts upon paper insertion and stops after shredding.

Another handy office product is the personal microcassette recorder. Pocket-sized recorders offer the business person the assurance that a word won't be missed at important meetings, or when dictating letters. Noted for its small size, Sanyo's model TRC-660M ($44.99) is a one-touch voice-activated microcassette recorder that measures a mere 25% inches by 55% inches by 1 inch deep. The voice-activated recorder on the model can be switched on or off.

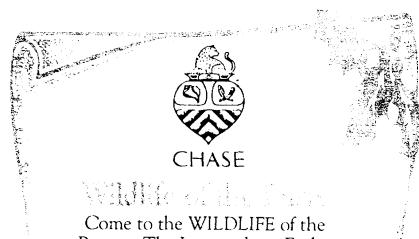

For professional transcribing from recorded microcassette tapes, Sanyo offers a new sturdy design and foolproof operation with the TRC-5200 ($339.95). This model features feather-touch operation, high-speed erase, and a handheld microphone with single-slide control recording and playback, which allows convenient one-handed operation. With two-speed recording, a standard 60-minute microcassette can record for 120 minutes, and an automatic one-tone index search helps you quickly locate recorded materials.

For information on the new Sanyo office automation lineup, or to find a store near you carrying these products, send a self-addressed envelope to Sanyo, 21350 Lassen St., Chatsworth, CA 91311-2329.

NEW OFFICE automation products from Sanyo are a cost-effective way to run a business in the comfort of your own home.

New Computer-Simulated Golf Game Tops Holiday Wish-Lists

As the ringing of jingle bells replaces the sound of sizzling flames from your outdoor grill, it's time to start thinking about guests and gifts again. But the cold, snow-laden winter can't seem to smother the flames of November's hottest sporting event.

While the four major championships—the British Open, the U.S. Open, the U.S. Masters and the USPGA—attract the greatest players in the world, the World Cup of Golf is the oldest and most prestigious golfing team event in the world

The '94 tournament was held at the beautiful Hyatt Dorado Beach Goff Resort in Puerto Rico, with qualifying tournaments held in Jamaica (the Western Zone) and a Mission Hills Course outside Bangkok (the Eastern Zone.)

In past tournaments, pro golfers such as Nick Faldo. Bernhard Langer, Fred Couples, Seve Ballesteros, Ian Woosnam and Nick Price have taken part in the World Cup of Golf. The recent consecutive victories of the Fred Couples and Davis Love III team in Orlando has attracted the attention of Americans everywhere to the World Cup.

Now gamers everywhere are fueling their desire to engage in this exciting sport with a realistic, new computersimulated golf game that has captured the international flavor of this global extravaganza.

The game has realistic options that can be tailored to affect a player's stance, ballspin and power of swing. Players may also choose to be male or female, and left- or right-handed.
