

Chalfonte sanitary sewer floods area; gatekeepers blamed

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

It happens. It wasn't the most welcome sight — or smell — to encounter so close to dinner time, but the Grosse Pointe Farms public safety department received a call on the night of Feb. 13 reporting that raw sewage was seeping into the street near the pumping station at Chalfonte and Kerby.

"One of the sluice gates (a verticle gate) was not in an open position," said Joe Leonard, Farms public service assistant. "When the sewage couldn't go into the Fox Creek system, it went up through a manhole cover into the street and into the city's (Farms') sewage system." The sewage spilled onto lawns in the area of Chalfonte, Hillcrest and Ridgemont, but the city received no complaints from residents about basements flooding and just one report of water damage to a car, Leonard said. The Farms public safety department received a call at 6:50 p.m. and by about 8:15 p.m. the situation was under control. Police cars blocked traffic while firefighters hosed down lawns affected by the sewage mess. The cleanup went until about

4:30 the next morning. "The residents were marvelous," Leonard said. "We were there until early in the morning and no one complained about the noise. They were very understanding." Apparently, the contractor forgot to leave the gate open. "It was just a screw-up in communications at the end of the work day," Leonard said. "We were surprised. They began a year and a half ago because the old Kerby station next door, built in 1929, could no longer handle the flow from the South Macomb Sewer District. It was easier to build a new station than make alterations to a building that is listed on the Michigan Historical Register. Clark will compensate the Farms for all of the cleanup costs.

(Clark Construction Co.) have done an excellent job. The work is almost done. This is the first inconvenience we've had." The new sewage pumping station handles waste from the South Macomb Sewer District, which comprises Grosse Pointe Woods, Grosse Pointe Shores, Eastpointe, Harper Woods, Roseville and St. Clair Shores. The federally mandated, but not federally funded, project

WE'RE CONCERNED ABOUT YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

News can appear one day and be gone the next. But the paper news is printed on can and should live on.

Last year more than one third of all U.S. newsprint was recycled. And that number is growing every day. Recycling is the one way we can all give something back.

Woods aims to ease boat well jam

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

As part of an effort to make obtaining a boat well at Lakefront Park more equitable, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council last week approved the first reading of several proposed ordinances that could greatly change procedures for obtaining wells.

Under state law, proposed ordinances must have two readings in a public forum before they can be enacted. Last week's reading constitutes the first reading.

"The council came up with the proposed ordinances after reviewing the whole boat well process late last year," said Woods city attorney George Catlin. "Among the many complaints heard by the council was the length of time it takes to get a boat well. Once placed on the waiting list, prospective boat well renters may have to wait years before getting a well. The council has proposed several ordinances in order to shorten that wait."

The first proposed ordinance would require the city's parks and recreation department to send out boat well renewal applications on Nov. 15, several months earlier than it normally does. The idea is to let city officials know how many boat wells will be available for people on the waiting list.

City administrator Peter Thomas told the council last year that waiting until after the new year to send out renewal applications means that the city often doesn't know who wants a well until February or March.

When people on the waiting list are finally notified of an opening, they have often already made other arrangements for boat storage, said Thomas. By sending out applications in November that have to be returned by December, the city can contact people on the waiting list before they make other arrangements for boat docking privileges.

The council also proposed an ordinance requiring city workers to directly contact boat well renters, said Catlin.

State school board trip called strictly business by Durant

By Wilbur Elston
Staff Writer

Clark Durant of Grosse Pointe, president of the Michigan state Board of Education, this week described as "very beneficial" a privately financed field trip that he and three other board members made to a Houston elementary school last week.

Asked to comment on a Detroit Free Press editorial criticizing the trip, Durant said it was a one-day "working trip," during which the visitors ate a box lunch and stuck to "a rugged agenda" at the school until their departure.

Accompanying the four board members were school superintendents from Romulus and Zeeland; two principals from elementary schools in Detroit; a former principal at Cass Tech in Detroit who now directs the curriculum for the Archdiocese of Detroit; two officials of the State Department of Education; a Family Forum representative; and a Detroit Free Press reporter.

Family Forum, an organization set up under IRS rules governing educational, charitable and scientific groups, sponsored the trip and picked up the air fare of approximately $200 a person.

In an editorial, the Detroit Free Press contended that the board members "have compromised their independence and dispassion in judging what is good for Michigan schools."

That resulted, the editorial added, because the trip sponsor, Family Forum, has its own agenda which includes "an effort to abolish Michigan's constitutional ban on public aid to private schools."

"You may agree or disagree with that goal," the editorial went on, "but it is a point of view that will have a profound effect on the future of public education."

In defending the trip, Durant said he "would go anywhere with any responsible organization that would offer me the opportunity to see and evaluate the performance of youngsters in an outstanding school like the one in Houston."

The school was Wesley elementary public school, whose principal, Thaddeus Lott, has attracted national attention for his pupils' performance. The Michigan delegation visited a number of classrooms, and, Durant said, were astonished at the knowledge displayed by kindergarten and second grade students and their ability to answer questions.

Furthermore, he explained, he is not doing anything to push a Michigan campaign to line up signatures on petitions for a constitutional change to permit state aid to private schools.

"Instead," he added, "to me the debate focuses on public education and the questions arise about approaches that might benefit the 1,700,000 youngsters in Michigan's public schools."

Durant added that in view of the board's limited budget for travel, he feels comfortable with accepting private financing for working trips, so long as full disclosure is made concerning the sponsor, as was done in this case.

He said that Family Forum is permitted to offer information to people in elected positions but not to lobby them.

the registration date, only to have people who rent wells miss the new deadline," said mayor Robert Novitke. "A lot of people are on vacation in November and December and could easily miss the deadline. This ordinance, requiring direct contact instead of just mailing out the renewal application, should act as a safeguard."

The proposed ordinance would require that renters pay a non-refundable fee equal to a third of the annual rental fee along with their completed boat well renewal application. The balance would have to be paid before April 1. Again, said Catlin, the idea is to discourage people from signing up for a well only to cancel after those on the waiting list have made other arrangements.

One of the proposed ordinances requires all those applying for a well must own a boat. When asked why by Novitke, Thomas replied that people in the past have often applied for a well space without owning a boat. Upon notification of getting a well, they purchase a boat, which often takes time, leaving the well empty for a good part of the boating season.

Another proposed ordinance would require all those wishing to get on the waiting list to pay a non-refundable fee of $50. This fee would not be applied to any city charges associated with actually renting a well. The idea is to discourage people from being placed on the waiting list only to have them decline a well when it is actually offered. When this happens the next person on the list has often made other arrangements for a boat, Thomas said.

The council will have the second reading of the proposed ordinances at its Feb. 27 meeting, where members can vote on whether or not to make the proposals law.

Cleanup equipment

Even though the Pointes are not industrialized, there is still a possibility of a passing truck spilling its contents. Therefore, the Woods, Shores and Farms collectively purchased equipment to contain spills of hazardous materials until an environmental cleanup crew can arrive. Equipment includes the special hazardous materials cleanup suits, dyking material, floating dykes for watercraft spills.

The $24,000 equipment is housed in a trailer. It has not been decided which municipality will be its permanent storage site.

Below is the trailer which holds the equipment.

Woods crime statistics — with some variations — consistently low

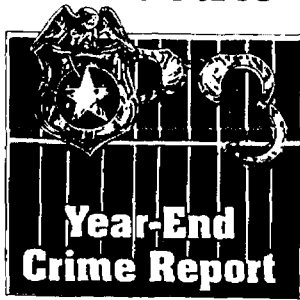

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Despite some officers being out on disability and a significant staff turnover in the last year, Grosse Pointe Woods crime statistics for 1994 remained consistent with previous years.

The city experienced an increase in the number of burglaries and larcenies last year, while incidents of armed robbery and auto theft decreased.

All police agencies are required to gather annual crime statistics and forward the numbers to the FBI for inclusion in its annual Uniform Crime Report.

Highlights of the 1994 report include no incidents of homicide and rape, which is relatively consistent with the last decade. The Woods had two homicides in the last 10 years and has not had a reported rape since 1989.

Robberies decreased from 10 in 1993 to three in 1994 and there was one reported assault.

Burglaries increased to 34 incidents in 1994, up from 19 in 1993. Larcenies increased to 322 incidents in 1994, from 298 in 1993.

"The sharp rise was reduced dramatically when we apprehended a subject who was responsible for the majority of unsolved burglaries and larcenies that had been committed," said Jack Patterson, public safety director. "We give credit to the uniformed patrol officers out there on the street, getting out of their cars and doing their jobs well. We had two cases last year that cut a wide swath through our town."

The Woods also had an increase last year in the number of drunken driving arrests, with 69 incidents, up from 52 reported in 1993. Patterson said he is surprised more by the 1993 figures than last year's numbers.

"I thought 52 was too low," he said. "Sixty-nine or 70 incidents is about average for our city over the years. When the Legislature changed the law in 1992, it quieted things down for a bit. But I think people are forgetting about the new law and we're seeing more people drinking and driving again."

Patterson said the department suffered extended personnel shortages in 1993 and 1994,

Part I crimes	Homicide	Rape	Robbery	Assault	Burglary	Larceny	Auto theft	Arson	Part II crimes	Minor assault	Narcotics	Weapons	OUIL	Misc.	Total
1994	0	0	3	1	34	322	25	0		57	22	8	69	2,708	3,249
1993	1	0	10	2	19	298	33	0		47	15	16	52	2,537	2,900
1992	1	0	7	9	24	301	39	0		38	16	6	83	2,720	3,101
1991	0	0	10	0	40	265	58	2		34	14	6	71	2,791	3,166
1990	0	0	11	2	67	275	28	0		44	7	15	78	2,916	3,299

with three officers on disability, including one officer who was injured when a motorist slammed his arm in a car door. The shortages led to minimum shift levels and realignment of officers to maintain a constant street presence.

"In spite of all that, everyone did a good job," Patterson added. "We had a big turnover in our department in the last year; we promoted six supervisors and hired five new people."

The Woods also was recognized last year with a first-place award from the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police for traffic safety. The department also received an award of excellence from the American Automobile Association for pedestrian safety.

History repeats: Shores 1994 crime stats low

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Not much happens in the residential Village of Grosse Pointe Shores — and that is reflected in last year's crime statistics.

The majority of crimes committed in the 3,000-resident bedroom community are property thefts and vandalism.

"Larcenies are up and break-ins are down," said Shores police chief Daniel Healy. "Larcenies are mostly stolen hubcaps or anything else of value that's stolen. Three of the 11 larcenies reported here last year were from one location and it was an internal problem."

Healy said 1994 was a good year. The village had no violent crimes — homicide, rape, robbery or aggravated assault — last year and has had only six incidents of a violent nature in the last five years.

Larcenies were up only slightly from 1993, but overall were significantly lower than in the previous three years.

"When you are dealing with low numbers like this," Healy said, "one or two can make a big difference. Drunken driving arrests, for example, are on the rise. When the new state law was first passed, everyone was concerned and everyone was being careful. For whatever reason, I don't know if people are getting used to the law, but they are not being as careful."

The number of OUIL arrests in 1994 jumped to 42 from 30 in 1993. Those numbers are still lower than the 71 OUIL arrests reported in 1990. Numbers dropped from 60 to 37 between 1991 and 1992, when the Legislature enacted tougher drunken driving laws.

Vandalism, which Healy calls a cyclical crime, is on the rise, with 13 incidents in 1994, up from eight in 1993. In 1990, the village had 27 reported incidents of vandalism. Throughout the Pointes, vandalism appears to be increasing, he said.

The only other category with a significant increase in 1994 was family and children domestic situations. Healy said if one or two families in the community are having problems, police may be called on multiple occasions to the same house. The numbers do not always indicate an increase in domestic violence.

"We stay pretty consistent here and that's the whole thing," Healy said. "I like to point out that we have a cooperative community. Everyone watches out for each other and you can do that in a small community. If someone is concerned about their neighbor or they see suspicious activity, they call the police. That is what helps to keep these numbers down."

Every police department compiles crime statistics each year and submits them to the FBI for inclusion in its annual Uniform Crime Report.

Farms bids adios to car thieves

Farms police found two men in their early 30s sleeping in a car in the St. Paul Catholic Church parking lot last Saturday night.

The car was a 1984 Subaru Brat, with Washington state license plates. The vehicle had been reported stolen from Portland, Ore.

When questioned by police, one suspect said he and his partner were heading to Washington state from Wisconsin.

The two men, both illegal aliens, were arrested and later deported to their native Mexico.

Tree vandal hits South High

A neighbor of South High School called Farms police late Sunday night when a teenage male was seen trying to snap a small tree on the school's property.

The youth was with a group of teens, who were telling him to stop damaging the tree. According to the police report, the youth said, "I'm taking this as a trophy."

When police arrived some members of the group, including the alleged tree vandal, fled in the direction of Maumee and Lincoln in the City of Grosse Pointe. Members of the group who did not flee gave Farms police the name of a teenage male who lives in Grosse Pointe Park.

The offense is malicious destruction of property valued at over $100. A report is being sent to South principal Mary Beth Herrmann.

Bottle breaks car window

A 17-year-old Farms youth called police last Friday night after he said a beer bottle was thrown through the back window of his car. The incident happened in the parking lot behind St. Paul Catholic Church.

Police have the name of a possible suspect, a 17-year-old male from the Park.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

By Shirley A. McShane

Auto mover is a wanted man

Farms police responded to a call last Thursday night reporting that three men were sitting in a trailer in the 100 block of Kenwood.

The men said they were hired to move two vehicles owned by the resident of the home where the men were parked, but none of the men carried any form of authorization to conduct the move.

The owner of the home confirmed that the three men were legitimate, but upon a background check, one of them was wanted in Dearborn Heights district court on an assault warrant and in Redford district court on a traffic warrant.

A doggone shame

A Farms couple reported Monday that an RCA dog statue was stolen from the front porch of their home in the 400 block of Lothrop.

The 36-inch, stone statue is valued at $75. Police are investigating.

Broken windows

A businessman in the 18000 block of Mack called Farms police last Friday after discovering three broken windows on the west side of his building.

Police are investigating the incident.

Jeep stolen

Park police received a report of a 1994 Jeep Cherokee stolen from the driveway of the vehicle's owner in the 1300 block of Balfour on Friday, Feb. 17. Police believe the Jeep was taken at about 4 a.m. Friday morning. The vehicle was recovered later that day in Detroit with the radio ripped out and the steering column damaged.

Shores ad man savors career change

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

For Grosse Pointe Shores resident John Vanderzee, the last few months have been a great adventure. He took early retirement from Ford Motor on Nov. 1, 1994, but he wasn't quitting the workforce, he was embarking on a new career as chairman of the advertising firm Young & Rubicam Detroit.

Vanderzee spent 31 years in various Ford marketing and advertising departments. For the last nine years he was advertising director for the Ford auto division. Before that, Vanderzee was in the advertising department at Ford's Lincoln-Mercury division from 1975 to 1985.

"This move is a complete career change for me," said Vanderzee. "A friend told me that I've gone from being the shooter to being the target. There is a very different corporate culture here at Young & Rubicam from Ford. This is a big adjustment for me. An ad agency is in the service business. We serve the needs of our clients, and that's quite different from being a client."

On his first day at Young & Rubicam, said Vanderzee, the mailboy came into his office and introduced himself to Vanderzee, calling him by his first name.

"Something like that wouldn't have happened at Ford," Vanderzee said. "Mailboys don't call company chairmen by their first name. But everyone here calls each other by their first names. It's just a difference in corporate culture. Here we have to be very quick on our feet. We have only 350 employees, and that's also very different from Ford."

But it's the challenges of the new job that make it so exciting, said Vanderzee. He has to make personnel changes, and has to worry about office revenue and billings.

"People stayed in the same departments in Ford," Vanderzee said. "Whether the company made money was someone else's worry, not mine. But here I have to consider those things. In advertising, people move around a lot, so it's a much greater consideration."

While Vanderzee has spent much of his working life in advertising, he didn't start out to be an ad man.

"I majored in mechanical engineering at Princeton," said Vanderzee. "When I graduated from the school in 1954, I spent three years in the Navy, mostly on a destroyer. When I got out of the service I worked briefly for Uniroyal. I learned early on that mechanical engineering was not what I wanted to do."

In 1963 Vanderzee joined Ford's marketing and sales department, where he performed a number of jobs. In the early 1970s he moved to Los Angeles for three years.

"Except for my three years in L.A., I've always been based out of Detroit," Vanderzee said. "Working for Ford is what got me back to Detroit. I've lived in Grosse Pointe since 1963, except of course for those years in L.A. I was marketing director of Ford's parts and services division when I was offered a position in the Lincoln-Mercury advertising department."

As an ad director, Vanderzee was responsible for his division's advertising strategy and the execution of that strategy. He was in contact with all the advertising agencies involved in that strategy and had control of the media budget. He worked closely with advertising agencies Young & Rubicam and J. Walter Thompson.

"It surprises people that the Lincoln-Mercury and Ford divisions use different ad agencies, but when you think about it it makes sense," Vanderzee said. "All the Big Three companies have different divisions, and these divisions not only compete with other car companies, they compete to a certain extent with each other."

"So it makes sense for each division to have a separate ad agency. They are going to need different things from an ad agency, and it puts the agency in an awkward position when two divisions of the same auto company are clients."

Advertising, said Vanderzee, is not what most people think it is. It is a process involving sophisticated marketing research techniques which use consumer research to tailor ideas to sell the product.

"It's not a bunch of casually dressed people sitting around thinking what they're going to say to each other," Vanderzee said. "If you don't follow the process, including a heavy reliance on consumer research, you're going to get into trouble. I've seen it happen."

One of Vanderzee's most pleasant memories of his days at Ford concerns Farrah Fawcett.

"I discovered her," said Vanderzee. "It was during the mid-1970s, when she was just another model. I started putting her in Lincoln-Mercury commercials. This led to her becoming known and getting the 'Charlie's Angels' job, after which, of course, we couldn't afford her anymore."

Vanderzee has an active social life as well as a busy business life. His two daughters and their children all live in Grosse Pointe. He is a member of a number of clubs, including the Country Club of Detroit. He enjoys golf, which is not unusual for someone who has spent the last 20 years in advertising.

As for the future, Vanderzee has no plans to retire from work.

"My job, it's terrific," Vanderzee said. "It's very exciting and very energizing. I get up in the morning thinking about work and looking forward to coming into the office. Joining Young & Rubicam has been a terrific move, and I don't regret it for a second."

State libraries push technology

The Michigan Library Association and its national information infrastructure task force are taking the lead in seeing that every library in Michigan provides electronic network-based information services to its users by the year 2000.

Michigan law calls for the establishment of a Michigan information network by June that will include services to state offices, local and regional school districts, public libraries, county and regional governmental units, higher education and state agency libraries.

Libraries will serve as both demonstration sites and training centers and librarians will have to adapt to this new technological environment through expanding existing competencies and developing new skills.

"When we talk about on-line resources for the average citizen," said Margo Crist, assistant director of public services at the University of Michigan Library and chairperson of the MLA task force, "we're talking about an enormous array of information that can empower the individual — from information for start-up businesses, agricultural data, tax forms, Social Security applications, health care information, international news, curriculum materials for teachers and children's resources."

While Michigan's 380 public libraries will eventually be a part of the superhighway's infrastructure, a statewide initiative is also under way to connect the state's K-12 schools to MichNet.

Abortion seen as divisive in '96 GOP race

Not surprisingly, Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole of Kansas has emerged as the early front-runner in a narrowing field seeking the 1996 GOP presidential nomination.

More surprising, however, abortion appears to have become an issue for the early GOP contenders, chiefly as a result of President Clinton's nomination of Dr. Henry Foster as U.S. surgeon general.

A new national poll showed Dole the favorite just before he and eight other Republicans unofficially started the 1996 presidential campaign in New Hampshire last Sunday, a year before the first presidential primary there.

But new entries and withdrawals clouded the GOP field. Former Vice President Dan Quayle, for example, apparently pulled out because of inability to raise a campaign war chest.

Opinion

However, his withdrawal came after three other wannabes made the same decision. They were Bill Bennett, former secretary of education; Dick Cheney, former secretary of defense and ex-congressman; and Jack Kemp, former secretary of housing and urban development and another ex-congressman.

But a more surprising announcement came last week from House Speaker Newt Gingrich of Georgia, when he said he would not be a candidate for the presidency in 1996.

His announcement left Dole in the favored position, although the Christian Coalition has not always been happy with the Kansan's brand of Republicanism, which often is more moderate than conservative.

Even as Hoosier Quayle withdrew, however, another Hoosier entered the 1996

GOP race. He is Sen. Richard Lugar, a veteran Senate Foreign Relations Committee member and a recognized foreign affairs expert.

Another conservative, Pat Buchanan, who made a run against then President George Bush in the 1992 GOP primaries, is also back in the race with his noisy and extreme right-wing views.

While the right wing still is an important player in the campaign, the Christian Coalition fired a dud when it warned it would not give its full support to the GOP unless the party nominated two pro-life candidates.

Dole, Quayle and Lugar promptly replied that the GOP is seeking to include, not exclude, more voters. But Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas waffled on the issue while trying to prove to a TV audience he is "the" conservative GOP presidential candidate, although later he, too, seemed to renounce any GOP litmus test.

Dole reportedly seeks to discourage President Clinton from pushing the Foster nomination, presumably because the Christian Coalition has made abortion a divisive GOP issue.

But Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania had contributed to the divisiveness of the issue with his lonely campaign as the only GOP pro-choice candidate in the presidential race.

However, what appears to count most in the early presidential campaigning is the ability of candidates to raise the $20 million seen as the minimum needed to run.

Neither Dole nor Gramm is likely to have trouble raising the necessary money, but a more important question for Dole apparently will be whether he can spare sufficient time from master-minding the Senate to maintain his front-running status and his presidential money-raising drive.

In bowing out of the presidential race, Gingrich had said he had to make the most of his position as the first GOP speaker in 40 years. That appeared to imply that Dole as Senate majority leader should do likewise.

A GOP contract with evasion?

As the GOP House churns out more and more of its Contract with America, it is beginning to run into criticism from the more deliberative U.S. Senate or outside critics.

For example, Al Hunt, Washington bureau chief and columnist for the Wall Street Journal, recently criticized the balanced budget amendment, which has passed the House and is now before the Senate.

Even if unfunded mandates are abolished, as it now appears they will be, Hunt wrote that "the states will take it on the chin," if the amendment is approved by Congress and the state.

Governors have said they would accept a 10 percent reduction in the 600 categorical grants if they are turned into bloc grants with fewer federal strings attached.

However, Hunt wrote, the amendment would require even greater reductions, and the big entitlements — Medicare, food stamps and welfare — "would be cut drastically."

Hunt quoted Robert Bork, the conservative legal expert, who envisions that if the amendment passes, "unelected judges would be dealing with hundreds of suits to enforce — or not enforce — the proposed amendment."

And a Democrat, Rep. David Obey of Wisconsin, predicts that if the amendment is approved, the deficit will soar as it did under Reagan, and that "three years after it is passed we still (would) have a deficit well over $100 billion."

While a Journal opinion poll showed 68 percent of the respondents favored a balanced budget amendment, 61 percent voted in opposition if the amendment required a 20 percent spending cut in major entitlements.

Hunt's piece offers additional evidence that neither Congress nor the American people have yet learned there is no free lunch in government.

4th Amendment under fire

Apparently following the lead of the GOP House in Washington, the Republican state Senate has approved a bill jeopardizing people's rights under the 4th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Like the bill recently approved in the U.S. House, the state Senate bill would permit the introduction of evidence in a criminal proceeding even though the evidence was seized in violation of the Constitution, a law, an ordinance or a rule.

That, at least, is the contention of Sen. Joe Young of Detroit, who represents the 1st District, which includes the five Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods and part of Detroit.

In effect, the Senate bill, like the House bill in Congress, would make exceptions to the so-called exclusionary rule that requires evidence seized in violation of the 4th Amendment to be excluded from any trial.

If the House should pass the bill and it becomes law, Young said that "there is no way that this law will be applied equally to all." Instead, he added, some people would enjoy the 4th Amendment protections and some would not.

The efforts in both Washington and Lansing appear to be part of the GOP campaign to crack down on crime through new legislation. But minimizing citizens' protections against "unreasonable searches and seizures" does not appear to serve the legislation's overall aim.

Sparky's last hurrah as Tiger?

In speaking out again in Monday's Detroit newspapers, Sparky Anderson may have given his last hurrah as a Detroit Tiger manager.

Hail to books

Clifton "Kip" Fadiman, who at 90 is still chief editorial adviser to Tracy Brown, editor-in-chief of the Book-of-the-Month Club, recently offered this response when asked what the mission of the club should be as it nears its 70th birthday:

"To be a preserver of the tradition of the humanities, because that tradition is being questioned now. With the increasing dominance of technology, we are listening and looking more and more, but we are meditating less and less.

"The book is a form of soliloquy really. It's a soliloquy with yourself, with the author as a medium. Reading requires a real effort of the mind, whereas television, the media in general, give you everything at once."

So let's hear it for books.

After taking a walk last week and returning to California this week on an unpaid leave of absence, Anderson reiterated in an interview before he left that he would not manage a team of replacement players.

Talking to a pair of Free Press sports writers, he also charged that the team had been run "with phoniness" in recent years, creating what he called "a mess."

Asked if he would sign a contract to manage the club in 1996, Sparky said he would have to talk first with John McHale Jr., identified by the Free Press as "apparently the only high-profile Tiger executive" Sparky trusts.

Public opinion seems to be divided on Sparky's decision, although we give him credit for expressing a high principle in refusing to accept replacement players as major leaguers.

Most people, however, will agree with his expressed hope that a solution to the stand-off between the owners and the players still could be found in time to open the 1995 season with major-leaguers.

Letters

Not far enough?

To the Editor:
The letter writer who values enthusiasm over experience and knowledge and who characterized last year's teacher bail-out as a buy-out ("Fewer MAs, More BAs," Grosse Pointe News, Feb. 16) does not go far enough in her suggestions to improve the caliber of Grosse Pointe teachers.

If BAs fresh out of college are more cost effective than teachers with MAs or higher, let's dispense with degrees altogether and just hire enthusiastic young teachers fresh out of high school. They'd be so enthusiastic that we could probably get them for close to minimum wage. After they taught for a year or so, we could get rid of them and replace them with a new crop of high-school graduates. That would really keep our expenses down.

I'm being sarcastic, of course.

Enthusiasm is a fine quality, but it doesn't count for much without a solid grounding in subject matter, an ever-renewed commitment to one's speciality, and the wisdom that comes with experience. Maybe if we gave all of our teachers the support that they deserve, there wouldn't be so much burn-out in the profession and some long-time teachers wouldn't lose that all-important enthusiasm.

Personally, I believe it takes great dedication to go into the classroom day after day, to prepare lesson plans, correct papers, attend meetings, chaperone dances, and perform the myriad other tasks teachers are called upon to do. For continuing to do it and trying to better themselves at it, teachers should be rewarded, not punished.

School board gets hands slapped

To the Editor:
Citizen after citizen stood up at last Monday night's meeting to let the school board know that its unwillingness to provide accurate information played a key role in one of the school millage defeats.

The school board in its usual manner did not elaborate again, which was evidence of its further contempt for the taxpayer.

School board members Mrs. Bourke and Mrs. Schneider announced they would be running for reelection; herein lies the problem. Other than Sears Taylor, every other board member is not interested in dealing with the real issues before the taxpayers of Grosse Pointe: that is, good schools, with good teachers, doing a good job at a fair millage rate.

The school board wants to continue acting as if past conduct is appropriate for the future. Let me assure the school board that its actions will not go unnoticed. The citizens of Grosse Pointe are very much alerted to what is happening and will be looking in the future for counter points of view.

Mr. Anderson (school board president) was challenged that if the school board is going to send information out with school children, space for the counter point of view should be made available on the same printing. I strongly concur.

Don't take good schools for granted

To the Editor:
I attended my first school board meeting on Monday, Feb. 13, to determine if in fact this community has turned its back on its school system as the millage election results would seem to indicate.

This is of primary concern to our family, since the reputation of excellence of the Grosse Pointe

the jury — Not!

Don't call me for jury duty. I've never been a juror but twice I have been summoned to show up for jury selection. The first time, I sat in a courtroom with other potential jurors, fidgeting on a hard wooden bench, wondering where the judge and attorneys were. After we had endured the better part of a morning, the court officer walked in and announced that the parties involved had settled their dispute and thank-you-very-much-we-could-all-go-home. The second time, I sat in the same courtroom with another batch of potential jurors. A scruffy, bleary-eyed man sauntered in, poured a cup of coffee, grabbed a chocolate éclair, sat down next to me and proceeded to consume his breakfast. The rest of us — awkward and unsure of what we could and couldn't do — had left the continental breakfast untouched. I remember thinking that the man didn't seem like a potential juror — he looked more like a defendant. In fact, I remember thinking he looked like he had spent the night in jail. As I chided myself for harboring prejudicial thoughts and concluded that I probably wasn't made of juror material, the court officer marched into the room, signaled to the éclair-eater to come with him and ordered the rest of us to go into an adjacent conference room. After the group of us had waited another 10 minutes in the cramped, paneled room, looking at each other with puzzled expressions and shrugging our shoulders, the officer returned and announced that we were dismissed because (I knew it) the defendant had entered the courtroom and sat among us. So much for civic duty. When I returned to work on both occasions, my editor at the time said he wasn't surprised since reporters rarely are selected to serve on juries. Back then I was disappointed; I wanted to be on a jury, thinking it would be exciting to witness court proceedings up-close. I have learned a lot since then. After sitting in on two murder trials, numerous preliminary hearings and sentencing, I've found that 95 percent of court proceedings are dull and nothing like "L.A. Law" or "Perry Mason." Most people who have never been inside a courtroom are learning this from the O.J. Simpson trial. How exciting are hours of testimony and cross examination of a witness who heard a dog barking? The lawyers' opening and closing arguments aren't as Shakespearean in their drama and never, ever have I seen an audience member leap from his seat moments before a judge delivered a sentence shouting, "Wait. It was me. I killed him." There are those moments when testimony is compelling, when a witness is hostile or emotional or when someone who was close to the victim loses his or her fragile hold on composure. And the result, I've learned, is not excitement, but a sadness for the people involved, and a sense of voyeurism as you witness public displays of private grief. And at the end of the day I emerged from the courthouse feeling drained. While covering those trials, I looked at the jurors and imagined I was in their place: How would I decide this case? Would I convict or acquit? Could I set aside my gut feelings, prejudices and life experiences and judge the case solely on the facts and based on the judge's instructions? Can anyone ever be certain of anything beyond a reasonable doubt? People I have known for years — all my life — are still able to fool me once in a while. I never seem to get over the shock of learning something dark and ugly about a person who seemed so nice on the outside. Conversely, some of the people whom I haven't known well who appeared to be one way often were quite the opposite when I made the effort to know them better. Please don't call me for jury duty. I have the utmost respect for those who do serve, and if called, I would not dodge my civic duty, but if I had the choice ...

What's new in New Hampshire

If you have any connection with New Hampshire's Plymouth State College, you will probably soon be hearing from Julie DeGalan, who was named Jan. 19 as director of college advancement at that venerable institution and continues her job shepherding endowments and major gifts.

Ken Eatherly

The daughter of proud parents Joyce and Charles "Rip" DeGalan, of the Farms, Julie graduated from South High in '72 and majored in geography at MSU before heading east, where she eventually married a professor at Plymouth State. While working in the college placement office, Julie co-authored four volumes of a 1995 "great jobs" series (for history, psychology, foreign language and English majors) that's used by students and grads.

Stuff and nonsense

"I don't know why there's been a demand for toy stuffed squirrels lately," Village Toy Company manager Lynn

Turner told me last Wednesday. Mine was the fourth request in a couple of weeks, and for that item at that store, that's a lot.

As she took my order for a nice brown squirrel which I plan to give to a particularly squirrel-pestered friend on April 1, she reassured me a new batch would arrive soon.

Maybe those three others had the same idea: The only good squirrel is a stuffed squirrel.

Any white ones available? "That's one color I've never seen," says Lynn.

I like the credo of Nancy Renick, who owns the store with her husband, John. "We look for toys that last, that have real play value, that teach something and that are safe," says Nancy. "I won't carry anything that encourages violence."

The hottest item in the store right now is POGs, which stands for pineapple, orange, guava and looks like a collection of old-style pasteboard milk bottle caps decorated with fancy artwork.

Especially popular with the middle school set, they're stacked up, then flipped in the air with a special disk called a slammer, after which the kids trade them like baseball cards.

At my age, of course, this makes absolutely no sense — but now that I know what they are, I'm going to start picking them up when I see them lying on the sidewalk. Along with the 18 mittens and gloves I've salvaged from curbsides and snow banks so far this winter. (Think one may be yours? Just call Ken's Mitten Rescue at the number below and describe it.)

Just hum it

A confidential FYI source who happens to know the daughter of a certain Park couple passed this one on: Tom and Anne Smith, of Yorkshire, were pictured on the front page of the Grand Haven Tribune for Feb. 4 when they were named leaders of the Grand Haven International Kazoo Marching Band.

"They have a cottage there and somehow got into this kazoo thing," says our tipster, who had no explanation as to why people would be marching down Main Street in the dead of winter, with or without kazoes.

He added that the Smith's daughter, who goes by the initials K.C., has mixed feelings about her parent's sudden burst of fame.

Nothing to be bothered about, says I. Why, it takes minutes and minutes to master the kazoo.

If you have an FYI tip or just one mitten, call Ken Eatherly at 822-4091.

FLOWERS BANK, Belize — Most of the little towns along the river are connected to the wider world by a bus or two every day. Not this one. Here, if you want to shop or do business in the city, you must first reach the main road four miles away. Last week, we went out in Reuben's schoolbus.

Nancy Parmenter

We got a late start, missing the last bus before we were even under way. Crossing the bridge over Mussel Creek, Reuben backed the bus to the river bank. He and Clinton pushed and shoved and jumped on the dory to get it out the back door for Miss Dollie's and Mrs. Flower's day of fishing.

The rest of us drove on to Burrell Boom. That's as far as the schoolbus goes. Now we stood by the roadside, hitchhiking; Miss Robinson, Miss Daisy, and I on one side, the men on the other. Amazingly, within 10 minutes a man came along in a truck big enough for all of us. And he took us all the way into town. "Have you ever hitchhiked before?" Reuben kidded me later. Gosh, not since I was about 15.

Our banking, shipping, eating, writing, faxing and walking done, some of us caught the noon bus back, while Mrs. Robinson stayed in town for a wedding.

This time Miss Daisy and I got off with all our packages at Mrs. Flowers' house. Time to wait for Reuben's schoolbus again. In the yard, Miss Dollie and Mrs. Flowers were cleaning fish, their morning on the creek was productive: At least 50 good-sized fish overflowed a huge wooden basin. For two hours, they rhythmically scraped, sliced, scaled, gutted and rinsed their catch. Leaving the heads and tails on, they made deep cuts in the sides and rubbed coarse salt inside and out.

And they laughed to think I'd never cleaned fish.

Later that week, Reuben and Dollie took me to Mussel Creek, and this time we parked the bus in the bush and walked a muddy path through a dark thicket. Unimaginably, this was the main road until the '60s. In wet weather it was impossible and vehicles stopped at the creek. That isn't hard to believe, as the heavy mud sucked at our feet even though it hadn't rained in over a week.

On the mushy edge of the creek were two well-used small dories with water in the bottom. Reuben and Dollie resourcefully bailed the water out and used mud to plaster the bigger cracks. No Belizean is ever without a machete, and Reuben hacked some branches to wedge in as seats.

We're off, Dollie sitting in the bottom of one dory, sprinkling flour on the water to attract small fish, casting her hand-held line. The prow of our dory is rotted away; although roughly patched with sheet metal, it isn't long before we're shipping water and bailing.

The marsh is full of northern jacanas and herons, kingfishers onhingas, and a crocodile that splashes away before we can schools is what induced us to move here three years ago in spite of the close proximity to Detroit. We believed this community embraced and supported the same value system as ours. Quality schools and support for those schools are among those values.

Underneath the barrage of complaints against the school board, there still seems to be a concern for quality schools. The disagreements seem to be in the attainment of this goal and how much it should cost.

I personally feel the cost is well worth the result. We have two daughters attending Monteith Elementary School. We have been very satisfied with their educational experience thus far. The teachers we have encountered are dedicated professionals, committed to providing the academic experience necessary for a successful and productive life as an adult.

I do not want to cut fiscal corners in trying to attract and retain qualified and teaching personnel, nor in maintaining and enhancing educational equipment, school buildings and grounds. A school is a home away from home, and should be treated as such. Quality does not come at bargain-basement prices. We are willing to pay for the best.

One of the biggest complaints voiced at the board meeting was the perceived absence of forthrightness by the board in presenting the millage request.

I would agree that the school board did not clarify the issues, especially the $2.4 million library money, as quickly as they should have. The request for a clear budget detailing how our money is spent is also not out of line.

Constructive debate supports prudent decision-making. The one-room school house concept, however, will not produce the results that I expect of a school system. Some people in this community are willing to pay for nothing more. Being taken for granted also applies to this community's attitude toward its school system.

Complacency is an insidious malady. If this community takes its schools for granted, the value system of this community will be weakened. Quality schools are one of the underpinnings of our value system. Proposal A seeks to produce a level playing field of mediocrity in the funding of schools.

If this community is no longer willing to strive for, support and fund educational excellence, it will cease to be attractive to families that demand more of their schools. The high property values everyone should cherish remain so because families desire to live here. In most cases they choose the Grosse Pointe community because of the schools. The two are linked.

I believe many citizens took the passage of the millage request for granted. Consequently, not as many supporters of the schools voted as should have.

I am urging the school board to schedule another millage request. I am hoping this initial defeat will serve as a wake-up call for all parties. If support for the schools is still lacking, I must question whether Grosse Pointe is an appropriate community in which to raise a family and, subsequently, retire.

If this community no longer attracts and retains families like most of those which currently live here, cutting the school budget will be a minor issue. This community will have cut its throat. Families which embrace sound value systems are the backbone of any community.

see it. And Miss Dollie brings home another 16 fish.

Some days I work at the sanctuary museum, mostly of- fice "think-tank" stuff; Miss Iola and I making lists and more lists. On Tuesday, a quiet day because the usual cruise ship of tourists didn't materialize, a couple of young Canadians loafed around the museum yard all day.

"Be my Valentine," one proposed. "I haven't got one." Having thus secured my affection, he sat and sketched for a while. When last seen, he was contemplating eating a boa constrictor and looking a wee bit squeamish.

Fallett found the road-killed snake down by the bridge and brought it to the museum to skin, holding it, still coiled on a stick, he attracted a crowd of German tourists, who forget all about seeing the monkeys. In short order, one of the Canadians tied the snake head-up to a branch and began to skin it carefully. He worked the skin down over the tail as a gang of young Belizeans watched.

"Eeewow," a boy muttered, wiping his hands on his pants. Puppies tumbled over the plastic bag of entrails, coming back faster than they could be evicted.

"We're ready to cut it into steaks now," the snake carver said, flourishing his blade.

My valentine looked a little green around the gills.

Parmenter is spending some time in the Community Baboon Sanctuary in Belize.

Saying goodbye with dignity

The past few weeks have taken their toll on many of us. We have lost six friends in less than three weeks and have been logging an astonishing number of trips to funeral homes and funerals. Some of those who have died had lived long and productive lives; however, too many of our friends seem to be leaving us prematurely. It is difficult to attempt an understanding of the why's and we would be foolish to try. A strong belief in a Greater Plan helps us when we feel overwhelmed.

What has become an enormous comfort is what we friends have witnessed during this time period. There has been a wondrous pulling together of family and friends. It is more than the stopping in, bringing food and hand-holding. Such an outpouring of love has illustrated the depth of emotions experienced by surviving friends and families. In many cases it was difficult to leave the funerals, thereby acknowledging that this part of the bond of our relationship was truly over.

Certainly the life cycle continues and it is never more apparent than when surviving children hold their newborns in their arms. There is the sadness that the grandparent will never know these children; however, there is also the affirmation that a continuity is assured and the ongoing chain is not broken, but another link has been added to it.

In our opinion, two things warrant acknowledgment. The first is the involvement of the children in the services. In most cases young adults came to the head of the church to address the mourners. They told stories, painted vivid portraits and even sang to us at what must have been a devastating time for them. Through their sharing of personal experiences, including an occasional release through laughter, it enabled us to join in the reminiscing with joy and unabashed tears. These young people made us feel better. What a lovely testament that is to their loved ones. We were deeply moved and proud.

The second thing that we noticed was the careful and personal choice of music for the services. One family chose Welsh music with resounding strong voices that reflected the character of their father and husband. In each case the music chosen seemed perfectly suited to the occasion and the personality of whose life was being celebrated. From the "Ave Maria" to "Onward Christian Soldiers" we were transformed through the remarks, religious services, and music and were left with the feeling that those who have gone ahead of us were well-loved and represented by their families. The dignity with which they conducted themselves will be remembered by all of us who were privileged to be present.

Auctioneer lists the top classic car buys

Some of the upscale, "true" classics will make a comeback this year on the auction circuit, according to Dean V. Kruse, chairman and chief auctioneer for Kruse International of Auburn, Ind.

Kruse has put together his "Dean's List" of the 10 best buys in 1995, based on his estimate of appreciation rates in the coming year. High-line classic nameplates like Duesenberg, Cord, Auburn and Ferrari are on his list for the first time in several years.

Prices for these investment-level classics have been stagnant in recent years, but Kruse predicts that these makes will begin to take off again. Prices are based on vehicles in near-perfect shape and should be adjusted for condition.

At the top of the price pile, Kruse expects 1929-34 Duesenberg Murphy roadsters to appreciate by about 15 percent this year from current auction prices of $600,000 to $800,000.

The Duesenberg was arguably the greatest car ever built in the United States. Designed by Fred Duesenberg, the car was built in Indianapolis from 1922 through 1937. Always financially troubled, Duesenberg Inc., was acquired by E.L. Cord in 1926, who told Duesenberg to build a super car that would stand among the world's most magnificent automobiles. He did. It was the Model J.

Introduced in 1929, only 480 Model Js were built. Almost all were owned by the famous or infamous — movie stars such as Clark Gable and Gary Cooper, maharajahs, politicians, industrialists, financiers, gangsters and evangelists. (The largest Duesenberg ever built, complete with throne, was a gift to Father Divine.)

The company preferred to sell its cars complete, with bodies by its superb in-house designer, Gordon Buehrig, who lived the last years of his life in Grosse Pointe Shores until his death in 1990. But Duesenberg also sold many chassis for custom bodies by outside coachmakers.

"During the days of the Duesy, custom coachwork was an expected expense," said Kruse. "Among the many coach companies of the day was the Walter M. Murphy Co., which fitted 126 cars for Duesenberg Inc. Perceived as a young-in-heart body maker, Murphy styles sported bright colors, handsome lines and many popular open models, such as roadsters."

Two Auburn models are on the Dean's List, the 1935 Auburn convertible coupe and the 1928-36 Auburn Boattail Speedsters. The Boattails are the more valuable and are featured attractions at many classic car shows. But the '35 Auburn convertible coupe, based on the conventional Auburn body, is very handsome also, although less flashy.

Autos

By Richard Wright

"Hinting of strong design influences from both Oldsmobile and Cadillac styling, the 1935 Auburn 8 convertible coupe offered consumers a better quality ride, optional hydraulic brakes, optional dual-ratio rear axle and a lower seat," Kruse said.

He expects the model to appreciate by 20 percent this year. It is currently selling in the $38,000-$45,000 range.

The Boattail Speedster, another Gordon Buehrig design, was Auburn's reaction to the Stutz Blackhawk, Kruse said. "Priced underneath both the Blackhawk and Bearcat models, the Auburn Speedster broke speed records at Daytona and Atlantic City," he said. "Particularly popular are the 1933 Eight Salon Boattail speedsters and the supercharged 1935 speedster."

He said current auction price ranges are $60,000-$75,000 for 1929-31 models; $150,000-$185,000 for 1933-34; and $124,000-$175,000 for the supercharged 1935-36 models. Kruse expects they will increase 18 to 20 percent in value this year.

A third Buehrig design, the popular coffin-nosed Cord, is a good buy this year, Kruse said, particularly the 1937 Cord Model 812 Supercharged Sportsman. "The automobile represented E.L. Cord's last efforts to keep the Cord Corp. competitive after the effects of the Depression — a dream that ended that very same year when all production stopped," Kruse said.

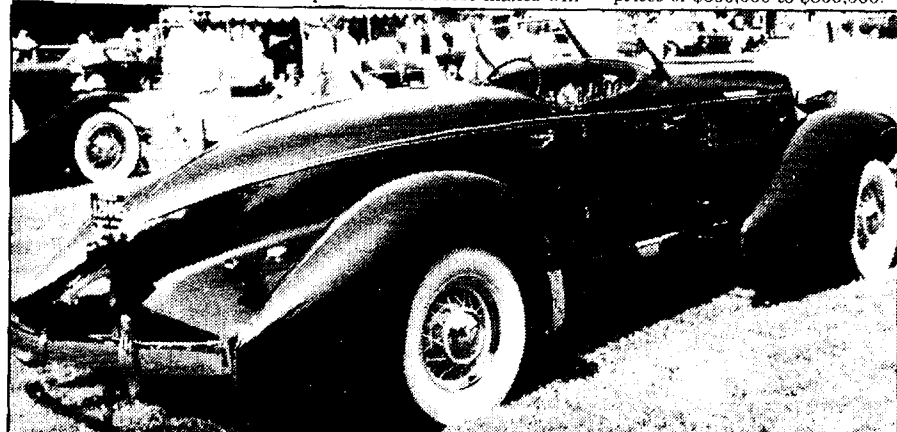

He expects a 15 percent increase in the price of this model, currently selling in the $80,000-$130,000 range.

Post-World War II high-performance cars and British sports cars round out Kruse's list of best buys this year. The 1974 Jaguar XKE V-12 roadster is a bargain at $28,000 to $36,000, Kruse said. He expects it to increase in value by 20 percent this year.

The 1977 Ferrari 308 GTS was a fine-tuned open version of the 308 GTB introduced in 1975, Kruse said. In 1981, the 308 GTS received more engine power in the replacement of the usual dual Weber carburetors with Bosch K Jetronic injection and the GTS became the GTSi. Current auction price range of these Ferraris is $25,000-$35,000, Kruse said. He expects them to gain 20 percent in price this year.

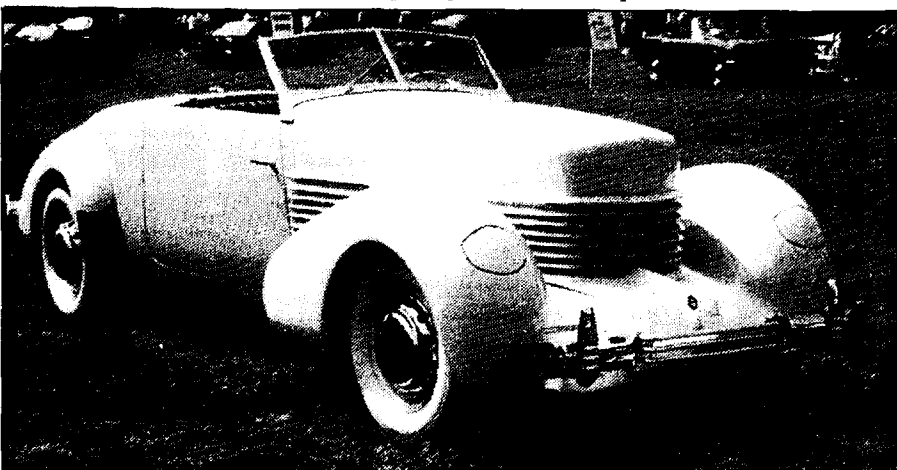

The 1970 Plymouth Hemi Road Runner Superbird with its rear stabilizer wing, 426 Hemi engine or six-barrel 440 V-8 could do 220 mph. Kruse said this super muscle car should gain 25 percent this year from its current $28,000-$38,000 range.

Another fast car that is expected to gain in value this year is the 1954 Porsche 356 Speedster. "It was solidly built, beautifully designed and — most importantly — it was fast," Kruse said. "The automobile is perfect for enthusiasts interested in the vintage racing scene."

Photos by Jenny King

High on Dean Kruse's list of classic cars likely to appreciate in value in 1995 is the Auburn Boattail Speedster. This '35 Boattail, shown at last year's Eyes on Classic Design show at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, is owned by Terry and Beth Adderly of Bloomfield Hills.

One of Gordon Buehrig's most famous designs, the coffin-nose Cord, is on the Dean's List for 1995. This '37 Cord 812 rumble seat cabriolet is also owned by Terry and Beth Adderly and appeared in last year's Eyes on Classic Design show.

Pointe's Sibley to address Senior Men's Club

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe will have its next luncheon meeting at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore on Tuesday, Feb. 28, at 11:15 a.m.

The speaker will be Fred M. Sibley, a pioneer of the Pointes. He will be interviewed by Lyman Hurd, a member of the club. Sibley, in addition to being a well-known retired businessman in the lumber industry, served as a lieutenant commander in the Navy during World War II. He had experiences as a student in Germany during the early Hitler era. More recently he has gained note as a poet.

The Senior Men's Club sponsors many activities of interest to male retirees of the Grosse Pointes. The average age of the membership of the club is 75, yet their lifestyles are those of active men. Those interested in joining should contact membership chairman Joseph Callahan at 313-885-1939.

Bermuda — photographer heaven

Bermuda is a delightful place to vacation and, of course, to photograph. I just returned and can attest to the charm and picture potential of this photo-friendly island.

As with all travel photography, pack light and take just the camera equipment you think you'll need. Zoom lenses are convenient and practical because they give you many focal lengths in just one lens.

Taking just the necessary camera gear to Bermuda is especially important because rental cars are not available to tourists. You'll have to carry everything with you on buses or rental mopeds, the main means of transportation for tourists. Many camera bags can be converted into backpacks which would be ideal for Bermuda.

Let's take a photo tour of the island. Beginning on the extreme northwest end is the Royal Navy Dockyard, home of the Maritime Museum and a very picturesque old fort. Parasailing is available here, too, which offers unique photo opportunities. Either shoot from below or, if you're brave, take a sail ride with a disposable, waterproof camera for unusual shots.

Along the southern coast are some of the most beautiful beaches anywhere. Because Bermuda is a volcanic island, unusually shaped black lava rock protrudes out of the water along white sandy beaches, making dramatic subjects for your camera.

Crashing waves along the shore can be captured on film either with a fast shutter speed to stop the action or with a slower shutter speed to show motion in the water.

Of particular note are Stonehold Bay and Jobson Cove, captivating spots to explore with your camera. The best times to photograph the coast are at sunrise and sunset. The lighting is most dramatic, textures are enhanced and shadows add depth to your shots.

The east side of Bermuda contains Castle Harbor and the delightful town of St. George. Here, everything from shots of small boats with billowing sails against the blue sky to the magnificence of huge ocean liners at port can be recorded with your camera.

Don't overlook Hamilton, Bermuda's capital. Colorful and entrancing homes and friendly, co-operative people are waiting to be photographed.

And throughout the island are unique trees, flowers and other unusual vegetation — all waiting for you and your camera.

Why would you want this job?

Because the financial rewards are excellent and the fringe benefits are outstanding.

Those fringes, you see, are on the edges of one-of-a-kind rugs in our splendid collection of hand-woven Persians and Orientals.

Your assignment is to help us reduce moving costs. We've outgrown our Birmingham quarters and are headed to our new gallery in the Michigan Design Center. And rather than paying the movers more, we'd rather move fewer rugs and offer some public profit-sharing in appreciation for our success.

So come and see how you can save while helping us save. And don't worry about having to carry rugs around. As Walter Mondale said when asked why he accepted the vice-presidency: "It's mostly inside work and there's no heavy lifting."

Re: Grosse Pointe Woods Conditional Rezoning of Lots at Northwest Corner of Vernier and Morningside; Continued Planning Commission Meeting of Tuesday, February 28, 1995 at 7:30 p.m.

Dear Grosse Pointe Woods Planning Commission:

I am opposed to the rezoning of the northwest corner of Vernier and Morningside in the City of Grosse Pointe Woods.

The conditional rezoning requested by Russell Homes is unreasonable and is "spot zoning" of a single-family neighborhood.

We need a turn lane on the west side of Morningside to ease the pressure at the intersection with Vernier.

Senior Maureen McKinney of Detroit and sophomore Carolyn Hadgikosti of Roseville were the affirmative team, finishing with a 2-1 record. Junior Jerry Carr of Detroit and sophomore Logan Oney of Grosse Pointe Park (filling in for senior Kate Van Til of the City of Grosse Pointe) were the negative team, finishing with a 2-1 record.

Additionally, McKinney was the first-place speaker out of 32 competitors, qualifying her for the John S. Knight Scholarship contest to be held at the Dearborn Inn the last weekend of February.

McKinney and Van Til, with Carr as the alternate, were participants in the two-person format state championships held Feb. 24 at the Novi Hilton, where they didn't fare as well, finishing 15th in the state while participating at a higher class level. Shane Stafford is the ULS debate coach.

Hill business flees to Village's greener pastures

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

After being on the Hill for more than 12 years, the owners of the boutique for women, La Strega, are moving to the Village for one simple reason — they believe the Village is a much better place for a retail business.

"The Hill isn't Grosse Pointe's shopping district," said co-owner Teresa Mollicone. "A big part of that is because parking in the Hill is not the best and our customers have told us that."

"Our lease was up, and we decided that moving was the best way to go," said co-owner Rosanna Grzebinski, who is Mollicone's daughter. "So far our customers seem to be delighted with the move. I believe once we move in March, we'll be busier than ever. We've been telling people who haven't heard, and they're delighted about the move."

Mollicone's only regret is that the current store was redecorated about a year ago, and she feels that money was wasted now that they are moving.

The store will be located where Cafe Pavel used to be, said Grzebinski. Making the move was not a difficult decision. Many people had told her and her mother, that they didn't like to shop on the Hill, plus there is always ample parking in the Village.

"There's not a lot of land available for parking on the Hill," Grzebinski said. "But what land is available is not used. There's a former car dealership across the street from us that's empty. Why not lease the land and put in parking meters. The Farms council isn't doing anything like that, and that hurts the Hill."

The store used to be located in the old Colonial Federal building, which now is home to HRStrategies, said Grzebinski. They've been at their present location for seven years, and have watched the parking garage behind the store go up. But instead of helping, they say it's hurt things.

"We were told that the garage would be half for the merchants and half for the hospital," Grzebinski said. "But it's expensive to use and our customers say that everytime they try to use it, the first two or three decks are filled. They don't want to park on the top level."

Mollicone and Grzebinski also believe that Village merchants are more-retail friendly. When they went to the City council to get site plan approval, a representative of the Village Association was on hand to help in case there were any problems.

"We've heard from many of the merchants in the Village, welcoming us," said Mollicone. "With the exception of Leon Sehoyan and Sal Vitale, who own hair salons, we haven't been contacted by anyone, including representatives from the Hill Association."

"Everyone has their own idea of what the problem is concerning retail stores on the Hill," said Grzebinski. "But there isn't that bond here that merchants in the Village have. The Hill Association's solution to the parking problem is to suggest to employees that they use the parking structure behind us. Well that's no solution. The only spaces available are on the fourth deck. Parking there requires an additional 10 minutes to park a car and get to work. I don't blame people for not following that suggestion."

Sehoyan, owner of Leon's Hair Salon, said that La Strega's problems are typical of merchants on the Hill.

"It's criminal that a merchant has to move off the Hill to get parking and cooperation from neighboring businesses," said Sehoyan. "We lost Young Clothes and La Strega, because of parking. It's a crying shame that the Hill can't even support an ice cream parlor because of parking. The Hill Association has to do something to open up the parking on Kercheval. When people come to the Hill, they go to a particular place. They don't go to shop. They do that in the Village. Making parking easier benefits everyone, and I don't know why they won't do something about it."

Compromise possible in Woods rezoning project

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Despite strong disagreements about house design, developer Charles McCafferty believes it is possible to reach an agreement with Grosse Pointe Woods to purchase a small strip of land at the corner of Vernier and Morningside.

Late last year McCafferty approached the council and asked permission to purchase a 10-foot wide by 275-foot long strip of land near North High School. McCafferty said that until he did a title search on who actually owned the land, everyone, including Woods officials thought the strip was owned by the school district.

McCafferty needs the strip to complete a project that would result in construction of two new homes at the corner. He and the council first disagreed over the price he would pay for the land. His first offer of $1,000 was rejected by the council as too low. Several councilmembers noted that the land was valued at between $6,000 and $12,000.

A price of $3,000 for the land was finally agreed upon, but only on the condition that the council have final approval of McCafferty's house designs. McCafferty also needs council approval of building variances, because without them, the two proposed plots would be too small to build houses on.

On Feb. 6, he petitioned the council to grant variances dealing with rear and side setbacks for the proposed lots. The council agreed to grant the variances on the condition that they approve his site plan. If they didn't like the plans, the city would still own the strip of land, and the property would not have any variances.

Problems arose when some councilmembers objected to the proposed designs for the two homes.

Peter Gilezan objected to the use of vinyl tile on the outside of the home.

McCafferty told Gilezan that the house designs he submitted were in the Cape Cod style, which requires tiles.

Councilmember Eric Steiner asked if it was possible to put windows in the garage doors of the proposed homes. He said windows are more friendly and less impersonal.

Councilmember Bill Wilson said that the council has no business micromanaging a project like this.

He said the plan submitted by McCafferty looked fine, and the council should not get into the business of architecture.

At that point mayor Robert Novitke said tempers were a little hot and asked the project be tabled until the Feb. 27 meeting. The council agreed.

Rotary International celebrates 90th anniversary

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Like clockwork, every Monday at 12:10 p.m. a group of civic-minded business and professional men and women — the Rotary Club of Grosse Pointe — gathers at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial for lunch and a short program.

Meetings are no-nonsense. Members and their guests mingle a bit, then sit down at round tables for eight. Lunch is usually a choice of three entrees. A business meeting and a half-hour program follow.

By 1:30, everybody is headed back to work.

"Our programs are informative. They're about Rotary International or about topics of interest in the community," said George Koueiter, current president of the Rotary Club of Grosse Pointe and owner of Koueiter Jewelers in Grosse Pointe Woods. "We've had speakers like Gov. John Engler; Mort Crim, WDIV-TV anchorman; and Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer."

Last Monday the group celebrated the 90th anniversary of the founding of Rotary International.

The 58-year-old Grosse Pointe club is one of 27,146 Rotary Clubs in 185 countries. Grosse Pointe's 119 members are part of a worldwide service organization of more than 1.1 million people.

Rotary International

The first Rotary meeting was Feb. 23, 1905, in Chicago, when four men agreed to organize a club based on an idea that attorney Paul P. Harris had been kicking around for a few years — that businessmen could get together as friends to work on bettering their community and the world. The name Rotary referred to their plan to rotate meetings among each others' places of business.

Three years later, a second Rotary Club was formed in San Francisco. Within five years, the club had grown to 16 chapters with 1,800 members nationwide. Clubs were started in Canada, Europe and Latin America. Women were welcomed as full members in the late 1980s.

"Rotary Club of Grosse Pointe is committed to youth in this community," said Jack Cobau, past president and current historian. Cobau is a tax attorney whose office is in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Although the club supports a variety of programs and projects locally, regionally, nationally, and internationally, it's partial to raising funds for and getting involved in hands-on projects with students and young business and professional people. The group also supports programs to foster international understanding and world peace.

Grosse Pointe Rotary

Grosse Pointe Rotary was founded in June 1937. William J. Moir, one of the four charter members, is still part of the group.

At first, the group met at the Neighborhood Club, then at a succession of local restaurants. In 1950, the group began its long-time association with the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The group still meets there.

One of the local Rotary's first fundraisers was a country fair held at the Neighborhood Club. Other early money-makers included the production of a musical comedy at one of the junior high schools and a series of antiques shows and auctions.

Grosse Pointe Rotary has been involved in hundreds of community projects. The Grosse Pointe Rotary Foundation was founded in 1956/57 with a separate board of trustees to oversee the club's charitable activities. Last year, the foundation disbursed more than $36,000 to help finance civic and community organizations, educational programs, awards and gifts.

Projects in the early decades included donations of hospital equipment to Bon Secours and Cottage hospitals and helping needy families and sick children. Rotary purchased TV sets for bedridden boys, for instance, paid for tutoring and orthodontia for needy children, summer camps for handicapped children, tuition and school supplies for promising students, Christmas gifts for wounded servicemen, emergency hospital care for local families and Jaws of Life equipment to help remove people from wrecked automobiles.

The Rotary Club of Grosse Pointe started (and still runs) a tool lending library which is part of Grosse Pointe's public library.

In the late '60s, the group helped organize the Family Life Education Council (FLEC) which promoted projects in the community to prevent substance abuse and its related problems in young people. With the help of the Grosse Pointe Rotary Foundation, FLEC became an independent agency in 1969. It is now operated by the Children's Home of Detroit.

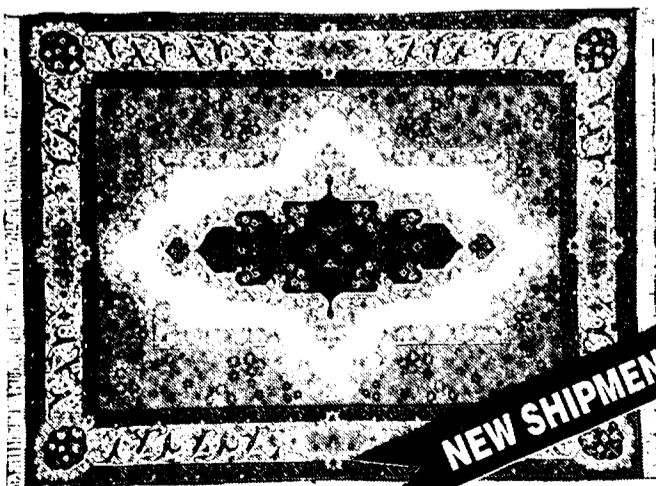

Not one to forget its roots, the foundation donated $25,000 for the construction of the Neighborhood Club when it built its headquarters on Waterloo.

Current projects

Koueiter and Cobau are proud of the organization's various projects which focus on young people and the fostering of international un-

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD

Luck at the bridge table is the envious, lazy player's estimate of a good performer's success.

Back in the days when Bud Abbott and Lou Costello were the premier comedy team, Gerry Dillon of West Bloomfield and Julius Young of Bloomfield Hills embarked on a duplicate playing career that locally was as famous as the entertainers. That was at least three score and four years ago when Dillon and Young both lived in Detroit. In those days Tom Weeks' Friday evening duplicate game in Dearborn was where an aspiring young pair could compete against the area's finest players.

The stars of today's column did. How it came to be wasn't unusual. Julius immediately recognized that Gerry sometimes displayed a sense of feeling the oats which he seldom sowed, and conversely, Gerry perceived that Julius' personality was a wit on a spree. Of greater magnitude was their mutual respect for Kaplan/Sheinwolds novel new bidding system of light openers, less than normal strength no trump bids and a bevy of calls that more precisely limit the strength and shape of the cards partner was describing.

Since that epic moment I doubt whether either has had three different partners exclusive of their fair maidens in marriage. Gerry's Ruth of many early years was and still is a very fine player and Julius' Ruth of a lifetime was much too accomplished at other endeavors to get seriously involved. Gerry's Bea of more recent years decided early on to let the men have their card game. She wisely abstained.

From almost their first deal they've been winners compiling an enviable record at regionals and sectionals. Gerry went on to become one of MBA's most respected presidents, but Julius' love was play and that totally satisfied his interests.

I can remember when, as a low ranking beginner playing against these two jovial giants, it was challenging and extremely entertaining. Both had a disciplined ability to concentrate yet display a humor that was great for the game and put my apprehension at ease. Gerry used to enjoy telling opponents that he had a high regard for Thomas Edison as he invented the first talking machine you could turn off because when Julius' talent for telling tall tales got started, you couldn't stop him. Julius would usually counter with something like, "There are many examples of bridge players who have been born with a quality of greatness and others would achieve it through hard work, but Gerry unfortunately would just thrust his upon himself and expect you to accept."

Then one day this gregarious wonderful partnership ended, much to everyone's dismay. Gerry's business took him to Washington and Julius got too busy with his remarkable creations, Hot Sam, Easy Pop Popcorn, Orange Julius and helping his lovely wife Ruth with their needlework store in Birmingham. For almost 22 years neither was seen at the table, but never were they forgotten.

Four years ago, upon Gerry's return, they decided to try it again and that was a memorable moment for our bridge. Today neither is still playing on the fast track of the freeway of bridge and their merry-andrew is more subtle, but it's still a great joy to see these two sturdy seniors competing and winning.

When I visited with them in contemplation of writing this, each had a marvelous hand the other had played, but I was the final decision and chose this before their quick-witted temperaments took charge.

By the way, never ask either who became a life master first. It's the only ground for conflict I know of between these two. Gerry will tell you that he became same 40 hours before his partner and Julius will say that he was so awarded that distinction a week and a day before Gerry.

Nevertheless, you'll enjoy these 52 pasteboards from their past.

Rotary

Rotary provides $14,000 in scholarships to students from local high schools. It sends a group of high school students to an annual leadership conference. It has purchased equipment for the Foundation for Exceptional Children. It sponsors high school student exchange programs.

Rotary has long been involved in international youth exchange programs. Currently, two inbound students are attending Grosse Pointe South High School — one from France and one from Finland.

"We also have a group study exchange financed by Rotary International and individual districts," Cobau said. "Local clubs host four young professionals and a Rotary leader from a country and, in return, send a similar group to the same country. Last year we sent a group to India and hosted a group from India. In April and May, we'll send a group to Finland and in October and November, to South Africa."

Rotary's ambassadorial scholarship program offers a full year of study in another country for a qualified college student who is majoring in international studies, all paid for by Rotary International. The Grosse Pointe group is involved in recruiting and screening local candidates for this scholarship.

"We're successful because our membership is so diverse," Koueiter said.

The club actively seeks members who represent a broad spectrum of local business and professional classifications. Most Rotary Club rosters have one member for each classification — one restaurateur, for instance, one reporter, one accountant, one Realtor, one physician, one teacher, one veterinarian, one retail manager, and so on.

"Grosse Pointe Sunrise Rotary Club was started about five years ago as an offshoot of our Rotary," Koueiter said. "One of the reasons for starting it was that our classifications were filled."

"Sunrise Rotary meets once a week, in the morning, at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club," Cobau said. "We thought that a morning club would reach other people who had good ideas for spreading the concept of service that is central to Rotary."

Rotary dues are $220 annually. Members must attend at least 60 percent of meetings and participate in service projects.

The next big fundraiser will be an auction in March 1996, which Cobau and Koueiter said is expected to raise more than $50,000. The group's annual 50-50 raffle raises about $20,000 for local projects.

Currently, membership in Grosse Pointe Rotary is about 90 percent men; 10 percent women. Cobau and Koueiter said the group is not looking for new members.

"We're looking for good members," Koueiter said. "Men and women."

worship Him. When we do that, we begin to derive our sense of self-worth from Him. We recognize His image in ourselves. We begin to see ourselves as valuable and loved in His sight. We develop a sense of worth that nothing can destroy or spoil, because it is rooted in the infinitely worthy, eternal, and immutable God.

In Hebrews 10:24-25, the Bible instructs us to worship by "assembling together." God means to do you good by calling you to worship. If your priorities aren't in line with His, a good place to start lining them up would be to come back to worship in church.

The Pastor's Corner

Top priority

By the Rev. David H. Wick
Grosse Pointe Baptist Church

God desires our worship. From Genesis, where Adam walked in fellowship with God in the garden, right through the Bible to the Revelation, where the saints joyfully worship God forever at the culmination of history, God calls us again and again to worship Him. Worship is a top priority for God.

Something must be wrong with our priorities. The census data on Wayne County indicates that only 65 percent of all residents attend church. These figures were obtained by asking people where they attend.

A few years ago, my church did another kind of survey on church attendance. We called the Grosse Pointe churches and asked: "How many people attend your services on your best-attended Sunday of the year?"

We added up those figures and compared them to the total population. Something like 65-70 percent of Grosse Pointers were NOT in church, even when the churches were at their fullest.

Clearly, many of us do not share God's priorities for worship.

God's call for us to worship Him is not capricious or arbitrary. God desires good for us, and worship is good for us. One reason for this is the psychological impact of worship.

Worship means literally "ascribing worth." True worship ascribes ultimate worth to God. But not all worship is true worship. Everyone worships something or someone. The Bible tells us that Satan has a priority for us too — he wants us to worship him. Or, failing that, to ascribe worth to anything that is not God.

I don't think there are very many true Satan worshippers. But there are multitudes who worship that which is not God. They ascribe worth to power, or money, or material things, to celebrities, to fame, to other human beings.

This is not good because we derive our sense of self-worth from that to which we ascribe worth. I remember some years ago I was the proud owner of a nice looking sports car. (Even pastors sometimes have hot cars.) I was paying a call on a young couple who visited the church, and the woman noted, when she saw my car, "I used to date a guy who drove one of those. It was sometimes kind of hard to tell the guy apart from the car."

I liked my sports car, but my identity wasn't tied up in it. I didn't feel diminished when I had to replace it with a mundane sedan. But I knew what the woman was talking about, and I think you do too.

Ascribing worth to — and therefore deriving our sense of self-worth from — anything less than God is a deadly trap. We can never own enough material things, or be secure enough in our relationships, or be successful enough in our careers, or have enough power, to have a genuine sense of self-worth. "What shall it profit a man if he gains the whole world, but loses his soul?"

God invites us to ascribe ultimate worth to Him, to

Grosse Pointe Theatre offers Italian comedy 'Filumena' March 1-11

Grosse Pointe Theatre presents the charming comedy, "Filumena," by noted Italian playwright Eduardo de Filippo and directed by Donna DiSante of Grosse Pointe Farms. The show opens on Wednesday, March 1, and runs through Saturday, March 11, at Fries Auditorium in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms.

Subtitled "A Mother's a Mother," this is de Filippo's most popular play. In 1964 it was made into a movie starring Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni, "Marriage, Italian Style," and earned Loren an Oscar nomination.

Filumena, a former prostitute, has lived with Domenico Soriano for 25 years without benefit of matrimony, finally tricking him into a "deathbed" marriage. Furious at the deception, Domenico threatens to annul the marriage, even when Filumena reveals that she has three grown sons, only one of which is Domenico's.

A charming cat and mouse game ensues when Filumena refuses to reveal which son

de Filippo is best known for making theater accessible to the masses. Through his plays the prolific writer and performer showed the plight of the poor in southern Italy. He also is known for showing class interaction, unheard of at that time in a class-conscious culture.

Seats are available for most performances, including a Sunday matinee on March 5. Tickets may be purchased by calling (313) 881-4004, or at the Grosse Pointe Theatre box office, 315 Fisher Road at Maumee, from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. Tickets are $10.

Following "Filumena," the 47th season continues with the Neil Simon semi-autobiographical comedy, "Broadway Bound," and Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "H.M.S. Pinafore."

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial offers candlelight buffet dinners before most performances. For dinner reservations, call the War Memorial at (313) 881-7511.

The Bradys are still a bunch of fun

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

Anyone who grew up with the lovable television family "The Brady Bunch" has seen it all before: the astroturf backyard, the polyester, Davy Jones and even more polyester.

"The Brady Bunch Movie" is here and those Bradys are alive and kicking and stuck in the '90s.

The laughs are aplenty, as one would expect when the '70s and '90s collide head-on. Mike and Carol, Alice, Sam the Butcher, Greg, Marcia, Peter, Jan, Bobby and yes, cute little Cindy — who is told in one scene by a nasty next door neighbor to hop back onto the Swiss Miss box — are all here live and in color. Neat-o.

Television veterans Gary Cole ("Midnight Caller") and Shelley Long ("Cheers") play Mike and Carol Brady and each give highly credible performances. Long renders the best facial expressions seen on the big screen in years. In fact, the pair does such a good job they may want to beware, someone might want to give the television Bradys another shot. Sounds groovy.

As expected, the Bradys' differences tend to cause them to be ostracized even though they don't even recognize that fact. Peter's voice cracks throughout the movie and when faced with a sex education class he squeals, then faints. Greg runs around school chasing one specific groovy chick he tries to write a song for.

The Bradys just don't fit in

and they don't get it. On the way to school one morning Greg mistakes an attempt by a street punk at a carjacking as a request for a car jack. He drives away promising to call AAA while the carjacker gets honked at in traffic looking dazed and confused.

Besides all the other typical Brady stuff taken from the television show, yes, the Brady kids get to sing and perform — onstage for $20,000 which will save their house from auction.

Christine Taylor as Marcia and Jennifer Elice Cox as Jan give the best Brady kid performances as they are exact copies. Jan keeps hearing an inner voice every time she gets stuck — as all middle children do — behind her older female sibling time and again. She even looks to the school's counselor, played by RuPaul, for guidance.

Original cast members Florence Henderson and Ann B. Davis have bit parts with Davis playing a truck driver who helps a confused Jan find her way back home.

"The Brady Bunch Movie" is full of laughs and memories and has already launched a television revival of the campy '70s show. That's OK — mov-

'Just Cause' has creepy thrills

By Ronald J. Bernas
Assistant Editor

It's hard to pigeon-hole the excellent new thriller "Just Cause."

It has the style of film noir, the story of a good old-fashioned whodunit, and a little "Silence of the Lambs" psycho-killer-profile stuff thrown in just for fun.

Along the way it explores racism, ignorance, revenge, restitution and a few other incendiary topics for good measure.

With all that — and the star-power of Sean Connery and Laurence Fishburne — "Just Cause" couldn't help but be a heck of an entertaining film.

The story is about Bobby Earl (Blair Underwood), a young black man sitting on death row for the murder, rape and mutilation of a little white girl. His confession was coerced by torture first by a white police officer, then by the more wicked Tanny, a black police officer played — in yet another dead-on performance — by Fishburne.

Bobby Earl convinces a Harvard law professor (Connery) to appeal his conviction, for not only is he innocent, the serial killer who actually committed the crime is on death row just a few cells away from Bobby Earl, and he taunts the innocent man.

The setting — the deep South — also provides a few scares of its own as Connery must not only watch out for the prejudiced locals, but he must also be alert for alligators and other nasty things that inhabit the marshy bayou.

There are lots of twists and turns and just when you think the film should come to a head, it veers off in a different direction, taking you on a thrill ride that keeps you on the edge of your seat.

The performances are all top-notch, with Fishburne so unlikely you can't take your eyes off him. Pit him against someone with as strong a presence as Connery and sparks are bound to fly. They do. Underwood holds his own against these formidable actors, showing he's got more talent than "L.A. Law" allowed him to use.

Ed Harris, cast as the Bible-quoting serial killer who appears half-way through the film, gives a creepy, horrifying performance that would scare Hannibal Lecter.

With all that in its favor, "Just Cause" has something for just about anyone.

Academy has faculty recital

The Grosse Pointe Academy of Music, a collection of artist/teachers based at the Grosse Pointe Academy, 170 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms, will offer a free faculty recital at 3 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 25, in the music room of the academy.

The informal program will give parents and students a chance to meet many of the faculty members — including Bess Bonnier and Paul Shafer — and hear them perform.

Wayne State's theater keeps its actors busy

Wayne State University's Hilberry and Bonstelle theaters are offering two classic comedies beginning in March.

Fireworks will be set off in the Sycamore basement as the explosive antics of the Sycamore family come to the stage at the Hilberry Theatre when "You Can't Take It With You" opens on March 3.

The Pulitzer Prize-winning play by Kaufman and Hart is the story of the wacky Sycamore family and its daughter who wants to marry a straight arrow.

The play is directed by David Magidson, dean of the College of Fine, Performing and Communication Arts, and runs in repertory through April 29. Tickets are $9 and $16 with discounts for students, seniors, WSU faculty, staff and alumni. Call (313) 577-2972.

On March 3-5 and 10-12 the Bonstelle Theatre presents Carlo Goldoni's "The Servant of Two Masters," one of the classics of commedia dell'arte style.

The farce tells of a servant for hire who tries to serve — and collect pay from — two different masters.

The show is directed by WSU professor Blair Anderson and includes former Grosse Pointe resident Suzie Mikiel.

Tickets are $7 and $9. Call (313) 577-2960.

Wayne honors local patrons

Grosse Pointe resident James F. Duffy Jr. will be honored at Wayne State University's Arts Achievement Awards program beginning at 4 p.m. Saturday, March 4, in the McGregor Memorial Conference Center.

Also, Grosse Pointe resident Louise Nobili will be honored for her work as a WSU professor emeritus.

Duffy earned a bachelor's degree from Georgetown University and was president of Edward W. Duffy and Co. He is a long-time patron of the arts and actively supports the Detroit Institute of Arts and WSU.

Don't beef about prices; they're low as the fat

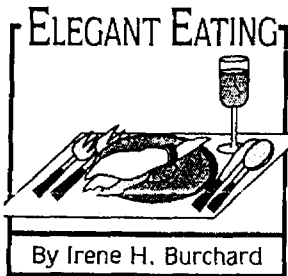

Record beef supplies are expected to continue through 1995, making America's beef counter a "buyers market."

Lower prices have already prompted more beef sales at grocery stores nationwide. In November, a price study sponsored by the National Cattlemen's Association was done on six common cuts of beef. The study found that Detroit's average beef retail price was down 34 cents compared to 1993. Similar findings in Baltimore (down 26 cents) and Denver (down 25 cents) further illustrated national retail price trends.

These figures mean ample opportunities for bargains. Since cattle numbers are expected to peak in 1996, beef counter prices will stay low until 1997.

Cuts from the round and chuck are almost always good values. Ironically, some of the cuts within these groups are also the leanest — ideal for use in today's nutritious recipes.

For instance, a "select" cut of top round steak has only 4.16 grams of fat per serving. That's less than 7 percent of the recommended daily allowance of fat for an average 2,000 calorie diet. Beef cuts, such as top round, eye round and tip round, are recommended by health professionals as good options for maintaining low-cholesterol and low-fat diets.

There's no reason why cooking should be complicated. Everyday, time-pressed cooks are developing new recipes for feeding their families in short order. These new recipes often take half the time of traditional dinners and taste every bit as good.

Many delicious beef meals, for example, can be on the table in 30 minutes or less. All that's required is a bit of preparation, mostly in the way of assembling ingredients beforehand. Beef is an easy item to purchase ahead of time and save for later. Beef cuts and ground beef, if well-wrapped in airtight plastic wrap, can be safely frozen for three to four months.

For speedy dinners, keep a range of versatile ingredients and spices on hand. Selections for use in many beef meals include pepper, chili pepper, cumin, oregano, canned tomatoes, macaroni or pasta, rice and frozen vegetables.

When cooking, a few easy changes of technique can also cut time spent in the kitchen, such as:

- When appropriate, use quick-cooking methods, such as broiling, panbroiling, sauteing, microwaving, steaming or stir-frying.

- Practice complementary cooking. Use the microwave for one recipe while using the range top for another.

- Broil potatoes or other vegetable in the same pan as steaks or burgers, for a quick meal and easy cleanup.

Following are two examples of quick, tasty meals that are just as good as traditional dinners.

Lemony Beef, Vegetables & Barley

1 pound lean ground beef
8 oz mushrooms, sliced
1 medium onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, crushed
14 oz ready to serve, beef broth
1/2 c quick cooking barley
1/2 t salt
1/4 t pepper
10 oz frozen peas and carrots, defrosted
1 t grated lemon peel

In large nonstick skillet, cook and stir ground beef, mushrooms, onion and garlic over medium heat eight to 10 minutes or until beef is no longer pink, breaking beef up into 3/4-inch crumbles. Pour off drippings.

Stir in broth, barley, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, reduce heat to medium-low. Cover tightly; simmer 10 minutes. Add peas and carrots; continue cooking 2 to 5 minutes or until barley is tender. Stir in lemon peel. Makes four servings.

Honey-Dijon Beef & Potato Stir-Fry

1 lb beef round tip steaks, cut 1/8 to 1/4 inch thick
3 c frozen french-fried potatoes
1/4 t salt
1 red onion, cut into thin wedges
1 red or green bell pepper, cut into thin strips
1/3 c honey-Dijon barbecue sauce vegetable cooking spray

Stack beefsteaks; cut lengthwise in half and then crosswise into one-inch wide strips. Set aside.

Thaw french fries. Heat large non-stick skillet over medium-high heat until hot. Add potatoes and stir-fry 10 minutes or until lightly browned and crisp. Remove from skillet and keep warm.

Lemony Beef, Vegetables and Barley

Spray same skillet with cooking spray and heat. Add beef (half at a time) and stir-fry one minute or until outside surface is no longer pink. (Do not overcook.) Season with salt; remove from skillet. Keep warm.

In same skillet, add onion and bell pepper; stir-fry five minutes or until crisp-tender. Return beef to skillet and add barbecue sauce; heat through. Spoon beef mixture over potatoes. Serve immediately. Makes four servings.

Two British novels hit America

The Rector's Wife
By Joanna Trollope
Random House. 287 pages. $21

Felicia's Journey
By William Trevor
Viking. 213 pages. $21.95

Recent arrivals at my over-piled desk are two new novels, each by a British author, which are attracting critical attention.

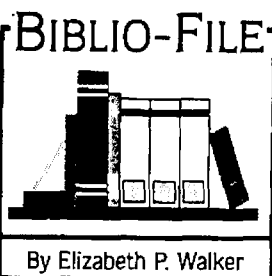

Joanna Trollope, the younger of the two, has already written six contemporary novels, of which "The Rector's Wife" is the second to be published in the United States. In spite of one unfortunate lapse in the climax, which displays a rather hurried resolution by Trollope to tie together her plot into a neat package, her characters and dialogue create conviction that her book is an important picture of the mores and ways of modern England.

Alas, however, my assessment does not apply to William Trevor's latest offering, "Felicia's Journey." A man of much literary experience, Trevor has rightfully gathered many kudos for his great body of work, fiction as well as non-fiction, and he is highly regarded here and abroad.

As a member of the Irish Academy of Letters, he has earned a prestigious seat, and in 1977 he was named honorary Commander of the British Empire in recognition of his services to literature. But this latest product from his fertile pen fails to meet the high standard of his earlier work.

A descendant of the 19th century author Anthony Trollope, Joanna Trollope has succeeded in carving out her very own niche in British letters. Specializing in social and domestic upheavals, she illuminates the stressful conflicts inherent in these situations. Her hassled housewife heroine is Anna Bouverie, the wife of Peter, a demoralized village rector. Subsisting on his pitiful salary, they are barely making ends meet; their children are clothed in parishioners' shabby hand-me-downs. What finally brings things to an abrupt head is Peter's failure to gain an expected promotion to archdeacon; he is sunk in black despair and Anna is full of bitterness. This, of course, rocks an already shaky marriage.

Trollope skillfully presents two sides of an emotional storm — that of rage and frustration, and of calm gradual acceptance of what fate decrees. In a tearful colloquy with a friend, Anna suddenly breaks loose in sheer desperation when a friend pleads with her not to set her face too firmly against things: "My face! My face is set against nothing! It's the damned Church, Isobel, that's what it is! Slammed doors, refusals, hierarchy, muddle, divisions, loneliness. I'm sick of it. And I'm sick of seeing what it's doing to Peter." She stopped and took a breath. "It's a prison, you see," she said in a calmer voice. "It may not be spiritually so, if you are lucky, but socially it is a prison. I can't be myself. I can't be an individual, only someone relative to Peter, to the parish, to the church."

Trollope mainly indicts the needless, money-grubbing poverty of those who serve the Church.

Now we turn to "Felicia's Journey." In a nutshell, this is about a teen-age Irish lass — poor, naive, and pregnant. Although she does not have his address, she flees home to go to England to find her feckless boyfriend, who is job-hunting and unaware of Felicia's condition. Trevor tells of her horrifying descent into the grimy underworld on the industrial English Midlands, and how her dwindling cash reserves force her to sleep on the streets or in noisome hovels where she is occasionally befriended by a number of motley characters who, for the most part, try to take advantage of her.

Entering the scene is a sinister figure, full of evil intentions, Mr. Hilditch, a factory manager who arrives ostensibly to rescue Felicia, but he really wants to possess her.

During the ensuing days, Hilditch solicitously plies his newest prize with soft drinks and junk food. Then he invites her to use a bedroom in his large house, supposedly the room of a non-existent wife. Tired, cold, and penniless, Felicia finally caves in and wearily accepts his invitation — just for a short time, she thinks, until she regains her strength and bearings.

Trevor supplies a lot of brooding atmosphere with heavy hints of doom. Much of the writing is opaque with not much in the way of action. A dreary, dismal novel, I am sorry to say, but I know that this author is capable of doing much better.

Hilberry, Bonstelle theaters announce 1995-96 season

Timeless classics, contemporary hits and many of the best playwrights who have ever written for the stage are showcased in the 1995-96 Hilberry and Bonstelle seasons, announced James Thomas, director of the Wayne State University Theatres.

The Hilberry opens its 33rd season with Craig Lucas' bewitching fantasy, "Prelude to a Kiss."

The Hilberry's Shakespearean offerings begin with the perennially popular comedy "A Midsummer Night's Dream." In an effort to continue to explore the complete Shakespearean canon, the Hilberry Company presents, for the first time on the Hilberry stage, one of the Bard's most arresting dramas, "Pericles."

Eugene O'Neill makes his reappearance on the Hilberry stage after a long absence with the performance of "Beyond the Horizon," a haunting drama of dreams won and lost.

The eighteenth-century French comic playwright Pierre Marivaux debuts at the Hilberry with "The Double Inconstancy."

Another Pulitzer Prize-winning American playwright, Edward Albee, is represented with "Everything in the Garden," a wry comedy of manners about suburban materialism gone wickedly amiss. The season concludes with "Abelard and Heloise."

The Bonstelle will continue to offer a wide variety of plays, and beginning this year will include at least one play per season which speaks especially to the concerns of spectators in the 20-40 age range, reports Thomas.

The season opens with "The Comedy of Errors," a zany farce of misunderstandings and false identities. Charles Dickens' popular classic "A Christmas Carol" happily returns as the family holiday show.

Black History Month will be celebrated with a production of George Wolfe's "The Colored Museum." Wolfe, one of the most prominent African-American dramatists writing today, deftly depicts modern-day African-American life with this series of 11 satirical skits, or "exhibits."

The Bonstelle's musical comedy offering this season is the George Abbott favorite, "The Pajama Game," which gives a whole new meaning to the term "labor relations."

The Bonstelle season closes with the Michigan premiere of Eric Bogosian's "Suburbia."

Defense keeps South atop league standings

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Confidence plays a big part in the development of a successful athlete.

He has to believe in his ability and that of his teammates and coaches.

Grosse Pointe South's Matt

Agnone has plenty of confidence and it was apparent in his performance against Anchor Bay's fine sophomore basketball player, Juan Pegues, during last week's Macomb Area Conference White Division game won by the Blue Devils 48-44.

The victory was South's 10th without a loss in division play and improved the Blue Devils' record to 13-3 overall.

Even though he was giving away some seven inches in height to the 6-foot-6 Pegues, Agnone kept the Tars' standout from being a factor in the game. "We changed some defensive assignments and wound up with Matt guarding Pegues," said coach George Petrouleas. "I wasn't that concerned with the height difference because of Matt's quickness, his defensive skills and his strength. I have a lot of confidence in Matt and Brian Nugent as far as their ability to guard perimeter players or inside players."

That confidence has rubbed off on Agnone, who took over the Pegues assignment when Nugent got into some foul trouble guarding the Anchor Bay player.

"When I told him he'd be guarding Pegues, Matt said, 'Don't worry coach. I'm stronger than he is,'" Petrouleas said.

Pegues scored only eight points — about half of his season average — and four of those came on tip-ins and the other two on free throws.

The defensive play of the Blue Devils was important because it wasn't one of South's better offensive nights.

"Both teams got after each other defensively, but our kids didn't function as well offensively as we usually do," Petrouleas said. "Our execution wasn't what we wanted and we didn't finish off the plays as well as we'd like. Fortunately, the defense came through."

South's offense finally started to come around at the end of the game as the Blue Devils hit five of their last six field-goal attempts after missing 11 in a row during a stretch in the third and fourth quarters.

Two free throws apiece by Jake Howlett and Charlie Wascher in the final minute helped seal the victory.

"We've been hitting our free throws better lately," Petrouleas said. "They call them free throws so you'd better take advantage of them."

South finished the second quarter with a 9-0 run. Wascher scored on a fast-break layup, then picked up two more points on a putback, was fouled and sank the free throw to help put South ahead 26-17 at half-time.

"Charlie made some real big plays for us," Petrouleas said of the 6-5 junior center, who had 22 points, nine rebounds and three steals.

The Blue Devils shot 1-for-8 from the field in the third quarter as Anchor Bay took a 33-30 lead, but Wascher quickly put South back in front when the final quarter started. He hit two free throws, then stole the ball for a layup, was fouled again and hit the free throw to give the Blue Devils a 35-33 advantage with 4 1/2 minutes to play.

Anchor Bay scored the next four points to regain the lead, but South went ahead to stay with 3:05 remaining when Howlett hit a three-point goal from the right corner. Howlett had nine of his 11 points in the fourth quarter, all in the last 3:05.

Howlett twice scored on layups after taking outlet passes from Todd Drake, who led South with six assists, on inbounds plays.

"They were giving us that play on the inbounds," Petrouleas said. "Todd has developed into quite an assist man. Teams are taking away his shot, so he's been concentrating on leading us in assists."

Earlier, South kept its division record clean with a 66-48 victory over L'Anse Creuse North.

"It was a workmanlike performance," Petrouleas said. "We didn't do anything spectacular. We just got the job done."

South trailed by a point after the first quarter but opened up a 28-17 halftime lead.

Goalmouth action

There's plenty of action around the goal crease as University Liggett School defenseman Jason Capen helps goalie Behi Rabbani smother the puck during last week's Michigan Prep Hockey League game with Notre Dame. ULS got three goals from John McNaughton as it avenged an earlier 10-1 loss to the Irish with a 5-4 victory.

North plays well but has to settle for a split

By Chuck Klonek
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's basketball team had a textbook performance against Clinton-dale last week, but it needed a little bit of editing.

"I'm going to use this film to show my future teams how to beat the press against a good, quick basketball team. I'm just going to cut out the end of the plays," North coach Dave Stavale said after the Norsemen's 60-50 loss to the Dragons in the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division.

"We played a great game against Clintondale, but we only shot 29 percent and wound up wasting a fine performance. It's like the old saying 'the operation was a success but the patient died.'" played well," Stavale said. "Chris has improved his ball-handling a lot since the beginning of the season."

Earlier, the Norsemen had another fine performance against Lake Shore — and with a better end result, winning 52-48.

North won the earlier meeting by 30 points, but the Shorians have added 6-foot-10 center Ken Miller since then.

"He's changed that team," Stavale said. "He's a force and has affected the way that whole team plays."

The Norsemen concentrated on stopping Miller and held him to 15 points.

"Dan Vormelker did a tremendous defensive job on him," Stavale said. "He did a great job of getting in his path and knocking him off stride. Then when he got the ball we collapsed three or four people on him. It was just a fine defensive effort."

Lake Shore led 16-11 after the first quarter, but North moved ahead 23-20 at halftime. The Norsemen took a 34-29 lead into the fourth quarter and extended it to 12 points early in the period.

North, which had connected on 19 of its first 21 free throws, went cold at the line and missed its next six, allowing the Shorians to close the gap to four.

Champine led the Norsemen with 14 points, Rous scored 11 and Vormelker had nine points and nine rebounds. Mike Melhem scored all eight of his points in the first half.

"We played two good games last week," Stavale said. "Unfortunately, we won only one of them, but we're playing well. We just have to keep taking it up another level."

North is 6-4 in the MAC Blue and 12-4 overall. One more win would equal the Norsemen's victory total of the last two seasons.

When North met Clintondale earlier in the season, the Dragons were clearly the better team. That wasn't the case in the rematch.

"We made a lot of adjustments from the first game," Stavale said. "We didn't want to get into a running game with them again. We shrunk the defense and slowed the tempo. We had a lot of easy shots, but missed most of them."

The game was tied at 20-all at halftime but Clintondale, which shares the MAC Blue lead with Mount Clemens and L'Anse Creuse, took advantage of seven straight North possessions in which the Norsemen failed to score and opened up a 13-point lead after three quarters.

But North wasn't finished. The Norsemen cut the margin to one point midway through the fourth quarter. Clintondale went back in front by eight points, but another spurt by North cut the Dragons' lead to 52-50 with a minute and a half left.

Then Clintondale hit two free throws. The Dragons were awarded two more when a North player was hit with a technical foul and made one of those. Clintondale also got the ball out of bounds and made another basket to lead 57-50.

Rich Winsininski led North with 18 points, including 14 in the fourth quarter, and he collected nine rebounds. Steve Champine had 10 points, Ryan Rous nine and Chris Copus added seven points, three steals and four rebounds.

"Ryan played his usual hard-nosed game and Copus also

Knights divide two games

Sometimes playing well isn't enough to win a basketball game.

University Liggett School played two good games last week in the Metro Conference but the Knights managed to win only one of them as they dropped a heartbreaking 67-64 overtime decision to Hamtramck.

"Hamtramck is a very fast team and we played well against them, but we just made some critical mistakes in overtime after we took the lead," said ULS coach Chuck Wright.

The Knights jumped ahead 62-60 in the overtime but then went five straight possessions without scoring. ULS missed the first of two bonus free throw opportunities, then had three consecutive turnovers.

ULS trailed the Cosmos 20-14 after the first period, but came back strong and kept the game close the rest of the way.

Brad Cassin had an outstanding offensive performance with 27 points and he also grabbed eight rebounds. Joe Grant had 14 points and 13 rebounds, while Calvin Martin added 14 points for the Knights.

The ending was a lot more pleasant in ULS' 54-40 victory over a Harper Woods team that had upset Metro leader Lutheran East.

"We had a great game against Harper Woods," Wright said. "We jumped on them early. That first half was our best half of basketball in some time. Harper Woods came in very confident after beating Lutheran East, but we kept our defensive intensity the entire game."

ULS led 15-6 after the first quarter and stretched the lead to 26-12 at halftime. The Pioneers never got closer than six points in the second half.

Grant led the Knights with 15 points and six steals, while Cassin contributed 12 points and 14 rebounds. Frank Tymrak, who had an outstanding defensive game, added 10 points.

"We're trying to compete hard for the rest of the season," Wright said. "Each game is going to be tough, but we're playing with the right team chemistry now. Everybody knows his role and has accepted it."

The Knights host Lutheran North Friday and play a Metro Conference crossover game at home on Tuesday.

South JV wins tourney

Grosse Pointe South's junior varsity volleyball team won the championship at the recent Warren Woods-Tower tournament with a 15-7, 10-15, 15-11 victory over Marysville in the finals.

Tracy Summers led the Lady Devils in kills, while Dana Mertz was the dig and service ace leader. South's top assist people were Caroline Starrs and Alecia VanTol, while Julianne Zowkowski led in blocking.

Academy spikers streak on

The Grosse Pointe Academy girls volleyball team continued its winning ways with a decisive victory in a recent tournament hosted by the school.

Tournament victories over Oakland Christian, Roeper, Fairlane Christian and Greenhills improved the Academy's season record to 17-0 and extended its six-year winning streak to 121 matches.

Amanda Dumler and Alexis Kirchner were awarded game balls for their consistent performance in the tournament. Kirchner was 10-for-10 serving and also had seven spikes, 20 sets and six net saves.

Dumler led the squad with 17 passes and also had two digs and nine spikes, while going 28-for-31 serving.

"The success has come from as many directions as there are players," said coach Mike Fultz. "Our strength has been our bench. We go 12 deep, there are no weak links and every player is relentless."

The Academy has a month of the season remaining and Fultz sees no reason why the winning streak can't continue.

South awarded MAC title

Grosse Pointe South's wrestling team received the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division dual meet championship trophy after a ruling last week by league officials.

Coach Larry Carr's Blue Devils finished the dual meet season with a 6-1 record, while runner-up Grosse Pointe North had a 5-1-1 record.

There had been some controversy involving a tie match that North had with Cousino. North won more matches than Cousino and argued that they should have won the meet according to a tie-breaking formula set up by the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

"The state association has a ruling to decide tie matches during the state tournament, but we have no rule to that effect in our league by-laws," said L'Anse Creuse North athletic director Steve Schleicher, who is president of the MAC and the league's wrestling commissioner.

"If the two teams had tied for the league title, duplicate trophies would have been awarded," Schleicher said.

North won the conference tournament.

South

LCN made a couple of brief runs in the second half, but each time South answered with a surge of its own.

The Blue Devils got some impressive numbers from their front line of Wascher, Drake and Ben Harwood. Harwood came off the bench to collect 11 points and eight rebounds. Drake and Wascher each finished with nine points, while grabbing eight and seven rebounds, respectively.

Howlett led South with 20 points.

The Blue Devils have only three regular-season games remaining, including Friday's contest at Fraser.

"That's our last road game," Petrouleas said. "They've been playing consistently well lately. They played hard against us last time and we managed to beat them by a point."

South completes the MAC White season with home games against Warren-Mott on Tuesday and Romeo on Friday, March 3.

Knights avenge lopsided defeat

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

Behi Rabbani had already established himself as a good senior class president.

Last week he proved that he's a pretty good hockey goaltender, too.

"I couldn't be happier with the way Rabbani played," said University Liggett School coach John Fowler after Rabbani made his varsity debut a winning one in the Knights' 5-4 victory over Notre Dame in a Michigan Prep Hockey League game. "Rabbani never played in a varsity game, but the opportunity presented itself and he took advantage of it."

Rabbani was pressed into duty because ULS' top two netminders — Paul Huebner and Andy Arbanas — were unable to play because of illness.

The victory helped erase the memory of a 10-1 loss to Notre Dame earlier in the season.

Rabbani's night got off to an inauspicious start as Notre Dame's Mike Haynes scored at 1:03 of the first period.

But the Knights tied the game about four minutes later when Andrew Ricci and John McNaughton executed a perfect two-on-one with Ricci tipping the puck into the net.

The Irish regained the lead on a power-play goal with 5:39 left in the first period, but ULS' Jim Bologna tallied an unassisted goal with 3:26 remaining to tie the game at 2-2.

The Knights took their first lead 58 seconds into the second period when McNaughton scored the first of his three goals. Tom Delisle drew the only assist.

"McNaughton played great. I'll have to buy him a new hat," Fowler said, jokingly.

Notre Dame pulled back into a tie at 9:16 on a power-play goal by Tony Ryan, but McNaughton's power-play goal from Ian Fines put ULS back in front. The Irish again tied the game with 5:01 left in the second period, but McNaughton tallied the winner at 7:48 of the third period while the teams were playing four-on-four.

ULS continued to have success in four-on-four situations, while it remained a troublesome situation for Notre Dame. In a game against Port Huron Northern earlier this season, the Irish were hit for five four-on-four goals.

The Knights also did a good job of killing off Notre Dame's power plays, stopping the Irish on four of their six chances, including all three in the third period.

"We've worked on that," said Fowler. "We've worked on five-on-three situations and on four-on-fours."

ULS and Notre Dame could play a third game during the Class B-C-D regional hosted by the Irish. The tournament begins Feb. 27, and the field includes top-ranked Cranbrook, Detroit Country Day and Bloomfield Hills Andover.

"Anybody could win that regional," Fowler said. "You need to put two games back-to-back."

ULS followed its emotional victory over Notre Dame with a 6-2 win against a first-year team consisting of Royal Oak Kimball and Dondero players.

"It was a difficult game to play," Fowler said. "I told the kids they'd be playing in the afternoon in a dark, slow rink against a team where we'd be superior. And it was coming after a huge, emotional win. We had to be careful."

The Knights came out of the first period tied 2-2, but then McNaughton took over and recorded his second straight hat trick.

He broke the tie at 5:36 of the second period with Delisle assisting. Ricci then made it 4-2 with 3:25 left in the second period on a fine individual effort where he dug the puck out of the corner, came in front of the net and beat the Royal Oak goalie on the far side. Chris Ford assisted on Ricci's goal.

McNaughton scored twice in the third period. Bologna, who had a goal and an assist in the first period, assisted on both of McNaughton's third-period goals. Delisle, who scored the other first-period goal, Fines, McNaughton and Tom Waldron also collected assists.

"The team feels confident after putting together three or four good games in a row," Fowler said. "They think they're hitting a peak and I'm not going to tell them differently."

Buhl makes a return to Indy Lights series

Robbie Buhl is making a trip back to the scene of his greatest success in auto racing.

Buhl announced last week that he will be racing a Lola Buick GS in the Firestone Indy Lights Series which he won in 1992. He will race in the series' first event on Sunday, March 5 in Miami.

"This is a very strong series with talented drivers from all around the world — even more so than when I last raced here," Buhl said. "Bob Dorricott Sr. is really focused on putting together a winning team. That is why this opportunity is so attractive to me."

Dorricott, the team owner, was just as pleased to have Buhl aboard. The Grosse Pointe driver competed in the IndyCar Championship series in 1993 and 1994.

"Robbie is a proven champion who has raced at all levels," Dorricott said. "Our goal is to take that next step up in competitiveness with Robbie behind the wheel."

Dorricott racing will field a two-car team in 1995, with Bob Dorricott Jr. driving the other car. This will be his fourth season in Indy Lights.

"Bob Jr. and I have worked together before," Buhl said. "He was on the pole at Nazareth (Pa.) last year and set a track record, so I look for a close relationship between us with strong team finishes."

The move also reunites Buhl with veteran crew chief Burke Harrison, who directed Buhl's 1992 championship effort.

"We are delighted to be back together," Buhl said. "Communication between a driver and his crew chief is so important to a winning effort. Burke is tops."

Harrison was also the crew chief when Paul Tracy won the Indy Lights title in 1990 and Eric Bachelart took the championship in 1991.

Buhl will be part of the Racing for Kids program for the sixth year. As national spokesperson for the Detroit-based international charity, Buhl visits youngsters in children's hospitals and has helped raise more than $400,000 in less than three years.

Devils seek more than league crown

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's hockey team has a league championship and the best record in the school's history, but the Blue Devils aren't satisfied.

"Winning the league and having the best record of any hockey team at the school is nice, but now we'd like to do something at the state level, too," said South coach Bob Bopp after the Blue Devils beat a pair of Michigan Metro Hockey League foes.

South begins state tournament play Wednesday, March 1, when it faces Livonia Stevenson at 6 p.m. at Yack Arena in Wyandotte. If the Blue Devils get past Stevenson, they'll play the winner of Wednesday's North-Southgate Anderson contest on Friday, March 3.

The championship game will be played Saturday, March 4.

"We have a pretty good draw," Bopp said. "We wouldn't play Trenton until the championship game, but we'll have to be on our toes to win the other ones, too. We're taking them all seriously."

South began last week with a 9-1 romp over Divine Child, breaking the game open with a five-goal third period.

Bill Starrs scored three goals and collected two assists, while John Graffius had two goals and two assists.

The game was scoreless until Starrs tallied with 30 seconds remaining in the first period. Graffius and Starrs scored 25 seconds apart early in the second period and Starrs made it 4-0 on a shorthanded goal at 11:26 of the second period.

Graffius scored while killing off a penalty at 3:19 of the third period and Terry Brennan followed with a power-play goal. Kyle Watt, Justin Braun and Jamie Whitehead completed the South scoring.

Blue Devils' goalie Todd Dunlap kept the Falcons off the scoreboard until 11:18 of the third period.

Terry Brennan had two assists for South, while Bill Faber, Pat Brennan, Ryan Latz and Bryan Atkins collected one apiece.

The Blue Devils got a scare in their game with Ann Arbor Pioneer, but scored four goals in a 5 1/2 minute span of the second period to record a 4-2 victory.

"I thought this might be one we'd let get away," Bopp said. "We outshot them 12-3 in the first period and didn't score. Then they went up 2-0 early in the second period."

But that just turned out to be a wake-up call for South.

Jason Donohue opened the Blue Devils' scoring at 6:54, then defenseman Josh Prues tied the game with an unassisted goal at 9:49. Starrs put South in front at 11:14 and Donohue tallied his second of the game at 12:25.

"We moved Donohue to Graffius' spot when John hurt his shoulder," Bopp said. "Jason is doing a nice job. He's such a big kid, we sometimes forget that he's only a sophomore."

South changed strategy after failing to score for almost a period and a half.

Prep wrestlers set for regional

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

There's going to be a large delegation of Grosse Pointe wrestlers at the Class A individual regional tournament at Troy on Saturday and their prospects for advancement are good.

"I think we can qualify all of our kids for the state," said Grosse Pointe North coach Art Roberts, whose team qualified five wrestlers from last week's district tournament at Port Huron.

Grosse Pointe South coach Larry Carr is taking three of his wrestlers to the regional and he's also confident of their chances.

"Right now it's the mental part we're working on," Carr said. "The ability is there and their goals are set. Now it's just a matter of getting them mentally ready and believing they can go to the next step. Our focus has been to be more aggressive. We've been letting people take it to us. We should be forcing the action."

Roberts isn't overlooking the mental aspect in getting his wrestlers ready for the regional, either.

"You've done all you can as far as teaching fundamentals goes," he said. "Now we have to work with the mind and make them as positive as can be going into each match. And I think they are. We're going into the regional thinking that each of our guys can win."

North had two district champions, two runners-up and a third-place finisher, while South qualified with two thirds and a fourth. The top four finishers in each weight class qualify for the regional, while the top four regional qualifiers advance to the state meet in Battle Creek on March 4.

Freshman Derek Phillips of North won the championship at 100 pounds with an 11-4 victory over Nick Trombley of Anchor Bay.

"Trombley was the Macomb County (invitational) champion and Derek did a nice job against him," Roberts said. "It was really a 6-4 match until Derek put him on his back as time ran out."

One of Phillips' toughest matches came against South's Joe Dwaihy in the semifinal round. He wound up beating him 12-7, but Dwaihy led 6-5 in the third period.

"We told Derek to let him go, even if it meant letting Dwaihy take the lead," Roberts said. "We gambled that he'd be able to get the takedown and go back ahead. Dwaihy's a good kid. He fought hard. I wouldn't be surprised to see them both at the state meet."

Phillips, who was seeded second behind Trombley, pinned L'Anse Creuse's Mike Malloy at 1:24 in his first match.

Dwaihy wound up third when he pinned a Ford II wrestler in the consolation final.

North's other champion was Charlie Vasapolli at 126 pounds. Vasapolli beat Port Huron Northern's John Lents 11-5 in the final. Earlier, he pinned South's Ryan Parshall in 2:18 and beat Cousino's Shawn Kamen 14-1.

"Charlie has been wrestling well lately," Roberts said. "He had a little bit of a slump, but that came when he was going against a lot of tough kids from the Lansing area. He just controlled the Cousino kid that he beat 7-4 in the league meet."

North's Bill Pollard was second at 119 pounds, losing to John Burke of Anchor Bay 4-1 in the championship bout. Pollard, who was seeded second, beat East Detroit's Martin Hardy 20-5 and decisioned Paul Toth of Cousino 6-1.

"Billy's been doing a good job, too," Roberts said. "If we'd have had him for the Lincoln meet (in the dual-meet district), it might have been a different story. But he had that college scholarship test last weekend and missed a couple days of workouts and didn't make weight."

Christian Leininger finished second at 185 pounds when he was pinned by Roseville's Randy Nash with 15 seconds remaining in the title bout, but Roberts had no complaints with Leininger's performance.

"He wrestled the best tournament of his life," the coach said. "That championship match was just awesome. Christian was ahead 10-0 when Nash took a timeout with about a minute left. That gave him a chance to catch his wind and took the momentum away from Christian. Each one had the other guy on his back twice. The best thing, though, is that Christian knows he can beat Nash if they meet again."

Leininger won his first three matches on first-period falls over Ken Nelson of Port Huron Northern, Travis Strauchman of Port Huron and Lincoln's Don Holden.

Dan Shefferly, who was seeded sixth at 215 pounds, finished third for the Norsemen.

He won his first match on a first-period pin, then posted a 10-4 decision over third-seeded Kevin Burke of Eisenhower. Shefferly made a mistake against Ford II's Mark Augustyniak — the eventual champion — and was pinned in 1:15, but he came back to post a 13-3 decision over PHN's Jamie Danna.

"He pinned Sheff in 50 seconds at the Holt meet, but on Saturday he countered Danna's best move and threw him," Roberts said.

"We would have had six if Kevin Brandon (112) had been able to wrestle, but he has an injured ear and the doctor who treated it suggested that he shouldn't wrestle," Roberts said.

South's other two regional qualifiers were a pair of seniors — Steve Bunchek and Rob Sharrow.

"Steve has been wrestling well," Carr said. "He only wrestled once in December, but he's been getting better the more he's on the mat."

Bunchek finished third at 112 pounds.

Sharrow finished fourth when he dropped his semifinal and consolation final matches at 172 to the top two finishers at the Macomb County invitational.

"We had to make a decision on whether to wrestle Rob at 160 or 172," Carr said. "They're both tough weight classes, but we thought Rob could do a good job in either one."

South won its first match in the dual-meet district by overpowering East Detroit 52-14, but the Blue Devils bowed to Lincoln 52-15 in the championship match.

Dwaihy (100 pounds), Brian Goldstein (106), Bunchek (112), Sharrow (160), Zach Meyers (172) and Rob Riethmiller (215) each won by falls in the East Detroit match.

South's winners against Lincoln were Dwaihy by a fall at 100, Bunchek on a major decolision at 112 and Sharrow on a decision at 172.

North dropped a 44-30 decision to Lincoln in its dual-meet district semifinal match. Phillips (100 pounds), Brandon (112) and Vasapolli (126) were North's winners and each pinned his opponent.

Highlights

Following are recent results from the Neighborhood Club's sixth-grade basketball leagues.

BOYS GRADE 6

Langone Dimango Shell 32, Cyclones 20

Shell was led in rebounding by James Vandeputte, P.T. Moore, Kurt Faber, Marty Peters and Kevin Barry. Chad Gohlke scored four points on the end of a couple of fast breaks. John Halpin was Shell's leading scorer with 12 points and also contributed a couple of assists. Vandeputte and Moore each scored six points and Todd Lorenger added four. Tom Zepke led the Cyclones with 11 points and Mike O'Neill had six.

Blue Jays 29, Funding Sources Jammers 22

Two quick baskets gave the Jammers an early lead, but the Blue Jays turned up the defensive intensity and forced several turnovers. Aaron Byrd led the Blue Jays with 13 points, including a three-point goal, and G.J. Kordas had a triple among his six points. Mark Peppier also scored six points and Brian Killian added four. Chris Lowdon, Matt Seymour and Steve Wereley played good interior defense and they were solid on the boards, while Steve Gallagher keyed the Blue Jays' full-court press in the fourth quarter. The Jammers were led by guards Paul Lochiro and Andrew Vlasak, who each shot well and ran the fast break with Jared Plasky. Sean Edwin and James Burns also contributed to the scoring. Craig Freimuth was a strong rebounder and Mike Hoehn and Ryan Kelly had good defensive games.

Turbos 29, Eye Works Optical 20

Telly's Place

Telly's Place had a bye last week, but the team is having an enjoyable season. Point guard Austin Carter and forward Anthony Antonelli have led the scoring, while Brian Asher and Bill Fortune have been the top rebounders. Dan Howard and Jonathan Knitter have been defensive standouts, while Paul Loredo, Henry Deblouw and Alex Groesbeck have also played well.

GIRLS GRADE 6

L.A. 18, Houston 6

L.A. played an excellent game, achieving its four goals of rebounding, steals, play execution and hustle. Jenna Ulmer and Jessica Schore were the top playmakers, while Dianne Umpeyer, Devon Beaupre and Jenny Kamerud controlled the boards. Lia Ventura, Raquel Daboul, Maria Palazzolo and Meg Scallen were defensive standouts, while Lyndsay Dalby played a fine all-around game. Katie Abel, Sarah Richardson and Korri Detrick scored Houston's baskets. Marlowe Marsh played excellent defense in the half-court trap. Lisa Levrenz played a good two-way game at point guard. Evann O'Donnell led in rebounding and Lauren Padilla drove to the basket aggressively. Colleen O'Donoghue and Jessica Buchanan each had good all-around games.

Republic Bank 8, Cleveland 6

Maya Palmgren scored Republic's last three baskets, with the final one breaking a 6-6 tie. Lauren O'Brien had Republic's other bucket. Laurie Brescoll and Shaelyn Moloney-Egnatios each made several fine plays and Sarah Schultz and Christine Kelly did a good job of bringing the ball down the court. Elizabeth Osburn scored all of Cleveland's points. Cammy Preston and Tanya Gauvin also played well offensively, while Sylvia Ridgway, Colleen McMillan and Athena Inemopolidis stepped up their defensive efforts with three key Cleveland players missing.

Boston 18, Detroit 10

The game was nearly a standoff at halftime, but Boston's Alicia Cecchini sparked her team with three straight baskets in the second half. Cara Crawford and Erika Dickson each had two baskets and Dana Etheridge and Amy Worrell added one apiece. Regan Wilson had several rebounds, while Kaitlin DeVries and Kathryn Miller played good two-way games. Detroit continued its improvement with excellent defense and ball control.

New York 16, Chicago 8

New York won the battle of undefeated teams as Andrea Symonds led the way with six points. Lauren Sutton had five points, five steals and five rebounds, while Lauren Zelenski added four points and three steals. Chicago worked well together and set up some good plays.

ULS drops a thriller

The University Liggett Middle School boys basketball team lost a thrilling overtime game to Detroit Greenfield Peace in the championship game of the Lutheran East Invitational.

"It was a great tournament for us," said ULS coach Bruce Pelto after his team's 40-38 loss in the final. "We went a lot farther than anyone thought we would."

Joel Parrott led the Knights with 26 points in the title game and was named to the all-tournament team.

ULS led 21-17 at halftime, thanks to a pressure zone defense designed to counter Greenfield's penetration.

"We worked our game plan to perfection," Pelto said. "We simply ran out of gas in overtime."

The Knights reached the finals with a 29-26 victory over a bigger St. Peter squad.

ULS built a 10-point lead in the first half, but St. Peter came back in the second half. Parrott put the Knights ahead to stay on a basket with 1:30 remaining and two key defensive plays and a key rebound by Chi-Chi Kabongo secured the victory.

Hockey

"We started shooting the puck on the ice more and their goalie had some trouble with the low shots," Bopp said.

Terry Brennan assisted on three of South's goals, while Starrs had two assists.

South continued to get strong play from the defensive pairings of Braun and Prues and Faber and Pat Brennan.

"They just control the play back there," Bopp said.

The coach also praised the work of Whitehead, who has been making his presence felt while injuries and illness have hit the Blue Devils' forwards.

"We've had five forwards out and Jamie's filled in well," Bopp said. "He wasn't used a lot last year, but he's improved so much. He's one of the reasons we have such a good record."

South is 12-3 in league play with one game remaining.

Two South juniors win figure-skating medals

Two Grosse Pointe South juniors won medals at the 1995 United States Figure Skating Championships this month in Providence, R.I.

Lindsay Ronayne, making her first trip to the nationals, was fourth in ice figures in the Novice Ladies division.

She was chosen to compete in the nationals after elimination meets last fall and next year hopes to compete in the Junior Ladies figure and freestyle events. Ryan Jahnke won a third-place medal in his first national event as a freestyle competitor in the Men's Junior division.

He was one of 14 competitors in the field. His third-place overall finish came two days after he was second in the short program component of the competition.

Jahnke has qualified for the U.S. National Championships in each of the last four years.

He won the 1992 silver medal in the Novice Men's figures competition, won the 1993 gold medal in Novice Men's freestyle and won the pewter (fourth place) medal in the 1994 Junior Men's ice figures competition.

Jahnke has been invited to the elite skaters' camp sponsored by the U.S. Figure Skating Association in April at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs.

He will also participate in the Olympic Festival in the Denver area in July and hopes to qualify for the 1996 Junior World competition.

Jahnke and Ronayne are both students of Lindsay's mother, Diana Ronayne, who directs the St. Clair Shores Figure Skating School. Another of her students, Daniel Hollander of Huntington Woods, finished seventh overall in the Championship Men's Freeskating competition in Providence.

Home sales down in fourth quarter in nearly all states

Climbing interest rates are being blamed for a slowdown in the existing-home market, as moderate increases in sales were reported in only four states during the fourth quarter of 1994 compared to a year ago, the National Association of Realtors reports.

According to the association's latest quarterly survey of sales of previously owned homes, home sales rose 8.3 percent during the fourth quarter in Delaware, 5.7 percent in Michigan, 3.1 percent in Arizona and 0.8 percent in Minnesota, compared to the same period a year ago.

While figures for Alaska and Georgia were unavailable, 43 states and the District of Columbia reported home sales down in the fourth quarter. Of those states, 24 and the District of Columbia experienced double-digit drops compared to the fourth quarter of 1993. Only Florida reported resale activity unchanged compared to a year ago.

Nationwide, the NAR survey showed the seasonally adjusted annual resale rate of existing single-family detached homes, town houses, apartment condominiums and co-operatives totaled 4.31 million units for the fourth quarter of 1994, a drop of 6.7 percent from the 4.62 million units sold during 1993's fourth quarter.

NAR president Edmund G. Woods

Jr. said the figures show the continuous rise in mortgage interest rates over the past year has proven to outweigh consumer demand in the marketplace.

"Each time the Federal Reserve Board has hiked interest rates in the last year, another group of consumers has either been locked out of the market or dissuaded from making a purchase. After seven hikes, the housing market nationwide has really begun to feel the sting of consumers unable to withstand higher rates," Woods said.

The NAR survey showed home sales declined in the fourth quarter of 1994 compared to a year ago in every region of the nation.

"While in the past, some slowdowns in various markets have been attributed to natural disasters such as floods and storms, the only disaster the fourth-quarter slowdown can be attributed to is an interest rate disaster," Woods said.

NAR executive vice president Almon R. "Bud" Smith said that rising rates have served to extinguish many of the opportunities in the marketplace that had existed for first-time buyers to move from renter to owner.

"The continuous upticks in rates are really dampening affordability conditions and the dream of home ownership," Smith said.

The Midwest region of the nation experienced the lowest drop in resales during the fourth quarter of 1994 compared to a year ago. The region, which posted a 4.2 percent decline in resales compared to a year ago, was the only one to record two states where resales increased. In Michigan, resales rose 5.7 percent, while Minnesota gained .8 percent. North Dakota, the region's hardest-hit state, reported a drop in sales of 16.8 percent for the fourth quarter.

Sales of existing homes fell 8.7 percent in the West in the fourth quarter of 1994 compared to the same time last year. States hardest hit in the region include Colorado, down 21.4 percent; Oregon, down 19.9 percent; and Idaho, down 19.7 percent.

In the Northeast, where no states reported an increase in sales for the fourth quarter, resales were down 8.3 percent. Vermont posted the greatest drop in sales of 22.8 percent, followed by Maine, down 14.6 percent, and Massachusetts, down 13.0 percent.

The South meanwhile experienced a 6.0 percent drop in resales in the fourth quarter. Sales in that region were dragged down by slowdowns in Maryland, which posted a 22.3 percent drop; Virginia, which witnessed a 17.4 percent fall; and the District of Columbia, which recorded a decline of 15.5 percent.

The National Association of Realtors, "The Voice for Real Estate," is the nation's largest professional association, representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

1994 fourth-quarter home prices rise

Home prices rose moderately throughout many metropolitan areas during the final quarter of 1994, hinting at the chilling impact higher mortgage rates are having on the housing industry, according to the National Association of Realtors.

Although the West, South and Midwest contain pockets of strong price gains, home prices generally are not rising as rapidly now as in years past, said NAR president Edmund G. Woods Jr.

"Higher rates are shaking up the market," he said. "As more people are shut out and demand tapers off, prices tend to either stall or rise more slowly."

The majority of the 133 metropolitan statistical areas included in the association's home price survey posted home price increases ranging from 0.1 percent to 6 percent between the fourth quarter of 1993 and the fourth quarter of 1994. Just two years ago, price increases ranging between 5 percent and 10 percent were more common. The median price for the United States in the fourth quarter was $107,900, rising 0.8 percent from one year earlier.

The report covered median prices for single-family detached and attached existing homes. Prices in the fourth quarter ranged from $357,000 in Honolulu to $55,000 in Cedar Falls, Iowa. A median price is the midpoint in the price range; half the homes sell for more and half sell for less.

Woods pointed out that while a slowdown in price increases can help keep homes more affordable, rising rates offset enhanced housing affordability.

"The people looking to buy starter homes are the first ones we lose when rates go up," he said. "Then, as higher rates work through the market, purchases get delayed up and down the line."

According to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., the average commitment rate for fixed-rate, 30-year conventional mortgages was 9.10 percent during the fourth quarter of 1994, compared to 7.64 percent for the fourth quarter of 1993.

A few areas bucked the trend of slower appreciation. The Raleigh/Durham area of North Carolina, with a median price of $124,500, recorded the largest price increase in the survey, at 14.7 percent. The Salt Lake City/Ogden area of Utah, at $102,200, had the second highest increase, which was 14.6 percent. Albuquerque, with a price of $114,500, ranked third, with an increase of 11.3 percent.

According to NAR chief economist John A. Tuccillo, some housing markets remain extremely active, due to healthy local economics.

"The economic and employment conditions in these areas are strong enough to overcome higher rates," he said. "However, these markets definitely are unique."

The West contained three areas posting double-digit appreciation between the final quarter of 1993 and the final quarter of 1994. In addition to Salt Lake City and Albuquerque, Colorado Springs, Col., posted a 10.8 percent increase in its median price, which was $105,500.

"High demand in the interior of the West has really bumped up prices," Tuccillo said.

For the region as a whole, the fourth-quarter price was $143,400, which was 0.6 percent above the fourth quarter of 1993. Marginal changes in median prices for most of the California markets held down the median price for the West.

In the Midwest, Springfield, Mo., recorded the strongest price increase. There, the median price of $75,500 rose 7.9 percent between the fourth quarter of 1993 and the fourth quarter of 1994. The Aurora/Elgin area of Illinois, with a median price of $128,000, ranked second, with a price increase of 7.5 percent. Cedar Rapids, Iowa, with a median price of $84,900, and Sioux Falls, S.D., with a price of $80,100, tied for third place, with an increase of 5.7 percent. For the Midwest as a whole, the fourth-quarter median price was $87,200, rising 2.1 percent from one year earlier.

In addition to Raleigh, Louisville, Ky., was another southern city to post a strong price increase. Louisville's median price of $80,900 rose 8.4 percent — the second highest price gain in the South. In the Richmond/Petersburg area of Virginia, the price of $99,200 rose 7.4 percent; and in Nashville, Tenn., the price of $99,500 rose 7.1 percent. For the South as a whole, the median price for the fourth quarter of 1994 was $94,200, which dropped 1.4 percent from the same quarter one year earlier.

In the Northeast, the Bergen/Passaic counties of New Jersey posted the highest price increase. There, the median price of $187,200 rose 3.2 percent. In Boston, the price of $177,600 rose 2.8 percent; and in Trenton, N.J., the price of $126,300 rose 1.4 percent. The region's overall price for the fourth quarter was $134,900, which was 2.7 percent below that for the fourth quarter of 1993.

According to Tuccillo, growth in the housing industry will weaken notably if interest rate increases continue to occur.

"Consumers will take themselves out of the market. Fear of the unknown makes people unwilling to react," he said.
