War Memorial looks to the future following $11 million cable windfall

By Chip Chapman

Receiving almost $11 million might seem like a double-edged sword for a non-profit organiza. tion; it's nice to have the money, but will it affect future fundraising efforts?

"Contributions are up, despite the cable sale," said Grosse Pointe War Memorial president Mark Weber. "People like to give to organizations

Satellite decision in City on hold

By Chip Chapman Staff Writer In order to be fair to the neighbors who were out of town, the City of Grosse Pointe Council delayed deciding where a couple living on Elmsleigh should place their 10-feet-in-di-

G.P. Shores seeks $2.7 million bonds for sewage project

By Chip Chapman Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Shores residents who want to make an even greater investment in their community may be able to do so if voters pass a $2.7 million bond issue to finance the separation of the village's combined sewage system.

The Shores village council unanimously approved a proposition Feb. 21 that would put the bond issue before the voters on the May 16 municipal election ballot.

"We're doing this to save Grosse Pointe Shores money," said Shores President John Huetteman III.

If voters pass the measure and bonds are issued, Huetteman wants residents to have the opportunity to purchase the bonds.

Grosse Pointe Shores municipal bonds have a Standard & Poor's rating of AA, among the highest rated bonds available, said Shores bond counsel Terrence M. Donnelly.

The cost to the village of issuing the bonds is about 1 percent, or $27,000.

Approval would make the Shores debt service portion of the village's millage between 0.58 and 0.90 mills, depending on interest rates over 20 years.

Current debt service is 0.68 mills (to cover the cost of the renovation of the village office building) and is scheduled to be retired in five years, said village manager Michael Kenyon

"People will not see any increase in their taxes and possibly may see a reduction," he said. "Sewer repairs and maintenance usually take about $450,000 out of the general fund budget each year. This project should save us some of that money and would enable us to retire the existing debt

With a combined system. sanitary waste from households and storm water from street catch basins flow to the Detroit treatment plant. During heavy rains, the Detroit plant, with its limited capacity, cannot handle all the sewage the Shores and other communities send its way. When there is more than the Detroit plant can handle, the combined sewage overflows (CSOs) are emitted from four different outfalls in the Shores into Lake St.

Separating the systems would send all storm water directly into the lake, while only sanitary waste would flow to the Detroit plant.

In addition to complying with possible DNR regulations, separating the combined systems can reduce the price the Shores pays to the city of Detroit for sewage treatment.

The following Shores streets still have combined systems: Lakeshore Drive. Shoreham, Lakeshore Lane, Oxford, Sun-ningdale and all streets from Hampton north to Crestwood.

The cost of separating the remaining combined systems done at one time is estimated at just under $2.7 million. Done street by street over a number of years could cost about $3.6 million, according to the village's engineers, Hubbell, Roth

With annual expenses just under $3 million and revenues of about $2.1 million, the War Memorial makes up the difference with annual fundraising money, planned giving programs and interest from the endowment. The proceeds from the sale of Grosse Pointe Cable to Comcast Corp., just under $11 million, went into the War Memorial's endowment, generating an additional $500,000 a year in interest.

War Memorial programs are about 65 percent self-supporting. The difference is made up with money from annual fund drives, endowment interest and planned giving funds.

"The educational programs actually lose money," Weber said. "But since my background in continuing education, I feel that it's more important to have a lecture or program than to just rent out the facilities, regardless of how much money the rental would be."

Weber, who has a doctorate in adult continuing education from Indiana University, re-turned to Grosse Pointe from Indiana in 1981 to become president of the War Memorial.

"If they (the War Memorial board) were looking for some-one just to manage the facilities, then I told them that I wasn't that person," he said.

War Memorial received some criticism for its involvement with Grosse Pointe Cable.

Some residents wondered if becoming involved in cable television and building cable studios fit in with the War Memorial's mission as a living memorial offering lifelong learning.

Weber credits the War Memorial with bringing four of the Pointes and Harper Woods together in forming Grosse Pointe Cable.

"This wasn't a commercial venture. We didn't have to do it," Weber said. "When Grosse Pointe Cable was leaving the Mack and Moross site after St. John Hospital did not renew the lease, the cable offices moved to the corner of Wayburn and Charlevoix (in 1989). A studio had to be built somewhere. The five cities and Comcast agreed that building a studio at the War Memorial would be the best move. Cable television is a proper use for the War Memorial and the community thinks so, too."

By building the studio at the War Memorial, Grosse Pointe Cable was and is able to offer local origination programs which may not have been possible had the studios been constructed elsewhere with outside employees running the pro-

Other communities now look at the War Memorial as a model of local origination programming, Weber said.

The studios were built between April 1992 and March 1993 and primarily funded by Grosse Pointe Cable. The War Memorial contributed $300,000 of the total $1.2 million cost.

She has collected and repaired hundreds of dresses and thousands of accessories shoes, gloves, scarves, ribbons, laces, jewelry, handbags, stockings and undergarments - to complete the outfits.

"It's a hobby," Harle said. "I would lose my enthusiasm if it became a business.'

Her collection includes more than 100 hats from the 1860s to the 1940s, dozens of elaborately beaded flapper dresses, an ostrich feather cape, a coat from the '20s trimmed with monkey fur, a dozen vintage wedding gowns and some men's suits, vests and hats.

Harle grew up on Detroit's east side and graduated from Detroit's Eastern High School.

"I always loved clothes," she said. "I used to draw clothes for hours when I was a kid. Fashions today aren't what they used to be, with all the purses and hats and such

"I was so nervous. Nineteen women showed up," she said. "Two of them brought vintage clothes of their own. I was able to outfit everyone, from size 4 to size 18."

Harle agreed to put on a vintage fashion show for the 1978 state Questers convention, which was held at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Two years later she did a similar show for more than 800 people in Dearborn. She was hooked on vintage fashions.

"With a partner, I did a hat show called 'Off the Tops of Our Heads' for five years. My partner moved, but my new partner, Nancy Pacitto, is a student at Wayne working on her Ph.D. It's more fun do to this with someone," she said.

Harle and Pacitto wash. clean, repair and refurbish all the items they use. Harle swears by Shaklee products, which she said even remove old food stains from antique table linens and old champagne stains from vintage wedding gowns.

Everything is washed or cleaned, mended, ironed and restored to its former glory. Pacitto restores the intricate beadwork on the gowns.

War Memorial builds quality of Pointe life

oday the Grosse Pointe News reviews in its news columns the ac-. tivities of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial which we believe make important contributions to the excellent qualities of living in this community.

Our purpose is two-fold: to inform the people of the Pointes about the many services and programs the War Memorial offers and to discuss criticisms made about some of its activities.

In preparing this review, we were reminded of the sense of public responsibility shown by the center's founders, and especially by the Russell Alger family in contributing the family residence, "The Moorings," which still houses most of the center's activities.

In 1949, the building was dedicated to a dual purpose: to serve as a perpetual memorial to the 3,500 Grosse Pointers who served and the 126 who died in World War II: and to serve as a continuing center for educational and charitable activities in the five Pointe communities.

Those are still the center's purposes.

Grosse Pointe News

Vol. 56, No. 9, March 2, 1995, Page 6A

Since 1949, it has expanded its memorial lists to pay tribute to those who served in Korea, Vietnam and Operation Desert Storm in the Persian Gulf.

Today more than 50 of the some 75 groups and organizations in the Pointes identify the War Memorial as either their home base or as a place they regularly

Altogether, an estimated 200,000 people, 95 percent of whom are Grosse Pointers, participate annually in the center's activities.

As we said earlier, the War Memorial has its critics. They are chiefly nearby residents who complain about traffic, noise and other problems created by center activities in the residential neighborhood. Some also take credit for halting two War Memorial projects.

One was the center's failed attempt to obtain a liquor license which it sought to improve its control over liquor served at private functions at the War Memorial.

The second was the center's unsuccessful effort to nullify use restrictions in order to convert the home it had purchased at 40 Lakeshore into a supplementary community center. The discovery of a deed restriction limiting the property to residential use stymied the center's plans.

But does the War Memorial's outreach become empire-building that extends even beyond the Pointes, as some critics claim?

Some outreach beyond the Pointes is required by the War Memorial's dedication as a memorial to Grosse Pointers who had served in the nation's armed forces.

That dedication permits families and close relatives of those service people, whether they live in the Pointes or not, to use the center's facilities.

Aside from that requirement, the War Memorial promotes and advertises its activities by mailings limited to Grosse Pointe residents and to contributors from outside the Pointes.

Does the War Memorial provide appropriate information and reports to the public with respect to its services, programs, fundraising and expenditures?

On the basis of our survey, we think it offers excellent information about its activities, although some critics probably could be silenced if the annual reports and other information could be more widely distributed.

As it looks to the future, the War Memorial is still expanding its horizons to meet growing demands. Its most recent expansion was addition of TV studios in which local programs originate on a nonpolitical, non-commercial basis for use on Channel 32.

The success of the center is attributed to the community's strong support of the annual fund drive, the work and planning of the professional staff, and the contributions of hundreds of volunteers who support the center's programs and services.

Overall, the Grosse Pointe News believes that the War Memorial is serving its original purposes well and responding appropriately to the growing demands for new services and programs.

In doing so, the War Memorial continues to make important contributions to the excellent quality of life in the Pointes and, like the excellent public school system, helps maintain property values in the entire community.

GOP contract 'only a start'

peaker Newt Gingrich paused briefly last week not only to reflect on House progress toward fulfilling its Contract with America in its first 50 days but to spell out his vision "for the next 50 days - and beyond."

Writing on the New York Times Op Ed page, Gingrich said the GOP aim is to create "a conservative opportunity society" to replace the "liberal welfare state."

But Gingrich sees completing the House Contract with America as "only a beginning, the start of a program to renew American civilization and to build a true civil society.'

At the midway mark, Gingrich and his colleagues claim credit for passage of about half of the 10 items in their contract. Gingrich claims Democratic support

Yet some of the House program obviously is aimed at undoing the work of the 103rd Democratic Congress and President Clinton.

In its crime bill revisions, for example, the GOP House switched its emphasis from prevention to punishment, ignored Clinton's veto threat, and passed a revised measure.

However, the GOP House won Democratic support to pass the proposed balanced budget constitutional amendment, which also might have passed the Senate with some Democratic backing after this

Some Democrats also went along with the GOP on several other votes but they did join with moderate Republicans to defeat an attempt to revive the Star Wars system as a protection against missile attack and halt an effort to wipe out the

At this writing, however, the only House bill to have passed the Senate, and become law with Clinton's signature, is the congressional accountability act that requires Congress to abide by the same laws it imposes on other employers.

Silent majority?

To the Editor:

In your issue of Feb. 16, I am told that since I voted against the 8.5-mills in the recent election, "I don't see the issues: I don't seem to understand the non-homestead proposal; I didn't understand that it was important to get the foundation grant." All this from our superintendent of schools, and all of this on the front page of that issue.

On page two of the same issue, I am told by the school board president that the board and district underestimated the complexity of the issues in terms of explaining them to the voters." On that same page, the board secretary said, 'The election results signify that some voters did not understand the issues."

Monteith PTO president claims that people who spoke against the millage are not representative of the whole community and that there is a "silent majority" who would be at-tacked by "emotional people" if they, too, spoke out. Did not this election allow the "silent majority" a chance to speak without fear of attacks by "emotional people"?

Resolve issues To the Editor:

Now I really feel confused!

Ms. McShane's article on Feb. 9 indicated one parent and 30 other parents came to a school board meeting to express their concerns about their children's educational needs. Mr. Anderson, school board president, indicated those concerns were being reviewed and Dr. Shine would soon address them.

Then Christa Goldsmith's letter to the editor appeared (Feb. 16), and I do wonder - as she puts it -'where's the rest of the

Seems to me "this parent plus the 30 others" so casally dismissed by school board as well as Ms. Goldsmith have followed (per Grosse Pointe News) the proper channels to voice their concerns:

a) at Maire school - perhaps not collectively as Ms. Goldsmith states; and

b) to the school board.

If Whole Language is the issue, perhaps Ms. Mc-Shane could help us understand the problem, as well as the promised investiga-tion Dr. Shine/school board have undertaken to address the concerns of 31 parents.

For my benefit, what are the MEAP scores of Maire in comparison to other area schools?

The answers to these issues are waiting to be resolved, not in acrimony, but for the purpose of pre-paring the children of our community with the lifelong joys of education.

Gen X: It's just a label

There was a message on my answering machine yesterday from my sister; frustration was evident in her voice.

"Ron, there's a buzzword I keep hearing and I want to know what the heck it means. I've heard it before, but now I hear it all the time and it's starting to bug me. It's 'Generation X.' Please call me and let me know what it means."

The first thought that crossed my mind was, "Hey Ellen, if you moved out of that you live in, you'd have access to things like libraries and public television and you'd know by now what the term means." After all, the term's been around since 1991, and it's already becoming passe.

The term came from the title of an excellent book by Douglas Coupland. The book is not so much a story as it is a character study of Andy, Dag and Claire, who live in a sort of commune in the California desert, searching for meaning in their lives.

The people in the book, as the liner notes say, are "underemployed, overeducated, intensely private and unpredicta-ble. Like the group they mirror, they have nowhere to direct their anger, no one to assuage their fears, and no culture to replace their anomie.

It's since been used, by those known as baby boomers, to slam anyone under 30. They back water, Green Acres burg fail to see the fact that no generation can ever be summed up by a catch phrase.

head held high.

Thanks to Phil Donohue, Oprah Winfrey and other issueoriented talk shows, they're unmoved by the extremes of society and suspicious of all those self-appointed, book-writing experts on human relationships.

They feel they missed out on the New Deal of the '40s, the commonality of an important historical event (World War II, Vietnam, the Kennedy assassination) and the economic boom of the 50s and the Great Society of the '60s. Their parents had the sexual revolution; Generation X has AIDS.

They want the world to take them seriously — they're more than a target market, they're this country's future.

At the end of Coupland's book, the main character watches a large white egret float gracefully over a field still smoldering from a recent fire. Watching with him is a group of mentally retarded children.

He is grazed by the bird, and "suddenly I was dog-piled by an instant family, in their adoring, healing, uncritical embrace." (In the book, it's quite a beautiful scene. Repeated here, it loses its magic.)

That's all Generation X wants: a caring family, praise for its uniqueness, a sense of completeness and acceptance.

It's not much more than their parents, or their parents before them wanted as they are forced to take their place in an unfriendly world they didn't

So in the end, A Generation Xer is someone - like you or me - who has left the comforting arms of a family, then the untempered acceptance of their college friends to go out and meet the world on its own

And that makes it nothing more than a label. Hope I helped.

FLOWERS BANK, Belize -It's official: I've spent more time in Flowers Bank than any other visitor in community memory - and I set the record last week.

After a few days of kicking around with binoculars and camera, people began to know me. Kids who smiled shylv at first were now calling my name out the windows as I passed the and talk about our children. school. Neighbors began sending over fish or vegetable or dessert.

I'm part of the regular group that gathers every afternoon to watch "Another World" and gloat over the downfall of that despicable scumbag, Grant.

By now, the daily (and nightly) roaring of the black howler monkeys barely registers in my consciousness. Snug in the mosquito tent I have finally learned to manage, I listen to them, but they don't keep me awake.

Though not really part of it. I sense the rhythm of village life. Every morning men go out on horseback to hunt or work their milpas in the bush. Smoke rises from outdoor kitchens and slash-and-burns. Kids paddle across the river to catch the school bus. Some of their elders ride along too, and get out at the bridge for their fitness walk back to the village Evenings, men gather in the cool shade under Robinson's house for a card game. Miss

It isn't perfect, of course; the economic benefits of the ecotourism aren't spread evenly through all the villages. There's the usual bit of politics and rivalry. Some people are cynical about tourism; some have the false hope that it will bring them great wealth. And the agriculture that sustained these villages in the past doesn't bring in much money

But to turn the question over and look at it from the other side, there are successes, too. In its 10th year of operation, the sanctuary now brings in enough money to be a sustainable business. It directly employs a few people, and many more pick up extra cash offering rooms, meals and crafts. Last year 6,000 tourists came to see the black howler monkeys that give the sanctuary its

Keep our custodians

To the Editor:

l am not a custodian. I am a parent with children in Grosse Pointe schools (Monteith and Brownell). I have one thing to say, "do not privatize the custodians."

Please, if it isn't broken, don't fix it! I for one do not want to see strangers roaming the halls of my children's schools. I have always been able to go to Monteith or Brownell and see the same engineers working on keeping our school well maintained and extremely clean.

The custodians at Monteith have never once complained about being the judge for the Cub Scouts' Pinewood Derby. They never once complained when we would have our functions there. They are always courteous and friendly. I know their faces and so do my children. When you walk into Brownell, you have to have a sense of pride in how well the school is maintained. I've never once have walked in there and found the floors dirty or the hallways cluttered.

Maybe some of the board should take a look at what it takes to be a head engineer. It is not an easy job to maintain such large buildings. I believe privatizing these positions would leave room for strangers walking through the halls of our school, favoritism of contract bids, and no loyalty from the engineering staff.

Maybe the school board should leave well enough alone and concentrate on the education of our students, and rewriting the millage proposal so that it is acceptable to the taxpayers of Grosse Pointe — Mike Whitty's suggestion on Feb. 16 for 6.5 mills for a three-year term.

Special ed: Unfunded mandate?

To the Editor:

In the Feb. 9 issue a letter appeared in this newspaper from Sears Taylor which, among other things, urged the school board and citizens of this community to fight all unfunded federal and state mandates.

This is an issue that has received lots of attention in the past year or two, and on the surface it certainly sounds reasonable. On closer inspection however, there are federal and state mandates which are unfunded or only partially funded that hit very close to home for many of us in this community. One of these is special education.

The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act is up for renewal this year, and there is some concern that it may not be renewed because of the push to oppose mandates which are not fully funded. When Mr. Taylor was confronted by parents on this portion of his letter at the Feb. 13

He stated publicly that he supports providing special education services to students and, in fact, has benefited within his own family from those supports and services.

We feel, however, that since the issue has been raised in this public forum, the public needs to be informed again about the serious consequences and long-term cost of cutting into special educational funding.

The majority of students currently receiving special education services have the potential to be contributing, tax-paying members of the community. They also have the potential for chronic failure and all of the societal problems and costs that go along with failure. The major deciding factor between these two extremes is an excellent, individualized education which teaches students to use their strengths, compensate for their disabilities and to understand themselves and their learning styles so that they may advocate for themselves in other words, special education.

For our more severely handicapped population, early, intensive special educational intervention can make the difference between institutionalization and the ability to live a productive, semi-independent or supported adult life. It is no secret that the cost to taxpayers is much greater when a handicapped adult is unable to contribute in a vocational placement, than when he has learned even a very basic vocational skill.

Since people are adults much longer than they are children, it doesn't take a lot of math to figure out that the cost of an excellent education is more than paid for when we can turn out adults who require less care, less supervision and can be productive in even a small way.

What does not change for our children is the need for specialized teaching techniques, individualized educational programs, and personnel who have knowledge about the unique challenges faced by our students with disabilities. Special education is not a mandate to be capriciously done away with just because it is not fully funded by the government. For our children it is the bridge across disability to realizing their abilities.

As we discuss and debate the future funding of our children's education, we ask that those who are interested in a quality educa-tion for all kids avoid broad generalizations what they oppose, and in-stead look closely at the cost of each federal and state mandate, versus the cost of eliminating it. There may be some un-funded mandates that do not pass that test, and you have our blessing to oppose them. But we would argue that the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act passes that test with flying colors.

Special education is one of those rare federal mandates where the moral and ethical thing to do also makes the best financial sense.

Community education in decline?

To the Editor:

Where is our Community Education Program heading?

I've taught chair caning and basketweaving here in the community for 13 years and have enjoyed the op-portunity of sharing what I know with others and have learned in return a wealth from those who have taken my classes. I have also taught on a volunteer basis at several of our elementary schools during the lunch time enrichment programs, as well as lectured on the importance of these crafts in history.

It's a sad day for our community to see our fine Community Education Program dwindle away. No matter how old or mature we get, we are never be-yond learning. Our Community Education Program at one time gave us all that opportunity. However, in the last year and a half the classes have been cut for one reason or another. A recent example of that is a basketweaving class with 10 students enrolled was canceled because a minimum of 12 students was not met. (I was given the opportunity to run this class if I would go on a cosponsorship. It obviously isn't something that many of the teachers opted for because now many of them are also gone.)

The bad news is our community is losing some fine teachers gifted in their own talents. Our classrooms are now empty and we are still paying for them.

The good news is that the other learning institutions in our community, such as the Neighborhood Club and the War Memorial, as well as neighboring Community Education Programs, will see rises in their enrollment as they meet the needs of our citizens.

A thank you to the students who have touched me with their talents and imagination. Thanks to the administration for letting me pass along some of the colonial crafts that have been so important in our history.

North thanks to Crisis Club

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Grosse Pointe North Student Association, we would like to publicly thank the members of the Grosse Pointe Crisis Club. The Crisis Club has provided $10,000 in Kroger gift certificates over the past four years. These gift certificates have assisted the Grosse Pointe North student body in its Adopt-a-Family program. The generosity of the students and staff of North and the contributions made by the Crisis Club have enabled the student government to adopt 50 families this Christmas.

These families were réferred to us from the elementary and middle schools of Grosse Pointe, Harper Woods, and Goodale Elementary in Detroit. These 50 families are comprised of approximately 450 children and their parents. The Crisis Club's generosity helped make this program an enormous suc-cess and aided in making it a very enjoyable holiday season for some unfortunate families.

Smithsonian on right track

To the Editor: As you know, reportedly 80 senators are demanding the dismissal of Martin Harwit, the Smithsonian director who wants to present a balanced and historically correct exhibit of the nuclear destruction of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. This would exemplify the courage of the airman who piloted the Enola Gay, as well as the result of the bomb-

Many of my friends who, as I, are World War II veterans, think that an objective presentation is an excellent idea. What better deterrent to future horrors of nuclear warfare than to illustrate the unimaginably gruesome results. John Wayne Hollywood productions notwithstanding, there was simply nothing pretty about WW II.

Perhaps, just perhaps, if we see the true hideous face of war, it might make one think twice before unleashing another holocaust.

Sorry senators, but many of us feel you are missing the point and should be supporting Mr. Harwit's valiant effort to present proper history and, we pray, a deterrent.

For our children it is the bridge across disability to realizing their abilities.

As we discuss and debate the future funding of our children's education, we ask that those who are interested in a quality educa-tion for all kids avoid broad generalizations in what they oppose, and instead look closely at the cost of each federal and state mandate, versus the cost of eliminating it. There may be some unfunded mandates that do not pass that test, and you have our blessing to oppose them. But we would argue that the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act passes that test with flying

League urges land-use plan

To the Editor:
The League of Women
Voters recently reached agreement on land use in our communities. Knowing that there is little land available for public use, and knowing that the beauty of living here should be preserved, the consensus of the League emphasizes the following points.

We urge the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods to develop a plan for land and facility use. We encourage the municipalities to work together to formulate a plan. The recommendations of the futuring project report are a good place to begin. And we urge the six communities to include a cross-section of residents, elected officials and urban planners to accomplish this

Gleaners reaps plenty in Pointes

To the Editor:

A special thanks to the Grosse Pointe News and the entire Grosse Pointe community for your generous support of Gleaners Community Food Bank's "Help Feed the Hungry Buy a Case of Food" program. During the month of December, readers donated $1,578 for cases of food for the poor from the coupons featured in the Grosse Pointe News.

We are currently distributing nearly one million pounds of food every month to over 200 non-profit member soup kitchens, emergency shelters, and other feeding agencies. Your support puts food on the tables of needy children, working poor families, the elderly, and others in need.

'Vantage Point' a hit

To the Editor:

I felt compelled to write because of the informative article I read in the Grosse Pointe News about the new cable show, "Vantage Point.

I watched it with my family and thought it was great! My kids enjoyed the part about fire safety and watched the entire program with us. We were all interested and never once felt like changing the chan-

It's remarkable to think that three young women with no special training other than a class from the War Memorial are putting out such a professional

Community education in decline?

To the Editor:

Where is our Community Education Program head-

I've taught chair caning and basketweaving here in the community for 13 years and have enjoyed the opportunity of sharing what I know with others and have learned in return a wealth from those who have taken my classes. I have also taught on a volunteer basis at several of our elementary schools during the lunch time enrichment programs, as well as lectured on the importance of these crafts in history.

It's a sad day for our community to see our fine Community Education Program dwindle away. No matter how old or mature we get, we are never beyond learning. Our Community Education Program at one time gave us all that opportunity. However, in the last year and a half the classes have been cut for one reason or another. A recent example of that is a basketweaving class with 10 students enrolled was canceled because a minimum of 12 students was not met. (I was given the opportunity to run this class if I would go on a co-sponsorship. It obviously isn't something that many of the teachers opted for because now many of them are also gone.)

The bad news is our community is losing some fine teachers gifted in their own talents. Our classrooms are now empty and we are still paying for them.

The good news is that the other learning institutions in our community. such as the Neighborhood Club and the War Memorial, as well as neighboring Community Education Programs, will see rises in their enrollment as they meet the needs of our citi-

A thank you to the students who have touched me with their talents and imagination. Thanks to the administration for letting me pass along some of the colonial crafts that have been so important in our history.

North thanks to Crisis Club

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Grosse Pointe North Student Association, we would like to publicly thank the members of the Grosse Pointe Crisis Club. The Crisis Club has provided $10,000 in Kroger gift certificates over the past four years. These gift certificates have assisted the Grosse Pointe North student body in its Adopt a Family program.
The generosity of the students and staff of North and the contributions made by the Crisis Club have enabled the student government to adopt 50 families this Christmas.

These families were réferred to us from the elementary and middle schools of Grosse Pointe, Harper Woods, and Good-ale Elementary in Detroit. These 50 families are comprised of approximately 450 children and their parents. The Crisis Club's generosity helped make this program an enormous success and aided in making it a very enjoyable holiday season for some unfortunate families.

Smithsonian on right track

To the Editor:

As you know, reportedly 80 senators are demanding the dismissal of Martin Harwit, the Smithsonian director who wants to present a balanced and historically correct exhibit of the nuclear destruction of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. This would exemplify the courage of the airman who piloted the Enola Gay, as well as the result of the bomb-

Many of my friends who, as I, are World War II veterans, think that an objective presentation is an excellent idea. What better deterrent to future horrors of nuclear warfare than to illustrate the unimaginably gruesome results. John Wayne Hollywood productions notwithstanding, there was simply nothing pretty about WW II.

Perhaps, just perhaps, if we see the true hideous face of war, it might make one think twice before unleashing another holocaust.

Sorry senators, but many of us feel you are missing the point and should be supporting Mr. Harwit's valiant effort to present proper history and, we pray, a deterrent.

Pontiac Grand Am undaunted by a polar Michigan day

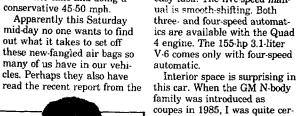

It's snowing; it's not snowing; it's snowing. It's not snowing. And it's not spring, yet.

Traveling across I-94 to Ann Arbor, the purple 1995 Grand Am GT plows into a momentary white-out. A half-mile later, there's no precipitation, but the highway has a thin film of powdery snow on it and you just can't tell if it's slippery

Apparently this Saturday mid-day no one wants to find out what it takes to set off these new-fangled air bags so many of us have in our vehicles. Perhaps they also have

Interior space is surprising in this car. When the GM N-body coupes in 1985, I was quite certain they would fail in the market once owners discovered they couldn't get in or out of them with any degree of ease or comfort. It wasn't the first time I've been wrong. Looks were and are deceiving. While it appears quite compact, accessibility into front and rear seats is one of the strengths of the two-door Grand Am, and, presumably its counterparts, Buick Skylark and Olds

On the passenger side, the front seat shoots forward to open the way for people, packages and poodles. It then slides all the way back, unlike so many Japanese cars in which the seat latches in the frontmost position and often can be pushed back only by sitting on it first, with your knees jammed into the instrument panel.

As for turning off customers, Pontiac dealers delivered a re-cord 262,310 Grand Ams in 1994; it was among the topselling nameplates in the United States, along with the likes of Saturn and Ford Escort. So it's no wonder I majored in history, not forecasting.

Built in Lansing and available as SE coupes and sedans and GT coupes and sedans. Grand Am offers the welcome feature of illuminated entry and exit with "theater dim-ming." or what.

This comfortable compact coupe, with leather seat surfaces, driver-side air bag and anti-lock brakes, keeps going. Good weather. Bad weather. The streets really aren't as treacherous as they might be, given the cold temperatures and howling winds. While it has neither four-wheel drive nor traction control, the Pontiac keeps moving and the driver idly wonders, if push comes to shove, would it be better to wind up in the gentlysloping deep ditch between east and west-bound roads or to glance off the cement barrier that sometimes separates the two opposing streams.

Eastbound traffic is stopped for a mishap somewhere around Van Dyke. For the westbound traveler intent on reaching Ann Arbor in one piece and not too late for an appointment, this does not bode well. The usual 55-minute excursion is carefully calculated, based on such factors as: clear roads, dry air and maybe an occasional 70 mph. This time the 55 refers to the maximum speed - and that's only when someone has the courage to break from the pack and test

Highway Loss Data Institute (how do you like that name?) in Arlington, Va., which states that anti-lock brakes are not reducing either the frequency or the cost of crashes that result in insurance claims for vehicle damage. In its Feb. 2 press release, the institute added that a General Motors analysis of data on police-reported crashes in two states found a 3 percent crash reduction associated with anti-locks but a 44 percent increase in rol-

Generally, when someone chooses to talk at such length about the weather, it's because she hasn't anything more interesting to discuss. While there's some truth to that here, the Grand Am coupe has several qualities you may want to know about. This year the revised 150-hp 2.3-liter Quad 4 is the standard engine. A 3.1-liter six is available.

and not an elegant solution. Remote keyless entry is neat, too, especially when the wind is howling and you are anxious to get into the car as quickly as possible. Just press the right section of the key fob and you have locked or unlocked the doors or unlocked the trunk. Remote keyless entry is available on all Grand Am models.

Another safety feature - automatic power locking doors which are activated when the car is in gear - are a nuisance, I think. The car's heating system had trouble taking the ex-treme chill out of the zero-andbelow weather. Maybe that's why there are three cupholders for front-seat passengers; they're needed for extra hot chocolate, coffee or tea to keep

Insurance Institute gives Nissan Maxima thumbs down

In a report dated Feb. 25, the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety praised Honda Accord for having the best bumpers among 14 mid-size four-door sedans tested. It gave Nissan Maxima a boot in the petutti for its crushable rear end.

According to the Arlington, Va.-based institute, Accord, Maxima and Taurus/Sable were among the mid-size vehicles tested and they represent 25 percent of the total new-car market.

Three of the 14 cars had more than $3,000 in damage in four crash tests at 5 mph. None sustained less than $1,000, the institute said.

The institute ranked Honda Accord, Saab 900 and Chevrolet Cavalier as best of the bunch; Nissan Maxima, Ford Contour and Mitsubishi Galant wound up on the bottom of the heap.

The institute conducted a series of four crash tests at 5 mph. Two of the tests, frontand rear-into-barrier, are very simple. The energy of the impact is spread across the whole face of the bumper. Cars should withstand these tests without any damage at all, it said.

After the front-into-flat barrier test, it said, the Mitsubishi Galant initially looked good. There was no readily visible damage. But when appraisers examined the car, looking under the bumper cover, they found a damaged reinforcement bar. Plus there was body damage including a bent panel above the grille. Both fenders were misaligned and the car's frame rails were damaged. The total cost to repair the Galant was $743. The Saab 900 sustained no damage; there were no repair costs.

For overall repair costs following four impact tests, Accord weighed in at $1,433 and Maxima at $3,605.

Living without debt

The 1994 holiday season saw a strange phenomenon; instead of buying everything in sight, some people actual stuck to their budgets and saved money! Although owners of retail stores may not have been happy about this, those individuals who woke up New Year's Day knowing they wouldn't be facing a pile of holiday bills feel pretty good about it.

Unfortunately, not everyone showed such restraint. Many millions of Americans did go into debt for the holidays. Many of them added their holiday debt to an already unmanageable pile of debt from earlier spending. What will the new year hold for them?

"One more chance to change their habits," said Michael Kelly, senior director of information for the Michigan Credit Union League (MCUL). "People are beginning to realize that they can't keep spending more than they earn. In fact, there are encouraging signs that many Americans are starting to realize the urgent need to start saving for tomorrow.

But for today, said Kelly, the key is to get out of debt. The MCUL offers ten concrete steps to get you out of debt in 1995.

Understand that credit is not more money. If your credit card has a $5,000 limit, you don't have $5,000. You only have the right to rent $5,000 and you'll pay a very high price for that right. Credit cards are the original "rent-toown" scheme.

• If you're going to use a credit card, make sure it doesn't have a high interest rate. Some people are still carrying cards with interest rates of 19 percent or higher.

With a little shopping around you ought to be able to find a card at 14 percent or below. Credit unions have traditionally had better rates than other programs, but use the phone to compare. Stop using credit. People find it easier to spend when they pull that plastic out of their wallet but in the long run, it's cheaper to pay cash. If you can't control your credit card spending, cut them up and throw them away. If you feel the need to carry at least one card for emergencies, put a rubber band around it to remind you that big sales don't qualify as emergencies. Sit down and make a list of your debts. Include how much you owe and what rate of interest you are being charged on each debt. Pay off the one with the most expensive interest rate first, not necessarily the largest amount owed.

down payments, kids' college small to be of use to anyone and retirement. Keep the two funds separate and set a specific amount to go into each fund out of every paycheck.

• Save first. Don't try to save out of whatever money is left over after other bills have been paid. There won't be any. Treat your savings as the first bill you pay. You have probably al-ready been living beyond your means but credit has disguised it. Making your savings payments first forces you to see what you really have to live on.

• Carry a little notebook around with you for one month and write down everything you spend, from the home mortgage payment to the 45-cent pack of gum. Small things can add up.

That 79 cent cup of coffee you pick up on the way to work each day will total $200 over the course of the year. Even a low-cost $5 lunch each working day will cost $1,250 a year. You can't start trimming costs until you actually know what you're spending.

· Based on your savings goals and the spending patterns you've tracked, establish a spending plan. Then follow it

The plan doesn't have to be brilliant, it just has to be fol-lowed. You don't have to be a rocket scientist to design a budget, you just need the will to follow it.

 If you're married, involve your family in your budget planning. A successful budget isn't imposed from above, it emerges from consensus. If everyone in the family doesn't feel their interest has been considered, they won't be moti-vated to make the spending plan a success.

· Compare fees and services at various financial institutions. For example, credit unions typically offer lower fees on everything from checking accounts to credit cards. Credit unions also offer higher interest rates on savings accounts.

If you don't know where to start on your budget plan, the Michigan Credit Union League has a free brochure and work sheet available. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Budget Blueprint, Michigan Credit Union League, P.O. Box 5210, Detroit, MI 48235.

Round two in Woods liquor license transfer

Despite opposition from a neighboring church, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council and the state liquor control commission, Arbor Drugs is continuing its efforts to get a Class C liquor license transferred to its store at 20460 Mack.

The council objected to the low price, telling McCafferty that their own city assessor placed a value of between $6,000 and $12,000 on the property. McCafferty and the council agreed on a price of $3,000 for the property on the condition that the council have site plan approval.

That meant that if the council did not like the home designs McCafferty came up with, the deal was off. In turn, the council agreed to grant all the variances McCafferty needed to complete his project - if they approved his site plan.

McCafferty plans to build two 2,400-square foot homes on the lots, and these proposed homes do not meet the city's requirements concerning rear and side setbacks. By approving the site plan, the city council agreed to grant McCafferty's variance requests.

· Based on your savings goals and the spending patterns you've tracked, establish a spending plan. Then follow it.

The plan doesn't have to be rocket scientist to design a budget, you just need the will to follow it. • If you're married, involve your family in your budget planning. A successful budget isn't imposed from above, it emerges from consensus. If everyone in the family doesn't feel their interest has been considered, they won't be moti-vated to make the spending plan a success.

• Compare fees and services at various financial institutions. For example, credit unions typically offer lower fees on everything from checking accounts to credit cards. Credit unions also offer higher interest rates on savings accounts.

Round two in Woods liquor license transfer

Despite opposition from a neighboring church, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council and the state liquor control commission, Arbor Drugs is continuing its efforts to get a Class C liquor license transferred to its store at 20460 Mack.

Last October, Arbor Drugs applied to the liquor control commission to have a Class C license transferred from Harkness Pharmacy in the Woods to its Mack store. Several memdeal, but were told that while the liquor control commission seeks input from local communities, it does not have to follow a city's recommendation.

like whisky or vodka. Arbor's current liquor license permits the store to sell beer and wine only. Linda Wood of the liquor control commission said that Class C licenses are much more difficult to get than beer and wine licenses.

Municipalities are allowed only a limited number of licenses based on the city's population

"According to the 1990 census figures, the Woods is allowed six licenses, and they are bers of the Woods city council all currently being used. So in expressed doubts about the a case like this, an available license is a valuable commodity," said Wood.

> Harkness sold its prescription base to Arbor, and also agreed lows stores to sell hard liquor ran into trouble when, on Jan. 19, the liquor control commission issued a statement saying that the requested transfer was being denied.

The commission cited a state law that makes it illegal for any liquor store to operate within 500 feet of a church or school building. The commission document pointed out that Arbor on Mack is closer than 500 feet to Christ the King Lutheran Church located at 20338

State law allows petitioners to ask for an appeal within 20 days of receiving notification of denial. Arbor did that and a hearing was held on Thursday, would be premature to specu-late on what Arbor might do if the commission turned down the appeal. Also at the Feb. 23 hearing was the Rev. Randy Boelter, pastor of Christ the King Church. A church spokesperson said Boelter reiterated the church's view, which was that it was inappropriate to grant a Class C license to a store so close to a school, in this case Parcells. Since students at the school often make purchases at Arbor, the potential for inappropriate behavior is great.

Wood said that it takes the commission about two weeks to issue a statement, and declined Arbor spokesman Fred Marx to say how the commission

The council objected to the low price, telling McCafferty that their own city assessor placed a value of between $6,000 and $12,000 on the property. McCafferty and the council agreed on a price of $3,000 for the property on the condition that the council have site plan approval.

That meant that if the council did not like the home designs McCafferty came up with, the deal was off. In turn, the council agreed to grant all the variances McCafferty needed to complete his project - if they approved his site plan.

McCafferty plans to build two 2,400-square foot homes on the lots, and these proposed homes do not meet the city's requirements concerning rear and side setbacks. By approving the site plan, the city council agreed to grant McCafferty's variance requests.

But when McCafferty pre-sented his building designs to the council on Feb. 6, some Councilman Peter Gilezan objected to the extensive use of vinyl siding and councilman Eric Steiner objected to the lack of a window in the garage door. McCafferty agreed to come back to the council on Feb. 27 with new plans.

The plans, which the council reviewed and approved Monday night, were modified to be more in accord with what Gilezan and Steiner asked for. Mc-Cafferty placed a window above the garage door, and increased the amount of brick used on the exterior of the proposed homes.

'My next job is to find financing for the homes," said McCafferty. "I want to start construction as soon as possible, hopefully in the next couple of months. The homes will cost in the neighborhood of $200,000."

Tax Tips

Q. What kind of records should I keep?

Local schnauzer to strut her stuff at Cobo

By Margie Reins Smith Feature Editor

Libby is a wiggly, affectionate 3 1/2-year-old standard schnauzer. She has a sleek saltand-pepper coat, long wispy eyebrows, white-tinged beard and paws, ears that perk straight up when she hears a whistle, and an inborn flair for the show ring.

Libby and her owner, Joanne

Seifried of the City of Grosse Pointe, have their eyes on one of the biggest prizes at next weekend's 77th annual Detroit Kennel Club Dog Show at Cobo Center.

Libby, properly known as Caix's Princess of Seifred, (yes, Seifried is misspelled), was named Best of Breed at last year's Detroit Kennel Club Show

hoto by Margie Reins Smi

Libby and her owner, Joanne Seifried of the City of Grosse Pointe, will seek one of the top prizes at next weekend's 77th annual Detroit Kennel Club Dog Show at Cobo Center.

ity of Grosse ir eyes on one izes at next annual Detroit g Show at Cobo "I always wanted a champion," Seifried said. "I waited two years for this puppy. We started showing her in November 1993, and within 2 1/2 months she had her champion-Seifried rubbed Libby's ears and the dog responded by leaning on Seifried's knee and wagging a stubby tail, nonstop.

"I thought she would need some (show ring) training," Seifried said. "The handler had her for two weeks when Libby pranced into the ring and walked away with Best of Breed."

Seifried owned several miniature schnauzers before Libby. "I first saw a schnauzer in a dog show when I was in college in upstate New York. I bought my first one while living in Texas in the early 1960s. A miniature. But I always wanted a champion."

A champion must have good bloodlines, Seifried said. "You have to get a dog with breeding. You can't just buy a dog and make it into a champion."

Both of Libby's parents were dual champions — in Canada and the United States. Gusto, her father, was the top standard schnauzer in the country from 1986-89.

The misspelled name has a story behind it, Seifried said. The dog had been hurriedly registered with the American Kennel Club as Caix's Princess of Seifred. Misspelled.

Seifried's first and second name choices were Liberty Bell and Liberty Star. She started calling the new puppy Libby.

By the time she applied to change the name from Caix's Princess of Seifred to one of her chosen names, Libby had already begun winning championship points.

"Once a dog starts accumulating points, you can't change its name," Seifried said. "We call her Libby anyway."

Libby is shown by a handler, Tim Spurlock of Ann Arbor. Before a show, the dog often goes to Ann Arbor for a few weeks to prepare for competi-

"Libby was on the circuit and in shows every week for a while," Seifried said. "I went to some of the shows. Often I went to Ann Arbor to pick her up and take her home after a show. I didn't want her to forget us. Once she got her championship, I took her out of the ring."

Libby's future includes at least one litter of puppies, Seifried said.

The life of a champion show dog, like that of a movie starlet, involves diet, exercise and grooming.

Libby is groomed every two weeks; weekly when she's on the circuit. She eats a special kind of dog food.

Her exercise routine includes neighborhood walks and energetic jogs beside Seifried's bicycle.

"It helps her movement, which is important in the ring," Seifried said.

The Detroit Kennel Club Dog Show on Sunday, March 12, will be a benched format, which means competing dogs are stationed on benches from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. except when they're being judged or groomed.

Visitors can walk around to see the different breeds and ask questions of the handlers and owners.

Dogs of each breed can be judged in any of six classifications. Best of Breed awards are determined in seven categories.

Libby, a standard schnauzer, is shown by handler Tim Spurlock of Ann Arbor. Before a show, the dog often goes to Ann Arbor for a few weeks to prepare for competition.

Then those seven compete for Best of Show — the top dog, so to speak.

Demonstrations and other events will run continuously – things like demonstrations of sheep herding and retrieving and time trials for agility. The show runs from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tickets are $25 for families (two adults and three children); $8 for adults; $6 for children 12 and under and senior citizens

We'd Like to Put an End to One Misconception About Cremation.

Many people believe the choice of cremation means there cannot also be a funeral or memorial service to comfort family and friends. That isn't true.

We know that for loved ones a service is a much needed opportunity to say good-bye, and to share grief with fellow mourners. And, by sharing, to lessen the pain of a loved one's death. This is the reason we offer the option of cremation along with a traditional funeral or any desired type of memorial service.

If you are considering cremation, talk with us about all your options. You may have more than you think.

AIDS Memorial Quilt coming to Cobo April 5-9

The Names Project AIDS Memorial Quilt will be on display in Detroit Wednesday-Sunday, April 5-9, at the Cobo Conference Center.

It will be the second largest indoor display so far. The public will be able to view about 5,000 panels (larger than two football fields) which is still only a portion of the more than 27,000 3- by 6-foot panels commemorating the lives of men, women and children who have succumbed to AIDS.

Deborah Steckroth, cochairman of the Names Project, which is sponsoring the event with the city of Detroit, said the group expects 200 new panels will be turned in during the April display.

Many organizations will schedule panel-making sessions in advance of the display, including a group that got together last Monday at Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

The panels not only graphically demonstrate the impact of AIDS on individuals and their friends and families," Steckroth said, "but they also serve as focal points and symbols for educators, counselors, clergy and support groups which have to deal with the effects of the growing, world-wide pandem-

A blessing of the new panels will take place at 6 p.m. Sunday, April 2, at Holy Trinity Church in Detroit.

Opening ceremonies will be at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 5. Viewing hours are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Closing ceremonies will begin at 6 p.m. Sunday,

To help fund the project, the Detroit chapter will host an art sale and silent auction, "Colors of Hope," from Friday-Sunday, March 10-12, at Gallery Birmingham in Birmingham.

For more information about fundraising or about the display itself, call (810) 831-4400.

Michigan is one of nation's leaders with domestic violence legislation

By Sharon Miller Executive Director, Michigan

Women's Commission
On April 10, Gov. John Engler signed into law a package of 15 bills dealing with domestic violence. This package has now been strengthened with the passage of five additional laws signed on Jan. 5 that will take effect on April 1. The new legislation, along with the Jan. 1, 1993, anti-stalking law, makes Michigan one of the national leaders in addressing a form of violence that primarily affects women and, as a result, children. The sad fact is that anyone can be a victim of domestic violence — rich, poor, young, old, married, single, black, white, Asian, Hispanic, Native American, professionals, unemployed people and celebrities.

For women aged 14 to 44, domestic violence is the leading cause of injury.

There is a domestic homicide every eight days in Michigan, according to a Uniform Crime Division Report of 1993 from the Michigan State Police.

Children living in a home where the mother is abused are also more likely to receive mistreatment or neglect by the abuser. Children who witness abuse are victims as well.

Domestic violence can take many forms, from hitting or other physical actions that cause injuries, to unwanted restraint, destruction of household furnishings or personal belongings, preventing one's partner from seeing friends or getting a job, or keeping all the money under one's control and refusing to pay bills or buy food. Some of these forms may not be criminal offenses unless there is also assaultive activity.

New protections include immediately enforceable protection orders that apply also to dating relationships, improved security in the workplace and distribution of information to all law enforcement officials in the state by entry into the LEIN system. Judges must go on record if they deny an individual a personal protection or-

Remember - stalking is against the law. Domestic violence is against the law! If you are a victim, here are some options for protecting yourself:

• If you have physical injuries, get medical attention.

· Save as much evidence as you can to document the abuse, including medical records, pic-

• Report domestic violence and/or stalking to the police or sheriff's department.

 If you report or press charges ask for a copy of the police report and the name and badge number of the officer who wrote the report.

 Ask the county prosecutor to file a criminal complaint.

 Make a safety plan which may include figuring out the warning signs that come before abuse.

· Get a restraining order or personal protection order.

For additional information, call Michigan's toll free violence helpline at 1-800-996-6228. It is important to remember that laws only make protection possible. Victims must act to protect themselves and their children.

The Pastor's Corner

The car window

By the Rev. William DeVries rst Christian Reformed Church

When I was a child, riding in the family car was a mysterious event. I was even more ignorant then than I am now about what made a car run. And, there was the mystery of good will.

Oh, I fought with my sisters at times — usually about who got to sit by the window. But generally, in the car, ancient feuds were set aside and time was suspended for a while in song or silence or laughter and

But the deepest mystery was the effect of the passing landscape on my spirit. I remember sitting for hours watching hills, flowers, moon, clouds and trees pass by in a whoosh. It seemed as if I and my family stood still and all the world was determined to pass our view.

At the horizon, all was nearly still. Yet the nearer things came, the more frantically they changed until, in one final burst, they all together blurred past win-

There, at their greatest speed, it was nearly impossible to catch any individual details or even to isolate individual objects. It was all a blur in the ever-changing present moment directly beside the car.

To change this mystery one needed to focus on a point of reference. If I looked toward a tree some distance away, then followed it carefully with my eyes, I could still see it clearly as it rushed by at its highest

In fact, much of the surrounding terrain became clear if I could focus on the tree. Any object would do, but a tree of unique size or shape worked particularly

The Christian community has entered a time of deep mystery - the season of Lent. Many explanations, historical and theological, have been given for the meaning and the power of this time. But I think it is a time to focus especially on the cross and resurrection of Je-

In this moment in the frantic rush of life that bears down on us, we can find a point of reference that makes the surrounding terrain clear and real again. There may be talk of retreat, confession, fast, prayer and study. But these are all techniques to clear our eyes so we can better see the tree on the horizon.

I wish - and pray too - for you, my friends, a clear view of that tree and that tomb. This Lent, may you find the place, the way, the time to focus your eyes on that which will in great mysterious power give plain clarity to the rush of your living.

Seeds of work bloom in North's 'Secret Garden'

By Ronald J. Bernas

Assistant Editor Last Friday Grosse Pointe North teacher Ben Walker made his way through the horde of students, cheerfully answering questions as he

"Yes, you have to be in costume," he told one stu-dent. "Then we'll assign you a dressing room," he told another. Yet another student told him she'd be OK for rehearsal despite her splitting headache.

That's pretty much the way most rehearsals for most high school shows go.

But Walker is not overseeing the typical high schoolmusical — he's producing the most challenging and technical show the school has tackled.

In fact, North is the first public high school in the country to attempt the Tony award-winning blockbuster, "The Secret Garden." The show opens tonight, March 2, and runs through Satur-

Based on the classic children's novel by Frances Hodg-son Burnett, "Garden" opened on Broadway in April 1991, and earned several Tony Awards, including Best Musical.

It is a monumental task. Including actors, technical workers and musicians, more than 75 North students are involved in pulling the show off, supported by a score of hard-working, dedicated par-

"I saw it in New York and fell in love with it," Walker said. "And I looked at the students who were likely to be in the school musical and I said to myself, 'We could do this."

So last year he contacted Samuel French Inc., the publishing house which represents the show, and was told flat out that the rights were not available to high schools.

"I called them back and kept asking to the point of being a pest, and then I found out that one of the reasons we couldn't get the company was presenting it at Macomb Center for the Performing Arts," he said.

But Walker was undaunted: He found the name of the show's producer, called him in New York, and three calls later had the rights to perform the show.

With the rights firmly in hand, Walker started to recruit a stage crew. Parent Dennis Rakiec designed the set, based on the concept of the Broadway show.

"It's really the most beautiful set we've ever had," Walker said.

Rakiec's wife Cynthia served as costume coordinator; their son Jonathan has a supporting role in the show. Other actors tackling the challenging roles are Theresa Catalfio, Beth Hollidge, Robert Bigelow, C.J. Fenton, Emily Lloyd, Brianna O'-Connor and Dave Gazoul.

One of the most difficult aspects of the show is the music - often moody and discordant, and nearly operatic — and that's where Walker and fellow instructors Margaret Steele and Robert Foster came in.

"We've had the leads since October, so they've had the solos under their belts for quite a while now," Walker said. "But the hard part is the choral stuff, which is very difficult.'

Rehearsals began in earnest in January under the direction of North teacher

"The kids have done a remarkable job with this very tough show," Walker said. "I think our love of the show has rubbed off on them. This has been quite a stretch, but the kids did it. It's going to be a good

"The Secret Garden" opens tonight at 8 p.m. at the Community Performing Arts Auditorium at Grosse Pointe North, 707 Vernier. It runs through Saturday; curtain is at 8 p.m. each day. ## Not just for fun

When Grosse Pointe North High School de-cided to put on "The Se-cret Garden," producer Ben Walker and vocal coach Margaret Steele decided it would be a great opportunity to introduce elementary school children to the classic novel upon which it is based.

Steele, who teaches music in a few of Grosse Pointe's elementary schools, used a study guide provided by the show's production com-pany to help students get more out of their trip to the theater. The cast per-formed several student matinees before opening tonight.

"The study guide discusses some of the symbolism, Victorian England, the type of writing and the idea of the show," Steele said. "It was meant to inspire teachers to present the era and the book in a new way.

"The Shawshank Redemption" is based on a short story by horror writer Stephen King. While most of the film takes place behind bars, it isn't really a prison film. Yes, there are sexually misguided prisoners and yes, there are sadistic guards, but these are just small pieces of the movie.

The most engaging performer of the evening the 18-year-old flute soloist Gregory Jefferson from Los Angeles. Still a gangly youth, he showed, nonetheless, admirable natural poise and outstanding feeling for gracious phrasing and sensitive musical expression. It was much more than could be achieved just by imitating a good teacher. On the showy side, the

Mozart second flute concerto also provided ample opportunity for him to demonstrate his remarkable agility on his instrument, bringing out all the playfulness and charm of Mozart' tricky runs and

But it was equally impressive to see and hear him make an effortless transition to contemporary popular melody as soloist in Henry Mancini's symphonic setting of three of his most famous film songs, "Moon River,"
"The Days of Wine and Roses" and "Charade," which he has co-authored with Johnny Mercer. Jefferson captured in limpid tones and fluid melodic style a nostalgic sense of the '60s when those tunes were hits. If Jefferson seemed perfectly at home with the Mancini tunes, Dunner was captivating in drawing from the orchestra the jivey energy of Leonard Bernstein's suite from his ballet music for "Fancy Free." It projected an overpowering recollection of New York in its heyday of the 50s - sexy, brash, dynamic, imperious, uninhi-bited — and Dunner caught every mood with authentic flavor. A listener would not have needed to know the dance story of three sailors on 24-hour leave in the Big Apple, to get a very accurate impression of a night on the

Delightful times on a deluxe ship

We were anchored off the is-land of Mayreau in the Grenadines and the ship's staff planned lunch on shore.

"This will be no ordinary picnic," they promised. "Other ships bring paper plates and cups and plastic utensils. We, however, will bring crystal, china, silver and tablecloths. It will be first class - like nothing you've ever seen.

And so it was that we found ourselves in one of the first tenders bound for the beach along with several containers of china and cutlery.

The setup was elaborate. The wood tables — usually em-ployed for beer and sandwiches did indeed look grand, decked out in teal and pink cloths and Villeroy & Boch flatware. As guests stepped onto the beach, each was handed a in a real, rum punch stemmed glass.

And then it rained. A lot.
"Oh, no..." The groans, from staff and guests alike, were audible. All of this work, weeks of planning (for this was the ship's first such picnic ashore) to be spoiled by the only rain we had seen all week?

Not to fear. This group of intrepid travelers and dedicated staff decided to make the best of it. Many of us headed for the sea - where else to be in a gentle downpour? - while the waiters and cooks sheltered under cover. Soon the sun reappeared. The beach walks and sunbathing resumed. The crew good-naturedly wiped rain off the place settings and we enioved a scrumptious repast -from lobster tail to cheesecake.

We could not help but compicnic. One of the wine stewards, who had been pressed mind, as long as you all appre-

Sun. It did not need the Queen, because it already had two small ships in its fleet, so Kloster transferred the Queen to sister company Royal Cruise

Royal is a relatively small company that operates three larger ships, the Star Odyssey, the Royal Odyssey and the Crown Odyssey, catering to upscale (but not necessarily de-luxe) cruisers. Like Royal Viking line, Royal enjoys a very high passenger repeat rate.

So when Royal acquired the Queen, called the "Finest Intimate Ship in the World" by the Berlitz Guide to Cruising, it was faced with the challenge of attracting Royal Viking loyalists who had already sailed on the ship, to try this new and more expensive ship and to attract new business in an ultradeluxe cruise market that is getting crowded.

To accomplish this, Royal retained the key members of the staff - chef, cruise director, shore excursions manager, purser and hotel manager - and is trying to keep standards and programming the same. The company also launched aggressive 2-for-1 pricing strat-egy that quickly filled the ship for the balance of the year. Most sailings already have waiting lists.

Currently its main competitors are the Seabourn Pride and the Seabourn Spirit, the ment on the dedication of the Sea Goddess I and II (Cunard), crew members who worked this the Silver Wind and Silver Cloud (Silversea) and the Song of Flower (Radisson/Seven Seas) into service as a cutlery carrier, and, to some degree, the Reanswered, "We really don't naissance cruise ships. The casino, which consists of two blackjack tables and a number of dollar slot machines, is also not particularly attractive to younger cruisers. "We used to have a roulette table but no one was interested, so we took it out," explained the casino manager. "Now we are getting more requests for craps and roulette, so we may have to reevaluate.

The ship is also trying to cope with a greater demand for and one ship, the Royal Viking casual dining (most notably in its Cannes Cafe) and drinks on deck. All seem to reflect a slightly younger clientele.

But those are really small points when compared to the ship's many, many pleasures. Most notable are the accommodations, which are all outside suites. We were in the lowest category (A1) and pleased to discover that our room was no different than those two decks (at an additional $500) above. Our room featured a large sitting area with a large picture window, a sofa, two chairs and coffee table, a TV/VCR and a refrigerator.

The adjoining bedroom held queen-size bed (with feather comforters) and a vanity. There was a large walk-in closet with a security safe and a full bath with tub and shower. We could not begin to use all of the storage space.

On arrival, we were greeted with a chilled bottle of champagne, a bowl of fruit and a stocked bar — full liters of Johnny Walker Red Label scotch, Beefeater gin and Smirnoff vodka. The small fridge was stocked with soft drinks, mixers and bottled water. All

Our housekeeper, Sissel from Norway, was unobstrusive but always helpful. She made up our cabin in the morning, filled the ice buckets twice a day, turned down the beds each evening, changed the towels, restocked the fridge and located the missing hairdryer.

The food on the Queen Odyssey was quite good and certainly plentiful. There was 24hour room service. You could choose to eat breakfast and lunch in your room, in the more formal dining room or in the casual cafe. Dinner in the dining room was always elegant and we enjoyed the many people we met through the open seating.

It is worth noting that the Queen Odyssey — in keeping with its deluxe rating — is a very dressy ship. There were black-tie dinners during our week as well as four "informal nights" (coat and tie for men) and two casual nights. Women wore dresses and fancy trousers. No short suits.

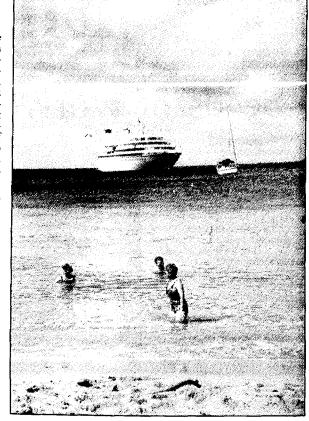

Everyone seemed to understand the evening dress standards (although several men had to return to their staterooms for ties on the informal nights), but there was some confusion about daytime attire. Possibly that was because we were in the casual Caribbean. For example, the ship's guidelines that are mailed in advance state quite clearly that no shorts are permitted in the main dining room at any time. However, when we arrived on ship these were amended to say that dress shorts were accepta-

A couple we met from England. Chris and Carol Kilroy, were frustrated over this: "It stated quite clearly what the standards were and we endeavored to stick to them. Therefore, when we ate lunch in the formal dining room, we both wore slacks. So I did not appreciate that I had to sit there facing a fellow wearing a baseball cap. I even complained about it cated he couldn't do anything about it." Hardly a major problem, probably more a case of conflicting expectations, but no doubt the Queen's staff will iron these glitches out as it goes along.

Our schedule was busy, as the ship was in port every day, so most shipboard functions did not take place until late after-noon. A nice feature is that while programs are presented in the main lounge, they are simulcast on your in-room television and then replayed later in the day. So you rarely miss anything you want to see. Featured this particular week was Jean-Michel Cousteau and his Passage International diving team. They were introducing an underwater system by which they could dive off a reef near the ship and broadcast back live sound and pictures. People could ask the divers questions. While the technology is no doubt innovative, I imagine the appeal to passengers is directly related to their own underwater experiences. (No doubt experienced divers and snorkelers would find this a bit sophomoric.) However, Cousteau and his team are on board for several weeks and were most approachable.

Also contributing to the overall ambiance of the ship were the entertainers, who doubled as cruise staff. There were four singer/dancers as well as two featured performers - three men and three women - as well as piano player/singer/ stand-up comic and a threepiece musical combo. Together this team puts on an ambitious program, with a full show every evening at 10 p.m. Particularly outstanding were the tributes to Cole Porter and George and Ira Gershwin, each of which used the full cast.

In fact, the ship is so pleasant that many passengers expressed the desire for more time at sea. Our itinerary was jam-packed, with full days in each port, leaving little time to enjoy the ship itself. Of course, many passengers were cruise veterans who opted to forgo the full days on shore; most were back to the ship by lunchtime.

Our weather was good throughout the week rain in Mayreau notwithstanding - so the deck areas were particularly popular in the afparticularly popular in the arternoons. (I spotted many a lounger reading "Lovers," the new paperback by Judith Krantz which features a ship called the Winthrop Emerald which is very much like this one.) There is one swimming pool; but it is not overly large and not accessible to anyone who is even marginally impaired, as well as three hot tubs, one tucked away in a secluded spot on the bow. There is also a fitness center, hairdresser, sauna, massage and laundry facilities.

Most passengers, many of whom were on board for two weeks, seemed very satisfied with their cruise, especially considering the favorable pricing. Royal should be very suc-cessful with the Queen if it is able to continue providing a de-

Appropriately, the evening opened and closed with music that expresses the aspirations of African-Americans in our society. The opening, not programmed, was the hymn "Let Every Voice," generally revered as The Black National Anthem. It was sung with feeling by the Brazeal Dennard Choral Ensembles with the orchestra. They returned to the stage for the final work by their contemporary, Frederick C. Tillis, "In the Spirit and the Flesh," which draws on two of their cultural icons, a poem by P.L. Dunbar and DSO gospel music, for its inspirations. The music is spontaneous and natural, notwithstanding Tillis' classical forms, and the combined choral groups sang it with a refreshing enthusi-

In the solos, Michigan soprano Glenda Kirkland used her rich and evocative voice to good advantage, especially in joining the gospel mood of the concluding variations on the great old spiritual "Every Time I Feel the Spirit." The performance did indeed have the spirit, espe-cially where Tillis turned the tune into a double fugue of impressive proportions. The entire ensemble, choir included, carried it off with majesty and fervor that was capped only by a jazzy piano solo reminiscent of being in a jazz bar in Detroit's long gone Paradise Valley. It was a memorable experience.

The classical series has a break this week and re-sumes on Thursday evening March 9 when Maestro Jarvi will be back with an all Tchaikovsky program. # South swimmers second, North third in MAC

By Chuck Klonke

Sports Editor Fred Michalik was pleased with his Grosse Pointe South swimming team's runner-up finish in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division meet last weekend - but only to a

"We're swimming well, but nobody remembers who finishes second," Michalik said with a smile as the Blue Devils were holding off crosstown rival Grosse Pointe North in the battle for second place behind the host school, Ford II.

The Falcons finished with 364 points to 292 for South, which was three points ahead of the Norsemen. Fraser was fourth with 174 points and Eisenhower last with 73.

North's consolation prize was having Jeff Shelden, who posted state-qualifying times in winning the 200-yard individual medley (2:00.54) and the 100 butterfly (54.6), named Swimmer of the Meet.

"Jeff was outstanding," said North coach Mike O'Connor. state," coach O'Connor said. "I to be working with us."

In addition to the firsts by Shelden and O'Connor, North's Brett Collins won the 200 freestyle in 1:49.67, beating Vandeputte by nearly two seconds.

In a race nearly as thrilling as the 500 freestyle, North's team of David Nielubowicz, Collins, Shelden and O'Connor nipped Ford in the 400 freestyle relay. The Norsemen's winning time of 3:22.39 and the Falcons' runner-up time of 3:22.88 were both state cuts.

North's 200 medley relay team of O'Connor, Jason Knost, Shelden and Collins finished second to Ford's 1:42.42 poolrecord clocking, but had a state-qualifying time of 1:43.06.

South's Sharrow finished fourth in the regional when he dropped a tough 12-7 overtime decision to Fraser's Todd Norris in the consolation final.

Earlier, Sharrow opened the regional with a technical fall loss to Aaron Hilgendorf of Hazel Park, but came back to post 4-2 victory over Marcus Kliewer of Royal Oak Kimball and an injury default win against Kyle Williamson of Roseville. University Liggett School's hockey team closed out the regular season with a pair of close games, but it was a different story when the Knights began state tournament play.

Jim Bologna scored three goals and Jason Santo had two goals and an assist to lead ULS to a 10-0 romp over Detroit Country Day in the opening round of the Class B-C-D regional at the Fraser Ice Arena.

They just couldn't keep up with us and then it became a lot of hack and whack," said Knights' coach John Fowler. "One of their kids picked up four penalties and we scored on each of them.

"We tried to keep the puck deep in their end as much as we could and they didn't play very good five-man hockey."

Santo opened the scoring at 3:58 of the first period and the rout was on. ULS led 2-0 after the first period, although the Knights had a 12-3 shooting edge on the Yellowjackets.

ULS increased its lead to 5-0 after two periods and scored five more goals in the third period before a state mercy rule halted the game with 5:38 to

The Knights finished with 33 shots on goal, while Country Day returned only 12 at ULS goalie Andy Arbanas.

Tom Delisle had a goal and three assists, John Mc-Naughton and Fran Blake each collected a goal and two assists. while Andrew Ricci and Eli Wulfmeier each had a goal and an assist Ian Fines had two assists while Don Wolford, Ian Mc-Millan, Peter Birgbauer and Todd Kamin added one apiece.

ULS closed out the Michigan Prep Hockey League season with a 2-1 loss to Jackson Lumen Christi, then tuned up for the state tournament with a 3-1 non-league win over Flint Powers, which was ranked among the top five teams in the state in Class B-C-D.

South stumbles on title path

Grosse Pointe South's basketball team stumbled on its path to the Macomb Area Conference White Division championship last week, but the Blue Devils are still in a good position to win the race.

"Our destiny's still in our hands," said coach George Petrouleas after South's losses to East Detroit and Fraser left them tied with Romeo for the division lead. Each team is 10-2 in league play.

The two leaders play at South Friday in the regularseason finale and the title will be up for grabs.

We hope that the sense of urgency for this week's games will bring out the best in our team," Petrouleas said. "We had a little bit of a letdown last week, but that's the way athletics is. Sometimes you get away with it, sometimes you don't. This week we didn't."

The toughest loss was the 52-51 setback against East Detroit, which improved its league record to 2-10 and overall mark to 2-16 with the victory.

The Shamrocks trailed by 11 points midway through the third quarter, but kept battling back while South, which led 25-20 at halftime, got careless on offense and on defense.

"We missed some easy shots and we made some defensive mistakes," Petrouleas said. 'You have to execute and fin-

We stopped doing that. In the last minute they had a three-point lead and we still had a chance to win, but then we committed a costly turnover. It was just carelessness. It wasn't a forced turnover.

East Detroit also started hitting its free throws and scored five of its last seven points from the line.

Despite its mistakes, South still had a chance to win the game with the final shot but it hit the rim and bounced away. "Sometimes you have to cre-your own luck and we didn't," Petrouleas said. Todd Drake had another solid performance with 19 points and nine rebounds, while Ben Harwood scored 15 points and collected six rebounds.

Chris Keahn led East Detroit with 17 points and Derrick Gossard added 12.

South's defeat against Fraser wasn't quite as stunning as the loss to East Detroit because the Blue Devils had beaten the Ramblers by only one point in their earlier meeting.

"I warned the kids that teams would be ready for us because we were leading the league," Petrouleas said. "Everybody gives us their best time was we gave up that many points," Petrouleas said. Our worst this year was 66 against Chippewa Valley and that was a game where they got off to a big lead early."

South did a good job defensively against Fraser's leading scorer, Matt Nies, holding him four points, but the Blue Devils were done in by the outside shooting of Nathan Schools and Jos Leating, who had 17 and 16 points, respectively. The Ramblers also got a lift from 7-foot-2 Jason Hiller, who hit some medium-range jumpers and finished with eight points.

"They hurt us with their perimeter shooting," Petrouleas

Neither team was able to pull away in a first half that ended with Fraser holding a 28-26 lead.

The Ramblers outscored South 11-2 at the start of the second half to open an 11-point lead, but the Blue Devils came back to cut the margin to 41-38 before Fraser answered with a 22-7 run that gave the Ramblers a 63-45 advantage with just under five minutes to play.

That's when South started a comeback that was reminiscent of its game with Utica when the Blue Devils overcame a 19point deficit to beat the Chieftains by a point. This time, they built an 18 point lead, however, the ending wasn't as Drake then made a steal at midcourt, went in for a slam dunk and was fouled. He completed the three-point play, then hit a three-point basket after another steal.

The Blue Devils got a fourpoint play from Brian Nugent, who was fouled on a three-point basket and hit the free throw to cut the margin to 71-67 with a minute left. A free throw apiece from Drake and Charlie Wascher made it 71-69 with Twice during its late run, South missed layups. A threepoint attempt at the buzzer also hit the rim and bounced away.

One of the most telling statistics is that we had only nine roles. We may assists," Petrouleas said adjustments." 'When we're in single digits in assists, we're not really in sync Conference win last week was with our offense."

ULS slows down Mustangs' star

Last week Lutheran North's Kevin Murawski was honored as one of the prep athletes of the week in a Detroit news-

The Mustangs' 6-foot-6 center was also the object of some special attention from University Liggett School's basketball team when the Knights beat North 65-61 in a Metro Conference game.
"We had to control Murawski and not let (Kyle) Simmons, their great outside shooter, get untracked," said ULS coach Chuck Wright.

North had beaten the Knights by 14 points in an earlier meeting, but Wright changed some of his defensive strategy for the rematch.

"Frank Tymrak and Brad Klein did a great job on (Murawski) with some help from their teammates," Wright said. "We said that if he tried to post up, we'd force him to go to his right. If he was facing the basket, we wanted to make him go Murawski finished with 19 points, but that total was still well below his season average of more than 25.

Simmons was also given special attention by the Knights.

"We had Joe Grant on him and he had only one point at halftime," Wright said. "Simmons is a great three-point shooter and we told Joey to stay with him at all times."

ULS held a 33-28 halftime lead and took control of the game when it outscored North 18-10 in the third period. The Mustangs closed to within two points in the fourth quarter, but the Knights never let the lead slip away.

scoring with 21 points and had at least four points in every quarter. He also had six steals and converted several of those into easy baskets for the Knights.

Chris Corneau hit four threepointers and finished with 14 points.

"That was a great team win," Wright said. "We played with terrific intensity and with an excellent knowledge of our roles. We made fine defensive Balance was a key against the Warriors as the Knights had four double figure scorers. Brad Cassin had 13 points, Calvin Martin 11 and Tymrak and Grant added 10 apiece. Grant nearly had a triple double as he collected 11 rebounds and eight assists.

"Our team defense was great," Wright said. "We never let Westland get comfortable in its offense and we didn't let them have a run.'

The victories boosted ULS' record to 7-6 in the Metro Conference and 10-8 overall.

Champs return for tourney

The defending champion team of Amy Frazier and Pat McGee will head the field for the 22nd annual Western Open Mixed Doubles tennis tournament which will be held March 8-12 at the Grosse Pointe Hunt

Frazier of Rochester Hills, is ranked 15th in the world in singles and has won four World Tennis Association championships. She advanced to the third round of this year's Australian Open.

McGee, who is Frazier's agent, played No. 1 singles at the University of Kentucky.

Last year's runner-up team of Scott Smith and Breita Johnson is also entered.

Other entries include the 1993 championship team of Carrie Cunningham and Ed Nagel.

Armand Molino, who won the 1990 championship when paired with Frazier and the 1991 and 1992 titles as Cunningham's partner, will team with Diana Ospina, who is ranked among the top 30 players in the National girls 16 and 18 divisions.
Grosse Pointers Susan and

Pam Mascarin are also entered in the tournament, which is the only professional mixed doubles event in Michigan.

North rebounds from tough loss

"We always tell them we have to play 32 minutes — 31 minutes and 59 seconds won't even do," Stavale said after the Norsemen dropped a Macomb Area Blue Division game 39-38 to L'Anse Creuse last week when the Lancers' Mark Hoover hit a buzzer beater from 25

"It was a shame to lose this one because we played so well defensively. We did some things differently so they wouldn't hurt us inside like they did the first time we played. We wanted to stay close enough to have a chance to win at the end and we did."

There were less than 30 seconds remaining when Ryan Rouls hit a basket to give North a 37-36 lead. Then Hoover went to the line with 10 seconds remaining and missed both free throws. Chris Copus

Then the miracle happened. L'Anse Creuse took the ball out of bounds and threw a perfect pass to Hoover, who turned and fired from 25 feet. "Everything had to be just perfect because there were only two seconds left when Copus was at the line," Stavale said. "Hoover gets the credit for making the winning basket but if the pass wasn't perfect, he wouldn't have had time to get the shot off. They could probably work that play 100 times and 99 of them it wouldn't work that well.

"It was one of the greatest defensive games we've played. but we didn't shoot well enough to win. You can't shoot in the low 30s and expect to win many games."

Weeping willows offer beauty — and problems

There are signs along some of the main thoroughfares in Grosse Pointe Park proclaiming it to be "Tree City USA." This makes it a very appropriate place for Al and Louise Thomas, of Pemberton Road, to live, since it happens that they are the owners of the largest weeping willow tree in the country, as has been duly documented by the Detroit Free Press in a feature story some years back, and rumor has it, in the "Guinness Book of World Records."

Their tree does not live in Grosse Pointe Park, however. It lives on Ashland Avenue in Detroit close to Jefferson Avenue and overhanging Fox Creek, and has its roots on property owned by the Thomases there, where it annually asserts its squatter's rights by causing problems with the sewers.

This venerable tree, with a circumference of close to 30 feet, towers over the neighborhood even though it has lately lost some of its massive branches to age and winds and has on occasion after a storm been known to block traffic on Ashland while crews wielding chain saws clear the way of fallen limbs.

American Forestry The Association, (now known as the American Forest Products Association), based in Washington, D.C., rates this tree at the top of its scale and a plaque placed by the association on the bridge across Fox

By Ellen Probert

Creek beside the tree points this out.

The Thomases, who have owned the tree (and its surrounding property) for the past 20 years, have come to regard it as a problem relative, to brag about but to cope with, too.

Weeping willows are very ancient trees. The Latin name for them is Salix babylonica. They are depicted on the walls of tombs and palaces of ancient Egypt, and are referred to in writings of the Han Dynasty in China, which goes back to 200 B.C.

These graceful trees with their trailing branches of small green and gold leaves arrived in England from China in the 18th century when many of the great estates there were laying out wonderful gardens under the watchful eyes of such famed landscape designers as William Kent, "Capability" Brown and Humphrey Repton and were very popular for their picturesque grace.

George Washington writes in his diaries at Mount Vernon about the willow trees and his delight in their beauty as well as his problems with

For many centuries before, weeping willow trees adorned the gardens of Persia and stylized pictures of them occur in the design of many prayer rugs where gardens and pools form the many colored patterns depicting the gardens of Paradise. There is an account of a tenth-century traveler returning to Europe to tell of a tree. made of silver and gold with silver birds in its branches which sang when the wind blew through them.

Weeping willows can grow to immense size, but the largest trees in the world, even bigger than the sequoias of the Pacific Coast of North America, are the baobabs of Africa. These trees are so enormous that they may measure nearly a hundred feet around. They have great cavernous hollows in them and people use these for bus shelters, stables, storage sites for grain, or burial chambers.

In one area in Zimbabwe a particularly huge baobab has been made into a shrine to old African spirits and gods. The tree even has a name, Sabu, and people come from great distances to visit Sabu and leave animal sacrifices. Some people live in baobabs and in one area there is a large restaurant in a baobab tree.

But baobabs are not pretty trees as weeping willows are. The willows along Lakeshore are just beginning to show a tinge of yellow-green misting their branches, one of the very first signs that spring really may be on its way. In China the willow is the symbol of resurgent spring.

Willows are easy to grow. All you need is a branch from an existing tree. Put the branch in a bucket of water for several weeks until it grows roots. Then plant it and water it frequently. Be sure to plant well away from water and sewer lines because the roots will seek water and may clog pipes or drains.

In 15 or 20 years your willow tree will be a towering giant and you can give branches of it to your grandchildren so they can start their own willow trees. It could become a family tradition. Just don't give one to the Thomases. They have a weeping willow already.

How to sand and finish wood flooring

To sand and finish wood flooring you will need three pieces of rental equipment: an upright drum sander for sanding open areas; a disk sander, or edger, for spots the drum sander can't do: and a floor polisher/buffer.

Preparing the room

Remove all the furniture, window coverings, and base shoe moldings. Go over the floor inch by inch, making any repairs that are needed. Set all nail heads below the surface and remove any that might damage the sandpaper.

Seal off the work area by hanging damp sheets in the doorways. Seal off air registers too. Put on a dust mask, goggles, and hearing protectors for the job.

Using a drum sander

You must keep a drum sander moving; hesitate for even a few seconds and the sander will chew a depression into the floor. To avoid that, tilt the sander back to lift the sandpaper off the floor before turning it on, and again at the end of each pass across the floor. Make passes only with the grain, along the length of the strips of the boards. If you're refinishing a floor, sand successively with coarse, medium, and fine sandpaper; and go over a new floor with medium and fine paper.

Using a disk sander

After each sanding with the drum

By Michael J. Kalkhoff

sander in the main area, use the disk sander to do the edges of the room with the same grade of sandpaper. Scrape or hand-sand areas the disk sander can't reach.

Sealing the floor

Pour penetrating sealer on the floor, wipe it into the grain with a soft cloth, and buff with a steel wool pad on a floor polisher.

Apply the finish

Begin at the edges and apply polyurethane varnish. Use a long-handled painting pad in open areas. Let the first coat dry for eight hours, buff again with steel wool, then apply a second coat. Let dry at least 24 hours before using the room.

AAA targets key areas for home fire safety

When it comes to fire safety, AAA Michigan says "guarding the home front" is critical, since more than a third of all fires reported annually in Michigan happen in private homes.

Of more than 55,000 state fires reported in 1993 (the latest data available), nearly 40 percent were home fires, followed by vehicle fires (26.5 percent) and outdoor blazes (34 percent).

Home fires started most frequently in the kitchen (22.6 percent), followed by the bedroom (13.6 percent) and lounge area (8.8 percent) — the third straight year of similar ranking.

AAA Michigan advises residents to take some precautions to prevent fires in these key areas.

Kitchen

"Never leave cooking food unattended, and never set potholders or other combustibles on the stove," said AAA Michigan community safety services manager Jerry Basch.

 Keep the stove top and oven clean. Grease and other food residues can catch fire.

• Wear short or close-fitting sleeves when cooking. Loose clothing can dangle onto stove burners and catch fire. Always use oven mitts or potholders.

• Keep flammable objects clear of the stove. Potholders, dish towels, and curtains may catch fire if they come in contact with hot burners.

• Turn pot handles in to prevent burns and stove-top fires. A pot handle sticking out over the edge of the stove can be bumped in passing or grabbed by a child.

Bedroom

"Install smoke detectors outside each sleeping area," Basch said, adding that residents should sleep with bedroom doors closed to slow the spread of smoke and fumes.

"Even a lightweight hollow-core door delays a fire, giving everyone more time to escape," he said. "Additional detectors can be installed inside each bedroom if the closed doors prevent hearing the alarms."

 Make sure there are two clear exits from each room and that everyone knows these escape routes and has practiced using them.

Never smoke in bed.

Living Area

"Smoking materials are the leading cause of home fire fatalities," Basch said. "Smokers should always use large, heavy, non-spill ashtrays."

• Don't let ashtrays become so full that hot ashes might spill over the side

• Wet cigarette ashes before dumping them into a wastebasket.

• Before going to sleep or leaving home, check your furniture for cigarettes or ashes that may have fallen into upholstery. They can smolder for hours before bursting into flame

To help educate the public on fire safety, AAA Michigan offers "Planning for Home Fire Emergencies" brochures at full-service branches statewide. The free brochures discuss smoke detectors, home exit fire drills and other tips.

Basic instruction in drywall repair offered at Grosse Pointe Community Education

Grosse Pointe Community Education, in cooperation with Michigan Builders Institute, will offer a one-evening class on the techniques of making basic drywall repairs on Wednesday, March 15, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Barnes school, 20090 Morningside in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Participants will learn correct application and sanding and finishing techniques for modern drywall materials through classroom lecture and a hands-on demonstration using a mock-up. The course will cover hanging new drywall, taping and sanding as well as how to repair plaster walls. The class costs $45 and includes an instruction manual.

Pre-registration is required no later than Monday, March 13, to Grosse Pointe Community Education. Those interested should call Barnes school at 313-343-2178 to register during office hours.

The instructor is experienced in all aspects of drywall. He will be able to answer any questions about drywall repair. Michigan Builders Institute teaches builders' education in 70 school districts in lower Michigan. For a free brochure and more information about all classes, call 810-651-2771.

Builders Association hosts tax strategies seminar

The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM) will present an educational seminar on "Tax Strategies for Builders" on Wednesday, March 8.

Rick Jackson, registered representative, and Gregory Liposky, CLU, both of The Equitable in Troy, will present material to inform builders and contractors of advantageous tax and financial strategies.

The seminar will be held from 9 a.m. to noon at BASM headquarters, 30375 Northwestern Highway, Suite 100, in Farmington Hills. Registration fees are $20 for BASM members and $35 for non-members. For registration information, call (810) 737-4477.

Cobo builders show struts into town March 18 on coattails of Spring Home & Garden Show

The Spring Home & Garden Show just completed a successful stint in Novi and the "granddaddy" of all home and garden shows, the International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show follows closely behind at Detroit's Cobo Conference-Exhibition Center, March 18-26.

"As we expected, due to the substantial increase in residential remodeling, homeowners showed up in droves to get a glimpse of the latest for the home and garden at the spring show," said Janet L. Compo, president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM) and chief executive officer of James D. Compo Inc. "Showgoers are looking forward to the Cobo show whose 400 exhibitors make it the largest show of its kind in the Midwest."

BASM is the sponsor of this 77th annual event.

Special highlights at the show include a large cascading waterfall which showgoers can walk under, a 400-foot-long horseshoe shaped river and 86,000 square feet of surrounding gardens, including a topiary zoo, created by the Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association and sponsored by Detroit Edison and Temo Sunrooms & Spas. Outdoor cooking specialists Mad Dog and Merrill will display their outdoor grilling techniques from the standard vegetables and meats, to pizza and even grilled ice cream on March 19-26 sponsored by MichCon Gas Co. WXYT's "Ask the Handyman," Glenn Haege, will be there on March 18-19 and 25-26 broadcasting live from the show and answering homeowners' questions.

Other attractions include the Parade of Notable Homes which features a pictorial display of new homes and a free plan book sponsored by BASM, Standard Federal Bank and The Detroit News and Free Press classifieds. Expert demonstrations on gardening, decorating and remodeling will be given throughout the show.

More than 100 miniature indoor gardens and party and trendsetting floral arrangements will be on display, compliments of Professional Allied Florists Association members. A Home Buyers Clinic sponsored by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers will feature seminars on financing, outdoor living spaces, and remodeling. The House of Nails and Treasure Chest contests will award prizes.

Exhibitors will spread their wares across half a million square feet of exhibit space (that's equivalent to over 10 football fields) giving homeowners hundreds of ideas for kitchens, baths, doors, windows, yards/gardens, remodeling, financing, arts and crafts, decorative accessories, furniture, appliances, heating and cooling. The latest technology, products and services will be on display. Most exhibitors offer special show pricing.

BASM was also sponsor of the third annual Spring Home & Garden Show which ran from Feb. 2-5 and the third annual Fall Remodeling Show at the Novi Expo Center.

The Builders Show will be open 2 to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday; 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturdays; and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is $6 for adults; $4 for seniors and children 6 to 12; and free for children under 6.

Family tickets for two adults and accompanying children are available at Farmer Jack for $9. Discount admission coupons were mailed to homeowners in their Consumers Power and Detroit Edison bills. Free admission coupons for Monday, March 20, are available at all Frank's stores. For more information, call (810) 737-4478.

Antiques

Q. My hooked rug pictures a dog sled and driver in a snow scene. On the back of the rug is the label "Grenfell Industries, Newfoundland, Labrador." How old is it?

A. Sir Wilfred Grenfell was a medical missionary in Labrador, visiting Eskimo patients in remote areas. He also set up a rugmaking industry to help earn money. Rugs were sold through the Grenfell missions in Labrador. Typical designs included scenes with dog sleds, polar bears, puffins and Canada geese.

They were made from about 1900 to 1930. Collectors will pay hundreds of dollars for the small rugs. The large ones sell for over $1,000.

The purrfect pets a guide to cat care

Home & Garden Features

For centuries, cats have played a significant role in people's lives. For many pet owners, in fact, cats have become more than just animals - they have become friends and a part of the Help your cat live a long and healthy life by following these hints from the experts at Ampet, manufacturers of Bio-Flush cat litter.

Caring for a cat begins with a trip to the local pet store. New cat owners will have to stock the proper equipment and supplies to keep their cat's life and hygiene in top shape. Some of the more essential items include food trays, grooming tools and toys, as well as a bed and litter tray.

Litter boxes are widely available in a variety of styles - open and flat to high-walled and covered - so choose according to personal preference. keeping in mind that it should be durable and washable. To keep odors and maintenance to a minimum, litter trays should be positioned in accessible, but private parts of the house, and cleaned regularly. If several cats are in the home, multiple litter trays should be available as felines don't take kindly to sharing their turf.

Selecting a litter filler requires some thought, and even experimentation, as cats may not like the smell or feel of some brands. To satisfy those finicky felines, cat owners should look for an environmentally-friendly litter filler. such as Bio-Flush, that is highlyabsorbent, 99 percent dust-free and won't track.

Detrok

2nd Floor

Made from 100 percent recycled newsprint, Bio-Flush is recommended by veterinarians for recently declawed cats and is also completely biodegradable, which helps reduce landfill waste. It contains a safe odor control agent and is four times more absorbent than conventional clay litters. In fact, it can hold up to 1,000 percent of its own weight in moisture - the equivalent of 40 pounds of clay

Variety is the spice of life, even with cat food. Because cats are finicky by nature, it is essential to provide a healthy mix of fresh, dry and wet foods to keep your cat interested, as well as provide the nutritionally balanced diet it needs to stay fit. When considering serving sizes, as a general rule, cats should be fed approximately 10 to 11 ounces of food two to three times a day. Remember that liquids are just as important to a cat as to a human, so keep a fresh clean bowl of water available at all times.

Cats are just as particular about where they eat as what they eat. Ordinarily, cats prefer to dine in private places, free from noise, strong light and bustle. To that end, food dishes should be placed out of the general flow of traffic, such as in the corner of the kitchen. Placing a tray or mat under the dish is also an excellent way to catch spills and keep the area clean. To avoid illness, cats should also be discouraged from scavenging in trash cans or other unhealthy sites. If your cat won't eat for a prolonged period, contact your veterinarian.

Priced to Sell

have a reputation for cleanliness. In fact, they often devote a good part of their day to grooming themselves. The reason? In addition to keeping a cat's coat soft, glossy and clean, the grooming routine also removes dead skin and hair, tones up muscles and stimulates blood circulation. However, cats sometimes need additional grooming assistance from their owners to stay clean and

The first step in the grooming process is to carefully inspect your cat's eyes, ears and mouth for cleanliness. If the ears' inner flaps show signs of collected dirt, use a piece of cotton dipped in olive oil to gently remove the buildup. Next, check the eyes for dark marks or streaks caused by blocked tear ducts. If necessary, hold the cat's head still and simply wipe away dirt with a moist, clean cloth. As for cleaning the mouth, ideally cats should have their teeth brushed once a week with a soft toothbrush to avoid tarter build up.

As a general rule, the best place to groom your cat is outdoors, weather permitting. This will keep hair, dirt and fleas out of the house. Remember to hold and caress your cat gently during the grooming process to reduce stress and discomfort. To ensure that proper techniques are being used, cat owners should have veterinarian а demonstrate the procedures.

By following these simple cat care tips and giving your cat the love and attention it needs, your feline friend will live a long and happy life.

Cat care do's and don'ts

Owning and caring for a pet can be of life's most rewarding experiences, but deciding to become a cat owner isn't something that should be taken lightly. Caring for a cat requires time and dedication as well as a thorough understanding and appreciation of its basic nature. Here is a list of general "do's and don'ts" that will make caring for your cat easier and more enjoyable:

1. DO make sure that cats receive vaccinations and medical care. Just like humans, cats can fall ill, so they need to visit the doctor regularly for check-ups and yearly "booster" shots. Remember to keep a record of the shots your cat receives and dates they were administered.

2. DON'T leave you cat unattended when you go on vacation. Cats are resilient animals, but they can't feed themselves. To ensure that your pet is safe and secure, make arrangements for someone to look after and feed it while you are away. Post your veterinarian's phone number in case of

3. DO invest in a biodegradable and pelletized cat litter, such as Bio-Flush, if your cat has been declawed recently. Unlike conventional clay litters, which can cause irritation and infection. Bio-Flush is made from 100 percent recycled newspaper and recommended by veterinarians for tender paws.

4. DON'T forget to have your cat registered and licensed. If your cat is ever lost, identification tags will help rescuers find and return it quickly.

Tips for plant care as spring nears

Q. I know that a forsythia can be forced to bloom by taking dormant cuttings and bringing them into the warmth. What are some other plants that I can do this with?

A. Some excellent choices of plant material to be forced in March are: apple and crabapple, redbud, magnolia, lilac, honeysuckle, hickory, spirea, dogwood, beautybush, and mock orange.

Choose branches that won't affect the natural shape of the bush or tree and look for swollen flower buds that are usually a bit larger than the leaf buds. Bring the branches inside and put them into a bucket of warm water, keeping them misted, in dim light with temperatures 60-72 degrees F. Use the twigs and branches mixed in with greens and other spring flowers for a beautiful spring display.

Q. What are some garden flowers that are easy to grow in the garden

A. You can sow calendula and sweet pea directly into the garden as soon as you can work the soil. After the danger of frost is past, sow cosmos, dianthus (Sweet William), gozania, hollyhocks (a perennial that can be started from seed), four o'clock, marigolds, nasturtiums (they withstand drought and poor soil very well), nicotina, portulaca (excellent in hot, dry sites), sunflowers and zinnias. Some of these may also be started indoors six to eight weeks before the outdoor planting date. Follow packet directions for timing and site conditions — dry or moist, sunny or partially shaded, etc. planting depth and thinning to proper spacing.

Q. What is a dormant oil spray and when should I use it on my tree?

A. When insects such as scales, mites, and certain aphids become a persistent problem year to year on your ornamentals, applying a dormant oil spray may be worthwhile. The timely application of a dormant oil provides effective control because many of these pests overwinter on the bark and branches of trees and shrubs. A dormant oil works by covering, and suffocating, overwintering insects with a fine film of oil.

A dormant oil spray is a petroleum oil applied while a plant is still dormant. It is critical that this spray be applied before the new growth, otherwise injury to the expanding leaves will result. The best time to apply dormant oil is right when the buds begin to swell. Careful observation of both the weather conditions during late March and early April as well as the tree itself often determine when to spray. In addition to the time of season to spray there is also an optimum temperature — spray when daytime temperatures are between 40 and 80 degrees and freezing temperatures are not expected within the next 24 hours. A mild sunny morning would be an ideal time to apply a dormant oil. Only apply one treatment of dormant oil per season.

Q. Something has created small paths and runways throughout my lawn. It also makes small holes about an inch deep and an inch in diameter. What is causing this and how can I control it? Will my grass grow back?

A. The damage is caused by a small rodent called a vole. It is also called a wild or field mouse. It's not the same as the house mouse which will enter homes, so this is not usually a concern. It tends to feed under the snow on the crowns of grass plants and the damage becomes more evident as the snow melts. Depending on the amount of damage, the turf will repair itself or may require some topseeding in the spring. The vole can be controlled with the use of vole baits which are available at hardware stores and garden centers. Snap traps placed in remote locations should be moved if there is not a catch within three days. Bait the traps with a mixture of peanut butter and oatmeal and be sure to keep them out of reach of nontarget organisms, such as birds, cats,

Q. What is the approximate frostfree date in spring and fall for the Macomb area?

A. In the spring there is a 50 percent chance of temps 32 degrees F or lower around April 27 with the lowest percent probability on May 23. In the fall the first frost can possibly occur on or before Sept. 24. This information is found in a 12-page bulletin entitled "Planning a Vegetable Garden" E-1769 which is available from the extension office at a cost of $1 (includes postage).

Q. I tried growing flower and vegetable seedlings in my basement for the first time. They grew well at first, then some suddenly wilted, fell over and died. The stems were all black and shriveled-looking. What caused this? How can I prevent it from

A. The problem is damping-off, a fungal disease of seedlings caused by common soil fungi. Damping-off can also cause seeds to rot and seedlings to die even before they emerge from the soil. To prevent it, grow seedlings in a sterile growing medium, such as a commercial peat-vermiculite mix, in sanitized containers. Water to keep the growing medium moist but not soaked. The high humidity and warm temperatures often used to speed germination can contribute to damping-off. So can deep planting, overcrowding, overwatering and overfertilizing. Once established, damping-off can spread through seed flats very quickly. Discard affected plants at once.

Q. Making raised beds in the flower or vegetable garden sounds like a lot of work. What makes it worthwhile?

A. Constructing raised beds is one way to garden in spite of poorly drained or compacted soil. The soil in the raised beds drains faster and warms up more quickly, so you can plant earlier and have fewer problems with root rots and other diseases related to poor drainage. Unless you build beds so wide that you can't reach the middle to plant or weed, you won't have to step in them, so soil compaction won't occur. Use wood treated with copper naphthenate to prevent rot, and your raised beds will last for years. Fill the frames with a mixture of sand, soil and compost for good drainage and nutrient-holding

Q. Are my leftover seeds from last year likely to be good this year? Or should I buy all new seed?

A. This depends on what types of seeds you saved and how you stored them. Most garden seeds will give satisfactory results the second or even the third year if they were stored in a cool, dry place, such as a dry basement, a garage or a refrigerator. The shortest-lived seeds are those of sweet corn, okra, onion, parsley, parsnip and salsify. Though they may germinate reasonably well after one year, they seldom do well the second year. Somewhat longer-lived are bean, carrot, leek, English pea and southern pea seeds. They will germinate well for at least three years if properly stored. Most other garden seeds will germinate well even after four to five years under adequate storage conditions.

Q. The wound where I removed a small branch from my maple is bleeding sap profusely. Will it hurt the tree and should I paint the wound?

A. The tree will not be harmed by the loss of sap. It is recommended to avoid pruning the deciduous (leaf dropping) trees in the early spring. Wait until there is some active growth. Pruning paints are no longer recommended, as they tend to interfere with the tree's natural healing process.
