Persons interested in running for a four-year term on the board had until 4 p.m. Monday to submit a petition for candidacy.

The following is a tentative list of candidates:

- Julie Bourke, board vice president, of Grosse Pointe Farms.
- Irene H. Burchard of Grosse Pointe Farms.
- Bryan K. Kadrich of Grosse Pointe Woods.
- John D. Mills of Grosse Pointe Shores.

- Cynthia J. Pangborn of Grosse Pointe Farms.

WE'RE CONCERNED ABOUT YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

News can appear one day and be gone the next. But the paper news is printed on con and should live on.

Last year more than one third of all U.S. newsprint was recycled. And that number is growing every day.

Recycling is the one way we can all give something back.

About 300 students from the district's nine elementary schools participated in the thematic program that focused this year on fitness and nutrition. The program was split into three 45-minute programs that focused on eye safety, nutrition, dental hygiene, physical fitness and coordination, swimming and sports. Classes were taught by public school teachers and community members.

Communities win more power from the new transit authority

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

With four of the five Grosse Pointes and other communities in the county "opting out" of the new Wayne County Transit Authority and the May 23 1/3-mill vote, the Wayne County board of commissioners has restored some control to the communities.

"Wayne County was trying to shove down our throats a proposal that was not in our best interests," said county commissioner Andrew Richner, whose 1st District includes the Pointes and Harper Woods. "Because communities put pressure on the county, the authority has been restructured."

The board of commissioners passed the revised articles of incorporation April 6 giving communities more input in authority decisions.

Instead of the original three-member board, with two of the members chosen by Wayne County executive Ed Mc-Namara, the authority's board will now have nine members. McNamara will appoint the additional eight members of the board, but now with the consent of the board of commissioners.

The new revisions also cap the number of mills the authority can seek from voters at 1/3 of a mill. Although the authority is only seeking 1/3 of a mill in the May 23 election, the old articles contained a cap of 5 mills which the authority could seek from voters.

The communities will get a written commitment from SMART (Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation) that bus routes will not be switched to other parts of the county, Richner said.

The authority, not SMART, now has the discretion as to whether the authority should assume SMART's liabilities and collective bargaining commitments.

Also, the authority will be dissolved one week after the May 23 election if the millage fails.

"We got some major concessions," Richner said. "Community leaders can now evaluate changes in the authority and commitments by SMART to not cut service and determine how best to provide a reliable and stable transportation system for their residents while balancing the interests of taxpayers."

An advertisement appearing in the Grosse Pointe News last week, paid for by the Grosse Pointe Democratic Club, accused Richner of "doing everything possible to get your city to withdraw from the SMART bus system."

The ad contains incorrect information, Richner said.

"I had a number of problems with the new authority, not SMART," he said. "I advised the communities of their rights

School board OKs pair of millage proposals over Taylor's objections

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Standing firm in his opposition to a five-year millage request, Grosse Pointe school board trustee Sears Taylor on Monday voted against placing a pair of millage requests on the June ballot.

Taylor also cast a nay vote against a five-year technology plan, drafted by superintendent Ed Shine, which supports the district's request for funds and provides a blueprint for technology improvements.

"We have a significant difference in philosophy," Taylor said to the board following three votes in which the board approved the technology plan and the two millage requests, voting 6-1 on each, with Taylor opposing all three.

"You said after the last election that you were going to listen to the community and now you approve the same proposal with the technology piece broken off. There is no spirit of compromise," Taylor said, directing his comments to board president Carl Anderson.

Voters last Feb. 7 were asked by the school district to approve two millage requests, one for 18 mills on non-homestead properties, in order to qualify for the state-guaranteed per-pupil foundation grant of $6,500. The second request for 8.5 mills on homestead properties was defeated.

"I talked to mayors, city council members, senior citizens, parents and community groups and I believe there is support for this millage," Anderson said.

"In our talks with the mayors and the community, we found that it was not the dollar amount (they opposed in the last election) but that there was a distrust of the school district," said board treasurer Gloria Konsler. "They didn't think we'd spend all the money on technology like we said we would."

Technology plan issued by schools

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Responding to suggestions from the public following the failure of the millage request last February, the Grosse Pointe school district has issued a five-year technology plan to back its request for 1.3255 mills.

Voters on June 12 will be asked by the school district to approve two proposals: one for 6.8303 mills for general operating purposes and a second for 1.3255 mills to be dedicated to technological improvement.

In February's election, both requests were consolidated into one ballot question. Voters approved the district's request for 18 mills to be levied on non-homestead properties but defeated a request for 8.5 mills on homestead properties.

"We have had a technology plan since 1990," said superintendent Ed Shine at the April 3 school board meeting. "Last spring the technology committee updated it and we translated it into a five-year plan."

Shine said based on feedback from the public following the failure of the 8.5-mill request and discussions among school board members, the technology plan needs to be a separate ballot question with an outline of how, where and when the money would be spent.

The plan calls for:

- Equipping all classrooms with five complete computer workstations, related equipment and learning- and age-appropriate software.
- Equipping high school technology labs.
- Establishing and equipping

Patrons angry over Park pullout from new county transit authority

By Jim Stickford

SMART workers to forgo pay for two weeks

SMART's employees have agreed to work without paychecks for two weeks in May so bus service can continue uninterrupted in the tri-county area through the millage election.

In an agreement signed April 10 in Royal Oak, employees of all five SMART bargaining units will forgo paychecks on May 12 and 19.

Non-represented SMART employees will also be working without paychecks during those two weeks.

"We carry over 32,000 riders every day and a lot of them don't have any other way to get to work, the doctor's office or to the grocery store," said Floyd Best, president of the Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1564. "Our members know how important the bus is to our customers and are willing to endure the hardship of payless paydays to make sure bus service isn't interrupted for our customers."

If the 1/3-mill tax is passed in Wayne and Macomb counties on May 23, employees will receive their back pay for the missed paydays.

"Without our union's support, we never would have made it this far," said SMART interim general manager Mike Duggan. "It's not easy keeping people working hard every day when they haven't had a raise in four years and to work without getting a paycheck shows a real dedication to our riders."

City Council Monday night and let councilmembers know how they felt about the council's vote to opt out of the new Wayne County Transportation Authority.

Mayor Palmer Heenan started off the SMART update session by explaining the council's position on the matter. He told the public that the Park was not the only Pointe to opt out of the transportation authority.

"On Wednesday, April 5, rep-representatives from all the Pointes met with SMART officials," Heenan said. "We agreed to work with the authority, but the main question of who will pay SMART's $20 million debt is a problem. We are 8 percent of the county's SEV with only 3 percent of its population. With other communities opting out, the debt burden will fall even heavier on the Pointes."

Heenan said that the Pointes are afraid of a slippery slope of a creeping transportation tax.

Heenan noted, a number of changes in the articles of incorporation were made addressing concerns raised by Pointe officials. Councilmember Vernon Ausherman, who previously voted to opt out of the authority, said that with these changes he would consider opting back in.

This was good news to the dozen or so audience members who urged the council to reconsider its SMART vote.

County, voted to opt out of the authority, not out of SMART. As a result of the Shores' action, SMART cut its 630 route, which served the Shores, forcing the community to use D-DOT (Detroit Department of Transportation) buses along the same route.

"No one has advocated withdrawing from SMART or terminating its bus service, except SMART, itself," he said. "Rather, our communities have been justifiably concerned with the draconian provisions imposed by the newly-formed authority, and have been considering how we can best provide a reliable public transportation system for the east side."

Communities that have opted out of the authority may get back in and get the 1/3 mill issue on the May 23 ballot but only if they do so by April 19.

A SOLID CHOICE
When all the fine characteristics of solid surfacing are taken into consideration, it is hard to turn it down as a choice for countertop material. Begin with the fact that this blend of polyester and/or acrylic resins with mineral fillers offers a lustrous look and silky feel that is often compared with stone. However, it lends itself to easier fabrication than stone and can be easily worked and pieced together to create custom designs. Seams are all but invisible and edges can be routed to elegant effect. Add to this solid surfacing's easy repairability. Scratches and burns can be sanded or buffed out, while seriously damaged areas can be excised and replaced. In short, solid surfacing's good looks and easy maintenance are hard to beat.

Residents upset, but group home to be located in Farms neighborhood

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

Despite the objections of residents in the 400 block of Lothrop in the Farms, a group home is coming to the neighborhood.

"I am angry, and I don't know what to do," said Barbara Trokey, who lives near the proposed adult foster care facility.

Her feelings were shared not only by her neighbors, but also by the Farms city council.

An anti-discrimination amendment to the 1988 Federal Fair Housing Act states that handicapped individuals must have access to fair and equal housing.

Although the neighborhood is zoned for single-family use, federal law pre-empts the local zoning ordinance, rendering the Farms city council powerless on the issue.

"We have a duty not to interfere, but to accommodate this type of housing," said Farms city attorney William Burgess.

The home was bought last year by George Hopping of Petoskey, an investor who is leasing the home to Wayne Community Living Services. The Lothrop home is replacing a group home on Buckingham in the Park.

The nearby residents expressed concerns about safety, the home's maintenance and their property values.

Neighbors of the Lothrop home were also upset that the city did not notify them that the group home was coming; however, the Farms never received any notice from the licensing agent, the state Department of Social Services. The notice was mistakenly sent to the city offices of Grosse Pointe Park.

Nearby residents were upset that they weren't notified of the coming group home, but federal law does not require a city to notify neighbors. Besides, the Farms has not been told anything by the state.

The new residents of the group home were scheduled to move in March 30, however, the Department of Social Services is supposed to notify a community that a group home facility is to be located within the municipality at least 45 days before issuance of a license.

No move-in date has been established.

Settlement of water rate suit floats dollars to Pointes, Harper Woods

By David Howard
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe's share of a $4.25 million settlement in a lawsuit over excessive water usage rates may only be a drop in the bucket, but it's better than nothing.

The five Pointes, along with Harper Woods and Macomb County, will receive a small portion of the settlement the city of Detroit will pay its water treatment customers around the metropolitan area as a result of the suit, said Wayne County commissioner Andrew Richner.

Under the settlement, members of the Northeast Sewage Disposal System — Grosse Pointe Woods, Grosse Pointe Shores, Harper Woods and Macomb County — will split $377,145, of which 75 percent will go to Wayne County, leaving about $94,000 to divvy among the Woods, Shores and Harper Woods. Also, Harper Woods will receive $2,190 directly.

Though not members of the Northeast system, the City of Grosse Pointe, Grosse Pointe Farms and Grosse Pointe Park will receive $15,699, $44,542 and $29,208, respectively.

The commission's subcommittee on legal affairs, which Richner chairs, approved the settlement last month.

Customers won't see a rate reduction as a result of the settlement. Instead, the money will be used to offset plaintiff cities' obligations to the water treatment system, said Richner.

He added that future rate increases may be offset.

The litigation dates back to 1977, when suburban customers of Detroit's sewerage and water treatment plant sued to force the city to modify the plant so it would comply with updated federal and state clean water requirements.

Stemming from that lawsuit, according to county documents, was another of many disagreements over the "appropriateness" of the rates suburban customers are charged for the service.

In the past, these disputes have resulted in revamped methods of computing the charges.

Park man has special reason for completing Alaska marathon in June

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

If you happen to see Joseph DeJonckheere jogging along Lakeshore this spring, be aware that he's doing more than burning calories.

DeJonckheere (pronounced DeYonker) is a second-year medical student at Wayne State University and he is in training for the Mayor's Midnight Sun Marathon June 17-19 in Anchorage, Alaska.

It's the Grosse Pointe Park resident's first 26-mile running race and he's dedicating it to a 12-year-old Macomb Township boy who is currently under treatment at St. John Hospital for acute lymphoblastic leukemia, the most severe form of the disease.

DeJonckheere and medical school classmate Anthony Paniccia each have pledged to raise $3,500 to enter the marathon through the Leukemia Society of America's Team in Training program.

Team in Training sponsors a different race each year and is a national program for runners and walkers that raises funds for leukemia patients.

What has motivated a medical student to run a marathon two days after he takes his medical licensing exam this June?

"I wanted to get into shape and to do some traveling," DeJonckheere explained. "And I wanted to do something to help people since I am a medical student. (Paniccia) and I have met so many leukemia patients that helping them has become our prime motivating factor."

DeJonckheere is at Bon Secours Hospital as part of his coursework in physical diagnosis: Paniccia is working at St. John Hospital. Both took up running last year to get into shape, running a 5K race last summer in Flint and the Turkey Trot in Detroit last Thanksgiving.

POINTER OF INTEREST

They heard about the Team in Training program from another runner. Shortly thereafter, they met the 12-year-old Macomb Township boy, who was diagnosed with leukemia in January.

"He is undergoing radiation and chemotherapy," DeJonckheere said. "All his hair has fallen out and he's been pretty sick."

Both medical students have visited the boy on several occasions and hope to spend more time with him when he gets day passes from the hospital.

Meanwhile, they are training for the race, following a preparation guide that increases the number of miles they run each week. Training began the last week in February and continues until the week of the race.

"It motivates me more to do this by dedicating my race to the boy," DeJonckheere said. "You can read about leukemia all you want but until you meet someone with the disease, it doesn't bring it to life."

In order to run in the Anchorage marathon as part of the Team in Training program, participants must raise $3,500 by the beginning of May. In exchange for their donation, the leukemia society pays for transportation, lodging and the entrance fee for the race in Anchorage.

After the race, DeJonckheere and Paniccia plan to stay on in Alaska for another 10 days at their own expense.

The boy's parents recently learned of DeJonckheere and Paniccia's efforts and wrote a letter to the Wayne State University medical school.

In her letter, the mother writes, "The leukemia society has gotten in touch with me to let me know two medical students would like to sponsor my son in a marathon to raise money for the research of leukemia. I feel very pleased and I think (my son) would feel special knowing that these two people are pulling for him."

DeJonckheere grew up in Sterling Heights and graduated from Henry Ford II High School. He has a bachelor's degree in anthropology from Albion College. He has not decided on a specialty in medicine, but is considering specializing in hematology and oncology.

If you would like to support DeJonckheere and Paniccia, send a donation in their honor to the Leukemia Society of America, Team in Training, Michigan Chapter, 21617 Harper, St. Clair Shores, 48080.

Woods council seeking lower bids for playscape

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Buoyed by the prospect of building a new and improved playscape in Lakefront Park, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council was dismayed to learn that the estimated cost of building the playscape is about $30,000 higher than expected — a factor that could seriously affect the size of the project.

Councilmembers were updated last week on the bids submitted by construction firms to build the playscape. Engan Tooley was the "base bid" low bidder with a bid of $113,531.

Other playscape costs include an estimated $15,000 for engineering fees and $7,600 for some additional labor costs, bringing the total estimated cost of the proposed playscape to about $135,000.

"That's more money than we wanted to spend on a playscape," said mayor Robert Novitke. "We were really hoping for something in the neighborhood of $100,000. People keep telling us that we have all that money from the sale of our share of Grosse Pointe Cable, but we have to be careful with that money."

The city received about $70,000 a year in dividends from Grosse Pointe Cable, said Novitke. Part of the money from the cable sale has to be used to offset that loss in revenue, he said.

The city administration is also looking at becoming self-insured regarding to workman's compensation. That will take a considerable amount of money, Novitke said.

"Everybody has ideas on how to spend this cable money," Novitke said. "But this money must be spent wisely. We must determine our priorities."

Recreation commission member Vicki Granger attended the council meeting and told how the commission had worked to design the best possible playscape.

"We visited the Farms and other communities on the west side that have playscapes," said Granger. "We wanted to build something that will appeal to children in a wide age range. We also wanted to build a playscape that is accessible to handicapped children."

Federal regulations require projects like the proposed playscape to have at least one-third of the project accessible to the handicapped, said Granger. Two-thirds of the recreation commission's proposed playscape would be accessible to the handicapped.

Novitke said that the playscape is just one of three improvement projects that the council would like to see built at Lakefront Park. The administration is currently seeking bids on a pedestrian bridge to connect the two parts of the park separated by the Milk River. The council is also considering building a boardwalk along the park's shoreline.

"We have to set our spending priorities," said the mayor. "I think the bridge is the most important thing. When we know how much it and the boardwalk are estimated to cost, we'll have a better idea of how much we can spend on the playscape."

The council decided to hold off approving any of the bids it received, and asked the engineering firm of Anderson, Eckstein and Westrick, which is handling the project for the city, to seek lower bids based on a scaled down playscape.

Thomas Whitcer of the city's public works department said that any delay would probably push back the playscape's proposed completion date of May 23. It was hoped that the playscape would be completed before Memorial Day weekend, traditionally the start of summer and one of the park's busiest times of the year.

"We had hoped to have all these projects completed by June," Novitke said. "But if being financially prudent pushes back completion dates, so be it."

Newt merits credit — but not too much

Speaker Newt Gingrich deserves great credit for persuading the House to approve nine of the 10 major items in the GOP Contract with America in less than his 100-day time limit.

Even if much of the legislation fails to become law, the speed and number of House actions reflect a strongly unified GOP approach to reducing the federal government in size, scope and cost.

In his nation-wide TV broadcast Friday night, Gingrich, however, saw the contract as merely the start of a bipartisan plan "to remake the government and balance the budget that is the American people's plan."

But President Clinton, speaking in Dallas to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, signaled a counterattack by threatening to veto a host of major House bills unless they were substantially revised by the U.S. Senate.

We agree that some of the GOP contract items are constructive, such as the line-item veto, the ending of unfunded mandates imposed on states, and the reduction in the number of committees and the number of their staffers.

Yet, some of the real reforms originally were sponsored by Democrats at a time when the GOP, as a minority party, refused to support them and, in fact, helped to defeat several.

In addition, the permanent value of all the House efforts is still to be determined by the legislation that finally is converted into law.

House Republicans knew when they passed several extreme measures that the Senate would weaken and revise them and other House-passed bills, although popular issues no doubt will win Senate passage, too.

Then it will be up to President Clinton to decide whether to use his veto power if his objections have not been met in the Senate. And that is what he warned in Dallas he would do.

For example, the House bill that would cut taxes by $189 billion over five years will get close scrutiny in the Senate, as in the White House, because it provides tax cuts for many upper-income individuals.

The biggest tax break would grant a $500-a-child credit to households with taxable income as high as $200,000 a year, despite GOP moderates' efforts to cut the income limit to $95,000 a year.

Business interests would benefit from a lower rate on personal and corporate capital gains, from abolition of the alternative minimum tax, and from more favorable terms for writing off the cost of equipment purchases.

But even some Republicans question the wording of the promise they sought and obtained to use savings from reduced appropriations to cut the deficit before granting any tax relief.

Nor is the public ecstatic with praise for the Contract with America. In fact, a New York Times/CBS News Poll of public opinion last week showed that only 38 percent had read or heard anything about it.

That again raises the question of the authenticity of the GOP claim that its actions reflect public approval of the contract even though few people really knew or understood its terms.

The Times said that because the public is "wary of taxes," respondents to its poll offer no better than "mixed reviews" to the first 100 days. In fact, a majority, given a choice, said they preferred balancing the budget to cutting taxes.

True, GOP conservatives claim this is a false choice and that, instead, government spending can be cut enough to provide both, but, in fact, fewer than half of the public — 44 percent — believe that aim can be accomplished and 50 percent said it could not be done.

Yet, misleading messages that are repeated often do have an impact. Perhaps the GOP is trying to apply new public pressure to persuade the Senate to avoid major revisions in what the House has done.

As usual in such political gamesmanship, the people will be hard-pressed to learn the facts from the extremists in both parties who prefer to indulge in name-calling, invective and demagoguery.

Board chair turns on critic

Ever since his election to the Grosse Pointe school board, Sears Taylor has been a minority of one sniping away at the majority for failing to follow his advice.

This week the board president, Carl Anderson, twice has responded to Taylor's opposition to board policies by confronting him at a board meeting and by publicly calling attention to some of Taylor's inconsistencies that Anderson says have confounded him.

In a column for The Pointer News and in information provided to the Grosse Pointe News editorial page, Anderson has cited a series of Taylor's specific statements from December 1994 through March 1995 to support his charge of Taylor's inconsistency in discussing the proposed 1995-96 millage.

But Monday night, after Taylor cast the lone board vote against approval of a five-year technology plan and against both millage proposals adopted for the June 12 millage election, Anderson took sharp issue with Taylor's views.

In answer to Taylor's contention that the five-year technology plan would "lack accountability" and would "disenfranchise the people," Anderson replied that the district showed its "accountability every year" by electing at least one member to fill the board's staggered terms.

Taylor said he approved of the technology plan, which he apparently helped draft, but, as indicated, disagreed with the five-year time set for adoption of the program.

That five-year time element was also the basis of his opposition to formal adoption for the two millages — 6.8303 mills to maintain student programs, and 1.3255 mills earmarked for technology.

After Taylor voted against both, Anderson asked him whether he planned to campaign against them. Taylor responded that he was reserving his comment about what he intended to do.

Several other board members had chimed into the discussion, but Frank Sladen, a veteran member, finally made a brief statement that in effect ended the exchanges by taking both men to task for "playing politics."

He reminded them that the board's responsibility is "to give young people the best programs we can and we ought to stick to that point." Both cooled down after that reprimand.

Yet the apparently acrimonious discussion does hint a nasty board election with five candidates challenging the two incumbents. Withdrawals are permitted through today, however.

Future of busing brightens

Hope of continuing bus service for the Grosse Pointes brightened this week after a determined stand by Pointe officials forced concessions by the new Wayne County Transit Authority.

Under pressure from county commissioner Andrew Richner of the Pointes and several Pointe communities, the agency bowed to demands that it moderate its controls over service to the Pointes.

In fact, most Pointe municipalities brought pressure by deciding to opt out of the May 23 election seeking one-third of a mill property tax to help finance the system that serves Wayne County.

At Richner's demand, the agency first acceded to the request that its taxing limit be trimmed back from a maximum of 5 mills to the one-third of a mill that will be sought in the May 23 vote.

Then the pressure forced the agency to increase its board from three to nine members to ensure that suburban board members, rather than county executive Edward McNamara, will hold eventual control.

In addition, the agency agreed that any additional routes be openly and competitively awarded on bids, that the agency have authority to determine its liability for operation of the Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation (SMART), and that it will agree in writing not to arbitrarily end its service.

Under the changes made, Richner believes the prospects for continued service have brightened and that SMART might even emerge as the best of the agencies to continue to run the service.

All of which, in our view, tends to disprove the Grosse Pointe Democratic Club's newspaper advertisement accusing Richner of "doing everything possible" to persuade Pointe municipalities to withdraw from the SMART bus system.

In fact, Richner sought more local control over the authority and did not encourage withdrawals from SMART or the authority.

Public would save Big Bird

If the registered voters of Michigan were to make the decision, the public broadcasting system (PBS) clearly would be assured of continued federal assistance instead of fighting for its life.

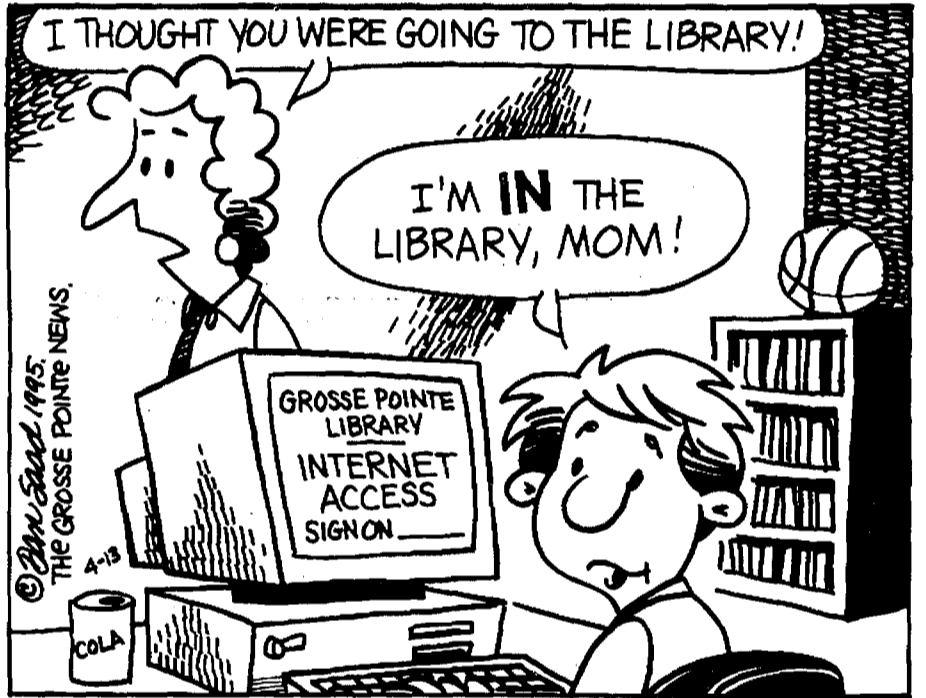

That endorsement by more than half of all respondents in a statewide Michigan poll by EPIC/MRA of Lansing in mid-March also serves as an endorsement of public radio and TV programs.

What that means is that Michigan respondents would save from the budget-cutters not only Big Bird but the rest of the "Sesame Street" cast, and the other regular PBS features.

The Lansing-based polling and market research firm also said that 71 percent of the respondents felt the $1.09 per year taxpayer contribution to public broadcasting "was a small price to pay for the kind of quality programming" provided.

We completely agree, Newt Gingrich to the contrary.

Letters

SMART investment

To the Editor:
This is in response to the many articles and letters regarding SMART bus service and the decision as to whether local communities need the SMART bus service, should stay a part of the organization and contribute to the operation of the system.

I am a businessman who made a conscious decision three years ago to move into the Grosse Pointe area. I moved from out-state. In my work capacity, my wife and I could have selected to live anywhere in the southern Michigan/northern Ohio area. I chose to move into Grosse Pointe in part because of the bus service.

My wife and I use the bus infrequently, but when we do, I know that SMART provides a convenient and reliable service. And I know many people ride the bus. Every morning when I look out my kitchen window (that happens to be along side of a SMART bus stop), I see many people on the bus. Empty buses claimed by my county commissioner and the mayor of Grosse Pointe Park are just not true. One hundred people all day on the bus as they claim, let's be realistic and take the politics out of this important issue.

Why can my relatives and friends in Chicago, Atlanta, Cleveland and even Kalamazoo, all have a transportation system that works. They have a local tax that supports it. Why not the Detroit area, and yes why not Grosse Pointe?

If it costs me 1/3 of a mill to keep the SMART buses in my community, I think it is an investment that will be paid back to my wife and me many times over. Again, quit the politics and find a solution. Show that government can work.

Public transit a public need

To the Editor:
Taxation without representation is often feared. How about representation by a few to harm many?

Public transportation is a public need and should be brought to the public for a vote. The issue should not be decided by a commissioner, a city administrator, or an "incensed" mayor, or a partial city council who want to deprive the citizens of a voice.

Many senior citizens and handicapped are expected to support school and library millages because of "the good of the community," regardless of whether they receive any benefit from the increased taxes that result. In return, public transportation should be available to the citizens, "for the good of the community."

After admitting to having little, if any, information on the current SMART situation, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council, composed of four members that attended, (two were absent), voted to do away with our public transportation without any alternative plan. Commissioner Jean Rice voted to retain the service for the sake of the residents and senior citizens, at least until all the facts were in.

All the citizens of Grosse Pointe Woods are victims of an uninformed vote; an irresponsible vote; and a very harmful vote. I for one am going to start urging friends and neighbors to take a second look at our city council and Commissioner Richner. Are they really representing, "the good of the community?" I don't think so.

This isn't about O.J.

This column isn't about the O.J. Simpson trial. Oh, it could have been. I could have written about Judge Lance Ito and his collection of hourglasses. Or, I could have written about Marcia Clark and her collection of domestic problems. I could have written about Kato Kaelin; his hair, his beady eyes, his lack of mental prowess and his — fan club?

But I didn't.

This column isn't about politics. Oh, I could have talked about Newt Gingrich and his mother. I could have talked about Sen. Robert Dole and his war wound. Then there's the Contract with America, the first 100 days, Al Gore and the environment, Hillary and health care and Hillary and Chelsea's excellent adventures on the Indian subcontinent.

But I didn't.

This column isn't about AIDS, HIV, pro-life, pro-choice or professional sports teams. It's not about saving the whales, saving the unborn or saving for retirement.

Oh, I could have written about the religious right, the liberal left, libertarians, vegetarians, vegans and fruitarians (look it up for yourself) and people for the ethical treatment of solid waste and recyclables. I could have written about the depletion of the rain forests, the value of Retin-A and the debate over radial keratotomy.

But I didn't.

This column isn't about popular culture. Oh, I could say a few things about the Psychic Friends Network, the "Jerry Springer Show," Howard Stern, infomercials, "Talk Soup," talk shows, talk radio, tattoos and VELCRO (R) (copyright) (trade-mark) hook and loop fasteners.

I could have written about the artist formerly known as Prince, formerly known as symbol and now known as Tora Tora. I could have written about the bizarre metamorphosis of the Jackson family. Or, I could have talked about Pearl Jam's legal battle with Ticketmaster or REM's political leanings.

I could have, but didn't, complain about the poor writing on "Saturday Night Live," the rationale for giving Bill Bonds his own show, the popularity of "E.R.," the state of the post-David-Caruso "NYPD Blue," the new Becky on "Roseanne," the new Roseanne and the telling subtext of "Beavis and Butthead."

But I didn't.

This column isn't about lists, labels and the politically correct. Oh, I could have written about the funny bumper stickers and vanity plates I've seen. Or, I could have written about Generation X, Baby Boomers, slackers, "Melrose Place," and MTV's "Real World." I could have talked about multiculturalism, the global economy, the information superhighway, sexual orientation vs. sexual preference, handicapped vs. handi-capable, or why the Scottish are the last ethnic group to be openly ridiculed.

But I didn't.

You can thank me later.

Losing it? Did we ever have it?

A few weeks ago a Grosse Pointe Farms resident wrote a letter to the editor lamenting that people don't know how to treat each other anymore. "We've lost something in Grosse Pointe, something valuable — and it is civility and a sense of community," he wrote.

He was writing about the very public and bitter disagreement over the schools' curriculum that has divided residents into (at least) two camps. Coincidentally — or perhaps, rather, the proof of the pudding — the same edition of the paper carried a front-page story about the divisive resolution of a dispute over a satellite dish in the City of Grosse Pointe. In that case, a council member called the dish owners "unreasonable people, with no sense of community... (who) won't give the neighbors any consideration."

And, if memory serves, a similar charge was leveled a year ago over front yard basketball hoops and back yard recreational vehicles, both in Grosse Pointe Park.

What's going on here? Have Grosse Pointers lost it? Or didn't they ever have it in the first place?

Both, I think. And not just in Grosse Pointe, but everywhere. We aren't as civil and community-minded as we believe we used to be.

In talking to people about the curriculum battle, I several times suggested that the fight was unlike Grosse Pointe — only to be met with amazed stares and long silences. Clearly people believed I was laboring under a false impression.

SSA seeks help from community

The Social Security Administration is recruiting community-based organizations as representative payees for certain beneficiaries unable to manage their own funds.

The organization must be willing to see that the funds are spent on the beneficiary's behalf for basic needs, including food, clothing, and shelter. The action results from a change in the law which requires beneficiaries receiving

Nancy Parmenter

Upon reflection, I'm inclined to believe that the recollection of kinder, gentler times is, in part, nostalgia for a golden time that existed only on television. We all watched Donna Reed and Ozzie and Harriet and Father knowing better than the rest of his family and began to believe it of ourselves.

It's true that in those days nobody locked their doors and moms stayed home and baked cookies. But as far back as you care to look, kids have tipped over outhouses and their parents have battled each other over it.

We smile when Sheriff Andy Taylor haggles with Sarah with his phone calls, but my grandfather once ripped the phone right out of the wall in frustration at the operator. And in the '50s, the people next door to us kept a conglomeration of odds and ends and building materials, so my parents put up a fence to hide it — and were branded as spiteful neighbors. Sometimes you just can't win.

But recollecting that things weren't always perfect doesn't mean I'm satisfied now.

In point of fact, community is much on my mind, as it seems to be across the nation. Creating community has even been codified into a movement, though founder Amitai Etzioni resents the "ism" in "communi-payments on the basis of alcoholism or drug addiction to have a representative payee.

SSA believes that friends and relatives may be too vulnerable to manipulation from addicts or alcoholics who may want to use the funds to fuel their addiction. Organizations may charge up to $50 a month for the service.

Interested organizations should call 1-800-772-1213.

tarianism."

Some folks feel the lack of community so intensely that they are forming intentional communities to try to find what is missing in the average suburb: They're looking for new ways of living together ranging from communes to "co-housing" (individual houses with shared common facilities and, most essentially, a shared vision).

In part, though, our participation in shared community really has changed. Lots has been written about it: loss of the front porch; television; failure of public morality; rootlessness caused by modern mobility; breakup of the family; reliance on the car; rampant individualism.

That wonderful book, "Having Our Say: The Delany Sisters' First 100 Years," has a few things to say on the subject:

When Sadie graduated from high school in 1910, her father said to her, "Daughter, you are college material. You owe it to your nation, your race, and yourself to go." When was the last time you heard anyone mention responsibility to the nation — on any subject, let alone something like a college education that is now seen as simply a necessary rung on the ladder to material success, certainly not as an obligation to society. And Sadie's Papa followed that up by telling her to work her own way through school and not be beholden to anyone by taking loans or scholarships. (She did, too.)

Or, on the subject of charity: "The way we were brought up, it was only natural for Bessie and me to help other people. It wasn't something you did so that people thought well of you. No, you did it because that was what was expected of you. It was the example that was set by the Good Lord. It was also the example set by Mama and Papa."

That just may say it all, as clearly and succinctly as anyone can. Responsibility and example, with a liberal serving of the golden rule. One person at a time.

So what are we waiting for?

Telethon was a swell-athon

With live or taped appearances by Gov. John Engler, TV-casters Mort Crim, Carmen Harlin, Amyre Makupson and Van Earl Wright, Mr. Universe (Peter Neilsen), the Free Press's Molly Abraham and Mike Duffy, Mark Andrews of the Dick Purtan show and award-winning creative guy Harvey Ovshinsky, last weekend's South High 22-hour telethon was a winner.

"When we finally shut down on Saturday our pledges were over $17,000 and still coming in," says Dr. Julie Corbett, South's instructional TV coordinator (that's $3,000 over last year). To help out, the Red Wings' Steve Yzerman agreed to sign a jersey that's going for $500.

Some of the students who worked on the grueling fundraiser were Todd Graham and Ben Burns and emcees Lindsey Ronayne, Emmett Hynous, Joe Battle, Dean Rahm, Tessie Craft and Charlie Janke, with alternate emcees Jay Lytle and Mike DeCorte. Team directors were Chris Hyatt, Doug Fairbanks and Tim Nicholson, assisted by Cory Schroeder, Fritz Distal, Mike Rubino, Clayton Banka and Tim Brady, as well as DeCorte.

Volunteers Pete Koenig and Robin Missant also kept things moving. "And we owe a lot of thanks to Paul Long (from Corporate Communications and WDIV)," Julie says. "We're the only school doing this; we had wonderful support and I'm eternally grateful."

Little pieces of the big picture

Susan Parent sounded like she hasn't been getting enough sleep lately — probably because, two full weeks after taking in the bantam rooster which appeared mysteriously at their house on Rathbone Place, no one's claimed him yet.

"He's a really nice little bird, very tame," says Susan, who now suspects someone from outside the Pointes may have left their feathered alarm clock at the nearby City park. She and husband Greg Steen are now looking for a good home for him — maybe with people who have a farm. (And for the rooster's sake, are also vegetarians.)

The Pointes are full of good Samaritans: One of my wife, Doc's, favorite stories is of her aerobics class at the Hunt Club where someone once asked, "Did anyone lose a diamond?" and the class hardly skipped a beat while one grateful lady claimed the Rockefeller-size stone that had jumped from its setting.

My loss wasn't quite that great, but to whoever hung the key to my bicycle lock, gone since December, on the post just outside First Federal Savings on Notre Dame so I finally noticed it last week, a big THANK YOU. (It's a little rusty but it still works.)

This community has its share of super-cute house and garden decorations, like those colorful flags with seasonal or holiday motifs that people have taken to hanging outside and the massive flock of cast-concrete ducks and geese which sport raincoats and galoshes in wet weather, but the eight-sided replica of a traffic sign seen near a front door on Berkshire in the Windmill Pointe subdivision takes the prize with its message:

Easter Bunny please STOP here — And speaking of that, the Park's Jim Kerwin takes exception to FYI's observation that springtime is when the Christmas wreath on your door starts looking out of place. "We keep ours up and put Easter decorations on it," he says. (Make 'em red, white and blue and you can stretch it through July.)

The nerve of some confidence persons: Just one day before Shirley McShane's story warning readers about the man who calls himself Elliott Johnson, Rick Parisse of our ad department got a jingle from him right at his desk.

"Johnson" (if that's his real name), has lately been calling in the GP phone exchange, trying to convince people he's an FBI agent or a phone company investigator and then asking for confidential information.

"He tried to get our business calling card numbers," says Rick, who didn't buy it for a second.

News scoop

"What a good citizen," I say to myself while walking in the neighborhood south of Jefferson a few weeks ago, as a man with a black dog is carefully scooping up doggy doo from his front lawn with a garden trowel.

Nice to see people taking care of the environment here, I think, as I'm just about to pass by on the other side of the street.

Just then the young fellow, who never noticed I was watching, gives the trowel a terrific flip and its contents come sailing over my way, land in the middle of Nottingham and bounce a few times.

Where's the sheriff of Nottingham when you need him?

See something that makes you laugh or groan? Call Ken Eatherly at 822-4091.

Schools responding

To the Editor:
Although the tone of recent discussions over whole language was sometimes lacking in civility and with little concern for creating and maintaining good relationships for future problem solving, it was still a good example of democracy at work.

No institution can develop "perfect" plans and programs. Knowing the will of the community is not always easy. However, being open to feedback and having the capacity to change is essential. The Grosse Pointe schools have once again proven their ability to adapt by responding to parent and teacher concerns.

The best example of this capacity is not the mid-year changes at Maire, but rather its traditional mechanisms for ongoing growth through the Curriculum Coordinating Committee (CCC) and through other system-wide committees.

The CCC's five-year review of K-12 language arts has begun with a specific charge to develop mechanisms for parent concerns about phonics and a structural, comprehensive approach to reading that is consistent in elementary classrooms across the district. In addition, assessments that measure learning, even if different instructional materials are used, will also be examined.

Another committee, headed by deputy superintendent Dr. Klein, will conduct a comprehensive study of elementary schools with areas in mind such as instructional effectiveness, organization, assessment and grouping.

Once again, under the guidance of Dr. Shine and the Grosse Pointe Board of Education, the school community has made adaptations through its traditional democratic means, thus demonstrating its capacity to continue to be one of the best school systems in the state of Michigan.

Imprints staff commended

To the Editor:
After reading both the Imprints and Grosse Pointe South's Tower, I have come to a conclusion based on my reading.

The U.S. Constitution grants to all people freedom of speech and extends the right to students. Imprints does touch upon some very sensitive issues — suicide, murder and religion — topics that confront people nearly every day.

However, Imprints magazine has shown good judgment in its defense. Believe it or not, some students are faced with the contemplation of suicide, and people are being murdered every day.

The students who have created these articles are doing something constructive. Instead of joining gangs, or shoplifting, they are using their intelligence in a creative manner. To express their feelings to the public and, hopefully, reach some others that may be dealing with the same issues.

Another thought to this issue, in order to become more knowledgeable, one must see both sides of the story. To break the barrier of being "sheltered" in our community, students as well as adults need to experience or hear the other points of view. The Imprints staff has taken a major step. It knew that what was being published might cause controversy and has handled the situation with a great deal of intelligence. I commend the staff for it.

Kudos to Ellen Bowen

To the Editor:
Ellen Bowen, the Broadway producer-in-residence as a South High teacher, has enriched the community with yet another outstanding theatrical presentation. One would have to go a long way to find as professional and enjoyable a performance as "Pippin" which the South High students enacted under Ms. Bowen's direction.

It was particularly delightful for me to witness the performance of some of the young girls I have seen grow up. The peppery sophomore Bridget Kaiser had the audience in her hand as she sang "No Time at All," and the lights were not needed when Shelly Ritter appeared as Catherine because her smile lit up the entire stage.

Melissa Danckaert was outstanding in the lead role, but I wish I could have also seen one of my favorite South players, Tracy Ganem, who had the lead in the other cast. Yes, somehow Ms. Bowen finds the time to prepare two casts to provide an opportunity for more students.

We are truly fortunate to have such a wonderful director and great student thespians in Grosse Pointe.

2 meters needed

To the Editor:
We have a pointed question for the city administrators of all of the Pointe communities, especially Grosse Pointe Woods, where we reside.

Why can we not have a second water meter installed in our homes that would only be for water used to water our lawns and gardens? As it stands, we have to pay an exorbitant sewage disposal charge in addition to a very high price for water delivered to our homes. Lawn and garden water does not enter our sewage disposal system, it sinks into the ground.

Detroit Edison allows us to install separate electric meters for our air conditioners at a special rate. Why not water meters?

We are sure most residents would be only too happy to pay to have a second water meter installed in place of paying the outlandish charges for disposal under the present system.

Tax cap? Not in Woods

To the Editor:
I was expecting to suffer only a small property tax assessment increase this year because of the new legislation enacted by Proposal A. What a shock when my taxable value increased 8.5 percent.

I spoke with the Grosse Pointe Woods assessor and went to the board of review to protest. Their response was that there is a gray area in the law that allows for property assessments to exceed the tax cap of 2.6 percent if you have had a house classification change. Nothing has been done to the house, such as a new addition, to warrant a change in classification.

The assessor further explained this happened to 16 houses in the Blairmoor and Rosedale Court area.

This is only a gimmick to exceed the tax cap of 2.6 percent. Proposal A is very clear on this issue and the tax cap must strictly apply. Other taxpayers beware!

Custodians aren't janitors

To the Editor:
Lately there has been a lot of talk about privatization of the cleaning and maintenance services of the Grosse Pointe schools.

There is a group that thinks it knows what it's talking about. There's a member of the board of education that supports this group - Sears Taylor. This group has stated that the support staff is a bunch of overpaid janitors.

First, let me say that there are not, nor have there ever been, janitors working for the Grosse Pointe schools. However, there are custodians, engineers, maintenance, and highly skilled journeymen in the electrical, plumbing, HVAC, and carpentry trades. As defined by the American Heritage Dictionary, "a custodian is one who has charge of something; caretaker." There is the key word, care.

The custodians care about what they do. They care about the buildings. They care about a safe, clean learning environment for children. Your children! I could write an entire page about what some of these people do, but I will just touch on a few items.

Our custodians sweep and mop floors, disinfect sinks, toilets, desk tops and tables. They vacuum and extract carpeting, empty trash, wash chalkboards, change lightbulbs, clean glass, sweep stairs, dust, sanitize drinking fountains, clean mirrors, clean garbage cans, remove gum, stains and spots from carpet. They clean vent wells, care for flags, clean walls and woodwork, check and fill paper towel and toilet paper dispensers, operate ventilating fans, open and lock buildings, answer emergency call bells, and polish nickel, chrome, and brass. They clean erasers, clean and maintain boilers and boiler rooms, wash light fixtures, windows, shades and blinds, order all supplies, maintain all equipment. They dry tears, help children with stuck zippers, locks and Thermos bottles and read to children. They take care of the lawns and shrubs, pull weeds, edge sidewalks, sweep and maintain sidewalks and parking lots. They are shipping and receiving clerks, fix broken windows and care for the buildings in cases of burglary or vandalism. Check and maintain playground equipment, build and repair furniture, take care of bodily fluid spills, and hundreds of other duties.

We, the people who maintain your schools, are not born with this knowledge. It takes years of experience, study, and education.

Last year at a board of education meeting, I asked Mr. Taylor if he had ever been to Monteith Elementary School, where I am the head engineer. He said no. I invited him to come and see the building for himself. I have not seen Mr. Taylor yet.

How can a man say he can cut costs if he doesn't see first hand what he is talking about? I often wonder about the way this man talks and with his lack of support for the board of education and schools in general. Why is he on the board of education? It seems to me that Mr. Taylor does not care about educating children, only saving money.

I support this school system with my heart and soul. I pay taxes on two properties in this community, one is a non-home-stead. I voted for millages and urged everyone to do the same.

We have to do whatever it takes to turn our children into educated, responsible adults. We have your children for 13 out of the first 18 years of their lives. Let's work together. Remember, responsible, educated children don't hang out, vandalize or rob people and their homes and businesses.

The cost of turning a bad kid around is much too high. Let's get it right the first time. Support your schools

Greg Winne

Monteith Elementary

Dick Cooper remembered

To the Editor:
Belatedly, I have recently heard of the untimely passing of Richard A. Cooper (Aug. 6, 1994). During my watch as teacher and coach at Grosse Pointe North High School, I had the privilege of knowing and observing Dick Cooper during the many activities he attended and photographed.

Indeed, he was a very positive role model for many students with whom he came in contact.

He was well respected as a man, a father and a community contributor. It is a pity that the young people coming to North High will never have the opportunity of knowing Mr. Richard A.

Cooper, a wonderful man, and a great American!

Governor flouts voters

To the Editor:
Thank you, Gov. John Engler, the citizens of Wayne County now truly know what you think of us. And that's obviously not much.

It certainly took real arrogance on the part of the governor to re-appoint Arthur Lombard to the Wayne County Circuit Court bench after the voters of our county rejected his election bid to that bench last November.

Maybe the Wayne County voters were trying to tell Gov. Engler that they think the individuals he appoints to the bench should have had some experience in private practice before they become a judge.

Parmenter column appreciated

To the Editor:
My compliments to Nancy Parmenter's column of March 23 - a good investigative report. And to former Grosse Pointe parent and teacher Ilse Hamers, thank you for your informative letter.

My husband and I are former Grosse Pointe parents during 1970 and 1980, except for five years at Shaker Heights, Ohio, schools.

The whole language approach sounds good on paper but the implementation is most important for our children. Magnet schools would be a good approach, while training teachers and parents, and this would be a must for the parents.

Village filthy

To the Editor:
I remember a time when the Village was clean and uncluttered. I also remember about the time it started to go down hill. I remember old Mrs. D'Hondt keeping the grounds of Jacobson's beautiful, sweeping and planting flower gardens, making it truly a lovely corner.

Now, the whole Village looks like a slum; in fact, downtown Detroit looks better.

What has happened? I can't believe the litter is due entirely to outsiders shopping here. Have Grosse Pointers lost their pride? Are there not enough trash cans? Do not the store managers or parking lot owners care to clean up their property?

At present, I would be ashamed to take a friend from out of town to shop in the Village. They could not believe that this is the fabled beautiful City of Grosse Pointe.

District still considering editorial policy of student literary magazine

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Controversy is as controversy does.

Grosse Pointe school officials aren't happy with the publicity surrounding the February issue of Imprints, the student literary magazine that caught the public's attention with its short stories on suicide and homicide.

While teachers and students at Grosse Pointe South High School are still drafting an editorial policy for future issues of the magazine, administrators generally agree the controversy has been a learning experience.

"Kids must be allowed to make mistakes and learn from those mistakes," said school board president Carl Anderson. "I've been working with kids for years and it is my belief that they should be allowed to express their true feelings."

Anderson said he had some concerns after he read some of the material in Imprints but said he has no intention of censoring the material.

He made a public statement at the April 3 school board meeting because, he said, he wasn't happy with the way the issue had played out in the media and felt it was important to clarify where the board stood.

"I had thought about the issue over the weekend," Anderson said, "and I thought these issues should be handled through the appropriate channels and without grandstanding. I'm not saying the issues shouldn't be discussed publicly, but sometimes I think you can deal with the issues more effectively through quiet discussion with the parties involved."

Anderson and five other board members said they had no intention of pulling funding from the Imprints program or of infringing on the students' constitutional rights.

"I'm a big believer in the Bill of Rights," Anderson said. "It applies to everyone, whether you're 8, 18 or 80 years old."

Trustee Sears Taylor brought the Imprints issue to the public's attention at the March 6 school board meeting by reading excerpts from the February issue of the magazine.

Taylor said at that meeting that three parents of South students had called him with concerns about some of the material in the magazine. Taylor said that he supported the right of free speech, but didn't think tax dollars should fund offensive material.

Taylor has since said he also has concerns about whether the contents of Imprints could leave the school district open to a lawsuit.

"This isn't a question of censorship," Taylor said, "it's a question of leadership of a student publication. Based on something printed in that publication, the school system could come under liability. The subpoena wouldn't be delivered to the home of the student editor, it would come to the school administration."

Taylor said what appears in future issue of Imprints will be the true test.

"When I see the next couple of issues of Imprints, if it's apparent that the faculty adviser and (principal Mary Beth) Herrmann have exercised control over the publication so it's representative of the whole school, then the subject is closed," he said.

"If the student editors want total control without the principal having final say, then I would recommend not funding it."

But board secretary Linda Schnieder said to cut funding to Imprints or to censor the students would penalize future students who may wish to contribute to the literary magazine.

"I don't want (Sears) Taylor or anyone else in the community being the arbiter of morality," Anderson said.

But Taylor said that to allow high school students "a totally unedited, uncensored review" is creating an unrealistic situation that doesn't exist anywhere in the real world of publishing and "to defend it on the grounds of free speech is ridiculous."

While the editorial policy of the student magazine is still being formulated, so too, is the school district's budget for 1995-96.

"No funding has been pulled specifically from Imprints," said Herrmann. "But we are making significant budget reductions in the building as a result of the (failed Feb. 7 "gap") millage and not as a result of any other issue."

Anderson said the site-based budgeting team at South is looking at all aspects of funding to the high school, including funding of Imprints, but he saw no need for the school board to adopt a new policy on the matter.

"We ultimately approve the budget," he said. "That's our major responsibility. In this case, we will rely heavily on the administration's recommendation."

North high school's distance learning interactive TV lab with the South high instructional TV lab.

- Completing the installation of a wide area network for digital sharing programs, student information and on-line data.
- Installing necessary cabling in schools to support new technology equipment.

Included in the plan is the requirement for ongoing evaluation, a plan that has yet to be developed, that would measure whether learning goals were accomplished, judge the worth of specific electronic tools and provide assistance in improving the implementation of the plan.

In 1990, the school district's strategic planning team developed a set of objectives on establishing electronic tools for Shine recommended the board split the "gap" millage request into two questions: 6.8303 mills for five years for operating expenses; and 1.3255 mills for five years to be earmarked for technology improvements.

Additionally, Shine drafted a five-year technology plan to support the millage request and asked the board to approve that plan before voting to place the pair of millage requests on the June 12 ballot.

Taylor said the technology plan as presented by Shine did not provide enough dollars for hardware and too much money was budgeted for software. He also questioned the adequacy of having only four or five computer work stations in each classroom.

He voted against both millage requests because, if approved by voters, they would last for five years. Taylor said he wanted to see three-year millage requests placed on the ballot.

"By going for five years you are disenfranchising by 67 percent the residents' voting rights," Taylor said.

"I find your logic convoluted," Anderson replied.

Following additional discussion, trustee Frank Sladen suggested the board was forgetting its true purpose and instead was "playing politics."

In addition, two members of the audience chastised Taylor for voting against the millage proposals and one man accused Anderson of violating parliamentary procedure.

learning.

In 1993, the school system sought the services of an outside consultant to conduct a systemwide audit. From that came a July 1993 report by Greiner Associates, a Grand Rapids-based architectural firm. The study cost the district $8,000.

Engineers from Greiner spent four months studying Grosse Pointe South High School, its electrical system, communications equipment and classroom usage. Greiner's study outlined a plan for updating the school's infrastructure — a total package for wiring, fiber optics cable, updating electrical wiring and installing computer equipment. The cost: $26.7 million.

At the time, the school board discussed the possibility of paying for the project with a bond issue. When the public library separated from the school system last summer, the district retained $2.4 million in library revenues that administrators suggested be used for technological improvement rather than floating bonds to pay for the equipment.

In 1994, an ad hoc technology committee developed a five-year plan that cut Greiner Associates' plan in half.

MACOMB COUNTY PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION MILLAGE PROPOSAL

Shall the limitation on the amount of taxes which may be imposed in Macomb County be increased by 33 cents ($0.33) per thousand dollars ($1,000) (0.33 mill) of the taxable value on all taxable property in the County for a period of three years, 1995 to 1997, inclusive, for the purpose of making contributions in aid of the Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation (SMART) and its purposes for the elderly, handicapped and general public in Macomb County. ## Woods resident not happy with 'above the cap' tax increase

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Proving once again that when it comes to taxes nothing is simple, the Michigan tax tribunal will have to decide whether a change in home classification justifies an increase in the taxable value of the home greater than the 2.6 percent cap imposed by law.

The dispute arose when Grosse Pointe Woods resident Robert Schneider discovered that the taxable value of his home in the northeast corner of the Woods increased by 8.5 percent since last year, an amount much greater than the 2.6 percent allowable under state law.

Unhappy with this increase, Schneider went to the Woods' tax tribunal and asked for relief, which he did not get. The reason, said city assessor Bill Knapp, is that Schneider's home along with almost 20 others in the Woods was reclassified.

"The state Constitution calls for uniformity in assessments," said Knapp. "For the past couple of years, we've been rechecking the assessments of homes in the city. Recently we completed a review of 285 homes in the northeast corner of the city. These homes were built by four companies in the 1960s."

Most of the homes in the area had a classification higher than Schneider's, Knapp said. The higher the classification, the higher the home assessment.

The city over the years had received a number of complaints from residents who said that the assessments of some of their neighbors were lower than theirs.

"We did a review and found out that they were right," Knapp said. "So we changed the classification of about 20 homes in the northeast part of town. That's why those residents saw the taxable value of their homes increase more than the 2.6 percent allowed by law."

Knapp said that several residents complained, but when the situation was explained to them, they seemed to accept it. "No one likes to pay higher taxes, but for the most part they did accept the situation," said Knapp.

Schneider was not one of those residents. He contacted state officials and said that he's going to appeal the local tax tribunal's decision.

"This is only a gimmick to exceed the tax cap," said Schneider. "Proposal A is very clear on this issue and the tax cap must strictly apply."

Roland Anderson of the state treasury department said the issue boils down to whether a change in a home's classification allows a city to raise the taxable value of a home more than the law would normally allow.

"That decision will have to be made by the state tax tribunal," said Anderson. "It's a decision that will have to be decided on the exact particulars of the case, so I feel that I can't comment on whether the city's action will stand, but it is an interesting question."

The state tax tribunal will meet during the summer. A decision from the tribunal can take several months, said Anderson.

Mayors' Prayer Breakfast to feature Richard Carver

Richard E. Carver, president of MST America, will be the guest speaker at the ninth annual Mayors' Prayer Breakfast at 7:45 a.m. Friday, May 5, in the main ballroom of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

In addition to his current position with MST America — a consulting firm representing such diverse clients as Zeppelin, Hewlett Packard, Zollern, and the German State of the Saarland — Carver also owns and serves as chairman of the Carver Lumber Co. in Peoria, Illinois.

In 1984, Carver, a colonel in the U.S. Air Force reserve, was appointed by President Reagan to serve as an Assistant Secretary of the Air Force. During that same time period, he served as president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, a director of the National League of Cities, a member of the President's Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, and president of the National Conference of Republican Mayors. In 1982 he was appointed to the president's commission on housing and in that capacity served as chairman of the Federal Housing Programs Committee.

In conjunction with the U.S. Conference of Mayors, Carver and his wife, Judith, edited "One Day USA," a book of photographs depicting life in America's cities.

The breakfast, which annually attracts more than 500 people, celebrates the National Day of Prayer as proclaimed by the president. It also recognizes the role that prayer has played in the lives of individual Americans, as well as the nation as a whole. This year's breakfast will be hosted by John Huettmann III, village president of Grosse Pointe Shores.

"The pressures and demands on our lives are increasing at an alarming rate and it is wonderful to have an annual event like the Mayors' Prayer Breakfast to give us the opportunity to pause and reflect," Huettmann said.

Richard Carver fast to give us the opportunity to pause and reflect," Huettmann said.

"It is especially gratifying to be a part of what is now a nine-year tradition that brings all of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods together to reflect on the role prayer has played in not only shaping the quality of our individual lives but that of our respective communities as well."

The mayors from the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods, who make up the planning committee are: Gregg Berndt, Grosse Pointe Farms; John Huettmann, Grosse Pointe Shores; James R. Haley, Harper Woods; Palmer T. Heenan, Grosse Pointe Park; Robert E. Novitke, Grosse Pointe Woods; and Susan Wheeler, City of Grosse Pointe. In addition to the regular program, a memorial tribute to the late Gerald C. Schroeder, former village president of Grosse Pointe Shores, is planned.

Tickets for the breakfast are $15 and are available at the Harper Woods or Grosse Pointe municipal offices. For more information, contact Susan Graham at (313) 396-4200 or Joseph Gualtieri at (313) 396-4300.

Woods begins budget talks, pledges to hold line on property taxes

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

If all goes well with the budget planning process, Grosse Pointe Woods residents will not see an increase in local property taxes.

"It's our goal to hold the line with city property taxes," said

Woods finance committee chairman Peter Gilezan. "Whatever happens when we determine our spending priorities for the year, we want to make sure we don't have to raise taxes."

The summer tax bill for 1994, which contained the city's local property tax, was 11.8 mills, said a spokeswoman for the comptroller's office.

Last year the city's general fund budget was $8.7 million. Gilezan said that the finance committee will not be able to estimate what this year's budget will be until the council establishes spending priorities and until the committee determines what several recently signed contracts will cost the city.

"We also have to find out what our medical costs will be," Gilezan said. "That changes from year to year, and is hard to estimate."

The city council is planning to meet several times before the end of the month to discuss the budget, said Gilezan. The difficulty is in determining spending priorities.

Does the city spend more on sewer repairs or road repairs? Does the city dip into the cable fund, or should the city make improvements to city-owned buildings? Gilezan said these are the priorities the council must determine in the next couple of weeks.

"We'll be looking at the maintenance of major streets, local streets, the cost of municipal improvements and possible capital equipment purchases," said Gilezan. "How much revenue is available after we determine our fixed costs will determine what we can do in these categories."

The city administration is working on a 10-year road plan so that the council can better plan for road improvements. It will allow city officials "to avoid the peaks and valleys that come with planning a year-to-year basis," Gilezan said.

The council will meet to discuss the budget after the regular council session on April 17. The council will meet again April 18 and April 24.

"These meetings should allow us to iron everything out and set our priorities," Gilezan said. "We should have a budget by the end of the month."

MS Walk 1995 through the Pointes mapped out

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

With just a few weeks to go, the route of the 1995 Multiple Sclerosis Walk has been finalized.

Grosse Pointe Woods approved some modifications to the MS walk at its last council meeting in March. The walk will still begin and end at Grosse Pointe North High School.

"We needed to change parts of the walk route to accommodate length and rest stops," said walk campaign manager Mollie Conway.

The walk is scheduled to begin in the morning on Sunday, April 23, Conway said. The length of the walk route is 12.5 miles, or 20 kilometers.

Walkers will begin at North High School. The first rest stop is at Montieth School, about 2.6 miles away. Walkers will then head to Kerby school, which is 4.6 miles from the starting point.

Lunch will be served at Grosse Pointe South High School at the 7.1 mile point. Walkers will then travel along Maumee Road to Lakeland. They will take a left on Lakeland and proceed to Lake Shore Drive. Their next rest stop, at the 8.6 mile point, is the Grosse Pointe Academy.

Walkers will walk down Lakeshore to the Grosse Pointe Village building. When they reach the Shores stop, they will have walked 11.7 miles. They will then proceed up Vernier to North, completing the 12.5 mile walk.

The walk will take participants through four of the five Grosse Pointes. For information on participating, call 810-350-0020, ext. 218.

Social Security an independent agency

As of March 31, the Social Security Administration (SSA) became an independent agency, separate from the Department of Health and Human Services, which has been its home base since 1953.

The change is expected to provide a new level of recognition to SSA and to all those who receive Social Security benefits and support the system through their payroll contributions, officials stated.

Under the 1994 Social Security Independence and Program Improvement Act transferring the agency, SSA retains the responsibility for administering the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance programs (OASDI) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. SSA will also continue to assist in administering the Medicare and Black Lung programs.

Shopping for the Best CD Rates? Don't Overlook Brokerage Firms.

Many people check out a number of banks to find the best rates before they invest in a CD. But all too often they overlook brokerage firms. Chances are, that's because most people associate short-term assets like CDs with banks, and tend to think of brokerage firms only in terms of long-term investments like stocks and bonds. In many cases, however, a brokerage firm can offer you a better deal.

Large brokerage houses usually buy blocks of CDs from banks all over the country. These CDs are broken up into smaller pieces and resold to individual investors. Often the rates are higher — by as much as two full percentage points — than those available at your local bank. Brokered CDs carry the same FDIC insurance of up to $100,000 per depositor per institution on the principal and interest because they originated at banks.

Brokered CDs can offer you additional benefits beyond higher rates. For instance, many brokerage firms maintain a secondary market in the CDs they sell, which means you may be able to redeem your investment prior to maturity without substantial interest penalties. Additionally, brokerage firms often offer a wider variety of CDs than the typical fixed-rate CDs offered by banks. For instance, zero coupon CDs are particularly attractive for tax-advantaged accounts, such as IRAs. These CDs are purchased at deeply discounted dollar prices and all accrued interest is continuously compounded throughout the life of the CD. When the CD matures, you receive the full face value of the certificate.

If you have determined that CDs are the appropriate investments for your financial goals, be sure to put in a call to your broker when shopping for the best rates.

Five Ways to Get at the Hidden Tax

A home is the largest financial investment most people ever make. It's also the source of some of the best tax benefits around today — if you know how to take advantage of them.

1 Buy Your Own Home.

If you're still renting, you're missing out on one of the greatest tax deductions still available. When you purchase a home, your mortgage interest (including up-front points) as well as property taxes are eligible for deduction. In effect, Uncle Sam will help you purchase your home by reducing your taxes to help pay for it.

2 Use Tax-Deductible Credit

Once you own a home, you can take advantage of another potential tax benefit by borrowing against your home equity. Home equity credit may get you the funds you need at a lower rate than most other personal loans, plus you may be able to deduct up to 100% of your interest expense. If you already have auto loans, tuition loans, unsecured personal loans, credit card balances, and other consumer debt, it may be smart to use a home equity loan to pay them off. You could gain tax deductions for your interest expenses and the convenience of one monthly payment. Consult your tax advisor first. Interest payments may not be deductible for all taxpayers.

3 Consider an interest-only mortgage

It may be worthwhile to look beyond conventional mortgages to an innovative mortgage that allows interest-only payments for the first several years. This type of loan can maximize your potential tax deductibility, liquidity and flexibility because your entire mortgage payment is potentially deductible. Additionally, since you're making interest-only payments, your mortgage payments are much lower, allowing you to invest the money you otherwise would have paid toward principal.

4 Second home mortgage deductions

A vacation getaway of your own may be more practical than you think. If you use your second home more than 15 days a year — or more than 10% of the time it is rented out — you can deduct your mortgage interest up to the maximum limits for a personal residence. If you rent the home for at least 15 days in any year, you can also use rental expenses to offset your rental income. You may also be able to use the equity in your second home as a source of low-cost, potentially tax-deductible credit, as mentioned in # 2.

5 Purchase or refinance with 100% home financing

Even if you can afford the down payment, 100% home financing may offer you the most financial advantages. If you plan to liquidate any assets to make that down payment, finding a lender who offers 100% financing could be a better idea. Remember that liquidating assets can make you liable for capital gains tax and disrupt your carefully planned investment program. Innovative financing that lets you borrow 100% of your new home's purchase price — or 100% of your home's appraised value if you're refinancing — can help you avoid this disruption and any potential capital gains taxation.

Depending on your unique financial situation, some or all of these home tax strategies may work for you. To make sure you're getting the maximum tax advantage from your home, consult your tax advisor and a financial consultant who is familiar with the varied programs and features available in today's home financing market.

HEALTH WATCH

After you check this box, check with your family.

A family decision
If you're like many people, you've thought about donating your organs when you die. And you've probably checked the appropriate boxes on the back of your driver's license. But you need to take one more step to ensure that your wishes will be carried out. You need to tell your family.

If you are survived by your parents, your spouse or your children, they can override your decision to become an organ donor. But if you tell them your wishes, they will most likely honor them. It may be a sensitive subject to discuss, but it's an important one.

The gift of life
Currently, 25,000 people are waiting to receive new organs including kidneys, pancreas, hearts and livers. By putting an organ donor sticker on the back of your driver's license and discussing it with your family, you'll be doing something very important. You may be saving someone's life.

A simple request
This information was provided by the Transplant Specialty Center at St. John Hospital and Medical Center. To receive an organ donor card, call 1-800-237-5646. Or stop by our lobby, April 16-22, when transplant recipients will be handing out donor cards and information.

Income taxes: It seems like they've always been around

Whether you're wrestling with a 1040, IT-40PNR, or CC-40, the annual ritual of paying taxes is no picnic. Nor is it new. Even folks from the second century had tax deadlines to meet.

Sheets of papyrus and pottery shards held in the University of Michigan's Papyrus Collection reveal a number of similarities between taxes then and taxes now.

Current tax forms can be filed via the mails or computer, but in ancient Egypt the computer was the tax roll. One such roll held in the U-M collection is 106 feet long and lists 600 adult males who paid taxes during an 11-month period of one tax year. The official tax collector had agents working in villages, going house-to-house collecting what was due on a vast array of taxes, including capital, trade, and land.

When confronted by the collector, the head of the household would hand over the money required, and, in return, would get a receipt on the spot. However, says Traianos Gagos, curator of the U-M collection, that receipt was often written on a pottery shard. The collector would just reach into the street, pick up one of many broken pottery pieces and write the payer a receipt.

"There were cases," Gagos said, "where people either didn't pay or were in arrears, leading to their flight from the countryside to lose themselves in the more populous city of Alexandria." Emperors could and did decree that people not move from city to city or even neighborhood to neighborhood, thereby assuring accurate tax collection.

The tax agents returned to their headquarters each day to enter the collections into what amounted to a daybook. Taxes in ancient Egypt could be paid in cash or "in kind" depending on what was being taxed.

As in today's tax program, there were exemptions to the general tax regulations. Some classes of people were exempt from paying certain taxes. No Roman citizen or physician had to pay a capital tax.

Keeping track of who lived where and how many in a household were to be taxed depended on the census report, a count taken every 14 years by reporters going house-to-house. If someone listed on the census was no longer a part of that household when the tax collector knocked, the agent came back to investigate, inquiring about death reports or new addresses.

"At that time," Gagos said, "taxes were based on the whole community and then broken down as to what each family and then each individual owed. Citizens 14 to 62 years old were expected to pay their share of the assessed tax." Family members had to pay for a missing citizen or furnish birth, death, or any other records that would lead the collector to the person trying to evade paying his share. The census was a big help in these instances, Gagos said.

Village Kroger closes one week for makeover

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Because they couldn't make the Kroger in the Village bigger, company executives have decided to make it better.

"We'll be closing our store in the Village at 6 p.m. Friday, April 14," said company spokesman Edward Nakfoor. "We'll reopen at 8 a.m. Saturday, April 22."

The Village Kroger is being turned into a "premier" store, Nakfoor said. The company has opened a number of premier stores in places like Bloomfield Hills.

The advantage of a premier store is that it allows Kroger to cater to the more communities without building new stores, said Nakfoor. The Village Kroger has about 20,000 square feet of floor space, which was the average size of a supermarket when it was built over 30 years ago.

Since that time, trends in the grocery business have changed. Supermarkets have gotten a lot bigger. A supermarket being built today might have about 45,000 square feet of floor space, said Nakfoor.

"There are a number of communities like Grosse Pointe that have Kroger stores," Nakfoor said. "These stores have been in the community for a long time, but by today's standards the stores are small. Since Kroger can't make them bigger, Kroger decided to make them better."

Making them better includes remodeling the Village Kroger's interior, and stocking the store with more upscale items. For example, the store will carry 25 kinds of mushrooms, imported cheeses and an improved selection of beers and wines. Premier means higher quality meats for sale, and fresh bread, said Nakfoor.

The changeover from a regular store to a premier store will be completed in June. Kroger has no plans to remodel its store at the corner of Mack and Moross, said Nakfoor.

Richard Kane, manager of a "premier" Kroger in Bloomfield Hills, shows off the store's bread baking facility, one of the on-site services that mark the difference between a regular Kroger and a premier store. Kroger will be closing its Village store for a week beginning on Saturday to convert it into a premier store.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

By Shirley A. McShane

Pop go the windows

Four incidents of shattered car windows were reported in Grosse Pointe Woods on April 9.

The first incident occurred at 2:28 a.m. when a Woods police officer on patrol found a newly shattered rear window on a parked car in the area of Goethe and Hampton.

Then at 2:50 a.m. a resident who lives in the 800 block of Hampton heard the sound of glass shattering and tires squealing. Upon further investigation, the resident found his car window smashed.

At 3:24 a.m., in the area of Goethe and Hampton, police officers searched the area for possible suspects after the owner of a damaged car reported seeing a gray four-door vehicle containing three men shortly after his car window was shattered.

At 4:57 a.m. the window of a car parked in the area of Marter and Roslyn was shattered. In all incidents, it appears a BB gun was used. Police are investigating.

Lunch on the run?

Employees of a grocery store on Mack in Grosse Pointe Farms tried unsuccessfully on April 7 to capture a man in a red plaid shirt who attempted to steal several food items.

Store workers saw the man take from store shelves and conceal in his clothing a package of frozen french fries, a block of cheese and a bag of bagels. When employees confronted the man, he dropped the food and fled from the store.

School fight turns serious

A 14-year-old Brownell Middle School student involved in a fight on school grounds April 6 was listed in stable condition earlier this week at St. John Hospital.

The boy suffered a ruptured spleen after he and another 14-year-old scuffled in the hallway outside the band room at the middle school in Grosse Pointe Farms.

The injured boy's parents told Farms police they would like to press charges against the other teen. Police were investigating the incident at press time and could not comment.

The incident began around 2 p.m. when one of the boys was asked to leave class for acting in a disruptive manner. The other boy apparently made a comment to the ejected student and words were exchanged.

After class, the ejected student and the other boy exchanged more words and began fighting. Witness statements vary. Some students told police that the injured boy did not fight back; others said he did.

Teachers broke up the fight and the boys were sent home.

Shortly after arriving home, the injured boy became ill and his mother took him to the emergency room at St. John, where he was admitted to the pediatric intensive care unit. The other boy involved was suspended from school for three days.

POOR SUBSTITUTES

Owners of older cars who seek quick fixes for their cars' leaky air-conditioning units should resist the temptation to recharge their AC systems with dangerous substitute refrigerants. As environmental regulations continue to restrict and eventually phase out the supply of R-12 (Freon), newer cars have converted to the use of the environmentally friendly refrigerant known as R-134a. The new refrigerant cannot be substituted for the old; however, a number of inexpensive R-12 substitutes have cropped up which offer themselves as replacements to the increasingly scarce R-12. The fact is that leaky AC systems filled with these poor substitutes can leak into the engine or passenger compartment and explode. At the very least, R-12 substitutes will contaminate the servicing garage's R-12 recapturing tanks.

Although it can be pricey, repairing your air-conditioning properly will ensure your safety and save aggravation later on. At RINKE TOYOTA, we deliver what you need—automotive excellence. We offer one of the most modern and complete service and parts departments in the area to ensure you minimum delay when you bring your car to us for repair. Give us a call at 758-2000, or stop in and see us at 25420 Van Dyke. Happy Easter!

Hint: It takes a qualified auto technician to find and seal a leak in an older car's AC system, and then recharge it with R-12.

Dodge Avenger: Looks hot, but it's quite civilized

The Dodge Avenger is basically a sheep in wolf's clothing, a nice boy dressed up like a bad boy. Intended to fill the gap left by retirement of the Dodge Daytona, the new Dodge Avenger does that more than adequately.

It looks like it should also be in the line of descent of the Dodge Charger and Challenger, but it is not. It may look like an apprentice high-performance Mustang, or Chevrolet Camaro, but it has no such pretensions.

It is a very pleasant car, but it is not a muscle car. Nor, of course, was the Daytona. But with the Dodge Avenger, Chrysler Corp. seems to have officially abandoned the pony-car wars in favor of a new and growing market segment of cars that look hot and brutal but are, in fact, quite civilized. It is a compromise between dreams of power and adult reality.

"The sport coupe market as it stands today is generally one based on trade-offs," said Martin R. Levine, Dodge Division general manager. "Buyers could get a sporty car and sacrifice roominess and comfort, or they could get a roomier car but lose performance, handling and style."

"But when it comes to Avenger, compromise has been replaced by balance — the balance of spirited driving, yet a comfortable and safe car, the balance of high style, yet priced affordably, and the balance of an expressive design without giving up the versatility of a roomy interior."

Once you get past the idea that this very sharply and aggressively styled Avenger is an answer to the Mustang GTs, Camaro Z28s and Firebird Formula Trans Ams, you can settle down and enjoy a very pleasant car that does everything pretty well.

This so-called "sport coupe" market which has emerged recently as distinguished from sport coupe descendants of the muscle car heritage is viewed by Chrysler Corp. and many other makers as a major factor. The concept of the car that looks like an all-out, tire-screaming sports car or muscle high initial price, the heavy fuel consumption and the high insurance rates associated with such vehicles.

"This is a segment of the prisingly spacious. Rear passengers have a much less claustrophobic experience than might be expected in a sport coupe.

The Avenger comes in just two models. The base model is equipped with Chrysler's 140-hp double-overhead-cam 2.0-liter four-cylinder engine, mated to a five-speed manual or a four-speed automatic. The upscale Avenger ES comes with stiffer suspension, alloy wheels, larger tires, rear anti-roll bar, a rear spoiler and a new Mitsubishi-built 155-hp single-overhead-cam 24-valve 2.5-liter V-6 with a four-speed automatic transmission. Performance does

The Avenger ES is a car that you will want to take on a trip, a pleasant touring car with precise steering, smooth and quiet ride, responsive drivetrain and very good looks. EPA fuel economy ratings are 22/32 manual, 22/31 automatic.

"We created the Avenger with a new set of customers in mind," said Joe Caddell, general products manager of Chrysler's small car platform team. "We believe that there is a sizable market of buyers that want roominess and comfort but simply aren't willing to give up the sporty image and feel. These buyers are typically single or couples not in the child-raising lifestyle."

If there is such a market, and there is evidence that there is, the Avenger has it targeted. I am amazed at the strong sales of two-door sports/utilities and at the success of the luxury "personal" coupes, so there are obviously many who like the looks of two-door vehicles.

Dodge Avenger is designed to appeal to an emerging market which wants sedan comfort in a sports coupe.

car was perhaps heralded by the Mazda Miata and its conscious imitating of the spirit of the British sports car of the early '50s, but with modern Japanese amenities — like a comfortable ride, easy handling and a reliable engine.

Dodge is betting that there are a lot of buyers who want the style and image of a high-performance car without the market where owners want their cars to define who they are," Levine said. "They want something sporty, but more sophisticated than the traditional 'muscle car' — and they don't want or need a family sedan. They want to be noticed."

The Avenger gets noticed. Its attractive, swoopy lines immediately mark the owner as a person up with the latest automotive fashions. Helping in this are a number of unusual finishes, including the "dusty gold" of our Avenger SE test vehicle, a finish which changes with the angle and amount of light.

It looks more expensive than its prices, which start at $13,341 for the standard model and $17,191 for the SE.

The two-door Avenger is 187.2 inches long and 68.5 inches wide, dimensions that put it between the Acura Integra three-door and the Ford Thunderbird coupes. Inside is room for five passengers, and the Avenger's back seat is sur-not quite match the car's outstanding styling, but is spirited and more than adequate.

The Avenger shares a number of major components with the Mitsubishi Galant-based Eagle Talon and Mitsubishi Eclipse coupes, including the same windshield, doors, instrument panel and controls.

The Avenger rides on a four-wheel, fully independent double wishbone suspension, which is similar to that of the Talon and Eclipse. The suspension keeps body motion in tight control, while producing a very smooth and comfortable ride. Steering is quick and precise. The ES's standard four-wheel disc brakes with anti-lock control (base models come with rear drums, anti-lock optional) complete the driver's sense of full control.

Front seats are high in the Avenger, giving the driver excellent visibility, but the rather low position of the steering wheel makes getting in and out a little tight. The wheel can be adjusted downward, but not up.

Two things to remember while driving a motorcycle

At the first hint of spring and dry roads, motorcyclists uncover their bikes and hit the road. Motorcycles are fun, but can be a dangerous pastime. With their rapid rates of acceleration and the fact that they are less visible than passenger vehicles, safety is an important issue.

Two major safety factors to consider while operating a motorcycle are helmets and driving while intoxicated. In 1992, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) found that motorcycle operators involved in fatal crashes had higher intoxication rates than any other type of motor vehicle driver. Of the 1,016 single vehicle motorcycle fatalities in 1992, over half (52.4 percent) were intoxicated.

During a crash, helmets are the only protection a motorcyclist has to prevent serious injury. NHTSA estimated in 1993 that motorcycle helmets reduced the likelihood of a fatality by 29 percent in a crash.

MS benefit takes a hike through Grosse Pointes

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Some 300,000 people in 400 cities nationwide will walk together Saturday and Sunday, April 22 and 23, to support approximately 350,000 people with multiple sclerosis.

One of nine MS Walks planned in Michigan will wind through four of the five Grosse Pointes. Other walks will be held in Birmingham, Dearborn and Monroe. About 8,000 people are expected to participate in Michigan's walks.

The 12.5-mile (20K) Grosse Pointe route begins and ends at Grosse Pointe North High School and includes rest stops every few miles and lunch at the 7.1-mile point, which is Grosse Pointe South High School.

Participants — walkers and pledgers and volunteers — will raise funds for the Michigan chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society by getting friends, co-workers and family members to pledge money for each mile he or she completes. Proceeds will be used for research, support groups and educational programs sponsored by the MS Society.

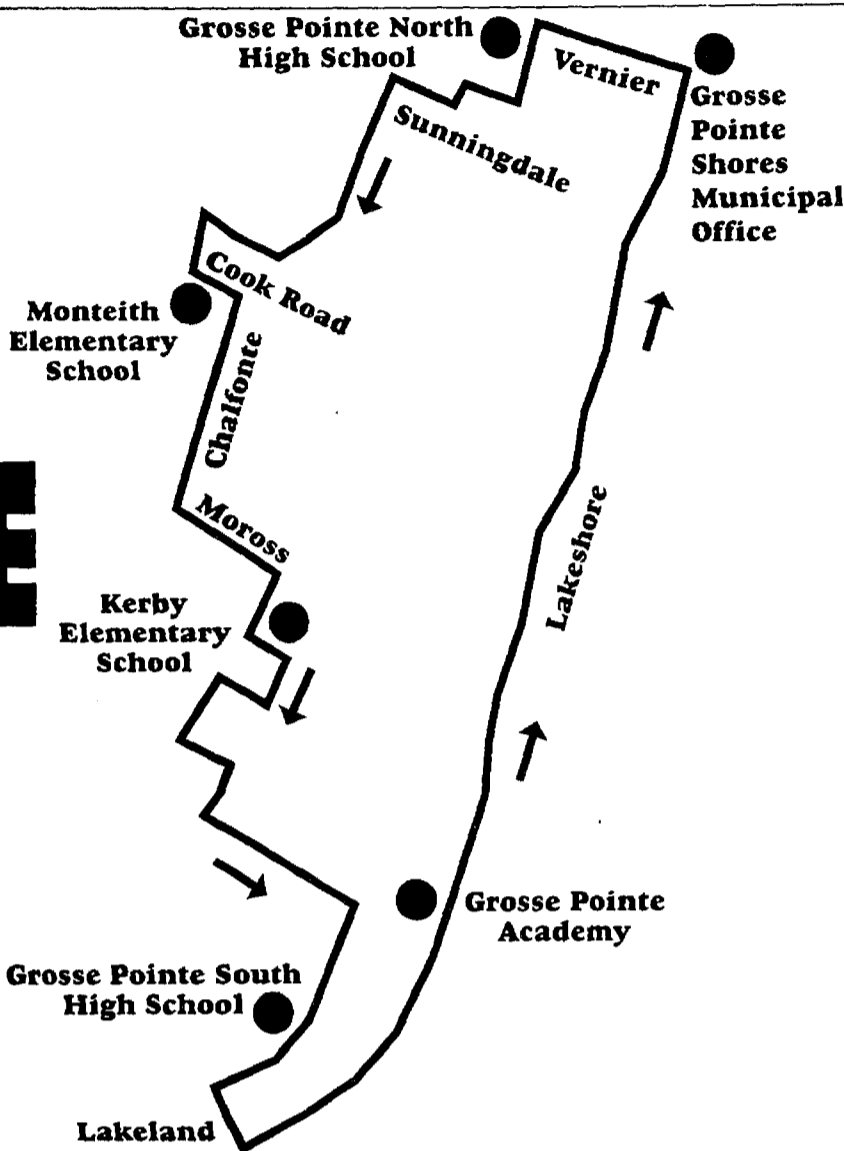

"Everybody who walks in the MS Walk is inherently a nice person," said Grosse Pointer John Francis, who has multiple sclerosis.

"With all the negative publicity and all the negative stories going on in this world, it's great to see people like this — people helping people."

Francis will participate in the walk by helping pass out refreshments at the Vernier-Jefferson intersection.

Multiple sclerosis is a disease of the central nervous system — specifically the brain and spinal cord. It is most often diagnosed in young men and women between 20 and 40 years old. The chronic disease is unpredictable in its progress and severity. Gradually, MS erodes the control a person has over his or her own body. Symptoms vary from person to person and range from numbness to paralysis and blindness.

The cause, treatment and cure for MS are elusive. The National Multiple Sclerosis Society, which was founded in 1946, is a national voluntary health agency that supports scientific research into MS.

New this year is a chance for walkers who don't know someone with MS to dedicate their efforts to a specific person. Solemate will match a walker with someone who has MS. If the Solemates agree, the MS Society will arrange for them to talk or to meet.

The Michigan chapter of the MS Society expects to raise $900,000 from the 1995 walk.

For information about walking, pledging or volunteering, call (800) 247-7382. To sign up to be a Solemate, ask for ext. 219.

Easter 1995

By the Rev. Bryant W. Dennison Jr.
Christ Church Grosse Pointe

The sun is shining more. The hard, cold ground is beginning to soften up and the flowers are starting to push up through it. Even when we had a cold snap a couple of weeks ago, we knew that it would not last.

Spring is here. Nothing can stop it. Since Easter always comes in the spring, and since Easter is also about new life, it is easy for us to think of spring and Easter together. For centuries, hymns, prayers and sermons have stressed the similarity between the two.

A few years ago, Martin Marty wrote a wonderful Easter sermon cautioning Christians about relying too heavily on this comparison. He said that we, who live in the northern hemisphere, have it too easy. It is no stretch for our imaginations, our hearts, or our minds to see and understand a new life that comes out of death. We see it all around us. It is happening every day. All we have to do is look outside.

Marty said that Christians in the southern hemisphere have to work harder at understanding Easter. They do not have nature's reminders all around them. They have to experience Easter as they get ready for winter — without the flowers and green grass and lengthening days.

The challenge for us is that we may only see Easter as another natural phenomenon, to be expected and anticipated with the certainty of warmer weather. The whole point of the Gospel witness is that Easter was not expected.

The natural thing was death. The crucifixion of Jesus was what happens in the normal course of events. His death was the result of the actions of people making ordinary, everyday decisions.

Easter was unnatural. Easter was different. Easter was out of the ordinary. The resurrection of Jesus was the action of a God for whom death is not the last word. The resurrection of Jesus was the action of a God who would not let the power of the ordinary and everyday decisions and actions of people have the final say.

The resurrection of Jesus was the action of a God who is committed to life, to new life, to new life in us.

Rabbi Sherwin Wine will offer three-part seminar

The Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church will sponsor a lecture series by Rabbi Sherwin Wine Thursdays, April 20 and 27, and May 4. Wine's topic will be "Three Revolutions in the Making."

First, will be the Feminist Revolution. One of the most profound changes in contemporary society is the change in the status, work and self image of women. The family, industry and politics have been transformed by this revolution. But feminism has yielded many problems, as well as opportunities. What does the future hold for the feminist agenda?

Second will be the Youth Revolution. Ever since the Vietnam War the youth rebellion has been strong and persistent. Parents and teachers are still traumatized by the new enlightenment which many children feel and express. Youth are no longer willing to offer adults the reverence and respect of former years. What does this change mean for America and the world?

Three will be the Religious Revolution. Religion in the Western world is in turmoil. Assaulted by personal freedom, the consumer society and secularism, institutional religion is being transformed. From New Age to fundamentalism, the options for the religious "consumer" are legion. The religion of the future will be very different from the establishment religion of today.

The fee for the series is $25 a person or $10 for one lecture. Wine has provided intellectual stimulation and inspiration to thousands of people in the metropolitan Detroit area over the last 30 years.

Wine is a native Detroit. He graduated from both University of Michigan and the Hebrew Union College. In 1963, he founded the Birmingham Temple in suburban Detroit, the first congregation of Humanistic Judaism.

Humanistic Judaism is a fifth alternative in Jewish life, as distinct from Orthodox, Conservatism, Reform and Reconstructionism. Subsequent to starting his own synagogue, there are over 30 Humanistic congregations throughout the United States and over 10,000 Humanistic Jews throughout the world.

In 1976 he organized the Center for New Thinking, a public forum for the presentation of new ideas in the arts, science, politics, philosophy and religion.

Those interested may make a reservation ahead of time by calling the church, (313) 881-0420. Tickets will also be available at the door. There is lighted parking behind the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, 17150 Maumee.

Cheryl Hawker, Liz Gray and Jane Allen are "The Lovely Liebowitz Sisters" running at Detroit's Gem Theatre through May 28.

'Sisters' provides lots of '40s fun

By Ronald J. Bernas
Assistant Editor

Live from the Krakatoa Lounge in the Majestic Amazon Hotel in beautiful downtown Cleveland, on a summer evening in 1945, three zaftig sisters perform the greatest music of the era in a tribute to the boys overseas.

That's pretty much the gist of "The Lovely Liebowitz Sisters," which opened last week at Detroit's Gem Theatre. And if you don't want anything else, you'll be thoroughly entertained.

It's the kind of show tailor-made for the elegant intimacy of the Gem. And obviously the Gem staff knows it; "Sisters" is the latest in a series of musical revues the Gem has presented, including "The All Night Strut," "Forever Plaid" and "Beehive."

Where else can you hear "Bei Mir Bist du Schon," "Sing, Sing, Sing," "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy," a whole medley of polkas (including one with yodeled accompaniment) and "In the Mood."

The three sisters, Cheryl Hawker as the bossy Patty; Liz Gray as the dippy Maxine; and Jane Allen as the horny LaVonne, provide a lot of high energy musical numbers. John Tsafoyannis plays Yannis, the girls' agent and the Krakatoa Lounge's emcee.

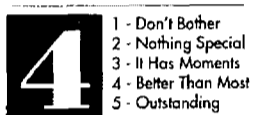

They sing, they bicker, they tell stories and, for the most part, charm. A lot of schtick between the sisters falls a bit flat and slows the show to a near crawl in the first act. The script also doesn't let us get to know or care about the sisters, and that's another of the show's faults. And Yannis, if truth be told, gets in the way. He has nailed down the character of a greasy emcee, but there's just too much of him. The audience doesn't need him telling it when to clap; in fact, the audience applauded spontaneously throughout the show.

The second act begins with a great tribute to all the Latin songs — "Temptation," "Perfidia," "Babalu" — that invaded America in the '40s and clips along nicely until the end, which includes a tribute to the boys overseas and the whole audience joining the sisters in "God Bless America."

A word to the shy, though. Unless you want to become part of the show, sit in the balcony. Not only do the sisters talk to specific people in the audience, there's a polka contest, a conga line and a

'Broadway Bound' hits the boards April 26

Grosse Pointe Theatre's 47th season continues with Neil Simon's comedy "Broadway Bound," directed by Barbara Bentley of the City of Grosse Pointe.

The show opens on Wednesday, April 26, and runs through Saturday, May 6, at Fries Auditorium in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms.

"Broadway Bound" is the third play in Simon's semi-autobiographical trilogy; the other two are "Brighton Beach Memoirs" and "Biloxi Blues." Through the eyes of his alter-ego, Eugene M. Jerome, Simon recalls his early days as a budding comedy writer with his older brother Stanley, and the trials and tribulations of family life in post-war Brooklyn.

Seats are available for most performances, including a Sunday matinee on April 30. Tickets may be purchased by calling (313) 881-4004, or by visiting the Grosse Pointe Theatre box office, 315 Fisher Road at Maumee, on Saturday mornings from 10 a.m. to noon. Tickets are $10, and may be charged to Master Card, Visa or Discover cards.

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial offers candlelight buffet dinners before most performances. For dinner reservations, call the War Memorial at (313) 881-7511.

Treehouse players hip-hop at War Memorial

The Treehouse Players will make a special appearance at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial to perform "Hip-Hop in the Treehouse" on Saturday, April 22. The day begins with a pizza lunch at 11 a.m. followed by the children's theater performance featuring the Treehouse Buddies, five friends from school who must complete a project about keeping peace.

The Treehouse Players are a Detroit-based professional children's theater dedicated to promoting non-violent conflict resolution through theatrical productions and workshops. The audience is asked to participate, encouraging the audience to expand its imaginative thinking. The show is appropriate for children 6 to 16. Tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for children. For more information, call (313) 881-7511.

'Circle of Friends' is an enchanting look at coming of age

By Marion Trainor
Special Writer

The sweet spirited "Circle of Friends" gently presents the coming-of-age stories of three Irish Catholic girls in the early 1950s.

We first meet the girls in a prelude that shows them making their first communion, a scene that delineates them as individuals.

Bennie's face is lit with excitement; an only child, she is the joy and center of her parents' lives. Eve, who is being raised by nuns after the death of her parents, is complacent and quiet. Nan, the prettiest of the three, makes the most of being the center of attention.

With that illuminating introduction, the film fast forwards 10 years. The girls, now young women, are anxious to escape the confines of their village and the rigid expectations of their parents and go off to the University of Dublin.

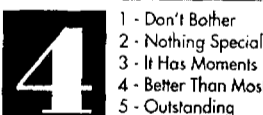

Chris O'Donnell and Minnie Driver are at the center of "Circle of Friends."

Goofy gets center stage in story of family respect

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

A young dog sits in a cornfield with the woman of his dreams when he suddenly begins to transform into the infamous sidekick, Goofy, complete with hee-yuck.

This is the opening scene in the latest animated movie from Disney, "A Goofy Movie."

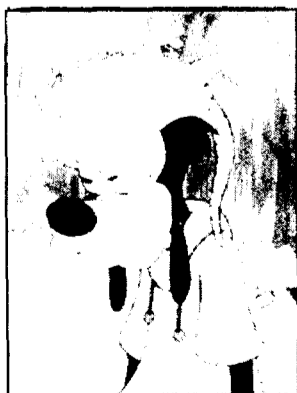

Mickey Mouse's supporting character for many years, Goofy finally gets his starring role. Coming to the screen with him for the first time is his teenage son, Max.

Max does not want to be like his dad. He's a bit of a misfit trying to win the heart of fellow teenager Roxanne.

The movie really centers on Max and is a coming-of-age piece similar to the far

Same old plot works thanks to star chemistry

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

"Bad Boys" is a buddy movie about two Miami cops chasing drug dealers.

Sound familiar?

Not only has it been done on the big screen before but on television as well. This time around it works, mainly due to the efforts of its two lead actors, television stars Will Smith and Martin Lawrence.

The pair play partners and buddies and have just completed their "career bust," as Smith puts it. Someone then breaks into their precinct's evidence locker and heists the large quantity of heroin they captured.

This movie takes off from the first credits. It is slick and fast-moving with an excellent original score capturing

Silverado Trail: It's the 'Other' Napa Valley

Visiting Andre van Der Heyden's vineyard and winery in California's Napa Valley is a bit like going to your great-grandma's farm — if she had one.

The entry drive is a bit cluttered. There are plants potted

By Cynthia Boal Janssens

in every kind of container. Cats roam freely. And Andre comes in to greet you from the field — a bit like grandpa, except with a thick Dutch accent.

"If you want to see a real down home winery, with no frills, then go to van Der Heyden's," we'd been advised by David Means, who knows much about such things. David, who sells wine bottling equipment, works as a volunteer on weekends at the Napa Valley Visitors' Center advising folks such as us on the ins-and-outs of the valley.

We had driven up from Sausalito on a Saturday and stopped at the center for maps. We told David that we'd like to visit small, out-of-the-way-but-interesting wineries, preferring to avoid the big showplaces such as Sterling, Beringer and Dom Chandon that draw crowds on weekends.

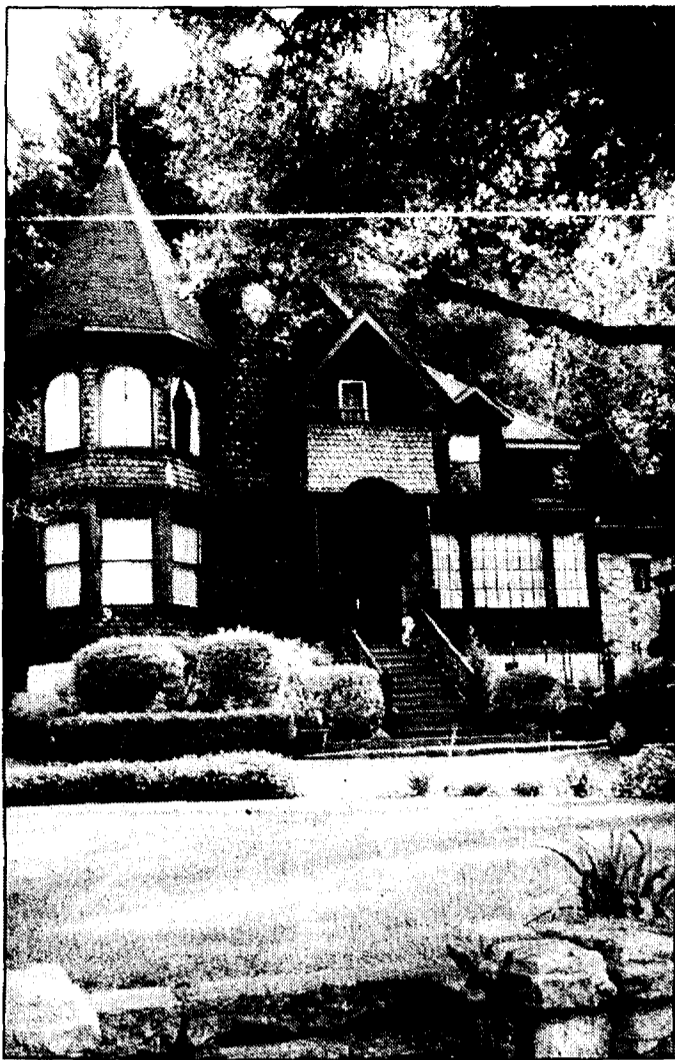

And so we were directed to the Silverado Trail — known locally as the "other" or the "quiet" Napa Valley. This is a road that parallels route 29 which is the main road that runs north-south through the valley. Van Der Heyden's was our first stop on this route.

"Andre runs a one-man operation," David had explained. "Chances are that if you visit during picking, you're likely to be put to work."

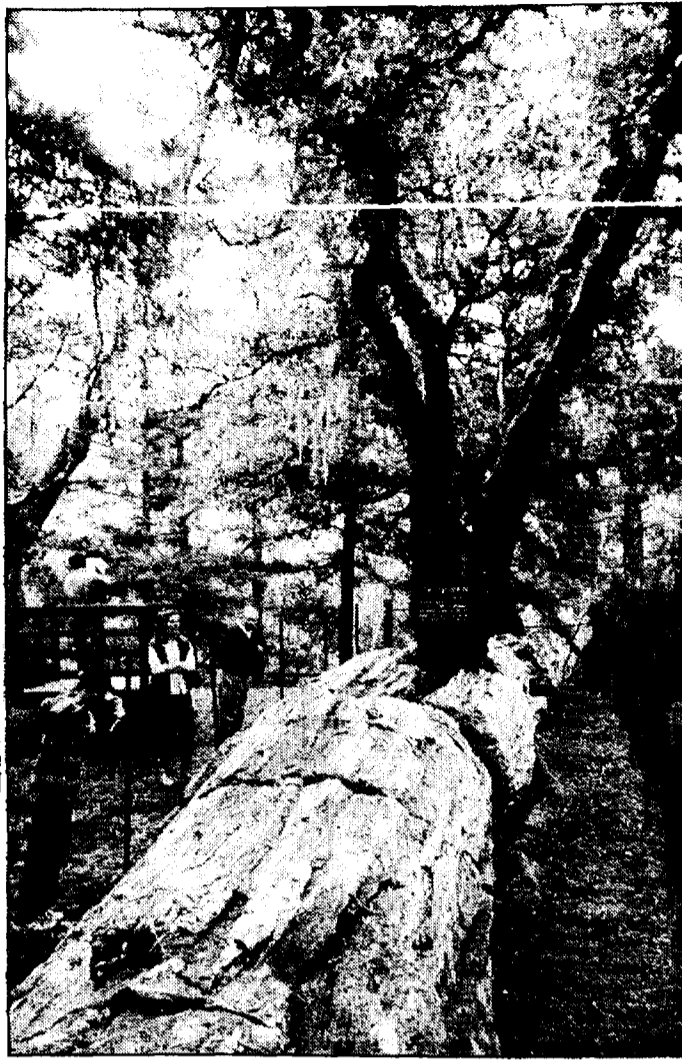

So as we drove down the road which reminded me so much of what a grandma's farm should look like, we were greeted by the colorful Andre who did indeed come in from the vineyard to welcome us into his tasting room, a small shack about 12-feet square. "Just sign in the book there," he directed. "Technically, I don't offer public tours so you are supposed to arrive by private invitation. Now you are all invited."

We tasted the three wines he offered while he told us the story of his coming to America from Holland some 25 years ago. His is a completely family-run operation and he described himself as the "owner, winemaker and janitor." He showed us the awards he had won to back up the quality of his wine.

From there we traveled a couple of miles farther to Goose

At left, the Glass Mountain Inn Bed and Breakfast in St. Helena. At right, a stop at the Petrified Forest shows the beauty of nature.

Cross Cellers, a completely different type of operation. Also very small, it was neat as a pin, everything in place. We were given a short tour of the grounds and our guide explained the wine-making process. We tasted some very excellent chardonnays and ended up leaving with a couple of bottles as well as a hat and T-shirt. We were impressed that Goose Cross will ship cases of its chardonnay to Michigan free and the fact that you can order items by E-mail (73534.520@compuserve.com).

We then deviated slightly off the Silverado Trail to visit the William Hill Winery. This is a large operation with a brand-new tasting room. Seven wines were offered, all complimentary. (Note: Traditionally, wine tastings were free, with the obvious intent that you purchase wines that you like. However, because of the heavy influx of tourists many of the more popular wineries are charging for tastings, although most will apply the fee toward a wine purchase. However, most of the smaller wineries do not charge and serious wine buffs can pick up passes for complimentary tastings at the aforementioned visitors' center.)

At ZD Wines, we encountered yet another brand-new tasting room. This facility also offers tours and cooking demonstrations. It charges $3 per tasting and you get to keep the glass.

I should mention that there really weren't crowds in the valley, possibly because of the negative publicity generated by the bad weather in Northern California. We found that most of the fields in Napa were fairly dry and that the vines were budding nicely. Most wine-growers were more concerned about a late frost than they were about rain. The scenery along the Silverado Trail was stunning, especially when the sun occasionally beamed through the cloud cover.

By now we were getting hungry and realized that we would have to deviate from the Silverado Trail to find a place to eat. We headed into Yountville for lunch then decided to locate the bed-and-breakfast we had booked for the night. The Glass Mountain Inn was back on the trail and we found it to be a rather new Victorian facility with five units. Ours was pleasant and had a deck with small hot tub, which we were unable to enjoy because of rain. The rate is about $150 a night, which reflects the higher prices that Napa Valley hostels can command. Book the private reserve suite, if you can (707-963-3512).

The last two wineries we visited on Saturday were Cuvaison and Dutch Henry. The latter is another tiny operation, owned by two families and operated by two men, both of whom were pouring samples in a makeshift tasting area. Here the recent flooding was more obvious: some of their fields were still submerged. Kendall Phelps explained that less than a week before the storage warehouse where we were standing had been flooded. He said they were forced to stay up all night at times so as to be prepared to move wine cases to higher storage areas if needed.

Cuvaison was a much more slick operation. They also charge $3 (keep the glass) for tastings and have a gift shop as well. We encountered more people here than at any other place. From there we headed into the funky little burg of Calistoga to take a look around. Our son and daughter-in-law were enchanted by the spas with their mud baths and massages.

Our dinner reservations for that evening had been made by our innkeeper and we thoroughly enjoyed a very good meal at Showley's at Miramonte in St. Helena (707-963-1200).

The next morning we enjoyed our full breakfast at the inn and decided to return to the Bay area by way of Sonoma Valley (although the kids were tempted to stay in Calistoga to try out the mud baths). We decided to make our last stop in Napa Valley at the Chateau Montelena, which was a personal favorite from our last visit to the valley over a dozen years ago.

We found it much as we remembered, a stone castle carved into a hillside overlooking a lake and elegant Chinese gardens. However, the interior of the chateau is under renovation and the tasting room is being moved from ground level to the top floor. In the meantime, tastings ($5, no glass) are being held in a trailer. Chateau Montelena wines are still remarkable and quite expensive. Note: The chateau's grounds are lovely for picnicking, however, reservations are required so they don't become overcrowded (707-942-5105).

Heading west to Sonoma Valley, we decided to take in a well-known tourist site, the Petrified Forest. Now a state historical landmark, this area remains a privately-owned commercial operation which is much as it was when it opened several decades ago. These huge preserved trees were first discovered in 1870. You walk through the "park" on your own and the admission fee is nominal ($3 for adults). It is located at 4100 Petrified Forest Road. A stop here should not take much more than an hour.

When we reached Sonoma Valley we decided to head north through the Russian River Valley with our goal the Ferrari-Carano winery outside of Healdsburg. (This was a sentimental choice: our newlywed son and daughter-in-law drank this wine on their wedding day.) We again traveled on back roads and here the damage from flooding was much more obvious. We observed many fields that were still under water.

My favorite stop on this route was the Dry Creek Winery which had a lovely tasting room and a friendly black lab. Tastings were free — "Hey, this isn't the Napa Valley" we were informed. We left here with a couple more bottles.

In general, it seemed that the wineries in Sonoma are much less ostentatious than those in Napa but many of the wines are quite superior. However, Ferrari-Carano is unique on all counts. Its wines have an excellent reputation, but the facility is certainly ostentatious. The company has built an Italian renaissance mansion out in the middle of nowhere with extensive gardens. It offers tours and tastings ($2.50 for four wines, applicable to a $20 purchase) and has an elaborate gift shop. Perhaps the best observation was made by our son: "This winery is like a 1995 cabernet. It needs aging. You should come back in another 12 years."

After a quick stop for lunch in Healdsburg, we hopped onto Interstate 101 south and were back in Marin County within an hour and a half. Ours was fairly typical for a day-and-a-half weekend trip from the Bay area into the wine country. We were able to sample a few wineries, see lots of great scenery and had a couple of nice meals at an easy pace.

more complex "Lion King" and "The Little Mermaid." "A Goofy Movie" takes on the story of a father trying to relate to his teenage son — a son who would rather attend an end-of-school party and romance the fair Roxanne than go on a fishing trip with his dad.

Max, however, reluctantly goes, but not before telling Roxanne — so that she will not attend the party with a substitute date — that he will be appearing at a concert in Los Angeles with everyone's favorite pop music star Powerline.

The story takes on a familiar theme but does it fairly effectively while still managing to be appealing to a young audience.

Along the way a half dozen songs punctuate the picture.

ing every scene expertly.

Don Simpson and Jerry Buckheimer, producers of "Bad Boys," use the familiar formula they perfected on similar films, such as "Beverly Hills Cop." This movie is not a rip-off, however. It is just another version. It works as both action film and comedy piece. Almost everything Lawrence does seems to bring a collective audience chuckle.

Smith plays the smoother of the two. He's a bachelor and rich. He doesn't even need a job.

Lawrence scores as well playing a married cop with three kids and a station wagon. His smart mouth and wise cracks make him as entertaining as any other person who has played this type "Bad Boys" is an entertaining movie ride — not a lot of substance, no hidden social messages. Just action and fun.

Smith and Lawrence must be big fans of '70s cop shows because the references to that genre are so numerous it almost becomes a game. Be ready. Any blinking or prolonged laughing and you could miss a lot.

question and answer period. But the real stars of the show are the sisters, who provide good arrangements, tight harmonies and more than a few laughs along the way.

And, as the opening song promised, it is a lovely way to spend an evening.

"The Lovely Liebowitz Sisters" runs through May 28 at the Gem.

Circle

does it and their struggle to control their urges is presented with empathy and humor.

Bennie (Minnie Driver), who thinks of herself as being plain and awkward, is happily surprised when she catches the eye of Jack Foley (Chris O'Donnell), a handsome and popular rugby star. She is ecstatic when he invites all three of the girls to a dance. However, she mistakes the invite for a date and when he chooses Nan (Saffron Burrows) as his dance partner, she is crushed. Later, when she starts to leave, Jack asks her to dance. Between tears, she manages to say, "I know I may look like a rhinoceros but I've got quite a thin skin about me."

She discounts her positives — a wonderful smile that lights up from within, a refreshing forthrightness and a keen sense of direction: Qualities that, as he comes to know her better, win Jack's admiration and interest. Completely comfortable with each other, they spend long hours wandering Ireland's lush countryside mulling over what matters most to them.

Another boy who tries to win Bennie's affection is her father's slimy clothing store apprentice played by Alan Cumming. She despises him but he ingratiates himself with her family while secretly robbing the till.

Bennie and Jack are moving close to a serious relationship. Ever complacent Eve (Geraldine O'Rawe) has settled into an unruffled romance. Ambitious Nan is not so fortunate. She sets her sights on snagging a rich playboy. Smart, but naive, she finds herself in an embarrassing situation.

Before the story ends, all three of the girls are embroiled in a climactic series of circumstances that involve love, loss, friendship, betrayal and reconciliation. All of which mark the sometimes rocky, sometimes smooth rite of passage.

It is this universal theme that makes "Circle of Friends" so easy to relate to and so special.

There is a built-in nostalgic appeal to a film centered on a time when living was easier. However, director Pat O'Connor doesn't rely on the charm of nostalgia alone for tone. He entices with humor and treats us with some glorious countryside shots.

The film is blessed with an outstanding cast of supporting characters who give authentic portrayals.

"Circle of Friends" is an absorbing, entertaining film with a universal appeal.

Four ULS players skate to All-State honors

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Emile Francis earned the nickname "The Cat" when he was playing goal for the New York Rangers a couple of generations ago.

Now Toronto netminder Felix Potvin is known as "The Cat."

But University Liggett School's hockey team has its own "Cat" in the nets and Andy Arbanas has proven to be as valuable to the Knights as Potvin is to the Maple Leafs and Francis was to the Rangers.

"We rely a lot on good goaltending," said ULS coach John Fowler. "It seemed like Andy was always coming up with the important saves. And he thrived on work. The more shots he faced, the better he was."

Arbanas' performance with the Knights this season earned him a spot on the Class B-C-D All-State first team selected by the Michigan High School Hockey Coaches Association.

Arbanas is one of four ULS players receiving All-State honors. Senior John McNaughton, junior Tom Delisle and sophomore Ian Fines each received honorable mention. McNaughton also was named to the Academic All-State team.

Arbanas brings a unique quality to the Knights' hockey team.

"He has the great ability to notice everything around him, while still focusing on a specific object," said Fowler of his junior netminder.

"He notices the positioning of the players, but he can still keep his focus on stopping the puck. It helps him in the classroom, too. He notices the girls, but can continue to focus on his studies," Fowler said with a chuckle.

Arbanas had an outstanding season for the Knights, in spite of the team's 11-13 record. He allowed only 49 goals in 483 shots for a .898 save percentage. His goals-against average was an excellent 3.25.

Arbanas' numbers might have been even more impressive if he hadn't had to absorb all the scoring in a 10-1 loss to Notre Dame when the entire ULS team had a horrendous night.

"Andy is a good example of combining good skating and excellent stickhandling for a goalie," Fowler said. "He also has an extremely quick glove. His nickname is 'The Cat.'"

Fowler has been blessed with excellent netminders, going back to the 1990 state championship team which had Tripp Tracy between the pipes. Tracy is now the starting goalie for Harvard.

"Like Tripp, Andy played on some of the best triple-A teams — and you don't do that unless you're very good," Fowler said.

Arbanas is an excellent competitor, but he doesn't let that competitiveness stand in the way of helping the Knights' other goalies.

"He did a lot for Paul Huebner and Behi Rabhani," Fowler said. "That's a good example of the goaltenders' union. They're competing for playing time, but still helping each other."

Arbanas had some of his best games against Cranbrook, which was ranked No. 1 in the state in Class B-C-D for most of

Piper takes first place at national swim meet

A first-place finish by Cortney Piper in the 1,650-yard freestyle highlighted a fine effort by the Pointe Aquatics swim club at the recent United States Swimming National Championships in Buffalo, N.Y.

The Grosse Pointe-based club finished 21st in the 92-team field at the second-highest level of swimming competition in the country.

Piper, a freshman at Grosse Pointe North, had a winning time of 16:42.27. Her effort qualified her for the Senior National Championships in Pasadena, Calif., Aug. 1-4.

Piper also placed sixth in the 1,000 freestyle (10:07.09) and 10th in the 500 freestyle (4:58.29).

Brett Collins, a senior at North, was 15th in the 1,000 (9:27.91) and the 1,650 (15:53.64) freestyle events.

North freshman Rachelle Atrasz was 19th in the 1,650 freestyle (17:09.20) and 21st in the 500 freestyle (5:01.11); Mike O'Connor, a sophomore at North, was 29th in the 1,650 (16:06.12); and Christine Jamerino, a senior at North, was 21st in the 100 breaststroke (1:06.75) and 25th in the 200 individual medley (2:09.93).

the season. He was also brilliant in the ULS tournament, turning away 37 of 38 shots in a 2-1 victory over Portage Northern, then making 38 saves in a 3-0 loss to Culver (Ind.) Academy in the title game.

McNaughton won the prestigious Graham Cragg Trophy as ULS' most valuable player. A year ago he was the recipient of the 1990 Trophy, which is awarded to a player who exemplifies the characteristics of the championship team.

Fowler admitted he was disappointed McNaughton didn't join Arbanas on the first All-State team.

"He isn't noticed as much as some players because of his style of play," the coach said. "John's an efficient, hard-nosed player but he isn't flashy. But as he went, so went our team. You can't measure John's importance to our club by statistics alone."

McNaughton's statistics were impressive by themselves. He led the Knights with 26 goals, including a team-high five game-winners. He also had 14 assists to tie Delisle for the club scoring lead with 40 points.

Because of McNaughton's scoring ability, he was a marked man. Opposing coaches usually sent their best defensive player to shadow the Knights' right wing.

"He's a strong skater and solidly-built (5-foot-11, 185 pounds)," Fowler said. "John has good upper-body strength and it's difficult to knock him off the puck. He has a strong shot, especially from the slot area. He's like a Cam Neely (of the Boston Bruins) when he gets in the slot."

McNaughton has developed his all-around game in his three seasons at ULS.

"He's come a long way from the one-dimensional, up-and-down-the-wing player he was as a sophomore," Fowler said.

"He's improved in creating offense and he's a very effective backchecker."

McNaughton's value extends beyond his contributions on the ice. As captain, he's an excellent leader.

"John's character is as strong as his shoulders," Fowler said. "He's committed with a capital C. He's quick-witted and has a great sense of humor, but he's not the class clown type. He doesn't talk so much that you stop listening, but when he does talk it's right to the point. And he follows his words with actions."

McNaughton carries a 3.7 grade-point average, displaying many of the same characteristics in the classroom as he does on the ice.

Delisle played left wing on the Knights' top line with McNaughton and Jim Bologna and finished with 13 goals and a team-high 27 assists.

"You tend to notice Delisle more than McNaughton because he's a flashier stickhandler," Fowler said. "He has a very quick release of an accurate slap shot. He played defense as a young kid, which is why he does such a good job on the off-wing side. He's a good playmaker — very creative — and has good hands. He created a lot of opportunities for his linemates. He's a good student and has good judgment on the ice."

Delisle is an excellent all-around athlete. He's one of the Knights' top golfers and is a fine baseball player.

Fowler said Fines' offensive skills remind him of the Red Wings' Paul Coffey.

"He jumps into the play just like Coffey," the coach said. "Ian has terrific potential. He's a gifted skater and with experience his skills will translate into more accomplishments. Ian is a very good skater and a flashy player — the kind that gets noticed more than the stay-at-home defenseman."

He led ULS' defensemen in scoring with one goal and 14 assists.

mers also did well in the 13 and over state championships.

The best finish in the 13-14 age group were second place finishes by Andy Shelden in the 1,650 freestyle (17:23.83) and the 1,000 freestyle (10:23.83). Shelden also was third in the 500 freestyle (5:01.36), sixth in the 200 butterfly (2:12.83) and the 400 IM (4:41.65) and ninth in the 200 freestyle (1:55.24).

Lindsey Hengel was fourth in the 200 butterfly (2:23.83), sixth in the 400 IM (5:03.42), ninth in the 200 freestyle (2:05.54) and 11th in the 500 freestyle (5:35.41).

Liisa Bergmann was 13th in the 200 freestyle (2:06.83) and the 1,000 freestyle (12:04) and Danielle Massie was 10th in the 100 backstroke (1:05.55) and 11th in the 1,000 (11:51.91) and 1,650 (20:08.96) freestyle events.

Ryan Berger was third in the 200 butterfly (2:08.05), seventh in the 500 freestyle (5:08.28), 10th in the 200 freestyle (1:55.51) and 12th in the 100 butterfly. Adam Ziegler took seventh in the 1,650 freestyle (18:20.24), 10th in the 500 freestyle (5:12.24), 15th in the 200 IM (2:15.87) and 16th in the 200 butterfly (2:25.19).

Meghan O'Loughlin and Jeff Shelden each had second-place finishes to highlight the Pointe Aquatics performance in the 15-18 age group.

O'Loughlin was second in the 200 freestyle (1:56.78) and the 400 IM (4:43.21). She also took third in the 500 freestyle (5:12.66) and sixth in the 200 IM (2:15.21).

Two local wrestlers doing well

The high school wrestling season is over, but Grosse Pointe North's Derek Phillips and Kevin Brandon are like the Energizer rabbit — they keep going and going and going.

Phillips and Brandon have been competing in AAU and USA wrestling events around the state and they've both been doing well.

Last weekend they competed in the AAU state freestyle championships at Hazel Park and Phillips won the 105.5-pound division, while Brandon was third at 121.

Both wrestled in the Cadet age group, for wrestlers born in 1979-80.

Phillips won his three pool matches, then beat Monte Lewis of Sterling Heights 11-0 in the semifinal round. Phillips

South netters set goal

Another top 10 finish in the state is a major goal as Grosse Pointe South's boys tennis team gets ready to open the season.

Last year, the Blue Devils finished seventh in the state meet but coach Tom Berschback has to replace six starters — five seniors and one player who'll miss the season because of injury.

"Every year since 1988, South has made the top 10 with our best showing a second place in 1991," Berschback said. "This year we have the same goal, but with only two seniors, the underclassmen have to step up quickly."

Senior co-captains Andy Schumacher and Andy Giraldo will play the top two singles positions, respectively, but the other two singles spots and all four doubles teams remain somewhat unsettled.

Freshman A.J. Rhode and sophomore David DeGutis are battling for the No. 3 and No. 4 singles berths.

Junior Greg Ryan and freshman Mike Case are playing No. 1 doubles, but Case could also move into one of the singles slots.

The next two doubles teams are Aaron Zurschmeide and Brian Brown and Ryan Parrish and Mike Marshall. Steve Andris and Mike Cronin will likely play fourth doubles.

Brown, Andris and Marshall are transfers that Berschback and his staff are counting on to help the Blue Devils battle arch rival Grosse Pointe North for the Macomb Area Conference Red Division title.

South looks strong again

Some things never change.

Every year Grosse Pointe South's girls track team gets larger in numbers and every year the Blue Devils go after a league championship.

This year's 102-member squad will be seeking its eighth league championship in 10 seasons.

The girls team is 127-7 in dual meets since it was formed in the late 1970s and the Blue Devils have lost only two dual meets in the last nine years.

South is led by 18 seniors and all but two of them are four-year veterans.

"Depth will again play a key role this season," said coach Steve Zaranek. "Traditional strength in the distance events will again be present."

South's distance runners are coming off another undefeated cross country season that included a fifth straight regional title and 16th straight league championship.

The distance leaders are Aimee Vasse, Katie Weed, Jonnie Vasse, Kate Crowley, Sandra Hammel and Shannon McGratty.

The versatile Katy Lupo and Amy Zanglin — both three-time state medalists — provide strength in the sprints, middle distances and relays.

Becca Walter and Lisa McCurdy should be dominant again in the hurdles, while McCurdy also contributes to a fine long-jump group that includes Gretchen Carter and Tonina Nicosia.

The Blue Devils appeared to have improved in the throwing events with Sarah Krueger and Phaedrah Gray performing well during early workouts.

Freshmen Jenny Mansfield and Meghan McGahey have shown excellent potential in the sprints and high jump, respectively.

Zaranek expects the strongest competition in the Macomb Area Conference White Division to come from Port Huron, Port Huron Northern and Utica.

South opened the outdoor season with a 99-29 non-league victory over Regina.

The Blue Devils dominated the running events, outscoring the Saddletites 20-0 in the relays, 17-1 in the hurdles, 26-1 in the distance races and 21-6 in the sprints.

Aimee Vasse won the 1,600-meter run and her sister Jonnie took first in the 800. Crowns

State semifinals are South's softball goal

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's softball team has set some lofty goals for the season, but they're not unrealistic.

"They've been telling me since October that their goal is to go to Battle Creek and play in the state semifinals," said Blue Devils' coach Peggy Van Eckoute after her team split its first four games of the season.

A year ago, South finished with a 16-21 record but the team caught fire at the end of the season. It won district and regional championships, then took a three-run lead into the last inning against Rochester Adams in the quarterfinals, but lost 7-6.

Only one starter — third baseman Jenna Nutter — graduated, so it's an experienced group that greeted Van Eckoute at the start of practice.

"Even our juniors, Kristen Apple and Meredith Wolfe, have been on the varsity since they were freshmen so it's really like having an all-senior team," the coach said.

But even with South's experience, there's no guarantee the Blue Devils will win the tough Macomb Area Conference White Division.

"We can finish anywhere in the top half of the league," Van Eckoute said. "Ford won the division last year and it has everybody back. Romeo, Fraser and L'Anse Creuse North are always tough, too. That's one of the reasons we usually do well in the district and regional — the league season prepares us so well."

South doesn't pick on any patsies during the non-league part of the schedule, either.

The Blue Devils opened the campaign with a thrilling 3-2 victory over Regina, which is ranked eighth in the state in Class A.

South scored two runs with two out in the bottom of the seventh on RBI singles by Amanda Defever and Wolfe to nip the Saddlelites.

Maureen Ryan, who handled most of the pitching duties last year, was sharp against Regina. She allowed six hits and one earned run, walked two and struck out a pair.

Defever led the offense with two hits.

A five-run rally in the seventh fell short in the second game of the tripleheader, as South bowed 7-6 to Grosse Pointe North. Defever, who went 3-for-3 in the contest, hit a two-run double in the seventh and Wolfe had an RBI single.

Deanna Raab had two hits for South.

The Blue Devils dropped the final game 2-0 to Belleville.

Ryan scattered eight hits, but didn't allow a walk. Katy Leins had two of South's four hits.

South's bats were booming last week in a 13-8 victory over Marysville.

Defever collected a single and a double, Ann Halpin hit a two-run double, Laura Stuckey doubled and Sarah Booher and Ann Richard each singled twice.

The Blue Devils never trailed after scoring five times in the second inning.

Ryan picked up the victory, despite allowing a pair of two-run homers.

"Marysville has a couple of good hitters," Van Eckoute said. "One girl hit two balls over the fence and each time the girl in front of her had tripled."

Halpin (first base), Leins (second base) and Wolfe (shortstop) return as starters in the infield while the outfield alignment of Booher, Apple and Defever returns intact. The top battery of Ryan and Stuckey is also back.

The only newcomers to the starting lineup are Richard and Kristen Campbell, who are sharing third base.

"I'm pretty pleased with the way we've been coming together as a team," Van Eckoute said. "When Mo's (Ryan) been pitching, we've played pretty well."

North jumper in top form

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Eric Peters is giving the rest of the long jumpers in the state something to shoot for.

The Grosse Pointe North senior, who won the Class A state title last year, was in mid-season form at the recent Macomb Invitational Indoor Championships when he won the long jump with a leap of 22-feet-9.

"That would have won the state meet last year," said North coach Pat Wilson. "Eric jumped 23-3, but second place was 22-6 1/4."

Peters fouled on his first two jumps in the preliminary round, but popped a 21-7 on his final effort in the prelims. He thought that was going to finish his day's work, but an Anchor Bay athlete had other ideas.

"Eric has been bothered with a sore groin — the same one he pulled at the end of the football season — and we've been trying to take it easy with him," Wilson said.

"But when the Anchor Bay kid jumped 21-10, Eric had to jump again and he responded well. I guess it really woke him up. He loves a challenge."

Peters also took a second in the 60-yard hurdles for the second year in a row.

North athletes had some other good efforts in the indoor championships. Kevin Stanley was second in the 60 high hurdles with a 7.9 clocking. Steve Fennell took third in the shot put with a 45-5 1/2 and Dave Slanec was third in the 600 in 1:20.6.

"Fennell's throw was 2 1/2 feet better than his best last year and Slanec was a little over a second faster than his best time a year ago," Wilson said.

Two-miler Shuchin Shah also posted a personal best.

Last weekend, North hosted a six-team invitational relay meet and the Norsemen finished third with 80 points. Sterling Heights was first with 111 points and Ford II was runner-up with 104.

North's only first came in the distance medley relay where Jeff Henson, Eric Argel, Bill Stevenson and Bob Stevenson were clocked in 11:23.

The Norsemen were second in five relays. The shuttle hurdle relay team of Chris Georgandellis, Argel, Rob Elizondo and Kevin Stanley posted a time of 1:06.6.

Wilson was excited about the 8:33 turned in by the 4x800 relay team of Slanec, Craig Stanley and the Stevensons.

"That was a great run," the coach said. "In all my years at North we've only run faster once and that was in a regional."

The 4x100 relay team of Leonard Harris, Nick Goerke, Argel and Dave Massaron was second in 48.3. Two field event relays also took second. John Bommarito and Goerke had a combined effort of 17-6 in the pole vault relay, while Fennell, Tim Northey and Geoff Blumenthal had a shot put relay effort of 114-7.

"We can compete individually with many of the top runners on teams like Sterling Heights and Ford, but we don't have the depth that they do," Wilson said.

Personal bests in the 400 meters were posted by Henson, Shah, Tom McGrane, Paul Mooney, Steve Drader and Steve Rogowski. J.R. Hiller, Craig Hadjis and Drader had their best performances in the long jump. Craig Stanley and George Volis had their top 800 times, Harris had a personal record in the 200 and Blumenthal exceeded his best effort in the discus.

Blue Devils sweep

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Pitchers are usually ahead of the hitters during the first few weeks of the baseball season, but Grosse Pointe South's opening doubleheader with Marysville last weekend knocked that theory to pieces.

The Blue Devils swept the twin-bill 9-8 in eight innings and 11-9, but the pitching wasn't quite what coach Dan Griesbaum had expected from his team.

"Our hitting was very encouraging," Griesbaum said. "The pitching wasn't as bad as the scores indicate. They didn't get hit that hard, but we walked too many — 15 in the second game and eight in the first game — and that has to stop."

Most of South's pitchers were making their varsity debuts and Griesbaum said that might have contributed to the wildness.

South scored two runs in the first and second innings and picked up another one in the fourth inning of the opener to lead 5-1, but the Muskrats went ahead 7-5 with a six-run fifth.

The Blue Devils tied the game with two runs in the sixth. Terry Brennan was hit by a pitch and Brian Nugent followed with a single. Kevin Schroeder then hit a run-scoring single to drive in Brennan and Nugent also scored when the ball got by the Marysville center fielder for an error.

The Muskrats went ahead 8-7 on a home run in the top of the eighth, but South came back with two runs in the bottom of the frame. Nugent led off with a triple — his third hit of the game — and walks to Schroeder and Randy Vasser loaded the bases. Joe Schmitt drove in the tying run with a sacrifice fly and Ryan Miller followed with a single to drive in the winner.

Schroeder, who started and pitched the first four innings, returned in relief in the eighth and picked up the win. He pitched a total of five innings, allowing two hits and two runs, while striking out seven and walking three.

Nugent and Schmitt each drove in three runs, while Schroeder knocked in two. Schroeder, Schmitt, Miller and Tim O'Loughlin each collected two hits in the first game.

Nugent again led the hitting attack in the second game with a 3-for-4 performance that included a double and home run and three RBI.

The senior shortstop hit a two-run homer in the first inning, then doubled home a run in the third, but Marysville was taking advantage of South's wildness to build a 7-3 lead.

South roared back to take a 9-7 lead during a six-run fifth inning. Kevin Schroeder had an RBI double, while Cory Schroeder, Mike Gehrke and Schmitt rapped run-scoring singles. Two other runs scored on errors.

The Muskrats tied the game with a pair of runs in the top of the sixth, but the Blue Devils answered with two runs in the bottom of the inning after the first two South batters had been retired.

Miller and Mike Shepherd reached base on errors, allowing the lead run to score. Gehrke then hit an RBI single to give the Blue Devils a two-run cushion.

Chris Tiede picked up the win in relief. Mike Stines pitched a scoreless seventh, striking out two, to earn the save.

Norsemen win a pitchers' duel

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Frank Sumner expects many good things from his Grosse Pointe North baseball team this spring, but it will have a way to go to beat the season opener.

"I've probably watched 700-plus high school games in my career and that's as good a one as I've ever seen," North's veteran coach said after senior righthander Greg Sieszputowski pitched a no-hitter to win 2-0 in his pitching duel with Sterling Heights' David Borkowski.

"There must have been 20 scouts in the stands because Borkowski is considered the top pitching prospect in this area," Sumner said. "His fastball was timed in the 90s in the second inning on the radar gun."

Borkowski was no puzzle to North's Donny Tocco. The senior first baseman had three of the six hits the Stallions' pitcher allowed and "they were all shots," Sumner said.

Sieszputowski, who is North's top returning hurler, was brilliant. He faced only 24 batters, striking out 11 and walking two. Only one ball was hit out of the infield — a one-out flyball to center field in the fifth.

"He relied on the fastball almost exclusively," Sumner said. "Because it was so cold and damp, he threw only six curves all game. And on two of those he struck out kids."

North picked up the only run Sieszputowski needed in the second inning. Tocco singled, took second on a wild pickoff attempt and came around to score on two straight sacrifices, the second by Dennis Clement.

The Norsemen got an insurance run in the seventh on a single by Tocco, a sacrifice and Jason Shore's double.

The second game of the doubleheader didn't turn out as well as North dropped a 7-4 decision to the Stallions.

"We got ahead 3-0 and then fell asleep," Sumner said. "We got knocked back down to earth in a hurry after that first game."

North hit the Stallions with a three-run first inning that featured an RBI double by Nick Chapie, a sacrifice fly by Tocco and Clement's RBI single.

Sterling Heights tied the game in the bottom of the inning and went ahead with an unearned run in the fourth.

Dan Sylvester tied the game with a single in the sixth, but the Stallions answered with a three-run burst in the bottom of the frame.

Clement and Sean Ziegenhagen each had two hits for North in the second contest.

"We had planned on using three pitchers in the second game," Sumner said. "Brandon Welch did a good job in his three innings."

North has 11 returning players from the squad that finished 27-7 a year ago and earned a trip to the state Class A quarterfinals with regional and district championships.

"A lot of people forget that we didn't win our league (Macomb Area Conference Blue Division) title," Sumner said. "That's going to be a main focus for us this year. Cousino (last year's champion) should be strong again, L'Anse Creuse has some solid pitching and Lake Shore is always trouble and they should be even better now that (former Grosse Pointe South assistant) John (Zbercot) is there."

North will have an all-senior infield most of the time with Tocco at first base, Shore at second, Clement at third and Ziegenhagen at shortstop.

"Tocco is one of the top players in the state, who has to get serious consideration for Mr. Baseball," Sumner said. "He's doing real well at the plate and he's a very good glove man, too."

The speedy Ziegenhagen figures to be among North's stolen base leaders. He's a three-year varsity player, who split his time between shortstop and second base last season.

Shore was a backup infielder last year, who has earned a starting berth, while the left-handed-batting Clement started several games in 1994.

Tocco batted .360 with 11 homers and 50 RBI in 1994, Ziegenhagen hit .304 and Clement batted .295.

Chapie, who hit .361 last year, returns as the catcher.

"He's a real solid player, both at bat and behind the plate," the coach said. Seniors Chris Copus (.313), Kevin Kasiborski and Bobby Gates (.417) are the starting outfielders, while junior Dan Sylvester also is expected to play a lot.

"We're moving Copus from left to center," Sumner said. "He's a good defensive player with a strong arm. We're strong up the middle. Kasiborski swings a good bat and Gates will DH if Sylvester starts in right."

Junior Joe Evola will see duty as a backup infielder, while junior Joe Slomski will back up Chapie and also may see some action in the outfield and as the DH.

Sieszputowski is the top returning pitcher. He was 5-3 with a 3.19 ERA last season. He completed four of his seven starts. Gabe Weinert (3-0, 2.48), Clement (1-0, 4.20) and Shore (3-0, 2.62) also saw action on the mound last season and will round out the starting corps. Juniors Kevin Collins, Welch and Steve Lentine will provide depth in pitching. Collins and Lentine are lefthanders.

South beats Irish in lacrosse

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

Grosse Pointe South's lacrosse team spent last week on the road and split its two games.

The Blue Devils opened the week with a 5-3 victory over Notre Dame, then dropped a 13-3 decision to Troy Athens.

"Athens had some players that knew their sticks very well," said South coach Gary Donohue, who had three key members of his squad miss the Red Hawks' game with injuries.

Against Notre Dame, the Blue Devils overcame temperatures that dipped into the 20s.

Senior Max Prokop, who had two goals and two assists, opened the scoring in the first period, assisted by Nate Bayko. "Max is a full team player," Donohue said. "The majority of the win over Notre Dame was due to our attack."

Peter McDonald scored both of South's second-quarter goals, including one where he weaved untouched through several Irish defenders.

"The fact they scored first made a big difference in our play," said Notre Dame coach Don Hollifield. "They were more physical. Every time we touched the ball we got hit. The ball went down and we did not respond well." Notre Dame missed an excellent scoring opportunity while South was short three men because of penalties, but an Irish shot hit the goalpost.

Joe Pierce got Notre Dame back into the game in the third period when he scored twice to cut the lead to 3-2. Pierce's second goal came on what appeared to be a harmless shot. He was parallel with the goal when he dumped the ball at the net and it got past goalkeeper Ryan Farrell.

South boosted its lead back to two goals when Adam Filkin scored from Prokop. The Irish got back within one goal late in the third period, but Prokop's unassisted tally clinched the win for the Blue Devils.

"We got down three goals," Hollifield said. "It's not impossible to come back in lacrosse, but it's definitely hard."

Defense was a key for South as twin towers Dan Fortune and Andre Veasey did a good job of keeping Pierce in check for most of the game with their physical play.

South is idle until it hosts Grosse Pointe North on April 25. Two days later, the Blue Devils visit Novi before returning home for seven of their last 11 games.

Phillips has been wrestling at 112 most of the time since the prep season ended, but the jump up in weight hasn't stopped him. He won an AAU meet at Hazel Park, took first in Greco-Roman and second in freestyle at a USA meet in Fowlerville, won an AAU meet in Roseville and was third in a USA event in Lowell, losing to a state high school champion from Ionia. Brandon won the freestyle event at Fowlerville, was second at Roseville and third in the Lowell meet.

"They've both been doing very well," said North coach Art Roberts. "There's been a lot of improvement in both of them in the month since the state (high school) meet. They're facing all the best wrestlers in the state every week."

Phillips will compete later this month in the world team trials at Northwestern University.

Pointe-Zettas win in Canada

The Mack-Moross Pointe-Zettas have been making a steady climb to the top at the Morpeth Old-Timers hockey tournament in Blenheim, Ontario.

Three years ago the squad of 35-and-over players finished fourth. Last year they reached the championship game before losing by one goal and last week they won the title with a 4-3 shootout victory over the host Blenheim team.

Peter Poirier, Rick Gram and Mike Berger tallied in regulation time for the Pointe-Zettas, while Bob Schomer notched the winning goal in the shootout.

Jim Farquhar's hat trick paced the Pointe-Zettas to a 6-1 victory over Redford — the only other United States team in the tournament — in the opener.

John Rose, Berger and Gram also scored for the Grosse Pointe team.

Some bad bounces around the net resulted in a 5-0 loss to Blenheim, but the Pointe-Zettas came back to earn a spot in the finals with a 3-3 tie against Merlin, Ontario.

The Merlin game was a physical contest and Grosse Pointe won on a tie-breaker — fewest penalty minutes.

It was a costly win as the Pointe-Zettas' Emmet Baratta and Berger had to go to the hospital with minor injuries.

Goalie Bob Rutkoske was outstanding with 38 saves, while Farquhar, Poirier and Schomer scored for Grosse Pointe.

Most of the Pointe-Zetta players, who were given their nickname by officials at a Christmas tournament a few years ago, have played on Grosse Pointe teams since their youth hockey days. The squad currently plays in a St. Clair Shores league and enters one or two tournaments each season.

"I can't wait to defend our title next year," Baratta said as he left the arena with one arm in a sling and several hockey sticks in the other.

Purple martin landlords await their annual tenants

Spring has different meanings for us all. With the arrival of longer days and the re-emergence of insects, we can be sure that purple martin landlords are watching the skies in anticipation of their tenants.

Purple martins are the largest member of the swallow family in North America. Their migration is legendary. They winter principally in South America — in the Amazon Basin, southern and eastern Brazil and northern Bolivia. They return to the same nest site in North America each year. Some martins return to the exact same nest compartment. The site fidelity has benefits for the martin because the birds' energy can be used for foraging, defense of the nest site, courtship and mating instead of putting energy into having to locate a new nest site each year.

Martins in the eastern United States are entirely dependent upon man to provide housing for them. Their natural housing was the use of rock ledges and old woodpecker holes which some of their western counterparts still use. Martins first began nesting in human-provided sites when Native Americans provided hollowed out gourds for them. The martins were desirable because they drove hawks, crows and vultures from the area. Martins seem to enjoy human presence as evidenced by the fact that martin houses placed too far from human housing may go unused.

Proper placement of the martin house in the right environment is essential in attracting purple martins. The birds need open areas where there are abundant insects. Since martins feed on insects while they are flying, they favor open areas which offer good foraging opportunities. When siting the house, it is important to have 40 to 50 square feet of open land. The martin house is placed on a pole 10 to 15 feet high in the middle of this open area to allow an open flight path from any direction. If trees taller than your purple martin house are in the area, you may need to trim the trees or place the house higher. Housing that is located near water is usually more successful in attracting martins because of the abundance of insects as a result of the water source. Placement of the house within 100 feet of human housing is also desirable. Recordings of "Purple Martin Dawn Song" can be used as a key to establishing a new colony. The recordings imitate existing colonies of males and their famous Dawn Song, where they take to the skies and call just before dawn in an attempt to attract sub-adult birds to the colony.

Housing for martins can vary from wooden mansions that you build or buy, prefabricated aluminum houses and natural or plastic gourds. The most important factor to consider when purchasing martin housing is the ease with which you can clean the house and monitor the tenants. Studies show that a light exterior color is favored because the entrance hole is more visible and the white reflects heat better. The individual cavities of the house should be 6 inches x 6 inches x 6 inches inside with an entrance hole diameter of 2 1/8 inches, although martins will accept an entrance of 1 3/4 inches to 2 1/2 inches. The hole should be placed one inch above the floor of the cavity. Houses that must be tilted to be lowered or removed by climbing a ladder have been improved upon. Telescoping poles and pulley systems make access for cleaning and monitoring much easier. Housing must be correctly compass oriented each time it is put back up or martins will not be able to find their own compartment. Gourds are becoming desirable as martin housing as they are not attractive to sparrows and starlings. They are also an easy way to add housing if you are looking to expand your colony.

One of the myths about purple martins is their mosquito eating prowess. Housing manufacturers like to attest to the fact that martins eat hundreds of mosquitoes a day — it helps sell their housing. The reality of the purple martin diet is that they prefer dragonflies, mayflies, moths and butterflies. Martins forage 100 feet in the air where this food is abundant. Smaller insects, including mosquitoes, are found closer to the ground and are eaten by the martins, cousins — the barn swallow and the tree swallow.

Raising a colony of purple martins is a lot of work — but work that is rewarding to the landlords, as they will readily attest. One of the best references to assist you in managing a colony is a publication titled "Enjoying Purple Martins More" by Richard Wolinski. There are hints about keeping records, house orientation and mounting, how to deal with competitors, predators and parasites along with a list of the 10 most common mistakes made and how to avoid them.

Purple martins are expected to arrive in this area in mid-April. Landlords with existing colonies are anxiously waiting for their return, a sure sign that spring has arrived! The first arrivals are usually the adult males and females that are returning to their colony. Sub-adult birds arrive later and are the ones that will establish new colonies throughout May. Good luck to those of you that are hoping to establish a colony this year — may your summer be filled with Dawn Song!

Flowers have long been part of worship and ceremonial

Spring and flowers are inseparable words, and Easter and flowers belong together too. At Easter our churches are joyous with flowers in celebration of the renewal of life and of spring.

Arranging flowers for churches is a very specialized art. Some churches rely on an experienced professional florist who is familiar with the church but many depend on the talents of gifted members of the congregation, who often serve in this capacity for years.

So many things must be taken into consideration in arranging flowers for a church; they must be visible at a considerable distance, they must be able to hold their own in front of an intricately carved altar or a background of stained glass. The arrangement must not be lost in a large space dominated by lofty arches or shadowy distances. It must indicate the appropriate occasion in the church calendar and it must enhance and emphasize the spiritual quality of the time and place. A large order indeed.

During Lent many churches do not use flowers, reserving their joy and lightness for less somber seasons. But the same rules apply to the green foliage, which is acceptable as to the flowers used during other times. Balance, scale, proportion and size, color, line, form, pattern and texture must all be taken into account.

The floral arrangements must be as carefully planned as the music rendered by the choir. They, like the music, are one part of an all-around effect and must complement and supplement the service.

The practice of placing groupings of flowers in temples began in the sixth century with the Chinese Buddhists, but in all the religions of the world, flowers have been important symbols of worship for many centuries.

Long before the Christian era flowers were used in worship. Festivals of ancient gods were always marked by strewing flower petals and adorning statues with wreaths. In medieval Europe, sweet herbs and rushes were strewn on church floors. Even after the Reformation, when much of the symbolism was stripped from the churches, flowers were allowed to remain.

Some flowers have special significance and history in religion. The lily, for instance, in Christian symbolism represents purity, and is the symbol of Easter and the Resurrection. It is the special flower of the Virgin Mary, and during the middle ages paintings of her always included a vase of lilies.

In the prehistoric Minoan period in Crete, about 3000 B.C., the lily was the sacred symbol of Britomartis, the Great Mother, and in ancient Greece it was the flower of Hera, goddess of the moon, earth, air, marriage, woman's life and childbirth, and in ancient Rome it was the emblem of Juno, goddess of light, sky, marriage and motherhood.

One of the most ancient of flowers with religious significance is the lotus, a tropical water lily, which has been held sacred in the Near and Far East since the beginning of many religious beliefs. It has an uninterrupted symbolic history of more than 5,000 years.

The Egyptian lotus, dedicated to Horus, god of the sun, was the solar symbol of fertility and therefore of the life-giving Nile, and it was the symbol of resurrection, because it closed its petals at night and sank to the bottom and rose to the surface of the water and reopened its petals in the morning.

The lotus was venerated in Assyria and Greece, where it was used in architectural ornaments, and in Persia where it was the symbol of light. In Nepal, Tatar and Tibet it was the emblem of mystery. It is revered by all Hindus because Brahma was born from a lotus flower. In India it is the symbol of Buddha. The eight-petalled lotus is the emblem of the past, present and future in both China and Japan since it has blossoms, buds and seedpods at the same time.

Myrtle was in antiquity one of the plants sacred to all the people of the Eastern Mediterranean. The ancient Hebrews covered the tent of the Tabernacle with its boughs. The Egyptians used it to symbolize Hathor, goddess of love and joy, and in Greece and Rome it was sacred to Aphrodite and Venus, goddesses of love and marriage. Roman brides to this day often wear myrtle at their weddings.

In the 16th century when the Jesuits arrived in South America, they found a blooming vine which they believed to be the same which, according to Christian legend, was seen by St. Francis of Assisi in a vision. They named it passion flower because its various parts supposedly represent the symbols of Christ's passion.

When Francisco Pizarro arrived in Peru in 1532, he found the Inca Indians venerating the giant sunflower as the sacred image of their god, the sun. Sunflower seeds are still sacred food in many southwest Indian tribes.

It would seem, indeed, that flowers are an important part of worship and ceremony, especially during the great festivals of the year, in churches and temples throughout the world — as they have been for many centuries and in many cultures.

Despite falling mortgage rates, home sales down in February

Despite lower mortgage rates, sales of previously owned homes fell between January and February, as consumers remained uneasy about the economy, according to the National Association of Realtors. Resales also dropped notably from one year earlier.

The association recorded a seasonally adjusted annual sale rate of 3.43 million existing single-family homes last month, down 5 percent from January, when the resale rate was 3.61 million units. The February rate fell 10.8 percent below the rate for February 1994, when the resale pace registered 3.84 million units.

According to NAR president Edmund G. Woods Jr., the slowdown in housing activity between January and February is due to the slower economic growth caused by increases in short-term interest rates. The resulting slowdown in job creation has overshadowed the recent declines in long-term rates, including fixed-rate mortgages, he noted.

"In many cases, people simply don't feel good enough about job prospects to buy a home," Woods said. "If you think there's a chance you might be out of work, mortgage rates can't fall low enough to convince you to buy."

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported that the national average commitment rate for 30-year, conventional, fixed-rate mortgages was 8.77 percent in February, down from 9.15 percent in January, but up sharply from 7.15 percent in February 1994.

Despite a drop in rates between January and February of this year, the rise in mortgage rates over the past year has cut into housing affordability. For instance, the monthly payment for a $100,000 mortgage, based on fixed-rate, 30-year terms with a 7 percent interest rate, is $665.31. The monthly payment on the same loan based on a 9.0 percent interest rate is $804.63 — an increase of $139.32.

"Despite rates starting to come down some, consumers are now focused on a grim outlook in job growth," said NAR chief economist John A. Tuccillo. "Employment and the possibility of there being a lack of it is a major factor that plays into the home buying decision."

"For some buyers, consumer anxiety outweighs the desire to purchase a home."

Last month's national median existing single-family home price was $107,100, which was 0.1 percent above one year earlier, when the price was $107,000. The median is the midpoint in the price range — half the homes sold cost more, half cost less.

Existing-home sales activity in February was down in all regions on both a month-to-month basis and on a year-to-year basis.

The resale rate for the West was 730,000 units in February, 2.7 percent below the rate for January, and 18.9 percent below that for February 1994 — the greatest year-to-year drop of any region. The median price in the West was $144,100 last month, up 0.6 percent from February 1994.

The Northeast's resale pace for February was 540,000 units, down 3.6 percent from January and 10 percent from February 1994. The median price for existing single-family homes in the Northeast was $137,100 last month, down 0.4 percent from one year earlier.

In the Midwest, the resale rate was 840,000 units in February, which was down 7.7 percent from January and 8.7 percent from one year earlier. The median existing-home price in the Midwest was $86,900, up 2.1 percent from February 1994.

The South posted a resale rate of 1.32 million units in February, down 4.3 percent from the January pace and 7 percent from February 1994. The region's median price was $92,500 last month, down 2.4 percent from one year earlier.

There were 1.76 million homes available for sale nationwide in February, representing a 6.1-month supply at February's resale pace.

Currently, NAR is predicting a total of 3.728 million existing-home sales for 1995, down 5.5 percent from 1994. The national median existing-home price for 1995 is expected to be $113,700, rising 3.5 percent from 1994.

Answers to your spring lawn and garden questions

Q. When should I prune my spring-flowering trees and shrubs?

A. Spring-flowering trees and shrubs should be pruned immediately after they flower. They set the buds for next spring's flowers by the time they go dormant this fall, so pruning in fall or winter removes the buds that would have opened into next year's floral display.

Q. Is it time to apply a pre-emergent crab grass control to my lawn?

A. Before you decide to treat, try to recall whether you really had a problem with crabgrass last year. If not, you may not need to treat your lawn this year. Crabgrass is a fibrous rooted annual weed, which lays flat on the ground and is usually a lighter color green. It is rarely a problem in shaded areas and it can easily be pulled if you notice a few plants trying to take hold. Although open and weak turf areas promote crabgrass infestations, it does not cause poor turf.

If you have decided that your lawn does need treatment for crabgrass, now is a fine time to apply a pre-emergent herbicide labeled for crabgrass control. The treatment should be made before the forsythia (the early yellow flowered shrub) reaches full bloom. Or when we have had five to seven consecutive nights of 50 degree temperatures.

Q. What is the approximate frost-free date in spring and fall for the Macomb area?

A. In the spring there is a 50 percent chance of temps 32 degrees F or lower around April 27 with the lowest percent probability on May 23. In the fall the first frost can possibly occur on or before Sept 24. This information is found in a 12-page bulletin entitled "Planning a Vegetable Garden" E-1769 which is available from the extension office at a cost of $1 (includes postage).

Q. I moved into my new house in the winter so I didn't get the lawn seeded last fall. Is spring a good time to do this?

A. Fall has been shown to be the best time to seed a new lawn, but spring seeding offers some advantages. After being cooped up all winter, you may be more likely to want to work on the lawn in the spring. The soil shouldn't need to be watered so much. The soil is cold, however, so it may take seeds longer to germinate. That won't slow down spring-germinating weeds, of course, and weed competition with grass seedlings can be a problem in spring-seeded lawns. Grass plants need to be well established before summer's hot, dry weather, so start as early as you can work the soil.

Q. I have noticed several bare areas in the lawn. Do I need to wait until after the frost threat to reseed these areas?

A. Unlike many garden plants, grasses are not affected by cold weather. You could solve your problem by using a technique called dormant seeding. On a day when the surface of the soil has thawed, lightly rake the seed into the soil. Apply a straw mulch to stabilize the area and deter birds. As the weather moderates in the spring, the seed will germinate. Light frost will usually not damage the germinating seeds.

Q. What is thatch in turf? What can I do to control it?

A. Thatch is defined as an accumulation of dead partially decayed remains of stems, roots, and shoots found in a mat between the soil and living plant cover. Thatch develops when the accumulation of organic matter exceeds the decomposition rate. Cultural environmental factors, and the growth characteristics of the turf grasses play a major role in determining the rate of organic matter accumulation. For example, vigorous turfgrass varieties, high rates of fertilization and irrigation that stimulates vegetative growth will encourage thatch formation. In compacted or fine textured soils, poor aeration will reduce the activity of thatch-decomposing organisms. Clippings do not significantly contribute to thatch formation because of their high rate of decomposition.

Under a half-inch in thickness, thatch is considered to be beneficial, aiding in wear tolerance and providing some insulation from extremes in temperatures and other environmental stresses. With excessive thatch accumulation (more than a half-inch) problems may begin to develop. Root development may take place largely in the thatch, which dries out quickly and doesn't hold nutrients. This condition can stress the turf making it more susceptible to insects and diseases. Also, localized dry spots can develop and all-over the turf may have less tolerance to heat, cold and drought.

De-thatching machines that are equipped with vertically rotating lines, prove to be ineffective in reducing thatch and can often be damaging. Research reveals that core aeration equipment, which removes plugs of soil, will relieve compaction. Products which increase microbial activity such as Ringers Restore have also proven to be beneficial. Changing irrigation and fertilization practices may be necessary. Coring can be done anytime the soil is not wet or the turf is not under stress from high temps or drought.

Q. I have recently acquired a new home and on my land there is an old apple tree. It is very tall with many weak and dead limbs. Is it worth the effort to try to manage it or should I just cut it down?

A. Old, abandoned or semi-abandoned apple trees occur throughout Michigan. Often the cultivars are very old and are no longer grown commercially. Many of them, however, if properly managed, could produce good fruit for use by homeowners for fresh eating or for processing into applesauce, apple jelly, apple butter or cider. When trees of desirable cultivars are near residences, people are often interested in attempting to care for them so the fruit can be used.

Often the old trees are 25 to 30 feet tall and have not been pruned for many years. The average homeowner is simply not equipped to spray and care for them, so the fruits produced are generally small, diseased and severely damaged by insects. A tree that is reasonably structurally sound may be renovated and brought back into production. The trunk should not be severely rotted, and large lateral limbs should not be hollow. Unsound trees can be successfully renovated but they will not live as long.

Once the owner has decided that a particular tree or trees are worth keeping, how can he/she bring the trees back into production with quality fruit and, at the same time, reduce the tree size to make them more manageable? In some cases, aesthetic value may also be a consideration. The following bulletin is available from the Cooperative Extension Service office, request NCR-429 "Renovating Old, Abandoned Apple Trees."

Household Help

Q. I recently had a new roof installed because I was afraid there might be some rotted wood under the shingles. The original roof was put on in the early 1950s (new construction) and the second roof, about 20 years later.

When the old shingles were removed, I was told that no rot was showing. I'm thinking of having my unfinished attic insulated with some type of insulation. However, the new roof shows a lot of nails protruding into the attic and I'm wondering if these nails will interfere with the insulation. The previous two roofs showed no nails coming through into the attic.

I'd like your opinion on what type of insulation I might use and whether these nails will interfere with the installation of the insulation.

A. It is of utmost importance to have your entire home insulated, including your unfinished attic. All house insulation is based on R (for resistance) factors. In your case, because you live in the northern region of the country, you will need to use a higher rate of fiberglass insulation. The R factor for your area is a minimum rating of R-19 and the maximum rating is R-57. Your local home improvement center can detail any information you may need.

It is also important for you to have the proper thickness recommended for your area. You mentioned that you would like to insulate your attic, so 6 inches of insulation will be adequate. The most common type used is foil-faced fiberglass insulation. One side is exposed and the other has an aluminum foil type covering. This kind is most popular in new construction. It is also considered the standard material for attics, crawl spaces and framed walls.

Regarding the protruding nails, you need not worry. The most logical reason I can think of as to why the roofing nails did not come through the attic before is because the proper length was used. But the nails that have come through your roof are not a problem or even an interference. As a matter of fact, the protruding nails will help the installation of the fiberglass because they will penetrate the foil covering and adhere.

Always insulate safely and be sure to wear the proper work gear. Also, wear a buttoned-up shirt and tape the cuffs for added protection.

Whether your home is new or old, it should be waterproofed, especially basement and crawl space walls where the entry of water and moisture ultimately leads to deterioration and damage. With a little know-how and the right tools, you can easily waterproof areas where leakage has started or prevent it in areas where it may occur. To get started, you'll need the following tools and products: hammer, chisel, wooden paddle, trowel, wire brush, large pail, heavy-duty masonry paint brush, hydraulic water-stop cement and waterproofing masonry coating.

LOCATE THE SOURCE AND PREPARE THE SURFACE: Inspect the walls and locate the source of the leakage. Once you've found it, use your hammer and chisel it to enlarge the crack or hole. Cut squarely or undercut while enlarging the cavity to a minimum depth and width of 3/4 inch, then remove all loose material from the cavity and scrub with a wire brush and water.

PREPARE MIXTURE AND APPLY TO SURFACE: Prepare a mixture of one part water and 4 1/2 parts hydraulic water-stop cement in a pail and roll the mixed amount in your hands until you feel it begin to stiffen and become warm (only mix as much as you can apply in a three-minute period). Beginning at the top of the crack or hole, press the cement into the cavity with your fingers and maintain pressure for a few minutes or until the cement sets. Then smooth the surface with a trowel. (Work gloves should be worn when completing this step.)

APPLY WATERPROOFING MASONRY COATING: When the cement has set, the entire area should be painted with a waterproofing masonry coating. Remove any paint, loose mortar or dirt with a wire brush and water. Next, mix masonry coating and water according to instructions on package. Dampen the surface with a hose just before using a masonry paint brush to apply the mixture in a circular scrubbing motion to ensure penetration of waterproofing ingredients. First coat should dry for 24 to 48 hours before applying second coat. Waterproofing masonry coating will continue to cure and harden for one month.

Should you have any questions about this job, call the QUIKRETE Companies at 1-800-282-5828. They are the helpful people who provided the above information and will be happy to be of assistance.

Q. My wife would like me to make a large wooden cutting board for all cooking purposes. I am very concerned about using this board for cutting up chicken and other meat and making sure it's clean for future use. Do I have to apply any sort of finish to this board before using it?

A. First, a hardwood or butcher block type of wood is the material you can use safely. They generally have a commercial, prefinished surface so no other is necessary.

However, cutting boards should be cleaned after each use with detergent and hot water. Never use it to cut up vegetables after using it to cut up meat. It must be thoroughly cleaned before doing the vegetables.

NOTE: It's best to cut up raw meat on a surface such as plexiglass, formica or a plastic laminate surface.

How to choose the right sprayer for your garden

When you need to protect your yard from destructive insects, weeds or plant diseases, the right sprayer can save both a great deal of time and work. Even more importantly, the right sprayer can help you attain the results you desire — a weed-free lawn and bountiful and beautiful gardens and yards — using minimal amounts of spray materials.

Before choosing a sprayer, consider how it will be used. Knowing the size of your yard and types of spraying jobs that typically need to be done will help you determine which sprayer is best for you. According to H.D. Hudson Manufacturing company, a leading maker of sprayers and dusters, you should choose a sprayer that applies spray with the necessary pressure, in the precise amount and pattern, and on target. This will ensure complete coverage of problem areas while eliminating waste.

One of the most popular tools among experienced gardeners for applying pesticides correctly is the compressed-air sprayer, also called a compression sprayer. Filled and pumped up by the user, it allows for precise spraying of lawns, flowers, vegetables, shrubs and small trees. It can also be used to control crawling insects in and around your home. Highly versatile compression sprayers, such as Hudson's Bugwiser sprayer, can also be used to spray mildew removers, cleaners, sealants, fabric protectants, etc.

Compression sprayers are available in capacities ranging from one to three gallons with a choice of steel or polyethylene tanks. Sprayer features also vary in pump type, length of hose and spray wand, type of control valve, etc. The ones with more or better features generally offer greater control and ease of use.

Unlike "hose end" sprayers, squeeze bottles or aerosols, compression sprayers give you control over the spray in important ways, including:

1. Mix the spray concentrate exactly as recommended for best results. Often, as little as a teaspoon of concentrate mixed with a gallon of water will do the job.

2. You control the pressure — high for penetrating mists to protect leafy plants; low for coarse, non-drift sprays that are ideal for controlling lawn weeds.

3. The on-off control is instant, so you spray just to the point of run-off, which means no drenching or waste.

4. With a compression sprayer's long hose and spray wand, you can easily spray right on target to cover just the problem area, and you can easily spray under leaves where insects settle and plant disease begins.

5. You control the spray pattern — mist or coarse, close-up or long-range. The adjustable nozzle allows you to effectively tackle different types of problems.

If trees need protection, the slide-type Hudson Trombone sprayer sprays at heavy pressure to reach as high as 30 feet into a tree. The nozzle adjusts to a fine spray, meaning it can also be used with low-growing plants such as flowers or shrubs.

For people with small gardens and patio plants, small hand sprayers may be all that are needed. Hudson manufactures a 2-liter (half-gallon) hand compression sprayer called the Handy, and several other "flit gun" type sprayers with half-quart or less capacities. These sprayers are lightweight and spray a very fine mist. As a result, they're easy to handle and cover relatively large areas with minimal spray material.

If you have a large yard or garden, or want to protect five or more fruit trees, a knapsack sprayer, which holds four gallons and is carried on the user's back, or a power sprayer, may best serve your needs.

Another useful tool is the duster. Garden dust is made up of organic material, such as finely ground corn cobs, impregnated with an insecticide or fungicide. Dust is especially effective on roses and other flowering plants. A Hudson Adjutant duster has a long extension so the user can gently blow puffs of protective dust on all parts of the plant.

For a free brochure entitled "Getting Started on a Spraying Program — Why, How and When to Spray," send a self-addressed, stamped #10 envelope to Free Booklet Offer, H.D. Hudson Manufacturing Co., 500 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60611.

HOME & GARDEN FEATURES

Keep yard pests at bay. Unwanted pests such as leaf spot, cankers, Japanese beetles, spider mites, scales and tree borers can damage and even kill your yard's plant life. Products such as the Adjutant Duster from H.D. Hudson Manufacturing Co. are designed to effectively and cost-efficiently combat such pests.

Tips

DRIVER SAFETY — In inclement weather, it's still a good idea to keep the car window rolled down about 1/2 an inch to make it possible to hear an emergency vehicle approaching. Perhaps you'll save a life by pulling over sooner. Also, I'm totally against drivers wearing radio headsets. You can't hear anything when you're wearing them. Please, do everyone a favor and leave them home if you're going to be driving. Kate J., Shreveport, La.

EASY STICKER REMOVAL — I work for an electronics store and have received several calls from microwave owners who, upon buying a new unit, have ruined the door front while trying to remove the manufacturer's sticker.

Chemicals which should never be used are nail-polish remover, ammonia, cleansers and paint thinners. These chemicals, even when used in the smallest amount, can cause scratches or discoloration, and some can even spread into an enormous spot.

We recommend using a penetrating lubricant oil and soft cloth. Use care when rubbing because, as with any plastic surface, it can be scratched easily.

Also, most manufacturer warranties will not cover any physical damage. I would recommend an immediate call to the consumer affairs department of the manufacturer to report the damage. Some manufacturers will work directly with the consumer to resolve the problem. Pam T., Elk City, Nev.
