

The brickwork that wraps around the corner of Kercheval and Fisher is the beginning of many improvements for the public library grounds.

Brick by brick, step by step — library adds greenery and charm

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Hill merchants welcomed the completion of the Kercheval street paving and sidewalk bricking project after Labor Day weekend. But for the Grosse Pointe Public Library, it's only the beginning.

The new brick sidewalk in front of the library is part of a long-term improvement plan that promises to add more greenery and charm to the corner of Kercheval and Fisher. "It's an important corner," said library board president John Bruce. "It's the entrance to Grosse Pointe Farms and the Hill shopping area. We saw (the street project) as an opportunity to make it more attractive."

While the placement of brick pavers along the walkways from Fisher to Muir roads was paid, in part, by the City of Grosse Pointe Farms and through Farms Foundation funds, property owners along Kercheval will pay the remaining portion over four years through a special assessment. The extension of the project along Fisher will be fully paid for by the library.

At its June meeting, the library board voted unanimously to fully fund an extension of the brick sidewalk to wrap around the corner and extend from Kercheval along Fisher to the library's back driveway.

The total project will cost the library approximately $12,000 to be paid from the general

Move will turn Park estate into subdivision

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Park City Council reached a tentative agreement with representatives of the Morrison estate that permits the property to be developed into a subdivision.

Attorney John Fildew, speaking for Pedro and Carlos Morrison, addressed the council and said that a plan had been developed to meet the objections of neighbors of the estate that were voiced at several Park planning commission meetings.

Fildew told the council that the house on the estate does have a bowling alley, but the house itself is in bad shape and it would be prohibitively expensive to try to rehabilitate the house.

The plan calls for the estate to be divided into 19 lots. Homes adhering to local zoning regulations would be built on those lots, said Fildew. The estate was originally platted in the 1920s, but the idea is to replat the estate to permit a more modern and less obtrusive subdivision.

"These will be nice, million dollar homes," said Fildew.

He presented the council and audience members with the estate's latest proposal, which was a response to the planning commission's recommendations made to the council after the commission held several hearings on the matter.

Estate representatives agreed to provide access to the homes on the estate through a central cul-de-sac instead of Ellair or Bishop, the two streets at either side of the estate, which stretches from Jefferson to the shore of Lake St. Clair.

Fildew also said that water, sanitary and storm sewer lines would be placed along the center drive. The lakefront setback provisions would be consistent with existing zoning regulations requiring open and unobstructed space, and existing right of ways on Ellair would remain unobstructed. He said any fencing put up would be consistent with surrounding fencing already existing in the neighborhood.

Fildew said that all trees and greenbelts would, whenever possible, be preserved, and that

Woods' Alogdelis announces retirement from city council, third incumbent to do so

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Woods city councilmember James Alogdelis announced Monday that he would not seek re-election in November, making him the third Woods councilmember in the past few months to announce their retirement.

Councilwoman Jean Rice retired from the council earlier this summer, and shortly after that councilman Peter Gilezan informed the council that he would not run again for office in the upcoming November elections.

Alogdelis, 78, said it was time to retire. He will have

Wild dogs still roaming Pointes

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

In the past two weeks, at least two Grosse Pointe Park residents have witnessed what they believe is the work of the infamous wild dog pack reportedly roaming the Pointes.

A resident who lives on Windmill Pointe Drive at Bedford Lane said he recorded four sightings of the dog pack in one week.

On Sept. 1, he said he was awakened at 3:30 a.m. to the sound of an animal in distress. He looked outside and seeing three dogs in his rear yard, he rapped on the window and the animals ran away. In the morning, he found an opossum carcass in his yard.

On Sept. 8, the man, hearing what sounded like a cat screeching, opened a sliding door and hollered at the dogs, which looked to be the same animals that had visited previously. The animals fled the yard. In the morning, the man found the remains of a raccoon in his yard.

He said he has seen the dogs on two other occasions running around the neighborhood. He described all three dogs as looking like a German shepherd mix, although smaller in stature and solid black; all three appeared bedraggled.

A woman who lives in the 800 block of Berkshire said she was awakened early Sept. 9 to a disturbance in her yard. Although she did not see the dogs, she found a dead cat in her yard in the morning.

"As calls come in to the station, the officers try to round up the dogs," said Grosse Pointe Park police Lt. Dave Hiller. "If we can, we try to capture them or use the tranquilizer gun if the dogs are in an area where there is the potential to be tranquilized."

The Park police also call upon local veterinarian Lawrence Herzog to assist with reports of wild dogs. So far, one of the dogs has been captured.

"A lot of times a caller will say they see the dogs in a particular area but by the time the officers get there, the dogs are long gone," Hiller said. "They don't wait around. It's difficult at times to get to them."

As in the past, Hiller advises residents to stay away from animals they are not familiar with and to keep pets inside at night.

"We have not had any reports of the dogs acting vicious toward people. That would be a different situation," he said.

served one term of office at the time of his retirement. He was first elected to the council in 1991.

"I was a teacher for many years," said Alogdelis. "I always told my students about the importance of participating in government, and I taught them about the Bill of Rights and the Constitution. One day they asked me if I was going to run for office, and I told them someday I would."

Years later, said Alogdelis, he was mowing his lawn when he decided maybe it was time to check out the Woods City Council to see how they operated. After attending a few meetings, Alogdelis decided to run for council.

"This comes at a time when change is healthy," said Alogdelis. "Two years ago, no one except for incumbents ran for office, and that disappointed me. That just demonstrated apathy. I think the Pointes in general, and the Woods in particular, have such a wealth of talent that can make a contribution to city government, that it was a shame no one decided to run for office."

Alogdelis served as the Woods representative to the cable television board for much of his tenure in office. He was disappointed when the council replaced him with new council member Eric Steiner.

"I guess they wanted someone younger," said Alogdelis. "Age is either a blessing or a barricade. For me, it's always been a blessing. I've told others that where you are I've been and where I am you're going."

Alogdelis spent much of his teaching career in the Grosse Pointe school system, teaching at Poupard and Parcels. He was a principal in Ferndale, and coached football in Canton, Ohio, when he first started teaching.

With vacation days behind them, MARY LOU EWING (left), of University of Rivard, and JACKIE WARD, of University, plunge into their senior year with gusto on their return to Grosse Pointe High. The girls seem to be doing most of the work while Jim takes the easy road to information.

Out with the old to make room for the new.

The Old Place restaurant and the Wilhelm Funeral Home building are slated for demolition today, Thursday, Sept. 14.

The Old Place, which for many years, was a place where Grosse Pointers met to have a nice evening out, closed last year. The owner, developer Diamond Phillips, approached the Park city council a few years ago with a proposal to build condominium units along Jefferson.

His plan required the demolition of The Old Place and Wilhelm Funeral Home building, as well as closing off Beaconsfield at Jefferson. The city acquired the Lakepointe Olds building and demolished the building in 1993.

The city also had, several years before, acquired the land on which the old Esquire Theater once was located. The condominium project will be spread over several lots between Lakepointe and Nottingham. A total of 40 units will be built.

"The water to the buildings was disconnected on Friday, Sept. 8," said Park city manager Dale Krajniak. "The gas was disconnected on Monday, Sept. 11, electricity on Thursday, Sept. 7. The city's next step is make sure that the developer, Tri-Mount, implements the project as agreed. This includes landscaping and the number of condominium units."

Beaconsfield, said Krajniak, will be closed off when construction of the condo units begins, not when the demolition of The Old Place and the funeral home is completed.

The Old Place and the Wilhelm Funeral Home building are scheduled to be demolished this week in order to build 40 condominium units along Jefferson in the Park.

struction of the condo units begins, not when the demolition of The Old Place and the funeral home is completed.

"The plan is for construction to begin shortly after demolition, but as I said before that can begin, the city must make sure everything is done as agreed," Krajniak said. "We will eventually put some kind of brick screening wall at Beaconsfield. We'll also be putting some new traffic signs at Beaconsfield, but before we do that, we'll have to look at how traffic patterns are changed by the street being closed. This will give us time to determine the best way to channel traffic."

The exteriors, beginning with the framing and the roughing, of the condos will be completed before winter puts an end to outdoor construction, Krajniak said. The developers plan on completing the interior construction during the winter. They hope, by next spring, the project will be completed.

"One of the conditions we placed on the building phase was that the project be completed all at once," said Krajni-

ak. "The plan originally called for the builders to complete the individual units in phases. That would have meant that some units would have been completed and for sale, while others were still being under construction."

Farms OKs plans for new Hill eatery

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

The new brick sidewalks on the Hill should have more traffic this fall after the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council Monday night approved plans for Lucy's Tavern on the Hill to open where the former Blossoms Flower Shop was located.

The Farms city council had just approved a liquor license transfer to Jimmy Schmidt's Chianti Villa Lago. The liquor license, which was in escrow, had been in use previously by the One23 restaurant.

"There is life being pumped back into the Hill," said Farms Mayor Gregg Berendt, before the council unanimously approved the plans for Lucy's.

Grosse Pointe residents Tom and Jim Lefevre, who also own and operate Jack's Waterfront Restaurant in St. Clair Shores, R.J.'s Vault in Eastpointe, Gar Wood's Bay View Lodge in Harrison Township and the Flying Machine in Mount Clemens, chose their mother's name for the Hill restaurant.

The theme of the restaurant will be a blend of an English pub with a 1940's all-American neighborhood gathering spot. Family photographs, each with a brief story, will be displayed at the booths in the restaurant.

"There's a strong feeling among residents I've talked to in support of both restaurants," said Farms resident Bob Sfire. "I think they will complement each other."

"I am in favor of this," said Sandy Gillespie, owner of Something Special and Something Special, Too on the Hill. "It will be great to have more than one choice."

Despite the optimism generated by having two new restaurants on the Hill, the lack of parking, which has long plagued the Hill, was once again addressed.

"Usually, restaurants can play off each other," Schmidt said. "The only concern I have is parking. We plan to have a heavy business between noon and 3 (p.m.). In order to have this work well, there should be a study. Without adjacent, available parking, people won't come back. That's why we didn't go to Royal Oak."

Lucy's will offer valet parking. Schmidt's Chianti will not. Both restaurants' employees will use lease spots in the parking deck and B-lot along Muir, the proprietors said.

"It's nice to have two restaurants fighting to get on the Hill," said councilman Ed Gaffney. "If we approve this (Lucy's), we, as a city, have to commit to making this work."

The Lefevres plan to approach the Farms council again in October to obtain a liquor license.

Woods man finds fulfillment in Rotary

By John Minnis
Editor

As a successful entrepreneur, Woods resident Tom Coughlin has profited from the community, and as a Grosse Pointe Rotarian, he's given back to the community.

In March of 1988, Coughlin, now 33, opened a PIP Printing franchise on Mack at Roslyn in the Woods. At nearly the same time, Rotarian and businessman George Koueiter invited him to be a Rotarian. Since then, Coughlin has grown, both as a businessman and a Rotarian.

"Things have been fantastic," Coughlin said. "The franchise itself has been great. Business has been phenomenal.

"We've been growing. The past several years, things have peaked and we're doing well."

Coughlin also has a second PIP Printing store in Pointe Plaza.

Coughlin, who grew up in the area of Moross and Harper and graduated from Bishop Gallagher, was not a printer by training. Actually, he was an engineer with a bachelor's degree from Wayne State University.

After graduation, he worked for several years as a mechanical engineer at GM's Hydro-matic plant in Warren and at Lamb Technicon, also in Warren.

But working for someone else was not what Coughlin wanted to do with his life.

"I've always had that entrepreneur feeling," he said. "I didn't know enough about printing, so that's why I went with a franchise."

It was Coughlin's wife, Cathy, who piqued his interest in publishing. As an employee with IBM, she was experienced in publishing.

"I would have to say it's her background in publishing that led me to the field of printing," Coughlin said.

While his wife has since left IBM to take care of their two girls and a boy — ages 7, 5 and 3, respectively — she is Coughlin's "technical support" staff.

Also, Coughlin's background in engineering still comes in handy.

"I'm still very mechanically inclined," he said. "That degree and education behind you still helps." Coughlin said the growing popularity of Kinko's duplicating centers has not adversely affected his business. "I'm more of an offset printer," he said.

POINTER OF INTEREST

Shortly after starting his own business, Coughlin got involved in Rotary, an international service organization best known for its worldwide efforts to eradicate polio.

"When invited to join Rotary, I asked, 'What's Rotary?' I got really involved right off the bat," he said.

This year, Coughlin became the youngest president of the Grosse Pointe club in its 38-year history.

While the Grosse Pointe Rotary contributes to the community in many ways, including $14,000 in scholarships to Pointe high school seniors last year and $25,000 to the Children's Home of Detroit, Coughlin is most enthused over the Youth Exchange program.

Through the program, the Grosse Pointe Rotary invites two or three foreign high schools students each year to attend Grosse Pointe North and South high schools.

This year, two boys from Belgium and Germany are attending South, while a girl from Japan is going to North. Hosting the students is not restricted to Rotarians — anyone in the community can apply to be a host family.

"I think it's a good mix to have non-Rotarians host students," Coughlin said. "It's a great program. Youth is where it is. We have to take care of them now."

Currently, Coughlin is helping prepare for Grosse Pointe Rotary's bi-annual auction fundraiser to be held next spring. "The best thing," Coughlin said, is that all the money goes back into the community. "By making the community aware of what we do and who we are,

when we do go to the community, they know where the money goes."

The Grosse Pointe Rotary is also currently working on a membership campaign, but because Rotary is an exclusive organization, prospective members have to be invited and sponsored by a current Rotarian.

"We don't want just anyone in the club," Coughlin said. "We want the decision-makers."

"Rotary is a good way to meet the needs of the community. If we weren't here, there would certainly be a void."

"When you join a community and you're doing well and want to give something back, you can look at Rotary."

Coughlin said he moved to the Pointes because of the excellent school district and the closeness of the community.

When not busy with business or Rotary, Coughlin's time is filled with "kids, kids, kids," he said.

The wearing of the orange: AAA Safety Patrol program marks 75th year of service

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Don Pierce, a junior at Grosse Pointe North High School, has long since outgrown the bright orange canvas belt he wore when he was a AAA safety patroller at Monteith Elementary School.

But the 16-year-old will never forget the day he and a fellow patroller, James Moon, pulled three children out of the path of a speeding motorist.

"It was just a split-second reaction," said Pierce, recalling the Nov. 29, 1989 incident. At the time, Pierce was 10 and in the fifth grade.

"(Moon) and I were on patrol together at the corner of Cook and Holiday and there were several children waiting to cross Cook. The crossing guard walked into the street and held up the stop sign. She was in the middle of the street and then a car ran the stop sign," he said. "There were three children in the street and we pulled them out of the street. They were in the line of the car's path."

For their efforts, Pierce and Moon received national recognition at a ceremony in Washington, D.C., in August 1990 as well as being honored at a local award presentation at Monteith.

"I had no idea at the time that what I did would lead to recognition," he noted. "It was a split-second decision."

Pierce and Moon are the most recent and two of four Grosse Pointe school children who have been honored with the AAA School Safety Patrol Lifesaving Medal since the program was established in 1949.

Marshall Moser Jr. was honored in 1956 when he was a safety patroller at Poupard School and in 1954, Charles Ward, a student at Maire school, received the lifesaving award.

Pierce and other safety patrollers, past and present, are celebrating this month, which not only is school safety patrol month in Michigan, but also is the 75th anniversary of the program.

The AAA safety patrol is an organization of select students from the upper elementary grades who help their schoolmates to avoid pedestrian traffic accidents.

The program is voluntary and coordinated by AAA Michigan. It is administered by school districts, with help from parents and law enforcement agencies, and boasts more than 36,000 safety patrollers in Michigan.

Pierce said he enjoyed his two years on the safety patrol. It was his first taste of community service and it put him in a position of importance and responsibility, he said.

"All the time, when you are at that age, there are adults looking out for you," he explained. "It's a different situation with safety patrol. We are peers and classmates and it's more personal. I think the younger kids feel a sense of security because we are more familiar to them."

Pierce continues his community service efforts. He volunteers for the Foundation for Exceptional Children, was sophomore class president last year and is on the student senate this year. He also plays at the highest level of travel league hockey and is considering a career in medicine.

Moon could not be located.

Two-tone green 1956 Nash Ambassador Super four-door sedan was powered by a Packard V-8.

A once ubiquitous model, sedan delivery vehicles are now rare. This 1941 Plymouth is an unusually fine example.

This black 1946 Lincoln club coupe is rarely seen and a bargain at $10,900.

Thousands of goodies await car buffs at Indiana auction

The Kruse International Labor Day Classic Car Auction in Auburn, Ind., goes on for five days, so you have to plan carefully if you want to see one of the "star" attractions — like the Von Ribbentrop Mercedes-Benz 770 or the first prototype Tucker, the "Tin Goose" — cross the block.

But I am neither a planner-ahead nor am I attracted by "star cars." To me the greatest thing about this auction is that no matter when you arrive, there will be some 2,000 interesting autos of various vintages going through the auction and a similar number for sale in the Car Corral.

With that many cars, you are bound to see some ordinary cars you rarely encounter: cars that arouse feelings of nostalgia because they were once common and now they are not.

For example, one car that caught my eye was a two-tone green 1956 Nash Ambassador Super. Once considered rather odd, if not ugly, it was attracting a lot of attention on the lot outside the auction tent. For one thing, you don't see colors like that on cars anymore, sort of a pale pea green and a darker pea green accent. And it looked like new.

Essentially a second-generation rework of the 1952 Golden Anniversary Nash styled by Italian Designer Pinin Farina, the body had survived the merger of Nash and Hudson to form American Motors in 1954. The much-admired Hudson "step-down" design was retired and the 1955-57 Hudsons were Nashes with somewhat different trim. They have become known to collectors, particularly to the many Hudson fans, as "Hashes."

Both the Nash and Hudson names disappeared in 1958, as American Motors made Rambler its marque name. The Nash at Auburn, valued at around $7,500, was a luxurious car, powered by a Packard 352-cubic-inch V-8 mated with a Packard Ultramatic transmission. Nashes of the '50s were famous for their comfortable seats which reclined into a bed.

Another car once familiar which now is a rare period piece was a pink 1950 Willys-Overland Jeepster phaeton. This vehicle, available with four or six-cylinder power, had been introduced as a sporty version of the Willys Jeep station wagon, the first all-steel wagon on the market after World War II. The Jeepster was an open car designed by Brooks Stevens and helped keep Willys-Overland in business for a few more years.

Autos

By Jenny King

The 1950 Jeepster was just about the end of the line for this unusual vehicle. About 10,000 were built. A few were sold as '51 models, but they were leftover '50s. The car is valued at around $8,000.

Willys introduced a fashionable small car called the Aero, but it never really caught on. In 1953, Willys-Overland, which had begun building cars in Toledo in 1902 and was once the major sales rival to the Ford Model T, was acquired by Henry J.

Kaiser Co. and its name was changed to Kaiser-Willys Sales Corp. In 1955, the Kaiser-Willys ceased production in the United States and moved to Brazil, where the Aero was built for about 10 more years.

Also awaiting its turn on the auction block was a rarely seen 1951 Frazer Manhattan four-door hardtop sedan. The turquoise and white reminder of the end of the great sellers' market was the last of that nameplate and worth about $15,000. When new, it cost more than Buick, Hudson and some Lincoln models of that year.

The Frazer was the senior line of Kaiser-Frazer Corp., with models running $200 to $600 more than similar Kaisers, with which it shared bodies designed by Howard "Dutch" Darrin, famed for his special Packard designs in the '30s.

The company was formed by shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser and former Graham-Paige executive Joseph Frazer. Kaiser-Frazer was the first maker with a modern design after World War II and got off to a strong 70,000-sale start in the '47 model year.

The Frazer was completely restyled for 1951, which turned out to be its last year of production. One new model was the Manhattan four-door hardtop, which was not a true hardtop because it had a fixed centerpost. The centerpost had a glass panel in it, so the car looked like a hardtop.

Kaiser and Frazer did not develop a smooth working relationship and the demise of the Frazer car line was due at least in part to Frazer leaving the company in 1951.

A very attractive vehicle outside the main auction building was a 1941 Plymouth sedan delivery. Sedan delivery vehicles were ubiquitous in the '40s, but few have survived.

This '41 was the last Plymouth truck for several decades. Sedan deliveries were commercial vehicles used by grocers, dry cleaners, etc., who wanted a closed cargo area rather than an open pickup truck. They had the front end of a regular sedan and a back end that looked like a station wagon without any side windows. They were built on pickup truck chassis.

Sedan deliveries almost disappeared in the '40s, although Chevrolet kept building a few through the '50s. Their value has risen to where most are worth more than similar models of pickup trucks.

One of the most beautiful cars was in the Car Corral, a 1946 Lincoln Club Coupe. Lincoln Continental coupes and convertibles of the 1946-48 body style are often seen at shows, but the regular Lincoln, with body derived from the pre-war Zephyr but without the name, is very rare.

Like most American cars immediately after World War II, the 1946-48 Lincolns were warmed-over versions of pre-war designs. But with cars that looked like 1941-42 Lincoln Zephyrs and Continentals, Ford Motor Co.'s luxury line was in good shape.

Woods' new water billing system doesn't wash with some residents

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

To some Grosse Pointe Woods residents, the increase in their water bills is all wet. "We've had a few complaints," said Woods comptroller Cliff Maison. "They've come mostly from people who were below average consumers of water. With the new billing system, their water bill increases were above average."

The reason for the "above average" increases is simple, said Maison. Under the old system, residents' bills were directly reflective of the amount of water they consumed.

The new billing system, which just went into effect last month, charges residents a base fee, plus a rate based on the amount of water they used.

The new base fee is $29.40 a month, said Maison. So even if a resident used no water during the two-month billing period, that resident would still be paying $29.40 per billing unit.

The charge per unit of water went from $2.34 to $3.24. The city measures billing units in terms of 100 cubic feet of water, which comes out to about 700 gallons. Maison said the average Woods household use about 16 units of water per billing period.

"If you use less than 16 units of water, then your water bill can go up at a rate that's higher than average," said Maison. "We estimate that most water bills will go from $45 per billing period to about $80 — a 76 percent increase. But if you use, say, 10 units of water, your bill would go from $31 per period to about $62. That comes out to a 100 percent increase."

A few people had bills like that, and they contacted the Woods city hall to ask why their bills went up more than the 76 percent. Maison and his staff sat down with these residents and explained the statistical anomaly.

"We also had some confusion because the bills we sent out in August covered the months of June and July," said Maison.

"June was the last month of the old billing rate. July was the first month with the new rate. This resulted in a bill that used both rates, which confused people."

The city did send out one bill reflecting the two billing rates to save money. Sending out two bills would have doubled billing expenses, which include things like postage, the cost of envelopes and costs associated with handling bills sent back with payments, said Maison.

"From now on, all bills will reflect the new billing system," Maison said. "People, for the most part, understand why we had to raise our water rates.

We have to pay for Milk River, as well as increased costs charged by Detroit and or other much needed capital improvements."

When asked what they can do about the billing problem, Maison tells residents they should contact their local state representatives and ask them to change state laws to permit local representation on inter-county drain boards.

The Milk River pump station is run by an intercounty drain board with representatives from Macomb and Wayne counties, and the state department of agriculture.

Legislation drafted in the 1920s first created intercounty drain boards for the purpose of developing water and drainage systems in rural counties. What made sense 70 years ago does not always make sense in today's more urban and suburban Michigan said Maison.

"The Woods and Harper Woods were forced to pay for the intercounty drain board's solution to the problems of Milk River," said Maison. "We had no say on how our own money was going to be spent. If Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe Woods had a say, I believe the problems would have been solved, but not at a cost of $32 million."

Football now made easy for the novice fan

Donna Poole Foehr, author of "Touchdown! A Guide to Understanding and Enjoying Football," teaches Football for Everyone from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursdays, Sept. 21 to Oct. 12, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Foehr, an avid Detroit Lions fan (she has only missed attending two Lions home games in 20 years), feels that the more you learn about football, the more you enjoy the game. Often referred to as "the female John Madden," she has designed the series of classes to appeal to the veteran fan as well as the novice; men as well as women; youngsters as well as adults.

She presents, in straightforward, easy-to-understand language, all anyone needs to know about football and then some. Her topics include the basics of the game, player strategy, and behind-the-scenes happenings at all levels of play. From the coin toss to overtime, she puts all the information in perspective.

Class fee is $40 for four weeks. Call (313) 881-7511 for additional information.

You're never too old to go for it

When my youngest child went to kindergarten, I promised myself I would go back to bed and sleep until noon. It was a promise that fortified me during dark winter mornings when I had dragged myself from the warmth of my bed to answer the cry of a hungry baby, a 3-year-old's nightmare or a first-grader's stomach ache.

The day of emancipation came. No more was I on call for mid-morning snacks or to referee a pre-school disension.

But where was that elation I had expected to feel, that sense of freedom regained, that buoyant feeling of release?

Instead, I was at loose ends. I found that the habit of morning activity was too engrained. I couldn't even sit down in the morning. I decided that the best thing to do would be to do some work around the house and then settle down to enjoy my dear-bought leisure. But I found I couldn't stand the silence of the house.

I was actually lonesome for the call of a young voice to come and fix a sore finger or put together a jelly sandwich. Even going shopping didn't help. I was so used to reaching out for a tiny hand put trustingly in mine and the tug on skirts to buy gum or suckers.

What should have been a day of relaxation turned into a day of frustration. I was truly glad to hear the voices of hungry children, the thumping of little feet and the shrill demand of "What's for lunch?"

Nor was the second day better than the first. I couldn't

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

take the slowed-down pace. Yet I couldn't turn back the clock and make them all babies again. Change had to come from me. I knew that whatever adjustment I made would have to be geared to action. I had keyed myself to doing twice as much as I should, and at this point I couldn't slow down.

I didn't want a job outside my home. With 10 children, I was still needed to be there at hours that a full-time job would not accommodate. This opened a train of thought: I was not prepared to earn my own living, let alone those of my children should that time come. Our family was young.

Their expensive years were still ahead. Even if I did not have to be their sole support, another income would be welcome as they progressed through elementary school, high school and college.

Suddenly, I knew what I wanted to do, but dismissed it as impossible. Having chosen marriage and children over college, I did not have a degree, but for a mother with 10 children to go to college seemed ridiculous. The children and the house still needed looking after. There would be tuition to pay, books to buy, studying to do, but the more I thought about it the more determined I was to try it.

I don't think my determination would have been so firm except that we lived only two blocks from the University of Detroit. My husband was supportive. The kids thought it was a riot.

It was not easy, but it worked. I would attend classes in the mornings and be home by noon.

When it came time to choose a major, I chose journalism. My father had been a reporter, a Washington correspondent and, later, an editorial writer on The Detroit News. My husband was a reporter and an editor on

The Detroit Times. I loved to write and had written book reviews for various newspapers in metropolitan Detroit.

However, it didn't take a great intellect to realize that a full-time job working on a newspaper would be too demanding. The children were still in school, and whatever I chose would have to be work that enabled me to be home when they were there.

So it was back to college to get a degree in education. Being a teacher was the next best thing to being at home with my own children. My students were so enthusiastic and eager to learn. As we worked together, I found that both the children and I enjoyed story-time the most.

Then it was back to the university again to get a degree in library science, a degree that would give me the pleasure and the privilege of introducing children to the joys of reading, how books could help them in their studies and how to use the library.

But I never gave up on my writing. It was my recreation.

What I did was not extraordinary, and that is my message. You hear about men and women who have dreams of achieving a goal, but they hesitate because they think it's too late. If you want it, don't hold back.

Go for it!

Lester F. Ruwe

Lester F. Ruwe

Lester F. Ruwe, a prominent Detroit industrialist and sportsman, died Wednesday, Sept. 6, 1995, at his home in Grosse Pointe Farms. He was 93.

Born in Fremont, Neb., Mr. Ruwe attended schools there and later graduated from Northwestern University.

He began his career in the Texas oil fields. In 1923, he came to Detroit and became co-founder and partner of the Taggart Co., an oil and gas producing business. Mr. Ruwe developed a group of companies in the bunker and furnace oil industry in the 1920s and 1930s and became a leading figure in the business, civic and political life of the city.

Long involved in Republican politics, Mr. Ruwe was a friend of Presidents Nixon, Ford, Reagan and Bush, all of whom wrote congratulatory letters to him on his 90th birthday.

Mr. Ruwe was a dedicated supporter of his adopted city, Detroit. He worked for its rehabilitation and redevelopment and said that "it should represent the best that all the major industries in the area would like to have as part of their international image."

He and his late wife, Ruth Devoy Ruwe, were generous benefactors of local institutions. They were instrumental in persuading church officials not to close St. Peter and Paul Church on East Jefferson Avenue, the oldest standing public building in Detroit, and joined others in pledging substantial funds to keep the church in operation. He was a major supporter of the American Red Cross, the Boys and Girls Clubs of America and the Veterans Hospital in Allen Park.

Mr. Ruwe grew up hunting and fishing in Wyoming, Idaho and Montana. He fished for salmon in Scotland, Canada, Ireland and Norway. He and his son, the late Ambassador L. Nicholas Ruwe, fished for 30 years on their leased stretch of Iceland's Straumfjrdara River, where they had been preceded by Bing Crosby, who filmed "The American Sportsman" there in the mid-1950s. As a hunter, Mr. Ruwe's shooting expeditions took him through North America, the United Kingdom and Africa. He maintained a shooting lodge, St. Hubertus, in Canada.

Mr. Ruwe was a longtime winter resident of Palm Beach, Fla. He and his wife had developed an interest in Russian art and history as a result of Mrs. Ruwe's grandfather's friendship with pre-Soviet Russian royalty. Their Russian Easter parties became a fixture of the Palm Beach social scene, with Faberge treasures and Russian icons on display. The staff dressed in Russian costumes and Russian musicians provided the entertainment.

Mr. Ruwe was a member of the Everglades Club and Bath and Tennis Club in Palm Beach, the Yondotega Club, the Country Club of Detroit and the Grosse Pointe Club.

He is survived by a daughter, Nanette Ruwe. He was predeceased by his wife, Ruth Devoy Ruwe, and a son, L. Nicholas Ruwe, who had been President Nixon's chief of staff, assistant chief of protocol of the U.S. State Department and ambassador to Iceland, where he coordinated arrangements for the 1986 summit between President Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev.

Join the club

Here's a list of local ones

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Each September, the Grosse Pointe News offers a list of local clubs and organizations that are seeking new members. Now is the time to join a new group, make new friends, commit yourself to a new venture, a new charity, a new experience.

Here's our list for fall 1995:

Alpha Mu, the Grosse Pointe chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, is dedicated to helping Grosse Pointe schools and Grosse Pointe youths by funding in-service educational workshops and scholarships.

The group is looking for professional people 30 and older who are interested in educational excellence. Alpha Mu meets about five times a year, September through June, at members' homes, school libraries and local community centers.

For more information, call Michele Yankee, president, at (313) 824-2784.

The American Business Women's Association. The Grosse Pointe chapter of the ABWA is a non-profit organization that raises funds for scholarships by holding benefits such as mystery parties, auctions and fashion shows.

Businesswomen of all ages, skills and interests are encouraged to join. Meetings are held in Grosse Pointe Shores every month and local dues are $24 a year.

For more information, call Joanne Blaszkowski at (313) 881-6741.

The Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center is a not-for-profit organization that assists the Northeast Guidance Center with fundraising and volunteers. The organization's biggest projects are Art on the Pointe and the North American International Auto Show preview party.

The group consists of people committed to the community and to mental health. Dues are $25; $50 for sustaining members. Meetings are quarterly, held at local clubs and restaurants and at members' homes.

For more information, call Cathy Leverenz, president, at (313) 884-0404, or Anne Graves, membership chairman, at (313) 882-7164.

The Detroit Alumnae Panhellenic Association, a member of the Panhellenic Conference, is a non-profit all-alumnae sorority which helps panhellenic groups on Michigan campuses. It also offers scholarships to sorority women.

The group meets eight times a year.

Fundraisers include a spring luncheon, a garage sale, a tupperware sale and a raffle. Meetings are held at Barnes school and in Dearborn at the First United Methodist Church.

Friends of Vision, a not-for-profit volunteer arm of the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology, sponsors support group meetings and programs for the visually impaired.

The group consists of volunteers who actively work with the visually impaired. They meet two mornings a month at the DIO in Grosse Pointe Park, and dues are $20 a year.

The Friends of Vision produces and mails — free — a taped edition of the Grosse Pointe News, provides information and support by phone and sponsors fundraisers and social events to benefit its programs. Its biggest fundraisers are a spring luncheon and fashion show and the annual Eyes on Classic Design on the grounds of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House.

For more information call Nancy Fielding, president, at (313) 824-4710.

The Gather Together Smocking Guild is a local chapter of the Smocking Arts Guild of America. Members meet monthly to share programs and techniques to improve needle arts skills. Car pools are available.

For more information, call chapter president Dolores Blohm at (313) 886-6058.

Gilda's Club, Metro Detroit, a non-profit organization, provides a meeting place for people with cancer and their families and friends to support each other. Named in honor of the late comedian Gilda Radner, the mission of the club is to create a community of participation, education, hope and friendship so that no one ever has to face cancer alone.

The club has two annual fundraisers and needs volunteers to help at these events and to work in its office. The club is seeking a facility for its activities in the metropolitan Detroit area.

For more information, call (810) 851-6557.

Detroit Festival of the Arts is Sept. 15-17 in cultural center

The ninth annual Detroit Festival of the Arts (which is an expanded version of Grosse Pointe's Festival of the Arts) is expected to attract more than 250,000 visitors to the University Cultural Center Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 15, 16 and 17.

The 15-block area surrounding the Detroit Public Library, the Detroit Historical Museum, the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Detroit Science Center and the Center for Creative Studies will feature non stop entertainment on three stages and more than 120 artists from all over the country displaying and selling their work.

The IBM Children's Fair will give youngsters an opportunity to participate in more than 50 different activities, and several theatrical performances are designed especially for children.

Other attractions will include artists' demonstrations, tours of historic homes, a poetry festival, a film and video festival, carriage rides, souvenirs and ... of course ... food.

Tom and Pat Jeffs of Grosse Pointe Farms are general chairmen of the festival. They've been guiding and directing the hundreds of events that will take place over the three-day period and they've been raising corporate donations ($250,000-worth, so far). "The festival will be a wonderful collection of art, music, dance, history, film and more," Pat said. "We encourage Grosse Pointers to attend. There will be a special children's fair. The area is close, accessible, safe. There will be plenty of parking. People and families can stop in and browse, or make a whole day of it. Those who come once, will return every year."

Children will get a chance to participate in a variety of art activities at Children's Fair, part of the Detroit Festival of the Arts on Sept. 15-17.

Local artists who will participate include James and Tim Harkenrider of Grosse Pointe Woods; and Barry T. MacDonald and Janet Rubenstein, both of Grosse Pointe Park.

Sarah Hill of the City of Grosse Pointe is chairman of a brunch for all the artists on Saturday.

An eclectic line-up of musicians will perform throughout the three-day festival, including Dance of Colors, a mixture of African, Cuban, East Indian, Native American and Yemeni dances; Boukman Eksperyans, a Haitian roots-rock band; Mouth Music, a Celtic pop group; folk singers; Gospel singers; members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra; and local blues groups.

The Scarab Club will present a watercolor exhibition; the Center for Creative Studies will offer demonstrations in glass blowing, printmaking and weaving; Wayne State University will host special art exhibits; the Museum of African American History, the Children's Museum, the Detroit Historical Museum and the Detroit Public Library will offer special programs. Preservation Wayne will offer walking tours of the mansions of Ferry Avenue.

New this year is a Youth Artists' Market, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, featuring more than 50 young artists who will display (and sell) their creations.

Festival hours are 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Friday; 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday; and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

A special kick-off fundraiser will be held on Friday, Sept. 15. "Art a la Carte," an evening of art, food and entertainment, will begin with champagne and hors d'oeuvres on the lawn of the Detroit Public Library, overlooking festival activities. The evening includes dinner, some unusual entertainment and a silent auction for a limited edition collection of decanters designed by Erte. Tickets for "Art a la Carte" are $100 a person.

"Detroit's big events are the Thanksgiving Day parade, the Freedom Festival fireworks, the Grand Prix, and now ... the Detroit Festival of the Arts," Tom Jeffs said.

For more information about "Art a la Carte" or the festival itself, call (313) 577-5088.

Hospice benefit: The Henry Ford Hospice Society will hold its ninth annual Soiree on Friday, Sept. 15, at the Henry Ford Retirement Village, 15101 Ford Road in Dearborn.

The event will feature a collection of antique and contemporary quilts and dolls, titled "Keep Me Ever Warm: A Kaleidoscope of Quilts and Dolls."

The collection will be sold or auctioned to benefit Kaleidoscope Kids, a children's hospice program operated by Henry Ford Health System. Proceeds from the Soiree will benefit the Josefina B. Magno, M.D. endowed chair in hospice care at Henry Ford Hospital and Kalei-board of governors. Immediate past president is Pointer John McLellan.

Help wanted: The Detroit Institute of Arts needs about 250 new volunteers. Those interested should attend a volunteer orientation session at 12:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 1, at the DIA's lecture hall. For more information, call (313) 833-0247.

While a face-lift addresses sagging areas in the lower portion of the face, a brow-lift is intended to correct the top part of the face. Also known as a forehead lift, it involves the removal of extra skin and tissue in an effort to raise sagging eyebrows and redundant skin on the outer sides of the upper eyelids, as well as improve frown lines between eyebrows and horizontal forehead creases. The standard brow-lift calls for an incision to be made from ear to ear across the top of the head behind the hairline; however, newer endoscopic techniques render this large incision unnecessary. Instead, the surgeon need only make several 1-centimeter incisions behind the hairline, through which the endoscope and surgical instruments are inserted to perform the procedure.

Many of us tend to show the heaviest signs of aging in our brow; thus the popularity of hair styles with bangs. If you'd like to sport a clear and youthful brow, this is an affordable procedure which is made much more attractive with the advent of the endoscope. Call 810-415-6800 or fax 810-415-6804 to schedule a consultation to discuss your options. I am certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery. You can learn more by tuning in to my radio show, "Why Fool With Perfection?" on WCAR, 1090 AM every Thursday morning at 10 AM. My offices are located at 30140 Harper Avenue, Suite 100 in St. Clair Shores. I also offer a full line of my specialized skin care products which has had continued successful results with pigmentation problems.

P.S. An endoscope is a flexible, tube-shaped instrument equipped with lenses and a light source that may be inserted through a tiny incision to give surgeons a view inside the body.

Great Women

A revolutionary woman.

In 1872, Susan B. Anthony and twelve women were arrested while attempting to vote in a presidential election. This milestone was just one in a long life dedicated to the women's suffrage movement.

Today, because of the path she chose, our nation's women have the power to change things for the better.

Grosse Pointe Ski Club members traveled to Snowmass, Colo., last February for a week of skiing. From left are Bob Meacham, Ruth Stone, Jane Schmeck, Rosemary Dorr and Germaine Dorr.

Roxanne Varzi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Massoud Varzi of the City of Grosse Pointe, was awarded a National Research Council fellowship for the summer institute in general Asian language and culture focusing on intensive Tajik language at the University of Washington. Varzi is working on a Ph.D. in near eastern civilization and anthropology.

Jennifer Ettel of Grosse Pointe Park, a freshman majoring in biology, was named to the spring semester dean's list at the University of Rochester.

Emily K. Votruba of Grosse Pointe Park and Kelly D. Sucher of Grosse Pointe Woods were named to the president's list for achieving perfect 4.0 grade point averages at Miami University.

Jehan F. Varzi of the City of Grosse Pointe earned a bachelor of arts degree from the School of International Service of the American University. He majored in economics and international studies.

Catherine Maclean of the City of Grosse Pointe, Mary Marks of Grosse Pointe Woods and Nicholas J. Vournakis of Grosse Pointe Farms were named to the dean's list for the second semester at Miami University.

Kimya F. Varzi of the City of Grosse Pointe returned from a year of study in Rome, with the Rome program of St. Mary's College, where she is a junior.

Kai A. Bickenbach, son of Hellmuth and Veronica Bickenbach of the City of Grosse Pointe won a Phillips Classical Prize at the University of Michigan.

Todd Robert Southwell, son of Sharon and Robert Southwell of Grosse Pointe Shores, was named to the spring semester dean's list at the John Marshall Law School in Chicago. He is a second-year law student.

Timothy P. Kavanagh, son of Patrick and Jeanne Kavanagh of Grosse Pointe Woods, a senior at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, spent the summer studying at the University of Valencia in Spain.

Navy Ensign Brooks B. McFeely III of Grosse Pointe Farms, graduated recently from the United States Naval Academy.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

Everyone who plays our game is some kind of a genius at least once every 16 months. The only difference between us and the genuine wonders of 20th century whist is that they put their brilliance to work much more often.

There seems to be two significant reasons new talent embraces duplicate play: an enjoyable diversion or the challenge of developing competitive technique.

Most of the young haven't made our game a priority because of the limits on their time. The entry-level for the vast majority is past 40. Yet the young have the best essentials as their minds are quick and they have a much stronger moxie to concentrate and comprehend drill.

Eugene Mondry of Franklin was brought forth upon this continent by parents who were true-blue, accomplished and resolute. His father once told him, "God, family and fortune come first, then if you wish to champion other causes do so, but at your own risk. Be extremely careful of two games of chance: golf and bridge. I find that at certain times they are too dangerous to play with any assurance of victory. Especially Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Tuesday and Friday before sunset. The others are Saturday and Sunday before the sun crosses the yard-arm."

It was therefore quite natural for Gene to complete his formal education at Central High, Wayne and the University of Michigan, where his academics took preference over his love for football, track and tennis. Then came the family business; lovely Sheila; and three fine sons, Joshua, Mitchell and Andrew, who have become accomplished in their chosen ventures.

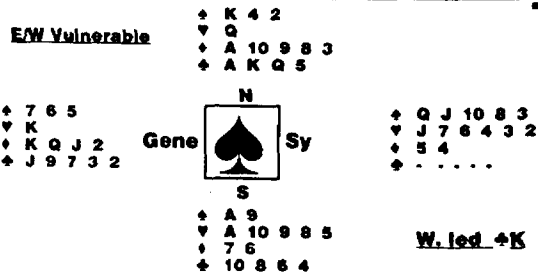

In the exciting years that followed, Gene adhered to his father's warning and avoided most games of chance. His primary diversion was sailing, for he loved the wind and the waves that powered a racing fleet. In time he acquired his own set of sails which he ran up the spar of a sleek ship he christened Leading Edge. For the decade that followed, he became a contending factor in every Great Lakes Mackinac race.

Yes, there were those quiet weekend evenings when he'd go chasing par at the country club, but while he still enjoys the game tremendously it was his son Joshua who became the family's scratch golfer and one of Michigan's leading amateurs. Astonishing as it may seem, it was on the fairways that his interest in duplicate play was kindled. Two of his old pals, Danny Feldman and Seymore Goodman, were often part of Gene's foursome and they never quit verbiaging about bridge, even over clutch putts.

In the past three years Gene has become totally involved. Our game has gained a gentleman player and strong competitor whose only immediate goal is improvement. In time, such an attitude will get him a life master rating. As Dr. Willie Winckur, one of our best bridge professors, says, "Gene has the ability, it's just a question of desire."

Recently I kibitzed his play and his defense of today's hand in partnership with Sy Goodman, which was most adroit and well above the level of his experience.

E/W Vulnerable

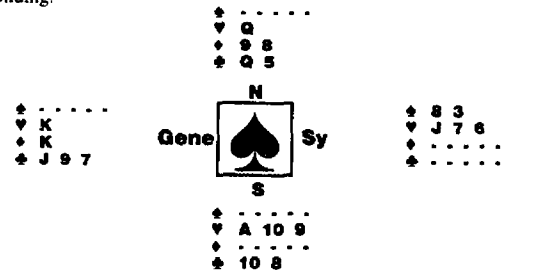

W. led 2

As you can see, the contract wasn't a cinch. Seven winners for sure and maybe a second diamond or fourth club, but South was some kind of a just-less-than-expert-type and he was a favorite to succeed.

Many sitting West would lead the top of his diamond honor sequence. But Gene felt that would be making a play that would favor declarer and he was right. After a modest amount of brain power strain he got off to the excellent lead of the spade seven. Now the result favored the best technique.

Declarer won his spade ace; lost a diamond to Gene's jack and ducked the spade continuation. At trick (4) he won dummy's spade king and played the ace, king of clubs, which revealed the unfavorable split and the possibility of an end play. If at trick (7) he'd played the heart queen to his ace and a diamond back to dummy's ace, he'd have Gene locked in an end play by leading dummy's diamond ten at trick (9). But he didn't. Instead, at trick (7) he played the diamond ace and then the ten and here was the five card ending.

Gene next won his diamond king completing his defensive book, but what next? He knew the club play at trick (10) meant disaster so reluctantly he led his majesty, the king of hearts. Declarer still had to lose a club.

DIA offers family fun

The Detroit Institute of Arts is offering fall YouthArt workshops for families and students of all ages and skill levels. During October and November, students can design and make ceramics, monoprints, books, baskets, and more in either one- or three-day sessions. Not only do participants get to create their own masterpieces, they also get to explore the museum's collection for inspiration before returning to the studio to make their projects.

Workshop instructors include Detroit Public Schools teachers and other experts trained in both art and education. The classes are small, allowing instructors to give individual attention to students and help them focus their creative talents.

Tuition begins at $10 for one two-hour session and includes all materials. Advanced registration is required. To receive a schedule and registration form, call (313) 833-4249.

Travel

The climate is tropical so snorkeling, diving and beach barbecues are the norm. Departures are scheduled from Nov. 27 to March 11. Prices are $650-$850 for three days; $890 to $1,000 for four days; and $1,500 to $1,900 for seven days. For information, call (800) 447-5667.

Cruises on the Yangtze River of China are becoming increasingly popular and several ships are on this route. Prices drop at this time of year because winter is considered the off season. Victoria Cruises operates two new 154-passenger ships, with all outside state-rooms. Pricing is rather different: The longer, upstream cruises are actually cheaper than the shorter, downstream trips. For example, in 1996 the upstream trip (five nights) costs $640 for a standard room; the downstream trip (three nights) costs $690. Call (800) 348-8084 for details.

Regal China Cruises operates three ships, each carrying 258 passengers. Five-day trips are priced from $680 to $2,150 per person. Call (800) 768-3388. And even Holiday Inn has a new ship on the river. A year ago it put the East King, a 160-passenger vessel, in service and the East Queen comes on line this year. Call (800) HOLIDAY.

Most expedition ships aren't very plush, but the MS Hanseatic (170 passengers) is definitely on the fancy side. Yet it is still very much an expedition vessel, carrying a fleet of 14 Zodiac landing craft. This winter's schedule takes it to the Galapagos Islands, then to the Chilean Fjords and Falklands and finishes with a series of Antarctic cruises. If you enjoy the amenities, this ship is well worth considering. Call (800) 285-1835.

Of the larger ships offering exotic ports, Orient Lines' 800-passenger Marco Polo is entering its second winter season of ferreting far-away destinations at prices more comparable to mainstream cruise ships. A ship this size gives passengers the opportunity to "dress up, eat good food and dance in the evenings." Call (800) 333-7300 for details.

South girls take first place in Algonac meet

Grosse Pointe South's girls cross country team couldn't have picked a better way to open the season.

The Blue Devils took first place in the 15-team Algonac Invitational and had five girls earn medals, including overall winner Aimee Vasse.

Vasse sped away from the field of 105 runners as she posted a career-best time of 19:11.

Kate Crowley was fourth in 20:15, Dara O'Byrne ninth in 21:18, Elizabeth Borowiec 20th in 21:36 and Chris Littmann 22nd in 21:38.

South had 56 points to 58 for runner-up Chippewa Valley. Ford II was third with 137, followed by Anchor Bay 139 and Regina 140.

South also ran well in the junior varsity race, taking five of the first seven places.

Sandra Hammel, Rebecca Padilla and Emily Mitchell finished 1-2-3, while Melissa Balok and Stephanie Kiem were also in the top seven.

Outstanding performances came from freshmen Kim Smale, Kate Aiken and Marie Maurer; sophomores Sarah Handley, Mary Richardson and Cheryl MacKechnie; juniors Christy Zalewski, Emilia Kwiatkowski and Dayna Bourbeau; and seniors Jenny Failla, Kate Callas and Megan Steele.

Coach Steve Zaranek has 75 runners, making this year's squad the biggest ever at South.

The Blue Devils' goals include a 17th straight league title, an undefeated season — South hasn't lost a league dual meet since 1979 and is unbeaten in all duals since 1989 — a sixth straight regional championship and a 17th consecutive trip to the state finals, extending the Blue Devils' own state record.

"We'll be led by returning All-Stater Aimee Vasse, junior Kate Crowley and sophomore Jonnie Vasse," Zaranek said. "Depth will again be the key ingredient in the success of the team."

"Juniors Dara O'Byrne, Elizabeth Borowiec, Sandra Hammel and Rebecca Padilla are off to excellent starts, as are seniors Lisa McCurdy, Stephanie Kiem and Maggie Lucas. Sophomore Chris Littmann will also add to the team's depth."

Zaranek expects South's toughest competition in the Macomb Area Conference White Division to come from Anchor Bay and Warren-Mott, while a strong lineup of invitational meets also awaits the Blue Devils.

"We look good right now to repeat as league champs and also as state regional champs," Zaranek said.

South boys

Grosse Pointe South's boys cross country team finished fourth in last weekend's Muskrat Invitational at Algonac.

Cousino won the team championship with 52 points, the only squad to score fewer than 100 points. The Patriots were followed by East Detroit and Port Huron. South had 130 points.

Three Blue Devils earned medals for finishing in the top 20. Jon Van Hoek was seventh with a time of 16:59. Nat Spurr was 17th (17:13) and Ben Butler was 19th (17:19).

Jeff Pilley and Liang Way Chu rounded out South's top five.

South's Tim Nicholson won the junior varsity race in 18:20 and teammate Chas Carrier was third in 18:23.

Blue Devils' coach Tom Wise also praised the performances of John Nicholson, Chris Goldsby, Corey Johnson and Brian Steele.

Norsemen finally beat Falcons

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It's too early to tell how Grosse Pointe North's boys cross country team will fare this season, but the Norsemen have already accomplished something noteworthy.

They edged Ford II 27-29 in a Macomb Area Conference crossover meet in their season opener at Dodge Park in Sterling Heights.

"I think that's the first time we've ever beaten them," said North coach Pat Wilson. "I know it's our first win against Ford in at least 10 years. Last season we led them until the last 400 yards and they just nosed us out."

"Each of us lost our top two runners from last year, but we had just a little bit better group coming back."

The Falcons took first place, but North's Kevin Grant and Jeff Henson took second and third, respectively. Tom McGrane got fifth place for the Norsemen, while Rob Tomassi was eighth and Suchin Shah took ninth.

"Chris Hirt, a sophomore running his first varsity meet, was 10th and that knocked Ford's fifth man back a notch," Wilson said.

"It was a hot, humid day. The times weren't great, but the kids competed well. Our top runners had a good summer — as good as we've had in some time. All the kids we're counting on came back in good shape."

North followed its dual meet win over Ford II with a sixth-place finish in the Muskrat Invitational at Algonac.

The Norsemen had two medalists in Grant, who was sixth in 16:58, and Henson, whose ninth-place time of 17:01 shaved 20 seconds off his best time of a year ago.

McGrane turned in a solid 17:55 performance, while Suchin, Tomassi, Hirt and Randy Larribee all had good drops in time.

"McGrane did a nice job establishing himself as the No. 3 runner behind Grant and Henson," Wilson said. "He's set the tone for the others to try to catch him and close the gap be-

Revolutionary paint product introduced by Hallmark Wallpaper & Paint

A revolutionary new product, described as "the ultimate finish for all interior and exterior surfaces," will be introduced by Hallmark Wallpaper and Paint this month. The product, Diamondhard Acrylic Enamel, is "truly one of the finest quality general purpose coatings available today," said company product manager Steve Murray. "Because Diamondhard adheres to virtually any surface, it is the one paint that can be used for almost every project."

Diamondhard is an all-purpose water base enamel paint that outperforms most oil-based products. The water base formula offers convenience, added safety and ease of application in a state-of-the-art protective coating. It features a gloss finish that stays glossy, excellent color retention, and a guarantee of durability. In addition, it will adhere to virtually any paintable interior or exterior surface, including wood, metal, glass, brick, concrete, drywall, galvanized, masonry, plastic, PVC, tile, vinyl, iron, steel, aluminum, copper, linoleum, plaster, ceramic, and other materials.

Diamondhard is available at Hallmark Eastown Paint and Wallpaper in Grosse Pointe Woods, Hallmark Wallpaper and Paint in Dearborn, Hallmark/Walker-Crawford in Royal Oak, Hallmark Warehouse Color Center in Bloomfield Hills, and Hallmark Wallpaper and Paint in Rochester Hills.

"It is ideal for walls, trim, doors, cabinets, fixtures, pipe, railing and equipment," Murray said. "It can be used over epoxy, lacquer, latex paint, oil enamel, polyurethane, varnish or factory finishes. It is also self-priming over many surfaces."

"This coating is remarkable and is the first product to offer this unique combination of features in a user-friendly water base formula."

"Not only does it have excellent durability, fade resistance and color retention, but in our extensive research, development and field testing process, it was difficult to find a paintable surface that Diamondhard will not adhere to," said Murray. "It can literally be used to paint almost anything."

Hallmark Wallpaper and Paint is a division of Columbus, Ohio-based Yenkin Majestic Paint Corp. manufacturers of Diamondhard. The company is currently celebrating the 75th anniversary of its founding in 1920.

"Our Diamond anniversary is the perfect time to introduce this new product," Murray said. "It demonstrates the continuation of our company's history of excellence in developing quality coating products that exceed the demands of the customer."

Fall remodeling show opens in Novi Sept. 28

Riding the remodeling boom sweeping across the metropolitan Detroit area, the third annual Fall Remodeling Show will be open Thursday, Sept. 28, through Sunday, Oct. 1, at the Novi Expo Center.

"The average American home is turning 28 years old and Americans' taste in homes has changed considerably over the years. The biggest difference is the desired size for kitchens and baths," said Janet L. Compo, president of the non-profit Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan (BIA) and chief executive officer of James D. Compo Inc. of Farmington Hills. "Kitchen and bath concepts are just the tip of the iceberg at this show where homeowners can find everything from major remodeling ideas to simple home decorating notions."

Special highlights include secrets of wallpapering, painting and faux finishes as seen on ABC's "Good Morning America" and Learning Channel's "Homebodies" by "Wall Wizard" Brian Santos, designer consultations and clinics from members of the American Society of Interior Designers, gardens created by members of the Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association, local FTD florists' Christmas, Halloween and Welcome Home floral arrangements competition, Showcase of Distinctive Homes, pictorial display of new homes sponsored by BIA, demonstrations on decorating, home repair and remodeling and a Treasure Chest contest with daily prizes.

Over 200 exhibitors will show their most interesting and up-to-date products and services for kitchens, baths, doors, windows, yard/gardens, remodeling, interior design, furniture, arts and crafts, decorative accessories, pet accessories, electronics, heating, cooling and appliances.

BIA also sponsors the International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show at the Cobo Conference-

The Novi Expo Center is located at I-96 and Novi Road. Show hours are from 2-10 p.m. Thursday and Friday; 10 a.m. - 10 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. - 8 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $6 for adults; $4 for seniors; $3 for children 6-12 with children under 6 admitted free. Family tickets for two adults and accompanying children are available at Farmer Jack for $9. Parking is available at the Novi Expo Center for a fee. For more information, call (810) 737-4478.

In-law suite — wheelchair adaptable

By W.D. Farmer, F.A.I.B.D.

A long covered front porch directs entry into this unique home. An open foyer further directs traffic either to the activity room, library or bedroom wing.

The library is only visually segregated from the foyer and the formal dining room. The activity room has a full 12 foot ceiling and is accented by a central fireplace, open rail stair to the basement and rear sun deck access.

Neighboring this room is the deluxe kitchen breakfast room with a unique counter with projecting angles. This counter houses the sink and incorporates a snack bar for serving ease. The breakfast room has a vaulted ceiling and lots of windows. A half bath and full laundry room are adjacent.

The discrete beauty of this plan is the in-law suite isolated behind the three car garage. This room includes a full bath or the alternate wheelchair adaptation bath as well as a large walk-in closet.

There are three large bedrooms located on the opposite end of the

The master suite is overwhelming both in size and amenities. The bedroom boasts a tray ceiling and the garden bath includes his and hers vanities as well as separate shower and garden tub. A particularly impressive walk-in closet is shown in this area too.

Detroit Edison suggests ways customers can manage bills

The long, hot summer of 1995 has tested southeastern Michigan residents' ability to cope with unrelenting heat waves. Rising temperatures often mean rising electric bills as many homeowners and business people struggle to beat the heat with the help of air conditioning. Nearly 80 percent of Detroit Edison's residential customers have either central air conditioning or room air conditioning units.

Detroit Edison encourages customers who foresee bill-payment problems to contact the utility. The company also has some suggestions on how customers can manage rising energy costs and use.

If customers have difficulty paying a high bill, the first step is to call Detroit Edison at 1-800-477-4747. The utility will help customers make payment arrangements and may be able to direct low-income customers to other sources of bill-payment assistance.

"We want to know if a customer has a problem so we can help immediately," said Ronald L. Klinect, Detroit Edison manager for customer service. "This allows us to keep bill payments at an affordable level."

Customers also can use energy-saving tips to help them make wise choices that can save money.

Closing blinds, shades and draperies keeps the sun out and helps fans and air conditioners cool more efficiently. Window fan users also should make sure draperies are secured for better air circulation and safety.

Set the thermostat on the highest comfortable setting. You can reduce cooling costs by 5 percent just by raising the temperature two degrees.

If you have an extra refrigerator in your garage, consider unplugging it or using it only when necessary. A refrigerator in an uncooled space uses more energy to keep food cold.

Check weather-stripping and caulking around doors and windows to keep warm outside air from entering the space you are cooling. Storm windows should be closed to keep hot air out and cold air in.

Regular maintenance will help air conditioners last longer and work better, but remember to disconnect the electrical power when working on them. Keep the outside portion of air conditioners free of dust and debris, clean fan blades annually and clean or change air filters every 90 days during the cooling season.

When using a window air conditioner, close doors leading to uncooled parts of the home for better, more efficient cooling.

If you are having difficulty cooling the upper level of a multi-story home with central air conditioning, consider closing registers on the lower level to push cool air upstairs. Closing doors between floors also keeps cool air upstairs. These steps can help maintain reasonable comfort on the upper level without overcooling other portions of the home.

Detroit Edison offers customer appliance repair plan

Detroit Edison customers can eliminate worries about paying for basic appliance repairs and finding quality service technicians by joining the utility's new appliance repair plan. The plan initially will offer service contracts to customers in southern Wayne County and gradually will be expanded to Detroit Edison customers throughout southeastern Michigan during the next year.

Under the plan introduced recently, customers pay a monthly fee of $9.99 for an appliance service contract. The contract covers parts and labor for repairs due to normal mechanical failures on major appliances, including furnaces, water heaters, refrigerators and ranges.

Other appliances can be included in the service contract for an additional $2.95 per month per appliance. Other appliances that can be covered include whole house air conditioners, window or portable air conditioners, microwave ovens, chest or upright freezers, dishwashers and clothes washers or dryers.

"Peace of mind comes from knowing that you will not be faced with major, unanticipated repair charges," said Robert J. Buckler, Detroit Edison senior vice president for energy marketing and distribution. "Our customers want one number to call and someone they can trust when their appliances need repairs."

Detroit Edison is developing a network of qualified, reliable service specialists who can answer calls around the clock 365 days a year. After enrollment, customers will receive a toll-free hotline number to call when appliance repairs are needed.

The plan will become available in the fall to residents of Macomb County and northern and western Wayne County. Detroit Edison will offer the program to customers in other southeastern Michigan communities in the following months.

For further information about Detroit Edison's appliance repair plan, call 1-800-395-5582.

IOF offers free information on college financial aid assistance

In order to help parents sort through the college financial aid process, the IOF Foresters is offering a free guide called "38 Ways To Guide Your Child to a College Education." The guide offers practical ways to save money during college and lists various types of financial aid. To receive your free copy call, toll free, 1-800-922-4-IOF.

The money is there. Billions go unclaimed.

The National Commission on Student Financial Assistance found that while there was more than $35 billion in aid available to students from corporations, only $2.7 billion was used. Some $33.7 billion went unclaimed, not because people were unqualified, but because they didn't know where to look.

College is expensive. According to IOF Foresters, a fraternal organization that provides college planning assistance, the cost of a four-year private college education is fast approaching $100,000, and some state schools have been raising their tuition faster than the privates. During the past 10 years the cost of a college education has doubled. Financial aid experts at the IOF Foresters say that over the next 10 years costs will keep climbing.

"But don't panic," says Lori Sennett, a college planning specialist at IOF. "There is a great deal of financial aid available — and we are talking billions of dollars. Available funds from the private sector, which totaled $56 billion in 1987, increased to $151 billion in 1992. And the number of other sources for financial aid is growing. One-fifth of all aid is now funded by the colleges themselves."

Fraternal benefit societies like IOF Foresters offer $11 million in financial assistance. They also inform their members and the public about the ins and outs of paying for college.

Did you know that if you're a Mexican-American between the ages of 17 and 22 and live in the Golden State, you just might strike gold with the $1,500 Vikki Carr Scholarship. And for those whose ancestors put their John Hancock on the Declaration of Independence, the Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence have scholarships available. Harvard has scholarships for students named "Pennoyer," "Downer," and "Ellis," regardless of need.

Don't think you can't get financial assistance because you earn too much money; 80 percent of the private sector does not require a financial statement or proof of need.

And don't believe that grades are the only consideration for an award; 90 percent of private sector applications are not concerned with grades.

The truth is that the families who receive the most financial aid are not necessarily the ones with the most need. The people who receive the most aid are the people who best understand the aid process.

The IOF Foresters is one of the world's oldest and largest family fraternal benefit societies dedicated to supporting projects that strengthen family life.

Nachure Fresh eliminates unwanted odors

A new odor control product from Agro Solutions of Tama, Iowa, is Nachure Fresh, an odorless environmentally safe powder that can be used with dogs, cats, birds and other small animal litters, cages, kennels and bedding.

Beddings and litters last longer and stay sunshine-fresh when treated with Nachure Fresh. It is not a perfume, and odors will not return when the product is used as recommended. It eliminates urine, feces and vomit odors from the area being treated. Nachure Fresh can also be used to remove odors from carpet and furniture that has been fouled by animals.

Nachure Fresh works by slowly releasing solid oxygen into the animal waste, eliminating all offensive odors naturally over a short period of time by the reaction of the urine, feces or vomit and Nachure Fresh. Used as directed, Nachure Fresh prevents ammonia and hydrogen sulfide gas formations and eliminates all offensive pet odors in the home and pet areas.

Nachure Fresh is 100 percent environmentally friendly, odorless, will not harm skin, carpet or furnishings, is cost effective and safe and easy to use. By simply sprinkling over litter boxes, cages, kennels or bedding weekly or semi-weekly, Nachure Fresh will eliminate odors in most areas. Follow instructions on bottle for carpet and furniture odor removal.

For information on becoming a dealer/distributor or how to purchase direct, contact: Agro Solutions, P.O. Box 326, Tama, Iowa 52339 or call 1-800-455-7775.
