League drops plan for Show House on Bishop

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Citing neighborhood opposition, the Junior League of Detroit cancelled plans to have its 1996 Show House at a home at 1007 Bishop in Grosse Pointe Park.

Several residents of the 1000 block of Bishop approached the Park city council at its Nov. 13 meeting and asked council members to not to allow the League to have its Show House on the 1000 block of Jefferson.

Former Park councilman David Gaskin, who in past years voted to allow a Show House in the Park, and his wife Carol, a member of the Junior League, spoke out against having the Show House on Bishop, citing traffic problems, and lack of notification and consultation with Bishop residents, as reason to deny the variance.

Other Bishop residents cited safety concerns and wondered why they had to bear the burden of having 25,000 visitors to the block in a three-week period.

The council asked Junior League representatives to meet with public safety director Richard Caretti and Bishop residents to see if they could iron out any problems concerning traffic and other concerns on Tuesday, Nov. 14.

The council met in a special session on Wednesday, Nov. 15, to determine whether or not to grant the Junior League the variances needed to have the Show House in the park.

The council consulted with Caretti who said that the league had agreed to work with his department and follow its

WEEK AHEAD

Week ahead

Thursday, Nov. 23

Happy Thanksgiving. The Grosse Pointe News offices will be closed.

Friday, Nov. 24

The Village's 19th Annual Santa Claus Parade begins at 10:30 a.m. at South High School and winds up in the Village.

Monday, Nov. 27

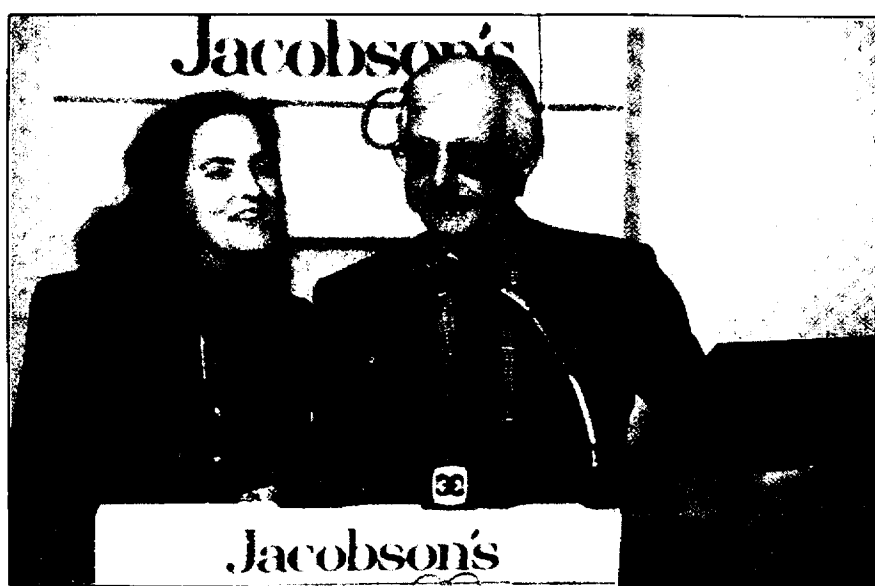

The Grosse Pointe Woods Lions Club will wear red Santa hats while they sell Goodfellow newspapers. In addition to newspapers, many local businesses will sell Lions Christmas candy and coloring books. Proceeds from the fundraising projects will go to more than 30 charitable organizations, including the Children's Home of Detroit, Newspapers for the Blind and Leader Dogs for the Blind.

Grosse Pointe Woods resident and Detroit News columnist Pete Waldmeir will sign copies of his new book, "Little Beads of Blood," at 6 p.m. at Marge's Bar, 15300 Mack, in Grosse Pointe Park.

Waldmeir will also sign copies of his book on Wednesday, Nov. 29, and Thursday, Nov. 30, at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club Christmas Boutique.

Woods checks record to find out if water rate reduction is feasible

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Woods residents, put off by the large water and sewer rate increases recently enacted by the city, could be getting some good news in the future.

Woods mayor Robert Novitke announced at the Nov. 6 council meeting that figures from the first billing period using the new rates were in and the news was encouraging.

Novitke said that the new water bills were based on certain assumptions concerning the amount of storm water, among other factors, that the Woods would be sending to Detroit for processing.

Under the terms of the agreement the city has with Detroit's water and sewer department, the Woods is charged for the amount of sewage it sends to Detroit for processing. Because the city does not have separate storm and sanitary sewers, all surface water is sent to Detroit for processing, said Novitke.

So when it rains, the Woods pays for the water that goes to Detroit via the city's storm sewers. Until recently the city had a permit to discharge combined sewage overflows into Milk River.

But the state Department of Natural Resources has been cracking down on communities that discharge CSOs, and ordered the Woods and Harper Woods to stop discharging. The intercounty drain board that manages the two communities' storm sewer decided the best way to end discharges was to build an 18-million gallon retention basin.

So during heavy storms when storm and sanitary sewer outflows overwhelm the sewer system, the excess sewage is pumped to the retention basin instead of being discharged into Milk River.

If the basin fills up, 18 million gallons of combined sewage will eventually have to be sent to Detroit for processing, 18 million gallons that in the past the city wouldn't have had to pay for processing.

So when the city had to set water rates for the year, the city's comptroller, Cliff Maison, had to estimate CSO processing costs without having any figures to compare them to.

So, said Novitke, when Maison made his estimate of costs, no one knew if the city's expenses would actually equal those costs. A review of the first quarter under the new billing system has shown that actual costs have been lower than estimated costs.

"This is good news," said Novitke. "If the second quarter costs are lower than estimated costs, it is possible that the council will vote to lower water

Park denies conflict in condo project

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

In a statement issued on Nov. 16, Grosse Pointe Park officials strongly denied that any conflict-of-interest existed because developers chose to use a real estate agency that council member Shirley Kennedy works for to market a condominium project in the city.

At the regular city council meeting on Nov. 13, Grosse Pointe Realtor Jim Saros, speaking on behalf of several Grosse Pointe real estate agencies, asked the Park council to reconsider Champion & Baer's exclusive deal to market the Jefferson condominium project.

"All we want is to be treated fair," said Saros. "We've heard from a number of people and they've been asking how Champion & Baer can be in charge of marketing, when Shirley Kennedy works at the agency and is a member of the council. I'm not saying that anything unethical has happened, but the perception of unethical behavior is very strong in the community."

Saros acknowledged that all of Grosse Pointe's real estate agencies can sell condo units. But, he said, the marketing agency has a great advantage in what he termed "spin-offs."

"When the open house was held in city hall a couple of weeks ago, Champion & Baer was able to compile a list of over 100 prospective buyers," said Saros. "That's 100 leads they can follow up on. If those people decide they don't want to purchase a condo, Champion & Baer has the opportunity to show them other houses for sale in Grosse Pointe. The spin-off potential is tremendous. We're talking about millions of dollars."

The solution to the problem is simple, Saros said. Trimount Developers, which is building the condominiums, should place a representative at the site to answer questions and to refer potential buyers to their own real estate agency.

This would allow Champion & Baer the opportunity to sell condo units, and not be punished by employing Kennedy, while at the same time not giving the agency an advantage over other Grosse Pointe agencies. This would also eliminate any questions of the appearance of a conflict of interest.

Saros was not the only real estate agent at the council meeting. Several others from different agencies were on hand to emphasize that he was not speaking alone.

A spokesman for Trimount said that when the company chose Champion & Baer to market the project in Grosse Pointe, Shirley Kennedy had nothing to do with the decision. Rather, Champion & Baer was chosen because Skip Baer and Cathy Champion convinced Trimount executive John Vincenti in their pitch that they were the agency for the job.

"Grosse Pointe Park, once they sold us the property along Jefferson needed to complete the condo project, had nothing to do with which agency was selected to market the project," said Brian Streck of Trimount. "Mr. Vincenti was impressed with Champion & Baer's pitch. That's why they were selected — not because the city council wanted us to select them. Once we had the property, the council was out of the picture."

Park city attorney Herold McC. Deason, in an unusual move, scheduled a private meeting with Kennedy and the media at 4 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 16, to respond to Saros' statements.

Deason, in a prepared statement, said that the question of a potential conflict of interest was thoroughly researched even before Saros came before the council.

Deason pointed out that the city entered into an agreement to sell Trimount its property on Jefferson for the purpose of developing condominium units. There was only one stipulation the city placed on Trimount in regard to using a real estate agency to market the condo units.

"The city took no position with respect to the marketing agency," Deason said. "With the exception that Trimount use a member of the Grosse

They recently attended a Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library meeting and discussed "Have Books Been Replaced by Other Media?" The Friends were delighted to find that the teenage youngsters felt that while other media are implementing books they are not replacing them. Program chairmen William B. Hall and William Hurley invited the teenagers to attend the meeting in order to better acquaint themselves with teenagers' views on books and their value to the new generation. What they found was a group of vital, alert, interested and interesting teenagers who feel books are an integral part of their lives.

and sewer rates to more accurately reflect real costs. Right now our bills are based on estimated costs."

Maison and city administrator Peter Thomas urged the council to wait another fiscal quarter before deciding on adjusting water rates. Thomas pointed out that the first quarter's CSO output might not truly reflect what the city's future expenses will be, and the council could find itself having to raise water rates only a few months after lowering them.

"I think Mr. Maison's and Mr. Thomas' advice is well worth taking," said Novitke. "The low costs of the first quarter under the new system could be a fluke, and we shouldn't act in haste to give the residents of the Woods good news, only to have to give them bad news three months later."

But if the second quarter is similar to the first in regard to actual costs vs. estimated costs, Novitke said, then it is probable that the council will vote to lower rates. But that's still three months off, Novitke added. He said it is important for people not to get their hopes up too soon.

The hike in water rates was very unpopular, said Thomas. City officials received many calls, but most people, when they heard the city's explanation, were able to accept the reason.

"I can't say as they were happy that their rates went up so much," said Thomas. "But most people understood why. But we must be careful not to lower rates only to have to raise them again in a few months."

Library plans for the future, begins with computer upgrade

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

In view of the high number of computer glitches and breakdowns in recent months, the Grosse Pointe library board has decided it's time to replace its current equipment.

"The computers are wearing down; the CD ROM players are breaking down," said library board president John Bruce.

"Things are beginning to break down on a regular basis. They are older technology and not as fast and as efficient as they can be. We need to replace some of the equipment. But before we replace it we need to make sure our decisions are appropriate within the context of replacing all technology in the library."

The board, which met on Monday night, after the Grosse Pointe News went to press, was expected to discuss purchase plans, Bruce said.

In the long term, the library would like to increase the availability to the public of electronic databases and Internet connections and create a network between all three library branches.

In the short term, the library would like to replace outdated equipment to better serve its patrons. Bruce added that some of the PCs are 7 years old.

"The first role of the committee is to look at purchasing individual PCs, CD-ROM players, and create a local area network," he said. "As long as we're doing it with three computers we might as well expand its utilization to four or five stations instead of each being a stand-alone."

The technology committee studying the matter consists of Bruce, interim library director Vickey Bloom, board member Frances Schonenberg, library staffers Connie Roberts and Cindy ZurSchmiede, and community members Rick Schott, Kerry Bishop and Bob Klaczka.

The second role of the committee is to develop a process by which the public library can create a plan for the future, Bruce said. Goals include increasing availability of electronic databases.

The committee first met earlier this month to look over initial purchases for about 10 new computers, which have a budget cap of $35,000. Bruce said he doesn't anticipate the cost will exceed $20,000.

Show House

recommendations on parking, and he had no problem endorsing the request.

Mayor Palmer Heenan said that after much discussion and in the spirit of compromise the council voted 5-2 to grant the variance with certain conditions.

The League would not hold its "Peek" weekend, where for 99 cents, interested parties could view the Show House before decorators and workers made the improvements. The council also said that the League could not serve hard liquor, only beer and wine, at any fundraising events held at the Show House.

Verne Hampton, the League's legal representative, said that the conditions set by the Park council were not out of line, and that the League would have no problem following them.

But in the face of continuing neighborhood opposition the Show House co-chairs decided to cancel the Bishop project.

"Without the support of the neighborhood, we were afraid that we couldn't raise enough money to meet our goals," said event co-chair Julia Keim. "When problems arise that could impede our fundraising efforts we have to have second thoughts. We don't want to have to worry about anything that will decrease fundraising for our ongoing projects."

Keim said that she would like to thank the majority of the Grosse Pointe community that is openhearted enough to support the Show House. She said that they've had this event in the past and that the community has always responded.

"Right now we're looking for a new house," Keim said. "We usually make our announcement in January or February, but this year we wanted to time the announcement with our Christmas fundraiser, so we still have a couple of months to find a new house."

Finding a home is not an easy task however, said Keim. The house must be large enough to permit decorators to use a variety of styles. The house must have some historical importance. The 1007 Bishop home was once owned by the man who invented the Murphy bed. And finally, the league must find a homeowner who is willing to move out of the house for five months.

Julia Scott, who lives in the 1007 Bishop home, said that she and her family were looking forward to the project. She called it an adventure and said the family is disappointed.

Bishop resident William H. Krebs attended the Nov. 13 council meeting and said he was not disappointed that the Junior League decided not to go ahead with the Bishop project.

Krebs said that he learned that the league was going to allow organizations like the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors to hold events at the Show House.

"They were going to allow cocktail parties in our neighborhood without consulting us," said Krebs. "As I learned more, I discovered they were planning to have an event with a tent in April and they didn't know where they were going to place the tent. They should have had their ducks in a row before going to the council."

Fellow Bishop resident Stephanie Kingsley said she was sorry the league cancelled the project, and if it weren't for traffic concerns, she wouldn't have opposed the project.

"Next time the league should do its homework," said Kingsley.

Joanna Garrett, who also opposed the Show House on Bishop, said that while the league may like having the Show House location a big surprise, they should have consulted with neighbors.

"Surprise shouldn't be the most important thing," said Garrett. "People who have to live with this burden should have been consulted."

Retirement presents a new set of opportunities for Woods resident

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Many people know of Peter Gilezan's work on the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council, but that is just a small part of this busy Grosse Pointer's life.

Gilezan, 67, recently retired as Chrysler's director in charge of plants, fuel economy and alternate fuels.

"I'm proud of what Chrysler has done in terms of the environment," said Gilezan. "We were the first automobile company to receive a presidential award for environmental excellence. One thing that we were able to accomplish is the integration of environmental concerns in the basic planning of product and in the production process."

By making environmental concerns as important as quality and cost, the company has been able to become a leader in the automotive field in regard to environmental issues, Gilezan said.

Many people might be surprised to learn that Gilezan did not start out as an expert on environmental issues. He began in the company's finance department. Well, not exactly.

"My first job at Chrysler was working in the old Dodge Main foundry on the third shift," Gilezan said. "The plan was to go to school during the day, work during the night and graduate from Walsh College in downtown Detroit in less than the six years it would have taken if I just went to night school."

POINTER OF INTEREST

Gilezan entered the Navy in 1945, and when he got out he was eager to get on with his life.

"Working at Dodge Main was hard work," said Gilezan. "There was the heat, the bare light bulbs and molten iron running down the floor. But when a person goes to the employment office he asks for work. Grosse Pointe is full of people who got their law or medical degrees while working on the assembly line. Those jobs aren't there these days for kids, but it was very common when I was young."

Needless to say, Gilezan's grades suffered while he worked full-time and went to school full-time, and he eventually had to leave the assembly line. Gilezan was called back to naval service in 1950 because of the Korean War. He served two years on a destroyer for United Nations operations.

"When I came back from Korea I started down my career path," said Gilezan. "I worked in the Chrysler tank plant in Warren in their finance department. In 1954, Chrysler went through a big decentralization process, and I joined the corporate staff. In 1957 I was named assistant chief accountant for Chrysler."

"I was 30 years old and a non-CPA with a degree from Walsh in accounting and law. It was an unusual situation."

Gilezan was posted to Europe in 1959 when Chrysler was starting its international division. He was sent to the Netherlands and then Geneva as the company's assistant comptroller of Chrysler International.

"It was a wonderful experience," said Gilezan. "I learned 'restaurant' French, German and Dutch. WWII had been over for only a few years when my family first arrived, and you could still see what the war had done. It was a good time to be an American in Europe. The dollar was strong and interesting things were going on."

Gilezan's European tour ended in 1962, and when the family returned to the states, they moved into a home in Grosse Pointe Woods. Gilezan and his wife live in that house to this day.

During the 1960s Gilezan broke out of finance and became director of organization planning and administrative systems. In 1970 he went into the manufacturing division, where he ran source planning, industrial engineering, computers and administration.

In 1980 Chrysler took a bold step in terms of its environmental program, Gilezan said. Company officials recognized that environmental concerns were another factor that had to be reckoned with. So from planning to production the company included environmental concerns in the process.

"There were environmental regulations," said Gilezan. "But we brought together ideas to create a process where environmental concerns were considered from the beginning, not the end. We became active instead of being end-of-the-pipe environmental control."

Gilezan has been involved with city government for about 20 years. He said it goes back to his days in the Navy where he was taught the value of public service.

"I served on the planning commission and the city council," said Gilezan. "I always felt a responsible person gives back to his community. By serving in government, I have been able to help maintain the quality of life in the Woods."

Gilezan recently retired from Chrysler, but that doesn't mean he's going to slow down. He has started his own environmental consulting firm. He works with companies and developers and helps them develop environmental strategies.

"Manufacturers are pretty good about the environment," said Gilezan. "But developers build first, then worry about environmental concerns. They are reactive instead of active."

Gilezan has an eclectic set of interests. He enjoys the outdoors, as well as tennis, golf and collecting stamps. He and his wife are refurbishing their basement for their three grandchildren, all under 4 years-old.

Gilezan also recently served on a Congressional Office of Technological Assessment committee, which issued a report on the effect of technology on local communities.

"I like to keep busy," Gilezan said. "I intend to wear out, not rust out."

Parenting workshop at Children's Home

The Children's Home of Detroit in Grosse Pointe Woods is presenting another parenting workshop on Thursday, Nov. 30, at 7 p.m. at the home's main facility on Cook Road in the second floor conference room.

"Is your child running on empty?" is the theme of the evening presentation. Parents will learn about how important good nutrition is for children, and how they can get a balanced diet.

Fran Sibug, a dietician at St. John Hospital, is the featured speaker. For more information and for reservations, call (313) 885-3510.

ADJUSTING THE VALVES

On some cars, a valve adjustment might be undertaken with an awareness that tight valves (valves operating at clearances less than specified by the manufacturer) may burn out prematurely. It is also true that valves that are too loose can do their own kind of damage. Aside from being annoyingly noisy, loose valves (valves operating with clearances that are too wide) can damage the valve faces. That is, as a result of being pounded into their seats, the valves can become distorted and their seating ability may be reduced. This problem is all the more likely if the engine is operated at high rpm's. If the engine is exceptionally noisy and has adjustable valves, therefore, it is a good idea to have the valves adjusted as soon as possible.

If your car makes disturbing noises, don't wait to bring it in — all you might need is a simple adjustment. At RINKE TOYOTA, our prices are more than competitive. Think of us when purchasing a new car. Give us a call at 758-2000, or stop in and see us at 25420 Van Dyke. We've given top-notch service to this community for over 78 years!

BNL The need for a valve adjustment is usually indicated by an engine ticking noise that increases in frequency as the engine speed increases.

Unbelievable! Judge orders new trials for Gravel killers

After more than five years of litigation, it is unbelievable that Detroit Recorder's Chief Judge Dalton Roberson has ordered new trials for the confessed killers of Grosse Pointe businessman Benjamin Gravel.

Fortunately, John D. O'Hair, the Wayne County prosecutor, immediately announced that his office is appealing Roberson's order to grant new trials to Kermit Haynes and Cortez Miller.

The pair, two of six charged in a carjacking that led to Gravel's killing, pleaded guilty before Roberson to first-degree murder charges for shooting Gravel on Feb. 8, 1990, as he was driving home from the Bayview Yacht Club in Detroit.

Asked for a comment on the new Roberson orders, George Ward, O'Hair's chief deputy, told the Grosse Pointe News this week: "The new orders are totally groundless."

He pointed to the fact that the Michigan Court of Appeals had the full sentencing record of both men before it when it reversed Roberson's original order sentencing both juveniles to probation.

In Haynes' case, the appeals court had said, among other things, "the trial court has clearly erred . . . the court shall sentence the defendant as an adult." In the Miller case, the court had said, "the nature of his delinquent behavior is likely to render him dangerous to the public if released at 21."

While both men are still held in the Wayne County jail in downtown Detroit, Roberson in effect defied the appellate court in granting them new trials, claiming to use a court rule that allows a guilty plea to be withdrawn before sentencing "in the best interests of justice."

How are the "best interests of justice" served by showing any mercy to these confessed killers?

In its appeal, the prosecutor's office said that when an attempt to withdraw occurs after a sentencing record has been made and sentencing has been entered, a guilty plea cannot be withdrawn unless the court finds "an error in the plea proceedings."

The prosecutor's office contends there was no error in the taking of the guilty pleas, and the judge did not cite any in ordering a new trial for the killers.

In fact, Roberson knew the prosecutor's office would appeal since it had successfully appealed his original probation sentences. Roberson is making a mockery of justice and, in effect, offering evidence to remind us that justice delayed is justice denied.

The appeal also prolongs the agony of the Grosse Pointe family which has lost a loving husband and father, and the continuing concern of a community which still misses a prominent businessman.

A view from the sidelines

by Wilbur Elston

A newsman's beads of blood

Pete Waldmeir has just published a collection of his Detroit News columns that often inform and sometimes amuse us about the Detroit metropolitan area and many of its characters.

A former sports writer, Pete follows in the footsteps of many successful columnists who started their careers in what we in other departments (I was his colleague as The Detroit News' editorial page editor until 1978) loved to call "the toy box."

Pete admits he stole his book's name, "Little Beads of Blood," from a conversation with Walter "Red" Smith, famed prize-winning columnist for the old New York Herald-Tribune and later for the New York Times.

In his introduction, and along the way, Pete pays tribute to such Detroit newspaper characters as Doc Greene, Jack Manning, Jim Trainor and Ned Batchelor, and to a good many other characters outside newspapering, too.

The book is but "a sampling" of his columns, Waldmeir says, but it's a good sample, including some of the best he ever wrote about the former Detroit mayor, Coleman Young, who became Waldmeir's favorite punching bag.

Pete's attitude and tone toward Young, Detroit's first black mayor, changed over the years. In his first column about the mayor, Jan. 3, 1974, the day after Young's inauguration, Pete was almost respectful and gave little hint of the Waldmeir-Young confrontations to come.

Instead, Waldmeir offered the obvious view that the election had "ushered in a new era in Detroit politics," with the victory of the city's first black mayor.

But it didn't take long for Pete to take a tougher view of the mayor.

So when Young bowed out in June 1993, Pete wrote that the media and even the mayor's friends gave "a kind of collective sigh of relief," adding that "the time now has come for reconciliation."

By that time, most city as well as suburban residents agreed with that conclusion.

While Pete expressed some doubts about Dennis Archer, the new mayor, he welcomed him to office on Jan. 4, 1994, because he had "said the right things, pushed the right buttons, tugged all the heart strings" to get himself elected. And then Pete added:

"Let the future begin."

That's still not a bad slogan for the Archer administration.

Pete is a many-sided man. One minute he sounds, acts and writes like a tough guy off Detroit's streets, the next like other softies often found among newspeople.

His compassion comes through especially well in columns about old Detroit scamps, old associates, and all the other characters who populate Pete's world — and help make "Little Drops of Blood" a good read.

Ancient issue arises in Pointes

Belatedly, with the approach of Christmas, the ancient issue of the separation of church and state has been raised in the Grosse Pointe school district again this year.

At last week's board meeting, however, the board retained its current policy which, in effect, bans exhibition of religious symbols in the schools during this year's holiday season.

At board members' request, Superintendent Ed Shine had prepared a revision of school policy that, among other things, would have permitted "Public displays of religious symbols . . . at appropriate times of the year, which reflect the various religions of the student body of the schools."

By a 4-3 vote, however, the board rejected a waiver that would have enabled the board to omit the required two readings of a new policy and immediately approve it.

However, the board did ask the superintendent and administration to consult with the community and local religious groups and report back on Feb. 15.

If those discussions answer the questions about how the schools could legally and appropriately observe both secular and religious holidays inside and outside the classroom, the door would be open for possible future adoption of Shine's revised policy proposal — but not before next year.

In our view, public displays of religious symbols which, as proposed, reflect the school body's various religions ought to be acceptable at appropriate times of the year.

But the board and administration ought to have begun consideration of the issue earlier. That would have enabled the public to have been informed in advance of the board's plans and given the board time to have considered Shine's recommendation on its regular schedule.

However, if a new policy is adopted, it still would have to clear possible legal barriers, in view of the warning last year that a star on a Christmas tree is questionable as a Christian symbol.

It's time to seek new Tigers

The Detroit Tigers' management fortunes seem to be looking up, with plans for a new park finally going forward, a new general manager in place, and Buddy Bell succeeding Sparky Anderson on the field.

But what the Tigers still need is an infusion of new players who will assure fans that the team can be something other than an also-ran in the Eastern Division of the American League.

The Tigers' management must do more to develop talent in its farm clubs, but, to make sure they don't have to wait too long for promising rookies to prove out, they will also need to open their check-books when current stars become available.

The Tigers' biggest lack is pitching. Despite that, they dealt off their best pitcher in a 1995 trade, but got little pitching in return for David Wells, the lefthander, who went to the Cincinnati Reds.

However, the Tigers have just acquired Mark Lewis, an infielder who reportedly can hit, to complete the Reds' deal on a happier note.

With stadium plans moving forward, the Tigers' owners and their new management now ought to focus on the team's most important need: more new top-grade players.

Letters

Private marinas have overhead

To the Editor:
This is in response to the letter from Edward Kotz regarding the cost of boat wells in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Mr. Kotz obviously doesn't know much about operating boat marinas. There are several differences between marinas in the Grosse Pointes and privately owned, full-service marinas in the area. Listed below are some of the services provided by full-service marinas which justify the higher prices they charge:

- 1) Hoists to put your boat in the water and take it out at the end of the season.
- 2) Winter storage facilities.
- 3) Gas.
- 4) Pump-out station.
- 5) Mechanics.

6) Rescue boat.

In addition, I bet the marinas have a much higher tax rate than our parks!

Back stabbing To the Editor:

I was appalled when I read Farms council member (Peter) Waldmeir's childish remarks about Ed Gaffney after he said he supported Gaffney for mayor pro tem.

Apparently, Waldmeir is of the view that if you do not agree with him, then you are wrong.

I hope somewhere in Waldmeir's growing up process he learned that in a democracy, members of a governing body discuss their differences and reach a compromise position.

He should also realize he was elected to the Farms council, not the school board. There is no need to engage in back stabbing in the press.

Changing colors

Comedian Jerry Seinfeld once said that when people attend a sports event, they aren't cheering the player as much as they are the uniform. This is demonstrated when a player from your home team is traded; you no longer cheer for him, you now cheer for the player for whom he was traded.

With so many uniform changes happening lately, it's difficult to know what uniform you're supposed to cheer.

I realize not every professional team can have nice, neat primary-colored uniforms. Some must wear purple, green, orange, brown and other less eye appealing color schemes.

The Chicago White Sox, who have had red and white; red, white and blue; and black and white, change uniforms more often than Larry King changes wives.

They seem to have settled on the marketable black and silver look — always popular with the gangsta set — that the Oakland Raiders made fashionable for troubled urban youths.

Throughout the history of sports teams, uniform changes have occurred from time to time, but lately, it seems more teams are changing stripes (or adding pinstripes).

The National Football League's New England Patriots had perfectly nice jerseys, red and white with blue trim. They also had one of my favorite helmet logos — a 1770s patriot ready to hike the ball.

A couple years ago, that was all scrapped in favor of a blue and silver design. Their logo now has a patriot head with a streaked tail as if it is flying through the sky like a comet.

The trend now in the National Basketball Association is pinstripes — witness the latest creations worn by the Houston Rockets and Chicago Bulls. Of ten teams that have had trouble winning bring in new uniforms to signal a new era, as was the case with the Patriots. The Rockets and Bulls combined have won the last five NBA titles. Now they decide to change their championship look in favor of black and pinstripes. Although the Bulls haven't totally abandoned their old look, the uniforms that they and the Rockets now wear look hideous.

I Say

The "change for the sake of change" trend has done nothing to help the recognition level of the National Hockey League, in my opinion. Anyone who has seen the new uniforms worn this season by the Washington Capitals and New York Islanders know what I mean.

The Capitals abandoned the red, white and blue they have worn during their 20-year existence in favor of a light blue, black and white color scheme. The Islanders no longer wear the orange, white and blue with which they won four consecutive Stanley Cup championships. They got rid of the "NY above a map of Long Island" in favor of a logo featuring a guy who looks like the Gorton's fisherman.

If a franchise moves, it should be required to leave the uniform design and franchise name in the original city.

When the NHL's Quebec Nordiques moved to Denver, they had the good sense to change their name (to the Colorado Avalanche) and uniform design. When the Kansas City Scouts moved to Colorado in the late 1970s, they became the Rockies. They kept the same uniform colors, but changed the design. When after a few short years, the franchise moved to New Jersey, the uniform and the name changed. Of course the New Jersey Devils have slightly altered their colors, but for the better, getting rid of the green pants and trim on their red, white and black uniforms.

The Atlanta Flames wrongly became the Calgary Flames and worse, kept the same color design for their uniforms.

The Los Angeles Kings also cashed in on the rap market, changing their colors a few years back from purple and gold to black and silver to match their former L.A. neighbors (the Oakland then Los Angeles then Oakland again) Raiders.

Not long after football's Steelers and baseball's Pirates won world championships in the late 1970s, hockey's Pittsburgh Penguins switched from dark blue, light blue and white to the black and gold of their Steel City brethren.

Black seems to be the color (shade, actually) to which teams switch. Shortly before heading south to Dallas, the Minnesota North Stars changed from green, yellow and white to black, yellow and white. They also dropped the "North" from their name.

The Vancouver Canucks went from green, blue and white to black, yellow and orange.

There are plenty more examples of unnecessary uniform changes I could mention, but space allows only so much droning.

I used be incredulous when the guy selling programs at the stadium would shout, "You can't tell the players without a program." Now, you can't even tell the teams.

A visitor with style

"How are the people of Grosse Pointe treating you?" I asked Oleg Cassini.

slightly groggy fashion designer was at Jacobson's last week, autographing copies of his new book, "a thousand days of magic,"

(with unusual modesty, titled all in lower-case letters), which shows and tells how he dressed Jacqueline Kennedy for the White House.

"I've been here before and they have always treated me very well," he said. "I have a kind of kinship with the people here — it was Jacobson's that bought my first collection of women's clothing."

He was tired, but game. When a blizzard canceled his flight from New York, the 74-year-old world-class couturier who had been born a count in Czarist Russia hopped on a train and got here via Toledo.

The trip took 16 hours and Oleg made it just in time for the 8th Annual Junior League Holiday Preview Benefit that drew over 1,500 patrons to both of the Kercheval stores.

Once installed in the dress section he charmed the crowd, signing a small mountain of books and speaking to everyone. His warm smile made it obvious he was surrounded by his two greatest loves: women and the clothing he designs for them.

The men were there too, but I noticed Sparky's Darrell Finken was standing off on the sidelines.

"Have you met Cassini?" I asked.

Darrell looked apologetic. "I'm wearing an Armani suit," he said.

Taking care of kids

Children at Henry Ford Cottage Hospital are just a bit happier, thanks to a gift from the Village Toy Company's Nancy Renick.

"It looked like Christmas, but the calendar said it was only October, when a carload of toys was delivered to the hospital," said hospital spokesman Janette Duster.

Janette said some of the toys are included in the permanent collection of the pediatric unit and others are given out in the Emergency Center to help bring smiles to sick, hurt or frightened young patients.

Nancy tells FYI the hospital originally just asked people to buy crayons to keep kids occupied. "We were moving from our old location then and I had all sorts of things left over — little wooden puzzles, games and interesting pencils — and a lot more, so I just gave them a whole collection of things," she says.

"I always remember our own hospital experiences and I wanted the children to have something to help them think there's more to being there than just the painful parts."

Speaking of patients, Dominic Damore, son of Pointe dental assistant Kathy Damore, finally returned home last weekend after a two-month stay in the Children's Hospital burn unit.

Dominic was injured in a g-kart accident and dentist Dr. Richard Rappa tipped FYI that the 13-year-old could use some mail to cheer him up.

"He got a lot of cards and letters from the column item and he's been doing very well," said Dr. Rappa. "One local store owner even said Dominic could come in when he was well enough and pick out a bicycle."

Surf bard

It's November and where's international singer of songs Alex Suczek and his lovely bride, Marybelle?

Answer: The 68-year-old retiree, who never slows down, is making waves as usual — off South Padre Island, Texas.

When he tells me what he's doing, I realize there's a side to our local Pointe troubadour I never suspected.

Wind surfing?

"I started 10 years ago and lost 20 pounds that first summer," Alex says. "Since then my coordination and balance have come back to where they were 30 years ago. My doctor says I'm the only patient she's ever seen who has reversed the aging process."

When the weather turns nice again, you can expect to see him back here, riding the surf off the Crescent Sail Yacht Club. "I launch the board every decent afternoon," says Alex.

Now I know how he can dance every dance at the Vienne Ball.

If you have an FYI tip or the secret of eternal youth, call Ken Eatherly at 822-4091.

Woman combs state for half-brother

Linda Zak wants to find her brother.

She's never seen him, although he's more than half a century old by now. But she believes her life, and maybe his, too, would be better if they knew each other.

He's really her half-brother.

Her parents' marriage wasn't working out even before her dad went to war in the early '40s. While he was overseas, her mother met a man from Detroit, a man whose marriage wasn't working out very well at the moment, either. Together, they got pregnant.

Linda was a toddler when her mother took her from Cheboygan to Detroit to stay with an aunt while she delivered the baby. With both parents still entangled in unsuccessful marriages, it was decided to give the baby to the father's sister to raise as her own.

Linda never knew on a conscious level that she had a baby brother. Her father came home from the war and somehow the marriage was patched back together. Her parents had two more daughters and a son, although her dad was filled with suspicions, not only about the missing baby, but about Linda as well. Not until the family doctor explained about family relationship through blood types would her father believe she was his child, Linda says. And by that time she was grown up.

Well, the family bumped along, as families do, until the parents died. Then an aunt dropped the bombshell: there was another child somewhere. And Linda seized on it.

Her instincts as a sister, a detective, and maybe somebody who likes to have a project, were aroused. As adults, her siblings aren't as close as she'd like, especially the brother. Maybe the missing brother would be a catalyst to bring them back together. And, she argued, he deserves to know his family.

She went to work on her aunt. Bit by bit, she pried out pieces of information, including the most important: the father's name.

Nancy Parmenter

er's name. She perused telephone books and tried unsuccessfully to obtain official records.

Her girlfriend, who is interested in genealogy anyway, became intrigued by the search. Linda blanketed the state with letters and phone calls. Even the people who dig up the info for ambush appearances on Sally Jessy's show got wind of it and called her up.

But Linda is stymied. She doesn't want to be on television. "I'm not asking for anything other than to know this person," she says.

Her poking around led to a woman she believes to be the sister who adopted the baby. She even called her up — but the woman denied everything, saying her son is her own child, not adopted.

Linda is afraid of what she has started.

"I want to find him, but I don't want to approach him directly," she said. "I don't want to stir up something or embarrass people. But I feel hurt because when I talked to his mother, I think she lied to me."

It's a tough call. If the woman Linda talked to is the woman she thinks she is, then the woman has always lied about the baby. Given the climate of the 1940s, the enormous social stigma against illegitimate babies, the lie is understandable. And if she has never told the truth to her son, she isn't likely to tell it to Linda.

Who's to say the brother wants to be found? That's a question Linda can't answer. She offers the thought that he should have access to his personal medical history. And that he's missing out on knowing his family, an only child deprived of his real siblings.

But this is not a man who has been haunted his whole life by fantasies of a family who abandoned him. This man doesn't know his parents gave him up. All he knows is the mother and father who raised him.

Linda is undeterred. She has a name to go on, the name of her mother's lover. To be sure, she doesn't know exactly how to spell it, but she's persuaded that someone, somewhere, will recognize the family history of Charles (or Casimir) Chielewski, now deceased.

If you do, contact Linda at P.O. Box 536, Interlochen, MI 49643. Think it over.

Holiday workshops at War Memorial

A trio of workshops allow you to exercise your creativity this holiday season while adding charming, seasonal touches to your home. All are taught by Peggy Ventura at the War Memorial and offer a choice of dates and times during this busy time of year.

Learn bow making on Thursday, Nov. 30, from 9:30 to 11 a.m. or from 7 to 8:30 p.m. During the workshop, Ventura teaches techniques for making professional looking bows to adorn gifts, trees, wreaths, and garlands. Participants are requested to bring scissors. Each receives a 300-foot bolt of ribbon with which to practice. The workshop fee is $20.

On Tuesday, Nov. 28, from 7 to 9 p.m., create a beautiful holiday wreath. Using a fragrant 14-to-16 inch natural balsam specimen, you will personalize a wreath to your taste and decor with a choice of ribbon and ornamentation. The registration fee is $25 and includes supplies. Bring scissors and wire cutters. Wreath-making will be repeated on Tuesday, Dec. 5, from 9 to 11 a.m.

For a delightful parent/child project, construct a graham cracker house on Saturday, Dec. 2 or Dec. 9 from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The house is designed to resemble an authentic German gingerbread house. The kit includes graham crackers, assorted candy and decorations plus a box in which to take your keepsake home.

The workshop fee is $25 per house for one child and one adult or adult only; $10. each additional person. Please bring two pounds of powdered sugar, six medium egg whites at room temperature, a large, deep mixing bowl, spatula, spoon and a heavy-duty electric mixer. Also bring a sack lunch.

Advance registration is requested. Call the War Memorial at (313) 881-7511 for additional information.

American Initiative Committee readies legislation for 1996

The American Initiative Committee (AIC), a McLean, Virginia-based group, is organizing a nationwide campaign to create a national "Right of Initiative."

The "Right of Initiative" is the process by which citizens can propose a law or constitutional amendment by petition and ensure its submission to the electorate.

"No mechanism currently exists for the American people to convert their consensus on term limits, balanced budget and campaign finance reform into reality," says AIC founder Mike Foudy. "America is on the threshold of some important changes, but the reform priorities of the American people don't seem to be reflected in elected bodies."

The committee was formed in the summer of 1995. Its effort is for "the American people to use the electoral process to offer and enact solutions to the problems confronting the United States independently of Congress and the Executive Branch," according to the AIC Newsletter. The committee currently is organizing petition drives, Capitol Hill forums, newsletters and syndicated radio programming in order to make the current system a "government by the people."

"In theory, all inherent power in our system of government comes from the people. In fact, under the current system, people can exercise their power only by giving it to somebody else," said former Sen. Mike Gravel (D-Alaska) in Washington, D.C., at the Sept. 18 Capitol Hill American Initiative Forum. The purpose of the forum was to serve notice to Congress for the enactment of a constitutional amendment to create the national "Right of Initiative."

Other supporters of the "Right of Initiative" are Paul Jacobs, executive director of U.S. Term Limits, Barbara Vincent, director of the National Referendum Movement, and Rick Arnold, AIC director.

"Voters in many states have used initiative and referendum for 100 years. Lawmakers in states (without initiative and referendum) insulate themselves from citizen control by refusing to establish petition process. No petition process exists on the national level despite First Amendment guarantees," Vincent says.

Referendum is a process that enables voters to use petitions to reject or approve legislation passed by elected officials.

"The United States is considered a world leader in democracy, but it is one of only six democratic nations that does not have the right of initiative," Arnold says. Along with his committee directorship, Arnold is also chief executive officer of national Voter Outreach and publisher of the Initiative and Referendum Organizers Newsletter. He is considered a specialist in the initiative and referendum process by the Yearbook of Experts and has recently been published in the May 1995 issue of Campaigns and Elections Magazine.

He insists that, "Until we get the right initiative at the national level, the people will have no effective way to put American back on the right track."

"Each election, fewer Americans bother to vote. Americans are convinced the electoral process has become a meaningless charade," Foudy says.

According to the American Initiative Newsletter:

The national debt has grown to the point that each of us owes $16,000;

America's biggest export has been good jobs;

Fifteen states have passed "Term Limits" only to have them rendered impotent in the federal courts;

Our trade deficits has soared;

It has become impossible to raise a family on one 40-hour work week; and Governmental change has generally been for the worse, and the voices of the people have been consistently ignored.

Statewide initiatives are currently permitted in 24 states. They are Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

Gravel asserts, "There exists a myth that people lack the competence to share in their own governance. The century-long legislative record of the people in (these 24) states shows the people to have a maturity and intelligence equal to that of their elected representatives in state legislatures and, in some areas, to be considerably more progressive. There is no instance of the people bankrupting a state by initiative as our elected representatives have done to the federal government."

The nationally syndicated "America the Beautiful" radio show, hosted by Foudy, offers free-market solutions to problems and deals with the "people and ideas that make this country great." It currently airs from 4 to 6 p.m. (ET) Monday through Friday and has recently expanded its broadcast to 47 AM stations nationwide. Guests on the show have included Michael Deaver, former head of public relations for former President Ronald Reagan, former Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wisconsin), Sen. Kent Conrad (D-North Dakota), and Grover Norquist, president of Americans for Tax Reform.

The American Initiative Committee and other reform organizations are working to achieve a consensus on the wording for a national initiative by the end of 1995. The committee will then set out to organize a national grassroots effort to make the national "Right of Initiative" an integral part of the 1996 national campaign, starting with presidential primaries. Other organizations involved are Philadelphia II, U.S. Term Limits, The National Referendum Movement and Americans for Tax Reform.

The goal is to have national "Right of Initiative" legislation introduced in 1996 and to ultimately gain ratification of three-fourths of the state legislatures. AIC membership categories are $25, $50, $100 or more. For more information on the national "Right of Initiative" and membership privileges, write or call: The American Initiative Committee, 1320 Old Chain Bridge Road, Suite 200, McLean, VA, 22101, (800) 30-STICK or (703) 883-1355.

Continental adds safety to luxury image

Climbing into the new Lincoln Continental, one of the first things likely to come to mind is, "Ah, yes."

This is not a "yes" in which you high-five anyone or prance around like some of those ill-mannered football players who do it because, with the shoulder padding and all, they can't reach to pat themselves on their backs.

No, this is a refined "yes."

metal interior door handles or higher-quality headliner and other interior materials. It's things like handsome front seats that, if removed from the car, would look attractive in most homes. It's subtle things like additional soundproofing and bigger tires on 16-inch wheels running on a 109-inch wheelbase (an Escort, for

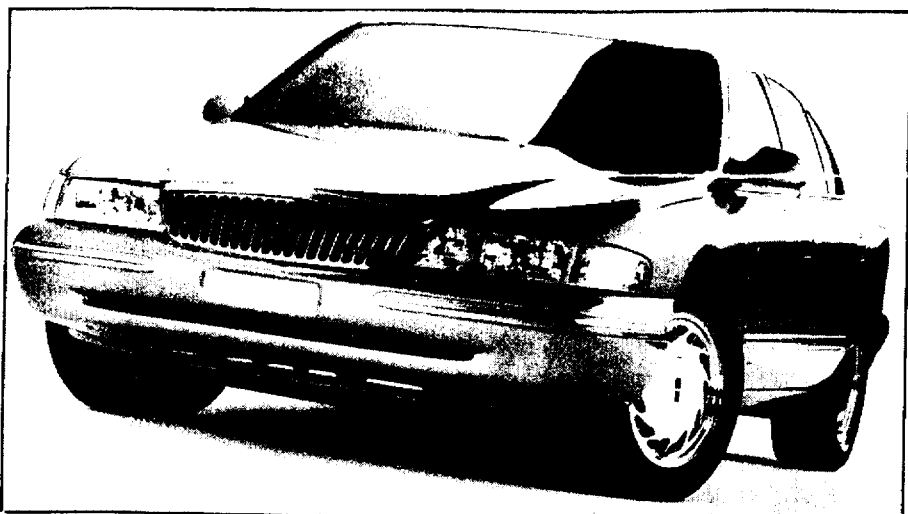

And Lincoln is planning to introduce some new personal safety and security systems on the Continental later in the model year. Lincoln RESCU will put the driver in touch with a response center where a trained operator arranges for help, when needed.

With RESCU, there are two signal buttons on the Continental's overhead console, a positioning transmitter in the trunk, an antenna and a cellular phone. Pressing one button summons roadside assistance. The other button calls for appropriate help in crime or medical emergencies.

Through global positioning satellites and cellular phone technology, the system pinpoints the vehicle's location — typically within 100 feet — and puts the driver in voice contact with a response center. If necessary, an operator at the Westinghouse Emergency Response Center stays in phone contact until help arrives.

And how about this? Securitire with Pressure Alert is a system designed to keep motorists from being stranded with a flat tire in an unfamiliar area or on the shoulder of a busy freeway. According to Lincoln, drivers can safely drive up to 20 miles at 55 mph with a totally deflated Securitire. This is a Michelin ZP (zero pressure) with reinforced sidewalls, mounted on a specially engineered chrome wheel. Driving at speeds lower than 55 mph increases the distance the tire can travel, Lincoln added.

To head off the need to use the tire's run-flat capability, a tiny Pressure Alert sensor in each tire signals a warning light on the overhead console when tire pressure is getting low. A

The 1996 Continental will offer a new RESCU emergency/security system that uses cellular phone technology. It will be available later in the model year.

You could subtly give a little thumbs up, but your hands should be at your sides.

"Yes" means this is better than expected. It means the Continental has a quality feel and luxurious appearance. It means the seats are unusually comfortable. It means you feel special, not to mention confident, as you drive down the street in this conservatively styled, quiet and roomy $43,000 product that was re-designed for the 1995 model year.

What is it about a luxury car that differentiates it from less expensive but otherwise well-intentioned vehicles? Today they probably share safety features like dual air bags and anti-lock brakes. Both types have rear-window defrosters and power locks, windows and outside mirrors. Most have plenty of cupholders and inside controls for trunk lids and fuel doors.

The difference is a number of little things, like elegantly curved silver-toned example, has a 98.4-inch wheelbase, with wheels ranging from 13 inches to 15 inches in diameter).

Overall weight, when coupled with high-tech suspension and steering systems, adds to the impression of luxury and comfort. The Continental has front and rear shock absorbers that can be set by the driver for a plush, normal or firm ride. Speed-sensitive steering tends to tighten at highway speeds and become easier in low-speed situations like parking. With steering, the driver can choose from low, normal and high-effort levels.

A 4-door Escort weighs 2,378 pounds; the new Taurus sedan tips the scale at 3,326 pounds, and a Continental registers a pre-holiday weight of 3,911 pounds.

The standard — and only — engine is a 32-valve 260-hp 4.6-liter V-8. Sorry, no manual transmission is available; only the 4-speed automatic.

message also appears in the vehicle's message center if the tire pressure continues to drop. (Just what you needed, right? More messages!)

Those of us who are long-time Motor City residents can bring to mind any number of incidents when drivers have traveled some distances on extremely flat tires. Wheel makers encourage this kind of response to flat tires, we're told.

The run-flat concept has been around for several years. It seems to be one of those goals like discovering the fountain of youth — we never quite pull it off. Maybe Michelin can. A colleague tells me he wrote several stories about a run-flat tire in the early 1970s that would fill with a foam if punctured. But, he said, the centrifugal force of the turning wheel transformed the foam into a jelly which moved around in such a lop-sided manner that, well, let's say it just didn't work. Then there's the solution favored by so many Walt Disney characters: a string of thick sausages.

In closing, here are some other things we liked about the new Continental. Sentinel headlights turn on whenever it's dark. These are especially good for forgetful or lazy drivers, and they're kind of a safety feature, as well. Rear-seat reading lights are set in a nicely designed pod above each back door along with a grip handle and a coat hanger hook. Up front, each sun visor has a full, lighted vanity mirror; there is an auxiliary visor on each side, so the larger one can swing over to the side window and the second will still provide shade from light coming in the windshield. The attractive instrument panel has nice big buttons and knobs.

Things not to like might include doors that lock automatically when the car begins to move in gear. Ford public relations expert Mike Moran said he loves that feature. With two young children, he is assured no one is going to make a quick exit without his express permission. For some of us, this system is a tyrant. I fear getting locked out of the car if it's running while I mail letters. Mike said it won't happen if you don't accidentally touch the "lock" button on the door (all other doors stay locked until the "unlock" button is pushed). He then admitted this had happened to him while he was running a product through a local car wash, and he spent several precious hours on his day off securing an extra set of keys so he could get in again.

Also not to like: this baby runs on premium unleaded fuel, which increases fuel costs by 25 to 30 percent. The good news is it doesn't have a drinking problem. Looks like its highway number is around 25 mpg, and the big 17.8-gallon fuel tank will keep you on the road while you fumble for your credit card — even if a tire is totally flat! Ah, yes.

Health care: It's a give and take relationship

The subject keeps recurring. We fret about it, do our best to comprehend what's going on, and muddle through as best we can. The subject is elderly relatives, friends and those, of any age, who are sick or incapacitated.

It certainly isn't new to anyone that this country's health system is in a state of chaos. I am not qualified to speak about it and won't. My concerns are far easier to address because they are relatively simple to correct. This might be a good place to state that I am fortunate to have chosen a caring, compassionate team of doctors as my personal physicians. However, I do my research and ask questions before choosing those whom I depend upon and whose judgment I trust. Others are more casual in their approach, but no less deserving of fair treatment. It is on behalf of these people that I speak.

Three times in the past week I have talked with friends who are feeling frustrated and exhausted about family situations over which they feel they have no control. I assume they sought my shoulder because they knew our family had walked in similar occasions on several occasions.

Speaking from the viewpoint of laymen, yet as compassionate human beings, our comments echoed each other's experiences. There is no "how to" book concerning the proper way to deal with serious health problems as a non-professional. It would be impossible to have a definitive source as people and circumstances are individual. What news one person can handle must be withheld from another who is too fragile to hear it. Some want all questions answered, others will never accept reality and choose not to. That is their right. This is where family members can become involved and could be beneficial to the patient and the doctor.

When we are sick, hospitalized and feeling lousy, there is little a patient looks forward to. Certainly it isn't the food. Our eyes and ears are aware of footsteps in the hall and we wait for our daily visit from our doctor. We are captive and self-absorbed and this is normal for someone who is ill. One of the things that my friends and I have experienced is the evasiveness of many caregivers and the solution is so easy. Often a well-meaning nurse will fill in the blanks. For instance, if you have a good relationship with your doctor, you feel betrayed if he or she sends in a partner who is taking his rounds that day. There are always exceptions which are explainable, yet few are given. The majority of us know when we are scheduled to be away for a convention, a vacation or other business-related matters. It is none of the patient's business where the caregiver is going, but he should be informed that someone else will be taking care of business as usual and that the caregiver's commitment will keep him away for a few days and the patient's care will not be compromised. No personal information has been violated and the patient is forewarned and not deeply disappointed to see a substitute.

Because of the extraordinary demands on the medical profession, it is not unusual for doctors to make rounds early in the morning, too early for most family visitors to be allowed in the hospital. This makes it difficult for relatives to ask questions and consult concerning treatment. Couldn't the family member put a request in writing with specifics spelled out and have it attached to the chart, where it will be seen by those in charge and answered by note or phone call at the doctor's convenience?

As with so many things, communication is key. An enormous problem is how can we help a person to let go, when we are unwilling to let go ourselves? We are often needed to act in the role of patient advocate. This is a tremendous responsibility and we need straightforward information to allow us to arrive at educated decisions. It is not helpful to be spoken to like a child, assuming we wouldn't understand. Skip the big words, just talk in simple terms, but talk. We have to live with our decisions.

At what point do we intervene when it is obvious that further tests will reveal little, other than to help a research team? This last is a tricky issue. Someone has to be willing to allow students in the patient's room and permit certain tests to be run. However, I feel that the patient, or if he is unable to respond, the family be told up front exactly what will transpire. My bet is that most would agree to permit medical students to be present. A patient or family member also has the right to know how invasive specific tests may be and to make a choice with some basic knowledge.

I realize that my comments may anger friends and acquaintances in the medical profession. My intent is not to anger, but to remind them to listen closely to those who depend upon them for guidance. We lay people also have a responsibility not to take advantage of busy professionals with whining and stupid questions. When one is ill, or thinks he may be, his world narrows and he hangs on every syllable his caregiver speaks. Time constraints and stress are common maladies of those who treat us. They too are human beings with families and we should be careful not to take advantage of those who try to advise us. Our requests should be concise and reasonable. It helps to prepare our questions in advance.

Dealing with health-related problems is something we all will have to do at some time in our lives, doctors are not exempt. If there is any way that we can open the lines of communication to soften the experience, we ought to try.

Village prepares holiday activities

With the Christmas tree lighting ceremony last Sunday, the holiday season in the Village officially kicked off.

On Friday, Nov. 24, the Village's 19th Annual Santa Claus Parade takes place. The parade begins at 10:30 a.m. from South High School. More than 100 groups will march down Fisher Road then turn south on Kercheval to the Village.

On Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 24-26, the Village invites everyone to join open-house hospitality at individual stores. "Shop Among Friends" at more than 43 stores offering special sales, events and complimentary refreshments.

Village merchants offer a wealth of choices that include a wide selection of apparel and accessories, extensive reading and listening pleasures, both fun and educational toys, gourmet and casual dining, beauty care, fitness salons and a broad range of housewares, from electronics, tools and office supplies and groceries to fine arts and antiques.

For those faced with a "what to buy" dilemma, the Grosse Pointe Village Association has the problem solved. Village Gift Certificates can be used like cash at stores and services in the Village. Certificates can be purchased at NBD Bank branches in the Village, Mack and Morris and Rivard and Jefferson. Certificates are also available at Jacobson's in the lower level. For more information, call the Grosse Pointe Village Association at 313-886-7474.

You and your child are cordially invited to join us at the Somerset Collection for a wondrous Holiday event. An old-fashioned English Tea Party with Santa.

You'll enjoy magicians, mimes and jugglers. Mouthwatering menu delights (for young and old) from Sebastian's Grill. Plus, a personal visit with Santa and a special gift from The Nature Company to make it a day you'll long remember.

Fossils: When you find one, what should you do with it?

If not in your back forty, then maybe in your neighbor's. Fossils can be found almost anywhere in Michigan. Whether what you find is a footprint, tail or bone, there are some regulations as to what and how to collect fossils.

All fossils are considered non-renewable resources, says J. Alan Holman in "Ancient Life of the Great Lakes Basin," published by the University of Michigan Press. And they are important scientific objects.

"To the paleontologist," says Holman, a professor of geological sciences at Michigan State University, "fossils are never important as objects by themselves, but only in the light of their relationships to the sediments that contain them and to the other fossils that occur in those sediments. A single fossil from a critical time period can change geological and evolutionary thinking."

So, Michigan residents who find or collect fossils may hamper scientific research if they fail to report their discoveries to an institution where they can be properly exhibited for the public, as well as for scientific studies.

Most states and provinces in Canada have specific laws that govern the collecting of fossils on their lands. Local libraries or natural history or paleontology museums or departments are a source for Michigan's regulations. One of the prerequisites for collecting is to check where you can and cannot "hunt" and obtain written permission to collect fossils.

"Fossils of entire plants or animals are rare in the Great Lakes region," Holman says.

The fossils found here usually consist of various individual hard parts of plants and animals. Plant fossils include woods, roots, seeds, nuts, cones and leaves. Fossil invertebrates usually consist of the external hard parts of animals such as mollusk shells or the hard, modified wing covers of beetles.

Fossil vertebrates usually consist of bones and teeth.

So, where do you find such fossils? Holman suggests rock quarries where many kinds of ancient plants, invertebrate shells, and fishes (scales, teeth, spines and bones) might be found embedded in quarry walls, the large blocks of limestone surrounding a quarry or the quarry floor. Other likely sites are low areas filled with peat and marl (a mixture of clay, sand and limestone) from early post-glacial swamps, and in shallow basins.

The number and types of tools necessary for a "dig" depends on just how serious the collector wants to get. A geological pick, geological hammer, crowbar, shovel and a metal probe will tackle just about any situation. When using a probe (at least seven feet long) in a bog and poking it down through the peat for large bones, Holman recommends listening to the sounds as the probe strikes material in the muck. "A rock makes a 'chink,'" he says. "A piece of wood makes a 'thunk,' and a large bone makes a sound somewhere in between."

If amateur collectors find large vertebrate bones, Holman suggests taking them to a museum, or a geology or zoology department in the area for identification. "It is strongly advised that private collectors should not keep vertebrate bones and teeth. Teeth and tusks of mastodons and mammoths, for instance, tend to crumble and/or flake apart and need special attention; even bones may disintegrate unless they are given proper care."

Once the "find" has been made, each type of fossil, snails, clams, seeds, wood, cones, bones, should be stored in a separate box, a label placed in each box giving the date of the collection, the exact location, the proper zone (marl, peat, muck) and the name of the collector.

Conflict

Pointe Board of Realtors. Beyond that, the city's position was, and remains, the company chosen by Trimount is a private matter between Trimount and whomever they chose to work with. The council took the position that the government has no business telling a developer which agency to use or not to use."

Deason added that Kennedy approached him in October of this year and sought his legal opinion as city attorney as to whether or not a conflict of interest existed because of her relationships with the city council and Champion & Baer.

On Oct. 25, almost three weeks before Saros went before the council, Deason sent Kennedy a letter outlining his opinions on the matter.

Deason wrote that the city charter prohibits the making of a contract by the city with any entity that "employs the employer of an elective officer as a sales representative unless such officer discloses such interest and the members of the council having no such interest shall unanimously determine that the best interests of the city will be served by making the contract."

Deason wrote that all prior action of the council concerning the sale of the property to Trimount was taken before any relationship existed between Champion & Baer and the developer. Deason also noted that state law requires that a public servant not take part in any negotiations between the government and the company in question.

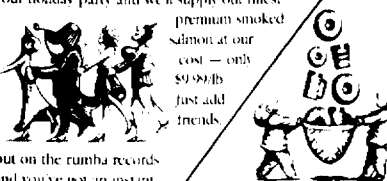

Deason concluded his opinion by writing, "it is my opinion that the council may accept your recusal in connection with further consideration of Pointe Park condominium matters, and further, that the council's prior actions without such recusal were consistent with applicable city charter and state law provisions, and remain valid and in force today."

North, South to coordinate math programs

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

What's the difference between Algebra 1 and math 1-1? After this year, it won't matter anymore.

A committee of teachers and administrators in the Grosse Pointe schools has worked over the last year on a proposed plan to streamline the grade 6-12 math curriculum.

The plan will introduce algebra and geometry earlier, provide a cohesive curriculum for the middle and high schools, and unify course names and descriptions for both high schools.

"The school board did not like the fact that Grosse Pointe North and South high schools' math curriculums were different," said Marjorie Parsons, assistant superintendent for curriculum and evaluation. "So they gave us one year to get something done on realigning the curriculum into one cohesive framework of courses."

Parsons describes the program, set to begin for the 1996-97 school year, as a rich and accelerated program that begins in the middle school with algebra in the eighth grade and geometry in the ninth grade. Gifted students will study algebra in the seventh grade and geometry in the eighth grade.

Traditionally, algebra is introduced in ninth grade and geometry is studied in the tenth grade.

Under the curriculum, by 10th grade, students can take algebra 2, then advanced math, which is a pre-calculus course, then pre-calculus and calculus.

"Although attempts at educational reform have led each high school down somewhat different paths, restructuring ef-orts at both schools have been carefully built around a common core of objectives that were chosen and agreed upon during the K-12 math curriculum study in 1991-92. The packaging of these objectives into separate courses is slightly different at each school. However, all necessary objectives will be met in either program," according to the program of studies description written by the math department chairmen.

As of this year, students need to complete 210 credits to graduate, which includes a minimum of two years of math. Parsons said the district tracked the class of 1995 over a four-year period and it turned out that 90 percent of those students at North and South took three years or more of math.

"A question for the future is, should we make math a three-year requirement?" Parsons said. "That is something for the school board to decide."

McCarthy memorial on sale

For three decades, WJR's J.P. McCarthy interviewed world leaders, captains of industry, entertainment luminaries, sports champions and legions of listeners. His life was taken by a rare blood disorder on Aug. 16.

McCarthy's producers assembled a tribute to J.P., which aired on WJR the morning after his passing, featuring highlights, special interviews and memorable moments from his storied and significant radio career.

The memorial retrospective is available on cassette or compact disc in the men's department at all Jacobson's stores in metro Detroit as well as Jacobson's in Toledo. The tape sells for $12 and the compact disc set is $20. All proceeds will go to the J.P. McCarthy Foundation to fight blood disorders.

The memorial retrospective was made possible through generous grants from Producers Color Services, Ford Motor Co., American Sound & Video Duplication, Jacobson's, Brooks Group Promotional Products & Apparel and Lakeland Printing Service. The cover photo was taken by Linda Solomon and designs for the cassette and compact disc were done by Senpanek & Leder Advertising Inc.

Postal service mail deadlines

When mailing overseas for the 1995 holiday season, the secret to saving postage costs is to use the suggested shipping dates from the U.S. Postal Service, said consumer advocate Yvonne Maguire.

"Mailing early is always the best way to save money when sending gift packages overseas," said Maguire, who suggests that people with friends and relatives overseas get a copy of the International and Military Mail Christmas Date Chart to help get those deals.

"Of course, Americans can ship overseas closer to the holidays, but it will cost more," Maguire said.

Last-minute shoppers always have the option of using International Express Mail to get those important last-minute gifts overseas. Another money-saving tip, according to Maguire, is to consider sending books or items that weigh under two pounds.

Maguire also reminds Americans that all overseas letters and post cards now travel by air. There is no longer a surface card mailing rate. She adds that, when mailing items overseas, it is always a good idea to check with the local post office about any weight, size or item restrictions that may apply and which customs forms are required.

Last year, she said, more than 166.5 million letters, post cards and packages traveled overseas, and this year that volume will increase by 4 percent.

Turning TV off is first step to curb violence in America

By Curtis L. Ivery

When we were in the '50s when our parents bought their first TV set, we had only one channel. We had the "Mickey Mouse Club" on Saturdays and gave it up for American Bandstand in junior high.

If we were lucky, we watched "Lone Ranger," "The Lone Ranger," or "Love Lucy" in the evenings. Days went by without watching even one murder. The news, which children rarely stayed up to watch, reported on the occasional local disasters, and sometimes problems in foreign countries.

The lack of TV coverage on news and old-fashioned communication systems protected us from first person accounts and graphic images of earthquakes, flooding, and starvation and terrorism we are exposed to on the news today.

Thanks to cable and world-wide networking, we can watch victims of violence and destruction like actors in real life horror movies. Twenty-four-hour a day news channels replay crises in America and abroad.

Viewers are often as fascinated by the suffering of real-life victims as they are by watching actors suffer in war movies or natural disasters.

In our zeal to portray movies as real life, we insist on including every unpleasant detail of the most shocking crimes we can imagine.

Between the violent entertainment and the real news, adults and children witness thousands of murders a year. No wonder murder is a fact of life for teenage gang members; children carry guns to school, and states are eager to pass concealed weapons laws. We take violence for granted. Many people thought something like the Oklahoma bombing was just a matter of time. We have seen too much TV and movie violence; we have begun to expect it in real life, too.

We reluctantly acknowledge drive-by shootings, bombings and kids carrying guns to school as signs of the times without considering the underlying messages about violence we receive and pass on every day.

When we watch violent movies, sporting events, or TV shows we are admitting violence is entertainment, worth our time. Even if parents censor the shows their children watch, the message is often, adults like violence; when you grow up, you can enjoy watching it, too.

Just as we are sure only the other guy falls prey to the propaganda of advertising, we are certain watching violence does not affect us.

However, even if individuals do not commit more violent acts than they use to, they tolerate, even condone violence ("LAPD," boxing, hockey) and have come to expect it — in some cases, look forward to it. Crowds of all ages watched the unbelievable horrors in "Silenace of the Lambs"; many saw the movie more than once.

Fortunately, there is an easy solution to the overdoses of violence in TV today. Although we are all exposed to the influence of what TV stations choose to broadcast, TVs are equipped with off buttons.

We can just say no. Restricting our children often includes restricting ourselves, but turning off the TV offers us the opportunity to get our lives back. There aren't many of us who can remember life without TV; with no TV to entertain us, we were forced to think of things to do.

Instead of watching kids and their parents live through imaginary events in sitcoms, we lived our own real lives. Sometimes we were bored, but we played games, ran races, skated, read, cooked, sewed, swam, told jokes and rode bicycles.

Most important of all, we communicated with our brothers and sisters and parents and friends. We learned how to get along and how to settle disagreements.

Our lives weren't always as exciting, funny, or luxurious as the lives of the children in the sitcoms, but they were real. Children's lives should give them opportunities to practice, to make mistakes and get better, to try new things, to develop their own talents and interests. This takes time and it can't be accomplished by watching, only by doing.

All of us have the same 24 hours, and although we may be under a lot of time pressure, we can choose how to spend our time.

Around eight hours of every one's day goes to sleep. Work or school take up another seven to eight hours for most people.

The statistics tell us an average adult spends half of the remaining eight hours watching TV. There are many worthwhile TV shows — shows that bring some benefit for the viewer — especially on public TV, the Learning Channel and Discovery.

Even though we may think of programs that are educational as OK or even a little "better" for us and our children than others, we need to be aware of the choice we are making when we decide to watch TV instead of doing something else.

Often, we choose watching — wanting to be entertained — instead of doing because we're tired. After work or school, parents and kids often flop down to watch TV, hoping to find something interesting. They have chosen to watch TV, no matter what shows are on, rather than choosing a particular show for its content.

With only eight hours of "free" time each day, which must cover housework, yardwork, homework, laundry, cooking, eating and cleaning up, car care, personal hygiene, and shopping as well as many other social activities, we must carefully choose a few activities to fit into our remaining hours that really are free time.

SCHOOL NEWS

Students of the month: November

Safety patrol students are on duty at intersections near schools, helping their peers cross the street. Service squad students help with safety rules inside the building and assist in the office. Students in the library club help the librarian by shelving books and distributing audio-visual materials. Each month during the school year, students who have had excellent attendance and have shown superior dedication to their volunteer jobs are recognized in this column.

Pops and pastries

The annual Grosse Pointe North and South high schools' Pops and Pastries concert was held at South on Nov. 10. Some 300 instrumental music students performed to a standing-room-only crowd. Desserts were provided by the commercial foods class.

Why didn't your story run?

The Grosse Pointe News welcomes stories and pictures about things going on in the public and private schools. But we also rely on readers to keep us informed.

Information about upcoming school events, results of events that have taken place and stories about enterprising students should be typed, double spaced, on 8-1/2 by 11 inch paper. This is called a news release. It also should answer all relevant questions: Who? What? Where? Why? When? How? It must also have a phone number for clarifications.

Color and black-and-white prints are acceptable. Polaroids, slides and negatives are not. Pictures should be clear and close-up of small groups of people. The entire fourth-grade lined up against a gym wall and positioned more than five feet away from the camera is not acceptable. All people in photos must be identified from left to right.

Submitting a news release to the paper does not guarantee it will appear. Editors have the final say about what goes in the paper as well as when — and in what form. Items announcing upcoming events will take precedence when space is limited.

As a general guideline, releases should arrive at the Grosse Pointe News at least one week before publication. Earlier submissions are appreciated. More specific deadlines are usually printed each week on page 2A.

Senior Men's Club installs officers

The Senior Men's Club is in its 37th year and numbers over 1,000.

Burton curator to address Senior Men

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe will hold its next luncheon meeting at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, on Tuesday, Nov. 28, at 11:15 a.m.

The guest speaker will be Mrs. Noel VanGorden of the Burton Historical Collection at the Detroit Public Library. Her topic will be "How to Use the Burton Collection." The presenter will be Joe Callahan.

The collection is a legacy of Clarence M. Burton, of Burton Abstract and Title. It is visited regularly by people from all over the country who are interested in physical and genealogical history of the area. VanGorden's interest is in making the public aware of the extent of the tremendous asset located in Grosse Pointe's back yard.

On Sunday, Dec. 10, the Senior Men's choral group will perform as part of the annual Christmas concert at the Assumption Cultural Center in St. Clair Shores. The concert, under the direction of club member Mel Stander, is from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

Members also should plan to attend the final meeting of the year on Tuesday, Dec. 12, when the South High School choral groups will perform.

Retirement on your 1996 calendar?

By Varyn Rebelein
Social Security Manager
Detroit East

If you're approaching age 62 and you're thinking about retiring next year, you should contact Social Security now to discuss your plans.

In some cases, your choice of retirement month could mean additional benefits for you and your family. Because the computation varies based on your earnings for the year and the month in which you file, it's a good idea to check with a Social Security representative before making your decision.

Because Social Security rules permit people to work and receive retirement benefits at the same time, it could be to your advantage to have your benefits begin in January even if you don't plan to retire until later in the year. This would allow you to apply earnings in excess of the annual limit to those months and possibly avoid a reduction in monthly benefits for the rest of the year.

For your application to be effective in January 1996, you should file for benefits any time before January 31, 1996.

In 1995, beneficiaries under 65 can earn up to $8,160 with no reduction in Social Security benefits; and beneficiaries aged 65-69, can earn up to $11,280 with no reduction in Social Security benefits. The amount a person can earn and still receive benefits increases each year with increases in average wages. Of course, if you are 70 or older, your benefits will not be reduced no matter how much you earn.

For additional information or to make an appointment to discuss your retirement plans, call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, any business day between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Our lines are busiest early in the week and early in the month, so if your business can wait, it's best to call at other times.

Don't let the flue ruin your holidays.

The holidays are hectic, exciting and filled with all the right intentions. Often, it's your first chance to relax with family in front of a crackling fire. But, before you strike the first match, don't forget to open the damper for proper ventilation: up the flue. And remember to follow these other common sense tips for a safe and happy holiday:

- ★ Fireplaces — Have your chimney cleaned and inspected. Never burn trash or brush as kindling or fuel. Install glass doors or a tight-fitting screen, and keep a fire extinguisher handy. And, if you own a gas fireplace, make sure it complies with local safety codes.
- ★ Cooking and Burns — Whether baking holiday cookies or roasting a turkey, never wear loose clothing. Use potholders. Cool burns under cold water. Never put butter or grease on a burn.
- ★ Food Poisoning — Always clean and cook turkey thoroughly. Experts say it's best to cook stuffing separately. Refrigerate leftovers immediately.
- ★ Toxic Plants — Hanging mistletoe is fun but poisonous. Even poinsettia leaves, if swallowed, can cause severe stomach upset. Call Poison Control — 313-745-5711 — at the first sign of trouble.
- ★ Christmas Trees — Fresh trees should be deep in color and fragrant. Water daily to slow needle loss and reduce the risk of fire.
- ★ Lighting and Decorations — Use only UL-approved lights designed for indoor or outdoor use. Discard those with frayed wires or chipped sockets. Always disconnect before changing bulbs, leaving home or going to bed. Make sure decorative items are flame retardant and kept out of the reach of curious children and pets.

Don't put a damper on your holidays. Keep them bright by handling with care. And remember, the Bon Secours Emergency Department is open around-the-clock, all year long to help you and your family — should you need us.

Frances Ann Tracy

A memorial service will be held on Monday, Dec. 11, for Frances Ann Tracy, at 11 a.m. at St. Paul's Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Mrs. Tracy, 87, died on Thursday, Nov. 16, 1995, and was educated in Detroit Catholic schools, graduating from Most Holy Redeemer High School in 1924. After graduation, she worked in the banking industry until she married Emmett E. Tracy on Feb. 14, 1931.

Frances Ann Tracy

Mrs. Tracy was an active member of the Grosse Pointe and Harbor Spring communities, where she and her husband kept homes. She was a member of the Christ Child Society, a long-time board member of the Catholic Youth Organization, the Saint Francis Home, the Milk Fund of the Sarah Fisher Home, Right to Life of Michigan, the Discalced Carmelite Auxiliary and the Bon Secours Assistance League.

Mrs. Tracy was a past director of the Detroit Grand Opera Association, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the League of Catholic Women, United Way of Greater Detroit, the Dom Bosco Home, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and the national board of the Northwood Institute.

Mrs. Tracy was made a Knight of Charity in 1988 for her many charitable efforts, as well as a Dame of the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem.

Mrs. Tracy was most closely associated with the Grosse Pointe Academy in Grosse Pointe Farms and the Holy Childhood School in Harbor Springs. She and her husband Emmet, became founder trustees of the academy when it became the successor school to the Convent of the Sacred Heart. The academy's field house is named in honor of the Tracys.

Mrs. Tracy was instrumental in helping the School Sisters of Notre Dame stay in Harbor Springs when the Holy Childhood School was closed in 1987. A daycare center is now operated by the sisters at the former school site.

Mrs. Tracy viewed charity as a personal commitment and had a great enthusiasm for the many projects that came to her attention. She fought hard for the things she believed in, and never hesitated to express her opinions to the powers that be. Mrs. Tracy sent Carmelite Spiritual Treasures to nine United States presidents.

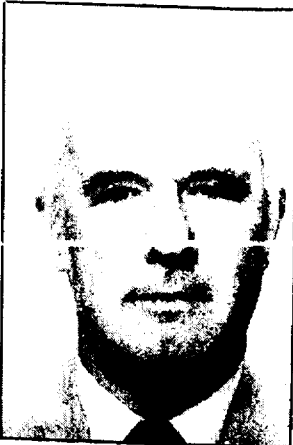

Mrs. Tracy is survived by two sons, Emmet Jr. and Thomas; two daughters, Mary Kay Farley and Denise Summers, 19 grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren. She was predeceased only a week earlier by Emmet Tracy, her husband of 64 years.

Memorial donations may be made to the Monastery of Saint Therese, Discalced Carmelite Nuns, 35750 Moravian Drive, Clinton Township, Mich., 48035.

Funeral services were held recently for James Campbell Stewart at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church who died on Tuesday, Nov. 14, 1995.

Mr. Stewart, a resident of Grosse Pointe Farms, died at Cottage Hospital from a cardiac arrest brought on by complications of Parkinson's Disease. He was born in Hartford, Conn., and was a graduate of the General Staff and Command College of the United States Army.

James Campbell Stewart

Mr. Stewart achieved the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, serving over four years in the South Pacific. He served in the Army Reserves for 26 years.

Mr. Stewart was a member of the Country Club of Detroit, the Detroit Athletic Club and Economic Club of Detroit, serving on its advisory board. He was an avid golfer.

Mr. Stewart is survived by his wife Lillian, four daughters, Diane Magary, Lindsey Peabody, Barbara Stewart and Nancy McCourt, his brother William and six grandchildren.

Mr. Stewart will be interred at the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church Colombarium. Funeral arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

Memorial donations may be made to the Salvation Army, 16130 Northland Drive, Southfield, Mich., 48075 or the charity of the donor's choice.

William A. Raupagh

Longtime Grosse Pointe Woods resident William A. Raupagh, 79, died on Saturday, Nov. 11, 1995, in St. John Hospital in Detroit.

An educator, Mr. Raupagh graduated from Grosse Pointe High School and received his undergraduate degree from Albion College and his master's degree in education from Wayne State College. He taught at Grosse Pointe elementary schools for 20 years.

A history buff, a golfer, a bowler and a fan of sports in general and football in particular, Mr. Raupagh was a veteran of WWII. He always encouraged people to be the best they could be, and earned the trust of the young people he taught.

Mr. Raupagh was a member of the MEA and the Sigma Chi fraternity.

William A. Raupagh

Mr. Raupagh is survived by his wife of 55 years, Seva, sons Tony and Paul, his sister Katherine Snedaker, five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Memorial services will be held at a later date. Donations may be made to the Knox Presbyterian Church, 27000 Crocker Blvd., Harrison Township, Mich., 48045.

Everett J. Bauer

A memorial service was held at St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Grosse Pointe Woods resident Everett J. Bauer on Tuesday, Nov. 21.

Mr. Bauer, 84, died at his home on Saturday, Nov. 18, 1995. He was born in Detroit, and received a degree from the Detroit Institute of Technology.

Mr. Bauer was retired from Chrysler Corp. and was a member of the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club. He enjoyed boating.

Mr. Bauer is survived by his wife Madeline, two sons, the Rev. Gerald Bauer and Ronald Bauer, one step-daughter Mary Morris and eight grandchildren.

Mr. Bauer was predeceased by his first wife Virginia.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church. Funeral arrangements were handled by A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Harry Thomas Ward Jr.

A funeral service will be held at Old St. Mary's Church in the Greektown neighborhood of Detroit on Friday, Nov. 24, at 10 a.m. for former Grosse Pointe Park resident Harry Thomas Ward Jr.

Mr. Ward died on Wednesday, Oct. 29, 1995, at the Jacobetti State Veteran's Hospital in Marquette.

Mr. Ward, 70, was born in Pittsburgh, and was a graduate of the Detroit College of Law. He was a staff sergeant in the Eighth U.S. Army Air Force during WWII, and had a private law practice.

An avid golfer, Mr. Ward also enjoyed collecting fine automobiles.

Mr. Ward is survived by his wife Carol, two daughters, Elizabeth Smith and Mary Pfeiffer, a son, Harry T. Ward III, a sister, Virginia Brophy, his mother, Virginia, and six grandchildren. He was predeceased by his father Harry T. Ward Sr.

Mr. Ward will be interred at Calvary Cemetery in Pittsburgh. Memorial donations may be made to the D.J. Jacobetti State Veterans Facility Special Needs Unit in Marquette, Mich. Funeral arrangements were handled by Canale-Tonella Funeral Home in Marquette.

Estimate miscellaneous deductions now for tax breaks later

You may be able to deduct the cost of purchase work uniforms, obtaining career counseling, or hiring a CPA to assist you with year-end tax planning. The Michigan Association to Certified Public Accountants explains that these seemingly unrelated costs fall into the category of "miscellaneous expenses," which are deductible to the extent they exceed 2 percent of your adjusted gross income (AGI), provided you itemize deductions on your tax return.

The only way to determine whether you'll qualify for the miscellaneous-expense deduction on your 1995 tax return is to tally all qualified expenses for the year. Do it now. Here's why: if you're close to the 2-percent threshold, you can move some miscellaneous expenses into 1995 and take full advantage of the deduction. To do so, however, you need to understand what qualifies as a miscellaneous expense.

What makes such diverse items fall into a single category is the Internal Revenue Service's (IRS) definition of "miscellaneous expenses," that is employee costs that are "ordinary" and "necessary" to the conduct of your business. These costs include the following:

Work clothes and uniforms. The cost and upkeep of work clothes, including laundering and cleaning, are deductible if the clothing is required as a condition of your job and the clothing is not suitable for street wear or everyday use. This definition prohibits you from deducting items such as suits and jeans that you purchased for your job.

Union and association dues. Membership fees paid to unions and professional societies directly related to your employment are generally deductible. However, you may not deduct dues paid to social or athletic clubs.

Books and publications. Uncle Sam also will help to subsidize your efforts to keep up with information in your line of work. For example, you can deduct the cost of subscriptions to trade journals, professional magazines and research books.

Job hunting expenses. You may deduct the cost of obtaining job counseling, preparing your resume, and traveling to and from job interviews, even if your job-hunting doesn't result in a new job. To qualify for the deduction, your job search must be limited to your current field of employment.

Educational expenses. The cost of education to maintain or improve skills require in your employment or necessary to meet the expressed requirement of your employer as a condition to retaining your job status are deductible.

Expenses incurred for the production or collection of income or property management of property held for the creation of income qualifies as a deductible miscellaneous expense. Since you can control the timing of many of these costs, if you're near the 2-percent threshold, you may want to boost your expenses before the end of the year. Deductions for the following generally have been allowed:

- Safe-deposit box rentals that are used to store taxable income-producing bonds and stocks certificates.

- Legal expenses incurred to help you keep your job, produce income or deal with a tax matter.

- Investments publications or software that help you track and manage your investments.

- Investments management fees.

- Travel and transportations to inspect income-producing property.

- Custodial fees for your individual retirement account and other holdings.

Fees you pay for tax advice and tax-return preparation also may be deductible as miscellaneous expenses. Eligible expenses also include costs for tax-planning books and seminars, as well as fees paid to professionals to help you respond to an IRS audit.

CPAs point out that miscellaneous deductions are subject to certain phase-out rules. All taxpayers with AGIs above $114,700 ($57,350 if married, filing separately), must reduce itemized deductions by 3 percent of the amount by which AGI exceeds this limit, up to 80 percent of otherwise allowable itemized deductions. Be ware, too, that excess miscellaneous itemized deductions may be subject you to the Alternative Minimum Tax.

Business Notes

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Peter Schweitzer, president of J. Walter Thompson USA Inc., was the keynote speaker at a seminar for college students sponsored by The Adcraft Club of Detroit held Nov. 11 at the Chrysler Technology Center in Auburn Hills.

Schweitzer

City of Grosse Pointe resident Steve Gagne, president of Dana Commercial Credit in Troy, received the 1995 Michigan Quality Leadership award. The award, given annually by the Michigan Quality Council, was presented Nov. 7 by Gov. John Engler.

For the third consecutive year, Grosse Pointe Farms residents Peter and Elaine Schweitzer have joined the list of honorary co-chairmen of the American Red Cross Rhapsody in Red benefit, which will be held May 25.

Mr. Schweitzer is the president of the J. Walter Thompson Co.

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Larry Stephenson, M.D., was one of two Wayne State University doctors named holders of endowed chairs.

Stephenson, chief of cardiothoracic surgery at Harper Hospital and professor of surgery at the WSU School of Medicine, was named holder of the Ford/Webber Endowed Chair in General Surgery. The chair was made possible through the Webber Advancement Fund and the estate plan of Mrs. Beverly Ford. Under Stephenson's leadership, Harper Hospital and the school of medicine have been recognized as a center of excellence for cardiovascular research and clinical services. He is recognized as a leading investigator in the field of cardiomyoplasty, an alternative to heart transplantation for the treatment of severe heart failure.

Cumming

Grosse Pointe Park resident Michael G. Cumming was recently elected a Fellow of the American College of Trust and Estate Counsel. The college is composed of more than 2,650 of the finest estate planning and estate administration lawyers in the United States, Canada and several foreign countries. Cumming is a member of the Detroit law firm of Clark, Klein & Beaumont.

Grosse Pointe Park resident Beverly Beltaire, founder and longtime president of PR Associates Inc. in Detroit, was recently inducted into the Public Relations Society of America.

A member of the executive board of directors of the Economic Club of Detroit, Beltaire was the first chairman of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce and the first female director of the Adcraft Club of Detroit.

In addition to her recent induction into the Junior Achievement Business Hall of Fame, Beltaire was named Humanitarian of the Year by the March of Dimes in 1991; Woman of the Year by the American Lung Association in 1985; Headliner of the Year by Women in Communications Inc. in 1982; and Detroit's Advertising Woman of the Year by the Women's Advertising Club in 1978.

Beltaire is presently a senior consultant at PR Associates.

Grosse Pointe Park resident John M. Malone Jr., M.D., has been appointed vice president of the Detroit Medical Center Academic Affairs and associate dean of Medical Center Affairs for the Wayne State University School of Medicine.

Malone will work with Wayne State University and the Detroit Medical Center to maintain and improve residency and fellowship programs.

Malone will continue his practice as a gynecologic oncologist at Hutzel Hospital, where he has been on staff since 1981.

A graduate of John Carroll University, Malone received his medical degree from Wayne State University in 1977.

Grosse Pointe Park resident Meg Brophy has been promoted to senior vice president, director of strategic planning and research at the Detroit office of the advertising firm of Young & Rubicam. Before her promotion, Brophy was senior vice president, associate director of research responsible for the diversified Lincoln-Mercury accounts. She began her career with Young & Rubicam 13 years ago as a research manager on the Ford corporate account. From there, she left the firm briefly to join the firm of D'Arcy Masius as group research director on the Pontiac account. Brophy later returned to Young & Rubicam as vice president, senior consultant for Sanders & Associates, a marketing subsidiary of Young & Rubicam, and then became vice president, director of consumer insights. In 1992, she was named senior vice president.

Brophy

Grosse Pointe Shores resident Christ Daskas received the 50-Year Service Award from the National Association of Meat Purveyors at their annual convention last month in LaJolla, Calif. Daskas is vice president of KBD Inc. in Detroit. Daskas first worked for his father at Detroit Lamb & Veal Co. in 1943. ### Torch ignites blaze

Firefighters from Grosse Pointe Farms, Grosse Pointe Woods, Harper Woods and the City of Grosse Pointe worked to extinguish a Nov. 14 house fire on Vendome in the Farms. According to Farms fire marshal Sam Candela, the blaze was started by contractors working to repair leaking gutters. Contractors began working on the house around 1 p.m., using a propane torch to dry out the gutters. Around 3 p.m. the workers smelled smoke and began searching for the source. When they discovered that the wood under the gutters was hot to the touch, they cut a hole in the boards, creating a backdraft in the attic overhang, and causing the smoldering material to burst into flames. The workers attempted to put out the fire with a garden hose but called 911 when they realized the fire was out of control. Firefighters arrived at the house around 3:30 p.m. The fire was confined mostly to the third-floor attic, but burned through to the second floor in one area of the house. No one was home at the time of the fire but firefighters were able to rescue a pet bird and dog from the house. As a rule, the Farms discourages contractors from using open flame on combustible parts of houses. In this case, the contractor will not be charged with any wrongdoing, Candela said.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Police nab job-hunting thief

Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers were called to an office in the 15000 block of Jefferson at 4:45 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15, to investigate the office next door. When officers checked the office in question, they discovered a suspect who claimed he was looking for work and had heard that some was available at the office.

A background check of the suspect turned up a couple of bench warrants, and the suspect fit the description of someone who broke into other offices in the Park earlier that day.

The suspect was held at the Park city jail until taken to a county facility while awaiting arraignment.

four pages and includes at least four charges of OUIL or operating while impaired. His license was revoked almost 10 years ago. He also has had numerous suspensions for failure to appear in court; the charges originate from Detroit to Romulus, Allen Park, Ecorse and Lincoln Park.

Sign stolen

Park public safety officers investigated the theft of a street sign on the traffic island at Jefferson and Nottingham. The theft was discovered on Tuesday, Oct. 14. Police are still investigating.

Driver in fatal crash bound for trial

The 33-year-old Detroit man who crashed a rental truck into five cars on Vernier last month, ultimately killing a 25-year-old woman, waived his right to a preliminary hearing on Nov. 15 and is scheduled for arraignment in Detroit Recorder's Court on Thursday, Nov. 30.

Grosse Pointe Woods Municipal Judge Lynne Pierce granted Ivory Lynn Herron's request to waive his preliminary hearing and continued his $500,000 bond. Herron is being held in Wayne County Jail on charges of second-degree murder, operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor or drugs and driving with a suspended license.

Herron is charged in connection with an Oct. 17 accident on Vernier and Charlevoix in the Woods. Herron was driving east on Vernier around 3:30 p.m. and exceeding the speed limit, crossed the center line and crashed into a GMC Jimmy driven by Regina basketball coach Christina Comito of St. Clair Shores. Comito was pronounced dead at St. John Hospital.

No other injuries were reported.

Witnesses told police they saw Herron drinking from a 40-ounce bottle of beer, which police found inside the truck cab. But tests on blood samples taken from Herron revealed no traces of alcohol.

Woods police detective Bob Kwiatkowski said investigators at the Michigan State Police crime lab in Lansing did find phenocyclidine (PCP) and lidocaine (administered through IV in the hospital) in Herron's blood.

Kwiatkowski speculated that the IV could have flushed the alcohol from Herron's bloodstream.

Herron's driving record, according to Woods police, fills

Is Impressionistic art simply a style of art we enjoy or is it also a wise investment?

Most collectors of Impressionistic art buy it because they enjoy the beauty of the painting. However, many investors do not realize that to buy art of this style is one of the most important investments they could ever make.

Amazingly enough, the creator of Impressionism, Claude Monet, was alive only seventy years ago and the value of his paintings have increased by an astonishing, ten thousand times. The interesting question is how did his paintings, as well as other artists of Impressionism, gain so much value in such a relatively short period of time? The works of this extraordinary style of painting now sell for millions of dollars. Can you think of an investment that gives you more pleasure and greater return?

It would be fascinating to learn the answer to "why" Impressionistic art has such a great appeal and continues to appreciate in value. The answer could possibly be summarized in just two reasons. Firstly, "true" Impressionist painters are rare in our world today and will most likely become non-existent within twenty years. Why will this occur? Simply because the style of Impressionism cannot be taught to young artists in school. It is a special gift that very few artists receive, and this innate ability requires endless years of personal experience to cultivate. The artist must overcome daily problems that may arise while painting out of doors. This long road of hard work and perseverance discourages many young and talented artists to do so. Especially, when there exists surer artistic routes in this new, technological world in which we are living. Young artists are able to express themselves through graphic art via computers and can be assured of a job and a comfortable living. So, this technological age is luring young talent in a new direction.

Secondly, Impressionism is an art which comes from the artist's heart. That is why this style evokes so much emotion in those who view it. Again, there is another important reason why Impressionistic art will always be cherished by art lovers. To clearly understand the wonderful mystery of its appeal, you must first know more about Impressionism. It is different from other art in two distinct ways: Most importantly, it is a style of painting that must be performed outdoors, in communion with nature. The artist not only paints what he sees but uses all his senses to accomplish his final masterpiece. The artist of Impressionism does not paint the subject but rather paints the light which touches that subject and then reaches the artist's eye with shapes and colors. This is why when people observe the art closely they cannot distinguish the subject. It is not until one steps back that one can fully identify the subject and then revere the painting entirely. The viewer's eye collects all the points of light in shapes and colors and then uncovers the subject. This active process that the viewer unknowingly executes explains the pleasure that is experienced as the luminous world of Impressionism unfolds before him.

In the end, as pieces of Impressionism begin to fade in their availability, they will never fade in their worth. They will only become more sought after and much more valuable as the years pass. Especially, as the artists of Impressionism become fewer and their works rarer. These gifted painters will eventually leave us but they will have left behind their indelible mark through the paintings so masterfully done in their unique mode of expression... Impressionism.

Fontbonne Auxiliary's White Christmas Ball is Dec. 8 Annual fundraiser earmarks proceeds for St. John's Outpatient Clinic

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

The annual White Christmas Ball, a black tie benefit sponsored by the Fontbonne Auxiliary of St. John Hospital and Medical Center, will be held on Friday, Dec. 8, at the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn.

The theme this year is "Visions of Sugarplums," from Clement Moore's well-known, well-loved Christmas poem for children.

Proceeds are earmarked for St. John's Outpatient Clinic, a facility that logs nearly 19,000 patient visits annually. Most are low-income children and women, Medicaid patients and people who may have no other access to medical care.

"It is our hope that the children who will be better served by this pediatric and OB/Gyn clinic expansion will have 'visions of sugarplums' all year long, through happier, healthier lives," said Jennifer Some Brock of the City of Grosse Pointe, general chairman for this year's ball.

"We are exceeding last year's number of clinic visits so far this year," said Mary Ann MacGillis of Grosse Pointe Woods, clinical manager of the Outpatient Clinic. "We need more space. Sometimes patients have to wait up to two months for well-baby checkups."

MacGillis said expansion of the clinic doesn't necessarily mean adding more space, but redesigning the existing space — converting wasted hallways, for instance, into much-needed consultation rooms. The renovation project will cost about $400,000 and is scheduled to begin as soon as money is available.

"We are very pleased with the Fontbonne Auxiliary's designation of support for our clinic," said Vernice Davis Anthony, senior vice president, pediatric allergy, and a once-a-month urology/podiatry/ENT/ophthalmology clinic.

Proceeds from this year's ball will be used for the expansion of the hospital's Outpatient Clinic and its services.

In addition to providing routine patient care, the clinic also participates in several special programs, including transportation for needy patients, dietary education, prenatal education, breast and cervical cancer screening and a reading program for children who are waiting for appointments.

The reading room is stocked with crates and shelves of picture books and paperbacks, a chalkboard and colorful posters of Pilgrims and Indians and Thanksgiving turkeys.

"We have volunteers and some former teachers who work part time reading to children who are waiting," MacGillis said. "Recently, some kids from St. Paul School raised money to buy books for the children who use this room."

The goal of the Fontbonne Auxiliary's White Christmas Ball this year is to raise $150,000 for the clinic. The Fontbonne is a 47-year-old volunteer organization that contributes hundreds of thousands of dollars each year to the hospital. The ball is its major fundraiser.

Honorary celebrity chairmen are Gov. John and Michelle Engler. Honorary chairmen are Patricia Connelly and the late Edward B. Connelly. General chairman is Grosse Pointer Jennifer Some Brock.

Cocktails are at 7 p.m. Dinner will be at 8 p.m., followed by music by the 12-piece Stanley Paul Orchestra. Tickets are $250 a person. To get an invitation to the ball, call Leona Luizzo at (313) 343-3675.

president for Urban and Community Health at St. John Health System. "This truly supports our values of service to neighbor and compassion. The result will be increased access to care for high risk mothers and children. This is a great way to kick-off the urban and community health focus of the St. John Health System."

The Outpatient Clinic is open from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. five days a week, MacGillis said, "but we're rarely finished by 4." Located on the ground floor in the northeast section of St. John Hospital, the clinic employs 18 people and is served by 12 pediatric residents, 22 surgical residents and about a dozen OB/Gyns. "It has one of the few pediatric residency programs in Michigan," she added.

OB/Gyn and pediatric patients are seen every day, MacGillis said. Plus, there are many smaller clinics — surgery, low risk OB, high risk OB, colposcopy, pediatric ado-

Karmanos Cancer Institute endorses breast self-exams

There has been substantial debate recently concerning the value of breast self-examination.

The Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute endorses BSE as one of three components of proper breast cancer screening. The other two are physician's or clinical breast exams; and screening mammography.

According to Dr. Cheryl Grigorian, director of the institute's Berkely detection center, dismissing BSE as a detection method confuses women and ignores the facts.

"There are thousands of women right here in Michigan who are alive today because they found their own breast lump," Grigorian said. "Ask them if the procedure has any value."

While little scientific data is available either supporting or opposing BSE as a detection tool, opponents of the procedure cite the hundreds of thousands of lumps found each year that turn out to be not cancerous. These benign lumps, they say, cause unnecessary anxiety.

"Sure, finding a lump that turns out to be benign will cause some anxiety," said Dr. William P. Peters, director of the institute. "But you can't compare that with the chance of saving a life."

Both Peters and Grigorian caution that BSE must be performed properly to be effective. For more information on BSE or breast cancer screening, call the Cancer Information Service of Michigan and Indiana at (800) 422-6237.

Christ Church plans 'Greens of Christmas,' wassail party

The "Greens of Christmas," Christ Church's kickoff of the Christmas season, has an added attraction this year — an old English Christmas wassail party and auction.

The event will be held on Thursday, Nov. 30, and the sale of greens will be on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 1 and 2, in the Church's Undercroft.

Proceeds from all three events will benefit the church's youth ministry.

Honorary chairmen are the Rev. and Mrs. Edward A.M. Cobden and Mr. and Mrs. J. Thayer McMillan II.

General chairman is Yolanda Turner; co-chairman is Margie Ogden.

The wassail party will begin at 6:30 p.m. Thursday and includes an appetizer buffet, spirits, entertainment and an opportunity to bid on items like: a week in Bermuda, four days at a bed and breakfast in Italy, tickets to Red Wings games, fine wines, furniture, personal fitness training, pottery, crystal, silver, paintings, fancy food and more.

For tickets, call (313) 885-4841 or (313) 886-8007. Reservations are limited.

The "Greens of Christmas" will offer holiday greens, wreaths, roping and gift items such as hand-smocked and hand-stitched clothing, home baked goods, jams, jellies, works of art, books, crafts and gifts.

The greens sale will be from 5 to 9 p.m. Friday; and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, at the church, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Christ Church Grosse Pointe will hold a wassail party and auction on Thursday, Nov. 30. Its annual "Greens of Christmas" sale will be held on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 1 and 2. Getting items ready for the auction are, from left, Margie Ogden, co-chairman; Yolanda Turner, general chairman; and Judy Duffy, volunteer.

Warm up: The Lakeshore Optimist Club's annual "Coats for the Cold" collection will be from noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2.

Donations of warm coats, gloves, scarves, boots, mittens and snow suits will be distributed through Fort Street Presbyterian Church's Open Door program.

People who would like to donate items should call (313) 882-2498 and leave their names and addresses on a recording. Bundles of donated clothes should be left on the donors' front porches before noon Dec. 2. Lakeshore Optimist Club members will pick up bundles.

All donations should be clean and (if possible) identified as to size.

Clothes are earmarked for homeless and needy Detroiters.

"We are confident that the warm offerings this year will again show Grosse Pointe's heart," said Terry Olson, president of the Lakeshore Optimist Club.

75th anniversary

The Merrill-Palmer Institute celebrated its 75th anniversary recently at the Pontchartrain Hotel. Founded in 1920, the institute is part of Wayne State University's graduate school. It provides interdisciplinary programs in child and family development and conducts research, advises on policy and provides professional training and direct service relating to children and families.

Holiday Bazaar

The Parcels Middle School PTO will hold its 20th annual Holiday Bazaar from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2, at the school, 20600 Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods. Proceeds will support PTO activities.

More than 150 exhibitors will display handmade craft items — wood carvings, ceramics, floral arrangements, jewelry, painted sweatshirts, Christmas ornaments and decorations. A cafe will serve food from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Advance tickets are available at the school between 1 and 3 p.m. the week of Nov. 27; or from 5 to 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 27 and 28.

A $3 "Early Bird" ticket (available in advance only) allows shoppers to enter at 9 a.m., an hour before general admission. General admission tickets are $2; budget tickets are $1 and allow shoppers to enter after noon.

Heartburn or heart attack?

By Dr. Walter Mark Hassig
Special Writer

It's the holidays — time for families to gather 'round the table and give thanks for the year's bounty. But somewhere in between the sumptuous turkey and the tempting dessert, you start to feel a tightening in your chest. You hold your breath hoping it will go away. Then you wonder: "Is it heartburn or heart attack?"

If you have associated shortness of breath, sweating, fatigue and perhaps even nausea and vomiting, the combination of these symptoms could mean a heart attack. If that's the case, don't hesitate. Head straight for the nearest emergency room and let a doctor confirm the diagnosis for you.

Dr. Walter Mark Hassig

Symptoms of heartburn, on the other hand, can typically include a burning pain in the center of your chest that travels from the bottom tip of the breastbone to the throat, a sour taste in your mouth, frequent belching, or a lump in your throat. Recurrent heartburn is caused by a backflow of stomach acid into the swallowing tube. And once you have these stomach acids where they don't belong — you have heartburn.

So how can you avoid heartburn? The best way to control heartburn is by changing your habits. Are you overweight? Do you wear tight-fitting clothes? Those extra pounds and tight clothes put pressure on your abdomen that could be forcing stomach acids back into your swallowing tube.

Do you eat right before going to bed or lie down as soon as you've eaten? After a big meal, you should allow at least three hours for your food to digest before lying down. Remember that when you lie down immediately after eating, your stomach acids will start to flow backward, and that's not the way you want them to go.

If you know that you are more prone to bouts of heartburn, you should try to avoid foods with onion and garlic. Cigarettes, coffee and alcohol should also be avoided. All of these items contain chemicals that can lead to heartburn.

A common misconception is that mints and gum will help relieve heartburn. Unfortunately, relief will only be temporary. Mints will actually cause the lower swallowing tube to relax, allowing reflux acids to back up. Chewing gum will also aggravate heartburn because you swallow lots of air when you chew gum.

So how do you decide whether or not you should see your doctor? If you find that over-the-counter heartburn medications such as Tagamet HB and Pepcid AC (which are about one-half prescription strength) are no longer easing your symptoms, or if you are experiencing more than two episodes of heartburn a week, you should see your doctor. It could be as simple as prescribing a prescription-strength medication and/or modifying your lifestyle. Others may require diagnostic tests to find out what is causing the heartburn.

Endoscopy now allows doctors to use a tube-like instrument with lenses and a light source to see exactly what's going on in your stomach and swallowing tube. Endoscopic procedures usually don't require anesthesia. St. John Health System also offers 24-hour pH monitoring to evaluate the levels of acid in the lower swallowing tube.

If medications and lifestyle changes don't help to relieve your heartburn, laparoscopic laser surgery may be used in cases where a hiatal hernia is present. A hiatal hernia pushes a small portion of the top of the stomach up into the chest, forcing reflux stomach acids into the swallowing tube. Through the use of laparoscopic laser surgery, a surgeon can wrap and tighten the swallowing tube so that the reflux acids won't back up any more. Laparoscopic laser hiatal hernia repair generally results in a shorter hospital stay and a quicker recovery than traditional hernia surgery.

My best advice to you this holiday season and every day, is to learn how to do things in moderation. There's nothing wrong with a four-, five-, or even six-course meal as long as you use good healthy common sense and sensibly sized portions.

If you have any doubt about whether it's heartburn or heart attack, see your doctor. Here's wishing you a healthy holiday season.

Dr. Walter Mark Hassig is a gastroenterologist on staff at St. John Hospital and Medical Center. He is a resident of Grosse Pointe Woods.

How to deal with depression during the holiday season

By Dr. George D. Wilbanks
President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Temporary blues during the holidays are not uncommon, but more serious symptoms may signify clinical depression, which affects nearly 11 million Americans each year.

It's a myth that clinical depression occurs more frequently during the holiday season, but that's small comfort to those whose suffering stands in stark contrast to the gaiety of the season. Feelings of depression may be triggered by the reminders of loss that many experience during this time. Not living up to ideals set by society and not being able to purchase gifts may aggravate depression.

Women are estimated to be twice as likely to be depressed as men, because of different biological responses to stress as well as different types of social stresses. Women tend to be more prone to seasonal affective disorder (SAD), a depressive syndrome which is probably triggered by individual sensitivity to varying amounts of daylight.

SAD typically strikes in the winter — with up to 10 percent of those living in the north affected — and lifts when the season changes.

Clinical depression is a highly treatable mental illness, yet many people are reluctant to seek help. It is a medical disorder just like diabetes, high blood pressure or heart disease, which can be treated. Some of the major symptoms of depression include: Loss of interest in things you used to enjoy; feeling slowed down or restless and unable to sit still; feeling worthless or guilty; an increase or decrease in appetite; or thoughts of death or suicide. Physical or psychological symptoms that can accompany depression include: headaches; sexual problems; digestive problems; or being anxious and worried.

If you have symptoms of depression, seek help. Contact your doctor, who can check to see if there is a physical cause for your depression and may refer you to a mental health specialist for further evaluation and treatment. You should never try to self-medicate your depression by using sedatives, alcohol, or stimulants to make yourself feel better. These efforts will only help to mask the real problem and may in fact make it worse.

It may seem like you are the only one feeling this way but, in truth, you are not alone. The holidays can be stressful to many people. Help is available. Talk to your doctor.

Single, free copies of "Depression" are available by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope along with the name of the booklet to: The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, Resource Center, AP106, 409 12th Street, SW, Washington, D.C. 20024

Anorexia? Enjoy Thanksgiving but don't ignore the problem

Victor Bloom, M.D.
Special Writer

Thanksgiving is turkey-time — stuffing, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, sweet potatoes and pumpkin pie, maybe with some whipped cream. To those of us who love to eat, it is a joyous time.

But believe it or not, there are a growing number of people who get sick to their stomachs at the thought of stuffing themselves. They are afflicted with anorexia nervosa, a debilitating and devastating condition in which persons could literally starve themselves to death. Somehow he or she, (mostly "she") is repulsed at the thought of a millimeter of fat on her bones and is trying to transform her body into the shape of "Twiggy," or the present-day models who are almost 6 feet tall and under 120 pounds.

These Vogue models have become the standard of fashion and beauty for some, especially in America, but also around the world. These anorexics maintain the belief that such a body is necessary for approval and love; they want to be "attractive," but ironically and tragically, they may get to look like concentration-camp survivors.

On the other hand, bulimics may join in the holiday festivities with varied body sizes and stuff themselves on all the goodies, but then secretly retire to throw up, so as not to gain any weight. Excess purging can lead to severe mineral imbalances and stomach acid can cause erosion of teeth. There is terrible guilt associated with eating and conflict about ingesting and purging.

These are now classified as "eating-disorders" and research has shown that there is usually a family history of mood disorders, which indicates a neurochemical imbalance which is often hereditary.

It used to be believed that these conditions were due to childhood emotional problems, but experience has shown that psychotherapy alone is seldom effective in curing these conditions. Nowadays, psychotherapy is conducted in conjunction with family therapy, medical and nutritional care, support groups and periods of residential or inpatient psychiatric treatment.

Anti-depressive medication is also often helpful, combined with cognitive as well as emotive therapies.

If you have a friend or a relative with an untreated eating disorder, by all means advise him or her to seek professional help. Much is available and it is now more effective than ever, with the growing experience of mental health professionals and availability of the newer medications.

Anorexics can be spotted by the evident underweight and bulimics by the behaviors of "binging," in which the person will consume huge quantities candy, cookies or ice cream. They might even consume large quantities of vegetables to provide a full if not stuffed feeling, to produce the impetus for vomiting.

Eating would seem to be the most normal of human activities, and it is hard to believe the extremes to which persons with eating disorders will go, but for some reason these people become fixated on food and its connection to body image, size and shape.

Eating disorders include those who are grossly obese, another life-threatening condition. In this case, people become addicted to food, just as others may become addicted to alcohol, cocaine, heroin or nicotine. Ingestion produces a short-term feeling of relaxation or relief, which is highly prized, and long-term morbidity is overlooked or denied. These people are in need of intensive medical care and long-term supervision.

The best way to deal with these people is to give firm and repeated advice with a compassionate and non-judgmental attitude. Their problematic behavior should never be the source of cruel joking. Avoiding the subject altogether is "enabling" of the troubled behavior and does no good. The problem will not go away by itself.

Eating disorders are quite common when one includes the large percentage of overweight Americans. Most of us rationalize our excesses and try to work off the extra weight with exercises at home or in gyms.

It is a long struggle and a delicate balance, but for the time being, enjoy Thanksgiving. We are lucky to live in a land of plenty and peace. We have a lot to be thankful for.

South coaching pair honored by their peers

Caranicolas molds a winner

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Tom Caranicolas is a blue-collar coach in a white-collar town, but his methods have been highly successful in making Grosse Pointe South's girls soccer team one of the best in the metropolitan Detroit area.

"My basic coaching style is simple," said Caranicolas, who was voted Class A coach of the year by the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association. "You trap, you pass and you supply the ball to the open people. If you do those things well you're going to be successful."

"We don't believe in a lot of fancy dribbling and we don't support individualism on the field. We play as a team. We don't want any spectators on the field. Everyone has a job to do and that makes for a good, solid team."

Caranicolas also believes in using all his players.

"My belief is that if you're good enough to be on the team, you're good enough to play," he said. "We want everyone to participate. That way they all feel responsible for the outcome, win or lose. And we've won games by wearing down the opposition."

Soccer has been a big part of Caranicolas' life since he began playing the game as a 5-year-old in his native Greece.

When he was in high school he played on farm teams for the Greek First Division squads and tried to see as many of the top games as he could.

"I loved soccer," Caranicolas said. "I used to inflate the balls, chase loose balls — anything I could do to get close to the field and watch the practice. It was a big thing for me to watch the practices."

Caranicolas became so adept at the game that he came to the United States to play for Adelphi University in New York, where he earned All-American recognition.

After earning his master's degree in 1973, Caranicolas took a job in Chicago and played for some of the top semi-pro teams in that area. Five years later he moved to Detroit to work in the Ford Motor Co. data processing department.

He coached soccer at Livonia Franklin and Bentley high schools and also played on teams in Livonia and refereed in that city's youth soccer association.

Caranicolas thought he had retired from coaching when Bentley closed, but then he got a call from South athletic director Jo Lake.

"Somebody suggested that she call me and she did," Caranicolas said. "That was five seasons ago and I've really enjoyed myself at South."

And South has enjoyed success under Caranicolas. Last year the Blue Devils won the Macomb Area Conference White Division championship and also took the district title.

South's state tournament run ended at the regional level with a 3-2 loss to perennial power Troy Athens. The defeat was a disappointment, but it proved to everyone that the Blue Devils were ready to take their place among the elite teams in high school soccer.

"Our next goal is to win the regional," Caranicolas said. "And then we'd like to win the state championship — hopefully, next year."

Tom Berschback has had his boys tennis teams at Grosse Pointe South finish in the top 10 at the state meet every year since he became coach in 1988.

Berschback's net worth high

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It's ironic that with all of Tom Berschback's success coaching the boys tennis teams at Grosse Pointe South, he should be remembered by his peers for one of his biggest disappointments.

The Blue Devils were the favorite to win a state championship in 1990, but some upsets in first-round doubles matches cost South the title and it finished second to Ann Arbor Pioneer.

It was a bitter disappointment for Berschback, but he handled it with the class he has displayed throughout a coaching career that began at Grosse Pointe North in 1980.

"It was disappointing but the kids tried," Berschback said. "I just had to tell them 'Guys, it's OK. Things like that happen.' I've always tried to teach my players to win with class and to lose with class. They look to me for an example."

"It's kind of funny that that's what a lot of people remember, but I guess it's an honor to be remembered like that."

Berschback will receive another honor soon when he accepts the Coach of the Year trophy for boys tennis. He was selected by members of the Michigan High School Tennis Coaches Association.

Last spring, South graduated the nucleus of a strong squad that finished eighth in the state, but that didn't mean a rebuilding year for Berschback. The Blue Devils finished 8-1 in dual meets and had a 6-0 record in the tough Macomb Area Conference Red Division. South tied with U-D Jesuit for the regional championship and finished in a tie for 10th place in the state meet.

The selection of Berschback, whose South teams have finished in the top 10 in the state every year since 1988, was no surprise to athletic director Jo Lake.

"He's so organized and because of that the kids have confidence in him and respect his judgment," Lake said. "Kids go to a coach who gives them confidence. And he shares his energy with them. He gives part of his life to his players."

Because of Berschback's easy-going manner, his players are usually calm and collected in important matches.

"He's so together that he puts the kids at ease," Lake said.

Berschback was an outstanding high school tennis player at old Austin High and was offered a scholarship to Detroit Mercy. But by the time he got there, the school had dropped tennis, so he switched to fencing.

Tennis remained Berschback's first love and in 1980 he became the tennis coach at Grosse Pointe North.

In 1988, he moved across town to Grosse Pointe South and was Don Zysk's assistant for one year before Zysk retired. He took over as head coach of the Blue Devils in 1989 and has been there ever since.

Berschback has compiled a remarkable record in dual meets. His teams have posted a 136-24 mark, and it becomes even more impressive when only league meets are considered. In league competition

Regina sends North, South to the sidelines

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's tournament trail was a lot shorter this season than last year, but coach Gary Bennett had no complaints.

"At the beginning of the year, I said I'd be ecstatic if we finished 500," he said after last Friday's 54-25 loss to Regina in the Class A district championship game at North left the Norsemen with a 12-11 overall mark.

"And if Molly (Peters) hadn't been hurt, I think we would have won those two games in the league (Utica and Anchor Bay) that we lost. The highlights of the year were beating (Grosse Pointe) South twice and beating Fraser. So far, we're the only team to beat Fraser."

North went into this season with only one starter (Peters) back from the team that lost only twice in 1994 and advanced to the state quarterfinals before losing in overtime to Detroit King.

"This was a great team to work with," Bennett said. "They listened and they worked well as a team."

North fell behind Regina 21-10 at halftime and the Saddelites just kept adding to their lead in the second half.

"We played fine defensively, but we just couldn't score," Bennett said. "And by not being able to score, you just fall deeper and deeper into a hole. When we tried to work some time off the clock, we'd commit a turnover."

"Regina was just better at every position than we were. With Molly at only 50 or 60 percent, we couldn't match up with them anywhere. But I'm glad we got a chance to play them. We'll use this for next year so our young kids can see what it's going to take."

Peters scored six points in the third quarter and it wasn't long before the Norsemen had a three-point lead. East Detroit tied the game at 39-all on a three-point play with a little more than a minute to play, but Lindsay Simmon, who had an outstanding game, scored on a putback with about 40 seconds left.

Simmon then stole the ball, but when another North player was fouled she missed both free throws.

The Shamrocks also missed two free throws with 11 seconds to go. East Detroit got the rebound after the second miss and another shot failed to find the mark as time expired.

"East Detroit really played well," Bennett said. "They competed right to the end."

Simmon finished with 14 points, 20 rebounds and five steals. Jennifer Pagel added 12 points and 11 rebounds, while Robyn Maples had eight rebounds from her guard position and six steals.

"Robyn was just incredible," Bennett said. "She played as hard as anybody could play. We'll really miss her intensity."

One play Maples was involved in stood out.

She dove for a loose ball at the baseline on one end of the floor, missed it, but hustled back to the other end in time to stop East Detroit's fast break.

"Robyn isn't going to be outthrust by anyone," Bennett said.

Maples and Sarah Merz are the only two seniors who've played a lot for North this year.

Woods to host platform event

There's a dual purpose for the first Grosse Pointe Woods Platform Tennis Tournament next month.

"We're trying to expose our facility to the residents of the Woods," said tournament director Ken Gutow. "A lot of them don't even know it's open during the winter months, but we have to platform courts and they're among the finest around."

Gutow would also like to introduce people to the sport.

"It's a spinoff from tennis," he said. "But a lot of people have never seen it or played it. We're going to have free lessons on the Friday and Saturday of the tournament. We just want to introduce more people to the sport and show them how easy it is to be good at it."

The tournament will be held at the Woods park on Friday, Dec. 29, from 4 to 10 p.m.; on Saturday, Dec. 30, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; and on Sunday, Dec. 31, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Each team will play one match on Friday and two on Saturday. The finals and semifinals will be held Sunday.

Applications may be picked up at the Woods park beginning at 6 p.m., Monday, Dec. 4. The first 16 teams will gain entry to the tournament. Any others go on a waiting list.

One player from each team must be a Woods resident, but the other partner doesn't have to be named until Dec. 26. The draw will be available Dec. 27.

Players must have their $15 tournament fee and show their park pass when they pick up their application.

For more information, call 343-2470.

"We want this to be a fun tournament and we hope it becomes an annual thing," Gutow said. "And if we have enough interest, we'll expand beyond 16 teams next year."

Crane scores in Spartan wins

Junior left wing Brian Crane scored a goal in each game recently as Michigan State's hockey team posted 6-2 victories over Notre Dame and Cornell.

Crane notched his first collegiate shorthanded goal in the Notre Dame game.

In seven games this season, Crane has two goals and an assist to boost his career totals for 64 games to 10 goals and eight assists.

Crane, who has tallied three game-winning goals for the Spartans, is a Grosse Pointe South grad.

Inside game beats Blue Devils

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It was an inside job that robbed Grosse Pointe South of its chance to reach the finals of the Class A district girls basketball tournament.

"They outsize us inside," South coach Peggy Van Eckoute said after Regina beat her Blue Devils 59-38 in the district at Grosse Pointe North.

"We didn't have anybody to guard (Renee) LaBelle and (Sarah) Judd. And when we blocked them out, they just reached over our heads to get the rebounds. We moved the ball around the perimeter well, but we didn't have anybody to work it inside to."

South trailed 29-14 at halftime, but the Blue Devils put on a spurt at the start of the third quarter and closed the gap to 11 points, forcing Regina coach Diane Laffey to call a timeout and switch to a half-court press.

That seemed to work as the Saddelites boosted their lead back to 15 points and maintained that margin for most of the second half.

"We didn't play badly and my kids played hard the whole game," Van Eckoute said. "Regina was just better."

Even though South was often getting position under the boards, the smaller Blue Devils were outrebounded 40-21.

South's Carrie Geer led all scorers with 20 points, including three three-point goals. Caitlin Shapiro and Molly McKenzie each finished with seven points.

The 6-foot-1 LaBelle led Regina with 15 points.

The game left South with an overall 10-11 record and marked the final game for seniors Geer, McKenzie and Meredith Wolfe. Another senior, Amy Wendt, missed most of the season because of illness.

Geer and McKenzie have been South's scoring and rebounding leaders all season, but Wolfe's contributions will be missed, too.

"I don't talk a lot about Meredith because she's never among the scoring or rebounding leaders, but she does the smart things that make a team successful," Van Eckoute said.

And Van Eckoute felt that this year was a successful season, despite the final record.

"I was really pleased with my kids," she said. "All season they did what they had to do. When we started the season 0-6, I didn't lose them. Instead of them saying, 'it's going to be one of those years,' they said 'we're going to show people we're better than that.' And they did. We finished second in the league (Macomb Area Conference White Division) and our worst loss was to Regina."

Decisive wins in hockey league

There were two convincing victories during last week's action in the Marge's Bar Senior Hockey League.

Sequoia Industries moved into first place with an 8-3 win over RE/MAX in the Pointes. RE/MAX jumped ahead 1-0 on a goal by Phil Pitters, but Sequoia scored the next five goals. Frank Coates had two and John Davies, John Kinch and Bob Murray added one apiece.

Rich Carron scored twice for RE/MAX and Murray's second goal and two by Shannon Nowowiecki completed the Sequoia scoring.

John Patterson had four goals and an assist and Dan Paolucci collected three goals and an assist to lead Glass Recyclers to an 11-4 win over Marge's Bar.

Matt Costello had two goals and four assists, while Mike Baker and Jeff Quinlan added single goals.

John Rajt tallied twice for Marge's, while Mike Stapleton and Jeff Komarsa added a goal each.

101 PRAYERS

Prayer Of The Blessed Virgin Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my mother. Oh Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart, to succor me in my necessity (request here). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse. Holy Mary, I place this prayer in your hands. Say this 3 times for 3 days, publish it. It will be granted to you. D.D.

101 PRAYERS

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world, now and forever. Oh Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us.

Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day, your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks, St. Jude for prayer answered. Special thanks to the Holy Spirit, the Blessed Virgin Mary and St. Theresa. J.N.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!
An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

A bird brain twister

Bird watching is an activity that's educational for children and relaxing for adults. Learning to identify birds and bird song, and learning how to feed them can teach children to care for, and respect, nature's other creatures. For adults, watching birds is a soothing activity after a hard day's work.

Attracting birds to your yard is easier than you might expect. Goldfinches, chickadees, cardinals and other small song birds are always attracted to a source of food, especially now, when natural resources are scarce. Though simple to make, a small feeder or birdhouse can be a time-consuming project. Large, fancy birdhouses or feeders are rather costly and usually used by more experienced bird watchers.

An easier, inexpensive option would be to buy a product such as the Log Feeder from Easy Gardener. This new feeder combines the natural beauty of a forest log with durable, rugged construction, allowing for years of use and enjoyment by novice and experienced bird watchers alike. Easy to fill and designed with a roof that protects seeds from the elements, the Log Feeder comes complete with an allweather hanging wire and four perches which permit birds to feed from all sides.

As you prepare to join the ranks of American's millions of bird watchers, Easy Gardener invites you to test your knowledge of our fine-feathered friends:

Questions

1) In which direction do birds fly when the weather turns cold? a) North b) South c) East

2) True or false: Most birds that stop to eat at a bird feeder do not fly off with the food?

3) Cardinals often sing duets in which the male will sing one part of a song and the female another part. What is this tune sharing called? a) Prophonal singing b) Communal singing c) Antiphonal singing

4) Three baseball teams are named after birds. Can you name them?

5) Different types of birds often travel together. Is this because a) Some birds are better than others at spotting food. b) Some birds are better than others at sensing threats c) Many birds simply like companionship or d) All of the above?

6) The peacock is the proud symbol of which television network? a) ABC b) CBS c) NBC

7) The loon is the state bird of a) Minnesota b) Alaska c) Georgia

8) Who was the star of the film classic "The Birdman of Alcatraz"? a) Rex Harrison b) Burt Lancaster c) Marlin Brando

9) Do birds like peanuts a) Raw b) Cooked c) Salted d) All of the above

10) If a bird feeder has run out of food, is a bird smart enough to let you know it's time to refill the feeder? a)

Yes b) No.

Answers

1) B. Birds, of course, travel south for the winter in an effort to find warmth.

2) True. Generally, birds tend to stay at a feeder while partaking of the food, unless they are bringing food back to the nest for their young. Some birds, however, among them chickadees, blue jays and nuthatches, virtually always fly away with their food.

3) C. Bird watchers who also become bird listeners will note that antiphonal singing increases as mating season nears.

4) The baseball teams named after birds are Blue Jays, Orioles and Cardinals.

5) D. Many different kinds of birds get along and, when they travel together, each can bring a different talent to the party.

6) C. For many year, the NBC peacock was seen in black and white. With the advent of color television in the 1960's the plumes of NBC's peacock took on a rainbow of colors.

7) A. The ptarmigan is the state bird of Alaska, while the thrasher is the state bird of Georgia.

8) B. Lancaster starred as the prisoner who raised birds while serving his sentence at the legendary prison. Brando had a pigeon coop in On the Waterfront, while Rex Harrison conversed with birds in Doctor Dolittle.

9) D. Birds eat peanuts any which way. While peanuts are high in calories and a bird favorite, young birds have trouble digesting them and they can go bad when it's very hot.

10) A. Birds used to feeding at a particular feeder have been known to inform a homeowner it's time to add more mix. They can accomplish this by pecking at a window pane until you respond. By the way, birds will generally not tap if you're not home and, if you are, they'll find a way to tap on the window of whatever room you are in.

Once you've purchased a feeder, hang it where cats, squirrels and mice can't reach it. Also, hang the feeder so it can be seen from a window or porch. Avid bird watchers suggest using two or three feeders in the yard to ensure attracting the broadest selection of birds. Easy Gardener recommends alternating feeder sites to maintain the interest of returning birds and entice new ones. Another way to attract birds is to add a bird bath to the yard. This provides birds with a welcome rest stop and a place to cool off when summer arrives.

Now that you are a whiz at bird trivia and knowledgeable about using a feeder, you may want to consider buying a bird identification guide so the entire family can learn the names of the fine feathered friends that will soon be eating and chirping away in your own yard.

Home Tips

SNUGGLE UP — For people who like to travel with a favorite pillow, I suggest putting it in a pillowcase that is a bright color or, even better, a distinctive print.

This tip came to me the hard way when I left my white-clad pillow among the lookalikes on a motel bed. Sally G., Plano, Texas

TAKE CARE — When using a hand-help vacuum cleaner, be careful to keep chains or ties around your neck away from the suction and brushes.

A braided cord from the neck of my windsuit got sucked in as I vacuumed the stairs to the basement and nearly strangled me. Charlotte D., Angels Camp, Calif.

CLOTHING CALENDAR — I had a problem remembering what I'd worn previously; i.e., on Monday morning (when I play pool) did I wear red and blue last week?

When I played another game on Thursday, what did I wear? Then there is church, teaching my class, conducting the writer's workshop, and on and on for my schedule each week.

How did I solve my problem? I secured a calendar with large white squares and each week I list what I wear. This way, I know I don't get caught coming and going! Gertie P., Bellair, Ohio

NAIL-POLISH REMOVER — This tip probably isn't original but it saves me some money. I save all cotton that is stuffed in medicine bottles and use it to remove nail polish. Syracuse, N.Y.

ICED TEA — This is a way I save money: Buy two bottles of "all-natural iced tea" drinks from the store. After drinking them, save the bottles.

I have also saved an empty quart-size mayonnaise jar. I fill the mayonnaise jar about one-third full of water, drop in one tea bag (I use the caffeine-free kind) and cook on High in the microwave for about three minutes or so. Leave the cooked tea to sit for a while to cool, then take out the bag and fill the jar full of water. After adding artificial sweetener to the tea, I pour the mixture into the two bottles I have saved, place the lids on them and put them in the refrigerator. I take one of these bottles in my lunch bag to work each day.

By the way, bottles that have held other flavors can be filled with your own flavored drink mixes too. Holly V., Oak Park, Ill.

BOX IT — I keep a small cardboard box in my car trunk. When shopping for milk, pop, bleach, etc., I place these items in the box.

It keeps them from rolling around in the trunk and leaking. You can also add crumpled newspaper to keep small items in place. Helen B., Bakersfield, Mo.

VERSATILE TOMATO — Did you know you could use those tomato-shaped pin cushions for machine needles?

Use a marker and write in each section what size needles you have. Liz D., Louisville, Ky.

KEEPING TRACK — when everyone was still living at home, I kept what I called my kitchen list on the kitchen bulletin board (for most people now, that's the refrigerator door).

Anyone who brought up the last of anything from the basement was to write it on the list so I'd know to replenish the supply on my next once-a-week shopping trip.

After someone forgot to add it and we ran out, siblings "worked over" the culprit, who didn't forget again. The system worked very well. Josie V., Beaumont, Texas

Q. What is the value of a Mammy cookie jar marked "Brayton Mammy"?

A. Brayton Pottery operated in South Laguna Beach, Calif., from 1927 to 1963. It was well-known for its mammy salt-and-pepper shakers and cookie jars. They were marked, "Brayton Laguna," "Brayton Laguna Pottery" or "Brayton California USA." We've never seen one marked "Brayton Mammy."

Several reproductions of the black woman with her hands on her hips have been made. Original Braytons, which sell for $1,500 or more, have white aprons with a zigzag hem design, striped shirts and kerchiefs and skirts in several colors. Reproductions, which sell in the $125 range, have checkered or plain aprons and solid-colored dresses or skirts.

TIP: Art-supply stores have bags of eraser shavings. Put some on a cloth and roll the bits over paper to remove light dust and dirt.

Q. I have an old newspaper bag with a padded shoulder strap. It is made of canvas and has the name of our local newspaper on the side. When were newspaper bags used?

A. There are still a few towns in the United States where newspaper carriers are using the bags.

In the 1840s in New York City, the penny newspaper was distributed to about 55,000 people each day. Home delivery was not offered; newspapers were sold in stores, at newsstands and by newspaper boys on the street. The boys bought the papers from the company, then sold them for a few cents more and kept the profit. It was one way a boy could help support his family.

By World War I, cars clogged the streets and the boys often ran into the street to make a sale. The job became dangerous. In many cities today, it is illegal for children to hawk newspapers on a street corner.

The canvas bags used by newsboys have remained popular. Collectors use them to carry heavy loads at flea markets. We have designed a 16x12x10-inch bag for use by collectors. The padded strap, stitched canvas and name on the side are adaptations of an authentic 1930s newspaper bag.

Comic strips have inspired many toys and ornaments. Sometimes, however, the strip is so old, the figurines or toys have lost all meaning for today's collector.

The Yellow Kid, Little Nemo, Kayo, Happy Hooligan, Mutt and Jeff and Katzenjammer Kids are unknown to some collectors.

Many different small pottery or plaster figures were made in the early years of the century, when comics were just starting. Small, rare figures depict such characters as Buster Brown; Foxy Grandpa; Skeeze; Andy Gump and Min Gump; Happy Hooligan and Gloomy Gus; Harold Teen; Hans, Fritz, Mama and other "Katzenjammer Kids" regulars; Moon Mullins and Kayo; Mutt and Jeff; Skippy; Smitty; and Henry. Most such figures sell today for more than $100 each.

In years to come, will small plastic figures of Snoopy, Charlie Brown, Garfield, Blondie and Dagwood be expensive collectibles?

Q. What is a "fire grenade"? I just bought a blue bottle marked "Hayward's Hand Fire Grenade." It looks like a vase shaped like a ball with a long neck attached.

A. Fire grenades were popular from the 1870s to about 1910. Each was a glass container filled with a liquid that could extinguish a fire. The liquid, often carbon tetrachloride, was toxic.

The fire grenade was thrown at the fire. When the glass bottle broke, the liquid put out the fire.

Some fire grenades were stored in a special wire rack. The heat of a fire was supposed to melt the solder holding the rack, causing the grenades to fall onto the fire.

The best-known American manufacturers of fire grenades were the Harden Hand Fire Extinguisher Co. of Chicago and the Hayward Co. of New York City.

Common fire grenades sell for about $40. Rare ones can bring more than $500.

Be careful if you have a filled fire grenade. The contents can be quite dangerous if inhaled.
