The question of whether the Grosse Pointe school administration should stay or go has been settled, for now.

Despite the adminstration's wishes to move out of its 80year-old buildings at 389 St. Clair in the City of Grosse Pointe, a number of factors make that wish unattainable at this time.

"The pros and cons related to 389 St. Clair have not changed in the last three years," said superintendent Ed Shine. "However, systemwide enroll-ment has increased by 300 students and there has been a significant change in the way education is funded in Michi-

City water rates soar

A 3.4 percent sewage disposal rate increase levied by the city of Detroit and an 11.2 percent water rate increase imposed by Grosse Pointe Farms spells a total increase of 4.5 percent on water bills of City of Grosse Pointe residents.

'A combined water sewage disposal rate increase of $1.05 (per thousand cubic feet) or 4.5 percent is proposed to offset the above cost increases plus lesser cost increases experienced by the City for labor, materials and contractual work for system operation and mainte-nance," said City manager

The City's new sewage disposal and water rate is $24.35 per thousand cubic feet, up from $23.30. The Farms, which supplies water to itself and to the City, charges its residents $24 per thousand cubic feet, plus a base charge of $15. The Park charges residents $17.40 per thousand cubic feet, plus a $30 service charge; the Woods charges $32.40 per thousand cubic feet, plus a $44.10 service charge; and the Shores charges $24 per thousand cubic feet.

All numbers are figured quarterly; however, the Woods and Park bill residents bimonthly.

IF IT WALKS LIKE A DUCK.

When a car is driven slowly up the street and the driver teels as though his or her seat is shifting from side to side, the condition is generally known as a woddle. This duck-like movement becomes less noticeoble as speed increases. The most common cause is a tire defect that should be readily noticeable upon visual inspection. If a section of the tire appears to be ballooning, the tire should be replaced with a spare on the spot. Other times, the cause of a waddle can be less pobvious. In some cause, the steel or tabric cords within the tire break or shift to cause the shape of the tire to change. As a result, the straight-line patienn of the tire tread may be disrupted to create an uneven effect. If so, this problem is not quite so easy to spot, it involves getting the car on a lift and rotating each wheel in search of a possible defect. Because this can obviously be best accomplished in the work boy of a garage, the problem of a waddle should be brought to the arterition of an auto technician at the earliest possible moment.

Woods approves funds to make city hall more handicap accessible

By Jim Stickford

As part of an effort to make city hall more handicap accessible, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council recently voted to spend $29,000 on improvements to the building.

In a memorandum to the council, assistant city administrator Jane Bais-DiSessa said that while the city had imposed "readily achievable" standards as defined by federal regulations mandated by the Americans with Disabilities Act, additional improvements could be

Recent renovations to Grosse Pointe Park's city hall include new public service offices.

Renovations almost done in Park

By Jim Stickford Staff Writer

Much to the relief of the public and the public service department alike, renovations to the Grosse Pointe Park city hall are just about complete, and only four weeks late.

The public service department last week moved out of its first floor office to recently remodeled basement accommodations in city hall.

"Before the remodel, our new office was storage," said administrative clerk Janet Janowicz. 'But that was only for a couple of years. Before that it was the old fire department squad room. They left when the new public safety building was completed two years ago.

City building assessor Diann Lulis said the old office on the first floor had 680 square feet of space. That was for 10 fulltime and part-time workers, as well as space for all filing cabinets and business equipment. The new offices, Lulis said, have 1,658 square feet of space.

"We finally have some room," Lulis said. "We were very cramped in the old offices. and this is just a relief.

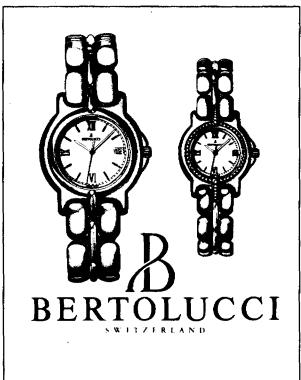

City manager Dale Krajniak said that besides renovating the basement, the city also built new rest rooms on the first floor.

"These rest rooms are acces sible to the handicapped," Krajniak said. "The total cost of the project is $400,000, of which $350,000 comes from fed eral CDBG funds.

Chase nets theft suspect

After a brief chase, Grosse Pointe Farms police arrested an 18-year-old Detroit man for allegedly being in possession of a stolen car.

Wendell Antonio Earls is being held in Wayne County Jail on $10,000 bond. He was arraigned on Dec. 2 in the Third Circuit Court Annex for Wayne County in Westland. He pleaded innocent to charges of unlawfully driving away an automobile and receiving and concealing property valued at more than $100. He is scheduled to appear in Farms Municipal Court on Wednesday, Dec. 13.

The incident began at 10:30 p.m. Dec. 1 when an officer on patrol saw the suspect driving a 1994 green Dodge on Lothrop area and found the suspect hid-at Williams, with a dark-colored vehicle in pursuit. The officer began following both vehi-cles. When they reached Beaupre, the Dodge turned east and suddenly accelerated, while the dark car continued south on Lothrop.

The officer activated the patrol car's siren and lights in an attempt to stop the suspect, who ran two stop signs, turned the wrong way onto Cloverly and jumped out of the car at Cloverly and Kercheval.

After stopping the driverless car from careening into the intersection, the officer called for backup. Officers searched the n optional county tax that could improve financial support for the metro area's cultural institutions has been approved by the House Taxation Committee and this week is under consideration in the House.

Optional tax to aid culture wins support

It already has strong backing from Detroit Renaissance, the Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA) Founders Society, a substantial number of House Republicans and Democrats, and many of the state's corpo-

Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe Farms, a member of the taxation committee, predicted it would pass the House. It apparently has the governor's support, which should also result in Senate passage.

Similar legislation has been talked about for several years as a way to replace the reductions in state funds. The current version would permit any county or group of counties to vote to establish such a district for the same purpose.

In the case of Detroit's largest recipient, the DIA, for example, the state's contribution has dipped from $16.4 million to $9.6 million just since 1991, at a time when federal aid also declined.

If implemented on a district or regional basis, the proposal looks like a good way. to raise the needed revenue to appropriately maintain these important cultural and educational institutions.

The current bill would give voters the right to approve a real estate tax of up to 1.5 mills but it omits an earlier alternative of a county tax of up to 3 percent on a wide range of entertainment events.

The approval of the tax would increase the local burden of financing area cultural institutions. That move, however, runs counter to the thinking behind the state aid for Detroit's major cultural institutions proposed by former Gov. William G. Milliken

He thought that since most of the state's residents benefit from such cultural institutions as the DIA and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the entire state had a responsibility to help finance them, especially since Detroit no longer could afford to do so.

However, over the years Detroit expanded its fund requests beyond those for cultural institutions, and outstate legislators then added aid for their institutions, making the funding legislation a pork barrel, which the Engler administration discouraged.

However, John Truscott, a spokesman for Engler, told the Detroit Free Press that the governor supports allowing local tax votes for specific causes, but Engler would not say whether he would sign the proposed county option measure until he reviews the final bill.

Voter approval also would be required if a super-district could be organized to include the counties of Wayne and Oakland and possibly even Macomb to form a Detroit metro-area cultural district to help support the arts.

Special levies to finance the arts have apparently worked in areas outside of Michigan, such as around Chicago, Denver, St. Louis and Fresno.

Establishing a cultural district here would not only provide area cultural institutions with a stable source of public support but would also give additional stimulus to the many moves already under way to revive Detroit as a business and shopping area.

Suburbs set local library pay

The new contract between Grosse Pointe librarians and the board of trustees has prompted major pay adjustments based on salaries for similar jobs in other independent libraries in the Detroit suburban area.

In seeking the new pay schedule, library board president John Bruce said that the new range of pay for local librarians was determined by comparisons with pay for suburban libraries in Wayne and Oakland and some in Macomb and Washtenaw counties.

A summary of 1994 figures prepared by the board's negotiating team showed that Grosse Pointe's librarians, at $69,634, were the highest paid in this group, and still are about the sixth best in the new contract.

Until the establishment of the independent library, the local facility was part of the Grosse Pointe school system and its contractual settlements were among those handled by the Grosse Pointe school

Under the old school contract, Grosse Pointe librarians had been paid at a range of $34,115 to $71,000, as contrasted with the new range of $28,000 to $38,000.

To ease their pain somewhat, eight librarians transferred from the school system are covered by a separate letter of agreement giving them special treatment.

Former library director Charles Hanson had also benefited from the school connection, receiving $90,616, as contrasted with the $60,000 being paid to his successor, Vickey Bloom, who had been second in command.

Such an arrangement no doubt explains the disappointment at the settlement expressed by Susan Hoard, president of Local 1, Michigan Education Association, which represents the Grosse Pointe Public Librarians Association.

On other than the pay issues, the union felt that the basic language is good, but the benefits and salaries are not competi-

Bruce, on the other hand, believes that the pay had gotten out of line with that of comparable area libraries, that the pay "competitive, especially at the higher end," and expressed the board's pleasure at the outcome.

True, nobody likes a pay cut, or enjoys seeing a lower cap on his or her salary range, but in view of public worries about taxes and private enterprise concerns about costs, both are common practices

Dole backs mission to Bosnia npopular as the decision to send 20,000 U.S. troops to Bosnia has been, Sen. Bob Dole, the leading GOP presidential candidate, showed his respect for presidential authority by backing the mission.

In doing so, Dole parted company with public opinion and his closest competititor for the GOP presidential nomination, Phil Gramm, and other GOP leaders who have strongly opposed the Bosnian plan.

Dole made it clear he didn't exactly like what Clinton had proposed to do about Bosnia, but contended that Clinton had the power to send the troops and that he favored backing them now that they are arriving there.

In Dole's view, opposing the president's decision would undermine the soldiers' morale, but supporting it gave the public the impression that the GOP challenger had been above partisanship on this issibility "to ensure — to the best of our ability - that as this deployment goes forward we create the conditions to end it quickly and successfully so that U.S. forces can return to their families." Then he added:

'So here we are and I believe the Congress will do the right thing. We will end up supporting U.S. forces."

Unpopular as the move may be, we still think both Dole and Clinton are right. A failure to back the peace treaty worked out at Dayton, Ohio, would likely lead to a resumption of the war.

And if Congress were to oppose the president's decision, it would weaken U.S. leadership as well as the effectiveness of the NATO forces involved.

In Michigan, Dole's action is reminiscent of the moves taken by the late Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, who shifted away from isolationism to support the United Nations and joint actions to keep the peace after World War II.

That appears to be a pretty good precedent for a GOP presidential hopeful. drain on state

Ameritech tower unsafe?

To the Editor:

On Monday, Dec. 11, the Farms city council will consider a proposal to enlarge the Ameritech tower behind city hall and in the center of our residential community.

A number of important concerns have arisen since the old tower was replaced in the summer of 19

 When the replacement tower was constructed it was described to residents as a communication tower that would improve police, fire and emergency medical radio communications and cellular phone communications. No mention was made that improvement in cellular phone communications would also result in an increase in electromagnetic rays emanating from the tower.

 While residents were told that the new tower base would be four feet smaller than the old base, they were not told that the new tower would be 40 feet higher than the old tower.

Now the council is considering adding a second set of pods at the 130-foot level to further improve cellular phone communication. This will result in making the tower even more visible than it already is and in increasing the electromagnetic rays once again.

Farms residents who are concerned about the proposed addition to the tower scrutiny.

The Nov. 12 edition of the book review section of the New York Times reviews several books on grading our educational systems. The opening paragraph focuses on the true need for complete and accurate reporting:

"More than 40 million American children are enrolled in the public schools; it is...perhaps the single leading activity of gove ment. Strangely, though, public school is also a topic about which it is possible to assert almost anything without being subjected to the reality testing that ordinarily applies in public discourse

Careful reporting of positions and their proponents will subject our school board to reality testing by the related public discourse. Only then will the electorate be sufficiently informed so that correct ballot box decisions can be made for our children, and as the Realtors remind us, for our property values.

Please regularly report on controversial school issues and school board meetings, identifying the positions and their proponents. Should you decide to publish this letter, I think you will find that your readers will agree.

As Dole said, Congress has the respon-hen outstate lawmakers consider legislation to benefit Detroit's metropolitan area, they often claim they are tired of subsidizing the metro area.

In fact, they sometimes use that argument to deny the metro area its rightful share of state aid, regardless of the pur-

But John Amberger, executive director of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, recently offered a rebuttal to such arguments on the Detroit Free Press op-ed page.

He wrote that the opposite of the statewide misconception is true: The seven counties of southeast Michigan not only pay their own way, they subsidize the remainder of the state.

He reported that Wayne, Macomb, Oakland, Washtenaw, Monroe, St. Clair, and Livingston counties "are home to 49 percent of the state's population," but they "pay 54 percent of all taxes paid in Mich-Amberger concedes that not all funds should be distributed on the basis of geography, but emphasized that such funds should go to meet the problems where they exist in order to benefit all citizens.

However, Amberger concludes, despite popular misconceptions, southeast Michigan contributes significantly to, rather than detracting from, the state's success.

This report ought to help dispel stereotypes that are too often cited in Lansing to deny needed help to citizens and organizations in the metropolitan area.

Bah humbug?

I am not a Scrooge but I think it's sad when the holiday but rather, by the sudden appearance of artificial Christmas trees erected next to racks of Halloween costumes in local convenience stores and malls.

Grinch, but the holiday season is starting earlier and earlier. Now, we can expect to see decorations, gift ideas, greeting cards and other seasonal reminders before the leaves on the maple tree in the back yard have had a chance to reach

Before we have had a chance to kiss summer goodbye, to accept the fact that we will soon have to contend with frozen car door locks, icy roads and winter storm watches, the marketing our transitional period, thrust us full-speed from thinking about raking the leaves to putting up the Christmas tree.

No sooner do we hang the Native American maize arrangement on the front door, then we see Martha Stewart season is ushered in not with advising us on how to prepare the first flakes of snow falling figgy pudding out of common from the skies or the sound of household ingredients. And, the arctic winds rushing what better way to know that through the barren branches, the 12 days of Christmas are upon us than to ride the first wave of "Smart Clapper" and 'Chia Pet" ads.

Two weekends ago, an amazing thing happened, everyone Don't confuse me with the (but me, apparently) decided it was the weekend to put up outlights and decorations. Who decides these things? I still have unopened Halloween candy in a bowl on my kitchen counter.

I don't know if I'm subconsciously stubborn or purposely resisting the urge to join the herd of cattle stampeding to the megamalls. On a matter of principle, I cannot, will not put up any holiday decorations until December.

I'm not anti-holidays, yet, I wizards rob us of our autumn, have to wonder why the season

I Say Shirley A. McShane

is only superficially depicted at most as a religious celebration and at least as a time to focus giving and togetherness. Scratch away that thin veneer and you find a marketing blitz. We are lured into pushing our credit to the limit, straining our stress thresholds to the cardiac-arrest level and setting our expectations to unattainable

We all want our holidays to be like a Currier and Ives print. We want to spend our afternoons skating around the old mill pond, pausing to sip mugs of hot cocoa. We'll take 'sleigh rides and sing "Jingle Bells." We'll hand out peppermint sticks to the gleeful group of carolers on our front porch.

And then we wake up and it's December. There's not a flake of snow on the ground. The neighborhood looks like the Strip in Las Vegas, the workload at the office doubles, your child has the stomach flu and the car needs a new alternator. Everywhere you turn, people ask: "Got your Christ-mas shopping done yet?"

Sometimes I wish I could be transported back in time to experience a taste of the winter holiday season as it was celebrated 50 years ago, 100 years even 200 years ago. Were things as idyllic as depicted in those old paintings?

Recently I watched a video-tape of old home movies taken when my father was young. In those scratchy old moving pictures, I see rooms full of relatives dressed up as if Christmas were a special occasion. Men wore suits. Women were in dresses. Although there is no sound track, I can tell by the way everyone's lips are moving that they are singing Christmas songs.

My parents also tell me about how, when they were young, the Christmas tree was not put up until a day or two before Dec. 25. Real stockings were hung on a real fireplace that burned real logs and filled the house with a tangible warmth and tinged the air with wood smoke.

On Christmas morning, the children ran downstairs and emptied their bulging stockings to find citrus fruits, nuts, candies and assorted baubles. The gifts were opened and then everyone went to morning Mass.

When my grandparents tell of their Christmases past, their stories are not about the number of presents they received, but about the elaborate family dinners and the amount of those feasts. The stories generally involve a great-grand-mother at the piano surrounded by family members singing along with the lyrics on the sheet music.

One story that stands out involves a Christmas tree decorated with real candles, only to be lit for very short periods of time. I would imagine that was back in the days when a Christmas tree was a thing of fleeting beauty. Ornaments were hand-made or were of such fragile materials as to be delicately handled and kept safely away from small child-

Perhaps the saddest sight and the most symbolic of what our Christmases have become is the denuded holiday tree tossed to the curb on Dec. 26. Second to that would be the equally long lines of people in the stores after Christmas returning their unwanted gifts.

I have not, in any of my Decembers, been visited by three ghosts. But I do like "A Christmas Carol," and maybe we all need to be taught a little lesson by the ghosts of Christmas work that went into preparing past, present and yet-to-come

Downtown Oklahoma City a shell

How long does it take for a hole in the heart to heal?
The folks in Oklahoma would like to know.

You and I might not be devoting much thought to it anymore, but Oklahomans are still replaying that fateful April day over and over in their hearts and minds.

They hang on every utterance from accused bomber Tim McVeigh. They follow the daily quirks of the legal arguments over venue. They fret over the limited number of observers who will fit into the tiny courtroom in Lawton, the current intended location for the trial.

They are furious at the idea that the trial should be moved out of state in order to be fair to the accused. "Do you think you could be fair if you were on the jury?" I asked. "No," the answer came back without hesitation. But they're clear that they want a piece of those de-

Local television stories about Thanksgiving, usually a pretty sappy affair, were devoted to interviews with bombing survivors or victims' families, and the ways that they were coming to terms with life and trying to be thankful.

Downtown, the vacant spot that was the federal building seems to loom. Oddly, the entrances and landscaping at the attached parking structure survived intact. For blocks around, windows are still boarded up, rubble is still heaped, roofs sag, walls gape. Yet the trees leaf and flower.

Symbol of hope? Symbol of the randomness of fate? It's in the viewer's eye.

On the high chain link fence surrounding the site, a shrine has spontaneously appeared. Periodically, a committee removes the offerings of sympa-thy to add to the display at the state capitol. But the outpouring continues: thousands of expressions in the form of flowers. teddy bears, hand-lettered Tshirts, business cards, little shoes, handkerchiefs, even a tiny diaper - all added since the beginning of November.

Meanwhile, the downtown is empty. Bombed-out big businesses have simply relocated, temporarily or permanently. Scores of small businesses folded at a couple of minutes

Some don't know yet if their buildings are even safe to renoments, a real hardship to the little proprietors who were operating out of old buildings that most certainly weren't up to code before April.

Worse, the client base for those businesses is gone. Diners and coffee shops, printers, drycleaners who depended on the workers in the federal building have seen the federal offices dispersed around the city, often out in the semi-suburban fringe. Social Security, for instance, has set up shop in a downtown to send out for sandwiches.

Only a year ago, voters approved a tax to spiff up the downtown. They would have a stadium, they would even dig a canal from the North Canadian River so they could have a river walk downtown like San Antonio. They would have better parks and attractions and people would come back down-

But work hasn't started. All of the energy has gone toward cleanup, toward pulling up their socks and trying to go on.

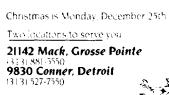

Instead of a river walk, they have a big hole. It's not the kind of attraction they were hoping for. And the people who come downtown to see it are on a quiet spiritual journey, not the kind of joyful celebration that culminates in spending money, as city fathers had in

As Detroiters, we can appreciate the awful emptiness of the downtown. The difference is that ours came upon us gradually, creeping a bit at a time over many years - terrible, but without the sudden shock.

How long does it take for wounds to mend? I don't think we have an answer.

Thoughtful young people

Even though this happened a year ago, I promised to write this story, and you agreed to publish it.

My two dogs and I, who walk 1-1/2 miles nearly every day, began a late afternoon walk under very threatening skies. After six blocks, we reached Whittier Road and turned to go up to Jefferson. A few houses short of that street, there was a sudden drenching downfall of rain.

The only protection for us was a street-side tree with very large, wide leaves, so we hovered under it by the trunk. I saw an unbelievable ball of water about 1-1/2 feet in diameter go rolling down the hill on Whittier to the Incredible phenomenon!

Suddenly out of the side door of a nearby home came a young girl with an umbrella and carrying one for me. What a relief! We talked a moment and I learned she was a student at Pierce Middle School. She knew my granddaughter there. Then she said, "You live in the house with the blue shutters." How could she know that when I live six blocks away? "Be-I recognize your cause dogs.

Out of their door came a second girl with her umbrella. I learned they are twins. She also stood under the tree. Then came a third girl using her umbrella. She was a younger sister, they said.

As we stood waiting for the rain to subside, I thought to myself, I can't believe these girls thought to do this. It was a unique experience in my life, and I will never forget it

Soon, I decided the dogs and I could walk home, so after saying thank you and good-bye, we did so.

One day after I'd received permission to get this published, I saw them again, and told them I was going to write this story. It will honor them and all young people who care about others.

To the Editor:

The last mayor met with Moross-Hillcrest homeowners to explain "The Land Use Plan for Mack/Moross Area" by Gerald Luedtke and Associates and approved by the last council.

He stated there will be a community center at the corner of Mack and Moross. Houses on Moross, he continued, will have to go to make room for a congregate care facility, three stories high, with 150 apartments, 1,000 to 1,200 square-feet each.

Any questions? "The plan is stupid," said a Moross resident.

If one is in need of a little help in living, one needs congregate care the visiting nurse, therapist, meals on wheels, etc. Most people would rather stay at home and receive this care — wouldn't you? The state of Michigan has found that homebound care costs one-sixth of institutional congregate care.

Let's see. This project was estimated at $9 million and there are 4,000 homes in Grosse Pointe Farms. So each homeowner will ante up $2,250 so that less than 1 1/2 percent of our population can pay a minimum of $1,800 per month to live in an unnecessary facility.

That was the plan. That plan costs you $39,750. The Moross resident was

Here is a plan for our new council that will lower every property owner's taxes, and not cost the city one cent: Zone Mack/Moross to its original residential zoning and allow private developers to build condos. We will all profit from that.

Giving
Seldom has there been a word that encompasses such a broad spectrum as the word "giving." The dictionary uses three inches to attempt clarification of this tiny verb. There can be no absolute clarity, because the definition of giving encompasses everything from the acts of bestowing, inflicting, permitting, distributing, to sacrificing and conceding, to name a few.

At this time of year we are particularly mindful of the various ways in which we are able to give. We stretch ourselves beyond routine holiday shopping for our families. Most of us go the extra mile to help those less fortunate. The Golden Rule seems more poignant and we become less selfish. Smiles come easily, music and church infuse us with the holiday spirit.

The majority of us are fortunate to be blessed with an abundance of loving family and friends, good health, comfortable homes, food on our tables and the everyday things we take for granted. Our mail boxes, radios, newspapers and televisions are constantly reminding us of the multitudes whose lives are not so fortunate. We respond with generosity exceeding other gifts throughout the year. We assemble food baskets for the hungry and buy toys and clothing for those who have none. We volunteer through our schools, clubs, churches and other organizations.

Some recent events have illustrated how important the little things are in giving to friends and family members, giving not to faceless strangers, but involving ourselves and having a positive impact on those we hold dear. I was visiting a friend, and her daughter was experiencing a personal crisis. She is 24 years old and was despondent because of the loss of a pet. In her youth, this was an unprecedented loss and her grief was overwhelming her. Within an hour as a result of phone calls reaching out, her sisters, employed and busy parents, rushed to her side to lend support. I witnessed an outpouring of love and profound giving as they shared hugs, tears and finally, laughter. We see examples of this kind every day. A young mother is sick, a neighbor takes care of her child. A friend is in trouble, others rally to provide meals, rides to the doctor, and run errands. Someone takes time to tutor a child, volunteer at a hospital, walk a dog, take meals to the indigent, giving each and every day. Little acts of kindness, giving should be part of our natural daily routine. We shouldn't need the holidays or an inspirational sermon to think of others. It isn't difficult to return a shopping cart instead of blocking a parking space. Most of us are able to help someone lift groceries into a car or lend an arm to help another cross a street. What about the gift of a compliment or the expression of love, verbally? We must be able to receive ourselves in order to give to others joyfully.

Tangible gifts of material goods cannot compare with the feeling of sharing our time, our smiles, a gesture or kind word. There should be no seasonal limit to our giving. The results come back to us tenfold. Happy

Livonia educator named director of Grosse Pointe special education

By Shirley A. McShane Staff Writer

The sense of community and concern about maintaining the public schools are what lured Pamela Lemerand from her west side job to become the new director of special education in Grosse Pointe.

"Livonia is a school district where there is a lot of parental involvement," Lemerand said, referring to the school system where she worked for the last 21 years. "That is what attracted me to Grosse Pointe. These are community schools and we need the community to work together with the schools. We need to be making decisions together."

Lemerand began her job as the district's new full-time special education director on Nov. 22.

Deputy superintendent Suzanne Klein had previously held that position, in addition to coordinating other central administrative functions such as curriculum, staff development, assessment and evaluation.

Following the resignation of a deputy superintendent in 1993 and the retirement of two other administrators in the last two years, the district decided it had downsized central office too much and needed a full-time special education director, said superintendent Ed Shine.

"I'm glad to be here in this highly regarded and respected school system," Lemerand said.

"I'm flattered that the district saw me as having something unique to contribute."

Lemerand is a specialist in early childhood evaluation, therapy and program development. She also is a trainer and consultant to school districts nationwide in the area of identification and programming for high-risk and special needs students. She has bachelor's and master's degrees from Wayne State University and an educational specialist Ph.D. from the University of Michigan.

She has a background in both general education and special education.

"One of the reasons I was chosen for the job is my experience with both," she said. "My belief is that general and special education need to be integrated more."

Lemerand initiated and coordinated the Student Assistance and Family Education program in the Livonia Public Schools, a program of early prevention, intervention and support services for students, parents and teachers.

"The closest parallel would be to a guidance and counseling program," she said. "But it is broader in terms of including parents and staff."

That program received the Safe and Drug Free Schools National Recognition Award in 1994-95, the National Student Assistance Program Award and the Michigan Association of School Boards Award for outstanding early intervention programs.

She described her experience with special education as extensive, beginning with growing up with a handicapped sibling; working directly with students; and working in a consultant role for 11 school districts.

"I have seen a lot of different ways in which things can be done," she said. "Special education today faces so many changes, so many legal issues. The big challenge we face today is unfunded mandates. If we don't continue to make the programs and be forward in our thinking, it will cost us in terms of student achievement and will cost us financially."

Members of the Blue Falls band are: Greg Sharrow, lead singer and rhythm guitar; Chris Carpenter, drums; Eric Novak, bass guitar; Bryce Carroll-Coe, lead guitar; Alison Getz, backup singer; and Lindsay Tyler, manager.

The Kids for Kids benefit brings area children together to raise money for terminally ill children and their families. The benefit also will help provide grief support and counseling services for children who have suffered the loss of a loved one.

Ford redesigns its sales leader Taurus, scores a hit

One of the most important cars in the '96 crop is the new Ford Taurus. It is a tough act to follow, as the Taurus has been the best-selling nameplate for the last three years nosing out the Honda Accord and soundly trouncing rival Chevrolet's Lumina

A few days behind the wheel of the '96 Taurus convinced me that Ford had come through in the clutch with a

When the car was first shown at the Detroit auto show in January, it won generally favorable acceptance.

Comments from people in parking lots and shopping centers about the test car indicate that it will be a winner.

The windshield was moved forward seven inches at the base, in the manner of Chrysler's "cabforward" design, but Ford says it is not a copy of the Chrysler approach. The Taurus and Sable have much shorter front overhangs, which give them a somewhat Euro look.

Front and rear fenders wrap smoothly into the body side, a design similar to that of the smaller Ford Contour and Mercury Mystique, and the family resemblance is strong. Ford said glass area is increased by 28 percent.

All in all, the '96 Taurus is a lot of car in a fashionable package for around $20,000. If you have been paying attention, you would know that this is no longer the high-priced district. It is the family sedan district.

Thank Mom

If you liked your mother, will you like your daughter? For women, that's not necessarily the case, according to University of Michigan researchers Marjorie and Hiroko Akiyama.

In a study presented in November at the annual meeting of the Gerontological Society of America, Starrels and Akiyama analyzed whether people tend to have the same kind of relationships with their children as they did with their parents.

Men who report having positive relationships with their mothers, however, are more likely to say they have good relationships with children and enjoy their company. The study, based on data from a survey of 620 men and women conducted at the U-M Institute for Social Research. also shows that both men and women who report having negative relations with either their mothers or their fathers are more likely to say their children get on their nerves and make too many demands.

The Park's autumn tree sale is a great success

By Jim Stickford

Staff Writer While a tree may grow in Brooklyn, thanks to the Grosse Pointe Park Beautification Commission, 93 more now are growing in the Park.

The commission recently held its annual fall tree sale, and according to member J.K.

Abbs, it was a big success.
"We sold 93 trees to Park residents this fall," said Abbs. "This year we had two types of trees, ornamental crabs and a new kind of canopy tree, a cimmeron ash.

About half the trees sold were ash and half crabs, Abbs that. said. The the crab trees are a variety from Michigan State University that are "four season" trees - the tree has a distinct look during each season.

"These crab trees bloom in the spring will ease-resistant. The fruit develops during the summer, but the fruit is much smaller than the fruit of regular crab trees. The fruit doesn't fall like regular crabs and make the kind of mess they do.' The crab trees sold by the beautification commission are small and won't shade things out, Abbs said. If someone were to plant a couple of maple trees in their yard, the trees would eventually grow tall enough and spread out enough to cast shadows over the owner's entire lot. Crab trees don't do

The crab trees are also good to plant in parts of someone's yard that has utility wires overhead, Abbs said. The cimmeron ash trees, on the other hand, can be planted close to in driveways or home because they grow tall and straight.

said Abbs. "The foliage is dis- They don't spread out like the Crab trees require less light than canopy trees, of which the ash is a variety. Canopy trees grow to reach the sun, Abbs added.

The ash trees we sold were bred to have a straight trunk," said Abbs. "Their fall foliage has three stages. In the first stage leaves turn bright red, then they turn orange and then a brighter red. They reach heights of 50 or 60 feet. It takes the trees, which are about 9 feet tall when purchased, 25 to 30 years to reach their full height."

The ash trees have also been bred to be disease-resistant, said Abbs. That is very important because over the past several years, the city and its residents have lost a large number of elm trees to disease. Picking a disease resistant variety of fully, means the city won have the same problem a fev years from now.

'Grosse Pointe is an interest ing community tree-wise,' Abbs said "Because we are right off the lake, we have a zone six climate. Most of Michigan is a zone five, but with the lake effect, we are able to grow trees in Grosse Pointe that can't be grown in the rest of Wayne County.' Shade trees sold for about $34 and crab trees sold for about $29. The beautification commission purchased the trees directly from the nursery, and did not mark up the price when they sold the trees to the public, said Abbs.

The next commission-sponsored tree sale is scheduled for spring, Abbs said.

No more excuses: Balance the budget for our children's future

U.S. Senator, R Michigan

Business as usual is over. The government shut-down brought on by President Clinton's veto of Congress' continuing resolution showed that the White House and the Republican Congress have not been arguing over the mere details of taxing and spending. Instead a clear question of public philosophy has shone through: Are you willing to do what is necessary to balance the budget? The president has opposed any seven-year balanced budget plan that would protect our children from our ever-increasing debt. Meanwhile, we in Congress have insisted on moving expeditiously toward a balanced budget, based on honest and accurate accounting methods. Now that the president has agreed, in principle, to the Republican balanced budget plan, we must work to make it a reality.

And the president's claim that he is protecting America budget is disingenuous at best. Our balanced budget bill will help middle-class Michigan families through tax cuts, spending restraints, incentives for a stronger economy, and lower interest rates.

Even though the president has admitted that his 1993 tax hike ($241 billion over five years-the largest in history) was too high, he continues to claim that the Republican tax cuts will not benefit middleclass families. But, according to Congressional Budget Office figures, in 1996 65 percent of the tax reduction in the Republican budget will go to those earning under $75,000. Balancing the budget also will help middle-class families by lowering interest rates on home mortgages, car loans, and student loans. These savings, plus the $500 per child tax credit, would bring a typical Michigan family of four a "balanced budget bonus" of $2,791 per year. (Based on a four-year car loan of $15,000.

But we must not look only to our own pocketbooks

The Republican balanced budget would see to it that we pass on to our children the American dream, and not the American debt. Business as usual has failed. For 40 years Washington has increased taxes and hiked spending. The results have been record-high deficits, record-high spending and a tax burden that has exploded from 3 percent of the typical family's income in 1950 to over 40 percent today. By ending more than 25 years of unbalanced budgets we can get our debt under control and provide some tax relief for working middle-class families.

it cuts government services drastically in order to fund tax cuts for the rich. Not only are the budget's tax cuts aimed at the deserving and over-taxed middle class, the spending "cuts" are in fact merely reductions in the growth rate of federal spending.

Spending will increase on most federal programs, only not so fast. Overall federal outlays would increase every year, from $1.5 trillion in 1995 to nearly $1.9 trillion in 2002, a 22 percent increase

Medicare, about which there have been too many "mediscare" horror stories, will see its funding increase from $178 billion in 1995 to $294 billion in 2002, a 65 percent increase. The amount spent on each beneficiary will increase from

Co-payments, deductibles and the current rate for premiums all will remain the same. Seniors will be given the ability to choose among health care options. And the impending bankruptcy predicted by Medicare's nonpartisan trustees will be averted.

Under the Republican balanced budget, our children will benefit from a reduced burden of debt, families will benefit from lower taxes and reduced interest rates, seniors will benefit from a Medicare system that is stronger and more secure, and Americans in gen-stronger economy.

During the next seven years, the Republican balanced budget plan would add to the U.S. economy $32 billion in real disposable income, $66 billion in new purchases, $88 billion in new investment, and over 100,000 new housing starts by 2002. Particularly important for Michiganders, the balanced budget plan would generate 600,000 additional automobile sales.

The voters called for change in 1994. The Republican balanced budget plan is that change. It is time to give it a

Discover the real meaning of festival of lights

By Victor Bloom, M.D.

It is significant that Christmas, the festival of lights, comes at the darkest time of the year, the winter solstice. The days are short and the winter night is long. In ancient history, this was a time of dread, a time of cold, darkness, hunger, sickness and death. No one knew who would survive the winter.

The present winter solstice is attended by warmth, generosity, plenty, peace, brotherhood and light. It means that all the horrors of the cold, cruel winter have been overcome. We have plenty of food, light, warmth and generosity. Humankind, for the time being, has triumphed over the cruelties of nature.

But nature also brings us the harvest and the symbols of it include the abundance of food and drink, and the Christmas tree. It is as if we take pity on the cold fir tree and take it indoors. We are not killing the tree, we are making it immortal by adorning it and remem-

"Edelweiss, edelweiss" and it glows with happiness.

On top is a star. In primitive times the night was black and the stars shone, and their constancy was reassuring that the universe was in order. On top may be an angel, symbolic of God and heaven and the promise of everlasting life. The Christmas story is the story of humankind's conquest over death, which is why it is called, The Greatest Story Ever

The best proof that Christmastime is about "The Greatest Story Ever Told" is that it is the story of God coming down to Earth in the form of a human babe, the Son of God who would prove to be a savior, The Messiah. The music of

The Messiah" is the most glorious ever written, and we never tire of it because of its beauty and message. It is good to know that when we die, we do not entirely dissipate. Our spirit will rise and go to heaven (if we are good) and we will re-bering it forever. We sing to it, side in the house of the Lord forever. We will be taken back to the bosom of our Maker.

The most important part of the Christmas story is the wonderful relationship of the Virgin Mother and Child. Sigmund Freud himself was electrified by the vision of the madonna and bambino, which he saw for the first time in his travels in Italy. The vision of the many beautiful paintings by the Renaissance masters fixed in his mind the power and beauty of the mother-child relationship.

The greatest message for us today is to treat each child as the son or daughter of God. We are all God's children. The message in the story is that "the child is the father of the man' and "a child shall lead us."

In order for this child to grow and develop into a god-man like Christ, the child must be valued and adored. He is the hope of the future. We bring him gifts. We would never scold or abuse him. We must love and nurture him as if he truly is the most important person in the world. That is how our child will grow in self-conattributes we admire and value.

It is often said that the spirit of Christmas seems to die after the holiday season is over, that we are back to destructiveness and competition, rather than creativity and cooperation. As the years go by and the millenium approaches, and we are well aware of the horrors of war and the dangers of living in a nuclear age, perhaps we will at last come to our senses and live a life more in line with our ideals and highest aspirations, rather than the daily compromises which devalue our lives and lead to a corrupt society. Evil will triumph only if good men do nothing. The price of liberty is eternal vigilance. It should be our goal to leave this Earth a better place for our having lived in it, and the spiritual values of Christmas are like a beacon that should lead us the rest of the year. Light triumphs over darkness, plenty over hunger, warmth over cold, generosity over selfishness, and life over death.

Repeal of the limit, now 55 on most roads and 65 on rural interstates, is a provision of a multi-billion-dollar highway highway funding bill passed this year and that has been signed by President Clinton.

In 1987, Congress gave permission to boost speed limits to 65 on rural interstates and 28 states did so.

AAA Michigan and other safety groups encourage all state policy makers to focus on safety standards and maintain constant evaluation of posted speed limits. Eight states already have taken steps to bump speed limits to as much as 75 mph. Montana favors no limit at all.

What the other states will do is anybody's guess, but AAA's Basch says Michigan should set realistic speed limits and expect compliance and

And that's even if you don't own one.

A cellular phone is an amazing piece of technology. The good thing is, you don't necessarily have to own one to appreciate that.

The fact is, cellular is a vital part of your community. During emergency situations, such as natural disasters or fires, police and emergency crews count on cellular for assistance when other lines of communication are down.

Many people also use cellular to deter crime in the community, whether for themselves or a neighbor.

Which means that even if you don't own a cellular phone, chances are you can count on the safety provided by someone else's.

And cellular technology strengthens local business. It gives hometown business the ability to continue to effectively compete in a global economy.

We may not all need a cellular phone yet, but we do need cellular technology.

Quite simply, cellular is the one line that keeps us all connected.

Social Security shows government efficiency

By Shirley S. Chater Social Security Commissioner Ask most Americans what they think of their federal government, and you'll probably hear responses that include phrases like "uncaring and un-cooperative," "inefficient and inconvenient," "slow and bureaucratic," and so on. Many Americans are frustrated, irritated, confused, and even angry about their government.

They want a federal government that works for them, that gets the job done quickly and efficiently, one that works better, faster and cheaper than in the past, one that works at least as well or even better than the best private businesses

Sound like a pipe dream? It's not. Any American who reads Vice President Al Gore's new book, "Common Sense Government," will get a wakeup call announcing the dawn of a new day in federal government. The book is all about replacing nonsense with common sense, about bringing the good sense of the American people back to their government. It highlights the big and small changes taking place throughout all federal agencies to make government better, simpler and more responsive to your needs

The Social Security Administration is an agency with a long and proud tradition of providing world-class service to all its customers We were there when the new era of common sense dawned, and we continue to play a leading role in making government more responsive to its citizens

Here are some examples:
1) To find out what kind of service our customers want,

we took a novel approach - at least for government - we asked them! Using comment cards, focus groups, and surveys, we asked both beneficiaries and taxpayers what level of service they expected from us. Based on that, we developed customer service standards and we're measuring our performance against these standards).

2) We're coming up with innovative solutions to long! standing problems. For example, our policy of mailing all Social Security checks on the same day each month causes difficulties during the first week of that month. Social Se curity offices are swamped, our telephone lines are jammed, and long lines form at banks.

The obvious solution was to spread check deliveries throughout the month. But when we asked the public about this idea, people al-ready receiving checks told us they had arranged their lives and their cash flow around the beginning-of-the-month Social Security check. They didn't want that routine changed.

But people who are not re-ceiving Social Security told us it didn't matter to them when they got their checks, as long as they got them the same time each month. So we modi fied our solution. Late next year, we will begin to implement a process that will ensure that new beneficiaries will receive their Social Security checks on the same day each month, but that day won't be during the first week of the month.

3) We're eliminating layers of bureaucracy and management and we're channeling many of those people into "front line" positions to directly serve our customers. SSA now has almost 80 percent of its employees in jobs that deal directly with the public.

4) We're taking a disability decision-making process developed in the 1950s and redesigning it for the 21st century, with the help of experts both inside and outside the agency who know the issues best. When we're done, a claim that now takes 26 employees to process will be handled by eight people and the time it takes them to make a decision and notify the applicant will be significantly reduced

5) Recognizing that some people prefer to use nontradi-tional means of obtaining information, we're using innovative ways to communicate with our customers. We're experimenting with computerized self-service "kiosks" that provide Social Security information and services in shopping malls and other public places.

And we're a major traveler on the information superhighay, with an award-winning "homepage" on the Internet that provides valuable information for the general public, as well as for librarians, researchers and other professionals.

6) We're establishing a reputation for providing the most efficient and courteous telephone service in the country. This past spring, Business Week magazine reported that SSA's nationwide 800 number telephone service was rated tops in the country for providing courteous, knowledgeable and efficient service. We beat no less competition than Southwest Airlines, Nordstrom and L.L. Bean!

These are just some examples of the extraordinary change that a little common sense can bring about. We are living up to President Clinton's standard to "put customers first," and we are making real and measurable progress toward our internal goal of pro-viding "world class service" to all our customers. As Vice President Gore has often said, Our work will continue until the phrase 'good enough for government work' means the

More businesses prefer E-mail to voice mail, survey shows

Whereas PCs took years to gain broad acceptance in America's office place, a local survey shows that businesses are quickly gaining benefits from the information superhighway technology of the mid-1990s, such as electronic mail.

Responding this month to a wide-ranging questionnaire, office managers at 51 companies in Detroit's Renaissance Center, a microcosm of the Midwest's office community, attributed improved functioning of their businesses to technology that has become widely available only in recent years.

The results of this questionnaire point out the need for office properties to stay current with the technology they can offer tenants — everything from fiber optic and digital phone lines to computer-friendly public areas - to ensure their facilities remain competitive," said Rick Czerwinski, vice president of leasing for Renaissance Cenfound that more respondents have electronic mail in their offices than have voice mail.

Voice mail, a technology of the 1980s, is used in less than half the offices that responded to the poll. Only 47 percent indicated their office has a voice mail system. But of those that did have voice mail, 71 percent said it has increased the productivity and efficiency of their offices. None of the respondents said that voice mail enabled them to reduce staff, but a fifth the group said it helped them retain existing staff.

Electronic mail (E-Mail), however, is available in 51 percent the offices polled. And of those that do not currently have e-mail, 24 percent said they expect to begin using it within six months; and 20 percent more, within one year. E-mail is widely accessible in these offices. Nearly two thirds (62 percent) of those with email said both executives and support staff have e-mail ad-dresses within their company,

Only 4 percent restricted their company's e-mail to a single address.

Of e-mail users in Renaissance Center, 73 percent said email has improved productivity and efficiency, 23 percent said it improved customer relations, and 15 percent said it improved marketing efforts. Only 19 percent found no perceptible im-

On the other hand, creation of a presence on the Internet is still in its infancy. Only 6 percent of the respondents said their company has a home page on the Internet, where clients, customers and prospects can find detailed information on companies and their products

> Video conferencing, which has been available for many years, is still rarely used by these office-based companies. Only 10 percent had used video conferencing more than 10 times over the past 12 months, another 10 percent had used it one to five times, and 69 percent had not used it at all in that period. Motor City Web: Internet site has local news The Motor-City Web (http:// Michigan.

www.motor-city.com), an online service providing information of local interest and created by The Internet Factory, made its debut this month on the Internet's World-Wide Web.

Part newspaper, part radio station, part coffee house, part shopping mall, the new web site with a local focus is an example of the unique new media forms entrepreneurs are developing on the World-Wide Web.

Besides providing a one-stop destination for people on the internet interested in information concerning Detroit and southeast Michigan, the Motor-City Web highlights the positive aspects of the metro area, provides free web space to non-profit groups and creates a sense of community among Internet users in southeastern among Southeast Michigan res-

Features include:

Michigan Links: Continuously updated links to southeast Michigan resources on the Internet, including media web sites (radio, TV and print), educational institutions, and governmental information.

Entertainment: Links to Southeast Michigan Entertainment on the Web, including museums, sports teams and special events, e.g., The Underground Music Archive featuring local bands, with downloadable audio and video clips.

The Virtual Coffee House: Chat rooms and local news groups with changing topics. Current topics include "A thousand good things to say about Detroit"; and communication idents who often travel "up north."

Community House: Links to nonprofit groups in southeast Michigan. The Internet Factory will create and host the basic Web sites of local charities for free as a public service.

Nonprofits can set up automated e-mail lists to send out announcements to hundreds of parties via e-mail for free. They also can have public bulletin boards for posting and receiving notices, as well as selling products and collecting donations via an encrypted commerce server.

Marketplace: With a special emphasis on products unique to southeast Michigan, the marketplace enables entrepreneurs to sell products locally, nationally and internationally on the

More features will be coming soon to The Motor-City Web, including political campaigns, an artists' showcase, special events and local columnists.

The Motor-City Web was developed by The Internet Factory, a Birmingham-based firm specializing in electronic com-merce solutions to help companies publish and sell on the Internet.

Besides creating Internet business applications built around World-Wide Web sites, The Internet Factory provides consulting, training and seminars related to doing business on the Internet.

Benefits not affected by investment income

By Verlyn Rebelein Social Security Manager Detroit East

We recently had this question from a caller, "I'm getting ready to retire and I'll be drawing my money out of my 401(k) plan at my job. Will that money reduce the amount of my monthly Social Security benefit check since I'll be over the annual earnings limit?" She was pleased to learn that money received from an IRA (individual retirement account), a 401(k), and most other retirement income doesn't count under the earnings test and will not affect the amount of her Social Security benefits. Only wages, salaries, bonuses, tips, fees and other amounts re ceived for services rendered during the year are counted under the earnings test. Investment income, such as interest. dividends, capital gaths; and rent on property, also have no

U-M scientists now use chemical tests to track pollution to sources

In research guaranteed to chill the hearts of polluters everywhere, University of Michigan scientists have tested a new method of tracking the original source of trace metal pollution - like lead, arsenic and mercury - which often travels hundreds or even thousands of miles away from its point of origin.

By analyzing the relative ratios of lead isotopes in precipitation falling at collection sites around Lake Michigan and back-tracking daily meteoro-logical records, U-M relogical records, U-M re-searchers Joseph R. Graney and Gerald J. Keeler were able to identify the original point source of the lead emis-

"Emissions from smelter, power plant, refinery and urban area have a unique mix of isotopes," said Graney, U-M post-doctoral scholar in public health. "Using sensitive mass spectrometers and analysis techniques, we can pick out individual chemical 'fingerprints' and determine where the pollutants are coming

Graney presented the results of his study - the first to test the viability of the U-M pollutant tracking technique with lead isotopes in precipitation - at the Geological Society of America meeting held in November.

Graney stressed that the amount of lead falling in precipitation over Lake Michigan is too small to create any public health danger. "It is only a few parts per billion - below Protection Agency regulation standards for drinking water," he said. But success at detecting minute amounts of lead indicates that the technique could be used to identify sources for many other types of pollu-At the GSA meeting,

Graney presented his analysis of lead isotopes in precipitation that fell during the summer of 1994 at five collection sites near Lake Michigan in the Midwest and one near Lake Champlain in New England. Key points included:

- Most. but not all, lead pollution particles are washed out of the atmosphere when it
- · The source of lead pollution falling at any collection site varies on a daily and sometimes even an hourly basis, depending on wind direction and weather conditions.
- · Lead smelters in southeast Missouri are a point source for lead particles falling in Illinois and Indiana when prevailing winds come from

- · Chicago's chemical fingerprint - a unique blend of auto, industrial and power plant emissions - overpowers the weaker regional Missouri signal. Chicago is a major point source for lead pollution falling on Lake Michigan and the state of Michigan.
- · Depending on wind direction, lead pollution falling on Lake Champlain comes from either the United States or Canada.

If current proposals in Washington to cut EPA funding become law, the U-M technique could potentially provide an inexpensive, reliable way to monitor future pollution trends and identify those violating compliance standards, according to Graney. Currently, U-M researchers are testing the isotope analysis technique's ability to track pollution point sources within a single metropolitan area. They also hope to use the technique to trace ground-water pollution from leaking landfills or toxic waste sites.

Residents have another chance to donate warm winter coats

Residents of the Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods, St. Clair Shores and Eastpointe will have another chance to donate warm winter coats to people who need them.

The Lakeshore Optimist Club's seventh annual Coats for the Cold drive will be held from noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 9.

"Our main objective is to make sure that people in need are given warm winter clothing for the bitter weather ahead," said Marvin Redlawski, founder of the drive. "So many Grosse Pointe residents and other east siders just clean out their closets and basements of unwanted winter clothing, donate it and within hours of the drive, it's given to families in need."

In an effort to expand the drive and include other communities, this year's Coats for the Cold will be sponsored by the Christian Family movement of St. Lucy's Church in St. Clair Shores.

Donating is easy, Redlawski said. Residents should:

- Place unwanted and outgrown outerwear (coats, boots, scarves, mittens, gloves, winter underwear, even used toys and books) in plastic bags.
- Call the Coats for the Cold hotline at (313) 884-1398 and leave your address and city on the recorder.
- Place items on your front porch by noon Saturday, Dec. 9.

 If you need a receipt for your donation, put your name, address and value of the donation on a sheet of paper attached to the outside of the bag. Receipts will be mailed to Say cheese: —Santa Claus and the Pet Practice, 16361 Mack, will join forces from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 16 and 17, to raise money for Paws with a Cause.

Take your pet for a photo with Santa. All pets are welcome.

Paws with a Cause is a nonprofit organization that trains service and hearing dogs to work with people with different disabilities. Canine companions are taught to pull wheelchairs, open doors, pick up objects, turn on lights and respond to doorbells, telephones, alarm clocks or smoke alarms.

Just show up with your pet and a donation.

The Pastor's Corner

Count your blessings

By the Rev. Fred Harms
St. Paul Lutheran Church
My 85-year-old father was here for a visit recently. It was a time to reminisce and recall those pleasant memories of the past.

I especially remember making the 50-mile journey from Red Wing to St. Paul, Minn., to spend Thanksgiving Day with Grandpa and Grandma. All the uncles, aunts and cousins would gather around a uniquely oval table, which appeared to fill the whole dining room. The room was surrounded by clocks, all ticking and chiming in a most melodic way.

There was a lot to give thanks for as we gathered around that table. We were together; we had plenty to eat; and the olives seemed to find their way to my corner of the table. Grandpa would give the blessing, and then we would partake in the scrumptious feast.

The one thing that I could never understand, though, was the fuss which was made over the mincemeat pie. Uncle Jack would always comment, "Mom, you have really outdone yourself this year with this mincemeat pie. What a true delight and blessing to taste your

I believed that we had many blessings to give thanks to God for, but mincemeat pie wasn't one of

Grandma and Grandpa are gone now, so are Uncle Jack and Uncle Bud. My mother has also departed this world, but I give thanks to God for those good memories. And I remember that it was Grandma who also taught me how to sing an old gospel song that said, "Count your blessings, name them one by one; Count your many blessings, See what God has done."

But what if, at some point, I can't count any blessings? What if trouble or sorrow, misfortune or hardship leave me and you incapable of coming up with a list of blessings? What about those times? Shall praise and thanksgiving be dependent upon our ability to count? Should thanksgiving depend upon our power to recognize?

Perhaps this is why it is important for us to look beyond ourselves and our own little worlds. There are truly remarkable individuals who demonstrate a certain buoyancy as they go through life. It seems as though storms don't dismay them and hardships don't conquer them.

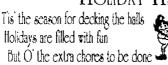

One of these individuals I read about just the other day. He is a brother in Christ in Nigeria who is badly deformed. His legs are withered and he is unable to walk or afford transportation. Because his faith is so important to him, he crawls to his church to attend worship services. In order to bring his Bible, he either balances it on his head or pushes it on the ground in front of him. This man, who has every reason to be bitter and resentful, isn't complaining...

I want my spirit shaped in that man's fashion. I want to be able to see beyond the inevitable pains and hurts and say as the apostle Paul said: "I can do all things through him who strengthens me." (Philippians

Carbon monoxide: A silent killer

By Dr. Michael McMillin

With cold weather and the associated use of furnaces and space heaters comes the often tragic increase in cases of carbon monoxide poisoning. Understanding carbon monoxide poisoning can help prevent these acci-

Carbon monoxide is the single leading cause of toxinrelated death in the United States, with approximately 3,500 accidental and suicidal deaths annually.

Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless, non irritating gas. It is produced by the incomplete combustion of organic fuel in furnaces, water heaters, wood stoves and kerosene heaters. House fires also produce large amounts of carbon monoxide, and most immediate deaths from building fires are due to CO poisoning.

Carbon monoxide is inhaled into the lungs and dissolved into the bloodstream, where it binds with hemoglobin and prevents the delivery of oxygen Dr. Michael McMillin to the tissues.

The symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning are often vague, but usually include headache, dizziness weakness and nausea. In more severe poisoning, this can progress to coma and death. Milder cases of carbon monoxide poisoning are often misdiagnosed as the flu, gastroenteritis or psychiatric problems. One study which looked at routine screening of emergency department patients during the winter months, showed a 2.8 percent incidence of elevated CO levels.

Most deaths that occur from carbon monoxide are from cardiac dysrhythmia and cardiac arrest. Victims who survive acute poisoning are often left with longterm psychiatric and neurologic symptoms. These include decreased memory, gait disturbance and, sometimes, psychiatric symptoms of emotional instability. These problems can take years to resolve, or they may

The initial treatment for carbon monoxide poisoning is to remove the victim from the source and administer 100 percent oxygen. When the patient arrives at the emergency department, oxygen is delivered and blood tests can be done to quantify the amount of carbon monoxide in the blood. Additional tests may be necessary such as an EKG and chest X-ray to look for damage to the heart or lungs. Most patients can be cleared of CO poisoning in the emergency department. Victims with more severe poisoning can be given hyperbaric oxygen in a hyperbaric chamber, the same type of chamber used for scuba diving accidents. People with severe poisoning have been found to have less incidence of long-term complications with hyperberic oxygen administration. It also is important that women who are pregnant receive aggressive treatment, as the developing fetus is particularly susceptible to carbon monoxide poisoning.

To prevent accidental poisoning, you should have your furnace checked to make sure it is working properly. Space heaters should be avoided. Every family should invest in a carbon monoxide detector. CO detectors are now common and commercially available. They come with directions for easy installation. The money you spend could save a life.

Finally, if you or someone you know is exposed to a significant dose of carbon monoxide, you should seek immediate medical attention, since prompt treatment can be life-saving and prevent long-term complications.

Most food poisoning can be traced to salmonella and other coliform bacteria, including Listeria monocytogenes, the deadly Escherichia coli, and others. These are commonly found in meat, poultry and eggs, but also may be present in seafood, unprocessed cheese and dairy products as well as unwashed fruits and vegeta-

Rinsing foods during preparation helps, but heating them to the proper internal tempera-ture (160 degrees Fahrenheit for poultry and eggs) is the only sure way to kill bacteria. Improperly thawing, cooking or storing foods creates the tepid, moist conditions in which bacteria reproduce. Frozen turkey should not be thawed at room temperature because the outside layers will become warm while the inside is still frozen. Follow package directions and thaw it in the refrigerator or microwave instead.

Stuffing can be prepared ahead of time, but wait until the turkey is just about to go in the oven before adding it. Re-bird directly after cooking. Even when refrigerated, warm stuffing inside a small cavity may trigger bacterial growth.

Here are some other safety

• Do not let your foods go unrefrigerated for more than two hours at temperatures higher than 85 degrees Fahrenheit; or one hour in warmer environments.

· Cool foods before refrigeration and store leftovers in shallow bowls that cool faster. Keep your refrigerator at 40 degrees Fahrenheit or cooler.

· Take care so that juices from meats and poultry do not drip onto fruits, vegetables or other foods. Any surfaces that came into contact should be washed thoroughly (cutting boards, knives, platters).

• Use paper towels to wipe up spills. Be sure to wash dish cloths, sponges and brushes after use.

Routinely wipe off counters, drains and other surfaces with an antibacterial cleansing

Shakespeare's 'Pericles' premieres at Hilberry

Excitement, originality, inventiveness, daring - where do you find these in the theater today? In Detroit, when Wayne State's Hilberry Theatre premieres Shakespeare's epic adventure, "Pericles," opening Dec. 8, and running in rotating repertory through Feb. 24.

Shakespeare wrote this romance in the last few years before his death. "Pericles" is a masterful example of Shakespeare's maturity and power as a playwright. Because of the enormity of the work, it is a seldom-done theatrical event. Only four productions were produced world-wide in the last year, making this season's Hilberry premiere highly antici-mythical Prince of Tyre, Pericles, and his adventures of peril and love. Pericles is a virtuous prince who solves a riddle that endangers his life: wins a fair maiden in marriage; and buries her at sea, thinking she died in childbirth. He survives two shipwrecks; gains, loses and finds his daughter; and finally is reunited with his lost wife. The play spans over 50 years and thousands of miles of travel and travail.

currently raising funds to support a summer of drama and musical theatre productions in 1996, has announced two encore performances of the classic drama "A Doll's House," by playwright Henrik Ibsen.

Grosse Pointe Summer Stock presented the play this August, and will revive it as a benefit show later this month.

A select ensemble of Grosse Pointe South's choir will sing traditional Christmas carols before the show starting, at 7:30

"A Doll's House" is the humanist story of a woman who discovers that she wants more out of life and marriage than her society allows. Ibsen's play explores societal stereotypes as his characters battle to overcome them.

The drama unfolds as conflicts arise between veteran Grosse Pointe South thespians: Katie Kingsley as Nora Hel-mer, Bill Drummy, Tim Reynolds, Neely O'Brien and Jack Tocco.

The shows are Thursday, Dec. 21 and Friday, Dec. 22. Both performances begin at 7:30 p.m. and are held in Grosse Pointe South High School's auditorium, on Fisher Road at Grosse Pointe Boulevard. Ticket information is available at (313) 613-2190. Tickets are $8 for adults, and $6 for students and seniors.

A five-year history of bringmatic and musical productions to the east side precedes this production. Grosse Pointe Summer Stock has presented shows such as "Do Black Patent such as Do Black Faching Leather Shoes Really Reflect Up?," "Biloxi Blues," "A Separate Peace," and Edward M. Nahhat's original "Dream-orthbu" catcher.

Grosse Pointe Summer Stock has begun to accept memberships for its 1996 season. Benefits include discounted prices on tickets (season or individual tickets), preferred seating and a subscription to the Summer Stock newsletter. Applications for membership will be available at the productions of "A Doll's House.

Shostakovich shines with Vengerov's insights

In a stunning display of artistic feeling and virtuoso playing, violinist Maxim Vengerov last weekend brought profound insights into the Shostakovich Violin Concerto at Orchestra Hail.

His exceptional capacity for romantic expression of the stark lines of the often austere and angular music seemed to open a door to the composer's inner and well concealed self. It emphasized the considerable anguish that can be felt in Shostakovich's music.

In the meditative first movement, the tone of his muted violin was clear and pure even in the most fragile pianissimos, and his phrasing was elegant. In the second movement scherzo, the pace was frenzied yet lost none of his highly expressive phrasing. Vengerov enjoys a phenomenal combination of artistry and technique and together with maestro Neeme Jarvi and the Detroit Sym-phony Orchestra managed to bring out depths of feelings that are rare to experience in performances of Shostakovich's music. The concerto is not intrinsically lyrical, yet this performance projected a mesmerizing tenderness and passion. One cannot divorce this composer's music from the harsh discord and stress of the Stalin era in the Soviet Union, but Vengerov was able to surmount the context of its time to reveal the inspiration of the work in a way that left the sensitive listener emotionally stirred.

No more stark contrast could have been provided than for Jarvi to turn to the lyrical, tuneful and sentimental "Peer Gynt Suite" by Edvard Grieg. This panorama of Norwegian mythology is a refreshing draught of native tunes and adventuresome musical narrative that is as easy to listen to as it is difficult to perfrom really well. Jarvi gave it his most exuberant treatment. It is the kind of music about which he often says, "It should be fun," and he made

But it also has its poignant and suspenseful moments reflecting the drama of Peer Gynt's story. Jarvi conveys this aspect of the work, as well. His remarkable rapport with the orchestra enables them together to make such a familiar work sound newly profound. This was especially evident in the segment representing Ase's death. The subtle shadings and variations in tempo gave a finesse to the expression of mourning that is rare even for a soloist to achieve.

Paying its annual tribute to African-American composers and new music, the concert opened with two very interesting and extremely short works. "Fanfares and Flourishes on an Ostinato' by Jonathan Holland is a development of ideas from a theme of two notes first treated as a trill. Developing both as variations on the notes and on their treatment in trills and runs, it is fasci-natingly frenetic. Most interesting was the imagination and creativity reflected in the music's development. Holland, in his last year at the Curtis Institute, appears to be a promising young composer.

The second piece was "Notes from the Underground" composed in 1984 by Anthony Davis. Its bold and simple content has strong suggestions of minimalism yet never suffers from monotony. It also projects a strong sense of syncopated jazz rhythm and melody without losing the character of a serious, polyphonic score. Both contributed an interesting dimension to a totally fascinating concert evening.

The DSO proceeds now with its Christmas programs. Call (313) 833-3700.

Jaxaca:

The center of art in Mexico

"Only three days in Oaxa-

My knowledgeable friend was appalled. "You're going to be sorry," she warned me. "It won't be enough."

Ah, she was so right.

I had visited most of Mexico's beach communities — Acapulco, Manzanillo, Mazatlan, Huatulco, Cozumel, Cancun, Puerto Vallarta. I'd been to Guadalajara and spent some time in Mexico City. But the one place I'd always wanted to go was Oaxaca, so when I got the chance I grabbed it.

The beach communities are fine for fun and sun. But I have always been fascinated by original crafts and Oaxaca is one of the most prolific art areas of Mexico. So I came to see the craft communities and was pleasantly surprised to have found my favorite Mexico destination.

Unfortunately, I only had five days; three in Oaxaca and two in the relatively new beach community of Huatulco. And while Huatulco was a good story because it is the newest of Fonatur's developed communities, you might say I left my heart (and plenty of shopping money) in Oaxaca.

One of the things that is captivating about Oaxaca is that the people are so appreciative of visitors. They know that you chose to come here, that you had to board a special flight to make your way to their doorstep, and they are determined to let you know it was well worth your trouble.

The state of Oaxaca (Mexico is divided into 31 states) is quite large and contains everything from beaches, to ruins to rain forests. The area is considered pre-Colonial: Civilization in the Valley of Oaxaca was well established by 1300 B.C. Descendents of the succeeding civilizations still live in the countryside. Two of every three "Oaxaquenos" are indigenous and come from one of 17 distinct groups within the Mixtecs and Zapotecs. They speak dif-ferent dialects and produce distinct handcrafted items which identify each village.

I stayed in Oaxaca city, the capital, a colonial town 250 miles southeast of Mexico City. It is quite developed (population 800,000) and yet still quaint. The edges of the city, like most suburbs, are crowded and congested with traffic. But when you get to the colonial center, you'll be in the Zocalo, a traditional town square. It is lively and full of activity at all hours.

The square is fronted by a huge cathedral, small hotels, sidewalk cafes, and, of course a park which is busy at all hours. During the day, you'll find children playing with the pi-geons while elderly gentlemen snooze on nearby benches. At night, the park is alive with people of all ages poring over the crafts spread out in elaborate displays, watching mimes ationists, listening to marimba bands or hanging out in the cafes while sampling local delicacies: chicken

The nightly folklorico show at the Hotel Monte Alban is one of the best I've ever seen and included dances from all over the state. Around the Zocalo are steets filled with shops. There's also the Rufino Ta-maya Museum of Pre-Hispanic Art and an outstanding crafts market, the Mercado de Artesanias. (On Saturday, try the

Fine Arts' 'Greetings'

The Fine Arts Society of Detroit presented "Greetings," a comedy by Tom Dudzick, Nov. 10 and 11 at The Players on East Jefferson.

Directed by Margaret Lindner and produced by Susan Petz, the play's cast members were Kim F. Taylor, Laurie Striebel. Geno Pirrami, Sharon Conti and Joe Gillis.

The set was designed by Jack Petz and constructed by David Ezel and crew. Stage manager was Philip Mc-Callister.

At a reception in the board room before the production, the group displayed works of art by Victoria Masotti, who teaches art history and studio classes in the Grosse Pointe schools.

A midnight supper was served by The Players' gour-met group following the show. Fine Arts begins its 90th season in January.

The next day we visited the crafts villages with our guide Juan Badilla, a 60-plus gentleman who delighted in sharing his Indian culture with us. We hired him through the tour agency at the Hotel Presidente. Rosa Leal in San Bartolo Coyotecpec, where we learned about how the famous Oaxacan black pottery is made. A few miles del Valle, the village of the textile weavers, where store after store advertises its goods by hanging them out front

From there we were whisked to Arrozola where whole families (from tots to teens) are involved in the process of transforming pieces of capac cedar On this day, we visited the into the wildly-painted "anishop of the famous late Dona malitas" that have become famous the world over.

we had more time, we would have visited more. Oaxaca is famous for its exotic farther we were in Teotitlan painted masks, its embroidered shirts and blouses, its basketry, its ornate jewelry and finely made machetes, swords and other knives. Visiting a Fonart store, operated by the goverment, is a good way to get a grasp of average prices.

We stayed at the Hotel Victoria, which is a $3 cab ride up from town, but which offers large rooms and stunning views. A better choice if you want to be close to the Zocalo is the Camino Real Oaxaca. It is a former monastery which has been converted to 91 rooms, each different. It is quite charming, although more pricev. There is also a B&B operated by Americans; the Casa Colonial has 15 rooms and is just seven blocks from the Zocalo. The owners also arrange tours to Oaxaca. Call (800) 758-

ULS coach marches into Saints' Hall of Fame

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

John Fowler went to St. Lawrence University with the dream of becoming an All American hockey goalie.

When he left the Canton, N.Y., school four years later, Fowler was an All-American goalie - but he achieved his honor in lacrosse, not hockey.

sity Liggett School, was in-some experience. ducted into the St. Lawrence athletic Hall of Fame.

Squirt Bulldogs take another tournament

They may not be the original Bulldogs, but the Squirt AA version of the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association travel club is doing its best to maintain the tradition.

The Squirt Bulldogs, coached by Lee Schmidt, recently won their second tournament championship in two tries by winning the Squirt AAA division of the Pittsburgh Viper Thanksgiving tournament.

Grosse Pointe moved up a division for the tournament, but still beat the North Hills Vipers of Pittsburgh 5-3 in the championship game to complete a four-game sweep.

The Bulldogs were led by Erik Schleicher, who had nine goals and three assists for 12 points.

South Hills Pittsburgh gave Grosse Pointe a battle, but the Bulldogs won 4-2. Andrew Amato scored late in the first period and Colombo, Schleicher and Bruce McKenzie tallied in the second period before South Hills got on the scoreboard.

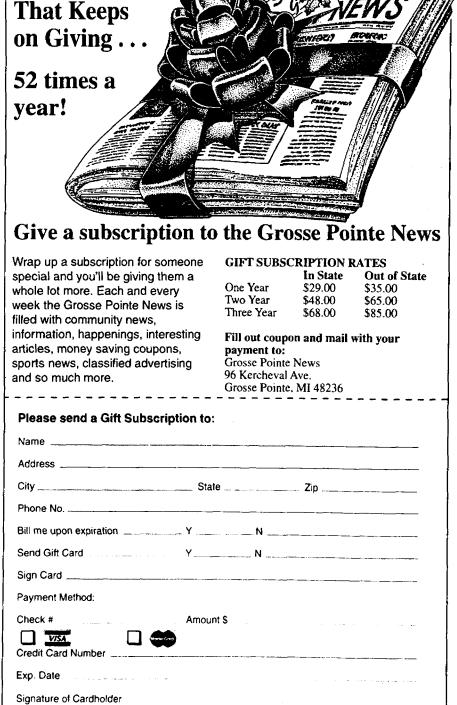

The Bulldogs' defense corps of Fraser Gaspar, Jordan Win-field, Marc Callert and Tim VandenBoom played well in front of goalie Jimmy LaLonde. Grosse Pointe reached the final game with a 5-0 victory over a strong Mount Lebanon (Pa.) Hornets squad. Schleicher had two goals and Amato, Ambrozy and Ernst added one apiece as Starr recorded his second straight shutout.

The Bulldogs started quickly in the title game. Colombo opened the scoring on a pass from Amato. Twenty seconds later, Schleicher stole the puck 10-0 in the opening game. from a North Hills defenseman Goalie Jonathon Starr got and scored unassisted. Colombo

Don't let holiday dreams go up in flames

The holiday season is a time of excitement and fun for many Michigan residents. Unfortunately, it is also a time of increased risk of a residential fire, according to the state fire marshal.

Holiday celebrations lead to greater use of the kitchen for cooking, which is the No. 1 cause of home fires. Adding to the holiday risk is the ignition of Christmas trees, which continues to cause needless deaths and injuries each year. The lighting of holiday candles poses another threat.

The good news is that the advent of the holiday season doesn't mean that tragedy will strike. By following a few fire safety tips, the chances of fire can be drastically reduced. Here are some tips to follow:

• Never leave items being cooked unattended. Keep cooking areas clean; wear clothes with tight-fitting sleeves, and turn pot handles inward on the stove and out of a child's reach.

• Choose a fresh Christmas tree and water it frequently. Put the tree in a stand that will not tip over and keep the tree away from heat sources and exits.

 Keep burning candles away from decorations and other materials that can catch fire. Do not leave children unattended in a room with lighted candles and remember to keep matches and lighters up high and out of children's reach.

 When decorating with lights, purchase only those labeled by a testing laboratory, such as UL. Check for frayed or damaged cords and replace them. Don't overload electrical outlets and always unplug all lights before leaving home or going to sleep.

 When hosting holiday parties, provide smokers with large, deep ashtrays. After the party, remember to check inside and under upholstery and in trash cans for smoldering cigarette butts.

The beginning of winter brings deaths and injuries caused by home heating equipment as well. The state fire marshal reminds everyone to keep portable heaters and space heaters at least three feet away from walls, furniture or other combustible materials.

Wood and coal stoves and chimneys should be inspected and cleaned regularly by a professional. Room gas heaters and kerosene heaters can be particularly dangerous, so be sure to properly ventilate gas space heaters and remember to add fuel to kerosene heaters only when the heater is completely cool.

Installing smoke detectors on every level of the home and having a family escape plan in the event of a fire are critical to having a home that is fire safe. Smoke detectors need to be tested regularly to be sure they are in working order. Family escape plans need to be practiced periodically. Everyone should know of at least two unobstructed exits from each room and where they will meet outside after the escape.

The holidays should be fun, cheerful and joyful. But above all, the holidays should be safe.

Detroit Edison offers holiday lighting tips

When setting up your holiday lighting display, don't let the sparkle of the season get in the way of playing it safe.

"People sometimes forget, in the rush of the season, to perform basic safety checks of their lights and other decorations," said Claudia Gabay, Detroit Edison's corporate lighting consultant. "Anything electrical has the potential for danger and spending just a few minutes on the side of caution could prevent a holiday tragedy."

To help lessen the possibility of shocks and fire, look for the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) label before stringing lights and setting up other trimmings. Even then, Gabay warned, some cheaper light sets have been stamped with a counterfeit UL designation and may not be designed for safe operation.

If you're considering a purchase but are suspicious about a low price, compare the UL label with another on a better-known brandname product, Gabay suggested.

Another important consideration is to use lighting as it is intended by the manufacturer — either outdoors or indoors.

"If your indoor lights become very hot, they should be thrown away," Gabay said. "We hope our customers take just a few minutes and also check for frayed wires, damaged sockets and cracked or missing insulation."

Decorative lighting can be a safe, inexpensive way to shine in the holidays. Most lights cost from less than 1 cent to 7.5 cents per string to operate for six hours, depending on the wattage. For strands of lights that blink off and on, the cost is halved.

Gabay offered the following tips for a safer holiday season:

- Do not overload electrical circuits.
- Use no more than three sets of standard lights on each extension
 - Do not insert new bulbs or change fuses when light sets are plugged in.

- Keep lights away from carpeting, furniture and drapes.
- Turn off decorative lights before you go to bed or leave home.
- Use only outdoor extension cords with molded plugs and sockets.
- Keep all electrical conditions off the ground and hang sockets downward to prevent water from seeping into them.
- Do not run lighting cords through door or window openings where they can be damaged.
- Cover outdoor plugs and connection joints with plastic wrap and seal the ends with electrical tape.

The making of a real Christmas tree is year-round job

When you walk down the aisles of your favorite Christmas tree lot or choose-and-cut farm, do you ever stop to wonder how all of those trees got there?

Once upon a time. all Christmas trees were cut from natural stands (or straight out of the forest). As you can Imagine, these wild trees looked nothing like today's professionally grown and sheared trees. Today, of the 33 million trees sold every year, over 90 percent are shipped or sold directly from U.S. Christmas tree farms

Typically, the growing process begins in a nursery where superior seeds are planted and grown to 2-year-old seedlings. Then the seedlings are transplanted to Christmas tree farms.

And that's just the beginning. Growing Christmas trees is a yearround job that takes a great deal of patience, diligence and know-how.

It takes an average of seven years for a tree to reach sale height. During that time, the tree must continue to be shaped and pruned to produce the lush, fully shaped trees that consumers demand.

The Christmas tree also may face many hazards during its growth period: too much or too little sun or rain; destruction by insects, disease, hail or fire; overgrowth of brush, vines and weeds; or even theft.

Only the best trees are selected for harvest. If chosen, a tree is tagged, cut, bundled, and loaded onto a truck or railroad car for the journey to a retail lot, and finally to your home, where it will continue to represent the spirit of life throughout the holiday season.

Fun family activities for the holidays

When the weather starts to get colder, there is no better place to turn than the warmth of our families. And what better reason than the holidays to get the whole family having fun together? Too often, in the rush of preparation for the big days, we forget to set aside some time to spend together. Well, this year there is a month and a day from Thanksgiving to Hanukkah to Christmas, and thats more than enough time to get your shopping done and have some fun, too. Here are a few activites that your family can enjoy during this long holiday season.

Not all birds go south for the winter, and for the ones that stay, food can be hard to find. Make it a family project this year to hang and maintain a bird feeder in the back yard. Easy Gardener manufactures the inexpensive, pre-filled Easy Feeder that makes this activity easy for busy or younger family members to join. Just make sure to hang the feeder in a location safe from squirrels and

Make the most of your bird feeder and attract more birds by changing the location once or twice a season or spacing two or three Easy Feeders around the yard. You also may want to buy a bird watching guide. The more you put into bird feeding, the more you get out of it, but even if you don't have much time to invest, a bird feeder will quickly bring life and song to your winter yard.

If you have a little more time to spend, start a new tradition this year. Get the family together for the first annual family wreath making day. All you need is a bundle of evergreen sprigs, a sturdy wire frame, some No. 22 or 24 wire, an anti-transpirant spray, such as Shrub Saver, and some florist's thread. If you can spare some red ribbon from your holiday wrapping supply, be sure to set it aside,

Have the young ones collect sprigs about four to six inches long for a medium-sized wreath. Strip the needles from the bottom inch of the sprigs. Then spray the sprigs generously with Shrub Saver to ensure that the needles will hold on longer and the wreath will stay fragrant.

Now you are ready to build your wreath. Secure one end of the wire to the frame. Use the florist's thread to bind the sprigs together in small bundles and start to wire the sprigs to the frame. Each time be sure to bind the bottom inch of the sprigs to the frame with five or six turns of the wire, and cover the bottom of the last bundle of sprigs with the top of the next so that none of the wiring or bare stems are visible. When you have covered the frame, tie the wire securely so that it won't unwind and loosen the wreath.

Finish it with a bow made by looping your ribbon back and forth and tying the loops in the middle with a small scrap of the same colored ribbon. Hang the wreath on the front door and every day your family will be reminded of what it accomplished together.

Another fun family activity is to make a mini-holiday out of decorating the tree. Make sure that everyone has the day free and start early. If you prefer to use a live tree, head out to the nursery or church yard early to beat the rush and have the whole family in on the tree-picking.

When you get home, leave one or two people in charge of untangling the lights and two or three in charge of putting up the tree, then have one person spray the tree with an antitranspirant, such as Christmas Tree Saver, and have everyone else bring in the decorations. Reward your workers with a hearty lunch and relax for an hour or two before hanging the decorations. First, hang the lights and then exchange new ornaments like presents and hang each one as it is opened. Lastly, hang the rest of the decorations around the

Sometimes it can be hard to get the whole family together during this busy season, but the more time your family invests in fun activities, the more everyone will get out of the hol-

INVITE FEATHERED FRIENDS OVER FOR THE HOLIDAYS: Hanging a bird feeder, such as the Easy Feeder from Easy Gardener, will help birds survive the winter. The whole family can enjoy the sights and sounds of jays, finches and robins all winter long.

Dirty Secrets And Clean Facts: Handling Holiday Mishaps

By Patricia Barrett

-Q: I love using candles to decorate my holiday tables but often have a tough time cleaning wax from the holders. Is there any way to get rid of candle wax?

A: The easiest way I have found is to place candle holders in the freezer for an hour or so. When you take them out of the freezer, the wax will peel right off. Also, to prevent candles from dripping so easily, place them in the freezer before using.

Q: With the holidays approaching, one of my biggest pleasures is also one of my biggest fears: cooking. Every year I manage to get turkey grease on my blouse, even while wearing an apron. And it never fails, the turkey grease leaves a ring even after washing. What is the best way to get a grease stain out?

A: You're not alone. Turkey grease and other meat juices are among the most reported holiday stains. First dampen the stain before washing. Then rub with a dual-enzyme detergent, such as Double Power Wisk," and wash in hottest water temperature safe for the fabric. Make sure the stain is completely removed before drying in the dryer or ironing.

For additional help combating holiday stains, call 1-800-ASK-WISK, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. EST. Callers will receive expert advice on removing difficult stains and a free laundry guide that will be handy for additional holiday mishaps!

Q: Lambchops are one of my family's favorite winter dishes. I love cooking them but hate cleaning up afterward. They leave a broiler pan that is unsightly. Do you have any tips on the best way to get a broiler pan clean?

A: Sprinkle the broiler pan, while hot, with powder laundry detergent. Cover with a dampened paper towel and let the burned food sit for a few minutes. Then wash in hot water and food will come off easily.

Golden Rules:

Tips for Purchasing Gifts of Gold This Holiday Season

It's beautiful. It's flattering. It's precious. And, it never goes out of style. That's what makes gold jewelry a popular gift year after year.

Through new methods of jewelry making, gold has become available and affordable to just about everyone. The good news this holiday season is that there is real gold jewelry created by leading designers at nearly every price. Jewelry designers are playing a more prominent role than ever before in creating gold jewelry that is more stylish — and makes a statement.

Classic designs can be found in 14K, 18K and even 24K gold. Some of the season's hottest trends include nature-inspired designs, antique looks, pins, stackable bracelets and rings, and gold jewelry in a variety of textures and colors.

To help you get the most for your money, as well as a whole lifetime of pleasure, the World Gold Council offers some "golden rules" for purchasing:

KNOW YOUR KARATS

 Always look for a karat mark when purchasing gold jewelry. It is usually stamped as 10K, 14K, 18K or 24K, but also could be stamped 417, 585, 750 or 999, which are the European equivalents.

• The karat mark indicates the percentage of pure gold in the piece. 24K is 100-percent gold. Gold is often alloyed with other metals, like copper, silver, nickel and zinc, to give it strength and durability. The higher the karatage, the more gold in the piece.

 Different proportions of metals added to pure gold give gold alloys their yellow, rose, green or white coloration. Most gold jewelry contains a mixture of at least two other metals.

IS THE PRICE RIGHT?

• Generally, the higher the karatage, the higher the price. Price also is affected by the total weight of the piece. So, all else being equal, a larger, heavier piece is likely to be more expensive than a smaller, lighter one.

 Superior design and construction come at a premium and make jewelry both easier to slip on and off and more comfortable to wear.

 Although nearly all gold jewelry today is made with the help of special machines, some handwork is always involved. The more there is, the higher the price will be.

Ornamental detailing, like engraving or a special finish, will add to the cost.

High polish: mirrorlike, bright, shiny, highly reflective

- Satin finish: light parallel lines sharply reduce the metal's reflections; soft and lustrous appearance

- Matte: velvetlike finish, without shine but having a soft luster Whether purchasing gold for yourself or trying to please the women on your gift-giving list, the key is to seek out items that strike the right balance between classic design and updated styling. Whatever your choice, gold jewelry is a gift of value that will be cherished for years to come.

For a free brochure filled with additional tips on purchasing and caring for gold jewelry, send a selfaddressed, stamped, No. 10 envelope to "Golden Rules," World Gold Council, 900 Third Ave., 26th Floor, New York, NY 10022.

Add Some Buttercrunch To Holiday Celebrations

-We all have traditional holiday goodies that we make year after year. But it's always fun to try something new, especially when the "experiment" combines two favorite holiday treats—candy and cookies.

These cookies are made with Almond Roca, Brown & Haley's unique buttercrunch confection coated with chocolate and diced almonds. This fussfree recipe is as easy to prepare as it is delicious.

Almond Roca Butter Balls (Makes about 40 cookies.)

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour 1/4 cup granulated sugar ⅓ tsp. salt 1 stick (4 oz.) sweet butter, softened Grated rind of one lemon 1 tsp. vanilla extract 1/4 tsp. almond extract 1 cup (approximately 4 oz.) finely ground Almond Roca*

Optional Toppings り cup granulated sugar ½ cup confectioner's sugar 1 cup finely ground Almond Roca* Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In electric mixer bowl, put flour, sugar and salt. Blend. Cut in butter, lemon rind and extracts. Mix until a soft (rather dry) dough is formed. Gently add Almond Roca. Refrigerate dough 15 minutes.

With your hands, roll dough into small balls (3/4" in diameter) and place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake 15 minutes. While still warm, remove from baking sheet and roll in one of the above toppings or leave plain.

*Cut Almond Roca pieces in half. In food processor, process until candy becomes a fine powder.

Holiday Dessert Ideas Using Almond Roca

Tartuffo-Roll a ball of hard vanilla ice cream into crushed Almond Roca until completely covered. Freeze until hard. Top with chocolate sauce and whipped cream.

Buttercrunch Cake—Brush a pound cake or favorite plain cake lightly with honey. Sprinkle crushed Almond Roca over the top and sides of the cake.

Strawberry Crunch-Top fresh-cut strawberries, lightly sugared, with whipped cream, yogurt or nonfat sour cream. Sprinkle with crushed Almond Roca.

Cookie Crunch-Add crushed Almond Roca to your favorite butter cookie recipe or use instead of ground nuts for a delicious cookie crunch.

Imagine. Create. Build.

With Robotix®, the motorized, modular building system, your children can build and power space vehicles, creatures and robots. The only limit is their imagination!

Introduce Children to a Gift That Celebrates a Moment and Lasts a Lifetime

Giving a gift that lasts a lifetime is one of the challenges and delights of the holiday season. When your gift introduces a child to the hobby of coin collecting, you give an opportunity to explore history and learn about great events through a hobby that can last a lifetime.

Coin collecting dates back to ancient Greece. The tradition continued through the ages, emerging in Europe during the Renaissance, although mostly among nobility. Today, coin collecting is enjoyed throughout the world by people of all ages and cultures.

Coin collecting, or numismatics, is a great pastime for children. It teaches them about history and money, and encourages them to use their imagination and expand their creativity as they study the artistry of the designs and learn more about the images portrayed.

The best way to excite children about coin collecting is to buy them coins with images depicting subjects they find interesting, like animals, famous people or folklore. A theme especially popular with children is sports, and no sports coins are more popular than those commemorating a world-famous event from which the dreams and heroes of young children are born — the Olympic Games.

Quite likely, the first Olympic coin was minted in 480 B.C. to commemorate the chariot-race victory of King Anaxilas of Messina, Sicily. The first coin commemorating the modern Olympic Games was issued in 1952 by Finland, and over the years, other nations created coins to commemorate the Games held in their country. Now, in celebration of the 100th Anniversary of the Modern Olympic Games, the U.S. Mint is issuing the U.S. Olympic Coins of the Atlanta Centennial Olympic Games.

The 16 coins commemorating next year's Olympic Games include four gold $5 coins, eight silver dollars and four half dollars minted in nonprecious metals. Their designs portray internationally recognized symbols of the Games, like the Olympic torch runner and popular Olympic sporting events like gymnastics and track and field. What's more, the sports depicted on the four half dollars especially appeal to children -- basketball, baseball, swimming and soccer.

"The Atlanta Olympic coins are ideal for introducing children to collecting, because they portray sports that boys and girls enjoy, and they are tributes to the Olympic Games," says Mint director Philip N. Diehl. "In fact, our basketball and baseball Olympic coins are available in Young Collectors Editions that are specially packaged for appeal to children."

In addition, the nation's leading retailers sell the Olympic basketballor baseball-clad coin alongside a collectible Olympic Games pin. Retailers also carry individual Olympic silver dollars in "Olympic Games premium pacs" with a brochure that outlines the history of the Olympic Games.

At prices beginning below $20, Olympic coins are excellent gifts. Your purchase also will help the Olympic dream come true for American athletes, because part of your purchase price goes to the U.S. Olympic Committee to support athletes' training and to stage the 1996 Olympic Games.

So, this year, join the spirit of the holidays and the Olympic spirit by giving a child the U.S. Olympic Coins of the Atlanta Centennial Olympic

SUPPORTING THE U.S. OLYMPIC TEAM and the 1996 Centennial Games in Atlanta, the U.S. Olympic Coins of the Atlanta Centennial Olympic Games provide a great opportunity to introduce children to the exciting world of coin collecting. A unique idea, the Olympic coins are available at participating retailers or by calling 1-800-96-COIN-1.

Say It With Gemstones, Add Romance to a Holiday Gift

Colored gemstones have a long romantic history that can bring another level of meaning to a holiday gift. You can say it with flowers, but gemstones are a lot more persuasive.

Most people are familiar with the tradition of birthstones, but birthstones are a relatively recent expression of a much older tradition. In ancient times, gemstones were believed to be powerful talismans that could charm a lover or heal the sick. Although jewelry stores no longer act as hospitals, gemstones have a powerful symbolism that still can charm your loved ones and express how you feel about them.

"Colored gemstones add emotional expression to a gift of jewelry," says Cheryl Kremkow, director of the International Colored Gemstone Association's information service in New York. "They express love, passion, friendship, faithfulness. There is a gemstone that can symbolize any feeling you want to convey with your gift."

Throughout history, sapphires have symbolized sincerity, faithfulness and truth. In fact, the expression "true blue" comes from the symbolism of sapphire. Ruby expresses passion. Emerald represents love and fertility, making it a good gift for a woman who is expecting a baby. Opal represents hope, and topaz symbolizes the sun. Amethyst brings peace, tranquillity and sobriety. Aquamarine adds a soothing influence to marital discord and has the power to ensure a long and happy marriage.

You also can create your own symbolism. Since the first poet praised a woman's ruby lips, gemstones have spoken the language of love. Many couples have a color, place, song, special moment or private language that can be evoked through a gemstone. Adding a special poem or note that explains the significance of a gift makes it more memorable.

If you need some inspiration, the International Colored Gemstone Association offers a book of free gemstone poems. For your copy, call the association at (212) 688-8452, or send a self-addressed, stamped, large envelope to ICA, 609 Fifth Ave., #905, New York, NY 10017.

Although ruby, emerald and sapphire are the most popular gemstones, you also might want to consider unusual and exotic gems, like tourmaline, tanzanite, topaz, tsavorite garnet, amethyst, rhodolite garnet, malaya garnet, aquamarine, iolite, citrine, spinet and peridot. Many varieties are surprisingly affordable.

Within each gemstone variety, quality, of course, dramatically affects price. In general, smaller gemstones of higher quality appreciate more over time than larger stones of lower quality. Quality and value are evaluated according to the "four C's": color, clarity, cut and carat weight.

Color is the most important factor for determining quality. Within each variety, a clear, medium-tone, very intense and saturated primary color is usually the most preferred. Muted colors or colors between hues are generally less expensive.

The next most important factor affecting value is clarity, with clear, transparent gemstones with no visible flaws being the most valued.

A good cut is something that may not cost more, but may enhance a gemstone's beauty. A well-cut faceted gemstone reflects light back evenly across its surface area when held face up. If the stone is too deep and narrow, areas will be dark. If it is too shallow and wide, areas will be washed out and lifeless.

The carat weight also affects the price: Large gemstones are more rare, so the price per carat is higher.

In general, gemstone pricing within each variety follows common sense: The more beautiful the gemstone, with the final visual effect of all the quality factors, the more valuable it is. Trust your instincts, and choose the gemstone that speaks to you.

Wine Club Offers a Gift for All Seasons

If you have a friend or business client who loves excellent wine, here's a holiday gift to please like no other—a gift membership to the California Wine Club.

Each month, the fortunate recipient of your gift will receive two bottles of wine from California's best small wineries — world-class wines that are sure to delight the palate, but are not generally available in retail wine shops.

All wines in the program are selected personally by the owners of the California Wine Club, who visit each winery they recommend to choose the best of the best. Included in the wine package is an informative and fun newsletter, "Uncorked"," that tells about the wines, as well as interesting wine features.

This year, there's also something new. It's an even more upscale wine program called the Connoisseurs' Series. Wines in this program are only the highest-rated wines determined by the "Connoisseur's Guide To California Wines," the estimable publication written by wine experts Charles Olken and Earl Singer.

To place an order, call the 24-hour toll-free line — (800) 777-4443. Gifts can be charged to Visa, MasterCard or American Express. The price is only $30 per month, and you can send as many months as you choose. The Connoisseurs' Series price varies depending on the wines selected. The California Wine Club offers two-day service, volume discounts and deferred payments.

Activity Table Lets Imaginations Grow

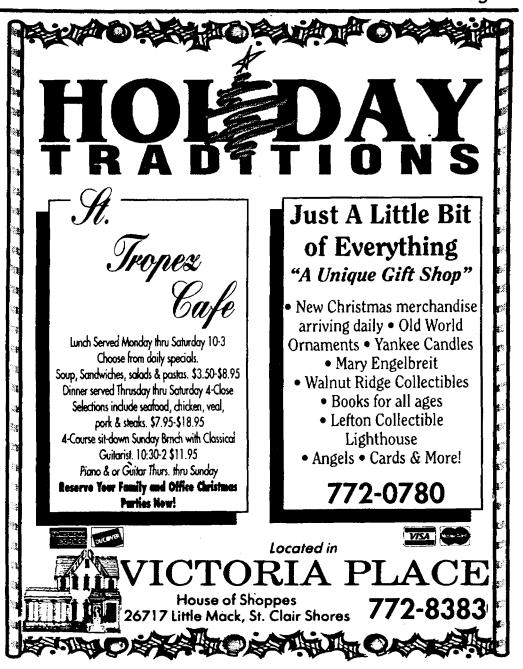

With a strong imagination, children know no boundaries. They can be artists, architects, astronauts or anything else that they want. To help their kids realize the possibilities, parents need to foster their children's creativity at an early age.

To help them, Today's Kids has developed Build 'N Play Table™, a new multipurpose activity table that has four playing surfaces. On the generic surface (shown), the table provides children with the work area to do everything from coloring to puzzles and crafts.

Children also can become budding artists when they draw pictures on the easel, which parents can set up by lifting the surface inset and standing it upright. On the reverse side of the easel is a board that can be used for play with 48 Bristle Back™ numbers and letters. So, children can start to spell and learn their numbers while having fun. When the inset is set up vertically, one child can use each side of the table at the same time.

The table also comes with four panels that attach to the Bristle Back surface. Children can place Lego/Duplo building pieces (not included) on this surface, opening up a whole new realm for their imaginations.

Youngsters also can learn how to keep their letters, numbers and drawing materials organized, because the table has plenty of storage space. There are two swing-out supply trays, a storage well under the table surface and two sturdy storage stools with removable lids and handholds.

An Original Swiss Army Knife Can Help Everyone On Your Holiday Gift List

- Life's little emergencies from loose threads to minor home and car repairs—have a nasty habit of cropping up when they are least expected and you're least prepared. Why not help everyone on your holiday gift list cope by giving them the Victorinox Original Swiss Army Knife?

It's the perfect choice, even for someone who already owns one of these handy problem-solvers, because one is never enough. Many owners report that they like to keep an Original Swiss Army Knife in several places: briefcase or purse, kitchen, car, workshop or even in a shaving/cosmetics kit for travel.

One of the newest Original Swiss Army Knife models is ideal for keeping almost anywhere. The "MiniChamp" packs 11 useful implements, including a scissor, cuticle pusher and nail file with cleaner, into a 2.25-inch-long case that can fit neatly onto a key chain or anywhere you need to be prepared. At a suggested retail price of $30, it can make you a shopping champ, too!

When you're looking for a more elaborate tool, here's another practical new gift idea—the Victorinox "Traveler's Kit." Compact enough to fit in-a shaving kit, cosmetic bag or backpack, the "Traveler's Kit" has virtually all of the essential tools for handling virtually any emergency on the road or in the great outdoors!

The kit contains a powerful Solitaire Maglite mini-flashlight, a compass/ruler combination with magnifying glass and thermometer and a 3.5-inch Original Swiss Army Knife. This red-handled tool includes such invaluable implements as a corkscrew, can opener with small screwdriver, bottle opener with large screwdriver and wire stripper, scissor, wood saw, tweezers, toothpick and ballpoint pen, to name a few.

All of this fits into an attractive black leather pouch. The "Traveler's Kit" is available at a suggested retail price of $91.

If your friend, relative or co-worker has a special hobby, why not give a specialized Original Swiss Army Knife, such as the "Golfer" with a divot fixer, the "Fisherman" with a fish scaler and hook disgorger or the "Mechanic" with three screwdrivers and pliers.

Victorinox Original Swiss Army Knives are available at sporting goods, specialty and cutlery stores nationwide.

Cut Flowers: Easy, Fresh Holiday Gifts

—Running out of ideas—and time—for finding that perfect holiday gift? Fresh cut flowers are one of the most appreciated and desired gifts according to recent studies. And, they are appropriate for both personal and business gift-giving.

Flowers should be selected as carefully as any other holiday presents, with the personality and taste of the receiver in mind. The California Cut Flower Commission offers the following guidelines to help you and your florist create a special floral gift for everyone on your list.

You And The Recipient

Start by giving the florist information about the recipient, such as age, gender and personality type, as well as your relationship—business, personal, family—with that person. Let your florist know if there is a particular sentiment you'd like to convey. He or she will know the right kind of flowers which are traditionally used to express certain feelings. Indicate if there are favorite flowers you would like used.

Colors

Specific colors are typically associated with the holiday season, but outside of tradition; floral color decisions can be made in several ways. You may wish to match or complement colors in the recipient's home, office, or wherever the flowers will be displayed. Certain colors may have special meaning to the individual or your relationship with them.

Monochromatic color selections can be quite striking, and are used for modern, trendy arrangements as well as nostalgic Victorian effects. Be sure to let your florist know what color hue you prefer.

Arrangements of mixed colors are always good, and particularly if you draw a blank on color choice. Mixed colors also reflect the way flowers grow in a natural setting.

Style

Certain "buzz words" conjure up images of particular floral styles. Here are some words that florists often use which may help you communicate your desired floral style: Masculine/feminine; formal/informal; nostalgic/contemporary; country garden/stylized; loose, airy/tailored; bold, dramatic; tropical; unusual; seasonal; ikebana (Japanese style); European.

Price

The price of an arrangement or bouquet is determined by several factors. Usually, the more flowers, the higher the price. Some types of flowers are more expensive than others. Domestically produced flowers in season will cost less than unusual ones that are out of season. During the holidays, good flower buys can be found in standard varieties such as chrysanthemums. carnations and roses, as well as some specialty cut flowers. But with ideal growing conditions in California, many varieties of flowers are available yearround. Discuss your price range with your florist, and he or she will be able to create a suitable arrangement or bouquet to fit your budget.

Accessories—such as balloons, stuffed animals, candies—could increase the price of an arrangement. Vases and floral container pieces can also vary.

The total cost of your arrangement will typically include a design fee. The training, experience and reputation of your florist will determine this, just as in any other industry. Floral wire services also offer the convenience of ordering an arrangement for delivery across the country. Be sure to ask about all charges (including delivery) before finalizing your purchase.

Electronic Gadgets for Less Than $50

A sleighful of inexpensive holiday gifts makes it truly a season to be jolly, especially for consumer electronics "gadget" lovers among friends and family.

Missing only ribbons and wrappings, an assortment of stocking stuffers and small gifts from Sony Electronics, including personal stereo speakers, lightweight in-the-ear-style headphones, universal remote controls, multimedia computer speakers and headphones/microphones, fills Santa's sleigh.

Any of these items makes a great last-minute gift or serves as a perfect present for office mates. Even hard-to-please teens on a shopping list would be happy to receive these high-tech "toys" from Santa's elves.

For friends expecting a new computer or multimedia system, Sony's DR-50PC stereo computer headphone with built-in boom microphone makes a great "extra" gift. This innovative gadget lets the computer buff listen to audio through the headphone feature, while its microphone allows recording of audio tracks and sound bites. (Suggested retail: $49.99.) Gift-givers also could wrap up a pair of amplified multimedia speakers, like Sony's SRS-PC20, for less than $50.

Perfect for TV-watching friends who fuss with too many remote controls, a new universal remote is a great way to eliminate the clutter. No bigger than a holiday ornament, Sony's egg-shaped RM-V30 universal remote controls a television, VCR or cable box — all at the push of a button and for less than $35. New water- (or snow) resistant personal stereo speakers pair up with Walkman' or Discman' personal stereos. Sony's SRS-T50G portable speakers sound great and cost less than $50.

So, help Santa's reindeer out this year with a few electronic gifts for under the tree that fit as easily into a stocking as into a sleigh, and be remembered all year long.

The lore and legends of Grosse Pointe...

Tonnancour (250pp./$40) is a lavishly illustrated volume that lets readers experience the fascinating history, lore, and legends of Grosse Pointe and Lake St. Clair. This unique collection of first-hand accounts, previously published and unpublished material, and original essays and articles has been collected and edited by Arthur M. Woodford, director of the St. Clair Shores Public Library and author of several books on Michigan and Detroit.

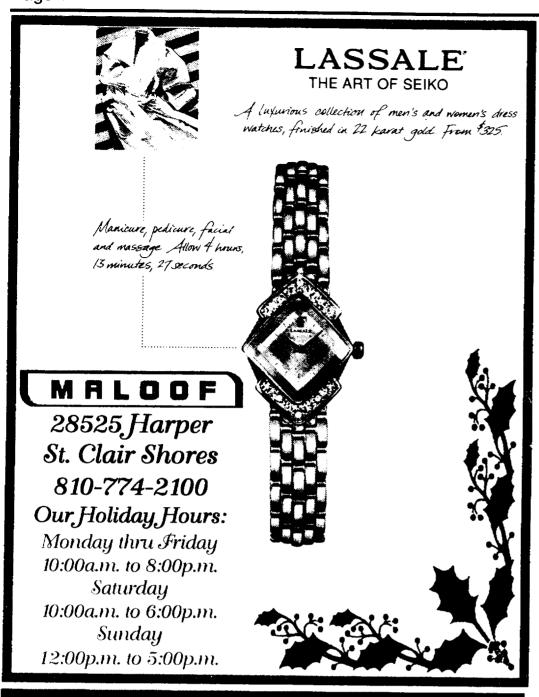

Named for a nineteenth-century Grosse Pointe residence and cultural center, Tonnancour starts with the very first written record of the Grosse Pointe region from 1679. Other early narratives are followed by a wealth of nineteenth-and early twentieth-century material. More than 200 illustrations help bring the story of Grosse Pointe to life, including pen and ink sketches, woodcuts, photographs, maps, and postcards from the turn of the century.

Containing a combination of historical and newer material, Tonnancour appeals to a wide range of readers. It makes a perfect holiday gift for family, friends, and colleagues.

Have your took signed on December 1 at Walden's in the Village

Arthur M. Woodford and several contributors to Tonnancour will be available for a book signing and discussion at Walden's in the Village, Saturday, December 9, from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. Books are available at local stores or directly from Omnigraphics, (313) 961-1340 or (800) 234-1340.

Holiday Shopping for the Difficult Person Doesn't Have to Be a Chore

You know who they are — the names on your holiday gift list that never match up easily with a gift idea. Maybe it's a co-worker, a distant relative, a friend or even a spouse, but they all have one thing in common — you're absolutely stumped when it comes to choosing a present.

comes to choosing a present.

You can stop fretting and start shopping. Here are some pointers that can ease you through this holiday dilemma.

The first tip is to forget about buying something they need. That's probably what stumped you in the first place. Either you don't know what they need or you're shopping for someone who doesn't seem to need anything. Instead of looking for that desperately needed something, start looking at things that are useful—that have some purpose, but may not be particularly needed.

For example, someone doesn't have to be a dedicated bird watcher to hang up an attractive bird feeder. They don't need to be a famous author to appreciate a quality writing instrument, either. You get the idea. Something can have a use even if it's not absolutely necessary to have it.

Another hint for shopping for the hard-to-buy-for person is to look for value. A poorly made product at any price is not a bargain. Yet, keep in mind that you don't necessarily have to spend a lot for a quality item. Regardless of the price range you are shopping in, look for quality materials, construction and design. Giving someone a well-made gift shows that you care about them and demonstrates your thoughtfulness.

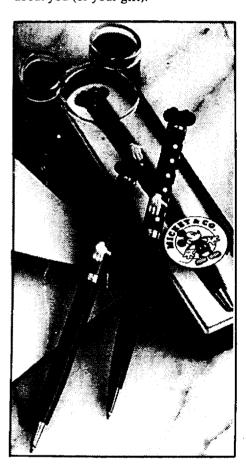

A final stress-reducing technique is to look for a little fun. Many gifts are meant to be romantic or sentimental, which is fine for some on your list, but in most other cases, you can't go wrong if you look for something that makes the recipient smile.

With all the nostalgic gifts for adults these days, it's easy to find something fun. For instance, the cartoon characters that everyone grew up with gain popularity each year. One of the most popular of these "character" gifts available this year is the new Mickey & Co. Mickey and Minnie pens. After all these years, they're still the two most recognized and most popular characters among all age groups.

They also fit the qualities to look for. They're high-quality writing instruments, starting in price at less than $20. They're useful, and they generate smiles when they're taken out of wrapping paper and every time they leave a purse or pocket.

To save some running around, you can call (800) 556-7354 for the name of a local retailer who carries the Mickey and Minnie pens. A holiday gift like this is even appropriate for business contacts. After all, there's nothing better than a client or boss smiling every time he or she thinks about you (or your gift).

DON'T GIVE UP on those hard-tobuy-for people on your list. The Mickey & Co. Mickey and Minnie pens are high-quality, useful and, best of all, make people remember you with a smile. Call (800) 556-7354 for the name of a local retailer.

We Wish You a 'Sherry' Christmas

Four decades after coffeehouses first garnered attention in the United States, people of all ages are sipping and savoring their way through a myriad of intriguing javas in chic, upscale cafes, cozy neighborhood beaneries or inviting mall espresso bars. Since coffee is the drink of the decade, what better or simpler way could you find to entertain holiday guests than to create your own late-evening coffeehouse?

When your invitation says, "Come for coffee and cordials at 9 p.m.," guests will thank you for allowing them the full day for shopping and other seasonal activities. You'll appreciate the fact the party requires minimum fuss and preparation time, and everyone will enjoy lighter fare in the midst of holiday overindulging.

Your coffeehouse celebration will require a variety of intriguing coffees, delectable toppings, a few simple nibbles. one or two cordials like Harveys Bristol Cream to serve before and after the coffee, and some easy-listening music to ensure a relaxed atmosphere and a convivial evening. Take your choice of blues, jazz, classical, soft rock or traditional holiday, as long as the music encourages conversation.

A pretty table will help make things festive. Use one large buffet table or several smaller ones. Decorate in spectacular colors like cobalt blue, gold and silver. Create a unique, quick-as-awink centerpiece by using empty Harveys Bristol Cream bottles for candleholders. The beautiful blue bottles will sparkle from the light of different length silver, gold or white candles. Arrange bright blue, silver and gold balls around the bases of the bottles. and tuck in holly, evergreen boughs and pine cones. In 10 minutes and with little cost, you'll have a centerpiece worthy of a designer.

For a spirited welcome, start guests off sipping a glass of Harveys Bristol Cream on the rocks with a squeeze of lime. This smooth, mellow sherry is a good "light" choice for holiday partying, since it has only 17.5-percent alcohol compared to the more usual 40-percent alcohol in many spirits.

Stock your coffee-and-cordials bar with a selection of aromatic, tantalizing coffees. A full-bodied, darkroasted Kenyan coffee and a rich, topquality espresso are "musts." Add pots of hazelnut, macadamia, vanilla, almond or cinnamon coffees to round out the repertoire. A pot of hot chocolate and one of steaming milk increase the possible combinations as guests create their own savory blends. Equal parts of hot chocolate and coffee will result in a mochachino. Equal parts of milk and espresso make a café au lait, while less espresso and more milk will turn it into a caffè latté. The creative combinations are endiess.

Enhance the coffees further by offering thin curls of orange and lemon peel, ground and stick cinnamon, cocoa powder, chocolate curls, sugar, brown sugar, and plain and whipped cream. For elegant whipped cream, near the end of whipping, add three tablespoons of Harveys Bristol Cream and two tablespoons of sugar per cup of heavy cream. Spoon dollops on top of the coffees or onto slices of pound-cake to accompany them.

Assemble a collection of decorative ums or samovars to dispense the coffees. Otherwise, serve the fragrant brews in pretty pots or carafes. Show off a variety of cups from your delicate china to sturdy pottery mugs to trim demitasse cups.

Keep the food simple. If your schedule is already overwhelming, rely on a good bakery or pastry shop, or bake well in advance and freeze relatively unadorned desserts. Poundcake, fruitand-nut breads, bar cookies, small fruit-filled tarts, or chocolate-coated fruits are perfect nibbles for coffees—plain or fancy. To accompany the coffee or as a grand finale to the evening, offer cordial glasses of rich, velvety-smooth Harveys Bristol Cream for leisurely sipping. Serve it straight up or on the rocks.

This delectable made-from-a-mix cake is perfect as an accompaniment to specialty coffees or for any holiday entertaining.

ELEGANT SHERRY CAKE

Makes 16 servings

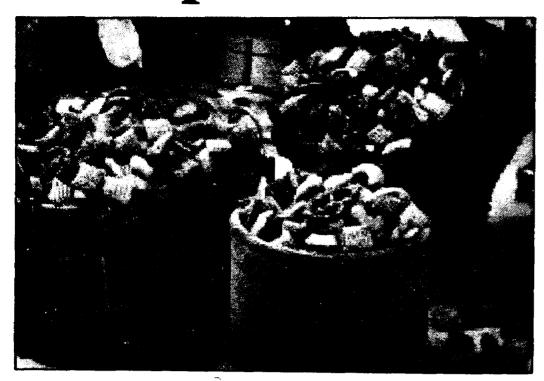

- 1 (1814-ounce) package yellow cake mix
- ½ cup low-fat vanilla yogurt
- ½ cup butter or margarine, softened
- ½ cup Harveys Bristol Cream
- I tablespoon grated lemon peel
- 3 eggs
- ½ cup pineapple preserves
- 4 cup chopped pecans
- l cup heavy cream
- 3 tablespoons Harveys Bristol Cream
- 2 tablespoons sugar
 - Fruit, sliced or pureed, optional

Grease and flour a 12-cup bundt pan; set aside. In a large bowl, combine cake mix, yogurt, butter, Harveys Bristol Cream, 1 tablespoon lemon peel and eggs. Beat on low speed of electric mixer until moistened. Beat 2 minutes at highest speed. Fold in preserves and pecans. Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake at 350 F for 50 to 60 minutes or until golden brown and toothpick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool in pan for 10 minutes. Invert onto serving plate, and cool completely. In a small bowl, whip cream, adding 3 tablespoons Harveys Bristol Cream and sugar just before it reaches desired consistency. Serve a dollop on each slice of cake with or without fruit.

For a recipe brochure, send a business-size, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Harveys Recipe Brochure, P.O. Box 767 — Dept. M. Holmdel, NJ 07733.

Mix Up A Pleaser

—Family dinners, shopping for the perfect gifts, caroling with the neighbors, decking the halls. The holidays are a time for all to enjoy but sometimes they make us feel like climbing the walls! Everyone wants the holidays to be perfect. But now, more than ever, it seems difficult to balance the fun of the holidays with the work it requires to prepare for them.

Whether you are hosting an intimate family get-together or organizing a major holiday bash, easy-to-make Original Chex* Brand Party Mix is the answer. You can easily double or triple the recipe to ensure that there is enough to serve everyone and you can make it in advance. You can even freeze it in an airtight container for those unexpected guests. And it is also a great gift for your host, packaged in a festive or unusual container.

Original Chex® Brand Party Mix

1/4 cup margarine or butter, melted
4 ½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 ½ tsp. seasoned salt
8 cups of your favorite Chex* brand cereals (Corn, Rice and/or Wheat)
1 cup mixed nuts
1 cup pretzels

Combine margarine, Worcestershire sauce and seasoned salt; mix well. Pour cereals, nuts and pretzels into large resealable plastic bag.

Pour margarine mixture over cereal mixture inside plastic bag. Seal top of bag securely. Shake bag until all pieces are evenly coated.

Pour contents of bag into large microwave-safe bowl. Microwave on high 5 to 6 minutes, stirring thoroughly every two minutes.* While stirring, make sure to scrape sides and bottom of bowl. Spread on absorbent paper to cool. Store in air-tight container.

Make 10 cups.

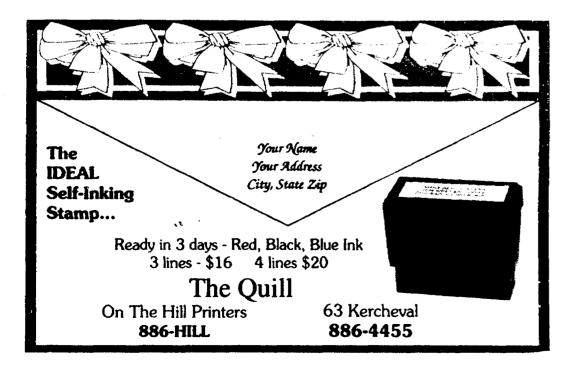

*Due to differences in microwave ovens, cooking time may need adjustment. These directions were developed using 625- to 700-watt ovens.

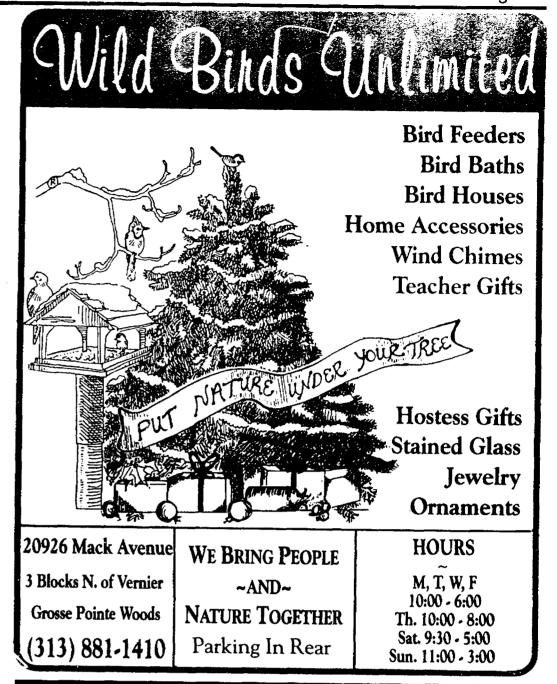

Conventional Oven:

Preheat even to 250°F.
Follow first two paragraphs above.
Pour contents of bag into open roasting pan. Bake I hour, stirring every 15 minutes. Cool and store as directed above.

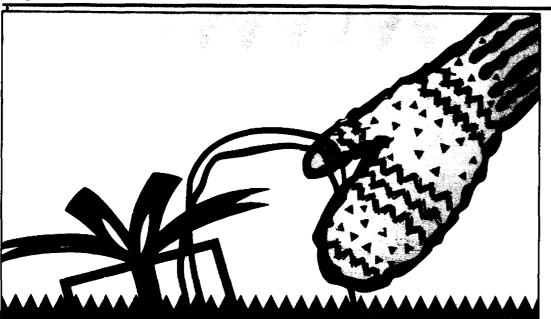

Hot & Spicy Chex® Brand Party Mix Variation

Use $2\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. Worcestershire sauce and 2 tsp. hot pepper sauce in place of $4\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. Worcestershire sauce. Add 1 cup bite-size cheese crackers to cereal mixture.

The Season Brings 'Fun-Tech' Toys That Parents Can Feel Good About

"FUN-TECH" TOYS combine electronic wizardry with wholesome family fun.

It comes as absolutely no surprise that kids' favorite toys are those with a touch of technological wizardry. Whether it's the remarkable realism of computer software and video games, or something as simple as a small, battery-operated toy, children never fail to respond.

That's fine, except for one thing: A visit to the local toy store will reveal row after row of mayhem-packed video games, missile-loaded electronic vehicles — and worse. How can a parent find electronic items that won't be a source of worry?

As it turns out, many companies are using technology to create more peaceful products. These "fun-tech" toys run the gamut from simple to amazing and are certain to thrill the lucky kids who find them under the tree this holiday.

Here's a few of the best:

Improve a child's memorization skills, reasoning abilities and deductive tools with Sound Games from Golden Books With Sound. Kids will love these games, because they're fun and different.

Sound Games are self-contained electronic games that go everywhere a child does. Whimsical sounds are always at a kid's fingertips, and delightful art enhances the game-playing experience. There are three great games: My Little Taxi, What Am I? and Swat That Fly!

For kids ages 3 and up, these games have a suggested retail price of $19.95.

Developments in computer software for children continue to amaze. Here are two programs that are certain to deliver megabytes of fun:

Monker's a blue, furry and friendly little critter who loves to teach kids. In Monker's Science Shop, he takes children on a personal interactive tour of his zany lab where experiments are always bubbling. It's a great introduction to the world of science.

For kids ages 3 to 8, this program is available in Windows, Macintosh and CD-ROM formats. The suggested retail price is from $19.95 to $24.95.

Using a fairy-tale Alpine setting, Hickory's Colors and Shapes helps kids explore colors and shapes. Children build with basic shapes, sizes, colors and patterns in this multilevel interactive learning environment.

For children ages 3 to 8, this program is available in Windows, Macintosh and CD-ROM formats. The suggested retail price is from $19.95 to $24.95.

The long-awaited sequel to one of the decade's most successful new products, Bumble Ball, has arrived. The Ertl Company introduces Bumble Ball Bolters, motorized wonders with seven legs, seven feet, a long neck and an egg-shaped head. When started, they bolt across the floor as if they were running on all "sevens."

They feature the same construction and concept as the original, but with a new, colorful, zany look and action. When a small button on the side of the toy is pressed, the internal motor takes over, turning the toy into a jumping, unpredictable ball of fun.

For kids ages 18 months and up, these toys have a suggested retail price of $19.99.

The bounciest, juggliest and jumpiest mode of transportation you've ever seen, Bumble Ball Vehicles are colorful, sturdy and wonderfully styled. Here's the lineup that's putting the Bumble phenomenon on the road: Bumble Ball Plane, featuring a soft, goofy pilot; Bumble Ball Train, with a pudgy, squishy engineer; and Bumble Ball Tractor with a funny squeezable former.

Tractor, with a funny, squeezable farmer.
For children ages 18 months and up, the suggested retail price is $19.99.

Quick Tips Make For An Exciting Holiday Menu

ADDING UNIQUE TWISTS to your traditional holiday menu, like ripplecut Orange Sweet Potatoes with Praline Topping, is quick and easy with the Professional SaladShooter Plus electric slicer-shredder.

Holiday time is a terrific occasion for families and friends to get together and celebrate. Preparing elaborate meals is rewarding, but can be a challenge. It's sometimes difficult to find time to prepare everything you'd like, much less experiment with new dishes.

If you're looking for ways to spruce up your holiday menu, try new twists on old favorites. Even for chefs who are pressed for time, it's easy to make interesting meal combinations, tempting salads and savory side dishes with the Presto® Professional SaladShooter® Plus electric slicer-shredder. This hand-held appliance prepares a variety of ingredients quickly - "shooting" them directly into your bowl. It comes with cutting cones for shredding and for making thick, thin and ripple slices. Also, you can slice or shred right where you want with the help of a special funnel guide attachment. Using the SaladShooter, you can quickly perk up an ordinary salad by hardening some Brie cheese in the freezer, then shredding it over the salad just before serving. Or, try a warm winter salad of steamed vegetables, like shredded zucchini and carrots, lightly seasoned with sesame oil.

The versatile slicer-shredder is also handy for preparing desserts. It's the easy way to chop cashews or pistachios for ice-cream sundaes and pecans for praline-topped dishes. Chopped graham crackers are perfect for a homemade pie crust, and you even can use cinnamon- or chocolate-flavored graham crackers for a richer flavor.

Enhance your holiday dinner with this easy-to-make recipe.

ORANGE SWEET POTATOES WITH PRALINE TOPPING

Makes 6 servings

- 2 pounds medium sweet potatoes, peeled
- ounces (% cup) pecan halves
- cup packed dark brown sugar
- teaspoon ground cinnamon
- tablespoons melted butter
- cup orange juice
- tablespoons rum
- teaspoon salt
- teaspoon ground ginger
- teaspoon ground black pepper

Heat oven to 350 F. Fit the Professional SaladShooter® Plus with the ripple cone; slice the sweet potatoes into a bowl. In a large pot of boiling water, blanch sweet potatoes for 5 to 7 minutes until nearly tender. Drain and rinse in a colander under cold running water. Drain well and set aside. Fit the SaladShooter with the shredding cone; shred pecans into a bowl. Add 1/2 cup of the brown sugar, cinnamon, melted butter and stir until mixed. Arrange sliced sweet potatoes in a buttered 11/2-quart shallow casserole. Combine the remaining ¼ cup brown sugar with orange juice, rum, ginger, salt and pepper in a bowl. Whisk smooth and pour over sweet potatoes. Sprinkle the pecan mixture evenly over top. Bake 40 to 45 minutes until juices are bubbling hot.

THESE THREE WINNERS, selected by the Photography Information Council (PIC) as the best how-to photography books of the season, are outstanding examples of well-illustrated and well-written books with tips and techniques on how amateurs can take professional-quality photographs.

Award-Winning Photography Books Make Great Holiday Gifts

If you're looking for a great gift for the photographer in your family, the Photography Information Council (PIC) just made your life easier. Each year, PIC selects the best "how-to" photography books of the season to help consumers take the guesswork out of choosing one. This year's winning titles, filled with tips and techniques to help amateur photographers take professional-quality pictures, include:

• "Beyond the Basics — Innovative Techniques for Outdoor/Nature Photography," by George Lepp, is an outstanding example of a well-illustrated and well-written work. Lepp shows readers how they can, with a little extra effort, go beyond the basics of photography and turn snapshots into great shots. Although the title implies a how-to book for advanced amateurs, "Beyond the Basics" also includes enough basic information to make it a useful reference for all aspiring photographers. Published by Lepp & Associates, the 180-page softbound edition lists for $32.95. You can find it in select bookstores, or you can order it directly from the publisher by calling (805) 528-7385.

• Also for nature lovers and outdoor photographers, PIC recommends "Designing Wildlife Photographs," by Joe McDonald. In this book, the author reviews the fundamental principles of wildlife photography, including choosing equipment and film, determining exposure, using flash, and achieving maximum sharpness. McDonald's striking wildlife photographs make reading this book a pleasure. "Designing Wildlife Photographs," a 144-page book, is published by Amphoto and retails for $24.95.

• The Sierra Club, a well-known environmental organization, has published an excellent guide for landscape photographers. "The Sierra Club Guide to 35mm Landscape Photography," by Tim Fitzharris, provides a basic how-to for creating professional-quality landscape photographs. Whether you are trying to capture the beauty of changing autumn leaves or documenting the majestic scenery of a national park, this book will prove invaluable. The 112-page softbound edition lists for $18.

PIC also offers a free how-to brochure perfect for snapshot shooters. "365 Days to Take Great Photos" is a 16-page full-color booklet filled with tips for taking better "everyday" photos. The brochure makes a great stocking stuffer, or wrapped with a roll of film or single-use camera, it's an ideal gift for just about anyone on your list. For your copy, send $1 (for postage and handling) to Photo Information Council, P.O. Box 1895, West Caldwell, NJ 07007-1985.

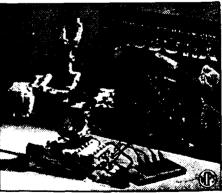

Gifts That Are Sure to Please

Everyone knows college students who constantly complain about never having enough money. This Christmas, try stuffing their stockings with fun, helpful items that, after their book and credit-card bills have come in, they may not be able to buy themselves.

• Folding umbrella — fits easily into knapsacks and book bags.

- Walkman* personal stereo perfect for listening to music when roommates are studying.
- Pocket calculator a good aid for checking math homework.
- Electric razor complete with extra batteries for quick, easy shaving.
- Gift certificate to the local pizza place great for use during an all-night cramming session.
- Calling cards so they can call home without worrying about the telephone bills.

Toy With the Future

For engineering young minds and enterprising space fanatics ages 7 and older, Robotix combines the principles of problem-solving and electronics for inventing, building, motorizing and controlling spaceage creations. From Learning Curve Toys, the suggested retail prices range from $39.99 to $99.99. Call 1-800-704-TOYS for the retailer nearest you.

Sculptor Frederick Hart Celebrates New Age With Moving Artwork

Sculptor Frederick Hart felt that the close of one millennium, comprising 1,000 years, along with the dawn of another, called for a very special sculpture — one that would merge the past with the future. The result of Hart's quest is "The Cross of the Millennium."

Considered to be one of America's leading sculptors, Hart is known in particular for the diversity and depth of his work. He has been chosen for such commissions as "The Creation Sculptures" at the National Cathedral in Washington and one of America's most recognizable, the bronze "Three Soldiers," facing the "wall" at the Vietnam Memorial in Washington.

For his millennium sculpture, Hart searched for a subject that would have both historical and spiritual significance and decided upon the birth of Christ and the image of the cross. Yet, he maintains "the millennium is not only a celebration of the birth of Christ, but also of civilization. The cross presents the opportunity to reflect on the many ways mankind is evolving and unfolding in this universe."

Hart insists "the concerns of art must be rehumanized, must explore the domains of existence and capture the deep resonances of our commonality. In every sense, art must again participate in life."

In accordance with this tenet, Hart is now making available through Chicago's Merrill Chase Galleries the limited-edition sculpture, "The Cross of the Millennium." With this sculpture, Hart hopes many will be able to experience his contemporary reinterpretation of an abiding symbol.

Within a single sculpture, Hart has captured the life, death and resurrection of Christ — three events traditionally seen as separate moments in time.

At the front of the cross is the Star of Bethlehem, a symbol of Christ's birth. Set within is the figure of Christ upon the cross, and when the piece is turned, Christ appears to rise from the cross.

The sculpture has a grace and clarity of form that can be attributed to the medium Hart has chosen, clear acrylic lucite, which he considers "sculpting with light." A pioneer in the use of modern materials in sculpture, Hart has patented his techniques of working with lucite.

"The Cross of the Millennium" is not the first cross Hart has sculpted. In 1979, he was commissioned to sculpt the processional cross carried by Pope John Paul II when the pontiff presided over a mass on the mall in Washington.

The cost for the sculpture is $2,495. Encased in a custom-designed presentation box, it includes a certificate of authenticity hand-signed by Hart, an illuminated display base, and the book, "Frederick Hart, Sculptor," a tribute to the life and work of the artist.

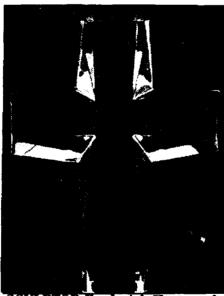

Art historians and noted artists like J. Carter Brown and Tom Wolfe offer essays and commentaries in the book, a complete catalog of Hart's statues and private sculptures and private sculptures.

Also included is the video documentary, "Frederick Hart: Past, Present, Future," which contains an interview with Hart as he personally explores the significant artistic influences on his life. The documentary also features historical footage of "The Creation Sculptures" at Washington National Cathedral and the Vietnam Veterans Memorial statue, "Three Soldiers," as well as a catalog of Hart's current sculptures in clear acrylic resin and bronze.

Hart has called the cross "a spiritual, rather than a religious, work of art. It invites a transcendental response and provides an opportunity for reflection."

Further information about "The Cross of the Millennium" can be obtained by calling Merrill Chase Galleries at 1-800-245-2783. HL950836

Give Your Family a Holiday Gift to Share

Of all Christmas presents, perhaps the most beloved is a living gift, like an aquarium filled with tropical fish. Colorful, varied and sure to be enjoyed by the lucky recipient, it's also easy to maintain and adds a unique decorative touch to any family room, living room or den.

In fact, a recent study by researchers at the University of Pennsylvania concluded that an aquarium is even a benefit in relieving stress.

Bestowing a home aquarium upon a friend, relative or your own children has many positive benefits. Throughout the United States, 10 million aquariums are being enjoyed in homes, offices, restaurants and hotels.

In order to select the best aquarium for your money, one that's filled with colorful tropical fish and is easy to maintain, it's a good idea to do a little investigating.

First, you will want to locate a good dealer in your area. If you have a friend who has an aquarium, ask for a reference; otherwise, the phone book lists most tropical-fish retailers.

It is advisable to purchase a book that provides complete instructions on setting up and maintaining an aquarium.

One basic rule to follow, however, is to buy the largest aquarium possible, since the greater the water environment, the less chance of water problems.

If you receive an aquarium as a gift, you must assume all the responsibilities for maintenance.

DECIDING PLACEMENT

When determining where to put your new aquarium, you should consider several factors. You will not want to put it in direct sunlight, since this will cause algae to grow on the glass and plastic accessories.

You also will not want to put it on your best carpeting, since it is possible for some water to splash on the floor during water changes. And, you also should be sure to put your aquarium on a firm stand, since water is heavy.

After you have decided on the aquarium, your first accessory will be a tightly fitting canopy cover equipped with a fluorescent fixture. Fluorescent fixtures throw off a cool light and will not cause fluctuations in the water temperature.

While on the subject of water temperature, tropical fish require an environment maintained at around 75 F (250 C). You will, therefore, need a good heater and an aquarium thermometer.

A recent development in this technology is the liquid crystal digital thermometer, which affixes to the outside of the aquarium, yet measures most accurately the water temperature.

You also will need a quality filter. Your dealer can give you proper advice, since there are several types of filters and your needs will vary with the size of your aquarium. If you are going to keep a lot of fish, you also will want a separate air pump to add oxygen to the water.

MANY DECORATING OPTIONS

Decorating an aquarium is great fun. There are multicolored gravels, highly decorative backgrounds and hundreds of ornaments, as well as plastic plants so real in reproduction that it's almost impossible to distinguish them from live plants.

Most good retailers will have a complete assortment, and your selection should be based on the size of your aquarium and the amount of money you decide to spend.

Once you have set up your aquarium, you should add a chlorine neutralizer to the water and only a few fish initially. These few fish will help develop the biological conditions necessary to maintain a fully stocked aquarium.

After three to four weeks, assuming everything is functioning properly, you then can go ahead and add the rest of your fish.

Aquarium maintenance is a lot simpler than people think. Every two weeks, a partial water change (not greater than 20 percent), by siphoning the water from the bottom of the aquarium, is all that is required.

A device called the Hydro-Clean allows an efficient siphoning by separating the debris in the gravel and removing it, with the water, from the aquarium. On a monthly basis, your filter will require minimal maintenance. That's all there is.

Following this simple routine, chances of fish disease or any other aquarium problems are remote. In fact, one of the biggest problems people have is spending too much time maintaining their aquariums.

On a daily basis, of course, fish, should be fed; a good-quality flake food will provide a complete diet for almost all fish.

Movies From the Stars: Satellite Television

You've seen them in backvards across rural and suburban America places where cable TV hasn't quite reached. In fact, it's hard to miss them — they may take up half the yard. They are satellite dishes, and the good news is that they're getting smaller.

The new, small-dish satellite TV systems are smaller and cheaper than the larger dishes, which usually measure from 6 feet to 10 feet in diameter and cost more than $2,000.

Small-dish satellite systems were introduced into the United States about a year ago and are now in more than 600,000 homes across the country. So far, there are two small-dish systems available: the RCA Digital Satellite System and the Primestar system.

RCA's dish measures 18 inches in diameter, and Primestar's is 39 inches - each quite an improvement from the large models that can make properties look like NASA outposts.

Basically, the larger dishes rotate to glean programs from 24 different satellites, while the small dishes don't rotate and only aim at one or two satellites that provide packages of up to 150 channels.

The Primestar system is rented for roughly $8 per month, and there is an installation cost of about $300. The RCA system, which is purchased, costs from $700 to $900, plus an additional fee for installation.

There are a few advantages for using the small-dish systems over cable television, the primary being that your locale doesn't even offer cable, you have the opportunity to buy more channels than cable, sound and picture quality are better, there are "audio-only" music channels, special options like Sunday-afternoon NFL packages are offered, and movie programming may be staggered on two channels so you could choose to watch the same movie at 5 p.m. or 5:30 p.m.

The cost of receiving programs for small-dish systems is about the same as the rates for cable TV, and the rates may vary by region. A small-dish system offers different packages of channels, and in some cases, you need to buy channels from a programming provider, like USSB or DirecTV each seeming to have advantages.

Not all locations are feasible for satellite hookup, and some localities even prohibit dishes. While there can be some glitches in reception, they are outweighed by the benefits of this new entertainment system.

A Tea Punch To Spice Up The Holidays

-Looking for a fresh idea for holiday entertaining? Why not try a new twist to an old holiday favoritepunch. Served with a tempting selection of pastries and cookies, punch makes an elegant centerpiece for any special occasion.

Pear Crisp Is A Quick, Light Treat

By Maggie André

-It's all hearty holiday foods this time of year, and adults aren't the only ones subjected to a tempting barrage of overly sweet, highly caloric festive fare. The trick-or-treat bags are barely empty, when along come the rest of the holidays in an endless procession. Even kids can reach a saturation point for the sweet goodies, particularly if parents have been successful in establishing healthy food choices.

Pear Crisp is a wonderfully homey and old-fashioned dish. Try PearBear's Holiday Crisp. It's lighter, not too sweet, and spiffed up with red maraschino cherries to keep the holiday spirit alive. Serve it hot or chilled, for breakfast, a snack or dessert. This quick-to-fix recipe is one to cherish beyond the current season, clear around the calendar to the Fourth of July family picnic.

PearBear's Holiday Crisp (Makes 6 servings.)

4 cups sliced USA pears, pared if desired

I tsp. vanilla

1/2 cup halved maraschino cherries

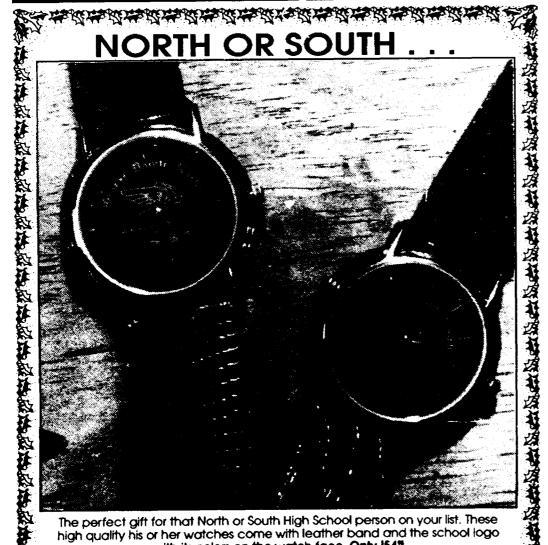

1½ cups granola cereal

3 Tbsp. butter or margarine, softened

Place pears in buttered 8" square baking pan. Sprinkle with vanilla and cherries. Combine granola and butter and sprinkle over pears. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes or until topping is lightly browned and pears are tender. Serve with ice cream.

Christmas and Collector's Plates: A 100-Year-Old Tradition

Collector's plates have been a part of the Christmas season for 100 years, ever since 1895 when Harald Bing of Bing & Grøndahl in Denmark chose to limit production of his firm's annual holiday plate. His unprecedented decision created the world's first collector's plate, "Behind the Frozen Window."

Bing's innovation launched a new tradition that has continued for the past century: the production of limitededition collector's plates specifically for the holidays. Since then, however, Christmas plates have changed in ways that were inconceivable in 1895, evolving to reflect an array of seasonal themes, some of which are enhanced by modern features like lights and music.

Due to technical limitations, the first Christmas plates were all blue and white porcelain. In addition to Bing & Grøndahl — whose original Christmas series continues uninterrupted to this day — other firms, like Royal Copenhagen and Rosenthal, also began producing blue-and-whites.

Eventually, advances in technology made full-color plate production possible, and by the 1970s, Christmas issues started to have

Today, Christmas plates are as varied as other segments of the plate market. There are plates featuring the many faces of Santa Claus, as well as those bearing the likenesses of more contemporary characters, like Mickey Mouse. There's even been a plate that showed Elvis Presley celebrating the holiday.

Family gatherings are emphasized in nostalgic scenes by artists like Thomas Kinkade, Sandra Kuck, Norman Rockwell and Stewart Sherwood, while the spiritual aspect of the holiday is highlighted in series depicting angels or the nativity.

Many of these themes also have been explored in sculptural plates, with enhancements like illumination and music debuting during the 1990s.

For more information about the latest Christmas issues, contact The Bradford Exchange, 9333 Milwaukee Ave., Niles, IL 60714; 1-800-323-5577. To request a free booklet on how to decorate with limited-edition collector's plates, write to "Beautiful Plates," The Bradford Exchange, P.O. Box 5094, Des Plaines, IL 60019-9523. Allow six to eight weeks for delivery.

CONTEMPORARY LIMITED-EDITION Christmas plates feature artwork highlighting many different aspects of the season. Two of this year's issues are (left) "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," a sculptural, musical plate that plays the carol of the same name, and "Dear Santa," a romantic depiction of a young girl writing a letter to St. Nick. It's Perfect Timing for the Holidays

Once again, the holidays are here. It's the season of shopping and socializing. And, this season, socializing has an air of relaxed festivity about it. While dressing up is important, making the right fashion statement is also criti-

This is precisely why International Watch Company (IWC/Schaffhausen) has selected this time of year to present its beautiful Lady DaVinci chronograph as the perfect accessory or the exquisite gift for that special someone. With perpetual moon-phase display, this elegant timepiece features diamond brilliants on the bezel and case-to-strap attachment for a beautiful, yet understated, appeal.

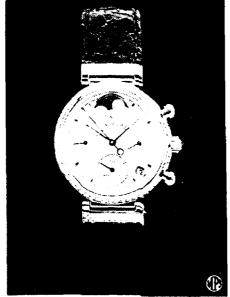

If you're buying a timepiece as a gift for a special loved one, International Watch Company would like to offer the following helpful hints:

• Make sure the strap color and style of the watch suit the person for whom it is meant.

Buy from a reputable, authorized dealer.

• Be sure you understand how the watch functions, so you can explain it to your loved one with care and ease.

· Be sure to obtain and utilize the manufacturer's warranty card.

THIS ELEGANT holiday season, International Watch Company (IWC/Schaffhausen) presents the Lady DaVinci chronograph with perpetual moon-phase display and an entire bezel and attachment of diamond brilliants. It's the perfect gift and an exquisite accessory.

Enjoy the holidays!

Celebrate a White Christmas In New Zealand — on the Beach

Looking for a new holiday vacation spot? Look no further. New Zealand offers holiday travelers a new version of a "white Christmas."

"New Zealanders spend their white Christmas holiday not in the snow, but on the sandy white beaches," says Kathy Ward, regional vice president—the Americas for the New Zealand Tourism Board. Togs (swimsuits) in tow, visitors can join in with New Zealanders as they picnic on the beach on Christmas Day, followed by a traditional dinner at home.

Located in a pristine corner of the South Pacific, the reversal of seasons positions New Zealand to have a high-70- to mid-80-degree climate that offers an outstanding variety of warm-weather activities.

Trekking — Take a five-day trek along the northwest coast of Tasman Bay, which offers magnificent views of granite arches formed by sea erosion, a beach, coves and coastal scrublands. Or, take a four-day walk that crosses the beautiful Mackinnon Pass and meanders through grassy valleys and forested hills before entering the Arthur Valley rain forest.

Bungee jumping — Just outside of Queenstown, known as the world capital of bungee jumping, you can jump from the Kawaru suspension bridge, a 143-foot plunge. Or, fly by helicopter to Skipper's Canyon bridge, and take in the 230-foot free fall.

River jet boating — Another New Zealand invention is the river jet boat. Just 10 minutes from Queenstown is the most famous jet-boat ride in the country, which brings you breathless just inches from rugged canyon walls.

Scuba diving — Scuba off the shore of the Goat Island Marine Reserve, and step into some of the best beach diving in the world.

Sailing — Sailing is one of New Zealand's premier sports. Explore the Bay of Islands on the North Island and the rugged coastline of the South Island for a South Pacific adventure.

Cave tubing — Put on a wet suit and caver's helmet, and float through the subterranean Waitomo Caves and enjoy the surreal light show performed by its thousands of glowworms on its limestone walls and ceiling.

> Wine tasting — Some of the best wines in the world are found in New Zealand. Within the seven wine regions, you'll find local wine-and-food festivals offering up their viticultural and culinary bounty.

Daily flights to Auckland, New Zealand, are available on Air New Zealand, Qantas Airways and United. Prices per round-trip ticket from Los Angeles start from $1,300, and travel time for a nonstop flight is approximately 12 hours.

From its tranquil, subtropical location in the South Pacific, New Zealand offers travelers a simply remarkable vacation experience. A haven for the senses, an oasis of rejuvenation and relaxation amid unspoiled natural beauty, New Zealand is a destination of friendly people who look forward to welcoming you. Celebrate the New Millennium in Giant Style

Thinking ahead to the year 2000? Many of the nation's best restaurants are booked already for the New Year's celebration that will ring in the passing of the millennium. Wherever you decide to toast this once-in-a-lifetime milestone, there are still some very special bottles of champagne available for your party. With an eye on the year 2000, Champagne Louis Roederer bottled 2,000 "methuselah" bottles of its famous Cristal, the champagne of the rich and famous. (A methuselah is the equivalent of eight bottles of champagne; about three feet tall, it takes two to pour) The huge bottles are aging quietly in the winery's French cellars, waiting for the spectacular uncorking. The cost: $2,000, of course. About 700 champagne enthusiasts from around the world already have reserved a bottle. For more information, contact Roederer's American marketing office, MMD USA, at (510) 286-2000.

Dear Mrs. Claus,

Last week I wrote to Santa and sent him these pictures showing some of the great stuff they have at Bikes, Blades & Boards. I know how busy he is this time of year, so maybe you can remind him. Bikes, Blades & Boards has everything on my list, like Ice Skates, Hockey Equipment, Snowboards, equipment & clothing, Inline Skates and the coolest bikes around. They've even got the new Morrow snowboards (numero uno on my list!). And now they have Skateboards, too!

Hey, for all I know maybe you do most of the work up there and Santa gets all the credit (that's the way it is at my house). If so, you can save yourself and the elves a lot of time by stopping at Bikes, Blades & Boards before you load up the sleigh.

Always good,

Timmy

P.S.
Why not buy Santa a snow board?
It'll be a great way for him to
