Like the sign says, traffic on northbound Lakeshore between the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club and the St. Clair Shores line has been closed and funneled down to one lane each way on the southbound lanes due the sewer separation project in Grosse Pointe Shores. After work is done on the east side of Lakeshore and work begins on the west side of the road, the southbound lanes on that stretch of road will be closed and the northbound lanes will accommodate two-way traffic. This part of the project is scheduled to be completed by the end of September.

November 4, 1931 to April 12, 1986 The poem we wrote for you 10 years ago...

Today the wings of heaven have flown our mother home, And with them they have taken the greatest love we've known. They take the smile, the laugh, the face, the voice that warms our soul, They take the woman who gave us life despite the health it stole. They take the hands that soothed our tears, the guidance that gave us sight, They take the wisdom and the charm that always set things right. They take the heart that gave her pain and made her suffer so, But that same heart gave unending love and made a family grow. And now they take this wondrous woman, our strength and our foundation, Dear Constance Mary truly was God's most prized creation. And though they take her on winged flight to sit beside the Lord, They'll never take the loving memory of the mother we adored.

After 10 years we love and miss you more than ever, Mom... Bill and Leslie, Penny and Dirk, Laura and Chuck, Charlie and Stacey, Kathy and Curt Carolyn and Dave, Suzanne, your 16 grandchildren and your husband, Bill

A concern is making sure the plan doesn't infringe upon the needs of the congregation at St. James, which is surrounded on three sides by Richard property.

"The city and the school have been good neighbors," said Carol Marr, president of the board of directors at St. James. "The church in no way controls whether this goes forward, but the schools and the city have approached us and asked us what we think. Our overall reaction is we think it's a very ambitious and needed improvement to the site. But we do have some concerns about the closing of McMillan and parking."

What the congregation would have to approve is the sale of a small triangular piece of land behind the church that the Farms needs for turnaround space between the additional parking aisles, Marr said. That would require a majority vote of the St. James' general assembly. But, Marr noted, the plan could go ahead without the approval of the uestions now are being raised by Wayne County Commissioner Andrew Richner of Grosse Pointe about the way Wayne County will choose new concessionaires for available locations at Metro Airport after its huge expansion.

Metro airport concessions now in dispute

That project, now in the final planning stages, is expected to become the largest public works project in Wayne County's history, but Mike Duggan, deputy county executive, already has assured the public all of its construction work will be done under competitive bidding.

Even the original Metro Cars contract, just extended for another five years after a good deal of controversy, was awarded under bidding, with the winner offering the highest payment to Wayne County, according to Duggan.

Now, however, Richner points out that the county needs "competition" for the increased number of concessionaires to be located at the airport after its expan-

Duggan says, however, that bids already are required in the case of concessionaires, but that contracts are awarded on an exclusive basis, as for the news and gifts contract held by the Paradies firm.

Richner wants to provide protection for consumers through competition among retailers so buyers are assured of the lowest costs and the greatest choice in purchases at the airport.

Concessionaires produce considerable revenue for the county, but Richner prefers more competition among concessionaires, just as he did in the bus service

The Grosse Pointe commissioner earlier had expressed concern after the county commission awarded a five-year extension without competitive bidding to the Metro Cars firm, which will pay the county $99,000 a year in concession fees.

That figure is hundreds of thousands less than Michael Wyesocki, president of MPG Transport of Livonia, had told the commission he would have paid if the contract had been opened to competitive bidding.

The difference in views apparently is accounted for by the fact that the county does require competitive bidding on all purchases and contracts of $5,000 or more, as Duggan says, but does not require bidding on renewals when the original contracts calls for extension.

Metro Cars won the contract renewal despite a 1995 audit that found that Metro Cars had failed to pay more than $43,000 in concession fees and, for two years did not tell the airport it had added 19 cars to its fleet, shorting the county another $72,667 in fees.

However, airport officials in January 1995 worked out a plan under which Metro Cars was required to pay the $43,000 but only $50,000 of the $72,667.

Duggan has contended that the audit was "seriously flawed," telling the Detroit Free Press that the auditor had failed to "learn the company has receipts for payments the report said were not

It seems to us that a public hearing might have provided better proof if such a mistake had been made. It also could have dispelled much of the criticism the earlier reports had stirred up.

While Metro Cars chairman Cullan Meathe defended the renewal af his bus contract as "not uncommon," a statement that apparently is true, he also contributed $2,125 to McNamara's re-election campaign committee in 1995.

Such a contribution apparently is also "not uncommon" for those doing business with Wayne County.

A view from the sidelines

Even media should vote

ost newspeople prefer not to identify themselves with a major political party and tend to say that they are independent in politics when asked a direct question about their views.

But the executive editor of the Washington Post, Leonard Downie Jr., does not vote at all, which apparently makes him unique. For that reason, Jay Rosen, writing in The Nation, offered Downie's 1992 explanation for his reasoning on the subject:

'As a final decision-maker on news coverage in The Post, I refuse to decide, even privately, which candidate would be the best president or member of the city council, or what position I should take on an issue like abortion or setting taxes. I want my mind to remain open to all sides and possibilities.'

But Rosen also quotes Paul Taylor, a former political reporter for the Washington Post, about how "involved" he and his colleagues are:

"We are carriers as well as chroniclers of the prevailing disenchantment with public life. The more cynical the news reporters and news consumers have demagogic and risk-averse the newsmakers have become.

"And so our cynicism begets their fakery, and their fakery our cynicism and so

That comment inspires Rosen to request that journalists "relinquish their excess cynicism" and become 'carriers as well as chroniclers' of democracy's eventu-

A boon for private schools?

Only one charter school apparently was struck down by the recent Michigan Court of Appeals 2-1 ruling, but the charter school concept is still under strong ttack from defenders of the public s system.

IE GROSSE POINTE NEWS.

The school affected was the Noah Webster Academy, a controversial, homeschooling network, while the other 44 charter schools were authorized under a revised law and will continue to get charter funding.

The 44 were the ones at which Rep. Maxine Berman, a Democratic state representative from Southfield, was taking aim in a recent Michigan Monthly article, in which she wrote that it's doubtful if "they're all (meaning the charter schools) offering a real option to public schools."

In fact, the implication of her article is that the charter school movement has been a great inducement to private school operators to seek charter school approval and thus collect the $5,500 per pupil a year the state grants to them.

And, she writes, the best part is that "you (the owner of a private school) can continue doing exactly what you want to do with your school," adding, "After all, it is still your school.'

While "private schools converting to charters now have to take all comers." she went on, "current students and their siblings get first choice. And, unlike traditional public schools, charters can limit enrollment to capacity."

She pointed out the Legislature also "released all public schools from the requirement of following a core curriculum, and we dropped the demand that charter schools use the same standardized test as anyone else.'

And then she adds: "How can taxpayers possibly know if they're getting their money's worth if there's no common measurement?" She comments that she wishes the Legislature had spent its time and money advancing a high-quality public school agenda for every Michigan child because "even if charter schools are wildly successful, they will probably serve fewer than 10 percent of our children.

"And we have offered little in the way of reform to the other 90 percent," she went on. For example, promoting public magnet schools would have been far cheaper and served far more students."

The entire article is well worth reading, especially by parents, in our view.

We are concerned, however, that with state officials pushing the expansion of the charter-school movement, not enough close attention will be paid to the charter schools' teaching records because of a lack of monitoring the public was assured the schools would get when they were Whitewater report ignored?

eports of a Whitewater investigation by a respected San Francisco law firm that cleared the Clintons had failed to get much attention until columnist Anthony Lewis of the New York Times called them to public awareness last week.

Lewis emphasized that the investigation by the law firm of Pillsbury Madison & Sutro was ordered by the Resolution Trust Corporation, the government agency for failed savings and loans.

Several volumes of findings were published in 1995, the last on Dec. 28, with a further 164-page supplemental report published on Feb. 25 after the investigation had resumed following the discovery of billing records in the White House.

Lewis, a veteran New York Times columnist and reporter, concludes that "the reports examine charges against President and Mrs. Clinton in exhaustive detail - and find one charge after another to be without substance.

But, he writes, "It is a different world from the conspiracy theories and smears Sen. Alfonse D'Amato and his Whitewater committee hearings. Which is no doubt why Republicans have done their best to see that the Pillsbury reports get no attention."

In fact, Lewis says flatly that although the reports were transmitted to the committee, they have not been published in the usual pamphlet form. The last, of Feb. 25, has not been released by the D'Amato committee at all but Lewis says "was made available (to him) by a House Democrat, Henry Gonzalez."

As Lewis concludes, "It is time for the press to apply to the Whitewater charges the journalistic principles of skepticism and fairness" by looking at the findings of the Pillsbury investigation.

Or is the Washington press corps simply captivated by the possibility of winning fame and fortune by helping "bring down" another U.S. president?

Health of triplets in jeopardy?

e doubt Gov. John Engler is breaking any campaign-finance law by proposing that $25,000 contributors to the state Republican Party would be awarded a private visit with the Engler family in their summer Mackinac Island residence. But we think a different criticism can be made of the proposed exposure of the Engler triplets to a number of strangers, even if it would be in their own home.

It means that the children's health could be jeopardized by contributors who unknowingly could be getting a cold, or coming down with a more serious illness, either of which could be contagious.

Since it is unlikely that the GOP would require its big contributors to pass a medical test before being granted a visit with the youngsters, the governor could protect the health of his little trio by excluding them from the event.

Chilling baseball memories

As I write this, the temperature's hovering in the 30s, snow the size of corn flakes is coming down and the freeways are slick, with back-ups from spin-outs snarling traffic.

No, it's not January. It's nearly mid-April, the week of the Detroit Tigers' opening day. Only in Michigan.

We've spent some of our most Tiger Stadium. In 1980, Sparky Anderson's first full for season tickets. We went to 81 ball games that year, never missing a one.

We found good ones: right behind first base in the first row of the reserved section. They were less expensive and also kept us close to the action and out of the rain. They served quite well, thank you.

Cornerstone says thanks

To the Editor: Would you please print this letter so that I can thank all the Grosse Pointers who helped me help the Cornerstone Schools?

Late last fall I handdelivered a letter to 502 houses in my neighborhood, writing about the Cornerstone Schools in Detroit and their need for supplies for the library and art rooms. Cornerstone receives no public funding, all the money raised must go to the basics - electricity and heat, texts and school room supplies, and teacher salaries.

As a volunteer at the Iroquois campus for "Partner Days," I knew, therefore, that the art teachers were working mostly with imagination and the minimal in supplies, such as pencils. paint, paper. We had no library at all until two years ago and only a few children-sized chairs.

I had nothing to lose by telling my neighbors about this and asking for help. The response was thrilling, and I am so grateful. We needed containers to hold and dispense craft items one family donated many wicker baskets; we asked for two sewing machines and got four; one family donated reams of paper and about 50 wooden picture frames — enough to take turns displaying the projects of a whole grade; several families gave paper, yarn and sewing material; amid one family's donation were several bunches of colored drawing pencils - each one sharpened and ready to use. One person called and asked if she could contribute by volunteering herself — a won-derful gift.

The schoolchildren sent such touching thank-you notes to me, I've been wanting to share those thankyous with all those considerate people who were so generous and thoughtful. Thank you, all of you.

Birds, bees and shutterbugs

It's often said in spring that "a young man's fancy turns to love." Well, springtime is one of the best times for your fancy to turn to photography. For spring is one of the most exciting times for capturing images on film.

Springtime is usually marked by changeable weather, which will reward you with impact-filled shots if you're alert. It can be raining one minute, then suddenly the sky will clear and the sun will burst through. This moment offers you excellent photographic opportunities: wet pavement, water droplets clinging to a flower, raindrops trickling down a window, or even a rainbow itself.

Be on the lookout for trees silhouetted against a receding storm cloud as emerging sunbeams highlight the branches. This is perhaps one of the most dramatic scenes you'll see through the viewfinder.

Flowers are, of course, associated with spring, but few people manage to successfully get them on film. First, get down low, on the flower's level. Concentrate your viewfinder on just a few blossoms, maybe even one, and move in close. Remember, the closer you get to your subject, the more you'll "lose" depth-of-field, and the more you may want a small aperture.

One of the most common errors in photographing flowers is a distracting background. Use a small piece of black cardboard or cloth behind the flowers and you'll your results.

As in most photography, try to shoot flowers in the early morning or late afternoon so that the cross-lighting will highlight the color and texture of the petals.

How about photographing the progression of spring? A series of pictures of a lone tree in your back yard as it gets progressively thicker and thicker with darker and darker leaves will produce an exciting picture story.

So "spring" you and your camera into action at springbe amazed at the difference in time. You'll be glad you did.

School days: Learning should be a home-school relationship

By Victor Bloom, MD Psychiatrist/Psychoanalyst Grosse Pointe Park

(This is fourth in a series of articles on parenting.)

In my previous articles, I stressed the role of parents initiating learning and rules from the earliest days. Even when the child is an infant, you can sing the alphabet song among others.

Since the child's young brain is receptive to language and song, the alphabet will be easily imprinted on the child's cerebral cortex. The alphabet is the basis of written language. Similarly, songs can be invented about counting and numbers. Games can be played about adding and subtracting, using fingers and blocks, knives and forks. Names can be given for things, along with simple spelling. Stories can be read, told and retold. The idea is to suffuse your relationship with learning and the love of learning.

Television is a serious and deleterious detraction from the kind of learning a school child must undertake. The beginning of formal learning is the book, not the television set. Some programs geared to learning on TV are fine — but not the usual mindless and endless sequence of cartoons.

Television, on the whole, should be drastically limited to an elementary school pupil. The child should learn to relate to a person, not the tube. The teacher is a parent surrogate, and whether or not the child looks to the teacher for learning depends on whether he or she looked to the parent for learning.

In order for the school experience to be optimal, the parent should take a great interest in the child's studies in school. The mother and father should ask questions and encourage the child to ask questions. Nothing squelches a child's natural curiosity and love of learning more than to discourage questions. How many times have you heard, "That is a stupid question!" or "Stop asking so many questions!"?

Children are naturally curious, and ask you for answers. They can be given directly, or sometimes even better yet, the parent will say, "Let's look it up in a book." "I know a book that might have the answer." And the book may be a dictionary, an encyclopedia or, yes, even a thesaurus, where the child can learn to expand his or her vocabulary and learn spelling, synonyms and anto-

I hope the parent will not be embarrassed to not know the answer, but rather have the assurance that the answer can be found.

More and more I hear nowadays that the child does not want to do homework. This is most likely a derivative of the parent not wanting the child to do homework, and the latter may come from the parent's ongoing rebellious attitude from childhood or adolescence. School should not be just 9 to 3. There is a time for recess and a time for play, and a time for quiet study.

Children should be encouraged to read books, and to borrow books from the library. The librarian can often be of great help to recommend ageappropriate books, and more advanced books for a precocious child.

It is good to instill in the is fun to explore the many oc- tion with calm determinacupations that would interest tion a child. "A butcher, a baker, tor, a lawyer, an engineer, a policeman, a fireman, an ecologist, a supermarket checker, a hamburger flipper, a bus driver, a factory worker, a carpenter, electrician or plumber.

Don't be afraid to give the whole range of possibilities, and explain what the work might be like. And you can also be far-out, and even mention a rocket scientist or astronaut. Give a child the whole range of possibilities, and let him or her know that we are just scratching the surface of amazing possibilities and potentialities.

Convey the concept that learning and creativity can be fun, answering questions, completing assignments and fulfilling potential can be fun. But realizing potential also involves some hard work and perseverance, some delayed gratification and frustration. The parent is the role-model for solving problems, persevering at a child a vision of the future. It task, and handling frustra-

Each child has a unique a candlestick maker," a doc- talent, but this talent may not be uncovered without exploring all the many possibilities. School consists of reading, writing and 'rithmetic, but it also consists of history and geography, music and art and sports. The parent is the one to give the proper balance between work and recreation.

The job of childhood is schoolwork, and recreation should not overshadow or take precedence over school. As they say, "Business before pleasure," "the early bird catches the worm," "early to bed and early to rise, makes a person healthy, wealthy and wise."

There is much wisdom in these old teachings. Education and learning are traditions that go back to the ancient Hebrews and Greeks. School can be supplemented by stories of Greek mythology, the classic children's stories and fairy tales. Children need to feel swept up in a continuum of culture, partake in the powerful mythology within the tapestry of our Western civilization, which has been a Judeo-Christian culture, but now with a wider spectrum that includes some knowledge of African and Asian culture, along with a keen awareness that there are other languages and sub-

The home should supplement and complement what goes on at school, and parents should take an active part in curriculum and parent-teacher discussions.

Air bags can hurt children feature on vehicles - have deployed in more than 650,000 crashes and reduced driver deaths in frontal crashes by about 20 percent nationally.

But while air bags have saved 1,000 lives since 1987, they infrequently cause serious injury. Of particular concern are reports of 15 infant and child fatalities caused by air bags, AAA Michigan reports.

In 11 of the crashes, the children were not wearing safety belts, or were not wearing them properly. In four other crashes, infants riding in the front seat in rear-facing child seats were killed when the air bag deployed.

"Parents need to be aware that the force of an air bag deploying into a child who is unbelted, improperly belted or in a rear-facing infant seat can cause serious head injuries - even in frontal crashes at less than 15 m.p.h.,' said Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan community safety services manager.

To avoid air bag injuries, Basch recommends the following guidelines for child passengers:

· The rear seat is the safest place for children of any age to ride.

• An infant in a rear-facing child seat must ride in the back seat if the vehicle has a passenger-side air bag.

· Be sure that everyone in the front seat is properly buckled up and seated as far back from the air bags as is reasonably possible.

· Make sure that all young children are properly secured in a child safety seat and older children by a lap/shoulder belt.

Know how to properly place your child seat in the vehicle," Basch added. "Read the owner's manual for the vehicle and the instructions for your child safety seat educate yourself to protect your children from potential injury.

Federal safety regulations require air bags to be installed in the driver and passenger seat positions of all passenger vehicles and trucks, beginning in 1 999 In all states except New Hampshire, use of safety belts with or without air bags is mandatory, since air bags are considered a supplemental restraint system.

But what about the lesser Eclipses, without the turbo engine and the all-wheel drive? They can't match the mance coupe or roadster.

GSX in performance, but they do very well and that's an almost $10,000 price difference. For a lot less, you get the same beautiful styling, same excellent handling and the same high level of comfort.

The GSX is powered by a Mitsubishi-built 210-hp turbocharged and intercooled engine, while the GS and price leader RS have a 140-hp version of the Chrysler dual-overhead-cam 16-valve four which powers the Neon Sport coupe.

Since it was introduced in 1990, the Eclipse has been providing high style and performance at bargain prices. The 1996 model is largely unchanged from last year's redesign.

With all-wheel drive, good looks, and exceptional performance, the GSX is hard to beat at $25,160. The GS and GS-T must duel with competitors that offer the same level of refinement and power, often at lower prices.

Among changes Mitsubishi made for 1996 are revised audio system and a "panic" button on optional remote keyless entry systems. Three new exterior colors are available, and buyers of the base level RS model can opt for a spoiler this year.

The Eclipse is essentially the same car as the Eagle Talon (also made by Mitsubishi at its plant in Normal, Ill.) but the Eclipse has a neater tail treatment and its roof is the same color as the rest of the car, unlike the Talon's all-black roof.

Dual airbags are standard on the Eclipse, but antilock brakes are optional. The interior is pleasant, with an easyto-read dashboard that sweeps in front of the driver and between the seats, putting all controls in easy reach.

The Galant, Mitsubishi's entry in the mid-size family sedan segment of the market, is a good value, although it is up against very strong rivals, particularly the Honda Accord and the Ford Contour. It has very contemporary and middle-of-the-road styling on the exterior, legible gauges, easy to find and use controls, and attractive seat fabrics inside.

The Galant GS model is powered by a 160-hp twin-cam version of Mitsubishi's dualbalance-shaft 2.4-liter fourcylinder engine.

For 1996, Mitsubishi added a tan interior trim color and two-tone color schemes. The trunk is roomy with plastic cubbyholes for storing loose items, just like a BMW. But the Galant S doesn't have folding rear seats like the BMW. If you buy the Galant S, order the optional Preferred

Equipment Package for the S, and you'll get full trunk trim, along with several other trim upgrades and convenience

For 1996, Mitsubishi tries to make the Galant more competitive by adding a panic button to its remote keyless entry system, a timer to its rear window defrosters and optional anti-lock brakes across the

was a couple of years before the United States developed machines as good or better. The Japanese corporate giant built its first car in 1917. That first Mitsubishi Model A was highly regarded among automotive observers, but the Japanese market was dominated by European and American cars then and Japan did not have a thriving export operation. Mitsubishi was one of the earliest Japanese makers to sell its cars in the United States back in the '60s, but most buyers did not know they were Mitsubishis. They were, under a deal with Chrysler Corp., badged as Dodge and Plymouth Colts.

When Mitsubishi decided it wanted to bring in some of its larger cars, such as the segment, ranging in base price from $15,340 for the Galant S five-speed to $23,280 for the LS automatic. The Eclipse in its turbocharged, all-wheel-drive GSX incarnation with its eyegrabbing styling and very competitive price is a definite short list contender for anyone

3 decades of Medicare — JFK would be proud

By Ron Pollack

On a cold morning in late October 1960, the young Sen. John F. Kennedy made one of his final campaign stops in Philadelphia. The presidential election against Richard Nixon was only seven days away, and Kennedy was zeroing in on a message of hope, security, and progress for older Americans. What separated

Kennedy from his opponent, JFK said, was a vision of health security for America's older citizens

"I believe in an America where one's latest are the good years - years of security and dignity; where medical care for the aged is provided out of Social Security," Kennedy told a cheering crowd in Philadelphia's Convention Center.

Tragically, Kennedy did not live to see his vision realized. But his idea prevailed: Medicare was passed by Congress and signed into law just 20 months after his assassination. And, because of JFK's vision, two generations of older Americans have had the health care they deserve. For 30 years, Medicare has been a well-deserved birthday present - after a productive lifetime of hard work - on your 65th birthday.

Not every politician shared President Kennedy's firm belief in providing health care for older Americans. In fact, many politicians were dead set against creating Medicare. The opponents saw Medicare as a threat to the insurance companies - even though the insurance companies have always discriminated against the elderly and often refused to insure them. Nonetheless, Medicare's opponents chose to stand up for the insurance companies while Medicare's supporters were standing up for America's seniors.

A Hollywood actor named Ronald Reagan, for instance, denounced the idea of Medicare as "socialized medicine." Sen. Carl Curtis of Nebraska said that Medicare would be "a great disappointment." He was wrong. Since Medicare was signed into law, more than 60 million older Americans have benefited from JFK's idea. They have had the peace of mind of knowing that if a health crisis strikes, they will get the care they need without becoming a burden on their children.

Today, nearly all Americans 65 and over - about 33 million of them — are protected by Medicare. That's a big change from what it used to be like. Only half of our seniors had hospital insurance before Medicare; the other half lived in terror of what would happen when they got sick.

Medicare has done more than ease that fear. Nearly three years have been added to the life expectancy of 65year-old Americans since 1965. The risk of death from heart disease and stroke has declined dramatically in the last three decades. Medicare's support for home and community based care — still not strong enough — did not exist at all 30 years ago, in the last three decades, Medicare has helped many of our grandmothers and grandfathers get care in their homes.

But Medicare has been under constant assault from politicians during its 30-year history. Some politicians have tried to kill Medicare outright; others have sought to weaken it so that it "withers on the

What is astonishing about these constant attacks is the fact that Medicare doesn't just save lives and make life better for older Americans and their families, Medicare does all this cheaper than private health insurance. The fact is that Medicare gives 98 cents of health care for every dollar it takes in - spending only 2 cents on administration and red tape. Private insurance companies spend much more on administrative red tape sometimes up to 40 cents of every dollar they take in.

But Medicare's survival, and our hope for strengthening its benefits, rest on the American people. If we speak up for Medicare — and make sure the politicians hear us -JFK's dream will live on.

Ron Pollack is executive director of Families USA, the national health care consumer Lynett listed a few common symptoms that might indicate whether an older person needs some added assistance.

 Inadequate meals and nutrition. Older individuals may lose interest in preparing well-balanced, nutritious meals - especially if they live alone.

• Unopened or piled-up bills. Failing eyesight, recurring memory lapses, or hampered writing abilities are some of the reasons bills go unpaid. Many times older people have difficulty writing legibly or they are confused by particular billing procedures

 Recurring memory lapses. Many older individuals can remember events that took place 30 years ago with more clarity than what they did yesterday. Memory lapses are not uncommon, but if they interfere with taking medzations properly or remembering to turn off the stove, daily assistance may be needed.

• Frequent falls. If a parent seems to be falling a great deal, make sure he or she has a complete physical examination. Many illness-es, as well as the side effects of some medicines, may be causing dizziness or lack of balance. A doctor may recommend using a cane or walker, or suggest personal assistance in the home as an appropriate solution.

· Lack of interest or feeling down. Although feeling depressed at times is a normal occurrence, continua-tion of this condition could be symptomatic of more serious health problems and the family doctor should be consulted. In most cases, however, simply encouraging a parent to get involved in outside activities may help. Or if they are homebound, obtain a companion service for them. These steps may help relieve their loneliness and rejuvenate their enjoyment of life.

· Unsafe driving. With age comes a natural slowing of the reflexes and a decline in eyesight which could hamper an older person's driving ability. If a parent is no longer able to drive safely, discuss the issue openly with him or her, and let the parent know that transportation needs can be met in other ways.

EXPANDING AWARENESS

Both car manufacturers and the carbuying public know a good thing when they see it. All passenger cars manufactured after September 1, 1997 will be required to come equipped with air bags for both the driver and frontseat passengers; however, most carmanufacturers are not waiting. Nearly all are now installing driver-side air bags, in many cases) in all new cars, sports utility vehicles, and light trucks. Why the rush? Air bags save lives. According to the National Center for Statistics and Analysis, air bags have saved more than 911 lives in this country since 1987, and 374 in the last year alone. The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety reports that there are 23% fewer deaths than expected among drivers involved in head-on and front-angle crashes of cars equipped with air bags. And, these numbers do not even address the thousands who are saved from serious and deforming injury. EXPANDING AWARENESS

Village Food Market celebrates 40 years in Grosse Pointe

By Chip Chapman Staff Writer

Forty years can bring a lot of changes to a business and a community. But although Village Food Market has expanded twice during that time, some things remained the same.

"We know what our customers want and how to get it to them," said owner Neil Bell.

Bell and some of his employees regularly travel around the country, attending food shows and conventions and visiting other stores, all in search of new items for their patrons.

"We try to do things that will benefit our customers," Bell

That's the way it's been since 1956, when Bell's parents, Alex and Leila, bought the Highlight Market at 18330 Mack in Grosse Pointe Farms. Previously, they had owned the A & W Economy Market at "We had a chance to n Essex and Newport in Detroit.

"My father had worked for Kroger in their meat department," Bell said. "He always made money for them, but they promoted someone else ahead of him, so he decided to start his own business.'

In 1937, Alex and Leila Bell, along with another man, opened the A & W Economy Market. After six months, the third partner wanted out of the business, so the Bells bought his share of the store

Business went well enough for the Bells to open two more stores. But the two newer stores were closed due to sagging sales at one and the manager of the other being drafted to serve in World War II.

In 1942, the Bells decided to expand the A & W Economy Market. The business continued to do well, but the surrounding area began to deteriorate. In 1956, the Bells decided to move the store to Grosse Pointe Farms.

"They bought the store (Highlight Market) and gutted it," Neil Bell said. "It didn't have any freezers. They put in much from the old store as they the produce department.

Neil Bell, who has worked at ment," Bell said. Village Food Market since its beginnings, bought the store from his parents 22 years ago. Since then, the store has increased in size twice and added space in the meat, deli

"We had a chance to move into a store down the street, so we did about 10 years ago," Bell said.

Four years ago, Village Food Market expanded again, adding another 30 feet of store-

"At that time, we had the longest meat counter and produce area in town," he said.

Village Food Market has not only expanded its store space, but also the variety of choices for its customers, adding more specialty and easy-to-prepare meals.

About nine years ago, Bell added Van Karibian to his staff as director of store operations.

"He had a similar background that I had in the business," Bell said. "It's been a good marriage.'

Produce manager Maniaci has been with Village Food Market for 10 years. "He knows what's coming and what the quality of the produce is," Bell said. "No one can match us in produce," Maniaci said. Fred Wolski, who previously worked at the former Salem Square on the Hill and also at new fixtures and tried to use as Pete & Franks, also works in

"I'm proud of that depart-

Other key employees at Village Food Market are Denise Vicari in the deli department and Annie Centers, once an employee at the former Hamlin's on the Hill, who handles a variety of duties at the store, including taking home orders and helping with check out.

"We try to keep the people we hire," Bell said, explaining why many of the employees have been with the store for a long time. "We will bend to try to keep these people."

Joining Village Food Market this spring is John McDonald, former owner of Blancke Enoch market on Harper in Detroit. He is working in Village Food Market's meat department.

McDonald had worked in various capacities for 27 of Blancke Enoch's 50 years, owning it for the last 10. Three other Blancke Enoch employees are also expected to join Village Food Market later this spring.

"We will bring some of our specialties over here, such as our pork sausage, liver pate, ham loaf and Amish chicken," McDonald said. "A lot of our (Blancke Enoch) customers have indicated a willingness to come over here.'

In 40 years, Village Food Market has grown from five employees to 39. On the customer side, "we're looking at the fourth generation of people we have served," Bell said.

FREE "LIVING TRUST" SEMINAR "What You Ought to Know About Living Trusts"

(What you don't know could cost your family thousands of dollars!)

If you own a home...or you have assets worth at least $100,000...you owe it to yourself-and your family-to get the facts on living trusts. If you think you're protected with a simple Will...think again... A Will guarantees that your estate will go through probate, which means that your family may not be able to take possession of your estate for many months, or even years!

Plus, if your estate is over $600,000, your family may owe estate taxes which could amount to 37-55% of the value of your estate. This means that your family may have to sell some assets just to pay the estate taxes!

A living trust avoids all this by avoiding probate and minimizing estate taxes. Plus, a living trust will protect your estate if you become incapacitated during your lifetime by avoiding a conservatorship. This means your estate will be managed as you see fit, not as a court-appointed guardian sees fit.

To find out more about the benefits of living trusts, attend one of these free seminars...

15,000 expected to Race for the Cure April 20

By Margie Reins Smith Features Editor

Kate Sargent of the City of Grosse Pointe will participate in the Race for the Cure for the first time this year. "I'll do the run/walk," Sargent said, with a smile.

"I'm not a runner. I'm more of a walker." No matter. The Race for the Cure is more of a consciousness-raising, educational, get-together-and-win-this-waragainst-breast-cancer kind of event than a real "race."

And Sargent is more involved in the war against breast cancer than walking in just knowing, she said. For the annual Race for the Cure. She's in the front line.

The risk of breast cancer for women in the United States is one in eight.

This statistic is correct, Sargent said, but misleading. Sargent is genetic services coordinator for the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute. She is a certified genetic counselor.

"The risk is one in eight if you live to be 110," she said. "At age 40, your risk is one in 217; by age 50, it's one in 50; by age 60, one in 24; and by age 85, one in nine.

"And the risk of dying of breast cancer is less than the risk of getting it." Sargent's job is to provide education and counseling to women who have a high risk of developing breast cancer. The counseling service and related programs are still in patients by late spring or early summer.

Most of Sargent's clients will be women with higher than average risk of develop ing breast cancer, either because of their age, ethnic background, life style or is real, she said. In the last several years, researchers have proven what oncologists have suspected and people have guessed for hundreds of years -that breast cancer has a genetic link.

"The first gene associated with breast cancer was found in 1994," Sargent said.

Salmon Stakes Fishing Tournament is April 27

Stakes Fishing Tournament will begin at sun-up Saturday, April 27, at the River Crab restaurant, 1337 North River Road in St. Clair.

The 18th annual tournament is a benefit for the Blue Water Mental Health Clinic and other Michigan programs for troubled children, adults and their families.

The goal of its founders, the late Chuck Muer and Al Tyrrell, an officer in the Blue Water Sport Fishing Association, was to bring attention to the excellent salmon and trout fishing in the St. Clair River and lower Lake Huron.

"The western side of the state was getting all the attention in fishing publications," Tyrrell said, "yet we have as good, if not better, fishing right here within an hour of Detroit."

Muer and Tyrrell decided to stage a fishing tournament. The event evolved each year and by 1985 had become a fundraiser for the Blue Water Mental Health Clinic.

Last year, the tournament raised $100,000, bringing the grand total to date up to

Money is raised through the sale of $10 raffle tickets. Prizes include a trip for two adults and two children to Disney World; a weekend for two in Toronto; gift certificates to Chuck Muer restaruants all over the nation; and a charter fishing trip.

There are no losing tickets, because they're all redeemable after the tournament for $10 off on a dinner for two at any of the 21 Chuck Muer restaurants nationwide.

About 250 boats and more than 1,000 fishermen are expected to participate, all vying for trophies, club prizes and $5,500 in cash rewards.

Besides the fishing contests, there will be family activities during the day, including an outdoor barbecue, live entertainment, a free trout fishing pond, face painting, prize drawings and more.

Detroit's dinner will be held at The Stroh River Place Atriums in Detroit. Chairmen are Grosse Pointers Jimmy and Darlene Schmidt. Honorary co-chairmen are Michigan Gov. John and Mrs. Engler, and Detroit Mayor Dennis W. and Trudy Duncombe Archer.

The event begins at 5:30 p.m. (for those with Master Chef tickets or Chef de Cuisine tickets) with a preglow reception, wine tasting and reserved seating for dinner in The Rattlesnake Club.

At 7 p.m., those who purchase the sous chef ticket will begin a wine tasting and dinner buffet.

The evening will include a silent auction and entertainment by Mel Ball and Colours and Doug Jacobs and the Red Garter Band.

SOS works to alleviate and prevent hunger and poverty all over the nation by supporting food assistance, treating malnutrition and promoting economic independence among people in need. SOS strives to meet immediate demands for food while investing in long-term solutions to hunger and poverty.

Anybody can do it?

By The Rev. John Corrado

Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church In his Nonlectures, poet E.E. Cummings writes about a magazine of decades ago which was the product of three rules: eight to eighty; anybody can do it; makes you feel bet-

Do you doubt that there still are (probably always have been and always will be) people who will try to hustle you with the same simplistic view of life. If I were even tempted to doubt it, I was re-awakened to a couple of current versions of simple-ism a few nights ago.

It was the middle of the night. I had gone to bed, bonetired, and dropped off to sleep immediately. I woke up feeling bright and wide awake. Then I looked at the clock. With the big hand on the six and the little hand between two and three, I realized it was not time to make coffee.

I sought a soporific. Aha! Reaching for earphones, so as not to disturb my wife, I plugged them in and turned on the radio. Surely in the wee small hours of the morning, a man can find something that will inspire sleep. I was not disap-

Surfing the stations, I came upon what is known as an infomercial," a commercial that allegedly informs and elucidates not for two or three minutes, but for 15 minutes, a half hour or (gasp) even an hour.

Castaway Koolowitz would call it "el hustle grande." In this particular grand hustle, a very prominent, very prosperous "personal trainer" was offering to sell you something that would help you deal with your "angry space."

What made this more amusing to me than it ordinarily would be, was the story he told. This expert on full human potential (easily gained by listening to him, of course), told of walking into a hotel lobby to ask to have his luggage carried in from the sidewalk. Before a bellhop could be found, the luggage, complete with wallet and credit cards, was stolen.

Somehow a human potential guru who leaves all that in front of a big city hotel has a few very practical things to learn. I chuckled and soon found myself in dreamland, only to awaken after another hour. It must have been my night, for another "Life-is: simple-just-buy-my-tapes" guru was on the hustle.

This time it was a woman. Like the man I had heard, she is found in the New Age section of your local bookstore and at the lectern of "The Church of What's Happening Now."

Her particular field is human relations. She sells intimacy made easy. To demonstrate how easy marital relations are, she called upon her puppy. He barked, seemingly on cue.

Knowing that I couldn't dream up such nonsense, I listened on. Listening yielded the kicker. This guru of instant intimacy in marriage (all for the price of a set of tapes) was not herself married, at least not anymore.

I wondered if she had thought her husband had been a dog just as she now thought that having a dog was like having a husband. Once again easily amused, I was back in dreamland where I remained until wake-up time.

Am I too cynical? How about cynical enough. I don't begrudge folks finding a way to make a living and thereby contributing to the gross national product. I am, however, saddened by the way that so many of us look for simple, quick answers to our lives, as if our lives were textbook problems we could solve by looking at the back of the book, rather than an ongoing story that demands commitment and fidelity to the people, places, and tasks around us. Fairy tales about "eight to eighty;" "anybody can do it;" and 'makes you feel good" may be good as nightime soporifics. I just don't think they work well at waking anyone up to a life that is real, rich and full.

Home health care

By Janelle Dodd Special Writer

In an effort to reduce costs, hospitals are releasing patients much earlier than ever before. This leaves many individuals wondering how to best care for themselves between the moment they are released from the hospital and the time of full recovery.

Home health care is a service that helps patients recover from injury, surgery or a major illness in their homes. According to a recent American Medical Association survey, 44 percent of hospital patients discharged by primary care physicians need help that can't be provided by friends

"Health care is moving back to the future. In our ancestors' days, treatment primarily occurred in the home. The medical industry is again realizing that it makes sense to recover at home — especially if it keeps costs down. Plus, many patients prefer to have care given in the comfort of their own homes," said Patricia A. Lynett, vice president and chief operating officer of Kelly Assisted Living Services, a provider of in-home companionship and personal care to individuals needing assistance in their daily

While patients can be more comfortable with familiar surroundings and schedules when recuperating at home, recovering from surgery without the assistance of trained health personnel can produce high anxiety. Patients may worry about whether they are recuperating properly or they may forget to follow doctor's instructions.

But with help from a home health care provider, such as Kelly Assisted Living, a trained caregiver can help patients comply with their doctor's discharge orders, remind them to take their medication, and provide transportation to the doctor, if needed.

"We're basically offering peace of mind and assurance that you are well taken care of," Lynett said. "Home care can help with the prevention of rehospitalization by making sure your recovery is going as it should. We also will provide a safety check of the client's home.

Home health care is also an important option for patients recovering from outpatient surgery, which can make many patients incapable of performing some of their normal tasks. A caregiver can provide nursing care, assist with personal care, such as bathing and dressing, and help with housekeeping or cooking.

"Before sending a caregiver into a home, we meet with patients and their families about their individual health care needs," Lynett said. "Patients or their families can then call us 24 hours a day with any immediate concerns or questions regarding care.'

Home health care is also an attractive option as a respite for family or friends who are caregivers.

Often, it can be difficult for family members to provide all the assistance that a recovering patient may need. Fulltime work schedules, distance from those needing care, and the demands of their own families can all be a hindrance to appropriate caregiving.

"Caregiving is often a 24-hour-a-day, seven-days-a-week obligation. No one human being can do this alone," Lynett said. "That's how we can help. Respite care offers temporary replacements for caregivers who need time off from their continual care responsibilities.'

For some, the fear of high costs is often a detriment to hiring a home caregiver. But the average cost of staying in a hospital per day in 1994 was $1,756, compared to the $84 daily cost of receiving care at home, according to the National Association for Health Care. In many cases, Medicare, Medicaid and other health benefit programs will help with costs, and many insurance carriers have incorporated home health care coverage into their policies.

Each year, more than six million Americans — both the elderly and those recovering from major surgery or illnesses - rely on home caregivers.

Kelly Assisted Living provides the personal, individualized care that many people need to live happier, healthier and more independent lives. Arts council prepares for busy season

Another art organization joined our association this week. Neither I nor my board knew of this group, therefore we can assume many of you are not fully aware of the incredible number of arts groups that are available to you in Grosse Pointe and the surrounding communities.

By arts groups, I mean performing, graphic, instrumental, dance, theater, literary, vocal, fine painting and photography.

We have been attending regional meetings with arts council members from the southeastern Michigan area, southeastern Michigan area, on The Hill, will speak and have discovered many arts Tuesday, April 16 on his new councils have been active for 20 years! "The Dog Who Rescues Cats": The True Story of Ginny"

By Philip Gonzalez and Leonore Fleischer HarperCollins. 160 pages.

This charming little book is a must for all those who truly love animals and worry about their well-being. "The Dog Who Rescues Cats" is, I believe, an inspirational minor classic of animal lore; thus it deserves to survive in spite of the strange indifference of its publisher. Last fall I received the publisher's catalog of forthcoming publications, and among the many interesting titles featured I immediately noted the one about Ginny. Even after I returned the check-list for this book, to be published in September 1995, I never received a copy for review. Then late in November I found this book listed in a catalog of remainders from a dealer on the East Coast; how odd, I thought, remaindered already? Anyhow, I mailed an order, only to be notified that this title was no longer available. Finally, I was able to locate a copy at a Borders Book Store in Richmond, Va., of all places, and I am pleased to announce that, for me, this book was well worth waiting for.

In his touching introduction, Cleveland Amory praises this unique rescue team: "Night after night, Philip and Ginny begin their rounds about 4:30 a.m., because that is apparently the best time to rescue cats. Together the two of them -Ginny on a leash, Philip holding the leash — patrol their by-no-means affluent neighborhood. They examine every possible location in which a cat would find refuge — in dark alleys, in abandoned buildings, in empty lots, in junkyards,

And over and over what Ginny usually rescues is a cat who is disabled. The very first cat Ginny ever rescued was deaf, the second was missing an eye. Another early rescue was of a cat without any hind feet. Still another was so brain-damaged she could do nothing but roll where she wanted to go."

Philip Gonzalez tells of his first meeting with Ginny at an animal shelter to which he was reluctantly dragged by a determined friend to find a companion: "The little dog scrambled to her feet and came limping forward to the front of the cage. She had a lot of trouble walking, but still she came on gamely. Although she wasn't a puppy, she was young, less than a year old, and very peculiar-looking, a weird hybrid of probably Siberian husky and schnauzer. I'd never seen a dog like her anywhere. She had an attractive face, though bright eyes, white eyebrows and whiskers, an intelligent, curious, amusing expression.

But she had a long, skinny body and thin, crooked legs, which were oddly matched to the broad-shouldered front of her, like one of those little Volkswagen Beetles you used to see driving around with imitation Rolls-Royce radiators stuck on the hood.'

When Philip first took Ginny on a trial walk together outside of the shelter, he was smitten: She was just sitting there on the sidewalk, looking up at me. Our eyes met, and when they did I felt a physical jolt, like a connection being made. A spark leaped between us as wires leading from her to me. I wasn't able to take my eyes off her face. I could swear she smiled at me."

The momentous decision to adopt was made: "She was all mine. I had chosen her (actually she had chosen me) and her health, well-being, and happiness now all depended on me." One of the advantages of having Ginny soon became apparent: "Could I keep control of a and even right on the street. lively young animal on a leash?

But I recognized that it was time for me to begin developing the use of my left arm and hand anyway. I would be getting physical therapy on my right arm as soon as it healed, but there was no reason for me to have two useless hands in the meantime. So caring for Ginny would be doing me some physical good. It would be a form of therapy. I'd be getting used to doing things with my hands again.'

Living only on a disability check, Gonzalez explains that with Ginny to guide me, I began to devote all my waking hours to finding homes for cats. At that time we were feeding about 30 street cats, and one by one I would pick them up and take them to the vet. They'd get their inoculations against killer diseases ... and they would be neutered. Then, if I couldn't get them adopted I would return them to their street life. But at least they would now be healthy and wouldn't make more unwanted cats, and I continued to feed them. So their lives were a lot better then before Ginny and I came on the scene."

Also realizing "that homeless though there were electric cats were starving and freezing author states: "Now every day every night in the streets made for me is meaningful, as an me very conscious of how often animal rescue worker ... I am helpless animals are abused, needed as I was never before and that people can and should needed in my life, by all the do something about it... What I homeless and hungry mistreatdid about it was give a warm and loving home to disabled had plenty of fun, but no real cats who in the normal course happiness. Now I know the of events would never find a true happiness of living for othhome. And what Ginny did was ers, and the true happiness of to find these cats for me to rescue. We were a team."

"if I couldn't find a home for the tegether."

cat, I'd release it back into its former life, but I'd still keep my eye on it and make certain it was well fed. Every adoption was a triumph for me, and every neutering was a chance to stop the production of unwanted kittens. I don't think of the street cats I feed as 'strays.' I call them my 'outside cats.' Whenever Ginny finds a cat that has a crippled condition or a deformity that makes it unadoptable, I take it home with me, and it becomes an 'inside cat' and part of the family." As a result, Ginny and Gonzalez now have 16 'inside cats' living with them in their apartment in a Long Island beach community.

Philip Gonzalez was born 45 years ago in Puerto Rico, and was 7 months old when he was brought to the United States. An industrial accident a few years ago maimed his right arm which caused him great discouragement and a loss of interest in living. Thanks to Ginny, that indomitable little dog from the shelter, a lonely waif, she changed her new master's life and outlook entirely. She led him to his fruitful career as animal rescuer, freelance and unpaid, but with a supportive circle of friends such as neighbors, kind veterinarians, and generous animal food suppliers. Both dog and man dwell happily in an apartment filled with plump, contented cats, all with names and very individual personalities, who purr almost constantly - why wouldn't

Thurs., April 11 'Funeral for Winter

State University will join forces with Circa 1890 Saloon restaurateur Steve Xantheas to hold a "Funeral for Ol' Man Winter" on Thursday, April 11 at 12:30 p.m. Dixieland band musicians will accompany the casket of a lifeless "Ol' Man Winter" in a New Orleans-style funeral procession from the south end of the Student Center Building on WSU's main campus to the restaurant at 5474 Cass. Xantheas and official ghouls will preside over a brief irreverent ceremony to cast winter into the bowels of the earth. At that point Miss Spring will brighten the day with fresh flowers to dispel the gloom of winter. The jazz musicians will then entertain Circa 1890 customers. All mourners will receive free popcorn or free coffee or soda with their meals. Xantheas will donate the day's proceeds to the university, as he has for more than 20 years.

'Riffs' at the Attic

Local playwright Bill Harris' "Riff" continues Greektown's Attic Theatre. Set in Detroit's North side, the comedy is the story of four African-American retired men who meet daily to connect with each other through story telling and remembrances. most of which are exaggerated. The characters attempt to solve each other's problems all the while trying to one-up the next guy.

Performances continue through May 4 with show times Thursdays and Fridays p.m. Ticket prices are $15 - $25 with special prices for seniors, students and groups of 15 or more. The Attic Theatre is located in Greektown's Trapper's Alley at 508 Monroe, Detroit. For tickets call the box office at (313) 963-9339.

'Oleanna' at the Rep

Pulitzer Prize playwright, David Mamet's "Oleanna" continues at Detroit's Repertory Theatre. In "Oleanna" a male college instructor and his female student sit down to discuss her grades and in a terrifying short time become the participants in a modern inquisition. Quickly the relationship between teacher and student turns into a fiendishly accurate X-ray of the mechanisms of power, censorship, and abuse. Mamet has won two Pulitzers for his plays and is as well known for his screen plays, including Oscar nominated The Verdict."

It's a decision that South coach Bob Bopp is delighted with.

"I've never had a goalie that the players have believed in more than Todd," Bopp said. "They have so much confidence in him that it makes them play better in front of him."

Dunlap is quick to point out that he couldn't have made the Dream Team without some help.

"I owe any recognition I've received to our coaching staff and my teammates," Dunlap said. "Their dedication helped me. I've received some individual honors, but it's a team honor because I couldn't have done it alone.

"This year has been my most enjoyable. We had a young team, but beat Brother Rice and Catholic Central. Those were big wins

In the three seasons that Dunlap has been South's top goalie, the Blue Devils posted a 56-13-3 record. "The more important the game, the better Todd plays," Bopp said. "He was outstanding against Brother Rice (a 1-0 South victory) and Trenton (a 3-0 loss to the Class A state champion, but one of the goals was an empty-netter in the final seconds). He made 35 saves against a team that went undefeated this year. After the season the Trenton coach (Mike Turner) said Todd was the best goalie they played against." Some of Dunlap's most memorable performances came against Brother Rice.

"They've always been a powerhouse and I was fortunate to beat them twice my sophomore year and again this year," Dunlap said. "It was a big deal to beat them.

"My biggest disappointment was not beating Trenton in my four years at South. I probably played my best game against them this year. That felt good, knowing I did my best against a great program, but it would have been nice to beat them." Dunlap has seen South's program progress during the four years Bopp has been head coach. "We started out together and coach Bopp has done a good job of getting the Grosse Pointe kids to play for the high school team," Dunlap said. "That's how Trenton has built such a good Dunlap hopes to continue his hockey career at either the junior level or in college. He plans to attend Miami (Ohio) and try out for the Redskins' squad.

"I'd love to play there," he said. "They have an excellent program."

Dunlap comes from a hockey family. "My brother (Brad) played a lot of hockey so my parents knew what it was all about when I started playing," Todd said.

Madame Z's-Jimmy Mack's posted a 75-67 double-overtime victory over CA & P in the White Division.

The teams were tied at 54-all at the end of regulation after a late basket by CA & P's Steve Lundmark.

Lundmark's foot was just over the three-point line or his shot would have won the game.

In the first overtime, Lundmark did hit a threepointer to tie the game again with five seconds left.

Sean Hanson's shooting also kept CA & P, which had all but three players foul out, close for nearly the entire game.

Former ULS tennis player does well for John Carroll

Former University Liggett School standout Patrick Alle has been a key performer for the John Carroll University tennis team.

In the season opening 6-3 victory over Ohio Wesleyan, Alle won his No. 3 singles match and teamed with Ryan Bode of Springfield, Ohio, to win their third doubles match.

Alle, a sophomore, again provided the heroics that lifted the Blue Streaks past Ohio Athletic Conference rival Capital 6-3.

In the only three-set match won by a John Carroll player, Alle posted a 6-0, 3-6, 6-4 victory in third singles.

Then Alle and Bode put the finishing touches on the John Carroll victory with a 6-2, 6-3 win in third doubles.

Dunlap was one of the three captains on the South team, but led more by example than talk.

"He's not a real talkative player, but his play earned the respect of his teammates and opposing players and coaches,"

"When you see him before a game it doesn't look like he has a lot of confidence, but that all changes once he steps on the ice." Dunlap is fundamentally sound in goal.

"He has a great glove hand and he plays the angles well," Bopp

In addition to his All-State honors, Dunlap was the goalie on the Michigan Metro Hockey League team and was the goalie and most valuable player on the East Division squad.

While Dunlap was the only South player to make the All-State Dream Team, he was joined on the Class A first team by teammate Josh Prues.

received honorable mention and Ryan Robson was named to the All-State academic team. Prues has been a solid defenseman for three seasons and closed out his high school career as the best defenseman in the

Metro league's East Division. "Last year Josh was paired with Justin Braun on defense and he was the stay-at-home defenseman," said Bopp, who was the East Division coach of the year. "This year we looked to him for a lot more offense and he was our leading scorer." Bopp said Prues received more ice time than anyone on the squad, taking a regular turn on defense as well as playing on South's special teams.

"He's very confident in his ability and is a very smart player." the coach said. "He's always in the right spot and makes the Prues finished with 14 goals and 14 assists in 23 games.

"A lot of his points came on the power play," Bopp said. "Normally, the forwards get those goals, but we were inexperienced up front so we looked to our veteran defensemen to help with the scoring this year. Josh doesn't have an extremely hard shot, but it's very accurate."

Prues' defensive play has earned comparisons to the Red Wings' Nicklas Lidstrom.

Faber is another three-year starter on a corps of defensemen that might have been the best in South history.

"He played well enough to be an All-Stater, too," Bopp said. "Bill can skate, pass and play the physical game. He's a team player. We moved him to forward to take advantage of his offensive skills. He was willing to do whatever we asked of him."

Faber, who had three goals and 14 assists, was also a key member of the power-play unit.

We use a 1-3-1 alignment on the power play and Faber was the only one actually playing defense so he had a lot of responsibility," Bopp said. "He was the one running the power play and he did it all year."

Prues and Faber were also captains for the Blue Devils this Debski, the only junior among South's All-State contingent, played right wing and collected nine goals and 19 assists.

"He was one of our leading scorers this year, but we're expecting even more from him next year," Bopp said. "He's a tough player, but has good hands and a nice scoring touch."

South standouts make it look easy

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

Molly McKenzie and Carey King made scoring goals look easy last week when Grosse Pointe South's girls soccer team opened the season with a 4-0 victory over Ford II.

"Our forwards were too fast for (Ford's) defense," said Blue Devils coach Tom Caranicolas. They moved up and down the field at will.

"Molly and Carey each scored twice and set up the other one's goals, but Erica Cordier and Melissa Brown also played well at forward. We had 17 shots on goal in the first

It looked like Brown had a goal in the second half but the officials ruled a hand ball.

"The ball bounced off her thigh, not her hand," South got an outstanding r Caranicolas said. "I think formance from Katy Spicer. everybody but the referee saw it that way."

But South, which scored all its goals in the first half, didn't need the fifth.

Mite champions

Teamwork was the key this season as Team USA won the regular-season and playoff championships in the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association Mite B division. Team USA nipped the Bruins in the playoff title game and completed the year with only one loss to league teams. Coach Mike Williams thanked assistant coaches Pat Fox, Dave Hands, Joe Lucchese and Mike Wendzinski and jersey moms Paula Elias and Joan Wendzinski. The squad was sponsored by Play It Again Sports and the parents of Team USA. In front are Scott Ciraulo, left, and Jamie Gorman. In the second row, from left, are Derek Gianino, Patrick Lariviere, Cam Peralta and Alex Hands. In the third row, from left, are Stephen Gorman, Charlie Warren, Michael Lucchese and Michael Lewandowski. In the fourth row, from left, are Bryan Bargowski, Stephen Elias, Peter Wendzinski, Joey Parke and Andrew Wendzinski.

A product guide to make sure your trees are healthy

Home&Garden Features

A tree is a tree? Maybe. Or maybe not.

Some trees look better than others. Some are healthier than others. And there's a reason why: it's all in the way the tree was cared for over the years.

Lush foliage and a strong, straight and upright trunk don't just happen; someone made it happen. In years past, it was a landscape professional or a tree care expert who handled such tasks as planting, staking, pruning, and the like.

These days, however, more homeowners than ever before are becoming do-it-yourself yardeners and are tackling yard and garden chores themselves.

As a result, companies that manufacture lawn and garden equipment are developing new and innovative products designed to make yard care quick, easy, efficient, and, of course, as effective as possible.

In the case of tree care, the result is a wide range of newlyintroduced and useful products that can be found at hardware stores and home and garden cen-

Staking

Freshly planted trees, as well as relatively young trees, are ideal for staking. Simply put, staking lets a tree firmly establish roots by helping them stay steady and upright despite the elements.

For example, a properly staked tree is unlikely to be damaged by strong winds that can bend it and cause it to grow misshapen. A new product called a TreeStaKit is a complete staking package that features 21 feet of rope, reusable stakes and a tree tube that makes anchoring a tree up to three inches in diameter a simple process.

Remember that there are a variety of ways to stake a tree, so asking a local garden supplier's assistance in choosing the right method for you and your tree would be a good idea. Tree experts note that a young tree benefits most from staying staked for about two years, whatever the method of staking selected. After two years' time, most trees are ready to stand tall on their own. Bark protection

What's the single most prevalent cause of young tree death? Believe it or not, the answer is the damage inflicted by string trimmers and lawn mowers. Trees just a year or two old or those freshly planted in the soil, simply do not have a thick enough layer of bark to protect them.

As a result, a gash caused by a mower blade slicing into it, or a cut made by a trimmer cord slashing into it, can leave a tree extremely susceptible to the often deadly onset of fungal diseases and unwanted insects.

One solution is about as simple as it gets. A new product called Bark Gard is a plastic shield, approximately eight inches high, that can be installed in seconds by just coiling it around the base of a tree.

The result is a physical barrier between the tree and mowers and trimmers. The product comes in a natural brown color that blends in well with a tree's bark and also serves to reflect light away from the tree's trunk.

Further, the product's manufacturers have made Bark Gard in such a way, with punched-out holes, that the tree can "breathe."" Look for the product in stores for the suggested retail price of about $2.99.

Wrapping trees

Some homeowners find wrapping trees with burlap or other fabric materials helps protect them from insect infestation and cold weather. If this is the case, there's an innovative product available that will do those jobs, but not fall apart and look untidy after a short period of time in the sun, rain and/or snow. It's called Tree Wrap.

Essentially, Tree Wrap is a weather-resistant, all-white material that can be wrapped around the base of a tree in overlapping

Once secured around a tree, it will moderate the temperature around the trunk, which lessens the chance of bark splitting caused by seasonal weather extremes. Further, Tree Wrap is designed to stretch as the tree grows, and tiny holes in the material enable air and water to reach the bark's surface. Lastly, the product serves as a basic physical barrier to rodents and insects that may want to claw at or eat the bark. Many homeowners have discovered that using Bark Gard and Tree Wrap in tandem does the trick of protecting a young tree from the elements and animals, as well as from mowers and string trimmers.

Of course, there are many other products out there that will get trees off to the start they need to lead a long, healthy life. For example, landscape fabrics placed atop the soil in a tree bed and covered with a layer of mulch will moderate soil temperature and help retain much-needed moisture.

Pruning products, such as clippers and retractable saw blades, help bring out the lushest foliage possible and make shaping the tree easier. Take time out on a weekend for a visit to the local garden center, where exciting new tree care products such as the ones referred to above are avail-

Yardeners will learn a lot and their trees will reap the benefits.

Winter storage tips to protect your clothes

With spring finally here, survivors of the Blizzard of '96 are eager to pack up their winter woolens and enjoy the warmer weather.

Without taking the proper precautions, however, spring fever sufferers could inadvertently expose garments to deteriorating elements and find it necessary to replace costly cold-weather clothing next fall.

Here are a few steps consumers should follow to protect their clothing investment:

Know the enemy

Stored garments are vulnerable to damage by insects, mildew and mustiness. All fabrics are prone to mildew damage. Insect damage occurs mostly on natural fabrics such as wool, cotton and linens. Fabric "blends" which contain these natural fibers are also susceptible.

Even pure synthetic fabrics can be damaged by insects if they are stored improperly. In addition to stored garments, other valuable fabrics such as linens, towels and stored rugs should be protected.

How to protect garments

Natural aromatic cedar can be used in closets, drawers, storage boxes, and garment bags to preserve garments and other fabrics in the home. The aroma of cedar, while pleasant and harmless to humans, is a powerful appetite suppressant to moth larvae. It's the larvae that damage fabrics, not the winged adult moths. The presence of sufficient aromatic cedar vapors will stop the larvae from eating and damaging stored fabric.

Preparing garments for storage

Garments should be washed or dry-cleaned immediately before extended storage to remove mildew spores and insect eggs. Tumbling in a clothes dryer on high heat for 10 minutes also removes insect eggs, as does exposure to sunlight. (Be sure to check your garment care label before placing clothes in dryer.) Place clean garments and cedar immediately into a clean air-tight storage container or garment bag and seal tightly.

Use enough cedar in each application to build up a noticeable cedar fragrance on the fabrics you are protecting. The amount depends on the size of the container and on how often it is opened and exposed to air and light.

The environmental and economical choice

Cedar is a natural alternative to chemical mothballs, which are petro-chemical products containing naphthalene and/or paradichlorobenzene. Many environmentalists recommend cedar as the "right choice" because it is safe to use around children and pets. Cedar trees are a renewable, non-endangered resource that grow abundantly throughout the eastern United States.

Most cedar products will remain effective for six months to one year. Air flow and light cause cedar to age faster. When the red parts of the wood have turned brown and lost their scent, the product may be ready for replacement or rejuvenation.

Unlike volatile chemical mothballs and air fresheners that evaporate, cedar can be renewed over and over. Cedar can be easily restored with Cedar Power spray from Cedar Fresh Home Products or by sanding with coarse-grade sandpaper. Sanding will remove the top layer of wood and expose fresh aromatic wood underneath.

'If you can't find the time to do it right, when will you find the time to do it over?' — says Blair

By Blair Gilbert

What do you want to talk about? Washing windows, fertilizer and grass seed - or that expensive water bill?

The weather is too unpredictable this time of year. Remember this is Michigan. Let's save some money and fix that plumbing this week.

Your faucet leaks are obvious added costs on your water bill, drip, drip, drip. . . penny, penny, penny, no wonder that bill gets so high. But you have a high water bill and you can't see a leak. You might not even hear a leak

Go in the bathroom, take the stuff off the top of the toilet tank, remove the lid and place in a safe place.

Look in the tank and check the water level in relation to the overflow tube (about 10 inches tall and 1 inch around in the middle of the tank). Is the water level up to the top of the overflow tube? If so, then the ballcock must need repair or replacement (that tall thing on the right with the float attached).

Better hardware and plumbing shops will have parts and in-store training to repair those better quality ballcocks, and new ones to replace the unrepairable units.

But you say the water is below the top of the overflow tube. Now what? My guess is the water is getting out.

Throw some food coloring, available at city hall, water department Hardware, and wait 20 minutes. Is it peeking its ugly face in the bowl?

Quick, shut off the water, remove the flapper or nibber ball thing at the bottom of the tank. (I am, of course, leaving out the countless other possibilities of tank stoppers, all fairly rare unless you have one!)

Off to the plumbing department, possibly in only one trip because you remembered to take the old part with you. Now you're a plumber!

Heck, without a word processor, I couldn't even spell it!

Tips and service are available from Blair Gilbert and Gilbert's Pro Hardware, 21920 Harper, in St. Clair Shores, (810) 776-9532.

Building Industry Association plans disability seminar

ommunity Ed. teaches cooking with herbs

Grosse Pointe Community Education, in collaboration with the Grosse Pointe unit of The Herb Society of America, is offering two "herbal" classes this spring.

"Planting an Herb Garden" on Wednesday, April 17, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in Barnes School will offer practical information about obtaining and growing a wide variety of herbs in our Michigan climate. Taught by Mary Northcutt and Jackie Beck, the class will introduce you to a fragrant and flavorful selection of herbs and provide you with garden plan ideas to meet your special needs.

Helpful tips for growing herbs indoors will also be offered, along with information about soil, location, fertilizer, and protection from the elements.

A question-and-answer period will follow the presentation. The course fee is $8.

"Culinary Herbal Delights" will be the focus of a new Community Education class that will introduce you to the joys of herbal cooking.

You'll learn how to add excitement and pizzazz to everyday cooking and gourmet dishes with techniques that will delight the palate while pleasing the eye. Taught by Anne Graves and Marty Vorhees of the Grosse Pointe unit of The Herb Society of America, the class will be presented in the Barnes School kitchen on Thursday, May 2, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The cost is $8.

Course catalogs describing these and other Grosse Pointe Community Education classes are available at all Grosse Pointe public schools, the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center, the Pointe Plaza branch of Barnes & Noble, and public libraries in Grosse Pointe, St. Clair Shores, Harper Woods, Eastpointe, and Detroit (Jefferson Branch only). Register by mail or fax at any time or in person Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. till 4 p.m. at the Community Education office in Barnes school. 20090 Morningside Drive in Grosse Pointe Woods.

home ownership for you?

If you have thought about owning a home, but aren't sure you can afford it or are confused by all the financing options, this workshop is for you.

"Ĥome Ōwnership" — a two part series - will be held on Tuesdays, April 16 and 23, at Lincoln Middle School, 22500 Federal, in Warren, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The workshop, sponsored by Comerica Mortgage, will be conducted by Michigan State University Extension-Macomb. The mysteries of buying a home — from qualifying for a mortgage to the closing process - will be explained.

The workshop is free, but registration is a must. To register or for more information call MSU Extension at (810) 469-6430.

G.P. Board of Realtors to host Home Fair '96

The Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors will host its ninth annual Home Fair from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, April 20, at the Assumption Cultural Center, 21800 Marter, in St. Clair Shores.

More than 50 exhibitors are scheduled to present their goods and services. Home buyers and sellers will gather a wealth of information about financing, title insurance, inspection and moving companies.

Homeowners with no interest in moving can meet representatives of remodeling, decorating, home security and cleaning companies. In addition, there will be exhibitors of gifts, jewelry, clothing, art and more.

Admission and parking are free. Refreshments, door prizes and brochures are also free.

Parental guidance required when using a power mower

By Ellen Henke

Sometimes children want to take a spin around the yard on the riding mower with Mom or Dad they think riding a big, powerful machine looks like a lot of fun.

While moving and caring for your lawn can be a lot of fun, riding mowers are serious cutting tools that should be treated with respect.

No matter how much they beg. never take children or passengers of any age on riding mowers. And never allow young children to operate a mower or any type of lawn equipment. In fact, it's best to keep children and pets out of the mowing area completely. And always check behind you when backing up with your riding mower.

The best way to teach your children about mowing safety is to set a good example yourself. Before you mow, make sure you're dressed correctly. Flip flops, swimsuits and shorts are not proper mowing attire, and they don't provide much protection from flying objects. Wear long slacks and sturdy shoes with traction soles. Tuck in your shirttail.

Check to ensure that all safety shields and guards are in place and working. Walk your lawn before mowing, removing toys, tools or yard debris that could be potential mowing hazards. If twigs, leaves or other debris clog your mower's discharge chute, turn off your mower immediately. With a riding mower or lawn tractor, turn the ignition key to "off." Don't touch hot engine or exhaust surfaces.

Remember that flesh is softer than metal — never use your hands or feet to clear a clog. Carefully use a stick or tool to dislodge the debris.

If there are places in your lawn where you might turn an ankle. level these spots. Navigate safely on slopes. With your riding mower, you should mow up and down slopes for greater stability.

And never mow when the lawn is

Make time to take precautions - for your safety and the safety of your family.

And someday, when your children are responsible enough to handle lawn chores, consult the operator's manual to teach them mowing safety and proper maintenance - and consider yourself lucky if they'll even get near the mower.

America's plant doctor and John Deere lawn and garden expert Ellen Henke is a botanist, garden writer and nationally recognized authority on "earth friendly" gardening.

Building Industry Association offers master builders' course

Building Industry Association of Southeastem Michigan (BIA) will present the National Association of Home Builder (NAHB) Home Building industry master builders course on land acquisition, development and financing on Wednesday, an idea that SELLS.

Antiques

The country look in decorating has remained popular. Many low-cost reproductions are now available, as well as authentic antiques.

Examples of 19th century country pieces include a Sunderland jug from England, Hepplewhite birds-eye maple table from the Midwest and a pieced quilt from Ohio.

If you had been at the 1990 auction where the pieces were sold, you could have purchased the quilt for $11,000, the table for $8,000 and the jug for $650.

Rare and expensive countrystyle pieces from the 19th century might be out of your reach, but early 20th century collectibles can be found at sensible prices. Search flea markets and antiques shops for attractive and useful pieces.

Shopping from home is an idea that is catching on among collectors. Not only are there now cable TV shows that offer collectibles, but there are also many auctions and sales that take bids by mail or phone.

To participate, send for a catalog and study it. Call the auction house and ask to speak to an expert who can give you a complete description of the piece. Ask if there have been any repairs or restorations, or if the item is damaged.

Try to learn more about the history of the piece. The auction house might know it was passed down from generation to generation in a family or that the owner was a serious collector.

Then call, mail or fax a bid. If it is an expensive item, you can arrange to bid by phone during the auction. Phone bids are called to the auctioneer along with the bids by those at the sale.

The most enterprising offpremises bidder we know about is a woman who bought an expensive antique with a phone call from an airplane while flying to Mexico. Even a vacation trip couldn't keep her from bidding.

Q. On the back of my silver spoons it says, "Perry O. Daniel Standard." When were they made?

A. Perry O. Daniel was a silvermaker in Boston in the 1830s.

"Standard" means the same as "coin." It is a grade of silver that is less pure than sterling.
