

Park's Fox Creek sewer project placed on state funding list

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park officials have just received some good news to the tune of about $275,000 a year for the next 20 years, said Park city manager Dale Krajniak.

"We've received a high priority on the state's revolving fund loan list," said Krajniak. "There are basically two ways for a city like the Park to pay for a $10 million-$12 million project like the proposed Fox Creek sewer separation. The first way is to float a bond issue to raise the money. The second way is to borrow the money from the state's revolving fund loan program."

The revolving fund method is the preferred way, said Krajniak, for one simple reason — it's cheaper.

"Right now the average interest rate on bonds floated by cities like the Park is about 5 to 5.5 percent,"

Krajniak said. "If we borrow the money from the revolving fund, the interest rate we pay is 2.25 percent."

So if the project costs $10 million, said Krajniak, the Park will save $275,000 a year for 20 years in interest payments. That's what a 2.75 percent difference in interest rates translates into.

"If the project costs more than $10 million, the savings are even greater," Krajniak said. "That's why it was so important for the city to receive a high priority on the revolving fund list."

The city attempted to be placed on the list last year, said Krajniak, but failed because the Fox Creek project, as proposed by the city, had not yet received approval from the state's Department of Environmental Quality.

Ironically, one of the factors that delayed the state's approval of the project was the demand by some Detroit residents that public comment hearings on the Park's sewer separation plan be held.

By the time those hearings could be scheduled, the revolving fund list for 1995 was issued.

"We expect to receive the money in October," said Krajniak. "The next step in the process is to actually bid

WE'RE CONCERNED ABOUT YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

News can appear one day and be gone the next. But the paper news is printed on can and should live on. Last year, more than one third of all U.S. newsprint was recycled. And that number is growing every day. Recycling is the one way we can all give something back.

Blooming project

Woods council debates phone tower

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

In an effort to obtain the most advantageous conditions for the city, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council discussed with an AT&T representative what changes would have to be made in a proposed contract between the city and the telephone company before a new communications tower could be built.

"In the past few years the city has received a number of offers from various telecommunications companies to build radio towers in the Woods," said Woods mayor Robert Novitke. "The reason we're considering this offer seriously is because AT&T is actually proposing to give the city ownership of the tower once it's complete. That's something new."

The deal, as proposed by AT&T, is simple, said Novitke. The company would replace the city's current 80-foot tall radio antenna, located in the back of city hall, with a new, modern antenna of the same height in the same location.

Once the new antenna is built, the city would take possession of it, and get a $1,500 a month fee from AT&T for use of the antenna, Novitke said.

"Right now the city has its own radio antenna, which is used by the public safety department to communicate with our police and fire vehicle," said Novitke. "This proposal calls for the new antenna to replace the old one, which is different from previous offers because those offers

G.P. schools not as they appear in newspapers?

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Recent newspaper reports that Grosse Pointe has a controversial, mud-slinging school board campaign under way prompted the school board on Monday night to publicly address the matter.

The candid discussion, initiated by trustee John Mills, came at the end of the board's regular meeting held in the Wicking Library at Grosse Pointe South High School and one week before the Monday, June 10 election.

Mills said he was alarmed by news reports that suggested Grosse Pointe's school board campaign was "down and dirty," that the board was divided, with the minority being "far-right extremists who want to slash the system's budget."

"Am I missing something here?" Mills asked the trustees. "The only 'down and dirty' campaign I see is in the press."

Mills said he has attended the candidate forums and has not seen or heard anything to suggest the characterization of Grosse Pointe depicted Monday in one of Detroit's daily newspapers.

Retiring board member Gloria Konsler responded by saying she doesn't think there is a Christian right-wing movement in the community, but that this election does have high stakes and that there have been "troublesome" and "negative" things going on.

Board vice president Tim Howlett agreed with Konsler. "Let's be honest," interjected board president Carl Anderson.

"Trustee" Sears Taylor has made some negative comments in a (local newspaper) column that just are not truthful. The result of those comments made by Sears and others are not helpful toward our unity of purpose."

Taylor responded by saying he would not be bullied or muzzled by Anderson or anyone else on the board. Taylor also said the religious right rhetoric is nothing but a ruse, and that the real issue is that the district is spending too much on overhead.

"I think there is an 'agenda' and that if Taylor were board president, he'd have a different way of thinking — and that's his right," Anderson replied.

But Mills pressed on. "Do you think this board would become a 'right-wing' board?" he asked.

Konsler said that obviously some people in the community feel that way or it wouldn't be in the newspaper.

"It could be three people or a broad base," she said. "It's hard to figure out sometimes."

After further discussion, trustees seemed to agree that there are two philosophies on the board, but none felt either were reflective of a "Christian right fanatic philosophy."

Retiring trustee Frank Sladen said the board has forgotten its purpose — the education of children. "I'm upset that the bids for Defer/Pierce window replacement took up so damn much time," he said, prompting the majority of the audience, some wearing yellow Grosse Pointe Community Network lapel pins, to stand and deliver a hearty round of applause.

The Grosse Pointe Community Network is a newly formed group of people who want to maintain the school district's high standards, along with providing other services to enhance the community.

The meeting took a turn when several community members publicly thanked superintendent Ed Shine for his vision and leadership and bade farewell to Konsler and Sladen, prompting another round of applause.

Shine characterized the board's discussion of recent events by reiterating part of his resignation letter: "A community is a place where conflict can exist without physical or emotional bloodshed and with wisdom and grace. Grosse Pointe is struggling with what it is to be a community."

G.P. Taxpayers Association fined $500

The Grosse Pointe Taxpayers Association has paid a $500 late filing fee for failing to provide a campaign finance report in the 1995 millage renewal vote for the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

The Michigan Department of State had ordered the taxpayers association to file a campaign finance report by May 23. The state's order came following an inquiry into the association's expenditures incurred during the millage campaign.

The $500 fine was the maximum late-filing penalty allowed under the law.

"We decided we wanted to file to put an end to this matter," said taxpayers association treasurer Philip Gaglio. "Quite frankly, we didn't want to hire an attorney, which would have easily cost $500 or $1,000 or more."

He declined to say who paid the late-filing fee.

According to the group's campaign report filed last Thursday, May 30, by Gaglio, the organization had expenditures of $1,578 in the millage campaign and contributions of $1,028.30 and in-kind donations of $270.

Under campaign election laws, any groups spending more than $1,000 in an election campaign have to file finance reports.

While the Grosse Pointe Taxpayers Association today claims to have 71 dues-paying members, only four individuals and one organization — Concerned Citizens of Grosse Pointe — appear to have contributed to the group in the 1995 campaign.

would have placed antennas in other areas in the city, which could have raised concerns from residents who might object to having a giant radio antenna go up in their neighborhood."

AT&T would use the new antenna to receive and send cellular telephone signals in the surrounding area, said Novitke. The city would still use the antenna to communicate with its public safety vehicles.

"We would also have the right to let other companies use the antenna, for a fee, if we wanted," said Novitke. "That's a good deal for the city. But before we enter into an agreement with AT&T, I want to make absolutely sure that the Woods is protected from any liability."

The mayor and the council discussed with AT&T representative Chris Cavanagh of the consulting firm of FMHC issues such as who would liable for repairs to the tower in case of a breakdown.

Novitke also raised the issue of when construction would begin. He did not want to see the project delayed and limiting the city's options. He also wanted to define what circumstances would allow the city to get out of the agreement, such as filing a lawsuit, or a change in federal regulations or environmental standards.

"AT&T presented a contract that showed good faith," said Novitke. "But circumstances change. Technology changes. I can't predict the future, but I can make sure that if circumstances change, the city has a contract that allows flexibility in dealing with these changes."

The council voted to have city attorney George Catlin and city administrator Peter Thomas meet with representatives from AT&T to redraft a contract, containing the points raised Monday night. The new contract is to be presented to the council for review in time to have the contract go before the city planning commission at its June 25 meeting.

Once the planning commission holds a public hearing and makes a recommendation, the proposed contract will go before the city council for final approval.

"I want everything spelled out before the contract goes to the planning commission," said Novitke. "The council will meet on Monday, June 10, before its regular committee-of-the-whole meeting, to review the contract with its addendums added. I think we should be able to work out an agreement that will satisfy everyone without too much trouble."

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Bold break-in — and attempt

Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers received a report of a break-in at a house in the 600 block of Pemberton on Thursday, May 30. The incident happened between 1 and 2:49 p.m. while the owner was out of the house.

Entry to the home was gained by prying open of door wall connecting the family room to the patio in the rear of the house. The thief or thieves searched drawers in the kitchen and bedroom as well as the bedroom closet, taking several pieces of jewelry. Nothing else appears to have been stolen.

The victim reported being approached by a woman she described as "strange" for directions before the victim discovered the break-in.

Meanwhile, at 11:55 a.m. on the same day in Grosse Pointe Farms, a resident who lives in the 400 block of Chalfonte said he was working in his front yard when he saw two women in their 20s or 30s emerge from the area alongside his house. He asked them what their business was and they said they were looking for their cat. The resident dismissed the incident until his wife came home and noticed pry marks on the door jamb leading from the garage to the house. Entry was not gained and nothing appeared to be missing from the house.

The women were described as being between 5-feet, 2-inches and 5-feet, 5-inches tall, with dark straight hair pulled away from their faces.

The alarm sent them running

One or more wily would-be thieves on June 1 cut a 2-foot by 2-foot hole through the roof of a store on Mack in Grosse Pointe Farms and pushed in the air-conditioning vent before setting off an audible alarm and fleeing the rooftop.

The store manager reported the incident after he opened the building in the morning and noticed the air conditioning vent hanging from the ceiling and debris on the floor.

During their investigation, Farms police recovered a pickax lying near the hole in the roof. Nothing appeared to be

House keeper sentenced

A 32-year-old Warren woman was sentenced to three years' probation, and to pay $1,000 in restitution and attend drug rehabilitation for her involvement in stealing an estimated $3,000 worth of property from the Grosse Pointe Farms home in which she was employed as a housekeeper.

Laurie Ann McCracken pleaded guilty to the charge of attempted larceny at her Feb. 28 arraignment and on April 17 was sentenced in Wayne County Circuit Court.

She was employed by a Farms family from Aug. 1995 to Jan. 1996, when the homeowner caught McCracken attempting to leave the house with a bag full of her possessions. An inventory after the incident revealed more than $3,000 worth of items had been taken from the house over the course of McCracken's employment.

for contractors. We expect to be finished with that in July."

Construction will take place in stages to keep disruptions to local neighborhoods to a minimum, Krajniak said.

The city's plan calls for separating the storm sewer lines from the sanitation sewer lines, so that during heavy storms rainwater, mixed with sanitation sewer water, does not overwhelm the system and have to be discharged into Fox Creek in Detroit. Once the project is completed, the connections to Fox Creek will be shut off.

"We begin in October and the plan calls for construction to be completed by May of 1998," said Krajniak. "We, hopefully, will be finished in less than two years."

Park man finds a way to help others

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park resident Tom McAninch witnessed an event that would determine the course of his life when he was 13.

"I grew up in the neighborhood of Mack and Courville in Detroit," said McAninch. "When I was young, I saw an elderly neighbor fall and injure his head. While he was on the ground, he suffered a heart attack. The adults in the neighborhood just stood around because they didn't know what to do. That man died, and it was then that I decided I was going to be involved in medicine."

When McAninch was 17, he joined the citizen band patrols sponsored by the local police precinct as a part of the Civilian Radio Emergency Watch (CREW) program.

CREW volunteers would stop and assist people at accident sites. They were trained

POINTER OF INTEREST

at the local precinct house and carried first aid and CPR cards. McAninch said it was this experience that got him interested in Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) work.

"I became an EMT in 1976, when I was 18," said McAninch. "After receiving my EMT designation, I was a volunteer in a few communities in Michigan, including South Rockwood, Royal Oak Township and Chelsea."

McAninch attended Michigan State Technical College at the Grand Rapids campus. After school he became a full-time EMT for Paramed, a private company that services local hospitals and communities.

On Dec. 8, 1984, while on his way to work, McAninch stopped at an accident site to see if there was anything he could do to help. While he was helping the young man who had hit a guardrail, he was hit by a car and thrown an estimated 500 feet. The hit-and-run driver was never found.

"They found my gloves and watch about 1,000 feet from where I was hit," McAninch said. "My injuries included a head injury, a crushed ankle, and broken ribs."

Doctors, said McAninch, spent nine years and 14 operations trying to repair the ankle, but on Dec. 2, 1993, almost nine years to the day of his accident, doctors performed a below-the-knee amputation on his right leg.

McAninch continued his EMT volunteer work during his rehabilitation, and was told by his doctors at Hutzel Hospital in Detroit that he had an above average knowledge of orthopedics, and was told that he should pursue a career in the field.

He took the suggestion and studied for two years under the supervision of orthopedic doctors at the hospital, and now works as an orthopedic assistant at Detroit Receiving Hospital. His responsibilities include patient education, purchasing and the application of medical devices like casts and braces.

While at Detroit Receiving, McAninch invented a new kind of pad to go with a Thomas splint, which suspends a leg in traction. The pad covers the groin area and protects the patient from pressure sores. It also works as a liquid absorber, keeping moisture away from the patient in case of an accident.

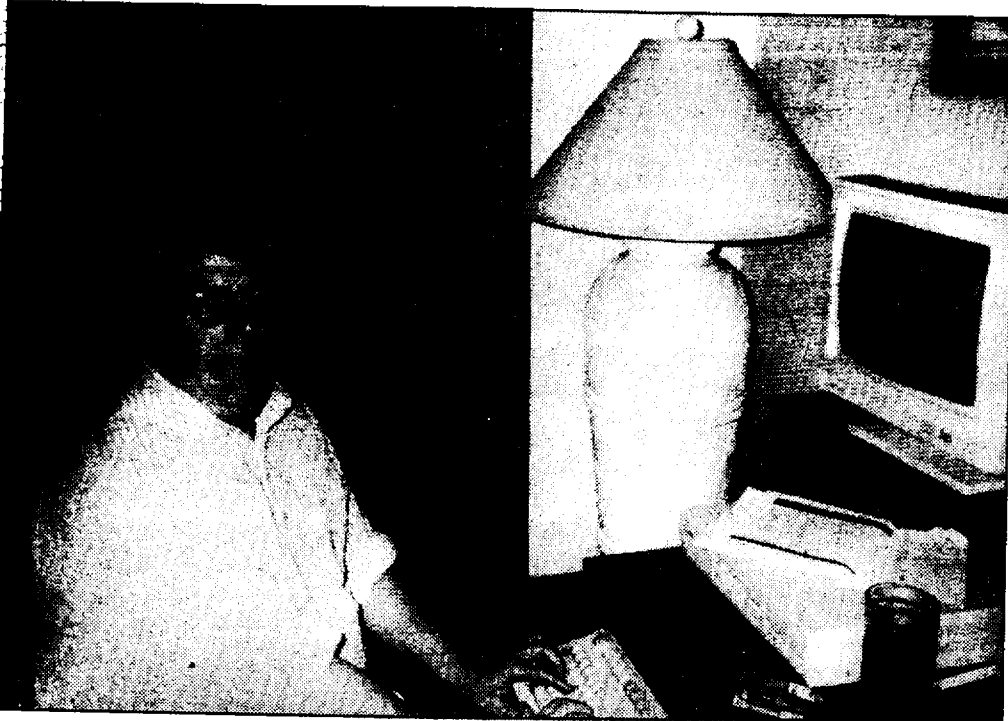

"My ideas and inventions are improvements on what already exists," said McAninch. "I do this in my spare time."

McAninch is still an EMT volunteer. He and his wife Lisa, who is legally deaf, and their three children, Joshua, Kenneth and Patrick, recently volunteered their services at the Wolverine 200, a bicycle race on Belle Isle, said McAninch. He was a first-aid volunteer, his wife worked in the kitchens and the kids helped set up the course and keep car traffic away from the bike track.

"I believe in family," McAninch said. "That's why living in the Park suits us so well. I also enjoy being by the water and seeing the boats leave and enter the docks."

The McAninchs are also known for their love of animals. The family currently owns two dogs, Duchess and Duke, both of whom were strays that were adopted by the family.

"My life is not boring," said McAninch. "Between my wife, my kids, my job and the dogs, I am kept pretty busy. I enjoy computers, so between the park and my computers, I have ways to deal with my stress."

Park resident Tom McAninch says that after a hard day, logging on to his computer provides a perfect tonic to the cares of moment. Photo by Jim Stickford

Ideology wars divide 7 GOP state parties

The battles between the regular Republicans and the ultraconservatives in their party are still continuing in at least seven states, and perhaps more, according to the New York Times.

The Times did not mention Michigan but here the battle seems to be over the allocation of 1996 national GOP convention delegates to Pat Buchanan's right-wing forces, who are claiming they did not get the delegates they had chosen.

In Minnesota and at least a half dozen other states, however, the battles are over even more serious matters.

In Minnesota, the Times reported, former GOP U.S. Sen. Rudy Boschwitz is planning to run for the GOP nomination for his old seat even though he failed to get the party endorsement at last week's convention.

Boschwitz, annoyed because he objects to the dominance of the far right in the party, challenged Bert McKasy, a former state commerce commissioner, for the endorsement, but neither could win the state GOP convention support.

However, Boschwitz still could make a strong race and possibly win the nomination to run against incumbent Democratic Sen. Paul Wellstone in the fall.

Two years ago, Minnesota's Gov. Arne Carlson was rejected by a GOP party convention in his bid for an endorsement, but went on to win re-election handily over his right-wing party foe and a Democratic-Farmer-Labor nominee.

Even in Kansas, the religious conservatives were annoyed at the appointment of the moderate Lt. Gov. Sheila Frahm to succeed to Robert Dole's Senate seat. She supports women's right to choose abortion.

However, she is expected to face a tough challenge in November from an incumbent GOP congressman, Sam Brownback, an opponent of abortion.

In an Illinois Senate race, Lt. Gov. Bob Kustra, a moderate Republican, had the support of the state's senior GOP leaders, including Gov. Jim Edgar, but was upset in the primary.

The victor was a little-known state legislator, Al Salvi, who opposes abortion and gun control, but Kustra reportedly would have been a much stronger foe for the Democratic congressman, Richard J. Durbin, who is leading in the polls.

In Indiana, a group of Republican women wrote a letter to the GOP apparent nominee, Dole, to warn the party against taking a stand against abortion in its national platform.

"It has been demonstrated time and time again that taking a party stand on the abortion issue destroys party unity and negatively impacts the campaigns of all Republican candidates," the letter said.

Other states reporting troubles within the party include Virginia, Tennessee, Nebraska and possibly others.

One GOP moderate, former New Jersey governor Thomas H. Kean, said he is "in a party that is becoming radicalized." That was the reason he bowed out of the race for the seat of the retiring Democratic senator, Bill Bradley.

If conservatives prevail in the GOP primaries, it would be harder for the party to win votes from independents and Democrats in the general elections, many moderates say, and we agree.

John J. Pitney Jr., a professor of government at Claremont McKenna College in California, told the Times that the "conflicts have reached a new intensity" because "the stakes are higher" after the big GOP victory in 1994.

That sounds about right, and helps explain the intensity of the current battles.

School plan offers high hopes

The draft of the preliminary Grosse Pointe School System's latest strategic plan raises new hopes that improvement in the district's public schools will continue at least through the year 2001.

Reactions from both the current majority and the minority on the school board were positive, a fact that was not particularly surprising since both sides were represented on the 28-member planning team.

That team also represented a cross-section of community residents, parents, students, teachers and administrative staff, and labor unions representing school employees.

The strategic plan, the third developed by the district since superintendent Ed Shine introduced the concept in 1987, calls upon the district to stretch substantial improvements forward through the year 2001 in the following areas:

"Quality learning standards; personalized educational goals; trust-building; reorganized, connected planning structures; essential technology advancement, and resourceful use of time and facilities."

However, completion of the plan requires additional steps. The next step in that process will come next fall when four new action teams are named to identify the steps to be taken to meet these new objectives.

After the four action plans are completed and thoroughly reviewed by the strategic planning team, the school board will then be asked to approve the content next spring, if all goes well.

The draft of the new mission set forth by the planning team reads as follows:

"The mission of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, as a leader committed to the highest quality teaching, is to ensure that all our students learn and apply the knowledge, skills and behaviors necessary to excel in their everchanging world by concentrating the efforts of students, staff, parents and community."

This report on the new preliminary strategic plan, in the view of retiring superintendent Shine, "was the easy part. Now the hard part is achieving the objectives set out in the mission. Remember the purpose is student learning. It is so easy to be diverted from that. Everything else is how to get there."

Actually, Grosse Pointe district residents will have the opportunity to assure the continuation of the progress that the new strategic plan calls for by paying close attention to their selections for the school board on June 10.

Whitewater a growing issue

Now that a federal grand jury in Arkansas has convicted President Clinton's former business partners and his successor as Arkansas governor, we can expect the Whitewater issue to play an even greater role in the 1996 presidential campaign.

Former Sen. Bob Dole, the presumed GOP nominee, has indicated he will not play politics with the case, but that promise obviously does not bind other Republicans. They think they have an issue, and they intend to make it one, whether that is a fair conclusion or not.

The convictions could raise doubts among voters in November, Washington's political pundits are saying, even though the president appeared only as a defense witness in the Arkansas case.

Just that appearance, however, is enough to give credence to many GOP claims about the Clintons' involvement in the Whitewater mess. Unfortunately for the Clintons, some of those doubts may be shared by independents who otherwise would be backing Clinton's re-election.

How the public in general reacts will not be fully known, of course, until election day, but the public opinion polls ought to tell us something as soon as the facts sink into the minds of the body politic.

Special counsel Kenneth Starr, a former official in the Justice Department under both GOP presidents Reagan and Bush, sounded enthusiastic about his chances of securing more Whitewater convictions.

That raises GOP hopes that one or both of the Clintons can be directly involved before November. If they are, they probably can kiss their re-election hopes good-bye.

Friend arrives for the summer

Welcome arrival in our back yard the other day was a tiny brown house wren which, however, selected probably the poorest of the four wren houses we had available on the premises.

This wren chose a wren house that has endured probably a dozen summers in Grosse Pointe and looks it. The roof is no longer fastened securely, the green paint is almost gone and the house probably will leak in a rainstorm.

But there the wren is, more or less safely ensconced in our back yard and ready, we hope, to spend the summer entertaining us with antics and song.

Not being offered any explanation, we don't really understand why this beautiful little bird and its partner entered, but then did not occupy, a fine new wren house, acquired in Maine during our travels last summer, to move into the oldest of our old houses.

Perhaps it was familiarity. Wrens have spent time in that old house in other years. But in choosing it, the wren failed to acquire summer rights to the new water-tight box that we had hoped for weeks would attract a wren's family this year.

Perhaps it still will. Wouldn't it be grand to have two visiting wren families living with us at the same time?

— Wilbur Elston

Christian Coalition & schools

Just how many school districts in Michigan now are being controlled directly or indirectly by the Christian Coalition?

In one, the Romeo district, candidates supported by the Christian Coalition, a national organization with conservative views, have controlled the school board for two years — and apparently will again after the Oct. 10 election.

The Lapeer school district was identified by the Detroit office of the American Civil Liberties Union as another in which right-wing forces and candidates have been promoting their viewpoints.

However, the director of the Detroit office, Howard Simon, says it is often difficult to identify the right-wing efforts because they often conduct "stealth campaigns" which do not become apparent until after elections.

He emphasized, however, that the ACLU plays no role in elections, except when First Amendment rights are involved. They cover freedom of the press as well as freedom of speech and religious freedom.

Peter Auchter, assistant editor of the Lapeer County Press, told the Grosse Pointe News that residents of that district have debated some of the issues, such as phonics and whole language, outcome-based-education and other issues similar to those arising in the Grosse Pointes.

However, we have no evidence that the Christian Coalition is attempting to influence the upcoming school election in Grosse Pointe.

By coincidence, the school board governing the Lapeer Community Schools also is split, 4-3, just as the Grosse Pointe board is, with a couple of seats to be filled on June 10.

The Lapeer community apparently regards it as a critical election, and the division has been a hot topic for discussion in soundoff columns and letters to the editor, just as it has been here, Auchter told the Grosse Pointe News.

The report about Romeo is based on a Detroit Free Press story last week that reviewed the success of the Christian Coalition in backing winning candidates in the Romeo district two years ago — and apparently is set to win again June 10.

The Free Press reported that the new board majority "uprooted the old school administration, threw out the school plan and set the schools on a course" that a hold-over board member, Nancy Duemling, finds "frightening."

On the other hand, the Free Press reported, "the new course is applauded by Glenn Clark, executive director of the Michigan Christian Coalition."

He believes, the Free Press said, that the change will protect children from learning with unproven experimental methods and from "being taught values that are in opposition to the parents."

The Romeo battle apparently began in 1993 when the school superintendent, George Harrison, issued a new strategic plan for the district.

The plan included the idea of "outcome-based education (OBE)," which permitted teachers to teach any way they wanted, as long as the students learned.

Apparently the district was divided over the issue with some parents seeing OBE as an about-face in teaching, the Free Press story said. Clark of the Christian Coalition, however, saw it as intrusion from the Michigan Education Association.

Since control shifted to Romeo Christian Coalition supporters, the board has voted to close the district's alternative high school, a board committee is studying sex education in the schools, and OBE is not mentioned in the new board's list of goals, replacing the strategic plan.

In addition, at least 16 educators have left the district since the superintendent was ousted in 1995, a removal that cost the district an estimated $200,000 when it bought out Harrison's contract.

Is this what happens when board members motivated by the Christian Coalition call the tune, regardless of the views of administrators, in making decisions about the courses offered and the way they are taught in our public schools?

Summers I've known

What has happened to my summer? We have become estranged, I fear, because we rarely see each other anymore. But don't blame me. I've tried to maintain the ties that once bound us so tight.

There was a time when we were inseparable, the dashing Mr. Summer Solstice and me. Nightfall — that dark and mysterious presence — and his cronies, storm squall and cold front, were the only ones who could cut in on our June-to-September waltzes.

Oh, what a couple we made. I'd rise early when he was in season, with the first shades of pale pink sunlight seeping through my shaded window, and I'd throw back the curtains and let his light and warmth fill the room.

As soon as possible, I'd steal away from the confines of my house and run with him over dew damp grasses, letting the ascending sun warm my skin.

Together we'd journey through the days, his powerful influence steering me from the duties and responsibility awaiting. He'd tempt me to explore new trails through the woods, to plunge into waters of unknown depths, to pedal my bicycle along roads that carried me to places reminiscent of times before my grandmother was born.

I'd run until my muscles

were sore, through swamps and fields, collecting souvenirs along the way: insect bites, a bronze complexion and cuts and scrapes that scarred my flesh for years to come.

But most of all, he gave me memories of vacations to places east, west, north and south and across an ocean. He gave me memories of long-lost friends corn-on-the-cob, soaking in butter and laced with salt; watching children turn out their pockets, dumping onto the floor their collection of shells, sticks and shiny stones; the symphony of crickets and cicadas at dusk; aurora borealis rippling across a starry sky; and the smell of wood smoke curling up from bonfires on the beach. All these things are summer to me.

Perhaps our estrangement is my fault. Did I turn my back on him when life got in the way? Was there a betrayal when my job kept me indoors in the warm months, where I had cheap flings with air conditioning and fluorescent lights?

Was it that finally his heat and brilliance became intolerable, sending me fleeing indoors, withered and nearly dehydrated?

So much has come between us: rolled up car windows, contaminated water and closed beaches, the specter of skin cancer and the appearance of those fine lines on the face.

And — perhaps the biggest betrayal of all — I've tried to develop better relationships with summer's neighbors — autumn, winter and spring.

I confess, winter's not such a bad guy if you learn to deal with him on his harsh and unpredictable terms. Spring and fall, however, are so fleeting and superficial you never feel you really know them.

But summer, despite the gulf that separates us, will always be the one for me. Thanks for the memories.

fyi

It was fur-eezing!

How cool has spring been around here?

For the real story, just ask the Fur Coat Ladies of Grosse Pointe.

“The women are hanging on to their furs because it's been so cold,” said Linda Salah, Jacobson's manager, confirming a report FYI heard last week that about 500 fewer coats have been checked in for storage, compared to this time last year.

Just so you'll know, at the end of the season Jake's usually counts about 5,000 furs waiting patiently for their owners to retrieve them in the fall.

— And yes, all the owners are women.

“I've never seen a man bring his coat in for storage,” says Linda.

Ken Eatherly

She'd fly a mile for a Camel

Eleanor Wickson, formerly of the Farms, wants to know why purple finches have included a cigarette butt in a nest they just built in a hanging basket outside her home.

It's so yucky, she wonders if the female will refuse to lay her eggs there now.

Eggs, schmeggs. My guess is that the birds just wanted an ashtray.

And the tobacco companies ought to be delighted. They've been looking for new markets for their products ever since people started giving them up.

Her icing is nicer

The Woods' Paula Stock is to cakes what Michelangelo was to the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel — people look up to the finished product and go “wow.”

One technique Paula developed, which she calls “elegant cutwork,” has won her worldwide recognition. She made her first example for the wedding of one of the chefs at Jimmy Schmidt's Rattlesnake Club when the bride wanted a cake to match the lace-like cutwork on her dress.

It caught on, and last August Paula was invited to demonstrate her skill at the International Cake Exploration Society Convention, an honor written up in this year's March-April issue of the British magazine “Sugarcraft.”

Isn't his wife's sweet hobby/business an occupational hazard, I asked Paula's husband, Patrick.

He smiled and shook his head. “Her figure's just fine,” he said. “She doesn't sample the wares.”

I can understand that. Judging from the pictures in the magazine, Paula's cakes are almost too beautiful to eat.

CyberPointes

From one end to the other, the Pointes now stretch into the Internet, in a big way.

A recent FYI World-Wide Web crawl using Prodigy and just one search method — Alta Vista — turned up a list reported as made up of over 10,000 separate items that mention the term “Grosse Pointe.”

Included in the first 200 listings are a Pointe community directory; North High phone numbers; a handbook for Pointe school counselors; descriptions of the St. John and Bon Secours health systems; a full-color map of G.P. and the surrounding area; an 11-page history of the Pointes from 1669 to the '80s; members and events of the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors; a series of articles on how to renovate Pointe houses; public school MEAP scores; and E-mail addresses for South High staffers.

There was also information on Grosse Pointe libraries, schools, houses for sale, restaurants, copies of the North High student newspaper, biographies of tennis star Aaron Krickstein and Republican politico Maurice Taylor Jr., and an impressionist painting of Godiva, the family's chocolate-colored Labrador retriever, by 8-year-old John Bedford, of the Park.

Letters

Voters can decide on own

To the Editor:

I think that the citizens of Grosse Pointe are tired of being treated like idiots by this newspaper and “citizens' groups” touting school board candidates.

The community has not been well-served by relentless attempts by this newspaper, the Taxpayers' Association, and the Network to characterize this election as a battle between the forces of good and evil rather than an election in which a field of qualified candidates agree on many important issues and disagree on others.

Let's all relax a little. The Prince of Darkness is not running for the Grosse Pointe Board of Education. The election of any one of these candidates will not herald the end of education as we know it.

The citizenry of Grosse Pointe is fully competent to compare candidates' qualifications and find our way to voting booths on June 10.

We needn't be defeated by our differences. Questioning is not insolence; dissent is not revolution. Labeling and stereotyping which sets neighbor against neighbor is taking a sad toll on those in the eye of the storm, our children.

Where dissent is not tolerated — no, welcomed — mediocrity reigns. Let's be careful what we wish for with our votes. We'll surely get it.

Elizabeth Schaefer
Grosse Pointe Park

I do critically examine issues but have always offered a positive solution and worked constructively toward achieving positive results.

Your allegations that I will join some “minority” or that any other candidate would mindlessly vote with one some faction or another is not just offensive to me, but I would think offensive to all the candidates. Open and constructive discussion from all viewpoints should be welcomed. Labeling people and their criticisms as negative and damaging merely because you disagree with them is not furthering this community's search for common ground.

Finally, claims that any candidate will damage our schools have no place in this election. While each of the five candidates may have different approaches to the issues I hope they all share with me with a common desire to improve our schools. As a mother of three children who will be in our public school system for the next 18 years, I can assure that I will do nothing to damage their public educational opportunities.

For reasons unbeknown to me, it is clear that the Grosse Pointe News has waged a relentless battle against certain school board candidates such as myself. In doing so you have only contributed to the divisiveness you claim to despise.

Michele Montagne Shield
School board candidate

their confidence, as well as help them learn some of life's many lessons.

To all their teachers who have helped them to excel academically and spiritually this past year, thank you. Without your guidance and support in good times and bad we wouldn't have been able to excel as both my children, Brian and Beth have. To those who have helped in the classrooms, and those who were in the offices keeping records and answering phones. The coaches who have helped strengthen them athletically, to the parents who have helped get them to where they are supposed to be (sometimes at conflicting times), to the babysitters who understand that a lost job may come due to rain and a canceled practice but are always there when I need them.

Congratulations to my children, Brian and Beth, for being two great kids and for grasping what life has to teach them in a positive way (most of the time). To their little sister, Sarah, who just goes with the flow no matter where that seems to take her. To my husband, Tim, another year full of car pools, practices and learning together, that life is full of surprises. A wonderful summer to all and thanks!

Christ Church Grosse Pointe rector Ted Cobden is not one to let the weather stop him from his annual wardrobe change.

On a chilly Sunday before last, Ted appeared in his usual Pentecost garb of red summer pants and white buck shoes, worn discreetly under his vestments.

Evie Cobden, who occasionally quips she's “the Rectorina,” explained that it's a Pentecost tradition her spouse has followed for years, no matter whether it's warm or cold outside.

“I've got the flames of the Spirit to keep me warm,” Ted told FYI, with just a bit of a twinkle in his eye.

Alexa closes in on the big one

Alexa Olzark sounded excited on the phone, and with good reason: She'd just won the title of Miss Teen Detroit, against 66 others in a contest that stresses beauty, talent and community involvement held Sunday before last in the auditorium of West Bloomfield High.

Next stop on the pageant circuit for the 19-year-old daughter of the Hon. Roland and Mrs. Halina Olzark, of the City, is the national Miss Teen America competition in Orlando in February.

“It all started when I placed in the top 40 for the Miss Teenage America contest (in '95),” said the South High grad, who went to MSU last year. Recognized for her community service, Alexa was a candy striper at St. John and Cottage hospitals and worked as a peace camp instructor among Detroit's poorer children.

“If I win this one, I'd like to go on to meet with young people in Grosse Pointe and teach them how to work with kids in the inner city,” she said.

Editorial divisive

To the Editor:

Your editorial “June 10 vote could damage G.P. schools” (May 30) in which you claim that certain “minority” candidates would take anything less than a “positive” approach to school issues was unconstructive and divisive.

Your claim that any candidate other than your endorsees will damage our schools is not supported by the facts.

With respect to taking a positive approach to school issues,

Thanks for a great year

To the Editor:

Another school year has just about come and gone and I would like to take the time to thank those who during the year have made parenting and life a whole lot easier.

To specifically name anyone would leave myself open to forgetting someone, so rather than do that I hope that you all will recognize yourself and how important you have been to my children and myself this past year. You have helped to build

Woods prepares for summer road repair

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

With the arrival of warm weather, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council recently approved spending $610,000 to repair city streets and catch basins.

"Every year the city spends money to repair streets," said director of public works Tom Whitcher. "For the fiscal year that begins on July 1, they voted to spend $610,000. That's about a third more than the city spent last year."

Construction should take about 90 days, lasting until the end of September, Whitcher said. The reason for the additional repair work is the need to fix damage done by water-main breaks and the need to repair catch basins and manholes in the street.

"In the past year, the city's suffered a number of water-main breaks," said Whitcher. "Repairing a break means digging up the street, and sometimes a resident's front yard. Some residents have been waiting a year for things like sod repair and permanent concrete infrastructure repair outside the district designated for repairs this year."

"We divide the city up into eight districts," said Whitcher. "We then concentrate on doing maintenance work in a different district every year. It takes a cycle of eight years to cover the entire city. This year we are making repairs and improvements in district two."

District two ranges from Marter to Wedgewood and Vernier to the St. Clair Shores city line, said Whitcher.

"Street repair means traffic disruptions," Whitcher said.

"But we haven't met with the construction company, Florence Cement Co., to work out a schedule. That will happen in the next few weeks."

"We'll try our best to make sure that the repair process is as convenient as possible, but it can't be completely disruption free," said Whitcher.

Laskowski resigns from Shores council

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

Opting to spend more time with his family and his patients, Ronald Laskowski announced his resignation from the Grosse Pointe Shores village council.

Laskowski, director of emergency medicine at Bon Secours Hospital, and his family have moved to St. Clair Shores.

"Things were getting carried away with various meetings that spun off from things I was doing," he said. "I just wanted to spend more time with my family. We put our house on the market and it sold within two hours."

Laskowski was appointed Grosse Pointe Shores clerk in 1993, replacing the late James Wright, who was appointed to a vacant council seat. When Wright died in 1994, Laskowski succeeded him on the council.

"I enjoyed the time I spent on the council," Laskowski said. "It was a wonderful experience."

He will continue as medical director for the Shores, City and Park, helping with paramedic training.

The Shores council has not made any decisions regarding Laskowski's replacement.

State of Michigan Internet home page is an 85,000 hit

The State of Michigan home page on the Internet's World Wide Web has been a big success after more than 10 months online, providing residents with easy access to state government and a wealth of information.

The award-winning site has recorded more than 85,000 hits — or visits — since its inception on June 30, 1995.

"The Internet has been everything we hoped and more as far as putting people in touch with the State of Michigan," Gov. John Engler said. "It's a remarkable innovation that has made state government much more accessible and understandable for thousands of residents."

Visitors to the State of Michigan home page can explore links to the Senate and House of Representatives, as well as 25 executive branch sites. All but seven of the state's 18 departments are fully linked to the Michigan home page.

The strength of the site is that it has something for everyone, Engler said. Among the diverse offerings: a senior citizen resource directory at the Office on Aging site, information on the state's scrap tire program at the Department of Environmental Quality, AFDC statistics and "Achiever of the Month" profiles at the Family Independence Agency, existing and proposed administrative rules at the Office of Regulatory Reform, a statewide road construction report at the Department of Transportation and a seasonal calendar of events at the Travel Bureau site.

The governor's office site features daily news releases and important speeches and in the future may include lists of board and commission members appointed by the governor. Film clips of Engler were recently added to the home page, making it one of only a few state sites nationwide to offer video recordings.

The site also has an E-mail address, which receives messages from an average of 8 to 10 visitors each day.

Many people visit the Michigan site each day. The number of hits on the state's home page over a 24-hour period currently averages between 500 and 800. Other sites within state government are drawing visitors as well, Engler said.

The Michigan Information Center site in the state's Department of Management and Budget (DMB) provides demographic, economic, geographic and educational data on the state and has received more than 59,000 hits since it went online in July 1995. The DMB home page has recorded over 7,300 hits since its startup in February of this year. New sites, like the state's Office of Retirement Systems home page, which started earlier this month, are recording a hundred hits or more each week.

Continuously expanding, the State of Michigan home page should be an even more interesting place to visit by the end of the summer, Engler said. A new, easier-to-use format is planned and connections to the following departments and offices are expected over the next few months:

• Department of Agriculture: Online by June 15, the site will feature news releases, department information, a Michigan Marketplace section featuring state products, and eventually, a Kid's Corner and information on industry licenses.

• Department of Attorney General: Online by July 1, the site will feature news releases, department information, attorney general opinions, consumer information and brochures on various legal questions.

• Department of Civil Rights: Online by July 1, the site will feature news releases, department services information, text of civil rights laws, publications and brochures and links to other civil rights and government pages.

• Department of Civil Service: Online by June 15, the site will feature news releases, advisory letters, civil service rules, compensation plan information, class specifications and eventually, job opening postings.

• Department of Corrections: Online by Oct. 1, the site will feature news releases, department spending data, new program information and the latest prison population numbers and projections.

• Lottery Commission: Online by July 1, the site will feature winning lottery numbers, a message from the commissioner and possibly news releases.

The State of Michigan home page can be found on the Internet's World Wide Web at (<http://www.migov.state.mi.us>). The governor's office site is located at (<http://www.migov.state.mi.us/migov.html>).

A memorial service was held on Tuesday, May 28, in Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for City of Grosse Pointe resident Arlene Marie Creech, who died on Saturday, May 25, 1996, in St. John Hospital in Detroit due to complications from ovarian cancer.

Mrs. Creech, 54, was born in Pontiac and graduated from Michigan State University in 1964. She was a teacher in the Grosse Pointe school system, and belonged to many local organizations, including the Junior League of Detroit, the Pettipointe Questers, and was a deacon in the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. She enjoyed antiques, gardening, travel and her volunteer work.

Mrs. Creech is survived by her husband, Tory; a daughter, Hadley; a son, Jason; a sister Loretta Wood; a brother, David Dean; and her mother, Marie Dean.

Interment is in Benzonia, Mich. Funeral arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park. Memorial contributions may be made to Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore Drive, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., 48236.

Gertrude Andrew Borden

A funeral service was held on Friday, May 31, in the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods for Grosse Pointe Shores resident Gertrude Andrew Borden, who died in the Bon Secours Nursing Care Center on Tuesday, May 28, 1996.

Mrs. Borden, 92, was born in Ontario, Canada, and graduated from London High School in 1921. A homemaker, she enjoyed gardening and traveling, especially in foreign countries. She also belonged to several singing groups.

Mrs. Borden is survived by her daughter, Beverly Frey; a son, Douglas; a sister, Mae Saunders; seven grandchildren; and 13 great-grandchildren. She was predeceased by her husband, Lang, and a son, Donald.

Interment is at Woodlawn Cemetery. Funeral arrangements were handled by the

A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Memorial donations may be made to the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church memorial fund, 17150 Maumee, Grosse Pointe, Mich., 48230.

Lillian Hicks

A funeral service will be held in Christ Church Grosse Pointe in Grosse Pointe Farms at 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 8, for former City of Grosse Pointe resident Lillian Hicks, who died on Monday, May 20, 1996.

Mrs. Hicks, 100, was born in Lima, Ohio, and after finishing her school, she went to New York, where she was a performer. She appeared in such venues as Tanglewood, the Fisher Theater and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. Hicks was a member of many local theater groups, including the Grosse Pointe Theater, where she last performed at the age of 81 in the play "A Little Night Music." She also enjoyed painting, and exhibited locally.

Mrs. Hicks was predeceased by her husband, Charles. She will be interred in Lima, Ohio. Memorial donations may be made to the Detroit Opera House, 1526 Broadway, Detroit, Mich., 48226.

Gilbert Yaeger, DPM

A funeral Mass was celebrated in Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Woods on Wednesday, June 5, for Woods resident Gilbert Yaeger, DPM, who died in the Georgian East Nursing Home in St. Claire Shores.

Dr. Yaeger, 89, was born in Detroit and graduated from the University of Detroit and the Ohio School of Podiatry. He maintained a private practice in Detroit and Grosse Pointe.

Dr. Yaeger was a member of several clubs and organizations, including the Michigan Podiatry Association, the Lochmoor Club, the English Speaking Club and the Circumnavigator's Club.

Dr. Yaeger is survived by his wife, Helen; two daughters, Joan Sphire and Marilyn Pelkey; a brother, Edgar; 13 grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren. He was predeceased by a daughter, Marilyn Kaull.

Interment is at Resurrection Cemetery in Clinton Township. Funeral arrangements were handled by the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Clark Durant to address Senior Men

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe will hold its next luncheon meeting at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, on Tuesday, June 11, at 11:15 a.m.

The guest speaker will be Clark Durant, president of the Michigan State Board of Education. He will discuss "Education in the 21st Century."

Durant is noted for his background in education and real estate, as well as his excursions into the political arena. His long-time interest in education gives him a firm platform from which to appraise the future of Michigan schools. While club members no longer have children in local schools, we all have concerns for the future of our grandchildren. Durant will be presented by William Carleton.

Durant

While the Senior Men's Club endeavors to provide a wide range of activities for the retired men of the Grosse Pointes, the luncheon meeting is the core activity. Attendance at these meetings is the means by which each member meets the body of the club and begins to reap the true benefits of membership.

Retired Grosse Pointers interested in membership should contact Joe Fromm or a friend who is a member.

The next special event sponsored by the club is "Ladies Night" on June 27. Any one wanting to attend this dinner-dance should contact Ed Haug by June 20.

Calling all outstanding seniors

Two seniors who excel as leaders or volunteers will be honored in August at the Michigan State Fair. Last week, on Senior Citizens Day in Michigan, the State Office of Services to the Aging (OSA) began its search for these people.

"As we draw a close to Michigan Week, I am pleased that we are able to focus on the annual Senior Citizen of the Year Awards as a part of this celebration," said Carol M. Parr, acting director of OSA.

For more than 25 years, OSA and the State Fair have recognized outstanding seniors. For the past several years, Consumers Power Co. has joined the initiative, presenting the winners with a cash award. The only set criteria for eligibility to receive the award is that the nominee must be age 60 or older by Aug. 2. One award is presented for leadership, the other for volunteerism.

Often the winners are unsung heroes, said Parr. "Their names might be unfamiliar to most, but their deeds impact a great number of people." Parr believes that without the type of people nominated for this award, many senior centers wouldn't run as smoothly, many community and civic events would fail and many services rendered in the community for those in need, would go lacking.

"My only regret is that we aren't able to recognize all volunteers with these awards — that we have to select only one in each category because they are all truly winners," she said.

The two adults selected for the award will be honored at a ceremony at the Michigan State Fair on Aug. 26. In addition to state recognition, Consumers Power is again underwriting a cash award to the winners for the fifth consecutive year. Only organizations may submit nominees. Forms may be obtained through the State Office of Services to the Aging, or through any of Michigan's Area Agencies on Aging. Nominations must be post-marked by Aug. 2.

"I look forward to presentation of Senior Citizen of the Year Awards this Year at the State Fair," Parr said. "I hope people will start the process now to nominate that outstanding senior who might otherwise go unrecognized."

Program introduces Reiki at War Memorial

Reiki, a technique for healing and relaxation using guided life force energy, will be taught during an intensive workshop on Saturday, June 15, from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the War Memorial.

An information night is scheduled for Friday, June 14, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. The fees are $25 for the information night only, $150 for the workshop only. It is not necessary to attend the information night to participate in Saturday's workshop. Instructor is William Rand, founder of the Center of Reiki Training of Southfield, and a student of Reiki grand master, Phyllis Furmoto.

The word Reiki means spiritually guided life force energy. Practitioners of Reiki have the ability to tap into the life force energy to improve health and enhance the quality of life.

The technique allows the individual to transmit the energy to himself and others through the hands. Thought to have originated in Tibet thousands of years ago, Reiki was rediscovered by a Japanese Buddhist monk in the 19th century.

Saturday's workshop includes lecture, discussion, demonstration, practice as well as Reiki attunement. Participants receive a class manual and certificate.

For more information, call (313) 881-7511. Advance registration is suggested. Mastercard and Visa accepted.

Senior Men honor North, South grads

At its last meeting, the Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe honored 21 graduating members of the senior classes at North and South high schools. They were addressed by George Weeks, noted political columnist for The Detroit News. Each student, who had reached highest standings, received a commemorative plaque and a copy of Weeks' book, "Stewards of the State".

'Paying taxes isn't enough' for Shores man and wife

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

What's so unusual about someone quietly slipping a check into the pocket of a politician?

Plenty, thought Shores President John Huetteman III, after Shores resident Chester Kaczmarek handed him a check for $2,000 at the Mayors' Prayer Breakfast on May 3. Huetteman preferred that the transaction take place in front of the village council at the May 29 Shores council meeting.

The reason for Kaczmarek's gift to the village?

"We honestly feel we wouldn't be alive if not for the EMS here," he said.

Of the Shores' eight "death-to-life" saves since the village instituted its Emergency Medical Service in the early '90s, Chester and Irene Kaczmarek have accounted for three; twice for her and once for him.

All Shores officers are emergency medical technicians and are supplemented by paramedics from Taylor Ambulance Service.

The paramedics are able to communicate with the hospital and administer intravenous medication.

"People have asked why I am doing this; 'you already pay taxes,' they've said," said Kaczmarek, who marked the couple's 25th year as residents of the Shores and 54 years of marriage in May. "Just paying taxes isn't enough. We're lucky to be alive and living in Grosse Pointe Shores."

The money will be put in a special fund designated for EMS training.

Grosse Pointe Shores President John Huetteman III, left, accepts a $2,000 check from Shores residents Chester and Irene Kaczmarek.

"We honestly don't feel we wouldn't be alive if not for the Emergency Medical Service here," Chester Kaczmarek said.

Detroit Edison 'turns on' solar facility; more planned

Detroit Edison recently dedicated the nation's first centralized solar power generating facility supported by customers purchasing renewable energy under a supplemental "green rate."

The utility also announced plans to build three additional solar energy systems in its southeastern Michigan service area in response to customer interest.

The utility's new 28.4-kilowatt (kw) solar, or photovoltaic, power generating facility is on the grounds of the Michigan Electric Power Coordination Center in nearby Scio Township. Construction began earlier this year after nearly 200 Detroit Edison customers subscribed to a special "SolarCurrents" rate.

Under the program, subscribers agreed to pay an additional $6.59 per month for each 100 watts of service. Each 100-watt block will provide a customer with about 140 kilowatt-hours of electricity per year.

SolarCurrents is the first program in the United States where utility customers have the choice of purchasing a portion of their electricity from a central solar power facility delivered by the utility's electric grid. Other similar solar facilities, primarily in the Southwest, are subsidized by all utility customers or a group of customers paying into a fund.

"This solar energy generating facility is just the first phase of what we hope will be a nationally recognized solar energy program," said Anthony F. Earley Jr., president and chief operating officer of Detroit Edison.

"It will help offset carbon dioxide emissions from fossil power plants and hopefully serve as a catalyst for more solar energy installations."

The new SolarCurrents facility will reduce the utility's carbon dioxide emissions by about 87,000 pounds annually. It was built at a cost of $250,000, including $116,000 in funding from the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE).

Earley said Detroit Edison has requested additional DOE funding for the three new facilities.

The expanded program will cost $1.6 million and have an output of 160 kw. It would include:

- Two 30-kw facilities serving residential customers and schools sponsored by commercial customers.

- A 100-kw facility serving an industrial customer.

"We believe that the use of small- and large-scale solar energy facilities will benefit our customers and Detroit Edison," Earley said. "But we need the support of our customers to make this vision a reality."

Earley said that the SolarCurrents program will help accelerate the commercialization of photovoltaic systems because mass production will lower costs. Without federal funding, he added, Detroit Edison could not have offered the program at a price affordable to its customers.

The SolarCurrents facility began commercial operation May 1. The system, which feeds its power to the Detroit Edison electric grid, is expected to produce about 40,300 kilowatt-hours of electricity annually using 120 solar panels. That equals the amount of electricity produced by 14 rooftop residential solar installations.

A photovoltaic system will produce energy most efficiently in Michigan from May through August. But even in cloudy weather, the system can produce energy from available light throughout the year.

The Utility PhotoVoltaic Group (UPVG), a consortium of 79 electric utilities including Detroit Edison, secured $116,300 in federal funds to pay a portion of the Ann Arbor facility's construction costs. Photovoltaic systems today cost about $8,000 per kw to install, compared with $300 to $1,000 per kw for conventional power sources.

UPVG and the Department of Energy have joined in an effort to encourage new systems. Formed in 1992, UPVG's mission is to increase and accelerate electric utility use of small- and large-scale solar energy facilities.

GOP to host candidate forums

The Eastside Republican Club will host its Judicial Candidate Forum for those seeking seats on the Wayne County Circuit Court and the Michigan Court of Appeals on Tuesday, June 18, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

John Stempfle, Eastside Republican Club chairman says, "Unfortunately, the public is not aware of the many fine judges we have on the bench. We planned this event so voters could get to know who is running for these important offices."

Moderating the forum will be Eastside Republican Club director Tom McCleary of Grosse Pointe Farms. Each candidate will have a limited time to speak. They then will answer written questions submitted by the audience.

Also, the July 16 Eastside Republican Club Forum will feature candidates running for the state representative and Wayne County commissioner seats in the August primary election.

The Eastside Republican Club meets the third Tuesday of each month at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms. The public is always welcome.

For more information about the Eastside Republican Club, telephone (810) 358-7336.

Seal good pictures with a smart KISS

As my photography students all know, I like to promote the idea of the KISS theory in my classes. No, it doesn't mean smooching with the student next to you. KISS means to "keep it smartly simple," to be smart and to maintain a simplicity in your photographs.

Good writers, for example, don't clutter up their work with superfluous words.

They get right to the heart of the matter which makes their writing easier to understand.

You'll also find a simplicity of style and content in many of the great paintings that we all enjoy.

Similarly with our photography, keeping things simple will often result in impact shots that will capture our attention.

One of the best ways to apply the KISS theory in photography is to simply move in close and express a single idea.

A close-up of a rusted latch on a weathered barn door can tell a lot about the barn as a whole.

A well-executed, intimate shot of a single bud will usually have more impact than a picture of an entire garden of flowers.

How about a simple photo of a flower-laden window ledge in a small French village?

As in all good photography, watch your backgrounds.

Simplifying your compositions also means simplifying the background.

Look for backgrounds that are uncluttered or select a background that complements the subject.

Remember, a well done shot that utilizes the KISS theory and contains the essence of the whole will reward you with a photograph of which you'll be proud.

Nothing wrong at all with shooting the whole waterfall. But how about trying to keep it simple and photograph just a portion? Monte Nagler took this intimate scene in Hocking Hills, Ohio.

Volvo 850: A square and safe deal

OK, let's get past the most obvious feature of the Volvo 850 right off the bat — it's square.

Rather than falling in with the industry trend toward hip, swoopy styling, the Volvo 850 looks like something out of the Reagan years. So does the Volvo 950.

So looks are not the 850's strong point. What is? How about safety, comfort, convenience and performance which belies its stodgy styling? That's not enough? How about value? The Volvo 850's base price starts at $26,125 for manual shift, $27,100 for automatic.

Now, that is for the "entry-level" Volvo. The upscale GLT weighs in at $30,175 for a well-equipped automatic. And if you have to have hotter performance — the standard 850 is no slouch — Turbos start at $32,650 and run up to $38,335 for the top-of-the-line Turbo wagon.

For a while it looked like the Volvo was going to abandon its traditional market slot in the middle range as each new model drifted upward toward the luxury class. But this year's 850 and 950 (the 950 is slightly larger and is rear-drive; the 850 is front-drive. Base prices of the 950 are $33,960 for the sedan and $35,260 for the five-door wagon) are very attractive mid-range cars.

Volvo is, of course, most famous as the darling of the safety set and this year's has more safety equipment designed into it than any other car on the market.

In addition to the usual front air bags, all Volvos are equipped with side-impact air bags for 1996. The Volvo's head restraint is generally regarded as the most effective, although it also interferes with rear vision.

The side air bags, contained in the front seatback, are mechanically triggered rather than activated through the complex electronic sensing systems of front air bags.

The side air bags are part of Volvo's unique Side Impact Protection System, designed to absorb energy from a side impact and direct it away from front-seat occupants. The system channels any impact to the opposite side of the car and downward into the floorpan. Only two manufacturers currently offer this vital feature. In the Mercedes-Benz, the air bags are in the front doors. Volvo contends its placement of the bags in the seat backs is better, since the seat may be adjusted forward or backward, but seat-mounted bags maintain the same proximity to the human they must protect.

About one in three Volvos sold in the United States are station wagons, like this boxy but roomy 850.

Volvo 850 sedan's traditional styling provides some positive benefits in comfort and convenience.

Ford Motor Co. apparently agrees, as it has announced it will have seat-mounted side bags in a couple of years.

Other standard safety devices include four-wheel antilock brakes on all models, three-point safety belts at all five seating positions, rollover protection, crush zones, daytime running lights, and child-proof rear door locks.

To emphasize its confidence in the safety of its products, Volvo Cars of North America provides drivers and occupants of 1996 Volvos with a unique insurance policy from the Chubb Group of Insurance Companies, which in the event of a loss of life due to a collision pays $250,000 to the estate of the deceased, up to a limit of $1 million.

Safety is vital, of course, but it is not the only reason for buying a particular car. The Volvo 850 ranks among the very best cars in its price category in terms of comfort, luxury, handling, performance and fuel economy (EPA ratings of 29 mpg highway, 20 city).

Our test base 850 sedan was powered by the standard 2.4-liter, 168 hp five-cylinder engine that put power through a smooth-shifting automatic transmission. The brakes are superb.

One-third of all Volvos sold are wagons, a staggering figure given today's decline in that vehicle shape. But then Volvo does not market a minivan. So if you want a family hauler and it has to be a Volvo, the wagon is a logical choice.

Navy reunions are scheduled

A Navy reunion for former crew members of the USS Sylvania (AKA-44 and AFS-2), including air detachments, will be held July 18-21 at the Hyatt Regency Woodfield in Schaumburg, Ill.

Shipmates should supply all names and addresses to John D. Pierce, 6631 Halloway Lane, Lansing, Mich. 48917.

For further information, call Pierce at (517) 335-9857 after 6 p.m. or at (517) 321-5102 between 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Anyone who served on the USS Mars (AFS-1), including air detachments, might wish to contact Duane M. Day, 7274 Wood Street, Warren, Mich., 48091, (810) 759-4195 for information on a proposed reunion.

A proposed Navy reunion for former crew members of the USS Niagara Falls (AFS-3), including air detachments, is being planned.

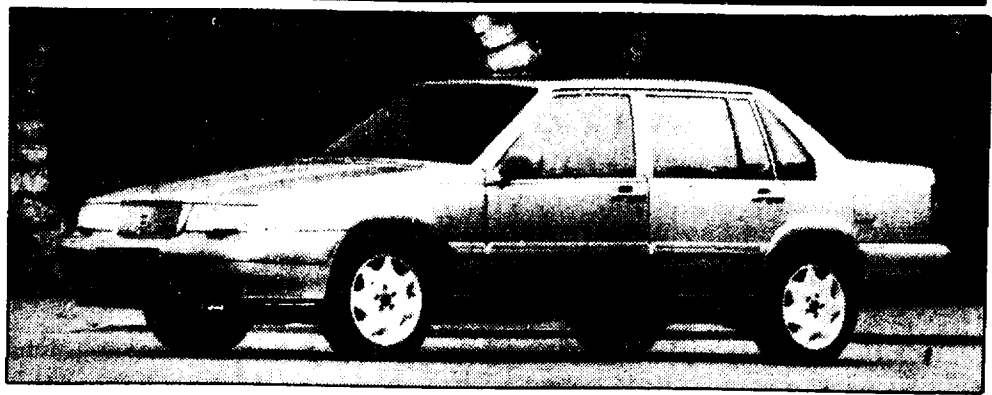

Shipmates should supply all names and addresses to Phil Davidson, 1000 Fountain Terrace #206, Lewistown, Mont. 59457.

For further information, call Davidson at (406) 538-9517.

But whether you select a four-door sedan (854) or five-door wagon (855), the conservative styling has some positive advantages. There are no long steeply raked windshields, low roofs, huge doors, invisible car fronts and rears, or Coke-bottle sides. So there are fewer bumped heads, less water pouring off the roof into the car, better visibility from outside mirrors, and easier cleaning of your windshield.

This is not a perfect car, but for the price it is a great car. To paraphrase Pennsylvania, you have a friend in Sweden, who cares about your safety. (Your Volvo may have been built in Nova Scotia, but it was engineered and designed in Sweden.)

It takes some serious study to tell this 109-inch wheelbase Volvo 950 from its 105-inch wheelbase 850 sister.

If an engine shows a loss of power that is not linked to routine causes, a shift in valve timing due to a partially failed cam belt may be suspected. The function of the cam belt is to maintain a fixed relationship between the crankshaft and the camshaft (which revolves to open the engine's intake and exhaust valves) at all times. In the event that some of the teeth are worn off the belt, it may change the position of the crankshaft relative to the camshaft to reduce engine compression and power. If the cam belt has stretched or the belt tensioner is improperly adjusted, the cam belt can jump on the cam sprocket to alter the relationship between the crankshaft and the camshaft. If a direct check of the valve timing confirms that the cam belt has stretched or become broken, it should be replaced immediately.

When it comes to ensuring your engine's top performance, make sure you have a shop you can rely on for expert assistance. When you wonder whom to trust, ask the automotive experts who guarantee you'll receive the careful attention and thorough car care that will merit your investment in us. At RINKE TOYOTA, we have the cars you want at prices you'll like, and we have a terrific service department, too. Why not stop in and browse? You can reach us at 758-2000, or stop in and see us at 25420 Van Dyke. Giving you the care you need when you need it is our desire.

HINT: It is sound maintenance practice to replace a cam belt as a preventive measure every 50,000 miles or so.

Car fires a growing danger, AAA says

Vehicle fires are increasing, and while they are terrifying to experience and can be dangerous, most can be prevented with simple maintenance.

According to the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), there are some 331,460 vehicle fires in the United States annually.

On average, these non-crash-related fires claim 458 lives, injure more than 2,100 people and cost nearly $600 million in property damage.

Michigan recorded 12,776 passenger vehicle fires in 1994, up more than 10 percent from 1993. This means that a non-crash-related passenger vehicle fire is recorded about every 40 minutes in Michigan.

The good news is, if a fire does start, quick response can reduce potential injuries and fatalities.

More than two-thirds of all car fires start in the engine area, along the drive train, or in the wheel areas. "Good maintenance is the key to preventing under-the-hood fires," says Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan community safety services manager.

Spotting leaks
Pay special attention to fluid systems. All hoses, pipes, and caps should be secure and in good condition. Leaks should be repaired as soon as possible. Gasoline, hydraulic fluids and oil are highly combustible; all they need is an ignition source. In fact, gasoline or other automotive fluid is the first material ignited in about 42 percent of all car fires nationwide.

Whenever you smell gasoline, notes Basch, it's critical to locate the source immediately and resolve the problem to avoid a buildup of fumes.

Above all, never store gas in a car or truck, and when transporting gasoline, use a container made specifically for that purpose.

Shorts and sparks
Electrical systems deserve attention. These problems account for one of five car fires, so malfunctions should be resolved immediately. "Shorts cause heat because the wire is carrying too much current," says Basch. "That starts insulation on fire."

Do-it-yourselfers — especially those who install electrical accessories themselves — run the greatest risk.

They may inadvertently reroute wires closer to a heat source than originally intended.

All wires should be held by bushings or tie-wraps, and connections should be tight to prevent resistance that causes overheating.

Battery cables should be tight and corrosion-free to prevent "sizzling."

Basch urges do-it-yourself mechanics who cut and splice wire to avoid routing wires where the insulation might abrade, and be sure to insulate all splices.

Hot spots
Fires often start from a combination of failures related to poor maintenance — research shows that electrical fires in the engine compartment are usually fed by oily deposits.

Routine maintenance by a trained technician can uncover a potential hazard before it causes trouble.

The older the vehicle and the harder it's used, such as pulling trailers, the greater the likelihood of fire due to problems from normal wear and aging.

Four steps to survival
If you encounter a car fire while driving, experts recommend:

1) Stop on the side of the road as soon — and as safely — as possible. Set the parking brake and place the transmission in the park position.

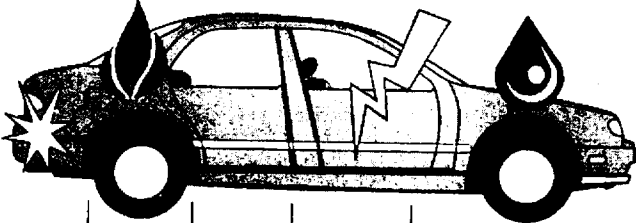

2) Turn off the ignition. While the ignition is on, the fuel pump may continue to pump fuel to the fire.

3) Evacuate everyone. Car explosions are extremely rare, so there is generally time to get everyone out. But don't delay; the fire can spread rapidly, and fumes pose a major threat.

4) Get far away and call "911." Don't go after valuables or try to fight the fire. Do not open the hood. You risk not only burning your hand, but also feeding oxygen to the fire and creating a fireball.

Fighting a car fire should be left to professional firefighters, Basch added.

WHAT CAUSES CAR FIRES

Backfire	Incendary Causes	Other	Electrical Problems	Mechanical Problems, Leaks
12%	16%	20%	21%	31%

Car fires are on the rise in Michigan. Mechanical problems are the most common cause. Good maintenance can prevent most fires.

Open letter to the Grosse Pointe Community:

First of all, I would like to thank the 5264 citizens who voted for me last June.

It sure has been an interesting 11 months! I've been asking lots of questions, checking out how our kids are being taught and trying to make sure we get our money's worth for our tax dollars.

It seems like some of the folks who didn't vote for me are still fussing over not having their person in my seat. I guess that's why they keep calling me:

- "Tax cutting conniver"
- "Destroyer of our school system"
- "Imposer of hidden agendas"
- "Avowed Conservative"

It appears some would rather I just nod my head and vote for everything the administration recommends!

Having differing opinions isn't bad, so I'll keep requesting the proper information, insisting we live within our budget and try to insure Grosse Pointe maintains its reputation for providing the best K-12 education in Michigan. I'm sure we can do it, because we have some of the most talented and dedicated teachers anywhere!

I must admit I have been disappointed these last months in how the local and Detroit newspapers can only exaggerate and invent differences between Board members and current candidates. I don't think this election is "Down and Dirty" as was reported in the newspaper. I feel all candidates have acted and presented themselves in a proper and professional manner. I also think the school system will not be "Destroyed" or "Damaged" regardless of who is elected. And, I really don't believe the Board is going to be taken over by "Radical Right Extremists!!"

After working with the Board for almost a full year I can confidently say each and every Board member has our children's education as their first and highest priority and I'm certain each current candidate also shares these values.

It seems a shame that I must spend my own money to inform the public of the positive things this Board has accomplished. For example, you probably don't know this because it was never printed in this paper. We settled with the custodians union! The new 3 year contract allows for the school employees to bid on jobs we usually outsource. It also provides for the elimination of hiring additional custodians during the summer because the employees agreed to schedule their vacations so we don't have to hire substitutes. All in all, the new contract won't cost the district any additional money and it could save us up to $100,000 a year. We are proud of this win-win accomplishment and how the union worked with us for a common goal. Additionally, only last Monday night, the Board voted 7-0 to install a multi-grade pilot program at Trombly. Board members asked interesting and informed questions and gave their OK to a new and exciting program.

I invite you to tune into our Board meetings. They are televised LIVE on channel 6 the first two Mondays of the month. See for yourself what happens at Board meetings and don't just rely on what is printed in newspapers. The whole broadcast is produced by the students in the TV production class. They are using the newly purchased TV truck and equipment and are doing a great job.

I offer this challenge to the local newspapers: stop adding to the rumors and dissension in this community and if you really are for the "positive" things in Grosse Pointe, start reporting the pluses and not just the minuses.

Club gets down in dirt for beauty's sake

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

How's this for a club? Meetings are held as they are needed — outdoors, on nice days. Members only need to have an interest in preserving the appearance of Grosse Pointe South High School's front lawn. Everyone is welcome to join.

Dubbed the Front Lawn Club, the first meeting — a massive planting of annuals — was held from 3:30 to 6 p.m. last Thursday, May 30.

Parents, students and South families gathered on the landmark green space in front of the 68-year-old high school building at the corner of Grosse Pointe Boulevard and Fisher. They planted hundreds of new blooms around the school sign, around the Cleminson Hall portico and in planter boxes along Fisher, adjacent to the school's historical marker.

"We wanted to find a way to get the students involved in taking pride in the front of their school," said Paul Pagel, assistant principal at South. He and Lisa Gandelot, who is active in historical preservation efforts at the school, founded the club.

"We feel if they have invested the time in planting the flowers, they will do less littering and will have more concern about the lawn and stop others from littering," Pagel said.

Gandelot, who was a class of 1993 sponsor, was integral in obtaining the brick sign at the corner of Fisher and Grosse Pointe Boulevard and the historical marker on Fisher, said she has been planting annuals and perennials on the front lawn for the last three years. She thought it was time "to get some other people involved in the project."

Flowers were donated by the family of a former South student, Pagel said. The project has two goals: enhance the beauty of the lawn area for the upcoming commencement exercises and maintain that look for the whole summer.

Club members have signed up to periodically water and weed the flower beds throughout the summer, he said.

In the past the school's custodial staff took care of maintaining the lawn area. But Pagel hopes that student involvement will lead to student concern for their campus.

Neighborhood Club offers a camp for your tiny tots

Once again, the Grosse Pointe Neighborhood Club will offer Tot Camp for children aged 3 and 4 (as of Dec. 1, 1996).

The professionally organized program will include arts and crafts, games, story-telling, and a special theme for each week.

Participants can choose from 16 sessions. Campers can attend on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays or on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and both morning and afternoon sessions are available.

Each session will last for one week, with an optional lunch period available.

The morning sessions are from 9 a.m. to noon; the lunch period is from noon to 12:30 p.m. and the afternoon session is from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Tot Camp will begin the week of June 17; the last week to sign up for Tot Camp is Aug. 5.

The fee for Tot Camp three days a week (Monday, Wednesday, Friday) is $45 a session, and the fee for two days a week (Tuesday and Thursday) is $30.

A discount of $5 a session will apply to anyone who registers for three or more sessions.

Registrations will be accepted in person or by mail to the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, Grosse Pointe, 48230.

Participants must also have a Neighborhood Club membership, which may be purchased at the time of registration. For more information, call (313) 885-4600.

Nothing to do this summer? Check this out

Kids will find something for every age and interest among Grosse Pointe Community Education's 1996 summer offerings.

Scuba diving runs from June 10 to July 15 and is an entry level course for students 12 and older. The $70 fee includes academic and confined-water training; open-water training is provided for additional cost. Offered at North's pool. Classes are from 6 to 9 p.m.

Fine arts summer camp runs from June 17 to 21, Monday through Friday, 12:30 to 2:30 p.m., at Barnes school, for children 4 to 7 years old. Fee is $80 and a different theme will be explored each day.

Basketball, track, wrestling (Monday-Friday, starting June 17); volleyball (Tuesday-Thursday, June 18-20); basketball clinic (Monday-Friday, July 15-19); all-sports camp (Monday-Friday, July 29-Aug. 2): Activities for students in grades two through 12. The summer basketball program offers 1 1/2-hour sessions for grades 5-12 ($60 for 2 weeks); two-hour sessions for boys in grades 10-12 ($80 for 2 weeks); and 2 1/2-hour sessions for girls in grades 11 and 12 ($50 for 1 week). The track program for grades 2-8 ($60 for two weeks) will be followed by an intra-squad meet on June 27. Wrestling for grades 8-12 will be offered for six weeks at $40 per week. (Participants may register for any number of weeks and pay accordingly.) A three-day volleyball clinic with emphasis on defense and setting is $30 (grades 8-12, 1-3:30 p.m., North gym). A one-week basketball clinic for grades 2-8 is offered at a new, lower price of $115 per person. The program runs from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. at the North gym; participants will receive a T-shirt and a basketball.

Tennis: Two summer programs, (June 18-July 9 and July 16-Aug. 1) provide beginning to advanced lessons for players from 5 to 15 years old. Small groups are based on age and ability, with instruction provided by an experienced teaching staff. Classes are $60 for three weeks.

Computer camp: (August 5-9) at Barnes school this summer, where kids will surf the Internet and explore cyberspace using the latest hardware (color scanners, digi cams, color printers, and CD ROMs, with two campers to a computer) and the most exciting software available. A minimum of one instructional staff member for every 12 students will ensure individualized attention for all campers. All camps run Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. ($175 per child).

Summer creative arts workshop: The Trombly school library will be the setting for Project Paradigm (Aug. 5-9) for students 5 to 10 years of age. Taught by Justina Theokas, a movement instructor, choreographer and musician, and movement specialist Hava Jean Delgado, the workshop brings to life folk tales and myths from Far Eastern, Middle Eastern, European, Native American and African cultures. The program runs from Monday through Friday, 1 to 3 p.m. Fee is $65 a child.

For registration and additional information, call the community education department Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at (313) 343-2178.

Trip of a lifetime

This typical scene of a folk music band performing on the streets of Otavalo, Ecuador, would be one of dozens of unforgettable experiences you'd have if you signed up for a spring 1997 trip to Ecuador and the Galapagos Islands. Join Grosse Pointe South High School students and community members on a trip planned for next March 22 through April 5. Organized by the Spanish and science departments at South, the trip takes you on a tour of the rain forest and to the Galapagos Islands. Contact Jan Hendrie or Ranae Ikerd at (313) 343-2130 or e-mail Hendrie at JANHEN@gps.k12.mi.us or Ikerd at RANIKE@gps.k12.mi.us. Space is limited and reservations will only be taken until June 30.

G.P. South thespians to perform at prestigious show

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

A group of high school theater students is staging a "picnic" in Nebraska next month that will put them in company with acting teachers and students from around the world.

The Grosse Pointe South chapter of the International Thespian Society — one of the oldest chapters in the country — has been invited to reprise its fall 1995 production of "Picnic" at the International Thespian Society's annual festival, June 23-30 in Lincoln, Neb.

"This is so exhilarating," said Meaghan Dunham, theater director and Pointe Players adviser at South. "This is as close to a professional experience as the students can get at this level. They are both excited and scared. They get to be the best before the best."

The students, both actors in the production and behind-the-scenes workers, will travel to Nebraska to perform along with eight other thespian troupes from around the world. "Picnic" is the Pulitzer-prize-winning play written by William Inge.

It is described by Dunham as the "realistic portrayal of small town Midwesterners confronting moments of personal crisis in their elusive search for fulfillment and happiness."

Following South's fall production of "Picnic," the theater students were invited to perform last January at the Michigan Thespian Festival at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn. Based on their performance in that competition, Dunham said, they advanced to the international festival.

"We will be performing for more than 2,000 students, sponsors and educators from around the world, who will be attending this weeklong event," she said.

"This is the biggest gathering of theater educators and students anywhere at the high school level. A lot of the students are given opportunities to win college and university scholarships."

In addition, six of the students also will perform in individual and duet competitions.

Cast members include students Kate Callas, Greg Sharrow, Sarah Dale, John Kalogerakos, Katie Connor, Neely O'Brien, Allison Getz, John Riley, Bridget Kaiser, Katherine Dale and James McGovern.

Pointe Players members competing in individual and duet competition are Bill Drummy and Katie Kingsley, who will perform a scene from "A Doll's House," John Riley and Bridget Kaiser will deliver a scene from "Angels in America," and Michael McShea will perform an original pantomime.

The students will perform a "dress rehearsal" for the public at 7 p.m. on Thursday, June 20, in the auditorium at Grosse Pointe South. Tickets are $6. This is the third time in South's history that its thespian troupe has been invited to the international festival.

Busy students

On the last day of school, Grosse Pointe elementary school students will collect leftover supplies such as glue, Crayons, paper and scissors and place them in bins for the Arts & Scraps program.

The collected materials will then be packed into individual kits by Brownell Middle School Girl Scout troops 1727 and 1623.

The kits will then be distributed to children in domestic violence and homeless shelters, the pediatric AIDS unit at Children's Hospital and to graduates of the Detroit Arts & Scraps is a non-profit organization. The materials collected and distributed allow children to pursue academic as well as creative projects at their shelter or home.

Donations will be accepted at any of the nine Grosse Pointe elementary schools on June 11 and 12, or may be delivered to Arts & Scraps, 12110 Morang, Detroit. Call (313) 527-2727 for more information.

Nicole Small, a seventh-grader at St. Clare of Montefalco school in Grosse Pointe Park, has been inducted into the Accelerated Reader International honor roll for the 1995-96 year.

The reading honor roll recognizes students who are their school's top readers in the accelerated reader computerized reading management program. She is the daughter of Amelia Small of Detroit.

Events

Commencement exercises for Grosse Pointe North High School's Class of 1996 will take place at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 11, on the soccer field between Morningside and the Grosse Pointe Community Performing Arts Center.

In case of inclement weather, the ceremony will be held in the gymnasium. Senior class president Cara Colaluca is master of ceremonies. Commencement speaker is Yoshi Bird; Michael Kegler will read a poem.

'Let's Talk Stocks' begins with a lesson: Investments 101

By Joseph Mengden

"Let's Talk Stocks" will not only talk about equities, but many other types of investments, including preferred stocks, mutual funds, convertible debentures, municipal (tax-free) bonds and treasury securities.

In this era of conspicuous consumption, one might ask: why invest at all? In fact, the proliferate use of plastic debt for consumer purchases is a form of disinvestment, since debt is created for the purchase of consumptive items, rather than of capital assets. (Consumptive items are considered to have a relative short life, while capital assets have a longer life.)

The dictionary defines "invest" as to "put money to use, by purchase or expenditure, in something offering profitable return, especially income."

But is "saving" the same as "investment"? Most of us save for short-term goals: i.e., to save for a rainy day, to save for a vacation or to save for a new car.

Such savings are usually put into an interest-bearing savings account, certificate of deposit or money market fund so that withdrawal(s) can be done with little or no notice.

Investments, on the other hand, usually involve longer-term goals: i.e., college tuition funds, purchase of a second home or accumulation of retirement nest-eggs.

The challenge is to find investment vehicles that will appreciate in value over time, hopefully more than inflation, which robs the dollar of its purchasing power.

No doubt about it, inflation is the most insidious tax ever conceived by politicians the world over.

Your "Let's Talk Stocks" (LTS) editor knew a local family that sold its business in 1967, and invested the entire $52 million proceeds (after taxes) in long-term (25 to 30 year maturities) Michigan school bonds yielding an average of 4 percent at that time.

The family did this because (1) they were scared of the stock market and (2) they thought that the $80,000 annual triple tax-exempt income was more than they would ever need in their lifetimes (interest income from Michigan municipal bonds is exempt from federal and state income taxes and Michigan intangibles tax).

During the early 1980s, the market value of their bonds dropped to about 50 cents on the dollar (reflecting the "tight" money of that era), but, at maturity they will be redeemed at par, or $1 on the dollar.

The pity of it all is that the purchasing power of the cash received at maturity will have dropped drastically (only 20 percent of prior value) because inflation during the past 30 years has increased an incredible 382 percent.

The biggest fear of most mature investors (those born before 1946) is that their money will run out before their lifetime runs out. What if the rainy day fund runs dry before the rain starts?

Everyone is afraid of death, but the fear of having only Social Security is even worse. Many of us born before the Baby Boomers remember the Great Depression of 1932-38, or we remember hearing our parents talk about it over and over and over again. It was most painful to live through and impossible to describe.

From the investment point of view, every crisis creates opportunity. But the opportunity is available only to those investors at that time, who have both available cash (or buying power) and a very generous amount of intestinal fortitude.

History is replete with examples of great fortunes being made at or near the bottom of markets, not the tops. (J.F.K.'s father, ambassador Kennedy was short the stock market prior to the 1929 crash). What would you do if the stock market sold off 10 percent next week (over 500 points on the Dow Jones Industrials?) Should you buy or sell? Would you buy or sell?

For most investors there is no pat answer for whether to buy or to sell. LTS in the following weeks hopes to offer you some challenging ideas to help you develop your own unique investment philosophy, which addresses your specific "sleep quotient." Some say this has to do with how close you want your feet to be near the fire of market fluctuations.

In LTS, we will use actual stocks as portfolio examples, news items and chart displays. LTS will not recommend specific stocks to buy or to sell, but will emphasize the ownership of equity interests (common stocks, convertible stocks and debentures and equity mutual funds) as the only way to attempt to beat inflation and income taxes, over time.

LTS has resigned his licenses as a securities principal and securities, insurance and real estate broker, and cannot give legal and accounting advice. But we can and will give you ideas so you can consult your own professional adviser.

Please write us, care of the Grosse Pointe News, and give us your ideas and suggestions.

Every child deserves a fair shot at life.

FREE IMMUNIZATION DAY Sponsored by Bon Secours HealthCare System: Tuesday, June 11, 10:00 am until 8:00 pm, Bon Secours Hospital Pediatric Unit, 3rd Floor, 468 Cadieux Road, Grosse Pointe.

There's never been a better time to immunize your little ones against childhood diseases, including measles and mumps, than at the Bon Secours FREE Immunization Day, Tuesday, June 11, from 10 am until 8 pm, at Bon Secours Hospital Pediatric Unit, 3rd Floor. Bon Secours health care professionals are joining together to give Michigan's children and adolescents, a fair shot at a healthy future by providing free immunizations for DPT, Hib, MMR, Hepatitis B and oral polio.

Please mark your calendar to protect your child:

- 1 It's free.
- 2 It only takes a few minutes.
- 3 It could make a real difference.

Our goal is to immunize 90 percent of all newborns through two-year-olds, and to provide booster shots for students preparing for the new school year. Remember, if your child is starting school this year, you will be required to show that he or she is up-to-date on all vaccinations.

Give your children a fair shot at life. Please bring them in for routine immunizations. If you bring your child's immunization record, we will update it for you. It's important, it's free and it will give your cherished youngsters' future a shot in the arm.

For additional information call: Community Health Education at (810) 779-7900, or the Pediatric Unit at Bon Secours Hospital, (313) 343-1695.

New directory available for Kercheval businesses

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

More than 130 businesses on Kercheval have joined in publishing a guide that lets the public know what's available in the Park, the Village and on the Hill.

"It's the first time the three associations have gotten together," said Betty Young of BYoung & Associates Ltd.

"I've been working with the Hill Association for six years and I thought I would expand it to the Village. I spoke with (Village Association president) Jerry Valente and he thought it would be a great idea. He then talked with the Park's association."

Called the Kercheval Avenue Directory, it is a pamphlet-sized, fold-out guide which categorizes the businesses found in the three districts. The directory also contains a map, the phone numbers of the businesses participating and a calendar of events.

"It's a good marketing tool," Valente said. "It includes some of the stores people from elsewhere might not be aware of. It gives shoppers a broader view."

"For years, Kercheval has been thought of as the 'Main Street' of Grosse Pointe, and that's the way we're marketing it," Young said. "People outside the area tend to think of the Grosse Pointes as one city so

Locally owned sailing school caters to women

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

Picture Ernest Hemingway in "The Old Man and the Sea," Captain Ahab in "Moby Dick" or a white-bearded, grizzled, "old salt" tour guide at Mystic seaport in Connecticut.

At Women for Sail International Inc., you won't find anyone resembling these people, and for obvious reasons, as the company name suggests.

"Men and women learn things very differently," said Grosse Pointe Farms resident Sally Barnes, an owner of the company. "This is a more low-key environment for women to learn how to sail. Women don't want men teaching them how to sail."

Women for Sail is a sailing school exclusively for women that offers three-, five- and seven-day trips and 10-day foreign excursions with prices ranging from $425 to $995 for the domestic trips and $1,395 to $2,195 for the foreign voyages. Meals and lodging are included. A typical crew consists of six students and a captain.

The school takes women, from novice to expert, and teaches them to sail, navigate, operate the radio and everything else someone embarking on a sailing trip needs to know.

The idea for the school began 12 years ago in Chagrin Falls, Ohio, where Barnes lived before her husband, Dave, was transferred and the family moved to Detroit.

Dick and Jill London, friends of the Barnes in Chagrin Falls, had moved to Sarasota, Fla., and bought a 43-foot Irwin sailboat, named the "Jeunesse" (French for "forever young").

"Jill decided she wanted to teach her girlfriends to sail, so she became certified through the U.S. Coast Guard and went into business," Barnes said.

The London's daughter Joelle joined the business and they began sailing out of Key West, Fla.

"We had always kept in contact," Barnes said, "and last July, after Joelle had had her third child, Jill said she wanted to sell the business."

London asked Dave Barnes, whose business is mergers and acquisitions, what the business was worth. The Barnes went to Florida themselves to look at Women for Sail.

"The whole time I was there, I thought this would be a good business for us," Sally Barnes said.

Women for Sail remained for sale and had many interested buyers, but nobody offered what the Londons felt the business was worth.

In February, at a sailing show in Chicago, Barnes' son Pete, and Pete's wife, Nancy, met with Jill, Joelle and Tania Aebi, the youngest woman to sail around the world solo and a captain employed by the company.

"We talked about ideas we had," Nancy said.

to the Londons and it was accepted.

"This was Jill's baby, and she wanted to sell it to someone she knew," Sally said.

Although Pete and Nancy do not have extensive sailing backgrounds, they each have marketing degrees and plan to advertise more. Nancy is now president of the company and Jill and Joelle remain involved in the business.

One of their ideas is to have a Great Lakes port for the sailing school, possibly in the Traverse City area.

Right now, Women for Sail offers trips out of Key West, Annapolis and San Diego. Trips to Thailand, Greece and Turkey have also been offered.

This fall, to mark the 10th anniversary of Women for Sail, a group of new and former students will form a flotilla and sail to the British Virgin Islands.

More than half of Women for Sail's students return for another voyage.

Women for Sail has attracted the attention of Sailing Magazine, which published an article on one of the Thailand trips; and Southern Living, which listed Women for Sail on the top of its "things to do" list. A feature article will be published in the July issue of Southern Living.

Sally Barnes describes Women for Sail as "Outward Bound on the water for women."

The trips are part lesson, part vacation.

"You feel like you've learned and accomplished something," Nancy said.

For more information about Women for Sail, call (800) 346-6404.

A PRAYER FOR HEALING LORD,

You invite all who are burdened to come to you.
Allow Your healing hand to heal me.
Touch my soul with Your compassion for others.
Touch my heart with Your courage and infinite love for all.
Touch my mind with Your wisdom, that my mouth may always proclaim Your praise.
Teach me to reach out to You in my need, and help me to lead others to You by my example.
Most loving Heart of Jesus, bring me health in body and spirit that I may serve You with all my strength.
Touch gently this life which You have created, now and forever.

Amen.

In Honor of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, there will be a Mass beginning at 1:00 a.m.

Are health supplements necessary?

Older Americans get bombarded with advertisements touting the benefits of nutritional supplements, including better health and increased energy.

But are these supplements really necessary for everyone over the age of 65?

According to Dr. Ruth Lerman, a geriatric specialist with Henry Ford Health System, the answer is: "No."

"Most people can achieve proper nutrition simply by eating a well-balanced diet and drinking plenty of fluids," Lerman said. "While nutritional supplements can be helpful during an acute illness, or for chronically ill elderly people, most seniors simply don't need to use them."

Adequate nutrition is the cornerstone of preventive medicine for the elderly. It can protect older adults from malnutrition and its negative health consequences. Studies have looked at the prevalence of malnutrition in the elderly. Among ambulatory and homebound seniors, less than 15 percent were malnourished. The rates among hospitalized and institutionalized seniors ranged from 25-65 percent.

"For seniors living at home or in retirement communities, the concern often is taking too many vitamins vs. not taking enough," Lerman said. "Vitamin overdoses can cause serious health problems such as gastrointestinal disorders, kidney stones, liver dysfunction, headaches and nerve damage. Just because one dose of a vitamin is good for you does not make five doses better."

Surprisingly, the biggest nutrition problem among the elderly is not drinking enough fluids.

Lerman recommends that seniors drink at least two quarts of non-caffeinated fluids daily. This can include water, juice, caffeine-free soft drinks, etc. Caffeinated beverages, such as coffee and tea, act as a diuretic, and can actually lead to greater fluid loss.

Involuntary weight loss is relatively common in the elderly. Often it is caused by physical disease, isolation, poverty, medications, inability to feed oneself, dental diseases, depression or other psychiatric illnesses.

"If you or a loved one experience a sudden weight loss, see your physician for an examination to determine the cause," Lerman said.

If you do need nutritional supplements, consider that often a low-cost drink such as a milkshake or instant breakfast mix may meet those needs.

The bottom line: before investing in nutritional supplements, ask your doctor.

Vintage cars will parade through Pointes June 15

The Road Show, a parade of vintage cars, sports cars and exotic cars will roll through Detroit and the Grosse Pointes on Saturday, June 15.

Auto Week magazine will host the movable fundraiser for three local non-profit groups. With the help of the Detroit region of the Sports Car Club of America, all vehicles will begin the parade at noon, along a 25-mile route that begins at the Chrysler Plant on Jefferson in Detroit and ends at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House at about 2 p.m. for a barbecue lunch and awards presentation. The vehicles will be on display until 4 p.m.

The parade route will include a pass by each of the organizations that will benefit from the event: the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology, 15415 E. Jefferson; the Children's Home of Detroit, 900 Cook Road; and the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, 376 Kercheval.

The parade is open to anyone with a vintage, sports or exotic car. The entry fee is $45 before Friday, June 7; $60 after that. The fee includes lunch for the driver and a ticket to Eyes on Classic Design on Sunday, June 16.

For more information or to register your vehicle, call Carrie Higbie at Auto Week magazine: (313) 446-0396.

Spotlight: Grand Circus Park will be the center stage for the eighth annual Spotlight Festival from 3 to 9 p.m. Monday, June 17. The festival, which is sponsored by the Grand Circus Park Development Association, Detroit Edison, WWJ Newsradio 950, MichCon and McNamara Communications, will showcase historic churches, theaters and buildings in Grand Circus Park and Harmonie Park with open houses, entertainment and refreshments.

"If you love history and architecture, if you're a film buff or a music fan, if you love 19th century churches or antique cars, Spotlight Festival is for you," said Grosse Pointer Al Dickinson, chairman of the 1996 festival.

Proceeds from the festival will go toward the restoration of the park.

Besides free tours of historic theaters and churches in the area, Dickinson said more than 80 antique cars and scooters will line the streets and the State Theatre will show selected films about Detroit and its history.

Music sounds will include gospel, blues, jazz, reggae and calypso. GM Media archives will offer an exhibit of historic photos of the area in the lobby of the David Whitney Building.

Tickets are $15 in advance; $17 at the door; $7.50 for students under 12 (ID is required). Parking will be available for $1 at the Fox Theatre garage and the Gem Theatre parking lot.

For more information or to make reservations for festival dinner packages, call (313) 341-6810.

Diabetes research: The Juvenile Diabetes Foundation will present its 11th annual "Evening of Brilliance," a benefit for research to prevent and cure diabetes, at 7 p.m. Friday, June 14, at the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn.

Master of ceremonies for the evening will be Colleen Burcar and entertainment will be provided by the Teen Angels.

Grosse Pointers who are helping plan the fundraiser include Mado Lie, Kim Ralston and Kimberly Williams.

Tickets range from $175 to $500. For ticket information, call the JDF office at (810) 569-6171.

Crumpets anyone?

Tennis and Crumpets, a benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan, will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Thursday, June 13. Children between the ages of 8 and 16 are invited to play. Donations are $20, which includes tennis, a picnic lunch and prizes.

Registration forms are available at Sports on the Hill, Waldenbooks in the Village and Eastside Tennis on Warren in Detroit; or by calling (313) 865-7091.

Volunteer award:

Lorraine and Gary Dillon of Grosse Pointe Farms were honored recently as University Liggett School's "Outstanding Volunteers" at a Volunteer Recognition Day luncheon sponsored by the Detroit chapter of the National Society of Fund Raising Executives.

The Dillons were chairmen of the 1995-96 ULS Annual Fund, which includes a volunteer roster of 100 and is nearing its goal of raising $456,000.

Adopt a cat: During June, which is National Adopt A Cat Month, the Michigan Humane Society will offer a special adoption package designed to encourage the responsible adoption of cats. Call (810) 852-7420 for more information.

Off to camp? Pack your sack for safety.

Dear _____

Name _____

It's great to see you so excited about camp. There's so much to do. So many new friends to make. It's going to be lots of fun. To make sure it is a great, safe experience all the way around, please remember:

- ✳ Never hike alone. Always use marked trails, a compass and a map. Carry your whistle in case you get lost. Wear properly fitting shoes and socks to protect against blisters.
- ✳ Always follow the rules. You may think you know better, but your camp counselor is the expert.
- ✳ Always swim with a buddy. Swim only in areas with a lifeguard. Never dive head-first into the water.
- ✳ Drink plenty of water. This avoids heat illness and dehydration. It can happen quickly. NEVER over-exert yourself in hot weather. Don't forget to use sunscreen every day.
- ✳ Leave wild animals and snakes alone. If you get bit, get help and medical attention immediately.
- ✳ Don't eat wild plants. Including mushrooms and berries. They can make you very sick. Never touch poison ivy or poison oak (remember, leaves of three, let it be!)
- ✳ Douse fires completely. Make sure to extinguish all campfires, lanterns and stoves before turning in.
- ✳ No horseplay. Always play it safe in the water, in the woods, in the cabin.

The Emergency Department at Bon Secours Hospital reminds you to check with the American Camping Association to help select a camp that is accredited and meets their standards of excellence. And always be prepared, plan ahead and think safety!

These simple tips are the keys to childhood memories that will last a lifetime. Happy Camping!

The Pastor's Corner

Fly balls and family ties

By the Rev. William C. DeVries
First Christian Reformed Church

It was so terribly embarrassing. It was early summer and we were playing softball. It was a long time ago, and I imagine no one else remembers the incident. It really was a small happening that took up only a couple of seconds on that bright sunny afternoon.

But I remember it like it was yesterday. The game was a close one and the teams were made up of neighborhood friends who had agreed to gather at the school yard.

It had all come down to the last inning and we were ahead by a run. There was a runner on second and one of the opposition's power hitters was at bat. I was in left field. Ross was in center.

Ross was a boy who lived six or so houses up the street from me. Ross and I were not best friends but we had played together on many occasions for a number of years.

Ross was only a fair softball player. He couldn't be counted on for a clutch hit. We had let him play center field because his tendency to run in too far while fielding fly balls could be covered better if he was far out in the field.

Ross had already dropped two or three chances in the game.

Then it happened. The pitch; the towering fly ball, high enough to bring rain. The ball soared straight into center field.

For a second, I hesitated. Then I ran — flat out with my head turned to the ball.

Just before I got to him I glanced to see exactly where Ross was standing. Then I stepped in front of him and with his glove touching mine, I caught the ball.

Before I threw the ball to the infield I looked back at Ross. In his eyes was some anger, but mostly deep hurt and frustration.

"I would have caught it. Why don't you play your own field?" he said to me softly, just once.

There was nothing I could say, not then and not now. I told him I was sorry, even that I was wrong to have caught the ball.

But the fact was just like my mother used to tell me: "Sorry doesn't make something right."

Ross forgave and forgot. I have forgiven myself, but I don't want to forget.

So many forces in our culture work to isolate us as individuals. We hear encouragement from time to time to cooperate, even to love our neighbors.

But the fundamental forces of our economy and politics and social structure teach us again and again that in reality, we are islands — individual minds and bodies that can and must exist essentially alone with only incidental connections to anyone else.

Yet, that is not the message of my tradition. My mother and grandmother especially — and my father too — taught me by word and deed that I am linked in thought, emotions and decision to the people around me.

My grandmother's spirit of gentle persistence is part of who I am. My mother's faith and my father's constancy are deeply embedded in my character. The lives of my friends are interwoven with mine.

And it is no coincidence that this is also the message of the Christian faith. We are not individuals clawing or climbing our way through reality.

We are part of a family. Some of the family members are a bit more distant than others. But when a family member is near, the most important point is not winning some game but supporting the one who is near — not so that you or I can get ahead, but because we are not complete without them.

Summer's almost here. And with it comes a bit more time to slow down and look around. As you do, try to remember the connections; try to remember again the family we are; try to remember the family we must be.

Save your skin

By Dr. Catherine A. Nordby
Special Writer

As temperatures start to rise and temptations to tan heat up, remember this — someone in the United States dies from skin cancer every hour.

In 1996, more than half of the one million new cancers diagnosed in the United States will be skin cancers. Nearly all skin cancers are treatable if detected early.

Any subtle changes to a spot or mole anywhere on your body; a growth that is crusting, changing or bleeding; or a sore that bleeds repeatedly — these are all signals that you should immediately go in to get checked.

In accordance with the American Academy of Dermatology, I recommend the following precautions to lessen the chances of developing skin cancer:

Dr. Catherine A. Nordby

- Minimize sun exposure, especially from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. when the sun's rays are most intense.

- Apply a sunscreen liberally and frequently and reapply every two hours when working, playing or exercising outdoors. A sunscreen with a sun protection factor (SPF) of at least 15 is recommended.

- Wear protective, tightly woven clothing during prolonged periods in the sun.

- Beware of reflective surfaces. Sand, concrete and water can reflect up to 85 percent of the sun's damaging rays.

- Avoid tanning parlors and sun lamps. The ultraviolet rays emitted by these artificial sources are similar to those in sunlight and can cause sunburn and premature skin aging while also increasing the risk of skin cancer.

- Protect children by keeping them out of the sun or by minimizing sun exposure, especially those under the age of 6 months. Use sunscreen on children older than 6 months.

- Teach children and teenagers sun protection, since skin damage from sun exposure accumulates over a lifetime. The majority of damage from the sun occurs before the age of 20. One or more blistering sunburns during childhood or adolescence can double the risk of developing malignant melanoma.

Dr. Catherine A. Nordby is a Dermatologist at Henry Ford Medical Center-Pierson Clinic in Grosse Pointe Farms. For a referral, call (800) 653-6568.

Red Cross offers water safety tips

In an effort to save lives this summer, the American Red Cross strongly urges residents to be prepared in, on and around the water in hopes of reducing the number of drownings and injuries.

Drowning is the second-leading cause of death for youth aged 1 to 24 and the seventh-leading cause of death for adults over 24, according to the National Safety Council's 1994 accident facts report.

"Lives can be saved this summer if people use caution in and around the water and learn the proper rescue techniques for drowning victims," said Jerry Huey, aquatic examiner for the southeastern Michigan chapter of the Red Cross.

The Red Cross' 12 water safety tips highlight the need to know your swimming limits, information on how to avoid back and neck injuries when diving into the water and signs that indicate an emergency.

Drownings can occur in home pools, community pools, oceans, lakes, water parks, bathtubs or even large buckets.

"People need to know the dangers involved and know how to take action in an emergency, because when an emergency arises, help can't wait. The Red Cross has provided health and safety services to people across the nation for more than 80 years as part of the organization's mission of emergency prevention and preparedness.

To learn more about how to take precautions this summer call (313) 576-4101.

Water safety tips

- Always swim with a buddy; never swim alone.
- Know your swimming limits and stay within them. Don't try to keep up with a stronger swimmer or encourage others to keep up with you. Keep an eye on weaker swimmers. If they appear tired, encourage them to rest on land.
- Alcohol and swimming don't mix. Alcohol impairs judgment, balance and coordination. It affects swimming and diving skills and reduces the body's ability to stay warm.
- Obey "No Diving" signs which indicate the area is unsafe for head-first entries. Enter the water feet first if you don't know the depth. Learn correct diving techniques from a diving instructor.

- Watch out for the "dangerous too's" — too tired, too cold, too far from safety, too much sun and too much strenuous activity.

- Swim only in supervised areas.

- Do not chew gum or eat while you swim; you could easily choke.

- Use common sense about swimming after eating. In general, you do not have to wait an hour after a meal before you may safely swim. However, if you have had a large meal, it is wise to let digestion get started before participating in strenuous activities.

- Always wear a Coast Guard-approved life jacket when boating or fishing.

- Know local weather conditions and prepare for electrical storms. Because water conducts electricity, it is wise to stop swimming or boating as soon as you see or hear a storm.

- Know how to prevent and respond to emergencies.

Remember CHECK-CALL-CARE: CHECK the scene to be sure it's safe and CHECK the victim; CALL 9-1-1 or your local emergency number; and CARE for the person until help arrives.

In the event of a drowning:

- Remove the victim from the water; have someone call 911.
- Check consciousness and breathing. If the victim is not breathing, open the airway and attempt rescue breathing. If breaths do not go in, re-tilt the head and try rescue breathing again.
- If air still does not go in, give abdominal thrusts (Heimlich maneuver) to clear the airway.
- Once the airway is clear, provide rescue breathing or CPR as needed.

To enroll in a water safety course, call (313) 576-4101.

Doctors say there is no safe way to tan

Besides self-tanning lotions, there is no safe way to tan, according to Dr. Mark Balle, a dermatologist with Henry Ford Health System. Tanning booths are no exception.

So how do you deal with the summer sun? Balle offers these survival strategies to help prevent skin cancer:

- Minimize sun exposure, especially during the peak sun hours of 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. when the sun's rays are strongest.
- Wear protective clothing such as wide-brimmed hats and long-sleeved shirts during prolonged periods in the sun.

- Apply a sunscreen with a sun protection factor (SPF) of at least 15 liberally and frequently. Reapply every two hours when swimming or sweating.

- Keep infants out of the sun and teach children about sun protection. The majority of sun damage occurs before the age of 20.

- Avoid tanning parlors and sun lamps. The ultraviolet rays can cause sunburn, premature aging of the skin and an increased risk of skin cancer.

Mobile breast cancer detection unit comes to War Memorial

The Barbara Ann Karmanos Mobile Detection Center will be at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial from 9 to 5 p.m. Monday, June 10, to provide breast cancer screening mammograms to women 40 years old and older.

Appointments lasting about 20 minutes may be scheduled by calling the War Memorial at (313) 881-7511.

Women between 40 and 49 years old are requested to have a physician's prescription. Those with a personal history of breast cancer or women needing a second opinion or a follow-up to a previous mammogram cannot be seen by the mobile unit.

Third-party insurance plans, including Medicare and Medicaid, are billed at a cost of $115. Women without health insurance are billed for the cost of the mammogram, no more than $73.

Volunteers needed for 1996 Michigan State Fair

The Michigan State Fair needs volunteers to help stage the 1996 event slated from Aug. 20 - Sept. 2. Volunteers will also be needed for two weeks before the fair opens, to help with exhibit entry, answering phones, painting and other errands that involve pre-fair set-up.

During the fair, volunteers will be used to help with information booths, telephones, merchandise sales, parking, food service and general office tasks.

Fair officials ask that volunteers donate a minimum of four shifts of four-six hours each. Shift times are flexible.

In return for the donated time, volunteers will get free passes and free parking for every day of the fair, complimentary tickets for their immediate families, shirts, pins and other perks. Meals are provided for volunteers if they're working during lunch and dinner hours.

For more information, call Julie Ilacqua or Lorne Perry at (313) 369-8250.

Volunteers needed for VNA Hospice

VNA Hospice, the hospice of the Visiting Nurse Association of Southeast Michigan, is seeking volunteers to work with hospice patients in Oakland, Macomb, Wayne and Monroe counties. Volunteers provide emotional support, companionship and assistance in daily activities for terminally ill patients and their families.

Candidates should have good communication and listening skills and should be comfortable dealing with loss and bereavement issues. VNA will provide training.

VNA offers a wide range of nursing, therapeutic and personal care services in the home. The organization, which is accredited by the Joint Commission of Accreditation of HealthCare Organizations, has offices in Dearborn Heights, Detroit, Monroe, Pontiac, Southfield and Warren.

For more information or an application to become a volunteer, contact Barb Kosanke at (313) 876-8550.

Living with books makes good reading

"At Home with Books: How Booklovers Live With and Care for their Libraries"

By Estelle Ellis, Caroline Seeborn, and Christopher Simon Sykes Carol Southern
Books / Random House. 248 pages. $50.

This coffee-table-size tome, "At Home with Books," is a truly splendid and impressive addition for all libraries of those fortunate creatures who consider themselves bona fide book-lovers.

BIBLIO-FILE

By Elizabeth P. Walker

These three authors working together make a terrific trio and in undertaking this marvelous project, they have carefully photographed (mostly in glorious color) and described some of the world's outstanding private libraries, mostly in the United States.

With its glossy pages depicting tantalizing views of books beautifully and imaginatively arranged, we are immediately caught by the excitement and romance of book collecting. The lovely, welcoming Introduction in this volume opens thus: "Why do we feel so passionate about books, and why do we accumulate them in a seemingly uncontrollable fashion throughout our lives? Our libraries express something more than learning — they link us with the past, present, and future in a way that is portable, affordable, and aesthetically pleasurable."

Furthermore, the author trio point out, "libraries, perhaps more than any other room in the house, express the personalities of their owners."

"People continue to make a home for books because books make a home. Book-centered rooms are described as nurturing, a comfort zone, an escape hatch, a place to retreat to for tea and talk, thinking and reading, recapturing memories, regenerating spirit and ideas."

Six main sections of the book cover a range of delightful private libraries owned by an eclectic assortment of interesting people who have managed to create magnificent book collections that mirror their own personalities and interests.

The "Grand Passion" chapter concerns eight different individuals and how each chose certain books; how each shaped his or her home to display the collection. For instance, Jane Stubbs is a New Yorker who deals in old books, prints, and drawings and has magically transformed her home into a veritable treasure haven with shelves, book carousels, and tables laden with books on all subjects, all ready for browsers.

Seymour Durst, a builder and a bibliomane, "has for the past three decades assembled the most comprehensive private collection in existence devoted to New York City."

Another collector, Victor Niederhoffer, believes "in the power of the book as object; he likes to handle his books, to show them to people, to read aloud from the pages."

Another section, "Visually Inspired Libraries," is full of varieties of color and shapes of books tastefully arranged upon shelves. There are as many different ideas of displaying books as there are book collectors. The illustrations themselves are unbelievably gorgeous, and these owners have erected many kinds of shelving to house their beloved collections.

One collector exclaims: "I don't need a computer to find the books I have. It's all in my head. I can get my hands on anything in two minutes. I use our library ladder almost every day. I'll sit in my Bugatti chair, reading and enjoying the space. At other times I will bring my books to the couch in the retreat alcove I call my reading room. I never read in bed!"

"Libraries Designed by Designers" is another fine illustrated section. Joan Vass, an art historian in New York City, has made her light and airy duplex into a book-lover's dream world. She "reads everywhere and there is abundant evidence of this. Randomly piled books surround her bathtub and bed. A book door was built in her bedroom to camouflage a fire exit. Books topple tables and rise up from the floor in stacks that mirror the skyscraper view Vass sees from her favorite reading retreats: her bed and her rooftop garden."

"The Well-Stocked Library" tells of their ingenuity and desperation in transforming living spaces into safe harbors for their ever-growing libraries. Stanley Barrows, an American designer, has resorted to hanging some of his many art works over the book shelves — shelves already groaning with an ever increasing load of books.

Then there is the Englishman, Nicolas Barker, who was the first head of conservation at the British Library. He admits that "order or method may not be the guiding principle behind the library. But affection certainly is. I tend to regard my collection as a kind of founding hospital for books — books that need a home."

"Writers' Libraries" is an interesting section with glimpses into eight libraries of working authors, including Richard Howard, Sir Fitzroy Maclean and Roger Rosenblatt. The poet Richard Howard, who has lived in his

New York apartment for 15 years, has a space filled with shelves containing books about his own particular field — poetry.

"He shares it with his dog, Maud, also an avid reader. . . I like to travel a lot, and with an apartment like this, it is easy to make one's escape," he said. "I can put my dog under my arm and leave without a backward glance."

The final section, "Reading Retreats," tells of the lives of six people who collect books, and as a happy result they are literally surrounded by their collections. Keith Richards, the Rolling Stone, surprisingly enough, makes an appearance. Although his livelihood is music, his favorite recreation is reading. He claims that books "keep me in one spot, and after a life on the road, reading anchors me."

Walter and Jane Turken bought an old gristmill which they converted into an expansive library/home. Massive wood beams support the interior of this attractive lair and the sturdy book shelves support rows and rows of books. With Mission-type furniture complementing the rustic decor, the Turkens share their love for books and reading with their children.

Shorter pieces are tucked between the pages of each of the large sections — topics such as English country house libraries; Hay-on-Wye, the famous book town in Wales; and other helpful hints of how to organize your library and how to start a collection. Library lighting, the art of the bookshelf, along with pieces on bookplates, book binding, and conservation are all helpful and essential information for the true connoisseur.

My favorite book, "The Enemies of Books," by William Blades, is recognized with a quote which greatly pleases me because this is a book that should be on every bibliophile's shelf.

Finally, at the end, there is a resource directory with names, addresses, products, shops and services helpful to the collector.

Not only is this book beautiful to behold, it is also an invaluable and practical guide for all who love books and wish to maintain and conserve their collections.

Crazy for You

Grosse Pointe Theatre's 48th season concludes with the Gershwin musical "Crazy for You," which runs through Saturday, June 15, in the Fries Auditorium at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Performances are at 8 p.m., except on Sunday, June 9, which is a 2 p.m. matinee.

Knights netters can't be beat at the 'Zoo

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

"You can't beat a Knight at the 'Zoo" said the slogan on the back of the T-shirts University Liggett School's tennis team wore at last weekend's state Class C-D championships in Kalamazoo. And the words turned out to be prophetic.

The Knights won six of the seven flights to finish with 28 points to 18 for runner-up North Muskegon.

"The final score makes it look like it was easy, but it was anything but easy," said ULS coach Bob Wood, who has won 23 boys state tennis titles in his 31 years at the school.

"North Muskegon is a quality team and if the matches had been played on Sunday instead of Saturday, it could have gone the other way."

They seemed determined to finish on top, no matter what. Shan Massand lost the first set and trailed 3-0 in the second of his semifinal match in No. 4 singles, but he came back to win. He then dropped a 6-3, 6-1 decision to Lansing Catholic Central's Brian Payne in the championship match.

The No. 2 doubles team of Eric Kim and Jeff Kenzie lost the first set and were behind 4-1 in the second to North Muskegon's Bill Franks and Brandon Byers in the final round, but the ULS pair bounced back to post a 6-7, 7-5, 7-6 victory.

It was a similar story in the No. 3 doubles final. C.T. Brown and Peter Alle were down a set and trailed 2-0 in the second before they came back to win 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 against North Muskegon's Jack Mercer and Tom Farmer.

In first singles, Shaun Jayakar was forced to play three sets in his semifinal match. Jayakar took the championship match against Sandusky's Sinisa Popovic 6-2, 6-2.

Karim Jina was dominant in No. 2 singles where he didn't lose a set. He beat North Muskegon's Jamie Keene 6-0, 6-4.

Peter Birgbauer and Tyler Weisenbeck were just as overpowering in No. 1 doubles. They didn't lose a set, either, and beat the North Muskegon pair of Bo Thrasher and Mike Mudler 6-2, 6-3 in the championship match.

But the best story of the tournament might have been the Knights' Brad Cenko in No. 3 singles.

Last year, North Muskegon's Sergio Zepeda beat Cenko 6-0, 6-1 in the finals. The Knights' player lived with the defeat for a year, but erased the memory in Saturday's flight championship with a 6-3, 7-6 (7-5 tie-breaker) victory.

"That was a tremendous reversal," Wood said. "Brad looked forward to meeting (Zepeda) all year. He was behind in the first set of his semifinal match Friday but came back to win."

"Afterward he told me all he could think about was the rematch with Zepeda. That determination pulled him through the semifinals."

For one of the few times in recent years, ULS wasn't a heavy favorite to win another state title.

"We were fortunate to tie them last year in the finals and they had everybody coming back," Wood said. "We lost three of our top 10 players so there was a little inexperience we had to deal with. But our schedule pulled us through again."

"We could care less about our won-lost record. We want to do well, but we're more concerned about getting better and playing the best competition possible. That's why we call this the AP (advanced placement) of high school tennis. Nobody plays a tougher schedule."

But North Muskegon was ranked No. 1 in the state in Class B-C-D all season and the Norsemen were among the top in the all-class ratings.

"They deserved to be there," Wood said. "That's a very good team and we knew it would be a dogfight in Kalamazoo, but these kids showed their tremendous heart."

"They all gave their very best. Win or lose, I would have been proud of them. All a coach can ask is for them to give their all and that's what happened."

Wood had an idea early that the Knights might add another state title to their collection.

"We've taken a spring trip to Florida for each of the last 30 years and this was one of the most successful for a number of reasons," said the coach. "The trip was a springboard to our success during the season — which was the best since 1990."

"They really pulled together as a team. It was like a family of 12 brothers. They were so supportive of each other."

The regular season was also a success for the Knights.

"We accomplished three of our four major goals," Wood said.

"We beat Detroit Country Day, which won the Class B championship, for the first time since 1988. And we beat Cranbrook Kingswood for the first time since '87. Then we split our two matches with the Grosse Pointe schools. We beat North and lost to South."

After that, ULS won the regional championship for the 25th time in Wood's 31 years at the helm.

"It was a great performance," he said. "The championships are all special, but this one was extra special."

Kevin Schroeder of Grosse Pointe South puts everything he has into the pitch during his no-hitter against Detroit Cass Tech in the Class A district semifinal game hosted by the Blue Devils. Schroeder also homered and broke the school record for RBI in a season during the 11-1 victory.

North wins league and district titles

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North baseball coach Frank Sumbera has one way of determining whether his team's season is successful or not.

"It's June and we're still playing. You have to be happy about that," Sumbera said after the Norsemen advanced to the Class A baseball regional at Hazel Park Saturday with a thrilling 5-4 victory over East Detroit in the championship game of the district tournament hosted by North last weekend.

The Norsemen, who gained a share of the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division title with a 12-9 win over Lakeview earlier in the week, went into the seventh inning of their game with East Detroit trailing 4-2.

The Shamrocks scored two unearned runs in the sixth to snap a 2-2 tie. Two bobbled fly balls in the outfield and an infield error let East Detroit score twice without a hit.

North put the first two runners on base in the bottom of the sixth, but the rally died without any runs being scored.

It was a different story in the bottom of the seventh. Singles by Steve Champine and Dan Sylvester and a walk to Troy Bergman loaded the bases with no outs. Kevin Collins singled home the first run and Steve Lentine followed with a two-run double to right-center field to knock in the tying and winning runs.

East Detroit opened the scoring with two runs in the third inning. Rich Watkins walked and took second on a sacrifice. John Labadie followed with an RBI double and Labadie scored on Randy Kafouri's single.

Those were the only two hits allowed by Collins, who pitched the first 5 2/3 innings and struck out 10. Brandon Welch picked up the win with 1 1/3 innings of hitless relief.

North tied the game with two runs in the fourth. Lentine led off with a home run. Dave Keenan singled, Joe Evola doubled and Joe Slomski walked to load the bases. Chris Sterr then hit a sacrifice fly to tie the game.

Earlier in the week, North played a district qualifier game with Detroit Denby and rolled to a 19-0 victory over the Tars.

Collins pitched a two-hit shutout and struck out nine in the game that was stopped by a mercy rule after five innings.

Two other Detroit schools — Osborn and Finney — withdrew from the tournament, dropping the field to three teams. The Norsemen had the option of playing Denby on Saturday, but Sumbera decided to go earlier in the week.

"That way we could keep our pitching rotation and we'd be fresh for East Detroit," he said. "They always seem to make us work to beat them."

North broke the Denby game open with 10 runs in the first inning. Champine knocked in the first with a sacrifice fly and Bergman and Sterr each hit two-run singles in the opening frame.

A double by Sylvester, Bergman's RBI single and a two-run homer by Collins produced three more runs in the second. The Norsemen capped the rout with six runs in the fifth.

North plays Dearborn Fordson at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Hazel Park regional. The other regional semifinal pits Berkley against Ferndale.

The Norsemen needed some help to gain a share of the MAC Blue title and they got it when Cousino beat L'Anse Creuse and Mount Clemens and Warren Woods-Tower knocked off Cousino.

"After we lost 3-1 to L'Anse Creuse we had three losses and they had only two," Sumbera said. "We needed help and Cousino gave it to us. Then when Cousino lost those two games it gave them four losses and knocked them out of the picture."

North and L'Anse Creuse each finished the league season with 11-3 marks.

The Norsemen scored three runs in the first inning against Lakeview and never trailed, although the Huskies stayed in the game until North erupted for five runs in the fifth.

"It wasn't a pretty game but it was a 'W,'" Sumbera said.

Sylvester hit a bases-loaded triple in the fifth and Evola added an RBI double.

Sterr went 3-for-3 and drove in a run, while Evola had two hits.

North beat Clintondale 17-3 as Welch pitched a complete game.

Collins had three hits and four RBI; Sylvester drove in four runs with a pair of hits; Keenan had two hits, including a triple, and drove in three runs; and Mike Ciaramitaro had three hits and three RBI.

"Ciaramitaro's been playing shortstop since Champine was injured and he's been doing a creditable job," Sumbera said. "He was a little disappointed when he didn't start at the beginning of the year, but when he got the opportunity he took advantage of it."

"We've had a lot of people producing for us. It hasn't been one guy carrying the team."

North followed the victory over Clintondale with the 3-1 loss to L'Anse Creuse.

"It was a tough loss because we stranded 11 runners against (Lancer pitcher) Ryan Janis," Sumbera said. "We had rallies every inning, but couldn't get the runners across."

Earlier, North got home runs from Sterr, Collins, Keenan and Sylvester in a 15-2, 14-4 non-league doubleheader sweep of South Lake.

North takes a 26-11 overall mark into the regional tournament.

Schroeder shines in South's district win

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

When the state baseball tournament rolls around, Grosse Pointe South righthander Kevin Schroeder gets even stingier than usual.

Schroeder pitched his second tournament no-hitter last Saturday and drove in four runs to break the school RBI mark as he led the Blue Devils to an 11-1 win over Detroit Cass Tech in the first game of a Class A district tournament hosted by South.

The Blue Devils then beat Detroit King 13-4 in the championship game to advance to Saturday's regional at Southgate Anderson.

South will play Detroit Southwestern at 12:30 p.m. If the Blue Devils win, they'll meet the winner of the Redford Catholic Central-Taylor Kennedy semifinal in the championship game at 3:30 p.m.

"We're where we want to be," said South coach Dan Griesbaum. "If we play well Saturday we have a chance to be in the quarterfinals."

That could create a matchup between South and Grosse Pointe North, which is playing in the Hazel Park regional.

Schroeder, who pitched a no-hitter against U-D Jesuit in last year's regional round, struck out eight and walked two — both in the fifth inning when the Technicians scored an unearned run.

"The reason Kevin is so effective this year is because he isn't afraid to throw his off-speed pitches when he's behind 2-0 or 3-1 in the count," Griesbaum said. "He'll come in with a curve or changeup when everybody's looking for a fastball. That's what makes a pitcher effective. In high school, you have to get the off-speed pitches over to keep the hitters off balance."

"No matter how hard a kid throws, he needs to have another pitch and confidence to get it over for a strike in tough situations."

Schroeder drove in Terry Brennan, who had doubled to lead off the game, with a sacrifice fly to give South a 1-0 lead in the first inning.

Steve Gayman's RBI single made it 2-0 in the second and the Blue Devils added three runs in the third. Schroeder started the rally with a single, Paul Yeskey doubled and a walk to Joe Schmitt loaded the bases. Mike Hamers hit a sacrifice fly to drive in the first run of the inning. After Yeskey was thrown out attempting to steal home on a missed suicide squeeze, Tim O'Loughlin hit a run-scoring double and O'Loughlin came in on Gayman's triple.

Schroeder and Schmitt had RBI singles in the fourth.

South added three runs in the fifth when Schroeder homered over the center field fence after walks to Mike Gehrke and Chris Nelson. The three-run blast gave him 46 RBI for the season, breaking the school record of 44 set by Doug Lucas in 1988.

Schmitt ended the game on a mercy rule when he led off the sixth with a home run.

Schroeder, Yeskey, Schmitt and Gayman each had two hits for the Blue Devils.

Kyle McCartney led the attack with three hits and four RBI.

He hit a two-run single in the six-run first inning and belted a two-run homer in the six-run third. He singled and scored South's final run on Gehrke's single in the fourth.

Nelson had an RBI double in the first, while Schroeder and Gehrke had run-scoring singles.

Brennan doubled home a run in the sixth, Yeskey and Nelson had RBI singles and Hamers hit a sacrifice fly.

Schmitt pitched the first three innings and struck out six and allowed three hits, but he walked five and hit two batters.

Hamers pitched the next two innings, allowing a hit while fanning three.

Chris Tiede and Chris Farkas each pitched a scoreless inning for South.

Gehrke, Nelson and Brennan each had two hits for South, which improved to 20-14 with the two wins.

Earlier, the Blue Devils lost 8-5 to University Liggett School in a non-league game.

Nelson had two hits and three RBI, while Schroeder collected three hits.

Sixth spot in state caps fine year for Blue Devils

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

This was a special season for Grosse Pointe South tennis. "In my 17 years of coaching, this is the first time we've won all our first-round matches," said Blue Devils coach Tom Berschback after his team finished tied for sixth place with Rochester Adams with 11 points in last weekend's Class A state championships in Midland.

"And this is the highest we've finished in the state without having a Western-ranked player. That feels good. Everyone's excited. Several of them are playing in the SEMTA (Southeastern Michigan Tennis Association) tournaments and we have others going to camps."

There were several outstanding performances against the top high school players in the state, but none better than the young No. 1 doubles team of Mike Case and John Berschback turned in. Case, a sophomore, and Berschback, a freshman, were seeded second in the tournament and drew a first-round bye. They began play by beating Adams' team 6-0, 6-3, then beat Ann Arbor Huron 6-4, 7-6 in the quarterfinals.

Case and Berschback faced East Lansing's John Ziewacz and Matt Hagen in the semifinals and lost 6-4, 7-6. The East Lansing pair went on to win the state title in the flight.

"I don't think there was another freshman who was seeded that high and not many sophomores," said coach Berschback, who is John's uncle. "They had an outstanding season, finishing 24-2. They're our co-most valuable players."

South's No. 2 doubles team of Greg Ryan and Aaron ZurSchmiede beat a pair from Midland Dow 6-3, 6-3 in the first round; defeated Bloomfield Hills Lahser's team 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 in the next round; and lost to second-seeded Birmingham Seaholm 6-4, 6-3 in the quarterfinals.

South's third doubles team of Ryan Parshall and Brian Brown won their first match against Chippewa Valley, but dropped their second 6-3, 6-2.

The Blue Devils also had some strong singles performances.

Freshman Preston Gaspar beat Port Huron Northern's Randy Walker 7-6, 3-6, 6-3 in his first match at No. 1 singles, then lost to the fourth seed in the second round.

"Walker had beaten Preston a week ago in the league tournament," Berschback said. "That was a nice comeback for him."

Gaspar won the team's Jeff Halso Coaches' Award.

A.J. Rohde beat a Woodhaven player 6-1, 6-3 in the first round at No. 2 singles, then lost 6-2, 6-4 to Ann Arbor Huron's John Long, the top seed in the flight and the eventual winner.

"A.J. did well against a fine player," Berschback said.

Tony Tocco won his first-round match in third singles, then bowed to the flight's fourth seed 6-3, 6-3.

In fourth singles, South's David DeGutis beat a Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central player 6-4, 7-6. DeGutis, the fourth seed in the flight, then lost his quarterfinal match 2-6, 7-6, 7-6 to Huron's Owen Fileti.

"That was the match that gave Huron the team championship," Berschback said.

The River Rats nipped crosstown rival Ann Arbor Pioneer 25-24 for the team title.

South's most improved player was Brian Cronin, who played fourth doubles.

"It's a shame there's no No. 4 doubles flight at the state meet because I think our kids could have won it," Berschback said of Cronin and Steve Andris.

"This was a great year. We were undefeated in dual meets, won the league and regional tournaments and had our highest state finish since 1992. And most of the kids are coming back. We only lose three of our top 10 players."

Grosse Pointe South's Vasse sisters made a strong showing at last Saturday's Class A girls track meet at Rockford. Aimee, right, was fifth in the 3,200-meter run and missed breaking a 13-year-old school record by one second. Her sister Jonnie just missed earning a medal in the 800 run, but Jonnie broke the school record in the event which was set in 1983.

Vasse sisters have impressive state meet

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's Vasse sisters each left last Saturday's Class A girls track meet in Rockford with an impressive accomplishment.

Aimee, a senior, finished fifth in the 3,200-meter run, while Jonnie, a sophomore, was ninth in the 800, but broke a 13-year-old school record in the event.

"They're a couple of neat sisters," said South coach Steve Zaranek. "They both have an excellent perspective on the sport. They work hard but enjoy the competition and the team environment."

"They're very supportive of each other. And they don't let adversity drag them down. Both of them have had injuries and other setbacks, but their tremendous determination kept them going."

When the outdoor season started, Aimee was a long shot to place in the state meet.

"She worked hard during the indoor season and raced against the best girls in the state, but she probably was no better than 10th to 15th at the time," Zaranek said. "Her improvement during the spring has been outstanding."

Aimee's time of 11:25.4 was a career best. It was only a second off the school record set by Meg Moisen in 1983. Aimee will have another shot at breaking the record Saturday when she competes for the Michigan team in the Midwest Meet of Champions in Indianapolis.

It will be a busy weekend for her because she has to be back in Detroit by 7 a.m. Sunday to carry the Olympic torch as it passes through the city.

She was selected for the honor after submitting an essay a couple of months ago.

"Aimee's times have been dropping steadily in the 3,200," Zaranek said. "The mid 11s are high-quality times. She ran a sound, consistent race on Saturday."

Portage Northern's Sharon VanTuyl was a runaway winner in the event, setting a all-class state record of 10:25.76, but Vasse was in a group challenging for fourth through eighth place.

"We've worked on her pacing to break the record and she used a lot of what's geared to that in her race Saturday," Zaranek said. "There were four runners within a second and she outkicked several of them."

"I admire the strategy and tactics it takes to run the two-mile and Aimee handled it well. A lot of it is due to her experience."

Jonnie just missed winning a medal in the 800 — the first eight finishers earn medals — but she broke Moisen's record of 2:20.9 — also set in 1983 — with a 2:20.5 clocking.

"Jonnie's been improving dramatically, too," Zaranek said. "She's been running well from the 400 up through the 3,200. She's a very versatile runner. She qualified for the state in three events, but felt the best about running the half.

"She was right in the thick of it to win a medal. There were about eight runners within two seconds of each other."

The Vasse sisters also played a big role earlier in South's first-place finish at the Macomb Area Conference White Division meet.

The Blue Devils won five events and the Vasses won three of them. Aimee broke two conference records in winning the 3,200 run in 11:32 and the 1,600 in 5:18. Jonnie won the 800 in 2:24.

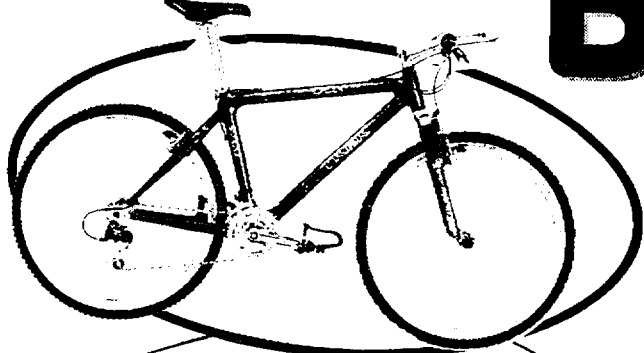

Freshman Erin Smialek was first in the long jump with a leap of 16-feet-1 1/2, while senior Gretchen Carter won the 400 in 1:00.9.

Meghan McGahey, Monique Fekin and Kelly LaBash also scored in the high jump, while Sarah Krueger gave the Blue Devils points in the discus and Lisa McCurdy and Carter scored in the long jump.

Safe at Home

When Wayne County prosecuting attorney Nancy Diehl began working with domestic violence, she was stunned at how tough the cases were.

"You have a woman sitting before you with broken bones and her face in stitches, and she's telling you she doesn't want to proceed with prosecuting the batterer," says Diehl, director of Wayne County's Child and Family Abuse Bureau and an assistant prosecuting attorney. "It's frustrating."

Diehl says women have worried that, if they took the batterer to court, they would be beaten even more brutally. They also feared the batterer would take away the couple's children.

So Diehl and the 35-member Wayne County Domestic Violence Coordinating Council got busy, radically changing the way that domestic violence cases are handled. Now the County is prosecuting batterers as if they had beaten an innocent bystander. "This is a criminal offense, like any assault," says Diehl.

Diehl and her team handle domestic violence matters exclusively in the city of Detroit, with cases ranging from simple assault to homicide. Out-county cases are handled by the Wayne County Prosecuting Attorney's office in Westland.

Changes in how Wayne County prosecutes domestic violence have caused case-load numbers to skyrocket. In 1993, Wayne County handled 883 cases. Since the new laws passed in 1994, prosecutors now deal with more than 4,000 files annually.

Use of personal protection orders, or PPO's (see sidebar) began in July, 1994. The law now allows victims to get a PPO without a lawyer.

Diehl wants community attitudes to change, too. "I want people to stop saying, "Why doesn't she leave?" and start asking, "Why does he batter?"

Nancy Diehl - Wayne County Prosecuting Attorney

If you have questions

GETTING A PERSONAL PROTECTION ORDER

Once called restraining orders or injunctions, Personal Protection Orders, or PPOs, are used to protect people from harm in domestic or dating relationships. To obtain a PPO in Wayne County, follow the steps listed below:

1. Fill out a PPO form at the Wayne County Clerk's office, Room 201 in the City-County Building on East Jefferson in downtown Detroit across from the tunnel to Canada.

2. One of the clerks will then assign you a case number and a judge.

3. Go to the judge's courtroom and talk with the clerk. That clerk will ask a few questions.

4. If the judge finds there is reasonable cause to believe that your abuser, the individual you are trying to restrain, may commit one of the acts such as an assault, then the judge will issue a PPO.

5. Once a judge signs it, the order is immediately effective. It is recommended that you have the order personally served on the abuser. The Wayne County Sheriff's Department, located in the City-County Building on the 17th floor, can provide personal service for $14 plus mileage.

NOTE: Court hours are 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. but because this whole process takes time, don't expect same-day service after 3 p.m.

ATTENTION HOUSE HUNTERS

Wayne County is helping people who want a home to get a home.

"Our program has been instrumental in not only meeting the national objective of increased homeownership, but it ensures that the buyer does not have any major repairs for the first three to five years of living there," says Malinda L. Jensen, manager of the Wayne County HOME Program.

The primary target communities are

Ecorse, Flat Rock,

Melvindale, River

Rouge, Romulus and Wayne. Secondary communities: Allen Park, Belleville,

Brownstown Township, Garden City,

Riverview, Rockwood, Southgate, Sumpter

Township, Trenton, Van Buren Township,

Woodhaven and Wyandotte.

Says Jensen: "We're proud of this program, which in only two years has made real progress moving so many people into their first homes."

Living Large

Karl & Marilyn Pardee and their kids, Karen, 15, Jennifer, 12, Aiesha, 3, and Rebecca, 2

Last year, Marilyn and Karl Pardee looked around at their growing family and decided the time had come to leave their apartment and buy a house.

The hunt was on, but it wasn't long before the Pardees discovered the houses that fit their needs were out of their price range.

One day, Marilyn happened to talk with a woman who worked at a local bank. Marilyn recalls, "She said 'Wayne County has a program that might work.'"

Created in 1994, the Wayne County HOME program gives qualified applicants up to $5,000 to use for a down payment on a home in one of Wayne County's 21 target communities (see list). The program also offers up to $10,000 for rehabilitation on the house. Recipients don't have to repay the money if they live in the home for five years.

To qualify, applicants must be a first-time home buyer and have an annual income less than or equal to 80 percent of the area's median income for a household. To date, more than 240 people are participating in the program.

A short time after they began working with Wayne County, the Pardees found a 3-bedroom, one-story ranch in Melvindale. The County gave them $5,000 for their down payment and another $10,000 for renovations.

The family moved in last May. They estimate the house bought for $49,000 would now sell for at least $60,000.

The move to Melvindale has changed the lives of the Pardee kids. "They're glad to get out of an apartment," said Marilyn. "They have their own backyard and it's easier for them to make friends."

Marilyn adds, smiling: "The program does work. I would love to do it again."

Silver and Gold

There's a good reason 77-year-old Edith Glusac is known among her friends as the Energizer Bunny, she says. It's because she keeps going and going.

Look at her agenda: she swims a half mile four times a week and she bowls twice a week. Last year in the Michigan State Masters Championships, she came in first in the 50-meter backstroke, 100-meter backstroke, 200-meter backstroke and the 200-meter free relay.

"My husband teases me that I spend more time in water than a fish," says Glusac, laughing.

This year, she'll be back at it competing in the annual Senior Olympics, sponsored by Wayne County Parks and the Detroit Recreation Department, in swimming, Frisbee throwing, the basketball free throw, baseball and table tennis. (see sidebar).

Glusac, a retired Detroit area physical education teacher, has won more than 200 competitive sports medals since she began competing seven years ago. This June, she will be inducted into the Polish American Sports Hall of Fame.

Competing in all kinds of sports since she was in junior high, the petite athlete ranks swimming as her favorite sport. "Now I'm addicted to it. I just like the competition and the people I'm around."

Glusac offers advice to seniors who would like to get active. "Find the closest recreation center - it's your best deal. If you're not active, play cards, do hand-craft activities or anything just to get out of the house."

"It isn't always that you have to be a winner," Glusac says. "I'm not the world's best, but I've met my goals. I finish my races."

READY, SET, CRAWL...

In celebration of the Olympics this year, Wayne County Parks is sponsoring a Nursery School Olympics, designed for preschoolers ages 3-5.

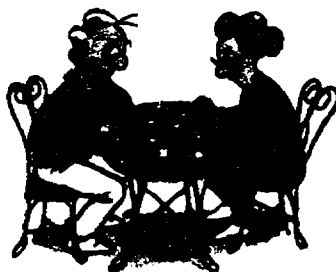

Events include marshmallow shot put, paper-plate discus, toddler trot and a diaper derby. Parents may coax their tots to the finish line. The event takes place Sat., June 22 starting at 9 a.m. at Elizabeth Park in Trenton.

No preregistration is necessary. Every child who participates will receive an award. Co-sponsors include McDonald's, Michigan Recreation and Park Association and the Trenton Park and Recreation Association.

For more information, call Tessie Pitses at Wayne County Parks at 261-3285

ACTIVE FOR LIFE

Forget Atlanta, sports fans. The Wayne County Parks and the Detroit Recreation Department's Senior Olympics will be held June 17-20 starting at 9 a.m. on Belle Isle.

"This year we expect to have the biggest turnout since we started," says Sam Mims, Wayne County recreation supervisor.

Getting involved with Senior Olympics is not difficult. "We would like everyone 50 years old and over to come out and participate," says Mims. "It's not just for those who are active."

Opening day, Wednesday, June 19, will include square dancing, checkers, horseshoe tournaments, arts and crafts, Frisbee throwing and bike racing.

Seniors are encouraged to pre-register for the event. The deadline is June 7, 1996. Participants pay $8 and receive a T-shirt, lunch and authorization to sign up for five activities. A banquet and award ceremony for the winners will be held June 28 from 4-9 p.m.

THE PICK OF THE PARKS

We scoured Wayne County Parks for your specific summertime needs and came up with the following: See our map for exact locations.

Most popular picnic location

Every spring, people line up to reserve the big 100-seater Warrendale shelter in Dearborn Heights. Its central location and excellent facilities house convivial company picnics and fun-filled family reunions. By mid-summer 1996, three new shelters are to be constructed. Locations are Bell Creek Park, Waterford Park and Nankin Mills.

Best spot for a woodsy family dinner

Both Nankin Mills and Elizabeth Park have oodles of swings and play structures for kids to crawl on and slide down.

Most romantic spot for you and your sweetie

Stare deeply into each other's eyes at verdant Meads Mill and or stroll hand-in-hand along the river walk at Elizabeth Park.

Top backdrop for your outdoor wedding

Summertime in Wayne County Parks

Best place to drop a fishing line

Breeziest spot to go fly your kite

The wide, open, grassy spaces at Nankin Mills practically cry out for kite-flyers.

Best place for a budding cowgirl or cowboy

Best place to catch some rays

Rent the paddleboats at Newburgh Point or the canoes at Oak Grove for some relaxation on the water.

Where to pretend you're on a Baywatch beach

Any of the four sand volleyball areas at Nankin Mills or the two courts at Northville would be perfect places to practice those diving saves.

Important tip:

Some locations require a permit. Call the Parks office at 261-1990 for permit information.

Doing Good Deeds

names of the parties involved, a legal description of the land and the price.

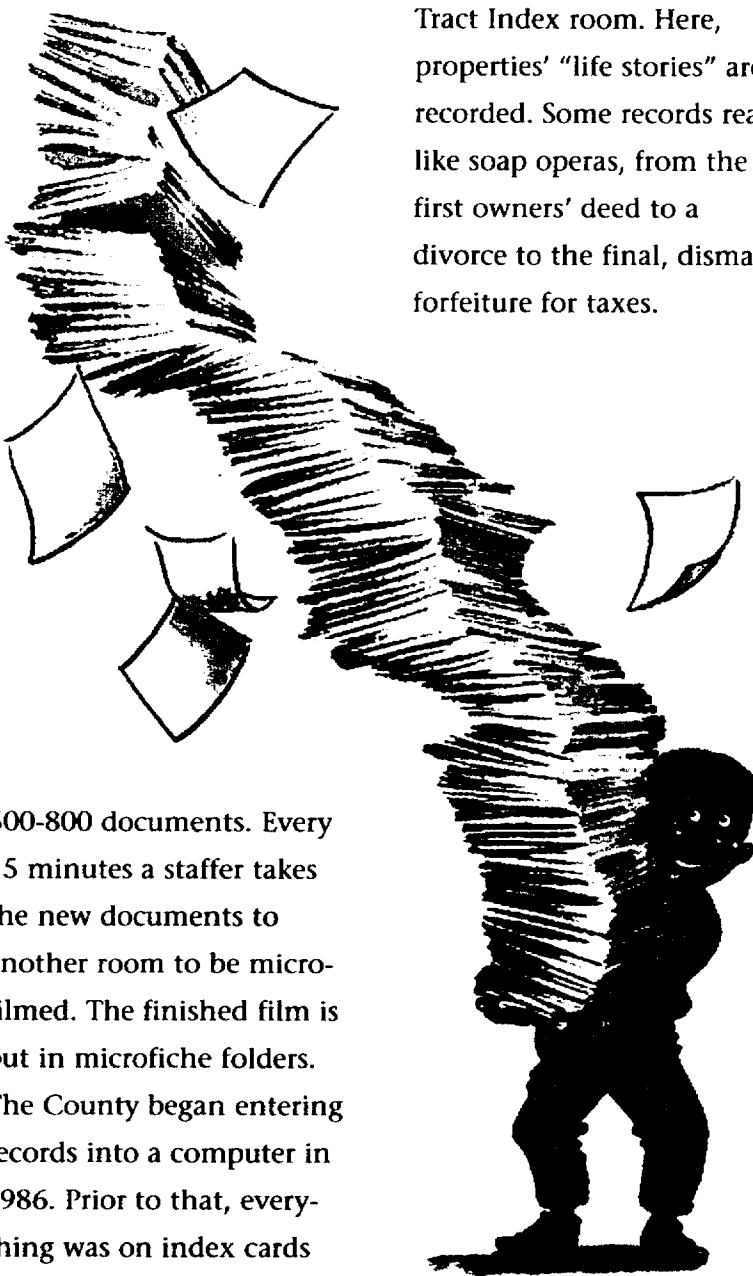

The oldest deeds - yellowing with age, handwritten in dramatic, swirly lettering - are kept away from the public's oily fingers in huge books on backroom shelves.

One document, drawn between Chippewa chiefs and settlers in March 1797, describes "a piece of land starting at the lake and stones and going 25 miles south." The city-size property sold for a paltry $50. Another deed from 1780 has animal figures - the Native American sellers' signatures - along the bottom. Office management is considering the idea of reproducing historical documents and authenticating them for collectors.

Eighty to 100 documents arrive each day from walk-in customers. Title insurance companies and the mail bring in another 500-800 documents. Every 15 minutes a staffer takes the new documents to another room to be micro-filmed. The finished film is put in microfiche folders. The County began entering records into a computer in 1986. Prior to that, everything was on index cards and entered in large, bound books.

If a person wants to see the history of who has lived on their property, they should venture into the Tract Index room. Here, properties' "life stories" are recorded. Some records read like soap operas, from the first owners' deed to a divorce to the final, dismal forfeiture for taxes.

THE PAPER CHASE

In case you need to find out who once owned a piece of property, follow these steps:

1. Take address or legal description to the Register of Deeds office (location below).
2. Go to Tract Index in Room 600.
3. If the office is crowded with customers, take a number.
4. Give clerk the address you're searching for.
5. If you need a copy of the document, the clerk will have one made for you for a small fee.

The Register of Deeds office is located on the sixth floor of the International Center Bldg., 400 Monroe in Greektown in Detroit. Open 8 a.m.-4:30 pm. Mon-Fri. 224-5850.

It takes 79 people keep the County's 28 million pages of land-transaction documents in order and retrievable. Recorded documents include mortgages, encumbrances, bankruptcy filings and liens. Recording deeds costs $11 for one page, $3 for each additional page and the cost of transfer fees, which vary according to the cost of the property.

Strewing herbs were early air fresheners

Many generations ago, long before the days of wall-to-wall carpeting, after a housekeeper had cleaned her house, she strewed the wood floors with fragrant herbs and clean rushes gathered from the nearest river bank and dried in the sun.

How pleasant it must have been to come in the door and be greeted with the fragrance of the beeswax, with which the floor had been polished, as well as the scent of lavender and thyme.

Strewing the floor is a very old custom now having a revival and has happy spin-offs in the strewing of linen closets and storage chests to protect wool rugs and linens from marauding pests.

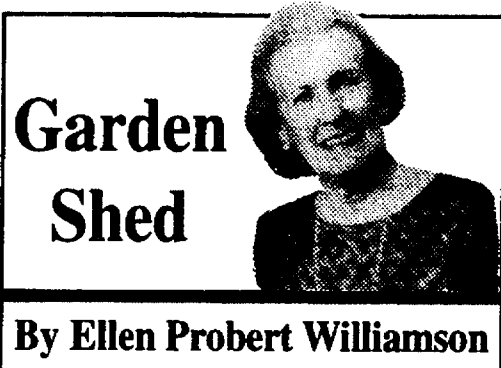

The strewing of scented herbs, flowers and rushes is a custom that goes back as far as 1500 B.C. Egyptian tomb paintings show this. In ancient Rome, strewing flower petals to scent a banquet hall was a feature of importance.

Tradition says that Cleopatra had her mattress stuffed with rose petals. Strewing herbs on the floor is mentioned in Hippocrates' writings, "Canterbury Tales" and in various places in the Bible.

The dried rushes that covered the stone floors of medieval castles provided insulation, bedding, deodorizing and dust collecting all at once. The royal herb strewer was a member of the palace staff.

We are now discovering what everyone knew then; that the scent of strewing herbs provides not only a pleasant atmosphere but some practical advantages as well.

The early settlers of this country brought the custom of herb-strewing with them. In Thomas Tusser's 1573 book, "Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry," 21 herbs are listed. In a number of Herbals published in England, including those written by John Gerard (1633), John Parkinson (1629) and Nicholas Culpepper (1652), lists of pre-

Garden Shed

By Ellen Probert Williamson

ferred strewing herbs were also listed.

Colonial kitchen gardens were tended for salads; cooking herbs and medicines. Strewing herbs were considered "medicals."

The Puritan housewife relied on her garden to supply all she would need for flavorings, seasonings, garnishings, insect repellents and deodorants, fresheners, rodents and snake repellents, dyes, syrups, cordials and "possets," plasters, salves and pills, treating wounds and fevers, cosmetics, scented waters, aids in childbirth and laying out the dead. Second only to soap in their application, strewing herbs were indispensable.

Strong-smelling herbs, such as mints, penny royal, sweet woodruff and tobacco, were useful as pest repellents — an important factor in an age in which there were no window screens.

Our custom of filling the fireplace with fragrant pots of ferns, juniper or scented plants in the summer stems directly from the custom of strewing.

By the 18th century, "India matting" made of woven straw, with its own pleasant scent, was often laid on the floor, often over a "strewing" of fragrant herbs.

Wool carpets, draperies, blankets and garments were stored with pepper, costmary, dried cedar bark or tobacco during the summer months, with camphor for furs.

A development of strewing in the early years of the 19th century was the practice of pounding herbs like lemon balm and sweet cecily in a mortar and the juice was used to polish wood floors.

In Colonial America, strewing herbs was often scattered on ironing tables under a layer of cloth so that the fragrance would be transferred to the article being ironed.

Mattresses during this period were often stuffed with corn husks or straw. Strong-smelling herbs, such as lavender, were also added. Linens were stored with little bags of lavender, a practice which many of us still use.

In his famous Herbal, Nicholas Culpepper advised that "Wormwood, being laid among clothes, will make a moth scorn to meddle with clothes as much as a lion scorns to meddle with a mouse or an eagle with a fly."

The sprigs of lavender, or the scented sachets we use today, perhaps our most common modern strewing of a fragrant herb, were probably used by Colonial housekeepers. Our modern scented sprays and air fresheners are descendants of these methods.

You could try strewing scented herbs under area rugs, welcome mats or stair runners. Any one of the mints, anise, cedar, rosemary, fir, basil or sage will do. The scent will be released when the rug is walked upon.

Hanging sprigs of mint near a fan or an open window in the summer will scent the room. This is a custom often seen in India.

Be creative. The more you think about the possibilities of using strewing herbs, the more ideas you will have.

As the first book printed in the Colonies (in 1640), the "Bay Psalm Book," says, "Every plant and herb has its purpose."

Take a Red Cross health education class because . . .

Detroit Edison improves air conditioning program

With summer's sweltering temperatures not far off, Detroit Edison has modified its interruptible air conditioning program to keep customers cooler while helping them save money.

More than 250,000 Detroit Edison residential customers are signed up for the program, under which they save 20 percent for electricity used for central air conditioning.

In exchange for a lower rate, customers allow Detroit Edison to interrupt their air conditioning service during periods of heavy electricity demand.

This allows the utility to manage the load on its electrical system.

In the past, air conditioning interruptions have occurred occasionally on weekdays when humidity was high and temperatures exceeded 90 degrees. The interruptions typically occurred from 1 to 8 p.m. in 10-minute cycles.

This year, the cycling schedule will be 15 minutes, allowing homes to cool 50 percent longer.

"Because most air conditioners take from three to seven minutes to reach maximum cooling capacity, our customers will notice very little temperature difference in their homes when service is interrupted," said Jerry Goetz, product manager of Detroit Edison retail customer marketing. "We believe our customers will be more comfortable and continue to save money at the same time if they have a properly sized cooling unit."

For additional information about the interruptible air conditioning program, call 1-800-477-4747.

Detroit Edison also suggests the following tips to obtain maximum cooling efficiencies:

- Before the cooling season begins, clean away any leaves or other debris from outdoor air conditioning units.
- Replace the furnace filter.

- Have the cooling system checked at least every other year by a reputable contractor.

- Be sure supply and return registers are not blocked by furniture or drapery.

- Close drapes and shades during the day to keep out the sun.

- Turn up the thermostat five to 10 degrees when leaving the house for several hours.

- Install extra insulation, weatherproofing and caulking to reduce heating and cooling operating costs.

- When hot, humid days are forecast, turn on the air conditioning the night before so it operates more efficiently.

Reverse mortgages now available at all HFC branches

The "Ever Yours" reverse mortgage credit line from Household Senior Services (HSS) can now be obtained simply by walking into any of 19 Michigan branches of its sister company, Household Finance Corporation (HFC).

Reverse mortgages are programs which allow homeowners age 62 and over to get cash from their residence by borrowing against their home equity, with no payment due until the home is sold or ownership is transferred. There are no income or credit qualifications, and title remains in the name of the customer.

Household Senior Services, already one of the largest private reverse mortgage providers in the country, is integrating its operations much more closely with HFC in order to make it easier for customers to visit with a trained reverse mortgage expert.

"Previously we had mobile representatives serving various regions who responded to customer calls made to our toll-free number," said Janice Newsom, HFC product manager for the Ever Yours program. "Now customers will be able to visit with a trained expert just by walking into their local HFC branch, while they'll still have the option of calling us toll-free first."

Ever Yours is best known for its high credit line limit ($250,000), its ease of application (one page) and speed of processing (typically under two weeks). Unlike some other reverse mortgages, there is no application fee, no servicing fee, annual fees or back-end fees.

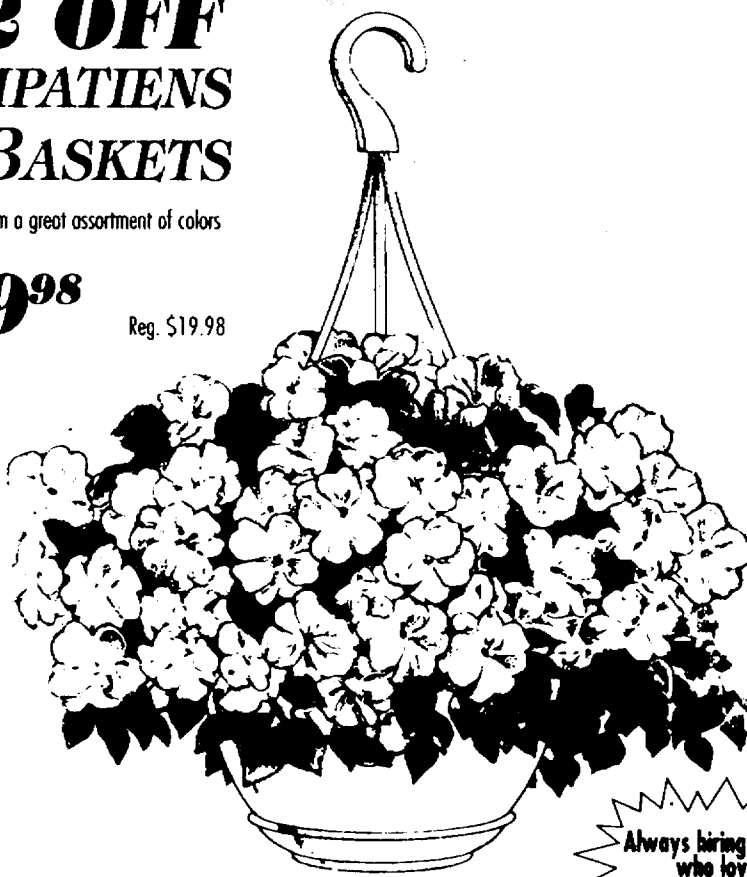

The toll-free consumer information number for Ever Yours is 1-800-414-EVER.

The work by American Studio potters made since the 1930s is rising in price as it is rediscovered by collectors.

Most of the pieces were hand-made. Humorous and whimsical sculptures were popular. Some of the artists made pieces that were influenced by the folk art of other countries.

During the Depression, the Work Projects Administration set up a program for artists who were paid about $100 a month. In Ohio, figurines based on children's stories were made to be put into libraries, and many public murals were painted. Small humorous figurines were popular, including chubby zebras, Disney-like lions and young children enjoying daily activities. Some figures were caricatures of political figures, identifiable and laughable. Artists such as Russell Barnett Aitken, Viktor Schreckengost, Edris Eckhardt, Carl Walters and Thelma Frazier Winter exhibited their works at

Q. I have trading cards advertising Shaker Family Pills, Shaker Soothing Plasters and Shaker Extract of Roots. Did the Shaker religious community really make those items?

A. Yes, Shakers did make medicine. The cards advertise syrups, plasters and pills prepared by members of the Shaker community in Mount Lebanon, N.Y.

Part of the Shaker belief was to use herbs to stay healthy and to nurse people back to health. The

The cards are worth about $25 each. ***

Q. I have a collection of small flat silver charms that I found in Europe. Some are shaped like body parts, others are hearts, animals and even full figures of people. I've never seen them in antique shops. What are they?

A. The items you describe are religious votives that go by different names in different countries. In Greece, they're called "tama." In Mexico, they're called "milagros." The silver or gold figures were offered to a saint to request a favor or in thanks for a favor granted.

A landscape fabric primer will make gardening easy

Home&Garden Features

Remember the days when the only possible way to battle weeds was with the help of a hoe? A tiresome, dirty task, the end only appeared near when summer was over and the cooler weather of fall was approaching.

Those days are fortunately long gone, as landscape fabrics are making life for the gardener easier than ever.

Weeds can become a worst nightmare, even for the experienced gardener. Imagine all the hard work and time spent toiling to produce the picture perfect garden, only to have it bombarded by ugly weeds. Unpleasant to the eye, weeds kill a garden by blocking sunlight and absorbing moisture that ultimately never reaches the plants.

Landscape fabrics, however, work to promote the growth and stamina of garden plants, and they do this by prohibiting any kind of weed growth. Environmentally safe, extremely effective, and easy to use, landscape fabrics are proving to be the weed prevention of choice among gardeners.

A safe and sound investment

The first question one may ask is, how are landscape fabrics environmentally safe? To appreciate this answer, it's important to understand the workings of the fabric itself.

A landscape fabric like Easy Gardener's WeedBlock is a strong synthetic fabric with thousands of tiny "micro-funnels" molded into it, which allow air and water to pass through to the plant roots.

In the past, gardeners turned to regular black plastic bags to deter the growth of weeds, but this method backfired when garden plants were literally suffocated because the soil couldn't "breathe" through the plastic. Landscape fabrics, on the other hand, allow plants to receive air, water, and vital nutrients, while the growth of weeds below the fabric is stopped in their tracks.

The use of landscape fabrics is also a much safer route when compared to other weed preventatives, such as chemicals.

Landscape fabrics do not entail the use of any substances that could cause harm to the environment, and their effectiveness equals or surpasses that of any yard and garden chemical. Besides being environmentally sound, landscape fabrics are safe to store around children and pets.

Versatility in the garden

While landscape fabrics have been successful as a weed deterrent in the garden bed, they are useful in other areas as well. These weed-prone areas include around trees, plants, shrubs, and even in potted plants.

Once the landscape fabric has been applied, weeds won't stand a chance, even in such hard to reach areas. Besides utilizing fabrics for weed preventative purposes, they can also be installed when repair work is done on decks and patios.

The actual process of applying WeedBlock is quite simple, even if you're not a seasoned gardener. Start a weed-free garden by laying the landscape fabric over a chosen area of garden soil. Distribute plants on top of the fabric the way that the finished garden would look. Once the garden is plotted, cut holes or x's into the landscape fabric where the plants will grow, and simply plant them through the holes of the fabric. Stopping weeds in a mature perennial garden is just as easy.

Lay the fabric over the garden, and cut x's above the plants, so the fabric can be pulled over them. Covering the material with a layer of mulch will further ensure the prevention of pesky weeds.

Halting the attack of weeds in the garden may have seemed like a merciless task in the past, but now, with the help of landscape fabrics like WeedBlock, those worries are history.

The garden will not only look sharper, but fabrics relieve gardeners from the aggravating task of ripping up weeds. Further, landscape fabrics allow work in the garden to be more efficient, giving every gardener a fair shot at having the most bountiful and beautiful garden in the neighborhood.

Over two decades ago, exterior house stains were introduced as alternatives to paint for those who desired a rustic appearance for their homes. Today, there is a dramatic shift in exterior stain colors and the emerging description is "weathered."

Once you've decided on the look you want and have made your stain selections, you'll be ready to begin the application process:

- Test the stain you'll be using on a scrap piece of wood or on an inconspicuous spot on the house, just to be sure you'll be achieving the desired results.

- Ask your dealer how to properly prepare the surface you'll be staining, as weathered or previously stained surfaces require some preparation work.

Household Help

- Be sure to coat a section of three or four boards and continue staining — either horizontally or vertically — until you've gone either completely across or top to bottom. Never stop staining mid-wall; continue until you reach a natural break such as a window.

- To apply semi-transparent stain (either solvent- or water-based), apply one coat of stain on bare wood by brush. If a spray gun or roller is used, application should be followed by a brush to ensure maximum adhesion and uniform coverage. This is also the recommended procedure for solid color stains.

- To achieve proper adhesion with solid color stains, "mill glaze" on smooth siding should be broken with light sanding. Remember to apply at recommended spreading rates and avoid heavy application to minimize potential for peeling.

- To prevent stains or tannins from bleeding through — a common occurrence with redwood and cedar — use a primer under the light colors of latex-based solid color stains. Never use a primer with a semi-transparent stain. It will defeat the purpose, as a primer will not allow the texture and grain of wood to show through.

What to do when spring showers won't fall

By Dr. Ellen Henke

"Rain, rain, go away. Come again some other day."

This little rhyme may be great for kids who want to play outside, but it's not so great for your lawn. It's much more likely that you'll be singing, "Rain, Rain, please remain. My water bill's too high again!"

If Mother Nature doesn't provide enough moisture for your lawn, you should help. Grass plants have to take in almost all of their nutrients dissolved in water.

Without enough water in the soil, a lawn can't get the nutrients it needs for food production, growth, strength and reproduction — making it susceptible to disease and insects. The soil is generally moist enough in early spring and doesn't need water.

Toward the end of spring and throughout the summer, the sun's searing heat will dry out your lawn unless you give it regular attention.

Your lawn needs at least one inch of water a week. Use a rain gauge to monitor rainfall. Use sprinklers to supplement the amount of rain your lawn receives — placing sprinklers evenly around your yard. It's also a good idea to measure the amount of time it takes for your lawn to receive the needed amount of water by placing plastic containers around the lawn with a one-inch mark. If you do this once, you'll know how long to water every time.

When you water, water deeply. If possible, water in the morning. Grass blades left wet overnight are susceptible to disease and fun-

Even if you monitor the amount of water your lawn receives, watch your lawn for signs of thirst. Sandy soils need more water while rich organic soils generally need less. Evaporation, heat, length of grass blade, shade and wind all affect your lawn's watering needs.

If your grass blades begin to curl or turn bluish-green, your lawn needs to be watered. Another sign that it's time to water is when you walk across the lawn and can look back and see your footprints.

If you're having a long dry spell, either water regularly or don't water at all. If you don't water, your lawn will go dormant — you can bring it back to life when the drought is over. If you decide to water, be sure you water regularly and deeply. The worst thing you can do is base your lawn with little bits of water now and then.

If you live in an area where water conservation is requested or enforced during a drought, you simply have to do the best you can and hope your lawn survives the stress.

Be responsible. Water only when your lawn needs it, and follow water regulations in your area.

... and keep singing! I know I will... "Rain, rain, may come and go... but I prefer the rain to snow."
