

Schools preparing for, awaiting results of first proficiency exams

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe school administrators are still a month away from getting results of the first-ever High School Proficiency Test (HSPT) which was given to juniors in March.

But estimates from the state, based on a representative sample of tests, indicate that less than half the high school juniors tested achieved the rank of "proficient" on the exam.

Test scores will be distributed to school districts during the first week in September. Although the numbers reported in the daily newspapers last week are estimates, said Diane Smolen, supervisor of the Michigan Educational Assessment Program, she doesn't expect the final figures to differ by more than a percentage or two.

The HSPT is an 11-hour exam involving reading, writing, math and science. It was administered last spring over a two-week period and took months of planning and preparation.

The HSPT replaces the Michigan Educational Assessment Program test as a qualifier for state endorsements on high school diplomas.

Endorsements are stickers affixed to diplomas and transcripts that show that a high school graduate has achieved "proficiency" in one or more of the four tested subjects.

Numbers released by the state department of education last week to the state school board were used in conjunction with a presentation to the board on setting standards for test scoring, Smolen said.

"The point of the estimates was not to tell the scores but to help the (state school) board on Wednesday make a decision on standard-setting," Smolen said.

The state board approved the standards (see related story) which rate students in each category as being "proficient," "novice" and "not yet novice."

"We took to the board a representative sample of the results," she said. "Before the reports go to the school districts, we have to tell them what 'proficient' is."

Grosse Pointe schools have not received any information on the test results, said Marjorie Parsons, assistant superintendent for curriculum and evaluation.

Former Farms man enjoys Russian flying

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

When the U.S. Navy's Blue Angels perform this weekend at Selfridge Air National Guard Base, Joseph Wortman will be there watching, knowing just what the pilots are going through.

That's because the former Grosse Pointe Farms resident recently returned from Russia, where he flew a MIG-29 fighter plane, a craft similar to FA/18 Hornet fighters the Blue Angels fly.

"It's physically demanding," Wortman said. "I have a whole new respect for those who fly them."

The 1987 Grosse Pointe South graduate began flying at age 16. He eventually completed his commercial pilot certificate and received a flight instructor's certificate in 1991.

Wortman, who works in the sales department of Detroit Radiant Products Co., has taught private pilot courses out of Detroit's City Airport through the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's adult education program.

Through a Florida-based company called Incredible Adventures he attended a "Bp Gun" type school based at the Zhukovsky Air Base near Moscow.

Having a pilot's license isn't a requirement, Wortman said, "but your experience dictates how much you can do. I had sent my certifications ahead, so the pilots there knew of my experience."

An experienced pilot is allowed to have more control of the plane while flying than someone with little or no experience.

Wortman arrived in Moscow June 29 and spent the first couple of days visiting various attractions, such as Red Square, the Kremlin, Lenin's Tomb and the Bolshoi Opera House.

On July 1, he would be flying more than eight miles high and at speeds approaching 1,000 miles per hour.

"I was immediately put through a physical and sent down for a G-suit and flight gear fittings," Wortman said. "Upon completion of this, I was sent to ejection seat training as taught to Russian pilots. It was very important to execute properly all aspects of ejection as typical G-forces exceed 20 during seat launch. Improper body position would paralyze you or be fatal."

G-force is roughly the weight of gravity times a certain number. Wortman said that when going through a turn at 7Gs his weight of about 200 pounds would feel like 1,400 pounds.

Following his flights, Wortman was able to spend some time in Moscow's Red Square.

Wortman met his test pilot, Alexander Bechastnov, who would accompany him during the L-39 and MIG-29 flights.

"This flight lasted approximately 40 minutes and was geared at preparing me for the upcoming MIG-29 flight," said Wortman of the L-39 flight. "Maneuvers included high-speed passes at low altitudes, inverted flight, loops, tailwalks, tight 360-degree high bank turns and stalls."

The L-39 is a sub-sonic, Vietnam-era plane. The MIG-29, first deployed in 1985, is capable of flying at Mach 2.3 or 2.3 times the speed of sound.

The speed of sound is about 700 miles per hour. A commercial 747 jetliner typically reaches speeds of about 600 miles per hour.

"This was certainly the highlight of the trip," Wortman said of his MIG-29 flight. "This high-tech flier had the agility of a sports car and acceleration that cannot be explained. Afterburners were lit upon take-off and within 300 feet we were traveling at over 170 miles per hour. We placed the plane in a vertical position and while rolling climbed at 1,000 feet per second.

"At 5,000 feet we broke the speed of sound (Mach 1.2) and upon reaching this speed climbed vertically to 45,000 feet (it was black above and blue below)."

City Airport study committee again gets yearly budget

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The Airport Study Committee, an organization dedicated to protecting the interests of east side communities in the expansion of Detroit City Airport, has been funded for another year.

Patrick McCarroll, chairman of the organization, said the group will continue to stay abreast of Detroit's expansion plans for the airport.

Members include the five Pointes, Harper Woods, Warren, Center Line, the Macomb County board of commissioners and the newest member, Tecumseh, Ontario, which is directly across Lake St. Clair from the Farms and the City.

The Pointes and Harper Woods are full-fledged members of the committee because they make financial contributions to the committee. This makes them voting members, while communities that have declined to contribute are non-voting members.

The size of each community's contribution is based on population. Grosse Pointe Woods pays the largest share.

$26,705. Grosse Pointe Farms is next, with a contribution of $19,465, followed by Harper Woods' contribution of $18,465. The Park's contribution is $17,980, the City's is $10,040, and Grosse Pointe Shores pays $7,325. The total amount of contributions equals $100,000.

"In addition to keeping up with expansion plans, we represent the interests of our members to Federal Aviation Administration and the Michigan Aeronautics Bureau, which must approve the project," said McCarroll.

"Our position is that we support City Airport as a general aviation airport, which is what it's been since the 1920s," McCarroll said. "The airport's existing runway and infrastructure are adequate to serve the small prop and turbo airplanes that currently use the airport."

Consultants hired by the committee, said McCarroll, have put together an in-depth analysis of Detroit's expansion plan, which makes a compelling case against expansion.

"This year we are going to continue to monitor Detroit's efforts," McCarroll said. "We have made a presentation before the FAA which argued against expansion."

Detroit is in the final stages of receiving technical approval of its latest plan from the appropriate government agencies, said McCarroll.

Technical approval means that the proposed plan will work — it does not mean that final approval is guaranteed.

"Once technical approval is given, state and federal agencies will review the master plan for funding approval," McCarroll said. "Detroit is late with its plan, which they promised to deliver last December. Once the plan is issued, we will review it and inform the FAA and the state of our position and of our opinions."

McCarroll said that given the scarcity of resources, it doesn't make any sense to spend $100 million on City Airport when Detroit Metro Airport is undergoing a billion dollar renovation and Flint's airport has just completed an expansion that can handle many of the types of services that City Airport wants to do.

"This is a 'People Mover' project," McCarroll said. "It will drain limited resources, and set City Airport in competition with Metro Airport, and that's a competition that City will lose. The money can be better spent elsewhere. There's no justification for spending $100 million on this project when there are other, better ways to improve air service to Detroit."

After the L-39 flight, Wortman was ready to fly this MIG-29.

MIG

Wortman and his test pilot test the acrobatics of the MIG-29, conducting many of the same maneuvers done in the L-39. The turns done in the MIG-29 had G-forces exceeding 7.

According to Incredible Adventures, the test pilots may be insulted if offered a monetary tip at the end of the flight, but gifts are appreciated.

Wortman presented Beschastnov a Detroit Red Wings jersey with Sergei Fedorov's name on it.

After an authentic Russian meal in the mess hall, Wortman was presented with a certificate, test pilot pin and a watch given to MIG-29 pilots.

"The next day, I went to the Monino Air Museum, Russia's equivalent to our Smithsonian Air and Space Museum," Wortman said.

On his last day in Russia,

Wortman observed the elections and the security measures in place before departing for three days in Amsterdam and then back to Michigan.

Short of joining the United States military, Wortman's trip to Russia was his only opportunity to fly a fighter plane like the MIG-29. The United States government will not allow civilians to fly in the FA/18 Hornets.

"Members of the press and some celebrities are often given rides with the Blue Angels, but they are just passengers," Wortman said. "It's primarily to promote the Blue Angels."

Back here, Wortman flies mostly single-engine planes, such as Cessnas and Pipers. He has also flown twin-engine, turbo-charged Navajo planes for his job.

"But, nothing compares to the MIG," he said. "It was always a dream of mine to fly a fighter. If someone has the desire for hands-on experience like this, I would highly recommend this trip."

The Blue Angels will be featured in an air show Saturday, Aug. 3, and Sunday, Aug. 4, at Selfridge Air National Guard Base. Gates open at 8 a.m. and close at 2:15 p.m. each day. The Blue Angels are scheduled to appear between 3 and 5 p.m. Admission and parking are free. For more information, call (810) 307-2800.

Exams

"We expect that Grosse Pointe students will do very well on the HSPT," Parsons said. "We have no reason to believe otherwise."

Parsons said the school district is doing a couple of things in preparation for the test results and to adjust to the new testing system.

On Aug. 19 and 20, about 200 teachers in Grosse Pointe will sit down with Nina Metzner, coordinator of the MEAP/HSPT writing test scoring, and go through the scoring process. Parsons said the district photocopied all the writing tests in the spring. This process will show the teachers how the tests were scored. They will compare their findings with the state results.

"This testing agenda is a reform agenda and that needs to be pointed out," Parsons said. "Schools normally test after teaching. Now, the state is testing first and then telling us what we need to teach. Some things tested are not always included in our curriculum. So what we do is if we see weaknesses, we look at our curriculum and see if we need to make adjustments."

The HSPT involved a three-part writing exam, a two-part math exam, one science exam and one reading exam.

Teachers and administrators in Grosse Pointe spent a great deal of time preparing for the tests and making sure students and parents were aware of and ready to face the rigorous schedule. The school day had to be rearranged to accommodate the students being tested and in some cases, the building was closed to all but those taking the tests to eliminate distractions.

"The test is extremely hard and there was a great deal of unhappiness regarding the length of the test," Parsons said. "Few adults have taken a test that takes between 11 and 13 hours. But it's brand-new; traditionally, first rounds do not go well."

Other concerns Parsons said educators have about the test include the fact that standards for passing were not announced when the test was presented.

For the coming school year, the HSPT will be administered in January. Retesting for last year's HSPT will be from Sept. 30 through Oct. 11.

Smolen said the state will administer a parallel test in January. The format will be the same but the questions will change.

Proficiency test standards

Here are examples of scoring standards for two of the four test areas. In all areas, it is noted that proficient is a challenging standard but attainable for students who have completed grade 10.

Writing

A student who scores within the proficient range:

- demonstrates critical insight into the choices he or she makes in writing text by articulating his or her own strengths and weaknesses as a writer or by setting goals for improving his or her writing.

• uses strategies effective in preparing and writing an impromptu piece.

• generates ideas and supports those ideas with details and examples suitable for the audience and purpose.

• organizes thoughts in a clear and focused manner.

• selects sentence structure and words which strengthen and enhance content.

• demonstrates control of grammar, standard spelling and other language conventions.

A student who scores within the novice range:

- demonstrates a moderate amount of critical insight into the choices he or she makes in writing a text.
- uses strategies that are moderately effective in preparing and writing an impromptu piece.

• generates ideas and supports them with limited details and examples.

• organizes thoughts moderately well.

• selects sentence structure and words which convey content in a logical manner.

• demonstrates developing/emerging control of grammar, standard spelling, and other language conventions.

Mathematics

A student who scores within the proficient range:

- understands mathematical concepts through seeing patterns and relationships.
- applies procedural knowledge.

• problem-solves.

• makes connections.

• reasons and communicates mathematically.

This student:

• can make meaningful connections between one's own mathematical skills and various representations (verbal, graphic and symbolic).

• understands mathematics as a whole, rather than isolated topics and rules.

• can use mathematical skills in problem-solving situations like those found in the real world.

• apply procedural knowledge.

• solve basic problems.

• make limited connections.

• show developing mathematical reasoning and communication skills.

This student:

• uses various representations (verbal, graphic and symbolic), but does not consistently make connections between them.

• understands mathematics as isolated topics and rules rather than as a whole.

• uses mathematical skills in basic problem-solving situation.

Woods to fund $60,000 in park improvements

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

As a part of the city's continuing effort to improve Lake Front Park, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council has approved $60,000 for new gazebos and improvements to the park's playscape.

The council appropriated $47,318 for the purchase of three gazebos for the park. That amount does not include the city's department of public works labor costs. The total amount allocated for the project in the 1996-97 budget is $54,000.

In addition to approving the three gazebos, the Woods council also approved spending $6,000 to improve Lake Front Park's new playscape.

Planning commission member Vicki Granger, who chaired the playscape committee, said that the money will be used to make the playscape more handicapped accessible.

"When we planned and built the new playscape last year, we had to scale back the size of it a little," said Granger. "The playscape is still handicapped accessible, but we had originally planned on building a ramp for wheelchair access. Currently, there is a circular staircase that permits kids using crutches and walkers to access parts of the playscape."

The $6,000 appropriated by the council will be used, said Granger, to build a ramp similar to the one proposed in the original playscape designs.

"When we started the project, committee director Sally Martin, who has a background in recreational activities, was helpful in informing the committee what handicapped kids can and can't do," said Granger. "For example, children in wheelchairs can use handholds to pull themselves off of their chair to go down the slide."

But to get to the slide an access ramp has to be built. Federal standards require at least 12 feet of ramp for every one foot of vertical height, Granger said, so the ramp will be fairly long, but she said she can't say how long right now.

"We wanted this playscape to be the best for our children — all of our children," said Granger.

As for the gazebos, the city will save money by purchasing kits and having them built by the department of public works. The gazebos are New England style and will be purchased from Engan-Booley. The largest will have a weather vane, said city administrator Peter Thomas in a memorandum to the city council.

Director of public works Thomas Whitcher, in another memo to the council, said that the gazebo kits will arrive in late August, so construction should be completed in September.

The gazebos will be placed by the park's boardwalk, which was installed last year. It, along with the improved playscape, is the culmination of several years of efforts by the council and the various citizen committees to make Lake Front Park a more beautiful and attractive place for Woods residents, said mayor Robert Novitke.

Park prepares for summer road repairs

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park officials are putting the final touches on plans for the city's annual summer road repaving project.

"We should have everything decided by the end of the week," said Park city manager Dale Krajniak. "Park public service director Muzaffar Lakhani has been examining Park streets to see which ones need repaving the most."

The city council has budgeted $225,000 for the repair of streets and alleys in the Park, Krajniak said. It appears that the number of streets needing some sort of repair will exceed the budgeted funds required to do the job.

"The city has 25 miles of local streets and 11 miles of what is referred to as major streets," said Krajniak. "Major streets are streets like Kercheval, Charlevoix, St. Paul and Vernor — streets that carry traffic all the way through the city. Mack and Jefferson are county streets."

Each year city staff members review the 36 miles of road in the city and determine a priority for repairs, Krajniak said. This year the city will also finish repaving a number of alleys, including those behind Beaconsfield and Nottingham, as well as alleys in the 1100 and 1200 block of Beaconsfield-Lakepointe.

Other alleys slated for repair are the three remaining blocks of the Wayburn-Maryland alley. Those include, said Krajniak, the 1000, 1300 and 1400 blocks.

Funding for repairs comes from two sources. The state provides the city about $120,000 from its gasoline tax revenue. Because that's considered too small an amount needed for repairs, the city will provide the rest of the money from its general fund, said Krajniak.

"There will be a certain amount of inconvenience to residents once the repairs begin," Krajniak said. "When the streets are repaved, only one side of the street is fixed at a time, so that traffic will be allowed to flow on a limited basis."

The repairs will be thorough, said Krajniak. Curbs will be fixed as needed and the road crews will mill the street to tear up the old asphalt. They will then put down a layer called the base course and then add another layer called the finished course.

This is not merely the patching of potholes, it's a complete replacement," said Krajniak.

Cadillac Asphalt won the contract to do the repairs, Krajniak said. The work, once it's started, should take up to three weeks and be completed before September.

Park man a mentor, role model to Detroit public school students

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

Each year, the YMCA of Metropolitan Detroit honors minority men and women who not only make significant contributions at work, but also in their community.

This year, Grosse Pointe Park resident Victor Alao, who participated in the YMCA's Minority Achievers program, was one of those honored.

Alao is a senior project manager at Madison Madison International of Michigan, an architectural and engineering planning firm in Detroit.

"My company has a mentoring program with Mumford High School," Alao said. "We go into the school and talk with students. My company has also established a scholarship for students who want to go into engineering."

"My performance at my company, through an in-house review, was submitted to the YMCA. My company looked at who had contributed to the growth of the company and exceeded goals. From there, the YMCA selected me, not only by what I have done, but what the company has done in the community."

The program pairs professionals with students to provide guidance as well as mentoring.

"The Minority Achievers program has been in Detroit for 16 years," said Glenn Haley, vice president of Metropolitan Collaborative, part of YMCA. "It began in Harlem in 1971 and its primary purpose was to provide African-American students role models and connect the corporate community with minority youths."

"Now, we provide role models to all students, not just minorities. The professionals originally came into the schools to speak and to mentor. We've expanded that to include academic preparation, tutoring, workshops related to peer counseling and career exposure — anything that prepares someone to become a successful adult."

Born in Nigeria, Alao came to the United States in 1975 to attend the University of Michigan. He earned a bachelor's degree in April of 1978 and a master's degree in December of the same year, both in civil engineering.

"At the end of each year, the government of Nigeria gives a common examination to high school students," Alao said. "If you do well, the government gives you a scholarship."

The University of Michigan was the first school to which Alao was accepted, so he decided to go there.

"I had never been to the United States before," he said,

POINTER OF INTEREST

Nigerian-born Victor Alao, now of Grosse Pointe Park, is a mentor to Detroit public school students.

"and I didn't have a clue about there, Alao returned to Michigan."

He worked for the city of Pontiac and the Genesee County Road Commission before joining Madison Madison International in 1985.

In 1992, Alao and his family moved to Grosse Pointe Park. Alao has been involved with the Minority Achievers program since 1989. Professionals are required to spend at least 40 hours over a nine-month period with a particular student.

A mentor must meet with the student at least twice a month and tutors must meet with a student once a week.

"This is a unique opportunity for companies to invest in their future workforce," Haley said, "Students for today for employees of tomorrow."

"One of the students who benefited from a scholarship is working for us (at Madison Madison) now. We also have two interns," Alao said. "I like working for Madison Madison. They gave me an opportunity to show my talent. What also impressed me was the scholarships they have for those who aspire to be an architect or engineer."

Alao has been involved in the mentoring aspect of the program. He would like to be more involved in tutoring and counseling, but his job as branch manager of Madison Madison's St. Louis office requires him to be in that city about every three weeks.

About every three years, Alao tries to return to see his family back in Nigeria.

"I have seven brothers and two sisters," he said. "I am the baby of the family. When I go back to Nigeria, I have to bring everyone, including nieces and nephews, a gift. It takes about three years to save for the trip."

In his spare time, Alao enjoys working out, fishing and spending time with his family.

Historical Center, DNR study state parks

This summer, student historians from the Michigan Historical Center are studying historic structures and landscapes in 10 state parks and recreation areas in Michigan through a cooperative effort between the Departments of State and Natural Resources (DNR).

The purpose of the study, funded by the DNR's Parks and Recreation Division, is to foster a better understanding of the historical significance and development of the various parks.

The students will not only study the physical facilities in the parks, but also historic records, furniture and other artifacts located on site.

"Our parks contain historic buildings and structures in addition to natural resources. Combined, these resources have contributed to the development of family travel and vacationing in Michigan in the 20th century," said Secretary of State Candice S. Miller, Michigan's official historian.

"As historians, it is our job to preserve these parks for the next century of family vacationing."

To assist their study the student historians, John Murphy and Debbie Smith, will interview present and former park employees about park history.

Murphy and Smith are encouraging those who have camped in the parks to share reminiscences or photos of historical significance by telephoning them in Lansing at (517) 373-1630 or by writing to: Michigan Historical Center, 717 W. Allegan, Lansing, 48918-1800 through Sept. 30.

"Our state parks have been a part of Michigan's history and heritage for 76 years," said DNR director K.L. Cool. "We want to record the stories, experiences and recollections of visitors to Michigan's state parks while we still have an opportunity to document the era."

Two of the parks to be studied, Yankee Springs in Barry County and Waterloo in Jackson and Washtenaw counties, were established in the 1930s as National Park Service projects to reclaim exhausted and eroded farmlands and convert them into recreational areas.

These parks included sleeping quarters, dining halls, kitchens, laundries and other structures.

Many structures still serve their original functions, while others have been converted to different uses.

Also to be studied is Maybury in western Wayne County, the site of Detroit's tuberculosis sanatorium from 1919 to 1969.

The sanatorium was demolished in the early 1970s, but outbuildings from earlier farms still remain on the property.

The other parks to be studied include: Pinckney, Brighton, Island Lake, Proud Lake, Highland, Dodge No. 4, and Pontiac Lake.

The Department of State is the official state agency responsible for preserving, protecting and interpreting Michigan history.

The department's Michigan Historical Center administers the Michigan Historical Center's statewide museum system, which includes sites in several state parks; the State Archives of Michigan; archaeology; historic preservation; and, publications programs, including Michigan History Magazine.

Harsher laws sought to limit U.S. terrorism

That pipe-bomb blast in Atlanta was, as President Clinton said on behalf of the American people, "an evil act of terror" but it did not stop the Olympic Games, the athletes' participation or the public's celebration of them.

Over the weekend, Republican leaders joined the president in backing new and harsher federal measures against terrorism that would apply not only in Atlanta but in the major airports of this country and other places as well.

The Atlanta bomb was intended to be as deadly as possible to the people in the vicinity, because it was a pipe-bomb containing bits of metal and nails that served as shrapnel.

Two people died in the blast, one as a result of a heart attack, while 111 people were injured and dozens more suffered shock.

But the toll of the dead and injured would have been much higher had not security personnel responded quickly to the warning call received just before the bomb exploded.

They forced hundreds of people away from the bomb site and, as a consequence, five security force members, still forcing people away, were among those injured.

But the tone of the games quickly changed as a result of the blast. Many of the family-type festivities were cancelled, and quite a few spectators took off for home.

However, the International Olympic Authority was right, in our view, with its insistence that the games should go on. But not only in Atlanta, all of us have to live under regulations and measures needed to protect as many people as possible.

Thus the president and congressional leaders are also right that the government must lead efforts to provide stronger protection against terrorists and harsher punishment for them when they are caught.

As these words are written, it seems likely that the perpetrator or perpetrators, were white Americans, who must be, whatever else, mentally deranged or suffering from terrible delusions.

Before the bomb blast, the foreign press had been critical of the Olympic Games in Atlanta, not because of too many security measures, but because of foulups in the subway and bus systems, computer errors in identifying athletes, and even the quality of food served in many restaurants.

The international media are similar to the domestic media in one respect at least. They often demand more special privileges than can be appropriately extended to them — and complain when they don't get them.

After the explosion, of course, both the foreign and domestic press had something more important to occupy their time and efforts.

The athletes, both American and foreign participants, were under additional strain as a result of the bombing even though it had occurred outside their compound. But to their credit, none dropped out or blamed a poor performance on that act of terrorism.

Instead, they all seemed to be trying to do their best, not only for themselves and their own countries, but to assure the continuance of the great traditions of the Olympic Games, despite this year's tragedy.

Let's vote NO on new park tax

When Grosse Pointers go to the polls in the primary Tuesday, Aug. 6, they will be asked to approve a quarter-mill additional tax for five years to support county park improvements in Detroit and Wayne County.

As we understand it, however, none of that money will come to the Pointes because we already support our own parks out of our own municipal levies, and so the additional quarter-mill simply would be added to the other taxes we pay for a number of questionable county services.

In endorsing the new levy, the Detroit Free Press contended that "children's opportunities for outdoor fun will increase dramatically," and pointed to possible benefits in Taylor, Trenton, and Chandler Park and Mariner's Park in Detroit.

All of that no doubt is true. In addition, the editorial suggested that the average Detroit homeowner's tax bill would see an annual increase of only about $2.75, but that elsewhere in the county, the annual average increase would be about $12 a household.

The Pointes, of course, would have to pay substantially more.

In the Farms, for example, the owner of a home estimated at a value of $250,000, with a SEV of $125,000, would pay about $31.25 a year for this tax.

That would be in addition to the current levy of 11.53 mills which amounts to about $1,441.25 for the same homeowner.

Overall, the Pointes and Harper Woods would pay about $564,815.65, which would mean more than $3 million over the five-year life of this proposed tax.

In recent years, the Pointes have added more than 3 mills to their total county tax.

That includes almost a mill to finance jails, a second mill to finance special education, 1.28 mills for the Wayne County Community College, and more than one-third of a mill to help finance the SMART bus system that serves the Pointes.

A case can be made for some tax boosts, but we question this latest request on which our Wayne County Commissioner Andrew Richner and several other commissioners voted no.

Lacking any benefit for the Grosse Pointe communities, this new tax does not merit their support.

On welfare, Clinton can't win

With welfare benefits now the only likely entitlement target this year, Congress and the White House could make the poor the only group to make a major contribution to balancing the budget this year.

The Republicans contend that they wanted to spread the burden more equitably under their last previous deficit-reduction bill.

That would have cut or slowed the growth in spending for veterans, college students, Medicare beneficiaries, doctors and hospitals, and people receiving welfare or food stamps.

However, this was one of the two bills Clinton vetoed on the grounds that they made extreme cuts. As a result, even some Medicare beneficiaries, farmers and others may even receive slight increases this year.

However, parts of the bill, according to the New York Times, have been resurrected in the new welfare bill which would save about $60 billion over six years.

The president is still seeking further improvements in the bill but has not yet said he would veto it.

Robert D. Reischauer, who directed the Congressional Budget Office from 1989 to 1995, has said that "to the extent that we're engaging in deficit reduction this year, we're doing it on the backs of the poor."

It would have been even worse under the last budget bill that Clinton vetoed. It would have increased monthly premiums for Medicare beneficiaries by $7.60 a month, or to $53.70, but the premiums actually fell by $3.60 to $42.50.

Both houses of Congress set a lifetime limit of five years of welfare payments to any family, which prompted one analyst for the Urban Institute to report that those affected by the time limit will be disproportionately African American.

Since the president earlier had said he would propose getting rid of welfare as we know it, the GOP is still holding his feet to the fire on the issue.

On this one, Clinton can't really win — except with those who favor the GOP welfare reform program.

Rain damaging state's farmers

Urban residents of Michigan sometimes forget that agriculture is the state's second largest industry and one that brings nearly $37 billion into the state's economy every year.

This year, however, all of us ought to be reminded of agriculture's importance as a result of a hard winter and a wet spring that apparently will bring heavy losses to the state's farmers — but only minimal price increases to consumers.

That's because the cost of grain, for example, is only a small percentage of the cost of a loaf of bread, according to Rosemary Walker, who teaches consumer economics at Michigan State and was quoted by The Detroit News.

In a recent review, The News found that the Thumb and Saginaw Valley apparently were the areas worst hit by the rain.

In fact, the amount of rain above normal in those areas ranged from 5.97 inches and a total rainfall of 13.58 inches in Tuscola County to the 7.94 inches in Saginaw and a total fall of 15.55 inches from April 1 to June 18.

Additional rainfall of three to six inches fell after the figures were compiled, The News reported, and it has continued to rain since the publication of the story on June 27.

So if your vegetables and other food-stuffs cost a bit more this year, blame it on the weatherman, not on the farmer.

Think again

To the Editor:

How self-serving can you get? "Her (Gail Kaess) friends and supporters assure us she is a strong Republican ... she is not a part of his (Ed McNamara's) inner circle" (G.P. News, July 25). This is hardly a credible source for information regarding Kaess' political affiliations.

How about some facts instead: 1) She was appointed and is employed by McNamara in the executive branch of Wayne County government; 2) From 1990 to 1995 she contributed $1,920 to the Friends of McNamara Campaign Fund; 3) She is endorsed by no current Republican leadership.

Mr. McNamara endorses Barbara Rose-Collins for Congress. Mr. McNamara endorses Gail Kaess for county commissioner. Think about this before you vote on Aug. 6.

In defense of Richner

To the Editor:

The efforts of certain candidates for the office of Michigan state representative to enhance their own campaigns by attempting a character assassination of Andrew Richner prompts me to write this letter. It is essentially dirty politics when candidates try to attack their opponents by stating untruths about their character instead of stating their position on the substantive issues of the campaign.

I commend the Grosse Pointe News for its endorsement of Andrew Richner for the Republican nomination for the office of state representative based on his past record of accomplishments.

I have known Andrew Richner both as a friend and neighbor and also during his terms of service on the Grosse Pointe Park City Council and the Wayne County Commission. His proven record of public service for his constituents places him well ahead of other candidates, and particularly ahead of those whose self-serving attacks have attempted to distort his exemplary record of service.

Contrary to the allegations of one opposing candidate, Andrew Richner supported and was primarily responsible for the creation of separate 911 emergency telephone service for the Grosse Pointes. That service has been unanimously approved for all of the Grosse Pointes by their city councils.

Unlike any of his other opponents, Andrew Richner lives in the Grosse Pointe Park designated flood plain and is directly affected when basement flooding occurs. He has, in fact, led the effort to remove Grosse Pointe Park from the federally designated flood plain.

The same opposing candidate has sought to discredit Andrew's commitment to the excellence of our public schools. Andrew was graduated from Maire, Pierce, and South High schools and his wife, Susan, is a speech pathologist for the Grosse Pointe school system. His children will enroll at Trombly school. No candidate could be more committed to uphold the quality of the Grosse Pointe school system than Andrew Richner.

Finally, Andrew Richner, like other Park council members, served his community in that office without any compensation. Andrew Richner does not now have and has never had a boat well in the Park marina.

Stress positive over negative

To the Editor:

I thank you for your endorsement of my candidacy to be the Republican Party's nominee for state representative.

I believe that your endorsement confirms what I have already learned from my door-to-door campaign in Grosse Pointe and the east side: People in our community are educated and informed and are able to easily distinguish between those who are clearly qualified for elected office and those who are not.

That is why, fortunately, negative campaigns and personal attacks intended to distort and mislead the electorate never work in our community. Those who rely on negative campaigning to hide the fact that they have nothing positive to say about themselves or their record have no influence or credibility with a sophisticated electorate.

I look forward to the voters' support and their rejection of negative campaigning on Election Day.

The media and reality

There is much more going on than meets the eye in the movies and the media. Take, for example, "The American President," "Independence Day" and the opening ceremonies of the Olympics.

In the two movies, the president is pictured as young and handsome. Interestingly, in each movie the president is or becomes a widower, and so the writers have killed off the first lady, leaving the symbolic Chelsea symbol alone with daddy, having him all to herself.

The underlying wish of the American public is to have a perfect president. In these two movies and the Olympics, such a man is placed before us. He seems to have integrity, intelligence, courage and honor. Interestingly, he does not lack combat experience and he favors a strong military. In both movies he wishes to save the environment; in one he becomes an environmentalist and in the other he destroys alien invaders.

We are shocked in "Independence Day" to see the White House blown up. Rush Limbaugh seems to think the image is funny or that some audiences applaud. That is a horrifying notion, but it is indicative of the ambivalence with which we tend to regard parent-figures. In the unconscious, the leader of the nation is an idealized or hated parent.

"Independence Day" plays with the symbols of ethnic and racial stereotypes. It takes efforts of genius, skill and courage to save the day, as a Jewish computer whiz, an African-American astronaut and a WASP president save the planet from an alien pestilence. A black single mother who earns a living as a stripteaser tenderly nurses the dying first lady. Hollywood writers seem ever willing to try to destroy remaining prejudices by reversing stereotypes. In fact, the incumbent president is attempting to embrace the vast majority of Americans by excluding the extreme left and the extreme right. He hopes that the moderate middle is sufficiently wise and big enough to re-elect him and he is trying to earn their trust and respect. The question is, can he be believed?

I Say

He presides over the Olympic festivities in which we see a tapestry of nations forming One World, hopefully a world of creativity and fulfillment, cooperation and peace. Do the movies about the American president help or hinder him? What is their influence on the voting public? Do the audiences see similarities or differences between the media president and the actual president? It is hard to discern the actual president. What we see are daily photo-ops in which the president appears very presidential. Although we try, consciously, to be aware of the difference between reality and fantasy, good journalism and fiction, our unconscious tends to fuse and blur images sent to us by the media.

We cannot help but wonder whether "the media," which are heavily liberal, are trying to create a shoo-in for the upcoming presidential elections, in reaction to the conservative rebellion of 1994, which was headed by Newt Gingrich. The media reports that in spite of downsizing and out-sourcing, the economy is growing and stable. In spite of fluctuations, the stock market continues to grow and inflation is in check. It's the economy, stupid? No more "voodoo-economics"?

The opening ceremonies of the Olympics, with frequent closeups of the president and first lady, seem to show that we can afford to be extravagant and that the United States of America will lead the struggle to enforce the United Nations' effort to have one world, in harmony and peace. The cameras avoided showing the face of Gingrich, while we could see glimpses of the top of his head. One wonders how much these shots were consciously and deliberately orchestrated.

Whoever the next president will be, we hope the specter of terrorism will fade into the history of the 20th century.

"Independence Day" says a diverse and multicultural "we" will triumph over the alien invaders, but in reality, the real threat is terrestrial, as the real threat of nuclear terrorism grows with each passing day. Recent terrorist acts give no cause for comfort.

The question remains, what price will we have to pay for having supported ruthless dictators in the past? We have contained the enemy evil empire, participated in its downfall, prevented the dominoes from falling, but have we planted the seeds of our own destruction? There are many who consider us "Satan."

Hopefully, we will endure and prosper, and we seem to have no recourse but to entrust our leaders with our confidence. Therefore, it is incumbent on each of us to consider carefully who we want to be the next president of the United States. To do so, we must try to separate out, as best we can, the media president from the actual president.

Toward a civil society — personally

By Lawrence W. Reed

"Taxation," said Oliver Wendell Holmes, "is the price we pay for civilization." But a much better case can be made that taxation is actually the price we pay for the lack of civilization. If people took better care of themselves, their families and those in need around them, government would shrink and society would be stronger as a result.

Economist Mark Skousen put it well when he stated recently, "[E]very time we pass another law or regulation, every time we raise taxes, every time we go to war, we are admitting failure of individuals to govern themselves. When we persuade citizens to do the right thing, we can claim victory. But when we force people to do the right thing, we have failed." The triumph of persuasion over force, people helping people because they want to and not because government tells them they have to, is the sign of a civilized people and a civil society, Skousen argues.

For all people interested in the advancement and enrichment of our culture, this is a crucial observation with far-reaching implications. Cultural progress should not be defined as taking more and more of what other people have earned and spending it on "good" things through a government bureaucracy. Cultural progress occurs when people solve problems without resorting to politicians or the bureaucrats they employ.

When the French social commentator Alexis de Tocqueville visited a young, bustling America in the 1830s, he cited the vibrancy of civil society as one of this country's greatest assets. He was amazed that Americans were constantly forming "associations" to advance the arts, build libraries and hospitals and meet social needs of every kind. If something good needed done, it rarely occurred to our ancestors to expect politicians and bureaucrats to do it for them. "Amongst the laws which rule human nature," wrote Tocqueville in Democracy in America, "there is none which seems to be more precise and clear than all others. If men are to remain civilized, or to become more so, the art of associating together must grow and improve ..."

It ought to be obvious today, with government at all levels consuming a whopping 41 percent of personal income, that many Americans don't think, act and vote the way their forebears did in Tocqueville's day. So how can we restore and strengthen the attitudes and institutions that formed American civil society?

Certainly, we can never do so by blindly embracing government programs that crowd out private initiatives or by impugning the motives of those who raise legitimate questions about those government programs. We cannot restore civil society if we have no confidence in ourselves and believe that government has a monopoly on compassion. We'll never get there if we tax away 41 percent of people's earnings and then, like children who never learned their arithmetic, complain that people can't afford to meet certain needs.

We can advance civil society only when people get serious about replacing government programs with private initiative, when discussion gets beyond such infantile reasoning as, "If you want to cut government subsidies for Meals on Wheels, you must be in favor of starving the elderly." Civil society will blossom when we understand that "hiring" the expensive middleman of government is not the best way to "do good," that it often breaks the connection between people in need and caring people who want to help. We'll make progress when the government is the answer "cure" is recognized for what it is — false charity, a cop-out, a simplistic non-answer that doesn't get the job done well, even though it makes its advocates smug with self-righteousness.

Restoring civil society won't be easy. Bad habits and short-term thinking die hard. Example: When the Mackinac Center for Public Policy suggested a 7.5 percent reduction in the state of Michigan's $28 billion budget, one newspaper editorial saw utterly no redeeming value to the recommendations. It equated the restoration of civil society with subjecting human life "to the largesse of the highest bidder in the marketplace." The message was, "We're more humane and generous than the Mackinac Center because we want government to solve our problems." A newspaper that laments the superficiality of political campaigns can't get past bumper sticker slogans when it comes to serious proposals with which it disagrees.

Meanwhile, thoughtful writers are noticing encouraging trends in the country. An article in the Jan. 29 issue of U.S. News & World Report trumpeted the "revival of civic life." Among the examples it cited was that of Frankford, Penn. Frankford had become a highly taxed, depressed, and government-dependent community desperate for answers. A spark of civil society was lit, and now people are solving problems themselves. They're not sitting back, bemoaning their plight, and editorializing about how politicians should save them.

We can learn more from the Frankfords of the world than from those who think charity means spending someone else's money. Restoring civil society requires that we "Just Say No" to shirking our personal and local responsibilities and expecting Lansing or Washington to do it for us. It requires us to think creatively about stimulating private initiative, and then just doing it.

Lawrence W. Reed is president of the Mackinac Center for Public Policy, a research and educational organization.

Grin and bear it

Doc couldn't believe her eyes when she went in for her last radial keratotomy adjustment at Grosse Pointe Ophthalmology. The teddy bear that Dr. James Klein's assistants let patients hold was missing one eye, and the other was dangling by a thread.

Isn't this a little strange, I asked Dr. Klein's ophthalmic assistant, Maureen Graham. "He's something to hang on to," Maureen explained. "Most of the patients want to hold him."

Men too? "Well, sometimes they decline," Maureen said, laughing.

The personable bear, named Tracey after the clinic's first RK recipient, was crocheted by a blind patient and has been around since the first operation to correct nearsightedness.

Does bear therapy really work? My theory is that patients are so busy feeling sorry for the bear that they don't have time to worry about themselves.

Doc now has perfect distance vision in her RK peeper. When I came across a little glass taxi-dermy eye a while back, it seemed only fitting to donate it so Tracey could have it too.

Men-only rule kilt for good

There was a time not too many years ago at the old St. Andrew's Hall when the ladies met downstairs while the men met upstairs. Things have changed: The next president of the Scottish St. Andrew's Society of Detroit will be Florence "Flo" Stahl, of the Farms.

When she's installed this fall Flo will be the first woman to hold the post in the history of the benevolent organization, which dates back to 1849.

Out of line for in-line skater

To the Editor:

A warning to Rollerbladers in Grosse Pointe Woods. The police are out harassing Rollerbladers in the Woods!

I was in-line skating on the 25th of July, at 7 p.m., on the side of Sunningdale, with all my safety equipment on, when I was stopped by the police and told to get off the street and use the sidewalk, which by the way, is very rough. There was no traffic.

Last year, I attended the Woods council meeting on adopting an in-line skating ordinance. The main concern was skaters being on main streets such as Mack. The council decided our present laws would cover any problems, and because of so many objections by residents, the proposed ordinance was dropped.

Be warned, though, somebody is starting it up again. The informal agreements made at the council meeting are no more.

Rollerbladers, let the council know where you stand!

What about me, Guv?

To the Editor:

On July 27, I attended a ceremony where Gov. Engler gave state money and new laws to environmental cleanup at Detroit's Atwater Park. I was probably the only non-media/non-politico in a crowd of only 20.

When nobody else had a question, I decided to raise my hand. However, Mr. Engler refused to field a question from me simply because I was not a member of the press. Who does he think he works for?

Not a trash dump!

To the Editor:

One can always tell that it's the weekend as, despite a city ordinance, the residents of Balfour (700 and 800 blocks especially) set out all manner of trash along this beautiful street for all of us to see until trash pickup the following Tuesday.

It's really great to plan a party and have guests walk about in the alley-like environment.

Come on neighbors, keep Balfour beautiful — except on Tuesdays.

Farms house not moving

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

A home on Farms in Grosse Pointe Woods that was supposed to be moving to a lot on Oxford in Grosse Pointe Woods is staying put for now.

A temporary injunction to prevent the house from being moved was filed in Wayne County Circuit Court last week by two neighbors of the home. A hearing on the matter is scheduled for Aug. 23.

"We asked for the restraining order because we have not received an offer from the city," said Dave Shrake, one of the two neighbors. "If they start removing houses, it will have a negative impact on our homes."

The home, located at 427 Moross, is one of nine homes adjacent to the former site of Sears, near Mack. When the city of Grosse Pointe Farms two years ago purchased the Sears, A.L. Price and Jo Ann Fabrics buildings, as well as the adjoining parking lot, the city also sought to acquire the first nine homes along Moross to square off the property.

The home at 427 Moross is

A new GI Bill: The GI Bill of Health

By Daniel A Ludwig

Imagine the absurdity of a dentist who doesn't install fillings, an optometrist who solely serves the farsighted or a podiatrist who only treats left-footed clients.

No self-respecting provider of health care imposes arbitrary limitations on patients. Such limitations are not cost-effective.

So imagine how it feels to be an honorably discharged veteran and to learn that your hometown Veterans Administration hospital is off limits to you.

Veterans hospitals that don't serve all veterans are scattered throughout our nation. There may be one either in or near your community.

This situation is neither cost-effective nor morally defensible. The men and women of The American Legion, after studying the VA health care system and its role in our society, advocate a vision for change in veterans health care: the GI Bill of Health.

The GI Bill of Health is a common-sense remedy for an underfunded and underutilized system.

The 3-million member American Legion believes the VA health care system was designed in the 1930s to serve all veterans, with priority for disabled veterans. If approved by Congress, the GI Bill of Health would open the VA health care system to all of the nation's 26 million veterans and their families who join the plan.

The plan would reduce the demand for federal tax dollars by opening this underfunded system to new revenue sources — health care plans that the veterans already have, either through Medicare, Medicaid, Champus, TriCare, retirement benefits or employment. Any veteran without health care could buy either an individual plan or a family package consisting of premiums, co-payments and deductibles.

The GI Bill of Health contains preventive-care approaches to allow people to use the VA health care system to stay healthy.

Private preventive-care companies are bracing the rise in health care costs in this regard, without sacrificing the quality of care. The VA could do the same.

While the cost of health care is skyrocketing, the Veterans Administration health care system maintains restrictive eligibility policies. It's hard to believe, but not all military retirees qualify for VA health care; just the ones with service-connected disabilities. Many recently discharged veterans, who need health care while seeking civilian employment, cannot rely on the VA health care system. Some veterans are allowed to see VA doctors for certain illnesses, but not for others. The families of veterans are totally out of the loop.

There is something wrong with this picture.

Under the GI Bill of Health, there would be no compromises in specialized care to veterans who suffer from service-related disabilities. The Veterans Administration health care system is a precious portion of our nation's health care industry. Most VA hospitals are teaching and research centers for major medical schools. In times of war, VA hospitals become our military's backup health care system. They provide medical support for the Federal Emergency Management Agency when natural disasters strike.

Frankly, many eligible veterans are pleased with the quality of care they receive from VA hospitals.

But, the VA health care system is off limits to entirely too many veterans. It's time to reverse these nearly 20-year-old restrictions.

The American Legion is not attempting to open the flood gates to allow VA hospitals to serve everybody. But a veterans hospital should be open to all veterans as well as to the unsung heroes whose prior sacrifices deserve recognition — veterans' families.

The GI Bill of Health is a vision for change.

Daniel A Ludwig is national commander of The American Legion, the nation's largest veterans organization.

'Tis the season to enjoy

O.K. Listen up folks! If recent events haven't proven that life is brief and full of the unexpected, you must already be in a coma. The time for you to procrastinate is over. No more excuses for not grabbing tiny bites of time to experience those quick fixes so necessary to our emotional and physical well-being.

The season is in our favor and despite rain delays, we can always find a place to run or sit to re-fuel. Time and/or budget constraints may limit our opportunities to take grandiose vacations, however a few hours or days of uninterrupted time with loved ones can be extremely therapeutic.

The possibilities are limitless. There are lots of guy things like air shows, golf outings, day-hiking or fishing that afford a variety of venues to enjoy with a child, buddy or neglected neighbor. We can drive to the country and spend a night or two at a quiet inn, where we can walk or read in peace without the cacophony of boom-boxes, television and telephones. The summer night serenade from woody surroundings can lull us to sleep. Think about a night under the stars or even in a tent with gentle rains ushering us into slumber. How about a few hours on a sailboat with the waves lapping at us in their fascinating patterns?

Art fairs and antiquing make for great outings. You don't have to make purchases, unless you are so enticed by the farmers' roadside stands with their succulent fresh offerings, that the temptations to load up on fresh berries and peaches overwhelms us. Guilt was not founded on such transgressions. There are times we must give in to our cravings. Winters are long and hot house tomatoes don't really cut it. How about an old fashioned picnic? It can be gourmet and romantic, on a lawn during a concert or a large family gathering.

A friend surprised his son with tickets to the opening ceremonies at the Olympics this weekend. Father and son will take a whirlwind trip blitzing as many of the sites as time permits within a three-day span. What a fantastic idea for a young man's 18th birthday! These are memories they will cherish for a lifetime.

Time marches and we concede that we probably won't be able to take the entire family on that dream vacation that was always somewhere down the road. Once children are grown with commitments and children of their own it is almost impossible to schedule a vacation that meets everyone's needs. Interestingly we can all gather for a wedding or a funeral with little notice. With a bit of pre-meditated planning, don't you think we could find a few hours or days to spend nurturing ourselves and others? Let's put the fun back in function!

Grosse Pointe Business owners, employees and residents attended a meeting held by the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue on July 29, 1996 to discuss their objection to the recently raised parking meter fees in Grosse Pointe Woods. This action by the City Council was a total surprise to everyone. It's absolutely necessary to keep our business community strong and competitive. Parking is free in most major shopping areas. Mack Avenue is not a one stop shopping district, patrons make many stops and the new parking fees will be a hardship on those patrons as well as the business owners and their employees.

The Association plans to reverse the decision of parking meter increases and requests your support by attending the next City Council meeting at City Hall on Mon. Aug 5, 7:30 P.M. and by signing a petition located at businesses along Mack Avenue before Monday.

Robert R. LUBERA

A Republican for Wayne County Commissioner • 1st District

A VOICE FOR LOWER TAXES AND FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

I BELIEVE IN:

COMMON SENSE: It is the taxpayer, not the interest group, that should be represented in government.

ACCOUNTABILITY: Elected officials should be held responsible for their actions. Therefore, I will report to you by hosting public forums, writing articles for local newspapers that will give the constituents of my district online access to the County Commission.

MY CONCERNS FOR THE 1ST DISTRICT

1. FIGHTING FOR THE DISTRICT!

It is readily apparent that our district has been neglected for too long by the Wayne County Commission. As a life-long resident, I will be a voice on the Commission that will "fight" for the issues important to the 1st District.

2. FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY!

I believe in a sound fiscal house. With a pro-growth, fiscally conservative agenda, I will be a driving force for lower taxes, fighting bureaucracy and making Wayne County a shining example of investment and prosperity.

3. ENDING PERKS!

The salaries and perks of Wayne County Commissioners are almost double that of other commissioners throughout the state. This is outrageous. This must be stopped!

ENDORSEMENTS:

George Roche

"Rob is a good fiscal conservative who will fight for the taxpayers of the 1st District."

Terry London,

State Representative R-81st District

"Rob is determined to make a difference. He is a man who stands by his word."

Jim Biernat

Macomb County Commissioner

"Rob has all the qualifications to make an excellent County Commissioner."

Charles M. Ebner, M.D.

"Rob is a man with high standards and outstanding personal integrity."

During the past months, I have been walking door to door throughout our communities.

I feel it is important to speak directly with the taxpayers about the changes needed in Wayne County.

For Instance:

DID YOU KNOW???

On the August primary ballot, Ed McNamara is supporting a 1/4 mill property tax "increase" for improvements to eight county and three Detroit parks, including funding for a new golf course. Not one dime of this tax increase will return to our district!!

DID YOU KNOW???

Since 1982, the Wayne County Commission's budget has quadrupled and the number of full time paid employees has more than doubled!!

DID YOU KNOW???

Our district's tax rate is at 8.2 mills, more than 70% percent higher than Macomb County at 4.76 mills and almost 60 percent higher than Oakland County at 5.2 mills!!

DID YOU KNOW???

We constitute 3 percent of the population of Wayne County, yet pay 8 percent of the taxes!!

THIS IS OUTRAGEOUS! THIS MUST BE STOPPED!
I NEED YOUR SUPPORT ON TUESDAY, AUGUST 6th.

VOTE LUBERA

A Republican that "WILL" change the way the county does business!!

Draper Hill: 'A Brush With Satire' at the Detroit Historical Museum

By Mark Barrows
Special Writer

Where can you see Ronald Reagan sharing a soda with a geisha, Teddy Roosevelt and Barbara Rose Collins all in the same room? At the Detroit Historical Museum, of course. "A Brush with Satire," an exhibit of 48 political cartoons by Detroit News editorial cartoonist and City of Grosse Pointe resident Draper Hill, is on display at the museum through the end of November. From a sobering 1965 drawing depicting the awful ambiguity of the Vietnam War, to a March 1996 cartoon burlesquing the confusing language of the Tiger Stadium ballot proposals, the show is a wry historical and artistic retrospective.

Draper Hill

Hill's drawings are strong, uncluttered and have a spontaneity that makes the cartooning business look easy. (It isn't.) His satire is pointed and his caricatures are right on without being crude or malicious.

"The Torch is Passed," one of the cartoons in the exhibit, exemplifies Hill's style, skill, wit and wisdom: Former Detroit Mayor Coleman Young hands a smoking, blazing torch — flame first — to his successor, Dennis Archer.

Young has been the subject of numerous Hill cartoons over the years. Apparently, he

The exhibition also includes three full-color Hill illustrations packed with caricatures of contemporary and historical notables, a cartoon he created on the floor of the 1980 Democratic convention at Madison Square Garden, an original hand-colored etching by the 18th century English cartoonist James Gillray and Halloween masks Hill made for himself and his children.

Hill has been the News editorial cartoonist since 1976. He is a Harvard graduate with a degree in history and was awarded a Fulbright grant to study at the Slade School of Fine Arts in London. He has written two books about James Gillray, numerous articles, and is working on a book about the German-born, 19th century American illustrator Thomas Nast. A collection of Hill's own editorial cartoons entitled "Political Asylum" is available for purchase at the museum gift shop.

"A Brush With Satire" is on exhibit through Nov. 30 at the Detroit Historical Museum, 5401 Woodward at Kirby, Detroit's Cultural Center. The museum is open 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The phone number is (313) 833-1805.

VOTE ON TUESDAY, AUGUST 6 ANDREW C. RICHNER REPUBLICAN FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Andrew, Susan and Clark Richner

A citizen's guide to making it through the 1996 elections

By Mark Gerzon

As this election year heats up, our citizens are inundated with negative advertising, fake facts, well-financed accusations and indignant denials.

In this toxic environment, is it any wonder that many Americans choose to stay home?

Please don't. Our democracy needs you.

You can survive the mud-slinging and mayhem of this election year if you listen to the civic wisdom that I have distilled from interviews with more than a hundred veteran community leaders from across the country — all working to improve the quality of life in their communities. What follows is some of their best advice:

1. Take stock before you take sides.

Look before you leap. Issues are often framed in a polarized way, so that right from the start, true believers will try to force you to choose sides. "You're either with us or against us" is the line you may often hear. Don't let yourself be bullied by these "true believers." Step back for a moment and look at the conflict from as many sides as you can. You'll have a stronger, more lasting and more positive impact if you take stock before you take action.

2. Check to see if politicians are telling the truth.

Facts matter. So does telling the truth. In the short run, playing loose with the truth can sometimes fool voters. But in the long run, it usually backfires. When candidates concoct halftruths or manipulate the facts to persuade you to vote for them, don't fall for it.

3. Think for yourself.

Even if you know the facts, you still have to decide what they mean. Because you'll be bombarded by different interpretations, it's vital that you think it through yourself. Don't believe the first "expert" you hear. Be prepared to do your homework and reach your own conclusions. Remember that our country was started by men and women who thought independently.

4. Think like a minority — because you are one.

Whatever your skin color or ancestral country, let go of the idea that you are the norm. Today, no ethnicity is the mainstream, no group is the standard of measure for American-ness and no one person is average. The 1990 census identified 300 races, 600 Indian tribes, 70 different Hispanic groups and 75 multiracial combinations. And if you think "caucasian" is a racial majority, think again. According to demographers, by the time our children reach retirement age, even whites will be a minority in America.

5. Watch your "media diet."

Just as a food diet heavy with salt, fat and sugar will affect your physical health, so will a media diet laced with hostility, blame, confrontation and violence corrode your civic outlook. The point isn't to filter out whatever is uncomfortable or disconcerting, but rather to chart a conscious course more carefully through the sea of words and images that reach you through the media.

6. Develop your public judgment.

You use your judgment every single day of your personal life, asking yourself who can be trusted, how much and why. Just as you value your private judgment, take responsibility for honing your knowledge, skills and intuition about public matters. None of us is born with the full understanding that citizenship requires. "The public is not magically endowed with good judgment," says veteran pollster Daniel Yankelovich. "Good judgment is something that must be worked at all the time and with great skill and effort."

Pick an area that concerns you. Then use your own judgment to decide which candidates make sense.

7. Know your "enemies."

"Ignorance is preferable to error," wrote Thomas Jefferson. "He is less remote from the truth who believes nothing, than he who believes what is wrong."

Acknowledge and respect your own ignorance. Not knowing is a vital part of citizenship and the first step towards learning. Whenever we are willing to admit what we do not know, we open ourselves to learning something new — including the possibility that we can sometimes be wrong and that our adversary can sometimes be right. Read what your adversaries write. Tune into their radio and TV shows or attend their meetings. Even if you consider them your enemy, you're better off knowing what they're up to.

8. Build bridges.

Whether you are black or white, rich or poor, conservative or liberal, you may feel cut off from the "other side." Because they think, act and look different than you do, you'll often feel tempted to write them off. But many problems can't be solved without them. In Spartanburg, S.C., for example, a black Baptist church and white Episcopalian congregation teamed up to build a health clinic in a poor neighborhood. Although the two groups differed enormously, they needed each other to get the job done.

9. Remember that local matters.

Whether conservative or liberal, citizens on both sides of the ideological fence have gotten lazy. Instead of solving local problems at the local level the buck gets passed up to the state or federal level.

"What happens in your house," said former First Lady Barbara Bush, "is just as important as what happens in the White House." In other words, don't be so fixated on what happens nationally that you forget to be active closer to home. Although candidates for national office may grab the headlines and dominate the airwaves, you can help lower the political center of gravity by working in your own community.

10. Practice democracy.

If you don't like the way the campaigns are being run, join with your neighbors and start a "clean campaign" movement. Democracy won't work just because we preach it; we have to practice it too.

When it was time for the Founding Fathers to select a committee to draft the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson, the youngest delegate, received the most votes and was immediately made chairman. Although Jefferson was firmly on the side of revolution, he refused to be antagonistic toward those who felt differently because he knew that they would ultimately all be partners in the grand experiment of democracy. If they wanted a truly United States of America, they had to treat each other with respect.

It was true 200 years ago. And it is still true today: Democracy is not just something we believe in, but something we do.

'Michigan My Michigan' — a Great Lakes place to vacation

It's a mitten-print on a map, placed on a sapphire-shaded setting of lakes. Across its palm may be traced lifelines of forests and fields, sand dunes and streams. Within its circulatory system beats the pulse of industry, manufacturing, business and research. The edge of its palm are industry, manufacturing, business and research and graced with the jewels of art, education, music and theater.

It has gloves to match the season's raiment. It wears the snows of winter, the scarlet of fall, the Renoir mists of spring and the multi-colored cloak of summer.

It holds in its hand the bounty of Earth — fruits and berries, dairy products, meats and grains.

It has held the reins of recovery in bad times and mobilized its resources to help with major wars. It is "Michigan My Michigan."

It has known good times and bad, but age and trouble have not tarnished its essential beauty since the time Alex de Toqueville visited Michigan in 1831.

In his journey to America, de Toqueville tells of traversing the area on foot and horseback. Starting from Detroit, he set out toward Pontiac. Just a mile from the Detroit River, he found himself in a deep forest. That would be just about at Grand Circus Park today.

Arriving in Pontiac he found a transparent stream and the everlasting forests all around.

Determined to reach Mackinaw against the warnings that Saginaw was the last inhabited point until the Pacific Ocean, he set out in a canoe on the Saginaw River. He describes it as:

"a flowering solitude delightful and scented; a magnificent dwelling, a living palace built for man ... the serenity of universal calm reigned around us ... we talked less ... finally we fell silent and both of us fell into a tranquil reverie."

De Toqueville made other trips in Michigan but nothing stirred him half as much as the days and nights in the forests.

"At midday the sun darts its beams on the forest and one hears in its depths something like a long sigh, a plaintive cry lingering in the distance. It is the last stir of the dying wings ... the forest trees seem to form but one whole immense and indestructible edifice under whose vaults eternal darkness reigns."

Michigan takes pride in its trees. The Michigan Botanical Club contends that Michigan is the home of some of the largest trees found in North America. Our state has 90 recognized champion trees. Each national champion represents the biggest known tree of a particular species found in the United States out of approximately 900 varieties of trees growing in our nation.

Among the significant records are the silver poplar in Charlevoix and a swamp oak on Grosse Ile.

But of all its attractions, the Great Lakes have to be Michigan's main source of pride.

Lakes Michigan, Superior, Huron and Erie — all the Great Lakes except for Ontario — give Michigan 3,251 miles of freshwater shoreline, more than any other state. These lakes bore the canoes of Indians and provided rich hunting, trapping and fishing grounds. European explorers, fur traders and Jesuits traveled their waters.

In the 19th century, they made possible the booming lumber and mining industry.

The Soo Locks, opened in 1885, enabled sailors to move up the St. Mary's River to Whitefish Bay. The St. Lawrence Seaway, opening in 1959, enabled ocean vessels to enter all the Great Lakes.

Each lake served an important purpose in Michigan's history. Lake Erie made possible travel for new settlers to go from New York to Michigan when the Erie Canal opened in 1825. Lake Huron brought prosperity as it aided lumbering and shipping. It has the most beautiful recreation waters in all of North America. It is a lake of more than 30,000 islands and welcomes more family cruisers than any of the other lakes.

Lake Michigan carried lumber from Michigan to Chicago and midwestern grain from Chicago to the East in the second half of the 19th century. Today it offers recreation for all seasons.

The tempering breezes of Lake Michigan create almost 30 miles of coast where fruit can be grown.

And winter brings snow for ski resorts. Lake Superior is the largest freshwater lake in the world and is a vital conduit of commerce and transportation.

The Great Lakes are Michigan's proudest attraction, but the countless inland lakes provide pleasure and recreation for vacationers also.

Swimming, boating and fishing opportunities are within driving distance, and in some instances right at our front door.

It is even possible to take a houseboat vacation on a chain of lakes in Antrim County.

Not one of the Great Lakes but great in the minds of Grosse Pointe residents is Lake St. Clair.

It is a source of year-round pleasure with its swimming and boating in the summer and ice fishing in the winter.

Being so close at hand, it is possible to enjoy a walk or drive along its shores.

And have you ever seen a prettier picture than those sailboats spreading their sails like graceful birds and spinning over the blue waters that dance in the summer breeze and are highlighted by the crimson rays of a setting sun?

Michigan is a good place to visit this summer. As for Michigan residents, why go anywhere else?

The Park's park pass policy proves palatable to public

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The Park park pass policy adopted in response to citizen complaints seems to be working out, said city manager Dale Krajniak.

"Over the past several years, the city council has received complaints from residents about our park pass policies," Krajniak said. "They've said that it's too easy for non-residents to get into our parks and that attendants weren't checking passes carefully enough."

To remedy the problem, the city instituted a number of changes in the way passes are issued, said Krajniak. He noted that in any given summer there are between 12,000 and 13,000 residents in the Park. Yet, on average, the city receives about 20,000 requests for Park passes.

Some of that can be explained by new people moving into the city during the summer, said Krajniak. But that can't explain 8,000 extra requests.

"In the past, parents who still live in the Park, but whose grown children have moved out of the city have been submitting pass requests for those children," Krajniak said. "So we instituted a policy requiring any Park resident over the age of 23 who is living with his or her parents to submit some sort of identification proving that they still live at home.

That seems to have taken care of that problem."

Residents have also complained that the policy of having separate guest passes issued to residents has led to abuse.

"In the past, the Park has issued separate guest passes to residents," said Krajniak. "Sometimes these passes have been passed around to others, and used almost as park passes for non-residents. So we have combined guest passes and park passes, much like the way the Farms has."

The city has also stepped up the checking of park passes for those who wish to use the parks. In the past, many residents have complained that it was too easy for non-residents to just walk into the parks.

The city also eliminated separate boat passes for residents who keep a boat at the city's pier.

"To get a pass you have to be a resident," Krajniak said. "We had the boat passes stamped with the dock number indicating the location of the boat. It was meant to inform the boaters of where their boats were to avoid confusion. Since we didn't really have any complaints about people boarding the wrong boats, it made sense to streamline the boat passes with the general park passes."

Boaters often invite non-park residents to their boats, said Krajniak. If a boater uses up all the guest privileges on his or her pass, they can request that a new one be issued.

'Good Old Days' here again

"The Good Old Days" is the theme for the sixth annual senior citizens dance for older residents from the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods. The dance will be held in the cafeteria of the Grosse Pointe North High School on Friday, Aug. 30, from 1 to 4 p.m. Doors will open at 12:30 p.m. The event is sponsored by the MichCon Foundation and Services for Older Citizens (SOC).

The afternoon's entertainment will include dancing to the music of a DJ and a caricature artist who will draw the profiles of many of those in attendance.

Free snacks will be provided and there will be a drawing for prizes. Although admission is free, those planning to attend must show a ticket to gain admission.

Tickets are available from the SOC office between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. from Aug. 1 to Aug. 29. SOC is located in Room 105 at the Barnes School, 20090 Morningside in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Strange incident

An 18-year-old Grosse Pointe Shores woman told Grosse Pointe Woods police that an unidentified man in a white car harassed her while she was driving on Harper in St. Clair Shores and allegedly intentionally struck her vehicle, causing damage.

The incident happened around 8 p.m. on July 28. The woman said she had three passengers in her car and was driving south on Harper when a heavy-set man with dark curly hair and mustache in a white Pontiac pulled alongside her in traffic.

The man continued to drive alongside her, staring at the passengers in her car and nearly colliding with her car in the area of Rosedale and Mack. At that point the woman said she was attempting to make her way to the Woods police station when the offending driver swerved into her car, striking the right side in the area of Mack and Ridgemont.

After the collision, the woman said the man turned around on Mack and fled west on Ridgemont. Police took the woman's report at the station and noticed white paint on the damaged right side of her car. Police are investigating the incident.

Surprise guest

A friend of a woman who lives on Kerby in Grosse Pointe Farms, and who was watching the house while the woman was out of town, was surprised on July 27 when she checked on the house and found someone asleep in one of the bedrooms.

The woman called Farms police and a public safety officer was sent to the house. The intruder, a juvenile, who identified himself as the grandson of the homeowner, told police he had permission to be in the house.

The officer called the grandmother and learned the young man did not have permission to be in the house but the grandmother said it was OK and she wouldn't press charges.

check on the young man and learned that he was listed as missing from his father's St. Clair Shores home and that he had escaped custody of the Macomb County Youth Home.

Police contacted the boy's father, the St. Clair Shores police and the Macomb County Youth Home. The boy was turned over to the custody of Macomb County sheriff's

Residents cited for violations

Grosse Pointe Farms police and city officials went into a rental home on Madison on July 24, based on a complaint made by the landlord, and discovered "a very scary environment to live in."

The interior of the house, according to the report, was littered with rubbish, rotting food and animal waste. There were 15 dogs and three cats found on the premises. Windows were covered, preventing adequate ventilation.

On a follow-up visit made by the Farms public service department, the landlord and her attorney, it was noted in a report that the home, in which a 16-year-old boy lived, was "a scary environment to live in."

The landlord went to the house to speak to the woman who has been renting the property for the last two years, and when no one answered the door, she unlocked it but was confronted by four dogs.

She looked into the house and it appeared to be ransacked, so she called police. Officers who went to the home said that from the street they could smell the odor of rotting food and animal feces. In the driveway they found a car with four flattened tires with an interior similar to the conditions inside the house.

The homeowner as well as the tenant were issued violations jointly for failure to maintain a dwelling in a clean and sanitary condition; keeping and maintaining any pet which by its odor constitutes a public nuisance; owning more than two dogs; not keeping the premises litter-free; and for having noxious weeds, rubbish and waste. Police also contacted the department of social services and the Michigan Humane Society.

Both landlord and tenant have been asked by the city to take immediate action to remedy the situation.

CLUTCH PLAY

If a clutch does not engage firmly upon release, it is possible that the disc has worn out. This component contains friction material that works much in the way that a brake lining does. When the disc's friction material wears out, the clutch slips. Before a clutch replacement is decided upon, however, it should be determined if a clutch adjustment is all that is necessary. On some cars, an incorrect adjustment may mimic a burned-out disc and a simple adjustment can return the clutch to normal working order. To see if an adjustment is necessary, depress the clutch pedal. The first inch or two of pedal travel, referred to as free play, should come easily. After that, there should be some sudden resistance felt to the force applied to the pedal. Most clutch designs require free play, without which the clutch can slip.

Riding a clutch is one sure way to wear out this part quickly, often requiring a costly repair that careful driving could have avoided. AT HENKE TOYOTA, our service department is one of the most modern and complete in the area. Our reputation for reliability is one of the keys to our success. You can reach us at 758-2000, or stop in and see us at 25420 Van Dyke. We stay up-to-date with the latest car developments.

HINT: The friction surface of the 2 wheel, against which the friction surface of the clutch disc comes in direct contact must also be checked during a clutch job.

Selling can be as rewarding as shooting

A question I'm often asked by promising and enthusiastic amateur photographers is how they can get started in showing and even selling their pictures.

Another outlet is local gift shops or restaurants. Perhaps you know someone who owns an establishment who would let you take over a wall to display your work.

risk and accept the "highs" and the "lows." Nothing comes easy. But if you persevere, things will begin to happen for you.

Work hard and present your work well. When you display your photographs, they should be well printed, properly matted and tastefully framed. Be prepared to spend a few dollars to get all this done, but when you begin to sell, you'll get the payoff.

I'd suggest when getting started to price your work at about three times the cost. So if your print, mat and frame cost $25, price the piece at $75. As your reputation and work grow stronger, prices can be increased.

Recently, through my encouragement, some of my students have displayed and sold their pictures in local art fairs. They were thrilled, just as I was for them, when they told me the good news. It's extremely rewarding to have your photography appreciated by others.

Perhaps the best places are art fairs and craft shows found in cities everywhere. Fairs and shows can be large with national reputations or they can be small, sponsored by a local church. Whatever the case, they offer a tremendous opportunity to get your photos seen and to build exposure for yourself. Local newspapers or the chamber of commerce will have information on where and when shows will be held.

But how do you get started? To begin with, it's important to have confidence in yourself and your work. If you don't feel good about your photography and don't have a positive attitude, you're certain to have difficulty.

Always be honest and ethical in all your dealings and follow through when opportunities present themselves. Be sure to open doors for yourself — don't close them. Take a

THE MEANING OF ISSUES IN THIS ELECTION

- Should a woman be arbitrarily prosecuted for having an abortion?
- Should a Doctor go to prison for assisting a mentally competent, suffering adult to die in peace?
- How about prayer sessions in our public schools?

The two anointed candidates of many in our political establishment, would vote to make abortion illegal, and jail a doctor who is willing to act with compassion.

In fact, their views on social issues are right in sync with those interest groups who want to impose their private morality on the rest of us - whether we like it or not.

Meadow Brook Concours to show some rare cars

The Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook, Sunday, Aug. 4, will showcase 60 of the most significant automobiles from each decade, 1896 through 1969 to celebrate the centennial of the auto industry in America.

These "Centennial Superstars" will join 200 additional automobiles for the 18th annual Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook Hall on the Oakland University campus in Rochester, considered one of the three leading classic car shows in the world, along with the annual events at Pebble Beach, Calif., and Bagatelle, Paris.

Cars selected for the centennial exhibit "were the most desirable and sought-after cars in America, the cars everyone wanted, the cars they dreamed of owning," according to Dave Hollis, co-chair of the Meadow Brook Car Selection Committee.

Built on a 1,400-acre estate, Meadow Brook Hall is one of the finest examples of Tudor architecture in America and was the former home of Matilda Dodge Wilson, widow of John Dodge. Proceeds of the event are devoted to maintenance and preservation of the hall.

MG will be the honored sports marque for this year's event. A number of rare and beautiful MGs with significant racing histories will compete in the Meadow Brook Historic Races at Waterford Hills Raceway and will be exhibited Sunday at the Concours.

Most spectacular of the MGs at the Concours is the legendary MG EX 181, from Britain's Motor Industry Heritage Trust Museum. This car, which looks a bit like a flying saucer, was driven at 245 mph in 1957 by Stirling Moss and at 254 mph by Phil Hill in 1959 at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah. These land speed records stood for 30 years.

Another notable and rare MG to be displayed is a 1937 MG VA Sporting Tickford, a fine example of pre-World War II British sports car design. The display honoring MG will include nine pre-war MGs, eight post-war MGs and 10 MG race cars. Nearly 60 historic MG race cars will compete in the Pontiac Meadow Brook Historic Races Aug. 2-4 at Waterford Hills Raceway.

A featured car at the Concours is the 1930 Blue Train Bentley, so named because it raced a locomotive named LeTrain Bleu through France from Cannes to Calais and across the English

Channel to London. (Train and Bentley were ferried across the channel.)

The Bentley's owner and chairman of Bentley Motors Ltd., Woolf Barnato, won a 100-pound wager by averaging over 43 mph through the French countryside and beating the train to its destination by four hours.

The car's body was constructed after a design by Barnato with light wooden framing, heavily padded and covered with leatherette. Barnato was a wealthy sportsman, financier and playboy who loved fast sports cars, especially Bentleys. His Five Grosse Pointers will show their cars at the Concours. Richard W. Thams, a regular exhibitor at the Concours, will show his 1932 Lincoln. This rare phaeton was one of the jewels of Lincoln's classic era.

Gary Nowaroski, of the Farms, will enter his 1910 Stanley Steamer. Stanley was one of the most successful of the steam car makers and the historic vehicle recalls the era when steam and electric power challenged the gasoline engine.

Richard W. Williams, also of the Farms, will show one of the most beloved of post-World War II classics, a 1955

Thunderbird.

Richard Ruzzin, of the Park, will display a rarely seen DeTomaso and Gilbert Mack, of the Woods, will exhibit his 1941 Cadillac.

Among the cars in the centennial collection are a 1903 Waverly Electric, a 1909 Thomas Flyer with a 791-cubic-inch engine, a 1909 American Underslung Traveler, a giant 1911 Oldsmobile Limited Touring car with 43-inch wheels, a 1914 Mercer Raceabout, a 1914 Stutz Bearcat, a 1925 Kissel Gold Bug Speedster, a 1929 Duesenberg Murphy Victoria, a 1931 L-29 Cord, a 1934 LaSalle, a 1935 Chrysler Airflow, a 1936 Stout Scarab, a 1953 Studebaker Starliner and a 1956 Packard Caribbean convertible, the end of the Packard line.

Also to be on display is the 1950 General Motors show car, the LeSabre. The LeSabre is probably the most famous of GM's concept cars. It was never put into production, but many of its innovative features and styling cues appeared on GM cars through the '50s.

Pontiac will be honored on its 70th anniversary with a display of 20 Pontiacs, which will include a 1908 Oakland, the predecessor of the Pontiac, the first 1926 Pontiac and the special World's Fair 1940 Pontiac with clear Plexiglas body.

This 1921 Marmon Wasp Speedster was an identical copy by Marmon of the 1920 Indianapolis pace car, driven by Barney Oldfield, which set the pace at an amazing 80 mph.

This famous 1932 Marmon Sixteen Coupe with body by Hayes designed by Alexis de Sakhnoffsky will be shown at the Concours. Here it is parked in front of Meadow Brook Hall.

H.E.A.T. on Farms theft

Using information provided by H.E.A.T. (Help Eliminate Auto Thefts) tip-line caller, police were able to trace the stolen 1985 Chrysler New Yorker from Grosse Pointe Farms to Detroit.

Police inspected the vehicle and discovered that the suspect had altered the Vehicle Identification Number (VIN). Police believe the suspect altered the VIN, which is like a social security number for vehicles, in order to sell the vehicle or its parts. The suspect was arrested and the vehicle, valued at $1,500, was recovered.

While the tip-line caller received an $800 reward, the suspect now faces one charge of receiving and concealing stolen property over $100 (punishable by up to five years in prison and/or a $2,500 fine) and one charge of altering a VIN with intent to mislead (punishable by up to four years in prison and a $2,000 fine).

The H.E.A.T. tip line (1-800-242-HEAT) is a prime example of how citizen action can coordinate with law enforcement. Citizens who have any information regarding auto theft, carjacking, auto insurance fraud and chop shops have been reporting their "tips" to the confidential toll free H.E.A.T. tip line for the past 10 years.

The tip line is monitored by the Michigan State Police Criminal Investigation Section. The section directs tip information to the appropriate law enforcement agency in the state.

H.E.A.T. tip callers are rewarded up to $1,000 if their tip leads to the arrest and prosecution of a suspected car thief, up to $10,000 is rewarded if the tip results in the arrest and binding over for trial of suspected theft ring members and/or chop shop operators.

Dan Clark Jr. works on the St. Ambrose playscape.

Park teen, with some help, applies finishing touches to St. Ambrose community playscape

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

As Dan Clark Jr. painstakingly applied sealant to the planks of wood that make up the St. Ambrose Community Playscape, several neighborhood children standing nearby last weekend pointed out each time he "missed a spot."

"They were very helpful. They told me they liked their new playscape and I was glad they were there," said Clark, 16, of Grosse Pointe Park. "They helped me get the job done."

To help fulfill part of the requirements for the Eagle Scout award, Clark, along with his father, Park city councilman Dan Clark, friends Andrew Farkas and Chris Goldsby, members of his troop and mayor Palmer Heenan, on July 27 sanded and sealed the wood on the newly constructed playscape built in June adjacent to the St. Ambrose Academy on Alter near Jefferson in Detroit.

The 8,000-square-foot structure was constructed from raw materials and blueprints by hundreds of community, church and corporate volunteers.

Most of the work was done during a five-day period, but finishing touches were awaiting further funding and volunteer efforts.

"The playscape was a worthwhile project," Clark said. "I am glad I was able to do something to help. The playscape itself is a bridge between the two communities and I think it's going to work out very well. It will have a positive impact on the children."

Clark said he was searching for a community project to complete to help him earn the Eagle Scout award, when his father told him about the community project at St. Ambrose.

Thinking that the project may need some finishing touches and volunteers, Clark encouraged his son to call the church and find out what else needed to be done.

Clark Jr. learned that although the wood used to build the playscape was pre-treated with sealant, the wood had to be cut in places and the exposed parts needed to be sanded and sealed.

Clark did most of the sanding himself and enlisted the help of friends, troop members and community leaders to help with the application of sealant.

Clark still has two merit badges to earn, a report to write and interviews with troop leaders before he is eligible for the Eagle Scout award.

He is hoping to have all the requirements by December.

"To achieve the rank of Eagle, you have to progress through the other ranks first," he said.

"You have to have earned 21 merit badges, seven of which are required for the Eagle, you have to have a counseling meeting with the troop master and the troop committee. I still have two years to go. Everything has to be done by the time I turn 18."

He is a junior at Grosse Pointe South High School, where he also is involved in a student environmental awareness group and runs cross country track.

His parents are Dan and Susan Clark, and has two younger brothers and a sister.

South grad attends science camp

Aimee Vasse, a senior from Grosse Pointe South High School, was selected to represent Michigan at National Youth Science Camp this summer. Vasse, a former Duke University Talent Program student in tropical ecology and a Farm Bureau Insurance scholar athlete, joined Thomas Fleming of Novi and two delegates from every state and Japan at the four-week program which began June 27.

At camp, Vasse participated in a medical ethics seminar, in which she and fellow delegates discussed euthanasia, physician-assisted suicide and transplant lists. During a seminar on search and rescue, Vasse, at left, takes a closer look at a K-9 dog. The participants also went kayaking, explored caves, and mountain biking and hiking.

"I didn't expect there to be so much stuff other than science here," Vasse said. "But, it's perfect. You have the common bond of science and everyone has something to share."
Vasse plans to study biology at Wellesley College.

Schools seeks team members for project

The strategic planning process for the Grosse Pointe Public School System is in the initial stage of action team formation.

All of the school system's administrators have signed up for action teams and school staff members will soon follow.

Parents of students and interested members of the community are also needed on the action teams.

The following is a tentative calendar for the process:

- Aug. 7 — Three administrative teams begin work on action plans.

- Sept. 16 — Four action teams formation completed.

- Sept. 25 — Kick-off meeting for four action teams; teams given their charges.

- September through December — Action planning takes place for three administrative and four action teams.

- January — Action plans due.

Alex Manoogian: A man of the world

By Dr. John Psarouthakis
Founder/CEO JPE Inc.

Alex Manoogian accomplished so much for so many in his lifetime. I am sure he will be deeply missed.

With the passing last week of Alex Manoogian, Detroit has lost a truly great man; one that I had the privilege of working for and with for nearly a decade, and knew well.

"Mr. Alex," as I often addressed him, accomplished much in his storied lifetime, never once forgetting his roots. His charitable causes reached from the streets of Detroit overseas to his Armenian heritage, to many countries, making him a true citizen of the world.

His reserved demeanor made him appear quiet and pensive to those who did not know him.

In reality, though a reflective man of extreme vision, Alex Manoogian was genuinely warm, most approachable and, of course, a technical genius.

While serving as vice president for Masco through the 1970s, I learned many meaningful lessons from Alex Manoogian that have stayed with me to this day. His hands-on approach to his operation, tireless work ethic and uncanny ingenuity toward inventing and improving existing products left me a more inspired and enlightened engineer, businessman and CEO.

I often sought advice from Mr. Alex, and though he would always respond with several possible courses of action, he never presumed to tell me which road to take.

He truly empowered his employees, long before it would become a part of our business lexicon.

He was a very intelligent, demanding and challenging man who was also warm and dedicated to improving, to the extent he could, the human condition. He understood and loved America, his adopted country, was totally devoted to it and her principles and demonstrated, through his actions, how the ethic of hard, intelligent, productive work can contribute to the community he lived in and the world at large.

IBM sparked stock market turnaround last Thursday

By Joseph Mengden
Last week's market was topsy-turvy. The Dow Jones Industrials (DJI) had lost 80 points Monday and Tuesday, with tech-stocks in disarray after an avalanche of selling of Microsoft (MSFT, traded on NASDAQ), which lost 7 5/8 points.
The DJI opened Wednesday morning off another er 72 points, but struggled valiantly all day to recover and close up eight points.

On Thursday IBM announced its second-quarter earnings, off 22 percent from a year ago, but in line with analysts' expectations. Management's upbeat commentary sparked a buying stampede, with more than $1 billion IBM stock traded in one day. IBM closed up 11 7/8 for the day. "Big Blue" is a member of the DJI family of 30 industrials, and its rise alone accounted for half of the DJI 67 point increase that day (LTS will explain how the DJI is calculated in a later article).

Let's talk...STOCKS

Friday's additional DJI rally of 51 points carried the DJI weekend close up 46 points at 5473.06. Wall Street welcomed the weekend, still very nervous, but here and there a smile broke through.

Retail vs. institutional stock trading

The business of investments is conducted by individuals (called "retail") or professionals (called institutional). This does not imply that many individuals managing their own portfolios are not professional in their knowledge of their investments.

Most professionals are paid to manage the funds of others. Others include institutions, such as, insurance companies (both life and casualty), corporate and municipal pension funds, university and charitable endowments, foundations, trust funds, banks, trust companies (and trust departments of banks), mutual funds, hedge funds, etc.

Prior to 1950, New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) trading was dominated by individuals, but that trading volume was peanuts compared to today's activity. NYSE trading hours then matched those of commercial banks: 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays.

LTS remembers many days during the summer doldrums when NYSE volume never totaled even a million shares all day. LTS also remembers being on the floor of the NYSE in the mid-'50s as a guest of a national "wire house" brokerage firm. This firm only had one partner on the floor that day and whenever he received a "block" order of 1,000 shares or more for execution, he would always "lay-it-off" to the specialist's book, rather than wait around for the several floor executions to complete the trade.

It was indeed a retail market, with all orders of 100 or shares or more being individually handled on the floor (99 shares or less, called "odd-lots," were handled off the floor). Today, all orders for 3,000 shares or less are sent to the "black box" (computer) for execution off the floor.

The transition from a retail market to an institutional market was caused by two events: (1) The proliferation of employee pension plans among industrial corporations following the 1949 court ruling that pensions were a proper subject for collective bargaining; and (2) the phenomenal growth of the mutual fund industry after World War II stimulated by the inflation of the Consumer Price Index (CPI) after wartime price controls were rescinded (later reimposed during the Korean conflict).

Pensions are periodic payments, usually for the natural life of a person who retires because of age or disability. Government pensions are paid (1) as recompense to war veterans and their families; (2) to civilian employees of the government (including school teachers) as disability or old-age retirements; and (3) as Social Security payments for the aged, disabled or diseased citizenry.

Industrial pensions began with the U. S. Steel fund in 1911, followed by the AT&T plan in 1913. Life insurance companies first offered contracts for pensions in the early 1920s, based on either a group-annuity contract or as a segregated trust fund (administered by the insurance company).

Trust companies and bank trust departments did not actively compete for pension business until the early 1940s. During World War II, the restrictions on cash wages and salaries, and the IRS-approved tax deductibility of corporate pension contributions (with excess profits taxes near 90 percent) increased incentives for formulation of pension plans.

The 1949 collective bargaining agreement between General Motors and the UAW-CIO established for the first time pensions for hourly-paid factory workers.

The same settlement was concluded in early 1950 by Ford and Chrysler. Thus, the pension industry was born, which today administers funds measured in the trillions (a number, followed by 12 zeros).

Most of these funds are in segregated accounts, managed by hundreds of "money managers," who are registered under the Investment Advisors

Act of 1940 and regulated by the Securities & Exchange Commission (SEC).

"Mutual Funds" is the common name given to investment companies or investment trusts registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940 and regulated by the SEC.

The first investment trust was the Massachusetts Investors Trust (the MIT), founded on March 21, 1924, and still doing very well, thank you.

By 1940, the mutual fund industry boasted total assets of $500 million, growing to $2 billion after World War II in 1949; $10 billion in 1955; $20 billion in 1960; $50 billion in 1975; and $95 billion in 1980. The decade of the 1980s saw a ten-fold increase to $1 trillion in 1990. The $2 trillion mark was surpassed in 1993.

According to the Investment Company Institute, there are presently more than 6,000 funds — more than all of the stocks listed on the NYSE — with total assets of $3.2 trillion.

Even though most of the funds' shares (and market value) are believed to be owned by individuals, they are classified as institutional, since they are managed by paid professionals.

LTS will devote several additional articles to the mutual fund industry since so many of our readers are mutual fund investors, including LTS himself.

Fraser, the 5 Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods, Roseville, St. Clair Shores

On Tuesday, Aug. 6, there will be two ballot proposals asking for support of Macomb Community College. One is to allow the college to renew the annual millage. A "yes" vote will continue the funding for the University Center program. It will not increase your taxes. The other is to allow the college to continue the bond proposal. A "yes" vote will continue the funding for the college's equipment and facilities renovation projects. It will not increase your taxes.

Tuesday is primary day. It is your chance to help decide who will represent you at both the state and national levels of government. Use your privilege and get out and vote.

Can you top Tony?

At the 1995 MECC annual golf outing, one could not help but notice that "Mr. Brooks Brothers" himself, Tony Urbani, looked very dapper. He was dressed exquisitely from head to toe. This year we've decided to have a contest to see who can top Tony. If you can, we have a prize for you. If not, then we'll have to award the prize to Mr. Urbani. So come on guys, and gals, too, let's show Tony what the rest of us can do.

50th anniversary

Plans are being made to have one of the best 50th anniversary parties ever. The committee members are out investigating places to hold the event, decorations are being discussed and the guest list is being compiled. If you would like to work on this special event, call Joan DeRonne at (810) 777-2741.

A very pleasant visit from a past president

Last week, a very nice gentleman came into the Chamber office to pick up an Ameritech phone book. He introduced himself to the staff as Bill Lee, a past member and past president of the Metro East Chamber of Commerce. He was president in 1971-72 and he spoke very fondly of the memories he enjoyed during his time as a member of the Chamber. He particularly enjoyed the summer cruises on Lake St.

Clair and the presidential installation balls. Some of the past members he spoke of and asked about were Sam Bagnasco, Joe Mickek, Harry Stall, Jerry Miller, Tony Scoppa and George Kaufman.

Lee was the branch manager of First Federal on 13 Mile and Harper.

Listening to him reminisce reminded us that there must be a lot of past members out there who we would like to invite to the anniversary party (by the way, he made a reservation for two), so if you know any past members, please share the information with us so we can put them on a guest list.

Tell us your news — we'll tell all your fellow Chamber members

Extra, extra, read all about it!

What's new at your place? Do you have a new location? New hours? Have you or someone in your office won an award? Received a promotion? Do you enjoy reading about someone else who has a story to tell?

If the answer is yes, then remember, they might like hearing about an interesting story of yours. Either call the office or fax it to Mary Jane (810) 777-4811 and she'll make sure it appears in the Chamber Chat.

Business after hours — Ride the trolley on the Nautical Mile

For the month of August, we have a unique "business after hours" planned. We'll be riding the trolley on Aug. 15, from 6 to 9 p.m., stopping at various restaurants and shops along the route. We'll be starting at 6 p.m. from the Gifts Afloat parking lot at 10 Mile and Jefferson. Please bring your "mate" and plenty of business cards to throw in our fishbowl for some very nice prizes. We'll also have a "mystery sailor" aboard, and if your card is given to this person, you will be eligible for a special prize. Remember, all aboard for a fun-filled evening along the Nautical Mile and beautiful Lake St. Clair.

There are many ways kids can learn investing

By Bryon Elson King Features

Most kids start a savings account with their allowance, babysitting money, or birthday cash.

These are good opportunities to demonstrate how money grows just by staying in the bank.

Many banks offer special child-oriented savings accounts with low minimum balances and no fees. The bank may require that you open the account jointly with your child or that you open a custodial account.

In either case, you should use your child's Social Security number so the interest earned is treated as your child's for income tax purposes.

Mutual funds are an easy way for children to understand investing.

The advantages of investing in mutual funds are low cost, professional management, and instant diversification.

Several mutual fund companies offer funds targeted to children, investing in companies like McDonald's, Coca-Cola or Disney. Some funds even offer educational materials for young investors.

You should look for a fund with a low minimum for additional deposits to make it easy for children to use birthday and holiday gift money to purchase additional fund shares.

Investing in the stock market can help your child learn how businesses operate and how shares of a company grow in value when people buy the company's products or services.

For your child's first investment experience, you should consider companies that make the computer your child uses or the sneakers he or she wears. You and your child can easily track well-known, high-profile stocks through the media.

You also should point out how world events and trends affect the company's earnings and stock prices.

Before your children invest their cold hard cash, make sure they understand the concept of risk as it relates to investing.

You should spend a few weeks following the company in the newspapers' stock quotations to get your children accustomed to daily price fluctuations.

You also should take your children to the public library to research the companies that interest them.

You can obtain the company's annual report and check out Value Line Investment Surveys as well as reports from Standard and Poor and from Moody's.

Tony's Barber Shop, Betty's Fisher Road Salon to close Sept. 7

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

If you are a patron of Tony's Barber Shop or Betty's Fisher Road Salon, Sept. 7 will be your last opportunity to have your hair cut and/or styled.

The two establishments, which are under one roof on Mack Avenue in the City of Grosse Pointe, will close their doors after 47 years each in business.

In appreciation of their customers, Tony Palazzolo and Betty Wodtke will host an open house at their establishment on Sunday, Aug. 4, from noon to 3 p.m.

"It's going to be something, after all of these years," Palazzolo said.

Both Palazzolo and Wodtke have been serving the hair care needs of Grosse Pointers for almost half a century.

Palazzolo began his career as a barber in 1949 at Andy's Barber Shop (now Labara's) on Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods.

"I left to go on my own for a few years," Palazzolo said. "I worked at Art's in Dickerson and then came here in March of 1967. I have had four generations of clients."

Wodtke started styling hair at Jacobson's in 1949.

"I stayed there until 1958," she said. "I went to Hawaii for two weeks' vacation and ended up staying two years. Boy, were my customers mad at me."

When she returned to Grosse Pointe, Wodtke opened Betty's Fisher Road Salon across from Grosse Pointe (South) High School. In 1961, she moved her business to its present location on Mack.

"I still have customers who were with me at Jacobson's," she said.

Both Palazzolo and Wodtke liked the small-town feel of Grosse Pointe.

Friends, such as the late Chris Caruso, would stop in to pass the time.

"He stopped by and help out from time to time," Palazzolo said. "He was known as 'Uncle Chris.'"

While Palazzolo will be semi-retired, working on a fill-in basis at Labara's, in the same building where he began his career, Wodtke has no plans to continue her career beyond Sept. 7.

He plans to sell his building, which has been a barber shop since it was built in 1943.

Palazzolo has not only been Wodtke's business neighbor, but also her landlord. In the 30 years they have been under the same roof, yet has never had a lease.

"She didn't need one," Palazzolo said. "It's been a good relationship the whole way."

"If I had to share a building with someone for this long," Wodtke said, "I couldn't have chosen anyone better."

Although each of them is looking forward to retirement, they said they will miss their customers.

"Tony and I have the finest clientele in Grosse Pointe," Wodtke said.

"They are not just our customers, but also our friends," Palazzolo said. "And I expect my friends to follow me to Labara's."

Tony's Barber Shop and Betty's Fisher Road Salon are located at 18020 Mack in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Betty Wodtke and Tony Palazzolo have each been in business for 47 years.

How to make sure that your money will live as long as you do

By Sam Ventimiglia

Retirees used to sit comfortably on a "three-legged stool" of retirement funds. One leg was their company pension, another was Social Security benefits and the third was personal savings. The first two legs totaled approximately 70 percent of necessary retirement savings.

Today the stool is wobbly. For many in the forestry industry, the assurance of pension plans and the guarantee of Social Security benefits no longer exist. Many approach retirement without knowing how — or how much — to save.

In the '60s and '70s, a typical retiree retired at 65 and lived to age 72. Today, life expectancy has increased and people often are retired for two or three decades. Traditional employer-funded pension plans are less common and, in the future, Social Security benefits may not be as significant. As a result, experts estimate that today's baby boomer should expect to personally fund 70 percent of retirement income.

Another concern is that many employers have replaced defined benefit plans with defined contribution plans — such as 401(k) plans — which rely more heavily on employee funding.

How to start

Those committed to saving for retirement should consider the following strategies:

Maximize pension benefits. Consider your options carefully. For example, an executive may have a $40,000 per year pension benefit with a "life-income" option, meaning the spouse or heirs will not receive the benefit when the executive dies. The employer may also offer a "survivor-income" option that pays a $32,000 pension and allows the spouse to receive $16,000 per year when the retiree dies.

With the "survivor-income" choice, the retiree loses $8,000 per year in pension income to provide for the spouse. Should both spouses die, the heirs receive nothing.

So what should the executive do? He or she could choose the "life-income" option and purchase life insurance that would pay the spouse $16,000 per year when the executive dies. Upon the death of both spouses, their heirs would receive the remaining funds.

Contribute to a 401(k) plan. If a 401(k) plan is available, contribute as much as possible. Contributions are tax deductible, and companies often match employee contributions.

For many high-income executives the maximum yearly contribution of $9,500 is insufficient. Many companies provide senior executives with nonqualified retirement plans, which are not subject to the limits of 401(k) plans.

Establish a personal IRA.

An IRA can be used to invest in certificates of deposit, mutual funds, bonds, stocks and limited partnerships. An IRA can be tax deductible, depending on the individual's income. High-income executives and those with pension plans cannot use their IRA as a tax deduction, but earnings are tax deferred.

Invest in a variable annuity. Variable annuities allow individuals to invest in mutual funds inside of an insurance contract. Taxes on earnings are deferred until withdrawal. Investors accumulate wealth more rapidly because their account balances compound on a pre-tax basis.

The annuity works like an IRA, but investors do not receive tax deductions for contributions.

Invest through Variable Universal Life (VUL). VUL combines the insurance security of universal life insurance with certain investment aspects of equity products.

Variable universal life is a type of life insurance, so cash values build up on a tax-deferred basis. Policyholders pay no federal, state or local taxes until the money is withdrawn. In addition, when the policy holder dies, beneficiaries usually receive the death benefit free of federal income tax.

It also allows policyholders to choose from a wide range of accounts that are like mutual funds, including stock, bond and money market accounts.

Individuals should be aware that, like any investment, the values of variable universal life policies are affected by market conditions.

Don't outlive your money

With simple planning and discipline, retirement savings can be sufficient to support your desired lifestyles — if you plan now.

Former Pointer celebrates publication of first novel

By Anne Marie Krappmann,
Special Writer

A dream come true. For former Grosse Pointe resident Cheryl Guttridge Klam, her fantasy became a reality last spring when her first novel, "Indiscretion," was published.

The book was printed under the author's pen name, Margaret Allison. The name is the same as Klam's grandmother, who passed a job writing video box copy and titled films. It was then that she first began to consider herself a writer.

She got married in 1992, moved to Baltimore, and landed a job as an advertising ad accountant.

"Leaving (National) Geographic Television was one of the hardest things I've ever done because I knew I was passing up the opportunity to move into a well-paying ing their early friendship.

"I knew him when he drove his mom's station wagon. Now he is extremely successful," she said.

Klam said she chose to do a romance story first because it was so enjoyable to write.

After finishing the rough draft, hiring an agent and revising several times, she sold the novel to Pocket Books, and received an uncommon three-book deal.

With the book deal, Klam admits some of the uncertainty is over.

"Now I'm finding my niche and learning what my strengths are," she said.

Klam is a 1980 graduate of Grosse Pointe South where she was actively involved in theater. Originally pursuing a career in acting, she worked as a model and actress before graduating from the University of Michigan with a degree in political science.

Although she schedule is very disciplined. After an editor signs off on an outline for a book, every weekday she spends four to six hours writing approximately eight pages. She does not do revisions until the entire book is completed.

Her second novel, "Promise Me," is in the revision stage and is due out next spring. It took five months to write.

"The second book is deeper; more of a mystery," she said.

The book also has a local twist as the heroine is from Grosse Pointe.

Her third novel will be even more different; much more serious and real, she said, and she hopes to finish it late next year.

Klam said she enjoys writing fiction because she draws from real life experiences as well as imagination. Some of her characters are based on real people; others are figments of her imagination.

She admits that although she is surprised that she became a novelist, she loves the whole process of writing.

"It's pure escapism. Sometimes I think people get too weighed down with life. It's nice to step into another world," she said.

Klam lives in Maryland with her husband, who is a freelance writer. She credits much of her success to him and to her family.

"My parents always encouraged me and always supported me. They knew I could do whatever I wanted," she said. "I'm grateful to my family for their support."

Her family is proud of her. After a recent book signing in Grosse Pointe, her mother and stepfather held a party in her honor at their home. Her mother, Barbara Guttridge Robinson, could not stop smiling and stressed how proud she is of her daughter.

"There isn't a bigger thrill than seeing your child achieve her dream. It makes you feel so proud," Robinson said.

Her stepfather, Douglas Robinson, echoed this pride. "I always knew she had talent. She was an inspiration from the get-go," he said. "In other words, I'm darn proud of her."

When she is not writing, Klam's hobbies are her house, husband and dog.

"I became a happy housewife, the kind of woman I never thought I'd be," she said with a smile.

Cheryl Guttridge Klam, a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School, signed copies of her first novel, "Indiscretion," at a local bookstore.

away a few years ago. Klam said that she always assumed she would use a pen name and chose her grandmother's name because she always thought it was beautiful.

Klam began the romance novel in 1991, after failed attempts at writing a screenplay. Ron Tapert of Renaissance Pictures, a close friend, told her she needed more description in her writing.

She was working at National Geographic Television in Washington, D.C., where she had job," Klam said, during a recent interview in her parents' Grosse Pointe Park home.

She became increasingly focused on her novel and would often wake up at 4:30 a.m. to work on the book before going to work. Her own determination, as well as the success of others, helped to keep her disciplined enough to finish.

"I saw other people make it," Klam said.

Tapert was one of her motivations. Klam smiles while recall-

On the road again? Don't leave good eating habits at home

Travel can broaden your horizons and expand your mind. Unfortunately, too often, what gets broadened and expanded is the traveler's waistline.

"Even people who are sensible the rest of the year sometimes lose their cool during vacation," said Dianne Lucas, a representative of TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly).

"They're in unfamiliar surroundings and following an altered schedule, so regular eating habits become disrupted," she said. "They may also feel they deserve a special treat during vacation. But you're not really giving yourself a 'treat' if you overindulge on greasy, fatty foods."

You don't have to come back from vacation with unwanted baggage. Consider the following guidelines.

- Plan meals ahead of time. Don't wait until you're ravenously hungry. "Vacationers often wait until late at night to eat, then overdo it," Lucas said. "Or they eat two meals instead of three. If you know you'll be going without a meal for a long time, stop at a convenience store for healthy snacks like low-fat crackers, fruit or pretzels."

- Don't let yourself get dehydrated. Airline cabins have notoriously low humidity. A day of driving or walking can sap fluids, too. Drink plenty of water or seltzer. Watch out for carbonated drinks and fruit juices, which may contain more calories than you realize.

- You needn't deny yourself local specialties — just limit portion size and cut back elsewhere.

- Finally, "It helps to know that someone back home cares about how you're doing," Lucas said. "Whether you're trying to lose weight or keep it off. That's where TOPS members have a real advantage."

To find out more about TOPS chapters in your area, call Lucas at (313) 584-1408 or toll-free at (800) 932-8677.

Vitamin can prevent certain birth defects

By Dr. Fredric Frigoletto Jr. President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Many women are unaware that during — and even before — pregnancy, they need folic acid, a nutrient that helps to prevent a certain type of birth defect known as a neural tube defect.

Neural tube defects (NTDs) are malformations of the spinal cord or brain. Some of these malformations include spina bifida, where the spinal column does not fully enclose the cord of nerves that runs through its center, and anencephaly, where the brain is missing or only partially developed. Spina bifida is accompanied by life-long disabilities such as paralysis of the lower limbs and sometimes retardation. Infants born with anencephaly do not survive.

It's important to take folic acid in the right amount at the right time. Unlike nutrients such as iron and calcium, folic acid cannot be "borrowed" from places where it is stored in the mother's body.

Since your fetus' brain and nervous system are the first organs to develop (within six weeks after conception), adequate daily intake at the time of conception is crucial. This means watching your diet or taking supplements even before you get pregnant. Women who have previously had a fetus with an NTD should increase their folic acid intake starting one month before they plan to conceive.

Rich sources of folic acid are dark green leafy vegetables, liver, dried beans and peas, and dark yellow fruits and vegetables (especially citrus fruits and juices).

Breakfast cereals fortified with extra vitamins and minerals are another good source. Beginning in 1998, the federal government will require that all enriched foods — such as most flours, pasta and rice — be fortified with folic acid.

Supplements are also available. If you are of average risk, you will need about 0.4 to 0.8 milligrams (400 to 800 micrograms) of folic acid daily. Most daily multivitamins contain 0.4 milligrams which, if combined with some dietary intake, should be sufficient.

Do not take more than one milligram of folic acid daily except under a doctor's supervision. If you have a previous history of the problem and are therefore at greater risk, then your doctor is likely to prescribe a higher dose — about 4 milligrams daily.

Not all NTDs can be prevented, but adequate folic acid intake can reduce their first-time occurrence by 50 to 75 percent — a real success story. Watching your diet when you are trying to conceive and early in pregnancy can help your fetus to develop properly.

Single, free copies of the pamphlet "Good Health Before Pregnancy: Preconception Care" are available by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to: The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, Resource Center/AP056, 409 12th Street, SW, P. ## So you think you're allergic to bee stings . .

Most people are not allergic to insect stings.

Of the 25 million Americans who are stung every year, less than 4 percent will have an allergic reaction. Unfortunately, many individuals think they are allergic and seek unnecessary medical treatment for stings that could have been treated at home.

Many of the people who are allergic needlessly suffer from a fear of future reactions because they are unaware of available treatment. Recognizing the symptoms of a normal reaction will prevent unnecessary worry and medical expense. Early recognition and treatment of insect sting allergy could save a life.

The severity of an insect sting reaction varies from person to person. A normal reaction will result in pain, swelling and redness confined to the sting site. Simply disinfect the area and apply ice to reduce the swelling.

A stronger local reaction will result in swelling that extends beyond the sting site. For example, a person stung on the forearm may have his or her entire arm swell to twice its normal size.

Although alarming in appearance, this condition is often treated the same as a normal reaction. However, because this condition may persist for two or three days, antihistamines and steroids are sometimes prescribed to lessen the discomfort.

The most serious reaction to an insect sting is an allergic one. This condition requires immediate medical attention. Symptoms of an allergic reaction or "anaphylaxis" may include the following:

- Hives, itching, and swelling in areas other than the sting site.
- Tightness in the chest and difficulty breathing.
- Hoarse voice or swelling of the tongue.
- Dizziness or a sharp drop in blood pressure.
- Unconsciousness or cardiac arrest.

This type of reaction can occur within minutes after the sting and may be life-threatening or even fatal. People who have experienced an allergic reaction to an insect sting have a 60 percent chance of a similar or worse reaction if stung again.

Treating allergic reactions

An allergic reaction is treated with epinephrine, either self-injected or administered by a doctor.

In some cases, intravenous fluids, oxygen, and other treatments are necessary as well. Once stabilized, these patients are sometimes required to stay overnight at the hospital under close observation.

People who have had previous allergic reactions and rely on the protection of epinephrine must remember to carry it with them wherever they go. Also, because one dose may not be enough to reverse the reaction, immediate medical attention following an insect sting is recommended.

Avoidance

You can lessen your chances of an insect sting by taking certain precautionary measures.

Yellow jackets will nest in the ground and in walls. Hornets and wasps will nest in bushes, trees and on buildings. Use extreme caution when working or playing in these areas and never walk barefoot on the lawn. Avoid insect attractants such as fragrances (perfumes, hair sprays, lotions, etc.), open garbage cans and exposed food at picnics. Reduce exposed skin when outdoors.

Preventing allergic reactions

Allergic reactions to insect stings can be prevented with venom immunotherapy, a treatment that is 97 percent effective in preventing future occurrences. It involves administering gradually increasing doses of venom that stimulate the patient's own immune system to become resistant to a future allergic reaction.

In a matter of weeks, people who previously lived under the constant threat of severe reactions to insect stings can go about leading normal lives.

How do I find out more?

Consult an allergist. If you've had an allergic reaction, it's important to talk to an allergist, a doctor who is a specialist in the diagnosis and treatment of allergic disease.

Based on your past history and certain tests, the allergist will determine if you are a candidate for immunotherapy treatment. Although stinging insect allergy is a serious problem, much of the risk and fear of a recurrence can be virtually eliminated with immunotherapy.

For a free brochure on insect sting allergy, call (800) 23 STING

The Pastor's Corner What's in a name?

By the Rev. David H. Wick
Grosse Pointe Baptist Church

Jesse Jackson, Jerry Falwell, Bill Clinton, Billy Graham, Bill Moyers, Harry Truman, Al Gore, Martin Luther King, Chuck Colson and I all have something in common. We are (or were) all Baptists.

So what does that mean? The question concerns me and the leaders at Grosse Pointe Baptist Church, because we call ourselves "Baptist," and we wonder what that means to our community, to people who really know nothing about us except our name.

Looking at the spread of philosophical, political, and even theological opinion represented above, you might conclude that the name "Baptist," because it can mean anything, in fact means almost nothing.

Or if it does mean something, it is the stereotype of people who don't drink, don't smoke, don't dance, don't chew, don't go to shows, don't etc. etc.

The stereotype of Baptists as legalistic, narrow-minded folks who don't do a lot of things is no doubt a hurdle for people who may be looking for a church to attend. Many of our members who have joined during the 11 years I've been pastor have told me this was the last place they visited.

I heard this a few times before I asked why.

"Because it's a Baptist church, of course," was the usual reply. "We never thought we'd go to a Baptist church."

If you hold the stereotype of Baptists as folks who "don't do this and don't do that," it may help you to know that other people who had that stereotype found out from experience that we're not about legalism.

Being a Baptist is first about having a personal relationship of faith with the Lord Jesus Christ. This is not uniquely Baptist, of course.

But we start with faith in Christ and not — as some people think — with a list of rules.

Being a Baptist is about publicly identifying with Jesus Christ — beginning with immersion baptism for those who have made the decision to trust in Christ as their Savior, as a symbolic act demonstrating their decisions to no longer live for themselves, but rather to live a new life motivated by love for Christ.

Being a Baptist is about exalting the ministry of the Bible as God's Word, through the centrality of preaching in worship, through the teaching ministry of the church, through personal Bible study and prayer, and through promotion of the belief that the Bible is God's inspired, inerrant Word.

Being a Baptist is about participatory church life, because each Baptist congregation is totally autonomous, with congregational governance, which places the responsibility and the privileges of ministry on each member.

Being a Baptist is about these important things that we DO, not about a list of things we don't do. If you nurture a stereotype of Baptists, I hope I've helped you see what we are really about. Now if we could just do something about the stereotypes associated with the other part of our name: "Grosse Pointe!"

Pregnant women should avoid high blood pressure

By Dr. Fredric Frigoletto, Jr.
President, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Some women develop high blood pressure while they are pregnant, and require special care.

High blood pressure that occurs for the first time in the second half of pregnancy — along with weight gain, swelling, and protein in the urine — is known as preeclampsia or toxemia. It affects about seven of every 100 pregnant women.

Most women with preeclampsia have never had high blood pressure before. Usually, preeclampsia occurs in first pregnancies, and blood pressure returns to normal after delivery.

In contrast, women with chronic high blood pressure have that condition before, during and after pregnancy.

Left untreated, preeclampsia can pose serious risks for mother and the fetus. With preeclampsia, the blood vessels in the uterus become constricted. Blood flow is reduced. The fetus may not get enough food and oxygen and may have to be delivered early.

If the condition is detected early, it can be brought under control. Resting often lowers blood pressure. Lying on your side can improve blood flow to the uterus. Pregnant women with chronic high blood pressure may be advised to take a very low dose of aspirin every day, which can reduce the risk of developing preeclampsia. (Aspirin should only be taken if advised by your doctor.) If blood pressure remains high, a doctor may recommend hospitalization.

Early and routine prenatal visits will reduce the risks associated with preeclampsia. Severe preeclampsia usually occurs when the condition has gone undetected and untreated. This is not likely to happen if a woman begins to see her doctor as soon as she is aware she might be pregnant.

Severe preeclampsia can affect a mother's organs, including the blood system, liver, kidneys and brain. If left untreated, convulsions occur, and then the disease is called eclampsia. Fortunately, with regular prenatal care, the risks of preeclampsia can be reduced. Watch for the warning signs of high blood pressure — headaches; swelling (edema), especially of the face pain in the upper right part of the abdomen; blurred vision and sudden weight gain. Report any symptoms to your doctor right away.

Immunizations

By Dr. Carol Sanders
Special Writer

One of the greatest medical miracles of the 20th century has been the development of vaccines. They have virtually wiped out diseases like polio that once claimed thousands of young lives in the United States.

Vaccination is the best way to protect our children against measles, mumps, rubella (German measles), diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis (whooping cough), polio, hepatitis B and Haemophilus influenza type b.

Immunizations have been providing protection for children for years, but they can't work unless you make sure your child gets them.

Without timely immunizations, your child faces the risk of becoming sick with diseases such as meningitis, a serious infection that can result in death or brain damage; pneumonia; and epiglottitis, a dangerous throat infection that can cause a child to choke to death.

Dr. Carol Sanders

Unfortunately, preventable childhood diseases like whooping cough are on the rise again. This shows that our children, especially those in urban areas, aren't getting timely immunizations.

So why don't parents take their children to get immunized? Here are some of the common barriers parents face, along with solutions to overcome them.

It's too confusing. There are more than nine vaccines that your child needs to receive before age 2 and five others before age 12. While it may seem overwhelming to keep track of all of them, they are important to your child's health.

One way to track immunizations is to post the immunization chart on your refrigerator and cross off the vaccines your child receives. Or mark the dates in your calendar with reminders to make an appointment with your doctor. You also should keep a copy of your child's immunization records with important household and personal papers. Bring it along whenever you visit the pediatrician, in case updates are required.

My child doesn't really need them since these diseases have been wiped out. The reason these diseases aren't common today is because children have received immunizations for the past 40 years. If parents start to slack off in their immunization efforts, we will begin to see more cases of these diseases.

I didn't know that my baby really has to have them. Your child won't be able to enroll in kindergarten or Head Start until he or she is fully immunized. Don't wait for the school to call you to get your child immunized. Take charge and help prevent harm before it happens. Parents need to focus on the health of their children.

I don't have time. It is difficult to get time off work to go to the doctor's office. But just because you, the parent, can't get your baby to the doctor, it doesn't mean your baby can't go. Often, parents can send a signed letter to the doctor's office letting a grandparent, family member or neighbor authorize immunization shots. Ask your physician about his or her policy.

I heard it could harm my baby. There are lots of folk stories about someone's uncle's friend's niece who got a vaccine and then died or had some horrible reaction. Most of these stories are just that — stories. There is an extremely small percentage of children who may experience side effects from a vaccine. Your pediatrician will discuss all the possible side effects and what to do. The benefits of vaccines, however, far outweigh any possible negatives.

I can't afford it. Your local health department can help if you can't afford your child's immunizations. Give them a call. There also are free clinics and immunization fairs offered around the metro Detroit area that parents can take advantage of. Some health care plans cover immunizations, as does Medicaid.

While immunizations play an important role in your child's health, they are only one piece of the puzzle. In addition to vaccines, your pediatrician can provide you with other important safety and health information to help you protect your child from harm. That is why going to the pediatrician for immunizations can provide a "halo" effect for your child by uncovering other health concerns.

Take charge of your children's health; give them a shot in the arm that will last a lifetime.

The Hudson-Webber Cancer Research Center, a five-story vertical expansion of the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute, will be built on top of the Vic and Lucille Wertz Clinical Cancer Center in the Detroit Medical Center. The 82,000-square-foot facility will include research laboratory modules with support space, administrative offices and a 100-seat auditorium. The facility is expected to be completed by the year 2000.

Hudson-Webber Foundation to establish new $23.2 million research facility

Translating cancer research into treatment — quickly — is the focus of a $23.2 million research facility planned for the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute in The Detroit Medical Center.

The Hudson-Webber Cancer Research Center is being established with a $7.5 million grant from the Hudson-Webber Foundation — its largest grant ever — and $2.5 million from Wayne State University.

The 60,000 square foot research tower will house 300 investigators in 50 new clinical laboratories. It will be operational in 1998 and completed in the year 2000.

The center was dedicated at a "skybreaking" ceremony on July 15.

"Research cannot exist in a vacuum," said Dr. William P. Peters, the institute's director and CEO. "We need to turn yesterday's research advancements into today's cancer therapies. Tomorrow may be too late.

"Scientists need to walk past cancer patients each day so they realize the urgency. And we'll have an environment where physicians and researchers can share information informally," he said.

According to Gilbert Hudson, president and CEO of the Hudson-Webber Foundation, the large grant was made to further Detroit's cancer effort, particularly among its large, urban population.

"Everyone is entitled to state-of-the-art cancer care," Hudson said. "With this grant, we hope to ensure that area residents have access to the finest, cutting-edge treatment available anywhere."

The grant comes as part of the institute's "Cancer Care & Cure Campaign," a five-year, $75 million effort to fund new facilities, research, community outreach and education projects.

The Hudson-Webber Foundation was established to improve the vitality and quality of life in metropolitan Detroit. Since 1939, the Foundation has provided grants totaling $67 million for programs involving The Detroit Medical Center, economic development, the arts, crime abatement and physical revitalization.

The Karmanos Cancer Institute is one of the nation's leading cancer research, treatment, education and outreach centers. It is affiliated with The Detroit Medical Center and Wayne State University and supported by several local United Ways and the Combined Health Appeal of Michigan.

How to handle dental emergencies that happen while on vacation

July brings summer into full swing, and that means vacation travel for millions of Americans. Whether driving the family across the country to Disney World or hitting the beach in Jamaica, packing a dental emergency kit is good protection against a spoiled vacation.

Dental emergencies can happen anywhere and anytime. Being prepared can make the difference between handling a dental problem and getting on with your fun, or having it ruin your plans.

Pack these basics for your trip: oil of cloves, aspirin or a substitute, gauze, cotton, floss and paraffin.

Here are some tips on how to handle possible dental problems:

Toothache: Rinse your mouth well with warm water and gently floss between the teeth to remove any trapped food. Use a cold compress on the outside of the cheek if there is swelling and take a pain reliever. Never place aspirin directly on the tooth or gum.

Broken tooth: Rinse with warm water, apply cold compresses to the cheek and get to a dentist as soon as possible.

Knocked out tooth: Rinse the tooth lightly in running water, but don't scrub it. Touch it as little as possible. Put the tooth back in the socket and hold it firmly in place. If you can't reinsert the tooth, keep it in a glass or container of water or milk, to keep the nerve clean and moist. Get to a dentist within 30 minutes, if possible, to improve the chances of saving the tooth.

Objects wedged between teeth: Gently remove the object with floss and avoid cutting the gums. Do not use a sharp instrument.

Lost filling: Apply oil of cloves to cotton, squeeze out the excess and place a small piece of the cotton in the cavity. Or cover the cavity with paraffin and take aspirin as needed.

Bitten tongue or lip: Put direct pressure on the bleeding area with a clean cloth and apply a cold compress to minimize swelling. If the bleeding doesn't stop, go to a nearby hospital.

Possible fractured jaw: Immobilize the jaw by any means, such as a handkerchief, necktie or towel tied around the head, and go to a hospital emergency room as quickly as possible.

The above tips are only temporary emergency measures. Look in the Yellow Pages under the heading "Dentist" to find the local or state dental society's number to get a referral.

Or, ask the hospital emergency room to recommend a dentist. If you're out of the country, contact the U.S. Embassy or ask hotel personnel to refer you to a dentist.

The Michigan Dental Association has useful travel-ready slide charts which explain how to deal with these and other dental emergencies. To receive one, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Michigan Dental Association, 230 N. Washington Square, Suite 208, Lansing, 48933.

Blood pressure tests are free

Free blood pressure readings are available each week between 10 a.m. and noon at St. John Horizon Medical Equipment Services, 22239 Greater Mack in St. Clair Shores.

The next tests will be on Wednesday, Aug. 7.

Keep kids 'in-line' with these skating safety suggestions

They look like roller skates, feel like ice skates, and are taking this summer by storm. Whether it's roller hockey, freestyle or just walking the dog, in-line skating is one of the hottest things in summer recreation and exercise to hit the pavement.

Sprinklers and Popsicles aside, the summer months can be dangerous for kids. In fact, more accidental deaths and injuries happen between May and August than at any other time. And in-line skating is a major culprit.

"Protective gear is a must," says Dr. Marc Cullen, director of the trauma and burn center at Children's Hospital of Michigan. "Most in-line skating injuries are caused by lack of protective gear, like helmets, elbow and knee pads, wrist guards and gloves."

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, kids between 5 and 14 are most at risk for in-line skating injuries. In 1994, U.S. hospital emergency rooms treated nearly 44,000 children ages 14 and under for in-line skating injuries alone.

Cullen suggests in-line skating lessons for children, stressing how to stop and turn correctly.

"In-line skating is fun and it's great exercise," Cullen says. "But keep in mind your child may not have the balance and coordination needed to be safe on skates."

To keep in-line skating fun and safe, Children's Hospital of Michigan recommends these safety guidelines:

- Always wear protective gear — helmets, elbow and knee pads, wrist guards and gloves.
- Skate on appropriate surfaces only.
- Do not skate on uneven or broken pavement, water, oil, sand, gravel or dirt. Always skate on smooth, paved surfaces.
- Do not skate with pets. Pets often drag children, making it difficult for them to stop or turn.
- Do not skate at night.
- Do not wear a Walkman or anything else that could interfere with hearing or vision.
- Check and maintain your equipment regularly.

Stratford Festival presents Shakespeare's 'As You Like It'

"As You Like It" is Shakespeare's all-time romantic comedy hit.

It enchanted King James and his court in 1603. It was one of Katherine Hepburn's most famous and successful favorites. And it is a highly suitable candidate for a future Kenneth Branagh movie.

But it is not likely that any production could better suit its era and audience than director Richard Resse's version at Stratford this summer. This is a zinger.

Working with a cast drawn almost entirely from Stratford's so-called "Young Company," Resse brightly illuminates Shakespeare's rich and satisfying mix of ironic, romantic, philosophical and comical viewpoints on love.

It is a performance that makes the "young" designation appropriate only for the cast's tenure at Stratford and their verve and gusto. This cast delivers like seasoned pros, which, incidentally, their biographies verify they are.

As the romantic leads, Jonathan Crombie's Orlando and Kristina Nicoll's Rosalind reflect the universal experience of being struck speechless and overpowered by falling instantaneously and hopelessly in love. Their char-

State of the Arts

By Alex Sucek

acters glow with irresistible charm and giddy infatuation, recalling the pleasant memory of our own versions of the same experience.

The play provides three variations of the experience, each at a different level, treated with both humor and subtle irony.

Tom Barnett's villainous Oliver finds redemption in falling in love with Celia (Rosalind's cousin) while Kevin Bundy's Touchstone (the duke's court fool) pursues an earthier passion with Tamara Bernier's goat girl, Audrey. In a bucolic version, Colin O'Meara's Silvius, the shepherd, plays the unrequited swain to Jane Spidell's haughty Phebe.

What especially distinguishes their performances is the uniformly articulate delivery of the rich text in a way that not only makes sense, but sounds totally natural and brings out the full humor.

Even where Elizabethan language is really obscure to contemporary ears, they manage by gesture, inflection and stage business to make the many twists of thought and plays on words perfectly clear and very funny.

Meanwhile, John Gilbert's duke, in his banishment to the idyllic forest of Arden, projects an air of the contemplative philosopher under whose guidance the rest find a paradise for their lives.

It is also a haven for the famous commentator on the lovers' points of view. David Jansen's Jaques positions his role and his famous account of the seven ages of man as a misanthropic contrast to the warm humanity of the rest. The humor here is wry and thought-provoking.

An interesting feature of the production and the company is the doubling and alternating of various cast members in their roles. It will surely give rise to more freshness and spontaneity in the performances, which continue through Sept. 14 at the Tom Patterson Theatre. For tickets, accommodations and information on other Stratford amenities, call (800) 567-1600.

Farms man recalls his Olympic moment

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

John Welchli once dreamed of winning an Olympic medal as a distance runner.

The medal dream came true for the Grosse Pointe Farms resident in the 1956 Olympics in Melbourne, Australia, but it was as far from the track as could be.

Welchli won his medal in rowing, earning a silver in men's four without coxswain.

"It was exciting because I was still a neophyte in the sport," said Welchli, 67, who remains active in rowing at the Detroit Boat Club and still competes in masters events around the world.

"I took up rowing in 1952, sort of by accident, and didn't row seriously until August of 1954. But in two years I'd learned enough to give it a shot." Welchli had competed in track at Brown University and when he did his graduate work at the University of Michigan, Don Canham, who was then the Wolverines' track coach, allowed him to use the school's track facilities.

"I had some thoughts about trying out for the Olympic track and field team," Welchli said.

Welchli twisted his knee which pretty much ended his Olympic dream, but during the rehabilitation period he ran on Belle Isle, which was the site of the Detroit Boat Club.

"I used the Boat Club as a locker room and one day the rowing coach said to me, 'We see you here every day. Why not try rowing?' I started and it's been good to me. Because of my running, my legs were in good shape and legs are so important in rowing. I was able to keep up with the other oarsmen almost from the start."

Walter Hoover, who was the rowing coach at the DBC, sent three rowers to the 1952 Olympics in Helsinki, Finland. The next time he had seven DBC rowers on the team and Hoover was an assistant coach.

"We believed in his methods, even though they were different than those of most rowing coaches," Welchli said. "Those of us from the Boat Club were better conditioned than most. We were also older, so our aerobic capacity was better. (Hoover) worked us hard because he wanted us to get familiar with the fatigue factor."

Hoover's workouts involved very little competition with other clubs, but plenty of competition within the DBC. That's why his oarsmen could handle the customary 2,000-meter distance with little trouble.

Hoover entered DBC rowers in each of the seven men's events at the 1956 U.S. Olympic trials. Most of the strong Eastern teams knew little about the upstarts from Detroit and scoffed at their training methods. And since the DBC rarely competed in other regattas, they knew little about the Eastern powers except what they had heard and read.

One of the early races at the trials was the eight-oared shell with coxswain. It followed heat races in some of the regular events.

"We'd never been in that boat in that configuration before and nobody wanted to do it, but Hoover said he had entered each of the races and he had to live up to his promise," Welchli said.

The DBC made a strong showing in the race and was leading the favored Yale team at the 1,500-meter mark.

"Yale won by a boat length, but we beat Stanford and it gave us confidence that we could hang in there with those guys," Welchli said.

In the four without coxswain competition, Welchli's DBC team beat a strong Lake Washington crew in what he remembered as "lousy water."

Lake Washington's crew posted an easy victory in the semifinals, and in the finals, most observers felt that Lake Washington would win again.

"We knew it would be tough, but we had a lot of determination," Welchli said. "We had a couple of real feisty guys in the McKinlay brothers, John and Art. The coach from the Naval Academy said later 'you guys are too ornery to get beat.' We were determined and we were all in superb condition."

The Detroit group won a close race and earned a spot on the Olympic team. Jim McIntosh was the fourth member of the crew and stroke, with the McKinlays and Welchli, who was the bowman.

Once the Olympic team was set, Welchli and his crew began preparing for the games, which were scheduled for late November.

"We had a couple of extra months to practice because the seasons are reversed in Australia," Welchli said. "We'd race against our doubles team, usually giving them a 12-second head start. Fours are faster with a headwind and we could catch them in half a mile."

John Welchli of Grosse Pointe Farms remains active in rowing. His quadruple sculling team is undefeated over the last 10 years at the National Masters Regatta.

The Mets won the World Series championship in the Grosse Pointe Park Little League Majors with a seven-inning 7-5 victory over the regular-season champion Cardinals. Each team had won one previous game in the best-of-three World Series. In the front row, from left, are

Mets upset Cardinals in Park World Series

Don't ever count out the Mets during the Grosse Pointe Park Little League Majors World Series.

For the second time in three years, the Mets won a dramatic three-game World Series to take the championship.

The Mets went into the World Series as the underdog after posting a 7-3 regular-season mark to finish second to the Cardinals, who were 9-1.

The teams split the first two games and the Mets won the title by edging the Cardinals 7-5 in seven innings.

The Cardinals touched Mets starter Andrew Beer for three runs in the first inning, featuring hits by Pat Dantzer, Ian Milhouse, Brad Weber and Pier DeRoo.

The Mets came back with three in the third on RBI hits from Jeff Schroeder and Kyle Tannheimer.

Hits by John Madar and Zack Hacias, along with the strong work of batterymates Tony Nouhan and Jason Kline helped the Cardinals take a 5-3 lead into the sixth inning.

But Mets shortstop Matt Harris tied the game with a two-out, two-strike, two-run homer.

The Mets won the game on runs by Tannheimer and Drew Hofmann in the top of the seventh.

Harris started a game-ending double play and Mets pitchers Schroeder and Charlie MacKinnan blanked the Cardinals over the last two innings.

Alex Moore, Dave Wenzel and Miles Talbot also made fine defensive plays and Moore had a key hit in the seventh.

Schroeder hit two homers to lead the Mets to a 7-6 victory in the opening game.

The contest featured excellent pitching by the Mets' Harris and the Cardinals' Weber.

Tannheimer scored the Mets' first run in the second inning on a triple by Rob Rottach. The Mets picked up five more runs in the third, highlighted by Schroeder's first homer and another key hit by Rottach. Each of those hits drove in two runs.

The Cardinals came back with three runs in their half of the third, featuring triples by Andrew Amato, Milhouse and Madar. Weber and Nouhan drove in runs in the fifth and sixth, but the Cardinals, who were missing two of their top players in Kyle Hacias and Troy Casey, fell a run short.

The Cardinals tied the series with a 5-2 win in Game 2 as Dantzer scattered seven hits to record the victory. The Cards had 10 hits, including RBIs from DeRoo, Nouhan, John Clark, Milhouse and Weber.

The Mets' runs came on hits by Hofmann and Beer and key sacrifices bunts by Nick Hoban and Mark Cecchini.

The team was coached by Vito Tocco, Ron Smith and Rick Etheridge.

In the double-elimination league playoffs, the Red team lost to a solid L'Anse Creuse squad in the championship game. L'Anse Creuse avenged an earlier tournament defeat by Grosse Pointe Red.

Farms-City-Park falls a game short of state title

The Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park Babe Ruth 15-year-old All-Stars won a district championship and came within a game of adding a state title trophy to their collection.

After winning the district crown at Ghesquiere Park with a thrilling 7-6 victory over Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores, the GPFPC squad knew it had a legitimate chance to repeat as state champions.

It also knew it wouldn't be easy. And it wasn't. Two losses to longtime rival South County, including a 7-2 setback in the title game, ended GPFPC's hopes of another trip to the Ohio Valley Regional.

"There isn't any doubt GPFPC had the deepest team in the tournament with 16 solid players who all deserved to play every inning of every game," said manager Tony Braun, who coached the team for three years with Dick Swarthout and Mike Getz.

"The team spirit was exemplified by our alternate this year, Chip Getz, who was with us every step of the way. No other team had such dedication and character."

Braun pointed out the post-season success the squad has had the last three seasons.

"They won the state championship and the Ohio Valley regional championship last year," he said. "They advanced to the final championship game all three years in Babe Ruth. They played with maturity as a team and showed tremendous character in every game they played the last three years."

"They learned what it means to care about their teammates and to take great pride in each other's accomplishments. This was a real team in which every player contributed to the victories. They quietly absorbed defeat together without blame."

"Every one of these players came through when it counted most in these tournaments. The team was 17-5 in tournament play over the last three years under some pretty intense pressure — by far the best mark in the state. They all deserve to be extremely proud of themselves and they are. They carry the mark of real winners."

GPFPC opened the state tournament in Niles against South County, the team it eliminated two years ago on a suicide squeeze in the bottom of the seventh and the team it beat for the state title a year ago.

This year it was South County's turn to win, taking the opening 18-14 in a game that featured 36 hits, including 16 by Grosse Pointe.

South County scored five runs in the first inning on four hits, three walks and a sacrifice fly. GPFPC picked up single runs in the first and second on hits by Matt Barry, Jason Mangol, Jeff Nelson and Adam Hess.

In the third, Grosse Pointe erupted for eight runs on six hits and two walks to take a 10-6 lead. Charlie Braun returned from the disabled list after physical therapy all week and hit a liner to right to drive in the lead run.

Greg Pepler hit a bases-loaded double to deep left-center field, while Hess, Mike Getz, Barry and Colin Morawski collected key hits in the inning.

South County came back with a run in the third and three in the fourth to tie the game at 10-10. Jeremy Linne made a diving catch in left field to end the fourth inning.

Morawski doubled home Ted Swarthout in the fifth, but South County came back with three runs in the bottom of the frame to lead 13-11.

GPFPC got within a run in the sixth. Kevin Messacar got a hit, Hess reached base on an error and Braun knocked them both in with a double off the right field wall.

But South County continued to pound the ball, scoring a run in the sixth and four more in the seventh.

That left Grosse Pointe in the losers bracket and forced it to play doubleheaders against tough teams coming down from the winners bracket.

The first was Alpena and GPFPC came through with a 9-8 victory.

Alpena scored two runs in the first inning — one coming when Jason Jaskolski hit the second pitch of the game for a home run.

Grosse Pointe began its comeback in the second when Jeff Nelson singled and eventually scored on Pepler's hit. In the third, Mangol led off with a walk, took second on a hit by Swarthout and scored on Nelson's groundout.

GPFPC broke the tie in the fourth as Braun hit a two-out single and scored on Mangol's double.

Grosse Pointe opened its lead with two runs in the fifth and one in the sixth as Mike Getz, Pepler, Hess and Mangol delivered key hits.

Alpena scored four times in the bottom of the sixth to go ahead 7-6 as Jaskolski hit a two-run double. With one out in the seventh, Pepler got his third hit of the game and took second on a wild pitch. After another out, Braun drilled a long double to right-center on a 2-2 pitch to drive in Pepler with the tying run.

Barry's single to right sent Braun to third and he scored on a dropped fly ball. Swarthout then singled home Barry with an insurance run that turned out to be crucial as Alpena got a run in the seventh.

Hess pitched well for the first five innings, allowing three runs on five hits. Rich Mayk and Mangol were effective in relief and Swarthout recorded the save.

GPFPC received some excellent pitching to edge Niles 3-2 in a game many fans said was the best of the tournament as both teams played excellent defense.

Braun led off the game with a single, stole second, took third on a groundout and scored on a wild pitch to give Grosse Pointe an early lead.

Pepler walked to open the second, took second on a sacrifice by Getz and scored on Andrew Hendrie's hit. Niles picked up a run in the bottom of the second, but GPFPC got it back in the fourth when Morawski singled, stole second and scored on Getz' single.

Mayk held the host team to one run on three hits through the first five innings.

Dan Battjes relieved in the sixth and struck out two. Niles cut the lead to one run in the seventh, but Swarthout slipped a curveball past the last batter for a called strikeout with the tying run on third.

The next day, GPFPC faced crosstown rival Woods-Shores and built a 12-3 lead but had to hold on for a 17-13 victory.

Woods-Shores loaded the bases in the first, but Linne caught Mike Sorgeloos' fly ball and fired a strike to home to cut down a runner attempting to score.

Farms-City-Park opened the scoring in the second when Morawski tripled and scored on Nelson's groundout and exploded for six runs in the third. Singles by Barry, Mangol and Morawski and a double by Getz were the key hits.

Woods-Shores scored three runs in the third on a single by Diedrich and a double by Rich Inger to close the gap to 7-3, but Farms-City-Park roared back with five more runs in the fourth as Braun, Barry, Mangol, Nelson, Getz and Linne collected hits.

Despite the 12-3 deficit, Woods-Shores didn't give up. It scored twice in the fourth on doubles by Scott Gallagher and Gene Baratta and cut the lead to 13-11 with six runs in the sixth on hits by Nick Aubrey, Inger, Burns and Gallagher around walks to Mellos and Sorgeloos.

Farms-City-Park came back with a four-run seventh, featuring doubles by Mangol and Swarthout and a single by Morawski.

Messacar made several good plays at second base, Braun played well at shortstop and Mangol chased down several long drives in center field to kill rallies.

The win over Woods-Shores brought a rematch with South County in the championship round and GPFPC struck early with a run in the first on Braun's leadoff walk, a stolen base, Barry's single and Mangol's RBI groundout.

Hess pitched well for the first two innings, keeping South County's hitters off balance with an assortment of pitches, but he tired in the third as South County scored four runs. South County added two runs in the fifth.

GPFPC scored in the fourth on a single by Morawski, who eventually came around to score on a wild pitch and a groundout. Mangol singled in the sixth and took third on Morawski's double, but the rally ended there.

In district play, Farms-City-Park scored three runs in the first on RBI hits by Swarthout and Morawski. Woods-Shores tied the game in the third on David Legwand's two-run homer and went ahead 5-3 in the fourth when Baratta doubled home one run and scored on Gallagher's hit.

Farms-City-Park came back in the sixth as Nelson singled, Barry walked and Swarthout hit a three-run homer over the left field fence for a 6-5 lead.

Woods-Shores tied the game with two out in the top of the seventh. Sorgeloos walked, stole second and scored on a two-out, two-strike hit by Jon Pacquin.

Getz led off the bottom of the seventh with a single, moved to third on Nelson's hit and scored on a two-out single by Barry.

Swarthout pitched five strong innings with relief help from Hess and Mangol. Mayk played well at shortstop, Mark Weber had a good game at third base and Hendrie had a key hit.

Farms-City-Park opened district play with a 10-5 victory over Woods-Shores as it scored six runs in the sixth inning. Mayk hit a two-run double in the second, while Getz, Barry, Swarthout and Morawski had the key hits in the sixth.

Mangol, Battjes and Swarthout pitched well for Farms-City-Park.

Aubrey, Pacquin and Dan Griesbaum each had two hits for Woods-Shores, while Legwand held Farms-City-Park to three hits and three runs until the sixth.

Farms-City-Park got one-hit pitching through five innings from Hess in a 6-1 victory over L'Anse Creuse. Battjes and Pepler each pitched an inning. Mangol, Swarthout, Morawski, Getz and Weber had run-scoring hits for Farms-City-Park.

Buying Selling Gardening Improvement

VOL. 5, NO. 31 • AUGUST 1, 1996

August is the month when many of us travel

As we head into August, we look for poppies blooming in our gardens and Queen Anne's lace adorning roadsides and vacant lots.

The cicadas will soon be singing and the squirrel population will seem friskier than ever.

The fifth month of the old Roman calendar was Quintillus — until July 44 B.C. The name was changed to July to honor Julius Caesar, who had been recently assassinated by some close friends.

A little bit later, when Augustus succeeded his great-uncle, he decided to name the following month after himself, and in order to have the same number of days and Julius' month, Augustus appropriated a day from February.

August is the month of travelers. Many of us have our annual vacations in August. Many organizations do not meet in August because so many of their members are apt to be away.

It is worthy of note that Christopher Columbus began his famous voyage in quest of new worlds on Aug. 3, 1492. What he found and brought back changed the gardens and the diets of most of Europe — beans, potatoes, vanilla, strawberries, pineapples, corn and chocolate.

What would summer be without corn-on-the-cob and sliced tomatoes? And what would our gardens look like without ageratum, dahlias, marigolds, petunias and zinnias, the official flower of the city of Detroit.

If your travels take you to Montreal, be sure to visit the Montreal Botanical Gardens (Le Jardin Botanique) with its delightful conservatories and perennial gardens.

In Montreal, if you call for a cab, you might get a horse-drawn fiacre. Fiacres, cabs for hire, got their name from the cab stand outside the Hotel Saint Fiacre in Paris.

Saint Fiacre, the patron saint of gardeners (especially perennial gardeners) celebrates his feast day on Aug. 30. He is usually represented carrying a shovel.

One story is that when the soldiers came with orders to kill him, he entertained them with a good dinner and beds for the night. While they slept, he went out and dug a nice, deep grave for himself to save the soldiers the trouble in the morning.

In another French connection, this year marks the 216th anniversary of a man named Lamarck being elected to the French Academy of Arts and Sciences. This honor and the title of "Keeper of the King's Herbarium" were due to his publication the previous year of a best-selling book entitled "Flore Francaise."

Lamarck was born on Aug. 1, 1744. He was a famous soldier, botanist, the father of the science of invertebrate paleontology and the first scientific weather forecaster.

As you work in your garden on these hot days remember that on Aug. 23, 1785, Thomas Jefferson wrote: "The cultivators of the Earth are its most valuable citizens."

Now is the time of year when cut flowers can be used in every room in the house to great effect, providing color, scent and coolness on hot summer days. Did you ever notice that flower petals are always very cool to touch?

And now is the time to get out your prettiest vases and to think about other containers that might be used in original ways.

Try a silver gravy boat as a container for an arrangement of roses (this idea was a prize-winner at a local rose show a few years back).

Shasta daisies would look nice in a colorful Chinese teapot. Or forget-me-nots in a wine glass. There are so many ways that flowers can be combined and displayed to enhance the color scheme of a room, to bring out the reds and blues in an oriental rug or to complement a painting on a wall.

Anything from miniature roses in a demitasse cup and saucer to three-foot-tall hyacinths or larkspur in an umbrella stand are possibilities.

Flowers have always been used to symbolize emotions and ideas. In the Chinese flower calendar, the lotus is the flower of July and summer, while the Japanese flower calendar gives credit to the mountain clover as the symbol of summer and domestic virtue.

Charles and Ray Eames, who developed a process for using molded plywood, designed many pieces of innovative furniture from the 1940s through the 1960s.

The process made it possible to radically change the shape of a chair or table. It gave the flat wood extra strength so it could be used for legs or backs without additional bracing.

In 1945, the Eameses made some children's furniture — chairs and tables — utilizing the equipment that had been used during World War II to make airplane parts of molded wood. The two-piece chair had a back and a seat with attached legs. The table was made of a single cut and bent piece.

The furniture was made of laminated birch in natural color or stained with blue, black, yellow, red or magenta.

Baby oil magic — I had wooden floors. If water or any liquid spilled on them, the spot would turn white. After a while, I was no longer adoring my beautiful floors. I then found the answer.

I took a small amount of baby oil and placed some on a tissue and rubbed it lightly on that spot on the floor. Wow! The floor looks like new, thanks to my baby oil. Carolyn J., Bellerose, N.Y.

Antiques

More than 5,000 chairs and stools were made by Evans Products and sold from 1945 to 1947.

The pieces are in demand by serious collectors. The colored furniture stool recently sold for more than $3,000.

Q. What's the best way to store matchbook covers? Are there any clubs for collectors?

A. To safely store matchbook covers, remove the staple below the striking surface and remove the matches. Avoid tearing. To keep the cover from curling, place it under a heavy object. After a few days, the cover will be flat and ready to be mounted in a book.

For more information on the hobby, write to: The American Matchcover Collecting Club, P.O. Box 18481, Asheville, N.C. 28814; The Rathkamp Matchcover Society, 1359 Surrey Road, Dept. KA, Vandalia, Ohio 45377-1646; or the Windy City Matchcover Club of Illinois, 3104 W. Fargo Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60645-1100. All three clubs publish newsletters.

Q. We just heard that you can tell the age of a Howdy Doody doll by the number of freckles painted on his face. At first, he was supposed to have 48 freckles. We understand it was one for each state. Then two more were added when Hawaii and Alaska became states in 1959. Is this true?

A. We have heard the story of the freckles. But most Howdy Doody puppets and dolls have only a few freckles on each cheek, the nose and forehead. We doubt whether counting the freckles will help date your doll.

Tip: Rugs or tapestries can be hung as wall decorations with strips of Velcro. Sew one strip to the rug; attach another strip to the wall. Be sure to use strips that are exactly the width of the hanging.

Home Tips

Potpourri of tips — (1) Is your son or daughter a paper carrier? Save the large plastic bags their newspapers are bundled in on rainy and snowy days. Why throw them away? They make perfect trash bags for your tall kitchen container. I've been spared the cost of many rolls of trash bags in the past 15 years thanks to my children passing their routes down to their younger siblings.

(2) Buying automobile tires? Why pay the dealership the extra cost, usually $3 or $4 each, to dispose of your old tires? Any town dump will gladly accept them free to add to their recyclable stockpile. After all, your tax dollars support your respective communities. Use their services.

(3) To add my last two cents — Use postcards whenever possible as opposed to the 32-cent stamp. Raymond S., Coventry, R.I.

Proper pruning beat topping for tree maintenance

Picture this: You visit your manicurist because your nails are too long.

She agrees you have a problem and recommends you have your whole arm removed. Better yet, that you have both arms removed, just in case.

While, technically, this solves the problem, it demands too high a price. Apparently, this "professional" isn't sufficiently knowledgeable to offer less severe, more appropriate solutions.

"Similar types of 'solutions' are sometimes misapplied to tree care problems," said Peter Gerstenberger, director of safety and education at the National Arborist Association (NAA).

Based in Amherst, N.H., the NAA is the national association for owners and operators of tree care companies.

The practice — commonly called "topping" or the lopping off of large parts of a tree — is the tree care equivalent to amputation.

Often, trees are topped to a specific height or shape, leaving branch stubs with little or no foliage.

Gerstenberger notes that topping should not be confused with proper crown reduction pruning, which will safely reduce a tree's size and redirect its growth, while generally not removing more than 25 percent of its foliage.

Topping can kill trees, as well as make them ugly and unsafe. Sadly, many — including some who consider themselves professional arborists — still consider topping an acceptable practice, said Gerstenberger.

"Yet, as any true tree care professional can tell you, topping is decidedly unacceptable."

Gerstenberger says you should not top trees because doing so:

- leaves large exposed wounds that the tree can't readily close. These wounds open a perfect entranceway for insects and disease

- ruins tree structure
- removes too much foliage and disrupts the tree's ability to build energy reserves for future growth.

- stimulates new growth, which is weakly attached and prone to breakage

- increases tree maintenance costs.

- destroys the tree's appearance and value

If a tree must be reduced, choose crown reduction.

"At the end of the day, replacing a tree with a smaller variety is much better than topping," Gerstenberger said.

Q. My family and I have been searching for an older house for some time now. I am confident enough to purchase such a house, even if there are some major repairs, due to my construction background. However, my curiosity tells me that there are many other important factors involved that I should know about. Can you give me any advice about what I must look for before signing a purchase agreement?

A. I am not a real estate lawyer but you should have a considerable amount of time prior to signing an agreement. You will also have to hire a home inspector even before you sign.

Begin any examination of a house with the exterior and do so very thoroughly.

It won't hurt to bring a pair of binoculars with you and check the appearance of the roof's shingles.

Even a home inspector will not climb a roof and examine it. Look for anything unusual such as a large gap between the side of the house and the chimney. This kind of defect can mean that the footing at the chimney's base is failing.

Whether the exterior walls are brick or wood siding, they too need to be investigated. In the case of wood, check for any extensive cracks, rot and even signs of bowing. Any or all of the above can constitute age and/or a structural problem. With a brick finish, loose mortar between bricks is not a big problem unless there are too many faults.

Check for signs of previous flooding inside by looking for water stains.

You should also verify the condition of the furnace and the entire heating system.
