

Shores names John Dewald new clerk

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

The nameplate on the Grosse Pointe Shores clerk's table has changed for the fourth time in three years.

But it's not because the men who have held the position were unhappy with the job. The previous three have all been appointed to vacant positions on the village council.

The newest clerk, John Dewald, was appointed July 30. He replaced Cameron Piggott, who replaced Ronald Laskowski (both as clerk and on the council), who had replaced the late James Wright (also as clerk and on the council).

"I was honored," Dewald said of his appointment. "It is nice to serve in this community.

There are a lot of good people putting a lot of hard work into it."

Dewald is a commercial Realtor and developer and also a certified public accountant with his own firm, J.E. Dewald Associates.

He has lived in the Pointes his whole life, the last 12 years in the Shores.

Dewald has served on the Shores planning committee, improvement foundation and has worked with many of the current trustees on the council. He is also involved with the Grosse Pointe Rotary.

"I love living in the Shores," he said. "It's a nice community to serve in. You don't have to get into political undermining to accomplish things here."

WE'RE CONCERNED ABOUT YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

News can appear one day and be gone the next. But the paper news is printed on an and should live on. Last year, more than one third of all U.S. newsprint was recycled. And that number is growing every day. Recycling is the one way we can all give something back.

War Memorial entrance taking root

This fall, residents can take pride in a magnificent new entryway befitting the Pointes' community gem, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The War Memorial's house and grounds committee recently approved the plans for fall planting (illustrated above). Greater Detroit Landscape Co. has already begun preparing the soil, with the last of the trees scheduled for planting in mid-October. The landscaping is the last phase of the parking lot renovation project which resulted in more convenient and efficient parking, improved lighting, direct access to the neighboring lot, and restoration of the original tree-lined, (simulated) brick entrance drive leading to the historic 1910 Alger House.

Fisher paving going smoothly

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

For most Fisher Road merchants and their customers, the street paving project appears more inconvenient than it actually has been.

"It impacted our business the first three days," said Farm's Market owner Bill Moir, "but the worst is over."

The first Fisher Road paving project since 1983 means that no one can park along the street for a few more weeks, but it hasn't stopped some patrons from finding the shops.

"It was a personal challenge for our customers," said Jean Candler, owner of The Wool & the Floss. "Some of my customers have parked on Lincoln and walked here, others rode their bikes but I haven't noticed any drop-off in business."

Customers shopping at the Fisher Road businesses have had to park in various lots and on side streets.

"It's quiet this time of the year anyway," said Bill Scanlan, owner of Scanlan's Fisher Road Florist, "but we haven't noticed much of a drop-off. Much of our business is done over the phone."

"The road needed resurfacing. It will look nice when it's done."

The existing road has been resurfaced three times before the current work began, said Farms public works assistant Joe Leonard.

"We had to mill down to the original concrete," he said. "Some parts of the road were almost as high as the curb."

The entire project is a joint venture among the Farms, City and school system. The City is responsible for its half of Fisher, the Farms is responsible for its portion of the road and the curbs on the Farms side and the school system will pay the cost of sidewalk replacement adjacent to South High School.

The entire sidewalk along South High School will be replaced. Certain parts of the City's sidewalk will be replaced, but not the entire stretch from Maumee to St. Paul.

"The sidewalks are what we are dreading," Scanlan said. "This is a disruption the businesses would prefer not to have," said City manager Tom Kressbach, "but this is the best time to do it. August is the slowest of the three summer months."

"Every time we resurface, there's a certain percentage of complaints," Leonard said. "Stores do lose business because people see construction equipment and decide to go elsewhere. But this is really the only time to do this."

Kressbach urges business owners to call the City if there is anything specific they need.

The project began July 31 and is scheduled to be completed before school begins.

Woods bans parking meter enforcement for 3 weeks as a test

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

In response to the protests of local business owners, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council Monday night voted to discontinue enforcement of the city's parking meter ordinances for three weeks.

A large number of residents and business owners attended the meeting to protest the Woods' recent increase in parking meter fees. Many of those attending were also at the July 15 council meeting protesting the meter increases.

Mayor Robert Novitke told the audience that he and the council were aware of the concerns of the business community and offered the parking ban proposal.

"I've heard from many people on this issue," said Novitke. "Many people have spoken up not only against the parking meter increase, but against the idea of parking meters at all. So I propose that we place a moratorium on parking meter enforcement for three weeks — until the council's committee-of-the-whole meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 26."

The ban, said Novitke, will test whether or not parking enforcement is needed.

"We put in parking meters at the request of business owners," said Novitke. "They complained to city hall that people would park their cars on the street all day and take the bus to downtown Detroit. I think we need parking meters, and I believe this moratorium will demonstrate that need. But many people here tonight have said that we don't need any meters at all."

Novitke proposed, in addition to the meter moratorium, that a designated group of business owners meet with the council at its Aug. 26 session to discuss the entire range of parking issues connected with Mack.

"The reason I'm asking this is because Mack parking problems are just more than parking meters," said Novitke. "The city is interested in acquiring additional property for more off-street parking, and there are questions of monthly parking passes for local business employees. We must also look at the results of the moratorium. I believe that there are certain areas around the city, near Won Kow's and other businesses, that require a quick turnover and might find they need parking meters."

The proposal was strongly endorsed by the audience. The council voted unanimously to support the mayor's proposal. The ban went into effect on Aug. 6 and will last until Monday, Aug. 26.

One audience member asked how much the ban would cost the city in revenue. Novitke said that meters raise about $3,000 a week in revenue, and parking fines raise an additional $3,000 a week. All together a three-week moratorium adds up to about $18,000 in lost revenue for the city.

Woods resident and Grosse Pointe North High School teacher Don Dungan addressed the council and said that he was disappointed in them. He said the meter increase was always meant to generate additional income, and as a teacher who instructed many of the children of councilmembers, he found his faith in representative government shaken.

Novitke pointed out that money generated from parking is used to maintain the Mack Avenue median, something business owners asked the city to do, and the money is also used to help pay for paving Mack and acquiring additional parking for Mack businesses.

Joyce Piasecki, president of the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue, thanked the council for its efforts and said moving the meeting on parking up to August from September was a good idea. She also said that if the council decides to retain parking meters, rates should be rolled back to previous levels, and that parking ticket fines should be rolled back to the pre-1996 levels.

"It's hard for Mack businesses to compete," said Piasecki. "We face competition from large retail chains and shopping malls. Quarter-only meters are driving away business."

Simple precautions can prevent bicycle thefts

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

By taking a few simple precautions, said Grosse Pointe Park public safety detective Dave Hiller, people can greatly reduce the chance of having their bicycles stolen.

"It's summer, and that means that the Park receives a lot of reports of bicycles being stolen," said Hiller. "The thefts are usually crimes of opportunity. What that means is that the thief is not specifically looking to steal a bike, but when the opportunity to steal one presents itself, the temptation proves to be too great."

By doing a few simple things, Park residents can prevent the opportunity from presenting itself, Hiller said. The first and most important thing anyone can do to protect a bike is to lock it.

"That seems like a pretty basic thing to do, but you'd be surprised how often, when taking a bike theft report, I learn that the bike was left unattended and unlocked," said Hiller. "People often tell me that they left the bicycle alone for only five minutes. Would you leave your purse or wallet on top of your car when it's parked on Mack for five minutes? It amounts to the same thing."

Hiller added that the term "five minutes" often proves to be very elastic. Often, after investigating, it is learned the bike was left unlocked and unprotected for up to 30 minutes. People often don't know how long they'll be away from their bikes, so locking them securely every time they use them is a good habit to get into.

The city has received several reports of bikes being stolen directly from garages, said Hiller. The Park is different from other Grosse Pointe communities in that it has alley garages.

Garages that face an alley can provide a thief with extra cover, because alleys aren't as public as a street. So if someone sees an unlocked bike in a garage, especially a garage that faces an alley, that bike can be stolen just as if it was left unattended outside a Mack business.

meters are driving away business. A strong business community is vital to health of the Woods."

Michael Neme, owner of Lochmoor Hardware, thanked the council for the moratorium and said that while the city can do more to help businesses, business owners must also realize that they will have to help pay for parking as well.

Park ready to build anti-flooding berms

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park residents can expect to see the construction of several berms along the shore of Lake St. Clair. These berms, once completed, should put an end to the requirement that residents who live in the federally designated flood-zone purchase flood insurance.

The berms will be placed at the foot of Trombley, Grand Marais, Bishop and in Patterson Park, said Park city manager Dale Krajniak. They will average three feet in height, and will be 12 to 15 feet wide. Length will depend on location.

"The Park has been working with the Army Corps of Engineers and the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) for the past several years on this project," Krajniak said. "The cost of construction will be about $50,000. Construction should be completed in the next 60 days, and we will notify any residents who might be affected by construction."

The berms, when completed, will transform the area from a 100-year flood zone to a 500-year flood zone. A 100-year zone, said Krajniak, has a 1 percent chance of flooding in a given year. A 500-year zone has a .20 percent chance of flooding in a given year.

The Army Corp of Engineers helped in designing the berms to meet FEMA specifications, Krajniak said.

"We've been submitting plans to FEMA for the past several years," Krajniak said. "They've taken their time reviewing, and this spring we were told that our berms met their minimum standards, but that the agency requested additional information be provided."

So the Park hired a consulting firm to provide FEMA with a berm maintenance program statement, as-built drawings of the berms which show erosion protection controls and soil borings and overall elevation drawings.

Krajniak said that he is confident that the project is finally on track.

"We've received conditional approval and we are confident that FEMA closure reports will state that the berms were well-constructed and meet FEMA standards," he said.

Residents will not be able to cancel flood insurance until the issuing of the closure reports, said Krajniak. He expects them to be finished in October at the earliest.

"This truck and our '87 truck give us a 1-2 punch we've never had. It will enhance our capabilities and serve us well into the next century."

Grosse Pointe Shores gets new fire truck

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

There is a new addition to the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores public safety department. It was conceived nine months ago and delivered last week, measuring 26 feet long.

And if your house is on fire, you won't mind the noise and wetness.

The new Ford fire truck, presented to the village council July 30, replaces a 1962 model, which was sold to a private owner.

"The new fire truck was designed from the bottom up," said Shores public safety director Dan Healy. "We started designing it last November with an engineer who is also a volunteer fireman. He looked at the community's geographical makeup and needs, including the Yacht Club and municipal park. There were 181 pages of specifications."

It was built by Emergency One in Florida, with additional assembly done by Westshore in Allendale, Mich.

The new fire truck pumps 1,000 gallons of water per minute, as the old fire truck did, but it also has built-in foam capabilities, four pre-connected lines and a "jump" line off the front which can shoot water or foam.

"It has a shorter wheel base that can accommodate the tighter driveways of some of the older homes in the community," Healy said. "Firefighting technology has changed in the past 20 years. It used to be a case of just putting water on the fire. Now we deal with hazardous materials and boats. We could have adapted the '62 truck, but it wouldn't be practical. The new truck is made with today's needs in mind."

The new fire truck costs $180,000, which was factored into the Shores' current bud-

Ralph Wilson enjoys sports, business and business of sports

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Not everybody gets to turn an interest into a successful business, but Grosse Pointe Shores resident Ralph C. Wilson is not just anybody.

Wilson, a businessman who has a great love of sports, owns the Buffalo Bills NFL football team, as well as two television stations and a construction business in Denver.

But before Wilson became a sports magnate, he was an insurance executive and a U.S. Navy officer.

"I basically grew up in Grosse Pointe," said Wilson. "I attended Detroit University School, which later merged with Liggett to become University Liggett School. I went to the University of Virginia for college and was in the Navy's reserve officer training program."

After college Wilson joined the Navy, just in time to see the United States enter World War II. He started off as an ensign and five years later left the service as a lieutenant commander.

"I spent four years at sea, and served in both the European and Pacific theaters of operations," Wilson said. "I served on a minesweeper and participated in the invasions of Salerno, Anzio and southern France."

He was captain of his ship, which was turned over to the French as a part of the lend-lease program. Wilson was then sent home on a troop transport, and while in transit he learned that his old ship had hit a mine and all hands were killed.

Once in the States, Wilson was sent to Charleston, S.C., where he helped commission his new ship the U.S.S. Picket. He took the ship to the Pacific through the Panama Canal. He stopped off at Hawaii before going to Okinawa, the site of one of the biggest battles of the war.

"We were part of a group of 24 minesweepers," said Wilson. "We had a flag officer aboard, which meant that the commander and his staff of that 24-ship flotilla were on my ship."

"I remember that we were preparing for the invasion of Japan in the summer of 1945. We were going to sweep around the southern most island of Japan. But then the atomic bomb was dropped, and the invasion was called off."

Wilson's ship was sent to Tokyo Bay, and he believes it was the first American ship to arrive. He went ashore with a couple of his officers and saw the devastation of Tokyo, which while it was not attacked with nuclear weapons, suffered great damage from a series of fire bomb raids before the end of the war.

"We'd take a small transport boat to shore, and then take a commuter train into Tokyo," said Wilson. "I don't think we were supposed to do that, but we did. We carried sidearms in case of trouble because we didn't know what the reaction of the Japanese citizens would be, but there never was any problem."

On one trip, Wilson and his friends took a train to Hiroshima, and saw the devastation of the atomic bomb close up.

"We didn't actually go into the city, it was still radioactive," Wilson said. "When we got back to our ship in Tokyo Bay, the official surrender of the Japanese on the battleship Missouri was about to take place."

After the war Wilson returned to Detroit. He said that he liked being in the Navy, and might have made a career of it, but in those days you had to be an Annapolis graduate in order to advance in the service. Reserve officers like him didn't have good career prospects.

"I went home on a destroyer and was discharged in February of 1946," said Wilson. "I went to work in my father's insurance agency, which was housed in the Standard Federal Building in downtown Detroit at the corner of Griswold and Jefferson. Dad was in the business for a while and after the war he didn't want to sell insurance, so he gradually turned the business over to me."

Wilson was active in the business until 1960, when he bought the AFL Buffalo franchise for $25,000.

"I was always a fan of football," said Wilson. "I remember seeing the Lions play their first game in Detroit in 1934 and I even bought a small piece of them in 1947," said Wilson. "That year a group of about 60 people bought the team for $275,000. We did it as a community gesture. The original owner lived in Chicago."

Grosse Pointe Shores resident Ralph Wilson, owner of the Buffalo Bills and his coach Marv Levy make a potent team. The Bills have appeared in four of the last six Super Bowls.

Wilson went to all the home games and watched the team on television when it was on the road. He saw Bobby Layne and all the great players of the 1950s win the NFL Championship.

In 1959, he was in Saratoga, N.Y., for the horse racing when he read an article about Lamar Hunt of Texas trying to set up a new American Football League. Since there were only 12 teams in the NFL at the time and none of them were for sale, he contacted Hunt.

Hunt told Wilson that there was an AFL franchise available in Miami. Wilson had a winter home there, and thought owning a football team in the city might be a good idea, so he arranged a meeting right away and was awarded the Miami franchise.

Wilson attempted to lease the Orange Bowl for his franchise, but was unable to reach an agreement with the stadium's owners because they had been burned by a team in the old All-America Football Conference, which operated in the late 1940s.

They didn't want anything to do with a new league, and were waiting to get an NFL franchise.

With no place to play, Wilson had to give up the franchise, but was later contacted by Hunt who said that the AFL needed an eighth team to balance out the league.

The team had to be on the East Coast, and Hunt offered

Wilson the choice of five cities for the franchise, including Buffalo, St. Louis, Cincinnati, and Louisville.

"I said I wasn't interested, but was told to think about it," said Wilson. "I called up Ed Hayes who was sports editor of the old Detroit Times, and he said I should call Nick Kerbey who was the Lions' general manager. Both told me that if I was foolish enough to buy a franchise in the new league, I should put it in Buffalo, because the city was similar to Detroit."

Hayes then arranged a lunch for Wilson with Paul Neville who was editor of the Buffalo News, said Wilson. Neville was a big football fan who took Wilson to the War Memorial Stadium, which had a capacity of about 35,000, which was perfect for the new league.

Wilson said that he would locate his team in Buffalo and keep it in the city for three years if Neville's paper would support the team for that period.

"Neville said it was a deal, but after the end of the three years that was the last time the paper supported me," Wilson said with a laugh. "No, I'm just kidding. But you do have to have a thick skin to own a professional sports team. We had good attendance, and in 1964 we won the AFL Championship by beating the San Diego Chargers."

The league was able to survive because it got a great television contract from NBC which paid AFL teams almost as much money as NFL teams were getting from CBS. When it became apparent that the AFL was not going to go away, talks began between the two leagues about merging, said Wilson.

"Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the NFL's Baltimore Colts met with myself and Sonny Werblin of the New York Jets about a league merger in 1965," said Wilson. "Sonny had the New York market and wasn't enthusiastic for a merger. So the next year some different league representatives met and were able to agree to a merger."

In the 1960s, Wilson got into the television business, and by the 1980s, was purchasing some TV stations from John Fetzer, owner of the Detroit Tigers at the time.

"I had heard that Mr. Fetzer was thinking of selling the Tigers, so I met with him in Kalamazoo," said Wilson. "We had reached an agreement over the purchase price — $24 million, but Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the NFL said I couldn't buy the Tigers because league rules prevented NFL team owners from owning a professional sports franchise in a different sport. The team was later sold to Tom Monaghan."

Wilson is an active man who enjoys playing tennis. He used to play golf and jokes that he was so bad at it, that he was kicked out of the sport. He recently attended a Wimbledon Tennis Tournament for the first time, and can finally say, when asked, that yes he's been to Wimbledon.

"I like to spend time at training camp, and spend two to three weeks a year at the camp," said Wilson. "I have managers to run my paving business in Denver and my two TV stations. I spend about 90 percent of my business time concentrating on my football team."

Running a team now is a lot different from when he started in 1960, Wilson said. He noted that players all now have agents. Teams are moving from city to city.

He talks every day with Bills coach Marv Levy, calling him a wonderful man.

"Football is not a 'go to the games on Sunday' operation for owners anymore," said Wilson. "It's a complicated business."

New War Memorial course tackles the basics on the Internet

Help in gaining access to the information superhighway is as close as the War Memorial. A three-week course, Getting On The Internet, is scheduled for Wednesdays, Aug. 14 through Sept. 4 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. (omit Aug. 28).

The class is designed for those interested in exploring the vast capabilities of the Internet and how it can be used professionally and personally. Taught by Michael Maniscalco, the course provides tips and tricks on getting connected, sending e-mail, sorting through the Internet's powerful tools and learning how to establish an on-line presence.

Topics covered are Internet access accounts, Internet infrastructure, the World Wide Web and e-mail basics. Maniscalco will discuss Listserv, netiquette, Gopher, and security issues, and provide a step-by-step demonstration of Netscape software.

A basic understanding of computers is necessary to register for this lecture series. A variety of handouts are provided to facilitate understanding. The course fee is $49 for the three weeks. Advance registration is required as class size is limited. Call (313) 881-7511 for additional information. MC and Visa are accepted.

Casino issue to be tested in November

We are not among those who believe that legalizing three gambling casinos in Detroit will speed the city's economic recovery. But that's the argument that casino advocates will make until November when voters will decide the issue.

Edward Sarpolis, head of a Lansing-based polling firm, has predicted that the campaign to sell the state on approving the casino issue would cost a minimum of $6 million, which apparently does not include the cost of the battle against casinos.

We agree with the arguments of the Michigan Citizens Against Casino Gambling on its three major campaign points, as described by The Detroit News:

- Casinos would be a setback after the success of recent efforts to overcome a negative image of Detroit.

- Casinos do not help the economy, but, instead, money spent in them cuts into disposable income that otherwise would be spent in existing shops and restaurants.

- Hidden social costs, including increased police protection, coping with gambling addiction and handling family problems arising from gambling, would offset any economic benefits from casino gambling.

This year's campaign leading up to the November vote already promises to become one of the state's most fiercely contested elections, The Detroit News predicted.

Michigan and Midwestern states in general are expected to become a major testing ground for Robert Dole, the former U.S. senator and the expected GOP presidential nominee, who is currently the under dog in his race with President Clinton.

But a hotly contested U.S. Senate seat also is at stake in Michigan, with the GOP expected to invest heavily in its campaign to unseat veteran Democrat Carl Levin, first elected in 1978.

There also will be tight races for some seats in the 16-member U.S. House delegation from Michigan. The Democrats will at least try to hang on to their 9-7 lead and the GOP will seek to gain a seat or two as part of its drive to retain the U.S. House.

The state House also will be the scene of a number of tough contests with the GOP trying to maintain its one-vote margin but state Senate seats are being filled this year only in the case of special elections.

Terms of two members of the state Supreme Court, Chief Justice James H. Brickley and Associate Justice Charles L. Levin, expire, and if both seek re-election, they will face opponents to be chosen by the major political parties to run on the nonpartisan ticket in November.

Five other proposals also will appear on the ballot, although the casino gambling question is expected to attract the most interest and campaign spending.

It is unfortunate, however, that the new gambling commission just authorized by Congress will not have the time to do more than start its studies before Michigan will face a vote on the issue.

The commission is a good idea, and it is disappointing that this state could not await some of the findings before voting on expansion of gambling in Detroit.

Welfare plan unfair to children

The governors of the states finally won a long-sought victory when Congress passed and the president agreed to sign what has mistakenly been called a welfare reform bill.

In effect, it gives the states control of most of the federal funds raised for welfare purposes, and eliminates all but a few of the federal controls erected over the years to protect recipients.

True, the federal system has not worked as well as it should. But with all that federal money now at their command and few controls, the states are likely to use it often for purposes far removed from welfare.

It is, as the president said, the end of welfare as we have known it. In effect, it also is the end of federal guarantees of helping the poor begun 60 years ago.

But it also is the end of federal programs that, even though subjected to hot criticism, chiefly by Republicans but also by many Democrats, did aid more than a million more children than the new plan will reach.

True, Michigan appears to be getting even more money through the new annual grant system than it is getting for welfare purposes this year.

Furthermore, Gerald Miller, director of the state Family Independence Agency, has expertise going back to his service under former Gov. William Milliken.

Yet the Congressional Budget Office says that the bill is $12 billion short of what would be needed to meet its program to shift welfare clients to work. What will happen to the people on welfare who will be removed from the rolls if they can't find work?

Furthermore, the New York Times reports that while the bill says it would require states to put at least half of welfare parents to work within two years of going on welfare, the actual language exempts 43 states.

These states, covering about 95 percent of welfare recipients, already have federally approved welfare reform plans in operation.

Before the federal government began to support welfare recipients, most states did precious little to help the poor and needy, regardless of their age.

True, most states went broke in the Depression and the federal government, still able to borrow money, did so to finance the New Deal programs.

Now we shall see whether the governors, including Michigan's own John Engler, will really improve the dispensation of welfare funds — or put poor people and their children at greater risk.

We shall also see whether President Clinton benefits in the public opinion polls from signing the bill, even though it might cost him the support of liberal Democrats and some independents — and perhaps even lead to his defeat in November.

Cecil gets his wish: the Yanks

Few Detroit Metro area sports writers or fans have expressed regret over the departure to the New York Yankees of Cecil Fielder, the gentle giant who led the American League in home runs and runs batted several times during his tour of duty with the Detroit Tigers.

Why? Apparently because it was not only what Fielder wanted, it was also what the Tigers and the Yanks wanted. The Tigers wanted to relieve themselves of Fielder's $7.2 million salary, and the Yankees needed a slugging right-handed hitter to bolster their charge toward the American League pennant.

Yet as Fielder left, Joe Falls of The Detroit News sports department wrote that Fielder "had never seemed to find peace in his profession."

We might add that he didn't seem to find peace in living for part of his Detroit career in Grosse Pointe, either, even though he and his family were warmly welcomed and treated well when he moved here.

Yet in Fielder's early years in Detroit, playing with a better team than the 1996 product, it was a thrill to go to a Tiger game — or watch on television — when he drilled one out of the park or drove in a winning run.

So thanks for the memories, Cecil. We add our best wishes for a successful year with the Yanks and for another flock of homers to help your new team — except when it is playing the Tigers.

Despite critics, Atlanta did well

The Olympic Games never are a total victory for the host city and country. And the 1996 Olympics, the last in this century for the United States, was no exception.

European critics, and especially the French, could not even wait until the games had ended before launching nasty newspaper columns and editorials criticizing the commercialism of the Atlanta games, complaining about traffic and computer tieups, and, of course, deploring the quality of the food.

Unfortunately, the critics, French and otherwise, can make some valid points about the doings in Atlanta for the past two weeks.

There was an excess of commercialism, but excessive commercialism didn't start in Atlanta. It got major attention in Los Angeles in 1984, and has grown worse since.

The major scar on memories of Atlanta, however, will remain the bomb blast that killed a Georgia woman, injured 111 other people and was apparently responsible for the heart attack that killed a Turkish cameraman.

Yet the crowds, foreign as well as American, quickly proved that the bomb did not kill the Olympic spirit, even if the event did cast a pall over the last week of activities.

The athletes continued on their record-making pace in their performances, few people even left early, and the closing night ceremonies were acclaimed as a gigantic and glittering success.

Letters

In praise of Marian and FDR

To the Editor:
I write to praise your paper for the marvelous columns of Marian Trainor which are so exceptionally good week after week.

Especially to be treasured is her column of July 18 in praise of Franklin Delano Roosevelt and of Social Security.

She cited many of the achievements of the New Deal but "none... as important to older citizens today as the birth of Social Security... which ensures some guarantee of security to the elderly."

"With the confidence and courage of the president who overcame personal and political obstacles in his life, older Americans should face up as a group to battle whatever forces that seek to undermine the legacy of freedom from poverty that Social Security provides."

"Social Security benefits should never be diluted. FDR would not stand for it."
Marian Trainor is an outstanding adornment to the Grosse Pointe News.

Sowing thanks

Letter to the Editor:
We wish to express our sincere gratitude to the many individuals and businesses in our community who contributed to the success of our 1996 Summer Garden Tour:

- the Bellamy, Hook, Leidecker and Lopiccio families for graciously sharing their outstanding and imaginative gardens;

- the many volunteers who, although challenged by a cold, wet spring, brought the Trial Garden, Grace Adams

Harrison Children's Garden, and the Lottie Crawley Memorial Herb Garden to viewing perfection;

- the many volunteers who served as hostesses and cashiers in the gardens;
- J. W. Cole Jewelry, Moehring-Woods Flowers and A. H. Peters Funeral Home for their generous donations;

- Cavanaugh's Office Supplies, Grosse Pointe Florists, Moehring-Woods Flowers and Wild Birds Unlimited for their enthusiastic cooperation in selling tour tickets at their places of business;

- The Grosse Pointe War Memorial staff for their help in setting up and selling tour tickets and providing cable TV coverage;

- and, last but not least, the Grosse Pointe News for its thorough coverage of the gardens.

We appreciate the generous service provided to our community by all of the above parties. These contributions and efforts will help the Garden Center to support area beautification, education, horticulture and conservation programs.

Says yes to parks

To the Editor:
Even though I love living in Grosse Pointe, I know I will never be proud to be one of its residents. Your editorial, "Let's vote NO on new park tax," expresses in many ways what I dislike about this community.

It is amazing to me that you acknowledge in the editorial that the park tax will increase children's opportunities for outdoor fun in Detroit and other communities, but since it won't benefit our children, vote no. I like to think of my child as being part of a larger community than just Grosse Pointe. She already benefits from a wonderful park system in this area; other kids are not nearly as lucky.

It is ridiculous and selfish to think that any money raised by a new park tax should be used in the Grosse Pointes when in some areas of Detroit, kids can't find any local playground to go to.

To state your case, you profile the $250,000 homeowner who would have to pay $31.25 a year to support this tax. I would gladly give up one dinner at "Sparky's" if it will help increase children's opportunities for outdoor fun in Detroit. I know the majority of residents of this community share your point of view.

I do take some solace in the fact that I won't be the only Grosse Pointer voting yes for the park tax on Aug. 6.

All the cars I've loved before?

I've never really been a car guy. As long as they ran and got me to where I wanted to go, that is as far as my interest in cars went.

But all the hype going on this year about the 100th anniversary of the automobile in America has caused me to think back to how many cars I've owned.

Like most Americans, I can't even recall every car I've bought. A quick tally in my head indicates that I've purchased more than 15 vehicles in the quarter century since I started driving.

Of course, the first car, like the first love — and heartache — comes quickly to mind. It was a 1964 Corvair that I paid a whopping $250 for back in 1971. Boy did I get taken on that junker, which was definitely unsafe at any speed.

I actually only had it on the road twice. The rest of that summer was spent trying to repair it. The first time out, the gear shift came out in my hand. The second and last time the clutch cable that ran to the rear-mounted engine and transmission snapped. I never did find a replacement cable.

The worst part about the car was the payment plan offered to me by my then summer employer, who owned a sod farm.

All summer long I labored, heaving heavy rolls of turf on pallets, to pay off that car. When school was about to start, my shrewd slave master said I still hadn't paid off my debt and that I should continue to work after school and on weekends. So sue me.

The second car, a red 1962 Impala with a white top, was a better deal. It was during my second summer with a driver's license that I stole the car for a mere $150. To its credit, the car took me through the entire summer and into the school year without a hitch.

Around Halloween, though, the transmission went and since I couldn't afford to repair it — or renew the insurance — I parked it out back behind the barn. I'll bet if it's still there today you would still smell the sandalwood incense I burned in there. (Hey, those were the early '70s.) I didn't get another car until after high school and I had a steady job. It was a 1968 Pontiac Catalina. What a boat! The front end stuck out a country mile. I kept bumping things with it, and a yellow light would be red by the time the rear end rolled through the intersection.

The only problem I had with the car was that the accelerator kept sticking. I'd be driving down the freeway on the way to work, playing with the end of the turn-signal indicator, which seemed to push in and out, and the gas pedal would stick. I'd have to hit the brakes to get it to stop.

The problem was eventually solved when I sold the car to a guy who pointed out, "I see you have cruise control."

Later, I bought a 1968 Impala from a "friend" at work. I had it a week and the transmission went out, costing my minimum-wage paycheck $250 to fix. It wasn't until later that I learned from other co-workers that the previous owner used the car every weekend for years to tow a large house trailer up north.

Not long afterward, the engine blew. I decided to save some money and bought a rebuilt shortblock which I would install myself. One cold Thanksgiving morning I lowered the block into the front end, the cylinder bores exposed out in the yard. After returning to work after giving thanks, I found it had snowed considerably during dinner and the new, shiny cylinders were filled with powder.

Well, it was a learning experience.

And I'll never forget the green 1974 Chevelle from hell. God, I hate green cars. That car never ran right. Unfortunately, when I took it for a test drive, I never went over 35 mph.

After having spent $650 for the beast, I drove it on the freeway for the first time. At 55, it began shimmying as if the wheels were going to fly off and the body was going to shake apart.

Also, it never wanted to stay running. One day, stranded at the side of the road, I used a screwdriver to hold open the choke butterfly so that the flooded engine could get some air. Pretty clever, uh?

Well, the only problem was that the screwdriver was one of those with the magnet tip inserts. You guessed it. The tip was sucked down into an engine cylinder and blew a hole in the block.

This time, a used V8 was purchased and dropped in. While I was at it, I decided to do a brake job — my first. New pads, shoes, calipers and brake lines later, the job was complete, but boy those wheels turned hard. But not to worry,

I thought, they'll wear in.

I decided that a job well done deserved a car wash. As the attendant guided me, I pulled into the conveyor paths. No sooner had we started through, though, when the entire car wash shut down — no lights, no power, no water, no soap. Attendants were screaming like mad.

Oh oh. Being sort of mechanically astute, I quickly grasped the nature of the problem: The wheels were turning perhaps a little harder than I thought.

After the attendants threw the circuit breakers back on got the wash cycle started again, I inconspicuously started the car up put it in drive and basically drove my way out and sped past the guys with drying cloths at the end of the line without a look back.

I think that was my last straw with back yard auto repair. I don't even change my own oil anymore, and I don't miss it.

But despite the trial and tribulations, there's no going back to the old days of horse and buggy — or even mass transit.

So on this, the 100th anniversary of the automobile — happy birthday!

Claudia Corrado was at the Farms Pier Monday when her daughters Grace, 6, and Katherine, 4, pointed out something odd to their mom: A man's car was on fire across Lakeshore.

Ken Eatherly

"He was an older man, standing there with the hood up and flames shooting out of the engine, and people were passing right by," Claudia says. "We drove over to try to help, parked behind him and then a young man in a Social Disposal truck pulled over and jumped out with a fire extinguisher."

The flames were doused without anyone being injured, thanks to the Samaritan with the Right Stuff, Claudia reports.

"You don't usually see young people stopping to help an older man," she says. "It was just a nice thing to do."

Where did everybody go?

If the Pointes seem a bit uncrowded in August, part of the reason is probably the annual local summer getaway to places like Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Traverse City and the Leelenau area.

Doc and I were enjoying the cool breezes blowing off Leelenau's Glen Lake last week and we kept either running into Pointers, or hearing about those who'd been there or were on the way.

"We get about one table a night of people from Grosse Pointe," said Peachy Rentenbach, who with husband John has run La Becasse, their 40-chair gem of a French-style restaurant by Glen Lake, since the late '80s. A former Freep food editor and member of the Michigan Restaurant Association, she's a 30-year veteran of the City and Farms, and John's from the Farms as well.

By the way, the food was great — and the presentation of my tournedos so artfully done, I wanted to take a picture before I dug in. Peachy makes all the desserts for La Becasse (that's French for "woodchuck") and another specialty is wild game.

With all the Pointers passing through, how about serving squirrel here, I suggested. "Unfortunately, we can't get it from an approved vendor," said Peachy, laughing.

Picking up the garb

The Shore's Bill Baer has high praise for a team of city employees who did their job so well that they pretty much did it again just to leave a customer satisfied.

In a letter to Shores Village manager Michael Kenyon, Bill explained he parked a pile of clothing, bound for the cleaners, atop a garbage can in his garage, went back in the house for something and found everything — trash and clothes — gone 20 minutes later.

"Horrorified (this was a large amount as I had just returned from an extensive trip), I rushed out to find the municipal workers," he said. "... they agreed voluntarily that it was an unfortunate but understandable problem and dumped the load by the city garage, found the clothes and then reloaded the trash with a front end loader.

"This kind of excellent commitment and work ethic makes me proud to be a resident of Grosse Pointe Shores ... the individuals were led by Brett Smith and included Chris,

Bruce and Bill. They saved the day for me and showcased the above and beyond the call of duty attitude winners always have."

McNuptials

So many Scots and fans of the tartan came to last Saturday's 147th annual Highland Games at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House that it looked like they might even run out of haggis, but they were just a lot of wedding guests to North High '77 grad Heidi E. Hall (now Mrs. Peter J. McInnes) and her kilted new husband.

In what might be a first for the St. Andrew's Society event, the couple was married that morning right there on the grounds. "It was Peter's idea," says Heidi. "We've been coming to the Games for the past two years."

Where will the honeymoon be? "Scotland, of course," said Peter.

The death of the neighborhood

By Michael Le Van
Grosse Pointe Park

Ruth and Earl are my next door neighbors. They own a two-family flat, just like mine. They live upstairs, Natalie and her kids live downstairs. They also own a farm, somewhere up north.

Not to long ago, Ruth asked if I wanted more rocks, like the ones I use to line some of my flower beds. She said they were going to the farm that weekend and she would be happy to gather some and bring them to me. I thanked her and said that would be wonderful.

Over the next couple of weeks I thought about the rocks occasionally while working in the yard, but I figured that Ruth hadn't had time or maybe she had just forgotten.

Recently, coming home from work, I noticed Earl standing on his porch. I gave him the usual, "Hi, how's everything?"

"Well, truthfully, they could be better," he said, but didn't elaborate further.

Not wanting to get too involved, but no longer able to easily end the conversation with a simple, "Well have a nice night," I asked another meaningless question: "Have you been up to the farm lately?"

"No," he said, "I've been kinda busy with the funeral and all."

Now I was in trouble. Who had died? One of their parents, a brother or sister? I really didn't know much about their family. I was a little embarrassed, but still asked, "Whose funeral? I hadn't heard."

"Ruth died," he said, "three weeks ago."

Three weeks ago! I was stunned. Not because she was dead, but because she died three weeks ago and I didn't know. I stood there silently for a moment, not knowing what to say or do.

When the shock finally wore off, it was replaced by profound embarrassment. I muttered the obligatory, "I'm very sorry, I didn't know." We talked for a while longer, I repeated my sympathies and then said good night.

But for the rest of the evening, I couldn't get my mind off of the fact that three weeks had gone by and I hadn't heard a word, not from Earl or his family, not from any of the other neighbors, nothing!

When the passengers on TWA Flight 800 died last month, the entire country knew within the hour. By the next day, we knew that three of them were from our area. We knew their names and how many children they had. We knew where they lived and where they worked. We knew where they were going to school next year, what sports they enjoyed and even to which country club they belonged. I had never met any of these people, yet I now know much about how they lived.

I had lived next door to Ruth for over a year, but I didn't even know her last name. Sure we talked occasionally over the back fence if we both happened to be in the yard at the same time. My 4-year-old daughter even left a few sidewalk chalk messages for Ruth. Ruth would write back, also in sidewalk chalk. But that's as far as it went.

My relationship with a person who lived 20 feet from me never got past the very, very superficial. It never even got as far as a last name.

Whose fault is this? I'll tell you. It's mine. And yours. And the fault of everyone else in all of our neighborhoods, everyone who is too busy with the details of their lives to get to know the people around them.

Remember when you were a kid, you knew the names of every family on the block. And they knew you. If your mom needed of cup of sugar, she went next door instead of driving to the nearest 24-hour 7-11. If one of the neighbors caught you sneaking behind his garage to have a smoke, he didn't ignore it, or call the cops; he walked over and told your parents. And while you might not have appreciated it then, I'll bet you'd like him to do it now that you have kids.

You used to get a pie from the lady next door when you moved into a new house. When I moved in, no one stopped by to introduce themselves, nor did I make any special effort to meet them. If we met at all, it was simply by chance. Chance is no way to form a neighborhood.

Fortunately, unlike crime, or poverty, or gangs or any of the many other problems that can ruin a neighborhood, this problem has a very simple solution. I think I'll go next door and find out Ruth and Earl's last name. And the names of Natalie's kids and ...

Area residents golden at Atlanta's paralympics

By Caroline Jeffs
Staff Writer

The Centennial Olympics may have held their closing ceremonies, but the Olympic action hasn't stopped.

Four Henry Ford Hospital employees will be traveling to Atlanta for the 1996 Paralympic Games, which showcase world-class, physically challenged athletes.

In the Paralympics, scheduled to take place Aug. 15 through Aug. 25, visually impaired, paraplegic, quadriplegic, amputees and athletes with cerebral palsy from 120 countries will participate in 17 medaled sports events.

Serving on the U.S. Paralympic medical team are Henry Ford staffers Henry Goitz, M.D., of St. Clair Shores, orthopedic surgeon; his wife, Lorraine Armstrong, M.D., a pediatrician; Mary Donahue, of Grosse Pointe Park, athletic trainer and physical therapist; and Christine Magnant, of Lyon Township, a physical therapist.

This will be Donahue's third Paralympics. She also volunteered in '88 in Korea and in '92 in Barcelona. In addition, she worked at the World Championships on the off years. She said she has been volunteering to work with the physically handicapped for 15 years.

Donahue will serve with the U.S. mens' and women's swim teams.

"This is an all-around wonderful experience," she said. "Not only do I get to use my skills to help, I get to watch these wonderful and inspiring athletes."

Donahue added that many of the athletes in the Paralympics are only seconds behind Olympic and world records.

Goitz agreed, saying, "These athletes are amazing. I've worked with the Detroit Lions before, but this is a whole other caliber of athlete."

This is Goitz' first year volunteering at the Paralympics. He got involved through talking with Donahue.

Goitz will be working with the U.S. soccer and power lifting competitors.

His wife, Armstrong, will be working at the track and field events.

The volunteers will provide general care, as well as treat injuries that pertain to their specialties.

"This is a really special opportunity," said Goitz. "In this type of experience, you get a lot more out of it than you put in."

Volunteers have to apply for a position. There is then a selection process involving recommendations by co-workers and peers.

The staff and competitors will stay in Olympic Village in Atlanta.

"Everyone seems really excited to get down to Atlanta and the Games," said Donahue.

The Paralympics are endorsed by the U.S. Olympic Committee and the Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games. The Paralympics, which began in 1960, have shared the same host city and facilities as the Olympic Games since 1988.

Driver who killed Regina coach gets the maximum sentence

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

The man who crashed a U-HAUL truck head-on into Christina Comito's car last fall, killing the young woman, was sentenced on July 31 to serve between 15 and 22 years in prison.

Ivory Lynn Herron, 33, of Detroit, was convicted of involuntary manslaughter on July 3 in Wayne County Circuit Court for the Oct. 25, 1995, crash on Vernier near Charlevoix in Grosse Pointe Woods that killed Comito, a 25-year-old St. Clair Shores woman who was on her way to coach a junior varsity basketball game at Regina High School.

Wayne Circuit judge Susan Bieke-Neilson set aside the recommended 10-15-year sentence for involuntary manslaughter and instead, sentenced Herron to 15 to 22 1/2 years — which is the maximum allowable for habitual second-time offenders, said

Augustus Hutting, assistant prosecutor for Wayne county.

"More important, these are calendar years. He will not receive prison credit," Hutting said. "A 10-year sentence ultimately turns into, should he earn two to three years of prison credit, a seven or eight-year sentence. On the 15 to 22 1/2 years, there is no credit. He will serve a minimum of 15 years."

Hutting said Bieke-Neilson also sentenced Herron to 16-24 months for negligent manslaughter and eight to 12 months for driving with a suspended license, with those sentences running concurrently with the 15 to 22 1/2 term.

"We are very pleased and the Comito family is also happy with the sentence," Hutting said. "We would have liked to have seen a murder two (conviction), but we are pleased."

This concludes Herron's second trial in Wayne Circuit Court. He was tried by a jury in March on three charges: negligent homicide, driving with a suspended license and second-degree murder.

The case ended in a mistrial after the jury deadlocked on the second-degree murderer charge. The second trial began on June 24.

Herron was driving a U-HAUL truck east on Vernier on Oct. 17, 1995, when, according to witnesses, he crossed the center line near the intersection of Vernier and Charlevoix and crashed head-on into the GMC Jimmy driven by Comito.

The young woman suffered massive injuries in the crash and was pronounced dead at St. John Hospital; Herron sustained a broken pelvis.

Toxicology tests showed that Herron had phencyclidine, PCP, in his system at the time of the crash. Police also recovered a three-quarters-empty 40-ounce beer container in the truck cab.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Busted

Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers arrested a number of juveniles in connection with the theft of bicycles last week. On July 30, at approximately 2 p.m. Park officers saw four juveniles on three bikes in the area of the 1000 block of Kensington. A short time later, the officers saw the same four youths on four bikes. As officers investigated the addition of the fourth bicycle to the group, the youths took off in different directions.

After a brief search, two youths were found. City of Grosse Pointe police captured the third youth and the fourth was picked up in his home by detectives.

The group had just stolen a boy's BMX bike left in front of Arbor Drugs in the Village. The suspects were turned over to their parents.

Park police also captured two 11-year-olds at about 3:45 p.m. Tuesday, July 30.

The officer saw a youth riding a bicycle as he was receiving a report over the police radio describing two bikes reported stolen from the 1200 block of Bedford. Police pulled him over, and were able to confirm that the youth's bike was the one reported stolen over the radio. Police were also able to locate the second suspect at the corner of Buckingham and Windsor. He told police that he dumped the bike, but when they went to the location given by the suspect, the bike was not there.

Park police arrested a suspect at about 11:40 a.m., Wednesday July 31, and were also able to locate a bike stolen the week before.

The suspect, a 28-year-old Detroit resident, was riding a bicycle that matched the description of a bike reported stolen a week before. The suspect was wanted on a Detroit warrant for car theft, and was on parole.

Police also determined that the suspect was responsible for a series of cellular phone thefts. He is being held in Wayne County jail pending a parole violation hearing.

In the bag

It was a bad week for Neons in the Park last week. Police received reports that two Neons were stolen between 6:30 and 7 p.m. on Wednesday, July 31. One car was taken from the Trombly school parking lot, the other from in front of a home in the 700 block of Barrington. Both cars were found by Detroit police. The cars' air bags were missing and their steering columns damaged.

The third Neon was taken from the driveway of a house in the 800 block of Bedford between 11:30 p.m. Saturday, July 2, and 8 a.m. Sunday, July 3. At press time the car remains missing.

— By Jim Stickford

Gun confiscated

During a routine traffic stop on Lakeshore on Aug. 2, Grosse Pointe Shores police found a .38-caliber snub nose semi-automatic pistol on the floor of the pickup truck a 46-year-old Detroit man was driving.

The man was pulled over around 2 a.m. for driving with a burned-out headlight, a flattened rear tire and for running a red light at Vernier and Lakeshore.

When the man got out of his truck, officers spotted a gun and shoulder holster on the floorboards. Police confiscated the weapon, which contained five live rounds. The man said he carried it for his personal protection but he did not have a valid permit to carry a concealed weapon.

The man was arrested for and charged with carrying a concealed weapon. His truck was impounded. He was arraigned in Eastpointe Municipal Court on Aug. 2 (Grosse Pointe Shores Municipal Judge Lynne Pierce was unavailable). An innocent plea was entered on his behalf and he was released on $2,500 personal bond.

Grosse Pointe South alumni, students part of restoration project

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

When Grosse Pointe High School was built in 1928, it was regarded as the architectural jewel of the Pointes.

Dedication ceremonies held May 28 June 1, 1928, described the various features of the neo-Georgian building designed by architect George each room, ornamental bulletin boards and display cases, the (Pewabic) tiled drinking fountains are features which add to the attractiveness of the corridor.

While the exterior of the building remains a landmark of the Pointes, the school's interior, at 68, is beginning to show its age. Brass fixtures and rail-

Preservation began about seven years ago through fundraising efforts of the Grosse Pointe South High School Mothers' Club historical preservation committee. The first big project — which is now complete — was restoring Cleminson Hall to its original grandeur.

This summer, alumni Jan

Allison Getz, class of '97, have been restoring the 99 plaster cornices or fans over the doorways, along with the four domes in the main hallways of the high school.

"The (fans and domes) were painted, once, when the school was built," said Hulme, who has been contracted by the Mothers' Club to oversee the $20,000 project, funded through private donation.

The cornices over the doorways look like a hand-held fan opened into a semi-circle, accented with a scalloped shell and gold leaf buttons. The domes feature detailed "drapes" "tulips" and "fleurs-de-lis."

The project began with Hulme doing the preparation work — stripping the paint and having a professional plasterer restore fans that were badly damaged. Students did minor plaster repairs.

Next, the areas were scrubbed with a coarse cleanser, and primer was applied. Selecting the colors to restore the painted plaster proved a little difficult, Hulme said. They originally selected the greens, blues and reds found in the Pewabic tiles on the drinking fountain alcoves. Some of the colors had to be muted after a coat was applied because they appeared too intense, she said.

A final coat of polyurethane will be applied as a protective sealant. The project is expected to be completed by Aug. 15.

"When we planned this project we wanted to use students or former students," Hulme said. "We thought it would be fun and more meaningful."

Students agreed. Chouinard admitted that when he was a student at South, he hadn't really noticed the finer architectural features of the building. After spending most of his summer on a ladder with paint brush in hand, he does now, he said.

All agreed it was a good learning experience, both on painting technique (the students even learned how to apply 22-carat gold leaf) and on the history of the building.

"The building itself is a historical gem," said Sandra Lowden, chairman of the committee for historic preservation, a sub-committee of the Mothers' Club. "But with all the physical property deterioration it went through in the 1970s — there was a lot of damage because of the massive amount of students attending at the time and the need for physical space — there needed to be a focus. It was so monumental."

The problem the committee faces is that there never will be enough money in public school funding to set aside for restoration projects.

"Last year we raised almost $25,000 through fundraising," Lowden said. "This shows a grassroots organization that has grown in scope. There is a big interest in the community in preserving this architectural gem."

What's next on the wish list? The Tudor Gothic cafeteria, which needs extensive work on the walnut ceiling beams and panels (which are water damaged), the plaster medallions (which have been painted over), the auditorium walls (which were originally designed in the Roman Doric theme) and the pool area.

"We have put more than 1,000 hours into this," Hulme said. "The fans and domes were in deplorable shape when we started."

School board to OK Haley as new library trustee

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Civic leader James Haley has been recommended by a library sub-committee to fill the Harper Woods seat on the Grosse Pointe Public Library board.

Haley, who was principal of Harper Woods High School for 37 years, a member of the Harper Woods City Council for 26 years, and mayor of the city for 16 years, was one of two applicants for the post.

Under provisions outlined in

the 1994 district library agreement between the Grosse Pointe Public School System, the five Pointe municipalities and Harper Woods, each of the participating municipalities must be represented on the library board. The seventh seat is an at-large position.

The Harper Woods seat became available in June when Steve Matthews, who has been on the library board since 1994, was elected to the Grosse Pointe school board. Matthews, according to library board president John Bruce, could have stayed on both boards, but opted to resign from his library board seat.

The guidelines for selection and nomination of library board members requires a committee of three: the mayor of the city represented, the president of the library board and the departing trustee to nominate a candidate from a field of applicants.

The nomination is then submitted to the school board for final consideration.

The school board on Aug. 5 received Haley's nomination from the library board and is expected to approve it on Monday, Aug. 12.

"Mr. Haley is an excellent candidate for the post of trustee for the Grosse Pointe library board," said interim superintendent Suzanne Klein. "He will bring with him a wealth of experience and a proven record of dedication to both education and his community."

Safety bug

Grosse Pointe resident Alex White, 5, right, helps Detroit Edison safety mascot Louie the Lightning Bug and safety instructor Christine Brownfield show area children the bright yellow tape the utility uses to warn people to keep away from unsafe areas where power lines are down. Staying away from downed power lines and learning how to play it safe around electricity are among the lessons Detroit Edison presented to children at the Grosse Pointe Safety Town June 26.

M-DOT, police test new speed limit

State transportation director Robert Welke and state police director Col. Michael A. Robinson have unveiled the first Lansing-area sign for the speed limit test zones.

The five test areas across the state will increase the maximum speed limit from 65 to 70 mph on 517 miles of interstate. All but 170 highway miles will rise from 55 to 65 mph. The new laws will impact travel in the following areas:

- I-75 from Standish to Sault Ste. Marie
- U.S. 131 from Grand Rapids to Cadillac
- I-96 near Muskegon to Lansing
- I-69 from the Indiana border to Port Huron (except Flint)
- I-94 from Mount Clemens to Port Huron

On Dec. 15, Michigan Department of Transportation officials and Michigan State Police (MSP) will conclude the three-month study to resolve traffic safety and engineering issues. Afterward, they will make a decision whether the 70 mph will be a permanent fixture on Michigan highways.

The news conference also emphasized the need for motorists to observe speed limit zones especially in construction, school zones, and at emergency scenes. Speeding in these areas will result in double fines.

"We all want good roads, so we have to be mindful of the men and women who deliver them," said Welke. "Safety is our primary goal."

MSP will enforce these new laws.

They will be monitoring speed levels in a construction area, emergency scene and school zone.

"Don't wait for a police officer to tell you that you've been speeding. And don't wait for your best friend to die before putting on your safety belt," Robinson said.

A memorial Mass will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Aug. 9 in Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Woods for Woods resident Stephen A. Forish, who died on Monday, July 29, 1996, of congestive heart failure.

Mr. Forish, 76, who was born in Coral, Pa., was a master sergeant in the U.S. Army Air Corp during World War II. After his discharge from the service in 1946, he founded Wolverine Plating with his now deceased partner William Harding. Mr. Forish retired in 1985.

Mr. Forish was a member of the Michigan Association of Metal Finishers, the American Legion, Post No. 372, the Lochmoor Club and the Indian Village Tennis Club.

Mr. Forish is survived by his wife, Jacqueline; a daughter, Sharon Tusa; a son, Richard; three step-daughters, Diane Johnson, Linda Conway and Joanne Conaboy; two granddaughters and four step-granddaughters; and two brothers, the Rev. Andrew Forish and Edward Forish.

He was predeceased by his sister, Catherine.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Heart Association, 16310 West 12 Mile Road, Southfield, Mich., 48076.

Marie L. Beaumont

A funeral service was held in the Chapel of Acacia Park Cemetery in Southfield on Saturday, July 20, for former Grosse Pointe Farms resident Marie L. Beaumont, who died on Tuesday, July 16, 1996.

Mrs. Beaumont, 100, was a lifelong member of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms. She is survived by her son, Donald; two grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the charity of the donor's choice.

Walter Robert Posavetz

A funeral Mass was celebrated on Friday, Aug. 2, in St. Paul Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe resident Walter Robert Posavetz, who died in his home on Tuesday, July 30, 1996.

Mr. Posavetz, 80, was born in Youngstown, Ohio. He is survived by his wife, Zora; a son, David; two sisters, Helen Lazaroff and Katherine Ferrence; and two brothers, George and William.

Interment is at Resurrection Cemetery in Clinton Township. Funeral arrangements were handled by the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods. Memorial donations may be made to the American Heart Association.

Louise Symington Sullivan

A memorial service was held on Tuesday, Aug. 6, in the First Presbyterian Church in Greenwich, Conn., for former Grosse Pointe Farms resident Louise Symington Sullivan, who died in her Greenwich home on Thursday, Aug. 1, 1996.

Mrs. Sullivan, 56, was raised in Grosse Pointe Farms and was a graduate of the Foxcroft School and Bradford College.

An active member of the community, she belonged to the Garden Education Center and the National Audubon Society.

Mrs. Sullivan is survived by her husband, Thomas; her daughter, Laura Smith; her sons, Thomas and Charles; and her brother, Charles Symington Jr. She was predeceased by her brother, Garey T. Symington.

Memorial donations may be made to the Garden Education Center of Greenwich, Bible Street, Cos Cob, Conn., 06807, or to the Audubon Center of Greenwich, 613 Riversville Road, Greenwich, Conn., 06830.

Clayton C. Passage

A funeral service was held on Monday, Aug. 5, in the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park for City of Grosse Pointe resident Clayton C. Passage, who died on Friday, Aug. 2, 1996, in St. John Hospital in Detroit of complications from pneumonia.

Mr. Passage, 88, was born in Detroit and educated at Michigan State College.

He joined the U.S. Army as an enlisted man several months before the attack on Pearl Harbor.

He was commissioned as a second lieutenant when the war broke out, and served all over the Pacific Theater of Operations.

Mr. Passage was awarded the Bronze Star and the Silver Star for valor. At the end of the war, he remained in the Army Reserve, finally retiring in 1968 as a lieutenant colonel and assistant commandant of the 5032nd ARSU at Fort Wayne.

Mr. Passage worked as a sales representative with the Budd Co., and as a consultant for both the Kelsey-Hayes Corp. and Motor Wheel Corp. He was an avid sports fan who enjoyed playing golf.

Mr. Passage is survived by his wife of 50 years, Frances; a daughter, Mary Banka; a son, Michael; and four grandchildren.

Interment is at Resurrection Cemetery in Clinton Township. Memorial donations may be made to the St. Paul Education Trust, 157 Lake Shore Drive, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., 48236.

Dr. Chester "Chet" Bogan

A memorial Mass will be celebrated on Friday, Aug. 9, at Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Woods at 10 a.m. for Woods resident Dr. Chester "Chet" Bogan, who died on Tuesday, July 30, 1996, of cancer.

Dr. Bogan, 74, was a graduate of the University of Detroit Dental School. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II in the dental corps and in special services in music.

Dr. Bogan maintained a dental practice in Grosse Pointe Woods for 35 years before retiring in 1988.

He was known throughout the area for his love of music. He began taking music lessons when he was 11, and gave his first professional performance when he was 14.

His instrument of choice was originally the accordion, but he also played the piano and the trumpet.

Dr. Bogan was the director of the Wolverine Jazz Band for many years.

The band performed Dixieland music every Tuesday from 1974 to 1994 at the Lido restaurant.

Dr. Bogan was a composer as well as a musician. The Rochester Symphony Orchestra played his original composition of the classic Alfred Noyes poem, "The Highwayman," on Nov. 17, 1995, at Oakland University. Originally produced on a Kurzweil synthesizer, the arrangement of the song was later expanded to accommodate a full 70-piece orchestra.

The Wolverine Jazz Band performed at many prestigious festivals from Sacramento, Calif., to the Montreaux Detroit Festival.

Dr. Bogan was a member of several organizations, including the Detroit District Dental Society, the Michigan Dental Association, the Fine Arts Society of Detroit and the Windsor/Detroit Jazz Club.

Dr. Bogan is survived by his wife, Evelyn; a daughter, Nancy Weeks; a son, William; and a brother, Ted.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Association for Retarded Citizens-Grosse Pointe/ Harper Woods, P.O. Box 36130, 18640 Mack Ave., Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., 48236, or to the Arthritis Foundation, Michigan Chapter, 23999 Northwestern Highway, Suite 210, Southfield, Mich., 48075.

Some tips for owners of the older auto

When it comes to purchasing an automobile, sticker shock may prompt some consumers to consider buying used. And that means the family sedan may need a few repairs along the way.

A University of Michigan study predicts the cost of some new cars and trucks will jump 20 percent by the year 2000. Experts say people will continue to keep their cars longer, and data from the American Automobile Manufacturers Association supports this claim. Average age of a passenger car in 1941: 5.5 years; average age of a passenger car in 1994: 8.4 years.

"Especially during the summer driving season, when more people are on the roads and hotter temperatures may demand more of your vehicle, it's important to do some preventive maintenance to make sure the vehicle is in good shape," said AAA Michigan automotive services director Peter Erickson.

AAA Michigan offers these suggestions and encourages motorists to have their technician check the following:

- Alternator — Loose wiring can make your alternator appear defective. Make sure the technician checks for loose connections and performs an output test before replacing it.
• Battery — Corroded or loose battery terminals can make the battery appear dead or defective.
• Starter — What appears to be a defective starter may actually be a dead battery or poor connection.
• Exhaust system — A loud rumbling noise under your vehicle indicates the need for a new muffler or exhaust pipe. Quality replacement parts obviously cost more, but may be worth the additional expense down the road. For this reason, always consider using quality replacement parts. Make sure you understand exactly what the warranty covers, because many exhaust system warranties have exceptions and limitations.
• Tuneup — The old-fashioned "tuneup" may not apply to your vehicle. Fewer parts need to be replaced on newer vehicles other than belts, spark plugs, hoses and filters.

Follow recommendations in your owner's manual. To make sure that your vehicle is ready for the demands of summer driving, AAA Michigan has a brochure called

"Taking the Scare Out of Auto Repair." For a free copy, write to AAA Michigan, Public Relations Department, One Auto Club Drive, Dearborn, MI 48126.

After a century, the automobile is what dreams are made of Life has many landmarks — the first job, getting married, buying a house, the birth of children. Include in this list the first car.

It may have been a junker, barely wheezing along on its last miles, its upholstery frayed, its finish dull and rusted, but it was wheels; and aged and lackluster as it was, it covered the distance — most of the time.

Maybe it was bumpier and less dependable than the current model, but it was cherished and appreciated like no other that came after it. It was abandoned with a sense of disloyalty that one might feel at turning away from an old and cherished friend.

That feeling quickly vanished in the joy of welcoming into the household a brand-new, shiny car, one that had never been owned by anyone else, with no miles on it and never tinkered or tampered with to keep it going.

Buying that car was more than acquiring a possession. It was a sign of affluence, that those in charge of finance considered us good credit risks for four years of monthly payments. At that time the car would be paid for and we would be right back to square one with a junker, but that was in the future and we would have had the pleasure of driving it into the ground ourselves and not inheriting it as a broken-down heap from someone else.

It is this pride of ownership and the willingness to incur a lifetime of debt to trade up from the old to the new that created and supports the automobile industry.

Not only did the automobile affect the economy, it created a mobile society that could live in one community and work in another, wreaking havoc with cities. Roads and freeways were built to make it easy to leave behind the problems of congestion and move out to newer small communities.

Like Topsy, the industry grew without much regard or concept of the changes in the way people would live or the values they would embrace because the automobile had changed the patterns of life.

For the city of Detroit, the automobile was an even more important force. It was the industry on which the city survived, grew and changed.

The automobile factories were the center of industry. Around it, like spokes on the wheel, were businesses that emerged and prospered because of auto production.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

Not only did auto suppliers prosper but every phase of business expanded and grew from an economy supported by those who worked in the auto industry or some business related to it.

In the beginning, the automobile was something of a wonder. Comforts and looks were not the main concern. The fact that the contraptions actually worked was enough.

Even by the turn of the century when more of them began to appear, most thought they were a passing fad. Groups of amused bystanders would jeer, "Get a horse!" if they saw an embarrassed driver struggling with his balky little one-cylinder gas buggy trying to get it started. In those days, anyone who was silly enough to predict that the automobile was a coming thing was regarded as a crackpot, in a class with those who talked someday of going to the moon.

Few material things have been more important than the automobile in shaping our lives. And few material things have become more deeply rooted in our hearts and emotions. We cherish the earlier cars because they recall an era and simple way of life long past. The gleaming creations that appeared from the mid-century to the present day have become symbols of American life.

In 1895 when pioneer American auto builder Frank Duryea entered the first automobile race ever held in this country, a rugged little two-cylinder car that sputtered along on 10 miles an hour beat 11 machines on a run from Chicago to Evanston, Ill., and back, a total of 54 miles.

Frank Duryea and his brother Charles had made even bigger news two years before when they wheezed along the main street of Springfield, Mass., in the first successful gasoline-powered vehicle ever built in America.

In 1896, Henry Ford built a wonder invention called a quadricycle, a buckboard mounted on four bicycle wheels with a two-cylinder horizontal engines bolted to the frame in back of the driver. There was a tiller for a steering wheel, a three-gallon fuel tank under the seat and a bicycle bell to warn the pedestrian. The top speed was 17 mph.

The auto industry from its beginnings has been competitive. New models brought with them advertising slogans designed to hype the product.

In 1905, Buick boasted, "When Better Cars Are Built, Buick Will Build Them." In 1908, the Ford Model T, affectionately known as "Tin Lizzie," was the first car to be built on an assembly line. It was acclaimed as "Ford Put the Nation On Wheels." Later models drew attention with "Watch the Fords Go By."

Packard in 1910, proud of its quality and its affluent customers who could afford to pay $4,200 for a car, suggested, "Ask the Man Who Owns One." In 1919, the Dodge "Old Betsy" was acclaimed "The most dependable car money could buy."

"The Merry Oldsmobile" celebrated in song, built in 1901, sold for $650; a 1905 Buick for $1,200. That's a long way from Cadillac offering the Allante at $50,000.

But like all luxuries, it fulfills a dream, not only for those who have the means to buy it, but also those who day-dream of one day owning one like it.

Cars are objects of which dreams are made. People look forward to automobile shows. They enjoy window-shopping. They look for more than transportation. They want just the right car that suits their personality and lifestyle.

For those who have lived through the early beginnings and changes in the automobile industry, it's been an interesting bit of Americana.

And so it is with pride and a bit of nostalgia we salute the 100th anniversary of the car in Michigan.

Concours d'Elegance put British MG on marquee

It may seem odd that the Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook, in this year of celebration of the centennial of the American automobile industry, should choose a British make as its honored sports marque. In fact, MG is a good choice.

MG has been in the U.S. market for more than half of that century and in some years during its first bluish of popularity after World War II, more MGs were sold in the United States than in Great Britain.

They first started showing up mainly on the East and West coasts in the late '40s, brought back by returning GIs who had become enamored of them while on duty in Great Britain and Europe, strange-looking little relics of the '30s — the early '30s, before streamlining came in.

Although volume was not large compared with the German Volkswagen and the French Renault Dauphine, MGs began to spread through the country and a growing army of sports car enthusiasts began to make itself evident.

The magnificent British Jaguar XK-120 and 150 gave powerful impetus to the popularity of sports cars and this did not go unnoticed by Detroit. Chevrolet introduced the Corvette in 1953. It would later become a high-powered upscale sports car, but it started as an answer to the little British sports cars, particularly the MGs. Ford introduced the Thunderbird in 1955, which later became a personal luxury car, but it started as a two-seater designed to appeal to the buyer who liked the little sports cars from Britain but wanted something clearly American. MG stands for Morris Garages. Morris was W.R. Morris, later Lord Nuffield, who built popular sedans from 1913 until 1952, when Morris was merged with Austin to form British Motors Corp. Morris moved into first place in sales in Great Britain in 1935 with its "bullnose" Oxford models. The firm also built a car called the Crowley (Morris Motors Ltd was located in Crowley, Oxford), somewhat more austere than the Morris.

Morris became fairly well known in the United States during the '50s and '60s with its Morris Minor and the famous Mini, designed by Alec Issigonis and introduced in 1949.

The first MG was built in 1923, the brainchild of Cecil Kimber, an employee of Morris. It was the English equivalent of an American hot rod. The new MGs featured sporty bodies and hot performance and became regulars on the racing scene.

Kimber was not a mechanic or engineer, but was a sales agent who designed the MG to sell more cars to customers interested in a sporty run-about. Kimber's first two-seater sports car was known as Old No. 1.

The first MG brought into the United States was a 1930 M Type Midget, purchased by Henry Ford, who was quite interested in Kimber's efforts to build sports cars. At that time in America, sports cars and runabouts were much larger, imposing machines, like Stutz Bearcats and Mercers. These larger, more rugged machines could travel America's still largely unpaved roads. In England, many roads were paved, although they were narrow and winding — perfect for a small sports car like the MG. During World War II, American soldiers were introduced to the MG by British airmen, who came largely from the upper crust of British society and enjoyed tooling around in their MGs and other small sports cars which were high-society toys.

When the American GIs returned home, some took

MGs with them. Many of the others began clamoring for them after returning. This suited the British government just fine, because it desperately needed American dollars. The government gave favored access to scarce materials to factories that exported, so Morris began to export the MGs to America. In 1945, some 200 MG TCs were built and by 1949 there were 10,000 MGs worldwide, of which 2,000 were in the United States. Of the next line of MGs, the MG TD, 80 percent of output was sold in the United States. For a brief period, MG was the top-selling imported car in the United States. It was soon supplanted by the Volkswagen Beetle as the top-seller, but the MG has continued to hold a place in the American automotive heart.

A number of other European sports cars followed the trail blazed by MG into the United States, included the Jaguar, Triumph, Aston Martin, Porsche and Alfa Romeo.

This beautiful 1937 MG VA Sporting Tickford was featured in the display honoring MG as featured sports marque at this year's Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook.

Record-breaking MG EX 181 made a rare appearance at the Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook Aug. 4. MG was the honored sports marque at this year's event. The ultra-modernistic car set land speed records at Bonneville in 1957 and 1959 which stood for 30 years. It is owned by the British Motor Industry Heritage Trust Museum.

The MG was the poor man's Porsche or Jaguar, but it was less expensive and performed well enough that it was a tough competitor on the track.

Most spectacular of the MGs on display at Meadow Brook was the MG EX 181, an extraterrestrial-looking vehicle which set land speed records at the Bonneville Salt Flats in 1957 and 1959. In 1957, British racing driver Sterling Moss drove the car at 245 mph, which topped the former mark by more than 40 mph.

And it was 50 mph faster than Moss had ever driven a car before.

In 1959, American driver Phil Hill drove the car at 254 mph at Bonneville, a record which stood for 30 years.

But all MGs are distinctive in their styling and they all look like they are fun to drive. A wide assortment of MGs was on display, enough to satisfy the members of a fairly large MG cult in North America (and there are plenty of zealots here in Grosse Pointe).

On display were nine pre-war and eight post-war MGs and 10 MG racing cars. The exhibit included the familiar T series MGs, the TC, TD and TF, in particular. But there were some rarely seen specimens too:

- A 1937 MG-VA Sporting Tickford was brought by owner Gene Wescott from Alaska.

- The beautiful two-seater sports car with Tickford coachwork, is finished in blue and gray.

- A 1932 K3 Magnette, featured in the Meadow Brook Historic Races poster by Dexter Brown, is one of only two 1932 K3 Magnettes in the United States.

- The owner, Gerard Gouen, brought it to Meadow Brook from Walpole, N.H. Only 33 of the cars were ever made and the K3 Magnette was raced by the most famous driver of the '30s, Tazio Nuvolari.

- The 1937 MG SA Charlesworth Tourer is unusual in that it is a four seater. It was shown by Barry Briskman, of Scottsdale, Ariz.

- The futuristic streamlined 1934 MG NA Airline

A car way ahead of its time, it features three windows and a sunroof. It was shown by David D. Lawley, of Stratford, Ontario.

Cruisin' and carillon

Car lovers and music lovers join forces at Christ Church

Cranbrook on Sunday, Aug. 18. Beginning at 4 p.m., on the day after the second annual Cruisin' Woodward, local carillonists Dennis Curry and Grosse Pointe's own Jenny King will mark the centennial of the U.S. auto industry with a one-hour program of new and old favorite tunes on the church's 50-bell carillon — like the ones we've enjoyed on our car radios over the years.

Owners of collector cars are welcome to bring their special vehicles to the church on Lone Pine Road, across from the Cranbrook Gardens. There they can get out to relax on the grassy mall and listen to familiar music from the early years of this century right up to recent classics. Curry, a Ford Motor Co. engineer, and King, an auto writer, will play works originally performed by the great crooners and groups from Sinatra to Sting, from the Big Bopper to the Beatles.

The Aug. 18 concert is part of the eight-program 1996 summer carillon series at Christ Church Cranbrook. Programs begin at 4 p.m. on Sundays, rain or shine, through Aug. 25. There is no admission. The series is sponsored by Music at Christ Church Cranbrook.

MEETING RESISTANCE

If a battery fails regularly, a simple test of the car's electrical wiring may point out the problem. In order for the battery to stay charged, current from the alternator must flow to the battery. If there is a bad connection between the alternator's positive terminal and the battery's positive terminal, the battery can eventually go dead. To see if a bad connection exists, the auto technician will connect a voltmeter to the alternator and the battery's positive terminal. Any voltage reading represents a voltage drop, which is a difference in the voltage provided by the alternator and the remaining charge when it reaches the battery. The negative side must be tested, as well. If high resistance is indicated in either test, the connections must either be cleaned or repaired. Otherwise, the battery may continue to go dead, the car may continue to experience hard starting, or there may be other electrical system problems.

If you are experiencing electrical problems, bring your car in for an accurate diagnosis and quick repair. At RINKE TOYOTA, our goal is to be the benchmark for excellence in every aspect of our business. Look for our super price specials. Stop in at our convenient location at 25420 Van Dyke. Hours: Mon. & Thurs. 7:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m., Tues. & Wed. 7:00 - 7:00, Fri. 7:00 - 6:00, closed Sat. and Sun. When you need our assistance, we're just a phone call away. Phone: 758-2000. Courteous, efficient service is what you'll find with us.

HINT: If testing an alternator with an ammeter which measures current flow in amps indicates that an alternator is producing current below specifications at a certain engine rpm, it must be replaced.

Metro East Chamber of Commerce

CHAMBER CHAT

"Working Together for a Better Tomorrow"

Fraser, the 5 Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods, Roseville, St. Clair Shores

August will be a busy month for the Metro East Chamber of Commerce. We hope members will be able to attend at least one of the functions and share some quality time with each other and maybe get to know one another better.

On Tuesday, Aug. 13, the economic development committee will meet with about 15 chamber members identified as manufacturers for a "listening session." The purpose of this session is to learn what we can do to help you be more successful in your business. At a later date several other groups will be notified and asked to participate.

If you'd like to know more about our listening sessions or would like to be included in one, please call the office at (810) 777-2741.

Thursday evening, Aug. 15, will find chamber members riding along the Nautical Mile in the unique trolley provided, enjoying beautiful Lake St. Clair and all the fun businesses and restaurants along the way. And don't forget there will be a "mystery sailor" aboard and if you give him your business card you'll be eligible for a very special nautical prize.

Legislative update

TJTC returns — At the end of 1994, the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit (TJTC) was phased out. As part of the package of bills addressing small business tax relief, this year Congress is proposing the re-establishment of TJTC, under a new name, Work Opportunity Credit. As with TJTC, this new program offers businesses tax credits for hiring economically disadvantaged workers.

Optional tax withholding for unemployment insurance claimants — Beginning in 1997, all states must give claimants the option to have taxes withheld from their unemployment checks as a matter of conformity with federal law. Because unemployment insurance benefits have been fully taxable for several years, this change allows claimants to avoid an unexpected income tax liability at the end of the year.

Appropriations update — Congress is discussing the funding levels for the Employment Security (ES) program for fiscal year 1997. In keeping with Congressional desires to reduce federal spending, reductions in some program line items have been proposed.

Meeting dates to remember

• New Dimension in Living, Tuesday, Aug. 13, at 8:30 a.m. at the Assumption Cultural Center.

• Economic Development Committee Listening Sessions, 8 a.m. at the chamber office.

• Golf Committee Meeting, Thursday, Aug. 15, at 7:30 a.m. in the chamber office.

• Anniversary Committee, Wednesday, Aug. 14, at 5 p.m. at St. Clair Shores City Hall.

• Board of directors meeting, Wednesday, Aug. 14, at 5:30 p.m. at St. Clair Shores City Hall.

Market score: Bulls 1, Bears 0 — 3rd inning

By Joseph Mengden

Where were you in July? Give credit to Alan Abelson, feature writer for Barron's (Aug. 5, 1996), who wrote about the vacationing investor.

The Dow Jones Industrials (DJI) were about 5,700 when the investor left on vacation. Returning this past weekend, he checks the financial pages and finds the DJI closed last Friday at 5660.

But wait. The paper also notes the DJI was up 210 points last week. And bonds were up again in tandem, the biggest four-day bond rally since "Black Monday" in October 1987.

They say: "All's well that ends well." But this time it may not be quite so. The DJI is an index of only 30 industrial stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE). The New York Times (Aug. 4, 1996) reported that the DJI peaked at 5,778 on May 22, fell 7.5 percent (mostly in July) and has since recovered to only minus 1.7 percent from that earlier peak.

The Standard & Poors 500 Index (S&P 500) contains 500 large capitalization stocks based on NYSE. It peaked at 678 on May 24, fell 7.6 percent, then rebounded to 2.4 percent below its peak.

The NASDAQ index of smaller companies topped out at 1,249 on June 5, crashed 16.6 percent and now stands at 9.9 percent off its peak.

This is a statistical way of saying that your personal portfolio is very likely to be down, marketwise, more than the DJI.

The hardest hit were the "tech" stocks. Many investors

Mengden

Let's talk...STOCKS

returning from vacation were surprised to read quotes on their tech stocks, which indicated the stocks had split 2-for-1 in their absence. The selling pressure was so great on some stocks that they dropped more than one half, pricewise.

On a chart of closing prices, the DJI looks like a "W" with two twin bottoms around the 5,350 level.

With the DJI back in the 5,600-5,700 level, many stock market analysts are feeling much better. They were impressed by the $620 million of U.S. stock mutual funds purchased during last week, more evidence that retail (individual) investors didn't panic when the market crashed earlier last month.

In LTS' first article, dated June 6, 1996, we said: "From the investment point of view, every crisis creates opportunity."

But the opportunity is available only to those investors at that time, who have both available cash (or buying power) and a very generous amount of intestinal fortitude."

Did you invest any of your cash reserves during the past six weeks?

Bonds up, yields down
Both stocks and bonds had a remarkable rally during last week. The bellwether 30-year U.S. Treasury Bond surged nearly 4 points (that's $40 per $1,000 bond) causing its yield to drop 37 basis points (one basis point is 1/100th of 1 percent, and 100 basis points equal 1 point, pricewise) to close at 6.73 percent last Friday.

Looking back four weeks, that same long bond then yielded 7.18 percent, when fears of Fed tightening ran high. LTS predicts that if these rates hold at current levels, look for single-family mortgage rates to decline, which should jump-start residential housing again.

Let's talk "laddering" an individual's portfolio of bonds, so that repayment of the bond principal (face value) will occur periodically, rather than all at once. "Serial bonds" are one of a series of periodic repayments, while "term bonds" are those with a single balloon repayment. The "maturity date" is the day of the principal repayment. "Coupon" is the annual interest rate which is paid semi-annually to the investor (one half every six months).

Unless the investor has a specific need for cash on or about the maturity date, it is recommended not to have the entire portfolio, or a very large portion thereof, mature all at once, because interest rates may have moved to abnormally low levels.

On the other hand, if the entire portfolio were invested in only long-term maturities, and an unforeseen event occurred (death, perhaps) which required the liquidation (sale) of all or part of the portfolio, and if interest rates had increased significantly, the bonds would be sold at a considerable loss.

High quality, investment-grade bonds are readily available with maturities ranging from one to 30 years.

In most money market environments, bond yields increase as the time to maturity increases due to two factors: (1) inflation affects the purchasing power of the cash proceeds at maturity and the coupon rate cannot be changed to reflect changes in inflation since the issuance of the bonds; and (2) for all non-U.S. Treasury securities, the credit risk tends to increase due to the uncertainties of time.

Since the longer bond maturities pay the highest yield, shouldn't value-oriented investors reach for the most income? On the other hand, LTS knows some investors who have "rolled-over" one-year bonds for half a lifetime, taking the lowest income, and all-the-while considering themselves prudent investors.

So what is the best maturity for you? For individual investors, LTS recommends looking up your life expectancy (See LTS, 7-18-96).

If you are approaching retirement age, say: age 60, the male life expectancy is average age 78.2 (the year 2014); the female is 81.7 years (2018).

Statistically, it seems conservative to ladder their portfolios with maturities between 2010 and 2020.

Do not create "odd lots" (blocks less than $25,000 face value) just to be mathematical-ly precise.

For shorter term portfolios with maturities of 1-to-5 years, or intermediate term portfolios of 5-to-10 years, make note that as the earlier maturities are cashed in, the proceeds should be rolled over (reinvested) into new maturities one or two years beyond their prior longest maturity because your life expectancy will have increased, too.

In a future LTS article, we will discuss the tax benefits of municipal (tax-free) bonds vs. corporate bonds for individuals.

In today's throw-away society, one man's trash is another's treasure

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

How often have you heard ... "My mother threw out my collection of baseball cards/Barbie dolls/comic books. If only I kept those things I collected in childhood, I could retire now."

When it comes to collecting, there's a market for everything. Dr. Dan Guyer, a psychiatrist at Cottage Hospital, said that people collect things — whether it's stamps, coins or soap opera magazines — for a variety of reasons.

"In a sense, collecting allows people to focus on their childhood," Guyer said. "Kids go through a natural phase, usually between the ages of 8 and 10, when they collect things. Whether it's baseball cards or matchbox cars, it is a way of interacting with the world, a way of learning about the world. Adults may collect things to capture that feeling."

But that's not the only reason people collect things, Guyer said. He knows people who collect cars so that they can fix them up. A collection can be an extension of the collector. Art collectors collect art for themselves, but also for others. It's something they can share.

There is also the thrill of the hunt, Guyer said. The desire to complete a collection can be half the fun of collecting something. By completing a collection people can get a sense of accomplishment. Once they complete one collection, they move on to the next chase.

For some, collecting can be tied to self-esteem. By having things, people feel better about themselves.

For the most part, however, Guyer said collecting is just a leisure activity for people.

Harper Woods resident Paul Murray, who works for the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Agency, collects, among other things, miniature liquor bottles.

"I specialize in whisky bottles," said Murray. "I got started when my brother-in-law gave me a couple of bottles dating back to the 1950s. They were filled. I got interested in the hobby, and learned that people who collect bottles like them intact, because they are better looking, and because it's easier to see the tax-stamp."

Murray has between 1,500 and 2,000 miniature liquor bottles. He knows of a man in St. Joseph that has a collection of 20,000 bottles.

"Back after the end of Prohibition, anyone could sell whisky, which was the drink of choice," Murray said. "I could purchase some barrels from a distiller and sell the product under my own label. That was very common in the 1930s and 1940s, making that time the golden era of miniature whisky bottles. There are a lot of bottles for a collector like me to get."

Murray subscribes to Mini-Bottle Collectors magazine and edits his club's newsletter. He said he definitely subscribes to the thrill-of-the-hunt theory of collecting. When he finds something that he doesn't see

How to handle food when the power is off

Macomb MSU Extension

Recent weather conditions in the metropolitan Detroit area resulted in a power outage for 60,000 customers. In some cases, electricity was off for many hours, even days.

When handling dry ice, precautionary measures should be taken. Gloves should be worn and tongs used when handling the ice. Wrap ice in brown paper for longer storage and separate it from direct contact with food, using a piece of cardboard. Fill a partly filled freezer with crumpled newspaper to cut down on air currents, which cause dry ice to dissipate.

If no dry ice is available, precautionary measures should be taken.

The following are foods which will be safe if kept at room temperature for a few days: fresh fruits and vegetables; dried fruits and coconuts; open jars of condiments such as catsup, mustard, peanut butter, jelly and taco sauce; hard or processed cheese; fruit juice; fresh herbs and spices; and breads, rolls and muffins.

The following foods should be discarded if kept above 40 degrees for longer than two hours: raw or cooked meat, poultry or seafood; soft cheeses; dairy products; soups, stews and leftovers; creme-filled pastries and custard; mayonnaise and tartar sauce; and lunch meat.

Foods that contain ice crystals throughout and are cold to the touch (below 40 degrees) can be refrozen. Items that have thawed and are not cold to the touch (40 degrees or lower) should be thrown out.

When in doubt, throw it out.

Macomb County MSU Extension has bulletins available on handling food safely in emergency situations. Call the food hotline if you would like to talk to a home economist regarding food issues on Monday, Wednesday and Friday between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. at (810) 469-6432.

Does link exist between diet and arthritis?

Researchers continue to pursue evidence that a link between diet and arthritis exists, but more study is needed to confirm the idea that regulating certain foods can help ease arthritis symptoms.

According to an article in the current issue of Arthritis Today, the Arthritis Foundation's national consumer magazine, some research shows evidence that certain foods or supplements, such as omega 3 fatty acids and gamma linolenic acid, can reduce the number of tender joints and sometimes also reduce morning stiffness. "We're not talking about major remission-inducing effects," said Dr. Joel Kremer, a rheumatologist from Albany Medical College in New York. "But, for people who deal with daily pain and stiffness, even modest benefits are welcome."

Studies have shown that when omega 3 fatty acids, found primarily in cold-water fish, are given to people affected by rheumatoid arthritis, pain and stiffness are reduced. The effective dose, according to Kremer, is between three and five grams of the acids daily, and it is possible to get this amount by making fish an important part of your diet. It takes 12 to 16 weeks of omega 3 therapy before benefits begin.

"There are more than 100 types of arthritis, so no one diet or treatment will help every form of the disease, but some research does point to the possible connection between diet and the inflammatory response in joints," said John Tower, D.O., chairman of the Southeast Michigan Regional Advisory Board.

Though some research has shown that food may have some influence on arthritis, Tower warns, "Even though some dietary changes seem to help the symptoms of arthritis, people should only start a diet that is approved and supervised by their doctor or nutritionist to avoid endangering their health and making their arthritis worse."

A recent study in the British Journal of Nutrition and a 1991 study published in The Lancet showed that a vegetarian diet lessens symptoms of rheumatoid arthritis in some people. Donna Wiehofen, a clinical nutritionist at the University of Wisconsin Hospital who counsels arthritis patients with their diets, says the benefits may come from the fact that people are eating more of certain foods or it may come from not eating some others, such as red meats.

To help you make healthy choices, the Arthritis Foundation recommends the following diet guidelines:

Eat as suggested in the basic USDA food pyramid: eat 1 to 1/2 grams of protein per kilogram of body weight (to make up for the protein lost in the inflammatory process) if you have rheumatoid arthritis; take extra folic acid to help ease or prevent some of the side effects of methotrexate (one of the stronger medications used to treat arthritis); and consult your doctor before starting any diet.

For a free booklet providing more information about arthritis, contact the Michigan Chapter at (800) 968-3030. The Arthritis Foundation supports research to find ways to cure and prevent arthritis diseases and seeks to improve the quality of life for those affected by arthritis.

Exercise program is for people with breathing difficulties

A program of exercises and education designed for adults who are increasingly limited in their activities because of breathing problems from emphysema, chronic bronchitis, asthma and other lung diseases is offered through the St. John Pulmonary Rehabilitation Center.

The class will begin on Thursday, Aug. 22, and meet for two hours, three times a week for six weeks. Participants must be referred by their doctors and charges are usually covered by insurance.

A maintenance program will be available upon completion of pulmonary rehabilitation. Participants are encouraged to use equipment during specified non-class hours.

For more information, call (313) 343-8308.

Researchers believe low-calorie diets are key to prevention of cancer

Ever since weight-loss "dieting" became popular in the 1960s, cutting calories has been the key to shedding unwanted pounds. But when studies during the 1980s found that saturated fat in Americans' diets was one of the main causes of heart disease as well as weight gain, fat became the new villain in our food.

Since then, hundreds of reduced fat food products have gone on the market, and millions of Americans have seen them as the answer to eating for better health.

Statistics, however, show that obesity in this country is increasing, with one-third of all Americans — about 67 million people — at least 20 percent overweight.

Where did we go wrong? Research scientists at a recent symposium of the American Institute for Cancer Research stated that the importance of calories in controlling weight and reducing cancer risk has been forgotten — a trend that is endangering our health as much as high-fat eating.

According to cancer researcher David Kritchevsky, Ph.D., of the Wistar Institute in Philadelphia:

"In the United States, cholesterol counts seem to have fallen, while the incidence of obesity has gone up. This may be because we have done such a good job of selling the idea that fat and calories are the same thing, that the public will eat a box of fat-free cookies thinking that there's no fat, so it's OK. The problem is, the other ingredients used in those cookies might give them the same number of calories as if fat had been used."

Calories and the rate at which we burn them through exercise have been found to play a vital role in our risk for colon, prostate, and breast cancer development, according to several studies conducted with both women and men in the past decade.

"We now have data on well over a million people that shows that the more overweight you are, the higher the number of cancers for which you become at risk," Kritchevsky noted. "If you are a male the risk of prostate cancer is increased if you're 10 percent overweight, and if you're 30 or 40 percent overweight you're at greater risk for colon cancer."

Researchers believe from this and other evidence that restricting the number of calories we eat as well as burning them off through regular exercise is at least as important as cutting back on fat.

Kritchevsky cited one experiment with skin cancer where mice got more tumors from a diet that was high only in calories and not in fat, than from another diet that was high in fat. He added that in studies where rats were given treadmill exercise, their incidence of tumors was as much as 25 percent lower than among rats that did not exercise.

Kritchevsky said that it's easier to reduce calories by not taking them in rather than trying to work them off.

"We eat too much. For example, the portions we now get at restaurants are huge. Populations that eat too much have high rates of cancer. Finnish lumberjacks are known to eat about 7,000 calories a day, but since they're chopping wood at 40 below zero degrees, they're also burning 7,000 calories a day.

"Most of us are trying to make life less strenuous, like driving instead of walking, taking elevators instead of the stairs. We don't burn the same amount of calories we eat."

AICR researcher T. Colin Campbell, Ph.D., chaired professor of nutritional biochemistry at Cornell University and director of the Cornell-Oxford-China Diet and Health Project, added, "In China, calorie consumption is about 30 percent higher than it is here, but those calories come from a diet that is much higher in plant foods, especially vegetables. The Chinese are much thinner than Americans not only because of their diets, but because they exercise more than we do, because they ride to work on bicycles and have exercise regimens in schools and workplaces."

The American Institute for Cancer Research advises eating a diet that is rich in low-calorie, low-fat and high-fiber vegetables, fruits and whole grains. The institute also recommends eating meat in moderation (no more than four ounces per meal) and drinking alcohol in moderation, if at all.

SOME OF THE BEST FRIENDS A MOTHER-TO-BE COULD ASK FOR

When you're expecting a new addition to the family, your relationship with a medical professional is more important than ever. The Henry Ford Medical Group Obstetrician/Gynecologists and Certified Nurse Midwives on the East Side provide individualized care during your pregnancy, from prenatal exams and education to the delivery itself and follow-up care.

You can choose the Board Certified Obstetrician/Gynecologist or the Certified Nurse Midwife that best meets your needs and desires with the added confidence of knowing that the entire team is working together for you and your new baby.

"My patients depend on me to help them make the best choices for their delivery. I want all mothers to have a wonderful experience, but each in their own individual way."

Shari L. Maxwell, MD, FACOG

Dr. Maxwell received her post doctoral training in Obstetrics & Gynecology at Henry Ford Hospital and is particularly interested and skilled in gynecologic surgery.

"It's important to take into account all aspects of a woman's health during pregnancy and childbirth. A healthy lifestyle, including exercise and a well-balanced diet, are good indicators for a healthy pregnancy."

Scott B. Ransom, DO, FACOG

Dr. Ransom is Division Head/Medical Director for Obstetrics & Gynecology for the Henry Ford Health System Eastern Region and also has a strong background in advanced pelvic surgery.

"Sometimes the most comforting part of childbirth is simply knowing what is happening and why. I encourage my patients to ask questions and to attend a Childbirth Preparation class during their pregnancy."

Islam H. Sidky, MD, FACOG

Dr. Sidky also is specially trained in microsurgery.

"I believe that the role of today's Certified Nurse Midwife is to ensure that every patient's experience with health care is safe, satisfying and family centered."

Catherine Collins-Fulea, MSN, CNM

Catherine Collins-Fulea is director of Nurse Midwifery Services for Henry Ford Health System. Midwives provide patient care for healthy women from puberty through menopause, with special emphasis on pregnancy, childbirth and family planning.

For your convenience, these Physicians, as well as the Nurse Midwifery group, see patients at both the Grosse Pointe Farms and the Roseville Medical Center and are associated with Henry Ford Cottage Hospital and its Family Childbirth Center.

Travel books can help plan trips, find good deals

Over the past several months, a tantalizing pile of books has grown next to my computer.

These are the ones I really think might be of use to you. All are available in paperback and can be ordered through a bookstore or on your own.

"Unbelievably Good Deals and Great Adventures That You Absolutely Can't Get Unless You're Over 50" by Joan Rattner Heilman.

You have to admit the title is catchy, and we all know that 50 is coming a lot sooner than we thought, eh?

While this book is geared for the mature traveler, it surely takes a bright and lively view of the travel experience and that I surely appreciate. Heilman obviously knows her topic. After all, this is the eighth edition of a book first published in 1988. The fact that it has been reprinted so many times indicates that it was a tremendous success and also means that she has had plenty of time to research and update the information.

"People over 50 are the most ardent travelers of all," she begins. "They travel farther, more often, more extravagantly and for longer periods of time than anybody else."

She explains how the travel industry has learned to pursue the senior business — after all, this group has more discretionary income than people of other ages and is by far the most flexible.

What I particularly like about this book is that it provides lots of nitty-gritty information. For example: how to be sure that you get the senior discounts coming to you; how to travel single (or how to find a companion); and how to sign up for MedicAlert, an organization that could save your life if you have an accident or get sick while you are far from home (800) 432-5378.

The book also points you toward all kinds of adventures, including walking, cycling, rafting, tennis or golf vacations. In the chapter "Good Deals for Good Sports," Heilman comes up with some really offbeat active vacations, like a hiking/canoeing trip to the Canadian Rockies, motorcycling with Retread (who must have reached the ripe old age of 40), a fishing trip to Scotland or kayaking in New Zealand.

If you are interested in participating in the Senior Olympics, this book tells you how to do it. It even tells you about pro bono programs like Volunteers in Technical Assistance, where you're not paid, but are reimbursed for travel and living expenses. (Contemporary Books, Chicago, IL; 1996, Eighth Edition, 284 pp., $9.95).

"The Eccentric Traveler: A World of Curious Adventures" by Betsa Marsh.

It's fun to read a book when you know the author. Betsa, who lives in Cincinnati, has been a personal friend and fellow travel writer for a long time now. And while I did not share any of these adventures with her (we did do some great shopping together in the Otavalo Market in Ecuador, but that will have to wait for another book), I can certainly imagine her doing them.

Fortunately, she is such a vivid writer that you will enjoy her exploits as well. Betsa's adventures take her from a castle in a cornfield in Ohio to a woman-powered ferry in Tai O village, near Hong Kong. From Edgar Allan Poe's Baltimore to llama-trekking in North Carolina. She's fished for pike perch in the Aland Islands off the coast of Sweden and sniffed out the best chocolate truffles in Switzerland.

Of course, we'd all like to live Betsa's life. Well, . . . maybe. (Take it from one who travels almost as much as Betsa does,

Travel Trends

By Cynthia Boal Janssens

it gets strenuous at times.) But reading about it is great, especially because Betsa includes pictures of her adventures and keeps the stories short and simple.

This is the kind of book you like to keep at your bedside because it is quick to peruse but leaves you cheered for the experience. Plus, Betsa self-published this book, a feat in itself, and I surely want to support the effort. You won't be disappointed. (Eccentric Press, Cincinnati, Ohio; 1995, 128 pp., $14.95; to order, send $17.75 (includes shipping) to Eccentric Press, P.O. Box 53841, Cincinnati, Ohio 45253).

"Still Cruising: A Family Travels the World" by Liza Copeland.

And you thought that sailing with your family through the North Channel for a couple of weeks was exciting? The Copeland family spent six years on the 38-foot Bagheera sailing around the world. They have quite a story to tell.

In fact, this is Liza Copeland's second book, a sequel to "Just Cruising." This book tells of the family's adventures from Australia to Asia, Africa and America. Not surprisingly, the trip was supposed to be for two years, but they just kept going, adding side trips all along the way — certainly a great way to educate their three young sons.

Those of you who enjoy sailing and reading about real-life family adventures will enjoy both of these books. Incidentally, both carry an appendix filled with practical tips for ocean cruising, including this sage note: "It is far harder work than expected." (Romany Publishing, Vancouver, BC; 1995, 288 pages; to order, send $19.95 plus $4 shipping to Romany Enterprises, 3943 West Broadway, Vancouver, BC, V6R 2C2; phone (604) 228-8712.)

"Take Your Pet USA: A Guide of Accommodations for Pets and their Owners" by Arthur Frank.

This book is a handy-sized directory for those folks who are really serious about taking Bowser or Kitty-poo along on their trips. This is a sixth printing and it contains more than 4,000 listings of hotels, motels and bed-and-breakfasts across the country that welcome pets.

There are also tips on airline travel, choosing the right travel crate for your pet, hotel etiquette, loss prevention and veterinary information. Frankly, the tips are few; this is basically a book of listings, but it certainly will help if you are taking a pet with you on the road.

The new edition retails for $11.95 and is available by mail (add $2.50 for shipping) from Artoo Offset, Inc., 12 Channel St., Boston, Mass., 02210 or by calling (800) 255-8038.

WSU Faculty Jazz Quintet to perform on the Plaza

The Wayne State University Faculty Jazz Quintet will perform at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 8, at the Meade Group Music on the Plaza concert series in the Village.

New Arrivals of 1996

Grosse Pointe News and The Connection newspapers are planning their 2nd annual special edition featuring the babies of the past year. We hope you (and the little one) will participate by supplying us with a photograph of your child (only 1996 babies, please) for publication in this section.

This tabloid will be published in January, 1997. Your child's picture, along with other 1996 area babies, will be the main attraction! News and advertising about clothing, feeding, educating and caring for your child will also be included. It will be very informative as well as a commemorative edition for you!

Please send a cute, clear photo (color or black & white, home or studio produced, preferably smaller than a 5x7) to Grosse Pointe News & The Connection, 96 Kercheval Grosse Pointe Farms Michigan 48236. Attention: Kim Kozlowski, Display Advertising. Complete the information slip with your child's full name, date of birth and hospital and return it with your photo. Please print your name on the back of the photo so you can pick it up at our office after printing.

Your picture must be received in our office no later than Monday December 23rd, earlier would assist our production schedule. (Late November and December birth photos may be submitted until January 6, 1997.)

We look forward to producing our annual "Baby Edition" and are sure you want your little one included. A limited number of extra copies will be available for purchase to give to family and friends.

The Grosse Pointe News & The Connection requires a $10.00 fee to cover production costs. Please use a check, money order or credit card number with your photo.

'Alice Through the Looking Glass' is looking good at Stratford

The incongruities and fanciful characters that Lewis Carroll invented for Alice's discovery on the other side of the looking glass have fired many an imagination, young and old.

Given substance on stage at Stratford this summer, they also revive long-forgotten memories of growing up, thanks to the artful stage adaptation by Canadian poet-playwright James Reaney. The play distills the adventure into a reprise of the classic tale in a way that allows Alice to Special credit for the extraordinary impact of this show goes to set and costume designers Stephen Britton Osler and John Pennoyer and the masterful executions by the craftsmen and women of Stratford's costume, prop and scenery shops. The lavish Victorian characters and landscapes that Alice encounters in her moves across the chessboard have a surrealism worthy of Salvador Dali.

As she first enters the garden behind the mirror, Alice's wish that the flowers could talk is fulfilled by preposterously gorgeous tiger lilies and daisies as temperamental and rude as some people. The red and white kings, queens and knights are opulent, exaggerated figures glowing with irrational contradiction.

The train ride across "square three" is like a disturbing dream of a misadventure on the Orient Express. Then, childhood's penchant for fear of the unknown is vividly represented by extraterrestrial figures with hotly glowing eyes in the wood of namelessness.

There is plenty of humor, often wistful, as well. Tweedledum and Tweedledee, delightfully impersonated by Bernard Hopkins and Keith Dinicol, are a perfect fulfillment of the classic illustration. They proceed to emcee an enactment of the Walrus and the Carpenter who befriend (then make supper of) oysters on the beach. The processional dance of the bivalves in their shell-like tutus is both ludicrous and touching as they submit to fate on the plate.

The most arresting image is the notorious Jabberwock who "with eyes of flame came whiffling through the tulgey wood, and burbled as it came."

The young hero with his serpentine sword, in beheading the fearsome beast, provides a climactic embodiment of the slaying of childhood fears.

The experience is matched by Douglas Rain's jocular and over-confident Humpty Dumpty. He translates for Alice some of the poem's obscure vocabulary, before he, too, suffers his fate to the frustration of All the King's Horses and Men.

The show, in fact, is crammed with wonderful tableaux from the book and gems of the contradictory wit that stud the text.

Especially memorable is Barbara Bryne's White Queen informing Alice: "The rule is jam tomorrow and jam yesterday, but never jam today."

As a central reality to all this fantasy, 12-year-old Ashley Taylor's Alice is the picture of a bright, resourceful young girl engrossed in the process of dealing with the mysteries and frequent contradictions of adult behavior as she grows up. Her delivery is so clear and highly effective and her songs are sung with such charm of childlike wisdom that it is easy for young and old to identify with and share her colorful experience.

"Alice Through the Looking Glass" is presented in repertory at the Avon Theatre through Nov. 2. For tickets, accommodations and information about other Stratford amenities, call (800) 567-1600.

Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra lights up the night, in spite of weather

By Johanna Gilbert
Special Writer

Although no fuses were lit, the Grosse Pointe Symphony illuminated the night July 8 with the opening of the Summer Music Series at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Although inclement weather prevented an outdoor performance, the Fries auditorium was resplendent with the sounds of Offenbach, Holst, Strauss, Duke Ellington, Weber and Sousa.

Maestro Felix Resnick's varied program appealed to many tastes and showcased the talents of several symphony members.

Steve Kegler's "hot" drums in the Ellington and Weber selections were rhythmically exciting and the buzz roll was executed with flair. Rob Esler on the timpani is a young man to be noticed. Paul Miller's trumpet is sweet, the sound lofting over the orchestra, defining the moment.

Stephen King made a surprise appearance, performing the trombone solo in "The Blue Bells of Scotland." The trombone part is a series of treacherous variations which were beautifully executed. King was a Nester Scholarship winner in 1988, went on to the Conservatory, performs as a free lance musician in New York, played in the Spoleto Festivals in South Carolina and Italy and while home for the holiday, performed with the Grosse Pointe Symphony. His mother, Jenny King, writer and carillonist and his grandmother, Alice Lungershausen, former DSO pianist and harpsichordist, were proudly beaming in the audience.

Perhaps an introduction of the local orchestra members would surprise you with neighbors, teachers and friends making up a large part of the group.

Among the Grosse Pointers who play in the symphony are: Paul Miller, Laurie Miller Strachen, Nancy Sultzman Sutton, Rob Esler, Mike Weyhing, Loraine Primeau, Don Littlefield, Diane Littlefield, Steve Kegler, Jamie Dabrowski, Maryann Strocki, Lynn Brosnan, Betty Peterson, Therse Edelstein, Ray and Lydia Demeulemeester and Pamela Francis.

Mark Weber, director of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, and John Danaher of Cottage Hospital teamed up to create a sponsored program and under the banner of Henry Ford/Cottage Hospital Health Care, selected as its program choice the Grosse Pointe Symphony.

If you play an instrument and would like to audition for the symphony, call Pam Francis at (313) 881-5463. Or, if season tickets are your preference, call Lawrence LaGore, Grosse Pointe Symphony board president, at (313) 885-0744.

Angioplasty, bypass surgery ease pain of heart disease

Balloon angioplasty and bypass surgery have remarkably similar abilities to make people with chest pain feel better.

That's the verdict of a unique assessment by experts who should know, patients who have received one or the other of the popular heart disease treatments. British scientists report results of the comparison in this month's issue of the American Heart Association's journal, "Circulation."

"We found little difference between the two alternative treatment strategies, as judged by the two outcomes of return to work and perceived health status," the researchers write. Their new study is the first randomized trial to focus on the patient's perspective, and it shows, through quality of life measures, just how much better the patients themselves feel, the primary author of the report said.

"In a very sick bunch of patients with severe angina (chest pain due to coronary disease), we found that the great majority ended up angina-free over the next three years after treatment," said Stuart J. Pocock, Ph.D., professor of medical statistics at London (UK) University.

Pocock and his colleagues analyzed data collected over a three-year period from 1,011 angina patients randomly assigned to undergo balloon angioplasty (called percutaneous transluminal coronary angioplasty, or PTCA) or coronary artery bypass graft (CABG) surgery. Hundreds of thousands of people with coronary artery disease undergo these procedures each year, and some require them more than once.

Coronary artery disease affects the blood vessels that surround the heart and supply blood to the heart muscle. The vessels can become narrowed when plaque (a combination of cholesterol and other fats, calcium, and other elements in the blood) builds up on the inside of the vessel walls. Narrowed vessels set the stage for heart attacks or strokes.

PTCA is a non-surgical procedure designed to dilate narrowed coronary arteries. By inserting a catheter into the diseased vessels and then inflating a balloon on its tip, the physician may be able to compress the plaque and open up the choked parts of the vessels. In contrast, CABG involves grafting a substitute channel, usually a section of leg vein, to detour blood around the narrowed or blocked portions.

The 316 men and 195 women are participants in a British study called the Randomized Intervention Treatment of Angina (RITA) trial. They are mostly ages 40-69. The patients were questioned about their health three times — before treatment with PTCA or CABG surgery, six months after treatment and two years after ending the study.

The questionnaires covered quality of life dimensions such as energy and pain levels, emotional reactions, sleep, social isolation and physical mobility. Researchers also asked each patient: "Is your present state of health causing problems with your job, social life, sex life, hobbies, housework, home life and vacations?"

The patients' responses made clear their perceptions of pain relief were paramount. "If you clear up the angina, every single aspect of life is improved," Pocock observes.

At least during the first three years after treatment, angina is avoided more successfully with CABG, conclude Pocock and his colleagues, who will check to determine whether CABG maintains that advantage five and 10 years after treatment.

"But PTCA offers a speedier return to work," the researchers note. That's because PTCA, which involves only insertion of a small thin balloon-tipped plastic tube, or catheter, through a small incision in the leg, is less traumatic than the open-heart surgery involved in CABG.

But after six months, CABG patients "have been just as effective at returning to work" as the PTCA patients, Pocock points out.

Both procedures work. "The impact of angina on quality of life and unemployment is greatly alleviated by PTCA or CABG," the scientists write, in the AMA journal.

However, some patients have arterial plaques located in segments of vessels where PTCA might not work, such as a tight curve, explains Pocock. The results of their study suggests physicians and patients can choose PTCA or CABG, based on the individual's specific needs and coronary anatomy, say British investigators, who write:

"The value of this new information is that the choice of PTCA or CABG can be determined largely by how amenable the individual's coronary artery disease is to one or the other of the two procedures. It is relief of angina that is important. Provided that this is achieved, the consequences of the two treatments over several years are not markedly different in terms of their beneficial effect on qualty of life and return to work." Pocock's co-authors include Robert A. Anderson, Paul Seed, Tom Treasure and John R. Hampton for the RITA trial participants.

If you would like additional information regarding the benefits of angioplasty and bypass surgery, contact Rhonda Welsh at (810) 557-9511.

Heart Disease is the No. 1 killer in Michigan, claiming 36,025 lives in 1994. Michigan's CVD death rate is the 12th worst in the country. Michigan minorities and females are at greatest risk of developing cardiovascular disease. In 1995-96, the American Heart Association invested more than $2 million in heart research in Michigan.

Former foes now among state's best as a team

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Mike Case and John Berschback battled each other on the tennis courts for several years, but now they're working toward a common goal.

Case and Berschback were Grosse Pointe South's No. 1 doubles team last season and were recently named to the Class A All-State team chosen by the Michigan High School Tennis Coaches Association.

And the All-State honor is probably only a start for Case, who was a sophomore last year, and Berschback, who was a freshman.

"I can't remember a doubles team that young making All-State," said South coach Tom Berschback, who is John's uncle. "And it's the first year they've played together."

Case and Berschback compiled a 24-2 record. Their only losses were a 6-4, 6-2 setback to Traverse City's Kyle Kilcherman and Kyle Tousain on April 27 and a 6-4, 7-6 defeat by East Lansing's John Ziewacz and Matt Hagan in the semifinals of the state Class A championships. Ziewacz and Hagan went on to win the state title.

South's first doubles team beat the Ann Arbor Pioneer's Sean Hoover and Matt Pryor twice within a week and that earned Case and Berschback the second seed in the state tournament.

The Blue Devils' pair lost only eight games in sweeping their three matches at the Macomb Area Conference Red Division championships. The next week they breezed to a regional title, losing only one game in their first two matches and beating Grosse Pointe North's Peter Dannacker and Chad Whistler 6-4, 6-1 in the final.

Case and Berschback didn't start out as the Blue Devils' No. 1 doubles team.

"I paired each of them with a senior at first and Case and Ryan Parshall played together last year and did OK," said coach Berschback. "But I wasn't looking for OK. I wanted my No. 1 doubles team to be strong. This is the best we've had since 1991."

"We had them play a lot of different teams and we gave the two seniors a chance to beat them, but Mike and John destroyed everybody else. That way there was no problem with them being No. 1. They beat off the challenges every time. I think the only team they'd lose to around here are Dr. Detroit (assistant coach Jeff Hodges) and his partner."

Case and Berschback complement each other on the court. Case has the better ground strokes and an excellent overhand delivery. Berschback is quicker at the net.

"Each of them has different strengths," Tom Berschback said. "That's one of the things that makes them so effective. One thing I never worried about this year was No. 1 singles."

The personalities of the two young players also worked well together.

"John has the more steady personality. He calms everybody down. He's the epitome of 'starting over with every point,'" the coach said.

"Mike has more of the rah-rah personality. He wants to crush every opponent. Sometimes he gets a little too aggressive and John has to calm him down. That's why they're so perfect for each other. When they talk to each other and offer suggestions they each take it the right way. They're good friends off the court, too. And they're both very coachable."

One thing coach Berschback doesn't have to worry about is getting through to his top doubles team.

John Berschback carries a 4.1 grade-point average, while Case is a 3.5 student.

"Both of them are not only committed to tennis, but they're committed to academics. And that's the way it should be," Tom Berschback said.

"When you have a couple of boys who are that intelligent, you can tell them something once and it will sink in. They can also quickly recognize different situations on the court."

Berschback and Case could have a long run on the All-State team if they stay together. But the coaches might find out they're too valuable to keep from playing singles.

"I don't have a clue as to what's going to happen in the spring," Tom Berschback said. "We have six singles players who are very close. I'd like to keep John and Mike together if I can."

CSYC hosts regatta

Crescent Sail Yacht Club will host its 63rd annual regatta Saturday, Aug. 24.

CSYC is an all-sailboat club, known for its involved membership and active junior sailing program.

The Crescent Regatta is part of the Detroit Regional Yachting Association Summer Series and will have a fleet of about 200 boats.

The number of entries is one of the highest among DRYA events.

It is also one of the most colorful regattas of the summer with the race often ending in a flood of bright spinnakers.

Sailboats ranging in size from less than 15 feet to more than 50 feet will compete on one of three courses, each of which starts and finishes near the front of the club, which is at 276 Lakeshore Drive near the foot of Kerby Road. The three courses ranged from five to 19 nautical miles, with the largest boats racing the longest course.

The race is open to DRYA sailors and a limited number of non-DRYA members.

Non-DRYA sailors who wish to enter the regatta must pick up an application at Crescent Sail Yacht Club, and complete and return it by Thursday, Aug. 22.

Marathon clinic at Hanson's

Hanson's Running Shop in Grosse Pointe Woods will hold a marathon training clinic on Wednesday, Aug. 21 at 6:30 p.m.

For more information, call (313) 882-1325.

The lifeguard team from Grosse Pointe Woods repeated as champions in the recent Top Guard Competition. From left, are John Finkelmann, park director Bill Babcock, Beth Janutol, Amanda Defever and Tony Atrasz. Each of the Pointes choose four lifeguards to compete in several events.

Woods wins lifeguard competition

"It was shaky for a while, but in the end we stuck it out."

That's how Grosse Pointe Woods park director Bill Babcock described his team's winning performance in the recent Top Guard competition.

Each of the Pointes choose four lifeguards to compete in various events including swimming with clothes, treading water with bricks and CPR.

The members of the Woods team were Tony Atrasz, John Finkelmann, Amanda Defever and Beth Janutol. Atrasz and Finkelmann were both on last year's winning team.

"We knew we could win but we also knew we would have to really work for it," Janutol said. "It all came down to the last five meters of the last relay."

Several Pointers on honored ski patrol

Several Grosse Pointers were members of the Otsego Ski Patrol which was named the outstanding ski patrol for the Northern Michigan region, which is comprised of 14 alpine patrols.

Grosse Pointers on the Otsego Ski Patrol are Julie A. Rinehart, Northern Michigan 2 section chief; Thomas D. Rinehart, assistant patrol director; Dr. Robert Frear, Ted Roney and Tom Phillips. Medical advisors for the patrol are Dr. Russell Chavey and Dr. John Wagner.

Ski patrols are evaluated on types of written operation procedures developed by the patrol, offices held at the national, division and region level, past awards, ski patrol meeting participation, fund raising, support of national programs, training and testing participation and public service and community participation.

The Otsego Ski Patrol has previously won Region and Division awards and finished seventh nationally in 1990.

The National Ski Patrol is an all-volunteer organization whose members donate their time to patrolling ski slopes, rendering first aid and promoting ski safety.

Baseball team seeking players

The Michigan Panthers Baseball Club is looking for experienced players for its 12-year-old team in the Macomb Amateur Baseball Federation.

Players must not turn 13 before Aug. 1, 1997.

Anyone interested should call manager Steve Sutton at (810) 726-1538.

Rockies are champs

The Rockies defeated the Marlins 11-1 in the championship game of the Grosse Pointe Wood-Shores Babe Ruth League Prep Division. Members of the squad were Lee Andrus, Adam Burns, Bill Dickerman, Steven Fugal, Jim Kelly, Frank Lopetrone, Nate Parsh, Bob Ritter, Jim Spath, Trey Stewart and Raymond Testori. Jim Spath was the manager and his coaches were Scott Burns and Mike Cleland.

Norbs swimmers earn awards

The Grosse Pointe City Norbs swimming team recently gave out its end-of-season awards.

Semmler, 14 and under; and Katie Nix, 17 and under.

High-point awards in each age division went to Elisabeth Alber and Danny Cook, 8 and under; Juliana Bartel and Ben Jenzen, 10 and under; Eric Gunderson and Jennifer Ann Daudlin, 12 and under; Trevor Dougherty and Gillian Rabbitt, 14 and under; and Jan Michael Stump and Julie Upmeyer, 17 and under.

Bartel received the team high-point trophy, which usually goes to an older swimmer.

Brian Denton was the most improved swimmer.

Attendance awards were given to Sarah Jenzen, 8 and under; Rachel and Amanda Fleig, 10 and under; Jessica Ruble, 12 and under; Ben

Highlights

Here's a look at the Neighborhood Club's girls softball league for grades two through five.

GRADES 2 & 3
Jennings Dental 15, CHAMP Pink Panthers 11
Jennings Dental allowed 10 runs in the first inning of the season finale against the Henry Ford Cottage Hospital - CHAMP Pink Panthers, but began a comeback with nine straight hits in the bottom of the inning. Sarah Bolton, Amywren Miller, Sarah Colosimo, Laura Nicholl, Carrie Fines, Kristen Bertelsen and Kelly Jennings contributed to the rally. Solid defense from infielders Kelly Mueller, Ashlee Ruggeri and Christine Bourgeois held the Pink Panthers to one run in the second, while Jennings got key hits in the bottom of the second from Kristen Trute, Ann Marie Kerby and Jenny McGraw.

Angels with Dirty Faces 11, Pointe Fitness 10
Jessica Kennedy doubled home the winning run for the Angels with two outs in their final at bat. Teammates Abby Wilberding and Lauren Russell combined for a double play in Pointe Fitness and Training Center's final at bat. The Angels' Emily Gilbride played solid defense and went 2-for-2 with two RBI and two runs. Katelyn Cinquernelli, Genna Davis, Jessica DiVirgil, Kyle Henel, Lauren Krupka, Kelly Lewis, Caitlin Lombardo, Betsy Slaughter, Stephanie Stocking, Lauren Taffinger and Katie Gilbride also played well for the Angels.

Lindsay Montgomery made six putouts at first base for Pointe Fitness and Training Center, while Sarah Chavey made all three putouts in the second inning. Devon Crawford tripled home three runs and caught a popup. Candice Keith and Carol Perry each had two hits, two RBI and scored twice. Other contributions came from Anne DeFour, Ann Honor, Chrissie Keersmaekers, Sarah Kennedy, Amy Liang, Elise Miller, Shannon Petz, Emily Pitts, Natalie Relich and Stephanie Vella.

All-Stars 17, Swingers 16
The Young Furniture All-Stars played their best game, making excellent defensive plays and hitting well. Erica Coates, Ashley Rogers, Jackie Vesey, Danielle Dumont, Hannah Louks, Katy Sullivan, Courtney Miller, Jennifer DeFauw, Caitlin Kiska, Lauren Zedan, Amy Berger, Bridgette Whotte, Kate Muelle and Erica L'Esperance all contributed to the squad who lived by the motto "the most important thing is to have fun and pay attention."

The East Side Sporting Goods Swingers are a solid team. Carly Adams, Janelle Addy and Lauren Ahee made some smart plays, while Elizabeth Andary, Chelsea Charvat, Kelly Gallagher and Caitlin Kelly displayed a lot of hustle. Jenna Maynard, Natalie Pear and Gillian Prainito showed a good batting eye, while Kelly Rusko, Emily Simon, Melissa Watz, Anne Weycker and Jennifer Weibelhaus also contributed.

The Henry Ford Cottage Hospital-CHAMP Pink Panthers turned in a fine performance, working well as a team.

GIRLS GRADE 4
Blasters 16, Wildcats 13
The Beaumont Blasters' Becky Szelc led a 12-hit attack with three hits, including a triple. Kayla Vanden Boom had two hits, while Carly Croskey, Lindsey Connolly, Caitlin Schultz, Patti Harrell, Molly O'Neill, Caitlin Hanly and Ashley Steitz also had hits. Harrell struck out nine, while Croskey, Connolly, Schultz and Szelc made key defensive plays as the Blasters built a 12-2 lead. Other strong performances came from Casey Scavone, Molly Burns, Beth Swanson, Julie Krugler and Sara Vanden Boom. Harrell, Burns and Schultz pitched well all season.

Emily Shipman hit a grand slam for the Nursing Unlimited Wildcats. Jennifer Bordato added a two-run homer and a two-run triple. Jennifer Makowski tripled and Ann Pedesky hit a double. Makowski, Christie Laethem, Julie Borushko, Bordato and Natalie Meyer each pitched an inning, while Bordato caught some flyballs. Anne Milazzo, Courtney Gredy, Liz Cobb, Julie Kamerud, Meredith Scheiwe, Carolyn Kleinert and Megan Zmyslowski added defensive support.

Flames 9, Rockets 6
The Flame Furnace Flames locked up first place by defeating a strong United Scientific Rockets club. The Flames led by six runs after two innings, but the Rockets came back to tie the game at 6-6 in the fifth. But the Flames scored three runs in the top of the sixth and held the Rockets scoreless in the bottom of the frame. The Flames had excellent pitching from Annie Chapman, combined with the hitting of Meghan DePetro, Sara Chapman, Mandy Schwanitz and Amanda Carroll. Defensive standouts were Elise Nagel, Julie Lieder, Maggie Eugenio, Amanda Llana, Kellie Schott, Christina Magri and Margaret Walton. Jenny Cafana and Kristen Engle also helped the Flames to their successful season.

Rockets players Katie Cragg, Allison Crow, Katie Kaufmann, Kelly King, Margaret Leahy, Megan McCaughey, Clare McDevitt, Sarah McMillan, Erika Muhlbeg, Laura Ralstrom, Elizabeth Ridgway, Emily Tancer, Trisha Tarjeft and Allison Ambrorzy made a strong effort in the game.

Wildcats 10, ISI Jaguars 9
The Nursing Unlimited Wildcats played well and displayed determination, stamina, teamwork and concentration.

Annie Mackenzie, Katie Johnson and Aletha Brooks each scored two runs for the ISI Jaguars, while Emily Orthenburger, Jillian Greer and Abby Blatt scored a run apiece. Milly Simpkins pitched three innings and Jennifer Egelski pitched the fourth. Mary Klacza made a good catch on a line drive.

GIRLS GRADE 5
Radiant Runners 13, Seago Smilers 7

The Radiant Runners posted their sixth win of the season. Hallie Achille, Kristen Brandt, Colleen Blake, Dana Chicklas, Katie Kaiser, Sarah Veitch and Allison McFeely have improved steadily as catchers and outfielders. Lauren Vallee did well on the mound and hitting, while Freddie Schroeder was a consistent shortstop. Allison Livermore and Katie Dimaggio were strong two-way players, while Elizabeth Warren, Dawn Espy and Jeanine Zajac were good hitters and versatile players.

Stephanie Smith had two hits and scored twice for the Seago Smilers, while Melissa Jamerino hit a double and a walk and scored twice. Jamerino and Kristin Altenburg combined for a double play. Smith has pitched well all season, while Jamerino and Altenburg played solid defense. Kelley Conley and Colaluca hit with power, while Alex Hutting and Meghan and Kristina Seago had timely hits. Sarah Nowasad, Lauren Reinhard, Nikki Byron, Christina Schroder, Jackie Oska and Julianne Vanden Bussche also played well.

Lakeshore Optimist 3, Leopards 2
Outstanding defense on both sides kept the score down. The Lakeshore Optimist Club showed a lot of speed and agility. Tricia Breen, Erin Brophy, Molly Carroll and Carolyn Commer were especially fast, while Marianne Cotzias, Emily Gordon, Andrea Hodgman, Megan Linne and Natalie Novak were strong in the field. Amy Reid, Kirsta Wierda and Elizabeth Woodward also contributed to the team's success.

The Leopards held their own through the efforts of Natalie Brown, Elizabeth Campbell, Ashley Danielian, Libby Frizzell, Molly Gaydos, Laura Hall, Megan Kennedy, Samantha Lambert, Margaret Lentine, Elyse Schmidt, Emily Schmidt, Jaclyn Tyl, Jenna Tocco and Lindsay Wouczyzna.

Tough on the links

Ben Debski, right, was third in the recent Michigan Maxfli PGA Junior Championships at the Milham Park Golf Club in Kalamazoo. Debski, a senior at Grosse Pointe South, shot 71 in the first round and 79 in the second round of the two-day, 36-hole golf tournament. Two other South golfers, Steve Stanton, left, and Brendan Joyce also qualified for the Michigan championships. Stanton and Joyce will both be juniors at South this fall. All three qualified for the Michigan championship during a tournament at Sycamore Hills golf course.

Junior Olympians

Four students from the Grosse Pointe Academy of Tae Kwon Do competed in the Junior Olympics in Orlando, Fla., and Katie Drabecki, won a silver medal in her division. Earlier, Katie, who won a gold medal in the event last year, Michael Goodwin, Tarik Ibrahim and John Drabecki had won gold medals at the Michigan Tae Kwon Do trials. John Drabecki, who won a silver medal in last year's Junior Olympics advanced to the quarterfinals where he lost to last year's gold medalist. It was the first national competition for Goodwin and Ibrahim, who also turned in strong performances. The Junior Olympians train under Master Hee Sung Douglas Shin, head master at the Grosse Pointe Academy. Pictured from left are Shin, Katie Drabecki, Ibrahim and John Drabecki.

What type of air conditioning system should you buy?

By Gary Marowske
Flame Furnace Co.

So you've been up every night because of the oppressive humidity and high temperatures. Rumor has it that with your steam and/or hot water heating system you cannot have air conditioning. Well that's a total falsehood. Air conditioning is available to all.

By having a boiler type (hot water and/or steam) heating system you can still have air conditioning.

There are three main types of air conditioning systems:

1. Space Pak
2. Unico
3. Conventional Ducts

Before deciding which of these systems to choose, first select a contractor. Be sure to determine

If you've been the unfortunate victim of a fire, here are some tips on how to clean up your home and restore it.

After a fire, it is natural to want to clean the building or dwelling and its contents. Timely action is very important, but incorrect or delayed action can jeopardize or seriously impede satisfactory restoration.

- Clean and protect chrome trim on kitchen appliances with a light coating of petroleum jelly or oil.

- Blow off or carefully brush-the firm's number of years in business, get referrals and talk with other satisfied customers.

Get copies of the firm's licenses and certificates of insurance to make you feel totally comfortable with your selection. Make sure of your decision because the workmen will be in your home for over a week and will be cutting holes in your walls and ceilings.

After you've selected a contractor, get their opinion and cost estimate on each of the three types of systems. The Space Pak and Unico are very similar. Both are "high pressure." Setting a blower coil typically in the attic and running Fiberglas board trunk lines.

Then off of each trunk line is run a four-inch diameter supply line to the individual rooms. The outlet operation of the supply lines looks similar to mini port hole that is virtually invisible. These are mostly located in the ceiling.

At the same time one central cold air return will be installed in the ceiling. This is normally located in a hallway with a conventional duct system. All of the ducting will be sheet metal with insulation placed on the inside or outside of the duct. This system has the supply registers located in the ceiling.

These registers will be a larger size, more typical with a forced air system which means that with the conventional duct system you have the potential in the future to add humidification, air purification and even forced air heating.

Make sure to discuss all of these with your contractor and get his/her recommendation as to which would be best for you.

If you have any questions at all regarding these systems or anything at all relating to your heating and/or cooling systems, please call me at Flame Furnace, (313) 527-1700.

Household Help

vacuum loose debris from upholstery, drapes, and carpet.

- Open windows for ventilation if security allows.

- Change furnace filter if blower is operating.

- Empty freezer and refrigerator completely if electricity is off, and prop doors open with a rolled towel or newspaper. Secure door so that a small child cannot become trapped inside.

- Clean and protect smoked bathroom faucets, tub fittings, and towel bars with a light coating of oil.

- Call a plumber to drain the heating system if heat is off in the winter.

- Remove all pets (especially birds) to a clean environment.

Do not:

- Wipe or attempt to wash walls, ceilings and other absorbent surfaces.

- Sit on upholstered furniture if it can be avoided.

- Use exposed food items or canned goods which have been subjected to excessive heat. Contact the local board of health for recommendations.

- Use TVs, stereos, or electrical appliances until they have been inspected or cleaned.

10 free flowering trees from Arbor Day Foundation

Ten flowering trees will be given free to each person who joins the National Arbor Day Foundation during August.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit foundation's "Trees for America" campaign.

The 10 trees are two white flowering dogwoods, two flowering crabapples, two golden rain trees, two Washington hawthorns and two American redbuds.

"These compact trees were selected for planting in large or small spaces," said John Rosenow, the foundation's president. "They will give your home the beauty of lovely pink, white, and yellow flowers — and also provide winter berries and nesting sites for songbirds."

The trees will be shipped post-paid at the right time for planting between Oct. 1 and Dec. 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The 6- to 12-inch trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the foundation's bimonthly publication, Arbor Day, and the "Tree Book" with information about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 contribution by Aug. 31 to Ten Free Flowering Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, Neb. 68410.

Radios from the 1930s to 1950s are attracting collectors. The design and the fame of the designer are what determine the price.

The rare 1930s radios were made of plastic or mirrored glass. A Spartan blue mirror glass, chromium-plated metal and wood radio designed by Walter Dorwin Teague, circa 1936, sold for $2,640 at auction in 1992.

Teague (1883-1960) was one of a group of industrial designers who changed the look of the everyday appliances manufactured at that time. He was a graphic artist who designed Eastman Kodak cameras and film packages, office machines, the Marmon car, the Scripto pen, Steuben glass, railroad coaches and Texaco gas stations. ***

Q. My five-legged dining table is made of golden oak. It measures four feet square without extensions. There are four 12-inch extensions. The legs are carved. On the inside flap of a small drawer that holds the leaves is the inscription "Robbins Extension Table, Pat. March 17, 1896, Lentz Table Co., Nashville, Michigan." I've had the table for years, and now I want to sell it. What's it worth?

A. The Lentz Table Co. made high-grade tables in many styles. It also made smoking stands and mirrors. A 1927 advertisement boasts that the "Lentz finish is a lacquer finish, dull rubbed and guaranteed water, heat and mar proof."

Five-legged oak tables sell at a wide range of prices, depending on the quality of the carving and condition of the piece. In good condition, with plain carving, your table could sell for more than $600.

Q. How should I clean my old pewter tankards?

A. Many people prefer a dull gray finish, or patina, on their pewter. It shows that the pewter is old.

Each time you clean pewter, a small amount of the metal surface is removed.

You can try a very fine abrasive such as rottenstone or jeweler's rouge mixed in mineral oil. Or you could buy pewter polish at your hardware store.

The cleaners are very gentle, so it will take a lot of rubbing to make the pewter bright.

Don't use any metal polish not meant for pewter, because it might scratch the surface. Never buff old pewter.

Remember, pewter should not be stored in a closed oak cabinet or drawer. The acids in the oak, or in untreated, unseasoned woods, will cause the metal to deteriorate.
