

War Memorial hosts Family Fun Day

A pie-eating contest, three-legged race, water balloon toss, marshmallow spoon race, lollipop scramble and many other events are part of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Family Fun Day this Sunday, Sept. 15, from noon to 4 p.m.

Family Fun Day will also feature a hula hoop contest, sack races, midway games and prizes, a giant slide, clowns, Coast Guard rescuers, music and great food.

Children aged 6 to 16 may also rent a "Swap and Shop" table for $5 to sell such items as usable toys, books, games or sports equipment (please limit to what fits on a card table). Reserve your table by Sept. 13. Set up time is Sept. 15 at 11:30 a.m.

The pie-eating contest, which begins at 2 p.m., will pit a municipal or elected representative from each of the five Pointes and Harper Woods against one another.

Many of the War Memorial's instructors will be on hand to give demonstrations.

Also part of family fun day will be a book, "Call to Arms," featuring interviews of area World War II veterans. The book was written by Grosse Pointe News staff writers. Many of the veterans featured in "Call to Arms" will be signing copies of the book under the flagpole. For more information about Family Fun Day, call (313) 881-7511.

WE'RE CONCERNED ABOUT YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

News can appear one day and be gone the next. But the paper news is printed on can and should live on.

Last year, more than one third of all U.S. newspaper was recycled. And that number is growing every day.

Recycling is the one way we can all give something back.

Recycle. Then Recycle.

Woods council debates policy on signs; AAUW gets its banner

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Just call it a sign of the times. The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council debated its sign policy Monday night in response to a request by the American Association of University Women (AAUW) to put up a banner advertising its annual book sale on the city's senior center.

While praising the organization and its work, councilman Thomas Fahrner stated in the strongest terms that the city should not deviate from its guidelines concerning the senior center.

"We've never allowed people to put up signs on city hall," said Fahrner. "Now we're opening the floodgate. I object to this. We will reject it when other groups ask for the same privilege. I say we reject any signs on city hall, don't say others won't point out that we did it for the AAUW, why won't we do it for them?"

Councilmember Bill Wilson responded to Fahrner's comments, pointing out that when the city has a flower sale, it puts up banners on city hall advertising that fact. He also said that the city puts up a Christmas display in front of city hall every year.

Fahrner said that those displays were put up by the city, not at the request of private organizations.

"When we built the senior center, it was built for the people, and was meant to be used," said Wilson. "I don't think it's right for the city to say that only we can advertise events like the flower sale. The AAUW is holding the book sale in the senior center from Sept. 25-28. I think it's only fair that they can advertise that fact the week before the sale by placing a banner at the site of the sale. What makes us so special?"

Park's sewer separation construction to begin soon

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

After years of planning and months of arguing, construction of Grosse Pointe Park's sewer separation project is about to begin.

Park city manager Dale Krajniak said that construction of phase one of the project should begin in the first week of October. Once completed, the city will have two separate sewer lines — a storm sewer line that will discharge rainwater into the lake and a sanitary sewer line that will send unprocessed sewage to Detroit for treatment.

The separated storm line should prevent the kind of basement flooding that took place last July when, during a very heavy rainstorm, the city's combined sanitary and storm sewer lines were overwhelmed, causing sewage to back up into basements of many homes in the area south of Jefferson.

"The Park must meet a state-imposed project schedule," Krajniak said. "The state required the Park to have our final plans in by Feb. 1, 1996. We had to advertise for construction bids by July 1, and we must begin construction by Oct. 1. The project must be completed by Jan. 1, 1999."

The construction will be completed in stages, said Krajniak. Stage one is scheduled to be finished by Dec. 31, 1997. Stage two by Jan. 1, 1998 and the final stage by May 1, 1998.

This schedule, Krajniak said, will meet the state's deadline with months to spare. Krajniak hopes that extra time won't be needed.

Phase one construction of separated sewer lines will begin in several areas, said Krajniak. These areas include Barrington, from Windmill Pointe Drive to Jefferson; Lakeshore, Balfour and Berkshire from Windmill Pointe Drive to Essex; and Bedford Lane.

"There will be a 3.5 foot-wide trench cut where the new storm sewer lines will be placed to capture rainwater run-off," said Krajniak. "The work will be undertaken in such a fashion as to maintain normal traffic flow and minimize inconvenience. However, people who don't have to travel those streets might want to take alternative routes during construction."

School board sets tax rate for 1996-97

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe school board approved a continuation Monday of last year's tax rates for the 1996-97 school year.

For owners of homestead property, that means the rate will be 14.1558 mills: 6.8303 mills levied locally for operating purposes; 1.3255 mills levied for the technology upgrade; and 6 mills levied by the state on all properties.

Non-homestead property owners — businesses, rentals and second homes — will be Krajniak also said that on-street parking on those streets might be temporarily affected during the construction phase.

Other phase one construction projects include the building of the lift, or pump, station at Patterson Park, said Krajniak.

The streets mentioned are only the first streets that will have construction during phase one. A schedule detailing the construction process will, hopefully, be distributed to Park residents in the near future.

"We are doing construction in phases so that no one area is inundated," said Krajniak. "Lines will be laid on an area-to-area basis."

Small separated sewer lines will be installed using the open-cut method, Krajniak said. That means that trenches will be dug. Significant tributary lines will then be constructed using tunneling techniques. This is more expensive, but it is less disruptive than the open cut method.

"We are trying to be as unobtrusive as possible," said Krajniak. "But this is major construction, so there will be some inconvenience to residents. It's unavoidable, but we hope to have construction go as smoothly as possible." (See graphic illustration on page 8A.)

Tax

"The millage rate is the same, but reclassification of property and other factors have increased the amount collected," Fenton said. "There has been some reclassification of properties from non-homestead to homestead. There have been some increases in the taxable value of homesteads."

Proposal A, approved by Michigan voters in 1994, created three values to a home: the market value, the state equalized value (one-half the market value) and the taxable value. Proposal A also placed limits on how much the taxable value of a home can increase. It's either 5 percent or the rate of inflation. If the house is sold, the new owner will pay taxes on the true value of the house. So new homeowners are finding that they are paying more in property taxes on the house than the previous owner or their neighbors with similarly valued homes.

"As per Proposal A, there is a limitation on what we can collect, we are limited by the foundation increase (the per-pupil allocation from the state) and by the taxable value of the property," Fenton said. "We are at the maximum allowable levy. In the old days, when we had an authorized amount and didn't levy it all, we could levy more, but this is the maximum."

The district held a truth-in-taxation hearing on Wednesday, Sept. 4; no one from the public addressed the board concerning the continuation of the tax rate.

Richard/McMillan renovation project is near completion

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Richard school principal Pat Meek said her students exercised a great deal of patience tural drawing of the changes to the property. This summer, after much discussion and compromise, the Farms, the school district and St. James Lutheran Church (which is nestled between city and school property across from Richard) entered into a trilateral agreement.

"The cooperation between all three parties has resulted in a wonderful end project," said Carl Anderson, Grosse Pointe school board vice president.

The elementary school property between McKinley and McMillan in Grosse Pointe Farms has been under construction since mid-summer and on the opening day of school, was nearly surrounded by inviting mounds of dirt.

"The students are only allowed to play in the area of the playscape, which is directly alongside the building. They have been most cooperative," Meek said. "I think they're handling the situation very well. They're so excited about getting the new equipment and new playground."

The school grounds the students left in June are gone. McMillan has been closed at Ridge and the area now features a sidewalk and a sloping hill that connects the school playground with Mesner Field.

What remains of McMillan ends in a cul-de-sac at the back of the school building. The renovated area, when completed, will feature a new playscape, new landscaping, benches, an amphitheater and a reconfigured playfield.

Heavy construction, which included the demolition of a portion of McMillan, building the cul-de-sac, repaving the teachers' lot and expanding the municipal lot behind the Hill shopping district, was completed before school started.

The City of Grosse Pointe Farms, which is overseeing the construction, is awaiting bids on landscaping and, according to Farms assistant city manager Shane Reeside, will have that portion of the project completed during the fall.

The new playscape was assembled just before school started, Meek said, and like a magnet, drew children and families from around the neighborhood.

"I even had to go and crawl around on it myself," Meek said.

The project has been a dream of Richard parents and staff for nearly 30 years. Richard was the only elementary school in the Grosse Pointe Public School System that had a playground divided by a road. Concerns about students' safety were constant.

The Richard PTO spent two years developing a comprehensive plan that included fundraising and an architect-

Woods man uses computer business to help find missing children

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

For the last 14 years, Jim Imhoff has operated Variety-N-Spice, a 128-phone line system that is the state's oldest and largest computer bulletin board.

"In 1989, one of my (bulletin board) users paged me repeatedly," he said. "She said, 'you've got to help me. My daughter didn't come home from school.'"

Imhoff, a resident of Grosse Pointe Woods, knew the woman from the bulletin board and he called her. The woman's daughter, a Detroit high school student, was last seen at school just before noon on the day she was reported missing. The next day, the school's principal and superintendent became involved, and after 24 hours went by, the police put out an All Points Bulletin.

"I didn't know how I could help," Imhoff said. "There were no missing children's organizations around at the time. I didn't know where to go."

Two weeks later, a cab driver traveling on Cass Avenue saw a naked girl with a broken leg. The 15-year-old girl had been abducted from school by drug dealers, tied to a bed and raped. She had escaped by jumping out of a window when the cab driver saw her.

"She is now in a mental institution," Imhoff said. "She will never be the same."

This incident had a profound impact on Imhoff.

"I knew there were a lot of missing children," he said. "I asked a group called Child Find that if they could get pictures of missing children to me,

I would put them on the computer."

"It took off. There had never been pictures of missing children on the computer before."

Imhoff grew up in Grosse Pointe, graduating from Grosse Pointe High School in 1965. He earned his doctorate degree in psychology from the University of Michigan.

Imhoff worked at the Lafayette Clinic as head of the drug outpatient clinic for patients aged 12 to 21.

After working in private practice, he went into business "where my father told me I should go when I finished high school," Imhoff said.

He operated a television production company and a long distance phone company before launching Variety-N-Spice.

Not long after the abduction of the 15-year-old Detroit girl, a woman in Taylor was put in contact with Imhoff by the police. Her estranged husband, a former towtruck operator, had taken the couple's child (of which the woman had custody).

"I put the child's picture and information on the computer," Imhoff said. "I also mentioned that the husband had worked as a towtruck operator. A lady in San Bernadino, Calif., working at a towtruck company thought she recognized the husband when he had come in to apply for a job."

The police and FBI were contacted and the husband was arrested when he came back for what he thought would be a job interview.

"This was the first case I had a direct connection with," Imhoff said. "Since then, I've been putting pictures on the computer. The company has become more organized, becoming a 501(c)3 charity, and changed its mission."

The company is called Missing Children Project, part of Cycle of Life Organization, a national nonprofit charity. Imhoff is the founder of the project, which he co-directs with Woods resident Laura Bausman.

"We are the national archive for pictures of all missing children," Imhoff said. "All police organizations, including the FBI, Interpol and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police can call into our system. We have more than 4 million pictures."

Another part of the company is Kid Print, where kids can have their fingerprints electronically scanned and put into the computer.

"We're going into schools, malls, YMCAs — anywhere there are kids," Imhoff said. "We are the national archive for fingerprints of children who are not missing. We compile the information about the children in case they ever are missing."

Identix Inc., of Sunnyvale, Calif., makes the scanners, which cost about $10,000 each.

"We're trying to raise money for more scanners," Imhoff said. "We need them because fingerprints cannot be faxed."

A third branch of the company involves cases of parental or family kidnapping, when a noncustodial parent or other family member will abduct the child. In most of these types of kidnapping, Imhoff said, the abductor will take the child across state lines.

"We've created 'Road Angels,' truckers who are already out on the road," Imhoff said. "When an abduction occurs, the car make and license number is broadcast to truck stops. The truckers can then communicate by CB. It's relatively new, but it's worked well."

In cases where a parent or family member has illegally taken a child, police often must wait 24 hours before the child is listed as a missing person.

"By that time, the child is probably far away," Imhoff said. "With the Road Angels, we can get the word out quicker than 24 hours."

Missing Children Project would also like to broadcast a television show, similar to "America's Most Wanted," but with interview with parents of missing children, some reenactments and showing police talking with children in schools.

"We have police go into the schools and talk with children, but we want to film it," Imhoff said. "Anytime a child is found — dead or alive — there is usually film footage from the local news. We also want to show that. The problem is, a show like this is not cheap to produce."

Imhoff said there are about 350,000 children reported lost each year in this country — a majority of these being parental kidnappings or run-aways. Only 10 percent are ever found.

"But of those children who are abducted by strangers, 50 percent are found dead," he said. "Parents have to be aware that when they tell their children to not talk with strangers, a child's idea of a stranger is often different from the parent's."

"Kids think strangers are one-eyed monsters with horns. They don't always think of average looking adults as strangers."

With parental or family kidnappings, Imhoff said, the child may be "safe," but often no one else in that child's life will ever see the child again.

"Many kids in these cases don't know they are lost or that someone is looking for them," Imhoff said. "The parent will probably not kill or molest a child as a stranger might be more likely to do, but it is still a tragedy."

If a child is missing, the first step is to contact the local police, Imhoff said.

"We will take a picture of the child, with other information, and put it in the national archives," he said. "In a family case, we can also go through the Road Angels."

Missing Children Project is privately funded, but is always looking for tax-deductible donations as well as volunteers. The company is also looking for "corporate angels" who can "adopt" a missing child by hosting a fundraiser or donating money to Missing Children Project.

If you would like more information or would like to volunteer, call Missing Children Project at (313) 343-0374.

Will toll roads substitute for gas tax hike?

Is Michigan going to be required to turn to toll roads to pay for highway improvements if the state doesn't raise its gasoline tax by 1997?

That is not just idle gossip these days. Detroit newspapers last week carried exactly that warning from Michigan Transportation Director Robert Welke.

He added that without a gas tax hike by the fall of 1997, he thought the state might have to shut down road construction and impose tolls on state and interstate highways.

He also proposed raising the current 15-cent-a-gallon tax, which has remained unchanged for 12 years, by 8 or 10 cents over a several-year period.

A major part of the difficulty with boosting the state gasoline tax is found in Lansing itself. In the governor's office, in

County highway officials and Southeastern Michigan Council of Government officials sharply disagreed with the governor's request that a larger share of the funds raised by a gasoline tax increase go to support state highway construction work.

They pointed out, properly it seems to us, that the local communities and counties also had road problems and that while they are accustomed to sharing the gas tax receipts with the state government, they do not wish to downgrade their own needs.

For a conservative Republican who supposedly is dedicated to returning more power to local governments, the governor takes a strange position on this issue, just as he does on school finance.

He wants control of the financing on both of these controversial issues to be held chiefly in Lansing, and he appears to be opposed to anything more than a small increase of perhaps 5 or 7 cents a gallon.

The Detroit Free Press also reports that, in addition, the governor and other advocates now propose expanding the gas-tax debate to include such matters as tort reform, attorney fee limits, and a repeal of the state's prevailing wage law.

As the Free Press warns, however, "the inclusion of such hot-button issues would give too many lawmakers an excuse to continue to duck a duty they know they must confront."

As for the toll road issue, Minnesota state and local officials have been confronting it for some months.

Several communities already had approved Minnesota's first proposed Highway 212 tollway to run southeast of the Twin Cities through Eden Prairie, Chaska and Chanhassen.

In Minnesota, however, state law permits cities to veto toll roads proposed within their borders.

Acting under that authority, Eden Prairie's council voted 4-1 on Sept. 3 against the proposed toll road. That veto could kill the proposal unless new negotiations are undertaken. Earlier, Chanhassen had signed on to the proposal, and Chaska had been expected to sign on, too.

The argument for the toll road in Eden Prairie, according to the Star Tribune of Minneapolis, was whether to wait 15 years for state funding to build a road the community has wanted for decades, or say yes to toll financing and get it built in three years.

Foes of the proposal prevailed, however, charging that state legislators are "failing to make the hard decisions they need to make to deal with highway funding issues."

That charge has a familiar ring to it in Michigan.

New welfare law creates mess

After all the controversies between the GOP Congress and the Democratic president over the conditions imposed by the welfare reform bill, federal officials now say it probably will be many months, and perhaps years, before the new restrictions can be made effective.

One of the law's many restrictions imposes a five-year lifetime limit on welfare payments to any one family. Yet the states and the federal government lack the computer capacity to enforce that requirement.

In disclosing this point, the New York Times reported that in congressional debates, "lawmakers almost never mentioned the practical problems of enforcing the five-year limit," or other restrictions in the legislation.

Yet the new law also makes it clear that states that fail to comply with the five-year limit stand to lose 5 percent of the federal welfare money. So this is another restriction in the new welfare legislation.

In addition, states may impose their own penalties on people who violate the new restrictions. But how are the states to learn about such violations if they lack a record of their past welfare recipients?

Another troublesome restriction imposes new work requirements on food stamp recipients, allowing childless adults to get coupons for only three months in any three-year period when they're not working.

At the same time, however, welfare recipients will have more difficulty in asserting their claims, especially when the state and federal regulations appear to conflict.

In the controversial atmosphere in which the welfare legislation finally was approved and signed, perhaps it is understandable that nobody apparently asked the important question:

Where do we get the information needed to prove the welfare history of a recipient in a given state, and especially for a recipient who has since moved to another state?

It appears the courts will have plenty of work to do to sort out the meaning of the legislation and the limitations it imposes on welfare clients as well as on federal and state welfare officials.

Letters

Miller's return still a mystery

The involuntary transfer of Ralph Miller from his post as band and orchestra director at Grosse Pointe South High School, a move that prompted a flood of letters of complaint to the Grosse Pointe News, now has been canceled.

Yet both the school system and the school board emerged from this controversy with egg on their faces. Neither the students, nor the parents, nor the general public has been given any reasonable explanation for what happened — or the reason for the system's about-face on Miller's transfer.

Instead, we're told by the interim superintendent, Suzanne Klein, that Miller's reinstatement occurred after review of new information received from "outside of the process."

Miller earlier had told the Grosse Pointe News the decision would be based in part on the outcome of a conflict resolution process at South.

Klein added that the many transitions during the summer had complicated the process. She pointed out that the teachers' union had a new president, the district had a new superintendent, and South had a new principal.

"What's important is that we have come to a fair and equitable resolution," she continued. "We are talking about people's careers and we have to be careful about comments."

We hope she is right. But it seems to us that the entire episode did raise questions about Miller's conduct, without ever indicating what, if anything, had been wrong. In addition, it obviously also raised questions about the way the school system handled the issue.

Another side issue that has not been explained — the schools spent $20,000 for consultants before settling the Miller case, but we understand that item was not referred to the board for approval, as required. We know that school systems emphasize the confidentiality of their employees' personnel files, but confidentiality also can be used to cover up somebody's mistakes.

Iraq, Russia worry Clinton

With President Clinton enjoying his largest lead in public opinion polls on economic issues, and with GOP nominee Bob Dole revamping his campaign team again, the president appears to have a fairly clear road to re-election.

Yet appearances may be deceptive. Several developing foreign affairs issues could still cause Clinton trouble.

One of those policy issues is the festering sore caused by Saddam Hussein's new attacks on the Kurdish people in northern Iraq in clear violation of international agreements.

Clinton claimed late last week that two separate U.S. missile strikes had prompted a pullout of most of Hussein's forces, but that contention was challenged by a Kurdish leader who said Iraqi forces were still attacking his people.

Another worry was added to the prospects about the success of Boris Yeltsin's presidency when he announced he has serious health problems and will undergo heart surgery later this month.

U.S. reporters in Moscow promptly reported that Yeltsin's announcement in a nationally broadcast TV interview strengthened suspicions that he is too sick to govern effectively.

It is expected that the Russian leadership would shift to Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin on a temporary basis while Yeltsin is hospitalized, but it is not clear what would happen if he is permanently incapacitated or dies.

School's real important, ya' know

To the Editor:

Well, you know, I want to criticize, you know, the Pointe educational, you know, system.

When it was, you know, led by a superintendent who thought that, you know, adding an "ize" onto a, you know, makes it a, you know, verb. That's exactly what he did when he used the word, you know, "prioritize." The kids are not being taught, you know, how to use the, you know, English language. The superintendent justified his use of this non word by finding it in, you know, some slanguage dictionary.

It's the same thing, you know, when someone "goes I don't know where he's at." Is "goes" a proper substitute for "said?"

Of what use is the word "at" when the contraction "he's" really says "he is?" If we were teaching English, you know, the sentence should be "I don't know where he is."

When I graduated from The High School in 1938, our English teachers would have a stroke if we spoke the way the kids do now.

Further, we were required to read good literature and write reports which were graded on the proper use of the language.

We also were required to develop oral communication skills, by speaking before the class.

Today the only reason any student speaks before the class is either for punishment or to get over being shy. Never mind whether their communication skills are being developed.

There are several hundred misuses of the language we hear every day, but we seem to tolerate them as an expression of "free form English."

Some time soon standards must be applied and the teachers themselves must learn the proper use of the language.

The magic of Disney World

As you are reading this, I'm "baking" (rather than "basking") in the sun of Florida for a couple of weeks.

Many people have asked me why I would go to sweltering Florida in September and — egad! — why I would spend two weeks at Walt Disney World when we don't have any children.

Yes, it is quite hot in September. But the flip side is that it doesn't rain as much and the rates after Labor Day fall drastically. If you're willing to put up with the heat, lounge around all day in a bathing suit, sip tropical drinks around the pool, take a dip now and then to cool off, it can be quite agreeable.

But you can do that anywhere in Florida — or even in Michigan, maybe. But there's more to our annual trip than a good tan — notwithstanding the dermatologists' warnings.

Actually, we rather like Disney World. Those who haven't been there think of Disney World as some glorified Cedar Point. It's more than that. Sure, there are some scary rides, like Space Mountain, the runaway train ride and Splash Mountain.

But mostly Disney World is an escape and a hope. It's an escape in that all the pressures of everyday work and home life are easily forgotten. You don't have to make the beds, wash the dishes, take out the garbage or mow the lawn. Work seems a long way away. The toughest decisions to make are where to eat lunch or dinner and whether to go to a theme park or golf or just lay [lie?] around the pool. But the best part about Disney World is the feeling of hope it gives you for humankind, especially at EPCOT center.

I Say

EPCOT (Experimental Prototype Community of Tomorrow) shows off the latest technology in computers, communications and even oil drilling. The future is shown as a technological wonder, whether under the sea, in orbit around the planet or even farming in the desert.

Granted, for the cynical, it sounds hokey. But EPCOT gives an opportunity to suspend your doubts, your pessimism.

Throughout Disney World — whether it's the Magic Kingdom's It's a Small World, EPCOT's World Showcase or MGM's '50s Diner — humankind is shown in a positive, upbeat manner. The nostalgic past is shown better than it was, and the future is utopian.

But what the heck? Why not escape for a little while into a better, kinder world.

Of course, there are plenty of just plain fun things to do, like plunging down the Humunga Kowabunga water slide at Typhoon Lagoon or screaming down the Summit Plummet at 60 mph at Blizzard Beach. And don't forget the championship golf courses, which I plan to enjoy.

Of course, there's plenty of shopping at the Village Marketplace and outlet malls, and there's far too many great places to eat. You'd outgrow your bathing suit in short order if you tried them all.

But probably the nicest thing about Disney World is the wonderful customer service — the good treatment visitors generally receive.

Hey, what's wrong with being treated nice once in while?

Line between public, private needed

By Lawrence W. Reed

Most people think that government should have limits, that government should do some things but not every thing. Accordingly, most people would argue that even if government could produce better hamburgers than anyone else, it shouldn't get into the restaurant business because that would compete against — and draw valuable resources and attention away from — its more important missions of protecting life and property. Government, most people believe, should spend public money for public purposes and should rarely spend public money for private purposes.

Those assumptions, as reasonable and universal as they seem when stated so generally, sometimes break down when the discussion turns to specific projects near and dear to the hearts of special interests. And if the implications of a recent court ruling in a North Carolina case should spread across the country, just about any special, private interest could become a public purpose at the public's expense.

The origin of the case rests in subsidies by state and local governments to private businesses. Public officials are increasingly granting them as part of their economic development strategies to keep companies from leaving or to lure companies away from other locations. Angered by this dubious use of tax money, North Carolina lawyer William Maready decided to do something about it. In 1995, he filed suit against the city of Winston-Salem and the county of Forsyth.

Maready argued that subsidies violated the provision of the state's constitution which provides that "[t]he power of taxation shall be exercised in a just and equitable manner, for public purposes only." Subsidies, he reasoned, amount to the taxing of existing, local firms to pay for the relocation or expansion of other, often competing businesses. That, Maready claimed, was use of public resources for an overwhelmingly private, not public, purpose. A lower court validated Maready's argument, but the defendants appealed.

On March 8, 1996, the Supreme Court of North Carolina overturned the lower court and handed down a 5-2 decision of sweeping significance. It said, in effect, that government can hand out money to anyone so long as the intent of the recipient is to create new jobs with it. By the court's reasoning, it doesn't matter if no evidence is presented that the subsidy is really needed or even that it would result in a net benefit to the community. Just the intent of doing good with it is justification enough.

In a stinging dissent, Justice Robert Orr lamented the fact that "little remains of the public purpose constitutional restraint on governmental power to spend tax revenues collected from the public.... If a potential corporate entity is considering a move to Winston-Salem but will only come if country club memberships are provided for its executives, do we sanction the use of tax revenue to facilitate the move?" According to the court, that would be perfectly acceptable. In Justice Orr's more thoughtful view, "An activity cannot be for a public purpose unless it is properly the 'business of government,' and it is not a function of government either to engage in private business itself or to aid particular business ventures."

From Michigan history comes a lesson that puts a perspective on the North Carolina story. Upon achieving statehood in 1837, Michigan jumped into the subsidy business in a big way offering enticements to private firms to stay or locate here and even "assisting" economic development by starting up state-owned railroads and canals. The legislature approved public handouts for sugar beet producers, silk manufacturers, and sheep raisers, among others, "to increase the home market."

In barely a decade, the state's interventions were widely regarded as colossal, expensive failures — so much so that the state's constitution was rewritten in 1850 to excise state government from virtually all economic development. The relevant passage from the Michigan Constitution of 1850 read, "The State shall not subscribe to or be interested in (emphasis mine) the stock of any company, association, or corporation [t]he State shall not be a party to or interested in any work of internal improvement, nor engaged in carrying on such work" In the absence of subsidies, Michigan — surrounded by lakes and once thought of geographically as "the state on the road to nowhere" — went on to develop world-class industries in lumber, furniture, carriages and, ultimately, automobiles.

The clear line between "public" and "private" that Michigan established in 1850 is no longer clear. Subsequent changes in the constitution, the passage of new laws, and the creation of programs for "economic development" have blurred it considerably. While today's constitution expressly forbids the state from directly subsidizing private schools, the State seems increasingly interested in distributing millions of public dollars to private businesses. Those dollars — whether for privately owned sports stadiums or for private firms to move here from other states — are always wrapped in the alluring guise of an ostensible public purpose. Strangely, the people who cry the loudest against any subsidies to private schools are silent on subsidies to private businesses.

The Maready decision tells us where Michigan might end up if limits aren't placed on the expenditure of public funds for things like "job creation." We should be asking ourselves and our elected officials this question: Do we really want to obliterate the line between public and private, so that any seemingly worthwhile purpose can become a rightful claim on the public treasury?

Explanation is a snap

The ever-resourceful Joe Trowern, just back with wife Nancy from the Higgins Lake cottage of Pointers Bill and Carol Carleton, brings an answer to a mystery that has puzzled FYI ever since a fateful motorboat trip earlier this summer: how could I have dinged the propeller of my rented boat (to the tune of a $35 repair charge) while cruising around in the middle of a lake reputed to be as much as 135 feet deep?

The explanation is simple. It's Hig-Ee, the Lake Higgins Monster, and the Park's super sleuth is to be commended for coming up with the true cause so soon after I told him I needed it to try to get my money refunded.

"The monster was originally called Wanateka, after the local tribe of Wanateka Indians," says Joe, who managed to locate the last four members of the nearly-extinct tribe, now running a party store near Roscommon. "They told me about a giant seven-foot albino snapping turtle who swam up the Cut River into the lake to escape the Fire of 1853."

Extremely long-lived, by now the turtle is much bigger, but no one knows how big since it's so difficult to spot. "Since it's an albino, it blends in perfectly with the lake's sandy bottom," says Joe, who adds the information that Hig-Ee is probably responsible for denting thousands of boat propellers since he (or she) entered the lake.

Why propellers?

"The Indians said the turtle has a severe beak overbite," Joe says. "The best way it's found to trim it back is to bang it against propellers while they're turning."

The DNR is looking for alternative solutions, perhaps spurred by reports that smaller (but growing) versions of Hig-Ee may have found their way into Lake St. Clair.

Woods prepares for winter, buys salt

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

With the leaves on the trees just beginning to turn color, it may strike many people as a little premature to start purchasing road salt for the winter, but don't tell that to Grosse Pointe Woods director of public works Thomas Whitcher.

The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council, at its Aug. 19 meeting, approved a contract with Morton International Inc. to provide all the city's road salt needs for the upcoming winter at a cost of $29.95 per ton. The city purchased its salt last winter from Morton at a rate of $27.55 a ton.

"How much salt we use on the roads depends, of course, on the weather," said Whitcher. "But we can expect to use between 1,200 and 1,700 tons of salt on our roads this winter. That's a cost to the city of between $35,940 and $50,915."

One of the advantages of reaching an agreement now, said Whitcher, is that the city gets its salt at a better rate than if it waited until the first snow.

"This is also a good contract because it allows the city to purchase an unrestricted amount of salt," Whitcher said. "There are no minimum amounts or overage charges."

Many communities purchase their salt from the state,

Whitcher said, and the state offers two rates, an early bid rate and a late bid rate. The early bid rate, for orders taken in July or August, is a little cheaper than the rate the city obtained from Morton, probably $2 or $3 a ton cheaper, he said.

But in order to get that rate, the city has to submit a target figure of the amount of salt it will agree to purchase. Once that amount is agreed on, it can purchase between 80 percent and 120 percent of the target figure from the state.

"If it's a real snowy winter, we might have to purchase more than 120 percent of the agreed amount of salt," Whitcher said. "If it's a light winter, we might only have to use 70 percent of the agreed amount, meaning we would have to buy and store salt we didn't need or would use until the next winter."

By entering into a contract with Morton, the city can purchase as little or as much salt as it wants to, avoiding the chance of running out or having to maintain an expensive inventory.

Whitcher said that the Woods uses salt for its road because, in the long run, it's cheaper.

"There is a downside to salt," said Whitcher. "It does corrode metal. If the Woods were a rural community, I would recommend sand, which has a higher per ton cost, because it does less damage to roads, vehicles and bridges."

But, Whitcher said, sand is a heavy soil that does not wash away easily. Just look at a beach. If the city spread sand on the streets, he said, it would clog up the sewer lines, causing the flooding of basements. The city would also have to have the sewer lines cleared twice as often as it does now, which would be very costly to taxpayers, he said.

The Woods council also approved the purchase of two new dump trucks for $131,874, minus the $18,100 trade-in for the two old trucks.

"We joined up with Harper Woods to purchase dump trucks," Whitcher said. "Each city is buying two trucks, and by going in together, we were able to get a better rate."

The contract was awarded to Bostick GMC Truck Center, said Whitcher. The trucks will be used for a variety of purposes, including hauling broken concrete away from construction sites, hauling concrete and cold patch and the spreading of salt on city streets.

"It may only be September, but winter is just around the corner," said Whitcher. "We may not like to think about it, but it pays to be prepared."

Construction of separated sewer lines will begin on the above streets starting on Oct 1. While city officials have tried to make construction as unobtrusive as possible, it is recommended that drivers find alternative routes whenever possible.

Programs

HeartPower, the American Heart Association's new preschool and middle school supplementary kits, will be provided to Michigan schools beginning this fall.

Created and classroom-tested by more than 100 educators, HeartPower aligns with common preschool, elementary, and middle school curriculum goals in four key areas: Learning how the heart works; nutrition; fitness; and resisting tobacco.

HeartPower builds on the success of the AHA's previous School site Program which has reached more than 78 million students since its launch in 1985.

HeartPower provides teachers with multiple teaching options, from beginning each day with a short Heart Starter activity to investigations and full theme units based on highly motivating literature.

For more information on HeartPower and other AHA school programs, call (810) 557-9511. The AHA web site is at <http://www.amhrt.org>.

Class teaches all about macular degeneration

Brian Joondeph, M.D., will facilitate a discussion on macular degeneration on Wednesday, Sept. 18, from 1 to 2 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The program is co-sponsored by the War Memorial and the St. John Hospital and Medical Center Guild.

Macular degeneration is the major cause of vision loss in Americans over the age of 50. Although it rarely leads to total blindness, it can cause permanent loss of central vision. Knowing the risk factors and warning signs is important for early diagnosis and potentially sight-saving treatment.

What causes macular degeneration? What options are open to those who have already experienced vision loss? Your questions will be answered during this one-hour program. Joondeph will repeat his presentation at the War Memorial on Monday, Oct. 7, from 7 to 8 p.m. The fee is $3 a person. Call (313) 881-7511.

Familiar face in school district is new principal at Kerby school

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Debbie Hubbell said her first day at Kerby Elementary School was the most fun she has had in years — probably since she was an elementary school student.

"It was quite a day," said Hubbell last Thursday, the second day of school at Kerby, where she is the new principal. "The kindergarten teachers brought their children into my office and they looked around, and touched everything and I said to them, 'You can come back any time.' One of the boys looked at me and asked, 'Are you sure?' I think he had his eyes on my swivel chair."

Hubbell has been employed by the Grosse Pointe Public School System for 17 years.

She most recently was assistant principal at Parcels Middle School, where, she said, invitations to the principal's office are regarded by the students as more of a challenge than an act of congeniality.

"Young children are so enthusiastic and loving," she said. "Middle school kids I also enjoy, but a lot of people have no fondness for adolescents. You have to have a certain sense of humor with them. Be firm, but don't back them into corners. You can't waver either, because then they'll walk all over you."

Hubbell said the transition to Kerby has been smooth. The position became available last January when Nancy Salamas, who had been principal since 1992, died of complications from a rare blood disorder. Retired administrator Alfreda Frost filled in for the remainder of the school year.

"Both Nancy and Alfreda left everything in wonderful shape," Hubbell said. "The community, also, has been fantastic. Dozens of people offered to help me. The PTO had a reception for me. I wanted the parents and students, who were curious about me, to meet me before school started. The first day of school should be focused on learning."

She said everyone at Kerby misses Salamas. "There are some things about Kerby that will stay the same; it's tradition. I don't feel anyone is comparing me to her. The staff knows I have a different style."

Hubbell grew up on the northeast side of Detroit, in the area of Seven Mile and Gratiot. She graduated from Osborne High School.

In those days, she said, Detroit was a wonderful place to live and her neighborhood was much like Grosse Pointe, with well-cared-for homes where children could play outside until the street lights came on and where people looked out for each other.

She earned a bachelor's and master's degree from Michigan State University. She began work on a doctorate at Wayne State University, but, she said, juggling a family and a job didn't leave room for school work. She taught in Okemos and Alpena before coming to Grosse Pointe in 1980.

Her husband, Steve, is a physical education teacher in the Detroit schools. They have three children, a son, 20, in college; a daughter, 14, at Grosse Pointe North High School; and a son in the fifth grade at Ferry Elementary School.

Goals for this year include seeing the school through the technology upgrade, which, when completed, will feature five computers in each room.

Debbie Hubbell, new principal at Kerby school, in the center, is surrounded by some of her students during a welcoming reception before school opened on Sept. 4. Greeting her are, from left, Kyle Henel, Lindy Henel, Matthew Martin, Tres bien Keena, Melissa Nurra, Claire Cunningham, Charles Keena and Leah Martin.

Welcome back

It doesn't take students and parents long to get back into the routine of the school year. Brownell Middle School students, clockwise from top left, Janine Zajac, Chapin Cole, Kristina Dabrowski, Ashley Smith and Emily MacEachern remind the school community that back-to-school night is Thursday, Sept. 19, at 7 p.m. The first gym/swim night for sixth graders is Friday, Sept. 13, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Learn about dental health

Three programs dealing with the care of the mouth and jaw — including trends, treatments and expert advice on over-the-counter products — will be offered at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial during September.

Kevin D. Prush, D.D.S., speaks Monday, Sept. 16, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on the problems associated with, and treatments for, temporomandibular joint disorder.

The temporomandibular joint is more commonly known as the jaw joint. Problems involving the jaw range from minor soreness and headaches to an inability to properly open and close the patient's mouth. Prush will discuss the causes, methods of treatment and options for management and treatment of the disorder.

Second in the series, a discussion of over-the-counter dental products, is scheduled Tuesday, Sept. 24, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Registered dental hygienist Sue Glisch takes the confusion out of purchasing homecare products that are best for you.

DNR life jacket giveaway is successful

By John Lundberg
Staff Writer

Working to promote safe boating in Michigan, the Department of Natural Resources and the Department of State concluded their third year in a life jacket giveaway for children. The DNR said last week it has received over an 80 percent response to the program.

"We have had a real successful participation (in the program)," said Lt. Lyle Belknap of the DNR. "How can you argue against a program when you are trying to save a kid's life."

The program began three years ago as a response to a new state law that mandated all children under 6 are required to wear life jackets. This year, a total of 250 life jackets were donated by AAA of Michigan, Stearns Manufacturing, Wellington Water Sports, and the DNR.

The DNR passed out 5,000 post cards, which encouraged young boaters to join in a drawing to win the free life jackets. Belknap said the DNR received over 4,000 responses from that inquiry.

The DNR patrolled the water to give kids a chance to win. Last year, young boaters in the state received 236 life jackets — up from 75 given during the first year of the program.

"This promotion is our way of letting Michigan boaters know it's important to wear a life jacket on board," said DNR director K.L. Cool. "We want to encourage people to be safe on the water."

Belknap said over 80 percent of all boating fatalities are attributed to people not wearing life jackets. According to state statistics, Michigan is No. 1 in the nation with registered boats, with 935,000 on file. In addition, the state is second nationally in the sale of boating accessories.

"A lot of people would be alive today (if they had been wearing life jackets)," Belknap said.

Children who won life jackets will be notified in late August and early September. The DNR was selected to coordinate the promotion because it is responsible for enforcing boating regulations on Michigan waterways.

"With so many people on the water," said Michigan secretary of state Candice Miller, "we need to remind everyone that it only takes a moment to put on a life jacket."

For more information on water craft registration and safe boating in Michigan, copies of the 1996 Michigan Boater's Guide are available statewide at all DNR offices, secretary of state branch offices, and local sheriff's departments.

"Wearing a life jacket can save your life, even if you're a good swimmer," Miller said.

'Lawn order'

Patrol units received a report that someone had broken into the garage of a home in the 1100 block of Nottingham at about 11:15 p.m. Monday, Sept. 2, and had taken a lawn mower.

Police began to search the area when they received another report of a lawn mower theft, this time in the 1300 block of Somerset.

A patrol unit investigated, and spotted a suspect, who was apprehended after a brief foot chase.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

The suspect is being held in lieu of $20,000 bond and has been charged with two counts of larceny from a building.

Mass appeal

Detroit police captured a suspect who allegedly stole a four-door Plymouth Acclaim from the parking lot of St. Clare of Montefalco Church on Saturday, Sept. 7, between 3:50 and 4:50 p.m.

A Mass was being celebrated at the time of the theft.

The car was recovered parked in the 1200 block of Hampshire in Detroit at about 1 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 9. Details as to the fate of the suspect were not made available to Park police at press time.

Grand theft

A 1996 Jeep Grand Cherokee stolen from in front of a home on the 1400 block of Kensington was found stripped in Detroit at the corner of Georgia and Winfield.

The vehicle was taken between 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 5 and 7:15 a.m. Friday, Sept. 6.

Detroit police reported that the airbag, battery radio and tires were missing. Police are continuing to investigate.

City woman and son are evicted again from Fisher Road home

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

For the second time in 28 months, the belongings of a Fisher Road woman and her son have been placed at the curb.

Two years ago, Wayne County sheriff's bailiffs removed items from Margaret Howell's home because taxes on the home had not been paid since 1988. Two weeks ago, City of Grosse Pointe municipal court officials evicted Howell, 81, and her son George, 53, this time because payments on the mortgage had not been made in two years.

"This was a mortgage foreclosure. The taxes also have not been paid, but not long enough for an eviction," said City manager Tom Kressbach. "We've been trying to work with her, but it hasn't been too successful."

Over the weekend, City officials picked up the Howell's items that were placed at the curb, as well as a non-working car, and took them to the City's public works yard.

"We had offered to take the materials and car to a rental place of her choice for no charge, but she declined," Kressbach said. "The items are still in our vehicles, but we can't tie the vehicles up too much longer. We need to use them."

"Everyone around them — the city, the church, family and friends — has tried to help them, but they are refusing help," said the Rev. Gordon Mikowski, associate pastor at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. "I have been trying to have government social services work with them."

Mikowski arranged to have the Howells stay in a rescue mission the first night after they were evicted. Since then, a friend has paid for them to stay at a motel in Macomb County.

"Macomb County protective services said they cannot help the Howells until they are roaming the streets homeless," Mikowski said. "Protective services is walking a fine line. People have the right to refuse help and become homeless."

In 1994, Howell disputed the City's assessment of her home, saying that it was 27 square feet smaller than the city had listed it, and therefore should have a lower assessed value.

"She sent us a letter in 1991 asking us to list the home's size at 1,014 square feet, not at 987 square feet," said City assessor Dennis Foran in 1994. "Then she wondered why we did it." Despite a slight reduction given to Howell by the Michigan Tax Tribunal, she chose not to pay the tax on her home, which was valued in 1994 at $224,460. When taxes have not been paid over a three-year period, a bidder can acquire the home for the cost of the back taxes owed.

Donald P. Howard bought the $40,000 tax bill, which gave him the deed to the property. He then decided to let the Howells stay in the home, providing the $40,000 was paid back. Margaret Howell took out a mortgage to cover the $40,000, but never made any payments to the mortgage company. The mortgage company subsequently sold the home to another buyer.

The best-case-scenario for the Howells, in Mikowski's opinion, would be for Macomb County to appoint a guardian to manage the Howell's financial matters and have them live in an apartment.

The Eastside Republican Club monthly forum resumes Tuesday, Sept. 17, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The featured speaker will be former state Sen. Bill Ballenger, editor of the Lansing newsletter "Inside Michigan Politics."

"We're fortunate to have Bill Ballenger break away from his busy election-year schedule to speak," said John Stempfle, chairman of the Eastside Republican Club. "His insights on state elections and Michigan's role in the presidential campaign should be of interest to all."

A CALL TO EVACUATE

Any time that an automobile's air conditioner loses all its refrigerant or if the system is opened for any reason, it should be evacuated before adding more refrigerant. This means that air and moisture must be pumped out of the system. Otherwise, air left in the system increases pressure and reduces cooling efficiency, while leftover moisture reacts with the refrigerant to form hydrochloric acid which eats away at system components. Moisture left in the system may also freeze to block the flow of refrigerant and temporarily shut down cooling. By attaching a vacuum pump to the system and running it for at least 30 minutes, all moisture in the system can be boiled off and evacuated from the system. This procedure requires specialized equipment.

Taking care of your air-conditioning system can help ensure that it is working when you need it to be so you can ride in comfort. At RINKO TOYOTA, we have a great lineup of new cars at prices you can afford. Car technology is always changing; we stay on top of it. We deliver quality service and quality products — always. When you need our assistance, we're just a phone call away. Call 758-8000, or visit us at 25420 Van Dyke today! We have the assistance you require. And we have the service that make the difference!

Hint: The air conditioning system cannot be properly evacuated by using the car's compressor, which can lead to damage of the compressor.

Restyled Lexus ES 300 bows with lower price

The ES 300 is Lexus' bread-and-butter nameplate.

But we're not talking diet Fleischman's with Brownberry wheat. This is more like the pull-apart cheese rolls and little spheres of real butter the media was served at meals surrounding last week's introduction of the 1997 Lexus ES 300 at Keswick Hall near Charlottesville, Va.

A refined setting for the top-selling product of Toyota's luxury-vehicle division, Lexus. A make that, in just a few short years, has already become a benchmark in several ways in the industry.

It may not have been in the best taste modesty-wise, but the Lexus team arranged to have all the J.D. Power automotive quality awards it has raked in sitting in plain sight in the hallway leading to the elevator and a well-dressed coffee-and-juice station. That's just outside the billiards room.

Enough of interior decorating, name-dropping and thoughts of white-clothed dining tables set with heavy silver and glass bowls of perfect, full-blown blush-colored roses and feathery Queen Anne's lace.

We were there to inspect the 1997 Lexus ES 300 and to learn about its added features and comforts. Other members of the Lexus family took small bows, including the flagship LS 400, which will offer side air bags in 1997 mounted in the seats instead of doors as in some competing models.

"Lexus ES 300 is not a near-luxury car, it's not a junior bigger car or an aspirational vehicle," said Lexus general manager Jim Press. The mid-size sedan, which will reach about 40,000 sales in 1996, claims full membership in the luxury vehicle market segment.

"This year (1996) was the fifth year for this model," Press said. "It's difficult to sustain interest in a car after five years, yet this past August it had its best-ever sales for the month."

Referring to the '97 ES 300 as a "four-door coupe," Lexus has attempted to fulfill the wishes of customers and prospects by making the car more fun to drive. Engine output is up 12 hp to 200 hp; a soft-to-sporty dial-controlled Adaptive Variable Suspension with 16 damping settings is available. In addition to its increased engine performance, the car itself is an example of more little miffed, Lexus general manager Press said the division will handle each situation as it occurs.

haps a drop of perspiration. The car is, as you would expect, very quiet.

We didn't really notice much difference between soft and sport suspension settings. Virginia roads, friends, in no way resemble the local (Detroit-area) variety.

Our porter from Keswick Hall told us this lovely state — birthplace of so many U.S. presidents — is it seven? — uses its tax dollars to keep the roads in good repair.

It was raining during much of the test time and, unfamiliar with the roads, we were in no hurry to put the new vehicles through their paces on the lanes or shoulders of the highways.

Another reason to drive conservatively was the fact that on most portions of our 90-minute road test we had a real live Lexus guy in the back seat, including a stint with the boss, Jim Press.

They spoke of their product confidently — not boastfully, but apparently satisfied that their car is the best in the world. And not best for the price. Just best.

It is hard to argue about the price.

The ES 300's tag of $29,900 is a couple thousand less than last year, but is a better value, they say.

Other prices on '97 models announced by Lexus include a tag of $52,900 for the top-of-the-line LS 400; $45,700 for the GS 300 luxury sport sedan; and $48,450 for the LX 450 luxury sport/utility vehicle.

for less. That is, the 1997 model is over 2 inches longer than its predecessor and has a 2-inch-longer wheelbase. Rear legroom has been stretched by over an inch. Lexus claims backseat passengers have more room to stretch their gams than counterparts in a BMW 5-Series, Mercedes-Benz E-Class or even a M-B standard wheelbase S-Class.

The powerplant is a 3.0-liter all-aluminum V-6. Not a new engine, it is a 3/4-size replica of the Lexus V-8. Lexus says its bore and stroke dimensions are nearly identical and horsepower and torque figures are virtually 3/4 those of the V-8.

Larger than the 1996 model, and lighter by 78 pounds, the new ES 300's body structure is 30 percent stiffer, Lexus says. There is a center rear 3-point safety belt. New multi-reflector headlights provide 18 percent more light.

While its styling changes are a bit subtle for many to notice, the ES 300 is sure to attract buyer attention with its price. The new model starts at a manufacturer's suggested retail price of $29,900. This is a few thousand dollars under the comparable previous model of $32,400. When one reporter asked if customers who had recently paid more for a '96 might not be just a

Out on the central-Virginia two-lane roads and the Interstate, the new ES 300 fit right in. It keeps up or goes ahead in a refined manner. There will be no neck-snapping acceleration or growling exhaust system here, but it seems to be OK to sport a few loose strands of hair and per-

The newly styled Lexus ES 300 sports crisp, more tailored lines combining the aerodynamic slippery look of recent years with sharp surface features.

The truth about cherries — more or less

By David Juday
Special Writer

Michigan farmers are among the top 10 producers of about 40 different crops. They lead all other states in at least a half-dozen.

Surprisingly, however, some Michigan farmers are looking to cut back on their lead in at least one category—tart cherries.

The tart cherry growers of Michigan are the biggest producers of cherries for pie fillings, jellies, jams, and juices.

Last year's production was so high—in large part because of ideal weather—that many producers now want the federal government to impose a "marketing-order" to limit future supplies.

Through these orders, producers can not only fix the volume that is allowed onto the market, they can also regulate the color, size, and shape of the commodity.

Under a proposed marketing order that may soon be established, tart cherry growers would limit their annual production to no more than 110 percent of the preceding three years' average.

Agricultural marketing orders started in 1937. They were thought of as a way to keep the supply of perishable crops steady at a time when refrigeration was not yet reliable, transportation was sometimes slow and difficult, and cross-country market information was sketchy at best.

Today, advances in refrigeration, transportation, and communications combined with breakthroughs in plant physiology have produced a very different situation.

The very nature of tart cherries and their ultimate use also call into question the purpose of marketing orders.

Grown primarily in Washington state, sweet cherries sold as fresh produce operate under a marketing order, just like California navel oranges that consumers buy in the grocery store.

Tart cherries, however, are not sold as fresh produce but rather are processed into value-added products like Florida orange juice.

Long ago, and for good reasons, Florida orange growers rescinded their participation in a federal marketing order: they knew that artificial limitations on supply would hurt the state's citrus industry in the long-term.

The proposed cherry marketing order could actually cause more long-term damage to the industry than did last year's over production or even this year's unexpected late frosts.

Food manufacturers who face declining quantities and increasing prices for cherries will steer clear of innovation and the marketing of new products made from cherries.

Ultimately, the higher prices caused by a marketing order could erode even the existing markets for stalwarts like juice, jelly, and pie filling. Developments like that could also hurt jobs in related, non-farm businesses in small towns across Michigan.

Economist James Bovard, in his remarkable 1989 book, "The Farm Fiasco," says this about federal marketing orders: "While the federal government spends tens of thousands of dollars a year imposing restrictions on spearmint farmers, peppermint farmers are allowed to grow and sell as much as they choose. . . . The USDA forces farmers to abandon most of their fresh lemons, while the entire fresh lime crop is sold on the market without disruption. . . . Avocados were under strict marketing orders until 1973.

After controls were lifted, the real price of avocados fell by 23 percent and avocado consumption increased fourfold: Both producers and consumers were better off."

Consider the example of peanuts. They are regulated by an inflexible program that, like a marketing order, limits production and inflates prices.

That fact, plus heightened concern about fat content, has prompted U.S. food manufacturers to move away from developing and marketing products that include peanuts.

Since 1990, food use of peanuts has declined almost 10 percent. Snack food uses of peanuts have declined more than 11 percent.

Production of peanut butter, the largest single food use of peanuts, is down nearly 19 percent. The net effect of a new marketing order for tart cherries could be similar.

On the other hand, with a plentiful supply of fruit, the so far successful research into a hamburger additive made of cherries could yield big dividends for Michigan in the global market.

In the emerging economies of the Far East, the potential for "cherry burgers" and other innovative products seems especially promising.

Ironically, the cherry marketing order proposal comes at a time when global demand for consumer-ready food products is at an all-time high.

While U.S. producers are considering schemes to restrict production, Europeans are targeting the fast growing Asian market for advertising and marketing promotion of their canned tart cherries and pie fillings.

Last year's bumper crop and low prices caused some problems for Michigan tart cherry growers, but artificial controls on supply backed up by the federal government are not a dependable answer.

Senior Men honor 20-year members

Recently, 12 members of the Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe were awarded their 20-year pins. The significance of the event is that these men could only join the club after they had retired. They have experienced a good deal of ripening. Shown, from left, are Bill Bradley, Al Fackerell, Dominic Rossi, Kramer Foster, Rudy Oilla, Armand Kerber and George Dufour. Missing are Wallace Bohn, Al Handlos, John Paulson, Don Schaerer and Donald Vandebunte.

Senior Men honor past presidents

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe recently honored its past presidents. The club has been in existence since 1959 and of the 13 past presidents who are still living, 11 were able to attend the recognition luncheon. Pictured above, from right, are Lawrence Kennedy, Wilbur Baetz, William Bradley, Robert Waters, Frank Welcenbach, Donn Kipka, Harlan Hagman, William Lane, William Montgomery and Kennard Jones. Missing are Robert Trinklein, Joseph Geisinger and Harold Meinke.

School board praised, chastised for music director's reinstatement

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Despite the announcement made by the Grosse Pointe school board on Sept. 4 that a public meeting is not the proper forum to discuss and resolve personnel issues, people for and against music teacher Ralph Miller's reinstatement at South High School packed the room.

Miller, who has worked for the district for 17 years as band and orchestra director at the high school, was told on Aug. 16 that he was being transferred, involuntarily, out of South. A reassignment was to be announced before the opening of school on Sept. 4.

Parents, students and former students protested Miller's reassignment.

After receiving additional information after the decision was made, the administration announced on Sept. 3 it would rescind Miller's transfer.

"You have a roomful of happy families now that Miller is back on the job," said Brad Birch of the City of Grosse Pointe.

But at least two people in the audience, whose comments were supported by the applause of about a half-dozen audience members, disagreed with Miller's reinstatement.

"I'm very concerned that my students are not learning," said Marcy Chanteaux, a Grosse Pointe Park music teacher and acting principal cellist for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. "Why not bring in a strings specialist to be in charge of the orchestra? The school needs a challenging and inspiring program."

Chanteaux said she has heard from some of her students that Miller discourages involvement in state competitions because they're "rigged."

But student Sarah Chopp said Miller gives the students the choice of whether to enter competitions.

"Competitions take up too much time," she said. "They are not 'rigged.' A lot of what's being said is not true."

Parent Ron Jimison of Grosse Pointe Park said he had "serious concerns about the program offered here (at South)," that it is "not up to standards."

Although the Miller situation was not on the board's agenda and board members reminded the audience they could not discuss specifics of the matter, trustees used the dialogue to help clear the air of several misconceptions.

Superintendent Suzanne Klein said there is not a marching band at South high this year.

Some audience members said they heard a deal was cut that Miller would get his job back in exchange for a marching band.

"There is no money budgeted at North or South for this," Klein said. "We will look at the options. Some students have shown interest in it but at this point it's not going to happen."

"Questions were raised about the use of an outside mediator," said board president Tim Howlett. "We certainly understand those questions."

That was not a board decision and it was not (personnel director) Gene Washchuk's decision. I have a high level of confidence in Mr. Washchuk. Dr. Klein has been the interim superintendent since the beginning of July and she has the absolute confidence of the board in the way she has handled every situation."

Board secretary Jack Ryan said he received many calls on the issue and found that most people accepted that it couldn't be discussed publicly.

A person's life span may soon top the century mark, thanks to science

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

The years fly by as swiftly as a dream. The long path of life that seemed to stretch forever, shortens into "how much is there left to go?"

As the vista narrows and shortens, we look for ways to extend the journey. If it is possible to create life in a test tube, why then can't scientists make it possible to extend that life to the limit of the human life span, which according to some experts, is around 110 years?

Scientists are working on it. Each day they learn more about changes in the human body as it ages. But why these changes occur is still a mystery. Most scientists believe that aging is a complex process involving many body systems.

However, they still keep working toward extending the human life span. Joseph Meites, a neuroendocrinologist at Michigan State University, believes that a human growth hormone, gerentech, used in treating children with growing deficiencies, may be effective in increasing human immune function and protein synthesis in older people.

It is believed the shriveling of the thymus gland, which produces the body's disease-fighting T-cells, in adulthood is a natural part of aging.

Based on that theory, some people suggest that you can extend your life by taking large amounts of antioxidant supplements.

There is no evidence that this will work. The body's needs for antioxidants can be met by eating a variety of nutritious foods.

Another theory says that aging results from a slow build-up of damage to the DNA in body cells. DNA directs the machinery of every cell. Eventually, DNA would cause cells, then body tissues to break down or die.

Supplements containing DNA which are being sold to slow aging, cure senility and treat skin and hair changes are unless because the body can't absorb them.

It may turn out that drugs are not the only way to go to restore the decrements of old age. The immune system, which is the body's weapon for fighting disease, becomes less effective as people grow older.

This opens the way for viruses, bacteria and other disease-producing organisms.

As the immune system ages, it also tends to lose the ability to tell the difference between the body's own tissues and foreign substances.

As a result, cells of the immune system that once would attack invading organisms attack the body itself, producing disease.

Scientists are studying all of these aging theories, but even if they discover which one is correct, there is no guarantee that a way to extend life will result.

Keith Kelley, professor of immunophysiology at the University of Illinois in Urbana, contends this is not true.

"There is nothing wrong with the old thymus that can't be reversed," said Kelley. "The body has that kind of potential."

Senior women can get mammogram at mobile center

The Karmanos Cancer Institute (formerly the Michigan Cancer Foundation) will provide free or low cost mammograms for women age 50 and older at its mobile detection center.

The cancer institute will bring its van to Services for Older Citizens (SOC), 20090 Morningside, Grosse Pointe Woods, on Friday, Oct. 4, and to the Harper Woods Community Center, 19748 Harper north of Allard, in Harper Woods, on Thursday, Nov. 7.

Mature women who have not had a recent mammogram are encouraged to schedule an appointment for this important X-ray procedure. Appointments for both dates can be made by calling SOC at (313) 882-9600. Women should not forego the mammogram because they think they can't afford it. Medicare covers the full cost for mammograms for women who have not had this X-ray in the past two years. Other insurances may also cover the cost of the mammogram. For those without appropriate insurance coverage, a fee will be charged based on the woman's income.

Now is the best time for Pointe seniors to get flu shots

The Wayne County Health Department and Services for Older Citizens will once again be sponsoring two clinics for senior residents (65 and up or, under 65 with a chronic health problem) from the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods.

Flu shots and information on other health related services will be offered at both clinics. The flu clinics will be held on Friday, Oct. 4, at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside in Grosse Pointe Woods, and on Thursday, Nov. 7, at the Harper Woods Community Center, 19748 Harper, north of Allard, in Harper Woods.

Interested seniors must make an appointment. Call SOC at (313) 882-9600 between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Presented by the Assumption Cultural Center and the Metro East Chamber of Commerce, the expo will offer professional workshops, free health screenings and a complimentary luncheon provided by Kroger supermarkets and Marchiori Catering of the Assumption Center.

In addition, seniors will also be able to browse the community resource and exhibit area where many area hospitals, health care facilities, small businesses and corporations will offer important informa-

International hostilities add to stock market uncertainty

By Joseph Mengden
Stock market pundits have long claimed that the stock market discounts uncertainty of the near course, up to six months, maybe.

Last week's pyrotechnic displays of cruise missiles showering down on Iraq's southern air defenses caused an initial sell-off of some 50 points in the Dow Jones Industrials (DJI) last Tuesday (Sept. 3) at the opening bell.

The rebound began shortly after release of the National Association of Purchasing Management index of manufacturing activity in August, which rose to 52.6 points from July's 50.2, but less than the expected 52.9 forecast. This half-full, half-empty glass leaves interest rate analysts tossing the coin to guess what the Fed will do Sept. 24.

Mengden

Then the August retail sales report from Lynch, Jones & Ryan, which tracks the retail sector, said retail sales for August were up only eight-tenths of 1 percent over July, less than expected.

The Blue Chip stocks rallied, ending the day up 32 points on the DJI. Another example of a crisis situation offering a buying opportunity, even if it only lasted a couple hours.

President Clinton's message to Saddam Hussein that he must end his military moves, also included a redefinition of the no-fly zone in southern Iraq, which now begins at the Kuwait border, north to the 33rd parallel, which is near the southern outskirts of Baghdad.

President Clinton also announced that the agreement, to let Iraq export oil to raise cash for the purchase of food and medical supplies, is now frozen. Oil stocks soared as crude prices closed up $1.15 a barrel to $23.40. What's good for oil producers is bad for oil consumers. The Dow Jones Transportation Index tanked 19 points, dragging down the airline stocks.

Last week, shortened by the Labor Day holiday, witnessed the DJI bouncing down and up twice, to close at 5659.86, up 43.75 points for the week, but still 118 points below its all-time high set last May. Friday's gain of about 53 points offset Thursday's loss of 50 points.

Let's talk...STOCKS

Friday's rally was so robust that it tripped the NYSE's "circuit breakers" shortly after noon. These circuit breakers were installed after Bloody Monday in October 1987, and subsequently modified. If the DJI goes up or down over 50 points on an intraday basis, the circuit breaker shuts down certain kinds of computerized trading for a predetermined "cooling off" time.

Computerized trading, which is a highly sophisticated computer program, enables the institutional trader to simultaneously enter hundreds of sell or buy orders at the market for preselected stocks — including the entire spectrum of the Standard & Poors (S&P) 500 index. This would have been impossible in the pre-computer era, when all orders were manually executed. The cooling off period gives the specialist some time to try to balance off the buy-side vs. the sell-side orders.

Core portfolios
Most investors, when relating to their securities, mentally separate their holdings into two categories: (1) a permanent investment portfolio, and (2) a trading account.

Generally, the investment portfolio has a relatively low turnover rate, and often includes holdings acquired by inheritance (with a low tax-cost-base). The trading account typically contains a variety of "cats and dogs," turnaround situations and some "I hope it comes back" stocks, that seem forever to be out of favor.

Some investors even kid themselves by putting all profitable items (market price is above acquisition cost) into the investment portfolio, relegating all those "under water" into the trading account. This also includes the "round trippers," that somehow were forgotten to be sold at the top.

Most analysts will call the investment portfolio, described above, as the "core portfolio." Careful financial planning will determine what asset allocation levels you are comfortable with (see LTS 6-27-96). If you are pre-retirement or early-retirement age, you might have your core portfolio invested in the following stock or mutual fund categories: Growth Stocks — 50 percent; International Stocks — 10 percent; Municipal (tax-free) Bonds — 25 percent; and Cash Equivalents — 15 percent.

Remember always, diversification and liquidity are the cornerstones for a core portfolio. Maybe those smaller cap stocks should be in the trading account?

Speaking of trading accounts, did you notice how much yours has grown over the past 12 months? No wonder, the DJI is up 1,000 points, of 21.7 percent, since Labor Day 1995. Why don't you take some trading profits, pay the taxes and transfer the after-tax proceeds to the core portfolio, your retirement nest egg.

Many friends tell LTS that they "can't afford to take profits, can't afford to pay taxes." But LTS never met anyone who had gone to the poorhouse after paying taxes. And the world is full of "I wish I had sold" locked-in traders, who — as we wrote earlier — forgot to get off at the top.

The core portfolio usually contains blue chip, long-term holdings, often with substantial unrealized capital gains. Most inheritances from grandparents, parents and other relatives wind up here. As expected, turnover is minimal.

At age 50, or thereabouts, a critical planning period commences. New money is often channeled into Michigan triple-tax-exempt municipal bonds — for retirement income. But it is here, at age 50, that equity-shy investors should load up on high-quality, high-growth stocks. With 15 years to average retirement, growth stocks have an ideal matriculation period (to grow).

The ownership of equity interests, stocks and equity mutual funds, is the only way to attempt to beat inflation and income taxes, over time.

Fires big part of Thumb's history

Flames are ravaging the forests and prairies of the West, but during the autumn of 1871, fire swept across part of eastern Michigan laying claim to life, property and natural resources, primarily in Sanilac, Huron and Tuscola counties.

"A sky of flame, of smoke a heavenful, the earth a mass of burning coals, the mighty trees, all works of man between and living things trembling as a child before a demon in the gale," is how the Michigan fire of 1871 was described in a history of Sanilac County.

Small fires that broke out gradually ran together drawing dry air from inland rather than moist air from over the lakes. Wind carried chips and fragments, starting new fires. Big brush piles left by logging practices of the time added to the ferocity of the fires.

"The tree crowns left on the ground by logging operations created an enormous fuel for the fires," said Burton Barnes of the University of Michigan's School of Natural Resources and Environment. "The pine needles and stems accumulated on the ground contained heavy amounts of resin and, combined with leaves and other organic matter, burned very hot. These were not like the fires we see today, that burn hottest in the air. These fires burned hottest on the ground."

On Sunday, Oct. 8, 1871, the fire started blowing, burning, killing and devouring everything in its path. In some communities people went to bed at night, only to be aroused at midnight by the fearful cry of "Fire!" They watched their homes, farms, livestock and belongings vanish into smoke and ashes. Thousands of acres of valuable pine were gone in a matter of hours.

The firestorm forced people of Forestville onto the beach or into the water. Some took refuge in boats, covering themselves with wet blankets. In Huron County, families tried to outrun the fire. One family climbed into a wagon, covered themselves with wet blankets and headed for a mill race a half-mile away, arriving just before the wagon caught fire. The family jumped into the race, covering themselves with more wet blankets.

"It is estimated that the dwellings, household goods, clothing, winter's provisions and supplies for stock of from 4,000 to 5,000 people were destroyed and with the mills the means to supply food for these," one account reported.

Yet, with all its magnitude and intensity, the fire of 1871 did not consume all the timber, but in most places only deadened the green timber and prepared the way for a more terrible calamity 10 years later. The population was denser on Sept. 5, 1881, when a firestorm, traveled across Sanilac County in four hours leaving 150 people dead and hundreds injured.

After the fire of 1881 more than 14,000 people were made dependent on public aid, and 1,480 barns, 1,521 dwellings and 51 schools were destroyed. The 1871 fire was directly responsible for at least 300 deaths. Damage in 1881 was estimated to be in excess of $2,346,943.

Most retired women happy

Two thirds of retired women say they are satisfied with retirement, according to a recent American Express Financial Advisors survey titled, "The Money Mystique."

These high levels of satisfaction may be related to financial security. Eighty-two percent of retired women say they have been able to maintain the same standard of living they enjoyed prior to retirement. Seventy-one percent of retired women say they have done about as well financially as they thought they would.

Marital status has only a slight impact on satisfaction with retirement. Sixty-eight percent of retired married women are satisfied with retirement, compared with 60 percent for retired women who are divorced, widowed or never married. When asked whether they think retirees are better or worse off than 10 years ago, 38 percent of retired women say retirees are worse off, 31 percent say better off, while 19 percent say things are about the same. Inflation, health care costs, taxes and low interest rates are the most frequently cited reasons among those who feel retirees are worse off today.

The biggest fears of retired women? Not having enough money to maintain their current lifestyle (14 percent), a major illness (14 percent), high medical bills or lack of health plan (8 percent), boredom (5 percent) and outliving their assets (5 percent).

A substantial portion (33 percent) reported no significant fears.

International hostilities add to stock market uncertainty

By Joseph Mengden

Stock market pundits have long claimed that the stock market discounts uncertainty of the near course, up to six months, maybe.

Last week's pyrotechnic displays of cruise missiles showering down on Iraq's southern air defenses caused an initial sell-off of some 50 points in the Dow Jones Industrials (DJI)

last Tuesday (Sept. 3) at the opening bell.

The rebound began shortly after release of the National Association of Purchasing Management index of manufacturing activity in August, which rose to 52.6 points from July's 50.2, but less than the expected 52.9 forecast. This half-full, half-empty glass leaves interest rate analysts tossing the coin to guess what the Fed will do Sept. 24.

Then the August retail sales report from Lynch, Jones & Ryan, which tracks the retail sector, said retail sales for August were up only eight-tenths of 1 percent over July, less than expected.

The Blue Chip stocks rallied, ending the day up 32 points on the DJI. Another example of a crisis situation offering a buying opportunity, even if it only lasted a couple hours.

President Clinton's message to Saddam Hussein that he must end his military moves, also included a redefinition of the no-fly zone in southern Iraq, which now begins at the Kuwait border, north to the 33rd parallel, which is near the southern outskirts of Baghdad.

President Clinton also announced that the agreement, to let Iraq export oil to raise cash for the purchase of food and medical supplies, is now frozen. Oil stocks soared as crude prices closed up $1.15 a barrel to $23.40. What's good for oil producers is bad for oil consumers. The Dow Jones Transportation Index tanked 19 points, dragging down the airline stocks.

Last week, shortened by the Labor Day holiday, witnessed the DJI bouncing down and up twice, to close at 5659.86, up 43.75 points for the week, but still 118 points below its all-time high set last May. Friday's gain of about 53 points offset Thursday's loss of 50 points.

Let's talk...STOCKS

Friday's rally was so robust that it tripped the NYSE's "circuit breakers" shortly after noon. These circuit breakers were installed after Bloody Monday in October 1987, and subsequently modified. If the DJI goes up or down over 50 points on an intraday basis, the circuit breaker shuts down certain kinds of computerized trading for a predetermined "cooling off" time.

Computerized trading, which is a highly sophisticated computer program, enables the institutional trader to simultaneously enter hundreds of sell or buy orders at the market for preselected stocks — including the entire spectrum of the Standard & Poors (S&P) 500 index. This would have been impossible in the pre-computer era, when all orders were manually executed. The cooling off period gives the specialist some time to try to balance off the buy-side vs. the sell-side orders.

Core portfolios

Most investors, when relating to their securities, mentally separate their holdings into two categories: (1) a permanent investment portfolio, and (2) a trading account.

Generally, the investment portfolio has a relatively low turnover rate, and often includes holdings acquired by inheritance (with a low tax-cost-base). The trading account typically contains a variety of "cats and dogs," turnaround situations and some "I hope it comes back" stocks, that seem forever to be out of favor.

Some investors even kid themselves by putting all profitable items (market price is above acquisition cost) into the investment portfolio, relegating all those "under water" into the trading account. This also includes the "round trippers," that somehow were forgotten to be sold at the top.

Most analysts will call the investment portfolio, described above, as the "core portfolio." Careful financial planning will determine what asset allocation levels you are comfortable with (see LTS 6-27-96). If you are pre-retirement or early-retirement age, you might have your core portfolio invested in the following stock or mutual fund categories: Growth Stocks — 50 percent; International Stocks — 10 percent; Municipal (tax-free) Bonds — 25 percent; and Cash Equivalents — 15 percent.

Remember always, diversification and liquidity are the cornerstones for a core portfolio. Maybe those smaller cap stocks should be in the trading account?

Speaking of trading accounts, did you notice how much yours has grown over the past 12 months? No wonder, the DJI is up 1,000 points, of 21.7 percent, since Labor Day 1995. Why don't you take some trading profits, pay the taxes and transfer the after-tax proceeds to the core portfolio, your retirement nest egg.

Many friends tell LTS that they "can't afford to take profits, can't afford to pay taxes." But LTS never met anyone who had gone to the poorhouse after paying taxes. And the world is full of "I wish I had sold" locked-in traders, who — as we wrote earlier — forgot to get off at the top.

The core portfolio usually contains blue chip, long-term holdings, often with substantial unrealized capital gains. Most inheritances from grandparents, parents and other relatives wind up here. As expected, turnover is minimal.

At age 50, or thereabouts, a critical planning period commences. New money is often channeled into Michigan triple-tax-exempt municipal bonds — for retirement income. But it is here, at age 50, that equity-shy investors should load up on high-quality, high-growth stocks. With 15 years to average retirement, growth stocks have an ideal matriculation period (to grow).

Fires big part of Thumb's history

Flames are ravaging the forests and prairies of the West, but during the autumn of 1871, fire swept across part of eastern Michigan laying claim to life, property and natural resources, primarily in Sanilac, Huron and Tuscola counties.

"A sky of flame, of smoke a heavenly, the earth a mass of burning coals, the mighty trees, all works of man between and living things trembling as a child before a demon in the gale," is how the Michigan fire of 1871 was described in a history of Sanilac County.

Small fires that broke out gradually ran together drawing dry air from inland rather than moist air from over the lakes. Wind carried chips and fragments, starting new fires. Big brush piles left by logging practices of the time added to the ferocity of the fires.

"The tree crowns left on the ground by logging operations created an enormous fuel for the fires," said Burton Barnes of the University of Michigan's School of Natural Resources and Environment. "The pine needles and stems accumulated on the ground contained heavy amounts of resin and, combined with leaves and other organic matter, burned very hot. These were not like the fires we see today, that burn hottest in the air. These fires burned hottest on the ground."

On Sunday, Oct. 8, 1871, the fire started blowing, burning, killing and devouring everything in its path. In some communities people went to bed at night, only to be aroused at midnight by the fearful cry of "Fire!" They watched their homes, farms, livestock and belongings vanish into smoke and ashes. Thousands of acres of valuable pine were gone in a matter of hours.

The firestorm forced people of Forestville onto the beach or into the water. Some took refuge in boats, covering themselves with wet blankets. In Huron County, families tried to outrace the fire. One family climbed into a wagon, covered themselves with wet blankets and headed for a mill race a half-mile away, arriving just before the wagon caught fire. The family jumped into the race, covering themselves with more wet blankets.

"It is estimated that the dwellings, household goods, clothing, winter's provisions and supplies for stock of from 4,000 to 5,000 people were destroyed and with the mills the means to supply food for these," one account reported.

Yet, with all its magnitude and intensity, the fire of 1871 did not consume all the timber, but in most places only deadened the green timber and prepared the way for a more terrible calamity 10 years later. The population was denser on Sept. 5, 1881, when a firestorm, traveled across Sanilac County in four hours leaving 150 people dead and hundreds injured.

After the fire of 1881 more than 14,000 people were made dependent on public aid, and 1,480 barns, 1,521 dwellings and 51 schools were destroyed. The 1871 fire was directly responsible for at least 300 deaths. Damage in 1881 was estimated to be in excess of $2,346,943.

Triple play

Despite the soggy weather last Saturday and in celebration of the sunny Sunday, Grosse Pointe residents flocked to the Triple Play Plus One last weekend. At the antique fair in Grosse Pointe Park, 2-1/2-year-old Nicholas Magnotta, left, finds an antique trumpet irresistible. Meanwhile, a gathering of children and adults at the courtyard circle of the War Memorial are experiencing the magic of Joe Chesney.

Lovin' Lyle

They weren't auditioning for his "large band," but Grosse Pointe Woods resident Rich Flynn, former Grosse Pointe Farms resident Cathy Stickford and Grosse Pointe Park resident Sean Sullivan — all employees of People magazine — hung out with singer and musician Lyle Lovett at a People sales meeting in Bermuda last June.

Most retired women happy

Two thirds of retired women say they are satisfied with retirement, according to a recent American Express Financial Advisors survey titled, "The Money Mystique."

These high levels of satisfaction may be related to financial security. Eighty-two percent of retired women say they have been able to maintain the same standard of living they enjoyed prior to retirement. Seventy-one percent of retired women say they have done about as well financially as they thought they would.

Marital status has only a slight impact on satisfaction with retirement. Sixty-eight percent of retired married women are satisfied with retirement, compared with 60 percent for retired women who are divorced, widowed or never married. When asked whether they think retirees are better or worse off than 10 years ago, 38 percent of retired women say retirees are worse off, 31 percent say better off, while 19 percent say things are about the same. Inflation, health care costs, taxes and low interest rates are the most frequently cited reasons among those who feel retirees are worse off today.

The biggest fears of retired women? Not having enough money to maintain their current lifestyle (14 percent), a major illness (14 percent), high medical bills or lack of health plan (8 percent), boredom (5 percent) and outliving their assets (5 percent).

A substantial portion (33 percent) reported no significant fears.

Community Education offers fall swim classes

If other exercise programs have left you with shin splints or swollen joints, try swimming, the ideal low-impact, heart-healthy sport for all ages and abilities.

John Fundakian, Program Supervisor for Grosse Pointe Public Schools' Department of Community Education, said the health benefits of swimming have made it one of the most popular ways to stay fit and flexible.

"In the past 15 years, membership in U.S. Masters swimming teams has nearly tripled, and in the past four years the number of 45- to 55-year-olds who swim regularly has more than doubled," he said. "Swimming is a great way to keep in shape and have fun at the same time, even if you've never swam before, and it's a sport you can enjoy throughout your life."

With swimming programs for every age and skill level, Grosse Pointe Community Education can help you achieve your lifelong exercise goals, so sign up now and swim your way to fitness. (Most classes start the week of Sept. 17 or 23 and fill up fast.) Brochures describing Community Education's swimming programs and other adult and youth recreation and enrichment programs are available at all Grosse Pointe public schools; the public libraries in Grosse Pointe, Harper Woods, St. Clair Shores, and Eastpointe; the Jefferson Branch of the Detroit Public Library; the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center, and the Pointe Plaza branch of Barnes & Noble.

Water aerobics: Swimmers interested in exercise, rather than instructional or competitive swimming, can participate in one of Community Education's three water aerobics classes. Kathy Owensby's Aqua-Dynamics (Tuesday and Thursday, 6-7 p.m., 13 weeks, $92, starts Sept. 17), Jackie Beck's Swimnastics (Tuesday, 5-6 p.m., 13 weeks, $85, starts Sept. 17, or Thursday, 5-6 p.m., 10 weeks, $50, starts Sept. 19), and Amy Penny's Wet Workout (Monday and Wednesday, 7-8 p.m., 13 weeks, $100, starts Sept. 16) All three programs are held at the Parcels pool.

Beginner class for adults: Adults with little or no swimming skills can participate in this special adults-only class taught by George Bay. Don't let the fear of water keep you from enjoying the water wonderland we live in. These classes, priced at $60, start Saturday morning (8-9 a.m.) at the Parcels pool and run 10 weeks starting Sept. 28.

Beginning competitive swimming for children: Children of any age who can swim 20 yards with their faces in the water (breathing to the side only) are eligible for this class, which focuses on stroke technique and emphasizes starts and turns. Liz Stavale teaches both classes at the South pool (Tuesday, 6-7 p.m., 12 weeks, $60, starts Sept. 24, or Thursday, 6-7 p.m., 10 weeks, $50, starts Sept. 26).

Masters workout for adults: Taught by Liz Stavale, this is an organized workout for adult lap swimmers at all levels. Classes are held at the Brownell pool (Tuesday, 7:30-9 p.m., 14 weeks, $84, starts Sept. 17, or Thursday, 7:30-9 p.m., 11 weeks, $66, starts Sept. 26).

Open and lap swims: Open swims for all ages (toddlers must be toilet-trained) are available Friday, 7-8:30 p.m., or Saturday, noon to 1 p.m., at Parcels, starting Sept. 27. Drop-in fee is $3 per person.

Lap swims (lane swimming only) for adults and youth are offered on Monday and Wednesday nights (7:30-8:30 or 8:30-9:30) at Brownell. Lap swims start Sept. 16 and run 14 weeks for $104.

Lifeguard training and SCUBA diving: Swimmers who are at least 15 can enroll in Community Education's lifeguard training, taught by John Fundakian at the Grosse Pointe North pool on Saturday mornings from 7 to noon, starting Sept. 28. The class runs seven weeks and costs $175. Swimmers at least 12 years old can enroll in an entry-level SCUBA diving course taught by Beth and Jeff Jaskolski at the North pool on Monday evenings (6:30-9:30, six weeks, $70).

Supplies and text at an additional $100 to $400 are required.

Moonlight swims for adults: Late-evening swims are an ideal way to relieve stress after a long day. Liz Stavale's moonlight swims are held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 to 10 p.m. at Brownell. Classes start Sept. 17 and run 14 weeks for $100.

Senior citizen and special-needs swimmers: Residents of the Grosse Pointe school district who are at least 60 years old can sign up for Community Education's senior citizen swims taught by Jean

Festival of Arts to be Sept. 20-22 in Cultural Center

The Detroit Festival of the Arts will celebrate its 10th anniversary in the Detroit University Cultural Center from Friday, Sept. 20, through Sunday, Sept. 22. The festival will offer more than 500 performers and artists — events that feature music, dance, poetry, theatre, historic home tours, food, kids' activities and more.

Streets will be closed around the Detroit Institute of Arts and Wayne State University to make way for artists and street performers.

Some highlights: a Youth Artists' Market; street performers who juggle, ride unicycles, dance on stilts, parade with bagpipes and play the steel drums; and four performance stages offering music from ragtime, zydeco, folk and bluegrass to Latin jazz, big band boogie, roots percussion, Haitian, soca, Dixieland and blues.

Other eye-catching events include giant puppets; a children's fair; programs by the Detroit Public Library and Preservation Wayne; and ethnic food from India, Thailand, France, Italy, the American southwest and Detroit itself.

Some 130 juried artists from across the nation and Canada will display and sell their original work, including paintings, sculpture, glass, photography, clay, baskets, jewelry and more on Cass Avenue, between Putnam and Kirby, and on Kirby, between Cass and Woodward.

Tours will be available of historic East Ferry Avenue, including the interiors of the Hecker-Smiley mansion and the Beecher House. Tickets are $5. New this year: a parade of more than 300 classic cars on Woodward Avenue to salute the 100th anniversary of the automobile; the creation of a 35-ton sand sculpture; and a festival of banners designed by individuals and groups throughout the metro Detroit area.

For the second year in a row, Olivia V. Ambrogio, 15, of the City of Grosse Pointe, and Alyssa Carpenter, 16, of Grosse Pointe Park, have been selected to display their artwork at the Detroit Festival of the Arts' Youth Artists Market on Saturday, Sept. 21.

Ambrogio and Carpenter's work includes pottery, figurines and jewelry. Both are students of Gene Pluhar, ceramics teacher at Grosse Pointe South High School.

The car parade will begin at 11 a.m. on Saturday, between Warren and Ferry streets in the cultural center.

The Detroit Festival of the Arts is produced by the University Cultural Center Association and Wayne State University. It will run from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. all three days. Stage performances and art fairs are free. For more information, call (313) 577-5088.

Fashions: The Friends of Vision, a volunteer organization associated with the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology, will present its autumn fashion show and luncheon beginning at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 25, at the Lochmoor Club. The public is invited to the benefit, which will use proceeds to provide programs for the visually impaired. Fashions will be from the Jane Woodbury Shoppe. Tickets are $25 and reservations are requested by Monday, Sept. 16. For information or reservations, call (313) 824-4710.

Golf classic: The sixth annual Henry Ford II Memorial Golf Classic, a benefit for the Detroit Institute for Children, will be held Monday, Sept. 16, at the Tournament Players Club in Dearborn.

"My family and I are pleased to have this opportunity to carry on the tradition of helping children in need that my father believed in so strongly," said Grosse Pointer Edsel B. Ford II, president and COO of Ford Motor Credit Co. and honorary co-chairman of the golf benefit with Harold A. Poling, chairman and retired CEO of Ford Motor Co.

More than 60 corporations have purchased sponsorships. Since its inception in 1990, the Henry Ford II Memorial Golf Classic has raised more than $1 million for the medical and rehabilitative services and programs that the Detroit Institute for Children offers to children with all kinds of physical, developmental and neurological disabilities.

Theatre Arts tea: The Theatre Arts Club will hold its annual fundraiser, the Eva Woodbridge Scholarship Tea, from 2 to 4 p.m. Friday, Sept. 20, at the home of Ida Mae Massnick of Grosse Pointe Shores.

The Sunday Morning Classics, featuring members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, will be presented free, at 11:30 a.m. on the Wayne Stage.

During the last 40 years, the H.T. Ewald Foundation for Higher Education has helped 446 promising Detroit area high school students attend premier colleges.

Many could not have attended the colleges of their choice without the benefit of the Ewald scholarships, which range from $500 to $2,500 annually for four years, depending upon the student.

This year's winners included Timothy O'Loughlin and Andre Veasey, both Grosse Pointe South High School graduates; Jean Seo, a Grosse Pointe North High School graduate; and Aaron Montgomery, a graduate of University Liggett School.

The foundation is funded by endowments from the estate of the late founder of the Campbell-Ewald Advertising agency. The scholarships were started in 1956 by Ewald's son, Grosse Pointer Ted Ewald, who serves as foundation president.

Back to school: Eastland Center and the Children's Home of Detroit have teamed up to deliver backpacks filled with back-to-school supplies to more than 200 first-graders at MAAT Imhotep Technical Academy in Detroit.

Teens from the CHD helped stuff the backpacks with crayons, pencil boxes, pencils, rulers, erasers, and scissors. "We wanted to make sure that these kids have all the tools they need to really dive in and start learning," said Rita Similides, marketing manager for Eastland.

JCPenney also contributed to the program.

Those who care for the elderly need care too

When caring for an elderly parent or relative is added to the other responsibilities of life, a family caregiver can at times feel tired, overwhelmed and frustrated.

Nearly seven million Americans already serve as unpaid caregivers to the elderly. And as the 85-plus age group grows faster than any other population sector, the number of Americans juggling the responsibilities of caregiving will continue to grow.

More than 80 percent of family caregivers are female, 68 percent are between the ages of 40 and 59; and more than one-third are employed full time, according to a survey conducted by the National Family Caregiver Association. Plus, many caregivers fall into the "sandwich generation," where they provide for both their children and their parents at the same time. "Many family caregivers are stretched to the limits. They have responsibilities at work, in their home, for their children and for their parents. They don't have time or make time for activities that entertain or refresh the body, mind or spirit. Friendships and community involvement are sacrificed, leading to isolation," said Patricia A. Lynett, vice president and chief operating officer of Kelly Assisted Living Services, a home care provider.

"In addition, stress occurs with changing family dynamics and the responsibility of making major life decisions for parents. This can be overwhelming." Lynett listed actions that family caregivers can take to help relieve some of the stress.

- Share your responsibilities. Know when to reach out and ask for help. Ask other family members, friends or local community organizations to help you. Don't assume that you are the only one that can give your parent or relative what they need.

- Be knowledgeable. Learn new and different ways to provide care. Obtain information about your parent's health concerns from your doctor, hospital or local librarian.

- Take care of yourself. Take care of your own health and make sure you take periodic vacations. Also stick to a regular sleep schedule. Split caregiving tasks with others or hire out nighttime caregiving. Get into bed on time.

- Schedule escapes from your weekly routine, whether it be taking a long walk, reading a book or visiting with friends.

- Find a support group that will offer a safe haven and allow you to express your feelings. You can also gain information and tips from other caregivers about products, services or techniques that might be helpful.

- Visit your local senior or recreation centers to examine the activities offered for your parent. This will give your parent an opportunity to socialize with others and enjoy activities and events.

- Look into companies, such as Kelly Assisted Living, that provide short-term caregiving relief. Respite caregivers temporary replacements for caregivers who need time off from their continual care responsibilities.

"The best family caregivers are those who first learn to nurture and care for themselves. Then, they are prepared — both mentally and physically — to give caring assistance to their loved ones," Lynett said.

Kelly Assisted Living provides the personal, individualized care that many people need to live happier, healthier and more independent lives.

The company's services can be helpful to those who need a little assistance with daily living activities such as bathing, dressing, meal preparation and light housekeeping.

Celebrating its 20th anniversary of providing care and companionship, Kelly Assisted Living is a subsidiary of Kelly Services, Inc., a global provider of staffing services. New laser procedure helps people with advanced heart disease

Researchers at St. John Hospital and Medical Center are the first in the state to perform an investigational procedure for patients with advanced heart disease who are not candidates for conventional bypass surgery or coronary angioplasty.

Dr. Ali Kafi, chief of cardiac surgery at St. John Hospital, recently performed the procedure on a patient with advanced coronary heart disease. Kafi and Dr. C. Douglas Lees, cardiac surgeons, are co-investigators of the study. Dr. Theodore Schreiber, chief of cardiology at St. John, is the principal investigator.

St. John is one of 20 centers across the nation and the only center in Michigan participating in a multi-center clinical investigation of transmyocardial revascularization.

The procedure involves the use of a laser to create tiny channels in the heart muscle which may increase oxygen and blood flow to the heart.

Although studies have been limited to several hundred patients worldwide, the procedure may hold promise for appropriate candidates, according to Schreiber.

"Currently, about 20-30 percent of patients who suffer from coronary artery disease are not candidates for more traditional treatment methods," Schreiber said. "This is because they have already survived a bypass operation and/or angioplasty and are now five to 10 years down the road toward severe, progressive coronary artery disease. In the past, the only option for this particular group was medication. And while medications make the heart muscle more efficient by consuming less blood and oxygen, they do not, in and of themselves, increase the blood supply to the heart," Schreiber explained.

Preliminary studies, however, show that approximately 85 percent of patients who have undergone transmyocardial revascularization have less angina (heart pain) compared to those patients who take only medication.

Transmyocardial revascularization requires general anesthesia and a small incision between the ribs in front of the heart. The Eclipse Holmium laser system is then used to create up to 45 tiny channels into the heart muscle. The channels presumably permit fresh oxygenated blood to get from inside the heart cavity into the heart muscle itself, thus providing a new nutrient supply to the heart. The Eclipse Holmium laser system is best suited for the procedure because of its precision.

Although the procedure is investigational, Kafi is enthusiastic about the future of transmyocardial revascularization.

"Through transmyocardial revascularization, we hope to stop the progressive and relentless heart damage that one sees from advanced cases of coronary artery disease.

By potentially providing a means for improving the blood supply to the heart, we may be able to decrease or eliminate the need for heart transplantation in many cases," he says.

Mammograms = lifesavers

By Judy Sutherland
Special Writer

Mammograms are lifesavers. Modern technology and all the new quality assurance programs provide superior and safe breast x-rays.

Why, then, are east side women postponing good health?

The Wayne County Health Department reports that if every woman on the east side followed the recommended schedule for mammography, about 16,000 screening mammograms would be performed each year.

Only about one-third of that number were actually performed. Some east side women are going elsewhere for their mammograms, but it's clear that not many are getting what they should, when they should.

Additional studies showed that 30 percent of all breast cancers on the east side are not diagnosed until after they have spread. This is exactly the same percentage as for the state as a whole.

The population has been educated on the steps involved in early diagnosis of breast cancer, but facts indicate that we need to review and remind all women how easy it is to detect this deadly disease.

Judy Sutherland

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month and Lakeshore Mammography Center Inc. will be observing its tenth anniversary in Grosse Pointe Woods this fall.

This season is an excellent time to stress the importance of scheduling mammograms. Education on how to minimize risk for yourself, family members and friends is our goal as we observe our anniversary. We hope to ensure a healthier future for our communities.

What is a mammogram?

A mammogram is a special and safe breast x-ray, using very low-dose radiation.

What about breast self-exams?

Women should be instructed on how to do a breast self-exam and should do them monthly throughout their lives. Most breast centers provide personal instruction through individual training or the use of video tapes.

How much difference does it make if a breast cancer is discovered within a few months one way or the other?

It makes the difference between life and death. The American Cancer Society (ACS) reports that if a breast cancer is diagnosed before it spreads at all, there is a 96 percent likelihood of survival. If it spreads to the same region of the body, there is still a 75 percent survival rate. If it spreads distantly, the rate goes down to only 20 percent.

If you had a negative mammogram six months ago and now feel something "new" during a self-exam, should you be concerned?

Even though most breast lumps are non-cancerous, you should report any new physical findings to your physician. While mammography is the best tool we have today for early diagnosis, a very small percentage of cancers which can be felt will result in negative mammograms.

Can a patient self-refer and choose the facility where the mammogram is scheduled?

Yes, if you self-refer you need a doctor who is willing to accept the report as required by the state of Michigan. Patients must be sure to select a facility that is ACR, FDA, and state of Michigan accredited and inspected.

Lakeshore Mammography Centers are fully accredited facilities with medical teams performing services with a mission of excellence. We accept a referral slip from any doctor.

Does a mammogram hurt?

Acknowledging that women have varying degrees of pain tolerance, the breast x-ray is not painful. Patients are involved and consulted on the amount of compression they can tolerate.

How long does a mammogram take?

The mammogram is often completed in 10 to 15 minutes and requires about 30 minutes total time from registration to leaving the facility. Lakeshore Mammography Centers recognize that women's schedules must be accommodated and have implemented evening and Saturday appointments for their convenience.

Is it true that women in their 40s should not get mammograms?

Absolutely not. There is a developing philosophy that because cancers are faster growing in the 40s, it is more important to have a yearly mammogram beginning at age 40.

What can women do immediately?

Early detection can improve a woman's chance of surviving this disease dramatically. Women must do breast self-exams monthly, have a yearly exam by a health provider and have an annual mammogram.

It is recommended that a screening mammogram be scheduled at least by age 35, at least once every other year at age 40, and annually at age 50 and thereafter. If all women had regularly scheduled mammograms, 30 to 40 percent of breast cancer deaths could be prevented.

Judy Sutherland, president of Lakeshore Mammography Center Inc., operates two facilities on the east side, at 20931 Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods, (313) 884-3133; and at 39200 Garfield, Suite A, in Clinton Township, (810) 228-8000.

Walter Guevara, MD, board certified psychiatrist and Charlene McPeak, MSN, RN, CNS in child and adolescent psychiatric nursing, will address the issues of ADD and ADD/HD in children and adults.

Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD): Help is available

The beginning of a new school year brings to mind the necessity for parents and educators to recognize the characteristics of the attention deficit disorder (ADD) or attention deficit disorder/hyperactivity disorder (ADD/HD) student and to respond appropriately to the student's special needs.

To help parents understand these disorders, Henry Ford Cottage Hospital is presenting a free community program on ADD and ADD/HD on Thursday, Sept. 19, from 7 to 8:30 p.m., in the lower level boardrooms of Henry Ford Cottage Hospital.

The hospital is located at 159 Kercheval Avenue, one mile south of Moross in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Walter Guevara, MD, board certified psychiatrist and Charlene McPeak, MSN, RN, CNS in child and adolescent psychiatric nursing, will address the issues of ADD and ADD/HD in children and adults, including changing hormones, use of medication, performance in the classroom and the psychological transition into adulthood.

For many ADD and ADD/HD students, summer vacation disrupts the medication pattern of the previous school year.

This free community program is designed to provide parents and teachers with tools to enable them to respond proactively to the challenge of the ADD and ADD/HD student.

Topical literature will be available for home reference and a question and answer period will follow the speakers' presentation.

To register for attention deficit disorder/hyperactivity disorder, call (313) 640-2244, by Monday, Sept. 16.

Days of awe

By Roger M. Skully

Grosse Pointe Jewish Council

Rosh Hashanah literally means the head of the year. It is the prelude to the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur.

Both Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur are different in atmosphere from other Jewish festivals. In all other festivals the spirit is one of exalted joyfulness. The exaltation of Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur, however, has no traces of joy. These are very serious days with a feeling of the heavy moral responsibility which life puts on all.

The days of awe are not concerned with nature or with events in the historic past. They are concerned only with the life of the individual, with his religious feelings and innermost probings.

In contrast with our January New Year, it is greeted not with noise and joy, but with a serious and contrite heart. Introspection is the order of the day. Shortly after the time of the destruction of the second temple, Rosh Hashanah acquired most of its current trappings, including the blowing of the "shofar," a ram's horn to mark the seriousness of the day. Of all the prayers and poetical insertions that were added to the Rosh Hashanah services, none became as popular as the "un'saneh Tokef."

This poetic prayer gives the most vivid picture of Rosh Hashanah as the day of God's judgment of the world. It is the most earnest and awesome in the day's liturgy.

"Let us proclaim the sacred power of this day; it is awesome and full of dread.

For on this day, Your dominion is exalted. Your throne established in steadfast love; there in truth you reign.

In truth you are

Judge and Arbitrator, Counsel and witness.

You write and You Seal, You record and recount.

You remember a deed long forgotten,

You open the book of our days, and what is written there proclaims itself, for it bears the signature of every human being . . .

so do You muster and number and consider every soul,

setting the bound of every creature's life and decreeing its destiny.

On Rosh Hashanah it is written, on Yom Kippur it is sealed . . .

But repentance, prayer and charity temper judgment's severe decree . . .

But You are the king

the Everlasting God!"

As we look forward to the coming year, we pray that all will be remembered for a blessing in the "Book of Life."

Services will begin at 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 13, as we begin the Hebrew Year 5757.

Meet, via their pages, a trio of crime novelists

"The Poet"

By Michael Connelly
Little, Brown. 435 pages.
$22.95

"Tularosa,"

By Michael McGarrity
W. W. Norton. 304 pages. $25

"Malice Prepense"

By Kate Wilhelm
St. Martin's Press. 412 pages.
$24.95

During the summer I met, via their pages, for the first time a trio of entertaining writers whose specialty is the crime novel. These books offered generous dollops of suspense, excitement, and credible characters, all of which combined to make notable reading pleasures.

Michael Connelly is a veteran journalist who was once a police reporter for the Los Angeles Times. One of his previous four acclaimed novels won the Edgar Award. If this, his latest effort, fails to capture an award, I will be very surprised and disappointed.

The Poet is a dastardly clever criminal, an ardent fan of Edgar Allan Poe, who brashly sends advance warnings of his next kill to the police or leaves notes on the bodies of his victims. To make this case even more tantalizing, the Poet copies certain poetic phrases from Poe's own work with hints as to his future plans.

The intrepid hero of this wheels-within-wheels tale is Jack McEvoy, a crime reporter for the Rocky Mountain News in Denver, who has been galvanized to hunt down the elusive serial killer after his own brother is found dead, presumably a suicide.

Later McEvoy doubts that his brother, a policeman, has taken his life, even though he had been known to be depressed about a recent grisly murder that he had been unable to solve.

Jack decides that the best way to quench his grief is by writing a feature on police suicides. During his probing for clues, Jack discovers that the FBI and the local police are very active in this investigation, and, in spite of their thwarting tactics, he discovers, on his own, some very startling facts which eventually puts him firmly on the tortuous trail of The Poet. Readers will find this psychological thriller absolutely riveting and almost impossible to put down.

"Tularosa" is Michael McGarrity's first entry into the crime novel field, and it is an auspicious debut. The author writes from his previous experiences with the Santa Fe Sheriff's Department. His novel is full of colorful scenes of the panoramic vistas of New Mexico, which gives atmosphere to the plot.

Kevin Kerney, after being badly wounded in a gunfight, is forced to retire as chief of detectives in the Santa Fe Police Department. His hope to rebuild his life as a rancher is sidetracked when his friend, Terry Yazzi, a Native American, asks him to find his missing son, Sammy, a soldier stationed in the high-security White Sands Missile Range.

In order to accomplish this task, Kerney must track clues that lead deep into the histories of the region — Indian, Hispanic and Anglo — and this investigation takes him to the Tularosa Basin where he was born and raised on the family ranch until the Army took the land for the missile range.

At the Range, Kerney meets a young officer, Captain Sara Brannon, who is as formidable as she is attractive. Kerney is able to persuade her to allow him 24 hours on the base to trace down Sammy.

There are other officers on the base, but particularly one who endeavors to throw Kerney off the track and refuses to cooperate. But Kerney, with Sara's increasing willingness to help, pursues doggedly on his quest, overcoming one pitfall after another. At the end, both must fight fiercely to save their lives after being confronted by their opponents. The resolution is guaranteed to leave readers literally gasping over all the colorful drama enacted before them. New Mexico reveals its magnificent splendors and mysterious secrets of the desert.

Finally, we come to "Malice Prepense," a fine court-room drama. Kate Wilhelm, the author, is a well-seasoned pro with more than 30 novels and short story collections to her credit. This is the third Barbara Holloway mystery novel, carrying forth her adventures as a lawyer and shrewd investigator of puzzling cases.

Teddy Wendover is a retarded adult of 28 but with the mind of an 8-year-old, who is accused of murder. The victim is Harry Knecht, an Oregon congressman, who is discovered battered by rocks. The Wendover family know him and Teddy has a noted penchant for collecting rocks, and this, of course, stirs up unwanted publicity and notoriety for the family.

They believe, naturally, in their son's innocence but a number of clues and incidents seem to point to Teddy. They hire their friend, Barbara Holloway, to represent them. She and her father, Frank Holloway, also an attorney, collaborate to defend Teddy. When he is cleared, his father Ted falls under suspicion and is jailed.

The plot thickens delightfully. The aura of doom swirls over the heads of the Wendovers. During her research, Barbara discovers somehow that mines are involved in this predicament. In her probing of the history of mines, most of which are idle, she meets a handsome stranger, John Mureau.

He works as a private consultant for federal agencies or individual companies that mostly deal with mining operations. Together they have some close shaves by those who resent their snooping.

However, everything comes together to a satisfying conclusion — but not before the Holloways, the Wendovers and John Mureau undergo ordeals that try their faith in the judicial system. With well-rounded and interesting characters, along with a fast-paced plot, the author stirs readers to keep turning the pages faster and faster.

Historical Society plans talk on history of car companies

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society will feature local author and engineer Robert G. Szudarek on Thursday, Sept. 19, at 7:30 p.m., at the Children's Home of Detroit, 900 Cook Road in Grosse Pointe Woods, to discuss "How Detroit Became the Automotive Capital."

Szudarek's lifelong love of the automobile led him to research and write his self-published book in time for the 100th Anniversary of the Automobile.

"How Detroit Became the Automotive Capital" tells the story of the 105 Detroit car companies that eventually became today's Big Three. It is the first automotive book to focus strictly and specifically on Detroit, Szudarek notes. Over the course of nearly 400 pages, Szudarek traces the history of Detroit auto movers and makers. Brief historical accounts of the car companies, accompanied by hundreds of historic auto photos, illustrations and advertisements, make up the bulk of the book, but other topics (such as cycle cars and why Americans drive on the right side of the road) are explored as well.

The book doesn't have an index, but names of significant people, events and objects are in bold throughout, and the book is divided into an extensive list of chronologically-ordered companies and topics identified in the table of contents.

A member of the Society of Automotive Engineers' historical committee, Szudarek says his fondness for history — automotive and otherwise — was a big help.

"I had, more or less for 20 years, continually learned about the subject of auto history," he explains. Given that background, Szudarek knew immediately what was critical to include in the book and what wasn't. Come hear for yourself the fascinating stories brought alive by Szudarek.

The program is complimentary to the public as the Grosse Pointe Historical Society continues to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the automobile. Refreshments will be served following the program. For further information call (313) 884-7010.

Garden Center gives scholarships

The Grosse Pointe Garden Center Inc. announces that two awards have been made to fulfill its commitment to the community. The funds for these awards were gained through the garden tour of 1995, which was not entirely a success due to three days of inclement weather.

The landscape award did not take its usual route of giving money to landscape projects in the Pointe area, rather because the amount was small, the board of trustees decided to put $500 in one place.

That place was the landscape project around Richard School specifically the area of the children's garden.

The Scholarship Award, offered to students in Natural Resources & Environment at U of M and Michigan State, for an advanced degree, was granted to Molly Malecek, a graduate degree student at U of M.

Utilizing the scholarship money, Malecek attended courses at U of M Biological Station in Pellston, Mich. Malecek was born in Grosse Pointe, and graduated from South High School and Cornell University.

Her mother, Josephine Malecek, was instrumental in the founding of the local unit of the Herb Society of America.

Arts and culture can make a difference in a community

"Arts and culture can make a difference in our community." This is the topic of discussion by Judy Miller, executive director of MAACA (Michigan Association of Community Arts Agencies), at an open forum Monday, Sept. 23, in the library of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

A former state representative, Miller feels: "There is a vast pool of arts and cultural resources available to Michigan communities which has developed and grown over the last several years. From

Knights hold off Trojans to win opener

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

University Liggett School's Gary Hills would be the first to admit his coaching methods are a bit unorthodox.

But for a while last Friday, even Hills was wondering if he had gone just a little too far in one of his motivational half-time talks.

"I told the kids 'if we score the first time we touch the football in the second half we'll put this game away,'" Hills said after the Knights opened the Metro Conference football season with a 21-19 victory over Clarenceville.

Little did Hills expect what would happen next.

ULS received the second-half kickoff and Brian Bruenton returned it 90 yards for a touchdown. When John Riddle kicked the last of his three extra points, Hills was really worried.

"Here we were 10 seconds into the second half and I had told the kids we had this game in the bag," Hills said, chuckling at the memory. "I turned to (assistant) Bruce Pelto and said, 'Bruce, what have I done now?'"

Hills didn't really expect the Trojans to give up and they didn't.

The Knights had trouble moving the football in the second half but the punting of Jeff Mehr kept them from having even worse field position than they did.

Clarenceville scored on a long drive to cut ULS' lead to 21-13, then the Trojans made it even tighter with a 30-yard touchdown run. Each time Clarenceville tried a two-point conversion, but each time the Trojans failed.

Clarenceville had the ball twice in the last three minutes and each time the Knights' defense came up with a big play. Jason Cooper recovered a fumble at the ULS 25 with a little more than a minute remaining.

ULS attempted to run out the clock but there was some confusion among the officials as to the number of timeouts Clarenceville had left.

"First (the referee) told us they had taken their last timeout. Then when we took a knee he told us they still had one left," Hills said.

So Mehr had to punt one more time.

Clarenceville took over on its 45-yard line and on the first play Jimmy Wood sacked the quarterback for a 10-yard loss.

On the next play, safety A.J. Stachecki intercepted a pass and time expired with the Knights clinging to their slim lead.

"Stachecki was our player of the game," Hills said. "He made 15 solo tackles and had five assists. He played like a man possessed. He's such a good tackler. He hits low with his shoulder."

Hills was pleased with the victory. It was the first time

ULS had ever beaten Clarenceville and it was the first opening game win in several years.

"It was a great win for our kids," the coach said. "It was a physical battle and at the end our guys weren't going to let it get away. I think we'll be in a lot of games right to the end. The kids believe they belong on the field with these teams. And they've earned respect in the school."

ULS opened the scoring on a 46-yard run by Kevin Espy that will surely make the Knights' season highlight film.

"It was a Heisman Trophy run," Hills said. "It was an option to the short side and he broke three tackles. It was a classic run."

Clarenceville tied the game early in the second quarter on a 30-yard run, but ULS regained the lead just before the first half ended.

William Watson raced 60 yards on a flanker reverse but was brought down a foot from the end zone. He was put in the clear on an excellent block by freshman Anthony Legree.

On the next play, Jeff Kenzie went in for the touchdown and Riddle added his second extra point. Bruenton received the Knights' "Bone Award" for his hit on a Clarenceville running back late in the first quarter.

"We had seven or eight real good licks to choose from for the Bone," Hills said.

One was a hit by Mehr right after Bruenton's tackle. This time the same back fumbled and Billy Tringale recovered for ULS.

The Knights didn't have a turnover in the contest and Hills praised the work of offensive linemen Tringale, Renard Morey-Greer, Shaun Dillon, Jason Capen and Legree.

"They did a great job of pass protection," Hills said. "(Quarterback Justin) Macksoud never got touched."

ULS hosts a strong Lutheran Westland team Friday at 4:30 p.m.

"They lost a tough two-point game to Harper Woods in their opener so they'll come in loaded for bear," Hills said.

"They have good size and quick backs. It'll be a tough test for us because they were picked to be one of the top teams in the league. But our kids will be ready to play."

The only statistic that counts was the most impressive one for Grosse Pointe North's football team.

The Norsemen managed only 221 yards in total offense against Anchor Bay in their season opener last Friday, but North came away with a 28-8 victory in the Macomb Area Conference crossover contest.

"We set up a lot of short drives with our defense and we scored quickly," said North coach Frank Sumner. "It was a good solid performance for an opener, but we have to get better."

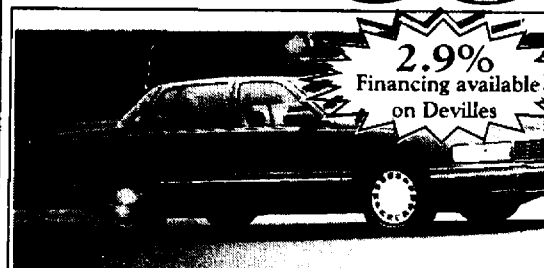

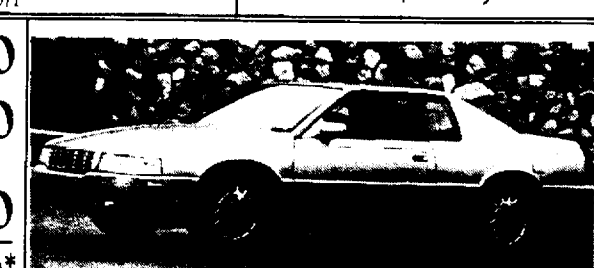

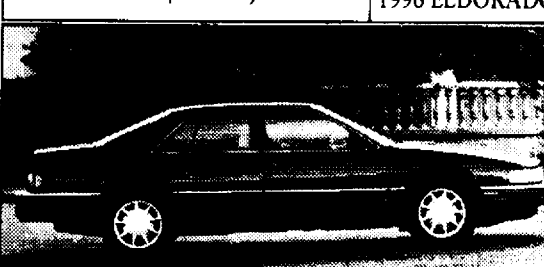

The difference in the game was the six takeaways the Norsemen had — four fumble recoveries and two intercepttions by Steve Champine.

Champine, who has been North's quarterback since he was a freshman, is playing in the defensive secondary for the first time and doing just as well as in his other duties. He also handles all of the Norsemen's kicking and averaged 36 yards on five punts in Blue Devils nipped in football opener

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

There were some encouraging signs in Grosse Pointe South's opening game loss to Notre Dame last Friday along with one major concern for coach Mike McLeod.

"We have to do a lot of work with the offensive line — and that's my responsibility," McLeod said after the Blue Devils dropped a 14-12 non-league decision to the Irish.

"We have only one experienced offensive lineman (Dave Jennings) and when we lost Al Missant (with a broken bone in his arm) early in the game it really hurt."

McLeod was a lot happier with the play of his front seven on defense and the running of Ryan Ermanni, who scored South's second touchdown on a 23-yard run with 2:23 left in the game.

"I was really encouraged with the way he ran," McLeod said. "Our other backs are kind of light for a game like this."

"I also thought our sophomore quarterback (Mike Kaselitz) did a good job for his first varsity game. My assistant coaches all did a good job of preparing the kids."

Notre Dame took the opening kickoff and marched 80 yards for a touchdown, with Rick Court going the final 14 yards on a draw play. Chris Del Papa kicked the extra point.

South got a break late in the first quarter when Dave Kazma blocked a Notre Dame punt and the Blue Devils took over on the Irish 36. But a holding penalty and an interception quickly ended the threat.

Dave Bilbrey recovered a Notre Dame fumble at the Irish 41 and eight plays later, Kaselitz hit Kazma in the corner of the end zone for a touchdown. A key play in the drive was a 16-yard run by Ermanni on third and eight from the Irish 30.

South's extra point attempt was wide and Notre Dame came out of the first half clinging to a 7-6 lead after Del Papa hit the crossbar on a 21-yard field goal attempt as time expired.

Notre Dame's Dominic Biondo recovered a Blue Devils' fumble on the South 13 midway through the third quarter and five plays later quarterback Jason Stoicevich sneaked in from the one. Del Papa added the extra point.

The Blue Devils stopped Notre Dame at the South three early in the fourth quarter and marched 97 yards in 16 plays to score on Ermanni's 23-yard run up the middle.

Ermanni had another 23-yard run in the drive that gave South a first down at the Notre Dame 33. Ermanni, who was also one of the Blue Devils' defensive standouts, finished with 95 yards in 13 carries.

South was forced to go for two points after the touchdown and Jason Lorence was stopped just short of the goal line.

The Blue Devils had one more possession, but time ran out with South deep in its own territory.

"I'm proud of the way the kids never quit," McLeod said. "The biggest thing is we have to practice the way we want to play."

Senior linebacker Ben Reynolds had an outstanding game for South, while newcomer Thatcher Sloan and senior Chris Campbell also had solid defensive efforts.

The Blue Devils host Sterling Heights Friday at 6:45 p.m. in a Macomb Area Conference crossover game.

North golfers win

Grosse Pointe North's golf team opened the Macomb Area Conference season last week with a 168-171 victory over Stevenson.

Rory Cleary and Bryan Dinverno each shot 41s to lead the Norsemen.

Junior varsity players Dave Stavale and Paul Kaye each carded 42.

Mike Benedettini and Nick Fuga, played well," Sumner said. "Anchor Bay didn't try to run anything inside against them. They were running sweeps all the time. That's why our backs had so many tackles."

Sumner was also happy with the play of the special teams.

"We had good punt and kickoff coverage and Champine had four excellent punts among his five," the coach said.

North visits Port Huron Northern Saturday at 1 p.m.

The Huskies are led by veteran quarterback Matt Schock and receiver Ken Nelson and running back Dave Stroth.

"Their quarterback is a lot bigger than the little guy at Anchor Bay and we have to make sure we keep him inside," Sumner said.

"They've beaten us the last two times. We don't want them to get the feather again."

"We have to tighten the defense and not allow any more 20-play drives," Sumner said. "Three times they had third down and long yardage and each time they just made the first down by half a yard."

North got that touchdown back in the fourth quarter when Champine picked off a pass and returned it 29 yards to the Anchor Bay 11. Two plays later, Harris scored on an 11-yard run.

Nick Aubrey had seven solo tackles among his 12 stops for North, while Mike Ciaramitaro also had 12 tackles, including five solos. Muccioli had six solos and six assists. Jesse Thibodeau also had a fumble recovery for the Norsemen.

Salvo '86 takes first at Peach Festival

It might be a rebuilding year for the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Salvo '86 travel team, but that doesn't mean the squad's going to be an easy touch for its opponents.

The Salvo was undefeated in four games as it took first place in the boys under-11 Division I at the Romeo Peach Festival soccer tournament.

Bobby Clarren, Matt Nelson and Michael Dupuis scored the goals as the Salvo beat the Rochester Thunder 3-1 in the championship game.

"We played exceptionally good defense and outshot the other team," said Salvo coach Sam Steinhelb, who also led the squad to a Peach Festival championship last year in the under-10 division.

The championship was made even more impressive by the fact the tournament was played in 90-degree heat and the Salvo had only 12 players.

Defenders Michael Romanelli, Ryan Symington, Severin Jensen and Stephen Oney played well during the tournament and goalkeeper Anthony DiLoreto also turned in an excellent performance. The Salvo reached the championship game with two ties — 0-0 against the Thunder and 1-1 with the Fraser Express — and a 2-1 victory against the Brighton Express.

The Salvo followed its tournament success with a 6-0 victory over the Clarkston Renegades in the team's regular-season opener.

Grosse Pointe scored four goals midway through the first half, then added the final two during a minute span of the second half.

Clarren scored the Salvo's first two goals as a result of fine passing by Nick Andrew, Nelson and Stephen Bahr. Paul Kossak scored the next two — the first off a corner kick by Matt Reynaert and the second after taking a pass from Romanelli.

Reynaert and Jensen teamed up to score the second-half goals. Reynaert scored off a pass from Jensen, then Jensen completed the scoring when he converted a long pass from Reynaert.

DiLoreto posted the shutout with strong defensive support from Oney, Symington and John Dallas. Shane Dallas and Dupuis also played well.

Red Barons beat Hornets in varsity opener

Grosse Pointe Red Barons quarterback K.C. Cleary threw two touchdown passes to Chandon Waller to lead the Red Barons varsity to a 27-7 victory over the St. Clair Shores Green Hornets in an East Suburban Football League game.

Waller's touchdown receptions covered 34 and 42 yards. Cleary also completed several passes to Ron Pearsons.

Mike O'Neil scored on a two-yard run and Matt Jarboe scored on a four-yarder. Jack Tocco ran for an extra point.

Jim Brosnan did a good job of filling in on the offensive line, which blocked well. Mark Peppler, Joe Frazzitta and Matt Santora had solid defensive performances, while Tocco ended the game with a quarterback sack.

The Red Barons junior varsity dropped a 14-0 decision despite the passing of quarterback Danny Keogh, who had completions of 13 and nine yards to Chris Gray.

Kyle Hacias ran well behind lead blocker Andrew Shanley. Boomer Urisko, A.J. Staniszewski, Ian North and Tim Kaselitz also blocked well in the offensive line.

Mike Monohan forced a fumble and led the defensive effort that blanked the Green Hornets in the second half. Matt Stemer, Nicholas Boehmke and Jason Kline also played well.

The freshman squad lost 12-

Zach Schmitt had a 40-yard run for the Red Barons to set up Zach Hacias' touchdown. Blocking backs Drew Bedan and Schmitt did a good job during the drive.

Ryan Fradneck, Jason Gula, Sam Titterton, Jack Watson, Chris Schwartz and Stephen Johnson did a good job blocking on the offensive line.

Scott Hobart, Vinnie Panizzi,

Daniel Lindeman and Bradley Glenn were the defensive leaders for the freshmen.

The Red Barons will host the Oak Park Trojans Sunday at 1 p.m. at Grosse Pointe North.

the opener.

North opened the scoring late in the first quarter after linebacker Blake Muccioli recovered a Tars fumble on the Anchor Bay 32. Three plays later, Leonard Harris scored the first of his three touchdowns on an eight-yard run. Chris Morkut also had a 23-yard run in the short drive.

Champine kicked the first of his three extra points to give the Norsemen a 7-0 lead.

Anchor Bay fumbled again on its next possession and North's Mike Schornak recovered at the Tars' 31. It was another three-play march with Harris scoring on a 15-yard run.

The Norsemen boosted their lead to 21-0 after Champine's first interception, which he returned 11 yards to the Anchor Bay 35. Moments later, Champine hit Joe Ellis with a 31-yard scoring strike.

Anchor Bay got its only touchdown in the third quarter on a 20-play drive that ended with an 18-yard pass from Chris Kimble to Ron Bocock. Kimble also ran for the two-point conversion.

"We have to tighten the defense and not allow any more 20-play drives," Sumner said. "Three times they had third down and long yardage and each time they just made the first down by half a yard."

North got that touchdown back in the fourth quarter when Champine picked off a pass and returned it 29 yards to the Anchor Bay 11. Two plays later, Harris scored on an 11-yard run.

Nick Aubrey had seven solo tackles among his 12 stops for North, while Mike Ciaramitaro also had 12 tackles, including five solos. Muccioli had six solos and six assists. Jesse Thibodeau also had a fumble recovery for the Norsemen.

Knights seek more scoring punch

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

University Liggett School soccer coach David Backhurst is singing a familiar refrain these days.

"We're looking for scoring again," Backhurst said after the Knights split their first four games. "The defense looks strong but we've got to get goals from somebody. We're still in the experimental stage."

ULS' lack of scoring was never more apparent than last weekend when the Knights finished fourth in their four-team tournament.

"We finished last, but I still think we were the strongest team," Backhurst said. "I'd like the chance to play the teams again that beat us."

The Knights dominated their opening match with Bloomfield Hills Roper, outshooting the Roughriders 21-5 in the first half and 34-15 for the game but the contest was scoreless after regulation.

Because it was getting dark, the team went immediately to a shootout and Roper made all four of its penalty kicks while ULS made only two of its four shots.

"That was our first shootout in 10 years," Backhurst said. "I'm not fond of shootouts. It takes away from the team aspect of soccer and it's rough on the goalkeeper."

The loss to Roper sent ULS into the consolation game with Southfield Christian. The Eagles had lost 1-0 to Notre Dame on a corner kick in their semifinal game.

ULS opened the scoring two minutes into the contest on a goal by Ralph Harik, assisted by Steve Gotfredson. Southfield Christian tied the game on a penalty kick late in the first half.

ULS had to play most of the game a player short after defender Ian Fines received a red card on a controversial elbowing call. The Knights were also without sweeper Mike Gressman, who suffered a 12-stitch cut on his chin in the Roper game.

Once again the Knights dominated the first half, outshooting the Eagles 14-10.

Southfield Christian broke the tie with about 12 minutes left in the game.

"We were pushing everybody up in hopes of getting the winning goal," Backhurst said.

Roper beat Notre Dame 3-0 in the championship game.

ULS opened the season with a 3-0 victory over Cadillac.

Freshman goalie Dan Ferrin turned away six shots to post the shutout in his first varsity game.

"He's the first freshman we've started in goal since 1980," Backhurst said. "He's going to be a good one and we have a fine defense in front of him."

In addition to Gressman, who was an All-State selection last year, and Fines, the veteran defense corps includes juniors Matt Nowak and Brad Cenko.

Sophomore Jonathan Kish, who moved from defense to center-midfield, opened the scoring for ULS five minutes into the game.

A Cadillac player kicked the ball into his own net to give the Knights a 2-0 lead.

"Cenko worked a 'dummy play' and had their player so confused he kicked the ball into his own net," Backhurst said.

Kish then set up Peter Birgbauer for the final ULS goal.

The Knights used some long-distance accuracy to beat Mount Clemens 5-2.

ULS built a 3-0 halftime lead on goals by Birgbauer, Kish and Fines. All three were shots from 30 yards or more. Kish and Sergei Lie had assists.

The Knights added two more goals in the second half. Jason Campbell scored in the first minute of the second half and Campbell then set up Berc Backhurst for the final ULS tally on a nice give-and-go play.

Grosse Pointe North's Michelle Champine drives to the basket despite the defensive efforts of a Detroit Country Day player.

Practice habits hurt Norsemen

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

For years coaches have talked about teams "playing like they practice."

If Grosse Pointe North's Gary Bennett didn't subscribe to that theory before, he certainly does now.

His girls basketball team hasn't played up to its potential in its first two games and Bennett is convinced it's because of the Norsemen's practice habits.

"The girls are working hard in the games. I have no complaints there. But we don't practice hard enough and it's being reflected in our games," Bennett said after last Thursday's 49-39 loss to Detroit Country Day.

"We lose our poise in the games because we don't face the same kind of pressure in practice. It's hard to respond when you're not in shape."

Country Day outrebounded the Norsemen 35-19 with sophomore Jennifer Thomas, who scored a game-high 23 points, pulling down 12 of them.

"She's a good player," Bennett said. "She got a lot of her points on offensive rebounds. Fatigue was one of the reasons we didn't do better on the boards. We were too tired to block them out. It all goes with the approach to practice."

The Yellowjackets, who won the state Class C championship last season, took a 12-11 lead at the end of the first quarter on a layup by Thomas. After North regained the lead on a jumper by Molly Peters on the first possession of the second quarter the Norsemen didn't score again until a jumper by Claire Kotwick in the first minute of the third period.

By that time Country Day had a 25-13 lead. The Yellowjackets extended the margin to 14 points early in the second half.

Thomas went to the bench with her fourth foul with 5 1/2 minutes remaining in the third quarter. North took advantage of her absence to go on a 19-8 run that cut Country Day's lead to 37-34 with just under four minutes left.

"I thought we were going to win when we cut it to three and we probably would have if we had all come together as a team," Bennett said. "But without the willingness to work hard in practice, you don't develop that feeling that everyone's in this together."

A fastbreak layup by Jenny Pagel pulled the Norsemen within three points but the Yellowjackets' Thomas put back an offensive rebound, was fouled and made the free throw. Half a minute later Thomas hit two more free throws to boost Country Day's margin to 42-34. North never got closer than six points the rest of the way.

Yellowjackets coach Frank Orlando doesn't know if his team will make a return trip to the state title game, but he was happy with its performance.

"We're real young," Orlando said. "We have some talent, but we need experience. I think these kids will be OK. It was good for them to play against North's defense."

In North's opener, the Norsemen trailed Detroit

Southwestern by 15 points in the first half but came back to win on Peters' basket at the buzzer.

"Country Day isn't as quick as Southwestern but they're more patient with the ball," Bennett said. "They did things more efficiently and got back under control when we made the run at them. They're well-coached. They handled our pressure well."

Peters led North with 12 points and also had six steals. Kotwick had nine points, seven steals and four assists, while Lindsay Simmon grabbed 11 rebounds and scored eight points.

Katie Blazewski, another sophomore, scored 14 points for Country Day.

Captains selected at North

Angelique Wierzbicki was named captain and Bruce Robb co-captain of Grosse Pointe North's football cheerleading squad.

Rebecca Dallaire is a third senior on the North team.

Coming up from the junior varsity are Lela Stratton, Amy Kohl, Lisa Gavin, Erica Verneri, Erin Drouillard, Patty Hillakas and Kendra Ionetz. Chrissy Taylor made the jump from the freshman team.

North hopes history repeats

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Pat Wilson wouldn't mind seeing history repeat itself after his Grosse Pointe North boys cross country team's performance in last weekend's Muskrat Invitational at Algonac.

"We finished fifth among the teams that will be in our regional, the same as last year," Wilson said after the Norsemen wound up tied for eighth overall with Grosse Pointe South.

"Last year we caught all of them except Cousino in the regional. I wouldn't mind seeing that kind of improvement again this year."

Wilson discounted the times that were turned in last weekend, but he was pleased with several performances in the meet.

"They ran in a steady rain so the course was just slop,"

Wilson said. "The times were atrocious."

North had three medalists. Sachin Shah was 10th, Tom Smyly 11th and Chris Hirt 32nd.

Wilson was also pleased with the efforts of Ted Huebner, Mike Novitke, Matt Mikula and Bob Kettel.

"Novitke has been a pleasant surprise so far," Wilson said. "He came out last year to get better for track but never came close to getting in our top group. He worked hard during the summer and now he's a better cross country runner than sprinter."

Two freshmen, Eddie Brink and Scott Serilla, also posted good times at Algonac.

North opened the season with a 27-30 loss to Ford II in a Macomb Area Conference crossover meet.

Smyly, Shah and Hirt took second through fourth place but the Falcons grabbed the fifth through eighth spots to clinch the victory.

Mikula, who transferred from East Lansing, was North's fourth runner, followed by Kettel, Chadi Haurani and Novitke.

"Mikula ran close to 200 miles in training this summer with East Lansing," Wilson said.

"We have a lot of room to grow, but we're not too far off from where we were last year at this time. We have a lot of young kids."

One of those young runners is freshman Jeff Anderson, who had an excellent meet against Ford II.

"He ran a 22.36 on our hill (course)," Wilson said. "Smyly is the only freshman who's run that fast on our course this early in the season."

South wins again at Algonac meet

Grosse Pointe South's girls cross country team opened the season with a first-place finish at the Algonac Muskrat Invitational.

The Blue Devils led the 15-team field with 52 points, followed by Port Huron Northern 59 and Ford II 64.

This is the eighth consecutive year South has opened the season with a victory at the Algonac meet.

South junior Jonnie Vasse was first overall, just ahead of teammate Kate Crowley. The race was run during a steady rain and at some points the 5,000-meter course was ankle-deep in mud.

The Blue Devils had two other runners in the top 10 as freshman Heidi Crowley was sixth and sophomore Katie Kraft finished 10th. Janel Zuidema, Chris Littmann and Sara Crowe rounded out South's top seven.

South was just as strong in the junior varsity race. Seventy Blue Devils braved the weather conditions and Dara O'Byrne, Beth Auti and Erin Smialek finished 1-2-3.

Saturday, South defends its title in the De La Salle Invitational at Stony Creek Metropark.

ULS takes second in own tournament

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Aggressiveness paid off in a big way for University Liggett School's No. 2 doubles team last weekend.

Stephanie Roehl and Allison Ricci were one of three flight winners for the Knights as they finished second in their annual ULS Invitational.

"They're really working well together," said coach Chuck Wright. "They stepped it up and showed great aggressiveness. Our other doubles teams should be that aggressive."

Roehl and Ricci beat East Grand Rapids 7-6 (7-3), 6-2 to take the flight championship.

ULS also won the first two singles flights behind Leah Killen and Kim Watrick.

The Knights collected points in seven of the eight flights to finish with 15 points. East Grand Rapids won the other five flights to wind up with 21 points. Grosse Pointe South was third with nine points and Grosse Pointe North had three.

"We played well as a whole," Wright said. "East Grand Rapids is a fine team, but we battled hard the entire two-day tournament."

Ann Clark won two of her three matches at No. 3 singles and Christina Oney won once at No. 4 singles.

ULS' first doubles team of Brooke Wright and Kendall Wrigley won two of their three

Ridder leads

ULS to win

Senior Blair Ridder led University Liggett School's golf team to a 174-182 victory over Notre Dame in its season opener.

The victory also featured a sparkling varsity debut by freshman Bo Brink.

After beating Notre Dame, the Knights dropped matches to Detroit Country Day and Southfield Christian. Christian had a score of 160. John Staniszewski, Paul Huebner, Christian Auty, Andy Adamo and Tim French have also posted good scores for the Knights in their early matches.

The Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Dragons '87 won the Under-10 Girls Division II at the recent Romeo Peach Festival tournament. The Dragons won all four of their games by shutouts, including a 1-0 win over the Northville Sting in the championship match. Sitting in front, from left, are Kelly Ritter, Andrea Savage, Chrissie Keersmaekers and Caitlin Bennett. Dragons' debut is a winning one in Romeo

The Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Dragons '87 soccer team is going to be hard-pressed to come up with an encore after its debut at the Romeo Peach Festival tournament last week.

The newly-formed team coached by Mike McIlroy, Jim Warren and Dan Deane, won all four of its games by shutouts to win the Under-10 Girls Division II championship.

The title run began with an 8-0 victory over the Pointe Girls Soccer Association Mustangs '88. The Dragons followed with a 1-0 win over the Troy Attack and a pair of victories against the Northville Sting 4-0 and 1-0.

The 1-0 win over Northville came in the championship game. Caroline Hartmann scored the goal off a corner kick by Jordan McIlroy.

Flawless goaltending by Brooke Ziehr, Chrissie Keersmaekers, McIlroy and Megan Warren was supported by the excellent defense of Allison Jones, Lauren Jesnig, Kelly Ritter, Keersmaekers, Ziehr, Julie West and Kiera Corbin.

Erin Deane, Caitlin Bennett and Erica Coates were standouts in the midfield.

Warren led the Dragons' scoring with five goals and three assists, while McIlroy notched five goals and two assists. Hartmann collected three goals and an assist in the tournament, while Deane had two assists, Andrea Savage a goal and Bennett one assist.

The Dragons ran their shutout string to five games by beating the Rochester Lightning 3-0 in the regular-season opener.

McIlroy scored on a penalty kick, Hartmann scored off a corner kick by Warren and Warren tallied on a breakthrough.

Other key offensive players were Bennett, Coates and Deane.

Strong defensive work was turned in by Corbin, Jesnig, Jones, Ritter, Savage, West and Ziehr. Keersmaekers and Savage shared the shutout with Savage making an outstanding save at the goal line.

South netters need more work

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

A lengthy layoff might have left Grosse Pointe South's girls tennis team a bit rusty for its appearance at the University Liggett School Invitational tournament.

"We hadn't played for eight days and we came out a little flat," said Blue Devils coach Mark Sobieralski. "Both ULS and East Grand Rapids, who finished ahead of us, had played since we did."

Despite finishing third among the four teams in the tournament, Sobieralski had some encouraging performances from his players.

Senior Esther Farkas won her first two matches at fourth singles before losing to an East Grand Rapids player, 6-3, 6-4. Farkas improved her season record to 8-3.

South's third doubles team of Katie Hollidge and Jennifer Mansfield beat their opponents from ULS and Grosse Pointe North before losing 7-6, 6-4 to East Grand Rapids. The two wins improved the team's record to 9-2.

Sobieralski was also impressed with the performance of senior Kristin Reagan, who filled in for the injured Meryl Pankhurst at No. 3 singles.

"I called Kristin Friday night and asked her if she could play on Saturday," Sobieralski said. "She said, 'I can play. What doubles team do you want me on?' I told her she was playing third singles. What an effort she gave. She beat a girl from North 2-6, 6-2, 6-4 and then lost a three-set match to ULS. Kristin was nervous in her first set and then settled down and played well. She has a strong mental game."

Earlier, South played a 4-4 tie with Ann Arbor Pioneer. Meryl Pankhurst and Farkas won their singles matches, while Hollidge and Mansfield and the fourth doubles team of Anne Morris and Alicia Siefert were also victorious.

The Blue Devils were runners-up in two early-season tournaments at Flint Carman-Ainsworth and Troy.

Ann Arbor Huron won the Flint tournament, but South had a pair of flight champions in Hollidge and Mansfield at No. 3 doubles and Kirsten Brand and Siefert at No. 4 doubles.

South finished second to Port Huron Northern in the Troy tournament.

"We finished three points ahead of Ann Arbor Huron in that tournament," Sobieralski said.

Ann Richard won second doubles and Morris and Siefert won the fourth doubles flight.

"Richard has been a bright spot for us so far," Sobieralski said. "She's 7-4 and has played No. 1 singles in a couple of matches. She beat a girl from Port Huron Northern in the championship match."

Hollidge and Mansfield advanced to the finals before losing to Port Huron Northern's third doubles team and Farkas lost in the finals at No. 4 singles.

South rolled to a 7-1 victory over Troy in a non-league dual

101 PRAYERS

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT.

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who gives me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen. Thankyou for your love towards me & my loved ones. E.B.

Prayer Of The Blessed Virgin

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse. Holy Mary, I place this prayer in your hands. Say this 3 times for 3 days, publish it. It will be granted to you. J.M.B.

Why is the lake so polluted (and how you can help)

A while back I wrote about basement waterproofing and how to prevent water from entering your house.

It was more important than I realized. The South Macomb Sanitary District, along with the Wayne County Public Works Department, are trying to stop the discharge of raw sewage into Lake St Clair. They don't want water in your basement, and they hate it when it gets into their sewers.

Fact is, 45 percent of us have "runoff water" from gutters and/or seepage into weep lines around a house that lead into sanitary sewers. This 45 percent plays a major roll in the overflow spills of raw sewage into Lake St Clair.

Can we help? You bet we can. Is this costly, you ask? Not very. Lots of work? Barely. Am I lying? Just a little.

The easy stuff first — the downspouts. Make sure that all the elbows are connected. One of mine kept falling off until I finally put a pop rivet in it. Extend the downspout at least 5 feet from the house, but not onto your neighbor's property. However, some neighbors have worked together on a common 4-inch drain pipe to carry their downspout water out into the yard.

If you have a sidewalk or something you can tunnel under, there is an answer. An underground downspout made by Beaver Industries can get the water 10 feet or more away with not much more showing than something like a sprinkler head out in the lawn.

Concrete driveway, cement patio, some immovable thing that is funneling water toward the house? Are we bumming? Could be, grab a level and check to see if it is sloping away from the house or not? Start investigating ways to get that water away from the house.

If you can't afford to replace the driveway or patio, maybe mudding the cement slab (approximately done for $100 per slab), will get the tilt to drain that water away from the house. If this isn't possible, the most economical solution I know is to fill the crack where the cement meets the house with expandable foam.

That stuff is great. It will prevent water from entering the basement all year long, and be flexible when the winter frost lifts the cement in the winter.

Last, but not least, is my favorite quick fix. Get some dirt, lots of dirt, and give the ground around your house all the pitch you can. Use metal window wells if necessary so that six inches higher at the house rather than six feet away will get that water far from the basement.

Some exterior landscaping in exchange for a dry basement is not too much to ask, is it?

Poorly pitched cement and ground is the source of thousands of gallons of water leakage per year, per household. Not only is it giving you a damp basement, the drain tiles are discharging into the city sanitary sewer. Then, of course, the excess along with the sanitary water, or is it unsanitary, overflow into the lake, closing swimming areas and feeding the ever-growing seaweed. The seaweed, however, is another story.

A cleaner lake and a dryer basement all for the price of one, makes you glad you're on the right side of the grass (or the seaweed).

Detroit Edison launches its Internet web site

Learning how to protect yourself from costly appliance repairs, finding a prime site for a new or expanding business or getting the latest price for DTE Energy stock are now at your fingertips as Detroit Edison has launched its site on the Internet's World Wide Web.

Detroit Edison's Internet address is: <http://www.detroitedison.com>.

The utility will take the on-ramp to the information super-highway to provide a high-tech means of communication with customers of Detroit Edison and shareholders of its parent company, DTE Energy.

"The web is fast becoming the electronic marketplace of the future and we're looking forward to using it to attract and inform customers about our products and services," said S. Martin Taylor, vice president of corporate and public affairs. "Deregulation has changed the way all utilities do business, and our site on the web will allow us to reach customers and investors in new and exciting ways."

The Detroit Edison site offers information about new products and services for residential and business customers, the company history, and its operations and activities.

In addition, there are "Things You Wouldn't Expect" from an electric utility web site, featuring information about Michigan festivals and events, the Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival and how to request Detroit Edison's 1914 Rauch-Lang electric car for parades and special events.

The web site also features financial filings and information for shareholders, economic development information and seasonal energy tips.

Detroit Edison is planning more opportunities for customers to interact with the company on its web site, including access to account information and on-line bill-paying features.

Gardening is the nation's top leisure activity

Statistics can sometimes be fascinating. They can, of course, clutter one's mind with a lot of irrelevant information, but they can be useful, too.

For instance, those of us who spend hours laboring to make our gardens perfect will be heartened to know that gardening is currently the number one leisure time activity in America.

According to a national survey conducted last year by Organic Gardening magazine, about 78 million Americans are gardeners. This is a 30 percent increase from three years ago.

The survey indicated that Baby Boomers represent 51 percent of the nation's gardeners. Fifty-seven percent of gardeners are women. Most gardeners do it for fun; 65 percent for exercise and fresh air; 56 percent to add beauty to their property; and 54 percent to relieve stress.

Grosse Pointe has more garden clubs than any other community in the country, except for Stamford, Conn.

There are literally thousands of garden clubs across the country, in almost every city, town and village.

The concept of clubs devoted to various aspects of gardening began in England in 1804, when the Horticultural Society of London was founded. It was incorporated in 1809 and its publication, "Transactions," first appeared in 1810. Sir Joseph Banks was the society's first president. He was succeeded by Thomas Knight, who held the position for almost 30 years.

Montreal started its society in 1830. Wellington, New Zealand, and Toronto began theirs in 1844.

Meantime, the gardeners of America were founding their own societies. In 1858, the first Russian Horticultural Society was formed and held its first flower show in St. Petersburg the same year. A gardening society was started in India in 1820.

In Germany, a horticultural society was founded in 1822 and its publication still has a wide circulation there. The Royal School for Gardeners began there the same year.

In France, the Horticultural Society was founded in 1827 and is still active. The London Society now has more than 50,000 members.

The 19th century was a time of tremendous interest in gardening in the United States. The famous Arnold Arboretum near Boston was founded in 1872. The Missouri Botanic Gardens was founded by Henry Shaw in 1889, the same year a large laboratory was built in Tucson, Ariz., to study desert plants.

Garden Shed

By Ellen Probert Williamson

In Detroit, the Anna Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle was founded in 1904 and rebuilt in 1949.

It is operated by the floriculture unit of the forestry and landscape division of the Detroit Recreation Department.

More than a million visitors a year enjoy the changing floral displays that make the conservatory a constant delight.

The Detroit Recreation Department's forestry and landscape division must subscribe to Thomas Jefferson's thought. He wrote in his journal in 1786: "The cultivators of the earth are the most valuable citizens."

Some rather staggering statistics are available about this department's activities.

Did you know that this department maintains 94 city flower beds, 22 greenhouses, three large gardens (of several acres each), more than 185 parks, numerous playgrounds, six golf courses, marinas and many tennis courts?

The division annually plants and tends to more than 190,000 plants and flowers, including chrysanthemums, poinsettias, tulips, narcissi, hyacinths and seasonal plants. It is also responsible for events, such as the annual Builders and Garden Show at Cobo Center.

It also works with the Metropolitan Detroit Flower Growers to hold two Eastern Market Flower Days each year.

It isn't only in our own area of Michigan that the cultivators of the earth are valuable citizens. Michigan ranks first in the nation in growing beans and, in terms of total acreage and value, Michigan produces the world's largest blueberry crop, valued at more than $31 million annually.

Studying statistics can be addictive. More and more questions come to mind, such as, "How many fruits and flowers are mentioned in the Bible?" or "How many times is the rose mentioned in Shakespeare's writings?"

Detroit Edison launches its Internet web site

Learning how to protect yourself from costly appliance repairs, finding a prime site for a new or expanding business or getting the latest price for DTE Energy stock are now at your fingertips as Detroit Edison has launched its site on the Internet's World Wide Web.

Detroit Edison's Internet address is: <http://www.detroitedison.com>.

The utility will take the on-ramp to the information super-highway to provide a high-tech means of communication with customers of Detroit Edison and shareholders of its parent company, DTE Energy.

"The web is fast becoming the electronic marketplace of the future and we're looking forward to using it to attract and inform customers about our products and services," said S. Martin Taylor, vice president of corporate and public affairs. "Deregulation has changed the way all utilities do business, and our site on the web will allow us to reach customers and investors in new and exciting ways."

The Detroit Edison site offers information about new products and services for residential and business customers, the company history, and its operations and activities.

In addition, there are "Things You Wouldn't Expect" from an electric utility web site, featuring information about Michigan festivals and events, the Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival and how to request Detroit Edison's 1914 Rauch-Lang electric car for parades and special events.

The web site also features financial filings and information for shareholders, economic development information and seasonal energy tips.

Detroit Edison is planning more opportunities for customers to interact with the company on its web site, including access to account information and on-line bill-paying features.

Gardening is the nation's top leisure activity

Statistics can sometimes be fascinating. They can, of course, clutter one's mind with a lot of irrelevant information, but they can be useful, too.

For instance, those of us who spend hours laboring to make our gardens perfect will be heartened to know that gardening is currently the number one leisure time activity in America.

According to a national survey conducted last year by Organic Gardening magazine, about 78 million Americans are gardeners. This is a 30 percent increase from three years ago.

The survey indicated that Baby Boomers represent 51 percent of the nation's gardeners. Fifty-seven percent of gardeners are women. Most gardeners do it for fun; 65 percent for exercise and fresh air; 56 percent to add beauty to their property; and 54 percent to relieve stress.

Grosse Pointe has more garden clubs than any other community in the country, except for Stamford, Conn.

There are literally thousands of garden clubs across the country, in almost every city, town and village.

The concept of clubs devoted to various aspects of gardening began in England in 1804, when the Horticultural Society of London was founded. It was incorporated in 1809 and its publication, "Transactions," first appeared in 1810. Sir Joseph Banks was the society's first president. He was succeeded by Thomas Knight, who held the position for almost 30 years.

Montreal started its society in 1830. Wellington, New Zealand, and Toronto began theirs in 1844.

Meantime, the gardeners of America were founding their own societies. In 1858, the first Russian Horticultural Society was formed and held its first flower show in St. Petersburg the same year. A gardening society was started in India in 1820.

In Germany, a horticultural society was founded in 1822 and its publication still has a wide circulation there. The Royal School for Gardeners began there the same year.

In France, the Horticultural Society was founded in 1827 and is still active. The London Society now has more than 50,000 members.

The 19th century was a time of tremendous interest in gardening in the United States. The famous Arnold Arboretum near Boston was founded in 1872. The Missouri Botanic Gardens was founded by Henry Shaw in 1889, the same year a large laboratory was built in Tucson, Ariz., to study desert plants.

Garden Shed

By Ellen Probert Williamson

In Detroit, the Anna Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle was founded in 1904 and rebuilt in 1949.

It is operated by the floriculture unit of the forestry and landscape division of the Detroit Recreation Department.

More than a million visitors a year enjoy the changing floral displays that make the conservatory a constant delight.

The Detroit Recreation Department's forestry and landscape division must subscribe to Thomas Jefferson's thought. He wrote in his journal in 1786: "The cultivators of the earth are the most valuable citizens."

Some rather staggering statistics are available about this department's activities.

Did you know that this department maintains 94 city flower beds, 22 greenhouses, three large gardens (of several acres each), more than 185 parks, numerous playgrounds, six golf courses, marinas and many tennis courts?

The division annually plants and tends to more than 190,000 plants and flowers, including chrysanthemums, poinsettias, tulips, narcissi, hyacinths and seasonal plants. It is also responsible for events, such as the annual Builders and Garden Show at Cobo Center.

Uncle Sam was created in 1812, years after the birth of the republic. Cartoonists had several symbols that represented the United States. Brother Jonathan was a comic figure who was also known as Yankee Jonathan or Yankee Doodle. He was one of the first of these symbols. But Yankee Doodle was not dignified enough for the new country, and Miss Liberty seemed bland and old-fashioned.

Uncle Sam evolved from a trademark to an imposing and lovable character. Sam Wilson was in the meat business and shipped containers of meat to the troops during the War of 1812. He marked the casks with the letters U.S. for United States. At that time, most people used the abbreviation "U. States." Because Sam

Wilson was called Uncle Sam by friends, the story went out that the meat came from Uncle Sam, or U.S. (Soldiers often gave themselves nicknames, just as a World War II soldier was named G.I. for Government Issue.) The 1812 troops became Uncle Sam's soldiers.

Early cartoon versions of Uncle Sam pictured a middle-aged, clean-shaven man with a round face. He wore a stars-and-stripes vest and a nightcap. As time passed, he aged and his hair became white and he had thinner features.

The present-day lean man with a beard and top hat was actually the creation of Thomas Nast, a famous political cartoonist of Civil War days. The Uncle Sam symbol has appeared on glass, folk art figures, mechanical banks, sheet music and even as a mailbox holder.

Q. My plate has a portrait of Beethoven on the front. The back is marked with a shield, B and a crown. I broke the plate in half and would like to have it repaired. Is it worth the expense?

A. If you like the plate as a decorative piece, you might try repairing it yourself. There are many new types of glue available, and a clean break should be easy to fix. If you have it repaired by a professional, you will probably pay more than the resale value of the plate.

You may have to spend years to find another. The plate was made by Beyer & Bock of Volkstedt, Germany, about 1905 to 1931.

Button up — Here is an idea I have not seen written about.

When you buy clothing and get a package of extra buttons, mark the package with the date of purchase and the color of the garment. It saves so much time when you need a button. I keep the packages according to the date with a rubber band around them.

P.S. I had a friend from Geneva, N.Y., with your last name. Any relation? Edith F., Hillman, Mich. 49746

Editor's Note: Thanks for the tip and in answer to your question, there's no familial connection, but thanks for asking.

Napkin magic — I was treated to dinner and a tip one night by my older brother.

After peeling the soggy napkin off the bottom of my tea glass several times, I noticed my brother's napkin was not sticking to the bottom of his glass. I soon learned he had cleverly poured a little table salt on his napkin. Try it. It works with coasters as well. Linda F., Rochester, N.Y.

Recycle — I saved my old pull-down shades when I replaced them. They now make excellent, sturdy large drawing areas for kids.

I also used the plastic ones for making new board games.

I took my old rubber bath mat, the type with the suction cups on the underside, and cut it to fit a shelf and window ledges where I wanted to place plants. It has lasted for years and has kept the wood dry and free from rot as water drips while giving the plants their drinks. Lisa R., Snowville, Va.
