

Huge success forces annual Highland Games to seek new home

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

While a person can't be too rich or too thin, an event can be too successful — just ask the folks at the Eleanor & Edsel Ford House about the Highland Games, which have been held at the estate for the past five years.

"We decided that we could no longer host the St. Andrew's Society of Detroit's Highland Games," said Ford House director of marketing Kate Gormley. "It was a difficult decision, but when we first started hosting the event the crowds were much smaller. The games have grown in popularity, and this year we had the largest crowd ever."

Gormley said that an estimated 15,000 people attended the 1996 games, which is 5,000 more than house staffers feel comfortable hosting on our grounds."

"Our mission statement requires us to serve as a witness to the past and support community efforts for worthy causes," said Gormley. "But we also have a responsibility to preserve the property. We are very happy for the St. Andrew's Society's success and wish them continued luck. I guess you could say they are a victim of their own success. The event has outgrown Gormley said that the growth in crowd size has been noticeable. She has only been marketing director for two years, but she said she could see that the number of people who attended the games between 1995 and 1996 greatly increased.

Bryson Sutton, chairman of the society's games committee, said that the society appreciated being able to hold the games at the Ford house for the past five years, but that this isn't the first time they've had to find a new location for the games.

"We're going to look for a venue where, perhaps, we can have animals," said Sutton. "We have no idea where next year's games will be right now, but I doubt it will be in Grosse Pointe. There just isn't a venue available that has the space we need."

WE'RE CONCERNED ABOUT YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

News can appear one day and be gone the next. But the paper news is printed on can and should live on. Last year more than one third of all U.S. newspaper was recycled. And that number is growing every day. Recycling is the one way we can all give something back.

Park residents not happy with city's explanation of June basement floods

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

While Grosse Pointe Park and its insurance carrier maintain that basements flooded on June 18 because of an unusual heavy rain, some Park residents aren't buying that explanation.

Park resident Sandra Walters says that her research proves that the explanation provided by the city on how the flood happened is a lie.

Walters says that city's estimate of the amount of rain that fell on the afternoon of the June 18, 1.8 inches, to be unverifiable. She obtained weather information on the June 18 storm from SEMCOG, a coalition of southeast Michigan city governments.

The weather information was collected at sites near the Park, but not in the Park, said Anne Ordway of the State Climatologist's Office in Lansing. Ordway processes and records SEMCOG data for the state.

Walters said that weather records kept at the SEMCOG rain gauge at Vernier and Lakeshore showed only .5 inches fell in any one hour on June 18. That station showed that only 1.5 inches fell all day.

Walters also said that she asked for and received SEMCOG data going back 25 years for three SEMCOG-operated rain gauges. This data, said Walters, shows that on more than one occasion more rain fell on the Park in storms in past years than fell on June 18, yet there was no flooding.

Walters said that pump station attendants went home at 4 p.m. on June 18, and did not return to the station until about 5:30. All things being equal, the reason for the backed-up basements must be due to the pumps not being turned on until 5:23 p.m. on June 18.

"If we had more rain in previous storms, yet there was no flooding, what is different?" said Walters. "I believe it is because the city did not pump unprocessed sewage from the city wetwell until almost 5:30 p.m."

Walters, along with some other residents whose basements were flooded, passed out detailed questionnaires to about 700 households in the Park south of Jefferson. She said that about 200 replies were sent back. None of those replies indicated that basement drains backed up until after 5 p.m. — most did not notice problems until after 5:30 p.m. Walters did admit that not all of the people who replied to her questionnaire could determine what time their basements were flooded and she also said that she could neither confirm nor deny reports of drains backing up as early as 4:45 p.m. on June 18.

Ordway said that when she spoke with Walters in June, SEMCOG has not yet received the data from rain gauges in Detroit. Since then Detroit has turned in its figures and a gauge maintained at the City-County Building in downtown Detroit shows that about 1.5 inches of rain fell between 4:45 p.m. and 5:45 p.m. on June 18.

"Our rain gauges have shown us that rain fall levels can vary from place to place," said Ordway. "We have many gauges in the city of Detroit because it's possible to have some neighborhoods within the city flooded, while others have not received any rain."

Ordway said that she can't speak to the question of when Park officials should have turned on wetwell pumps to discharge combined storm and sanitary sewage into Fox Creek.

Woods council rolls back parking rates

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

In response to strong and continued opposition to increased parking meter rates along Mack, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council voted Monday night to rescind the recently approved, but controversial quarters-only parking meters.

Mayor Robert Novitke told the audience of residents and Mack business operators that council wanted to do more than just roll back parking rates.

"We want to get to the heart of the problem," said Novitke. "Everything is on the table. That includes keeping meters, reducing the number of meters or eliminating meters all together."

Novitke said that the council wanted to be thorough and could have rescinded the rates in August, but before any actions were taken, he said the council wanted to be able to make an informed decision.

"I want to thank the Grosse Pointe Business & Professional Association of Mack Avenue for surveying all the businesses and offices on Mack in the Woods," said Novitke. "The survey answers told that we have many competing interests on Mack. Half the businesses wanted to eliminate meters, half wanted to keep them. Half are for strong meter enforcement, half were against."

Association president Joyce Piasecki said that whatever the council did Monday, it will work with businesses to help promote a positive relationship with customers.

"We need the city to be partners with the businesses in promoting a strong Mack," said Piasecki.

Fred Petz, an attorney with an office on Mack, said the survey results showed that business operators on Mack wanted the council to go back to the old parking rates. The survey also indicated that business operators wanted only one parking enforcement officer working during any eight-hour period.

The survey also showed that business people wanted to remove parking meters from areas along Mack where meters weren't used that

Protest turns violent at South

By Shirley A. McShane

Two students were arrested and an art teacher suffered a lacerated hand requiring 16 stitches on Sept. 20, following a rowdy protest against a stricter attendance policy recently enacted at Grosse Pointe South High School.

The incident began around 1:46 p.m. when a group of about 25 students began chanting outside the building in opposition to the new attendance policy. Witnesses told Grosse Pointe Farms police the teens also were shouting profanities at passers-by and carried a sign with a vulgar message.

When Farms police arrived, the school grounds were clear. But administrators told police the protesters had entered the building and were running through the hallways, yelling and disrupting classes in progress.

The raucous group was located on the second floor of the S-Building. With the help of school administrators, police located the two teens believed to be the instigators; they were arrested and removed from the building.

While police were questioning one of the teens outside the building, the assistant principal came up to police and informed them that the teen they were talking to allegedly had assaulted a teacher during the protest.

The teacher, who was taken to Bon Secours Hospital for treatment of a lacerated right hand, told Farms police that she had heard a commotion in the hallway of the main building, went into the hall and tapped on the shoulder of the teen who appeared to be leading the crowd.

She said she told him his behavior was inappropriate and that he would have to follow her to the office. The teen then turned around and pushed her into a row of metal much, as well as from all municipal parking lots and bays, except for high parking areas such as the lot near the Merit Woods Pharmacy.

Most importantly, said Petz, business owners want to work with the city to develop a comprehensive parking plan with a view toward eliminating parking meters in the future.

Based on the survey, the association also recommended that the council reduce parking ticket fines.

City administrator Peter Thomas then presented his recommendations to the council. They were similar to the association's with certain differences.

Thomas recommended that the council roll back parking meter fees to the old rates, the elimination of meters in light parking areas, reducing the number of parking enforcers to one full-time enforcer and one part-time enforcer, reinforce the city policy of granting a small grace period between the time a meter expires and the time a ticket is issued.

Thomas said the change over could be complete by the week of Oct. 21. His recommendations differed from the association's in that he wanted to keep one part-time parking enforcer. The reason was that a full-time parking enforcer would be paid time-and-a-half on the week-ends, and it's very difficult to get someone who just wants to work on Saturday. Part-time people are hired to work three days under standard policy.

"The elimination of the second part-time parking enforcer would mean that the city is reducing its parking staff by 30 percent," said Thomas.

Thomas also did not recommend the elimination of meters in any municipal parking lot.

When it came time for the council, acting as a special committee-of-the-whole, to vote to recommend a plan that it would vote on later that evening as the regular city council, the council voted 4-3 to recommend to itself that it adopt Thomas' plan, instead the association's.

Councilmember Thomas LeFevre recommended the association's plan, and was supported by Bill Wilson. Thomas Fahrner voted against Thomas' plan because it did not specify the areas along Mack that would have meters removed.

After the committee-of-the-whole voted, Novitke called for a five-minute recess, and then convened the regular city council, which voted 7-0 to approve Thomas' recommendations.

The parliamentary procedures proved to be confusing to many in the audience. Woods resident Margaret Potter asked why the council acted the way it did.

Novitke explained that it was just following standard procedure, where the council debates policy questions as a committee-of-the-whole, which makes recommendations that are voted on at regular council meetings.

The council usually meets as the committee-of-the-whole on one Monday, and votes on the recommendations on the next Monday meeting. What the audience witnessed on Sept. 23 was the telescoping of that process in one night.

Councilman Bill Wilson said that he voted the way he did because as a member of the committee-of-the-whole, he was choosing between two plans. But when he voted as a member of the city council, he was choosing between adopting a recommendation and doing nothing.

Farms eases zoning laws

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Farms residents needing variances in order to construct an addition, build a fence or make other improvements to their homes and properties should find the "notification" process much easier after Farms city council passed an amendment to the zoning ordinance, which changes how notices for public hearing are distributed.

Currently, when a variance is required, the property owner must acquire a list of the names and addresses of neighbors within a 300-foot radius. The property owner must then send each neighbor a certified letter.

At $2.52 per letter and an average of 40 neighbors to notify, the cost is $100.80. The new amendment calls for the city to mail notices first-class instead — about $12.80 to notify 40 neighbors.

"Presently, the applicant must draft a notice letter to neighbors, receive letter approval from the city clerk and then pick up a list of neighbors to be notified," said Farms clerk and assistant city manager Shane Reeside in a memo to the city council. "Individual letter receipts must then be completed for each piece of certified mail. Since the city generates the list of neighbors on a computer, the same list can be easily run off on labels. Having the city mail out notices will ensure they are properly mailed."

Reeside added that it makes the process more convenient for residents who had to pick up notices from the post office if no one was home when the delivery was made.

The new amendment calls for a flat fee of $100 for appeals to building restrictions and $75 for other appeals, such as satellite dishes, fences and air conditioning units.

"This amount is less than what most residents pay in certified mail alone, not to mention the time and aggravation saved in meeting the notification requirements," Reeside said.

School district wired and ready for technology implementation

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

The first steps have been taken on the 1,000-mile journey known as the technology plan for the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

The project is funded by a five-year technology millage, approved by voters in June 1995, that raises $2.4 million each of the five years of the plan. The first phase — focusing on the nine elementary schools — is expected to be completed by the end of this school year.

In response to inquiries from teachers and the public, Jim Frantz, technology coordinator for the Grosse Pointe schools, presented on Sept. 9 an update of the plan in progress to the school board.

"The biggest hurdle the district had to jump was getting the schools wired," Frantz told the board. "The contract for that project was awarded in June and once it's finished, we can proceed with the installation of network electronics and servers, which must be installed and running before computers in the classroom can be attached to the system."

The plan calls for five new computers and a printer in every kindergarten- through fifth-grade classroom.

One of the five computers will be designated as the teacher work station. All computers will be at least 100 Mhz Pentium processor systems with 16 MB of RAM, 1 GB hard disks with sound cards and headphones.

Software used will be Windows 95, Works 95 and IBM's SchoolVista.

In addition to the hardware in the classrooms, there will be four computers and one printer in each building to meet the needs of the library, music, art and gym classes.

A TV monitor and VCR also will be installed in the K-5 and special education classroom.

"The district is shooting for a target of early October to have all the teachers' computers networked," Frantz said. "The schedule then is for student work stations to be put in the fourth- and fifth-grade classrooms in late October, the second- and third-grade classrooms by Christmas and kindergarten- and first-grade classrooms installed in January or February."

TV monitors and VCRs are expected to be installed in November or December.

"It will take some time to get everything up and running and even longer for everyone to achieve some degree of comfort with it," Frantz told the board. "It will be months at the very least before most of what has been envisioned becomes reality. Your learning process will likely be years."

Lanes reopen

With most of the sewer separation work in Grosse Pointe Shores completed for this year, the southbound lanes between Vernier and the St. Clair Shores lines were reopened last Saturday.

Doing the honors were Shores public safety director Dan Healy and president John Huettelman III.

Flooding

But Ordway said that it appears that the Park was in the middle of a heavy and intense storm that afternoon.

"We don't have gauges in everyone's back yards," Ordway said. "But the amount of rain that fell on the City-County Building was more intense than the amount that fell on other areas monitored by SEMCOG. It's possible that the Park was in the storm pattern that dumped all that rain on the City-County building, while other areas nearby weren't."

City of Grosse Pointe manager Thomas Kressbach said that the City received about 1.45 inches of rain between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m., according to a rain gauge that he maintains.

"There is a lag time between when the rain falls and when it enters a city's sewer system," Kressbach said. "In the City it's about 10 to 20 minutes. When rain falls it must travel from rain gutters, sidewalks, driveways and streets to the storm sewers, so if there is an intense rain, a system might not be overwhelmed for several minutes. I don't know if that's what happened in the Park, but it is something that can happen to a city's sewer system in a heavy storm."

Walters also maintains that the Park maintains two separate recording systems that keep records of wetwell levels and discharge times, and these two systems don't match.

There could be a difference by as much as 5 feet as to when the city claimed the Fox Creek pump was turned and what the wetwell level actually was when the pump was turned on, said Walters.

According to the city's angus recording equipment when the first Fox Creek pump was activated when the wetwell reached a level of 14.5 feet, but according to her reading of the Humitex Phantom Chart, the wetwell level was 19 feet when the pump was activated, said Walters, so residents should be skeptical when Park officials say that there wasn't enough water in the wetwell to begin a discharge into Fox Creek until 5:23.

City manager Dale Krajniak said that the Park based its figures on its angus recording equipment, which records all electronic machine activity, and is the angus equipment is the most accurate, and a review of its records shows that the first discharge pump was activated at 5:23 p.m., when wetwell levels reached 14.5 feet.

Walters admitted that she only reviewed a copy of a copy of the Humitex chart and while she is a statistician, she did not have a trained expert review the evidence.

The pump took about four minutes to prime, and did not begin pumping combined storm and sanitary sewage into Fox Creek until about 5:27, at which time the wetwell level reached about 30 feet, said Krajniak.

To put that into context, the wetwell level was about 13.5 feet at 5:13. It took 10 minutes to go up a foot. It took about four minutes to go up 15 feet once the pump was activated.

"We turned on the automatic equipment when pump station personnel left for the day," said Krajniak. "If staff had been there during the flood, city policy would have required them to begin discharging into Fox Creek once the wetwell level reached 17.5 feet. So by having the equipment on automatic, the pump was actually activated earlier."

Krajniak also pointed out that reports of basements being flooded were coming in before 5 p.m. and that at that time, the wetwell level was below what was needed to begin discharging into Fox Creek.

"Remember, we only discharge into Fox Creek during emergencies," said Krajniak. "During most storms, we store storm and sanitary sewage in the wetwell until it can be sent to Detroit for processing. That's why we don't begin discharges until the level reaches a certain level."

Walters said that she has been in contact with several other residents whose basements were flooded, and who are unhappy that the city's insurer, Meadowbrook Insurance, has ruled the flooded basements an act of God.

Walters said that she and some others have been in contact with attorneys and are planning on suing the insurance company. She also feels that an independent study by an engineering firm not in the employ of the Park is needed to answer all questions.

"All I can do is to go by the engineer's report," said Krajniak. "Our consulting engineers said that given the capacity of our system and the amount of rain that fell, the same thing would happen if another storm of similar intensity hit the city. This problem should be solved when our separated storm sewer project is complete."

War Memorial open house scheduled

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association conducts its 47th annual meeting at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 8, in the Fries Ballroom, 32 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Everyone is invited to attend the meeting, which includes a review of the last fiscal year by Mark R. Weber, War Memorial president, and the election of the new directors.

Current board members are Daniel R. Beck, Beverly Hall Burns, Donald F. Chamberlin, Douglas Cordier, Lynne M. DeGrande, Henry DeVries, and Guy T. Doyal. Also serving are Thomas Drummy, John C. Ladendorf, Donald A. Lindow,

A. David Mikesell, Mary Jane Moll, Barbara Monahan, Beline Obeid and Patricia S. Stumb.

A 6:30 p.m. dinner precedes the meeting. Dinner reservations are $14 a person and are due by Friday, Oct. 4. Call (313) 881-7511 for more information.

Community group — despite low profile — still in existence

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

The recent wave of publicity concerning a personnel matter at Grosse Pointe South High School drew crowds of people to the Sept. 4 school board meeting and spawned both local newspaper and TV news coverage.

Those taking sides either supporting or criticizing the way the school district handled the matter had their say at public forums as well as in letters to newspaper editors.

But, where was the Grosse Pointe Community Network — the newly formed community organization that, among other things, aims to support the Grosse Pointe school district?

"We're still around," said Leo

Nouhan, president of the board of trustees. "We had a board meeting this week and that (issue) didn't even come up. I don't know if we'll get involved in that, to be honest. We support Suzanne Klein (Grosse Pointe schools' interim superintendent) and don't want to stick our nose in the district's day-to-day operations."

The Grosse Pointe Community Network has been loosely organized since 1993. In 1995 the members established non-profit corporation status and appointed a board of trustees.

Although the network burst onto the local scene with its involvement in the 1996 school board election last June, and spoke out on school matters that were making headlines,

Nouhan said the Network "does not want to be a one-issue group."

"It's hard to keep up that kind of momentum," he said. "After the election, summer was upon us and everyone had their own plans. But the group is very much alive."

Right now network members are focusing their efforts on participating in the Thanksgiving Day parade in Grosse Pointe, planning a community wide clean-up for the spring and developing a project to reach children and senior citizens, known as ASK, or Alliance of Seniors and Kids.

"We'll probably be involved, in some capacity, in next year's school board election," Nouhan said.

Park woman takes life experiences and writes inspirational book

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Call it the little book with the big message. Grosse Pointe Park resident Sylvia Landuyt's first published work, "The Cemetery Gang," is a slim hardcover — 57 pages in all — that gets inside the mind of preadolescents and tells a short tale of self-discovery.

The cemetery gang is a group of six seventh-graders, who hang out together at a graveyard near their homes. The shady cemetery is their refuge, where they run, ride their bikes and daydream about the lives of the people whose names are on the tombstones.

On a moonlit night, the group has an out-of-this-world experience that has a profound effect on the rest of their lives.

The book, although fictional, is the product of 62-year-old Landuyt's life experiences. It is based on a mixture of friends' and family members' experiences, a little bit of her own history, and her observations as a mother who has raised six children and volunteered both in schools and at a children's care agency.

"It's a short story with a strong point," Landuyt said. "I think simple stories make more of an impact."

The message: Find your gifts. Use them. Be brave and don't ever give up.

Landuyt said she didn't write the book with the hopes of becoming rich and famous or to preach her message to others. Rather, she hopes the book will be used by parents to teach their children to look for the potential in themselves and in others.

"We need to look inside ourselves to find our gifts and we need to be able to find them in other people," said Landuyt, who describes herself as an optimist who will not allow fear to keep her from living life to its fullest. She finds it sad that so many people are buried along with their unfulfilled dreams.

The book also serves as a symbol of a turning point in Landuyt's life.

She was born in Detroit in a neighborhood near Hamtramck. Her family moved to St. Clair Shores when she was in grade school.

She then went to St. Ambrose High School in Grosse Pointe Park, where she met a football player named Dick Landuyt. They were high school sweethearts who mar-

POINTER OF INTEREST

Together they raised six children, Rick, Renee, Shelly, Sue, David and Steve. They moved to Grosse Pointe Park in 1960 and have lived there ever since.

"When the kids were grown and gone I said to my husband, we'd sell our house and buy a smaller home."

In her new-found spare time, Landuyt did some reading, some writing, took classes at Wayne State University, volunteered as a reader/helper in one of the Grosse Pointe public elementary schools and served as a mentor to first-time offenders at the Children's Home of Detroit.

"Those experiences made me realize how much support is needed to raise a happy child who has experienced successes and has high self-esteem," she said.

Soon afterward, she took a class at Wayne called P.R.H. (journaling) in which she was asked, among other things, to write down what she saw as her own gifts.

"I sat down and I thought: Who am I? How do people view me? I knew I had gifts, but didn't use some of them because I was too scared. Then I thought about my parents, my friends and my kids," she said. "I had many ideas locked in my brain, just waiting to get out."

Then, in October 1994, an idea for a book came to her in the middle of the night.

Instead of rolling over and going back to sleep, Landuyt sprang from her bed and quickly wrote the idea down.

It wasn't until the following January that she was able to slip away to her place on Marco Island, off the Gulf Coast of Florida, and give herself six weeks to write a rough draft.

She returned to Grosse Pointe and enlisted the help of a friend's daughter, Kimb Beers, to illustrate the cover and inside pages as well as hand-letter the text. Her 9-year-old grandson hand-lettered the title on the dust jacket, and her 15-year-old grandson designed fliers to publicize the book.

Finally, after learning a lot about the politics of the publishing business and an 11-month wait, her book was released on Aug. 28.

After living for a year in Frankfurt, Germany, while Dick was in the service, Landuyt returned to the United States when she was six months pregnant with her first child, bought a house in St. Clair Shores, and waited for her husband to finish his military duty.

Alien zebra mussels here to stay

Has the zebra mussel problem which has plagued Lake St. Clair and the Great Lakes leveled off, or have the mollusks found new bodies of water in which to breed?

Ron Griffiths, an ecologist with the Ontario Ministry of Environment and Energy, said the total number of zebra mussels has leveled off, but the average size of adult zebra mussels has decreased.

"There just isn't enough food, the lake is too clean," he said.

Griffiths can confirm, however, that zebra mussels have made their way into inland lakes.

"It seems to be most prolific in Michigan," he said. "They have only been inland during the last couple of years. It hasn't been a problem at this moment in time. There is always a lag over three to five years before people see the effects."

There are at least 33 inland lakes in Michigan that have been reported to have zebra mussels, according to Tom Nalepa, a research biologist for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Association.

"They have been moving up the Clinton River," he said. "They attach themselves to weeds, which get caught in a boat's propeller or on the boat's trailer, and then are transported to another lake. Over time, they can colonize over the impediment of the river's current."

Zebra mussels came to the Great Lakes from eastern Europe, traveling in the ballasts of cargo ships.

Despite laws asking foreign-launched ships to dump their ballasts before entering the St. Lawrence Seaway (in the United States it is mandatory, in Canada it is voluntary), the zebra mussel is here forever, Griffiths said.

"The ballast laws have assisted us, but we know other exotic species are getting through," he said. "More zebra mussels coming in is immaterial. We don't want other species coming in and causing another great change in the lakes."

Zebra mussels have no natural predators.

"Nothing can control their abundance," Griffiths said. "Even though they die after about three years, they are now part of the ecosystem."

"Once a species becomes established within the ecology of the Great Lakes, you can't eradicate it. You can control it at water intakes (as the Grosse Pointe Farms water department does, with chlorination), but you can't get rid of them."

The result of the zebra mussel, Griffiths said, is that lakes are reverting back to their historical forms, with clear water and an abundance of weeds.

"Zebra mussels cause changes in the lakes, but open other opportunities," he said. "Weeds help the bass fishing, but not the perch. Muskie and pike are doing better because they are able to see better. Rainbow trout used to be seen as a problem by some fishermen, but they aren't anymore."

It is difficult to tell what zebra mussels will do to smaller, inland lakes.

"Smaller lakes may not have enough food to sustain their populations," Griffiths said. "Some European lakes have had their zebra mussel populations reduced to zero."

Although there is not much state and local government can do, both units of government are working together to prevent sewage overflows from feeding the weeds and adding to the lake's problems.

The Department of Natural Resources made public service announcements asking boaters to clean off hulls and empty bilges before transporting their craft to other bodies of water.

We feel these efforts by the state and local municipalities, combined with a more strict enforcement of international ballast laws, is a step in the right direction in helping curb the spread of zebra mussels.

Pointes in our favor

The beginning of fall is a good time to take stock of what one has to tide the winter over, and here in the Pointes, our larder is full of good memories. We have a lot because we have a lot to like. Some of our favorites:

- The sleeping porches on many of the older homes here, finally left for warmer nights inside by couples who have enjoyed outside breezes all summer long.

- Friendly neighborhoods and friendly streets, where families get together at scores of block parties at the end of summer.

- The Pointe's massive menagerie of stone lions, guarding the entrances of houses everywhere.

- September sailing, often stretching well into October.

- Those hardy people who walk, or bicycle, to work (even in the winter, if it's not too icy).

- The tree stump sculptures of Grosse Pointe, a fanciful gallery of birds, mariners, and other real or imaginary things. The carved lighthouse on Neff near Mack has to be the prize winner, with honorable mentions to Hagar the Horrible and Garfield the Cat on East Jefferson.

- The strong sense of volunteerism here, with thousands of dedicated workers donating their time to benefit church or community affairs.

- The view of the Yacht Club tower out Lakeshore.

- New, young families moving in and a wide mix of people from many ethnic and national backgrounds arriving to add to the Pointe's diversity.

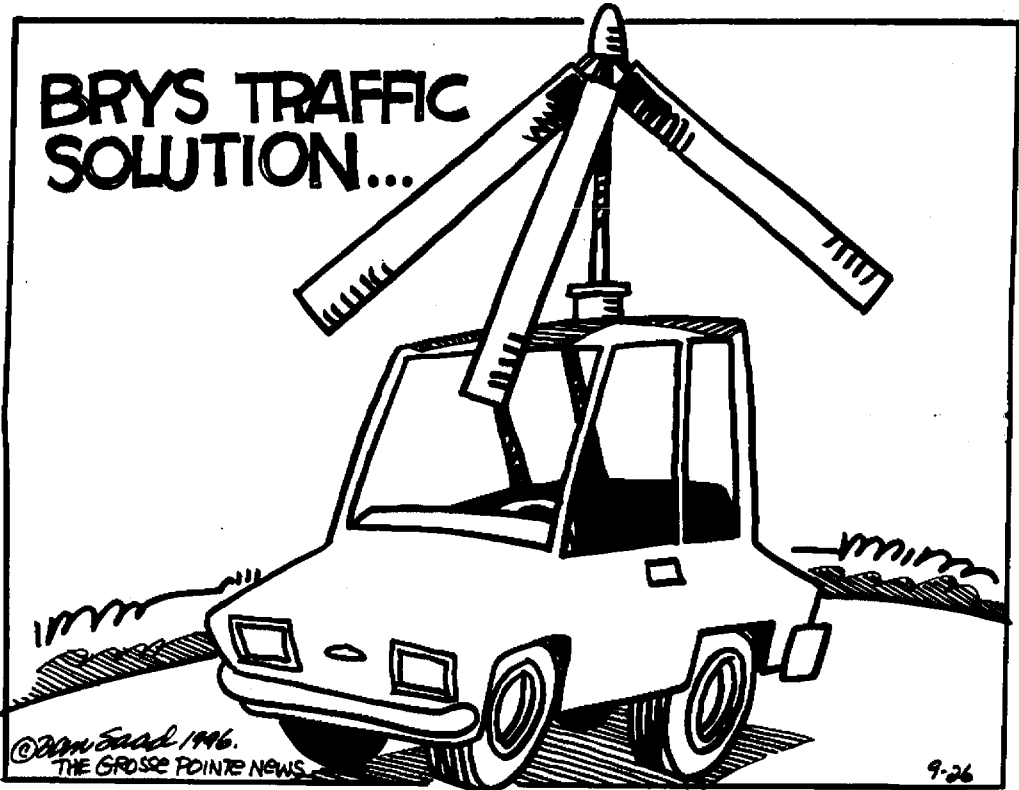

- An appreciation of the past, as evidenced by all the pictures of historic people and places in Pointe restaurants.

- The smell of good hardwood smoke beginning to emerge from fireplaces all over the Pointes.

- The free decorator tours for those who walk around the block in the evening, with rows of uncurtained study windows offering views of elegant walnut-paneled libraries full of nicely bound books, perfectly aligned and stacked to the ceiling.

- Everything that's going on at the War Memorial (and at the War Memorial, it seems like everything is going on).

It's a good place to live and, for most of us, it's been a good summer. Now, let the autumn roll.

Letters

To the Editor:

I recently received the "Grosse Pointe North 1996 Fall Sports Preview." Included in this publication is a letter from the Booster Club president, asking for financial support for the construction of lights at North.

The president failed to state several facts in the solicitation that I feel must be included:

- Contrary to the rumors, the case is still in court. Neighbors of North are suing the Grosse Pointe schools and Grosse Pointe Woods. A trial date is set for 1997.

- The judge told the school attorneys if they decide to go ahead with the construction of the light towers, depending on the outcome of the suit, they may have to take them down. Do potential donors know their money might be going to something short-term?

- As of July 1996, the schools paid defense attorney fees of nearly $35,000.

- Taxpayers from Grosse Pointe Woods are paying their city attorney his fees to defend the case. I was unable to get answers from the city but I believe their figure is likely about the same.

Grosse Pointe North's athletic director sent the neighbors of the school VIP passes to attend fall football games. Thanks, but no thanks. Some people in our neighborhood are elderly and frail. The last place you would find them is at a football game.

My husband and I are professionals with full-time careers and a toddler and newborn to raise. We do not have the time or energy to attend night football games. Unfortunately, we have no choice. Night football noise invades our home, disrupts our sleep and our quality of life.

This is not fair. Yes, we are suing ourselves. So be it. We will do whatever it takes to restore our peace and quality of life.

Anastasia M. Pitses
Grosse Pointe Woods

Are lights really free?

To the Editor:

While I share the North Booster Club's belief in the importance of athletics for our students, their solicitation for donations for lights at Grosse Pointe North High School strikes me as dishonesty at its worst.

This solicitation in North's fall sports preview newsletter fails to mention that these lights have to be removed if the current and ongoing litigation should be decided in favor of the plaintiffs. And who do you suppose will pay for this.

You can bet it won't be the Booster Club. It will be the burden of the school system, which by the way, has already spent over $34,000 on legal fees for these "free" lights.

Now we're talking about taxpayers' money. My money. I'd prefer to see these funds applied to educating our children and my grandchildren.

George E. Gerow
Grosse Pointe Farms

A taxing situation

To the Editor:

Grosse Pointe taxpayers have been expressing dismay over the fact that the school system paid an outside consultant $20,000 to solve personnel problems.

The taxpayers should be enraged that through July 31, 1996, the school board has spent almost $35,000 in legal fees on the North high school (free) lights case and the case doesn't go to trial until summer 1997. (Yes, the lights are up but the case is still in court and the meter is still running.)

This does not include what the lawsuit has cost the city of Grosse Pointe Woods. Their lawyer charges more than $150 an hour.

Twenty thousand dollars for a teacher problem, $35,000 for "free" lights — I guess it's all relative.

J.M. Tokatlan
Grosse Pointe Woods

Editor's note: According to interim superintendent Suzanne Klein, the Grosse Pointe Public School System spent approximately $32,000 in fiscal year 1995-96 on legal fees for the lawsuit concerning night football games at North high school.

A dismal baseball season

While Grosse Pointe News editorial writer Bill Elston is recuperating from surgery, we will reprint some of his past columns which have relevance today. The following piece was originally published Aug. 3, 1989, during one of the Detroit Tigers' 100-loss seasons.

Already the worst team in major league baseball this season, the pathetic Tigers stumble from defeat to defeat, whether on the road or at home, whether playing the division leaders or other also-rans. The season has become a shambles.

Even the return of Jack Morris after a two-month layoff caused by an arm injury didn't help. TV viewers were cautioned in advance by announcer Al Kaline not to expect too much from Morris and they certainly didn't get much. The result: a 10 to 0 lacing by the Milwaukee Brewers.

Morris pitched a strong nine innings in his second post-injury start and the Tigers split a four-game series with the Minnesota Twins in opening another home stand. Hope still springs eternal — but not for this year.

Bad as the pitching has been, the Tigers are even worse at the plate. Their team batting average has been the lowest in the American League week after week. They have scored fewer runs than any other American League team and won fewer games than any of the other cellar dwellers in the four divisions of the major leagues.

Keith Moreland, who had been the only bright spot among the new Tigers with a team-leading average hovering around .300, has been traded to the Baltimore Orioles for a promising young minor league pitcher. (The player for whom Moreland was traded is Brian DuBois. He spent a year and a half between the Tigers and their farm system and eventually was traded back to Baltimore. He is no longer in baseball.) It was a rebuilding move, we are told, but the rest of the 1989 acquisitions have done little at the plate, on the mound or in the field.

It is true that injuries have plagued the Tigers this year with most of the regulars being out of action at one time or another for weeks and even months. But Jerry Green's recent profile of Tiger owner Tom Monaghan in The Detroit News suggested another problem for the team.

The owner appears to have lost interest, has attended only a couple of the games and says he leaves the team in the hands of his professional baseball managers. But what has he done to spur efforts to get first rate players to replace Kirk Gibson, Lance Parrish, Darrell Evans and even Tom Brookens? The results would indicate not much.

Unless someone suddenly comes alive in management, or new stars miraculously develop in the farm clubs over night, the Tigers appear doomed to dwell in the basement for more years to come. It's a dismal prospect but Baltimore did go from the basement to the top in one season.

Why couldn't the Tigers duplicate the feat next year?

The Stickford Files

I was going to write my Noam Chomsky column about words and how people misuse them. (Hint to all bureaucrats, "signage" means, according to Webster's New World Dictionary, Third College edition, "the signs collectively displayed as in a community, often specifically when graphically coordinated." Meaning signage is all those signs you see when you are welcomed into a community. Signage is not, I repeat, not interchangeable with the word sign.

But I digress. For the past week, I have been the lunch guy. That means I stay in the office when everyone else is at lunch. The duty is a rotating one, but the lunch person often meets people he or she normally does not encounter when the full staff is in the office.

Specifically, I've been handling wedding and engagement announcement issues. It's not a difficult duty, you simply hand someone a form if they ask how they can get a wedding or engagement announcement in the paper, and when they are completed, place the form on the wedding editor's desk.

You might have to answer a few questions, like when will the announcement get in the paper. I just tell people that we run the announcements in the order in which we receive them, and that if we receive more announcements than we have room to print, there will be a delay.

But there are other questions that I don't know how to handle. Questions like, "is it all right if I don't describe my mother's dress," or "which picture looks the best, the one with the bride with her bouquet or the one without the bouquet?"

I Say

Jim Stickford

It's questions like those that make me realize one very important thing. Weddings are a "chick" thing. Quite bluntly it would never occur to me, with my simple male mind, to ask these questions. I would assume that the bride's mother wore clothes like anyone else. As long as either picture met our technical requirement for printing, what would it matter whether the bride was holding the bouquet or not?

When I was in school, I helped pay the bills by working for a catering service, and ended up acting as a waiter at a lot of weddings.

I have attended weddings of siblings and friends from college, and acted as an usher, a groomsman and a best man. I've pretty much done everything a guy can do at a wedding with the exception of being the groom (let it go Mom) or the minister who performs the ceremony.

It's fair to say that my male mind does not see a wedding in the same light as the women I've known. But that hasn't stopped me from coming to a couple of conclusions about weddings. The groom's role is to be a walking, talking giant Ken doll. He is just supposed to stand there and look pretty. His other job is to agree with everything the bride says.

Right way for groom to act: "You want to put the bridesmaids in lime green dresses with purple shoes, great idea."

Wrong way to act: "Hey honey, why don't we have the bride's maids dresses in a color that allows them to wear the dresses at other occasions. It costs a lot of money to buy those dresses and I think that if they can use them for other occasions it would be a nice thing."

In the second response, the groom has demonstrated a profound lack of understanding and support for the bride. If he loved her, the bride will say, he would not only support her choice of bridesmaid dresses, he would personally go out and beat up anyone who even thought of criticizing the dress selection.

The bride wants the groom to wear a powder blue tuxedo with a puffy shirt, it's his job to yell back with an enthusiasm usually reserved for Marine Corps drill instructors and high school football coaches, "how powder blue should the tuxedo be, how puffy should the shirt be?"

I guess it all goes back to the days when little girls played with their Barbies. They got to stage weddings, mix and match the clothes, plan a great party. Now they get to do it for real.

Boys played with GI Joe. We didn't plan weddings, we planned the liberation of Nazi-occupied Europe. This probably accounts for the popularity of Civil War reenactors and paintball tournaments.

Remember, guys, when the women get together, they say things like "nothing is going to ruin my/her wedding." They do not say things like, "their wedding will be wonderful." The pronoun is always singular.

But don't worry fellas, you'll get your day too. After all the Super Bowl comes along every year.

Plank thanks

W.J. Graham, captain of the Jefferson Beach-based yacht Helene, credits an Aug. 29 article in the Grosse Pointe News for helping find the historic boat's gangplank (termed a g a n g w a y gate), missing since a week earlier.

"The gate was in the possession of someone who had no idea of what it was or where it came from until she read the article ...," says a grateful captain Graham. "After reading (it), she called us and returned the gate that evening."

"One of the owners, Dan Deane, was joining friends for a dinner cruise that night," Graham says. "The gate was returned moments before he arrived. Words can't describe his reaction ... those involved in the recovery were invited to join the party for the boat ride and dinner aboard."

"The weather was gorgeous, the company gregarious, but most of all, the Helene was whole again. Now she'll look tall' for her 70th (anniversary) next year."

As long as thanks are being passed along, we thank the Park's Tom Verbiest, son of former Helene owner C.M. Verbiest, for providing the historical background and pictures for the story.

Nailing down a customer

"We give extra service here," says Wheatland Bread Company's Shirley Preletz as the clerk behind the counter stamps my peanut butter cookie card.

Example: "A little while ago a woman came in for bread, but she'd just done her nails and the polish was still wet," says Shirley.

"I had to go into her purse, take out her wallet, open it, take out the money and put the change back in it for her." (Hope she left the car keys in the ignition.)

Not just playing games

Eric Lindauer, who graduated from University Liggett High School in '94, is currently a junior at MIT in Boston, and now has at least one foot in a national Internet business.

His mom, Lynn Miller of the Park, says Eric and a schoolmate set up an Internet home page called "Twilight Games" that features a lot of neat graphics and a rating service for popular computer games with "Top Five" picks, tips for playing, etc.

Last month a contract was negotiated and the site idea was purchased by a New Jersey company called Internet Games Corp., with the two young men now employees and 5 percent shareholders of the corporation.

Lynn says the site's listed via all major search engines as www.twilightgames.com

InterNote: Not one to be left behind in the cyber dust, longtime Pointe area bookseller James Monnig has now b e c o m e BOOKJIM@JUNO.COM and is doing worldwide electronic book searches for his clients.

Not bad for a feller who's set up business in a quaint little former antique store. (It used to be the Kennary Kage.)

They're in the swim

"The tape player blared out 'Stars & Stripes Forever' and miniature American flags flapped in the early morning breeze Wednesday, Aug. 28," says the Woods' Lorraine Lieder. "All this because Sue Ellison achieved her goal of swimming 50 miles this summer in the early morning lap swim at the Woods Park pool."

"Gerry Morrison accomplished 40 miles and 26 laps this summer," says Lorraine. "Even a sprained ankle didn't keep her away — she came using a walker, and two days later she was back (swimming) with her doctor's blessing."

"Mae Spitzer began her swim each morning at 6:30 and never missed a day (except the weekend she attended a wed-d in Harbor Springs)." Lorraine, who regularly did 30 laps three to four times a week at the pool, says she and her friends decided to stage their own celebration of a great summer of swimming at the end of the season.

"Now it's over. We'd like to feel the cool water on our shoulders again during these hot days of September, but we'll settle for the memories of old and new friends, laughter and achievements made," Lorraine says.

"Early morning swimmers think the Woods Pool and Park are something special. Thanks to (pool supervisor) Art Colton and the young lifeguards and gate attendants who greeted us each morning."

A CHANCE MEETING WITH DR. KEVORKIAN

Let's get moving on state's roads

By Lawrence W. Reed
President, Mackinac Center for Public Policy

Michigan's roads need to be fixed. The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) says they do. The governor agrees and so do legislators of both parties. Studies from independent organizations make the same case. But I don't need public officials or studies to convince me that the roads are falling apart.

For years, I've made a habit of keeping a notepad in the front passenger seat of my car when I'm driving alone. I can fill several pages with that stuff on a two-hour road trip. The problem these days is that when I get home, I can't read my own notes anymore. They look like a blind man's scribbles on an Etch-a-Sketch. That's how I know that Michigan's roads need to be fixed.

Maintaining Michigan's 118,000 miles of highways and roads is crucial to the state's economic progress but how to pay for them is a question that has vexed Lansing for months. Proposals for hiking the 15 cent-per-gallon gasoline tax are bogged down over how the revenue should be split between the counties and the state. Many people argue that if the gasoline tax is raised, other state taxes and spending should be correspondingly cut so that Michigan's overall economic competitiveness is not hurt.

While the discussion continues, so does the deterioration and its mounting bills. Because fixing "poor" roads is three to five times more expensive than fixing those rated "fair," it makes economic sense in the long run to invest in halting the deterioration of roads before they become poor.

In the meantime, the Michigan Department of Transportation is trying to get more bang for the bucks it has, and is adopting many recommendations made in a 1995 report from the Mackinac

Center for Public Policy. For example, MDOT is continuing to streamline its operations by reducing staff size and privatizing certain functions to save money. It is attempting to sell 700 miles of railroad track it doesn't need. It is developing better standards for road and bridge design. MDOT is pushing for fairer and less costly land acquisition rules. And, MDOT is making a better case in Washington that Michigan's share of federal transportation dollars is nothing less than "highway robbery."

Of the funds disbursed from the Federal Highway Trust Fund for actual highway purposes, Michigan gets back the smallest percentage of what it pays in of almost any state in the nation. In 1992, for instance, the federal government collected $698 million in fuel taxes within Michigan, and returned a mere $382 million. We are one of 37 states that would benefit if Congress repealed the federal gasoline tax and let each state take care of both tax collection and road expenses for all but the interstate system—an idea actually introduced in the U.S. Senate by Sen. Mack of Florida.

Neither Congress nor the state Legislature is likely to settle the transportation funding question before the November elections, but the legislature can take care of a few issues that will move Michigan in the right direction:

- Enact Tort Reform. State liability for accidents greatly affects the cost of building and maintaining Michigan's roads. Michigan paid out $191 million in tort claims between 1981 and 1994, $12.4 million in 1994 alone. MDOT is exposed to highly unpredictable liability for accidents in which a highway defect is alleged. While true negligence by the state should indeed result in liability, the current system encourages frivolous claims and excessive payments. According to Wayne State University's Dr. John Taylor, Michigan could save between $5 million and $10 million each year if the legislature simply improved the legal definition of the state's liability and enacted reasonable caps on "pain and suffering" awards.

- End the Diesel Discount. Michigan's gasoline tax has remained at 15 cents per gallon since 1984, while the diesel fuel tax has stood at 9 cents per gallon since 1982 when a 6-cent discount for truckers took effect. Under the "user fee" principle, 9 cents per gallon does not pay the full share of costs imposed by trucks on Michigan roads. Repealing the discount would put the diesel fuel tax on a par with the gasoline tax and raise about $25 million annually. The state could then eliminate its diesel fuel discount sticker program, which would reduce the regulatory burden of the Treasury Department and cut registration expenses for Michigan-based trucking companies. Reductions in other taxes now or later would reduce any negative impact of a higher diesel fuel tax.

- Repeal Prevailing Wage. Beginning in 1965, the state's Prevailing Wage statute required that workers on construction projects receiving state funds be paid inflated, union-scale wages and benefits. A federal district court recently struck down the state law on the grounds that federal law preempts it, but Attorney General Frank Kelley is appealing. Meantime, MDOT is cutting costs by putting contracts up for bid without prevailing wage provisions, but the Legislature should settle this issue once and for all. By repealing this special interest legislation, Michigan can count on saving at least $6 million in transportation costs every year.

Michigan's crumbling roads need attention. More than attention, they need repair. The legislature should rise to the occasion and start to take some action.

Buckle Up for Love!

New MEAP science, writing tests challenging for elementary students

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

There were few surprises in the results of the new science and writing tests given to Grosse Pointe fifth- and eighth-graders last spring as part of the Michigan Educational Assessment Program, MEAP.

MEAP tests are given annually by the state department of education and are used to measure the degree to which students are learning the Michigan Model Core Curriculum and the Michigan Essential Goals and Objectives.

Results of the tests were released on Sept. 13 and are reported as the percentage of students who achieved proficiency in a particular subject.

Grosse Pointe's results are:

- For the fifth grade, 91.4 percent of the students achieved proficiency on the writing exam and 46.3 percent achieved proficiency on the science exam.

Statewide, 55.6 percent of Michigan fifth-graders were proficient on the writing test and 26.9 percent of the students reached proficiency on the science exam.

• For the eighth grade, 90.8

percent of the students achieved proficiency on the writing test and 53.2 percent of the students achieved proficiency on the science exam. On the state level, 69.1 percent of eighth graders achieved proficiency on the writing exam and 21.5 percent scored proficient on the science exam.

Administrators in Grosse Pointe, who are busy interpreting the scores and preparing for the next battery of tests, which begin on Monday, Sept. 30, are pleased with the results, particularly in the area of writing.

"Writing has always been a central issue in our curriculum," said Marjorie Parsons, assistant superintendent for curriculum and evaluation. "We have an annual assessment of writing from grades one through nine for the last 20 years. We weren't surprised that we did well on the MEAP writing test. Our own results have been telling us the same thing."

The science exam scores were not quite as high as the writing exam scores, but Parsons said part of that can be attributed to the nature of the new tests.

"We went through the science test, pulled it apart to see what happened," Parsons said. "We discovered that half of the kids were within a half of a point of reaching the proficient level. We found that the largest error was in the students leaving an answer blank."

Areas the district will have to address in the coming year: help the students develop better test-taking skills and step-up the Earth science curriculum.

The new science MEAP is a departure from previous tests that were solely multiple choice. The new test features some multiple choice, essay answers and requires conducting an experiment.

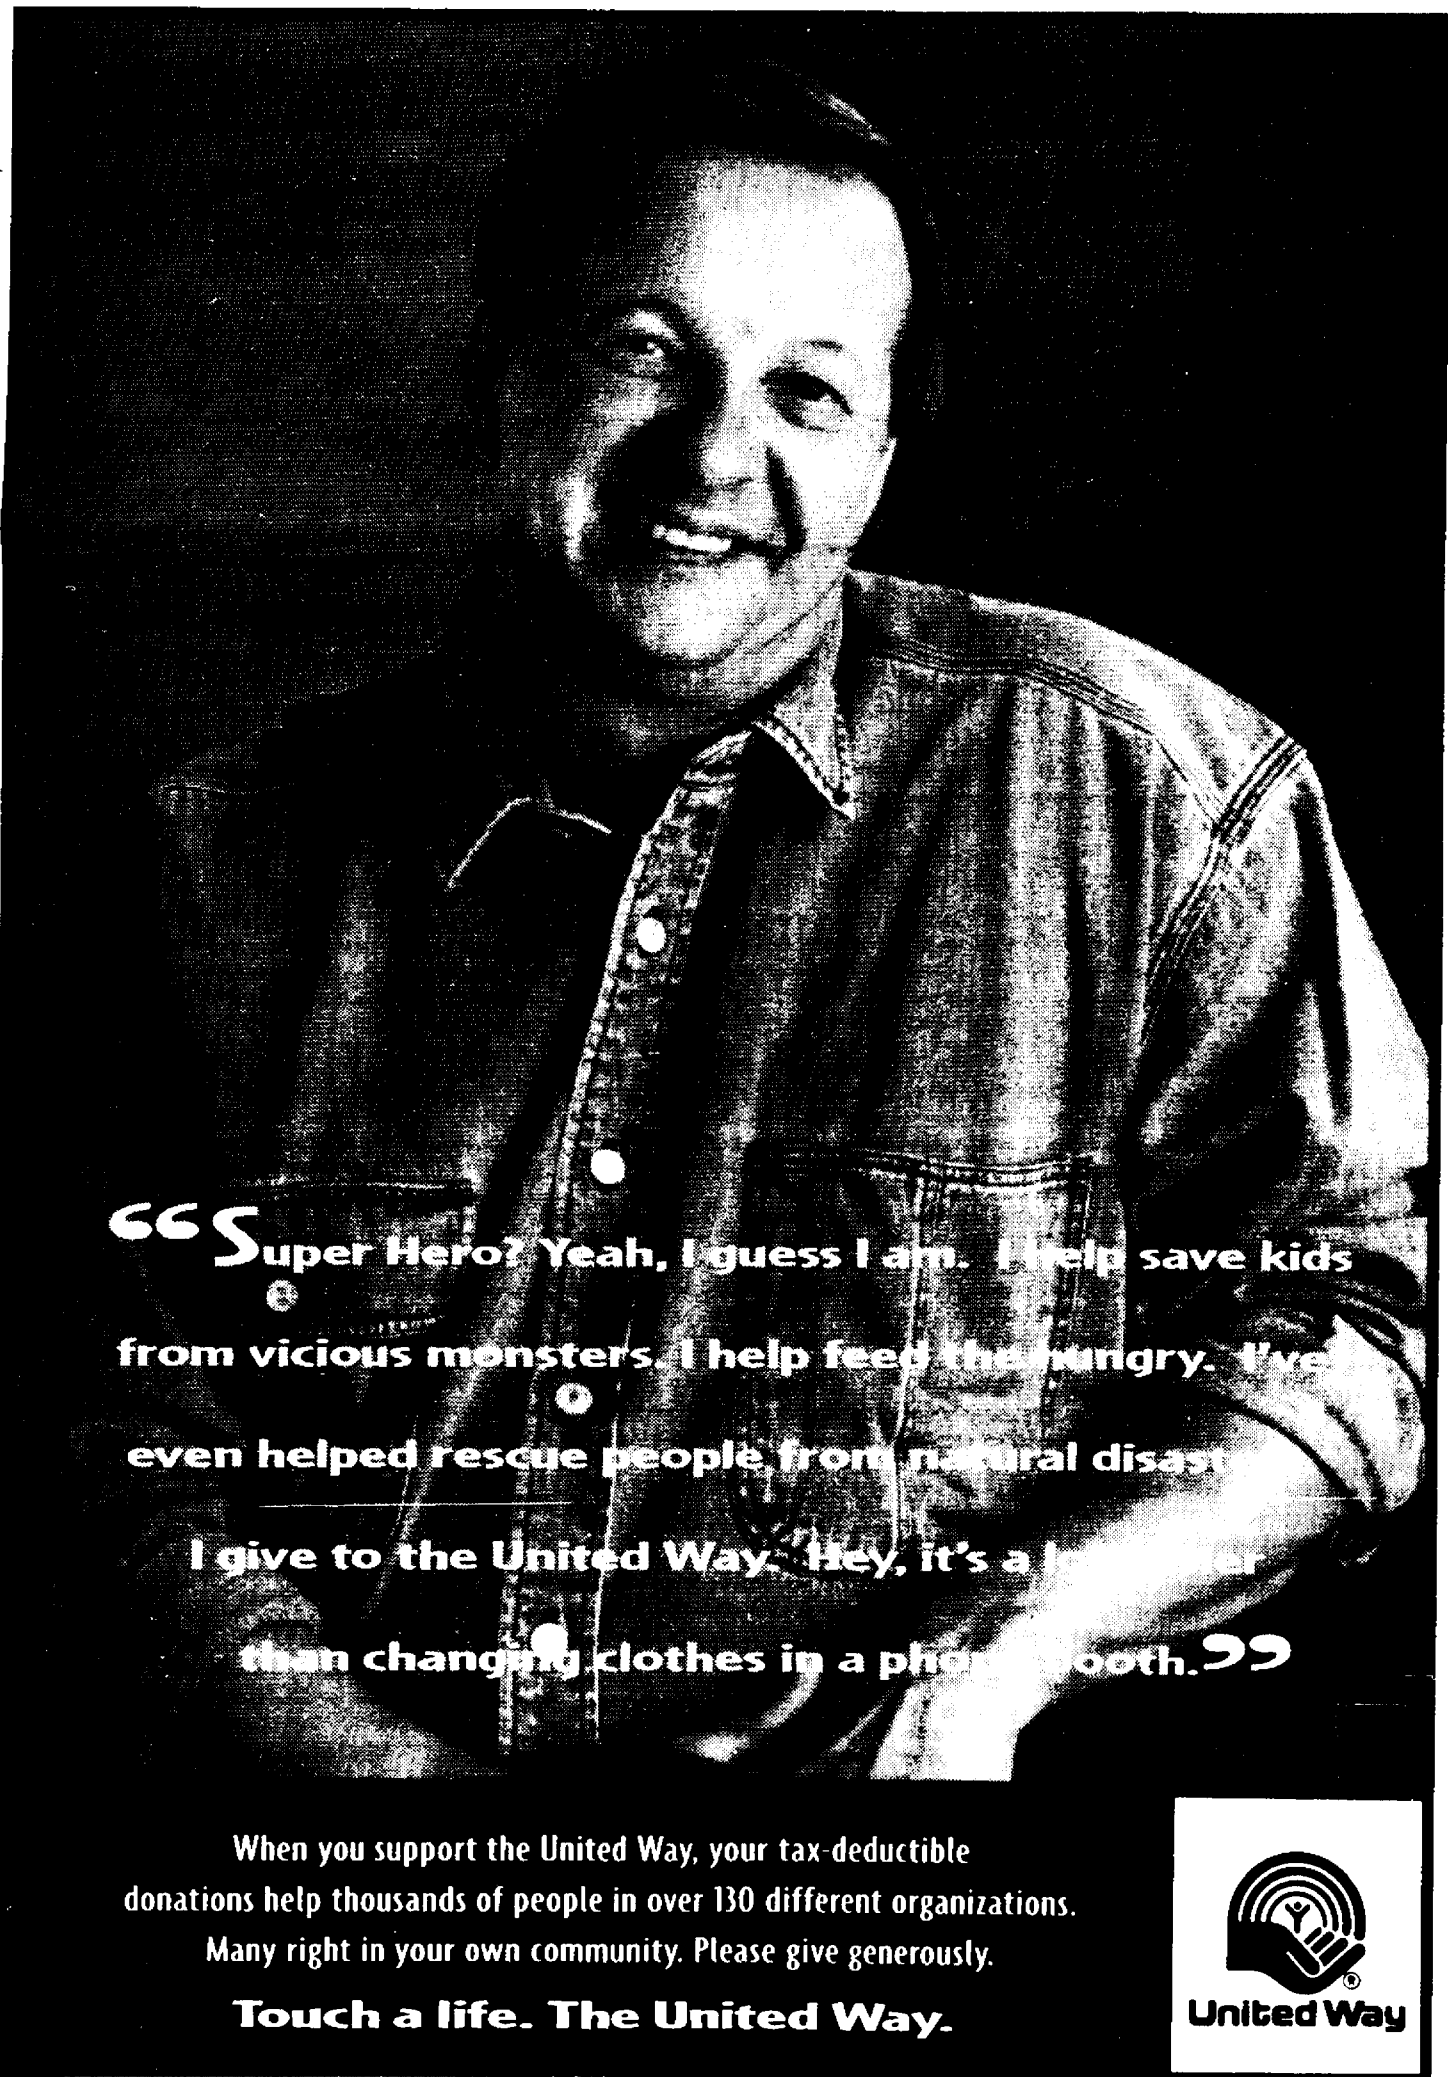

"It's a good test; it mimics a good classroom but it's an unusual circumstance for kids to go through and call it a test," Parsons said. "They just weren't used to taking a test like this."

Each year, fourth and seventh graders take the reading and math exams, while fifth and eighth graders take the science test. This year, high school students took the High School Proficiency Test, which replaces the math, reading and science MEAPs at the secondary level.

Farms council OKs South's scoreboards

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

Pepsi may be the choice of a new generation, but for at least the next seven years Coke will be it at South High School football and baseball games after the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council approved a site plan to allow scoreboards, which contain the Coca Cola logo, to be placed on the school's athletic fields.

The Grosse Pointe school board had approved a contract with Coca Cola in March, under which the company would donate $35,000 toward the purchase of the scoreboards. The total cost is $49,234, the balance of which will be paid from the school system's general fund.

Scoreboards at North High School's track and baseball fields will also have Coca Cola logos.

The contract stipulates that the scoreboards display the Coca Cola logo alongside the school's nickname. The deal also gives Coca Cola exclusive rights to sell the company's beverages in the schools.

The Farms council had to approve a waiver in the city's sign ordinance which prohibits advertising on community-use land.

The scoreboards are scheduled to be installed within the next two to four weeks.

of Michigan in 1962. He received his law degree from U-M in 1965.

During his 30-year legal career, Mr. Langs was a pioneer in the field of computer law. He served as a legal director with the Burroughs Corp., now known as Unisys, and was in charge of negotiating, drafting and reviewing computer hardware and software licenses. He later joined the Detroit law firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock & Stone, and lectured all over the country about computer law.

Mr. Langs helped found and served as president of the Computer Law Association, an international association of attorneys and businessmen. He also served as chairman of the Computer Law Section of the State Bar of Michigan, as well as serving as adjunct professor of law for Wayne State University, the University of Detroit and the University of Windsor.

Mr. Langs was also active in many charities. He served as a director of the Junior Olympic development program for the U.S. Youth Soccer Association, and he received the Grosse Pointe Park Concerned Citizen Award. He was also a great fan of the Detroit Red Wings and enjoyed photography, and was known for his great love of animals.

Most recently, Mr. Langs served as secretary of the International Science Engineering Fair 2000, and was appointed to the Board of Student Publications at U-M.

Mr. Langs is survived by his wife, Dorothy Morrall Langs; two daughters, Kelly Kistler and June Hicks; two sisters, Mary Langs Holekamp and Patricia Collins Fitzgerald; a brother, John William Langs; and two grandchildren. He was predeceased by his brother, H.R. Stark Langs.

Interment is at Woodlawn Cemetery in Detroit. Funeral arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Zookeepers Association in care of the Detroit Zoo, 8450 West 10 Mile, Royal Oak, Mich., 48068, or to the Cleveland Clinic, Cardiology Dept., Institutional Advancement UA20, 9500 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, 44195.

William H. Crandall

William H. Crandall

A memorial Mass will be celebrated on Friday, Sept. 27, in St. Ambrose Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Park at 6 p.m. for Park resident William H. Crandall, who died in Fort Pierce, Fla., on Sunday, Sept. 22, 1996.

Born in Grosse Pointe, Mr. Crandall graduated from St.

Ambrose High School in 1940. He served as a corporal in U.S. Army's armored forces.

Mr. Crandall served as a police officer in Grosse Pointe Park for 32 years. He was an active member of the community, serving as a Little League coach, which was only natural because he was also drafted into the St. Louis Cardinals baseball organization. He also coached basketball and football.

Mr. Crandall is survived by his wife, Helen; three daughters, Mary Kay Crandall, Suzanne Bassett, Margaret Crandall and Maureen Crandall; six sons, Michael, David, Chuck and Robert, Patrick and Matthew; a brother, Jerry; 16 grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park. Memorial contributions can be made to Grosse Pointe Park Little League or to the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

the Detroit College of Law, Mr. Ewald was known for his philanthropy. The only son of H.T. Ewald Sr., a co-founder of the Detroit-based international advertising agency now known as Lintas: Campbell-Ewald. He owned and operated a Chevrolet dealership on Jefferson in Grosse Pointe Park.

Mr. Ewald ran the Ewald Foundation, named after his father. The organization spent $3 million over the past 40 years to assist 446 young men and women from the Detroit area who could otherwise not have afforded to go to college.

Grades were never the absolute bottom line for scholarships. Mr. Ewald sought out students with intelligence, drive, enthusiasm for life and commitment to others, following each student throughout his or her academic career, providing help and guidance.

Mr. Ewald also was a past president of the University Club, and was a member of the Yondotega Club, the Grosse Pointe Club and the Country Club of Detroit. He served on the boards of the Salvation Army, the Detroit Zoological Society Founders, Channel 56 Public Television, Hutzel Hospital and Exeter Academy.

Mr. Ewald was named "Michigianian of the Year" in 1984 by The Detroit News, honored with the Spirit of Detroit Award in 1977, and won an "Unsung Hero of Sports" award in 1985 by the Buoy 3 project.

Mr. Ewald also was interested in boxing, promoting several prize-fight cards in the Detroit area, and he owned and managed two well-known Michigan heavyweight boxers, Alvin "Blue" Lewis and the late Sonny Banks.

Mr. Ewald is survived by his wife, Carolyn Taylor Ewald; four daughters, Holly, Tracy, Wendy and Kristi; two sons, Teddy and John; a sister, Mrs. Charles Pfeifer; and six grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the H.T. Ewald Foundation, 15175 East Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park, Mich., 48230.

CARBON BUILDUP AND PINGING

Pinging due to abnormal combustion causes metallic-sounding noises to emanate from inside the engine. The octane rating posted on the gasoline pump is a measure of the fuel's ability to resist pinging. As a car gets older, however, it may happen that gasoline of a particular octane number is no longer sufficient to keep pinging at bay, and gasoline of a higher octane number may be needed to stop pinging. An engine's increased octane appetite may be due to excessive carbon buildup in the combustion chambers. While driving the car at high speed for a few hours may help to burn off some of the carbon, good sense and recognition of the need to enforce speed limits may preclude this solution to the problem. Instead, the automobile technician may use a chemical for decarbonization, or as a last resort, mechanical carbon removal may be necessary.

Don't let the technical parts of automotive care give you a headache—get the expert assistance that makes your life easier. At RINKE TOYOTA, we help you select the car that meets your particular requirements, and we offer only the finest in courteous assistance. Timeliness, reliability, friendliness, and service excellence—these are our promises to you. You can reach us at 758-8000, or stop in and see us at 25490 Van Dyke. You'll find us easy to talk to—we speak your language.

NOTE: Mechanical carbon removal is an option of the last resort because it may remove the engine's cylinder head or heads.

Toyota's new RAV4 utility OK, but not quite up to Geo Tracker

The long-anticipated Toyota RAV4 little sports/utility run-about is here. Was it worth the wait if you decided to hold up on your purchase of a Geo Tracker? Well, maybe.

If you want a small vehicle with the rugged looks of a sports/utility but the manageability and comfort of a passenger car, then yes, waiting for the RAV4 was a good idea.

If you want a very high-quality, fun-to-drive little four-wheel drive vehicle for getting to work in any kind of weather, yes, this is a good one.

The RAV4 is a car, built on a cargo area that is more roomy than seems likely from the outside.

We were fortunate enough to test-drive a Geo Tracker right after trying the RAV4.

The Tracker seems to be the closest rival to the RAV4. The Jeep Wrangler is in the same ballpark in size and price, but it is more truck-like and probably appeals to a somewhat different market segment.

The RAV4 is tall, reminiscent of its popular ancestor, the Toyota Tercel 4WD wagon. It is about the same height as a front-drive minivan. You get

Autos

By Richard Wright

2.0-liter, 120-horsepower four-cylinder engine, hooked to either a five-speed or automatic transmission powering the front or all wheels. Four-wheel much peppier than out automatic RAV4, despite the Toyota's bigger engine.

Short and stubby, both these cute little vehicles maneuver easily and handle with a light touch, whether on the highway or in more demanding situations. They are both serious vehicles, solidly built, not at all like toys.

The Tracker is offered in a closed vehicle version for 1996, but as a convertible it is a sports car that you may find is more fun than a sports car like the Miata.

Geo offers the Tracker in two-door convertibles or four-door hardtop models. Our test vehicle was the new four-door hardtop. The four doors are very convenient, but the convertible is more fun if you like that kind of stuff (I do.)

You don't get down or climb up into either the RAV4 or the Tracker, you just open the door and slide into the butt-high seats.

Four-door Trackers can be equipped with power windows, door locks and mirrors.

Child security rear door locks are standard, and daytime running lights have been added to all Trackers.

Cruise control is a new option.

Both are miserly in fuel consumption for the sports/utility class.

The RAV4 has EPA ratings of 22 city, 27 highway. The Tracker is rated at 23 city and 26 highway.

Base price of the RAV4 is $15,128 and for the Tracker it is $14,956. Both have a fairly extensive option list that can push the price close to $20,000 by the time you get it right for you.

So which is better? The Tracker is probably cuter, it is backed by Chevrolet's sales organization and it has proved itself on the market.

It is more of a fun vehicle. The RAV4 is a well-designed vehicle with loads of space and personality.

A loaded Tracker is less expensive than a loaded RAV4, but the Toyota is bigger and more car-like.

Perhaps most importantly, the RAV4 is endowed with Toyota's well-deserved reputation for quality.

To my surprise, I liked the Geo Tracker better. I'm not sure why.

The new Geo Tracker four-door sedan delivers a lot of fun in a useful four-wheel-drive package.

the platform of a four-wheel-drive Camry sedan sold in the Japanese market. With independent suspension all around, it drives like a car, and is comfortable like a car.

But it also has attributes of a truck that sports/utility buyers like. It has full-time four-wheel drive, more than eight inches of ground clearance and a high view of the road, which many drivers (including me) like. You get a lot of headroom, too. And very comfortable seating, upright on chair-height seats.

The Geo Tracker is also comfortable, not quite so tall, a little more cramped, not quite so much cargo area.

The RAV4 is powered by a anti-lock brakes are optional.

The Tracker is powered by a 1.6-liter 16-valve four which puts out 95 horsepower, up from 80 horsepower last year.

A new four-speed automatic transmission is available, but it detracts from the peppiness of the standard five-speed manual. In fact, the stick-shift Tracker test vehicle seemed Toyota RAV4 is a worthy successor to the popular Toyota Tercel 4WD high wagon of the '80s.

Midwest travelers 'discover' Detroit

Recent efforts by AAA Michigan and the Metropolitan Detroit Convention & Visitors Bureau (MDCVB) to promote Metro Detroit as a vacation destination have paid off in increased travel to the area.

"Since the MDCVB launched the 'Motor City Getaway Packages' in June, AAA has booked 500 packages," said AAA travel director Bill Best. "This number is significant, because it represents a growing trend in the Metro Detroit area."

According to Best, an additional 1,324 people have visited Metro Detroit within the last three months as a result of the "onestop shopping" packages.

The joint program provides travelers with a personalized, convenient way to book accommodations that fit every pocketbook, from budget to luxury hotels, and attractions such as the Detroit Tigers, Detroit Zoo, Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village, Gem Theatre, The Second City, Michigan Star Clipper Dinner Train, Casino Windsor, Cranbrook Art Museum, Gardens and Institute of Science.

The top-selling destination to date is the Detroit Zoo, followed by Henry Ford Museum, the Detroit Tigers, Cranbrook and Second City.

More than 300 Motor City Getaway packages have been purchased by Michigan residents from communities across the state. Leading the pack is Grand Rapids with 42 packages purchased, followed by the tri-cities (Bay City, Saginaw and Midland). Other areas with high bookings include Lansing, Muskegon and Kalamazoo.

In the northwest lower peninsula, travelers from Traverse City, Alpena, Harbor Springs and Boyne City purchased a Motor City Getaway.

The program is also popular in Ohio. Approximately 80 trips to the Motor City were purchased during the program's first three months, with residents from Cleveland leading the charge.

Nearly 30 Canadian communities were represented in the first vanguard of Motor City visitors and the states of Illinois, North Carolina, New York and Wisconsin were also represented.

The fall Motor City Getaway Packages program is now well underway, with new offerings available such as the Detroit Red Wings, Detroit Pistons, Taubman Malls or Somerset Collection shopping, and Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

Packages start as low as $35 per person based on double occupancy. Special discounts are available to AAA members.

Restaurant options can be added to packages.

For more information and a package guide, call AAA Michigan at 1-800-722-0313.

Donate old car to fight asthma

The American Lung Association of Michigan has a better idea. Instead of selling their used cars, the association is asking Michiganians to give them to its vehicle donation program.

Donated cars are sold at auction and proceeds go toward the association's educational programs and community services, as well as for advocacy and research.

Donors can deduct the fair-market value of their cars as a charitable contribution on their federal tax returns. An additional bonus is that donating the car saves the donor the aggravation of selling the car.

"If anyone has ever tried to sell a car, they're quite familiar with what a hassle it can be," said Susan Wood of the association. "We've made this program very easy, so the decision to donate is easier."

The association will pick up donated vehicles from the home of the donor free of charge, as well as providing an estimated value of the vehicle as a guide for tax deductions.

The association will accept trucks, vans, boats, motorcycles and other vehicles as well as cars, said Wood. The items don't have to be in working condition, but they must have a proper title and be accessible for towing. Area businesses are also eligible to make donations. The American Lung Association is dedicated to preventing lung disease and in promoting lung health, with a special focus on asthma, education, air quality and tobacco control and anti-smoking programs.

To learn more about the association and the donation program, call 1 (800) 543-LUNG.

Driving standards toughened

Michigan Secretary of State Candice S. Miller, in a recent announcement, approved of the recently enacted legislation creating a graduated licensing system for teenage drivers.

The law requires young drivers to go through a three-step process before gaining unrestricted driving privileges. It mandates a specific number of hours of driving practice and reinstates the mandatory road test as a part of the licensing process.

"Every time there is a crash involving a young driver, we are reminded that experience often makes the difference," said Miller.

"This law will make a difference by requiring mandatory time behind the wheel and a mandatory road test before young people are issued a driver's license."

The road test, in particular, said Miller, is a major step toward improved traffic safety. It will be, she predicts, a stimulus for young drivers to get more driving experience and to make driver education more meaningful.

"The end result of the legislation will be fewer young lives lost as a result of traffic accidents," Miller said.

Financing The American Dream

Suicide of Admiral Boorda raises questions about getting help

By Victor Bloom, M.D.

A few months ago I wrote an article about the suicide of Admiral Boorda.

I spoke of the likelihood that his suicide was related to an underlying, untreated depression.

I related some of the many reasons that people avoid appropriate and effective treatment for depression.

Among these are a fear of the stigma of mental illness and the fear of facing one's inner pain.

Also among these is a fear of trusting another person with these feelings of vulnerability.

In our society it is important to appear strong and self-reliant. Many people think that the fact of seeing a psychiatrist is a message that one is weak and cannot carry responsibility.

As a matter of fact, many people who are depressed are, at the same time, highly functioning and responsible, but often they feel at the breaking point and cannot help but consider suicide as a way out of unrelenting and unbearable psychic pain.

One person who read this article called me up and made an appointment. A highly functioning person, he could identify with Admiral Boorda.

He sought help and he received it.

In one interview it was clear that there was an inherited neurochemical imbalance and an effective anti-depressant made all the difference in the world.

Many people can hardly believe that the brain is a complex of neurochemical interactions which can be balanced and modulated by the newer medications.

These medications do not mask feelings; rather, they restore normal feelings, and they do not cause dependency or addiction.

Some people simply do not like the idea of having to take any medication, any indication that they are "sick." And some people worry about horror stories in the media about side effects.

In fact, side effects are minimal and benign, for the most part. A recent article in the New Yorker related the psychosocial background of Admiral Boorda's suicide.

If he was prone to depression, the particular pressures of high office and great responsibility at the time may have tipped a precarious balance to suicide. It would seem that Admiral Boorda had everything to live for.

He had risen from the ranks and was well-regarded. As it turned out, his Achilles heel was that he was a "people-person."

He was appointed C.N.O. (Chief of Naval Operations) over another battle experienced admiral by President Clinton, our commander in chief.

It was a "political" appointment, because the Navy was beset by a negative image stemming from the well-known Tailhook scandal, in which Navy women were manhandled and abused in a traditional annual meeting.

Up to that time sexual harassment was not challenged or talked about, but Tailhook came hard upon the Clarence Thomas-Anita Hill debate.

As a result of the heightened sensitivity to sexual harassment, the Navy was under siege by Congress, with endless investigations into the chain of command. Needless to say, many careers were ruined, some deservedly so.

But the persistence of charges and the seeking of those responsible led to a demoralization of this branch of the military.

Many at the top of the command wanted to see an admiral resign, rather than accept repeated humiliation from civilian investigating committees.

Promotions were held up because anyone who attended Tailhook was under suspicion.

Attention was focused on a particular lieutenant who was up for a promotion to captain; he had the highest qualifications, but he was present at Tailhook, even though the evidence was that he had nothing to do with the harassment.

Another troubled woman was appealing her flunking out of flight-training.

She claimed sexual harassment and discrimination, even though her record was factually poor and the Navy was justified.

However, she had a strong following of politically correct congressional investigators who were prone to believe her story. As it turned out, Boorda, the people-person, was picked to be C.N.O. and he had to pass on these two critically controversial decisions.

He blocked the promotion and he knuckled under to the would-be woman pilot. The rest of the top brass were horrified and critical of Boorda.

He did not stand up for the Navy; he did not show the requisite courage. The Navy would continue to be embattled and demoralized. Boorda was painfully aware of all this.

The final straw was the revelation that he purchased "V" (for valor) pins for his battle ribbons, pins which were not officially awarded, but could be bought at any navy store.

It was arguable whether or not he was within his rights to do so, but the cloud of suspicion hovered over his character.

Then Boorda heard that

Newsweek was going to publish a detailed expose of his lack of "valor," as he, like his commander in chief, had never really been in battle.

In the Navy, a sharp distinction is made between those officers whose promotions were a direct result of battle experience and those whose were not.

As Boorda confronted the immediacy of a mass media challenge of his honor and valor, he committed suicide, shooting himself in the heart.

The author of the article concluded from the history of the persons and events, that Boorda felt he had to do something to prove that he was, in fact, a man of valor, a real soldier.

In the old samurai-warrior tradition, when a soldier is in disgrace, and he has lost face, the only honorable thing to do is commit suicide. One cannot live in shame and disgrace.

Actually, there are some famous commanders in chief who could live in shame and disgrace, and one's name is Richard Nixon.

Chances are, Nixon did not suffer from neurochemical imbalance; he was a fighter and a survivor, and spent the rest of his life trying to restore his name and place in history.

Apparently, Admiral Boorda did not have the stuff of survival.

The impending Newsweek story would be the straw that broke the camel's back. I still don't think the suicide would have happened if Boorda had been under treatment.

But chances are, he would not have been the chief of naval operations either, as there still is a stigma about mental illness.

There are many who are pursuing a career of success despite tolerating the burden of depression. One has to decide whether career success is more important than life itself.

Dr. Bloom is associate professor of psychiatry at the Wayne State University School of Medicine and is in private practice in Grosse Pointe Park.

Metro East Chamber of Commerce

CHAMBER CHAT

"Working Together for a Better Tomorrow"

Fraser, the 5 Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods, Roseville, St. Clair Shores

A gala holiday celebration is planned to commemorate the 50 years that the Metro East Chamber of Commerce has served the communities of Fraser, the five Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods, Roseville and St. Clair Shores.

The beautifully decorated Grosse Pointe Yacht Club will host the event on Wednesday, Dec. 4, with cocktails at 6 and dinner at 7 p.m. Big Band music will be provided by the popular Gentlemen of Swing orchestra under the direction of Mel Stander.

The festive Christmas event will be an ideal opportunity for chamber members to invite their employees, family and friends to attend, in lieu of their usual year-end party. Prospective 1997 members joining now will receive free membership for the remaining months in 1996.

The Chamber of Commerce plays an important part in history, tracing its origin to Marseilles, France. The first American chamber was established in New York City in 1770. In 1912, President William Howard Taft founded the U.S. Chamber of Commerce to develop a strong link between business and government.

By 1986, membership had grown to include more than 2,700 chambers; 54 American chambers abroad; 1,200 trade and professional associations and 180,000 business members. For over three centuries, business and professional people have joined together in chambers of commerce to shape the future of their communities and the world.

On the local scene, the St. Clair Shores chamber was incorporated in 1946. It was joined by Roseville in 1978 and Fraser and Harper Woods in 1979. With the merging of these cities the Metro East Chamber of Commerce was formed in 1985 and then the Grosse Pointes came on board in 1987.

Its mission statement is to provide creative leadership in maintaining and strengthening a sound and healthy business climate; to enrich the success of area business through public relations; to promote civic pride and educational programs and various networking opportunities.

As Donald J. Housey, chairman of the MECC board of directors, stated: "Your Chamber looks toward the year 2000 with the combined goal of dedicated community involvement and an aggressive program for business development."

The activities of the various committees and programs reflect this view: Ambassadors' Club; Businesswomen's Connection; Community Relations; Education; Government Affairs; New Dimensions in Living; Children's Trust Fund; Scholarship Fund; Crime Stoppers and D.A.R.E.

The Metro East Chamber also takes pride in the Gratiot redevelopment and the Nautical Mile special promotion.

Currently, MECC will present the fifth annual Senior Expo, a resource day for seniors co-sponsored with the Assumption Cultural Center, on Thursday, Oct. 10. A table will be available at the Expo to solicit new memberships and to make reservations for the 50th anniversary celebration.

Plan now to attend the Dec. 4 holiday dinner to celebrate the Metro East Chamber's 50 years of community involvement.

Tickets are $50, a portion of which will be donated to a local charity.

Call the chamber office for details (810) 777-2741.

Section 2. Necessity. It is hereby determined to be a necessary public purpose of the Issuer to purchase and acquire the Project.

Section 3. Costs: Useful Life. The cost of the Project is estimated not to exceed Twenty Four Million Dollars ($24,000,000), including the payment of incidental expenses as specified in Section 4 of this Resolution, which estimate of cost is hereby approved and confirmed, and the period of usefulness of the Project is estimated to be not less than thirty (30) years.

Section 4. Payment of Cost: Bonds Authorized. To pay part of the cost of acquiring the Project, including payment of legal, engineering, financial, capitalized interest, bond discount, credit enhancement expenses and other expenses incident thereto and incident to the issuance and sale of the Series 1996 Bonds, the Issuer shall borrow the sum of not to exceed Twenty Four Million Dollars ($24,000,000) and issue the Series 1996 Bonds therefor pursuant to the provisions of Act 94. The balance of the cost of the Project shall be paid from other funds available to the Issuer.

Section 5. Bond Details: Issuance in Series: Registration and Execution. The bonds hereby authorized shall be designated 1996 WATER AND SEWER SYSTEM REVENUE BONDS (LIMITED TAX GENERAL OBLIGATION), shall be payable out of the Net Revenues, as set forth more fully in Section 7 hereof, shall consist of fully-registered bonds of the denomination of $5,000 each, or integral multiples thereof not exceeding in any one year the amount maturing in that year, dated as of the date of delivery, numbered in order of registration and shall mature serially on October 1 in the years and amounts as determined by the Mayor or the City Manager of the Issuer.

The Series 1996 Bonds shall bear interest at a rate or rates to be determined on the sale thereof, but in any event, except as provided below, not exceeding 2.25% per annum payable on April 1 and October 1 of each year, commencing April 1, 1997. The payment dates of the principal and interest on the Series 1996 Bonds may be changed without further action of the City Council to dates specified on the Purchase Contract hereinafter mentioned as finally accepted and executed as provided in this Section 5. The Series 1996 Bonds shall have such other terms and conditions as the Mayor shall determine under Act 94, including being callable prior to maturity.

So long as the Series 1996 Bonds are owned by MMBA, the Series 1996 Bonds shall bear additional interest as follows: In the event of a default in the payment of principal or interest on the Series 1996 Bonds when due, whether at maturity, by redemption or otherwise, the amount of such default shall bear interest (the "additional interest") at a rate equal to the rate of interest which is two percent above the MMBA's cost of providing funds (as determined by the MMBA) to make payment on the bonds of the MMBA issued to provide funds to purchase the Series 1996 Bonds but in no event in excess of the maximum rate of interest permitted by law. The additional interest shall continue to accrue until the MMBA has been fully reimbursed for all costs incurred by the MMBA (as determined by the MMBA) as a consequence of the Issuer's default. Such additional interest shall be payable on the interest payment date following demand of the MMBA. In the event that (for reasons other than the default in the payment of any municipal obligation purchased by the MMBA) the investment of amounts in the reserve account established by the MMBA for the bonds of the MMBA issued to provide funds to purchase the Series 1996 Bonds, fails to provide sufficient available funds (together with any other funds which may be made available for such purpose) to pay the interest on outstanding bonds of the MMBA issued to fund such account, the Issuer shall and hereby agrees to pay on demand only the Issuer's pro rata share (as determined by the MMBA) of such deficiency as additional interest on this Bond.

So long as MMBA is the owner thereof, (a) the Series 1996 Bonds are payable as to principal, premium, if any, and interest at NBD Bank, or at such other place as shall be designated in writing to the Issuer by MMBA ("MMBA's Depository"); (b) the Issuer agrees that it will deposit with MMBA's Depository payments of the principal of, premium, if any, and interest on the Series 1996 Bonds in immediately available funds at least five (5) business days prior to the date on which any such payment is due, whether by maturity, redemption or otherwise; and (c) written notice of any redemption of the Series 1996 Bonds shall be given by the Issuer and received by the MMBA's Depository at least 40 days prior to the date on which such redemption is to be made. If the Series 1996 Bonds are transferred by MMBA, interest shall be paid by check or draft mailed by the transfer agent selected by the Mayor to the person or entity which is, as of the 15th day of the month preceding the interest payment date, the registered owner at the registered address as shown on the registration books maintained by the transfer agent. The date of determination of registered owner for purposes of payment of interest as provided in this paragraph may be changed by the Issuer to conform to market practice in the future. The Series 1996 Bonds may be sold to the MMBA pursuant to a Purchase Contract in such form and substance as may be approved by the Mayor, the City Clerk, the City Treasurer, the City Manager, or any of them. If MMBA transfers the Series 1996 Bonds, the principal of the Series 1996 Bonds shall be payable upon presentation and surrender of the Series 1996 Bonds at the bank or trust company designated by the Mayor as registrar and transfer agent for this issue.

The Series 1996 Bonds are subject to redemption prior to maturity as provided in the form of the Series 1996 Bond set forth in Section 11 of this Resolution. The date of first redemption may be adjusted by the Mayor and City Clerk without further action by the City Council and as evidenced by execution of the Series 1996 Bonds by the Mayor and City Clerk.

The Mayor, the City Clerk, the City Treasurer, the City Manager, or any of them, are hereby authorized to execute and deliver the Purchase Contract in the forms approved, with such changes and insertions in such document as may be necessary or desirable, permitted by law and not materially adverse to the Issuer. The Mayor, the City Clerk, the City Treasurer, the City Manager, or any of them, is hereby authorized to accept or reject the interest rates and purchase price offered by MMBA, subject to the limitations contained herein.

The Series 1996 Bonds shall be subject to redemption as provided and notice of redemption shall be given in the manner specified in the form of the Series 1996 Bonds contained in Section 11 of this Resolution.

The Series 1996 Bonds delivered initially to MMBA shall be signed by the manual signature of the Mayor and countersigned by the manual signature of the City Clerk and may have the corporate seal of the Issuer impressed or printed thereon. If MMBA transfers the Series 1996 Bonds, the Issuer shall cause replacement bonds to be printed, authenticated and delivered to the transferee thereof in accordance with instructions from the City Clerk, and such Bonds shall be executed with the facsimile or manual signatures of the Mayor and the City Clerk and the seal of the Issuer may be impressed or imprinted thereon. Executed blank bonds for registration and issuance to transferees shall simultaneously, and from time to time thereafter as necessary, be delivered to the transfer agent for safekeeping.

Section 6. Registration and Transfer. Any Bond may be transferred upon the books required to be kept pursuant to this section by the person in whose name it is registered, in person or by the registered owner's duly authorized attorney, upon surrender of the Bond for cancellation, accompanied by delivery of a duly executed written instrument of transfer in a form approved by the transfer agent. Whenever any Bond or Bonds shall be surrendered for transfer, the Issuer shall execute and the transfer agent shall authenticate and deliver a new Bond or Bonds for like aggregate principal amount. The transfer agent shall require payment by the bondholder requesting the transfer of any tax or other governmental charge required to be paid with respect to the transfer. The Issuer shall not be required (i) to issue, register the transfer of or exchange any Bond during a period beginning at the opening of business 15 days before the day of the giving of a notice of redemption of Bonds selected for redemption as described in the form of Series 1996 Bonds contained in Section 11 of this Resolution and ending at the close of business on the day of that giving of notice, or (ii) to register the transfer of or exchange of any Bond so selected for redemption in whole or in part, except the unredeemed portion of Bonds being redeemed in part. The Issuer shall give the transfer agent notice of call for redemption at least 20 days prior to the date notice of redemption is to be given.

The transfer agent shall keep or cause to be kept, at its principal office, sufficient books for the registration and transfer of the Series 1996 Bonds, which shall at all times be open to inspection by the Issuer; and, upon presentation for such purpose, the transfer agent shall, under such reasonable regulations as it may prescribe, transfer or cause to be transferred, on said books, Series 1996 Bonds as herein before provided.

If and so long as the Series 1996 Bonds are held by the MMBA, (a) the City Clerk shall perform the notification, bond registration and transfer functions of the transfer agent, and (b) provisions relating to transfer of the Bonds may be deleted from the form of Bonds; otherwise, the Mayor shall perform, or designate a transfer agent to perform the afore described functions.

If any Bond shall become mutilated, the Issuer, at the expense of the holder of the Bond, shall execute, and the transfer agent shall authenticate and deliver, a new Bond of like tenor in exchange and substitution for the mutilated Bond, upon surrender to the transfer agent of the mutilated Bond. If any Bond issued under this Resolution shall be lost, destroyed or stolen, evidence of the loss, destruction or theft may be submitted to the transfer agent and, if this evidence is satisfactory to both the Issuer and the transfer agent and an indemnity satisfactory to the transfer agent shall be given, and if all requirements of any applicable law including Act 354, Public Acts of Michigan, 1972, as amended ("Act 354"), being sections 129.131 to 129.135, inclusive, of the Michigan Compiled Laws have been met, the Issuer, at the expense of the owner, shall execute, and the transfer agent shall thereupon authenticate and deliver, a new Bond of like tenor and bearing the statement required by Act 354, or any applicable law hereafter enacted, in lieu of and in substitution for the Bond so lost, destroyed or stolen. If any such Bond shall have matured or shall be about to mature, instead of issuing a substitute Bond the transfer agent may pay the same without surrender thereof.

Section 7. Payment of Bonds: Limited Tax General Obligation Pledge. Principal of and interest on the Series 1996 Bonds shall be payable from the Net Revenues. There is hereby recognized the statutory lien upon the whole of the Net Revenues created by this Resolution with respect to the Series 1996 Bonds, and the statutory lien is to continue until payment in full of the principal of and interest on the Series 1996 Bonds, or until sufficient cash or Sufficient Government Obligations have been deposited in trust for payment in full of principal and interest on all Series 1996 Bonds then outstanding, to maturity, or, if called for redemption, to the date fixed for redemption together with the amount of the redemption premium, if any. Upon deposit of cash or Sufficient Government Obligations, as provided in the previous sentence, the statutory lien shall be terminated with respect to the Series 1996 Bonds, the holders of the Series 1996 Bonds shall have no further rights under this Resolution except for payment from the deposited funds, and the Series 1996 Bonds shall no longer be considered to be outstanding under this Resolution.

As additional security for the Series 1996 Bonds, the Issuer, pursuant to authorization of Section 7 of Act 94, hereby irrevocably pledges its limited tax full faith and credit for the prompt and timely payment of its obligations pledged for payment of the Series 1996 Bonds as expressed in this Resolution. Pursuant to such pledge, if Net Revenues are not available, the Issuer shall be required to pay such amounts from any of its general funds as a first budget obligation and shall each year levy an ad valorem tax on all the taxable property in the Issuer in an amount which, taking into consideration estimated delinquencies in tax collections, will be sufficient to pay the Series 1996 Bonds before the time of the following year's tax collections, such annual levy shall be in an amount sufficient to pay the Series 1996 Bonds subject to applicable constitutional, statutory and charter limitations. The pledge shall continue until payment in full for the principal of and interest on all the Series 1996 Bonds, or until sufficient cash or direct obligations of the United States of America or obligations the principal of and interest on which is fully guaranteed by the United States of America, not redeemable at the option of the issuer, the principal and interest payments on which, without reinvestment of interest, come due at such times and in such amounts as to be fully sufficient to pay, when due, the principal of, redemption premium, if any, and interest on the Series 1996 Bonds on the stated maturity date or earlier redemption, shall have been deposited in trust for payment in full for all Series 1996 Bonds with respect to which this Resolution is to be defeased to their maturity, or, if called for redemption, to the date fixed for redemption. If the Series 1996 Bonds are owned by the MMBA at the time of such deposit, the sufficiency of such deposit shall be verified by a nationally recognized firm of certified public accountants. Upon such deposit, the pledge and security herein created shall be terminated with respect to the Series 1996 Bonds, the holders of the Series 1996 Bonds shall have no further rights under this Resolution except for payment from the deposited funds, and the Series 1996 Bonds shall no longer be considered to be outstanding under this Resolution.

Section 8. Management. The operation, repair and management of the System and the acquiring of the Project shall continue to be under the supervision and control of the City Council.

Section 9. Rates and Charges: No Free Service. The rates and charges for service furnished by the System and the methods of collection and enforcement of the collection of the rates shall be those in effect prior to the issuance of the Series 1996 Bonds. No free service or use of the System, or service or use of the System at less than cost, shall be furnished by the System to any person, firm, or corporation, public or private, or to any public agency or instrumentality, including the Issuer.

Section 10. Bond Proceeds. Upon delivery of the Series 1996 Bonds there shall be first immediately deposited from the proceeds of the Series 1996 Bonds in the Series 1996 Bond Redemption Fund (as hereinafter defined) an amount equal to the accrued interest, if any, received on delivery of the Series 1996 Bonds. The balance of the proceeds of the sale of the Series 1996 Bonds shall be deposited in the Depository Bank in the Construction Fund (as hereinafter defined and provided). Moneys in the Construction Fund shall be applied solely as provided in Section 12(A) of this Resolution.

Section 11. Bond Form. The Series 1996 Bonds shall be in substantially the following form:

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA Registered
STATE OF MICHIGAN
COUNTY OF WAYNE

CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK
1996 WATER AND SEWER SYSTEM REVENUE BOND
(LIMITED TAX GENERAL OBLIGATION)

REGISTERED OWNER: Michigan Municipal Bond Authority

PRINCIPAL AMOUNT: _____

The City of Grosse Pointe Park, County of Wayne, State of Michigan (the "Issuer"), for value received, hereby promises to pay, but only out of the hereinafter described Net Revenues of the Issuer's Water and Sewer System, including all enlargements, appurtenances, extensions, expansions, attachments, repairs, replacements and improvements thereto (the "System"), the Principal Amount specified above in lawful money of the United States of America to the Registered owner specified above, or registered assigns, on the Maturity Date specified above, or such later date to which interest has been paid, until paid, at the Interest Rate per annum specified above, payable on April 1, 1997 and semiannually thereafter. In the event of a default in the payment of principal of or interest on this bond when due, whether at maturity, by redemption or otherwise, the amount of such default shall bear interest (the "additional interest") at a rate equal to the rate of interest which is two percent above the cost to the Michigan Municipal Bond Authority (the "Authority") of providing funds (as determined by the Authority) to make payment on the bonds of the Authority issued to provide funds to purchase this bond but in no event in excess of the maximum rate of interest permitted by law. The additional interest shall continue to accrue until the Authority has been fully reimbursed for all costs incurred by the Authority (as determined by the Authority) as a consequence of the Issuer's default. Such additional interest shall be payable on the interest payment date following demand of the Authority. In the event that (for reasons other than the default in the payment of any municipal obligation purchased by the Authority) the investment of amounts in the reserve account established by the Authority for the bonds of the Authority issued to provide funds to purchase this bond, fails to provide sufficient available funds (together with any other funds which may be made available for such purpose) to pay the interest on outstanding bonds of the Authority issued to fund such account, the Issuer shall and hereby agrees to pay on demand only the Issuer's pro rata share (as determined by the Authority) of such deficiency as additional interest on this bond.

So long as the Authority is the owner of this bond, (a) principal of, interest and premium, if any, on this bond are payable at NBD Bank, or at such other place as shall be designated in writing by the Authority to the Issuer (the "Authority's Depository"); (b) the Issuer agrees to deposit with the Authority's Depository payments of the principal of, premium, if any, and interest on this bond in immediately available funds at least five business days prior to the date on which any such payment is due, whether by maturity, redemption or otherwise; and (c) written notice of any redemption of this bond shall be given by the Issuer and received by the Authority's Depository at least 40 days prior to the date on which such redemption is to be made.

For prompt payment of principal of and interest on this bond, the Issuer has irrevocably pledged the revenues of the System, including all enlargements, appurtenances, extensions, expansions, attachments, repairs, replacements and improvements thereto, after provision has been made for reasonable and necessary expenses of operation, maintenance and administration (the "Net Revenues").

This bond is one of a series of bonds of even date of original issue, aggregating the principal sum of $ _____, issued pursuant to Resolution No. _____, duly adopted by the City Council of the Issuer, and under and in full compliance with the Constitution and statutes of the State of Michigan, including specifically Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended, for the purpose of paying part of the cost of acquiring and constructing improvements to the System.

For a complete statement of the revenues from which and the conditions under which this bond is payable, a statement of the conditions under which additional bonds of equal standing may hereafter be issued and the general covenants and provisions pursuant to which this bond is issued, reference is made to the above-described Resolution.

The bonds of this issue are subject to optional redemption in whole or in part in such order as the Issuer shall determine, in integral multiples of $5,000 on any date on or after April 1, _____ at the following redemption prices (expressed as percentages of their principal amounts), plus accrued interest to the redemption date.

Period During Which Redeemed	Redemption Price
April 1, _____ to March 31, _____, inclusive;	102%
April 1, _____ to March 31, _____, inclusive;	101%
April 1, _____ and thereafter	100%

In case less than the full amount of an outstanding bond is called for redemption the transfer agent upon presentation to the transfer agent of the bond called in part for redemption shall register, authenticate and deliver to the registered owner a new bond in the principal amount of the portion of the original bond not called for redemption.

Notice of redemption shall be given to the registered owners of bonds to be redeemed by mailing of such notice not less than thirty (30) days prior to the date fixed for redemption to the registered owner at the address of the registered owner as shown on the registration books of the Issuer. No further interest on bonds called for redemption shall accrue after the date fixed for redemption, whether presented for redemption or not, provided the Issuer has money available for such redemption.

This bond is a primarily self-liquidating bond and is first payable, both as to principal and interest, from the Net Revenues of the System. The principal of and interest on this bond are secured by the statutory lien herein before mentioned. As additional security for the payment of the principal of and interest on this bond and the series of bonds of which this is one, the Issuer has pledged its limited tax full faith and credit for such payment and, if necessary, the Issuer is required to levy taxes on all taxable property in the Issuer for such purpose, subject to applicable constitutional, statutory and charter limitations. The total indebtedness of the Issuer, including the series of bonds of which this is one does not exceed any constitutional and statutory debt limitation.

The Issuer has covenanted and agreed, and does hereby covenant and agree to fix and maintain at all times while any bonds payable from the Net Revenues of the System shall be outstanding, such rates for service furnished by the System as shall be sufficient to provide for payment of the interest upon and the principal of all outstanding bonds, the bonds of this issue and any additional bonds of equal standing as and when the same shall become due and payable, and to maintain a bond redemption fund therefor, to provide for the payment of expenses of administration and operation and such expenses for maintenance of the System as are necessary to preserve the same in good repair and working order, and to provide for such other expenditures and funds for the System as are required by said Resolution.

This bond is transferable only upon the books of the Issuer kept for that purpose at the office of the transfer agent by the registered owner in person or the registered owner's attorney duly authorized in writing, upon the surrender of this bond together with a written instrument of transfer satisfactory to the Issuer, duly executed by the registered owner or the registered owner's attorney duly authorized in writing, and thereupon a new bond or bonds in the same aggregate principal amount and of the same maturity shall be issued to the transferee in exchange therefor as provided in the Resolution authorizing the bonds of this issue, and upon payment of the charges, if any, therein prescribed.

It is hereby certified and recited that all acts, conditions and things required by law precedent to and in the issuance of this bond and the series of bonds of which this is one have been done and performed in regular and due time and form as required by law.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the City of Grosse Pointe Park, county of Wayne, State of Michigan, by its City Council, has caused this bond to be executed with the [manual/facsimile] signatures of its Mayor and its City Clerk and the corporate seal of the Issuer to be [affixed/printed] on this bond, all as of the Date of original Issue.

Section 12. Custodian of Funds. The Issuer's Treasurer shall be custodian of all funds belonging to or associated with the System. Such funds shall be deposited in the Depository Bank. The Issuer's Treasurer is hereby directed to create and maintain the following funds and accounts into which the proceeds of the Bonds and the Revenues shall be deposited in the manner and at the times provided in this Resolution, which accounts shall be established and maintained so long as any of the Bonds remain unpaid, except as otherwise provided in this Resolution.

(A) CONSTRUCTION FUND. The proceeds of the Series 1996 Bonds after accrued interest, if any, has been deposited as described below, shall be deposited in the WATER AND SEWER SYSTEM CONSTRUCTION FUND (the "Construction Fund") in the Depository Bank. Said moneys shall be used solely for the purposes for which the Series 1996 Bonds are issued.

Any unexpended balance of the proceeds of the sale of the Series 1996 Bonds remaining after completion of the Project herein authorized may be used for further enlargements, appurtenances, extensions, expansions, attachments, repairs, replacements and improvements of the System in the discretion of the Issuer, provided that at the time of such expenditure such use be approved by the Michigan Department of Treasury (if such approval is then required by law). Any remaining balance after such expenditure shall be paid into the Series 1996 Bond and Interest Redemption Fund (as hereinafter provided) and shall be used for the prepayment of installments of the Series 1996 Bonds.

After completion of the Project and disposition of remaining proceeds, if any, of the Series 1996 Bonds pursuant to the provisions of this Section, the Construction Fund shall be closed.

(B) RECEIVING FUND. The Revenues of the System shall be set aside, as collected, and deposited in the Depository Bank, in the SEWAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEM RECEIVING FUND (the "Receiving Fund") in the Depository Bank. Said moneys so deposited are pledged for the purposes of the following funds and so shall be transferred, expended and used only in the manner and order as provided as follows:

(1) Operation and Maintenance Fund. There shall first be withdrawn from the Receiving Fund quarterly and set aside in and transferred to the WATER AND SEWER SYSTEM BOND AND INTEREST REDEMPTION FUND (the "Operation and Maintenance Fund"), which amount shall be sufficient to provide for the payment of the next quarter's current expenses of administration and operation of the System and such current expenses for the maintenance thereof as may be necessary to preserve the same in good repair and working order.

(2) Bond and Interest Redemption Fund. After the transfer required in (1) above, there shall next be withdrawn from the Receiving Fund quarterly and set aside and transferred to the WATER AND SEWER SYSTEM BOND AND INTEREST REDEMPTION FUND (the "Bond and Interest Redemption Fund") which amount shall be sufficient to meet all of the requirements for the payment of principal of and interest on the Series 1996 Bonds. If there be any deficiency in the amount previously required to be set aside, then the amount of such deficiency shall be added to the current requirements.

If for any reason there is a failure to make such quarterly deposits in the amounts required, then the entire amount of the deficiency shall be set aside and deposited in the Series 1996 Bond Redemption Fund out of the Revenues first received thereafter which are not required by this Resolution to be deposited in the Operation and Maintenance Fund or in the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund, which amount shall be in addition to the regular quarterly deposit required during such succeeding month or months. Deposits shall be made into the Series 1996 Bond and Interest Redemption Fund once the aforesaid sums have been deposited therein.

No further payments need be made into the Series 1996 Bond Redemption Fund after enough of the Series 1996 Bonds have been retired so that the amount then held in said fund is equal to the entire amount of principal and interest which will be payable at the time of maturity of the Series 1996 Bonds then outstanding.

The moneys in the Series 1996 Bond Redemption Fund shall be invested in accordance with Section 14 of this Resolution.

(3) Replacement Fund and Improvement Fund. After the transfers required in (1) and (2) above, there may next be transferred and deposited Revenues into the WATER AND SEWER SYSTEM REPLACEMENT FUND AND IMPROVEMENT FUND (the "Replacement Fund and the Improvement Fund"). If, at any time, it shall be necessary to use moneys in said funds for such purpose, the moneys so used shall be replaced from the revenues in the Receiving Fund which are not required by this Resolution to be used for the Operation and Maintenance Fund or the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund.

Section 13. Reverse Flow of Funds: Surplus Moneys. In the event the moneys in the Receiving Fund are insufficient to provide for the current requirements of the Operation and Maintenance Fund, the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund, the Replacement Fund or the Improvement Fund, any moneys and/or securities, in the funds of the System established by this Resolution shall be transferred, first, to the Operation and Maintenance Fund, second, to the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund, third, to the Replacement Fund, and fourth to the Improvement Fund.

Section 14. Investments. Moneys in the funds established herein may be invested by the Issuer's legislative body on behalf of the Issuer in the obligations authorized from time to time by Section 24 of Act 94. Investment of moneys in the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund being accumulated for payment of the next maturing principal or interest payment on the Bonds shall be limited to government obligations bearing maturity dates prior to the date of the next maturing principal or interest payment on the Series 1996 Bonds. Interest income earned on investment of funds in the funds and accounts created in this Section 14 shall be deposited in or credited to the Receiving Fund.

Section 15. Additional Bonds. The Issuer may issue additional Bonds of equal standing with the Series 1996 Bonds for any of the following purposes:

- a) To complete construction of the Project according to the plans set forth in Section 2 hereof, in the amount necessary therefor; or
- b) For the purpose of making enlargements, extensions, appurtenances, attachments, repairs, replacements or improvements of the System; or
- c) For the purpose of refunding any outstanding Bonds.

Additional Bonds of equal standing may be issued if:

- (i) The Adjusted Net Revenues of the System for the Fiscal Year preceding the year in which such additional Bonds are to be issued were 110 percent of the average annual debt service requirements on all Bonds then outstanding and those proposed to be issued net of any Bonds to be refunded by the new issue; or
- (ii) The holders of at least 75 percent of the then outstanding Bonds consent to such issue in writing.

Permission of the Michigan Department of Treasury to issue such additional Bonds shall be conclusive as to the existence of conditions permitting the issuance thereof. In the event permission of the Michigan Department of Treasury is not then required to issue such additional Bonds, then the adoption by the legislative body of the Issuer of an ordinance or resolution authorizing the issuance of such additional Bonds shall be conclusive as to the existence of conditions permitting the issuance thereof.

The funds identified or established by this Resolution shall be applied to all additional Bonds; all Revenues from any such completion, enlargements, appurtenances, expansions, attachments, repairs, replacements or improvements financed from the proceeds of the additional Bonds shall be paid, as received, into the Receiving Fund.

Except as otherwise specifically provided in this Section, so long as any of the Bonds are outstanding, no additional bonds or other obligations pledging any portion of the Revenues of the System shall be incurred or issued by the issuer unless the same shall be junior and subordinate in all respects to the Bonds.

Section 16. Resolution Shall Constitute Contract. The provisions of the Resolution shall constitute a contract between the Issuer and the bondholders. After the issuance of the Bonds the Resolution shall not be repealed or amended in any respect which will adversely affect the rights and interests of the bondholders, nor shall the Issuer adopt any law, ordinance or resolution in any way adversely affecting the rights of the holders of the Bonds so long as the Bonds or interest thereon remains unpaid.

Section 17. Bondholders' Rights: Receiver. The holder or holders of the Bonds representing in the aggregate not less than twenty percent (20%) of the entire principal amount thereof then outstanding, may, by suit, action, mandamus or other proceedings, protect and enforce the statutory lien upon the Net Revenues of the System, and may, by suit, action, mandamus or other proceedings, enforce and compel performance of all duties of the officers of the System, including the fixing of sufficient rates, the collection of Revenues, the proper segregation of the Revenues of the System and the proper application thereof. The statutory lien upon the Net Revenues, however, shall not be construed as to compel the sale of the System or any part thereof.

If there is a default in the payment of the principal of or interest upon the Bonds, any court having jurisdiction in any proper action may appoint a receiver to administer and operate the System on behalf of the Issuer and under the direction of the court, and by and with the approval of the court to perform all of the duties of the officers of the Issuer more particularly set forth herein and in Act 94.

The holder or holders of the Bonds shall have all other rights and remedies given by Act 94 and law, for the payment and enforcement of the Bonds and the security therefor.

Section 18. Pledge of Revenue Sharing Funds to MMBA. The taxes collected by the State of Michigan and returned to the Issuer may be Pledged for payment of the Series 1996 Bonds, in the event it is deemed to be necessary or desirable by the Mayor, so long as the Series 1996 Bonds are owned by MMBA, and the Mayor is further authorized to enter into a Revenue Sharing Pledge Agreement with MMBA for payment of such taxes to MMBA or to a trustee as provided in Section 23 of Act 227.

Section 19. Authorization to Take other Actions. The Mayor, the City Clerk, the City Treasurer, the City Manager, or any one of them, is hereby authorized to take all other actions and submit such other documents as they may consider necessary or appropriate in accordance with this Resolution, including without limitation: (i) executing applications and any and all waivers to the Department of Treasury for the Department of Treasury's approval of the issuance of the Series 1996 Bonds, and the form of Notice required by law, or in the alternative, applications and any and all waivers to the Department of Treasury for an order of exception from prior approval for the issuance of the Series 1996 Bonds, and to pay the fee in, connection therewith; (ii) executing a Supplemental Agreement, an Issuer's Certificate and such other documents as may be required by MMBA; (iii) cooperating with MMBA, the Department of Treasury, Rating Agencies and other parties to issue the Series 1996 Bonds timely in accordance with this Resolution, and (iv) submitting all information and materials required for participation in any insured program of the MMBA.

Section 20. Covenant Regarding Tax Exempt Status of the Bonds. The Issuer shall, to the extent permitted by law, take all actions within its control necessary to maintain the exemption of the interest on the Bonds from general federal income taxation (as opposed to any alternative minimum or other indirect taxation) under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended, including, but not limited to, actions relating to any required rebate of arbitrage earnings and the expenditure and investment of Bond proceeds and moneys deemed to be Bond proceeds.

Section 21. Savings Clause. All ordinances, resolutions or orders, or part thereof, in conflict with the provisions of this Resolution are, to the extent of such conflict, repealed.

Section 22. Severability: Paragraph Headings; and Conflict. If any section, paragraph, clause or provision of this Resolution shall be held invalid, the invalidity of such section, paragraph, clause or provision shall not affect any of the other provisions of this Resolution. The paragraph headings in this Resolution are furnished for convenience of reference only and shall not be considered to be part of this Resolution.

Section 23. Publication and Recordation. This Resolution shall be published in full in the Grosse Pointe News, Grosse Pointe, Michigan, a newspaper of general circulation in the Issuer qualified under State law to publish legal notices, or such other newspaper selected by the City Clerk, promptly after its adoption, and shall be recorded as a Resolution of the Issuer and such recording authenticated by the signatures of the Mayor and the City Clerk.

Section 24. Effective Date. This Resolution shall be effective upon its adoption.

When we see an interesting building, we often photograph the entire structure thinking this is the best way to capture it on film.

Yet buildings provide many opportunities for the photographer to create exciting and, in many ways, unusual images of scenes that are always present but which the majority of people pass by without seeing. Even buildings that overall may be quite dull may offer terrific photographic potential.

What I'm referring to is photographing building details.

An ornate door handle, an unusual window arrangement, the graphic quality of a fire escape, a pattern of bricks or a section of peeling paint all can provide excellent picture potential.

Churches in particular contain many photographic opportunities. Details of statues, columns, stained glass and stone work all would work well and could form the basis of a photographic essay.

You'll most likely need a telephoto lens to enable you to "move in close" to your building detail.

Use a tripod to get your camera steady and fine-tune the composition.

Time of day can play an important part in photographing details.

When the sun is low or at an acute angle to the subject, textures are enhanced and shadows will play an important role in the final result.

The white iceberg roses winding up the wall combined with the flower barrel and window made the perfect composition.

Overcast lighting highlighted the textures and what you see here is a nicely executed shot of a building detail.

Moving in close and photographing building details will reward you with many outstanding pictures indeed.

Try to "say something" with your photos and attempt to have them reflect the essence of the buildings or structures you are photographing.

Careful composition allowed Monte Nagler to produce this interesting and impact-filled picture of a building detail in Avebury, England.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Fight at local school lot

Park public safety officers were called to the parking lot of St. Clare of Montefalco Catholic Church at about 4 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 15, to investigate the report of a gun being pulled on some youths.

According to the police report, a group of three 10-year-old youths were riding bikes in the church parking lot. One of the kids engaged in a race with one of three older youths between the ages of 12 and 15.

After the race, one of the older kids pulled out what appeared to be a handgun and made some threats. The three older youths then rode north on Audubon away from Mack. The three younger youths then went to the church rectory to call for help.

One suspect was riding a silver, 10-speed bike, another was riding a multi-colored BMX bike with a "banana" seat, and the third was riding a red BMX bike with a solid front wheel and a spoked rear wheel.

Police reported that no one was hurt in the incident and nothing was taken.

Bad driver

Park police arrested a suspect who fled from police in a high speed chase before he crashed his car into a light pole in Detroit.

According to Park police, the suspect was observed driving at a high speed along a south bound Mack alley at about 9:24 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 17, then turning east onto Mack. He was clocked at speeds as high as 58 miles an hour.

The driver tried to evade police by turning onto side streets in the City of Grosse Pointe, before heading back onto Mack. The suspect eventually turned onto Canyon in Detroit, where he lost control of his car and crashed it into a light pole.

Detroit paramedics took the suspect to the St. John Hospital emergency room, where he was treated and released for injuries sustained in the crash. While the suspect was at the hospital, Park officers obtained a search warrant for a blood sample. They also confiscated a large amount of cash found a police dog who "hit" on it during a search of the suspect's car after it crashed.

Park officials are waiting for the results of the blood test to determine the appropriate charges to file against the suspect.

Car stolen on Mack

A set of car keys dangling from the ignition of a 1995 Pontiac Grand Am parked in the 19000 block of Mack in Grosse Pointe Farms on Sept. 22 proved to be too tempting to resist for a pair of auto thieves.

The owner of the car was inside a store on Mack when a witness saw a man get out of an older model Chevrolet Caprice parked nearby and get behind the wheel of the Grand Am and quickly drive out of the parking lot.

A woman passenger in the Caprice got behind the wheel of that car and fled along with the Grand Am.

Police are investigating the incident.

Grenade found in Farms garden

A resident who lives on Hillcrest in Grosse Pointe Farms was digging a hole to plant a tree on Sept. 19 when he discovered what looked like a hand grenade in the dirt.

Farms police called in the Selfridge Air National Guard Base bomb disposal unit to handle the matter. Two officers from Selfridge examined the object and took an X-ray of it and determined it was a former training grenade that had been altered and possibly made into a home-made bomb.

The explosive was taken to Kerby Field and detonated.

Market marked time awaiting Fed meeting last Tuesday

By Joseph Mengden
At press time, Monday, 10 a.m., uncertainty prevailed among stock and bond traders over whether the Fed's policy makers would raise short-term interest rates at the Federal Open Market Committee meeting this past Tuesday.

The usual consensus was not apparent as analysts were about equally divided over "they will" or "they will not" raise rates. The bond markets last week already priced-in a small increase in rates, so a 1/4 of 1 percent hike by the Fed will only have a minimal effect if it happens.

Define a growth stock
A "growth stock" is one whose market value, over time, accumulates wealth faster than other stocks to which it is compared. The comparison may be the Dow Jones Industrial Index (DJI), the Standard & Poor's (S&P) 500 Index, the NASDAQ composite index, or one of the Russell small cap indices.

But why is the compound growth rate important? Note that the key word here is "compound." It is the compounding effect that makes your money grow — be it in a bank savings account, a money market fund, an equity mutual fund or individual stocks.

The table shows how long it takes to double your money at selected compound growth rates, all before income taxes.

How to identify a growth stock
What are the characteristics of a good growth stock?

1. Revenue growth rate — the year-to-year sales increase. Is it growing, static or declining — percentage wise? To obtain this statistic: revenues for year 2 divided by revenues for year 1, then subtract 1, which leaves a decimal number = .xx, or percent growth. If revenues for year 2 are less than revenues for year 1, the result will be a negative growth rate.

2. Net margins, after taxes. Are they increasing, flat or declining? To determine net margins: net income after taxes (in dollars) is divided by revenues (in dollars). The net margin shows how much of revenues, percentage wise, is available to shareholders.

3. Earnings per share and dividends per share are usually listed in the company's annual report. See "financial summary." Are the per share amounts, over time, growing, flat, declining or erratic? The determination of compound growth rates and standard deviation requires a business calculator or a computer software program, not available on your desktop or pocket adding machine.

Let's talk...STOCKS

7	10 yrs., 2 mos.
10	7 yrs., 3 mos.

4. Dividend payout is the percentage of earnings per share (EPS) actually paid out in cash dividends to shareholders. To determine dividend payout: dividends per share are divided by earnings per share. Many companies have a stated payout policy, so the payout remains more or less static, over time. Payouts of 40 percent or less are typical, over 40 percent is generous.

5. Return on investment (ROI) is a measure of how well management did with the shareholders' equity at book value. Sometimes beginning-of-year equity is used, but often average equity is used (average equity is beginning equity plus ending equity, divided by 2). To determine ROI: net income after taxes (in dollars) is divided by the equity used, answer is in percentage. Is the ROI, over time, increasing, flat or decreasing?

6. Stock price at year-end determines the market value of your investment. Is the price, over time, growing, static or declining?

Identify this growth stock
This is a "big cap" stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE). The company's very large capitalization makes it an institutional favorite, with over 1,000 institutions holding over half of the outstanding shares.

Standard & Poor's Corp. ranks this stock: A+ (their highest rating), based on its appraisal of past performance of earnings and dividends, and relative current standing.

Here's a tip — this stock is one of the 30 DJI stocks, and its options are listed on the Philadelphia Stock Exchange. Here are the five-year compound growth rates: revenues, +12 percent; net income, +17 percent; earnings per share, +18.4 percent; and cash dividends per share, +17.1 percent.

The fact that the growth rate of the EPS was up more than the growth rate of net income (in dollars) indicates that this company has been aggressively buying back its own shares.

The 10-year compound growth rates are equally impressive.

Cash dividends have been paid every year for more than a century, and the cash dividend rate has been increased in each of the last 10 years. To conceal identity of the stock, LTS has converted all statistical data to base:100.

Thus the 1986 dividend of (base) 100, increased to 200 in 1991 and the present annual rate is 417! The stock has also been split 2-for-1 twice during that 10-year period.

In June 1994, you could have purchased this stock for (base) 100. It closed last Friday at 255. Not bad for a 27-month investment!

This premier growth stock almost always appears overpriced. At its present level, the stock's price/earnings ratio is 36x, and it yields only 1 percent.

Standard & Poor's says: "A strong balance sheet, high returns on invested capital, and dependable dividend growth will also continue to make this equity attractive over the longer term for virtually all accounts." What's my name?

Answer here next week.

Joseph Mengden is a City of Grosse Pointe resident and a former chairman of the board of First of Michigan.

MESC forecasts 565,000 new jobs in Michigan by 2005

More than half a million new jobs should be added to Michigan's economy by the year 2005, according to a forecast put together by economists with the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

"Over our 11-year forecast period from 1994 to 2005, we foresee industry in the state adding 565,000 new jobs," said MESC director F. Robert Edwards. "This is a 13.6 percent increase and very close to the expected national growth rate of 14.9 percent."

The resurgence of the auto industry has had a beneficial impact on Michigan.

As a result, MESC expects the state's manufacturing sector will add 36,000 jobs between 1994 and 2005.

"In fact, manufacturing employment is already on the rebound with an increase of 31,000 jobs since 1990," Edwards said. "This is quite a contrast to the 189,000 manufacturing jobs the state lost between 1979 and 1989."

The improvement in manufacturing is but one sign of the healthy forecast for employment in the state.

The MESC forecast was presented recently at a meeting in Detroit of the Michigan Employment Security Commissioners, the four-member panel that sets policy for the state.

According to the MESC report, the business services sector is projected to have the largest employment gain, increasing by 141,000 new jobs. In the sector, engineering, computer, management consulting and a variety of other services purchased by businesses are expected to grow significantly.

Strong growth is also predicted for the personnel supply industry.

Michigan's health service industry will have an overall increase of 90,000 jobs between 1994 and 2005, despite job reductions at some hospitals. The growth will be concentrated among practitioners' offices, outpatient facilities and home health care agencies.

"These are the health care segments that are benefiting from the growing trend toward HMO and other managed care programs," Edwards said.

The balance of the service category will grow by 117,000 jobs.

Industries within the group showing solid job growth include residential care, automotive services, amusement and recreation, child care, private education and agricultural services.

In the broad trade sector, retail trade and food services will have the greatest growth, increasing by 58,000 and 46,000 jobs, respectively. Wholesale trade will increase by 27,000 during the period.

The outlook for construction employment is quite good, assuming there are no sharp increases in long-term interest rates.

Employment should increase by 21,000 as residential construction continues at strong levels and is supported by growth in road and commercial construction.

In the transportation/communication/utility sector, employment is expected to grow by 13,000 jobs between 1994 and 2005.

The transportation segment will have the greatest growth, while utility employment will likely decline.

Communications industries have a mixed outlook, with growth predicted for the broadcasting, cable and cellular segments and declines expected among the phone service providers.

MESC projections call for 10,000 new jobs in the finance/insurance/real estate sector.

The agency, however, foresees job losses among banks and insurance companies because of deregulation, consolidation and new technology.

These losses will be offset by good employment growth among stock brokerages, independent insurance agencies and real estate firms.

Government employment will remain nearly constant over the forecast period. Employment at most levels of government will either show no change or decline.

Jobs in the education sector, however, will increase and raise total government employment by 7,000.

MESC will release its occupational growth forecast for 2005 later this year.

Top 10 money mistakes that many people make

According to Cheryl Krysiak of the Michigan State University Extension Service, financial columnist Jane Bryant Quinn has compiled the following list of the 10 most common mistakes people make with money.

1. Carrying high interest credit card debt when you have savings in the bank. People with 18 percent credit card interest and a savings account earning 4.5 percent are losing 13.5 percent a year on their money. Use savings to pay off debt.

2. Taking a 30-year mortgage when you can afford a 15-year loan. Short term mortgages save money even if you sell after a few years.

3. Not contributing to a tax-deductible retirement plan, especially when you are young. Money saved at age 25 is worth 10 times as much as money saved at age 45. Your employer may match your contribution, so your savings are doubled.

4. Sticking with high-rate credit cards when your credit history is good enough to earn you a card with a lower rate.

5. Refusing to check your credit report to see if it is correct. A mistake could cause you to be turned down for a home or car loan.

6. Overlooking a credit union you could join. Credit unions usually pay more interest on savings and charge less interest on loans.

7. Taking a 5-year car loan. If you buy a new car in 3 or 4 years your old car will be worth less than what you owe on the loan. If you can't afford a 3- or 4-year loan, buy a good used car instead.

8. Buying credit life insurance when you get a loan. This coverage is too expensive. If you need more life insurance, spend your money on a separate term policy.

9. Not buying enough life insurance. A family of four needs insurance equal to seven times the amount they earn.

10. Not going to college, or completing college, because you don't want to borrow money. The best jobs in the future will require advanced training. Student loans are investments in your future earning power. Your money couldn't be better spent.

Are you making any of these mistakes? Now is the time to correct them. For a copy of how to obtain a free credit report call MSU Extension-Macomb at (810) 469-6430.

Ask the IRS

Q. My husband and I recently purchased our first home computer and a modem. We are interested in filing our taxes using the computer. What are our options?

A. There are several. The simplest is to purchase commercially developed tax preparation software that features the 1040PC print option. 1040PC only prints lines with entries for your return. It can cut a 12-page return to two pages. You only have to attach W-2 forms, sign the return and send it to the IRS by April 15.

Another option, On-line Filing, allows you to file your return from home through an on-line service. The on-line service then transmits to the IRS. You'll get notification that your return has been accepted.

Sunday morning blaze contributes to demolition of a Park house

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Sunday morning City of Grosse Pointe and Park firefighters put out a blaze at the famous Morrison house, located on Jefferson between Bishop and Ellair in the Park.

Park deputy director of public safety William Furtaw said that his department received a telephone call from a resident on Sunday morning at about 9:20 a.m.

The resident said that he Local critic to host special exploration of music, Sept. 30

Music critic John Guinn hosts an exploration of classical music on Monday, Sept. 30, from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Guinn's presentation is the first in a series of eight monthly lectures designed to enhance your musical palate in a relaxed, informative way. His October offering, "So What's Classical Music Saying" tackles the language of music that "communicates without words."

During the Monday, Oct. 28 presentation, from 7 to 8 p.m., Guinn takes a look at the basic elements of music and methods composers use to make it communicate more clearly.

Future programs will continue to delve into the nuances of classical music as well as focus on legendary composers such as Bach, Mozart, Chopin and Stravinsky.

Guinn has been involved in the Detroit music scene as a teacher, critic and commentator since 1961. He is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame.

A resident of Grosse Pointe, he currently is adjunct professor of music at Wayne State University and Madonna University.

The program fee is $8 a person for each lecture. For more information, call (313) 881-7511.

Long-term senior care conference set for Oct. 1

A day for and about Michigan's senior adults is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 1, at the Kellogg Center on the campus of Michigan State University in East Lansing.

Keynote speaker for the event is Ron Pollack, a leading consumer health spokesman and chief executive for Families USA Foundation in Washington, D.C. Sponsoring the first-annual meeting is the Michigan Senior Coalition, which serves as a year-round advocacy and educational group focusing on issues affecting seniors.

The conference, "Leadership, Education, Action," will provide participants with tools and information to become an effective advocate for long-term care. A registration fee of $25 includes a luncheon and entrance to an exhibition area with free information. Call (800) 442-2803 for more information.

received a call from a friend who was on his boat on Lake St. Clair, and saw smoke coming from the shoreline.

Because the boater could not pinpoint exactly where the smoke was coming from, Park officials contacted City of Grosse Pointe officials and shared the report with them, said Furtaw.

"City officials were the first to spot the smoke," Furtaw said. "They called us immediately, and both cities dispatched two fire trucks to the Morrison estate, which is very close to the Park-City border."

When the crews got to the scene, they found the west wing of the mansion on fire, said Furtaw. Heavy flames had moved through two floors of the wing and were shooting out the windows.

"Demolition of the house had already started," Furtaw said. "It appeared to fire crews that the workers were reclaiming bricks from the east wing.

Because it was Sunday, no one was at the site. Demolition crews were last there Friday evening, so the fire had a long time to get going."

The fire crews did not enter the house and aggressively fight the fire from the inside of the building, said Furtaw. Rather, they stayed outside and poured water onto the blaze.

"Once the fire was out initially, we sent trucks home, but we kept people there in case hotspots started the fire up again, which happened at about 5:15 a.m. Monday morning," Furtaw said. "These old mansions were built to last, which makes it difficult to fight fires, but because the house is scheduled for demolition, we were concentrating on preventing the fire from getting out of control and perhaps endangering nearby homes."

One public safety officer, Erik Davis of the Park, was sent to Bon Secours Hospital for possible smoke inhalation on Sunday, said Furtaw. But he was treated and released the same day.

"As to the cause of the fire, investigators were beginning to trace the blaze back to its source on Monday," Furtaw said. "The blaze could have been started by demolition crews Friday, or kids could have sneaked into the property Saturday. At this point, we simply don't know."

'Welcome! You've got mail!'

Pointers use Internet for business, entertainment, e-mail

By Margie Reins Smith
Assistant Editor

Claudia McCrackin of Grosse Pointe Woods is a stay-at-home mom with a 10-month-old son. She has a computer and uses the Internet to keep in contact with the outside world.

Mike Florian of Grosse Pointe Park uses America Online for e-mail; and recently, to buy and sell a car and to plan a vacation.

Dean and Ann Brunke of Grosse Pointe Park planned her high school reunion with the aid of AOL and the Internet. He uses the Internet to write and edit a newsletter.

Bill Leith of Grosse Pointe Park sends and receives lots of e-mail.

"I just joined AOL about a month ago," McCrackin said. "I log on about three times a week — usually at night after my son goes to sleep — and spend about an hour in the Internet. I send and receive e-mail to out-of-state friends. It's a lot cheaper than phone calls."

McCrackin loves the health and fitness forum on AOL, especially the KidCare chat room. "It has loads of information and the people in the chat room are so helpful and nice," she said. "As a new mom, I have tons of questions and so far they have been answered by the KidCare chatters."

The Internet, the world's largest computer network, is chock-full of things to do. There's e-mail to send and receive; information to access; magazines and newspapers to read; free software to download; bulletin boards to use; on-line conversations and chat groups to join and enough games and gossip to keep a person busy for years.

According to an Aug. 14 Detroit Free Press article, traffic on the Internet is doubling every four months. The Internet is here to stay and it's going to grow, according to Erik Apperle, president of Merit Network Inc., an Ann Arbor company that monitors on-line traffic.

When America Online crashed for 19 hours recently, the Free Press said, it left its 6.3 million users stranded on the shoulder of the information superhighway and became one of the top stories on the nation's front pages and nightly news shows.

More and more web travelers worldwide are exploring various online services and the Internet. They're logging on more and more often; exploring further; and bringing their friends along for the ride.

Grosse Pointers are zipping along in the fast lane with the best on the web.

Florian is a business trainer and self-described DINK (Double Income, No Kids). He sends and receives mail through America Online several times a week. He uses AOL for e-mail and to access the web for browsing.

"Recently I used various web locations to help in the purchase of a new car and to sell another car," he said. "I also used the web to discover some B&Bs in the Rocky Mountain National Park. I used two of them during a recent vacation."

Dean Brunke said he signs on AOL at least once a day. He retired from Ameritech four years ago and purchased an IBM compatible PC, a laser printer and a dozen or so different software programs.

In addition to working on business and volunteer projects and using e-mail to keep in touch with friends, he uses the Internet to write and edit estate listing information.

The Brunkes watch their investment portfolio daily. And they recently prepared and mailed literature for Ann's high school class reunion.

"I found e-mail very helpful and economical when organiz-

AOL briefly every day for a total of about an hour a week.

He is a speech pathologist and a writer of psycho-thriller novels, poetry, humor and short stories.

"I use it almost exclusively for e-mail," he said. "I don't said. "My area of expertise is telephones and voice mail and I have only come to learn more about computers through on-the-job experience."

Vanders has a Hewlett Packard Pavilion computer at home; a Compaq at work. "I usually log on a few times a week and so far have never exceeded my four monthly hours," he said.

Vanders uses the Internet to send and receive e-mail to relatives, to get sports information and to browse.

"One of my favorite places is Packer Plus, a Green Bay Packer web page produced by the Milwaukee Journal/Sentinel. As a die-hard Packer fan, I have to have some way to keep up with my Pack. I discovered it — as I've discovered a lot of sites — through the WWW's (search engine) Yahoo."

Browsing around the web is unpredictable. One thing leads to another, web-sters agree.

Leith said he was most amazed when he was e-mailing a writer in Hawaii, and as a result, got mail from another writer in Norway. "I was absolutely dumbfounded," he said.

Vanders said he was browsing through AOL one evening when he suddenly received the "You've Got Mail" announcement.

"Knowing the good friend who sent me the note was also on line at the time, I quickly replied," he said. "He said to me: 'Meet me in Trivia 1.' Moments later we found ourselves in this trivia chat room. While many others in the room followed the format and talked trivia, Mike and I proceeded to bombard each other with jokes, one-liners and perhaps a lot of time browsing or playing games, as this cuts into my writing time. I'm cautious about being online, since it's a natural time-waster."

Jim Vanders of the City of Grosse Pointe, works in an account support position with EDS at the GM Tech Center.

Internet

sonal comments that only he and I knew the meaning to. We absolutely cracked ourselves up."

Florian said he was sending and receiving e-mail from a friend one night. "Another friend on AOL realized I was currently logged on the service. My friend directed me to a private chat room and we were able to converse directly while on-line," he said. "My friend lives in Chicago, so we were able to chat live, but the cost was, of course, a local phone call.

"I'm sure many people do this on purpose," Florian said, "but this time it happened by chance. Communicating this way is very slow if you're not an accurate and fast typist — a definite handicap for many people."

Most people who use the web are frustrated by the slowness of the service.

"I use a 14,400 baud modem," Florian said. "This makes surfing very slow. Many graphics can take quite a while to fully appear on your screen. Speed — or lack thereof — is the most frustrating part of the web. The next (most frustrating part) is understanding how to best use the various search engines to locate a desired site or piece of information. You either get very few hits or too many to sort through."

Leith said his main frustration is with computers themselves. "Since they cannot think or reason, I get frustrated trying to figure out how to tell the computer what to do. When something goes wrong I have to try to correct it and this leads to many sleepless nights. I'm frustrated when I try to install programs and there is a glitch in the system; or try to print and the computer tells me I can't; or try to save some e-mail and it disappears into computer vapor to never again appear."

As for the future of the Internet, all those interviewed agreed that it will get bigger and bigger; presumably better and better, too.

"The home computer and online services are here to stay," Vanders said.

"I think the Internet will be as common as VCRs and CD players in the next few years," McCrackin said. "We'll be able to hook up through our TVs. I just hope the network will be able to handle all the traffic."

"It will become as common as the phone," Florian said.

"The technology will allow much faster transmissions and also allow more interactivity. More and more information is becoming available every day. Rare and limited editions of important books are being made available from the library of Congress. The cost is tremendous, but this important information will become available to anyone with access to the Internet. No one will have to travel to Washington or wherever to conduct research on this old information. The same is happening in our state Legislature and the Congress. "I just read that last year, over $500 million was spent by consumers using the Internet," Florian said. "It is estimated it will be over $5 billion by the year 2000. Something to think about, huh?"

"When you consider that the Internet is only about five years old and it is where it is today, how could anyone even imagine where it will be in the next five or 10 years," Leith said. "Multimedia is the next big thing for Internet communications. If you think you have trouble understanding things now, wait for another five years."

Mantle's greatest year

By the Rev. David H. Wick
Grosse Pointe Baptist Church

Mickey Mantle played 18 seasons with the New York Yankees, compiling a career batting average of .298, racking up 1,509 RBIs, and slamming 536 home runs. His greatest year as a baseball player was probably 1956 when he won the Triple Crown, batting .353 with 130 RBIs and 52 home runs.

Yet the greatest year of his life was not that year, nor was it even 1961 when he and Roger Maris battled for most of the season to see if either or both could break Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs.

The greatest year of Mantle's life was undoubtedly his last year, 1995.

Mantle lived as hard as he played. Convinced that like his grandfather, his father, and two of his uncles, he was doomed to die of Hodgkin's disease before his fortieth birthday, Mantle partied like there was no tomorrow.

Spared from Hodgkin's, he became afflicted instead with alcoholism, and grew old before his time. Not until 1994 did he check into the Betty Ford Center and begin the redemptive process of recovery.

Then in June of 1995 he was diagnosed with cancer of the liver. A liver transplant could not change the fact that the cancer had spread to other parts of his body.

Dying, Mantle called his old friend and former Yankee second baseman Bobby Richardson. Richardson, an outspoken, committed Christian, had often prayed for Mickey and shared with him a better way to live through faith in Christ.

Certain this would be his last opportunity to speak with Mantle about his need for salvation, Richardson strode purposefully into Mantle's hospital room, took his hand and looked into his eyes.

"Mickey," he said, "I love you and I want you to spend eternity in heaven with me."

Mantle replied with a smile, "Bobby, I've been wanting to tell you that I have trusted Jesus Christ as my Savior."

Richardson's eyes filled with tears of joy at this wonderful news. He shared it with the mourners at Mantle's funeral not many days later, reminding them that we will all have to face our final inning, when all that matters is whether or not we have said "yes" to Jesus Christ.

Mantle's story reminds us that salvation is a matter of grace, not works. Many people think that being acceptable to God is purely a matter of doing enough good things to cancel out the bad things. Mickey Mantle did not have to pile up a heap of good works to counterbalance all the bad things he had done in order to get into heaven.

All he needed to do was to trust in the effectiveness of Christ's death on the cross as the full payment for the penalty of his sins. In committing his life to Christ, Mantle found forgiveness for his sins, and the peace he had sought all his life.

After years of wandering and dissipation, in 1995 Mickey Mantle made it into the arms of Jesus; and in that same year Jesus would call him home.

It was Mantle's greatest year.

New procedure minimizes scars

By Dr. C. Douglas Lees
Special Writer

When your doctor says you need heart surgery, you probably don't question it. Once you've had a chance to explore your options, you may think that something less invasive, like angioplasty (a procedure using a balloon catheter to widen a blocked artery), sounds much more appealing.

Unfortunately balloon angioplasty isn't for everyone. Some patients, because of the condition of their arteries, may not be good candidates for the procedure.

New heart surgery procedures, however, which help to minimize scarring may be making heart surgery a more viable option for people with a single vessel disease who have avoided heart surgery because of cosmetic concerns.

Traditional heart surgery usually involves dividing the breastbone and making a 12-inch or longer incision in the chest. At St. John Hospital and Medical Center, a revolutionary new technique is being used that can minimize this incision and the resulting scar on the chest.

Now, instead of cutting through the midline and dividing the breast bone, we make a small curved incision, usually from the side rather than the midline, which can produce more cosmetically appealing results.

For example, in a woman, we might make an incision under the breast which can better hide the scar.

The result is an incision in the chest about 4 inches long instead of the traditional 12 inches. In some cases, the new procedure may even eliminate the need for placing patients on a heart-lung machine, as it did for a patient of my colleague Dr. James Martin.

(A standard procedure for most heart surgeries, the heart-lung machine temporarily takes over the function of the heart and lungs during surgery in the chest.)

Martin recently performed a coronary bypass using the new incision that did not require the use of the heart-lung machine. Not using the heart-lung machine means that doctors can perform surgery on a beating heart. Without the heart-lung machine there is less bleeding, which means recovery may be faster.

Using the smaller incision to perform heart procedures is technically more challenging for the surgeon, but pays good dividends in the recovery process. The hospital stay for heart procedures is generally about five to six days.

And while this is a dramatic gain from the length of hospital stay in the early days of heart surgery, there is always room for improvement.

Like laparoscopic techniques which were originally ground-breaking, but are now commonplace, I expect this new heart procedure will become more widely used as educated health care consumers begin to demand less invasive procedures.

What is revolutionary today will be standard tomorrow.

A patient who requires a coronary bypass or other operation such as a valve replacement and who wants a nice cosmetic result should ask his or her surgeon about the appropriateness of the new procedure.

Dr. C. Douglas Lees is a cardiovascular surgeon at St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

Doctors do not know exactly what causes breast cancer. The best we have is information to help us predict who has a greater chance of developing the disease.

The known risks for breast cancer include a prior history of breast cancer, a family history of the disease (especially in a mother or sister), advancing age, early onset of menstruation or a late menopause, having a first child after age 30 and never having children.

At age 30, women have only a 1 in 2,525 chance of developing the disease. By age 50, the rate jumps to 1 in 50.

The statistic that "1 in 8 women" will develop breast cancer during their lifetimes refers to a woman's chance of having the disease if she lives to age 95.

Heredity accounts for only about 5 percent of all breast cancer cases. Scientists are rapidly making discoveries about hereditary factors, however. Two genetic mutations have been found — BRCA1 and BRCA2 — that may tell us more about how cancer develops.

Research does not support the myth that breast-feeding or a blow to the breast can cause cancer.

Reports linking high levels of dietary fat and alcohol consumption with an increased risk are still inconclusive. (It's still a good idea to cut down on the amount of fat and alcohol in your diet, for other health reasons.)

Hemophiliacs may be eligible for $100,000 court settlement

An Illinois federal court ruling makes $100,000 settlements available to hemophiliacs with HIV or AIDS who received the disease as a result of a blood transfusion, or to their heirs.

The settlement will be paid by four plasma fractionation companies to hemophiliacs living with HIV or AIDS, people who contracted those diseases from a hemophiliac, children who were infected by a parent who had hemophilia and HIV or an infected partner, or family members of deceased persons who had hemophilia or HIV or AIDS.

All documentation must be in federal court by Oct. 16.

Those wishing to obtain information on how to submit the proper documentation should contact the Hemophilia Foundation of Michigan at (800) 482-3041. There is no fee.

The great majority of studies find no connection between oral contraceptives and breast cancer. Scientists are examining whether the Pill may have different effects on the risk at different stages of a woman's life: for example, whether the pill increases the risk slightly at certain ages (one study found a modest increase in the risk for women under 35, but more studies are needed to confirm any link), or whether it actually decreases the risk at other ages.

So far, most research on the Pill is reassuring.

Also, most evidence suggests that estrogen replacement therapy (ERT) does not increase the risk of breast cancer, although one recent study reported an increased risk. The large Women's Health Initiative study will give us more answers, but those results are years away.

Most breast cancer patients have no family history of the disease, so protect your health by performing a monthly breast self-exam, getting an annual breast exam by a doctor, and talking to your doctor about when to begin routine mammograms.

Candidate debate will be on women's issues

As a guide to women voters in the upcoming November election, 11 Wayne County organizations are sponsoring a candidates' forum on women's issues.

The forum will be held on Saturday, Sept. 28, from 2-5 p.m., in St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, between Greektown and the Renaissance Center in downtown Detroit.

Over 40 candidates running for office in Wayne County elections have been asked to speak about issues that concern women. Questions and individual discussions after the presentations will be permitted.

Sponsors believe the forum is of special importance this year because the two major Detroit dailies are endorsing only the candidates who agree to be interviewed by them, excluding all candidates who have union endorsements.

Event sponsors include the American Association of University Women of Michigan, the Coalition of Labor Union Women, the Michigan Education Association, the Michigan Federation of Teachers and School-Related Personnel, the National Organization of Women, Planned Parenthood of Southeast Michigan, the Wayne County Women's Political Caucus and the Women Lawyers Association of Wayne County.

October is adopt-a-dog month, according to MHS

The Michigan Humane Society is celebrating National Adopt-a-Dog month during October.

The society has hundreds of wonderful dogs and cats waiting to be adopted, but sadly, many animals don't find homes. One great struggle of the society is finding homes for adult animals which have passed beyond the cute "puppy and kitten" stage, said Gary Tiscornia, the society's executive director.

"What most people fail to realize is that the older, adult animal is typically the best choice for many families" said Tiscornia. "Unlike puppies or kittens, the older dog or cat is usually already housebroken, socialized in terms of proper behavior, and adapts easily and quickly to family life. It is truly gratifying when we see a family adopt an older animal. Those who do are truly saving a life and giving a pet a second chance."

For the month of October, anyone adopting a dog over four months old from any Michigan Humane Society shelter will be entered in a drawing for a year's supply of Iams, a premium quality dog food.

All Michigan Humane Society adoptions include sterilization, age-appropriate vaccinations and a 10-day health guarantee against infectious disease.

The Detroit shelter is located at 7401 Chrysler Drive and is open Tuesday-Saturday from 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

Dual biography tells story of two writers in love

"Hellman and Hammett: The Legendary Passion of Lillian Hellman and Dashiell Hammett"

By Joan Mellen
HarperCollins. 572 pages. $32.

Joan Mellen, the author of this tell-all dual biography, is a professor of English at Temple University in Philadelphia.

As a writer of a number of other biographies, she has outdone herself this time. By dwelling largely on the sexual peccadilloes of her two subjects, Lillian Hellman (1905-1984), the dramatist, and her long-time lover, Dashiell Hammett (1894-1961), the noted mystery writer, Mellen's somewhat voyeuristic approach verges on window-peeping, all based on her solid, exhaustive research.

Therefore, practically nothing is left to the reader's imagination, and all too soon one grows weary of such constant exposure.

"Hellman and Hammett" is, in a way, a fascinating biography of two star-crossed lovers who discovered one another, fell rapidly in love, moved in together although both were already married to others, and then finally fell out through personality and literary differences.

In spite of the split, they remained fond and close friends to the end of their lives, continuing to share aspirations and mutual admiration even though, eventually, they could no longer exist peaceably under one roof. Even though they found other lovers — many of them — in the end Hellman came first in Hammett's concerns and vice versa.

In Hollywood in 1930, Hellman first laid admiring eyes on Hammett: "The lights dimmed. Then, just as the spotlight came up on Crosby, a leanly handsome bone-thin man over six feet tall, with a surprising shock of white hair framing an angular face and muddy-brown eyes, passed their table on his way to the men's room. His nose was slightly twisted, the imperfection granting him a distinctive look. His features were sharply honed, as if with a sculpting blade. His hands were long and graceful."

After this electric first meeting, the debonair Hammett and the stubby Jewess Hellman quickly became a fond and close duo.

As Mellen tells it: "She would take advantage of his generosity to writers, to her, and she would finally learn her craft. He could not give her what a man could give a woman — protection, fidelity, domestic habit, the certainty of his companionship. Chivalrously, in compensation, he gave her the best he had, which was his art."

BIBLIO-FILE

By Elizabeth P. Walker

In spite of affairs as well as abortions, this unsettled situation between them eventually turned into a sort of a Faustian pact: she provided him with shelter, love, and admiration of his accomplishments, while he, in his turn, gave Hellman the confidence to pursue her career as a playwright. He even helped her by co-writing some of her earliest plays, an encouragement which led to Hellman's later success on the stage.

Unfortunately, after their own marriages failed,

Hammett and Hellman fell into bad habits — hard drinking and sexual promiscuity — which drove a further wedge into their already rocky relationship. They could not live together, but yet they could not leave each other alone for very long.

In the 1940s they dabbled with communism, backing Stalin and the Soviet Union, which, of course, made them suspect in the eyes of the witch hunters in the United States government.

During those uncertain times Lillian, all energy, gathered her strength to take up what would have been his life. For the moment Hammett remained the accomplished writer. He was only 39 years old, a youngish man, if one worn out by lung disease and alcoholism. But it was she who would write a play, she would become him.

"The Children's Hour," Hellman's first success, made her more determined "that it would not elude her again... Although she longed and always would long for the security and pleasure of a man by her side who was genuinely committed to her, she chose consciously to sacrifice this need. Instead she would hold close to Hammett. So she renewed her end of their Faustian bargain."

With the money she earned from her playwrighting, Hellman bought property in Pleasantville, N.Y. She luxuriated in the rural peaceful scene. Mellen describes how "Hammett was always to be a presence at Hardscrabble Farm, the place always available to him even in her absence. There they continued their Faustian bargain, she taking care of him in exchange for his work on the plays. He had virtually rewritten "The Little Foxes," now she provided him with a refuge. He saw his life apart from hers now. When he spoke of moving out to the country, it was as "I," not "we."

At Hammett's death, her altered status revealed Hellman to be a bitter, vindictive person out to greedily claim all that she could from her lover's estate — at the expense of Hammett's only child.

As Mellen explains: "As soon as Hammett died, she was angrier than she had ever been with him — for not loving her enough... for not affirming what they had, except when she made him do it. That she had supported him for years while he had not loved her made her capture of his work all the more psychically justifiable. At last she had discovered the appropriate revenge... Even now this unfinished woman with her avowed childish nature remained jealous of the person she perceived Hammett loved more than her, his daughter Jo. In denying Jo a claim to Hammett's work, she would be denying the closeness of their connection as well. If she could not control Hammett in his lifetime, she could control the best of him after his death, which was his work. She could possess him as she never had before and free him at last of them all... no less than Jo, his primary heir."

Mellen succeeds brilliantly in portraying Lillian Hellman as the selfish vixen she actually was and Dashiell Hammett as the weak, hapless author of "The Maltese Falcon," "The Thin Man" and a number of acclaimed crime novels.

Both lovers had tremendous flaws, but a reader, I think, is more likely to scorn Hellman and to sympathize with Hammett. This book is a very readable and an intense study of two talented people caught up in a web from which they could not escape.

DSO concerts to feature two world-renowned musicians

Two guests highlight the program at this weekend's DSO concerts which begin tonight. James DePreist, music director of the Oregon Symphony and of the Monte Carlo Philharmonic, will conduct Faure's "Pelleas et Melisande Suite" and Dvorak's Symphony No. 8, and accompany the great Hungarian pianist, Peter Frankl, performing Mozart's Concerto in A major, K. 488.

It should be a wonderful performance. DePreist has already demonstrated his exceptional skill as conductor in many previous performances here. Pianist Frankl is the icing on the cake.

Frankl's tours of five continents have included two previous appearances with the Detroit Symphony. One was to perform a Bartok piano concerto with conductor Rafael Fruebeck de Burgos. Frankl is an acknowledged expert on Bartok, whom he treasures as part of his Hungarian heritage.

But he is equally authoritative regarding Mozart concerti, two of which he has already performed with DePreist in Oregon. Looking forward to his visit, State of the Arts was able to interview him by phone last Sunday at Yale University where he is artist-in-residence.

Mozart is a special love of Frankl's. The piano concerti, he feels, "are Mozart's most important instrumental works. Only the operas top them. But so much of his instrumental music is filled with emotion and drama, it's

State of the Arts

By Alex Sucek

operatic in feeling, too."

That certainly applies to the Concerto that Frankl will perform this week.

"The two outer movements are some of the sunniest music he ever composed," says Frankl. "They are in the key of A Major, the same key he used for love arias in such operas as 'Abduction from the Seraglio' and 'Cosi fan Tutte.' So the mood of love is there.

"The slow movement is in F sharp minor and it is very sad. But this adagio is very special and I am against the fashion of embellishing the coda."

Frankl is referring to a haunting melodic line at the end of the slow movement. There is a syncopated orchestral part. He describes it as "throbbing, like a heartbeat and expressing a calmness accompanied by a little anxiety. Some pianists insist on embellishing the sustained notes."

Even Mozart may have done this in some of his music but, Frankl insists, "I find this one comes out more beautifully on its own."

As for working with conductor James DePreist, Frankl is emphatic that it is a very special collaboration which he has enjoyed with DePreist before.

"We both are flexible for the give-and-take because the orchestra part, especially in Mozart and Beethoven concerti, must be an equal force as in chamber music, not just an accompaniment," he said.

The performance tonight begins at 8 p.m. It will be repeated Friday evening at 8 p.m. and Saturday at 8:30. For tickets, call (313) 833-3700.

Pro Musica opens season Sept. 27 in recital hall of Detroit Institute of Arts Suren Bagratuni, world-renowned cellist, will make his Detroit debut Friday, Sept. 27, at the Detroit Institute of Arts. He will open the season of the Pro Musica society.

As a graduate of the Moscow and New England conservatories, and winner of the Tchaikovsky Competition, Bagratuni is regarded worldwide as a phenomenal musician.

His program is balanced with four pieces. Sonatas in d minor by Claude Debussy and F Major by Johannes Brahms make up the first half. After intermission, he will concentrate on the 20th century with a sonata for cello solo by the artist's fellow Armenian Khudoyan and Sonata in d minor, opus 40 by Shostakovich.

Reporting on a recent recital by Bagratuni in Boston, the Globe described his playing of the Shostakovich sonata as "the finest performance of the season."

The performance, which will begin at 8:30 p.m., is in the museum's recital hall (accessed by the Woodward entrance) and will be followed by a social hour and light buffet in the Romanesque Hall and Kresge Court. Honoring the artist's nationality, the Armenian community is providing a spread of their native delicacies.

Tickets for the complete evening are $25 and will be available at the door. To reserve in advance, call (313) 886-7207.

Cellist Suren Bagratuni will open the Pro Musica season at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 27, in the DIA recital hall.

He plays a fine old Italian cello on permanent loan from the Moscow Conservatory and the Russian government.

Tickets may be reserved by calling (313) 886-7207.

Tuesday Musicales opens on Oct. 1

The Tuesday Musicales will kick off its 112th season at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 1, in the Crystal Ballroom of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The president's reception will start at 10:30 and at 11:15 a.m. there will be a musical presentation by the two scholarship recipients, Allen Schrott, bass-baritone, accompanied by Kevin J. Bylisma; and Svetozar Ivanov, pianist.

Each spring, Tuesday Musicales awards two scholarships to University of Michigan School of Music students (a vocalist and an instrumentalist).

In turn, the recipients perform for the opening program of Tuesday Musicales.

Schrott is 23 years old and is currently finishing his master's degree in voice at the University of Michigan. While at Michigan, he has appeared in several stage productions, including "Cosi fan tutte," "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Campanello di Notte."

Ivanov is originally from Bulgaria, where he received a degree from the Musical Academy in Sofia. He has been a soloist with the Shoumen Philharmonic, the Sliven Symphony Orchestra and the North shines bright under new lights

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

"It's a great NIGHT to be a Norseman," said a happy Frank Sumner after his Grosse Pointe North football team beat Ford II 32-18 in the first game under the school's new permanent lights.

"We used to say, it's a great day to be a Norseman. Now we can change that to it's a great night to be a Norseman."

The victory was North's second straight against an opponent from the tough Macomb Area Conference Red Division and was the Norsemen's third win without a loss. It came in front of a capacity crowd of about 3,000 folks who saw high school football at its best.

"It was difficult watching the film to find fault with anybody," Sumner said. "The offensive line is getting better with each game. Our three juniors, Jason Aubrey, Ryan Stevenson and Jerry Cardani, are getting better and the two seniors, Troy Bergman and Scott Vandenberghe, had real solid games. And if somebody got by the line, the fullback (Chris Morkut) and the tight end (James Simon) picked them up."

"I can't say enough about the effort we got from everyone. There was a lot of pressure on them with the first game under the lights and playing a team as good as Ford. This is a great group of kids to coach."

The win was especially sweet for North's coach because his son, Frank Sumner IV, scored the Norsemen's first touchdown on a 34-yard pass from Steve Champine, who had another brilliant game.

"Frank played hurt the whole second half," the elder Sumner said. "He bruised his ribs early in the game and had trouble breathing, but he wanted to be in there. All these kids are like that."

In addition to throwing the touchdown pass, Champine ran for two scores, kicked a 23-yard field goal, passed to Leonard Harris for a two-point conversion and kicked an extra point. He completed six of 11 passes for 81 yards and ran six times for 35 yards.

"Steve is everything we thought he would be when we made him the starting quarterback four years ago," coach Sumner said.

The game started on a shaky note for North. On the fourth play of the game, Ford's Jason Abbate scored on a 45-yard run, breaking a couple of tackles on his way to the end zone. Quarterback Nate Burns ran for the two-point conversion and an 8-0 lead.

But the Norsemen came right back and marched 60 yards in six plays, capping the drive with the touchdown pass from Champine to Sumner.

"That was important because we established in our minds and in Ford's that we could move the football," coach Sumner said.

North attempted a pass for a two-point conversion, but it was knocked down by Abbate.

The Norsemen went ahead with about nine minutes left in the second quarter. North drove 62 yards in eight plays with Champine scoring on a keeper from two yards out.

Nick Aubrey took a pitch for the two-point conversion to give the Norsemen a 14-8 advantage.

Harris, who finished with 214 yards in 30 carries, started the drive with a 16-yard run and also had a 14-yard gain.

Champine boosted the margin to 17-8 with a 23-yard field goal with 2:45 remaining in the first half, but on the ensuing kickoff, Abbate scored on an 88-yard return.

Jason Hoffmeyer's extra point cut North's lead to 17-15.

Ford took the lead with 1:11 remaining in the third quarter on a 20-yard field goal by Hoffmeyer after North's defense stopped the Falcons on the two.

The lead was short-lived. Aubrey returned the kickoff 26 yards to the North 36 and eight plays later Champine ran to the right on a keeper, cut back inside and scored on a 15-yard run.

Aubrey had a 21-yard run to the Ford 28 and Champine had an 11-yard gain to the Falcons' 19.

Champine passed to Harris for the two-point conversion and a 25-18 lead.

North capped the scoring with 34 seconds remaining on a 12-yard run by Harris.

The Norsemen took over on downs after stopping Ford at its own 28.

"I was glad we were able to score that touchdown because the kids deserved to win by more than one TD," coach Sumner said.

Ford lost Burns to an injury in the first half, but Falcons coach Terry Copacia refused to use the loss of his starting quarterback as an excuse for the defeat.

"Nate started off well, but you can't take anything away from North," he said.

down. We couldn't stop their run. They just punished us. And their quarterback is such a multiple threat. He hit key passes and picked up some big yards on the option."

Champine made some changes in his cadence and that helped pull the Falcons offside several times.

"We were a little too rhythmic last week," Sumner said. "Steve had (Ford) jumping all the time. We got three offside and they never could gear up and fly."

North meanwhile had only one penalty before a delay of game when the Norsemen were running out the clock.

Michael Turner had seven tackles, including three solo stops, while Chad Cooper had two solos among his six tackles.

Aubrey, who was outstanding on kick returns and had 166 yards in all-purpose yardage, made six tackles.

Mike Ciaramitaro had five stops and Bergman and Stephen Bernhardt made four apiece.

"Ford spreads you out a lot so we had to play total team defense," Sumner said.

"Everybody did their jobs." North hopes to keep things rolling Saturday when the Norsemen host L'Anse Creuse North at 1 p.m. in their homecoming game. It's also the Norsemen's Macomb Area Conference Blue Division opener.

"They have the fastest kid in the area in Will Lewis," Sumner said. "Somehow we're going to have to contain him. We can't take them lightly just because it's a game in our division instead of against the Red."

"They physically wore us

Henry Ford II's Jason Abbate has his hands full trying to pull down Grosse Pointe North tight end James Simon during last Friday's Macomb Area Conference crossover game. The Norsemen won their first game under the permanent lights 32-18 to improve their record to 3-0.

Blue Devils win big against Lake Shore

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South football coach Mike McLeod experienced something new last Friday night when the Blue Devils visited Lake Shore.

"This is the first time since I've been here that we've blown anybody out," McLeod said after the 36-0 victory over the Shorians. "I took my headsets off in the fourth quarter and just called the offensive plays."

"Now we'll see what effect this has on the team. I'll have to make sure I say all the right things."

The final statistics were just as dominating as the final score. South had 448 yards in total offense, including 337 on the ground, while Lake Shore managed only 85 yards.

"They averaged 1.2 yards per play," McLeod said. "That makes football a lot easier to play."

The Blue Devils had two 100-yard rushers and a third back wasn't far off that pace. Ryan Ermanni led the way with 121 yards in 16 carries. Josh Lorence picked up 107 yards in 16 attempts and Matt Moran added 72 yards in five carries.

"The line played decent up front, but we still have a way to go," McLeod said. "We have to block better. We don't have big tailbacks so they need some holes."

South's defense was outstanding with linebackers Ben

Reynolds and Jason Lorence again spearheading the attack.

"Our defensive line play was much better this week,"

McLeod said. "We used a lot of people and they all played well."

Josh Lorence opened the scoring with a 20-yard run and Ermanni ran 35 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter. Josh Lorence ran for the two points after Ermanni's touchdown to give the Blue Devils a 14-0 halftime advantage.

Ermanni tallied from 10 yards out in the third quarter and David DeGutis kicked the extra point. DeGutis hit a 35-yard field goal. Moran started the fourth quarter with a 30-yard touchdown run.

By that time, McLeod had substituted freely.

"I had every sub in that I could," he said. "I didn't want to score anymore but you can't tell kids not to run the football or not to block."

Bill Lerner got South's final touchdown on a 12-yard run. He also had a 25-yard run during the drive.

South's excitement over the victory was tempered by a season-ending knee injury to wide receiver Kyle McCartney.

"It was the same injury that ended his brother's (Ryan) senior year," McLeod said. "It's a terrible thing. He was trying to make a block and he slipped and the knee went out. Nobody even hit him."

South hosts Anchor Bay in its homecoming game Saturday at 1 p.m.

"They're a good football team and we'll have to be ready for them," McLeod said. "There are a lot of distractions this week and we have to make sure we stay focused on the game."

Smyly leads North

Tom Smyly's stretch drive wasn't quite enough for Grosse Pointe North's boys cross country team last week.

"Tom and Romeo's top runner were in a great stretch duel and Tom just outkicked him," said North coach Pat Wilson after the Norsemen split a pair of Macomb Area Conference White Division meets last week.

Romeo nipped North 28-29, but the Norsemen beat Utica 16-47.

Following Smyly, who ran a personal-best 17:12, were Sachin Shah in third place and Chris Hurt in fourth. Matt Mikula was North's fourth runner, followed by Chadi Haurani, freshman Jeff Anderson and Bob Kettel. All of them recorded best times.

Coach hopes Knights don't get discouraged

By Chuck Klonke

The effort is there. Unfortunately for University Liggett School's football team the rewards are missing.

"It's there to be done," said Knights coach Gary Hills after his team lost 30-8 Saturday at Lutheran North in a Metro Conference game. "The kids feel they should be 3-0. I just hope they continue to believe in themselves and what we're trying to do and don't get discouraged because we haven't won."

"They're so disappointed. They knew this could be their game, but they just couldn't come up with the big play. And the difference was four big plays North made."

Big plays come with experience and the majority of the ULS players are still underclassmen.

ULS won its opener against Clarenceville, but dropped the next two games to Lutheran Westland and Lutheran North. They're expected to be two of the contenders in the conference this year.

Hills hopes the Knights get back on the right track Friday when they host Cranbrook Kingswood at 4 p.m.

"We can be back in it if we win this one," the coach said.

Lutheran North led 10-0 at halftime but ULS threatened to make it closer shortly before the first half ended. Brian Bruenton intercepted a Mustang pass and returned it to the North eight where the drive stalled.

The Knights, who lost starting quarterback Justin Macksoud in the first quarter when he was shaken up on a tackle, scored their only touchdown in the third quarter on a 43-yard pass from A.J. Stachecki to Bruenton.

Stachecki, who replaced Macksoud, scrambled and when North's defense began chasing him, he found Bruenton all alone in the end zone. Stachecki ran a bootleg to the right side for the two-point conversion.

"They (North's defense) thought A.J. was going to keep the ball and they forgot all about Brian, who ran a perfect pattern," Hills said.

That made the score 17-8 and that's how it stayed until the last four minutes when the Mustangs picked off a pair of ULS passes and scored twice as a result of the turnovers.

There were several outstanding performances for the Knights.

Bruenton received the game ball for his two-way play that included two receptions for 70 yards.

"He played a great game at strong safety and on special teams," Hills said. "He's having an outstanding year. With A.J.

Kevin Espy got the bone award for the hardest hit of the game.

"Kevin didn't get a chance to carry the ball as much as we wanted because they shut off the outside, but he made a killer block on a kick return where they had to scrape the guy off the ground," Hills said.

Hills made a switch in the offensive line and liked the results.

"Jason Capen went back to center from guard and gave us a good game and we moved Shaun Dillon to a tackle slot and he played well," the coach said.

Other strong defensive performances came from linebacker Jeff Mehr, whose fumble recovery set up the ULS touchdown. He also punted well.

Jeff Kenzie, Jason Cooper and Bryan Wisk did well in the defensive line. Wisk was playing the position for the first time.

David Tidwell had his best game at cornerback and delivered some solid hits, while Renard Morey-Greer contributed some key hits at linebacker.

"I don't think there's any question that we're the most physical team in the league," Hills said.

North tied Grosse Pointe South for seventh place at the Shamrock Invitational in Northville last weekend. Smyly was 14th overall to lead the Norsemen, while Hirt (24th) and Shah (34th) also earned medals.

"They moved up seven to 10 places in the field during the last mile and a quarter," Wilson said. "And the finishing stretch on that course is up a hill."

Younger North runners who posted personal best times were Brad Hobart, Scott Dansbury, Matt Jubera and Randy Faust.

South runners share the glory

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Opposing teams can never be sure who's the man to beat when they're running against Grosse Pointe South's boys cross country team.

"We've had three different leaders in our five meets," coach Tom Wise said after the Blue Devils remained unbeaten in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division with victories over Stevenson (24-43) and Chippewa Valley (25-30).

Parker Roth led South in the double-dual league meet, but when the Blue Devils ran in the Shamrock Invitational last weekend, Jeff Pilley was their No. 1 runner.

"Pilley is just now rounding into shape," Wise said. "I think he's about ready to take over as our leader, but the other two (Roth and Andrew Petersen) are both solid runners you can count on to score well in every meet."

Pilley, Petersen, Chas Carrier and Chris Goldsby followed Roth across the finish line to complete South's scoring against Stevenson and Chippewa Valley.

South finished in a tie for seventh with Grosse Pointe North in the Shamrock Invitational.

Pilley, Petersen and Roth were medalists for the Blue Devils, while Pope came in fourth. Brian Steele and Carrier were the other varsity runners.

Freshman Mike Alvin was South's top junior varsity runner in the meet. Other good performances came from Ben Visger, Bill Crawford, Steve Kynaston, Mike Chu and Kevin Schrage.

South will run at the Schoensee Invitational Saturday at Center Line.

Vasse sets the pace again for South

No one can accuse Grosse Pointe South's girls cross country team of avoiding tough competition.

The ninth-ranked Blue Devils faced the top two ranked teams in Class A last week and didn't seem out of place.

South finished second to No. 1 Livonia Stevenson at the Catholic Central Shamrock Invitational and lost 21-39 to No. 2 Sterling Heights Stevenson in a Macomb Area Conference Red Division meet.

"We feel at this point we are very close to these top two teams," said Blue Devils coach Steve Zaranek. "We have been racing extremely well and have been very consistent."

Considering three of our top five runners are new to the team, we feel we can continue to improve.

"We're fortunate to have seen the best during this past week in the two Stevensons. It will help us form very specific goals over the next few weeks."

South's Jonnie Vasse was first at the Shamrock meet for her third straight win in a major invitational. She posted a winning time of 19:26.

Freshmen Heidi Crowley and Beth Auty and senior Kate Crowley placed 11th, 12th and 14th, respectively, for South in the race that had 105 participants. Katy Kraft was 27th, followed by Lauren Mardrosian and Janel Zuidema.

South's Elizabeth Borowiec won the junior varsity race in 21:42. Teammates Dara O'Byrne and Kristin Nickel were close behind.

Also in dual meet action, South beat Chippewa Valley 16-47.

South had strong performances in the dual meet from Chris Littmann, Erin Smialek, Melissa Balok, Christina Werthmann, Bridget Molloy, Emily Mitchell and Hanya Danko.

Highlights

The Neighborhood Club sponsored a co-ed soccer league during the summer for youngsters in pre-kindergarten through grade one.

PRE-KINDERGARTEN
Seago Smilers 5, Ohio State 1
The Seago Smilers have been led by the offense of Jennifer Malik, Amanda Jesciak, Jeff Graves and Tony Casano. The defense, which allowed only seven goals during the season, was anchored by Courtney Pomeroy, Manny Baker, Chris Miller, Michael Seago, Ryan Seago and David Ulmer. Ben Schneedecker has supplied a lot of team spirit. All the players improved during the season and contributed each week.

Nick Blanzly scored the Ohio State goal in a game that was close until the fourth quarter. Strong offense was provided by Alexia Diamond, Mike Mulier, Catherine Cisllo and Charlie Magee. The game was kept close by the defensive play of Maggie Schulte and Laura Stanley and the goaltending of Alex Stanczyk and Anthony Stavale. Katie Mader, Connor Dixon, Reid Dixon and Ian Hollerbach also contributed.

Jack's Waterfront Rest. 4, Penn State 1

Max Hunt scored three goals and John-Michael Guest tallied the other one for Jack's Waterfront Restaurant. Jonathan Howlett made a nice steal to set up one of Hunt's goals. Sara Belluomo, Amanda Amine, Paul Brucker, Michael Teolis, Benjamin Boyce and Julia Zurek also had excellent games. Thomas Bajis and William Cyr played well and improved greatly since the start of the season.

Penn State had outstanding plays from Tyler Berg, Charlotte Berschback and Anna Bickensatt. Antonio Dunn, Tommy Graves, Steven Lapansie and Tom Pandy provided excellent goaltending. Matthew Stanley scored the Penn State goal. Adrian Gatzaras and Ashley Herschelm also provided a spark.

Gazouli-Saros Real Estate 3, Michigan 0

Lewis G. Gazouli-Jim Saros Real Estate scored all three goals in the first half. The team got excellent goaltending in the second half to preserve the lead.

The defeat was Michigan's first of the season. Michigan had several shots that went off the goalposts and others that the Gazouli-Saros goalies stopped.

Suburban Janitorial 3, Northwestern 3

The teams were evenly matched. Suburban Janitorial Service showed good offensive power. Suburban got good performances from Ryan Bauer, Alex Dane, Christine Hess, Adam MacDonald, Thomas Mulvihill, Rachel Neuenfeldt, Jacqueline Shea, Michael Palazzolo, Matthew Temrowski, Mikael Temrowski and Kaleigh Leannais.

Northwestern players Meryl Etheridge, Allison Acciadi, Zachary Ahlbrand, Elissa Bojanic, Maxwell Corbin, Lars Hamre, Matthew Lyon, Peter Lyon, Jack Pierick, Quinn Scillian, Alexis White and Taylor Waisanen worked hard and set up some fine plays.

KINDERGARTEN & GRADE ONE

Red Barons win, lose and draw

The Grosse Pointe Red Barons came away with a win, loss and a tie in its East Suburban Football League games with the Northeast Detroit Shamrocks last Sunday.

The Red Barons varsity beat the Shamrocks 13-0. Ron Pearson scored on a 40-yard run and Jack Tocco passed to K.C. Cleary for the extra point. Mike O'Neil scored the second TD on a three-yard run.

Offensive linemen Jim Brosnan, Paul Jacobs, Barry Novak, Bobby Pogue and Jonathan Fischer all played well.

The junior varsity lost 24-0 but Kyle Hacias and Jason Kline each had several impressive runs. A.J. Staniszewski, Mike Rouleau and Andrew Ettawageshik had strong performances in the offensive line. Steve Aquilina led the defense with a sack, while Angelo Tocco, Hacias, Louie Hyde and Jared DeGuvera had good games.

The freshmen played to a scoreless tie. The blocking of running back Drew Bedan opened some holes for fine runs by Zach Hacias and Zach Schmitt.

P.J. Janutol recovered a fumble and Scott Hobart had a sack. Bobby Monaghan, Justin Linne, Vinnie Panizzi, Mike Mullinger, Jack Masnick and Andrew Gray had excellent defensive games.

The Red Barons host the Warren Jets Sunday at 1 p.m. at Grosse Pointe South.

Tigers 5, Wildcats 0

Matthew Faiver scored four goals and Eric Allison added one for the Tigers, who got fine midfield passing from Robbie Swenson and Arthur Griem. Connor Molloy, Laura Faiver, Maria Dasaro, Heidi Barlow, Alex Davenport and Adam Swider also contributed to the win.

The Wildcats had several scoring attempts but couldn't beat the Tigers' fine goaltenders. The Wildcats made several good passes. Team members Gina Balamucki, Sammy Barbour, Steve Buttelry, Christopher Hancock, Mark McGill, Bryan Melvin, Robert Slajus, Tara Stanley, Michael Sheehy, Lidia Salvaggio and Anna Salvaggio worked well together.

Young Country 1, Bears 1
Young Country has been led by the offense of Brett Striker, Anthony Maceri, Matt Lane, Elizabeth Hawkins and Katie Graves. The defense allowed only two goals this season. The defense was anchored by Kelly Craig, Rachel Curran, Chip Rogers and Mike Lane. Brandon Davenport and Sean Drennan have played well in goal and Danny Cyr developed his skills during the summer.

Michael Pogue scored the Bears' tying goal, assisted by Olivia Stander. Key contributions in goal and on the field were provided by Sarah Stanczyk, Austin Damm and Kristin Dobson. Newcomer Kevin Lynch had a strong game on defense. The Bears also had fine performances from Rachel Eisey, Terrance Dunn, Matthew Martin, Anika Pewlee, Nick Eisey and Anthony Galbo.

Lakeshore Optimist Club 2, Cubs 2

Drew Amato, Jake Chrumka and Robert Eckert worked especially hard for Lakeshore Optimist Club, while Jaclyn Farber was never far from the ball. Jenna Huising, Kathleen Maple, Andrew Pierce and Joshua Schackmann played solid defense, while Danika Stone, Tommy Withers and Eddie Peabody also contributed.

The Cubs combined strong offense from Philip Adamaszek, Andrew Stewart and Ashley Tu and solid defense from Patrick Gustine, Alexander Hunt and Scott Tkarczyk to hold the game to a tie. Erika Mammen, Cale Mannesto and Timothy Mulvihill provided strong support on both ends and the talents of Lindsay Parsh and Clio Seraphim were also noticed.

Wattrick's on right track for ULS

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Kim Wattrick plays No. 2 singles for University Liggett School's tennis team, but she'd be No. 1 on most high school squads.

"She's lost only once at second singles," said ULS coach Chuck Wright after his team's second-place finish at the East Grand Rapids Invitational. "Kim is learning how to work for every point and she's learning to compete and how to have fun doing it."

The only thing that's keeping Wattrick from being No. 1 at ULS is the presence of Leah Killen, who's undefeated at first singles.

Killen and Wattrick each won their flights at East Grand Rapids.

The Knights also won two doubles flights. Kendall Wrigley and Brooke Wright reversed an earlier loss to East Grand Rapids to win 8-6 at No. 1 doubles.

"They're trying to be more aggressive and they did a better job of taking the net away from the East Grand Rapids girls," said coach Wright.

South netters win Pioneer tourney

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Last week didn't start well for Grosse Pointe South's tennis team, but it certainly ended on a pleasant note.

The Blue Devils, who dropped a Macomb Area Conference Red Division meet to Port Huron Northern 8-0 early in the week, bounced back strong with a 7-1 win over division rival Grosse Pointe North, and then won the Ann Arbor Pioneer Invitational.

"The Port Huron Northern match should probably have an asterisk alongside it because we didn't play that poorly," said Blue Devils coach Mark Sobieralski. "We lost three three-set matches and three other real close ones. And we were still missing Meryl Pankhurst at No. 3 singles, so we had to shuffle the lineup."

Sobieralski had a team meeting after the loss to the Huskies and it put the squad in a better frame of mind.

"I thought Northern was just a little hungrier than we were when we played them and we talked to the girls afterward," he said. "We talked about the mental part of tennis. We have enough talent to compete with anyone, but we talked about how sometimes you have to force yourself to overcome adversity on the court."

"Then after I had my meeting the players met among themselves. We were really focused the next day."

That focus translated into an impressive victory over North and the championship in the tournament at Pioneer.

"It was a great tournament for us," Sobieralski said. "We won six of the eight flights. I was so proud of the way the team played. It's finally starting to click on all cylinders."

South finished with 22 points and runner-up Pioneer had 16. Muskegon Mona Shores and Port Huron had five points apiece.

One of the highlights for the Blue Devils was the play of Dana Mertz and Lauren Pankhurst at No. 1 doubles.

They beat Pioneer's top doubles team, which won the state championship at second doubles last year, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

"After they lost the first set they took the attitude that they had won it," Sobieralski said. "That's what I meant about the mental game. They were able to handle their emotion and play each point individually. By the third set, the Pioneer kids had their heads down."

Ann Richard won at No. 1 singles and "played great," according to Sobieralski.

Meryl Pankhurst returned to action and lost only seven games in her three matches at No. 3 singles. Esther Farkas won the fourth singles flight.

Katie Hollidge and Jenny Mansfield won No. 3 doubles with a 6-2, 7-6 win over Pioneer, while Alicia Siefert and Kristin Reagan were victorious at No. 4 doubles.

In the two flights where South failed to win, its players still turned in fine performances.

Leslie Harrell won two of her three matches at No. 2 singles, and she earned the praise of her coach.

"She really battled against the Pioneer girl, who's a Western-ranked player," Sobieralski said. "Leslie had a great tournament. She beat an excellent Mona Shores player 6-1, 6-1."

"Leslie was one of the bright spots in the tournament. After she lost her first match she was so proud of the way she played, she couldn't wait to get back on the court. There's a lot less pressure on her now that she's playing No. 2 singles instead of No. 1."

The second doubles team of Tracy Summers and Anne Morris won two of its three matches. The only loss was to Pioneer's undefeated team.

"They lost the second set to Pioneer on a tie-breaker," Sobieralski said. "They played well, too."

Defense carries Knights to six straight wins

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

University Liggett School's soccer team doesn't have a high-powered offense, but so far it has been good enough.

"We haven't found a lot of offense, but we've had enough to get by and our defense has stopped the opposition," coach David Backhurst said after the Knights beat Lutheran Westland 2-0 for their sixth straight Metro Conference victory.

"We've scored 25 goals in 10 games, but we've only given up five in those 10. The few goals we've been getting have held up."

One of the victories in the six-game streak was a 1-0 triumph over Lutheran North.

"That was a big win because North has dominated boys soccer in the league like we've dominated with the girls," Backhurst said. "That was the first time we've beaten them since 1988."

The game was scoreless with 17 minutes remaining. Then Peter Birgbauer took a free kick from the left side that went into a crowd of players in front of the net. North's goalkeeper got caught in the scramble and couldn't get back into position. While he was on the ground, Steve Gotfredson kicked the ball into the net.

"Once we got the goal the defense stepped up and our freshman goalie Dan Ferrin made some great saves," Backhurst said.

"Ferrin has come up big when he's had to. Our sweeper, Mike Gressman, is playing like the All-Stater he is. Matt Nowak is an aggressive defender. Our stopper, Brad Cenko, isn't flashy and often gets overlooked but he's a great tackler. Ian Fines is solid and sophomore Mace McDonald has also given us some quality minutes on defense."

ULS started the victory string with a 2-0 win over Hamtramck.

C.T. Brown broke a scoreless tie with 11 minutes remaining in the game. He got a loose ball out of a scramble and scored from a difficult angle.

Cenko got the insurance goal with 1:25 remaining on a long shot just under the crossbar.

The Knights were involved in another scoreless tie at half-time in their game with Cranbrook Kingswood, but with six minutes remaining Birgbauer scored on a restart with a shot over the wall of defenders. Two minutes later Mike DiLoreto sent a crossing pass to Birgbauer, who one-timed the ball into the net.

South golfers first

Grosse Pointe South's golf team cast a vote for itself as the top team on the east side last week when the Blue Devils took first place in the Evans-Gill Invitational at Gowanie Golf Club.

South was led by Ben Debski and Steve Stanton, who each shot 75 to tie for third place in the medal standings. Brendan Joyce shot 78 and Joe Gehrke carded 82 for a total of 310, which led the 23-team field.

Earlier, the Blue Devils were seventh at the 23-team Marshall Invitational. Debski led the way with a third-place finish among the individual medalists.

"We've been lucky to be able to use eight different kids to Backhurst rested some of his injured players against

Lutheran East and ULS rolled to a 6-0 victory that wasn't as easy as the score might indicate.

"East has its strongest team in a long time and they're a scrappy bunch," Backhurst said. "They made it tough on us even though we must have had 70 shots."

The Knights led 3-0 at half-time on goals by Birgbauer, Fines and Gressman. DiLoreto, Sergei Lie and Nowak collected assists.

Birgbauer tallied twice in the second half and Brown also scored.

ULS beat Lutheran Northwest 3-1, but this time the Knights scored early. Berc Backhurst scored six minutes into the game but Northwest tied the game with the only goal allowed by the Knights in the six-game streak.

Cenko broke the tie seven minutes into the second half when he put a free kick into the upper left corner of the net.

"It was a perfectly-placed shot," coach Backhurst said. Berc Backhurst notched his second goal of the game with about 14 minutes left in the contest.

ULS capped the perfect two weeks with the 2-0 shutout of Lutheran Westland. The Knights scored two early goals. Birgbauer drilled a 25-yarder just inside the post at the 10-minute mark and about a minute later, Cenko chipped a free kick that Brown headed into the net.

"We outshot them 12-2 in the first half and I was really pleased with the way we played," David Backhurst said.

ULS, now 8-2 overall, hosts Hamtramck today, Sept. 26, and visits Ann Arbor Greenhills for a non-league game Saturday.

North will miss its All-State twosome

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's soccer programs are going to miss Robyn Maples and Sean Schotthoefer this year.

It isn't easy to replace all-state players and both the Norsemen's girls and boys teams will have to overcome the loss of one of the best seniors in the state.

Maples and Schotthoefer each played in the all-star games put on last summer by the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association.

"Robyn and Sean are very similar players," said Sam Steinhebel, who coached the girls team last spring and moved from assistant to head coach on the boys squad this fall.

"They're both intense competitors. Neither one will ever give up, no matter what's happening in the game."

Schotthoefer had an outstanding senior year last fall and it might have been even better if he hadn't injured a knee while playing in Europe the previous summer as part of a touring United States squad that played feeder teams for the European First Division soccer leagues. Among the teams he played were the junior squads for Ajax, Feyenoord and Twente of Holland and Dortmund and Keverkuseh of Germany.

"They go through a training process that is almost unbearable," Steinhebel said. "But Sean came back well-trained. He solidified the defense on our team, but he could play anywhere. In order for our system to work, he had to play defense."

Former coach Guido

Regelbrugge always built his teams around defense and he put his best players in defensive roles. Steinhebel is following the same philosophy.

Schotthoefer was the Norsemen's captain in his junior and senior seasons and earned All-State recognition each year.

"He was a good leader who always expected 110 percent of himself and his teammates," Steinhebel said. "He set a good example and everyone looked to him when we needed something done. He had a lot of good soccer sense. It's an old cliché, but he was like a coach on the field."

Schotthoefer had several college scholarship offers to play soccer, but he decided to attend Michigan for academic reasons. He plans to try out for the Wolverines' club soccer team.

Schotthoefer intends to major in business at Michigan.

"Sean's an ingenious guy," Steinhebel said. "When he sets his mind to something he usually gets it done. That's why he'll be successful in the business world."

Maples was to North's girls team what Schotthoefer was to the boys squad.

"She was the anchor for my team," Steinhebel said. "Whether she was playing mid-field or defense she did a great job. She was injured a lot, probably because she played so hard, but she played through the injuries."

Maples was a four-year starter for the Norsemen and was a key member of the North team that went to the state Class A semifinals in 1993.

Maples received All-State honors each of the last two seasons. This year she was a member of the All-State second ment, I'm sure she'd have been a first-team player."

Maples was also a two-year captain at North.

"She's a great kid with a great attitude," Steinhebel said. "She's a catalyst. You wonder how she can give so much effort."

Maples has a scholarship to Eastern Michigan University where she'll play soccer for the Eagles.

Both Maples and Schotthoefer are excellent students, posting grade-point averages above 3.5. They were each members of the National Honor Society at North.

Trio leads ULS golf squad to three victories

John Staniszewski, Bo Brink and Christian Auty led University Liggett School's golf team to Metro Conference victories over Lutheran Northwest, Lutheran North and Oakland Christian.

The Knights, who are 3-1, suffered their only loss to league-leading Cranbrook Kingswood, who received a two-over par 38 from medalist team and Steinhebel felt she deserved more.

"She was second team only because of where we sat as a team," he said. "If we had gone farther in the state tourna-

North girls closing in on cross country foe

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Coach Scott Cooper found a silver lining in his Grosse Pointe North girls cross country team's first Macomb Area Conference White Division defeat.

"We're closer to Romeo than I thought we'd be," Cooper said after the Norsemen lost 24-31 to the Bulldogs but beat Utica 19-40 in the other half of the double dual meet.

"We'll race them again in the league meet and now I think we can beat them. All of our people ran their best times. That's all you can ask. We were only behind by a point after two miles, but Romeo came on a little stronger at the end."

Katie Daniels led the way for North, followed by Erin Lenahan, Julie Mielke, Beth Ginger and Betsy Huebner. Freshman Tracy Secord ran a strong race and was the Norsemen's sixth runner.

"It's nice to see a freshman do that well," Cooper said.

Cooper was also pleased with his team's effort at last week's Shamrock Invitational at Case-Benton Park in Northville.

"It was a tough course but we had a lot of best times," he said.

Lenahan was North's first runner to hit the finish line, earning her coach's praise.

"That was the best race of her career," Cooper said.

She was followed by Mielke, Andrea Veryser, Huebner, Secord and Daniels.

Christine Broderick was North's top finisher in the junior varsity race, taking seventh overall. Vickie DeCarlo and Katie Horn also turned in good efforts.

Salvo '86 remains perfect in league play

The Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Salvo '86 travel team ran its unbeaten streak to nine games and its league record to 5-0 with four straight victories in Under-11 Minor Division play.

The Salvo, which is 7-0-2 overall, had outscored the opposition 34-2 at the midpoint of the season.

Five unanswered goals that broke a 1-1 tie carried the Salvo to a 6-1 victory over the St. Clair Shores Storm.

Paul Kossak scored twice for the Salvo, while Bobby Clarren, John Dallas, Michael Dupuis and Anthony DiLoreto added a goal apiece.

Clarren scored three goals and Kossak and Shane Davisson added one apiece in Grosse Pointe's five-goal first half on the way to an 8-1 victory over Fraser United.

Kossak added two more goals in the second half and Davisson tallied his second of the game.

The Salvo followed with a pair of 7-0 victories against the North Metro Rangers and the Warren Warriors.

Clarren and Kossak each had two goals against the Rangers and Steven Bahr, Davisson and Seve Jensen each tallied once.

Goalies DiLoreto and Matt Nelson combined on the shutout with strong defensive support from Michael Romanelli, Ryan Symington, Stephen Oney and Nick Andrew.

Six players scored against Warren. Dallas had two and Matt Reynaert, Kossak, Davisson, Clarren and Jensen added one apiece.

The shutout was shared by DiLoreto, Nelson and Clarren. Once again, Romanelli, Symington, Oney and Andrew sparkled on defense.

Win.

African violets have only been here a short time

Blossoming exuberantly on windowsills, the African violet has become nearly as much a part of the American home as the coffee pot.

There is no doubt that the African violet is by far the most popular house plant. The annual propagation of violets commercially is in the millions. No one can even guess how many are propagated by the simple home method of sticking a leaf in a glass of water.

The tremendous popularity of the African violet is all the more amazing when you consider that it was only introduced to cultivation in the 1890s. No one had ever heard of it before that. The first named and patented varieties came on the market as recently as 1935. Today there are hundreds of varieties registered with the African Violet Society, with many more awaiting certification.

Today, blossoms single or double, may be purple, pink, reddish, coral, white or bicolored. Leaves have been bred in about every shape, except square, and come in a variety of sizes.

To see African violets before 1890, you would have had to journey to the Republic of Tanzania, in northern Africa, where, in the beautiful Usambara and Uluguru hills, rivers dropping to the sea pass through a region of cliffs and shady glens and patches of forest.

Garden Shed

By Ellen Probert Williamson

Here, the violets grow wild in masses covering several hundred square feet. Today, visitors tell about the wonderful displays of violets at the foot of waterfalls where they benefit from the mist and where more than 20 natural species grow.

Almost from the moment when it reached Europe, the African violet was an overwhelming success after it made its official debut at the International Horticulture Exhibition of 1893, held in Ghent, Belgium. It stole the show. After that, every late Victorian and Edwardian "conservatory" featured African violets.

It was very much "in" to have a conservatory, which was ideally a small greenhouse opening out of the parlor or the drawing room. Lacking such an amenity, it could be merely a windowed alcove at the end of a hall, or even a well-lighted corner, but filled almost beyond capacity with potted plants of every description, mingled with a careless disregard of their compatibility with each other.

Very often the plants in the conservatory, which invariably featured the new African violets, would include a few culinary herbs for fragrant kitchen use and making potpourri, an Edwardian obsession.

Some of the most popular herbs then, as they still are, were sweet basil, thyme, chervil, oregano and chamomile. All of these have distinctly romantic pasts.

Sweet basil, so marvelous in tomato dishes, is sacred in India to Krishnas and Vishnus. To die with a sprig of basil in one's hand is to hold a passport to Paradise.

The Moldavians consider the basil to be an herb of such potency that a man who accepts a sprig of it from a woman will be so enchanted that he will love her forever.

In Italy, it is said that basil creates sympathy and love among those who wear it.

There are probably more legends and myths concerning thyme than almost any other herb. Among them is the idea that if you brush your eyelids with wild thyme you will be able to see elves, fairies, gnomes and sprites invisible to everyone else.

Chervil, on the other hand, one of the ingredients in the so-called "fine herbes" mixture, was one of the most basic herbs in the gardens and kitchens of ancient Rome.

In the 15th century it was not only a kitchen herb but was also the most popular strewing herb scattered on floors to sweetly scent the rooms.

Oregano, basic to spaghetti sauce recipes, was very popular in the early 19th century as a sachet ingredient to be carried in a small packet to sniff instead of smelling salts in case of faintness.

A rinse of cooled oregano tea was to be poured over the head to prevent hair loss.

Also very popular during the 19th century was a hair rinse made of chamomile flowers and leaves brewed in a tea. This was guaranteed to keep blonde hair from darkening.

Chamomile is a great garden asset and is easy to grow. Its nickname is "plants' physician" since it seems to promote the health and vigor of other plants grown near it.

Chamomile tea is the earliest herb tea on record and has been popular for thousands of years all over the world.

All these popular herbs are ornamental, fragrant and useful. They make delightful additions to a kitchen windowsill garden and to share honors with your African violet plants in their varied colors and varieties.

Detroit Edison sponsors 24-hour weather service

Detroit Edison is sponsoring a new telephone weather service that will help Wayne, Oakland and Macomb county residents prepare for the sunshine — or the rain — that Mother Nature sends our way.

Residents in the metro Detroit area now can get the time, temperature and forecast 24 hours a day by calling the Detroit Edison-sponsored "Weatherline" at (313) 961-8686 or (810) 351-8686. Meteorologists from WDIV-TV Channel 4 update the forecasts throughout the day.

Callers also can obtain severe and emergency weather warnings, as well as service restoration updates following widespread storm-related power outages. Additionally, Weatherline features information about energy efficiency, safety and community events sponsored by Detroit Edison.

"Weatherline is the only service of its kind in the metropolitan area," said Douglas Polkinghorne, director of Detroit Edison's creative services department. "Detroit Edison carefully monitors the weather to gauge its potential impact on our electrical system. Now our customers can benefit from similar information when making their plans."

The metropolitan Detroit service is free but regular phone usage charges apply.

Detroit Edison offers Weatherline in both the "313" and "810" area codes to minimize those charges.

Tips on closing your cottage for the winter

Cool fall temperatures signal the end of summer and time for owners of cottages or second homes to start preparing their property for the winter, said Cheryl Krysiak of the Michigan State University Extension Service.

Whether you plan to return to the cottage for winter weekends or choose to winter in warmer places and not return until next spring, you need to follow some sensible winterizing procedures.

1. You must either lower or shut off the heat. If you're not planning to return until spring, it makes sense to shut the heat off completely. If you're planning to return during the winter, you may want to install a low-heat thermostat, which will allow you to maintain your cottage at about 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Pay attention to the location of the thermostat in relation to the water pipes. Forty degrees in the thermostat area may not keep distant water pipes warm enough to keep them from freezing.

2. Put all food items in a metal container, such as a garbage pail with a snug lid. Food in paper containers is an open invitation to animals. If you are planning to turn off the heat, remove all liquids, including canned goods, medicines and lotions. Liquids will freeze and the bottles will break. Canned goods may spoil as they thaw in the spring.

3. Clean out your refrigerator and prop the door open so the inside can dry. This will prevent it from developing an unpleasant odor over the winter.

4. Unplug all appliances.

5. Inspect the foundation, windows and doors to be sure there are no openings through which animals can enter. Secure a cover over the top of your chimney to prevent animals from falling inside and getting trapped. A screen can be used as it will permit smoke to escape if you forget to remove it in the spring before you light your first fire.

6. Remove all valuables, such as TVs, radios and stereos. If you must leave them behind, put them where they cannot be seen from the windows and be sure they are marked with your driver's license number.

7. Shut off the water system by turning off the pump or closing the valve so that water will drain out all the way to the shutoff valve. Drain the pump and run it for a few seconds to be sure all the water is out of the line.

8. Remove the traps in the kitchen and bathroom sinks and shower drains. If you cannot get to a trap to remove it, use a plunger to force as much water out as you can and then add one to two cups of antifreeze to each trap. Flush the toilets, dip all the water out of the flush tank and add two or three cups of antifreeze to the toilet bowl.

9. Drain flexible hoses, showers, sinks, washers, dishwashers, and water softeners.

10. Turn off the gas at the home's entrance. Remember to relight the pilot light in the spring.

11. Notify the local police that you will be leaving and give them a phone number where you can be reached during the winter.

12. Ask the neighbors or friends to check the house occasionally and remove the snow from the sidewalks and drive. Or hire a local snow removal service.

13. Have your mail held or forwarded.

14. Update your home inventory. Photograph your rooms and itemize your possessions. If someone breaks in or a fire occurs, you will not have to rely on your memory to itemize your belongings.

If you take the time now to safeguard your cottage, you will not only save money on repairs or damage.

When the warm breezes of spring arrive you will be able to enjoy them, with a minimum of time spent on re-opening your cottage.

Blue jays add color to the autumn season

The cooler days of autumn bring the sights of yellow leaves against a vivid blue sky, punctuated by screams of the blue jays as they wander about in family units, gathering strength in numbers as they prepare to head south.

Many a feeder watcher shows a distaste for blue jays because they are carnivorous in the spring, eating the offspring of other birds. But if you take the time to really observe them, you will learn that blue jays are more intelligent than other birds, with the capacity to use tools and solve problems, and they have a more sophisticated social behavior than other birds.

In captivity, a blue jay was provided with a water dish where the level was too low to enable it to drink. By adding small pebbles to the dish, the bird raised the level of the water so that it could satisfy its thirst. Likewise, jays have been observed using pieces of paper to retrieve unreachable seeds.

As to their social behavior, it has been observed that jays may come to each others rescue if being pursued by a hawk. By interfering with the chase and presenting itself to the hawk, the altruistic jay saves a member of its species while endangering itself.

Blue jays are found from the east side of the Rockies to the Atlantic coast and are abundant, permanent residents of this area. Their striking shades of blue add a welcome splash of color to the yard.

Although jays were once found only in forested areas, they have acclimated well to suburban climes. Common to feeders, they welcome both striped and black oil sunflowers but do show a preference for the striped. They also are highly attracted to corn and peanuts, either in or out of the shell.

They are major consumers of hairy caterpillars, a beneficial trait. Blue jays have an expandable gular pouch in their throat which enables them to carry large amounts of food which can then be stored in holes in trees or in the ground. Their habit of burying acorns in the ground, referred to as caching, is responsible for the spread of the oak forests.

In watching blue jays closely, one learns that they are highly developed vocalists. Not only do they have a wide variety of calls with different meanings, they can also easily imitate the call of a red-tailed or red-shouldered hawk.

We are all familiar with the "jay jay" scream, but did you know that the jay uses a flutelike call described as "toolool." They are also capable of a dry rattle. For a complete detailing of their varied calls and the purposes of those calls, "A Guide to Bird Behavior. Volume 1," by Donald and Lillian Stokes, makes an interesting read.

In spring, groups of jays can be seen forming. These groups consist of one female followed by two to 10 males. The group engages in a follow-the-leader activity. Assembling in the early part of the day, the males follow the female and mimic her every move. If she flies, they follow. If she sits still, so do they. If she hops to a lower branch, they do the same.

In watching them, you will notice that the female will land at the top of a tree and that the males will sit still around her after they land close by. Vying for there favor, one of the males will begin to bob. He does this by extending his legs fully, his body going up and down. The other males may follow his lead. The group thins out as time goes by as some of the males become discouraged by the persistence of other group members.

Once the mated pair are established, they become highly secretive and quiet. The male will feed the female during this time as part of courtship. Together they build false nests, breaking off branches and placing them loosely together. The true nest is built in the crotch of the tree usually about 10 to 15 feet above ground with both adults participating in the effort. The outer wall of the nest consists of moss, bark, lichens, paper, rags, dry grasses and sometimes mud. The inner cup is lined with fine rootlets.

Four to five eggs are the usual clutch with incubation bring performed primarily by the female for 16 to 18 days. The young remain in the nest for 17 to 21 days and leave it in a fairly well developed condition. The young birds follow their parents around in a noisy group, clamoring to be fed even though they are the same size as their parents.

Although they do not defend against other jays in their territory, blue jays are notorious for their attacks on cats, squirrels and people. If you happen to come too close to the nest, the parent birds will dive-bomb you out of their territory.

Jays are also known for their mobbing attacks on birds of prey. If they spot an owl or hawk in midday, they scream out the "jay alarm" so that others will come flying. Facing the enemy, they continue to call and dive-bomb until the predator takes flight and leaves the area. It is always worth the effort to check out the screams of jays.

During a winter day, my attention was caught by two jays screaming at the cedar trees in my yard. I knew that it would be worth the effort to investigate. I was rewarded with a sighting of a boreal owl! This was one bird that I didn't let the jays chase away!

The jay will also use the alarm call to its advantage at the feeder. Other birds hearing the call believe that a predator is close by and will scatter, leaving the jay to enjoy the feeder by himself. To his credit, the blue jay also alerts all other birds when danger is actually nearby so maybe he has earned that break at the feeder.

In fall, the blue jays gather in great flocks to head south. These flocks consist largely of first year birds. Resident adults tend to stay in the same area all year round.

Point Pelee is a great place to enjoy this autumn spectacle. Their wings form a pattern against the bright blue sky as they gain altitude. The possibility of danger sends the whole group falling into the trees for cover. Screams abound as they warn of the sharp-shinned and cooper's hawks that are in hot pursuit.

One of the sure signs of fall, I hope that you make the time for a visit to the tip of Point Pelee to witness this seasonal event.

For indoor blooms this December, plant now

To bring a flash of color and hint of spring to dark winter days, prepare bulbs now for indoor blooms. Bulbs, generally planted or left in the ground outdoors during the winter months, can be forced to bloom indoors if planted now.

"These bulbs should be planted from mid-October to early November," says Adrienne O'Brien, a senior horticulture assistant at the University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens. "Plant them in a sterile packaged soil mix of mostly peat and perlite."

A six-inch pot with five tulip bulbs will need a minimum of 14 weeks of cold treatment to produce colorful blooms inside while snow and winter winds howl outside. Once the bulbs are planted in pots, the containers should be placed in an unheated garage or shed, in the crawl space under a house or in an unheated attic.

A coldframe or window well will also work well, O'Brien said, as will a balcony or porch if the pots are put inside a heavy box that is heavily insulated and placed right next to a house.

"The pots should be watered only when the surface of the potting medium begins to dry out and the pot feels much lighter," O'Brien said. "The soil should not completely dry, as the roots will be damaged. Check them weekly for the first month and less often later on. If over-watered, the bulbs will rot. There should be roots at the bottom of the pots by late November, especially the tulips and daffodils."

When bringing the bulbs indoors from cold storage, first put them in a cool place out of direct sunlight. Foliage will already be growing.

"If the foliage is frozen, don't touch it," O'Brien said. "After a day or two, the pots can be moved to a brighter area. The cooler and brighter the conditions, the better. Plants will be more compact and have better quality flowers which will last longer."

When the buds begin to show colors they will open in a day or two. The blooming process can be slowed at this point by placing the pots in a cool (40-50 degrees) area for several days. Under ideal conditions, flowers will last a week to 10 days.

"It is not a good idea to try to speed up the blooming process by moving the pot to a warmer area as inferior foliage and blossoms will result," O'Brien said.

After the flowers have died, there are a couple of options. The bulbs can be thrown out. They cannot be forced again. It may not be worth the time and effort to save them and plant them outside.

"Do not feel guilty if you decide to toss them," O'Brien said. "You may keep the potted bulbs inside until it is warm enough to put them outside, in mid to late April, in a protected area."

Continue watering the bulbs regularly until the foliage begins to die. After all the foliage is gone, remove the bulbs from the pot and put them in a paper or mesh bag in a dry area until fall, when they can be planted outside.

"You may get flowers the following spring," O'Brien said, "but it will probably take two seasons for the bulb to recover. I do not recommend saving tulips — they divide into much smaller bulbs and take longer to recover."

Distinctive homes showcased

The second annual Showcase of Distinctive Homes is a scattered-site open house of new model homes available throughout southeastern Michigan. The show begins Sept. 26.

"These exceptional homes are constructed by many of BIA's professional master builders," said Gilbert "Buzz" Silverman, president of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan (BIA) and president and chief executive officer of The Silverman Companies in Farmington Hills.

Detailed illustrations of the 41 participating homes will be displayed at the Fall Remodeling Show at the Novi Expo Center, which is open Sept. 26 to 29.

Home information, illustrations and maps will run in the Detroit News Homefinder, Observer Eccentric and Macomb Daily. This information can also be found on the World Wide Web at <http://oeonline.com/showcase>.

The Showcase of Distinctive Homes will run through Oct. 13 so people can visit the models at their convenience.

Prominent local architects will judge the homes and select winners in several prize categories before the Showcase of Distinctive Homes opens.

The Showcase of Distinctive Homes program is sponsored by BIA, which also sponsors the Parade of Notable Homes in the spring.

A home walk-through can be a learning experience

Before you settle on a new home, you and your builder will walk through the house to conduct a final inspection.

The walk-through provides an opportunity for you to spot items which may need to be corrected or adjusted. It also allows you to learn about the way your new home works.

Often, a builder will use the walk-through to educate buyers about:

- the operation of the house's components.
- the buyer's responsibilities for maintenance and upkeep.
- warranty coverage and procedures.
- the larger community in which the home is located.

"When you buy a new appliance or piece of equipment, such as a VCR, you usually have to read the instructions before you can understand how to use all of the features," said Gilbert "Buzz" Silverman, president of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan and of the Silverman Companies in Farmington Hills. "With a new house, you will be receiving a stack of instruction booklets all at once. It helps if someone can take the time to show you how to operate all of the kitchen appliances, the heating and cooling systems, the water heater and other features in the home. Such an orientation is particularly useful considering that when moving into a new home, people often are so busy that they have trouble finding the time to carefully read instruction booklets."

Learning about maintenance and upkeep responsibilities is very important.

Most new homes come with a one-year warranty on workmanship and materials. However, such warranties do not cover problems that develop because of failure to perform required maintenance. Many builders provide a booklet explaining common upkeep responsibilities for new homeowners and how to perform them.

Should a warranted problem arise after you move in, the builder is likely to have a set of warranty service procedures to follow. Except in emergencies, requests for service should be in writing. This is not because the builder is trying to be bureaucratic. Rather, it is to ensure that everyone clearly understands the service to be performed.

The person receiving a service request is not likely to be the person performing the work, and you don't want to rely on word-of-mouth for transmission of your service order.

Many builders schedule two visits during the first year — one near the beginning and the other near the end — to make necessary adjustments and to perform work of a non-emergency nature.

You should not expect a builder to rush out immediately for a problem such as a nail pop in your drywall.

Such problems occur because of the natural settling of the house and are best addressed in one visit near the end of the first year.

If you have moved to a new home from a nearby area, you probably will not spend much time at the walk-through talking about the larger community in which the home is located.

However, if you are moving to a new community, a builder can often provide a packet of material to help you become acclimated.

When inspecting the house, an effective way to handle this is with a checklist.

The list should include everything that needs attention, and you and your builder should agree to a timetable for repairs.

Builders prefer to remedy problems before you move in since it is easier for them to work in an empty house. Some items may have to be corrected after move-in. For instance, if your walk-through is in the winter, your builder may have to delay exterior completion until spring.

It is important that you be thorough and observant during the walk-through.

Carefully examine all surfaces of counters, fixtures, floors and walls for possible damage.

Sometimes, disputes arise because a buyer may discover a gouge in a counter top after move-in and there is no way to prove whether it was caused by the builder's workers or the buyer's movers.

Many builders ask their buyers to sign a form at the walk-through stating that all surfaces have been inspected and that there was no damage other than what has been noted on the walk-through checklist.

"Ask a lot of questions during the walk-through and take notes on the answers," Silverman said. "It is important to view the walk-through as a positive learning experience which will enhance your enjoyment of your home."

Home Tips

Patient help — My husband was terminally ill. He was in a veterans hospital and he couldn't have any valuables, such as his watch, in his room.

One of his doctors suggested that we get him a simple clock and a calendar so that he could keep up with the days and time. For someone in his condition, I feel this was helpful. Wanda V., Abilene, Texas Trash bags — I put a whole roll of trash bags in the bottom of each trash can (the bags are attached).

As I take the full bag out, another is pulled up. Linda F., Durham, N.C.

Clean sink — Once a week, I run a cycle of white vinegar through my automatic drip coffemaker, followed by several pots of clean water to flush out the vinegar smell.

The vinegar gets rid of acid residue left by the coffee and ensures I won't have bitter coffee. However, when the pot of vinegar is done, I rinse out my stainless steel sinks with it. They shine like nobody's business. Dee Dee N., Amenia, N.Y.

Cube tissue boxes — Once your tissues are used, place a can, jar or paper cup into the cube, then put wildflowers, garden flowers or dried flowers into the box.

Such a simple idea, but you have a lovely (even seasonal) disposable container that can be recycled or trashed.

It's great to use to give flowers to people in hospitals and for welcomes to the neighborhood for busy people who do not have time to return a vase. Janie R., Colinger, Neb.

Dog tags — I have a golden retriever who was always losing her tags.

The little metal clips just didn't do the job. I bought a small splitting, the kind that is used for keys, and used it to attach the tags to her collar.

It works very well. In two years, she hasn't lost a tag yet. Terri L., Roswell, N.M.

Three Outstanding Grosse Pointe Waterfront Properties

SUBSTANTIAL PRICE ADJUSTMENT

In Grosse Pointe Shores, this exceptional home has been restored to perfection! The fine original detailing has been retained and blends harmoniously with the extensive updating and improvements that have recently been added. These include a gourmet kitchen with top of the line appliances & master bedroom suite with his and her baths and a dressing room 13 x 15. The swimming pool and jacuzzi and extensive new landscaping make this a home to be proud of. Now $1,295,000.

WATER WONDERLAND

Set on a curve, the view of the lake from this back garden is one of the few panoramic views afforded in all Grosse Pointe. You can dip your toes in the water from your own lawn! Whether you like boating, water skiing, swimming, fishing or just enjoying the ever changing face of the lake and the sky, you will never find a more idyllic spot from which to do it! Built by Mast in 1981, this manageable-sized four bedroom home has a three car attached garage and is set on a secluded wooded lot. $995,000.

NEW ON THE MARKET

Just listed last week, this custom built home has only known one owner. There is a magnificent view of the lake from almost every room of this Grosse Pointe Shores mini-mansion. Best of all perhaps is the hard-to-find first floor master suite. There are five additional bedrooms plus 800 square feet on the second floor that is unfinished and just waiting for your needs and creativity. From the moment you enter the dramatic foyer with circular staircase, you will feel at home. $1,400,000.
