MS Walk a personal triumph for many who live with the disease

9th annual fundraiser to start at 9 a.m. Sunday at North

By John Lundberg
Staff Writer

At 18, Cliff Trudell had the whole world in front of him. He was fresh from his high school graduation and had just started his first big job, when fate threw him a curve ball. He was stricken with multiple sclerosis. "I was just starting out and the next thing I know, I am flat on my back," he said. "Needless to say, it certainly deflated my balloon."

But not for long.

On Sunday April 13, Trudell, along with a number of other walkers, will embark on the ninth annual MS Walk at Grosse Pointe North High School. This is the fourth year that Trudell, now 51, has journeyed the course that extends from either 15 to 20 kilometers. But Trudell has been a long-time volunteer for the society and is anxiously anticipating this year's event.

"(After my first walk) it took me nearly three weeks to recuperate," he said. "It is very physically strenuous."

Trudell now takes an electric cart over the course, which is common for a number of the participants in the walk who have the neurological disease. He also volunteers his time soliciting pledges from area businesses interested in donating to the society. Donors for the walk are not required to pledge by the kilometer, but any amount which is comfortable.

"Last year, our group (named the Thumbprints), raised the most money of any group in the nation," Trudell said. The group got its name from its founder who lives in Marysville, located in Michigan's thumb area.

MS is a neurological disease that attacks the central nervous system affecting the body's muscular condition. Trudell was afflicted relatively

Muir residents applaud permit parking; more streets to follow?

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

Hard pressed to find a parking space sometimes in the Hill shopping district or near Grosse Pointe South High School? A six-month, police-monitored trial period of permit parking only for Muir Road's 63 residents and their guests concluded April 1. And Grosse Pointe Farms director of public safety Robert Ferber recommended to the Farms City Council April 7 that the special parking arrangement continue if a majority of Muir residents also wanted the policy continued.

The trial period on Muir Road cost the Farms police department a minimum of $897.85 — $267 for sign materials and $591.85 for parking permit windshield stickers and guest passes. The cost does not

Recyclers to hold swap meet

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

It's one of those ideas that is so simple, when someone finally thinks of it everyone slaps their forehead and says "of course."

Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling is holding its Building Materials Exchange Day on Saturday, April 26, in the Grosse Pointe South High School parking lot. The idea behind the day, said group spokesperson Anne Burke, is to allow people to get rid of some of the stuff that collects in their homes over the years without having to throw it out.

"Large-sized items are incinerated and taken to landfills," said Burke. "It costs money to do this. We thought it was a good idea to hold an exchange day. That way we save on trash disposal costs and items that normally would have been thrown away are now put to good use."

The way the swap meet works, Burke said, is that people with items they would like to see recycled drop the materials off at the South parking lot accessible from Grosse Pointe Boulevard from 9-10 a.m. on April 26.

Then from 10 a.m. - noon,

As with previous years, above, the Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling is holding its annual Building Materials Exchange Day, but this year it will be at Grosse Pointe South High School on Saturday, April 26 these items can be picked up by people who have a need for the donated items, said Burke. This is the seventh annual exchange day, and things donated in the past included lumber, plumbing supplies, carpeting, floor covering, shutters, tiles, screens and hand tools.

"Bricks are very popular, they go very fast," Burke said. "You don't have to drop off materials in order to participate in the exchange. Donated items will be stored by category. Last year we had about 500 cars stop by. And we were able to exchange just about everything. Anything left over will be disposed of by the City of Grosse Pointe."

Citizens for Recycling will accept cans of latex paint at least half full, said Burke. They will not accept cans of oil-based paints, which fall under the category of hazardous waste and are better disposed of at the group's household hazardous waste collection day on May 10.

Any paint that is left over will be donated to a charity. The group is currently talking with Habitat for Humanity to see if they need the paint, said Burke.

"We have a special collection for senior citizens if they want to donate items but can't bring them to the exchange site," Burke said. "Any seniors interested in making donations can call me at (313) 886-1935. We'll try to get to everyone."

Burke said that anyone interested in volunteering and helping at the exchange can call at her as well.

Guess who's not seeking re-election to the school board?

2 candidates up for 2 open board seats

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

It's shaping up to be a quiet school board race this season in Grosse Pointe.

There are two seats open. The two current office holders are not seeking reelection. And only two residents submitted nominating petitions by the Monday, April 7, deadline.

Candidates are Joan Dindoff of Grosse Pointe Park and Joseph Brennan of Grosse Pointe Woods. Both are described by school officials as longtime volunteers and active in the school community.

Neither board vice president Carl Anderson nor trustee Sears Taylor are seeking reelection to the four-year term of board trustee.

Anderson announced earlier this year that after serving three terms on the school board he would not run again. He also retired earlier this year from his post as assistant principal at South Lake High School in St. Clair Shores.

Taylor, who was elected to the board in 1993, made no public announcement of his decision not to seek reelection and was absent from the April 7 board meeting.

The candidates have until Thursday, April 10, to withdraw their petitions if they so choose.

Meanwhile, school administrators must verify the signatures on the two petitions. Each candidate had to collect at least 66 signatures of registered voters within the Grosse Pointe Public School system boundaries. The number of signatures is determined by a percentage of the number of people who cast ballots in the previous year's board election.

The school board election will be held on Monday, June 9.

'Zero hour' proposed at Parcels this fall

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

After months of exploring a multitude of options, it looks like the Grosse Pointe school board will institute a "zero hour" at Parcels school as a temporary measure to alleviate overcrowding at the Grosse Pointe Woods middle school.

Enrollment at the school is 793 students this year. Administrators have projected that if relief isn't sought, the population will swell to 822 students in the next five years — well over the optimum enrollment of 500 for a middle school.

Everything from building an addition onto Parcels to reclaiming the space currently occupied by the Grosse Pointe Public Library to funneling students to other schools have been analyzed and discussed by the Parcels enrollment committee made up of parents, teachers and administrators.

"We asked the committee for a short-term solution because there are limits to what anyone can do between now and the fall," said board president Tim Howlett.

The zero hour, if implemented based on space and enrollment this fall, will schedule

Does this remind you of anything?

Maybe you didn't see it from the same angle — or maybe you were one of the actors yourself — but this scene was a very common one throughout the Pointe last Saturday. Bob Olson of McKinley Road, unable to start his car because of the California sunshine that soaked the motor and, particularly, the plugs, is frantically trying to dry things out so the jalopy will be back in use for that Saturday night date. include labor and the three mailings sent to Muir residents explaining the program and encouraging them to sign up for the permits.

The money is from the city's general fund, said Farms city clerk Shane Reeside.

Ferber also said that similar factors will be considered if residents from other streets would like similar permit parking consideration.

Ferber suggests the following procedure:

- Residents first meet with him to define restrictions.
- Residents circulate a petition in which the contents of the petition have been previously approved by the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council and city attorney.

• If 75 percent of the residents (both sides of the street and corner homes) indicate via signature from the head of the household support for the permit parking regulation, the petition will be forwarded to the city council for review.

• The city council may then direct the public safety department to study the request, and report back to the city council.

• The city council will then act upon the request as determined by the special needs of any given area as supported by relevant data.

Ferber told the council he recommended the Muir Road permit system continue, but not because anyone parking there had caused a public safety hazard.

"It's more of a quality of life issue rather than a public safety issue," he said.

Muir Road resident Barbara Finch told the council, "I am thrilled with the permit parking system. For the first time, we could get into our driveways."

However, at least one Muir Road resident disagrees with the permit system.

"If we bought a house near a commercial district, we should expect to see additional cars," said Mary Beth Lepczyk, who has lived on Muir for 10 years.

Lepczyk added, "If we all want the Hill shopping district to be successful, we cannot make it difficult for people to park and shop there."

In addition, she said she did not like the idea of having to notify the police not to ticket her friends whenever they visit.

Council delays church's plans to become handicap accessible

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

Zoning variances requested by St. James Lutheran Church — which are partly needed to make the church handicapped accessible — were tabled Monday night by the Farms City Council.

Grosse Pointe Farms mayor John Danaher and council members Peter Waldmeir, and Ron Kneiser primarily led the concerns of council.

They said that a future plan from the church must include the following:

- A detailed landscaping plan. The mayor asked the architect demonstrate, in future plans submitted to council, that St. James consulted the Grosse Pointe Farms Beautification Commission for landscaping suggestions.

The council applauded the fact that national businesses, not familiar with the area, such as Rite Aid and Belle Tire, who are currently making changes in their businesses, sought landscaping advice from the local beautification commission.

- A plan showing that downspouts will be disconnected from the sanitary sewer.

- Documentation regarding the environmental safety of an empty fuel tank that is located underground behind the church. Decades ago the tank held diesel fuel.

- Completion of additional surveys of the church grounds.

The church's architect, Stuart Pettitt of the Troy-based architectural firm Straub, Pettitt and Yaste stated, "It is my understanding that I was seeking set-back variances tonight, not site plan approval. Variance approval would allow me to go ahead with getting together a complete plan to your liking."

Nevertheless, after much discussion of the plans — which included one color drawing (shown here in the Grosse Pointe News in black and white), and two other boards displaying all elevations of the church, and the inside floor plan — the council asked Pettitt to either withdraw his request for the council to vote, or accept that the council was going to table the plan until its next meeting, which is May 19.

Pettitt indicated that he hopes that the church, delayed now by at least one month, will be able to complete their work before cold weather strikes again in late fall.

The church's plans include installing an elevator, converting an existing bathroom to one that is accessible by handicapped people, adding a new rear entrance, and adding landscaping among other things.

The elevator and bathroom would help the church meet accessibility requirements set by the federal government's Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

Many area churches, including Grosse Pointe Memorial and Christ Church Grosse Pointe, currently are in the process of making their churches barrier-free to handicapped people.

"Believe it or not, St. James has 12 different floor levels. We propose adding an elevator at the rear of the church to assist parishioners reach at least four levels, including the sanctuary, fellowship hall, Sunday school classrooms and the parking lot," Pettitt told council.

Currently, handicapped accessibility is a nightmare, requiring a wheelchair-confined person to be lifted to reach different levels of the church, he said.

Pettitt, who is a Grosse Pointe Park resident and St. James parishioner, told the council that for about 10 years church officials have contemplated where an elevator could best be added to the small church.

Last year, the church lost about 170 square feet of its property (a triangular wedge-shaped piece) to the City of Grosse Pointe Farms when city officials proceeded with various plans to add to its municipal parking lot and to close McMillan Road in the block where the church is located.

Council OKs Rite Aid changes; construction to begin next week

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

The inside-and-out overhaul of the Rite Aid store on the Hill received the unanimous blessing Monday night of the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council.

Store officials now have the go-ahead to begin construction next week. The store will remain open during construction.

Beginning construction immediately likely will help them meet the deadline of late August, which they promised to Hill merchants who are planning several events on the Hill the first week of September: Triple Play (plus one) that highlights the Hill, Village and Park shopping district plus an Art show at the War Memorial; as well as a special charity in-line skating event scheduled to take place on Kercheval between Fisher and Kerby. Present at the council meeting this week were various members of the Hill Association, who spoke in favor of Rite Aid's improvement plan.

In particular, the plans got high praise from Hill Merchants' Association president D.J. Kennedy.

As reported first by the Grosse Pointe News in its March 27 issue, the Hill Rite Aid is planning to redo all the elevations of its 10,000-square-foot building; reconfigure the inside, including offering services it currently does not; and completely redo the passageway next to the building that allows foot traffic from Kercheval to the municipal parking lot.

Specifically, Rite Aid plans:

- Adding a mini-food mart, here the pharmacy is currently located.

- Moving the pharmacy to the area currently occupied by the cashiers' counters.

- Adding a "business center," where keymaking, photocopying, faxing, shipping and packaging can be done for patrons.

- Adding a door to the store from Kercheval.

- Moving the current door about six to eight feet closer to the municipal lot.

- Adding a 4-foot-tall old-fashioned clock with a Roman numeral face. It will extend out above the door, and be visible from both Kercheval and from down the passageway.

- Adding two life-like metal and fiberglass statues that will "greet" pedestrians on Kercheval. One will be a man playing the saxophone, the other a boy on his skateboard.

- Adding a "trash room" internally at the rear of the store; municipal employees would have access for trash removal.

The national pharmacy chain sought the suggestions of Grosse Pointe Farms resident Frisky Hickey, head of the Farms Beautification Commission.

Hickey's committee suggested four trees and a short hedge along the building, rather than three trees and four individual potted flower areas.

Join this Woods woman in cleaning Lake St. Clair

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

Jill Wrubel is a go-getter. She succeeded last year in organizing the largest underwater and coastal clean-up of Lake St. Clair. Nearly 200 volunteers — 160 landlubbers and 40 certified scuba divers — cleaned 32 tons of trash from Lake St. Clair in 6 1/2 hours on May 19, 1996. And she did all the planning of the event in only a few weeks.

The "trash" pulled from the lake included seaweed, pipes, slabs of concrete, broken wooden pallets, bikes, plastic holders for six-packs of beer or pop, cigarette butts, liquor and pop bottles covered with zebra mussels, and a V-8 engine to name just a few.

And Wrubel, formerly a Harper Woods resident, now a Grosse Pointe Woods resident, plans to increase her efforts for this year's Nautical Coast Clean-up, which will be held Sunday, May 18, 1997 from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Coastal Clean-up's focus last year was the shoreline from 9 Mile to 13 1/2 Mile in St. Clair Shores.

This year it will also include cleaning up the waterfront area of the Grosse Pointe Woods municipal park. In fact, Woods Parks and Recreation Supervisor Bill Babcock, has agreed to direct volunteers assisting that day on the Wood's beach and lake access areas.

"My 1998 goal is to extend this clean-up project into Grosse Pointe Shores and Grosse Pointe Farms. Unless of course, they want to join us this year. That would be great too," she said.

This year's clean-up will have not only volunteers on land, under water, and on boats, but also on personal watercraft, also known as "jet skis." Also, several industrial businesses have volunteered to bring their front-end loaders to assist with heavy lifting of debris.

"If anyone is looking for a meaningful, organized, done-in-a-day volunteer activity, where they can meet new people, interact with people of all ages, have fun, and make a difference in this world, this is it," said Jill, who with her husband Mike Wrubel own Advanced Aquatics Diving Shop at 25020 Jefferson, at 10 Mile, in St. Clair Shores.

"You sign up, show up that morning, pick up trash, then go to the 'Trash Bash' party we are hosting afterward, enjoy food and drink, and dance to music," Jill said of the clean-up that will conclude with a party beginning at 3 p.m. at Jefferson Yacht Club, 24504 Jefferson, just south of 10 Mile, in St. Clair Shores. The yacht club is one of the primary sponsors of the event; another 30 more area businesses are donating such items as rakes and gloves to use during the clean-up, and food and beverages for the post clean-up party.

Even though Wrubel is a certified advance open water diver, she will be volunteering on land, driving around to the several locations, checking on the needs of various volunteer groups located in Grosse Pointe Woods park; and Blossom Heath Park. Memorial Park, City Marina and Park, Nautical Mile Marinas, Canals and Beaches, Boatown/Clinton River, and waterfront homeowners' associations, all located in St. Clair Shores.

She learned to dive a month before her June wedding to Mike Wrubel in 1984. The then-newlywed couple honeymooned in the Cayman Islands, scuba diving almost daily.

Mike, however, likely will be assisting from underwater for the 1997 coastal clean-up.

"He is the real diver in our family," Jill said.

In fact, Mike is a master scuba diver, who instructs and certifies more than 200 people each year who take courses through their shop. Advanced Aquatics Diving Shop also has nine other instructors in addition to Mike.

"We sell adventure here," Jill says proudly of the year-round local, nationwide, and international scuba diving outings offered through their full-service shop.

Adventure, in a way, is part of the reason Jill launched the clean-up.

She said she believes life is an adventure, and you got to take risks and try new things in which you see value and meaning.

In addition to the clean-up, Wrubel sees meaning in a number of other ventures she has tried, or wants to try. She admits she even keeps a "dream list" at home.

"If you don't keep a dream list, you'll rust out."

One such endeavor has been learning sign language. She has studied American Sign Language for about seven years, and wants to become a more active volunteer with hearing-impaired in the tri-county area.

Wrubel wants to become a motivational speaker, perhaps similar to Father Leo Booth, Alan Cohen, or Mike Wickett, some of the motivational speakers she lists among her favorites.

Wrubel said she wants to learn archery, and try skeet shooting.

She learned face painting, and delights children with her animated designs at area carnivals and special events, including some hosted at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Wrubel had been an active volunteer parent with her daughter's previous elementary school. She is a devoted Mom, and when she isn't referring to her children by their names of Courtney and Justin, she calls them "future leaders of the world." And she says it with a straight face.

Following the example of her energy, and can-do attitude, they likely will be leaders.

"My whole zest for life is achieved through optimism and enthusiasm. I believe on the 'wheel of life', you either get on for the ride, or you watch it go around. I told myself I could launch a clean-up of our area's precious resource and I did... true, with a lot of help. But each person has to believe they can make a difference. And we can all do it again this year."

It's a shoo-in for 2 school board seats

For the first time in years, there will be no formal school board contest at the annual meeting of the Grosse Pointe School District next June 9.

Filings for the two seats to be filled this year closed Monday with only two candidates in the field, Joan Dindoffer and Joseph Brennan.

They will succeed two retiring board members, Carl D. Anderson and Sears Taylor, with no contest assured unless write-in candidates appear.

Under a recently enacted law, however, write-in candidates must file a declaration of intent by 4 p.m. on the Friday preceding the election, which this spring would mean a deadline of 4 p.m. on Friday, June 6.

Opinion

Taylor did not issue any statement of explanation for his failure to run again and did not attend the school board meeting after the closing of the filing period earlier Monday afternoon.

Taylor had been the first of three board members elected since 1993 to take issue with the majority and, in effect, he later helped form a formidable three-member minority on many issues.

Anderson had announced earlier he would not seek another term, and, in fact, he is also retiring from his assistant principal's position at South Lake High School.

In effect, the board's present majority and its minority each lost a member with the retirement of Anderson and Taylor, but the majority picked up a potential replacement with the filing of Dindoffer.

Her campaign manager is Gloria Kinsler, former school board member who was a member of the majority when she served.

The Grosse Pointe News was unable to reach either Sears Taylor or Brennan by presstime Tuesday to get their views. Brennan, however, has been active in school affairs at Mason, Parcels and North High schools.

Whatever the views of the new candidates, it is disappointing that there will be no contest for the two open seats. Why? Because contests tend to emphasize the issues that the candidates believe are most important to the entire school district.

Without direct competition, Dindoffer and Brennan will face a difficult campaign responsibility. It is to inform voters of the major issue facing this district: the expected future shortage of state funds and what, if anything, can be done to meet it.

From all accounts, the district is likely to continue to face at least a decline in the purchasing power of state funds and perhaps even a cut in the actual funds distributed by the state.

That will occur because approval of Proposal A and passage of enabling legislation several years ago have given Lansing control over most of the district's funds. Those changes also made it almost impossible for the local district to increase its own fundraising capabilities.

Thus, the Grosse Pointe School System and its school board face an uncertain future that raises questions about maintaining the excellence of our schools regardless of what happens June 9.

Archer out of governor's race?

Whether Mayor Dennis Archer will seek the Democratic nomination for governor has become another political discussion point as the 1998 election approaches.

Three Democratic candidates for the governor's job last week told George Weeks, political columnist for The Detroit News, that the mayor had assured them that he would not seek the gubernatorial nomination.

But Weeks recalled that earlier Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara had said: "Whether Dennis wants to be or not, he's the strongest potential (Democratic) candidate for governor."

Archer also had emerged from a March poll by the Marketing Resource Group in Lansing as the strongest Democratic prospect for governor.

That strengthens McNamara's view that if Archer is re-elected mayor in November, "strong forces . . . will prevail on him to be a candidate" for governor in 1998.

Archer had strong backing in the suburbs, including the Grosse Pointes, in which he collected substantial contributions for his first election campaign, and could probably count on more of the same if he runs for re-election and for governor in 1998.

It is true, however, that Archer still has a full plate of problems in Detroit and, in fact, may have trouble even winning re-election if the opposition fields a strong candidate against him.

But none of the three Democrats currently talking about running for the Democratic nomination for governor does well against GOP Gov. John Engler in public opinion polls.

The Lansing polling group cited above, which conducted polls for the Inside Michigan Politics newsletter, found that Engler beats all three of the potential Democratic candidates.

The Democrats still need a candidate who can win support throughout the state, which none of the three who appear to be running have been able to do. Even Detroit's mayor would have trouble capturing out-state support.

So the field still looks open for a potential Democratic candidate for governor next year, especially if Mayor Archer decides not to run.

Chamber poll rates GOP high

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce rates two Michigan Republican congressmen 100 percent on their 1996 votes, although one of the two, Rep. Dick Chrysler, was defeated in November.

But why not make that fact a part of the report?

The chamber contends that its reports are "widely regarded as America's principal indicator of members of Congress' support for business issues." But the report is based only on 13 Senate votes and 16 House votes.

The chamber does not list all of its crucial issues but its report says they are "key votes" on issues such as "product liability reform, welfare reform, the fiscal year '97 budget resolution, the minimum wage increase, line-item veto and the Health Coverage and Portability and Accountability Act."

As part of the rating, the chamber gives its "Spirit of Enterprise" award to those lawmakers who vote 70 percent or better on Chamber issues. On that basis, all seven Michigan GOP congressmen and the lone GOP senator received the "Spirit of Enterprise" award.

The trouble is that readers will have to guess which side the chamber supported on all the issues mentioned. Even on the 13 Senate and 16 House votes, the report does not tell us whether the chamber had favored or had opposed the individual measures.

In checking with the U.S. Chamber in Washington, however, we learned that the chamber had in fact opposed the minimum wage proposed increase but had favored the other five items.

The Washington report also showed that the chamber had favored the proposed 12-year limit on congressional terms, as well as the proposed balanced budget amendment, both of which were rejected by the Senate.

Both Democratic members of Congress who represented the Grosse Pointes, Reps. John Conyers of the 14th District and Barbara-Rose Collins of the 15th District, had 13 percent approval ratings. Collins, however, was defeated in November, but replaced by another Democrat.

As the chamber says, its ratings probably do reflect business support, but the results show, especially with the defeat of Chrysler, that the voters are considering other ratings, too.

Cheers for our school volunteers

To the Editor:
The week of April 14-18 is National Volunteer Week. On behalf of the Grosse Pointe South High School administration, faculty, staff and students, I would like to take this opportunity to honor and recognize all the Grosse Pointe residents who volunteer at our school.

The Grosse Pointe South Mothers' Club provides volunteers for registration, class sponsors, homecoming activities, fundraisers (such as the Awesome Auction and the Spring Benefit), lunch time relief workers for secretaries and clerks, faculty events, Art Fest, the student directory, High Pointes (school newsletter), Parent/Principal Coffees, Safe Rides program, graduation and the all-night graduation party.

Other parents volunteer through the Booster Club, school senate, Project Exploration Teams (PET), Choir Boosters, Program Advisory Committees (PAC), Band Parents Club and the TV production program.

It is plainly evident that we at Grosse Pointe South High School could not deliver the high quality programs we have without the support of all these

A matter of influencing

To the Editor:
The more things change, the more they remain the same. After the great fire of 1805, that leveled Detroit, Augustus B. Woodward conceived of a plan to rebuild the city much on the plan of Washington, D.C.

A noble plan. "Every person above the age of 17 years who owned or inhabited a house in Detroit at the time of the fire, and who does not profess or owe allegiance to a foreign power" was to get a lot. Judge Woodward and then Governor William Hull went to Washington to sell the plan.

Silas Farmer describes their lobbying. "It would seem that even then, members of Congress were credited with being open to the influences of conviviality, for Judge Woodward is quoted as saying that he expended $300.00 in wine to treat the members of Congress with the purpose of influencing them to pass the bill."

Sounds familiar doesn't it, except now $300.00 might, if one were careful ordering, buy a dinner at Morton's Steak House.

Then Silas Farmer adds another note with a familiar ring. "All the old records show that there was gross mismanagement and vexatious delays in the distribution of the lots."

Oh hypocrisy, thy name is ever politician/bureaucrat.

Detroit council fails the DIA

Once again the Detroit City Council has failed to come to the support of one of the most endangered institutions in Detroit, the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The council rejected a new DIA management plan that would have allowed groups to bid on running the art museum more like a city subsidiary than a department.

Yet the council did not come up with any alternative that could help save the DIA.

The city itself has cut its funding to less than the charges it makes against the DIA for city services. The Legislature and the governor have made further cuts in state support for the DIA.

Under the Republicans in Washington and in Lansing, public support for such institutions has been sharply trimmed.

The proposed plan, which was negotiated originally by Mayor Dennis Archer and the DIA's Founders Society, would still have given the city ownership of all physical assets and the right to oversee the museum management.

The DIA often has been termed the "jewel in Detroit's crown" but it would be shameful if the current plans for Detroit's revival failed to include practical ways to support the DIA.

The death penalty

A great moral question faces America today, and that is whether the death penalty conforms to our moral standards and is appropriate in a civilized society.

Those who are decidedly against the death penalty say, in effect, that two wrongs don't make a right. The perpetrator may be a murderer, but that does not mean that "the people" should murder the convicted murderer. Besides, it has been shown that the death penalty is not a deterrent. Moreover, it costs more in legal fees to exhaust all the possibilities of appeal than it would to imprison the convict for life.

And sometimes, even after many years, it can be shown that some convicted of murder were innocent; sometimes the prosecution deliberately withheld evidence that would clear the accused.

Life imprisonment offers the possibility of redemption; death is final. It is argued that no other modern civilized nation supports the death penalty. In that respect, we are considered primitive and brutish. The Bible says, "thou shalt not kill," and that canon includes the state. It is said that even the perpetrator has loved ones, not only the victim's survivors should be considered. We should not be driven by feelings of revenge and retribution.

On the other hand, the Bible also says, "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," but others say if we go by that dictum, we shall all end up blind and toothless.

The movie "Dead Man Walking" was a trenchant discourse on the emotional and moral issues in the death penalty. We saw the relationship between a nun and a heinous murderer and, in the end, we had to feel some compassion for a fellow human being, however awful the crime. It is said that the final judge should be God, Himself, that we are not fit to decide who can live and who must die. Every human creature is a child of God, sacred, unique and precious.

I Say Dr. Victor Bloom

Now we are faced with the murder trial of Timothy McVeigh, who allegedly conspired to blow up the federal building in Oklahoma City two years ago. Hundreds were killed. Thousands grieved. The incident will be memorialized for a long time to come. The prosecutors are demanding the death penalty if he is convicted, and the jury is being selected on that basis. They are being asked if they can be fair about the death penalty, or do they have a fixed bias.

What if you were a prospective juror?

The other side of the argument is that the death penalty, despite lack of evidence, is a deterrent, and that murderers should not be allowed to get away with murder. It is argued that the survivors of the victim demand justice, rightly, and that justice demands execution by the state. Feelings of revenge and retribution are accepted as natural and, therefore, execution of the murderer provides a psychological release and enables a period of successful mourning.

Otherwise, here are angry feelings with no outlet and they are a source of ongoing emotional turmoil for the victim's loved ones.

Those against the death penalty recite the history of the practice, replete with beheadings, public hangings, boiling in oil, burned at the stake, being drawn and quartered. Human beings were being killed by those in power at the drop of a hat for having the wrong religion, race or opinion, or being considered a witch.

In the United States, the most common method of execution was hanging. Then there was the firing squad and the electric chair. These methods were considered inhumane, cruel and unusual. Now the most humane method seems to be lethal injection, but even that is called into question. And a recent mishap with the electric chair stimulated efforts to ban that form of execution.

It seems to me that the most compelling moral argument is that it is better to let 10 murderers escape execution than to have one innocent convict irrevocably executed.

I wonder where you stand on this issue.

Grosse Pointe, very South

Looking through the Gasparilla Island phone book, I began to suspect Doc and I may not have escaped all reminders of home on our Easter week vacation to Florida's Gulf coast.

There, among the V's, were listed the Farms' Steve and Leah Vartanian (she's the former Grosse Pointe News photographer). I tried calling, but later learned they had just left to return to the frozen north earlier that day.

Ken Eatherly

It's not a very big island — about seven miles long, less than half a mile wide in most places, sticking out into the Gulf of Mexico halfway between Sarasota and Fort Myers. When we planned the trip we figured we'd be anonymous.

The next day, Doc ran into friends Pat and Jesse Cardello, of the Shores, at Hudson's grocery store in the island's town of Boca Grande. We knew they had a place on the north end, but didn't realize they were down there then.

Curious, I checked at the two local weekly papers: Any other Pointers likely to show up thereabouts?

"We've got about 30 subscriptions in Grosse Pointe," said Boca Beacon office manager Judy Suresi.

Their smaller rival, the Gasparilla Gazette, had five more.

At the Gasparilla Inn, we noticed people wearing lots of pink and green, and Doc and I started feeling like we knew at least half of them.

"Don't you think Hudson's grocery has an amazing similarity to Farms Market?" asked Leah, when I spoke with her later.

Come to think of it, it does.

Signs of spring are on hold

Spring had sprung but the logs were still blazing brightly in Lucy's cozy free-standing fireplace, so FYI asked manager Kathy Bujak when the official flame-out date was at the popular bistro.

"We'll put the fire out on the first of May," she said, "and that's also when the tables and chairs will be out on the patio."

But uncertainty looms about another warm-weather standby, that great old-fashioned bicycle with the big basket that Lucy's uses for delivering kitchen orders around The Hill. Swearing FYI to secrecy, all Kathy could say was that it has disappeared under mysterious circumstances.

Thou shalt not drive long

"There's something new at the church since you came," I told interim rector Steve Jacobson as he was greeting people after the Easter Sunday service at Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

He laughed when I held up the bright yellow golf ball I had found on the church's spacious front lawn earlier that week.

"That's a range ball," said the avid golfer, who's visiting from the East for a six-month stay. "I would never use a range ball."

A touch of Europe

Even if you're only browsing at The Upper Crust on The Hill, owner Allison Boomer's able assistant, Janet Jackson, is likely to take you in tow and ply you with samples of the latest goodies.

A few weeks ago the food show was all about cheese, and it was international: little slivers of Spanish mahon, Keen's cheddar from the U.K., French Muenster d'Alsace and Fontina d'Aosta from Italy.

"The last one was molto bene," said FYI in his best Italian imitation.

Janet looked blank. "A Frenchman came in a while back," she said. "When he saw all our cheese he started talking French to me. I told him I didn't understand. He seemed surprised. He said, 'This place

... this cheese ... surely you must speak French!'"

Speaking of things French, the stars of Grosse Pointe's unique St. Paul Cemetery on Moross must be this aristocratic couple, whose inscriptions read:

Pierre Marie Albert Comte de Rostang, b. Paris, France Nov. 15 1892, d. Grosse Pointe, Michigan Dec. 25, 1950 (and) His beloved wife Jacqueline Ann Marie Comtesse de Rostang, b. Detroit, Michigan July 28, 1900, d. Grosse Pointe, Michigan Oct. 6, 1967.

There's got to be a heck of a romantic story there.

Squirt this in your ear

Emergency Grapefruit sounds like something you might use to put out a fire in your eye, but to University Liggett senior Eli Wulfmeier and four of his friends, it's a group ticket to musical fame.

The Farms' student plays lead guitar for the blues band with the juicy name, which now has its own grapefruit-yellow CD, titled "Soul Riding," out on the Polar Bear label.

FYI spun a copy and particularly liked "Hampton," (blues instrumental on track 3) and the vocal/instrumental, "Falling," found in the eighth section of this lyrical citrus.

If you have an FYI tip or have sunk a hole-in-one on the church lawn, call Ken Eatherly at (313) 822-4091.

What segregation did to the Detroit Tigers

By Burton Folsom

Fifty years ago this month, formerly all-white major league baseball finally began to integrate. In that fateful year, 1947, the famous black player Jackie Robinson endured racial insults and went on to win the Rookie-of-the-Year award as he led Brooklyn to the National League pennant. What is not so well remembered is the story of the Detroit Tigers during that controversial era.

While other major league teams were signing Satchel Paige, Willie Mays, Hank Aaron, and other black stars, the Detroit Tigers, under owner Walter Briggs, refused to hire any blacks.

Wendell Smith, a black athlete and sportswriter, called Briggs "very prejudiced. He's the major league combination of Simon Legree and Adolf Hitler." Smith was no doubt exaggerating. But the Tigers were indeed the next to last team in the major leagues to integrate (in 1958) — and only did so after Briggs had died.

Let's look at the results of Detroit's decision to avoid hiring blacks. Before baseball integrated, Detroit was one of the top teams in the major leagues. Led by ace pitcher Hal Newhouser and sluggers Hank Greenberg and Rudy York, the Tigers won the American League pennant in 1945. During each of the next two years, they finished in second place, clearly among the best teams in baseball.

The next year, 1948, the Cleveland Indians signed two outstanding black players: Larry Doby, a power-hitting outfielder, and Satchel Paige, possibly the greatest pitcher of his generation. The result was that Cleveland won the pennant by one game, and then, with seven key hits from Doby, they won the World Series.

What's more, Cleveland set a major league record for attendance — 2.7 million fans bought tickets to watch the integrated team play.

The examples of Brooklyn and Cleveland gave all other baseball teams something to ponder. They could continue to ignore black talent, but there would be a cost: fewer wins and fewer fans.

The Detroit Tigers learned this lesson the hard way. In 1948, the Tigers dropped from second to fifth place in the American League — and during the next 10 years they would finish among the top three teams only once. In 1952, they wound up in last place in the American League, winning only 50 games and losing 104. No batter on the team hit higher than .284.

From 1945 to 1952 the Tigers had plunged from world champions to cellar dwellers, yet Walter Briggs still refused to sign a black player or develop any blacks in Detroit's minor league system. The Tigers did bring up Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn, two excellent white players, who both won batting titles in the 1950s. But their talents were wasted without a quality supporting cast that included talented blacks.

In the 1960s, when Detroit finally changed its policy, the Tigers made a comeback. They signed Willie Horton, a power-hitting outfielder, and Earl Wilson, a veteran pitcher who won 22 games in his first season as a Tiger. In 1968, Wilson, along with Denny McLain, was a mainstay of the Tiger pitching staff. Horton hit 36 home runs and was fourth in the league in batting average. The Tigers, after a long drought, won the pennant that year and the World Series as well.

What lessons can we learn from Detroit's sad experience? First, as baseball expert Steve Sailer has noted, "Competitive markets make irrational bigotry expensive — not impossible, but costly." In the 1950s, Detroit could continue to field segregated teams, but only at a price. Joseph Bibb, a black sportswriter, said it well: "The white man wants money and color pays off."

Other lessons are important, too. The integration of baseball was a triumph of the free market. No government mandate forced Branch Rickey, the Dodgers' general manager, to sign Jackie Robinson. Self-interest was the key to integrating not just one team, but, within 12 years, all teams in the major leagues. Quotas and affirmative action were unnecessary and would have been counterproductive. When the baseball commissioner finally allowed open competition, some owners quickly wanted to hire black players — and soon after they did so, all teams followed suit.

One final point is that free markets in baseball provided black heroes to all Americans during the 1940s and 1950s. Whites all over Brooklyn cheered mightily for Jackie Robinson to clobber white pitchers, and for his black teammate, Don Newcombe, to strike out white hitters.

After winning the 1948 World Series, Cleveland teammates Larry Doby and Steve Gromek, one black and the other white, were photographed in a spontaneous embrace. Racial barriers receded and, as Steve Sailer reminds us, sports became the entering wedge that made the civil rights revolution possible.

St. John buys Detroit-Macomb Hospitals Corp.

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

Officials at St. John Health System (SJHS) and Detroit-Macomb Hospital Corporation (DMHC) recently have signed an affiliation agreement in which DMHC will become a wholly-owned subsidiary of St.

John Health System effective July 1, 1997.

Under direction of Grosse Pointe Shores resident Anthony Tersigni, president and CEO of SJHS, St. John has grown from two hospitals to nine hospitals in approximately three years — making it Michigan's fastest growing health system, said Zoila Brown, spokesperson for SJHS.

Tersigni points out SJHS is not the largest hospital system in Michigan, but it ranks third in operating revenue behind Henry Ford Health System ($1.5 billion), and the Detroit Medical Center ($1.2 billion). SJHS has an operating revenue of $840 million.

But what all these large hospital systems have in common is that they have grown, and thus likely have secured themselves a strong place in the ever-changing future of health care currently under some strain from dwindling revenues, an increase in managed health care, and expensive new technology.

Locally, both Cottage and Bon Secours hospitals are affiliated with Henry Ford.

St. John's Tersigni said, "We have been aggressively planning for our future survival by seeking community partners to collaborate on services to increase health care access while reducing duplication and costs."

"Both SJHS and DMHC have a long standing reputation in providing care for residents of Wayne, Macomb and southeastern Oakland Counties. With this new affiliation, SJHS will experience a growth rate of about 40 percent. We are excited to work together to enhance health care services for these communities," he said.

What does SJHS's most recent purchase mean to Grosse Pointers?

Well, for starters, area residents should not worry that St. John's main campus on Moross and Mack will decrease its specialized care by spreading it out through the new hospitals it has purchased. The other hospitals will remain as places in their community where people receive preventive and primary care. St. John's Moross campus will continue to be the place where people can come for preventive, primary and advanced specialized care.

"Health care is community based; people ought to be able to go to a hospital close to home for primary care," Tersigni said.

Parcells

some students to start and end their school day earlier. Participation in the zero hour program will be voluntary. Administrators are already preparing two schedules for next fall and will begin notifying parents of the possibility.

Martha Hutting, Parcells enrollment committee member, told the board on Monday, April 7, that when the committee first examined the matter last year they thought the issue was "cut and dried." But the more they looked at possible solutions, the more complicated the matter became.

The committee reported to the board in January that it had narrowed its original list of 21 options to five. At that time the committee was looking for further direction from the board regarding those options.

The board directed the administration to look at the viability of offering a specialty program or programs at Brownell as an enticement to transfer Parcells students.

The school district in late winter sent out 780 survey forms to parents in the north end of the district and received a 40 percent response. Of that number 21.8 percent, or 68 families, indicated they were interested in a specialty program. As a result, the Parcells enrollment committee decided this was not a significant enough response to warrant a specialty program.

On the other hand, since the committee last reported to the board, a number of parents have voluntarily offered to transfer their children (the number is somewhere around 30 students right now) from Parcells to Brownell.

"The transfer requests have taken a lot of the pressure off," said Parcells principal Glenn Croydon. "If that trend were to continue, it would probably relieve the pressure."

For the long-term, the committee suggested the board look at six options:

- Build an addition onto Parcells, which would provide multi-purpose space for use as a lunch room as well as classrooms.

- Consider the addition of more classroom space in the area currently occupied by the Woods Branch of the Grosse Pointe Public Library.

- If the space occupied by the library should become available, convert it into classrooms as well as school library space and convert the present Parcells library into regular classroom space. (Board members emphasized that they would not evict the public library as a tenant).

- Should Barnes be reopened as an elementary school in the near future, Barnes students should attend Parcells.

- In the enrollment process, strive to keep the enrollment balanced across the three middle schools.

- Keep the enrollment committee operational as an advisory group until short- and long-term solutions are implemented.

There's something for everyone during National Library Week

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Each year Grosse Pointe Public Library employees form a committee to plan for their annual observance of National Library Week, April 12-18.

They don't always know what the theme will be from one year to the next. But something interesting usually develops. And this year is no exception.

The centerpiece of this week's events is a Tuesday, April 15 lecture and book signing with author John Berendt.

His true-crime novel, "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil," is in its 136th week on the New York Times bestseller list and has been a much coveted book in Grosse Pointe and around the country.

Berendt writes a monthly column for Esquire magazine and has been the editor of New York magazine. A screen adaptation of the book is under way, with Clint Eastwood directing.

"It's one of those books that everyone is talking about," said youth services librarian Peggy Kitchel, organizer of this year's library week program. "We've had such an overwhelming response to the event. It was sold out immediately."

Audio-visual librarian Diana Howbert is credited with getting Berendt to the Pointes.

Berendt's book was expected to attract a cult following and surprised everyone, including the author, by landing on the New York Times bestseller's list, Howbert said. Not only are people reading the book, they're visiting Savannah, Georgia, where the book is set, and taking "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil" tours.

"The whole Savannah thing has become a cottage industry," Howbert said. "Berendt has taken the book and turned it into an evening at the cabaret and gone on tour. He reads from the book, a jazz trio and two singers perform Johnny Mercer music. Lady Chablis does her bit."

Last fall Howbert attended the Ann Arbor stopover of Berendt's tour. She was struck with the idea of asking him to visit Grosse Pointe during National Library Week under the auspices of the American Library Association's "Writer's Lives at the Library" program.

Madcap Puppets returns to Grosse Pointe this week for an April 14 performance of "Grandma's House" — their version of Little Red Riding Hood. Library week organizer Peggy Kitchel said the large-scale puppets are appealing to children and adults.

She penned a quick note to Berendt and handed it to a stage hand after the show.

He came out and spoke to her, saying he'd pass the request on to his agent.

scheduled.

"Much to our amazement and great excitement, he has agreed to come," Howbert said.

Berendt will not be bringing his cabaret show to Grosse Pointe but will read from his book and take questions from the audience.

Also scheduled is a visit by children's author and illustrator Frank Asch, who will entertain pre-schoolers and early readers at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 12, at Central Library. The creator of "Moonbear" will tell stories and draw pictures for his young audience.

Kitchel said Asch, a Vermont native, has been commissioned to create the artwork for the Michigan summer reading program posters and his books are always favorites among young readers.

Although Madcap Productions Puppet Theater shows are for children, the life-sized puppets are equally entertaining for the adults in the audience, Kitchel said.

The troupe will return to Grosse Pointe to perform at 7 p.m. in the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center, 20025 Mack Plaza (adjacent to the municipal complex on Mack).

The seventh annual Grosse Pointe Read Aloud is Wednesday, April 16, at all three branches. (See accompanying story for times, readers and places.)

Other events for the week include a 7 p.m. Wednesday, April 16, performance by harpist Lisa John, a resident of Grosse Pointe Woods and a senior at Grosse Pointe North High School.

On Thursday, April 17, master gardeners Mil Anthony and Sherrie Wereley present a program on gardening at 7:30 p.m. in the Park branch library.

"National Library Week is a chance to show the community what their library has to offer, to make people aware of what we do and to generate some new interests," Kitchel said. "We want to draw different segments of the population to the library."

The events are paid for in part through donations from the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library and from the library's program fund.

Here's the schedule:

The seventh annual Great Grosse Pointe Read Aloud is Wednesday, April 16.

Here's the schedule for Central Library:
10 a.m. Doug Evans, reporter for WDIV-TV and Grosse Pointe resident, will read "The Velveteen Rabbit" by Marjorie Bianco and "The Cow Buzzard," by Andrea Zimmerman and David Clemenshas.

10:30 a.m. Gerda Bielitz, retired head librarian and Helen Gregory, librarian, will perform with violin and narrate "The Story of Ferdinand" by Munro Leaf.

11 a.m. Stephen Brownell, library board treasurer, will read "A Giraffe and a Half" by Shel Silverstein.

1:30 p.m. Betty Scherer, a longtime resident and library volunteer, will tell her own stories.

2 p.m. Florence Miller, member of the Friends of the Library and retired English teacher, will read "Bread and Jam for Francis," by Russell Hoban.

At the Park branch:

10:30 a.m. Jane Krebs, current president of the Friends of the Library, will read "An Antelope Named Arthur," and "Ira Sleeps Over," by Bernard Waber.

11 a.m. John Prost, host of cable show "Pointers with Prost," will read Dr. Seuss' "The Cat in the Hat."

1:30 p.m. Joseph Cardosi, Grosse Pointe Woods public safety officer and DARE officer, will read "Winnie the Pooh," by A.A. Milne and "Caboose Who Got Loose," by Bill Peet.

2 p.m. Tom Rockwell, member of the Friends of the Library, will read "Mr. Popper's Penguins" by Richard and Florence Atwater.

Preparation is the essence of interesting travel photography

By Monte Nagler
Special Writer

Part of planning for an upcoming vacation should include preparation for your travel photography.

Before leaving, be sure to brush up on all your camera's controls and functions. Make certain you can change film in a moving bus or change lenses in a crowd. And, of course, be sure all batteries are fresh — you may have a hard time locating them someplace far from home.

Travel light if you can but don't leave a piece of equipment home that you might later wish you had brought. In addition to your basic camera and normal lens, a wide angle lens and a moderate telephoto lens will help you to get the shots you want.

Zoom lenses, naturally, can be invaluable on a trip. They will allow you to cut back on the equipment you need to pack while giving you many "lenses-in-one." A small flash unit and tripod (collapsible if more convenient) are very important to take along, too.

Take along plenty of film, deciding in advance if you prefer slides or prints. A medium speed film will enable you to cope with most picture situations, but be sure to take along some high speed film for any low light conditions.

Above all, if traveling by air, don't let your film pass through potentially harmful X-ray devices. Use special film shield bags or request a visual inspection of your film. If going abroad, register all your equipment with U.S. Customs to avoid any problem upon your return.

When you travel to an exotic or far-away place, read up on geography, people and customs. This way, you'll have some ideas beforehand of what you'll want to photograph. While you will certainly want to snap well-known attractions, always be on the lookout for the special or unique view.

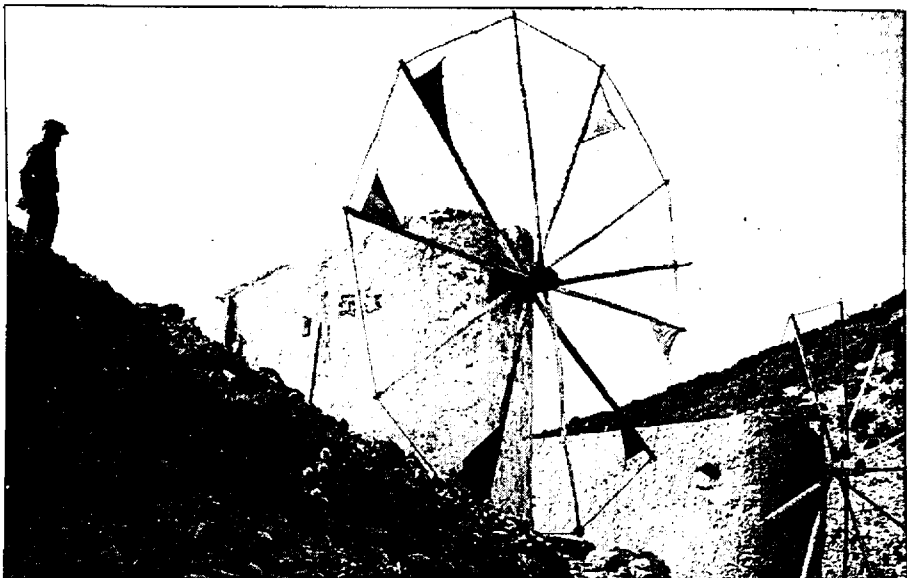

An obscure street scene or other out-of-the-way image should be part of the traveler's vision. Or an unusual camera angle or perspective can enhance a familiar subject and show it from a different point of view.

Real people and real places are better subjects than those who are staged for the tourists' benefit. People at work or play will tell a lot about where you've been, but always ask permission before photographing people. Usually there will be no objection.

Don't pass up pictures on the way to or from your trip's destination. Many photographic opportunities are missed by ignoring things en route that could make very exciting photographs. Taking photos along the way helps make your trip complete.

Most importantly, become involved in your travel photography. Try to capture on film the essence of the places you visit. Always be on the lookout for photographic opportunities by keeping your "traveler's vision" flying high.

Women in auto industry celebrate first year

Not too many years ago, when Lorraine Schultz attended an automotive business meeting, she was the only woman present.

In the 1990s the gender balance has changed to such a degree that Schultz and others felt it was time for a national organization for women in, or interested in, the auto industry.

A former director of the AutoLeather Guild and current consultant to the U.S. Automotive Leather Group, Schultz has played a major role in the founding and shaping of such a professional group.

The National Women's Automotive Association recently celebrated both its first anniversary in Detroit and the opening of five new chapters around the country.

"The timing was just right," Schultz said from her office in Troy. "If we had tried this earlier, it wouldn't have been very good."

Now there are plenty of women associated with the auto industry, says the executive director of the 500-plus member National Women's Automotive Association. They include women who sell cars, women who design them, women in manufacturing, financing, marketing. There are writers and women knowledgeable about automotive mechanical and body work.

Autos

By Jenny King

"One of the greatest benefits of an organization like this is that young women can network with older women," said Schultz, who serves as NWA executive director. "It helps people at both ends, and provides motivation and a support system."

Within the last several months, association chapters have sprouted in California, Chicago, New Hampshire, New York/New Jersey/Pennsylvania and in Ohio. The satellite groups will draw up their own by-laws, Schultz said.

The first of what the organization hopes will be an annual scholarship fundraiser is slated for June 10. Maureen Kempston Darks, president of General Motors of Canada, will be the speaker.

"The ultimate goal is fundraising for scholarships for women seeking to improve or launch careers in the auto business," Schultz said. The scholarships will be distributed through Northwood University and are for that university, which sponsors the National Women's Automotive Association.

"Until now I had never found a specialized group for women in the automotive industry," Schultz said. "This is a way for women to be recognized for their abilities. It offers them many opportunities for personal growth."

Men can become corporate partners, said Schultz, adding that sponsors for the young organization are always welcome.

Schultz' years of experience have taught her something about the importance of recognition and exposure. The NWA has had a presence at the major auto shows.

Members will be a part of a congress in June in New York City sponsored by Working Woman magazine. Close to a half-million invitations will be mailed to prospective attendees, she said. Automotive is one of the topics of discussion.

"The seeds we planted a year ago have blossomed into a very fruitful bouquet of professional women within the automotive industry." "By working together, our collective clout can improve the climate within the automotive industry for all women across the country," she said.

If you're in Novi, it must be spring

One of the sure signs of spring in the Detroit area is the Michigan International Spring Classic Car Auction, scheduled April 25-27 at the Novi Expo Center in Novi. (And since this is Michigan, the auction will be indoors, all 400 cars of it.)

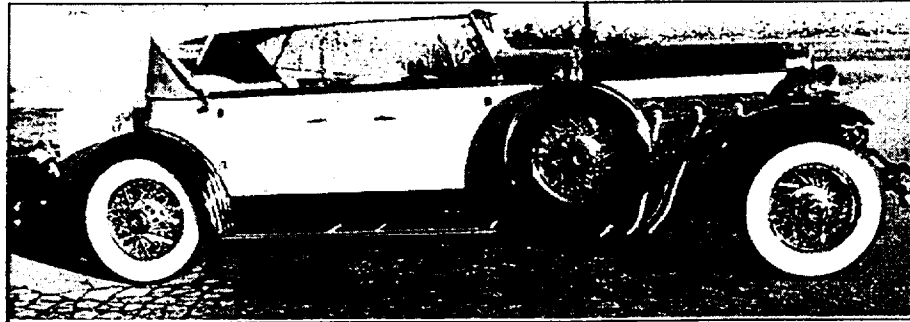

Produced by RM Classic Car Production of Canton, the sale will also include antique signs, motorcycles, gasoline pumps, jukeboxes and other nostalgic items.

Among the interesting vehicles slated to cross the auction block are two British MGs, a rare '47 TC roadster, and an even rarer '38 SA saloon, offered by Robert A. Lutz, vice chairman of Chrysler Corp.

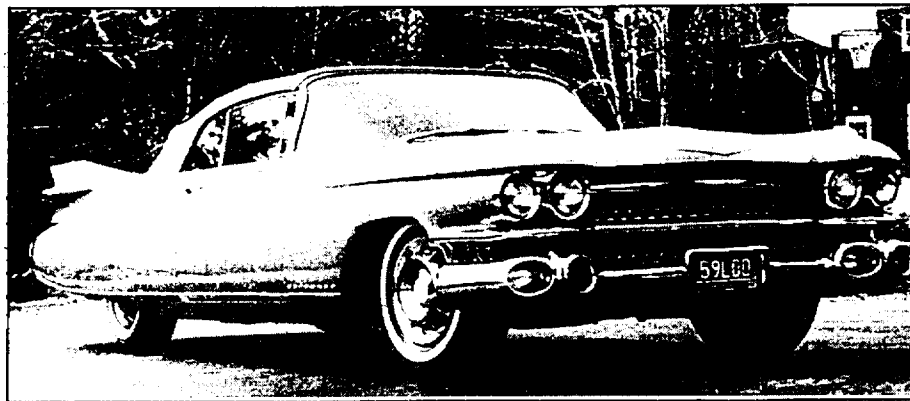

One of the older offerings will be a 1906 Maxwell, a nicely restored brassie roadster with mother-in-law seat.

The Maxwell was built by Jonathan Maxwell, who cut his teeth in the automotive industry as a protégé of Ransom E. Olds and colleague of Roy Chapin at the Olds plant near the Belle Isle Bridge, which in 1900 became the first auto factory to produce cars in Detroit.

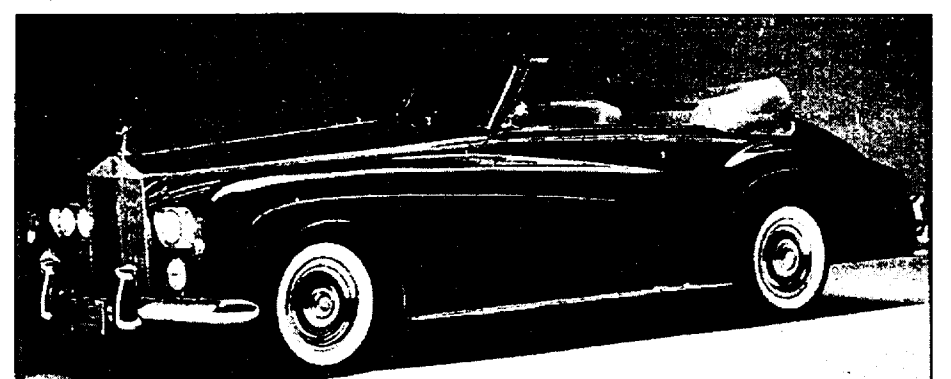

See AUTOS, page 13A

One of the stars of the Novi auction will be this '32 Duesenberg Derham Tourer four-door phaeton, formerly in Andy Granatelli's collection.

This 1959 Cadillac Eldorado Biarritz convertible with its soaring tailfins is an American icon.

This 1964 Rolls-Royce H.J. Mulliner Silver Cloud III drophead coupe was purchased new by Sammy Davis Jr.

Autos

The 1906 Maxwell is called a "brassie" because it has brass trim instead of the chrome-steel that later became into use for bright-metal trim. Brass was commonly used before World War I, up to about 1916.

A 1932 Duesenberg Derham Tourer, a black and yellow four-door phaeton with exhaust headers, sidemounts and rear trunk, all features of the classic era of the '30s, was formerly in Andy Granatelli's collection.

Among more modern rarities to go on sale is a "Persian sand" colored 1959 Cadillac Eldorado Biarritz convertible.

"Persian sand" is a kind of lavender shade and this low-mileage vehicle has a matching convertible top. With its soaring tailfins, the car is an American icon.

A very rare 1964 Rolls-Royce H.J. Mulliner Silver Cloud III drophead coupe will go on sale at the auction.

One of only 26 Silver Cloud III convertibles built with left-hand drive, the car was purchased once by Sammy Davis Jr.

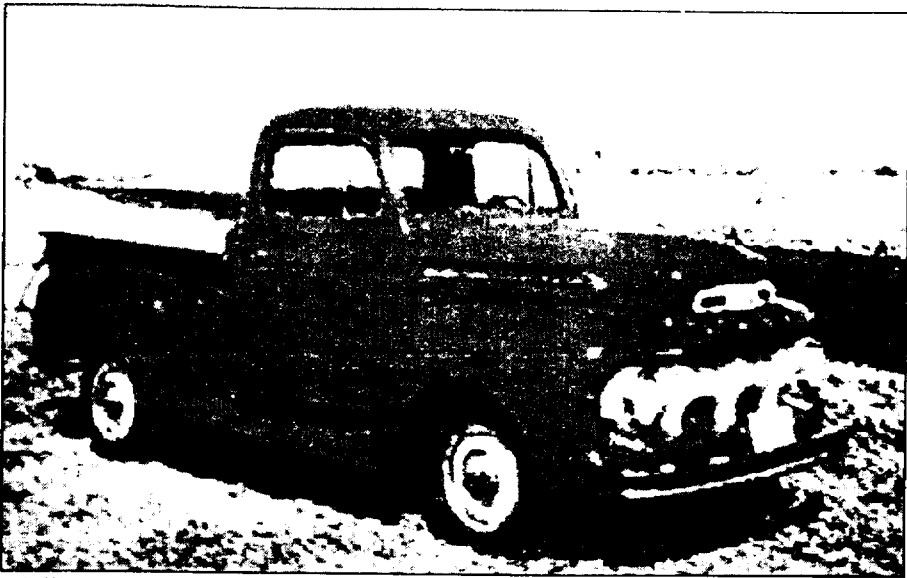

If you are carrying a somewhat lighter checkbook than these classics call for, there are still plenty of items to interest you.

Interesting cars which will go at lower bids include a '35 Studebaker President roadster, a '65 Plymouth Satellite convertible with 426 Max Wedge V-8, a '50 Studebaker Starlite coupe, a '54 Packard Patrician convertible, a '59 Packard sedan with supercharged 289 V-8, a '46 Chevrolet pickup street rod with Olds 403 V-8 engine, and a completely restored '74 Volkswagen Beetle.

These Michigan International auctions are fun because they mix the rare classics with a lot of affordable old cars likely to stir memories and which you can reasonably expect to drive home.

Still contemporary except that it stands so tall is this '52 Ford half-ton pickup.

Ground-up restoration makes this '54 Packard Patrician a real eyecatcher.

Another offering from Robert Lutz' collection is this 1947 MG TC roadster.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Grosse Pointe Woods police were called to a home in the 19900 block of West Clairview Court by a neighbor at 2:40 a.m. on Wednesday, April 2. The neighbor noticed the kitchen door of the house in question was open.

When police arrived on the scene, they searched the house and discovered that several pieces of home electronic equipment appeared to be missing. Police believe that the incident took place between late afternoon on Tuesday, April 1, and 2:30 a.m. while the house's owners were away. Police continue to investigate.

Windows on Mack smashed

Grosse Pointe Woods police investigated a couple of reports of storefront vandalism on Monday, April 7. According to police, rocks or chunks of concrete were thrown through the front windows of an insurance office in the 19500 block of Mack between Saturday evening and Monday morning and a restaurant in the 19300 block Mack between Sunday night and Monday morning.

Police are continuing to investigate.

No April Fool's

Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers investigated the attempted theft of one car and the successful theft of two automobiles on Tuesday, April 1

A 1988 Chrysler LeBaron was taken from a private lot in the rear of apartments located in the 15100 block of Vernor at about 2:20 a.m. April 1. The car was later found abandoned by state police on I-96 near Conner. Police also investigated the attempted theft of a 1991 Plymouth Acclaim parked in the 13000 block of Maryland between 9:15 p.m. Monday, March 31, and 6:15 a.m. Tuesday, April 1. The car's steering column was damaged in the attempted theft.

Later on April 1, a car parked in the 15200 block of Kercheval was stolen. The car, a 1985 Cutlass Cierra, was parked outside a retail store while its owner was making a purchase between 11:10 p.m. and 11:20 p.m. The keys were left in the vehicle.

Rocket fire

Grosse Pointe Park firefighters were called to the 1300 block of Maryland in response to a report of smoke coming from the gutters of a home at about 5:08 a.m. on Wednesday, April 3.

When firefighters arrived at the scene, they were met by the resident, who called. He informed officials that he had extinguished a small fire in the gutter on his rear porch. But firefighters saw some burning embers under the dormer near the gutter.

They removed the gutter and extinguished the burning boards underneath it. There was some damage to facing board, the edge of the roof rafters and there was also some charring to some shingles and siding near the origin point of the fire.

The same resident had called the public safety department earlier that evening complaining of smoke, but a search of the area was hampered by a nearby large fire in Detroit. Firefighters found rocket type fireworks in the house's driveway and in the resident's home. He denied using them.

Car phone stolen

Cell phone stolen
A Grosse Pointe Farms man reported to police that his cellular phone, valued at $400, was stolen from his 1995 Ford Explorer which was parked on Manor at Chalfonte, sometime between 6 p.m. on April 4 and 10:30 a.m. on April 5.

A leaf blower taken from truck

A man reported to City of Grosse Pointe police that a backpack-style leaf blower, valued at $550, was stolen from his work truck at 10:45 a.m. on April 2 when he stopped at a party store on Mack to purchase a soda pop.

Shoplifter takes coat in Village

A shoplifter stole a woman's coat, valued at $318, on April 2 from a store in the Village. The woman ran from the store after employees called out to her to return the merchandise, for which she didn't pay. The suspect got into an older model Ford Escort and fled east on Kercheval. Police have obtained a license plate number, and are continuing to investigate.

The Institute for Trauma and Loss in Children, a program of the Children's Home of Detroit, is hosting a conference by a nationally-known expert in treatment of anger in traumatized children.

Jerry Wilde, Ph.D., an educational psychologist, will lead the conference to be held on April 18, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Barrister House, 21801 Harper, in St. Clair Shores.

Wilde works within the school setting as well as private practice. He has authored numerous books including, "Anger Management in Schools — Alternative to Student Violence," "Treating Anger, Anxiety and Depression in Children and Adolescents: A Cognitive Perspective." His presentation deals with intervention focused specifically on trauma-induced anger.

In addition to publishing many articles, he has also developed several therapeutic board games for children.

Cost of the conference is $75. To register, call the Trauma and Loss in Children Institute at (313) 885-0390. The conference is also sponsored by Ameritech.

SCHOOL NEWS

The Grosse Pointe Public School System and St. James Lutheran Church — worked together to create a safe play area for children and families. The site around the school and the church was studied to find a more suitable use, with the focus on student safety.

The plan called for the city and the school district to trade land and rearrange boundaries.

The area is also used by St. James Church for weddings, funerals and service parking. The project has resulted in safer traffic flow around the school area. The project which was planned and completed in one year was funded primarily through private donations.

Several Grosse Pointe North and South high school students and a science teacher collected a variety of awards through the Tandy Technology Scholars program.

North science teacher Gordon Morlan received an honorable mention in the outstanding math/science/computer science teacher category.

In addition, North student Gavin Koo, along with Katy Gladysheva and Mark Russell Conrad, both South students, were recognized as outstanding math/science/computer science students.

Placing in the top 2 percent, were the following South students: Katherine N. Addison, Mark Conrad, Andrea Formolo, Katy Gladysheva, Kate Huettelman, Sarah A. Krueger, Emilia G. Kwiatkowski and Andrea Shatzel.

This is the eighth year that the Tandy Technology Scholars program has made awards to teachers and graduating seniors at American high schools. The academic two percent of graduating seniors are eligible to receive certificates recognizing their academic achievements. The Tandy Technology Scholars program this year honors 28,000 meritorious seniors around the country.

Tainted strawberries not a threat to Grosse Pointe school students

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

The threat of Grosse Pointe public school students contracting the hepatitis A virus from a batch of tainted strawberries delivered to some Michigan schools earlier this year appears to be nonexistent. The 13 lots of contaminated frozen strawberries were not shipped to any of the metro-Detroit area school districts and primarily went to outstate schools, said Keith Tait, director of the disease control division of the Wayne County Health Department.

In addition, it was not believed late last week that any students from the Grosse Pointe public schools participated in a Michigan Special Olympics event held in East Grand Rapids on March 22, where the tainted fruit also was served to students and teachers.

Tait and other Wayne County Health Department officials were scrambling late last week to get the word out on the threat of illness to those exposed to the berries. There is a two-week window of opportunity to inoculate against hepatitis A, he said, and that opportunity expired on Friday, April 4 (for those who may have been exposed on March 22).

Hepatitis A is a viral infection and the most common form of hepatitis, according to the National Organization for Rare Disorders. It is spread primarily through fecal-oral contact and improperly cooked contaminated shellfish, among other things. Water and food-borne epidemics are the most common sources.

Symptoms include nausea, vomiting, weakness and yellow skin discoloration.

"We are recommending that anyone who possibly has consumed the contaminated strawberries receive the immune globulin (inoculation) within two weeks of exposure," Tait said. "We are on a deadline of (one day at this point)."

The Grosse Pointe Public School System was not in session last week due to the spring vacation.

Superintendent Suzanne Klein said as of Friday the district had received about a half dozen phone calls on the matter.

Nevertheless, Klein, along with Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent for business, began making phone calls to their food supply distributors as soon as the story broke, so that they would be prepared to answer questions should parents call the school district.

Late last week the district learned that it was not one of the schools to receive any of the lots of tainted berries, Klein said. The district purchases food from two sources: a small percentage comes from government commodities to be used in government-reimbursed lunch programs. The remainder is supplied through a number of local vendors, said Ann Potteiger, food service coordinator for the Grosse Pointe schools.

News spread fast last week of outbreaks of illness linked to batches of frozen strawberries carrying the hepatitis A virus that were sent to 29 counties in Michigan for use in school lunch programs.

News reports indicated that more than 100 people contracted the virus after ingesting the fruit. The fruit was reportedly grown in Mexico, shipped to San Diego and then sent to a warehouse in Kalamazoo.

"None of the tri-county schools districts in southeastern Michigan other than the St. Clair area, received any of those shipments," Tait said.

Grosse Pointe Park celebrates Law Day on May 4

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Just because it's about the law doesn't mean that it has to be dry and dull.

At least that's the philosophy behind Grosse Pointe Park's sixth annual Law Day celebration, which will be held in the Tompkins Center in Windmill Pointe Park on Sunday, May 4, from 1-4 p.m.

Park municipal court clerk Penny Caretti is directing this year's celebration and she promises that it will be both informative and fun.

The U.S. Coast Guard will demonstrate a rescue mission on the lake and there will be police horses, police cars, fire engines, the Crime Stopper van, an antique police car and a chance for participants to escape from a simulated house fire, said Caretti.

Also at the Law Day celebration will be representatives from many organizations, including Services for Older Citizens, the Secretary of State's office, the League of Women Voters, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the John Paul Jones chapter of Children of the American Revolution.

Representatives from the Park beautification commission will also be on hand to talk about recycling, and some local attorneys have volunteered their time to answer basic legal questions. Visitors will also be able to register to vote and can learn how to get hospitals to divulge their own medical records, Caretti said. Local company Remaxx will also have a hot air balloon available for short rides.

Those interested in learning more about protecting their homes can visit the alarm and lock display, said Caretti. Activities for children, include a AAA of Michigan-sponsored map travel game with prizes.

McGruff the Crime Dog and Paws the Detroit Tiger mascot will also be on hand to entertain the children, said Caretti.

There will be balloons and hot dogs, popcorn, cotton candy and drinks free for everyone. The Grosse Pointe South High School Jazz Band will provide musical entertainment.

"Law Day was created in the 1950s by President Eisenhower as a way to celebrate the importance of the law in the United States," said Caretti.

"We at the Park have been holding special Law Day celebrations for the past few years because we believe what was true in the 1950s is just as true today."

Paws, the Detroit Tiger mascot, makes his plea for Law Day before Grosse Pointe Park municipal court judge Carl Jarboe. Paws will attend this year's Law Day celebration in Grosse Pointe Park on Sunday, May 4. The celebration is sponsored by the Park municipal court in honor of the holiday which was first declared by President Eisenhower in the 1950s.

Students enrolled in the program will be grouped according to the type and severity of the speech and language problems. The program includes two, one-hour group sessions or two one-half hour sessions a week.

Referrals must be submitted by a school, physician, hospital or clinical speech pathologist. An updated evaluation must be provided along with the registration form. For those children who have not been evaluated by a speech pathologist, a diagnostic session may be arranged at Bon Secours Hospital for an additional cost. Call (313) 343-1622 for more information.

Bad weather often accompanies Michigan's spring — be ready

Last year may well be remembered as one of the stormiest across Michigan. Tornadoes, severe thunderstorms and floods, pounded the state.

During 1996, 12 twisters were reported across the state, affecting 12 counties. Most notably, a strong tornado packing winds over 160 mph ripped through the community of Frankenmuth.

This caused over $5 million in damages and injury to one person. Severe thunderstorms were also common last year with damaging winds of up to 110 miles per hour with hail as large as tennis balls. Massive flooding and flash floods resulted in two deaths and damages in excess of $26.6 million.

The Michigan Committee for Severe Weather Awareness (MSWA) encourages residents to review tornado safety procedures, and to monitor rapidly changing weather conditions. To focus attention on flood safety planning, residents are also encouraged to familiarize themselves with flood safety procedures.

Tornado and thunderstorm season alert

Tornadoes generally develop from severe thunderstorms, and are most likely to occur when warm, humid air along the ground is forced up rapidly by cooler air and develops into a spinning funnel. According to the National Weather Service, these conditions are most likely to occur in the spring and summer months. Since the 1870s, tornadoes have killed 341 Michigan citizens.

Since tornadoes and severe thunderstorms develop and move rapidly, Michiganders should familiarize themselves with the various severe weather alerts.

A tornado watch or severe thunderstorm watch simply means "watch out," severe thunderstorms and tornadoes are possible. Residents should gather a first-aid kit, flashlight and portable radio. They should also monitor local television and radio stations and keep an eye to the sky.

A severe thunderstorm warning indicates that a severe thunderstorm has been indicated by Doppler Weather Radar or weather spotters. Severe thunderstorm winds can be as strong and damaging as a tornado.

When a severe thunderstorm warning is issued for your area, get indoors immediately and do not use the telephone or electrical appliances.

Keep away from windows. Do not take shelter in sheds or under isolated trees. If you are out boating or swimming, get to land and find shelter immediately.

A tornado warning means that a tornado has been spotted or is indicated on Doppler Radar. Go immediately to the basement or a small interior room on the lowest level. Keep away from chimneys and windows. Abandon mobile homes for a shelter.

At work or school, if a basement is not available, move to an interior hallway on the lowest floor possible. Avoid rooms with a large, free-span roof, like gymnasiums.

If caught in a car or in the open when a tornado threatens, seek shelter in a ditch, ravine or other place below ground level and stay as low as possible.

Property owners can also be prepared by ensuring that they have adequate coverage for their home and personal belongings under their homeowners insurance policies.

Tornadoes are considered "windstorms" and covered by virtually all homeowners policies, according to insurance industry representatives on the MSWA. However, certain limits and requirements may apply.

Preparing for spring tornado season

- Have emergency supplies on hand, including a battery-operated radio, flashlight and a supply of fresh batteries.

Know the location of designated shelter areas in public facilities, such as schools, shopping centers and other public buildings.

Make an inventory of household furnishings and other possessions. Supplement it with photographs of each room. Keep in a safe place.

Plan ahead. Be sure everyone in your household knows where to go and what to do in case of a tornado warning.

Make plans for those who may have trouble getting to shelter.

What to do when thunderstorms approach

- Move to a sturdy building or car. Do not take shelter in small sheds, under isolated trees, or in convertible cars. If no sturdy shelter is near, get inside a hard-top car and keep windows rolled up.

- If too far from shelter, find a low spot away from trees, fences and poles, but not in a place subject to flooding. If you are boating or swimming, get to land and shelter immediately.

- If you feel your skin tingle or hair stand on end, squat low to the ground on the balls of your feet. Place your hands on your knees with your head between them. Minimize contact with the ground.

- Telephone lines and metal pipes can conduct electricity. Unplug appliances not necessary for receiving weather information. Use telephones only in an emergency.

What to do when a tornado threatens

- Stay away from windows, doors and outside walls. Protect your head.

- In homes and small buildings, go to the basement or to an interior part on the lowest level. Get under something sturdy.

Seasonal flood threat is on the rise in Michigan

Unfortunately, Michigan did not escape the ravages of flooding last year.

According to MSWA, Michigan experienced 84 flood events during 1996, including one last June that resulted in $20 million of damages in the Thumb and Saginaw Valley areas.

At this time of year, the combination of rapidly melting snow and heavy spring rains can cause dramatic rises in streams and rivers, significantly increasing the threat of flooding.

As the warm season progresses, heavy thunderstorm rains become more dominant, posing the additional threat of flash flooding for urban areas and small streams. "Michigan can experience flooding any time of the year," George Hosek, a member of MSWA, says. "The most recent severe flood event occurred last June and it found many people unprepared to face the consequences."

Residents should be aware that regular homeowners insurance policies do not cover damages which result from flooding.

Coverage is available through a federal program. However, in Michigan only about 10 percent of structures subject to flooding are actually insured against the risk.

Currently, there are approximately 700 Michigan communities participating in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) and 22,000 policies in force.

To purchase flood insurance under the program, residents must live in one of those participating communities.

Coverage can be obtained through most licensed property/casualty insurance agents. To determine if flood insurance is available in a community, call NFIP at (800) 638-6620.

After a tornado

- Inspect your property, including motor vehicles, for damage. Check for electrical problems and gas leaks and report it to the utility company at once. If you have damage, contact your insurance agent.

- Watch out for fallen power lines. Stay out of damaged buildings until you are sure they are safe and will not collapse. Secure your property from further damage or theft.

- Use only approved or chlorinated supplies of drinking water. Check food supplies.

Hospice care provides people with a chance to meet their last friend

By Phyllis Fries
Special Writer

"Who is it?" came the brusque response from the other side of the door. Joe gave his full name and explained that he was with Hospice.

"I don't need you," the determined voice shot back. Joe, courageously stood his ground, patiently explaining that he had driven a long way.

"To make a call and get turned away is tough on an old salesman," he pleaded.

"Besides, I'd like to meet you." The voice on the other side softened sympathetically, then surrendered, "So, if it will make you happy, come in."

Under normal circumstances an encounter between Joe and Sam would have been unlikely.

"We both had prejudices," said Joe. "Sam, a Jew and me, a Christian. To say we really hit it off right away would be an exaggeration."

At the end of their first visit, Joe asked if he could come back and to his surprise, Sam agreed.

During the next three months their tolerance for each other gently gave way to respect, and then love, as they shared stories about their families and their lives.

They came to understand and appreciate each other's humor and enjoyed many laughs together.

Joe's one request of Sam was that he would teach him a few phrases in Hebrew.

With twinkling eyes, Sam's habitual response was always,

"So what does a guy like you need to know Hebrew for?" And Joe came to expect another familiar retort when he would ask Sam if he could give him a shave, cut his nails or trim his hair.

Sam's quick and consistent rebuttal was, "So, if it will make you happy."

"It did," Joe said, "And I think it made him happy too."

The bond between Sam and Joe strengthened and when Sam moved into a nursing home and grew weaker, Joe visited more often.

Soon Joe received a call that Sam was in his transition. Joe stood next to Sam who lay curled into the fetal position and appeared comatose.

Then slipping his hand into Sam's, he asked, "Sam, how do you say goodbye in Hebrew?" With no movement except for the flickering of an eye, Sam answered, "Aurevoir."

Joe smiled knowingly for one last time. Sam's daughter told Joe at the funeral, "You were my dad's last new friend."

Joe Juett is a hospice volunteer who recently became a speaker for Hospice Unique Group (HUGS).

In his talk, Joe tells this story to groups throughout the community in an effort to expand their knowledge and awareness about hospices.

Most volunteers, like Joe, got involved with a hospice because of the support and comfort they once found after calling on them.

Also common among the volunteers is this wish; or that they would have known about and called earlier for Hospice support.

People may resist calling hospices because in our society, "terminal," "dying" and "death" are topics that are still highly sensitive and uncomfortable to discuss.

But studies show that the fear of pain and suffering, or being abandoned or alone, may create the most dread and anxiety.

The message hospice want to send is that what they practice is a unique philosophy which focuses on the quality of life, not just for the patient, but for the entire family.

They encourage patients to live life fully and with dignity and offer a complete support network ranging from nurses and social workers, to bereavement services and home care volunteers, to help meet those goals.

Sam's and Joe's backgrounds may have been vastly different but their souls spoke the same language.

Those of us who are involved with, or have ever had the hospice experience already know what Joe's story so beautifully illustrates... that a hospice is about caring, comfort, compassion and love. Hospice is about living.

Things to ask when choosing a home care provider

Many Americans are realizing that their aging parents need additional assistance at home to restore or maintain a maximum level of comfort, function and health.

With more than 16,000 home care agencies nationwide, choosing a home care provider can be a challenging and stressful decision. Plus, the providers of home care can vary from corporations to small independent businesses to churches or synagogues.

"With the wide array of home care operators, it is important to learn what questions to ask when searching for good home care. Families must take an active role in questioning and studying the different home care choices," says Patricia A. Lynett, vice president and chief operating officer of Kelly Assisted Living Services, a home care provider for more than 20 years.

Lynett offers a list of questions families should ask of potential home care providers:

- What is the background of your company? Search out the history and ownership of the company. Find out who owns the company and weigh how that ownership affects the company's service and reliability. Is the agency backed by a nationally strong firm? Is it independent? Is it reputable and in good standing?

- How long has your company been in business? The number of years an agency has been in business is not always pertinent to the quality of care given, but it does reflect on the stability and success of the company.

- What qualifications, certification, experience and training do you require of your workers?

Find out if caregivers' credentials are investigated. Plus, determine whether caregivers undergo a thorough, professional testing and screening process.

- Are your employees insured and bonded? For your protection, ensure that all caregivers are insured and bonded by the home care agency.

- Do you supervise your workers to make sure the proper care is given? Some agencies make regularly scheduled quality assurance calls and visits. To further ensure quality care, see that all caregivers are regularly and closely supervised by a qualified company representative.

- Will the same employee continue with my case? It is difficult to receive good care if different people show up every week. A good home care provider will be concerned with continuity of care.

- Do you conduct a home visit before starting the home care service?

When choosing the home care services that are right for you, it is important that the patient and family members discuss the kind of care needed with a home care representative. This will help you determine whether the home care provider can meet your needs.

- Do you work with my doctor in developing a plan of care?

If you require care beyond that associated with activities of daily living, your doctor ought to be involved. Most agencies will work directly with your doctor in arranging and planning for your care.

- Can you give me some references from doctors, hospital personnel or social workers?

Ask for names of people, not just the name of a hospital or organization. One good question to ask these professionals or patients: "Would you use this company again for yourself or your loved ones?"

- Do you guarantee customer satisfaction? Find out if there is a length of time you will be committed to the home care provider even if you are unhappy with the care they are providing.

The home care provider should guarantee care and cancel charges for unsatisfactory services.

The following community resources may be helpful in obtaining information on the home care services available in your area: Area Agency on Aging, Department of Aging, physicians, adult day care centers, senior centers, churches/synagogues, nursing facilities, hospitals and local or county public health and welfare departments.

Is it a correction or a bear market?

By Joseph Mengden

In early to mid-March, the stock market acted like a teeter-totter, up one day, down the next. The week-to-week pattern was definitely downward, from the DJI peak of 7,085.16 on March 11.

Last week was brutal, with the DJI diving 214.52 points, or 3.2 percent, to close at 6,526.07 last Friday. The market was down three days and rallied twice. Analysts have long ago defined a market "correction" as one pulling back at least 10 percent, which would be about 6,376, or lower, on the DJI.

The last "mini-correction" was early in 1994, after the DJI closed at a new high of 4,002.84 on Jan. 28. The market drifted lower in the early spring, bottoming near 3,618 the end of March, off about 9.6 percent.

Today we would say: "In two months, the market was off only 384 points," but back then it seemed like an awful lot. Perspective is a lot about whether you're looking up or looking down.

The 1994 "mini-correction" ended quickly as astute investors went bargain-hunting. The DJI spent that summer and fall bouncing up and down in a 3,700-3,900 rut, finishing the year at 3,834.

It didn't get back to the 4,000 level until the end of February 1995 — then, off to the races! The 5,000 mark was broken on Nov. 21, 1995, 6,000 on Oct. 14, 1996, and 7,000 on Feb. 13, 1997, about two months ago.

The difference between a "correction" and a "bear market" is that in a "correction," investors, both individuals and money managers, come back in as buyers, looking for bargains. Since there no longer are more sellers than buyers, the market stops going down, stabilizes, then starts recovering.

In the "Great Bear Market of 1929-33," the selling lasted almost two years. In January 1972, the DJI broke 1,000 on the upside for the umpteenth time, with no follow through.

Then it retreated, month-after-month. There was no climatic sell-off, just a conspicuous absence of buyers. By December 1973, the DJI was down 45 percent. Everyone's portfolio was cut in half, with many even worse.

Last week LTS tracked a hypothetical model portfolio created five years ago with $500,000. We assumed it had been invested:

- 1) $50,000 in cash equivalents, as an emergency reserve;
- 2) $150,000 in Michigan municipal bonds, maturing in 10 to 15 years (five years ago), earning 6 percent in triple tax-exempt interest income; and
- 3) $300,000 in high-grade, high-growth "big-cap" stocks, which should do better than the DJI in price growth and dividend increases. (For comparative purposes, we'll assume our equities replicate the DJI.)

Now five years later, we find that the equities have grown in market value to $625,800 (more than double their original cost), and their yield has declined from 2.80 percent to 1.91 percent.

Thus the equities portion of our asset allocation has grown from 60 percent of total assets to 75.8 percent, which is a bit on the high side for some investors.

Many feel more comfortable (and sleep better) with equities back at 60 percent (about $500,000 of present assets), or maybe 66.7 percent (about $550,000).

Now comes the hardest part. Which stocks should one sell to raise $75,000 to $125,000?

Why not look at the portfolio from the other side?

Determine which stocks you definitely would not consider selling, then look at the remainder as sell candidates. Maybe one or two stocks have exploded marketwise, so that the size of the present holding is probably imprudent. Sell off some of these shares and keep the rest.

Since the DJI is up 108.6 percent in the five-year period, we can assume that our stocks, on average, have doubled.

Thus if we sell off $125,000 stocks, we can assume a long-term capital gain of $62,500, which will be taxed 28 percent, or $17,500, at the federal level and 4.2 percent, or $2,625, at the Michigan state level.

After setting aside $20,125 for taxes, we have $104,875 available for purchase of $105,000 per value Michigan municipal bonds maturing in 10 to 15 years, yielding 5-1/4 to 5-1/2 percent triple tax exempt.

When the bonds have been purchased and taxes paid, our model portfolio will have $805,000 in assets, an increase of 61 percent in five years, and will be earning $26,443 income ($14,643 is triple tax-exempt), up 35 percent in five years.

Are you all taxed out?

Next Tuesday, April 15, is income tax day again.

Aren't you proud that you are helping to support the federal and State of Michigan bureaucracy?

They say that individual income taxes are the largest single revenue source for Uncle Sam.

Have you seen the new 1996 E-Z Tax Return that has been floating about?

It's part of the "paperwork simplification" campaign promoted by the administration.

With only one page, it's really simple to prepare.

The chart below is the one that LTS saw last week (ha-ha).

Joseph Mengden is a City of Grosse Pointe resident, and a former Chairman of the Board of First of Michigan.

Area restaurants participate in tastefest to benefit food shelters

Michigan's top chefs and restaurateurs will join together on Thursday, April 17, 1997 for the fight against hunger at the tenth annual national (and eighth annual Michigan) Share Our Strength (SOS) Taste of the Nation event presented by American Express and Calphalon.

This fundraiser is part of the largest nationwide benefit for hunger relief and prevention.

American Express and Calphalon's national corporate sponsorship, combined with contributions from local corporate sponsors and the restaurant community, ensure that 100 percent of all ticket proceeds go directly to groups fighting hunger.

"Between 20 and 30 million Americans go hungry each month. Taste of the Nation unites chefs, restaurateurs, corporate partners and other concerned individuals in an effort to help solve the problem in Michigan, and communities across the country," said chef Jimmy Schmidt, who with his wife Darlene, are chairpersons of the event.

The event is scheduled to take place at 5:30 p.m. for those who purchase either the Executive Chef ticket (at $125 each) or a corporate table for ten at $2,000. Both tickets include a pre-glow reception, premier wine tasting and reserved seating for a spectacular dinner in The Rattlesnake Club at the Stroh River Place Atrium in Detroit.

The second tier of the event will begin at 7 p.m. for those who wish to purchase the Sous Chef ticket. These tickets are priced at $50 each, and include a "Walk Around" food and wine tasting and dinner buffet. An exciting silent auction, entertainment and a complimentary cookbook with recipes that include tips from the participating chefs will be available.

The annual fundraiser was established in 1986 by Share Our Strength (SOS), one of the nation's leading anti-hunger organizations. Each year, more than 65,000 guests attend food and wine tastings, sit-down dinners and brunches held in more than 100 cities across the United States and Canada.

Since 1988, Taste of the Nation events have raised more than $18 million. SOS distributes these funds to more than 400 groups working to fight and prevent hunger in the U.S., Canada, and developing countries.

Since its founding in 1984, SOS has distributed more than $26 million in grants to over 800 anti-hunger organizations in the United States, Canada and developing countries.

Seventy percent of ticket sales benefit Gleaners Community Food Bank, Forgotten Harvest and the Detroit Entrepreneurship Institute, Inc. Ten percent goes to Food Gatherers and Hunger Action Coalition, and twenty percent goes to international organizations.

Tickets are available by calling Gleaners Community Food Bank at (313) 923-7855.

Participating restaurants include two Grosse Pointe area establishments, including Chianti Villa Lago on Kercheval on the Hill, and Tom's Oyster Bar/Steamers on Mack in Grosse Pointe Park.

Some other participating restaurants are: 2 Unique Caterers, Bloomfield Hills; America's Pizza Cafe, the Fox Office Centre in Detroit; Beverly Hills Grill, Beverly Hills; Capital Grill, Troy; and Chianti Villa Italia, Southfield.

Tips to avoid contamination of food and illness it causes

Every year more than 30 million Americans contract preventable food-borne illnesses like food poisoning. Most of the illnesses are due to bacterial contamination and most all cases can be linked to improper food handling — which means they could have been avoided.

Wayne County's environmental health division inspects restaurants around the county to ensure the public's safety. "Each year our inspectors thoroughly evaluate dozens of restaurants and food service establishments," said Edward

H. McNamara, Wayne County executive. "It's a big job and our inspectors have a tremendous responsibility."

To avoid food poisoning (which is similar to having the flu, with symptoms of headache, diarrhea, vomiting, stomach cramps and fever) follow these guidelines:

- Prepare food on a clean surface, using bleach to sanitize food prep areas. Wash hands before handling food.
- Thaw frozen foods in the refrigerator or under cold running water. Never thaw food at room temperature. • Don't let leftovers sit for an extended period of time. Refrigerate immediately at a temperature of 40 degrees.

- Keep meat and chicken cold and cook until meat is no longer red.
- Don't use the same utensils on raw and cooked food.
- Don't cut raw meat and chop raw vegetables with the same knife.
- Do not marinate meats at room temperature.
- Don't use the same plate at the barbecue for raw meat and grilled meat.

Currently under renovation, Gilda's Club will be located at 3517 Rochester in Royal Oak. At present, Gilda's Club operates from temporary offices in Farmington Hills. To RSVP, call Gilda's Club office at (810) 851-6557.

Joint participation:

"Keep the Joint Jumpin'," the first annual benefit to aid in the research of juvenile rheumatoid arthritis (JRA) will be held Sunday, April 20, from 5 to 9 p.m. Tickets are $75 each and will include an evening of dinner and comedy at The Second City comedy club in Detroit. Proceeds will help fund JRA research through the Rheumatology Research Endowment Fund at Children's Hospital of Michigan.

More than 285,000 American children are afflicted with this painful childhood rheumatic disease. Unlike common "growing pains," the symptoms of JRA can be as disabling as adult arthritis, including joint pain, joint swelling, joint stiffness and fatigue. JRA can also lead to glaucoma, cataracts, inflammation of the heart and enlarged liver, spleen and lymph nodes. In addition to the chronic pain and other physical symptoms, children with JRA also face emotional and social challenges that can affect the entire family.

Through research, funded by the generous contributions of supporters, scientists are now beginning to understand the biology and genetic structure of the disease.

"All of us at Children's Hospital of Michigan are excited and grateful for the commitment and support anticipated by 'Keep the Joint Jumpin'," said Joseph Impellizzeri, annual giving officer with Children's Hospital.

For ticket and general information, call (313) 331-6923.

It's a classic: Northwood University, along with General Motors and the Chevrolet Motor Division, will host its inaugural International Scholarship Showcase — a dinner auction titled "The Gatsby" — on Thursday, May 1, at 6:30 p.m. at the Ritz Carlton in Dearborn.

In addition to platforming the career curriculum and free enterprise approach offered by the university, the evening will raise scholarship funds for future Northwood students. Among the items to be auctioned:

- A new Chevrolet First Edition C5 Corvette donated by Chevrolet Motor Division;
- Seinfeld Package — an opportunity for a walk-on part on the Seinfeld show, hotel and air travel included.

Northwood University president and CEO David E. Fry will join the event's honorary chair, John G. Middlebrook, vice president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Division of General Motors, to host the event. The theme is derived from the pages of the classic novel, "The Great Gatsby," written by F. Scott Fitzgerald.

The new Corvette will take center stage in the ballroom. The event will also feature vintage cars, as well as the dress worn by Mia Farrow — the actress who played the Gatsby character, Daisy Buchanan. Northwood's own International Costume Collection, "Razzle Dazzle," will also be on display.

Book 'em: Hundreds of unsuspecting folks got a little surprise on March 11-14. Uniformed officers showed up to cart them away to be locked up for the American Cancer Society's Great American Lock Up.

Once the initial shock wore off, the prisoners settled down into the fun of raising bail to support the American Cancer Society.

And the result? In four days, the generous folks of southeastern Michigan raised three quarters of a million dollars to support local cancer patients and their families, as well as to assist in nationwide research to find a cure.

The 12th annual Great American Lock Up was chaired for the seventh straight year by Detroit Pistons president Tom Wilson, whose efforts raised kudos from American Cancer Society Regional vice president Cal Morgan.

"Tom Wilson has demonstrated a true commitment to helping this fight against cancer by bringing people together to work on this important event," Morgan said.

The Pistons' marketing and publicity efforts resulted in great success for the American Cancer Society. One of several highlights was a "live" on-air arrest of Pistons color commentator Kelly Tripuka during a televised home game.

The efforts of the Pistons, as well as the work of tireless volunteers and other sponsors, helped to bring this huge event to fruition — notably, the three county chairs: Oakland County executive L. Brooks Patterson, Detroit police chief Isaiah McKinnon and Macomb County prosecutor Carl Marlinga.

Said Morgan, "This event brings out people from every part of our community who want to have a part in doing something positive in the fight against cancer. We are always amazed at the level of interest on the part of so many people in metro Detroit who give their time and resources to make this event a success! We truly are blessed to have so many volunteers in our community who give of their time."

Funds totaling $500,000 were raised from people being arrested at 11 area locations during the week along with approximately $250,000 that was part of the "Most Wanted" campaign. Most Wanted prisoners agree, in advance, to raise at least $2,500 and are recognized in the community by being part of the Most Wanted posters that are distributed throughout the metro area. More than 100 individuals participated as Most Wanted prisoners this year.

The Great American Lock Up raises funds to provide programs and services to local cancer patients and their families, as well as nationwide research to find a cure. In 1996, the ACS spent nearly $95 million on research, and has funded 28 Nobel Prize winners to date.

Additional information on preventive education, treatment information, and other resources is available by calling the American Cancer Society at (800) 925-2271.

Seeing Red: The

"Rhapsody in Red IV" gala will be held on Saturday, April 19.

The proceeds of the spring gala fundraiser will support American Red Cross emergency services for residents of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. The American Red Cross helps people who must cope with the losses and shock of disaster and begin their lives anew.

This year, in southeastern Michigan, the Red Cross will provide assistance to more families than ever before. Up from 1,500 families a year ago, families are affected by disasters each day of the year, mostly by residential fires.

Locally, the Red Cross is also prepared to respond to disasters such as floods, hazardous material incidents, tornadoes and severe winter storms. The chapter estimates that 2,000 families a year need some kind of assistance following a disaster in southeastern Michigan.

The chapter is increasing its resources to meet that need with a majority of its emergency services funding provided by the proceeds of the Rhapsody in Red gala. The challenge for the all-volunteer planning committee grows annually, because services to people in need — and the cost of providing them — have more than tripled since 1990.

The Red Cross continues to work with victims to rebuild their lives after meeting their fundamental needs. Red Cross caseworkers meet with victims one-on-one to help determine long-term needs resulting from their disaster experience.

All Red Cross disaster assistance is provided free of charge. Providing this kind of service 24 hours a day requires the generosity and support of people such as those who produce, sponsor and support the Rhapsody in Red gala. With their help, the Southeastern Michigan Chapter American Red Cross hopes to net $200,000 for disaster relief efforts throughout the tri-county area.

For tickets and information, call Lara Conway at (313) 833-2652, Betty Bright at (810) 851-3044 or John Schultz at (313) 833-2695.

Strike hunger:

Michigan's top chefs and restaurateurs will get together on Thursday, April 17, for the fight against hunger at the 10th annual national and eighth annual Michigan SOS (Share Our Strength) Taste of the Nation event presented by American Express and Calphalon.

The fundraiser is part of the largest nationwide benefit for hunger relief and prevention. American Express and Calphalon's national corporate sponsorship, combined with contributions from local corporate sponsors and the restaurant community, ensure that 100 percent of all ticket proceeds go directly to groups that are fighting hunger.

Detroit's dinner, chaired by Grosse Pointers Jimmy and Darlene Schmidt, will be held at The Stroh River Place

Marian Hiltch, left, receives a certificate of appreciation from American Red Cross Friends director Patricia Young, center, and Rhapsody in Red Gala coordinator Jeanne Whittaker-Hines. Hiltch hosted a luncheon in the Fox Theatre Atrium for volunteers who raise funds for Southeastern Michigan Chapter American Red Cross Emergency Services programs. Nearly 100 members of the newly formed support group took a rare opportunity to see an exhibition of the Royal Worcester royal porcelain collection and the interior restoration of Detroit's landmark entertainment complex.

Marian Hiltch is a resident of Bloomfield Hills, Patricia Young is a resident of Grosse Pointe Shores and Jeanne Whittaker-Hines lives in Grosse Pointe.

Atriums in Detroit. Honorary co-chairpersons are Gov. and Mrs. John Engler, Mayor Dennis W. Archer and Trudy Duncombe Archer.

Local sponsors include Ford Motor Co., Crossreach Ministries, Evian Natural Spring Water, Cadillac Coffee and Northwest Airlines, with additional corporate support by the Detroit Newspaper Agency, Stroh Brewery Co., Merchant of Vino and The Rattlesnake Club.

"Between 20 million and 30 million Americans go hungry each month. Taste of the Nation unites chefs, restaurateurs, corporate partners and other concerned individuals in an effort to help solve the problem in Michigan and communities across the country," said chef Jimmy Schmidt. "By taking the lead and working with Share Our Strength, American Express and Calphalon have demonstrated their serious commitment to helping end hunger. Everyone wins because it's not only good business, it's good citizenship."

The annual fundraiser was established in 1988 by Share Our Strength (SOS). Each year, more than 65,000 guests attend food and wine tastings, sit-down dinners and brunches held in over 100 cities across the United States and Canada. Since 1988, Taste of the Nation events have raised more than $18 million. SOS distributes these funds to over 400 groups working to fight and prevent hunger in the United States, Canada and developing countries.

The event is scheduled to take place at 5:30 p.m. for those who purchase either the Executive Chef ticket (at $125 each) or a corporate table for 10 at $2,000. Both tickets include a preglow reception, premier wine tasting and reserved seating for a spectacular dinner in The Rattlesnake Club.

The second tier of the event will begin at 7 p.m. for those who wish to purchase the sous chef ticket. These tickets are priced at $50 each and include a "Walk Around" food and wine tasting and dinner buffet. A silent auction, entertainment and a complimentary cookbook with recipes including tips from the participating chefs will be available.

"Partnerships, like the ones we have on the national level and locally, are crucial links to helping end hunger," says Bill Shore, founder and executive director of Share Our Strength. "Thanks to the generosity of Michigan's residents, the area's finest restaurants, and our corporate sponsors, SOS can provide critical financial support to local and international hunger relief organizations."

Seventy percent of ticket sales benefit Gleaners Community Food Bank, Forgotten Harvest and the Detroit Entrepreneurship Institute Inc. Ten percent goes to Food Gatherers and Hunger Action Coalition, and 20 percent goes to international organizations.

Tickets are available by calling Gleaners Community Food Bank at (313) 923-7855.

The Pastor's Corner

There is a difference

By the Rev. David H. Wick
Grosse Pointe Baptist Church

The Heaven's Gate cult members who were hoping to hitch a ride on a space ship trailing the Hale-Bopp comet sincerely believed in what they were doing, and were so committed to their belief they gave up their lives. This latest cult-related tragedy illustrates that faithful, committed people can be terribly wrong. What differentiates a cult from the life of genuine faith and commitment to which Jesus calls us?

Cults demand a high degree of conformity and uniformity from their members. Jesus calls us to realize our uniqueness. In 1 Corinthians chapters 12 and 14, for example, the special contributions made by each member of the body of Christ are celebrated.

Cults require separation. Heaven's Gate cult members severed contact with their families. Cults find some way to isolate their members, either physically, or through strange habits of dress and discipline. Jesus prayed to His Father for His followers, not to be taken out of the world, but to be sent into the world. Jesus said we are salt and light, separated from the sinfulness of the world, but immersed in it as a preserving and enlightening element. If a separation from the world or from family occurs to the follower of Jesus, as it sometimes does, it comes as a result of the world's rejection of Jesus, and not the other way around.

Cults demand high commitment. Heaven's Gate cult members evidently turned over all their assets to the cult. They submitted their wills to the cult leadership to such an extent that they were willing to lay down their lives, if that's what was required. Always in such an arrangement, there is an implied quid pro quo; high commitment yields high rewards, either now or later on, on the space ship.

Jesus also demands high commitment: "Take up your cross, and follow Me." But what a difference! The emphasis is not on what we can do for Him, with rewards earned as a result, but on what He does for us, "exceedingly abundantly more than all we can ask or conceive." What He does for us is grace, undeserved favor. The commitment of Jesus' followers comes in response to His commitment to them: "We love Him because he first loved us."

Cults claim to have a corner on the truth. This appeals to our desire for knowledge, to be on the inside. Jesus also claimed to have a corner on the truth: in fact, He claimed to BE the truth. The difference between Jesus and the cults is in the results. Cultic truth produces bondage to a legalistic system and leads to death. The truth that is in Jesus sets us free, challenges us to grow, and leads to eternal life.

Cults are essentially religions of the mind and the flesh; religion as conceived and conducted by human will and reason, beset with psychological deception and emotional manipulation, and at worst, empowered by the father of lies. There is no deception and no manipulation in the genuine experience of God to which Jesus calls us; only grace, truth, love and freedom in the Spirit of God.

Lay Theological Academy offers 'Breaking Away'

Memorial Church to offer program on how to deal with addictive behaviors

Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore Drive in Grosse Pointe Farms, will hold a special presentation titled, "Two Sides of the Same Coin: Revealing the Alcoholic Family System" by addiction counselor Debra Erickson Jay on Tuesday, April 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the lounge at the church.

The presentation is sponsored by the Stephen Ministry. Increasingly there is recognition of the role substance abuse plays in the family, community and workplace. Breaking the code of addictive behaviors and unraveling the mysteries surrounding these behaviors can free a family to work on realizing and repairing its problems.

Jay is managing director of "Take Charge! America" and is well-qualified to lead this meeting. She has worked as a program designer, supervisor and additions counselor for the Hazelden Foundation at the Hanley Hazelden Center in West Palm Beach, Fla.

She designed the center's evening family program and served as supervisor of the Women's Rehabilitation Unit and the Older Adult Program. Jay is also known for her powerful talks on relationships in recovery. For further information, call the Rev. Mike Foley at (313) 882-5330.

Cancer 'Lock Up' raised $750,000

Hundreds of unsuspecting folks got a little surprise in March from the American Cancer Society. Uniformed officers showed up to take people away to be locked up for the American Cancer Society's Great American Lock Up.

Once the initial shock wore off, the prisoners settled down into the fun of raising bail to support the American Cancer Society.

And the result? In four days, the generous folks of Southeastern Michigan raised $750,000 to support local cancer patients and their families, as well as nationwide research to find a cure.

Funds totaling $500,000 were derived from people being arrested at 11 area locations during the week along with approximately $250,000 that was part of the "Most Wanted" campaign. Most Wanted prisoners agree, in advance, to raise at least $2,500 and are recognized in the community by being part of the Most Wanted posters that are distributed throughout the Metro area. More than 100 individuals participated as Most Wanted prisoners this year.

The Great American Lock Up raises funds to provide programs and services to local cancer patients and their families, as well as nationwide research to find a cure. In 1996, the ACS spent nearly $95 million on research, and has funded 28 Nobel-Prize winners to date.

Additional information on preventive education, treatment information, and other resources are available by calling the American Cancer Society at 1-800-925-2271.

The 12th Annual Great American Lock Up was chaired for the seventh straight year by Detroit Pistons President Tom Wilson, whose efforts raised kudos from American Cancer Society Regional Vice President Cal Morgan: "Tom Wilson has demonstrated a true commitment to helping this fight against cancer by bringing people together to work on this important event," Morgan said.

The Pistons' marketing and publicity efforts resulted in great success for the American Cancer Society. One of several highlights was a "live" on-air arrest of Pistons color commentator Kelly Tripuka during a televised home game.

The efforts of the Pistons, as well as the work of tireless volunteers and other sponsors, helped to bring this huge event to fruition.

Tips for handling allergies

Allergy sufferers — get ready for the next round of sniffles, sneezes and nasal drips. Trees, grass and mold are ready to come out and trigger an allergy attack, making your spring miserable.

But there are precautions you can take to reduce the symptoms of spring allergies, said Hugh MacKechnie, M.D., an allergist at Henry Ford Medical Center — Pierson Clinic in Grosse Pointe Farms.

"If you think your watery eyes, runny nose or scratchy throat are symptoms of a cold, you actually may have allergies," said Dr. MacKechnie, a Grosse Pointe Park resident.

"It can really be a nuisance, but identifying what you are allergic to is a good first step toward prevention."

MacKechnie said that while allergy symptoms can occur year round, many people have seasonal reactions. Spring, early summer and early fall are the worst seasons for most allergies.

May and June are the worst months in spring because trees pollinate from March through May.

Weeds begin to pollinate over the summer, but the worst weed, ragweed, hits its peak during late August and September.

"Short of never leaving the house and avoiding the outdoors, you should minimize your exposure to the things that make you feel bad," MacKechnie said.

MacKechnie offers the following tips to avoid aggravating your allergies this season:

- Roll up your car windows to avoid exposure to the outdoors;
- Let someone else mow the lawn or rake leaves;
- Stay inside on windy or humid days when dust and pollen get kicked around;
- Do not hang sheets or clothing out to dry, as pollen will collect on them; and,
- Take medications recommended by your doctor to alleviate your symptoms.

MacKechnie recommends making an appointment with an allergist quickly, before other allergy sufferers make their annual pilgrimage for help.

He also says that for people with severe symptoms, medications and allergy shots are very effective.

Shop at Birch Run; proceeds aid MADD

This month, Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) is encouraging all consumers to get "MADD about Outlet Shopping" while supporting efforts to fight drunk driving.

As thousands of shoppers hunt for bargains and benefit from additional sales and discounts at The Outlets at Birch Run, the Tanger Outlet Center in West Branch and Horizon Outlet Centers at Kimball and Holland during National Outlet Shopping Week, April 7 — 13, MADD will also benefit.

The anti-drunk driving organization has been selected as the charity of choice for the first time in a joint effort between outlet center developers and retailers across the country.

"We are very excited about this new promotion and the opportunity to raise public awareness about the violent crime of drunk driving," explained Nancy Brown, MADD, Michigan state coordinator.

"During National Outlet Shopping Week, not only will shoppers find great deals and sidewalk sales at participating outlet malls, but they will be able to learn more about MADD's efforts to change laws and prevent further drunk driving crashes in our community and nationwide."

Last year, 566 people were killed and 15,905 were injured in alcohol-related crashes in Michigan.

A wide variety of festive activities are planned to enhance the benefit week. At the Birch Run Outlet Mall, MADD will be providing Koegel hot dogs, Made-Rite chips, pop, and popcorn for a small donation, as well as giveaways including bookmarks, balloons, key chains, etc. There will also be a raffle for individual outlet store items and certificates. At the Tanger and Holland Horizon Outlet Centers, MADD will be providing the giveaway items as well as public awareness literature. April 10, local students will participate in an Outlet Fashion Show. A benefit car wash will be available on Saturday, April 12. Also on Saturday, there will be a mock crash demonstration. There will also be a raffle drawing and window poster contest.

In addition to money raised through local fundraising events, the more than 26 developers and 91 retail chains who have joined together for this historic event are making contributions to MADD to support public awareness programs targeting youth and adults. Shoppers can make direct contributions to MADD in the donation cans being placed at registers in the various stores.

"National Outlet Shopping Week is a great opportunity for our community. Consumers already know that outlet shopping centers provide a great shopping alternative. Now they will know that all involved in outlet centers are committed to supporting MADD and to making our streets safer," said Christine Stephens, marketing coordinator of The Outlets at Birch Run.

To find out more about National Outlet Shopping Week or how you can become involved with MADD, contact MADD, Michigan at (517) 631-6233.

MADD was founded in 1980. Today there are more than 600 chapter and Community Action Teams across the country. Membership is open to anyone.

MADD's mission is to stop drunk driving and to support victims of this violent crime.

Walk with animals; help fight Kidney disease

The Detroit Zoo will be the site for the First Annual National Kidney Foundation of Michigan Safari Walk-A-Thon on Saturday, May 17, 1997.

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan welcomes all to participate in this annual event. The goals of the walk are to raise public awareness about kidney disease, organ donation and to raise funds for the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan's research and patient's services.

Some facts on kidney disease are:

- Currently in Michigan, there are over 7,000 residents on dialysis and over 1,000 patients waiting for kidney transplants.

- One out of every ten diabetics will develop kidney failure.

- Half of all cases can be prevented or slowed by controlling diabetes and high blood pressure through medication.

Prizes will be awarded to walkers who raise designated amounts of pledges. When accompanied by an adult walker, two children under 10 years old can walk for free. Additional children will be charged a $1 entry fee. All children will receive a small gift.

Registration will begin at 7:30 a.m. and the walk will start at 9 a.m. Walkers are asked to return their pledges by Tuesday, April 29. There will be a warm-up before the walk and activities after in the zoo's picnic area. Participants will have free parking and entry into the zoo for the day. The Detroit Zoo is located on Woodward Avenue in Royal Oak.

For more information on the First Annual National Kidney Foundation of Michigan Safari Walk-a-Thon, call (800) 482-1455. The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan is dedicated to the prevention, treatment and eventual cure of kidney and urinary tract disease.

Through research, patient services, public information, professional education and organ donation the National Kidney Foundation Michigan brings help and hope to thousands of people with kidney and urinary tract diseases.

New procedure helps surgeons detect breast cancer

Henry Ford Health System surgeons are offering women with breast cancer a new surgical procedure that not only leaves women with less pain than traditional methods but also helps doctors determine, more accurately, if the breast cancer has spread.

The new technique, done only at Henry Ford Hospital in southeast Michigan, allows surgeons to find the sentinel lymph node — the first node to receive cancerous cells from the breast tumor, said David Nathanson, M.D., director of the Breast Care Clinic at Henry Ford Hospital.

"When a woman has a tumor in her breast, one of the things we need to find out is if the cancer has spread to the lymph nodes under her arms. That's one of the major points from which the breast cancer spreads to other parts of the body," Dr. Nathanson said. "The current standard is to remove all the armpit lymph nodes. This operation sometimes leaves women with swelling in their arm, higher rates of infection, occasional nerve function damage and often times, chronic pain."

In the new technique, doctors inject a blue dye that "lights up" the lymph nodes, which are embedded in fat in the armpit and very difficult to detect. In addition, a radioactive agent, concentrated in the sentinel lymph node, is detected by a special instrument.

The combination of the blue dye with a radioactive agent shows the location of the sentinel lymph node, which is removed and studied by a pathologist to determine if the cancer has spread. In more than 90 percent of the cases, doctors can find the sentinel lymph node. If this node does not contain cancer, it may be appropriate to leave other lymph nodes intact. Women then have fewer side effects when fewer lymph nodes are removed.

"This is a real breakthrough in breast cancer treatment," Nathanson said. "We are minimizing the amount of surgery the women need while offering them as much of a chance for cure as the older procedure."

How to improve your health

1. Stop smoking. Start by cutting back. Sign up for a smoking cessation class.
2. Take the stairs. Walk around two city blocks.
3. If you've got a sweet tooth and want to lose some weight, start by eliminating one dessert or candy bar a week. After that, cut back to one dessert a day. Choose low-fat desserts.
4. Exercisers have been found to keep off weight and morning exercisers have been found to keep their metabolism elevated during the day so that extra calories are burned even when not exercising.
5. Have your kids help you make a nourishing meal. Parents have a tremendous impact on what kids eat later in life.
6. Kids can help get you in better shape. Play with them on the basketball court, take them to a park and swim along with them. Participate.

7. Join an exercise class. Tired of your exercise routine? Break it by going with something you haven't tried before like kick boxing or rock climbing.
8. To get the water you need, fill an empty two-liter pop bottle with water and drink the entire amount by the workday's end.
9. Craving snack chips? Substitute pretzels, which are low in fat.
10. Try making low-fat versions of your favorite high fat foods. You can make your own "Thousand Island" dressing by using low-fat yogurt, ketchup and pickle relish.

DSO concerts feature two promising young violinists

Attending two DSO concerts in one day may be some form of gluttony, but the opportunity last Friday was irresistible.

When the scheduled violin soloist cancelled at the last minute due to emergency surgery, it took two to replace her on such short notice. It became a situation where two promising young violinists would play the great Brahms violin concerto back to back, on the same day, with the same concert program, conductor and orchestra and in the same hall.

They even have almost identical Guarneri del Gesù violins. It was an inquisitive music lover's dream and the experience was an eye-opener.

Corey Cerovsek had played the concerto with DSO conductor Neeme Järvi and the DSO a week earlier on tour in Palm Beach. He left Toronto Thursday night, after playing a recital there, and drove to Detroit for the Friday morning Coffee Concert at 10:45 a.m. One can only speculate on the impact of lack of sleep and rush of adrenalin in response to the DSO's emergency call. The audience, however, knew only that they were hearing a replacement artist.

As a pupil of the late, great teacher, Joseph Gingold at Indiana University, Cerovsek displays excellent technical mastery and a directness in his approach to the music that were hallmarks of his teacher's style. But this was no mere academic performance. He attacked the opening allegro movement with the abandon of a gypsy fiddler emphasizing that already well-recognized side of Brahms' musical personality.

His big tone reverberated in the hall and his phrasing swung freely from tender and moving in the soft passages to wildly passionate in the climaxes. If from time to time he was carried away and became too rushed, it may be understandable under the circumstances.

This set him up to create a beautiful contrast as he moved from the passionate allegro to the soulful second movement adagio. He might have indulged in a little more sentimental phrasing, but the impact was quite appropriate and effective.

It was also fascinating to watch the maestro following Cerovsek's free-moving phrasing for which, in the absence of a recent rehearsal, he seemed not entirely prepared. But Cerovsek, feet planted firmly, stood out front on the stage and played as though he expected to be followed.

The passion resumed in the closing allegro and presto movement with Cerovsek again emphasizing the virile and thrilling side of Brahms. It was not a traditional interpretation, but it certainly was a Brahms to remember.

The second performance that evening was equally fraught with suspense for the artists and orchestra.

Lithuanian violinist Julian Rachlin flew in from another engagement just in time to play the 8 p.m. performance (as well as Saturday and Sunday). Trained in Vienna and still studying there at the Conservatory, he gave a performance that displayed a totally different side of the concerto's duality — the lyrical-romantic.

Rachlin gives the impression of a seasoned performer, and with good reason. He has been appearing with Europe's leading orchestras for almost a decade. This and his Viennese schooling show clearly in everything about his presence. His manner is comfortable, he is gracious in his acknowledgment of the orchestra and audience and his playing is deliberately elegant and poignantly phrased in a style that might be described as quintessentially Viennese.

Certainly he reflects the influence of the traditional German stylistic approach to the Brahms concerto. But Rachlin, too, gave it his personal stamp.

Standing back next to the podium, Rachlin maintained close rapport with the baton and it quickly became clear why. His allegro movement was studied and carefully paced, with emphasis on the sentimental and romantic aspect of Brahms' complex music. Phrases were projected in a rich tone and drawn out with eloquent expression. And Järvi watched like a hawk to match every nuance and pause.

Rachlin's poise was broken momentarily when he brought his bow down hard for the double stops in the allegro and broke a string. Instead of borrowing the concertmaster's instrument (which is often done in such circumstances), he left the stage briefly for a new string then resumed with perfect aplomb.

Notwithstanding the elegance of the performance, dramatic contrast was lost when his lyrical treatment of the allegro was followed by the similar feeling of the adagio. It was compensated, however, by his lush and exquisite playing of the tender melodies with a grace and style that conjured memories of some famous violinists of the past.

But his judgment was not always right on and the phrasing sometimes became too drawn out and lost the flow all of which was supported meticulously by Järvi and the orchestra.

It was with his encore, Sonata Ballade No. 3 for solo violin by Ysaye, that the greatest depth and brilliance of Rachlin's playing became evident. The complex and challenging 20th century piece received a crystal clear and thoroughly consistent performance that was truly impressive.

Järvi's treatments of Brahms' Tragic Overture and Serenade No. 1 for Orchestra that opened and closed the program also differed from morning to evening. Both performances had appealing qualities, though the evening's were more vibrant. The serenade in particular was treated more seriously in the morning whereas in the evening it positively soared and throbbed with energy.

Perhaps most revealing of all was the orchestra's encore, in which Järvi led them in a suitably gypsyish treatment of one of Brahms' Hungarian dances taking many exciting liberties with changes in tempo. He did it with characteristically puckish glee, judging by the mischievous body English and the grin on his face.

Above all, one could savor having heard in one day the marvelous Brahms concerto first at its most fiery, and then at its most lyrically sentimental. It was an experience not soon to be forgotten.

This weekend's concerts also begin tomorrow morning, with repeats Friday and Saturday evenings. Contrasts are again the rule with Charles Ives' Camp Meeting Symphony followed by Rachmaninoff's Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini and Cesar Franck's Symphony in D Minor. Piano soloist in the Rachmaninoff is the young Swedish pianist Peter Jablonski.

For times and tickets call (313) 833-3700.

Modern essays are for people who want to know

"The Hunter Gracchus"

By Guy Davenport
Counterpoint. 339 pages.

Guy Davenport, a college professor, is a modern Renaissance man. He has numerous works to his credit: short stories, poetry, and commentary.

In his latest book of essays, "The Hunter Gracchus," he again displays his remarkable intellectual versatility. The author explains in his Introductory Note: "The way I write about texts and works of art has been shaped by 40 years of explaining them to students in a classroom. I am not writing for scholars or fellow critics, but for people who like to read, to look at pictures, and to know things."

Reflecting his absorbing interest in the ancient Greeks and Romans, the author offers the reason for his title: "Gracchus, the name of a noble Roman family from the third to the first centuries B.C., is synonymous with Roman virtue at its sternest."

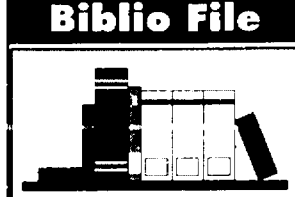

Davenport expresses his fascination with homespun art; he gives us an enlightening portrait of that obscure religious sect, the Shakers, who famously excel in handcrafted, well-made articles, which have become noted and appreciated for their style and utility.

"Furniture and tools evolve just like living organisms; the cave-man's sharpened stick became, in time, the fork. It was implicit in the cut of Shaker belief that a fork should be a fork and nothing else. They therefore rethought tools and furniture as strictly useful objects: what we perceive as character and dignity in Shaker design is their triumphant demonstration that form is good sense. They flattened the besom broom into a blade - a translation in the language of form and function. A pair of fingers translated into wood, with the elastic strength of the wood for muscle, gives us the Shaker clothespin. The push and pull of a saw can be made a continuous force if they are translated into a circle, yielding another Shaker invention. Shaker windows were on pivots so that outside and inside were equally easy to clean."

In castigating the building habits of the United States, Davenport acidly remarks: "The late forties brought us a new kind of urban housing: free-standing high-rise structures set at a distance from one another to provide light and air... like the tenement housing they were intended to replace, these proved to be instant slums and places of terror, danger, and loneliness: anti-neighborhoods. At the same time Mies van der Rohe gave us a new vocabulary of glass and steel, but his most revolutionary built house - all glass - turned out to be elegant but uninhabitable, and now belongs to an Englishman who, helped by electric fans and open doors, lives in it for one week in the year. There are regular complaints that the modern in design and architecture is inhuman, without coziness, without comfort. A number of Le Corbusier's dwellings have been betrayed by their inhabitants. Two of his buildings were used for years as cow sheds. Today, many professors of architecture teaching modernist or postmodernist styles themselves live in comfortable Victorian houses."

Continuing in this vein, the author points out: "If there is an ongoing revolution for a responsible and creative freedom, we lose and we win, getting nowhere. What hampers us is a failure of history itself; namely, that advantage seems invariably to corrupt the ability that gained the advantage in the first place. Democracy came about in the modern world because of a critical discerning that depends on education, and on the public and pervasive critical sense that education provides. The uncritical mind is a prey to credulity, and without skepticism there can be no democracy."

In another political essay, Davenport speaks of revolutions: "I think we need a revolution, here, now. I want us to be a free, happy, wise people. But how is this to be achieved? I do not know."

"I do know that the real revolution must be a ripeness of evolution."

"What scares me is that for the past 50 years we have been moving backward while we have dreamed, or fooled ourselves, that we were moving forward. Every one of our cities became more dangerous to live in; we all became little more than consumers and taxpayers as far as our government was concerned. Rascality in government has become the norm rather than the exception. Wars have gotten longer, more demoralizing, more devastating and irrational."

Many of these papers display Davenport's intense interest in writers, both past and present, and his critical acumen is as unswerving as always. In reviewing a new biography of Charles Darwin, he remarks: "the art of biography was evolved for precisely such intricate lives as Darwin's, which was lived mostly in the mind, and which has consequences and reverberations laterally in his own time and diachronically down to ours, and which far from running down is gaining momentum, attracting attention from many directions. Only now is the study of facial expressions coming into its own. Linguists are claiming that Darwin is one of their pioneers. Paleontology, medicine, zoology, sociology, genetics all share a Darwinian heritage."

The author also admires the Italian writer, Italo Calvino, and he discusses at length his unique method of writing: "The quality of lightness is peculiarly Calvino's in 20th century writing. He is in many senses our Voltaire. He says in the first lecture that language either can hover above its subject like a field of magnetic impulses or can give weight and concreteness to the subject. Lightness implies 'precision and determination' in a writer."

In all of these lectures there is the insistence that writing is a search for lightness (of spirit, of intellect) to free us from the weight of reality. The spirit that writing seeks is a necessary counterbalance to the dreary weight of our times."

Nathaniel Hawthorne appears in another interesting paper. Davenport enthusiastically reviews a new biography (1991), and gives kudos to the biographer who has fleshed out Hawthorne's image: "Equally strange was his apparent narrow interest in books and ideas. He knew the 18th-century writers from whom he took his gracious, infinitely variable style. He knew Salem's guilty past. Bowdoin College had given him a genteel education of sorts. He knew his Ovid."

"He was not, however, a reader... His favorite author was John Bunyan. Quite early he learned to live in his imagination, although he also had the rare gift of living sanely and evenly in the practical world, taking his time with patient diffidence. At Bowdoin he was more a young gentleman than scholar, making friends he would be loyal to throughout his life, notably Franklin Pierce, whose biography he would write, and Longfellow... There was a period in which Hawthorne was a kind of harmless founding father of the American novel, associated with black-clad Puritans crossing New England snow on the way to the meeting-house, with a whiff of the quaintness of witches."

Erudition, testiness, and humor are all manifested in the 40 absorbing essays within the covers of this book. Davenport frequently serves up food for thought for any reader hardy enough to undertake a true voyage of discovery and reflection in its richly larded pages. He describes a number of writers, each with an illuminating essay: Thomas Merton, the Trappist monk who dwelled in a "hermit's cabin which had its bed zoned from the rest of the inside by a Mexican blanket"; James Joyce, as a reader who as a "keeper of the past, is therefore a guide to the future"; Wallace Stevens, who was an unusual poet because "he was a man of the world, an insurance executive, careful never to appear in public as a poet"; Henry David Thoreau whose last book became a "timely reminder of his genius but also a vindication of his stature as a naturalist"; and Gertrude Stein's work is pronounced largely unreadable.

A reader may not always agree with Guy Davenport's conclusions or opinions, but nonetheless he is well worth reading for his muscular prose.

He is an excellent teacher who opens eyes and minds wide to unconventional ways of observing objects and thoughts, and for this learned exposition we should be grateful.

If you haven't already heard, Grosse Pointe South's marvelous vocal choir, under the expert direction of Ellen Bowen, walked away with first place in the nationwide choir competition in Orlando.

Special acknowledgement goes to Dan Vicary, technical director, whose skills were apparent in the competition which demanded split-second timing and stage restrictions, and to Marcy Richardson, a member of the troupe, who received the first-place soloist award.

Again, we are reminded of Grosse Pointe's incredible creative resources. Are we proud of these kids, or what?

A project by The Great Frame Up, a frame shop and art gallery at 20655 Mack, in

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

The peace that passeth all understanding is foremost, but there are other tranquilities that describe beauty and rectitude. The freshly fallen snow, dawn's early light and the quality of modesty which often portrays contentment.

In his youth Victor Mitchell was a flamboyant, cocky kid who knew all the tricks of the trade in his rough and tumble Brooklyn neighborhood of the twenties. Sometime before he was himself that age he learned to play a fierce game of bridge, for by then he was running a 24-hour stake game.

When he died in '95, bridge had lost one of its most colorful characters, champion players, bridge philosopher and mentor of many of the great stars of the past 50 years. The first encyclopedia of bridge, published in '64, registered his talent, and by the time of his passing two years ago he had gathered so many national and world titles that it took a page of fine print to list them all. In '96 he was privileged to be the 21st player chosen to the bridge hall of fame. Many of the exceptionally skilled masters still living take pride in flattery stating Victor was their teacher, and this is also true of many who are gone. Yet among most of us average club players his name is not usually recognized.

His widow Jacquelyn, a U. of M. graduate in '57 (the same class as our Chuck Burger and Zeke Jabbour), won her first national tournament in '62 and for ever so long has been considered one of the world's outstanding women players. Of course she gives much of that acclaim to her husband's skillful influence.

Victor's tournament role in his later years, though still in great demand, was considerably trimmed. He was always present, but usually just kibitzing his many friends' play. Many felt he just quietly enjoyed basking in the limelight of his many accomplishments and that the challenge of competition no longer stimulated him. In any event he was deserving of much and beyond further need for victory's recognition.

There are ever so many difficult hands I could show you he conquered, but today's has a twist to it you'll enjoy.

Years ago Victor's expert partner went down in a hand that Mitchell apologetically had bid above game in hopes of finding a slam. After the tournament that evening he showed it to Jacqui with the comment, "this was a tough one my partner missed."

Mrs. Mitchell took one long look and replied, "your partner played it badly; the hand is makeable."

As my readers can see from the view of 52, 11 winners seem far fetched as there seems to be a club and two spade losers.

Watch how Jacqui would have achieved victory.

She lost to east's club king and won her spade ace at trick 2. She cashed her diamond king and led a trump to dummy's eight. Next the diamond ace and a diamond ruff.

At trick 7 she won dummy's trump nine, and when both opponents followed, she was home. She ruffed dummy's fourth diamond and played her club queen pitching dummy's second spade, which east won, but was end played, as all she had left to lead were clubs. On the lead of that suit at trick 9 Jacqui ruffed in her hand and pitched dummy's last spade. Now a space ruff in dummy let declarer win the 13th diamond limiting the opponents to two clubs. A difficult hand yes, but if you never give up, coupled with good thinking, the result can be surprising.

Brad Koenig died a year ago in an automobile accident.

But the memory of the former Grosse Pointe South student-athlete will live on at the school that meant so much to Brad and his family.

A trophy and a scholarship will be given each year to a South senior who best demonstrates the sportsmanship, character and effort that

Koenig displayed during his athletic career at South

"In this way, a great negative will produce some great positives," said Brad's father, Tom Koenig, who is a 1966 South graduate.

"You want to give something back. That's what Brad was always doing. His friends have told me that he used to visit nursing homes while he was at school (Eastern Michigan University). He never told us about it, but that's Brad. He never made a big deal about doing what was right. He just did it."

That was the kind of soccer player Brad Koenig was, too. He wasn't the star on the Blue Devils' squad, but he was vital to the team's success.

"Brad was the one who kept everything going," his father said. "The coach could put him in at any spot on the field and he'd never complain. He'd just Grosse Pointe North wrestlers Derek Phillips and Gary Bordato didn't leave much doubt as where they stood among the state's junior wrestlers.

"They just dominated," coach Art Roberts said after Phillips and Bordato each won their weight class in both Greco-Roman and freestyle at the Team Michigan qualifier in Muskegon last weekend.

"They both either pinned or got technical falls against everybody. And these were good wrestlers they went against."

The performances of Phillips at 123 pounds and Bordato at 165 qualified both of them for the Junior National Dual Meet Championships at the University of Illinois from July 3-5. They'll also be No. 1 in their weight classes for Team

Norsemen's lineup should pack plenty of punch

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's bats were in mid-season form last week as the Norsemen opened the baseball season with a pair of doubleheader sweeps.

North beat Sterling Heights twice by 6-3 scores, then routed Warren Lincoln 15-4 and 12-2. "This could be one of our better teams," said coach Frank Sumner, who guided the Norsemen to a 27-11 record a year ago. North won the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division title in 1996 and won a state district crown.

"I hated to get rained out Saturday because I was anxious to get our pitchers some more work."

One of the Norsemen's strength is the infield. Troy Bergman is at first base, Mike Ciaramitaro at second, Chris Sterr at third and Steve Champine at shortstop.

"It's a very solid infield," Sumner said. "They're all seniors and they're seasoned."

There's also a solid corps of backup infielders in Chris Mikula, Michael Lane, Mike Fine and freshman Phil Kozlowski.

Rich Grosfield is a returning starter in center field. Craig Ziolkowski gets the nod in left and Matt Donnellon and David Nielubowicz are battling for playing time in right field.

Nick Aubrey can also play in the outfield, but he's even more valuable as a designated runner.

"He can disrupt a team's defense with his base running," Sumner said.

Chris Morkut will catch with Jerry Cardani backing him up. Champine, Cardani, Ciaramitaro and Brian Kasiborski give North a solid rotation.

"We worked out 12 of our 19 players as pitchers and they all looked pretty good," Sumner said.

Ciaramitaro opened the season on the mound for the Norsemen and went the distance against Sterling Heights. He allowed four hits, walked two and struck out six.

"I didn't expect him to go all the way, but he didn't throw that many pitches," Sumner said. "Sterling Heights swung at a lot of first and second pitches."

Bergman opened the scoring with a fourth-inning homer, tying the game at 1-1. The Stallions scored twice in the top of the fifth, but Sterr hit a three-run homer in the bottom of the frame to put North ahead to stay.

The Norsemen added two more runs in the sixth on a bases-loaded walk to Grosfield and a sacrifice fly by Sterr.

Bergman also hit a double in North's eight-hit attack.

Donnellon got the Norsemen on the board in the second game with a two-run single in the second, driving in Mikula and Cardani, who had each singled.

North picked up two runs in the third. Sterr doubled and eventually scored on Bergman's sacrifice fly, while Champine walked and came on when Ciaramitaro grounded out.

The Norsemen completed the scoring in the sixth. Grosfield doubled and Sterr followed with an RBI single — his third hit of the game. Sterr stole second and scored on Champine's single.

North had 13 hits, including two apiece by Champine, Cardani and Donnellon.

Champine pitched the first four innings and got the win, while Nielubowicz earned the save.

Bergman drove in eight runs to lead North to a 15-4 victory over Lincoln.

Two-run singles by Bergman and Donnellon and an RBI single by Mikula highlighted the Norsemen's five-run first inning.

Bergman and Ziolkowski each hit two-run singles in a four-run second. North added a run in the third on Grosfield's double and Champine's single.

Bergman ended the game on a mercy rule with a grand slam in the fifth.

Kasiborski pitched the first four innings to get the win and Marc Bertelsen finished up.

Cardani pitched three hitless innings and struck out five in the second game. Lane and Kozlowski followed him on the mound.

Lane and Kasiborski each hit three-run homers for the Norsemen and Bertelsen had a solo shot. Kozlowski hit a pair of run-scoring singles.

Aubrey drove in a run with a single and Morkut had a sacrifice fly.

Fine, Cardani and Aubrey also had two hits apiece for North.

"We should be a fun team to watch this year," Sumner said. "We'll be explosive."

South nine has unfinished business to take care of

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's baseball team has some unfinished business to take care of.

"That's our motto for the year — 'unfinished business,'" said Blue Devils' coach Dan Griesbaum. "We got a taste of what it takes to win a state championship when we went to the semifinals last year. It made us all a little more hungry to go back and win two more games."

South had a disappointing season in the Macomb Area Conference White Division last year, but the Blue Devils caught fire during the tournament and went all the way to the Final Four in Battle Creek, finishing 23-15.

"One of our goals this year is to do better in the league," Griesbaum said. "We ran into a lot of bad luck and lost a lot of close games in the late innings."

In the tournament, South started winning those games.

"It takes some luck to make a good run in the tournament," Griesbaum said. "You have to get the good bounces, but we also feel that we're capable of having an outstanding season."

South's lineup is solid. All-district outfielder Paul Yeskey (.302 last year) is moving to first base. Junior Chris McGratty (.313) will play second, while Brian Hodgman and Mike Hamers (.303) will share duties at shortstop. Hamers, an all-district player, could also play third, along with Andy Beupre and sophomore Ted Swarthout.

Matt Vandeweghe and Karl Freimuth will also see action in the infield.

Terry Brennan, who was on the all-region team and made All-State honorable mention, returns in center field. Brennan batted .330 with 18 RBI from the leadoff position and stole a team-high 24 bases. He made only one error in 47 chances.

Steve Gayman, who got the winning hit in the quarterfinal win over Berkley and batted .333 last year, is in right field. Jason Mangol will probably get the nod in left.

Other outfielders who'll be looking for playing time are Ryan Ermanni, Matt Barry and Pat Howe.

Nick Arrigo is the starting catcher but sophomore Dan Griesbaum, the coach's son, will also see playing time.

Freimuth, Swarthout, Greisbaum and Mangol all batted .400 or higher for South's

It looks like Gayman, Chris Farkas, Hamers and Hodgman will be the Blue Devils' top four pitchers this season. Arrigo is the relief ace.

"We have some big shoes to fill on the mound in replacing Kevin Schroeder," coach Griesbaum said. "We have good depth, but I don't think there's a Kevin Schroeder there. We have people who can throw well."

Schroeder was an All-State Dream Team selection last year after posting a 9-1 record with 120 strikeouts. He also batted .441 and drove in 48 runs.

Swarthout, Mangol, Howe, Joe Choma and Mike D'Hondt are also expected to see some action on the mound for South this season.

The Blue Devils started the season by dropping a pair of close games to Cincinnati Princeton on their annual trip to Ohio.

South lost the opener 2-1 despite a strong performance on the mound by Farkas, who allowed one hit and one earned run in four innings, and Gayman, who struck out four and allowed one hit in two innings.

Brennan drove in the Blue Devils' only run with a sixth-inning double. McGratty and Arrigo each had two hits.

South threatened in the seventh, but a suicide squeeze attempt didn't work.

A nine-run third inning was all Princeton needed in its 9-7 victory in the second game.

South collected 12 hits to Princeton's seven, but the Cincinnati school was helped by five walks in its big inning.

Brennan, McGratty and Griesbaum each had two hits for South and the trio combined for four RBI.

Arrigo hit an RBI double in the Blue Devils' four-run fifth inning, while Howe and Barry contributed run-scoring singles.

"Overall, we can be better than last year," coach Griesbaum said.

"Our hitting, defense and team speed seems to be better. We still have some question marks with our pitching — we have to cut down on the walks."

Wheeler wins pair of matches

Western Michigan junior Jeff Wheeler and the Broncos' tennis team both ended losing streaks last week.

Playing No. 1 singles, Wheeler won matches against Toledo's David Landvay (6-1, 6-2) and Eastern Michigan's Derrick Dabbs (6-2, 6-3). Wheeler, who played at Grosse Pointe South, ended a two-match losing streak against Toledo.

Wheeler and his No. 1 doubles partner, Kevin Reed, split two matches. They beat Toledo 8-1 but lost 8-6 to Eastern Michigan.

University Liggett School's baseball team showed a vast improvement in two outings this year.

After losing a doubleheader to Fraser by 18-2 and 18-0 scores, the Knights came back with a 3-1 loss to Bishop Gallagher.

"I'm very pleased by the improvement in team defense from the Fraser games to the Bishop Gallagher game," ULS coach Walter Butzu.

"With so many new faces, finding the right spots for everyone is our highest priority. Jay Minger and Anthony Legree, team's only freshmen, are true bright spots in a rebuilding year."

Junior Jeff Mehr pitched well against Gallagher, striking out 11 and walking one in a complete game.

Minger, who played shortstop, hit a key double for his first high-school hit. Legree threw out a runner attempting to steal.

Butzu said the lopsided losses to Fraser weren't unexpected.

"With only one day of full-squad practice, the results weren't entirely a surprise, especially considering the talent of (Fraser coach) Mario Borrocci's squads," Butzu said.

ULS walked 19 and committed 10 errors in nine innings, but some good came out of the doubleheader.

Halogen track lighting surges in popularity

Track lighting is growing tremendously in popularity in both new home construction and remodeling. This is mainly due to the halogen light bulb.

The halogen bulb enables smaller sized fixtures, that are more attractive and less obtrusive, to offer better light than ever before. This statement was made recently in an interview with Tony Wang, president of WAC Lighting, a leading manufacturer and supplier of track and recessed lighting.

Home lighting has been revolutionized with the halogen bulb because of its price and outstanding quality. Halogen track lighting provides a brighter, whiter, energy-efficient source of lighting and brings out better clarity of color and texture in fabrics, wall coverings, floor coverings, paintings, furniture and other home furnishings.

Track lighting can be used to accent paintings and wall decor, which are very popular today. During the past few years, halogen has revitalized the track lighting and improved its quality enormously.

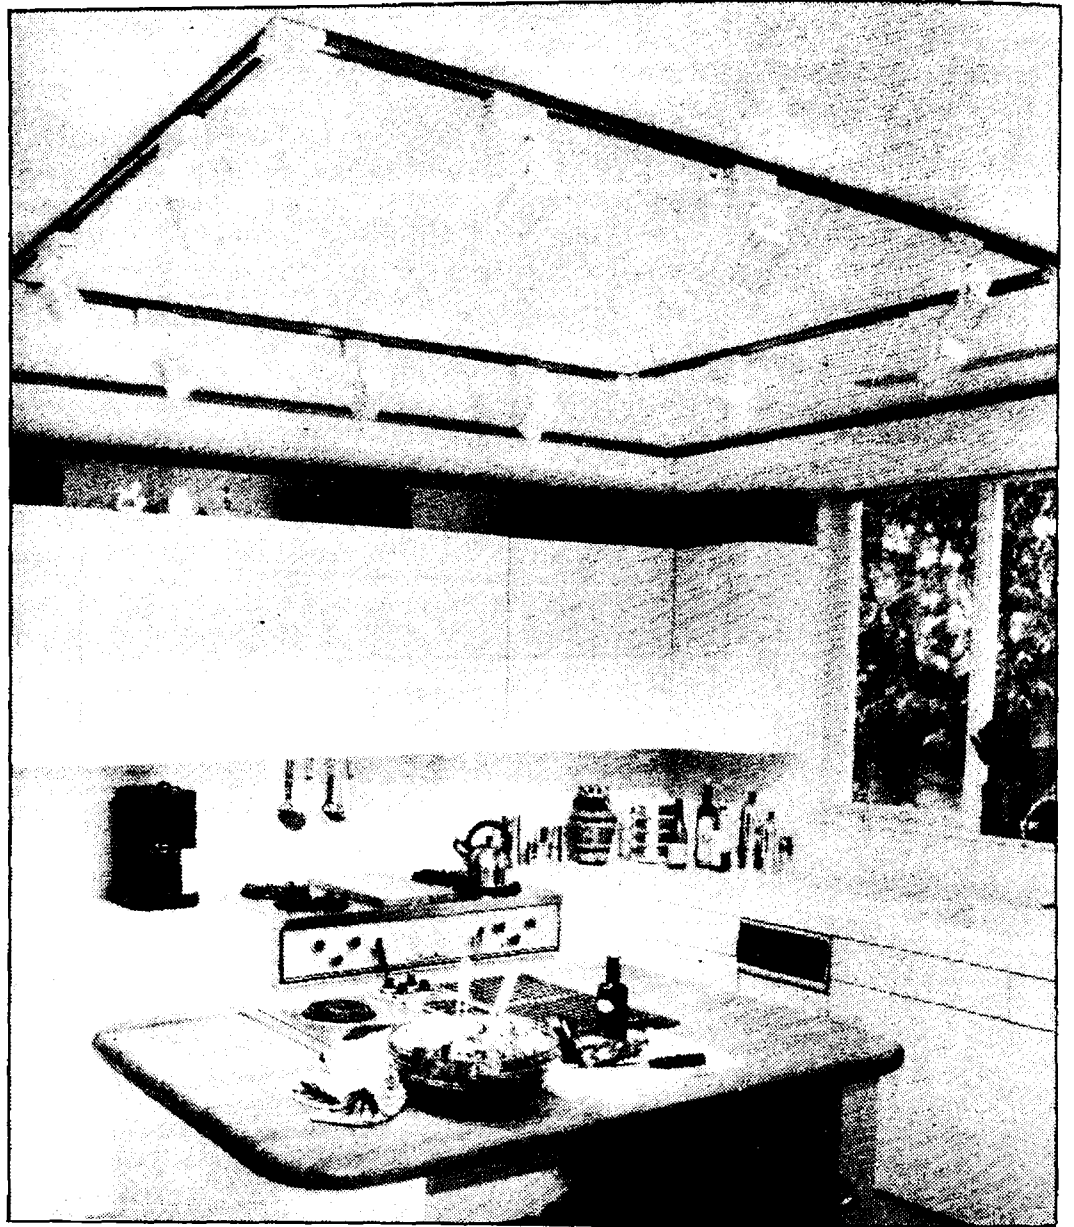

Halogen track lighting has offered tremendous versatility to consumers who are decorating and remodeling their homes. They can install lighting fixtures in hard-to-light locations without compromising quality and efficiency. Halogen bulbs are not just used for new lighting but also to replace older, less efficient light bulbs in existing tracks.

Today halogen bulbs are offered at reasonable prices and featured in many sizes and styles. The introduction of halogen PAR light bulbs has enabled users to pump new life into their existing track systems.

These bulbs range from 20 to 90 watts and offer brighter, whiter and better illumination than before. Miniaturized track heads, designed for MR-11 and MR-16 halogen bulbs, offer more versatility and enable the end-user to spotlight smaller and hard-to-get-to locations. Miniature halogen bulbs offer the same amount of light source as much larger bulbs, provide better quality and have enabled WAC Lighting to design track fixtures that are more attractive than before and more applicable to residential usage. By the year 2000, we will see a wider variety of track heads and a trend toward smaller fixtures that can illuminate larger areas.

For a full-color brochure or a list of an authorized WAC Lighting dealer near you, please write to WAC Lighting, 113-25 14th Ave., College Point, New York 11356.

Halogen track lighting provides a brighter, whiter, energy-efficient source of lighting and brings out better clarity of color.

SNAP DECISIONS

You have only been looking for two weekends and have found a house that looks perfect! You want to buy it, but you are reluctant to make an offer without having looked some more.

Whether you are in a buyer's or seller's market, the best homes usually get snapped up quickly. When you find a great home that is well-priced, you may not have much time to think it over. But it is difficult to make such an enormous purchasing decision without at least "sleeping on it". If you hesitate, you could lose the house to another buyer. If you go rushing forward, you may spend some time nursing a case of "Buyer's Remorse". Working with a professional Realtor can make your decision much easier. Your agent can provide information about recent sales of homes in the area and answer any questions you may have. Keep in mind that a Realtor's job is to find you a property that you want to buy, not to show you a lot of houses that won't interest you!

Colors come from flower petals to poison ivy juice

Our homes and our wardrobes are filled with fabrics of many colors and many shades of those colors, which we mix and match to achieve just the right effect, without giving a thought to how those myriad colors are obtained. We rely on modern technology and its marvels to worry about all that.

But in the days of the earliest colonists in this country it was very different. Not only did the householder have to grow his own flax or cotton or sheep for wool, but it was necessary to process all these materials in order to spin thread and weave fabrics, and then to make the dyestuffs to color them. Then, of course, there was all the cutting and sewing and fitting in making the garments to wear and the curtains and tablecloths and coverlets for the house.

The tedious, steamy chore of transforming flower petals, stems, leaves and grasses, roots and barks, nut hulls and berries into dyes must not have been a favorite one except for the promise it held of bright colors and subtle shadings.

Dyeing and weaving were a challenge to the housewife's ingenuity all through colonial history during the first generations of settlement because family fortunes and social stature were still evolving, and later because it had become unpatriotic to import fabrics.

During times of prosperity, after town and commerce had been established, merchants or planters could afford to buy finished and dyed fabrics, but many chose to continue the old ways. This was especially true of the wives of village farmers and artisans and, of course, of the families living on the frontier.

The notion that the first Plymouth settlers of the Puritan Congregationalists in Boston and New Haven wore only drab blacks and grays was a romantic invention imposed on popular history in the 19th century.

Included among the silks and velvets in the wardrobe chest of William Bradford when he arrived on the Mayflower were a violet-colored cloak and a crimson waistcoat. Elizabethans by heritage and inclination, all the members of the Mayflower company wore the russets, greens, yellows, reds and blues they would have worn had they remained carpenters, tailors, coopers, yeomen servants or merchants in England. Though their religious philosophy differed radically, their fondness for colorful costumes remained the same as everyone else.

For everyone there was a wealth of fashionable color available in the gardens and orchards, roadsides and woodlands. The necessary kettles were at hand. A supply of long stirring sticks was available. Every housewife had a supply of brass and iron skimming spoons, ladles, forks and stirrers, which could later be scoured and returned to their accustomed use in cooking.

Scarlet and black oaks, the white and live oaks all contributed barks used in making dye. Red oak provided shades of deep brown and yellow; the "blackjack" bark of scrub oak produce, when combined with that of the red maple, a deep black, while the bark of the black oak gave a clear golden yellow.

Other shades of yellow were obtained from boiling goldenrod, the flowers and leaves of balsam, from onion skins, barberry roots, and from a number of herbs such as St. John's wort, devil's bit, Jerusalem artichoke and laurel.

Blue was made by boiling indigo. At first wild indigo was used but later it was cultivated in the southern colonies, and from imported woad. Violet-colored juice from Iris flowers produced pale lavender while cedar tops and lilac leaves gave a deep purple. Oak, walnut and maple barks, when boiled, produced brown, as did walnut shells and hickory nuts (walnut and hickory dye was often utilized as a hair coloring too). Clear red, vermilion and crimson were a little more complicated to make. They were made by boiling madder root, nightshade roots, or Brazil wood. Sumac berries produced a red-beige, and pokeberries boiled with alum produced crimson, as did sassafras bark.

In order for the dyes to be made fast, or fade-proof, they had to be boiled with what is termed a mordant. This was usually alum, but when alum was not available, especially in the very early days of

Property owners alerted to higher flood danger

Property owners in flood-prone areas should consider buying flood insurance for structures and contents, state officials urge.

Great Lakes water levels are rising, increasing the danger of flooding and erosion to shoreline property, according to officials with the department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) and The Michigan State Police emergency management division.

The potential for flooding on inland lakes, rivers and streams also is very high and may remain serious for the next several weeks, depending on the spring weather.

"People living in low-lying areas should pay attention to weather reports, consider purchasing flood insurance, and establish an emergency action plan to prepare for the possibility of a flood," DEQ director Russell Harding says.

Homeowner's policies do not include flooding, but coverage from the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) is available through local agents.

Communities must participate in the NFIP before insurance is available, and a new policy does not become effective for 30 days.

NFIP does not cover erosion losses in most cases.

Lake St. Clair is 20 inches higher than one year ago.

The DEQ and Michigan State Police believe there is increased potential for flooding of low-lying areas and erosion of beaches, bluffs and dunes as the ice cover melts. Spring storms could further increase the potential for property damage.

Property owners should be alert to these conditions and determine whether any action is necessary.

Questions regarding flooding can be directed to George Hosek of the DEQ at (517) 335-3182 or local emergency management offices. Questions on shoreline erosion can be directed to the DEQ's Tom Bennett at (517) 335-4209 or Penny Holt at (517) 373-1952.

the first colonists, urine was used.

A spin-off from dye-making was the manufacture of writing inks. As with fabric dyes, the main problem was to make ink that would not fade. Simple inks could be made from berry juices, but these faded quickly. As most children know, so-called "invisible ink" which fades instantly but can be visible again when the paper it is on is heated is lemon juice. An almost permanent ink quite impervious to fading could be made from the juice of poison ivy and sumac berries.

Then, as now, bleaches and whiteners for linens were in demand. Laying the wet fabric in strong sunlight for a few hours was the most common method of bleaching, but a "whitener" made of rain water, pipe clay, soap and glue, boiled for two hours, was sometimes used.

It was not until the mid-19th century that aniline dyes which are purely chemical were developed. The colors obtained were far more brilliant than those of the earlier "natural" or "herbal" colors and they became instantly very popular. But they often harmed the fabric-saving chemical hues.

Perhaps we should look with new eyes at the bright colors that surround us.

Give a toy box you built yourself — it's easy

Here's a gift every child can use — a toy box large enough to hold a bedroom full of stuffed animals and playthings. It's surprisingly easy to build.

The plan uses standard size Western lumber, so cutting is kept to a minimum. The only tools you need are a saw, hammer, tape measure, a square and drill. The finished size is 20.5-inches wide and 33 inches long by 22 inches high.

The base of the toy box consists of a 2x2 frame and 1x4 decking. Cut two lengths of 2x2s, each 27 inches long, and two lengths 17.5-inches long. Glue and nail the corners to form a frame 30 inches long by 17.5-inches wide. Attach five 30 inch lengths of 1x4s to the frame to form the decking.

Cut four 2x2 corner posts, each 19.75-inches long, and toenail to the corners of the base frame.

Another option is to pre-drill and end-nail the corner posts from the bottom.

The wall panels, which are made entirely from 1x4s, can be preassembled on your workbench and then nailed in place.

For each end wall, you will need five lengths of 1x4s, 22 inches long, and two lengths of 1x4 trim, each 20.5 inches long. Align the five 1x4s to form a solid panel, then attach the trim pieces to the top and bottom with glue and nails. The trim extends 1.5-inches beyond the panel on both the left and right sides.

For each side wall you will need nine lengths of 1x4s, each 22 inches long, and two lengths of 1x4s for the trim, each 31.5-inches long. Form a panel, as you did for the end walls, and glue and nail the trim to the top and bottom. They should be flush with the sides of the panel.

Drill two one inch holes through the trim at each end to attach the rope handles. You will need roughly three feet of three-fourth-inch rope. Tie a knot at each end of the rope or tie it together on the inside to keep it in place.

To assemble the walls, position the two end panels on the frame so the base of the panel is flush with the bottom of the frame and the top is even with the top of the posts. Turn the box on its side and glue and nail the posts to the panel from the inside. Then nail the panel and the base-frame together.

Position the side panels so they slip between the trim on the end panels and are even at the top and bottom. Glue and nail to the posts

See TOY BOX, page 8

Brightly painted cutouts add a special touch to the solid wood toy box.

This generous-size toy box uses a modular system of construction to simplify assembly. If you can cut a board and pound a nail, you'll be able to complete the project with ease.

Detroit Yard and Garden Fair to be held April 12

Meet Jane L. Taylor, curator of the "most creative half-acre in America," at the Detroit Yard and Garden Fair (co-sponsored by the Detroit Recreation Department), Saturday, April 12, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at the State Fair Community Arts Building.

The "most creative half-acre" is a children's garden in East Lansing and Taylor brings with her the excitement of the garden and what it does for children of all ages, in her noontime keynote presentation, "Planting Enchanted Gardens for Family Fun."

Taylor, keynote speaker at the 1996 Williamsburg Garden Symposium, the International Flower and Garden Festival at Walt Disney World's Epcot Center, and the American Horticultural Society's National Youth Garden Symposium at Callaway Gardens, in Georgia, is known for her work with the Michigan 4-H Foundation, especially the award-winning 4-H Children's Garden at Michigan State University.

The garden contains 64 theme areas designed to teach children marvelous things about the plant world, stimulating their imagination and curiosity.

"She'll show us how to put these creative ideas to work in our own back yards," says Barbara Hayes, program manager of the Detroit Garden Center and coordinator of the Yard and Garden Fair. "Our theme this year is 'Growing Together' and one of our goals is to show parents, grandparents and teachers how to find new pathways of communication and sharing with youngsters through gardening."

Free programs will be offered throughout the day, including "Wildscape — Preserving Habitat in our Back yards," "Ideas for Greening Vacant Lots," "Growing Smarter — Adaptive Gardening for Physical Limitations," "Gardening with Kids — In the Classroom and Outdoors," "Do It Yourself — Redo Your Landscape," "Healthy Lawns and Gardens," "Tree Pruning Techniques" and more.

In his program "African-American Foodways," noted historian Howard Paige will trace the migration of okra, benne (sesame) seeds, yams, watermelons, guinea hens, sorghum, ground nuts, and food preparation traditions such as the use of pepper and other sharp spices, brought from West Africa to colonial America.

He also will show the importance of cookery in the African-American tradition. The term "Soul Food" is much too limiting according to Paige. "From the plantation 'big house' cook, who managed large numbers of other slaves in the preparation of elaborate meals, to the chefs, cooks and waiters in many fine restaurants from earliest times, to the independent business owners providing food catering services and operating a substantial number of restaurants and hotels by the mid-1800s, it is clear that the African-American influence on cookery deserves a great deal more recognition."

Nancy Szerlag, garden expert and host of "Garden Spot" on WDIV-TV4, will be on hand to demonstrate how easy it is to sprout seeds.

"We want this to be a truly inter-generational event. Children are welcome!" says Carol Osborne, chairperson of the event. "The Pumpkin Patch" is a special place for kids to enjoy recycling, crafts and plant-science projects while their parents attend some of the programs. "Kids also can do the hands-on activities at our exhibits," says Osborne.

"We will have more than 30 exhibitors, dozens of informative handouts, a plant market with seedlings and other plants for sale by youth groups, and great ideas for growing food and gardens. It's really a unique event for Detroit."

Organizing the fair is a joint effort between the Detroit Garden Center, the Detroit Recreation Department, 4-H Urban Gardening, Golightly Career and Technical Center, The Greening of Detroit, and Wayne County MSU Extension. Funding and support for the fair is provided by the Michigan Department of Agriculture, the Detroit Edison Foundation, the Michigan State Fairgrounds, Healthy Detroit, Leisure Lawns, Ralph Vigliotti Realty, the Garden Club of Michigan and many other groups and individuals.

Admission and parking are free. Enter the Michigan State Fairgrounds through the gate on State Fair St., east of Woodward.

For more information, contact the Detroit Garden Center, 1460 East Jefferson, Detroit 48207, or call (313) 259-6363.

Toy box

and base where the sides overlap. For added support, you can nail 1x4s between the posts, around all four sides near the top of the box.

Mitering the corners, cut four lengths of 1x4s to serve as the top trim. Center the trim over the top edges, then glue and nail in place. You might want to round-off the corners when you have finished.

Heavy-duty casters can be installed for mobility. Or make wood wheels to attach to the base. Cut a 2x8 into four triangles, then trim off the corners to form six-sided feet. Attach to the corners with glue and 2.5-inch screws.

Now you are ready to paint or stain the toy box. Cutouts of different designs can be made using a saber saw or jig saw. Cut the shapes out of scrap lumber, such as 1x8 or 1x10, then glue or nail them in place. Attach colored ribbons to the balloons and candy canes. And while you're at it, make some extra cut-outs for the bedroom walls.
