'Expert' responds to positioning of Old Glory at GPYC

To the Editor:

Your May 22 edition contained a letter from Bill Stover referring to the manner in which the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club flies the American flag. He hoped that people, and the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club in particular, would learn from his letter.

He stated the Yacht Club was flying the American flag lower than the Yacht Club pennant. He also stated that, according to proper flag etiquette, no flag or pennant shall be flown higher than the American flag.

Mr. Stover is both correct and incorrect. If he had studied flag etiquette thoroughly enough, he would have discovered that various situations are governed by different rules.

First, there is an exception to the above statement that no flag or pennant shall be flown higher than the American flag. When religious services are being held aboard a ship, in the U.S. Navy, it is proper to fly the church pennant above the American flag, on the same hoist.

Now to the main issue of his complaint. The American flag is properly displayed at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, the Bayview Yacht Club and the Detroit Yacht Club, among others, when it is flown from the gaff.

The gaff is a separate spar that is attached to the flag pole at a position higher than the midpoint of the pole, and angled upward at approximately a 45 degree angle. The gaff provides a separate hoist for the American flag, and is considered the position of honor.

Mr. Stover is correct when he states that it is not proper to fly a pennant or flag (exception noted) above the American flag, but that means on the same hoist.

All council questions addressed; St. James church plans approved

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

What a difference a month makes. At the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council meeting Monday evening, May 19, St. James Lutheran Church received a rather speedy approval of its plans to make its facility handicap accessible.

In fact, some members of the city council even praised this second round of plans submitted by St. James congregation member and architect Stuart Pettitt.

In contrast, last month, the council fired endless questions at him as representative for the church, and directed him to complete numerous actions before returning to the May council meeting for reconsideration of plan approval.

Monday, Pettitt systematically answered all the questions the council had posed last month. He was armed with the same artist's rendering of the church he presented previously to council, as well as several drawings, some revised from last month, showing the various elevations and floor plan of the church.

"As you asked, I met with the Grosse Pointe Farms Beautification Commission for its input for landscape around the church," said Pettitt, a partner in the Troy-based architectural firm Straub Pettitt Yaste.

Despite the architect's own landscape experience, he met twice within the past month with the commission that is comprised of area volunteers and incorporated their suggestions into the plan he presented to council.

His blueprints showed that several ornamental trees and shrubs will be used on the grounds to beautify, as well as to screen from view the church's air conditioning and heating units.

He also presented a report to ease council concerns of any possible environmental contamination from a small underground storage tank located at the rear of the church property. The church plans to dig up the tank and dispose of it.

He answered the council's concerns regarding disconnection of the church's downspouts from the city's sewer system. Pettitt also displayed new drawings that showed no fence between the municipal parking lot and the church, per council request.

Finally, he showed the council he was more than willing to meet any handicap parking requirements, and altered the dimensions of a sidewalk from four feet wide to seven, per its request.

Farms planning consultant Brandon Rogers praised the church's plans.

"It's clear that the church has worked to come up with

City Airport expansion fails to get off ground

By Jim Stieford
Staff Writer

Withdrawal of a request for $850,000 to study the environmental impact of runway expansion at Detroit City Airport by Detroit officials is a step in the right direction toward finding the best use of the airport, said Grosse Pointe Park city manager Dale Krajniak.

"Before any expansion plan to lengthen the runway at City Airport can be approved by the proper state and federal authorities, Detroit officials must do an environmental impact study," said Krajniak, speaking on behalf of the Detroit Airport Study Committee, an organization representing several eastside communities that oppose airport expansion.

"Detroit officials had been asking the Michigan Aeronautics Commission to provide the money needed for the study. The MAC was expected to vote on the issue at its May 14 meeting, but the scheduled vote never took place."

When that happened, Krajniak said, the request for funding was withdrawn. Dr. Richard Mertz, Grosse Pointe Shores village trustee and private pilot said, when he heard the news, that it is time to forget expansion and for airport officials to concentrate on complying and even exceeding current FAA safety standards for general aviation facilities.

Krajniak said that it is his understanding that some Detroit officials are now looking for money from other sources to fund the environmental impact study. But any study would have to look at the impact of noise in communities that would be affected by new flight paths resulting from a runway expansion at the airport.

sis does not justify expanding the airport.

"According to a cost-benefit study issued by Detroit officials in November 1996, the airport would still have to be supported with Detroit taxpayers' dollars for another 15 years," said Krajniak. "These projections also show that it will take 20 years for the airport to earn enough revenue to pay for both the airport's operating costs and for the bonds that would have to be sold to pay for expansion."

During this period, the airport would still have to be subsidized with Detroit tax dollars. The report said the main beneficiaries of the expansion would be commuters from Oakland and Macomb counties who could avoid a long commute to Metro Airport.

"The main beneficiaries aren't Detroit residents who will have to continue to subsidize the airport for 20 years," said Krajniak. "The report also fails to note that City Airport will face serious competition from Metro, which just underwent a $1 billion expansion, and Flint's airport, which is closer to parts of Oakland and Macomb than City Airport."

In light of what $100 million could do for Detroit in terms of improving roads, and other infrastructure, an expansion of the airport to benefit Oakland and Macomb residents just doesn't make sense, Krajniak said.

Who was that girl?

For those who are curious to know who the "unidentified girl" was petting the calf at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's annual Baby Animal Day in the front page photo in last week's paper, she is Elizabeth Caputo, of Grosse Pointe Farms.

We thank our own production manager, Charles Krassen, for bringing the girl's identity to light.

We hesitate to print unidentified people in the paper, but when they are as adorable as Miss Caputo...

If Mr. Stover will study paintings of early sea battles between the United States and Great Britain, France, Spain, etc., he will note that each country has flown her flag from the gaff of the aftermost sail, the place of honor.

When one watches the freighters passing on Lake St. Clair, it will be noted that the flag of the country of the ship's registry will be flown at the stern staff, which will position the flag lower than pennants or flags displayed at the tops of ship masts, and thus higher than their country's flag.

When our U.S. Navy ships are tied up at a dock, they display the American flag on a stern staff, the same as freighters, but the moment that they get underway, the American flag is switched to a GAFF on the mainmast, just the same as the type of spar that is mounted on the flag pole at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

For authority, sailors and yacht clubs look to "Chapman's Seamanship and Small Boat Handling," just as our navy look to "Knight's Modern Seamanship" and the "Blue Jackets Manual."

Mr. Stover states that he is a proud veteran of the United States Air Force, and wants to see the flag flown properly. I am a proud veteran of the United States Navy, and I also want to see it flown properly. When you see it at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, you are seeing it done properly.

I remember standing in my position as officer of the deck, on board the destroyer escort USS Marsh, when we were bombarding a Japanese-held island during World War II, and looking above and seeing the Stars and Stripes proudly flying from the gaff.

plans that will enhance the total area," Rogers told the council.

He praised their cooperative spirit in light of the fact that the church lost about 170 square feet of its property (a triangular wedge-shaped piece) to the City of Grosse Pointe Farms. Farms officials proceeded with various plans last year to add to its municipal parking lot and to close McMillan Road in the block where the church is located.

Farms resident Sue Vogel, present at the council meeting, also praised the church, stating that its proposed changes will result in creating improvements in a similar way as was done at the elementary school.

"Richard school's back door area was improved in appearance. It now appears to have two front doors. Similarly, the church's plans, too, will create two nice looking entrances, rather than merely the view of the back of the church (as seen from the municipal lot)," said Vogel, who was a member of the committee to improve the school.

As previously reported in the Grosse Pointe News, the church plans include installing an elevator, converting an existing bathroom to one that is accessible by handicapped people, adding a new rear entrance with a portico, and adding landscaping, among other things.

The elevator and bathroom, in particular, would help the church meet accessibility requirements set by the federal government's Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

The improvements will cost the church about $240,000, and its members have already raised about three-fourths of that amount, said church officials.

They said they hope to begin the construction work as soon as possible, so that the plans for indoor improvements can be worked on during the colder months this coming fall and winter.

School trustee candidates pledge consensus on board

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

The June 9 school board election in Grosse Pointe is an uncontested race with two candidates seeking two open seats. But that doesn't mean the community shouldn't bother going to the polls or skip getting to know the two people who will join the board in July, replacing outgoing trustees Carl Anderson and Sears Taylor.

Since announcing their candidacy in April, Joan Dindoffer of Grosse Pointe Park and Joseph Brennan of Grosse Pointe Woods have been actively spreading their message to the community, through informal gatherings in homes and in organized candidate forums.

Neither Dindoffer nor Brennan has run for the Grosse Pointe school board before. Both are attorneys and have sons attending Grosse Pointe schools, from the elementary to the high school level. Both have been involved for years as volunteers in the community in the schools.

Here are their profiles, based on hour-long interviews with the Grosse Pointe News:

Joseph Brennan hopes to bring a sense of cooperation and cohesiveness to the school board. And he, along with Dindoffer, will bring a wealth of experience to the board, both from his various volunteer efforts as well as his professional background.

"I'm committed to listening and learning," he said. "If there is a theme to my campaign it is for people to appreciate and encourage civility. It costs nothing. It's a given when you're talking about a school board, which sets the tone for the entire school district because it's such a visible body."

Brennan's involvement in the school system began when the woman who is now his campaign manager, Vicki Granger, talked him into joining the Mason PTO. It was the best thing he ever did, he said.

From there, he served as the Mason PTO membership chairman, vice president and president and served two years on the Mason PAC.

He continues to be involved with the Parcels and North PTOs. In addition, he has been a coach at the Neighborhood Club and coached Little League for more than 10 years.

Brennan, 42, is a lifelong Grosse Pointe resident and went to St. Clare of Montefalco, Pierce and Grosse Pointe South High schools. He received an undergraduate degree from Wayne State University and a law degree from the Detroit College of Law. He is an attorney in private practice. He and wife Margie have an 11th-grader and a ninth-grader at Grosse Pointe North, a son at Parcels Middle School and a son at Mason school.

Brennan said he will bring to the board the ability to assimilate large volumes of information and come to what is a comprehensive and reasonably broad understanding of the issues, along with the ability to work well with others and to disagree without letting it interfere with a working relationship.

"A trustee on the board doesn't have power as an individual," he said. "Sometimes people lose sight of that. They take an individualistic approach and that can be damaging. Once the board makes a decision there should be support for that decision, regardless of how a trustee voted."

Joseph Brennan

As a trustee, he is prepared to face the challenge of how the district, with fiscal restraints, will continue to deliver the services the children are entitled to and the community demands. Solutions exist, he said, and one of them is through citizen contributions to a foundation.

Other issues facing the district in the next four years are the Parcels overcrowding and how that situation will be remedied, and Schools of Choice and whether the district should continue to "opt out."

Joan Dindoffer seeks to bring reasonableness and consensus building to the board.

"(One of the issues facing the board) is restoring consensus on the board," she said. "It takes seven individuals who are willing to listen to one another, understand one another's point of view and look for common ground and work from there. Dissension is healthy as long as it's done in a constructive way. We can all learn from other points of view, but we have to be interested and committed to that effort. I know I am; I assume the others will be interested in the same thing."

In her opinion, the Grosse Pointe schools are among the best in the country and the challenge is in continuing the tradition of excellence while preparing students for the 21st century.

Dindoffer, 43, is an attorney in the private banking division at Comerica Bank. She and husband Fred have a ninth-grader at Grosse Pointe South, a seventh-grader at Pierce Middle School and a fourth-grader at Defer Elementary School.

She has served as president of the Defer PTO, was on the PTO board in a variety of positions, is on the PTO board at Pierce and has volunteered for several district-wide committees. She is current vice president of the PTO Council.

On the district level, Dindoffer served on the strategic action committee for personal educational goals, served on the gifted program planning committee for the last four years and on the central office Program Advisory Committee (PAC) for four years.

She has a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan and a law degree from Wayne State University. She said she will bring to the board her knowledge of the school system through her years of volunteering on all levels, along with her excellent problem-solving and conflict resolution skills gained from her professional experience. She said she also has extensive experience in policy development.

"Much like an outside director in a corporation, a board member does bring some outside perspective from whatever his or her background might be," she said. "It can be a resource to the superintendent. But that doesn't mean you involve yourself in the day-to-day operations of the school district."

The biggest issue the board will face in the next four years, she said, will be maintaining and improving programs within the budgetary constraints under Proposition A. The bulk of the district's financing comes from the state and it will not be growing at the rate of inflation

Don't forget to vote

Election day is Monday, June 9, for the Grosse Pointe Public School System board of education race. Polls are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Residents of Grosse Pointe Park vote at Pierce Middle School, 15430 Kercheval; City of Grosse Pointe residents cast their ballots at Mairo Elementary School, 740 Cadieux; Grosse Pointe Farms residents vote at Brownell Middle School, 260 Chalfonte; Grosse Pointe Woods residents go to Parcels Middle School, 20600 Mack; Grosse Pointe Shores residents cast their ballots at the Shores municipal building, 795 Lakeshore; and Harper Woods residents living in the Grosse Pointe schools portion of the city can vote at Poupard Elementary School, 20655 Lenson.

Absentee ballots may be picked up between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. anytime up until Saturday, June 7, at Barnes school. Call (313) 343-2602 for more information.

or the cost of living. The schools will need to find ways to limit expenditures while maintaining programs.

There are solutions, she said. There are ways to raise money privately, by engaging in joint ventures, such as the Richard school playground project of 1996.

7 candidates file to run for 4 Farms City Council seats

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

Because only seven Grosse Pointe Farms residents filed petitions to be candidates for the four open city council positions, no primary will be necessary. The general election will be Nov. 4.

A Farms' ordinance requires that there be more than double the number of candidates for the number of open positions in order to require a primary. Thus, at least nine people would have had to file petitions for candidacy by the 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 13 deadline to mandate a primary.

Also, according to Farms charter, the person receiving the fourth highest number of votes in the Nov. 4 election will become the newly elected Farms council person with the shortest term — two years. The top three vote-getters will win four-year terms.

The new Farms mayor and mayor pro tem will be elected by the four winning council persons plus the three remaining council persons whose terms do not expire until 1999. They will hold this vote among themselves at their November meeting.

Farms council members are paid $600 per year; the mayor is paid $900 per year.

Among the current Farms council, the terms expire in November for Mayor John E. Danaher, and council members Elizabeth M. Gandelot, Edward W. Wilberding II, and Gail Kaess.

Danaher, Gandelot and Wilberding are seeking reelection. Kaess, who has served on the Farms city council since 1979, is not seeking reelection, but instead has chosen to focus her energies as the new lead staff member in Congresswoman Carolyn Cheeks-Kilpatrick's office.

Gregory M. Nelson, Frances L. Schonenberg, Susan E. Vogel and Martin F. West are Farms residents who are active community volunteers in a number of capacities. They are the four non-incumbent candidates seeking to win council spots in November.

Closer to the November election, residents can count on the Grosse Pointe News to provide profiles and photos of all seven Farms council candidates.

Current Farms municipal judge, Matthew Robert Rumora, was the only person who filed by deadline a petition of candidacy for the judicial position. Rumora, who was first elected in 1988, will likely continue to serve as judge for a four-year term, unless a write-in candidate were to win which has not occurred before in Farms history. This is the first time Rumora has run unopposed.

Both Farms court administrator Lynn Mackenzie and Farms court clerk Susan Smith said they look forward to working again with Judge Rumora, calling his attendance "wonderful."

Each of the Pointes must pay a certain amount, somewhere between $100 to $150 per case, for each case that their own elected municipal judge is not able to hear. This is on top of the amount they budget for the annual salary for their own judge.

The Farms municipal judge is paid $12,000. Mackenzie said that rarely is Rumora unable to preside over a hearing, thus the Farms budget has not had to pay much more than his salary.

"When he chose to run for this position, he knew he needed to make himself available frequently to hear cases, and he has fulfilled that, in addition to his duties as an attorney with a local law firm," Mackenzie said.

Shores election enjoys good voter turnout

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Shores held its elections Tuesday, May 19, for three city council trustee positions and the village clerk job. And despite the fact that all four incumbent candidates were running unopposed, voter turnout was consistent with previous Shores elections that involved unopposed candidates.

Of Grosse Pointe Shores 2,338 registered voters, 204 people, or 8.55 percent, turned out at the voting booths located at the municipal building on Lakeshore.

"The residents of Grosse Pointe Shores maintain a high level of civic activism. They didn't allow an election with unopposed candidates stop them from at least coming out to show a vote of confidence for the work being accomplished by the four incumbents as well as the rest of the council, and commissions," said Shores village manager/treasurer Mike Kenyon.

John E. DeWald, village clerk, received 197 votes and will continue as village clerk until his next term expires in the fall of 1998.

Normally, the Shores village clerk is up for election at the same time as is the president of the United States; however, the Shores' clerk position went through several changes last year due to resignations at the council level that resulted in one clerk stepping up to fulfill a council member seat, and a new clerk being appointed for the vacated clerk position.

In recent years, DeWald has also assisted the Shores through his service on the public relations committee, the park and harbor committee, and as chairperson of the election committee.

Rose G. Thornton will continue as a village council trustee for a two-year term. She received 188 votes in the May 19, election. She has served on the council since 1987. In addition, she has served on the following three committees: budget and finance, public relations, and election. She has also served as representative to senior citizen groups, the Children's Home of Detroit, and the Shores

Beautification Advisory Committee.

Incumbent council trustee N. William O'Keefe also received 188 votes in the May 19 election; his term expires in two years. Previously, he has served as chairperson to the committee on public works, and the insurance advisory committee. He has been a member of the park and harbor committee, and the municipal buildings committee. O'Keefe has also served as the alternate delegate for the Shores to the Grosse Pointes/Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority, the troubled agency responsible for disposing of the household and yard waste for the Grosse Pointes.

Cameron H. Piggott received 185 votes, and also will continue for two more years as a village trustee. Piggott has served as a member of the public relations, and the public works committees. The attorney also served as chairperson of the Shores legal affairs committee.

Next time Shores residents go to the polls, they will be voting at their new center. Construction begins this fall.

Thrill of live theater part of everyday life for Park resident

It should come as no surprise that Phillip Moss is creative and performing arts chairman at University Liggett School.

After all, the 38-year-old Grosse Pointe Park resident grew up around schools and theater productions.

His mother — Eve Esche — started the Huron Valley Players community theater group in the 1950s. She worked in a school library and also did makeup for the high school theater productions.

As a boy growing up in the downriver community of Flat Rock, Moss spent a great deal of time after his school day was over tagging along with his mother at the school where she worked, and accompanying her to nighttime school performances.

"It's no big miracle I ended up doing theater in schools," Moss joked during a break in his soon-to-be-even-busier schedule. Moss, laid-back, with fair hair worn long enough to brush his shirt collar, exuded enthusiasm about the theater.

A lifetime spent either performing, directing and/or producing stage productions has served only to further solidify Moss' love for the arts.

He has a bachelor of fine arts degree in acting and a master of fine arts degree in directing from Wayne State University. He has performed in both the Bonstelle and Hilberry theater companies.

"The arts are as equally important as a strong core of academics and physical activity in the development of a well-educated person," he said, noting that he has spent all but two years of his professional career at ULS, in part, because of the school's strong support of the arts as an important part of the curriculum.

The theater is a family affair in the Moss household. His wife, Vikte, whom he met while an undergraduate theater student at Wayne State University, is a set designer. All three of his children are involved in the performing arts at ULS.

"My wife and I have a lot of friends working in professional theater and in film," he said. "They work some of the time or they work seldom. I get to work in it every day. I have a great space, great equipment and extremely talented students."

As proof of his statements, The Players — ULS' theater group — for the second year in a row has been invited to perform at the International Thespian Society's festival this June at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln.

Last year the troupe performed an early show of "Into the Woods" at the festival. This year they qualified for the top honor at the prestigious festival, a main stage performance, where they will present "Beast on the Moon."

Being invited to the heads for Nebraska.

"This experience will put them a leg-up on their peers," Moss said. "It's like being selected as 'all-state' 'all-American' for an athlete. There will be 60 to 70 college representatives there and opportunities for interviews and scholarships."

Visit the arts wing at the upper school. The hallways are a mosaic of student expression. The walls are lined with drawings, paintings, ink prints, photographs. Batik prints hang from the ceiling. Sculptures claim floor space. The collective voices of a choral group drift from an open doorway, mixing with the brassy notes of a band's horn instrument section, rehearsing in an adjacent room.

"The permanent gallery space here is a physical statement that this is important," he said, referring to a glassed-in, carpeted area that could be mistaken for a student gathering spot. It's not. The space is reserved for the display of artwork.

"We here in Grosse Pointe are spoiled. We have this insular perspective that the arts are important. When I worked for (Wayne County's intermediate school district) I had the opportunity to go through all the schools in the district and I realized then the inequality of our public education system," he said.

Moss began teaching full-time at ULS in the 1983-84 school year, after working briefly as a substitute. He left for two school years in the late 1980s to work for the Wayne County intermediate school district's center for educational technology, studying cable TV and distance learning.

He returned to ULS in the 1989-90 school year when the school was looking for an arts department chairman.

"I have really watched the school change over the last 15 years," he said. "We used to be an unknown 'Grosse Pointe only' school. Now we have a broad mix of students and draw from Port Huron, Detroit and Mount Clemens, places we didn't traditionally pull students. It has grown from a 'coat and tie' school to a place that, while it still maintains a disciplined structure, allows for differences."

The Players will perform two dress rehearsals of "Beast" at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, June 19 and Friday, June 20. For more information, call ULS at (313) 884-4444.

POINTER OF INTEREST

Members of the cast and crew of "Beast on the Moon" include clockwise, from top left, Carolyn Hadgikosti, Jordan Jackimowicz, Larry Lees, Phillip Moss, Terry Szymanski, Michael Deron, Stacie Hadgikosti and Ryan Clement.

International Thespian Society festival is the highest honor given to a secondary level theater troupe and the closest thing a high school student will have to a professional theater experience.

The Players produce between two and three shows a year, and one is usually directed by a student, Moss said.

"In the last three or four years the Grosse Pointes have had a presence at the festival," Moss said, noting that Grosse Pointe South High Schools' Pointe Players have been invited to the festival three times.

There is much preparation ahead for Moss and everyone else involved in taking "Beast on the Moon" to Nebraska.

Three of the four cast members are seniors and are in the midst of completing their school work right now, Moss said, but already they have begun to put the show back together.

"Beast" is a small, intimate play; two of the four cast members carry the show. It is about two survivors of the Armenian holocaust: a 19-year-old studio photographer in Milwaukee and his 14-year-old "mail-order bride." The two find they are unable to conceive a child and end up taking in a street urchin. The story is told from the boy's viewpoint (who is now an old man and is looking back on his life).

Rehearsals are three hours, five times a week. Two weeks after graduation, the troupe

Accountability for our charter schools urged

Two GOP legislative leaders, Sen. Dick Posthumus and Rep. Ken Sikkema, recently contributed a column to The Detroit News hammering critics who have been seeking more accountability from charter schools.

They contended that charter schools already are held to a much higher standard of accountability than traditional public schools.

As one example, they charged that the constant public examination creates "another layer of accountability beyond that of the traditional public school system."

At the time they wrote the column, there were 79 charter schools in operation in Michigan, and the law permitted a maximum of 100 this year with that figure rising to a total of 150 in the near future. They argued that the charter schools are covered by the same laws that govern the regular public schools, but are subjected to added reporting and oversight requirements in the form of special reports to the Legislature.

Despite the legislators' complaints, however, we think that the charter schools ought to be subjected to even stricter scrutiny to make sure that they are not only living up to the laws that govern them, but are doing a good job of educating the youngsters entrusted to their care.

Thus we were pleased to read a rebuttal to the Posthumus-Sikkema piece in the May 22 issue of The Detroit News that was written by Rep. James Agee, a Democrat from Muskegon, who is sponsoring charter school accountability legislation.

His bill would require the authorizing body for each new charter school to provide each year an accountability report to the state Department of Education.

And if the authorizing body for the charter school fails to provide such a report, the Department of Education would be able to revoke the body's ability to issue new charters.

Our own preference would be to have reports go to the state Board of Education, and to give it the power, if it now lacks such power, to deny the authorizing body the right to issue new charters.

We make that recommendation on the grounds that the state Department of Education is headed by a political ally of the governor who, in fact, appointed that individual.

But what difference should that make? That fact ought not to make a difference, but it does. Gov. Engler favors lifting the cap on the number of charter schools, now set at 100.

Agee contended his accountability legislation gives charter schools the credibility they "need to achieve the innovative reform they promise."

Charter schools also could earn more credibility if their boards were elected, as regular school boards are, rather than appointed by the authorizing agency. Members first are named by the agency, with successors picked by that agency from nominees offered by the charter school's board. But where is the accountability to the public?

That lack of accountability is why reviews of performance of charter schools ought to be made by independent professionals. They would know what charter schools are supposed to be doing and what they are really doing with respect to the laws that govern them and the youngsters they seek to educate.

A view from the sidelines

A Marshall to remember

June is a time for memories, and especially for us oldsters, it is a time for memories of World War II and its immediate aftermath.

Thus it is appropriate that next month Harvard University will observe the 50th anniversary of the June 5, 1947, speech by Gen. George C. Marshall, then U.S. secretary of state, in which he called on the United States to authorize what came to be called the Marshall plan to aid the recovery of Europe.

That plan was explained by Marshall, whose chief deputy and later successor, Dean Acheson, also deserves credit for his contributions to the idea that Winston Churchill called "the most unsordid act in history."

In a tiny way, I and the other 15 members of a delegation of newspapermen selected by the U.S. Army helped inform the American public about the need for the huge U.S. distribution of funds.

In the fall of 1947, we were invited to tour Germany and Austria in an Army-sponsored trip that did help, in my opinion, to inform the public about a Europe that, in Marshall's words had just endured a winter of "hunger, desperation, poverty and chaos."

As reported recently in a New York Times editorial, the Marshall plan, from 1948 until 1951, disbursed some $13 billion, the equivalent of roughly $80 billion today, in Marshall plan grants and loans.

On our 1947 visits to major German and Austrian cities, as well as to farming areas, we saw the devastation that the war had left in most parts of Germany and much of Austria.

But what we also saw was what the war had done to the people. Many men were carrying briefcases, which they often opened to offer valuable personal family heirlooms and relics for sale.

Despite the reputation that Germans had for serving good food, few hefty Germans were seen among those trodding the streets. Few city inhabitants had real homes, existing chiefly in the wrecks of downtown buildings or residences.

Business was almost at a standstill because a sound currency had not yet been adopted by the three occupying Western powers. As a result, the businessmen hung onto their resources, awaiting currency reform.

Fortunately, it came later in the year, and the German economy took off. Visiting Germany again nine years later, I could hardly believe the changes that had occurred in the rebuilding of a devastated Germany.

So, yes, the Marshall plan was a great idea and the man who put his name to it at Harvard 50 years ago ought to be given greater credit than he has received for his contributions not only to victory in World War II but to the economic renaissance of Europe in large part by virtue of the Marshall plan.

'How are the mighty fallen. . .'

An observer might be tempted to repeat the biblical saying, "How are the mighty fallen in the midst of the battle," as he reads the recent circulation reports from both The Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press.

A new critic

Rep. Richard A. Gephardt of Missouri, the Democratic leader of the U.S. House of Representatives, has publicly broken with President Clinton twice, once over the budget deal and the second time over China policy.

Gephardt apparently believes that the way to the next Democratic presidential nomination is to start early to define himself as a liberal Democrat, although he did not use that widely accepted reason for his actions.

Speaking to the Detroit Economic Club, Gephardt on Monday called the Beijing policy "free-market Stalinism" which would not lead to democracy.

Earlier, he had denounced Clinton's budget deal with the GOP as "a budget of many deficits — a deficit of principle, a deficit of fairness, a deficit of tax justice and a deficit of dollars."

Both administration issues are being criticized not only by liberal Democrats, such as Gephardt, but also by conservative Republicans. In effect, however, Gephardt is opening his presidential campaign for the year 2000.

As Editor & Publisher reported, both Detroit dailies continued to lose circulation during the newspaper strike even though both reported profits in recent months.

For the six months ending March 31, the Free Press declined from its 1995 figure of 531,825 to its 1997 total of 363,426. In a similar comparison, The News dropped from 354,402 to 236,246 in its most recent report.

Figures were not available from last year, when the strike was still under way. In fact, the strike issues now are in the courts even though both sides seem to think that the strike is over.

The Detroit News, which 30 years ago claimed the largest circulation of any afternoon daily in the country at around 750,000, now seems to be dropping farther behind its Free Press competitor.

In fact, the Free Press still rates as the 20th largest U.S. daily, but The News has dropped out of the top 25.

However, The Sunday News and Free Press, a combined paper under the JOA agreement, is still the nation's eighth largest Sunday paper, but its circulation is only 787,133.

That total is well below the circulation of The News alone in its heyday in the early 1960s when it sold more than 900,000 Sunday papers and even exceeded a million on a few occasions.

But that was prior to the nine-month-long strike in the 1960s that started both papers on a circulation decline, which apparently continues to this day.

Flag etiquette

To the Editor:

In all due respect to a fellow veteran, Bill Stover in his letter to the editor, "Old Glory" could not be more wrong.

The Grosse Pointe Yacht Club's Flag Staff is rigged properly according to nautical flag etiquette.

Stover might check in Chapman's "Piloting, Seamanship and Small Boat Handling," considered one of the bibles in boating or any one of several other authoritative articles on the subject of flags.

Possibly, the author made a high-altitude pass over the club and did not closely observe the fine details of this magnificent flag pole. Incidentally, this flag pole came from the Horace Dodge estate on Lakeshore drive when the estate was being razed for subdividing.

As a former Coast Guardsman and a member of a number of other things nautical, I have had considerable experience with flag etiquette.

Praise to an artist

To the Editor:

The article on Janice Trimpe in your "Pointer of Interest" section was excellent. The Arts Council compliments the Grosse Pointe News for that specific article, and also for continuing and improved coverage of the arts in the Entertainment and Metro Calendar sections.

We would like to add a note of interest. Janice's work is presently on display at Ambleside Gallery, 475 Fisher Road, opposite Grosse Pointe South, and her one-woman show runs through June 21. The gallery is open Tuesday through Saturday, 11 a.m.-6 p.m. For further information, call the gallery at (313) 885-8999.

Proud chaperone

To the Editor:

On May 8 through 12, I had the privilege of accompanying Grosse Pointe North's Concert Choir to New York City as a chaperone. The students were to perform "Requiem" by Durufle at Carnegie Hall on May 12.

As you can imagine, many hours of practice and patience went into getting ready for Carnegie Hall. Grosse Pointe should be so proud of these students who performed so well and represented their school with such pride.

With invaluable knowledge of travel, the students, and New York City, Linda Lloyd put this trip together and troubleshooted for us the entire time.

Thank you Linda, we could not have had such a fantastic time without you. Also, I would like to thank Margaret Steele for guiding the students to this great day and arranging this wonderful experience.

But mostly I would like to thank the students and especially the great kids I was responsible for during the trip. They are the 10 students from Rooms 219A and 231 at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Thanks guys; you are what it is all about.

Thankful appreciation

To the Editor:

It was last week Wednesday, May 14, that we found ourselves in a bit of a dilemma. We couldn't safely remove a ring from a swollen and painful finger of a teenager.

After several unsuccessful calls, we got someone to answer at Kiska's Jewelry store. Even though they were already closed, they listened to our plea for help and suggested we bring the patient right down to 63 Kercheval. As we wheeled the patient into the store, we found father and son, Edward and Kevin Kiska, ready with the "ring-cutter" and pliers. In no time flat they successfully and painlessly removed the ring.

On top of their expert and heroic deed they didn't charge a cent, but stated that they were only too glad to be of help.

We thank Edward and Kevin Kiska for their utmost kindness, helpfulness and going beyond the call of duty.

We appreciate you both and certainly hope that something good will happen to you also.

We live in an inconstant world. When you're young and learning about new things all the time, this doesn't seem so strange.

But when you get older, and you're tired of learning about new things because the old things you knew were perfectly fine. Take for example music. The new music that kids today like. It's hard to keep up with the new bands.

When I hear their music I know why I don't bother anymore. With names like the Flaming Aardvarks and the Exploding Squashes, why bother. Plus I am getting really tired of grown men and women making millions of dollars dressing like skid row junkies. (Granted many of them are junkies, but when I was young, junkies had the decency to try to cover up their habit. Another example of standards dropping.)

Plus, can someone really hear such classics as "A Groovy Kind of Love" too often? I think not.

Being creatures of habit, people grow attached to places. My parents just moved out of the house I grew up in. They are retiring and moving down South to play a lot of golf and get away from the cold Michigan winters. I wish them luck with the hot southern summers, but that's another story.

I Say

my siblings and I have been returning to the ancestral home to help with the preparations. Our work has mostly consisted of going through boxes that we've left at the old homestead when we moved out.

Considering that I am the only child to actually stay in the state of Michigan, there were a lot of boxes. One sister actually came across the remains of the cast she wore after she broke her arm ice-skating. My mother found four pairs of wooden shoes from when we visited the tulip festival in Holland, Mich., in the mid-1960s.

My mother went through all the boxes containing the baby clothes she saved. Two things struck me about those clothes. One was that fashions in the 1970s and 1960s, even for babies, were terrible. The second thing that I realized was that, boy, were we small.

That revelation may strike many as obvious. But it really isn't. As I said earlier, we are creatures of habit, and when you grow up you get into the habit of thinking of yourself as a certain size. Being reminded that you and your siblings were once tiny babies can be disconcerting.

While I didn't live with my parents anymore, I did enjoy going to their home during my lunch hour and raiding the ice-box. I also enjoyed using my dad's computer for tree. When they moved I got the computer, but I also got the bills that go with running it as well.

Now when I drive by the house, it will no longer be by "my" house, or "our" house. It's now the old Stickford place, and in a few years, it won't even be that. The house will be associated with the family that bought it.

While none of this is earth-shattering, it is disorienting. There are few constants in this world, and children, and I am still the child of my parents, on some level always look at their parents' home as one of those constants.

I know that I am lucky. Both my parents are alive. They have been married for over 35 years, and a lot of people my age and younger do not have that constancy in their lives. So while I adjust to my new situation, I must also thank God for all my blessings, parent-wise. No one likes a whiner.

I guess it's like I always said. There are only three constants in the universe, the inevitability of death and taxes, the existence of God and never swing at 3-0. Everything else is up for grabs.

Breaking an old commandment

Whoever did it was pushing his luck with the higher powers, but it looks like someone swiped the Christ Church Antique Show banner right off the church's front lawn sometime between Saturday night and Sunday morning.

Ken Eatherly

"It was about 10 feet long and 3-1/2 feet high, white with green letters," says Sarah Hill, chairman of the event, sounding incredulous that anyone would do such a thing.

"Church staffer Matthew Evtz said it was a Buddha to put up, so it must have been a Buddha to take down," he says.

The event is set for this weekend, with a preview party Friday evening.

If you've seen any sign of that sign, call the church at (313) 886-4841. They'd be glad to come and pick it up.

Big garage, big sale
Despite Sunday morning's cold drizzle, to FYI it looked like Grosse Pointe's Greatest Garage Sale was on its way to a record attendance.

"The rain actually helps bring in the crowds," said Village Association prexy Jerry Valente. "There's nothing else to do but shop."

Whatever they were out for, the City parking structure was jammed with people with that acquisitive gleam in their eyes.

— And they didn't have to be looking for anything in particular. "I'm just wandering around to see what I can find," said the City's Keith Mackenzie.

Nancy Gutierrez, who runs Blue Bay Fish & Seafood in the Park, seemed to be of like mind: Her new-found treasures included some cooking pans (For fish? "Maybe," she said), and a big, round wire cage-like contraption. "It's a mousetrap," explained Nancy, who doesn't have mice.

What are you going to do with it? FYI asked. "I don't know," said Nancy. "But the price was right."

She smiled. "My house is full of things like this."

More menus to the Pointe

Those other places may have an occasional menu item with a Pointe flavor, but the Pointiest has got to be the City's Clairpointe, whose light-green bill of fare reads like a road map of dishes named after local streets.

Even the categories carry the theme, from "Lakeshore Entrees" to "La Belle Pasta Favorites," and from

"Kercheval Side Orders" to a dessert list of "Chalfonte Delights."

FYI especially liked the cleverness of their "Big Mack (Ave.)," a ground round burger; the "ShoreHam," grilled ham & Swiss; the "Three Mile Drive," triple-decker Reuben; and the "Lochmoor Club," a BLT-plus-turkey club sandwich.

The "Green Court" is a vegetarian platter, the "Peach Tree" is a peach and cottage cheese salad, and the "Touraine," is, but of course, a French Dip sandwich.

Plate power in the Pointes

There are about 75,000 customized license plates in Michigan, Secretary of State Candice Miller tells FYI — and sometimes it seems we have about half of them.

Among the latest spotted around town:

- ITSO ME, two-seat Jaguar at Charlevoix and Neff, and ...
- EZZIT, dark blue Ford Expedition on Lakeshore near Moran, both spotted by Leslie Weller.

- SPENSIVE, seen on a VW Golf convertible by the Park's Dr. Mark Johnson.

- BONZRUS, yellow BMW of orthopedic surgeon Dick Scott, on Bishop.

- IDELIVR, white Acura in front of the Christian Science reading room on The Hill.

- SEA PA, on a black Jag XJS convertible on Jefferson near Yorkshire.
- UPTWOU, red Ford pickup parked at the Amoco on the - Hill.

- APPEAL, green Chrysler Town & Country in the First Federal lot in the Village.

- CGARLVR, on a black Jeep Wrangler on Kercheval near the Caribou.

- PRGTORY, dark green Cherokee on Kercheval near Central Library.

- LAB, dark blue Ford Contour on Grosse Pointe Boulevard.

- COZY 1, plum-colored Plymouth on The Hill.

- TOOSEXY, seen on a snazzy red sports car by the Woods' Mary McNair.

- 7TH HVN, dark blue Jeep Cherokee Laredo in front of Caribou

- Coffee.
- SPECTRE, white Land Rover on Kercheval outside Kiska's Jewelry.

- GO BL, gray Chrysler Town & Country outside Hickey's.

- CHEER ND, green Chevy on Cadieux (North Dakota fan?).

- 4PENNST, tan Caddy in the Village First Federal lot.

- UI HAWK, white Beemer with an Iowa "Go Hawkeyes" plate holder, on Lakeshore.

- LIFT, light blue sedan on Lakeshore across from St. Paul's.

- JEEPSTR, black Grand Cherokee on Mack in the Woods.

- 1BADTRK, red Ford Bronco on Jefferson at Cadieux.

If you have an FYI story or have seen a great plate, call Ken Eatherly at (313) 822-4091.

Good environment a boon for all

By Kenneth J. Van Dellen
Grosse Pointe Park

There is much discussion as to whether the proposed new EPA air quality standards are attainable and necessary and how much they will cost.

Regardless of one's position on that issue, I think most people would agree that air is safer when it has less of various gases, liquid droplets and tiny solid particles that ordinarily do not occur in it naturally. It would be terrific if people spent as much time asking how they could lower their personal contributions to air pollution. If we do things that lower our emissions, we would find that we also save money. We can save money, cut down on air pollution, and save energy resources all at once.

The central heating system in a home is a major consumer of energy and source of air pollution. Today's new high-efficiency gas furnaces with insulation and energy-efficient doors and windows can reduce gas consumption in the heating season by 40 to 50 percent.

Instead of using a gasoline-powered lawn mower, edger and trimmer, use electric tools for these jobs. The new electric lawn mowers are powerful and easy to use. They, like electric edgers and trimmers, are quieter, start every time you turn on the switch, produce less air pollution and, generally, cost less to buy, operate and maintain.

Generating electricity produces air pollution, but that can be greatly controlled at the power plant, while gasoline tools have no emission controls. Moreover, small engines emit much more air pollution per hour of operation than a typical auto does.

Personal transportation is a major waster of energy resources and polluter of the air, even with emission controls on vehicles, and the amount of pollution a vehicle emits is generally proportional to its fuel consumption. The current popularity of light trucks (vans, sport-utility vehicles and pickup trucks) for personal transportation will certainly cause an increase in various types of air pollution at the same time that we consume the world's petroleum resources more rapidly.

My car has given me 34.3 mpg, overall, since I bought it, so I saved about $500 last year by not using a vehicle that gets 20 mpg for the 20,000 miles I drove. It was somewhat amusing to hear the people driving inefficient vehicles crying to the president and Congress to save them when the price of gasoline went up a little.

As petroleum gets scarcer, the price will go up a lot more. Do you drive for every little trip? If we have only a few blocks to travel, we can use no energy, produce no pollution and improve our health by walking or bicycling. Combining errands is a good fuel saver, too.

Choosing recreation that lets you use your body instead of riding on a motorized toy is better for both yourself and the environment. Locally, we have many good places for walking, biking, swimming, skating, etc., and when we're up north or on vacation elsewhere, there are opportunities for the same or other types of activities. Recreational activities like these save energy and produce no air pollution and are much less expensive than owning and operating a gasoline-powered recreational device. Furthermore, you can smell the flowers and fresh air and hear the birds while engaging in them.

Such a deal! We can save money and energy, cut down on air pollution, reduce noise pollution and improve our health.

Kenneth J. Van Dellen is professor of geology and environmental science at Macomb Community College.

A star is launched

Delicate is not an appropriate adjective when describing her. Sturdy might be more accurate. She is one of the great joys of our lives and we are sad to be separated by so many miles. Her parents are wonderful about keeping us abreast of the activities of our grandchildren, but there are special occasions that are difficult to miss sharing in person. One such event took place last weekend. It was the first ballet recital of our about to be four-year-old granddaughter.

We called Sunday night to inquire about the performance and our daughter whispered into the phone, "hilarious." The young stars were due at the auditorium for a rehearsal at 8 a.m. on the morning of the recital, which was scheduled for 11 a.m. Still grumpy from being awakened at such an early hour, the young protege crossed her arms in front of her chest, stuck out her lower lip in a pout and froze when asked to take her place. She did not want her picture taken and, with her hands over both ears, told the teacher that the music was too loud. After much cajoling she joined the others and followed her peers into line.

Show time! Apparently, as our young ballerina pirouetted across the stage, she lost her footing and stumbled into one of her fellow dancers. They dropped like dominoes as the audience choked back their laughter and applauded the efforts of the wanna be Margot Fontanges.

At the end of the recital the fathers presented their daughters with bouquets and the young stars peeled off their tutus and went on to a celebratory luncheon. When I spoke with our granddaughter that evening I asked how the recital went. She said, "Good, and I was beautiful." Sounds like a success to these ears. According to my sources the member of the audience who was most captivated by the performance was her four-month old sibling who was mesmerized by the changing colored lights.

We await the video with baited breath.

Woods passes domestic violence ordinance

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

While the necessity of a new ordinance passed by the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council on May 19 dealing with domestic violence may not seem obvious to many, the need for such an ordinance is real, according to Woods municipal Judge Lynne Pierce.

Woods city attorney George Catlin said that the state of Michigan has laws dealing with domestic violence, and that by passing a local ordinance modeled on state laws, misdemeanor domestic violence cases will now fall under the jurisdiction of the Woods municipal court.

Catlin said a misdemeanor is punishable by up to 90 days in jail and or a $500 fine.

Cases may now be prosecuted by the city attorney's office instead of being sent to the county prosecutor's office. The ordinance was passed, said Catlin, at the request of Pierce. "I made the request and approached the council because I believe there is a need for such an ordinance," said Pierce. "As a matter of policy the city likes to prosecute misdemeanors locally, but without an ordinance we can't do that."

The new domestic violence ordinance is based on state laws, said Pierce, so the penalties are the same. One advantage to having a local ordinance is that domestic violence assaults are different from other assault laws. Usually an officer has to get a warrant to arrest someone on an assault and battery charge if that officer did not witness the crime.

But under domestic violence laws, the officer can make an arrest if he or she believes that an assault took place, said Pierce.

"Domestic violence is about control and intimidation," Pierce said. "This ordinance gives the police another option and allows us to go local instead of going through the county prosecutor's office."

One of the difficulties in going to the county prosecutor's office is that they deal with such a large volume of crimes, both felonies and misdemeanors, that it is possible for misdemeanor domestic assault cases to get lost in the shuffle.

Another advantage of having domestic violence assaults under the jurisdiction of the Woods municipal court, said Pierce, is that arrangements can be made to house prisoners in facilities other than the Wayne County jail.

The municipal judge may also determine that the conditions of the defendant's release are met, said Pierce, including no contact with the victim.

"One of the nice things about having a municipal court is that we can enforce local standards," said Pierce. "But one of the problems with having a municipal court is that the legislators in Lansing tend not to write the laws with municipal courts in mind, so passing a local ordinance is a good idea."

While some people may question the need for a domestic assault ordinance for Grosse Pointe Woods, Pierce is not one of them.

"Domestic assault is a crime that cuts across all social, economic and racial lines," Pierce said. "It is not a crime that just happens somewhere else. It happens in the Woods. One benefit of living in the Woods, however, is that we don't have a lot of other crimes, so police and the courts can devote time needed to find a solution."

Proposed Park budget sees modest increases

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Thanks to a lack of new capital expenditure projects, plus some extra state revenue-sharing, and despite the fact that city has also hired a full-time building inspector at an annual salary of $50,000, Grosse Pointe Park residents can expect to see their local property taxes increase by about 1.8 percent.

Park city manager Dale Krajniak said in the past, the city has contracted the building inspection service out, but the council decided that a full-time inspector was needed. The new inspector is Ron Carmona.

The proposed Park budget, which will be voted on by the Park City Council at its June 9 meeting, calls for a general fund budget of about $7.2 million, up from $7.03 million, said Krajniak.

The actual millage rate will decline from 14.41 mills to 14.25 mills, Krajniak said. But because property values in the Park have increased more on average than the rate of inflation over the past few years, residents will be paying about 1.8 percent more in taxes, despite the lower millage rates.

"Inflation for last year was about 2.8 percent," said Krajniak. "We've been able to keep the tax rate low because there haven't been any new big capital expenditures. Also, funds we get from state revenue sharing were greater than the rate of inflation."

While the proposed budget for next year reflects projects and funding priorities set in previous years, said Krajniak, there are a few changes worth noting.

For example, he said, funding for street surface repaving is increasing over 70 percent — from $120,000 to $200,000. The need for street resurfacing has been great over the past few years, and the extra money will be put to good use.

The city will also be purchasing new electronic voting equipment to replace the old-style mechanical voting booths it currently uses to conduct elections, said Krajniak. In the past few years more and more municipalities have been adopting electronic voting equipment, and it has become

Sturgeon study to begin on St. Clair River in June

Fisheries experts and researchers from the Department of Natural Resources, the University of Michigan and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will board the DNR's research boat, "The Channel Cat," during the first two weeks of June to implant radio and sonic transmitters into five to 10 sturgeon in the St. Clair River. The transmitter-implanted fish will be monitored for a long-term study on sturgeon and their habits.

The first step of the study, which is a cooperative venture between Detroit Edison, the DNR, University of Michigan and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, is to find mature sturgeon at least five feet in length and 45 pounds or larger, according to the Jim Diana, professor of Natural Resources at University of Michigan.

Once a large enough fish is caught, two transmitters, one radio and one sonic, will be surgically implanted with an external antenna extending from the fish. The operation to implant the transmitters will be conducted either on "The Channel Cat" or at the DNR Mount Clemens Fish Station.

Sec. of State summer hours

Secretary of State Candice S. Miller announced that all 179 Secretary of State branch offices will be closed on the three traditional summer holidays.

The branch offices will close Friday, July 4, for Independence Day; and Monday, September 1, to observe Labor Day.

The offices will reopen at 9 a.m. on the Tuesday after Labor Day.

Motorists whose driver's licenses or license plates expire during these holidays are encouraged to renew early. Customers can expect the fastest branch office service in midmorning, midafternoon and midweek.

Customers may renew license plates by mail or by fax to avoid a trip to a branch office.

When renewing by mail or fax, motorists will receive tabs by mail within seven days.

This year, boaters renewing watercraft registrations may do so by using a touch-tone telephone and charging fees to Discover, Visa or MasterCard. Watercraft decals are mailed to the owner within seven days. Watercraft registrations may also be renewed by mail or fax.

The Michigan Historical Museum, operated by the Department of State and located at 717 W. Allegan St. in downtown Lansing, will also be closed on Independence Day and Labor Day.

Retiring teacher receives a fond farewell from parents and students

By Ashley Lawrence
Special Writer

The Neighborhood Club nursery school said good-bye and paid tribute to Melissa Maghielse on May 23. She has been the director of the nursery school for 10 years. However, she has been working with children for over 30 years.

Parents, past and present, honored Maghielse for her dedication to their children over the years. A service was held at Elworthy field for the retiring Maghielse. Events coordinator Lil Spencer said, "She's a fabulous teacher. We wanted to do something special for her."

Over the past five months parents have been sending in donations in order to help fund the event. "The parental response was amazing. Parents of former students heard about the event through word of mouth and asked if they could contribute, too," said Spencer.

It was decided that the parents would donate a new piece of playground equipment in Maghielse's name to the City of Grosse Pointe. The piece, to be installed at Elworthy Field is a green and beige climbing and slide apparatus. Once the piece is in place a plaque will be placed on it commemorating Maghielse. According to Spencer, this piece of equipment actually costs $2,500 and with all the parents' donations $1,500 was collected for the play slide.

At this point the City of Grosse Pointe stepped in and offered to pay the remaining $1,000, as well as install the equipment. This is actually part of the city's plan to update the playgrounds in this area. According to Brian Vick, administrative assistant to the city manager, "No definite plans are in place; however, we hope this event is a catalyst and a first step."

Last but not least, what dedication to a teacher would be complete without the students. All the nursery school kids walked across the street to the field for the dedication ceremony, along with a shocked and emotional Maghielse, who apparently had no idea a ceremony had been planned.

Once there, the ceremony began. Maghielse was presented with her gifts, as well as a single flower from every child in her class. "I am totally surprised, flattered, overwhelmed and touched all at the same time," said Maghielse. John Bruce, executive director of the Neighborhood Club, said, "This woman devoted her life to children. We have been fortunate to have her love and dedication at the Neighborhood club for the last 10 years. We will miss her dearly." Diane Knapp, a teacher at the nursery school for 20 years, said, "It was always the children. Thank you so much for sharing your children with us and Melissa, thank you for sharing 10 years with us."

The equipment will be installed in two weeks. However, as a co-worker of Maghielse said, "We will never be able to fill her shoes, they are too big."

OUT OF RECIRCULATION

The exhaust-gas-recirculation (EGR) system, as its name clearly implies, recirculates exhaust gas back through the intake manifold into the engine. There, it acts as a cooling agent to lower combustion temperatures. All this is done with the intention of preventing oxides of nitrogen, which are pollutants, from forming in the engine and being expelled through the tailpipe into the atmosphere. One indication that a car owner has that the EGR system is malfunctioning is that it will give rise to detonation (also known as spark knock and ping), particularly when the engine is cold. Other symptoms of a malfunctioning EGR are hesitation or stalling on acceleration and stalling on deceleration and during quick stops.

Some folks enjoy learning more about how their car works and others wish to leave it to the experts. Whether you like to know the ins and outs of your repair or simply want to drop it off for repair, we'll work with you. At RINKE TOYOTA, you'll find we're there when you need us - that's our promise to you. # City public safety department reports arrivals and departures

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

Several changes are in the process for City of Grosse Pointe's police department.

A newly created position within the detective bureau was authorized in accordance with the city's ordinances, a promotion was made to fill a vacant sergeant position, and a retirement of a long-time officer was announced.

City manager Tom Kressbach and Police Chief Bruce Kennedy congratulate public safety officer David Teolis for 30 years of outstanding service. First appointed to the department Sept. 18, 1967, Teolis retired May 1.

"He was an outstanding officer, who happily and proudly served the people of this community to the best of his abilities," Kennedy said, showing off a beautiful badge that the department commissioned to be made for Teolis that designates his retired status.

Upon retirement, officers must turn in all equipment associated with active duty, including their badge, which Kennedy said is an emotional thing to do. Teolis will be awarded the new "retired status" badge within the next week.

Detective Dennis VanDale has been promoted to the newly created position of Commander of the Detective Bureau. He will oversee Jim Fox who was promoted from public safety officer to the rank of Sergeant in the detective bureau.

Kennedy said that he is pleased to establish the newly created position that VanDale will fill, because he said "creating a clear flow of authority within the department is important."

A clear chain of authority will allow precise and succinct decisions to be authorized and executed regarding investigative procedures. Officers will be clear regarding to whom to direct questions so that work can be done efficiently, which potentially provides swifter justice to both victims and perpetrators of crime. Efficiency also saves the city money. For example, it costs the city money to jail and feed someone charged with a felony. Among many responsibilities, VanDale will be in charge of quickly coordinating with the city's municipal judge for a court time for criminals awaiting a hearing.

Also, the Commander of Detectives' duties shall include, but are not limited to, the following:

- supervisory authority over and preparation of all criminal cases.
- maintaining necessary records relating to criminal activity.
- collecting, preserving and presenting evidence in criminal cases.
- preparation of monthly and annual crime reports for the City of Grosse Pointe.
- working on the locating of missing/lost persons.
- serving as liaison with the courts, prosecutor's office, city attorney's office, and news media in criminal cases.
- conducting crime prevention seminars for city merchants and residents.

• proper recording, preserving and disposition of all lost, stolen, confiscated or miscellathe City of Grosse Pointe police department Dec. 23, 1968. He graduated from the southeastern Michigan Police Chief's academy.

He has been a police officer for 28 1/2 years, all with the City of Grosse Pointe.

Ten of the 25 current City of Grosse Pointe police officers have careers that are exclusively with the city. The city also employs six dispatchers.

Fox was appointed to the City of Grosse Pointe police department on Sept. 9, 1985. He earned his bachelor of science degree from Madonna College, and graduated from Macomb Community Police Academy. Fox is also a member of the department's special response team. Prior to becoming a police officer, he was a member of the United States Marine Corps where he was assigned security duties at the White House during the administrations of former Presidents Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter.

Kennedy said both VanDale and Fox have received numerous commendations throughout their careers.

VanDale said so far he has enjoyed just about everything he has done during his career, but particularly found satisfying following through on an armed car robbery case during the early 1970s that took place at an area grocery store, which involved extraditing the felon from the state of Wyoming where he had fled.

Kennedy said that he is particularly pleased that this new position and promotions have occurred in light of the fact that he is soon retiring.

"It makes me feel great to know that the department is in good hands; it's good to have this kind of direction within the detective bureau," he said. Area residents can count on the Grosse Pointe News for an article to be published in the near future regarding City of Grosse Pointe Police Chief Bruce Kennedy's 20-year career as chief. Prior to being the city chief, he was an officer with Detroit's police department.

A retirement party will be held in honor of Kennedy. The public "is highly encouraged" to attend, city officials said.

Kennedy's retirement party will be held June 27 6 p.m. to midnight at the Barrister House, located at 21801 Harper, between 8 and 9 Mile roads, in St. Clair Shores.

Keep it safe: Wear a life jacket

Secretary of State Candice S. Miller is reminding boaters and other water recreationists to always wear a life jacket.

"Something as simple as putting on a life jacket can ensure that everyone has a safe and healthy season on the water," Miller says. "It's a decision that saves lives."

To heighten the importance of life jacket use and to recognize this past Safe Boating Week, Miller joined officials from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, U.S. Coast Guard, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and Michigan Sheriffs Association for a special ceremony at Selfridge Air National Guard Base.

"Last year, 20 people died in boating-related accidents in Michigan," Miller says. "Accidents and capsizes can happen quickly. A life jacket is of little help in an emergency if it is left onshore or inappropriately used."

Nine out of 10 drowning victims were not wearing life jackets, and 75 percent of marine deaths nationally are due to drowning, according to the U.S. Coast Guard.

These tragic figures can be drastically reduced if boaters keep these safety tips in mind, Miller explained.

• Buy your own life jacket and use it. One size does not fit all.

• Inflatable life jackets, which were approved for use by the U.S. Coast Guard this year, are designed to be less bulky than conventional jackets. They are not recommended for children and nonswimmers.

• Never use water toys in place of a U.S. Coast Guard-approved life jacket.

• Check life jackets annually for proper fit and discard any that are rotted, mildewed or leaking air.

• Michigan law requires every child under age 6 to wear a life jacket or buoyant vest while a boat is underway.

• Michigan law also requires a life jacket for anyone on or towed by a personal watercraft.

"By following these important tips and obeying the rules of the water, residents can have a safe and worry-free summer enjoying Michigan's beautiful lakes, bays and rivers," Miller concluded.

SEQUENCE

Howard J. Emerson

A memorial service was held on Wednesday, April 30, in Great Bend, Pa., for former City of Grosse Pointe resident Howard J. Emerson, who died in his home in Pennsylvania on Saturday, April 26, 1997.

Mr. Emerson, 83, was born in Scranton, Pa., and worked as a banking specialist for IBM for 40 years. He remained active after retirement when he moved back to Pennsylvania and was appointed to the Susquehanna County Housing and Redevelopment Authority, serving as chairman from 1976 to 1995.

Mr. Emerson was a member of the Grosse Pointe Congregational Church, and he and his wife would have celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on June 19.

Mr. Emerson is survived by his wife, Ruth; a daughter, Fran; two sons, H. Judd and C. Robert; a brother, C. Richard Emerson; a sister, Mrs. Clifton Olson; 12 grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the Bartron Funeral Home of Montrose, Pa. Memorial contributions may be made to the Hospice Unit of Lourdes Hospital, Binghamton, N.Y., 13905.

Douglas Garrick Graham Sr.

Douglas Garrick Graham Sr.

A funeral service will be held on Friday, May 30, at 11 a.m. in St. James Lutheran Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Grosse Pointe Park resident Douglas Garrick Graham Sr., who died in St. John Hospital in Detroit on Saturday, May 24, 1997.

Mr. Graham, 72, was born in Detroit and graduated from Grosse Pointe High School in 1942. He received his business degree from the University of Michigan in 1948 and his law degree in 1951. He was a member of the Theta Xi fraternity.

Mr. Graham enlisted in the U.S. Army during World War II after serving a semester at U-M.

He served in the 21st Photo Reconnaissance Squadron in the South Pacific theater. After law school he joined the firm of Butzel, Levin, Winston & Quint, which later became Butzel Long.

Mr. Graham stayed with the firm for 39 years, specializing in securities and broker/dealer litigation and shopping center leasing and commercial litigation.

An active member of the community, Mr. Graham was appointed to serve on the Grosse Pointe Park City Council in 1967.

He stayed on the council until 1983, and was elected mayor in 1981. He continued to serve on the Park planning commission and was a trustee on the Grosse Pointe Park Foundation.

Mr. Graham was also a member of St. James Lutheran Church in the Farms, and was twice elected president of the congregation.

He also served as the president of the Munderloh Foundation, an organization that provides financial assistance to Lutheran ministerial students, for over 20 years. An avid golfer, he also belonged to the Lochmoor Club where he served as secretary to the board of directors.

Mr. Graham is survived by his wife, Janet; five sons, Douglas Jr., David, Daniel, Dean and Dale; a brother, Donald; two step-daughters, Diane and Ellen; four step-sons, Kevin, Christopher, Peter and Daniel; and 11 grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the Chas.

Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park. Memorial contributions may be made to the Evans Scholarship Fund, C/O The Lochmoor Club, or to the St. James Lutheran Church Barrier Free Fund, or to the charity of the donor's choice.

Angel Ash

Angel Ash

A memorial service was held in Grosse Pointe Baptist Church in Grosse Pointe Woods on Tuesday, May 27, for City of Grosse Pointe resident Angel Ash, who died in her home after a long struggle with cancer on Friday, May 23, 1997.

Mrs. Ash, 44, was born in Colorado Springs, Colo., where she met her husband, a cadet at the U.S. Air Force Academy. After a three-year courtship, they married after Lt. Ash's graduation from the academy in 1972.

For the next 20 years, thanks to the Air Force, they and their daughter traveled around the country and around the world.

Mrs. Ash was very active in every community in which she lived, volunteering with the Red Cross and the Girl Scouts, as well as being a Sunday school teacher and serving as a counselor to troubled youth. The family moved to Grosse Pointe after her husband's retirement from the Air Force.

Despite her illness, Mrs. Ash was able to be a volunteer in the Grosse Pointe South Mother's Club, and she worked as a counselor at a Pregnancy Aid clinic, as well as serving as a Sunday school teacher and a vacation Bible school teacher for Grosse Pointe Baptist Church. She also volunteered at Cornerstone Schools in Detroit, where she was a tutor and a teacher's aide.

Mrs. Ash is survived by her husband, George; a daughter, Allison; her parents, Louis E. and Myra D. Smith; and two sisters, Georgia Hand and Glenda Peterson.

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to Cornerstone Schools, 1209 Washington Blvd., Detroit, Mich., 48226.

Josephine Sesnie

Josephine A. Sesnie

A funeral Mass was celebrated in St. Paul Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Farms on Tuesday, May 27, for Farms resident Josephine A. Sesnie, who died in her home of cancer on Wednesday, May 21, 1997.

Mrs. Sesnie, 59, was born in Detroit and was a graduate of St. Florian Elementary and High School, as well as the University of Detroit in 1960. She completed her post-graduate studies at Wayne State University.

Mrs. Sesnie worked for Warner Lambert Pharmaceuticals in the research division and was a member of several organizations, including the American Society of Microbiologists, the American Society of Clinical Pathologists, the Sigma XI

Society, and she was the education coordinator for the Michigan branch of the American Society for Microbiology, as well as the national society.

An active member of her church, she belonged to the St. Paul Altar Society, the Grosse Pointe Farms Boat Club, the Polish Aid Society and the Polish Women's Alliance.

She also taught St. Florian school children religion in CCD classes, and served as a University of Michigan Women in Science mentor. She enjoyed reading, travel and arts and crafts.

Mrs. Sesnie is survived by her husband, James; a sister, Sophie Sobson; 21 nieces and nephews and 12 great-nieces and nephews.

Interment is at Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit. Funeral arrangements were handled by the A. H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Rose Cancer Center, 3601 West 13 Mile, Royal Oak, Mich., 48073.

Authors offer a multitude of advice on aging-related issues

Much has been written about the needs of senior citizens. Good housing, proper nutrition, proper transportation, health maintenance, and social contacts, have all been subjects of books, articles and pamphlets.

In "Life's Second Half" Jerome Ellison presents what he considers an important factor in successful aging. Ellison, who is 70 and a former editor of Reader's Digest, believes it is possible for older people to improve the quality of their lives by joining friendship societies where men and women meet to read, discuss and reflect on serious subjects.

"In a group where people come together to extend their knowledge of themselves and the world about them, older citizens can become more as they physically become less," says Ellison.

Based on this theory, Ellison founded the Phoenix Society, a think tank for the dynamics of aging.

"Experience has demonstrated that the two great killers of later years are meaninglessness and loneliness," he writes. "By providing regular and congenial companionship on a deeply meaningful level, the Phoenix Clubs meet both of these primary needs."

It is not a structured organization. Anyone who is interested in serious discussion can initiate a group. However whether one would like to form a group or not, Ellison does make some important points in his book.

"Older people are different from other minorities in that they are a minority that we shall all eventually join," says

Ellison. Therefore it is expedient, he believes, that we all, no matter what our age, support activities which contribute to an old age that is blessed with the peace of personal fulfillment.

Ellison contends that growing old can be a rewarding undertaking but it is also a strenuous one.

Indulgences in trivial pastimes will not do it. The mind must remain active.

He quotes the Swiss philosopher Jung: "Nature would not have given mankind the great extension of years unless it had a special purpose... We are given those years to enlarge and expand our consciousness, to increase our awareness and understanding of the universe of which we are a part."

Although the author is convinced that all men and women are capable of solving problems based on self-education, there are times, especially during periods of challenge, when the individual needs a supportive social climate.

This is when group discussion can be valuable. More can be gained by the friendly and intelligent interest of a congenial group than from a lecture or instruction.

A problem which might come up in a group is anger. Ellison rates anger as the greatest barrier to peace of mind. He believes that anger leads to depression.

Temporizing will not be worked off, run off, bullied or quarreled off. It must be consciously worked on.

This can be accomplished in four stages:

- Acceptance — Accept what cannot be changed.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

- Forgiveness — Forgive ourselves for being angry.

- Aggression — Only when it is motivated by a desire to help yourself or others. There are calm intelligent ways to stand up for what we believe without being angry.

- Reprogramming — Anger is a habit. Identify and acknowledge anger as something to get rid of rather than something we're giving up. Anger can feel good when it is definitely not good.

- Reprogramming is repeated affirmation. Sometimes simply repeating a saying works, such as "I cannot get the happiness I really want by being angry."

- Another item discussed is death. One of life's greatest fears is fear of death. If we belong to a church, we are taught that there is life after death.

- Ellison sustains that belief by presenting the findings of various authors. According to Jung, it is desirable to think of death as only a transition — one part of a life process whose extent and duration escape our knowledge.

- Elisabeth Kubler-Ross, in her book "On Death and Dying," identified five stages observed among the dying patients in hospitals: denial,

- anger, bargaining, depression and acceptance.

- Continued research led to the discovery of an astonishing "sixth stage." After acceptance of death comes the discovery of life.

- Dying patients consistently evidence glimpses of continual life beyond the physical-material plane. This finding led to another book: "Death the Final Stage of Growth."

- In this work, Kubler-Ross concludes "Only the body dies. The self or spirit or whatever you wish to label it is eternal."

- Dr. Raymond Mody in his book, "Life After Life," on cases of patients who have died and been revived, reports on the continuance of life. Acceptance of these facts based on documentation can eradicate fear of death.

- With these reassurances of continuing life can come acceptance of age and all its implications.

- Not to acknowledge it is a strenuous activity. One cannot have peace of mind if one is constantly fighting truth.

- Another truth that must be accepted is the power of the mind over the body. Recognizing this truth can be particularly helpful in weight control. If you want to win the ultimate victory over age, you have to bring your body under control of your intelligence.

In body control the next in importance is exercise. It need not be strenuous or elaborate. Training without straining is the key, but it must be done regularly.

The principle in both diet and exercise is the same as in good motoring; take proper care of the vehicle you're using to carry you to the end of the journey.

Relaxation is also important. Victory over old age cannot be won without pauses. Edison outlines three relaxation techniques while reminding us that five minutes that you do is better than 20 minutes that you should do but don't.

The time intervals he recommends are monthly when you set aside a sufficient block of time to really get into it and become relaxed as you've never relaxed before. The second is for daily use and requires only 15 minutes.

The third is something you can do in momentary snatches while waiting for a traffic light to change or whatever spare moment may come your way.

It is obvious from these writings, by those who have pondered long and deeply about what makes later years better years, that the path we follow to make those years all we wish them to be must be charted.

Helen Quinn Markey

A funeral Mass was celebrated in Holy Name Church in Birmingham on Tuesday, May 27, for City of Grosse Pointe resident Helen Quinn

Markey, who died on Saturday, May 24, 1997.

Mrs. Markey, 89, was born in Huron County and was a teacher in the Detroit public school system.

She received her BA from Wayne University and was a member of Our Lady Star of the Sea Parish.

Mrs. Markey belonged to the Bon Secours Hospital Assistance League, the League of Catholic Women, the Detroit Yacht Club and the Children of Mary Society.

Mrs. Markey is survived by three daughters, Mary Ann Stokes, Margaret Lyons and Kathleen McDonald; five sisters, Lucille Harper, Clara McMann; Betty McGowan; Jean Talaski and Eileen Ruff; two brothers, Dr. John Quinn and Dr. Charles Quinn; and four grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Capuchin Monastery, 1740 Mount Elliott, Detroit, Mich.

NO BONES ABOUT IT, BON SECOURS IS A STEP ABOVE THE REST.

As one of Michigan's leading joint replacement facilities, Bon Secours Orthopedic Specialty Center performs over 350 hip and knee procedures each year. This means keeping in step with the latest orthopedic care techniques.

The first step is prevention. Our orthopedic education programs are designed to keep our community stepping lively by sharing preventive information and comprehensive treatments available through the Bon Secours Orthopedic Specialty Center.

We'll Take You Every Step of the Way.

- We staff some of the nation's top orthopedic surgeons specializing in complete knee and hip joint replacement.
- Our full range of comprehensive orthopedic services are designed to meet your needs - from hip and knee, to neck, spine and back programs.
- Our new state-of-the-art low-radiation DEXA X-ray unit measures bone density and detects osteoporosis.
- Our Progressive Orthopedic Program (POP) walks you through every aspect of your hospital experience from pre-operative consultation through the recovery period.
- You can count on personalized, post-operative care. Our professional team of nurses, physical and occupational therapists will get you back on your feet as quickly as possible - one step at a time. The discharge coordinator determines a specific strategy for extended care before you go home.

1997 Ford Mustang GT V-8 convertible epitomizes Goldilocks paradox

Every once in a while — rarely, like once in a decade — we test a car that just seems right. Everything about it is exactly right. And the price is reasonable.

A lot of cars are excellent, but may have features or styling or something that is not perfect. The last time I tested a car that seemed like it was made to my specifications was in 1988. I bought it, a 1988 Chevrolet Cavalier convertible.

Once again, my ideal car is a convertible. Expensive luxury sedans are currently the hip thing with men in my age group, but I still have a childish love of convertibles. The 1997 Ford Mustang GT V-8 convertible is just right, even its sound. It looks good, it is fun to drive, it is fast and it is not too expensive for such a car.

Base price for a Ford Mustang GT Convertible is $24,510, including destination charge. Other Mustang base prices for 1997 are coupe, $15,880; GT coupe, $18,500; convertible, $21,280; Cobra coupe, $25,860; Cobra convertible, $28,660.

Ford Motor Co. is marketing a particularly fine lineup of cars right now, from Escort on up to Lincoln and its top-line sport-utilities. The Explorer has been refined to a very fine state, the Escort is an excellent entry-level car and the Mustang is more fun and more pleasant to drive than any of the other high-performance sports cars I have driven.

Ford has tweaked out the few minor flaws which never really bothered me much, but without them the Mustang experience is greatly enhanced.

There is a nostalgia about the V-8 Mustang. It feels very much like a '60s muscle car, more like a Pontiac than a Ford, but it has '90s control, handling and stability. It is very responsive, it never runs out of pedal and has a satisfying deep-throated rumble as it loafs along at 70 mph at 1,800 rpm.

The 4.6-liter V-8 puts out 215 hp at 4,400 rpm. You will rarely come close to that if you stay off the tracks. It is not as fast as a Chevrolet Camaro, but unless you're racing, the difference doesn't matter. The Passive Anti-Theft

The '97 Mustang GT V-8 is as much fun as it looks — maybe more.

System has been added to all Mustangs in an attempt to decrease this vehicle's extremely high theft rating.

The thieves like it for the same reason we solid citizens like it — it's a great looking car, with tire spinning performance.

There is no doubt that the Mustang GT is one of the user-friendlier sports cars on the road. It is easy to control and its 4.6-liter single-overhead-cam V-8 is willing and eager. Our test car was equipped with a slick-shifting five-speed manual.

The interior is a sports car masterpiece with large clear gauges, great seating position and clear view of the road.

Autos

By Richard Wright

The dashboard is a study in simplicity, with gauges, cruise control, and climate control dials in easy reach.

The seats are high and upright, a noticeable departure from the sit-on-the-floor position of most racy coupes and convertibles. Good lateral support keeps the driver and front seat passenger planted in twisty corners and adjustable lumbar support for the driver's seat makes long commutes bearable.

Rear seat occupants should be children or dogs. There is little foot and leg room in back. But, this is a sports car.

Trunk room, a problem for most sports cars, is better than average in the Mustang which offers 10.9 cubic feet of cargo space. Split-folding rear seats increase this car's utility.

The Mustang GT is a great fair-weather car. With the top down (or up, for that matter), its powerful engine allows easy passing, and its precise steering makes it easy to exploit narrow openings in traffic. Acceleration from a standstill is dramatic with the optional 17-inch wheel and tire package.

Our test car was equipped with anti-lock brakes, which were impressive with their stopping power and durability. As you might surmise, we had a lot of fun with this bright red machine. Despite its flashiness, we got no tickets (and I got a speeding ticket once in a Chevette diesel).

Wet weather cruising calls for caution, however. A light back end and rear-wheel drive mean that instead of burning a little rubber, you may do a 360 on wet pavement. (We didn't.)

The '97 Mustang V-8 convertible is a delightful piece of machinery with a beautifully retro shape.

Anyone looking for a fast, fun car with a bit of history should seriously consider the Mustang.

'Orphan car' show opens '97 season

Opening the 1997 summer classic car season in this area will be a show of automotive "orphans" — cars no longer manufactured — Sunday, June 1, along the banks of the Huron River in Ypsilanti's Historic Depot Town.

Co-sponsored by the Ypsilanti and Ypsilanti Area Visitors and Convention Bureau, the show will feature examples of Ypsilanti's rich automotive history, including a 1948 Tucker Torpedo, developed by Preston Tucker about five blocks from the show site. The event is co-chaired by Randy Mason, retired curator of the Henry Ford Museum, and Jack Miller, whose Miller Motors in Ypsilanti is the last remaining Hudson dealership.

Also on display will be other hometown products built by Kaiser-Frazer Corp., which produced cars at nearby Willow Run from 1946-1953.

One of the featured "orphans" will be a rare 1936 Stout Scarab, a strange-looking bus-like vehicle described as "like riding in your living room furnished with tables and upholstered chairs." Only 10 were built.

And, of course, there will be Hudsons. Ypsilanti's tie with Hudson is through Jack Miller, the world's last Hudson dealer. Miller has kept his dealership just the way it was in 1958, when the firm dropped its American Motors franchise, right down to a

This 1951 Frazer was also built at Willow Run. The maker was led by industrialist Henry J. Kaiser and automotive executive Joseph Frazer.

The dealership, where Miller still buys and sells Hudsons and Hudson parts, was recently acquired by the Ypsilanti Automotive Heritage Museum, located next door to the dealership at 112 E. Cross Street.

The one-day show will feature about 100 cars and will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The museum will benefit from a $2 admission charge.

German cars rank as best

Consumers consider Germany the best vehicle-producing country in the world. Japan and the United States rank second and third, respectively.

Mercedes-Benz is the most highly regarded automaker, followed by BMW. General Motors now equals Toyota in perception as the industry's most successful company.

These are the some of the conclusions drawn from a sample of the world's car buyers in the second edition of the Global Automotive Image Survey, conducted by Market Opinion Research (MOR) of Farmington Hills.

This worldwide study of car owners, first conducted in 1995, measures awareness and image of automotive companies and brands and provides automakers with a global consumer perspective on the automotive industry.

Findings from the MOR survey indicate that global awareness of automotive companies is extremely high.

This 1953 Kaiser Manhattan was built the last year the corporation produced cars at the Willow Run plant. Kaiser-Frazer started in 1946.

Federal Reserve takes no action; economy just right

The big news last week was no news!

The Fed, at its bi-monthly meeting on May 20, voted to leave interest rates unchanged. So LTS has no egg on its face after boldly predicting "no action" in this article last week. The next meeting is in July.

Mengden

The markets rallied after the no-change from the Fed but, overall, the week was a seesaw as traders generally try to even out their positions in advance of the long holiday weekend, lengthened by some who played hooky another day or two.

Everyone's been waiting for the good ol' summertime, but most of us are still waiting for spring. The old timers are talking about the summer rally in stocks, usually late summer! But then in some years, "some-are" and "some-are" not rallies!

How high is high? It all depends on your perspective. If you're standing outside looking up at a rain cloud and getting wet, it's pretty dismal, dull and depressing. On the other hand, if you've got a window seat on a jet airplane, looking down at that same cloud in the sunshine, everything's bright, cheerful and optimistic.

The stock market is something like that, too. You can look up, or look down. Two analysts looking at the same data come up with opinions 180 degrees apart. One says, "The glass is half empty," the other says, "It's half full." In times like these, keep your perspective positive!

Teach your kids about investing

LTS recently found a tattered and torn article, yellowed from years of hiding in the drawer. But are the truths in it just as good now as they were way back when?

1) Don't be greedy: When you have a substantial profit, take at least some of it. Nobody consistently manages to buy low and sell high.

2) Start early: A modest percentage of income put aside and invested can compound into millions over a working lifetime.

3) Make common stocks the core: Few investments are as volatile but, historically, few appreciate as much and keep you so far ahead of inflation. With individual shares, or mutual funds, spread the risk among different industries, even different countries.

4) Keep at it — dollar averaging works: If you buy stocks regularly, you'll sleep well whatever the market does. When stocks are low, you get more shares for the same money, and they are sure to go back up again.

5) Buy companies that do things better than anyone else: If they dominate their market, they may be high-priced, but good-quality stocks are like any other kind of valuable merchandise: Sometimes you can get them on sale!

6) Watch the asset mix: Stocks, bonds, real estate and gold don't all go up, or down, at the same time. When one of them gets so high that it bends your portfolio out of shape, take some profit and put that cash into whatever is cheap by comparison.

7) Buy real estate where you know the values: Limited partnerships can get tricky fast. For a sure, and simpler, thing, buy the lakefront lot you know up north, or the woods lot down the road. Use REITS to diversify.

8) Husband your borrowing power: If you're leveraged to the hilt, you'll be helpless when an extraordinary opportunity

Locally made video shows Arabic culture

Arabic contributions throughout history from the "cradle of civilization" to modern times have been considerable.

Michigan Food & Beverage Association (MFBA) has produced a 23-minute video on Arabic heritage as public service to help promote better understanding and knowledge of the Arabic people and their contributions to the world.

Edward Deeb, a Grosse Pointe Woods resident, and president of MFBA, said "although one cannot deal entirely with all the contributions made by Arabic civilization in a single tape, we do deal with quite a bit of information and knowledge."

"Those who are of Arabic heritage will enjoy the video tape, and those who are from other cultures, will find it ideal for providing background information and understanding of the ancient Arabs and their heritage," Deeb said.

"Since many people in the food business are of Middle Eastern background, i.e., from Syria, Lebanon, Iraq, Jordan, Egypt, Palestine, and other nations, we thought this video would provide good background for schools, teachers, cultural groups, universities, libraries and individuals," he said.

The video, titled "From A to Z: Arabic Contributions to the World," is produced by MFBA in cooperation with Warren David Worldwide Communications. Deeb is executive producer of the video.

Subjects covered in the video tape include Arabic food, music, architecture and design, math and science, literature and fashion.

This special tape is available free to schools, libraries, and universities by writing to MFBA, 31201 Chicago Road, South, Ste. A-301, Warren, MI 48093. Individuals may purchase the video for $12.95 each, plus $2.05 handling costs.

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Robert Marowske, chairman and Founder of Flame Furnace, announced that his company has been awarded the "Dave Lennox Award" for the third consecutive year.

Each year, Lennox Industries, Inc. awards its highest honor, the Dave Lennox Award, to dealerships offering the highest standards of quality and customer service.

Flame Furnace is one of the top 16 dealerships in North America to receive this prestigious honor.

Marowske will be honored at a special presentation this week in Naples, Florida.

Presenting the award will be Lenox Industries President and COO Bob Schjerven and comes along.

9) Don't confuse speculation with investing: The world's wealthiest people aren't traders but builders, people who stayed in a business and reinvested in it. Anyway, even if you trade a lot, the commissions and capital gains taxes will kill you!

10) Don't increase outgo dramatically when income rises: The more you spend on the country club and round-the-world cruises, the less you'll have from your highest earning years for your retirement, your heirs and your charities.

Accumulating wealth and passing it along to the next generation may be important, but so is teaching your kids about investing as they themselves grow up!

Dividend reinvestment plans

LTS has been asked, "What is a dividend reinvestment plan (DRP) and how does it work?"

In its most simple form, you already have a DRP if you have a money market fund (with check-writing privileges) at your brokerage firm, or a money market checking account at your bank.

The most advantageous feature of a DRP is that the receipt of dividend or interest income is automatically credited to the account and reinvested, so that the earnings compound in the next period, without any effort on your part. This automatic compounding is the driving force.

If you own mutual fund shares and have joined the certificate-less society by leaving your shares at the fund in "book-entry" form, you probably checked "Yes" in the box titled "Reinvest Dividends." It's a do-nothing world now that you opened the account and the third consecutive year," Marowske said.

Established in 1949, Flame Furnace specializes in heating and air-conditioning installation and service throughout the Detroit metropolitan area. The company is headquartered in Warren and has a staff of 110 employees.

Then they will purchase shares without commissions, equal to your cash deposit. If your company pays a cash dividend, it will be reinvested by purchase of additional shares without commissions. The shares are held in "book-entry" form, and the accounting statements are almost identical to mutual fund statements.

mailing the cash deposit. Upon receipt of the fund's quarterly cash dividend, the fund automatically purchases new shares at the "offer price" equivalent to the cash dividend. Fractional shares are issued, out to three decimals (11.389 shares). You receive in the mail a quarterly statement detailing the transactions. The next quarter's dividend is paid on the increased shares held, etc., etc.

But did you know that many companies offer a DRP to their shareholders? To find out if your favorite company has one, call or write the corporate secretary or the investor relations department.

Where? Your public library has a business section. Ask there, for the Standard & Poor's "tear-sheets." Alphabetically, find the "tear-sheet" for your company. On the bottom of the backside is a listing of the company's mailing address and phone number.

If your favorite company has a DRP, you will open a new account for you with a maximum cash deposit of, maybe, $10,000.

Business People

Grosse Pointe Park resident Susan Gawel recently has been appointed to loan officer with Republic Bank at 18720 Mack in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Gawel

As a loan officer, Gawel will help people with all their mortgage financing needs. The bank officials said they are pleased to have Gawel, a long-time Grosse Pointe resident, working at their branch.

Gawel is active in numerous local groups at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, Junior League of Detroit, Metropolitan Children's Museum, and Grosse Pointe Public Schools.

Previous to Republic Bank, Gawel worked for Tranex, Inc. based in Southfield.

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Michele Manley-Klippstein recently has joined in a partnership as one of a team of investment consultants at the Grosse Pointe Woods office of McDonald & Company Securities, a large regional investment broker dealer headquartered in Cleveland, Ohio.

The new partnership, between her husband Tom Klippstein — an individual investment consultant and senior vice president at McDonald & Company — and his wife, is called Klippstein & Manley-Klippstein.

Michele Manley-Klippstein is vice president and investment consultant at McDonald & Company.

Prior to this position, she was vice president and broker/dealer-national accounts manager for Van Kampen American Capital in Oakbrook, IL.

McDonald & Company Securities is an investment firm specializing in all aspects of financial planning for individuals, corporations and municipalities. Services offered include estate and retirement planning, mergers and acquisitions, and comprehensive investment advice.

Manley-Klippstein will focus her efforts in two key areas. First, she will concentrate on developing retirement plans for both large and small businesses including 401(k)s, profit sharing, Money Purchase Pensions, Individual Retirement Accounts and Simplified Employee Pension Plans. Second, recognizing that women often have unique investment needs, she will focus on educating and working with women.

Manley-Klippstein earned her bachelor of science degree in business administration from Babson College in Wellesley, MA.

McDonald & Company Investments, Inc. (NYSE:MDD), through its principal subsidiary, McDonald & Company Securities, Inc., operates a regional investment banking, brokerage and investment advisory business with 44 offices nationwide. The company, through its wholly-owned subsidiary, McDonald Trust Co., provides personal trust services.

Grosse Pointe Park resident Lola Glass Graves recently was appointed to the Detroit-Wayne County Community Mental Health Agency's 12-member board of directors. The appointment was made by Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara.

Graves, who has a bachelor's degree in psychology from the University of San Francisco and a law degree from Wayne State University Law School, is a partner with the Detroit firm of Cross Wrock. Her practice includes health care, commercial litigation, immigration, probate, environmental law and zoning.

Grosse Pointe Woods resident Michael D. Jennings, D.D.S., has been elected president-elect of the 5,500-member Michigan Dental Association (MDA).

He was voted into this position during the MDA's 140th annual meeting held recently in Grand Rapids.

Jennings, a general dentist, has served as treasurer of the MDA and has been a member of the MDA Board of Trustees since 1991. He is also a member of the American Dental Association House of Delegates.

An active member of the Detroit District Dental Society, he is a past president and has served on numerous committees. He is a fellow of the Academy of General Dentistry, and a member of the Pierre Fauchard Academy and Delta Sigma Delta Fraternity.

Jennings graduated in 1977 from the University of Michigan School of Dentistry.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Lost rings
A resident in the 600 block of Sunningdale reported on Tuesday, May 20, two rings worth about $4,000 that she left on her kitchen table were missing.
The victim told police that workman repairing her roof went in and out of the house while working.

The incident remains under investigation.

Airbags taken
A resident in the 2000 block of Brys in Grosse Pointe Woods reported to police that between 12:30 and 6:30 a.m. Monday, May 19, someone broke into the car parked in her driveway and stole both the driver's side and passenger's side airbags.

Rash of stolen blank checks
Grosse Pointe Woods police are investigating several reports of blank checks being stolen before they reached the home of the customer who ordered them.
The two most recent incidents were reported to police on Tuesday, May 20, and Monday, May 19.

The Tuesday incident was reported by the mother of the victim. She told police that her daughter ordered some new checks from a local bank in mid-April, but they did not arrive until mid-May.
Upon receipt of the checks the victim noticed that the box they came in appeared to have been opened and resealed with clear packing tape. When she counted the checks, she discovered that 25 were missing. She called the bank and learned that $600 worth of checks had already been cashed.

A similar incident was reported on Monday, when a resident of the 1800 block of Manchester told police that she ordered two boxes of checks, but only received one box in the mail. When the bank was contacted, the victim learned that $2,000 worth of checks were recently cashed. Both victims immediately closed their accounts.
Grosse Pointe Woods police are working with the U.S. Postal Service to determine when the checks were stolen. Possible locations include the printing plant, the post office and from people's homes after delivery has been made but before the mail has been picked up.

Keeping kids safe should be everyone's highest priority

By Sen. Spencer and Mrs. Jane Abraham
Basic child safety precautions against careless injury can make a major and vital difference in protecting our children's health.
As the parents of three young children, we take these precautions very seriously. That's why we believe the National SAFE KIDS Campaign is so important. May 10-18 was National SAFE KIDS Week 1997, dedicated to educating parents about the little things they can do to drastically decrease the threat of injury to their children.
To illustrate the importance of this cause, consider the following facts.
Unintentional injury is the

No. 1 killer of children 14 and under. Every day, more than 38,000 children are injured seriously enough to require emergency medical treatment.
That is more than 14 million each year. These statistics are all the more tragic because so many of these accidents could have been prevented with basic child safety education.
These numbers are as high as they are because many of us who live in Michigan, do not know or do not practice basic child safety precautions.
Among the findings of a recent nationwide survey was that most parents of young children have protective gear for their children to prevent various injuries, but do not use them properly.

Moreover, many families have safety devices in their homes, but do not keep up with basic maintenance to ensure they are operational at all times.
For example, 98 percent of parents surveyed report they have smoke detectors in their homes. But only 29 percent say they always check the batteries each month.
Nearly half of all home fires and three-fifths of all fire-related deaths in the home occur in the small number of homes that have no working smoke detector.
And, almost half of all Americans do not consistently practice a fire escape from their home.

Another problem area is auto safety. Motor vehicle accidents are the leading cause of injury-related death among children. The back seat is the safest place for children to ride in a car with or without an airbag. Yet less than half of parents surveyed always have their children ride in the back seat.
Parents can reduce the risks to their children from a potential accident by simply insisting their children take the back seat.
Installing smoke detectors and checking them regularly, using car safety seats properly, and putting children in the back seat; these are just a couple of examples of what we can do to look out for our children's safety.

To help parents and caregivers learn about appropriate safety gear and how to use it correctly, the National SAFE KIDS Campaign has developed a new information pamphlet called the SAFE KIDS Gear Up Guide.
The Gear Up Guide gives parents and caregivers the knowledge they need to make their homes and play areas safe for their children.
Each page depicts a different childproofed setting where children live and play, such as a nursery, kitchen, bathroom, living room and pool and the safety precautions and gear vital to making and keeping those settings safe for children.
The Gear Up Guide is now available across Michigan through state and local SAFE KIDS Coalitions, various retail venues, as well as in each of my Michigan district offices.

With three children all under the age of 4, we know from experience the importance of getting accurate, comprehensive safety information.
I urge all Michigan families to review this important injury prevention tool to make sure we are all doing everything we can to protect our children.
Spencer Abraham is a Republican Senator from Michigan.
His wife Jane is the Honorary Chairperson of the Detroit SAFE KIDS Campaign. They have three children; twin daughters Betsy and Julie, 3, and son Spencer, 9 months.

Special Writer

Set amid the background sounds of bagpipers, musicians and festivities, the 13th Annual Christ Church Antiques Show will open Friday, May 30, and run through Sunday, June 1.

Located in the Grosse Pointe South High School gymnasium, the Antiques Show will feature the wares of 44 exhibitors from 14 states, offering furniture, art, silver, china, linens, quilts and maps and artifacts for collectors of all kinds.

A Preview Party for patrons will begin Friday, May 30, from 7 to 10 p.m. will give partygoers first look at the array of items for sale; tickets for the preview are available in advance or at the door.

Ticket prices for the party vary. A $250 (Archangels) ticket guarantees a special 6:30 p.m. early admission to the preview, admission to both days of the show, and all special events. A $75 (Gold Angels) ticket secures a 7 p.m. admission to the preview and entrance to both days of the show. For $45 (Silver Angels), ticket holders can attend the 7 p.m. preview party and admission to the show on Friday evening.

Christ Church has worked diligently over the years to cultivate the event, which has a reputation for showcasing antiques of consistently high quality. This year, for the first time, 17 dealers have donated select items from their collections for a silent auction, which will be open for bids from Friday at 7 p.m. to Sunday at 3 p.m. The public is encouraged to participate.

On Saturday, May 31, at 9:30 a.m., interior designers Kristen Catto Armstrong and James Evan Williams will discuss "Attention to Detail: Layers of Classic English Decoration" at a continental breakfast in the Undercroft of the Church, also known during the Show as the "Angel Cafe."

Admission to the breakfast and lecture is $10, and also includes access to the show all day.

Saturday In addition, the Angel Cafe will be open for lunch from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, and from noon to 3:30 p.m. on Sunday. Tea will also be served from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. both days.

The garden tent, just outside the main exhibit, will sell a variety of garden plants and decorative accessories.

To make reservations for either the Preview Party or the Saturday breakfast lecture, call (313) 885-4841.

After the Antiques Show has closed and the exhibitors take their treasures to other places, organizers of the event will begin to allocate the funds generated.

A portion of the proceeds goes to the Christ Church Beyond

Co-chairs for the 1997 Christ Church Antiques Show are Linda Stone, at the left, and Pam Partridge.

Parish Ministry. This outreach program, in existence for many years, was redefined in 1987. It now more clearly reflects the church's desire to reach out beyond parish boundaries and lend a hand to philanthropic organizations in metro Detroit.

According to chairman Keith Mackenzie, the program strives to support a variety of groups, including Crossroads, Alternative for Girls, Habitat for Humanity, the Mariners Inn, and SOC (Services for Older Citizens). These humanitarian establishments seek funds through grant applications, which are reviewed periodically by the ministry committee.

The Antiques Show proceeds which are funneled into the Beyond Parish Ministry are given directly to those organizations

Historical society awards plaques

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society awarded bronze plaques to the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, above, and the T.H. Hinchman House, below. The society began awarding historical markers in 1986 to Grosse Pointe landmarks in recognition of their significance. To date, 34 businesses, residences and sites have been honored because of their historical and architectural value, their continued preservation or as examples of adaptive reuse.

The Edsel & Eleanor Ford House was chosen not only for its significance as the home of one of Detroit's auto barons, but also for its architectural and landscape design and for the role it continues to play in the Grosse Pointe community.

The T.H. Hinchman House was built in the 1920s by Theodore Hinchman, a partner in the architectural firm of Smith, Hinchman & Grylls.

The plaques bear the image of the society's logo, a French windmill that stood on the shore of Lake St. Clair in the 1700s. The windmill was designed by Natalie Bakunovich and the markers were designed by J. William Gorski and cast in bronze by F.E. Kilgus & Associates.

Recipients of the plaques in other years include the Sacred Heart Academy, Defer Elementary School, the Cadieux Farmhouse, St. Paul's Cemetery and the Beverly Gates.

Members of more than a dozen local garden clubs got together May 21 for the annual planting day at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Trial Gardens.

The Grosse Pointe Garden Center sponsors the Trial Gardens, which consist of individual plots grouped around an 18th century millstone, below. Each plot is planted and maintained by a different Grosse Pointe garden club.

The theme of the Trial Gardens this year is "Butterfly Gardens." Chairman is Beverly Donaldson.

Participating clubs are: Trowel & Error Garden Club, Windmill Pointe Garden Club, Grand Marais Garden Club, Grosse Pointe Park Garden Club, Deeplands Garden Club, the Garden Society Garden Club, Grosse Pointe Shores Farm & Garden Club, Grosse Pointe Garden Club, Herb Society Garden Club, Grosse Pointe Farm & Garden Club, Rose Tenders Garden Club and the Pointe Garden Club.

G.P. United Church honors youth director

A Service of Recognition was held at Grosse Pointe United Church on May 18 to honor Sara Gagen. She was recently granted a license by the Metropolitan Association of the United Church of Christ to be at the call of the association to provide pulpit supplies with authorization to serve communion.

Gagen was granted the license (one of only two in the association) because she successfully completed the STEM program, the licensed ministry program, and an interview by the Division of Church and Ministry. This program was designed to meet the need of any lay member of the association congregations who wants to be more involved in ministry and serve local congregations in that capacity.

Gagen is currently in charge of the church school and youth program at Grosse Pointe United Church.

Antiques

From page 1B whose applications have been approved. The money is used for things like tutorial programs, gift exchanges for needy children and general program operation.

"There are a lot of people who benefit directly from the funds generated by the Antiques Show," said McKenzie. "Without this financial boost, we would not be able to continue the level of support we have been able to provide thus far."

The Christ Church Choir is the other beneficiary of the Antiques Show. Choirmaster Frederic DeHaven has a distinguished background, with degrees from the University of Michigan and Juilliard in organ performance and choral conducting. He has been the organist and choirmaster at Christ Church since 1975, and is in charge of recruiting, auditioning and organizing all performances for the group.

Since 1981 the Boys' Choir has taken turns with the Girls' Choir in embarking on international tours to various European countries, singing liturgical music composed as far back as the 16th century. The young choristers are always accompanied by the Men's Choir and some of their wives; DeHaven and his wife Sharon; a nurse; a banker; and a carefully selected group of college-aged chaperones.

This summer the Choir of Men and Boys will tour England, Wales, Ireland and Scotland, singing in a variety of cathedrals and in Westminster Abby. The two-week trip will also include a Celtic Pilgrimage, where the group will learn about the spread of Christianity throughout the British Isles. DeHaven is enthusiastic about these ventures, and said that the chance to perform some of the most beautiful liturgical works composed in the history of religious music is an invaluable opportunity for the children.

DeHaven chooses choir members carefully. Boys may audition when they are 8 years old. If they acclimate to the first year of rigorous four-day-a-week rehearsals, they can expect to keep singing well into adolescence. Girls may audition when they reach the sixth grade. For both groups, there is the guarantee of singing at the weekly Sunday services with the Men's Choir, as well as opportunities to perform at weddings and funerals.

The English liturgical music is complex. DeHaven expects a high level of discipline, maturity and commitment from the boys and girls — and they are usually eager to meet his expectations.

The first international tour took place in 1981, when the Choir of Men and Boys sang at St. Paul's Cathedral in London the day after the marriage of Diana and Prince Charles. The trip was subsidized by the proceeds from numerous small fundraisers.

It was apparent that a more efficient and profitable method would be necessary if more trips were to be planned.

The idea of an antiques show was originally suggested by church member Susie McMillan. The success of the first show in 1984 was undeniable, and that summer the Choir of Men and Girls traveled to Italy and Switzerland.

"There is no doubt in my mind that without the Antiques Show, we would not be taking these trips," DeHaven said. "Besides the obvious pleasure of performing in some spectacularly beautiful churches, the children are exposed to the history and culture of a region. The educational opportunity is fantastic."

Many of the graduates of the choirs have gone on to study music in college and have attained a level of distinction in their professional careers that was certainly enhanced by their years of work under DeHaven. Some have maintained local connections while others live and work overseas.

General admission to the Christ Church Antiques Show is $6. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, May 31; noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, June 1.

'Art on the Pointe' is June 7-8 at Ford House

More than 100 artists from all over the United States will gather in Grosse Pointe Shores Saturday and Sunday, June 7 and 8 on the picturesque grounds of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, 1100 Lakeshore.

The 14th annual Art on the Pointe, a juried fine art show and family fun fair, expects to attract 10,000 people.

Sponsors of the fundraiser are the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center and St. John Health System. Funds will be used for community mental health programs of the Northeast Guidance Center. The center addresses a range of problems faced by children living in northeast Detroit, including anxiety disorder, attention deficit disorder, chronic mental illness, depression, school absenteeism and substance abuse.

Artistic selections will include works in acrylic, oil and watercolors featuring paintings, photography, basketry, stained glass, pottery, dolls, sculpture, ironworks, dried flower arrangements, hand-crafted jewelry, fiber art and more. Prices will range from $3 to more than $3,000.

New this year is the Disney Ink & Paint Tour, a demonstration of the art of inking and painting animation cels, presented by Gallery Animato and Walt Disney Art Classics. Artists will produce images from classic Disney films like "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Pinocchio" and the newest animated feature, "Hercules."

The Disney tent will also offer a selection of collectible animation cels from Disney, Fox, Hanna-Barbera and Warner Brothers. Times for the demonstrations are 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. each day.

Children will be able to create their own masterpieces in a crafts tent operated by Arts & Scraps. Children's entertainment will feature The Chautauqua Express, The Amazing Clark Puppet Show, Magician Gordon Russ and Marc Thomas with Max the Moose.

Guests may also choose to take a guided tour of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, for a small additional fee.

Picnic foods from National Coney Island will be available to purchase and guests can take a chance on a raffle.

Chairmen of the Assistance League's annual benefit are Kyle Clor of Grosse Pointe Shores, Debbie Dubay of Grosse Pointe Woods and Madeleine Socia of Grosse Pointe Farms. More than 100 volunteers have worked on the event.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days. Admission to Art on the Pointe is $3; children under 10 are free. Parking is available for $1 directly across Lakeshore from the Ford house. A percentage of funds from the parking will be used for Kiwanis Club projects.

For those interested in a party, Art on the Pointe's "A Taste of the Islands Party" will be held at 7 p.m. after the first day of the art fair, Saturday, June 7, at the Activities Center of the Ford house. Guests are invited to wear island attire and enjoy a tropical feast, an open bar and another raffle. Tickets are $60 a person.

For more information about Art on the Pointe or the A Taste of the Islands party, call (313) 824-5699.

Pre-Prix: The Grand Prix Ball, a benefit for the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts, will be held on Thursday, June 5, in the Riverfront Ballroom of Cobo Center.

Guests will be treated to cocktails, dinner, dancing and entertainment in anticipation of race festivities that will occur on Belle Isle on the weekend. They'll also get a chance to meet and mingle with Indy car and Trans Am drivers.

Funds will be earmarked for the Music Hall, which provides programs such as the Dance Theatre of Harlem

The Pastor's Corner

Faith healing?

By the Rev. John Corrado

Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church
Healed by faith — can someone who is non-traditional, not a fundamentalist, or a New Ager be healed by faith? He certainly can, according to the Rev. Dan Aldridge of the All Souls Unitarian Church of Washington, D.C. Dan tells of a kind of healing that may even convince those who have been turned off by religion.
Here's how Dan tells the story:
Dave was a member of my church and a dear man. I received a message from him. He was in the hospital. He had AIDS. The prognosis was not good. I had trouble dealing with such bad news about such a good man. I phoned him as soon as I got the news. Caught up in my own feelings, I blurted out something that immediately seemed stupid. "How are you feeling, Dave?" I said. Before I could recover to say something more sensible, Dave responded, "I feel great!" "You feel great? How is that?" "My faith has healed me?" "How has your faith healed you?" "I know I am dying because I am human. I am not dying because I am a sinner. I am not dying as a punishment. I am dying because it's what human beings do."

Rocks don't die. Mountains don't die. Human beings die — every one of them.
It doesn't happen because of your theology. It doesn't happen because you are a "sinner" or "bad." The acceptance of the human without the overlay of theological oppression or guilt gilding — that is a significant part of the healing, "saving," liberating gospel of free religion.

St. James Lutheran Church begins parish nurse ministry

St. James Lutheran Church of Grosse Pointe Farms installed Kathy Ruth of Grosse Pointe Park as its first parish nurse. The Rite of Installation was performed May 4 by the Rev. Troy G. Waite, pastor of St. James.
In contemplating her role as parish nurse, Ruth said, "God has called each one of us in many different ways to carry out His work on Earth."
The parish nurse concept was introduced in Illinois more than a decade ago by the Rev. Granger Westburg, a Lutheran pastor and hospital chaplain. Granger witnessed first-hand the delicate balance of whole health as related to the mind, body and spirit.
Nurses are "in touch" with their patients and have demonstrated many times their awareness of the spiritual need of their patients. It became apparent to Granger that a nurse could effectively work in the church using a preventive health focus. A parish nurse then is able to work in the connectiveness of mind, body and spirit through a community of faith. In this community the focus is in keeping the mind, body and spirit well. We cannot help each other, if our own health is not well.
As parish nurse, Ruth will serve not only as health educator and counselor, referral source and facilitator to St. James, but also to the surrounding communities as needs present themselves.

On May 4, parishioners of St. James Church were given a Whole Health Assessment survey to help Ruth identify and address whole health concerns and plan the Parish Nurse Ministry. Blood pressure screenings were also made available to all present.
A registered nurse, Ruth earned a degree in nursing from Wayne State University in 1987 and is a member of the Sigma Theta Tau International Nursing Honor Society, Lambda chapter.
Ruth worked as an assistant nurse manager at Grace Hospital in Detroit from 1991-1997.
"Both St. James and this community are blessed to have such a dedicated and committed professional as Kathy Ruth working for it," Waite said.

Church women plan luncheon

The Board of Church Women at First English Ev. Lutheran Church will host the women of the church and the community at its annual spring luncheon and program on Wednesday, June 4, at noon in the church fellowship hall.
The program will feature Laurie Leithausen Danforth presenting her slides and commentary of a trip to Nepal and its capital, Katmandu, and to Bangkok, Thailand, including Hindu and Buddhist temples, medieval towns, a visit to Royal Chitwan National Park, and five days in the Himalayan mountains rafting and camping.
Reservations for the luncheon are due by Sunday, June 1. Call Dorothy Craig at (313) 886-1069, or Polly Dill at (313) 881-7881.

Concert offered at First English

The annual spring Music Sunday at First English Ev. Lutheran Church on June 8 at 9:30 a.m. will feature Francis Poulenc's "Gloria."
The performance of the 20th century hymn of praise will include orchestra, soprano soloist and the Good News Singers of First English. A free-will offering will be taken, and a coffee hour will follow in the lounge. Nursery service is provided for children to age 4. First English is located at 800 Vernier in Grosse Pointe Woods. Call (313) 884-5040 for further information.

Surviving cancer Hope for the future

By Debra Lipowski Hart
Special Writer

This column is generally reserved for experts. Whether in the field of cardiology, gerontology or obstetrics/gynecology — this column has hosted some of the best local health care experts in our area.

So what am I doing here? I'm a director of technical services and client support at St. John Hospital and Medical Center's Information Systems department. And while I consider myself to be good at what I do for St. John, I also think of myself as an "expert" in a very different field — cancer survivorship.

That's right. I'm 41 and a cancer survivor.

I was first diagnosed with breast cancer at the age of 39. I was probably a lot like most of you. I had a busy life — a single mother of one, with a nice career and a busy calendar. I made time for my regular visits to the gynecologist (give or take a few months). I wasn't so regular with my breast exams, though. And my health, while fairly important, was not a first priority.

Debra Lipowski Hart

That all changed the day my doctor told me he suspected a malignant tumor in my breast. It threw me into a tailspin.

I was determined to get my hands on all the information I could so I could make an informed decision about next steps. I realized this was real and the more knowledge I gained, the less fear of the unknown there would be.

I talked to surgeons, oncologists, plastic surgeons, radiologists, nurses and other cancer survivors. I guess you could say I had "information overload." This was the period in my illness I found to be most confusing.

Once the surgery was over, I could look back and realize that the worst part really was behind me. It was all the choices and possibilities leading up to the surgery that were so difficult.

Six months of chemotherapy followed my surgery and there were lots of peaks and valleys — good days and bad; high points and low. I was fortunate to have a very supportive network of family and friends to help me along.

If you or someone you love is facing a diagnosis of cancer, I have some advice as an "expert" in cancer survivorship that I think will be helpful:

First, when looking for a doctor, look for someone who is supportive and knowledgeable. Ask your doctor if he or she is involved in any cancer research or participates in clinical trials for the treatment of cancer.

For day-to-day advice on how to "fight the good fight," I have these few tips: Take one day at a time - if need be, take it one hour at a time. Whatever it takes to get you through the day.

Set small goals - sometimes getting out of bed or getting dressed can be a chore. But achieving small goals can be very rewarding in your healing process. Know your limits and don't be too hard on yourself if you fall short of your goals. Remember, there is still tomorrow.

Follow your doctor's advice - it's important to keep communication open between you and your doctor. His or her medical experience and knowledge is an excellent resource for you. Keeping a journal of your recovery can help your doctors and nurses to adjust your treatment plan as needed.

Don't be afraid to ask questions. Never feel like your questions, concerns or fears are irrelevant. You have a right to ask your doctors questions and to know that you will get answers you understand. Remember, you are in charge.

Talk with other survivors. You are not alone in this disease. Talking with other people who have gone through cancer can be a valuable resource for alleviating some of your fears and concerns. Just remember not to let this advice take the place of your doctor's orders without first talking with your physician.

Ask for help when you need it. I left this one for last because I think it's quite possibly the hardest thing to do. We all want to feel independent. We worry that asking for help is a sign of weakness. It's not.

In fact, it's part of knowing what your limits are. And remember that allowing friends or family to help you is probably therapeutic for them. Friends and family members can't make your cancer go away so they often feel helpless. Allowing them to lend a hand every now and then can prove to be good for all of you.

It's been one year now since my chemo concluded and I have to say, life looks pretty darn good. I'm now married to a wonderful man who stood by me through the whole process, my daughter is thriving and I am alive and filled with hope for the future. Every day now, I celebrate the fact that I am alive — that I am a survivor. I hope you will, too.

Each year more than eight million cancer survivors in this country celebrate life and survival on Cancer Survivors Day. As part of the national celebration, St. John Health System is hosting a Cancer Survivors Day Celebration with a carnival theme from noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, June 8, at Grosse Pointe North High School.

This annual event, sponsored this year by Saturn of Warren, recognizes cancer survivors and acknowledges those professionals dedicated to cancer treatments, research and supportive services. The celebration is free to survivors and one guest. Each additional guest costs $7. Preregistration is required due to limited space.

To register or for questions about cancer, call St. John HealthLine toll free at (888) SJS-LINE between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., weekdays.

Bon Secours offers pulmonary, cardiac rehabilitation programs

Bon Secours Hospital offers the following classes for strengthening muscles and providing endurance training as part of its ongoing pulmonary and cardiac rehabilitation programs.

Asthma Education Program

This course is offered to asthmatic children and their parents. It is designed to provide information about asthma and how it can be managed effectively. The three-session course will be Thursdays, June 5, 12 and 19; July 3, 10 and 17; and Aug. 7, 14 and 21. Call (313) 343-1594 for more information. There is a $10 cost per family. Adults with asthma curious about management of their disease, can call the same number for additional information regarding adult course offerings.

Pulmonary Rehabilitation Program

A physician referral is required for this educational exercise program for people with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. For more information, call (313) 343-1594 between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

Cardiac Rehabilitation Program

A physician referral is needed for this educational exercise program for people likely to develop heart disease and those recovering from cardiac illness or surgery. For more information, call (313) 343-1594 between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m.

American Lung Association Breather's Club

This free educational support group is for people with chronic obstructive lung disease such as emphysema, bronchitis or asthma. The group meets on the third Monday of the month from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Bon Secours Hospital Connelly Auditorium. You may join at any time. There is no charge. For more information, call (313) 343-1594.

Bon Secours offers nutrition counseling

Bon Secours Hospital will offer a two-session class designed to provide useful information on healthy dietary guidelines for low-fat eating. Topics will include the use of the food-guide pyramid, counting fat grams, reading nutrition labels, dining out and low-fat snacking.

The class will be offered from 6 to 8 p.m. June 3 and 10 in the Bon Brae Center Classroom, 22300 Bon Brae in St. Clair Shores. The importance of incorporating exercise and stress management into a healthy lifestyle also will be discussed.

The cost is $25 a person and includes the "Shopping Guide Book." For more information or to preregister, call Bon Secours Community Health Education at (810) 779-7900 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., weekdays.

Individual nutritional counseling sessions conducted by a registered dietitian will also be available to discuss weight reduction, diabetic and cardiac diets, and lowering your cholesterol level. The fee is $45; $40 for 55PLUS members. Call (313) 343-1917 for more information or to make an appointment.

Bon Secours presents 'Boundaries' workshop

Everyone has his or her limits. Sometimes people cross these limits — not because they want to, but because they can't seem to control their actions... especially when it comes to helping others.

Learn how to "draw the line" with family, friends and coworkers by attending a "Boundaries" workshop with Dayre Horton. The seminar will take place from 7 to 9 p.m. on Mondays, June 2, 9, 16 and 23 at the Bon Brae Center Classroom, 22300 Bon Brae in St. Clair Shores.

Horton will discuss how participants are not responsible for other people's problems, only their own. This will help them focus on helping people, not rescuing them.

"We have a lot of people who are taking responsibility for other people," said Horton. "They need to recognize that they are responsible for themselves, not others. This is what 'boundaries' are all about."

"People need to wait for others to ask for help before jumping into someone else's life. And then when they do help, it should be in a caring, supportive spirit, not a controlling one."

For more information on this four-session seminar, or to preregister, call Bon Secours Community Health Education at (810) 779-7900. The cost is $40 a person.

Grandparenting class offered

Bon Secours Hospital will offer a free grandparenting class at 7:30 p.m. Monday, June 2, in the Bon Secours Hospital Connelly Auditorium.

Today's childbearing couples are being taught many things that are the exact opposite of what the soon-to-be-grandparents were told when they became parents. For more information or to register, call (810) 779-7900.

Your Skin

by Lisa A. Manz-Dulac, MD

Ringworm has nothing to do with worms.

Ringworm is, in fact a fungal infection whose symptoms are easily overlooked. Often hard to detect, lesions appear as a ring with a smooth center, along with a red, scaly border. Ringworm also itches and flakes, and is sometimes mistaken to be dandruff.

Ringworm is treated using antifungal medications. Oral medications are often used in conjunction with antifungal lotions or shampoos to ease symptoms. While the rings may start to fade, it is important that patients continue medication for 6-12 weeks to ensure a complete cure.

To learn more about ringworm contact your dermatologist, or call us at Eastside Dermatology, Dr. Lisa A. Manz-Dulac and Associates (313) 884-3380.

SEQUENCE

A bevy of adventures beckons right here in Michigan

Memorial Day has passed, the youngsters will soon be out of school and you are beginning to plan your summer vacation. right? But right away you run into the complications of soccer practice, flute lessons, swim team and grandma's surgery. You soon realize that maybe you won't be able to take that driving trip to South Dakota after all.

Fear not. Michigan and Ontario offer a wide variety of vacation options, most of which can be done in a week or less. Pick one of these trips and the whole family will be able to participate and you still won't miss out on maybe more than one or two practices.

Traverse Tall Ships:

What fun — a family sailing vacation and you don't have to do any work. Let the crew of the Manitou handle it all for you. Based in Northport, the 144-foot schooner offers sailing trips all summer long for 3, 4, 5 or 6 days. The ship accommodates 24 passengers in 12 cabins. Children over age 8 are accepted, and on special family sailings (June 12-14, June 19-21) they cost only $99. The usual rate is about $100 per person per day.

If you are not sure that you would like this kind of trip, why not head for Traverse City on June 8 for the seventh annual Great Lakes Tall Ship Festival. On this day, five tall ships will convene in Grand Traverse Bay. Shoreside festivities begin at 11 a.m. and include a barbecue rib cook-off, live music and nautical displays. Plus you can get a good look at these ships up close. The Parade of Sail on the lake takes place from 2 to 4 p.m.

If you'd rather just take a day trip or find out what it's like to sleep on a ship, then book a night on the tall ship Malabar, based in Traverse City. This ship operates as a bed-and-breakfast and also offers a variety of day sails. To book either the Manitou or Malabar, contact Traverse Tall Ships at (800) 678-0383; e-mail tallship@traverse.com or visit www.traverse.com/tallship/ on the Internet.

If you are an experienced sailor but don't have the time to get your boat all the way from Grosse Pointe to the Straits, then you might consider chartering a vessel from Bay Breeze Yacht Charters. That company, also based in Traverse City, has 21 sailboats for charter, ranging from a J-22 (available for day sails only at $159/day) to a Morgan 45 ($945/day including captain). Off-season rates (30 percent discount) are available on charters before June 27 and after Aug. 30. Bay Breeze also offers an extensive sailing school program, which might appeal to your teenagers. Call (616) 941-0535.

Michigan Bicycle Touring:

Biking trips have been all the rage for quite some time now, but even before their recent surge in popularity, Michigan Bicycle Touring was running quality trips around our state. Now in its 20th season, MBT is offering 20 trips this summer, designed for all ages and cycling experience.

Whatever tour you choose, MBT takes care of the details with ride notes, maps, leaders, meals and accommodations — all you do is pedal. Best of all, you can pedal at your own pace, without worrying about keeping up.

Some trips included hiking as well. For example, on the Porcupine Mountain Wayfarer, you bike three days and hike two, one trip along the Little Carp River to Lake Superior and the other along an escarpment to the awesome Lake of the Clouds ($699-$749).

Trips are either two days or five days and some also include canoeing, kayaking, hiking and mountain biking. And not all trips are in northern Michigan or the Upper Peninsula; the Saugatuck Amble features the southwestern part of the state, while the Mendon Amble are both centered around Kalamazoo. Children are welcome on most trips. MBT publishes a comprehensive brochure. To obtain a copy, call (616) 263-5885 or visit www.bikembt.com on the Internet.

Bay View Association:

When most people think of Bay View, they think first of those fancy period homes located between Petoskey and Harbor Springs. Often they entirely overlook what Bay View really is: a chautauqua that offers all kinds of stimulating lectures, concerts, theater and other programs throughout its summer season.

So this summer plan to spend a few days at Bay View, taking in one of the many programs and spending some time strolling along the shores of Little Traverse Bay and taking a walking tour of this community, which was designated a National Historic Landmark in 1987.

Excellent bed-and-breakfast accommodations are offered at either Stafford's Bay View Inn (616-347-3413) or at the Terrace Inn (800-530-9898). Bay View's program season opens June 22 and features performances by such visiting artists as Eugenia Zuckerman (Aug. 8), a series of plays, an opera and many special events. For a 1997 program,

Egan Houseboats: Or

how about a family trip through the Trent-Severn Waterway in Ontario on your very own houseboat? Egan Marine owns and operates Sunburst Houseboat Rentals from their own marina facility in the heart of the Kawartha Lakes, northwest of Toronto.

Two types of boats are offered: The Sea Hawk 36 sleeps six and the Sea Hawk 40 sleeps eight. Each boat has dual steering (it can be operated from the roof deck or inside) and each has a shower and fully-equipped galley. Basically, the smaller boat is good for couples and the larger boat for a small family.

Ron Egan, owner of the company, says he can train anyone to operate one of these vessels within a few hours. Trips can be booked for either 3, 4 or 7 days. Most of the shorter trips cost $799-$999 (Canadian) and the full week costs $1,199-$1,499. Prices drop considerably in September. The Trent-Severn Waterway offers 240 miles of protected cruising through 20 lakes, rivers and canals. Each lock has a park where you may tie up for the night. Egan has a 45-minute video available if you want to preview your adventure.

For more information, call (800) 720-3426 or visit www.houseboat.on.ca on the Internet.

Beaver Island: One of my first trips ever as a travel writer was to Beaver Island, that remote piece of land in Lake Michigan just off the northwest tip of the mitt that can only be reached by plane or ferry. I borrowed a car and drove around the island that day and I clearly remember this extremely large turtle (about a foot long) crossing the gravel in front of me. I waited nearly an hour for he/she to complete the trip, and that is just about how fast things happen there, which is why it is so charming.

To help folks with their first visit, the Beaver Island Boat Co. offers a one-day tour that includes admission to the Mormon Print Shop and the Marine Museum. You must take the first ferry (from downtown Charlevoix) and the tour bus leaves shortly after the ferry's arrival on the island. A one-hour tour costs $8 (not including ferry), the package tour costs $43 (with r/f ferry, lunch at an island restaurant and short tour) and the extended tour is $53 (the tour portion goes around the island). Reservations are recommended. The round-trip ferry fare for adults is $30, and $15 for children 5-12.

For more information on the ferry and island tours, call (616) 547-2311. For information on Beaver Island, call the Chamber of Commerce at (616) 448-2505. There are a couple of motels, cabins for rent and campgrounds on the island if you desire an overnight stay.

Cynthia Boal Janssens is president-elect of the Society of American Travel Writers.

Piano recordings range from sublime to ridiculous

Murray Perahia: Music of Handel and Scarlatti (Sony Classical) Rating: ★★★★★ (out of 4)

New York-born Murray Perahia, my favorite living pianist, brings a consummate artistry to everything he plays, including this latest CD. His tone quality is warm and ripe and his obviously secure technique should allay the fears of fans who became worried a few years back when he canceled some performances because of an injured finger.

Perahia's previous recordings have demonstrated his expertise with standard repertoire from the Classical and Romantic periods. This time he turns his attention to two Baroque masters.

Handel's keyboard music is rarely played these days, and Perahia's pristine performances of three suites and a chaconne make you wonder why. The selections emerge as solidly crafted, highly inventive and full of lyricism. He separates the music's polyphonic strands so they speak clearly and, through deftly-timed tempos, reveals the sometimes pompous personality that lies at the heart of much of Handel's music.

He injects mature wit into seven Scarlatti sonatas, turning these miniatures into major masterpieces. So compelling is his playing that I found myself replaying some of the sonatas before venturing further into the CD.

Those misguided souls devoted to so-called "authentic" performance practices will no doubt be aghast at Perahia's full-blooded use of the wide-ranging properties available on a modern concert grand. That's a pity, because by the end of the CD the listener has accumulated all sorts of new knowledge about Handel and Scarlatti. Now, Murray, how about some Bach?

Margaret Leng Tan: The Art of the Toy Piano (Point Music) Rating: ★★★

The Singapore-born Tan is mistress of the toy piano, that small version of a real piano whose sound is produced by wooden mallets striking metal bars.

Intrigued with its unique qualities, the Juilliard-trained Tan regularly plays it in public, often in programs of music composers have written expressly for her.

While much of the music on this CD is whimsical (Raphael Mostel's Star-Spangled Etude No. 3, for instance, pokes great fun at our unsingable national anthem) Tan proves that her odd instrument can be more than a child's toy.

Among the charmers: Toby Twining's "Nightmare Rag," an arrangement of the Beatles' "Eleanor Rigby" and the opening movement of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," which would probably make Schroeder envious.

Some advice: The CD is best enjoyed a bit at a time, since it's difficult to listen for extended periods to an instrument with such a severely limited range of sound quality.

David Helfgott: "Brilliantissimo" (RCA)
Rating: No stars

How wonderful it would be to be able to say that David Helfgott, the Australian pianist whose mental breakdown is detailed in the Oscar-winning film "Shine," has overcome his difficulties and has developed into a worthwhile pianist.

Unfortunately, such things happen only in the movies. In real life Helfgott is a seriously disturbed man of meager talent, a prodigy who for whatever reason has failed to fulfill the promise of his youth, an innocent who is being ruthlessly exploited by his wife, his manager and a huge public relations blitz designed to capitalize on the film's success.

Helfgott recorded this sad CD, devoted to 16 showy selections, in Australia in January, before he began the worldwide tour that has produced uniformly bad reviews from just about every major newspaper along the way. The faults evident in his 1995 recording of Rachmaninoff's Third Piano Concerto are magnified here: severe technical slips, frenetic tempos, abrupt volume shifts and superficial interpretive ideas that are long on dazzle but short on substance.

Chopin's "Raindrop" prelude lurches from measure to measure, its lyricism overshadowed by banal playing. Mendelssohn's Rondo Capriccioso loses most of its personality in a student-like reading that stresses the first beat of each measure and pays more attention to left-hand harmonic support than to the wondrous melodies that should be singing from the right hand. Rachmaninoff's transcription of Rimsky-Korsakov's "Flight of the Bumble-Bee," which Helfgott mauled in a live performance during this year's Oscar telecast, is not much better here.

It's as if Helfgott is saying, "See? I can get through this music!" What he gets through, in fact, are most of the notes, resulting in the sad spectacle of a slightly talented man apparently unaware of the cruel way in which he is being used.

South booters slip by North in second overtime

By Chuck Klionke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South girls soccer coach Mark Hamilton had one word to describe his feelings when he saw Nicole D'Hondt's header go into the Grosse Pointe North goal with 3:26 left in the second overtime period of Friday's district championship game at Roseville.

"I was relieved. That's the best way to describe it," Hamilton said after D'Hondt's goal had given the Blue Devils a 2-1 victory and sent them into the regional this week at Rochester. The championship game will be played Friday at 7 p.m.

The players from both teams were probably relieved, too. Both schools had their proms scheduled for last Friday evening.

Hamilton was relieved because South controlled play for much of the contest, but after 80 minutes of regulation and nearly two 15-minute overtimes, the crosstown rivals were still tied.

"In all respect to (North), we controlled the last 50 minutes and played the way we wanted to, but couldn't score. That was frustrating," Hamilton said.

The last thing he wanted to see was a shootout and that would have been the next thing on the docket if the game was still tied after the two overtimes. "I hate to have a shootout decide a game like this," he said. "That's not what the game is all about — having five players shoot at the goalie."

North took a 1-0 lead with 21:54 left in the first half, but Anne Peacock got behind the South defense and beat goalie Caitlin Shapiro.

South tested North goalkeeper Molly Peters several times late in the first half, but she always came up with the save. The Norsemen's sweeper, Julia Rouls, also broke up several of the Blue Devils' scoring chances as she played an outstanding game.

South finally tied the game 7:13 into the second half when Courtney Schafer converted a crossing pass from Hannah Wenzel.

Shortly after Schafer's goal, Shapiro made one of her toughest saves of the game as she deflected Liz Tymrak's shot over the net.

Schafer was just wide after a setup by Abby Fox with about 11 1/2 minutes remaining in regulation and Rouls stopped Schafer's breakaway attempt in the closing minutes of regulation.

Peters twice stopped D'Hondt and also turned back Courtney Lytle's scoring attempt in the first extra period.

Fox, Wenzel and Schafer had shots for South in the second overtime, while North's best scoring chance in the period was a free kick by Rouls that was just wide. But D'Hondt ended the suspense with her goal that came after a restart.

"That was a set play that we work on," Hamilton said. "I'm proud of the way everyone played. I can't just single out individuals. Everyone who was on field — and even the girls on the bench — contributed."

Hamilton felt the slow start might have been a result of the anticipation of the prom and also the high emotions that surrounded a North-South game.

"Both schools had proms and I'm sure that's why we came out flat," he said. "But we were able to overcome the psychological aspect."

Hamilton wasn't surprised that the game was as tight as it was. North had won the Macomb Area Conference White Division title, while South was a contender in the MAC Red.

"You know it's always going to be a good game when North plays South," he said.

"We'll each have our up and down years, but when we meet, none of that matters. You go into the game knowing it's going to be tough." South reached the championship game with shutout victories in the first two district rounds.

Fox, Schafer and D'Hondt scored the goals and Shapiro recorded the shutout as the Blue Devils began district play with a 3-0 victory over Fraser.

Wenzel scored twice and Carrie Howe and Melissa Brown added a goal apiece in South's 4-0 victory over East Detroit. Once again Shapiro was perfect in goal.

North rolled past Cousino, then beat Regina 1-0 to earn its spot in the championship game.

Grosse Pointe South's Courtney Schafer battles an East Detroit player for the ball during the Blue Devils' 4-0 district victory over the Shamrocks.

First varsity season is South laxers' most successful

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

This has become a season to remember for Grosse Pointe South lacrosse.

Not only is it the team's first year with varsity status, but it's the most successful season in the school's history.

Last week, the Blue Devils beat East Lansing 9-5 in its first-round game in the state Class B tournament to improve their record to 14-5.

"We're hoping to go all the way to the Class B title," said coach Gary Donohue.

There are several reasons for South's success this year. Among the most important is the play of the first midfield and attack units.

"When those guys are on the field, we're almost guaranteed to score," Donohue said. "They've played together for quite a while, but only two of them are seniors. The rest are sophomores and juniors. I held several of them back on the JV team so they'd learn to play together and learn the game and now it's paying off.

"Each of them knows where the other will be and when to pass off. Our fast break is phenomenal."

Jason Donohue, Matt Moran and Tim Brady make up South's first midfield unit, while the top attacking trio is Jon Bayko, Adam Whitehead and Charlie Norton.

Coach Donohue also praised the work of defenders Thatcher Sloan, Dave Bilbrey and Nate Bradley.

"Bilbrey never had a defensive stick in his hand before this year, but he's really adapted well to the position," the coach said. "He knows how to slide off his man and how to cover when somebody else slides off theirs."

"Sloan has also been one of our mainstays on defense and Bradley stepped in when Bill Lerner tore his ACL (anterior cruciate ligament). Since then, Bill's been our student coach and we're 6-0."

Goalkeeper C.J. Lee has also been vital to the Blue Devils' success.

"I knew last year he had some moves, but he was rough around the edges," coach Donohue said.

"We wondered how we'd replace Matt Isbell, but already as a sophomore, I can tell C.J. is going to be the best goalie I've had. He reads the ball well and isn't afraid to come out of the net. One of our former South goalies, Jason Hall, is working with him. His save percentage is around 75 or 80, which is incredible."

In South's game against East Lansing, Whitehead had two goals and three assists, Donohue collected two goals and two assists and Norton and Bayko each scored twice. Donohue tied the school goal record of 36, which was set by Max Prokop.

Moran had a goal and three assists, while Brady assisted on a goal.

Donohue, Whitehead and Moran each scored four goals in South's 14-5 victory over Bishop Foley. Bayko and Chris Provenzano also scored for the Blue Devils.

Earlier, South chalked up its 11th straight victory over crosstown rival Grosse Pointe North by beating the Norsemen 12-5.

"We haven't lost to them since Peter Mertz donated his defense stick as a trophy for the series in 1992," coach Donohue said. "I have a lot of respect for (North coach) Steve Hubbell, but I don't want to lose to them."

Norton scored three goals for South. Brad Belesky had two goals and three assists, Whitehead and Moran each collected two goals and two assists, while Donohue had a goal and two assists.

Brady had three assists, while Paul Banicki and Bayko each added a goal.

St. Clare finishes fine year

The St. Clare varsity boys basketball team has had quite a run of success the last few years.

The eighth-grade members of the team closed out their careers with a 75-3 record since they were in the sixth grade.

They captured three Catholic Youth Organization division championships, posting a 30-0 record, seven invitational tournament titles, a CYO district playoff crown and during one stretch won 55 straight games.

This year's squad posted a 25-1 overall mark, winning CYO district and division playoff titles. It also won the St. Matthew Thanksgiving and St. Clair Christmas tournaments.

Among the teams St. Clare defeated were St. Joan of Arc, Our Lady Star of the Sea, St. Paul, St. Matthew and Parcels, Brownell and Pierce middle schools.

The team's most valuable players were Curtis Nieves, Larry Marshall and Brian Berschback.

St. Clare's varsity boys basketball team won CYO division and district titles this year as it compiled a 25-1 record. In the front, from left, are co-captain Brian Berschback, Michael Wolking, William Rinehart and co-captain Scott Berschback. In the middle row, from left, are Matt Munerantz, Andrew Nemeckay and John Godzwon. In back, from left, are Brian Vaughn, David Trotter, Curtis Nieves, coach Bob Zarenek, co-captain Larry Marshall, Doug Ortteneburger, Tony Nouhan and Jesse Valdez.

GP2 scores and highlights

UNDER-6

Lakers 1, Bullets 0

Goal: Kyle Nadeau (Lakers).
Comments: The Lakers held off continued offensive pressure by the Bullets to post their fifth victory. Chris Maynard, Vince Brennan, Andrew Farley and Joey Dempsey turned back all the shots taken at them as they combined for the Lakers' sixth shutout.

Hornets 2, Pistons 1

Goals: James Graney 2 (Hornets); Pat Hovin (Pistons).
Assists: Michael Yanis, Alex Kiries (Pistons).
Comments: The Hornets maintained strong offensive pressure throughout the game. Graney's second goal came after he went the length of the field, dribbling through the entire Pistons lineup.

UNDER-8

Ducks 1, Rockets 1

Goals: Christine Klein (Ducks); Stephan Phaeler (Rockets).
Assist: Johnathan Nicholl (Ducks).
Comments: The Ducks' Mark DiMasso, Greg DiVico and Cory Fogelson and the Rockets' Jack Elser, Matt Bruno and Maxine Toppe turned in strong defensive efforts. Ducks forwards Peter Corrado, Anthony Vitale, Billy Schrage and Chris Hakim applied pressure offensively and so did the Rockets' Lauren Nixon and Phaeler.

Ducks 2, Tigers 1

Goals: Greg DiVico, Andrew Fowler (Ducks); Eric Szandzik (Tigers).
Comments: The Ducks were sparked by Cory Fogelson, Christine Klein and Peter Corrado, along with a defense led by Billy Schrage, Chris Hakim and Johnathan Nicholl. The Tigers' stars were Szandzik, goalie Christopher Bill and Andrew Redziniak, who played a fine all-around game.

Devils 4, Neon 2

Goals: Patrick Gustine 2, Jay Williams, Evan Hall (Devils); Anthony Lappin, Chris Zak (Neon).
Assists: Jackie Farber, Cale Manno, Hall (Devils); Zak (Neon).
Comments: Hall scored the winning goal for the Devils after Neon goalie Ron Mack made several good saves under heavy pressure in the fourth quarter. Williams protected the Devils' lead with some good goaltending late in the game. Brian Haming also played well for the Devils.

Devils 8, Eagles 0

Goals: Patrick Gustine 3, Jay Williams, Jackie Farber 2, Evan Hall, Terrance Miller (Devils).
Assists: Michael Herzog, Andrew Kafner, Williams, Farber (Devils).

Comments: The Devils got excellent crossing passes from Herzog and Kafner. Laura Andreovich and Cale Manno ran the field well in an evenly distributed offensive effort. The Eagles got fine defensive play from Richard Hellwig, Kirk Holland and Nolan Enright.

Rockets 0, Orioles 0

Comments: Christian Ratliff did an excellent job in goal for the Orioles, while Michael Fisher and Lisa Hamm turned in fine all-around efforts. The Rockets got fine goaltending from Mackenzie Topper, Jeffrey Moore, Matthew Bruno and Stefan Phaeler. Gillian Seeman made the defensive play of the game. Danny Dempsey and Steven Ploe had good all-around games for the Rockets.

Wolverines 4, Ducks 1

Goals: Sam Mott 2, Brad Jensen, Jake Mandel (Wolverines); Andrew Fowler (Ducks).
Assists: Jensen 3 (Wolverines).

Comments: Christine Klein and Chris Hakim played very well for the Ducks, but Carrie Fisk and Jack McCarthy on the Wolverines' defense stopped their rushes before they reached the goal. Fine passing led to all the scoring.

Red Wings 0, Wolverines 0

Comments: Robert DeClerq started several rushes for the Red Wings, while Jake Chrunka and Whitney Cahill were defensive standouts. Brad Jensen was tireless in his transitions to protect the Wolverines' goalies. Sam Mott continued his fine play at mid-field and Jack McCarthy made a diving catch in goal to preserve the shutout.

Lions 4, Orioles 0

Goals: Steven Joseph 2, Billy Sessions, John Farr (Lions).
Assists: Nathan Kinnear, Billy Sessions, Peter Leaman, Lambro Seremetis, Alex Clogg, Wesley Raynal.

Betsy Grapey, Ryan Millard (Lions).

Lions 2, Cougars 0

Goals: Alex Clogg, Lambro Seremetis (Lions).

Assists: Steven Joseph, Ryan Millard, Wesley Raynal, Peter Leaman (Lions).

Comments: The Lions got strong defensive play from Betsy Grapey, Nathan Kinnear, John Farr and Billy Sessions. Jessica Leonard and Ryan Deane had outstanding games for the Cougars, while Gretchen Valade and Sarah Hughes continued to show improvement.

ULS nine wins two in Metro Conference

University Liggett School's baseball team has overcome a slow start and the Knights are flirting with the .500 mark in Metro Conference games.

ULS won two of its three league games last week to improve to 5-7 in conference play.

The first of the victories was a 6-4 win over Lutheran Westland.

"Westland is one of the top teams in the conference so this was a huge win for our boys," said coach Walter Butzu.

C.R. Moultry pitched a strong game and picked up his third victory of the season. He struck out seven before yielding to Jeff Mehr in the sixth. Mehr recorded the save.

Leadoff batter Justin Young had two hits, but it was the bottom of the Knights' batting order that did most of the damage.

"Mehr, Clark Durant, Shaun Dillon and Scott Simpson all scored runs in the sixth inning while batting in the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth spots," Butzu said. "Young's timely hitting accounted for two of those runners scoring."

ULS suffered a heartbreaking defeat when Harper Woods rallied for six runs in the top of the seventh to beat the Knights 10-6.

"It was a heartbreaking defeat after playing such good baseball the last three weeks,"

Butzu said. "We went ahead 6-4 in the bottom of the sixth, but had a pitching and defensive collapse in the top of the seventh."

Freshman Jay Minger made his first start on the mound and pitched well for his six innings, but a combination of the Knights' bullpen failing to throw strikes and three costly errors, along with some timely hits by the Pioneers, sent ULS to defeat.

"I was very disappointed for Jay and for C.R. Moultry, who hit a 375-foot home run to put us in the lead," Butzu said.

The Knights bounced back strong and beat Lutheran East 14-5 in their next game.

"It was an enormous win against a good team on their diamond," Butzu said. "I was concerned that the collapse against Harper Woods might spill over into the next game, but all fears were allayed by the way we came out against East."

Minger hit a two-run homer in the first for ULS and Moultry pitched a complete game to register his fourth victory.

"Part of the game plan included moving runners in all kinds of ways — bunts, steals and hit-and-runs," Butzu said. "Kids got on base, runners and hitters executed the plays to move runners along and the big bats boomed at the right times."

ULS improved its overall record to 5-11.

Grosse Pointe South junior varsity baseball players Jeff Nelson, left, and Kevin Messacar encourage the public to come out to the Grosse Pointe South cafeteria on May 31 from 9 to 11 a.m. for a pancake breakfast sponsored by the Grosse Pointe South Dugout Club. All proceeds benefit the Grosse Pointe South baseball program. Admission is $5 adults and $3 for children 8 and under. A silent auction of Detroit Tigers memorabilia will also be held.

Team Michigan has an outstanding year

The Team Michigan Mustangs 11-and-under girls hockey team had an outstanding season.

Blue Devils' homers overpower Cavaliers

Grosse Pointe South used the long ball last week to beat South Lake 11-8 in a non-league tuneup before this week's district round of the state Class A tournament.

Ryan Ermanni hit a two-run homer in the Blue Devils' five-run third inning and Dan Griesbaum, who also had a sacrifice fly in the game, hit a three-run shot in the fourth.

The two homers backed the three-hit pitching of winner Chris Farkas, who went the first five innings.

Farkas struck out six and allowed two earned runs.

Chris McGratty had two hits, including a double, and drove in a run, while Ted Swarouth had an RBI single in the third.

Earlier, Redford Catholic Central took command late in the game and beat South 16-6 in a non-league contest.

"We were leading until the fifth, then walks and errors hurt us," said Blue Devils coach Dan Griesbaum.

Mike Hamers and Swarouth

each had RBI singles for South, McGratty drove in a run with a sacrifice fly and Karl Freimuth had a bases-loaded walk.

South hosts a district tournament Saturday.

The Blue Devils had a pre-district game against Detroit Southeastern earlier this week.

The winner of that game plays Detroit Cass Tech at 10 a.m. Saturday, while Detroit Public School League rivals King and Kettering meet at noon.

The championship game will be played about 3 p.m.

Saturday's activities at South will also feature a Pancake Breakfast sponsored by the school's Dugout Club.

Breakfast will be served from 9 to 11 a.m. in the school cafeteria.

The cost is $5 for adults and $3 for children 8 and under. There will also be a silent auction of Detroit Tiger memorabilia.

All proceeds will go to the South baseball program.

The Team Michigan 11-and-under Mustangs won several championships in girls hockey tournaments this season, including a first place finish in the Southeast Michigan Squirt Girls playoffs.

Babe Ruth highlights

Rockies 11, Giants 2
Anthony Fierro drove in five runs for the Rockies, who posted their second victory of the season. Mike Sheppard and Mark Reaser combined to pitch a two-hitter. Sheppard also scored three runs.

Mets 7, Giants 6
The Mets rallied for three runs in the bottom of the sixth with Matt Diedrich scoring the winning run in a game that featured five lead changes. Winning pitcher Andrew Dixon struck out eight in three innings of relief. The Giants' Adam Post hit a triple.

Mets 10, Rockies 7
The Mets scored five runs in the first two innings, but needed a three-run rally in the fifth to overcome a 7-6 deficit. The Rockies scored seven runs in the top of the fifth inning before Dan Ahee quieted the uprising. The Mets' Neal Gram paced a 10-hit attack with two singles and a double. John Jeanguenat drove in four runs and had a hit.

Results, highlights from Farms-City Little League

MAJOR LEAGUE

Tigers 11, Pirates 8

The Tigers scored six runs in their final two at bats. Zach Schmitt had a pair of doubles, Pete Smith singled twice and the two combined to drive in five runs to back the relief pitching of Nick Andrew. Andrew held the Pirates to two runs over the final five innings to post the victory. Chas Bayer had a double and three RBI for the Pirates, while Pat Schafer singled and knocked in a run. Pirates starter Tom Sawicki pitched well and hit a double.

Reds 8, Pirates 2

Andrew Critchell pitched well as the Reds' starter, while Andrew Sweeney had a fine defensive game and P.J. Janutol had a good all-around performance. Todd Callahan led the Pirates with three hits, Ben Jensen had two and Tom Sawicki pitched three strong innings.

A's 12, Indians 10

Danny Keogh hit a double off the outfield fence for the A's, while Jimmy O'Neill had two hits and a stolen base. Mike Arrigo pitched four strong innings for the Indians, striking out five, while walking only one. Chris Monaghan hit a two-run double and Anthony DeLaurea had a key hit.

Astros 7, Tigers 6

Astros 6, Pirates 5

Bobby Colombo won the game with a two-run homer and Brian Gatliff scored two runs for the Astros. Pat Schafer played excellent defense at third base for the Pirates and Jim Dunaway hit a double in addition to pitching well.

Indians 9, Royals 8

Richard Bruce, made several good fielding plays and scored the winning run in the ninth inning, while Phil Alber allowed one run on three hits during his mound stint for the Indians. Jeremy Birmingham played well defensively and had a key base hit in the seventh inning. Tim Kaselitz pitched two-hit ball through six innings. Peter Hrtanek and Collin Miller each had two hits for the Royals, while Chris Dempsey had a double in the eighth inning and scored a run. Dan Hughes held the Indians scoreless in four of the six innings he pitched, while Gabe Kaniecki and John Hatch played well on defense.

A's 12, Royals 4

Tigers 8, Indians 2

Tiger pitchers Tom Klick, Phil LaBarge and Taylor Zaleski combined on a four-hitter. Klick and Danny Rosso each had three singles, while Nick Leonard, Pete Smith and Christian VanBeelaere had two hits apiece. The Indians had two singles from Mike Arrigo, a two-run single by Ryan O'Keefe and two fine defensive plays by Anthony DeLaurea. Jeremy Birmingham struck out five in his pitching debut, while Nick Posavetz had a solid game at second base.

Tigers 11, Astros 10

Zach Schmitt hit a game-tying, two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth and singled home the winning run in the bottom of the seventh. Taylor Zaleski had a pair of singles and Tom Klick and Nick Andrew each had RBI singles for the Tigers. Drew Kisskalt, in his first attempt at switch hitting, hit a two-run homer for the Astros. Joe Stelmach had a pair of singles, while Brian Gatliff and Jordan Winfield each had key hits for the Astros, who rallied to take the lead with four runs in the top of the sixth.

Reds 17, Indians 10

Andrew Sweeney was 4-for-4 with three RBI and three runs for the Reds, while Dan Tutill had three hits, including a two-run double. Jim Backoff had two hits and scored twice and Alex Middleton hit a solid double to deep left field.

Reds 12, Indians 6

Mark Russell hit a triple for the Reds, Ben Schrode had another fine game at catcher and collected a pair of hits and Jim Backoff was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored from second base. The Indians' Mark Diebel had three hits, including a triple. Ryan O'Keefe hit two doubles and Tim

A's 9, Astros 4

Danny Keogh went 3-for-3 for the A's. Sam Titterington had a triple and made a key play in the outfield and David Harris pitched a strong game. Bobby Columbus homered to deep center for the Astros. A.J. Staniszewski played strong defense and ran the bases well and Mike Mullinger played good defense and had a hit.

Reds 18, Royals 10

Andrew Sweeney went 4-for-4 with a double for the Reds. Danny Tutill and Ben Schrode each had three singles, while Jim Backoff had a couple of hits and scored runs. The Royals' Peter Hrtanek and Dan Hughes each had hits and scored three runs apiece. Danny Reinhard and Avery Schmidt both played well defensively.

A's 7, Pirates 2

Robby Barrett pitched a strong game for the A's and he was helped by the strong defensive play of Cole VanAssche. The Pirates' standouts were Ben Jensen, who played well at catcher, and Tom Sawicki, who pitched four solid innings.

Pirates 10, Royals 3

Todd Callahan and Tim Vandenberg each had two hits for the Pirates, while Ben Jensen hit a triple and Lucas Coffman played well defensively. John Hatch and Jack Wood had the Royals' hits. Chris Dempsey struck out two in his one inning of relief, while Danny Reinhard made a fine running catch to end the fifth inning.

South grad is MVP for Western tennis

Former Grosse Pointe South standout Jeff Wheeler was named the most valuable player on Western Michigan University's men's tennis team.

Wheeler, a junior, posted an overall record of 30-32 while playing No. 1 singles and doubles for the Broncos.

He and No. 1 doubles partner Kevin Reed were named Western's doubles team of the year after posting a 13-11 regular-season record.

Wheeler, who was a co-captain for the Broncos, was named to the Mid-American Conference first team at the MAC tennis championships in Akron.

City of Grosse Pointe, Michigan NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

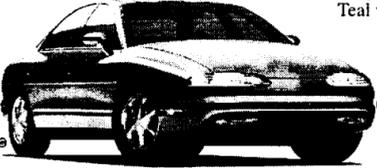

Notice is hereby given in accordance with the provisions of Act No. 207 of the Public Acts of the State of Michigan for the year 1921, as amended, and the Grosse Pointe City Code, that a Public Hearing will be held on Monday, June 16, 1997 at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Council Chambers at 17147 Maumee Avenue, Grosse Pointe, Michigan, concerning proposed amendments to the Zoning Ordinance of the City of Grosse Pointe. These amendments address setback requirements for alteration or enlargement of an existing structure, and also maximum permitted size for accessory buildings in residential zoning districts. The complete texts of the proposed ordinance amendments may be viewed at the office of the City Clerk.

Overtime win gives ULS district crown

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

University Liggett School soccer coach David Backhurst had that feeling after his team escaped with a 2-1 overtime victory over South Lake in the Class B-C-D district final hosted by the Knights last Friday.

"We didn't come to play," Backhurst said. "We were fortunate to win. South Lake had all the emotion on its side. They wanted the game more than we did, but we got the breaks."

And also some sparkling defensive play from goalkeeper Melanie Buhalis and her defense corps of Kristin Byron, Brook Wright, Adriane Lie and Katie Danaher.

"We also moved Abby Tompkins back to sweeper for some crucial situations," Backhurst said.

The game was scoreless until three minutes into the second half when Casey Papa sent a crossing pass to Mieke Teitge, who gave the Knights a 1-0 lead.

The advantage held until there was 13:50 to go in regulation when the Cavaliers scored from a goalmouth scramble.

During the brief intermission before the overtime, Backhurst had some instructions for his team.

"We're not going to sit back and play defense," he told his squad. "We're going to go for the goal."

It didn't take long for ULS to break the tie and remain unbeaten in 14 straight games.

Three and a half minutes into the overtime, Papa took a shot from 20 feet out that went through the goalie's hands and into the net.

"That was one of Casey's patented floaters," Backhurst said.

The win improved ULS' record to 13-4-2 and gave the Knights their sixth straight girls district championship, while South Lake fell to 19-2.

"We were lulled to sleep by our two previous games," Backhurst said. "We underestimated South Lake and almost paid for it. Our midfield and forwards never could seem to get it going, but fortunately the defense stepped up big."

ULS began district play with a 9-1 victory over Lakeview.

Byron opened the scoring on a direct kick from outside the 18-yard line about 20 minutes into the first half. Papa and Erin Ealba also scored first-half goals for the Knights, who led 3-1 at the break.

Papa and Abby Tompkins both completed hat tricks in the second half, while Millie Tompkins also scored for ULS.

The Knights had a 32-7 advantage in shots.

ULS also dominated its second-round game with Lake Shore, posting a 6-0 victory.

Papa scored the first three goals to give the Knights a 3-0 halftime lead. Celeste Hubbard, Teitge and Abby Tompkins tallied in the second half.

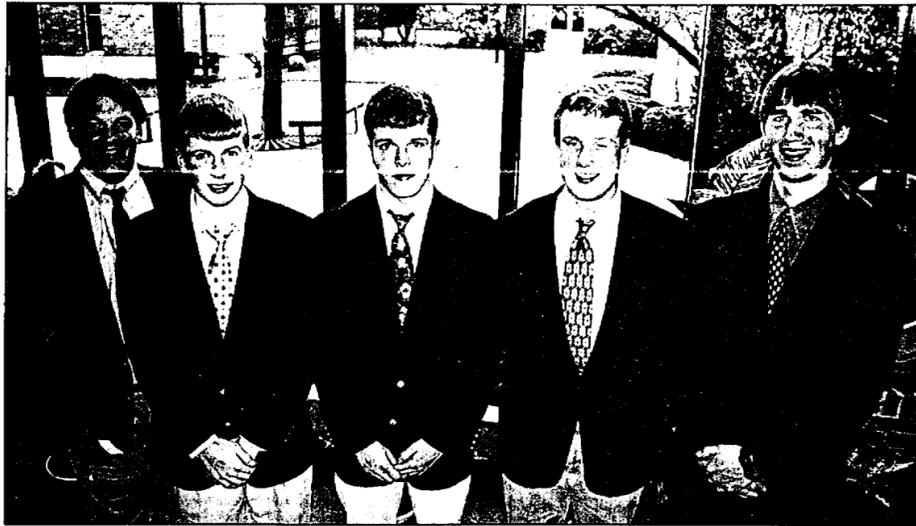

ULS advanced to the Bishop Foley regional, where its first opponent was Dearborn Divine Child. The championship game is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday.

MSU honors Cavanaugh

Senior Anne Cavanaugh received two post-season awards after completing her career with the women's tennis team at Michigan State.

Cavanaugh, who played at Grosse Pointe South, finished with a 10-16 record in singles. This year she played mostly No. 6 singles and posted a 9-7 record in that flight.

Cavanaugh was named the Spartans' most improve player and she received the Captain's Award for leadership.

Hockey honors

Four University Liggett School hockey players earned post-season honors. From left are coach John Fowler, sophomore center Kurt Niemi, senior defenseman Ian Fines, senior forward Peter Birgbauer and senior goalie Paul Huebner. Fines and Huebner were named to the Michigan Prep Hockey League Dream Team. All four players received all-state honorable mention.

Softball camp at South Lake from June 17-20

The annual Midwest All-Star Softball Camp will be held June 17 through 20 at the South Lake Middle School in St. Clair Shores.

A hitting camp will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. and a pitching camp from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Instructors are Gary Bryce, head softball coach at Wayne State since 1981, and Pat Kent, assistant coach at Wayne State since 1983.

The cost is $50 per person for each camp.

When spring hits, many choose to remodel

The Michigan Association of Home Builders' (MAHB) Remodelers Council is celebrating May as National Home Remodeling Month in conjunction with the MAHB Remodelers Council and 150 other state and local affiliated Remodelers Councils across the country. This annual tradition was initiated as a way to help educate consumers on what to look for when hiring a professional remodeler.

More than ever, home owners are choosing to improve their homes or add on. According to a recent MAHB survey of remodeling contractors, the top three remodeling jobs are kitchen remodels, bathroom remodels and room additions. Windows/door replacements, bathroom additions and whole house remodels finish out the list of the six most com-

"Residential remodeling is expected to reach $125.3 billion in 1997. MAHB predicts that the market will grow at a steady pace of 3-5 percent through the year 2000," says Mike Turner, 1997 chairman of the MAHB Remodelers Council.

"Today's consumers are more informed than ever before and are asking more questions," says Turner. "Hiring a remodeler can be an intimidating experience for many people. We are looking to alleviate some of this anxiety by demonstrating our commitment to professionalism and consumer education."

To help consumers choose a professional remodeler and better understand the steps involved in a remodeling project, the Remodelers Council and Home

Builder Press have published three new brochures in the "Remodeling Your Home" series.

The first brochure, "How to Find a Professional Remodeler," explains how to begin a search, what to look for, what to ask and how to make the final decision.

"How to Understand Your Remodeling Agreement," the second brochure, focuses on the details of a remodeling agreement or contract. The third and final brochure, "How to Live With Your Remodeling Project," describes what to expect and do when the construction begins in and around your home.

Homeowners may obtain a copy of each brochure (three per set) for $2.95/set by calling the Home Builder Bookstore at (800) 223-2665.

"In addition to the new consumer series of brochures, the Remodelers Council and Single Family Committees have demonstrated their commitment to professionalism in the industry by publishing a new book, "Residential Construction Performance Guidelines: For Professional Builders and Remodelers," Turner noted. "This publication helps to establish common expectations for housing performance between residential contractors and their customers."

The new book, built upon a 1991 publication, contains over 240 guidelines in 12 major categories of new residential construction and remodeling and has been used to resolve complaints without having to resort to third party arbitration or litigation.

The MAHB Remodelers Council represents the remodeling interests of MAHB's 190,000 members. The council provides information and educational services to improve the business practices of its members. "Remodeler" is a trademark term denoting MAHB members active in commercial and residential remodeling. The MAHB Remodelers Council includes over 600 professional remodelers.

MAHB is comprised of more than 11,000 member companies, thus providing service to over 400,000 people in the home building/remodeling industry. MAHB also represents 36 local home builder associations throughout the state.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer named to prestigious Chairman's Circle

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer has been named to the prestigious Coldwell Banker Chairman's Circle, one of only 94 residential affiliate firms selected from more than 1,520 Coldwell Banker Real Estate Inc. companies throughout North America. This designation is awarded to companies which achieved $3 million or more in closed gross commission income.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate also earned top awards as the No. 1 Affiliate Company in the Midwest Region of Coldwell Banker for the fifth consecutive year. In 1996, the company closed over $808 million in residential real estate sales.

The conference was held in Dallas. More than 7,000 Coldwell Banker sales associates, brokers, managers and employees attended the event that featured speaker Gen. Colin Powell and country singer Wynonna Judd.

"The Chairman's Circle designation is one of the highest honors a Coldwell Banker affiliate company can achieve," says Becker. "Paul Schweitzer and the sales associates at Coldwell Banker Schweitzer are most deserving of this award."

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer has 15 offices and over 520 sales associates throughout the metro Detroit area. For local real estate information, call Coldwell Banker Schweitzer at (810) 268-1000.

THE SELLER'S NET SHEET

When you consider what price you should accept for your home, there are two important factors that will influence your decision. The first factor is the basic sales price. The second, and more important, is the amount you will actually receive from the proceeds at the closing.

It can be a little confusing, but your Realtor will prepare a seller's "net sheet" showing what your expenses will be. This will aid you in determining who pays what and when and can help you to focus on the details of the sale.

A seller's expenses will include brokerage fees, real estate settlement fees, title insurance fees, special assessments, and in some cases the buyer may ask you to pay some of the loan fees. Local real estate taxes will be pro-rated for you and the buyer, and you may be asked to place funds in escrow for payment of your final water bill. Subtract your mortgage balance, any home improvement loans and other liens against the property that will be paid at the closing to come up with your final figures.

Your Realtor will help make sense of the confusion by going over all of these factors with you when you list your home for sale and again as offers come in.

Laura resides and works in Grosse Pointe as a top realtor for Coldwell Banker Schweitzer covering the Grosse Pointes, St. Clair Shores and Harper Woods. For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling, call her at (313) 886-4200 or (313) 261-8070.

Historic American garden beds are forget-me-nots

We hear so much these days about historic preservation, and all across the country the sites of early settlements and forts, the structures of historic homes and buildings are being marked as historic sites and populated by re-enactors striving to bring back the ambiance of an earlier day.

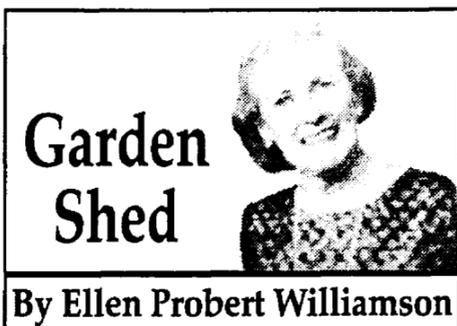

Gardens were so much a part of America's history, from the first vegetable and herb gardens of the earliest settlers to the formal plantings of famous historic houses, such as Monticello and Mt. Vernon. Very often, archeologists and historians studying the weed-tangled land surrounding old houses find the tiny blue flowers of forget-me-nots starring the grass-surviving descendants of the gardens of long ago, and a very real plea from the past. Forget me not.

In a beautiful book entitled "An Eighteenth Century Garland" about the restored gardens of Williamsburg, Louise Fisher writes, "Words change their meaning, and, like music, can be interpreted in many ways. The colors of a picture fade, but the plants and flowers have much the same significance in every age."

The 18th century was a time of political excitement, of national expansion, and advances in science. It was an age of great interest in craftsmanship, of a striving toward elegance, and of great advances in industry, exploration and achievement.

This was the period when some of the greatest garden shipments in history occurred. In Russia Peter the Great ordered 40,000 trees to be dug up in the forest and replanted at his estate at Peterhof.

In France at the same time, landscape architect LeNotre brought 3,000 young orange trees from Italy and, on another occasion, transplanted 25,000 trees from various locations in France to enhance the great gardens of Versailles. Everywhere in Europe there was a tremendous interest in gardening, and it had its echo in 18th century America.

With the migration of people came the migration of plants. During the first half of the 18th century more than 320 new flowers and shrubs were introduced into English gardens from North America. At the same time English colonists here were planting the familiar flowers and plants of home, especially those considered to be prestigious for a genteel garden.

The 18th century was an age of amateur as well as professional gardening. Botany became a fashionable hobby, and, for many, a serious study. Everyone was interested in gardening, and collecting botanical drawings and prints of flowers and plants also became a hobby shared by many.

The first person to experiment with hybridization in this country was John Bartrum. This was in 1739, and a year later Thomas Fairchild, in England, obtained the first known hybrid pink from a crossing of a sweet William and a carnation. (He was reluctant to tell about it because he considered that what he had done was unnatural and immoral.)

In Sweden, at the same time,

Linneaus was working out the principles for defining the genera and species of plants, and establishing the system of binomial nomenclature which he established, and which is still used.

In Michigan horticulture has a fascinating past. When the first settlers arrived here in the late 18th and early 19th centuries they found areas in southeastern and western Michigan of large symmetrical plots which could only have been garden beds. The Indians maintained that they had been planted long, long before by "the old ones."

We know now that in ages past a prehistoric race inhabited this region but the only record we have of their great intelligence and unusual ability is the so-called "garden beds."

Henry Schoolcraft, an early Michigan historian, recorded some information about them.

"The garden beds are raised patches of ground separated by sunken paths and are generally in the shape of a wheel (like the Trial Gardens at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial), or sometimes in rectangles arranged in blocks. They resemble the works of the ancient mound builders who left their creations scattered across the mid-west, but are quite definitely for agricultural purposes." In 1827, Mr. Schoolcraft wrote, "The garden beds and not the Indian mounds are the antiquarian monuments of this state."

Some of the ancient garden beds are in the valley of the Grand River and in Kalamazoo, Cass, St. Joseph, Macomb and Wayne counties.

Unfortunately, the march of progress and the growth of urban sprawl have obliterated many of these ancient garden beds but now archeologists are working to preserve what is left.

Detroit's earliest settlers brought pear trees from France to plant in their gardens in the strip farms along the shore of Lake St. Claire. Today descendants of those trees still grace some Grosse Pointe gardens, and keep us mindful of our horticultural past. Forget-me-not.

Tips for smart food handling during summer months

Summertime brings family vacations, warm weather and an added risk of a foodborne illness.

In the summertime, food can quickly reach the "danger zone," the temperature between 40 degrees and 140 degrees Fahrenheit, where bacteria can multiply quickly. The refrigerator should be maintained at 40 degrees or slightly lower and the freezer should be set at zero degrees.

By following some simple rules of food safety, the illness and discomfort caused by food bacteria can be prevented.

Cautious shopping

- When shopping for raw or cooked foods, be sure the store is displaying food at the right temperature. Never choose any package that has been torn or is leaking.

- Always put meat and poultry into a plastic bag so the juices won't cross contaminate other foods, fruits or vegetables.

- When ordering from the deli, be sure the clerk uses good sanitary practices. Don't buy cooked items that have been touching raw items in the display case.

- Put refrigerated and frozen items in the shopping cart immediately before heading to the checkout area. Ask the bagger to put the raw food in a bag separate from the cooked foods and produce.

When loading the car, place perishable items in the air-conditioned car rather than the trunk. Drive immediately home from the store. If you live further than 30 minutes from the store, put your perishable items in a cooler.

- Unload perishable items from the car first and refrigerate or freeze them immediately. Assuming the store wrap on the poultry and meat is not torn or leaking, it is best to leave a product in its original packaging.

For freezer storage longer than two or three months, overwrap the store package with plastic or aluminum foil for added protection from freezer burn.

Preparation for cooking

- Make sure all work surfaces and kitchen utensils are clean before preparing food. Remember, bacteria can be present on any surface, food or hands.

- Marinate meat and poultry in a covered dish in the refrigerator unless cooking them within one hour.

- When cooking outside, take plenty of clean utensils. Never put cooked food on a platter or plate which held raw meat.

Cooking

- Cook everything thoroughly. Using a meat thermometer, the following internal temperatures (Fahrenheit) should be achieved: ground meat — 155 degrees; solid cut of meat — 145 degrees; pork — 155 degrees; poultry — 165 degrees; wild game — 165 degrees; and fish — 145 degrees.

- Refrigerate leftovers promptly. Divide larger quantities into small, shallow containers to speed up the cooling process.

For further information, contact the Michigan Department of Agriculture, Food and Dairy Division at (517) 373-1060.

'Weed and feed' may not give the desired results

April showers, so the saying goes, bring May flowers — a lot of those flowers are yellow. If we can count on anything in May, it's that dandelion flowers will pop up all over the place. And when the flowers bloom, a rush to the garden centers for a bag of "weed and feed" can't be far behind.

Unfortunately, homeowners may not get the results they're looking for with these products. In order for the weed control material (known as herbicides) to be effective, they must remain in contact with the weed itself. The problem is, the little fertilizer pellets tend to bounce off the weed leaf and just fall to the ground.

Most professionals and university experts prefer spot-treating with a liquid formulation to be sure proper coverage is achieved.

In addition, the potential for causing harm to the environment is much greater with "weed and feed" products. "If these materials are allowed to get onto a driveway, sidewalk, or street, and then it rains, the herbicide and fertilizer

Industry faces challenges in providing homes

For more than 50 years, the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) has dedicated its efforts to encouraging the building of high-quality housing attainable at all income levels, enhancing the legislative and regulatory climate for housing and the building industry, expanding homeownership opportunities and promoting policies to maintain housing as a national priority.

Here in metropolitan Detroit, the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan (BIA), has worked with NAHB to further these goals in the community.

"Today, the housing industry faces many challenges," says Scott Jacobson, president of the BIA and head of S.R. Jacobson Development Corp. in Birmingham. "Among them are bringing homeownership opportunities to the millions of Americans who are still unable to purchase a home, maintaining the availability of housing and assuring an adequate supply of decent, affordable rental units."

The housing industry also must promote innovation, develop new technology, foster competition and build a working partnership with all levels of government. A healthy and competitive housing sector will create millions of good jobs and generate demand for billions of dollars worth of goods and services, thereby fueling the economy.

"The benefits of new home construction go beyond fulfilling the basic human need for shelter and the creation of jobs throughout the economy," added Jacobson.

Each year, builders sod or seed millions of acres of land, plant millions of trees, generate billions of dollars in additional tax revenue for public services and facilities and dedicate thousands of acres of land to local jurisdictions for new parks, schools and libraries.

Home builders also construct or improve thousands of miles of roads and construct billions of square feet of new retail, office and other commercial space to meet the demands of growing communities. In addition, builders design and construct millions of dollars-worth of storm water and other water quality management systems that prevent flooding and enhance the water quality of the entire community.

By working together on the elements that make neighborhoods and communities a reality, home builders provide a good mix of housing opportunities and create a positive quality of life for all residents.

March housing starts rise

Michigan 1997 housing project starts were down 5.7 percent from 1996 year-to-date totals through March. But March housing project starts were up 33 percent from February.

"March housing starts rose over February in their typical cyclical fashion. However the rise did not keep pace with 1996 figures," said Rick Delamater, president of the Michigan Association of Home Builders (MAHB).

"Market led interest rates climbed during the month of March in anticipation of the Federal Reserve's late month tightening action," commented Delamater. "Although interest rates rose a little higher, employment and income growth are also up. This leaves the outlook for housing demand remaining positive."

Fixed-rate mortgages rose slightly to 7.97 percent in March from 7.87 percent in February. Lumber prices for 1,000 board feet of framing lumber declined slightly to $432 in February from $442.

The MAHB is comprised of more than 11,000 member companies, providing service to over 400,000 people in the home building/construction industry. MAHB also represents 36 local home builder associations throughout the state.

Is your tree trying to tell you something?

Even though trees can't talk, they can tell you a lot. Spring and early summer are especially good times to "read your trees."

Here are some tree characteristics you'll want to look for:

Color of the leaves

- Off-color leaves may be an indication of a nutrient deficiency in the soil, or they may be a sign that, for some reason, the tree's root system is incapable of extracting the necessary nutrients, even though the nutrients are present. For instance, iron chlorosis causes progressive yellowing of newly emerging leaves in oaks and other species. Nitrogen deficiency also causes yellowing, but affects the oldest leaves the most.

- Certain trees are susceptible to diseases that cause a distinctive change of leaf color.

- Premature fall coloration during the summer is generally an indication of a problem below ground that is creating stress conditions for the tree.

Misshapen leaves

- An upward curling of the leaf margin — kind of a cupping effect — is the classic symptom of damage from herbicides. Has your lawn, or a neighbor's, been sprayed for weeds recently?

- Distorted leaves may be evidence of sucking insect damage, or the presence of a disease organism.

Thinness of the canopy

- Typically, when the uppermost part of the tree's canopy begins to thin, the condition is characterized as decline. However, decline can have several causes, sometimes acting in combination, that are treatable.

- Does your tree look like a telephone pole, that is straight where it enters the ground, or does it have a natural root flair? The combination of thin crown and telephone pole appearance usually indicate that the tree's roots have been covered with fill. Have a professional evaluate the tree's chances and prescribe treatment.

- The combination of thin crown and flat trunk on one side are the symptoms of a root that is literally strangling the tree.

leaves

- If your favorite tree has failed to produce leaves this season, you have reason to be concerned, especially if you have other trees of the same species in your yard. Sometimes, quick action is required to keep a serious problem from spreading.

- If your tree loses all or most of its leaves during the growing season, again, sound the alarms! This may be a sign of a very serious disease or a leaf-eating insect. Either way, trees cannot survive for long if they are repeatedly defoliated.

If you are unsure about your tree's health, consult a professional arborist who will identify and remove hazards as well as treat the causes of tree health problems.

You can find a NAA-member arborist close to you by calling the National Arborist Association at (800) 733-6222, or by a Zip code search on the NAA's Web site: <http://www.natlarb.com>

Fertilizer

go right into our drains, rivers and lakes," comments Larry Wright, president and CEO of the Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association. "It may not look like much, but it can really add up."

The best way to reduce the amount of weeds is to have a healthy and vigorous lawn. Proper watering, mowing and fertilizing will help thicken the grass and choke out most weeds.

Weeds take advantage of bare spots and thin lawn areas where sunlight can reach the soil and germinate the weed seeds. If the grass is dense and actively growing, the number of weeds will be dramatically reduced.

Take the PLUNGE INTO THE FUN

By Margaret K. Fitzgerald
Special Writer

In your dreams you are flying across the water faster than you'd ever imagined. You are comfortably seated, the skipper of a sport boat designed to pack more power than a Lear jet in flight. Whether you dream of fishing, water-skiing, or simply cruising up the coast to your favorite restaurant, now is the time to make your dream a reality. It's time to buy a boat.

There are many advantages to owning a power boat today. Weekends zip past, but an afternoon spent skiing with the kids, followed by dinner, is an attractive option. You feel you've escaped for a bit.

Mike Carter, general manager at Black River Marine in Harrison Township, says it is important for first-time boat buyers to stop and identify their needs, and then go out to shop. "If a family boat is what you're looking for, take the family to the store, get in some boats, and ask lots of questions," Carter advises.

Some of those questions will surely involve construction and maintenance. Today's watercraft are custom designed and engineered. These are precision performance boats, featuring Fiberglass hulls, which can be equipped with state-of-the-art electronics. Cabin amenities range from basic (a berth for relaxing) to luxurious (splendid interiors for cooking and entertaining in style). Gelcoated color graphics, UV treated marine vinyls, and Scotchgard protected designer upholstery ensure that the beauty of your boat will not fade. Although the high-tech look of European design is the standard, these boats are created with easy handling in mind. Sport boats today that pack a lot of muscle are designed to maneuver safely in the water. The aerodynamics of the hull design have resulted in a boat ride with faster lift, using less fuel than models of the past.

What does all this mean for the novice? Boaters can expect lower operation and maintenance costs, and enhanced maneuverability. Practically speaking, owning and operating a boat is easier than ever before.

"Boating is basically a lot of common sense," says Carter. "The driver has to keep his eyes on the path in front of him, just as in a car. Combine that with a good Coast Guard auxiliary class, and a few fundamentals later you are ready to go."

Black River Marine carries a number of well-known names. Baja makes an impressive line of sleek, high-performance sport boats. Maxum, Celebrity and Larson produce family boats, from smaller runabouts to larger cruisers. Mako and Robalo specialize in fishing interest on your income tax. Other requirements may apply, so check with your local tax consultant.

MONEY MATTERS

A new buyer's concerns will understandably focus on cost. What can you expect when it comes to purchasing, operating and maintaining your new boat? Of course, the cost of a boat is directly proportional to its size and extravagance. Black products, with rates and terms often more favorable than those of a bank. Interest rates are hovering around eight percent for long-term financing. It's possible to keep the payments under $200 a month on a boat priced in the $20,000 range.

Since a first-time boat purchase is a major event, Carter believes in making the process as simple as possible. Although the manufacturers offer warranties on just about every boat available, Black River will extend the warranties if desired. All boats are delivered with a basic safety package which the Coast Guard requires before a boat leaves the dock. Black River will also install any accessories which a buyer might purchase from other marine retailers, such as bumpers or special electronic equipment.

A common mistake of first-time buyers is the tendency to purchase a boat that the owner finds too small. When you walk into a boat store, a 40-foot sport boat looks massive. But remember the size of the lake you are going to be boating on, and keep an open mind. "Buying a boat that is too small is like washing a new cotton shirt," Carter notes. "They can shrink when you put them in water."

Smaller boats are good for Michigan's inland lakes. And their "trailerability" makes them a versatile choice. A small craft in a big lake, however, starts to feel real small, real fast.

MAINTENANCE

Ease the throttle down and dock your cruiser in the marina. If it's been more than 70 hours since your last tune-up, it's time to give this your attention.

Boat maintenance schedules are based on the number of hours used rather than the amount of distance traveled. Carter advises routine tune-ups every 60-75 hours, and an oil change every 30 hours. This applies to boats of any size. The yardstick of hours spent boating refers exclusively to the time spent running the engine, not time spent idling in the bay.

Other maintenance involves regular washing. In this instance, boat care resembles auto care. Keep it clean, wash off the dust and the bugs. Applying either a Teflon seal or a thorough wax job will keep the hull looking its sleek and shiny best. Boat care performed on a sunny Saturday morning amid the sounds of the wind and the water and the gulls beats any driveway carwash, hands down.

"That's really the fun of it," adds Carter. "You put on your shorts or your bathing suit, go down to the docks, rinse down your boat and get a little sun while you work. The whole family can participate. Then you all hop in and motor down to the bay to do a little skiing. It's such a change from your workweek. It's completely relaxing."

The popularity of boating has soared in the past 10 years. Marine design technology has created the perfect escape, enabling us to shed our cautious workweek skins and set sight on a distant shore. The excitement of a Baja .38 Special going 60 m.p.h. will certainly get your attention. You may find it hard to step back on land.

Come visit Black River Marine and see what a difference a boat can make in your life. We offer full rack and storage at our Port Huron location, and a brokerage service for used boat sales. In Port Huron we are at 207 Water Street, (810) 982-3990. In Harrison Township, come to 36301 Jefferson Avenue, (810) 783-5050.

boats, from sumptuously appointed 36 footers down to the sporty simplicity of a 17 foot tackle boat. Sea-Doo jet boats are available at Black River's Port Huron store.

Given our proximity to a variety of excellent small and Great Lakes, an investment in a boat makes good sense. And if you splurge on a craft with sleeping, bathroom and cooking facilities, you can declare it your second home and may be able to deduct the

Annual Home Price Comparison Index evaluates markets

A buyer of a 2,200-square-foot home in Oklahoma City would have to pay nearly eight times more, or nearly $667,000, for a similar-sized home in Beverly Hills — a wide contrast in home prices between America's most affordable and most expensive markets — according to Coldwell Banker Residential Affiliates Inc.'s annual "Home Price Comparison Index."

Oklahoma City topped the Coldwell Banker list of most affordable homes in America for the second consecutive year with an average price of $99,333. On the high end of the scale, Beverly Hills came in No. 1 with an average price of $766,250, holding the distinction of being the most expensive market in the United States. The city named as America's most average priced market to purchase a home is Anchorage, Alaska.

Coldwell Banker surveyed nearly 300 of its residential real estate offices in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico during the last quarter of 1996 to determine the average sales price of a "typical corporate transferee home" in markets throughout North America. The "subject home" evaluated in the Home Price Comparison Index is a single-family dwelling with four bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, family room and two-car garage.

According to the survey the Northeast Region of the United States has the highest average price for the subject home, $242,806; followed by the West, $238,123; the Midwest, $174,617; and the Southeast, $153,370. The average price of all homes surveyed rose approximately 3.7 percent to $205,886 compared to $198,467 last year.

"This study is demonstrative of the economic diversity in home values across the country. In addition to providing useful information on average home prices in nearly 300 markets throughout North America, the index is also a valuable tool for relocating homeowners since it gives them a formula to calculate what a specific home would cost in another market," said Bob Becker, president and CEO of Coldwell Banker Residential Affiliates Inc.

The Coldwell Banker Home Price Comparison features an index number for each market and easy-to-use formula that helps consumers quickly calculate the cost of replacing their home in another location. What would a house in Florida's most expensive market surveyed cost in the nation's capital? Using the formula provided, a 2,200-square-foot home in Sarasota with a value of $206,625 would cost approximately $268,500 in Washington, D.C.

Consumers can get their free copy of the 1997 Home Price Comparison Index brochure by calling (800) 488-MOVE or by stopping by their local Coldwell Banker office. The brochure, as well as information on thousands of homes for sale, is also available on the company's website at <http://www.coldwellbanker.com>.

Food safety tips for microwave cooking

There are traits unique to microwave cooking that affect how evenly and safely food is cooked. "Cold spots" can occur because of the irregular way the microwaves enter the oven and are absorbed by the food.

If food isn't cooked evenly, bacteria may survive and cause food-borne illness. Simple techniques can ensure that meat and poultry microwave safely.

Defrosting food

- Remove plastic wrap from food prior to microwaving. Foam trays and plastic wraps are not stable in high heat. Chemicals may go into food if melting or warping occurs.

- Cook meat and poultry immediately after thawing in the microwave. Food should not be left out at room temperature longer than two hours.

Utensils safe to use

- Safe utensils include glass and glass ceramic cookware (labeled for microwave cooking).

- Wraps and bags that are safe to use are wax paper, oven cooking bags, paper towels and parchment paper.

- Never use brown paper bags, newspapers or plastic margarine tubs. They will warp or melt, possibly causing chemical migration into the food.

If you have questions on food safety, call the Macomb County Extension food hotline on Monday, Wednesday or Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at (810) 469-5060.

Antiques

The art-pottery artists working in the early 1900s might have had Halloween in mind when they made pieces with designs that featured goblins, witches, bats, weird bird-like creatures and other strange and mystic figures.

The eccentric Martin brothers of England made bird-shaped containers with smiling owl-like heads that now sell for thousands of dollars. They favored insects and spiders and odd underwater creatures for decorations on vases.

George Ohr of Biloxi, Miss., made crumpled and crushed vases decorated with snakes.

The decorators from the famed Rookwood pottery usually made vases covered with attractive flowers or portraits. There were times, though, when an artist decorated a vase with scenes popular for Halloween. They included ghosts and goblins; huge, angry birds; moonlit landscapes with flying bats; dancing frogs; and dragons.

Some collectors pay extra for a strange piece of pottery. Most collectors buy only the traditional types.

Q. The label on my Windsor-style chairs reads "M. Reischmann and Sons." How old are they?

A. M. Reischmann and Sons Inc. worked in New York City as early as 1852. The company, which manufactured and imported tables and chairs, was still operating in the 1920s but is no longer in business.

Q. I inherited some trading cards that were copyrighted in 1890 by the Arbuckle Bros. Coffee Co. Some of the card fronts picture animals, and some show historical scenes. Are they valuable?

A. Because color pictures were rare in the 19th century, companies often gave away advertising trade cards with colorful pictures. The Arbuckle Bros. Co., of New York City, offered 50-card sets that covered various topics, including animals, U.S. history and views from around the world. The 3x5-inch cards sell for about $10 each.

There seems to be a special group of collectors for each type of antique.

Most shops and shows feature the decorative arts, china, silver, glass, furniture and pictures that will be useful in a home. But other types of shows and sales spotlight the mechanical arts.

There are many collectors of kitchen-related objects such as iron pans, old toasters and egg-beaters, graniteware pots and pans and pressing irons. Another group favors farm equipment, from full-size tractors to toys and tractor seats.

Many collect automotive items, as well as full-size cars. There are clubs for aficionados of license plates, gas-pump globes, threaded hubcaps, highway signs and spark plugs. There are general publications for collectors of just about any type of car or motoring memorabilia, from oil cans to service-station uniforms.

So, if you are interested in collecting handkerchiefs, typewriter ribbon tins or steam engines, do it. You are likely to get the information you need from other collectors.

Q. The mark on the back of my platter looks like a sphinx. It has the words "Petrus Regout, Maastricht." Any information?

A. Petrus Regout established the De Sphinx pottery in Maastricht, Holland, in 1836. The company made transfer-printed earthenware dishes.

Q. What do you know about Donald Duck cola? I have a crate of unopened bottles of it.

A. Donald Duck was endorsing orange juice as early as 1941. By 1948, his face was pictured on more than two dozen food products. Disney characters endorsed food products through the 1930s. The endorsements became more numerous during the war years, when toy production was down. Food endorsements dropped dramatically when Disney began its television show.

Today a single bottle of Donald Duck cola sells for $4 to $16. A six-pack of any Donald Duck soft drink sells for about $60. Your crate would sell for four times that or more.

Look for vintage Donald Duck brand mustard, mayonnaise, rice, macaroni, coffee, canned vegetables, syrups, apple products and more.

Don't cheat with wrenches

Among the many definitions of cheat listed in Webster's Dictionary is the following: "To deceive by trickery." This definition seems to aptly describe the wrench cheating technique; an unorthodox technique used by the unwary to get extra power by adding a length of pipe or other extension to the wrench handle to gain extra leverage. The trick is that the tool-user is in a sense falsely telling the wrench it can do more than it was designed to do. When this is the case, something has to give and it could result in damage to the tool, damage to the fastener, injury to the tool-user or all three.

The Hand Tools Institute, a trade association of American hand tool manufacturers, says that persons using this dangerous technique, knowingly or unknowingly, are in a sense playing a game of Russian roulette and the odds are stacked against the tool-user.

Simply stated, the main function of a wrench is for holding and turning nuts, bolts, cap screws, plugs and various other threaded parts. Since the threads of the product being turned act as a remorseless wedge, it is possible to strip the threads by applying excessive torque. Threads can be an integral part of costly equipment.

Here are some additional safety tips from HTI when using wrenches:

- Select a wrench whose opening exactly fits the nut. Too large an opening can spread the jaws of a wrench. Too large a box — or socket wrench — can mar or turn the corners of the nut. Exercise care in selecting inch wrenches for inch fasteners and metric wrenches for metric fasteners.

- Never use a wrench as a hammer.

- Always pull, never push, on a wrench and adjust your stance to prevent a fall in case something lets go.

- To free a "frozen" nut or bolt use a striking face box wrench.

- Always wear safety goggles when using hand tools to avoid eye injury.

Home Tips

EASY UPDATES — I have a habit of clipping special articles of events, deaths, births, marriages, etc., as well as jokes and whatever else catches my fancy. I seemed to be losing track of these items.

I came up with the idea of addressing letters and sending them out to loved ones who live far away. This saves all that writing and keeps these folks up to date. Armella W., Winona, Minn.

FAMILY HISTORIAN — While walking through antiques stores, I'm always struck by the old family photos that no one wanted because they weren't marked as to who they were or what relation they were to their family. Now is the time to visit with grandparents and other relatives and offer to help them identify their pictures and tell about each person.

If you would like copies, you don't need to pay high prices; just copy them yourself. All you need is a camera and good lighting.

Lay the picture down flat in good lighting, focus as closely as you can, and take the picture. Experiment and you will be surprised at what good pictures you will get.

I did this and now have photos dating back to my great-great-grandparents. Lisa H., Red Hook, N.Y.

ON THE ROAD — When traveling, I put out the "Do Not Disturb" sign when going out for breakfast.

That way, the maid won't be there when you need to go back to your room before departing for the day. Rita K., Lubbock, Texas

FILM I.D. — Attach the end label of the 35 mm film box to the back of the camera. With so many types of film now available, it is difficult to always remember what type is in the camera.

It will make for better prints because you will be using the film to its full advantage. Wanda F., Cape Coral, Fla.

Local Nightclubs Welcome Race Fans!

After the roar and thunder of the boats have calmed for the day, check out these local bars and restaurants and get ready to start your engines up for more thrills and chills.

The Arena Sports Nightclub - Dearborn Heights, Fri., May 30
Imagine having 51 TVs and four big screens; well it's here and it's three bars in one! Featuring a futuristic sports nightclub with a great DJ and dancing. This is an up close and personal pub that has live bands on the weekends, a game room with six pool tables and 10 dartboards. Catch your favorite sports on the satellite or dance the night away!
23914 Ford Rd. (N.E. corner of Ford Rd. & Telegraph) (313) 561-9000.

The Arena Offshore - Wyandotte, Fri., May 30 The best way to describe the new Downriver hotspot is: A 1920s speakeasy meets the new steak and seafood house located right off the river. Enjoy tantalizing steaks and the best seafood the city has to offer. Check out the daily lunch and dinner specials after you leave the race site! 23914 Biddle (313) 561-9000

The Ultimate Sports Bar & Grill - Pontiac, Sat., May 31 To all hydro fans the motto is: You don't just watch sports, you play them! Have fun on the outdoor volleyball courts or dance all night in the boxing ring dance floor. Venture upstairs to the Jupiter Room to catch one of the live bands. The best place to continue all the fun and excitement from the races. 40 W. Pike St. (810) 253-1300

Plush Pockets Billiards & Sports Club - Warren Sat., May 31
Michigan's premier billiard club, sports bar & grill. Enjoy Michigan's largest selection of micro-brews and great food. Play pool, throw darts and watch sports on their large screens. 28202 Dequindre (S. of 12 Mile Rd.) (810) 751-2222

Boardwalk Billiards (Inside the R.S. Eastin Hotel) - Roseville, Wed., May 28 This spot will be sizzling hot! Party all night at the party of all parties. Mingle and dance the night away with lots of fun, music and games. This may be your best chance to hang with the drivers, crews and the rest of the "who's who" in the hydro world. Enjoy great food, drinks, sports and your chance to win free race tickets. 31930 Little Mack S. of Masonic (810) 296-6700

Teddy's Tavern - Warren, Thurs., May 29 Voted one of Detroit's "Best Burgers." This newly remodeled location offers a great post-race gathering spot. Watch the races or your favorite sporting event on their big screens. Teddy's also offers dancing, pool, darts, videos and much more! This place puts sports in your face! ## Spend A Summer

The technical name is unlimited hydroplane, but to the half-million spectators across the choppy waters at 200 mph, with 30 foot rooster tails. The much anticipated arrival of the Thunderboats in Detroit has been a celebration and celebrate summer.

With most of the 2.5 mile oval course visible from the cost-free Belle Isle water's edge May 29 - June 1, to watch the competition, soak up the sun.

The action will be NON-STOP as five different boat classes compete, with Outboard Inflatables. A full fleet of Unlimited competitors will battle to win the Detroit APBA Gold Cup.

Boats Rev Up!

Afternoon Downtown

Boaters who line the shores of the Detroit River every summer to watch them fly with their sails spraying fiercely behind, they are the Mighty Thunderboats. A ritual for the city and an excuse for record crowds to go downtown for a day in a very unique way.

It's not surprising anymore that thousands of hydro fans will descend on the early summer sun and spend an afternoon downtown in the Gold Cup City.

Which include Unlimiteds, Unlimited Lights, Grand Prix, Jersey Speed Skiffs and win the most prestigious trophy in all of powerboat racing, the Chrysler Jeep. Check out this year's line-up:

THANK YOU SPONSORS!

SPIRIT OF DETROIT THUNDERFEST, INC.

The Spirit of Detroit Thunderfest is pleased to recognize the following Official Sponsors of the 1997 Chrysler Jeep Detroit APBA Gold Cup presented by the Southeast Michigan Jeep and Eagle Dealers and the Chrysler and Plymouth Superstores.

Chrysler Corporation and the Southeast

Michigan Jeep and Eagle Dealers and the Chrysler and Plymouth Superstores are in the second year of their three-year sponsorship of the 1997 Gold Cup, the prestigious Unlimited hydroplane competition. Like last year, the event is formally called, "The Chrysler Jeep Detroit APBA Gold Cup presented by the Southeast Michigan Jeep and Eagle Dealers and the Chrysler and Plymouth Superstores." An extensive fleet of Chrysler and Jeep courtesy cars will be used by Race Officials and Thunderfest executives throughout Race Week.

The Spirit of Detroit Thunderfest is also pleased to announce that the Southeast Michigan Jeep and Eagle Dealers and the Chrysler and Plymouth Superstores agreed to become Title Sponsor of the Chrysler Jeep Automotive Gold Cup, the popular piston-powered hydro-invitational held on Friday, May 30 at 5:15 p.m. Thanks for the extra support for this special event!

Welcome back Pepsi! Pepsi has signed a three-year contract with Thunderfest and will be the Official Soft Drink of the 1997, 1998 and 1999 Gold Cup. Pepsi products will be sold exclusively at all Elias Brothers concession stands at the race site. Be sure to stop by Pepsi Park (formerly known as Waterworks Park Annex) to see what's new from this terrific soft drink company.

Thunderfest is proud to welcome Close Call to the Gold Cup family of sponsors. As sponsor's of Mark Tate's ride, Close Call will be on-site in the Dodge Pits and in Waterworks Park offering race fans exciting promotional opportunities with their Close Call pre-paid phone card sweepstakes. Look for great ways to win cash, cars and all sorts of prizes at their displays throughout the race site.

Comerica Bank returns as an Official Sponsor of the 1997 Chrysler Jeep APBA Gold Cup. Comerica generously donates the Renaissance Center office space that Thunderfest uses to coordinate all event activities.

Anheuser-Busch, Inc. and Budweiser - the King of Beers - returns as an Associate Sponsor for the 1997 Chrysler Jeep Detroit APBA Gold Cup. Look for the fan-friendly Bud displays to return to Waterworks Park this year, offering great tours through the Beer School.

As the Official Radio Provider of the 1997 Chrysler Jeep APBA Gold Cup, Mobile

Communications helps keep Race Officials in communication with each other by supplying radios and equipment to those who need it the most.

Representing 350,000

This is Broadband. This is the way. subscribers in southeast Michigan, MediaOne is delivering great promotional clout and advertising assistance to Thunderfest. We're pleased to welcome this new sponsor to our event and look forward to seeing their staff and contest winners down at the race.

Ray-Ban Sunglasses Division of Bausch & Lomb returns as the Official Sunglass of the event in association with D.O.C. Look for their colorful booth in Waterworks Park where they will be featuring great eye wear for all race fans.

Thunderfest The City of Detroit is involved in every aspect of staging the Chrysler Jeep Gold Cup. This event could not be possible without the City's ongoing support.

Diamond "P" Sports provides the technical broadcast support required for the local and national telecasts.

TWO GREAT TITLE SPONSORS ARE BACK!

Elias Brothers Restaurants, Inc. has returned for the third year to sponsor The Big Boy Grand Prix Hydroplane Championship. The "boys" from Big Boy are great supporters of the GPs and are looking forward to a great race weekend for this feature event. Elias Brothers also provides the food, beverages and souvenirs, as the Official Concessionaire of Thunderfest.

Authorized Cellular Authorized Cellular is the Official Cellular Phone Sponsor of the Gold Cup and, we're happy to report, the Title Sponsor of the "Authorized Cellular Unlimited Lights Championship". The group will be providing on-site communication services to the Unlimited Lights pits and our Thunderfest volunteers and is sponsoring two Unlimited Lights hydros. 1997 marks the eighth year that Authorized Cellular has been a Gold Cup sponsor. Thanks for the support Dave & Greg!

WELCOME BROADCASTERS!

As of press time, details were still being finalized for the Gold Cup race broadcasts on WDIV-TV 4, Detroit. Look for a 30-minute Preview Program to be broadcast throughout the Detroit metropolitan area on Friday night, May 30 at 7:30 p.m. A 90-minute, "live" Gold Cup race special will be featured on Race Day, Sunday, June 1 beginning at 2:30 pm. The Unlimited Final will also be broadcast "live" on ESPN II. A 60-minute recap will be broadcast on ESPN a few weeks after the race. Be sure to check your TV guides for the latest dates and times.

WWJ - AM and WYST - FM 97 ROCK return as the Official Broadcast Stations of the 1997 Chrysler Jeep Detroit APBA Gold Cup. WWJ will begin broadcasting from the Race Site on Wednesday, May 28 and will provide "live" reports from the Pits through the rest of the week and weekend. Traffic, weather and race conditions will also be provided. WYST - FM 97 ROCK, WWJ's sister station will sponsor Erma Henderson Park, a great general admission park, located off East Jefferson at Burns Drive. Fans will love the on-site, party events planned for this favorite race hang-out.
