Robb Report names Farms among best places to live

By Wanda Eison
Editorial Writer

Grosse Pointe Farms, one of our five famous Grosse Pointe municipalities, won new distinction the other day when it was named fourth on a list of "affluent communities" in Robb Reports, a magazine "for the luxury lifestyle."

The Farms was in distinguished company on this list. The only communities ahead of the Farms were Aspen, Colo.

Farm Beach, Fla. and Greenwich, Conn.; followed the Farms were Kapalua, Hawaii; Boca Raton, Fla.; and Hilton Head, S.C.

The list was chosen by eight top U.S. Realtors who were asked to nominate the best places to live in their regions of expertise. They were told to consider median home cost, public services, educational facilities, crime rate, and recreational and cultural opportunities. Grosse Pointe Farms was nominated by Marie Campioni of Rubell Residential Properties in Chicago. She had also nominated nine other communities, including Chicago's Gold Coast, Lake Forest, Winnetka, and several other towns in Illinois, plus Shaker Heights, Ohio.

However, each of the Realtors was told to nominate the 10 best — but not vote for any of their own nominees.

Overall, the choice was made not just of the wealthiest towns with the most mansions, but the magazine said, "communities that really provide residents with an outstanding quality of life."

The magazine then described Grosse Pointe Farms in just four paragraphs. They began this way:

"Henry Ford and other industrial pioneers of Detroit knew what they were doing when they chose Grosse Pointe

New Hill residents play to the crowd

At last, a silent skate boarder. Two bronze-coated sculptures of a man playing a saxophone to an enraptured skate boarder completed the renovation of Rite Aid on the Hill last week.

Manager Julia Zabel, with the design above, said the lifelike figures are taking a little getting used to. "I mistook them for real people when I opened the store the other morning."

The works were sculpted by Ross Matuja, owner of Commercial Cabinets in Fair Haven. "They were drawn specifically for Grosse Pointe, and took about three months to make," he said.

Don't worry about the figures walking away. The sax player weighs nearly 1,000 pounds, and the boy about 300 pounds, said Matuja. Both are anchored in the ground with two metal pegs, said Zabel.

Grand opening

The Rite Aid in the Pointe Plaza on Mack and Moross celebrates its remodeling with a week-long grand opening celebration during April 12-18.

Festivities will include free hot dogs, soda, beverage mugs and balloons, as well as complimentary blood pressure screening.

"We are very excited about the remodeling of this store," said Paul Toombs, Rite Aid market manager. "We are strongly committed to the community, and we look forward to serving the needs of residents here."

The schedule for the grand opening week includes:

- Free phone card with a new prescription: beginning Sunday, April 12-18;
- Free travel mugs: beginning Wednesday, April 15 while supplies last;
- Free blood pressure screenings: Friday, April 17, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.;
- Free hotdogs and soda: beginning Friday, April 17-18, 10 a.m. while supplies last;
- WCHB-FM remote radio broadcast: Saturday, April 18, 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Public adds 2 cents on how to spend extra $3.4 million

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Know anyone who would like to spend a few million?

The Grosse Pointe Public School System does.

Like money burning a hole in a school-kid's pocket, the board heard a battery of ideas on how to spend the $3.4 million Durant settlement funds during recent public hearings.

Although there were many speakers, there were only two views. Advocates were split between wanting special education and historic preservation.

Judy McLoughlin, from the City of Grosse Pointe, asked the board to use "a large portion of the Durant money to update the special education program and make it more inclusive." She said special ed kids can benefit by attending classes with traditional students.

Susan Carpenter, vice president of the South High School Mother's Club preservation committee and resident of Grosse Pointe Park, said the Durant funds could help defray the estimated $800,000 cost to renovate South's aging auditorium.

David King, principal of Defer Elementary School, campaigned to renovate the school headquarters building at 389 St. Clair.

Board member John Mills cautioned against spending for spending's sake.

"Let's not get giddy and spend all this money up front. I suggest the board prudently allocate these funds," he said.

Offering a business-like strategy, Mills said the district should keep "one eye on the future to make sure shortfalls are met for maintenance." He cited upcoming boiler replacements expected to cost approximately $350,000 at Parcels and Mason schools as an example.

"Keep the other eye on unexpected needs," he said, like the cost of teaching English to the recent influx of Albanian students.

The hearing was required by the state in order for the district to qualify for the settlement funds. The money results from a lengthy class action suit against the state in which numerous school districts sought reimbursement for unfunded special education mandates.

When the money arrives in the district on April 15, it will be kept separate from the district's general fund.

While the board decides how to spend the money, it will be deposited in a Comerica Bank school cash investment fund, a special fund created for Michigan public school districts that bears above-average interest.

Until then, it's hands off, according to Christian Fenton, assistant superintendent of business affairs and support services.

2 candidates run for school board

Two people announced candidacies for the Grosse Pointe Board of Education in the election on June 8:

- Beth Konrad Wilberding of Grosse Pointe Park;
- Ted Cwiek of Grosse Pointe Woods.

The two candidates will vie for a single opening. Board president Timothy Howlett has decided not to run for re-election.

Candidate profiles and an endorsement will appear in the Grosse Pointe News tweeks prior to the election.

Police/school summit discusses high school safety

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Top school and police officials in Grosse Pointe met last Friday to discuss where everyone goes from here after the recent arrests of high school students for drug use.

Chiefs from the five Grosse Pointe public safety departments met with Suzanne Klein, superintendent of Grosse Pointe Public Schools, and the principals of South and North high schools.

The summit laid the groundwork for future cooperation between schools and police, said Al Fincham, chief of the City of Grosse Pointe, the department that broke the drug case.

Added Robert Ferber, chief of Grosse Pointe Farms. "It was a very beneficial meeting about taking a cooperative approach to solving problems together. We continued developing a communicative attitude" with the principals of both high schools.

The meeting also dealt with closing South's campus.

"A closed campus is not feasible at this time because of the limited cafeteria space at South," said Dennis Van Dale, assistant chief in the City.

But keeping students from gathering off campus is another

City police responded twice last week to keep kids from hanging out along Fisher, according to police reports.

What about stationing police in the high schools?

All that plan needs is a go-ahead from the school, said Ferber.

In 1995, Farms Detective Lt. Mark Brecht obtained a $75,000 federal grant, with matching funds to be paid by the Farms and South, to place a liaison officer in the high school for three years.

"We were going to tie the officer into the community. Because South is often in conflict with nearby business, church and residential areas, a community police office could be established so the liaison officer would be there for everyone," he said.

At the time of the proposal, South wasn't interested, said Brecht.

"It was such a cooperative effort, we even asked the school to help write the officer's job description," he said. But nothing came of it.

"I did it all for nothing," said Brecht.

In the 1970's Brecht worked as a hall monitor at North. Known by students as "Mark the Narc," he earned the trust of students and received anonymous tips about alcohol and drug use in the school. "We preempted a lot of problems by being in the schools," he said.

Police are hopeful about returning liaison officers to schools.

"One thing that is very positive is the principal at South. He's a pro. That's a big plus," said Ferber.

"We're exploring the opportunity of returning youth service officers to the schools in a partnership with the police," said Klein.

The problem is funding. Even with Brecht's grant money, things are tight.

Russell Luttineu, assistant principal at South, said budgets cuts due to Proposal A have made it tough to fund new programs.

"Our budget at South next year is $50,000 less than this year, not counting inflation," he said. "We're having to make cutbacks each year. We can't afford an officer on campus."

Ferber said money from the $3.4 million Durant settlement could help.

"Paying for police in schools with money from the Durant funds is something I've fought for," said Ferber.

The wooden cupola that has towered above the Grosse Pointe Woods city hall since 1962 is being replaced with an aluminum model. Over three decades of exposure to the elements have taken a toll on the old cupola. So when it came time, it was decided to replace it with something that could handle the weather.

Woods cupola to be replaced

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Time takes its toll. The cupola that has towered over the Grosse Pointe Woods city hall since the building's construction in 1962 will be replaced.

"The cupola is 36 years old," said director of public services Tom Whitcher. "It's made out of wood and after all these years, has begun to rot. So we decided to replace it."

The new cupola will be built by Rembrandt construction,

Whitcher said. This time it will be made out of aluminum and will have opaque glass windows instead of slats.

The city council has authorized spending up to $10,000 to replace the structure, said Whitcher. But he said he doubted it would cost more than $7,000 to replace it.

"We were originally going to refurbish the cupola," Whitcher said. "But after investigating the costs, we realized for a few dollars more we could replace it with an aluminum structure that will endure the Woods' weather better."

Whitcher added that there was never any thought of not fixing or replacing the cupola.

"The cupola has been a part of city hall since it was built," Whitcher said. "I suppose we could have taken the old structure down and just covered the hole in the roof. The cupola is a landmark in this city. We're keeping it."

South, North's AP programs rate near top in the country

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe South and North high schools have been ranked among the elite public high schools in the nation.

In a study of advanced placement programs of public high schools in the United States, South ranked 59 on the "Challenge Index." North was 142.

Officials from both schools called the difference statistically insignificant.

Art Miller, principal of South, credited the school's rating to hard-working students, teachers and parents who pull together for academic excellence.

North's fine showing was due to "parents reinforcing educational values, students willing to challenge themselves, and the school providing the framework," said Caryn Wells, North principal.

Advanced placement courses are accelerated courses in which students can earn college credit while still in high school.

North and South offer numerous AP classes, from biology to foreign languages.

"Over 100 colleges accept South's AP credits," said Miller.

Wells said approximately 33 percent of students in the district take AP tests.

The ratings were the product of Jay Mathews, an education writer for The Washington Post and author of "Class Struggle: What's Wrong (and Right) with America's Best Public High Schools."

Mathews ranked public high schools having a graduating class of more than 200 based on the ratio of advance placement students to the general student body.

"Because our AP program is wide open to whoever wants to try, our students have opportunities that they wouldn't have elsewhere," said Suzanne Klein, superintendent of public schools.

Administrators said students can save on college expenses by earning college credit in high school. "Some high school graduates enter college as sophomores based on advanced credit," said Miller.

"They save a whole year of tuition, plus room and board."

Miller said advanced placement is "all about schools offering rigorous, academically challenging courses for students who are committed to hard work."

He said teachers of advance placement classes are not paid extra for the additional work required by the program, which demands "an incredible commitment."

On the downside, school board member Jack Ryan said he was "disconcerted" to learn that the rankings were made on only the AP criteria. The ratings made "no recognition for the accomplishments of our hockey team and show choir," he said.

The highest rated school in Michigan was Andover in Bloomfield Hills at 14. The No. 1 school nationally was in Old Westbury, N.Y.

Farms as the site of their summer homes. Located on Lake St. Clair, a small lake between Lake Erie and Lake Huron, the town is ideally situated for those who love water sports. Its harbor docks up to 300 boats.

(While many members of the automotive pioneer's descendants have lived here and still do, the first Henry Ford did not.)

The magazine went on to cite the estates, mansions and gracious older homes that were left behind by the pioneer industrialists and now "enhance this bedroom community of 10,000. No (manufacturing) industry exists in Grosse Pointe Farms, which is 90 percent residential."

The story cited the diversity of real estate, with homes ranging from about $120,000 to approximately $4 million, and the average home priced at $390,000. It also said that five estates worth over $1 million each changed hands last year.

And, finally, the story paid tribute to education in a town where 60 percent of the adult residents have earned at least one college degree. And it closed with the statement that really identifies all five Points:

"This emphasis on education extends to the community's excellent public and private schools."

There may be a bit of hype in the piece, but most Farms residents would agree, we think, that it's a great place to live.

Retiring beauty commissioners

Woods to begin park improvements

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

When the swimming pool at Lake Front Park opens on Memorial Day weekend, Grosse Pointe Woods residents can expect to see a new and improved park.

The Woods council recently approved spending $147,000 to improve the city's park system. Director of public works Tom Whitcher said the lion's share of improvement money will be used to build a new gate house at Lake Front Park.

This will facilitate entering and exiting the park. The city is also remodeling the old concession stand, said Whitcher.

During the winter it can, once construction is complete, be used as a warming room for platform tennis players.

During the summer, said Whitcher, it will be used as a storage facility. The old maintenance garage in the rear of the park will also undergo renovations to look more like the old bath house, making the building more architecturally consistent with the rest of the park.

The garage is where such maintenance equipment as lawn mowers and sandbags are kept, along with the park's barbecues, Whitcher said.

But Lake Front Park is not the Woods only municipal park. The plan approved by the council also calls for improvements to Ghesquiere Park as well.

The restroom facilities at the park will be upgraded so that they meet the federal Americans with Disabilities Act standards of handicap accessibility, Whitcher said. The restrooms are located next to the Babe Ruth baseball diamonds and tennis courts.

Construction of the new gate house should begin in early April, said Whitcher. It should be completed by the time the park opens for the boating season.

Park woman's love of people took her many places in life

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

At a time when most people are planning their retirements, Grosse Pointe Park resident Jane Booth Gay volunteered to work in the Park probation department. Now 20 years later, she's still there — and is head of the department.

Gay, 70, was born in Milwaukee in 1918 and can remember when radio was cutting-edge technology.

"I can remember getting my first radio, forget about television," said Gay. "Kate Smith used to sing 'When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain.'"

Gay went to school in Milwaukee and attended college at the University of Wisconsin, Madison campus.

"My family fought me about going to college," said Gay. "Back then, after high school, women were supposed to stay home and embroider. At college I majored in home economics, but also went into social studies."

After graduating, Gay found herself a young woman with a college degree whose country was in the middle of the Great Depression. A daunting prospect to many, it didn't bother her one bit.

"I got a job," said Gay. "My first job was at the old Milwaukee Sentinel, which merged with another paper in town and is called the Journal-Sentinel. I got a job in the paper's circulation department. I was a glorified gofer. That meant my boss could send me to the corner store to get a bottle of milk and a bottle of scotch."

Gay said working for a big city newspaper in the 1930s was exciting. The men always wore their hats, which had press passes in the bands, in the newsroom. When she walked in the building, she could smell the newsprint.

Gay credits her boss in the circulation department, Jim McGrain, for getting her to Chicago.

"Jim was just a dear, the sweetest man to work for," Gay said. "He was one of the old newspaper men who never took off his hat. When he was hired by Marshall Field III to run the Chicago Sun's circulation department, he brought me with him. Being a single gal in her 20s with her own apartment in Chicago during the 1940s was just glorious. You we worked 60 hours a week and didn't think anything of it."

Always up for adventure, Gay joined the Civil Air Patrol. She used to fly in old-fashioned can keep New York. For my money, Chicago is the greatest American city."

Gay was working in the Sun's circulation department on Sunday, December 7, 1941. The Sun scooped all the papers in Chicago because there were still people to man the presses when the news of the attack on Pearl Harbor came in. It was one of those times when the cliché of "stop the presses" was true, she said.

"Marshall Field was just a doll," said Gay. "He would have people from his club come over and serve us dinner on real plates and we would eat with real silverware. In those days, prop biplanes, wearing the traditional leather helmet with goggles. She also spent a lot of time walking around the airports, making sure the property was all right.

But when the Sun was sold to the Chicago Times and the Sun-Times newspaper was created, there was no need for two circulation departments. So Gay headed back home to Milwaukee, where she took a position in the retail trade on Downer Street.

Gay met the man who would become her husband in 1949, when she was 31 years old.

"In those days that made you an old maid," said Gay.

he was never going to do it. He was 29 when we married in 1949."

Her husband worked for Burroughs and as a result they moved around a bit.

"I lived in Green Bay during the Vince Lombardi era," Gay said. "That was a wonderful time. Just before the team's plane would land, everybody in Green Bay would turn on their porch lights, whether the team won or not. There was one long party from the beginning of the season to the end of the season."

After Green Bay, the Gays

moved to California and they bought a house in Beverly Hills. It was there that Gay purchased her white 1963 Corvette Stingray.

"I was driving an old Renault and my husband wanted me to get a heavier car," Gay said. "When I went to the dealership, I saw the Corvette and decided that was my car. Ike was out of town, so I gave the salesman $20 to hold the car. When Ike got back, I told him what I wanted. One of his salesmen was a 'Vette buff and told him to let me get the car. I still have it and it has all its original equipment."

The Gays were transferred to Detroit from southern California in 1972, and she said it was the best move of their lives.

"I just got tired of the monotonous weather in California," said Gay. "I also got tired of the phony people. Give me the honest Midwesterner anytime."

In 1978 Gay went to a Park city council meeting to support a proposed leash law ordinance. While looking for the council chambers, she bumped into Suzanne O'Shea, who asked her if she was looking to fill the volunteer position at the city's probation department.

Gay said no, but was curious and ended up taking the job anyway. Twenty years later she heads the department.

"In the past 20 years, I've had to take classes and pass state certification tests to reach my position," Gay said. "But the real credit for our city's outstanding probation program should go to three people: Suzanne O'Shea, who created the structure for the whole Grosse Pointe probation system; former municipal court judge Kirsten Frank Kelly, who had enough faith to ask me to head our department; and Penny Caretti, who helped me develop our most recent program. This has been the most ideal place to work."

When asked why she has stayed with probation for 20 years, Gay said that she loves people. For four years in the late-1970s and early 1980s, she, using a stylus, punched out in braille short stories for children and restaurant menus.

"I only did that for four years because it's something you have to do alone," Gay said. "Ruth McNamara taught me braille at the War Memorial, but I found that it was too lonely. I like people too much to shut myself away."

Gay hopes to visit St. Petersburg, Russia, next May and attend an international conference on conflict resolution and healing the relationship between the offender and the community.

"I may retire someday, but right now I'm too busy," Gay said.

Park woman's love of people took her many places in life

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

At a time when most people are planning their retirements, Grosse Pointe Park resident Jane Booth Gay volunteered to work in the Park probation department. Now 20 years later, she's still there — and is head of the department.

Gay, 79, was born in Milwaukee in 1918 and can remember when radio was cutting-edge technology.

"I can remember getting my first radio, forget about television," said Gay. "Kate Smith used to sing 'When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain.'"

Gay went to school in Milwaukee and attended college at the University of Wisconsin, Madison campus.

"My family fought me about going to college," said Gay. "Back then, after high school, women were supposed to stay home and embroider. At college I majored in home economics, but also went into social studies."

After graduating, Gay found herself a young woman with a college degree whose country was in the middle of the Great Depression. A daunting prospect to many, it didn't bother her one bit.

"I got a job," said Gay. "My first job was at the old Milwaukee Sentinel, which merged with another paper in town and is called the Journal-Sentinel. I got a job in the paper's circulation department. I was a glorified gofer. That meant my boss could send me to the corner store to get a bottle of milk and a bottle of scotch."

Gay said working for a big city newspaper in the 1930s was exciting. The men always wore their hats, which had press passes in the bands, in the newsroom. When she walked in the building, she could smell the newsprint.

Gay credits her boss in the circulation department, Jim McGrain, for getting her to Chicago.

"Jim was just a dear, the sweetest man to work for," Gay

said. "He was one of the old newspaper men who never took off his hat. When he was hired by Marshall Field III to run the Chicago Sun's circulation department, he brought me with him. Being a single gal in her 20s with her own apartment in Chicago during the 1940s was just gorgeous. You

we worked 60 hours a week and didn't think anything of it."

Always up for adventure, Gay joined the Civil Air Patrol. She used to fly in old-fashioned

"When people would ask my mother if I was married, she would laugh and say I was an old maid. My husband Ike told me that if he hadn't gotten married by the time he was 30 can keep New York. For my money, Chicago is the greatest American city."

Gay was working in the Sun's circulation department on Sunday December 7, 1941. The Sun scooped all the papers in Chicago because there were still people to man the presses when the news of the attack on Pearl Harbor came in. It was one of those times when the cliché of "stop the presses" was true, she said.

"Marshall Field was just a doll," said Gay. "He would have people from his club come over and serve us dinner on real plates and we would eat with real silverware. In those days, prop biplanes, wearing the traditional leather helmet with goggles. She also spent a lot of time walking around the airports, making sure the property was all right.

But when the Sun was sold to the Chicago Times and the Sun-Times newspaper was created, there was no need for two circulation departments. So Gay headed back home to Milwaukee, where she took a position in the retail trade on Downer Street.

Gay met the man who would become her husband in 1949, when she was 31 years old.

"In those days that made you an old maid," said Gay,

he was never going to do it. He was 29 when we married in 1949."

Her husband worked for Burroughs and as a result they moved around a bit.

"I lived in Green Bay during the Vince Lombardi era," Gay said. "That was a wonderful time. Just before the team's plane would land, everybody in Green Bay would turn on their porch lights, whether the team won or not. There was one long party from the beginning of the season to the end of the season."

moved to California and they bought a house in Beverly Hills. It was there that Gay purchased her white 1963 Corvette Stingray.

"I was driving an old Renault and my husband wanted me to get a heavier car," Gay said. "When I went to the dealership, I saw the Corvette and decided that was my car. Ike was out of town, so I gave the salesman $20 to hold the car. When Ike got back, I told him what I wanted. One of his salesmen was a 'Vette buff and told him to let me get the car. I still have it and it has all its original equipment."

The Gays were transferred to Detroit from southern California in 1972, and she said it was the best move of their lives.

"I just got tired of the monotonous weather in California," said Gay. "I also got tired of the phony people. Give me the honest Midwesterner anytime."

In 1978 Gay went to a Park city council meeting to support a proposed leash law ordinance. While looking for the council chambers, she bumped into Suzanne O'Shea, who asked her if she was looking to fill the volunteer position at the city's probation department.

Gay said no, but was curious and ended up taking the job anyway. Twenty years later she heads the department.

had to take classes and pass state certification tests to reach my position," Gay said. "But the real credit for our city's outstanding probation program should go to three people. Suzanne O'Shea, who created the structure for the whole Grosse Pointe probation system; former municipal court judge Kirsten Frank Kelly, who had enough faith to ask me to head our department; and Penny Caretti, who helped me develop our most recent program. This has been the most ideal place to work."

When asked why she has stayed with probation for 20 years, Gay said that she loves people. For four years in the late-1970s and early 1980s, she, using a stylus, punched out in braille short stories for children and restaurant menus.

"I only did that for four years because it's something you have to do alone," Gay said. "Ruth McNamara taught me braille at the War Memorial, but I found that it was too lonely. I like people too much to shut myself away."

Gay hopes to visit St. Petersburg, Russia, next May and attend an international conference on conflict resolution and healing the relationship between the offender and the community.

"I may retire someday, but right now I'm too busy," Gay said.

Dispute arises over teachers for 'chartered'

Only "a handful" of teachers in the charter schools being overseen by Central Michigan University are either uncertified or have temporary permits, the university said this week.

An earlier Detroit Free Press report had contended that one out of seven teachers in such schools were not properly certified.

The Free Press story said it was based on a state Department of Education investigation made at CMU's request after the college's own audit last year found that 132 of 695 teachers in schools CMU had authorized were lacking in certification.

But Arthur Ellis, superintendent of public instruction, contended that the Free Press article was "grossly overblown" and that "only a handful" of the 132 individuals identified as being non-certificated teachers in the initial article have yet to be identified as holding credentials.

"Most of the individuals were in fact properly certified or held valid permits to teach," he went on. "In this case, however, the initial complaints about lack of teacher licensing appear to be generally unfounded."

However, a CMU summary of the 132 teachers that the Free Press had alleged lacked proper certification, said that 22 had full-year certification, 10 had elementary provisional certification, 33 had emergency permits, 13 had permits pending, 14 were no longer employed, six had their permits denied and no records were found of five others.

In addition, one was found to be a teacher aide, another was a parent volunteer, one had an elementary provisional certification that had expired, another had an elementary professional, and seven had secondary provisionals.

Most of those provisional certifications no doubt occurred because the charter schools just started two years ago, but we still think it would be useful to have elected school boards for charter schools if they are to be counted as public schools.

Instead, boards for charter schools are appointed by the agency approving them. In this case, CMU is the approving agency for the schools in which the 132 teachers taught whose qualifications were questioned in the Free Press article.

That means that while these CMU-appointed boards no doubt include local people, they are not directly responsible to the residents of the local school district, as are the boards of public schools who are elected by each local school district.

The state investigation found that all but two of the 32 charter schools that employed uncertified teachers were in at least their second year of operation.

True, several officials of charter schools told the Free Press that their curriculums are so specialized that it is difficult for them to find certified teachers for some areas of study.

The Legislature, which created the charter schools, ought to raise serious questions about this issue, as well as about the request by charter school supporters for an increase in the number of charter schools now permitted.

In fact, several legislators and state school board members who discussed the matter with the Free Press seemed to favor a legislative review of the charter schools, including the certification of their teachers, or any lack thereof.

The lack of certification of teachers also ought to be reviewed by every charter school district board. And the CMU report does indicate they are doing a better job than the Free Press had indicated.

Beyond that, CMU owes an obligation to the students and parents of the schools it chartered to see that the boards named follow the law in all respects, including the requirement that teachers be certified.

Finally, the state Board of Education has an even broader responsibility. It is to see that charter schools spend the public money they are receiving only in ways required by law.

A view from the sidelines

Tornado rips 'our' old town

St. Peter, Minn., always has held a special meaning for my wife and me, even though all of us leave something behind, at least in our memories, wherever we spend much of our adult lives.

Last week, it meant something else as a tornado roared through St. Peter (now about 10,000 or twice its size when I went there in 1935). From the AP and CNN reports and calls from friends, we know St. Peter is not what it once was.

Reports indicate that perhaps because of a warning sounded 17 minutes before the storm struck, only one life was lost — a 6-year-old child who was sucked out of a van in which he was riding and hurled 150 yards after the vehicle was blown into a field.

But the damage to the city itself was enormous. At least 38 people were reportedly treated at area hospitals, and at week's end three people were reported still in critical condition. The tornadic winds pulverized at least 125 business places and many older homes in the city.

One older resident who has been keeping in touch with a California relative by telephone reported that he had started out to walk around the devastated area, but became disoriented after covering several blocks and had to return to his own damaged home.

Like neighboring towns in the Minnesota River Valley, St. Peter always had been marked by an old growth of trees, but most of them were smashed to the ground by the force of the wind.

During my years — 1935-1940 — as editor of the St. Peter Herald, St. Peter was a smaller town but it had an extremely wide main street — Minnesota Avenue — because its founders had expected it to become Minnesota's capital.

That never happened because of the nefarious actions of one legislator who in 1857 was "bought" by St. Paul interests and hid the bill, which already had been passed, until the Legislature adjourned.

The winds that swept down that broad street from the southwest about 5:30 p.m. Sunday destroyed or seriously damaged many businesses and reached most of the older residential district east and north of the downtown area.

Two old stone churches, the Episcopalian and the Presbyterian, withstood the onslaughts, but a Catholic church was reported to be badly damaged. The steeple on the old Nicollet County courthouse at the southwest end of the business district also was toppled.

The storm ripped into Gustavus Adolphus College, and damaged or destroyed college buildings on or near the top of the hill that overhangs much of St. Peter's business district. Fortunately, most students were on their spring break.

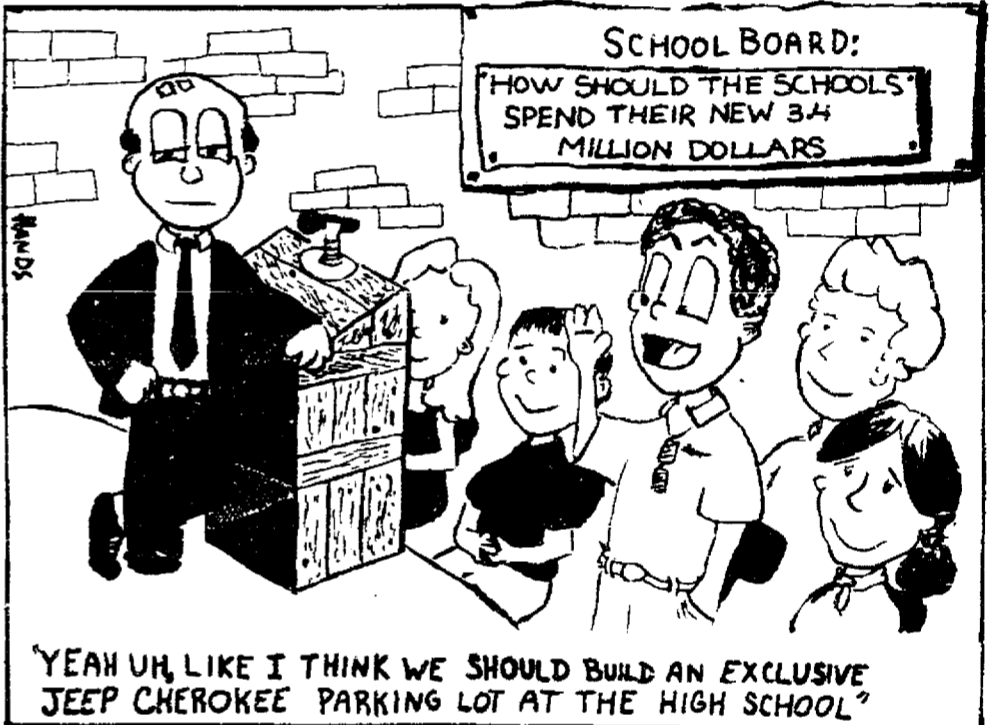

In their cleanup, returning students were aided by about 600 volunteers from Concordia College in St. Paul.

Weathermen estimated that the "logical blame" for the storm should be assessed against El Niño. Ironically, remnants of the St. Peter Herald's obituary pages were found at Apple Valley, a Twin City suburb 55 miles away.

In my newspaper career, St. Peter was the second stop. I quit the Minneapolis Star to become the editor of the semi-weekly St. Peter Herald because I wanted eventually to own a community paper.

As it turned out, I also met and married my wife in St. Peter. So both of us have fond memories of St. Peter, although I never achieved my aim of owning a community paper. Instead, I returned to the Minneapolis Star — by then it was the Star & Tribune — and after 20 years came to The Detroit News.

Civic center entrance at Mack-Moross

To the Editor:
My congratulations to Staff Writer Brad Lindberg for his March 26, column, "A Modest Mack and Moross Proposal."

The article not only states the issues clearly, but presents realistic solutions.

We certainly don't need more gymnasiums and swimming pools. However, we should extend the times that these facilities are open to residents. If we open school libraries at the same times, each school could serve as a neighborhood community center.

Lindberg's proposal for a new and more utilitarian city hall and new police and fire headquarters is not only practical from a safety standpoint but would make a beautiful "civic center" gateway to the Farms.

To complete the "center," why not consider a new central library building, a non-gym activities center and a federal post office?

I'm sure the board of education would welcome a move from its antiquated facilities on St. Clair Avenue to the location of the present central library. (This proposal has surfaced in a past millage election; much of the cost of these changes could certainly be covered by the sale of the land presently occupied by the board of education central offices.)

Relocation of the Grosse Pointe Post Office is a must! Its present parking lot is highly inadequate; postal customers create traffic hazards while parking on Mack, even double parking to post letters since the driver-side mailboxes have been removed. In the new location, adequate parking could be provided and driver-side mailboxes as well.

I say "yes" to using the Mack-Moross property as a beautiful civic center entrance to the Farms!

Public safety for Mack/Moross

Fellow citizens:
I am most concerned regarding the study (on the future use of the Mack/Moross property).

As I understand it, the rationale behind the city purchase was to deter crime in this area. It would seem reasonable and most appropriate, then, to relocate the (city's) safety units: fire, police, radio, communications, repairs, etc., to that location.

Such action would give the Grosse Pointes a deterrent to the original reason for the purchase and provide:

- 1) the Park police force on the southeast entry, and
 - 2) the Farms police force on the northwest entry.
- As to the idea of senior housing, I am not aware of any community that advocates construction of senior housing in a high-crime area.

Editor's note: This letter was submitted to the committee researching the use of the Mack/Moross property back in September 1994.

Saying thanks

To the Editor:
On behalf of the entire Grosse Pointe South learning community, I wish to express our appreciation to the many parents, students and citizens of our community who volunteer support of South High School in so many wonderful ways.

At every event connected with the high school, I have met many wonderful people who have been so very generous with their time and talents.

The Performing Arts parent groups, the Mother's Club, the Athletic Boosters, the TV Program parents, Historic Preservation members and many other groups and individuals provide a consistent support structure for the students, teachers and the administration. South High owes its success to these dedicated volunteers.

Of particular note are the volunteer parents who are in the building on a daily basis helping with the telephones, tutoring students and running the school store.

It is obviously a labor of love and demonstrates wonderful support for the learning process. Our students observe on a regular basis the support and value the adults in the community place on education.

It is no small wonder that so many of the students also place a high value on their education and do very well in their academics.

In conclusion, I would like to thank all of the people who give so very much of their Toughen way to hike taxes?

The Wayne County commission has recently voted 7-6 to permit the people to vote in the Aug. 4 primary on whether the Wayne County charter should be amended to make it tougher to raise county taxes.

The legislation would require a two-thirds vote of the commissioners to place on the ballot any proposal for a tax increase and a vote of more than 60 percent of qualified county voters to adopt any such proposed tax increase.

In effect, passage of this motion by just a simple majority means that it would become exceedingly difficult to raise county taxes under any condition. In fact, the county vote would be very difficult to predict, because it would depend on the issue involved at the time.

Yet our Wayne County commissioner, Christopher F. Cavanagh, voted for the proposal on the grounds that "it should be the voters who decide if we raise the percentage."

Maybe so and maybe not. In fact,

Cavanagh cast the swing vote, meaning his vote made the difference in favor of passage.

Commissioners ought to make this decision themselves without going back to the people on it. Now, of course, we don't know whether Cavanagh favors the issue of limiting tax increases in these ways or not. All he now says is that he favors letting the people decide.

We think our representatives in such legislative bodies, ranging from the county commissioners to the Legislature to Congress, were elected to be our representatives and are in a position to know more about the positions that come before them without asking the voters to stand in for them in such times.

True, taxes have been going up in Wayne County in recent years, and many will see this legislation as a way to stop increases. Yet who can read the future well enough to know now whether any such addition might be needed sometime, even in Wayne County?

Clarifying the tax debate

By Douglas B. Roberts
State Treasurer

Since 1991, Gov. Engler's fair, responsible tax-cutting record and prudent fiscal management have set the pace for Michigan's continued economic growth.

Michigan's unemployment rate has dropped to its lowest level in a generation, and our personal income is growing at twice the rate of inflation. Two major Wall Street rating agencies have given the state's financial outlook their stamps of approval, noting the sharp contrast between the Michigan of today and the Rust Belt economy of just over a decade ago.

Many Michigan taxpayers, however, still question the effectiveness of Engler's tax policy over the past seven years. Caught in the crossfire of political debate, Michigan's working families and seniors are left to wonder if their taxes were actually reduced or if, as some claim, we have merely shifted the state's tax burden to other revenue sources.

As an economist and public official, I would like to address this and other key tax policy issues. In doing so, I hope to provide a fresh vantage point for all concerned residents who follow Michigan's economic debate.

Tax cuts or tax shifts?

Recently, renewed controversy has arisen around the effectiveness of Proposal A, the school finance reform plan approved by voters in 1994. Some detractors have said that any savings generated by Proposal A's lower property taxes are offset by the two-cent sales tax increase approved as part of the plan.

If this assessment is correct, then Michigan should consider repealing Proposal A. Doing so would eliminate the real estate transfer tax, lower the sales tax from 6 percent to 4 percent and reduce the cigarette tax. The average homestead millage rate would, however, nearly double; the current cap on assessments would be removed, thus increasing immediately the assessed valuation in property by 6.9 percent; and the income tax would be increased from 4.4 percent to 4.6 percent.

Clearly, reversing Proposal A would result in a tax increase. Proposal A has therefore resulted in a tax reduction for Michigan's working families, not merely a shift.

Statistical data also demonstrates the success of Proposal A. The average Michigan family realizes net savings of $639 each year in property taxes as a direct result of Proposal A, along with an annual income tax cut of $226. This same average family has only spent an additional $295 in sales and use taxes. That's a difference of $570 each year for the average working family!

These numbers prove that Gov. Engler did not merely shift Michigan's tax burden from property to sales taxes, as Proposal A's critics allege. He actually cut Michigan's tax burden.

Next steps

With this fundamental question out of the way, Michigan taxpayers can now engage in a more effective debate about the most appropriate next steps. Which taxes should we cut next? Should Michigan adopt a proposed increase in the personal exemption allowance, or cut the income tax rate as Engler has suggested?

Recently, I received a letter from a taxpayer emphatically stating that "fairness must come first." I agree. To be successful, Michigan's tax code must first be fair to everyone, regardless of economic status. That's why I strongly support Engler's income tax proposal — the proposal benefits everyone.

A second proposal seeks to increase the personal exemption allowance on individual income taxes. Michigan's personal exemption allowance already has increased 33 percent, from $2,100 to $2,800, since the governor took office in 1991. The allowance is also now indexed to inflation, which means it will continue to grow in the future. New child deductions also became effective this year, further benefiting working families. I believe that in order to provide balance to the state's tax code, it is necessary to consider other kinds of tax cuts in addition to personal exemption allowance increases already enacted.

Other important factors to consider include:

- As an across-the-board tax cut, a reduction in the income tax rate benefits everyone earning an income in Michigan. In contrast, most of the benefits of increasing the personal exemption allowance are targeted to a smaller group of individuals.

- When fully phased in, the governor's proposed income tax rate cut saves the average Michigan family $546. The proposed personal exemption allowance increase, however, saves the average family only $352 after it is phased in.

- Reducing the income tax rate ensures that taxpayers' savings will continue to grow over time. As personal income keeps increasing in future years, a lower tax rate will provide even greater benefits to Michigan families. The savings generated by increasing the personal exemption allowance will not increase further. In fact, as the value of the dollar decreases over time, this type of cut will come to have less meaning.

For these reasons, I support a reduction in the state's income tax rate at this time. I believe the income tax rate reduction plan is the most fair and responsible way to reduce the tax burden on Michigan families.

Conclusion

We can be extremely proud of the economic progress our state has made during the last seven years. Michigan is receiving national recognition as an economic and tax policy leader.

The debate is no longer about whether we should cut taxes, but whether we've cut taxes enough and if not, which taxes we should cut next. As this debate continues, I urge all Michigan families, seniors and businesses to listen and take part in charting our state's course to an even brighter economic future.

He's Bary, the bagel baron

There's a footnote to FYI's item a few weeks back about Mireille deBary Wilkinson's family reunion in a town named after her noted forebear, French wine importer Frederick deBary.

Mireille (she's Mrs. Warren Wilkinson), tells FYI their son, former Pointer Bary Wilkinson, has opened his second bagel emporium in Paris "right near the Sorbonne University, and a third one is scheduled to open for Easter in the Marais District ... so you see that a Grosse Pointe entrepreneur is following the steps on my ancestor, Frederick de Bary."

The large covered container FYI spotted among the bargain treasures at Lloyd David Antiques on Kercheval in the Park was discretely labeled, simply, "enameled ware" but having visited a farmhouse without indoor plumbing, I knew exactly what it was for.

Does anyone actually use these any more?

"Yes," said owner David Munk. "I sold one to a Toronto lady who lived in a beautiful big house and the next time I saw it, it was on her dining room table with a large bouquet of flowers in it."

The naughtily creative hostess even managed to include the lid in the arrangement.

The alternative use phenomenon seems to be growing in the Pointes, David said.

Another of the store's clients found a new role for an item of hospital equipment designed as a bedpan for male patients (they used to be called "ducks" because of their shape: "She uses hers to heat water for tea," said David.

WOOOOOFF!?

The mom is pushing a stroller up The Hill and simultaneously tugging a leash attached to a dog that's so small at first glance you think she forgot the dog.

Is that dog full-grown? FYI asks.

"Yes, it's a toy Yorkie," replies the mom. "He'll always be little — but he's a big barker."

Not kid stuff

Pointe taxpayers making that late-night run April 15 through the parking lot of the Mack Avenue Post Office may wonder why there's a big yellow SCHOOL CROSSING sign, with silhouettes of children, in the back: Our postal liaison, Mike Mengden, can explain:

"Since those accidents in the lot a while ago where postal employees were run into by motorists, branch manager Carleton Mitchell has been trying different ways to get people's attention," says Mike. Although it may not be the final answer, this one seems to be working for the moment, he says.

Paglia on sexual harassment

In a recent Time article viewed on the Internet, Camille Paglia, the outspoken voice of a more lusty feminism, criticized the liberal feminist point of view. She said that those liberal Democrats who supported Anita Hill against Clarence Thomas in 1991 have found themselves bound within rigid confines of their own making. Paglia thinks we should consider the real difference between genuine sexual coercion and free expression of sexual thought.

nominee could be publicly cross-examined about casual conversations of 10 years previous. Such an outrageous scene was reminiscent of Stalinist Russia.

Paglia goes on to say that a sex-free workplace is both impossible and unnatural. She questions whether we really want such an environment. Rather, she suggests that what we really want is a sophisticated art of seduction, as opposed to gross indecencies and vulgar come-ons.

She wants a society of lusty men and lusty women whose physical and mental energies are in exuberant free flow. At the same time, those in power should behave honorably, not dropping their pants in front of female employees or secretly seducing buxom young interns.

Simultaneously, women must also be aware of how they dress and behave. For every male harasser, Paglia says, there are 10 female sycophants who shamelessly use their favors to get ahead.

We don't want a society of surveillance by old maids and snitches. Paglia says the proper mission of feminism is to encourage personal responsibility without running to parental authority figures for help.

There is a politically correct and fanatic over-protection of women that is making us an infantile nation, according to Paglia. We need to treat sex with greater realism and imagination. Women should not be taught that they are passive wards of the state. They should have every opportunity to learn that sex is a great human comedy, and the joke is always on us.

Paglia's view is consistent with psychoanalytic ideals, in which a person is bound in painful conflict between instinctive demands (drives) and the demands of society. Such unresolved conflict can lead to symptoms of depression and anxiety, not to mention self-defeating behavior.

A person in psychoanalysis seeks an in-depth self-understanding, a deep emotional insight, which overcomes the exaggerated inhibitions, prohibitions and over-determined guilt-feelings of childhood. Childhood is a time for sexual repression, but adulthood is a time for sexual expression.

Hopefully, as each adult evaluates, as objectively as possible, the opportunities for sexual expression in a committed love relationship, he or she will keep in mind the golden rule, sensitivity, fidelity, loyalty, courage, honor and respect. Only then can there be self-respect.

The Friends of the Library discussed plans for the new memorial library to be located on the corner of Kercheval and Fisher in the Farms.

John Barnes, superintendent of public schools, and Charles Parcells, former school board president, said the library at Pierce school would become a branch of the planned system and a new library would be incorporated into the construction under way of the Parcells school in the Woods. The main branch would only take two acres away from the high school athletic field.

Woods village president Alois Ghesquiere outlined his city's main objectives for 1998: developing an adequate sewer and drainage system, increasing the complement of fire fighting equipment, increasing the size of city offices, and a multi-step plan to improve the municipal park.

The Farms city council confirmed the appointment of Richard Solak of Clarendon Hills, Ill., to the post of administrative assistant-deputy city clerk.

Solak, a civil engineer, resigned his job with the office of the governor of Illinois to assume his new job in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Voters passed four school and library millage proposals, ranging from overwhelming support of renewals to less enthusiastic approval of modest tax increases.

Spring planting of trees got under way as the Park approved planting 200 trees and shrubs throughout the city. Park city manager Robert Stone said most of the new trees would replace lost elms.

The Woods approved an ambitious plan to spend $9,550 to plant 300 trees, including one on the grounds of the municipal building to honor the late Woods Mayor Kenneth McLeod.

Construction began on the Cottage Hospital parking deck. The four level, 177,000 square foot structure will have 522 parking spaces. Construction is expected to be finished by Christmas.

Six proposals for the development of property on Jefferson Avenue between Nottingham and Westchester in Grosse Pointe Park were presented at the Park city council meeting. The Park Downtown Development Authority unanimously recommended a plan for a 30,000 square-foot $2.5 million project.

The Farms formed an ordinance committee to help decide which ordinances should be weeded out and recommend any new laws that might come in handy.

The Star of the Sea parish council recommended the closure of Star of the Sea High School. The Archdiocese of Detroit requested that the school be kept open as a regional high school.

Citing financial concerns and saying the school's enrollment of 140 is already composed of students from throughout the region, a petition signed by approximately 600 parish members asked the council to reject the regionalization idea and close the school as soon as possible.

Approval of what would become known as Proposition A could mean the end of local control of school finances, warned Christian Fenton, assistant superintendent of business affairs for the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Saying Pointe school administration has been "more accountable to its constituents for property taxes than the state has been to education," Fenton compared millage caps to "saying the voters are not smart enough to say yes or no to millage increases."

Sailors turn out to fight floods

Sailors limber up for spring by slinging sandbags at Three Mile Park. Members of the Grosse Pointe Sail Club turned out last Saturday on short notice in answer to a plea from Grosse Pointe Park for help to combat flood waters of Lake St. Clair. "Foul weather gear, boots and your favorite shovel," was the way Commodore C. Dale Nouse, (right), put the appeal to Rear Commodore Donald Boddy, (left), and other members of the famed racing club that each summer starts more sailboats in races than the other dozen area yacht clubs put together. In responding to the emergency call for backbreaking, hand-blistering work, one member observed, "It's as good a way as any to get toughened up for summer." True to the club's competitive form, the sailors who turned out quickly organized themselves into teams and raced through 25 yards of wet sand. "Quite a crew," said Don Guinan, director of the Windmill Pointe Park and a member of the club that in 1973 is celebrating its silver anniversary. (From the April 5, 1973 Grosse Pointe News.)

Careless and dangerous

To the Editor:
A few weeks ago I wrote a letter regarding verbal abuse of responsible dog-walkers.

After walking my dogs around Elworthy Field this morning, I can see why some property owners may overreact to people allowing their dogs to use their lawns as a lavatory and not pick up after them. Even my dogs will not walk on the grass around Elworthy Field — it's like a manure minefield.

What a shame that all of us are proud to say we live in Grosse Pointe, but a few of us do not care enough to take the responsibility of keeping our city clean. I am a homeowner and it makes me angry when I find manure on my lawn. Not only do I resent having to pick it up, but I feel that if I can pick it up, so can every dog-walker.

Even more important is the fact that other dogs' droppings are dangerous for my dogs' health. When dogs sniff the droppings of other dogs they can pick up not only worms, but germs that can make them deadly ill. It cost me $1,000 to cure my show dog (even though he had been inoculated) of parvo, when he was 6 months old. Now I don't know about you, but even though I love my veterinarians dearly, I would rather not be their sole support!

Please, pick up after your dogs not just to please your neighbors or the city, but to keep your shoes clean and your dogs healthy!

Fantastic idea at Mack/Moross

To the Editor:
Three cheers for Brad Lindberg and his article in the March 26 edition. He has a fantastic idea for the Farms property at Mack and Moross — and for so many reasons.

Lindberg's well-written piece hit all the levels of concern for Pointe residents and ended with a concrete solution to effectively deal with all of them. The reasons for building a police/fire station on that property, including eliminating emergency vehicles from racing past Kerby School and getting rid of the outdated police station currently used, are powerful arguments.

It was interesting to read how his plan would also be an answer to criminal activity in the area — something which seems to be generally ignored.

If Woods residents can come up with $1 million for the Lakefront Park, certainly Grosse Pointers should be able to fund such a worthwhile project. Who couldn't agree with this plan?

Traffic neglect

To the Editor:
I live on Brys Drive between Helen and Mack. I feel that 30-plus years of traffic neglect is enough.

Shorepointe condos should never have been built. It has caused nothing but problems for all residences concerned.

I feel that the city of Grosse Pointe Woods should finally do something about the traffic. Is over 4,000 cars on average down a residential street an acceptable amount?

My 7-year-old son wants to ride his bike up and down the street but I won't let him because of the volume of cars. I smell a lawsuit coming, very shortly, if nothing is done.

Pointe officials like Macomb's plans for Water Quality Board

By Brad Lindberg and Ann Fouty
Staff Writers

Local officials cheered the Macomb County Board of Commissioners' recent approval of a Water Quality Board to help clean up Lake St. Clair.

"We've done a considerable amount of work so far to help clean up the lake," said Grosse Pointe Shores Village President John Huetteman III, citing the Village's $3.4 million investment in sewer separations. "Most of the problem now is upstream."

"Identifying and correcting problems with the lake is to everyone's advantage," said Richard Huhn, director of parks in the Farms.

Added Tom Kressbach, manager of the City of Grosse Pointe, "Having an ongoing group to monitor pollution will make for a better lake."

The nine-member Water Quality Board will be on the lookout for polluters. It will present findings to the county health services committee and hold four public meetings per year, said John Hertel, D-District 14, chairman of the Macomb County Board of Commissioners.

Huhn and Hertel will join other participants in an April 23 forum on "Political Opportunities and Obstacles to a Cleaner Lake St. Clair" at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church on Maumee.

"The WQB is an advisory board tied directly into county government," said Macomb commissioner Clifford Kabacinski, D-District 25, of St. Clair Shores.

In related initiatives, Macomb has formed a group of environmental inspectors, called the Surface Water Improvement Monitoring, or SWIM team, to monitor water quality, and hired a prosecutor to deal exclusively with water quality issues.

Hertel said the Environmental Protection Agency is trying to encourage Canadian participation.

Kabacinski said the county promises tough enforcement of water quality laws. "There are no sacred cows out there. We'll investigate anything that endangers our environment."

The WQB will consist of the following:

- Three members from recognized environmental groups
- Two Macomb Commissioners (one from each party)
- One township, village or city representative
- One representative of the business community

One citizen at large, who must live in Macomb County.

Hertel pointed out that two-thirds of the board members will be private citizens. "The spotlight will be on cleaning up Lake St. Clair, not politics."

The WQB was proposed by Hertel, Kabacinski and Russell LaBarge, a St. Clair Shores attorney who chairs the county's Blue Ribbon Commission on cleaning the lake.

"This is not another level of bureaucracy," LaBarge said. "They are there to field complaints."

That's good enough for Huetteman.

"Russell LaBarge is a good friend of mine," he said. "I have a lot of faith in his efforts to clean the lake."

During the last few years, Lake St. Clair has earned a reputation for hosting more discharges of raw sewage than swimmers.

The Farms is the only municipal park in the Pointes to have a beach.

As the northern suburbs pursued what one observer called "unplanned urban sprawl," overflowing sewer systems have dumped millions of gallons of raw sewage into the lake.

At the Farms' Pier Park, signs warning of unsafe bacteria levels have become an unwanted harbinger of summer. Red tape can add to clean-up hassles. In order to remove anything from the lake, even seaweed, a permit is required from the state, said Huhn.

Even with multi-layered county action, officials said lakes are easier to pollute than clean, and Macomb has a lot of work to do.

This one fell into the lap of Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers. On Wednesday, April 1, Park detectives received information that a man arrested in October 1997 for auto theft and had skipped his examination was attending the trial of his brother for the crime of murder.

Detectives went to the Wayne County courthouse to confirm the identity of the suspect, who was then arrested by sheriff's deputies. The suspect is being held in lieu of $250,000 bond.

No doze

A Grosse Pointe Park public safety officer on patrol at about 4:45 a.m. on Saturday, March 4, noticed a van parked improperly in an alley off of the 1400 block of Wayburn.

After checking the van's license plates, the officer discovered that it was reported stolen from Detroit's Fifth Precinct in February. When the officer checked the interior of the van, the officer discovered someone asleep at the wheel.

The driver was arrested and later taken to Detroit, where he faces charges of car theft.

Stolen bike season begins

It's begun. With the advent of warm weather, bicycle thieves are out in force.

Grosse Pointe Woods public safety officers received a report from a resident in the 2100 block of Hunt Club.

The victim said that between Wednesday, March 25 and Monday, March 30, someone entered his unlocked, detached garage and stole two bikes worth an estimated $1,000.

Off the leash

While on patrol at about 4:30 a.m. on Monday, March 30, a Woods public safety officer noticed a brown 1982 Chevy parked behind a record store in the 19600 block of Mack. The driver and the passenger then left the car and went into the store.

The officer also noticed that they had left the engine running, which struck him as unusual because there were closer parking spaces to the store. After checking the car's license plate, the officer learned that the plates belonged to a Toyota.

When the driver and his passenger went to the car, they were stopped by the officer, who learned that the man was listed in records as being wanted for being a "felony parole absconder" in Lansing.

The driver was taken into custody and later turned over to the appropriate state authorities.

A search of the car revealed a CD hidden in a newspaper. Police believe it was taken by the couple and the female passenger was arrested. She is free on her own recognizance pending her arraignment in municipal court.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Shotguns stolen from Hummer

Credit shotguns stored in a Hummer with a tailgate that doesn't lock for helping put weapons in the hands of law-breakers.

Two shotguns, a Remington 20 gauge and Golden Clays 12 gauge, were stolen from a Hummer parked in the driveway of a residence in the first block off Oxford in Grosse Pointe Shores. The incident occurred the night of Saturday, April 4, and was reported by the owner of the guns and vehicle at 7:15 a.m.

The owner said the firearms were stored in the Hummer in preparation for a trip.

Also stolen from the vehicle were stereo equipment and a flip phone.

The value of the stolen property was undetermined.

Both weapons were registered, which may or may not matter to the thieves now in the position to use them.

BAL hits .28

A chemical test recorded a man's blood alcohol content at .28 after being arrested for drunken driving by Shores police on Saturday, April 4, at 3 a.m.

The suspect, a 23-year-old man from Grosse Pointe Woods, was stopped for driving a white 4-door 1992 Jeep west on Vernier near Lee Court at a high rate of speed.

The suspect's blood alcohol level was nearly three times the legal limit of .10.

The man spent the night in jail, posted a $100 bond and was released. The Jeep was impounded.

Police team up against OUIL

Acting on a tip from Farms police, Shores officers stopped a suspected drunken driver on northbound Lakeshore near Willison on Friday, April 3, at 4:58 p.m.

The driver was seen swerving his 1993 blue Lincoln Town car across two lanes of traffic and bumping the curb repeatedly.

Upon being stopped and given field sobriety tests, the 63-year-old man from Detroit failed. He was unable to recite the alphabet beyond the letter C, and couldn't count beyond 4.

He wasn't handcuffed while taken to the police station "due to his age and mental impairment due to alcohol," according to reports.

His blood alcohol content registered .17.

From outhouse to big house

Two men distributing handbills who stopped off to use the outhouse at a construction site in the 500 block of Lakeshore on Friday, April 3, at 8:39 a.m.

Shotguns stolen from Hummer were treated to facilities of a different kind upon arrival by Shores police.

The suspects, from Detroit and 34 and 37 years old, were arrested for outstanding warrants, including disorderly conduct and traffic violations.

Police warned residents to be on the alert for people prowling the neighborhood now that warm weather has arrived.

Big lawn job

The most extensive in a string of recent turnings, incidents in the Pointes damaged the lawns of eight residences on Newberry in the Farms.

The incident was thought to have taken place some time after 11:30 p.m., on Saturday, April 4.

Egg barrage

For the 11th week in a row, a residence on Deming Lane in the Farms was pelted with eggs. The latest barrage took place on Saturday, April 4 11:10 p.m. Police are investigating.

Free parking from now on?

A $300 parking meter was stolen from the 100 block of Kercheval in the Farms between Friday, March 27 at 4 p.m. and Tuesday, March 31 at 12 p.m. The money content of the meter was unknown.

Scofflaw caught, for now anyway

A background check of a 19-year-old Detroit man stopped by Farms police for driving with a broken taillight on Mack near Moross disclosed an outstanding warrant from Detroit and nine — that's nine — driving suspensions.

The driver of the 1978 black Ford pickup wasn't able to provide the police a driver license or proof of insurance.

He was arrested and released on $500 bond.

Pickups held up

On Monday, March 30 at 8:52 the owners of two pickup trucks parked in a parking structure in the Village reported their vehicles had been broken into.

Hand tools, a jacket and wheel covers valued at $900 were stolen from a 1996 Ford pickup. Taken from a 1996 GMC pickup were four "aluminum wheel centers."

Beer bashing

A few weeks ago someone threw a Budweiser bottle at a parked car in the Pointes.

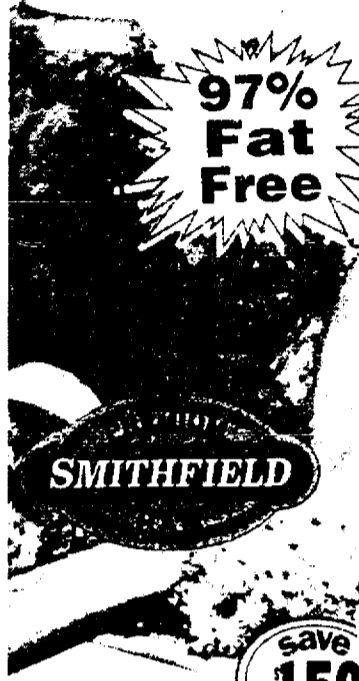

This week, it's Miller time, as the rear window of a 1998 Dodge pickup parked in front of a residence in the 300 block of Rivard was smashed with a Miller beer can.

Spring, when nature and life's enjoyment are renewed

Winds may blow, temperatures may rise and fall like capricious balloons, a few snow showers could be mixed in with the rain but spring is definitely here.

The dirty gray piles of snow are finally gone. Crocuses, those hardy heralds of the glorious blooms to come, are up. There is a softness in the breeze. The surface of the lake, gray and jagged with winter ice just a few weeks ago, is churning and stirring under a warmer sun. Soon it will be blue and sparkling and sailboats will be skimming over its azure blue surface. Everything in nature is experiencing a new surge of life.

The older tree is getting ready to leaf and cast its cooling shade over the landscape. Roses are getting ready to bud and old feathered friends are beginning to return and spike the air with chirps and trills.

Nature is not easily defeated. Each year it comes alive once again without concessions to age.

We are creatures of nature also, but somehow we let the years diminish our enjoyment of life. How many times we hear older people, who could remain in the mainstream of life, hold back and say, "I'm too old."

In our particular climate, there is some reason for our curtailed activity in the winter. Going places and doing things is not inviting when the winter winds blow and streets and roads are treacherous with ice.

But in the spring when the world of nature is stirring and getting ready for a summer of "business as usual," it is time to break out of the winter doldrums and become part of the rejuvenation that is spring.

The theory of not giving up on life because of years was well expressed by Thomas Jefferson in another context. Speaking of government, he suggested that it should undergo a fundamental change every 20 years. This could be well applied to our lives. We should expect to change with the years, but to move forward with a different, slower beat.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

There is no reason to resist change if we have successfully made it to our golden years. It is a triumph in itself, we should not be afraid of challenges. We owe ourselves the opportunity of putting quality living into the bonus years remaining.

There is much available to us. We have time to spend with our families and friends. We may have less income but with family obligations fulfilled, we are relieved of those expenditures.

Some people hold back because they are intimidated by a youth-oriented society. They had been led to believe that young is beautiful and when one reaches a certain age, it's time to withdraw from society.

This is not true. Looking deeper we are reminded that the people who spin the earth on its axis in world affairs and governments, in business and in the arts, are people well on in years. The magic that makes life enjoyable is not counting the years, but in the perspective and the willingness to make every day count.

There are many examples of older citizens who have done just that. A stellar example is President Reagan. He is a paradigm of an older person who refused to let age be a barrier to achievement.

There is another consideration that should serve as an incentive to be more than we have been.

Our future is better than those who preceded us. Even counting the deficiencies in the provisions for older citizens, we are better off than many older people in the past.

We have Social Security, better health care, are living longer and are rapidly gaining recognition as an important segment of society. Proportionately the number of senior citizens is growing. As active citizens, those numbers can work to put quality into the quantity of those years.

We are beginning to see some evidence of what that quality could be for those who are active, lively and resourceful. There is support to achieve this goal of fulfilled later years as active older citizens work to ensure better economic security, quality health care, both physical and mental, good transportation, a full range of legal and other professional services, decent housing, protection from crime, and provision for catastrophic illness.

Long life expectancy is a modern achievement. We are a nation that is not prepared for a large number of older people.

There are issues that must be resolved that stem from the needs of all individuals to adjust to the new rhythms of life that come with increased longevity and multi-generational families, retirement, increased leisure, changing health status and the new opportunities and new problems of adaptation that accompany a long life.

In establishing policies, we will have to consider the future as well as the present. The persons growing old in the future will probably have different needs from today's older people. It is a complex situation with no easy answers.

New problems, new views, new goals — all appropriate considerations for spring when nature is renewing itself.

Is there link between Alzheimer's and arthritis?

By Matilda Charles

Is there a link between arthritis and Alzheimer's disease? Before anyone scoffs at the idea, let me assure you, some of our most respected brain researchers are looking at the possibility.

In the book, "Brain Workout" (St. Martin's Griffin Publishing) by Arthur Winter, M.D., a neurosurgeon and director of the New Jersey Neurological Institute, and health and science author, Ruth Winter (whom I'm pleased to call a friend, as well as colleague), the Winters write:

"There is growing evidence of the idea that Alzheimer's disease may be a chronic inflammatory disorder similar to arthritis and that non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs) may have certain beneficial effects in slowing Alzheimer's."

This is exciting news. Pursuing this line of research may not only give us more information about Alzheimer's, but also about arthritis and other autoimmune conditions including lupus and diabetes.

What's wrong with this scenario? A senior citizen is sitting in his or her doctor's office, and hears the doctor discuss a treatment procedure — perhaps surgery — for a certain condition. The senior listens, and agrees to have the procedure done. What's wrong?

Several things: For one, the patient did not ask the doctor to arrange for a second or even third opinion. For another, the patient didn't ask questions about the procedure itself, recovery time, what post-procedural therapy may be needed and what the after-effects as well the risks might be.

If this sounds like you or some other senior you know, you have lots of company. Apparently, older folks still think doctors have a direct line to the Almighty when it comes to imparting their healing skills to the rest of us. They, therefore, accept what the physician says as if it were divine doctrine. Many seniors also feel they'll somehow "hurt the feelings" of their doctors if they ask too many questions, let alone get other opinions.

Remember, your life is your responsibility. Don't let anyone else tamper with it unless and until you can really trust that person knows what she or he is doing to you, as well as for you.

Research gave him a future

Shirlie Elaine Kretzschmar

A funeral Mass was celebrated on Thursday, April 2, in St. Clare of Montefalco Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Park for Park resident Shirlie Elaine Kretzschmar, who died in St. John Hospital in Detroit on Monday, March 30, 1998, of respiratory failure.

Mrs. Kretzschmar, 68, was born in Grand Rapids and graduated from St. Martins High School and the Detroit Business University. She worked as an executive secretary in the research department of Parke Davis.

An active member of the community, Mrs. Kretzschmar was a member of the Gowanee Golf Club, Club 20 and the St. Clare of Montefalco Archcon Fraternity. She was also a Eucharistic minister at the church. She enjoyed bowling, playing golf, traveling and playing poker.

Mrs. Kretzschmar is survived by her husband, John; three daughters, Lynne Adamczyk, Nancy Brune and Jeanne Burezycki; two sons, John and James; a sister, Patricia Klach; a brother, Robert L. Patterson; and three grandchildren.

Interment is at Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit. Funeral arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

Donald Yerkes

Howell High School and Eastern University. He received master's degrees from the University of Michigan and the University of Santa Clara, California.

A veteran of World War II, Mr. Yerkes served in the United States Navy as an electrician's mate. After the war, he became a teacher of mathematics, and was on the Grosse Pointe South High School faculty for 29 years. He chaired the school's mathematics department and for three fall semesters after his retirement from South, he taught math at Oakland University.

An active member of the community, Mr. Yerkes was a member of the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club and Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church. He enjoyed playing bridge, traveling, studying Roman history, tutoring his grandchildren and working cryptograms and crossword puzzles.

Mr. Yerkes is survived by his wife, Joan Poe Yerkes; two daughters, Susan O'Leary and Nancy Yerkes; and three grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Red Cross.

Gretchen Wessinger Maurer

A memorial service will be held on Friday, April 17, at 11 a.m. in St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Farms resident Gretchen Wessinger Maurer, who died in the St. John-Bon Secours Senior Community facility on Monday, April 6, 1998.

Mrs. Maurer, 85, was born in Ann Arbor and graduated from Dearborn High School. She attended the University of Michigan. A veteran of World War II, Mrs. Maurer served in the United States Marine Corps, earning the rank of sergeant.

A homemaker, Mrs. Maurer worked for Detroit Edison prior to her marriage. She was an active member of the community and belonged to the Dearborn chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution as well as the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association and the Motor City Chapter of the Women's Marine Association. She enjoyed reading, traveling and spending time with her family.

Mrs. Maurer is survived by her husband, Lester; two daughters, Susan Shaw and Barbara Wilhite; a son, Peter; a sister, Suzanne Wessinger; and four grandchildren.

Interment is at the St. Paul Lutheran Evangelical Columbarium. Funeral arrangements were handled by the Calcaterra-Sobocinski Funeral Home of Eastpointe.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to St. Paul Lutheran Evangelical Church, 375 Lothrop, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., 48236.

James A. Humphreys

A funeral service will be held in Lancaster, Pa., on Saturday, April 11, in the St. James Episcopal Church for former City of Grosse Pointe resident James A. Humphreys, who died on Sunday, April 5, 1998, of complications from brain cancer.

Mr. Humphreys, 51, was born in Bermuda and grew up in Grosse Pointe. He graduated from St. Paul's in Concord, N.H., in 1964 and from Yale University in 1968. He received his law degree from Harvard in 1975.

A veteran of the United States Navy, Mr. Humphreys served from 1968-1972. After law school he joined the Philadelphia firm of Dechert, Price and Rhoads before moving to Barley, Snyder, Senft & Cohen in Lancaster in 1976. He was active in Lancaster community affairs and was a member of Big Brother/Big Sisters and the Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

Mr. Humphreys is survived by his wife, Virginia; his daughter, Aileen Ford Humphreys; a son, John; two sisters, Dorothy Hens and Paget Gerber; a brother, John; and his parents, James and Shirley Humphreys.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the Fred F. Groff Funeral Home of Lancaster, Pa.

Memorial contributions may be made to Samaritan Counseling Center of Lancaster County, 1801 Oregon Pike, Lancaster, Pa., 17601.

George A. Simon Sr.

A funeral Mass was celebrated in St. Paul Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Farms on Monday, April 6, for Farms resident George A. Simon Sr., who died on Thursday, April 2, 1998, in Bon Secours Hospital in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Mr. Simon, 74, was born in Detroit and was a graduate of the Henry Ford Trade School. He was founder of the U.S. Equipment Co. and was an aviator in the U.S. Navy during World War II. He flew Corsair fighter planes. After the war, he bought a war surplus machine from Ford, reconditioned it and sold it back to the auto industry. He was chairman of the board of U.S. Group at the time of his death.

An active member of the community, Mr. Simon was known for his love of hydroplane boat racing. He won the sport's Golf Cup in 1976, after 23 years of trying. He was elected to the Power Boat Hall of Fame in 1994.

Mr. Simon was also a founding member of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., along with entertainer Danny Thomas. He was also past chairman of the ALSAC board of governors, which is the fund-raising arm of St. Jude. He also worked with P.I.M.E. Missions, the Catholic Youth Organization and Fr. William Cunningham, founder of Focus:HOPE.

Mr. Simon is survived by his wife of 48 years, Penny Preister; five daughters, Marianne Shock, Susan, Joanne Morrison, Diane Decraene and Penny Suppes; five sons, George II, Paul, Christopher, Kelly and Kevin; and 23 grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the Wujek-Calcaterra and Sons Funeral Home of Sterling Heights.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Jude Children's Hospital, 332 North Lauderdale, Memphis, Tenn., 38105.

Gilbert DiLoreto, DDS

Dr. Gilbert R. DiLoreto

A funeral Mass was celebrated on Monday, April 6, in Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Woods for Woods resident Gilbert R. DiLoreto, DDS, who died of respiratory complications following orthopedic surgery on Thursday, April 2, 1998.

Dr. DiLoreto was born in Detroit, the youngest son of Italian immigrants. After graduating from Wayne University in 1939, he went on to get his master's in public health from the University of Michigan. During World War II, he joined the United States Army serving in the medical corps. His unit was the first to arrive at the Dachau concentration camp and helped prevent the spread of infectious disease.

After the war, Dr. DiLoreto entered the University of Detroit's school of Dentistry, graduating first in his class in 1952. He opened a practice in the Woods and later located his office at the corner of Harper and Vernier in 1959.

An active member of the community, Dr. DiLoreto was a member of the Our Lady Star of the Sea parish, where he served as a lector.

Dr. DiLoreto is survived by two daughters, Ann and Mary; two sons, John and Dr. David; a brother, Dr. Panfilo DiLoreto; and six grandchildren.

Interment is at Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit.

Kenneth M. Gittins

A funeral service was held in the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods on Tuesday, April 7, 1998, for former Grosse Pointe Farms resident Kenneth M. Gittins, who died in Bon Secours Hospital in the City of Grosse Pointe on Friday, April 3, 1998.

Mr. Gittins, 87, was born in Guthrie, Iowa, and completed his graduate studies at Columbia University.

He worked in the Grosse Pointe public school system from 1941-1976, and taught at Trombly, Mason, Maire and Kerby.

A veteran of World War II, he was a Lieutenant Commander in the United States Navy from 1943-1945.

Mr. Gittins is survived by two sons, Martin and Coleman; and two grandchildren. He was predeceased by his wife Alice in 1996.

Interment is at Clinton Grove Cemetery in Mount Clemens.

Pierce student competes in state Geography Bee

One Grosse Pointe youngster is among the 103 students in grades four through eight who will compete in the 10th annual Michigan Geography Bee to be held during this month at Central Michigan University's campus in Mount Pleasant.

Pete McGrath, a student at Pierce Middle School, is the only competitor from the Pointes who qualified for this state-level tournament. The state bee is the second level of a national competition sponsored by the National Geographic Society. Students are tested orally on geographic knowledge.

More than 200 Michigan schools participated in preliminary bees in January. Winners of the preliminary round took a written qualifying test, which was scored by the National Geographic Society in Washington, D.C. The top scorers advanced to the state bee.

The winner will receive $100 and an all-expenses-paid trip to the national finals May 19-20 in Washington, D.C. The national champion will receive a $25,000 college scholarship.

North student helps build one-of-a-kind car

Grosse Pointe North High School sophomore Bryan Duncan was one of only 28 students from local high schools to participate recently in the Boy Scouts of America Explorers program.

As a part of the program, Duncan and the other students worked after school for more than one year to personally retrofit a one-of-a-kind 1994 Chevrolet S10 Blazer that they then exhibited at the 46th Annual Detroit Autorama at Cobo Center.

Duncan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Duncan of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Under the watchful eye of their GM Powertrain Engineering Center advisors, the students:

- disassembled, gutted and cobbled parts from three obsolete test vehicles into one vehicle

- altered the resultant vehicle frame to accommodate the engine

- built and tested a modified LS1 (Corvette) engine

- designed, built and installed engine mounts, transmission mounts and an engine lift hook

- lowered the vehicle suspension

- fabricated the radiator and wire harness

- fabricated and assembled the exhaust system

- installed the rear axle and disc brakes, and

- finished the vehicle to "show" standards.

In executing this work, the students learned the ins and outs of welding, machining testing, computer design and engineering needed to produce a complete vehicle from a collection of obsolete and surplus parts.

The Autorama project was led by Bob Mayer (Auto Mechanics), Gary Poteete (Auto Mechanics), Don Fitzpatrick (Auto Mechanics) and Mike Oginsky (Auto Mechanics) of Post 1915.

Harry MacLean (Auto Engines) of Post 1916 and Paul Guzdek (Laboratory) of Post 1907.

The Explorer Program is a national co-ed career awareness program for youths 14 to 20 organized by the Boy Scouts of America.

General Motors sponsors 42 posts that serve approximately 1100 teens across the country — a level of support that makes GM the most prolific sponsor in the country.

The Tech Center leads the way with 23 Explorer posts housed on one square mile grounds in Warren.

American girls

The lunchtime enrichment program at Defer Elementary is flourishing, providing various activities to the students. In addition to library and computer lab access at lunch, students may play games, make models, do crafts, or join in American Girl Club fun. Dressed in vintage hats, gloves and beaver muffs, which is similar to some of the characters in American Girl books are (sitting) Allison McGee and Amanda Gay, and (standing) Emma Foley, Marisa Gies, Margaret Schneider, Rebecca Ostosh, Kate Kennedy and Lisa Craig. Not pictured is another student who usually participates in the program, Whitney Cahill.

G.P. North students excel in chemistry competition

A group of Grosse Pointe North High School students recently competed in the American Chemistry Society contest held at University of Michigan's Dearborn campus.

North junior, Betsy Huebner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Huebner of Grosse Pointe Woods, won eighth place overall, and was named a Detroit Metro High School Chemist.

She was awarded $500 for herself and $250 for North's chemistry department.

The following students also competed in the American Chemistry Society's grueling two-hour test and comprised North's Chemistry Olympiad Team: Michelle Kou, John Briles, Beth Juhera, Mike Fine, David Dwaiby, Andrew Shubeck, Kelly Coolman and Liisa Bergmann. All the students are juniors and seniors.

Gordon Morian, North's advanced placement chemistry teacher and science department chairman, served as advisor for the North Chemistry Olympiad Team.

1998 summer school to offer fun, education

Enrollment is now being accepted for the Grosse Pointe Public School System's Summer-Learning Program 1998.

The program is for elementary, middle school, and high school age kids.

Courses in reading, math, language arts and computers will be offered for elementary school-age kids.

Also, middle school and high school students can earn credit for various courses as well as improve their G.P.A. by retaking a course they took during the regular school year.

Two summer school sessions will be offered: a 5-week session, to be held July 6 - Aug. 7 at Parcels Middle School in Grosse Pointe Woods, or a 2-week session to be held Aug. 11 - 21 at Brownell Middle School in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Some courses meet three days a week, while other courses meet five days a week. In general, most courses run from approximately 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Catalogs with more complete information about the Summer Learning Program will be mailed to residents within the next few weeks.

For more specific information, call Lynn Bigelman, director of summer school, at (313) 343-2493.

North chem student gets Dow scholarship

This scholarship award is a $4,000 a year, renewable for each of his four years in college.

Eligibility requirements for the scholarship also include declaration of chemistry as a major, earning grades of a "B" or better, and intention of working as a chemist upon college graduation.

The selection process for this award is very thorough and rigorous, said Gordon E. Morlan, North's science department chairman. He said he believes this is the first such Dow winner in Grosse Pointe North's 30-year history.

Eggroll experts

Members of Mason Elementary School's second grade Brownie Troop #1105 visited Mr. Yee at the Golden Dragon Restaurant in Grosse Pointe Farms as part of their work towards their Food Badge.

They learned how to make several kinds of eggrolls and Mr. Yee served up a great dinner to all the girls and the moms that attended.

North band students excel at competition

Grosse Pointe North High School students excelled at the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association Solo & Ensemble Festival on March 28. Students performed a solo or ensemble for an adjudicator who rated their playing from I - V, with a one (I) being superior. A total of 13 Grosse Pointe North students were awarded superior (I) and excellent (II) ratings.

Julie Paavola received a superior rating for her solo performance on oboe. Laura Ricci and Julie Thompson both earned excellent ratings for their violin solos.

A total of four ensembles performed and received superior and excellent ratings.

Receiving a superior rating was a clarinet quartet comprised of Julia Vaughn, Adam Hughes, Jeff Garavaglia, and Elliot Welts-Reid; a woodwind quartet comprised of Julia Vaughn, Adam Hughes, Lisa Gavan, and Jessica Solomon; and a viola duet comprised of Monique Brideau and Ellen Safran.

Receiving an excellent rating in ensemble performance was a violin duet comprised of Emily Kingsley and Beth Colaiuca.

Over 10,000 band and orchestra students from Michigan high schools performed in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association State Solo and Ensemble Festival on March 28.

To participate in the State Festival, participants had to receive a I division at District Solo and Ensemble Festival on Feb. 14.

All of the above students are members of the band and orchestra program at North High under the direction of David Cleveland and Ann DiFiore.

Many of these students also perform in the pep band, pit orchestra, and jazz band.

Individually, Van Loon finished seventh in the state, Green finished sixth and just missed a trip to Washington, D.C. for the national championship and Gaidica finished second in the State and automatically becomes a member of Michigan's National Team. Silverston, the Parcels team coach, will lead the Michigan team in Washington. The national competition takes place May 14 - May 17, 1998.

Parent Coop Nursery School Week April 19-26

The Michigan Council of Cooperative Nursery School, Inc. and its member schools will celebrate their fourth Parent Cooperative Nursery School Week April 19-25.

This celebration includes Grosse Pointe Cooperative Nursery, Inc., located at 211 Moross in Grosse Pointe Farms.

"We planned this week to showcase our 185 member parent cooperative schools around the state and to highlight their commitment to low-cost, high-quality education through parent education and community involvement," says Cynthia Dopp, MCCN president.

Parent cooperative nursery schools are staffed by teachers who meet Michigan Family Independence Agency licensing requirements and are administered by the parents of the students.

Parents take on such tasks as bookkeeping, housecleaning, and most importantly, and most importantly, assisting the teacher in the classroom.

"Our schools offer high quality early childhood programs at reasonable rates," says Dopp. "Yes, parents do need to participate to keep costs down, but their involvement means the schools have high safety and pre-academic standards."

Although Dopp admits finding time to run a nursery school may be difficult, especially for two-parent working families and single parent families, many schools have adapted their programs with sliding tuition scales or paid teacher aides so that even the busiest parents can be actively involved in their young child's education.

"Many of our schools are better off because mothers are bringing professional skills and more and more fathers are getting more involved in our schools as well," says Dopp.

Parent Cooperative Nursery School Week festivities will kick off on Friday, April 17 at the MCCN 47th Annual Meeting and Conference at the Kellogg Center in East Lansing.

Well-known speaker Nancy Mormon Webber will be the keynote speaker at the conference. There will also be about 100 workshops on parenting, early childhood and family issues, as well as parent cooperative nursery school administration.

Parent cooperative nursery schools around the state will be planning their own events throughout the week.

For more information on parent cooperative nursery schools, call (313) 433-0701.

Check out libraries' many special events in April

Be sure to mark your calendar for National Library Week, Sunday, April 19 through Saturday, April 25, as well as Tuesday and Wednesday, April 28 and 29. The Grosse Pointe Public Library will be holding programs you won't want to miss.

Wildly popular children's book illustrator Steven Kellogg will visit. PuppetArt will present a program with lifesize puppets. Local celebrities again volunteer their time to readaloud to the children at the three branch libraries.

Children benefit enormously with early exposure to libraries, but libraries are for everyone. Adults can enjoy expert garden advice or learn more lore of the disaster that still shocks us.

All programs are free but some require registration or free tickets. The schedule for the two weeks follows:

On Monday, April 20, at 7:30 p.m., Woods Branch will present "Garden Spaces are Our Favorite Places" with garden artists Mil Anthony and Sherrie Wereley. Some lucky attendees will win a free consultation with Garden Artists. The garden artists will return on Thursday, April 23, 7:30 p.m., to the Park Branch Library for a second program, "Garden Design." You will need to register at each branch for its garden program.

It won't be silent in the Central Library, Tuesday, April 21 at noon, when the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club Choir will serenade library patrons. At 7:30 p.m. at the Central Library, you'll be able to hear a pin drop as Ed Weichler shares the lore of the Titanic, a tragedy that has held the public's rapt attention for almost a century. Call and register if you plan to attend the Titanic program.

For the children, at 7 p.m. at the Woods Community Center, PuppetArt will present "Cinderella" with life-size puppets. There is no charge or registration but no one will get in without a free ticket, available at each branch of the Grosse Pointe Library for as long as they last.

The Friends' 8th Annual Great Grosse Pointe Readaloud will highlight Wednesday, April 22, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at all three branches. This year's notables

Celebrating National Library Week

ABOVE: Local children and parents may recognize this illustration; it appears in "A Rose for Pinkerton," drawn by famous illustrator and animal lover Steven Kellogg, who resides in Connecticut with his family and several animals. The inspiration for both "Pinkerton, Behave!" and "A Rose for Pinkerton" are Kellogg's beloved harlequin Great Dane named Pinkerton and his cat Secondhand Rose.

Except for groups, no registration is needed.

Wednesday evening the Friends will finish their extra busy day with Dr. Maurice D. Wheeler, Director of the Detroit Public Library, speaking for their annual meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Dr. Wheeler's presentation is free to the public, but it will cost $10 by April 13 to attend the Friends' 6:30 p.m. hors d'oeuvres and dessert gathering. Those interested in either program should call Sally Giacobbe at (313) 343-2974, extension 7.

Thursday at noon at all three branches the book raffle drawing will take place.

Renovation work continues at libraries

Improvements will connect branches' data, make buildings handicap accessible

The three branches of the Grosse Pointe Libraries are currently undergoing electrical renovations.

The project is the first step in preparations for technology improvements to the entire library system.

The libraries are being upgraded so that they may better be able to handle a new and improved on-line catalog and a wide area network (WAN) connecting all three branches. The electricians are working during library off hours and no interruption of service to library patrons is anticipated.

The next step in these preparations will be to install data cabling that will run next to the new electrical wiring.

"New and improved data cables will join all three branches and increase access for patrons of any branch to most materials available within the library system," said Vickey Bloom, director of the libraries.

"We have been planning this project for over two years now, and it is exciting to have those plans taking shape."

The plans were developed by a committee composed of representatives from the public, staff, the district library board and the friends of the library board. The Technology Committee began to meet in October 1995, when it became apparent that the current system could not meet the future needs of the library.

"Because of the efforts of these dedicated people who volunteered their time and expertise, the community can be assured of the best technology obtainable when the project is complete," Bloom said.

The next phase involves installing the network hardware and establishing connectivity. Bloom said she hopes the new system will be completely installed and operational by the end of the summer.

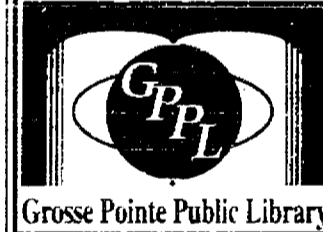

The library has also completed phase I of some internal renovations at the Central Branch, which are intended to make the library more accessible to physically challenged patrons. A new, wider ramp has been completed in the rear of the building off the parking lot. This ramp meets the standards established by the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

Phase II of the project included the installation of new security gates. The gates were donated by the Friends of the Library. The width of these gates also meets ADA standards.

The final phase of the project is to renovate the rear bathroom so that it meets ADA requirements.

"We hope that this phase will be completed quickly so that our patrons will not be inconvenienced. No interruption of service is anticipated," Bloom said.

THE OMNIVOROUS READER

Watching mud and boulders slide down hills in Laguna reminds me that it's time for spring cleaning. Spring cleaning: now there's a phrase to take the joy out of a truly great season.

As I burrow through the papers on my desk, not finding what I'm looking for, but finding what I had looked for last week, I decide it could be worse. There could be something else burrowing in those papers. Something like the creatures of our primal fears: small grey creatures with protruding front teeth, or smaller, darker creatures, with antennae and far too many legs, moving too fast as we see them only out of the corners of our eyes.

Or there just might be dust-bunnies.

There are a lot of people more than willing to tell us how to do things. This can lead to problems.

Magazines aimed especially

Spring cleaning: Best books to help at women with children who stay home are deeply depressing. One of these monthlies that America trusts was going to help the busy woman simplify the holidays. After all the cutting and pasting projects they recommend, I felt like taking off for Peru with one suitcase, leaving no forwarding address.

Some of the best books on organizing and cleaning up are not that new but they serve as inspirational reading.

The advice they offer is often familiar but it won't hurt to read it again before digging in.

Stay away from Hints from Heloise if you want to get organized and cut back.

Her advice is disorganized and questionable. She is clearly leisure time reading.

Martna Stewart also will slow you down. After all, you'll have to wait till the cheese arrives from France and the little shop in New Hampshire is open. And where do you store all those gilded pinecones and whatnots? Or do you keep all those centerpieces out and dust them regularly?

Odetta Pollar "Organizing your Workplace" is practical, short, less than 100 pages with diagrams, charts and troubleshooting quizzes. Never trust a writer telling you how to organize and declutter who writes really long books.

Stephanie Winston's "Getting Organized" is practically a classic, taking care of both home and office mess.

A newer title by Ellen Bravo "The Job/Family Challenge: Not for Women Only" covers problems not dealt with in the other books which are mainly about moving stuff around.

This is a good book for logistics, finding support and alternative methods of coping.

For housekeeping chores look to Don Aslett, who learned his tricks of the trade while cleaning houses professionally.

He has a sense of humor and is absolutely inspirational reading for anyone who wants to declutter. His titles include "Not for Packrats Only" and "Let Your House do the Housework."

If Aslett's method (throw it out before it crowds you out) frightens you, you'll probably need more storage.

We have any number of titles at the library, but "Organized Closets and Storage: Ideas for Every Room in Your Home" by Stephanie Culp is especially helpful.

If, however, the spring cleaning is done and your office is shipshape, you might look at a work by Bonnie Runyan McCullough, author of "Totally Organized."

She offers up "Bonnie's Household Budget Book: the essential Guide for Getting Control of Your Money."

Now that's the kind of cleaning up a lot of people would like to do.

With the income tax deadline nearing those papers need to be in order.

Speaking of income taxes, the library has a lot of the forms you'll need.

Ask at the reference desk about those you don't see on the table in the hall. Anyone who has to do Detroit City taxes, as resident or non-resident, can get the form at the reference desk. Each packet is complete with duplicates.

If you need a total escape try visiting the library during National Library Week.

Then you'll realize that the sensation you feel of sinking into your paperwork is nothing compared to the real thing.

Historical Society member speaks April 21 about the Titanic

Ed Weichler, a member of the Titanic Historical Society, will speak on the sinking of the unsinkable ship on Tuesday, April 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the Central Library.

So, in the wake of the movie you can learn more about what happened almost ninety years ago that we still find so fascinating.

Admission is free.

Income tax forms available at library

All branches of the Grosse Pointe Public Library System annually provide a convenient service to local residents by maintaining various income tax forms on a table in the hall during the tax season.

Library staff encourages people to ask at the reference desk about forms you don't see on the table in the hall.

Anyone who has to do Detroit City taxes, as a resident or non-resident, can get the form at the reference desk. Each packet is complete with duplicates.

GP Shores puts moratorium on construction of microwave towers

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Residents of the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores who want to keep microwave towers at bay will have to argue their case without relying on medical evidence, said Ralph Houghton, Shores attorney. The construction of microwave towers is governed under the 1996 Federal Telecommunications Act, which Houghton said disallows challenges to the construction of microwave towers based on medical or health reasons. Nevertheless, council president John Huettelman III said he'll risk a court fight if that's what Shores residents want. He led the Village council in approving unanimously a temporary ban on the construction of microwave towers in the Shores effective March 24. "We'll most likely find ourselves in a lawsuit," said Huettelman. The moratorium prohibits the construction of any microwave towers, even on private property, until May 26, at which time the ban can be extended two or three times, he said. The microwave issue came up at a recent Shores council meeting in response to an earlier request by AT&T to build a 120' to 140' tower on Shores' property behind the department of public works garage at the corner of Lakeshore and Vernier. The company said the galvanized steel tower would allow for better digital, cellular, voice mail and wireless communication service. The council said it would consider the request, but did not approve the plan. Nearby residents gave the council a petition protesting the idea, calling the anticipated installation an "eyesore." Separate letters underscored opposition on esthetic grounds, and pointed out the futility of attempting to use landscaping to camouflage a structure of such magnitude. Trying to steer people from the fruitless health strategy, Huettelman advised residents addressing the council that they would have to come up with a convincing reason to forestall the construction of microwave towers in the Shores based on other arguments. Pointing out the momentum behind the proliferation of microwave towers, Houghton said it is estimated that urban areas will have one tower per square mile. Huettelman said that up to eight communication companies would probably line up to use the proposed tower in the Shores, even though there are already six microwave towers in use on the grounds of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. He added that cities are frequently sued by companies wanting to erect microwave towers, and the companies generally win. Before making any permanent decisions on the tower, city officials said they will hold a public hearing on the issue.

Wayne County voters may require super majority for future tax hikes

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Wayne County voters will decide for themselves if a super majority vote is required to raise county taxes. In the Aug. 4 primary election, voters will be asked if a 60 percent majority is needed to raise taxes in Wayne County, according to Commissioner Christopher Cavanagh, D-District 1, who broke a deadlocked commission by approving the ballot issue. Cavanagh, who represents the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods and a portion of Detroit, found himself in the middle of a political stalemate: Seven suburban commissioners wanted the super majority requirement; seven from Detroit didn't.

"I felt it was not my responsibility to keep this issue from the ballot. I decided to give the people a choice," he said. "Either way, I'm going to take a political hit. But the only thing I could feel comfortable about was using my vote to let the people decide for themselves." Cavanagh said he "doesn't necessarily believe in a super majority for tax increases," but the measure was the second part of a two-part resolution and putting down the voting issue would have "killed something I totally agreed with." The ballot issue was tied to a county resolution requiring a two-thirds vote by commissioners to place tax increase proposals on the ballot. "It was the whole thing or nothing," said Cavanagh. "If I were motivated strictly by political reasons, I would have voted against the resolution because most of my voters are in Detroit."

Wayne County to supply weather radios to schools and hospitals

The devastation from last July's storm could have been worse if the storm hit a hospital or while children were in school. Most of these facilities did not have an early warning device. With this in mind, Wayne County will distribute weather radios to schools and medical facilities. The radios will reduce the chance of injury and death resulting from severe weather. The radios can prevent injury by giving schools and hospitals time to protect students and patients. They are activated by the National Weather Service when severe conditions are forecast. A loud signal and message alert school and hospital personnel to life-threatening weather conditions. "We're helping make sure that people have a chance to protect themselves against devastating weather," says Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara. The radios are being purchased with a $21,000 grant from the Federal Emergency Management Agency through the Hazard Mitigation Program. The county's emergency management division applied for the grant after the county was designated as a federal disaster area following the July 2, 1997, storm that killed six people, injured 47 and caused $90 million in losses. In addition, the county received a grant to conduct a severe weather public awareness campaign. Through this campaign the county will distribute educational printed material to all households within Wayne County.

Vyletel buys Ricci's VW franchise, inherits hot, new waiting list

If you drive down Mack near Cadieux, you might notice something is missing: Joe Ricci's imported car dealership, which handled Saab, Subaru and Volkswagen, is chises went back to the importers, who will presumably appoint new dealers to serve the east side. With the VW franchise, Vyletel also got a waiting list automaker expects to sell 50,000 Beetles in the United States in its first year.

Vyletel said his dealership plans to build a Volkswagen-exclusive outlet within the next year to serve the east side, somewhere between the present Sterling Heights dealership and the Pointes.

Vyletel, who lives in the Pointes, said he drove a Beetle home the last couple of days. "It's great to drive," he said. "It's not really like the old Beetle at all. It is very tight, very solid and very safe."

But he said he felt nervous driving the new Beetle because of the intense interest it generates. "I tried not to make eye contact with pedestrians or other motorists because they always wanted me to roll down the window and talk about it. It's a little distracting."

Vyletel said the new Beetle seems to have broad appeal with deposits of people who want to buy new VW Beetles. "We have about 65 deposits of $500 each from prospects who want to buy Beetles," said Marshall Vyletel. "We anticipate receiving 80 to 100 Beetles this year, so our annual allotment is almost sold already." The German across the age groups, but said it seemed strongest among people in their 40s. "Most of these people owned one of the old Beetles. They seem to be the most enthusiastic."

Vyletel said the new Beetle is being built in Mexico in a plant next to the production line where the old Beetle is still being built. Production is slated to begin soon in Germany, also, he said.

"At the plant in Pueblo, Mexico, the old Beetles are produced on old tools, while the new Beetle is manufactured on a highly automated line. It's kind of symbolic of how different the new Beetle really is, even though it evokes strong nostalgia for the old. When the first Beetle concept car was shown at the Detroit auto show in 1994, it caused a sensation among Americans, but the Germans were not interested in it," he said.

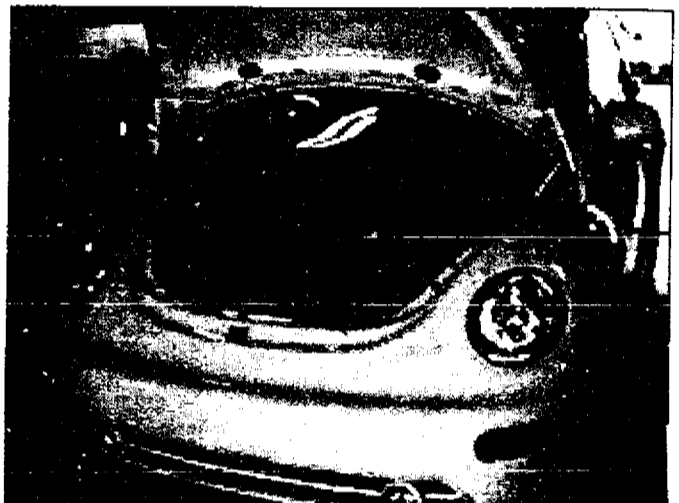

After it became clear that VW had a winner, the Germans decided they wanted it too, he said, and it will be built in both Mexico and Germany.

VW dealers around the country report a high level of enthusiasm and growing waiting lists of buyers. The new production Beetle was unveiled at the Detroit auto show at Cobo Center in January and reaction was

Spring driving calls for extra vigilance, says AAA

Spring may bring showers and May flowers, but it could also bring trouble for drivers who don't follow some basic rules of the road when encountering Michigan's quickly changing atmospheric conditions, advises AAA Michigan.

"Along with potholes, motorists have to contend with springtime black ice, fog, and reduced visibility and heavy rains," said AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager Jerry Basch.

The results can be deadly loss of control or skidding and hydroplaning.

Even with increased funds to repair state roads, potholes will likely continue to be a problem as long as the freeze-thaw cycle is in effect. Standing water settles in a low spot and freezes.

This continuous freeze-thaw, along with pounding from cars and trucks, helps weaken pavement and create potholes. Motorists should be watchful in spring and steer around them without endangering other motorists, or be prepared to take them head on with the vehicle fully under control.

"Black ice" is caused when a puddle or dew freezes as the temperature drops during cold snaps and at night. The ice is very hard to see, and blends with the roadway. "Be especially watchful under freeway overpasses and on bridges, which freeze earlier than the roadway," Basch advised. Also be watchful of roadways shaded by trees or shadowed by hills.

"Fog is dangerous because visibility can drop in an instant," Basch said. Use low beams and, if your vehicle has them, fog lamps.

"High beams reflect and diffuse light into the fog, making it even more difficult to see. Reduce your speed and increase the space between your car and others.

Hydroplaning occurs when your car's tires lose contact with the road in rain. "It means you're literally floating on a very thin layer of water," he said.

If you feel this "floating sensation," slow down gradually and keep steering straight.

Resist the temptation to brake hard or turn sharply until traction returns. Hydroplaning can even occur at posted speeds during heavy rain.

You can help prevent hydroplaning with tires that are properly maintained and inflated. If there is less than one-eighth-inch of tread remaining, replace them.

Other driving tips:

- If your car has anti-lock brakes (ABS), apply firm, steady pressure to the pedal in hard stops and let the system do the work. If your car does not have ABS, brake firmly or squeeze the pedal up to the point of causing the brakes to lock and then ease off and reapply.

- Use your lights during times of poor visibility. Some cars have automatic daytime running lights, which have been shown to reduce accidents.
- Make sure windshield wipers work properly. If they streak, are cracked or are misshapen, replace them. Keep your windshield fluid reservoir filled.

quicker and strong.

A measure of how hot they are is the fact that Prestige Motors, a company that deals in special interest used cars, has five of them on its lot and a number more on order from various dealers.

"Sure, we can sell them at a premium now, because everybody who wants one can afford one," said Eric Ziegenbein, son of owner Bill Ziegenbein. "Everyone wants to be the first on his block to drive one. And they can be. And this car costs around $20,000, not $50,000 like most hot-demand cars do.

The new Beetle looks a bit like the old, but is entirely different. The old Beetle was designed in the early '30s (by Ferdinand Porsche, but nonetheless, that's an old design), while the new Beetle is current state of the art, on a new VW Golf platform.

The old Beetle had an air-cooled rear engine positioned over the rear drive wheels; the new Beetle has a water-cooled engine in the front with front-wheel drive.

Standard engine is a 2.0-liter 115-hp four. Optional is a high-tech Turbo Direct Injection diesel engine that gets 48 mpg on the highway and has a driving range of 700 miles. Fuel economy for the gasoline engine is 22 mpg city/27 highway.

Later, a 1.8-liter 150 hp turbocharged engine will also be available. With 16-inch wheels, modified front and rear axles and front-wheel drive, cruising in the new Beetle may remind you more of the '60s muscle cars than the cute little Bug.

The Beetle is hot now, as is its ancestor, the original Beetle, now a collector car. But it was not always held in such esteem. The first Beetle arrived in New York City in January of 1949. Ben Pon, who had had success marketing the small car in the Netherlands, intended to use it to interest potential dealers in the United States. No one was interested. In fact, he met derision because of the car's odd design. Pon sold the car to cut his losses and returned to Europe.

Heinz Nordhoff also came to the United States in 1949 with product photos and he, too, was unable to arouse dealer interest. Two VWs were registered in the United States in 1949. The second is said to have been sent to an industrial trade show and later purchased by a private individual.

The first official VW "exports" arrived in 1950. That year Max Hoffman of New York City was appointed the exclusive VW importer and agent for the United States east of the Mississippi. He sold 330 VWs in 1950.

When Hoffman's contract as exclusive VW importer east of the Mississippi expired in 1953, he had sold just over 2,000 cars in about three years. Actually, he wasn't overly enthusiastic about the car.

According to collector Terry Shuler, early Beetles (1950-53) were priced at $1,280 (standard), $1,480 (deluxe), $1,550 (sunroof) and $1,997 for the Karmann convertible. Shuler, of Portage, Pa., writes a column called "Eastern Scene" for Hot VW Magazine, out of Los Angeles.

A car buyer in 1949 could get a new Chevy for between $1,400 and $2,270; Ford prices ranged from $1,350 to $2,250, and Plymouths were $1,371 to $2,372.

Two years later, in 1955, 251 VW dealers in the United States sold close to 36,000 vehicles. And in 1955, 14 distributors were appointed for the continental United States by Wil van de Kamp and J. Stuart Perkins, who later headed Volkswagen of America.

There were a few U.S.-based Beetles which had been bought in Europe and brought in by their owners. In fact, when the little car really took off in the 1960s and buyers had to wait to take delivery, there developed quite a gray/black market in which slightly used Beetles with their odometers set back and bodies all shined up were sold as "new" or nearly new.

Volkswagen dominated imported car sales once it got rolling. Sales of the Beetle peaked in 1970 at around 600,000 for the year, then began to plummet on a curve almost as steep as the one it has risen on through the '60s. In 1975, Toyota passed it in sales to become the top-selling import.

In 1976, VW halted production of the Beetle in Europe, although it continued to produce it in Mexico. Import of the Beetle to the United States was ended, although a business in federalizing Mexican units for sale at a greatly increased price continued for several years.

Now history appears to be ready to repeat itself once more, in some form. The Hitler-era car which became America's sweetheart has returned in up-to-date high-tech form.

The new VW Beetle captures the streamliner era of the first Volkswagen, designed in the '30s.

Dow Jones breaks 9,000, then backs off

Last week, the bull market roared back with a vengeance, spurring 187 points to close at 8,983.41, up 2.1 percent. The S&P 500 did even better, with a gain of 2.5 percent, or 27 points, to close at 1,199.70, a new record high!

By Joseph Mengden

Barron's (April 6) quotes Jeff Applegate, the strategist at Lehman Brothers, "about 90 percent of the first quarter advance in the S&P came from multiple expansion, and just 10 percent from profit growth."

"Multiple expansion" refers to the price/earnings multiple, which for the S&P 500 is now 23 times estimated 1998 earnings of $49 for the 500 underlying companies in the Index, an all-time record.

This P/E increase was caused by the price being pushed up by buying demand (more buyers than sellers), rather than the earnings outlook, which continues to deteriorate.

First-quarter 1998 earnings projections have been continually downgraded, beginning last January. At the beginning of this year, analysts' consensus projections called for a 10 percent earnings growth over first quarter 1997, but this has now been downgraded to a decline of 0.4 percent.

The market seems to have discounted an expected "flat" first quarter, and keeps its focus on the full-year 1998 target of an 8 percent growth in earnings. But some analysts think this is too optimistic, because a zero first quarter would require the three remaining quarters to come in with over 10 percent each, to average an 8 percent for the four quarters.

With the DJI now bumping around 9,000, the bulls are calling for 9,400, 9,600 and even 10,000 by mid-year! And no one admits to selling.

Although 3.1 billion shares traded last week on the NYSE, no one admits to being a seller of any of those shares. But everyone knows, for every buyer, there has to be a seller!

What are bonds doing?

With TV news highlighting the 9,000 level of the DJI, the bond markets just keep chugging along. But the most recent 18 months have witnessed a major shift in the supply/demand balance in the U.S. Treasury Bond market.

Remember when the annual federal budget deficit ran $200 billion to $300 billion?

Each year, the deficit was monetized by the sale of a like amount of Treasury Bonds, which made up the cash shortfall.

The Treasury almost never pays off (down) the federal debt, it merely "rolls over" the upcoming months maturing debt by selling a like amount of new debt.

Can you remember a year when the federal government didn't operate at a deficit?

It didn't seem to matter which political party occupied the White House. For all those decades, the Treasury had to sell additional new bonds to balance the cash deficit, in addition to the monthly "rollovers" of maturities of the old debt.

The continual issuance of new bonds exerted upward pressure on interest rates, year-in and year-out. But now, in 1998, the deficit appears to be evaporating. Not because of reduced federal expenditures, but because of unexpected, unbudgeted additional tax revenues.

In 1997 alone, the mutual-fund industry distributed more than $150 billion capital gains dividends.

Thus it looks like there will be substantially less new Treasury bonds offered for sale this year. Since Social Security has revenues in excess of retirement payments, this excess must be invested in privately placed Treasury bonds, leaving even less bonds available for sale to the public.

With inflation bouncing around the 1 percent to 2 percent annual level, it is unlikely that the Federal Reserve will be raising short-term interest rates in the near future. In fact, some analysts are conjecturing on when, not if, the Fed will lower interest rates. A week ago, the Bureau of Labor Statistics surprised everyone by reporting that non-farm payrolls slipped by 36,000 workers, against a consensus estimate of an increase of 250,000 workers.

Dollars and sense

By Bryon Elson

You can save some tax dollars this year, if you plan properly and take the following three deductions.

- Individual Retirement Account (IRA) contributions. If both you and your spouse contribute to an IRA and neither is covered by an employer-sponsored retirement plan, you may deduct your full IRA contribution regardless of how much you earn.

- If you already contribute to a retirement plan at work, such as a 401(k) or a profit-sharing plan, your deduction will phase out depending on your adjusted gross income (AGI).

- If you're single, you may fully deduct your contribution if your AGI is $25,000 or less.

- If your AGI is between $25,000 and $35,000, you can claim a partial deduction.

- If you're married and file a joint return, you can receive a full deduction if your combined AGI is $40,000 or less, and a partial deduction if your AGI is between $40,000 and $50,000.

- Mortgage interest. If you're paying a mortgage on your home, you may fully deduct the mortgage interest you paid during the year if one of these statements is true:

- You took out your mortgage on or before Oct. 13. If you refinanced that mortgage, it still qualifies as long as your home was collateral for the original and refinanced loans at all times.

- You took out your mortgage after Oct. 13, and used the money to buy, build or improve your home. You can deduct the interest paid on the first $1 million ($500,000 or less if you're married filing separately).

- You took out a mortgage after Oct. 13, and used the money for purposes other than to buy, build or improve your home. The interest you paid on the first $100,000 ($50,000 if you're married filing separately) is deductible.

- Charitable contributions. Your deduction is usually limited to 50 percent of your AGI, but in some cases 20 or 30 percent may apply.

- If you make a cash contribution of $250 or more, you must obtain a written acknowledgment from the qualified organization on or before you file your tax return or its due date, including extensions.

One month does not a summer make, but is this the first sign of a softening of the "tight" labor market which has prevailed for several years?

The stock market voted "no recession," by crossing the 9,000 level!

Meanwhile, the Treasury Bond market rallied sharply. The bellwether 30-year Treasury Bond jumped 3/4 of 1 point, or $7.50 per $1,000 bond. Since yields move inversely to prices, the closing price, Friday, April 3, yielded 5.79 percent, down from over 6 percent a couple of weeks ago.

coupons cut (stripped) off. Mathematically, it is often compared to a "straight" annuity issued by insurance companies.

Zeros trade in minimum units of $1 million par value, but "odd-lots" can sometimes be purchased at small premium prices to the market.

Owe the IRS? Deal with them

Does the IRS say you owe them money — money you can't afford to pay?

Try to work out a compromise.

If your appeal rights have expired, the IRS has a mechanism for dealing with an "offer-in-compromise."

If you can show that there is real doubt as to whether you owe the liability, or if the IRS believes the liability can't be collected, they may accept a reasonable compromise.

Your first step is to contact your nearest IRS office and ask how to submit an "offer-in-compromise."

Small fry health tax

People who are self-employed can deduct health insurance expenses for themselves, their spouses and dependents.

The deduction is 40 percent in 1997. Under new law, the rate for the 1998 and 1999 deduction is 45 percent.

It's 50 percent in 2000 and 2001, and eventually increases to 100 percent by the year 2007 and thereafter.

Woods firm honored

Riverside Custom Design and Remodeling in Grosse Pointe Woods won second place in the national 1997 Design Awards Competition sponsored by Qualified Remodeler, a trade magazine.

It was the first time the company had entered the contest, said Gene Pindzia, company president.

The company won in the kitchen category for their work on a 1910 arts and crafts bungalow in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Top 10 spring clean-up tips for lawn and garden

Q: What should I be doing now to get a jump start on the gardening season?
 A: Spring is here early this year. Ready or not, we need to start now in order to enjoy a successful season.
 How will our mild winter affect our gardens this spring and summer? Many insects and diseases, which would have been killed off, will have survived over the winter and we need to take some precautionary measures to prevent damage this season.
 The weed population is going to be starting to sprout up earlier this year also. On the good side, the mild winter has helped our less hardy plants survive better too. We will have less winter die-back on our trees and shrubs.
 As long as we do not get an early spring freeze, the flowering trees and bushes should be putting on quite a show this spring. Only it will come a little sooner than usual.
 The following is my top 10 to do list for the lawn and garden:

1. Rake up the debris off the lawn and beds. Remove all the twigs, leaves and junk that has accumulated over the winter. Leaves from last year are one of the carriers of plant diseases. By removing all last year's raked debris you will help control the disease spread this year.
2. Service your lawn mower.

Sharpen the mower blade so it will cut the grass instead of ripping it. Plus clean the air filter, change the oil and spark plug and lubricate the mower.
 3. Cut the grass one setting lower than normal for your first cut of the year. You will not believe how fast your lawn will turn green once you cut it. Cut it once for the first time and you will have a lot of the winter brown grass too. Remember to raise the blade height back up after that.
 4. Fertilize the lawn. Spring and fall are the two most important times to fertilize because the grass is actively growing and thickening. A thick healthy lawn can withstand the stress of the summer heat much better.
 5. Over-seed the bare spots in your lawn. If you seed now you reduce the amount of care needed to achieve good results. Mother Nature will take care of the watering for us with the spring rains. In shady spots, the seeds can get a foothold before the leaves on the trees get thick. If you have too much shade, try pruning a few lower branches to increase the amount of sunlight getting through.
 6. Apply I-reen now to prevent weeds later. The secret to fewer weeds through out the season is a product called I-reen. I-reen is a granular form and it stops seeds

Ask The Landscaper
 By David Souliere

from germinating. You lightly sprinkle it in your planting beds. Do not apply it to your garden if you are planning to sow seeds, shrubs where you apply I-reen because it is only the seeds that it controls. If the weeds have started to come up, cultivate the soil a little to knock down the existing growth.
 7. Mutch the beds. Mutch will also help control weeds. Plus mutch helps hold the moisture in the soil for the plants and cools the soil during those hot summer days.
 8. Prune dead and broken branches. Take a quick walk around the yard and with a sharp pair of pruners remove any dead or broken branches from your trees and shrubs. While you have the pruners in hand trim back any wild growth that is making the plant grow lopsided. Now is the time to prune back the roses to the live parts of the stem.

 9. Spray roses with Daconil. In order to control the spread of black spot on your roses, you can spray with a fungicide called Daconil by Ortho. By starting early you can prevent the disease from getting out of control. Always follow label directions on how much to dilute and the precautionary safety steps that may be needed.
 10. Spray injected bushes with horticultural oil. Ultra fine is a refined horticultural oil that will help control the outbreak of certain insects such as spider mites and scale. If you had a problem last year then now is the time to get started. Bring in a sample of the plant's dying branch if you are not sure whether it is infested by insects or not.

April, a month of sun, and showers for flowers

By Ellen Probert Williamson

Now that we are really into April, perhaps spring is really here, and not playing April Fool after all.

One of the early heralds of spring is the beautiful flowering dogwood, which, even some days of balmy weather, will before too long burst into bloom.

There are two kinds of dogwood, pink and white. The white is the wild one and the pink is a cultivated variety. The two are often planted together and can create a delightful bouquet.

There are about 45 species of dogwood, with almost all of them native to the north temperate regions of the country. They are all prized for their flowers, their colorful fruits, and the rich colors of their fall foliage. Dogwoods are popular as specimen trees in landscape design and vary widely in size, from the dwarf dogwood which is only a few inches in height, to the Pacific dogwood which grows to 75 feet or more.

The redbud, too, will soon decorate our gardens, contrasting its vibrant purple-red color to the more ethereal dogwood. There are seven species of redbud, all members of the pea family, which is interesting.

One variety of redbud, called the Judas tree, which grows to a height of 40 feet or more, is native to Europe and Asia. It gets its name from the legend that Judas Iscariot hanged himself from a redbud tree.

There are buds on the lilacs too. One of the loveliest of the flowering trees, the lilac grows wild in southeastern Europe and Asia. There are more than 20 different species and many hybrids and named varieties.

Lilacs are excellent for many kinds of gardens and have a long life span, probably due to their olive ancestry, and seldom need any kind of pruning.

There are Hungarian lilacs, Himalayan lilacs, Russian lilacs, Chinese lilacs, Japanese lilacs and Canadian lilacs, all different but similar, and all varieties of the lovely, sweet-scented syringa.

Another wonderful spring blossom is wisteria with its white and lavender hanging garlands of bloom. In Japan the wisteria is the flower for April, and of youth and poetry.

Wisteria is, like the redbud, a member of the pea family, and was named in honor of Caspar Wister, past professor at the University of Pennsylvania. It is originally from eastern Asia, but has been extensively developed in this country. It is an adaptable plant which can be trained to grow in tree form, or as a bush, or to esplanade on a fence or wall, or to cover an arbor or pergola.

In France it is sometimes grown as a climbing vine and often dangles its hanging clusters of blossoms from the tops of trees. But wisterias can also be grown in pots, which stunts them into plants about four feet high.

This form is often used for the Japanese art of bonsai, in which miniature trees are pruned and shaped to create tiny landscapes.

The opposite side of the coin is the Chinese wisteria, which grows to a height of 40 or 50 feet and has stems, or trunks, four or five feet around.

No list of spring-flowering trees would be complete without the laurel tulip tree, which, in the southern states is called the magnolia. It is named for the French doctor and horticulturist who for several years was director of the botanical gardens at Montpellier in France.

In 1733 Linnaeus, the famed botanist, gave credit to Dr. Pierre Magnol for inspiring the whole structure and theory of the Linnaean nomenclature of plants. Magnolias were first grown in England in 1789. They flower very young, a boon to impatient gardeners, and are a contrast to the Bhutan variety, which does not flower until the tree is 30 years old. The scent of the flowers is legendary, but the bark of the tree is also scented. It is often used to make boxes which retain their scent for many years, as does sandalwood.

Springtime can also be a blossoming bouquet of the fruit trees. The pasted buds of the cherry, apple, pear and crabapple trees can turn fruit orchards into magical places in the spring.

April is a month of sunshine and showers, warming days and thunderstorms, crisp nights and warm moons, giving evidence to the old saying that "April showers

Survey shows 12 percent of Michigan homes may have high radon levels

Michigan's radon awareness initiatives are supported by a recent National Academy of Sciences report.

Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) director Russell Harding estimates that one in eight Michigan homes may have elevated radon levels, but points out that the DEQ has an ambitious educational and outreach program to assist homeowners.

"Radon occurs naturally in our environment," says Harding. "Unfortunately, it's easy for people to ignore because it is a colorless, odorless gas. The DEQ is working to help Michigan residents understand that it could be a problem in their own homes. The only way is to test."

Harding's comments come on the heels of a study by the National Academy of Sciences (NAS), a private organization chartered by Congress to conduct research at the request of governmental agencies.

"The NAS report increases the radon exposure risk estimates previously issued by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. The NAS estimates that 15,000 to 22,000 Americans die of radon-induced lung cancer each year. The EPA's estimate was 14,000.

The report also reiterates the EPA's claim that radon is the second leading cause of lung cancer only in the United States, surpassed by smoking.

A statewide survey conducted in 1987-88 showed that roughly 12 percent of Michigan homes are expected to have elevated radon levels. In some counties more than 40 percent of the homes could have a problem.

While a fairly high percentage of the population claims awareness of radon, only about 10 percent of Michigan homes have actually been tested, says Harding.

Radon is generated by the radioactive decay of uranium and radium which are found in virtually any type of soil and rock. It enters homes through openings in the foundation floor or walls, and under concrete slabs. Radon levels are higher than outdoors radon levels.

The DEQ is working with local health departments to distribute radon information and to make test kits more accessible to the public. Kits are available in at least one local health department office in every county. They also can be purchased in many hardware stores and other retail outlets statewide.

The DEQ's radon information line is 1-800-RADON-GAS (723-6642). Staff also are available to provide local health department numbers, help interpret test results, provide callers with lists of qualified testers and radon reduction contractors, and offer other basic consultative services.

bring May flowers." We look forward to the flowers, clover and violets starting our lawns, more weeded perhaps than the drier, fat yellow dandelions, which naturally cause such anguish to lawn perfectionists.

In Victorian times a lady was pleased to receive a bouquet of dandelions from her beau because, in the language of flowers, which everyone knew at that time, this meant, "I am faithful to you," and the flower was the symbol of love and time.

Children love dandelions; and many of us can remember sitting the stems and putting them in water, and watching the stems curl up into tight spirals, and with a big needle and a length of carpet thread stringing them together to make a lei to wear around our necks.

The whole part of the dandelion is edible. The young leaves can make a salad or can be cooked like spinach. The flower heads can be chopped with butter to make a sandwich spread, and dandelion wine has been made by many country people since Colonial times. Dandelions are used in the manufacture of medicine and have a high vitamin C content.

Money does grow on trees! Plant one at your home

Most people regard trees as something that look beautiful, provide shade and bear fruit. There are more than just esthetically pleasing, however — they have a dollar value.

Well-maintained, mature, healthy trees can increase the value of your property by up to 25 percent, depending on their size, species and location. Realtors recognize this value, stressing "well-landscaped yard" or "shaded patio" or "great view of trees." A little attention and proper care can improve a tree's health and life and protect your assets.

A tree can be valued from $300, based on the going price of firewood, up to $13,000 for its appraised value for all benefits it provides or regarded as priceless for the beautiful memories attached to it. Research shows that humans have a definite psy-insurance and tax purposes. The best time to do this is before any damage occurs.

Whose liability is it?

When a tree falls and damage is done to life or property, who is responsible? If the tree was made less safe by some defect, the owner of the tree may be held responsible.

The general rule says that the Questions to ask when planning an outdoor room

To create the outdoor room of your dreams, planning is essential. Take time to consider how you would like to use your outdoor space.

4. What kind of ambience do you want?
Should your outdoor room feel rustic, casually elegant, relaxed or formal? Do you want a look that is

8. How much maintenance can you handle?
Will all the maintenance fall to you? Is minimal upkeep a crucial concern, or are you willing to do whatever maintenance chores may be required?

9. Think about storage.
Is it important for you to be able to store your cushions and/or your furniture inside during the off-season?

traditional, Mediterranean, English country garden or contemporary? What feeling do you want to evoke?

5. How do you like to entertain?
Do you prefer informal gatherings where kids and parents mix with equanimity? Will you want to be able to lol around your pool on a regular basis? How many do you want to seal for a party?

6. How much do you want to spend?
Decide on a range rather than a fixed dollar amount. Recognize that you can stretch your furnishing project over a few seasons — dining set this year, chairs next, extra benches and tables afterward.

7. What will coordinate with your home, inside and out?
The color and mood of your outdoor area should engender a natural

1. How many people do you need to accommodate?
Will top priority be family activities — dinners for four, lounging with a good book, cavorting with the kids? Or will you entertain frequently — weekly dinners for eight and several bashes for 30 or more? How many people should be able to lol around your pool on a regular basis? How many do you want to seal for a party?

2. How much space do you have available?
Does your deck have room for a dining set for six and four chairs? Are you furnishing a balcony that can hold just two chairs and a small table?

3. What kind of abuse is your furniture likely to get?
Do you have a houseful of rough and tumble kids? Do you have large-size friends or family members? Do you want furniture that can be moved with ease?

Home building seminar offered
Everything needed to plan and build a home will be covered, including estimating the cost of materials, buying property, financing, building codes and permits, insurance requirements as well as the basics of wood frame construction, concrete, masonry, roofing and more. UL kicks off 'Spring Into Safety' campaign

Temperatures are rising, birds are chirping and flowers are beginning to bud. It's the time of year when many consumers venture outside to take on spring cleaning projects around their homes.

While many folks look forward to working in the garden and around the house, hundreds of thousands of injuries occur each year as a result of mishaps related to lawn mowers, electric tools and ladders.

Underwriters Laboratories Inc. (UL) is kicking off its "Spring Into Safety" campaign to remind consumers that, while spring cleaning projects can be enjoyable for the whole family, there are certain simple precautions that should be taken before using lawn and garden equipment and ladders. The safety experts at UL are encouraging consumers across America to make safety a priority this season to avoid accidents that could result in a trip to the emergency room.

"We realize that many consumers after injuries from lawn and garden equipment injuries that could be prevented by three-pointing a quick safety check into their seasonal routine," says John Dyregrenberg, UL's consumer affairs manager. "Spring Into Safety" provides safety checklists and lists potential hazards to avoid as families prepare their homes for the warmer months."

As part of "Spring Into Safety," UL is emphasizing to consumers the importance of being familiar with the tools they are using and to carefully read all assembly, use and care instructions that accompany the products and to look for the familiar UL listing mark before purchasing a power tool, ladder, step ladder or any other electrical product.

Dyregrenberg advises consumers to initially and periodically inspect tools and equipment for damage. Working with products that have frayed power cords or broken electrical components and could result in a serious electric shock or start a fire.

All through the spring and early summer months, UL will be disseminating safety tips covering electrical tools, lawn mowers and ladders. Spring safety and other product safety information can also be obtained through UL's Web site at www.ul.com or by calling UL's toll-free demand hotline: 1-800-477-4746.

10 free shade trees offered

Ten free shade trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during April 1998 as part of the nonprofit foundation's Trees for America campaign.

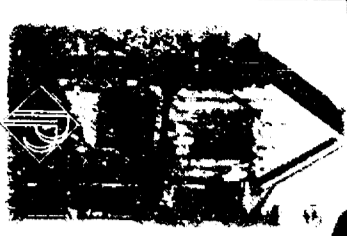

The 10 shade trees are red oak, sugar maple, weeping willow, green ash, thornless black locust, pin oak, river birch, tulare poplar, Norway spruce and red maple. The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting in April.

To become a member of the foundation and receive the free trees, send a $10 contribution to The Free Shade Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410. By April 30.

Household Help

Do you know someone who can fix everything from a leaky kitchen sink to a stuck car antenna to a broken lawnmower in the blink of an eye? Does that special someone have every gadget imaginable in their toolbox and actually know how to use them?

Well, if you do know somebody who personifies the word, handy, then now is the time to write about their talents and possibly win a prize for their efforts and your own.

WD-40 Co. has announced the "1998 WD-40 Search for the Handiest Americans" contest. People from across the country are invited to write an essay about who they think is the handiest person in America and why. Only one nomination per person.

Entrants will be divided into two simple groups -- handiest male and handiest female. Grand prizes will be awarded to the top essay writers, and their choice for "Handiest American" based on originality, creativity, concept, humor and sincerity.

First-place winners in each category will receive a trip to the WD-40 Co. in San Diego. Winnings include air transportation on American Airlines, lodging for four nights at the Doubletree Hotel in Mission Valley and an AVIS rental car. In addition to the grand prize, other prizes including WD-40 products and gear, will be awarded.

To enter, contestants must submit an essay of no more than 500 words, double-spaced typed or computer generated on 8.5 x 11-inch paper describing their choices for "Handiest American." The essay should be attached to a photograph of their choice for "Handiest American" and include name, age, Social Security number, address, and phone number of the person nominated and the entrant on a separate page. The limitations are only dependent upon the essayist's imagination and creativity.

Send nominations to: 1998 WD-40 Search for the Handiest Americans Contest, P.O. Box 880464, San Diego, CA 92168-0464, by May 30, 1998. Winners will be announced in July.

Preen 'n Green will stop weed growth and nourish plants for three months.

Seasonal tips for roses

The rose. As tradition has it, roses are often given to share feelings, when words alone just can't express them. For example, red indicates feelings of love, pink and yellow mean friendship, and white roses are commonly used to express sympathy. Whatever the color, though, it's important that the shades are rich and vibrant, which can only "stem" from careful maintenance.

Though roses require more attention than other flowers and shrubs, the beauty they bestow upon a yard is worth all the effort. With so many plant care products to choose from, deciding which to purchase can often take more time than the actual application. Some products, however, are decidedly better than others. For example, Greenview offers Preen 'n Green, a combination weed preventer and fertilizer with a formula of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. Preen 'n Green encourages abundant plant blooms, strong root development and improved plant vigor, while saving roses from being overtaken by pesky weeds.

Easy to use
Adding peat moss and tilling the soil are necessary steps in order to achieve plant growth, but achieving healthy plants is where Preen 'n Green factors into the equation. The product's combination of fertilizer and weed preventer comes in a single yellow canister which has a built-in applicator. Simply sprinkle the granules evenly around the established bedding area, and lightly water so the nutrients seep into the ground and reach the plant's roots. With just two applications, one now and one 90 days later, the area will be free of weeds, and roses can thrive. If a fertilizer has already been applied to the area, Preen will effectively stop weeds.

Pruning to perfection
Besides adding a plant fertilizer and weed preventer, roses need to be pruned in order to promote the growth of new shoots and buds. Make sure to wear gardening gloves when pruning a rose bush as the thorns can nick the skin easily.

Before beginning, inspect the rose bush. If it has grown suckers from the roots, dig down and pull them off at the root. With pruning shears, cut away dead, broken or diseased canes. Next, cut away all thin, scraggly canes. These won't be able to support blooms and will make the plant sag. If canes are crossed and rubbing together, cut the smaller ones back. This will strengthen the remaining canes.

Once unwanted growth has been cut from the bush, prune the main canes back to just above the desired height. Then cut each rose cane to just above the nearest outward-facing bud. This will allow for a well-rounded form, which helps the rose bush maintain an attractive, full shape.

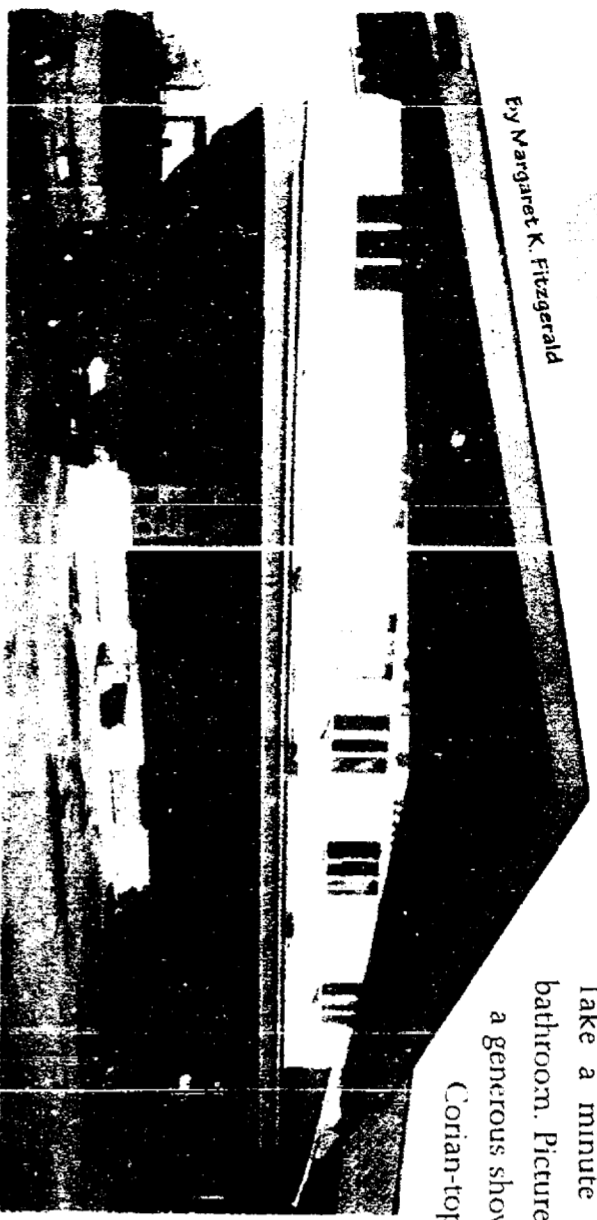

So, get ready to enjoy the benefits of weed-free gardening this spring and summer and leave the rose care to Preen 'n Green.

Birch veneer interiors can be stained to match the exterior. A high-tech catalyzed varnish seals the color in, and is resistant to most household chemicals.

REATE AN IDYLIC BATHROOM... AND MORE...

By Margaret K. Fitzgerald

Take a minute to think carefully about your ideal bathroom. Picture it in your mind. It looks inviting, with a generous shower and tub, well-placed lighting, and a Corian-topped vanity with plenty of cabinets and drawers. It gleams in the morning, an oasis of color and light. It's your private place to nurture your body and soul.

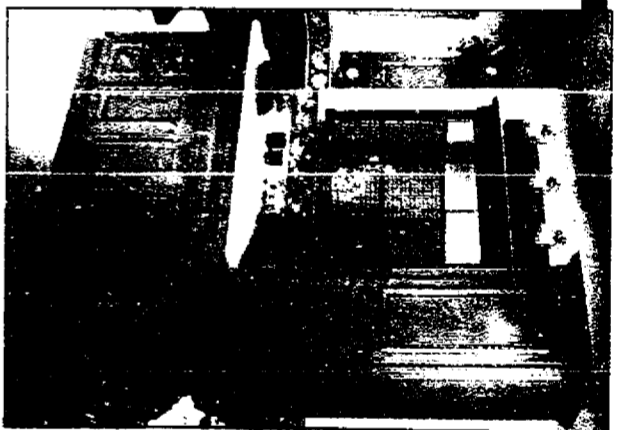

Now let's look at your present bathroom—the one with the leaky plumbing, cracked tub and barely enough space for your towel, washcloth and comb. You're woken in the morning in record time—just wash, brush and get out. But you there's no need to tolerate it. A redesigned bathroom can do wonders for your attitude that thing in the morning.

Are you planning to remodel a kitchen, a bathroom — or more? John's Lumber - Home Improvements is your best bet for the most experienced home renovation specialists. Gather your notes and bring your questions — for excellence in design, product knowledge and craftsmanship, you can't beat the experts at John's.

PROFESSIONAL INSTALLATION AND SERVICE

Dan Kelly, who has over 15 years experience, is the manager of the home improvement division. He notes that while it is possible to have a clear idea of what you'd like for your bathroom to look like, they are surprised by the complexity of the process. Homeowners usually hire an experienced designer, and the best way to make sure you get the job done is to hire one of the space you have. Bathroom renovations require a lot of attention to design issues. Knowing what you're in for is important. It's not always how to achieve it requires special skills. It's a long process, and you need to work with a schedule, and you need to set up a plan. It's not always how to achieve it requires special skills. OVER HALF A CENTURY OF COMMITMENT

The growth of the three-year-old Home Improvement division is reminiscent of the solid reputation of John's Lumber. The 50-year-old family business has earned strong ties to the southeast Michigan residential construction industry, and is one of its prominent suppliers of building materials. John's Lumber president Mike Aggeler received a full corporate commitment when he decided to create the Home Improvement division. He invested in a computer management system which would be helpful to his staff and future clients alike. The system keeps track of past jobs, a benefit for prospective clients interested in referrals to past jobs. Aggeler knew the division should be responsible to all kinds of building projects. Exceptional service, competitive pricing and top of the line materials are key to their success. The Home Improvement division carries the most sought after and recognized products in the building industry, though the store and Keller plumbing, lighting, and floor-care departments. The Home Improvement experts can describe their applications to you in their showroom, and if you are interested in making a commitment, they will come to your home to give you an estimate.

Although kitchens and baths are their specialty, John's Lumber Home Improvements also handles additions, porches, and basements. And for major projects, like roof work and deck installation, or your system design, they are ready to get you in. Choosing the perfect best support to your work.

Armed with latest data, local women reach out to decrease breast cancer

By Amy Andreou Miller
Special Writer

Statistics from the Wayne County Health Department show that the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods have one of the highest rates of breast cancer cases and deaths in Michigan: about every 16 days, a Grosse Pointe/Harper Woods woman dies of breast cancer.

A group of local women are doing something to reverse those statistics.

They are training to become speakers on the subject so they can communicate to their friends, neighbors, family members and strangers, the importance of maintaining breast health and how best to do so, as well as the possible factors that appear to be putting local women at risk. Grosse Pointe Shores resident Alyssa Mertz and Grosse Pointe Woods resident Judy Rashid are two women instrumental in the movement to reach out to other women.

Mertz has converted the basement of her generous Lakeshore home into a training center for women to learn about this subject so that they can talk to others about it.

"Personally, I have so many friends and acquaintances with breast cancer. I felt as if there was nothing I could do. Now I'm doing something," said Mertz in an upbeat tone, confident she can make a difference on this important issue.

Rashid is one of the most prolific speakers on the subject, and is willing to meet women's groups just about anywhere, in order to give her presentation.

And she has. Private homes, churches and businesses are the most common locations where she has set up her slide show and spoken.

Rashid and Mertz even spoke to a women's group in a bar in Anchor Bay. They were invited by a bar owner who serious and educational information that Mertz and Rashid were imparting.

Nothing wrong with that, say Mertz and Rashid.

"Our presentation is not ever found, and if no new treatments were developed, but all we did was follow the three most important guidelines, then we would reduce breast cancer deaths by 30 percent," Mertz said.

Those three guidelines are:

- Women (age 40 and older) should have a mammogram every year.

- Women of all ages should have an annual clinical breast exam by a health professional.

- Women should practice breast self-examination monthly or more often.

Their approximately 40-minute presentation has been warmly received by a number of local women's groups, such as sorority alumnae organizations, gardening clubs, church groups, women's tennis leagues, etc.

All sorts of groups like these have found the value of taking time out from their usual agenda of playing a sport, playing cards, Bible study, or what have you, to hear this important interactive speech and question and answer session.

"Frankly, right now, we're looking for more invitations for us to speak about breast cancer and breast health awareness," Mertz said. "We don't just speak to 'official women's groups.' Even if someone wants to merely gather a dozen of their women friends at their houses, we would come to speak to them."

And the opportunity exists

She likes to point out how much women can do to catch breast cancer early, and what an enormous difference early detection can make.

7-8:30 a.m. — Information, packet pick up and warm-up

8:30 a.m. — 5K race for men

9:10 a.m. — One-mile fun walk

Expected number of participants

About 18,000 women and men are expected to participate in the event, which is Michigan's largest race, said race chair Jane Hoey, a former Grosse Pointe resident who now resides in St. Clair Shores.

More than 750 breast cancer survivors are expected to attend the 1998 event, according to Hoey, who is an employee of the Karmanos Cancer Institute.

"These survivors are our neighbors, co-workers, friends and family members. They're the proof that we can make a difference in this disease," she said.

The next training will be a two-part session on Monday, May 18 and Monday, June 1, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Mertz's house.

For more information, call Mertz at home at (313) 885-5313 or via fax at (313) 881-4284; or contact Maureen Meldrum at the Karmanos Cancer Institute at (810) 294-4430, or via fax at (810) 294-4413, or via e-mail at meldrumm@karmanos.org.

"We're much more organized now in our training approach," she said.

The training was developed by members of the community outreach division of the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute.

This institute, which is located downtown near the Detroit Medical Center, was created when Peter Karmanos Jr., chairman of Compuware Corp., donated $15 million — the largest contribution ever in Michigan to fight cancer — in memory of his late wife who died of breast cancer in 1990 at the age of 46.

Against the white walls of Mertz's large basement recreation room, the educational slide show is being projected in several directions. "Women in training" are divided in groups, each practicing giving the slide show, and answering the difficult questions that women have been asking about what may be placing them at such a high risk.

The speeches are being well-received according to some who have been in their audiences.

The speech group formed as a result of, and a part of, the Health Action Team of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods (HAT).

HAT formed about two years ago, when a group of residents working in conjunction with members of the Wayne County Health Department collected and evaluated statistics on about 41 illnesses and diseases that are afflicting and/or claiming the lives of Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods residents.

Of the 41 illnesses and diseases tracked, the HAT group chose the issue of breast cancer to address first because of its high incidence and death rates among local women.

Following HAT's selection of a focus issue, it then marshaled the best available medical resources in the area to work as its partner to rally Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods residents to action.

HAT members hope to continue to speak to as many local women as possible.

Early detection would save the lives of 10 Eastside women each year.

Jewish council hosts lecture by author

The Grosse Pointe Jewish Council invites the public to attend a talk by Dr. Mark I. Rosen on his new book, "Thank You for Being Such a Pain: Spiritual Guidance for Dealing with Difficult People."

Rosen will speak at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 14, at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, 17150 Maumee.

Whether it's a neighbor, relative or co-worker, difficult people can cause us minor annoyance or even major distress. Rosen takes a spiritual perspective, seeing each difficult person as someone who has the potential to help us with our own spiritual development.

Drawing from a variety of philosophies, including Jewish and Eastern mysticism, Rosen describes what makes someone difficult, why certain people evoke such strong reactions in us, and how difficult relationships can actually help us to develop self-knowledge and cultivate kindness, compassion and self-control.

Rosen is an adjunct professor of management at Bentley College in Waltham, Mass. He earned a Ph.D. in industrial relations from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Rosen has served as a consultant to nonprofit organizations and businesses and is the founder of WorkWisdom, a management consulting practice.

The event is free, and refreshments will be served.

The Grosse Pointe Jewish Council works to preserve and promote the Jewish religion and culture for the benefit of its members and the community of Metropolitan Detroit's east side, and offers an educational and social forum for its members.

For more information on this event, or about the Grosse Pointe Jewish Council, call (313) 882-8700.

Passover — our universal journey

By Roger Skully
Lay Cantor

We are all familiar with the story of the Exodus from Egypt. Ever since the night of the Exodus, Jews have celebrated a supper before the Lord. In time a special ritual evolved called the "seder" which means "order" for this ritual dinner.

Each Passover we are instructed to retell the story of this transition from slavery to freedom through the use of a special book called the Haggadah which in Hebrew means to tell a story. Throughout the years new interpretations, features and rites have been added.

Often each community develops its own individual Haggadah to reflect its own concerns and needs. The basic essence of the story and its symbols has remained essentially the same over the last several thousand years.

The seder ritual has found its way into many Christian communities and churches as a way of identification with Jesus and his Jewish roots. Scholars believe that the Last Supper was the Passover Seder observance.

A series of four questions are asked by the youngest child at the table. They begin: Why is this night different than all other nights? The rest of the evening answers this question in simplicity and exquisite detail depending upon the inquisitiveness of each person at the table.

We eat unleavened bread, matzo, drink four ritual glasses of wine and discuss our hopes, dreams and aspirations. Young children are entertained with songs and games which illustrate the story of the Exodus at each one's level of understanding. It is a complex ritual taking place on many levels.

In every generation the story of the Exodus is a paradigm for personal redemption, addressing the spiritual strivings of that generation.

It is necessary to remember slavery to appreciate freedom. We are urged by our sages to consider this passage from slavery to freedom as though it was a personal journey undertaken by each of us. Indeed, each of us has traveled from our own constrictions and slaveries toward that precious but often elusive prize — freedom. Leaving our own personal Egypt involves trust in self and our ability to effect change in the world making it a better place for our children and all of Mankind.

Next year may all of us be free. We wish all of our friends and neighbors a joyous and liberating holiday season.

Amen and amen.

Way of the Cross in the Streets

Local churches will hold their fifth annual "Way of the Cross in the Streets" on Good Friday, April 10. A procession through Detroit and Grosse Pointe will commemorate the death of Jesus on the cross and to recognize continuing current-day suffering such as poverty, drug and alcohol abuse, violence, unemployment, hunger, homelessness, pollution of the environment and more.

Those who wish to participate in the hour-long procession should meet at 3:30 p.m. Friday, April 10, at St. Columba Episcopal Church, Jefferson and Manistique in Detroit.

Music at Memorial series welcomes one of its own

The Grosse Pointe Memorial Church will welcome coloratura soprano Elizabeth Parcels for a recital in the historic church at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 19.

Parcels will sing opera arias and songs of Bellini, Donizetti and Mozart. Alden Schell will accompany her on the piano.

Parcels' voice was originally discovered in the youth choirs of Memorial Church. She began taking private voice lessons at age 16 with Elsie Hisselmann, and later graduated from the Interlochen Arts Academy.

Elizabeth Parcels

She gained international attention for her performance in the Herbert Wernick production of Offenbach's "Les Contes D'Hoffmann" at the Frankfurt Main Opera. In April 1996, Parcels was invited to participate in the concert that opened the new Detroit Opera House.

Parcels won the Metropolitan Opera Council National Final Auditions at the Metropolitan Opera, and from there launched her European operatic career. A longtime resident of Hamburg, Germany, she has performed in opera houses in Augsburg, Weissbaden and Frankfurt, Germany, and has given recitals in such cities as Boston, San Francisco, Rome and Paris.

Parcels has made three CDs with guitarist Felix Justen.

The concert at Memorial Church is co-sponsored by Tuesday Musicale, Detroit's historic club for musicians.

Tickets are $15; $10 for students and seniors. An afterglow reception will follow the concert in Fellowship Hall. The church is located at 16 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms.

First English Lutheran Church plans Holy Week services

Holy Week plans at First English Evangelical Lutheran Church include a Maundy Thursday service, with communion, at 7:30 p.m., April 9; and two Good Friday services — at 1 p.m. and a Tenebrae service at 7:30 p.m.

On Easter Sunday, a sunrise service will be held at 7 a.m., with communion.

The festival service, with communion, will be at 11 a.m. The church is located at 800 Vernier in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Promoting literacy

The Grosse Pointe chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society International in cooperation with the Rotary recently presented a Promote Literacy Program at Barnes school. Presenters were Sister Marie Schoenlein, director, and Sister Marlene Lieder, program coordinator and assistant, of the Dominican Adult Literacy Center in Detroit.

The 10-year-old Dominican Literacy Center's purpose is to help adults who lack basic skills to "improve their abilities to meet challenges of everyday living" by providing one-to-one tutoring service in reading, writing and basic math.

In Michigan, one out of 10 drivers cannot read street signs and about 200,000 Detroit residents are functionally illiterate.

A Walk-a-Thon on Saturday, Sept. 19, will be the center's major fundraiser.

Among those involved in the recent Promote Literacy Program, are, from left, Doris Zenn, Sister Marie Schoenlein and Sister Marlene Lieder.

The Dominican Adult Literacy Center, 9400 Courville in Detroit, offers free tutoring in reading, writing and basic math as well as a summer tutor training workshop on Friday and Saturday, June 5 and 6. For more information, call (313) 882-4853.

How to become an organ donor

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan (NKFMI) has issued a challenge to citizens to sign organ donor cards during National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week, April 20-28.

There is a desperate shortage of organs in Michigan. According to the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act, anyone who is 18 or older may become an organ donor when he or she dies. (Minors may become donors with parent's or guardian's consent.)

More than 38,000 Americans are waiting for new kidneys and thousands more need hearts, livers, lungs or pancreas transplants to survive. In addition, cornea and other tissue transplants improve the quality of life for those in need.

Organ donation does not interfere with customary funeral arrangements or alter the body's appearance. All major religions support organ and tissue donation and consider it the ultimate charitable gift. When one donates an organ, he or she is matched with people on the national waiting list according to blood and tissue type and medical need.

You can join the challenge to sign the donor cards and save lives. Contact the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan and request a free donor card. A decision to donate one's organs should be discussed with your family because consent is necessary at the time of donation.

"Donating organs and tissue can be comforting to your family and a symbolic way to continue life," said Dan Carney, executive director of the NKFMI.

Is it spring allergies?Or is it the common cold?

The milder-than-normal temperatures Michigan experienced this winter, due to El Nino, may wreak havoc on allergy sufferers this spring.

Some people may even find themselves suffering allergies for the first time in their lives, warns Dr. Hugh Mackechnie, a specialist in allergy and clinical immunology at Henry Ford Medical Center-Pierson Clinic in Grosse Pointe Farms.

How do you know whether your problem is allergies or a cold?

"While the symptoms are not always cut-and-dry, some basic guidelines may help you distinguish allergies from a cold or sinus infection," Mackechnie said. Guidelines include:

Allergies

- Mucus discharge from the nose tends to be clear
- No fever
- Symptoms are more recurrent and more persistent over a several-week period
- Symptoms are relieved by an over-the-counter antihistamine such as Benadryl, or by a prescription antihistamine.

Common cold

- Nasal mucus is cloudy or discolored
- Fever symptoms clear up in about a week
- Symptoms are responsive to an over-the-counter decongestant, such as Sudafed.

In some cases, Mackechnie said, a common cold may also lead to a sinus infection and allergic individuals are even more prone. A family physician can diagnose your problem and refer you to an allergy specialist, if necessary.

This year, spring allergy season will start earlier and last longer. The timing of symptom onset helps an allergy specialist determine the culprit. Trees will begin budding by the end of March and continue to bud through mid-May. Just about that time, grass allergies will set in and last through July.

Higher winter temperatures also mean that the mold count has been higher. A rainy spring could worsen problems for people with mold sensitivity.

If you suffer from spring allergies, Mackechnie offers several recommendations:

- Limit the time you spend outdoors during peak pollen hours (5 to 10 a.m.)
- Shut windows in your house and car and use the air conditioning.
- Minimize morning activity when pollen count is higher.
- Stay indoors on windy days because dust and pollen are blown about.
- Don't hang sheets or clothing to dry outside.
- Minimize yard work duties.

For more information about allergy remedies, contact the Allergy Clinic at Henry Ford Medical Center-Pierson Clinic at (313) 343-5900.

Class is for babysitters

Based on the premise that "better sitters today make better parents tomorrow," Bon Secours Hospital will offer a SafeSitter course from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Tuesday, April 14, and Wednesday, April 15, in the Bon Secours Hospital Pediatric Day Room (third floor). The cost is $30 a person.

The two-day program, designed for 11-to-13-year-olds, teaches them to be medically responsible, creative and attentive baby-sitters. Students practice role playing and learn about basic child care, safety precautions, rescue breathing techniques, care for a choking infant and child, recognizing emergencies and calling for emergency help.

For more information or to preregister, call Bon Secours Community Health Education at (810) 779-7900 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

Nursing center auxiliary plans flea market

The Bon Secours Nursing Care Center Auxiliary will begin spring cleaning by hosting its sixth "Mammoth Flea Market" from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. Saturday, April 18, at the Bon Brae Center Gymnasium, 22300 Bon Brae (at Lakeland and Jefferson), behind the Bon Secours Nursing Care Center. Proceeds from the sale will assist with ongoing projects for the center.

Garage sale enthusiasts will have a large variety of items to choose from -- small appliances, furniture, costume jewelry, pottery, china, silver, children's clothing, toys and more.

To make contributions or to get more information, call the Bon Secours Gift Shop East at (810) 779-7018.

La Leche League meets

The La Leche League of South Macomb/Eastern Wayne will meet at 9 a.m. Monday, April 13 and at 7 p.m. Monday, April 20.

Pregnant and nursing mothers who are seeking information and support for breastfeeding are invited. Children and nursing babies are always welcome. For more information, call (313) 882-0407 or (313) 881-1116.

Bon Secours plans program on preventing osteoporosis

Bon Secours Hospital will sponsor a free lecture about osteoporosis and the prevention of bone fractures from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday, April 25, in the hospital's Connelly Auditorium. The seminar will be led by a health care team consisting of Bon Secours physicians, a radiologist, pharmacist, dietitian and physical therapists.

Learn some simple steps about maintaining strong, healthy bones -- from increasing dietary calcium to regular exercise -- and you might "cut-smart osteoporosis" before it gets the best of you. Find out all about the signs, symptoms and management of osteoporosis by attending this free seminar.

For more information or to register, call Bon Secours Community Health Education at (810) 779-7900 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Not all professionals know how to treat addiction

By Jeff and Debra Jay
Special Writers

Dear Jeff & Debra:

Recently, a woman sitting next to me at a business meeting asked me, "How does someone find a qualified professional for alcoholism and drug addiction counseling?" As I began to answer her, it occurred to me that there must be many more people asking the same question. Please help me inform your readers on this issue by printing my letter.

As I explained to the woman sitting next to me, people looking for treatment can contact the Michigan Certification Board for Addiction Professionals (MCBAP), located in Lansing by calling (517) 371-2001 to verify whether a counselor is certified in the field of addiction therapy.

MCBAP is the state recognized organization that approves certification for persons providing substance abuse counseling and prevention services in Michigan. The primary purpose of the board is to establish competency standards, policies, procedures and guidelines for certifications of addiction professionals. The board is responsible for identifying, approving and supporting training programs designed to enhance the knowledge and skill of addiction professionals. Ultimately, the board performs all necessary activities to promote and protect the welfare and interest of the general public and the recipients of substance abuse services.

MCBAP certification demonstrates to the public and to the consumer of services that a professional has met standardized requirements and is competent to provide these specialized services. Everyone seeking help for addiction to alcohol or other drugs should ask treatment agencies if they have Certified Addiction Counselors (C.A.C.) on staff.

Readers interested in additional information may contact the MCBAP office at 2500 Mt. Hope Rd., Lansing, MI; 517-371-2001; www.MCBAP@sprynet.com.

-V. Gail Simpson
MCBAP Board Member

Dear Gail:

Thanks for sharing this important information. Working with alcoholics and drug addicts is a specialized field and requires specific training. Many family and marriage counselors, psychologists, doctors, social workers and psychiatrists do not have adequate training in the addiction field. It is, therefore, crucial for alcoholics and addicts to seek out professionals who are certified as addiction counselors when seeking treatment.

Dear Jeff & Debra:

My husband allows our 15-year-old son to drink beer at home. He never gives our son more than one beer at a time and never lets him get drunk. My husband insists that he is teaching our son to be a responsible drinker so that he won't overindulge when he goes away to college. Part of me thinks this makes sense and another part of me feels very uncomfortable when I see him drink. What would you say about this?

-Questioning the Wisdom

Dear Questioning:

Your husband is teaching your son to disregard the law and that does not teach responsibility. So while your husband may believe he is teaching responsibility, he is, in reality, only teaching your son to be a drinker.

Your son is at increased risk for alcoholism by using alcohol at such a young age. The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism reports that people who begin drinking before age 15 have a 40 percent chance of becoming alcoholic. Those who begin drinking at 17 have a 24.5 percent chance of becoming alcoholic, and those who wait until age 21 have about a 10 percent chance.

Show this column to your husband and initiate a discussion about why your son should abstain from alcohol. Explain that alcohol is a drug and children should not be using mood-altering drugs of any kind. Then you and your husband should have the same conversation with your son.

If your husband resists, talk to an employee assistance professional at your workplace or the student assistance professional at your son's school.

Dear Readers,

Because of the huge demand for Take Charge!, the home education program for families, friends and employers concerned about someone with an alcohol or other drug problem, SAC2 has donated another copy of the audio/video program to the Grosse Pointe public libraries. If you know someone who may have an addiction problem — or you'd just like to be more educated about addiction, intervention and recovery — go to your library or Grosse Pointe church and check it out.

Also, log on to our new website at www.familyhelp.org. The site offers information and resources to families facing addiction and looking for help.

Jeff Jay, a native of Grosse Pointe, is director of program development for Brighton Hospital and the president of the McGovern Family Foundation in Washington, D.C. Debra Erickson Jay is an interventionist and the managing director of "Take Charge! America," a fundraising drive that places educational materials for the families of alcohol and drug abusers in libraries and churches throughout the country.

Jump Rope for Heart

Kyle South of Monteth Elementary School recently participated — along with more than 300 other students from seven other Grosse Pointe elementary schools — in the third annual Jump Rope for Heart event at Grosse Pointe South High School. Students jumped rope, shot hoops and danced for seven hours while raising funds for the American Heart Association.

Elementary students in Grosse Pointe raised more than $18,000 for the AHA and its fight against heart disease and stroke.

Bon Secours promotes healthy hearts through education

Bon Secours Hospital will offer a HeartHealth Essentials program to educate individuals on the important aspects of maintaining good heart-health and reducing the risk of coronary heart disease. It is estimated that one in four adults has some form of cardiovascular disease. HeartHealth Essentials provides comprehensive information on heart healthy lifestyle factors, including cardiovascular disease risk factors, low-fat eating, exercise and physical activity and stress management.

The class will be from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursdays, April 16 and 23 or June 11 and 18, in the Bon Brae Center Classroom, 22300 Bon Brae in St. Clair Shores. The cost is $40 a person, which includes the HeartHealth Essentials Book.

For more information or to preregister, call Bon Secours Community Health Education at (810) 779-7900 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

St. John Home Care program gets award

Jill Naud of Detroit, a registered nurse at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, was getting a little tired of her stressful job in a hospital setting. She wanted something a little different — something that would allow her more flexible hours. That's why she became involved in the St. John Health System Home Care Mentoring Program.

"I really like the idea of the one-on-one care a nurse can give in a patient's own home," Naud said.

The Home Care Mentoring Program is designed to mentor experienced nurses into the home care market, a rapidly growing field in health care, and create vacancies for new interns in which the organization already had an investment.

"The program was created to bridge the gap between hospital-based nursing and home care nursing," said Lisa Samerdyke of Clinton Township, human resource representative for St. John Health System Home Care Services.

The program received an Arbor Award for Excellence. The award, sponsored by the Arbor Consulting Group Inc. and Eastern Michigan University, honors the highest achievement in human resources through the application of innovative programs and practices.

The program is a solution to several business problems: • The home health care industry is growing and needs increased staffing.

• The supply of nurses is large and turnover in hospitals is low, leading to a higher unemployment for new nursing graduates.

• Hospital-based nurse intern programs will not continue to benefit hospitals if there are fewer regular unemployment opportunities for interns upon graduation.

The program addresses the business issues by educating hospital-based nurses on the benefits of a career in home care; filling any vacancies in the hospital with candidates who already completed internships in the hospital; and pairing the supply of experienced nurses with the demand for them in a home-based setting.

"This program has proven to be a success," Samerdyke said. "Other hospitals have sought assistance from St. John in establishing a program such as this."

By taking part in the program, Naud was shown educational videos and had the opportunity to accompany a home care nurse to a patient's home.

"I was able to see first hand everything the nurse does," she says. "I like the repetition of having the same patients because it allows you to form a rapport with them."

Alzheimer's Association offers Safe Return program

Constance M. Barber will discuss the Detroit chapter of the Alzheimer's Association's "Safe Return" program at a Caregivers Support Group meeting from 1 to 2:30 p.m. on Monday, April 20 at the Bon Secours Nursing Care Center, 26001 Jefferson in St. Clair Shores.

The meeting is open to the public.

Alzheimer's disease robs four million Americans of their ability to recognize familiar places and faces, according to the Alzheimer's Association. Many cannot remember their own names and addresses. They may become disoriented and lost, either in their own neighborhoods or far from home. As many as seven of 10 people with Alzheimer's disease will wander off and get lost sometime. Many do so repeatedly.

Barber's presentation will discuss the Safe Return program — designed to help police and private citizens identify, locate and return to safety individuals who are memory impaired. Program materials will be provided and a question-and-answer session is included.

Registration is not required, but participants are asked to check in at the front desk in the main lobby. For more information, call Sharon Bogucki at (810) 779-7032.

Charter a tall ship and sail the Great Lakes

"This is what a vacation is all about... watching someone else work."

That observation was made as we were all looting about the decks of the tall ship Manitou on a fall afternoon, watching 22-year-old crew member Sarah Carr scraping, sanding and oiling the teak in a rowboat that hung out over the side.

Actually, that was not an accurate description of this Great Lakes trip. As anyone can tell you who has ever sailed on a genuine "tall ship," — in this case, a 114-foot gaff-rigged schooner — there is plenty of work for all, particularly when it is time to raise anchor or to hoist and lower sails. There are no power windlasses, so it was up to the three-member crew to do the work with as much help from passengers as they could muster.

Fortunately, the 12 passengers on this trip were more than willing to pitch in. They even helped wash dishes.

We were on a four-day trip aboard the Manitou which was to take us to three very different places in the Great Lakes — the upscale village of Harbor Springs, to sleepy Beaver Island and to tranquil Catshead Bay.

We would experience dramatic weather changes, typical of early fall, and so would be continually putting on or taking off layers of clothing. And we would enjoy many somnolent hours under sail. Traverse Tall Ships has been offering overnight sailing trips on the Manitou in the Great Lakes since 1991. The ship is based in Northport, a nifty little village on the Leelanau Peninsula, just 45 minutes north of Traverse City. Trips vary from three to six days.

This trip was after Labor Day, so we knew weather would be iffy. But we were prepared. We had packed the foul-weather gear, boots, sweat shirts, T-shirts, shorts and tennis. We would need them all before it was over.

The trip began on Friday night in Traverse City. We checked in at the offices of the Traverse Tall Ship Co. and received instructions to drive up the road to Northport, have dinner in town, and board the ship between 7 and 9 p.m. We would stay overnight on the ship before setting sail the next morning.

This turned out to be a good idea because there are many things about living aboard a sailing ship in tight quarters that one needs to learn. That first night was all about adapting to one's quarters.

The Manitou can accommodate 24 people in 12 double cabins — very sparse cabins. Each cabin has a pair of built-in bunks, a few pegs on the wall and a dishpan to be used for shaving, washing your face and such. Wool blankets keep you cozy.

The heads (nautical term for toilets) are up on deck... meaning, that if you have to use the bathroom during the night, you have to find a light, then climb up eight stairs to the deck, navigate your way to one of the two heads and then remember how to flush those weird marine toilets.

TRAVEL TRENDS

By Cynthia Boal-
Janssens

The next morning we found coffee and hot banana muffins on deck and we were beginning to feel at home — except for the issue of showers.

The showers are in the heads, and we are warned by Capt. Dave McGinnis not to use them before breakfast because of the heavy demand for the toilets and the fact that there isn't much hot water available. All of the water is heated with the wood stove that is also used for cooking.

Our first meal aboard was a lavish breakfast that featured french toast, cherry pecan sausage (a Leelanau specialty), melon and juice.

Cereals, homemade granola and fresh fruit were also available. We were to discover that our chef Kathleen was able to work miracles on the wood stove. Everything was homemade, including all the baked goods, and the food was extremely healthy, bordering on vegetarian.

We left Northport at 9:30 a.m. and headed out into Grand Traverse Bay. Soon the deck crew — first mate Sarah and deckhands Dave and Sarah No. 2 — were organizing us into teams to hoist the sails. This ship has six sails — the topsail, the foresail, the mainsail, two jibs and a staysail — and each requires a different set of tasks. The first time around we all stumbled a bit, but the sails did get raised and we were on our way.

We soon discovered that from now on there will be little to do other than to chat, snooze or read and this took some attitude adjustment.

Most of us left busy jobs or homes to make this trip and we had to learn to kick back. "The first morning I felt like I was a gerbil who needed a wheel," said Kim Lyne, 42, of Okemos. "I felt rather confined and I needed something to do."

Most of us spent the morning getting to know the few passengers: Dr. John Kuehn and his wife Jeanne were from Ohio. Sarah and Mike Litch were from New Hampshire. Larry and Betty Shannon were from Kalamazoo, and had been given the trip by their children as a Christmas present. Gloria Houdeshell and Janice Gray were also from Michigan, as were Kim and Dr. Jim Lyne. The age span was from 42 to 70. For everyone but us, it was the first windjammer experience.

At noon, lunch was served on deck: succotash soup, apple/broccoli salad, melt-in-your-mouth baguettes and velvety brownies. We were going to get used to this great food real fast.

The day passed quickly. In late afternoon we approached Harbor Springs, a yachting town with many upscale shops. After about seven tacks to get us in just the right position, we dropped anchor — 90 feet of chain in 25 feet of water.

We learned the jobs involved in taking down sails and furling them properly. However, by the time we reached town — transported by the ship's inflatable dinghy — the shops were closed. That certainly saved on the credit cards.

Dinner aboard was at 6 p.m. and several people went back to town for walks while others opted to stay on board for a quiet evening. The ship does not serve or sell alcoholic beverages, but passengers are free to bring their own liquor, beer, wine or soda and keep it in large coolers on deck.

The next day the pattern was similar and we were now familiar with the deck routines and could participate to whatever extent we wished. This was also a good time to chat with the captain, Dave McGinnis, 33.

Capt. Dave was the ship's first skipper, from 1991-1994. He then went to Maine to work on another windjammer, and returned to Michigan this season to take the helm of the Manitou again.

"The tall ship experience here is not as intense as sailing on the ocean," he explained. "It is really soft adventure. We can encounter rain and some heavy seas, but mostly we can stay away from bad weather."

Itineraries are not preset on the Manitou, he explains. Each morning he decides where he is heading, based on which way the wind is blowing. In fact, on our third day out he did not decide our destination until after noon. Anchorages might include Drummond Island, Mackinac Island, Power Island (a state park in Grand Traverse Bay) and the undeveloped Manitou islands.

"We usually sail six to 10 hours a day," Dave explained. "This is what it's all about so if we can sail, we do." On our second night, we anchored at Beaver Island, where we had a good time poking around the small town and tipping a few longnecks at its renowned Shamrock Bar. The next night we anchored in Catshead Bay where we were able to stroll the deserted beaches of Leelanau State Park and hunt for Petoskey stones (the state stone of Michigan). Here, several passengers ventured out in the ship's two kayaks and in its wood rowing dinghy.

Sailing trips on the Manitou are either three days ($349-$399 per person), four days ($499) or five days ($599). This summer the company will offer one six-day trip (August 3-8/$899) that explores the North Channel of northern Lake Huron.

Early in the season, the company offers two family trips during which the usual age limit (16) is lowered to age eight. During the trip, special children's activities are arranged, including scavenger hunts and knot-tying. The price for these three-day trips is $349 for adults and $99 per child.

And for those who want to seriously learn to sail, the ship offers a four-day "Sail Trainer" trip (Sept. 2-5), during which passengers are organized into crews and actually work the ship, learning navigation, piloting and ship handling.

Two very popular trips each year are those that begin or end at Mackinac Island. These trips are one-way, with passengers traveling one leg via motor coach.

The Manitou's season begins in early June and extends through early October. Traverse City is a five-hour drive from Chicago and about four hours from Detroit. There is commercial air service into Traverse City via Detroit, Chicago or Minneapolis.

"We offer a viable option for Midwesterners to have a sailing vacation. They don't have to fly to Maine or to the Bahamas to have a windjammer experience," said Adam Begley, promotion manager. "We are the only ship doing this here and so, while our prices are just a bit higher than those in Maine, people do not have to travel a long distance to get here."

Passengers booking a trip on the Manitou should be aware of some of its discomforts. The cabins are small and one of you will have to sleep on an upper bunk; there are only a couple of places on board to get away from rain (the galley/dining room and a reading area in the mid-cabin); the toilets are a bit uncomfortable and showers tricky to take. Also, there are no deck chairs, only some unusual stadium-type seats that involve buckling and unbuckling. Most of us opted to sit on the deck, with our backs propped against the cabin.

The Traverse Tall Ship Co. is owned by Dick Budinger of Traverse City. The Manitou is not actually an old restored ship. It was built in 1983 in New Hampshire specifically for windjammer passenger cruises. It has passed U.S. Coast Guard inspections.

The company also owns the tall ship Malabar, a 105-foot schooner which offers day-sails from Traverse City and operates as a floating bed-and-breakfast at night ($175 per couple, including a sunset sail). It can accommodate 21 overnight guests in eight staterooms. It can carry 46 passengers on its day-sails.

For information and reservations on either ship, contact the Traverse Tall Ship Co. at (800) 678-0383 or check out its web site at www.traverse.com/tallship; e-mail: tallship@traverse.com. The brochure hotline is (800) 968-8800.

NHLBI develops programs to teach kids heart-healthy habits

One of the most important health advances in recent years has been an improved understanding of when heart disease begins to develop. Once thought of as an affliction of the elderly, heart disease is now known to start early in life.

Research supported by the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute (NHLBI) shows that risk factors that affect the development of heart disease in men and women can begin before age 20. One such study found fatty streaks and deposits in the blood vessels of smokers with bad cholesterol profiles — who were only 15 years old.

Studies also indicate that, as children age, their physical activity and eating habits often change for the worse. For instance, surveys show that most teens do not engage in regular vigorous activity and that only half of high school students are enrolled in a physical education class. By contrast, 70 percent of 12-year-olds engage in vigorous physical activity.

Once formed, unhealthy habits tend to persist into adulthood and are hard to break. NHLBI-supported researchers have been investigating why children's habits change and how to encourage them to adopt and keep heart-healthy behaviors.

One of their many findings was that children need to have an environment that supports and reinforces messages about heart health. Children also need to connect healthy behaviors to feeling good — and to having fun.

Many of these findings led to the creation of two special heart-health programs aimed at elementary schools. Called CATCH and SPARK, the programs fit in with current curricula and are easy for schools to use. They also have an inclusive, noncompetitive, non-gender-specific approach to physical activity that keeps more

Here's a closer look at each program:

• CATCH stands for Child and Adolescent Trial for Cardiovascular Health. The NHLBI-supported trial was the largest school-based health promotion trial ever conducted. The main phase lasted from 1991-94 and involved about 100 schools in California, Louisiana, Minnesota and Texas.

CATCH achieved its main goals, which were to reduce the saturated fat and total fat content of school lunches and to increase the amount of moderate to vigorous activity in physical education classes.

CATCH has four main components — classroom curricula, PE classes, food service and family involvement.

Taught by classroom teachers, the CATCH curricula covers nutrition and physical education and uses goal-setting, role models, and fun activities that teach children new skills and values. For example, the third grade curriculum teaches good health through stories of the adventures of Hearty Heart and Friends. Fourth and fifth grade curricula let children prepare healthful snacks and rate foods and activities as "go," "slow," or "whoa."

The PE classes use aerobic games and other activities. PE specialists and teachers receive training on how to involve students in physical activities, which stress skills development and feeling good.

The food service component helps school cafeterias prepare healthier and tastier meals. Staff are shown how to modify recipes to reduce saturated fat, total fat, cholesterol and sodium. The cafeterias also have materials such as posters that promote the heart-healthy meals to students and staff.

The family involvement component includes special school "fun nights" with games and food booths, as well as activities children and parents can do at home.

• SPARK stands for Sports, Play and Active Recreation for Kids. SPARK is a physical activity program for elementary schools. In SPARK, elite athletes do not dominate the play. Students do not wait in line or sit out for long periods. In SPARK, when a batter hits the softball, the whole team runs the bases.

SPARK's curricula help children set goals and reduce the time they spend in passive activities, such as watching television. The curricula are easily implemented by PE specialists and classroom teachers.

SPARK was tested in the San Diego area from 1989 through 1994. More than 2,000 students, teachers and administrators participated in the study. Results showed that SPARK increased student activity in PE classes by as much as 70 percent, compared with that of control groups with untrained teachers.

The increased activity led to improved sports skills and higher fitness levels. Equally important, children liked the SPARK version of PE.

Both CATCH and SPARK are being offered to schools at a low cost. But schools don't have to wait to get one or both programs before making use of their approaches. Materials from the programs were recently distributed to 30,000 third, fourth and fifth grade teachers, as well as to 500 local park and recreation agencies which have after-school, summer and other youth programs.

The effort, called "JumpSTART — Get Active, Have Fun, Be Healthy," is a collaborative project of the NHLBI, the National Recreation and Park Association, and Scholastic magazine. The JumpSTART materials include a teacher's guide and a take-home "backpack stuffer" with ideas for family fun.

South lacrosse team looks in midseason form

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Usually it takes a team a few games to get into the swing of a new season.

That wasn't the case with Grosse Pointe South's boys lacrosse squad as it opened the season with three victories last week.

"We looked like we just came off our (state) semifinal game," said coach Gary Donohue. "It didn't look like we'd been off since last spring."

The Blue Devils, who advanced to the state Class B semifinals last year, opened the season with a 13-1 romp over Notre Dame.

"We took it to them every game," Donohue said. "We expected to be strong because our first line attack and our first line defense both returned intact."

"Our goalie, C.J. Lee, who was good last year is even better this season."

The opener also featured an excellent performance by the top midfield unit of Matt Moran, Brad Balesky and Chris Provenzano.

Adam Whitehead led the South scoring with two goals and five assists. Jon Bayko had four goals and two assists, Balesky had three goals, Moran collected a goal and three assists, Charlie Norton had two goals and two assists and defenseman Thatcher Sloan had three assists.

Clint Carpenter had the other Blue Devil goal, while Provenzano had two assists and Jordan Ellis and Ben Weaver each collected one. Andrew Wrosch also played well for South.

Moran, Balesky, Whitehead, Weaver, Carpenter, Dave Bilbrey and Jeff Maxwell all played on South's hockey team, which played in the Class A championship game this year.

"I love what hockey does for lacrosse," Donohue said. "The kids come in ready to play. There's no layover time."

The Blue Devils followed their victory over the Irish with a 10-3 win against Notre Dame Prep.

Moran had an outstanding game with four goals and four assists, while Whitehead was close behind with three goals and three assists.

Bayko collected two goals and an assist, while Norton had the other South goal. Balesky had three assists and Carpenter picked up a pair.

"We started strong and played well until the third period. Then our offense went dead," Donohue said. "We started playing down to the level of our opponents so I brought the kids to the sideline for a talk. We came back strong with two goals in the fourth quarter."

"We had a great game from our first attack line. They picked up everything Moran couldn't get."

South showed just how far it has come in the last year with an 8-7 victory over U-D Jesuit.

"That's a Class A school that dominated us last year," Donohue said. "This year we dominated much of the game, especially in the first half."

The Blue Devils held a 5-2 halftime lead, but the Cubs came on strong in the second half and tied the game at 5-5 before South came on to win. Whitehead had three goals and three assists for the second straight game and Moran had a goal and five assists. Norton scored two goals, Bayko and Balesky each had a goal and an assist and Weaver collected three assists.

"Weaver was very instrumental in this win," Donohue said. "He's relatively new to lacrosse, but he's very athletic and will move up to one of our top lines."

Donohue cited two keys in the victory over U-D Jesuit.

"Our defense, including Lee in goal, was outstanding and we spread the scoring," he said. "U-D had a relentless attack in the third and fourth quarters, but we held them off."

South is idle until Thursday, April 23 when it hosts L'Anse Creuse in a 5 p.m. game at Brownell Middle School.

Blue Devils set net sights high

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

The standards are going to be higher this year for Grosse Pointe South's boys tennis team.

"Normally anything in the top 10 is considered a great year, but not this year," said coach Tom Berschback before the Blue Devils' Macomb Area Conference opener with Chippewa Valley this week.

South has finished in the top 10 in the state meet every year since 1988 and the Blue Devils were runners-up in 1991.

Last year, South was third, missing second place by one match and first place by only two points.

"This year we have the lofty goal of besting that record," Berschback said. "Our five best players are returning and they include three All-State players and one All-State honorable

GPSA Dragons dominate indoors

It was an outstanding indoor soccer season for the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Dragons.

The Dragons '88 took first place in the under-10 division during the first session at Total Soccer in Fraser, while the Dragons '87 won all eight of their games despite playing up a level in the under-12 division.

The under-10 team averaged more than eight goals a game, while allowing fewer than two per contest. The Dragons '88 clinched the title with a 4-2 victory over Team United.

The deciding goal was a high shot by Caitlin Bennett, who took a perfect crossing pass from striker Anna Alschbach. Bennett was the Dragons' leading scorer for the season.

Leading the defense were goalkeepers Jessica Poletis and Danielle Hatfield and a solid fullback corps led by Heather Lockhart, Brittany McManus and Jessie Grosso.

Most of the Dragons alternated between offensive and defensive positions, so Alschbach, Marilyn Beardslee, Jenny Bohanon, Hatfield, Jillian Kronner, Jordan McIlroy, Ali Morawski, Emily Schleicher and Katie Uppleger all collected goals and assists.

McIlroy also played on the Dragons '87 and was the leading scorer with 14 goals and five assists.

Megan Warren and Kelly Roney each had six goals, followed by Kelly Ritter five, Brooke Ziehr four, Julie West and Casey Scavone three. Caroline Hartmann and Allison Jones two.

Erica Coates, Erin Deane and Chrissie Keersmaekers scored one goal apiece.

Laura Nicholl was strong on defense, while Keersmaekers, Jones and Scavone played well in goal.

Warren also had five assists, while Hartmann and Roney collected four apiece and Ritter, Deane, Keersmaekers and Scavone each had three.

The Dragons '87 averaged 3.5 goals per game, while holding the opposition to one.

The Dragons '87 were coached by Jim Warren. John Kronner coached the Dragons '88.

Grosse Pointe St. Paul's sixth grade boys basketball team capped a perfect regular season in the Northeast Division of the Detroit Catholic Youth Organization league with a 49-17 romp over Detroit St. Juliana.

"I'm very proud of these young men," coach Jeff Froggett said of the 10-0 squad. "They played like champions all season."

The Lakers' season began with a 41-14 victory over Detroit St. Jude. P.J. Janutol scored 14 points for St. Paul and Peter Hrtanek, who did a good job of ball handling, added five.

Zach Schmitt scored 22 points, the first of seven games in which he would lead St. Paul in scoring, in a 45-27 victory over Harper Woods St. Peter. Ron Hildreth had 12 points and Mike Bates, who directed the offense all season, tossed in nine. Danny Reinhard had a good game on the boards and scored four points.

The Lakers buried Roseville Holy Innocents 50-10 behind 14 points from Hildreth and 10 from C.J. Kanan, who made several good drives to the basket.

Defense was the big story, however, as St. Paul held Holy Innocents scoreless in the second half. John Malone's play was a key to the defensive effort.

points and Ralph Zade added six on some good putbacks. Brian Shue played well defensively and also scored two points.

Schmitt had 10 points, Hildreth nine and John Cahalan added a season-high eight in St. Paul's 38-11 victory over St. Peter.

The Lakers also posted a lopsided 44-9 victory over Holy Innocents. Schmitt scored 14 points, Hildreth eight and Bates six.

St. Paul's toughest test of the season came against once-beaten Queen of Peace, but the Lakers came out ahead as Hildreth scored 14 points and Schmitt added 11.

A balanced scoring attack keyed the victory over St. Juliana. Schmitt had 19 points, Hildreth 12 and Malone, Zade, Reinhard and Janutol added four each.

"To win in the CYO league is an accomplishment, but to go undefeated is truly remarkable," Froggett said.

"Our players worked very hard and played very smart this season. They really earned the division championship."

mention." Senior co-captain Mike Case and junior John Berschback, the coach's nephew, have played first doubles for the last two seasons and were given the top seed in the state Division I tournament last year where they lost a tough three-set championship match.

Case, who has signed a letter of intent to attend Eastern Michigan University, and Berschback are 57-3 the last two years.

There's a lot of depth in the singles lineup, starting with returning regulars Preston Gaspar, Tony Tocco and senior co-captain A.J. Rohde.

"These three players are interchangeable," coach Berschback said. "Each has his own style and assets. They could swap positions several times during the season. Our final singles lineup probably won't be decided until the first of May. We'll need many wins from them to have a league and regional championship and a chance at the state."

Also returning is senior Nick Lodzinski, who played fourth singles last year. Sophomore Brian Gorski played No. 2 singles last year and will either play doubles or fourth singles. The other returning top 10 player is Chip Getz, who will compete in doubles.

Newcomers include sophomore Ezra Bertakis, who played first singles on the junior varsity last year and will compete for the fourth singles spot or a place on the doubles teams.

Also providing depth are senior J.R. Mason and juniors Evan Roarty-Collins, Mike Day, Nate Steiner and Jason Jeffrey.

"Our biggest danger is a lack of focus," coach Berschback said. "We know what has to be done, but the season's ups and downs have to be dealt with."

"The difficult part of keeping the team together while challenging each other is our first hurdle."

One of the goals is to go undefeated, but it won't be easy with matches against many of the top teams in the state, including Ann Arbor Pioneer, University Liggett School, Cranbrook and Grosse Pointe North.

"This team is one of the best, if not the best, I've had based on attitude and competitiveness," coach Berschback said. "They have nowhere to go but up the ladder."

Sixteen students from the Grosse Pointe Academy of Tae Kwon Do won a total of 30 medals at the recent state tae kwon do championships. In front, from left, are Sean Foley, T.J. Local school shines at state tae kwon do meet

The group won a total of 30 medals in the sparring and forms divisions.

Winning gold medals in both forms and sparring were Mary Allemon, Ashley Allemon, Bernadita Vega, Justin Goodall, Elizabeth Klein, Julie Padilla, Michael Murphy, Jason Goodall and Katie Drabecki.

Sean Foley and Amanda Murphy won gold medals in forms, while Grant Hochstein and Tariq Ibrahim finished first in sparring.

T.J. Mason and Michael Manos earned silver medals in both forms and sparring, while Foley had a silver in sparring.

Raymond Testori won bronze medals in both events, while Hochstein took a bronze in forms.

Depth is the key for South girls track team

Grosse Pointe South's girls track team is off to another good start.

The Blue Devils opened the season with a 103-25 victory over Regina, reinforcing the high expectations for the veteran squad that won a state regional championship in 1997. "Depth has always been the trademark of our teams over the years and this season should be no exception," said coach Steve Zaranek. "The talent level in both sprints and distance runs very deep."

Leading the way in the sprints are juniors Erin Smialek and Isabel Roa and sophomore Anne Laperriere. Smialek also set South's long jump record last year with a leap of 17-feet-9.

Laperriere will team with veterans Jane Zuidema and Elizabeth Kwiatkowski in the hurdles. Additional help in the sprints will come from Molly Ramsdell and Dana Galinato and freshman Marlow Marsh will make an immediate impact as a sprinter.

South's distance runners will be strong again.

The Blue Devils are coming off a cross country season that brought a fifth-place finish in the state meet, a perfect dual meet record and a state regional championship.

The distance corps is led by All-State senior Jonnie Vasse, who was the Macomb Area Conference most valuable athlete in girls track last year.

South will get distance help from all four grades. Freshmen Elizabeth Osburn and Caitlin Carroll are both off to good starts. Sophomores Heidi Crowley and Beth Auty were state cross country medalists and will be at the heart of the distance group along with junior Kristin Ritter and senior Sara Crowe. Erica Hill and Kristin Nickel provide additional depth.

Meghan McGahey returns as a state finalist high jumper and Krystal Parker leads the way in the shot put and discus.

There are 100 girls on this year's team.

Zaranek expects the toughest league competition to come from Utica, Warren-Mott and Port Huron. The Blue Devils will be shooting for a fifth straight regional title.

Jonnie Vasse

South grad does well in gymnastics

The last couple of weeks have been eventful ones for Marla Cummings.

The Grosse Pointe Farms resident, who is a sophomore at the College of William and Mary, took first place in the vault competition with a score of 9.625 at the Virginia State Intercollegiate Gymnastics Championships in Williamsburg.

William and Mary won the team championship at the event and finished second at the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC) meet at the University of Pennsylvania.

Cummings was third in vault at the ECAC meet with a 9.55 score. She also posted a 9.6 in floor exercise and 9.375 on uneven bars.

Cummings' performance earned her a first-team berth on the all-ECAC squad.

The 1996 Grosse Pointe South graduate was also named captain of the William and Mary squad for next season.

Spitfires win Bantam playoffs

Goalie Andrew Scavone stopped all but one of the 28 shots he faced as the Spitfires beat the Chiefs 5-1 in the playoff championship game in the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association Bantam House Division.

Scavone had strong support from his defense corps of Chip Baker, Matt Lombardo, Tom Campbell, Matt Lampkin, Piotr Bandyk and Matt Lambrecht.

Ryan Mischnick opening the scoring for the Spitfires at 2:50 of the first period, but Pat

The scoreless second period featured a pair of saves of breakaways a minute apart by Scavone.

Calder Gage, who assisted on Mischnick's goal, broke the tie with 8:46 left in the third period and completed the scoring with an unassisted goal with six seconds to go. Chris Burger also tallied for the Spitfires and Dave Demeester scored on a penalty shot with 4:03 left in the game.

Mischnick, Baker and Bandyk also collected assists for the Spitfires.

The Chiefs also played well but Spitfire forwards Bobby Danforth, Jeff Schroeder, Gordie Mackenzie, Joe Simon and Joe Bogosian kept heavy pressure on the Chiefs' goalie, while playing excellent defensive hockey.

John Scavone is the head coach. His assistants are Jim Burger, Bob Danforth, Dan Demeester and Dick Schroeder. Sandra Campbell is the manager.

The Spitfires won the playoff championship in the Bantam House division of the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association with a 5-1 victory over the Chiefs.

North grad a hot hitter for Western Michigan

Former Grosse Pointe North standout Derek Ottevaere is on a record pace for Western Michigan University's baseball team.

Through 19 games, Ottevaere had eight home runs, only five short of the school's season record set by Matt Mieske, who is currently playing for the Chicago Cubs.

Ottevaere, a sophomore first baseman is batting .397.

He leads the Broncos in runs (17), doubles (8), home runs, RBI (25), on base percentage (.447) and slugging percentage (.808).

Twice this season Ottevaere has hit two homers in a game, tying a Western Michigan record.

Harrington HR saves Falcons from defeat

Former Grosse Pointe South standout Jay Harrington provided one of the highlights of Bowling Green's spring baseball trip.

Harrington's two-run home run to right field capped a three-run ninth-inning rally that pulled the Falcons into a tie against Evansville.

Bowling Green scored two runs in the 10th to post an 8-6 victory.

Harrington, a senior second baseman, was the most improved player on the Falcons' squad last year.

He batted .300 on the spring trip and his seven RBI were tyied for second on the team.
