Memorial Day observance

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial's annual Memorial Day Service takes place Monday, May 25, from 10 - 11 Monday, May 25, from 10 - 11 a.m. Weather permitting, the service will be held on the War Memorial's lakeside grounds at 32 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms, moving indoors in the event of inclement weather.

An honor guard of U.S. Marines will make the traditional presentation of colors to begin the service. Also participating are Boy and Girl Scout troops, War Memorial board members and local dignitaries. A rifle volley will be offered by members of VFW Bruce Post 1146 and music will be provided by the Motor City Brass Band under the direction of Craig Strain.

The War Memorial was dedicated to the community in 1949 as a perpetual memorial to the 3,500 Grosse Pointers who served, and the 126 who died in World War II, and to serve as a community center for educational, charitable and patriotic activities. Housed in the historic for-

New church building to be dedicated

The first unit of the new building of the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church will be dedicated Sunday afternoon. The English parish type structure is located off Mack Avenue in the Torrey Woods section, on land donated by the late Dr. H.N. Torrey of Lakeshore Road, and Mrs. Torrey. The Rev. Andrew F. Rauth is minister of the church. (From the May 20, 1948 Grosse Pointe News. Photo by Fred Runnells.)

Gymboree clothing chain coming to Village

By Brad Lindberg Staff Writer

Gymboree, an international children's clothing store that targets up-scale markets, has a bead on Grosse Pointe.

The San Francisco based company plans to open a store in the Village location formerly occupied by Danielle Inc.

We're really excited about moving into Grosse Pointe,' said Nanci Gunning, manager of store planning for Gymboree. She said opening day is targeted for July 13.

In addition to fashion apparel, the store offers vintage-style classic toys, including wooden musical instruments, train sets and ride-ons.

The Village store will be one of only 5 percent of the company's 467 stores worldwide that isn't in a shopping mall, said a company representative.

Brandon Rogers, city planner for the City of Grosse Pointe, liked the idea of a children's specialty clothing store in the district. "We don't have this type of business in the Village," he said.

Jerry Valente, president of the Grosse Pointe Village Association. supported Gymboree's move into town.

Local schools show class in MEAP tests nce again the Grosse Pointe Public School System has emerged with distinction from state math and reading tests given to fourth- and seventh-graders under the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP).

In the tests graded to date, the local school system has continued to rate among the top 1 percent of the schools in the Detroit metro area but with higher scores, in general, than in 1997.

Marjorie Parsons, assistant superintendent for administrative services, explained it to us this way:

"Our schools maintained their status in these tests, which may not be remarkable but it is what we expected. In fact, we are more solidly among that top 1 percent than we were last year."

But she added, "We are not complacent and continue to try to do better every

While parents have the option of deciding whether their children should take the tests, the result in the Pointes has been almost 100 percent participation with only an occasional dropout because of illness or a family problem.

These tests, as in similar tests last year, require students to use computers, to rely on reason and to draw conclusions from what they have read. In other words, they have been taught to think not just memorize.

Improved scores for the entire state this year are being credited in part on the fact the tests were given in January and February this year and in September last

Thus, the students this year had more time to propare themselves for the tests than they had a year ago.

The Grosse Pointe school system has adopted the state's model curriculum on which the tests are based. Unlike some districts in which many parents authorize their children to avoid the tests, most parents support the fourth- and seventh-grade testing in the Pointes.

However, among high school students, in the Pointes as elsewhere in the state, there has been a decline in the number taking the test because some parents fear a possible harm to college entrance from

In fact, only an estimated 65 percent of the eligible students took the high school test here this year while in previous years almost 100 percent took them. The results probably will not be available until September.

The fourth- and seventh-grade results, however, do indicate that the Grosse Pointe schools are offering local students excellent opportunities, and most parents want their youngsters to take advantage of those opportunities.

And surely one of those opportunities is taking the MEAP tests, which really are more important in showing what individual students have learned than in making a record against schools in other dis-

Phone mergers raise fears

ew mergers seem to be under consideration every day, with Ameritech, the telephone company that serves Michigan, reportbeing sought by Communications.

That comes on the heels of the huge acquisition of Chrysler by Daimler-Benz AG of Germany which reduced our automobile Big Three to Two.

Local news reports first identified the deal with Chrysler as a simple merger, but the New York Times had it right when it reported the deal as a takeover by the German firm.

It will be a merged company whose combined auto sales last year totaled $131 billion with its products ranging from the $11,000 Plymouth Neons to the $40,000 Jeep Grand Cherokees to the $135,000 Mercedes 12-cylinder 600 CL coupes.

Daimler-Benz company will control 57 percent of the stock, while Chrysler stockholders will own only 43 percent. Yet, Chrysler's stock value rose significantly on Wall Street.

Furthermore, Detroit no longer will be able to claim the Big Three of auto production. In fact, the new Daimler-Benz dominated company will be incorporated in Germany.

Daimler-Benz reportedly is also seekinga controlling partnership in Asia. Reports from Tokyo indicated that Daimler-Benz AG was ready to buy a controlling stake of at least 34.4 percent of Nissan Diesel Motor Co.

This seems to be the era of big mergers. They apparently occur because of the additional profits that arise from increasing the size and reach of the big firms, most of them involved in foreign trade.

Some mergers may run into trouble with our federal laws, however. Thus, the effort by SBC Communications Inc. to acquire the Ameritech Corp. is being seen as a further threat to local phone competi-

Michigan GOP U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham said he had "serious questions about whether the merger will undermine the goals of the 1996 Telecom Act and directly impact consumers in Michigan."

Gilbert A. Williams, a telecommunications professor at Michigan State University, warned that "the merger looked like an effort to re-create AT&T."

And then he added:

"In the end consumers have lost out. Prices get jacked up without their knowledge. And there have been situations where people have had their long-distance phone company changed without their knowledge.'

Most recent mergers have been spurred by prospects of further profits for the stockholders and managers. But that often means that the buying public is the victim of higher prices.

An unfair school tax break

U.S. Senate bill that would give modest tax breaks to mostly highincome families with children in private schools has passed, and the House has approved a similar mea-

The proposal would allow parents to put $2,000 of after-tax money into education savings accounts for each child. The funds could pay private tuition from kindergarten through high school.

The tax breaks would go basically to parents of children attending private schools, with even the interest on the accounts becoming tax-free.

Families with children attending private schools would get the most benefit from the proposal since there is no exemption for parents who can afford to pay school tuition and already do.

The legislation would enable families whose children attend public schools to use the money from such accounts to finance tutoring and other educationrelated expenses.

But the Senate turned down Democratic amendments that would have increased spending for public school construction and additional teachers.

Overall, it is another GOP attempt to provide public funds for private schools, without doing much to help public schools that badly need funds, especially for new schools and repairs in old ones.

The New York Times opposes the entire Art SOURCE proposal as well as two amendments that To the Editor: the Senate addea.

proud member of the Grosse Pointe Power Squadron.

OK, so it's just an honorary membership, but that doesn't mean it's less important to me or that the Power Squadron is less newsworthy.

The honorary membership was bestowed on me at the squadron's annual Ladies Night at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. "Ladies" night? Are they trying to tell me someuning here:

Anyway, I was honored along with other Grosse Pointe and metro-Detroit media types for, basically, doing our jobs — that is, publicizing the Power Squadron's many worthwhile events, causes and, most importantly, its boating safety courses.

As we all know, Lake St. Clair can become a very crowded, dangerous place, especially on holiday weekends such as the this one coming up. So be careful! And if you've never taken a boating safety course, take one the next time it's offered.

Is this the craziest spring ever? I don't mean to complain, but had I known, I would have planted my garden a month earlier. As it is, my warmweather tomatoes, squash and peppers are getting a good start, but my cold-weather onions radishes and lettuce are getting cooked!

I think I'm going to give up golf for good. What a trustrating game!

Actually, I only took the fanaticism. I practiced all winevery week, sometimes several times a week.

I was getting so that I could actually "hit" the ball! Seven iron, straight on. Five iron, straight on Three iron, come times straight on. Before the last snow flurries I felt I was ready for the real thing - if league.

I hooked up with Grosse game up seriously last year, Pointe News columnists Blair but I did so with gusto, if not Gilbert ("Ask Mr. Hardware") and David Soulliere ("Ask the ter long, going to the dome Landscaper") on the famous "Hackers" league at Bello Woods Golf Course at 23 Mile and North Avenue in Macomb County.

Not only had I hit hundreds of hunkate of halle all winter long, I also got a surprise bonus this past off-season: The Golf Channel. Now I could not the tour, at least a summer improve my game from the mats at the dome I hit the ball swing! comfort of my own recliner! I perfectly nearly every time.

whether it be the "Golf Academy" or the "Tight Lies" or 'Sam 2000" infomercials.

Man, was I ready to golf! I felt sorry for Blair, my teammate, who as owner of Gilbert's Hardware in St. Clair Shores, clearly couldn't have had the time to practice and prepare, understanding. He even seem both physically and mentally, as I did.

So imagine my chagrin on the first day of league play when I scored a 63! No, no, you don't understand. That's for nine holes, not 18!

I couldn't figure it out. After each errant shot, I kept looking at the shoe of my club, wondering what was wrong with it. Even my trusty seven iron let me down. Had the clubs become damaged somehow?

I mean, standing on level could feel my game improving Now on the rolling, uneven, with every minute of viewing, heavy, soggy, springtime fairways and rough, I couldn't hit a good shot to save my life!

As embarrassed and upset as I was, I have to thank Blair, my partner, for being so understanding. He shoots in the 40s, but he didn't laugh or criticize my play. He was patient and pleased - something about our he dicap, whatever that means.

On the second Wednesday in the league, we played a different, drier, morc-open nine and I scored better, a 52. So it's with fear and trepidation that I must go out to face my nemesis - namely, golf - once again Wednesday afternoon.

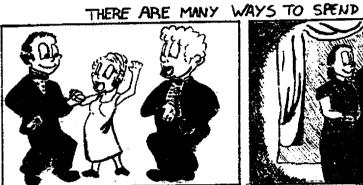

You now, it's damned frustrating to not have the slightest clue where the hell the ball's going to go with each

Sinatra: He did it his way

"Softly, as I leave you..." is not the most popular of Frank Sinatra's songs, but as no other popular singer, he made it his. The song is particularly apt at this time, as he has left us, softly and sadly.

I was amazed that in the midst of this media blitz about the incomparable Frank Sinatra, that on a lark I typed in "Sinatra.com" on my web browser and, sure enough, there was a memorial website for "Ol' Blue Eyes." I clicked on the Sinatra family and before I knew it, his voice came rolling in from my computer speakers. It was, sure enough, "Softly, as I leave you..." and as I listened raptly, it was as if he were here with me in my den and I was alone with him.

He didn't sound like a "chairman of the board" or a gangster. All I could hear was an unspeakable tenderness. an understanding, all-encompassing compassion, a great sincerity, from the bottom of

That was the gift of Francis Albert Sinatra, along with a natural, intuitive musicality, a dedication and perfection of his craft that enabled him to sing with an art that was lauded and appreciated for over half a century.

Of course he was tough. His father was a blue-eyed, tattooed prize-fighter from Sicily, trying to make a living in the New World as an Irish-named boxer, "Marty O'Brien." An Italian name could not make it in the boxing world at that

And tougher than nails was his Italian mother, one who would stop at nothing to support her only son and advance his career. So of course he was tough. He had a rough side; he came from working-class Hoboken, N.J. But he had a sincere and uncompromising tender side when he sang.

An artist transcends his worldly existence. Although Mozart and Reethoven had lives of great anguish, misery and struggle, their music soared to heights of glory. Although Picasso was a brute and womanizer, he was a great lover and his art expressed his creative passion.

In art we cannot have it both ways. A conformist, a nice guy, is not a great artist. A supremely gifted artist is in ferment and turmoil, and translates his or her pain into a vehicle of pleasure or enlightenment.

Artists have the rare gift of not being afraid of their unconscious, of the dark side. Deep in the unconscious is the dark "shadow" of Jung, the primitive instincts of Freud. It is the source of love (Eros) and death (Thanatos).

Most "normal" people are frightened of their deep, primitive urges, and so their creativity is partially blocked.

The unique characteristic of the artist is that he or she is in touch with the primitive symbols, magic and passion of the unconscious, but in a controlled way, not going crazy. They may be eccentric and moody, but control is everything.

It is one thing to control one's personal life, another to control one's artistic expres-

Sinatra devoted much time and effort to develop his unique skill of voice control. But control and technique are not enough for a creative artist. Something deep must come from within.

The hallmark of the artist is the harnessing of the wild in deference to the demands of civilization. Society demanded of Frank Sinatra that he obey the rules we all have to obey. He is not supposed to sock anybody when he is angry, he is not allowed to lose control. He shouldn't hang out with gangsters of the Mob, but they had something in common.

He was not judgmental, except to those he felt would thwart him. It was good to be his friend — bad to be his enemy.

In the world of popular music, his popularity ranks above and beyond Elvis Presley and the Beatles, consummate musicians as they were; he outlasted them all. One can listen to him sing forever; you never tire of him.

Unlike today's singers, he worshiped every note, every phrase, every syllable, and he always gave credit to the song-

Frank Sinatra is a prime example of the paradox and contradictions inherent in being a human being. He could be brutish like a thug; he could also be a tender, compassionate and passionate lover as a balled singer. He exuded sincerity and integrity.

But, all in all, he was a man, unique in all this world, however fallible.

We shall not see the likes of him again. He did it his way. How enviable!

Our test car was a Trans Am with the six-speed transmission and, if you do a lot of commuting in heavy traffic, you might want to opt to the automatic transmission. You might anyway. I would.

City buys 100 meters

By Brad Lindberg Staff Writer

Don't get your hopes up.

The removal of parking meters in the City of Grosse Pointe isn't a sign that city officials have enacted a free parking policy.

Old mechanical meters are simply being replaced with new electronic ones. Of the city's 734 parking meters, nearly 600 are mechanical and approximately 25 years old, according to a report by Thomas Kressbach, city manager. Many of those units have been refurbished or rebuilt to extend their service life. But even parking meters eventually run out of time.

The city has agreed to purchase 100 new electronic meters at $160 each. The units will attach to existing poles. "All of the new meters will be installed on Kercheval," said Christine Bremer, assistant city manager. "The meters replaced on Kercheval will be used elsewhere, and those meters will be used for parts or replacements."

Kressbach said the city had to buy electronic meters because mechanical meters are no longer being manufactured.

The units will be purchased from Duncan Meter Corp. for a total of $16,000, plus shipping.

"There is no competitive electronic meter with a high quality operating record. Some cities have purchased another brand but have since eliminated them for operational reasons," said Kressback.

Police officials estimate the group cheated insurance companies out of approximately $3 million since 1993 by buying old, almost undriveable autos at auctions, insuring them for their blue book value - the estimated retail value if the vehicles were mechanically sound - then wrecking them and filing a claim for that Individuals in the group have been charged with filing s total of 278 fraudulent claims.

"The cost of fraudulent claims is reflected in the rates of everyone who buys auto insurance," says James Oliver, AAA Michigan's senior vice president, Property and Casualty Insurance. "Based on insurance information institute research, we estimate the average Michigan family pays at least $100 per year for insurance fraud. Nationally, it's estimated 10 cents of every claim dollar paid is for fraud."

Planned criminal fraud such as that uncovered in March is not the major cause of increased insurance rates, says Oliver. "Exaggeration of claims for legitimate losses — a practice known as "buildup" — is more pervasive than criminal fraud, and its effect on costs is greater than the practice of staging or faking claims," Oliver explained.

A recent study by the Insurance Research Council (IRC) reported that one of four persons surveyed believes it is "all right" to increase the amount of an insurance claim to make up for insurance premiums paid in previous years.

However, the study also shows that 76 percent of Americans favor encouraging insurance companies to investigate more thoroughly for fraud before paying claims, regardless of whether investigation delays a legitimate pay-

South senior captures 'cûtting edge' scholarship

Michigan Gov. John Engler and MCI president and chief operating officer Tim Price recently presented 11 Michigan high school seniors with scholarships for winning the $50,000 MCI "Cutting Edge Scholars" Internet innovation competition.

Grosse Pointe South High School student Anthony V. O'Neill was among the individual winners.

More than 300 students from 250 public and private schools submitted entries, detailing their ideas of how the Internet could be used to promote employment, learning or community service. As scholarship winners, the nine individual winners, and one team winner, will receive $5,000 from sponsor MCI for use toward higher education.

The winning team was from Waverly High School in Lansing.

Michigan was one of only three states to offer the pilot "Cutting Edge Scholars" program. A state advisory panel appointed by the governor judged the applicants on their projects' originality and creativity; replication potential in other schools or communities; ability to reach project goals and their project's real world impact.

Individual Retirement Accounts are back, and the prudent investor could be wealthier at retirement as a result.

The new Roth IRA, created by the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, allows taxpayers who meet income guidelines to accumulate wealth without ever having to pay taxes on their earnings. That's a powerful advantage over traditional IRAs.

Traditional IRAs became popular in the band and wife (filing a joint late 1970s because they allowed taxpayers who met income guidelines to deduct up to each, or a total of $20,000 to as $2,000 a year from their taxable income by many persons as they wish contributing the funds to special IRA

In spite of these important benefits, IRAs became less attractive as the popularity of 401(k) plans grew. 401(k) plans offer the same benefits, but individuals typically can contribute a larger amount and their contributions are often matched by employer contributions.

Traditional IRAs are still available, but without penalty. generally pale in comparison to Roth IRAs, even though funds invested in Roth funds for individuals under age 59 1/2 are IRAs are not deducted from taxable more complicated.

After 1998, the entire tax will be due during the year in which the conversion is

To enjoy the tax advantages of the Roth IRA, it is important to pay the taxes from savings and not from funds in the IRA. Using funds in the IRA to pay taxes is contrary to the purpose of the conversion, because it reduces the funds that will receive the tax advantages of a Roth IRA. Before converting, have your tax adviser make a financial projection to determine whether you are likely to benefit original owner's death before withdrawing from a conversion.

Consider your tax bracket

It is also important to factor in your expected tax bracket during retirement to determine whether you're better off paying taxes on money going into your relirement ulan or money coming out.

If, for example, you expect your tax bracket to drop from the 28 percent bracket to the 15 percent bracket, you may be better off investing in traditional IRAs or other alternatives, since your taxes will not only be deferred, but you will be paying taxes at a significantly lower rate.

The difference in the amount available during retirement can be significant, so be certain to have your tax adviser project the Roth IRA against other possible retirement accounts for you.

Creation of Roth IRAs has been greeted with a great deal of enthusiasm.

While much of the enthusiasm is deserved, Roth IRAs are not appropriate for everyone. It is important to weigh all of the options before investing. This article is not intended to provide tax advice. Consult your tax adviser or attorney before making any tax decisions.

Bus, car collide in the Woods

The driver of a mid-sized car was injured when her vehicle collided with a mini-bus contracted by the Grosse Pointe school system to transport students.

The accident took place at about 8 a.m. on Friday, May 15, at the intersection of Roslyn and Marter in Grosse Pointe Woods. According to police the car was heading south on Marter when it collided with the bus, which was heading east on Roslyn.

The bus driver and the one passenger suffered very minor injuries, but the car driver's arm was broken, requiring her to be transported to Bon Secours Hospital, where she was also treated for a number of cuts and bruises.

Because of her injuries, police were unable to question the car driver until several days after the accident, delaying any report.

Once the investigation is completed the information will be sent to thecounty prosecutor's office, where a decision will be made as to whether any charges will be filed.

Car crackup in G.P. Park

Four young men in their early 20s, two formerly from Grosse Pointe and two currently residing in Grosse Pointe, were injured when the car they were in smashed into a tree at the corner of Baifour and Jefferson.

According to Park police, the incident happened at about 2:23 a.m. on Saturday, May 16, when their car, traveling south on Balfour, left the street and hit a tree. The front seat passenger was pinned in the car and the Jaws of Life were used to rescue him.

Acting under the mutual aid agreement public safety officers from the City of Grosse Pointe assisted in helping rescue and treat the four men, all of whom were taken to St. John Hospital for treatment.

The back seat passengers were treated and released. The driver was admitted in serious condition and a blood sample was taken to see if he had been drinking at the time of the acci-

The front passenger was listed in critical condition, but was upgraded to serious, but has since relapsed. Results from the investigation will be turned over to Wayne County prosecutors, who will determine if any charges will be filed.

Fleeing and eluding — badly

A Grosse Pointe Fark public safety car was patrolling on Mack when the officer noticed a car speeding. The officer attempted to stop the car, but the speeding driver had other thoughts and drove away as fast as he could.

The fleeing car turned north onto Alter, eventually turning west onto Waveny in Detroit. Park police followed, but ended the chase when the fleeing driver crossed Chalmers at a high speed.

But the pursing officer saw that the fleeing car hit another car and when he went to investigate, he saw that the fleeing car had hit a Detroit Edison utility pole and rolled over.

The Detroit fire department was called to rescue the driver, who was arrested on the spot. The occupants of the car hit by the suspect were taken to St. John Hospital as a precaution. They were released later that

The driver and his passenger received minor injuries. He has been charged with felony fleeing and eluding and remains in custody pending his arraignment. The driver's license was suspended until the year 2003 for a previous conviction of fleeing and eluding.

ung on peacon um roward the Farms man's red 1995 Jeep when police detected the odor of marijuana. Police searched the trio and found "what was believed to be a marijuana pipe in the front pocket of (the suspect's) shorts," according to police. Investigation revealed a black film canister containing suspected marijuana.

The Farms man was arrested and released on $500 bond. Another suspect, a 19-year-old man from the City with an outstanding warrant for disorderly conduct from St. Clair Shores, was released on $100 bond. There was no report on the third suspect.

11 suspensions

A Detroit woman who lied about her name, age and driving record to Farms police was found to have 11 suspensions and an outstanding warrant from Clinton Township after being pulled over by Farms officers on eastbound Lakeshore near Moross on Thursday, May 14, at 1:26 a.m. 29-year-old suspect attracted police attention by driving her 1994 red Mercury 4-door at a pokey 17 m.p.h. in a 35 m.p.h. zone.

She paid a $700 bond and was released two hours later.

Dog gone statue

A $100 cement statue of a dog holding a basket was stolen from the front porch of a house in the 200 block of Moran sometime during the night of Monday, May 11.

A 34-year-old Detroit man victim realized her cellular driving on east bound Mack near Moross with no driver's license or proof of insurance was found to have three outstanding warrants after being be returned for $40. The tailing pulsed over by Farms points to called Park police, who then driving his 1986 red Ford coordinated information with portable combination lock.

The locker was secured with portable combination lock. The incident occurred on Wednesday, May be returned for $40. The family pulled over by Farms police for 13, at 10:20 p.m. The subject was ticketed and released.

> A 40-year-old Detroit man pulling onto Mack from a fast food restaurant near Moress on Wednesday, May 13, at 4:13 p.m. was stopped for having prohibited ornaments dangling from the rear view mirror of his yellow 1984 4-door Dcdge Diplomat.

> Farms police learned that the man did not have a valid driver's license. He did, however, have an outstanding $1,000 warrant from Wayne County for child neglect plus three warrants from 36th District Court. Expired license plates rounded out his offenses. The suspect was ticketed and

On Friday, May 15, at 10 a.m., the purse of a 77-year-old Farms woman was picked while she shopped at a grocery store on Mack near Moross. Two men distracted the woman by asking her the number of calories in a box of frosting. They stole her wallet containing $30, check book, driver's license, credit card, vehicle registration and spare car keys.

About two hours after Farms police issued an alert for the suspects, police from Harper Woods reported nabbing two matching suspects who had been arrested for snatching a purse at a grocery store on Harper near I-94.

The most beautiful, valuable and romantic olive tree

One of the most beautiful, valuable and romantic trees in the world is the olive, and this has been so since very ancient times. In more than 65 places in the Bible there are references to olive trees, and many places named in the ancient world refer to olives, such as the Mourat of Olives. Olive trees are still much used as decorative trees in modern landscapit,, and the growing of olives and the production and export of olives. is a major ir dustry.

In the story of Noah, the dove sent forth from the ark brought back an olive leaf in its beak, and the dove and the olive branch have ever since been symbols of

In the ancient world gardens were usually orchards enclosed by a wall of stone or a high hedge, with a fig tree at each corner. Very wealthy landewners had many olive trees in the orchard, with perhaps plantings of almonds, walnuts, pistachios and various fruit trees as well. There was a small tower, or a raised platform with a roof, built in the center of the garden, or orchard, where a guard kept waich and drove away wild besits an I pilferers, and the various trees of the orchard were not planted in neat rows as is done to day, but in a haphazard jumble, or thicket, almost like a natural woodland.

The Carden of Gethsen..ne was such a corchard of olive trees planted at the foot of the Mount of Olives where the oil presses were located. The purpose of the gardens of this kind was not beauty or artis ry, but for the shade they provide I from the scorching sunlight, and for the fruit which they provide I.

No tree is more closely a sociated with the history of civilization than the olive. Some of the trees on the Mount of Olives and at Gethsenane are believed to have been there since the time of Christ, even though the Emperor Titus V-spatian of Rome in A.D. 70 ordered most of the olive trees there et down. But he found that it is very difficult to kill an olive

In Greek and Roman mythology the olive was the symbol of Athena or Minerva, goddess of medicine and health. Her gift of the olive to mankind was judged greater than Poseidon's gift of the horse, and for this reason Athens was named in her honor.

Many legence concerning the olive grew up a medieval times and in some cases are still beheved by country people. One of them says that a seed of each of the olive, cypress and cedar was given to Seth for his dying father, Adam, by the angel guarding the Garden of Eden. They grew into a giant tree with three trunks. Beneath this tree Davic wept for his sins. The tree was felled by Solomon, but the timber could not be hewn and was caset into a marsh, where it flosted and formed a bridge for the Queen of Sheba. Finally the wood was used to make the cross upon which Jesus was crucified.

In arcient times olive oil was used for everything from fueling lamps to cooking. From dressing salads to cosmetic use as a skin softener and hair dressing. From furniture polish to medicines. And amazing ly enough all of the above are still the uses to which this versatile oil is put.

The design offers pleasures for the whole family. The two family bedrooms are located so as to afford privacy for the master bedrooms but still encompass all the bedrooms in a sleeping wing. Each includes a walk-in closet, and additional linen storage is provided in the central hall, which also provides access to a full-bath. The large greatroom is almost square, thus providing greater wall placement for furniture.

The expansive island kitchen serves as a backdrop for family gatherings, and is meant to be appreciated. There is a breakfast room with her window and a door

T, cansed season severe wildfire ಹ Plan for

"We should be prepared for possibly one of the worst wildfire seasons we have ever seen!" This is the message being sent from the state fire marshal, Captain Wade

Spring is always the most dangerous time of year when it comes to wildfires, but his year could be especially bad if forecastors are correct. People need to be aware of the danger and exercise extra caution this spring.

Under the influence of El Nino, there is a strong probability of an abnormally dry spring this year. Combine that fact with the prolonged drought of last summer and Michigan could be in fer a severe spring wildfire season.

While the Department of Natural Resources has a plan in place to deal with the potentially severe wildfires that could occur in our forests, there will not be a bun placed on burn permits this year. The decision to eliminate the burn permit moritorium was made with the support of the Michigan Fire Chiefs Association and the Michigan State Firemen's Association.

The DNR will be issuing permits for only one day at a time. In northern lower Michegan, permits will only be issued on low fire danger days. A fire department will still have the akility to issue burning permits under a local ordinance that is stricter than the Forest Fire Law.

Over one-third of Michigan

Over one-tried of Michigan wildfress are caused by people burning debris. For this reason, it is extremely important for people to be careful when burning their vard and household debris or starting their campfires. The state fire marshal is reminding everyone to exercise extreme caution with outdoor burning of yard and ho is shold debris and to be sure it at a permit is obtained when raquired. The Forest Fire Law does allow the burning of yard and household debris without a permit any time the ground is snow covered. Campfires also do not require a burn permit. "We would rather see people refrain from burning yard debris, and instead recycle it," added Captain Schaefer. "Yard wastes can be recycled by either mulching or composting them."

Homes in rural settings can be particularly vulnerable to wildfire during the spring. Fire-wise land-scaping can help. Maintain a ring of safety around your home to protect it from wildfires. Keep grass mowed within thirty feet of all buildings, thin out trees within 30 feet of buildings, thin out trees within 30 feet of buildings so that their crowns den't touch, and trin the bottom branches of all evergreen trees to 6 feet above the ground. When dumping ashes from the fireplace or wood stove, wet them thoroughly with water to be sure all coals are completely out.

"Intentionally setting a wildfire is arson, and is a felony punishable by a $10,000 fine and or 10 years in jail," says Schaefer.

encouraging people to report arsons if they have information on a deliberately set fire."

Michigan's toll-free arson hot-line is (800) 44ARSON. The caller will remain confidential and reward money up to $5,000 may be given if the information provid-ed leads to an arrest. Everyone has a responsibility to keep Michigan safe from fire. It is important to remember that most of the wildfires caused each year are a result of burning debris such as grass, leaves, brush and trash.

Nino

Never burn cebris on a windy day, especially in the spring. Remember to do your part when it comes to fire safety, and perhaps we can avoid the projected severity of this wildfire season. We can prevent wildfires!

Goldfish and plants make for a balanced ecosystem

Q. I would like to install a garden pond. Do I need fish and water plants?

A. Garden ponds can offer you hours of enjoyment and fun with little maintenance. That is if it is set up properly Allow-maintenance pond is a pond that has a balanced ecosystem. Fish and water plants are necessary to create that balanced ecosystem. Without fish and plants you just have a pool of water. For some people that is all they want. In that case you must treat your pond the same as a swimming pool, adding chlorine to the water on a regular basis in order to keep it cheer.

A natural low-maintenance A natural low-maintenance pond needs fish and plants. Fish are entertaining to watch and they pat the masquitc larvae and the algae in the pond. Fancy gold-fish and koi are a common choice of fish for most people. These are available at most pet stores 'the fish waste contain; nitrates that in turn feed the plants. Water plants offer the Tsh protection from their predators and absorb the intrates from the water. Algae also use the nitrates in the water.

to grow.
The more plants you have using up the mitrates the less food is available for the algae growth.

Landscaper

Plants will also add oxygen to the water and are a source of food for the fish. As the water plants cover the surface of the water, the shade from the plants will slow the growth of the algae.

Pond plints are divided into three cate, ories; oxygenators, bog plants and floating plants. Oxygenators are the seaweed types of plants that stay at the bottom of the pond. These plants offer hidin; spots for the fish and help filter the water naturally. Bog plants are the plants that you would find around the edges of the water in lature. A few popular types are parrot feather, pickerel rush, dwarf cattails and bamboo. Many of hese plants produce flowers or colorful foliage.

The bog plants are very useful in natural zing the look of your pond. Bog plants are sold in containers that you usually set on the ledges in your pond near the sur-

THE WEEK: You know what time of year this is, and probably, some of year this is, and probably, some of you are dreading it. The kids will be home from school for the summer and you don't know what to do to keep them occupied. Certainly, you don't want to blow the budget by visiting various musement parks, water-side parks and video game arcades.

I believe in good, old-fashioned fun. On a rainy day, if like to play board games with my kids — and they love it, too. We don't have to run to the movies just because we have to stay indours. As for water-slide parks, the local beach or lake does just fine. Pienies, outings to museums and day-trips to local historical sites are fin as well. Best of all, not orly are your kids occupied, but they're learning at the same time.

Berbecuing at ainner time is always a family affair. The kids love eating outdoors and I confess, I do, too. After all, there are no dishes to speak of and no stove to clear up. (My husband is in charge of the grill, including clearing it!)

All these summer activities also bring us closer together as a fami-

Tasty, full-bodied toma to growing made easy lt's easier than ever to reap a harvest of ripe, juicy tomatoes. In fact, the only hassie a gardener should experience when it comes to tornatoes is which kind to grow. Torratoes come in assorted varieties and a rain-bow of colors.

According to Sure, there are red tomatoes, but there are also ! v e !] c w, orange and green tomatoes, all of equally suc-=

ers of the popular I weed pie- venters Preen and Piemanufact..rsionals Greenview

Preen and Preen'n Green, the secret to growing tasty, full-bodied tomatoes is simple; rich, moist soil, lots of sunshine, proper staking, and the right weed prevening and the ter/ferlilizer.

Getting started

Tomate plants do best when placed in the garden bed after nighttime temperatures have climbed to about 55 degrees. Nurseries and garden centers usually 5 ock the most popular tomato varieties in plenty of time for them to be planted. While many gardeners enjoy starting from seet, it's simpler and less time-consuming to start the process with transplants.

Transplants in hand, it's time to prepare the bed. Select an area of the garden with maximum exposure to the sun. Add some compost and peat moss to the soil. This combination will introduce organic matter to sancy soils and lighten heavier clay soils.

The variations of window screen material should I know about the differences in the types of window screen material? B. Boy of St. Clair Shores. By Blair Gilbert

Liarr Shores.

A. Mr. Bay, to make things more confusing we have just been introduced to two new types of screen material, a pet resistant and a stretchy screen.

But first let's start with the old standby, the aluminum screen. It is durable, but unfinished aluminum is hard to keep clean. It is prone to corrosion as the aluminum oxidizes with oxygen. The oxide then makes the screens dirty and leaves residue on the windows and everything else.

Then there is the coated, or anodized sluminum. It comes in black or charcoal color. Being coated darker actually improves the visibility through the screen. The coating also prevents oxidation, increasing the life and beauty of the screen.

Next is nylon or fiberglass

Next is nylon or fiberglass screening, the most economical of the screen materials. It is more flexible, but not as durable as the metal. However it will take cermin kinds of abuse and still spring back. One drawback is its propensity to tear, another is the vay it pulls out of the rail too eastern.

The new types of screen materi-

Something For Everyone

At the Antiques Show, mere's not only are always happy to share their expertise with you. The antiques you'll find here cover a broad range, moking it difficult to cone away empty-handed.

The Antiques Show is a wonderful way to introduce children to antiques. After all, children are natural collectors. What better way to show them what our ancestors used, loved and treasured? There is even a children's book dealer, and children's prints are available at a modest price.

Antiques.

What does it bring to raind: Expensive Fighboys, perhaps...how about rare porcelain... fine rugs...or nuseum-quality pain ogs? You'd certainly find these at an antiques show But also think of items you cou'd use everyd by, like antique candlesticks, linens, The word has acquired such cachet small accent pieces and jewelry. Antiques are not always fragile and priceless. And they renot just for elite collectors. Antiques are for everyone.

See for yourself at the 14th "annual Chris Church Antiques Show in the Grosse Phinte South High School gymnasium, on the weekend of May 29-31. When it comes to selection, this is one of the best shows around. The Antiques Show is unique because of the variety of categories represented, from quilts to Quimper, garder items, spor ing memorabilla, majolica, even tools. Ferry-five dealers from a coss the country participate, and the majority are regular exhibitors at the show. Much of what is offered is reasonably priced, and the quality is excellent. It's an ideal upportunity for you to add to an existing certain and the majority are researched.

By definition, antiques are abjects from the past, specifically those over 100 years old. Not all of the Items you'll find at this show are antiques in the strictes:

Christ Church is located at 61 Grosse Pointe Boulevard (between Morross and Fisher Roads) in Grosse Pointe Farms. The Antiques Show is held in the adjacent Grosse Pointe South High School gymnasium. Proceeds from the annual Antiques Show benefit the Christ Church Choirs and the Beyond Parish Ministry

Antiques make enchanting gifts for graduations, weddings, showers and christenings. Many people visit the show yearly for this reason alone. If you have an incomplete set of antique silver, you'll want to ask about the silver matching service which locates missing pieces for you. More 18th and 19th century Engilsh and American furniture will be featured, and for the first time there will be a French exhibitor who specializes in culinary and wine-related antiques.

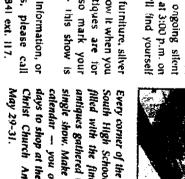

The weekend begins on Friday, May 29, from 7:00-10:00 p.m. with a Gala Preview in the undercroft of the church, sponsored by the Detroit Cadillac Dealers. Enjoy champagne and a light supper, a silent auction and a preview of the show. De OF מס Bedroom a Redecorating of redecorating a child's bedroom.

With offordable, easy-to-do paint projects, your decorators, and together, you'l create a friendly, welcoming setting for playing, reading and projects.

Bright Colors or Soft Hues
Redecorating dosan't have to be expensive or time-consuming. For the cost of o few cans of pount, you can change the look of a child's bedroom simply by repainting furnishings. A fresh cost of paint will transform a much-loved but worn toy — like a rocking horse — into new, revived hand-me-down furniture and even brighten low-light rooms. This should be great news to parents who know kids "favorite colors" change as quickly as their shoe sizes.

Have Children Greate a Colorful Dresser
For your paint projects, designate your children "painter's assistant."
They can select paint colors, and — with adult supervision — hey also can point drawer knobs, pulls and furniture. Repainting a dresser is a perfect job for involving the kids. Follow these easy steps to dress up your dresser.

knobs.

2. For unfinished wood, sand and prime the surfaces you will point to ensure a smooth, total topcoat 1. First, remove the drawers and covering.

3. Next, paint the drawers and knobs. For variety, paint each knob or drawer front a different color. For the knobs in the photo, designers chose bright, primary colors like Apple Red, Deep Blue and Sun Yellow from the Painter's TouchTM Ine by Rust-Oleum® For the drawer fronts, they selected Gloss White. Let dry completely.

4. Paint the base of the dresser. The designers got hooked on the vibrancy of Painter's Touch's Apple Red. You also can choose one of the colors already selected for the dresser's knobs.

5. Let dry completely before reassembling.

Painting a Tcy Chest 1s As Easy as 1.2,3
Thanks to a fresh coat of paint and simple decorative add-ons, an ordinary toy chest will Liuminate an entire room. Have your kids choose two colors for contrast. With adult supervision, older children can paint the base. If your children make a mistake or dislike a paint color once it's applied, no sweat — paint ever it. Here's how to decorate your toy chest:

1. First remove the box's lid by unscrewing the hinges. Paint lid. The designers decided to continue the primary color theme from the dresser and used Apple Red. Let cry completely.

2. Next, paint the chest's base another color. Sun Yellow provided on excellent contrast for the tay chest pictured. Let dry completely.

3. Finally, for a personalized finish, add lettering or stickers. Wood lettering can be purchased at a craft store and adhered with craft glue, or use stencils.

Because sand and water are such manipulatable, flexible, malleable materials, they encourage children to play using imagination and confidence, explains Susan A. Miller, Ed.D., a professor of early childhood education at Kurtztown University of Pennsylvania. Miller is the author of "Learning Through Play: Sand, Water, Clay & Wood" (Scholastic, 1994) and regularly presents: seminars on sand-and-water play to early childhood education.

"You can play with sand and water, manipulate them, and move them, and those invitation."

Even a child considered very activities of the playing in sand or water

"It's ploy, but the child is learning all kinds of different things," Miller points out. In fact, she notes, sand-and-water ploy enhances all aspects of a young child's development:

• Social — Children learn to work together as one child holds a funnal or sieve while the other pours sand into it. They share tools and toke into it. They share tools and toke furns. Because there are plenty of materials, they can play parallel or cooperatively. Younger children, for example, many relay, cited by eight

Emotional — Sond-and-water is therapeutic and soothing.

Cognitive — Exploring in sand and water challenges children's creativity, irvestigative skills and problem-solving abilities. There's also on opportunity to learn language, math and science concepts. Toddlers, for example, may learn the meaning of full and empty. Or, they may court how many buckers they we filed up. As they graw, they'll learn words and science concepts. Tike absorption and evaporation. They can experiment with the different properties of sond and woter and explore what happens when they add water to dry sand.

Physical — Pouring, scooping, sifring, and other sand-and-water activities enhance fine motor skills. Heartier actions, like carrying buckets of sand or water and digging deep holes in the sandbox, strengthen gross mater skills.

Pointe's Greatest Garage Sale keeps getting greater and greater

By Brad Lindberg

Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe is known for beautiful homes, outstanding schools, low crime, quality city services and garage sales

Garage sales?

That's right. Warm-weather weekends in the Pointes are filled with coteries of garage sale junkies making pilgrimages to garage sales, yard sales, basement sales, and the coveted and all-encompassing house sales to buy everything from cast-offs to keepsakes.

Why doesn't someone centralize these sellouts? That way, devotees could spend more time shopping and less time driving all over town buying knickknacks, bric-a-brac, or what non-believers might euphemistically call conversation pieces.

Someone has.

Grosse Pointe's Greatest Garage Sale will take place rain or shine on Sunday and Monday, May 24-25 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the parking structure behind Jacobson's Apparel Store in the Village.

It's expected to attract between 10,000 and 15,000 people, said Beverly Leinweber, who organized the first sale 18 years ago.

"More than 160 vendors and nonprofit organizations will be selling things for the whole family," said Leinweber, a consultant and former director of the Village Merchants Association, which sponsors the event. As a bonus, "a lot of food" will be on hand, she said.

The sale is big enough to occupy three levels of the parking facility.

"The sale is a major fundraiser for the annual Christmas parade in the Village and other special events in the Village," said Leinweber.

Last year the parade's price tag of $15,000 included sponsoring floats and marching bands, said Jerry Valente, chairman of this year's sale. He is also president of the merchants association and owner of Valente

Admission is $1 for adults. Children under 12 years old get in

As the show has grown, it has increased in popularity. It's so wellknown that vendors have registered from as far away as Florida and South Carolina, Valente said.

Added Leinweber, "There's a list of 40 vendors waiting to sign on."

There will even be a concert pianist adding to the ambience - and seliing pianos, Valente said.

But it's still basically a garage sale, a great place for college students to stock up on low-cost furniture and kitchenware for that first off-campus apartment, and somewhere for nostalgia buffs to find an old recording or a vintage issue of Life magazine.

The sale includes collectibles as well as everyday stuff for which garage sales are known. "Almost anything you can come up with," said Leinweber.

Last year, participants chose from weather vanes, old jugs, hat racks and high chairs. There were adding machines and picture frames, buttons and stickers, wicker furniture, clothing and 10-gallon milk cans.

The sale's only point of contention concerns who deserves more credit for its success.

"Beverly started the sale," Valente

"The event is wonderfully organized all because of Jerry," said Leinweber. Beverly's the gung-ho force behind the event," stressed Valente. "No," insisted Leinweber. "Jerry's done the work. He is the sale." And so on. But no matter who gets the nod, the public gets the deals. One of the most popular vendors is known as the Sock Man. "He's been coming for years and sells thousands of socks," said Leinweber.

Not all vendors are dealers. "The sale also helps community organizations," Valente said.

The non-profit Grosse Pointe Animal Adoption Society will even help match people with pets. "We'll have between 25 and 50 puppies and kittens and dogs and cats available for new homes," said Corinne Martin, society president.

The society is a foster home-based adoption service. "We don't have a shelter," Martin said. "Our foster homes are all in Grosse Pointe." Last year, all of the animals they brought to the sale were adopted.

The society "had an excellent event last year. Everything we've done with the Village Association has been overwhelmingly successful," she said.

The Fox Creek Questers will donate their proceeds to the Provencial-Weir House, headquarters of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society.

Even Services for Older Citizens will be on hand, said Ann Kraemer, executive director. From its booth on the second level of the parking garage, SOC will offer savory condiments from Brownwood Acres, located near Traverse City, and sold under the SOC label.

"We'll have Brownwood's famous cherry butter, cherry salsa, cherry barbecue sauce and Kream mustard, said Kraemer. "These products are to die for. Some of our members tastetested them before voting on which toppings to sell."

The Grosse Pointe Animal Rescue will raise funds at the event. The Bouvier's Befrienders of Michigan will be promoting its adoption program. The Purebred Cat Rescue organization will be selling handmade items related to (what else?) cats and

The Friend's of St. Mary's Academy will offer mugs, memoirs, pins and sweatshirts, all with the SMA logo.

And for University of Michigan fans, Non-Charity Game Day Sales will be selling clothing and gifts promoting the Wolverines.

The real reason behind the popularity of Grosse Pointe's Greatest Garage Sale?

"We have nice garages," said Valente.

The Pastor's Corner A meditation on Mother's Day

By the Rev. John Corrado Grosse Pointo Unitarian Church

Dear belly button, You are trying to tell us something!

Ves. I know the sound of your name. brings a smirk or a laugh or a wince. In good, churchly, company, the sound of your name is inappropriate, undignified, ridiculous --- but, when you come to think of it, isn't that ridiculous?

Is there any part of us that is more a reminder of our sacred nature, and yet at the same time more humbling?

We cover you up.

yet the naked truth is that you are smack dab in the middle.

Doesn't that say something?

Aren't you, in your humble, quiet way, trying to tell us that we are not the center of things, that no one of us is even the center of the uni-he or she supposes to inhabit, manage or control?

Mutely you stand witness to the reality of our being.

We did not start as one.

We started as two from whom a third came into

And where did those two come from?

Is the truth you stand silent witness to simply this:

we are connected.

We are connected to a mother and a father even as each of them was connected to a mother and father, and those mothers and fathers were connected back, back, way back, before memory; connected so far back, that we have had to come up with stories, myths, legends to try to figure it all out.

Could you also be implying a belonging; a belonging to all human life that has gone and maybe even, if we can imagine back far enough, a belonging to all life?

Navel-gazing has a bad name. It has come to mean self-obsession.

But maybe if we call you by your less dignified belly button, we can dwell on you just a little bit. not to be absorbed in ourselves, but to go beyond thoughts of ourselves and get to thinking about where we come from and maybe how our destiny begins with a debt.

From the center of our physical beings may we get a sense of the center being itself.

Healthy life choices can halt heart disease

By Suzanne Gardner and Scot Hoverman Special Writers

The saying "you are what you eat" holds true for many of us when it comes to our health. Heap on a serving of physical inactivity, and you have a recipe for an increased

There still is no magic pill to cure heart disease, but medical research suggests that combining a very low-fat diet with regular exercise and stress reduction can stop the progression of heart disease in some persons, and in some cases can even reverse some of the damage.

Health care facilities nationwide, including Bon Secours Hospital, are offering such lifestyle-altering programs, based on the first of such programs designed by Cardiologist/Author Dr. Dean Ornish.

The program offered at Bon Secours, called 'Halting Heart Disease," is aimed at helping people with heart disease develop healthier lifestyles through change. Participants learn to make healthy life choices by applying what the program teaches them about heart disease, vegetarian and very low-fat diets, exercise, stress reduction and meditation.

The very intense program begins with a week-long orientation and continues for three months with twice-weekly programs, group support and exer-

Then, for an additional nine months, it continues with twicemonthly meetings and exercise. Ongoing support groups help cardiac patients and their families live heart-healthy lives.

The multidisciplinary team at Scot Hoverman Bon Secours consists of physician advisers, dietitians, physiologists, social workers and nurses. Program participants attend regular, supervised exercise sessions, lectures on making healthy lifestyle choices and heart-healthy cooking demonstrations. A physician referral is necessary to sign up. Also, participants must have undergone a cardiac stress test within six months prior to beginning the program.

Reduce your controllable risks

While there's no way to be sure, there are cortain risk factors for heart disease that can increase anybody's chance for heart attack. Program participants learn about the risk factors they can't control and take positive strides to modify their changeable risk factors.

The unchangeable risk factors for heart disease are: Age - The older you get, the more likely you will develop heart disease.

Sex - More men develop heart disease and develop it

Race - Black Americans have a greater risk of heart disease than white Americans.

Family history - If your close blood relatives had heart disease, you're more likely to develop it.

The changeable risk factors are: Smoking, high blood pressure, elevated cholesterol, obesity and living a sedentary lifestyle.

Comprehensive change is often easier than moderate change

Patient satisfaction with this type of intense lifestyle modification is surprisingly good, according to Ornish's research. It often is easier for people to make extensive changes in diet and lifestyle than to make only moderate

Lord Byron's fascination with Greece turns to tragedy

"On a Voiceless Shore: Byron in Greece" By Stephen Minta Henry Holt. 292 pages. $25.

Stephen Minta, an Englishman and an intrepid traveler, author of "On a fascinating account of Lord Byron's fascination with Greece, its picturesque history and colorful citizens.

As a lecturer in comparative literature at the University of York, Minta makes good use of his wide knowledge of the country, and his skill causes it to spring alive for the reader in all its magnificent glory. This book deals with the last few years of Byron's life, which he heroically devoted to Greece in its struggles against the Turks. Sadly, it turned out to be a lost cause, because Byron lost his life at the age of

The author begins: "Greece retains its remarkable capacity to absorb. This is a country that has known no settled history, only a succession of intrusions. A place where changes of fortune have often meant no more than changes of foreign ownership. It's been truly ravaged by time. Yet, by that strange paradox that strikes all travelers sooner or possession of itself. How often still, even in the face of the final levelings of late-20th century tourism, you find yourself saying, for better or worse, this could only be Greece. In devoting pages describing his own experiences in Greece, Minta faithfully traces the footsteps of Evron: "At this time of year, however fine the weather, you always travel with an eye on the clouds. As I crossed into Albania they were piled up on the horizon, white as summer, with the promise of easy days to come. In the customs office I met two old friends, both much changed, both victims of the new Albania. One used to be a poet, the other a folk dancer. Their former lives have become a symbol of the bad

old days, when the state controlled the arts, as it controlled everything else. So they, along with poetry and folk dancing, have fallen on hard times. They work seven days a week, 12 hours a day, and struggle to avoid nostal-

In 1809. Byron made his first venture into Greece with his friend. John Cam Hobhouse, and on their approach to the Albanian capital, Byron became "excited by the extravagance of Tepelena. It was a world that was at once both cosmopolitan and remote, a world of feudal splendor in which anything might to possible. The vision, once caught, held him forever and played its part in that dangerous surrender that would one day draw him back again to the East."

While there, "Byron found contrasts of great power. In a letter home, he recalled the magnificence of Albanian dress. Cloaks trimmed with gold, velvet gold-laced jackets, silver-mounted pistols and daggers. He remembered the sight of Turks in their high caps, castrated black slaves. Two hundred horses ready to move out at a moment's notice. The beating of kettledrums."

But, as Minta points out, the Greece of his youth was a celebration that had to end. England drew him back, idolized him, then cast him out. In the few years after his return to England, Byron exhausted all the conventional possibilities of belonging: family, marriage, country, and reputation.

This time, there was no release, and the rest of his life was a drifting search for a home elsewhere, first through love, then, finally, through political action.

The author tells how Greece affected Byron: "If I am a poet ... the air of Greece made me one.' What was most original about Byron is that he found in Greece not a paradise of monuments, as so many did, but a land of sensation, of sun, sea and sky; a place of mountains, a rough physicality of sunburn and dust. In a letter written in 1815, he quotes some recently published lines by Wordsworth. These lines show the kind of Greece that was fashionable at the time among those who looked through purely literary eyes

Minta explains the differences between the youthful Byron visiting Greece for the first time and the elder, worldweary Byron who came again to Greece for the last time: Byron was 21 when he first came to Greece; 35 when he returned for the second and final time. On that final visit in 1823-24, he carried an enormous baggage of memories, of failure and guilt, and sheer fatigue. By then he had long been the scandalous outcast of his native land. The baggage in 1809 was lighter, of course, and he came as a private man, where later he would return as one of the most public figures in Europe. The Byron of Albania is still an unformed personality, harder to interpret than the Byron of Mesolonghi, and much colored by inevitable introspection."

Byron and Hobhouse approached Athens in their minds: "A city on the edge of Europe, remote, Eastern, far from home, it seems to offer the final promise of the unfamiliar. Yet, by the depth of historical association, this is a city that provokes the illusion of an eternal homecoming. For, however irrelevant or contested the cliches now seem, Athens remains, for the Westerner, the place where everything in the West began: politics, democracy, literature, science, architecture, the pursuit of the beautiful. And the first sight of the rock of the Acropolis with its ruined temple, rising 300 feet above the city, has for generations, been a plausible symbol of everything that other nations owe to the Greek past." trait of Byron's final departure from England: He "set out for the port of Dover in his coach. He had had it spe-

Back in Greece, Byron quickly became involved in Greek politics and the war against Turkey. Mesolonghi is where he joined the Greek rebels in their fight to dislodge the hated Turks, but he became discouraged by the many intractable problems that arose: misunderstandings and underhanded dealings soon sapped his enthusiasm and vigor. As Minta suggests: "If there is a real point of tragedy in Byron's last days, it is beyond what happened in Mesolonghi. It lies, rather, in his reiteration of an old dilemma. The unresolved conflict that he saw, rightly or wrongly, as having shaped his life: Marathon or Sounion, public or private, self-sacrifice or self-indulgence. The author has followed Byron's footsteps to the end: "I had long been interested in Byron. He had first come to Greece pursuing no cause but his own self-satisfaction. Then years later, he had returned, and with a purpose. So I followed him, through northern Greece and Albania, Akarnania, and the Peloponnese. I went back to many places I had known, but each time I tried to imagine him there. And eventually I went back to Mesolonghi.

And that is where he died of a persistent fever, not on a bloody battlefield. Lord Byron, the great poet and adventurer, failed to win glory at Mesolonghi, but won worldwide immortality through his the time is "Tas pas 1,000 balles?" (Can you lend me 1,000 francs?) In fact, all they want is 10.

Or if someone has been shopping around, he or she may compare the cost of the same item in two different places by saying, "I saw that washer for 2,500 at Conforama but it'll cost you 300,000 at Samaritaine.

Until a few years ago, TV newscasters often quoted large figures in old francs for instance when reporting that someone won the lottery or the government clinched a trade deal. Ten million became one billion. After all, it sounds like so much more.

It got to the point where the government had to ban the use of old francs onscreen. Undaunted, newscasters merely switched to quoting such large sums in centimes (one hundred to the franc), to keep the zeros. What ingenuity. Imagine Americans quoting prices in

I wondered how they would ever cope if there were another devaluation. That would mean they'd have to grapple with old francs, new old francs, old new francs and new francs. They'd never make it.

But I needn't have worried. France has now signed the Maastricht Agreement that calls for a single currency throughout the European Union. On Jan. 1, 2002, France will switch over from counting and paying in francs to keeping its books in euros. One newscaster held up a 500 franc bill and declared it would soon become a "futur ex-ancien" (future ex-old).

Is there no stopping these people?

Grosse Pointe North senior Rachelle Atrasz, seated. has signed a letter of intent to swim at Oakland University. Rachelle is flanked by her parents, Ray and Laura Atrasz. Also pictured is Mike O'Connor, her coach at North and at the Pointe Aquatics swim club. Atrasz has received All-American, All-State and all-Macomb Area Conference honors during her career at North. She set MAC records in the 200 and 500-yard freestyle and in the 100 butterfly. She was the swimming team's most valuable athlete in 1996 and 1997 and was a member of North's record-setting 200 and 400 freestyle relay teams. Rachelle, who has participated in several Junior National meets as a Pointe Aquatics swimmer, will compete in the National High School Swimming and Diving Championships in Colorado Springs, Colo., June 6. The meet is for senior All-America swimmers and divers. At Oakland, Airesz will be coached by Scott Teeters, the former head coach of the Grosse Pointe Swim Club.
