Woods administrator to retire in December after 35-year tenure

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

After five years on the job and a total of 35 years of service to the city, Grosse Pointe Woods city administrator Peter Thomas announced last week that he intends to retire.

Thomas, 59, first started working for the city as a patrol officer in the public safety department on Jan. 1, 1964. He later became a corporal, then a sergeant, lieutenant, then finally deputy director of public safety. It was while he was in this position that he was appointed by the city council to replace city administrator Phil Belcher.

Peter Thomas

"I plan to enjoy my retirement," said Thomas. "The Woods is a great city and I've tried my best to do right by the city. I've enjoyed working for the council. I truly believe that they are not as appreciated by the public as they should be. They work very hard on behalf of the residents."

Thomas, who has a master's degree in public administration from Central Michigan University, became city administrator on Nov. 1, 1993, replacing Belcher, who only held the position for a few months. Belcher had taken the place of legendary city administrator Chester Peterson, who held the position for 30 years.

When asked if he had any other plans for working, Thomas replied with a strong no.

"It's been a great 35 years," said Thomas. "I've enjoyed the vast majority of my time working for the city, but I have other things I want to do."

The council must now appoint another city administrator. During the last search, they interviewed candidates from across the state, but ultimately decided to go with someone from within. Their options remain the same. If they don't find a replacement by the end of the year, the council has the option of appointing an acting city administrator.

$500,000 Blue Devil building side-lined

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Construction of a combined concession stand, rest room, meeting room and storage facility on the athletic field of Grosse Pointe South High School is on hold after the board of education rejected bids to build the facility.

Three bids ranging from $589,756 to $728,000 far exceeded the board's budget of $500,000 for the project.

According to Chris Fenton, the district's assistant superintendent of business affairs, the project will be rebid in about three months.

"Due to the expansion of the boys' and girls' athletic teams and the community use of the field, rest room facilities have been needed on the field for some time and are important for overall field development," said Fenton. Rest room facilities will be handicap accessible.

Until the project is finished, South's concession stand will continue operating out of a circular block structure at the north end of the stands, rest room facilities will remain inside the school at the south end of the sports complex, halftime meetings by football teams will take place in the end zones, and athletic equipment will be stored wherever there's room.

New laws beef up Pointe courts

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

The days are numbered for criminals convicted in Grosse Pointe municipal courts who think they can saunter into circuit court and sign up automatically for a brand new trial. Legislation introduced to end the right of automatic, called de novo, appeals from municipal to circuit courts is close to becoming law.

"De novo appeals tie up circuit court dockets needlessly," said Rep. Andrew Richner, R, District 1, who introduced the legislation. "The bill eliminates the ability of convicted criminals, as well as civil litigants, to appeal for a completely new trial in circuit court." The action will provide "some measure of finality to municipal court judgments."

Russell Ethridge, municipal judge in the City of Grosse Pointe, looks forward to the end of automatic appeals.

"There's no need for people to get a second bite at the apple in circuit court," said Ethridge.

The new laws will "remove the temptation for people to take municipal courts for granted," he said. "Municipal courts will now be like every other court in the state. It bodes well for the speedy administration of justice."

Richner's bill will also raise the civil jurisdiction from $1,500 to $3,000 and the conciliation division, which acts like a small claims court, from $100 to $600.

"These amounts haven't changed in 30 years and are consistent with the rate of inflation since the 1960s," said Richner. "The increases will provide a more convenient forum for residents of GP to have their civil cases heard."

Ethridge agreed. "It's a great development for the people in our community," he said. "We will be able to handle larger matters more expeditiously and quickly in our own backyard without Grosse Pointe residents having to head downtown to Wayne County Circuit Court."

The measures, which Richner said have the support of the State Bar of Michigan, are in conference committee.

Gov. John Engler is expected to sign the bills, said Richner. Municipal courts aren't required to enact the changes. "Implementation is at the option of the individual cities. We're authorizing the cities to make the changes, not mandating them," said Richner.

The Grosse Pointes and Eastpointe are the only communities in Michigan that use municipal courts.

Police from Grosse Pointe Farms petitioned the city for a pay raise. A report by chief Wilter Hoyt revealed that Farms police are the lowest paid among all five Pointes.

Throughout the ranks, from chief, lieutenant, sergeant, detective and patrolman, Farms officers are paid as much as 12 percent less than their counterparts in the other Pointes.

Grosse Pointe Woods council President Alois Ghesquiere requested that voters take part in a special election to decide the following: 1) a bond issue to purchase fire apparatus; 2) municipal building bonds issue; 3) the construction of drainage structures in and along the Milk River; 4) permission to sell a portion of Parkside, which extends into Gratiot Township.

Hopeful politicians have begun marring the otherwise ornate appearance of Grosse Pointe with their pictures and heart reaching appeals.

The Village councils don't like it and the Park, for one, will draft an ordinance to regulate the situation. In the Farms, police were ordered to remove all political posters that appeared to mar the public streets.

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education will test a new method of determining budget allocations.

On-site budgeting will be tested at several schools during the 1999-00 fiscal year.

Chris Fenton, director of business affairs, said the pilot program allows more people to become involved in the budgeting process, but takes more time.

About 3,100 trees owe their lives to the University Liggett School's Community Recycling Center. Since the facility opened in 1987, 182 tons of newspapers have been collected.

Starfest raised $11,000 for the computer lab at Our Lady Star of the Sea. The event was organized by the school's parent-teacher guild and raised twice as much money as the year before.

Students at Grosse Pointe North High School may have had their mouths watering for a four-keg beer party, but it was called off after Woods police learned of the party and called the party-thrower's mother.

She had planned to go out of town for the weekend, but changed her mind.

Charging that the program is invalid, uses outdated testing methods and is discriminatory, a group of parents submitted a 19-page report to the Grosse Pointe Board of Education to eliminate the magnet program for gifted and talented students. One parent was concerned about school funding dollars being channeled toward the program and away from the mainstream.

A report by the Detroit City Airport Study Committee challenged the City of Detroit's optimistic forecast regarding the airport's future. "Detroit used outdated and misleading statistical data on which to base its forecasts and assumptions," said John King, chairman of the committee.

Detroit officials in 1988 predicted airport traffic would increase between 1988 and 1993. Figures from Southwest Airlines indicated that the airline's traffic actually declined 11 percent between 1989 and 1991, and another 11 percent the following year.

A time capsule containing contemporary items to commemorate the centennial of Grosse Pointe Farms and City was buried at the foot of Fisher where the two cities meet.

Pointes weather quake in ho-hum fashion

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

It takes more than an earthquake to rattle Grosse Pointe. "There was an earthquake?" asked Tammy Cipoth, a new employee of IXL Glass in Grosse Pointe Woods.

"If I was shaking it was only because it was my first day on the job," she said. "There was an earthquake? Are you serious?"

At about 4 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 26, the Pointes were nudged by the remnants of a mild earthquake centered in northwest Pennsylvania. It was the biggest quake in the region since 1986.

Brandon Hayes felt the tremor and had reason to worry. He was sitting at a computer keyboard next to a 12-level shelf filled with merchandise in the back room of Something Special Too on Kercheval in the Farms.

Hayes experienced a quake in Utah a few years ago but never expected one in Michigan.

"The shelves started to creak," said Hayes. "I thought I was going insane."

He figured he was in an earthquake, but like people who are reluctant to announce seeing a flying saucer, "I didn't want to report it to anyone."

On the other hand, among a forest of lamps and chandeliers at Wright's Gift & Lamp Shop on Mack, "nothing moved, fortunately," said Bill Meldrum, owner of the 52-year-old business.

"A lighting store wouldn't fare well in a bad earthquake," he said. "Glass doesn't bounce well."

A bull in a china shop is a bad idea, but a minor shift of the Earth's crust is no big deal.

"Not a piece of china, crystal or silver moved," said Pat Brinker, owner of The League Shop on the Hill.

Jenny Smith, a college student from the City of Grosse Pointe, was loafing around the house Friday afternoon watching a video, "Angel Heart," instead of studying.

"It's a really freaky movie," said Smith. "At a scary part my chair started shaking. I jumped up to see if Ashley (the family dog) or something had crawled underneath but nothing was there."

She moved the chair, settled back in, finished the movie and learned about the earthquake later.

Life goes on.

Ashley said, "I didn't do it. Not me."

Brandon Hayes sets up a web page in the stock room of Something Special Too on the Hill. The shelf looming overhead gave him a few anxious moments during last Friday's earthquake.

Mack business successes add to parking woes in the Woods

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The very success of the recently opened Farmer Jack supermarket on Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods, while cheered by many who appreciate having a modern grocery store in the Pointes, has not been without a downside.

At two recent Grosse Pointe Woods city council meetings, both residents and business people asked the council to do something about the parking problems in the area of the new Farmer Jack supermarket.

At the Sept. 14 meeting, residents from the streets closest to the grocery store asked the council to do something about the increased traffic, the parking problems and noise, as well as light spillage from the parking lot lights.

Mayor Robert Novitke thanked them for coming and said that the store had only been open a few days. He, with the support of the city council, ordered the public safety department to monitor traffic and parking and to check noise and light problems. The results of the department's studies will be released at the Nov. 2 council meeting.

But at the next council meeting on Sept. 21, a group of business owners and their employees went before the council to ask that something be done about the lack of employee parking along Mack. They also complained that Farmer Jack employees were parking along Mack, taking spots away from other Mack business employees.

Ahmed Ismail of Speedi Photo said that recently the public safety department had started issuing $25 tickets to employees who had been parking on residential side streets for longer than the two hours allowed by city ordinances. These tickets were expensive, he said.

"It can get very busy at our store," said Ismail. "That makes it hard for employees to get away to move their cars before they receive a ticket. We ask that the council reduce the fine for parking so that it doesn't hurt our employees so much."

Novitke said that it was unlikely that the council would reduce the parking fine to, say $5. That action would have the effect of making it economically viable to ignore city parking ordinances. The fines for illegally parking in a residential zone are high for a reason, he said.

Hunt Club resident James Marshall then spoke up. He thanked the council for the recent crackdown on residential streets.

"I've lived in my house for 20 years," Marshall said. "For the first time in years, the city is enforcing the parking laws on my street. The parking problem during the day is terrible and we are glad that something is being done."

Novitke said that the council must balance the interests of people like Marshall as well as the interests of the business community.

Grosse Pointe Woods is more than homes and a vital business sector helps make the city attractive to live in, Novitke said. That means that business interest can't be ignored.

Novitke said that city officials had been in touch with Farmer Jack's management and were told that the staffing level for the first few weeks will be high, but once things settle down, the number of people on shifts will be smaller. He was also told that employees are being told to park in the store's lot or to use the shuttle services that have been arranged.

When it was suggested that the city allow parking along the street in front of the Farmer Jack parking lot, city administrator Peter Thomas said that the city took away the parking meters because there was a concern that cars would block the view of drivers attempting to exit the parking lot.

Several Mack employees

suggested that the city install some 10-hour meters in the municipal lot next to the Original House of Pancakes' parking lot. Novitke and parking committee chairman Eric Steiner said that was something the city could do right away.

Novitke suggested that those interested in becoming involved in finding a solution to the Mack parking problem attend a special Nov. 5 meeting of the city's parking commission where ideas could be discussed and suggestions could be taken.

It was also suggested that anyone wishing to attend the meeting to make a suggestion please attempt to get it to the committee via city hall before the Nov. 5 meeting. That way, the committee would have a chance to look at the merits and the problems of each suggestion before the meeting. This would act as a time saver.

"I just want to say that parking on Mack has been a problem and will probably continue to be a problem," said Novitke. "Buying homes in residential neighborhoods and turning them into parking lots may be legal, but in the past residents have strongly opposed such actions. A few years ago, the council came up with a plan to purchase property on Mack to create new parking lots, but the business community objected to helping pay the costs."

Novitke added that any solution to the parking problems on Mack would require some sort of financial commitment from the business community. He bluntly said that if the businesses weren't going to at least help defer the costs of creating new parking, then it most probably wouldn't happen.

"I urge you to attend our Nov. 2 meeting," said Novitke. "We will have the results of the public safety department's traffic study. Those interested in working toward a solution to the problem can also attend the Nov. 5 parking committee meeting."

City solves house fires

A hot and smoky three-alarm fire that threatened a house on Fisher in the City of Grosse Pointe three weeks ago was traced to a candle located on the floor of an upstairs bedroom, according to an investigation by Ron Wiczorek, the City's fire inspector.

A fire on Lakeland in August was found to have started in or near an electrical cable or outlet in a back bedroom, although the exact cause has not been determined, said police.

City woman bakes the state's number one German chocolate cake

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

"I want the first piece," said a chorus of little voices as the time came to cut the cake.

The Redlawski's were about to taste Michigan's top-rated German chocolate cake.

Cynthia Redlawski, of the City of Grosse Pointe, was surprised to learn that her super-charged family recipe had won first place at the 150th Michigan State Fair.

"This is the first time I've ever entered anything," she said.

"Mommy got a blue ribbon," said her 5-year-old daughter, Annie, beaming. Son Robert, like most 9-year-old boys, had a hard time controlling his taste buds. He aimed an outstretched index finger toward the frosting of the six-layer monument to outstanding baking.

"Hold on there," said his father, Steven.

Things quieted down a little after the cake was served. Robert dug in while his older sister, Caroline, 10, shared a piece with her dad. Abby, born only five months ago, sat on her mom's lap and seemed somehow to make sense of the whole thing.

"My dad told me to enter the contest because he says my cake is great," said Cynthia. He's right.

The cake is moist, rich and sweet, but not so filling that after a big piece any sane person wouldn't want another.

"It's really my mom's recipe, but I add tons more coconut, walnuts and pecans."

And how. The icing is one inch thick at the top. The blue ribbon recipe contains 28 ounces of coconut, six ounces of sweet chocolate and 14 ounces of pecan pieces.

"I wish I could have a whole slice," said Cynthia, "but I'm on a diet."

Cynthia loves to cook. The Redlawski's are a "meat and potatoes family," she said, and husband Steven loves it. "I have a special beeper code that I punch in when it's time for dinner and he shows up from work within five or ten minutes," Cynthia laughed. "It's true."

A new stove had recently been installed in their spacious kitchen. "My husband put that in. He can do anything and everything. Plumbing, carpentry, painting. He is a very hard 95 people. We'll have bratwurst, sauerkraut, pork apple strudel and numerous German chocolate cakes," she said.

In between, she takes the family down to volunteer at the Capuchin soup kitchen in Detroit.

The whole family volunteers at Capuchin. Annie even goes along to help clean tables.

"You're never too tired or too busy to do the things you really want to do," she said.

"My biggest pet peeve — ask anybody who's known me for a long time — are the words, 'I'm too tired.'" heard the tower talking to the Lear saying, 'Please be advised that there's a female solo pilot in front of you.'"

"Everybody's

"The jet pilot answered immediately. 'Tell me her exact location. I'll be back in five minutes,' and he left the area and didn't come back until after I landed. It was pretty funny," she laughed.

"It's great in the air. It's like skydiving. You're all by yourself and have time to think."

But there can be rough moments. "Once I hit jet wash," the turbulent air that a big airplane leaves in its wake. "We were flying at 1,800 feet and dropped 600 feet in two seconds. If my instructor wasn't with me I wouldn't be here now," she said.

"After we landed I was scared and shaking, but my instructor said 'let's go' and I went right back up. You have to if you're going to get over something."

It was as quiet an afternoon as it was ever likely to get in a household of four children. Robert and Caroline were in school. Little Abby was awake but quiet. The only sound she made was an occasional baby-sized sneeze that left her looking surprised by the noise she made. Five-month-old infants are easily amazed.

Annie, 5, played with a friend. "Mommy, can I go outside? I want to pretend I'm going to school."

"OK, honey," her mom said. She was off, carrying a pretend sack of lunch.

"When I take the kids down to work in the soup kitchen I tell them how fortunate they are to live in a place like Grosse Pointe," she said.

"They have to know that 90 percent of the people don't live like we do. The Pointes are a fantasy life for most people. I don't want to bring my kids up thinking that life is all big houses, parties and fun times."

"I even take Abby with me to the soup kitchen. To say I couldn't go because I have to take care of the kids would just be another excuse," she said.

Cynthia Redlawski, left, of the City of Grosse Pointe, improved on her mother's family recipe to win first place for her German chocolate cake at the 1998 Michigan State Fair. "I add tons extra coconut, walnuts and pecans," she said. Her family likes the recipe, as 5-month-old Abby looks on while Robert, 10, Annie, 5, Caroline, 10, and husband Steven dig in.

worker. That's how he stays in shape after eating all my cooking," she said.

It's a Sunday afternoon in the Redlawski household. The family sits around the breakfast table sampling mom's winning cake. Time is marked by a dog-faced wall clock.

"My husband and I got into an argument over that clock," said Cynthia. Whiskers form the clock's hands. The tongue wags back and forth, marking time.

"It's a great conversation piece," she said.

So are the three-foot long patio slabs shaped like big feet.

"I like to collect different things," she said. "I have even more things packed away waiting to be moved in," she said.

Cynthia is a busy person. She has four children. She's in the process of moving into a new house. She cooks seven-course meals on a daily basis. She's gearing up to host a huge Oktoberfest party. "I'll cook for Everybody's busy, but you're never too tired to do the things you really want to do."

Like taking flying lessons at Detroit City Airport.

She became interested in flying while working in the emergency room at Henry Ford Hospital. She was part of a medical team that recovered patients from northern Michigan and brought them to the hospital in Detroit.

"I wanted to be in the cockpit. The first time I ever soloed was the most memorable event that happened to me," she said.

"My instructor walked me to the plane. I got in but he didn't. He said, 'You're on your own.' I said, 'Wait a minute, wait a minute. I don't think I'm ready for this.' He shut the door."

She took off and everything was fine. "As I was on my downwind approach to the airport getting ready to land, I learned that a Lear Jet was coming in right behind me. I

Apologies in order from 4 in rape case

With one defendant in the North High School sex case having pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor, the three other defendants were to appear in court Wednesday for consideration of plea bargains that would also mean lesser charges.

In pleading guilty to conspiracy to contribute to the delinquency of a minor, Daniel Granger, one of the four defendants, did not apologize to anyone but did offer this comment:

"In late 1997 or early 1998, I agreed with others in the City of Grosse Pointe Woods to have sexual penetration with individuals under the age of 16, and during that time period I engaged in sexual penetration with the three unnamed girls who were North High School freshmen at the time.

Granger will be sentenced Oct. 14 by Circuit Judge Timothy Kenny, who last week accepted Granger's plea of guilty to a lesser charge than the original felony sexual charge.

At that time, it would be appropriate for Granger to apologize for the damage he has done and the embarrassment he has caused in the Grosse Pointe community.

Such an apology ought to be made to his own family, to the girls involved and their families, to his school and his classmates, and to the entire community.

In fact, each of the other three young men should offer similar apologies if and when their plea bargains are approved by the court.

It will be up to Judge Kenny to decide how long Granger's sentence will be.

If he had been convicted of the earlier charge, Granger would have been required to have served up to 15 years without the possibility of probation, which cannot be granted to anyone convicted of felony sexual assault.

If plea bargains are accepted for all four defendants, thus enabling the courts to dispose of this case without a trial, everyone in the Pointes would breathe a sigh of relief.

It is true, of course, that the courts have an obligation to get to the bottom of this mess, but we question the continued delays in court rulings in answer to demands of lawyers for the prosecution and the defense.

"I hope that this plea will reaffirm the law and send the message that certain behavior is wrong," Baker said. "I hope that Granger's public admission of his actions shows that these charges weren't made up and that the incidents described by the three victims actually happened."

So maybe the end of this disgraceful case is now in sight. When it arrives, the downtown papers and TV and radio stations can cease their repeated coverage of the limited number of facts that became available in the case.

It was a way, of course, for some of the media to kick the Grosse Pointes around, which they have a propensity to do, even though a number of their own staff members and management live in the Pointes.

No debates? It's public loss

It is disappointing that the lone debate that had been scheduled between the two candidates for governor has been canceled.

Unfortunately, it was also the occasion for some Detroit News and Free Press commentators to make further fun of Geoffrey Fieger's candidacy.

Pete Waldmeir, our old friend and former sports commentator, used the occasion to contend that if the debate had been held, "Fieger probably would have insisted that these stage shows be moderated by Jerry Springer, or perhaps his No. 1 client, Jack 'Dr. Death' Kevorkian."

And then he went on to throw mud all over the Democratic candidate, calling him names, and making what he apparently regarded as humorous remarks about Democrats who have questioned some of Fieger's stands.

Pete just doesn't get it. There is a serious reason for debates, as John Engler himself realized when he was challenging the incumbent governor, James Blanchard, in his first try for the gubernatorial office.

Engler modestly called for as many as eight debates in order to cover all the issues.

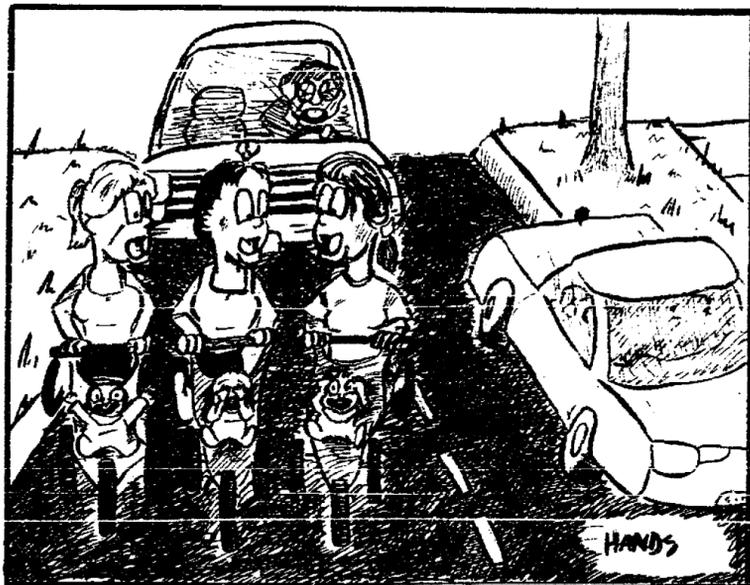

Engler finally got three debates back then, and they helped him lift himself by his bootstraps to become a strong contender — and the winner — by the time of the election arrived.

So if a series of debates was useful to Engler and to the Michigan voting public back then, why could they not have been useful to the public this year in displaying the differences between Gov. John Engler and his Democratic opponent?

Sure, it could have been a circus, as Pete claims, but it also could have been helpful to prospective voters to have seen Fieger's serious side and his review of the governor's record.

Fieger has offered proof that at least some of the charges made against him have been taken out of context, but it is disappointing that few if any political writers or TV experts have sought to report the serious side of the challenger's campaign.

In fact, if Pete and his colleagues had covered Fieger carefully, they and the public might have learned something about the governor's record on such matters as road conditions, welfare, education, preferential taxes and other real issues.

Letters

An open letter to President Clinton

Dear Mr. President, It's time to resign the office which means so much to you and which you strove so mightily to achieve.

The millions of Americans who have admired and supported you deserve no less. You have lost our confidence, and we no longer trust in your judgment and gravely doubt your ability to lead the republic.

Judge Starr and his report are not the issue. Many of us believe that he has engaged in a cynical witch hunt, motivated by a personal animus and partisan fervor, to bring you down. The tawdry and prurient details he adduces do not amount to "high crimes and misdemeanors" for which you should be constitutionally impeached.

No, Mr. President, the real issue is honesty: You lied under oath to the grand jury; you continue to lie (mostly now through your lawyers). You have deceived your loved ones and confidants. We really cannot believe in you anymore.

While resigning is a painful alternative, it would have several positive consequences.

Your vice president, Mr. Gore, shares your philosophy and is well-qualified to work with Congress to achieve a moderate legislative program. The advantage of his incumbency in the year 2000 election is too obvious to ignore.

You and your family can obtain respite from the unrelenting media, which (like moths to a light bulb) pry endlessly into every detail of your past. As president, you cannot avoid these "paparazzi." As a former president, you could have some peace and privacy.

Finally, other presidents who left office under a cloud later achieved rehabilitation and respect: Herbert Hoover helped feed the world; Jimmy Carter is justly revered for his humanitarian zeal; and even Richard Nixon became an admired foreign policy counselor in retirement. With your talents and charisma, you will surely find good works and achieve a better historical standing than you currently deserve.

Mr. President, enough. Please do the right thing and step away.

Defends Clinton

To the Editor: There has been a great deal of talk about how serious perjury is — even hair-splitting perjury about your sex life. But every person who signs a less than perfectly accurate tax return commits perjury. Should all of them lose their jobs?

It has also been said repeatedly that no one is above the law. How true. But no one should be beneath it, either. President Clinton has had the full weight of the federal government thrown against him. Tactics that are used to investigate his sex life were formerly used against organized crime figures and major drug dealers. Time and again, illegal leaks have sought to embarrass and demean him.

The last straw was the release of thousands of pages of Monica Lewinsky's sexual fantasies and alleged activities that were supposed to be secret on the Internet. I cannot conceive of any other American who has ever been treated this way.

In their zeal to destroy the president, the Republicans and their hard-core "Christian" zealots are destroying the office and harming the country at the same time. With the financial situation so precarious, we can ill afford the luxury of such scorched-earth tactics. Political instability in the United States is all we need to trigger another depression.

If people need father figures and role models, let them look to real fathers and real clergymen. The president is a CEO that we hire to run the country. On that score, President Clinton is a great success.

How wonderful it would be if the media treated Clinton the way they treated Kennedy. And how ironic it is that the Republican majority on the House Judiciary Committee, supported by the Christian Coalition, has become the largest purveyor of smut and pornography in the country.

Eileen M. Hayes
Grosse Pointe Woods

Mad at Clinton

To the Editor: Author William Bennett shares my conviction that our society is woefully lacking in moral outrage. The latest travesty by our president merely brings it to dramatic and long-overdue recognition.

Our television screens and our Internet sites have continued to reflect a society in steady moral decline, but I also see us on the brink of a spiritual revolution. If this hunger for spirituality is to be nourished and fed, it will not be satisfied by finger-pointing and the stone-throwing spectacle we have witnessed these many months.

Right wing pushing GOP?

A new poll by the New York Times indicates that conservative Republicans are pushing the House moves to impeach President Clinton.

In a general poll, 54 percent of all respondents disapprove of the way the House is handling the matter involving the president and Monica Lewinsky. Only 35 percent approve.

But 56 percent of the conservative Republicans polled approved of the House actions and only 35 percent disapproved.

Since Christian Coalition leaders Pat Robertson and Ralph Reed have recently had private consultations with the GOP leadership, it could be assumed that the House's strong steps have been in response to the conservatives' demands.

In another question seeking which congressional option should be followed, 43 percent of all respondents said Congress should drop the Clinton-Lewinsky matter, 27 percent said impeachment hearings should begin and 26 percent favored censure.

But among conservative Republicans, 61 percent favored impeachment hearings, 19 percent favored censure, and 18 percent wanted to drop the matter.

Overall, 78 percent of all Americans responding to the Times poll, and even 65 percent of Republicans, said that the president's videotape should never have been released.

And yet the Republican majority on the Judiciary Committee has contended that it released the videotape for the public's benefit.

McGwire new Sultan of Swat

With his record 70 homers in one season, Mark McGwire has just become the new Sultan of Swat in a season-ending hitting surge for his St. Louis Cardinals.

Sammy Sosa of the Cubs went homerless over the weekend as well as in the playoff game against the San Francisco Giants on Monday. His 66 still was second to Mark McGwire's record-breaking 70.

However, Sosa, always the team player, singled twice and scored two runs for the Cubs in their 5-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants Monday night. The second became an insurance run for his team in the eighth.

For the Cubs, it's now on to Atlanta to face the Braves in the best-of-five first round of play that started Wednesday.

The Giants went hitless for the first six innings with Steve Trachsel scaring the opposition with his wildness and his velocity.

But after he was removed, things really got tight with the Giants threatening to take the lead in the ninth.

But all's well that ends well for the Cubs this time.

The Detroit Tigers, who ended the season on a losing note, did come within one out of being no-hit by a rookie pitcher making his second major league start.

Roy Halladay of Houston had a no-hitter with two out in the ninth when Tiger pinch-hitter Bobby Higginson hit the first pitch over the left field fence for his 25th homer of the season.

Justin Thompson, the Tigers' hard-luck pitcher, ended the season with his 15th loss against 11 wins. The Tigers once again failed to hit for the stylish left-hander.

More important, by playing their best ball of the season in winning seven of their last 10 games, the Tigers avoided last place in the American League, nosing out Tampa Bay by two games.

The Tigers 1998 record: 65 wins, 97 losses.

Now on to the playoffs and the World Series!

They just don't get the Pointe

Last week, The Detroit News reported in a series of stories about the statutory rape of three 14-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods girls that several mansions have been torn down and the properties subdivided.

By inference, then, the demolition of private properties in the early 1970s somehow led to the rape of three girls in the late 1990s. Or so much what a Detroit News reporter would have us believe in the three-part, six-plus-page series.

Never mind that the Woods boys charged in the incidents weren't even born when the mansions were torn down.

Somewhat I don't see the segue here. Where's the cause and effect? Where is there any possible link between the two?

The reporter apparently spent three months on the story, talking to those embroiled in the highly publicized rape case involving North students and to members of the community, including Leon Sehojan, the well-known and well-regarded hair salon owner.

Sehojan didn't come by his successful business nor his Grosse Pointe Shores home easily. The hardworking Armenian grew up in Ecorse, served with the Marines in the bloody Pacific campaign during World War II and, over the past 50 years, arrived where he is today through sweat equity.

Having arrived in the Pointes the hard way, Sehojan is proud of his adopted community and is one of its leading proponents and protectors. A scuba diver and the founder of the Grosse Pointe Farms Marine Rescue squad, Sehojan has risked his life in frigid Lake St. Clair many times to save motorists and passengers whose cars slid into the lake.

He, like many other Pointes, became weary of all the negative press the Pointes have received due to the rape case. So when the Detroit News reporter showed up at the hair salon, Sehojan was more than willing to show him around, to preach all the good things about living in the Pointes.

Sehojan said the reporter seemed very interested. "He seemed like a friend," Sehojan said.

Then the story came out on Monday. The reporter was no friend to Sehojan — or the Pointes.

Written in that long, biased, i-want-to-win-a-Pulitzer-Prize style so common to reporters doing a big-daily "expose," the reporter connects totally unrelated events, people, quotes and anecdotes and weaves them into an abstract tapestry that may, when one squints, look like real life but which, in reality, distorts the truth.

But this is not new with the Detroit media, whose editors have never seen a negative Grosse Pointe story they didn't like. The irony is that many employees of the Detroit papers — including reporters, editors, executives and publishers — have lived and do live in the Pointes. How can they rationalize their residency with such an attitude toward their own community?

Had the statutory rape case happened in Riverview, Hazel Park or New Haven, would the Detroit media overdosed on it as they have with the Grosse Pointe case? I doubt it.

The Detroit papers love to bash Grosse Pointe. I think they consider it their social good deed by hammering away at the naves, who, they believe, must have somewhere along the line screwed the have-nots.

"What the self-righteous champions of the poor fail to tell you is that they probably make more money than the have-nots."

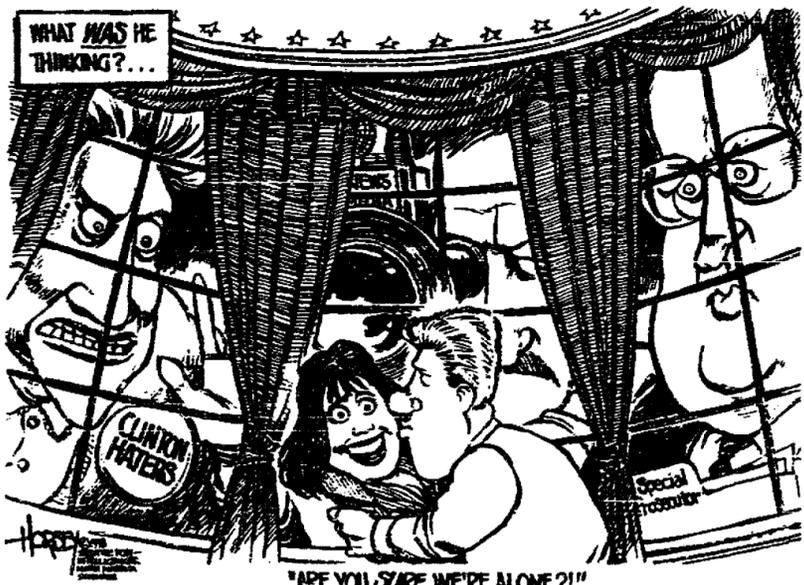

So Sehojan and the Pointes in general are feeling abused, that they've been painted by the Detroit media by an awfully broad brush. They're right. But they also should expect it and, as the saying goes, consider the source.

The Detroit dummies say we've been "shocked," "shocked" and "shaken" by the rape allegations. No we haven't. Rather we're dismayed and disappointed, as any community would be.

Clinton's testimony — four hours

There is a famous story of the womanizer who was discovered "in flagrante delicto" by his wife with his latest lady-love. The wife was about to flail this adulterer with expletives when the scoundrel demanded, "Are you going to believe me or your lying eyes?"

The president's videotaped testimony before the Starr grand jury skillfully avoided answering any questions which would have in effect admitted to perjury. If his political enemies focused on his inappropriate intimate behavior, it was only to bring him down. He considered his sexual life private, whether in the White House or not.

He said that "most people" understand that "sexual relations" means genital intercourse, and he denied having sexual relations with Monica Lewinsky, then a 21-year-old intern. According to a hair-splitting definition of sex, she had sexual relations with him, but he didn't have sexual relations with her. Most of us with vivid imaginations tried to visualize possible scenarios. Some of these salacious phantasmagorias were the source of endless guffaws by late-night comedians. Not everybody thought they were funny.

In the end, the president's testimony left the attempted prosecution for perjury and obstruction of justice as "he said, she said..." but if there were no eye-witnesses to the actual alleged "sexual" behavior, there is no case. Except for the fact that Starr, in his great thoroughness and dedication to the task, politically motivated or not, obtained much corroboration, which is now just being released as thousands of bound pages made available to the public for a token fee.

The public must be informed. You can bet that expert fast readers will pore over the "evidence" eagerly and try to analyze whether the president was telling the truth or not. Others are concerned more about whether it all matters.

Clinton has admitted to lying and now, finally, truthfully "confesses." But he won't admit to any details, details which would be damaging. Probably millions of Americans watched the four hours of testimony and have become the jury in this vast, town-hall of history.

Congress can vote for censure or impeachment. Many hope Clinton will resign. Many hope he will not, as they fear another 10 years of Gore. It is all so very complex. The country is divided, the Democratic Party is divided, and the Republican Party seems under the sway of the religious right. And what will be the verdict of the women's movement?

Don Imus, the outspoken radio and TV personality, doesn't believe Clinton and calls him a "white-trash redneck in the White House." Years ago at a "roast" he was the keynote speaker and raked the Clintons over the coals, strongly implying lying, adultery, cynicism and hypocrisy. Bill and Hillary were greatly discomforted, and Imus was criticized for being so disrespectful.

His answer was that everybody knew who he was and what he was when he was invited — a radical, outspoken, provocative maverick. And everybody knew who Bill Clinton was when he was nominated and elected. There should have been no surprises.

Clinton handled himself expertly as damaging evidence and testimony were thrown in his face. What did people think? That he would break down and cry or have a fit of anger? He was angry at times, but was able to convey a righteous anger at a right-wing, witch-hunting independent counsel trying to bring down the Democratic president and the "liberal" presidency

To this date, the country is divided about Starr. Some think it is all political, others maintain his motive is prosecutorial, as that is his job definition. People say Starr is going too far, that he has crossed a certain line. If Starr's report is accurate, many people will say that Clinton has gone too far in abuse of power. But the polls seem to show that two-thirds of the country still approve and do not want him removed from power. He is given credit, whether or not it is due, for the relatively stable and growing economy.

It is said that Europeans are amused by American mores and the hypocrisy which underlies them. Actually, Europe generally is more tolerant of adultery than Americans, but not of their leaders lying to them. Some of their leaders have been discharged from public office when it became clear they were lying.

One can ask, at this late date, what could have motivated Clinton to have committed wrongdoings that he would have trouble wiggling out of? I don't know if it is "character" or neurochemical imbalance (addiction) or a combination of both.

But I think we can devise an understandable motivation for him to stonewall the details and maintain that he did not commit or suborn perjury, obstruct justice or abuse power. The answer is "follow the money."

If the American people exonerate him, he will continue to be a successful fundraiser. If the American people do not believe him, and in fact develop a distrust of the man, he will not be a successful fundraiser. In that case he would no longer be an asset to the Democratic Party and he would have lost his power.

This is not the first time a person with unconscious guilt from a lifetime of transgressions and lying eventually becomes overwhelmed by the sheer weight of conscience, even if the deep cesspools of the mind are unconscious.

Lovin', fresh from the oven

Firefighters were putting away their gear from a big one on Lakepointe in the Park recently when a lady from down the street trudged over, balancing three freshly made key lime pies in her arms.

As she handed them out to the surprised and grateful crews, she explained that they had put out a fire at her own house a few years back and she'd never forgotten how helpful they all had been.

She's our own Ms. Senior G.P.

One of Mrs. Dorothy Ignasiak's most prized possessions is a pearl-beaded rosary given to her by Pope John Paul II. "He gave it to me for a song," says the Woods senior, explaining that she sang for the Pontiff on a trip in 1997.

Dorothy Ignasiak

Next Thursday, Oct. 9, Dorothy will sing in the Ms. Senior Michigan Pageant at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts in Clinton Township. She is one of 10 semifinalists chosen to compete in the event, which starts at 1:30 p.m.

Some people might think that special rosary would be the ideal good luck charm, but Dorothy probably won't be taking it along with her. "It's just a personal memento," she says. "I'll be relying on what God has given me."

Dorothy is still amazed that she's in the running. "It's unbelievable, but true," she says. The requirements? You have to be over-60 and have talent.

The wife of Ford retiree Eugene Ignasiak, Dorothy has been a private voice student at Oakland University for 11 years. "I've also studied in Grosse Pointe for many years and have sung at retirement homes and for the Grosse Pointe Women's Symphony Association," she says.

"The pageant (is) for selection as a gracious lady who best exemplifies the dignity, maturity and inner beauty of all Michigan senior citizens," reads a proclamation by Woods Mayor Eric Steiner, who extended the best wishes of the entire community for her success.

"The Grosse Pointe Woods Senior Citizens have very kindly helped me," Dorothy says. "And my husband, Gene, has also been very supportive."

"I'm still in love with him," she adds. Her talent song? "It's Almost Like Being in Love."

Winner of the state title gets to designate $500 for the charity of their choice. "Whether I win or not, I'm hoping many of my friends will come," says Dorothy.

As I watch this sordid event, it fills me with outrage, of course, but not shock or surprise. Any man who would condone abortion and the atrocity of partial birth abortion, could not, in my opinion, be a man of moral character.

Clearly, he was not blessed with the extraordinary parents that was my good fortune. This man who admitted to an affair with Gennifer Flowers still managed to be elected president. I did not vote for the man and I would prefer that he leave the office in his own self-made disgrace.

I do not say that with an expression of smug satisfaction, but with a sense of disillusionment at our entire political system.

I can tell you as a person with strong Catholic roots, I have plenty of outrage, but it is not directed at Bill Clinton. He has performed exactly as I expected he would.

Clearly, the destruction of President Clinton has been sufficiently ensured by shortcomings in his moral character, despite his obvious political talent.

My outrage and disillusionment is directed to the party that has taken pride in its banner of the "moral majority." Why then have we had to endure this orgy of self-righteousness? The Judeo-Christian culture that we proudly proclaim becomes a distortion of ultimate hypocrisy when it evolves over these months into a Jerry Springer spectacle.

I was disgusted with the fall of Bill Clinton, but not surprised. I was disillusioned at the display of hypocrisy on the faces of his critics who call themselves Christians and yet seem to have a sense of glee over the revelations of a sinner's sordid mistakes.

I expected an expression of disapproval, disgust and sadness for a fallen man and the American people.

Instead I have been shocked to see a mean-spirited, vulturous demeanor as this soul has been laid bare.

My faith teaches me to pray for sinners. I am reminded that a Savior did not die on the cross for perfect people. For that we should all thank God.

When the tragedy reached its revolting climax with the release of those very X-rated documents, I was appalled to see the pictures of Kenneth Starr with a big, happy grin. This is a shameful time in American history. Why the smirks and smiles of those who should be promising the voters a better choice in the next election.

The sober demeanor of Congressman Newt Gingrich, Sen. Orrin Hatch and the class act of Sen. McCain should have set the tone.

Even those who believe in the death penalty would be revolted to see a smile on the face of the executioner.

We should be praying for the soul of this tragic figure and for our own souls as well. You'll never convince me that his character deficiencies could not have been revealed without all those sordid and salacious details. Where is our judgment?

As we struggle to explain this mess to our children and grandchildren, I can't help but be outraged at the way it was handled. Does the end justify the mean? How shameful! How sad!

Leave park alone

To the Editor:

October 20, at 7 p.m., the Grosse Pointe Shores Council will finalize plans for the new activities building at the municipal park.

The site is currently cordoned off with yellow tape. It is one thing to imagine it in your mind and another to actually see it physically. My personal reaction was one of extreme dismay. Imagining a building on that site was like looking at the RenCen.

Webster's describes a park as an area of land containing woods, lakes; an open square with benches, trees; a large area known for its natural scenery.

There is nothing more pleasurable than entering our park and seeing the open expanse before you. This vista will be gone. Many trees will be gone.

This building will take the place of the children's playcape. The playcape will be relocated to the back area bounding Lakeshore Road parking lot. Parents will have to trek out back away from the park proper to play with and supervise their children, in the windy enduring fumes from Lakeshore Road parking lot traffic. A picnic area will be totally isolated.

Obvious — No building or playcape planned on the GPYC side. Is it reserved to "transfer" to the GPYC? Some persons want a harbor view from the building. Build at the frontage by the GPYC. Dick Mertz's statement in the Spring/Summer Shorelines was misleading. Our ingress and egress to our harbor is protected with the last land "transfer".

I confess to having been uninformed of the exact final location, perhaps you have also. Please! Take the time to view it. Let the council know your feelings before it is too late.

Job well done

To the Editor:

On behalf of Grosse Pointe South High School, I would like to thank the Grosse Pointe community and high school principals Arthur Miller and Caryn Wells and their staff for their extraordinary effort in making the Sept. 11 night football game a magnificent success.

The keystone for the success was rooted in the willingness of so many individuals to share their precious time and talents for a community event. What a beautiful evening it was for approximately 6,000 fans and participants.

Parking accommodations were provided by the city of Grosse Pointe Farms in concert with St. Paul Catholic Church, Richard Elementary, the Farms Pier Park, the City Park, the Hill, the Village and St. James Lutheran Church and assisted by a shuttle service by Cottage and Bon Secours hospitals.

A very special thank you goes to Robert Ferber and Al Fincham, directors of public safety for the Farms and the City. Thanks also go to Farms detectives Michael McCarthy and Rick Good for their continuing support of the Grosse Pointe South school activities.

A titanic token of gratitude to president Doug Allar and Doug Hess, Chuck Maniaci and the South Booster Club for the outstanding job of organizing volunteers and Jim Champagne and the Grosse Pointe North Booster Club for their assistance.

Thank you to Joe Cimino, certified athletic trainer and staff, to Brian Taylor (ground keeper), chief custodian Chuck Rose and head engineer Jay Jeffery, parking lot supervisor, Dawn Hover, Larry Yankauskas and the maintenance staff, and the entire South staff for making the evening. A big thank you to Ted Stephens and National Coney Island for the concession and taigate opportunities, and the South and Fed Baron cheerleaders, the South and Pointe choirs, the South television crew, the press box crew, the chain gang, and to the Red Baron football coaches and everyone who donated their talent for the evening.

And last, but not least, a very, very special thank you to the Blue Devils and Norsemen football teams and to coach Mike McLeod, coach Frank Sumner and the coaching staff for a wonderful evening of football.

We are extremely fortunate to have many support groups, individuals and agencies who provide a positive experience for our students and families. To all the people that made this evening so successful, I thank you.

This event sets the tone for the 1998-1999 school year — good sportsmanship, cooperation and healthy competition.

Michigan lighthouses brighten fall color

The Great Lakes State has scores of lighthouses which help to guide ships at night, but also brighten autumn's palette during the day. To help shed some light on Michigan's ever-changing scenery, travelers should consider combining a fall color trek with a visit to a lighthouse. AAA Michigan recommends the following "bright" spots on this year's fall color tour:

Upper Peninsula
• Copper Harbor Lighthouse and Museum, in Fort Wilkins State Park, East US-41 on the Keweenaw Peninsula. Phone: (906) 289-4215.
• Au Sable Point Lighthouse and Maritime Museum, part of Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore, 10 miles east of Grand Marais off H-58. Phone: (906) 387-3700.

Lower Peninsula
• Grand Traverse Lighthouse Museum, nine miles north of Northport in Leelanau State Park. Beautifully restored. Phone: (616) 386-7553.
• Point Betsie Lighthouse, on Point Betsie Road, off M-22 just a few miles north of Frankfort. A favorite with artists. Phone: (616) 352-7251.
• Little Point Sable Light. This tall, stately light sits in Silver Lake State Park southwest of Hart and is accessible via Shelby Road, off US-31. Phone: (616) 873-3083.

• Grand Haven Pier Lights. At the mouth of the Grand River in Grand Haven State Park. A favorite for fishermen. Phone: (616) 842-4910.
• Old and New Presque Isle Lighthouse Museums. Two lights on Grand Lake Road just north of the Village of Presque Isle (through Oct. 15). Phone: (517) 595-9917.
• Tawas Point Lighthouse. It guards the northwestern entrance to Saginaw Bay, just east of East Tawas, off US-23. Phone: (517) 362-4429.
• Pointe Aux Barques Lighthouse Museum. "Point of the Little Boats" is two miles south of Huron City, off M-25 in a county park. Phone: (517) 428-4749 or (517) 269-6404.

Public safety officers from the City of Grosse Pointe inventory a car load of loot recovered when two men suspected in a three-week crime spree were apprehended. From left, Sgt. Lyle Reece, Detective James Fox and PSO Alan Gwyn, who made the arrest, process dozens of stolen items.

City police arrest two suspects for a three week crime spree

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

The careers of two chronic criminals took a nose-dive last week when they were caught by a patrol officer from the City of Grosse Pointe.

Larcenies from at least seven Detroit-area communities, including three of the Pointes, were cleared after two men from Detroit said they committed a string of thefts from motor vehicles during the last three weeks.

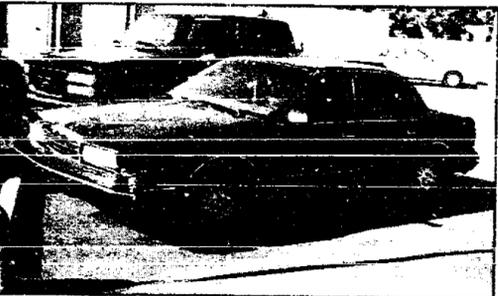

PSO Alan Gwyn arrested the pair after spotting them cruising near the Village on Wednesday, Sept. 23.

David Nathan Mersier, 23, and DeShawn Johnson, 22, were arrested on felony charges in connection with larcenies from motor vehicles in the City and Grosse Pointe Farms. Mersier is free on $10,000 bail. Johnson, who police said has a history of felony convictions, was unable to raise $25,000 bond and remains locked up in Wayne County Jail.

Gwyn was on routine patrol when he saw a blue 1992 Buick that matched the description of a car used in at least six break-ins and enterings of vehicles parked in the 17000 and 18000 block of Mack Avenue on Sept. 14. After stopping the car and approaching the suspects, who also matched witness descriptions, Gwyn saw a suspicious amount of cell phone equipment in the back seat. He called for backup and the suspects were arrested.

The pair are suspected in at least 20 larcenies, police said. In addition to crimes in the City and Farms, police have linked the pair to break-ins in Grosse Pointe Park, Southfield, Dearborn,

The suspects' car matched a description given to PSO Alan Gwyn in connection with a series of recent breaking and enterings of vehicles along Mack Avenue.

Woods OKs variance for Red Wings' trainer

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

It was the kind of request for which zoning variances were created.

The Grosse Pointe Woods city council recently granted the family of former Detroit Red Wings Sergei Mnatsakanov permission to make a number of alterations to his home so that it be made handicap accessible.

Under city zoning ordinances, homes in Mnatsakanov's neighborhood are required to have a side yard setback of at least four feet.

A proposed addition to the upstairs of the Mnatsakanov house would leave only a 1.5 foot setback, said Woods building inspector Melissa Spranger.

Frank Palazzolo, attorney for the Mnatsakanov family, explained that in order to install a variety of equipment meant to service the needs of a handicapped resident.

Mnatsakanov's case manager, Charlotte Tobias, spoke to the council explaining the nature of her client's injuries.

In June 1997, Mnatsakanov was a passenger in limousine that involved in an accident.

He suffered serious injuries in the accident that left him a paraplegic. He was left with the use of only one arm.

These injuries, said Tobias, necessitate his using special equipment for physical therapy at home as well as a lift for such activities as getting up the stairs and building a barrier-free bathroom.

The plans also call for building a 2 1/2 car detached garage farther back on the property to allow wheelchair access to the garage via a ramp from the house.

The garage must also be large enough to house a van designed to handle a wheelchair.

This includes leaving a lane large enough between vehicles so that someone in a wheelchair can get in and out of the van.

Because Mnatsakanov needs to use a wheelchair to get around in the house as well, said builder Al Smith, certain interior room designs will be used to make navigation easier.

Wheelchairs have turn radius' that had to be taken into account when plans for the house were drawn up. It is for that reason that the designs could not stay within zoning boundaries.

Councilman Al Dickinson questioned the need to infringe on the side yard setback.

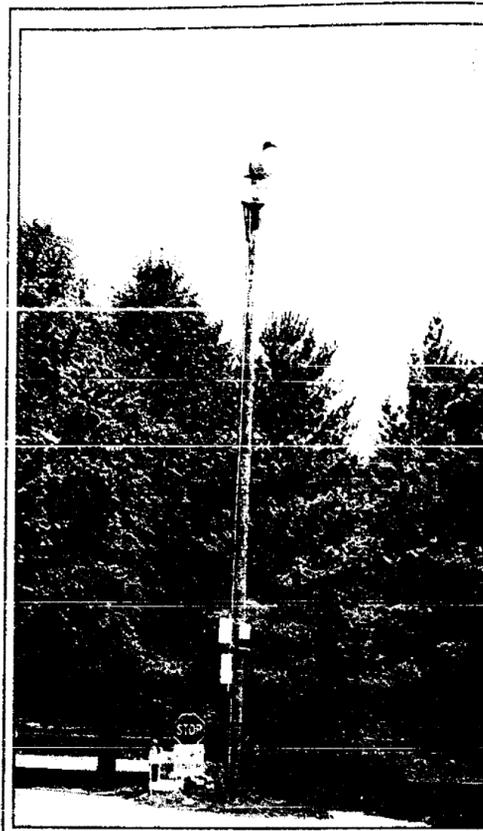

He pointed out that by adding to the depth of the master bedroom instead of adding to the width, the addition to the house would have the same square footage, but would be within zoning regulations and would negate the need for a variance.

Smith said that the addition was designed with wheelchair use in mind.

A more square design makes it hard to navigate around furniture. A more rectangular design allows for the placement of furniture in the center of the room and allows a wheelchair user room to move on either side of the furniture.

Only one neighbor opposed the variance.

She worried that the Mnatsakanov family would move in a few years and leave the neighborhood with a non-conforming house. This argument proved unconvincing and the council unanimously voted to approve the variance request.

This is only a test
Grosse Pointe Shores' new weather warning siren will be tested on Saturday, Oct. 3, at 1 p.m. The test will last about 2 1/2 minutes and consist of a loud, warbling sound that should be heard for about a mile in every direction as the siren rotates atop a 50-foot pole located next to the Village Hall on the corner of Lakeshore and Vernier.

Committee attempts to pick Car of the Century

By Richard Wright

As the millennium draws near, an organization headquartered in Amsterdam is choosing a car to honor as The Car of the Century. A Car of the Century board of directors, jury, and Honorary Committee of Experts, is headed by Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, Great Britain, Beaulieu Motor Museum director and classic car collector. The most significant car of this century will be determined, the organization says. The elimination process has already begun. Voters are being given a list of 100 finalists to vote for. The winning vehicle will be announced in December 1999. This Car of the Century election has not received a lot of attention yet in the United States. It was brought to my attention by Richard Earl, grandson of legendary General Motors stylist Harley Earl, who makes a strong argument for what might be regarded as the epitome of his grandfather's work, the Chevrolet Corvette.

The Corvette is, in fact, a finalist, the only Chevrolet among the 100.

The selection is a worldwide event, but Detroit has certainly played a starring automotive role in the 20th century and a case can be made that the list of finalists is rather heavily weighted toward European marques.

For example, the Italian Lancia, little known to North American motorists, has six entries, while Italian Alfa Romeo, German BMW, British Jaguar and French Renault each have four and Audi, Second choice is the Volkswagen Beetle, designed by Ferdinand Porsche in the early '30s, built from 1946 to the present, a longer production run than any other car in history. This '79 Super Beetle was one of the last Beetle convertibles.

Bentley, Ferrari and Fiat have three apiece.

Of American makes, only Ford, with four, and Cadillac with three have more than a single entry.

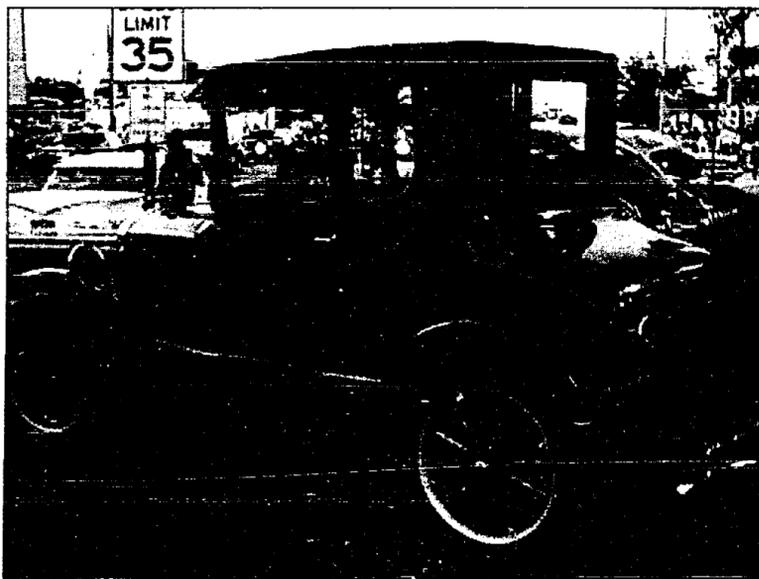

Members of the public all over the world can cast their votes selecting their top 10 favorites from the 100 candidates. Voting can be done now on the Car of the Century World Wide Web site at www.cotc.com.

The committee took care to establish a network of respected individuals and organizations from within the automotive industry to support the Car of the Century election. The professional jury is made up of 135 automotive journalists representing 32 countries. The board of directors is also international, as is the Honorary Committee of Experts.

What are the criteria? Obviously, the Car of the Century should be one which had influence, was important. Does that mean first? The first production cars in the world, the Daimler and the Benz, are not on the list, although two of their descendant Mercedes-Benz models are. The new DaimlerChrysler organization has only those two Mercedes models and two American cars.

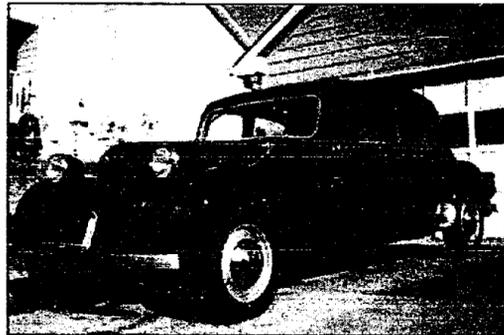

See AUTOS, page 13A

My first choice for Car of the Century is the Ford Model T, the car that put America and much of the world on wheels. It was built from 1908 to 1927. This is a '27 Model T.

My third choice is the Chevrolet Corvette, which I think exemplifies the spirit of the American automobile in this century — fast, flashy and, compared with others in its class, inexpensive. Shown here is a '63 once owned by GM designer Harley Earl.

I did vote for the Citroen Traction Avant, left, a car never imported to the U.S. Built from 1934-1957 in France, this was the first successful mass-produced front-wheel-drive car. It was ubiquitous in postwar Europe when I was there. This is a '47 model.

Heritage routes are designated

Michigianians who want a fall weekend getaway might want to check out one of the state's recently designated Heritage Routes, suggests AAA Michigan.

Seven driving itineraries have been designated by the Michigan Department of Transportation as part of the Heritage Routes program, pursuant to legislation enacted by Michigan's Legislature and signed by Gov. John Engler in 1993.

Under that program, citizens can join with their local government officials to ask MDOT for a Heritage Route designation — scenic, historic or recreational — for a highway segment in their area they believe has special significance in one of those categories.

These are the Heritage Routes designated by MDOT so far:

- Eighteen miles of U.S. 41 on the Keweenaw Peninsula from Central to Copper Harbor. Trees that form a unique canopy over this stretch of road through dense forest earned it designation as a Scenic Heritage Route. Attractions along the road include beautiful Lake Superior beaches, Historic Fort Wilkins State Park and excellent hunting and fishing sites.

- Twenty-seven miles of M 119 along the Lake Michigan shore in Emmett County from Little Traverse Township to Cross Village. This serpentine road's Scenic Heritage Route qualities include memorable views of meadows, forested areas, Little Traverse Bay and Lake Michigan.

- Twenty-seven miles of M 123 in Lake Superior State Forest in the Upper Peninsula south of Paradise. Making it a Scenic Heritage Route are the forest vistas as the road runs from Chippewa County into Luce County, and the waterfalls and other natural beauties found in Tahquamenon Falls State Park.

- The Mackinac Bridge. The lighted bridge at night is a spectacular sight, as are the views of Lake Michigan and Lake Superior as you cross this five-mile-long Scenic Heritage Route that links the state's two peninsulas.

- M 125 through Monroe. Designated a Historic Heritage Route, this roadway runs through the city's Old Village Historic District and East Elm-North Macomb Historic District and passes the Custer Equestrian Monument.

- M 25 in Bay City from Madison Avenue to Livingston Avenue. The area along this 1.5-mile Historic Heritage Route includes the Bay County Building, which is on the National Register for Historic Places, and 48 other structures dating back to the 19th century.

- M 15 from Clarkston to Bay City. The first roadway to be designated a Recreational Heritage Route, this 80-mile stretch is known as "Miles of Smiles" because of the many festivals and events held by communities along the way and the abundance of recreational sites.

The designation of Heritage Routes by MDOT is an ongoing process. Anyone interested in seeking the designation for a segment of roadway can find details of the process on the MDOT Web site, www.mdot.state.mi.us/business/programs/heritage/index.htm. Or call (517) 335-2934.

My favorite Fords were the flat-head V-8s introduced in 1932 and produced through 1951. One of the most elegant is this '34 rumble-seat roadster.

Autos

the Chrysler Airflow and Dodge Viper.

The first car to be produced in the United States, the Duryea, is not on the list, nor is the first mass-produced car, the Curved Dash Oldsmobile.

Being first is not enough and I agree.

The 10 votes each person gets are not in order, but my top three in order would be Ford Model T, Volkswagen Beetle and Chevrolet Corvette.

The Model T was the car that put America and, to a large extent, the world on wheels.

The Beetle was owned by more people than any other car in history, truly a people's car.

The Corvette, a more subjective choice, exemplifies the spirit of the American auto industry in this century better than any other.

But I confess I did not vote for those three in my official ballot. I just voted for 10 cars I really like.

They are: Chrysler Airflow, Citroen Traction Avant, Fiat 500 Topolino, Ford Model A, Ford V-8 (1932-51), Renault R-5 (marketed in the U.S. as the Renault LeCar), Saab 96, Studebaker Champion, Tatra 77 and Volvo PV544.

For further information, contact the Car of the Century press office at Amsterdam headquarters: Prinsengracht 739-741, PO Box 15583, 1001 NB Amsterdam, The Netherlands. Phone: (31) 20 5304411; Fax: (31) 20 5304419. The e-mail address is press@cotc.com.

The Car of the Century title may be moot anyway. The biggest-selling marques in the world today are trucks, the Ford and Chevrolet pickups.

No deposit, no return

Grosse Pointe Woods public safety officers were called to the 20700 block of Mack at about 2:15 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 27, to investigate a report of the theft of deposit bottles and cans.

Upon arrival, witnesses told police that they saw an older man grab a bag of deposits from a storage bin behind a liquor store. One of the witnesses followed the suspect to another party store a short distance away.

When police went to the other store, they found the suspect, a 50-year-old Harper Woods resident, attempting to cash in $23 worth of deposits. He told police that he needed the cash for food.

The suspect was cited for larceny under $100 and released pending his arraignment.

Hotwired car, cold pizzas

An 18-year-old Woods man was leaving pizza parlor in the 19600 block of Mack at about 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 26 to deliver four pizzas. En route to his 1991 gray Chevrolet, the driver and his passengers heard a noise. When they made it to the car, they saw a man in his late 20s hotwiring the car.

The thief was able to get the car started and drive away before the victim and his friends could stop him. The car was last seen heading west on Littlestone. Entry to the vehicle was gained by smashing a window.

Mack break-in Woods public safety patrol officers noticed that a large window pane of a business in the 19600 block of Mack was missing at about 4 a.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 23.

When officers further investigated, they found that a thief or thieves used a chunk of concrete to smash the window pane and gain entry into the business.

Officers, upon entering the building, found two file cabinet drawers open and empty bank envelopes strewn about on the floor. Later the business owner was able to determine that $146 in cash was stolen.

Police are continuing to investigate.

Bank catches a big fraud

Grosse Pointe Park public safety detectives were contacted by the manager of a local bank on Friday, Sept. 25, to investigate a suspicious withdrawal of a large amount of cash from an elderly customer's bank account.

When detectives arrived at the bank, they found that a 36-year-old Detroit woman, known for cheating area residents, attempting to drive away from the scene.

The suspect presented officers with false identification. A more thorough investigation of her background revealed that she was wanted by the state for parole violation and by the FBI for fraud.

The suspect was also wanted in Grosse Pointe Farms and Woods for fraud. She has been turned over to federal authorities to face charges, and faces a return to prison for violating her parole. She was convicted of uttering and publishing.

Purse snatched at showhouse

A woman attending the Junior League's showhouse on Windmill Pointe Drive in Grosse Pointe Park had her purse stolen between 2:15 and 2:20 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 26.

The purse, which was put down in one of the rooms for a few minutes, was later found on the front lawn of the house, but $50 in cash was missing.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Stolen mail

Authorities are investigating instances of mail stolen from a residence in the 400 block of Notre Dame in the City of Grosse Pointe. Thefts were reported Sept. 26, but took place between Sept. 3-15.

Deja vu again

For the second time in two weeks, a motorcyclist took a loop while cruising along Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Shores.

The latest crash happened on Saturday, Sept. 26, at 5:03 p.m. while a motorcycle-momma went a little wide on the left-hand curve in the 1100 block of northbound Lakeshore. She lost an argument with the curb and wound up lying on the grass.

The woman said the cycle's "steering locked up on her," according to police. She was taken to St. John Hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

Who, me?

Prescription for a traffic stop by police from the Pointes:

- 1) Front bumper falling off;
- 2) Broken front turn signal;
- 3) Broken driver's side rearview mirror;
- 4) Broken driver's side tail light;
- 5) Forward vision obstructed by objects hanging from the inside rearview mirror.

A 35-year-old Detroit woman driving a car exhibiting the violations outlined above was pulled over on Jefferson and Marter after being tailed from Lakeshore and Shorecrest in Grosse Pointe Shores. She was arrested after Shores police learned she had an outstanding $1,000 warrant for child neglect from 36th Circuit Court.

The incident took place at 2:08 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 26.

Hit and run hits kid bicyclist

A 15-year-old youth from Detroit was the victim of a hit and run while riding a bicycle on Chalfonte near McKinley on Saturday, Sept. 26 at 2:50 p.m. He was hit from behind by a white car of unknown make, occupied by, he said, two black males.

The victim was found sitting on the curb. Police took him and his bike home.

Raccoon tours trophy room

A quiet evening got lively for a Shores resident who came across a large raccoon in the trophy room of a house on Lakeshore. Officers were unable to remove the animal and gave the resident the telephone number for animal control.

The incident took place on Friday, Sept. 25, at 10:07 p.m.

.31 percent in GP Shores

Grosse Pointe Shores racked up only one arrest for drunken driving last week, but it was a doozy.

On Sunday, Sept. 20, at 4:45 p.m., a man from St. Clair Shores registered a blood alcohol content of .31 percent, more than three times the legal limit for operating a motor vehicle, after police caught up with him on Jefferson and Marter in St. Clair Shores.

The suspect was turned over to SCS police.

.159 percent in GP Farms

On Saturday, Sept. 26, at 8:16 p.m., Farms police nailed a 67-year-old man from Grosse Pointe Woods for drunken driving in the 400 block of Chalfonte. The man's admission of drinking was underscored by a preliminary breath test that registered his blood alcohol content at .159 percent. Because of the suspect's poor physical condition, he was released to his daughter at 10 p.m.

Two suspects, four warrants

Investigation of a driver pulled over on Lakeshore near Lochmoor for operating a vehicle with an expired license plate revealed three outstanding warrants totaling $304 from 36th District Court.

The driver, a 41-year-old man from Detroit, paid bail and was released. The passenger, a 51-year-old Detroit man, was released after paying a $50 outstanding warrant from 31st District Court.

Smashed glass

The burglar alarm at a store on Fisher was tripped when someone broke the store's front window on Saturday, Sept. 26, at midnight.

Cell phone gone

A cellular telephone was reported stolen from a car parked in a municipal lot in the Village on Tuesday, Sept. 22, at 6:30 p.m.

Mean customer

On Saturday, Sept. 26, at 2:31 p.m., a store in the Village had to call police to calm down a disagreeable customer who wanted a refund for non-refundable concert tickets.

Stolen car found in Florida

A $21,000 car stolen from the Farms in December 1995 was recovered intact in St. Augustine, Fla., on Saturday, Sept. 26.

Police are trying to locate the vehicle's owner, who lived in the 300 block of Mount Vernon at the time of the theft.

Be very careful with outdoor fires

The extended dry weather that Michiganians have been enjoying this summer has created extensive drought conditions across the state.

Vegetation is unusually dry, and Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) wild-fire officials are asking outdoor enthusiasts to use caution with outdoor fires this holiday weekend and afterward.

"DNR firefighters have had an unusually busy summer, responding to 754 fires that have burned 4,085 acres so far this year," said John Robertson, DNR forest management division chief. "This is compared to 464 fires that burned 1,394 acres by this time last year."

USDA Forest Service firefighters have also had a busy season, responding to 30 percent more fires than normal. Local fire departments have been extremely busy as well.

Most areas of the state are extremely dry. Rainfall since April 1 is as much as 7 inches below normal in some areas.

Forest areas of northern Michigan are 4 to 6 inches below normal.

Be sure to extinguish all outdoor fires completely — including debris fires and campfires.

Use plenty of water to extinguish your fire, paying special attention to the underside of unburned pieces. Continue adding water until no hot spots are found.

Because of the drought, wild-fires are difficult and expensive to put out, and responsible parties will be billed for suppression costs.

Do not attempt to extinguish your fire with soil. During drought periods such as we're currently experiencing, soil alone may not extinguish a fire, but may simply insulate it and allow it to escape later.

Information on where to call for a burn permit can be found on the DNR's website at dnr.state.mi.us/www/fmd/fire/fireidx2.htm.

Be sure to obtain a burning permit before doing any outdoor burning. It is required by state law.

Permits can be obtained from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and USDA Forest Service in northern Michigan, and from local fire departments and local units of government in southern Michigan.

Class painting

Annual cleanup day at Grosse Pointe Christian School was held on Saturday, Aug. 15, when parents put in service hours by coming in and painting, cleaning storage areas, washing windows, etc. Paul Malefy puts finishing touches on new window sill in 5th/6th-grade classroom. The whole room was painted as well. The 5th/6th classroom used to have all glass-block instead of windows. Needless to say, Heather Willis looked forward to teaching in a room where there would finally be some airflow.

Summers will exhibit floral boxes which are mixed media combinations designed to be floral reliquaries.

The event opened in the West Hall, Suite 118 of the Fisher Building (entrance from Fisher Theatre parking lot). The Flora Botanica exhibition will continue through Saturday, Oct. 10. Regular gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Help needed for Kerby's 50th anniversary Family Garden

Kerby Elementary School, in Grosse Pointe Farms, requests community support of its 50th anniversary Family Garden project by asking you to divide your perennials from your garden and help to plant them in Kerby's Family Garden on Friday, Oct. 2, from 2 to 4 p.m. or Saturday, Oct. 3, from 10 a.m. to noon.

With the community's support, the garden area located inside the "U" courtyard will incorporate benches, picnic tables, an archway entrance and a mini-amphitheater for picnic lunches, outdoor concerts, community events and outdoor classes.

- Preen and super-phosphates.
- Trees — Japanese maple, cypress, rose of Sharon, dogwood and river birch.

• Picnic table with attached benches.

Technology's a giant step for mankind — and robots

Older people, and for that matter, young ones, too, like to announce they have seen it all and that nothing surprises them anymore.

That might have been true years back, but in this technical age, the world moves so fast that it takes some doing to keep up with it.

Every hour, every day, every month and year, there are hundreds of scientists working to change and alter our lives.

Reaching the moon was a triumph. Solar satellites could intercept solar energy, transform it to microwaves and transmit that energy to Earth. There, it could be converted efficiently into ordinary electricity that we could plug into. It would produce no radioactivity or carbon dioxide.

This goal presupposes that large-scale habitats can be built in space. We are assured that it is possible to build earth-like communities in which families can live for long tours of duty.

The wonders waiting out there in space to be discovered are fascinating to ponder but somewhat complicated to understand. For those in the industry, it is a wondrous challenge. For the average reader, the wonderland of high technology is best left to those equipped to pioneer its bright and promising frontier.

However, it is stimulating to read about what lies beyond planet Earth and to hope that some of the discoveries made in space will improve and enrich the lives of all of us.

Easier to understand are earthbound developments. Mechanical hearts, kidney transplants and limb replacements are within our scope of understanding. If there is anything about them that puzzles us, we can learn about the procedures and prognosis by watching television programs that take us right into the operating room to view the entire process.

What goes into the manufacturing of cars, airplanes and jets is fairly familiar. We have watched them evolve from the first inefficient beginning to the sleek, high-powered conveyances they have become. We have seen changes each year built on the same basic models that first created excitement mixed with doubts concerning the future of such contrivances.

No one dreamed that the automobile would have such a tremendous influence on industry, family life and the future of cities.

The first automobile was manufactured in one factory. Now parts are built in all areas of the country and in other countries.

Before the automobile, families lived and died in the same area. Now families have become fragmented as families move wherever interests and job opportunities take them. Once grandma and grandpa would walk down the street or drive across town to see their grandchildren. Now a visit involves a plane trip.

Once cities were the center of activity. In Detroit, mother's day out was one spent taking a bus downtown to shop in the stores and have lunch.

Then came the freeways, cutting swaths through neighborhoods and breaking up established patterns of living, causing a mass exodus of people into satellite suburban communities, leaving cities to solve the immense problem of reduced income and massive social problems.

Which leads us to wonder about our military arms developments. We are told that medicine and technology have both benefited by spinoffs from the manufacturing of military weapons.

One invention was a robot designed and built in a workshop at Ohio State University.

Now robots are not new on the scene. We have read about them and seen them in use. They have taken the place of workers in factories, and it is predicted that they will be able to perform many household tasks, freeing the woman of the house to devote herself to other interests.

But the Ohio State creation was no ordinary robot. It weighed five tons and was the product of $5 million and two decades of research. It was termed a robot but looked remarkably like a dinosaur with six elephantine legs and hydraulic muscles to give it mobility.

It had infrared laser eyes set in a small dinosaur-like head. Its great body housed a driver cockpit, computer bay, hydraulic cylinders and a motor and flywheel.

Driven by one person, it could maneuver obstacles where no other machine was capable of going — forests, bogs, deserts, steep hills, and across ditches nine feet deep.

The mechanical beast was said to be as sure-footed as a camel and stronger than an elephant.

Its ability to walk anywhere was of interest to the Army because 50 percent of earth's land surfaces was inaccessible by other vehicles. It could go places where tanks and other vehicles would bog down. It could be adapted to fight on its own without a human driver or crew. Computer programs and hardware were developed to make the vehicle autonomous.

Non military uses were predicted for this latter-day dinosaur. Even in the process of building the beast, discoveries were made that signified advances in the fields of robotics, biology, anatomy and medicine.

Systems developed for use in robot walking machines have important applications in prosthetic limbs for human patients. Walkers could replace less maneuverable robots working in such hazardous jobs as the interior of nuclear reactors.

Ever-reaching, ever-searching science and technology work marvels, subtly changing the way we think and live and work, making it impossible to say that we have seen it all. Discoveries are being made every day. Some will hover over us, threatening destruction.

Others will make our lives better. Either way, we are constantly challenged to keep alert and tuned in.

From preventing osteoporosis to the ERISA pre-emption

By Matilda Charles
Special writer

I'd like to start with a tribute to my 90-year-plus neighbor of whom I've frequently spoken in this column. This lovely lady still gives piano lessons despite her failing eyesight, and until recently taught piano to advanced students in a summer program in New England.

Last week, she smelled something burning from one of the apartments on her floor. She called the superintendent who entered the apartment and found a smoking empty pan set over a burning gas jet. The person who lived there obviously forgot to turn off the gas before leaving for work. Another few moments, and a fire might have broken out.

I asked her how she knew the smell wasn't one from one of the ethnic dishes many of our baby-boomer neighbors like to try. She said, "I've lived in a lot of countries and a burned pot smells the same in all of them."

GOOD NEWS for Postmenopausal Women: Raloxifene (Evista) is a non-steroidal drug approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for use by postmenopausal women to prevent osteoporosis by increasing bone-mineral density. It also helps reduce the risk of cardiovascular disease by lowering LDL blood cholesterol levels. Unlike estrogen replacement therapy (ERT), it has no effect on hot flashes. But also unlike ERT, the new drug offers benefits without the possible increased risk of uterine and breast cancer.

PHYSICIANS, HEAL THYSELVES: You can expect to hear a lot of protests from groups representing doctors who work in HMOs and who don't welcome a proposed repeal of the federal ERISA pre-emption that would allow patients to sue health plans for medical malpractice. The fact is, it's always difficult to sue a doctor, since the suit requires other doctors to testify that it has merit. However, under the ERISA pre-emption, HMO members didn't even have the right to try. How much this contributed to negligence, if not outright malpractice, is something we'll never know. But if regaining the right to sue keeps HMO doctors "honest," so to speak, it will be an important victory for members.

Stocks rise on Greenspan's hint of lower interest rates

Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan, speaking Wednesday, Sept. 23, to the Senate budget panel, hinted that the Fed may start cutting interest rates, generally believed to begin at the scheduled meeting of the Open Market Committee last Tuesday, Sept. 29.

The usual procedure in changing the interest rate stance is for the Fed to change its Federal Funds Rate ("Federal Funds" are excess cash deposits that member banks trade between each other on an overnight basis).

As the "Lender of Last Resort," the Fed also makes overnight loans to member banks on a collateralized basis. The Fed Funds Rate is the posted interest rate on such loans, quoted on an annualized basis.

The posted Fed Funds Rate has been 5-1/2 percent since March 27, 1997, when it was increased 1/4 of 1 percent.

Wall Street was almost unanimous in its forecast earlier this week that the Fed would cut the rate. The only question was not "when," but "how much?"

At press time last Monday, Sept. 28, LTS expected a 1/2 of 1 percent cut in the Fed Funds Rate to 5.0 percent.

This would be an aggressive move, which clearly signals to the world that the Fed is concerned about the systemic risk in both the international and domestic markets.

Last week, the DJI posted its third weekly increase, rising 133.11 points, to close last Friday at 8,028.77.

The other indices all followed suit, with the NASDAQ Composite posting a 4.8 percent increase!

While many technical analysts are still looking for a confirming test of the DJI low of 7,640.25 last Sept. 4, other analysts are of a different mind.

Barron's (Sept. 28, 1998) quotes Tom Gavin, market strategist of Donaldson, Lufkin, Jenrette, who said, "If you look back 30 years, financial calamities have almost always marked the end of a bear market or significant market correction."

Hedge fund on edge

Last week, the collapse of the Long-Term Capital Management ("LTCM") hedge fund of Greenwich, CT certainly qualified as a calamity.

Why else would the Federal Reserve Bank call a Sunday meeting of leading brokerage/investment banks and commercial banks at its Wall Street offices on Sept. 20?

By mid-week, the rescue bridge had been constructed. 14 brokerages and commercial banks ponied up a $3.6 billion life vest for the floundering hedge fund, which was judged "too big to fail."

So who really was this LTCM?

John Meriwether, lately of Salomon Brothers (remember the Treasury Bill bidding scandal?), founded LTCM in 1994, along with nine other general partners, each of whom contributed $100 million. The fund then raised another $1.1 billion from institutional investors as limited partners. Later in 1994, another $2 billion was raised.

LTCM is reported to have earned a net profit of nearly 20 percent in the partial first year, then 43 percent in the full second year, 41 percent the third year and 17 percent in 1997. By last year-end, each original partner's $100,000 was reported to have become $1.5 billion. Now, what happened?

BusinessWeek, with a cover photo on its Aug. 29, 1994 issue, heralded LTCM, with Meriwether at the helm, assisted by two Nobel Prize-winning economists: Myron Scholes and Robert Merton, plus a former vice chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank, David Mullins.

This brain trust developed a "rocket science," based on their computer-driven "black box." The quartet specialized in bond strategies and currency spreads, but also played in take-over arbitrage, junk bonds and mortgage-backed securities, all interlaced with derivatives of every kind.

So why was LTCM different from the other 5,000 hedge funds?

With $4.8 billion capital, LTCM was able to leverage up to 20-to-1, or over $100 billion in assets, plus hundreds of billions more in off-balance sheet derivatives.

The "black box" was said to be driven by the hypothesis that worldwide interest rates would eventually converge (Remember when LTS was reviewing Peter Bernstein's book, "Against the Gods"? See LTS, June 11, 1998 for discussion of the concept: "Reversion to the Mean.")

Here's a simplified example of a LTCM hedge strategy: The fund was "long" Danish mortgage-backed securities, simultaneously hedged with a "short" position of a like amount of U.S. Treasury Bonds.

The convergence theory was predicated on the Danish and U.S. bonds trading in tandem (If the Danish bonds went down in price and up in yield, so would the Treasuries).

The theory was that the unrealized loss on the Danish securities would be offset by an unrealized gain on the Treasury bond short position,

That's how the hedge is supposed to work.

What happened?

With the collapse of Russia this summer, nearby countries caught the flu. The Danish securities tanked. But the international flight of capital to quality and security caused the U.S. Treasury Bonds to trade up sharply in price.

There were severe losses on both sides of that hedge!

LTCM's losses of August and September devoured most of its capital, with "open" contracts totaling a reported $1 trillion or more. The Fed's invite of Sunday, Sept. 20, opened the door to negotiations which were concluded Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Note that no tax-supported monies were involved in the bail-out.

The $3.6 billion of new capital reportedly will share in 90 percent of future profits, if any. The bail-out will probably take up to three years. Note that the brain trust retained 10 percent of the action, to stay aboard ship.

After all, no one else knows how the "black box" works!

Tom Gavin, reported above, recalls that past calamities — the demise of Penn Central in 1970; the Franklin Bank of NY fiasco of 1974; Continental Illinois Bank in 1984 and the near collapse of Citicorp in 1990 — all provided major buying opportunities.

Maybe this is a good time too?

Captains' new skippers

Allison and Mike Orzel are putting their combined 30-years' restaurant experience to work as the new owners of Captains on Mack Avenue.

The married couple plans to spruce-up the two-room, brick-walled restaurant, but needs a little help coming up with a new name. Allison is organizing a contest to reward the person who suggests the name that best describes the restaurant's goal of providing affordable family dining with a flair.

"From pizza and pita sandwiches to fillets and fish specials, we'll maintain high quality at a moderate price," said Mike. "Parents can come in with their family and leave with money in their pocket."

"All food is made on the premises," said Mike. "From making our own pizza dough to cutting our own steaks, ribs and chops, we do it here."

Ten rules for raising money-smart kids

Like most of life's lessons, learning how to earn and manage money is a skill that must be taught.

Parents who take the job seriously can instill in their children a healthy attitude toward money that may last a lifetime, says the Michigan Association of CPAs.

There are ten simple rules parents can follow to help their children grow up to be financially responsible.

1. Find opportunities to describe how money works.

One of the best ways to teach your children about money is to expose them to real life situations, such as using a credit card or withdrawing cash from an ATM.

In the case of a credit card, you can explain that if you don't pay the balance in full by the due date, interest will be added to the amount you owe.

With older children, you might invite them to help you write checks to pay the monthly bills. Doing so gives them an eye-opening lesson on how quickly money can be spent.

2. Provide your child with a regular allowance.

There's probably no better way for your children to learn the basics of managing or mis-managing money than by providing them with an allowance.

To determine an appropriate amount, consider your child's age, your family's financial situation, and local living costs.

Whatever you decide, be sure to give the allowance on a regular basis.

3. Be a model money manager.

Not surprisingly, children are more likely to be influenced by what you do than by what you say. The way you and your spouse handle money sends them an important message.

For example, if you constantly use credit cards instead of paying cash, your children may well follow your example. Similarly, if you are a careful shopper or a diligent saver, hopefully your child will follow in your footsteps.

4. Share family finances with your child.

Encourage open discussions about money and involve your children in family finances. This candid approach will go a long way toward increasing their understanding of the role of money.

Experts say that children who are involved in family financial matters are better equipped to deal with a financial crisis, such as a parent's job loss.

5. Teach the all-important skill of budgeting.

A great way to teach budgeting to younger children is to use the three-jar method. That is, have your child allocate a portion of his or her allowance to spending, a portion to savings, and a portion to giving to the less fortunate.

6. Open a bank account.

Discuss the benefits of depositing money into a savings account and explain how the bank pays interest in return for the use of depositors' money. Involve your child in the process by taking him or her to the bank to open the account. You can encourage your child to make regular deposits by agreeing to match the amount of money deposited.

7. Teach basic investment concepts.

Start by explaining how businesses operate and how shares of a company grow in value when people buy the company's products.

A great hands-on way to teach your children about investing is to buy them several shares of stock in a company they are familiar with, such as a retail store or food chain.

Help your child look up stock prices in the financial pages, discuss how market factors like competition influence profitability, and explain the role of dividends and dividend reinvestment. Mutual funds provide another good investing lesson. Some companies even offer funds along with corresponding educational materials that are specifically geared to the young investor.

8. Encourage summer jobs and part-time work.

Summer is a terrific time for children to develop good work habits. Suggest that your child look beyond the obvious and explore entrepreneurial opportunities such as doing yard work, giving piano lessons, washing cars, helping at children's parties, and baby or pet sitting.

9. Talk about paying for college.

Once your children reach high school age, make it a point to get them involved in the college planning process so that they become aware of how much your family can afford and what part they will be expected to contribute.

Then, work with your child to set financial goals and prepare a plan for meeting them.

10. Expect mistakes.

If you want your children to learn how to handle money responsibly, you'll have to allow them a fair amount of control over how they spend and save their money.

Sure, they'll make mistakes, but if the groundwork has been laid properly, the errors shouldn't be major ones.

Commonly asked questions about Michigan's fall season

What is the best time to view Michigan's fall color?

Generally, the annual seasonal show peaks in stages, beginning at the top of the state in the Upper Peninsula, where it gets cooler first.

It then moves southward. Peak color usually is found in the U.P. between mid-September and early October; in the northern Lower Peninsula, between late September and mid-October; in mid-Michigan from early to mid-October, and in southern Lower Michigan from mid- to late October.

What makes the leaves change color?

Weather conditions in early September largely determine how brilliant each season's color will be.

If there are bright, sunny days and cool nights, a great show can be anticipated.

Daylight length also is a determinant. Shorter days cause leaves to stop producing chlorophyll and lose their green color and begin the process that causes leaves to drop.

Rain also helps growing conditions. Adequate summer rainfall means leaves will be bigger and healthier come autumn. Autumn rain is desirable, but continuous cloudy weather is not, since that would stop the sugar production that creates the brilliant reds and golds found in oaks and maples, Michigan's most prevalent tree species.

How many species of trees are there and what colors do they turn?

There are nearly 150 different species of trees in Michigan's 18 million acres of forest. Michigan is lucky. It boasts a colorful mix of yellows, reds, golds and oranges. Some of the most beautiful colors are resulting from the mix of such hardwoods as aspen, maple, birch, sumac and oak.

When combined with glimpses of evergreen forest,

Are there any estimates on tourism during the fall color season?

AAA Michigan estimates that more than 2.7 million state residents will take a trip to view fall color this year.

The majority of travelers are planning a trip of up to three days and will spend an estimated $500 a person.

Michigan's fall color season is big business to resort owners and other businesses dependent on tourism. It accounts for 25 to 30 percent ($2.7 billion) of Michigan's $9 billion tourism industry.

What is the best way to view Michigan's fall color show?

There is no single best way to enjoy the fall color display. Michigan travelers have a plethora of ways to enjoy the show, either by car, train, boat, hot air balloon rides, at festivals, hiking on golf courses and luxury resorts. AAA suggests travelers follow lighthouse beacons this season, combining a trek to a historic lighthouse with a color tour.

AAA Michigan touring counselors at statewide branch offices can help Auto Club members prepare a personalized fall color tour.

How can I keep track of the most current fall color conditions?

Listen to AAA Michigan's statewide fall color updates by calling the Travel Michigan conditions hotline at (800) MI-9-FALL 644-6255.

The recorded line operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Conditions are updated each Wednesday starting Sept. 9, here and on the AAA Michigan website www.aaamich.com. Leaf-watchers can also call Travel Michigan toll-free at (888) 760-REACT (754-7328) for information.

A dreaded autumn ritual lives on

It's a dreaded annual ritual, one with which I shall never be comfortable. It is a brief period of time when I return from our summer cottage and the final seasonal visit and try to acclimate to the routines of my life. Each year this simple task becomes more difficult and I fight reality. Actually, I don't fight as much as I drag my feet as I stumble into the familiar patterns of autumn.

I admit most of the process is clouded by the psycho-baggage I lug around. The most obvious is my reluctance to admit summer is over. Forget that the temperatures hovered at 90 degrees today, the calendar still tells me that I am expected to show up at certain places each month and to perform duties that have been shelved through the summer. The local pools have closed.

Schools have started and there are no longer many boats on the lake. There are doctor appointments to keep, weeds to be pulled, hair to be permed and disciplines to be followed. I've always thought September should be the beginning of the year, not January. It just feels right to my system.

I think what I miss most about the summer is our easy access to water. There's something primal in us that yearns for the soothing rhythm of water. Whether it is the sound of a rippling stream, gentle rains or the crashing of waves, our pulses respond to these stimuli.

Although I don't swim daily, I love being on or near water. I like to listen to the hinges on the dock groan their lullaby each night as I slip into dreamland. I love to watch the whitecaps form as the wind has her way with the waves. I love to watch the patterns on the lake's surface as the fish do their aerobic leaps on hot summer days. I like to watch the sailboats snice their way through the water, their bows bobbing up and down as they respond to nature's rhythms.

They say some of us are lake people, while others are pool or beach people. In the good old days, before we became concerned with ecosystems, we would bathe and wash our hair in the lake. Nothing felt so clean and refreshing. Following a dip in an ocean, one must shower to remove the salt water residue.

Most people who own pools ask swimmers to shower before entering the pool, which is certainly the hygienically acceptable thing to do, but surely softens and therefore defeats the tingling shock of the plunge.

We don't battle sandy feet or greasy bodies at our mountain retreat. The rocky shoreline, while sometimes difficult to navigate, is free of tar or oil residue. By the time we leap over the rocky path to the steps, we are dry and refreshed.

Then there is the case for the moon.

I'm told that the moon I see rising from our lake in an enormous orange ball is the same moon that flams itself in these parts. I'll NEVER believe it. Our moon is unique, all others are mere imitations! Did I mention the night sounds? Pure symphonic moments, distinctly ours alone. Early morning is the best time at the lake, those hours before the motor boats interrupt the songs from the woodland creatures.

Small wonder reentry is tough. When one hasn't heard a lawn mower, a garbage truck, a horn honk or a boom box for a few weeks, the real world can be deafening.

Welcome back . . .

Fall chores made easy

Mr. Hardware, is there an easier way to clean windows than with a ladder and a squeegee? Sally Ann of S.C.

A Sally, there is a satisfaction to looking out nice clean windows. It is a chore we all should do at least once a year. It also helps to keep an eye on the condition of the wooden window sill for rotting or other maintenance we turn a blind eye to.

Armed with a pail, a soft brush on a stick (like a broom handle), a hose with a nozzle, and a solution of T.S.P. (trisodium phosphate), vinegar and some liquid soap, your project can be a cakewalk.

The recipe is simply a gallon of water with two tablespoons T.S.P., one-half cup vinegar and one drop of liquid soap (dish soap). This is not my recipe, nor is it new; window washers have been using variations of this formula since the 1940s.

I like my brush with a long handle so I can reach the window from the ground. Why work off a ladder or get my hands wet unless it's required?

First spray the window with water, then apply the mixture with the brush. Just get the solution on the glass; don't try cleaning until it is on the window for about 10 minutes.

So while it is working, go to the next window and repeat this process. You may be able to coat all the windows on one wall before the first one dries. Before it dries, go back to the previous window and reapply the solution. Simply brush all the surfaces of the glass at least once. Don't work hard. That's the job of the soap.

What I have found is that this procedure works better when the T.S.P. gets at least five minutes to work. Rinse very well with the hose and let dry the same as after Washing the screens on the driveway with the same procedure as above will get them clean for winter storage. If screen units are stored dry, they will be nice and fresh in the spring — one less chore than thanks to a little more effort now.

Additional fall chores

- Check exterior caulking and fill those cracks. (Don't caulk the bottom rail of the storm windows. Water should be allowed to drain out there.)
- Check the storm windows for excess slippage, broken corners and steps or all replaceable.
- Check the thresholds under the exterior doors for large gaps.
- Check the humidifier for water and a soft pad.
- Change the furnace filter.
- Caulk all the cracks in the driveway and next to the house.
- Check the roof and flashing next to chimneys and additions for cracks or gaps.

LOOKING GOOD — If you're going into the hospital, before you go, buy one or two really comfortable outfits that don't look like sleepwear. While you're recuperating at home, you'll look and feel better in an attractive outfit than if you lounged around in your nightclothes all day. Rita K., Garland, Texas.

GET PINNED — If you tend to lose pretty pins because they do not close properly, use a pincushion. Carry one in your pocket or purse. When you need a pin, just roll up the leg part. Then pull the rest of the leg over the broom. It works great for many jobs.

MISSING SOCK — Here is another suggestion for keeping socks from getting "lost" in the wash. Have all family members put their dirty socks in their own medium-size zippered mesh laundry bag marked with a different color yarn for each person. This is a real time-saver, as the socks don't get lost and sorting is minimal. Maggie S., Sunrise, Fla.

90 DEEPLANDS COURT • OPEN SUNDAY 2:00-4:00

Fantastic "park-like" setting accentuates this original owner home sitting in the middle of a huge pie shaped lot. Add to that the privacy of a court location, attached side entrance garage, and beautifully manicured grounds.

The interior is meticulously maintained and contains five family sized bedrooms, two and one half bathrooms, a "step-down" living room, large family room, formal dining room for those special dinners, and a large kitchen with cozy eating area. There is also a small den that is perfect for an "in-home" office or quiet retreat. An open staircase leads to the second floor.

Some of the amenities include two natural fireplaces, central air conditioning, basement, oversized driveway and much much more. Call for a private showing or come to the open house this Sunday. Attractively priced at $695,000.

"WHY USE A REALTOR?"

As the average real estate transaction becomes more complicated, the necessity to use a Realtor increases. Mortgage financing options, property inspections, state mandated seller disclosure laws, federal lead-based paint laws and contract market fluctuations are known and understood by today's Realtor. Here are some of the major areas in which a Realtor's assistance is invaluable:

- Market Knowledge
Whether buying or selling, you must have reliable market facts upon which to base your decisions. These facts are readily available to the Realtor who has computer access to the local multiple listing service.
- Unique Marketing Tools
When selling, you can derive the highest price by maximizing the number of people who see your property. Realtors have the means to do this. These tools include multiple listing services, national referral organizations, professional advertising and hundreds of straight commission agents who can only when they sell.
- Negotiating Expertise
Thousands of dollars are won or lost in the negotiating process. You should not make a sale or purchase of the magnitude of a real estate transaction without a professional negotiator representing you.
- Advice Based On Experience
As in anything else, there are many little details that spell the difference between success and failure. The "been there, done that" experience of your Realtor is important so that you can make as few mistakes as possible.

Flames without the fuss — and at the flick of a switch

Are you aware that you can install a fireplace in your home for about the cost of a three-day vacation? That you can turn it on or off with the flick of a switch?

That there's no wood to lug, no mess to clean? That it will heat not only the room it's in, but more?

And that you can fuel that fireplace with gas, either natural or propane, which means this technology is available to you, no matter where you live?

Gas hearth products have taken over the market from other fuels, much like gas grills are taking over from charcoal. Why? Convenience. Pure and simple.

The squeeze of time imposed by job and family, the chores and recreation has boosted sales of products that reduce the time required by their predecessors.

A gas grill produces instant flames, eliminating the time required to light the charcoal and wait until it turns gray — perhaps 15 to 20 minutes saved.

At the push of a button your hearth roars to life, providing instant heat and ambiance, and eliminating the gathering of kindling, paper and wood, and the time required to produce a roaring blaze. Twenty minutes can be saved.

While 20 minutes may not seem like much, it's enough to guarantee that owners of gas hearths and gas grills will use their units much more frequently than those with wood or charcoal.

Gas stoves and fireplaces are available in a variety of Btu ranges, with fully adjustable controls. Flame technology is such that it's becoming increasingly difficult to distinguish a gas from a wood fire. And if you haven't explored the possibilities, you'll find installation a relative snap.

Direct-vent technology eliminates the need for a chimney or major remodeling. These units vent directly through the wall, much like your clothes dryer.

In addition, direct-vent hearth products take their combustion air from outside, and vent combustion by-products directly outdoors. This method is both safer and healthier.

Always wanted a fireplace in the bedroom?

With gas-fueled stoves or fireplaces, that's no problem. In fact, these appliances have expanded the domain of the hearth from the main, or living, room into just about every other area of the home.

The average upscale custom home today is being built with three or four hearths, usually in the family room, the bedroom, the den and the kitchen.

Why so many? Certainly for the warmth of the soul as well as the body. A fire provides interest and life to any setting.

There is a stunning difference between a totally quiet home, and one with music playing. So, too, with a hearth.

For more information on gas hearth appliances, as well as other hearth products, a free copy of the 86-page Hearthware: A Guide to Hearth Products, is available by calling (800) 835-4323.

Q. What is Franciscanware?
A. Franciscanware is a glassware that was made in the 1980s by Hobbs, Brockunier and Co. of Wheeling, W.Va. It is a clear or frosted hobnail or swirl-pattern glass with an amber-stained rim. Some pieces were pressed; others were mold-blown.

Q. I just found an aluminum ice bucket decorated with penguins. I paid $5 for it at a garage sale. What is it worth?

A. The penguin ice bucket is so often seen that we can identify it from your brief description. It was made by the West Bend Aluminum Co. of West Bend, Wis., from 1941 through the 1960s.

Today the buckets sell at antique shops for about $20. If yours is in good condition, you made a good buy.

Q. I collect bread plates, bread knives, dough trays and even bread wrappers, stickers, advertisements and giveaways. I just found a pack of Bond Bread trading cards that picture the cowboy "Hoppy" with two guns. Can you tell me about the cards?

A. Hopalong Cassidy, known as "Hoppy," was a character in a series of books first published in 1907. Hollywood discovered the character, and in 1935, the first of 66 movies about him was released.

William Boyd was the first and the most famous of the actors to play Cassidy. Boyd, who also played Cassidy on a 1949 radio show, bought the rights to the movies, and edited them into TV segments, which proved so popular that he made 52 new episodes.

Boyd as Hopalong Cassidy, endorsed hundreds of products. They are all collectible.

His face appears on several bread company premiums, including Wonder, Barbara Ann, Butter-Nut and Bond brands. Most of the endorsements date from the 1950s and 1960s.

Hundreds of magazines, newspapers and newsletters cover antiques. For a recently revised 24-page list of general and specialized publications, send $3 plus $1 postage and a self-addressed No.

A garniture is a decoration for the top of a fireplace mantel. Most antique garnitures are composed of a clock with two matching vases, candelabra or other pieces. Some sets have three or five vases and no clock.

The clock garniture was first used in 18th century France to decorate the lower mantelpiece that had become fashionable. The early examples were made of gilded bronze, porcelain and marble.

By the 19th century, clock garnitures were widely used in England and the United States.

By the early 1900s, when mantels had become larger and often included a top section, the garniture went out of style.

The best garniture sets have clocks in metal cases with gilded bronze known as "ormolu." Less-expensive pieces were made of spelter, a soft pewterlike form of zinc that often was lacquered to resemble bronze.

Expensive pieces were made with real marble. Less-expensive examples used slate or wood painted to look like marble.

If you're considering buying a clock garniture set, be sure that the clock is working, that there are no broken or missing parts and that the vases or candelabra are a matching pair.

Q. My Arts and Crafts-style furniture is marked "Quaint Michigan." Who made it?

A. Albert and John George Stickley founded the Stickley Bros. Co. in 1891 and produced furniture inspired by the pieces made by their brother Gustav. They used the "Quaint Furniture" mark from 1891 to about 1932.

The Kovel's "Know Your Collectibles" book is an illustrated guide for beginning collectors that includes a bibliography and listings of specialized clubs and publications. The paperback is available in bookstores, or send $15 plus $3 postage to: Know Your Collectibles, Box 22900, Beachwood, OH 44122.

FOOD TO NOURISH YOUR BODY AND FEED YOUR SOUL: EXPERIENCE THE UPPER CRUST

The Upper Crust Fresh Fine Food

By Margaret K. Fitzgerald

A CRUSTY LOAF OF PRAISE

The Upper Crust is Grosse Pointe's exclusive source for Zingerman's Bakehouse breads from Ann Arbor. Zingerman's specializes in authentic European-style breads, which have incredible texture and flavor. They also offer a line of pastries including cookies, brie wheels, muffins and scones. Special order pastries baked to order can be obtained through The Upper Crust as well. These include an assortment of pies, cakes, cheesecakes, Jewish pastries and special holiday items.

A classic European bread can take up to 18 hours from start to finish. The time dedicated to the rising process is critical, and the resulting texture unmatched by any mass-produced bread. See for yourself: Tear off a piece of Rustic Italian bread and pour it with some handmade cheese, olives, and a bowl of soup for lunch. Good eating is often the simplest eating of all.

The Upper Crust
Fresh Fine Food
894-5681. Hours are Tuesday-Friday, 9:30-5:00 and Saturday, 9:30-4:00.

ASK ANYONE WHO'S TRAVELED TO EUROPE ABOUT THE FOOD. They'll eagerly describe their favorite cafe, and was poetic at the memory of freshly baked bread. Good food is often thought of as a vacation luxury. But if you ask Allison and George Boomer of The Upper Crust, good, fresh, real food is within daily reach.

The Upper Crust opened in March of 1996 with a complete selection of Zingerman's breads and selected pastries. The Boomers envisioned a place where authentic, handmade European-style food would be an inspiration for all who visit. They've since brought in artisan cheeses, pastas and sauces, spreads and nutstuffs, estate olive oils and vinegars, fine teas and imported candies for you to add to your pantry shelves. Items are brought into the shop only after months of careful research and tasting. A collection of only the finest, freshest products is what you'll find.

DISTINCTIVE ARTISAN CHEESES, SWEET & SAVORY SPREADS

Artisan cheeses are handmade, on a family farm employing traditions that are centuries old. It is more distinctively flavored than the factory made cheeses you'll find in the supermarket. Although a majority of the cheeses at The Upper Crust are European, American artisan cheeses take up space in the cheese case as well. You'll find about 20 of the most popular cheeses in the store at all times, as well as a rotating collection of the more exotic varieties.

Sweet and savory spreads are another wonderful complement to the breads. Sweet spreads include products from American Spoon Foods, Stonehill Kitchens (Flame), Sarah's Kitchen (New York), and a variety of English and French jams, curds, marmalades, honeys and maple syrup. Savory spreads include Italian caponatas (a seasoned mixture of eggplant, tomato and other vegetables), olive tapenades, and an extensive collection of mustard.

OUR FAVORITE CHEESES

- Parmigiano Reggiano
- Shelburne Farms Cheddar
- Farm Gouda
- French Roquefort
- Gloucester with onions & chives
- A large selection of handmade bries

This past summer, the Boomers introduced their daily Fresh Food-To-Go service offering homemade soups and sandwiches. Chef Susan Watkins pairs fresh hearty breads with handmade cheeses, fresh meats and seasonal organic produce. All the soups are made from scratch, without fat; most are vegetarian. By continuing the European tradition of using the best ingredients, they can promise meals that are not only good for you but that taste great as well. Their future plans include a Tea Room and additional products to enhance your lifestyle.

At The Upper Crust, these items are waiting for you - simply bring them together at your table. Read on for an introduction to the basic products you'll find on The Upper Crust shelves.

"At The Upper Crust we set the standard for quality for your good health with great taste, we look forward to seeing you!"

FLAVORFUL TEAS

The Upper Crust has a comprehensive selection of some of the finest teas in the world. Teas can have a variety of simple or complex flavors. Their medicinal qualities are legendary, and the consumption of tea is believed to help protect the body against chronic disease. Delectable love tea for its ability to impart either a stimulating or calming influence. Small batches of tea are ordered monthly to ensure freshness.

OUR FAVORITE TEAS

- Pure Assam - A rich, distinctive morning tea.
- Afternoon Darjeeling - The queen of fine teas from India.
- Palm Court - Black tea blended for New York's Plaza Hotel.
- Citron Green - Green Chinese tea with orange flowers.
- Yin Hao Jasmine - Highest quality Puchong tea, seductive.

ESTATE OILS AND FRAGRANT VINEGARS

An estate extra-virgin olive oil is as complex and individual as wine. It is made from olives that are hand-picked from the olive trees on small family estates. Cold pressing extracts the best oil from these olives. Differences in flavor are related to soil, weather, climate and vintage. The Upper Crust carries an extensive line of estate oils, all available for tasting.

OUR FAVORITE ESTATE OILS

- Olio Verde (Italian) - Winner, Best Olive Oil, 1998 International Fancy Food Show.
- Nunez de Prado (Spanish)

When it Comes to Decorating New Tonal, Textural Stripes Are "In"

What's hot in home decorating? Stripes, according to experts at Thibaut Wallcoverings, a national manufacturer of wallpapers, borders and fabrics. However, it's more than just traditional stripe patterns regarding popularity. It's an expansion on the motif in which stripes are embellished with intricate tonal and textural effects, says Stacy Schor, marketing manager for Thibaut.

"Newer wallpaper collections you see a wide variety of looks accomplished with stripes — there are thin, ribbed stripes resembling corduroy fabric, stripes with transparent leaf-print or diamond-shaped overlays, stripes resembling woven silk, linen and more; fibers, and striped one-of-a-kind damasks, she explains. These interesting stripe patterns live up plain, ordinary walls and, for some, they're not as scary to decorate with as compared to more dynamic floral, architectural or scenic patterns. They also coordinate well with colorful wallpaper, border and fabric designs in adjoining rooms.

New tonal and textural stripe designs are found in soft, earthy colors like celery and sage greens, butter yellow, deep Tahoe blue and spice tones. Rich reds and burgundies also are selling well," Schor says.

Designers at Thibaut attribute the new look in stripes to the popularity of faux-finished painted effects. "Consumers like the gentle mottled look achieved with faux painting," says Schor. "But, 'sponging' and 'ragging' techniques have become very commonplace — and a little boring. After all, the look is everywhere — including malls, restaurants and hair salons.

"We see homeowners moving on to a more progressive use of tonal and texture design, and finding it in these new striped wallpapers, which provide a more unique and sophisticated style. Homeowners are growing tired of the experimental, warring and non-predictable look of faux painting — they are seeking clean lines and a more tailored look," she says.

Homeowners can find this new look in a number of Thibaut wallcovering collections, including Revival and Stripe Resource. The latter is a new collection that offers a variety of soft, rich stripe patterns perfect for either elegant or casual settings. Thibaut collections are available nationally through designers and fine wallcovering and decorating retail outlets. For the names of local dealers, call (800) 223-0704.

New Consumer Water Reports What They Will and Won't Tell You

Given the myriad of tasks in your daily life, does the quality of your family's drinking water fall to the bottom of your priority list? Perhaps you don't even know how to begin the seemingly murky process of making sure that your tap water is the best it can be.

Beginning in 1999, the facts about your drinking water will become clear. Thanks to federally mandated changes in the Safe Drinking Water Act, all who are served by community water systems will receive an annual consumer confidence report. The report will tell you what's in the water as it leaves your community's treatment facility, beyond your basic "two parts hydrogen, one part oxygen."

The report will tell you if your community's water supply meets safety standards set by the Environmental Protection Agency. Specifically, it will identify any contaminants and the suspected source, and the health risks stemming from any violations of safety standards. The report also will include whether the water comes from local rivers, lakes or underground sources, as well as data covering violations and enforcement of drinking-water standards.

In cases where contaminants — either chemicals or microbes like cryptosporidia, which is potentially fatal to people with severely depressed immune systems — exceed permissible levels, municipalities will be required to disclose what steps they have taken to correct health-standard violations.

"Generally speaking, the nation's drinking water is safe," says Dick Elliott, president of EcoWater Systems, the world's oldest and largest manufacturer of residential water treatment equipment. "However, it doesn't necessarily mean that the water from your tap is the best it can be. This report will increase people's knowledge about the quality of their tap water which will help them make informed decisions about whether or not to seek alternatives like bottled water or point-of-use filters."

SAFETY VIOLATIONS COMMON
Scientists estimate that each year, up to seven million Americans draw contaminated water from their taps that makes them sick, according to the Natural Resources Defense Council. How does this happen? Unfortunately, during the treatment process, water can become contaminated relatively easily due to equipment failures and system overloads caused by heavy rains and flooding. A water utility typically issues a "boil order" and quickly corrects the problem.

WHAT THE REPORT DOESN'T COVER
"What the reports can't account for is what happens to your water between the municipal treatment facility and your tap," says Elliott. Water acts as a solvent, meaning it easily can pick up lots of contaminants as it flows from one point to another. And, some of those contaminants can have very negative effects.

For example, bacteria, iron and sediment build up in a city's central distribution system. Treatment facilities flush their systems periodically by opening hydrants, or by feeding chlorine into the system. However, in the interim, these contaminants build up and can enter your home's water supply.

Bacteria buildup has the most potential for serious negative effects, depending on the type of bacteria and the concentration. While iron and sediment primarily are aesthetic problems, they also can have detrimental effects. Water with a high iron content can stain sinks and other surfaces, while sediment can cause premature maintenance problems with water-using appliances.

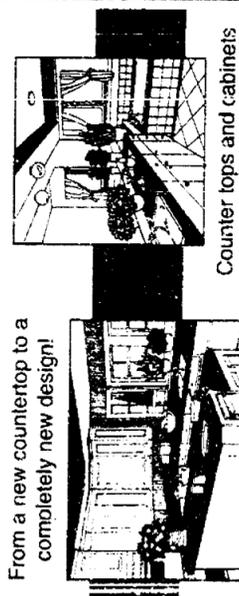

The good news is, each of these problems easily can be addressed by a home water-treatment device — ranging from a simple filter to a more comprehensive distiller to a plumbed-in system. Filters remove sediment, lead, chlorine and a variety of other contaminants. A distiller boils water and condenses the steam to remove up to 99 percent of most contaminants, including bacteria and viruses. A plumbed-in system treats a wide variety of contaminants depending on the types of filters used, and typically it offers a greater capacity than countertop filters and distillers. Whether it's a countertop device or a plumbed-in system, a quality water-treatment device will come with a report from an independent lab that details exactly which contaminants it can address.

SAFE BUT STILL UNAPPETIZING
Although your water may be perfectly safe to drink, sometimes the odor or taste of your drinking water can leave you wanting a different beverage. Tastes and odors are caused by many things including chlorine, decaying organic matter, and dissolved gases or minerals. Hydrogen sulfide in your water, which tastes and smells like rotten eggs or sulfur, is caused by decaying vegetation and oil deposits beneath the earth's surface.

Most tastes and odors can be treated with a simple carbon filter that absorbs the taste or odor. Low levels of hydrogen sulfide can be treated with an iron filter, followed by a water softener. Be sure to consult a reputable dealer who can help you determine the best way to treat your particular problem.

For more information on common water problems and solutions, EcoWater offers a free booklet, "The Water in Your Life," by calling its toll-free consumer line at 1-800-86WATER.

DUCT CLEANING SERVICE IMPROVES AIR QUALITY AT HOME

"[Duct cleaning could be the healthiest home improvement investment you will ever make"]
Gabriel Nicholas

years of accumulation and the layout of the ductwork." Some of the larger homes, such as many in the Grosse Pointe area, have taken up to fifteen hours.

If there is more than one furnace in the house, Breath of Life hooks up to each system. In every case, the process can be adjusted to meet the needs of the homeowner.

Priests on cleaning jobs generally range from $200 to $300, depending on the size of the house and configuration of the ductwork.

"We're a family business," Nicholas said. "We're constantly getting positive feedback on the results of our work and the manner in which we conduct our business. I'm proud of that. When you do business with us, it's like doing business with friends."

Breath of Life Air Duct Cleaning can be reached at 1-800-564-6831.

Long lengths of one-inch air hose with 360-degree nozzles are snaked into the duct system through access ports drilled by the technicians. The AIRE-SWEEP compressor shoots air through the hose, which dislodges debris in a "reverse air sweep." The debris is then sucked through the system into the HEPA-AIRE vacuum, connected near the furnace.

The vacuum has a filtration system so efficient that it can trap tiny specks of foreign matter 1/300th the diameter of a human hair and return indoor air to "hospital quality."

Another added benefit to having clean ducts is lower energy costs because of greater efficiency.

After the job is finished, Breath of Life technicians use rubber caps and metal plates to professionally reseal the duct system. The caps and plates also allow access for subsequent cleanings.

In addition to cleaning out the duct system which includes delivery ducts and cold air returns, Breath of Life cleans the register and "boot" areas and spot vacuums hard-to-reach places.

How long does such an involved process take? "Some companies do a so-called duct cleaning in less than 40 minutes," Nicholas said. "That's what makes us better than the other companies. Forty minutes is not a thorough job. We're meticulous and do the job right, which means the average house takes a minimum of three to five hours."

Often, a house can take all day to clean. "Older houses take more time," Nicholas said, "because of

Signal the Start of Sauna Season

Recent consumer surveys confirm what the Finns have known for 2,000 years. The health and wellness benefits of the Finnish sauna are a perfect antidote to the stress and tension of everyday life. In fact, saunas are fast becoming a popular amenity in homes of every size, as families embrace the soothing, warmth and vapors as part of their everyday routine.

The first cool days of autumn signal the traditional start of the sauna season. And, they are a great cue to homeowners considering a sauna to get started now, so that they can get maximum enjoyment when winter's chill sets in.

The good news for homeowners is that today's modular and pre-cut sauna kits make it easy to install a sauna in just about any space. Leading sauna manufacturers like Helo and Finleo offer saunas in a wide variety of sizes, styles and configurations, designed to fit any home space — from a master bath to an exercise suite, spare room or basement.

Regardless of the size and style of the sauna, the best models offer the same satisfying, soothing experience. For example, the new Moonlight model from Finleo's popular Designer Series offers dramatic styling featuring geometric glass panels set against the highest-quality clear-wood panels. Benches and headrests made of clear-grain Abachi combined with indirect low-voltage lighting offer a unique level of interior elegance and comfort to suit discriminating tastes. Such designer sauna rooms are available in easy-to-assemble modules: kits, Finleo and Helo also offer custom-cut sauna kits, with sauna components sized exactly to the homeowner's specifications, making it easy to install a custom sauna in any space. And for homes that are short on space, the Finleo TheraPort is a 45-inch-square marvel perfect for town homes, condos or small spaces. With seating for two, the TheraPort assembles in just five minutes, uses standard 120-volt household current, and requires no plumbing, yet still offers the materials and craftsmanship to provide a true sauna experience.

True Finnish saunas are designed to operate at optimal sauna temperatures of 150 F to 180 F — warm enough to stimulate circulation and melt away tension and muscle aches without draining energy. The best saunas can be enjoyed with either dry or wet heat — bathers simply splash water on the sauna's heater rocks to generate as much, or as little, soothing steam as they wish.

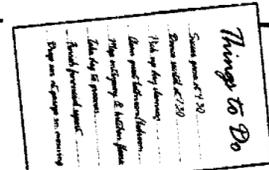

For more information on sauna and steam products, contact Finleo at 1-800-346-6536 or Helo at 1-800-982-4352. On the web, point the browser to <http://www.finleo.com> or <http://www.helosaunas.com>.

furniture use has expanded beyond the dorm and into the homes of people who need versatile, dual-purpose furniture. They are great for home offices, television rooms, children's rooms, basements, sunporches or any room that you plan on using as a part-time sleeping spot.

3. The comfort zone — just because furniture is affordable doesn't mean comfort is sacrificed. A recent survey of 1,000 Americans* revealed that 84 percent of current or past furniture owners are satisfied with their functional furniture. Moreover, comfort was the quality most often cited when respondents described their impression of furniture.

New homeowners can thank the Fed, Wall Street and El Niño for helping them wake up to the American Dream.

Low interest rates, a healthy economy and unseasonably warm weather have spurred record single-family home sales this year. But an opportunistic buy sometimes conceals a common pitfall.

According to Marybeth Butcher, a realtor with more than 25 years of experience, "The excitement that surrounds buying a home can be dimmed when buyers consider the cost of furnishing and decorating a new place. I've had clients who put most of their money toward a home, then had to use lawn chairs in the living room."

NO NEED FOR AN EMPTY ERMIAM HOME

With a little creativity, you won't need an extra loan for your dream furniture and decorations. Instead, buy the necessities and improve the rest. Putting your own handiwork into interior decorating will make your home more personal and custom-designed for your style. Here are some simple ideas for furnishing on a budget:

1. Strategic shopping — Make your furniture purchases count — practical choices are best. Figure out how much you can spend and then determine what pieces you can't live without.

You're making a significant investment, so also be sure to consider the life span of the furniture.

2. Couch by day, bed by night — When you only can afford to invest in a few pieces of furniture, versatile pieces are doubly practical. Many consumers have found futon furniture to be one affordable solution. Futon

Choosing Building Materials

That Can Withstand the Weather

Now that El Niño is all but a distant memory, weather forecasters are bracing for what probably will be a return to normal weather patterns across the United States. For many coastal regions that means the return of hurricanes which, for all intents and purposes, took a year off from making their annual trek through the Atlantic and Gulf Coast regions.

If El Niño taught us anything, it's that unpredictable weather can strike at any time in any part of the country. So, if you're thinking of fixing up or remodeling your home this fall, consider building products that can withstand the elements — especially when it comes to re-roofing your home. If you don't do it right the first time, you'll end up paying for it again, and again, and again.

Instead of a quick fix with a low-quality shingle, consider roofing materials that are built to withstand the elements, particularly high winds. A little education about your roofing purchase can mean the difference between admitting the durability of your roof after a storm or picking up shingle pieces out of your neighbor's pool.

HOW TO IDENTIFY QUALITY SHINGLES

How can you be more informed about your shingle purchase without getting out the chemistry book? First, you need to know what you don't want your shingles to do — blow off, crack or tear during severe weather conditions. A shingle's ability to withstand cracking and tearing are the most important benchmarks for measuring its quality.

The highly respected American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM) has developed voluntary guidelines (standard D3462) for shingle performance. In varying weather conditions with regard to tear resistance. While meeting these guidelines can help assure you of a quality product, it does not guarantee total problem prevention.

Underwriters Laboratories (UL) backs this up by independently testing shingles and certifying whether they meet the ASTM requirements. This is your guarantee and proof that the shingles you are buying meet ASTM's high standards.

DON'T LET YOUR SHINGLES BLOW AWAY

In recent years, the severity of the storms that have hit the United States, especially in coastal regions, have prompted more stringent building code requirements, particularly when it comes to high winds. Increasingly, there has been a call for shingle manufacturers to make shingles that can withstand the harsh elements of these storms. Today, most manufacturers warrant their shingles to withstand winds of 60 mph with a few offering coverage up to 80 mph. To find shingles that have higher wind warranties, you'd be entering uncharted air — until now.

Recently introduced by CertainTeed Corporation, Hantecor™ is a fiber glass asphalt shingle designed to withstand hurricane-force winds, with 10-year warranty protection against winds of up to 110 mph. This wind-warranty coverage is unmatched by any roofing shingle on the market.

Mixing Up the Matched Set

Just as dining has grown more eclectic — should it be taps, lamboni or Thai tonight? — so have options in dining set furnishings.

The old rule dictating a perfect matched set of table and chairs is long gone. While a matched dining set is timeless and always appropriate, says the Home Furnishings Council, the new rules emphasize size freedom or choice.

"We see people mixing it up quite a bit," says Jim Richardson of Wisconsin-based Richardson Brothers Co. "People want a dining set that looks like it came from shopping around antique stores, or was put together from old family pieces, and that means not so many matched sets. We've responded by allowing people a wide range of choices in assembling a table and chairs."

Big heavy farm tables in light finishes are becoming a new staple, as the trend toward more casual dining continues. And, around them people are grouping chairs in everything from wrought iron to wicker.

"Colors have been very strong," says Ron Vancot of Ashley Furniture, "translucent colored finishes in greens and blues look wonderful with a natural finish table, for example. We give consumers the ability to make all kinds of strong combinations."

Contrast still is a prime motivation in choosing chairs, and there is a range of new choices in upholstered and even tilt-and-swivel adjustable seating. The key is to look for flexible pieces that will fit well in any setting.

"The pieces that sell well can go anywhere," says Dwayne Borkholder, of Indiana-based Borkholder Corp. "Our chairs all are solid wood, but within that we're varying finishes, getting into natural woods, massive looks, yet all things that work in a contemporary setting."

Here are a few rules of thumb on mixing and matching dining sets:

- Mixed media is not a mixed message: iron goes with wood, wood goes with glass, upholstered chairs look great around a rustic wood table.
- An oversized table can be paired with slim chairs, but avoid the reverse — a spindly table with massive chairs looks ungainly.
- Consider the use of color: ladder-back chairs in assorted tones of green, blue, red and yellow make a lively grouping.

Faux Designs Bring Fashion to Your Home

Today, some of the best home furnishings, fabrics, floorings and decorative finishes come in a beautiful array of faux patterns. Whether you're interested in creating realism, evoking nostalgia, personalizing your home or are sensitive to conserving the earth's natural resources, faux design can evoke mood, style and richness just as well as the real thing.

According to Stuart Rearte, vice president of styling and design for flooring manufacturer Mannington, faux styling puts the look of worldwide resources in reach. "Faux finishing has a distinguished history and provides a rich, even extravagant look for those of us who can't go to Italy to select the finest marble, or those among us who never would dream of using real animal skins. And, faux materials usually are more affordable than the real thing," he says.

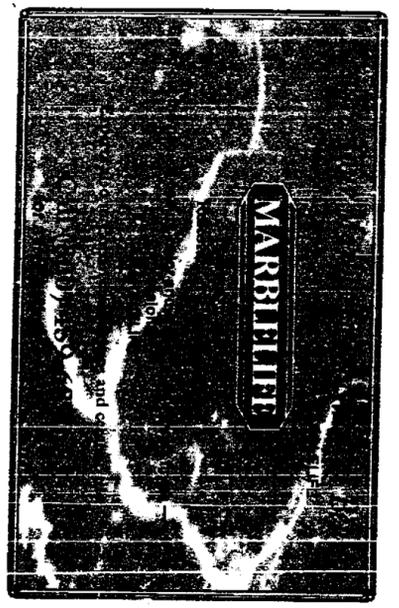

Here's a look at some of your best options:

Home furnishings — Perhaps you love perfect antiques or the look of rich leather or suede upholstery, but can't get past the cost and upkeep factors. Then, a faux rendition is a better choice for you. As Rearte recommends, "Faux finishes replicate the aging of natural materials, the warm patina our grandparents had in their furniture. In today's hurried world, you can select furnishings that create the atmosphere you want without needing the original materials or all the time for aging."

Some furniture makers are printing the look of expensive wood onto a less pricey wood for an upscale look. Such techniques stem, in part, from conservation efforts to help preserve rare or rain-forest timber. Like mahogany, teak and rosewood, furniture makers also recognize that many homeowners have good taste and the desire to create a fashionable look, but are looking for options at a reasonable cost.

Flooring — From a style and utilitarian point of view, faux finishes make great sense for flooring. As with furniture, selecting a faux-wood option means capturing the rich, warm look of the real thing, without the upkeep hassles and costs. Laminate flooring replicates the look of exotic, extinct and old-growth woods — providing all the splendor character and none of the guilt. Likewise, choosing a marble, slate or granite resilient flooring look-alike is a good idea for highly used areas in the home — kitchens, dining areas, bathrooms — since the porosity of real stone makes them difficult to keep stain-free. Mannington's patented Natureform™ wearlayer technology adds the texture of the real wood, stone, ceramic tile and brick to its resilient flooring, for incredible depth and design authenticity. Laminate and vinyl floors are durable and easy to maintain, since you don't have to worry about periodic recoating or refinishing.

Fabrics, wall coverings and textiles — Faux finishes for wall-decoration go back hundreds of years. They widely were used in castles, palaces and cathedrals when marble and other costly or hard-to-get materials were replicated on wood, reports Rearte. "Faux finishes have even greater versatility as a decorating tool now, with a huge selection of wallpaper, painting kits and fabrics available that tie in well with today's eclectic design trends from Neo-classical to Ethnic Tribal." Designs include faux animal skins (leopard, tiger, polar bear, etc.), woods (like bamboo), textile weaves (imitating basket patterns) and weaves of exotic grasses, leathers and cork. Some paints can be applied to

Home Heating Essentials:

How Your Gas Furnace Works

As is the case with any major appliance in your home, it's good to have a general understanding of how your home's gas furnace works. The reason the more you know, the better decision you can make when it comes time to purchase or repair a unit.

Experts at the Trane Home Comfort Institute, a consumer information service on heating and cooling, explain that there are four basic components in a gas furnace that work in tandem to heat your home: a burner; heat exchanger; blower; and vent pipe or flue.

As the name suggests, the burner is where the gas is lit and actually burned. An electronic ignition device, as opposed to a constantly burning pilot light, ignites the gas. The device is similar to an automotive spark plug. When the thermostat calls for heat, the ignition device instantly lights the burners. By not using any gas between ignition cycles, it conserves the fuel previously used by a pilot light.

The heat exchanger transfers the heat produced by the burning gas to the home's air distribution system. Heat exchangers come in a variety of shapes, with a serpentine configuration being one of the most efficient and popular.

When looking at gas furnaces, the Trane Home Comfort Institute recommends that the heat exchanger be crimped instead of welded together. The crimped method of manufacturing helps eliminate heat-stress cracks that might occur.

The blower is a fan that moves the heated air through ducts to the location in the home where it is needed.

The vent pipe or flue exhausts the gaseous byproducts of combustion to the outdoors. Depending on the type of furnace, venting can take place through the chimney or through a plastic pipe out the side of the house.

These four components form the basis of the three most common types of gas furnaces: conventional, induced draft and condensing.

Conventional furnaces burn natural or propane gas to provide heat to the heat exchanger. Indoor air to be heated flows around the heat exchanger and then circulates throughout the house through ducts. Additional air is drawn into the flue for venting purposes. This air mixes with the hot exhaust gases and exits through the chimney.

Induced draft furnaces are similar to conventional furnaces except for their venting method. Conventional furnaces draw air through an opening in the front of the furnace and at the flue to create a natural draft. Induced draft furnaces use a fan to draw combustion air into the flue. This artificially created draft increases the efficiency of the furnace.

Condensing furnaces contain a second heat exchanger that condenses water vapor in the hot flue gases, yielding additional heat for the home. Because the resulting flue gases are at a very low temperature, they can be vented directly outdoors through a plastic pipe that can run through a sidewall. Condensing furnaces are among the most efficient on the market.

Fall Weather Is Perfect for Home-Remodeling Projects

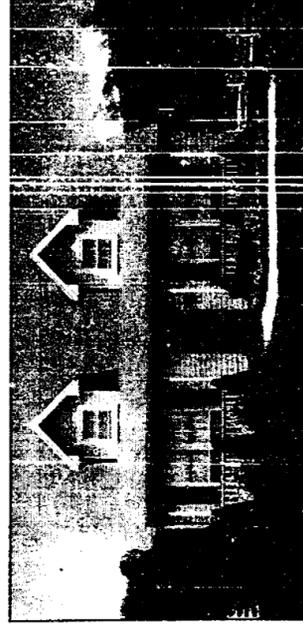

Worried that summer heat and storms have damaged the exterior of your home? If summer heat has faded or blistered your exterior paint or siding, storms have damaged shingles, or rain has rotted the wood in eaves or window casements, you still have time to complete a fall remodeling job before the winter weather sets in.

Visualization software from Visual Applications, Inc. is a new tool that can save time, money and frustration on remodeling projects. It lets you virtually remodel your home on your PC computer, and even allows you to select the materials, colors and styles you want before the remodeling projects ever begin.

To start, simply input a photograph of your home into your PC. Then, click on the database of brand-name remodeling products to select any product you wish. Imagine. Your Exterior Remodeling contains a library of hundreds of photos of windows, roofing shingles, siding, doors, exterior paint colors and more.

This easy-to-use visualization tool even includes a helpful AutoScale feature that automatically keeps each design element in scale and perspective, regardless of the angle, height or width of the photograph. And, once you've selected the ideal new look for your home, it's easy to print a copy of your design and show it to the remodeling contractor of your choice.

Faux Designs

simulate the look of suede, fabric and wall-covering designers and manufacturers also are creating decorative touches that you won't necessarily find in a "real" version, like the very textured looks and effects of crumpled paper or scratched up raw silk. Textures are being duplicated for a more three-dimensional look with high-tech embossing.

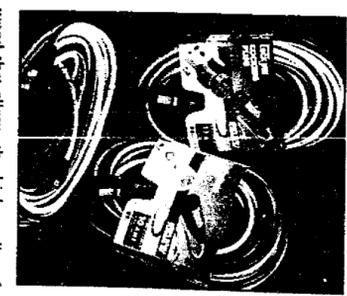

Even metal looks are making a big splash in wall coverings, upholstery, furnishing finishes and fabrics. The look of brass, steel, silver, copper, iron, gold, bronze or aluminum — shiny new or pleasantly patinated — provide a look that can be both soft and hard, cool and warm.

Trombly 4th-graders share kids' eye view of Pointes

By Madeleine Socia
 Special Writer

"I'm b-o-o-o-r-r-r-e-d," parents agree, is an all-too-popular pout. Take heart Mom and Dad. Thanks to the students in Elsie Stecko-Onychuk's fourth-grade class last year at Trombly Elementary School, you can wipe that whine right out of your child's repertoire.

Give junior a copy of A Kid's Eye View of Grosse Pointe, a map made by children, for children.

The map is available free at every public and private school in the Pointes, in all city halls and public libraries, through Grosse Pointe Rotary and from Coldwell Banker Schweitzer and ReMax Realtors. It features historical facts, along with tips on interesting places to go and things to do. Every word and picture was researched and illustrated by the students.

The project was the inspiration of Onychuk, an Ontario native, who taught at Trombly for 20 of her 42 years as an educator. She retired recently.

After attending a Bringing Geography Alive to Children workshop, Onychuk decided to add the exercise to her long list of creative learning experiences, which include founding the Pointes' Mock Trial program for students and an annual musical production.

"I always try to do something exciting," said Onychuk, who thought that the project would be a positive way to combine the map skills and Michigan history units required by the curriculum, while challenging students' varied abilities in a group setting.

"I try to plan activities that appeal to children who are different kinds of learners," she said. "I get them working in groups. I really feel that getting children to speak out freely in a group — with people they like and people they don't like — is an important part of their learning."

When first proposed to students at the beginning of the school year, the project met with mixed reviews.

"I couldn't really believe that we could make a map that would be used in libraries and schools," recalls Trombly fifth-grader Kati Rogers. "I thought, 'whoa, are we really going to do that?'"

But Onychuk sensed that her unique class was up to the task. "On the first day of school I always put a little quote on the board by Henry Ford that says, 'If you say you can, or you say you can't, you're right!'"

"The word 'can't' just didn't exist in my classroom."

The can-do spirit carried Onychuk through seven months of seeking donations to fund the $1,700 in printing costs for the map. Her efforts paid off with underwriting from the Grosse Pointe Public Schools, the Trombly School Parent Teacher Organization, the Rotary Club of Grosse Pointe, Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate, the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Academic Enrichment, the Grosse Pointe Village Association and ReMax in the Pointes — Chris & John Cotzias.

Students started their work in April by coming up with questions they hoped their map would answer for children. A collection of 30 inquiries was then narrowed down by vote, categorized and included in a 13-question survey.

Inquiries like, "It's Saturday afternoon and I'm bored. What can I do in Grosse Pointe to have fun?" were E-mailed to local schools where a dozen teachers generated hundreds of responses from their students.

The junior cartographers were then divided into groups to research specific topics. Every child was also asked to contribute black and white drawings.

Young writers and artists who contributed their talents and vision to the project included Robert Bashars, Evan Breen, Nick Carter, Brett Crick, Faith Daniel, Tony Delsener, Jenny Evans, Katie Gilbride, Matt Henderson, Michael Hirt, Nick Hy, Alexander Jendrusina, Nicole Johnson, Catherine Kelly, Zachary Kuczera, Michael Malis, James Marshall, Jimmy McMillan, Will Owen, Carey Poplakos, Emma Piche, Bianca Prohaska, Kali Rogers and Costa Sirdenis.

Researching on a tight deadline proved to be the greatest challenge for students.

"The hardest thing was finding out the information because it wasn't in encyclopedias or on the computer," said Michael Malis.

But Onychuk, executive editor of the project, assisted in the struggle by arranging field trips to historic sites and bringing in written resources like The Grosse Pointe News' 50th Anniversary edition. She also invited speakers such as Grosse Pointe Historical Society Curator Jean Dodenhoff, Robert Mowbray of Pathfinders and local historians Rita Flaherty, John Hammel and Susan Steiger.

Along the way, students learned a lot of fascinating and funny facts that didn't quite fit in the final product. "It was hard to design and figure out where to put everything on the page because there was so little room," said Nick Hy, whose committee traced out the map.

"When a map maker came to talk to us we asked if they made many new streets. He said it doesn't happen very often, but once a lady had her driveway made into a street. We couldn't put that on our map though."

"I had a ball!" Dodenhoff said. "They were really nice kids. They did their homework; they didn't expect the adults to do it for them. I was very impressed with the fact that they did all the research, made all the decisions as to what to put on the map and did most of the writing."

The final version of the map highlights such sites as the libraries, City Halls, Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, the parks, the Neighborhood Club and local hospitals.

Class parents and past parents, including Kevi Chapman of Grosse Pointe Park's CAT Graphics, also pitched in with the print production phase, helping the piece to achieve what Onychuk called a "childish professional" look.

A first printing of 5,000 copies was run this summer.

"The most fun was when we presented it at the Grosse Pointe Board of Education meeting," said Michael Hirt, one of several students who represented the class at the board's Sept. 14 meeting.

After two decades of teaching in the Grosse Pointes Onychuk considers the map a parting gift to the school and the community.

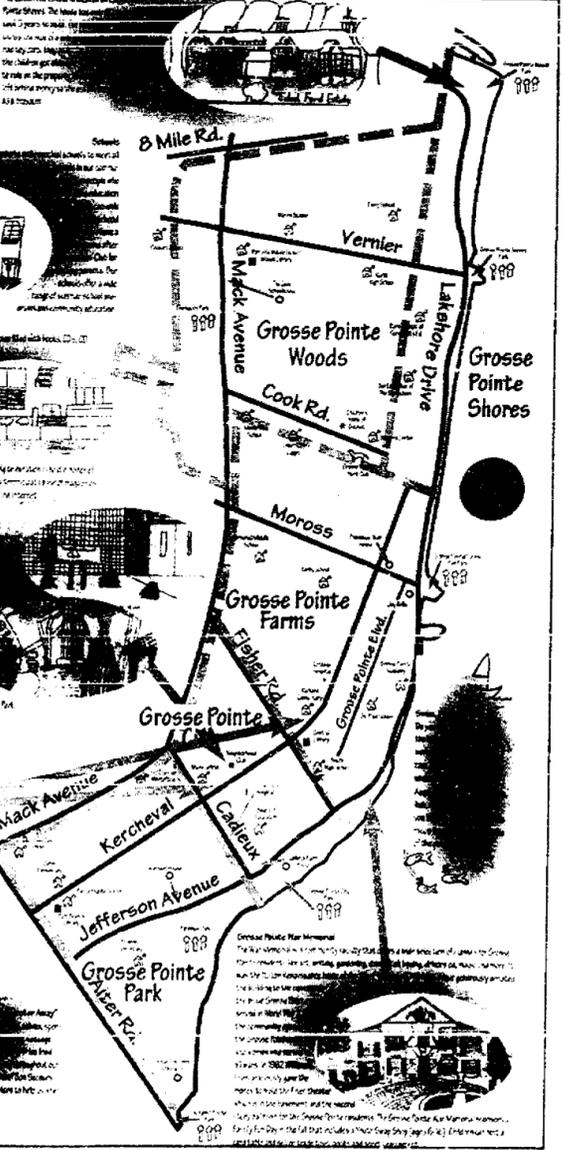

Trombly Principal Jean Rusing also sees it as an important legacy to the students who created it: "This was a very powerful educational experience for the children because the product was something that could be used by the community. They worked with professionals in the community and they learned a lot about map making while using their math, language arts, research and artistic skills. Now they can see the importance of their work. It will have a lasting effect in the community."

Speaking for her classmates, Kati Rogers is thrilled by the idea that other children in the Pointes will enjoy their work.

"This is a map just for kids," she said. "Instead of an adult map with huge words and little marks that only adults can understand, it shows a lot of things that kids like to do. I thought this was really neat and I hope kids can use it and learn a lot from it because we learned a lot."

A map of Grosse Pointe was created by Trombly fourth graders, designed especially for kids.

The students used what they had learned about math, language arts, geography, history, research and art while working on the project and creating something for the community.

The map is available free at all Grosse Pointe schools, city halls and libraries, as well as through Grosse Pointe Rotary and from Coldwell Banker Schweitzer and ReMax Realtors.

Winning the game

By a member of the Christian Science Church
A little 6-year-old girl showed me a picture she had drawn of an animal she had colored orange. I asked her what kind of animal it was. She said, "A tiger." I said, "Where are his stripes?" She said, "He has to earn his stripes by winning games."
I have thought of this conversation often since then, thinking how true to life this little girl's reasoning was. How often, through each day, do we play the so-called game of life having to judge what is true or false, right or wrong, to win our game. Of course, it doesn't take long (or shouldn't) for us to learn that only "true" and "right" earn us our stripes.

God gave us the rules for our game when he gave Moses The Ten Commandments for us to live by. All games have rules and it's only by holding fast and obeying these rules that our lives unfold rightly.

Yes, there are times when things do not seem to respond properly (in our way of thinking) when we have held to the rules and the results are disappointing.

But holding fast to what we know of God's rules and continuing in them will bring out "stripes." In the Bible, it tells of the man Job "and that man was perfect and upright, and one that feared God and eschewed evil."

In time everything was taken from him — family, great possessions and health, but "in all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly."

His wife asked him, "Dost thou still retain thine integrity?"

Job answered, "What? Shall we receive good at the hand of God and shall we not receive evil?"

Friends tried to influence Job to dishonor God, but Job held fast to right and eventually "the Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before."

Mary Baker Eddy, in her book "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," says, "Jesus bore our infirmities; he knew the error of mortal belief, and with his stripes (the rejection of error) we are healed. Despised and rejected of men, returning blessing for cursing, he taught mortals the opposite of themselves, even the nature of God; and when error felt the power of truth, the scourge and the cross awaited the great teacher. Yet he swerved not, well knowing that to obey the divine order and trust God, saves retracing and traversing anew the path from sin to holiness."

We all have peace within ourselves when we have tried daily to earn our "stripes" toward winning the game of life.

New technique detects hidden breast cancers

By Dr. Ramanan S. Venkat
Special Writer

A new procedure using existing equipment is helping Cottage Hospital radiologists distinguish between cancerous and benign breast tissue when a mammogram alone is unclear.

The technique is called Scintimammography (Smm), and it's performed with the nuclear medicine gamma camera and a special contrast agent or isotope, which concentrates in breast cancer tissue.

A similar procedure has been in use for years to detect heart disease. It was discovered, somewhat accidentally, that breast abnormalities also were showing up on the nuclear images of the heart. Out of this discovery, a specialized breast imaging procedure has emerged. Smm uses its own, specialized contrast agent, marketed as Miraluma, which is injected into the arm and travels through the bloodstream. Because breast cancer cells are vascular, meaning they have a blood supply, the contrast agent tends to concentrate in them when it reaches the breast tissue. It causes the cancer cells to glow as "hot spots," making them highly visible to

By Dr. Ramanan S. Venkat

It is important to note that Smm is not a replacement for traditional mammography or clinical examination by a physician. It is, however, an exciting enhancement to the breast care options we offer already at Cottage Hospital and at the Women's Diagnostic Center.

Mammography, ultrasound (sonogram), stereotactic breast biopsy, and needle biopsy are all used for the detection of breast diseases. When a suspicious area is discovered on a mammogram, or the image is unclear because of the nature of the breast tissue, a sonogram may be ordered next to determine if it is a simple cyst or another type of mass.

If the sonogram reveals something other than a cyst Scintimammography is the intermediate step which determines the need, or not, for biopsy. Consequently, what Smm does is eliminate the need for a biopsy in some cases. This reduces both the emotional, physical and the monetary cost to the patient.

Scintimammography is particularly useful for women who have dense breast tissue or implants which can mask the presence of a cancer and reduce the ability of mammography to detect it. Breast surgery scars or changes in tissue after radiation therapy also make mammograms more difficult to interpret. Approximately 25 percent of women exhibit dense breasts. Women with lumpy breasts on physical examination often have to undergo multiple mammograms and biopsy procedures. A single, negative Smm scan can provide significant reassurance about the absence of breast cancer.

The Smm procedure is simple, painless and does not require the uncomfortable compression associated with mammography. The contrast agent is injected into the arm opposite the breast being studied. The patient then lies face down on an imaging table that has an opening for the breast to hang down and separate from the chest wall.

After about five minutes, the agent will have reached the breast tissue and the gamma camera is positioned to take the required images, usually from more than one angle. Additional images also may be taken with the patient lying face up or sitting. The entire procedure takes from 45 minutes to an hour.

Cottage Hospital is the first hospital in the area to offer this progressive, new procedure. While its use is limited by a precise set of criteria, Scintimammography plays a significant complementary role with physical examination, mammography and sonograms in establishing the diagnosis of breast cancer. While this test is not intended to be used as a basic screening procedure, it plays a useful role in the evaluation of women with difficult mammograms due to dense or lumpy breasts.

Dr. Ramanan S. Venkat is chairman of the Department of Diagnostic Imaging at Cottage Hospital — a member of Bon Secours Cottage Health Services.

Free screenings to be available locally on National Depression Screening Day

On National Depression Screening Day, Thursday, Oct. 8, free depression screenings will be offered by several Detroit area and Grosse Pointe health organizations.

Depression is one of the most common and most treatable mental illnesses. It affects 15 million Americans every year, according to figures from the National Institute of Mental Health.

Only one in four people with depression actually seek medical treatment, even though treatment can help more than 80 percent of those affected.

Three St. John Health System hospitals will host depression screenings free of charge for anyone 18 and older.

Advance registration is not required, but is preferred in order to have sufficient materials and room for all participants. Locations, times and phone numbers for information and registration are:

• St. John Hospital & Medical Center, Moross and Mack in Detroit — 9:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. in the Lower Level Conference Room. Call

(888) 757-5463.

• St. John Macomb Hospital, 12 Mile and Hoover in Warren — at 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. in the auditorium. Call (810) 573-5376.

AHA report: High potassium diet may protect people against stroke

Diets rich in fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals may reduce a person's risk of stroke, especially in individuals with high blood pressure, according to a study in a recent Circulation: Journal of the American Heart Association.

"This beneficial effect appears to be due to the high potassium content of these diets, but other components of fruits and vegetables may also contribute to the reduced risk of stroke," says Dr. Alberto Ascherio, lead author of the study and associate professor of nutrition and epidemiology at Harvard School of Public Health.

In a study of almost 44,000 men, researchers found that individuals in the top fifth of dietary potassium intake had a 38 percent lower risk of stroke than those in the bottom fifth. The major difference between the diets of the two groups was in their consumption of fruits and vegetables — about nine servings daily in the highest potassium group compared with four in the lowest.

Sources of dietary potassium include tomatoes, spinach, bananas, oranges and other fruits and vegetables.

"While the data do not prove a causal relationship, there is strong support for a stroke-preventive effect from diets rich in potassium, magnesium and cereal fiber. This was found to be particularly true in individuals with high blood pressure, further suggesting that high-potassium diets might be beneficial in this segment of the population," Ascherio said.

The results of smaller investigations and animal studies have suggested that high levels of dietary potassium could help reduce the risk of stroke. Ascherio and his research colleagues set out to determine whether these findings would still hold true in a larger study. Researchers questioned 43,738 men who were part of the Health Professionals Follow-up Study, a dietary investigation of men who were free of heart disease, diabetes and had not had a stroke.

The men were asked how many times a day during the past year they had eaten any of 131 different foods and whether they used vitamin and mineral supplements during the past year.

In addition, researchers asked about the use of potassium and magnesium supplements. Follow-up questionnaires were given every two years to update dietary information and potential risk factors for heart disease and to identify newly diagnosed strokes. During the eight-year study 328 individuals had strokes.

Men without high blood pressure whose diets were high in potassium and cereal fiber also had a reduced risk of stroke when compared to men who ate lower levels of these nutrients. Those with high intakes of magnesium had a 30 percent decreased risk of stroke and those with high intakes of cereal fiber had a 40 percent decreased risk compared with those who ate low levels of these nutrients.

Individuals who had high blood pressure (8,520 men) and were taking potassium supplements (about one gram per day) had a 60 percent reduced risk of stroke when compared to those with high blood pressure who weren't taking supplements.

Potassium supplements are often prescribed to individuals taking diuretics. The drugs are used to treat high blood pressure, but they can deplete the body of potassium.

"Diuretics are extremely effective in reducing the risk of stroke in people with high blood pressure and it appears that their effectiveness can be further increased with adequate potassium intake," Ascherio said.

It is not necessary, he said, for people not on these drugs to take potassium supplements. "Two tomatoes and one serving of cooked spinach provide about one gram of potassium," he says. Ascherio recommends that people with high blood pressure consult a physician before using supplements because they may be harmful, especially for people with kidney problems.

Heart Association urges action to prevent second heart attacks

About 14 million Americans have a history of heart disease. American Heart Association studies have shown that, within six years after having a heart attack, 31 percent of women and 23 percent of men will suffer a second attack.

The AHA wants to help these Americans attain longer, healthier lives. The keys to this effort are providing physicians with information on the importance of "secondary prevention," as well as making patients aware of their own roles in reducing the risk of a second heart attack.

Many patients who have had heart attacks drift back into the same destructive habits and lifestyle patterns that caused their problems in the first place. After a heart-related crisis has passed, patients may view themselves as being "cured," and fail to change habits which might be contributing to their health problems.

The AHA suggests these actions to help prevent a second heart attack:

- Stop smoking.
- Lower the levels of saturated fats and cholesterol in daily diets.

• Engage in a minimum of 30 minutes of physical exercise, three or four times a week.

• Achieve and maintain a desirable weight.

• Cut down on salt and alcohol consumption.

• Take prescribed medications faithfully.

• Follow your doctor's advice regarding the use of ACE inhibitors, beta-blockers and estrogen replacement therapy.

The AHA counsels that — as with all medical recommendations — your physician is the best source of advice. The results of following such advice are well worth the time and effort required to secure it.

Cardiovascular disease (CVD) is the leading cause of death in Michigan. About 45 percent of those deaths could have been prevented by lifestyle and behavior changes.

For more information about avoiding a second heart attack, contact your nearest AHA office at (800) 242-8721, or visit the AHA's web site at www.americanheart.org.

"By Word of Mouth"
Dr. Kevin Prush, D.D.S.

It is quite possible many of you have experienced having a cap done by your dentist. It is also possible you have heard of a root canal. Lastly, if you are familiar with the terms root canal and cap, the terms post and core are also familiar.

Why have I brought up these three procedures (cap, root canal and post/core)? I want to discuss these procedures because they are confusing to most patients, and often are related.

Let me give you an example. Gilligan gets hit in the mouth with a coconut. The coconut breaks his front tooth at the gumline, exposing a painful nerve. "Little toothy" needs a root canal, post & core build-up of the tooth, and a cap.

Allow me to explain. When a nerve is exposed it generally requires a root canal, which quite simply is the removal of the nerve inside a tooth. Once the nerve is removed, the tooth needs to be built up into a "peg" so a cap can ultimately be cemented on the "peg".

Think of the root canal as the groundwork or foundation, and the post & core and cap as the building or architecture. Now the cap looks like and is shaped like an ideal tooth!

Does a tooth require a root canal whenever a cap is done? No. A root canal is not a prerequisite to a cap! Thus if there was a dentist on Gilligan's island, Gilligan could go from toothless to a perfect smile, with the help of these procedures.

Pointes spawn jazz composer, world champ chorus

We may not think of the Pointes as a cradle of creativity, but the performing artists from this community who are making a mark in the real world is getting impressive.

Two examples currently on the scene winning impressive credits in music are jazz composer Amy Stephens and the Detroit Concert Choir.

Stephens has just topped an outstanding record as student in jazz performance and composition at Indiana University School of Music with a CD that is winning wide recognition.

Amy Stephens

The group performing are all her fellow students playing piano, sax, bass, drums, trumpet, flugelhorn, guitar and percussion. And her music encompasses an exciting diversity of jazz styles from samba, afro-pop and fusion to bossa nova and straight-ahead swing.

It is all there in her CD titled Amy Stephens Group. The jazz enthusiast will recognize influences of John Coltrane and Miles Davis. The unsophisticated jazz lover will just find music that is both stimulating and comfortable. In listening to her compositions it is evident that Stephens has thoroughly absorbed the jazz idiom and is able to express her own muse with real authority in that uniquely American musical tradition.

For a purist, the fact that these are all compositions leaving little room for the traditional improvisation, seems only to signal what may be an appropriate step for jazz. Stephens is treating it as a form and style that has matured as a structure for her own creative inspirations. Her compositions certainly add interestingly to the repertoire. Moreover, they make for very satisfying listening.

Her professor, David N. Baker, chairman of jazz studies, has already praised her and her collaborators in performance to the sky. He describes Stephens as "a brilliant musician and composer-arranger" and her players as "the creme de la creme of our jazz players."

By Alex Suczek

With her CD already being picked up by DJs on jazz radio, a demand has begun to form for it in record stores. That is being satisfied locally by the Harmony House outlets.

Meanwhile the accomplishments and recognition of the Detroit Concert Choir are achieving further world conquest. From the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, this group under its dynamic director Gordon Nelson, went to Wales, the home of choral singing, and took the title "Choir of the World for 1996."

Since then, its achievements have been continuous. There have been highly praised performances of Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah" and Mozart's "Requiem" in leading churches and synagogues. There have been opera concerts and cabaret entertainments attended and praised by political figures as well as musicians and fans. Christmas programs have set attendance records and audiences cheered their performances of the Faure Requiem and Cole Porter Pops at the Detroit Symphony. This is one busy choir.

Now the choir is helping service groups with benefit concerts and working on a program to provide musical experience for children whose schools are deficient in music education.

It should be no surprise then that the choir is leaving on Oct. 23 to compete at the prestigious Tolosa Choral Contest in the Basque district of northern Spain. Only top winners of other worldwide competitions are invited. Only 20 took part last year.

In a last celebration before departure, and an effort to raise additional funds for the trip, the choir is offering an "Hasta La Vista" performance at the Grosse Pointe Woods

Presbyterian Church beginning at 4 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 18.

Few performances can be heralded with such outstanding credentials. For program information and tickets, call (810) 781-0111.

October is apple month

Following the wonderfully warm early autumn weather we have enjoyed, it's nice to finally feel the crispness of the fall season. With that feeling comes the bountiful harvest of vegetables and fruits, many grown by local farmers. It is the time of year for stopping at roadside stands or paying a visit to one of Detroit's jewels, the Eastern Market.

Apples are everywhere. It's October, it's time. Michigan is third in line among states that grow apples. The United States ranks No. 2 worldwide. There are almost 10,000 varieties of apples, but only a few are raised commercially.

The three most popular in the United States are the Delicious, Golden Delicious and McIntosh apples. Of these, the Golden Delicious is probably the most versatile. Its tart flavor can be enjoyed fresh and they also hold their shape and texture when used in baking.

Today's feature, Apple Johnnycake comes from the October 1994 issue of Eating Well magazine. Johnnycakes, which date back to the 1700s, are pancakes made out of corn meal. The following recipe adds egg, buttermilk and other ingredients to the traditional Johnnycake which consisted of only corn meal, salt and either boiling water or cold milk.

Johnnycake

Apple topping
1 tablespoon unsalted butter
2 tablespoons pure maple syrup
2 large apples (such as Golden Delicious or Newton Pippin) peeled, cored, and sliced 1/4-inch thick

Buttermilk Corn Bread
3/4 cup corn meal
3/4 cup all-purpose white flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1 large egg, lightly beaten
1 cup buttermilk OR 1/2 cup nonfat plain yogurt PLUS 1/2 cup skim milk

1/4 cup pure maple syrup, plus more for serving
2 tablespoons vegetable oil, preferably canola oil

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Peel, core and slice the apples. Set aside. In a 10-inch cast-iron skillet (ovenproof) heat butter and 2 tbs. maple syrup over medium-high heat. Add the apple slices and saute for 5-7 minutes, tossing occasionally, until slightly softened. Remove skillet from heat. Using tongs or two spoons arrange the apple slices in the skillet, neatly fanning the slices out from the center. Set aside.

To make the corn bread, combine corn meal, flour, baking powder, salt and baking soda in a medium bowl. In another bowl, whisk together the egg, buttermilk, 1/4 cup maple syrup and oil. Stir the wet mixture into the dry mixture just until combined, no longer.

By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

Spread the corn bread mixture gently over the apples. Bake for 30-35 minutes, or until a knife inserted into the center of the corn bread comes out clean. Cool in skillet on a wire rack for 5 minutes. In the meantime heat some pure maple syrup on the stove or in the microwave. Turn skillet over onto a serving platter, gently inverting the apple Johnnycake. Rearrange any apple slices that stick to the pan. Serve immediately. Top the sliced Johnnycake with the warmed syrup.

This easy treat took less than one hour to prepare, including baking time. Apple Johnnycake is the perfect complement to an autumn brunch buffet or the finishing touch at a dinner party, topped with vanilla ice cream. Always serve warm; reheat leftovers before serving.

Vienna Coffee Shop

By David C. Bloom
Special Writer

"You're going where?" Diane asks.

"It's that Yugo place," says Harvey.

"Just down from Tom's Oyster Bar," adds Wendy.

So much for calling Vienna Coffee Shop, Grosse Pointe Park's "best-kept secret."

The burgeoning popularity of the Vienna Coffee Shop is the only thing that's changed in the 2 1/2 years since Jasmin ("yahz-MEEN") and Vesna Dulbic opened their Mack Avenue door. But never fear: you can still get a glass top dinette table and a wrought-iron chair. Success hasn't spoiled the Dulbics.

It's still an oasis of lazy distraction from the Pointes' bustling urban lifestyle. Jasmin Dulbic was a European Juan Valdez before the conflict that laid waste to his native Sarajevo. There, in one of Europe's most resplendent old cities, he brokered coffee for cafes from Zurich to Vienna. It was a perfect job: he knows a lot about coffee, and he got to hang around in cafes all day.

In 1993, Jasmin left war-torn Bosnia-Herzegovina to rejoin his wife and family in Vienna, and try to make some kind of a life for themselves. It took a year for the Dulbics to immigrate to the United States. They came straight to Detroit — the west side — and set up housekeeping in Plymouth.

Facing a formidable language barrier, Jasmin took a truck driver job so he didn't have to talk with anyone. But the normally gregarious Bosnian was lonely, and he wasn't acclimating.

"Me. I have to go meet people, talk with people. You pick up everything faster when you speak with people, make friendships, share stories," he said.

"If you stay in truck 24 hour a day, you lose. You have more money, but no friends."

Disconnected from his homeland, Jasmin found he missed his own emigre family. "My wife is good cook, but I never home for dinner. We want to stay together. When I drove truck, didn't see each other," he said.

Hence Vienna Coffee Shop. "You find same place all over Europe," Jasmin says of his cafe, "we make it look we saw there." So Vienna Coffee Shop feels like a gallery or den: room, littered with magazines and games, the walls washed with mood lights and posters. "I don't know whether people like it or not," says Jasmin without a trace of disingenuousness.

Time stops when you enter. The place draws you in, makes you linger. To order coffee to go would be an insult. "Everyone has 15 minutes in day to drink coffee," the former coffee broker insists.

Service is unbelievably peppy for so laid-back a dining room. Vesna careens charmingly from table to table, serving, busing, and making recommendations. "With that you want Viennese Latte." Double Italian espresso with cream, $2. "You want sweet-er? Ohhhh!" A flirty fortysomething wink. "Mochaccino!" Double espresso, hot chocolate, chocolate syrup, steamed milk, and whipped cream, with chocolate shavings on top. Too sinfully rich to properly be called a beverage.

Order "Coffee Dark" ($1.50) for one of the best cups this side of NATO.

Jasmin personally selects the proper dark-roasted blend, then prepares a strong brew with wine, smoke, and nutty notes, and a slow-motion finish that brings an "Ahhh" along. Skip the cream and sugar, and please don't debase it with flavored syrup. This is the real bean.

Good coffee demands good food, and vice versa. Vienna Coffee Shop offers a mix of a dozen light entrees to go with your coffee. Vesna runs out of half the menu by sundown, so be sure and ask what's available before making your selection.

The cuisine — rolled sandwiches, and salads — is all authentic, which is to say, small, sweet, rich, and feeling. Soups run out by lunch, but are supplanted by "special" pastas — Vesna's R&D for an upcoming expanded menu. And a pastry case beckons with butter cream buns and assorted cardiologist fodder. Panini look like a cross between pancakes and green salad. The signature Salzburg Panini ($3.75) layers three warm pitas with creamed beans and vegetables, then douses the short stack with ricotta, mozzarella, and an intoxicating pink sauce — a spicy-sweet magma of eggplant, tri-color peppers, and olive oil — the "syrup" for your "pancakes." Panini are fork-tender, and too messy to be eaten manually. The accompanying salad of leaf lettuce and sliced roma tomatoes is a fine complement. Other panini substitute sausage (the Tirol), tuna (the Prater), chicken (the Kertner), or garlicky roast beef (the Krumpendorf). They don't look like much — a tidy Napoleon encircled by a Waterloo of salad, carpeted with parsley — but each expands to fill all available space in your stomach.

Rolled sandwiches are a manual variation on the panini, wherein stuffings are rolled in pita or doughy lavish tortillas. Each roll has a panini counterpart, and the panini are superior (not to mention two bucks cheaper). But the rolls excel at their ability to be eaten "on the go" (though to order in this criss, New World fashion seems an insult to the Dulbics' efforts). Salads unroll the rolled sandwiches onto huge earthenware trays for a more substantial presentation.

The Viennese salad ($5.95) stars a roasted chicken breast patty encrusted with a salty herb blend, sliced, and topped with a splayed sour plum. Here the salad is tossed with tri-color apple wedges, and doused with a sweet fruit dressing. The contrasting Austro-Hungarian salad (also $5.95) replaces chicken with a firm, smoky Vienna sausage, topped with the house dressing (unadulterated).

If you somehow passed on the coffee with your lunch, high tea, or late supper, by all means order a cup to wash down dessert. Vesna makes most of them in-house, and is quick to point out her latest creations. At my last visit, we caved for the Platonic mocha torte ($3), alternating layers of whipped coffee-cream and gooey ganache, spread with butter cream, rolled in nuts, and topped with a thick powdering of chocolate and straight ground coffee. Vesna, ever-present, seemed to feast on our facial expressions as we did on her torte.

Division play gives South a spark

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

The Macomb Area Conference White Division schedule seems to be bringing out the best in Grosse Pointe South's boys soccer team.

The Blue Devils, who won only two of their seven non-league games, have a victory and a tie to show for their efforts in the MAC White.

"Our whole defense has been playing pretty well, but our problem has been finishing," said coach Bob Koch. "We've passed the ball well, too. If they gave points for passing, we'd have a pretty good record."

South began division play with a 2-2 tie against L'Anse Creuse North.

Andrew Georgandellis and Nathan Steiner scored the Blue Devils' goals. Twice South had one-goal leads but LCN came back to tie the game.

"We'd control the play but they'd get a long ball and capitalize on it for a goal," Koch said.

Junior goalkeeper Alan Albrecht posted his second shutout of the season.

"We controlled the ball so well in that game," Koch said. "We had 18 shots."

Koch praised the play of his defense, including sweeper Matt Lapish, Jordan Ellis, Ben Dickson and Justin Schoenherr.

Earlier, South posted a 3-0 victory over cross-town rival Grosse Pointe North.

Defense carries Norsemen to fourth straight football victory

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

A couple of years ago, Grosse Pointe North's Frank Sumner took some good-natured ribbing from his football coaching colleagues when he talked about defense at a clinic -- after giving up 52 points in a playoff game.

That won't be the case this year.

The Norsemen's defense has been back up to its usual standards in carrying the team to a 4-0 overall record and three straight victories in the tough Macomb Area Conference White Division.

The latest was a 7-0 victory over Port Huron last Friday that kept North unbeaten under the lights on its home field.

"We've been playing real good, solid defense all year," Sumner said. "Nick Thomsen (the defensive coordinator) has done a great job with the kids."

The numbers bear that out.

In four games, the first defensive unit has allowed only two touchdowns -- one to Grosse Pointe South and one to L'Anse Creuse North.

"We're a lot more aggressive this year," Sumner said. "We knew we had a solid front four in (Will) Solomon, (Bryan) Kupets, (John) Trupiano and ground.

Josh Lorence continued his outstanding play with 139 yards in 12 carries, while Mike Prieur had his best game with 17 carries for 74 yards.

Fullback Dan Griesbaum, who scored South's first touchdown on a 20-yard run, had nine carries for 52 yards and did an effective job of blocking.

South took a 14-0 lead late in the first half on a play that had fans on both sides of the field buzzing.

The Blue Devils took possession of the ball on their 30 with 40 seconds left in the first half.

"Usually we'll just run out the clock in that situation, but my offensive coordinator suggested that we go for the score," McLeod said. "I said OK and we went to the no-huddle offense and went into a shotgun formation."

On the first play, the snap went over the head of quarterback Mike Kaselitz and it looked like the decision was going to backfire on the Blue Devils.

Kaselitz picked up the ball and passed to Lorence, who went 70 yards for a touchdown.

"If Josh hadn't had the presence of mind to come back, we'd have probably lost big yardage," McLeod said. "As things turned out, we went off at halftime with a 14-0 lead."

Andrew Hendrie kicked the extra point after four of the five touchdowns.

It took Grosse Pointe South's football team a little while to figure out L'Anse Creuse North's defense, but once it did, there was no stopping the Blue Devils.

"They put in a new defense for us and bottled us up for about a quarter," said South coach Mike McLeod after his team won the Macomb Area Conference White Division game 34-0.

"They came out in a wide 4-3 alignment with their defensive ends playing inside the tight ends. They also stacked their linebackers and played some games with them. Eventually, we started going off tackle and had a lot of success."

Knights get confidence boost with victory over Lutheran East

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

University Liggett School's chances of winning its football game at Cranbrook Kingswood Saturday look a lot better than they did a week ago.

The reason for the optimism is an impressive 36-12 victory over Lutheran East last Friday that ended the Knights' three-game losing streak.

"We needed this win for our confidence," said coach Gary Hills. "We've been improving each week, but it's a big lift for the kids to win a game. We still have a lot of things to improve on — we took too many penalties and we still didn't play four quarters — but we're getting there. If we can eliminate the penalties, we can play with anybody."

ULS had seven penalties for 55 yards, including a holding call 10 yards behind the play that cost Nick Maitland his fourth touchdown of the game.

One of the most encouraging aspects of the Knights' win over East was the turnover ratio. ULS forced five turnovers, while committing only one.

Paul Brennan, one of four freshman nose tackles that Hills alternates, recovered one of the fumbles that led to ULS' first touchdown early in the second quarter.

Brennan recovered at the Knights' 40 and moments later quarterback A.J. Stachecki hit tight end C.R. Moultry with a 44-yard pass to the East four. On the next play, Ryan Lewis went in for the touchdown. Drew Noecker added the extra point.

East gambled on a fourth and two situation the next time it had the football and ULS' Jim Wood stopped the Eagles' ball carrier short of the first down.

The Knights quickly took advantage and scored on a 66-yard pass from Stachecki to Waref Hawaii. Noecker's extra point made it 14-0.

Noecker kicked a 34-yard field goal with eight seconds left. Hills thought time should have expired on the play but the clock was slow to start and ULS had to kickoff. East then returned the kick 82 yards for a touchdown.

"Three points cost us six and gave (the Eagles) a reason to believe they were still in the game," Hills said.

ULS had a touchdown called back on a holding penalty early in the third quarter, then fumbled for its only turnover of the game. The Knights got the ball back when Wood recovered a fumble on the East 30. A couple of plays later, Maitland scored on a 19-yard run.

Turnovers also set up ULS' next two touchdowns. Hawaii intercepted a pass at the East 40 and Maitland scored on a 35-yard run. A fumble recovery by Anthony Legree set up Maitland's third touchdown of the game — a 31-yard run that was helped along by a good block from freshman tackle Andrew Critchell to boost the Knights' lead to 36-6.

Maitland finished with 144 yards in 14 carries.

"He came of age in this game," Hills said of his sophomore running back. "It took more than one tackler to bring him down. He really ran with confidence."

The offensive line also had its best game of the season.

"We opened up some holes for the runners and for the first time, A.J. had time to pass the ball," Hills said.

Legree and Lewis were co-players of the game.

"Anthony graded out at 83 percent," the coach said. "He was going against a kid who was 6-5 and 280 pounds, so Anthony was giving away about 100 pounds."

Legree also had an outstanding game on defense, leading with 15 tackles, one more than Wood collected.

Also playing strong games on defense were Jim McBride, Elanges and the nose tackle quartet of Brennan, Darius Clark, Ross Iewicki and C.T. Charlton.

Moultry got the base award for the hardest hit on a tackle he made during a kickoff return.

South runs to another invitational first

Grosse Pointe South's girls cross country team made it three-for-three in invitational meets last weekend when the Blue Devils took first place in the 17-team Shamrock Invitational hosted by Redford Catholic Central at Cass Benton Park in Northville.

The Blue Devils, ranked fifth in the state in Division I, have won all three invitationals are a 4-C in dual meets.

Despite battling record heat, the South girls placed four runners in the top 10 at the Shamrock Invitational.

South was again led by junior Beth Auty, who placed third overall in 19:55. Close behind in fifth place was junior Heidi Crowley (20:25). Senior Kristin Ritter was seventh (20:56) and sophomore Elizabeth Osburn 10th (20:59).

Katy Kraft finished 19th and Kate Finkinstaedt 24th to round out the Blue Devils' varsity runners.

"Our depth was again a huge factor in our team's success," said coach Steve Zaranek. "This was our most competitive meet of the season with several outstanding teams from the metro area. Our girls handled the competition and the heat in great style."

South looked strong in the junior varsity race, too. Freshman Bridget Scallen and junior Meghan Robson finished 1-2 with times of 22:33 and 22:57. They were followed by Erin Smialek, Victoria Edwards, Erica Hill, Maureen Hoehn and Amanda Andrade. Other outstanding performances came from Suzanne Swanson, Brianna Jones and Allison Day.

Earlier, South ran against Macomb Area Conference Red Division foes Port Huron and Sterling Heights and posted convincing victories.

South beat Sterling Heights 21-38 and shut out Port Huron 15-50.

Auty, Crowley, Osburn, Ritter, Mary Gibson, Finkinstaedt and Scallen led the way for South. They were followed closely by Smialek, Robson, Hill, Hoehn and Cristin Brophy.

Others with season-best times were Monica Loveley, Erin Griffin, Katie Edelstein, Emily Ross and Dakita Coney.

yards for a touchdown.

McLeod substituted freely after the Blue Devils went ahead 28-0 and backup quarterback Andrew Viasak capped the scoring with a one-yard sneak. Prieur picked up most of the yardage in the final drive behind the blocking of sophomore fullback Julian Danko.

McLeod praised the play of the offensive line, which included Shanta Santos and Mark Fragel at one tackle, Charles Missant and Mark ZurSchmiede at one guard, Sam Henderson at center, Marty Harms and Brian Krall at the other guard and Doug Orttenburger and Geoff Weed at the other tackle.

"Adam Maloof has been doing a great job at tight end," McLeod said. "He doesn't just make one block. He'll knock a guy down and then look for a second and third player to block."

Defensive ends Justin Simon, Ryan Joyce and Harms played outstanding games, as did linebackers Maloof and Santos. Griesbaum made a touchdown-saving tackle at the South five early in the game. Simon, Santos and Lorence each recovered LCN fumbles.

Defense is the key to North's win

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's girls basketball team showed that a good defense is sometimes the best offense when it met Fraser in a key Macomb Area Conference White Division game last week.

The Norsemen started the second half with a 14-4 run and nearly all of the points were the result of turnovers forced by North's stifling defense.

"We talked at halftime about creating more offense with our defense," said coach Gary Bennett after the Norsemen held on for a 39-35 victory.

"The girls really stepped it up a couple of notches. We had outstanding play from the people behind our press, especially Natalie Potthoff."

Fraser led 13-12 at halftime, but North quickly regained the lead on baskets by Lauren Bramos and Lindsay Hawkins and a three-point goal by Michelle Champine.

Champine hit another triple in the third quarter and Hawkins, who led the Norsemen with 14 points, made two baskets in the final 30 seconds to send North into the fourth quarter with a 30-23 advantage.

The Norsemen missed several free throws down the stretch and the Ramblers cut the lead to 38-35 on a layup by Justine O'Neil with 36 seconds left.

Fraser sent North to the free throw line again with 7.5 seconds left and once again missed two attempts, but Bramos tipped the rebound to Champine, who got the ball to Claire Kotwick. Kotwick was fouled with 1.5 seconds to go and hit the second of her two free throws to seal the win.

"We work on free throws all the time in practice and we usually make about 70 percent," said co-coach Sue Speirs. "We just had trouble tonight."

Champine finished with 10 points and Potthoff added eight. Bramos led the Norsemen with five rebounds. Shannon Barnes paced Fraser with 12 points and nine rebounds, while O'Neil finished with 11 points.

The victory improved North's record to 5-2 overall and 4-0 in the MAC White.

Earlier, the Norsemen took an early lead against East Detroit and beat the Shamrocks 42-29.

"It was pretty tight until we pulled away in the fourth quarter," Bennett said. "Carrie Bidigare had six of her 10 points in the fourth quarter and they were huge. They helped us pull away."

Kotwick led North with 15 points.

First quarters are decisive for Knights

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

First quarters were both good and bad to University Liggett School's girls basketball team last week.

The Knights used a 16-3 advantage in the opening quarter to roll past Harper Woods 57-20 in a Metro Conference game, but ULS never recovered from a 10-2 first-quarter deficit in bowing to league rival Hamtramck 41-35 a few nights later.

"We won the rest of the game, but we just couldn't get going in the first quarter against Hamtramck," said ULS coach John Bando. "We tried everything. We went from a zone to a zone press, from man-to-man defense to a man-to-man press."

ULS finally got going and pulled to within a point, 15-14, at halftime.

Then an old problem cropped up again.

"We couldn't hit our free throws," Bando said. "We had the opportunities in the third and fourth quarters, but we shot only 20 percent from the line."

Sherma Brown led ULS with 10 points and seven steals.

The Knights also got a strong performance off the bench from Paula Sneed.

"Keli Bonner got hurt in the fourth quarter and Paula came in and got a couple of key baskets to keep us in the game," Bando said.

The victory over Harper Woods featured balanced scoring by the Knights.

Bonner led the way with 11 points, while Brown and Courney Hillis added 10 apiece. Hills also pulled down nine rebounds.

ULS is now 2-3 in the Metro Conference and 2-5 overall. The Knights play a non-league game at Ann Arbor Greenhills tonight, Oct. 1, then resume conference play at Lutheran North Tuesday.

South swims well against No. 2 Mercy

Grosse Pointe South's girls swimming team more than held its own in a dual meet against second-ranked Farmington Hills Mercy.

The Blue Devils lost 113-73, but South took several first places.

One of the firsts came from diver Kristen Schulte, who nosed out a Mercy diver by six-tenths of a point. South's Kealy helped by a key block from Larry Selvaggi. Gene Baratta added the extra point.

North also had interceptions from David Hirt and K.C. Cleary. Cleary's pick with 1:15 left, sealed the victory for the Norsemen.

Port Huron, which fell to 2-2, also played some solid defense. North had a good scoring chance late in the first half after a 43-yard pass from Koerber to Sorgeloos gave the Norsemen a first down at the Port Huron seven, but the drive stalled and Baratta's 23-yard field goal attempt was just wide.

Port Huron's deepest penetration in the first half was the North 45.

An interception by Chris Collier gave Port Huron the ball at the Norsemen's 40 early in the second half and the Big Reds drove to the North 29 before Hirt's interception ended that threat.

Another interception gave Port Huron the ball at the North 28 with about six minutes left in the game, but that drive stalled on the 20.

"One of our goals on defense is to have three downs and out on 50 percent of our opponents' possessions," Sumner said. "Right now, we're operating at better than 60 percent efficiency."

Friedlund led North's defense with 13 stops and Strickland had 13. Carter had a hand in seven tackles, while Trupiano, Kupets, Jeff Hermann and Aaron McBride had six apiece.

Strong safety Phil Kozlowski also had a good game for the Norsemen.

"We had everybody covered," Sumner said. "The quarterback couldn't find anybody to throw to."

Team effort for South

It was a total team effort when Grosse Pointe South's girls basketball team crushed Port Huron 63-21 in a Macomb Area Conference Red Division game.

All 10 Blue Devils broke into the scoring column, led by Scarlett O'Keefe with 12 points and Beth Howson and Jodie Nyenhuis with 10 apiece.

Howson also had 10 steals and four assists. Megan Shapiro collected six points, six assists and six steals.

The Blue Devils followed that effort with a 56-52 loss to Roseville.

Colleen Trybus played well in the losing cause with 17 points, seven rebounds, three assists and four steals. Howson had 14 points and nine steals.

Earlier, South overpowered Chippewa Valley 57-27.

O'Keefe had 19 points and 10 rebounds, while Dinah Zebot had 12 points and 13 rebounds. Howson had three points, six assists and three steals.

Once again, the Blue Devils experienced a roller coaster ride as they fell 55-42 to Stevenson.

O'Keefe had 13 points and eight rebounds, while Howson collected nine points, three assists and five steals and Zebot had seven points and 16 rebounds.

North

230-pound fullback, Benny Esters, and kept him bottled up as the Big Reds had fewer than 100 yards in total offense and managed only five first downs in the game.

Port Huron completed only two of 12 passes. Quarterback Demar Cranford was sacked twice and there were a total of six tackles for losses.

North also had three take-aways, including a fumble recovery by Strickland that set up the only touchdown of the game — an eight yard run on a keeper by quarterback Scott Koerber with 10 seconds left in the third quarter.

Friedlund made the hit on Port Huron's Jeffrey Brandt and Strickland fell on the ball at the Big Reds' 22-yard line.

Two running plays by Mike Sorgeloos gained a total of eight yards but North got a five-yard delay of game penalty. Koerber then passed 11 yards to Dennis Theodorou for a first down at the Port Huron eight.

On the next play, Koerber ran the option to the left side and went into the end zone,

Salvo '88 runner-up at Troy Classic

The Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Salvo '88 travel team finished second in the under-11 division of the Troy Classic tournament.

The Salvo beat Troy 9-1 in the tournament opener as Frankie DeLaura scored three goals and Chad Murphy and Christian Conroy added two apiece.

Matt Leverenz and Jeff Remillet also scored. Conroy and Brendan Howe each had two assists, while Michael DePerro, Murphy and Leverenz collected one apiece.

Joey DiStefano played a strong game in goal, while Spencer Logan and Michael Yakamovich led the defense.

Conroy's unassisted goal in the second half was all the Salvo could muster despite a strong attack in a 2-1 loss to Grand Blanc.

Grosse Pointe finished the tournament with a 2-1 win over Rochester.

Conroy scored in the first half and Jonathan Van Sickle notched the second on a beautiful pass from DeLaura.

Zak Brooks had a fine game in goal, while Jon Gruenberg, Mark Szandzik and Bryan Mansfield played well on defense.

The Salvo plays in the Premier Division of the Michigan Youth Soccer League and is coached by John Conroy and Steve Bonasso.

UNDER-10
The Salvo '89 opened its fall season by splitting four games during the first two weekends. Grosse Pointe built a 4-0 halftime lead against Troy and held it through a scoreless second half.

Spencer MacGriff scored the first and fourth goals for the Salvo, while Brendan Symington and Greg Carmody also tallied. Jake Mandel and two assists, while MacGriff, Brad Jensen and Tim Deters picked up one apiece. Ryan Stepanski, David Szandzik and Colin Maloney played strong defense and Phil Cackowski was excellent in goal to record the shutout.

After the big first half against Troy, the offense went silent in shutout losses to USL United (4-0) and the Bloomfield Birmingham Barons (3-0).

The scoring drought continued through the first half of the Salvo's game with the Rochester Lightning, but a pair of second half goals gave Grosse Pointe a 2-1 win.

The Salvo got its first goal when Tom Burgess picked up a loose ball and fed it to Symington, who beat the Rochester goalie early in the second half. Some excellent teamwork resulted in the second goal. Deters intercepted a Rochester clearing pass and sent the ball back in to Matthew Faiver.

Faiver got an assist on a perfect centering pass to Jensen, who beat the Lightning goalie for a 2-0 lead. Rochester scored with 30 seconds remaining to spoil the shutout.

Ryan Deane and Matt Naber had strong games at midfield for the Salvo, while Carmody played well on defense.

ULS runners are doing well in a rebuilding season

This is a rebuilding year for University Liggett School's boys cross country team after losing five of its top eight runners from last year 9-1 squad, but the Knights still have hopes for a successful season.

Led by captain Shaka Bahadu, ULS is hoping for a fourth-place finish in the Metro Conference.

Bahadu, a junior, became the only the second ULS runner to earn a 500-mile award by logging 506 miles during the summer.

Bahadu's work paid off at the Harper Woods Invitational when he led from start to finish and won in 18:24. Teammates Blair Foust and Jim Fortune were second and fourth, respectively, in helping the Knights win the team championship.

"We had a small mini-camp at Kalkaska this season," said coach Philip Langford. "We went directly from 48 miles of hills and more hills to the race, so the kids were tired. They ran on determination. I was so happy with the race that I let them take Sunday off."

Some pre-race strategy paid off for the ULS runners.

"Coach Langford had us delay our start by saying 'one thousand one' at the gun," Bahadu said. "He knew this race always starts out too fast and he did not want us in that mess. It worked perfectly as the long starting straight turned into a V-shape. Fortune and I were untouched in the middle. It was cool."

Bahadu wasn't in the top 20 until the mile mark, which he completed in 5:19, but steadily worked his way into the top 10.

"I had a good start and a very strong finish," Bahadu said. "I need to work on my second mile to get under 17 minutes."

The Knights finished fourth in the eight-team ULS Invitational held on Grosse Pointe North's Vernier Hill course. Detroit Holy Redeemer won the team championship.

Bahadu ran a better second mile, but Warren Bethesda's

Gabe Wardell was the individual champion in 16:39. Wardell pulled away from a pack of four other runners just past the mile mark.

Bahadu gave chase, but was nearly six seconds behind with a two-mile split of 10:42. His time of 16:58 was a personal record and good for second place.

Fortune also had a PR with an 18:43.

"Jim was surprised that his time was so fast," Langford said. "It was his first sub-19-minute performance. He has been putting in good mileage and sticking to our pace workouts very well. He no longer runs practices harder than his race."

John Durant was 33rd, John DeWald 39th and Aigner Gibbs 42nd to round out the ULS scoring.

Neilson was 32nd in 23:50 and won a medal at the Muskrat Invitational.

"Lizzie is a very hard worker and I sometimes have to slow her down in practices," Langford said. "In a race, she is fearless and will surge or pick up the pace whenever she is told."

"At Algonac -- her first high school race -- she was in 46th place with just over a mile left. We yelled to her that she had to pass nine runners to get a medal as she ran into the woods and out of sight until the final 300 meters. Lizzie passed 14 runners and got the medal."

The girls portion of the ULS Invitational was significant because it marked the first time the Knights fielded a complete girls squad and they finished second behind Lakeview.

Neilson led the way with a freshman record 23:36 and finished second. Carrie Brown, still scraped up from a battle with a Grosse Pointe sidewalk a day earlier, finished fifth.

Jennifer Parsigian was sixth (26:10), Lauren Parrott seventh (26:16) and Clare Burchi finished 10th, despite a wrong turn and several hundred extra yards.

"Parsigian, Parrott and Burchi are JV field hockey players and other than logging their sticks endlessly around our track, they haven't practiced for a 5K run," Langford said.

"The varsity field hockey team and all of the coaches were out of state for a tournament so the girls had a day off. Parrott convinced the other two it would be fun (to run) and history was made."

Yvonne Machiniack of Lakeview was the individual champion in 21:27.

South golfers eye league, regional meets

Grosse Pointe South's golf team has only two returning lettermen from last year's regional qualifier, but the Blue Devils are in contention for league and regional titles once again.

"It looks like a five-team battle for the three state qualifying spots from our regional," said South coach Jon Rice, whose team has a 7-3 overall record and 6-2 mark in the tough Macomb Area Conference Red Division.

"We should be in there with Grosse Pointe North, Utica Ford, De La Salle and Sterling Heights. And all but De La Salle will be the contenders at our division meet."

The MAC Red meet will be held Monday at Wolverine Golf Club, while the regional will be Friday, Oct. 9 at the new Hawk Course at Partridge Creek.

South's varsity leaders so far have been seniors Tony Tocco, Josh White and Mike Goldsby, junior Eric Borrell and freshman Mike Follis.

One of the highlights of the season for the Blue Devils was Tocco's 75 at the Marshall Invitational. He finished second among the individuals.

"We were third out of 20 teams and 10 of the 20 were ranked in the top 10 in the state in Division I and II," Rice said.

South also had a fourth-place finish in the 22-team Evans-Gill Invitational.

"We've played pretty well," Rice said. "We had only two returning lettermen."

Swim

South's 400-yard freestyle relay team of Elizabeth Cronin, Allison Clark, Amanda Dumler and Lindsay Rodin nipped Mercy with a winning time of 3:54.43.

Cronin won the 100 freestyle in 58.94 and Rodin, a freshman, won the 100 butterfly in a state-qualifying time of 1:01.91.

The Blue Devils took the first two spots in the 100 breaststroke with Elena Callas (1:12.75) and Maggie McGrath (1:13.22).

Dumler had a strong race in the 200 individual medley, while backstrokers Ashlee Linne, Julie Mazer-Schmidt and Jennifer Richardson-Rossbach turned in personal bests.

Jim Bellanca is the head coach of South's girls team, with Bill Thompson and Jamie Mertz assisting. Tom Mulhern coaches the divers.

Easy week turns tough for Knights

By Chuck Klonek
Sports Editor

What looked like an easy week turned out to be more than University Liggett School's soccer team had bargained for.

"This was supposed to be one of our easier weeks and we had to work hard for what we got," said Knights coach David Backhurst after his team posted Metro Conference victories over Lutheran East (2-1) and Lutheran Northwest (4-0) and played a scoreless tie with non-league foe Ann Arbor Greenhills.

"This week it gets a lot tougher. We play Lutheran North, which is ranked eighth in Division III; Lutheran Westland, which is sixth in Division IV; and Lansing Catholic Central, which is also ranked in Division III."

ULS has to find some scoring punch if it's going to win the tough games.

"Our defense had been outstanding," Backhurst said. "Soudi Kazzi was out, but sophomore Andrew Yee, a rookie on the varsity, stepped in and did a good job. We also continued to get good defensive play from Nick Clark, Mace McDonald and Jonathan Kish."

Sometimes Backhurst wishes he had two Kishes.

"He's so valuable to us at sweeper, where he's been playing great, but when we need some offense, I move him up (to forward)," the coach said.

Kish's offense was responsible for both of ULS' league wins.

He scored the Knights' first goal with 18 minutes left in the game against Lutheran East, then assisted on all four goals in the Lutheran Northwest contest.

Some good strategy by the Lutheran East coach caused ULS all sorts of problems.

"They used an offside trap," Backhurst said. "They'd bring their sweeper way up and we were constantly getting caught offside. We talked about it at halftime and still had problems. It was something of a desperate maneuver but a brilliant one on their part."

The game was scoreless until Mike DiLoreto set up Kish for the Knights' first goal. About seven minutes later, Nick DiLoreto set up J.D. Spina for what turned out to be the winning goal because the Eagles spoiled the shutout bid on a free kick with about three minutes left.

It looked like the first half of ULS' game with Northwest was going to end without any goals, too, but with eight minutes left Kish redirected a pass off his head to Scott Vallee, who gave the Knights a 1-0 halftime lead.

Mike DiLoreto scored the next two goals for ULS and Eli Binns-Cooley capped the scoring.

ULS dominated play, outshooting the Crusaders 27-3.

The Knights' final game of the week was a scoreless tie with Greenhills.

"We were real flat in the first half," Backhurst said. "We played a strong second half and outshot them 15-4, but just couldn't put the ball in the net."

ULS' best scoring opportunity came with about 30 seconds remaining when Kish sent a pass to Binns-Cooley, but he couldn't get a shot off.

The Greenhills game turned out to be the busiest of the season for goalie Dan Ferrin, who was outstanding in stopping all 11 shots he faced.

"He made some real good saves," Backhurst said. "Before this game, the most shots we had allowed in any was seven."

ULS is 4-1 in the Metro Conference and 7-2-2 overall.

Inconsistency hurts North soccer squad

By Chuck Klonek
Sports Editor

Inconsistency has been a problem for Grosse Pointe North's boys soccer team this season.

"We're looking for a consistent total team effort," said coach Sam Steinhebel after the Norsemen split their first two games in the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division.

"That's where the leadership comes in. We need a catalyst to get us going sometimes. We have to see who steps up."

North had that solid performance in a 1-0 victory over L'Anse Creuse in its MAC Blue opener.

"It was a total team effort," Steinhebel said. "We held them to two shots and got a shutout for backup goalkeeper Ryan Michels. Our defense was anchored by sophomore Adam Burns and John Kosmas and Justin Dloski also played well on defense."

Matt Burns scored the only goal of the game off a crossing pass from Jared Wood.

"We had wonderful play from our midfielders -- Brad Drummy, Mike Tymrak, Wood and Matt Burns -- and forwards Yorg Kerastotis and Brendan Fossee caused a lot of trouble for the L'Anse Creuse defense."

Steinhebel wasn't as happy with the next game, a 3-1 loss to East Detroit.

"We were up 1-0 in the first half and we had dominated play," he said. "But after we went ahead, they came back and scored. It seems like we've given up a lot of goals right after we've scored. We seem to let our guard down a little bit."

North also played a 2-2 tie in a MAC crossover game with Port Huron.

The Norsemen play at Anchor Bay Friday at 7:30 p.m., then have road games with Lakeview Monday and L'Anse Creuse Wednesday.

scoring early in the second half after being set up by Trevor Szymanski. Alek Dragovic and Ken Potenga added unassisted goals for South, which controlled play for most of the second half.

Albrecht was strong in goal in recording his first varsity shutout.

"Lapish had a real good game at sweeper and led a fine defensive effort and Mike Bramlage did a good job controlling the game at center midfield with his passing," Koch said.

Earlier, South suffered 2-1 losses to Chippewa Valley and Eisenhower, bowed 5-1 to Fraser and 3-0 to Sterling Heights. The Blue Devils also chalked up a non-league victory over Farmington in the season-opening Country Day tournament.

"The Fraser and Sterling Heights games were the only two where we haven't played well," Koch said.

South hosts Port Huron Northern Friday at 4 p.m., then plays at L'Anse Creuse Wednesday.

NOVENA to St. Jude May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world, now and forever. Oh Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day, your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks, St. Jude for prayers answered. Special thanks to our Mother Of Perpetual Help. K.M.

THANK you Holy Mary for answering my prayers. MM

101 PRAYERS

O glorious Saint Therese, whom Almighty God has raised up to aid and counsel mankind, I implore your Miraculous Intercession. So powerful are you in obtaining every need of body and soul our Holy Mother Church proclaims you a "Prodigy of Miracles... the Greatest Saint of Modern Times." Now I fervently beseech you to answer my petition (mention here) and carry out your promises of spending Heaven doing good upon earth... of letting fall from Heaven a Shower of Blessings. Henceforth, dear Little Flower, I will fulfill your plea "to be made known everywhere" and I will never cease to lead others to Jesus through you. Amen. Thank you for your continual help. R.M.

PRAYER of the Blessed Virgin. Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven. Blessed Mother of the Son of God. Immaculate Virgin assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart, to succor me in my necessity (request here). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary conceived without sin, Pray for us who have recourse. Holy Mary, place this prayer in your hands. Say this 3 times, 3 days, publish it. It will be granted to you. K.M.

PRAYER to the Holy Spirit Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who gives me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. R.M.
