12-year-old cool during break-in

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

A 12-year-old girl kept her wits when startled out of her sleep by the rustling of three burglars who had invaded her home in the City of Grosse Pointe.

The girl was home nursing an illness when she heard noises on the morning of Friday, Oct. 9.

Scared but uninjured, she called police at 9:49 a.m. to report that the burglars had just left her home in the 600 block of Lincoln with a load of stolen items. According to police, one of the men "detained" the girl on the stairway leading upstairs while the other two continued removing articles from the house.

City Detective James Fox said police are "following up a lead," but he didn't want to show his hand with details that might tip-off the suspects.

The housebreakers entered the residence by breaking a rear window and reaching through to unhook the latch. Among the items that were stolen, police listed two televisions, a VCR, Gateway computer, fax machine, stereo system, Nintendo 64 game station, cable box and cellular telephone.

It could have been worse.

Fox said the thieves appeared to be half way through robbing the house when they were interrupted by the youngster.

"The little girl did the right thing. She stayed calm and cooperated with the intruders. That's probably why she didn't get hurt," said Fox.

The girl was by herself in the home, asleep in her upstairs bedroom at the time of the break-in. Her mother was at work and her older brother was at school.

The suspects, described as three males aged 17 or 18, left the area in a large older model tan vehicle.

Garza guilty, faces up to 7 years on Nov. 4

By Brad Lindberg

Depending on how a judge in Wayne County Circuit Court feels about convicted drug dealers, a local high school graduate may spend his college years marking time in a prison cell.

Michael Jon Garza, 18, of Grosse Pointe Park has pleaded guilty to two felony counts of drug dealing. He faces up to seven years in jail and a $30,000 fine.

Garza

Although Garza wasn't convicted for dealing drugs on school property, he upped the ante on his sentence by selling near Grosse Pointe South High School.

"Given the fact that he admitted delivering (drugs) near school property, we're certainly going to request jail time," said Tom Furtaw, Wayne County assistant prosecutor.

Garza, a 1998 graduate of South, offered no defense and waived the right to a trial on two charges of possession with intent to deliver LSD and marijuana. "We just placed the guilty plea on the record," said Furtaw.

Garza was arrested on March 6 while he was a senior at the school after police from the City of Grosse Pointe took numerous photographs of him buying drugs at a dope house in Detroit. He has been out on $10,000 personal bond ever since. He admitted selling drugs to classmates at the high school, said James Fox, a City detective who coordinated the investigation.

"Grosse Pointe City did a fine job in the investigation. That's largely why we were able to obtain a conviction on both counts," said Furtaw.

Garza faces sentencing by Judge Amy Hathaway in Wayne County Circuit Court on Nov. 4.

Because the two charges arose out of the same criminal transaction, the maximum sentence of seven years for selling LSD could be served concurrently with the maximum sentence of four years on the marijuana charge, said Furtaw.

Park denies lot split; owner's lawsuit likely

If city loses suit, concessions to neighbors unlikely

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Two months and four public hearings after the original request was made, the Grosse Pointe Park City Council voted to deny a request of developer Lorenzo Cavaliere to split the lot he owns at 1040 Harvard.

This action, which Cavaliere believes is a denial of his basic property rights, could result in a lawsuit that, if lost by the city, could cost taxpayers thousands of dollars.

The request, which originally went before the council in August, met with strong neighborhood opposition. Protesters said that by splitting the admittedly large lot, the neighborhood ambiance would suffer. They worried about the loss of trees, and even complained that traffic would become intolerable.

Declaring that Cavaliere had a public relations problem, Park Mayor Palmer Heenan earlier tabled the lot split request until such time as Cavaliere could meet with his neighbors and with the city's planning commission to see if some sort of compromise could be reached.

The planning commission met in September with Cavaliere, his attorney and several residents from Harvard. Also attending were Heenan and councilman Vernon Ausherman. The commission ultimately recommended that the council approve the split provided Cavaliere agreed to certain conditions.

These conditions included that any new home built on the newly created lot have greater depth and less width. That the side yard setback be at least 20 feet and that final approval of the split include a site plan so that neighbors know what's happening up front.

The commission also recommended that the split include conditions for the current house on the lot. These included that the current house be preserved, that the circular driveway in front be reduced in size and that new garage and driveway construction be undertaken prior to the con-

Heart Walk

The Grosse Pointe division of the American Heart Association held its second Heart Walk Oct. 4. About 300 people walked through Grosse Pointe on a sunny afternoon, raising more than $51,000 for research into the causes and treatments of cardiovascular disease and stroke.

Dr. Lavell Courtney was chairman; Jeff Cothran was co-chairman. Above, warm-up exercises on the War Memorial lawn were led by instructors from Pointe Fitness & Training Center. At the right, Spice the clown entertains Carl and Mark Ghafari of Grosse Pointe Shores with heart-shaped balloons.

City, Bon Secours in disaster training

Receiving actor-turned-victim at the Bon Secours hospital emergency entrance are City fire fighter Richard Tucker and Dr. Prem K. Gupta. On the stretcher is Jim Lindeman, a member of the Grosse Pointe Theater, who participated along with fellow actors to make the emergency drill as realistic as possible. The mock fire and explosion disaster, followed by precision emergency teamwork by City fire fighters, police and Bon Secours staff, took six months of preparation. Now the task for officials is to evaluate the disaster drill and make possible recommendations. (From the Oct. 11, 1973 Grosse Pointe News.)

struction of a new home. Cavaliere agreed to the conditions at Monday's council meeting, but neighborhood opposition remained strong.

Diane H. Sonnecken, speaking on behalf of many of her neighbors, restated their position. They feared the construction of a new house would ruin the aesthetics of their block. They worried about the loss of trees and the increase in noise that this loss would bring.

In a written statement given to the council Sonnecken stated, in reference to Cavaliere's proposed house, "it will not have the charm or graciousness of the older homes on the street. While it may be very beautiful in a new large subdivision in various communities to the north of us, it is not the type of house which we believe will harmonize with others on the block."

Sonnecken's statement concluded by writing, "trading wooded, green, cool, quiet space for concrete and masonry across the entire front of the existing home, as well as the increased noise resulting from a new garage and less trees in the rear yard of the property, is not consistent with preserving harmony and aesthetics in an existing residential neighborhood."

Several residents also said that deed restrictions prevented Cavaliere from taking the action he proposed. Richard Darke, Cavaliere's attorney noted that the deed restrictions had many illegal clauses, including one that prevented the sale of the house to non-caucasians. He also noted that about a third of the homes on the block were violating the deed restrictions.

Park city attorney Herold McC. Dessen said that deed restrictions were not the concern of the council and that if Cavaliere violated any, neighbors could sue in circuit court.

When Cavaliere spoke to the council, he said that before he started this project, he made sure that he followed every city ordinance. Because he had followed the law, the law required the council to grant the lot split. As a property owner, he had the right to split his lot, provided that he had met all the city's standards and he did that, he said.

By denying him the lot split, said Cavaliere, the council was denying him his rights as a property owner.

Councilman Dan Clark said that the council's job was to try to make all parties come together. He said that Cavaliere had made many concessions to his neighbors. Clark warned that if the council turned down the lot split and Cavaliere went to court and won — which would be a likely possibility, he said — then positions would be intractable.

"Why would a man who won in court want to make compromises with neighbors who refused to make any of their own?" said Clark. "If this goes to court, residents might find that they have lost everything that Cavaliere has agreed to."

But Clark's argument failed to convince enough of the council. Only he and Ausherman supported granting the split with the conditions set forth by the planning commission. Heenan, Shirley Kennedy, Steve Sufrausk and Val Moran voted against the split. Greg Theokas was absent.

After the council turned down the request, Cavaliere said it was likely that he would go to court to make sure that his basic property rights were enforced.

■ The Grosse Pointe Farms city council's public hearing concerning the revocation of the city-issued business license for the Cracker Jax nightclub was more like a trial than a hearing. ## Woods judge wants programs for teens

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The recent rape case involving four former Grosse Pointe North boys and three North girls illustrates the need for some kind of program to inform both parents and their children of the real dangers they face in the outside world, said Woods municipal judge Lynne Pierce.

"The North incident got me thinking," said Pierce. "I've always had a thing about unsupervised parties. The North incident has made the greater community aware of the problem and this makes taking action easier. Sort of 'strike while the iron is hot.'"

To that end Pierce has been consulting law enforcement officials, her fellow Pointe municipal judges and representatives from North High School.

"I will also be meeting with district court judge Michael Martone of Troy," said Pierce. "He has established a nationally-recognized program oriented toward alcohol abuse. But I want to talk with him and other appropriate authorities to develop a program for the Pointes."

The Pointes, said Pierce, are no different from society at large. She said the problems of youth exist in Grosse Pointe because they exist in society and Grosse Pointe is a part of society.

"We as parents shouldn't feel that there's something wrong with us because the problems of society affect our children," said Pierce. "On the other hand, that doesn't mean we, as parents, are helpless and can't do anything about educating and protecting our children. That's why I am working with the schools and other judges to make people aware of the dangers their children face."

These dangers, said Pierce, include alcohol and drug

Park to host Halloween party at Park

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

As part of an effort to give parents of younger children a safe alternative to trick or treating on busy and dark streets, the Grosse Pointe Park recreation department is holding its annual Halloween celebration at Windmill Pointe Park on Saturday, Oct. 24.

The event begins at 5 p.m. and runs till 8:30 p.m., said park director Terry Solomon. Tickets, $3 per child, will be on sale at the inside gate house of Windmill Pointe Park.

"This event is meant for the younger kids," said Solomon. "It can get scary at night for kids when they have to cross the street with oncoming traffic. Here parents are assured that their kids will be safe and the kids get the fun of Halloween."

The money raised from ticket sales will go toward the purchase of candy for the kids, Solomon said. The party is open to Park residents only.

"The children will encounter a variety of candy stations throughout the park," said Solomon. "Each station is manned by volunteers in costume. We are still looking for volunteers, but anyone interested must be willing to do it in costume. We provide the candy, but the volunteers have to provide the costumes."

Anyone interested in volunteering or learning more about the celebration can call (313) 822-4313.

No clippings

As of Oct. 21, the City of Grosse Pointe requests that citizens no longer bag their grass clippings for collection for the remainder of the year.

Instead, grass clippings should be placed, with leaves, between the sidewalk and the curb in a long narrow row as close to the curb as possible.

The City requests that leaves not be raked into the street nor include sticks or branches.

abuse, which can often lead to sex abuse. Use of alcohol by minors can lead to fights, assaults and physical harm.

"Parents have to realize that their children are presented with situations that can result in terrible consequences," Pierce said. "They are confronted with these situations at a much younger age than parents want to believe. I'm not talking about seniors or juniors, I'm talking about freshmen or even eighth graders."

As a judge, Pierce is aware of cases where 13 or 14-year olds have been caught drinking or taking drugs or have been sexually active. Because they are juveniles, their cases don't come to my court. But often when these kids become 17 or 18, I start seeing them and they have serious alcohol or drug problems."

These kids, said Pierce, are not stereotypical "outsiders" coming to the Pointes to cause trouble. They are kids from the community. She said she knows how hard it is for parents to realize that ALL children are at risk.

"Realizing it can happen to your child is scary," Pierce said. "There is no safe haven for your children in this society. Thinking that it can't happen to your child or that because your child goes to a private school is inaccurate. It's natural for parents to think that they are doing everything possible to protect their children."

Everyday, said Pierce, young people are confronted with situations that can get them into big trouble. She believes that it's unfair to expect children, who by their natures aren't mature, to have the maturity to make the right decision all the time. So by educating students and their parents, Pierce hopes to prevent more incidents like the North rape case in the future.

"The program hasn't been worked out yet," said Pierce. "In the next few weeks, I will meet with school, judicial and law enforcement officials to get their input and advice and work on the details of a plan. This is a project that can't be done by just one person, or by one organization. The problems faced by students today cut across all segments of society and in order to combat the problems, as many qualified people as possible must be involved."

Woods scout car ruined in crash; incident not a result of a 'chase'

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

What started out as a simple pursuit of a traffic scofflaw ended in a crash that demolished a Grosse Pointe Woods public safety patrol car.

City administrator Peter Thomas said that at about 10:30 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 1, officer Kirk Risk, while patrolling, observed a car make an illegal left turn onto east-bound Vernier toward North High School from Mack. The officer, who himself was waiting at a red light, had to wait for the light at Mack and Vernier to turn before he attempted to pull over the other car.

"This was not a police chase," said Thomas. "I define a police chase as an incident where a driver, when attempted to be pulled over, takes off regardless of traffic and the officer follows. In this case, the officer was attempting to catch up with a car that had a head start because of a red light."

Thomas said. "This saved the occupants of both cars from serious injuries."

The original traffic violator who set everything into motion got away. He might not have known that there was a police car after him, said Thomas. George Catlin, the Woods city attorney, reviewed the information gathered by city investigators and declared that there was no reason to issue any citations to the other car involved in the crash.

Because of the extent of the damage to the squad car, Woods director of public safety Jack Patterson recommended that the council approve the purchase of a new car. And on Monday, Oct. 5, the council did just that when they approved appropriating $20,065 to buy a 1999 Ford Crown Victoria from Signature Ford.

City comptroller Cliff Maison said that there was enough money in the city's motor vehicle fund to cover the cost of the purchase.

While heading east on Vernier, the officer swerved to avoid hitting a car that was exiting from Sunningdale onto Vernier, said Thomas. In order to avoid a collision with the Sunningdale vehicle, Risk swerved, hitting the curb and striking a utility pole. His vehicle then entered the westbound Vernier traffic lane and collided head on with a car being driven by St. Clair Shores resident Robert A. Koster.

"Both cars' air bags inflated,"

City artists paints pictures of his trip to Ireland

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

As a member of a big band in the United States Navy during the years immediately following World War II, clarinet and saxophone player William House often backed up Bob Hope, Fred Astaire, comedian Jerry Colonna, who had a regular stint on Hope's radio show, and a legion of Hollywood stars who went on the road to entertain the troops in the refreshingly quiet waters of the post-war Pacific.

Ava Gardner, the glamorous MGM actress who was married to bandleader Artie Shaw, came out on a bond tour. "When she walked across the stage everybody freaked out, including the band," said House.

Sitting in the bandstand while all the singing, tap dancing and vaudeville skits were being acted out on stage, House never got to see the show from the audience's point of view. He was always looking at the entertainers from behind.

"But with Ava Gardner, that ain't bad, baby," he laughed.

Other duties of a Navy musician didn't have fringe benefits. "You got up at 5:30 in the morning to play colors when the flag was raised. Nobody's awake and everyone's playing out of their heads. You march back and at noon play again. That evening you play again. Four nights a week we played at the officers club and a couple nights a week we played with the Bob Crosby band, who was in the Marines," he said.

"That band was really quite interesting," he said. One night, before House arrived on the scene, the members of Artie Shaw's former band went wild and "married a whole line of chorus girls," said House.

House enlisted in the Navy at age 17 "to see the world," but learned that the world can sometimes be smaller than expected.

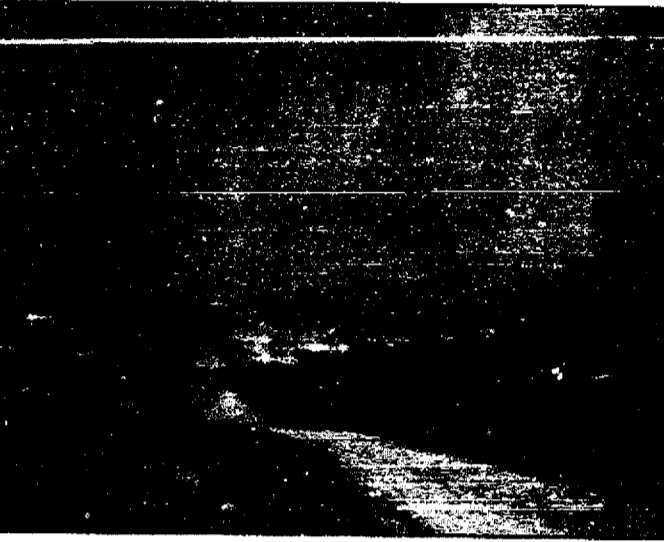

He grew up in Lincoln Park in a house on Fort Street. When he shipped out to Hawaii, the main street was Fort Street. "I couldn't get away from home," he said.

It's hard to take a quick walk through the life of William House. The resident of the City of Grosse Pointe takes side trips and back-tracks and stops frequently to absorb the view with an artist's insight. Like when he recently went to Ireland.

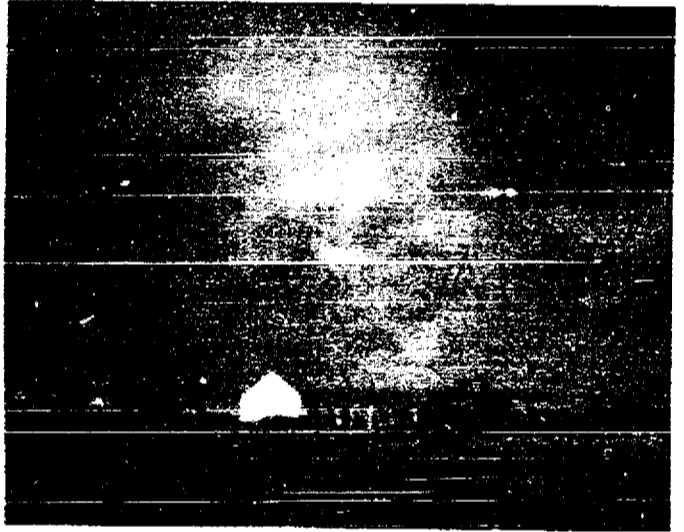

"I went to Ireland to freshen up my ideas," said House, an accomplished painter and professor emeritus at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit. He doesn't have photographs of his trip. "Only acrylic paintings," he said.

House's paintings are being shown through Nov. 1 at the Studio Gallery of Robert Maniscalco on Mack in Detroit, three blocks north of Cadieux.

House's trip to Ireland took him up and down the island.

On the west coast of Ireland, the village of Clifden, above, rests in a valley under waves of rain from a summer storm in an acrylic painting by City of Grosse Pointe resident William House. Connemara, below, is a mountainous area in western Ireland that flattens to a rocky landscape along the shores of the North Atlantic Ocean. House's works are being featured through Nov. 1 at the Studio Gallery of Robert Maniscalco on Mack in Detroit.

but he particularly enjoyed the west coast. Connemara, home of the Twelve Pins Mountains, "is a huge mountain area," he said. "When you're driving through there's nobody around. It's almost a religious experience.

National Park and the North Atlantic Ocean. House came upon the village during a rain-storm on a road that had been cut through a mountain pass. "There was Clifden, down in a valley. It was really pouring rain," he remembered.

POINTER OF INTEREST

It kind of puts you in your place. I'd like to go back."

The ground is littered with rocks and ruins lay crumbling. There's so many ancient stone buildings that "the people don't pay any attention to them," said House.

Further west, the village of Clifden is wedged between the west edge of Connemara

It rains twice as much in Ireland than in the United States, but, according to House, "It doesn't seem to bother anybody."

"This picture is the first that I've been able to do rain and have it feel like it was actually raining," he said.

He used a half-inch brush to swipe on the paint to represent the downpour. He didn't use a dry brush technique, where only a little paint is scurried on the canvas.

"The brush was soaking wet so that I could bleed the paint in and out. That way I didn't lose the tones in the back ground, yet you get the lighter tones and visual planes that rain sometimes creates," he said.

His paintings have a clean, simple look, much as his personality is unaffected and his lifestyle uncluttered.

Before entering semi-retirement from CCS, he headed the school's interior design department for one year and the industrial design department for 15 years. Before that, he was an interior designer for General Motors, where he designed building interiors, not cars.

After a year of teaching, he was called into the office. "They said, 'We'd like to talk to you.' I thought, 'Oh, beer we go. Out the door.' But they asked me to take over the entire department of interior design. I thought they were completely mad," he said. But they knew what they were doing. "When I took the job we had 13 instructors in the department and 67 students. When I ended up, I had 33 teachers and 287 students," said House.

His approach to teaching was to "put the students on the street in the best shape they could be. It chokes you up when you know you've meant something to a student," he said. His philosophy of teaching includes making students learn by doing. One of House's favorite sayings is, "I hear and I forget; I see and I remember; I do and I understand."

In the late 1980s, as part of an exchange program with CCS, he visited China and was invited to speak at the University of Beijing.

"Talking with the help of a translator is awkward," he said. When the interpreter was ready to translate a portion of his speech, "he tapped me on the shoulder as a signal to stop talking. But it's easy to lose your train of thought after being halted in mid-sentence. Plus, it's only natural to want to listen to the translator and try to figure out what he's saying," said House.

"The Chinese language is a diphthong language," he said. "It's difficult to learn. Once, I was trying to praise Chinese women in their language for being protective of their children. I must have dipped when I should have thonged because I said 'The mother is a horse head.'" in China was learning that the Great Wall doesn't consist of long, gentle slopes that can be easily walked. "It's steep, and anybody who has been there will tell you."

One of his biggest surprises

It's likely that none of House's experiences would have happened, nor would he have achieved the success he has, had it not been for his favorite elementary school teacher.

She inspired House to pursue his artistic career. "She talked me into reading my first book, 'Lost for Life,' Lewis Stone's fictionalized biography of Vincent Van Gogh. That did it for me," he said. He was hooked on art.

"It shows you that teachers can make a difference," he said. "I've never forgotten her."

There's one love song that tugs at the heart like no other. A song that's been sung by the world's most famous tenors from Luciano Pavarotti to Michael Bolton. Now you can hear it. You'll only find it one place this fall.

Partisan witch hunt or a fair House inquiry?

Is the effort by the U.S. House of Representatives to impeach the president an attempt at a legislative coup, a partisan witch hunt or a serious effort to judge the issues raised against Clinton?

The first two parts of the question tend to come from Democrats, while the third comes from the Republicans who say they'll be fair and not judge the president in advance.

What appears to be factual, however, is that the Republican members are unified on judging Clinton's actions as impeachable, with most Democrats denying that charge.

Yet the New York Times on Monday contended that there were signs that some kind of compromise might emerge that would limit the inquiry.

The Times said the continuing investigation might continue "behind closed doors in acknowledgment that the public does not want to see a circus."

Yet in both parties it is clear that the November election looms large.

We now see the spectacle of a GOP-controlled Congress insisting it is being fair at the same time that it gives very little attention to any Democratic proposals or requests.

The GOP majority made an effort to call the vote bipartisan support for their resolution, but the final vote proved otherwise.

Only 31 Democrats defected to the GOP side in the House vote, with the GOP members bringing the total calling for the beginning of an impeachment inquiry to 258 to 176.

All of the Michigan Democrats remained loyal to President Clinton, but Rep. John Conyers, ranking Democratic member of the House Judiciary Committee, apparently relinquished his role as a major defender of the president after calling for the lifting of export controls on Iraq in order to provide humanitarian aid.

That left it to Rep. David Bonior to become Michigan's chief defender of the president by raising the specter of a Congress "mired in hearings, tangled in testimony and grinding its gears in partisan stalemate."

Many Democrats hope for a backlash against the GOP in the November elections, and there is some evidence that it may occur. The president's own standing with the public remains at a high level.

The GOP response is that its leaders are conducting the investigation according to the Constitution and that the public opinion polls have nothing to do with its actions.

Yet the professionally conducted polls do reveal that a majority of the people are still opposed to impeachment and even impeachment hearings.

Even more important, the polls reveal that most people want the entire mess wrapped up as quickly as possible.

So despite the GOP preference to dump as much anti-Clinton material on the public as possible, the people already have had enough.

What the candidates hear and how the voters react in November no doubt will determine in large part how legislators will vote on impeachment when they return for a new session after the election.

Unless some new incriminating details are revealed by the House inquiry, we tend to agree with the general population that enough is enough.

However, we still think a deal causing both the president and investigator Kenneth Starr to resign would be beneficial to the national interest.

At least it would enable Congress and the executive branch to get back to working on the many problems facing this country and the world.

A good pair of profiles

The Ann Arbor News in its Oct. 11 edition did an excellent job of presenting the gubernatorial candidacies of both Gov. John Engler and Democrat Geoffrey Fieger.

Instead of stressing only Fieger's controversial statements, as the Detroit papers so often do, Karen Schulz of the Ann Arbor News Bureau tells us what kind of person his mother is and his father was.

When Fieger and his brother were growing up, they attended Sunday school and church at the First Unitarian Church in Detroit.

While Fieger admits attending church now mainly on holidays, he says he believes all faiths share one common thread — concern for other people.

The reporter also offers Fieger's explanation of GOP charges that in 1996 he supposedly said that "Jesus Christ is just some goofball who got nailed to the cross." His explanation:

"I said if you went back 2,000 years ago and asked Pontius Pilate and the Roman soldier who nailed Jesus to the cross what they thought . . . they would've said he was a lunatic, a madman, a goofball. Two thousand years later we know differently."

Peter Luke, another Ann Arbor News Bureau reporter, described the reasons for Engler's third-term bid, which he had disavowed when he first sought the office.

"He wants to cement in place the Republican school, tax and business climate changes he says are necessary to make Michigan 'first in the 21st century.'"

"He could make more in the private sector, but if he wins, he'll be eligible for close to $200,000 next year in combined salary and legislative pension," Luke wrote.

"There are worse jobs. And those come with a boss, something Engler's never had in his adult life."

Furthermore, Luke went on, "he's lived in just two places all his life — rural Beal City and Lansing. And, as one observer put it: 'I don't see John Engler retiring back to Beal City.'"

In addition, Engler recently confirmed his desire to serve a third term: that he likes his job and "didn't particularly feel like turning it over to someone else, thank you."

That is only a sample of what the Ann Arbor paper reported about each man, but it was the best coverage of both men that we had seen this political season.

Russian communism dead?

A discussion we had last week with six Russian journalists visiting Wayne State University found that they strongly agreed on one proposition.

It is that the former Communists who are now serving or seeking posts in the Russian government are not trying to re-establish a Communist state.

Instead, the visiting Russians believed that the ex-Communists are searching for a new kind of government, probably a form of democracy, to replace the Soviet Union's communism.

That is not always the way the Russian scene is reported in the United States these days, especially in stories looking at the future of Russia and its government.

The journalists spent three days in Detroit under the local sponsorship of the International Visitors Council (IVC) of Metropolitan Detroit.

They are also visiting Des Moines, New York and Washington, D.C., during their current tour, which is sponsored by the United States Information Agency.

During our hour of discussion with them, they said that the concentration of newspapers and other forms of communication that is occurring in Russia is apparently similar to what is happening in this country.

Furthermore, the Russian media now are in the hands of private ownerships, and even a famous old government newspaper such as Pravda is now in the hands of a private proprietor.

The Russian travelers believe that while many readers and viewers are still skeptical of the news media, as people tend to be in this country, the visitors believe they are getting a press that enjoys greater freedom than its predecessors.

Overall, the U.S. Information Agency promotes such exchanges between foreign visitors and Americans in order to "provide unique opportunities for developing a dialogue for world peace and a friendly climate in which business can flourish."

Let's hope the Russians felt the exchanges they had at Wayne State and with representatives of the Detroit area media contributed to the USA aim.

North pays attention to kids

A society that is concerned about the strength and wisdom of its culture pays careful attention to its adolescents.

That message by Theodore Sizer of Brown University, an expert in this field, is one that North High School administrators constantly kept in front of them during the recent crisis at their school.

"That should be our focus," according to North principal Caryn Wells. "And that was one of the reasons both Grosse Pointe public high schools have put emphasis on Friday night football games.

Those games bring the parents and young people together. More than 60 percent of our students are involved in sports, with additional numbers in arts and other extracurricular activities sponsored by the school.

"Those are ways to build a healthy environment, and they offer young people opportunities to make connections and find powerful and positive ways to build our community."

At the News, we find Dr. Wells' response to the recent crisis realistic and in line with our own thinking about what the schools and the community could learn from their recent unfortunate experience.

A heartfelt thanks

To the Editor:

On Sunday, Oct. 4, over 300 Grosse Pointers and area citizens gathered and walked down Lakeshore for the 1996 second annual Grosse Pointe American Heart Walk to benefit the American Heart Association.

The tremendous showing of support through the participation of walkers and their donations, combined with contributions from our corporate sponsors, have to date raised over $52,000 to be used in the fight against heart disease and stroke. On behalf of the American Heart Association, I express gratitude and thanks for this wonderful outpouring of assistance that will provide researchers the opportunity to seek solutions to our community's No. 1 and No. 3 killers.

This year's walk was spearheaded by Lavell Courtney, MD, and Jeff Cothran, both of Bon Secours Cottage Health Services, who were supported by a hard-working group of volunteers. The event was dedicated to Jerry Valente and Jack VanderMale, both Grosse Pointe Heart Association board members. Also, Jim Fikanv was honored through the very generous golf outing donation from the Grosse Pointe Rotary A Club, educational and active afternoon was a great tribute to these three Grosse Pointers.

I acknowledge and thank our major sponsors: Bon Secours Cottage Health Services, St. John Health System and Grosse Pointe Rotary. Great gratitude is extended to our associate sponsors: Eastlake Cardiovascular Services, P.C., and Eastside Cardiology. And continued thanks to our contributing sponsors: Cardiovascular Institute of Michigan, P.C., and Heartland Health Care Center/Georgian East.

We also thank our many route sponsors and our in-kind sponsors: Absopure Water, Bruegger's Bagels, Jeff Cothran, Dr. Lavell Courtney, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, Hanson's Running Shop, Kroger in the Village, Manzella's Fruit Market, Pointe Fitness and Training, Dr. David Scott, Silver Spoon and the Subways on Fisher and Mack. The Grosse Pointe Farms and Grosse Pointe Park Public Safety Departments did a wonderful job of keeping our walkers safe, along with Medstar Ambulance and Universal Ambulance.

Old-fashioned fun and thanks

To the Editor:

I would like to thank Chip Berschback, president of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, and his group of volunteers for a fantastic Family Apple Harvest Day.

The pony parade brought you back in time with the sound and sight of horses (hearing the clucky clop sounds of their hooves on the pavement). At this historical home they still had a cement trough in front of the house to water the horses. The pie eating contest was a real family treat! My son even won first prize! Apple decorating was done in a most creative way.

My family and I had a most enjoyable fall day thanks to the hard-working volunteers of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society.

Recycle more

To the Editor:

I have a concern about recycling. I think it should be more enforced or monitored. People throw away perfectly reusable things, such as milk jugs (plastic), cans, bottles, cleanup containers and, especially, newspaper.

People should be more aware of what they throw out. When you reuse things, you are saving many plants, trees and animals. You are saving animals by saving the plants they live on. Also, you are saving many resources. Recycling also saves space that is used for the dump.

I hope you consider recycling more after you read my letter. People don't realize that it really is a serious problem. If everyone recycles, the waste-land problem could be solved.

Test animals are necessary

To the Editor:

There are tons of animals in the world, that's why I think people should test on animals. The scientists only use maybe a quarter of animals in the whole world.

Who else are they going to test on? They can't really test on dead people because they are not alive. They can't really test on plants because they are a different species. Animals have a very big population. There are more animals than people on Earth and no matter where you go on Earth, there are animals.

This topic is important because if scientists don't test on animals, then we won't have any more new products.

Say no to Proposal B

To the Editor:

I am a Detroit physician who has devoted the past 12 years to the care of the dying and their loved ones. I am not a moral theologian, medical ethicist or legal expert. I am a caring doctor in search of better ways to meet the needs of those facing life's end. I am opposed to Proposal B, which, if passed, will legalize physician-assisted suicide in Michigan.

I believe this will have a chilling impact on the care of the dying. Rather than legalizing methods to hasten death, we should focus our efforts on improving care at the end of life. Everyone — young, old, healthy, chronically ill and terminally ill — has a stake in this issue. Let's not throw up our hands and give up on medicine's ability to meet the needs of patients. In the past decade, the medical community has made great strides in pain and symptom management, and there is great understanding of the complex needs of the dying. But we can do more.

As executive medical director at Hospice of Michigan, I have cared for more than 35,000 patients and their families. When patients receive competent, comprehensive, compassionate care, they find renewed interest in life. The vast majority of patients experience reunion, reconciliation, peace and grace. Again and again, patients and families tell me that this time is among the most precious they have spent.

At Hospice of Michigan, we consider the care of the dying to be a noble profession. It is our mission to further the science of palliative medicine, and continually improve the quality of life for our patients and their families. I believe the passage of Proposal B will hinder these efforts.

We will solve the care crisis when medical professionals, care institutions and insurance providers recognize that the dying are some of our most important patients — deserving of the best care.

Let's not create a bureaucracy designed to hasten death. Please vote no on Proposal B.

War is hell; can we be saved?

With all the domestic and partisan infighting going on, we tend to lose track of what is happening in the rest of the world. We also tend to lose track of history. What is happening is nothing new, and if, as the French say, the more things change, the more they remain the same, something doesn't please more truly than the phenomenon of war.

The changes may be technological advances, but what remains the same is that war permits mass killing. War is a suspension of the rules of civilization. All's fair in love and war.

If all is fair in love and war, then the London blitz and the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor were fair. From the Japanese point of view, we were interfering with their encroachment of China and Southeast Asia, and so, with the surprise attack of Pearl Harbor, "they woke a sleeping giant."

When the tide turned in favor of the Allies, what was fair was the leveling of Berlin and Tokyo with conventional weapons, the (experimental) fire-bombing of Dresden, a nonindustrial city, and ultimately, Hiroshima and Nagasaki. It was only fair.

If all is fair in love and war, then it was all right for Hitler to order the extermination of the Jews, the final solution to the Jewish question. If a subculture of people could be characterized as "vermin" and diabolical, the cause of all Germany's woes, then it was concluded that the world would be better off without them. Ironically, these were God's chosen people, the people who wrote the Old and New Testaments.

In a recent book, "Hitler's Willing Executioners," a young professor related anecdotes which showed that many civilians aided the genocide. It seemed fair at the time.

Details of the Holocaust were well-documented in "Schindler's List," but other ethnic groups were included in the slaughter, such as gypsies, the mentally retarded and the mentally ill. Experiments in eugenics were rationalized with a war mentality, when the values of civilization are discarded. No longer was life considered precious and unique. Whole categories of people were largely wiped out.

It seemed that a lesson would be learned when WWI, "the war to end all wars," actually led to WWII, which has been dubbed "the last good war." One can hardly disagree with this designation as it was clear to us who were the bad guys and who were the good guys.

After the horrors of the Second World War came the Nuremberg trials for war criminals and the United Nations, which was to be a bulwark against further horrific wars. The advent of the nuclear age was an added factor to work unceasingly to end wars. We did not want a nuclear holocaust or face a nuclear winter. And, yet, terrible wars have been fought since the advent of the United Nations back in 1946.

Freud opined that if there are weapons to be used, they will be used. This prediction will hopefully not come true, especially because there are thousands of intercontinental ballistic missiles with nuclear warheads many times more powerful than the first ones exploded over Hiroshima and Nagasaki. It is essential that in this day and age, facing a new millennium, we turn our efforts to outlawing or otherwise preventing war.

What we are working against is man's basic aggressive nature. Not only Freud, but Lorenz and Ardrey conceptualized a man, descended from beasts, evolved from the jungle, who adapted by being territorial and aggressive.

But what may have worked in the Stone Age does not work now. The weapons are much more destructive now. And we are unable to stop the development of weapons of mass destruction in many other countries in the world. These include, in addition to nuclear weapons, poison gas and bacteriological warfare. The balance of power is getting more and more precarious.

History has shown man's great willingness to go to war. When the rallying cries are out and the cause is right and patriotism is whipped up, previously civilized men resort to savagery. It is hard for us to contemplate men hacking at each other in close mortal combat, which was the rule until relatively recently. Our museums are full of such artifacts as swords and daggers, spears, maces for bludgeoning, helmets, armor, bows and arrows, and, finally, firearms.

It is hard for us to imagine one man deliberately shooting or bayoneting another, just because he was labeled, "enemy." The enemy was nameless and faceless and fair game. It was kill or be killed. There came flame-throwers and napalm, hand grenades and land mines.

What is needed as we approach the millennium is for the people to support study groups and organizations seeking a better way to resolve international disputes. We can no longer abide the truism that "might makes right." Our aggressive and territorial ambitions must be moderated. We must learn to negotiate, to compromise, without giving up our basic values.

The world is shrinking to a "global village" and we want our children and grandchildren to have a life, to be safe, secure and happy in it.

We're just like a small town

The wedding photographer had written down the wrong address and was wandering around Balfour, looking for a number that didn't exist, when he spotted FYI's wife, Doc, out on the sidewalk.

"Do you know where the Partridges live?" he asked.

Resisting an obviously great opportunity for a joke answer, she pointed and said, "Sure, up in that corner house."

"I knew you could help me," he said. "In Grosse Pointe, everyone always knows their neighbors."

(Congratulations to Gerry and Fran Partridge, whose daughter, Jennifer Lynn, married J. David Beilinger Sept. 12. That lost photographer would have known their house was the right place if he had seen it: Fran had the stone dog out front dressed up in a wedding veil for the occasion.)

They gave kids wings

Although the children being helped by fetal therapy through the benefit event were the real winners, five Pointers were among those winning ribbons for their classic cars last month at the War Memorial's Bumpers for Babies/Wings for Kids Classic Car Show.

Oxymoron seen on the South High playing field: A big scoreboard sign that says, "Lady Blue Devils." (If they're devils, how can they be ladies?)

Yep, they're all available at the Grosse Pointe Central Library, free to be checked out just like books: Earth augur, bumping block, cement edger, dolly block, grommet kit, piano tuning wrench, pick mattock, shingle hammer, slide rule, speed indicator. (Does anyone remember how to use a slide rule anymore?)

It's a graceful garden accessory

With all the crows flocking to the Pointes lately, it's small wonder that folks are putting up scarecrows to protect their veggie gardens. And the cutest one of them all has got to be the one guarding the Grace Adams Harrison Children's Garden at the War Memorial. FYI did a double-take when he spotted it: The burlap figure, almost life-size and most ladylike, has a big floppy garden hat and is elegantly attired in old-fashioned dress complete with a couple of strands of beads for jewelry.

If you squint your eyes just right, it does bear a likeness to a particular lady associated with that garden.

"Have you noticed a certain resemblance?" I asked Grace herself.

"It's not me," she said, with a little laugh in her voice. "One of the mothers made it — it's really a very good scarecrow."

Shores administration defends new activities building

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Officials from Grosse Pointe Shores were surprised that some residents claim they weren't given the chance to learn about the Village's plans to construct an activities building at Osius Park.

Discussion of an activities building dates back to August 1992, when it was called a "recreation facility." The current name came about in November of that year, when Shores Trustee Dr. Richard Mertz Jr., while showing the Shores council a drawing for a proposed municipal bathhouse, brought up the idea of a "year round community activities center at the park" which would also be used as a "Village and township polling place for elections."

"During 72 council meetings since August of 1995, the activities buildings was mentioned 31 times," said Mike Kenyon, manager of the Shores.

Going back further, in the Shores master plan of 1991, residents listed a "community center" as their top choice if the old Vernier School building were to be renovated.

A "recreational facility" and exercise facility" rounded out the top six recommendations. A $1.6 million price tag just to bring the old schoolhouse up to code ended that idea.

"The activities building is a residents-driven project," said Trustee Barbara Willett, chair of the municipal buildings committee since 1992. Construction of the $1.2 million activities building, originally scheduled for this fall, was delayed because the Shores needed the money to separate its sewers.

The project has been highlighted in the Shores' newsletter,

"Shorelines," four times since the spring of 1997 when an article written by Willett and Mertz announced that architect Robert Wakely Jr. "is in the process of designing this new structure which will be located adjacent to the newly renovated bath house" at Osius Park.

As for questions about the building's location, "We selected the site near the existing guard house because it was the least obstructed view to the green park and the blue water of the lake," said Willett.

Also, putting the building next to the guard house "minimizes the need for concrete driveways, adds built-in security and provides easy access because the parking lot is just a few feet away," she said.

"The building was designed to concentrate activity in one area," said architect Wakely,

"which will preserve quiet in the rest of the park and keep the grassy area alone. The rest of the park is left uncluttered."

Placing the building outside the park next to the department of public works garage "would defeat its purpose for use by picnickers during bad weather," said Willett. "It would divorce the building from the park." Also, because of a setback requirement of 145 feet, the parking lot would have to be in the back of the building. Residents on Hawthorne Road would look out their back windows onto a parking lot.

In addition, "parking would delete the soccer fields," added Wakely.

From a staffing point of view, placing the building outside the park would require hiring the equivalent of at least one full-time employee.

Inside the park, on the other hand, "We'll only need to add one part-time clerical staff person," said Willett.

Locating the building in the southwest corner of the park would require the construction of a two-lane road and possibly an adjacent parking lot in the existing open meadow, said Wakely. "It would destroy the corner's natural ambience."

He said, "Park security would be virtually impossible to maintain if access to the building were through a separate gate from the south side of the parking lot. Conversely, the building would be entirely too far away should the users be required to check into the park through the security gate."

The area northwest of the existing tennis courts was rejected for the same reasons, he said.

"Positioning the building where we did allows users to check in through the existing park security gate and places the building close enough to the parking lot to preclude the construction of additional roads and parking lots across any currently natural areas," said Wakely. "We located the new facility in the location which would have the least impact on the park's natural areas and leave the greatest amount of land untouched, protected and unaffected," he said.

Willett recently walked through the park with an eye toward selecting another site.

In response to citizen inquiries, "I questioned myself and looked at things from their perspective," she said. "I've spent a lot of time thinking about this and I really believe we've picked the least obtrusive location for the activities building."

The hidden challenges of university life need to be met

By U.S. Sen. Spencer
Abraham
Special Writer

When young people go to college they expect to face many challenges — academically, professionally and personally. But neither they nor their parents expect college kids to face high rates of crime, including violent crime, on campus.

Unfortunately, on too many of our campuses this is exactly what our kids face. And the situation is made worse by the fact that many colleges and universities fail to accurately and fully report crimes committed on their campuses.

Recently, the Senate approved an amendment to its higher education funding bill that will address this problem. It will empower parents with greater, more comprehensive information when they work with their kids to decide which college is best for them to attend. And it will encourage colleges and universities that need to improve their safety record to take the steps necessary to protect their students and employees.

This amendment, which I co-sponsored with Pennsylvania Sen. Arlen Specter, will close significant loopholes in current law, that allow colleges and universities to avoid reporting all incidents of crime that occur on their campuses.

Thanks to this amendment, the Department of Education will be directed to require colleges to report criminal offenses that occur on sidewalks, streets and other public lands on or adjacent to the campus, as well as offenses that occur in buildings that are owned by the college but used for commercial purposes, such as student food courts.

Colleges that fail to compile accurate crime reports in accordance with these new requirements will be fined up to $25,000.

A crime is a crime, whether it occurs in a college classroom, in the campus food court or on the sidewalk. A young man who is mugged, a young woman who is raped, an student who is accosted, beaten or murdered, suffers the same pain and loss regardless of which part of campus on which they are victimized.

Through this amendment we can see to it that students and their parents have the most extensive information possible available to them regarding the safety of the campuses they are considering. This amendment also will provide colleges and universities with the extra incentive some of them may need to improve the safety and security of their students and employees.

In 1994 alone over 9,500 violent crimes were reported on our college campuses. And that figure does not include crimes colleges have not been required to report.

We must do better. College is trying enough without adding to its challenges the unknown risk of crime.

Let good memories beat your looming winter of discontent

Fall is not a season that inspires positive thinking. Unlike spring when all nature is bursting forth with promise of abundant new life, fall is a time when summer's beauty slowly withers and dies.

Bright sunny days that stretched into lingering violet-shaded evenings are gone. Now comes gray, leaden days and the swiftly darkening skies of long and somber nights. We are left with the realization that all nature is shrouding itself for winter's hostile attack.

Sadly, we watch the glory and gentleness of summer rally for one last magnificent performance. A determined sun highlights the gold and russet of turning leaves. We long for it to last, but we know that soon those same leaves will drift to the ground, withered and brown, leaving behind skeleton-like limbs silhouetted against an aloof, cold sky. The sun will no longer hang like a golden earring in an azure sky but will become pale and wan. It is time now to go indoors and take up the affairs of winter.

As we close our doors against damp and dreary mornings and frosty chilly nights, we become aware that as all nature slows down, so should we. Spring and summer are made for activity. Fall and winter are times for taking stock and planning for the new beginnings that come with each new spring.

It is time now to turn to quieter, less strenuous activities, to read, to make contacts with friends by phone or write letters, to bake and cook, finish projects that were set aside to allow time to enjoy the outdoors, plan a trip and even if we never go, it will be fun and informative learning about far away places, plot next year's garden, catch up on favorite television programs and to count our blessings.

Soon we will be celebrating Thanksgiving. If we think about it, we all have many things to be thankful for: families, friends, good health. These are obvious gifts that life bestows, gifts that we treasure but accept without really giving much thought to how precious they are. As we contemplate the good things in our life, now, we put these at the top of our list.

It is pleasant at this time in the warm coziness of our homes to drift back in memory to events in our lives when life was at its fullest, to our growing years when those who loved us tried so hard to make our lives happy and to protect us from disappointment and hurt.

We remember our youth, how each day brought promise of something new and exciting and how confident we were that we would achieve all the goals we had set for ourselves. Buoyed by the vitality and optimism of youth, we were ready for anything.

There were heartaches and disappointments, but they became of little consequence as we prepared for a better day.

National Physical Therapy Month

Heartland Healthcare-Georgian East will have an open house in its physical therapy department on Friday, Oct. 23, from 1 to 3:30 p.m., in recognition of National Physical Therapy Month. Residents from the community and patients' families are welcome to attend.

The open house is an opportunity to tour the facility and enjoy free refreshments as well as learn the benefits, history and background of physical therapy.

Heartland Healthcare-Georgian East is located at 21401 Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods.

We remember our first job and how wonderful it was to have one foot on the ladder of achievement.

We hold close to our hearts our marriage and how infinitely beautiful it was to have someone who understood and loved us, someone to share our hopes and dreams, someone who would forever be part of our life.

And still we wonder and marvel at the miracle of birth, the joy of holding our own child, a tiny bit of life to nurture and care for and watch grow into a wonderful person.

And those fun-filled years, hampered with strained budgets, bouts with childhood illnesses and a house more cluttered than we liked, were balanced off against the excitement of birthdays, holidays and graduation celebrations.

The action slows as we reel out the scenario of all that we hold good and are grateful for.

Children grow and leave home. A strange unwelcome silence pervades in the home; gone are the racket of children at play, the chatter of teenagers, the friendly dinner-time arguments that erupted as the opinions of two generations clashed, the blaring of stereos, the shouts and cheers

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

when a favorite team scored on television and the banging of doors.

Strange that someone should remember banging doors, but sounds are forever caught in memory's net; the bang of an outer door as children burst in from school, the slam of a refrigerator door, particularly if there was "nothing good to eat," the unearthly bang of a bedroom door as a teenager expressed displeasure over not being able to go where "everyone else can go."

All those past memories we hold dear as we do those that are closer in time to the present, particularly if we still have the all-important person with us who has been the mainstay of our lives, the one who joined with us in a commitment of sharing years back, the one who, in spite of the toll that time takes, still remains in our view as youthful and attractive as when we first met.

We remember how we put our lives together again after our family had grown and left, how we settled back to enjoy uninterrupted the companionship we had known as newlyweds, the little luxuries and trips we could afford now that obligations to family had ended. How much we enjoyed the visits of our children and what good friends we had become now that it was no longer necessary to accommodate to each others moods, and how we could live our young lives over again, enjoying and watching grandchildren grow as we had once loved and enjoyed their parents as our babies.

For some, life's autumn is not so kind. They are left alone as widow or widower. It is then that memories become even more important to brighten the solitude of winter days.

While memories of better days can comfort and sustain, and while pastimes can fill days to a point, life moves on. It is important to keep up with it even if it is only collecting small items of interest to add to our memorandum of thoughts that cheer

For instance, left alone, many older people worry about their health. They fret about whether they should change habits of eating and drinking acquired over a lifetime.

They wonder about the effects of eating certain foods, of smoking and drinking on their health.

Researchers from the Harvard Medical School have found that if the eating and drinking practices haven't produced the disease and conditions that are going to lead to premature death and if one survives to 65 or older, then the toll of the unhealthy practices will not be seen as an increased mortality at a population level.

For those who take comfort in favorite treats not enthusiastically endorsed by nutritionists, this news has got to be added to the list of items to be grateful for, add to our list of discoveries that add to the goodness of life, make us grateful for what we have.

Shores officers hurt in accident

Two public safety officers from Grosse Pointe Shores were taken to Bon Secours Hospital after their patrol car was accidentally hit from behind by a man the officers had just ticketed for a routine traffic violation. The officers were released after treatment of minor injuries.

The suspect, an 88-year-old man from St. Clair Shores, was pulling away from the curb on northbound Lakeshore just south of Fontana when his gray 1991 Honda Accord four-door smacked the left rear portion of the police cruiser, which was parked in the right lane with its warning lights on at 8:15 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 10. The man was taken to the Shores police station and scheduled to have his driver's license reexamined by the state. His car was towed to an impound lot. The police car was driven back to the station.

Unbelievable but true in GPS

In Grosse Pointe Shores, a 19-year old woman who was mystified by a little problem in the kitchen called the police for assistance. It seems that for a reason she couldn't fathom, meat stored in her freezer was beginning to thaw. Police suggested she call an appliance repairman, but complied with her request that they stop by to investigate.

After a quick look around, police told the woman that keeping her freezer door closed would go a long way toward solving the problem.

The incident occurred on Tuesday, Oct. 6, at 12:19 a.m.

Fox hunt in GPS

On Wednesday, Oct. 7, at 5 p.m., a citizen told Shores police that a fox in the area of Lakeshore and Woodland Shore was running in and out of traffic, "hissing."

The resident was concerned for the fox's safety and feared it could cause a traffic accident. A public safety officer was dispatched to the scene but couldn't locate the crafty animal.

Take it inside

On Tuesday, Oct. 6, at 9:11 p.m., a 41-year-old woman from St. Clair Shores parked her 1987 Dodge Shadow four-door illegally on the grass between Lakeshore and Lake St. Clair and was witnessed prowling around outside the vehicle "looking for a bathroom," according to police from Grosse Pointe Shores.

The suspect was found to be "unfit to drive" and was taken to the police station where she could make a telephone call for someone to drive her home.

Her car was stored in the parking lot behind Village Hall.

Squirrel killer

At 3 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 10 in the Farms, an officer investigating a report of illegal hunting behind a house in the 400 block of Allard discovered a dead squirrel with an apparent chest wound.

Behind a house in the 400 block of LaBelle, the officer found a box of BBs. The officer confiscated the ammunition and put it in evidence at the police station. Police are investigating.

Bike ripped off

A boy's bicycle was stolen during school hours from Brownell school on Friday, Oct. 9. The black and red 24-inch Pacific Rock Stomper mountain bike was unlocked and last seen parked at the bike racks.

$500 warrant

During a traffic stop for expired license plates at 11:52 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 6, a Farms police officer discovered that an 18-year-old man was wanted in his home town of Harper Woods on an outstanding $500 bond for contempt of court.

Police took him to the station, issued him a ticket for expired plates and turned him over to an officer from Harper Woods.

Sorry indeed

A man from Grosse Pointe Farms who said he was distraught over losing his job admitted littering the 400 block of Colonial Court with garbage bags and half-full bottles of Mountain Dew.

The man said he was sorry, but was unable to give a "good explanation" for his behavior, which apparently took place between June 8 and Oct. 5, according to police.

Moped chase

A 15-year-old Moped rider from St. Clair Shores led police on a 60 mph chase down Lakeshore at 5 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 4.

A Farms patrolman witnessed the suspect weaving in and out of traffic on westbound Lakeshore. With emergency lights flashing and siren wailing, police pursued the suspect before breaking off the ### chase at Jefferson and Cadieux.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Police from the Park nabbed the little lawbreaker at Jefferson and Devonshire. He was taken to the Farms police station and ticketed for reckless driving. His mother was called to claim him.

Saturn clipped

A resident of the 16800 block of St. Paul in the City of Grosse Pointe reported that the driver side mirror of his 1996 four-door Saturn was broken off sometime during the night of Oct. 4-5.

Olds stolen

A woman reported that her white four-door 1995 Oldsmobile Ciera was stolen from a residence in the 900 block of Neff during the night of Oct. 4-5.

Broken window

Two juveniles were hauled to the City police station and charged with breaking a store window in the Village on Monday, Oct. 5.

At 10:12 that evening, a witness reported hearing breaking glass and seeing the youths in the immediate vicinity of the broken window.

Two days later, at 6:45 and 11:50 p.m., police investigated the same building because the doors were again open.

Theft from car

A resident of Rathbone in the City reported that his unlocked vehicle was broken into during the night of Oct. 10-11 and a radar detector and assorted cassette tapes were stolen.

Dog owner is a slow learner

A neighbor of a dog owner in the 100 block of Moran in the Farms will prosecute because of a chronic dog-barking problem that boiled over on Saturday, Oct. 11, at 10:27 p.m.

The owner of the dog, according to police, is no stranger to this type of thing. He has been cited on numerous occasions for violations of the same nature.

Signs run amok

A resident of the first block of South Deepplains in Grosse Pointe Shores called police to report finding numerous signs and similar items stashed on his front lawn.

Police recovered 20 political campaign signs, six traffic cones, one road barricade and a "sold" sign. The items were taken to the police station.

Flat tire leads to two violations

A Grosse Pointe Shores patrolman sent to assist a motorist with a flat tire on Lakeshore near Willowtree learned that the driver didn't have a license plate or proof of insurance.

The suspect, a 29 year-old Detroit man, was taken to the police station, ticketed and released. His car was released to a licensed driver who had proper plates and insurance.

Horsing around

Grosse Pointe Woods public safety officers were called to the country club on Cook Road at about 7:30 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 10, to help with the round up of a couple of missing horses.

When officers arrived on the scene, they were told by club staff that two of the club's horses had jumped the back fence and run off. Because the club is close to the Farms/Woods border, Woods officers contacted their counterparts in the Farms.

They were rewarded with a call from Farms officers, who said that the horses were spotted in the back yard of a home in the 300 block of Provencal.

The horses were then rounded up and taken back to the club.

Nasty neon nabber nailed

At about 4:15 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 10, Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers on patrol noticed a 1995 Dodge Neon traveling west on Kercheval toward Detroit at a high rate of speed.

When officers attempted to stop the vehicle, its driver tried to elude his pursuers by making a series of twists and turns.

He was successful for a while when Park officers lost sight of him after he crossed Mack and went into Detroit.

The car was found a few minutes later by the Parkside Project in Detroit. It had been driven through a fence and abandoned.

But the story does not end there. Detroit police later saw a man reaching the suspect's description running through Chandler Park in the city. He was picked up by police and it turns out that he had been released from prison only two weeks earlier and was wearing an electronic tether.

The original charge? Automobile theft. The Neon was discovered to have been stolen in Detroit on Friday, Oct. 9.

The suspect has been turned over to Detroit authorities and will face charges in connection with violating parole and for stealing yet another car.

Dodge stolen

A 1987 Dodge Daytona was taken from a municipal parking lot in the 15000 block of Mack in Grosse Pointe Park between 12:40 and 12:50 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 8.

Pay attention to the details

Patterns and designs, encountered so often in our daily lives, can play an important part in our photography. They can make order out of chaos and lend harmony to a seemingly meaningless design. How exciting it is as a photographer to draw attention to the often unnoticed wealth of detail in the patterns and designs around us.

Your home is a good place to start. Patterns in brickwork, a design in the floor tile or shadows on the steps all have photographic potential. Don't forget your car. A design in the grille or a detail of ornamentation may reward you with an impact-filled shot. Architecture, both new and old, offers a multitude of pattern and design possibilities. Look closely at buildings, even some under construction, and you'll see exciting photographic design opportunities.

Photography

By Monte Nagler

Be sure to look for pattern in nature. Windswept sand, a close-up of a shell or an intimate inspection of an individual leaf will reward you with strong photographs. Always have your photographic vision turned on. A recent visit to the local botanical gardens enabled me to make excellent photographs. I noticed the textures, tones and shading a close look of the leaves provided. One of the best ways to see pattern and design is to use a viewing mask. A "window" cut from a piece of cardboard will do just fine. Your viewing mask will isolate pattern and design from distracting surroundings. You'll find yourself zooming in on meaningful subjects you never knew were there. Remember, the aim of creative photography is to make a visual interpretation of something that moves you.

You can photograph details of the whole, too. Monte Nagler used a telephoto to take this detailed shot of the David in Florence, Italy. A detail picture will let you see things an overall photograph won't allow.

Users trace origins of ideas, customs, with U-M online resource

Young men are advised to "avoid all fantastic arrangements of the hair" that might "straggie in long...uncombed and unkempt" masses over the coat-collar.

Parents are cautioned about European nannies whose ideas of appropriate discipline may not match their own.

Concerns are raised about the "almost universal use of tobacco."

As modern as these topics sound, they're all found in books and articles published between 1850 and 1877 — and now available on the World Wide Web, through the University of Michigan's Making of America (MOA) project.

Turning up such treasures used to involve prowling around library stacks, thumbing through brittle pages or scanning reel after reel of microfilm until eyestrain set in.

But now, with the first phase of the project complete, some 1,600 books and 50,000 articles from the latter part of the 19th century are available in searchable form on the Web.

This rich resource, produced through the collaborative efforts of the U-M, Cornell University, and the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, is getting rave reviews from users.

A historian in California, who recently used MOA to research the origins of hobbies as socially acceptable leisure activities, calls it "the most amazing, spectacular research tool since the Xerox machine."

Steven M. Gelber, chair of the history department at Santa Clara University, says he found "a treasure trove of data in a matter of a couple of days."

Using other research methods, it would have taken him months to find the same material.

The MOA resource "is what I assumed the future of libraries would be," says Gelber.

"But to be quite honest, I never believed I would live to see so much of the past put online in such an accessible form."

"The program actually begins to deliver what people have been talking about for 10 years — a genuine electronic library, or at least an electronic archive. The ability to search and then read the originals is quite magical."

The project is an undertaking of the U-M Digital Library Initiatives, a program supported by the School of Information, the university library and the Information Technology Division, which aims to develop a comprehensive, networked set of research tools and resources.

Users can search the online historical materials (accessed at <http://www.umdl.umich.edu/moa/>) by entering an author's last name, a title, a subject heading or a specific year.

But more — they can search for words or combinations of words throughout the more than 600,000 pages of text, and get results almost instantaneously.

In most cases, users see scanned images of actual pages from the 19th century volumes.

But a few texts have been further processed and can be viewed either as original page images or as electronic text.

This additional processing is costly and time consuming, but it allows the materials to be organized in ways that help users zero in on specific chapters or sections.

In selecting materials to include in the project, librarians Judith Avery and Jean Loup looked for books and articles that showed "what it was like to be an American at that time," says Avery.

That's why the collection focuses more on diaries, first person travel accounts and popular magazines than on military histories and political tomes.

The result is a resource that isn't just for professional historians and researchers.

Teachers, students and anyone with an interest in the nation's past can easily use it to look up specific events, people and issues or to just browse through the collection. Slavery, temperance, women's rights, Darwinism, etiquette and child-rearing are just a few examples of topics that can be explored.

"It has stimulated a kind of research that just couldn't be done before," making it easier to trace the evolution of ideas and customs that shaped American culture, says Wendy Lougee, assistant director of the university library. Lougee oversees the Digital Library Initiatives program.

As librarians worked on MOA, they came to appreciate even more the project's potential for preserving books and journals that are too fragile to withstand repeated handling.

"One thing that became apparent was that some kind of preservation was needed for these materials," says Avery, British and American studies librarian for the university library.

"All of them are brittle. I keep on my desk a book that would have been a perfect candidate — a description of how Charleston had changed during the Civil War. Unfortunately, the paper is so bad that the pages were already broken and it couldn't be scanned."

To keep that from happening to other books, project developers plan to convert more volumes in the U-M's brittle books program into online-searchable form.

The cost of preserving printed materials this way is comparable to that of converting them to microfilm, says John Price-Wilkin, head of Digital Library Production Services.

Other goals are to process more materials into electronic text as funds become available and to integrate the U-M Making of America collection with similar materials at Cornell University (<http://moa.cit.cornell.edu/>).

Cornell's materials include general interest publications of the period, as well as some aimed at audiences with specific interests, such as agriculture.

The U-M selections include books and articles on education, psychology, American history, sociology, religion, science and technology.

Federal efforts can prevent drug abuse by kids

By U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham

In their families and communities, Americans are struggling to bring drug abuse under control. As with so many issues, most of the hard work needed to keep our kids off drugs must be done at the local level.

But Washington must help, too. And our kids have paid the price for Washington's failure to do its part.

Over the past five years, the average number of federal drug defendants prosecuted has dropped by almost 1,500 cases from the 1992 level.

And the average number of drug convictions has gone down by a similar amount since 1993.

The drug interdiction budget was cut by 39 percent from 1992 to 1996, and drug surveillance budgets were cut in half.

The impact on our kids has been serious. In the last seven years, the percentage of high school seniors admitting that they had used an illicit drug has risen by more than half. Incredibly, 54 percent of the Class of '97 had used an illicit drug by graduation. Among 10th graders the number doubled, and those in 8th grade using drugs reached 20 percent. We owe it to our kids to reverse this trend. Washington must reenter the war on drugs so that it can help the families, schools and neighborhood groups fighting drug abuse.

I have joined with Senators Paul Coverdell (Georgia) and Larry Craig (Idaho) to propose the "Drug Free Neighborhoods Act." Our goal is to help neighborhoods in their struggle against drugs by increasing federal efforts to stop drugs before they hit the streets and to encourage states and schools to do more to discourage drug use.

Specifically, this legislation would double the amount of money spent by the Customs Service, Coast Guard and Defense Department to catch drug dealers before they reach the United States.

The bill also would fight drug importation by doubling the number of border agents by 2003 and strengthening civil and criminal penalties for customs violations.

In addition, this legislation would protect our neighborhoods and schools from drugs by encouraging teen drivers to stay drug-free, helping schools become and remain drug-free and keeping student loan recipients off drugs.

Drug Free Teen Drivers:

Our legislation authorizes $10 million a year in grants for states that institute voluntary drug testing for teen driver's license applicants and for states that enact and enforce laws cracking down on drivers who use drugs.

Drug Free Schools: We would allow federal funds to be used to help K-12 students transfer out of schools where they have been victimized by school violence, including drug-related crime.

Federal funds also could be used to compensate teachers and students who are victims of school violence, create incentives for states to provide an annual report card to parents and teachers listing incidents of school violence, weapon possession, or drug activity, institute voluntary random drug testing demonstration projects.

Drug Free Students: We would restrict federally-guaranteed loans for students convicted of drug possession and/or drug trafficking.

Students could become eligible for loans on an expedited basis by satisfactorily completing a drug rehabilitation program that includes drug testing.

Washington doesn't have all the answers, but the federal government does have a responsibility to support the local institutions in which people live.

Through these measures we can help parents, teachers and neighborhood leaders keep kids off drugs.

The Grosse Pointe Academy announces new head of school

Thomas G. Lengel has assumed his duties as The Grosse Pointe Academy's Head of School. He was selected unanimously by the academy's board of trustees following a comprehensive nationwide search process.

Lengel comes to the academy from the Stuart Hall School in San Francisco, where he was headmaster for the past six years. Lengel's expertise and focus on the elementary educational experience were reinforced at Stuart Hall, a kindergarten through eighth-grade school with an enrollment of 330 boys.

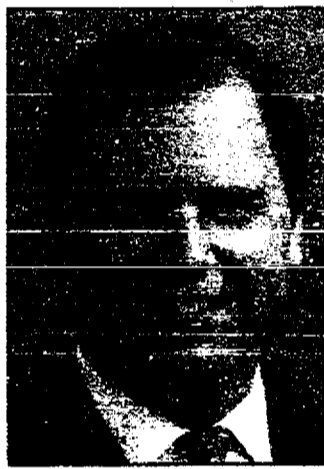

Prior to his service at Stuart Hall, Lengel was director of admissions and financial aid for the Delbarton School in Morristown, N.J., and was responsible for devising and implementing the marketing strategy there. His career at Delbarton included several years as a teacher of U.S. history and as a coach of junior varsity hockey and middle school lacrosse teams. Lengel received his B.A. in American studies from Yale University and his M.A. in American history from Rutgers University. He has served the San Francisco community as a board officer for Project Discover, a year-round enrichment program for inner-city youth. His professional experience includes establishment and implementation of curriculum development and review processes, leadership of an accreditation self-study and service as co-chair of the compensation committee.

The academy's new head of school succeeds the retired E. John White and is the fourth person to assume responsibility for leadership of this school since its reincorporation as The Grosse Pointe Academy in 1969. Married to Disty Reeves Lengel and the father of three boys, Lengel is devoted to his family. His professional life is focused on elementary education, the strong sense of community and the moral and ethical values which are exemplified by the Mission of The Grosse Pointe Academy.

The Grosse Pointe Academy is an independent, coeducational, elementary school serving 420 children ages 2-1/2 through grade 8 from southeastern Michigan. The academy's emphasis on fundamentals, insistence on scholastic achievement and focus on the growth of each child provide students with the strongest possible foundation, not only in academics but in character and values as well.

The school's 20-acre campus overlooking Lake St. Clair serves as a significant community resource and provides the setting for many community activities. The grounds were designated a Michigan Historical Landmark in 1977 and listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1987.

1st Teen Read Week encourages kids to 'read for the fun of it'

It's no secret that kids who read for the fun of it do better in school and are more likely to succeed throughout their lives. But trying to get a teenager to read is no easy task for parents or teachers these days.

That's why the American Library Association and Young Adult Library Services Association are sponsoring the first-ever Teen Read Week, Oct. 19-25, with the message "read for the fun of it." The event is endorsed by the National Education Association, American Association of School Administrators, National Association of Secondary School Principals and American Booksellers Association.

"Teens sometimes get so busy they forget that there's more to reading than just school books," says Joel Shoemaker, president of the Young Adult Library Services Association. Teen Read Week aims to remind teens that reading is fun, it's free and can be done anywhere, anytime.

He noted that parents have a critical role to play in encouraging teens to read. "Parents hear a lot about the importance of reading to young children. We want to remind them that it's also important to share the joy of reading with their teenagers."

During Teen Read Week, public and school libraries across the country will feature books, resources and programs just for teens. Libraries are also promoting a national Teen Read Contest that will award $1,000 in prizes to teens for the best advertising campaigns to turn their peers on to reading.

Teen Read Week was developed in response to research that indicates that students exposed to a variety of reading materials and who read for pleasure score higher on reading achievement tests.

Shoemaker offers the following tips to help parents

- encourage their teens to read:
- Make reading a family activity by turning off the television and setting aside time in which the whole family can read.
- During dinner, ask each family member to share something they have read recently.
- Reward your teenager's interest in reading. If your teen finishes a book, offer to buy another.

• Read the same books your teen is reading and talk about them.

• Ask your public or school librarian for books and other resources that would entice teens.

ULS annual fund off to rousing start

The 1998-99 University Liggett School annual fund kickoff party held recently was a rousing success. Leadership gifts from the ULS board of trustees, alumni board of governors, annual fund volunteers and administrative group were presented totaling more than $120,000. From left, ULS Headmaster Matthew H. Hanly, annual fund co-chairs Jamie Spriet and M. Michelle Pierron, M.D., receive the ULS board of trustees check of $77,780 from George A. Haggarty, board vice president. The 1998-99 ULS annual fund goal is $490,000.

ULS students 'commended'

Two University Liggett School seniors have been recognized for their achievement on the PSAT, the qualifying test for the National Merit and National Achievement scholarship programs.

63 AP Scholars named at North High School

Sixty-three students at Grosse Pointe North High School have been named AP Scholars by the College Board in recognition of their exceptional achievement on the college-level Advanced Placement (AP) Examinations. Approximately 23 percent of America's graduating seniors have taken one or more AP Examinations. Only about 13 percent of the more than 635,000 students who took AP Examinations in May 1998 performed at a sufficiently high level to merit such recognition.

The College Board recognizes several levels of achievement based on the number of year-long courses and exams (or their equivalent semester-long courses and exams). At Grosse Pointe North High School:

Three students qualified for the AP National Scholar Award by earning an average grade of four or higher on eight or more AP Exams on full-year courses. These students are Eric Bonten, Erin Gravel, and Gavin Koo.

Twenty-six students qualified for the AP Scholar with Distinction Award by earning an average grade of at least 3.5 on all AP Exams taken, and grades of three or higher on five or more of these exams. These students are Daniel Acsadi, Liisa Bergmann, Eric Bonten, John Briles, Christine Broderick, Colleen Bryzik, Jeanine Chan, Kelly Coolman, Steven Cristescu, David Dwaihy, Michael Fine, Erin Gravel, Jessica Greer, Christopher Hirt, Elizabeth Huebner, William Huebner, Elizabeth Jubera, Gavin Koo, Michelle Koo, Daniel Lehr, James Moon, Julie Paavola, Carla Pellegrino, Eric Raski, Nicole Raspa, and Andrew Schubeck.

Sixteen students qualified for the AP Scholar with Honor Award by earning an average grade of at least 3.5 on all AP Exams taken, and grades of three or higher on four or more of these exams. These students are Matthew Atkinson, Julie Brescoll, Chaitanya Divi, William Farmer, Laura Garzel, Brian Kasiborski, Katherine Levine, Nathan Marshall, Katie Powers, Paulette Rossmann, Smeeta Soares, Meghan Taylor Ilango Thirumoorthi, Joseph Thompson, David Velek, and Adam Ziegler.

Twenty-one students qualified for the AP Scholar Award by completing three or more AP Examinations with grades of three or higher. The AP Scholars are Danielle Caralis, Robert Cleary, Abigail DeFrance, Laura Dettloff, Mare Dula, Kimberly Feikens, Lisa Fortuna, Susana Granda, Jennifer Gutwald, Michael Karber, Erin Kelly, Jane Kopf, Michael Koueiter, Erin Lenahan, Philip Morgan, Brent Nielubowicz, Andrea O'Boyle, Moira Speer, Laurence Swanson, G. Matthew Tappan, and Dana Yee.

Of this year's award recipients,

13 are juniors and/or underclassmen: Daniel Acsadi, Liisa Bergmann, Robert Cleary, William Farmer, Kimberly Feikens, Elizabeth Huebner, Michelle Koo, Jane Kopf, Andrea O'Boyle, Nicole Raspa, Smeeta Soares, Moira Speer, and Laurence Swanson. These students have at least one more year in which to do college-level work and possibly earn another Advanced Placement Award.

AP Examinations, which students take in May after completing challenging college-level courses at their high school, are graded on a five point scale (five is the highest). Most of the nation's colleges and universities award credit, advanced placement, or both for grades of three or higher. More than 1,400 institutions award a year of credit (sophomore standing) to students presenting a sufficient number of qualifying grades. There are 32 AP Examinations offered in 18 subject areas, each consisting of multiple-choice and free-response (essay or problem-solving) questions.

World-class Audi A8 is a lightweight — and that's good!

The Audi A8 is a peculiar car. It is world class, in the heady atmosphere of Mercedes-Benz, BMW, Lexus. It is on the cutting edge of technology.

If anyone asked me on the trip "how is the Audi A8," I would in honesty say it is a great car. But my praise is less enthusiastic than for the Beetle, Mercedes-Benz, Chrysler and Volvo cars I have steering to help stabilize handling at all speeds. Standard Electronic Differential Locking provides low-speed traction control through the antilock braking system. All this is transparent. You don't know anything is going on, except that the car is always completely under control.

Audis always have been safe, despite the bad publicity rap they got a few years ago over "unintended acceleration." The A8 pioneers with dual air bags for driver and passenger, side air bags for driver and passenger, and side air bags for both outward-seated rear passengers.

And the right front seat air bag is "intelligent." If the seat is occupied by something weighing less than 26 pounds — an infant in a car seat, for instance, or a bag of groceries — the air bag there won't deploy.

Height-adjustable belt restraints front and rear make the belts more comfortable and safer. Side impact door beams protect occupants in a crash, as do built-in crumple zones. Child-safety rear door locks can be annoying the first time an adult gets in the back seat, but are easily reset and if you are traveling with children should enhance your peace of mind. And a body cage protects occupants in a rollover.

Because of the use of aluminum in the frame, body and engine, this car weighs 600 pounds less than any competitor. The aluminum adds to the cost, but pays off in body rigidity.

The ergonomic interior is handsome with burled walnut and Nappa leather upholstery. Instrumentation features soothing red nighttime backlighting. Front seats are power adjustable in 14 different ways and there are four different memory settings for the driver's seat, exterior mirrors, driver's headrest height and steering wheel position. The steering wheel tilts out of the way when the key is removed from the ignition. EPA mileage estimates for the A8 4.2 Quattro automatic are 17 mpg city/25 mpg highway. We seemed to be getting closer to 28 mpg in a combination of city and highway driving.

Audi claims that the A8 4.2 Quattro will get from rest to 60 mph a hair under seven seconds. That's pretty fast. I didn't try it (getting old, I guess), but don't doubt it.

Retail price of the Audi A8 4.2 Quattro is within a hair of the BMW 740iL ($66,070) and the Mercedes-Benz S320 ($64,595).

Audi sales have been strong this year, mainly because of enthusiastic reception of the A4 and A6 models. If the A8 meets the same kind of approval, Audi will have overcome its problems in the American market and will take its place at the luxury car peak now claimed by BMW, Mercedes-Benz and Lexus.

I can't really explain why I find the car in the very top ranks objectively, but do not have a commensurate excitement about it. Maybe if it were more huggable...

great, world-class automobile. It is very attractively styled, in a conservative way, its performance is flawless, and if you must have the best and want some interesting technology too, take a look at this car.

After 10 years of collaboration with Alcoa, Audi has created a technological tour de force, a car with an aluminum alloy body on a space frame that is lightweight, rigid and strong, called A8. In comfort and performance, it equals such rivals as the BMW 7-Series and Mercedes-Benz S-Class.

But I found it a little disappointing and I don't really know why. In a fairly long trip over 10 days, it never failed to do anything I wanted it to do. Maybe I had expected too much after the previously introduced A4 and A6. The A8 is excellent, but I don't think it is twice as good as an A4.

My criticisms seem nit-picky and petty. I wish it had window switches that let you decide whether you want to fast-down or just go part way. The new Volkswagen Beetle does. A lot of cars do.

Maybe it just bugs me that this car costs more than my home. Maybe I don't quite understand just how good a car has to be. Why would anyone pay $66,000 for a car that does pretty much the same things in the same way as cars half that price.

driven recently. But never mind these nagging reservations. Let's talk about what a great car it is.

Tiptronic automatic gear shifting is standard, but I am not a Porsche-type driver and just used it as an automatic transmission. Couldn't be smoother or more responsive.

It has a glass sunroof that enhanced the pleasure of driving this car and, the literature says, an upgraded antilock braking system which I luckily never had to test. But the braking was exceptional. This is a world-class luxury sedan.

All-wheel drive makes this a sure-footed beast and it has a good feel. There is no torque steer whatsoever. Driving the Audi A8 you are not really conscious of what wheels are driving the car how. They just are.

Two models of the A8 are available; the A8 3.7 with front-wheel drive is powered by a 230-hp 3.7-liter twin-cam aluminum-alloy V-8, and the A8 4.2 Quattro with all-wheel drive and a 300-hp 4.2-liter twin-cam aluminum-alloy V-8. Our test car was the 4.2 Quattro.

The A8 3.7 carries a price tag of $57,900, while the 4.2 Quattro weighs in at $65,500.

Both models have suspension systems that are among the most sophisticated, which feature passive rear-wheel

b) I still don't.

c) Is there a healthcare company out there that'll let me see a specialist —without asking for permission?

At HAP, we've partnered with Henry Ford Medical Centers to create a breakthrough new program called SelfDirect. SelfDirect gives people the freedom to refer themselves to most specialists. So when you need to see a specialist, you can. It's as simple as that. SelfDirect is an idea that's the first of its kind in Michigan. And now, it's available to HMO members who use Henry Ford Medical Centers.

Good Thinking

Some people say that bonds are a widow's best friend

Stocks continue to experience extreme volatility. The very high daily volume is a reflection of increased "computerized program trading."

Such trading can move the market up or down 100 points, or more, in the DJI, in just minutes.

But, so far this year, Treasury Bonds have produced higher total return (interest income plus capital gains) than most stock indices.

Many of LTS' friends express an overall ignorance of what makes bonds "tick."

By Joseph Mengden

the debt.

For example, if the expected inflation is to average 2 percent per year, and the final maturity is 10 years, then the hypothetical loss of purchasing power of the currency will be: 100, less 2 times 10, or 20, so that the currency at maturity is only worth 80 percent of that originally invested.

Historically, the rental value of money has been estimated by economists at about 2 to 3 percent, in a riskless credit transaction not exceeding one year.

Investors, then, will add an inflation factor to the rental value of money to form a base on which to negotiate the interest rate with the borrower. In the above example, the minimum interest rate acceptable to the lender might be 5 percent.

If the borrower can find another lender with a lower rate, well, that's called competition!

Generally, longer debts carry higher interest rates, because the inflation risk is present for a longer period of time. If interest rates increase as time increases, the yield curve is said to be ascending.

Plotting a yield curve is done thusly: The interest rate is plotted on a vertical (up and down) line, while time, in years, is plotted on a horizontal line. The point where the two lines intersect (or start) is ground zero.

Thus interest rates start at zero and increase vertically, while time starts at zero and extends in years horizontally.

We could plot the yield curve of Treasury securities using the 90-day, 180-day and 1-year bills, the 2-year and 5-year notes, and bonds of 10-year, 20-year and 30-year maturities. Our graph would have eight plot points, which are connected by a straight line from one to the next nearest maturity.

But markets change and so do interest rates. The table, below, lists yields (on a bond equivalent basis for the discounted Treasury Bills) as of last year-end and as of Oct. 2.

Note the significant reduction in the yields over the 9-month period, indicating an "easing" of market rates.

If this data were plotted on a graph, last year-end yields would appear in the traditional upward "ascending" slope, whereas the recent yields would appear to be much "flattened."

The current relatively flat yield curve indicates that there's not much incentive in extending maturities, since the longer maturity doesn't produce that much additional income for the risk incurred.

Remember, yield changes result in opposite price reactions! If rates go up, prices go down, and vice versa. And the torso equal to 100 price, remember that as yield goes up, price goes down. Now if your dog could wag its tail up and down, instead of sideways, you would instantly see that the tip of the tail moves a greater distance than the zero point.

In other words, the longer maturities (the tip) move up or down by a greater amount than the midpoint (intermediate maturities) or the torso (the near maturities).

Let's take a real-life example: If interest rates increased 200 basis points (1 basis point is 1/100 of 1 percent), how would prices change for today's 10-year Treasury Bonds and 30-year bonds?

The 10-year bond presently yields about 4 percent at par. If the yield were increased 2 percent (200 basis points) to 6 percent, its price would be $5,476, or $854.76 per $1,000 bond.

The 30-year bond presently yields about 5 percent at par. If the yield were increased 2 percent (200 basis points) to 7 percent, its price would be 75,058, or $750.58 per $1,000 bond.

Note that these yield changes produced a loss of about 15 percent for the 10-year bond vs. a 25 percent loss for the 30-year bond.

For your information, these changes would bring the Treasury bond market back to where it was in mid-1997.

Joseph Mengden is a resident of the City of Grosse Pointe and former chairman of First of Michigan.

$Dollar for Dollars

By Shannon Dufresne

A fund prospectus outlines all the information you need to make an informed decision about whether or not to purchase the fund.

Here are four reasons to read the prospectus before you invest.

1. Investment policy. Does the fund invest in stocks, bonds, or a combination of both? Does it buy only U.S. assets or does it also invest overseas? Is the fund diversified?

The investment policy section will answer these questions and more. Keep in mind that diversified funds can invest no more than 25 percent of their assets in any single security. With the remaining 75 percent, the fund can invest no more than 5 percent in any single security.

Non-diversified funds, however, may invest up to half their assets in a single security. As a rule, non-diversified funds are generally more volatile than diversified funds.

2. Financial highlights. This table displays the return, total assets and historical net asset values (NAV) of the fund. Financial highlights also include any distributions the fund has paid, its performance, history of expenses and assets, and its turnover rate.

Be sure to review the fund's assets as well as its turnover rate (the frequency with which securities are bought and sold). Have the fund's assets grown over the past few years? Has the turnover rate increased? An increasing turnover rate can result in an increasing tax liability for the fund.

3. Fund mechanics. A prospectus spells out the methods of purchasing, redeeming and making additional investments in the fund. Most policies vary from fund to fund, so be sure to read through the prospectus carefully.

For example, some funds allow telephone transactions, while others have low purchase requirements if you set up an automatic investment plan.

Fund prospectuses include a great deal of valuable information. You should consider past performance, up-front and back-end sales charges and fees, breakpoints, annual expense ratios and consistency of the funds' financial performance and management, when determining the fund that's right for you.

Yield curves

If you graphically plot the yields of similar securities, but differing maturities, the result will be a "yield curve." The maturity is the time, expressed in days, months, but usually in years, from the present time until the principal value of the bond is returned to the owner.

For example, let's use U.S. Treasury securities with maturities of three months through 30 years.

Since the credit is the same for any and all maturities — the full faith and credit of the United States is pledged for the prompt payment when due — the only reason that all maturities do not carry the same interest rate, or yield, is the investor's expectation of inflation between the purchase date and the maturity date.

In theory, the investor wants some additional interest, over and above the nominal rental value of money, to compensate for the loss of purchasing power of the currency, when it is returned at the maturity of

Think of the graph of the yield curve as the tail of a dog. Point zero in both yield and maturity is where the tail meets the torso. As you go out the tail, mark off the years of maturity, like a ruler, with zero at the torso and 30 years at the tip of the tail.

If you were to convert the yield to price, with zero yield at

MESC is now UA

Most people just call it the unemployment office, but the Michigan Employment Security Agency, formerly known as the Michigan Employment Security Commission, is now called the Unemployment Agency. The UA's updated website is www.miaa.com.

Financial Focus: Mutual funds

Mutual funds today hold about $5 trillion in assets, yet just more than half of this amount is invested in the stock market.

The rest is in such investments as bonds, international securities and money market funds.

Municipal bond funds seek to provide high yields by investing in tax-free municipal bonds.

These are two types: state and national.

State municipal bond funds invest in the bonds of a single state, offering income that is exempt from federal as well as state tax for residents of that state.

National municipal bond funds invest in a national mix of municipal bonds, offering federally tax-free income.

National and state municipal bond funds each come in two varieties: general municipal bond funds are not restricted to bonds with any particular maturity, or invest in those with maturities of more than five years; and short-term municipal bond funds invest in bonds with maturities of one to five years.

Money market funds come in two varieties: taxable and tax-exempt.

Taxable money market funds seek to maintain stable principal by investing in short-term, high-grade securities sold in the money market. The average maturity of these securities is limited to 90 days or less.

Government taxable money market funds invest primarily in U.S. Treasury securities or other short-term instruments issued or guaranteed by the U.S. government or its agencies.

Non-government taxable money market funds invest in a variety of money market instruments, including certificates of deposit, commercial paper and banker's acceptances.

Tax-exempt money market funds seek tax-free income by investing in municipal securities with average maturities of 90 days or less.

National tax-exempt money market funds seek income that is federally tax-free by investing in short-term municipal securities from a variety of states.

State tax-exempt money market funds invest predominantly in short-term municipal bonds within a single state, providing income that is free of federal and state taxes for residents of that state.

Don't let those roots break up your driveway

Mr. Hardware, the tree roots are lifting and breaking the slabs of my driveway and part of my garage. Is there something I can do to get the roots to stop lifting the driveway? Daniel G. of S.C.S.

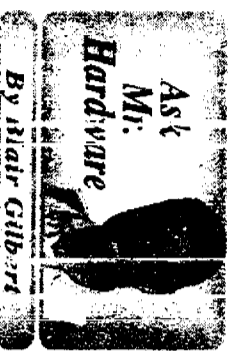

A. Daniel, the first thing you have to do to those roots is separate them from the tree.

Dig down and around them so you can use a saw, a bow saw is nice for this, and cut them at least six inches from the cement.

According to David Southworth (Mr. Landscaper), the roots will take over 15 years to re-establish to the size they are now.

What you should be checking for now is why did the roots go under the cement?

There must be a source of water or nutrients under the cement greater than the other direction. This could be indicating a broken sewer line or some other dilemma you should be addressing. Cutting it off will prevent the rampant root from further growth. Only new small feeders can start back up to grow under the cement. You could use some vegetation killer to help kill the root under the cement except it should have a very little growth once cut. If you do use vegetation killer, be careful because it could kill your tree if it gets on the root feeding the tree.

THOMAS ENVIN
Let's Talk About Real Estate

"BUYING IS A COMPROMISE"
Regardless of your income or other financial resources, your next home-buying decision will be a compromise. You will have to give up one thing to gain another. There are some of the major compromises involved in home buying.

Price
Most buyers are quite optimistic when they decide to move. They feel that their buying power is sufficient to get the kind of home they want in the location they prefer. In most instances, this doesn't happen. The typical buyer purchases a home at the extreme upper limit of his or her affordability level and usually settles for less house than originally desired.

Location
You can buy more house if you are willing to settle for a less desirable area. You could, as an example, purchase a 2,000 square foot home in a lesser area or an 1,800 square foot property in a prime location at the identical price.

Features
Many compromises are made regarding the features you want in your next home. Because of this, you must prioritize those features that you will not abandon in order to make a deal. If, as an example, you want four bedrooms and two and a half baths, you may have to sacrifice something else that is not as high on your list.

ADVICE: Realtors deal with these issues every day and have access to enough listings so that they can help you maximize your buying power and get the location and as many of your desired features as possible.

Keeping seed and feeders clean is a must

Clean seed in your bird feeders will prolong the life of your feeders. Seed that is free of dust and debris will keep your pigeons on word feeders and the jaxan or plastic of your tub feeders from scratching.

Some companies will add grit to their seed blends, promoting the need of birds for grit in their diet. While it is true that birds may need a grit source, it is never a good idea to add it to the seed in your feeders as it will cause wear and tear.

Oil sunflower is processed with an industry standard of 98 percent pure. This means that up to 2 percent of the packaged seed can be sticks, stems and dust. Recently, premium oil sunflower has been introduced on the market. This seed is 98 percent pure and can be a benefit in keeping feeders clean.

This time of year, before the harvest of the new seed crop, the seed that is available is from last year's harvest. Because the seed is older, there can be a tendency for various bugs to have discovered that the seed is a great place to eat. This is especially a problem in years where the winter temperatures have not been cold enough to kill overwintering insects. Temperatures over 65 degrees are favorable for insects to proliferate. Seed that is stored for long periods of time before use can also be an ideal breeding for insects.

It is not exciting to open a bag of seed in the fall after the seed has been in the bag since all summer. The only way to find a swarm of grain moths is to open the bag. Inspection would reveal that the bag may have larvae that are munching happily away on the seed, or in various stages of development, such as a cocoon surrounded by webbing.

The seed itself is not the culprit. Instead, grain moths have discovered your store of seed and the favorable condition of heat has added to the problem. Grain moths will even lay eggs inside of individual seeds while they are still on the heads of the sunflower in the field.

The most common moth that we encounter as a seed trader is the Indian meal moth. This non-native species of moth has no natural predator and will proliferate at a great rate. Some of the precautions that you should take to keep these and other moths from becoming a pest is to buy seed in quantities that you can use quickly and to keep the seed away from grains inside of your home.

It is best to store seed in your garage or in a cool basement. If you should experience a problem with grain moths finding their way into your home, Pantry Pest Traps are a great product to help eliminate the moths. The trap works with a pheromone, which is the moth's sexual hormone. This pheromone strip is opened and placed inside of the trap. The scent will lure the moth inside where it becomes stuck to the inside of the trap. As soon as the trap is full, another should be used to replace it. The pheromone is not harmful to humans in any way, unlike "moth balls" which contain harmful chemicals and should be avoided entirely.

When trying to rid your house of grain moths, the area in which they are discovered should be thoroughly cleaned. Inspect all of the grains that you have and discard any that you suspect, putting them in plastic bags inside of your garage bag. Grain moths have the ability to pierce plastic. Therefore, it is a good idea to store grains in glass containers. Ideally, grains should be refrigerated for freshness. These grain moths are not the type that will harm children.

If bird seed becomes infested with grain moths, it is not harmful to use it up. The birds will enjoy the protein. However, make sure that you use the seed as quickly as possible. You may also consider eliminating any larvae that you may find. Only buy as much seed as you can use in a reasonable amount of time. Moths will not be able to access seed that is stored in metal cans.

Keeping feeders clean is important so that diseases cannot be spread among birds. Birds have a tendency to defecate as they fly away from feeders. This occurs in nature's design to keep feeders clean. This occurrence should be avoided during winter months.

Indoor Air Quality Awareness Week in Macomb

Research shows that the air within homes and buildings can be more polluted than outdoor air. The average person spends approximately 90 percent of their time indoors.

The enhanced public awareness of the many factors influencing flight as a means to allow them to fly as quickly as possible without additional weight.

The possibility of disease being contracted from droppings can be kept to a minimum with proper cleaning techniques. Each time you fill your feeder, brush away old seed from the ledge or tray. Use a brush that is devoted only to this purpose. When you notice that your feeder could use a cleaning, it is a good idea to give it a soak in a weak bleach solution. One part bleach to nine parts warm water will kill bacteria and provide a safe feeding environment for your birds. How often should you clean the feeder? This depends on how often you fill the feeder and how much it is being used. Look it over and see your judgment as to whether it looks as if the birds could use a cleaner "plate."

When cleaning, it is a good idea to take the feeder apart as much as possible so that you can reach all parts of the feeder. Make sure that the feeder is completely dry before you fill it again in order to avoid molds that can lead to lead.

Clean seed and clean feeders will increase your enjoyment of the hobby and provide a better environment for your birds.

educate the public and assist with several common indoor air issues.

In terms of acute hazards, carbon monoxide (CO) is the most dangerous indoor air pollutant. CO is a colorless, odorless gas which is a by-product of incomplete combustion of fossil fuels, such as natural gas, propane, fuel oil, gasoline, wood, etc. Dangerous levels of CO in homes are usually caused by malfunctioning furnaces, faulty gas appliances, unvented space heaters, back-drafting or poorly maintained chimneys or automobile exhaust from attached garages.

Early signs of CO poisoning resemble the flu; however, prolonged exposure to elevated levels can ultimately lead to unconsciousness and death. If you suspect you are experiencing CO poisoning in your home you should immediately open windows, shut off all fuel-burning appliances, contact a professional heating contractor and consult your physician.

The health department is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Information may also be obtained by calling (810) 468-6296.

Exposure to elevated levels of radon is believed to be the second leading cause of lung cancer overall and the leading cause in non-smokers. Data indicates that in Macomb County approximately 7 percent of the homes will have elevated radon levels. The only way to know if your home has a radon problem is to test. Testing is easy and inexpensive. Test kits are available at many retail stores and the Macomb County Health Department.

Pumpkin storage, handling — for Halloween and beyond

With pumpkin fruit turning orange, frost threatening and Halloween still a few weeks away, gardeners with a few pumpkins (or more) need to know how to care, handle and store them for Halloween and beyond. Hannah Stevens, of Michigan State University MSU Extension, has the following tips:

- Harvest pumpkins and wait for squash as soon as they are mature and prior to frost. A mature fruit is well colored and hard to pierce with your thumbnail. In some years when maturity is late, pumpkin fruit with at least 40 percent of the fruit surface with orange color will continue to ripen. Use care in handling fruits to avoid wounds. Cuts and bruises in the fruit are open to decay organisms that may cause a great deal of loss in the short run.

Under proper conditions, stored pumpkins can last for several weeks. To keep pumpkins in the best condition, store them in a cool, dark place with a relative humidity of 85 to 95 percent. High temperatures and high humidity will reduce the life span of pumpkins. Pumpkins should be stored in a well-ventilated area. Do not store pumpkins in plastic bags or other airtight containers. The pumpkins should be stored in a cool, dark place with a relative humidity of 85 to 95 percent. High temperatures and high humidity will reduce the life span of pumpkins. ## Home Tips

KEEP IT CLEAN — I save those envelopes that come in the mail that have a large clear-plastic window in them.

When I'm working, I take the receipt that I'm using, insert it in the envelope and place the envelope just inside my cupboard.

The cupboard door holds it in place and the clear plastic window keeps it clean! Virginia D. Gilber, Ave.

CYPRUS — Whenever I decorate fronted cupcakes with candy sprinkles, I place the sprinkles in a 1.589 oz. baking pan and then sprinkle on the candies. When the sprinkles fall off the cupcakes, they fall into the pan and can be collected and used again. No more sprinkles all over my counter or floor, and cleanup is a breeze! Yolanda M. Monaghan.

REINFORCE THE SEAM — I always keep a box of bubble wrap on hand. You can find it in the gelatin and pudding mix section of your grocery store. The store's bubble wrap works just fine.

Whenever I find myself with sun-to-be-protected sour cream, cream cheese or cottage cheese, I mix it into the filling mix. This addition improves the flavor and my family loves it. I've even added leftover cream cheese frosting with success. Diana M. Colorado Springs.

MURKIN — Laying in an apartment, I sometimes see patches. To keep them out of my food, I put everything in glass jars or resealable plastic freezer bags.

TEMPERATURE — Below 40 degrees for long periods cause chilling injury and lead to fruit rot.

If you want to have fresh pumpkin pie for Thanksgiving, here's a tip: The best pumpkin pies are made with squash such as butter-nut, butternut or Hubbard and these tend to keep longer than jack-o'-lantern type pumpkins. They are readily available at farm markets now.

WRAPPING GIFTS — I recently got married and would like to give you a good tip for people who are invited to receptions and take gifts with them.

Put one of your mailing labels on the inside of the envelope. This will also be the busy to please get their thank you cards out soon or late W. D. etc.

WET CLOTHING — When finished cooking, lay a wet cloth on a grill — it steams off all food particles and burn-off residue and it makes outside cleaning a joy. Leave the cloth on until you're finished eating and then clean. Rita D. Monroe, N.Y.

CHIP SLABS — They are always hot if small broke. I pieces of chips left in the bottom of a bag of potato chips.

Just dump them into a ziplock-top plastic bag and store in the fridge. Add a crumb from time to time. If recent flavors don't matter, why you have a sufficient amount of pieces, use them to top a casserole. You don't need to add oil or butter, as the crumbs have enough already. If you don't, try them. Jean C. Chicago Falls, Ohio.

Pellet stoves — an Earth-safe heating alternative

Smokeless warms from wood waste? That's precisely what pellet stoves and fireplace inserts offer. First developed over a decade ago, they burn dried, compressed pellets made from wood by-products such as sawdust.

Today's pellet technology appliances offer a burn so complete, at such high temperatures, there is no visible smoke. Particulate emissions from pellet appliances have been tested at low as .2 grams per hour, with peak efficiencies of over 80 percent. So not only do pellet stoves and inserts effectively and efficiently recycle wood waste, they also help improve air quality.

Another advantage of pellet appliances is automatic fuel feed, so repeated loading isn't necessary. And whether you're at home or away, the even level of warmth generated from the fire endures.

Pellet technology is derived from that of automatically fueled coal stoves. Depending on the size of the hopper, which holds fuel in reserve, the stove or insert is loaded with pellets periodically, usually every other day or so. At a rate based on the temperature set, the pellets are channeled into the burn pot by an auger system. Then a combustor fan gives the fire the oxygen it needs to burn the fuel. Heat exchangers then take over. Preheated heat from the fan, they extract heat from the fire and introduce it into the home.

While many pellet stoves require the ignition of a firestarter in the burn pot to initiate the fire, others offer automatic lighting systems that make establishing a fire as easy as touching a control switch. Many also offer the option of wall thermostat operation for hands-free temperature regulation.

Pellet stoves come in all colors, shapes and sizes, in materials ranging from steel to soapstone to porcelain enamel-coated cast iron. Some are made to mimic a wood stove, with optional ceramic log sets to complete the illusion. While larger units can heat an entire home, sized-down models are great solutions for heating just a room or two, manufactured homes or vacation cabins.

Over the last decade, product refinements have made pellet stoves quieter, easier to clean and more fuel-friendly than ever before. Other features to look for include viewing windows with built-in ash-clearing airwash systems, multiple fuel rate settings for precision-tuned heat output year-round and generously sized hoppers for less frequent refueling.

Installing a pellet stove or fireplace insert is usually much easier and less expensive than installing a wood-fueled appliance. Many models can vent exhaust through an exterior wall, and most offer extremely close-rat clearance to combustibles to maximize floor space and broaden placement options.

Earth-safe, fuel efficient and ultra-convenient pellet appliances are a smart heating alternative for the 90s and beyond. For more information on today's pellet heaters, as well as other hearth products, a free copy of the 86-page Hearthwarming: A Guide to Hearth Products, is available by calling (800) 859-4323.

Household Help

HouseNet — a name and garden community on both the World Wide Web and America Online — recently announced its expanded capabilities offering America's do-it-yourselfers additional resources to tackle home and garden projects.

HouseNet now offers visitors the opportunity to purchase home improvement, gardening or decorating products as they read about how to do a related project around the house. For example, a HouseNet neighbor can learn how to create their own vegetable garden and find an offer to buy Burpee seeds and garden supplies conveniently located near to the article. They have the option to touching a control switch. Many also offer the option of wall thermostat operation for hands-free temperature regulation.

Another notable feature is the HouseNet/True Value Project of the Week. The series will include topics such as wallpapering a room, making simple deck repairs, reconfiguring bathroom tiles, repairing a driveway and much more. Each weekly featured project is rated for difficulty and gives HouseNet visitors step-by-step instructions and illustrations on how to complete the task from start to finish.

Coupon Corner

TIP OF THE WEEK: Recently, I needed to buy a suit for a specific event. I was going to be attending. I don't normally have to wear such attire and I didn't want to spend a great deal of money. I was in luck.

A local department store was having a 30-percent off sale on all their women's suits. Even better, they were offering with a coupon you could rick up at the customer service desk.

I shopped and tried on suits and finally settled on one which retailed for $220, much more than I wanted to shell out. However, with all the discounts, the suit actually came to $100 less than the ticket price. Naturally, I bought it.

If you need to shop for something specific, do what I did. Check the newspapers and fliers for sales. Then see if anything additional is being offered, such as the coupon I mentioned. In some cases, you'll find that stores will offer a super sale, but only between certain hours, such as 9 a.m. and 12 p.m. It's worth it, though, to get up early and get out for that bargain!

Here are this week's offers:

PAPER MATE REFUND, P.O. Box 4876, St. Cloud, MN 56398 (receive up to $6). For $1, send in the UPC from one product in the offer; for $2, send two UPCs; for $5, send three UPCs. Qualifying Paper Mate items include, Eraser Mate Erasable Ink Pen five-pack; Dynagrip RT 10 Ball Pen six-pack; or Flexgrip Ultra Retractable Ball Pen three-pack. Also send your Office Depot dated cash register receipt with price circled. Store form required. Expires 10/30/98.

PAPER MATE WRITE BROS. REFUND, P.O. Box 4876, St. Cloud, MN 56398 (receive back your purchase price, up to $1.49). Send in the UPC from a 10-pack of Paper Mate Write Bros. pens and your Giant Eagle dated cash register receipt with price circled. Store form required. Expires 10/31/98.

PURPLE MOON, Attn: Planner Offer, P.O. Box 391747, Mt. View, CA 94039 (receive a free planner). Sent in the dated (by 9/30/98) cash register receipt with price circled allowing the purchase of a Purple Moon product and a $4.95 handling fee (check or money order only). Store form required. Must be postmarked by 10/31/98.

SONY STARTER JACKET OFFER, P.O. Box 454, Oak Ridge, MI 07433 (receive a free NBA Starter Jacket). # FOUR SEASONS SUNROOMS in SOUTHFIELD

"TO SAVE A TREE"

By Virginia Carr
The Home Color Wizard

"It's all because of our Copper Beech tree", explains the owners of this beautiful sunroom built by Four Seasons Sunrooms in Southfield. "We wanted to save it."

Their original idea to simply build a conventional stick frame addition onto the back of their home had to be abandoned. Every contractor they talked to was concerned about the space between the house and the tree. Its removal was essential for construction. It was not a part of the homeowners' plan. The tree would have to stay somehow. They persisted and a brilliant solution evolved.

A glass garden room was the answer! As it turned out, this was an even better use of the space. They decided on a customized word system to their Salt Box Colonial home. This three-sided glass enclosure would visually increase space as well as bring the outdoors in. It would provide the light they needed for their adjoining dark kitchen, an evenly heated and cooled place for their year-around plants and dining pleasure, and of course, the center of attraction, a wonderful panoramic view of the tree.

But who would they get to do the job? Their search began. After much research and investigation, hands down, it was Four Seasons Sunrooms in Southfield. "We chose them for many reasons," said the homeowners. "The Better Business Bureau rated them very highly; they have been selected 'Remodeler of the Year' by the Building Association of Southeastern Michigan; plus, awarded Operator of the Year by Four Seasons Solar Products Worldwide." The quality of work and materials, courteous service, the range and choice of products and the high caliber of their longtime employees and in-house contractors was impressive. The convincing favorable response from previous customers was the icing on the cake.

The new Georgian Conservatory was designed to provide maximum floor space with the refreshing look of a lacy conservatory roof.

dignified way. Certainly, they are a refreshing alternative to conventional room additions.

Conservatories feel wonderfully expansive. They give an open, airy feel since their roofs are quite steep. The pitch of the roof can be lowered in order to blend with the design of your home. A variety of embellishments are also a part of the versatility of these new systems. Buyers may select from ridge creating, gables, cawwood casement windows, French doors and transoms.

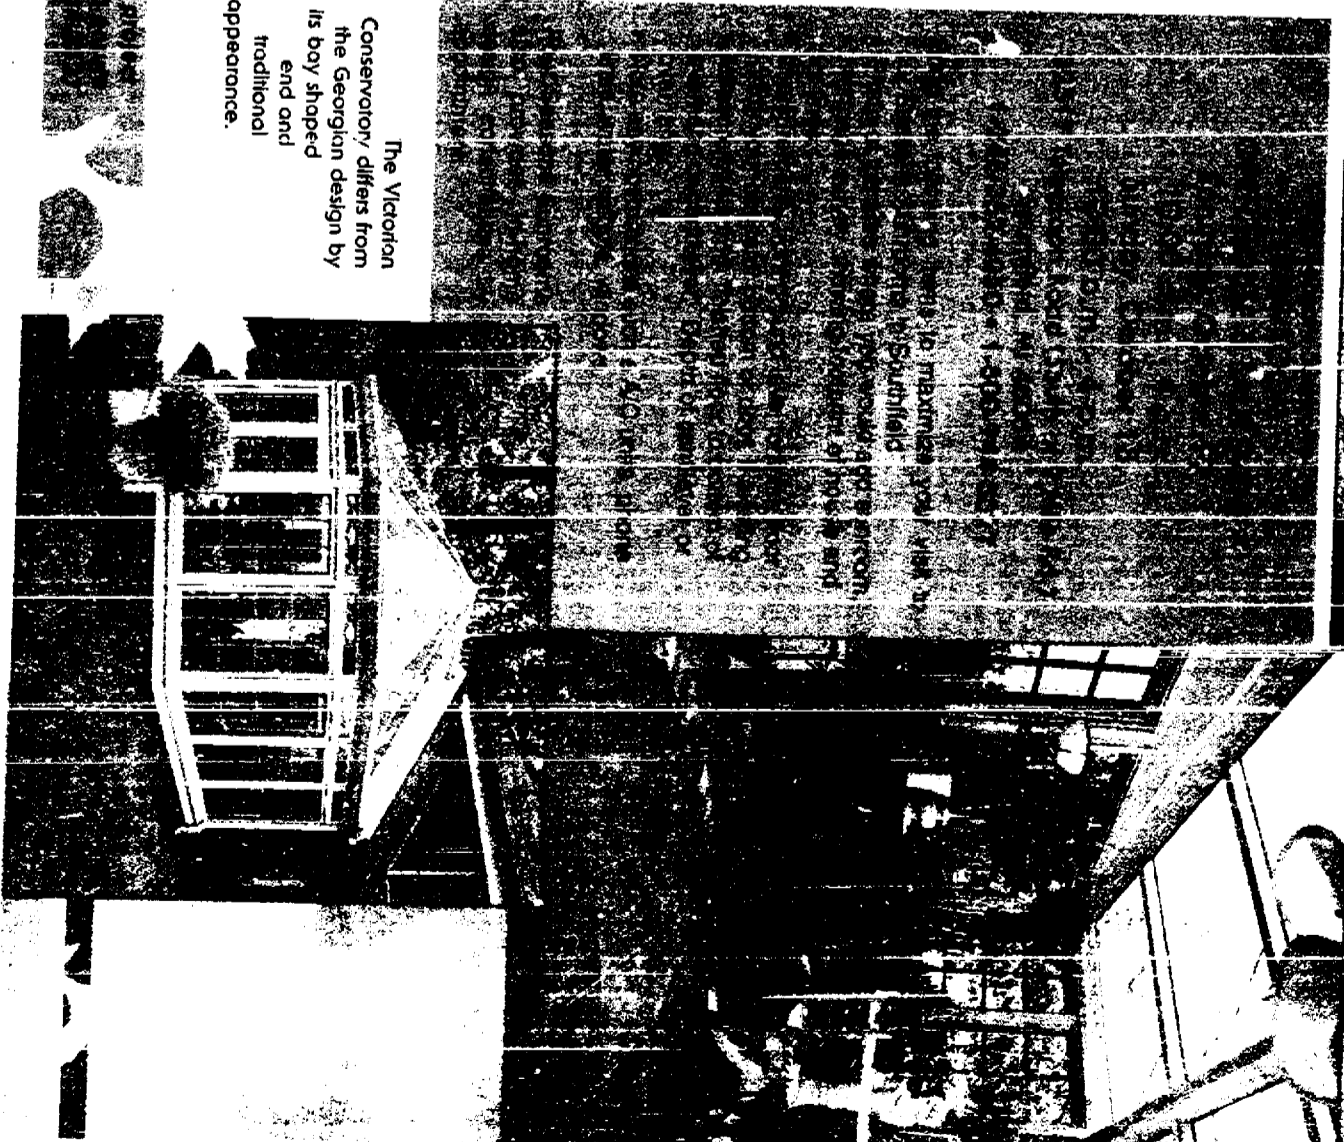

Inspired by English tradition, the conservatories incorporate Four Seasons Sunrooms' advanced techniques such as high performance glazing and thermally broken framework. They are also engineered for Michigan snow loading requirements.

Four Seasons Solar Products, a worldwide manufacturer, is suggesting consumers order soon for next year's projects in order to beat a January 1999 price increase they will implement in December 1998. Currently, there is a Pre-holiday Glass Upgrade Sale.

Grosse Pointe Sail Club celebrates 50 years afloat

By Madeleine Socia
Special Writer

Where can you watch a Punk Dolphin, a Lorax and a Suicide Blonde engaged in hot competition? Just look toward the horizon of Lake St. Clair each Tuesday evening, June through August. You can't miss the clutch of sailboats bearing these names. Their bright, billowing spinners, amidst dozens of other sailboats, are competing in the well-known weekly second Summer Sundown series run by the Grosse Pointe Sail Club.

The club is celebrating its golden jubilee year. On Saturday, Sept. 12, members gathered in the Tompkins Center, in Grosse Pointe Park's Windmill Pointe Park to mark the 50th anniversary of the club, which was founded by a quartet of Park sailors in 1948.

Among the more than 180 celebrants, from the GPSC's 183 member-families, were 21 former commodores. Festivities included dinner, dancing, entertainment, lots of GPSC lore and the presentation of an achievement award from Mayor Palmer T. Heenan. The glittering gala was quite a contrast to the organization's simple beginnings.

"Just downwind from World War II," as the Club's written history states, "many Grosse Pointe Park sailors devoted their weekends to informal races from Windmill Pointe Park to the yacht Delphine, docked behind the Horace C. Dodge estate Rose Terrace in Grosse Pointe."

Among these seaworthy gents were track star turned teacher David Beauvais, manufacturers' agent

Franklin A. "Bud" Miller, fellow salesman B. B. "Bud" Wellman and Roger Dodge Johnson, who became the Club's first officer. At the urging of Beauvais, who served as the Park's director, the quartet banded together and formalized their common bond by incorporating as The Grosse Pointe Sail Club.

The original membership rose to a baker's dozen and included Dr.

past five decades. Because the Club uses the Park's public facilities and is not burdened with the upkeep of a clubhouse and marina, dues have been held below $100.

But perhaps the more significant factor is that, despite the name, you need not own a boat, or even be a sailor, to belong. According to present Commodore Michael T. Krag, "All we ask is that you get to know somebody and United States Sailing Senior Judge.

"We need power boaters too," Krag said. "In fact, we are indebted to them because they set the marks for each race. You could do it with a sail boat, but you would have to start the day before."

By 1956 the organization's reputation earned it a full membership in the Detroit Regional Yachting-Racing Association, a parent organization of Southeastern Great Lakes sailing clubs. This achievement made the young club part of a worldwide organization of yacht clubs under the North American Yacht Racing Union and the International Yacht Racing Union.

As of November, three GPSC members will have gone on to take the helm of the DRYA as commodore.

In addition, the sail club is affiliated with the Detroit Regional Yacht-Racing Association, the Inter-Lake Yachting Association, the United States Sailing Association and the Yachting Club of America.

Through the years, the club has sponsored numerous races and regattas. Its current calendar lists 32 events, running May through October.

Along the way, it established a long list of permanent trophies including the Thunder Mug, the Leaker Award, the Perpetual Trophy, The Pureblood Trophy, the Fall Series Race Cup, the Frostbite Race Cup, the Ladies Challenge Cup and the Couples Race Trophy.

But by far the best-known GPSC innovation is the second Summer

Sundown race series. The event was launched in 1967, reportedly at the request of then-Commodore Bill McGraw's wife who said that Sunday was a family day rather than a race day.

Crews vie for good wind along a seven nautical mile long course or a four nautical mile short course. Races start at 7 p.m. each Tuesday, June through August, with a short break for the Mackinac regattas.

An average of 85 boats, ranging from 22-footers to more than 50 feet, set sail in the weekly event. The course, which may vary slightly from year to year, stretches from the Park dock, across the channel, around a buoy on the Canadian side and another near the Grosse Pointe Club, before returning to home port. Run in the general calm of the evening, the competition can test patience as well as talent.

"If the wind is good you can be back in an hour and 20 minutes," Krag claims, "but it can go on forever if there is no wind."

The races have become increasingly popular, with more than 130 registered to participate this year. Sailors appreciate the opportunity to test and hone their crew's skills in preparation for weekend competitions. They also revel in the unique challenge posed by the positioning of the start — a point where the lake flows into the Detroit River.

"The thing that's attractive is that current," said C. Jay Deeds, an octo-

Members who don't own their own crafts are often tapped to crew larger boats while others are employed on the dock, observing and tracking start and finish times, hoisting the signals and firing the warning cannons.

"Fighting that current is like being on a treadmill. Accomplished sailors just love it because it makes them work their tails off. We have also gained a reputation for being accurate and fair," he said. "We do 'em right."

Land lovers also appreciate the event. "We are running what I maintain is the very best spectator sailing in the world," Olsen said. "If you stand on the corner of the dock at Windmill Pointe Park you can see the entire race course. With the setting sun illuminating the spinnakers, it's quite spectacular."

Aside from a love of racing, members are also bound year-round by their mutual interest in having a good time. "Sailors tend to make good party people," Krag said.

The fun begins in January with the Grosse Pointe Sail Club's formal Commodore's Ball, followed by a Ski Weekend Rendezvous. The Club's large Irish contingent makes for a wildly popular St. Patrick's Day bash. Members meet in April for the Commodore's Steak Roast. June brings the Fleet Blessing/Spring Rendezvous.

Summing up the secret of GPSC's 50-year history of success, Olsen said, "It's just plain good fun."

Skillet corn bread

A few weeks ago I was planning the meal for a fall barbecue party that was hosted at my home.

Barbecued chicken and ribs, Oriental coleslaw, baked beans and corn bread were on the menu.

What I didn't have was a good corn bread recipe. I had made corn bread in the past but was never 100 percent pleased with its outcome. The bread was a little dry and lacking in flavor. After asking several people if they might possess a really good corn bread recipe, Michelle Daudlin, a co-worker at Lucy's, came through. The actual name of this week's recipe is Mexican Corn Bread, from Jane Brody's "Good Food Book." I titled this column "Skillet corn bread" because I think the secret is baking the bread in a cast iron skillet.

My last column's recipe for Apple Johnnycake was baked in a skillet as well. I recently purchased a 10-inch cast iron skillet at Damman Hardware in the Village for about $10. (Make sure to follow the directions for treating the skillet before using it.)

The purchase will certainly pay off as this heavy metal pan appears to be indestructible. You'll be sure to find many other uses for your skillet, such as cooking bacon or flipping pancakes.

Ingredients

- 1 cup yellow corn meal
- 3/4 cup all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs plus 1 egg white
- 1 can (15-17 oz.) cream style corn
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 1 cup grated cheddar cheese
- 2 Tablespoons butter, melted and cooled
- 1/4 cup chopped serrano peppers OR
- 1 4 oz. can chopped green chilies (optional)

Preheat oven to 400

degrees. Grease a 9-inch or 10-inch cast iron skillet or baking pan and set aside.

Combine the cornmeal, flour, baking powder, soda and salt in a large mixing bowl. In a medium bowl, beat together the eggs with the egg white. Mix in the corn, buttermilk, butter, cheese, and peppers (or chilies). Stir into cornmeal mixture just this half way through the mixing process. Remove pan from oven and pour the batter into it. Return to oven and bake for 25 minutes or until golden brown on top. Always use a clean knife inserted into the center of the bread to make sure it is done.

I produced two corn breads for my party. One was scattered with spicy peppers, the other was spice free, but loaded with the flavor of corn. The preparation of this corn bread was quick and easy.

Just before serving, reheat the bread and serve it right from the skillet. Decorate your spicy cornbread with a whole pepper so your guests know that it is hot. Serve fresh butter on the side.

You may substitute any variety of hot peppers for the jalapenos or even toss in a little (1/4 cup) sweet red and green pepper for confetti corn bread. Thanks to Michelle not only for a great recipe but the wonderful home-grown peppers.

Karmanos Institute to honor 'Heroes of Breast Cancer'

A research pioneer, a local news reporter and the Ford Motor Co. will be among those honored as local leaders in breast cancer awareness at the fourth annual "Heroes of Breast Cancer" luncheon.

Grosse Pointe Shores resident Alyssa Mertz will be honored with an individual award for community service. Mertz is a breast health advocate.

Mertz is a member of the Eastside Community Health Status Advisory Board, a community-based group that focuses on health issues in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods.

She is a member of the Karmanos Cancer Institute's speaker's bureau and is one of many who present the life-saving message that early detection of breast cancer saves lives.

She is involved in training speakers as breast health educators, and often volunteers her home as the meeting place for education training.

The "Heroes of Breast Cancer" luncheon will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 21, at the Westin Hotel's Columbus Ballroom in the Renaissance Center.

Awards are designed to recognize individuals and organizations who have advanced Michigan's fight against breast cancer through research, education, early detection, treatment or survivorship.

"The awards highlight movers and shakers" who pursue innovative approaches in fighting breast cancer and building awareness," said Jane Hoey, event chairman.

Others who will receive awards are the National Association of Hispanic Nurses, Michigan chapter; Lila Lazarus, "Good Health" reporter for WDIV-TV; Zora Djuric, breast cancer researcher; the Ford Motor Co.; and the Michigan Department of Community Health Breast and Cervical Cancer Control Program.

Tickets to the luncheon are $25. For information or tickets, call (800) KARMANOS.

The Pastor's Corner

Windows and mirrors

By The Rev. Jack T. Ziegler
Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church

Monday — Today's high performance job demands make it difficult, even for pastors, to nurture one's own spiritual life. We do all need each other. It is in community, in congregations, in the process of interacting with each other, in learning and growing together, where mature faith happens.

Tuesday — I feel a special kinship with the coming of fall this year. Does that mean I'm growing old?

Wednesday — Today an article about a 62-year "old timer policeman" caught my eye. How old is old anyway? I'm with Yogi Berra: "It ain't over till it's over."

Thursday — Life is an adventure at any age. I'm planning an Outward Bound adventure into the desert and canyons of southwest Texas next month. It will be a side trip on this journey we call life. I've recently been intrigued by how many of the biblical characters found wilderness experiences to be an important, perhaps necessary, part of their development and understanding of God.

Friday — Anne Morrow Lindbergh's "Gift From the Sea" continues to be a true gift. In it, she says, "It is not physical solitude that actually separates one from (others), not physical isolation, but spiritual isolation. It is not the desert island or the stony wilderness that cuts you from the people you love. It is the wilderness of the mind, the desert wastes in the heart through which one wanders lost and a stranger. When one is a stranger to oneself then one is estranged from others too. Only when one is connected to one's own core is one connected to others."

Saturday — When I become too full of myself — or too empty — I find strength in this prayer of Thomas Merton: "My Lord God, I have no idea where I am going. I do not see the road ahead of me. I cannot know for certain where it will end. Nor do I really know myself, and the fact that I think I am following your will does not mean that I am actually doing so. But I believe that the desire to please you does in fact please you. And I hope that I will never do anything apart from that desire. And I know that if I do this, you will lead me by the right road, though I may know nothing about it. Therefore, I will trust you always, though I may seem to be lost and in the shadow of death. I will not fear, for you are ever with me, and you will never leave me to face my perils alone."

Sunday — Lord, at your show, everyone seems to be a critic.

Is breast cancer preventable?

By Dr. Michelle Schultz
Special Writer

The answer to this question probably is... not entirely. But we each make a number of lifestyle choices that greatly impact on our risk of getting breast cancer. Of course, there is nothing that can be done to eliminate the genetic factor. But what else can we do? The answer can be divided into two categories, dietary and lifestyle.

Dietary measures

Medical studies suggest that a relative excess in the hormone estrogen can increase the risk of breast cancer. There are two dietary sources of estrogen.

Dr. Michelle Schultz

First, meat and dairy products are often treated with hormones to increase production. These hormones, among which is estrogen, are consumed by humans. This is thought to be one reason why some girls go through puberty at an earlier age. Ranged or Amish meats are not treated in this way. Second, pesticides sprayed on our vegetables contain estrogen-like substances (xenoestrogens) that are thought to be cancer-producing. To avoid this, try organically raised vegetables. Many stores now carry these natural

Foods

The addition of soy protein in the diet is known to be associated with a decrease in breast cancer, which is clearly demonstrated in the Asian countries. Try foods like soy milk and tofu, bran and whole cereals, legumes (peas, peanuts, beans) and flax seed. Vanilla-flavored soy milk is especially good on cereal in place of regular milk. Or crumble tofu into stir-frys or spaghetti sauce.

Lifestyle measures

Current studies show a direct link between smoking and breast cancer — among other health problems.

There also have been several studies suggesting the role that electromagnetic fields play in the incidence of breast cancer and some other cancers. This is not to say that women should run from every overhead power line in sight. But it is advisable to avoid living in close proximity to a utility tower containing a large number of high-power lines. Also, turn off the electric blanket before you get into bed, and move the electronic alarm clock or clock radio as far away from the bed as possible.

Take time out for you

Women who have breast cancer typically nurture and give time to everyone but themselves. A daily exercise program goes a long way toward cancer protection, as does routine meditation or quiet time.

And don't forget the importance of early detection. This includes annual breast exams by your physician; annual mammograms after the age of 40; and, most importantly, monthly breast self-examinations after the period is over. After menopause, women should set a day each month for their self-examinations.

Clearly, not any one of the factors mentioned above will cause or prevent breast cancer. But making healthy lifestyle choices, having regular medical screenings and keeping a positive mental outlook are steps women can take themselves to lower their risk of breast cancer.

Dr. Michelle Schultz is a Bon Secours Cottage Health Services obstetrician/gynecologist with the Woman to Woman Health Center in St. Clair Shores. She will be a featured speaker at the Women's Symposium '98 on Wednesday, Nov. 18, at Assumption Cultural Center in St. Clair Shores. Schultz will explore the relationship between traditional medicine and the holistic approach which may include meditation, yoga, massage and aroma therapies, and herbal supplements and teas. The evening will also include dinner, a motivational presentation by humorist Peggy Kline, displays, information and useful gifts. For more information and a reservation form, call (810) 779-7900.

Exercise can help exorcise risk of stroke

Take a brisk walk after lunch. Climb the stairs instead of taking the elevator to your office. Go out dining after dinner rather than reaching for those cookies. If you engage in these and other physical activities for one hour a day, you can cut your risk of suffering a stroke by nearly 50 percent, according to researchers in a report in this month's Stroke: Journal of the American Heart Association.

It has long been known that physical activity lessens the risk of heart attack, but the study of 11,190 Harvard University alumni extended this finding to the prevention of stroke, or "brain attack."

Researchers found that the people who expended 2,000 kilocalories each week — the equivalent of a one hour brisk walk, five days a week — had a 46 percent lower risk of stroke than those who did little or no exercise. Meanwhile, those people expending 1,000 kilocalories a week — the equivalent of walking briskly 30 minutes a day, five days a week — had about a 24 percent reduction in stroke risk.

"Not only did we find that physical activity is associated with reduced risk of stroke, but also we have some ideas as to how much and what type of activity might work best," says the study's lead author, Dr. I-Min Lee of the Harvard School of Public Health. "This finding provides additional support for the surgeon general's report on physical activity, which calls for at least 30 minutes of moderate intensity physical activity a day, most days of the week. We found that doubling that effort showed an even greater reduction in stroke risk."

Lee says that physical activity can help reduce or eliminate other common stroke risk factors, including high blood pressure, high levels of blood cholesterol, obesity and diabetes.

She and her co-author, Dr. Ralph Paffenbarger Jr., an internationally known exercise authority and professor emeritus at Stanford University, determined that activity of at least moderate intensity had a beneficial effect on stroke risk.

"Walking, stair-climbing and participating in moderately intense activities such as dancing, bicycling and gardening were shown to reduce the risk of stroke," says Lee. "Light activity such as bowling and general housekeeping activity did not have the same effect."

"We know that physical activity can reduce blood pressure and help slow the development of clogged arteries, keep weight down, reduce a person's cholesterol levels and help reduce clotting of the blood."

Strokes are the leading cause of disability in the United States. They occur when blood flow to the brain is blocked by a blood clot or when fat-filled plaque clogs the vessels leading to the brain.

Although this study looked almost exclusively at whether a correlation existed between physical activity and stroke in white men, Lee says that the implications of the research are most likely applicable to women and minorities. A previous study in northern Manhattan had shown similar findings in these groups.

The Harvard Alumni Health Study began in 1962, as researchers tracked the health of people who had graduated from Harvard between 1916 and 1950. In this study, researchers assessed physical activity in 1977, and followed men from 1977 until 1990, for occurrence of stroke.

The researchers controlled for factors such as smoking, alcohol consumption, height and weight, high blood pressure and diabetes, and still found that physical activity by itself was associated with decreased risk of stroke.

Is there a link between nutrition and breast cancer?

Women can help fight breast cancer by joining a large national study intended to establish a link between breast cancer and nutrition.

Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute physician Zora Djuric, Ph.D., is conducting the Nutrition and Breast Health Study, a 12-month study to determine whether dietary changes can reduce the risk of breast cancer.

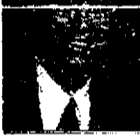

Study participants must be ages 21 to 50, and have a mother, daughter or sister with breast cancer. Participants will be required to meet with a registered dietitian, as well as keep a detailed record of their food intake. Study sites are located in Detroit, Warren, Pontiac and Dearborn.

The study, sponsored by the National Cancer Institute, is one of a handful nationally to study the effects of diet on breast cancer risk.

For more information about the study, call (800) KAR-MANOS.

"By Word of Mouth"

Dr. Kevin Prush, D.D.S.

When I was younger, I thought other kids were cruel. Years later, I realize there are many more good people than bad people. Back in the early 70s when I was growing up, the fact that some kids called me "Mr. Ed" did not sit well with me. What they meant by "Mr. Ed" was I had a bad skeletal overbite which showed a lot of gums when I smiled. My parents never looked into orthodontics (braces), and so as an adult, I elected to have jaw surgery to correct the situation.

These days, your orthodontist is doing amazing things! Problems such as the one I had can be prevented by starting early if indicated. How many children do you know who wear removable appliances at age 8, 9, or 10 years old? Sometimes a problem can be improved before a child has their adult teeth. The theory is the child's jaw bones are still growing and can be influenced by removable appliances such as roof-of-the-mouth expanders.

If some of these problems can be "pre-improved" then the braces part of the treatment will be much easier. Yes, the number of years of active treatment will be longer, but the success of the case can be greater and finished at an earlier age! So consult your local orthodontist and see if your child is a candidate for interceptive treatment.

Pointe choir boy graduates to big time theater roles

The stage is one of the most demanding and risky careers. We all know stories of star-struck youths who set out with dreams of leading roles, then spend their lives doing odd jobs to keep body and soul together between walk-on roles.

David Ludwig knew when he graduated from Grosse Pointe South High School that he wanted a career in music and singing. He did not know, however, where it would lead and how long it would take.

Talent, training, perseverance, and some good luck have brought him a long way, with exciting new opportunities in prospect.

His career, in fact, is on a launching pad for some real success. He can honestly say he made a good choice. He also loves what he's doing.

Even so, there are always hitches along the way. One example is that this column, in reporting Stratford's production of "Man of La Mancha" this summer, completely overlooked the supporting role of Dr. Carrasco, played by this former student at Richard Elementary School.

We had known him as a boy soprano, then as an alto in the Christ Church Choir.

There he was, 25 years later, big as life, delivering a first rate, featured status performance in one of the world's finest theater companies.

"The Impossible Dream" was not even a pipe dream in the imagination of the 7-year-old whose parents put him in the hands of Edgar Billups, then choir director at their church.

The family lived in the City of Grosse Pointe, where father Bill Ludwig still resides. Now he enjoys the satisfaction of knowing how well he guided and encouraged his son.

The gifts of a good voice and a love for music were David's talismans through high school. He sang as member and soloist in the South High School Choir and the select group called The Crazy Eights with director Leonard Ricinotto.

He graduated to alto and sang more solos at Christ Church, where the choir was invited annually to perform with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

That perhaps gave David his first taste of the big time. At age 12 already he soloed in a Mahler symphony, The "Jeanne D'Arc," and traveled with the orchestra to perform in New York's Carnegie Hall.

He spent time in the Berkshire Boys Choir, where the met adult professional singers who were graduates of Indiana University School of Music. That was a key influence which led him to enter that school in 1976 to study music and opera. It was, in fact, a critical moment of decision. But the young singer had no clear-cut career plan. He simply worked hard and grabbed every opportunity that presented itself. So he found himself in the Early Music Program at IU under Thomas Binkley, which carried him through to a graduate degree. From then on it was serendipity all the way.

Notwithstanding his focus on early music, singer friends from IU encouraged him to try for some of America's fine regional opera companies like Houston, San Francisco and MOT. He was encouraged by a baritone friend already singing at the Met.

David came home to Grosse Pointe, married and was hired by Karen DiChiera to sing in MOT's opera in residence, which gave outreach performances in schools and other organizations around the state. It became his first real experience in singing major roles in such operas as "La Boheme," "Fledermaus" and "El Capitan" by John Philip Sousa.

Eventually it led to supporting roles in MOT itself. He sang solos in oratorios in local churches. Following a performance of Verdi's "Requiem" at Christ Church, New York beckoned.

David was advised and realized that his career needed the stimulus and opportunity that only the New York cultural world could offer.

"I decided to bite the bullet and go for the main stage," he said. So off he went to the big city. His marriage, unfortunately, could not survive the change.

Unlike the conventional stories, David never worked as a waiter. He lived with his brother for a while near the city. He found teachers and coaches to develop him, for the intense competition he faced. And he found work singing.

His background in church and early music opened opportunities in those special areas. He sang in St. Thomas Church on 5th Avenue where there was a huge music program and a boys choir school.

He sang at St. John the Divine Cathedral and St. George Church on 10th Street. He even found time to be an activist with New York Public Research, campaigning for trash recycling and against trash incineration.

He also sang with the New York Philharmonic in a professional choir that was hired for specific concerts. Then he got into the New York Opera Concert Choir.

"That's when it got interesting for me," he said. "It led me to a voice teacher at the Met who had a friend who sings opera on cruise ships. It never occurred to me to sing on a cruise ship."

He auditioned for the producer who booked for the Cunard Line and while at sea made a friend in the song and dance act with a Broadway Musical revue group based in Toronto. The culmination of following that trail was an agent in Toronto who took David on.

It wasn't hard for the agent to persuade David to accept bookings in musical theatre. He had been to the big shows in New York, like "Les Miserables," and was tempted.

Through one of the biggest Canadian companies, his first assignment was in 1986 performing Henry Higgins in "My Fair Lady" at the summer theatre in Lindsay, Ontario. Next came "Phantom of the Opera" in a Canadian national tour ending in Vancouver.

He went to Stage West in Calgary which put him in dinner theatre. There he cut his teeth on Jud Fry in "Oklahoma" and Emile de Becque in "South Pacific."

The season of 1991 found him at Ashlawn Highlands, Va., singing Figaro in "The Barber of Seville," the Father in "Hansel and Gretel" and the rollicking Honey Bun number as Luther Billis in "South Pacific."

With that experience David recognized a particular satisfaction in doing musicals. He did opera in Florida, then went back to Ashlawn to play Billy Bigelow in "Carousel," The Don in "Don Giovanni" and realized that he had become totally comfortable delivering lines on stage, as well as singing — just like a real actor.

But it was playing Petruccio in "Kiss me Kate" at Opera Memphis that got him totally hooked on musicals. And his story is just starting to get really good.

When in 1997 his agent won him an audition for the Stratford Festival, David had to face the reality that his only acquaintance with Shakespeare was through teacher George Jacob at Grosse Pointe South High School. Yet that appears to be the fun of it.

He won the role in "Man of La Mancha" and was required to accept minor speaking roles in "Julius Caesar" and "Two Gentlemen of Verona." Even Shakespeare came nat-

Through one of the biggest Canadian companies, his first assignment was in 1986 performing Henry Higgins in "My Fair Lady" at the summer theatre in Lindsay, Ontario. Next came "Phantom of the Opera" in a Canadian national tour ending in Vancouver.

He went to Stage West in Calgary which put him in dinner theatre. There he cut his teeth on Jud Fry in "Oklahoma" and Emile de Becque in "South Pacific."

The season of 1991 found him at Ashlawn Highlands, Va., singing Figaro in "The Barber of Seville," the Father in "Hansel and Gretel" and the rollicking Honey Bun number as Luther Billis in "South Pacific."

But it was playing Petruccio in "Kiss me Kate" at Opera Memphis that got him totally hooked on musicals. And his story is just starting to get really good.

When in 1997 his agent won him an audition for the Stratford Festival, David had to face the reality that his only acquaintance with Shakespeare was through teacher George Jacob at Grosse Pointe South High School. Yet that appears to be the fun of it.

He won the role in "Man of La Mancha" and was required to accept minor speaking roles in "Julius Caesar" and "Two Gentlemen of Verona." Even Shakespeare came naturally with the usual work and study. He discovered he enjoyed and could do that too.

He also understudied Cervantes/Don Quixote in "Man of La Mancha," which provided what may have been his biggest break so far.

Star Juan Chioran was afflicted with a throat infection and David went on in the lead one evening at the end of August. Much to his satisfaction, he evoked strong audience response and shared a standing ovation at the end. Such moments rarely go unnoticed.

As for his future at Stratford, he is auditioning for the lead in the Festival's chamber opera production of "Dracula" next summer and keeping his fingers crossed.

But New York still beckons. He has not done a major musical role there as yet. And he wants to. But that could happen with opera first. He is now ready for a major Verdi role like Germont in "La Traviata," perhaps at the New York City Opera. Perhaps even the Met.

He had a near miss recently when he was considered for the father in "Ragtime," in New York.

It is only a matter of time. David is paying his dues. He starts and grows with every role. The day is coming and probably soon when Grosse Pointers will say, "We knew him when..."

Meantime, we can wish him the superstitious actors' mantra — "Break a leg."

North football comeback ranks among the school's best

By Chuck Klonek
Sports Editor

Things were looking pretty bleak for Grosse Pointe North's football team last Friday night.

Anchor Bay had just scored to take a 28-14 lead over the Norsemen early in the fourth quarter of their Macomb Area Conference White Division battle, but then there was a glimmer of hope for North.

The Tars missed the extra point after a 74-yard touchdown pass. Now that might not seem like much, but it was a huge window of opportunity for North coach Frank Sumbera and his team.

"It meant we didn't have to get three scores," Sumbera said after the Norsemen made one of the greatest comebacks in school history to beat Anchor Bay 35-28 and remain unbeaten in the MAC White.

"All we needed were two touchdowns and the extra points and we could tie them. Even though we were down, the kids kept going and they kept believing."

But the Norsemen got three scores as the offense turned in one of its most productive games of the season.

"It's not quite a capital 'O' for offense yet, but it's getting bigger," Sumbera said.

North had 479 yards in total offense, including 167 passing and 312 on the ground. It was one of the most balanced attacks of the season.

The comeback started with 6:51 left in the fourth quarter when quarterback Scott Koerber capped an eight-play, 71-yard drive with a three-yard run. Gene Baratta added the extra point to make it 28-21.

Key plays in the drive were a 40-yard run by Mike Sorgeloos and an 11-yard completion from Koerber to Dennis Theodorou on third down and seven.

After Koerber's touchdown, Sumbera decided to gamble.

"I called for the emergency onside kick," he said. "Nick (assistant coach Nick Thompson) asked me if I was sure I wanted to do it with almost seven minutes left, but I said, 'let's go for it now.'"

With momentum on the Norsemen's side, everything worked perfectly. Baratta made an excellent kick that bounced over Anchor Bay's front line. Just as the Tars' 6-foot-6 Corey Trotter was about to grab the ball, North's Craig Pollard knocked it away and Ray Andary recovered on the Anchor Bay 43.

"Pollard and Andary are both new to our onside kick team because of injuries to Alex Thomas and Jon Paquin, but they both made huge plays to help us recover that ball," Sumbera said. "We worked on it all week."

A fourth down and seven-yard pass from Koerber to K.C.

Cleary took the Norsemen 20 yards to the Anchor Bay 10. Two five-yard runs by tailback Paul Valencia took North into the end zone and Baratta's extra point tied the game at 28-28 with 4:02 left.

North's defense held on downs the next time Anchor Bay had the ball and the Norsemen drove to the Tars' 34 where they committed a turnover with about 40 seconds left.

Anchor Bay threw two incomplete passes, then lost six yards on a sack by Will Solomon. That forced the Tars to punt and North took over on its 41 with 15 seconds to play in regulation.

On first down, Koerber connected on a long pass to Mike Luzi, who caught the ball on the two and stepped into the end zone with only seven seconds left.

"I don't know if I've seen a better comeback," Sumbera said. "We gained a lot of confidence in ourselves in the second half."

Sumbera said that he spread out the field on the final touchdown in hopes of confusing Anchor Bay.

"Sorgeloos went out, too, and the halfback bit on him," Sumbera said. "That's when Luzi just ran right past him."

Koerber completed eight of 16 passes for 150 yards, includ-

South girls win Saginaw meet

Grosse Pointe South's girls cross country team took on a pair of top 10 squads last week and beat one and lost to the other.

The victory came at the 24-team Saginaw Heritage Invitational where fifth-ranked South finished far ahead of No. 6 Mount Pleasant in the team standings.

The Blue Devils were first with 42 points, while Mount Pleasant was a distant second with 76. Sterling Heights was third with 86 points.

South runners took three of the top five places in the 125-runner field.

Juniors Beth Auty (18:56) and Heidi Crowley (19:24) finished 1-2, while sophomore Elizabeth Osburn was fifth in 19:42. Kate Finkenstaedt, Katy Kraft and Meghan Robson took 17th through 19th places and all three ran times under 20 minutes. Kristin Ritter was clocked in 21:00.

"This is our first meet with all the varsity girls at 21:00 or better," said coach Steve Zoraneck. "We were able to do this with both an excellent course and great competition. The outlook for the final weeks of the season looks even brighter."

Adding to the optimism is the fact that South's two top freshmen, Bridget Scallen and Mary Gibson, placed first and second in the junior varsity race with superb times of 20:10 and 20:30.

"These two pulled away from the field early and had their finest races of the season," Zoraneck said.

Crowley, Scallen and Robson

South took 10 of the top 14 medal positions in the JV race. Joining Scallen and Gibson as medal winners were Erica Hill (21:59), Maureen Hoehn (22:02), Victoria Edwards (22:05), Cristin Brophy (22:08), Amanda Andrade (22:19), Molly Damm (22:36), Katy Day (22:40) and Rachel Walters (22:46).

Additional season-best times came from Rachel Henderson, Lauren DeFusco, Bridget Molloy, Mary Donoghue, Ann Marie Macon, Lauren Padilla, Kristen Pavle, Ashley Cahill, Emily Ross and Maggie Hayes.

South lost its first dual meet of the season — and third of the 1990s — when second-ranked Stevenson beat the Blue Devils 21-38.

Knights' football family has it all together again

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It took a while, but University Liggett School's football team has that true family feeling again.

"We're all trusting one another, just like it was last year," said Knights coach Gary Hills after ULS beat Hamtramck St. Florian 33-6 in a non-league game.

It was the third straight win for the Knights, who lost their first three games.

"Our seniors and leadership people are more relaxed," Hills said. "They're getting confidence in the younger guys and the young guys are getting confidence in themselves. It's more like a true family now."

The St. Florian game was one that Hills admitted concern about. It came on the heels of an important Metro Conference win against Cranbrook and if a team was ever ripe for a letdown, it was the Knights.

"We're maturing," Hills said. "We took another step with this game and now we have another good test this week with Lutheran Northwest. It's a good test mentally."

Last year, ULS overpowered the Crusaders, but Northwest

ULS didn't waste any time taking command against St. Florian.

The first time the Knights had the football they marched 73 yards with junior running back Nick Maitland being the majority of the work.

Maitland, who finished with 218 yards in 15 carries, picked up about 60 yards in the drive, including the final 27.

ULS made it 12-0 the next time it had the football as A.J. Stachecki hit Waref Hawasli on a crossing route for a 65-yard touchdown.

The Knights' defense accounted for the next score. St. Florian moved the ball to midfield when linebacker Jim Wood made a jarring tackle on the Lancers' quarterback. The ball popped loose and Hawasli grabbed it in the air and ran 52 yards for a touchdown.

Drew Noecker added the first of his three extra points to give the Knights a 19-0 advantage.

ULS had one of its best drives of the game as it marched 70 yards with Ryan Lewis scoring on a three-yard run.

"We mixed it up well in that series," Hills said. "A.J. made a ing four to Cleary for 70 yards. Valencia carried 31 times for 187 yards in his second game at tailback.

Sumner also praised the work of the offensive line.

"The big guy was junior tackle Michael Kasiborski," Sumner said. "John Trupiano also had a good game and Cam Lovelace had probably his best game."

Other key blocks came from wide receiver Will Sumner and tight end Brian Bigham.

North was coming off a non-division loss to Ford II — its first loss of the season — and for more than three quarters it looked like the Norsemen might drop their second in a row to all but kill their chances for an outright division title and a chance to make the state playoffs.

Anchor Bay's Dave Schmidt scored on an 85-yard run, then Schmidt scored from the four to give the Tars a 15-0 lead midway through the first quarter.

North got on the scoreboard with 2:44 left in the first half on a one-yard run by Koerber. The Norsemen marched 80 yards in 15 plays with most of the yardage coming on runs by Valencia, fullback Brian Vandenberghe and Koerber. Koerber passed to Theodorou for the two-point conversion, cutting the Tars' lead to 15-8.

North drove to the Anchor Bay 11 with only seconds remaining in the first half, but time ran out before the Norsemen could get into the end zone.

Early in the second half, North's Phil Kozlowski recovered a fumble that was caused by a hard hit by Solomon at the Anchor Bay 23. Four plays later, Valencia went the final four yards for a touchdown. Baratta kicked the extra point to bring the Norsemen within a point.

But Anchor Bay scored two more touchdowns on a 54-yard pass play and the 74-yard run to boost its lead to 28-14.

On defense, North had fine games from tackles John Trupiano and Bryan Kupets. Trupiano had eight tackles, including two solos, and Kupets had a hand in six stops.

"We knew Anchor Bay was tough up the middle, but we did a good job of stopping them with our tackles," Sumner said. "They didn't sustain any long drives against us. It was the big plays that hurt."

Kozlowski had seven tackles, Sean Carter and Solomon had six apiece and David Hirt made five stops.

North plays at Warren-Mott Friday and the Norsemen need the victory in order to set up a showdown with Fraser Oct. 23 in a game that could match a pair of teams who are unbeaten in the MAC White.

Backup quarterback helps beat Devils

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Chippewa Valley's football team wasn't hurting too badly with backup quarterback Mario Locricchio at the controls.

Locricchio, who was a wide receiver until starter Jim Deliz injured his knee against Sterling Heights Stevenson the week before, ran for two touchdowns and passed for another Friday to lead the Big Reds to a 38-21 victory over Grosse Pointe South in a Macomb Area Conference crossover game.

"They have some talented kids," said South coach Mike McLeod, whose team fell to 3-3 overall.

"We didn't play badly. We had 390 yards in total offense, but they had 430."

Locricchio completed his first five passes and finished 11 for 16 for 157 yards. He also ran for 96 yards, including a 72-yard touchdown run with 1:45 left to cap the Chippewa Valley scoring.

Running back Ryan Wagner provided another weapon for the Big Reds as he rushed for 162 yards in 26 carries and had touchdown runs of one and 15 yards.

Chippewa Valley's balance left the Blue Devils in a tenuous situation.

"We couldn't give support from the secondary on the run because of their threat to throw," McLeod said.

An injury to linebacker Justin Simon, who had a strong first half, also crippled the South defense in the second half.

South's statistics were nearly as impressive. Quarterback Mike Kaselitz completed 21 of 37 passes for 291 yards. His favorite receiver was Josh Lorence, who had another outstanding game. Lorence caught seven passes for 171 yards and one touchdown and he rushed 16 times for 100 yards and two touchdowns.

"Mike and Josh played well again and our offensive line didn't let up," McLeod said. "We had two sophomores in their most of the time (Doug Orttunburger and Mark Frangel) and they did a nice job. Brien Morrell got back in the lineup after being injured and he'll be tough to get out of there. We didn't allow any sacks when Mike was in the pocket, but I can understand his trying to get out and make something happen."

"Adam Maloof and Charles Missant both did an outstanding job of blocking and Maloof had some nice catches, too."

Chippewa Valley scored the first time it had the football, marching 62 yards in eight plays with Locricchio hitting Nick DeGraw for a 15-yard touchdown pass. DeGraw added the first of his five extra points.

The Big Reds capitalized on a South fumble for their second touchdown. Linebacker Brett Houser recovered on the Chippewa 31 two plays after a 43-yard screen pass from Kaselitz to Lorence put the Blue Devils deep in Big Reds' territory.

Chippewa Valley marched 69 yards in 10 plays with Wagner going the final yard on the first play of the second quarter to make it 14-0.

Kaselitz intercepted Locricchio's pass at the South 37 with about 7 1/2 minutes left in the first half and he hit Lorence on a screen for 39 yards to the Chippewa 24. Two plays later, Kaselitz and Lorence connected on an 18-yard touchdown pass and Andrew Hendrie kicked the first of three extra points.

South drove from its one to midfield as time expired in the first half, but Chippewa Valley added to its lead on the first possession of the second half.

An 81-yard kickoff return by Brandon Thompson gave the Big Reds the ball on the South 10, but the Blue Devils' defense held and forced Chippewa to settle for a 25-yard field goal by DeGraw.

South came right back and drove 80 yards in six plays to cut Chippewa's lead to 17-14. Kaselitz completed passes of 15 yards to Lorence and nine yards to tight end Adam Maloof before Lorence broke free for a 48-yard touchdown run.

The Big Reds scored the next two times they had the football. Chippewa Valley picked up at least 10 yards on four straight first-down plays and Locricchio capped the 63-yard drive with a five-yard keeper.

Jay Hold's fumble recovery at the Chippewa 35 ended another South threat and set up a 15-yard touchdown run by Wagner to give the Big Reds a 31-14 lead with 15 seconds left in the third quarter.

Kaselitz hit some key passes to Maloof, Lorence and Tony Gatliff in a 73-yard drive that ended on Lorence's four-yard touchdown run.

With the Blue Devils trailing 31-21 with just over four minutes left, South attempted an onside kick and John Berschback recovered for the Blue Devils on the Big Reds' 43.

Kaselitz hit David Latchney for 18 yards on the first play, but the drive stalled and Chippewa Valley took over on its 30. Two plays later Locricchio led the victory with a 72-yard touchdown run.

"Our special teams did a great job, except for that one kickoff return," McLeod said. "Jeremy Linne, Justin Mitchelson and Lukas Morawski continued to do a great job of coming after the punter. They blocked one kick and hurried the others so that there were some short punts."

South returns to MAC White play this week when the Blue Devils host Anchor Bay Friday at 7 p.m.

South

"We are not quite at the level of Stevenson," Zaranek said. "Even though we took four of the top 10 positions, our gaps were a little bigger than theirs. Stevenson has the type of team that will be exceptional at the state finals. We hope to be right with them on that day."

Auty was the overall winner of the race in 19:07, followed by Crowley, Ritter, Osburn, Kraft, Finkenstaedt and Robson. Sarah Goodnow and Donoghue ran season-best times.

South will compete in the Oxford Invitational Friday.

Derrious Clark and Paul Brennan all played well in the second half. Brennan made his first varsity reception. Noecker had some excellent kickoffs and recovered a fumble on a kickoff.

Moultry and Stachecki also had excellent two-way performances.

Titans tighten race by beating Norsemen

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's girls basketball team had a chance to put some distance between itself and Warren Woods-Tower last week, but instead the Macomb Area Conference White Division race got even tighter.

"They finished like we normally do," coach Gary Bennett said after the Titans posted a 49-42 victory to hand North its first defeat in the MAC White.

"They played with a lot of intensity — like they really needed to win this game. We had the same approach, but for a couple of minutes they just had a little bit more."

A loss would have dropped WWT to 5-2 in the division and would have left the Titans two games behind North. Now the teams are tied for first place with 6-1 records.

The game was tied 40-40 with 3:54 remaining but Woods-Tower broke the deadlock and managed to stay ahead with some strong free throw shooting down the stretch.

"They made their free throws at the end and we didn't take care of the ball like we normally do," Bennett said. "It was a good basketball game. They just finished better than we did."

North had a seven-point lead early in the game, while

"C.R. had a great game both ways at tight end and defensive end," Hills said. "A.J. threw the ball well. He completed six of eight passes for 120 yards and made smart decisions. He also had a great defensive game. We got some great football out of the people who have to play for us."

Woods-Tower's biggest margin was the five points at the end.

Michelle Champine led the Norsemen with 13 points and she had seven steals. Lauren Bramos had a fine all-around game with nine points, nine rebounds and five steals. Bramos made seven of eight free-throw attempts. Jaime Francis added eight points for North.

Earlier, the Norsemen rolled to a 66-35 victory over Port Huron.

"We really shot well," Bennett said. "We hit 46 percent from the field and we made nine threes. In the first half we just put everything together — offensively and defensively."

North held a 42-12 lead at halftime and held the Big Reds to only one field goal in the first half.

Sarah Smith led North with 15 points, all coming on three-point goals. Maria Colletti added nine points and Francis finished with eight points and seven assists.

"Jaime has the ability to score, but she's so unselfish," Bennett said. "She's a sophomore and I think she's going to look for her shot more as time goes on."

North has a tough game tonight, Oct. 15, at Mount Clemens. The Norsemen return home to play St. Clair Tuesday.

Mustangs '86 rule their division

The Pointe Girls Soccer Association under-12 Mustangs '86 capped an outstanding spring season by winning the Green Division championship in the Little Caesars Soccer League.

It was the Mustangs' first season in the Little Caesars premier league.

The Mustangs closed out the year with a 3-2 victory over the Brighton Eclipse in a game that decided first place in the division.

Griffin's goal came off a corner kick.

Emily Reuls played well in goal for the Mustangs.

Other team members were Andrea Przybysz, Jessica Marsh, Jennifer Marsh, Danica Day, Lindsey Furgal, Erin MacLeod, Kristen Padilla, Anne Campbell, Julie Howe, Callie Shumaker, Lindsay Potthoff, Megan Switalski and Natalie Waelchli.

The team was coached by Stu Dow and Miriam Cavanaugh.

ULS beats Cranbrook in eighth round of soccer tourney shootout

University Laggett School's soccer team needed a week to recover from its thrilling eight-round shootout victory over Cranbrook Kingswood in the first round of the Metro Conference tournament.

Unfortunately for the Knights, they had only two days to recover and wound up dropping a 2-0 decision to regular-season champion Lutheran North in the tournament semifinals.

"There was so much emotion from that game, plus we had four guys who were playing at about 50 percent because of illness and injuries," said coach David Backhurst. "It was tough to come back against Lutheran North."

Cranbrook jumped ahead during the first minute of regulation time and held the 1-0 lead until the six-minute mark of the second half when ULS' Mark Gottfredson was pulled down in the penalty area.

"I was looking around for somebody to take the penalty kick and Mark volunteered," Backhurst said. "And he buried it."

That tied the game at 1-1 and it stayed that for about 10 minutes when there was a scramble in front of the Cranes' goal. Anthony Peters' shot rang off the crossbar and Scott Vallee headed it into the net for a 2-1 lead for ULS.

One of the Knights' players drew a red card with about 20 minutes left, so ULS had to play the remainder of the game with only 10 players.

The Knights managed to hold off Cranbrook until the final second of regulation when the Cranes scored the tying goal.

"There was some discussion that the game had ended when the ball went into the net, but the official who said the goal counted wouldn't budge," Backhurst said.

The teams played through two overtime periods without scoring, although ULS held a 17-8 edge in shots for the game.

The Knights missed their first two shootout attempts, but then Mike DiLoreto, J.D. Spina and Mace McDonald scored to match Cranbrook's production.

In the sixth round, Jonathan Kish scored for ULS, but the Cranes' shooter also scored. The rain, which had started earlier, turned into a downpour by the seventh round but the Knights' Steve Buhalski scored and Cranbrook's shooter matched his effort.

Finally, in the eighth round, ULS sophomore Andrew Yee scored and Knights goalie Dan Ferrin made the save on the Cranbrook shooter.

In the Lutheran North game, ULS again fell behind early as the Mustangs scored about five minutes into the game.

"We've had trouble giving up early goals," Backhurst said. "And we just can't seem to score. It's so frustrating. I've never had a team that had so much trouble scoring. It puts so much extra pressure on the goalie and on the defense."

"If you take away the Clarencville game where we scored 11 goals and the Lutheran Northwest game where we scored four, we're averaging 1.4 goals for and 1.3 goals against."

North made it 2-0 25 minutes into the first half and that's the way it stayed. ULS put on some pressure in the second half and wound up outshooting the Mustangs 5-2 in the half, but the Knights couldn't score.

"We've played competitively against some good teams, but we haven't won those games," Backhurst said. "We have to find a way to beat that caliber of team."

The Knights, who are 8-6-2 overall, begin state tournament play Monday at Macomb Christian at 4:30 p.m.

DBC crews do well in London

The Detroit Boat Club junior crew won four of the five races it entered at the recent Head of the Thames Regatta in London Ontario.

It was the first race of the fall "head race" season for the DBC junior crew, which is made up mostly of students from Grosse Pointe North and Grosse Pointe South.

Justin Bosley won a gold medal in men's junior singles. His winning time of 20:15 was 30 seconds faster than the second-place time.

Teammate James Carrier also reached the finals in that event.

The DBC men's junior eight beat runner-up Orchard Lake St. Mary and four other crews to win a gold medal. The crew consisted of Trevor Dougherty at stroke, Bosley in the seven seat, Justin Kreiger at six, Alex Sperling five, Joe Zamaria four, Jon Rosberg three, Carrier two, Ken George in the bow and coxswain Chris McMillan.

Dougherty, Sperling, Kreiger, Rosberg and McMillan also competed as a junior men's four and finished second with a time of 19:52 over the approximately three-mile course.

The DBC junior women were equally successful. The women's four crew of Danielle Amato at stroke, Emily Richard seated three, Jennifer Reck at the two seat, Adriane Cline in the bow and coxswain Cori Cunningham, won the gold convincingly as they finished a minute and a half ahead of the runner-up London Rowing Club.

The women's junior eight of Amato, Richard, Reck, Cline, Stacy Atkinson, Jennifer Janowski, Kirsten Kulek, Katie Baxter and Cunningham also won a gold medal.

The DBC crews are coached by Dr. Richard Beil and Chris Costello.

There's nothing fishy about Knights' regional tennis title

One more week and "Woodchuck" can relax.

Woodchuck is a fish that University Laggett School's girls tennis team brought home from Traverse City when it opened the season at the Traverse City Invitational and it has traveled to each of the Knights' meets this year.

The fish's name is derived from the names of coaches Chuck Wright and Bob Wood.

"That fish has become our mascot," Wright said with a laugh after ULS posted an impressive victory in the Division IV regional hosted by the Knights.

"They've dropped it, they've forgotten it and somebody's had to get it, but it's been at every meet."

ULS finished with 27 points to 20 for runner-up Detroit Country Day, Bloomfield Hills Academy of the Sacred Heart was third with 16 points and also qualified for this weekend's state meet in Kalamazoo.

It was the 19th straight girls regional championship for ULS.

"This team is so close and that's remarkable because almost half the team is new," Wright said. "The girls really like each other and give one another a lot of support."

ULS won six of the seven flights at the regional and the only one who didn't win — Sejal Parikh at No. 4 singles — won an important match against Country Day.

"She won 6-1, 6-1, which was a big win for our team," Wright said. "It was a two-point swing."

Parikh lost 6-1, 6-4 in the finals to a player from Sacred Heart.

ULS breezed through the first three singles flights. Julie Megier posted a 6-0, 6-2 win in the finals at No. 1. Kim Wattrick blanked her finals opponent at No. 2 6-0, 6-0 and freshman Lauren Ealba won 6-0, 6-2 at third singles.

Allison Ricci and Nayla Kazzi won 6-0, 6-4 at first doubles, while the second doubles team of Melissa Berger and Amy Silverston came from a 5-4 deficit in the first set to win 7-5, 6-1. The third doubles team of Christina Oney and Katie Maurer posted a 6-0, 6-2 finals victory.

"We should have some good seedings at the state meet," Wright said. "Wattrick and Ealba should be one or two, the second doubles team is the defending state champion and our third doubles should get a first or second seed. And Julie and Sejal should be seeded

North's regional win is its second straight

Grosse Pointe North's girls tennis team has something to show for a lot of hard work and tough competition during the regular season.

"It's a nice reward for the girls," said coach Cathy Hackenberger after North took first place in the Division II regional at Warren-Mott. It was the second regional championship in a row for the Norsemen.

"It's tough playing in the (Macomb Area Conference) Red Division but the girls understand that it's going to help them and the team morale has been good," Hackenberger said.

North had five flight champions in the regional. The Norsemen finished with 24 points to 17 for runner-up Fraser. Romeo also qualified for the state meet with 16 points.

Freshman Kathryn Barlow

won at third singles with a 6-0, 6-0 victory against L'Anse Creuse and Alesia Watson also beat her opponent from L'Anse Creuse 6-0, 6-0.

The Norsemen swept the three doubles flights. Erica Volltrauer and Erin DiMaggio beat Romeo's No. 1 team 6-2, 6-2. Brett Crawford and Allison Wynne topped Fraser 6-3, 6-4 at No. 2 doubles and North's third doubles team of Kelly Dornbrook and Courtney McCaughrin breezed past Mott, 6-0, 6-0.

North's Emily Kingsley lost a tough three-set match to Fraser in the No. 2 singles final, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4. And at No. 1 singles, Katie Verb won her first match but dropped her second to Romeo 6-1, 6-1.

"Everybody just played fantastic," Hackenberger said. "They're really psyched up about going to states."

The state tournament begins Friday in Midland.

St. Ambrose revives its football program

A tradition in East Side athletics was resurrected recently as an updated Grosse Pointe St. Ambrose grade school football team posted convincing back-to-back victories to begin its first season since the early 1980s.

The Cavaliers opened on the road with a 25-0 win at Detroit Holy Redeemer, then routed Royal Oak Shrine 43-0 in their home opener.

"The coaches were very excited to be given the opportunity to revive a distinguished neighborhood youth sports program," said varsity head coach Lee Dyer. "And it certainly adds to the thrill for us to see how well our kids have played in their first two games."

Halfback Quentin Chappy led the St. Ambrose offense in the Holy Redeemer game, with 77 yards in nine carries and two touchdowns. He also caught a touchdown pass from quarterback Dan Hughes, who completed two passes for 44 yards.

Chris Walker gained 57 yards in four carries and Jason Gifford caught two passes for 15 yards. Converted lineman Lee Dyer Jr. scored an extra point on a run and backup quarterback Peter Hrtanek also completed a pass.

The defensive highlights included Walker's five tackles and a blocked punt. Dyer, Matthew Jenkins, Matthew Scott, Joseph Gonzales and Robert Denham made three tackles apiece. Denham also recovered a fumble and Gifford and Hrtanek each intercepted a pass.

Other strong defensive efforts came from John Slago, David Harmon, Rodrick Sanders, Joseph Rush, Kevin Wroblewski and Mark Nemeckay.

Chappy again led the way offensive against Shrine with three rushing touchdowns and 155 yards. Walker scored twice, while Gifford kicked three extra points and Devin Larkins ran for one. Coach Dyer praised the effort of his entire offensive line, especially center Tim Hoppenworth.

The Cavaliers' defense forced three turnovers. Barre Mackie intercepted a pass and ran it back 35 yards for a touchdown. Darron Bell had an interception and made five tackles, while Denham recovered a fumble and added seven tackles.

Walker made a big contribution on defense with a blocked punt and 10 tackles. Sean Measa added six tackles, including a sack, while Deran Thomas and Dyer made five tackles apiece.

Other good defensive efforts came from Ryan Galus, George Hogan, Earl Smith and Philippe Jackson.

Earlier, the St. Ambrose junior varsity beat Redford St. Agatha 13-7 as Anthony Howard and Daryl Clements scored touchdowns. Defensively, Michael Johnson had seven tackles, Patrick Williams had two sacks and Sean Chappy made a timely interception.

"Anyone who has roots in the area will remember the St. Ambrose high school football dynasty of a generation ago," said Cavaliers athletic director and head JV coach Stacy Howard.

"They won five city championships from the mid-1950s to the mid-1960s. But more important, that program gave a lot of kids in our area the opportunity to play the game and some of those kids went on to pretty successful college careers. We hope our new St. Ambrose grade school football program will provide a similar experience for our kids today."

The St. Ambrose varsity (seventh and eighth grade) football teams plays in Division C of the Detroit Catholic Youth Organization.

ULS wins a close one against Metro Conference rival Cosmos

By Chuck Klonke

University Liggett School's girls basketball team looked relieved when the final buzzer sounded last week and it was still ahead of Metro Conference rival Hamtramck.

"It feels good to win a game like this," said senior Holly Morrison after the Knights' 48-42 victory over the Cosmos. "We've lost a lot of close ones."

Coach John Bandos echoed those thoughts. "You have to win some close games to have confidence that you're going to win them," Bandos said. "This should help us."

ULS used a 12-0 run that bridged the third and fourth quarters to build a 41-32 lead. Hamtramck cut the margin to 44-40 on a three-point play by Aida Spahic with 1:07 remaining in the game, but the Knights answered with a basket by Meki Bracken and two free throws by Sherma Brown to seal the victory.

Moments earlier, ULS got a key bucket from Jacqulyn Schneider to go ahead 44-37.

"We got some real big baskets down the stretch and we made three out of four free throws in the fourth quarter," Bandos said.

rebounds, but the Cosmos missed a lot of inside shots.

"We knew from the last time we played them that 14 (Silas) and 33 (Spahic) were their best players so we played a combination defense, guarding them man-to-man and playing a zone against the others," Bandos said.

Bracken led ULS balanced scoring attack with 11 points. Bonner had 10, Sherma Brown eight and Schneider and Victoria Hills added six apiece. Morrison also had a team high seven rebounds, while Bonner and Brown pulled down five apiece.

Earlier, Lutheran North edged ULS 36-34. The Knights had a chance to send the game into overtime when they worked the ball into Bonner for the last shot, but it rolled around the rim a couple of times and fell out.

ULS led 24-22 after three quarters, but North went on a 6-0 run to take a lead it never relinquished. The Mustangs led by six points with 1:12 remaining, but the Knights battled back to within two.

Morrison led ULS with 14 points, while Bonner collected 10 along with six rebounds.

The split of Metro Conference games left North with a 4-4 conference record and a 4-7 overall mark.

South meets challenge against Stevenson

Grosse Pointe South's boys cross country team faced a couple of tough challenges last week before its Macomb Area Conference Red Division meet with Stevenson.

The Blue Devils had never had a losing season and they had never lost a dual meet to Stevenson. Both of those streaks were on the line when the two teams met last week.

Stevenson had the first two runners and the Titans' other runners were mixed among the South group as the race unfolded, but the Blue Devils grabbed third through seventh place to win the meet 25-29.

Fred Pope led South's five-man contingent, followed by Ben Visger, Nick Galac, Mike Alvin and Bill Crawford.

Also turning in good performances for the Blue Devils were Nick Carter, Pat Ryan, Nick Zerweck and Dave Majeski. The victory improved South's record to 3-3.

Last weekend, the Blue Devils finished fourth in the 19-team Saginaw Heritage Invitational.

Ben Visger, who was 21st overall, set the pace for South with a 17:20 clocking. He was followed by Galac (17:24), Alvin (17:39), Pope (17:45), Pat Dantzer (17:48), Crawford (18:03) and Zerweck (18:18) in the 137-man field.

Carter pushed himself back into the varsity pack with an 18:17 effort and won a medal in the junior varsity race. Also medaling in the JV race were Nate Visger, Ryan, Mike Chu and Bob Bossier.

Also running well for South at Saginaw were Ed Keogh, Mike Hoehn, Mark Carrier, Matt Jasin, Majeski, Chris Van Hof, Bob Danforth, Bob Hanrahan and Darren Mantyla.

North girls second at Ypsilanti

By Chuck Klonke

Grosse Pointe North's girls cross country team gave coach Scott Cooper a nice sendoff to the Chicago Marathon.

Cooper watched his team finish a strong second at the Ypsilanti Invitational last Saturday, then hopped in his car and drove to Chicago, where he finished his first marathon.

"I got a lot of support from the girls and I think my training helped them, too," Cooper said. "They saw what I was willing to do to achieve my goal and it's something they can relate to. It also helped me. There were a couple of things I've told them to do that I tried for the first time."

North won at Ypsilanti last year, but a newcomer to the meet, Liberty Union from Ohio, took first place with 89 points. North was second with 92.

"They had the first two individuals and that's pretty tough to beat, but we almost nosed out their fourth and fifth runners," Cooper said.

All five North runners who scored, also earned medals. The Norsemen were led by senior Betsy Huebner. She was followed by Emily Borushko, Tracy Secord, Katie Walton and Kathryn Verysier.

Andrea Verysier and Renee Bryzik rounded out North's top seven.

This was the first time this year Huebner had been North's top runner. "Now we've had a runner from all four classes lead us in a meet," Cooper said. "Betsy has had some health problems so she's been taking it slowly, but she ran an outstanding race on Saturday."

North also made a good showing in the junior varsity race, finishing sixth among 22 teams. Laura Secord, Julia Weinert and Aleene Hang each won medals for their performances in that race.

Earlier, North remained undefeated in Macomb Area Conference White Division meets with victories over Anchor Bay (15-50) and Utica (25-36).

This time it was junior

Tracy Secord's turn to lead the Norsemen. Other leaders have been freshman Laura Secord and Borushko, a sophomore.

Tracy Secord was followed by Borushko, Huebner, Aimee Miller, Kathryn Verysier, Bryzik and Walton.

"Tracy really ran well," Cooper said. "Last year it always looked like she was struggling, but this year she looks like she's having fun racing. That's good to see."

The only personal record came from Katie Horn in the junior varsity race.

South fights off Stallions' late rally

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South girls basketball coach Peggy Van Eckoute wasn't surprised that Sterling Heights made a strong second-half run against her team last week.

The thing that surprised her was when it happened.

"I knew Sterling Heights would give us a good run, but I thought they'd come out at the start of the second half," Van Eckoute said after the Blue Devils held on for a 53-42 victory in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division game. "Instead, they made their run in the fourth quarter and cut our lead from 15 points at the end of three periods, to five points with about three minutes left. But our kids played intelligent basketball, spread out the court and we made our free throws when they had to foul us."

South was in control for most of the game. The Blue Devils attacked the Stallions' zone with the outside shooting of Colleen Trybus and South led 17-9 at the end of the first quarter. Trybus had eight of her 15 points in the opening period.

The Blue Devils increased their lead to 29-16 at halftime and held a 38-23 advantage after three periods.

"We played some great team defense — probably our best all year," Van Eckoute said. "We set a goal before the game to hold Sterling Heights to 45 points and we held them to 42. I was really pleased with the effort."

While Trybus got the bulk of her 15 points early in the game, Beth Howson got a big chunk of her 15 late in the game — from the free throw line.

Howson connected on seven of nine free throws in the fourth quarter to help the Blue Devils maintain their lead.

In addition to her scoring, Howson had four rebounds, eight assists and nine steals. Trybus contributed four rebounds, two assists and two steals.

Scarlett O'Keefe had 10 rebounds and two steals, while Dinah Zebot contributed eight points, four rebounds and two steals.

Zebot also combined with sophomore Caitlin Carroll to hold Sterling Heights' leading scorer, Sara Crum, to 13 points.

Crum had 15 points but she hit two three-pointers," Van Eckoute said. "Dinah and Caitlin really did a good job of keeping her from hurting us inside."

The victory improved South's record to 6-5 overall and 2-4 in the MAC Red. The Blue Devils begin the second half of the league season at Chippewa Valley tonight, Oct. 15.

North runners get a chance to recuperate

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

A light week couldn't have come at a better time for Grosse Pointe North's boys cross country team.

With only one dual meet before the Macomb Area Conference White Division meet on Saturday, Oct. 24, coach Pat Wilson is going to have the opportunity to rest two of his top runners who have nagging injuries.

"We held Matt Mikula and Scott Serilla out of the Ypsilanti Invitational and they probably won't run against East Detroit," Wilson said. "They have minor injuries and hopefully, the rest will have them ready to go for the league meet and the regional (Oct. 31)."

Without Mikula and Serilla, North finished 10th in the 12-team Ypsilanti meet, but the Norsemen had some excellent performances.

Mark Chasteen earned a medal as he finished 25th and sophomore John Lucido continued his improvement as he was North's second runner.

"Mark picked off eight or nine runners in the last mile," Wilson said. "It was a tough field and a tough course. He really battled."

"John was our No. 1 runner for 2 1/2 miles. He's moved into an area where he can challenge people and he's not afraid to do that. He did well, considering this was his first invitational as a varsity runner."

Billy Farmer, Pat Kenny and Nate Mikula rounded out North's top five. Kenny was only 10 seconds off his best time, while Mikula was with five seconds of a personal record.

Trey Stewart and Brad Walling completed North's varsity group. The only PR came from Nate Parsh in the junior varsity race.

Earlier, North beat two MAC White foes Anchor Bay (25-36) and Utica (17-46) in a double dual meet.

Matt Mikula led the way for North, followed by Serilla, Lucido, Chasteen and Kenny.

ULS does well at Center Line

University Liggett School's cross country team ended September with a third-place finish and a trophy at the Macomb Area B-C-D championships at Center Line.

ULS' Shaka Bahadu was the individual champion in 16:59, winning by five seconds.

"I was tired. My legs wouldn't turn over," Bahadu said.

"My Friday class schedule doesn't include a lunch period so my only meal was breakfast. I just tried to run even with the other two runners. Luckily, I was able to maintain an even pace and then went all out the final 300 meters. I was totally wasted at the finish."

Jim Fortune was eighth in 18:43, while Blair Foust was 14th, John Durant 28th and John DeWald 33rd to round out the Knights' scoring.

ULS returned to Center Line the next week and finished 16th in the 24-team Schoensee Invitational.

"The Schoensee Invitational is our toughest competition outside of the state finals," said coach Philip Langford.

Bahadu was ninth with a personal record 16:28 and his time was faster than the Class A winner.

Fortune also ran a career-best 18:37 while finishing 59th in the 140-runner field.

"I was boxed at the mile," Fortune said. "I was stuck in the middle of seven runners and couldn't pass. I thought it had really slowed me down, but later coach Langford said that waiting for the race to thin out was a good move since I was already at a PR pace."

In the girls division, Lizzie Neilson shattered her freshman record by nearly a minute with a 22nd place finish. Neilson's time of 22:11 moved her into second place on the all-time list of ULS runners.

"Lizzie went out fast and still wasn't in the top 30 at the mile," Langford said. "She was running faster than ever before and still threw in surges trying to catch a Metro Conference rival ahead of her."

"Liz had her best week of the season. She logged her first 35-mile training week, finished in the top 10 at the Macomb B-C-D, then ended it with a great PR and another medal."

WHICH MAY EXPLAIN WHY SHE'S BEEN FORGOTTEN BY HER FAMILY.

The elderly have so much to offer. Their wisdom and knowledge are treasures that shouldn't be forgotten. And with your help they won't be.

The United Way supports 23 agencies in southeast Michigan that encourage the elderly to become more independent. Centers like Adult Well-Being Services offer dance and exercise classes, volunteer work and other social activities that can be very rewarding.

Last year, you helped fund those agencies with $2.2 million. This year, the need for help is even greater. For every dollar donated, 90 cents goes directly to people in need. So your gift not only offers help to the elderly, it's a reminder that someone somewhere out there cares. You.

NEW & USED CARS

Jim Riehl's Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep

NEW VEHICLE SELECTION IS THE GREATEST AT ROSEVILLE

Brand New Cars for 1999

Jim Riehl's Roseville-Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep has been the number one volume Chrysler-Plymouth dealer in the world for the past four years.

Chrysler LHS is Redesigned for '99
More elegant, more powerful. With an all new aluminum engine, lighter and more fuel efficient. With cab forward design, it's roomier with a better ride, better handling and more aerodynamic. And new for '99, heated seats and history. With all the amenities of the auto, but no sooner, with European styling and lush colors like cinnamon glaze metallic! Auto stick transmission is standard.

Jeep Grand Cherokee

Completely new for '99 in 17 tests against other sport utility vehicles, this Jeep received the overall best ranking. It's 4" longer than its predecessor. The spare tire has been moved from the side wall to under the floor road! The new Quadra Drive 4-wheel drive system is so advanced that if three wheels are off the ground, all the torque is directed toward the one wheel with traction. Dual climate control system in the Limited model will monitor body temperature and adapt.

2000 Neon

Completely redesigned for the year 2000, this brand new Neon will be available for sale in the spring of '99. Although we have very little information at this time, we are hoping to have a prototype on display at this open house, states Mike Riehl, general sales manager.

What Makes a Seal of Integrity Used Car?

What this means is that any customer can be assured that their car is in good working order at time of purchase. In addition, every car on Jim Riehl's lot has been totally reconditioned before it appears for sale.

The Seal of Integrity on a Jim Riehl's previously owned vehicle gives customers peace of mind that this vehicle meets a tough national Code of Standards. It has been fully inspected and comes with a limited warranty. Extended warranties may be purchased for any car on the lot. Cars with mechanical defects, collision damage, title discrepancies or questionable odometer readings never make an appearance on this lot.

Chrysler 300M New for '99
A step ahead into the past. A classic design bringing back a part of Chrysler board in the back.

This Jeep has a new, more efficient, quieter, smoother transmission. The new suspension allows it to ride more like a car, yet performing better off Joe Frontiere, sales representative, explains to Jennifer Hirth the 17 inspections covering 133 points this car has undergone to qualify for the Seal of Integrity, complete with 30-day warranty. What this means is that any customer can be assured that his/her car is in good working order at time of purchase. In addition, every car on Jim Riehl's lot has been totally reconditioned before it appears for sale.

Jim Riehl's Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep is one of a select group of dealers in this country who clears a comprehensive qualification process and signs a national Code of Standards in order to display the Seal of Integrity. "Nationwide, we are working to achieve higher standards in automotive sales and service," states Riehl.

"About 40% of previously owned cars on our lot qualify for the Seal of Integrity," explains Earl LeBeau, used car manager. "All others have been safety inspected and thoroughly reconditioned. Warranties may be purchased for any of them. We work hard to keep a prime selection of low mileage, late model cars on our lot."

Jim Riehl's Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep

FIRST DOMESTIC CAR DEALER IN THE COUNTRY TO UNDERGO PROCESS FOR ISO 9002 CERTIFICATION

Riehl's "Best Deal" Parameters Expand to Include Unmatched Customer Experience

Jim Riehl Welcomes this Opportunity to Increase the Value Offered to his Customers

For more than 30 years, Jim Riehl has sought ways to ensure that he was always giving his customers their "best deal". Besides low prices, Riehl sweetens the deal with courteous treatment, all the efficiencies, state-of-the-art diagnostic and repair technologies and respect for his customers.

Jim Riehl Sr.

When there is a program available, Riehl traditionally is the first to sign up. "If there is a way we can do anything better, we will," states Riehl, owner of ROSEVILLE Chrysler-Plymouth since 1967.

"The ISO (International Standards Organization) program examines 19 processes throughout the dealership's seven departments. It consists of international standards defining requirements for the implementation, structure and management of a Quality Assurance System. System is the key word - it's a quality system standard. We concentrate on those elements which describe basic business controls to ensure these quality requirements are met," explains Mick Burns, Hawtal Whiting consultant who worked with ROSEVILLE to assist them in preparing for certification.

Chrysler Corporation encouraged Riehl to be the first US dealer to undergo the certification process. ROSEVILLE was also the first Detroit dealer to be certified for Chrysler's Five Star quality program.

Number One and Growing!

Whenever Jim Riehl is asked to try out a new idea, he's always willing to get involved. That kind of an attitude is what keeps him the top dealer, not only in sales volume, but, of course, in taking care of his customers, as well. This is the fourth consecutive year Jim Riehl's ROSEVILLE Chrysler-Plymouth has achieved the #1 position in retail sales among all Chrysler-Plymouth dealers throughout the world, with 2449 vehicles sold in 1997!

"I see this ISO certification as a way to better organize the company. It will move us to the next level. We can become more effective and more efficient in servicing our customers. This type of activity consumes a lot of employee time initially, as people are working toward a higher goal. In time, it will make their jobs easier," states Riehl. "Our management team investigated the process. Unanimously, our managers said, 'Let's do it!'"

Three-phase certification process

"First we interview every employee to determine what their understanding is of the quality systems currently in place," explains Burns. Then I compile a comprehensive manual. If there are areas not being properly addressed, we make recommendations to ensure certification. That's about a five week process."

"Phase two is a self-auditing process. Teams from one department randomly audit another department to determine if the quality process is functioning properly. This phase allows for greater inter-company understanding of others' jobs. I came back after three weeks and again after six weeks to see how they were doing with the process."

Phase three is an audit by an independent firm. Staffing Burns reports that he has a 100% success rate. In England, where his company is based, they have worked with some 200 auto dealers, preparing them for certification. "We've been involved in process thinking for years."

Burns was excited to talk to Brian Ackerman, sales manager. "When I asked him what he was doing, he gave me all the right answers. And he had no idea what I would be asking. But the culture at ROSEVILLE is to think about what you are doing and to implement whatever is best for the customer."

Ackerman says, "We measure ourselves against the very highest in Riehl standards and continuously look for ways to improve. If you just keep doing what you're doing, you'll just keep getting the same results. And that's never good enough here."

"A program like this builds customer confidence," says Jim Simpson, general manager. "It also reduces customer complaints. When the company is running smoothly, we simply don't make mistakes. And employees gain the confidence that they are doing what is expected of them when everything is spelled out. It takes a lot of stress out of the work place. We have made a commitment to allow our internal audit teams the time they need to make this process work. This certification is not a destination, it's a process system; it's a journey."

"It's a customer service to them, but they don't notice anything, but truly enjoys the experience of buying a car or having it serviced from Jim Riehl's dealership. It's like going to Disney, where the experience is fun, the grounds are always clean and the entire system works so beautifully, that the system is never noticed! Customers only notice or complain when systems are not in place to take care of their needs," states Simpson.

"Auto dealerships grow not in small increments, but in large jumps. Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep is ready to take the next large step. ISO 9002 is the catalyst for that leap!" explains Simpson enthusiastically.

A great team committed to serving their customers is the secret to Roseville's success.

EXPANSION

PAGE 6 SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17

Jim Riehl's Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep

GRAND OPENING-ACCESSORIES BOUTIQUE & RECONDITIONING CENTER

ROSEVILLE CHRYSLER Completes Greatest Expansion in Dealership History

Two new departments continue to set the pace for Jim Riehl's leading edge dealership. When Riehl bought the Detroit Italian Bakery building to the north of the dealership in 1996, he acquired a 24,000 sq. ft. facility. Now, after considerable renovation, a brand new parts and accessory department is open for business, along with a reconditioning center.

Accessory Boutique

In the show room sits a Minivan and a Jeep, accessorized with everything from running boards and grill guards to mobile phone holders, stereo systems, CD changers, cargo trays and liners. "We anticipate wearables to be in hot demand, particularly for the Jeep and Prowler aficionados," states Brenda Rock, parts manager. Logoed shirts, sweaters, jackets, hats and caps are on display with Jeep, Prowler and Chrysler signatures. Flashlights, auto safety lights, ice scrapers, glass mugs, die-struck key chains, pins, even CD 12-pack cases bear the emblem of your choice.

Dike and ski carriers, running boards, grill guards, vent visors, roof mounted tire carriers, trailer hitches, luggage carriers, and the list goes on.

"We often sell as many model cars in one day as the new car department!" smiles Rock. "The car cookies have been a big hit too."

Riehl and Rock have been planning this new boutique for more than two years. "We have always been able to special order for our customers, but now we have space to stock popular items for cash and carry," says Rock. "Inventory is nearly ed for about 40% of our business. Now, in this new facility, customers can park right out front and we have a dedicated wholesale parts counter. We're making it easier for customers to do business here," states Rock.

"We also have a dedicated retail counter. After all, each market has a separate focus. Now we have specialized parts professionals dedicated to and knowledgeable about each segment of the market," states Rock. "Employee training has always been a strong focus at Roseville Chrysler. The management here sees to it that all employees are continuously trained and updated. The ISO quality process has helped us, as managers, know when more training needs to be done."

"We have been involved in piloting a new Global Parts Ordering Process with Chrysler. With more than 500,000 active parts in the system, we need to always be looking at ways to become more efficient in finding any part we may need. About 10 years ago the parts catalogues became computerized. Then Chrysler introduced a parts locator system. Now we're going to have access to parts inventories all over the world. And we can track shipment."

$1.25 million. We expect a 25% increase in our parts business the 1st year and we will easily double the accessory sales."

"The wholesale business has account-

Rock's enthusiasm for her job permeates the entire department.

Rick Albers, service technician discusses the part he needs with Keith Ward, parts advisor, at the internal parts counter. This new department now has a parts counter dedicated to the retail trade and one for wholesale customers as well, enabling all customers to get quicker and more efficient attention.

Now that's truly customer oriented service!

electrical repairs, change an air filter, install trim parts and after purchase accessories, alarms and remote keyless entries. I can do a complete diagnostic check," says Nelson. What he can't do is anything requiring a hoist, or ### Service Department of the Future may be "On Location"!

Rick Nelson, mobile service technician, comes to Rob Young's office at Gearke Mortgage, in response to a call that Young's CD player wasn't working. While there, with a hand held computer, Nelson gives the 97 Cirrus a quick diagnostic check as preventative maintenance. He'll order the new CD player and come back to install it.

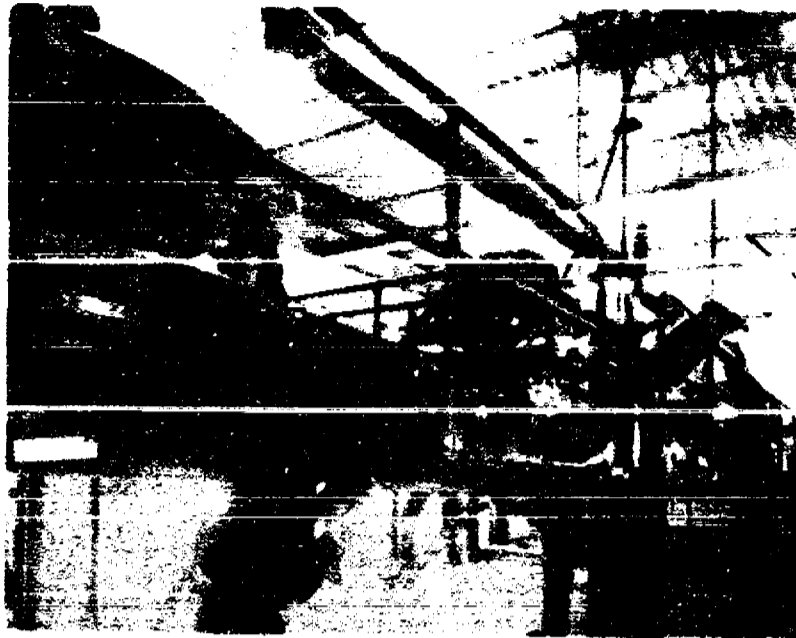

In a pilot program with Chrysler, Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep has equipped a van with a generator, diagnostic equipment and complete set of tools along with a wide variety of parts. "Some service and repairs are minor," says Rick Nelson, mobile service technician. "There's really no need to pack up the kids and come to the dealership. Or to leave your office. For a lot of warranty and recall items, even mechanical repairs and tune ups, we can now come to the customer's home or office. I can do light dealing with hazardous fluids, like transmission fluids. But, he can set up a service appointment for the customer to come into the shop. Nelson averages 6-8 service calls per day. He's set up to take cash, checks and credit cards on the road.

The test program in the area includes 5 mobile vans. Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep has one, Jim Riehl's Friendly Jeep has one. "Eventually we will have a fleet of mobile vans. We are always looking at new ways to take care of our customer," claims Riehl.

Service advisors (from left) Joe Orlando, Eric Wolletz and Neil Clem assist customers Beverly Belding and Jim Keelan and quick lube manager Beverly Mikulka. Service by appointment has streamlined the efficiency of this department, as has computerization for a paperless tracking of the status of every vehicle at any moment. Customer lounge and children's play area are available for customers who choose to wait while their car is repaired. A service shuttle is available to drop customers off at home or work. Rental cars are also available for the convenience of the customer. Early bird drop off allows customers to leave their car for service, even when the dealership is not open. Tom Binder, service manager, says, "We are making every effort to be as customer oriented as possible."

The Quick Lube guarantees an oil change and lube in 30 minutes or less. Here, Jayson Grys, Tom Williams, Tom Griffin, Mike Burnham, Todd Spratke and John Sharp change oil, check belts, hoses, top off all fluids, check tire pressure, rotate tires, check front brake pads, flush cooling systems, check wheel bearings, batteries, wheel balance and windshield wipers. And you thought it was just a quick oil change! Oil should be changed every 3 months or 3000 miles. Tires should be rotated every 6 months or 6000 miles. Proper maintenance greatly extends the life of every vehicle and prevents unnecessary problems.

Maurice (Mo) Fletcher cleans a minivan from the rental fleet while Salvatore Dalesandro scrubs the seats of a previously owned van, soon to appear for sale in Roseville's used car lot.

Reconditioning Center can make your car like new

Jim Riehl is always looking for additional ways to take good care of his customers. With the opportunity to expand, he carefully chose areas to benefit them.

A customer can now bring his/her car to Roseville's reconditioning center for a thorough cleaning inside and out. Vito Bommarito, manager, recommends reconditioning twice a year to keep your car looking good. Dirt grinds in and wears out both fabric and leather seats. Nicks and scratches will rust in time. A clean car that has been well maintained always brings bigger trade in dollars.

A complete reconditioning includes interior shampoo of the carpet, floor mats, door panels and seats, cleaning window and door jams, dashboard, buffing and waxing the exterior, cleaning rims and treating tires. Additional services include engine and trunk cleaning, convertible top restoration and touch-up painting for nicks and scratches. "If you are like many of our customers, food and beverage spills are not uncommon. We can remove odors as well as stains," explains Bommarito. "ISO certification now guarantees our customer that nothing will be missed. It makes us more accountable."

One aspect of the ISO 9002 certification requires that all measuring tools and equipment be calibrated to manufacturers' specifications and checked on a continuing basis. Vince Jugowicz, a 10-year certified master technician, is a member of Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep's internal audit team. It is the commitment of such dedicated employees, like Vince, that makes this quality system work. He ranks among the top 75 technicians in the country. Jugowicz takes pride in his work and in being part of a team that really cares and strives to be the best. When Jim Riehl bought Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep, he vowed to make it the best dealership in the country.

Technicians can service up to 200 cars per day in 60 service bays. From left, technician Jayson Cempau checks the air conditioning system. Master repair technician Eric Chanura repairs a convertible top and technician Kevin Kussel installs new front struts. Each uses state-of-the-art equipment and calibrated tools. The entire service department is tied together by a computer network which allows any service employee to access the vehicle history of the car he is working on. It also has the capability to connect to Chrysler's mainframe computer via satellite to aid in complicated diagnoses.

JIM RIEHL'S COLLISION CENTER JOINS THE LASER AGE

Electronic Measuring System Guarantees Roseville's Position as Michigan's Hi-Tech Leader

Insurance Companies appreciate the state-of-the-art equipment and highly trained professionals at Jim Riehl's Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep. They know when a customer comes to this dealership for repair, it will be done correctly "the first time."

"We have the most high-tech body shop in Michigan," states Paul Roehrig, collision center manager. "And we can fix any make or model domestic or import. Once you bring your car here, we take all the responsibility for working with your insurance company. We will communicate with them regarding any additional costs for hidden damage revealed during repair. Your insurance carrier generally allows you to choose the collision repair facility, regardless of how far your vehicle needs to be towed," states Roehrig. "And we have 24-hour towing available - just call 610 774-6800."

When Roseville RV moved to Chesterfield Twp. a few years ago, we were able to expand our capabilities here to include reconstruction of vehicles damaged through vandalism or theft. We now replace broken steering columns, torn dashboards, vandalized interiors, stolen radios and other components. Customers and insurance companies appreciate the professional manner we use to handle this stressful experience.

Replacement Transportation

For the customer's convenience, a fleet of 60 rental vehicles is maintained. Rosalind Davidson, rental consultant, says the new cars have just been added to the fleet, due to ever increasing volume. "With the expansion of the service department and body shop, we continue to have more customers who need to rent. About 25% of our rentals are to customers who do not have a car in service or the body shop. People like to take a Jeep, convertible or minivan for the weekend. Grand Voyagers were in demand to park up the kids and take them off to college," explains Davidson. The fleet is well stocked with Neons, Breezes, Sebring convertibles, Cirrus', Voyagers, Grand Voyagers, Jeep Cherokees and Jeep Grand Cherokees.

"As a part of the ISO quality system, we have streamlined the process for pick up and drop off. We check to validate a customer's driver's license and verify insurance. Routine vehicle inspection checks for nicks, scratches, dents, mileage and gas levels both before and after the rental. We also check to make sure the spare tire is in place. We pride ourselves because our cars do not break down," smiles Davidson.

Our renters are given an 800 number for Chrysler's roadside assistance to call if there is ever a problem. None of our customers has ever had to use it, but it's there! And it's good nationwide!" exclaims Davidson.

Pat Farrell, painter, is adequately protected as he sprays a car in one of two of the state-of-the-art down draft paint booths at Jim Riehl's Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep. Dave Ehrler tapes off a car after it has been prepared for painting while Carl Strunk buffs a bumper. The completely computerized paint lab assures a perfect match every time.

Randy Lewalski, unibody technician, straightens the frame on a minivan, which incurred serious damage through collision, utilizing the new Genesis 2 electronic measuring system. Rotating lasers project light toward reflective targets suspended from numerous vehicle's reference points. Genesis measures all targeted reference points simultaneously resulting in unmatched savings in labor time. The computer then processes the information, telling Lewalski exactly how many millimeters to pull the frame to restore it to original manufacture specifications.

JIM RIEHL ENCOURAGES COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT AT ROSEVILLE CPJ

Riehl Sets the Example

Jim Riehl firmly believes in giving back to his community. He was born and raised on the east side of Detroit and is now a resident of St. Clair Shores.

For the past three years he has served as Chairman of the Gratiot Avenue Improvement Association. Each June, a volunteer committee cleans both sides of Gratiot between 10 and 11 Mile Roads. Riehl has spearheaded the effort to install curbs, grass and sprinklers for this portion of Roseville.

Concerned with improving the local business climate, he has served on the Board of Directors of the Metro East Chamber of Commerce for many years.

A customer encouraged Riehl to become involved with establishing a Senior Barter Bank which began in Fraser and now serves many communities in Macomb county. In this program seniors swap services through a time bank.

Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep is perennially a Gold Award recipient of the United Foundation. One of the requirements to receive this honor is 100% participation of all employees. This is one of many ways Riehl encourages his employees to return something to the community.

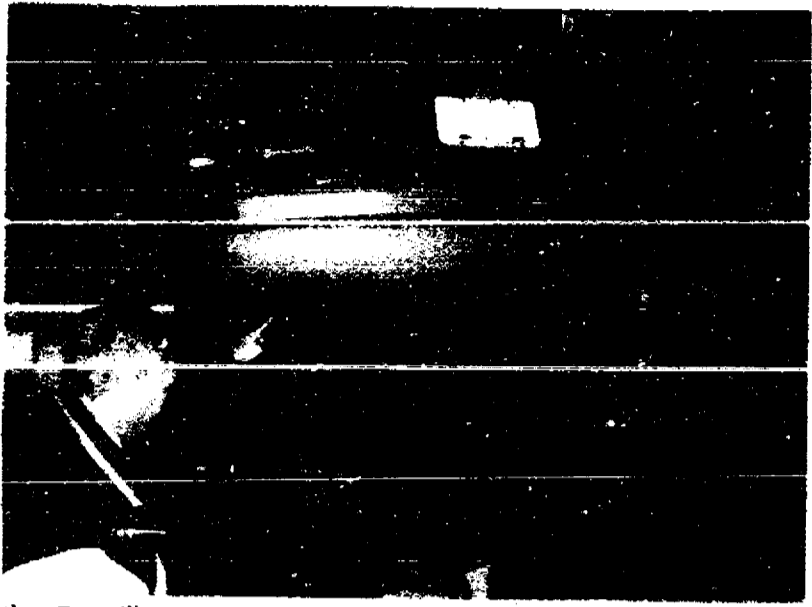

Riehl is actively involved in fund raising for many groups such as the Capuchan Soup Kitchen, St. John Hospital, Leader Dogs for the Blind and the Boy Scouts.

Mike Riehl is an active fund raiser for the Michigan Cancer Foundation and several other charities.

Michigan Special Olympics also benefits through the fund raising efforts of Jim Simpson, general manager. Jim rides with Wertz Warriors. The Warriors ride snowmobiles nearly 1000 miles every year collecting funds in many northern Michigan communities. These funds are added to the monies raised locally by the nearly 100 member group. The Warriors have raised over $4 million, all of which goes to support the Michigan Special Olympics Winter Program.

Jim Riehl was impressed with Crime Stoppers and the results they were getting. Since 1992, he has donated three Plymouth minivans to be used in Roseville and the surrounding communities.

The Roseville DARE program has also benefitted from Riehl's generosity. DARE stands for Drug Abuse Resistance Education. In the 17-week drug awareness program, a certified police officer goes into sixth grade classrooms to help students with peer pressure relating to experimenting with drugs and violence. The program helps to build self esteem in young people. Riehl has donated a Neon to the Roseville program and also sponsors the DARE program at Dort Elementary School.

Roseville Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep is also involved in a School to Work program with the Roseville Schools. The six month program each year gives sixth grade students insight into what is expected of them in the work environment. They write resumes, do mock job interviews, tour the dealership and interview employees. The program is designed to prepare them to enter the work force even during summer vacations.

Roseville is always looking for quality employees, those who take exceeding customers' expectations seriously. They employ high school co-op students and are involved in co-op programs with Macomb Community College, Ferris State University, Northwood University and Kettering University, formerly GMI. "We like to work with young people in the schools and the community," states Jim Simpson, general manager. "If we gain their respect today, they could be good employees tomorrow."
