Bud's Clydesdales hitch to Village's Santa Parade

By Brad Lindberg

Staff Writer

Cindy Melican was looking for something new — and found it: the Budweiser Clydesdales.

Next month, 16,000 pounds of the world's most famous team of draft horses will clop down Kercheval as the crown jewel in the Grosse Pointe Santa Claus parade.

Melican, in her second year as parade director, said, "The presence of the Budweiser Clydesdales majestically trotting along the parade route is truly an historic moment for the Grosse Pointe Santa Claus parade."

The horses are part of Melican's effort to arrange something special for the parade's 25th anniversary.

She's also booked a reindeer.

The Budweiser Clydesdales are bay geldings that stand six feet at the shoulder. They weigh 2,000 pounds apiece and pull a red, white and debaker beer wagon.

Based in St. Louis, Budweiser has five teams of eight-horse hitches that receive thousands of parade invitations each year.

The team, Grosse Pointe appearance with an appearance at the Detroit Thanksgiving parade.

The Grosse Pointe Santa Parade, presented by the Grosse Pointe Village Association, will step off on Friday, Nov. 24, at 10:30 a.m.

On a mission for Christ

What do pumpkins have to do with Honduras and the Mississippi River and Navajo Land?

A great deal if you're a member of the River Hills school or LITES (middle school) youth groups at Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

To offset the costs of their mission trips, the youth groups are holding a pumpkin sale in the backyard of Christ Church Grosse Pointe. The Pumpkin Patch and Cider House will be open Oct. 14 and 15 to buyers of pre-sale vouchers, each good for $10 off purchases of pumpkins and fall decorations. The Pumpkin Patch will roll out its goods to the public Oct. 21-30.

The Pumpkin Patch will be open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day with a staff of volunteers to help select, tote and even deliver pumpkins. Shoppers can have their pumpkins whimsically decorated while picking out harvest decorations, sipping hot cider or munching on Halloween cookies.

This past year, 13 River youths and three adults volunteered to bring their pumpkins to victims of Hurricane Mitch. Six LITES students and two advisers went to Honduras for 10 days to help rebuild houses.

Construction projects for elderly and homebound persons.

"Both trips were incredible experiences for the youth and adults involved, but there was a sense that we should be doing more to help ourselves get there," said Alan Akridge, director of youth and young adult ministries at Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

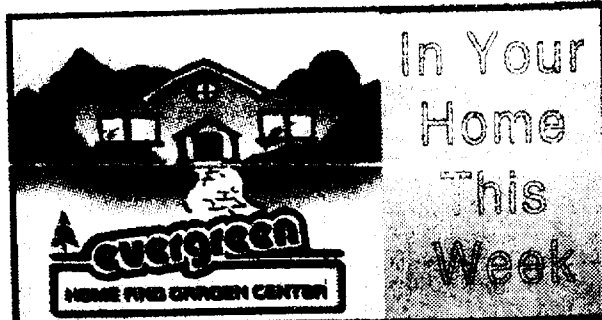

"A successful pumpkin sale will allow our young people and adult volunteers to raise their own funding for these types of mission trips."

To obtain pumpkins for the limited-access Oct. 14-15 pre-sale, call (313) 885-4641.

Any leftover pumpkins and decorations will be donated to area food pantries and non-profit organizations.

Christ Church Grosse Pointe River member Ann Wetzel presents a pumpkin decorated with the Grosse Pointe Farms seal to Farms mayor Edward Gaffney while inviting him to visit the Pumpkin Patch.

Christ Church Grosse Pointe Oct. 21-30. The pumpkin sale will raise funds for youth group mission trips.

Meningitis cases, deaths alarm parents

By Bonnie Caprara

and Ann L. Fouty

Staff Writers

While the number of cases of meningitis in the metro Detroit area is not out of the ordinary, the number of deaths is — including one of a Lakeview middle school student in St. Clair Shores.

Such a panic had jammed a temporary meningitis hotline at St. John Hospital and Medical Center last weekend.

"We set it up as a temporary public service because of the volume of calls and inquiries we were getting at the hospital and because there were no public agencies to offer information over the three-day weekend," said St. John spokesperson Greg Jakub.

Volunteer physicians and nurses answered over 1,700 phone calls between Friday, Oct. 6 and Monday, Oct. 9.

"What we're trying to do is calm the public and give them some good information," said St. John infectious control specialist Dorine Berril-Cass.

In the Grosse Pointes, there has only been one reported case of viral meningitis. The victim, a Richard Elementary School first-grader, is now well and back at school.

Bon Secours Hospital has one patient in critical care, a 12-week-old boy from Harrison Township, with bacterial meningitis.

Berril-Cass said parents should be alert to a high fever over 102 degrees Fahrenheit as well as a stiff neck, frequent vomiting, confusion, disorientation, lethargy, sensitivity to light and rash.

"If these signs are present, parents need to bring their children to the doctor. Like most diseases, the earlier you can diagnose meningitis, the better your chances are for a good outcome," said pediatrician Peter Francis, M.D.

Meningitis, an infection of the fluid surrounding the spinal cord and brain, can be a deadly disease.

The bacterial meningitis that killed 11-year-old Emily Greco last week stems from the bacteria streptococcus pneumoniae, Francis said.

This is a very common, well known bacteria which has always been around, he said.

The bacteria is transmitted from person to person via respiratory secretion, including sneezing, coughing, nasal congestion, or sharing toys or eating utensils. It is not spread by casual contact or pets, Francis said.

The disease is also traceable to those sharing close living quarters, such as college dorms and the armed forces. The Army does vaccinate its men and women. Doctors are now recommending students get the shot before going to college.

The inoculation protects against three-quarters of the strains of meningitis, Francis said.

Francis recommended that parents be vigilant with their children and urges parents to explain about not sharing lunches, snacks, washing their hands and avoiding friends who are sick.

Those children most at risk for streptococcus pneumoniae meningitis are between the ages of 6 months and 2 years.

Fortunately, there is a new vaccine, Prevnar, which has been recommended for all infants at two, four, six and 15 months of age. This has only been available since spring.

Certain children older than two years of age may have risk factors and also benefit from the vaccine. All parents should discuss this with their doctors during the annual visit.

Mack Avenue takes on new look

The widening of Mack Avenue and its conversion into a two-lane super highway through Grosse Pointe Farms and a portion of the Woods has been completed. The project took most of the summer. Traffic conditions have improved immeasurably over this busy thoroughfare. The appearance of the section greatly enhances this fastest-growing area of the Pointes. ■ Opponents of night football games at Grosse Pointe North High School say they've found school board documents that will keep the Norsemen in the dark.

In minutes to a school board meeting that school officials said they overlooked, residents opposed to lights around the football field said the school district agreed to comply with Woods zoning ordinances that, in effect, made it impossible to erect light towers.

■ Responding to complaints of slow work, officials of a construction company hired to separate sewers in Grosse Pointe Park have pledged to put more men on the job.

The complaints have centered on the 600 block of Westchester. A resident of the block, who said he said 25 years experience as a mechanical contractor, has called the lack of progress a "catastrophe."

Road work costs go up

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

A road repaving project in Grosse Pointe Woods uncovered nearly $15,000 in unexpected repairs.

The charge represents the discovery last month of deteriorating pavement exposed during scheduled repaving of sections of Fairway and Hampton streets. The extra work has been completed.

"The extent of the work could not be determined until the old asphalt was milled, exposing additional failed concrete base and a very wet subgrade," said William Westrick of the Woods engineering consulting firm, Anderson, Eckstein and Westrick of Shelby Township. Westrick made his statement in a report to Woods officials.

The extra road repairs included replacing 265-square-yards of concrete eight inches thick. Construction crews also laid more than 560 feet of four-inch diameter underdrain.

"The dominant reason for the (cost) overrun," said Westrick, "is the additional concrete patching and underdrain required to complete this work in a satisfactory manner."

Democratic voters, independents back and forth on debate

By Patrick Wright
Special Writer

The mood was festive and supportive as the Democrats met at Macomb County Community College's Center Campus to watch the presidential debates Tuesday night, Oct. 3.

A crowd of about 50 gathered in a room in the Student Center to eat pizza and support their candidate for president, Al Gore. Afterward, they expressed their delight over their candidate's performance.

"I think it was outstanding," said former Michigan Gov. Jim Blanchard.

"I thought Gore was more familiar with the issues," said Janet Blanchard. "I mean he had the facts, the statistics and also seems to have a greater passion."

"I think he did an excellent job in representing the people, the common, everyday working people," said Dr. Donald Amboyer.

Amboyer had two distinct connections to this debate.

He was one of the organizers of this meeting in Macomb, one of three in the metro Detroit area. The other connection was his wife, Ann. She was one of the people chosen to be on Vice President Gore's debate preparation team, a group of 12 Americans selected to help the vice president get his message across to American citizens.

"When he was in our home he really expressed himself from the heart and that is what I saw up on the screen," Dr. Amboyer continued. "It wasn't like he was holding a command performance or anything. It was just him and my wife and I talking about all the issues he brought up here."

"I thought Gore seemed very focused on the issues and very focused on the specifics of those issues," stated Dana Bykowski. Bykowski is the press secretary for Michigan Victory 2000, a Democratic organization working to elect Gore, and another organizer of this event in Macomb. "He touched on the issues that are important to the American people. They want tax cuts; they want clean environmental standards; they want a prescription drug plan that works for all Americans, and they want seniors to be able to buy food and drugs and not one or the other."

Yet, some people in attendance saw the debate a bit differently.

"I think it was pretty even quite frankly," said independent voter Norm Schlafmann. "Bush didn't look as nervous as I expected. Although in most cases I thought Gore was pretty dominant. Overall I thought it was a good debate."

"I was surprised at how well Gov. Bush did against the vice president," said viewer Bob Klann.

Klann, like Schlafmann, was one of the few independent voters in the audience who was hoping that the debates would shape their choice. "I came away from it with the impression that if I heard that '1 percent of Americans' one more time or if I heard 'lock box' one more time, I was going to be sick to my stomach. But the news media played Gore up to be a very accomplished debater, and I honestly didn't think he came across as well as they made him out to be."

Even from those who support the vice president there was some room for improvement.

"I think he should have talked about how great the economy is sooner than an hour and 15 minutes into the debate," said Janet Blanchard. "That is what impresses everyone. He should emphasize the economy and how many jobs have been created in the past eight years."

"He sometimes loses people because he is so detail-oriented that sometimes people get lost in all the numbers," added Bykowski. "People get lost in what he is trying to say."

"My guess is that he was too dominant," critiqued Jim Blanchard. "The issues favor Gore and the debate tonight was on issues that favored Democrats like education and social security. Gore has to soften himself a little because the issues will take care of themselves."

Despite the fact that more than half left before the first hour was over, those who stayed enjoyed this true manifestation of democracy.

"I always try to listen to the debates and see what each other has to offer," said Democrat Kofi Boateng. "Behind the candidates you know, there are campaign folks who can put spin on issues and people, but it is good to hear the candidates themselves and see how they respond to things."

Farms business woman gets $500 legacy out of the blue

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Betsy Breckels had never met or heard of Jane Cadwell Lott, so you can imagine her surprise when she was contacted by representatives from the Lott estate with news that Mrs. Lott had left her $500.

Breckels has a massage therapy practice on the Hill office in Grosse Pointe Farms.

"I was notified 'on Thursday, Sept. 28, that 'Bob the delivery man wants to drop something off on Friday before 10:30 a.m.," said Breckels. "I was surprised to find him, Bob Lott, at my office the next day with flowers and balloons and a $500 check. He apparently called the TV news so there was a crew there as well."

Breckels has been on the Hill for over a year and been in business in the Pointes for 15 years. She said she had the feeling that Mrs. Lott was a "free spirit" and enjoyed thinking about her legacy.

The way Breckels was picked was simple. She and another inheritor were picked from the Detroit telephone book. According to the information sheet she received from the estate, "Jane Cadwell Lott (1915-2000) nee Majorie Jane Cadwell, passed away on April 29, 2000. As the North American Champion and world record holder in several breast stroke events, Jane was named to the 1932 United States Olympic women's swimming team."

"She was a 1936 graduate of Connecticut College. Tom Lott, an attorney in Detroit, was married to Jane for 62 years, and survives her. Her husband and son Antone lived with her in Grosse Pointe and later moved to Russell Island off of Algonac in the St. Clair River."

"She bequests in her will that two people shall received money just because they were in the Detroit phone book. You are one of those people. She wishes you well."

What's on that sheet is all Breckels knows about her benefactor. As to what she's going to do with the money, she said she's going to spend it "on something I wouldn't normally buy for myself."

"I don't know what I'm going to do with all of it," Breckels said. "Something fun. My husband Clem Fortuna and my son Jeffree are excited. I told my friends the story and said 'this kind of thing never happens to me.' But when you think about it, this kind of thing doesn't really happen to anyone. My friends are excited just to know someone it happened to."

Pointer at the wheel with an automotive bestseller

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Brad Stertz was in his office at The Detroit News on the morning of April 12, 1995, expecting to release a story about the unveiling of Chrysler's redesigned minivan at the New York Auto Show. Big, but expected, news.

Instead of Chrysler chairman Bob Eaton stealing the show with the new vehicle amid much fanfare, top Chrysler spokesperson Arthur "Bud" Liebler made a much different announcement — a prepared, dry and somber press release. Tracinda Corporation, which owned 10 percent of Chrysler's stock and was led by billionaire casino tycoon Kirk Kerkorian, planned on purchasing the remaining shares of the company's stock.

"All hell broke loose," said Stertz, recalling the events of that day as he saw them from the perspective of the automotive editor at that time at the News. "My partner, Bill (Vlasic), was at the scene and everyone was pretty shocked. It was a pretty dramatic moment for Detroit."

For the next four years, that scripted statement would chart a much different course in the way Stertz and News reporter Vlasic would cover the evolution of a company hailed as corporate Detroit's comeback kid through Kerkorian's attempted coup to a becoming secondary partner in a merger-turned-takeover by Germany's top automaker, Daimler-Benz.

After Kerkorian's war cry,

POINTER OF INTEREST

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Brad Stertz has been hitting the high road with a book co-authored with Detroit News staff writer, Bill Vlasic, "Taken for a Ride: How Daimler-Benz Drove off with Chrysler."

Stertz was called to a more active reporting duty. Stertz was no stranger to Chrysler. He had covered the company exclusively since the late 1980s as a Wall Street Journal correspondent before coming on board the News in 1993.

For the next three years, Stertz and Vlasic kept a vigilant watch on the No. 3 automaker — tracking the value of Kerkorian's stock on a daily basis to publishing memos leaked by a Chrysler insider on top-secret talks with Daimler-Benz top brass to heralding the "merger of equals" on Nov. 17, 1998, which balance was tipped to the German side within weeks.

It wasn't until February 1999 when Stertz and Vlasic took a 10-month leave of absence from the News when they began to get the real story while working on their book, "Taken for a Ride: How Daimler-Benz Drove off with Chrysler."

"The idea of a book seemed to make a lot of sense," said Stertz. "There were a lot of interesting characters involved and it was about two companies that a lot of Americans could identify with."

The book reads like a fly-on-the-wall account of not only the events leading to the current day DaimlerChrysler, but also what went on in the minds of the men who engineered the deal.

"A good bit of it was from talking to participants who were at different events," said Stertz. "We'd talk to two or three people and heard the same story and were able to reconstruct the events. We were pretty gratified that no one has come out and said this is all completely off-base and never really happened. Nobody's challenged the facts of the narrative."

"We had quite a bit of good access. It was surprising. Sometimes you would think that people wouldn't want to talk about some of these things, especially on the Chrysler side. There were so many people who spent so much of their lives reviving this company at least one time and there was a lot of pride in that so when it got sold out from underneath them, there were a lot of people who were unhappy. On the German side, it was like talking about a big conquest so they were pretty forthcoming in providing information, too."

What Stertz and Vlasic didn't know until 1999 was that Mercedes-Benz CEO Helmut Werner had contacted Chrysler's Eaton only days after Kerkorian made his intentions public with a vague offer of assistance.

"It was something we heard and suspected, but we knew something was going on," said Stertz.

Even for an editor and reporter who is used to daily deadlines and who was already familiar with the story, Stertz said the 10 months he and Vlasic spent on the 348-page book felt pretty compressed.

"When we started out, this was being billed as the greatest, most logical merger in world history," said Stertz. "But things kept changing. The stock prices dropped dramatically throughout. It became more and more apparent that the Germans prevailed. It was hard to report and keep up with the basic details."

Even more challenging was that Stertz was living in Washington, D.C., and Vlasic in Birmingham.

"We did it over a lot of phone calls and over a lot of e-mail," Stertz explained.

After completion of the book in January 1999, Stertz moved from Washington where he was the News' Washington bureau chief back to the News' downtown Detroit office where he is now assistant managing editor of local national news. His wife, Bridget Janson, and his stepchildren, Maureen and Patrick Mecke, followed back to Grosse Pointe Farms in June at the end of the school year. Life is not quite yet back to a cruise control setting.

Since its July release, "Taken for a Ride" has been a bestseller. With that success, the book has taken Stertz on a ride through countless interviews, book signings and talks.

Not surprisingly, the book has also thrust Stertz and Vlasic into high gear onto the lecture circuit to business schools at Wayne State University, Michigan State University and Harvard University to give students a fast-track look at how two companies continue to merge identities, cultures and corporations.

And the story continues to unfold.

Brad Stertz and Bill Vlasic will bring their road show to the Central Library on Wednesday, Oct. 18, at 7:30 p.m. for a book talk and signing. The program is free, but reservations are required and can be made by calling (313) 343-2074.

4 excellent nominees top national ticket

Having listened to the first presidential debate and the one and only vice-presidential debate, I have come to a couple of conclusions, both of which are subject to change as you will find in the following comments.

First, and most important, is the fact that the first two debates convinced me that the United States will be in excellent hands regardless of which party wins the presidential election.

My view is that the addition of the GOP vice-presidential nominee to the ticket has strengthened Gov. George Bush's chances to win the presidency.

Yet, I confess that I still favor Vice President Al Gore for the top job, but that decision is subject to change as a consequence of the next two presidential debates.

Gore's presentation and general attitude were superior to those of Bush, who seemed unsure of his presentations at various points in his first debate.

In fact, it was no surprise to me that Bush failed to convince his listeners that he was fully prepared to be president.

However, after the strong performance of his running mate in the first and only vice-presidential debate, it would be unfair to call the contest for the presidency over at this early stage.

Opinion

If the Republicans win the presidency and control of Congress, which would appear likely, my view is that the GOP leaders would tend to limit government spending, but not kill all the good proposals recommended by Democrats.

The Democrats, at the same time, are unlikely to accomplish all of the new aims that the vice president proposes, especially since the economy seems to be slowing down.

In fact, even if the money comes in as expected, there are claims that go well beyond the funds that the two presidential candidates have called for.

The Congressional Budget Office

reported just last week that "despite the substantial increase in the projected surplus in the next decade, the situation in subsequent decades would deteriorate rapidly."

The CBO added that "assuming that the portion of the surplus generated by Social Security is used to reduce the national debt, Washington would run a surplus until about 2020 but then would fall back into deficit financing."

That is conservative talk the GOP people like to hear, but the rest of us must pay attention to it, too, as we vote for the presidency.

In fact, it is unlikely that the economic surge of the last few years will long continue if the Congressional Budget Office is close to correct in its forecast.

Unpleasant as that view may be to the Democrats especially, and, in fact, to all of us as citizens in this great democracy, all of us have the responsibility to inform ourselves as well as possible before we vote.

Offering from the loft

Corporate spouses' roles

She has been relating tales from the corporate wives' circuit for years, and I believe her when she tells me she truly tries to be and do what is expected of her at various business functions.

I can't help it; I howl at some of the stories she tells, and before I get jumped on because it sounds stereotypical, she and I are the first to admit this could just as easily be the role some husbands play while joining their executive wives. Like it or not, these games are a very real part of corporate life.

During the course of the year, my friend will visit assorted gatherings for charity events, plant openings, retirement parties, several holiday functions and various board and corporate gatherings both national and international. These may require various sport and other skills, such as golf and bridge.

There was also a benefit that turned out to be a surprise walkathon that had not been on the agenda and, therefore, appropriate footwear was 2000 miles away at home in the closet.

Language is often, if not an outright barrier, certainly a sizable obstacle. This is especially true during those three-hour lunches with the other wives where you are the only one who doesn't speak the language. They might be criticizing your hair, clothes or figure, but you continue to smile and laugh when they do, praying that this mirth isn't at your expense.

Above all one must be a good sport. This is particularly difficult when another woman asks you to dance. This can be a bit awkward, but one must not offend, especially when you know she just won the local dance contest.

Some advice my friend suggested I pass along to up-and-coming young spouses who have this ahead of them would include the following.

Approach your meals with great caution, especially when you can't recognize the fare. On one occasion she attempted to cut a mysterious substance which turned out to be an entire delicate bird on a nest of scorched starch and she shot the entire vertebrate across the table and still its head remained intact.

It isn't unusual to discover color-coordinated themes at various venues. On one such occasion, she encountered a red buffet table which included everything from rare beef to marinara sauces, beets, red Jello molds and topped off with strawberry ice cream. Another hall offered an entire white repast, including fish, chicken, potatoes, rice, cauliflower, cottage cheese and coleslaw. White on white cake with vanilla ice cream completed the theme.

She warns that one be prepared for every secretary to know your name and use it often. However, don't waste your time trying to remember each name, because chances are they will be transferred or terminated by next year. Be a good listener, but be careful not to blow it on the personal stuff, like how are the kids when they don't have children. Always play it safe.

One of the sad-but-true tales she told concerned the woman who found out her husband was being naughty and decided to pay him back by spending her days as a QVC addict, ordering countless items and charging them to his account. Too often you learn more than you want about things that should remain private. Pretend not to hear.

Another piece of advice is to always carry a book. A great deal of time will be spent walking or waiting and waiting. My friend isn't stupid. She has spent countless hours touring cities and museums. However, she is human and her tootsies do get tired.

It's also hard to shop on tired feet when you know you will have to stand at a party for several hours that night and be ready to meet the girls for golf bright and early the next morning. Even if you don't golf, you can ride along in the cart and keep score with the girls.

Now let's talk about clothes. This becomes a diplomatic issue. One wants to appear smart, tasteful, display respect rather than decollete; however, never outshine your hosts.

Some homework is necessary here. Learn the customs of the country and which expect flowers and which small, appropriate gifts. Body language reads differently in different countries, so be cautious with hand gestures and behave with decorum. Less is best.

Never take the venue for assurance of a swell time. There have been many times when the location sounds glamorous, but there is no time scheduled for beach or idle nonsense. Rather, time is spent playing cruise director and tour guide.

Last but not least, always be adorable, but not so adorable that you have perennial house guests. Promise a lunch, real soon, and to enjoy the good parts.

One has marvelous opportunities to see other lands and explore and meet fascinating people along the journey. Many solid friendships have resulted through business liaisons and my friend certainly doesn't wish to discount the positive side while recognizing the humorous angle.

Health-care cure needed

Health care — i.e. the high cost of — should be the single most important issue discussed at all levels this election campaign season. But right from the outset let's make it clear that the quality of health care is not the issue here. The United States is second to none in quality of health care available, and our own backyard boasts some of the best doctors, nurses, support staff and facilities anywhere. In fact, we have the best health care money can buy. If you've had the misfortune of spending any time in the hospital lately, you know just how tremendously expensive health care is. Thank God we have health insurance, you say? You bet. But what about those who don't have health coverage? You better believe they are not running to the doctor with every ailment, every hangnail, every cough or sore throat. They are forced to tough it out and hope the illness doesn't develop into something life-threatening. We all have seniors in our extended families or know of some who spend what little limited incomes they have on prescriptions and "supplemental" health insurance. Indeed, my wife's grandmother spends most of her Social Security check on supplemental insurance. Often seniors are forced to choose between food and medicine. It is nothing for older people to spend hundreds of dollars a month on blood pressure and other live-saving medicines. They have no other choice. Either that or drop dead from a stroke or heart attack. And, God forbid, should they ever need long-term nursing care, they will lose their home, their savings and everything else of value they've got. It is my understanding, though I could be wrong, that Medicare will not cover long-term nursing care until all the patient's assets have been exhausted. Then only when the patient is broke and homeless will the government program kick in. And even then seniors often are forced into homes that you wouldn't even allow your dog to stay at while you are away on vacation. But we young, working people don't perceive health care as an issue, let alone a crisis. After all, most of us enjoy the best health care insurance our employers can buy. We consider health care a right as untaxed compensation. And some employers consider the purchase of health care coverage for their employees as a cost of doing business. But now business owners are looking at health insurance premiums nearly doubling over the past several years. This "fringe benefit" is now turning into a major compensation expense for employers, an expense not tied to any measure of productivity incentives. It's not unusual for an employer to pay $700 a month in family health care coverage for an employee. At 40 hours a week, that's more than $4 an hour just for health care. And even more worrisome to employers is that there seems to be no end in sight. You would think business owners and Chambers of Commerce would be marching on Washington, D.C., in protest. Maybe they are, but they're not making headlines. And since health care is an untaxed benefit, employees are blissfully ignorant of the employers' burden. If workers had to purchase their own health insurance as they do auto and home coverage, they'd be calling for insurers' heads to roll. If enough voters complained, then something would be done to stem escalating health insurance premiums. Health care in the United States is a case of extremes. On the one hand, you have employees with full-coverage health insurance that's bankrupting employers. On the other, you have seniors who are choosing between food and medicine. And in the middle, you have people who are sick but can't get any kind of coverage. Something must be done. But it doesn't sound like any of the candidates this political season have the right prescription.

Politics and ecology

There may be a few Gore supporters in the Grosse Pointes, and a few more who are on the fence. For those who are undecided, it would be worthwhile to read Gore's famous book on ecology, "The Earth in Balance."

Dr. Victor Bloom

In that book, which is largely autobiographical, one can get a sense of the man. He wrote that he decided to run for president in 1987. Before that, he convinced himself that the most important issue in the world was the preservation of the delicate ecological balance of this planet Earth. He was convinced that over-population and toxic waste, the product of too many humans, would eventually, if unchecked, make the planet uninhabitable. He said that his integrity as a person would depend on whether he was sufficiently courageous to be the messenger of this all-important truth to the rest of America. And it is true that the United States consumes the largest portion of the world's available energy, and therefore contributes a disproportionate amount of carbon dioxide to the atmosphere, which adds to the "greenhouse effect," which eventually will warm the planet to the point that the polar ice cap will melt, the oceans will rise and eventually flood our seacoasts, inundating our coastal cities. He was also concerned about holes in the ozone layer, allowing destructive ultraviolet (UV) rays to penetrate the atmosphere, causing an increase in skin cancer, among other things. Sure enough, the rate of skin cancer is rapidly increasing, especially under the holes in the ozone layer. The hole was caused by freon gas, (containing CPCs) escaping from refrigerators, air conditioners and spray cans, eventually rising to the ozone layer, starting a chemical process that continually breaks down ozone (three oxygen atoms) into ordinary oxygen, which is two oxygen atoms. He can see into the future, and we cannot. He will toll the warning bell, and unless we heed his call, disaster will follow. Some scientists agree with him. Others do not. So far we do not know where our ecologic imbalance is heading, but scientists are working feverishly on computer models of climatology, and there are indications he may be right. The carbon dioxide concentration in the upper atmosphere is steadily rising, along with the Earth's temperature, especially this past decade. In his section, "Striking the Balance," his recommendations for meeting the challenge of not upsetting the ecological balance in Chapter 14 titled, "A New Common Purpose," he says: "Modern industrial civilization, as presently organized, is colliding violently with our planet's ecological system. The ferocity of its assault on the Earth is breathtaking, and the horrific consequences are occurring so quickly as to defy our capacity to recognize them, comprehend their global implications, and organize an appropriate and timely response." (p. 269) On page 8 of Gore's introduction, he quotes George Will, commenting on his candidacy as being motivated by "a consuming interest in issues that are, in the eyes of the electorate, not even peripheral. These are issues such as the 'greenhouse effect' and the thinning ozone." Gore continues, "Worse, I started to wonder whether the issues I knew to be important really were peripheral after all. I began to doubt my political judgment, so I began to ask the pollsters and professional politicians what they thought I ought to talk about. As a result, for much of the campaign, I discussed what everybody else discussed, which too often was a familiar list of what the insiders agree are 'the issues.' The American people sometimes suspect that campaign agendas come straight from the pollsters and political professionals. Too often they are right. "In my own defense, I will say that throughout the campaign I did look for opportunities to return to the issue of the global environment. And even though I

Kiska is girls' best dad

Kevin Kiska of the Hill's Kiska Jewelers is a man surrounded by women. "He works with all girls and now he goes home to all girls," one of his associates said recently after Kevin's wife, Dori, gave birth a month ago to Emily, 4 lbs. 14 oz., and Molly, 4 lbs. 13 oz. Ben Burns Being a fellow who works daily with precision instruments, Kevin gave a demonstration of how his daughters sleep by arranging watchmaker's tweezers on the counter.

Speaking of babies, Peter Waldmeir the elder, of the Woods, not to be confused with Peter Waldmeir, the Farms councilman, is a new grandfather. His daughter Patti has adopted Grace Shu Min, born Nov. 7, 1999, in Yangzhou, China. The announcement says sweetly: "Placed in my grateful arms on July 30, 2000. Rejoice with us." Patti is a renowned journalist in her own right, being listed as one of the top financial reporters in the world a few years back. She works for the London Financial Times in Washington, D.C. Grandmother Marilyn is very proud. Pete the curmudgeonly columnist for The Detroit News has not yet been heard from.

Rally 'round the flag

The power of the press was evidenced last week when the Grosse Pointe News ran an item about the collection of American flags the Farms police gathered from South seniors, who "borrowed" them during Homecoming Week. Dot Nixon of the Park said she retrieved hers and it is back on its mission to fly every day in the year 2000. Dot's father was a Marine in WWI and her husband, Burt, served in Korea so they fly that flag proudly.

New Tom's benefits kids

Pointer Tom Brendel of Tom's Oyster Bar fame recently hosted the first Goombay Festival to benefit The Children's Center. Located in the defunct Galligan's at 519 E. Jefferson across from the Ren-Cen, the grand opening of the new Tom's Oyster Bar featured the Robert Penn Blues Band and a Caribbean theme that turned a frosty evening into a festive fundraiser. The Children's Center runs 28 programs and services for children and their families from its headquarters in the Medical Center area. For more information, you can call (313) 831-5535. The feel of the crowded, happy place with foot and car traffic streaming by on Jefferson was reminiscent of Chicago or Washington, D.C., downtown on a weekend night. Sure a good sign for Detroit, even if some of those cars were headed for the Windsor Casino. To illustrate the small worldliness of metro-Detroit, our next-door neighbors Gaylord and Betsy Creedon of the City and our former North Rosedale Park neighbors, Dennis and Sally Perkins, now of Farmington Hills, were all on the Goombay event committee.

Mission laudable

By the by, while they share a common concern and mission — care of troubled children and their families, there is no official link between the Children's Center and the Children's Home of Detroit, which quietly serves its clientele in a residential setting on Cook Road in Grosse Pointe Woods. The Children's Home of Detroit dates its service to a flu epidemic in 1836 that left a lot of orphaned children without homes. That was a year before Michigan achieved statehood. The Children's Home later moved to its current location near the Hunt Club and University Liggett School. It now has three campuses in Macomb, Oakland and Wayne counties. The theme of the Children's Home of Detroit's fourth annual auction fundraiser that is run through the pages of this newspaper and others and also on an Internet website, is "Children Have Dreams." The auction ads will appear Thursday, Nov. 9, and you can bid by e-mail until Monday, Nov. 13. The website is www.bid4kids.org. The e-mail is bid4kids@aol.com. And the telephone number is (313) 886-9944. Farms Councilwoman Lisa Gandelot is one of the main driving forces behind the auction that has raised several hundred thousand dollars for the residential facility during the last three years.

Weber's hot — for veterans

"What's in a name?" Shakespeare wrote, "That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." But flowers aren't people. Dr. Mark Weber, that's one "b," had his last name misspelled in various media twice in the past week in connection with his team running in the Marine Corps Marathon in Washington, D.C., on Oct. 22.

But Mark isn't likely to complain if you misspell his name, particularly if you make a contribution to the Veterans Legacy Project, an interactive kiosk that will

Appreciates excellent work

To the Editor:

Please accept this long-overdue letter of appreciation for the police officers and their excellent ambulance work.

I take care of my father, Harry Lutomski, who is 87. He has been a resident of Grosse Pointe Park for more than 40 years. He has been very ill for the past four years and has had to be rushed to the hospital over a dozen times.

When I have called 911 the ambulance and police car are here almost before I hang up the phone.

I can always count on my dad receiving consistent, professional and caring service from the officers.

Whether it is 4 a.m. or 4 p.m. I know I can rely on them.

I would not be able to give my dad, who has had a stroke, been diagnosed with Parkinson's disease, has a trach and is on oxygen, the level of care that he receives without this support.

It is one of the very reasons I live in Grosse Pointe Park.

Explain facts

To the Editor:

Recently the Grosse Pointe News published an Opinion piece by Tom Bowles, "What I learned in public school" (July 13), that should have had a response from you.

Bowles questioned why school districts continue to purchase health insurance for our educators through MESSA, a third party, which results in a commission/fee paid to MESSA.

The question raised was why the negotiation is not directly with the provider by the school district.

It is important for our teachers to have the best coverage available. We believe the Grosse Pointe News has the opportunity to gather and publish pertinent facts that explain why the current system exists.

Misconceptions and misguides

To the Editor:

There have been many misconceptions and misguides information regarding Proposal One. This is what it actually states:

First, it increases minimum funding guarantee for every child, while protecting public school funding from future budget reduction.

Second, it will initiate regular testing for teachers in their academic subjects only.

Third, it will empower parents in failing school districts (those that don't graduate two-thirds of their students) with an Opportunity Scholarship, also known as a voucher, a simple piece of paper that represents half of the tax dollars spent on their child in a public school (roughly $3,250) which can be used to place their child in a non-public school. The other half goes back to the public school.

Fourth, schools that graduated two-thirds of their students can also participate if their school board approves or voters can gather petition signatures numbering 10 percent or more of those voting in the last school board election. This enables it to be voted on in the local election by all registered voters.

even allow some veterans to tell their war experiences in their own words. If you want to donate to the project, you can call (313) 881-7511.

One of those telling their stories will be Ray Laenen, who was aboard a Liberty Ship that was torpedoed in the Indian Ocean near World War II's end. When the U-boat that sank their ship surfaced, Ray and the 19 other survivors figured it was all over. The Nazis had a policy of leaving no trace of a sunken craft so sub-hunting allied air craft couldn't track them down the next day. But the German skipper looked at Ray and the other men and left the scene. The crew then floated and drifted for 22 days before they were rescued.

Last summer, Ray attended a reunion, but it wasn't a reunion of the 19 survivors. It was a reunion in Germany of the submarine officers and crew, who had also survived the war. Ray thanked them for not following policy and told them he had no hard feelings. "We were all just doing our jobs," Ray said.

Ray usually leads the singing for the Grosse Pointe Rotary when it meets on Mondays at the War Memorial. And when he sings "God Bless America," you know it comes from the heart.

Antonio's in the Park

I heard a chef the other day explain that there are two types of people in the world: those who are Italians and those who wish they were. In either event, Antonio Scerri will officially open his second area Italian restaurant, Antonio's in the Park, on Oct. 17 at 11 a.m.

His Antonio's Casual Dining has been a fixture on Mack in the Woods for years. Antonio has revamped and revised the old Sparky Herbert's that Darrell Finken made famous. Finken, of the Park, is now directing operations at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club and getting great reviews for the food.

On line, on deck at the library

If you are an omnivorous reader, you might try signing up for one of the E-books the Grosse Pointe Public Library is now circulating. Each book contains 10 book titles. You can check them out for two weeks. There are two of the electronic readers available at Central Library, two at Woods and one at Park.

David Halberstam, who gained fame as a New York Times correspondent in Vietnam before going on to an outstanding career in non-fiction books, will be at a new program sponsored by the library Oct. 28 called "Books on the Lake." Loren Estleman, Detroit mystery fiction writer, and Alexandra Stoddard will also speak. DuMouchelle's will also do an "Ask the Appraiser" program consecutively with the author programs. Tickets are free at the library.

Ben Burns is director of the journalism program at Wayne State University and can be reached at burnsben@home.com or by phone at (313) 882-2810.

came to downplay it in my standard stump speech. I continued to emphasize it heavily in my meetings with editorial boards throughout the country."

He went on to further say that in spite of growing evidence of "the dangerous hole in the sky above Antarctica, (sic)," the press refused to report it.

We must consider the possibility that Vice President Albert Gore has a hidden agenda, that if he is elected, he will use all the powers of the presidency, especially if he has a Democratic Senate and House, to enact legislation turning back "modern industrial civilization."

It might be a good thing if we can stamp out escalating consumerism and irresponsible consumption of irreplaceable resources. There would be a lot less CO<sub>2</sub> produced if our automobiles were legislated to be small and/or electric, and could not go faster than 50 mph, and that our electricity were largely powered by solar panels and wind turbines. And gasoline were $4 per gallon, as is the case everywhere else.

The unemployment that would result might well be turned to the manufacture of millions of wind turbines and solar panels. We might inherit a Brave New World if Gore were elected.

The questions remain: Are we ready for this? Is it necessary? Is there a hidden agenda? Do we want that much governmental power to change our lives for the benefit of future generations because we are short-sighted and don't know any better? Or has Al Gore already caved in to the pollsters and pundits?

He is a member of the American Academy of Psychoanalysis and on the editorial board of the Wayne County Medical Society. Drunk drivers

A Grosse Pointe Shores patrol officer spotted a 1995 Chevrolet pickup truck going 52 mph on Lakeshore, a 35 mph zone, at midnight on Friday, Oct. 6. When the officer pulled the vehicle over, the driver, a 23-year-old Muskegon man, said he had one drink 30 minutes ago.

While the driver managed to pass his field sobriety tests, he blew a .10 on his preliminary breath test (PBT). He is currently free on $100 bond.

On Wednesday, Oct. 4, at 9:10 p.m., a Shores patrol officer stopped a 1996 Dodge for traveling 48 mph while traveling south on Lakeshore. The driver, a 31-year-old St. Clair Shores man, had no driver's license on him. He said it was stolen. It turned out it had been suspended — three times.

The driver said he had three drinks "a little while ago." After failing his field sobriety tests, he blew a .13 on his PBT. He was charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquors and driving while license suspended. He is free on $200 bond.

Failed break-in Grosse Pointe Farms police were called to a home in the first block of Grosse Pointe Boulevard on Thursday, Oct. 5. A screen window frame had been pried open, but the inner window was locked.

Party down

Farms police were called about a loud party taking place at a home in the first block of Fair Acres at 10:31 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 6. When the officer was pulling onto the block, he spotted several youths hauling a clear trash bag to their car. Inside the bag were beer cans.

The officer pulled the vehicle over and determined that the bag contained empties. Unfortunately for the driver and passengers, the car also contained an unconsumed 12-pack. The officer gave everyone in the car a PBT. The driver, a 16-year-old Farms girl, blew a .09. The five passengers' PBTs indicated blood alcohol levels of between .093 and .166.

All were charged under Farms zero tolerance laws as being minors in possession of alcohol. The driver was also cited for operating while under the influence. The matter has been turned over to juvenile court officials.

Garage opened

Between Friday, Sept. 29, and Monday, Oct. 2, someone broke into a garage in the 800 block of St. Clair in the City of Grosse Pointe and stole a $350 bicycle and $1,000 worth of golf clubs.

The garage door was closed and locked, but it was broken open. The bicycle was chained to a post, but the chain was cut.

Cover up

City of Grosse Pointe public safety officers were called to a store in the 17000 block of Kercheval on Monday, Oct. 2 to investigate a case of fraud. A customer had used a credit card to purchase a variety of cosmetics worth $410.

When store employees phoned to check the card, they discovered that the person whose name was on the card didn't have such a card that she could remember. A more thorough check revealed that the suspect had been using the fraudulent card to make purchases throughout metro Detroit. Police continue to investigate.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Acting on a call from the citizen, Woods police stopped the subject on Monday, Oct. 2, at 9:41 p.m., as he wove his pickup truck from lane to lane and off the road on eastbound Vernier near Fairway.

Upon being stopped, the 31-year-old subject, who lives in Eastpointe, sat in his vehicle shaking. "He acted confused and just looked around," said the arresting officer.

Having been taken to a local hospital, the man explained his condition. He said that at about 1 p.m., he had swallowed three Tylenol capsules and three doses of a barbituate muscle relaxer. Why? "To feel good," he said.

Musical madness

Someone has reportedly stolen more than $2,125 worth of computer-related musical gear from Grosse Pointe North High School.

A school official suspects an as-yet unknown student took the equipment, which is useless unless hooked up to a computer and synthesizer.

The missing items are two $494 Korg X5DR-64 voice sound modules.

The units, which measure about 8-by-10-by-3 inches, are colored black and used in conjunction with computers to create the sounds of musical instruments. Also missing is a $1,137 Roland JP8080 synthesizer module.

The items were discovered taken from room C 106 on September 3.

In another high school theft, on Friday, Oct. 6, at 10:46 p.m., a North student told police someone stole his pants and a small amount of cash from a varsity locker.

Park fire runs

Grosse Pointe Park fire units responded to emergencies on two consecutive days last week. Neither incident caused any injuries nor much damage.

On Friday, Oct. 6, at about midnight, officers converged on a house in the 1000 block of Beaconsfield where it turned out a resident had sprayed an aerosol product under the stove, which caused a small fire.

The next afternoon, a newly installed heating unit in the carport of a church in the 1400 block of Whittier started smoking.

Trucker trouble

On Saturday, Oct. 7, at 6:30 p.m., a man driving a late-1980s Ford Ranger pickup truck in the area of Kensington and Mack in Grosse Pointe Park pulled over to ask directions from a woman pedestrian.

He drove away, then returned and in an unarmed robbery stole the woman's purse.

Swam thing

Police searching along the canal below Alter in Detroit caught a man who minutes before had allegedly tried to break into a home in the 800 block of Pemberton.

The suspect gave a fake name, but a fingerprint check proved he was wanted on out-of-state drug charges. Locally, the man is a suspect in other incidents in the area.

He has been sent to the Wayne County Jail awaiting extradition to Chesapeake, Va.

Tire trouble

During the night of Sunday, Oct. 1, someone stole two tires off a car parked in the 1400 block of Wayburn.

Gas leak

On the evening of Wednesday, Oct. 4, Grosse Pointe Woods police last week responded to an odor of leaking gas in the 21400 block of Goethe.

In addition to smelling gas, a public safety officer heard "what sounded like a gas leak coming from a utility room."

The officer helped vent the home by opening doors and windows. A call to Michcon resulted in employees arriving "within a few minutes," said the officer.

Nap time over

A 59-year-old man found sleeping on a bench in the 20000 block of Mack was awakened by Grosse Pointe Woods police at about 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 4.

The man, a resident of Harrison Township, was found to be clear of any criminal wrongdoings and was sent on his way.

Wanted driver

On Saturday, Oct. 7, at 5:08 p.m., a Grosse Pointe Woods police officer was enforcing the state's mandatory seat belt law when he discovered a Detroit man had been driving on a suspended license. The 44-year-old subject was also wanted on a $150 warrant for a traffic violation in Highland Park.

The officer arrested the subject and took him to the police station. The man posted $100 bond and was released at about 7:30 p.m.

Computer caper

On Wednesday, Oct. 4, at 11:15 p.m., the owner of a pickup truck parked in the 19700 block of Harper discovered someone had smashed the passenger window and stolen a laptop computer.

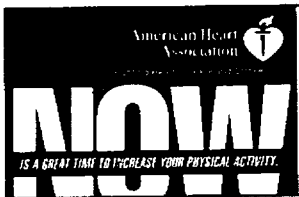

The victim, a resident of Eastpointe, told Woods police the $2,000 computer was made by Unysis but carried the Dell label.

Jewelry fraud

A man from Grosse Pointe Woods was surprised to learn that someone had charged a nearly $14,000 necklace to his credit card. The purchase had been made at a local jewelry store.

The fraud, of which the credit card company informed the man last month, was reported on the afternoon of Thursday, Oct. 5. The victim has destroyed his credit card.

Steiner has fundraiser

Eric Steiner, the Republican candidate for Wayne County Commissioner, will host a fundraiser next week.

The event will take place at Marge's Bar & Grill, 15300 Mack, at the corner of Beaconsfield, in Grosse Pointe Park. The fundraiser is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 18, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Tickets cost $20 and will be available at the door.

Steiner, who is a Grosse Pointe Woods city councilman making his first bid for county office, said his campaign is in high gear.

"I'm up until midnight stuffing envelopes, running from one thing to another," he said. "There's not enough time in the day."

District, schools, students score well in annual report

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

It's report card time again for the state's public schools and once again, the Grosse Pointe Public School System passed with flying colors.

Schools across the district have shared their Public Act 25 reports — the state-mandated report on student achievement, attendance, graduation rates, parent participation data, accreditation, curriculum and school improvement efforts — with parents over the past month. Assistant superintendent for administrative services Marjorie Parsons presented the district's report to the Grosse Pointe Board of Education on Monday, Oct. 9.

The district's report showed consistent and high attendance (93 percent high school attendance rate), graduation rates (96 percent) and parent participation rates (98 percent).

Parsons said that "our kids did very well" on the MEAP, with 82 percent, or 419, of last year's seniors receiving the state's $2,500 Michigan Merit Award scholarships.

"The state has provided us with a powerful, forward-looking curriculum," said Parsons. "This is a reform effort and we've aligned our curriculum to state standards."

However, the MEAP science test remains a challenge for district students, particularly in the seventh grade where only 40 percent of the district's students performed satisfactorily.

"We haven't had data analysis or short essay answers," said Parsons. "The test asks you to think. We haven't done this enough in this subject matter."

While Parsons said the science curriculum is under review, part of that review will look at the timing to see when certain learning concepts should be introduced.

While most students and schools have kept on par with assessment, attendance rates, students in the district's newest school, Community School, have shown dramatic improvements.

"The impact is astonishing," said Parsons. "Attendance is up 47 percent with less time spent in the clinic, waiting to see a counselor or waiting to see an administrator. The parent participation rate is up 72 percent with 18 out of 19 of the students who had parents who attended conferences. Grades are a little hard to measure because some of the classes are taught jointly, but we had no Ds at the end of the semester."

Parsons said that MEAP scores were a success with Community School students with four out of four students who took the tests receiving a Michigan Merit Award.

A new analysis that was added this year to the district's PA 25 report was a circulation report from the school's libraries/media centers. About 350,298 items circulated during the 1999-2000 school year with each item being borrowed 2.3 times during the school year. "Even though the kids are on the Internet all the time, print media is still a big part of school life," said Parsons.

Here's To
The Art
Of Living

If you're a senior facing a decision about where you will live or if you are making this decision for a loved one — you know it isn't easy. It means giving up what's familiar, it means starting anew, it means change.

That's why St. John Senior Community is focused on enriching the lives of our residents. Here, residents can enjoy gardens, aviaries, aquariums as well as time with our two lively dogs. We encourage our residents to talk to us about what will make them most comfortable...what will make them feel at home. Chances are that we've already found a way to accommodate their requests.

Our residents also take comfort in knowing that St. John Senior Community provides living options and skilled staff for varying degrees of independence. That means should our residents lives change, their home doesn't have to.

Ficano to discuss Internet safety

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

"Would you let a complete stranger walk in your door, sit down in your living room and have a sexually explicit talk with your daughter?" asked Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano.

The answer would be a resounding no, but the potential for a situation like that through the use of the Internet is alarmingly high.

Ficano will lead a presentation on Internet Safety of Children on Tuesday, Oct. 17, at Pierce Middle School at 7 p.m.

"It's a program about cyber safety, predators and other scams like identity theft, threats and harassment," said Ficano. "We talk about things like firewalls, but many times the kids are more advanced about computers than their parents."

While Ficano will discuss common sense tips like encouraging children to let parents know if they receive any e-mails or messages they feel uncomfortable with, to keeping personal computers in a central location where it's easy to keep an eye on kids' cyber activities and not letting children post public profiles, he claims the threat to children is still prevalent.

Since its inception two years ago, the Wayne County Internet Crimes Task Force has arrested 26 people; 24 were charged with sex-related crimes involving juveniles, two were charged with identity theft.

"We've arrested doctors and lawyers," said Ficano. "There are no socioeconomic boundaries."

For more information on the Internet safety class, call (313) 343-2094.

Lexus targets younger buyers for LS 430

Just when you thought it was OK to grow older and seek a large luxury sedan, upscale Japanese car maker Lexus announces it is going after younger buyers for its full-size LS 430.

At the introduction of the 2001 model LS 430 here Sept. 12, Lexus General Manager Dennis Clements said a goal was to make this flagship car more fun to drive. Another is to attract the 47-55-age set. The median age of LS 400 owners is 58, he said.

Available with three suspensions, including a new European-style sport suspension option with 17-inch alloy wheels, the 2001 LS 430 will be "anything but boring," said Clements. It goes on sale Thursday, Oct. 12.

The third-generation LS is new from the ground up, he said. It looks different, with chiseled character lines. It drives differently, with a new 4.3-liter V-8 that takes the rear-drive sedan from zero to 60 mph in 6.3 seconds. That skunks archrival Mercedes-Benz S500 (with 4.3-liter engine) by more than half a second (6.9 seconds for Mercedes).

Lexus lengthened the wheelbase of the 2001 LS by some three inches, but kept the overall length the same as it had been: 196.7 inches. By moving the gas tank under the rear seat, trunk space is improved by over 30 percent.

The luxury sedan boasts added interior space and some dazzling refinements on its top-of-the-line model including power-adjustable, heated rear seats with memory capacity and with an adjustable massage feature.

The rear seats can be made more accessible and rear headrests lowered from the driver's seat, as well, so if the last backseat passenger has adjusted the seat to a more reclining posture before getting out, the driver can readjust it from behind the steering wheel.

Same goes for the front passenger seat — the driver, using buttons on the left side of the seat, can change its positioning.

The front seats have 14 power adjustments for the driver and 10 for the passenger. In case you cannot remember what you like from among the 14 adjustments, the driver's seat has a memory system for up to three different users.

Those front seats can also be ordered with optional climate control with the ability to warm or cool the user through the perforated leather upholstery.

The standard suspension of the 2001 LS 430 is firmer than on earlier models. There also will be an adaptive variable suspension with electronically modulated air suspension, plus the Euro sport suspension.

Autos

By Jenny King

The 2001 Lexus LS 430 breaks away from boring with a more sculpted exterior and the addition of two optional suspensions.

Driver's and passenger's front seat-mounted and side curtain air bags front and rear are standard equipment on the 2001 LS 430.

Clements said his best guess is 15 to 20 percent of Lexus buyers will opt for the new European-style suspension, which currently is being offered at no additional charge.

This is one of the features that makes the new LS 430 more fun, he said.

An option which increases its safety is the new laser cruise control that can be set for a preferred distance from the vehicle ahead and which will begin to close the throttle valve, downshift the transmission and apply the brakes (and rear brake lights), according to the needs of a situation.

When the traffic clears, the system accelerates slowly to resume the set speed.

"This system is not intended to be an auto pilot, and is by no means a collision avoidance system," said Dave VandeLinde, Lexus central area technical manager. "The driver still needs to pay attention to the road and the surrounding vehicles."

Lexus said the dynamic cruise control is the first application of a laser radar cruise control system for the U.S. luxury market. It and the Intuitive Park Assist system (this uses ultrasonic sensors in the front, rear and corners of the vehicles) are included in the Ultra Luxury selection package which represents the top of the line for the LS 430 and prices out at $68,500.

The base model is a more affordable $54,005.

Park assist sensors can detect items as small as 2-1/2 inches, for example, a parking meter pole. When the system senses an obstacle, it puts a picture on the multi-information display (or navigation system screen, if the car has this system). There also is a warning buzzer that beeps more frequently as the car approaches the immovable object. When the vehicle is about 10 inches from the object, the beeps become a steady tone.

Other nifty gadgets available in option packages include an "auto" setting for the windshield wipers that will automatically turn them on — even to the correct speed — when rain begins to fall. VandeLinde said an infrared-based LED and photo diode receiver detect the presence and amount of precipitation hitting the windshield. The wipers turn on and the speed is adjusted according to the volume.

"Whether you get splashed from an oncoming vehicle, you're going slowly or very fast, the wipers will cycle accordingly," he said.

"Dealers already have 6,000 orders for the LS 430," said Clements. "Our sales target is 25,000 annually. For calendar year 2000, we expect to sell 8,500 cars."

Agnes W.
L'Heureux

Former Grosse Pointe Shores resident Agnes W. L'Heureux (nee O'Brien), of St. Clair Shores, died of complications of cancer at Bon Secours Hospital on Tuesday, Oct. 3, 2000. She was 80.

Mrs. L'Heureux was born in Dalmeir, Scotland, and was a graduate of Kennedy Collegiate High School in Windsor, Ontario, and the W.D. Lowe Business Institute in Windsor.

Mrs. L'Heureux was a member of the Boca Del Mar Country Club and the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

She enjoyed golf, antiquing, traveling and family gatherings.

Survivors include her husband, Dr. Maurice P., two daughters, Dr. Linda Wetzel and Janet (Tim) McCafferty; two sons, Paul and Jere (Susan); and eight grandchildren. She was predeceased by a sister, Leslie O'Brien.

A funeral service for Mrs. L'Heureux was held Friday, Oct. 6, at A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods. Interment is at St. Alphonsus Cemetery in Windsor.

Memorial gifts may be sent to the Hospices of Henry Ford Nursing Home, Office of Philanthropy, One Ford Place, Suite 5A, Detroit, MI 48202.

Donna Marie
Wilson

A memorial service will be held at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Monday, Oct. 16, at 7 p.m. for City of Grosse Pointe resident Donna Marie Wilson (nee Jose). Mrs. Wilson died Thursday, Oct. 5, 2000. She was 64.

Mrs. Wilson was a graduate of Detroit's Southeastern High School and studied at what is now known as the Center for Creative Studies.

Mrs. Wilson spent her childhood years training, then later performing, in ballet.

She became director of the ballet program in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Mrs. Wilson was also an artist in the media of pastels, pencil, pen and ink, oils and watercolors.

She was a member of the Grosse Pointe Artists Association. Some of her works were accepted into juried shows and many were purchased at GPAA shows at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and in the Village.

She also donated two of her works to Richard Elementary School which were hung in the teacher's lounge during the school's renovation.

Art excursion vacations in northern Michigan, especially in the Upper Peninsula and Seney Wildlife Refuge, with her family were cherished activities.

Boating with her brother, and later with her sons, thrilled her.

She enjoyed the challenges of downhill skiing, tennis, swimming and whatever kept her on or near the water.

She also enjoyed writing, ballroom dancing, needlework, gardening, theater (especially when her son, Craig, was performing), cooking, home decoration, deep biblical studies, sharing her knowledge and capabilities with others.

She was also involved assisting with programs at Neff Park; programs at Maire and Richard elementary schools, Pierce and Brownell middle schools and Grosse Pointe South High School while her sons were growing up; and the All Pointes and Pointe Aquatics swim teams.

She was a member of Sixth Church of Christ, Scientist, in Detroit, where she taught Sunday school, served as a reader, music chairperson and sat on many committees.

Mrs. Wilson worked as a private caterer for several Grosse Pointe families and as a nanny.

Survivors include her husband, Philip; two sons, Perry and Craig; and a brother Robert S. Jose.

Smoke exhaust caused by car neglect

An elderly couple, driving on a country road, had been stuck behind a smoking car. Its noxious exhaust was causing breathing problems for the woman, who suffered from emphysema.

This scenario is reminiscent of the cartoon of a driver wearing a gas mask in rush-hour traffic. It's all too believable considering what's produced by a poorly maintained vehicle.

The "menu" of lethal exhaust components includes:

- Carbon monoxide: lethal
- Hydrocarbons: linked to lung cancer
- Carbon dioxide: a cause of the "greenhouse" effect that causes global warming
- Oxides of nitrogen: a primary cause of smog and associated problems

- Sulfur dioxide: an ingredient in acid rain.

Some harmful exhaust emissions, such as carbon monoxide, are invisible to the naked eye, but others are all too obvious. Hydrocarbons, from unburned fuel, produce a black exhaust. They're the product of a malfunctioning fuel system or dirty air filter.

It also can be triggered by misfiring spark plugs. The driver may not realize it's happening, but the increased fuel consumption will be a clue that something is wrong.

Blue-black smoke generally comes from burning oil, usually the result of advanced engine wear or a malfunctioning crankcase ventilation system.

In both of the above cases the catalytic converter may camouflage the problem. Acting like a furnace within the exhaust system, it burns off the harmful ingredients in the exhaust gas. So, if the converter renders the exhaust harmless the environmental problem goes away, right?

Wrong, says the Car Care Council. Eventually its own intense heat destroys the converter, causing a dramatic increase in emissions. On most vehicles this will cause a "service engine" light to turn on.

Soon the chain reaction has caused the engine to guzzle gas, run poorly and become hard to start. All of this is in addition to violating the atmosphere.

For these reasons and more, October serves as National Car Care Month, a reminder to give your vehicle the maintenance it needs, including regular checkups.

The council offers a free brochure on this topic entitled "An Annual Physical For Your Car." To order, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Dept. PK0-XI, 42 Park Drive, Port Clinton, Ohio 43452. Additional information is available on the council's web site at www.carcarecouncil.org.

What you need to know about absentee voting

By Candice S. Miller

Michigan Secretary of State
Absent voter ballots are available for all elections. They provide voters with a convenient method for casting a ballot when they are unable to attend the polls on election day.

As a registered voter, you may obtain an absent voter ballot if you are: Age 60 years or older; unable to vote without assistance at the polls; expecting to be out of town on election day; in jail awaiting arraignment or trial; unable to attend the polls due to religious reasons; or appointed to work as an election inspector in a precinct outside of your precinct of residence.

Your request for an absent voter ballot must be in writing and can be submitted to your city or township clerk. Your request must include one of the six statutory reasons stated above and your signature. You may request an absent voter ballot with a letter or post card, or you can obtain a preprinted application form at your local clerk's office. Requests to have an absent voter ballot mailed to you must be submitted to your clerk no later than 2 p.m. the Saturday before the election.

Once your request is received by the local clerk, your signature on the request will be checked against your voter registration record before a ballot is issued. Requests for absent voter ballots are processed immediately. Absent voter ballots may be issued to you at your home address or any address outside of your city or township of residence.

After receiving your absent voter ballot, you have until 8 p.m. on election day to complete the ballot and return it to the clerk's office. Your ballot will not be counted unless your signature is on the return envelope and matches your signature on file. If you received assistance voting the ballot, then the signature of the person who helped you must also be on the return envelope. Only you, a family member or person residing in your household, a mail carrier, or election official is authorized to deliver your signed absent voter ballot to your clerk's office.

Dip-buyers are all gone; is the bottom near?

The 4-o'clock bell last Friday was a welcome relief to the hammering, the pounding and the slaughtering at the NASDAQ last week.

A walk down NASDAQ lane required a deftness in meandering around the "road kill."

The NASDAQ Composite absorbed a meltdown with the index off 311 points, or 8.5 percent, closing at 3,361.

The DJI fared much better, helped by strength in Coca-Cola (KO, about 58.44, up 3.31 points on the week) and Procter & Gamble (PG, about 73.94, up 6.94).

The weekly loss was only 54 points, closing at 10,596.

Financial and brokerage stocks were clobbered last Friday, especially Morgan Stanley Dean Witter (MWD, about 84.25, off 6.94), which was the target of rumors that it had suffered sizable trading losses in the junk-bond market, where many telecom bonds collapsed in recent weeks. Morgan officials countered that such reports were "greatly exaggerated."

Telecom stocks were hard hit, too. Both AT&T (T, about 27.25, off 2.13 last week) and WorldCom (WCOM, about 25.19, off 5.19 points on weekly volume of 205 million shares) hit new yearly lows.

Last week, WorldCom CEO Bernard Ebbers announced he had sold 3 million of his 19 million shares of WCOM to meet a margin call at his broker.

Many "insiders" (founders, directors and executives) of tech firms are reported to have huge margin loans, collateralized by their company stock holdings. They borrow cash to diversify their portfolios, thus avoiding a sale of the underlying stock and resulttant large capital gains tax liabilities. They also avoid the bad publicity of a public sale by an "insider."

Priceline.com (PCLN, about 5.56, down 6.31 points last week, off 53.1 percent) is back in the news.

Its offspring, Webhouse, closed shop last week. No more bidding for groceries or gasoline.

Barron's (Oct. 9) reports that Priceline's "name-your-price" airline tickets are having problems. Seems the airlines have set up their own website, Hotwire.com.

The Priceline warrants given to the airlines last year are so far "out of the money" that there's little incentive for the airlines to make plentiful seats available to Priceline.

LTS visited the Priceline website last year, but found you could not restrict your bid to a non-stop flight, but would have to accept a two-stop to the same destination.

No way was LTS going to LaGuardia via Delta with a change of planes in Cincinnati. No way!

Mutual funds capital gains

Mutual funds are not like stocks.

They are required to pay all their net ordinary income, after expenses, and all of their capital gains and losses to fundholders.

Hence, the mutual fund itself pays no taxes.

The income tax liability on their cash distributions is passed through to you, the fundholders, even though you elected to reinvest the dividends by purchase of new shares.

Which means you must cough-up the cash to pay the taxes from other sources.

Some mutual funds are very aggressive traders, almost day-traders.

This shows up in their "turnover ratio," a mathematical calculation of how many times per year, they buy and sell their average portfolio.

A "buy and hold" investment portfolio would have a negligible turnover.

But a turnover of 1 to 2 times, or more, in an indication of high trading activity. And short-term trading presumes a preponderance of short-term capital gains and/or losses.

Remember that long-term capital gains are taxed at a maximum 20 percent rate at the federal level (plus state and local taxes, if any), while short-term capital gains are taxed the same as ordinary income, with graduated tax rates from 15 to 39.6 percent (plus state and city taxes, if any).

Come mid-November, you should telephone the shareholder service 800 number at your mutual fund and inquire if they have estimates of the capital gains dividend rates to be distributed in December.

You should also ask for the "turnover ratio" for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31. Also ask if your fund has a "back-end load," which is deducted from the proceeds as a sales charge.

Then look up the current market value of your mutual fund in the business section of your local paper under "Mutual Funds."

The first problem you will encounter is that the tables are not listed alphabetically by fund name, only by "fund family manager's name."

To further confuse you, some fund names were changed when they switched managers.

There are almost 8,000 open-end equity mutual funds outstanding, excluding all the tax-exempt bond funds.

Last Saturday's Detroit Free Press (Oct. 7) devoted only one full page containing about 2,600 mutual funds. So good luck on finding yours.

When in doubt, phone the shareholder service 800 number at your mutual fund and ask them for last night's closing net asset value.

Your last quarterly statement from your mutual fund will state how many shares you own.

Multiply the number of shares owned by the net asset value, and that's the market value of your holding.

To avoid large short-term capital gains this December, some financial advisers suggest you look up the tax cost of all your shares (including the shares purchased by reinvesting prior dividends).

Now comes the moment of reckoning: Is your mutual fund above or below water, market-wise?

If you presently have an unrealized loss, that fund should be a candidate for a "tax-loss" sale before the year-end cash dividends go "ex-dividend."

Even if that fund, market-wise, is about even, or has only a moderate unrealized profit, you might still consider it a probable sale, to avoid receiving the year-end taxable dividends.

Prior to distribution on the ex-dividend date, the fund's realized gains, through Oct. 31 fiscal year-end, are part of its net asset value and thus included in its market price.

If you sell your entire fund holding prior to the declaration of the year-end distribution, the entire profit on your sale (proceeds, less cost) would be a long-term capital gain (if held more than one year), and your maximum tax rate would be 20 percent (plus state and city taxes, if any).

If you do nothing, the tax consequences of the year-end distribution will be a maximum 20 percent rate on the long-term capital gains portion, and 15 to 39.6 percent graduated rate on the short-term capital gains and ordinary income portion.

Obviously, you should consult your tax adviser before making any decisions.

And be sure you have a large magnifying glass to read the stock tables in your paper!

Bartering: a dose of consumer medicine

by Lori Z. Bahnmueller

I switched health insurance coverage last year from a health maintenance organization, or HMO, to a preferred provider organization, PPO.

Tired of obtaining referrals, I was willing to pay a $10 co-pay to obtain greater physician freedom.

Unlike HMOs, PPOs permit consumers to visit in-network specialists and hospitals freely without first obtaining a pesky referral.

Women with PPO coverage, for instance, can visit a gynecologist for their annual exam without winning permission from their primary care physician.

The decision fared me well until a specialist in-network, "Dr. In-Network," referred me to a specialist out-of-network, "Dr. Out-of-Network."

While Dr. In-Network penned a referral to ensure insurance coverage followed me out-of-network, PPO coverage is limited to what the insurance industry deems "reasonable and customary" fees.

Participating physicians agree to accept reasonable and customary reimbursement for services, which can be less than half of what a non-participating doctor or hospital would charge.

If a PPO consumer decides to go out-of-network, the consumer is responsible for paying the difference between coverage and fees for services rendered.

In my case, Dr. Out-of-Network's services were estimated at roughly $3,600, while "reasonable and customary" coverage fell under $800.

Because the doctor was actually performing two procedures, in one surgery, chances were great that insurance coverage would be even less.

Although the procedures were independent of each other, when performed concurrently or successively, medical reimbursement is discounted 50 percent.

This is sort of like asking an auto mechanic to give you a break on a new set of tires because the car is already on the lift for an oil change. "But it's in the garage already."

Fortunately, the surgery was scheduled at an in-network hospital and therefore covered in-full.

Still, nearly $3,000 out-of-pocket seemed steep to me and hardly "reasonable."

Frustrated, I contacted Dr. In-Network for a referral in-network.

While he empathized with my insurance plight, he could not in good conscience refer me to another physician for my surgery, he said.

Dr. Out-of-Network was most qualified to perform the procedures and he volunteered to write the insurance company accordingly.

The insurance company wasn't phased, but I was. Twice I'd been referred to Dr. Out-of-Network by a physician I've come to trust and respect.

Shopping around was no longer an option, but bartering was.

"I instruct people who go out-of-network to talk openly about fees with the specialist and/or the billing department," said Jim Fournier, director of insurance and benefits services for Cucare.

He added, "Don't be shy about asking for price breaks. These physicians have made a decision to not participate in plans, so they are aware patients are bearing considerable financial burden."

True, the subject of money was a bit uncomfortable for me to broach. I started with the billing department (BD):

ME: "I've checked with my insurance company about coverage, and have learned that the reasonable and customary fees for these procedures will only cover about 20 percent of (Dr. Out-of-Network's) fees."

BD: "Somehow that doesn't surprise me."

ME: "Well, I understand (Dr. Out-of-Network) is the best specialist for this job, but I'm uncomfortable paying so much out-of-pocket for these procedures."

BD: "Would you like to talk with (Dr. Out-of-Network)?"

Within minutes, I received a call from Dr. Out-of-Network.

Seconds later, he'd kindly agreed to split the out-of-pocket difference with me and assume additional costs in the event the surgery proved more complicated.

This is not to suggest that one should liken medical care to bargain hunting or bartering at the border.

However, if you feel a medical expense can be negotiated, it never hurts to ask.

The bottom line on Social Security benefits

There's good news for most retired workers, says the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Now many retirees can work all they want and still receive full Social Security benefits.

The Senior Citizens Freedom to Work Act of 2000, signed into law earlier this year, allows seniors between the ages of 65 and 69 to earn a paycheck and claim Social Security benefits without penalty.

The change is retroactive to Jan. 1, 2000.

Under the new law, your annual earnings affect the amount of your Social Security benefits only until you reach full retirement age — currently 65.

Once you reach age 65, you can receive your full benefits no matter how much you earn.

(Be aware that for those born after 1937, the full retirement age is scheduled to rise above 65 in two-month steps.)

For those below the full retirement age, the earnings test still applies.

In 2000, individuals taking reduced benefits at age 62-64 will lose $1 of benefits for every $2 of benefits over $ 10,080. For individuals attaining age 65 this year, the earnings limit is $17,000 for the period before reaching age 65.

What to expect

While those who have reached full retirement age no longer need to worry about the earnings limit, there are other issues to consider in deciding when to start collecting benefits.

Before you can make a knowledgeable decision, you should understand how your benefits are calculated and how much you can expect to receive.

The size of your monthly retirement benefit is based on a number of things, including how much you have earned during your lifetime and how much you paid into the Social Security system.

If you earned higher wages and paid more into the system, you will receive a higher monthly check at retirement than if you had lower earnings.

The best place to calculate your benefits is to go to the Social Security Administration's (SSA) Web site at www.ssa.gov/retire.

This site features an online retirement planning calculator to estimate your benefits based on your projected earnings and other information.

All online benefit estimates are based on your input.

Also, the Social Security Administration is now automatically mailing out statements showing projected benefits at age 62, your full retirement age, and age 70. Expect to receive your first statement about three months before your birth-day.

It's your choice

Keep in mind that you decide when to start collecting Social Security benefits. Basically, you have three options.

The earliest you can start collecting monthly checks is age 62 and that will not change as the normal retirement age increases.

However, if you start collecting this early, your benefits will be reduced for life. The exact amount of the reduction depends on how early you begin collecting. Bear in mind that although starting early means you'll get smaller checks, it's likely that you will be getting more of them.

"Present value of money dictates an early start on collecting benefits, unless you expect to live to a very old age," said John Rickel, a Grosse Pointe Farms attorney and member of the MACPA board of directors.

He said, "The increase in benefits pays for 36 months or more of benefits never received. Do the calculation."

At your "full retirement age" (as defined by SSA), you can begin collecting full benefits. Although the current age for full retirement is 65, this age will gradually increase to age 67 by the year 2022.

If you delay applying for benefits beyond full retirement age, you'll receive significantly larger monthly checks when you ultimately decide to call it quits.

Social Security benefits are increased by a certain percentage each year up to age 70 depending on a person's date of birth.

For example, people born in 1943 or later, who must be 66 in order to retire with full benefits, will get an extra 8 percent a year of their full benefit amount for each year they delay claiming benefits. However, once these individuals reach age 70, there are no benefit increases.

A word of caution: if you decide to delay collecting Social Security benefits, be sure to sign up for Medicare at age 65. In some circumstances, medical insurance costs more if you delay applying for it.

When it comes to paying taxes on your Social Security payments, age is not a factor. According to the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants, the amount of benefits that is taxable depends on the total amount of your Social Security benefits and other income.

Some people will not need to pay tax on their benefits. However if your income exceeds certain base amounts, up to 85 percent of your benefits may be taxable.

Teaching kids the value of money

by Lori Z. Bahnmueller

While rifling through the misfit summer clearance wares at a department store recently, the plaintive protests of a preteen daughter back-to-school shopping with her mom sent me back some 20 years.

Having been denied a pair of expensive, fashionable Capri pants, the young woman suggested that if her mom lacked the funds she "should just put it on her charge card."

While I would never have berated my mom in public, I did my share of public whining over Gloria Vanderbilt jeans. Instead of leading me to a discount department store or sale rack, my mom typically folded.

Being a full-time professional and mother of five — and ridiculously generous — she was probably too tired to argue.

Unfortunately, it would take several years and thousands of dollars before I would learn how to be a savvy consumer.

Not surprisingly, sex and money are the two most avoided topics in American households. But, tune in to a sitcom, surf the Web, catch a movie or peruse the magazine rack, and you can't avoid either topic.

Most kids understand the power of money. That is, that they need cash in order to buy goods. What many lack, however, is an appreciation for the value of money.

The back-to-school shopping experience can provide an excellent opportunity for parents to introduce their children to basic personal finance skills, such as budgeting, saving and wise consumerism.

A reader recently wrote to me about how her mother employed financial incentives, budgeting, and even inventory, into their annual back-to-school shopping treks:

"Mom always adhered to a strict budget — set well in advance of leaving the house for the mall.

"Each of the three girls had a separate budget, based on grade performance in the previous school year, and bonuses incurred here and there for additional chores completed throughout the summer.

"We were also responsible for taking inventory of shoes, jeans, and other items to make sure we only purchased items we needed.

"I believe these practices were excellent in teaching me the value of money as well as buying only the things necessary as opposed to impulse buying."

The Internet and library are rich with innovative, fun and interactive ways to help teach children the value of money.

The following ideas were found on moneycentral.com:

- Treat your own money with respect and let your children share that respect.

If you bend down to pick up a penny, your children learn that even small amounts are to be treasured. If you carefully consider the price of a purchase instead of just saying, "charge it," you instill a sense of value in those watchful eyes.

- Let your children make money decisions from an early age.

Work out a budget for your child based on necessities such as school lunch money and bus fare before dowering out allowances. Feel free to build in enough extra for some discretionary choices.

- Give your child an attractive alternative to spending.

Many local credit unions and banks offer accounts specifically aimed at children that let them add a few dollars at a time. Explain that the financial institution pays you "rent" to use the money and that the interest builds up and earns more interest.

- Make sure your child understands the connection between work, paychecks and taxes.

Let them know that the hours you work translate into the dollars you can spend.

Be sure to give them some idea that the government takes about one-third of your earnings in taxes.

- When your child is at an appropriate age, encourage him or her to get some work experience.

It could be as simple as walking the neighbor's dog or baby-sitting or bagging groceries at the local store or working in a restaurant.

By the time your child receives a paycheck, minus taxes, the concept of spend-able income vs. saving will become very real.

- Make investments for children in stocks and mutual funds and explain them to your children.

If young children are aware enough to be targeted for marketing by big consumer companies, they can certainly recognize and distinguish between brands. And if there are brands they use and like, by all means invest in a few shares of stock. Then they'll get annual reports with pictures of the company's products, and perhaps feel some pride of ownership.

There are several mutual funds designed to appeal to children while still concentrating on investment performance. Stein Roe Young Investor Fund (SRVIX) has been among the top performers, while sending information and activity kits to teach children about investing.

- Get involved in school curriculum choices that teach the value of work and money.

Junior Achievement reaches children throughout the country, in courses designed for kindergarten through high school, to educate them about community, the workplace environment, entrepreneurship and investing.

Credit unions are also well known as classroom educators in the means of financial independence for all ages. Keep apprised as to your child's financial education.

For more information in regards to financial education for young adults, visit creditunionsrock.com, a noncommercial Web site sponsored by Michigan credit unions.

Franklin Bank to redeem its notes

Franklin Bank (NASDAQ: FSVB) will redeem its outstanding 8.5 percent subordinated notes effective Oct. 15, 2000.

The action is intended to reduce the bank's future interest costs by about $325,000 over the remaining term of the notes, which had an expiration date of Jan. 1, 2003.

"Redemption of the notes allows Franklin to reduce its future interest expense, while having an insignificant impact on our strong capital base," said David F. Simon, chairman of Franklin.

The redemption won't impact Franklin's Tier 1 capital levels and has a nominal effect on total capital.

Franklin Bank has $540 million in assets, is headquartered in Southfield and has a branch on Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Common, astonishing seniors give strong, dynamic lives

Every group has its heroes and heroines. Certain people are singled out for honor because of their achievements and contributions to society and for their extraordinary power to sway opinion. The worlds of sports, entertainment, teaching, science and professions, all have people who are esteemed as examples of what it is possible to achieve.

At this point in history, when people are living longer, more vigorous lives, many of them are anxious not to waste those precious added years. Later in their lives, they pursue interests or causes that they hope will make a difference in the world. They have previously been busy earning a living. Now they are ready to pursue goals they had long dreamed of.

Some people hold back because they think they are too old or haven't the energy or the talent. What these people need for inspiration are examples of "elder" heroes who have either achieved success in a new field after retirement or have reached their stride in their own field in their later years after attempting new personal and social challenges at an age when they could have rested on their laurels.

One that comes to mind is Anna Mary Robertson — Grandma Moses — a farmer's wife, untrained in art. She began painting in her 70s. With no formal training, she produced colorful, simple and carefree scenes of farm life and won recognition for her primitive American art.

Another is Mother Teresa. Even as a teenager, she had early passion for missionary work. She entered a convent and was sent to Calcutta where she taught for more than 20 years at St. Mary's High School, a bastion of privilege. One night, she said she heard "a call within a call" to leave the convent and help the people while living among them. She changed her habit for a white sari and took to the streets of Calcutta barefoot. At 49, she moved into the industrial slums of Calcutta where the lepers lived and began to give out medicine and food. At 60, she moved to New York and started the first American mission in the dangerous Fort Apache area of the South Bronx. At 60, she won the Nobel Peace prize. At 80, she was still active.

Albert Schweitzer began his adult years as a renowned musician — an organist and interpreter of Bach. At 30, he became a physician. At 38, he established a hospital in French West Africa where he practiced until the French (during World War I) incarcerated him as enemy alien. He was 50 when he was released. His hospital was in ruins. But he started all over again. He rebuilt the hospital and ran it until he died.

In 1970, the National Office of the United Presbyterian Church retired 65-year-old Maggie Kuhn. Furious, she formed a radical group known as the Gray Panthers. Their purpose was to overturn society's ageist ways. For nearly two decades Kuhn led the Gray Panthers in campaigns designed to eliminate ageism in America.

Seventy-four thousand members with chapters in 30 states acted as the voice of elders for serious social change.

Henry Matisse, the great post impressionist painter had been a cultural revolutionary for 40 years. He reached a time in life when he could have rested on his laurels.

At the age of 66, he began painting again, continually refining and evolving his craft. At the age of 71, he underwent an intestinal operation that left him bedridden, but he still kept going. He invented ingenious ways to create art. He had special easels made so he could sit in bed and work. When he could hardly move he used long bamboo poles to draw huge murals. Between the ages of 76 and 80, he produced six major illustrated books that included hundreds of paintings and he designed the now famous Chapelle du Rosaire. He worked until he died at the age of 85.

Such stories can be matched by stories about people we have never heard of. For instance, Jacob Landers went to law school at age 67, after spending several years in education as a teacher, administrator, professor of education and consultant.

He is now a public interest lawyer in New York who gives voice and legal forces to the elderly.

Bob Phelps worked as a journalist for 40 years at the Boston Globe. After retiring, he decided to become an actor, not just a night and weekend community theater actor, but a pro

He went to acting school, took his resume around to agents, got some small parts, did some commercials, dinner theater, summer stock. He made a new career.

Intellectual pursuits are not the only way to go. Many older people are into physical achievements. John Garner, 72, has been pumping iron for 25 years and looks it. Eric De Reynier, 85, took up hang gliding at 72 and still stays for an hour at a time. E.T. Smith, known as "Smitty the Jumper," was one of seven members of the world champion sky-diving team. He was 87.

Stories of people like these are remarkable but not unusual.

There are millions of people in their seventh, eighth and even ninth decades who carry on with great vigor, agility, intensity and physical courage. Elder heroes and elder heroines are worthy role models.

Take that extra second to look and to prevent an accident

An issue that's been with us almost as long as the automobile is whether or not older drivers should be tested more frequently for reissue of their licenses. If a person's vision, reaction time and dexterity continue to be up to standard, then that driver should be safe, right?

Not necessarily, says the Car Care Council, who contends that any driver, regardless of age, is at risk if the vehicle is not sufficiently responsive. The theory that the vehicle is an extension of the driver is a valid one, says the council. The brakes function only when the driver causes them to. A driver with good vision can see surrounding danger and respond only if lights, windshield wipers, brakes and steering all are up to par.

If a driver's reactions are a little slower, eyesight is not quite as sharp and hearing not quite as acute, he subconsciously may hope for his faithful vehicle to get him through a driving crisis. This can mean steering out of a dangerous traffic situation or maintaining stability when one wheel gets onto the shoulder. It also can mean quick, steady response to emergency braking.

Average reaction time, according to the National Safety Council, is three-fourths of a second. At 60 mph, for example, you'll travel 66 feet in that period of time. At that speed you'll need 162 to 202 feet to bring your car to a complete stop. Use the "two-second — plus" rule to determine if you're giving yourself enough space between yourself and the vehicle ahead. Count "one thousand and two" one, one thousand and two" as the vehicle in front of you reaches an overpass or other stationary mark. If you arrive at that point in two seconds or less, you're too close — back off.

Under ideal conditions, adding an extra second of lag time behind the vehicle ahead of you could make the big difference in avoiding a collision. This is assuming the vehicle's tires and braking system are in optimum condition and the driver's reaction time is normal.

The council suggests that, in addition to paying special attention to safety functions of the vehicle and observing the two-second rule, older drivers or those with impaired vision or reaction time should pay special attention to their vehicles' safe operating condition.

For a free brochure on brake safety, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Car Care Council, Department SREO-B, 42 Park Drive, Fort Clinton, Ohio 43452.

Hurrah for Halloween hoopla

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Once and the end of the tenth month of the year, our little corner of the world transforms itself into an enchanted region where spirits rule the night.

We are referring, of course, to the annual rite of Halloween, which in centuries past signified the final day of the Celtic calendar.

What better time for witches and warlocks to go abroad? When you're a pagan, every day is a party.

The five Grosse Pointe municipalities have joined the fun by sponsoring individual trick or treat happenings.

In the week leading up to Halloween, municipal celebrations will range from Windmill Pointe Park at the foot of Grosse Pointe Park up the shoreline to Grosse Pointe Woods Lake Front Park.

In the week leading up to Halloween, residents of the Farms will get a new twist on the Halloween theme at Pier Park. In Grosse Pointe Shores, officials anticipate a large turnout for the community's newest holiday tradition at Osiris Park.

In the City, members of the Grosse Pointe Village Association will team up with the City of Grosse Pointe to sponsor Trick or Treating in the Village. This year, the community-wide celebration is extra special, because it takes place on the big day itself —

Halloween: Thursday, Oct. 23

Here's a list of what's going on, with advice on the hot costumes of the season.

But whatever happens, don't take it too seriously. As Orson Welles said when chiding a national radio audience after the Mercury Radio Theatre's "War of the Worlds" spooked the country on Halloween eve in 1938:

"Remember, please, for the next day or so, the terrible lesson you learned tonight. That grinning, glowing goblin in your living room is an inhabitant of the pumpkin patch. If your doorbell rings and nobody's there, that was Mr. Morgan — it's Halloween."

Grosse Pointe Shores

Things kick off on Wednesday, Oct. 18 with "Walk in the Dark II" in Grosse Pointe Shores. Last year's inaugural Halloween event was so successful, city officials scheduled a second edition of what could become a tradition.

The second annual event is free and takes place from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at Osiris Park.

Walk in the Dark II is a family-oriented event for Shores residents. Children under 12 years old must be accompanied by an adult.

Linda Walton, a Shores resident who helped organize the event, said participants can gather at Osiris Park to "explore various stations put together by residents and various organizations."

In case of rain, Walk in the Dark II will be held at Osiris Park on Thursday, Oct. 19, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. For more information, call the park office at 313-884-2305.

Grosse Pointe Woods

Grosse Pointe Woods picks up the Halloween baton on Wednesday, Oct. 25.

Residents are encouraged to attend "Hob Nobbin with the Goblins" at Lake Front Park from 6 to 8 p.m.

"The Halloween event has grown each year," said Eric Steiner, a Woods city councilman.

"A lot of people still talk about the old haunted bath house, which has been transformed into the park's new activities building. The haunted house scared children — they loved it. They kept going back."

Hob Nobbin is for Woods residents and costs $2 per person. Participants will receive a trick or treat bag.

Festivities include hay rides through the 55-acre park and a haunted house like the one Steiner spoke of.

There will also be a "giggling ghost jambo" which is another way to describe a Halloween sing-along.

The registration deadline for Hob Nobbin is Monday, Oct. 23. City officials said there will be "no exceptions." Call the Woods community center for more information: 313-343-2408.

Grosse Pointe Farms

"We're doing it a little differently this year," said Michele Balke, senior lifeguard and eight-year employee of Pier Park in Grosse Pointe Farms.

She was referring, of course, to the annual Halloween Party scheduled for Friday, Oct. 27, from 7 to 9 p.m., at Pier Park. The event is sponsored by the Farms recreation department.

"There were a ton of kids last year," said Balke. "It was more crowded than I'd seen it in past years."

Organizers of this year's party hope the new Costume Cavalcade will be a hit. The cavalcade replaces the costume contest of years past.

The Halloween party costs $4 per person. The first 300 children aged 12 and under to arrive will receive a bag of candy.

Dick Huhn, the Farms park director, said this year's Halloween party will include hay rides, a haunted bath house, prizes and refreshments.

"Each costume cavalcade participant will be recognized with a prize," said Huhn.

Cavalcade participants must register by 1 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 25. Registration forms are available at Pier Park and city offices at 90 Kerby Road.

For more information, call the Farms recreation department at (313) 343-2405. The rain date is Saturday.

See HOOPLA, page 3B

Halloween in the Park attracted an estimated 5,000 children and parents to Windmill Pointe Park a few years ago.

Oct. 28, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Grosse Pointe Park

"Halloween in the Park," at Windmill Pointe Park in Grosse Pointe Park, takes place on Saturday, Oct. 28, from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

Terri Soloman, the city recreation director and admitted chocoholic, has lined up 42 stations where trick or treaters can pick up treats. The selection includes eight types of chocolate candy.

"I know the best kind to get," laughed Soloman, who personally runs errands this time of year to buy candy in massive quantities.

About 1,300 children attended the celebration last year, she added. Parents brought the crowd to about 5,000.

"Parents never put down their video cameras. It's really neat," said Soloman.

She said most of the kids were less than 10 years old.

Each trick or treat station is manned by volunteers who add to the mood by wearing costumes. The first station is sponsored by the Park department of public safety.

"Officers will be in full uniform with McGruff the Crime Dog," said Soloman.

A string of costumed Halloween participants and their parents will begin their Windmill excursion outside the park's Thomkins Center. They'll meander through the scenic park from station to station. The midway spot is the concession stand, where visitors will be treated to free cider and doughnuts.

From there, ghosts and goblins, pirates and princesses will head to more candy stations scattered near the tennis courts. At the last stop, volunteers will hand out small pumpkins and bags of Halloween decorations.

Admission costs $3 per trick or treat. Participants must be in costume. Tickets must be bought in advance. No tickets will be sold the day of the event.

Questions? Call the parks and recreation department at (313) 822-2812.

The Village

"Trick or Treating in the Village takes place this year on Halloween, Tuesday, Oct. 31, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Village Association in conjunction with the City of Grosse Pointe, thousands of costumed ghouls aged 12 and under are expected to descend on the three-block Village shopping district on Kercheval.

Mike Kramer, head of the Grosse Pointe Village Association and owner of Kramer's Bed Bath & Window Fashions, credited City officials for helping add to the Village Halloween celebration's casual appeal.

The City department of public safety uses fire trucks and other emergency vehicles to block off Kercheval from Cadieux to Neff from 3 to 5 p.m. The action clears the street of vehicles so little revelers can dart around safely in search of their favorite sweets.

Business owners in the Village have been told to anticipate 3,000 trick or treaters at this year's event.

Kramer said the festival is scheduled to coincide with Halloween parties in Grosse Pointe schools.

"That way, the children are already in costume," said Kramer. "Their parents just have to bring them over to the Village."

He said children aren't the only ones who enjoy the event. Some store employees go full-bore with costumes and role playing.

"The employees get into it," said Kramer. "It's a lot of fun."

John Denomme, a member of the village association, owned the now-closed Village Records and Tapes. He remembers bringing his children to the Village Halloween celebration when they were little kids.

"It's a long standing tradition," said Denomme. "It's a blast."

What to wear?

On Halloween, people are rarely dressed up with no place to go. The question isn't where to go, but what to wear.

Ellen Durand, owner-manager of the Village Toy

Shop in the Village shopping district, said this year's crop of popular Halloween costumes includes deluxe dress-up items for girls and boys.

According to Durand, people this year should be on the lookout for little princesses and "lots of kings and pirates."

Girls will be wearing costumes colored pink and light blue. "The sillier the better," said Durand.

Witches will adorn themselves in attractive green and purple outfits.

Aren't witches supposed to be ugly?

"Not when it comes to little girls," said Durand. "Even if they're witches, they still like to be pretty."

The dress-up movement includes boys. Among popular outfits that boys can play in year-round, Durand said popular selections include firemen, astronauts and cowboys.

"We're very traditional in Grosse Pointe," she said.

At the Children's Orchard on Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods, employee Lea Rinn said Blue's Clues is a popular costume. The outfit transforms the bearer into the blue dog on a Nickelodeon television show of the same name. Other selections include Star Wars characters and Batman.

"Ballerinas and princesses are always popular," said Rinn. "We also sell a lot of bunny costumes."

For Halloween revelers whose costumes need extra oomph, Denise Kort, manager of Connie's Children's Shop on Mack in St. Clair Shores, has the answer.

Halloween-wise, she said, her store is a place where people can "pick up little odds and ends."

Popular items include bows that match the colors of college cheerleader outfits, and black tights for girls who dress up as cats, or mice.

She said her store carries festive Halloween hair bows, socks and sweaters with black and orange pumpkins.

"The kids are starting to come in and talk about Halloween," said Kort. "We can accessorize their costumes."

Durand added, "Halloween is big with kids. I'm glad it's back."

German-American Heritage Foundation

The German-American Heritage Foundation International will hold its fifth annual wine tasting party at 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 20 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Paul Mann of L&L Wine World will present notable vintages of the Rhineland in honor of Germany's 1990 reunification.

The evening will include gourmet cheeses, breads and fruits. Proceeds of the event will support the publication of a book, "The Germans of Greater Detroit, 1776-2000," an official partnership project of Detroit 300.

Honorary chairman of this year's event is Grosse Pointer John Rickel, at the left, whose family was a leading malt supplier to Detroit's brewery industry since 1876.

General chairman is Mary Bonten of Grosse Pointe Woods. Tickets for the party are $40. Call (313) 882-3097.

DSO opening party

The Gala Opening for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's 2000-01 season attracted some 500 guests to Orchestra Place on Sept. 22. The concert, held afterward in Orchestra Hall, featured the DSO and Harry Connick Jr.

Among those who attended were, from left, Lt. Gov. Dick Posthumus, and Grosse Pointers Lynne Girard Dewey, Alfred Glancy and Ann Lawson.

Symphony board plans benefit

The Pastor's Corner

Yom Kippur — Day of Atonement — 5761By Roger Skully
Special Writer

Yom Kippur is a solemn day of introspection and self-appraisal. During this time, self-examination and penitence are the themes — as is the desire to do better in the coming year.

The "Book of Life" is closed at the end of the day, but good deeds and true contrition can alter a bad decree. The silent confession in the prayer book, the "Gates of Repentance," offers an essence of this solemn day.

"In my individuality, I turn to You, O God, and seek Your help. For You care for each of Your children. You are my God and my Redeemer. Therefore, while around me others think their own thoughts, I think mine; and as each one of them seeks to experience Your presence, so do I.

"Each person's abilities are limited by nature and by the circumstances we have had to face. Whether I have done better or worse with my capacities than others with theirs, I cannot judge.

"But I do know that I have failed in many ways to live up to my potentialities and Your demands. Not that You expect the impossible. You do not ask me: Why have you not been great as Moses? You do ask me: Why have you not been yourself? Why have you not been true to the best in you?"

"I will not lay the blame on others, though they may have wronged me; nor on circumstances, though they may have been difficult. The fault lies mainly in myself.

"I have been weak. I have not loved enough, not even those closest to me. And do I not share some responsibility for the social evils which I see, hear about, and read about daily? Have I always used my opportunities as a citizen to relieve suffering, to speak out against injustice, to promote harmony in the life of my city, my country and the nations of the world?"

"Help me then, O God. Help me always, but especially now on this sacred Day of Atonement. Help me to banish from myself whatever is mean, ugly, callous, cruel, stubborn or otherwise unworthy of a being created in Your image. Purify me, revive me, uplift me. Forgive my past and lead me into the future, resolved to be Your servant."

Inscribe us, our friends, neighbors and loved ones (even those not-so-loved ones) in the Book of Life for another year of life and health. Amen and amen.

Auction 2000

The Presbyterian Women of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church will present Auction 2000 on Friday, Oct. 27, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Ronald McDonald House, a home away from home for sick children and their families, and the International Justice Mission of Washington, D.C., which seeks referrals from overseas missionaries and relief workers and attempts to intervene on behalf of victims of injustice and abuse. Other mission projects will also benefit from the funds raised at the auction.

Auction items include a gold Seiko watch, three new Huffy children's bicycles, a 14-foot sailboat with sails and trailer, the new American Girl doll, a quilted patchwork throw made by the Presbyterian Women's sewing group and an original watercolor painting of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church by Dick Reins. Grosse Pointer Amy Liang, a seventh-grader, has donated an apple pie. Liang earned a blue ribbon for cooking at the recent Michigan State Fair. Other items will include hand-knitted sweaters, vacation homes, restaurant and sports event packages and a christening gown made in the European tradition.

The silent auction and strolling dinner portion of the evening begins at 6:30 p.m.; the live auction begins at 9 p.m. Tickets are $35 for the entire evening. Call (313) 882-5330.

At the left are Cynthia Hempstead, chairman for the dinner, and Maud Moody, chairman of decorations for the dinner. At the right, are Lisa Turner, auction chairman, and church member Anne Lees, a board member for the Ronald McDonald House.

Celtic Celebration

The Crossing, a Chicago-based Christian musical group, will present a Celtic Celebration beginning at 6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22, in Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church's Fellowship Hall, 19950 Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Families, bosses are partners for interventions

By Jeff and Debra Jay
Special Writers

Dear Jeff and Debra:

I run a business with just under 50 employees. Recently, I heard something through the grapevine about one of my employees. According to one of his co-workers, the employee's family got together and asked him to get professional help for his alcohol problem. He turned his family's request down with the excuse that he'd be fired if he went into treatment.

Although this employee shows up for work on time and doesn't have any serious problems on the job, I've noticed that he seems a bit bleary in the mornings and is slow to get started. Now that I've heard about his drinking, I realize that he's probably hung over most mornings.

I'm displeased to hear that he told his family we'd fire him if he got help. In fact, it would be quite the opposite. We would support any employee who needed help for an alcohol problem. Do you have any suggestions so we can let our employees know that we do support treatment?

— Supportive Manager

Dear Supportive:

You are right to be concerned. Addiction is devastating not only for the health of your employees, but for the health of your business. Corporate America pays out $102 billion every year in losses directly attributed to the alcohol and drug problems of its employees. This price tag includes $500 million lost workdays every 12 months. Other losses to businesses include decreased productivity; poor job performance; increased dissatisfaction by customers, vendors, and clients; deterioration of product quality and reliability of services; higher health care costs; workplace theft; strained employee relationships; lower workplace morale; and higher occurrences of accidents.

James Fearing, Ph.D., author of "Workplace Intervention," puts these costs into perspective when he tells the story of a Pennsylvania oil-refinery director who commissioned his human resource department to research the cost of addiction to his company. Fearing writes: "After months of gathering information and testing models, they (the human resource staff) presented their findings. The direct cost of substance abuse and dependence was conservatively estimated at more than $2 million a year."

While addiction goes unidentified in the workplace, employees' family members and friends are usually acutely aware of the problem. As alcoholism or drug addiction becomes increasingly intolerable within the family, the alcoholic may be successfully hiding the problem at work. When a family performs a structured intervention designed to motivate an alcoholic or addict to accept help, work is the number one objection used to avoid treatment.

Professional interventionists strongly recommend that families prepare for this objection by contacting the workplace prior to the intervention to arrange for medical leave, and, when possible, to ask the supervisor to support the employee's decision to get help. When the family has the support of the employer, the success of the intervention is almost certain. Yet, in preparing for an intervention, contacting the workplace causes families more concern and fear than any other issue. Many times they will risk a failed intervention rather than contact the alcoholic's workplace.

Since families usually recognize addiction in a loved one years before the workplace recognizes it in an employee, families are a valuable resource to businesses concerned about correcting this costly problem. Educating employees, supervisors, and managers about the workplace's role in family intervention is a good starting point. Offering concerned families confidential support through employee assistance programs or company help lines can ease fears about including the workplace in the planning of an intervention.

As for your employee, talk with him. Tell him you heard about what happened with his family. Let him know that you've noticed that he isn't at his best in the mornings. Tell him that you support treatment and, if alcohol is problematic in his life, you hope he makes the right choice and gets help immediately.

Dear Readers:

We'd like to announce the publication of our new book, "Love First: A New Approach to Intervention for Alcoholism and Drug Addiction." Published by Hazelden, the book directs families on how they can lovingly intervene on someone with an alcohol or other drug problem. The book stresses that by using love first, families may never have to use tough love.

The book is available at bookstores, on-line book-sellers or directly through Hazelden Publishing by calling (800) 328-9000.

Stroke rate may be associated with vitamin C level

Individuals with high blood levels of vitamin C have a significantly reduced risk of stroke, according to a long-term study reported in the October issue of Stroke: Journal of the American Heart Association.

Higher intake of fruits, vegetables and other foods rich in vitamin C and potassium have been associated with lower stroke rates in previous studies.

"To my knowledge, this is the first prospective study to make the correlation between vitamin C in the bloodstream and incidence of stroke," says author Dr. Tetsuji Yokoyama, research associate in epidemiology at the Medical Research Institute of Tokyo Medical and Dental University. "The risk of stroke was inversely related to vitamin C in the bloodstream and frequency of vegetable consumption."

The researchers examined 880 men and 1,241 women in rural Japan which were divided into four groups according to the level of vitamin C in their blood. Among the participants, 196 strokes occurred during a 20-year period beginning in 1977.

"The risk of stroke was 70 percent higher among those in the lowest quarter than those in the highest," says Yokoyama.

When researchers examined strokes based on the number of days per week the participants ate fruits and vegetables, they found a similar relationship. The clearest association was for vegetable consumption.

"The risk of all types of stroke was 58 percent lower among those who consumed vegetables six to seven days per week, compared to those who only consumed them up to two days a week," notes Yokoyama.

Higher concentrations of vitamin C in the blood provided benefits even in patients with other risk factors, such as high blood pressure, heavier alcohol consumption, smoking or lower physical activity. However, these risk factors did reduce the benefits somewhat. The reasons are unclear, but smoking and alcohol may interfere with vitamin C absorption or metabolism.

"Thus, we recommend healthy behaviors such as eating fruits and vegetables frequently, not smoking, avoiding excessive drinking and being moderately physically active," Yokoyama says.

Although blood vitamin C levels also rise with vitamin C supplements, it was rare to take vitamin supplements in this Japanese community when the study began and therefore researchers cannot confirm the same benefit from them.

The 196 strokes that occurred included 109 cerebral infarctions — a stroke in which blood flow to the brain is blocked — and 54 hemorrhagic strokes, which occur when an artery in the brain bursts. Another 33 strokes were of undetermined type.

Because a risk reduction was observed in both types of stroke, Yokoyama says the responsible mechanism probably extends beyond vitamin C's known antioxidant effects. Cerebral infarctions are considered to be the result of atherosclerosis, the build-up of fatty deposits in arteries. Antioxidants can prevent the build-up. Hemorrhagic stroke, on the other hand, results from a ruptured blood vessel in the brain.

"One plausible explanation is that vitamin C may be a marker for higher intake of other nutrients which may protect against stroke," explains Yokoyama.

Although widespread screening to determine blood vitamin C levels might eventually be a good idea, it is too early to make such a recommendation, Yokoyama suggests.

The researchers are preparing a database to analyze the association between blood levels of vitamin C and subsequent incidence of heart attack in the same population.

Hearty soup warms the soul

Beer soup has been around since the 17th century when the average English person (including children) consumed about 3 liters of beer per day.

Beer was considered a primary source of nourishment, second only to bread. One of the original recipe's for beer soup consisted of hot beer mixed with butter and a couple of eggs, poured over a roll or a chunk of bread.

Fortunately, modern times have led to the addition of cheese and other ingredients to please our 21st century palates.

The following recipe is from the "Wild Women in The Kitchen Cookbook."

Bubbly Beer Cheese Soup

1 quart chicken broth
1 small onion, diced
2 1/2 lb. potatoes, peeled and coarsely chopped

1 quart 2 percent milk
4 tablespoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon black pepper

4 cups shredded cheddar cheese (mild or sharp)
1 cup beer

In a large pot, bring the chicken broth to a boil. Add the potatoes and the onion and simmer for 30 minutes or until the potatoes are very tender. Remove pot from heat, cool for 10 minutes or so and stir in the milk. In small batches, puree the mix in a blender or food processor and return to the pot. Stir in the soy sauce and the pepper. Bring the pot back to a simmer and add the cheese, stirring until the cheese is melted. Add the beer and stir. The beer will make the soup hubble. Ladle hot bubbly beer

Have you had a physical lately?

by Michelle Schreiber, M.D.

Parents take their children to the doctor frequently for immunizations, ear infections and check ups, while often ignoring their own health.

Have you had a check up lately?

If you're an adult 50 or older, you should visit your physician every year for a general medical exam. Adults in their 40's should be seen every other year. Those in their 20's or 30's should be seen two or three times in their respective decades.

A general exam is important in maintaining optimum health and potential early diagnosis of health problems. Conditions such as diabetes, hypertension and high cholesterol can be managed most effectively when detected early.

In addition, a physician can provide valuable guidance about:

- adult immunizations (pneumonia, influenza (flu), hepatitis)
- appropriate cancer screenings
- healthy lifestyle changes with regard to diet, exercise, smoking, and alcohol use

So try to remember when you last had a physical and contact your health professional if you're overdue. You'll look and feel better and be more productive if you're healthy.

Team leaders play key role as Red Barons varsity wins first four

Because of the play of its leaders, the Grosse Pointe Red Barons varsity football team is off to a 4-0 start.

The Barons overcame a 12-0 first-quarter deficit and five turnovers to defeat St. Clair Shores at Lake Shore High School.

"When we were down, it was our leaders who stepped up and took the game over," said Barons coach Brett Kurily. "They did the job."

There were a number of stars for the Barons and Kurily especially singled out the offensive and defensive play of Brian St. Hilaire, Brian Dempsey, Chase Mitchelson, Austin McClung and Cameron Cecchini.

After St. Clair Shores took a 12-0 lead, scoring twice on its first five offensive plays, the defense, coached by Tom Borland, adjusted and started to take control of the game.

Tom Paglia's 39-yard touchdown run and St. Hilaire's two-point conversion kick narrowed the margin to 12-8 at halftime.

The Barons took the lead for good on Dempsey's 10-yard run with four minutes remaining in the game. St. Hilaire's kick made it 16-8.

St. Clair Shores' hope for a comeback ended when McClung led a defensive line charge that resulted in a safety in the final minute.

"Our defense dominated the second half," said Kurily. "They kept them deep in their zone."

Kurily said one of the key plays in the second half was a sack by Cecchini to end a promising St. Clair Shores drive.

"It was another gut check game for us and we came through," he said.

In the other games, the Red Barons junior varsity lost to St. Clair Shores 40-27 and the freshman team was defeated 25-6.

In the junior varsity game, running back Brendan Howe put on an outstanding performance in a losing cause for the Barons (0-3-1).

Howe rushed for more than 150 yards and scored two touchdowns. He also caught three passes and was 3-for-3 passing.

The Red Barons' other touchdowns were scored by quarterback Marc Reno and running back Johnathan Ross.

It was the Barons JV's best offensive showing of the season. Among the blocking stars were Mike Dallaire, Chris Kemetz, Brandon Sheffield, J.P. Gallagher and Joe Conway. Alex Symonds kicked the team's first two-point conversion of the season.

Dan Walsh and Dan Karam played well on defense.

In the freshman game, Mark Karam scored on a two-yard run for the Barons' only points. The team is now 1-1-2.

Coach Jack Monark was pleased with the defense that kept his team in contention until late in the fourth quarter.

Those who played well defensively included linemen Andrew Faber and Zak Schrodre and defensive backs Jim St. John and Andrew Philbrick. Philbrick had an interception in the end zone.

Red Barons-Macomb
Willie Bryant's first run of the season for the Grosse Pointe Red Barons varsity football team was a memorable one.

Bryant, on the Red Barons' first offensive play, scored from seven yards out to start his team on the way to a 66-0 victory over the Macomb Mustangs at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Bryant also scored in the third quarter as Red Barons coach Brett Kurily used 12 different running backs in an effort to hold the score down. The Red Barons didn't attempt a pass in the game.

In the other two games, the Red Barons junior varsity lost a tough 13-0 decision to Macomb and the Barons freshmen posted an impressive 34-0 victory.

In the varsity game, quarterback Brian St. Hilaire ran for two touchdowns and fullback Brian Dempsey ran for one touchdown and returned an interception for another. The other touchdowns were scored by Chase Mitchelson, Ryan Stephens, Tommy Peltz and Kyle DeBets. DeBets' score came on a 36-yard interception return.

"The running game went well," Kurily said. "We had a lot of great blocking."

Kurily praised the blocking of fullbacks Max Yankley and Cameron Cecchini, lineman Billy Matouk and tight end David DeBoer.

The Barons' defense, which is coached by Tom Borland, has held opponents scoreless for seven quarters. Among many defensive stars, linemen Brent Brown and Scott Koppinger had outstanding games.

In the junior varsity game, Macomb, which was led by quarterback Rich Beebe, scored twice in the final seven minutes for the victory.

The Barons had first-and-goal inside the 10-yard line twice in the first half but failed to score.

The JV offense was led by the running of Brandon Brown, Mike Dallaire, Geoffrey Osgood and quarterback Marc Reno.

Coach Doug Lutenberger praised the blocking of Pete Mitchell, Chris Kemetz and J.P. Gallagher.

Defensively, the team was again led by linebacker Matt Koppinger. He had an interception and knocked down a pass in the end zone to stop a conversion attempt. Kyle South also stood out on defense.

In the freshman game, the Red Barons used a diversified offense, led by quarterback Mark Riashi, to gain its first win after two ties.

Riashi threw a 23-yard touchdown pass to Jack Monark, then ran for a four-yard score to give his team a quick 14-0 lead.

His four-yard touchdown pass to Jim Saros made it 20-0 at halftime.

A 49-yard run by Saros and Riashi's four-yard TD pass to David Casleman completed the scoring.

Running backs Stephen Reaume and Bobby Peltz also had outstanding games, and each ran twice for successful conversions.

Mark Karam provided several strong blocks.

The defense completely shut down the Mustangs. Jim St. John, Reid Fragel, Frank Ferretti, Jeff Simon and Joey Kurily were among several defensive standouts.

Change in offense lights a spark under ULS football team

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

After two straight shutout defeats, University Liggett School football coach Tracy Sewell decided it was time for a change.

Although it didn't result in a victory, the change did put a spark in the Knights

"I thought it was a good play, but they stopped us."

That didn't faze the Blue Devils.

Vlasak pinned Stevenson deep in its territory with one of several good punts and the defense did its job by forcing the Titans to punt from their five.

South's Barry Novak blocked the kick and Chris Getz pounced on it in the end zone, but it eluded his grasp and went out of the end zone for a safety to tie the game at 14-14.

The Blue Devils' Brian Berschback came up with another key defensive play on Stevenson's next possession. The Titans had driven to the South 30 and they tried a fourth-down pass, but it was broken up on a jarring hit by Berschback.

On South's final possession, Vlasak completed a 54-yard pass to Paul Lochirco that took the Blue Devils to the Stevenson nine.

"I considered going for the field goal then, but Stevenson called a timeout to ice the kicker," McLeod said. "When that happened I told Vlasak to throw the ball out of the end zone and we'd kick on second down."

Samhat replaced Jarboe at tailback in the second half and rushed for 81 yards. When he got hurt, Jason Kline came in and picked up 17 yards in three carries.

"We just kept running tailbacks into the game and they all did a great job," McLeod said.

The defensive effort was also impressive for the Blue Devils.

Peppler made 20 tackles and Luke Parchment and Berschback each had nine. Jack Tocco and Samhat were also among the leading tacklers. Lochirco and Berschback also had interceptions.

"Jarrett Svendsen and Sean O'Sullivan both did a great job inside on defense," McLeod said. "They took out three blockers on every snap."

McLeod also had praise for the offensive line play.

"We dominated the line play in the second half," he said. "We were really getting off the ball quickly. The one thing we have to work on is holding the blocks a little longer."

and got some points on the scoreboard.

"We threw the ball all over the field," Sewell said after the Knights' 33-13 Metro Conference loss to unbeaten Livonia Clarenceville.

"We used every passing formation you could think of. We spread our receivers all over the field and threw the ball 44 times. We've been using pretty much the same offense for the last seven years and people know what we're going to do. This will give them something else to think about."

ULS still has an outside shot of making the state playoffs but the Knights have to win their last two games, at home Saturday against Harper Woods and at Lutheran Northwest on Oct. 21.

The Knights fell behind early against Clarenceville and trailed 33-0 at halftime.

"I think our young kids might have been a little bit intimidated when their big horses got off the bus, but once they got over the fear factor, they played a lot better," Sewell said.

ULS scored its first touchdown early in the third quarter.

Freshman Barre' Mackie returned the second-half kickoff 70 yards to the Trojans' one-yard line. Quarterback Jeff Legree got the final yard on a sneak through the hole created by tackle Leython Williams.

"That helped get us into the game," Sewell said.

In the fourth quarter, Legree completed a swing pass to Charles Lowe for a 20-yard touchdown.

"We were in our super spread formation that we used in the state playoff game against (Ann Arbor) Gabriel Richard last year,"

Sewell said.

That's the formation where a tackle and a receiver are spread to one side in front of the running back.

"We had Audi Moss and Andy Critchell split in front of Charles and they both made good blocks," Sewell said.

Legree completed 24 passes, including nine for 78 yards to Lowe.

"Once Jeff relaxed a little more in the second half, he was able to hold the ball just a hair longer to get off the better pass," Sewell said. "Audi and Charles both made some nice catches."

"I think it was fun for the kids to practice this week. And it gave us a better opportunity to move the football."

Clarenceville running backs Tim Shaw and Steve Meadows are among the best in the area and the Trojans also have a receiver who is a top college prospect.

"Shaw, who has the best vision of any player I've seen this year, made one catch where he got his big paw up, tipped the ball a couple of times and went 60 yards for a touchdown," Sewell said.

Sewell was pleased with the Knights' defensive effort, especially in the second half. "Clarenceville's coach put his horses back in a couple of times to get first downs and we were able to stop them," Sewell said.

Standouts on defense were linebackers Williams, who had 12 tackles, and Critchell, who made eight stops.

"Those kids are doing a great job," Sewell said. "Leython is only 15 and Andy just turned 16 last week. They're playing against 17- and 18-year-old men."

South wins twice in MAC Red

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It was more than just the starting lineup that made key contributions to Grosse Pointe South's two basketball victories last week.

In a 43-35 overtime win against Utica Eisenhower, Stephanie Ritok sent the game into overtime with a late basket and Liz Halpin put the Blue Devils ahead to stay in the extra period.

And in South's 47-45 win over Port Huron Northern, Liz Laciura came off the bench to give the Blue Devils a huge boost in the second half.

"Liz did a great job off the bench," said coach Peggy Van Eckoute. "She had all eight of her points in the third quarter when we needed somebody to step up and keep us in the game. And she also had six rebounds."

"We have to continue to get contributions like that from everyone on the team."

The two victories evened South's record in the Macomb Area Conference

Red Division at 2-2 and they improved the Blue Devils' overall mark to 5-5.

The PHN game turned out to be a thriller after South dominated the first half. The Blue Devils led by 10 points after one quarter and still held a 22-15 lead at halftime.

South took a 35-26 lead into the final quarter, but it was a different Huskies team that came out after the timeout.

"They came out like gangbusters in that fourth quarter," Van Eckoute said. "They pressed and we committed some turnovers."

PHN tied the score on three free throws with 17 seconds left.

"We all thought that Lawren Morawski, who had blocked two shots before, had another clean block on the three-point attempt but they called her for the foul," Van Eckoute said.

Then one of the Huskies' player had a mental lapse that proved costly. With the score tied at 45-45, she fouled Megan Shapiro at midcourt and Shapiro dropped in both free throws with 11 seconds to go.

South put pressure on the inbounds play and PHN failed to get the ball across the midcourt line before time expired.

Morawski had an outstanding game with 16 points and five rebounds. She had 11 points in the first half.

"They were playing man-to-man and Lawren broke them down," Van Eckoute said. "She just kept going to the basket."

Shapiro finished with 13 points, four assists and three steals and Sylvia Ridgway had seven rebounds and played a strong defensive game.

The Eisenhower game was a different story. This time South trailed early. The Eagles led 9-4 after the first quarter and they still had a 20-18 edge at halftime.

"We kept fighting," Van Eckoute said. "We could have folded at the end of the first quarter, but we didn't." The lead changed hands several times in the second half before Ritok hit the tying basket.

The overtime was all South. Halpin quickly put the Blue Devils in front and they outscored Eisenhower 8-0 in the extra period.

South spread out its offense once it got the lead. The Eagles were forced to foul and Shapiro, who led all scorers with 22 points, made five of her six free throws in the overtime.

"Megan was on fire in the second quarter," Van Eckoute said. "She had 11 points in the quarter. Then in overtime, we tried to get the ball in her hands because she's so good from the line."

Lyndsay Dalby had six points and five rebounds for South and Ridgway pulled down seven rebounds.

"Sylvia also had a great defensive game against their 6-2 girl," Van Eckoute said. "Sylvia's only 5-10 — in her shoes."

Norsemen get two easy victories

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It was probably too much to expect Grosse Pointe North's girls basketball team to be at its sharpest against a pair of teams that have been struggling this year.

So North coach Gary Bennett was pleased with the effort his team showed in rolling to Macomb Area Conference White Division victories against Warren-Mott (76-27) and Sterling Heights (44-22).

"We played hard," Bennett said of the two wins that gave the Norsemen a 10-0 overall record and a 4-0 mark in league play.

It gets quite a bit tougher in the week ahead. North hosts Chippewa Valley tonight, Oct. 12, then travels to Fraser for a showdown against the Ramblers, who were tied with the Norsemen for first place in the MAC White.

"Chippewa's quick, even quicker than we are," Bennett said. "And the Fraser game should be a tough one, too."

Bennett won't have to worry about complacency in those games, but it could have been a problem last week.

"I thought we played really hard against Sterling Heights," Bennett said. "They've been having a tough time and it would have been easy to take them lightly. They had difficulty doing anything against our defense. We didn't have a lot of steals, but we usually got the ball back without having them score."

North led 13-4 at the end of the first quarter and stretched the margin to 24-10 at halftime.

Although the game was never really in doubt, Bennett also lauded the efforts of the Stallions.

"You have to give Tom's kids (Sterling Heights coach Tom Dailey) a lot of credit," Bennett said. "They're having a tough year but they still work hard. They never let this game get totally away from them."

Stephanie Rose led North with 13 points and four steals. Jaime Francis contributed nine points and five rebounds, Beth Bigham had six assists and Shelby Simmon collected five points and three rebounds.

Everyone who dressed for the Mott game broke into the scoring column for North.

Meredith Farmer led the scoring with 17 points. Francis finished with 11 points, five steals and three assists and Jill Bramos had 10 points, six steals and five assists.

Bigham had a season-high nine assists and five steals and Lindsay Koerber finished with six points, five steals and three rebounds.

Mustangs' spurt spoils Knights' day

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

The story of University Liggett School's girls basketball game with Lutheran North was written during a six-minute stretch in the second quarter.

That's when the Mustangs outscored ULS 19-1 on the way to a 61-49 victory over the Knights in the battle of unbeaten Metro Conference teams.

"We outscored them 7-0 in the first two minutes of the second quarter and then we didn't score again until there was a minute and a half left in the first half," said ULS coach John Bandos.

"They started putting pressure on us and we committed a lot of turnovers. We tried different things to break the press but nothing worked. We played much better in the second half, but we had dug too deep a hole."

The Knights led 20-15 after their 7-0 run, but by halftime the Mustangs held a 34-21 advantage.

ULS, which trailed 44-27 after three quarters, whittled the lead down to 10 points in the fourth quarter, but the Knights were forced to foul. North answered by making nine of its 17 fourth-quarter points from the free

Senior captain steps up for Norsemen

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's Julia Weinert did just what a senior captain is supposed to do.

She stepped up and set an example for the rest of her teammates last weekend to help North's girls cross country team finish third in the 11-team Ypsilanti Invitational, only three points behind second-place Livonia Ladywood.

"She ran a 20:28, that's her best time by a minute," said North coach Scott Cooper. "I think she just decided that she had to step it up. And she took that next step and set an example as a senior captain."

"After the race she said she had never felt that good. She said it was fun to run with the top group."

Weinert's time was good enough for third place overall in the meet.

Laura Secord, Erika Palazzolo and Katie Walton were the next three North runners to hit the finish line and they also earned medals.

Rounding out the top seven were Sharon Thomas, Renee Bryzik and Alyssa Simon. Simon broke into the top seven for the first time.

"That was the best our top people have run as a group all season," Cooper said.

North posted 20 personal records in the meet. One that stood out was by freshman Elise Fields.

"She ran her best race on a tough course," Cooper said.

Another impressive performance came from another senior captain, Emily Borushko.

"Emily had been one of our top varsity runners for the last three years but this season has been a struggle for her because of a lot of physical ailments," Cooper said. "She has stayed positive through it all and was our ninth runner at Ypsilanti. She's a good example of someone who didn't give up when things weren't going well."

In last week's Macomb Area Conference White Division dual competition, North blanked East Detroit 15-50 but suffered a 27-30 loss to Chippewa Valley.

"We knew it would be close and then when Julia Weinert had back pain, we held her out," Cooper said. "You never like to lose, but I told the girls that they all ran their best and that's all you can do."

"We had 58 girls finish the race and 39 of them had PRs (personal records)," Cooper said. "How can you be upset when you do that?"

Secord led the North varsity group, followed by Palazzolo, Thomas, Walton, Bryzik, Kathryn Veyser and Susan Rhee.

Several performers turned in exceptional efforts during the race.

"Michelle Broderick and Lauren Saffron are a couple of first-year runners who had been basketball players," Cooper said. "They're best friends but they're constantly pushing each other to go faster and they're moving up with every meet."

"Jennifer Makowski is a freshman who has been improving all the time. She has taken seven minutes off her time from her first race. And Katie Rabidoux has cut nearly six minutes off her first race. She's a good example of a runner who probably won't break into the top group this year but is working as hard as anybody."

Senior cross country runners set a good example at North

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

The young runners on Grosse Pointe North's boys cross country team would do well to follow the lead of seniors Pat Kenny and John Lucido — and not just on the course.

"Pat and John are great examples of how people can develop with the right attitude and a lot of hard work," said North coach Pat Wilson after Kenny and Lucido led the Norsemen to Macomb Area Conference White Division victories over East Detroit (15-50) and Chippewa Valley (15-46) last week.

"As freshmen, they were both average at best, but they've become quality runners who have medaled in every invitational we've run in this year. They've come a long way. I think we have some young kids on this year's team who can develop into good runners if they follow Pat's and John's lead."

Kenny set a record for North's Vernier Park course with a 16:41 clocking, which was also a personal record for him.

Lucido was second in 17:26, followed by Andy Kapordelis, Roland Vandembroecke and Nate Mikula.

"Andy and Roland both had big drops — 30 to 40 seconds. Nate and Greg Blackburn each dropped down to some good times. I think we're ready for the regional (on Oct. 28)," Wilson said.

There were several other runners who posted personal records, including freshman David Secord.

"He was our No. 8 runner in the meet and he's the third-fastest freshman in my 12 years coaching here," Wilson said.

Other with PRs were Steve Ireland, Jeff Hohlfeldt, Todd Ulrich, Bill Saffron, Eric Burton, Robert Rizzo, Rich Thoma, Matt Stasiewicz, Dan Zylinski, Jason Garvin, A.J. Seater, Paul Frick and Steve Ogilvy.

"It was quite a day," Wilson said. "It was a meet that we felt we'd win, so we trained through the meet, but we had a big crowd and that must have inspired the kids."

North followed that performance with a third-place finish at last weekend's Ypsilanti Invitational.

Kenny was fourth overall, two places ahead of Lucido. They each earned medals along with Vandembroecke, who was 21st, and Kapordelis, who finished 23rd. "It's a tough course so we did pretty well," Wilson said.

Two freshmen posted PRs at Ypsilanti. Kevin Kwiatkowski knocked about 30 seconds off his best time and John Herbst improved by more than 20 seconds.

Other winners for ULS were Lauren Ealao, Julie Megler and Beth Sanders in singles and the doubles teams of Nayla Kazzi and Katie Maurer, Lizzie Campbell and Sejal Parikh and Remi Alle and Katie Jones.

ULS tennis team tunes up for state regional

University Liggett School's girls tennis team won one of the battles of the Grosse Pointes in convincing fashion last week.

The Knights rolled to an 8-0 victory over Grosse Pointe North to remain unbeaten in dual meets.

This week, ULS expected to get a stiffer test from Grosse Pointe South as a tuneup for Friday's Division IV regional tournament hosted by the Knights.

"Country Day and Sacred Heart Academy look like our toughest competition in the regional," said ULS coach Chuck Wright.

"Country Day is stronger this year and we had some close matches in our dual meet with them."

The following week is the state meet and Wright foresees a four-team battle.

"We'll go in as the No. 1 team (in the rankings) but North Muskegon, Muskegon Catholic and Country Day are strong, too," Wright said.

In last week's win over North, the closest matches were at No. 4 singles where Jessica Spriet posted a 6-2, 7-5 victory and at fourth doubles where Callie Shumaker and Puja Venkat posted a 6-3, 6-4 win.

Other winners for ULS were Lauren Ealao, Julie Megler and Beth Sanders in singles and the doubles teams of Nayla Kazzi and Katie Maurer, Lizzie Campbell and Sejal Parikh and Remi Alle and Katie Jones.

South soccer team wins three thrillers

Grosse Pointe South's boys soccer team bounced back from two early-season setbacks in the Macomb Area Conference White Division to post three one-goal victories.

The winning streak started with a 1-0 win over Romeo.

Although the Blue Devils controlled the game, the only goal was scored by Demetri Salvaggio on a free kick from Rob Rogers.

The win featured solid goalkeeping by Brandon McRill, strong defense from Nate Minnick and smart midfield play from David Minnick.

"It seems their intensity has picked up a bit," said coach Steve Adolph. "We have been working on finishing."

South followed that effort with a 2-1 win over Utica. Cameron Barnett converted a crossing pass from Rogers for the first Blue Devils goal. The winner came from Erion Likaj during a goalmouth scramble.

David Minnick scored a pair of goals and Salvaggio had a goal and an assist in South's 4-3 victory over Grosse Pointe North.

Ryan McKenzie scored the Blue Devils' other goal. Ed Bommarito picked up an assist.

The win was highlighted by excellent defensive play by South sweeper Andy Lapish.

Earlier, South dropped a 5-1 decision to L'Anse Creuse North. Salvaggio scored the only South goal on a penalty kick.

The Blue Devils dominated play against Fraser but the Ramblers came away with a 1-0 victory.

Fine midfield play from Mike Wolking and Scott Berschback kept Fraser's forward attack under control. Goalie Pete Marantette made several clutch saves before he left the game with an injury.

South got strong defensive support from Tom Baxter and Lapish.

throw line.

"The girls were disappointed but they know they tried and I can't be disappointed with their effort," Bando said.

The defeat left ULS 7-1 in the Metro Conference while North completed the first half of the league schedule with an 8-0 mark.

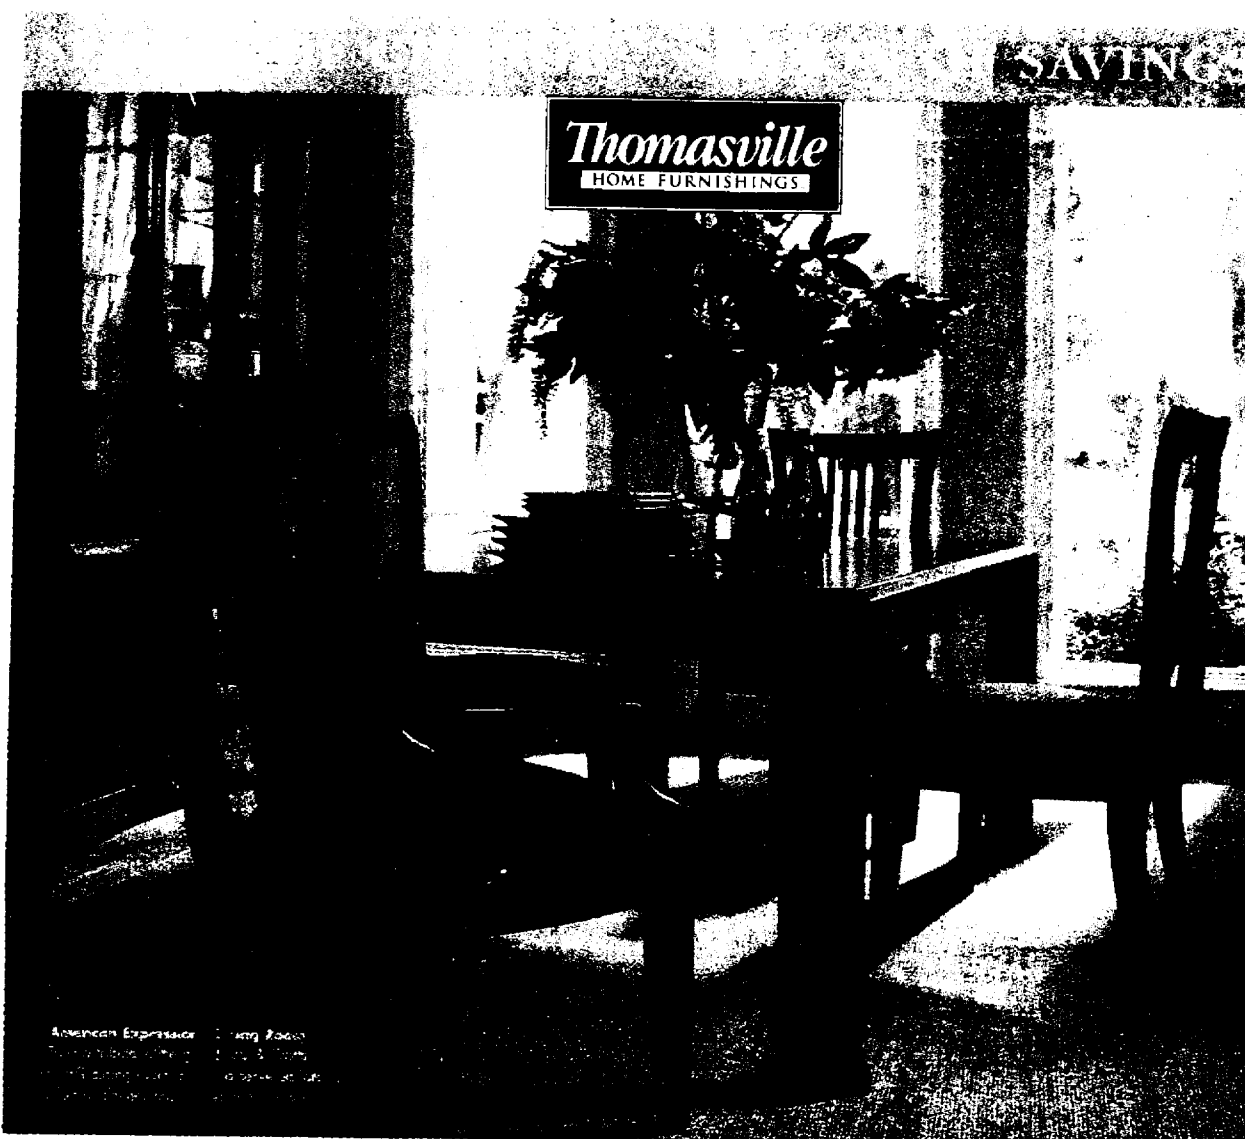

"We'll get them again at home (on Nov. 2), but we can't look ahead to that game yet," Bando said. "We just have to take care of things one game at a time."

Maria Lewis led ULS with 16 points and also had four rebounds and a steal. Sherma Brown scored 10 points and had four steals and six assists.

"Sherma really distributed the ball well, especially in the fourth quarter," Bando said.

Alexa Davenport had nine points, three rebounds and four steals. Courtney Hills had seven points and five rebounds. Kia Williamson had six rebounds and five points and Tara Terry pulled down four rebounds.

The Knights host Lutheran Westland, which is third in the Metro with a 6-2 record, tonight, Oct. 12.

How to enjoy the many fruits of your labor

Q. My new house has an apple tree in the yard and it looks diseased. What can be done to save it?

A. This year we saw diseases spread on many trees. The leaves and fruit of your apple tree probably have black spots on them. The disease is called scab and the best time to control it is in the early spring. Scab is common on apple trees if they were not sprayed throughout the year. It does not mean that the tree cannot be saved. This fall the leaves will drop off and we will have a new opportunity to start all over again next spring.

It is best to clean up the fallen leaves this fall and put them out for recycling with your weekly trash pick-up. These leaves contain many disease spores that will over-winter and spread next year if not cleaned up. Next you should spray the tree with a dormant oil spray and lime sulfur spray. These two can be mixed together and sprayed as one. This will help kill over-wintering insects and diseases.

Spraying is not hard to do and the chemicals are not nearly as toxic to people as some other sprays. When you do any spraying always wear rubber gloves and wear a hat, long-sleeve shirt and long pants. It is important too to spray with the wind at your back so the drift does not blow back at you.

Next year you will need to start in the early spring with the same spray then later start using a fruit tree spray like Ortho's home orchard spray. This will need to be

Sales by Titan Management

Just as in the past, today's advertisers want to put their message in front of buyers. The places chosen for ads are often unexpected.

From about 1870 to 1900, clocks placed in public spaces, like barbershops or drug stores, were popular with advertisers. The earliest clocks were wooden with a pendulum or a spring-wound mechanism. Later clocks were electric with metal cases or, since the 1940s, plastic cases. The advertising clock is still used, but it might have lights or neon trim. The old, wooden barbershop clock often displayed ads for razors. Many pictured a man shaving. Clocks were rented or loaned to the barbershop.

The Gem Damaskeene Razor clock pictures a man busy shaving. He has a small mirror, shaving mug and brush perched on the arm of a chair. With one hand, he's shaving, while the other hand holds a squirming baby who has grabbed the man's towel. The clock was made by Sessions of repeated about every two weeks though the summer. It sounds like a lot of work, but each spraying should only take you 15 minutes once you have all your materials and sprayer.

Spraying your tree this fall and next spring will control the insects and diseases that will be around next year. This time next year you will be picking bushels of apples.

The same procedure is needed to control scab on crab apple trees as well as roses and other plants that are susceptible to leaf spot and scab disease. You will not be using the home orchard spray in the summer unless it is a fruit tree.

This fall is also a good time to trim that tree back. Trimming will make the tree stronger and give you more fruit too. Just trim with the goal of thinning the tree out and keeping it symmetrical in shape. Don't be too worried about doing a bad job trimming. It is like getting a haircut. Even if you cut too much it will always grow back.

Trimming is easier with the right tools. Have a sharp pair of loppers and a tree saw to do the job right. A pole trimmer is great for the higher up branches. This is a saw and a pruner attached to the Forestville, Conn., about 1910. This rare clock is worth more than $4,000.

Q. I have inherited a marquetry center table from my grandparents. They purchased the table decades ago when a Chicago mansion was being torn down and all of its furnishings sold. The table is in the Renaissance Revival style and is made of walnut with walnut veneers. A faded paper label under the table top is hard to read, but I believe it reads, "George Gilbert, 261 Wabash, Chicago."

A. Mr. Gilbert probably owned a retail furniture store at the Wabash Avenue address. The style of your table was popular during the 1870s and '80s. Many similar tables were made in the Midwest, especially in the furniture-making center of Grand Rapids, Mich. Depending on the workmanship and condition of your table, it should sell from $1,000 to $2,500.

Furnace filters, how best to capture the dust?

Q. Mr. Hardware, my electronic air filter doesn't do a good job of capturing the dust. I'm not sure it ever did a great job, but my wife is trying to get me to replace it with a new one. What do you suggest I do before I become "king of the dust bunnies and not king of the castle?" Dust Mite in St. Clair Shores.

A. Dear Mr. Mite, you could start off with a "furnace professional" to evaluate the status and quality of your electronic air filter. Then you decide whether to have it repaired, replaced or retrofitted with a pleated filter. More and more we are selling these expensive pleated filters that replace the electronic filters. They aren't cheap but they can last up to a whole year!

It's not a bad idea to have your furnace professionally inspected while you are having the filter checked. Some furnace heat exchangers are failing in less than 10 years. While a technician is there, it is a good idea to have older units checked for carbon monoxide leaks. If the furnace is approaching 10 years old, you may consider adding a carbon monoxide tester to your list of household safety appliances.

Ask
Mr.
Hardware

By Blair Gilbert

Always start the season with a clean furnace filter, be it electronic or a filter media. Clean or replace it every 30 days. Bring the vacuum cleaner with the assorted attachments and clean out everything in sight.

While you are at it, check the humidifier. Dry air can make one's throat sensitive and scratchy. A little humidity can greatly increase the comfort level in the house.

Household Help

By Samantha Mazzotta
Keeping appliances healthy

Q. My 8-year-old refrigerator is beginning to show some corrosion and rust on the door and sides, especially on scratched areas where we slide it in and out to clean behind it. The warranty has expired. Any chance I can repair these rusted areas? — Greg C., Pine Bluff, Ark.

A. Depending on the amount of rust, the refrigerator's surface can be patched up, but I'm a little worried about corrosion attacking other, less visible areas. A damaged coil or failing compressor will certainly negate the amount of elbow grease you plan to put into improving the refrigerator's looks.

Slide the refrigerator out of its nook and inspect the coils and supporting frame along the back for signs of rust. Then, clean away dust and debris from the underside of the fridge and check the coils in that area as well. Look for dripping or pooled water while you're down there, too. If you see any signs of decay or damage, have a technician look at the unit and find out whether it would cost less to repair or replace it.

If your refrigerator has only a few signs of rust, treat repair as you would an old car. Remove the rust with a fine rubbing compound to minimize scratching, then dab touch-up paint over the area to match the refrigerator's color.

Prevent rust on all your large appliances by cleaning them frequently and keeping them dry. Sears HomeCentral recommends applying a coat of paste wax, the same used on your car, to repel moisture. And keep a bottle of touch-up paint in a kitchen drawer (away from the kids) to dab on scratches as they occur.

Kitchen and bath sale helps Habitat for Humanity

The National Kitchen and Bath Association (NKBA) is holding a sale to benefit Habitat for Humanity of Michigan at the Fall Remodeling & Furniture Show which runs Thursday, Oct. 12, through Sunday, Oct. 15, from 2 to 10 p.m. on Thursday and Friday; 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday; and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday at the Novi Expo Center, located at I-96 and Novi Road.

"Homeowners will find great deals on cabinets, counters and various discontinued items at the show," says Cindy Mraz, CKD, NKBA committee chair and industry consultant for 20-20 of Flint. "All profits go to Habitat for Humanity, which is especially meaningful for us during October which is National Kitchen and Bath Month. We've raised over $150,000 in the last three years."

Proceeds will be used to build homes around Michigan. Habitat for Humanity of Michigan is an organization whose mission is to build simple, decent homes in partnership with people in need.

Habitat for Humanity has 84 affiliates covering the entire state. Over 1,500 homes have been built in Michigan with the assistance of over 100,000 volunteers. Habitat for Humanity was founded in Americus, Ga. in 1976. The non-profit group seeks to eliminate poverty housing and homelessness from the world and to make decent shelter a matter of conscience and action. Habitat for Humanity has built 100,000 houses around the world, providing over 500,000 people with safe and affordable shelter.

The NKBA display will provide information on project planning and design and will feature information about its members. Habitat for Humanity's display will have books for sale and information on the organization, such as how to volunteer.

Admission is $6 for adults; $4 for seniors; $3 for children 6 to 12; and children under 6 are admitted free. Ample parking is available at Novi Expo Center for a fee. For more information, visit <http://www.builders.org> or call (248) 862-1019.

Day lighting made more comfortable and efficient

Day lighting, or the effective use of natural light to illuminate an indoor space, is certainly not a new concept. In fact, the ancient Egyptians created spectacular murals deep inside the tombs of their kings by using metal shields to reflect the sun's rays into the dark burial chambers.

Physiologically, sunlight aids our metabolism and nutrient absorption and helps us maintain proper hormone levels for maximum well-being.

Throughout history, daylight has been used to light church altars and temples because of its symbolic meaning. In modern times, architectural design with bright, airy spaces and natural light was popularized by Frank Lloyd Wright, who said, "The best way to light a home is God's way."

Today, advanced window technology makes it possible to use natural light to its fullest advantage. Windows are important architectural elements, affecting a home's style and personality, inside and out. Not surprisingly, modern windows and doors have evolved to become more beautiful than ever. No longer just square frames with glass, windows are a form of personal expression. Circle heads and unique muntin designs are popular ways to "design with light." Windows and doors also function to bring the outdoors in and make a space feel larger.

Because of a design trend toward light, open rooms, windows and doors are increasingly becoming focal points of home remodeling projects. It's easier than ever for homeowners to replace drafty old windows with beautiful new ones, thanks to innovative solutions like Pella Precision Fit replacement windows. Designed for a sash-only type of replacement, these wood and aluminum-clad double-hung windows are fully assembled and factory-tested for air infiltration.

In a more extensive remodeling project, a traditional picture window can be replaced with a charming bay window. A breakfast nook is tucked into an existing kitchen by adding windows that curve in a graceful bow. French hinged doors with overhead transoms take the place of a row of windows in a dining room. Skylights are a popular choice for adding light to baths, bedrooms and other rooms where privacy is important.

For new construction or remodeling projects, Pella has a casement window insect screen that's popular with homeowners craving more light. The Rolscreen retractable insect screen rolls down when it's

Ten free trees offered

Ten free trees, autumn classics, will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during October.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The 10 trees are two sugar maples, scarlet oak, sweetgum, red oak, silver maple, white dogwood, Washington Hawthorn and two red maples.

"These trees will produce vibrant red, orange, yellow, scarlet and purple leaves in the fall," says

John Rosenow, the foundation's president.

The trees will be shipped post-paid at the right time for planting between Nov. 1 and Dec. 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The 6- to 12-inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

To receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Autumn Classic Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, Neb. 68410, by Tuesday, Oct. 31.

Windows

needed and up when it's not. When it is rolled out of sight, the window lets in up to 40 percent more light than if a traditional screen covered the window.

Besides aesthetics, there are two other major benefits of day lighting. The first is energy savings. Especially on a bright, sunny day, effective day lighting potentially reduces the need for electric lights, which are usually generated at the expense of a non-renewable resource. Even using dimmer switches for a combination of lower artificial light and sunlight can save electricity.

A decade ago, day lighting, with such massive expanses of glass, would not have been energy-efficient. The abundance of windows in today's homes has been made possible by the development of innovations like high-performance, insulated glass. Clear low-emissivity (Low-E) coatings filter out the specific type of sunlight that can fade carpet and furniture. Windows with two or more panes of glass filled with argon gas are also readily available and prevent heat from escaping in the wintertime or entering in the summertime. Innovations like Pella's window shades and blinds between two panes of glass can make a window even more energy-efficient.

Second, natural light is essential for the health and well-being of the human body, mind and spirit. Think about how juice and toast in a sunny breakfast room starts the day on an upbeat note. Or think about the warm feeling of a golden sunset shining through a patio door in the dining area during an evening meal. It's no wonder light can greatly affect our mood and well-being. The human body was designed to operate under natural light. Physiologically, sunlight aids our metabolism and nutrient absorption and helps us maintain proper hormone levels for maximum well-being.

Day lighting is not just a residential building trend. According to utility companies, lighting can account for up to 50 percent of a building's energy costs. In commercial buildings, the time of heaviest electricity usage is during weekday afternoons, also the peak load time for utility companies. Day lighting can shift electric light usage away from this time period, saving the higher costs associated with peak energy consumption. Commercial and retail properties are discovering that these savings can add up to tens of thousands of dollars per year. In addition, the pleasing effect of natural light also has the potential to increase retail sales. Customers like the brighter, warmer atmosphere it creates and may shop longer — and buy more.

Pella Corp. continues to be on the cutting edge of building technology. As products evolve to an even greater level of performance, the day lighting benefits they offer will likely make "designing with light" an architectural imperative for homes and commercial buildings in the new millennium.

A world leader in the manufacture of premium windows and doors, Pella Corp. has long been recognized in the window industry for its technology and innovation, having been awarded over 50 U.S. product and design patents. Headquartered in Pella, Iowa, the company is represented by select building materials retailers, five manufacturing facilities and a Direct Sales Network operating Pella Window stores and windows-caping centers nationwide.

New spa may require more electrical power

A hot tub or spa may be just what the doctor ordered for relaxing tired muscles or soothing frayed nerves.

Yet, both hot tubs and spas require plenty of electricity to run their motors and heaters. In fact, the extra load could be more than your current electrical service can accommodate. That's why the Leviton Institute suggests that you consult with an electrical contractor before purchasing these appliances.

How can you tell if your home's electrical service is adequate for a new hot tub or spa? A quick visual inspection of your electrical panel box should provide a clue.

If your panel box has old-fashioned plug fuses that screw into the box, your electrical service is probably inadequate. This type of panel box generally supplies no more than 60 amps of electrical power, far below the recommended minimum of 100 amps. (A standard hot tub with just a few features requires at least 40 amps of electrical power.)

The Leviton Institute suggests that you consult with an electrical contractor before purchasing a hot tub or spa.

Today's electrical panel boxes use circuit breakers and provide at least 100-amp service. If you currently have 100-amp service, there must be at least two open slots in the panel box to accommodate an additional 40-amp breaker. Even with two available slots, the additional power required by a hot tub or spa might be more than your current electrical service can provide.

If this is the case, it may be wise to upgrade to 200 amps when installing a hot tub or spa, advises the Leviton Institute. Consult with your electrical contractor to get sound advice on how much electrical power you need to meet current and future needs.

Another thing to consider when purchasing a new hot tub or spa is a Ground Fault Circuit Interrupter (GFCI), which provides protection against electrical shock. The National Electrical Code requires that a GFCI be installed wherever an electrical receptacle is near a water source, regardless of whether it is inside or outside the home.

In addition, the Leviton Institute recommends that your contractor install a surge protector to safeguard your new investment from damaging power surges. Surge protectors divert surges of electric power caused by lightning, as well as temporary power spikes generated inside the home.

The Leviton Institute is the educational arm of the Leviton Manufacturing Co. Its mission is to educate consumers, specifiers and others about the benefits of today's electrical devices in the home.
