Voter wonders why no ID required

Devin & Carmen live — almost

Devin Scillian and Carmen Harlan, news anchors for WDIV-TV4, taped a portion of their show, "Prime Time Parade: The Best of America's Thanksgiving Day Parade," at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial recently.

The show will air Saturday, Nov. 25, from 7 to 8 p.m., and will include a recap of the Thanksgiving Day Parade, highlights from the "Hobb-Nobble-Gobble," Turkey Trot, segments on "How floats are built," "A Day in the Life of the Parade Company," and a line-up of this year's parade celebrities, some of whom include Danny Glover, the Harlem Globetrotters and Michigan's own Bo Schembeckler.

"We love coming to the War Memorial because of the gorgeous setting, that classic Detroit look, and the holiday ambiance," said producer Mike Guerrieri.

And from 8 to 9 p.m. Thanksgiving Day, Scillian will be one of four narrators of Sleeping Bear Press stories to be aired on WDIV-TV4. He will tell the story "Fibblestax," which he wrote. Also on the program, "The Legend of the Teddy Bear," will be narrated by Tweed Roosevelt, great-grandson of President Theodore Roosevelt; "A Wish to Be a Christmas Tree," will be told by Mitch Albom, author of the bestselling "Tuesdays with Morrie"; and the classic "Legend of Sleeping Bear" will be narrated by Chelsea's own Jeff Daniels.

Center used as blood collection depot

The Grosse Pointe's shrine to those who died and serviced in World War II was put to good use last Friday in behalf of those who are now serving in Korea. The entire first floor of the beautiful former mansion was converted into an efficient blood collection depot when the Red Cross Mobile Unit set up shop there. Registration took place in the dining room, following which nurses examined and interviewed donors in the library. In the drawing room, above, beds were set up and blood drawn from the donors. During seven hours of blood letting, Pointers gave 105 pints, most of which was on its way to Korea within 48 hours. (Photo by Fred Runnells. From the Nov. 23, 1950 Grosse Pointe News.)

Recount tests the faithful

he people counting the disputed ballots in Florida are running out of patience with the job and with each other.

Stories over the weekend in the national press indicate that the hundreds of counters engaged in that task are as divided as the people who employed them to count for either Gov. George Bush or Vice President Al Gore.

As these words are written, it appears that Bush has a lead in the recounted ballots so far, and there are indications that he will be our next president.

Also, as these words are written, that possibility has not caused Gore to acknowledge his defeat; although that likelihood is being recognized even by major Gore supporters.

Yet the counting wars go on and the media increasingly are turning to the ballot counters for stories of news interest.

One in the New York Times Sunday magazine section told of the counting woes of Ron Feingold and Juan Salem-Karoui of the Miami-Dade County Information Technology Department.

They said they had worked with the team in their counting group many times and so they often cooperated with each other.

"Any time you're in a pressure situation, if you can sort of keep a good spirit about it, it makes it a lot easier to deal with.'

That was the comment of Salem-Karoui. Feingold then offered this

"One thing to remember about this group: most of the people working in the tabulation room are volunteers.

"It's a fairly large room. We have about 40 or 50 people in the room because the law requires certain people to be there: the supervisor of elections, the canvassing board and the auditors. You've got enough room for the old card readers."

Salem-Karui then continued this

"You start out with a very slow buildup, then all of a sudden so many ballots will come at the same time that they (the counters) begin attacking trays.

"You really don't have time to think about other things because you're constantly getting the trays replaced, and they (the supervisors) are constantly picking up the trays that have been read."

Asked whether they knew what was going on with respect to the results, she replied: "We have absolutely no clue.'

Feingold then answered the same question this way: "The nation knows what's going on before we do."

The Monday Times reported similar responses from people working in other vote-counting centers in Florida. All reported great fatigue on the part of counters in their second or third day of work.

Reporting from a church service, the Rev. D. James Kennedy of the Coral Ridge Presbyterian Church, a GOP stronghold in mostly Democratic Fort Lauderdale, advised his flock what they could do about the "mess."

"No. 1, pray," he said. "No. 2 pray. No. 3, you got it, pray."

Amen.

Thanksgiving

e have much to be thankful for in Grosse Pointe. The usual list is easy: great schools, beautiful neighborhoods, well-run cities with low tax rates, gorgeous parks, Lake St. Clair, good roads (normally!), the War Memorial, the Neighborhood Club, good churches, outstanding hospitals, immediate police and fire protection, and the list goes on.

But during this Thanksgiving, let's not forget the mail carrier, our kids' teachers and principals, the Sunday school teacher, the pastor, the many volunteers on committees and at hospitals, our doctor's receptionist, the lady in the parking booth, the hair stylist, the meter reader, the UPS guy, the telephone operator, the woman at the cleaners

In other words, let's try not to just be thankful for the "usual suspects," but also for the everyday people, those with whom we have contact on a daily basis but whom we take for granted.

Thank your co-workers. Thank your boss. Thank your kids for just being kids. Thank Mom and Dad. Thank the garage mechanic. Thank the cashier. And here's an unusual one: thank the customer!

Thank the garbage man. Tip the waitress. Call Mom.

There are so many people and things to be thankful for, the list is endless. If only we took the time to be thankful.

Of course, the talk of the day is the presidential election, or rather the lack thereof. Many say we as a nation should be embarrassed.

for granted

Rather, perhaps we should be thankful we live in a nation where we can question something even as important as the election of our top government official.

We're fortunate the presidential quagmire is procedural, not militaristic. We are not talking about a military coup here, not even close. We are merely debating machine counting vs. hand counting of ballots.

In comparison to the problems facing elections elsewhere in the world -Bosnia and Mexico, for example — our election "problem" seems rather silly in comparison.

While the pundits have called the Florida situation a constitutional "crisis," most Americans know better. Most voters are really quite laid back by the whole thing. Polls show that they don't really care who becomes president so long as the votes are accurately counted.

If the voters don't see a "crisis," then it's really immaterial what the "experts" think.

Anyway, we should all be thankful we live in a country where picking a president is not a "crisis" but a matter

We should be thankful we all can To the Editor: vote. We just have to take the time to do so. And we should be thankful right; the media are the power changes not at the point of a gun but at the cast of a ballot — or this past election revealed To the Editor: "chad." whether pregnant, hanging, the control they have in dimpled or scratched.

So this Thanksgiving, let's be thank- that our nation must be pro- accepted the Landmark ful for the things we take for granted, tected from a self-serving Award from the City of including freedom.

A time to vote

Marshall McLuhan was message, the makers of the news. Their influence on shaping events. It is sad press.

Never before in our history has the importance of an untouched Electoral College culmination of years of hard been so obvious. Never work and the wonderful, before has the mischief generous contributions of 12 wrought by an irresponsible press been so transparent as it violated the agreement on exit poll disclosure.

Much of this recent confusion might have been avoided if the following format were to replace the present vulnerable balloting proce-

1. All polls would open at the same instant the first Saturday of November.

2. All polls would stay open 24 hours and close at the same time Sunday.

3. Exit poll information could not be published nor discussed by the media until after the isochronous closure of the polls. 4. No announcement of

A new Batch for Lions?

he most impressive thing about the Detroit Lions' 31-21 win over the New York Giants wasn't the fact they won on the road, it was how they won.

They rediscovered their quarterback. created excellent field position on special teams and made some huge plays on defense Charlie Batch came in a struggling 20-32 for 225 yards and three touchdowns with one interception. New head coach Gary Moeller had said earlier in the week that he thought Batch could be a very good quarterback and left as a winner, going plete passes from his backside. The offensive line did a great job,' said Batch. "I got hit maybe one time today and that was on me. They protected and kept guys off me. Batch has always been very comfortable back in the shotgun, which gives him more of an opportunity to see the field and read the defense. Regardless of whether it is an actual advantage or not, because Batch perceives it to be, it becomes an advantage

Batch also completed passes to nine

Desmond Howard made Moeller, his head coach at Michigan, proud with punt returns of 50 and 30 yards. Rookie Larry Foster also blocked a punt on special teams.

As for the defense, Robert Porcher continued to excel under the new coaching regime, collecting three more sacks. That gives him five in two games, three more than he had in the nine games under Bobby Ross.

Safety Kurt Schulz caught his league-leading seventh interception and got in some nasty licks on Giants' receivers

James Jones, Corwin Brown and rookie James Hall (Michigan) forced fumbles and Luther Elliss, Barrett Green and Porcher all recovered fum-

The win was also significant in the playoff picture. The Lions have tough road games ahead — at Minnesota, at the final results would be Green Bay and at the New York Jets. They are currently tied with New Orleans and the Giants at 7-4 in the absentee sources has been wild card race. They own the tiebreaker because they have beaten both.

It was also significant because the Lions are in the midst of a threegames-in-12-days stretch. The next is understood, might pass. at home Thanksgiving Day against the New England Patriots.

It's way too early to celebrate but if the Lions continue to play as aggressively as they did against the Giants, they could not only make the playoffs 10 a.m.; and Seattle from 9 but make some noise once they get to 9 a.m.

Rocking Plymouth Rock

If anyone complains that Thanksgiving is nothing more than an eating holiday, well, it's true.

The event we know as the first Thanksgiving really wasn't a thanksgiving at all, but instead a traditional, secular English harvest celebration to which the invited Pilgrims the Wampanoag Indians. It is highly unlikely that the hosts of our country's first big feast had intended any more symbolic meaning of this event than we would give to a neighborhood block party. Thanksgiving sometime between Sept. 21 and Nov. 11. Unlike our modern holiday, it was three days long (however, in my family since my brother and my sister and her family come in from out of town, it's become a four-day holiday). Abraham Lincoln designated the holiday as the last Thursday in November to correlate with the Nov. 21, 1621, anchoring of the Mayflower in Cape Cod. Franklin Roosevelt was the one to set the date as the Thursday fourth November although the date approved wasn't by Congress until 1941.

There was a time long ago when the Pilgrims and the Native Americans gave thanks for an abundant harvest. The Indians showed their guests, the early settlers, how to survive the winter. It was before the Caucasians decimated the Indians. It was a good time.

Now we give thanks for our abundance and are grateful that we are not in r Rwanda. supermarkets offer a dizzying array of foods. No one need go frungry. Chances are we will all survive this

But we no longer think in terms of survival. We think of a never-ending array of tempting recipes - roast turkey with dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, cranberry sauce, sweet potatoes, pumpkin pie. Why do we enjoy food so much?

Sigmund Freud was the first to point out the critical importance of the motherinfant bond, and paramount in that love-bond is feeding, whether it be by breast or bottle. being in a highchair and scolded and shamed for making a mess. Observing small children in a highchair I find that messes are inevitable, but no problem. They are easily cleaned up. It should be a time of enjoyment and rapport, a time of calm and relaxation, not tension or irritability.

Childhood is the beginning of learning the happy combination of good food and good conversation.

Those who did not enjoy this rapport and good time may contaminate mealtime with obsessions and scolding. Some parents make a big fuss about eating everything on the plate, and eating extraordinary amounts. as if famine is around the corner, or it is a sin to waste food. This attitude may have been appropriate in leaner times, but not today. Children should not be forced or coerced to eat.

It is much easier for all concerned if the parent serves an average portion and the child is given an appropriate time to consume it, and whatever is left is taken away with no recriminations.

Those lucky enough to have had happy mealtimes at home, with good food and pleasant conversation, will have a Norman Rockwell picture of a Thanksgiving dinner. Those whose childhoods were infected with anger, scolding and criticism will tend to repeat patterns of conflictual mealtimes for the rest of their lives.

It is hoped that when families get together, the good feelings will overcome the bad, and that positive feelings and behavior will prevail.

Happy Thanksgiving to ou all — onward and upward toward the coming holiday season. Here's a toast to a world of good and plenty, peace and brother-

Famous folks

In addition to having our Classical share of famous names in ers of several sports franchises, executives of giant companies, descendants of auto company pioneers and the like — we have a fair number of folks who are related to famous people.

For example, Josephine Geha of the Woods, who teaches biology at Macomb Community College, is the sister of Helen Thomas, who closed presidential press conferences during eight presidencies with a polite: "Thank you, Mr. President."

Jo Geha handles most of her famous sister's travel arrangements and these days that may be almost a full-time job.

Thomas, who spent 57 vears with United Press International, is being feted nationwide as a role model for young, women journalists since she resigned after the interests of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon purchased the ailing news wire service. Never one to be shy, Thomas was quoted as saying: "That was one bridge too far."

Thomas visited Geha last week when she was here to Wayne receive University's "Helen Thomas Spirit of Diversity Award" and help award two Helen Thomas Spirit of Diversity scholarships to WSU journalism students. She is WSU's most famous alumna journalist.

Voting machines

The first regular city election in Grosse Pointe Woods to use voting machines was in 1956. In 1999, a new electronic voting machine, "Accu-Vote," was used for the first time by the Woods. The machine used an optical scanner, eliminating ballot handling.

All of which recalls recent remarks by Internet wits to the effect "that before Nov. 7, the Democrats accused George W. Bush, who has degrees from Harvard and Yale, of being too dumb to be president. Now they are trying to explain 19,000 votes from Democrats in Palm Beach County who are too dumb to vote." And contrary to Internet humor, Al Gore is not planning on having his first grandson named

The info about the history of voting machines in the Woods comes courtesy of Bruce Bockstanz, a member of the Woods Historical Commission. The commission has just published its latest update of a publication called, "Celebrating the History of Grosse Pointe Woods."

other delayed too long. The first was the type of almost comical coincidence common to a generation of Americans who on a Sunday night years ago went to bed knowing their lives, should they survive the coming years, had changed forever.

The second reunion ended a nagging uncertainty while opening possibilities hardly imagined.

The first reunion took place during World War II among the tall marble columns and high-backed wooden benches in the concourse of the Michigan Central Railroad Terminal on the outskirts of downtown Detroit. It was 1942. A 17-year-old Andie Bist was shipping out for the U.S. Army Air Corps. His older brother, Robert, a craft carrier. Navy veteran of the home on leave.

The confusion grew out of Bist's parents being divorced when he was an infant. Bist never knew his father. Until a few months ago, Bist, of Grosse Pointe Woods, didn't realize his father had remarried. Half-brothers and sisters lived in nearby Detroit suburbs.

attract younger buyers and the 2001 model is virtually unchanged. Biggest change is Kia's Long Haul Warranty Program, introduced for this model year.

In the Spectra's favor are its low base price, its responsive steering and, although hatchback configurations have never been popular in the United States, hatchback configuration.

Performance is adequate and the interior looks cheap, but then the car is cheap and Kia is aiming the Spectra at entry-level buyket back in the late '50s and ers who want comfortable and pleasant wheels. The Spectra fills that bill.

Five-door hatchbacks have always been hot sellers in Asian and European markets, but American buy ers have shunned the concept, first introduced here in the early '50s by Kaiser with its hatchback Voyager model. In fact, Ford left the five-door hatchback out of its Focus lineup in the United States, although it sells well in Europe.

But Kia may get away with this handy but notpopular design with styling that hides the fact that it is a five-door hatchback. Discovery of that fact, when you go to put a bulky item in the car, is a pleasant sur-

Powered by a 125-horsepower, 1.8-liter dual-overhead-cam four-cylinder engine derived from the Sephia, mated to a standard five-speed manual gearbox, the Spectra provides decent fuel economy (24 mpg city/29 highway, according to the EPA). A four-speed automatic is optional, which the EPA says cuts city mileage to 21 mpg, but provides 30 mpg highway.

Two trim levels are available: GS and GSX. The base GS includes a full fabric interior, split-folding rear seat, AM/FM/stereo cassette sound system, tinted glass. rear defroster and twospeed wipers. Optional equipment includes fourwheel antilock brakes, body-color side moldings, rear wiper/washer, AM/FM/CD audio system, cruise control and an automatic transmission.

The Spectra's interior materials look cheap compared with Honda Civic or Toyota Corolla, but the Spectra is lower priced than either of those rivals.

On the highway, the Spectra holds its own, tracks well and feels under control, but it is not real fast off the line and there is not a lot in reserve for passing. If you keep that in mind, you should have no trouble.

Front seats are quite comfortable for this price class, and the layout of the dashboard and controls makes the Spectra easy to manipulate. There's not a lot of room in the rearseats, either for the legs or

The Spectra is not as roomy as the Corolla and does not have the sprightly performance of the Civic, but the Spectra will serve your basic transportation needs. And at a bargain basement price. Prices start at $11,245 for the GS. For comparison, Toyota Corolla prices start at $13,027 and Honda Civic at $13,200.

Another incentive to check out the Spectra is Kia's new Long Haul Warranty Program, which consists of a 10-year or 100,000-mile limited powertrain warranty, a five-year or 60,000-mile limited basic warranty, a five-year or 100,000-mile rust-perforation warranty nd a fiveyear, unlimited mileage roadside assistance plan.

The Pastor's Corner

Five kernels of corn

By the Rev. Robert E. Neily St. Michael's Episcopal Church

Thanksgiving has become a day for family, feasting, floats and football (not necessarily in that order.) Its original purpose was to think about God's many gifts, and then to give thanks to God for them.

Our word "thank" is apparently derived from the Old English word thencan, which also means "to think."

The Pilgrims supposedly started Thanksgiving. They experienced a time of famine during the winter of 1623. Corn became so scarce that they had to ration it. Each person was given only five kernels of corn a day.

A nice thing about the Pilgrims' story is that they continued to thank God even after things got better. When the days of famine passed, a custom developed at Thanksgiving time of placing five kernels of corn on each person's dinner plate as a reminder of the sacrifices and courage of their predecessors.

The kernels of corn were intended to make people think about the many ways God had touched their lives. Such thinking leads to thanking.

At the dinner table, people would hold those kernels of corn in their hands and try to recall five blessings that happened to them in the past year. They would think of these good things and then they would offer thanks to God.

A similar custom could be developed in our own lives by using five kernels of corn, five packets of sugar or any five symbols which might help us or our children or grandchildren — on this special day to think about five precious blessings that are ours, and to thank God for them.

Thinking people are thankful people — this week especially.

"Now thank we all our God, with heart, and hands, and voices . . .'

Innovative ways to prevent heart disease

By Dr. Julius M. Gardin Special Writer

Over the past 25 years, we have witnessed phenomenal innovations in the way cardiologists treat heart disease. We can now perform coronary bypass operations through extremely small incisions. We can use a powerful saline jet to blast dangerous blood clots out of coronary arteries, thus reducing the chances of recurrent heart attacks. We also can perform some bypasses without using the heart-lung machine, thus minimizing the patient's chance of an adverse reaction to anesthesia.

At the same time, cardiologists have learned much about heart disease itself. This knowledge has led to the development of diagnostic and preventive techniques that have saved lives and improved the quality of life for many people. The use of such techniques, coupled with a low fat diet, regular exercise and carefully controlled cholesterol levels, can effectively lower a person's risk of heart disease and help Dr. Julius M. Gardin him or her live a longer, healthier life.

One of the most exciting new developments in heart disease prevention has been the utilization of computed tomographic scanning (more commonly known as CT scanning) to detect calcium build-up in coronary

It's believed that calcium is a useful marker for heart disease because research has shown that it migrates to areas in the arteries where plaque has accumulated. Such atherosclerotic plaque narrows the blood vessels and increases the risk of heart attack, so identifying plaque in such a noninvasive way may be beneficial.

The CT scanner takes clear pictures of the heart and arteries by sweeping a narrow beam of X-rays across the chest area. The scanner gathers data as a pattern of electrical impulses that are analyzed by a computer, then displays the data on a monitor for a radiologist or cardiologist to inspect and interpret. Coronary calcium shows up in damaged arteries as a pattern of white dots of varying sizes. The higher the coronary calcium concentration, the greater the chance the patient will develop heart disease events.

There's been some discussion about using CT scanning to screen everyone at risk for coronary artery disease. That strategy could potentially save lives, since the first symptom of cardiovascular disease for thousands of Americans each year is sudden death.

However, CT scanning, like all tests, is not perfectly accurate or predictive and screening the entire public would be costly. Further research needs to be done to determine which groups of patients might benefit most from CT scanning and its proper role relative to stress testing and other diagnostic tests.

While methods for earlier diagnosis of coronary disease are being refined, there are preventive measures you can take to decrease your risk of cardiovascular disease and heart attack.

Taking a daily aspirin is one of the simplest things you can do. People (men in particular) over the age of 50 who smoke or have other coronary risk factors such as diabetes, high cholesterol or a family history of premature coronary disease, should ask their doctor about taking a daily aspirin. Aspirin decreases platelet stickiness and clotting, allowing blood to flow better through arteries, even where plaque has accu-

A person who has never had a heart attack need only take an enteric-coated baby aspirin (equivalent to one-quarter of an adult aspirin) to get the beneficial effects. Someone who has had a heart attack should take a higher dose enteric-coated adult aspirin. But don't self-medicate, since aspirin may cause harmful side effects in some people. Always consult your physician before taking any drug for the treatment of any condition.

Reducing your stress levels is another effective way to reduce the toll of cardiovascular disease. Evidence seems to indicate that in susceptible individuals, reaction to stressful events can precipitate "heart events" like heart attacks, angina and dangerous arrhythmias. It's often not the stressful event itself that causes the problem, but rather the way you react to it. That's why it's important to deal with situations that make you feel out of control and unable to cope.

Alternative therapies like meditation are thought to be effective in reducing stress and promoting physical well-being. Although the jury is still out on how effective meditation is in reducing heart events, it is probably safer than taking substances like St. John's wort or gingko biloba. More research needs to be done on the safety and efficacy o these and other herbs, as well as other alternative treatments, before they can be safely recommended by the medical community.

Finally, no matter how often you've heard it that the best way to prevent heart disease is by making better lifestyle choices.If you smoke, stop now. If you're overweight and sedentary, modify your diet and get moving.

It's never too late to improve your cardiovascular health. Start today to enjoy a healthier tomorrow Dr. Julius M. Gardin is chief of cardiology at St. John Hospital and Medical Center and co-editor of "Preventive Cardiology" (McGraw-Hill, 2000).

Five ways to avoid holiday weight gain

By Susanne Consiglio Special Writer

The mad rush is on. Shopping, holiday meals, cookies and desserts, stress, no time for exercise . . . weight gain.

Wait a minute. The holidays have become a sixweek tradition and food extravaganza between Thanksgiving and New Year's day. The average weight gain is five to ten pounds over the six-week stretch.

It's getting harder every year to shed the weight --- especially when we may have last year's pounds still on our frames.

By practicing a few habit changes, you may notice that you feel better, have less indigestion and heartburn and can make it through the day without a headache.

We don't need to repeat traditions that weren't enjoyable, caused stress and aren't worth the fuss and trouble. Don't be afraid to break from tradition.

Incorporate five habits into your daily routines and you will have a chance to

1. Take the fruit and veggie challenge while skipping a few holiday treats. Plan to eat three fruits and two servings of vegetables or vice versa daily. Make it easy. Eat a banana as a mid-morning snack, add grapes to yogurt and take an apple for your car ride. Add a raw veggie to your lunch. As a timesaver, you can purchase the precut varieties such as broccoli, cauliflower, mini carrots or cucumber sticks. Add a soup, salad and/or cooked vegetable to your dinner.

2. Don't depend on the office cookies to serve as breakfast. Leave the sugar, sweets and rich goodies completely out of your morning routine. Usually by lunchtime these items are dry or stale anyway; not worth the calories. Start your day on a healthy note by eating a bowl of instant oatmeal or cold cereal with low fat milk, or have some eggs and toast. You won't be deprived of holiday sweets. Somewhere in the course of the six weeks there will be plenty of sugar to go around. It's best to have a "downsize and eliminate" attitude. Bake fewer cookies. That's right: bake less, especially if you're the one who eats most of them.

3. Drink water throughout the day in place of juice, soda or coffee loaded with cream and sugar. Flush minimize the added pounds. those kidneys. There is so much sodium-laden food at this time of year, no wonder we feel bloated and the scale weighs heavier.

4. Ease up on the alcohol. It's easier to let our guard down and reach for handfuls of nuts, chips and dips after a few drinks. The calories do add up. 5. Exercise. Stick to a routine even if it's only 20 minutes a day. Think of your holiday shopping as a good walking workout. Walk up or down the escalator instead of standing and watching the crowds. If you've been working out all year, don't stop now. Exercise in the morning if there will be no time later in the day and use exercise as a stress reliever. Pick your four best days a week as a minimum. This is a reasonable goal during busy hectic times

You're not going to be perfect over the holidays, even with the best intentions. However, sticking to these five habits just might be the ticket to prevent the added pounds this season.

When the holidays are over, continue the routine well into the New Year.

December's calendar filled with local cultural events

Members of the Grosse Pointe Arts Council voted in their new board for the year 2000-2001. The board members are: Bunny Homan, president; Tom Mayshark, vice-president; Jan Homan, treasurer; Lynne Hadley Bacon, secretary; Alan Dickenson, Alison Engling Sylvia Ghirandini, Eldona May, David Mikesell. Jeanne Penney and Jim Ruffner, directors. The board extends a welcome to all members of the community. If you are interested in joining us, please call (313) 438-2434

One of our member organizations, the Grosse Pointe Artists Association has restructured its organization to become more educational and is seeking new members. They have expanded their membership to include students from age 16 through adults. New members can join at any time of the year and there are no requirements for becoming a member.

The Association is looking for all artists, from the beginner to the advanced; from people who feel that they don't have any talent but would like to learn more about art, to those who would be willing to share their experiences.

Come listen to monthly speakers and learn new techniques or increase your knowledge of art history. Or, as a member, you can bring your work to members' critique sessions. Anyone interested in the visual arts such as painting, sculpture and photography should contact President Dick Vogel at (313) 886-2110.

Finishing out the month of November is Tuesday Musicale's "American Composers' Concert." Monday evening at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 27, at the Grosse Pointe Baptist Church is the time and place. The music will include pieces by Copland, Bernstein Anderson and the American debut of a commissioned piece by Elaine Lebenbaum, a Detroit composer, written for cello and soprano. For information and tickets, call Carol Dolan at (313) 882-2214.

December is filled with many different events to honor the holiday season. On Wednesday, Dec. 6, at the Unitarian Church, the Jazz Forum is rounding out its fall season with yet another exciting jazz evening. They are presenting Johnny Trudell, Detroit's most prolific allaround music man, who is offering his own dynamic tribute to Louis Armstrong and his legacy. Time is 8 p.m. for a truly inspiring event. For information, call (313) 438-2434.

On Friday, Dec. 8, Grosse Pointe South's vocal music group will be performing its Holiday Pops at the Performing Arts Center at North. Tickets are still available and can be purchased at Posterity: A Gallery in the City of Grosse Pointe. Some of the pieces performed during this show will be featured at the Christmas Show that Grosse Pointe South's Pointe Singers are performing with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Speaking of the DSO, get your tickets early for their holiday festival "Yuletide Celebration." The DSO performances run Thursday, Dec. 14, through Monday, Dec. 18. Tickets were sold out last year. This will be the last year that the South students will be performing, so don't miss it. For DSO tickets, call (313) 576-5111.

scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 10. At 3 p.m., the Emerald Sinfonietta, under the direction of Felix Resnick, and the Madonna University Chorale, under the direction of Grosse Pointer David Wagner, will join to celebrate the 250th anniversary of Johannes Sebastian Bach. And at 7:30 pm, Grosse Pointe Memorial Church's Festival Choir and Orchestra will be presenting Handel's "Messiah." part 1, which will be truly a beautiful event in an exquisite setting. For more information, call the church at (313) 882-5330.

Emerald Sinfonietta has just released its inaugural compact disc, "Homegrown: A Salute to 20th Century American Composers." Grosse Pointe producer, musician and composer Ron Pangborn brings together the incredible talent of world renowned accordion/bandoneon virtuoso Peter Soave under the direction of Felix Resnick and the musicians of the Emerald Sinfonietta, metro Detroit's professional chamber orchestra. The disc focuses on music of the 20th century American and European composers. On this disc you will find the premiere of Carmine Coppola's "Concerto for Accordion &Orchestra," performed by Peter Soave as it was played at the October concert of the Emerald Sinfonietta.

Proceeds from this CD will benefit the following Michigan non-profit agencies: Southeastern Michigan Chapter, American Red Cross; The Fowler Center/Camp Fowler; Capuchin Soup Kitchen; Turning Point; and the Michigan Humane Society. The disc is available locally at Ambleside Galleries in the Village: (313) 885-8999. It makes a great Christmas gift and supports a number of wonderful organizations. Christmas doings at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial are many, especially for children. Bring the children to have "Brunch with Santa." Santa will be there both Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 2 and Dec. 3, so every child has the opportunity to come. After the brunch, children can watch Santa arrive by helicopter and he promises to visit with each child. Time is 10:15 a.m. to noon. And on the following weekend, Saturday, Dec. 9, children can bring their favorite furry friend to have a picture taken with Santa. Proceeds will benefit the Michigan Anti Cruelty vations, call (313) 881-7511. A lecturer not to be missed if you really are a lover of French Impressionist art is Michael Farrell. His lectures are always exciting and interesting. On Thursday, Dec. 14, this art historian will be speaking on Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec at the War Memorial. Time for the lecture is 7:30 to 9 p.m., and the cost is $18. For more information, call (313) 881-7511.

On a final note, the Council would like to thank all those Grosse Pointers who voted for Proposal A (for the Arts). Even though the total vote was over 50 percent, it was not enough to pass the proposal. Nonetheless, it is nice to know how supportive the Pointes are.

The Arts Council is always looking for volunteers. Are you familiar with working on a computer, or would you like to work on our web site or help with our "Window on the Arts?" Call us at (313) 438-2434.

Tortellini tetrazzini uses leftover turkey

Most "cooking" families have a recipe for tetrazzini (made with leftover chicken or turkey) lurking somewhere in their box of family favorites. While a diet consisting of too much tetrazzini would be downright unhealthy, it does serve its purpose when you find yourself with a surplus of cooked turkey (or chicken) — a common plight on the day after Thanksgiving.

The following take on tetrazzini comes from the Maire Elementary School Cookbook 2000. The recipe caught my eye because it calls for fresh tortellini pasta instead of the usual spaghetti, and fresh zuc-

Regina hits South early

By Chuck Klonke

Sports Editor A lot of basketball games are decided in the final minute.

But in Grosse Pointe South's Class A district contest with Regina, the turning point probably came much earlier.

"If they hadn't jumped out to such a big lead at the start of the game it might have been different," said

O'Connor said. "She worked really hard so I'm glad she had such a good state meet."

Miller and Carly Piper, who finished second in both the 200 and 500 freestyle races, have both qualified for the United States Swimming Senior Nationals in Austin, Texas, in late

Another outstanding state performance came from Stephanie Leaman, who was eighth in the 500 freestyle in

"She had an upper respiratory infection last week and was out of the water for six days," O'Connor said. "She came back Monday and had only four days to get ready for the state meet. That was an incredible job that she did. Stephanie gets the most out of her talent through hard work. As a coach, you love that.'

Piper, who won both the 200 and 500 freestyle events last season, finished second to Mercy's Amy McCullough in each of them this season. The two races were billed as a duel between two of the best senior swimmers in the

"They've pretty much split down the middle in their races at the state meet," O'Connor said.

"I had hoped Carly would go out with two firsts, but she got the one (in the 400 race in the 500 freestyle, but McCullough's winning margin was even greater than in the 200. She posted a 4:52.9, while Piper was clocked in

The biggest disappointment of the meet for North came in the 200 freestyle relay. The Norsemen's team of Jamerino, Cassy Miller, Shelden and Piper was second in 1:37.32. Grand Haven won the event in 1:36.44.

"Kristin lost her goggles and that cost her more than half a second," O'Connor said. "That race had a swing of 12 points. If we had won it, we would have finished. second. But that's the breaks.

Even though North didn't JOE R win the 200 freestyle relay like it did last year. O'Connor was pleased that the team did as well as it did in the event.

"We lost two kids from last year's team and Shelden and Cassy Miller both stepped in and did a great job." the coach said. "We were only four-tenths of a second off last year's winning time.' North's team of Jamerino. Kammy Miller, Shelden and Cassy Miller took fifth place in the 200 medley relay with a time of 1:49.27.

Jamerino was fifth in the 50 freestyle in 24.3.

South's best performance was a fifth place in the 200 freestyle relay. The team of Molly O'Loughlin, Amber Rodin, Ashley Wenk and Lindsay Rodin turned in a time of 1:38.35. The same team finished sixth in the 400 freestyle relay in 3:36.81

Lindsay Rodin was eighth in the 200 freestyle and ninth in the 100 butterfly. O'Loughlin was seventh in the 50 freestyle, winning the consolation final by twotenths of a second in 24.32.

Blue Devils coach Peggy Van Poor shooting — 24 per-Eckoute after her team's 58-cent from the field — and 29 48 loss to the host turnovers also hurt South, Saddlelites.

University Liggett School had hoped for to cap one of the finest girls basketball seasons in the school's histo-

That's because the luck of the state tournament draw Detroit Communication Media Arts in their first Class C district game at Detroit Dominican.

"It was tough having to play them first," said ULS coach John Bandos after the Pharaohs beat the Knights

"I realize we'd have to play them somewhere down the line, but I think if we had opened with somebody like Dominican, it would have been a pretty good game.'

There wasn't much ULS could do to stop CMA, which has been ranked in the top 10 in the state all season.

"We made it interesting for a quarter and a half," Bandos said. "That's the best team we've played all year. They forced a lot of overall record.

turnovers by putting pressure on our forwards. And It wasn't the finish that they didn't miss many shots. We only had 12 rebounds for the game.

CMA led 22-14 after one quarter but the Pharaohs expanded their lead to 39-21 at halftime and broke the game wide open by outscorsent the Knights against ing ULS 28-8 in the third quarter.

> "My girls know that they played hard," Bandos said. They never quit fighting. They had to, just to survive.'

Ryan Coleman, who led CMA with 18 points, is the Pharaohs' top player but the rest can be dangerous, too.

"We'd concentrate on covering one player and somebody else would hit a three,' Bandos said. "And then if we'd try to stop two people, somebody else would hurt us back door. I'll be surprised if they don't at least get to the quarterfinals.

Courtney Hills completed her high school career by leading the Knights with 10 points and six rebounds. Maria Lewis had nine points and Alexa Davenport added seven.

ULS finished with a 14-6

Lindsay Koerber also had her best game and finished with 13 points. Meredith Farmer finished with 13 points and Francis and Potthoff added 10 apiece. Francis also had 11 assists and six steals.

North followed that win with a 64-33 victory over Denby.

It was 11-11 after the first quarter but the Norsemen took charge in the second quarter, outscoring the Tars

"I didn't think that we came out with the same intensity that we did against Finney," Bennett said. "And Denby was more disciplined offensively and defensively."

North went into a zone press after the first quarter and it caused Denby some problems.

Potthoff led North with 14 points and Harrell added 12. Margaret McMann chipped in with nine points.

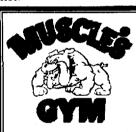

Harrell, who missed the first half of the season with a knee injury, has been playing more all the time.

"She came back at just the right time - when we lost Stephanie (Rose) and Jill with injuries," Bennett said.

Bramos is back, but Rose is lost for the season. The injury problem continued last week when Bigham, who had played so well during the last two weeks of the regular season, missed the first two games of the district with a bruised knee.

Bramos played a key role in the Denby game.

"Jill was great on the boards," Bennett said. "She really plays hard and when the other players watch her, she pulls them along with

Salvo takes second in MYSL division

the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Salvo '89 won five of its last six games to climb into second place in its 11-team division in the Michigan Youth Soccer League.

The Salvo beat the Flint Cobras 2-0 in a game played in cold, windy conditions. defender David Szandzik fed a perfect lead pass to Tim Deters, who beat the Cobras defense and goalie with a well-placed left-footed shot to the far post to give the Salvo a 1-0 lead five minutes into the game.

The Cobras fought back in the second half when they had the wind at their backs but Salvo goalie Phil Cackowski made some excellent saves. Szandzik again broke out of the defensive end and set up Ryan Stepanski for the insurance goal late in the game.

Winger Steven Joseph moved to defense in the second half and he and Brad Jensen did a good job of shutting down the Cobras in the second half. Michael Dragovich played a strong game at midfield.

Traditions and Other Christmas Trivia

Did you ever have a child ask you, "Why do people put of Christmas trees?", and be stumped for an answer? Following is a list of Christmas trivia, some quite important, and some, like most trivia, virtually useless.

The Christmas Tree: Legend has it that St. Boniface rather inadvertently began this custom. The English monk was preaching and converting souls in old Germany, and he used the triangular form of the fir tree to represent the Christian belief of the Holy Trinity. It was obviously an effective metaphor, as by the twelfth century, fir trees were placed inside homes, inverted. Thatis right, they were originally hung upside-down, with their bases nailed into the ceiling. By the sixteenth century, they were standing upright, and Martin Luther is credited as the originator of putting lights on the tree (he used candles).

Poinsettias: The traditional Christmas plant is named after Joel Poinsett, who served as Ambassador to Mexico back in 1829. He transplanted some of the plants from Mexico to his native North Carolina, where they flourished. He also brought back the legend of the plant, held dear throughout the southern hemisphere. Ages ago, a young Mexican boy and girl were on their way to church to celebrate Christmas, but being poor, had no offering. They picked a number of weeds along the way to make a simple bouquet, and when they arrived at the church. were the subject of derisive laughter from the children. other Nevertheless, they proceeded to the altar with their humble gift, which, as they the Nativity, blossomed into the strikingly beautiful plant today. we all know today.

Mistletoe: This parasitic plant was venerated throughout Europe in pagan times, when it was believed that it bestowed life, fertility and protection.

Celtic shamans held rituals around it, and would only cut it with a sickle made of pure gold. The custom of kissing under the mistletoe goes back to the ancient Greek festival of Saturnalia, where a smooch under a sprig was believed to ensure a large family. The name itself, however, is not so romantic. The Celts believed that the plant sprung from bird droppings, hence tan (twig) became the word we use mistel (dung) and

Now for some stranger trivia, bound to be used in only the most extraordinary of conversations:

Christmas was not an official holiday until the state of Alabama first officially recognized it as such in 1836. Before that date, many businesses would close, but it was still a working day like any other for most people.

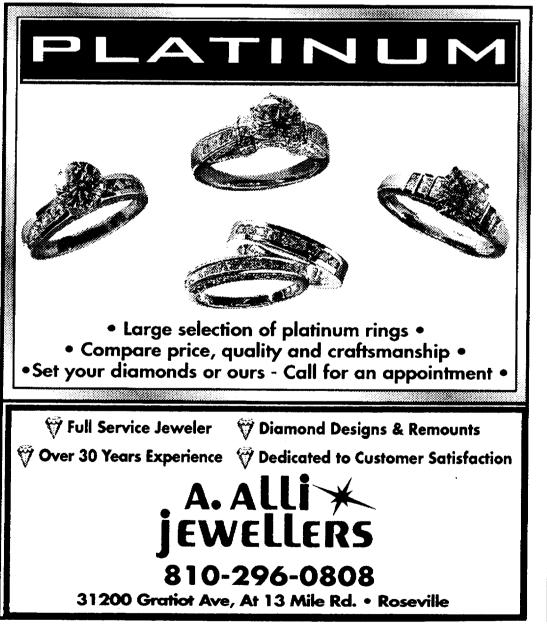

The Victorians believed that if you turned down an offer of mince pie or plum pudding on Christmas day, bad luck would befall you until the New Year.

In Greece, a familiar Christmas custom is the burning of one's old shoes in the fireplace, ensuring that no bad luck follows into the new year. The very first official White House

The very first official White House Christmas tree was trimmed by President Franklin Pierce, in 1856.

An old belief is that on Christmas Eve, all of the animals of the world are given the gift of speech. Bad things can happen, though, to the person who attempts a conversation...Maybe the animals are averse to trivia games?

Classic Christmas Movies, Old and New

Amid all of the chaos that celebrating Christmas can bring, it's nice to curl up with the family and enjoy a holiday film together. The film industry has long been keen on Christmas, and hundreds of movies have used it as a theme, starting with The Night Before Christmas back in 1906. While you probably won't find that one on video, there are a number of great movies, new and old, that are sure to raise the Christmas spirit.

Naturally, the first film that comes to mind is It's a Wonderful Life, the master-piece by Frank Capra. Perhaps one of the best movies ever made, if you haven't seen it, or seen it recently, rent either the black and white or colorized version. Older children will also appreciate the story of George Bailey and his angelic friend Clarence.

If you like a little song and dance with your Christmas fare, you can't do much better than Holiday Inn, a 1942 film by Irving Berlin that features crooning by Bing Crosby and incredible dancing by Fred Astaire. Another musical hit is 1954's White Christmas, with Crosby, Danny Kaye and Rosemary Clooney.

There have been some ten film versions of Dickens' classic A Christmas Carol, but one of the better is the musical version from 1970, Scrooge. Albert Finney is marvelous in the title role, and the music by Leslie Bricusse is enchanting. For the kids, a sure winner is The Muppet Christmas Carol, with the tale being told as only Kermit, Fozzie, and Miss Piggy can. The traditional Christmas story The Nutcracker was given a film makeover in 1993, starring Kevin Kline and Macauley Culkin, and is great for young ones.

Another famous Christmas flick is Miracle on 34th Street, which answers some pretty serious questions about the existence of Santa. While the original is outstanding, so is the 1994 remake, with Richard Attenborough as a memorable Kriss Kringle.

If there is a modern Christmas film destined to become a classic, it would have to be 1983's A Christmas Story. Poor Ralphie only wants to find a Red Rider BB gun under the tree, but even the Santa in the store tells him "you'll shoot your eye out". Darrin McGavin is hilarious as Ralphie's dad, who tries so hard to please the whole family and make a memorable Christmas.

If you're a real Christmas film aficionado, you may have seen all of these, so here are some that got great reviews but not a lot of viewing. Check out The Christmas That Almost Wasn't, a 1965 release about a small-town attorney who has to help save Santaís workshop from foreclosure. Another good bet is Prancer (1989), the story of a girl who believes she has found one of Santaís reindeer.

Seen all of them? Then treat the family to perhaps the weirdest of all Christmas films, 1964's Santa Claus Conquers the Martians, and watch what a sleigh full o toys can do to a UFO!

Toys from Christmas Past Still Popular

Have the children in your life started their annual pre-Christmas prayers for the newest toys? If so, by now you're aware of the hottest new video games, cartoon-show action figures and generally a lot of expensive things that will have your battery bills soaring. This season, why not give them both a shock and a delight with something that you, or even their grandparents, played with?

No, you don't have to go digging through the attic, as some classic toys of the last century are still being made, having survived the popularity tests of generations. Safe and fun, these toys will get the kids' creative juices flowing as well.

While many of today's dolls seem to mimic all human looks and functions except a heartbeat, the best-loved doll of the last 80 years is certainly Raggedy Ann. Born in 1915, Raggedy Ann was the creation of Johnny Gruelle, who wanted a soft ragamuffin of a doll whose simplicity begged to be loved. After Ann's immediate success, Raggedy Andy was introduced in 1920. A series of books, and later cartoons, followed their adventures. The two were an essential in children's arms for decades, until the doll business expanded so greatly in the 1960s. But their charm endures, and before children were building virtual structures with a CD-ROM, they relied on plain old pieces of wood or metal that they actually put together with their hands. This creative pastime is still available in Lincoln Logs and the Erector Set. The Lincoln Logs were invented by John Lloyd Wright, son of famous architect Frank Lloyd Wright. He took his inspiration from a construction method used by his father and began turning out the hardwood notched logs of various sizes around 1920. Hasbro, K'nex Industries still makes wooden Lincoln Logs sets, and they've added plastic people, farm animals and the like.

A.C. Gilbert turned out his first Erector set in 1913; it contained enough pulleys, gears and metal strips to build bridges and small structures. Later, the memorable Ferris wheel sets were made along with zeppelins, trucks and a wellreceived amusement park set. Today, the Meccano Company turns out a number of great sets, from beginner to advanced.

Few of us survived childhood without at least one treat from an Easy-Bake Oven. Introduced in 1963, these miniature ovens relied on heat generated by a light bulb to bake up miniature cakes, cookies and even bubble gum. They changed the look every few years to keep up with current styles and colors, but the premise remained the same: Kids could safely bake an edible treat and take pride in sharing it with their family or friends. Hasbro still makes the Easy-Bake, and this year's model looks more like a microwave oven. Little bakers can still watch through the window as their cupcakes rise, though, and there are more recipe choices.

In 1960, the Ohio Art Company bought invention of one Arthur Granjean, changed from "L'ecran Magique" to Etch-a-Sketch and toy history was made. Since that time, millions of pictures have been drawn and then shaken off the small red-framed pads. The secret lies in aluminum powder on the screen which is scratched off as the user moves the vertical and horizontal controls. Plastic beads then erase the board when it's vigorously shaken. Various sizes are made, some small enough to fit on a keychain. Recently, Ohio xArt introduced the "Zooper" Etcha-Sketch that provides over 50 sounds to accompany the drawings.

> "Who walks the stairs without a care, it shoots so high in the sky.... " So went the words of the Slinky song in homage to that stalwart friend of children young and old. Introduced in 1945 by Richard James, the Slinky is still eliciting giggles worldwide. Large and small, colored or in the classic steel, James Industries has a slinky for everyone. While handheld games get tiresome gitter a while, the Slinky imply fun to hold and roll from hand to hand. Buy two, and clear the stairway on Christmas, because once the batteries run out on the high-tech toys, the Slinky races will begin!

Corporate Gifts beyond the Holiday Fruit Basket

So, your holiday gift list is almost done; you've covered Mom and Dad, the kids and spouse, the mailman, paperboy and even the cousins in Cleveland. Now, the nagging question remains: What do you get for those important business contacts, the professionals that you rely on 12 months out of the year, but usually thank personally only during the holidays?

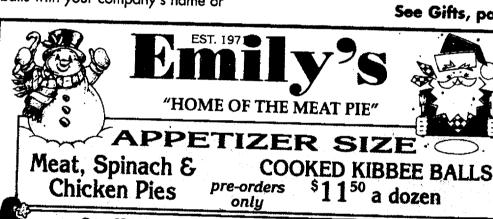

In the past, fruit baskets have always made a tasty, colorful presentation. But face it, once the apples and pears are eaten and the basket is stored away, the impression that your gift made is likely to fade. This year, why not deliver something that will last the year and be a sure reminder of your company every time it's used?

Did you discuss business over a game of golf this year? A set of premium golf balls with your company's name or logo will not only keep you in mind, but they may bring a return invitation to the links. A golf umbrella will have the same effect, but make sure the company name is kept a tasteful size. Have a coffeague or contact who wants to play, but says they can never get time to practice? A set of passes to a driving range of a certificate for a few lessons with a local pro will associate you with this favorite pas-

If your business relationship was built over elegant lunches and dinners, a very fine wine is always a good gift, but like the baskets, won't be remembered when gone. Instead, take a trip to a store that specializes in great vintages, where you will find traveling cases that hold one to three bottles. The cases come in hardshell plastic and also fine leather, and some include corkscrews and wine coasters. And don't forget to fill it!

When you know the tastes of recipient fairly well, you can successfully give the gift of an event. For instance, a pair of tickets to the symphony, opera or ballet is perfect for the classical arts lover. Likewise, tickets to sporting events, races or wrestling are all fine, as long as you're absolutely sure they will be appreciated. Events like these create vivid, pleasant memories that will be associated with you.

The gift of a best-selling book on business is a great compliment to the receiver, as it shows you respect their intellect. Choose a well-reviewed tome, like The Millionaire Next Door by Thomas J. Stanley, The New Thing by Michael Lewis or Fusion Leadership by Richard Daft. An inscription may be put on the first leaf, but an accompanying pair of marble bookends will make it more memorable still.

For a casual gift for either business contacts or associates, "desk sports" remain popular.

The Tradition of Boxing Day Continues

When the average American hears the term "Boxing Day", the first images that come to mind usually involve a roped-off ring and large leather gloves, or a field of cardboard cartons. But our neighbors in Canada, as well as friends in Britain, Australia and New Zealand are in on the real secret: They've managed to add another day to the Christmas holidays.

Exactly how Boxing Day got its name and when it started is still being debated, but the millions who celebrate it on December 26th don't seem to mind. It is an official holiday, complete with greeting cards, get-togethers, and special sporting events. But, like in America, it also provides another reason to leave the wrapping paper on the floor and get out of the house: Sales!

Retailers traditionally slash prices and deeply discount leftover merchandise on Boxing Day, affording one more day of frenzied shopping before the winter sales slow down. The origins of the day, however, have less to do with receiving and much more with giving.

Many believe that the holiday commemorates the old English churches' practice of opening up the alms box on December 26th, the feast of the first Christian martyr, St. Stephen. It is also thought to have originated from the custom of giving boxes of gifts and coins to public servants such as postmen, street sweepers and lamplighters.

Another school of thought contends that in Medieval times, the serfs and servants of the manor would gather before the lord and lady of the house and receive boxes of linens, breads, seeds, and other necessary items. Yet another explanation asserts that young trade apprentices, given a few coins per month by their employers, were allowed to break open the earthenware boxes that contained them on that day.

Many still practice the tradition of giving gifts to public workers on Boxing Day, an appropriate and generous gesture. The countries that celebrate this holiday are certainly fortunate to have another day off on the year's calendar.

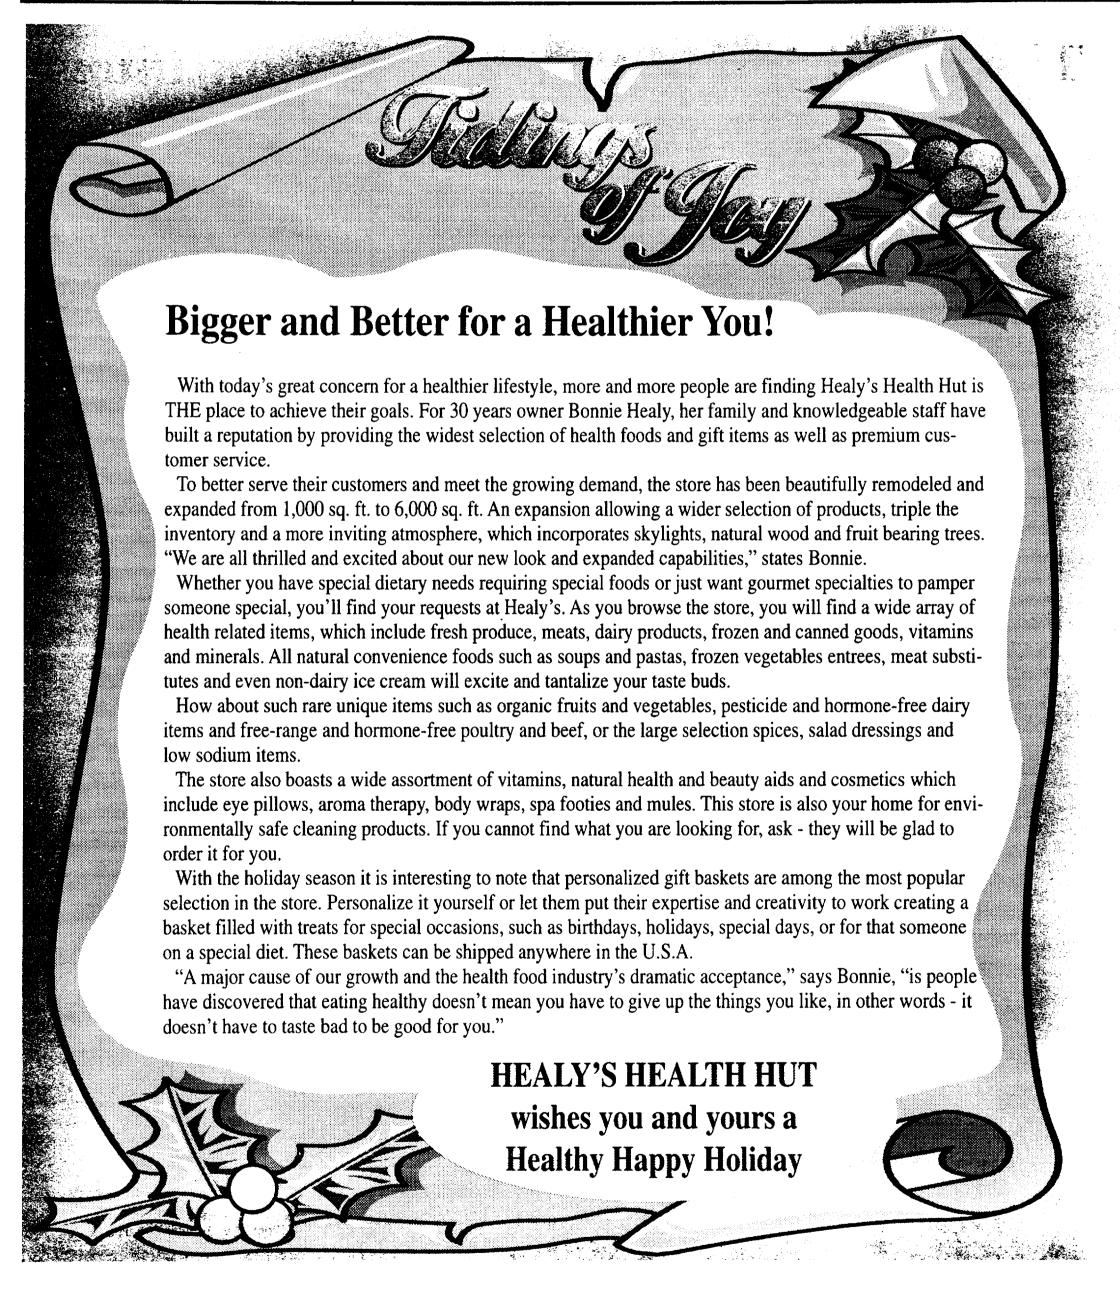

To truly impress a friend in Canada or another celebrating country, check online and send a Boxing Day card or greeting via e-mail. Who knows, maybe someday it will become an American holiday, too.

Gifts For Men Show Inspiration

By Daniel Aspell

If there is a man's name at the top of your holiday shopping list, you may still be in a quandary over just the right item to purchase. Clothing gifts are always hit-and-miss, even the traditional necktie, and most men hang on to their wallet for at least a couple of years. Following are some items that may, while not clothes, be the perfect fit for that guy on your gift roster.

First, let's take a look at men's jewelry. This year, really hot looks and fine pieces are available at some of the best prices in years. The favorite metals for men this year are sterling silver and stainless, often with a small touch of gold as an accent. Look for cable or solid square-link styles, with a sturdy lobster claw or box clasp. For pure elegance, you can't go wrong with a set of fine cuff links, but make sure you include a French-cuffed shirt to go with it. This year, you'll find cuff links in designs to fit his tastes, favorite colors and hobbies.

Another gift of fine metal are the number of small silver or steel flasks available, many with handsome brass or even gold trim. Have it monogrammed for a personal touch, and include a bit of his favorite libation.

Have you ever found it hard to find a gift for the outdoorsman, because he has already purchased everything he needs? If he doesn't own a fine walking/hiking stick, than he's not fully outfitted. Check out the fine sticks at www.canes galore, or look at fine outfitters for models in mountain ash, scorched hazel, chestnut and maple. They are aged a minimum of two years, and come with a fine leather wrist tassel, all for an average below $50.

The Budweiser Clydesdales are a Breed Apart

By Brad Lindberg Staff Writer

The Budweiser Clydesdales are the big rigs of the horse world, the gentlemen of the four-hoofed highway.

They're called gentle giants. They're pampered like poodles.

The eight-horse hitch of Clydesdales that the Anheuser-Busch company will dispatch this week to the Grosse Pointe Santa Claus Parade are considered a breed apart.

Magnificent in size, mellow in disposition, the team has a lineage dating to the repeal of Prohibition. In an early display of marketing chutzpa, the unit's forebearers in 1933 high-stepped onto the national scene by delivering a case of Bud to President Franklin Delano Roosevelt at the White House.

The Clydesdales will clop through the family-lined streets of Grosse Pointe as the highlight of the Santa Claus Parade's 25th anniversary the day after Thanksgiving, Friday, Nov. 25, at 10:30 a.m.

The parade starts at Kercheval and Fisher in the City of Grosse Pointe. The route heads down Kercheval through the Village shopping district to Cadieux.

Working as unit under the command of a pair of spit-and-polish teamsters, the eight-horse hitch will haul a vintage-1903 red, white and gold Studebaker beer wagon complete with a Dalmatian on top. Sorry, no free samples.

"This is a big deal for our town," said Cindy Melican, in her second year as director of the Santa Claus Parade. "It's going to be fun."

"This should be the biggest parade we've had in 25 years, and I've worked 'em all," said Dennis Van Dale, deputy chief of public safety in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Three custom 50-foot tractor trailers will deliver the team to the Pointes. The trailers are outfitted with cameras (with monitors in the cabs) so drivers can keep an eye on their passengers during transport. Air-cushion suspension and thick rubber flooring in the trailers make the ride as smooth as possible.

The horses and handlers will stage at Neff Park on Jefferson.

Rigged and ready to go, the team will travel under police escort to and from the parade.

"When these things turn a corner, its like a 40-foot semi," said Van Dale. "They need an arm and a leg to turn."

Melican said, "It will be quite a scene for whoever has them coming down their street."

The Clydesdale breed stems from six Great Flemish warhorses. Imported in the early 19th century to an area near the River Clyde in Lanarkshire, Scotland, Clydesdales built a reputation for power. The Budweiser Clydesdales are top specimens. The company has five teams that together carry the Anheuser-Busch tradition more than 100,000 miles each year to hundreds of events, including Mardi Gras and the Rose Bowl parade.

Budweiser's five traveling Clydesdale hitches are based in St. Louis; San Diego and Menifee, Calif.; Merrimack, N.H.; and San Antonio. The New Hampshire group is visiting the Pointes.

To qualify for the Budweiser squad, a Clydesdale must be a bay gelding, stand 18-hands (six feet) at the shoulder when mature, and weigh between 1,800 and 2,300 pounds. In addition, the animals must have four stocking feet, a blaze of white on the face, black mane and tail. An easygoing temperament also counts. Hence the "gentle giant" nickname. Although docile, any animal that weighs

Take Your Best Shot of the Santa Parade

By Brad Lindberg Staff Writer

When taking pictures of the Budweiser Clydesdales in the 25th annual Santa Claus Parade, remember the "rule of thirds"

What's the rule of thirds?

Rosh Sillars, the parade's photographer and a lecturer in photo journalism at Wayne State University, offered an anal-

He said, "Make a tic-tac-toe board in middle of the camera's view finder. Cross out the middle square and put the subject in one of other squares."
Using regular and digital cameras, Sillars plans to take hundreds of parade images. He'll use a fast-speed film (400 to 800) or fast setting on digital.

"Even if it's an overcast day," said Sillars, "high speed film will help capture stop action."

Sillars will also use multiple lenses, including wide-angle (25 to 35 mm) and telephoto.

"The wide angle is to get as much in the frame as possible," he said. "After that, I'll start working my way in — medium, then closeup shots to get details."

If he prefers indoor sports, perhaps it's time to update that old chess set, or add to his game collection. The styles in this classic board game are returning to early roots, so expect to see lovely sets carved or molded in a Celtic or Medieval form. At maninthemoon.com, they show a lovely chess set based on the battle of Bunker Hill. The board itself, while divided into squares, is a map of the actual battlefield, with North and South squaring off in authentic uniforms.

While on the subject of pastimes, we may as well mention that a fine cigar remains a choice bit of pleasure for many men. The production of cigar humidors has grown with this penchant, but finally the prices have become more reasonable. This season, a humidor that holds 20 of his finest stogies can be found for $50 or less, and these are in rosewood and cedar, no less. Of course, they contain an adjustable hydrometer and all of those other cigar terms that the smokers bandy about.

Okay, maybe that guy really needs nothing more than a new razor. Look for the new Wally Rubber Razor by Hotz and the Spike Rubber Razor. These thefuture-is-now shaving tools stick on to the wall of the shower, have colorful and large flexible handles, and move with the shaver's stroke. Add one of these to a basket of aromatic and organic shave creams, moisturizers and aftershaves, and forget about how much hot water he's using.

So, after all this, maybe a tie is actually what this guy needs. Aside from the very popular solid silks that will certainly be popular this year, look at the handsome geometric designs in ties that were inspired by Frank Lloyd Wright and other designers and architects. These clean and linear designs are provided in many different color schemes to match any wardrobe.

A Santa by any Other Name...

Every Christmas season, millions of children have these same thoughts: If Santa Claus was in the department store, and I sat on his lap, then why is he out here by the parking lot ringing a bell? And why, when we went to the mall, was Santa there too? Just how magical is this guy?

If you've ever had to answer these thoughtful queries, you likely said something like, "Well, the Santa whose lap you sat on was the real one. All of the others are just his helpers." Hopefully, the questions ended there. But if you want to give the kids the real story, Santa is many different things, to many different countries.

The original Santa Claus, Hagios Nikolas, was born in Turkey in the year 280 AD. A widely-traveled student as a young man, he eventually became the Bishop of Myra (now Demre), and was known for his tremendous charity. He would often distribute large amounts of money to the poor, and the legend of the Christmas stocking begins with him. It is said that an impoverished girl was desperate because she was due to marry soon, but had no dowry. Hearing of her plight, St. Nick walked by an open window of her home and tossed in a sack of gold coins, which happened to land in a stocking that had been hung to dry by the fireplace.

He became the patron saint of Russia and Greece, as well as of children, shopkeepers, sailors and bakers. Sometime in the thirteenth century, Europeans began naming him as the one who brought the gifts for Christmas, and the legend was born. He became Santa Claus from the Dutch term for St. Nicholas, Sinte Klass.

The Old-world image of Santa is one wearing a long, fur-trimmed coat and peaked cap. The coat is likely from the blending of Santa Claus with the pagan image of King Frost from Northern Europe, and the cap seems to closely resemble the bishopis mitre worn by St. Nicholas. The red and white-suited fellow we know today was largely influenced by two nineteenth century artists.

Clement Moore wrote the famous 'Twas the Night Before Christmas in 1823, and laid down the accepted description of the "jolly old elf". Artist and cartoonist Thomas Nast drew the bearded Santa in red in the 1880's, and heis been that way to us ever since. Along the way, though, heis picked up certain customs wherever good little boys and girls wait for him.

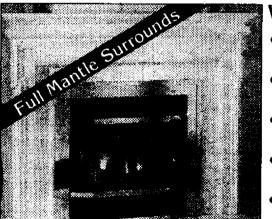

So, while you may flounder a bit with a childis questions about all of the Santas they see, maybe you need just one answer: Santa is the most magical guy in the world.

Shopping for Seniors Shouldn't be Brain-Racking

By Daniel Aspell

Kids are easy to shop for-they always tell you exactly what they want. Shopping for your spouse or friends is often a breeze, too, as you usually know their tastes, hobbies and lifestyles pretty well. But when it comes to choosing just the right gift for the senior in the family or an older friend, it can get downright puzzling.

After all, how many pairs of cozy slippers can a person use, and how much gift-basket food can they consume in a single season? If queried on what they might require or want as a holiday gift, you're likely to hear, "Really, I have everything I need." With age comes wisdom, but nevertheless, there are probably a few things they don't even know about that will make a terrific gift this season.

As the majority of the population is either in or approaching a senior status, those everyday products we use have become more senior-friendly. Kitchen utensils were among the first to make the shift, and a basket of these items is just what arthritic or stiff hands require.

Start with a set of modern-design dinnerware with large, easy-grip handles. Though built for comfort and easy manipulation, they look elegant and even rather high-tech. Other kitchen tools, like can openers, nut crackers and even barbecue tools, can be found that ensure comfortable handling.

Likewise, a number of personal grooming articles have been designed with the hands of a senior in mind. Products include nail clippers, scissors with soft, oversized handles and a lotion applicator that telescopes to fourteen inches, eliminating excessive bending.

For those not so nimble of hand anymore, a bookholder is a great gift for the bibliophile, and there are automatic card shufflers available for the game enthusiast. And after the card shuffler, how can you resist also giving the easily held clear plastic cardholder, which fits up to 11 cards?

Security is often a principal concern of our elders, especially those who live alone. There are many motion-activated alarms for doors and windows that will mean a gift of peace of mind.

These inexpensive, alarms simply hang from a doorknob or latch to a windowsill, and any opening motion causes them to emit a very loud siren.

Gift certificates are great gifts for any age, but make sure that the senior recipient can really use them. Sure bets are certificates from their favorite restaurant, movie passes and service coupons, such as free car washes or passes to local golf courses.

Many seniors have already spent a great deal of time in support of a certain charity or cause, whether global or local. A gift to that organization, in their name from you, will provide a lasting gift that they will not only appreciate, but take pride in.

A Helpful Holiday Timetable

As much joy as the holiday season brings, a certain amount of stress is always inevitable. It seems there are never enough hours, or even days to accomplish all the tasks that will make this year's celebration glow brighter than others past.

Most of us become list-makers around this time, but there is a pitfall in trying to rigidly structure all of the chores to be completed. You can practically count on a store being out of what you need when the list says you need it, or an extra rehearsal will be called for your fourthgrader's Christmas pageant.

This year, try instead a simple timetable, starting in November, that breaks the work to be done into weeks instead of micro-managing every minute. Guaranteed, you'll make it through to New Year's Eve happier and less stressed. The following suggestions should help you get started.

November: After Thanksgiving is a great time to start planning holiday menus. You can even make preserves, chutneys, or desserts that will freeze well until the big day. Have the kids cut out Christmas cookies and freeze those, too. Then, when they're in the mood for baking and you're exhausted from shopping, you hardly have to lift a finger to get the gingerbread men going.

December 1-7: A good time to get started on the homemade gifts such as sachets, wreaths, and centerpieces. Have the kids make their Christmas cards and gift boxes now, too. Enlist the help of spouse and children to address Christmas card envelopes. Shop now for gifts to avoid the longer lines that are certain to come in two weeks. If shopping online, make sure your orders are placed by now.

December 8-15: A busy week, for sure. Make sure that you've sent RSVPis for holiday parties, as well as lining up necessary babysitters. Early in the week, choose outfits to wear for celebrations, and be sure to have clothes dry-cleaned if needed. Make sure that cards and gifts are sent by the end of the week. Pick a nice weekend afternoon to choose and trim the Christmas Tree. And, importantly, get enough sleep and be sure to take vitamins!

December 16-23: If you have any last-minute shopping to do, avoid the peak afternoon hours. Many retailers open early and close late; take advantage of those times. Get the gifts or cards ready for the postman, delivery person, and paper carrier. Finish necessary house cleaning and decorating for holiday parties. Make reservations now for New Year's Eve if you plan to dine out. Now, pat yourself on the back for getting things done early this year, and enjoy the spirit of the season!

Don't touch that stripper, let it work itself

Q. Mr. Hardware, I'm stripping paint and varnish off a dresser. I have used over three coats of Zip-Strip and I'm still not done. What am I doing wrong? Sally Ann of St. Clair Shores.

A. Sally, stripping paint and varnish can be an art with a fast learning curve. With just a little patience you will be amazed how easy this can be.

The most important step is to leave the stripper on for as long as possible. Second, you should also be applying the product in thick strokes in one direction only. Do not spread it around too much, apply it and leave it. Let the stripper work as long as possible. The longer it works the deeper into the paint it will go.

Watching paint soften, not unlike watching paint dry, can be very boring. That is why so many people remove it too soon. Some strippers take 20 minutes to reach maximum penetration while others take several hours. Usually the faster acting products are offensive to use.

You are using one of the nastier but faster acting strippers, Zip

Strip. Having used this product previously I know your timing will be from 15 to 40 minutes until it gets hard.

Now here is the trick. Dab stripper on the spots that are hardening or drying out. This will keep the first coat alive allowing it to melt deeper. Eventually you will recoat the whole area. Remember that time is your friend. After a while take a few test scrapes and see how much of the paint is coming off. If 90 percent of the paint is coming off it is time to remove your first application of stripper.

Use a scraper to remove the first coat if the surface is smooth. Once done, if there are any patches of paint left behind, give them an additional coat to catch up. Do this until 95 percent of the old finish is gone.

The cleanup, or final coat of stripper, will stay soft much longer because there is less paint for the stripper to react with. Use steel wool, or a plastic pad, to remove the last coat of stripper. This will get deeper into the pores of the wood than the scraper did. This is important if you are staining the wood. The wood must be clean so a stain can penetrate evenly.

Apply several coats of stripper to the wood if it has fine detail work that is hard to get into. Do this until the paint floats to the surface. This may take three or four coats over several hours until you see bare wood in the cracks. Usually you will not need steel wool or a wire brush to scrub the detail work. Your paintbrush will push the old soft paint away and get

The Woodworking Show returns to Expo Center

The Metro D e t r o i t Wood working Show returns to Novi on Friday, Dec. 8, from noon to 7 p.m.; Saturday, Dec. 9, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sunday, Dec. 10, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Novi Expo Center.

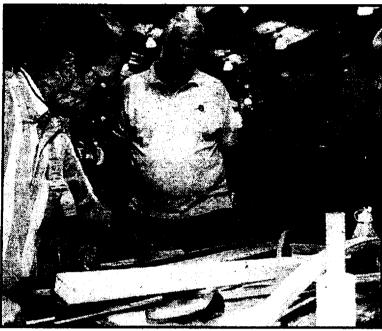

Woodworkers, home builders, wood turners and carvers; hobbyists and professionals, will have the opportunity to see the newest in hand tools, power tools, machinery and supplies, have their woodworking questions answered and improve their skills.

The three-day event features more than 100 different manufacturers from across the country, displaying and demonstrating a wide range of woodworking, turning, carving and finishing materials and supplies. Attendees can shop for all their workshop needs—home or commercial—all under one roof, at special discount prices.

In addition, woodworkers will have the opportunity to interact with industry-leading authors, instructors and master craftsmen at a series of seminars and floor demonstrations presented by Fine Woodworking magazine and the Marc Adams' School of Woodworking.

Visit the Masters' Stage and see demonstrations by Marc Adams and Michael Fortune on a variety of woodworking techniques. They will also answer questions and show woodworkers how to correct common mistakes. Each session will last 30 to 60 minutes and will take place on the show floor. Adams and Fortune, along with Bill Hull and Jeff Jewitt, will also be conducting a series of in-depth three-hour seminars presented by Fine Woodworking magazine and the Marc Adams' School of Woodworking.

Full-day seminars are $95 and three-hour seminars are $60. Advance seminar registration includes a free weekend pass to the show.

Michigan Woodworkers Guild will be present to display selected members' work and collections, demonstrate their skills, share tips and answer questions.

Attendees will be eligible to enter a prize drawing for a new Jet, Performax, Powermatic shop valued at up to $7,500.

Admission to the show is $9 for adults, with children 12 and under free. Tickets will be sold at the door.

For more information or to register, call (800) 826-8257. Visit the show's web site at www.thewoodshows.com.

Show your holiday spirit in decoration this season

Christmas is just around the corner and it is time to decorate your home for the holidays. Every year more people are decorating the outside of the home with lights, figurines, wreaths and garland. It seemed to me that Halloween decorating hit an all-time high. Now it's time to show our Christmas spirit.

The biggest challenge this year may be withstanding the cold. Our early weather change will make it a little more challenging to put up the lights and garland. Looking on the bright side, the fresh cedar or pine garland and fresh wreaths will last longer when the weather is cold.

Lights have made a strong comeback in the past several years. Icicle lights have now added a new and exciting look to the home, and they now come in a variety of colors and lengths to fit any decorating theme. Fewer homeowners are using the large bulb lights (C9 and C7) and are switching to the small miniature lights, which come in a rainbow of color choices. The miniature lights are less costly to maintain than the larger bulbs.

Some like to decorate with all clear bulbs for a clean crisp look while others have mixed colors for a unique look. All Christmas lights are not created equal, and in most cases you get what you pay for. The dedicated decorator who wishes to use the same lights year after year will look for quality features such as replaceable fuses and locking light sockets. A few of the better manufacturers even offer guarantees with their lights.

Safety should always be a top priority when installing your lighting. Never use lights that have frayed cords, cracked wiring or broken sockets. Be careful not to overload the capacity of your cords or circuit. When running the extension cords through the landscape try not to leave the connections lying on the ground. If you can suspend the connection in a bush there is less chance of water shorting out the connection. Placing lights high up in the trees is often a challenge.

Commercial companies use boom lifts and long poles. You may not have a boom truck, but a pole for decorating is easy to come by. Wooden poles 10-foot long with hooks on the end are available for getting to that tough to reach spot. Another option is buying a long piece of PVC plastic tubing and installing a hook to the end. Never use a metal pole since it can conduct electricity. You may be working around power lines. Connecting too many light strings together will short the light string. Miniature lights are usually limited to three strands connected end to end, and C7 or C9 larger bulbs are rated for only two strands connected together.

Lights will decorate the house at night, but what about during the day? During the daytime garland, wreaths, bows and ornaments are needed. Fresh cut garland is made out of cedar, white pine or many other types of evergreens. Hanging garland or roping around the windows or from the eves has been a tradition for years. Bows, ribbon, glass bulbs, berries and other decorations can be spectacular

A holiday wreath on the house is very festive whether it is decorated with a simple bow or decked out with all the trimmings. Many wreaths are made from balsam, Douglas fir or pine. Douglas fir is the most aromatic and pine will last the longest outdoors.

All your fresh cut wreaths, roping and trees can be sprayed with Wilt-pruf to preserve the freshness even longer. Wilt-pruf is a milky liquid that dries clear and helps keep greenery from losing its moisture. Fresh Christmas greens can be used indoors also. Expect the freshness to last about a week. A light misting of water and Wilt-pruf will help extend the time you can keep them inside.

The fragrance of the fresh greens will fill the home and definitely get even Scrooge into the Christmas spirit.

Wreaths and Garlands

Greens are a big part of the holidays, and nothing adorns a doorway quite like a wreath or garland. At Evergreen Home and Garden Center you'll find artificial and fresh wreaths from 10- to 72-inch diameter sizes. Wreaths are available in pre-lit and pre-decorated styles or you can create your own design. Fresh evergreen roping and garlands are also available. Hang your wreath or garland wherever you wish with brick clips or magnetic hangers, which also work great on glass storm doors.

Don't forget the place where Santa enters your home-the fireplace. At Evergreen Home and Garden Center you'll find everything you need to add warmth to your home this winter. If you enjoy spending time with your family and guests rather than tending to a fire, then gas logs are for you. Evergreen Home and Garden Center carries gas log sets from top manufacturers, including Rasmussen, Bohanna & Pearce and Monessen. For homes without a fireplace or areas of your home that can't accommodate one, you might want to consider a gas, woodburning or electric stove or an electric fireplace. At Evergreen Home and Garden Center you find vented and unvented gas and wood-burning stoves from Napoleon, Vermont Castings, Jotul and Comfort Glow. Vermont Castings' Addison Electric Stoves are popular and their Majestic Fireplaces come with an oak finish and full cabinet surround. Evergreen Home and Garden Center also carries a complete line of fireplace tools and accessories.

Grills

Cold weather doesn't mean you have to stop grilling until next spring. Evergreen Home and Garden Center carries a large selection of grills, smokers, turkey fryers for Thanksgiving and barbecue tools. You'll find brand names such as Weber, Broilmaster and Ducane. Evergreen Home and Garden Center also has fire pits, Mexican chimneas and Italian fireplaces if you enjoy outdoor fires.

Detroit Edison urges customers to use safety

Homes, streets and shopping malls will soon be decorated with the colorful lights of the holiday season. What is important is that those lights — both interior and exterior — be safety-checked prior to installation.

Claudia Gabay, Detroit Edison's corporate lighting consultant, said when decorating with seasonal lighting, safety should be a priori-

"The hustle and bustle of the holiday season shouldn't prevent people from checking their decorative lights and other trimmings for safety hazards," said Gabay. "Just because your lights worked effectively last year doesn't mean that everything will be OK this year. A few minutes spent checking cords for potential hazards can possibly prevent a fire or worse."

Nearly every year, tragedy strikes during the holiday season because of house fires that start because of faulty or damaged electrical cords and improper use of electrical outlets and electrical decorations.

Lights should be thrown away if they have frayed wires, damaged sockets and cracked or missing insulation. To reduce the possibility of electrical shock or fires, check for an Underwriters Laboratory (UL) label before stringing lights and installing decorations.

Gabay warned that some light sets and other decorations may be stamped with fake UL labels and not designed properly for safe operation. If you are suspicious about a low price on light sets, compare the UL label with another on a brandname set.

Home decorators also should make sure lights are used as the manufacturers intended them to be - for example, indoor lights for indoor use only because they can be affected by moisture; outdoor lights should be used outdoors because they burn hotter.

Gabay noted that homeowners can use a simple "touch test" to determine if a light set is potentially dangerous.

"If indoor lights are hot to the touch, I wouldn't use them" she said.

After safety checks are completed, you can decorate your home knowing that seasonal lighting is an inexpensive way to put a sparkle on the holidays. Most lights cost from less than one cent to 7.5 cents per string to operate for six hours, depending on the wattage. For lights that blink on and off, the cost is halved.

Detroit Edison, the largest electric utility in the state, offers the following tips so everyone can enjoy safer holidays:

Indoor lighting

· Do not overload electrical circuits.

• Use not more than three sets of standard lights on each extension cord.

 Do not insert new bulbs or change fuses when light sets are plugged in.

• Keep lights away from carpeting, furniture and drapes.

 Turn off decorative lights before you go to bed or leave home. Outdoor lighting

• Use only outdoor extension cords with molded plugs and sock-

 Keep all electrical connections off the ground and hang sockets downward to prevent water from seeping into them.

• Do not run lighting cords through door or window openings where they can be damaged.

Good Housekeeping

Five fast energizers

When you're so tired you can barely think straight, try these quick fixes:

1. Step into the light. We need bright light to stimulate the brain to make us more alert. A five- to 10minute foray outdoors can do wonders for our energy levels.

2. Sniff peppermint. The smell of peppermint (available as an extract in supermarkets and drugstores) wakes people up. Your nose acclimates quickly to the scent, so wait a few seconds before taking a second whiff. Continue until you feel more alert.

3. Snack on a mix of protein and carbohydrates. Energy-boosting items include trail mix, sports bars and combinations of yogurt and cereal, peanut butter and crackers or hummus and pita bread.

4. Turn on music. One recent study showed that listening to music is an effective way to improve energy. It suggested that rhythmic music, especially the toetapping variety, makes people move or at least imagine moving, and possibly reduces muscle ten-

5. Take a short nap. Assuming you don't have time for a 90minute nap, which would allow you to have stages of lighter and deeper sleep as well as a dreaming period, set your clock for 10 to 20 minutes. That way, you'll wake up before you enter a deep sleep. (With a nap longer than 20 minutes, but shorter than 90, you'll interrupt the deepest stages of sleep and wake up groggy.)
