North to lose Caryn Wells as principal

By Jennie Miller
Staff Writer

Dr. Caryn Wells has decided to end her tenure as principal of Grosse Pointe North High School.

Last week, Wells announced her resignation after accepting a position as a school quality consultant in the Oakland Intermediate School District.

She has been principal at North for the past 10 years.

"I've loved every moment here," she said. "It has been a great place to lead, serve and grow. I have tremendous respect for the teaching and learning that goes on at this school."

Wells' new position involves two main projects: helping aspiring leaders and high school reform.

The duties are especially interesting to Wells, whose dissertation was on restructuring teaching and learning, and who, for the past three years, has been teaching a graduate course at Michigan State University for teachers who desire to become administrators.

"I have been interested in the topic for 15 years," she said. "When I heard about the job, I felt it was a perfect fit."

Wells has not yet chosen a departure date from her current position at North. She says she will remain through the month of September and will coordinate the transition.

During her time as principal of North, Wells has initiated and overseen many programs aimed at student learning and growth.

"She has made great contributions to the district during her tenure," said Grosse Pointe Public School Superintendent Dr. Susan Klein. "She is committed to success for all."

Such contributions include the Diversity Team and a new girls' mentoring program, where upperclass girls work with freshmen and sophomores.

Wells has also worked with the Lighthouse Program and the Student Center to offer academic support for alternative learners.

During the next month, Wells is committed to making a smooth transition for North's leadership.

"I want to make sure there is a leader in place for every one of those groups," she said.

Wells said that although her career is taking her to a different district, she is still a part of the community and will always support the students.

"I am a number one fan of athletics and visual and performing arts," she said. "I can't imagine not being a member of the audience."

Klein and Larry Lobert, the district's director of human resources, are currently discussing plans for Wells' replacement.

"We are considering a lot of different options," Klein said.

According to Lobert, the goal is to build a solid transition with an interim principal and then begin looking for a long-term replacement.

Ash trees to go way of elms

By Brad Lindberg

Kathy O'Sullivan has entered the annals of tree lore, and it's making her Irish blood boil.

The ash tree she'd tended in front of her Grosse Pointe Park home was the first in the estate suburbs to be diagnosed a victim of the fatal emerald ash borer epidemic.

"What a shame to fame, huh?" she said.

O'Sullivan stood near a growing pile of dismembered branches and wailed leaves while watching her tree being cut down. She was too focused to notice that sawdust from a chainsaw slicing through the 20-foot specimen had speckled her black, sleeveless designer blouse.

"I'm pretty upset," O'Sullivan hands pressed palm-to-palm at the tip of her chin.

Her 11-year-old ash, the one that had shielded her home from afternoon sun, that was a key element in her landscape of large ornamental pear tree, modest Magnolia and small Japanese maple — and the shade tree like many in her community planted in lieu of majestic elms killed by an incurable disease — would soon be nothing but a stump.

"My house is going to look barren without it," she said. The noisy chainsaw dissecting O'Sullivan's tree Aug. 22 sounded the anticipated fate of thousands of

City curbs student parking near South

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Students at Grosse Pointe South High School may have a tougher time finding a place to park this school year.

The City of Grosse Pointe took a number of measures at its Monday, Aug. 19, meeting that will limit parking around the school.

The city council unanimously gave the department of public safety approval to issue permit parking to residents and guests only along Lincoln between Jefferson and Kercheval, pending approval of 75 percent of the residents.

Currently, two-hour parking was put into place in the hope that students wouldn't snag parking spots before customers come to shop in the blocklong commercial district and to make it more difficult for students to "feed" the two-hour meters during school hours.

However, parking restrictions haven't deterred South students, whose cars line the narrow street a block away from the high school.

"Not only have we had problems with litter and traffic congestion, but residents complain because they can't get their leaves or garbage picked up," said Department of Public Safety Director Al Fincham. "Last year, we had two accidents because the line of sight had been blocked by cars."

The Department of Public Safety is currently polling Lincoln residents. So far, Fincham said the response to the plan by residents has been positive.

"We would love it," said Lincoln resident Lori Schumann. "We get students who park here all day long. It's very congested. Especially after school."

The city council also voted unanimously to extend metered parking time from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. along Fisher.

Currently, the 59 lot and street metered parking spots on Fisher are enforced between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m.

The earlier enforcement was put into place in the hope that students wouldn't snag parking spots before customers come to shop in the blocklong commercial district and to make it more difficult for students to "feed" the two-hour meters during school hours.

However, one Fisher merchant was doubtful of the City's attempt to discourage students from parking at metered spots.

"I don't think the cost of a ticket is an issue," said Fisher merchant Glen Denning, owner of How Inviting. "It's the cost of going to school."

Fincham said the Department of Public Safety issued about 1,000 tickets along Fisher and Lincoln in 2001. Expired meter tickets are $5. Overtime parking tickets are $25.

Denning suggested the Fisher merchant's association lease the city-owned lots along Fisher, which would allow the City to ticket and tow violators.

One Fisher merchant has already taken that step.

Farms Fresh Market owner Larry Najjar has leased eight parking spots for his customers in the municipal lot next to his business. The meters will give way to the leased spots on Sunday, Sept. 1.

"I feel like I'm paying extortion," Najjar said. "I couldn't come up with any other solutions."

Najjar has visited the City council and the Grosse Pointe Board of Education several times to address the problem. While he applauds the City and its efforts, he said he has been "frustrated with the lack of response from the school and the school board."

"They don't support the guard who's out there to support school policy," Najjar said, of a parking guard hired by the school to discourage students from parking along Fisher.

South assistant principal

Michele Yankee said there was little she or the school could do, citing the City's latest actions "municipal decisions."

"About 25 percent of our school population would love to be able to drive to school," Yankee said. "I get students in my office in tears over getting tickets. All they want to do is come to school. For a lot of families, this is really essential for them. Some students have other siblings to take to school, have jobs and other family responsibilities."

South has 125 parking spaces it reserves for seniors by permit-only in its "S" lot. Permits, available at a first come, first serve basis, are $40 and were sold out by Aug. 5. About 130 parking spots are available on the north side of Grosse Pointe Boulevard and in the parking lot and on the street on the east side of Fisher along the football field.

South has asked the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council to lift the "no parking" provision on the south side of Grosse Pointe Boulevard, which would allow for 17 parking spaces. The request is currently being reviewed by the council's parking and traffic committee.

Shores sets lot-split minimum standards

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

The large, estate-sized lots will remain preserved along Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Shores.

The Shores council unanimously approved an amended lot split ordinance intended to protect the village's vision outlined in its 1991 master plan.

Residential lots along the lake shall not have a width less than 200 feet and shall not exceed a 4-to-1 depth-to-width ratio.

Lots elsewhere in the Shores shall not exceed a 3-to-1 depth-to-width ratio.

Other ordinance changes include guidelines for residents to convey part of their lots to adjacent neighbors and language changes to reflect state standards for subdivisions.

The ordinance amendment was drafted by village counsel Ralph Houghton and the Shores' planning commission, which requested a 60 day lot split moratorium to study the issue.

The amended ordinance takes effect and the moratorium expires on Thursday, Aug. 29.

Success at State Fair sets pace for South freshman

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Amy Liang is a girl on the go.

Lately, she's been juggling field hockey, winning community arts contests at the Michigan State Fair, and preparing to enter high school.

At the core of her activities is hanging out with friends, gossiping, shopping and hair styles — "girl stuff," she said.

Liang, 14, is a freshman at Grosse Pointe South.

During orientation last week, she and friends from middle school looked to their upcoming Blue Devils career with a mixture of optimism and apprehensiveness.

"Are the seniors really mean?" she wondered. "A lot of people were worried about that."

Liang's student orientation guides weren't entirely comforting about the senior class' tolerance for pesky freshman.

"Stay out of their way, you'll be fine," Liang was told.

"There's not much hazing or anything," assured her brother, Michael, 17, a South senior. Then he jokingly advised Amy to "keep on her toes."

Liang will have to keep on her toes if she's to complete her busy list of school activities.

"I'm playing field hockey in the fall, gymnastics in winter and track in spring," she said. "I'm really excited to meet new people and try different things."

Her academic plans are nearly as complete.

"I'm excited about taking Fashion and Fabrics class," Liang said. "My friend's mom took it when she was in high school. Once you get into Fashion and Fabrics 4, you design your own stuff."

POINTER OF INTEREST

Liang has already designed portions of her wardrobe.

"I've made some skirts and pajama pants," she said. "One of my friends and I made red and pink satin pants for the Valentine's Day dance at the War Memorial."

She entered a maroon skirt in this year's Michigan State Fair. Displayed in the youth section of the community arts building, the skirt won honorable mention. Her skirt was among many things she entered in the fair.

Her pillows won fourth place. A patriotic quilt came in second.

The red, white and blue quilt contains a United States flag surrounded by a geometric border.

"I just wanted to have the American flag in it," Liang said.

After the fair, she will donate the quilt to the family of a New York City fireman killed Sept. 11.

Liang's baking skills rose to the top of the competition. Her apple muffins and peanut brittle won blue ribbons. Raisin bread came in second. So did peanut butter chocolate bars. She took third place with chocolate chip bread made from a bread machine.

She learned baking from her mother.

"My mom likes to cook," Liang said. "She was a dietitian. She helps balance our meals."

Liang won fourth place for a set of green ceramic tiles decorated with black oriental characters.

Her interests in fashion, baking and art came from her mother and father's willingness to let her explore options and pursue opportunities. Her parents, Jack and Debbie, encourage Amy, Mike and little sister Anna, 11, to make decisions and choose interests.

"Nowadays, kids grow up so fast," said Debbie Liang. "They don't have as much time to spend on their own interests or passions."

As a result, Debbie and Jack, a former professional photographer on sabbatical as vice president of Presbyterian Villages of Michigan, have set up what they called "rites of passage."

"We started thinking it would be neat if we did certain things with our own kids at certain ages that they would look forward to," said Debbie Liang.

When the kids turn 10, they get a Swiss pocket knife to take on a camping trip with their dad. At 13, when teenagers have a tendency to turn a little selfish, the Liang kids embark on a volunteer project. Amy chose making patchwork baby quilts for Children's Hospital.

Liang has big goals for a young teenager.

"I want to work in fashion design or for a fashion company," she said, "or maybe public relations. I enjoy talking to people. I like being around people."

She gets along with her brother and sister, but not always.

"Usually my brother and sister team up on me," Liang laughed. "Or, one of us will team up on another. There's a little competition."

Amy Liang's quilt won second place in the youth division at the Michigan State Fair. Liang is going to donate the red, white and blue flag-bearing quilt to the family of a New York City fireman who died Sept. 11.

GPW construction contract raises dirt

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Road repairs will move forward on Littlestone due to the passage of a $1.1 million construction contract that raised a little dust of its own.

A couple members of the Grosse Pointe Woods city council this week were annoyed that the hefty contract was to be granted without competitive bids.

"There may be other companies that can do the work for less," said Eric Steiner, chairman of the finance committee.

"It's too much money not to bid," agreed fellow council member Patti Chylinski.

In addition to paving Littlestone, construction will include sewer work and repaving South Oxford.

Work on South Oxford could begin in two weeks and last nearly three months, depending on pre-construction meetings with engineers and contractors, said Joseph Ahee, director of public works.

City administrators recommended forgoing a lengthy bid process because the contractor, Dilisio Contracting of Sterling Heights, had offered to do the work at last year's prices. The company also had a reputation of top-notch performance on previous city projects.

"Dilisio did an excellent job on Cook Road," Chylinski said. "(But) the contract could be put out for bid in one week."

"We have residents on Littlestone who are waiting to have their street to be paved," disagreed Vicki Granger, head of the council's construction committee.

The no-bid, $1,002,100 contract was approved. Steiner and Chylinski dissented. The total price could rise to $1,137,000 when engineering and administration costs are added.

City officials will investigate requiring all future contracts totaling more than $1 million be sent out for competitive bidding.

1 of 2 faces jail time for statutory rape

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

One of two men involved in the statutory rapes of two 15-year-olds at an open house party in the City of Grosse Pointe last December will likely face jail time.

Richard Schott, 19, of Hazel Park, pleaded no contest to one charge of second-degree criminal sexual conduct on Friday, Aug. 23.

The charge is considered a 15-year felony. The sentencing recommendation is for one year in the Wayne County Jail, five years probation, fines, costs and mandatory testing for sexually transmitted diseases. Sentencing is scheduled for Sept. 24.

"The families of the victims were adamant this occurred," Third Circuit Judge Kim L. Worthy said. "They insisted that this be done."

Schott was originally charged in Circuit Court in May with four counts of third-degree criminal sexual conduct involving two 15-year-olds — a Grosse Pointe North High School student and a Grosse Pointe South High School student — at a party hosted by his younger sister at their mother's house on Lincoln. Schott's mother was vacationing in Cancun, Mexico, when the party occurred.

Another man, William Tyree, 19, of Grosse Pointe Park, pleaded guilty to one count of fourth-degree criminal sexual conduct, a misdemeanor, on June 19. Tyree, who was 18 at the time of the offense, was sentenced to three years probation, plus costs and fines, on July 26.

Urban forests under seige by ash bore

Not since Dutch elm disease have the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods faced such a devastation to their tree populations.

This time it is an invader from China — the emerald ash borer.

Varieties of ash were heavily planted some two decades ago in areas that were heavily devastated by Dutch elm disease, which nearly wiped out the stately trees here in the Pointes and elsewhere.

Tree experts here hadn't even seen the emerald ash borer before six weeks ago. In fact, because the emerald ash borer lived in a closed society — China — there is virtually no information available on the pest.

And while foresters, such as the Park's Brian Colter, are furiously boning up on the life of the emerald ash borer, trees are dying.

"You'll go down any block," Colter predicted to reporter Brad Lindberg, "and, left and right, there will be holes where ash trees used to be."

There is little hope. "We're going to lose the battle," said Michigan

Department of Agriculture horticulturalist Carl Dollhopf. "We will not have any ash trees."

All the experts agree — the ash tree is doomed.

The emerald ash borer is another one of those insidious, foreign stowaways that have wreaked havoc on our North American ecosystems. The zebra mussel and gobi fish are among other infamous invaders.

This time the effects will be much more noticeable.

In the Park alone there are some 2,400 ash trees, half of them on city property. It will cost Park taxpayers nearly a million dollars to remove and replace the infected trees. That doesn't include trees on private property.

That's just the Park. Now multiply that times all the other Pointes and southeast Michigan communities and you get a picture of how costly the emerald ash borer will be. And that's just dollars, not to mention aesthetics.

What we are experiencing is nothing short of a national disaster. And there appears to be nothing we can do about it except, perhaps, prevent the spread of devastation.

We urge all homeowners to read the story in this and future weeks' Grosse Pointe News and be on the lookout for the telltale, "D-shaped" exit holes of the emerald borer and report them to your department of public works.

Welcome to Tree City U.S.A.

Kroger's plans for Jake's?

Rumors are flying about who and what will eventually take over the Jacobson's site in the Village. One such rumor involves Kroger.

It is no secret that Kroger would like to expand its presence in the Village. The Village store is small, crowded and, with storage in the basement, difficult to operate. But there has never been room to expand in the Village — until now.

No sooner had Jacobson's demise become common knowledge than we began hearing rumors that Kroger was eyeing the property. In fact, some of the reports may be attributed to "knowledgeable sources."

To verify the reports, we called Kroger and asked. The food chain's spokesperson in Michigan told us the reports were just rumor and there was nothing to them. End of story.

But Tuesday we received an anonymous letter, titled, "Just say no to Krogers."

The unknown letter writer says, "Word on the street is that key Kroger executives have been in tow looking at the Jacobson's building and have all but locked up an agreement with city council. Please sound the alarm. The last thing our quaint village needs is a mega-size Kroger open 24 hours."

Well, we're not sure where the letter writer gets her or his facts, but we are not aware of any agreement with the city council. In fact, the city does not own the property. Jacobson's does. Any

Telethon's my favorite show

It's almost Labor Day, and you know what that means!

That means it's time once again for me to help my good friend Jerry Lewis with his annual labor of love: the Jerry Lewis Telethon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

This year will be the 37th Labor Day Telethon — can you believe it? Thirty-seven years of staying up all night bringing wonderful entertainment to audiences across the United States and Canada — along with important news about progress against neuromuscular diseases.

Now, I haven't been doing telethons as long as Jerry Lewis — no one has — but I'm proud to say I've performed on 22 MDA Telethons. During that time, we've had a lot of fun together — and we've raised a lot of money to help fight neuromuscular diseases.

And let me tell you, MDA has put all that money to good use. They've got some of the smartest scientists in the world looking for treatments and cures for more than 40 different neuromuscular diseases. And to help people who are living with these diseases today, MDA has 230 clinics across the country.

People sometimes ask me, "Charo, why do you still go on the Telethon every year?" Well, let me tell you.

I once met a little girl on the Telethon. She was maybe 3 years old, and she was showing the first signs of muscular dystrophy. She looked at me with the most beautiful little face you ever saw, and she told me she was going to be a dancer. And she believed agreements would first have to be with Jacobson's and the federal bankruptcy court.

But for the sake of talking, let's assume Kroger does put in a qualified bid for the Jacobson's property. And let's say Kroger's offer is accepted and the grocery store chain acquires the property.

At that point, Kroger would most likely have to seek a demolition permit and then building permits and present drawings to the council for site plan approval.

It seems to us that if Kroger is the legal owner of the property and if a grocery store is a permitted use under the commercial zoning, we don't see how the city could arbitrarily stop the company from exercising its property rights.

Too often we seem to forget that businesses have rights, too. Too often we seek to dictate commercial uses and how others invest their money.

But that being said, we agree with the letter writer that a mega-grocery store, while perhaps much-needed in the Pointes, would not be a good idea for the Village.

We believe upscale retail offerings with office or residential on second and third stories would be more suitable on Kercheval, while a super-market would be best located on Mack.

We hope Kroger agrees with our and the letter writer's assessment and does not force itself upon the Village — property rights notwithstanding.

so strongly that, because of Jerry Lewis and the Telethon, she was going to be all right.

That little girl really made me think about how lucky I am, because I get to dance and sing and make people happy — just as she wanted to.

We should support Jerry Lewis and the MDA Telethon because it's a very important and serious and honest-to-goodness organization, and it helps a lot of people every day.

In order to keep all the MDA clinics open, and to keep all those scientists working in their labs, MDA needs our help — now, more than ever.

That's why I'm hosting videotaped segments for the Telethon from the Las Vegas Sahara Hotel and Casino featuring my new show, "Bravo," and some great friends, like Tim Conway and Harvey Korman, Ronn Lucas, Clint Holmes and the Scintas family.

There'll be fun ... there'll be laughter ... there'll be wonderful music ... there'll be cuchi-cuchi ... and that's just my part. Just wait until you see what Jerry Lewis has in store for the rest of this year's show.

So please watch the Telethon on Sept. 1-2 (check local listings for time and station). And when you do, call in and pledge as much as you can to support MDA. Your donations give hope to many, many people and their families.

A musician/composer/comedienne extraordinaire, Charo has released several albums featuring salsa-disco, flamenco and classical guitar music, and appears frequently on television. She serves MDA as a national vice president.

WCCCD support
To the Editor:

In response to the Aug. 22 Grosse Pointe News editorial "Headliners courtesy of WCCCD," I'd like to offer a different perspective on the college's Community Outreach Program, "Coping in an Uncertain World."

First, I found Ann Compton's talk at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Aug. 21 engaging, witty and thought-provoking; judging from the audience response, others did also. It was gratifying to watch Grosse Pointe high school students eagerly approaching Ann Compton at the reception and her obvious enthusiasm in speaking with them and answering their questions.

Inviting speakers like Compton and John Nance to describe their experiences and offer their interpretations of national and world affairs can be viewed as stimulating our thinking, encouraging dialogue on issues of significance to all of us, and thus, supporting the democratic process.

Secondly, I find the idea of the outreach program builds community both among the Grosse Pointes and between the Pointes and the college, a viable, valuable educational institution in the larger community. Bridging the two communities I see as a benefit to both.

Finally, to the issue of the millage and use of tax dollars: the approved millage is a fait accompli, approved by the voters; and all educational institutions — public and private — engage in marketing. The public relations/promotion process is a necessary fact of life in education, health care and business. In my view WCCCD's outreach is marketing in a quality way that enriches the general community. To me, the effort demonstrates good leadership on the part of the college administration and merits support.

Trees
To the Editor:

This is in response to the Aug. 8 Grosse Pointe News Opinion article titled, "They follow letter of law in the Woods."

The Woods administration and their community tree advisory commission do not tell residents what trees they can plant on their own property. If asked, the CTAC will give advice on the good urban trees for residents to plant.

Public property (sidewalk to curb) street tree plantings are regulated as to species, size and placement in accordance with a master street tree plan, carefully followed so as to eliminate, insofar as is possible, the devastation caused by the Dutch elm disease epidemic of some 15 to 20 years ago.

Perhaps the editor of the Grosse Pointe News should double check before he puts pen and font to paper.

Jean B. Rice
Grosse Pointe Woods
Editor's note: I was at the city council meeting a dozen years ago when the city adopted its ordinance regulating trees on "street lawns," which technically are city property although the residents have to maintain them. To the best of our knowledge, "street lawns" are still mostly "in front of people's homes" and trees there are regulated as we stated in the editorial. Thank you, Mrs. Rice, for confirming that our facts are correct.

No show
To the Editor:

As owner of two businesses in Grosse Pointe Woods, one of the currently 64 members of the Business Retail Association, and a resident, I wish to express my deep disappointment with all but three city officials who decided not to show up for a very enlightening and informative gathering last week at city hall.

The gathering, sponsored by BARA, employed two very well-educated gentlemen who help cities with developing a master plan pertaining to signage, image and traffic flow.

The advice they offered was no-nonsense and straightforward. Most of all it could have helped an already confused city council and planning commission. These speakers made it very clear to us what our challenges are and how to fix them. Best of all it was non bias with no influence from anyone here.

The best news for me was that most of our current rules and regulations relating to signage, color and design are illegal and not enforceable. Our city could have benefited from this event greatly. Many potential lawsuits and hours of meetings at the taxpayers' expense would also have been avoided.

Maybe city officials need to take a field trip to Birmingham so they can see what is said to be one of the finest examples of suburbia in the Midwest. There is a reason small two-bedroom homes there list for $380,000 and the same here might get $120,000. It is called "booming business district." That's it. The air is not better. The weather is not better. The people are not better. It is the understanding of the relationship of business and residential. That is it and nothing more.

Diversity made America and can save this city. The cocoon has been broken wide open and needs immediate attention. Maybe next time we will have a little more interest. For a city so on the edge of falling one of two ways, it was surely a disappointment so few cared to show.

Scarred psyche?

I suppose that it's official: I've become a curmudgeon at the age of 23.

By that, I mean I'm starting to think that things were so much different in my days of growing up than now. I'm afraid that one day soon the words, "You don't know how easy you've got it, youngin'" will escape my lips.

Or is it more than me becoming a grumpy old man?

I was watching the morning news and they had a very sensitive-looking writer on, with a turtle neck and several degrees in psychology, who said that children in schools are being subjected to emotional violence. He went on to say that it had to stop.

Emotional violence definitely sounds vicious, but then I heard what he meant by it: Children talking behind each other's backs, mild teasing, name calling and other things that when I was young were a way of life.

"Sticks and stones may break your bones," the psychologist and I agree on that part. He twisted the second half of the nursery rhyme into: "But names can hurt forever."

He said that this generation of delicate and fragile children couldn't take the kind of daily torment that being called a name would impose on them. That is, it could have long-lasting effects on the developing psyche.

Name-calling is the bread and butter of a grade-schooler's arsenal. It's your major weapon and defense mechanism.

How exactly can we stop kids from whispering without the use of duct tape?

Could we really stop kids from being kids? And if we could do it, should we?

Take a closer look at the way that nursery rhyme actually ends: "But names can never hurt me."

This is the "throw out the kid gloves" approach. The sooner you can explain to children that whatever name someone calls them doesn't make a difference, the better off they'll be.

When we get to the adult world, people still talk behind backs and come up with childish names for each others (though four-letter words dominate the new titles).

I say that supposedly keeping children from "emotional trauma" is shorting them on important life lessons.

How do you learn to deal with adversity or with anger without feeling it?

I think we should offer children an emotional balm, which allows them to heal scrapes and scratches to their precious ego before they become scars, not put up a wall between them and learning to cope with the people they don't get along with.

There will always be people you don't get along with. Perhaps the psychologist on television was emotionally scarred by someone calling him an egghead.

It has helped to make him into the man sitting on the morning news with a book to sell. If he hadn't been "tortured" even a little, he'd probably never have written it.

D'Hondt Way at Jake's

High on the wall at the northwest corner of the Village parking structure behind Jacobson's, a small, green plaque memorializes a pioneer family's lifetime association with the anchor retailer that is going out of business. It simply says: "D'Hondt Way, 1974."

The plaque, which names the walkway between the store and the parking garage, specifically honors Irma and Julius D'Hondt, who were better known as "Mr. and Mrs. Pete" to friends and admirers.

"My father didn't care for his first name, so everyone called him Pete," Bernice D'Hondt Grant of the City explained. "So Mom became Mrs. Pete."

Mr. Pete, who retired as a Detroit Street Railway motorman, decided he didn't want to sit home and do nothing, so he became the first maintenance man at the Jacobson's store before it opened in 1944. Mr. Pete, part of a Belgian family that settled in the Grosse Pointes, was raised on a strip farm that is now part of the Lochmoor Country Club.

Mrs. Pete decided to help her husband out at the new store and eventually joined the staff as the housekeeping department manager. But her specialty was the flowers and plants outside, where she won beautification awards for her meticulously cared-for flower beds.

Mr. Pete died in 1961 and Mrs. Pete continued at the store until she retired in 1982. She died that same year.

The D'Hondts owned a house and two apartment flats where the parking structure now stands. In 1974, when the main store added 35,000 square feet of sales space, the walkway was named in honor of the D'Hondts' service to the community and the store.

Grant followed in the family tradition and began working at Jake's part-time as she raised her family. She worked there 43 years before retiring in 1996.

"I was raised with Jake's clothing, and so were my three daughters and four grandchildren," Grant said. "It is sad that I can't buy any clothes there anymore."

Grant hopes D'Hondt Way won't disappear in the scramble of various developers to come up with future uses for the store and the parking structure. "I think it should stay," she said. "It is a bit of Grosse Pointe history."

But if the first floor of Jake's is turned into several retail outlets, D'Hondt Way may wind up as a service alley for the stores.

'Anything Goes'

Jennifer Weingarten of Grosse Pointe spent three weeks rehearsing at the Stagedoor Manor's summer camp production of "Anything Goes" in the Catskills in Loch Sheldrake, N.Y. before appearing on stage in the show.

She was following in the footsteps of Jennifer Jason Leigh, Mary Stuart Masterson and Robert Downey Jr. by studying in the 27-year-old program that draws campers from 33 states and seven foreign countries, according to a camp representative.

"Maybe as a result ... Jennifer will one day join the illustrious list of Stagedoor alumni who have made it in show business," the representative said.

Justice

The two men who murdered former Grosse Pointe Stephen King and two others last year in New York City in an apartment five floors above a famed Broadway deli were each sentenced recently to more than 100 years in prison.

King, an accomplished trombonist, was a graduate of South High School, the Cleveland Music Institute and Mannes School of Music in New York, and was the son of City resident Jenny King.

The New York Times editorialized in early August about the failures of a criminal justice system that allowed Sean Salley and Andre Smith to be out of prison and cap their criminal careers by shooting five persons, two of whom survived, in a May 2001 robbery above the Carnegie Deli in Manhattan. The robbery netted $800 and 1 1/2 pounds of marijuana. The deli is a block east of the Ed Sullivan Theatre where the David Letterman show is taped.

King was at the apartment to work on his musical recordings in a studio there. The apartment belonged to Jennifer Stahl, 39, an actress who had a small role in the movie, "Dirty Dancing." She had been running a marijuana sales operation out of the apartment and Salley had been one of her customers.

Big-time events set up hot collection of classics

RM Classic Cars has in the past decade introduced the Detroit area to big-time collector car auctions. These auctions and the Woodward Dream Cruise have hyped the collector car hobby into a hot growth area.

In a recent week, RM held two auctions which pretty well spanned the collector car field, both of them in connection with very different events — the Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook and the Woodward Dream Cruise.

The ninth annual Vintage Motor Car sale at Meadow for a 1929 Duesenberg Model J with Victoria convertible coachwork by Hibbard and Darrin from the collection of Otis Chandler.

• A 1933 Stutz V32 Dual Cowl Phaeton with coachwork by LeBaron, $297,000;
• A 1931 Cadillac 452A V-16 with convertible rumble-seat coupe body by Oldest vehicle offered at either auction was this 1899 Gardner Serpollet Steam Wagon with coachwork by Kellner of Paris. The French steamer was sold for $99,000.

Biggest sale of the RM Meadow Brook auction was this 1929 Duesenberg Model J Victoria convertible with coachwork by Hibbard and Darrin, from the collection of Otis Chandler. It sold for $770,000.

Brook by RM Auctions, the day before the Concours d'Elegance, was once again one of the most stunning offerings of cars for sale of the summer.

Eighty-two cars rolled across the auction block in the Shotwell-Gustafson Pavilion on the manicured Meadow Brook grounds and 40 of them were sold, a good result for any sale, let alone one including so many top-level classics as this one.

Biggest sale of the four-hour auction was $770,000

Highest bid of the day was $1,050,000 for a 1938 Mercedes-Benz 540K with special tourer body by Sindelfingen, but it was not enough to buy this rare automobile. Bidding was kicked off by a $1 million phone bid.

A remarkable eight sales in the six-figure range were recorded. In addition to the '29 Duesenberg at $770,000, these sales included:

• A 1933 Rolls-Royce Phantom II Henley Roadster with body by Brewster, $412,500;

Fleetwood, $275,000;
• A 1940 Packard 180 Darrin Convertible Sedan from the collection of Otis Chandler, $181,500;
• A 1948 Chrysler Town and Country convertible, $143,000;
• A 1938 Lincoln Model K V-12 with convertible Victoria body by Brunn, $137,500;
• A 1953 Cadillac Eldorado convertible, $129,800.

See AUTOS, page 9A

A fine home-town car was this 1938 Cadillac Rumble Seat Roadster with custom body by Brunn. Originally purchased by a member of the Pulitzer family, it attracted a high bid of $125,000, but that did not meet the reserve.

The third Annual Woodward Avenue Auction was quite a different affair. This was designed to tie in with the Woodward Dream Cruise by focusing on drivable cruisers and special-interest cars, as opposed to investment-grade classics.

At the Woodward Avenue Auction, held at the Novi Expo Center in Novi (the first Woodward Avenue sale was held at Woodward and Eight Mile at the Michigan State Fairgrounds, but the sale can be held indoors at the Novi Expo Center), there were no Duesenbergs and the Rolls-Royces offered were later models, in a reasonable price range, not the classics offered at Meadow Brook.

An example of the cars at the Woodward Avenue sale was a '51 Chevrolet hardtop coupe — a very desirable car which one would drive proudly in the Dream Cruise or any of the other cruises proliferating around the Detroit area, but a driver not a classic.

The Chevy had gone through the auction but had not sold and was still for sale for $12,000.

Other examples of cruisers included a '68 Pontiac GTO still for sale for $17,000; a '56 Lincoln Premier hardtop still for sale for $15,500; a '31 Ford Model A pickup truck still for sale for $9,500, and a '61 Chevrolet Bel Air still for sale for $5,000.

The Meadow Brook auction was for folks with some big bucks to spend or invest in wheels, while the Woodward sale was aimed more at buyers looking for something interesting to cruise in.

There was a wide range of cars at the Woodward sale, including such rare items as a '74 Cadillac Mozelle, a one-of-a-kind prototype; a '40 LaSalle four-door convertible, one of the last 125 built; a rare '51 Chevrolet woodie station wagon, and a '96 stretched Hummer limousine about a half a block long.

The recession did not seem to be making its presence felt at either of these auction sales. Prices were strong, surprisingly so for American cars of the '50s, especially high-performance models.

The oldest vehicle offered at either auction was an 1899 Gardner Scorpullet Steam Wagon with coachwork by Kellner of Paris. The French steamer was sold at Meadow Brook for $99,000.

A 1906 Kreiger-Brasier Electric Landulet was sold at Meadow Brook for $55,000. Kreiger electrics were built in Paris from 1897 to 1909. The vehicle, believed to be the only Kreiger extant in the United States, was offered by the Crawford Museum in Cleveland.

A workhorse turned into glamour vehicle, this '96 stretched Hummer limousine is tough on the outside, but luxurious on the inside

This '74 Cadillac Mozelle, a one-of-a-kind prototype built by GM and powered by a 472-cubic-inch Cadillac V-8, was offered at the Woodward Avenue auction

This '51 Chevrolet hardtop coupe — a very desirable car which one would drive proudly at the Dream Cruise or any of the other cruises proliferating around the Detroit area, had not sold and was still for sale for $12,000.

Protecting your car from the elements

(NAPSI) — Today's cars and trucks cost more and are expected to last longer. Oil changes and regular maintenance can keep them mechanically sound, but what about appearance? Using a car cover can protect your car's exterior finish and its interior.

Experts recommend car covers with a Block-It fabric label to protect against:

- Rain/acid rain: While an occasional rainstorm won't destroy a car's paint job, corrosion begins any time a car is subjected to extreme moisture. Moisture seeps into tiny cracks and dips and works against the paint from the inside out. It separates the paint from the metal and causes the metal to oxidize. Acid rain containing nitric acid and sulfuric acid can be as acidic as vinegar or lemon juice.

- Sun/heat: Ultraviolet rays and radiant energy cause paint colors to fade. In addition, UV rays can cause the clear-coat over the paint to cloud, crack, dry out and deteriorate. Trapped heat can dry out and deteriorate vinyl, leather, plastic and rubber. It bakes and breaks down foam padding and adhesives. It cooks audio components, tapes and disks.
- Trees/impact: Even little droplets of tree sap can produce permanent color changes and etch paint. (Pine sap is particularly dangerous, as it contains turpentine.) Bird droppings are equally damaging. Acorns, pine cones and other things that fall out of trees can cause tiny chips in the paint, allowing moisture to creep in. And beware of cats. They love to curl up on the warm hood of a parked car, dirty paws, claws and all.

- Dust/dings: Even inside a garage, dust and dings are always a hazard. As dust settles on the car's surface, it builds up a layer of grit that becomes abrasive, deteriorating the car's thin paint surface. And once it is noticeable, it's too late. On the inside, dust and grit can degrade fibers, causing them to wear through and break.

- Vandalism/theft: With all the high-tech theft-deterrent devices available, it's easy to forget that a simple car cover can also protect a vehicle from thieves and vandals. Thieves know that with every passing minute their risk of getting caught increases. The average thief does not want to call attention to himself by taking the time to remove a car cover.

Bond to provide $24 million in upgrades for aging schools

By Jennie Miller
Staff Writer

In order to compete with burgeoning school districts with state-of-the-art facilities, the Grosse Pointe Public School System is asking voters to approve a $62 million bond on Sept. 24.

The bond will provide $24 million in miscellaneous improvements to the aging buildings in the district, along with major improvements to the facilities for athletics, science and fine arts.

Many of the buildings in the district have historical designations. However, the buildings have seen significant wear and tear through the years.

Eleven of the district's 14 schools are over 50 years old, five of which are over 70 years old.

According to a letter sent to residents in the district by Superintendent Dr. Suzanne Klein, the buildings "are aging gracefully, but they are aging nonetheless."

According to members of the school board, improvements are necessary to maintain the appearance and efficiency of the schools, as well as to continue attracting young families to the district.

Among the more costly projects outlined in the bond is the removal of asbestos, which is considered by the U.S. Department of Labor as a health hazard.

The mineral was used years ago as an insulator and fire retardant in building materials. In the 1970s, the federal government placed a moratorium on such uses of asbestos.

A high exposure to airborne asbestos for a long period of time can cause diseases that include scarring of the lung tissue, cancer of the pleural lining and lung cancer.

Despite a price tag of approximately $4 million, the process of removing asbestos from buildings in the district is necessary and will be completed regardless of the passing of the bond.

If voters approve the bond, the general fund will be relieved of the costs, which will provide additional money to be used for instructional purposes.

Other items on the bond agenda are not as crucial for easing health concerns; the projects are seen by the board as necessary nonetheless.

These projects include roof improvements, which, like the asbestos removal, will be done regardless of the passing of the bond.

The cafeterias at both Grosse Pointe North and South high schools need a total of $3.5 million in renovations.

These improvements include creating larger facilities that offer more flexibility of use and can house a larger number of students, according to Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent for business affairs.

Approximately $3.6 million has been set aside in the bond for work on ceilings, floors and doors in schools across the district.

For example, according to Fenton, tiles are loose in the ceiling at Pierce Middle School, Maire Elementary School, and the floors at South need improvements.

Many areas across the district need air conditioning — such as the teachers' meeting rooms and offices, libraries, music rooms, gymnasiums, multipurpose rooms, and third-floor classrooms at Maire, South and Richard Elementary School.

The cost of installing the air conditioning will be approximately $3.7 million.

The parking lots at many of the schools require improvements costing a total of $2.6 million. Several lots require a change in configuration to better utilize the space, such as Brownell, Monteith and Ferry elementary schools.

Many classrooms in elementary schools could use renovation, such as at Kerby, Richard and Monteith. This would cost approximately $800,000.

Lockers in the hallways throughout the district need to be replaced, for a total of $400,000.

Upon the construction of new Woods and Park branch public libraries, the current school libraries at Parcels and Pierce need to be renovated for other uses. At a cost of $300,000, this project will be completed regardless of the bond's approval.

Restrooms in the elementary schools require improvements of $500,000, such as handicapped accessibility and stall reconfiguration.

Work totaling $500,000 also needs to be done on such things as fence replacement along Sunningdale in Grosse Pointe Woods, at the rear of Pierce and at Elworthy field.

Other items on the list for funding improvements are tuckpointing, window screens and elementary cafeteria equipment.

The list of projects comes to a total of $24 million. A portion of this total will be spent on projects regardless of the bond passes or not.

Money will be used to fund the necessary improvements from the general fund if the bond is not approved by voters on Sept. 24.

Note: This is the fifth in a series of articles detailing the bond. Other stories ran on June 27, July 18, August 1 and August 15. There will be at least one more before the vote on Sept. 24.

Additional copies of these stories can be purchased for $1 at the Grosse Pointe News offices, located on Kercheval in The Hill.

High schools welcome new students and parents

By Christine Budal
Special Writer

Grosse Pointe South's incoming freshman class is 422, slightly smaller than last year's class of 446 students, said Al Diver, principal at Grosse Pointe South High School.

Grosse Pointe North High School's incoming class also has more than 400 students, which makes it just about as big of a class as last year's, said North's assistant principal, Paul Pagel.

Both South and North have done three things to acclimate and welcome their new students.

"We have done several things," Diver said. "The first is freshmen orientation. This just for the kids."

Run almost entirely by students, South's freshmen orientation is organized by the student activities group and tells incoming freshmen about the do's and don'ts of high school. North's program is similar.

Programs like freshmen orientation are very helpful to all students, but particularly to those who came from private schools. Heidi Getz and Page Louisell both went to the Grosse Pointe Academy prior to starting at South on Tuesday, Aug. 27.

"We've learned that high school is a lot different from middle school, especially because we were at a private school," Louisell said. "It is a big change."

Together, Louisell and Getz listened to student leaders such as 2003 class president Andi Nadeau speak about homecoming events.

Nadeau said the freshmen were great listeners as she and other leaders such as Sarah Nowosad and Kevin Krease filled them in on what to expect this year.

Following the students' program, parents gather that night to listen to administrators, counselors and student leaders. That same week, freshmen are exposed to the school yet again during registration, Diver said.

Unlike North's and South's orientation, University Liggett School welcomed its 50 incoming freshmen on a retreat to Camp Cavell, said Liggett's director of communication, Rhonda Welsh.

During the three-day retreat, students will get to know each other better, while they also learn about high school.

This will help them make the transition to high school, Welsh said.

Liggett will start school Wednesday, Sept. 4, she said.

Incoming freshmen at Grosse Pointe South High School discover how much paperwork accompanies their move up in the world. These freshmen, along with about 400 others, were present at South's freshmen orientation program, Wednesday, Aug. 21.

Sneak-peek into college

The school year started early for Grosse Pointe North High School student James DiStefano.

Among 133 senior high school students from 30 states and several foreign countries, DiStefano worked to complete scientific and engineering projects this summer during Operation Catapult at Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology.

Now in its 36th year, Operation Catapult offers students a hands-on learning experience at one of the nation's leading engineering colleges.

Participants were challenged to be problem-solvers in areas dealing with chemistry, electrical engineering, mechanical engineering and computer science. DiStefano's project dealt with chemical synthesis.

Starting on July 8, teams of students used the three-week program to study the effects of exercise, construct model hovercrafts and robots, and program action and strategy computer games.

This experience also gave students a preview of what lies ahead in college by attending lectures, living in a residence hall and having a roommate.

Rose-Hulman is a 1,700-student private college that specializes in engineering and science education. U.S. News and World Report's 2002 College Guide ranked Rose-Hulman as the nation's No. 1 undergraduate engineering college.

Academy showcases technology

The Grosse Pointe Academy will be participating in the AT&T/MACUL Student Technology Showcase among 500 students and teachers from more than 100 Michigan schools. The showcase will take place on Tuesday, Sept. 24 in Lansing.

Two separate groups of students will use computers and other electronic devices to show elected members of the Michigan State Senate and the House of Representatives how technology is being used in the classroom to facilitate learning.

The projects will cover a wide variety of areas, including distance learning, computer programming, e-commerce and other curriculum integration concepts.

Other areas are video production, web authoring, hand-held technologies, robotics, digital imaging, multimedia and student broadcasting.

Questions surround shooting on I-94

By Jason Sweeney
Staff Writer

The sound of bullets which filled the morning of Thursday, Aug. 22, has been replaced by the sound of speculation in Harper Woods.

The altercation on I-94 near Allard, the first in which Harper Woods officers needed to fire their service revolvers and also the first in which an officer was shot, has been the topic of numerous questions. Some of the answers have now become apparent, while others may never be completely answered.

The question of which gun the bullets came from that fatally wounded Ryan Earle, a 25-year-old New Baltimore man and injured Sgt. Dennis Root of the Harper Woods Police Department may be the most important.

Detective Sgt. Robert Hendrix of the State Police's Highway Bureau said the investigation is still ongoing, but is not seeking a second suspect.

"We still complete a thorough investigation as normal," Hendrix said, the results of which are handed over to Wayne county.

The results of the investigation will give the Wayne County prosecutor's office a direction to look regarding whether the shooting was justified.

The officers under scrutiny will most likely be the two off-duty officers from Detroit who stopped at the accident scene.

The officers, a husband and wife traveling from a court appearance back to their home precinct, reportedly identified themselves to Earle and ordered him to stop. When he did not, they shot at Earle, who was later found to have been holding a toy weapon.

Whether anything will come of the investigation,

The gun used by Beale on I-94 to threaten police was found to be a plastic replica.

Hendrix said, "that's up to them (the prosecutors)."

"It can go either way, depending upon how they look at it," he said.

The second topic of debate has been the possibility of a suspect still at large.

Debbie Rader, the waitress at TJ's diner, on Kelly near Moross was held at gunpoint in the robbery that preceded the crash and gunfire on the expressway.

"Before I could ask him what he wanted, he pulled the gun and demanded money," Rader said.

Rader, who said she spent more time looking at the gun than at the man, describes the pistol used in the robbery differently than the fake weapon found on I-94.

She also said that the man who chased the thief out of the diner reported that the gunman got into the passenger side of the pickup that later rammed the barrier of the Allard off-ramp.

The description of a tall man in a blue checkered shirt caused at least one store at Kelly and Vernier to close its doors for more than two hours, and electronic signs on the freeways gave the phone number for the Harper Woods Police Department for those with possible information about the crime to call in.

"That was a rumor," Hendrix said of the existence of a second suspect. "It ended up only being a rumor."

He said that conclusion was reached by examining the witness's statements, the officers' recollection of seeing only one suspect once the vehicle crashed and the combined efforts of Detroit and St. Clair Shores tracking dogs, which delivered negative results.

A possibly related incident in Detroit earlier that morning on Somerset goes further to strengthen the conclusion.

A homeowner saw a suspicious vehicle, and a man whom she did not recognize, approaching her home. The man and the yellow Ford truck he was driving matched the descriptions of Earle. When she went inside the home and locked it, he went away.

A question that may remain unanswered after the case closes is that of what gun shot the errant bullet that struck Root.

Hendrix said that while they know which officers discharged their weapons, a determination of which gun is responsible may never surface. The shot is being considered accidental.

Root was discharged from St. John's hospital during the late afternoon, Saturday, Aug. 24, according to Harper Woods Police Chief Lawrence Semple.

"He is doing well and is in good spirits," said Semple. Root will spend three months recovering, and will then undergo rehabilitation.

Root and his wife Donna, the dispatcher on duty during the robbery and shootout, told Semple to relay the message that they wish to retain their privacy in regards to the matter, but are grateful for the department's and the city's support.

Photos By Brad Lindberg

Officers from five police agencies scoured both sides of the expressway for more than four hours Thursday, Aug. 23. Above, Detroit detectives examine the spot where Earle fell, while below, an officer kept watch over the yellow truck that for a time was believed to have held two suspects.

Golfing

A shotgun start at 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 8 will kick off the third annual Harper Woods Dads' Club golf outing.

Played in memory of longtime member Dennis Rhodes, the tournament's profits will strengthen the club's efforts to build up the schools' sports, band, and other programs.

A $70 registration fee for the event includes greens fees, a chance at individual hole and overall prizes and a steak dinner. The deadline for registration is Aug. 31.

Trinity Catholic: ready for big things this year

By Jason Sweeney
Staff Writer

With enrollment back over 200, a staff strengthened by new ideas and new personnel and the task of building a tradition ahead, Trinity Catholic is poised for a big year.

Including more than 50 percent of St. Florian's enrollment from last year, Trinity, housed in the buildings which were home to Bishop Gallagher High School, saw a modest boom in enrollment this year, according to Co-principal James Wasukanis.

"It's something I'd like to see continue," he said. With an increase of 15 between the outgoing and incoming classes, that may come true.

Five of the teachers from Florian have also made the move to Trinity, adding depth to the business, language and science departments.

Larry Geromin is one of the teachers to make the switch.

Geromin, who teaches physics and higher mathematics, explained the transition as being, "like walking in just like all the kids do, it's a learning experience on both sides."

He said, however, that he's received nothing but respect and friendly smiles from the students thus far, and that he hopes the positive atmosphere will continue.

Another new staff member, Sister Katherine White will be teaching social studies and religious courses. She said it has been a comfort to see some of the familiar faces and it has been a large boost to her.

"I hope my presence here is nice for the students (from Florian) too," she said. "Part of my coming here was to help bring everyone together."

Longtime staffer Ron Biotti said, "I only feel bad that two traditions, in a sense by name, are done."

"But hopefully it's not over for the spirit of both schools. We have a great new opportunity for all of us here."

His sentiments were echoed by the second co-principal of Trinity, Pat Domagala. Domagala served as principal at Florian, and now shares duties with Wasukanis.

There won't be any favoritism played by one of the administrators for children who were at their old school, however.

"This is both our first year at Trinity," said Domagala. "It's a new school and neither of us has seniority over the other."

With the selection of school colors, a logo, and other big steps ahead, Domagala and Wasukanis both said that their main goal for this year is to forge unity and a new sense of community identity in the building.

As part of that effort, the class officers will not be selected until after Homecoming. The time to work with each other and get to know each other, noted Wasukanis, should allow the students to see their peers for their merits and not where they had attended school the previous year.

Police briefs

Rx stolen

A man who rode his bike to the pharmacy in the 19800 block of Kelly lost $41, his bike, and the medication he had come to claim for his son on Saturday, Aug. 24.

The man exited the store only to have a man with a blue steel pistol point him up. When the thief wasn't happy with the amount of money the man had, he grabbed the medication as well.

Won't grow up

Perhaps as a statement that the school year shouldn't start yet, a window of the media center of Beacon Elementary was smashed by a brick sometime before 10:30 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 25.

While school officials were unable to secure or board up the window that night, they told police the motion sensors in place would keep anyone from widening the 3-to-4-inch hole into something large enough to gain access to the school and its valuables.

Air grievance

The ignition of a 1991 Pontiac Grand Prix was punched while two brothers were shopping in the stores at Vernier and Kelly during the afternoon of Sunday, Aug. 25.

The driver had left his widow ajar to let in some fresh air but when the pair returned, the ignition had been punched out of the vehicle, though nothing of value was taken.

Police advise drivers to completely secure their vehicles before leaving them unattended, in order to avoid similar damage.

Job hazards

One of the employees of a deli in the 19500 block of Kelly was surprised when a customer entered the store and asked who owned a 1999 Chevy.

The vehicle, which had just been kicked by someone in the parking lot, belonged to the employee. A nine-inch dent had been kicked into the Chevy's fender. The worker's surprise faded when a moment later, at 2:17 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 25, a vehicle carrying the suspects pulled out of the lot.

The vehicle's owner knew the attackers, and provided their names to police.

Scams resurface

At least one report of another gypsy-style scam has been reported in Harper Woods. The suspects approach homes, offering to examine and repair portions of the roof of a house, but demand money up front.

Harper Woods Police warn citizens against paying for any unsolicited services and remind homeowners that if they believe they are being they should call the police at (313) 343-2540.

Harper Woods Public Safety Officer Sergeant Ralph Selvaggi is happy to answer questions about law enforcement in Harper Woods. Send your question, along with a method of response to: selvaggi@harperwoods police.org.

Reusable building materials to 'ReStore' older homes

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

One house comes down. Many more are looking up.

Before Clark and Susan Durant ordered their house on Chalfonte in Grosse Pointe Farms torn down in order to build a new one, employees from ReStore came out and saw that the house's doors, carpet and lighting and plumbing fixtures were put to better use.

ReStore sells used and overstocked building materials. Proceeds benefit Habitat for Humanity-Detroit.

"Since we opened in August 2000, we've turned enough back to fund three houses — about $180,000," said ReStore manager Larry Salive.

So far this year, ReStore has dismantled 18 homes for reusable building materials — including three purchased by the Farms at Mack and Moross.

In addition to gutting homes for materials, ReStore accepts building material donations from individuals and companies. Donations are tax-deductible.

"The Grosse Pointes have been wonderful to us," Salive said. "They've been our number one donors."

Salive also said ReStore is quickly outgrowing its current expanded 18,000-square-foot site. He said ReStore is looking for a larger building — about 25,000 square feet.

"What's so neat is that nothing goes to waste," said Clark Durant. "I wish we

Dog days of summer end at Labor Day holiday

The lazy, crazy days of summer, with Wall Streeters on break to every point of the compass, caused volume to contract again last week.

With the elongated holiday already started today, this week could post a near-record, five-day low in trading volume.

The Treasury bond market is more honest. It will officially close at 2 p.m. Friday, Aug. 30 (the last trading day of the month).

Institutional investors, hedge funds and floor traders will be conspicuous by their absence Friday. Everyone wants to "be even" over the long weekend — just in case something happens somewhere in the world that upsets the market next Tuesday morning.

The week that was

The week that was. It was, because it happened! The stock market has rallied for five weeks now, but hiccuped last Friday with a sharp pullback.

Investors back home asked their brokers, "What happened?" The broker asked his/her branch manager, "What happened?" The manager phoned the home office, "What happened?" The clerk in NYC replied in Brooklynese, "Nuttin' hopin'; the buying stopped!"

Last week, the Dow posted a net gain of 94 points, or 1.1 percent, to finish at 8,872. The NASDAQ Composite crept up 20 points, or 1.4 percent, to close at 1,381.

Now we look over the weekend into September, always a troubled month. The month preceding the end of a quarter is often besieged by "confessions" and "lowered expectations."

Have you ever wondered how so many S&P 500 companies announce quarterly earnings just pennies above the "consensus" of street estimates?

It's because they announced lower expectations just 12 days before, giving analysts time to lower their estimates for the revised consensus.

But nobody says that this year's actual earnings were 28 percent below last year!

Life expectancy

For investment planning, life expectancy is very important, defining a time horizon for an individual's portfolio. The greatest fear of most investors is that their life will last longer than their money.

During the past decade, many of us have given little serious thought to inflation and its possible threat to our personal solvency. Inflation is the most insidious tax, like a thief stealing a minuscule part of our purchasing power, night after night.

By searching for "life expectancy" on the Internet, several interesting sites appear. Northwestern Mutual Life sponsors "The Longevity Game," a do-it-yourself, fill-in-the-answer

Let's talk...STOCKS

quiz. You can customize your life expectancy based on present age, gender, blood pressure, height and weight, limited family health history, exercise status, stress, driving violations, use of seatbelts, smoking experience, drug use and diet.

That quiz then prints out your life expectancy in years. LTS' Northwest Mutual's expected years were four less than that produced by a shorter quiz from "LongToLive.Com."

The IRS Life Expectancy table is not so scientific, since it doesn't even differentiate for gender. The IRS table is a mandatory part of determining when your IRA taxable distributions must commence.

One of the basic ingredients in life expectancy is present age. The mortality tables assume that the fittest (healthwise) survive the longest (ignoring random accidents).

When LTS was 65, the IRS tables then quoted a life expectancy that was slightly less than today's IRS tables for age 65. The new tables probably reflect today's longer life attributed to better health care.

A: LTS' present age, the life expectancy is even longer, probably reflecting the mortality of the persons who predeceased LTS. These new numbers were surprising, and well-received!

Asset allocation

Longevity has a direct effect on one's portfolio asset allocation between equities (stocks and mutual funds) and fixed-income securities (bonds and preferred stocks).

Estate planners have long advised reducing the equity exposure at retirement, with periodic (five years?) reviews thereafter. This investment philosophy was based on the premise that stocks are riskier than bonds, and at old age there is often not enough lifetime left for equities to recover from a severe market decline (like now).

The following rule of thumb has often been used to determine the proper equity exposure within a portfolio: Subtract your present age from 100 for maximum equity allocation.

LTS believes that this formula may result in extremely low equity participation as the average lifespan continues to increase, even dramatically.

For example: Using the IRS tables, a person age 70 today has a life expectancy of 16 years, or to age 86. Even at that "young" age, a portfolio with only 14 percent equities seems too extreme!

Income tax alert

LTS sponsor John M. Rickel, CPA, attorney and tax consultant, just pointed out a very interesting tax strategy which might be interesting to those fortunate individuals who have accumulated taxable capital gains in 2002.

Certain mutual funds held huge positions in stocks that recently filed Chapter XI bankruptcy. If these funds held "high cost" shares, they could have sizeable unrealized or partially realized capital losses (compared to their average cost).

The fund would offset such losses against previously realized gains or against unrealized other gains taken prior to the end of its fiscal year (usually Oct. 31).

If, at the end of its fiscal year, the fund still had a net realized capital loss, it would distribute such loss to its shareholders in December.

An individual could purchase this fund's shares now

Stock Market at a Glance

Friday Close, 8/16/02
Dow Jones Ind.	8,873
NASDAQ Comp.	1,381
S&P 500 Index	941

and be eligible to "receive" a pro-rata share of the fund's capital loss distribution in December.

An individual would combine all his or her capital gains and losses on Schedule D for income tax purposes. Thus the loss "received" from the fund shares would offset other personal gains and losses.

'P' is for peaches — and PhotoShop

My grandfather used to say, "Too soon old. Too late smart."

True or not, this week we're going to work on "smart." And as the kids return to school, so can we. There are computer classes all over the Grosse Pointe map.

Let's start with the Grosse Pointe school system computer education classes coming up next month. They have a new offering, a class called Computer Internet Security. Despite my extensive knowledge of computers (OK, I read a book on them once), I always wonder if some new interloper may have found a way to hack into my computer or follow my electron trail on the Internet to see where I've been, as boring as it may be.

The one-day seminar offered by the school system on Friday, Sept. 20, from 5 to 8:30 p.m. should give you a little more piece of mind. It's designed to protect your computer, data and your privacy from prying eyes. After browsing the Internet, you could well be leaving a trail of your own. This class asserts it can teach you to protect yourself.

According to the community education listings, the class will cover "desktop, file and folder security." It will also address basic e-mail security, virus protection

Pointers on Technology

By Mike Maurer

software and firewalls.

There is also a class I wish I had taken before I decided to learn computers the hard way, by trial and error. Naturally, it's called, "Computers Made Simple/Internet." You'll learn the basic skills to get the most out of your computer. All the classes begin in mid- to late September.

Other classes offered include one for using the personal computer (PC) operating system, Microsoft Windows, and others cover Excel and PowerPoint programs. These classes start in early to mid-October.

Have you had your computer for a while? Does it seem to take longer and longer to start programs or download information? Does it crash for no apparent reason? Are there programs that you would like to remove from your computer, but are afraid to because you had a bad experience? Are you tired of my asking all these questions?

Relief is just a War

Memorial away.

The War Memorial is offering a "Computer Tune-up" class on Thursday, Sept. 12, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. They will show you how to remove programs without driving over the proverbial computing cliff. You'll also learn how to use some of those fancy maintenance tools that you've been afraid to touch for fear of putting the old PC into orbit.

More down-to-Earth, my wife and I traveled to the Peach Festival at Niagara-on-the-Lake a couple of weeks ago to meet some out-of-state friends for a week-end of fun. We made most our reservations using the Internet, but that has nothing to do with anything.

One of my buddies has been into computers for longer than I have, so I wasn't surprised to see him shooting everything in sight with his new digital camera. What did surprise me were the 122 digital photographs of our trip he e-mailed to me.

No, I am not exaggerating. I counted them — 122 pictures of us doing anything and everything. More pictures of people eating peach ice cream and peach yogurt than allowed by the redundancy law. (Note: I don't care if you are redundant as long as you don't repeat yourself over and over.) It should be noted that he used an Internet online program to send them, so we could order hard copies of the ones we liked. We didn't.

Now that I'm finished meandering, let's cut to the chase. The Neighborhood Club is offering a one-night course called Digital Camera Essentials in September, October and November. If you don't have a digital camera, that's a good thing. One of the things they will cover is selecting a digital camera. Photo-to-PC transferring, picture enhancing (bigger peach ice cream cones?) and how to send photos over the Internet to unsuspecting friends and relatives will be covered.

One of my favorite topics will be on photo retouching using the Adobe PhotoShop program. You can start with the attached photo of me. Winner gets a free mention in this column and maybe I can get the editor to run the picture. Do NOT send a picture of Mr. Ed. It's not funny. OK, it's funny, as long as I only get ONE.

The War Memorial course will also teach you to organize your photo collections with a CD-ROM burner and slide show software.

Remember, "P" is for peach. Have a tech question or subject you would like addressed in this column? Want to comment or add your two cents worth? My e-mail address is mmaurer@bizserve.com.

Credit card swiped

A Grosse Pointe Farms woman reported that someone stole her credit card sometime between Monday, Aug. 12, and Friday, Aug. 16, while she was a patient in a City of Grosse Pointe hospital. The absconder made two charges totaling $119.66 on the card on Wednesday, Aug. 14.

Suspect caught

A 40-year-old Detroit man, who was wanted for two armed robberies in the City of Grosse Pointe and one armed robbery in Grosse Pointe Farms, was apprehended by City, Farms and Detroit police on Monday, Aug. 19.

A City officer saw the Detroit man riding his bike on St. Clair south of Mack at about 9:40 p.m. The man twice refused to stop for officers before he ran into a house in the 3000 block of Bluehill in Detroit, where officers found him in a tunnel leading out of the basement.

The man was arraigned in the City municipal court and is awaiting trial in the Wayne County Jail. Municipal Judge Russel Ethridge set his bond at $250,000 for the two charges in the City and $150,000 for the charge in the Farms.

Bikes stolen

Three bikes were stolen in Grosse Pointe Park on Monday, Aug. 19.

A blue GT mountain bike and a blue sparkle BMX bike were taken from a rear yard in the 1200 block of Beaconsfield sometime between 8 and 10 p.m.

A 24-inch black men's Schwinn Sidewinder bike was taken from an unlocked garage in the 700 block of Lakepointe.

No serial numbers or license numbers were recorded on the bikes.

Two bikes were stolen outside of a store in the 17100 block of Kercheval on Sunday, Aug. 25.

A St. Clair Shores boy reported a black mountain bike taken from the rear of the store between 5:55 and 6:04 p.m. The bike was unlocked.

A 14-year-old Detroit boy reported his black Huffy mountain bike taken from in front of the store sometime between 4:45 and 5:30 p.m.

Cars stolen

Whoever stole a purse from inside a house in the 200 block of Roosevelt Place in the City of Grosse Pointe also made off with a 2001 Cadillac.

The purse and the car were taken sometime between 8 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 18, and 9:30 a.m. Monday,

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Aug. 19.

The car was later recovered in Detroit, but $200 in cash, a cell phone and credit cards that were in the purse remain missing.

A resident of the 800 block of Fisher in the City reported his 2000 blue Jeep Cherokee stolen on Chalfonte sometime between 6:30 and 7 a.m. on Friday, Aug. 23.

Forty cases of sample drugs were inside the vehicle.

Wardrobe wranglers

Two women were seen running out of a store with $848 worth of clothes in the 16800 block of Kercheval in the City of Grosse Pointe on Wednesday, Aug. 21, at 11:46 a.m.

The women were seen getting into a waiting four-door Chevrolet Lumina on Kercheval, which then headed southbound on Notre Dame.

Clean getaway

City of Grosse Pointe public safety officers were unable to locate a man who ran out of a store in the 17100 block of Kercheval with a shopping basket full of goods he didn't pay for on Thursday, Aug. 22 at 7:40 p.m.

However, the officers did find the cart, which contained a microwave oven and a vacuum cleaner, inside the city-owned parking structure in the Village.

Cars damaged

The owner of a 2002 Honda Civic in the 300 block of Washington in the City of Grosse Pointe woke up to find her driver's side door damaged on Friday, Aug. 23. The car was parked in the street.

A Wixom man reported the driver's side rear window of his 1998 Ford Explorer parked in the first block of Grosse Pointe Boulevard was broken sometime between 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 24, and 10 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 25.

No entry was made into nor was anything taken from the vehicle.

Underage drinkers

Grosse Pointe Farms public safety officers broke up a group of youths congregating on the grounds of a school in the 100 block of Lakeshore at 11:27 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 24.

Officers found a two-liter bottle of cola and a 3/4-empty bottle of rum hidden behind one of the tires of a car parked in the lot. Five youths — a 17-year-old Grosse Pointe Park male, a 16-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms female, two 16-year-old Park females and a 17-year-old male whose residence was not identified — were found to have had alcohol in their systems and ticketed for being minors in possession of alcohol.

OUILs in the Farms

An 18-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods man got the attention of a Grosse Pointe Farms public safety officer when his car was seen traveling on the left side of the road on Calvin with his lights off on Friday, Aug. 23, at 1:35 a.m.

The man, who admitted to drinking two beers at a friend's house that evening, attempted to call his father on his cell phone after failing a series of sobriety tests. When he refused to put the phone away after several requests, officers restrained the man against the trunk of his car.

While having his chemical test rights read to him at the Farms public safety station, the man began to argue he was not read the charges brought against him. He then started reading another section of the test rights so loudly that he could not hear the officer. He later yelled, cried and struck a phone receiver against a wall after being asked to end a phone call.

'Safety Man' is in danger

Police are on the lookout for a three-foot, neon-green "Safety Man." He was last seen Thursday, Aug. 22, at 10 p.m. holding a neon-orange flag on the front lawn of a house in the 800 block of Hampton in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The homeowner told police she bought the Safety Man for $23 to warn speeders to slow down on her street.

Party crashers

A Grosse Pointe Woods woman told police nearly a dozen partying youths "scattered" when she told them she'd called police.

On Friday, Aug. 23, at about 10:30 p.m., the woman had alerted officers to what she described as 20 to 30 "loud, vulgar (and) intoxicated" teenagers at a house in the 2100 block of Ridgemoor.

Two officers entered the home to find three male and two female teens, all aged 14 to 16, sitting on a couch. None showed signs of drinking.

The female host said she had recently told a group of unwelcome party crashers to leave the property because they'd been drinking. Police said the girl's mother was at work.

Purse stolen and recovered

On Friday, Aug. 23, at about 1:30 p.m., a woman told police someone stole her purse from her unlocked car parked at Mason Elementary School in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Nearly six hours later, a Woods officer learned the purse had been recovered from a dumpster at a service station on Mack and Vernier.

By the time the victim canceled her credit cards, someone had charged $400.

Water world

Residents in the 900 block of Canterbury in Grosse Pointe Woods had a lot of mopping up to do when someone fed a garden hose through their front door.

Police learned of the incident shortly after 6 a.m. on Thursday, Aug. 22.

An investigator reported "severe water damage to the front foyer, living room carpet, basement ceiling and floor. Personal items in the basement, including furniture, was soaked."

Life-saving, crime-fighting GPW officers honored

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Woods officials have given one of their public safety officers the city's first-ever Life Saving Award.

A ceremony this week also featured an officer who put car thieves out of business and recovered a stolen vehicle.

Mike Makowski, director of public safety, praised the officers for diligence and outstanding performance.

Officer James Arthur, who joined the Woods force six years ago following employment as a member of the Detroit police department, was recognized for saving the life of a choking victim last spring at a local restaurant.

Arthur was the first to arrive at the scene of the emergency. He performed the Heimlich maneuver to dislodge a piece of food from the victim's throat.

"Medics confirmed that without Arthur, the subject may have choked to death," Makowski said.

Makowski praised Arthur for his "outstanding performance that resulted in the saving of a life."

Arthur has had other life-saving experiences in Detroit.

"It always makes you feel good," he said.

Makowski said the life-saving award is a new category of honors for public safety officers.

Officer James Burgess received a Department Commendation for keeping cool and acting fast in the nabbing of car thieves.

Burgess, who came to the Woods two years ago from Detroit, made the arrests while working undercover surveillance last June.

"I was in an unmarked car in an area we were giving special attention," he said.

He saw three suspicious men pull up in a van.

"They had stolen the van 20 minutes ago in Harper Woods and were in Grosse Pointe Woods to steal another vehicle," Burgess said.

Burgess called for backup and coordinated the capture of the three subjects. He even caught one man himself. A fourth man serving as a lookout was also arrested.

"Burgess did a really good job," Makowski said. "Rather than running in and scaring the men away, he called for backup and set up a surveillance."

Grosse Pointe Farms man gets two years for tax scheme

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Mark Van Sile was sentenced to 24 months in prison, two years supervised release and fined $50,000 in U.S. District Court in Ann Arbor on Thursday, Aug. 22.

The sentence follows an April 25 guilty plea to filing a 1996 tax return in the fictitious name of "Eddie Abbott," claiming a tax refund. The "Eddie Abbott" return was one of almost 300 fraudulent tax returns claiming refunds Van Sile created.

In 1996 and 1997, Van Sile created a false birth certificate in the name of "James Spencer" and opened approximately 40 post office boxes and private mail boxes under the guise of conducting businesses under the names "Precision Plastics" and "Active Accounting Services." The post office was provided the names of people who would be receiving mail, which later corresponded with the fictitious taxpayer's fraudulent returns.

Using a computerized tax preparation program, Van Sile generated fraudulent W-2 forms indicating that the fictitious taxpayers were employed at such companies as General Motors, Modern Engineering and the United Parcel Service.

Van Sile also opened a checking account in "James Spencer's" name, where he planned on depositing the Internal Revenue Service refund checks, which would have exceeded $2 million. The returns were never processed.

"Mr. Van Sile went to elaborate lengths to cheat the American public, and because of the vigilance of the IRS detection teams and the U.S. postal inspectors, he was not able to reap any financial benefit from his fraudulent scheme," said Mark Kroczyński, special agent in charge of IRS Criminal Investigation. "The IRS was able to stop all checks issued in this scheme."

3 named to Shores harbor committee

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Shores President Dr. James Cooper appointed three residents to the village's new harbor committee.

Bruce Volmer, Bruce Kopf and Cheryl Cusmano were selected out of 30 people who volunteered for the one-year committee seats.

Volmer is a self-employed businessman and a 22-year resident of the Shores. He has been an officer and trustee of the Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation, chair and co-chair of Grandparent's Day for five years and a lifetime boater.

Kopf, a retired engineering director at Ford Motor Co., has lived in the Shores for 18 years. He is the vice president of the Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation and is an avid sailor.

Cusmano, a vice president of a market research and consulting firm, has been a Shores resident for 40 years. She was a member of the ad hoc committee for the activities building and is a power and sail boater.

Cooper's appointments were unanimously approved by the village council.

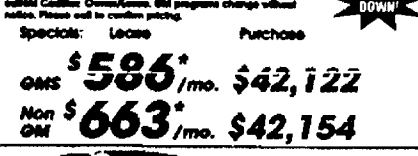

"These three people possess not only outstanding credentials, but impeccable reputations among our community," Cooper said.

The first harbor committee meeting will be held Monday, Sept. 9, at 7 p.m. and is open to the public.

Expanding the family album: Pointers experience the world through foreign exchange

By Jennie Miller
Staff Writer

Families throughout the Grosse Pointes have opened their doors to welcome students into their homes through foreign exchange programs.

These families help the students experience the everyday lifestyles of a different culture as they attend a local public school.

Grosse Pointe Shores resident Dan Beck and his wife, Jackie, have hosted five students over the years through AFS Intercultural Programs USA. They have welcomed students from Switzerland, Austria, Japan, Germany and Holland.

"Having an exchange student is a wonderful experience," Dan Beck said. "The years she had to student living with us were the best years we've had."

AFS hosts over 2,400 high school students from around the world in communities across the United States. The organization has also sent approximately 2,900 American students to 44 different countries.

A nonprofit organization, AFS has been leading student exchange for more than 50 years. The Grosse Pointe Sunrise Rotary offers a similar program called Rotary Youth Exchange. According to the Rotary

The Colosseum

International Web site (www.rotary.org), "Involvement with an exchange student challenges the members of the host family to become familiar with another culture. It provides an opportunity to share a young student's hopes and ambitions."

Every year approximately 7,000 students ages 15 to 19 go abroad through the Rotary Youth Exchange program.

According to the Sunrise Rotary President, Kim Youngblood, Elena Erre, a senior in high school from Italy, attended Grosse Pointe South during the 2001-02 school year. The families she stayed with helped her to travel the country, going on vacations to places such as Chicago, New Orleans and Alaska. This year, Mariya Chigoshvily, a senior from Russia, will attend South through the Rotary's Youth Exchange Program.

The Rotary also has sent two South graduates to experience foreign countries. Laurie Smolenski will spend the school year in Spain, while Veronica Kennedy will travel to France.

"I am thrilled for my daughter to get to see a different part of the world," said City of Grosse Pointe resident Paula Smolenski.

Paula and her family have hosted 10 students from all over the world through different programs, including the Rotary's Youth Exchange.

"The kids who get to do this are really lucky," Smolenski said. "They are so grateful and they learn so much. The whole purpose of the program is 'Peace through understanding.'"

"If they go home and look at things differently for the rest of their lives, it is rewarding. Through the experience, my kids have developed a little bit of understanding, great new friends and a new place to visit — it opens up a whole new world."

Elementary school students in Grosse Pointe have also had the opportunity to participate in a similar foreign exchange program with French Back to Back.

Although the program was canceled this past year and will not continue in the 2002-03 school year, due to the Study Warning issued by the Grosse Pointe Board of Education after Sept. 11, 2001, it ran for more than 12 years.

Through the Association of French and American Classes, the French Back to Back program allows Grosse Pointe students in fourth and fifth grade to stay in Paris with a family for nearly three weeks.

The students from the French families then travel to Grosse Pointe to stay for three weeks.

City of Grosse Pointe resident Maryanne Karges participated in the program with her son, Ellis.

"They go on excursions to the Louvre or to see Roman ruins," Karges said. "The kids go to a French grocery store or to the bakery and watch the workers make croissants. They see what it is like to live in a French town and get a close view of how similar or different things work.

"Every one of those kids came back saying, 'France is cool, but I love America!' They have a newfound appreciation for our country and respect for the people who live in France."

Nacel Open Door is another organization that has worked with students and families in the Grosse Pointe area.

It is a nonprofit organization that needs homes for over 275 exchange students planning to come to the United States for the 2002-03 school year.

The organization has been in business for 40 years. There are full-year programs as well as summer and two-week sessions.

Families can still join in on the cultural experiences by contacting one of the organizations.

Adults interested in becoming parent mentors in Macomb County will be given free training by the staff of the Macomb Michigan State University Extension (MSUE).

Adults will be trained as mentors to at-risk parents who need role models in order to break the cycle of abuse and neglect.

Training for the Parent-to-Parent program will take place at the MSUE office, 21885 Dunham Rd., Clinton Township on Wednesday, Sept. 4, 11, 18 and 25 from 6 to 9:30 p.m.

The program matches adult volunteers with families in Macomb County. Participants act as mentors to parents referred to the program and will help at-risk parents improve their parenting skills.

Volunteers will receive training on various topics, and upon admission to the program, volunteers spend one hour a week for six months with family and receive ongoing support from MSUE.

Volunteers in turn receive valuable experience in working with people, knowledge about their community and the satisfaction of having a positive impact on how parents interact with their children.

The Parent-to-Parent program is part of the Michigan State Extension Family Programs. For more information or to be placed on the Parenting Views Newsletter mailing list, call (586) 469-6430.

Between the acts, learn the art of Italian cooking

By Alex and Marybelle
Suzcek
Special Writers

It seemed like a major calamity when at the end of last season, we learned that our favorite Italian restaurant in Stratford, Ontario, was planning to convert to a cooking school. Where would we go for that delectable eggplant parmigiani with the pungent Calabrese-style tomato sauce, the "Gnocci mala fata," the field-fresh crispy salads and the spinach ravioli?

We already knew by experience that the commercial variety of tiramisu available elsewhere in town was no match for that smooth confection at the Trattoria Fabrizio; not to mention the refreshing gelati, Italian style sorbets.

"Where will we eat?" we moaned.

Owner-chef Teresa Fabrizio was unyielding. She had built a reputation on the basis of her own traditional style of southern Italian cooking. She uses only the finest and freshest ingredients from the surrounding farms with the best seasonings and bases imported from Italy. Her recipes and techniques are family secrets passed on for generations.

Many of her customers had asked for guidance at replicating the hearty dishes at home, but even the cookbook that Teresa published two years ago was not enough.

Hence the cooking school.

Still in disbelief on our return to the Festival this season, we stopped by 71 Wellington Street to see how things stood. To our delight we learned we could take a class at 9:30 a.m., enjoy the fruits of our labors for lunch and be finished in time for a matinee.

We made a reservation for our next trip.

Though we arrived right on time, things were already under way. Teresa had pre-roasted sweet red peppers and was just taking them from the oven to cool. Our classmates were already busy peeling off the skins. Meantime, she had started mixing a yeast dough for nocatalli, the delicate and attractive twisted Italian doughnuts.

"Get busy," she said. "We have a lot to cook this morning."

We washed our hands, rolled up our sleeves, donned aprons and took turns at kneading the dough. Like apprentices in a great artist's studio, we learned to stretch pieces of the dough into ropelike strands and wind them into attractive twists on the handle of a cooking spoon. As our skill improved, they began to look just like the little sculptures that Teresa whipped out with a few quick flicks of the wrist.

In the background, reminding us of the ethnic atmosphere, the voice of Placido Domingo crooned Neapolitan folk songs while Teresa confided family stories of learning to cook.

"Growing up in an Ontario farm town, we made our nocatalli and breads every week," she recalled. "But we did not have a lot of counter space in our kitchen. As kids we had to make our beds every morning and Mama would spread table cloths on them. That's where we put the bread and doughnuts to rise."

With a good supply of nocatalli arranged on trays, she formed the rest of the dough into a loaf to bake as a bread. She demonstrated mixing another dough with egg and we rolled it into thicker "ropes." That was a special challenge. The yeast dough would shrink back into a lump and had to be coaxed into a long shape.

"When I did this with my mother, she would rap my knuckles with the cooking spoon if I did it wrong," Teresa chuckled. "You all

Teresa Fabrizio, chef and owner of Trattoria Fabrizio, grinds pepper into the tomato sauce, at the left.

At the right, Fabrizio adjusts a pasta roller until it makes ravioli dough just the right thickness for her recipe.

Participants learn the art of Italian cooking. Lunch consists of the results of the morning's lesson. They complete the course in time for an afternoon matinee at one of Stratford's four theaters.

are getting off easy." Taking three strands of the dough, she showed us how to braid them into an Easter bread loaf. Then all the breads and nocatalli were set aside to rise on a spacious counter.

While they rose, there was Calabrese sauce to make. A couple of tablespoons of chopped onion are sauteed in a half cup of olive oil until golden. Then we add a 125-gram tube of imported tomato paste and a generous dash of Italian white wine. Finally we add two large (24-oz.) cans of crushed tomatoes, season with salt and pepper and let it simmer.

We do not add meat, Teresa explains, because we are going to use the sauce to cook meatballs and then to garnish scallops of veal and eggplant.

By now, the Domingo CD is playing tenor arias from La Boheme and Tosca. The music seems to give the student cooks more energy. We need it: Teresa is keeping us busy.

"It is time to make the meatballs," says Teresa. "I think ground pork makes the best meatballs. I add grated Romano cheese, moistened bread crumbs, ricotta, whisked eggs, fresh basil and salt and pepper."

By this time the tomato sauce has cooked down and as we form the meatballs we drop them directly into the sauce to cook.

"Don't stir them," explains Teresa. "Just shake the kettle every once in a while to make sure they don't stick."

Without missing a beat, she fills a deep skillet with a blend of canola and olive oil. "The canola keeps the olive oil from burning," she explains and shows how she pops a now plump nocatalli into the hot oil to cook. We take turns sliding them into the pan and follow her advice to do them in sequence, adding a fresh one when a cooked one is removed so that the oil stays very hot.

The breads go into the oven and Teresa turns to the slices of eggplant and veal. But the meat is not veal.

"I like to use rump or sirloin tip roast. If you can't get your butcher to slice it for cutlets, partially freeze it and cut it yourself. It is easy."

We pound the cutlets until they are paper thin and dip them in an egg batter seasoned with oregano and garlic salt. Then we coat them with a blend of seasoned bread crumbs and grated mozzarella and Romano cheese.

"I have a secret technique for this," she reveals. "I press the bread crumbs into the cutlets with the tips of my fingers. It makes them larger and even more tender."

We imitate her and find that it's true.

The eggplant slices, on the other hand, have been blanched quickly in boiling water and allowed to cool. Now we dip them in the same egg batter and bread crumbs.

With the nocatalli done and glazed, the cutlets and eggplant are all fried quickly over high heat in the same skillet and oil. As though in recognition of our preparing a fair equivalent of a breaded veal cutlet (a famous Viennese specialty) Domingo is now singing the passionate aria "Thine is my heart alone" from Franz Lehár's operetta "Land of Smiles."

And we are all feeling very passionate about the food.

In a whirl of activity, breads come out of the oven, meatballs come out of the sauce and heady aromas fill the air. Checking the sauce, Teresa finds it too thick, adds wine and water and turns to the eggplant slices cooling on a platter.

First we layer one with tomato sauce, slices of fresh, field ripened tomato, a piece of roasted red pepper, leaves of fresh basil and thin slices of feta cheese. A matching slice of fried eggplant goes on top to be smothered with tomato sauce, and garnished with a flattened Calamata olive and grated Romano cheese. The assembled eggplant need only to be finished for a few minutes in a hot oven.

There is still the ravioli to make, starting with the pasta dough which we roll into a thin sheet with Teresa's pasta machine and then fill with a savory filling based on ricotta.

Teresa announces: "It is almost time for lunch."

As the foods are arranged on platters, we are all laughing at the many mistakes and corrections of the morning and we realize we are famished.

Plates are served. Wine is poured and at the risk of falling asleep in the matinee, we feast in an atmosphere of high conviviality. Was that a drinking song that Domingo was singing?

It certainly sounded like it.

After the matinee, we stopped by the restaurant to pick up bags and boxes of our share of the foods we had cooked and not eaten at lunch. Clutching a sheaf of the recipes we had learned, we headed to a picnic table by the lake to enjoy our meal all over again.

Anyone interested in trying the experience should call Teresa well in advance to check the schedule of classes and the programs. Some are in the afternoon and a few in the evening.

Teresa does not tell you everything she will make. She only gives an idea of the theme and adds her own extras as she is inspired. She will take requests.

Pointers do better than 'fair' at the Fair

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

From peanut brittle to paintings, Grosse Pointers of all ages showed their stuff in the community arts competition at the Michigan State Fair.

Annie Redlawski's Best in Show led the way in the children's division. Her Dalmatian cookies presented in a Dalmatian-decorated dog bowl won over canine- and cookie-loving judges.

"I love Dalmatians," said Annie, 9, of the City of Grosse Pointe. "They're really cute."

Her brother, Robert, 13, won first place for a metal tool box. He made the box for his father, who reportedly can fix anything — if he has tools handy.

Robert made the box in metal shop at Brownell Middle School. He entered the fair because he felt he had "a shot at winning."

Other winners included Graham Kozak, 13, a Grosse Pointe Woods resident and eighth grader at Our Lady Star of the Sea.

Kozak's first-place award for a model WWI German torpedo boat reflected craftsmanship and computer know-how.

He made the paper model from images downloaded from the Internet.

"I printed it off the computer and glued it together," he said. "It was free."

Kozak won second place for a black and white photograph of a shopping arcade in downtown Toronto. The image captured intricate patterns in the arcade's overhead latticework and support structure.

Kozak's nine-year-old sister, Paige, who is in fourth grade at Star of the Sea, won first place for a bird feeder.

Labeled "Simon's Birdie Cafe" after Paige's parakeet, she made the bi-level feeder by crafting together two plastic pop bottles.

Paige earned another blue ribbon for an "Under the Sea" table setting. She rounded out the setting's blue china with seashell candle and napkin holders. She even planned a seafood menu.

"I typed it up and stuff," Paige said. She selected Mermaid Mango Juice for breakfast, tuna fish sandwiches and Chips Ahoy! potato chips for lunch, and shrimp with seashell noodles for dinner. Dessert? Sponge cake with blueberries.

"I entered lots of things," Paige said.

She won second place for a fanciful shoe box float. A Pegasus pulls a float crammed with a menagerie of riders: turtles, wide-mouthed yellow aliens and flying pigs. Why flying pigs?

"There's a saying, 'When pigs fly,'" she explained.

Paige made a potholder that came in fourth. Her drawing of a bowling team, which she sketched in one of her father's notebooks, received a participation award.

Merlin Chappius, 10, of Grosse Pointe Park, spent two weeks painting a large, action-packed Roman battle scene. There is a speeding chariot being pulled by two galloping horses racing across a landscape of swirling flames. Chappius' work paid off with a second place ribbon.

As he worked on the image, he kept adding extra elements.

"It got more and more complicated," said Chappius, in fifth grade at Defer Elementary. He strove for historical accuracy.

"I watched 'Gladiator' to get the feeling about how the Romans counterattacked," he said.

Amy Liang, 14, of the City and a freshman at Grosse Pointe South High School, will need a box to store all of her ribbons. She won first place for peanut brittle and apple muffins, second for raisin bread and peanut-chocolate bar cookies, and third place for chocolate quick bread.

"I like chocolate," she said. Her red, white and blue quilt earned second place. She was fourth in pottery. She received fourth in pillows and honorable mention for a maroon skirt.

Amy's sister, Anna, 11, competing in a separate age category, was another multi-place winner in the baked goods competition. Her raisin bread won first. Her bar cookies placed second, and chocolate quick bread showed third.

In color photography, Anna Liang's close-up image of a cherub fountain came in first. In arts and crafts, her story, "Sept. 11, A Day I'll Never Forget," came in third. She decorated the three-page story with an American flag on a red, white and blue cover.

Ashley Smith won first place for a black and white landscape photo of fishing boats moored in a harbor. She added dimension to what could have been a flat image by capturing a rocky outcrop in the foreground.

Smith also won third place for a model wooden sailboat.

Holly Huth won third place for a black and white photo of a daisy. She snapped the close-up shot in the back yard of her Grosse Pointe Farms home.

Huth, who is in her freshman year at University Liggett School, has studied photography at the College for Creative Studies. She developed the image herself.

Ryan Hilton of Grosse Pointe Woods earned third place for a color photograph of the Great Falls of the Yellowstone River in Yellowstone National Park.

Adult winners

"I'm so German chocolat-ed-out it's not funny," said Cynthia Redlawski, of the City. Her six-layer German chocolate cake, which won first prize three years ago and weighs 12 pounds (including plate), took honorable mention this year.

"I'm entering all kinds of things. Maybe I'll win something," said Redlawski, who also won the apple pie contest two years ago.

This year, her apple pie will be judged Thursday, Aug. 29, 1 p.m. Her fresh fruit cheesecake will be judged at 3 p.m.

Other adult contestants from the Pointes were Mary White, who won first place for a color close-up picture of purple flowers. She also won fourth place for a color picture of sunlight breaking through storm clouds over a tree-lined lake.

Quick Silver, the Highland cow, wants to know how Grosse Pointers did in the community arts competition at the Michigan State Fair. Quick Silver, 2 1/2-months old and 150 pounds, comes from a line of Scottish beef cattle preferred by Queen Elizabeth. Known for their easy nature, Highlands are called the "beef cattle of royalty." When full-grown, Quick Silver will have horns measuring up to eight feet from tip to tip. The fair runs through Monday, Sept. 2.

Pack a lunch with nutritional punch

By The Community Health Status Advisory Board

As the new school year begins, children will be running out the door with thoughts of seeing old classmates, joining new clubs, participating in school sports and getting good grades. With all that in mind, chances are they will not pay much attention to the proper nutrition they need to get them through their busy days.

Nutrition and learning go hand in hand. Children who are nutritionally fit are more likely to have energy, stamina and self-esteem, all of which enhance their ability to learn. Since most lunches contribute about one-third of a person's daily nutrient intake, including calories, what children eat for lunch matters to their health.

Children raised on sugar, fat and salt are getting fatter these days. The percentage of obese children has nearly doubled in the past several years and an alarming number are at risk for diabetes, hypertension and heart problems.

One of the best ways to get children to buy into a healthier lunch program is to review the school lunch menu with them each week. Talk with your children about making smart, healthy choices in the cafeteria line, and practice making these decisions at home. Include your children in the selection and preparation of lunches at home to take to school.

Offer a variety of healthy selections such as sandwiches made with whole grain breads — wheat, rye, or multi-grain — small bagels, raisin bread or pita filled with turkey, chicken, tuna, roast beef or lean ham and low-fat cheese.

They can decide on mustard, ketchup or low-fat mayonnaise. If your child likes peanut butter and jelly, add raisins and granola for extra nutrition and crunch.

Offer a selection of sweets such as vanilla wafers, animal crackers, graham crackers, oatmeal cookies with raisins, granola mix made with nuts, raisins, dried fruit and seeds, puddings or yogurt.

If you enjoy baking, muffins made with vegetables such as carrots, zucchini, fruit or bran are a good idea. Include your child's favorite fruit, either fresh or canned in its own juice. Cut-up raw vegetables or mini carrots and grape tomatoes are appealing, as are celery sticks cut into small pieces and filled with peanut butter.

When it comes to beverages, milk is recommended — either white or low-fat chocolate milk. Fruit juice is OK to substitute occasionally, but make sure it is 100 percent fruit juice and not a fruit juice blend with little or no nutritional value. Use an insulated thermos or an ice pack in the lunch bag to keep the milk or juice cold.

To keep harmful bacteria at bay:

- Use well-insulated lunch boxes and purchase a supply of freezer gel packs.
- Include disposable silverware and individual hand wipes.
- Wash hands, food preparation surfaces and utensils with hot, soapy water before preparing the lunch. Wash raw fruit and vegetables thoroughly.
- Prepare lunch box offerings the evening before and store in the refrigerator or freezer. Freezing sandwiches, bottled water and juice boxes offers additional protection. They usually will thaw completely by lunchtime.
- Handle perishables like sandwich meats with care.
- Wash lunch boxes, gel packs and insulated bags with hot, soapy water and air dry every day. Washing with a little baking soda helps control food odors. Store gel packs in the freezer.

Diabetes rate for Michiganders is higher than national average

Approximately 200,000 Michigan adults may be diabetic and not know it, pushing the state's diabetes rate to more than 10 percent. That's according to an EPIC MRA/Midnet survey result released by Oakwood Healthcare System, St. John Health System and the Beaumont Hospitals.

The survey finds that 7 percent of Michigan adults have been diagnosed with the disease, higher than the national average of 6 percent.

Another 3 percent report suffering from three or more diabetic symptoms, but have not been tested for the disease.

According to the survey, the average reported rate of diabetes in the Detroit region, which includes Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and St. Clair counties, is 7.7 percent. The region has the highest rate (13 percent) of people who have three or more diabetic symptoms but have not been tested for the disease, indicating that the number of diabetics in the region may be higher.

Macomb County has the region's highest diabetes rate, at 9.8 percent, followed by Oakland County at 8.2 percent, St. Clair County at 7.5 percent and Wayne County at 5.5 percent.

The survey also finds that 7.7 percent of Michigan men have been diagnosed with diabetes compared to 6.1 percent nationally. For women, it's 7.2 percent statewide, compared to 5.9 percent nationally.

Major symptoms of the disease include extreme fatigue, fainting spells, unexplained weight loss or gain, blurred vision, frequent urination, extreme hunger, unusual thirst and swelling of the gums.

Obesity is a well-known risk factor for diabetes. This survey also reveals that 15 percent of obese Michigan citizens have been diagnosed with diabetes.

The study also found obese persons are more than three times as likely to become diabetics.

A major contributing factor in obesity is fatty foods. Of those surveyed, 84 percent said they consume high-fat snacks and fast food daily or weekly.

Family history is also an important factor for diabetes and the survey finds that 43 percent of the people with diabetic symptoms have a family member with the disease.

The survey shows that many of the undiagnosed people who have diabetic symptoms are still making lifestyle choices that could aggravate their symptoms. Of those surveyed, 42 percent report drinking alcohol in the past month, 39 percent smoke and 60 percent say they do not exercise.

This statewide survey of 1,800 people has a 2.3 percent margin of error. Oakwood, St. John and Beaumont cosponsored the study to learn more about behaviors related to diabetes in order to tailor programs and services for the communities served.

AMA report: Almonds lower bad cholesterol

Almonds significantly lowered bad cholesterol levels in a study of people with high cholesterol.

The report appeared in a recent rapid access issue of Circulation: Journal of the American Heart Association.

Canadian researchers conducted the study, funded by The Almond Board of California and the Canadian government, to determine whether almonds can help reduce heart disease risk by lowering high cholesterol and at what consumption level.

Some previous research has suggested that nut consumption reduces the risk of coronary heart disease. Because previous research has suggested that eating more nuts increases calories, nuts generally are not recommended for people who need to restrict calories.

Twenty-seven high-cholesterol patients (15 men and 12 postmenopausal women, average age 64) completed the three-phase study. Their average total cholesterol level was 260 milligrams per deciliter (mg/dL) at baseline.

Three one-month diets were undertaken. For one month each participant ate a full dose of almonds (average 74 grams), which represented a little less than one quarter of their total daily caloric intake.

For one month they took a half dose of almonds (average 37 grams) — described as a handful of almonds. In the last month, they ate a low-saturated fat, whole-wheat muffin as a daily snack.

The muffin snack served as the control diet because it had about the same amount of calories, protein and saturated and polyunsaturated fats, explained lead author Dr. David J.A. Jenkins, director at the Clinical Nutrition and Risk Factor Modification Center, St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto.

The only difference was that the monounsaturated fat was swapped for the starch in the muffin, he said.

Jenkins is also Canada Research chair in Nutrition and Metabolism at the University of Toronto.

Researchers measured cholesterol levels, blood pressure and weight in the subjects.

They found that patients reduced low-density lipoprotein (LDL — bad cholesterol) an average 4.4 percent with the half portion of almonds and 9.4 percent with the full portion.

"We were quite impressed," Jenkins said. "If you look at the ratio of LDL to HDL (high-density lipoprotein, the good cholesterol), the reduction was 7.8 percent for the half dose and 12 percent for the full dose by the fourth week.

That ratio is very important in assessing cardiovascular risk."

The patients' cholesterol levels did not significantly drop after the muffin phase.

Jenkins says that practitioners should encourage patients to eat almonds as part of a healthy balanced diet as long as they are natural or dry roasted, without added oils or salts.

Nuts do not have cholesterol and are a good source of protein, according to the American Heart Association.

However, the association stresses that the potential benefits of nuts may be negated if they are added rather than substituted for other foods in the diet. While nuts and seeds tend to be very high in fat and calories, most of the fat is polyunsaturated or monounsaturated (e.g. almonds, pecans, walnuts).

Participants in this study were carefully counseled on how to use nuts in place of other foods in the diet.

Nuts, including almonds, walnuts, pecans, peanuts, macadamia and pistachios, have been shown to lower blood cholesterol, Jenkins said.

The combination of monounsaturates with some polyunsaturates in nuts is an ideal combination of fats, he said. Although, there is not enough research to say that all nuts are equal in their health value, almonds have particularly well-researched profiles.

"This study suggests that replacing carbohydrates with monounsaturated fat — within the context of a diet that is low in saturated, trans fat and cholesterol — favorably affects cholesterol levels and cardiovascular risk," said Alice Lichtenstein, D.Sc., vice-chair of the association's nutrition committee.

Almonds are a good source of monounsaturated fat and potentially other beneficial compounds. The American Heart Association recommends eating an overall balanced diet that is high in fruits, vegetables and whole grains, and includes low-fat dairy products, fish and lean meats.

Whenever any dietary change is made, care must be taken to avoid increasing total caloric intake, Lichtenstein said.

Antibiotics help heart patients, says AMA study

In the largest study of its kind published to date, researchers report that hospitalized heart patients who took antibiotics had a significantly lower risk of returning to the hospital with severe chest pain within one year compared with those on a placebo.

The study suggests that antibiotics might have an anti-inflammatory benefit. The study appeared in a recent rapid access issue of Circulation: Journal of the American Heart Association.

Researchers were surprised to find that the reduced risk was not related to the presence of two bacteria suspected of playing a role in heart disease — Helicobacter pylori and Chlamydia pneumoniae.

"The beneficial effect of the antibiotics was independent of whether a person was infected with H. pylori or C. pneumoniae," said author Dr. Michael A. Mendall, a consultant gastroenterologist at the Mayday Hospital in Croydon, England. "This implies these antibiotics are not working against these organisms. The antibiotics may be acting against other organisms to reduce the overall infectious burden of the body or may have their own anti-inflammatory properties."

The study is the first to compare two different classes of antibiotics in treating acute coronary syndromes. Researchers enrolled 325 patients (225 men and 100 women, ages 39 to 80) hospitalized with a heart attack or unstable angina (severe, unexpected chest pain that occurs at rest).

Within 48 hours after being admitted, the patients were randomized to receive amoxicillin, azithromycin, or a placebo for one week. Those in the antibiotic groups also received omeprazole and metronidazole, drugs used in combination with the antibiotics to eradicate H. pylori.

At the start of the study, tests revealed that 157 of 310 patients (51 percent) had antibodies to H. pylori and 132 of 325 patients (41 percent) had antibodies to C. pneumoniae.

Blood tests for antibodies detect the dormant bacteria. C. pneumoniae causes one kind of pneumonia and H. pylori causes stomach ulcers.

During one year of follow-up, patients who received the antibiotics were 36 percent less likely to be rehospitalized for unstable angina or a nonfatal heart attack, or to suffer a fatal heart attack, than those who took a placebo.

"It is an interesting proposal that antibiotics can affect a condition that has always been regarded as noninfectious," said Mendall, also a senior lecturer at St. George's Medical School, Tooting, London. "The question, of course, is whether the antibiotics are working against bacteria to improve heart outcome or whether the antibiotics improve outcome by an anti-inflammatory action."

Inflammation plays a major role in coronary heart disease. Recent studies suggest that biological markers of inflammation identify people at high risk of developing the disease. Moreover, an association has been shown to exist between chronic infections, inflammatory markers and coronary heart disease.

The researchers, who included both cardiologists and gastroenterologists, set out to explore two issues: First, could the antibiotics amoxicillin, metronidazole and omeprazole (active against H. pylori) and azithromycin, metronidazole and omeprazole (active against C. pneumoniae and H. pylori) reduce levels of C-reactive protein, fibrinogen, and white cells, which at elevated concentrations in the blood indicate inflammation?

Second, could the antibiotic treatments reduce the risk of angina and fatal and nonfatal heart attacks?

"The difference between the two antibiotic regimens is that azithromycin is known to have an anti-inflammatory property," Mendall said. "Amoxicillin has not been reported to have an anti-inflammatory effect."

Alternately, the failure to find a difference in effect between the two antibiotic regimens suggests that metronidazole or omeprazole may be the important component of the regimen."

Metronidazole is used in other chronic inflammatory conditions such as Crohn's disease, as well as having a different pattern of antibacterial activity to the other antibiotics. Omeprazole has been shown to reduce the activity of macrophages — the key white blood cells involved in coronary heart disease, Mendall explained.

Twelve weeks after beginning the study, 17.2 percent of the patients receiving antibiotics were rehospitalized with unstable angina or a nonfatal heart attack, or suffered a fatal heart attack, compared to 27.2 percent of the placebo group.

At the end of one year, the rates were 25.8 percent for those who received antibiotics and 38.9 percent for those who received placebo.

Blood concentrations of the three inflammation markers proved a mixed lot. Amoxicillin takers who had been hospitalized with unstable angina had a significant decline in C-reactive protein over the year long follow up compared to the placebo group. However, there was only a trend in those who had suffered a heart attack.

Fibrinogen levels fell in both antibiotic groups compared to patients on placebo, but the change was not statistically significant.

No change was found in the levels of white cells.

"Our study design does not allow us to draw conclusions about the beneficial effects in all patients," Mendall said. "Further studies are needed to investigate the reasons for the long-term effects of a short course of antibiotic treatment."

What parents should know about chickenpox

(NAPSI) — According to a recent survey, parents of children aged 4 through 12 were more reluctant to vaccinate their children against chickenpox compared to several other childhood diseases. The findings suggest that parents' misperceptions about the potential seriousness of chickenpox may be to blame.

Chickenpox can lead to pneumonia, encephalitis, skin infections, scarring or even death. Many parents were unaware of these consequences.

About one-third of the nonvaccinating parents surveyed think it's better for a child to catch the disease naturally than to get the vaccine. In fact, complications associated with the vaccine are extremely rare.

Another concern expressed by parents is that a child may still develop chickenpox after being vaccinated. Although this is possible, such cases are generally much milder. Some parents also thought that the vaccine would wear off over time. There is no clear evidence of waning immunity among people who have been vaccinated for chickenpox.

The Centers for Disease Control recommends that children be vaccinated against chickenpox after their first birthday. The chickenpox vaccine is not for everyone, however. For example, it is contraindicated in persons with a history of hypersensitivity to any component of the vaccine, including gelatin. Parents should talk to their health-care provider about whether vaccination is right for their child.

As with any vaccine, the chickenpox vaccine does not result in a protective effect in all vaccinees. Adverse reactions that have been reported with the use of the chickenpox vaccine include fever, injection site complaints and rash (injection site and generalized).

For more information about the side effects associated with the vaccine, talk to your health care provider.

The survey was conducted by Harris Interactive on behalf of NAPNAP and Merck & Co. Inc.

Flu shots help employees stay healthy

Businesses or organizations that want to help their employees remain healthy this year still have time to schedule a flu clinic at their work location. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), a flu shot remains the best way to prevent catching the flu or to lessen its severity if it does strike.

The Visiting Nurse Association (VNA) Flu-Busters have a limited number of openings for on-site clinics from mid-November 2002 through January 2003.

The cost is $15 a shot, with a minimum of 25 participants required. Pneumonia shots are also available at $25 a shot. For more information or to schedule a clinic, call Kay Renny at (248) 967-8751 or visit www.vna.org.

According to a study in the March 12, 2001 issue of the Archives of Internal Medicine, published by the American Medical Association, vaccinating healthy, working adults could reduce average health costs by $13.66 per person vaccinated. For the nation's 94 million full-time workers, ages 18-64, these savings would total approximately $1.3 billion annually.

The VNA Flu-Busters has been providing its corporate and community influenza immunization program since 1994. VNA follows the guidelines established by the CDC for its influenza immunization program. Last year, VNA Flu-Busters nurses administered more than 38,000 flu shots to individuals in businesses, organizations, supermarkets, drug stores, churches, synagogues, senior high-rise apartments and homeless shelters. The VNA Flu-Busters also offer tetanus and hepatitis A and B vaccinations to businesses and meningitis immunizations to graduating high school seniors beginning college.

The VNA Flu-Busters are affiliated with Visiting Nurse Association of Southeast Michigan.

Migraine can be emotional burden

Migraine is a debilitating condition that affects millions of women and often leaves them unable to perform the simplest tasks. Migraine affects nearly 28 million Americans; 70 percent are women.

For many, prescription medications called "triptans" help them to manage the headaches. Triptans relieve pain, nausea and sensitivity to light and sound.

In the U.S., migraine sufferers are bedridden for more than three million days each year, resulting in an estimated loss of productivity of between $5.6 and $17.2 billion. The condition disrupts family life and can force sufferers to cancel business and social activities. Migraine also poses an emotional burden, as sufferers say that no one understands how painful their headaches are.

Have You Heard?

Ginette Lesotte, Au.D., CCC-A Doctor of Audiology

Getting Older, Hearing Less

Presbycusis, the loss of hearing that gradually occurs in most individuals as they age, is usually a sensorineural hearing disorder — meaning it is caused by gradual changes in the inner ear typically brought on by repeated exposure to noise. These changes result in a loss of hair cells (sensory receptors in the inner ear), which can also occur because of various health conditions and can be a side effect of some medications. Symptoms of presbycusis include difficulty hearing and discerning high-pitched sounds, misunderstanding conversations, hearing others' speech as mumbled or slurred, and increased difficulty in hearing background noise. For many people with presbycusis, these symptoms may be overcome with the use of hearing instruments.

One out of ten people suffer from hearing loss and would benefit from using hearing aids. For those 65 years of age and older, nearly one in three experiences some degree of hearing loss. While your hearing impairment is unique to you, the impact of hearing loss is similar among most people — diminished communication and loss of quality of life. A critical part of the process of getting hearing instruments today includes complete hearing testing by an Audiologist to determine the type and degree of your particular loss. GROSSE POINTE AUDIOLOGY can help you choose the most appropriate hearing instruments for your particular impairment. State-of-the-art products, sophisticated testing equipment and individualized attention await you at 19794 Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe Woods. Call us today at 313-343-5555 for your appointment.

SOC Options

SOC plans 'Scams, Schemes, Swindles' talk

By Sharon Maier
SOC Executive Director Services for Older Citizens (SOC) will begin registration for its new fall seminar, "Scams, Schemes and Swindles," on Tuesday, Sept. 3. The seminar will take place on Tuesday, Oct. 15, from 9 a.m. until noon at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. It is offered to Call (313) 882-9600.

Maier

"Scams, Schemes and Swindles" is a consumer conference for senior adults and those working with older adults sponsored by SOC. Slick con artists tend to prey on older adults. Con artists take many forms, from phone solicitors to door-to-door salesmen. Each offers a different set of problems. By arming yourself with knowledge, you can keep yourself safe from scams, schemes and swindles.

Judge Lynne Pierce of the Grosse Pointe Woods Municipal Court and Wallace Hart, Office of the Attorney General, will give presentations on different scams that affect seniors. Wayne County Neighborhood Legal Service, RSVP and other local senior services will also be present to offer information to conference participants.

SOC is excited about offering this new program to the local community. The Triad of Wayne County has put on similar programs in Livonia and Redford and the participants have really enjoyed them. This is the first time the program has been offered in the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods area.

People over 60 are especially susceptible to phone fraud. Con artists who sell bogus products and services by phone prey on seniors.

Tip-offs to phone fraud

Telephone con artists spend a lot of time polishing their "lines" to get you to buy. Watch out for these:

You must act now — or the offer won't be good. You've won a free gift, vacation or prize but you pay for "postage and handling" or other charges.

You must send money, give a credit card or bank account number or have a check picked up by courier — before you've had a chance to consider the offer carefully.

You don't need to check out the company with anyone — including your family, lawyer, accountant, local Better Business Bureau or consumer protection agency.

You don't need any written information about the company or references.

You can't afford to miss this high-profit, no-risk offer.

If you hear these or similar "lines" from a telephone salesperson, just say "No thank you," and hang up the phone.

It's difficult to get your money back if you've been cheated over the phone. Don't buy from an unfamiliar company. Legitimate businesses understand that you want more information about their company and are happy to comply.

Seniors need vitamins, minerals, too

By Susanne Consiglio
Special Writer

Vitamins and minerals are important nutrients that are needed to sustain life. They may be helpful in the prevention of certain conditions such as heart disease, osteoporosis, macular degeneration and Alzheimer's disease. You probably know individuals who look younger than their age and seem to have an abundance of energy while staying healthy. Perhaps their vigor can be partially attributed to a healthy diet containing plenty of vitamin food sources.

In addition to eating healthy, a "senior multivitamin/mineral" (MVI) supplement helps to support or make up for what is lacking in day-to-day eating habits.

Vitamins B6 and folate are important for their potential link to decreasing heart disease and possibly Alzheimer's disease. For further advice, talk with your doctor. Ongoing research indicates foods rich in B6 and folate can have a positive influence on our health.

Good sources of B6 are fortified breads, fortified cereals and meat.

Good sources of Folate are deep-green leafy vegetables, romaine lettuce, northern beans and orange juice.

Osteoporosis, calcium and vitamin D:

Calcium, a mineral, is the major component of bones and teeth. It is essential to meet the Recommended Dietary Allowance (RDA) on a daily basis to maintain bone structure and to prevent fractures and osteoporosis, the bone thinning disease that affects more than 28 million Americans.

The RDA for men and women ages 51 and older is 1,200 milligrams per day. If your intake of food containing calcium is low, you may want to consult with your physician to discuss supplementation.

The best dietary calcium sources are:

- Skim, 1/2 percent or 1 percent milk

- Yogurt
- Fortified soy milk beverage
- Tofu
- Canned salmon
- Sardines with bones
- Frozen yogurt
- Fortified juice

Vitamin D is necessary for the absorption of calcium. It can be obtained through a multivitamin supplement, fortified milk or yogurt, or 10 to 15 minutes of sunlight.

Macular degeneration and vitamin C:

Vitamin C, a popular antioxidant, may play a role in the prevention of macular degeneration, heart disease and Alzheimer's disease. Antioxidants are specific vitamins and minerals found in food or in pill form that can help slow down or prevent the oxidation process inside your body. Oxidation produces molecules called free radicals that damage the cells inside your body and can lead to major illnesses associated with aging.

Vitamin C is also needed for the growth of bone and connective tissue, wound healing and absorption of iron. Vitamin C is abundant in citrus fruits, cantaloupe, strawberries, broccoli and baked potatoes. Before taking vitamin C supplements, every effort should be made to include vitamin C-rich foods in your diet.

In a nutshell

It's important to maintain good eating habits throughout life. Don't neglect your diet. Fruits and vegetables are excellent sources of vitamins. Look for ones that are rich in color: deep green, orange and red.

If you find it difficult to eat a balanced diet, discuss with your doctor which vitamin supplements would be most appropriate for you to help support your daily needs.

Innovative tools, helpful hints make gardening easier

(ARA) — Gardening can enrich life in many ways, physically, mentally and spiritually. But it can also be hard work, especially as you get older. That does not mean you have to stop gardening. It means you have to rethink how you garden.

For starters, consider incorporating some of these garden-planning principles:

- Raised beds and trellises are easier to maintain than in-ground beds.

- Garden beds should be no more than 4 feet wide to allow tending the bed without straining.

- Wide garden paths allow for safer walking and permit use of labor-saving carts and dollies.

- Water weighs more than 8 pounds per gallon, so design your garden with easy access to hoses and water sources. Consider the ultimate water system: an efficient automated drip or soaker hose system.

- Garden early or late in the day to avoid the heat.
- Drink plenty of liquids and wear light, loose clothing, a big sun hat and gardening gloves.

- Carry a whistle or cell phone along with your other garden tools.

Before getting started on your plans it's important to obtain the proper tools. Avid gardeners recommend high quality, ergonomically designed tools specially developed to multiply cutting power and minimize stress to your body.

"Working in the garden can become a hassle, cause pain and, in extreme cases, lead to disorders like carpal tunnel syndrome," says Nate Fethke, ergonomics engineer, Fiskars Garden Tools. "That's why it's important to use tools that match your capabilities, limitations and any special needs."

There are a number of tools available today that do just that. Consider the Extended Reach grass and hedge shears. With a reach of 38 inches, this tool lets you trim grass while standing up, eliminating bending, stooping and kneeling. The same tool also features an adjustable cutting head that rotates 270 degrees, allowing you to safely trim the tops of hedges without using a ladder.

The Power-Lever hand pruner allows you to multiply your cutting power by more than 35 percent compared to ordinary garden tools. The handle design, which keeps the handles parallel throughout the cut, allows all fingers to assist in pruning, which minimizes strain and maximizes your power through a cut.

The Pruning Stik has a cutting head that rotates on a 240-degree arc, enabling the user to set the proper cutting angle for any pruning task. The lightweight tool is activated by pulling on the handle halfway up the Stik, or by pulling on the ball end of the Stik when needed at its full length.

Fuel-saving tips can stretch dollars

Michigan drivers who conserve fuel, plan their trips, and think before stepping on the accelerator can help lower their gasoline bills and keep the state's air cleaner, says AAA Michigan.

By following a few suggestions, families can save money on fuel costs and still afford to take their traditional vacation trips.

The following are easy fuel-saving steps:

- Follow the owner's manual for the correct starting procedure for your vehicle. Don't "race" a cold engine. Today's engines don't need time to warm up. Start driving as soon as you start the engine, but avoid accelerating rapidly at first.

- Avoid extended idling. You'll be burning more fuel than it would take to restart the vehicle.

- Plan ahead to combine trips. Family business accounts for nearly 36 percent of U.S. gasoline consumption. Run your errands all at once. That way your vehicle's engine can warm up to peak efficiency.

- On the road, take it easy when starting out from a light. Vehicles use the most fuel when accelerating.

This is especially important if you're pulling a trailer. Maintain a steady speed. Cruise control is a great fuel-saver on the open highway.

- Buy a more fuel-stingy car for everyday driving and keep the SUV or van for longer trips.

According to the U.S. Department of Transportation, going to and from work accounts for nearly 38 percent of all gasoline consumption.

- Car pool. You'll save gas and ease traffic congestion

- and stress.
- Save fuel by anticipating light changes. Watch for clues such as walk/don't-walk signals that tell you a light change is imminent, or obvious traffic slowdowns ahead. Learn to gradually slow down when approaching an intersection where a light is about to change.

- Use air conditioning only when needed. Open the windows a few minutes when you first start the car to let accumulated hot air escape. Then set the A/C on "economy," which allows unchilled air to circulate, or the "maximum" setting, which cuts the amount of hot air from outside that must be cooled.

- Most vehicles are designed to operate on regular unleaded fuel. Unless it's called for in your owner's manual, using premium grade wastes your money. When fueling up, don't top-off your tank in warm weather. Fuel expands and can cause an overflow.

- Plan your trips to bypass congested areas. Start early when traffic is light and plan meal stops to coincide with likely periods of congestion.

- When packing, avoid strapping luggage on the roof where it will create wind resistance and cost you more in fuel. If vacationing with friends, car pool as much as possible.

Each 100 pounds of extra luggage means a 1 percent loss in fuel economy.

- Watch your speed. Driving 65 mph instead of 55 will use 10 percent more fuel. Drive 70 mph in a 55 mph zone uses 17 percent more.

- Count yourself fortunate. Fuel prices in Europe are nearly $4 a gallon.

More one-acts come to Stratford's newest theater

The third pair of one-act plays to open at Stratford's new Studio Theatre this summer clinch the success of this fourth stage undertaking at the Festival. Like the two pairs that preceded them this season, this last offering makes a well-balanced program of two provocative and highly entertaining shows.

The opener, "Walk Right Up," deals with a conflicted family in which each of the two parents and three children is so focused on his or her own problems that they have no appreciation of or sympathy for the others. And while the problems are familiar in our complex, contemporary society, the solutions are made evasive by the conflicted behavior of the characters. Central to their situation is the need to look after the father who has become a semi-invalid because of a stroke.

The older daughter pleads that she has a business to run. Only gradually she reveals that it is her mother's behavior toward her that keeps her away. The younger daughter has been giving her father the attentive care he needs although she overdoes it so thoroughly that he feels smothered. Now she has a career opportunity and wants the freedom to take it.

The question is: Who will care for father?

Their mother is beginning to show signs of old-age dementia. Most of the time, however, she is domineering and refuses to face reality.

The brother has abandoned a promising education and dropped into the shadowy world of a pot-user. He has disappointed his family so many times, that when he is recruited to look after his father by the older sister, no one really believes he can do it.

Young playwright Celia McBride has fleshed out her characters into very real people. Anyone who has cared for an aging parent will recall the anguish of dealing with an adult who needs to be diapered and lifted in and out of a wheelchair; will remember the suspense of having a parent who may at any moment lapse into oblivion. Anyone who has tried to help an alcoholic or a marijuana addict stay clean will empathize with this mother as she dotes on the son who once held such promise, or his sisters who can no longer trust his promises of going straight. They will recognize the false sincerity of the addict's protestations, so convincing and inevitably false.

It is a touching story that deals with real, modern problems with sensitivity and amazing realism. The acting is outstanding and as in every family there are moments of pathos, warmth and humor that make it real, right down to the closing cry of the mother: "We all need help."

"Shadows," by famed playwright Timothy Findley, is a fascinating exploration of the neurotic and often unreal world of theater people. Findley experiments with unorthodox ways of communicating between the stage and the audience. The scene is the half of a party after dinner — drinks, conversation, watching an eclipse of the moon from a balcony and most important of all, an improvisatory party game that has the potential to get nasty.

Findley, who admitted to writing in a stream-of-consciousness technique, has produced here some fast-moving, witty dialogue that clicks like a 21st century version of an Oscar Wilde play. Meanwhile, the party game develops a confrontational quality that sometimes matches the meanness of the gamesmanship in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

Younger, less sophisticated guests resist playing and say they want to go home. The host and other guests who know the routine, insist they stay and play.

The host of the dinner party is a playwright and the game is his invention. It calls for one person to tell a revealing story about himself that may be true or false and for the others to ask questions that test the story. The result is a free-for-all revelation of personal relationships between the playwright, his wife and their guests who include the theater people he works with — actors, agent, photographer, new talent.

Two of them at least, appear to be former lovers. But is it really true? Others reveal even more fantastic experiences.

The revelations become so incredible that at one point Findley has all the guests leave the stage and take refuge in the audience. The lights come up and the playwright discusses the slim distinction between theatrical make-believe and reality.

Is that prop glass of wine just colored water? Letting a member of the audience try it may provide the answer. Is that person just a plant?

There are surprising exchanges that help the audience think in new ways about theatrical experience. It seems possible even that at this point the playwright character is ad-libbing.

The whole cast gives an outstanding performance, led by Brent Carver, who makes a controlling and manipulative host as the playwright character. He discovers that he is not in control, however, when the ingenue among his guests tells the best story to win the game. It leaves everyone, on stage and off, wondering if her story can really be true and asking themselves, "What is truth in human relationships, anyhow?"

"Walk Right Up" and "Shadows" are presented in repertory through Sept. 15. Call (800) 567-1600.

Local rockers JENDZA team up with Alice Cooper

Concert to feature JENDZA's fourth CD

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

The normally animated front-man of a high-energy heavy-metal band, psyched-up to open for Alice Cooper on Labor Day, is being shy about the inspiration for his group's latest compact disc. "I hate to jump on a bandwagon, but the album is about how we were thinking during the 9/11 thing," said Derek Jendza, singer of the self-named rock 'n' roll outfit, JENDZA.

Hence the title of the band's fourth CD, "End of the World."

cuts with titles like "We've Just Begun to Suffer" and "Watery Eyes," JENDZA is anxious to reprise its crowd-pleasing role as Cooper's henchmen at the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 2.

The concert starts at 7 p.m. in the Greektown Casino Band Shell. State Fair concerts are free with regular fair admission. Adult admission costs $9.

JENDZA and Cooper teamed up at the fair two years ago. Their styles complemented each other as a fitting one-two punch of theatrical performers.

blood-slurping vampires and spaced-out aliens.

Unlike the band's third CD, "Rejuvenated," Jendza said "End of the World" has a less-polished feel.

"The sound is raunchier," he said. "We're bitter about what's going on in the world."

The disc opens drastically and dissonantly with "We've Just Begun to Suffer." Tracks that follow reflect a cycle of anger, recovery and optimism.

"Life has its ups and downs," Jendza said. "We put a little happiness into

"When you drink too much with friends and such, raise a toast to the sour wine," laments the song written by Bradley Jendza, Derek's brother, bass player, fellow Park resident and Tap Room denizen. "Life's not what it seems. Shake me from these dreams. I just want to wake up alive."

"We'll be doing that tune at the fair," Derek said.

The members of JENDZA love performing. Their Dracula-style stage antics have little to do with their lives backstage. In some ways, the boys are downright conventional, but don't tell them that.

Derek Jendza is a former teacher and current box office manager at the State Theater in Detroit. Bradley graduated from the prestigious Center for Creative Studies, now the College for Creative Studies. He works as a creative director for an international advertising agency. Guitar player Seth Bawcum, 20, has begun college and wants to transfer to CCS. Drummer Lawrence Ricard is a former accountant-turned teacher.

With "End of the World," the bandmates have addressed timely personal fears and hopes. But they're not the type to trot out their inner child, embarrass themselves and bore listeners with presumptuous, two-bit attempts at angst.

The title song, "End of the World," lets loose a driving guitar, power chords and catchy chorus to encourage listeners to "enjoy the last day of your life."

Jendza said the band has a strategy to solve the world's problems: "Let's rock it out."

JENDZA CDs are sold at Harmony House and Sam Goody Records on Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods and Detroit, respectively; and independent record stores throughout metro Detroit, including Record Time and Hot Hits in Roseville, and Tower Records in Birmingham.

JENDZA, a hard-rock, theatrical band formed by Grosse Pointe Park brothers Derek and Bradley Jendza, front and back center, respectively, has been booked to reprise its role as the opening act for Alice Cooper at the Michigan State Fair's grand finale concert on Monday, Sept. 2, at 7 p.m., in the Greektown Casino Band Shell. The concert is free with fair admission. Adult admission is $9.

"That's what we were living through at the time," said Jendza, a resident of Grosse Pointe Park. But don't think the hard-rock band has rolled over and put its paws in the air. Its members have gotten thoughtful, not cuddly. With 13 loud, guitar-based JENDZA's four members trace their music and stage presence to Cooper and Kiss. On stage, the quartet assumes fantasy-world personas of guys who are proud to admit they never really grew up. They wear costumes and stage makeup akin to comic book heroes, the record." "Boulevard" is a poppy love song with jazz keyboard elements. But it's back to the black in the next song, "Sour Wine." "The song is about drinking at the Ye Olde Tap Room," Jendza said.

When taxidermy is not an option

By Helen Gregory
Special Writer
Re: Yet another way to deal with dust

Mere ephemeral carbon-based life forms that we are, it seems that for $4,000 we can be forever. New technology comes out of a company called LifeGem.

Let's make diamonds by extracting the carbon from cremation ashes.

Now they say instead of leaving Great-Aunt Tillie home on the mantelpiece, we can wear her out to dinner. Of course, at a quarter of a carat, she'll be harder to see than in life, or, as, say, even a locket-size photo, but she'll be the gem we always said she was.

I suppose we could still keep her around through cryogenics and possibly cloning. We'll see how it works out for Ted Williams.

But before all these advancements in science, before it was conceivable that we might, as my friend Barb acutely observed, "wear Daddy and Mummy as earrings," we had rites and rituals for dealing with earthly remains.

The Vikings have my vote for best staging. Of course, I always pictured the dragon-prow longboat sailing into the sunset with the corpse, going up in flames. The film in my mind plays "Flight of the Valkyries" and for once I don't hear Robert Duvall saying, "I love the smell of napalm in the morning."

As it turns out, that was only the send-off for the rare king or hero, boat-building being labor-intensive. Most kings and heroes were cremated on pyres on land along with three years in some exotic locale, most recently Arica, Chile.

She describes their work and their subjects: the oldest mummies (actually found in the Andes, not Egypt), the tall, blond mummies of China, the bog people of northern Europe, miraculously preserved saints and many others. The mummies and the folks who make them their life add up to a page-turner.

Moving into modern times, a lot of old rituals are forgotten. A little film from Japan's Juzo Itami (director of the better known "Tampopo") is "The Funeral" ("Ososhiki," 1985). I don't have a lot of patience for foreign films. I hate depending on subtitles. However, this is warm-hearted, funny but not hilarious, poignant but not sad. It seems when the patriarch dies, the young moderns in the family want to give him the complex three-day Buddhist traditional rite, which is a problem since the only member of the family who knew all the intricacies of the rite is now dead. For a good evening's entertainment, subtitles notwithstanding, borrow Central Library's copy.

As for today's customs in the global community with travel and a variety of friends from a variety of backgrounds, there may come a time when you have to attend a ceremony that is out of the ordinary. You'll find "The Perfect Stranger's Guide to Funerals and Grieving Practices: A Guide to Etiquette in Other People's Religious Ceremonies," edited by Stuart M. Matlins, useful.

Covering 38 denominations including Buddhist, Sikh, Islamic and Hindu, each section gives a brief, historic background and well-organized rules governing preliminary custom, attire, gifts, the ceremony itself, the interment or cremation and comforting the bereaved afterward.

I suppose, given the subject, I can't ignore two important books I mentioned a couple of years ago when poet-mortician Thomas Lynch came here to speak. Lynch's own award-winning "The Undertaking: Life Studies from the Dismal Trade," alternates comedy and poignancy with honesty and deep feeling.

The opposing view is Jessica Mitford's sardonic 1968 classic "The American Way of Death." Central Library carries "The American Way of Death Revisited," a revision that came out in 1998, two years after her death.

Hmmm. For those of you who may be interested in the dust to diamonds technique, I just heard it on news radio, but the web site to check out will be www.lifegems.com. Their headquarters are in California (does this surprise you?). Florida, New York, Wisconsin and Illinois. It gives a whole new meaning to the term "getting stoned."

You can reach Helen Gregory online at hgregory@gp.lib.mi.us or find her at G.P. Central Library.

The Book Return

belongings. Some stories tell of women who may have agreed to be killed by the "angel of death" and sent with their heroes to Valhalla. Bones don't burn, so those were buried in small mounds sometimes surrounded by stones in the shape of their ships. Shipshape?

You can find Viking customs in Scandinavian history books, 948.022. Not all cover death rites. The best ones I found were "The Oxford Illustrated History of the Vikings," Rudolph Poertner's "The Vikings" in the chapter "Better a Dead Lion: Viking Burials," and Jacqueline Simpson's "The Viking World," which has good illustrations.

Long before the Vikings, the best-known ancient method of preparing for the afterlife was mummification. We've all seen mummies and their cases in museums.

Not all mummies are Egyptian. Heather Pringle's delightfully dark 2001 adventure "The Mummy Congress: Science, Obsession, and the Everlasting Dead" centers around a professional organization for mummy experts, which meets every

Labor Day barbecue combines pasta, lobster, chili

Monday is Labor Day. It's hard to believe another summer is coming to a close. The lucky folks get away for one last fling. If you're staying at home, why not treat your family to a special meal this weekend? Grilled lobster tails with creamy chili vinaigrette will leave your loved ones feeling like they've dined in a fancy restaurant. Any grilled seafood will work with this recipe.

- minced
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 3/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons olive oil, divided
- 1 9-oz. package fresh linguine
- 2 10- to 12-oz. lobster tails, thawed, split lengthwise in half
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 2 tablespoons fresh chopped chives
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
- Lemon wedges for garnish and grill for about three minutes. Turn over and cook until the meat is opaque in the center, about another five minutes or so.

While the lobster is grilling, melt the butter in a large skillet over medium heat. Add the cooked pasta, chives and parsley and toss and cook until heated through.

To serve this fabulous meal, divide the pasta onto two plates and top with the grilled lobster. Spoon the vinaigrette all around the outside of the pasta, directly on the plate. Garnish with lemon wedges. Serves two.

The vinaigrette is there to dip the lobster (or grilled seafood of your choice) into. You can use any type of pasta, fresh or dry, just make sure to under-cook it in the boiling water as it will cook again later with the butter and fresh herbs.

Chili-garlic sauce is available in the Asian section of most grocery stores. Enjoy creamy chili vinaigrette with shrimp cocktail or any chilled seafood. While this tempting meal sounds like a lot of work, I pulled it off in just about an hour. If you don't have a grill, cook the lobster under the broiler.

This meal is yummy. Treat your family to a delicious Labor Day 2002.

À LA ANNIE By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh cilantro
- 3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
- 2 tablespoons chili-garlic sauce
- 2 garlic cloves,

In a medium bowl, combine the mayonnaise, cilantro, vinegar, lemon juice, Dijon mustard, chili-garlic sauce, garlic and sugar. Whisk in the 3/4 cup of olive oil, adding the oil in a steady stream. Season the vinaigrette with salt and pepper. Store in refrigerator until ready to serve. Vinaigrette can be prepared a day in advance.

Cook the fresh pasta in boiling water for just a minute or two, drain and submerge in cold water to halt the cooking process. Toss pasta with a little olive oil (so the noodles don't stick together) and set aside.

Prepare barbecue to medium-low heat. Brush the lobster tails with the remaining two tablespoons of olive oil. Place the tails meat side down

South tennis team heads field in its first two tournaments

By Chuck Klonka
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South lost six seniors from a strong 2001 girls tennis team, but don't feel too sorry for Blue Devils coach Mark Sobieralski.

He still has a team that's going to challenge for the championship in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division and a squad that figures to rank among the best Division I teams in the state.

Last week, the Blue Devils showed their depth as they won the Grosse Pointe South August Invitational and tied Port Huron Northern for the top spot in the Troy Invitational. "We have unbelievable depth," Sobieralski said.

That was never more apparent than in South's opening tournament. With a hole in the singles lineup, sophomore Jennifer Paone moved up from the junior varsity squad to play No. 4 singles.

All Paone did was win the fight. She won her first match by default, but then defeated a player from Ann Arbor Huron 6-4, 6-3 and beat a Rochester Adams player 6-2, 6-4 in the championship match.

Paone wasn't the only JV player to make an impression on Sobieralski. Warren-Mott's third and fourth singles players weren't able to attend the tournament, so South's Alexandra Dickson and Courtney Grady came up from the JV to fill the voids.

"They both won two of their three matches,"

Sobieralski said. "They didn't count in the points, but they made a great showing."

"It's good experience for them to compete at the varsity level and it gives our JV players hope that they can come up to the varsity and do the job if we need them."

South also won three of the four doubles flights to finish with 26 points. Adams was second with 21 1/2, Livonia Stevenson third with 18 and Farmington and Huron each had 15 1/2.

South's new first doubles team of McCall Monte and Sunny Jefferies posted a 6-2, 4-6, 6-2 win over Adams in the final. The Blue Devils also got firsts from their third and fourth doubles teams.

and freshman Dana Schweitzer beat Adams 7-6, 6-2 in the championship match after posting wins against Huron and Stevenson.

"Alexis and Dana are both great athletes and they're mentally tough," Sobieralski said. "You always wonder how the kids are going to perform when you put a doubles team together, but these two have meshed from day one."

Jacqueline Vandermale and Patti Harrell defeated Huron, Stevenson and Holly in straight sets to win the fourth doubles flight.

The second doubles team of Carolyn Robde and Emery Brink lost to Adams, but beat Holly to finish third in the flight.

Sophomore Brette Carroll moved up to first singles and advanced to the championship match before losing Ann Arbor Huron 6-0, 7-6 to Stevenson's Erin Mazzoni, a state finalist a year ago.

Stephanie Royer, who played on the JV the last two years, won two of her three matches at No. 2 singles. Stephanie Manos won her first match at third singles, then lost to Adams before beating a Huron player to take third in that flight.

In the Troy Invitational,

South tied Port Huron Northern for first place with 21 1/2 points apiece. Troy was third with 17 and Ann Arbor Huron had 12 1/2 points.

PHN had been ranked No. 1 in Division I in the preseason ratings.

"It was a tough tournament with all the state-ranked teams playing, but our girls did a fantastic job again," Sobieralski said.

Instead of moving everyone up a notch in singles for the Troy meet, Sobieralski had Paone play at No. 1 and left the rest of the lineup intact.

"She beat North's No. 1 in her last match," Sobieralski said. "She did another great job playing against some of the top girls in the state."

Carroll, Royer and Manos each advanced to the championship match in their singles flights and finished as runners-up.

Manos posted an impressive victory against Port

North dance squad shines at Oakland

Grosse Pointe North's varsity dance team took top honors at the recent Universal Dance Association summer camp and competition at Oakland University.

North, which is coached by Rebecca Ruth, earned the Drill Down Superior Trophy for accumulating the most gold ribbons in drill competition.

Drill Downs are military-based drills designed to increase dancers' listening skills and to enhance their ability to focus.

North also received a Superior Trophy for having each member of the team earn a blue ribbon in each of her performances. That resulted in a perfect score for the Norsemen.

Team captain Kristen McPharlin and Carla Colbeck were selected as UDA All Stars.

They received All Star medals and the opportunity to participate in the 2003 Varsity Spirit Parade in Paris, France.

All candidates were required to perform a routine choreographed by UDA and to demonstrate some of their own choreography.

North's next varsity performance will take place during homecoming week.

own direction." Green said that he could see how fans would enjoy their trip to Ford Field.

"From a fan-friendly standpoint, this stadium is marvelous," said Green, who has covered every Super Bowl. "I have never seen a sports facility this good."

"I can't imagine anything close to it in the NFL," McLeod added. "The intimacy strikes you. A top-row seat is a great seat."

Green liked the eclectic architecture.

"It's both retro and state-of-the-art," he said. "I have never seen a sports facility this good. It has a lot of comfortable features — restaurants and wide-open corridors. It's more than a football field. It's a place for events beyond sports, which is important."

McLeod, referring to a brick-inlaid concourse and natural light streaming through huge picture windows, called the ambiance "spectacular."

Green covered the Lions' first football game at the Silverdome in 1975. He doesn't see a connection between the team's lagging proweess and the quality of its stadiums.

"I don't think a new stadium means the Lions will play better football," he said.

Despite two new, impressive sports stadiums located within feet of each other downtown, Green said Detroit city leaders have a lot of work to do before the town hosts the 2006 Super Bowl.

He nodded his head past the stadium's immaculate interior toward run-down neighborhoods within walking distance of Ford Field and Comerica Park.

"Unless they clean out those burned-out hulks of former homes, vacant lots and garbage dumps, blight will give Detroit a great deal of criticism," Green said. "The neighborhood is still extremely bad despite these two beautiful stadiums."

Both reporters liked having Lions games within a half-hour drive of home.

"I was surprised and pleased to see how well people navigated ..." McLeod said. "We'll all find little nooks and crannies and ways to get here."

State champions

The Grosse Pointe Farms-City 12-year-old All Stars won the state Little League championship and played in the Great Lakes Regional in Indianapolis, which produced the Little League champion Louisville, Ky. team. which has a number of first-year players, will depend on its returning team leaders and a strong running game, led by Charles Getz. "Charles Getz is the best runner I've seen in years," Cimmarusti said.

Getz has plenty of support. Bobby Peltz also is a breakaway running threat, and quarterback Pat Kennedy can move the ball in the air. The offensive line includes Steve Lapensie, Nathan Maiuri, Greg Rastelli, Bryce Gray, Mitch Makos and Eric Wil.

Defensively, the team is especially strong at line-backer, with Spencer Ray, Alex Koski, Brandon D'Agness and Kennedy.

The Saddlelites' road to a Catholic League title has to go through Mercy and Marian, which leaves meets against Ladywood, Notre Dame Prep, Shrine and Bishop Foley as must-wins.

In nonleague action, the team competes against Bloomfield Hills Andover, Utica Eisenhower, Marysville and Macomb Dakota.

The Regina swim team starts its season on Thursday, Sept. 5, at Andover.
