Santa sprucing up for his entrance into the Pointes

By Rebecca Jones Staff Writer

Everybody knows Rudolph's red nose. It shines so bright and helps guide Santa's sleigh at night.

Then it's a good thing that Grosse Pointe's Santa Claus Parade takes place during the day. The float on which the big man arrives is led by eight flying, black-nosed reindeer.

"We included never Rudolph," said John Stevens, the City of Grosse Pointe councilman who spearheaded an effort to build the parade's new float last year.

After all, Santa Claus has been around for centuries, but Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer didn't come into existence until the 1940s.

"The float spans time," said Dick Ruzzin, of Grosse Pointe Park who designed the display. We wanted a classy, yet elegant float, not cartoony. ... That doesn't mean that there would not be a Rudolph one day."

The parade's Santa Sleigh debuted for the 30th annual parade last year, following years of Santa's arrival by horse-drawn carriage.

"It was anticlimactic," said director parade Terri Berschback of Santa's former

Police pull plug on false ID manufacturing shop

By John Lundberg Staff Writer

What began as a routine traffic stop in the City of Grosse Pointe has resulted in the arrest of a 21-year-old Detroit man admitting to the manufacturing and distribution of hundreds of phony Michigan driver licenses to college students throughout the state.

"His product was very, very good," said detective Ronald Wieczorek of the City of Grosse Pointe. "He did not have to advertise. He was a salesman on wheels."

Police from the City of Grosse Pointe, Detroit, Oakland County and the state arrested the Detroit man Oct. 15 after a midnight raid in Ortonville. He had recently moved from his Detroit residence on Yorkshire, where police executed a search warrant earlier that same day and discovered evidence of his counterfeit operation.

'We found enough evidence (at the first raid) to obtain a second warrant," said Wieczorek. "We knew it was important to move fast."

Police were originally tipped off to the operation after a traffic stop in the City of ing to police. Grosse Pointe. Officers discovered two different licenses who could purchase his prodon the driver, each bearing a uct," Wieczorek said. "We bedifferent birth date. The driver admitted it was a fake, and provided key information that buy a beer." led to the two raids.

Police descended on the Oakland County town after coordinating with several law enforcement agencies. The suspect surrendered peacefully and has been "very cooperative" with police since, Wieczorek said. So cooperative that he has given police and the media a step-by-step presentation on how he created his phony licenses.

The end product is virtually identical to state driver's licenses. So close in detail that a representative of the secretary of state's office was at the presentation to better the state's manufacture of identification cards to prevent such fraud

But what's more troubling to police is the availability of such high quality fakes to people such as drug dealers or potential terrorists. A driver license is just one step below a U.S. passport in terms of national identification distinction in the United States, accord-

Police believe that the suspect sold about 400 phony IDs statewide. Wieczorek said the suspect's wares were so popular that college students from Ohio came to Michigan to purchase the counterfeit licenses. The phonies sold from $100 to $50 apiece and the suspect gave group discounts for larger orders, police said.

The felony charge carries a four-year prison term for each license made, Wieczorek said. But the suspect's high level of cooperation may have some effect on his punishment. Because of his degree of cooperation, the suspect has been released pending charges expected this week at 36th District Court downtown, where he will be arraigned.

He also has no prior police record.

"Because of his cooperation eration, which police now he is not considered a flight risk," Wieczorek said.

Police are now focusing on getting the fake IDs back. The suspect kept records of his op-

"There are such far-reaching ramifications (from such operation)," said an Wieczorek. "You've got homeland security issues. The potential is staggering."

STATE PROPOSAL 06-5 K-16 would bankrupt state

roposal 5, the state K-16 inflationary . school funding constitutional amendment, is a teacher's dream, a school administrator's savior and a taxpayer's eternal burden.

The proposal calls for annual state spending on education to increase at no less than the inflation rate. The amendment would apply to public school districts, charter schools and state universities and community colleges.

Unprotected state-funded education programs would include adult and vocational education, which would almost certainly become the responsibility of local school districts should the amendment be approved by voters.

Proposal 5 would also transfer the burden of school employee pension and retirement health insurance costs from the school districts to the state. If approved, this would save school districts $386 million in retirement costs in 2007 alone.

However, where is the state to come up with the additional retirement expenditure - and continue to raise K-16 funding some 3 percent per year assuming continued low inflation rates?

Most likely the state would save $142 million by not funding adult and vocational education. It would come up with the remainder needed to cover the pension and retirement costs for 2007 by cutting noneducational expenditures - corrections and human services, for example - by 8 percent.

Also, the Legislature could increase the state income tax by 9 to 11 percent to account for assuming the school districts' pension and retiree health liabilities.

And that is just to balance the budget for 2007. School employee legacy costs - pensions and retiree health care - are expected to double in the next 10 years. This is compared to legacy costs over the previous 10 years increasing by 50 percent.

Basically, the state is "bailing out" the school districts from the retirement liabilities they negotiated with teachers and administrators. This comes at a time when Delta Airlines, Delphi and other failing corporations are cutting or eliminating retiree pension and health care benefits in order to survive.

Proposal 5 would be a boondoggle for school unions. It is no wonder teachers are telling students to pressure mom and dad to vote for Proposal 5.

If approved, the school funding amendment applies to the current 2006-07 year. It would immediately free up retirement PHIL HANDS

Slow down, pay attention

To the Editor:

It has taken awhile to process the loss of my old roommate and best friend, Buddy, who was killed by a hitand-run driver cutting the corner in the Village of Grosse Pointe.

I'm not the first person to lose a valued pet, but then again, Buddy was a member of the family. She was a miniature dachshund --- small in stature, but full of life.

For the last 10 years, Buddy went everywhere and knew all my secrets, but never told a my wife, who was at the other end of the 6-foot leash, and her good friend who were crossing the street in the Village with the light.

What was so important that the driver's impatience won out over its humanity? Was there a meeting or an appointment or a cell phone call or a favorite song that diverted your attention?

Whatever it was, it could have been any one of us; the only difference is that we would have stopped and accepted responsibility and offered to help.

Instead, this driver simply skipped town.

Like the sudden loss of any friend, the memories don't die as quickly and the reminders are everywhere, the empty dish, the silent leash, and the distant looks of the other dog who no longer has to race to funds budgeted by local school districts for other programs.

However, what school union negotiator would not covet the retirement savings and the mandated inflationary increases for the rank and file?

Further, it is not as if Michigan ranked last in teachers' salaries. In 2003, Michigan ranked eighth in the nation in the average salary for instructional staff. In 2004, the average salary for instructional personnel was $54,000.

Also, it is not as if Michigan lags in per-pupil spending. In 2003, per-pupil spending in Michigan ranked ninth in the nation

If spending on education correlated with economic growth and jobs, Michigan should be among the top 10 most prosperous states. Michigan leads the nation in unemployment.

True, state funding to schools has lagged behind inflation over the past several recessionary years in Michigan. However, state school aid fund spending increased 40 percent from 1995 to 2005, whereas inflation during that decade was only 27 percent.

A similar pattern can be found among state universities and colleges. State funding for higher education increased 37 percent between 1995 and 2001, while inflationary growth was 15 percent. During the same time, in-state tuition costs rose more than 28 percent — nearly twice the rate of inflation.

Proposal 5 is bad from all perspectives. Most likely the mandatory inflationary increases combined with the school districts' windfall savings in retirement costs will greatly increase pressure for salary increases on the local level while burdening the state with open-ended legacy costs.

State funding on education represents 54 percent of the state budget that depends on tax revenue, not including the added legacy for all present and future school and college employees if the K-16 amendment is passed. The remaining 46 percent of state obligations would face yearly cuts unless something drastic is done.

In the long run, we see increased income taxes in Michigan's future should Proposal 5 be approved. We urge voters to vote NO on the K-16 proposal if for no other reason than to save the state from bankruptcy.

I noted that there were at least four places a convex mirror could be posted which could be beneficial in preventing accidents at that corner.

If one is approaching Jefferson from Fisher Road, it is impossible to see if another driver, heading west on Jefferson, is about to run a yellow light. Installing a mirror could be a good deterrent.

There is little meat on them, they pose no threat to anything or anyone, they are not overpopulated, and are generally killed strictly for the "sport of it" and for target practice.

My wife wrote eloquently about the dangers of retractable leashes ("Retractable leash tragedy," Sept. 28 Grosse Pointe News Letters to the Editor).

But in my mind, the real killer was the hit-and-run drilick the pan.

No longer do we hear the siren call of our 4-inch-high watch dog alerting us to someone at the door or making us laugh as she hops up and down waiting to be let out for her morning ritual.

No, Buddy will no longer be taking those walks with us; but we can remind ourselves that nothing is so important that we need not pay attention to the life around us at all times.

And if we make a mistake, to own up to it.

OFFERINGS FROM THE LOFT Family and friends are everything

Chapter one

Some people thrive on being the center of attention. I am not one of them. I like to observe and will admit to being a Monday-morning quarterback on occasion.

However, I prefer to coach from the sidelines.

I don't want to call the plays and take the heat unless I am truly passionate about something.

A month ago I would have stated with conviction that there was no way that anyone could surprise me. I am simply too curious, ask too many questions and demand straight answers. Not any more.

I was completely conned by family and friends, ambushed, blindsided and stunned.

Many of my good friends are marching into the seventh decade this year.

There have been various celebrations and I assume our families have been challenged to the max to make each party unique and personal. Because of the number of us turning 70 this year, I declared there would be no surprise when my day rolled around. I even tried to get my husband to go away with me for the weekend, but he said he couldn't take the time from work.

Because of a recent wedding, our immediate family has seen a great deal of each other.

One of our daughters has moved and we have all been extremely busy spinning in our own orbits. With half us living out of town and all the grandchildren just starting school, there was no way they would be required to return for one more family celebration. It simply wouldn't be possible, too many commitments, new jobs, schoolwork and team events.

No way. We received a phone call from friends who live up north. They informed us they were coming to town to visit their daughters in Birmingham, and asked if we would join them for dinner at a local club. I was delighted at the thought of seeing them. My actual birthday was on a Sunday; therefore a Thursday night dinner invitation aroused no suspicion on my part.

However, my family and friends are conniving and cunning. As we walked down the hall of the club, I saw magnificent flowers banking the entrance to one of the rooms. Still, I had no clue, but wandered over to see this glorious display and was greeted with squeals of surprise. Our grandchildren flew into my arms with all the love and joy we share and I was in total meltdown mode.

We were not even certain if we would see our children and grands before Christmas!

The evening was everything I said I never wanted and more. And I savored every minute of it. The planning had taken six months and a team of special friends had arranged the flowers and centerpieces.

A combined effort of many family members and friends produced a video of my life thus far and our granddaughters sang a beautiful song to me.

I have never felt so much love from so many and will treasure the memories shared that evening for a lifetime. My husband, children and grandchildren are simply the best.

Chapter two Exactly two weeks after my birthday, my husband suffered a devastating fall while walking a family dog.

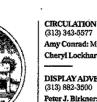

The accident left him with a broken arm and a shoulder fractured in four places.

He has had surgery, has new metal and plastic parts, is wearing a metal brace which extends his arm in a frozen position and spends his days and nights in a recliner or a hospital bed. We are told it will be a long road to recovery.

We have experienced an avalanche of support, food, visitors, flowers, phone calls, notes, errand runners and overwhelming kindnesses extended in the name of friendship

We loked that this experience was somewhat like attending your own funeral and being surrounded by those you cherish.

How do we feel? We know we are truly among the blessed souls on this Earth. We are filled with love and appreciation.

Town issues don't stir coffee hour

t was 8:54 a.m. Dick had to be in his appointed seat with his required cup of coffee by 9 a.m. He stepped into his Docksiders and grabbed the car keys. He hustled out the door, telling his wife he was off. He waited a moment for the engine to warm before the four mile trip to town.

There was no time for error. This time was set in stone. He must be there by 9 a.m.

The world could be swirling with controversy. Life could throw barbs and road blocks. Yet, there were some things life a sense of balance. The 9 a.m. coffee hour was one item that remained firm, unwavering.

that remain constant to give

Dick would sit by himself, sip his coffee and read the newspaper until one of his friends would join him and they would discuss and solve local problems.

He was sitting alone because he had decided not to take sides in the superintendent controversy. Besides, he and the superintendent were friends. Dick liked the superintendent and respected him. The superintendent had asked Dick and his wife to come out of retirement to substitute in the small, intimate classrooms.

No, thank you, Dick said. He had spent too many years in the classroom and then in the employ of the Department of Corrections looking after the incorrigible. Besides, he had golf rounds to play and grandchildren to entertain. He had sports teams to root on. He had sunsets to watch. Getting back into education did not enter into his schedule.

Sitting alone in the coffee shop was deliberate.

The long-time superintendent of this northern Michigan village was retiring. Much beloved by the community, people didn't want to see him leave the office which he oversaw fewer than in 1,000 students. They were proud of their school system. They turned out multi-talented students. The graduating students went on to colleges all over the state to pursue various careers. Parents, business owners and the public in genleave

And so the debate began. A principal stepped in for the interim as the school board searched for the perfect replacement. School board members nitpicked and quibbled with one another.

Why not hire the principal already in the position, some asked. He knows the students and the district. It was logical. Nope.

The other side wanted a new face, new ideas. The scrapping continued. The controversy became vicious, thus dividing the town. It turned a homogeneous, friendly one coffee shop stop into a side. If the new gathering place for coffee was chosen, the coffee clatchers were on one side of the issue. Dick remained in the coffee shop, as was his routine. eral didn't want to see him He refused to take sides. If someone wanted to sit with him, he would welcome the conversation.

Additionally, he knew the people who ran the shop. Hadn't he for years been supporting their business by buying coffee every morning, plus maybe a doughnut or pie or cookie? There was no reason to change his routine.

It was there I found Dick and his brother-in-law one summer morning.

"Oh, my goodness," I said to him and his brother-in-law. "Look who's holding down the end table? I can't believe I traveled four miles to see someone living 100 feet away from me." We laugh and turn to the controversy. The conversation turned to local issues. What else?

The new superintendent was chosen. It was the principal who knew the community. The school board members who had caused the ruckus. demanded a recall. New members were voted in and promptly voted out when the regular election came around.

Children were still being educated and subsequent graduations took place with grads going off to college and work. The town had survived the controversy.

There are still hard feelings and there is still some division, but Dick remains steadfast in his 9 a.m. routine.

Issues come and go but routine stays and the coffee tastes just the same as it did months ago. It would taste the same tomorrow at 9 a.m. when the talk would center on something truly worthwhile ---when the grandchildren would arrive.

Detroit Historical Society Motors into 21st Centur

When the Detroit Historical Museum which is backed by hundreds of Grosse Pointers opened its doors in late September for its newly refurbished mission under the leadership of the Park's Robert Bury, people turned out by the thousands.

And that has to be a bit of a first for a history museum. About 8,200 folks toured the new exhibits which included an up-to-date look at Motown musical stars. On the Sunday of the reopening alone, 3,700 people turned out.

The Historical Society, which now manages and runs the museum, is engaged in its annual fundraising campaign and has the major task of raising millions of dollars to keep the facility moving forward with vastly reduced support from the city of Detroit.

Meanwhile, volunteers and staff are continuing the popular Sunday lecture series and Behind the Scenes tours of Detroit landmarks.

For example, on Nov. 11 at 11 a.m., you can venture into a labyrinth of more than 1,000 rooms at the Masonic Temple led by Mason John Snider, who will help you decipher some of the Masons' secrets. Historical Society staff recommends you eat before embarking on the adventure as it is a long tour. They don't say whether you should bring a ball of twine so you can find your way back out.

For more information call 313-833-1405 or check out detroithistorical.org/thingstodo on the web.

The cost is $20 for society members and $25 for guests. No tickets are sold the day of the tour.

Upcoming Sunday lecture series at 1 p.m. at the museum which are free with a regular admission-include: The History of Indian Village with Bob Cosgrove on Nov. 5; The Fashion Industry in Detroit with designer Dan Keaton on Nov. 12; Techno Music In And Around Detroit with Liz Copeland from WDET-FM and Brendan Gillen, performer and writer, who will talk about the evolution of the music form in metro Detroit.

Family Tradition

The Hill's Jumps Restaurant owners Chad and Mavelle Stewart are proud parents because their 22-year-old son, Brandon Kokoszki, was named in this month's Hour Magazine as he has taken over as pastry chef at Seldom Blues, that posh, hip restaurant by the river in the Renaissance Center. Both eateries are worth trying: Jumps for its excellent cuisine from a modest setting in the basement of the Rickel

Building, and Seldom Blues for its food, setting and clientele that makes it "the best of Detroit."

Cuban Food

The best Cuban food I have ever eaten --- and that includes two trips from one end of the island nation to the other was in Detroit. Vicente's Cuban Cuisine at 1250 Library Street just off Gratiot downtown proved to be excellent. Their tapas are tasty and original and their seafood dishes including four types of paella are special. I had the Zarzuela de Mariscos recently and the assorted seafood, sautéed with tomatoes, peppers, and mushrooms and flambéed with brandy was delicious.

Of course one reason it is better than food in Cuba is the incredible availability of fresh meats and seafood in the U.S. In Havana if you aren't a tourist you can't get a good steak unless you buy it on the black market. I was told by a Cuban doctor that a man in a business suit and tie, carrying a briefcase, visits him monthly with steaks in the case. You can get excellent fish and seafood in Cuba, but good red meat is hard to come by.

Adequate Yearly Progress doesn't meet goals

Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP), the main indicator of academic achievement under No Child Left Behind (NCCB), is an unproven, unrealistic and underfunded system for improving student performance in the nation's public schools, according to a policy brief funded by the Great Lakes Center for Education Research and Practice.

AYP — and the accompanying penalties for failure should be suspended and additional research into its effectiveness should be conducted before schools invest any more time or money or suffer anymore consequences for failure to achieve it, according to the policy brief titled "The Accuracy and Effectiveness of Adequate Yearly Progress, NCLB's Evaluation System" by Professor William J. Mathis, Vermont.

The AYP requirement is the driving force behind NCLB. It uses yearly gains in standardized test scores to measure effectively implement the proschool and student achievement. Failure by a school to meet yearly performance goals triggers sanctions and "corrective action" plans. The goal of AYP is that every child masters their state's standardized tests by 2014.

"AYP is not an effective instrument for measuring school performance and it is not sparking school reform as promised," says Mathis. "Corrective action must be taken to prevent more harm to students and schools, and to develop a tool that will do the due to inadequate funding, job."

Pierce's new library is older than it looks

By Brad Lindberg Staff Writer

What's half old and all new? The Pierce Middle School library

Fashioned from half of the old Grosse Pointe Park branch public library, the school library holds about 4,500 books in a new setting that maintains continuity with the original facility constructed as part of the school campus.

The Park branch of the public library system had occupied a wing of Pierce, built in 1939 as a junior high school in a field bordered by streets with a few houses.

"We've maintained much of the old shelves and woodwork," said Bette Reid, librarian. "Users especially like that it is in the old Park branch of the public library."

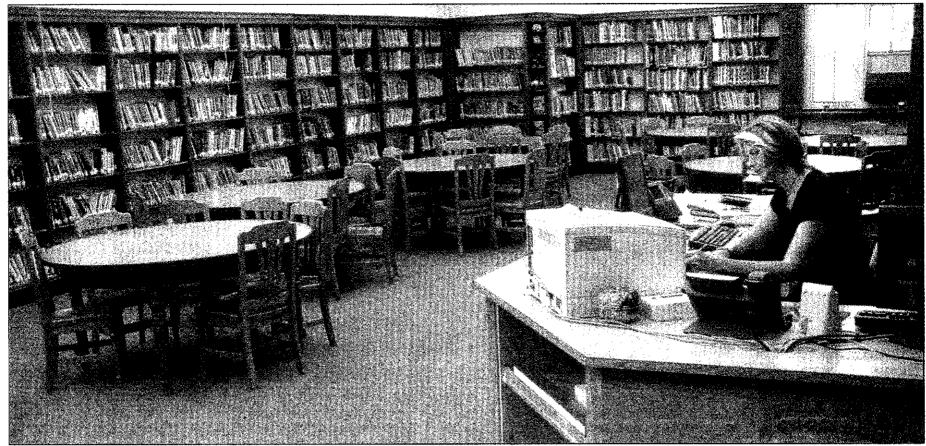

While half of the old library has become a new library, the other half has been turned into classroom space.

Response has been positive, according to Reid.

"Students and staff love the library," she said. "It is so bright and open."

The former adult fiction and mystery sections have been eliminated and turned into classrooms.

The former nonfiction section at the back of the public library has been replaced by tables of computers.

"Students come in at lunch and before school to read," said Vanessa Engen Wulf, assistant librarian. "They like a quiet place to be before school starts. It's wonderful to see them come in on their own. I don't think it's the novelty that it's new. They seek out quiet surroundings.'

Reid said popular books are science fiction, horror and romance. She said popular series are "Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants," "Cirque du Freak," "Shadow Children" and "Pendragon."

During a recent tour of the Grosse Pointe News offices, members of the second grade peppered the staff with queries worthy of inquiring minds. Most youngsters wanted to know the types of fish in the lobby fish tank (goldfish); their names (the names change all the time because we let the different classes decide); the types of computers we use (Macintosh) and why the computers are blue (they're made that way). Mrs. Clark, who was raised and educated in Detroit, enved her career as a legal ex-flew up and down the West Coast as a flight orderly. There was nothing she was more proud of than being in the Navy.

While she was stationed in California, Eric Dale, who she knew in high school, went to San Francisco to be discharged from the Army. The couple became engaged when Kathy was on leave and were married six months later in Detroit. They continuted to live in San Francisco for two to three more years.

They moved to Grosse Pointe to raise their three children. Mr. Dale worked with his dad at Lake Shore Coach Lines for several years and then traveled extensively for General Motors Corp. After their children were grown, she traveled to Russia, Greece, China and the Panama Canal by herself.

Mrs. Dale returned to work and was the first woman to be hired by the Grosse Pointe Farms Police Department working for police chiefs Roth and Ferber, and later as a court clerk for Judge Pytell.

After Mr. Dale's retirement, they traveled the globe to places such as Egypt, Japan, Scandinavia and the rest of Europe, the United States and Canada.

Mrs. Dale enjoyed playing bridge and the stock market in which she was very successful. She volunteered at Cottage Hospital, the Neighborhood Club, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and the Assistance the Country Club of Detroit, League to the Northeast Guidance Center.

Her children said, "Our mother was our comforter, protector and friend. Her fortitude, perseverance and inner calm brought inspiration and strength to our family. She was deeply loved and will be forev-

Mr. Hunter worked for a time as a writer for the Grosse Pointe News. He spent his business career in the advertising industry and was employed in various executive positions with a number of local firms including Campbell Ewald. He retired from Ross Roy Inc. as a vice president and associate creative director and moved to Northern Michigan.

He was an avid skier and relished fly-fishing the local streams with his friends. He enjoyed writing and especially admired the work of Ernest Hemingway who also vacationed on Walloon. Mr. Hunter became an accomplished watercolor painter. During his retirement, he illustrated several books with ink sketches of wildlife and the tranquil outdoor scenes he loved.

Mr. Hunter was a member of The Walloon Lake Country Club and the Harbor Point Golf Club.

He was born in Fort Wayne, Ind., to Kenneth and Phyllis Kimmel, and lived in Grosse Pointe since 1949. He graduated in 1964 from Grosse Pointe High School where he played center on the football team and was a cornetist of some renown. In 1969, he earned a bachelor's degree in industrial management from Purdue University where he was a member of the marching band and Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. During his year in the U.S. Army, he spent six months at the Long Binh logistical complex in Vietnam.

Upon his discharge, Mr. Kimmel began his career as a ventilating contractor with the E.W. Ensroth Co., becoming its president and CEO in 1977. While known to his friends as an outspoken bon vivant, he enjoyed a reputation in the construction industry for professional integrity and technical expertise. The Dealer Direct concept had been considered by the department for more than 10 years, though it stalled due to cost and technology issues. Upon taking office, Land explored alternatives that resulted in a successful pilot program with interested dealers last year. Nearly 20 new car dealerships across Michigan are participating. Thirty-one more are expected to be up and running in the coming months and about 120 others have signed up.

The Michigan Automobile Dealers Association shared its expertise with the department during the program's development. It is enthusiastic about the opportunities for dealers and their customers, according to Terry Burns, executive vice president.

"Michigan's new vehicle dealers are always looking for opportunities to better serve their customers," said Burns. "The new program allows participating dealers to offer another level of service to customers who would enjoy the convenience of electronically titling, registering, transferring and plating their new vehicle."

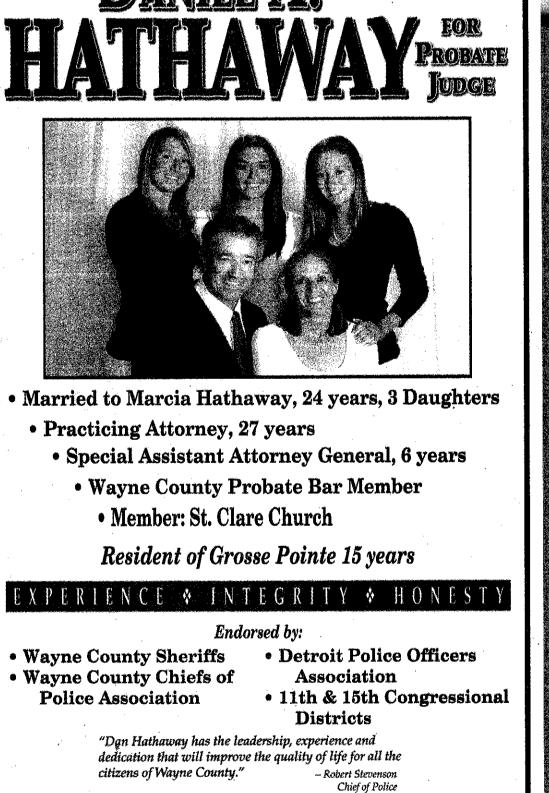

Participating dealers use software provided by CVR, a company specializing in computerized vehicle registration systems. CVR currently serves 20 other states in addition to Michigan.

Fun, funner, funnest Another small vehicle likely to put you in an extremely good mood is the MINI Cooper convertible from BMW. Our MINI Cooper S arrived for a few-days stay back in August. Back when every day was sunny and not too hot.

We first spotted it up on Mack Avenue where its delivery driver was searching for a gas station. This, we thought, is a car dreams are made of: a hot orange body with black convertible top, little roll bars and a supercharged, intercooled 1.6-liter inline four-cylinder 168-horsepower engine. That ought to be enough thrust to provide a lot of fun and perhaps the same amount of trouble.

We already were somewhat familiar with the cunning toggle-switch controls that do MI-NI things like raising and lowering the windows. But putting that versatile soft top back was a real treat.

The roof operates at the touch of a button and does not even require the release of any latches. Powered by an electrohydraulic system, the top's frame mechanism automatically unlatches and retracts. The four side windows lower automatically as the soft top folds neatly to the rear.

What we really appreciated is the fact that this retractable top does double-duty as a sunroof. The power top stops its retraction just behind the front seats, then will proceed if you continue to press the release button. The roof folds compactly to store behind the rear seats. More good news for those of us who are habitually too lazy to put a cover over a downed convertible top: when the top is folded, the front section of the roof provides promote locking system not only operates the doors, trunk and fuel door, but also can open the roof and side windows from a distance of up to 50 feet.

To top it off, the MINI Convertible top comes standard with a heated glass rear window that helps to maintain a clear view even in inclement weather; the top comes in three colors, blue, black and green.

There are lots of "includes" in these little coupes. They run from the great do-everything top to four air bags; disc brakes with antilock and brake force control systems; 5-speed Getrag manual transmission; 15-inch alloy wheels; park distance control and power windows

The S convertible adds upgrades like 16-inch wheels, a 6speed manual and stability and traction controls.

Need more gadgets? You may replace the manual with a 6-speed automatic transmission on the Cooper S, a continuously variable transmission, dynamic stability control, an ISOFIX bar for a child safety seat, a navigation system, a rain-sensor for the wipers and a multi-function steering wheel. The last of these items is part of a $1,400 package that includes a center arm rest, automatic air conditioning, an on-board computer, a Harmon/Kardon sound system and some chrome interior trim.

The base MINI Cooper S convertible is priced at $25,400. The hot orange metallic paint we loved adds $450 to that tag; a leather interior drives the price up another $1,300, etc. The out-the-door sticker on the test vehicle was $31,700. You can decide for yourself about the leather, an upgraded sound system and dynamic stability control, which were among the most expensive add-ons. Don't plan on saving extraordinarily at the gas pump. The MINI Cooper S convertible may be petite, but it delivers just 25 mpg in the city and an average of 32 mpg on the open road.

Mercury Mariner Hybrid is winner of the '06 Green Car of the Year award and recognized as the Best Compact SUV for 2006 by Forbesautos.com. EPA-estimated fuel economy — 33 city, 29 highway.

Forbesautos.com. EPA-estimated fuel economy — 33 city, 29 highway. The hi-tech '06 Mariner Hybrid ercury's initial fray into the hybrid market is our test drive this week, as we put the 2006 Mariner Hybrid AWD through the paces base price: $29,225; price as tested: $33,635.

Planned originally to be a 2007 model, Mercury decided to move production up and introduce the model for the 2006-selling season.

As they say, timing is everything; gas prices soared and hybrids, specifically Toyota, Honda, Ford and Mercury, were so popular at dealer showrooms you had to wait in line to buy one.

Mariner's system is a full-hybrid design that allows 100percent electric cruising at low speeds. Mariner also meets the Partial Zero Emissions Vehicle standard for emissions and delivers 33-mpg city and 29 miles per gallon highway.

Outwardly, there's little that differentiates Mariner Hybrid from its gas-powered brother. Only a discreet air vent built into the driver's side rear-quarter window to help cool the batteries and a few "Hybrid" badges let you know Mariner's electric-gas heritage. Other than these clues, Hybrid and gas powered Mariners are identical.

Under the hood, Mercury's Hybrid is powered by a Duratec 2.3 liter, 16-valve DO-HC Atkinson cycle inline 4cylinder engine that pumps out 133- horsepower and 129 pound-feet of torque. When combined, the electric motor output pushes the horsepower to 155, resulting in good performance characteristics. An electronic CVT transmission, now popular in many cars, is also standard fare.

The electric motor and battery pack are made up of two permanent magnet AC synchronous motors that offer both motor and generator (for charging) functions. The 400volt battery pack is comprised of 250 D-sized nickel-metal hydride batteries all ingeniously tucked beneath the rear cargo compartment. This setup results in nearly no loss of cargo room.

Motorists need not feel they are purchasing a "turtle" when they sign to buy a Mariner Hybrid. Because the Hybrid runs like there's a V6 between the frame rails, it is this specific quality that makes Mariner Hybrid so interesting. When you need power to accelerate or pass, the mighty electric motor works in tandem with the 4cylinder engine to give the surprising performance boost. (We accelerated to 60 mph in just 7.4 seconds.) Thus, with an average of 450 miles available between fill-ups, the combined one-two punch of gas/electric performance and its excellent economy numbers, Mariner's attributes are indeed hard to beat.

So popular is Mariner Hybrid that it received the "2006 Green Car Of The Year" from the Green Car Journal and also qualifies for a $1,950 tax credit which your dealer will gladly explain. The Web site Forbesautos.com also bestowed Mariner with its "Best Compact SUV" award, another notable honor from powerhouse Forbes publishing.

All expected safety items are in place, although the canopy and side air bags came a la a $3,795 Premium Package option that also includes a nice navigation system. The suspension is a full 4-wheel independent setup, resulting in good handling abilities with very little lean in corners Stopping comes via 4-wheel disc ABS while the AWD system works automatically when needed.

Important numbers include a wheelbase of 103.2-inches, gross weight of 3,787-pounds, 27 cubic feet of cargo space expandable to 65 with rear seats folded, 15 gallon fuel tank, and room for five passengers (center rear cramped).

We rate Mariner Hybrid a nine on a scale of one to 10, and recommend this vehicle in the compact to mid-size SUV class. Once you drive it, you may well be sold on its great looks, available power and hybrid economy.

Likes: Exterior design, hybrid advantages, quick as a V6, Mercury quality, interior room. Dislikes: Odometer difficult Dislikes: Odometer difficult to read, no outside temperature gauge, air conditioner shuts down when in all-electric mode, side air bags should be standard.

Backfire caused by fuel filter

Greg, my 1974 GMC truck has started to stall. It starts up right away, but also backfires and scares the daylights out of our dog and us in the cab. I have replaced the distributor cap, condenser, coil and spark plugs, checked the ignition wires and also the pressure from the fuel pump. It is all OK. Do you think it could have anything to do with the timing chain? The truck runs fine otherwise.

--- Ron and Anita, Kelowna, B.C., Canada.

A. My dad had a '76 Impala with a 350 engine, and it did the same thing your GMC is doing. The problem turned out to be a tiny fuel filter in the fuel inlet of the carburetor (not the filter in the gas line leading to the carb) that was completely clogged, resulting in the car shutting off when driving. It would start right back up, and backfire a bit. Check to see if your carb has a little filter in it. I fixed it in 10 minutes.

If this isn't the problem, here's what we do: Because you say it runs fine otherwise, it could be a short somewhere in the wiring. You'll have to check all wires and such, because it sounds like your ignition system is "shutting down" (stalling) and allowing unburned gas to lie where it shouldn't.

Next, check your carburetor for a rich condition. Lastly, check your timing chain, but before you do, check the distributor shaft gear at the bottom of the shaft that meets with the cam gear and see if it is worn, which could cause offsequence firing. Good luck, and let me know what happens.

A $158.2 million renovation of the Detroit Institute of Arts will result in the 121-year-old museum coming of age with a more visitor-friendly remix of its 60,000-piece collection.

Take a second look

Detroit Institute of Arts visitors contemplate everyday life in the form of William Bouguereau's oil painting, "The Nut Gatherers;" "Creek," an abstract by Robert Rauschenberg; and, above, Claes Oldenburg's "Giant Three-Way Plug."

By Brad Lindberg Staff Writer

Hey, what's the big idea? It's a question seemingly more suited for confrontation than of art appreciation - a rhetorical joust aimed at someone cutting in line at the cash register, not a prod for insight into what underlies remaking Michigan's cultural mecca.

"It's all about the art," said Graham Beal, director of the Detroit Institute of Arts. "It's about the people who visit here to engage with art."

Beal, a trained art historian, turned his schooling topsyturvy when overseeing the reshuffling of how the state's main cultural repository bares its collection. Unveiling is due in November 2007 upon conclusion of $158.2 million in renovations.

"For 100 years we've been installing museums as art historians — for art historians — and hoping there was enough to in- seemingly weightless, is "Giant trigue non-art historians," Beal Three-Way Plug," a mahogany 動化のいたい うちょう いたいおく えい verse that paradigm."

Upon reinstallation of the museum's 60,000-work collection following renovations and expansion begun in 2001, art works will no longer be arrayed in galleries organized by traditional historical periods, nationalities or artistic movements.

Instead, works are being remixed according to unifying themes of purpose.

"This is what we call the big idea," Beal said. "We're not talking about universal themes. We're talking about things that tie things together." Hints are on display. In a said. "We've been trying to re- veneer manifestation of 20th century American Claes Oldenburg's childhood nightmares. "He remembered lying awake as a child, imagining plugs, light switches and faucets growing up so big they filled his bedroom," according to the work's information card.

The DIA's remix is geared to experience rather than intellect, which jibes with Beal's view that art isn't created for the sake of art historians.

"It's created because people have a need and purpose for works of art," Beal said. "It's getting back to that core of why the art exists, who it was made for, how it was made and why it is in the Detroit Institute of Arts."

If Beal's colleagues don't like his thinking, let them eat cake. "That's their problem," he said.

as arraved since the institution's founding in 1885 and moved to its present location in 1927.

"Our research has shown that the general visitor does not remember things strongly as they go from one gallery to the other," Beal said.

To reverse that outcome, teams of visitors were formed and treated as guinea pigs.

"We tried ideas on them," Beal said. "We have people doing questionnaires, ftiming people (and) tracking them." He said it's a trend.

"It's most dominant in Britain and Australia - this rethinking of who really owns the museum and what we, as privileged guardians of these works, are doing to give our general public rewarding experiences.

So, 121 years after its founding, the DIA has laid a new attracting new business to philosophical cornerstone in Michigan, people who employ the way it presents itself.

You gotta have art

This investment comes courtesy of a six-year, $221 million capital drive despite the state's struggling economy. "Even with times as challenging as they are, the museum provides a benefit that you don't measure in dollars," said Eugene Gargaro Jr., DIA board chairman and Grosse Pointe Shores resident.

Multi-million dollar donations came from business leaders and the Big Three automobile companies.

Gargaro cited major support from public and corporate sources as proof of how arts round out the region.

"We cannot lose sight of the quality of life that arts and culture provide in our everyday life, our professional life and in our business life," said Gargaro.

Gargaro views corporate support of the arts from two perspectives. His day job is vice president and secretary of Masco Corp.

"When we're talking about a new work force and executives look for the wonderful amenity in their community that arts and culture provide," he said.

Hidden benefits

In total, renovations will afford the DIA an extra 58,000 square feet. An addition provides 31,000 square feet for special exhibitions, an education center and storage.

"New visitor amenities include a larger, more comfortable dining area (Cafe DIA), expanded museum (gift) shop, more seating in the galleries and a new spine of galleries that will facilitate navigation through the museum," Gargaro said.

Many improvements are behind-the-scenes investments in the future. Upgraded temperature and humidity controls will provide an optimal environment for the collection Asbestos abatement came as a $40 million surprise. The fire retardant and carcinogen had been applied liberally in keeping with the pricelessness of the museum's contents.

"We could have easily encapsulated it and put a Band-Aid on it," Gargaro said.

The option was rejected as shortsighted and potentially litigious.

"We didn't want to run the risk 10 years from now of someone pointing out to us that was a very nonjudicious decision," Gargaro said.

longer than if the museum had been shuttered during construction.

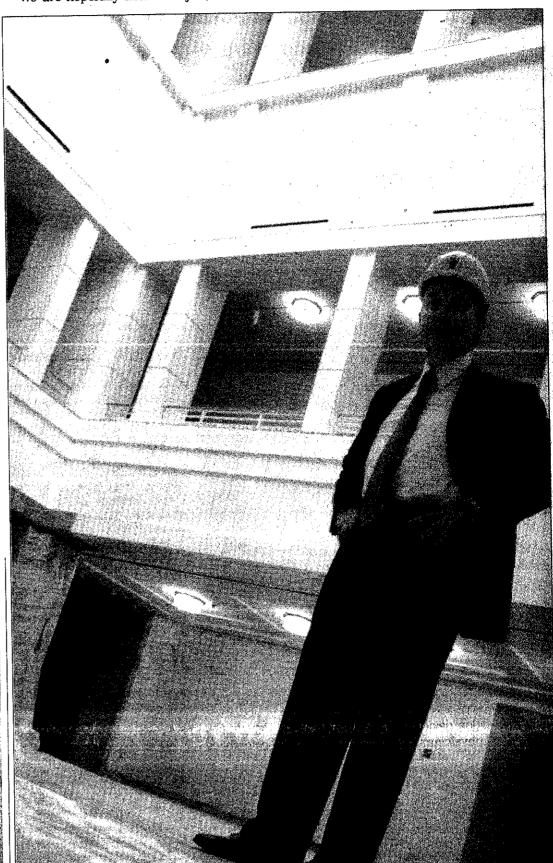

"That was a wonderful decision in hindsight because we kept, for the most part, our patronage and followers," Gargaro said.

Attendance during fiscal year 2000, one year before groundbreaking on the pro-"We are hopefully near the ject, totaled 624,627. The fig-

The following two years attendance averaged nearly 377,000. In 2004, 569,961 people attended the DIA; 171,693 of them to see the special exhibition, "Degas and the Dance."

"We've built the momentum," Gargaro said. "We're excited about what's going to happen as we lead up to our grand reopening."

Prevent illness with flu shot

By Debra Pascoe Special Writer

No one wants to be sick and no one wants to work in an office with ill co-workers.

There are two ways to help prevent both — get a flu shot and, if you do get sick even from a cold, stay home and encourage others to do the same, directs Dr. Ralph Cushing of Bon Secours Hospital.

"I cannot stress it enough get the shot," Cushing said.

And while the Centers for Disease Control is reporting no cases of influenza yet this season, Cushing and other medical experts are predicting this will be a bad year

"As of last week, there was no flu in the United States and certainly none around here as far as symptoms of fever, headache, tiredness, sore throat and muscle aches," he said. "Sometimes these are symptoms of other viruses. I'm getting over a cold right now but it's not the flu."

What's the difference between the flu and the common cold? According to the Visiting Nurses Association of Southeast Michigan Flu-Busters, some of the symptoms are similar, but the degree of those symptoms can be the determining factor.

The biggest difference, the association said, is the appearance of fever. While it is rare in adults and older children, infants and young children may experience a fever up to 102 degrees with a cold. A fever up to 102 degrees is common with the flu and can last three to four days. A mild case of joint and muscle aches can be experienced with a cold, "but are "usually and often severe" with the flu. "Extreme exhaustion" is also a major indicator of the flu while typical cold-like symptoms such as runny nose, sneezing and sore throat can sometimes occur with the flu. Headaches, the VNA points out, are rare with a cold and can be "severe" with the flu. Those common symptoms are what perplexes people who are feeling ill, Cushing said. "But that's beside the point."

he said. "This is the time to get the flu shot before you get the flu. It's too late to get the shot if you are exposed to it."

Cushing said getting the shot won't mean vou won't contract a strain of the flu. The shots, he said, target the strains the CDC believes will hit the hardest and are the most prevalent.

"They do a pretty good job of guessing, but the possibility of getting another strain is not a good argument for not getting the shot," he said.

Those who do get the flu shot or not — should stay home, even if the symptoms are mild.

"If you're extremely sick and you will know if you are --you need to notify the doctor's office and get in as soon as possible. Influenza is one of those diseases you might be able to treat."

And more importantly, Cushing said colds can lead to bacterial infections and diseases such as pneumonia.

"The chance of diagnosing yourself probably aren't good,' he said, adding products such as Tamiflu and Relanza can help relieve the symptoms but are not recommended as an alternative to getting the flu shot and visiting the doctor's office.

Alexandra Hichel, media/public relations for Visiting Nurses Association of Southeast Michigan, said the organization has already administered 15,000 flu shots and hope to administer a total of 40,000 before season is over.

The season, she explained, runs through March with the reports of flu first being made in November and December.

"In January and February, we have the bulk of the cases,' she said. "It takes time to build up immunity before being fully protected and getting the shot earlier in flu season is better. It's more preventative than trying to play catch-up."

Now is the best time to get the shot, but it's not the only time, she said. The shots can be administered as late as March.

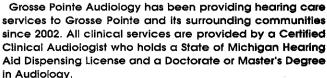

"If you've gone through the brunt of flu season without a shot and still want to get one it's still OK to get one February or March."

Typically, the VNA of Southeast Michigan administers between 35,000 and 40.000 shots annually "as long as the vaccine is available," Hichel said.

"Getting the vaccines have not been an issue for us," she said. "We have received the shipments we need to begin our clinics and anticipate we will continue to get our orders."

FAMILY DAZE By Debbie Farmer

Worst case scenarios

You might as well know this about me right now: I am a closet pessimist. Unbelievable as it sounds, beneath my nonchalant, laissez-faire exterior, I always expect the worst to happen. I am exactly the type of person who will take an umbrella to the beach on a hot summer day and who keeps a fire extinguisher in the bathroom next to the shower.

Oh, don't get me wrong, I'm not paranoid, afraid to leave the house or anything like that. I'm just pleasantly surprised when things go well.

So you can imagine how excited I was to get my hands on a copy of the new best-selling book, "The Worst-Case Scenario Handbook," a manual that offers advice on overcoming almost every type of dire situation possible. OK. it's not new. It's 6 years old, and it's now the first in a series of Worst-Case Scenario handbooks. But if you find your copy wedged in between the back of the refrigerator and the wall, and you haven't finished reading it yet, it's new. Anyway, I was thumbing through it the other day, after removing dust balls and a piece of what I think used to be licorice, and I realized how useful this book is, and how I've been playing with fire for the last six years, by not reading up on the type of crises that could befall me. For instance, if one day, you should find yourself wandering through the grocery store parking lot trying to find your car, and suddenly get stuck in quicksand (and you know this could happen), you can save yourself by calmly floating on your back until a courtesy clerk spots you and pulls you out. Although this idea may seem ludicrous to you, let me tell you, it's much better than my previous plan of simply waving my arms and yelling, "Heeeeelp!"

And that's not all. I no longer need to worry about flying anymore since there are step-bystep instructions on how to land a small plane in case the pilot has been knocked unconscious. According to Chapter 12, if I ever get my arm caught in an alligator's mouth, all I need to do to extract it is to whack him on the nose with a newspaper really, really hard.

Where else can you get valuable information like this?

I must admit that, as a pessimist, one of the best things about the book is that it gives me even more things to worry about.

Before reading the chapter on escape, I never knew that I might have a need to jump from a moving car onto a train, or that I have the chance of being killed by a constricting python. I can hardly believe I was so naive back then.

I remember when I first bought this book, thinking to myself that the authors missed some crucial elements.

For example, while there is a whole section on how to defend yourself against killer sharks, mountain lions and charging bulls, but nowhere does it mention what to do if you are on your way to a family dinner at your in-laws' house and the one binky you brought flies out of your infant's mouth and gets wedged underneath the front seat of the car.

Or what to do if you are at the store and your kindergartner, a budding junior biologist, asks the woman standing in line in back of you if she has a uterus, what size it is, and if she could take a look at it. So I think that's how the book wound up hidden away for a couple months --- yeah. months. I clean behind my refrigerator more than every six years. Really. Honest. Definitely.

OK, maybe not. Of course, as soon as I tossed the book aside, I vowed I'd come up with my own parenting worst-case scenario book, and of course, those jokers eventually beat me to it.

I suppose one of these days, I should go get it, but then I figure, I don't need to read it. I'm living it.

So I think I'll just finish their first Worst-Case Scenario book. Oh, I know that my life being what it is, I'll probably never need to know how to wrestle an angry bear, or leap out of a moving car onto a train.

After all, the most dangerous situation I've been in lately was trying to clean behind my refrigerator.

But, that's OK. A person can dream, can't she?

DSO ropes in the Lone Ranger theme

The Detroit Symphony from $61 to $117 are available can purchase tickets 50 per-Orchestra saddles up for a sedirector emeritus Neeme Jarvi in the first of two concert series he will lead this season.

Titled "William Tell," the program includes Gioacchino Rossini's popular and evocative Overture to "William Tell;" Edouard Lalo's violin "Symphonie concerto, Espagnole," featuring Israeli violinist Vadim Gluzman; and Shostakovich's Dmitri Symphony No. 15.

The concerts take place at Orchestra Hall at the Max M. Fisher Music Center at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 10; 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 11; and at 3 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 12.

The programmatic overture is seen by many as a precursor to the tone poem. It opens with the depiction of the Swiss landscape at dawn and builds to depict a powerful Alpine storm, then subsides into pastoral calm. This tranquility is interrupted by a trumpet fanfare announcing the wellknown finale representing Tell's ride with the Swiss Army, which vividly evokes the image of Tell's (Lone Ranger's) galloping horse.

Symphonie Espagaole resembles the dance suite.

Shostakovich's work quotes many well-known compositions including "William Tell." The finale uses music based on the "Annunciation of Death" leitmotif from Wagner's "The Ring of the Nibelungs," as well as Haydn's final symphony.

North wins in playoffs

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

Frank Sumbera couldn't remember playing football in worse weather than his Grosse Pointe North squad encountered in last week's state playoff game against Rochester Stoney Creek.

However, when it was over and the Norsemen had a 14-6 victory over the host Cougars, no one seemed to mind how cold and wet they were.

'You dry out and warm up a lot faster when you win," Sumbera said.

"It was the worst we've ever played in. It was cold, rainy and it never let up. Fortunately, we were playing on a turf field."

Sumbera figured that North might have caught a break, although it didn't appear that way at the time. The rain made the trip from Grosse Pointe to Rochester excruciatingly slow. The Norsemen's bus didn't arrive at the field until 6:10 p.m. for the 7 p.m. game.

Usually we like to get to the field at 4:30," Sumbera said. "That gives us an hour to get South's year in soccer.

So far, everything has fallen into place for the Blue Devils.

They won the Macomb Area Conference White Division championship on the last day of the season when they needed a victory against Dakota and a tie between Utica and Romeo. And that's exactly what happened.

South then won its Division I district tournament, and recorded one of the biggest upsets of the state's regional round with a 1-0 overtime victory against Warren De La Salle.

That regional semifinal victory sent the Blue Devils into the championship game against Utica Ford II, and they continued their string of success with a 2-1 victory in double overtime.

Once again, it was a win in a game where the odds seemed stacked against South.

Weather conditions at Troy Athens were horrible. The driving rain and temperatures in the Blue Devils but they were the low 40s hurt the Blue Devils' ball-control style. On the other hand. Ford's orga-

I cross country regional at Metropolitan Beach Metropark last week and the Macomb Area Conference Red Division meet on the same course a MAC Red meet broke a school week earlier, but there was one record as the Blue Devils finhuge difference.

It was the weather.

The MAC Red meet was run under near-perfect conditions, while the weather couldn't have been much worse for the regional.

However, Grosse Pointe South prevailed both times, finishing ahead of runner-up Grosse Pointe North.

And in both races, the Norsemen's Robbie Fisher was the first runner to hit the chute, winning his third straight regional championship.

In the regional, South finished with 29 points to 43 for North. Detroit Mumford was 17:16." third with 72, and East Detroit had 136.

Four Blue Devils made the all-region first team, led by Edwin Gay, who was third, one place ahead of teammate Brendan Buckley. Nathan Monahan was sixth and Danforth Holley finished seventh.

Coach Tom Wise said that Joel Gilpin, who was ninth, and Kevin Lynch, who finished 11th, also ran strong races, along with Jack Davies, who made the state finals team.

Mike Bellovich, who won the junior varsity race, also earned a spot on the state team. Fred Schaible was second in the JV race.

South qualified for the state meet, which will be held Saturday at Michigan International Speedway, for the 16th straight season.

Fisher's winning time was 15:47.

"That was exceptional for the day," said North coach Pat Wilson. "He was by himself for Veryser, Paul Joseph, Lechner, South's top five runners broke the team total-time record.

"Edwin Gay (16:07) was the much-needed front runner," Wise said, "and Branden (16:45), Buckley Nate Monahan (16:46), Dan Holley (16:50) and Joel Gilpin (16:54) ran as a solid group to secure the victory.

"Jack Davies ran a great race, considering he was spiked from behind and lost a shoe, but still chipped-in with a Wise also praised Bellovich for filling in nicely with a 17:39.

"Freshman Brad Menchl (18:24) and Wayne Brackett (18:55) demonstrated their desire to run varsity next season, and Mike Pogue had a 30-second drop in his time," Wise said.

North's Fisher won the race with the second-fastest time of his career, and Davenport was seventh overall, tying his best time at last year's state meet.

"We had some real good times," Wilson said. "It was a perfect day to run. We had 21 runners under 19 minutes."

Andy Van Egmond, Paul Smith, Alex Kopacka and Jeff Graves each had PRs. Graves posted the third best freshman time since 1980.

Matt Van Egmond also had a PR in winning the JV race.

Other North PRs came from Mark Miotto, Mark Balle, Brandon Davenport, Adam Gaglio, Matt Romanelli, Andrew Kopacka, Matt Adam McHale. David Kevin Cooper, Dan Mackool. Grosse Pointe South's boys cross country team braved the elements to win the Division I regional championship last week at Metropolitan Beach Metropark.

North's Graney is first overall

An appearance by Grosse Pointe South's girls cross country team in the state finals is as sure a thing as the sun rising in the east.

Despite freezing rain and wind, the Blue Devils won the state Division I regional championship at Metropolitan Beach Metropark last Saturday to qualify for the finals for the 27th year in a row -- a state record that South extended.

It was also the 15th regional championship in the last 17 vears for the Blue Devils.

The state meet will be held Saturday, Nov. 4 at Michigan International Speedway.

The other qualifiers from the regional were Detroit Mumford and Grosse Pointe North.

South edged Mumford by three points.

"Mumford is the go-to school in Detroit for runners and we knew they, along with North, would have excellent teams," said South coach Steve Zaranek.

Mumford put three runners ahead of South's first runner.

"With three ahead of you, it's extremely difficult to win," Zaranek said. "The only way to succeed is with depth."

The Blue Devils then showed that depth by putting all seven varsity runners ahead of Mumford's fourth runner.

"Our success this season is a result of pack running," Zaranek said. "We are not one of the top-ranked teams this vear because we do not have the multiple front runners. What we have been doing is running as a team and not allowing gaps to open up."

There was only a 50-second margin between South's first and seventh runners.

showing from Fisher at the Smith, Larry VanOverbeke, state meet.

"It should be interesting," Wilson said. "Robbie knows how to race at the state — get out well and take the early pace."

North's Alex Davenport, who was fifth in the regional, will also be making his fourthstraight finals appearance.

"Alex and Robbie are both very experienced," Wilson said. "I think they'll both do well.'

Andy Van Egmond was 10th, Alex Kopacka 13th, Paul Smith 14th and Matt Van Egmond 15th for North.

"The kids did a good job." Wilson said.

"They didn't worry about the weather. They just got out and raced. They decided to hunker down and do the best Earlier, South's freshmen and sophomores outlasted Warren De La Salle's 46-59 to win the Blue Devils' seventh team trophy of the season.

Grosse Pointer Ben Miller of De La Salle won the race but South sophomores Gay, Holley and Davies were second. fourth and sixth, respectively.

Bellovich (15th) and Dan Dickson (19th) put the finishing touches on the victory.

Wise said that Lars Hamre and Brad Kaminski also had fine races.

Split decision for North swimmers

Grosse Pointe North's swimming team ended its dual meet third-ranked Farmington Hills season with a split decision in a double-dual meet with Ann Arbor Pioneer and Temperance Bedford.

North lost to top-ranked and reigning national champion Pioneer 122-61, but the Norsemen beat Bedford 113-71.

Jenny Rusch had North's only victory against Pioneer with a win in the 100-yard freestyle.

Against Bedford, Rusch won the 50 and 100 freestyle events and Juliana Schmidt took firsts in the 200 and 500 freestyle races.

Jackie Shea won the 200 individual medley and Molly DeWald was first in the 100 breaststroke.

Season-best times came from Lauren Nixon, 100 freestyle; Courtney Kohler, 100 breaststroke; and Lauren Hanna, 100 butterfly.

Earlier, North lost 126-60 to Mercy.

The Norsemen's victories came from Rusch in the 50 and 100 freestyle and Schmidt in the 500 freestyle.

North had several seasonbest times. They came from Caitlin Matthews, DeWald, Erin Thornton and Heather Poole, 50 freestyle; Nixon, Taylor Randazzo, Julia Thibault, Erica Mammen and Natalie Hogan, 100 freestyle; Maresa Leto and Meghan Tripp, 200 freestyle; Leto, 500 freestyle; Tripp and Sheila Geraghty, 100 backstroke; DeWald, Kohler, Jesse Stevens and Katie Bill; 100 breaststroke; Matthews, 100 butterfly; and Kimberly Cooper, diving.

North finished the dual meet season 9-5 overall and 3-1 in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division.

"Katie gave our team a superb performance," Zaranek said. 'Katie came back after a two-week injury layoff and ran an awesome race.

South's senior trio of Sam Mackenzie, Emily McLaughlin and Lauren Leverett finished ninth. 10th and 11th. Also making the all-region team was Ashley Thibodeau, who was 13th.

The addition of Mumford to the regional kept it from being a dual meet between the two Grosse Pointe schools, like it has been for many years.

Like Zaranek, North coach Scott Cooper also welcomed the competition.

"We were glad to have them because they added a great deal more competition to our regional," Cooper said.

North's Betsy Graney won the regional championship for the fourth straight year.

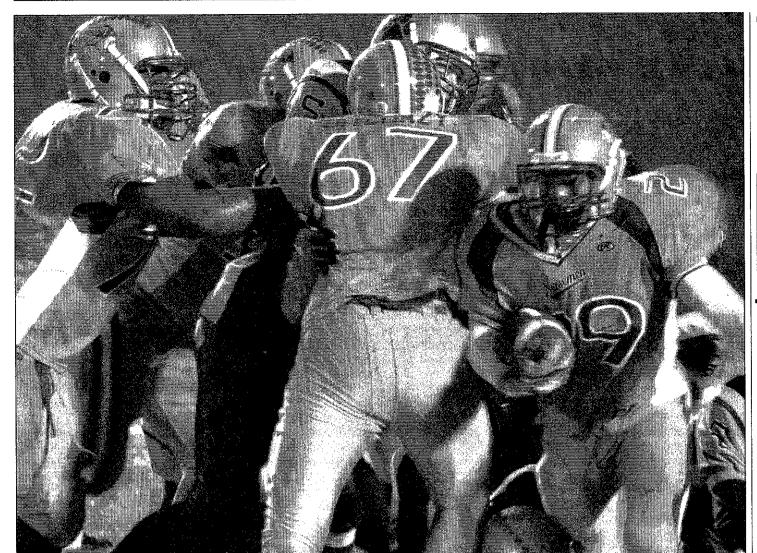

"That is a tremendous accomplishment and I could not be more proud for her," Cooper said. "She has worked harder than any runner I have ever coached and she deserves every award she gets. We're hoping she comes away with her third all-state honor next weekend."

Graney also received praise from Zaranek.

"Our hats are off to Betsy Graney," he said. "What an incredible performance to not only again win the regional title but to do so under the extreme conditions of the day." Joining Graney on the all-re-

Offensively, North moved the ball and might have put more points on the board if the wet, slippery ball hadn't led to some key fumbles.

The defense came up with one of the biggest plays of the game as time was winding down in the fourth quarter. Stoney Creek had recovered a North fumble at its own 44yard line with 4:43 left in the game.

After the Norsemen's first two possessions of the game ended on fumbles, North took over on the Stoney Creek 45 early in the second quarter following a Cougars punt.

A 39-yard pass from Michael Stevenson to Cory McCain was the key play in the six-play drive that ended with a two-yard run by Jerry Peoples. Sam Palazzolo kicked the extra point to give North a 7-0 lead.

ON SAIL By Sandra Svoboda Time to catch up for sailors ou're done sailing. right? I've been asked this a lot in the past couple weeks. The answer is, "no."

With an Ultimate 20 regatta last weekend and "frostbiting" scheduled in dinghies the next two weekends, you're still seeing sailboats on Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River. Heck, I've sailed Thanksgiving weekend here.

But there's no question the season is winding down for the end-of-the-year break before the Florida and Caribbean events begin after the holidays.

While we all miss seeing friends, battling the competition and soaking up the longer daylight, we also have many neglected projects, people and pets that will get more attention now.

On Sail asked some of the people who appeared here this summer about what the heck they'll do with all their free time now that the boats are on cradles and the sailing season is essentially over.

Laurie Bunn, of Grosse Pointe Woods, plans to make up time with "friends and relatives I have not seen in months because I have been too busy sailing."

She and her husband, Rob, have a Melges 24 that had an active schedule throughout 2006.

Bunn also is an active volunteer with Grosse Pointe Animal Adoption Society. She doesn't foster dogs during the summer months, but now will start again. New pet, anyone?

International Umpire Debi Schoenherr, of Grosse Pointe Park, will run some match racing seminars to help area sailors keep their skills and rules knowledge sharp over the winter. She'll also attend the U.S. Sailing Annual General Meeting in two weeks.

Robert Declercq, of Grosse Pointe Park, and a host of other area junior sailors will compete at the Orange Bowl regatta in Miami between Christmas and New Year's and the Laser Midwinters in February. We'll check in on them. His father, Bob, has a trip through the Panama Canal planned in March.

"The sailing season never ends for us," he said.

Kathie O'Sullivan, of Grosse Pointe Park, said she has "tons of fun" planned for the next few months: heavyduty house cleaning of "all the things that never get touched during sailing season." She recently ended a "temporary retirement" which she spent sailing and is back at work. That should keep her out of trouble.

John Harper's REAL sailing season is starting. The Grosse Pointe Woods resident is the commodore of the International DN iceboating fleet and will host the world championship in February hopefully here in Michigan,

South plays better in loss to LCN

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

Without question, this has been a difficult season for Grosse Pointe South's basketball team.

There's a reason for that. It's the quality of the Blue Devils' opponents.

"Of the 12 games we've lost, the average record of our opponents is 12-4," said South coach Vito Tocco. "And nine of our 20 games this year will have been against teams that were ranked in the top 10 in the state."

The Blue Devils dropped a pair of Macomb Area Conference White Division games last week. Romeo won 46-28 and L'Anse Creuse North defeated South 44-32.

Once again it was the Blue Devils' failure to produce offensively that was the decisive factor in each of the losses.

Despite the defeat, Tocco was encouraged by his team's play against LCN. 潇

"That was as well as we've played in two or three weeks," he said. "Having said that, we still lost by 12 points.

"We didn't have a lot of turnovers. We had good ball movement. We had some good looks at the basket. Our defense was good. We just didn't score enough to win, and that's been our problem all year."

South's shooting from one quarter to the next was especially frustrating.

Eleni Papalekas led South with 10 points and Kara Trowell had seven.

Sophomore Kate Graham also played well for the Blue Devils.

"She played well at both ends of the floor and she hit a couple of early baskets that set the tone for us," Tocco said.

Jacquis Bullock led LCN with 18 points.

South got off to a slow start South also shot well from the in the Romeo game, making only one of nine shots from the field in the first quarter to fall behind 11-4.

LCN was able to maintain its had a 15-5 advantage in the quarter.

Megan DeBoer led South with seven points.

Tocco also praised the play of Kelly Barry.

"We've gotten a consistently good effort from Kelly all season," Tocco said. "She does a good job handling the ball against pressure and she plays good defense.

"I also admire the efforts of Kate Muelle. She has two bad knees but she refuses to give in. She keeps battling, and I can see she's in pain. I'm impressed with her intestinal fortitude."

Tocco said that he has been pleased with the overall attitude of the team.

"So many times you'll see a team that has lost 10 in a row start-to-fold, but not these girls," he said.

"There isn't a quitter in the bunch. They continue to prove to me and to themselves that they're a good team despite their record."

Barons North JVs win

A stingy and opportunistic defense led the Grosse Pointe Red Barons North junior varsity to a 14-6 victory against the Northeast Detroit Shamrocks. The Barons broke a 6-6 tie with two minutes remaining when a Shamrocks ball carrier was tackled for a safety.

With less than a minute to play, Mike Abiragi caught a fourth-down pass from Jack Stander for a 55-yard touchdown to secure the victory.

Abiragi finished with five receptions for 90 yards, with several coming on fourth down. He also had an interception.

The Red Barons took the opening kickoff and drove the length of the field with Mike Andary scoring from the threeyard line. Andary also made a couple of diving catches at tight end and he recovered a Northeast Detroit fumble.

Andary's touchdown was the only score of the first half, but the Shamrocks returned the second-half kickoff for a touchdown to tie the game.

Grosse Pointe didn't allow a first down in the second half, and only one in the game.

Linebackers Connor Holm, Justin Kennedy, Trevon Godfrey and Clark Ditzhazy made some jarring tackles. The defensive line, led by Joe Andreoli, Michael Tocco, Max Goolsby, Andrew Remus and Steven Mitchell had several tackles for losses.

Ford seized the momentum in the final five minutes of the first overtime and the Falcons sent the Blue Devils back to defend and clear several attempts on goal.

Between periods, South coach Gene Harkins settled his team down. He pleaded with the players to return to the possession game that got them to that point, and to eliminate the turnovers.

Ford had one good rush in the second overtime. Then the tired and wet Blue Devils pushed the ball to the offensive end and began controlling it. A fine crossing pass set off a scrum that resulted in two blocked shots.

Finally, Jensen, for the second time in the game, kicked at a rebound that beat the Falcons' goalie with 13:42 left in the overtime and brought the South bench screaming onto the field in celebration.

The second half ended with the match still scoreless, but the Blue Devils suffered a critical loss when senior inside defender Matt Dziuba left with an ankle injury.

There were only two shots Carmody stopped De La Salle's only attempt.

On the following rush, with the Pilots flooding the box, MacGriff stole the ball and began a counter-attack with a clearing pass to a wide-open Rubens.

Rubens split two defenders and headed for the goal with all four De La Salle defenders in pursuit.

Rubens waited just long enough, then found a rushing Brooks at the 18-yard line. Brooks had come up quickly unmarked on the right. Not wasting the opportunity, he took the perfect lead to beat the charging goalkeeper on the upper-right corner to give South the 1-0 victory.

Knights lose to defending champ

By Chuck Klonke Sports Editor

University Liggett School's soccer team's scoring woes continued right to the end of the season.

The Knights played well against defending state Division IV champion Allen Park Inter-City Baptist in a regional semifinal game last week, but still dropped a 3-0 decision.

"It was a microcosm of our season," said ULS coach David Backhurst. "We gave them a good game. It was an even game but once again, our inability to score, was our downfall."

The Knights scored 40 goals in 21 games this season but 16 of them came in two victories against Macomb Christian and seven were scored against Lutheran Northwest.

That meant that ULS managed to score only 17 goals in its other 18 matches, and the Knights were shut out nine times.

"That has to be a school record," Backhurst said of the shutouts.

He's hoping that the goal production will pick up next season. We're graduating seven seniors and five of them played a in the first half," Backhurst lot," Backhurst said. "We'll miss said. (goalkeeper) Greg Jones, Mike Corbett, Rvan Deane and Jonathan Nicholl on defense, but we didn't get a lot of goals from them. We had five freshmen who played a pretty good amount this year and they have some potential as goal scorers. They just need more experience. We're hoping that next year, they'll make an impact offensively.'

Inter-City Baptist opened the scoring 17 minutes into the game on a breakaway goal by David Doran.

"We thought it might have been offside, but the officials didn't see it that way," Backhurst said.

Doran got behind the defense and beat Jones one-onone.

"That was a setback for us, because we had played them even, and it was such a close call." Backhurst said.

Inter-City held a 12-8 advantage on shots in the first half, but half of the Knights' shots excellent scoring were chances.

"Their goalie, Brady Reis, was the All-State goalie in Division IV last year, and he came up big because we had four real good scoring chances

Inter-City made it 2-0 3 1/2 minutes into the second half on another breakaway. Two ULS defenders went for a loose ball and collided. Doran picked up the loose ball and sent a crossing pass to the right side.

"Deane sprinted back to cover the right wing and he was going so hard to recover that the ball hit him and went into our net," Backhurst said. "If that hadn't happened they would have scored easily, anyway."

Despite the two-goal deficit, Backhurst felt that the Knights were playing well enough to get back into the game. However, they had to score.

"We had more chances." Backhurst said. "We didn't fold. Patrick Gustine had a rocket off the left wing, but their goalie made a great diving save."

Inter-City finally sealed the win on another breakaway goal by Doran, who made a slick move to beat Jones.

Inter-City went on to win the regional with a 2-1 overtime victory against Ann Arbor Greenhills.

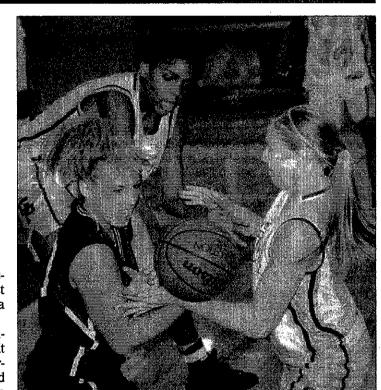

ULS finished with an 8-10-3 overall mark.

Jones and Deane were both named to the all-region team.

team advanced to the "Sweet 16" round of the state tournament with a 2-0 victory against Roval Oak in the Division I district championship game at Berkley.

The Blue Devils got some unexpected contributions from players who stepped up their play for the state tournament.

In the district title game, South played the Royal Oak tory. squad that upset heavily-favored University of Detroit Jesuit 2-1.

Royal Oak was especially dangerous on set-piece kicks where the strong-legged midfield turned every foul into a scoring opportunity.

South's strategy was to limit fouls and control the ball, which the Blue Devils did from the outset.

As play developed, it was clear that South had an advantage. That was affirmed by a quick score by Austen Brooks on an offensive rush. Fine passing by Brad Jensen and Spencer MacGriff set up Brooks behind the goalie for the score.

Five minutes later, Brooks again took advantage of an opportunity. He saw an open crease from 30 yards out and hit the upper corner to secure the win.

Brooks, like Patrick Rubens in the 2-1 semifinal win against tributions all season but those were his first two goals.

Goalkeeper Greg Carmody made eight saves, including one spectacular tip of a high set-piece that appeared destined to go into the net.

South began tournament play against an outmanned Redford Union squad and the Blue Devils rolled to an 8-2 vic-

South dominated the first half, but only led 3-0 at the break. The Blue Devils added three more goals in the first five minutes of the second half, allowing coach Gene Harkins to empty his bench and give valuable playoff minutes to the reserves and junior varsity players brought up for the tournament.

Evan Hall scored two goals. South had one apiece from MacGriff, Matt Faiver, Jake Mandel, Matt Naber, Matt Dziuba and Brian Auty.

Assists came from MacGriff, Faiver, Peter Beierwaltes, Mike Cunningham and Auty. It was the first varsity game for Auty.

Carmody made two saves, while backup Cale Mannesto had three. Redford keeper Jerry Hoppe made 19 saves.

That set up a semifinal rematch with Berkley, the team that eliminated South from the tournament in 2005.

Five minutes into the match,

> The goal seemed to invigorate the Blue Devils' offense as it assumed control for the rest of the game, limiting the Bears' opportunities.

However, with five minutes remaining, a foul just outside the 18-yard line gave Berkley a set-piece opportunity. Carmody deflected the shot but Joey Bloxsom drove home the rebound to tie the game at 1-1.

On the ensuing kickoff, the ball was moved to Rubens, the outside midfielder. He advanced it through five defensive challenges into the box and beat the goalie only 30 seconds after the Berkley goal.

It was the first goal of the season for Rubens, who has been a starter all year.

Every player on the team made valuable contributions to the district championship.

When Rubens, a junior, was asked about the keys to the team's success, he replied, "great senior leadership and wonderful team chemistry."

That was appreciated by Harkins who said that he has been able to keep his team focused "because we're not good enough to be looking ahead to anyone."

team like that," Bennett said. "I think the kids all felt good about playing King. They played with a lot of energy."

Although there was no official score kept. Bennett was able to get a good gauge on the way his team played.

"We didn't handle their zone trap in the first quarter and they smoked us pretty good," he said. "We didn't handle the ball real well and they got some breakaways.

"After that. I thought we did better. They didn't get as many easy baskets. But I think, overall, they're a better team than we were."

Of course, that doesn't mean that if the Norsemen meet the Crusaders somewhere down the state tournament line, they won't be able to beat them. North has a good tournament history against King.

The game that counted last week showed why Bennett wanted to get some stiff competition for his players.

North overpowered L'Anse Creuse 66-22 in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division.

Ariel Braker led a trio of double-figure scorers with 14 points. She also had six rebounds.

Jasmine Kennedy had 12 points and nine rebounds, while Olivia Stander collected 12 points and four assists. Christine Klein finished with eight points and six rebounds. Kayla Womack had nine points, four rebounds and three assists.
