The fireworks were set-off at Harbor Hill Peninsula after dusk and lasted about 30 minutes. Grosse Pointe Woods' annual fireworks display was held Sunday, June 24.

Drug raid nets pounds of marijuana

By John Lundberg
 Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Farms police seized several pounds of marijuana from a home in the 400 block of Bournemouth following a raid Thursday afternoon, June 28.

Police discovered the drugs after responding to a medical run to the house that morning. The suspect was found bleeding profusely from a laceration to his head by family members, said Detective Rich Rosati.

The suspect was disoriented and police were told that he suffered his injuries after falling down his stairs.

He was taken to an area hospital and placed in intensive care.

Police found the drugs after checking the house for blood stains. They confiscated several plants and marijuana bricks along with other drug growing paraphernalia.

Rosati said that since no cash was found in the house, police believe the suspect distributed the marijuana to another house for sale.

"This could have been a drug warehouse," Rosati said. "We found a tremendous amount of marijuana."

"This is a big bust." After observing the drugs in the medical run, police moved quickly to secure the home. Within a couple of hours, armed with a search warrant, police began removing the drugs.

They didn't finish until mid-afternoon.

"This was a major undertaking," Rosati said.

Police interviewed neighbors who said that they didn't observe any suspicious activity at the house.

Charges against the man are in the hands of the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office. Along with possession, police are also seeking drug distribution charges against the man.

Board of education look to broaden student options

By Bob St. John
 Staff Writer

Educators, school officials and board of education members are doing their homework and taking notes concerning the possibility of implementing the International Baccalaureate Middle Years and Diploma Programme.

"We're exploring our options and looking at the numbers before we make a decision," said Grosse Pointe Public School System Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum, Assessment, Instruction and Technology, Susan Allan.

The program would give students another means of taking courses, similar to advanced placement, that will prepare them for college.

"Ultimately our primary interest and common goal is to make sure we maintain and improve upon the academic foundation," Board of Education President Brendan Walsh said during the June 11 meeting. "Approving the formal analysis of an International Baccalaureate program for our district further proves that we will not allow economic adversity to stifle our demand for continuous improvement."

Farms park subject of tree removal

Now you see and now you don't.

That was the impression of drivers on Lakeshore just north of Pier Park in Grosse Pointe Farms as city workers began cutting down the phragmites that dominate the accretion area.

Farms City Manager Shane Reeside said the Farms began the removal after receiving the green light from the state's Department of Environmental Quality. The Farms is still waiting on permit approval from the Army Corps of Engineers to remove some sediment along the outfalls.

The Farms doesn't need permission from the Corps to remove the phragmites.

Reeside said the phragmites will be treated with a herbicide hopefully beginning this month. Once the rooting sys-

◆ PLAYGROUND PLAN GETS A LOOK: Grosse Pointe Farms officials are meeting with a local civic group interested in developing a playground at Richard Elementary School.

Officials will discuss the possibility of the Farms installing drain tiles and sewers for proper drainage as its share of the program.

The cost of the project is expected to be $20,000, including the costs of landscaping and all types of recreational facilities and equipment.

◆ LIGHTENING IGNITES BEDROOM: A bedroom was set on fire in the 100 block of Nottingham in Grosse Pointe Park when a bolt of lightning coursed through a wire and out a bedroom outlet.

The electricity shot out of an outlet and ignited a bed and some clothing that was being packed for a trip. The fire was contained to the bedroom and was extinguished with several gallons of water, fire department officials said. There was some minor smoke damage throughout part of the house.

◆ FARMS CITY ATTORNEY RETIRES: The Grosse Pointe Farms city council appointed Thomas Tilley to assume the post of city attorney to replace the retiring Edward Wright.

Wright, 63, retired after serving five years as city attorney. Before assuming the position in 1952, Wright served on the Farms board of trustees when the city was still a village. He is also a senior partner in a Detroit law firm.

GENCY VIDEO RULES: Seeking to update an antiquated ordinance, the Grosse Pointe Woods city council enacted an emergency measure to restrict the number of video games businesses can operate in the city.

Under the old ordinance, business owners could plug in as many games as they pleased. The new ordinance sets requirements for licensing, operation and insurance for any machine installed.

The council's action mirrors that taken by other Pointe councils that have begun regulating video parlors.

◆ FOUR DEMOCRATS VIE FOR SENATE'S 1ST DISTRICT: Incumbent state Sen. John Kelly will face three challengers to his seat as 1st District state senator as Thaddeus Stopczynski, Thomas Cavanaugh and Robert Lee Wade announced their intentions to run in the August primary.

Kelly was elected to the post in 1978. Under a state reapportionment process, the 1st District has been expanded to include not only the five Grosse Pointes, but also large areas of northeast Detroit.

Poplawski announced his retirement earlier in the year to seek new challenges. He was presented a bust of himself sculpted by artist Frank Varga.

Sidney DuPont will take over as headmaster of the 450-student private school.

Farmer Jack officials asked for a wood fence to spare a number of trees that sit near the property line. If a brick wall was installed, the foundation work would have required the trees to be removed.

schools that offer one of its three available programs:

◆ The Primary Years Programme is transdisciplinary and designed for students ages 3 to 12 which focuses on the total growth of the child in addition to academic development.

◆ The Middle Years Programme for students ages 11 to 16 is designed to prepare students for a changing world by teaching them how to learn and learn to evaluate information critically.

◆ The Diploma Programme, which is a two-year program for students ages 16 to 19 leads to a diploma recognized by universities around the world.

The organization implements six groups of learning (first language, second language, individuals and societies, experimental societies, mathematics and computer science and arts) that are complemented by three core areas of study (extended essay, theory of knowledge and creativity, action and service).

The essay has a 4,000 word limit and is used to acquaint students with the independent research and writing skills college professors expect.

The theory of knowledge encourages appreciation of other cultures, while creativity, action and service encourages students to be involved in artistic pursuits, sports and community service work.

The organization says this format fosters students' awareness and appreciation of life outside the academic arena.

Allan, during her introduction of the program to board members, said schools wishing to offer any of these programs must be authorized by the organization through a two-step process.

The first stage includes a feasibility study and identification of resources.

To complete this stage, which leads to the filing of an application form with the regional office, the school acquaints itself with the program by obtaining organization publications, examining the program's philosophy and curriculum, conducting a feasibility study of possible consequences of implementing the program and arranging for key administrative staff to undertake professional development courses.

The second stage is a trial implementation period. Following acceptance of the application, the school is designated as candidate.

The school teaches the program for at least one year on a trial basis. During this period, a pre-authorization/consultation visit is organized by the organization's regional office to support and assist the school.

If the outcome is positive, the school becomes authorized to offer the program and attains the status of International Baccalaureate World School.

"We have some dollar figures we're working with, but right now we have nothing concrete," Allan said.

Carjacking suspects in court

By John Lundberg
Staff Writer

Both defendants in the brutal carjacking in the City of Grosse Pointe waived their preliminary examination and the case is now in the hands of the 3rd Circuit Court in Detroit.

Lamont Dontae Ward, 16, and Eugene Woodall Jr., 14, of Detroit have been charged as adults for their involvement in a violent carjacking that left two Ontario women injured, and led police on a car chase with speeds reaching up to 90 mph on June 11.

Ward faces seven felony counts, including two counts with intent to murder.

Woodall was charged with carjacking and unlawful driving away of an automobile.

They both could be sentenced to life in prison.

Bond for both defendants last week was reduced. Ward's bond was set at $500,000, but could be freed with 10 percent of the amount, or $50,000.

Woodall's bond was set at $250,000, or $25,000 at 10 percent.

At their June 15 arraignment, Municipal Court Judge Russell Ethridge set cash bonds of $250,000 for Ward and $150,000 for Woodall.

On June 11, Nancy Quinn, 63, one of the victims, was exiting her car when Ward approached and allegedly took her keys and started the car. Quinn was struck by the car as it sped off, with Woodall in the passenger seat.

Quinn was thrown to the pavement and sustained head injuries requiring medical treatment. Mary Eijssenck, 64, the other victim, held on to the passenger side mirror and sustained abrasions on her legs as she was dragged by the car.

Officers from the City, Park and Farms, Detroit and the Wayne County Sheriff's Office pursued and were led on a high-speed chase that reached speeds of 90 mph. Shortly after, responding to a tip, police located the vehicle parked in the backyard of a house on Beniteau in Detroit. The youths were found hiding in a nearby house.

In the event they are released on bail, they will be required to wear an electronic tether to monitor their movements.

Both victims were released from an area hospital and returned home. Their car, a Ford Mustang convertible, was returned to them recently, said Detective Ron Wiczorek.

Beer fest goes flat

By Beth Quinn
Staff writer

Beer lovers will have to wait a little longer to quench their thirst.

Grosse Pointe Park has changed the date for the West Park Market's second annual Brew Taste Fest from Saturday, July 7 to Saturday, August 4. It will now be held along with the market's Corn Fest.

The Beer Fest was delayed because the State of Michigan has not yet given the Park a liquor license, said Jennifer Meldrum, the market's manager.

"We've not had trouble in the past," she said. "It just takes time."

Rather than waiting and risk canceling the event at the last minute, she decided to combine the beer and corn festivals together.

"I think having them together on the same day works well," Meldrum said.

Atwater Block Brewery will offer its specialty suds for sampling including D Light Kolsch Beer, Pilsner, Dunkel dark lager, Voodoo Vator and Vanilla Java Porter.

Michigan grown corn, roasted by Smokey Joe's Bar-B-Que, along with a variety of butter and flavored salts, will be available free of charge. The restaurant will also be grilling bratwurst and chicken for patrons to purchase.

The event will feature live music, home brewing demonstrations and five Michigan farmers selling locally grown produce.

"The West Park Farmers Market staff are looking forward to seeing everyone on that Saturday as well as all the others," Meldrum said.

The festival will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Kercheval in the Park.

Police set boundaries

A group of youths took the term pool party to a new level.

At the beginning of the summer season at Grosse Pointe Park's Windmill Pointe Park pool, several teenagers were disobeying the rules and creating a disturbance, according to Parks and Recreation Director Terry Soloman. She asked the city public safety department to step in.

"A group of 15-, 16-, and 17-year olds would literally come down here every night; take over a section of the pool deck with no intention of going swimming; and demonstrate inappropriate behavior," Soloman said. "It was embarrassing for families to be around them."

"We just wanted to nip this situation in the bud."

Soloman said she chose to ask for police help rather than having the pool lifeguards regulate the teens' behavior.

"Many of the guards are the same age and go to school with the kids involved," Soloman said. "I didn't want them to be placed in a difficult situation."

"The police are trained to deal with them."

The police sent their bicycle patrol and youth officers to manage the situation.

"These are same core kids the police deal with elsewhere during the rest of the year," Soloman said.

The youth officers were able to interact positively with the kids, Park Public Safety Director Dan Hiller said. Their presence quickly brought order to the park.

"We've noticed a world of difference," he said. "The kids are following the rules."

And that's all Soloman wants.

"We don't care who comes down here," she said. "We just want them to follow the rules."

tem has been killed, the Farms will begin planting more attractive flowers in the area.

Last fall, workers cut down the phragmites, which have been an eyesore for residents for years. They returned this spring, but officials held off cutting them down because their rooting system gets stronger with every cutting. It also creates additional expenses.

The plan calls for clearing some of the vegetation in the area to make way for new plants and flowers that promise to vastly improve its appearance.

The Farms has retained Environmental Consulting & Technology Inc. of Ann Arbor, a consulting firm specializing in the resolution of environmental issues through project planning, management, and applied engineering.

Before proceeding, Reeside said the city approached the neighbors across Lakeshore last fall and received their consent for the project.

Although most of the area has been cleared, some vegetation will remain untouched because it is classified as protected by the state.

Reeside singled out the cattail plant as one that will remain undisturbed. Accretion is the accumulation of sediment and other organic material.

Receding lake levels have also hampered the area's appearance, which exposes more of the shoreline.

"Our objective is to clean up and help make the area more eye pleasing," Reeside said.

The cost for the project is $30,000.

John Hoben of the City of Grosse Pointe has done it all when it comes to Babe Ruth baseball. He has coached hundreds of players during his two decades as a manager and now is an administrator.

Hoben dedicates time to baseball

By Bob St. John
Staff Writer

When Babe Ruth baseball is mentioned throughout the Grosse Pointes, the name John Hoben surfaces.

Hoben, a 61-year-old Realtor from the City of Grosse Pointe, has been involved with Babe Ruth baseball since 1972.

He managed dozens of teams through 1992 and now is the state Babe Ruth president and holds an administrative position with the program.

"Emphasis should be on having fun, developing relationships and enjoying being part of the competition," Hoben said. "Baseball is a wonderful way for boys and girls to get together, have fun and learn how to be part of a team.

"Spending each summer being part of a baseball organization has been something I have enjoyed since I began playing Little League as a boy growing up in the Grosse Pointes."

Babe Ruth baseball, founded in 1951, is in its 56th year in the Grosse Pointes.

Kerby Field is the site of the Wall of Fame where past state tournament championship team names are engraved for everyone to see.

Babe Ruth is for Grosse Pointe residents ages 13 to 18. All who wish to play are placed on a team.

It is the largest teenage baseball organization with more than one million players nationwide.

Games are played throughout the Grosse Pointes and Babe Ruth recently united with the Neighborhood Club to add administrative stability.

Hoben helped raise money and design the "Pillars of Community" project around Elworthy Field. He also played an instrumental role in organizing the Grosse Pointe Baseball Foundation, which raises money to maintain the fields and other baseball-related matters.

He also helped raise money for a bathroom and storage building at Elworthy Field.

"It's amazing how many fond memories I have of summertime baseball," Hoben said. "When I was a kid, my buddies and I would gather at the nearest ball diamond and play games until it was time for lunch.

"After lunch it was back to the field for more baseball until dinner. This went on day after day throughout the summer."

Hoben spends many hours alongside Grosse Pointes Dick Swarthout, Dick Dahlstrom, Earl Kester and others getting fields in playing condition and being the administrative team behind Babe Ruth baseball.

Hoben, whose passion for baseball led him to schedule his wedding date around try-outs, watched Grosse Pointe South's varsity boys baseball team, comprised of many former Babe Ruth players, win the Division 1 state championship in 2001.

A telephone call from Major League Baseball Hall of Fame shortstop Cal Ripken Jr. of the Baltimore Orioles several years ago asking him to help organize clinics at Tiger Stadium and Comerica Park made Hoben's career.

"I didn't believe it was Cal Ripken Jr. on the phone," Hoben said. "I wanted to know why someone of his fame and stature would be calling me.

"My name was given to Ripken pertaining to Babe Ruth and Little League baseball. He was in the Detroit area organizing clinics for kids."

Another of Hoben's fondest diamond memories is managing a group of Babe Ruth all-stars (13-year-olds) to a national championship in 1976 in Anderson, Ind.

"Watching those boys win that national championship in Indiana is one memory I will never forget," Hoben said. "It was amazing watching these teenagers form quite a bond that still exists today.

"When I run into one of my players, they still talk about winning that title."

Members of the team that celebrated its 30-year anniversary of the victory last summer were Glen Piche, Erwin Yee, Dave Zerweck, Ricky Campbell (bat boy), John Vens, John Heidt, John Hackett, Andy Montague, Chris Janis, Paul Prophit, Marty Hollerbach, Mike Smith, John Cammett, John DeBoer, Mike Mahon, Rob Maywood and Mike McBrearty.

Chuck Campbell, George Cairo and Joe Maul were coaches on the squad.

The first step toward that championship was the district tournament. Game one was a 20-4 victory over Grosse Pointe Park followed by a come-from-behind 5-3 win over L'Anse Creuse.

They won the district title by scoring three runs after two outs in the final at-bat to beat Grosse Pointe Woods 3-2.

Cammett tossed a two-hit gem in the opening game of the state tournament, which was a 5-1 win over Westland. Next came victories over Birmingham and Lansing.

In the state title contest, McBrearty and Heidt combined on a four-hitter to lead the squad to a 3-2 come-from-behind win over Birmingham.

The final destination was a wild 11-10 win over Kentucky. They blew a 9-2 lead, but once again pulled off a come-from-behind rally.

Game two was an 8-7 win over West Virginia and that was followed by a 3-0 victory over Terre Haute, Ind.

Terre Haute came out of the loser's bracket to beat Grosse Pointe 7-0, setting up a winner-take-all game.

Hoben's squad bolted out to a 7-0 lead and went on to defeat Indiana 7-2 to claim the title as national champions.

The 13-year-old players returned home to a motorcade and police escort to a park ceremony.

"The funny thing is that I had to coax Hackett to play for us that summer," Hoben said. "John wanted to shine in the NHL and lo and behold he was so good at baseball that he was drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals and played minor league ball for a few years before injuries forced him to retire.

"The kids play for us because they love the game and it's a great chance for parents to do something positive with their children," Hoben said.

Hoben took up coaching while serving in the United States' armed forces in Cambodia in 1969 during the Vietnam War.

He married Susan and they have two grown daughters, Stephanie and Lisa.

Hoben also has four grandchildren.

"I have had the luxury of watching my grandson, Freddy, 5, fall in love with baseball," Hoben said. "It's great to watch him and my son-in-law enjoy the game I love."

Hoben's baseball hero is Ripken Jr., who he said spent thousands of his own dollars, as well as raised money, to provide a Little League organization called Cal Ripken baseball.

Cal Ripken baseball, for children ages 5 to 12, teamed up with Babe Ruth baseball, which is for older children.

"Cal built a state-of-the-art youth baseball complex in his hometown of Aberdeen, Md. to further the development of youth baseball," Hoben said.

Declaration of Independence

We can think of no more fitting way to celebrate the Fourth of July holiday than to refresh ourselves with the document so elegantly drafted by Thomas Jefferson. Here it is below, unedited.

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION OF THE THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

When in the Course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. — Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their Public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected, whereby the Legislative Powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavoured to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary Powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil Power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:

PHIL HANDS

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:
For protecting them, by a mock Trial from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:
For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:
For depriving us in many cases, of the benefit of Trial by Jury:

For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences:

For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies

For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:

For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation, and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & Perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have We been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these united Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States, that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. — And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

Close doors to choir director

To the Editor:

Two letters, "In support of choir director" and "Supports South choir director," printed in the June 28 Grosse Pointe News, demonstrate how misdirected Ellen Bowen's followers are.

They excuse her behavior by citing the litany of awards she has won while employed by the Grosse Pointe Public School System and informing us what a wonderful role model she really is — Grosse Pointe South Choir Boosters to the rescue with damage control.

We have seen and heard this act before and it is really getting quite old. How is it that other teachers and athletic coaches can achieve award-winning performances without the behavior of an "Ellen Bowen"?

If her supporters wish us to judge Ellen Bowen in the court of public opinion, the community needs to know the whole story as reported.

Local law enforcement demonstrated that not even Ellen Bowen is above the law. She has been tried and convicted in the only court that matters, a court of law.

Rather than reminding the community of Bowen's latest tirade and then dismissing her behavior, these supporters would be better served in getting her all the help and care she needs.

History is a reliable predictor of the future: It is no surprise that Bowen's crass behavior, abusive language, disrespect for others and temper tantrums have migrated from the classroom to the community at large. Her weapon of choice is no longer whatever object is within her reach on her desk, but her SUV.

Our school system was fortunate that this time Bowen's latest temper tantrum did not occur on school property; next time we may not be so lucky.

The only way to protect all students and the administrators that walk through the doors of our education system with certainty is to keep those same doors closed to Ellen Bowen.

G.P. Artists Association

To the Editor:

Beth Quinn's piece, "Artists' home painted with colorful tales," June 28 Grosse Pointe News, about the Grosse Pointe Artists Association's soon to be razed "home" at Jefferson and Maryland needs additional information recognizing the many members and non members who helped us through the years.

Recommendations to relocate our organization's meeting place, from the Grosse Pointe War Memorial to a more cost effective location, started around 1996.

Our requirements were; meeting and show space, parking, lockable property storage, and 24-7 availability. The War Memorial's ambience, food service and ample parking were difficult to give up.

The association gave financial support in addition to usage costs to the War Memorial but increases put us into a financial dilemma. A statistical analysis projected our financial ruin by the year 2003.

In 1998 I was appointed by our board of directors as search committee chair and I became president in 2000. A meeting convened in 2000 which resulted in recommended changes approved by our membership that allowed membership for 16 year olds at reduced dues and broadening of our membership base.

Board actions were taken in July of 2001 to raise money for a home. Two committees were formed consisting of four board members each to find additional avenues for funding a home.

The two committees met and developed strategies which brought us to Grosse Pointe Park Mayor Palmer Heenan's offer to the association of the temporary use of the building at 1005 Maryland.

Due to cost-cutting since 1999 and the aforementioned plan of action, our organization had the necessary funds to bring our new home to the structural level enjoyed by so many for the last six years.

A fundraiser was held at the Robert Maniscalco Gallery of Fine Art on Mack in October 2001. Many other fundraisers were to follow at our first home.

Those of us who worked together to make the association's art center what it is will not forget the many hours and extraordinary efforts of members and nonmembers to bring the Grosse Pointe Artists Association to the Maryland building.

My wife and I join the current board with Jon Bell, president and Susan MacDonald, association director, to continue supporting the association by soliciting tax deductible pledge dollars.

We feel this organization which began in 1927 when John Vogt had a dream has come a long way since then and has a right to be proud of its contributions to the community.

Park pass or prison badge in the Park?

R-E-S-P-E-C-T. The idea that young people are always starting trouble is a misconception that we have all been victims of at one point.

Just because I am young, does not mean I am a criminal. Most Grosse Pointe Windmill Park officials have forgotten that.

I do not drink or smoke. I do not host parties or drive fast. I am a working and law-abiding college student who just wants to take a dip in the pool after a long workday.

While I was away at school, I could not wait to spend my summer on my friend's boat, have a picnic in Windmill Park, and play leisurely volleyball. The new building which includes a movie theater excited me with the possibility of even more time to spend down at my favorite spot in Grosse Pointe: a place where I spent almost a decade as a Mutant swim team member, where I learned to dive, fish, and hold my tennis racket. The most important lesson taught, however, was about community and independence.

When I was 10 years old, my grandmother visited us from Lakeland, Fla. While my parents worked, a friend and I would usually ride our bikes five blocks to swim practice. My grandmother insisted on walking us down because she assumed it was not safe for two young girls to ride alone, on what must have been, at the most, a seven minute bike ride.

My grandmother walked slower than a tortoise, and we felt like puppies pulling on a new leash. It was a serious cramp in my ever-increasing style as a fifth-grader.

I can laugh at this memory not only because of my obsession with being "cool," but because, my grandmother's worries were completely unnecessary.

Windmill Park gave me an opportunity to be independent. The gate guard knew me by name, let me race by when I was late for practice, and never once did I feel unsafe in my park.

So, when did it change? Parks and Recreation Director Terry Solomon said there has not been a significant increase in violence and vandalism at the parks, so why do the police have to patrol the gate like a checkpoint to cross into the Gaza Strip?

To some extent, there has always been a precautionary police presence at the park. We have a park ranger and the police have always stopped by on their bicycles throughout the day. But something has changed, their presence is intentionally obvious.

The new gym, movie theater, and locker room facilities are a gem that everyone benefits from year round. That is why it is so unfortunate that their presence is ruining the park. Not because they're drawing in unwanted people, but because they're pushing out those like me. People are so preoccupied with protecting the new facilities that they are willing to destroy the atmosphere of the park.

Last week, I drove up to flash my park pass (A pink colored one—because I am a "renter" and apparently it is necessary for the gate guard be able to tell the difference) and ahead of me was a girl who could not have been older than 13. She was on roller skates and wearing her swim team outfit.

I used to be that girl. I remember what it was like to throw on your swimsuit, grab your goggles and cap, making sure you had your towel and water bottle before running out the door. Inevitably, there were always a couple days during the season that you would be in such a rush you would forget your laminated park pass.

As I sat in my car, I watched the gate guard turn this girl away and sentence her to a roller blade trip of death, potentially a mile away, just to turn around and come back.

Since when is this girl a danger to our park system? I am not suggesting that we should let everyone in without a park pass, or that I was never turned away before, but this overprotective system is going too far. It is becoming unnecessarily oppressive.

A few weeks ago, a friend who has always taken out his family boat, was at the center of an argument between the gate guards and a group of educated young adults. We misunderstood the marina rules and were seeking an explanation.

Crew passes, we were informed, are necessary if the boat owner wants guests to enter the park on their own and the well owner must notify the harbormaster of who is allowed on the boat. Rules are rules, and I have no problem accepting them. If I owned a boat, I too would want the protection that they provide. I do, however, have an issue with how we were treated.

Simply because of our age we were attacked with "well, we've had a lot of kids out drinking and partying in the harbor."

I do not doubt that there have been cases of underage drinking and noise disturbances in the park. Nevertheless, I am not willing to accept the responsibility of every 18 to 21 year old's poor decisions. Nor am I willing to accept responsibility for adults who exercise poor judgment in the park and pool area.

We were also told that if we had an issue with the what we were being told we should have our "Dads come down." Two out of the three of us standing there have fathers who have not lived with us for years. That was a thoughtless personal attack and incontestably disrespectful. Their attitude is just one more reason I feel uncomfortable in the park.

Why are unfair stereotypes preventing me from swimming laps in the same lane that I have for years?

Our frustration led the gate guards to threaten to call the police. Since when does a discussion about marina rules warrant a call to the police?

We walked away and waited for our friends to arrive so we could let them in.

Even then, the guard accused me of cheating the rules and trying to bring in more people to the park than I was allowed. Yet I watched him let carloads of adults into the park without checking every passenger's pass.

This type of hostility and suspicion is turning my wonderful childhood memories into a battlefield.

I take great pride in the park. It has been a significant influence in the person I've become.

I can point out the spot where I crossed the marina onto "Ellis Island" for our fourth grade presentation of immigration, the lane where I got my first place ribbon for the 50 meter freestyle, where I held hands with my first boyfriend, and where I got the scar on my right knee from falling off the playscape.

To me, Windmill Park represents the essence of Grosse Pointe: community, self-discovery, and safety.

I'm not willing to be exiled from that community until I'm in my mid-20s because of false stereotypes. This park has been too important to me to accept the idea that I will not be treated with respect for another five years. So release these time-sensitive handcuffs, they are too tight.

London calling: Your garage is on fire!

Cell phones are one of the most common signs of the communication revolution. News crosses the globe in minutes or less. Here is one example:

A. David Jones and his wife, Heather, of the Farms, were in Buffalo, N.Y., on Sunday, June 10. You may remember that was the afternoon a severe thunderstorm swept off Lake St. Clair and through the Pointes on a path up Fisher Road, knocking out power lines and cutting off electricity for dozens of people.

The Joneses were carrying out the sad duty of moving Heather's mother to a long-term care facility and had just entered the Buffalo hospital parking garage. David's parking ticket was stamped 2:37 p.m. when David's cell phone rang.

It was a call from their daughter, Meredith, who was in London. (That's London, England, not Ontario.)

"Dad, it's OK, nobody is hurt but your garage is on fire," Meredith managed to say just as the connection was lost.

He then got on a phone to check with friends and neighbors of his Beverly Road home.

Lightning had struck a tree on the City side of Fisher and dropped it across the road onto a power pole near the back of the Joneses' detached garage in the Farms. "It hit a major transformer that exploded and rained sparks down on the top of our garage, starting a fire," David reported.

Someone called the fire department at 2:30 p.m. A neighborhood friend tried to reach the Joneses, not knowing they were in Buffalo, and failed. She called another neighbor, who happened to be in Chicago when she received the call on her cell phone. She only had one number: Meredith's in London. So she called London.

It was 7:37 p.m. in London when Meredith, who was just leaving work, got the call while waiting for a cab. Seven minutes had passed.

Meredith called her dad, then her brother, Ian, who lives with his wife, Cindy, in Grosse Pointe Park. He was at his office in Troy about to go into an important meeting. He called Cindy at 2:45 p.m., who was on her way home with their two children after spending time at the library and en route to the Beverly Road house.

At the corner of Fisher and Grosse Pointe Boulevard, she discovered the road was blocked off by police and fire vehicles. There were trucks everywhere. She reported the situation back to David in Buffalo at 2:51 p.m.

The children — Trevor, 9, and Tegan, 7 — "found this all very exciting and even more so after the police put them in a squad car to take them the 100 yards or so to the Beverly house so Cindy could open the door for them. They wouldn't let her drive her own car. Everyone was very concerned about the downed power lines," David reported.

Grandson Trevor wanted to know if they would be on television. "That's my boy," his granddad said.

"The police and fire departments have been nothing short of fantastic and are doing all manner of things to help get the place back in some sort of order," David Jones reported. Cindy took the lead in solving problems and making decisions while the elder Joneses were in Buffalo.

Insurance adjusters were on the scene within a few hours, and the Joneses' cat was ferried to Cindy's for an uneasy sabbatical with King, the granddog.

"Twenty-one minutes from start to eyewitness contact via Grosse Pointe Farms to Chicago, to London, to Buffalo and back to Grosse Pointe Farms. I think after reading this you would agree that we can safely say we are truly 'wired,' or should I say, wireless," David wrote.

'Grosse Pointe'

In case you missed it, "Grosse Pointe: The Complete Series" became available on DVD in February. "Get the real scoop about what goes on behind the scenes of a prime time teen soap opera," the promotional blurb says.

The show ran for 17 episodes in 2001-02 on the WB network and didn't last the season. Its theme song was titled, "Sex Bomb." The DVD has 442 minutes of the show and can be purchased online for $22 to $26.

The brainchild of "Beverly Hills 90210" creator Darren Star, the series is loosely based on his experience while writing that hit show. "The comedy follows the lives of six young actors trying to adjust to the demands of instant stardom, as their hit show launches them into a world of premieres, paparazzi and power," the promo material said.

To put the work in context, Star also created "Sex and the City" and "Melrose Place," and it is a safe bet that old disclaimer applies: Any resemblance between real life in the Grosse Pointes and this show is purely coincidental. No one claims to know how it got named "Grosse Pointe."

New space

After six years of expanding programs ranging from art shows to poetry readings, the Grosse Pointe Art Center is closing its doors on the last day of July. The center's sympathetic landlord — Grosse Pointe Park — is tearing down the building at 1005 Maryland at the corner of Jefferson because it may be structurally unsafe now that the building next door has been demolished.

The Grosse Pointe Artists Association is in negotiation to reopen, at least temporarily, in a building on Kercheval in the Park to continue its 69-year history of lectures, classes, workshops, critiques and poetry readings, Director Susan Macdonald said.

They hope to be able to raise enough money to buy a building, and are seeking foundation and community support.

GUEST OPINION By Lee H. Hamilton

Can we talk? Our future depends on it

Wherever I go these days, people want to talk about how much trouble we have talking reasonably to one another about current public policy challenges. The quality of the public dialogue — our ability to reason with one another and to sort through issues — they say is lamentable. The complexity of the problems we confront, from how to handle our role in the world to how to fix our health care system to what to do about public education, demands that Americans of different beliefs and perspectives think together about what to do. No one individual or small group can know all there is to know. Yet we suffer from a poor and superficial imitation of debate, often the equivalent of playground name-calling, rather than the deep exploration of challenges and their potential solutions that the times call for. Our electronic media, in particular, is drawn by the quick-and-easy. You are far likelier to learn about a candidate's debate style, mannerisms, attire or expensive haircut than you are his or her ideas about fixing our health care system. Yet in the end, I believe we have no one to blame but ourselves. Living in a democracy takes work, and if we want to enjoy its fruits, we have to labor a bit to prepare them. I'm sometimes disappointed by how ready we Americans are to believe polls and studies and the assertions of those in authority, rather than to gather information, think for ourselves, and make discriminating judgments. If we want the quality of public dialogue to improve, then it's up to us to improve it and let our political leaders know we will no longer let them get away with offering inadequate solutions to difficult problems.

We can do this in several ways:

- ◆ First, pay attention to reason and fact, not propaganda and half-truths. Don't accept an assertion of fact on its face. Obtain your information from a variety of sources.
- ◆ Don't let yourself be diverted by fluff. We love the clutter of celebrity lives, gossip and the extraneous details of politics, but letting them dominate our attention has a real cost. This country has made serious mistakes over the last decade in no small part because we were distracted by the diversions we wanted to pay attention to, rather than focused on the issues that needed attention.
- ◆ Listen to the experts, but make up your own mind. As the psalm says, "Put not your trust in princes."
- ◆ Do not attack the motivations of adversaries. Give them the respect of speaking to the merits of their arguments.
- ◆ Try to take a step back from ideology. Listen carefully to different sides in a debate. Be prepared to see the logic in what people of different viewpoints have to say. Above all, look for pragmatic approaches that work, not ideologically rigid approaches that don't comport with the world.

Many Americans have simply checked out of the debate, and many others who do participate ignore these precepts. Among the great gifts of living in this country is the right to speak out, but that right carries with it a responsibility. All of us have the responsibility to work to increase the quality of the public dialogue. The future of our country is on the line.

LETTERS: A win-win situation?

In the June 28 issue, the first page of section C features a lengthy article, "Squad takes trip to Ireland," on the visit of the Grosse Pointe South field hockey team to the Emerald Isle.

We are told about them watching an international match, the medieval-style village in which they stayed, and the heroines of three matches between our girls and the young ladies of the towns of Lisnagarvey, Lurgan and Armagh.

But on the question of who won, the News is silent. Could this be the first time in the history of journalism that a lengthy commentary on a sports tour omitted the results of the matches?

I read and reread the article to find out who had won, so I would know for whom to cheer.

As an expatriate Irishman and long-term resident of Grosse Pointe, I have reason to cheer whichever side won, but I don't know for whom to cheer. Please help me out.

ERIC WINTER
Grosse Pointe Farmer
Editor's note: The games played were scrimmages for practice only, and no wins or losses were reported.

ST. PAUL CATHOLIC SCHOOL

Students bring Japan to school

St. Paul Catholic School students couldn't go to Japan, so they brought Japan to them.

Students transformed the school's upstairs hallways into a Japanese street market that brought Oriental culture and daily economic life home to the school.

Money raised at the market was donated to State Family Readiness Group/Support the Military Families.

"The project educates and teaches presentation skills as well as simplified marketing," said Carrie Morris, a St. Paul teacher. "It includes showing respect to other group members and students."

Decorations included a six foot tall skyline of Tokyo and surrounding cities that ran the length of the hallways.

"These students will be working in tomorrow's marketplace, which clearly is going to be global, and we want to help them make the bridge by integrating foreign studies wherever we can," said Jackie Curtin, technology director.

Research resulted in hallways bursting with color and filled with the sounds of a bustling market.

Students, dressed in colorful kimonos, tended booths to sell products and conduct games.

One booth featured a football toss. Sixth-graders showed younger students how to hold and throw a football.

Some students prepared for the event by visiting Asian food stores to choose Japanese food products to sell.

They discovered that Japanese typically snack on fruit candies.

Each year as part of a social studies project, sixth graders at St. Paul choose a country to explore in depth.

Groups of students study, prepare and present information to the class. In addition to the studies, students plan and execute a mini business plan for the hallway street market.

"The excitement of learning about a country, marketing a fundraiser and using their studies and knowledge to bring money to those in need. It was truly a successful project," Morris said. "Practicing presentation skills is a great help in working on eliminating one of the biggest fears of anyone speaking in public."

Morris said separating students into small groups helps them learn "more about a valuable topic without being overwhelmed with having to learn a great deal all at once. Topics include economics, traditions, school system, commerce and technology."

Brownell Middle School sixth grade student Lily Koss, above, was one of five statewide winners of the 2007 Ford Freedom Essay Awards. She received honorable mention for an essay submitted during Black History Month by her social studies teacher, Sarah Barba. She was presented with a 2007 Freedom Award, a merit certificate and a $250 savings bond at an awards ceremony recently held at the Detroit Music Hall. The contestants were to write on an African American who has made significant contributions to the medical community. Koss' essay was on Charles Richard Drew, M.D., who invented the idea of the blood bank.

GROSSE POINTE NORTH HIGH SCHOOL

Local student earns accolade

Grosse Pointe North student Jamie Ding earned five out of eight points in a national mathematics contest.

The American Regions Mathematics League teams competed in four rounds of mathematical problem solving. The first round required the 15 members of each team to work together for 20 minutes to solve a set of 10 problems. This was followed by the Power Problem in which the team writes a full explanation of its solution to an Olympiad level problem.

After a round of eight individual problems, the competition concluded with two sets of relay questions in which the first student passes an answer to a teammate who must incorporate that value into a second problem. The second answer is then passed back to the student in the anchor position who tries to compute the final answer within the six-minute time period.

Of Michigan's team of 34 All-Star high school students, 15 were in Division A, 15 were in Division B and four were on the alternate team.

This is the 18th year that Michigan has participated in the competition. Members were selected from the top 100 students out of more than 10,000 who participated in the Michigan Math Prize Competition last fall.

The national competition was held on the campuses of the University of Iowa, Pennsylvania State University and University of Nevada at Las Vegas.

A total of 115 teams of 15 students each represented various regions of the United States and Canada, plus guest teams from Taiwan, the Philippines, Turkey, Bulgaria and Colombia.

ST. CLAIR SHORES

Theater owner patient for 'OK'

By Bob St. John
Staff Writer

Parties involved have agreed in principle to a parking agreement, which will spur the Shores Theater to reopen before the end of the year.

The Shores Theater, on Mack and 9 Mile in St. Clair Shores, is owned by Grosse Pointe Shores resident Bob Liggett, who has been trying to get plans approved to renovate the two-screen complex.

In essence, the city of St. Clair Shores will manage the parking lot from the post office to the bank.

A disagreement about a parking problem between property owners in that area around the Shores Theater was one of the stumbling blocks. The property owners said the theater would take away parking spots for their customers.

"We were called to a meeting with Bob Ihrle (St. Clair Shores' city attorney) and Ken Podolski (St. Clair Shores city manager) to discuss the parking situation in relation to the Shores Theater," said Bruce Ferguson, CFO of Liggett Management, LLC. "Ihrle and Podolski have been great trying to get a deal worked out that pleases everyone associated with that project.

"They were able to come up with something big."

Ferguson said the papers haven't been signed, but he said it looks as if all signs are pointing to Liggett getting the go-ahead to renovate the theater.

"After three long years of working on this project, there looks to be a light at the end of the tunnel," Liggett said.

The theater will expand to a five-screen, 500-seat complex, which Ferguson said might be open by the end of the year.

"We have an aggressive plan set for the renovation, but nothing can be done until the papers are signed," Ferguson said.

RENDERING COURTESY OF PARADIGM DESIGN INC.

The Shores Theater will increase from a two to five screen facility. Construction will begin once the paper work is signed.

She said her friends left her when she passed out.

After several unsuccessful attempts to reach the girl's parents, police transported her to a local hospital where she was admitted to the pediatric unit.

Some time later the youth's mother was contacted.

Police issued a citation for a minor in possession of alcohol.

Family tragedy

At 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, June 30, police responded to a 911 call from a resident living in the 1700 block of Anita. The caller found his 43-year-old wife not breathing and cold to touch.

According to one of the couple's sons, his mother was complaining of a sore throat and a cold the night before.

Her husband said he left her to sleep on the couch when he went upstairs to bed around 9 p.m. He got up the next morning, went into the kitchen to have breakfast and read the newspaper. He then went into the living room and attempted to wake up his wife.

The police found no signs of foul play. Her body was transported to the Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office.

Cable con?

At 5:15 p.m., on Friday, June 29, police responded to a call from a resident in the 1500 block of Lochmoor about a suspicious acting 25-year-old male cable company employee who was scouting out her house.

The man, wearing a cable company identification tag, said he was there to survey her about her cable service call two days earlier to remove a digital cable box.

However, the cable man was walking around outside and looking inside a basement window which was on the opposite side of the cable connection to the house.

Police are investigating the situation.

Peephole Tom

On Thursday, June 28, police responded to a call from a 56-year-old female resident in the 2000 block of Hawthorne after she discovered four holes in her attic that looked directly into her neighbor's bedroom.

The resident said she immediately told her neighbor about the holes.

The neighbor said she usually closes her blinds when changing, but will open them to let in air when she goes to bed.

Police took photos of the scene and are investigating.

The reappearance of the lake whitefish in the Detroit River, lakes Huron and Erie after an absence of 90 years means an environmental turnaround for water quality, which also benefits commercial fishing.

How's the fishing?

Laura Phelps
Special Writer

And the special tonight is fresh lake whitefish.

For the first time since 1916, lake whitefish are spawning in the Detroit River.

This discovery is a symbol of the ecological recovery of the Detroit River and the Huron-Erie corridor.

In 2005, the United States Geological Survey collected spermating males and fertilized eggs from the Detroit River. Several dozen were collected and hatched in its laboratory.

On April 5 and 6, 2006 the survey found 62 whitefish larvae in the lower Detroit river. They confirmed that these fish were the first native, reproducing lake whitefish in the Detroit River in almost 100 years.

The importance of the return is both environmental and commercial, said Bruce Manny, a research fishery biologist for the United States Geological Survey.

"First, it is a barometer of water quality which affects us for our drinking water, so if it is clean enough for whitefish, it must be clean enough for us. Second, it is a resource for the state. If things go well and the population rises, then we can begin talking about fishing without measurably affecting productivity."

Lake whitefish are a pale member of the trout and salmon family, Salmonidae. According to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, they can weigh more than 20 pounds and live to be 25 years old.

Lake Erie is the southern edge of the species' zoogeographical range.

They feed on or near lake bottoms and eat insects, freshwater shrimp, and other bottom organisms. They live in lakes as deep as 200 feet, but need shallow protected areas to spawn.

During the fall they spawn near shore, then die within two weeks. The eggs, however, remain from early December until April.

Oil spills, pollution, and habitat degradation during the mid-1900s meant that the eggs could not survive the winter and the species could not repopulate, Manny said.

The last lake whitefish caught in the area was in 1925.

Lake whitefish are an indicator of the ecosystem's health because they are a very fragile fish.

"The whitefish are a very sensitive fish and they are sensitive to changes in water temperature, light, food, and picky about what they eat. They must have cold water all the time, never warm or hot," said Manny.

They have been spawning off of North East Fighting Island, a 1,200-acre island that was recently transformed by the chemical company, BASF, from a brine-disposal site to a wildlife refuge and earned Wildlife Habitat Council certification.

They are spawning on broken limestone along the island's shore put there to protect the shoreline from erosion. The limestone is roughly 10 to 15 inches in diameter and on a very steep slope, dropping off into 25 feet of water.

Their spawning habitat has to provide protection from dislodgement and from the strong current of the river, Manny said. They have used the same spawning grounds for the past two years.

It is too early to estimate how many lake whitefish are in the river right now, said Manny. What they do know is that there are many eggs and the USGS has caught two of the species and sport fishermen have caught two.

Detroit whitefish were sold in Ohio, New York and Chicago. Historically, they were the most profitable of all fisheries in the Great Lakes.

The industry provided a substantial amount of employment at the time when each household had "one or two half barrels of whitefish," Manny said.

During the 1800s, before the shipping channels, whitefish were so numerous that 15,000 were taken in a single haul and there was an average of about 35,000 barrels of whitefish per year."

According to the group, the loss of spawning grounds for whitefish was a major contributor to the collapse of its population in the Detroit River in the early 1900s.

To examine the lake whitefish decline, Manny said they must examine the era of their disappearance.

Detroit was an industrial super center for World War I and World War II where the consensus was to win the wars regardless of the environmental costs.

At the time, the Detroit River was covered in oil slicks, and used for sewage and industrial waste.

Before the shipping channels were built, the areas were as shallow as three to four feet deep — perfect spawning grounds for lake whitefish, Carl said.

Ships were having trouble navigating and there was a real fear of collision, said Dr. Leon Carl, director at the group's Great Lakes Science Center.

The Livingstone and Amherstburg shipping channels were constructed between 1907 and 1916, according to the Environmental Protection Agency.

During construction the limestone bedrock that was lake whitefish spawning habitat was removed.

"When they built the Livingstone and Amherstburg channels they destroyed a substantial amount of whitefish habitat," said John Hartig, Refuge Manager of the Detroit River International Wildlife Refuge.

The Detroit River area has lost 97 percent of its original coastal wetlands, according to the White House's Cooperative Conservation case study.

The decline of the lake whitefish coincided with the decline of walleye, blue pike and lake herring.

Cleaner water and the return of native species can be attributed to pollution prevention such as the 1972 U.S. Canada Great Lakes Water Quality

'When they built the Livingstone and Amherstburg channels they destroyed a substantial amount of whitefish habitat.'

JOHN HARTIG,
Detroit River International Wildlife
Refuge manager

Agreement and the 1972 Clean Water Act, Manny said.

In the past 34 years there has been more than 98 percent reduction in oil discharge, 95 percent reduction of phosphorus discharge from the Detroit waste water treatment plant (one of the largest in North America), 70 percent reduction in mercury contamination of fish, and 83 percent decrease in polychlorinated biphenyls (PCB) contamination of herring gull eggs.

This ecological transformation is also helping to restore the populations of peregrine falcons, lake sturgeon, bald eagles, walleye fishery, and the whitefish, according to the Survey.

"The city of Detroit Public Works and Zug Island deserves a great deal of credit for lowering the phosphorus levels," said Manny.

The Detroit River area was awarded special commendation at the White House's Cooperative Conservation as a case study.

In October 2006, there was a symbolic return to the river of 21 lake whitefish.

Although it will not make a significant difference in the population, the group wanted to advertise that Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River is very clean, Carl said.

They will be doing a similar event this fall.

After their research is complete in 2008, the next step is to build safe whitefish habitats, possibly even in Grosse Pointe, Hartig said.

4B | HEALTH/SENIOR

SENIOR SCENE By Ruth Cain

Senior research done at Wayne State

Several Senior Scene columns have dealt with research studies on the elderly. But they usually have been studies conducted in other states and research centers.

What a wonderful surprise to find that the Institute of Gerontology, with its extensive studies aimed at promoting successful aging, is located on Wayne State University's campus.

The institute was created in 1965, the year the Older Americans Act was passed by the state legislature, and was a joint venture of the University of Michigan and Wayne State University. In 1986 the partnership ended and the institute became an independent research and education unit of WSU.

The institute's director is Peter Lichtenberg, Ph.D., who says, "The institute from its beginning chose to study the lives of older people as they live them. We believe that the greatest contribution of behavioral and social gerontology has been to spotlight the experiences and amplify the voices of our elders.

With their reality as our foundation, we build relevant programs for successful aging."

That is a brave and daunting undertaking, achieved through the elements that make up the institute's mission:

Research: Improving our community's health through research.

Education: Preparing tomorrow's leaders in aging research.

Outreach: Connecting seniors and their families to current knowledge.

Partnerships: Building programs that will stand the test of time.

I'm particularly interested in how the institute combines research with outreach efforts.

Lichtenberg expands on the importance of this combination: "First-class research must also have reach. Information has maximum impact when it can be spread throughout the community in ways that are understandable, usable and engaging."

The institute's 12 faculty members are experts in a wide range of aging issues, from hormone changes to Alzheimer's to financial planning. They also mentor and train a group of about 20 students who are either working toward their Ph.D. or recently received it and want to focus their research on aging.

An example of research in action is the program that teaches seniors how to use computers. Many seniors enter the program convinced they will never learn how to use a computer.

However with appropriate teaching methods, all the seniors in the class, even the oldest, can use computers to learn about their medications, research their roots, send e-mails and more.

Observing their actions and listening to their comments on this learning experience also provides a rich research environment for academic work while also improving the on-line skills of a pre-computer generation — a win-win situation.

Many outpatient therapists have seniors as their patients. Therapists can improve patients' coordination, make their homes safer and strengthen their abilities to perform basic activities.

But sometimes seniors need more. An outpatient therapist says he has patients, as do many therapists, who are depressed or anxious. Some show signs of early dementia. Others have troubles with substance abuse. Outpatient therapists need training to identify and work with mental health issues.

The Retirement Research Foundation agreed and recently granted $262,000 over two years to the institute to create interactive DVDs that teach outpatient therapists about mental health issues in elderly patients. The training DVDs will be pilot-tested with community partners in the Detroit area.

Fourteen experts at the institute and Wayne State will work on the study, along with three strong community partners, Beaumont Rehabilitation of Troy, Michigan Health and Rehabilitation Services, and the Visiting Nurse Association of Southeast Michigan.

This kind of partnering is frequent in the institute's work.

There are many more studies ongoing, too many to relate here. I hope to give additional information in Senior Scene columns about Detroit's own Institute of Gerontology.

Study compares Mediterranean diet with standard diet

Are all healthy eating plans the same when it comes to cancer prevention?

Researchers at the University of Michigan Comprehensive Cancer Center are beginning a study to look at whether diet can impact a person's risk of developing colon cancer. Specifically, the researchers will compare a Mediterranean diet - high in olive oil, nuts and fish - with a standard healthy eating plan.

"Overall eating patterns appear to be more important for cancer prevention than intakes of specific nutrients or food groups. We hope this study will give us an indication of the benefits that a person's diet can have on health, especially in terms of reducing the risk of colon cancer," says Zora Djuric, Ph.D., research professor of family medicine at the U-M Medical School and principal investigator on the Healthy Eating for Colon Cancer Prevention study.

The study will look at adults age 21 or older who have had colon polyps, colon cancer or a family history of colon cancer. Researchers hope to recruit 120 participants over three years. Participants will be randomly assigned to follow either the Mediterranean diet or the Healthy People 2010 diet for six months. A dietitian will work closely with each participant by telephone. Participants can choose foods they prefer from recommended food group lists.

The Mediterranean diet focuses on vegetables, whole grains, fruits, fish and olive oil. High fat meats and processed foods are limited. The comparison diet is the Healthy People 2010 diet, which is the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services plan for healthy eating. The Healthy People 2010 diet involves eating plenty of fruits and vegetables, whole grains and a moderate fat intake with limits on saturated fat.

Study participants assigned to the Mediterranean diet will be encouraged to limit polyunsaturated fats from foods such as corn oil in favor of monounsaturated fats from olive oil, nuts and fatty plant-based foods such as olives. Mediterranean diet participants will also be expected to eat seven to nine servings of fruits and vegetables, including herbs, and get protein primarily from low-fat sources such as poultry, fish and legumes.

Previous studies have linked the Mediterranean diet to reduced risk of heart disease, stroke and cancer.

Some evidence suggests the Mediterranean diet causes changes in the colon that would prevent cancer.

U-M researchers recently concluded a study of 70 women ages 25-65 who were randomly divided between following a Mediterranean diet or following their usual dietary habits.

The researchers found the study participants were able to stick to the Mediterranean diet throughout the study. The women following a Mediterranean diet decreased the amount of polyunsaturated fat they ate by 50 percent while increasing the amount of healthy monounsaturated fats by the same amount. The women also ate twice as many fruits and vegetables as those following their regular diet. This doubled the blood levels of carotenoids, which are antioxidant micronutrients from fruits and vegetables.

Researchers believe changes in dietary fatty acids from the higher monounsaturated fat intake with a Mediterranean diet will decrease the levels of certain proteins in the body that are linked to the development of colon cancer. At the same time, other cancer-protective compounds are expected to increase because of the Mediterranean diet.

In addition to following the diet plan, study participants will be screened in person three times during the six-month study. Participants who complete the study will receive $270.

In addition to Djuric, U-M study investigators are Dean Brenner, M.D., professor of internal medicine and pharmacology; Mack Ruffin, M.D., professor of family medicine; and Kim Turgeon, M.D., clinical associate professor of internal medicine.

Our Alzheimer's care begins with what's been forgotten.

Each senior has a history that makes them a unique individual. At Sunrise, our approach to Alzheimer's care begins with understanding the stories and details of a senior's life.

Knowing our residents better means we can help them attain what we call "pleasant days" by finding activities they can enjoy and be successful at. We do this in specially designed surroundings that are both safe and nurturing, where who they are is never forgotten.

Visit or call a Sunrise Senior Living community for more information about how we care for seniors with memory impairment.

X-TRA SPECIAL ADVICE

By Theodore G. Coutilish and Mary Beth Langan

We've nailed the nails

It was a number of small baby steps and trials, many in error.

It was a number of pieces of advice sought and attempted, many with failure.

But somehow — most likely with the help of maturity and God's intervention — cutting Andrew's nails went from being a mess of a scene with octopus-like flailing involved and no positive reinforcers working to a situation where Mary Beth can simply say "I need your hand" and the hand will appear on the table, even if the TV is not tuned in to Noggin!

You might be able to guess that Andrew would still never choose to have his nails cut. Plus his feet are still pretty ticklish to the touch.

But there's no fighting, no scratching, no screaming, no biting, no running, no tag-teaming, no big pre-nail-cutting workouts to pump up for the semi-weekly torture session.

It's no longer dreaded by anyone involved in the process.

And that seems like an amazing thing.

Since there still are days where many seemingly simple situations are dreaded and torturous, the realization that one of the formerly tortuous events is now an average, common, everyday event is something to celebrate.

So let's dance!

Coutilish and Mary Beth Langan created this column to share experiences from their journey as parents of a child with Fragile X Syndrome [fragilex.org]. ## PASTOR'S COLUMN By Hamid Dana

How far do you go for self-love?

A lot has been written about love. All the major religions stress the importance of it: many a Christian pastor has devoted a sermon to Saint Paul's description of love in the New Testament; the prophet Muhammad said that Paradise is guaranteed to anyone who loves another solely for the pleasure of God; Jesus told his disciples to love their enemies.

He also quoted the Torah when he said, "Love your neighbor as yourself."

Many explanations have been given about the Greek verb used for "love" in these passages, especially the one about loving our enemies. It's a verb of action signifying the showing of kindness and respect rather than indicating a feeling of affection. This brings it closer to the realm of possibility because it's very difficult to develop a feeling of affection for an enemy.

However, someone, I forget who, once said, "When you love people for no reason you invariably find reasons for loving them." There's another adage that says, "If you act like a good person you may actually become a good person."

But the love I want to focus on right now is the love of self. Some might say the problem is that too many people love themselves too much, but they're talking about self-indulgence or selfishness.

Others might say, "Of course everyone loves himself." But social records show that alarming numbers of people continually pursue self-destructive patterns of behavior.

Among the signs that your self-love is lower than it should be are: you think you have to perform a certain activity to a certain (sometimes unrealistic) level in order to be accepted within a social group; or, you think you have reached your present position through some fluke, and sooner or later you are going to be exposed.

Attitudes like these affect the way we regard others. If people offer us friendship we may think, "They have to settle because they're not acceptable to the 'A Group' either." Or, if the other person is a part of the "A Group" (and of course we define the "A Group") then we think he/she has an ulterior motive and is just using us. With this kind of "defensiveness" it's not likely that we will act with the love that is demanded of us in our scriptures. When we see the other commandments to love our neighbors, our brothers, even our enemies, and consider the examples that are given, the Torah commandment, "Love your neighbor as yourself" implies that you must have a healthy love for yourself.

Our images of ourselves are formed by our interpretations of other people's actions towards us, and they are formed at a very early age. For some reason it's not as easy learning to treat oneself with respect as it is to show respect for others. But perhaps we could start by adopting the following advice: "If you act like a person who loves him/herself you may actually become a person who loves him/herself."

Hamid Dana is chairman of the Outreach Committee at the Albanian Islamic Center in Harper Woods.

Fuzzy navel cake is approaching the end of it's cooking time) in a small bowl whisk together the remaining 1/4 cup schnapps with the remaining 2 tablespoons orange juice and the confectioners sugar.

Remove the cake from the oven and use a long wooden skewer to poke hole all over the cake (about 1 inch apart). Gently pour the sugar glaze all over the cake and allow it to seep in. Leave the cake in the pan until it has completely cooled, 1 1/2 to 2 hours.

Carefully invert the cake onto a serving plate. Dust with confectioners sugar before serving.

Fuzzy navel cake is sinfully delicious. This big and luscious cake will serve up to 20 people.

Yea, it's got that much flavor. I admire my aunt Eleanor very much and I'm happy to share her terrific recipe with you. (Janice is going to love it!)

A fuzzy navel is a popular drink that mixes vodka with peach schnapps and orange juice.

It's my sister Janice's drink of choice (on the rare occasion that I can get her to indulge!).

My aunt Eleanor Titran is the queen of cakes.

She makes all sorts of great tasting cakes (rum cake and lemon cake come to mind). She told me about her fuzzy navel cake and here it is.

This is a simply prepared cake that is rich in flavor, moist in texture and has a fuzzy navel finish.

JUNIOR NATIONAL ROWING

Pointe pair is Beijing-bound

Jason Koch and Lauren Shook qualify for Junior World rowing championships from Aug. 8 through 11

Jason Koch and Lauren Shook of the Detroit Boat Club have qualified for the United States Junior National rowing team that will compete in the FISA Junior World Championships.

Two recent Grosse Pointe high school graduates will be members of the United States Junior National rowing team that will compete in the FISA Junior World Championships next month in Beijing, China.

Lauren Shook took a traditional route to the Junior National Team roster, while Jason Koch achieved the berth through unconventional methods.

Koch and Shook are both members of the Detroit Boat Club crew. The Junior World Championships are scheduled for Aug. 8-11.

Koch, a Grosse Pointe North graduate, qualified for the Junior National team during time trials at Mercer Lake in New Jersey. He will be rowing in a men's quad — four rowers without a coxswain.

Koch is a four-year rower at the DBC. He has been rowing in a single scull for two years.

The idea for competing in a quad came after the Youth National Championships in Cincinnati when he didn't finish first in his single as he had hoped.

Rather than give up the dream of going to Beijing, he approached other single scullers he met in previous competitions and put together a four-man boat.

His crewmates are Ben Ludlow and Greg Magarian of Indian Hill, Ohio; and Keenan Reelick of New London, Conn. Their first time rowing as a quad was the day before the trials when they met in New Jersey.

Considering their extremely abbreviated practice time, their performance was outstanding.

His boat had three chances to make the minimum performance standard of 6:15. The crew came within .039 seconds of making the time on the second time trial, but officials decided to qualify them anyway because of the windy conditions during the race and the fact that they finished more than 20 seconds ahead of the second-place boat.

Koch and his crew will train in Cincinnati until the team leaves later this month for China.

Koch will row for the University of Wisconsin in the fall.

Shook, a June graduate of Grosse Pointe South, is one of 53 promising young women invited to attend the US Rowing Women's Junior National Team Selection Camp in New London, Conn.

Attending the camp meant that she would have to forego her graduation activities because she had to report by June 11.

She did so willingly because going to Beijing had also been her dream.

At the camp, Shook's talents quickly surfaced.

At 5-feet-8, Shook is small for an upper-echelon rower, but she made up for her lack of size with determination. During the camp, she dropped her 2K erg score (2,000 meters on an indoor rowing machine), from seven minutes, 18 seconds to 7:08 and earned a spot on an eight plus — eight rowers plus a coxswain — boat.

Shook will continue training in New London until the team leaves for Beijing.

She will row for the University of Virginia in the fall.

Angela Scheibner prepares to round a leeward mark during the Area E United States Women's Sailing Championship qualifier last weekend on the Detroit River.

ON SAIL By Sandra Svoboda

A word for power boaters

I wanted to rename this column this week and call it "On the Water" or "On Your Boat" or "Making Wake" because I want power boaters to read it. Not ALL of them need to, mind you, just a few of them: The ones who run full blast up and down the Detroit River; The ones who have young children on deck with no life jackets while moving at all; The ones who went waving and smiling through the starting line of a race course I was working on the Detroit River this weekend near Belle Isle.

Granted, there are bigger crimes in this world. But right up the race course from where we were set on Saturday, there were a couple dozen young, beginner sailors in their Optimists.

Swamping those in power boat wake is dangerous, and I watched several little boats toss and turn in engine-induced waves.

Sailors do not mind sharing the waters, even if we have a little bit of a snobby attitude because we can gracefully move under wind-power without polluting with fuel or noise. But we get upset when loud, obnoxious, roaring engines get too close.

It's dangerous. And it's not good manners.

So, back to sailing. Congratulations to Angela Scheibner, of Grosse Pointe, who won the area qualifier for the U.S. Women's Sailing Championship with crew Beth Eckstein, of St. Clair Shores, and Colleen Flanagan and Lynn Kotwicki, both of Royal Oak.

Scheibner's team won all four races — some of them closer than others — against Laurie Bunn, of Grosse Pointe Woods. Representing "Area E" of US Sailing, Scheibner will join 10 other teams in San Diego in September to race Etchells 22 for the Mrs. Charles Frances Adams Trophy.

Scheibner's father has owned E-22s so she's no stranger to the boat. Here's wishing her the best of luck in bringing that trophy to Bayview Yacht Club. No one from there has ever won it. Speaking of winning, I was jealous of every sailor who got a chance to be part of the Junior Riverfest Regatta last weekend. I hope all those young sailors realize what a great event they took part in.

Near-perfect weather. Some of the country's best judges. Generous sponsors. A great venue on the river and Lake St. Clair.

Bulldogs win tourney

The '99 Grosse Pointe Bulldogs, a Mite AA team of 6-, 7- and 8-year-olds won the St. Clair Shores spring Original Hockeytown tournament with a thrilling 3-2 overtime victory against the St. Clair Shores '99 Saints.

The championship game for the division was a tight-checking affair. The Saints took a 1-0 lead midway through the first period, but the Bulldogs came right back to tie the game at 1-1, and that's how the first period ended.

The Bulldogs took a 2-1 lead early in the second period and maintained the lead until late in the third period when the Saints tied the game with minutes remaining in regulation.

Each team had several chances in overtime, but the Bulldogs' Adam Pitters completed his hat trick with 2:23 left in the extra period to give the Grosse Pointe team the championship.

Jack Liagre was the winning goalie.

"I'm really proud of the team," said head coach Paul Martinelli. "We've been together for only a few weeks but the kids really skated hard to each puck, passed it well and played some tough defense. It was a great team effort. This is a good way to get us ready for the fall season."

The tournament, which drew teams from Livonia, Port Huron, St. Clair Shores and Grosse Pointe, began with a round-robin format. In their opening game, the Bulldogs tied the Port Huron Flags 3-3. They followed with a 4-0 victory against St. Clair Shores and then lost their only game of the tournament to the Livonia Knights.

The Bulldogs finished the round-robin play in second place and faced the Flags for a second time in the semifinals. Grosse Pointe jumped out to a 3-0 lead, but held on for a 5-3 victory.

CLEAR OUT THE GARAGE

Do you have a cluttered garage? Who doesn't? There's one way you can clear out that garage and make a little money—have a garage sale! The best way to make your garage sale a success is to place an ad in the classified section. Most garage sale shoppers plan their shopping schedule from ads listed in the newspaper. Don't miss the opportunity to attract attention to your sale.

State and federal housing laws prohibit discrimination that is based on race, color, religion, national origin, sex, disability, age (Michigan Law), marital (Michigan Law) or familial status. Fair housing laws protect your rights in housing activities such as:

- Viewing or purchasing a home or other property;
- Viewing or rental an apartment or other property;
- Financing, such as a mortgage or a home improvement loan;
- Insurance; homeowners or renters;
- Terms and conditions, and provision of services;
- Advertising

Prohibitions against discrimination in advertising always apply regardless of any exemption under the Fair Housing Act applicable to some landlords, property owners, dwellings including owner-occupied dwellings and respondents. Anyone who would otherwise have the right to claim an exemption, may lose that exemption if they publish (advertise) or cause to be published a written or posted notice, mailing or statement (written or verbal) that is discriminatory. For further information, call the Michigan Department of Civil Rights at 800-482-2604, the U.S. Department of Housing and the Urban Development 800-368-9777 or your local Fair Housing Agency.
