Village Market to expand

By Brad Lindberg

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — At Village Food Market on Mack Avenue, where the slogan on the voicemail system is, "The fun is in the browsing," the pickings are going to be greater come spring.

Owner Mark Garmo plans a major expansion into neighboring property. "We have so many ideas we want to implement, but don't have the space," he said.

The forthcoming 11,000-square-foot market, which is more than 50 percent larger than the present building, is designed with greater room for customers at the butcher counter, shelf space for a wider selection of products and work area for two chefs. "We're going to bring in thousands of new items," Garmo said. "We want to expand our produce department, deli, prepared food and another section for odds and ends."

Amid that change, Garmo pledges one thing stays the same.

"We want to be a full-service market, but want to be the little ma-and-pa store with a hometown feeling at the same time," he said. "The owner greets everybody who walks in the store."

Site plans for a new brick facade, reconfigured outdoor sales and service areas passed muster Monday, Aug. 17, by the Grosse Pointe Farms city council.

GROSSE POINTE WOODS — "That's not covered." It's a phrase anyone who has ever dealt with an insurance company can relate to.

That's exactly what city officials are facing in trying to recover costs related to the trench collapse in October 2014 on Fairway that took the life of the contractor, Lee Rumph, and injured a Woods public safety officer.

At issue is nearly $250,000 in costs the city attempted to recoup from its insurance carrier, U.S. Specialty Insurance, only to be told the carrier is not responsible.

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — A Grosse Pointe Park woman, 43, driving a Ford Flex containing her two daughters and a dog, died when she veered into oncoming lanes of Lakeshore at the Warner curve at about 1 p.m. Saturday Aug. 15, hitting a GMC Acadia head-on. Medics took the other driver, a 73-year-old woman from Grosse Pointe Park, to the hospital in critical condition.

Spriet named director

Marsh & McLennan Agency LLC recently appointed Jamie Spriet of Grosse Pointe Woods as business development director for the health and benefits practice in Troy. In her new role, Spriet connects decision makers with and introduces employers to the growing group benefits firm and its services.

Spriet has more than 30 years' experience working with area carrier and health providers, including Health Alliance Plan, Delta Dental, SelectCare and Bon Secours Health System, now part of Beaumont. Prior to joining MMA, Spriet was vice president of business development for HAP and had launched an independent consultancy practice.

As business development director with MMA, Spriet will identify opportunities for MMA to help mid-size employers achieve their group benefits and talent management goals via a strategic, tailored group benefits plan.

Spriet is actively involved in human resources and health-care-centric organizations, including as a board member for the Michigan Wellness Council. She earned her bachelor's degree in allied health from the University of Detroit Mercy and a master's degree in healthcare administration from Central Michigan University.

"We are happy to formalize our long friendship and working relationship with Jamie. She is energetic and creative and has a unique talent for identifying partnerships that are beneficial to all involved," said Thomas McGraw, CEO of Marsh & McLennan Agency LLC's Michigan operations.

Brieden Consulting Group

Brieden Consulting Group is located at 17000 Kercheval, Suite 210, in The Village, City of Grosse Pointe. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The company offers corporate consulting for group health benefits. For more information, call (313)447-0900 or visit briedencg.com.

Farms resident a top Michigan lawyer

Butzel Long attorney and shareholder Clara DeMatteis Mager of Grosse Pointe Farms has been named a "2015 Honoree for Michigan Women in the Law" by Michigan Lawyers Weekly. Mager is one of 30 female attorneys who will be honored during a luncheon Thursday, Sept. 10, at the Marriott Hotel in Troy. The event will celebrate individuals who have made meaningful and inspiring contributions to the legal community. Honorees also will be profiled in an upcoming edition of Michigan Lawyers Weekly.

As the Immigration Practice Department Leader, Mager has been instrumental in growing the practice. She focuses on business and family immigration issues, including all aspects of the international movement of personnel, inbound and outbound work-authorized nonimmigrant and immigrant status, immigration consequences of mergers, acquisitions and corporate restructuring, employer sanctions and immigration law audits.

She is a firm liaison to Lex Mundi, a global association of 160 independent law firms. She has served as chair and regional chair of the Lex Mundi Immigration Committee. She is active with the Lex Mundi Pro Bono Foundation providing legal services to select "social entrepreneurs." The

Can't find home

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — There's Wrong Way Corrigan of aviation lore, Wrong Way Peachfuzz of the Rocky and Bullwinkle cartoons and now this guy.

Charges are pending against a City of Grosse Pointe man, 29, suspected of blundering drunkenly through the back door of someone else's house in the 100 block of Lewiston in Grosse Pointe Farms early Friday, Aug. 14.

He mistook it for his own, according to police.

He repeated the attempt in the 200 block of Moran, but was detained and registered a .28 percent blood alcohol level, police added. "Due to (his) high level of intoxication, it was determined that he would be released pending detective bureau review of charges," reported Officer Thomas Dionne, responding to the Lewiston homeowner's burglary alarm.

The homeowner, an 84-year-old man, wants to press charges for unauthorized entry, according to police. "The suspect has two alcohol offenses within seven years," Dionne said.

A door chime and alarm awoke the homeowner at about 4 a.m., he told police.

"He was advised by his alarm company that the rear door had been breached," Dionne said.

Four officers responded. Two searched inside. Two, including Sgt. Holly Krizmanich, searched outside.

"(A newspaper) delivery man advised (Krizmanich) that he observed a white male face down on the front lawn of (a house in the 200 block of) Moran," Dionne said. "(Krizmanich) arrived to find the suspect attempting to enter the home. (He) was obviously intoxicated and in a stupor."

Officers listened to his tale.

"(He) stated he was trying to get home after a night of excessive alcohol consumption," Dionne said. "(He) stated multiple times that he mistakenly entered the wrong home while attempting to locate his residence on Neff in the City of Grosse Pointe."

A Farms officer drove him home.

New invasive sucks life from hemlocks

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

THE GROSSE POINTE — A new wave of tree-killing insects from overseas is following the wake of predecessors and threatening an ornamental close to home.

Targeted now are hemlocks.

"It's one of Grosse Pointe's favorite plants," said Brett Marshall, head of the Grosse Pointe Shores municipal tree board and owner of a tree service company.

"Hemlocks are planted mainly as an ornamental in people's landscape," said Brian Colter, Grosse Pointe Park city forester.

They're unusual evergreens.

"Most conifers are sun-loving trees, like white pine," Colter said. "Hemlocks are an understory conifer. They tolerate shade."

Hemlocks make good privacy barriers in the urban landscape.

"They also tolerate being planted close to buildings," Colter said.

What they don't tolerate is hemlock woolly adelgid, a reddish-brown insect 1/32 inches long from Japan that feeds on sap of conifer shoots.

"They're kind of cool insects, a tiny thing you have to look at under a microscope," said Deb McCullough, a professor of forest entomology at Michigan State University.

She specializes in management of invasive forest insects and is a leading researcher of emerald ash borer.

McCullough sees a parallel between the spread of emerald ash borer and hemlock woolly adelgids. The former, introduced to the Detroit area from Asia in 2002, spread to 25 states, two Canadian provinces and killed tens of millions of ash trees.

Hemlock woolly adelgids, seen for decades from New England to Georgia and Kentucky, were discovered in June on Michigan's west coast near Holland.

"The logical part of me knows it was inevitable that we would get it," McCullough said. "The other part of me wanted to fight like hell against it."

Sapping nutrients

Unlike ash borer, which can kill trees in a year, adelgids work slower.

"As they feed on sap, they secrete a white waxy stuff, which is seen on an infested tree," McCullough said.

"It looks like a little piece of fuzzy cotton," Marshall said. "It's usually under the outer edges of stems."

No happy meal for fleeing driver

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — A 38-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms woman driving an SUV with her infant son aboard led police on an 80 mph dash to a McDonald's on East Jefferson in Detroit early Monday, Aug. 17, and not to order off the kid-die menu.

The woman, Courtney Ann Peck, was arraigned Tuesday, Aug. 18, in Farms Municipal Court for fleeing and eluding police, a 5-year felony, child abuse fourth degree and reckless driving, both misdemeanors.

She stood mute while Judge Matthew Rumora entered a not guilty plea on her behalf.

Peck returns to court Wednesday, Aug. 26, for a probable cause hearing and Wednesday, Sept. 2, for a preliminary hearing.

"Do you have any idea why she would allegedly run from police with an infant in the car?" Rumora asked Lt. Detective Richard Rosati, in charge of the case. "It doesn't make any sense."

"We are going to try to set up some type of psychological exam with a doctor she treated with before," said Peck's attorney, Charles Berschback.

Rumora set $10,000 bond cash. Peck can't post 10 percent.

It all started at 3:31 a.m.

Farms Officer Thomas Dionne, in a marked scout car, tried to question her about sitting in an unlit black 2010 GMC Yukon parked in the east driveway of St. Paul on the Lake Catholic Church on Lakeshore.

"The area is marked 'No trespassing,'" Rosati said.

"As I entered the west driveway of the lot to investigate, the vehicle sped away without headlights eastbound on Lakeshore," Dionne reported.

He stopped her a short distance later.

"The driver refused to roll the window down to be interviewed," he said. She relented somewhat, lowering a window a half inch, police added.

"She refused to answer Dionne's questions, at times stared for no reason," said Officer Richard Rosati, the detectives' son.

"The officer exhibited a lot of patience," said Dan Jensen, public safety director.

"Her behavior was irrational," said Dionne, suspecting she was drunk. "She had a (male) newborn in the rear infant car seat crying."

Dionne told her she was under arrest.

"She was told to shut off the car," Jensen said.

Instead, she sped off toward Fisher, police said.

"(I) attempted to catch up," said Sgt. Holly Krizmanich. "Noting the vehicle was making no attempt to pull over or stop, (I) terminated pursuit per department policy."

Farms officers alerted agencies down the road that the woman was speeding up to 80 mph and running red lights.

She reportedly avoided spike strips Grosse Pointe Park police placed across the intersection of Maryland, then made a side trip down Alter in Detroit to Angel Park and back to East Jefferson, where another round of spike strips flattened the Yukon's front tires, according to multiple accounts.

Peck didn't stop. She continued westbound toward downtown, police said, riding on rims to the parking lot of McDonald's kitty-corner to Jeffersonian Apartments.

The infant was "unharmful and alert," Krizmanich said. He was released to a grandparent.

At Farms headquarters, the woman refused to take a Breathalyzer test, according to another patrolman.

Officers obtained a search warrant from Rumora for hospital staff to draw Peck's blood for testing at a crime lab for alcohol and drug content.

"Peck was not going willingly" to the hospital, Krizmanich said. "Officers had to physically move her down the hallway to a scout car."

Life after loss

By Jody McVeigh
Community Editor

The Lake House has been a source of encouragement and support to many whose lives have been touched by cancer.

Rosemary Tokatlian is no exception.

When she lost her husband, Ed Moulard, to colon cancer in December 2012, Tokatlian reached to the Lake House for help. The couple had been married three days.

She spent a year and a half in its bereavement group.

"I started to feel better and get better," she said. "I felt like I was getting more and more control over my life and felt like I needed to give back. I wanted to give my time there."

"Right after I joined, I asked the executive director if I could get involved, if I could do anything to help," she continued. "They were there for me; I want us to be there for other people."

Three short years later, after volunteering in public relations, serving on the Lake House board of directors, then its executive committee, Tokatlian recently was elected the organization's president.

In her new role, she will preside over every aspect of the Lake House, from finances and fundraising to community relations.

"I have a lot of meetings," she said, "but that's OK. We have a lot of good things to talk about."

Tokatlian, a Grosse Pointe Park resident, will serve a two-year term in her new role and has goals she'd like to see to fruition.

"I'd like to increase the amount of fundraising, so we can offer more programs," she said. "Those two things go hand in hand. We're a lean organization. Everything has to be done with a lot of care and concern (for costs)."

Tokatlian said the Lake House's support groups are growing and "we're seeing a lot of neat things," but "we'd like to see more people know about us. We want to get more people in the door to be able to help as many people as we can."

Tokatlian's full-time job lends itself nicely to her new role. She works in PR for Mort Crim Communications in Detroit, overseeing PR and web teams, as well as providing management and support to several clients.

Apart from the Lake House, Tokatlian said she was helped through the loss of her husband by another loved one — a shih tzu mix named Cosmo she adopted through the Grosse Pointe Animal Adoption Society six months after her husband died.

"He made a big difference in my life," she said. "They both did."

She said she hopes in her new role, she can help make a big difference in others' lives as well.

"I'm living a fulfilling, very productive life," she said. "I'm doing a lot of the things I did before Ed passed away. There is life after death; it doesn't feel like it when you're in the throes of it, but it's there."

"This group — I went every week for a year and a half and it truly made the difference. What they offered was so special because it was offered on a weekly basis."

It was only natural for her to want to give back to the organization that has given her so much.

"I've done a lot of volunteer work over the years, but never something I've felt this strongly about," she said. "I'm living a good life today."

For more information about the Lake House, call (586) 777-7761 or visit milakehouse.org.

Charity event set

A charity benefit for Racing For Kids will be held 6 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 2, at Northern Trust Bank, 120 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms.

The event includes cocktails and hors d'oeuvres from several eateries in the Farms, along with drifting champion Vaughn Gittin Jr., dream cars on display, live auction, entertainment and dancing in the street on The Hill to end the evening. Cost is $100 per person, $125 after Aug. 28.

including nitrogen and sugar.

"Sap feeding affects the vigor of the tree," McCullough said.

Field studies in New England reveal how adelgid infestations link with other threats to overwhelm hemlocks.

"Trees get progressively weaker, then a drought or another insect defoliates the tree and it can't recover," McCullough said. "Or, if adelgid's been on there for a while and the population builds up, the tree gets weaker and weaker and eventually dies."

Branches dry, turn gray and drop off. The progression usually starts at the bottom of the trunk and moves up.

Report sightings

State agricultural officials want to be notified of outbreaks.

"Michigan is home to more than 100 million hemlock trees which provide valuable habitat for birds, deer and fish," said Gina Alessandri, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development pesticide and plant management division, in a release Thursday, Aug. 13.

An arborist found the Holland outbreak.

"Without the report from an alert individual, it may have gone unnoticed for months, even years, making management of this devastating pest much more difficult," Alessandri said.

Report suspected detections to the state at (800) 292-3939 or MDAinfo@michigan.gov.

Treatment

Home treatment is possible, according to George Meldrum of Allemons Landscape Center in the City of Grosse Pointe.

"We've found a Bayer product, Shrub and Evergreen Insect Control, to be the best," Meldrum said. "It's a dilution. Follow instructions and good luck."

Marshall warned against spraying hemlocks indiscriminately with general insecticides.

"The more general spraying, you kill beneficial insects," he said. "You're better off waiting until you get a little population and address that."

State law forbids importing hemlocks from infected areas.

"The message is to buy trees locally," McCullough. "Buy trees grown in Michigan nurseries. They're not going to bring invasive pests."

proposal consistent with zoning ordinance requirements and sound planning principles," said John Jackson, the city's planning consultant.

"Congratulations," Mayor Jim Farquhar told Garmo. "Mack's looking great. It's going to look even better."

City officials granted an exception to the parking requirement. The market is allowed to provide two less spaces than normally required for an operation its future size. Some 57 parking spaces are available on company and nearby public property.

A wrecking crew recently primed the expansion by tearing down Preferred Cleaners next door on the corner of McKinley.

Demolition revealed an old, black and white sign painted on the market's original outer wall advertising Schnappskey whiskey for $1.34 per pint.

Garmo said the brand isn't available anymore and, if it were, "Not at that price."

He's eager to open the new store.

"We've been blessed," he said. "The community is wonderful and very supportive. It will be exciting to serve the community that much better."

A Detroit woman in her 20s is suspected of stealing $695 from the cash drawer of her now-former employer's business in the 17800 block of Mack.

Thefts occurred during three days between July 29 and Aug. 4, according to the proprietor, police said.

"(The) victim stated the suspect was working on all three days," said the officer.

No mirage

At about 12:45 a.m. Monday, Aug. 10, an officer preparing to go on patrol sat in his cruiser in the driveway of public safety headquarters facing Maumee.

He saw a woman driving a silver 2001 Mitsubishi Mirage westbound in the eastbound lanes, then turn northbound into the southbound lanes of St. Clair.

She was "overcompensating for distance from vehicles parked on the east side of the street," the officer said. "The vehicle then nearly struck a parked vehicle before (I) initiated a traffic stop" near the intersection of Charlevoix.

The woman, 25, of Harper Woods, registered a .20 percent blood alcohol level and was arrested for drunken driving, according to police.

Bike lifted

A woman living at an apartment in the 17500 block of Mack said someone stole her bicycle from a carport overnight Saturday, Aug. 8.

"(The) bike was locked wheel-to-wheel, not anchored," said an investigating officer. "She believes (it) was carried away."

The bike is red, has a basket, light and speedometer.

Bike taken

Sometime after 5 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 12, someone stole a bicycle locked to a rack attached to a car parked in the teacher's lot of Grosse Pointe South High School, the owner, a

Public Safety Reports

59-year-old Farms man, reportedly told police the next afternoon.

The bike, a black Trek Verve 3, is worth $660, he added.

Scratched

Someone scratched the side of a silver 2015 Ford near the gasoline cap while parked in the 200 block of Cloverly during the evening of Tuesday, Aug. 11, its owner told police.

Cited & warned

Shortly after 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 12, a patrolman reported a man exited a medical marijuana store on Mack in Detroit, got behind the wheel of a 2011 GMC Sierra and drove eastbound on Mack, swerving.

The man, 33, of Grosse Pointe Woods, carried a white paper bag typical of how the business packages narcotics, according to police.

"The driver did not properly store the bag in accordance with the Michigan Medical Marijuana Act," said the officer.

During a traffic stop near Allard, officers said they found a pill bottle containing marijuana in leaf form and two foil bags of THC candy.

The latter two "are not listed as usable marijuana under the (the) act," said the officer.

Police cited the man for possession of dangerous drugs and warned him about improper transport of medical marijuana.

All in

All available public safety officers converged at 3:03 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 12, on a house in the 400 block of Madison where a woman threatened by telephone "to shoot herself if she sees a police officer," according to one of the officers involved.

Medics took her to a hospital for committal, the officer added.

19th hole

Police charged a 61-year-old woman from the City of Grosse Pointe for having a .16 percent blood alcohol level while driving a 2011 Jeep Cherokee on westbound Grosse Pointe Boulevard near Kerby, a half block from headquarters, at 7:09 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 11.

Another motorist tailing the woman warned officers about her driving erratically on southbound Moross.

She made a wide, right turn onto the boulevard, nearly hitting a patrolman's cruiser in oncoming lanes, the officer reported.

"(She) stated she had been in Birmingham for golf lessons and was drinking after her lessons at the same location," according to the arresting officer.

Her reported blood alcohol level was twice the legal limit.

Bike harvested

A City of Grosse Pointe man, 19, reported his mountain bike stolen in Piney Woods during the evening of Tuesday, Aug. 11.

"(He) stated he left his bicycle unlocked in the wooded field at the north end of Lothrop near Charlevoix," said an officer.

The bike is a black and gray Giant Boulder SE model valued at $300, the owner told police.

Pretender

A man claiming friends in high legal places reportedly objected to being arrested last week for drunken driving.

"(He) informed officers numerous times that he was a Wayne County prosecutor and he would 'Get us all,'" reported the arresting officer.

The man, 28, of Detroit, isn't listed among prosecuting attorneys on the department's website.

The officer arrested him during a traffic stop on Mack near the intersection of East Warren at 2:33 a.m. Monday, Aug. 10.

He wouldn't take a Breathalyzer test, "screaming, 'No,' multiple times," said the officer.

During a blood draw at a hospital, he was "argumentative and non-compliant with hospital staff and public safety officers," according to police.

Grosse Pointe Shores

Near crash

At 2:20 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 16, a patrolman monitoring traffic reported the driver of a black 2000 Cadillac disregard a red light on southbound Lakeshore at Vernier.

"The vehicle continued through the red light, nearly hitting another vehicle attempting to turn from northbound Lakeshore to westbound Vernier," said the officer.

The suspect reached speeds exceeding 70 mph before the patrolman could stop him near the intersection of Oxford.

Police said the driver, a 23-year-old Eastpointe man, had a .137 percent blood alcohol level.

They arrested him for drunken driving.

GUEST OPINION

President Carter leaves a positive legacy

By Gordon E. Morlan

His recent health issues have caused me to think about Jimmy Carter. He has made significant contributions before, during, and after his presidency.

Surely one of the first must be the Camp David Accords, where Mr. Carter held a Middle East peace summit for 13 days, successfully getting Menachem Begin (Israel) and Anwar Sadat (Egypt) to communicate with each other in a positive way.

He was also instrumental in developing the Panama Canal Treaties, dealing with energy problems (remember his wearing a sweater in the White House after turning the heat down?), and creating two new cabinet departments (Energy and Education).

Carter signed into law the Chrysler Corporation Loan Guarantee Act which specifically helped many in our area, by bailing out Chrysler.

He did several unpopular but wise things including canceling military pay raises during a time of high inflation and resulting government deficit.

Did you know that in 1979 he deregulated the American beer industry, which made it legal to sell malt, hops, and yeast to American home brewers?

Many successful craft breweries today are due to this action. He declared a federal emergency in 1978 which led to the city of Niagara Falls becoming protected from the hazardous dump site of the Love Canal by having a federally constructed containment area. This was the first time such a process was undertaken.

Several years ago my wife Judy and I attended Sunday School in Plains, Ga., when Mr. Carter was teaching. The topic was from the book of Mark, approached from a sensible and very practical manner, with much attention given to contributions from those in attendance. Following church we met with him and Rosalynn for a few minutes. I had just read "Our Endangered Values," and that was discussed in some detail. Since then I have enjoyed "An Hour Before Daylight," and "Hornets Nest," and especially "A Call to Action."

Even after leaving office, he has continued to be a positive force. He received the Nobel Peace Prize for his work in finding peaceful solutions to international conflict. Only four presidents have received this prize. His work via the Carter Center included elimination of the Guinea Worm disease, and monitoring elections in several countries, making them more honest. His support of Habitat for Humanity continues to encourage many to use a hammer.

Let us not never forget this gentleman leader.

Gordon E. Morlan is a resident of Grosse Pointe Park.

Agree!

In response to your article in this week's Grosse Pointe News, yes! Boring is good.

If boring means living in quiet, tree-lined, walkable and bike-able neighborhoods, where streets and sidewalks are kept free of snow in the winter, neighbors and families look out for one another... yes! Boring is good.

If boring means having excellent public and private schools, libraries, a variety of cultural activities, as well as a network of the best pocket and lakefront parks in which children and families can learn and enjoy themselves...yes! Boring is good.

If boring means having emergency responders and community leaders who don't just respond quickly whenever emergencies do arise, but who do so many big and little things to make us feel safe and secure every day...yes! Boring is definitely good.

If boring is having a lot of older people and young families with children... yes! Boring is good.

Having so many "old" and "really old" people means the lifestyle here is pretty great for actively and happily aging-in-place, surrounded by family and friends.

And so many of those younger people who moved away for college or graduate school, or to establish their careers years ago, are now moving back – to get married, start families and raise their children. Why?

Because of the excellent schools, parks, safety, community services and amenities, walkable and bike-able neighborhoods, proximity to extended family and friends for mutual support and care.

Call it boring if you want to. I call it community. And there's no place like home.

Questions

"The Art of Healing," GPN article and the photo of the crucifix above the altar with other icons along with the announcement by Suzy Berschback of a new program at Beaumont Hospital "music, art and mindfulness," gives one a queasy feeling of something like "new age" acting out in a quasi-religious way.

Beyond that, who can really argue against music and art? It's like ice cream. We all like it. But the mindfulness part is questionable. If individual mindfulness is found to be lacking, what and whose version is it to be filled with?

This all falls into the realm of religion, partly because regardless of our particular faith belief (including humanism), it is timely with the bishops conference (synod) on the family and sacramental concerns to be held in Rome Oct. 4-25. If somehow because of apathy the clash of bishops there results in a drastic defeat of tradition regarding sacramental integrity and the liberal European plus some American bishops prevail and do alter doctrine, well then the microcosm represented here in a hospital setting as "new age mindfulness" will become mainstream.

In matters like this it is understood that backing up the claims of "studies show" or "research shows the benefits of" needn't be shown or documented, rack it up to artistic license, right? Again who doesn't like music if it's free, especially within a business where even the slightest procedure is very definitely costly. As for passing the basket (another tradition shot), Berschback makes no mention of it. She does however welcome the community to philanthropic support. Now that is class.

Free?

I recently returned from an eight-day visit with relatives who in 1914 retired to Franklin, Tenn.

Franklin is a lovely town about 20 minutes south of Nashville. It is historically famous for the largest battle of the Civil War. Five generals lost their lives during the battle in Franklin.

In addition to that distinction to all the historic places to visit and the numerous antique shops, it has a large and thriving downtown area. It is a shopper's paradise.

The variety of individually owned stores and the restaurants amazed me. At 11 a.m., the shops are busy waiting on customers. By noon the restaurants are filling up. Street parking is already filled up, but lots in back of the businesses will accommodate the overflow. What astounded me was (and could this help account for the thriving success) there are no meters on the streets. In place of meters is a friendly sign that says "4 hours free parking." Equally astounding, when we pulled into the rear parking lot, the sign there said, "4 hours free parking." I wonder if our Grosse Pointe governments need to ask themselves some questions.

I SAY By Mary Anne Brush

A lot of emotions when they leave, but not sadness

"How far from me my children built again."

This is a line from a poem, "The Blue Umbrella," by my father, the poet Stanley Koehler. The poem depicts a family on a beach, the father dozing under the shade of the umbrella while his children build sand castles by the water's edge. When he awakes, the sun has dropped in the sky, the shadows lengthened, and his children, following the ebb of the tide and the retreating waves, have distanced themselves from him.

It is of course a metaphor for parenthood — a process that is at once gradual and instant at the same time.

That is how I feel about our last child departing for college.

"Will you cry when you drop Jared off?" my daughters asked me the other day.

I replied that I didn't cry when either of them left; that for me it was a happy time, a time for celebration, not tears. I'm sure they were imagining their father and me driving away, tears streaming down our faces while our son grew smaller in the rear view mirror. It's a romantic image, but not necessarily how it happens.

My friends describe crying at unexpected times and, in one case, at all times. For some it is the anticipation of the event. For others it is the aftermath. It could be while you are folding a faded and worn and particularly familiar shirt at the dryer. One friend said she would get emotional every time she passed her daughter's (uncharacteristically tidy) bedroom.

There are a lot of emotions involved — nostalgia, melancholy, apprehension, regret — but sadness is not one of them, at least for me. There is also triumph — we did it! — relief, gratitude, excitement, joy.

The process is gradual, like the receding tide, the sinking of the sun below the horizon. The transformation, on the other hand, is immediate. One second they are there; the next they are gone.

"Sun, that will drive them thence," — the poem continues — "these hours undo me."

Included are costs from several first responder agencies from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties and industrial contractors. Among the charges are $53,463 from the Western Wayne County Fire Department, $71,537 from the Oakway Mutual Aid Association, $62,373 from Ricman Construction Inc. and $29,607 from Macomb County. City Attorney Don Berschback told the council at its Monday, Aug. 17, meeting the city's insurance carrier denied the claim. He asked authorization to pursue legal action not only against the city's carrier, but also against the contractor's estate and insurance carrier.

But in the meantime, Berschback asked the city to reimburse the agencies that assisted in the incident for half of their invoiced costs. The money would be paid from the city's general fund.

"They have been waiting for payment for almost a year," Berschback told the council, adding the city notified its insurance carrier the day after the incident and was just recently told the charges would not be covered.

He also asked the city to authorize an expert in insurance law to review Rumph's policy with his insurance carrier, Secura, to see what costs Secura would be obligated to cover.

In addition, the council authorized Berschback to pursue action in circuit court against "responsible parties," including Rumph Construction and his estate and the owner of the property.

The council, on a unanimous vote, approved the expenditures.

Rumph was killed when a trench he was building in anticipation of work on a sewer line collapsed. Recovery operations took 42 hours and involved more than 50 authorized personnel.

CRASH:

(she may have lost consciousness)," said Dan Jensen, Farms public safety director. "Autopsy results may help us with that."

Dead at the scene was Katie Pinney Ecclestone.

She graduated in 1989 from Grosse Pointe South High School and was vice president of preservation for its Mothers' Club, according to club president Laura Huebner, in an e-mail to members of the community.

"Her quiet manner belied a fierce capability which extended beyond South to her involvement at Maire (Elementary,) Pierce (Middle School), as a Girl Scout volunteer, a Grosse Pointe Historical Society volunteer and as a participant in the Susan G. Komen 3-Day (breast cancer fundraiser)," Huebner wrote. "Her wonderful spirit and enthusiasm will be missed beyond measure."

Ecclestone's 14-year-old daughter, riding in the front seat, suffered lacerations and internal injuries; the daughter in back, 10, has a broken leg among multiple fractures, police said.

"The front seat passenger desperately attempted to control the vehicle," McQueen said. "She did everything she possibly could, given the circumstances. I mean, my gosh, what would you do?"

Officers believe the Flex was exceeding the 35 mph limit.

There are no skid marks at the crash site.

The collision stopped both vehicles virtually in their tracks. Engines of each car were pushed into the firewalls, bending and twisting the frames and bodywork, jamming doors shut.

Broken pieces of both cars' right front headlight assemblies landed hundreds of feet up and down Lakeshore, respectively, McQueen said.

"I was first on scene," said Farms Lt. Jack Patterson.

He saw a citizen tending the elderly woman in the Acadia.

"She was conscious," Patterson said.

He went to the Flex.

"The driver did not have any signs of life," he said. "A little girl in the back seat was talking."

Additional officers began arriving.

Patterson thought there were four people in the Flex.

"We broke the windows out and removed the little girl," Patterson said. "A dog, which I'd thought was a fourth victim, came flying out."

Officers removed the Flex's windshield, but had to remove the front seat passenger through a rear side door, according to McQueen.

Teams of officers from six other municipal departments — Grosse Pointe Shores, City, Park, Woods, Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores — assisted.

Some used hydraulic cutting tools to free the Acadia driver, sheer doors off the Flex and peel its roof back from the windshield to the rear cargo area.

"It was great to have the cooperation," Jensen said. "We needed all of them at the beginning. It's tragic. There's kids involved. Obviously, it was a heck of an impact."

Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores officers did most of the extrication due to their experience with crashes on the I-94 expressway.

"It took 3 1/2 to 4 hours to extricate the (deceased) woman from the vehicle," Jensen said.

Officers transferred her to an ambulance shortly before 5 p.m.

Shattered car parts and severed doors littered the scene.

A brown stain from leaked motor fluids marks the point of impact on pavement in front of where a grassy median begins to divide Lakeshore as it curves inland from the Lake St. Clair shoreline.

The Flex, headed eastbound toward Moross, wound up rotated nearly 180 degrees to the left, toward land, its rear half on the grassy median.

The Acadia, driven westbound toward Fisher in what police believe was the left lane, landed more than 90 degrees left, toward the lake, partially backed onto Warner.

It looked as though it was hit while exiting the side street onto Lakeshore, which is what some officers said they first thought.

Police closed Lakeshore until evening in both directions between Edgemere and Newberry Place.

Volunteer members of the Farms police auxiliary routed traffic to Grosse Pointe Boulevard until representatives of the Wayne County Medical Examiner concluded observations, Farms and Michigan State Police documented the scene and wrecking crews took debris away.

At some point in the process, an officer handed the dog, seemingly uninjured, to a witness, McQueen said.

State police are expected to issue their analysis this week.

The Gearheads, Grosse Pointe North and South high schools' joint robotics team, hosted an open house Monday, Aug. 10, to thank the 2014-15 sponsors and showcase last year's accomplishments. The night included demonstrations from six development subteams. Guests also had the opportunity to drive one of the team's three award-winning robots.

Rocketry team hits new heights

By Mary Anne Brush
Staff Writer

A trio of Grosse Pointe North High School freshmen launched a rocketry team last year with the goal of qualifying for the Team America Rocketry Challenge, the world's largest student rocket contest. The students, Keenan Bakowski, Danny Morrison and Thomas Supal, got together after school, on weekends and during school breaks to test rockets. Supal's father, Mark Supal, served as their coach and mentor. "The three of us have been childhood friends," Bakowski said. "Mr.

Supal is a science teacher. He introduced us to TARC so we put together a team, qualified and went to D.C."

It was not as simple as Bakowski makes it sound. It took a lot of trial and error and a number of practice runs before the students successfully launched a rocket that came within five feet of the required 800 feet to qualify. The feat earned them a trip to the national finals in Washington, D.C., where the top 100 teams compete for more than $100,000 in cash and scholarships and the chance to travel to the United Kingdom to compete in the International Rocketry Challenge. The national finals take place each May and the international challenge occurs in July. The contest's rules and scoring parameters change every cycle to challenge the students' ingenuity and encourage a fresh approach to rocket design. This year's contest challenged students to design, build and fly a rocket carrying two raw eggs to an altitude of 850 feet and return them to ground with the eggs unharmed within 44 to 46 seconds.

Ironically, the North team rocket traveled slightly too high to win. "Conditions were different in D.C. than in Michigan," Morrison explained. "It was more humid and we couldn't make the necessary adjustments."

However, the boys' PowerPoint presentation of how their rocket was built and launched was one of only 15 selected to be shown during the finals weekend.

"It's exciting to see students use their hands to construct actual models rather than to push buttons on a keyboard or phone," said Mark Supal, an electrical engineer and full-time teacher of technology at the Macomb Mathematics Science Technology Center secondary school. "There is so much interest in athletics and the competition associated with sports. Designing model rockets gives students a way to develop an interest in engineering and still have the sense of competition and winning." He said he looks forward to continuing his role in the fall.

"The boys have learned a great deal from Mark's innovation," said Morrison's mother, Christine Morrison.

Team member Morrison hopes to continue this activity for all four years of high school. He expects to pursue math, science or engineering in college and said the experience allowed him to turn classroom learning into practical application. "It even helped me pick classes for next year," he said, including advanced placement biology.

Sponsored by the Aerospace Industries Association and the National Association of Rocketry, TARC is a key piece of the aerospace and defense industry's strategy to build a stronger U.S. workforce in science, technology, engineering and mathematics.

Where technology meets tradition

Starting with its renowned Innovation and Design Center, which focuses on developing student interest and excitement in the fields of science, technology, engineering and math (STEM), The Grosse Pointe Academy is exposing students in Grades 1 through 8 to some of the most advanced technology found in an elementary school environment. Combined with an academic curriculum centered on literature, language, social studies, the arts and Christian life, the Academy is providing a strong foundation of learning, where each child is nurtured, challenged and inspired every day.

RISING STAR PARK TEEN RELEASES DEBUT EP

By Jody McVeigh
Community Editor

For as long as she can remember, Hannah Ayrault has wanted to sing.

"From the minute I could talk, I remember liking music, making up songs in my head," the 19-year-old Grosse Pointe Park resident said.

Now Ayrault, who is starting her sophomore year at Belmont University in Nashville, is celebrating the release of her first CD — a five-song EP titled "Me Right Now."

The release is just the start for the teen, who has worked hard to kick off her singing career.

She was a toddler when she started to sing; just a year or two later, after listening to her father play a song on the piano, she played it back to him by ear.

She started taking piano lessons soon after.

"I wrote my first song when I was 12," she said, adding she also started voice lessons at that age. She was a member of the Grosse Pointe Children's Choir in middle school, then sang with the choir at Grosse Pointe South High School. She also is a four-time Michigan Music Educators Association honors composer.

"Throughout my high school years, my original songs were selected amongst thousands of applicants statewide to be performed during the MMEA annual festival in Grand Rapids," she said.

During her junior year at the festival, the band director for Interlochen Arts Academy, Dr.

Matthew Schlomer, "strongly encouraged me to audition for the academy's new singer-songwriter program. I auditioned that spring, was accepted and attended the academy my senior year of high school."

Ayrault said she learned a lot about songwriting during her time at Interlochen, which was gratifying but also humbling for the teen.

"I went into it thinking no one did what I did," she said. "I thought I was unique. But when I went in, the talent in that program was so amazing. I knew I had so much work to do. I really grew that year. It was the most amazing year of my life."

She was selected to write four pieces for the school's dance company's yearly showcase, working with visual artists, choreographers, a professional songwriter and others to compose and perform the work.

"That's the embodiment of what they like to do there," she said. "It gives you a better understanding of how important it is to work together."

Ayrault continues to study songwriting in Nashville, with a minor in music business.

Last fall, she happened to share a song with a friend, who shared it with his friend Jon Lewis, a professional music producer who asked to meet the aspiring singer. From there, her EP was born.

"This all happened by chance. I was just really, really lucky," she said. "It was the coolest thing. It's nice to have someone — from hearing just one song — who believes in you and wants to work with you."

She worked on the EP all year, recording every day. She finally finished in June and got physical copies of the CD a couple weeks ago.

"It's nice to have something physical in my hands and say here's my work," she said.

She's sent copies of the EP to 250 radio stations nationwide, hoping to get some exposure. "Me

"Right Now" is expected to be released on iTunes and Spotify in early October.

"This is what I've wanted to do for a really long time," she said. "I think now it's more in reach than it ever has been. My goal is to make a living doing what I love."

She's gotten a good response from people in the industry so far. And from local audiences as well.

She's performed at Rockefeller's, Telly's Place and Atwater in the Park, as well as Cliff Bells, Cadieux Cafe, several weddings and private parties. She had her biggest audience when she sang the national anthem to a stadium full of Tigers fans at Comerica Park on two occasions. She also sings on the streets in Boyne City and at Eastern Market.

"I feel at home (onstage)," she said. "I get nervous, but I feel at home. That's where I'm supposed to be."

Ayrault, whose influences include Norah Jones, Jason Mraz, Lo-Fang, Ed Sheeran and Madonna, said the EP is like a diary for her, having written all the music and lyrics for the album.

"I know who I was thinking about, who I wrote the songs for. It's more personal. When those get applause, when they get noticed, it's an even better feeling than someone saying, 'That was a nice cover.' Just to be recognized is so nice."

HANNAH AYRAULT

ME RIGHT NOW

Hannah Ayrault's debut EP, "Me Right Now," will be available on iTunes and Spotify in October.

For now, Ayrault is focusing on school, booking gigs for her return to Grosse Pointe during the holidays and next summer, as well as keeping an eye on the future.

"There are so many different paths I can go down. I could stay in Nashville, I could write for myself or for other people, but I really love Grosse Pointe and the whole area. It's home for me," she said. "If my music is successful, that's a bonus, but I'd love to just play music in restaurants around here ... I think there could be a really cool music scene around here."

Ayrault, who attended Trombly Elementary School and Pierce Middle School, has received a lot of support from her parents, Terry and Lisa, throughout the years.

"We're excited," Lisa Ayrault said. "She's worked hard. It's nice to see her hard work and dedication pay off."

"Our biggest (hope) is that she's able to work with people with integrity and identify when she's not, that she's true to herself and true to her artistry," she continued. "I want to see my kids happy and wake up and look forward to going to work, too, to love work and what they do. Everything else is a bonus."

Ayrault also credits the Grosse Pointe Public School System for much of her success.

"I had a good musical experience with the Grosse Pointe schools. It's so nice for little kids to be exposed to music and exposed to music projects. It's such a gift. It fostered my interest and my appreciation for music. It exposed me to being onstage, acting out a story with music. It was the best gift. The school system itself was such a nice start to my career. I'm thankful for that and the community, too."

Ready for change Central library redesign on the horizon

By Jody McVeigh
Community

The Grosse Pointe Library's Central Branch has waited eight long years to see some changes.

In 2007, the library began working with an architect for a redesign that involved 40,000 square feet and $24 million.

"Then the economy tanked and we gave up on the redesign," said Vickey Bloom, executive director.

But times have changed and library administration decided to form a committee to discuss how they could change the look of the library without it costing an arm and a leg.

Working with Library Design Associates, organizers have made a plan and expect to start work soon.

"Our main goal was to create a small meeting/program room," Bloom said. "This will allow for storytime on the first floor. The meeting room would be (available) for community groups, too."

To create space for the meeting room, staff offices will be moved from the first floor to upstairs space.

Computers have already been relocated to a room behind the circulation desk, "so it's like a computer lab now," Bloom said. Two-person study rooms also will be added near the back of the computer lab.

Where the computers used to be, the library will put tables and chairs to give the area a cafe-like setting complete with Wifi and a coffee station.

"All down the front windows will be comfortable seats with tables," Bloom continued. "We'll move the shelves so they don't take up that prime spot along the windows."

The youth room will be revamped to make it "kid-sized" by bringing in shorter shelves and will include interactive kiosks. It, too, will have more comfortable seating as well as house books and DVDs.

A teen section will be created featuring books, chairs, tables and computers just for teens, Bloom said.

The project will reduce the library's non-fiction collection by no more than 17 percent; however, Bloom said, those books will either be transferred to the other two library branches or they'll be put in storage at Central, so they'll still be in the system and available to patrons upon request.

New furniture, shelving, carpet and labor will be provided at wholesale, factory-direct prices with additional low planning and procurement fees, which along with abatement fees, brings the price tag to just more than $728,000.

"We were able to budget for this from saving diligently all these years," Bloom said. "We have a nice fund equity."

The possibility of there being more electrical work was not included in the budget, so the final tally may change.

Bids for new carpet should go out in the next couple of months, Bloom said, and the rest of the project should take off from there.

"We're hoping by spring to have the program room and maybe the carpet done," she said. "Possibly the youth room, too."

Artisans wanted Library plans holiday shop

By Jody McVeigh
Community Editor

It's never too soon to start thinking of the holidays.

The Grosse Pointe Public Library's Central Branch is accepting applications for crafters and artisans interested in selling their wares at its Gifts of the Season event from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 7.

"This is our second year," Executive Director Vickey Bloom said. "Our desire was to highlight the books and DVDs people might want to give as gifts. Last year, we had tables of books and DVDs with a few artisans sprinkled in. This year, we'll highlight the top 25 books and do more of an artisan market, so people can shop for gifts as well as literary gifts."

Crafters are invited to submit applications, available online at gp.lib.mi.us, by Monday, Aug. 31.

"We won't have room for all of them," Bloom said. "In mid-September we'll decide what we can hold. Hopefully we'll have a very good little market on Nov. 7."

Bloom said organizers hope for handmade items that are not too expensive. "Something unique, interesting, whimsical. Something people may not have seen somewhere before."

Coffee and light refreshments will be available.

There is no charge to rent table space and participating artisans keep the money they make through sales.

"It's more of a community gathering," Bloom said. "Hopefully we'll all profit from it, with gifts. The main thing is to get the books out there."

For more information, visit the library's website or call (313) 343-2074.

Joseph Patrick Dunne Bauer

Lifelong Grosse Pointe Joseph Patrick Dunne Bauer, 18, died Wednesday, July 29, 2015.

He was born March 17, 1997, in Detroit, to Ray and Fran Bauer. He was raised in a loving Catholic home and was a parishioner at St. Paul on the Lake Catholic Church.

Joe is survived by his parents, Raymond and Frances; sister, Mary Grace; brothers, Raymond and John Paul; maternal grandparents, James Dunne and Janet Dunne, and many loving aunts, uncles, cousins and friends.

He was predeceased by his brother, Luke, and paternal grandparents, Ray and Ginny Bauer.

Joe attended grade school at Our Lady Star of the Sea in Grosse Pointe Woods and middle school at St. Paul on the Lake in Grosse Pointe Farms. He graduated with honors from University of Detroit Jesuit High School in 2015, where he played varsity soccer and lacrosse. He was enrolled at Michigan State University for fall 2015.

His family said Joe was full of joy and always had a smile on his face. He excelled at sports, but his passion was music. He loved to play his guitar. Joe's generosity knew no bounds. He literally would give the clothes off his back or the shoes off his feet to anyone in need. He was the kind of young man anyone would be proud to call son, brother, grandson, cousin or friend.

In addition to a memorial held at U of D Jesuit, his viewing, prayer services and Mass of the Resurrection were held at St. Paul on the Lake Catholic Church. Joe will be greatly missed by those who knew him.

Donations may be made to University of Detroit Jesuit High School, 8400 S. Cambridge Ave., Detroit, MI 48221 or at uofdjhs.org/donatenow or Mary's Mantle-Catholic Home for Expectant Mothers, P.O. Box 115, Bloomfield Hills, MI 48303 or at marys.mantle.net/donate.

Raymond Joseph Droste

Grosse Pointe Park resident Raymond Joseph Droste, 76, passed away Monday, Aug. 10, 2015.

He was born March 28, 1939, in Detroit. He had many varied interests including military history, especially World War II and U.S. Civil War, all sports, symphonic music, reading, long walks, jigsaw puzzles and travel. He loved to challenge his knowledge of many topics watching "Jeopardy." His interest in Civil War history led him to many years of membership in the Michigan Regimental Round Table.

After graduation from Austin Catholic Preparatory High School, Mr. Droste attended Wayne State University, earning bachelor's and master's degrees in marketing and management. He also served a six-year obligation in the U.S. Coast Guard Reserves. He enjoyed a 35-year career in purchasing at Ford Motor Co., featuring two six-month assignments at Ford of Mexico, as well as extensive traveling in Europe and the Far East.

After retirement, Mr. Droste was active in the American Legion with Grosse Pointe Post No. 303. He was post commander eight years and also commander of the Detroit district for three years. He also enjoyed many years working as a docent at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford Estate.

Mr. Droste was predeceased by his wife of 37 years, Ann Marie Droste. He is survived by his sons, Bryan (Julie) and Scott; stepchildren, Franklin Miller V (Susie), Mark Miller (Hong), Karen Miller (Ann), Julie Miller-Jason (Ray) and Marsha Baranek (Gary) and grandchildren, Jamie Baranek, Kelly Baranek, Stephanie Jason, Christopher Jason, Sean Miller, Michael Miller and Patrick Miller.

He was predeceased by his parents, Roman and Blanche Droste and siblings, Robert Droste, William Droste, Marie Giordano and Virginia

Droste.

A funeral Mass was held Aug. 13 at St. Clare of Montefalco Catholic Church, Grosse Pointe Park.

Donations may be made to the Capuchins, 1820 Mt. Elliot, Detroit, MI 48207 or to the American Legion, Grosse Pointe Post No. 303, 4810 E. Outer Dr., Detroit, MI 48224.

Jane Deacon Chapin Smith

Former Grosse Pointe resident Jane Deacon Chapin Smith, 92, died Thursday, July 9, 2015, in Florida. She lived in Grosse Pointe Farms 35 years before moving to Juno Beach, Fla.

She was born in Waterbury, Conn., to Walter and Gladys Deacon, and graduated from St. Margaret's School in 1940. She attended Smith College.

Mrs. Smith enjoyed playing Scrabble and loved chocolate. She worked for a time at the Moth Hole and was a member of Tau Beta, Junior League of Detroit, Garden Club of Michigan and the Country Club of Detroit.

Mrs. Smith is survived by her sons, John C. Chapin Jr. and David D. Chapin; daughter, Suzi Chapin Berli; stepsons, David C. Smith and Stephen W. Smith; 15 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

She was predeceased by her husband, Arthur "Bud" Smith Jr. and son, Deacon S. Chapin.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 26, at Christ Church Grosse Pointe, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd., Grosse Pointe Farms.

Donations may be made to the Shakespeare Theater in Stratford, Ontario, Canada, at stratfordfestival.ca or Loggerhead Marine Life Center in Juno Beach at marinelife.org.

John Robert Herbst

John Robert Herbst, 29, died Sunday, Aug. 9, 2015, in Arizona.

Born in Detroit, he attended Michigan State University, where he was a member of Phi Beta Delta Honor Society for international scholars.

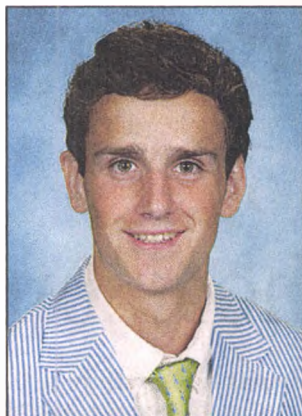

He was a founding member of the Gay Straight Alliance at his high school.

He worked as a barista for Starbucks in Sedona, Ariz. and a sales associate for Gap Outlet.

Mr. Herbst is survived by his parents, Margaret and Jan Herbst and sisters, Helen and Mary.

A funeral service will be held at 10 a.m. Friday, Aug. 21, at Greer's Mortuary Chapel, 2725 W. Highway 89A, Sedona.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to University Liggett School at uls.org/page/giving/the-annual-fund or It Gets Better Project at org.page/itgetsbetter.org/page/contribute.

Congregational Church turns 75

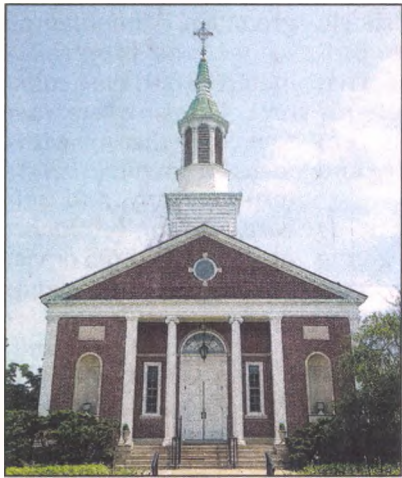

On Oct. 11, Grosse Pointe Congregational Church celebrates its 75th anniversary as a congregation and the 55th anniversary of the church sanctuary on Chalfonte in Grosse Pointe Farms.

In November 1940, with the assistance of the Congregational Association of Detroit, eight eastside residents met and founded a Bible study class and beginning of a congregation. Services were held in the basements of two Grosse Pointe schools. Members increased to 200 people within five years, and a groundbreaking service was held in fall 1948 for the church building.

A dedication service for the completed church was celebrated January 1950. Since then, a youth building was erected, pipe organ installed and a Columbarium created.

The congregation has provided funds for refugee assistance and schools abroad, feeding the hungry, providing toys to children at Christmas as well as being a partner in the Grosse Pointes efforts for Habitat for Humanity. Its Women's Fellowship holds its annual rummage sale, which this year takes place Oct. 2 and 3, to help fund outreach programs throughout the year in the Grosse Pointes and Detroit. The church's 75th anniversary project will supply 75 middle school students at Northeast Guidance Center with backpacks and supplies for a new school year.

GROSSE POINTE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Grosse Pointe Congregational Church celebrates 75 years with a luncheon at the Lochmoor Country Club Sunday, Oct. 11. This luncheon will follow a special service at the church at 10 a.m. that morning. All are invited to attend this service.

PASTOR'S CORNER By Rev. Jimmie Sue Deppe

When my heart is troubled

When I am uncertain, when my heart is troubled, when I strive for wanting direct action but am unsure where to start, when I see systemic issues with no easy answers, that, for me, I see as a continuous erosion of the moral fiber of our communities, the communities of my neighbors on the other side of the barrier. A divide so great at times I believe we need Moses to part the waters within our hearts and, as our best selves cross to the other side, the parted waters close in upon our fears that separate us from those we perceive as other.

In these moments of uncertainty I find I must submit my heart and open myself to prayer. So, I would like to share a prayer that comes from the Episcopal Church's Book of Common Prayer. This is a prayer for social justice: "Grant, O God, that your holy and life-giving Spirit may so move every human heart and especially the hearts of the people of this land, that barriers which divide us may crumble, suspicions disappear and hatreds cease; that our divisions being healed, we may live in justice and peace; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

We must pray for one another, pray to have our hearts softened, to see past the politics and usual arguments that keep us all in our places. Every Sunday throughout our communities there are churches, centers, temples, places of gathering to hear good news. Different faith traditions, common prayers for hope, justice, love, peace and understanding. Every week faithful people listen to their sacred words, are asked to model their lives around and orient their lives toward being followers of a different way of being in the world. Our hope lies in our prayers. The prayers we pray shape our lives, our thoughts, our hearts. I invite us all to pray for compassion and courage to find ways together to create beautiful kingdoms, beautiful gardens of hope for many generations to come.

Rev. Jimmie Sue Deppe is the curate associate at St. Michael's Episcopal Church, Grosse Pointe Woods.

IN YOUR AUGUST 27TH Grosse Pointe News

ASK THE EXPERTS By Megan Gunnell, LMSW, MT-BC

Reaching in, reaching out during times of loss, grief

As a therapist who specializes in grief and loss and an active member of this community, I felt compelled to contribute to the broken hearts of those impacted by the tragic accident that occurred on Lakeshore Saturday, Aug. 15. Because our community is so uniquely small and closely connected, chances are when tragedy hits, we feel the effect of this deep sadness and pain as it ripples through the lives of friends and family who were touched by the loss.

Grieving a sudden, tragic and unexpected loss can be complicated. When a death is unanticipated as in the case of a tragic accident, the bereaved experience a longer and more complicated grief process often layered not only with deep sorrow and sadness, but also with guilt, regret and sometimes anger. It can feel completely overwhelming or even debilitating to try to cope with such unimaginable loss.

The bereaved can experience a multitude of intense symptoms such as extreme exhaustion, muscle fatigue or weakness, headaches, tightness or heaviness in the chest and changes to sleep or appetite. They also can experience intrusive thoughts, excessive guilt or a preoccupation with hypothetical thoughts (i.e., "it could have happened to me," etc). If you find yourself experiencing some of these thoughts and feelings, it can be supportive and comforting to seek professional help.

Sometimes when we are grieving intensely, we feel a sense of being detached or disconnected, in addition to experiencing upsurges in our emotions that can feel like intense waves of sadness, anger or shock. Our psyche tries to process the reality of what has occurred while we simultaneously feel extremely fragile and vulnerable.

Consequently, it is imperative to be gentle with yourself during a time of intense grief. The stressors and stimulation of everyday life can simply be too much when we are experiencing deep emotional pain. Making simple choices for restorative self-care can be helpful in our healing process.

Some find it beneficial to create uninterrupted space and quietude to rest, reflect and begin healing. Others find it comforting to increase their social support and spirituality practices. Remember grieving is a highly individualized experience. It is important to pay attention to what feels most nurturing and restorative to your body, mind and soul.

I know I am not alone when I extend my deepest condolences to those impacted by this tragedy. May the strength and love of our community be an added comfort to all who are grieving at this time.

A LA ANNIE By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

Grilled panzanella salad

It's time for tomatoes. The next several weeks, we'll be showered with juicy rounds and ovals, large and small, some red, some of other colors. Along with a score of tomatoes, I was also handed a large zucchini and a bunch of flat-leaf parsley. A panzanella salad came to mind. Grilled semolina bread tossed with flash-grilled zucchini and scallions, then finished with cherry tomato halves and fresh chopped flat-leaf parsley. A simple vinaigrette with olive oil, white balsamic vinegar and minced curly parsley complete this summer salad.

3 cups halved cherry tomatoes
1/2 cup extra virgin olive oil
1/2 cup white balsamic vinegar
1/4 cup minced fresh parsley
1/2 cup crumbled feta, bleu or Gorgonzola cheese (optional)

Grilled Panzanella Salad with two parsleys

10 1-inch thick slices semolina bread
1 large zucchini, sliced into 1-inch thick slices
1 bunch scallions
1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil, or more if needed
salt and pepper to taste
1 garlic clove, halved

Lightly brush both sides of the bread slices with some olive oil. Season lightly with salt and pepper. Set aside. Brush both sides of the zucchini slices with olive oil and season lightly with salt and pepper. Brush the scallions with a bit of the olive oil and season lightly with salt and pepper.

Heat the grill to 500 degrees. Place the bread slices along with the zucchini slices and the scallions on the grill. Grill the bread and the zucchini on each side for 5 minutes, until golden with grill marks. Rub both sides of the grilled bread with the cut side of the garlic clove. Grill the scallions for just a few minutes, then remove before they burn. Allow everything from the grill to cool completely before handling.

Cut the grilled bread and zucchini into bite-sized pieces and place in a large salad bowl along with the tomato halves and the tomato halves and the chopped flat-leaf parsley. Cut the grilled scallions into half-inch pieces and add to the bowl. Toss gently.

In a small bowl, whisk together the extra virgin olive oil with the white balsamic vinegar and the minced curly parsley. Taste and season with salt and pepper. Drizzle some of the dressing over the salad and toss. Toss in the crumbled cheese and serve.

Don't over grill the zucchini. You want the grill marks and flavor, but the inside of the zucchini slices should be firm.

If you can't find semolina, use any hearty Italian bread or sourdough.

The cubed bread pieces should total 4 to 5 cups.

Food and fun

Grosse Pointe Rotarians, from left, John Maliszewski, Dave Colton, John Mozena and Florence Seltzer, prepared and served lunch July 29 to children at the Grand Avenue Crossroads of Michigan center in Detroit. During the school year, children receive lunches through the National School Lunch Program, but not during the summer. Grosse Pointe Rotarians furnished and served three lunches this summer at Crossroads. For more than two hours each day, the children ate lunch and played games supervised by the Rotarians.

Club welcomes football champ

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe's luncheon is at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 25, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms. The cost is $10. Guest speaker is NFL champion Tom Nowatzke. For tickets or information, call Charlie Rutherford at (313) 885-1823.

Nowatzke was a 1965 first-round pro football draft pick of both the Detroit Lions and New York Jets. He played five seasons with the Lions, then was picked up by the Baltimore Colts. In his second season with the Colts in 1971, when the team reached the Super Bowl for the second time, Nowatzke scored the tying touchdown and was the Colt's leading rusher as they beat the Dallas Cowboys for the Super Bowl V win. Now a resident of Ann Arbor, Nowatzke owns his own firm, Nowatzke Truck & Trailer Inc. He is a member of the NFL Alumni National Board of Directors and is president of its Detroit chapter. He was inducted into the Indiana University Football Hall of Fame in 1996, the Indiana High School Coaches Association Hall of Fame in 1986 and the National Polish-American Sports Hall of Fame in 2008.

USBA champs

Grosse Pointer Anthony Benard and his teammates recently won the USBA American Division National Champs-MWA Elite-2023 played in Atlanta the week of July 6. MWA Elite was the only representative from Michigan and the national event included teams from 25 states and Puerto Rico. In the semifinals, MWA Elite beat Team Bond-TN 57-51 and they edged the Atlanta Nets-GA 50-49 in the championship game. Benard played well and was instrumental in helping the squad capture the tournament title, scoring 17 points in the semifinal and a team-high 19 points, including the game-winning layup with 1.8 seconds left, in the title game. Pictured above are, front row from left, Ryan Hatcher of Belleville, Anthony Benard of Grosse Pointe Park, Elijah Hendricks of Lansing, Alex Jamison of Fort Gratiot and Trevon Jeffery of Port Huron; middle row from left, Triston Nichols of Shelby Township, Tyler Jamison of Fort Gratiot, Steven Hendricks of Lansing and Amir Herring of Southfield; and back row from left, coach Steve Benard, coach Ray Hatcher and coach Brian Jamison.

BASEBALL

Standout

University of Michigan standout Carmen Benedetti, a 2013 Grosse Pointe South High School graduate, enjoyed a second straight successful college baseball season. The Wolverines, 39-25 and 14-10 in the Big Ten, won the Big Ten Tournament and played in an NCAA Regional Tournament, losing to Louisville to end their season. Benedetti ended the season hitting .352 with 82 hits, 71 RBIs, 37 runs, 25 doubles, five homers and two triples. His on-base percentage was .418 and his slugging percentage was .541. He also walked 28 times and struck out only 22 times. Defensively, Benedetti was at .990, making only three errors all season. He also pitched, finishing with three saves and a 1.84 ERA. Benedetti earned some postseason honors and was a Big Ten Player of the Week. Benedetti has a good chance to be a selection in next year's Major League Baseball draft.

GOLF

Grosse Pointer Michael Zielecki recorded his first hole in one on the fifth hole at Timbers Golf Club in Vassar.

He used an 8 iron to ace the 151-yard par three. Witnesses to the ace were Mike Doering, Ken Flynn and Keith Flynn.

After completing the round, Zielecki bought a round for his 16-member group.

Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe awards students

La Distribution de Prix, a reception to honor high school students who have excelled in French language classes, took place June 9 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The annual event sponsored by the Alliance Française de Grosse Pointe is based on an old French custom of giving books to selected students on a subject in which they excelled during the school year. Scholarships are also given to a graduating senior from each of the five schools represented who have excelled in their high school academics.

For almost 30 years, the alliance has continued the tradition in Grosse Pointe to help keep the French culture alive for the students of the community.

This year's recipients include Michael Ellis and Karina Minanov of University Liggett; Alexandra Dean, Lauren Sickmiller, Thomas Supal, Katherine Thomas and Emily Waldner of Grosse Pointe North; Jack Burgoyne, Morgane Flourney and Ponette Rubio of Grosse Pointe South; Nolan Orr, Austin Piontkowski and Cole Tobola of De La Salle Collegiate; and Caitlyn M. Crisher, Rachel Hackett and Julia Roarty of Regina High School.
