Village Fest featured music, food, arts and cars Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 12 and 13. The family event had several new events, including Grosse Pointe's Got Talent. ## Patterson preferred for park

GROSSE POINTE PARK — It was standing room only during the discussion about creating a dog park for four-legged residents and their owners at the Sept. 9 meeting of the Park's Recreation Commission. In the end, the commission was left with two directives: the residents want a dog park and the preferred location is Patterson Park.

That will be the recommendation the commission makes to the city council at its next meeting, set for 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 28, at Park city hall.

About 75 people attended the meeting, with the vast majority being in favor of the park. The residents' desire for a dog park was echoed by several commission members and while consensus on a park was easy, picking out an

Crime's no game at playfield

CITY OF GROSSE POINTE — Tis the season to pluck pigeons at and around Elworthy Field.

Two larcenies reported last week on the property bring the monthly total to three.

"They were all crimes of opportunity, not aggressive crimes," said Detective Sgt. Christopher Lee.

Each incident has a different suspect or suspects, all unidentified.

The latest, Friday, Sept. 11, involved someone stealing a woman's credit card and $50 bill.

She was playing with her children on the Elworthy playground from 11 a.m. to noon while someone took the valuables hidden in a diaper bag, the woman told Sgt. Alan Gwyn.

She suspects an unknown, 40-something man and woman roughly 20 years old with a child.

They spoke a foreign language unfamiliar to the victim, according to Gwyn.

The second-most recent crime happened Sunday afternoon, Sept. 6.

New server for bodycam videos

By Brad Lindberg
 Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — The public safety director wants to bring discussions of cloud-based data storage down to earth. Director Dan Jensen opposes outsourcing the storage of Grosse Pointe Farms police body camera video to a cloud system, in which data is stored by a hosting company.

"The state office of management and budget says it's not secure," Jensen said. "Knowing several clouds have been hacked recently, it's just not a secure enough system."

He wants to continue storing data in-house on a stand-alone computer server physically isolated from outside access and tampering.

"Our (server) is totally secure," Jensen said. "There's no risk (of hacking because there's no way to get into it through an outside site.)"

Prost Pointe comes to the Hill

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — Organizers of an Oktoberfest-style outdoor party on the Hill and their municipal hosts agree — another Dabble'll do ya.

The fall incarnation of Dabble in the Farms, 4 to 10 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 10, in the municipal parking lot next to Richard Elementary School, is revised sufficiently to warrant a new name, Prost Pointe.

The new event differs from Dabble, which resumes in spring, by starting earlier in the day, having lower admission prices and fuller meal service rather than sample portions and a grazing theme.

"Prost" means "cheers" in German, meaning bottoms up, according to Grosse Pointe Park resident Jason Dritsan, of Liquid Events Detroit, organizer of both festivals.

"Prost Pointe will be a celebration of Oktoberfest featuring specialty beers, premium spirits and beer-inspired street food from metro Detroit food trucks," Dritsan said.

This is the sixth event

Dritsan produced in the Farms, which municipal officials endorse to showcase the community.

"It brings people from the west side to see Grosse Pointe," said Councilman Martin West.

Tickets cost $25 in advance and $30 at the gate. Both includes two beer tickets.

Advance tickets come with a souvenir Grosse Pointe stein.

Attendees must be 21 or older.

"A portion of proceeds benefit Camp Casey," Dritsan said.

The camp is a nonprofit organization based in Royal Oak providing horseback rides to child cancer patients.

Dritsan's group is paying the Farms $500 to rent the parking lot. He'll also obtain insurance, shielding the city from liability.

Farms officials required he add a charity to share in the proceeds.

Live music is by the rock-funk-blues band, Howling Diablos.

Farms officials require the band to perform facing opposite adjacent residential neighborhoods.

GPAAS plans adoption days

THE GROSSE POINTES — The Grosse Pointe Animal Adoption Society moves pet adoptions this month to the Farms.

Starting noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 26, the nonprofit group holds adoptions in the Services for Older Citizens building, 158 Ridge at the corner of Muir on the Hill.

Adoptions are scheduled in three classes:

- ◆ noon to 1:30 p.m., all sizes of senior dogs, plus puppies and small dogs;
- ◆ noon to 3 p.m., cats;
- ◆ 1:30 to 3 p.m., all other medium and large dogs.

Adoptions are scheduled Saturdays every two weeks.

Forthcoming adoptions are Oct. 10 and 17,

Nov. 7 and 21, Dec. 2 and 12.

Adoptions cost $295 for dogs, $125 for kittens and $75 for cats.

Fees include the animal's sterilization, shots and testing for heartworm and parasites.

A counselor interviews potential adopters about their compatibility with the pet they want.

The society's 80 volunteers placed 6,500 pets since 1997, according to its website.

For more information, call (313) 884-1551 or visit gpaas@wowway.biz.

teen's interest in their match until realizing one of the player's $700 iPhone 6 was missing and likely stolen.

The owner notified police at 3:01 p.m.

He described the suspect as a thin, nearly 6-foot-tall black male of medium complexion wearing white earrings or ear buds, black shorts and riding a black BMX bicycle.

"The suspect kept circling the courts on his bike until he came over and sat down on the bench where (the players) had their personal property next to the court," reported a public safety officer, citing the victim and his friend. "After several minutes, when the victim was not looking, the perpetrator disappeared. (The) victim discovered his cell phone stolen."

No one noticed where the stranger went.

A suspect in the theft, seen on cell phone video, is described as a black male wearing a white shirt with half the shirt being a dark color.

The monthly trend began with a bicycle theft Friday, Sept. 4, outside the Grosse Pointe Neighborhood Club opposite Elworthy on Maumee at the corner of Waterloo.

SERVER:

Police videos eat up a lot of computer memory, but are increasingly used in court as evidence.

"The No. 1 thing in any successful prosecution is the security of evidence," Jensen said.

Yet, the department's server is at 99 percent capacity.

It lacks room to store additional data downloaded from the department's 10 new, fourth-generation bodycams.

Grosse Pointe Farms officials met the need this week by approving the purchase of a new server estimated to satisfy the department's data storage demands for 10 years.

The server's $32,000 cost includes $4,500 for installation and training for four employees to maintain it.

Contracting cloud-based storage is projected to cost $27,000 per year, Jensen said.

"In the long run, (a server) will be less expensive," Jensen said.

Councilman Lev Wood supported the purchase, but urged colleagues to form an ad hoc committee of municipal officials and residents to research best management practices for data storage, including the cloud.

"Data can be uploaded through the Internet into these systems," Wood said. "It's very efficient. We'd end up paying, typically, an annual support fee."

The Farms currently stores video from body cams, in-car cameras and at the headquarters building for 30 days.

The new server allows storage for 120 days, as recommended by the American Civil Liberties Union and NAACP, with the option to add memory, Jensen said.

Probationer charged with possession

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

CITY OF GROSSE POINTE — Police responding to a domestic disturbance reported in the 500 block of Neff said they found a 23-year-old male resident, already in trouble with the law, passed out on his parents' bathroom floor amid nearly two dozen little bags of heroin and related paraphernalia. At least three officers responded to the parents' complaint at 2:11 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 6, of their son's violent behavior, according to Officer Greg Burks of the City of Grosse Pointe department of public safety. The suspect's father told officers his adult son, a heroin user, had broken up with a girlfriend, was "going through a rough time" and had been "destroying the inside of the house," according to Burks. Officers found the son in a bathroom. "We noticed a needle along with a spoon as well as numerous small packages on the floor and sink countertop that appeared to be heroin packets," Burks reported. Officers removed the man, Charles Patterson Kay, to a sofa. "(He) was verbally abusive and uncooperative with officers," Burks said. Medics took him to a hospital. "(The) subject is currently on probation from Wayne County for arson and on an alcohol tether," Burks said. Officers said they inventoried 19 packets of heroin weighing a combined 3.2 grams, two syringes, two lighters and one spoon. Kay's mother gave officers four additional packets of an unknown white powder, a syringe, three pills of clonazepam and a cell phone, Burks added. Kay was arraigned Thursday, Sept. 10, in City of Grosse Pointe Municipal Court for possession of heroin, a felony, according to Detective Sgt. Christopher Lee. "We delayed his proceedings," Lee said. "It sounds like there's going to be a probation violation hearing first." Kay committed arson of a residence in Grosse Pointe Park three or four years ago, Lee said. "He's on probation for that," Lee added.

acceptable site was not. According to Parks and Recreation Director Terry Solomon, four sites were on the table: Wayburn and Mack, Wayburn and Vernor, Marks Garden at Jefferson and Lakepointe and Patterson Park. But Solomon was not talking about a site within Patterson Park, but rather the 100-by-90 foot strip of land between Essex and the fence at Patterson. Residents quickly questioned a site outside of Patterson, citing parking as one of their main concerns. Residents also were vocal in their opposition to the other sites, with several Lakepointe residents speaking in opposition to the Marks Garden location. "I never would have bought a house next to Marks if I had known a dog park was going in there," said one Lakepointe resident, while another described Marks as a "mudpit" and questioned how parking would be handled. While there appeared to be agreement among residents that Patterson Park would be the perfect site for a dog park, some residents whose homes surround the park were not on board, with a Bedford resident expressing concerns about noise and smell. Several residents spoke of taking their dogs to dog parks in St. Clair Shores and the benefits for both dogs and their owners. Funding for a park would come from both a usage fee and the current fee for dog licenses. According to Mayor Greg Theokas, there are currently 300 licensed dogs in the Park, and with a license being required for using the dog park, extra revenue could be generated through additional licenses. Mike Bannon, who is spearheading the drive for the park, said the park should be considered another amenity for residents, similar to the marina, tennis courts and putting green. "We all support activities we don't participate in," he told the commission. "Many of us don't use the putting green or tennis courts, but we see them as something that is good for the community. I'm going to guess there are far more dogs in this community than golfers." After more than an hour of discussion, the commission voted to make a recommendation to the city council to consider a dog park at Patterson Park, though the location, whether inside the park itself or outside the fence bordering Essex, was not determined. Following the vote, outgoing commission chairman Lou Cerre told the residents this had been, by far, his most exciting meeting in 30 years of service to the commission.

Pricy six-pack

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

CITY OF GROSSE POINTE — Prosecution in municipal court of a resident for misdemeanor shoplifting is delayed while a more serious charge is handled in a higher venue. Defendant Alexander Thomas Hudock, 26, on bond for home invasion in the City of Grosse Pointe when arrested Sept. 4 for stealing a six-pack of beer in the Village, is scheduled for a competency hearing in Wayne County Circuit Court on still another offense, according to City Detective Sgt. Christopher Lee.

"He has a case for breaking into cars at (Detroit) Receiving Hospital," Lee said. "Our (municipal) judge requested we adjourn our case until the competency hearing is completed." The delay could last 60 to 90 days, he added. "He still faces home invasion," Lee said. "I imagine, since all three cases go through Wayne County, there will be some sort of package deal (on the charges)." Hudock's bond for home invasion was revoked and replaced with a cash-only $25,000 bond because of his arrest for shoplifting Molson Canadian worth $7.48, Lee said.

Bob Bashara was back in court this week.

Bashara back in Detroit court

Bob Bashara was back in court Tuesday, Sept. 15, in front of Circuit Judge Vonda Evans. Bashara requested a new trial after he was convicted of the January 2012 murder of his wife, Jane. Bashara was found guilty of first-degree murder in December and is serving life in prison without chance of parole. Ronald Ambrose, Bashara's court-appointed appellate attorney, filed a motion this summer requesting a new trial, alleging, among other charges, ineffective counsel. According to the court papers, Ambrose said Bashara's trial attorneys did not call as witnesses at least five people Bashara claimed would have proved his innocence. On that motion, Evans ordered affidavits filed by Oct. 2 and scheduled a hearing on the affidavits for Oct. 14. Evans ruled Ambrose will be allowed to question Bashara's trial attorneys, Michael McCarthy and Lillian Diallo. McCarthy took the stand Tuesday, but had not completed testimony prior to press time. — Kathy Ryan

Farms resident intent on giving back

By Monica Sabella
Editorial Intern

Saturday, Sept. 19, Angela Hospice Care Center presents its eighth annual "Walk of Remembrance," which begins at Madonna University and ends on the hospice center's backyard. The event invites family members, friends and coworkers to honor the memory of deceased loved ones by participating in the walk, which raises funds for hospice-supported programs.

Among those attending is Farms resident Susan Leslie, who will walk the 2.3 miles in remembrance of her father and mother, who both lived in Grosse Pointe Woods and received care from Angela Hospice in their last days. "It's a bittersweet way to remember all the people you lost and it's uplifting really," Leslie said.

After all the hospice has done for her and others, she said she feels it's important to give back.

Numerous events are thrown each year with proceeds benefitting programs such as its pediatric and in-patient care, as well as holiday workshops for children and counseling for families, regardless of any existing affiliation with the hospice.

"The care there is extraordinary," she said. "There's nothing they wouldn't do there to make the experience the best; they go the extra mile."

Leslie has been involved with Angela Hospice for a number of years, originally working as its marketing manager, then moving on to account manager at Option Care Infusion Services, still actively working with the hospice and its pain patients.

Her connection with Angela Hospice became more personal after her mother, and later her father, fell ill and received care from hospice faculty in her own home until her death in 2010. Leslie recalled her father had a sudden attack on Christmas Eve, two days before his death, and caregivers made a special trip just to be with him. "They treat everyone like family," she said.

Leslie has participated in the walk for a number of years, sometimes with family and other times with friends. Some participants choose to wear "team shirts" of the family member, friend or coworker they are honoring.

The event begins with prayers, occasionally accompanied with a symbolic gesture of releasing doves from a basket into the open air. Throughout the walk there are areas where families are invited to light candles in honor of loved ones. Attendees also are welcome to paint stones for the Angela Hospice Memorial Garden.

"It's something really positive, because proceeds from the walk go to patients and their families. It's a good feeling," said

Public Safety Reports

City of Grosse Pointe

Purse missing

An employee of Beaumont Hospital, Grosse Pointe reported her Fossil purse stolen from the cafeteria Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 8, according to police.

"She ate lunch between 1 and 2 p.m.," said an officer. "After she left the area, she discovered her purse missing."

The purse contained an orange wallet, credit cards, the owner's driver's license and car keys.

"The cards were canceled," said the officer. "(She) was advised to park her vehicle in the garage for the time being."

Unlocked car

Sometime during Monday night, Sept. 7, an unknown person entered a woman's unlocked 2007 Ford Five Hundred parked in the 900 block of Neff.

Missing is a bag containing jewelry, a wallet with credit cards and $35 cash, she reportedly told police at 9:03 a.m. the next day.

Unlocked house

Burglary is the suspected reason a $1,200 MacBook Pro and $300 HP Pavilion are missing from two rooms of a house in the 800 block of Neff.

A male resident explained being away from the property while an exterior door was unlocked between noon Saturday, Sept. 5, and 7 p.m. the next evening, according to an investigating patrolman.

"No force was used" to enter, said the officer. "The (unlocked) door was closed when he returned."

Wallet gone

A man shopping at Kroger in the Village early Sunday afternoon, Sept. 6, lost his wallet containing three credit cards and $80 to $100 cash, he told police shortly before 1:30 p.m.

He said he placed the wallet on a shopping cart while en route from the frozen drink aisle, to the bread section, to the area where charcoal is sold, to the produce department

Says it all

A Detroit man, 70, gave police the evidence needed to arrest him at 10:37 p.m. Friday, Sept. 11, for speeding and driving drunk up Moross from Lakeshore and up Kercheval until he stopped near Provencal.

"He explained he was late to pick up his (15-year-old) daughter and that was why he was speeding," said the officer. "(He) had an odor of intoxicants that became stronger as he spoke."

He also registered a .10 percent blood alcohol level, said officers.

They impounded his black 2015 Chevrolet Tahoe.

Drugged driving

Police arrested a 25-year-old man from Dearborn at 1:25 a.m. Friday, Sept. 11, on Lakeshore for driving under the influence of narcotics.

Upside down

By Brad Lindberg

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — A woman in her 80s, driving to a hair appointment, survived without injury last week landing upside down in her car on Fisher.

Medics took her to a hospital to make sure.

"She was worried her hair dresser was going to be mad at her for being late to the appointment," said Officer Frank Zielinski, a traffic crash investigator for Grosse Pointe Farms public safety.

Officers said the wreck happened on Fisher between Charlevoix and Mack at about 2:15 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 10.

They found the woman belted to the driver's seat of a Chrysler Town & County resting half way through a barrel roll.

"We, with guys from the City of Grosse Pointe and medics, were able to stabilize her and get her out of the vehicle," Zielinski said.

She lives in the Farms. Zielinski ruled out speeding. He didn't issue a citation.

"She veered right, hit a parked car and probably over-corrected to the left," he said. "By that time, she hit the curb and flipped, ending up on the roof."

A patrolman pulled him over near the intersection of Moross for driving into the entrance of Pier Park, which was closed for the night, turning off his car's headlights and reentering Lakeshore.

The man admitted smoking marijuana less than an hour earlier, said the officer, noting the man's bloodshot eyes, unsteady hand and nervous manner.

Drunken driving

A 26-year-old Detroit man with a .15 percent blood alcohol content — nearly twice the legal limit to operate a motor vehicle in Michigan — was arrested at 12:53 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 8, on eastbound Lakeshore near Sunset Lane.

A patrolman said he was weaving a 2004 Ford Taurus.

Mouths off

A bad attitude compounded charges against a 44-year-old Detroit man, pulled over for speeding 63 mph on Lakeshore at 10:50 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12, and arrested for drunken driving.

"(He) became verbally aggressive and continued to have mood swings," reported the arresting officer.

During a roadside investigation on southbound Lakeshore near Provencal, the man allegedly slurred through a series of failed field sobriety tests during which, a patrolman said, he displayed "signs of physical aggression" and "continued to argue with officers."

Records show two prior drunken driving convictions, in 1998 and 2003, making the third a felony.

Officers searching his black 2011 Chrysler 300 said they found an open bottle of New Amsterdam Red Berry vodka.

He allegedly refused to take a preliminary breath test to determine his blood alcohol content.

Officers countered by obtaining a search warrant from Municipal Judge Matthew Rumora for the man's blood to be drawn at a hospital for analysis at a crime lab.

Charges consist of drunken driving, violating a suspended driver's license, having open intoxicants in a motor vehicle and interfering with a public safety officer.

Wrong way

A patrolman monitoring Lakeshore near the St. Clair Shores border pulled over a 23-year-old Warren woman shortly after 2 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 9, for operating a 2014 Chevrolet Cruze northbound in the southbound lanes of traffic.

"(She) said she did not realize she was in the wrong lane," reported the officer, commencing field sobriety tests, including a one-legged stand to indicate her equilibrium.

"(She) was unable to maintain balance during the attempt," said the officer.

The woman reportedly registered a .18 percent blood alcohol level and was arrested for drunken driving.

Attempted invasion

Police responding to a burglar alarm at a house in the 1000 block of North Renaud at 11:45 a.m. Monday, Sept. 7, found evidence a home invasion was attempted but unsuccessful.

Police found several pry marks on side and rear doors, but it appeared no entry was gained. The homeowner spoke with police when he returned home at 3 p.m., and said nothing had been disturbed inside the house.

No license

A 23-year-old Harper Woods resident was taken into custody at 2:15 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 12, after being stopped by police at Harper and Allard for an expired license tab and police determined she never obtained a driver's license. Her 2007 Chevrolet was impounded.

Lawnmowers taken

Two lawnmowers were taken from a backyard on Maryland sometime between Thursday, Aug.

20, and Monday, Sept. 7.

Plate picked

The license plate was removed from a car parked in a driveway on Whittier sometime between Friday, Sept. 4, and Tuesday, Sept. 8.

Tires taken

OUR VIEW

Be smart
with bike parking

It only takes a second to swipe, and means to get away is in their hands.

Three different Grosse Pointe Park residents and a Grosse Pointe Woods resident have called this week to talk about an issue that's quickly becoming a problem. Stolen bicycles.

One resident of the 500 block of Barrington in Grosse Pointe Park, which is close to Detroit's border, said his daughter and friend were riding their bikes Tuesday, Aug. 18. After arriving home, his daughter parked her bike in the fenced-in backyard.

A few minutes later, the bike was taken, thrown over the fence and gone.

"I've had an extension ladder stolen and now the bicycle," said the resident, whose name is being withheld. "What scares me is that it happened in the middle of the day. What would have happened if my daughter was in the backyard and confronted the thief? What if something happened to her?"

The resident said he understands times are tough for many people, but it seems daytime thefts are up.

"We have to not be careless he said."

It's also important as neighbors, to contact the police if you see anything suspicious. Any chance we have to thwart crime is a welcomed assist by the public safety departments of the Pointes.

In the meantime, lock up valuables. Let's not give anyone the chance to commit a crime of opportunity.

GUEST OPINION By Mary Zahler

Thousands will register to vote on a special day this week

With so much attention being paid to our economy, national security, environment, health care and the overall well-being, National Voter Registration Day, Sept. 22, is the perfect day to ask our neighbors to register for the first time, update their voter registration if they've moved or ask friends and family to make sure they're registered.

National Voter Registration Day, founded by the League of Women Voters and other voting rights and community organizations in 2012, has been a highly effective nonpartisan campaign to register tens of thousands of eligible voters on one single day through on-the-ground neighborhood events as well as online. Embraced by President Barack Obama earlier this year on the 50th anniversary of the Voting Rights Act, as well as a host of celebrities, bipartisan elected officials and organizations, NVRD is building steam in 2015 with hundreds of events already planned as the primaries and caucuses for the 2016 elections quickly approach.

The League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe empowers our voters through education, registration and get-out-the-vote activities in every election. We host candidate and issue forums and registration drives while also providing trusted and timely elections information on VOTE411.org. We do this because we believe our democracy is strongest when every voice is heard.

It is easy to register to vote or update your registration online at the LWV website Vote411.org. This site also helps voters find their polling place, check voting hours and read tips about voting in Michigan.

You can also register with your county or city clerk or at any Secretary of State branch office or online at mi.gov/sos. You also may register to vote by mail. Contact your city clerk or the clerk of the city where you last lived in Michigan to receive the necessary forms.

To register, you must be a U.S. citizen, 18 years of age by the election date, and a resident of your city for at least 30 days prior to the Election Day. A reminder for all students registering for the first time: You must register in person to receive an Absent Voter Ballot for your first election.

If you wish to vote in any federal, state, local, or school board election, you must register at least 30 days prior to an election. Re-registration is required if you move or provide a change of address.

The League of Women Voters has 95 years of history as a powerful national network that empowers people every day to tackle the most important issues and improve government. We look forward to NVRD on Sept. 22 because it gives us another opportunity to exercise our commitment to Making Democracy Work®.

Zahler is president of the League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe.

GUEST OPINION By Bill Kalmar

Keep an eye on pirate celebration

For those of you looking for a way to emerge from the doldrums of realizing summer is almost over, let me suggest you circle Saturday, Sept. 19, on your calendar.

No, it isn't Sweetest Day, which is Oct. 17, another important day on the autumn calendar. But I think there is something more important and compelling occurring, at least in my warped mind. It is "International Talk Like A Pirate Day." Now what could be more exciting than that?

For you landlubbers who have been unaware of this holiday, it will be the 13th anniversary of Pirate Day. It is now considered an international event and if you search the "Talk Like A Pirate Day" website, you will quickly discover that pirate wannabes are celebrating this day in as faraway places as Rome, Auckland, Tokyo and of course numerous locations in the United States. Many of these towns are featuring costume contests and pirate sailings.

In fact, several years ago the Michigan legislature passed a resolution that will officially recognize the day in the Mitten state.

Now before we get sidetracked concluding that pirates are evil, "Talk Like A Pirate Day" is dedicated to the friendly pirates found in most children's movies. Film flicks such as "Muppet Treasure Island" or "Scooby-Doo In Pirates Ahoy," or any of the "Pirates of the Caribbean" adventures present the friendly side of these sea goers. So having said that let's return to what makes this day so special.

First of all, it gives us pirate wannabes an opportunity to inject some swagger in our conversations. Who can resist greeting friends either on the phone or in person with words such as "ahoy," "avast," or "ARRR"? So for all you swashbucklers out there, this is a time to maybe don an eye patch and assume a new identity for just a day. What could be more fun?

As an added bonus, the "Talk Like A Pirate Day" website also features pirate pick-up lines, pirate advice from Cap'n Slappy and an opportunity to subscribe to the Poopdeck Newsletter. With all the confusion we are undergoing in a troubled world, isn't a little silliness most welcome? I sure think so.

In the past, people have asked me how to celebrate the day at work if the boss frowns on any folderol. Here is my take on that: I think you have to try the subtle approach. Walk around the office with a limp pretending you have a peg leg. Each time you encounter a fellow employee yell "Ahoy" and when you are at a meeting, voice your approval to various initiatives by saying "ARRR!" and finally place a note on your coffee cup that reads "pirate grog." If all fails, find another employer.

And here's a head's up for all you pirates who are doughnut lovers. Watch for the annual announcement from Krispy Kreme detailing how to snag some free doughnuts on "Talk Like A Pirate Day." The website already has some information on how to participate. If past years are any indication, dress as a pirate (three items required such as an eye patch, earring and hook) and receive a dozen doughnuts.

So now I'm off for a swig of grog along with a pirate's favorite cookie - Chips Ahoy - while I prepare to scrape the barnacles off the rudder of my skiff. And just for the record, I am almost 98 percent chum free. So shiver me timbers.

Kalmar was a longtime Grosse Pointe resident and now resides in Lake Orion.

Marking 9/11 with acts of kindness

Sandy Shellnut, who teaches U.S. History and Eastern Hemisphere Geography at Brownell Middle School, took a day off from her regular curriculum Friday, Sept. 11, to focus on an event that, for most of her students, took place before they were born. Discussion in her eighth-grade social studies class revolved around the events of Sept. 11, 2001, as well as a more distant milestone in American history — Pearl Harbor Day on Dec. 7, 1941. Differences in surveillance and communication technology came up in the discussion, along with changes in security and protocol.

made by children born Sept. 11, 2001, who suggested other children make something good come out of the day by committing to doing one good deed or act of kindness.

Students at all grade levels watched the video in their social studies classes Thursday. Friday, they were given "pride slips" to complete with their good deed. Each student was given a piece of red yarn to tie on his or her finger and the pride slips were posted on a bulletin board for all to see.

National Merit Academy gets NWF certification

Scholarship semifinalists

Nine students in Grosse Pointe were named semifinalists in the 2016 National Merit Scholarship Program. Earning the distinction from Grosse Pointe North High School are Francesca Giacona and Mason Liagre. From Grosse Pointe South High School are Hannah Connors, Alexandra Dalman, Justin Borhees and Evan Wilson. From University Liggett School are Samantha Allen, Alexander Minanov and Jack Sheeren. These high school seniors have an opportunity to continue in the competition for some 7,400 National Merit Scholarships worth more than $32 million. About 90 percent of the semifinalists are expected to attain finalist standing and about half of the finalists will win a National Merit Scholarship, earning the Merit Scholar title.

The Grosse Pointe Academy's garden classroom has been designated a Certified Wildlife Habitat by the National Wildlife Federation, America's largest wildlife conservation and education organization.

The certification recognizes spaces that improve habitat for birds, butterflies, frogs and other wildlife by providing the essential elements of natural food sources, clean water, cover and places to raise young. The designation also means GPA's garden classroom is part of the NWF's Million Pollinator Garden Challenge, a national effort to restore critical habitat for pollinators. "We are so excited to have another passionate wildlife gardening organization join us and create a Certified Wildlife Habitat," said David Mizejewski, naturalist with the National Wildlife Federation. "Over the last 40 years, nearly 200,000 wildlife gardeners have joined NWF's Garden for Wildlife movement and helped restore wildlife habitat right in their own yards, schools and neighborhoods."

GPA's garden classroom, which originally was installed on campus in October 2013 and planted the following spring, is comprised of a gazebo classroom and an outdoor eating space connected by a serpentine garden with nine distinct individual plots, one for each grade of the academy. It was made possible by school supporters though GPA's annual Action Auction.

GPA faculty members Didi DeBoer and Megan Black are coordinators of the school's STEM/STEAM initiative and garden classroom. DeBoer said she is excited to receive this designation by the NWF.

"It is further validation that the academy is providing real-world experiences for our students, whether it's in a classroom inside the building or outside," she said. "We've had a great growing season this year and we look forward to enjoying the harvest with the children this fall."

All about the dress

Hand-painted 'Streets of Detroit' gown on display

By Jody McVeigh
Community Editor

A new exhibit focusing on the past, present and future of fashion in Detroit includes a gown designed and hand-painted by a pair of Grosse Pointers.

Gown designer Christina Liedtke, 38, and artist Alex Fedirko, 37, collaborated on the effort. The "Streets of Detroit" gown is on display during "Fashion D. Fined," showcasing Detroit's role in the fashion industry, at the Detroit Historical Museum's Booth-Wilkinson Gallery.

Liedtke was contacted the end of last year by the Detroit Historical Society. Three of her original designs will be a part of the exhibit, which runs until next year, but she wanted to do something special for the event as well.

"I thought it would be great to have a piece that represents Detroit," she said. "I thought a hand-painted dress would be beautiful."

In March, friend and Grosse Pointe Farms photographer Leslie Gerlach recommended Fedirko for the job. Fedirko said he was intrigued by the idea and agreed to meet with Liedtke to brainstorm.

The structure of the dress follows the radial plan by which Detroit was rebuilt in 1805. Grand Circus Park was at the center and six roads — Fort Street, Michigan Avenue, Grand River Avenue, Woodward Avenue, Gratiot Avenue and Jefferson Avenue — protruded from it like spokes. Liedtke and Fedirko thought about painting those streets on the dress, but eventually had a change of heart.

"I knew it would be really tight and look more graphic," Fedirko said. "I could make it look nice, but I wouldn't accomplish what I wanted."

They decided the folds of the hexagonal dress could act as roads while the paintings could highlight specific buildings. They chose significant architecture to depict the city when it was booming, Fedirko said. The six panels of the dress showcase the Penobscot Building, Michigan Central Station, Masonic Temple, Guardian Building, Fisher Building and Fox Theatre.

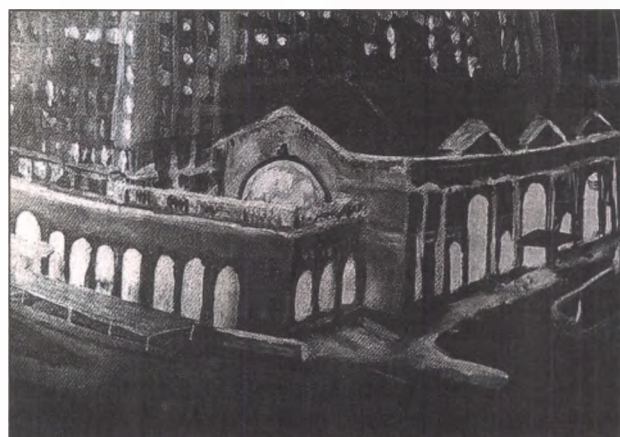

"There's a lot of rich history," Liedtke said. "That went into why we chose these buildings."

The buildings were chosen to represent the facets of a city — commerce, entertainment, ritual and transportation. The waistline is smattered with dots that symbolize the idea of centralization and unity.

"The dots in the 'skyline' are all about the community," Liedtke said. "It's about coming together, an evolving city — what it used to be and what it is, all coming together."

Liedtke sent half dozen samples of materials to Fedirko so he could choose what fabric worked best with the medium he used. In the end, the gown was made of 15 yards of silk gazar.

The dress was constructed in New York, where Liedtke's company Christiana J. Paul is headquartered, and was shipped to Grosse Pointe for Fedirko's paintwork. After nine months of planning, it took two weeks to paint.

"I had no idea what it was going to turn out like. I've been painting for so many years, but never something wearable," he said. "To be honest, it turned out beyond what I ever thought it would be."

Photos of the gown have been posted on fashion industry websites and it's getting exposure, Liedtke said, adding, "There's a buzz going on. I hope it comes together here and gets elevated here."

"The dress is beautiful, the paintings are a renaissance of history of Detroit," she continued. "I didn't want to focus on the negative. People are trying to bring so much back to the city. There's a whole different take on art in the city."

Detroit means a great deal to Liedtke and Fedirko, as does their hometown of Grosse Pointe. Fedirko grew up in the Farms, but now calls the Park home. Liedtke, who lives in New York, grew up in the Park and often visits family there. Despite their close geography, the two never knew each other until they started on this project, which has formed a friendship full of mutual respect and admiration.

"Without the painting it's just another black dress," Liedtke said, "a beautiful one, but just a dress. It couldn't have come together better than it did."

Added Fedirko, "Having your dress in a major museum in Detroit

GP native kicks off War Memorial series

There seems to be no stopping Ivan Moshchuk.

The 24-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms resident and internationally acclaimed pianist recently released his first album, "Forgiveness," and has started his own record label. This comes after being the first Michigan native selected as a Gilmore Young Artist in 2010, earning a degree in piano performance while studying under classical piano legend Leon Fleisher at Johns Hopkins University, completing a residency at Cite Internationale des Arts in Paris, touring Europe, earning awards for his work and performing in many of the world's finest concert halls.

Now Moshchuk, who was born in Moscow but raised in Grosse Pointe, helps kick off the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's "Arts at the Alger" concert series with a performance 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 19. He said while he is excited for the opportunity, he has mixed feelings about the show.

"It's difficult to play at home," he said. "There's a certain freedom in playing for an audience when you don't know who's there. I love to play at home but ... there's the problem of being distracted by memories. But it's also very inspiring.

You feel like you're at home with family and friends. It's a supportive audience."

Born to Nikolai and Ludmila Moshchuk, who reside in Grosse Pointe Farms, Moshchuk considers himself a "pretty simple person."

He started playing piano as a youngster and began formal lessons at age 8, but said he really started focusing on music at Johns Hopkins, which allowed him to double major in piano and neuroscience.

"I really enjoy the cognitive aspects of music," he said. "They're just starting to do research. The way music affects the brain is something that needs to be studied more."

While touring Europe, he received offers from different record labels, but didn't bite. When the tour was over, he came up with the idea for INM Sound, his own label.

"The idea was not to have anything monumental, but something I can use to channel conceptual albums," he said. "I want to see a return to albums that have a concept."

Moshchuk's debut album, which was recorded in Berlin, is about forgiveness.

"The meanings of words are often taken for granted," he said. "I wanted to have this music reflect this idea .... It carries various connotations. I don't want to provide people with the answer of what it is. I hope this album can inspire intelligent conversation."

The album is the first of three, the second of

"I like to think of music as a vessel where I can pour in my thoughts, my studies, my inspirations that I draw from life," he said. "There's a certain beauty in not knowing everything. It's nice to have my story."

The 2009 Grosse Pointe South High School graduate will return to Paris in October to shoot his first music video, which he plans to direct.

"I am so grateful," he said. "I'm happy my career so far has been spurred along by my performances.

"I never thought it would happen the way it happened," he continued. "It didn't happen the way I wanted it to happen, but it happened the way it had to happen."

He said he was immersed in a competitive circuit during school, which drives its focus on the short term.

"Now I feel very strongly against that," he said. "It distorts our perception of success. We need to mature and develop our own style."

Moshchuk said while he listens to all genres of music and has a variety of favorite artists, he doesn't have a specific influence. Paraphrasing Pablo Picasso, he said he doesn't care who influences him as long as it isn't himself.

"You have to be very careful not to create any idols," he said. "It's important to have a good relationship with your surroundings. I want to be very grounded in that I draw from all kinds of music."

Moshchuk will use his album, his upcoming concert and the inspiration around him to meet the goals he's set for himself.

"I used to always tell people I don't know where I'll be in the next five minutes, but I've had a change of heart. I've learned the value of planning," he said. "In five years, I'd really like to finish the trilogy, but also I'd like to somehow impact the accessibility of classical music in regards to the Internet."

For now he's focusing on his return to Grosse

Former White House florist, GP native returns for talk

By Jody McVeigh
Community Editor

When Robert Scanlan left Grosse Pointe for Washington, D.C., he never imagined what was in store.

Now, 23 years after his departure, 13 of which were spent creating floral arrangements at the White House for three First Families, Scanlan returns to Grosse Pointe to discuss his career.

He presents "First Families and Flowers" at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Scanlan, who co-owned Scanlan's Fisher Road Florist with his brother, Bill, moved in 1992 after spending 10 years at their shop.

"It was a real local shop," he said. "It was a wonderful opportunity for us. Everyone was treated as part of our family. Our one-on-one personal level (of service) was what kept us going."

When the opportunity came for Scanlan and his partner to move to D.C., the timing was right and he received his brother's blessings.

"It seemed like an opportunity to move on in my career and learn a bit more," he said.

During Bill Clinton's second term, Scanlan called the chief florist and asked her for work. While there were no posts available, she said they were always looking for help.

"I told her I was interested, if ever there was a position available that she might consider me," he said, adding that his persistence paid off. While he started off working two state dinners, he progressed to helping during the holidays. A week into his Christmas 1997 gig, the chief florist called and offered him a full-time job.

"It was a nice surprise to move to D.C. and have it happen," he said. "There have been a lot of wonderful opportunities, a lot of little moments with the First Family on a friendly basis."

He started fulltime in March 1998, but wasn't sworn in as an official member of the White House staff until August 1998, after the security clearance process.

Scanlan was the assistant head florist for the Clintons for three years, followed by an eight-year term with the Bushes and 18 months with the Obamas. He considers himself fortunate to have stayed on for so long.

"I enjoy talking about it," he said. "I love the years that I had there."

Scanlan chose to retire following the retirement of the chief florist and has lived in Fort Lauderdale for the past five years. After his former supervisor passed away, he took up where she left off and does speaking engagements around the country about his time in the White House.

Earlier this year, he was introduced at an engagement by Laura Bush, who was so kind describing Scanlan in her introduction, "It took me 2 to 3 minutes to compose myself before I

Go meatless for this grill recipe

To market to market — to the Eastern Market — to find locally grown produce at its peak. It's my favorite thing to do every Saturday in the fall. And it's absolutely my favorite time of year for grilling. I grilled up some zucchini, onions, eggplant, banana and jalapeños and served them with a super simple fresh herb ricotta on the side.

Grilled Vegetables with Fresh Herb Ricotta

2 cups fresh ricotta cheese
1/4 cup packed, chopped fresh basil
1/4 cup packed, chopped fresh parsley
1 teaspoon minced garlic
Salt and pepper to taste

Combine the ricotta cheese with basil, parsley and garlic. Mix well. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Chill until ready to serve.

Slice your fresh vegetables and brush them with olive oil and a sprinkle of salt and pepper. Cook the vegetables on the grill until tender. Serve warm with a dollop of fresh herb ricotta on the side.

Sometimes just a few ingredients lead to a sensational taste. If garlic isn't your thing, substitute with some fresh lemon juice.

Tote some fresh herb ricotta to your next tailgate. It will pair nicely with just about anything coming off the grill.

ASK THE EXPERTS By Krista Bur

Touched by cancer: Now what?

Q: Cancer has recently impacted my life. How do I begin to cope with this in a healthy way?

A: The first step to coping is to take a deep breath. The cancer diagnosis, treatment and recovery process can be overwhelming. Patients and caregivers are responsible for being knowledgeable about their situation. That means asking your medical team a lot of questions, including what your doctor would do in your shoes. Consider seeking a second opinion, no matter how much you like your doctor, and find a nurse navigator or other medical advocates for guidance.

Survivors, from diagnosis onward, have many options for coping with the physical and emotional stress of cancer. Wellness activities, like exercise and meditation, can balance the body and mind, while support groups offer relief from feeling alone. Individual counseling is also recommended to help manage the emotions surrounding a cancer diagnosis. Caregivers, too, are encouraged to seek a support group or counseling to cope with the challenges of caring for a loved one. Most importantly, take the time to have fun. Social about saying the "wrong thing" to someone who has cancer. Although there is no "right thing" to say, many survivors and caregivers dislike being told what they should or should not do or feel. Remember, everyone copes with cancer in his or her own unique way. To show support, ask the person or family what they need or want for help and compassion-

Gala benefits library programs

By Jody McVeigh
Community Editor

The Grosse Pointe Public Library invites the community to celebrate in style with its second annual gala, "A Night in the Stacks," from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 26. This black-tie-suggested event includes food and drinks, a silent auction, live music and more.

Proceeds allow the Grosse Pointe Library Foundation to underwrite a variety of children and adult programming at the library, including the Summer Reading Program, Senior Symposium, Books on the Lake and more.

The evening, emceed by Ted Everingham, includes tapas served by Lakeland Banquet and Event Centre and an open bar. Central library's front porch will be tented and several trees will be lit to create a scenic backdrop for the party.

New to the event this year, musician Chris Emmerson, a staple of the Detroit rock scene, will perform.

"We feel really lucky to have him," said Jennifer Bingaman, director of the Grosse Pointe Library Foundation. "He played for the Ford House earlier this year and they said they are still getting calls to find out how to book him; he was a total hit at their event."

The silent auction features a variety of exclusive library experiences, including:

- ◆ dinner for four with the headlining author of Books on the Lake, set for Friday, April 29, at the Country Club of Detroit;

- ◆ a table for 10 in front of the authors' podium at Books on the Lake Saturday, April 30, at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club;

- ◆ a Super Bowl L party at the Ewald branch catered by National Coney Island with beer from Atwater Brewery;

- ◆ a Gentleman's Night Out at the Central branch with a sommelier and spirits expert who will moderate a bourbon- and cigar-tasting event, complete with food pairings by Fresh Farms Market;

- ◆ a Red Carpet Book Club experience at the Ewald branch, with valet parking, champagne, tea sandwiches, petit fours, wine and a book discussion moderated by a librarian;

- ◆ a pop-up dinner at the Central branch catered by the chef of the Cabbage Patch Cafe, including candlelight, white linens, food and wine; and

- ◆ two children's birthday parties, one at the Ewald branch and one at the Woods branch, complete with custom-made invitations by the League Shop, a custom-baked cake by Cornwall Bakery, pizza, organic custom-made sugar cookies, stoneware and games.

"All winners for these events will work with Grosse Pointe Library Foundation staff to customize the events to make sure they get the experience they want," Bingaman said.

The event also includes a raffle; participants need not be present to win. Tickets are $20 each or six for $100 and sales are ongoing.

Third prize is an Apple iPad Mini 16gb/WIFI; second prize is matching ladies Bastian silver hoop earrings and a silver and diamond heart pendant, donated by Edmund t. AHEE jewelers; and the grand prize is a progressive dinner for eight catered by Grosse Pointe Yacht Club Executive Chef David L. Daniot, with limousine transportation between library branches.

The evening winds down when the K-Line Trolley makes a dedicated stop at 10 p.m. at Kercheval and Fisher, taking gala patrons to Red Crown to try a craft cocktail created specifically for the event, called "The Bookend."

"Red Crown agreed to donate a portion of the proceeds to the library," Bingaman said. "We have great sponsors and a great honorary committee — people who believe in the value of having a great library in the community."

Tickets are $125. Only 200 tickets are available, so Bingaman urged patrons to buy theirs soon.

Tickets for the raffle and the gala are available by calling the library at (313) 640-4683 or visiting gplf.org.

could begin," he said. Visitors to the Sept. 23 engagement will hear stories of Scanlan's time at the White House — from how he was told straight away not to talk politics to learning the floral tastes of each First Lady — as well as the day-to-day living and "what it's like to be in America's Home." He may even discuss his participation in Jenna Bush's wedding.

"Never in my dreams did I imagine I'd be part of a presidential daughter's wedding," he said.

Scanlan said he looks forward to sharing his memories with the community in which he grew up.

"I'm very excited to be able to be back, to be able to see so many people," he said of his return to the Pointes. "It's so interesting to know I haven't been forgotten. I've been gone 23 years. People appreciate the fact we do move on, but to have this opportunity ... I've been very fortunate."

Tickets to Scanlan's talk at the War Memorial are $20. For more information, call (313) 332-4074.

And ... we're back

There is something about fall that is comforting. Yes, I love summer and the patterns of work and play that are so refreshing, yet fall is like home — like a worn pair of shoes that just fits. Fall is when baseball gets exciting and football is full of hope. Fall crisps the air and changes most patterns in this northern climate. It is like summer is our commercial break and now we are back to our regularly scheduled program.

In the church, we change back to a more familiar pattern as well. Vacation Bible schools have done their best to teach and provide for the Spirit's work. Mission trips and service opportunities have built communities. Church camps have brought kids back into our churches energized for ministry. Our pews tend to feel a bit more full and we rally our folks around more formal learning and living. We're back.

Jesus practiced a pattern of coming and going as well. He often retreated into solitude and regeneration. For Jesus, that was often time for him to reconnect on a personal level with God and to remind him of what his mission was. Often when Jesus retreated, he would return refreshed and focused on the ministry at hand.

Oftentimes the season of fall brings people who have not been in church for a while, or are not currently a part of a community like a church, to our doors and worship. It is a time in which people seek the comfort, joy, love and community a church can bring. It is a time in which people look to settle down, breathe deep and get into the groove of the season. Like Jesus, you may have come and gone from worship and church. That's OK. If Jesus can do it, you can too. Yet let me also say you are always welcome back. For we are back and we are refocused on the ministry God has given us for this season and time. Amen.

Creativity in a sacred space

When the Grosse Pointe Artists Association moved its art center into its current location in the Village at 17118 Kercheval, it acquired excellent exposure for its exhibitions and gallery shop. What it lacked was a good place to hold art classes. A partnership with Grosse Pointe Congregational Church in Grosse Pointe Farms changed that.

At the beginning of 2015, three classrooms at the church were designated "GPAC at GPCC" space. The partnership has since blossomed into an ongoing series of classes for adults and children, with occasional workshops. A member of both GPAC and GPCC, Lori Zurvalec acts as liaison between the groups.

The Rev. Richard Yeager Stiver, senior minister of GPCC, said, "The church is honored to be sharing our sacred space with the Grosse Pointe ART Center. Creativity is a gift from God; it's wonderful to see that blessing manifest itself in these artists."

Added Wendy Schmidt, president of the GPAA, "The fellowship of our family, friends and neighbors is what sustains us and community partners like the Grosse Pointe Congregational Church, who support the goal of bringing people together in a significant way, is what makes Grosse Pointe the beautiful area that it is."

For information about the fall session of GPAC classes and workshops at GPCC, 240 Lothrop, Grosse Pointe Farms, call GPA Executive Director Coleen Downey at (313) 881-3454 or visit grossepointeartcenter.org.

Mary Steiger

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Mary Steiger, 91, passed away Wednesday, September 9, 2015. She was born Mary Schroff in Royal Oak on September 12, 1923 to Doris and Peter Schroff.

Mary grew up in Royal Oak with her brother John and sisters Sally and Barbie. Her father's family had a large piece of undeveloped property where childhood friends used to gravitate for group games. She recalled them often digging and burying "artifacts" for future kids to discover. She used to bring home various dogs and cats and beg her parents to keep them because they "just followed her home."

Her English mother's family was part of the Titanic tragedy. Her mother's three brothers, 17, 19 and 21, all perished on the Titanic, along with her mother's uncle, on their way to establish a new home in America. As a result, Mary had a personal interest in Titanic memorabilia. Her paternal grandfather, Paul Schroff, was from Konstanz, Germany, and was one of the most famous lion-tamers in Europe in the late 1800s; a short book was written about him.

After graduating from Royal Oak High School and attending secretarial school in Detroit, Mary became part of the booming Detroit advertising world of the late 1940s when she joined the J. Walter Thompson agency as a Creative Department secretary and art buyer. Ford was an important client, and Mary's job was to seek out art studios with the requisite capabilities and make arrangements for particular Ford ads. She recognized she was but a small part of this process, but nevertheless enjoyed it immensely. Their offices were in the Buhl Building, which she remembered as a "really fun place to work." She never talked about it, but was voted "Detroit Times Orchid Girl" by those who thought she was the prettiest young woman working in the building. Mary also learned to fly airplanes in her youth, but stopped short of certification when some aerial rolls and maneuvers gave her pause.

For many years Mary was very involved with Goodwill Industries, where she "had so much fun" working in the old Goodwill building at Brush and Grand Boulevard. She was one of the volunteer group of women known as the "Tuesday Strippers," who refinished old donated furniture for sale at Goodwill's annual Antiques Show. She surprised many men who doubted she could strip and refinish large furniture pieces, a skill she learned early in life. She also volunteered with Cottage Hospital, and once spent countless hours helping to inventory the entire Cottage Hospital, and she was a lifetime member of the Cottage Hospital Women's Auxiliary. Mary was an active member of Questers for many years, but regretted, that "Questers and rheumatoid arthritis arrived at about the same time," and kept her from being even more active.

She loved antiques, but only collected things she could use. She was especially fond of vintage silver, particularly the Rogers Brothers' grape pattern, as well as Spode china, and Pine Shop Early-American pine furniture. She also collected "bits and pieces" of table linens.

She also loved to bake and give to people a special date nut bread, the recipe for which dates back hundreds of years on the German side of her family. Other favorites of hers, often for holidays, were pineapple upside down cake, cherry sherry, and peanut butter blossom cookies.

Mary was not a big TV watcher, but loved "60 Minutes," which was a Sunday ritual for her. As she lost her eyesight later in life, she also took great pleasure in listening to audiobooks, particularly biographies of U.S. presidents. Her mind was always sharp, and she became quite knowledgeable about U.S. history from these books.

Other than her family, her greatest passion was sewing, of many different types. She went through several heavy duty sewing machines, literally wearing them out. She did "general sewing for her home and family," and also did smocking for Christ Church's yearly bazaar, and made many quilts which she donated to a nursing home to keep the residents warmer. She also made many other quilts and generously gave them away to many people and groups who could use them. She was taught sewing at an early age by her English grandmother, and recalled that "she had her first black crepe dress when she was three years old."

Mary is survived by her husband, F. Robert Steiger, her son, Jon Robert Steiger, her grandchildren, Erik, Jayne, Luke, Paul and Irina, and her sister Barbara Dieson. Bob, her husband, had a long career in advertising, retiring as Executive Vice President and Creative Director of Ross Roy, Inc., a well-known Detroit agency. Jon Robert, her son, is an attorney and partner in the Los Angeles office of Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan, a large international law firm specializing in business litigation.

Mary loved her family more than anything else, and nothing made her happier than spending time with both her extended family, including her grandchildren and her siblings, nieces and nephews, and their children. Mary had many close friends, most of whom predeceased her. She described her life as "happy, surrounded by a great family and many good friends."

Memorial contributions may be made to The Sewing Machine Project, The Animal Rescue Society of Southeastern Michigan, or Last Chance Animal Rescue.

Mary's earthly remains will be at Oakview Cemetery in Royal Oak, Michigan, under a huge old oak tree, where a bird bath and bench will be placed in her memory. A memorial service will be scheduled at a date to be determined in the near future.

Mural installation to be unveiled

Detroit poets and publishers Naomi Long Madgett, Bill Harris, Lolita Hernandez, Terry Blackhawk and Melba Joyce Boyd — depicted in the ongoing public art project, “The Detroit Portrait Series” — will stage readings of their works at 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 20, at Detroit Eastern Market, Shed 3.

The three readers’ portraits, along with those of Philip Levine, Mick Vranich, Dudley Randall, Robert Hayden and Sixto Rodriguez, will be unveiled at 1 p.m. and displayed on large-scale painted panels in Shed 3 for a month.

After residency at Eastern Market, the panels will travel to a permanent location in the Woodbridge neighborhood of Detroit, where they will be installed on the boarded-up windows of the liquor store at Trumbull and the I-94 service drive.

The series is sponsored by Larry John and Dr. Lilian Lai of Woodbridge Co., who have renovated Woodbridge properties and promoted public art in the neighborhood the past 35 years.

Each of the poets and publishers depicted in the series have made significant contributions to the city of Detroit, through the establishment of independent writing presses, outreach organizations and their role as educators in an academic setting and beyond. The ultimate installation site of these portraits, across from Wayne State University, is intended to connect the significant role the university has played in the scholarship of many of these writers.

Portraits in this series are part of an ongoing public art project by Detroit muralist Nicole Macdonald — a former Grosse Pointe who attended Grosse Pointe Academy, Grosse Middle School and Grosse Pointe South High School. The series is inspired by Howard Zinn’s “A People’s History of the United States,” which aims to tell history from the bottom up, portraying leaders and everyday heroes who have struggled for justice and equality.

A book signing follows the reading.

South all business, sweeps North

By Bob St. John
 Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe South girls' volleyball team rode an emotional wave of success to a three-game sweep over city rival Grosse Pointe North last week.

In front of a packed house, the host Blue Devils won 25-20, 25-12, 25-20 in one of the few sweeps in this storied and intense rivalry.

"Our energy was the difference," South head coach Kevin Nugent said. "The girls came out with so much energy and they played fearless. Lexi Kohut was awesome, Kayli Johnson was all over the place making plays and our defense was very good. It was a very good match."

"We lacked consistency and we obviously didn't have it tonight," North head coach Chelsea Brozo said. "They played Marian last week and played their best match of the year, then played poorly tonight against South. They have to play like they did against Marian in every match."

aces. Kohut, a Division 1 recruit, has seen her share of double and triple teams at the net.

With that said, her teammates stepped up and chipped in with kills, such as sophomore Chandler Duff and junior Katherine Satterfield.

Senior Kayli Johnson was a defensive specialist, leading the way in digs and serve receive, while juniors Sarah Simmet, Dominique

Maes and Emma Andreason were on their game.

The Blue Devils jumped out to a 6-3 lead in each game and made sure they kept the Norsemen an arm's length away throughout a majority of the three games.

The Norsemen tightened things up late in games one and three, but couldn't string enough points together to make the Blue Devils sweat.

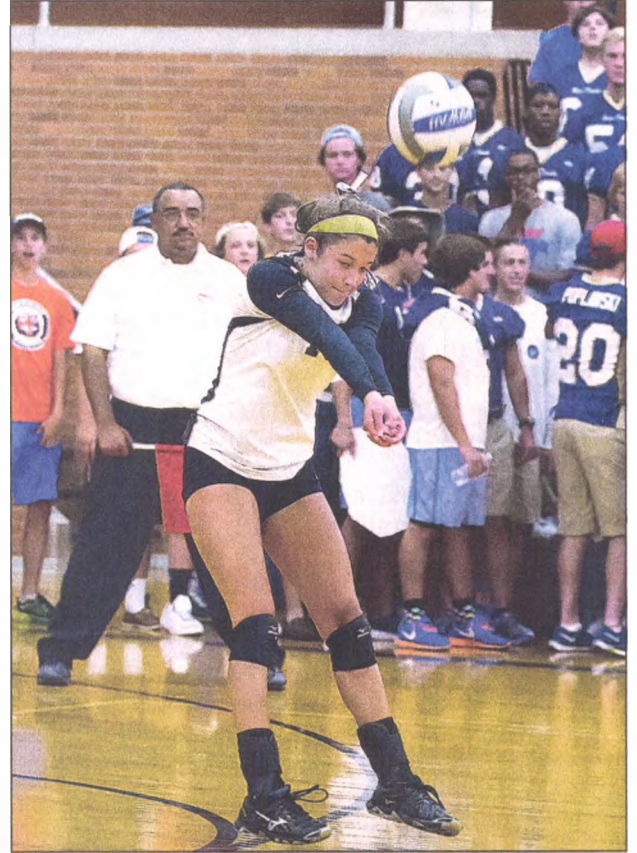

For the Norsemen, junior Katie Snow was their leading attacker, while seniors Lucy Dodge and Lauren Lesh, juniors Mackenzie Simon and Stephanie Roy, and sophomore Meredith Kraus led their other statistical categories.

Grosse Pointe South improved to 5-7 overall; Grosse Pointe North fell to 11-6-3.

Liggett results

The University Liggett girls' volleyball team played well, but not well enough in a loss to conference foe Sterling Heights Parkway Christian.

The match went the full five games and the Knights lost 15-13 in the final game.

"The girls were evenly matched and we had our chances to win in front of a pretty rowdy crowd," head coach Joe LaMagno said. "I was pleased with our effort."

Sophomore middle hitter Olivia Ponge was the top performer, according to LaMagno. She had seven kills and three blocks.

"She played well and kept our offense balanced," LaMagno said.

Liggett dropped to 0-2 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference and 3-5 overall.

North wins round one against South

By Bob St. John
 Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North girls' golf team is at the halfway point of its Macomb Area Conference Red Division schedule and so far it has been a smooth ride.

Last week, the Norsemen improved to 4-0 after beating city rival Grosse Pointe South 179-209 and Utica Eisenhower 179-260. Both matches were at Lochmoor Club.

In the win over the Blue Devils, Liz Gallagher was the medalist, shooting a 42.

Olivia Benoit had a 43, followed by Meghan Gallagher with a 44 and Caelin Micks with a 49.

"Olivia shot an impressive 43 and has been really consistent for us all season," North head coach Brian Stackpoole said. "Meghan had a calm 44 and Caelin had a great finish with a 49."

Against the Eagles, Liz Gallagher was the medalist again, firing another 42, while Benoit had a 43, Meghan Gallagher had a 44 and Micks shot a 50.

Sammy Karwowicz and Anna Simpson also played well for the Norsemen.

"I am pleased by how the girls have been practicing and getting better every time they step on the course," Stackpoole said. "My assistant coach, Brian Degnore, has been instrumental in helping the girls improve their short game this year, as well."

For the Blue Devils, Elizabeth Rauh, Ellie Connors, Mollie DeBrunner and Jackie Kolomjec have been leading the way as they also played Port Huron Northern in MAC Red competition and lost to drop to 1-4.

Annelies Ondersma was 18th with a time of 22:36 and Mila Filipof was third for the squad with a time of 26:35.

Lauren McKenzie had a time of 26:59 and she was followed by Lauren Porter at 28:17, Alexis Jones at 28:24; Saudia Tate at 31:35, Kaelan Patel at 31:35, Kat Tolin at 35:24 and Tatiyana Wallace at 42:29.

"We were without four of our top seven girls due to ACT testing, but still lots of great races and breakthroughs for those who did compete," head coach Lindsey Bachman said.

NORTH, SOUTH &amp; LIGGETT

North, Liggett win, South falls to Tars

The University Liggett football team completed its annual ripping of conference foe Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest as it has during the Dan Cimini-era, winning.

The host Knights led 14-0 at the half, extended it to 20-0 in the third quarter and cruised to a 23-6 win in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference opener for both squads.

Junior Tre' Caine ran for 148 yards and two touchdowns and junior quarterback Connor McCarron threw for 180 yards and one score.

The TD pass came on a 45-yard screenplay to senior Matt Gushee, who was wide open coming out of the backfield.

Defensively, Gushee had 20 tackles and senior Nick Gawel added 11. Junior Jackson Walkowiak also intercepted a pass to stall a Crusader drive.

McCarron capped the scoring by kicking a 38-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

Liggett is 1-0 in the MIAC and 2-1 overall.

North results

The Grosse Pointe North football team traveled to Fraser Friday night looking for a win over the Ramblers for the second straight year.

Both defenses played well early on with no score coming until the final minute of the first half when Norseman senior running back Markael Butler carried it for an 11-yard touchdown.

North was able to pound the ball on the ground and play great defense, which allowed it to control the tempo of the game.

The Norseman ran it 32 times for 160 yards, including 68 yards on 18 carries from Butler. Butler received most of the workload once junior Jared Jordan left the game due to injury in the first half.

Defensively, North held Fraser to only 58 yards of total offense.

Sophomore quarterback Bjorn Bjornsson was able to connect with junior wide receiver Donald Robinson for a 17-yard touchdown pass after six consecutive runs on a drive, which started from the Fraser 47-yard line. This was the only other score in the game resulting in a 12-0 final.

Bjornsson played a solid game going 5-of-10 for 60 yards and the touchdown pass.

This win moves North to 2-0 in the Macomb Area Conference Blue

Division and 2-1 overall.

South results

Grosse Pointe South's football team is getting the effort and head coach Tim Brandon sees his guys playing with a ton of energy.

However, it wasn't enough last weekend as the host Blue Devils lost a tough 7-3 Macomb Area Conference White Division game to Anchor Bay.

The Tars scored on the first possession of the game, driving 65 yards on nine plays and the extra point made it 7-0.

The Blue Devils'

defense made some huge plays to curtail Anchor Bay drives, including blocking two field goals and stuffing the Tars on a fourth-and-goal play in the fourth quarter to keep it a four-point game.

The Blue Devils' points came on a 23-yard field goal by sophomore Cameron Shook in the second quarter.

Junior Logan Mico, making his first varsity start, was 6-of-12 passing for 73 yards and ran for 52 yards.

Grosse Pointe South is 0-2 in the MAC White Division and 1-2 overall.

Field hockey

Local teams move near top of division ranks

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe South girls' field hockey team is hovering near the top of the Division 1 standings after edging Novi 3-2 last week.

"The team worked hard and began to believe in themselves and their teammates," head coach Monica Dennis said.

Allyson Hartz scored the first goal, with Hannah Voytowich netting the assist. Hartz also tallied the second goal, with Julia Gough and Halle Mogk collecting assists, and Elise Whitney had the final tally from Hartz and Mogk.

"Gabi Gigante and Elise Whitney played out of their minds," Dennis said. "The defensive unit of Gwyn Tiderington, Claire Yeamans, Becca Adams, Carson Dennis and Madi Thomas in net maintained a solid wall to keep Novi out," Dennis said.

In other action last week, South played a scoreless tie with host Birmingham Marian to put its Division 1 record at 3-1-1 and overall mark to 3-2-2.

North results

It has taken only a few weeks to see the difference in the Grosse Pointe North girls' field hockey team.

First-year head coach Paula Cornwall and assistant coach Alexa Quinlan have turned the Norsemen into a competitive team.

The improved play included last week's 2-1 win over Hartland.

"I can see the girls gaining confidence," Cornwall said.

After a scoreless opening half, the host Norsemen scored first when Audrey Ajlouni scored at the 25:33 mark. It was a pretty play with senior Jennifer Kusch carrying the ball inside the circle and she dished off to Ajlouni, who scored to give the home team a 1-0 lead.

Hartland tied it 1-1 at the 22:22 mark, but with only 10 minutes left in the game, it was Ajlouni scoring the winning goal off a scramble in front of the goal. Laura Dobbs had the lone assist.

In other action last week, North defeated West Bloomfield 6-2.

Caroline Bock had the hat trick to lead the Norsemen, while Katie Lesha, Kusch and Ajlouni also scored.

Grosse Pointe North improved to 3-0 record in the Michigan High School Field Hockey Association Division 2 standings and 3-2 overall.

Liggett results

After nearly a week between games, fans would expect the University Liggett girls' field hockey team to be a step slow.

An eight goal outburst in the second half propelled the Knights to a 10-0 win in the Michigan High School Field Hockey Association Division 2 standings.

Four girls scored two goals apiece: seniors Molly Murphy, Ellie Withers and Allison Stapleton, and junior Emma St. John.

Senior Megan DesMadryl and freshman Kate Birgbauer also scored.

Liggett also beat Dearborn Edsel Ford 3-1, improving to 3-0 in Division 2 and 4-0 overall.

Tennis

NORTH, SOUTH &amp; LIGGETT

Players earn stripes

It was back to business for the University Liggett boys' tennis team last week.

After taking the Labor Day weekend off, the Knights came back to the courts and won an invitational with 21 points.

Rochester was second with 17 points, followed by Essexville-Garber with 9 and Armada with 1.

Winning their flights with a perfect 3-0 mark were T.J. Dulac at No. 1 singles, Christian Ilitch at No. 2 singles and Andrew Staricco at No. 4 singles.

Kester Stefani played well at No. 3 singles. He is filling in for Casey Scoggin, who was moved to No. 3 doubles while he regains his full mobility from an injury.

Will Gersch and Davey Sekhon finished 3-0 at No. 2 doubles, as did the No. 4 doubles squad of Craig Buhler and Matt Lesha.

Scoggin and Alec Azar whipped all three foes, winning 6-0, 6-0; 6-0, 6-1; and 6-0, 6-0 at No. 3 doubles.

Thomas Van Pelt and Matthew Mansour finished 1-1 at No. 1 doubles before Alex Dow joined Van Pelt to win their only match.

South results

Grosse Pointe South boys' tennis team is 1-0 in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division after beating Utica Eisenhower 7-1 last week.

The Blue Devils swept the singles matches with Patrick Willard winning 6-1, 6-0 at No. 1, Michael Willard winning 6-1, 6-3 at No. 2, Sean Miller winning 6-0, 6-1 at No. 3 and Teddy Sweeney winning 6-2, 6-1 at No. 4.

At No. 1 doubles, Nick Costakis and John Sullivan won 6-0, 6-2, and at No. 3 doubles, Turner Sine and David Scupholm posted a tough 6-4, 6-4 victory.

The Blue Devils' final win was at No. 4 doubles with Chris Lazza and Patrick Bourke winning 6-2, 7-6.

South also played the day before, defeating Troy Athens 5-2-1. The tie came at No. 1 singles with Patrick Willard and his foe, David Yang, tied 5-5 in the third set when it was too dark to continue.

The coaches settled on a tie.

Michael Willard, Miller and Sweeney won their singles matches, and winning doubles matches were Sullivan and Costakis at No. 1 and Jacob Schwessinger and Kevin Deitz at No. 2.

Grosse Pointe South improved to 4-2 overall.

North results

The Grosse Pointe North boys' tennis team dropped its Macomb Area Conference Red Division opener last week, losing 6-2 to Port Huron Northern.

The Norsemen had wins at No. 1 doubles with Mitchell Zacharias and Ben Zacharias, and No. 4 doubles with Blake Graham and Ethan Aziz.

Earlier in the week, the Norsemen lost 6-2 to Ann Arbor Greenhills.

The Zacharias brothers won again and Jack Williams won at No. 2 singles.

Grosse Pointe North is 0-1 in the MAC Red Division and 4-4 overall.

Race to the top

South solar car club competes in national race

By Mary Anne Brush
Staff Writer

Sam Hoffmann and Michael Rose were freshmen at Grosse Pointe South High School when they helped found South's first-ever high school solar car team in Michigan. While other schools have since joined its ranks, South remains at the head of the pack as one of only 27 schools from 11 states that qualified to compete in the 20th annual Solar Car Challenge, a national high school competition aimed at teaching teens applications of science, engineering and mathematics through solar car engineering and racing. This year's challenge took place July 20 to 23 in Dallas.

Hoffmann and Rose, co-captains and the only remaining members of the founding team, helped build two complete working solar-powered vehicles that competed in the challenge three years in a row. The first year they raced from Dallas to Los Angeles, in 2014 from Dallas to Austin and this summer they tested their engineering skills on the Texas Motor Speedway.

The club encountered a roadblock when a motor controller provided by another team caused the car to move backward rather than forward, resulting in the vehicle hitting a minivan in the parking lot during a practice run the night before the race. Fortunately, no one was hurt, Hoffmann said.

In spite of the mishap and last-minute adjustments, including solar panels that ran at half their original efficiency, South placed eighth.

"It's phenomenal because most of the other teams lent us parts and tools," said Hoffmann. "That's why they call it a challenge and not a race. They want to get everyone in the race. That's what makes this event unique. On the track everyone is very competitive, but off the track everyone helps each other and we're all basically one family."

Looking to the future, their goal is to finish in the top three at next summer's cross country race from Dallas to Minneapolis, according to Hoffmann. The team has a lot of rebuilding to do along the way. For example, it is down to five members, having lost many seniors to graduation. Hoffmann hopes to recruit underclassmen. While students must have driver's licenses to drive the vehicle, there are still other ways they can participate.

Younger students gain experience and learn problem-solving skills by becoming involved early in the process, Hoffmann said.

Members also learn business skills, as public relations and fundraising are significant components of the program. Projected expenses for this year are $35,000 to

Thirteen members of South's solar car team and their advisors traveled to the Solar Car Challenge in Dallas in July. They are (seated, front row from left): Ponette Rubio, Paul Attard, Ariane Troschinetz, Natalie Shunk, Nick Morris, advisor Kyle Watson and Sam Hoffmann; (back row): advisor Robert Rose, faculty advisor Shantrell Griffin-McMillan, Lizzy Langenburg, Aidan Clements, Ethan Teranes, J.D. Norris, Maddie Burgoyne, Madeline Dice and Michael Rose.

$40,000 and include travel for team members and transporting the vehicle. Hoffmann said members can help by soliciting new sponsors. Last year's sponsors included the Mothers' Club of Grosse Pointe South, the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Public Education and the Rotary Club of Grosse Pointe, along with businesses Atwater in the Park, Fresh Farms Market, Merollis Chevrolet, Pointe Hardware and Lumber and The Portrait Place.

An even larger challenge for this year is the team's goal to build a new car. In the past, efforts have focused on improving an existing car.

"Every year (we) rebuild and edit the car using the same chassis, with edits on the parts and chassis to make it lighter, better and more efficient," Hoffmann said.

According to faculty advisor Shantrell Griffin-McMillan, the first staff member to accompany Club South students to the race, the team is up to the challenge.

"It was a phenomenal experience watching them work together," Griffin-McMillan said. "They did a great job representing Grosse Pointe South."

Like Hoffmann, Griffin-McMillan was impressed by the amount of teamwork she witnessed at the event, not just among individual team members, but among competitors as well.

"I've never seen so many students support and back one another," said Griffin-McMillan. "The teamwork that was there was phenomenal. It wasn't about who was going to be first. In the forefront was working together to be effective as a team."

Griffin-McMillan said a representative from Lockheed Martin in Texas mentioned at the closing dinner his company would look at any student who graduated from college with an engineering degree, but "any kid who had solar team on their resume, they hired them first because they know the dedication and determination that was put into ... building their cars," Griffin-McMillan said.

She also noted last year's seniors are attending such colleges as Cornell University, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Michigan College of Engineering. In fact, club members have an impressive acceptance and attendance record at U-M, with many of them going on to participate in its solar car team, which is ranked top in the country.

Hoffmann and Rose have set their sights on building not just a car, but a program that will last past their tenure. Meeting this goal is a 365-day-a-year commitment, Hoffman said.

"Michael and I began three days after the race ended," he said. Writing thank you notes to sponsors, working on grant proposals and presenting to the Grosse Pointe Public School System board is all part of the process. Recruiting new team members will kick in now that school is in session.

"This whole club has given me some guidance not only in my engineering but my education," said Hoffmann. For example, it motivated him to turn a 3.2 grade-point average freshman year into a 3.9 GPA by the end of his junior year. "It empowers you. You can do anything you put your mind to."

GPPSS seeks volunteers

The Grosse Pointe Public School System seeks parents and community members interested in serving on curriculum committees on modern and classical languages, for grades 6 to 12, and library services, for grades K to 12. Committees will begin work this fall and meet in late afternoons and/or evenings.

Volunteers should send letters of interest to Maureen Bur, Department of Curriculum and Instruction, 389 St. Clair, Grosse Pointe, MI 48230, or email Maureen.Bur@gpschools.org.

Artist Harold Allen displays work in Liggett's Manoogian Art Gallery

Detroit artist Harold Allen will display his work in University Liggett School's Manoogian Art Gallery through early October.

A well-respected metro Detroit artist, Allen has exhibited his paintings in local galleries and museums, including the Detroit Artists Market, Birmingham Bloomfield Art Center, Dell Pryor Gallery, Cranbrook Art Museum and the Museum of African American History. Nationally, he has shown his work at the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago, the Fort Wayne Museum of Art in Indiana and the JB Speed Museum in Louisville, Ky.

"The Manoogian Art Gallery will host a full season of guest artists and we are looking forward to welcoming Harold Allen as our first artist in residence this academic year," said Jennie Osman, the Manoogian Art Gallery coordinator. "Throughout the year we will host a variety of artists, some well known and some just emerging."

Upcoming shows include the work of Kris Schaedig, opening Oct. 9; Betty Brownlee, opening Nov. 6 and the Signal Return Printmakers, opening Jan. 15.

The art gallery is open 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday when school is in session. For more information, contact Jennie Osman at josman@uls.org.
