Board Will Seek Voluntary Gifts

Mrs. Murray Sales States Patients Are Being Turned Away Daily Because of Crowded Conditions in Institution

Cottage hospital is so overcrowded that it is imperative to immediately enlarge it substantially, members of its board were told at their annual meeting and election of officers in the Nurses Home on Ridge road Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Murray W. Sales, who has been president of the hospital for many years and yesterday retired to the position of honorary president, told the board that patients are daily being turned away because of lack of space and that beds are very often crowded into the halls and sun rooms of the institution, making efficient care most difficult.

The increasing number of medical men wishing to bring patients to the hospital and the rapid growth of Grosse Pointe have combined to make it much too small to care for the patients. Mrs. Sales said, Grandview is being laid to a campaign to raise funds to make the necessary enlargement. Expansion will be towards the Ridge road on Ridge road, where there is ample room for 15 additional beds.

Mrs. Sales pointed out that although no time is to be lost in attempting to raise funds, it is believed that present world conditions have opened everyone's eyes to human suffering, and a generous response is expected.

Built in 1929
Cottage hospital, which is rated as a hospital by the Medical Society of the College of Surgeons, moved to its present structure on Ridge road in 1929 when the population of Grosse Pointe was but 12,000. For to that time the institution was on Oak street and was a branch of the Neighborhood Hospital. The building was erected by the Grosse Pointe Board of Directors. Mrs. Sales said that the building was erected by the Grosse Pointe Board of Directors. Mrs. Sales said that the building was erected by the Grosse Pointe Board of Directors.

SPEAKERS HELP STUDENTS PICK OUT VOCATIONS

Grosse Pointe High Helps in Choice By Presenting Business Leaders

By Bill McCreary, 1118
Probably one of the most serious of the problems confronting the modern high school student concerns his choice of and preparation for a vocation. Grosse Pointe High School, frequently a pioneer in presenting vocational speeches by first class business leaders, began four years ago a series of presentations of these talks to the Junior and Senior classes. Since then 103 talks and 50 different speakers have been heard by eleven and twelfth grade students.

To help determine which occupations are most popular among speakers, a survey is taken in each eleventh grade. The last survey revealed an interest in 119 different occupations. These are the most popular vocations to undertake. Most vocations were cast for journalism that for any other occupation in this and previous years.

The great majority of the men and women who have spoken at Grosse Pointe High School are business leaders. For example: Dr. R. Van Kleeck, superintendent of schools, lectured on teaching.

The occupation of policeman was described by the Park's chief of police, Chief Drysdale.

Charles Parcell, president of the Board of Education, spoke on the subject of brokerage on December 2, 1940.

Speakers on Modeling Miss Madeline Cox, of the J. I. Hudson Company, spoke on modeling two years ago.

Charles Danbury, chief of firemen in the city of Detroit, spoke in March of last year.

Circuit Court Commissioner Carl M. Waldman spoke on politics in October of last year.

Speakers on business and engineering have been the most frequent. Representatives of these fields have visited Grosse Pointe High School nine times each.

Due to the enthusiastic reception given this feature, special arrangements have been made with the United States to conduct the pictures for some time to come.

Beginning with this year, readers will note a change in the arrangement of pictures which is hoped will be found interesting. Family groups as well as individuals will be shown in the future.

Silhouettes

She has a manner both charming and sincere. Her appearance is striking. Slight, of medium height, her eyes are grey-green and they tilt pronouncedly upwards at the corners. She combines luxurious elegance with unusual chic.

Her friends are legion. She is an interested listener, but when you have finished stating your views she is very apt to come forth with her own, not in entire agreement with yours, but so charmingly stated that it is doubtful if she has ever offended anyone. She has all the attributes of a perfect hostess and her parties are events long to be remembered.

All of her friends will tell you of her great talent for cooking, an art based on her appreciation of fine food. She has personally tested the thousand recipes, has contributed some of her own to the famous Goodwill cook book and the turkeys at her annual New Year's Eve parties for more than 200 are famed products of her prowess along culinary lines.

Feminine to her fingertips, she frankly admits a love of clothes, furs and perfumes (Schiaparelli's "Sultane" is her favorite). She has the most amazing collection of perfume bottles.

Hours of fencing lessons and practice have undoubtedly contributed to the fact that she is a marvelous dancer. She does the rhumba and can really dance it. Summer is her favorite season, for it is then she enjoys boating, swimming and fishing at the Old Club. During the fall and spring and even on bright winter days she can often be found with Mr. R. enjoying a brisk canter.

Her dog's name is Zero, and she shrugs this off by explaining that his pedigree includes every dog in the neighborhood. She is a director of Theatre Arts and has done outstanding work in many amateur theatricals. She is very active in the Goodwill Industries and does yeoman service during Community Fund drives annually.

Everyone calls her Bea.

Her name . . . Mrs. Glendon H. Roberts.

Petty Points

We often sing tributes to our children that we ourselves might sleep.

Words are the crumbs that fall from the feast of the mind.

Many a woman borrows a man's heart; very few ever possess it.

Every man loves two women; one is the creation of his imagination and the other is not yet born.

Friendship should be a sweet responsibility—not an opportunity.

When you turn your back to the sun, you are only your shadow.

The punishment of the liar is that he eventually believes his own lies.

Nothing is so fatal to integrity as pretense.

The average man plays to the gallery of his own opinion.

The average woman sees only the weak point of a man and only the good points in a weak one.

He lasts longest and soars highest, who cultivates the habit of being a boy for an hour each day.

It is not a disadvantage for a woman to be pretty, unless she is unable to forget it.

Miss May Ralle was in charming gown and Kelly green hat. Mrs. Paul Wood was attractive in a green and white print ensemble. A hostess of the new spring hats, Mrs. Kingswood's golden cherub was the only adornment of black dress, with which she wore one of the new spring hats, blue trimmed with blue and orchid.

Mrs. Elmer A. Kunderling complemented her green and gold dress with a matching fur. Mrs. Renee Renaud was gold and black. Mrs. J. C. Gault was in red, set off by a huge asphire clip. Mrs. Glendon Roberts was beautiful in a blue hat with rose facing and wore a white dress with a green and white print ensemble.

The perfectly appointed party was given a novel twist when an unidentified guest set fire to the green in the fireplace, the chimney of which was closed.

Old Terrors Banished

The appearance of smallpox in neighboring Detroit need cause no alarm in our community. This disease, formerly one of the greatest scourges of the race, has been brought definitely under the control of medical science. It is difficult for the world today to realize the terror this loathsome disease formerly inspired. Prior to the discovery of the efficacy of the inoculation of cowpox virus as a positive preventive of the disease by Dr. Edward Jenner the English physician in 1768 it has been stated, by no less authority than Dr. Corder of Johns Hopkins, that more than half of the adult population of Great Britain who had attained 50 years were marked by the scars of this disease. In those days moreover the mortality rate was very high. If any body contracts smallpox today it is his own fault through neglecting vaccination.

The discovery of vaccination for smallpox was the first of those monumental advances in medical science which in the last century and a half have added more than twenty years to the average span of human life. After Jenner a half century passed before those Yankee dentists, Wells in Hartford and Morton in Boston, in 1844 and 1846 first produced anesthesia for mental surgery with nitrous oxide and ether, and so opened up the field of major surgery where previously a large proportion of all cases subjected to the operating tables died of shock. Thirty years later Dr. Joseph Lister, another English surgeon, discovered antiseptics and the realm of internal surgery was opened up. Following these pioneers in the healing arts the younger knights of the microscope and the laboratory have given to the world a succession of scientific achievements appealing to the lay mind as little less than miraculous. Diphtheria, that ever present terror of parents of young children, has been subjugated. Typhoid fever, the grim reaper of early life, can be destroyed. A vast array of diseases and infections have been stopped in their tracks or greatly moderated. Sulfagrinamide bids fair to banish pneumonia, one of the greatest scourges of the race from time immemorial, and now the very latest news indicates that medical science is on the eve of announcing a prophylactic for influenza whose periodic recurrence is at present causing such deep anxiety throughout the country.

But with all the vast progress which medical science has made in recent years and the facilities which it has placed at the disposal of the people to protect themselves against disease it is only by the close cooperation of the laity and the medical profession that these miraculous agencies can be made effective for our protection. Now, possibly more than ever, it is necessary for the people to be in close touch with the skilled fraternity of the medical world. Gone are the days of grandmother's brew pot herbs. More and more must we depend on the skilled diagnostician and the experts of the microscope and the test tube.

When Scots Foregather

Wherever Scots foregather the bard of the Highlands and Lowlands is sung, and doubtless the numerous sons of old Scotia in the Detroit area will remember in many gatherings their 182nd birthday which occurs next Saturday, January 25.

No poet who ever rhymed in any tongue more thoroughly imparted the human quality to his verse than the immortal Burns. He belongs, not to Scotland alone, but to the civilized world. He passed his time in the arms of his genius to put to meter the dearest record of the Scotch regiments that covered the rear guard in the retreat from Mons to Charleroi. The lads who, when ordered to hold a given position, held it until the last man was down.

They were coming to this country in recent years in large numbers but with the breaking out of the present war there was instant stoppage of the tide. Now they man the engine rooms of the destroyers and submarines, the tanks and the battle planes. Whenever danger is greatest and skill most required, Sandy is found, as always, in the front rank of the battle for Britannia and for Freedom.

When the war is over we hope they will come again. America needs them, many many more of the breed.

Wise Man

It remained for that canny old Tennessee mountaineer who heads our Department of State to tell the American people some real truths in a straightforward spirit of realism. He appeals to the State that first of all laws of nature; self preservation. Reminding the people that the whole structure of international law as conceived and built up by modern civilization in the last thousand years has crumbled under the impact of a force as brutal and unreasoning as any ever exhibited in the Dark Ages, he calls upon his countrymen to prepare to meet this force with force at the quickest possible moment.

It should be significant to the American people that their chief diplomat publicly forsakes the feather duster of diplomacy and grasps the battle ax of direct action. Mr. Hull's opportunities for inside knowledge of the goings on in the chancelleries of Europe and Asia are little if any more than those of the President himself. He and the President have reached the same conclusions and advocate the same measures. And Mr. Hull, it is remembered, is a million miles away from being a "Yes" man.

The advice this wise old gentleman sees fit to give may well be heeded.

Test

One of the supreme tests of the fidelity of the public servant to his trust is the prudence and honesty with which he handles the public funds committed to his administration. On this score the Grosse Pointe Board of Education scores a high rating.

The figures recently given showing the low cost of construction of the new John D. Pierce Junior High School in conjunction with the beauty of the building and its modernity in facility and arrangement, which is visible to the eyes of the citizens, earn for our school authorities the heartfelt commendation of the parents and taxpayers of the Pointe.

Book Nook

By Elizabeth Starr

Historians will charge that Stefan Zweig suggests history in his new book, "The Decisive Hour," but though his sketches may be overdrawn, they are readable and informative, and afford instructive knowledge for those of us whose knowledge of history is limited.

In his latest "historical miniatures," Mr. Zweig presents a dozen famous men at decisive moments in their careers. He pictures Handel, written by parody, dedicating himself to the creation of his Messiah. He gives us the "Decisive Hour at Waterloo"; Cicero making one last attempt to save the Republic after Caesar's death; Scott dying after having reached the South Pole; or Wilson sailing from France after the defeat of his hopes. Each sketch is dramatic and significant, and they make very pleasant pills by which to take history.

The Negro population of this country has become so great that today, what happens to our colored citizens concerns everybody. Hence, Claude McKay's intelligent and interesting book, "Harlem: Negro Metropolis," is very much to be recommended. The book is written with an objectivity which puts the more harrowing details of living conditions in the Negro city, not in a special category, but just as one part of a general picture. Unusual in this type of writing, there is no sentimentalism. There is no attempt, the author seems merely to want to inform us as to what life in Harlem really is. It is a honest, realistic, and a pleasant book.

Mr. McKay gives us a very interesting discussion on the Negro in Europe, and the other world of Europe. — Joan Merrill at the University of California reports that the "Maiden" going "in the City" is Bette Davis Continues Her Climb To Heights In New Picture In Cinderella Theater

That fascinating, tantalizing and dangerous Bette Davis is back on the screen, following up her recent dazzling success "All This and Heaven Too" with "The Letter." W. Somerset Maugham's greatest drama of a woman's heart, "The Letter" will have its local showing at the Cinderella Theater.

It is becoming axiomatic that each of Bette Davis' performances should top the one which preceded it. It happened with "Dark Victory," "The Old Maid," "All This and Heaven Too," and according to all advance reports, she rises to even greater glory in her newest vehicle, "The Letter."

"The Letter" tells a strange story. It tells of a beloved and sheltered woman who marries a man, murders him in cold blood, pumping his body full of bullets until her husband's gun is empty. Why did she do it? Well, she tells her husband and her lawyer that she did it to defend her honor. But it seems there was a letter which she hid in her handwriting addressed to the murdered man, and now in the possession of his widow, an Eurasian woman. If that letter were to show up in court, there could be no other verdict than "guilty." But down in the Chinese quarter of Singapore, there is a mysterious transaction under cover of night, and on the day of the trial, there is no sign of the letter.

These are the ingredients of the drama. Bette Davis is the central figure about which it revolves. Herbert Marshall is the husband, James Stephenson the lawyer who sacrifices his deep personal integrity to save the life of his friend's wife. Gale Sondergaard is the Eurasian woman. To tell more of the story would lessen its tremendous impact as it unfolds upon the screen in all its dramatic intensity. Made upon the direction of

Kay Kyser's Film Big Hit

Ray Kyser, the OF Professor, surrounds himself with three of the screen's foremost bachelors and a big cast of film and radio talent in supplying the novel entertainment of his new picture, "You'll Find Out," in the Cinderella Theater.

In this musical mystery melodrama Peter Lorre, Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi supply the menace that opens the romance of Helen Parrish and Dennis O'Keefe and terrifies Alvin Kruger and Kyser's entire band particularly by Jimmy Riddle, Harry Babbitt, Ish Kabibble and Sully Mason.

Between broadcasts of the College of Musical Knowledge in radio studio, Ray Kyser and his band fill an engagement entertainment at a big weekend birthday party in an old mansion in a deserted location. Several old gals have more celeste sitting than the fantastic edifices built by a mad scientist and occupied by his spiritistically inclined sister and his absent-minded daughter.

Kyser and his pal are affected by the gloomy atmosphere and by the grim personalities of Sallano, a fake medium, and of his wife, Son Yang, as the smiling but sinister Chinese lawyer Bruno Lester, Elizabeth Earl, Tetsu Komai, Doris Lloyd and Cecil Kellaway.
