

Blue Devils Lose To Bitter Rivals

Clemens Team Victorious as Pointers Drop Fifth Decision of Season in Hard-Fought Game

Grosse Pointe High school went down to its fifth defeat the season last Saturday—and at the hands of its bitter rival, Mt. Clemens.

Although last year's champs of the Border Cities League were the going a bit tough they were able to defeat the local 7 to 0.

At the end of the 8-yard line in the second period by Ray Stroberg provided the first victory.

A typical Mt. Clemens-Grosse encounter, the game was a tangle of all the usuals and the game was penalized 70 yards and Grosse Pointe lost 55-0.

St. Ambrose's defense succeeded in getting up Bay Weaver, who was tackled after the Blue Devil attack lacked much.

At the end of the local field the players play forward, present the first league and undefeated so far this year.

St. Paul Whipped By St. Philip

St. Paul of Grosse Pointe lost their game in its second class of the Catholic league by a 7 to 0 defeat at the hands of St. Philip.

It was a hard fought game, but the only score coming in the first period when Bill took a pass from the 7-line over for the touchdowns.

St. Paul failed to make a serious threat.

Sally Ann Pfeffer Weds R.A. Kirbert

Sally Ann Pfeffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Pfeffer and Russell A. Kirbert, son of Mrs. William Kirbert of Cincinnati and the late Mr. Kirbert, spoke their marriage vows on Saturday morning at 11:30 o'clock in St. Clare de Montefiore church.

The bride wore a day-length powder blue wool frock fashioned with a high square neckline and accented by a jeweled belt. Her small off-the-face hat was a matching blue and she wore a corsage of white orchids.

Mrs. A. Mims Thomson of Evanston, Ill., was her sister's only attendant, wearing a beige wool frock and a mink-off-the-face hat. Her corsage was of lavender orchids.

Ed Hurley was the best man.

Following the wedding ceremony the reception took place in the Lochmoor club. Mrs. Pfeffer wore a gold crepe frock with brown accessories. Mrs. Kirbert was unable to come to Detroit for the nuptials.

Returning from their wedding trip to the Northwest they will reside in Detroit after December 1.

80 Grosse Pointe Women Working in Charity Drive

Approximately 80 women of the Grosse Pointe area in the Metropolitan Women's Division of the General Unit in the Detroit Community Fund campaign organization are soliciting support of the Community Fund's 60 agencies. The drive will continue through Nov. 12.

The Metropolitan Women's Division is divided into 13 geographical districts and 3 free lance divisions, each having its chairman and 10 captains, and each captain having about 10 team members. District Six covers the Grosse Pointe area. Mrs. Clara J. Walsh and Mrs. Francis H. Bourke are co-chairmen of the women's division.

A total of 5,000 unpaid volunteer solicitors in all three Fund units—General, Advance: Gifts and Industrial and Commercial—will seek to raise as much more than last year's $2,400,000 in the Detroit area as possible.

The budgets of the 60 agencies of the Fund are still far below those of the years previous to 1932 when the Fund annually raised over $3,000,000. Howard A. Coffin, president of the Fund, pointed out.

Chairman of district six is Mrs. Walter M. Mead. The officers in this district are Mrs. C. Bayard Johnson, Mrs. Henry Ledford, Mrs. Clara J. Walsh, Mrs. Paul J. Beyer, Mrs. Roger S. Morris, Jr., Miss Griffith, Miss Edith Jane Scotten and Mrs. R. G. Barrows.

Civilian Defense

Every patriotic American man or woman should offer his or her services for the Civilian Defense organization now being set up for the Grosse Pointe area. Civilian defense is national defense in almost as exact a sense as that performed by the man in the uniformed services of the Army or Navy. We may never have to act as fire wardens quenching incendiary bombs, or we may, but the thousand and one things that must be done at home, to keep the home fires burning as we say so lustily, and 18,000,000 to support our fighting defenders, await the hands of the folks at home.

Not the least of these is the example in patriotic effort to be set before the thousands of our people who are not yet aroused from their lethargy, the regrettable numerous element who are still largely inclined to regard the fires that are consuming Europe and the other continents as remote from us as gas explosions on a distant star. Where the hand is the heart is apt to be and earnestness is one of the most contagious of all human qualities.

For the detail of these services we must trust our leaders. The test of a good soldier is to obey orders, and the men and women back home all working together for a common cause of national welfare are in all essential respects an integral part of the Nation's war machine. There is no such thing as "all out" national effort unless the men and women at home are enlisted hand and heart.

Getting Late

The correspondents in Washington and many of the leaders in both houses of Congress profess to be confused by the President's calm attitude in the face of such provocative acts by the Germans as the repeated sinking of American owned and American flag boats. There was even no great White House writhing when the destroyer Kearney was seriously damaged and eleven seamen killed.

Mr. Roosevelt's restraint and cool headiness makes the charges of his opponents that he is deliberately leading us into war look foolish. It is not easy to see how he has been so sincere and straightforward with the people in his repeated declarations that he hoped to keep us out of war? This would be a hard acknowledgment for the rabid isolationists. There remains, of course, another explanation. It is that the nation can function with 100% efficiency in war unless the government is supported by a united and patriotic public sentiment. He also knows probably better than anyone else in this country that unless the government is assured of such support we would enter a contest with Germany under a fearful handicap. There are about 130,000,000 other persons in this country who have already read the answer to this question in the continuing strikes in defense production plants. Mr. Roosevelt's problem, the whole Nation's problem, is to first put its house in order. Unless this can be done spiritually it is useless to try to do it physically.

This is a question that must be faced. Procrastination becomes merely the fuel on which the fire of disunity and disloyalty feeds. Every hour that the showdown is postponed adds to the national peril. And its a big odds bet at this moment that if the President has the courage to tell both labor and capital that the nation is in a state of emergency, contrary to the national safety the people from all ranks will support him by a tremendous majority. There is less weakness in our people's hearts than we are irrationally committed to a war. The time for this test is not as yet too late, but it is getting late.

Paying The Piper

The act of the Supply Priorities and Allocation Board, which takes its place in the infinitude of alphabetical government as SPAB, in clamping down on priorities on such vital metals as steel, copper, bronze, aluminum and brass for all construction work other than private or public which SPAB in its own judgment seems unnecessary to "direct national defense," or is not vital to public health or safety, should jar the people of this country into a realization that they are launched on a national undertaking of unparalleled importance.

This step, needless to say, was not taken without the previous knowledge and sanction of the President. The information regarding world conditions which has been flowing into the President's office in a constant stream must be accepted as the most reliable coming to him. The imperative need of placing this nation in a position of adequate defense at the earliest moment and in readiness for such responsibilities as fate holds in store for us must be apparent to him and his advisors in the State, Army and Navy departments.

Nothing less warrants the laying of a stranglehold which gives the government the "go" and "stop" power on an industry reckoned this year at $11,000,000,000. If it is proven to be justified by the national peril the people will accept the hardship in a true patriotic spirit, though the dislocation of employment, at best temporary, will affect from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 persons.

Protect Our Birds

Grosse Pointe, noted for its many fine homes with accompanying large gardens, shelters a multitude of birds of many varieties. To protect them, and to attract more to these environs, the Michigan Audubon society offers suggestions which it would be well to follow.

With winter's cold not too far away it is not too early to start providing winter feeding stations. All one needs is a simple tray with some sort of cover to provide shelter. The best kind of food is a mixture of the various grains that can be purchased in almost any grocery store. Some birds, particularly the woodpeckers, like nut, and this should be provided in some kind of wire mesh containers. Water should not be forgotten and wherever possible, the bird bath should be open and free from ice all winter.

The society recently acquired a bird sanctuary of 500 acres near Olivet, Mich., which is one of the few breeding places in the state in which birds in this state, the Sandhill crane, Clarence J. Messner, principal of the Richard school, is president of the Detroit Audubon Society.

Wishful Thinking

Contrary to original plans, the German drive in Russia is not stepping along.

With the prospect of being snatched in on the Russian front, the Hitler is sitting up nights trying to devise a mechanical snow shoe.

Australia reports an overabundance of mistletoe this year. Let's see, how many shopping days are there—?

The Shah of Iran advocates because of "ill health." The British and Russians took his country so fast he must have caught cold in the breech.

Dairy of a Colomani's Pup (in which Whiskey hisses—and tells)
SUNDAY—Well dear Diary, it has been a long time between growls but now I will not neglect you like I have because I have to tell you, especially about my love life which now looks like a lot like a piece of cake. I met her yesterday near that hydrant in the little park across the street. Her name is Fifi. She is French poodle and her lovely curls all over her body are trimmed like a fancy hedge. She is a definitely Free French, she says.

Monday—Blah-Money is brooding over his coffee and squawking (1) because the painters and paperhangers have been digging in the house for a month and the house still looks like after a tornado, (2) because he says they have batted up something in his column.

"Heavens," says the Queen, "what's the difference? The words 'what's the difference?' are an evening gown and you wear it backward, what's the difference? The dress is all there, and the Queen giggles and says: "Sugar, you are wonderful the way you find quick answers."

Later—There has been to a play written by someone named W. Shakespeare which a friend named B. Boyer is producing, called "As You Like It." Chinese says considering this is the play he is least of all by Shakespeare, it is a mighty good job and the performance is beautiful to see. He is surprised that he really enjoyed it when he never thought he would. Except, he says, he realized how truly correct Shakespeare can be—especially in this play.

He says he knows he must be wrong because he does not like Shakespeare on the stage except maybe "Hamlet" and "Macbeth" and none of Gill and Sullivan and none of the songs which he considers very good and also very little of George Bernard Shaw, except in the pictures when it doesn't seem like Shaw at all but more like Frank Capra.

Tuesday—Droopy says he has been talking to Michael Arlen, the author of "The Wind" and he says Arlen says he arrived in New York the day with only $15. "Heavens," says the Queen sympathetically, "only $15—and Win- he comes out and he says: "Don't worry too much about Arlen or Molnar or Henri Bern- they can't get it. They can't get their full share of champagne, caviar and well-dressed company."

Later at the Club Room he tells the Queen he sees Raymond Massey and Herbert Marshall and Arthur Treacher and a few others in a big round-table conference but when he comes closer it is not about the European situation at all but about the best dialect stories they have heard. He says the funniest is the very British speaking Herbert Marshall telling a story in something between Italian and deep down Southern drawl.

Wednesday—He has been with Sidney Kingsley who tells him he has not finished the last page of his new play about Thomas Edison but the trouble is to get an actor to play the part. The only one who might fit is Raymond Massey who can't be had right now, he says. Madge Evans who is his wife says, Sidney was so busy writing his play, he forgot about drill once and almost landed in the—well do you call it—the jug," and Kingsley says: "Madge has the dramatic mind. As a matter of fact, they treat me pretty swell in the army," and Madge says: "Then how come they haven't made you a sergeant? Some of my best friends are sergeants."

Grosse-Exaggerations

A. EYOR

We've just heard what we consider a new high in exaggeration. A Grosse Pointe femme telephone a friend and was told by the Oxfordian butler that it was not convenient for Madame to take the telephone. The caller gave her name and asked that a message be left for "Madame" to call her as soon as it was convenient. The butler then lowered his voice to an intimate tone and confided, "As a matter of fact, Madame isn't awake yet."

Our Detroit Sherlock Holmes reports an incident that took place sometime last week. A snazzy black town car drove up in front of the Avenue Theatre (Baroque, in case you don't know), the chauffeur opened the door and out popped a little old man, dressed in Equire fashion. The chauffeur assisted him to the box office, purchased a ticket, piloted the little man to the door of the theater, then saluted grandly and walked back the car to wait. It was routine, too—time when all good, little old men should be taking an afternoon nap, instead of attending afternoon "nose."

Who are you to enlarge upon any statement of Clifford Fiedman's—who indeed? Nevertheless, he didn't say enough about Spyros Rose Lee's "G-String Marders." It's fun as well as exciting reading. The back stage life of the "stripper" is authentic as all get out, although the layman will have to use his imagination for most of the theatrical expressions. Besides all the color and authenticity she puts into her settings and characters, mystery fans won't be able to put it down until they find out who done it.

At a local market, confronted with the price rise in dog food, a clerk, "I didn't know," the exploited angrily, "that they were feeding dog food to the Army, too." This seems to indicate a lot of women think the necessity of feeding the Army has boosted the prices of things. How do women get that way? The price of diamonds and of furs has gone up, but we still haven't seen any soldiers wearing diamond bracelets or milk coats.

Side note. . . . When a man's friend has done . . . To get married, a girl has to know a lot of catch words. . . . The suitor who stays on the fence usually ends up by getting the gate. . . . Stuck to the first and narrow, "cause they're the girls who don't eat cake. . . . Do all lingerie models come from the under world? . . . Everyone would like to have a will of their own providing it's made out in their favor.

If you've done much motor touring, you'll like this bit culled from Nature Magazine: Ten million touring, churning wheels from Maine to Mexico—Red, Green, Gray, Sharp curves, Drive Slow, Drop-in, Slide-a-wee, Kill 'Em, San, Sue, Delour on dirt road, be dip weak 2-ton load, Slow down to twenty five, Honey right from the hive, Yaporub for cowboys and mestees, Paris garbiera, Come to Jesus, Drive in, eggs for sale, Drive fast, from Mexico to Maine—it's been a lovely restful trip, and now we're home again.

Every heart that has beat strong and cheerfully has left a hopeful imprint in the world, and strengthened the tradition of mankind—Beverton.

IN NEW MUSICAL ROMANCE

Is There Friction Here?

Planning to get rid of each other are Bob Cummings and Don Ameche in the new 20th Century Fox Technicolor musical hit, "Moon Over Miami," which is slated to open Friday at the Vogue and Punch and Judy theatres.

Betty Grable seems to be thinking she ought to get rid of both of them and concentrate on someone else.

Alger To Stage
Halloween Party

The Alger theatre is going to have more fun than you can shake a witch's broomstick at when it opens its doors Halloween night for the special show it has planned to celebrate Halloween.

There will be dancing in the lobby of the theatre to give the jitterbug celebrators a chance to lumber up in fancy stopping style. A combination radio and record player will be placed in the lobby of the theatre to give forth music by leading dance bands. Dancing will begin early and continue throughout the evening.

There'll probably be a lively Congo Chain formed some time or other and where it will lead to no one knows, but it will be part of the Halloween fun and that is the object of the dance party.

For laughs there will be one of the biggest laugh hits of the year on the screen starring James Cagney and Betty Davis in "THE BRIDE CAME C.O.D." and for thrills the second feature film "THE SHUNT" starring Walter Pidgeon and Joan Bennett. "DOG IN THE ORCHARD" an extra added feature will supply the chills and suspense in the program.

Olde Wayne
Lures Dancers

Dancing feet are beating a path this season down Wayne street to the Olde Wayne "Pub" where Charles Costello and his orchestra are providing tempo for every temperament during the dinner and supper hour.

The maestro himself takes over on favorite tunes requested by his many Detroit friends, singing the lyrics to his own guitar accompaniment, while the comely McCall Twins swing out on stylized arrangements of songs from the hit parade.

Despite the many new and catchy numbers which Costello brought with him from New York, he finds that old tunes are still the most requested, with "Begin the Beguine" leading all others, and so many patrons have asked for concert music that Costello has set aside half an hour each evening which he devotes to filling requests for classical favorites. The new frequency modulation system which manager Herbert Cole has installed carries the melodies from the Green Room throughout the club, into the Mad Antiquary Bar, the downstairs grill, and the upstairs dining rooms.

CHAPTER NINE

"It was a lovely tombstone," Mrs. Ames said. "You know the Third Shop is just fine. If you don't know what to do with anything, it's such a comfort to go to Josephine's or Suey Alger or one of the girls. They do manage to do everything to account. some people pass them on as bridge prizes to save buying something."

Mrs. Fenstris flushed brightly. "If you are hunting," she said, "that was a white elephant, you needn't I bought that at the Tattle and Clark's and it cost exactly the dollar we planned to spend. If you don't like it you can take it back there and change it."

"Now, girls, don't get stirred up over nothing," scolded Mrs. Sturgis. "It's just about time for tea. I do have my new girl worth something."

"Oh, have you a new one?" Mrs. Fenstris asked. "Well, Carrie do? Will she stand for another girl?"

"Well," said Mrs. Sturgis, happily, "Sarah and Dick felt that I should keep Carrie as just a personal item. They have wanted me to have one for a long time. So this new girl will do the upstairs work and help serve dinner and things like that. She'll here they come with tea, now."

Sonia went quite smart looking, she decided. While she watched anxiously, she seemed to move quickly and competently. It pleased Mrs. Sturgis to speak to her and have her reply, "Yes, Madam." Goodness knows she had tried for thirty-five years to get Carrie to say Madam instead of Madam—but she just wouldn't. Well, no one could make Carrie stylish—let alone, no one could ever be so loyal and so faithful as Carrie.

"Well," announced Mrs. Ames, "Ada Fenstris gets the prize."

Sonia carried the big white parcel to the kitchen and Mrs. Sturgis handed it to the fluttered Mrs. Fenstris.

The girl opened sharply as she untied the ribbon and lifted the cover of the box. She reached inside and drew out a large velvet cushion elaborately trimmed with fllet lace.

"My, that's a lovely cushion," said Mrs. Fenstris, "and look at the pretty design the pins make. Isn't it nice that we don't use pins anymore and so you don't have to spoil the designs by taking pins out?"

"Carrie made it," said Mrs. Sturgis, "and it cost just a dollar. I can't get a cushion like that any more."

"Next week we meet at my house," said Mrs. Ames, "Goodness, I must hurry—it takes such a long time to get to the Pointe from way down here."

"My, it doesn't seem long to me," said Mrs. Fenstris. "I remember in 1875 when our family first came up to the Pointe for the summer. It took four or five hours to drive down and we seldom took the car to go back and forth from the city either on the Newberry's yacht, the 'Tram' or on the beach yacht, the 'Lillie'."

That was Virginia Ford's grand-daughter, you know? Everybody believed each other by now and it was those days. But now you can't do anything like that."

"Fenstris, you said," said Mrs. Ames, "Goodnight."

In a moment there were only Mrs. Sturgis and Mrs. Fenstris left in the room. Mrs. Fenstris stood twisting her gloves and lingering outside because she had something to say.

"Well," said Mrs. Sturgis, "why don't you say it, Ada?"

"You mean about this job of Mary's?" asked Mrs. Sturgis. "I mean about the way she is acting and the place she is going to. My goodness, no young girl ought to be seen at restaurants and places like that. Sarah may be sensible, but I don't believe she knows what's going on. This is the queerest mix-up I always with Mary. I tell you that if that daughter of yours doesn't come out, there's going to be trouble. I don't call it sensible to let a young girl like Mary have such freedom as that."

"Oh," said Mrs. Sturgis. "I don't imagine there's anything to it. Ada, Sarah is so sensible that she won't let anything get very bad. I know my own daughter."

"Well, all I can do is to hope that your daughter knows her daughter," said Mrs. Fenstris. "Now that I'll ever say about it. I warned you and that's all I can do."

"Yes, that's all you can do. Goodnight, Ada. I know you meant well but this generation is different from ours and of course, you not having any grandchildren, you don't understand so well."

She was gone. The day had been a long one for Mrs. Sturgis. The Mrs. was comforting. There was time for a nap before dinner. What was the use of worrying about that generation? That was the comforting part of getting old. You saw the future of worry. You could sit there by the fire

Mum Show To Celebrate Society's 25th Birthday

Many Classes Will Make Display in Neighborhood Club Nov. 8 and 9 of Special Interest

The Grosse Pointe and Eastern Michigan Horticultural Society will stage its annual Chrysanthemum Show, Saturday and Sunday, November 8 and 9 in the Neighborhood Club.

Each season's exhibit should be of special interest to the gardening fraternity. It marks the 25th anniversary of the horticultural society, which received its charter in November 1916, and during the years has done so much for horticulture in this section of Michigan.

Grosse Pointe shows are always noteworthy for excellence of staging and for displays of high cultural perfection, and the 1941 exhibit should prove no exception.

All Types on Display

Every type and variety of Chrysanthemum will be on display from the plant exhibiting types to the baby pumpkins.

Again cooperating with the horticultural society will be the following garden clubs: The Garden Club of Michigan, The Little Garden Club, Junior League Gardeners, Grosse Pointe Branch of The Women's National Farm and Garden Association, The Village Garden Club and Detroit Garden Center.

Members of these organizations will compete for blue ribbons in their classes.

I. Thanksgiving arrangement of Fruit, Vegetables, or plant material, suitable for centerpiece, the arrangement to simulate any food.

II. Arrangement of Succulents in metal container, any foliage allowed.

III. Arrangement of Dried Plant Material in suitable container.

IV. Arrangement of Chrysanthemums in shades of bronze, in metal container.

V. Arrangement of any Cut Plant Material in suitable container, for a Silver Anniversary.

(This class is in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of The Grosse Pointe and Eastern Michigan Horticultural Society).

Schedule Committee

Mrs. John S. Newberry, Mrs. W. Beresford Palmer, Jr., and Mrs. Dexter M. Ferry, Jr., are the schedule committee for the garden club section.

Stanley Davies is general chairman of the show and his committee are Tom Pearson, Richard Sayward, Robert Stewart, Elbert C. Stahl and Joseph Van Thien, with William P. Thomas, Acting Secretary.

Miss Pauline Maack, Grosse Pointe, will be director of a section.

Royale Has Timely Show

In fitting fashion for the Halloween season of spooks and shadows, Club Royale is holding over the amazing mystic Myras, whose astonishing demonstrations of mental telepathy and accurate prediction have kept customers gasping all week long.

To prove his powers of concentration, Myras volunteers personal information, such as names and relationships, to patrons who send questions to the floor, and answers every query without hesitation. Skeptical? Ask for a ring-side seat.

Providing contrast for the mystic mood, Ted and Mary Taft offer light-hearted interpretations of the dances of grandmothers' day and bits of musical comedy nonsense, while charming Dorothy Blaine sells songs with a nice voice and an effective delivery.

The Three Hollywood Blondes are bristling with their roller-skating feet, and the Taft-Kretlow dancers have new production routines. Music for shows and dancing is by Don McGrane's orchestra, which is playing its final week at the club.

Johnny Belinda Is Coming Here

After completing one of the longest runs of any dramatic production on Broadway during the recently completed season with a total of forty weeks at the Babcock and Longacre theatres, Elmer Harris' unique melodrama, "Johnny Belinda," still under the management of Harry Wagstaff Gribble's banner, will come to the Shubert Lafayette Theatre, Detroit, on Sunday, November 2. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

The play comes to this city with practically the same brilliant cast and the outstanding production that played the Longacre Theatre in New York. The difficult role of "Belinda," the deaf mute heroine of the play, will be played by Dania Krupska who comes to the role direct from the Radio City State Hall in New York City where she was a featured ballerina. She is also an internationally famous artist who has appeared before many of the crowned heads of Europe, including Queen Marie of Romania, Queen Wilhelmine of Holland and King Leopold of Belgium.

devoted to arrangements by children of the community.

Judges for the general show entries will be Harry Cartwright, William C. Jones and Ernest Wolff.

The exhibition will be formally opened to the public by Mrs. Dexter M. Ferry, jr., at 4 o'clock Saturday, November 2.

The Chrysanthemum Show, like all other exhibits of the society, is free to the public and all are invited to attend.

OPEN Saturday, November 2 from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday, November 3 from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Take Out That Insurance While You Can Still Get It

The Grosse Pointe News Offers Its Readers a Deluxé Personal Accident Policy

Not today—I may consider it later. Today you are an insurable risk, tomorrow you may not be, and you cannot insure against an accident after it has happened. Now is the time to avail yourself of the Deluxé Personal Accident Policy offered through the Co-operation of the Grosse Pointe.

I have never had a serious accident with my automobile involving injury to myself. You are to be congratulated and may your good fortune continue. However, statistics show a sharp increase in traffic injuries and fatalities, as long as the law of averages operates, no one can consider himself immune. You may be injured tomorrow.

I am always careful. Possibly so, but how about the other fellow? There is no law of averages depends not only upon your own

Neighborhood Club News

We are calling your attention to the fact that many pamphlets describing the Activities of the Neighborhood Club have been distributed to the school children in our community. It is expected that the booklets will be taken home for the parents to read. However, if you did not receive one, kindly call or come to the Club for information concerning our various Clubs and Activities.

At the Chrysanthemum Show to be held at the Neighborhood Club on Sat. Nov. 8th and Sunday, November 9th, there will be a special class in Flower Arrangement for both boys and girls under 16 years of age. As usual, the flowers will be furnished by the gardeners, but the young people are requested to bring their own vases, bowls, or other containers they might need. Starting Saturday morning at 8:30 A. M. Nov. 8, the boys and girls entering the show should be at the Club to receive their flowers for arranging. For further information concerning this particular class call the Neighborhood Club, NI-4600 and ask for Miss Masak.

Among the Halloween events scheduled at the Neighborhood Club this week will be a party Thursday afternoon for the girls in the gym and tap dancing classes. This is a costume party and a mighty fine display of finery is expected. Friday afternoon the Camp Fire girls will combine efforts in making this Halloween Party a success and Saturday afternoon the Playmates Club will have their costume party which really promises to be quite an event.

Town Hall Books

Erskine Caldwell, author of "Tobacco Road", is coming to Detroit Town Hall from Moscow where he has been since the Nazi invasion of Russia. He will speak Wednesday, Nov. 5, at 11 a.m.

Caldwell's news broadcasts from Moscow over the Columbia Broadcasting System have been the first to come out of Russia in several years. He also wrote daily dispatches for P.M. and articles for the NEW YORK TIMES and the H.A.N.A. syndicate, as the only independent newspaper correspondent in Russia.

With his wife, Margaret Bourke-White, famous photographer, Erskine Caldwell crossed the Pacific to Chungking and then journeyed in a special plane from the Chinese capital to Moscow on a trip around the world. On the day the Nazi troops crossed the Soviet border the Caldwells were on a short holiday at a Black Sea resort, some 1,200 miles from Moscow. They immediately returned and made arrangements for their daily broadcasts to the United States.
