Two Are Hurt Seriously in Auto Accident

Manager Car and Creamery Truck Figure in Crash at Chalfonte and Manor

Two were seriously injured in an automobile-truck collision Wednesday morning at the corner of Manor and Chalfonte.

Both were rushed to the Grosse Pointe College Hospital by Paramedics. The attending physician declined to reveal the extent of the injuries. It was learned, however, that the driver of the automobile died at least both knee caps.

James Not Established Wednesday the local police did not yet definitely establish the accident occurred. The driver was not able to be questioned.

It was thought however that the truck driver by Donald E. Leander, was going east on Chalfonte and suddenly turned south on Manor at the same time striking a automobile driven by George Chalmers, 1200 Manor.

A salesman for the Holch-Land agency, Hothausch, was driving with Chalmers. The automobile was completely smashed and damage to the truck was estimated at several hundred dollars.

Cut on Milk Bottles According to the father of Donald E. Leander, a salesman in a creamery, his son had been cutting for the company only four days. The boy had fallen back on the collision, on milk bottles in the rear of the truck and a body cut.

Chalmers of reckless driving will be turned to the pair after they are released from the hospital.

Police Head Praises Pair

Commissioner Van-Dusen Praises Maedel and Van DeGente for Alertness

The alertness of two Grosse Pointe Park police officers in apprehending an assassin wandering on the streets of the village was raised this week by Ward Van Dusen, commissioner of public safety, in a letter to Chief Henry W. Del.

The letter reads as follows: "I am very pleased to be able to receive from you a report of the arrest of John E. Cunningham, arrested by Patrolmen Roy E. Maedel and Van DeGente. The arrest was made on November 3, 1941, on investigation and information received from a confidential source that he was on parole on charges of kidnapping and entering in the village of Grosse Pointe Park and had a long criminal record."

"This is a good illustration of the alertness of the police officers in the village, which is commendable to me for their efficiency and for the fact that they are alert to the territory for the purpose of apprehending one of our citizens who was apprehended before committing any crime."

"It is most gratifying to express my feelings of appreciation toward the men and the Department in general."

Very truly yours, Ward S. Van Dusen, Commissioner of Public Safety

Former Park Counsel Berns Loses Gratiot Legal Post; Beauchamp Slated for Job

Report Which Has Been Current for Several Weeks Verified by News; Resignation Was Asked November 8

The News has verified a report current for several weeks that Jules Berns, of Bedford road, acting counsel for Gratiot Township, was asked to resign from his unofficial post November 8 by Odilon Houstecker, township supervisor.

Through a phone call to Mr. Berns, the News learned that the former village attorney for Grosse Pointe Park and present counsel for Gratiot Township had resigned himself of all duties in Gratiot township upon receipt of Houstecker's letter asking for his resignation.

Residents Disatisfied The action, according to Houstecker, came after a great number of township residents expressed disapproval of decisions and actions taken by the acting attorney. Mr. Berns has never been officially designated as counsel for Gratiot Township.

Wants Beauchamp Appointed Houstecker will ask the Board of Directors for Gratiot Township to approve the appointment of Edgar A. Beauchamp, 640 Central, as the post of counsel for the township.

In the last regular meeting of the Gratiot Township Board it was decided that the supervisor of the township should have sole authority for the hiring and firing of all municipal employees.

209 Pointers Register For Civil Defense

Project Receives Better Support from Locals Than from Detroiters

Civilian Defense registration in Grosse Pointe while small, received much better support in this area than it did from Detroit citizens, figures released from the C. D. office this week revealed.

A total of 209 persons registered during the defense program's three day campaign last week, or an average of one volunteer from every 165 persons.

For comparison, in Detroit about 3000 registered, or one volunteer for every 533 persons.

Grateful For Publicity "We found," Ewarty stated, "that our biggest registration day was Friday. I believe the reason for this was because of publicity our project received in the Grosse Pointe News."

The House and Capitol are being called for technical instructions and aid in the last two or three days of the registration.

Why We Give Thanks

Through the more than three hundred years of Thanksgiving days which have run through our colonial and national life, scarcely a single one of them has presented to the people of this country such occasion for heartfelt gratitude as the present day. A moment's reflection upon the unutterable woes that have befallen us may recently free and happy peoples should enslave to us in a single glance the true basis for our thanksgiving this year.

Whereas the first Thanksgiving day was a simple outpouring of gratitude to the Almighty by a greatly suffering land of pioneers that there had been vouchsafed to them a sufficient harvest to fend off starvation for the coming winter, today must make due acknowledgment to the same Great God for the necessities of the greatest abundance of material and spiritual blessings ever enjoyed by any people in history.

It would be an endless recitation to mention all of the causes for our thanksgiving at this moment, but it is an appropriate time to remind ourselves of some of our outstanding blessings and, yet more to the point, to rededicate ourselves to the cause of their retention and their transmission to our children and their children. We should brush the film from our eyes and courageously recognize the fact that we are facing a great fork in the highway of human destiny.

As the spirit of Thanksgiving Day is essentially a recognition of the favor of Almighty God, let us first give thanks that the right to worship Him or His Vicar on Earth in such manner and form as we elect is indelibly assured to the people of this favored land, that the religious conscience of man is not compelled to go into the great Christian faith and of ancient Judaism have not been forcibly supplanted by the profane ravings of a political fanatic.

We can give thanks that civil liberty is assured to all and that even under the threat of an impending world tyranny we have not been forced to abandon them by a jot.

We can give thanks that even during the economic gloom which is now being felt, we have not been forced to abandon them by a jot.

We should be deeply thankful that out of our production we are able to give material aid to those suffering people who are struggling to regain or retain that freedom which is peculiarly our own way of life and that at the appointed time we will be prepared to share with them the food and clothing that will enable them to carry on until their own production meets their necessities.

We should be thankful that we have had during this time of world struggle and upheaval a national leadership with the wisdom and understanding to point out the menace to our own safety and the threat to the free way of life, of which we stand as the great world protagonist.

We should be grateful that this leadership has persevered in the program for national defense, and that it has not faltered when we must meet with force the demand upon the citizen of freedom, we shall be prepared; or, when at the final meetings called to compose the troubles of a war-spent people, we shall be able to lay a firm and shining sword on the table as an evidence of our intention to obtain justice and mercy and freedom of all men.

A Misunderstanding

Last Sunday morning and afternoon the News received a number of telephone calls from persons who in the light of later developments, were obviously lingering under a delusion. Each and every one wanted to know if the News was aware that it had been attacked that day by the Rev. A. L. Melvin from his pulpit in St. Paul's Church on Lake Shore Road.

According to these informants Father Melvin had charged the News with being biased, non-community minded, purely commercial and a disgrace to the Grosse Pointes.

It is to be lamented that Father Melvin's parishioners so badly misconstrued his statements.

After receiving the fourth such call, the editor of the News telephoned Father Melvin and enjoyed a long conversation with him. Again that evening, when Father Melvin phoned the editor of the News, and still again Monday afternoon, when at Father Melvin's request the editor visited him in his home on Lake Shore Road, the head of St. Paul's denied making any attack on this paper.

There had been some misunderstanding, the editor was informed by Father Melvin, about a series of articles which a representative of the church had asked the News to publish. Father Melvin stated that he had been questioned by some of his parishioners as to why these articles had not been published. During last Sunday's services, (he assured the editor of the News), he was merely trying to explain why the articles had not appeared. There was absolutely no intention of having this explanation misconstrued as an attack, Father Melvin declared.

For the benefit of the great number who did misconstrue the remarks of their pastor, the News would like to add its explanation.

Some months ago a young lady appeared in the News office and stated she had a series of 52 articles which she wanted published in the paper, one every week for a year. She would like the same position on the same page every week. The sample article which was submitted was a presentation of the Catholic viewpoint on religious matters.

It so happened that at that very moment there lay on the desk of the editor of the News a weekly release from the Christian Science Church, and another covering the weekly international Sunday School lesson of the Protestant churches. The News had previously had requests to print these features weekly and it had given representatives of these churches the same answer it then gave the representative of the Catholic church.

As a community newspaper the Grosse Pointe News is charged with the duty of giving its readers all the news from its area that is fit to print. A great deal of news is created in the Pointe every week, much of it having to do with churches. In fact, so much news is created here that very often a considerable amount of it has to be deleted because of space requirements.

Whenever space allows, this paper is glad to print articles of a non-news nature if they are deemed beneficial to its reading public, as without a question of doubt the Catholic articles, the Christian Science lessons and the international Protestant Sunday School lessons are.

The editor of the News informed the representative of the Catholic church that he would be happy to publish his articles from time to time, when space allowed, but he was informed that the entire series would appear without interruption, none could be furnished. To this promise the editor refused to commit the News.

That is the one and only time any representative of St. Paul's church has called on the editor of this paper. The News feels it is obvious that if any attack on it had been intended, Father Melvin would either have called on the News or asked the News to call on him to talk things over before any attack was launched.

As for any additional charges which Father Melvin was misunderstood to have made—Father Melvin is himself the editor of an excellent church paper. The News would be presumptuous to believe that any able editor could fail to appreciate such an editorial policy as that to which the News adheres. Father Melvin realizes the commercialism which must appear in any paper. His own church publication must carry advertisements to defray the cost of stock, ink, time and printing.

Father Melvin assured the editor of the News he was fully aware of the cooperation it has extended to many, many organizations throughout the Pointe, representative of a broad cross-section of the community. The News is proud of its files which contain many letters of appreciation for its help.

The misunderstanding on the part of the parishioners was most unfortunate. The News would have much preferred to ignore the matter, but the great amount of discussion which has taken place in the Pointe since Father Melvin's remarks were misconstrued, prompts the further explanation.

Grosse Exaggerations

A. PRIOR

With most of the world in a turmoil, we will give thanks this Thanksgiving Day for the many things we have that the rest of the world doesn't have. For instance, we should give thanks for the privilege of paying extra taxes rather than to save them and become slaves to dictators. We should be thankful that in America we can still say what we think, listen to our radios, read our newspapers and buy fuel to operate our pleasure cars. In fact there are many things that we ought to be thankful for things that we don't realize are great privileges until we don't have them anymore. And so endeth the Prior sermon for this week.

One of our Grosse Pointe matrons of the Lady Vere d'Vere variety likes to dine in new restaurants—especially little "off the beaten path" places where the food is excellent in spite of the questionable atmosphere. Her usual procedure is to ask the waiter while she scans the menu, "Is the food good, here?" The waiter's answer is always, "Oh, yes, it is whatever the equivalent of 'yes' is in various languages. One night recently she was thrown for a loop when she took some friends to an Italian restaurant, and putting on her usual act, she said to the waiter, "I think it's the same as before. Is it good?" Without looking up from the little "order pad" that all waiters absorb in, he replied, "NO! There wasn't anything anyone could do about it, so they just ordered their dinner—sans atmosphere."

A shot gun wedding is an "I do" or the affair. . . . Oil is fair in love and war. . . . When a man tells a girl she's the apple of his eye he expects her to be thrilled to the core. . . . To a hard drinker, drinking isn't very hard.

On one of our gala evenings this week, we wandered into the nose-powdering saloon of a downtown hotel. The only other occupants were a young woman, who was weaving uncertainly before a mirror and two housewives, who were talking animatedly about a vegetable market. One little housewife said to the other, "Have you ever tried their apples? They're marvelous for making apple sauce." The weaving young woman finally found her nose and powdered it, then she moved toward the door—and on her way out she thrust her face in front of one of the housewives and blurted, "APPLE SAUCE!" Then she staggered out of the room leaving the rest of us in silent contemplation.

A lot of people are probably incensed about the "cracker" that Life made about Mrs. Vanderbilt and the un-Emily Postish attitude of her dinner guests, as pictured in Life magazine. Ah, me! Elbows on table, bread pushers instead of thumb pushers; those with empty plates, talking; those with full plates, eating. What disillusionment for the masses! Talk, talk, talk, and a few more talks. The only things that disillusioned us were Mrs. Vanderbilt's trappings. Whenever we've seen the "dinner" in a third rate union comedy dressed in a get-up like Mrs. V's, we've always thought she was supposed to be funny. Now we know that it ain't no joke at all. The mental comedy replica of the Marie Antoinette of our time is evidently the real McCoy.

The next time you feel like giving way to a noisy guffaw, give a thought to what Prof. Francis Aveling had to say about it: The really happy man never laughs—or seldom—though he may smile. He does not need to laugh, for laughter, like weeping, is a relief from mental tension—and the happy are not over-tense. It is only the superior or discontented man who really laughs and perhaps that is why laughter, like tears, is ugly—being made up of grimaces and contortions, the mark of a hard and selfish mind.

(And so, with a small, delicate and quiet smile, we leave our typewriter until next week at the same time.)

Editor's Note—Please get to your typewriter earlier next week. Remember those funny things called deadlines?

The Sacrifice

Gary Cooper was telling this one the other day. Sam Goldwyn had long planned to do a picture based on Custer's last stand but when he finally got around to it a few weeks ago he found that Warner had beaten him to it and was half through with something called "They Died With Their Boots On" starring Errol Flynn. Goldwyn called up Jack Warner and complained that he had had the idea first. "The only reason I delayed," he bemoaned, "was I was trying to have the ending rewritten, so Custer shouldn't be killed. I don't like it Gary Cooper should die." "With us it's different," conceded Warner. "I don't mind about Errol Flynn."

Journey's End!

Maurice Wyman, a citizen of Manhattan, is 77 years old. For almost half a century he was in the book trade, considered an authority on rare editions. Among his friends were the leading literary scholars of the country, including magazine editors, publishers as well as novelists, biographers and historians. In the market for a new apartment with his invalid wife, At 63 when most men think of retiring the erudite Wyman looked around for another job—and became a bartender at a restaurant on east 48th street. Between misty drinks he discussed books with his patrons many of whom were literary friends who followed him to the little restaurant. Last week, Wyman resigned. To achieve, at last, his life-long ambition, he took a job as a "proof reader" for a publisher. "I expect to make good," says confident 77-year-old Maurice Wyman.

OVERCOAT
of Luxury

It is a coat that rightly belongs to the inner circle . . . limited to the enjoyment of those who value perfection above price. Imported from northern Scotland under convoy, this luxurious fabric has a feel of silky softness that almost melts under your touch. But, soft as it is, it packs a two-fold strength that guarantees enduring wear. If you are fastidious . . . if you like your marlinis very dry; if you like aisle seats at the theatre; and rare steaks; if quality is your creed . . . then this is your coat. $85

The real worth of Oxford Clothes is best determined when they are worn often. Constant use reveals the excellence of the needlework. The lasting lines of Oxford Clothes are never lost no matter how often, or how long, you wear them.

Pupils Prepare Issue of Proem

The brain children of 54 students in the junior and senior high school have been set up in type for the winter issue of Proem, Grosse Pointe High School literary magazine. This number includes 21 junior high and 34 senior high school writers, whose names will be listed in the Who's Who department of the magazine.

A few of the manuscripts included in this group may have to be eliminated in making up the pages of the magazine, but most of the contributors which have been set in type will appear in Proem.

The fact that this is Proem's tenth anniversary will be featured by the leading article, "History of a Ten-Year-Old," written by the editor, Mattilyn Butler, 12A, and by the frontispiece, opposite, which will represent the covers of the 22 issues of Proem produced previously.

The longest composition in the issue will be "Ray Stands for Cook," by James Atkin, 12B. At least two papers will be devoted to journal excerpts. Art students are preparing cuts, illustrating four of the compositions.

Staff members were interested last week to find a poem, "The Karak and I," written by William Mass, 10B, for the June Proem reprinted in "The Record," literary magazine of the John Marshall high school in Richmond, Virginia.

Pointers Play Parts In Display of Art

Many Local Artists Taking Prominent Roles in Obscure of National Art Week; Stores Exhibit Pictures

In conjunction with National Art week, the Grosse Pointe Artists Market is displaying its exhibit in the shops in Grosse Pointe City and Grosse Pointe Farms.

Mr. John M. Peck is in charge of the Grosse Pointe area and David O. Hamilton, exhibit chairman, was in charge of placing the exhibit in the store windows.

Ordinarily the exhibits are held in the Alger Museum but for a project of adding American art to the American public, this choice seemed to be much more unique and to the point.

The exhibit is sponsored by the Alger branch of the Detroit Institute of Arts and the price range is from five to fifty dollars. About forty shops cooperated in this undertaking.

Jack Benny, often referred to as the greatest comedian of our time, stars in "The Whittier" at the Gratiot Township News.

Gratiot Township News

The general contracting work for the new $83,000 school building in Gratiot Township was awarded this week to the Atkin-Ford company at a bid price of $80,000.

Heating and plumbing work was done to the Deane-Harris company at a bid price of $11,145. Electrical work was awarded to the W. D. Gale, Inc. at the bid amount of $2,825.

The contract calls for the completion of the eight room school building on Deane-Harris between Woodland and Woodcrest in six months. It is expected ground will be broken within the week.

Defense Program Grant
The new Gratiot school is the first building of its kind to be constructed with the aid of the Federal government's defense program grant in Wayne County.

Three months ago the Federal government gave $50,000 towards the cost of the building which completely equipped, was planned at the $83,000 cost.

Now, however, because of the increased cost of building materials and supplies the Gratiot Township school board has discovered the bill will be considerably more.

Without lockers and other sundry school materials. Even with this limitation the local school authorities have had to add more than $1800 to get the building completed.

Want Additional Money
According to Lloyd Lyle, head of the Gratiot school board, it is now necessary to ask the Federal government for an additional grant to completely furnish the building.

The Federal government has awarded the local authorities a priority's right and number in obtaining building materials.

A contract is to be conducted among the children of the Gratiot school system to name the building. An award of $5 is being offered.
