Garbage Trucks; 1946 Grosse Pointe Farms Models

Gathering place for all the residents of the Farms these days is the garbage dump behind the pumping station on Chalefonte road near Kerby. With the public works strike in the village a week old, the dump attracted more residents Saturday and Sunday than any of the swank clubs in the area. A steady stream of cars, ranging from convertible Cadillacs and snooty station wagons to pickup trucks, visited the dump during the weekend.

Tie Snippers Declare War On G.P.H.S.

Young Escort Victim of Sarcotial Mayhem on Way Home from Dance

The snippers, not the snipers, are abroad in the Pointe. Sunday morning at 12:15 o'clock young Tom Pierce, aged 13, of 281 McKinley, was escorting his girl home from a High School dance, and was walking on Maumee when two boys about 18 stopped by them and told the young lady to "keep walking."

"Are you one of those smart guys who go to the Grosse Pointe High School?" one of them asked. "Yes," piped young Tom.

With that, one of them took out his pocket knife and snipped off the end of Tom's tie. At that moment a car came along and picked up the sarcotial mayhem pair and sped on its way.

The general impression of the police is that the diabolical deed was a part of some dark ritual whereunder the candidates for membership in some secret criminal cult had to bring in so many scalps (snips) to qualify for membership.

Robber Allergic To Small Change

John O'Brien of 1125 Grayton was attending a party in the neighborhood of Roosevelt and East Jefferson Saturday night, and at 2 o'clock in the morning decided to get a breath of fresh air.

While walking on Lincoln between St. Paul and Maumee, an old Ford car pulled up alongside him and the occupant, a man apparently about 22 years old, asked him the whereabouts of a certain street. The next query was more disturbing. "Got any money on you?" said the stranger. O'Brien said he did not actually display a gun, but kept his hand in his pocket in a suggestive manner. O'Brien told him he had only some small change and took his word for it and drove on.

Pointe's Victory Garden Activity to Be Cut in Half

Grosse Pointe will have Victory Gardens again this year, but only about half as many as during the peak war years.

Applications are now being accepted by the clerks of the City, Park and Farms and those wishing plots are urged to file for them immediately. The deadline is April 30 and plots will be allotted on May 1.

The Grosse Pointe Victory Council, under the leadership of Vincent DePetris, will take care of the plowing as soon as the plots are allocated to the applicants.

Fewer plots will be available this year because the owners of some of the land used in former years have stated they do not

Pluggers for City Beautiful Win Initial Round of Screw Tilt Over Building Permits

Prospective Home Owners Find All Kinds of Opposition Cooked Up for Them at Council Meeting

It was City Beautiful night, plus, at the City Council meeting Monday night. The council room was well filled with Citizens and Citizenesses of the community who were on hand to battle against the threatened intrusion of certain types of home buildings which clashed, according to their opinion, with the prevailing type in their respective areas.

No. 1 on the list of impending desecrations had to do with an application for a building permit made some time ago by John W. White and his wife. . . . The wish to build a one-story house without basement, at 806 Lincoln road, between Goethe and Chalefonte. When he applied for the building permit, Building Superintendent Baker temporarily refused the permit while the application was referred to the Board of Appeals.

The Board refused the permit on the grounds that the proposed building would not conform with the type of homes of the neighborhood. It would be a one-story house, set between two-story houses. This was one grievance. There was no clash with restrictions. It was a single detached one-family house and would cost, according to the owner's estimate, $6,000. The minimum cost, according to the restrictions many years ago had to be $4,000 for a frame house or $5,000 for brick, stone or cement. Mr. Baker estimated the proposed house would cost $5,500. J. W. Wilson, the architect, insisted the completed property, without land, would cost much more than the $6,000 figure he had first given; probably as much as $9,000.

The applicant had fallen into the natural error of underestimating the cost of the house, with his eye upon the subsequent assessed valuation for taxation.

This so-called false representation of costs in the application seemed to arouse Attorney Medley's ire and he recommended to Council that the permit be denied. This was done. Medley's subsequent comments supported the legality of White's request. Had he not made the tactical error of getting tangled in his cost figures, all would have been lost for the champions of the City Beautiful. Mr. White and Architect Wilson promised to have more to say on the matter via court action.

Two Are Injured In Auto Accident

Two persons were slightly injured in an automobile accident at Kirby and Mack at 7:48 p. m. on April 11.

Ralph Hecker of 7710 Conger, Detroit, was backing a truck out of the Bartone Plumbing property when he collided with an Oldsmobile owned and driven by Benjamin DeClaire of 329 Grosse Pointe boulevard, going north on Kerby.

Marcella DeClaire and Eleanor DeClaire, passengers in the car, were treated at Cottage Hospital, the former for a cut on her right leg and the latter for bruises of the left shoulder.

Damage was estimated by Farms police at $5 to the truck and $150 to the passenger car. Insurance will cover the damage.

Vets to Test Home Town's Hospitality

Breakfast Club to Give Party for Pointe Boys; Hostess Corps to Help

Veterans who have returned from the war will soon find out what gave their home town such a reputation for hospitality among visiting veterans here during the war years.

The Breakfast Club, that organization which all through the war years has been active in efforts to give send-off parties to draftees leaving for service, is going to give a dance for the Pointe's own veterans.

The Breakfast Club is asking the Hostess Corps (those girls who gave so many successful parties for veterans of all allied countries during the war), to help out with this event. The dance will be held in the Neighborhood Club on Saturday, May 11.

The committee planning the party met in the Neighborhood Club Tuesday afternoon, and another meeting has been scheduled for Friday. This second session will be attended by a group of veterans being selected to give advice on the affair.

All Pointe veterans are invited to attend the dance. The Breakfast Club feels it will afford an excellent opportunity to meet old friends and make new ones after the long absence from the Pointe necessitated by bringing the war to a successful conclusion.

Stolen Jewelry Returned by Girl

Miss Conway, of the Detroit police department, went to the Grosse Pointe City police station one day last week with a young woman whom she said wanted to make restitution for some articles she had taken from Grosse Pointe stores on Kercheval last October. The young woman's name is withheld. She was accompanied by her mother.

She had taken a ring, a watch and a turquoise bracelet from the Pongracz jewelry store and two pairs of stockings from Best & Co. She returned the watch and the bracelet but the ring she had given to a girl friend whose name she turned in. She made restitution in cash to Best & Co. for the stockings, which were long since worn out.

Measles Cases Top Sick List

Sixty-six cases of measles were reported to the Department of Health of Grosse Pointe during the month of March, according to a report submitted to Carl Schweikart, township supervisor, by Dr. Thomas S. Davies, health commissioner.

There were also 50 cases of chicken pox, one of Vincent's angina, four of scarlet fever, four of whooping cough, two of pneumonia, two of impetigo, two of tuberculosis, 10 dog bites and two cat bites.

Municipal Building In Farms Picketed As Strike Continues

Union Lends Support to Demands of Employees Who Refuse to Work Until More Pay Is Granted

Picketing of the Grosse Pointe Farms Municipal Building was started Wednesday morning by members of the Michigan Public Employees Council 77, A.F. of L., the union to which the striking employees of the village belong. The strike which affects garbage and rubbish collections and other public works has been in effect since April 8.

Lawrence Pierce, business representative of the union, telephoned the NEWS Tuesday night to report that the picketing would start Wednesday. "The men will not return to work until further increases in pay are granted," he stated.

Mr. Pierce said that he had met with other union men and the wage committee of the Farms in March, and at that time, he says, the committee agreed that it would be necessary to grant a 15/10 per cent increase in pay to meet increased costs of living as ascertained by the Detroit Bureau of Labor Statistics as of January 1 last.

"Living costs have gone up since January," Mr. Pierce pointed out, "which was the basis for the men's request for an increase of 18 per cent."

The village employees were granted a 5 per cent cost of living increase last year as a stop-gap while negotiations over their demands for increases were being discussed. Mr. Pierce said the 18 per cent asked for would absorb this 5 per cent raise, so it would amount to a 13 per cent increase now. The 10-12 per cent increase which the village agreed to grant and which the employees have refused to accept, also absorbs this 5 per cent increase, (Continued on Page 15)

Smoothie Who Has Duped Pointe Housewives Leaves Picture Behind

Farms police believe they will catch up with the slick young man who has been extracting money from Pointe housewives with the lure that his wife would work for them if he could obtain some cash to bring her to town.

The smoothie who has worked this game on various women in the region, may have trapped himself. He left a picture of himself and one of a woman who he says is his wife, with W. J. Dossin of 76 Vendome road. The police now have the picture and believe they can track down the faker.

Mr. Dossin interviewed the young man in his Detroit office some weeks ago, at which time the pictures were left with him. He was also given a Flint address where the gentleman, who gave the name of Donald Baker, said he could be contacted. Mr. Dossin did not part with any money.

When the couple failed to appear to start working for the Dossins, Mr. Dossin returned the pictures with a note expressing surprise and regret that they had not appeared. The letter was returned from Flint marked "Unclaimed."

Negro's Altered Armament Arouses Interest of F.B.I.

The Park police got a hot tip Saturday that one Andrew Jordan White (colored), was totting a heavier armament than the peaceful purloiner of Grosse Pointe Park called for.

White and his wife are both employed as servants in the home of Dr. Ralph Kerncamp of 1148 Grayton road.

A visit to the house disclosed a sawed off shot gun stored in his trunk. It had been sawed off by White, leaving only a fifteen-inch barrel. As Federal law makes it an offense to possess such a weapon with a barrel less than eighteen inches long, White was arrested and turned over to the F.B.I. It has not yet been determined what prompted him to laborious-

Solons Agree On Need for Complete Job

Engineer Brown States Cost of Project May Run As High As $600,000

The City of Grosse Pointe took action at the Council meeting Monday night to start the movement for its long-delayed street paving program. Mayor Netting stated that "the time has come when the City must undertake an extensive task of putting its streets in proper condition." There was not a whisper of dissent from this basic discovery.

Obviously the matter had been previously discussed. City Engineer Prescott Brown stated that the complete rejuvenation of the streets might cost as much as $600,000. The calm with which this figure was received was further evidence that it was no surprise to the City Fathers.

Mayor Netting cautioned against doing the job in such a manner as would cause confusion and stoppage of traffic on the streets. He mentioned that it might be found better to pave or permanently repair streets lying between certain east and west thoroughfares within common designated points of beginning and ending, in one season. It is generally recognized that the job is so large that it may require several construction seasons.

Many vital considerations must be taken into the reckoning. Whether or not it will be better to make a single large bond issue at one time, or sell the bonds in three separate series in successive seasons. The time and bulk of the bond sale would also depend on the market conditions at the time and many other factors.

The proposal as now standing is that the matter be whipped into shape to submit to a vote of the people of the City at the time of the June primaries on June 18. Councilman D. M. Ferry, Jr., remarked that there was a large job in examination and preparation to crowd into a short period of time.

The Committee named to prepare the groundwork for the project is composed of Councilmen Ferry, Chester F. Carpenter and Hal Smith. They are requested to have their recommendation ready within 15 days. At the same time arrangements will have to be made with the State authorities at Lansing to clear the way for a quick approval of the bond issue.

Farms Rejects Bus Co. Excuses

The Farms trustees have no intention of calmly accepting "the convenient excuses" of the Lake Shore Coach Lines, Inc. for not erecting a suitable waiting room on East Jefferson avenue at the limits, it developed at the council meeting Monday night. The "convenient excuses" is the term applied by Trustees Grylls and Kirby.

References were made by the trustees to the waiting rooms which are maintained by the DSR and Greyhound Lines and the opinion was expressed that the line serving this area should be expected to maintain a suitable building at this important loading point.

A letter was read from John Tierney, vice-president and general manager of the Lake Shore Lines, which was similar to that sent to other Pointe officials, explaining that depredations of the youngsters had made it impossible for the company to continue to maintain the waiting room that was in use during the war.

A resolution was passed by the Farms trustees to the effect that Mr. Tierney or other representative of the company should be invited to attend the next council meeting and discuss the matter further.

GUNS CONFISCATED

A .22 calibre rifle and a .38 gun were confiscated by Farms police on April 13 when they received a complaint that Herman Klingelhoefer was doing some target practice in the rear of 250 Hillcrest road.

Screwy Tilt

making the formal application he was anxious to know the sentiment of his prospective neighbors on the type of house proposed. Both Mr. Maiullo and his architect, Edward Waugh, were at the meeting.

Maiullo said he had just returned from three years' war service and desired to build a home for his family, consisting of a wife and two small children. He liked the Grosse Pointe prospect. He proposed to build a ranch-type house on a lot 66 feet on University by 133 feet on Charlevoix, with three bedrooms, living room, dining room, kitchen and two bathrooms. It would be ultra modern in every respect, with all of the most modern provisions for heating, lighting, ventilation, etc. The cost of the house would be in excess of $11,000.

Both Mr. Maiullo and Architect Waugh were very much on their toes. Mayor Netting urged the point that as a prospective citizen of the community Mr. Maiullo would wish to erect the type of home agreeable to his neighbors. Both owner and architect insisted the house would be an improvement on the prevailing type in that area. Maiullo was not impressed by the Mayor's appeal.

Councilman John Mack asked whether it was not "ethical with builders and architects to plan houses in conformity with the prevailing type?" "That depends on what the prevailing type is," responded Architect Waugh. Round No. 3 in the Battle for the Beautiful opened up when a sizeable group of citizens from Rivard arose in protest against Edwin F. Guenther, a contractor, building two houses on Rivard between Maumee and St. Paul. This tract was originally subdivided into 60-foot lots, but Mr. Guenther is putting up two houses on a 60-foot lot, plus a 20-foot strip or an average lot per house of 40 feet. Residents of the neighborhood who acquired 60-foot lots and built accordingly are aroused against the encroachment. They were loud in their criticism of the City for having given permits for the buildings.

The City disclaimed legal ability to control the use of the lots as long as it did not conflict with the zoning laws. Mr. Meder advised that the residents of the neighborhood combine and hire a lawyer to defend the area under the original restrictions of the subdivision.

This didn't set well with the complainants. The idea of hiring a lawyer, when they felt the City had been lax in granting the permit ran against the grain. Many of them did not hesitate to speak emphatically in this vein. After a long discussion it was finally agreed that the City would post the property with a stop work notice, giving the private residents time to engage counsel and run to earth the solution of their grievances through private channels.

The City is still waiting for Ernest Moeller to put the door in the Washington road front of the house he has practically finished at Goethe and Washington.

Some months ago Moeller applied for a permit which showed the front entrance on Goethe. It was a ranch-type house best adapted for corner lot construction. Building Superintendent Baker insisted that all houses in that area had to front on Washington and the front implied a door. Moeller finally agreed to the door, but later asked council to relieve him of the necessity of putting it in. Door or no door is the intriguing question yet unsettled. Mr. Moeller is far beyond the stage when he is interested in building permits.

Since Mr. Moeller began his building and got in a jam with the City authorities on the door or no door issue, his ranch-type house has met with such favor with his neighbors that most all of them have signed a statement expressing their satisfaction with the improvement of that corner with the ranch-type house.

Sheriff's Office Gets Rape Case in Boundary Argument

Victim Tells Farms Police She Was Forced Into Car and Attacked By Two Men; One Suspect Caught

A rape case which was reported to the Farms police on April 12 has been turned over to the Wayne County Sheriff's office because no one has been able to decide in just what community the offense occurred.

Early in the afternoon of April 12, William Reinholdt, of 7631 East Congress, Detroit, a collector for the Detroit Free Press, encountered an hysterical young woman at Moross and Beaupre roads in Grosse Pointe Farms. She asked to be taken to the nearest police station. There she told of having been forced into a car at gun point by two men who took her for a ride and then criminally attacked her, she thought, in Grosse Pointe Farms. She gave her address as Chalmers avenue in Detroit.

The young woman's clothes were badly torn and she had been seriously beaten. She said she had been put out of the car after the attack at Kerby and Beaupre shortly before she met Reinholdt. The young woman, who is married, gave the Farms police the name of one of her attackers. This man was picked up in his home on Forest avenue, Detroit. He denies implication in the crime, but is being held.

When Sergeant Elmer Labadie of the Farms police accompanied the young woman and her husband in a search for the exact spot where the attack occurred, at 11:30 on the morning of the 12th, she fixed the place near Eight Mile and Harper.

Authorities of Grosse Pointe Township and East Detroit were called to the scene, but none of them could positively state whether the location was in East Detroit or Grosse Pointe. One old employee, after lengthy deliberation, decided that a survey had been made years ago which placed the dividing line in the exact middle of the street. He opined that if the victim could remember on which side of the car the attack had taken place, they would know which community's officials have jurisdiction in the case.

At this point one of the scout cars from the Sheriff's office drove by and, attracted by the great collection of police cars, stopped to investigate. Then and there, the case was placed in the Sheriff's lap.

Officer Labadie of the Farms police accused the young woman of lying in her first recital of the affair. She said she didn't know either of the men, but later identified the car belonging to one of them, but not the one into which she had been forced. She also gave Forest avenue as his address and it was through this information that the one suspect, Johnny Bologna, of 8830 East Forest, was picked up. Labadie also thought it peculiar that she could be forced into a car on a busy street in broad daylight. Bologna's car was parked in front of the house where he has been living.

A check of the license number gave the police the address where he was found. The sheriff's office is now trying to find the other man in the case. A description of the car used has been furnished them by the young woman.

"Builders" Complete Church Model

"The Builders" of the Grosse Pointe Congregational church are a group of men who have met together for the purpose of building a scale model of the future church. The men met regularly in a basement workshop and have invested at least 170 man hours of labor in the project. The model was built according to the blueprints furnished by the Church

Architects, George D. Mason and Company.

"The Builders" will present the model to the congregation next Sunday. Those who worked on the project will be introduced to the congregation and thanked as part of the regular service of worship. This has been the most satisfying and worthwhile project undertaken by the men for the church. The enclosed photograph was taken by Dick Allen, one of the High School boys.

Window Will Be Dedicated In Honor of David Loughlin

On Easter Saturday afternoon, April 20, at 5 o'clock, the Rev. Francis B. Creamer, rector, will dedicate a beautifully executed stained glass window now installed in the Narthex of Christ Church, Grosse Pointe, in memory of David Loughlin, 1st Lieutenant, USAAF, killed in action over Germany September 9, 1944.

The window is the gift of the Loughlin family and is the workmanship and design of the Willet Stained Glass Company of Philadelphia. It portrays the battle between David and Goliath.

The Philistine soldiers are gathered in the background, and at the bottom of the window is inscribed Lt. Loughlin's name with an airplane, symbol of his branch of service. Lt. Loughlin's brother, Master Sgt. William Loughlin, will be the crucifier at the dedication ceremony.

Officers Picked By Woods League

The Grosse Pointe Woods Civic League held its annual election of officers last Friday night.

Voted to lead the civic organization for the next year was Rex H. Johnston, 2025 Hunt Club, who had previously served as secretary. Frank X. Meier, Jr., 1820 Kenmore, was re-elected vice-president and Samuel R. Barr, 1866 Lancaster, was again chosen treasurer. Allan R. Wilson, 1308 Vernier road, was voted secretary.

Elected to the Board of Directors were: Russell J. Taylor, 1617 Brys; N. Chester Clerk, 1991 Norwood; Don J. Goodrow, 20738 Wicks Lane; Robert Beck, 2079 Roslyn; and Norman Sielaff, 2033 Hunt Club.

Discussion of residential restrictions and proposed changes to the village zoning ordinance and building code followed installation of the new officers.

Albert Beever and George W. Gardner, newly elected members of Village Commission, attended the meeting and thanked the League membership for its endorsement and support in the March 11 election.

Arrangements have been made to conduct future meetings at the Neighborhood Club. The next meeting will be held Thursday, April 18, at 8:30 p.m.

Bad Kids Due For Surprise

"Be tougher on juvenile offenders of the law." This was the word passed on to Farms police Monday night by members of the village board of trustees.

Trustee Richard Maxon, head of the police committee, brought the subject of juvenile delinquency to the attention of his fellow councilmen and said he thought it was time drastic steps were taken.

Trustee Gervys Grylls expressed the opinion that all offenders should be punished and that there should be no exemptions simply because the parents were prominent and might have some pull.

It was the unanimous opinion of the board that the police should be instructed that no juveniles were to be left off with lectures or remanded to the fond care of their parents. "Send every case to juvenile court where it can be tried on its own merits," was the order that went out.

Residents Rap City's Beach

Kick to Council Brings About Appointment of Committee to Make Study

Mrs. William Adams and Mrs. P. S. Mathewson of Lakeland avenue, whose small children make large use of the city's Beach Park, were at the City Council meeting Monday night to voice a robust protest against its general conduct. There were no guards posted on elevated seats where they could have an adequate view of the children; the water in the wading pool was filthy, the latrine was a mess of horror and according to the complainants, there was little that was right about the place.

Councilman Chester Carpenter, who is in charge of parks pleaded that inability to get either men or materials during the war, or even park equipment had been the stumbling block. They had had to make shift on the wading pool by temporary improvements.

Mr. Mathewson, who was also a spectator at the discussion, bluntly stated that park equipment was not only now available but had been all through the war. There was only a half-hearted rejoinder to this.

The Council acknowledged that meagre appropriations had been made for the park during the war, in defense of the taxpayers, but gave heart to the complainants in that there was an item in this year's budget of $14,000.

Edward Pongracz, who was present also on the park mission, asked how the council would regard the proposal that a citizens' committee be named to make a thorough examination of the whole park improvement problem. The Mayor and all of the councilmen agreed this would be a fine idea. Fortified by a motion quickly adopted, Mayor Netting named Mr. Pongracz and Mrs. Adams as co-chairmen of such a committee to report their recommendations to Councilman Carpenter, who would from then on carry the ball to the Councilmen.

Farewell Party Ends in Battle

Word was phoned into the City police station at 10:30 o'clock Friday night that a fight was in progress on Rivard near Goethe. The police hurried around and found it was a fight of the triangular variety.

They brought in three men, all quite well known residents of the Chalmers area of Detroit. It was no mere youths' scuffle, as the men gave their ages as 35, 38 and 40 respectively. They had been attending a farewell party at the Rivard residence and the farewells had been too long in the making, during which they had taken aboard a load of the stuff that both cheers and irritates.

The police took their cars away from them and sent them home tenderly in taxicabs. The cars were all turned over to them in cooler moments.

The Loans

The avidity with which many countries in Europe are already pressing their requests for loans has moved many Americans to wonder whether we are getting set to repeat the errors we made following the other war. During that period we not only made great loans to England, France and Italy, while the peril of war was still present, but followed it up after the war with loans which aggregated still greater sums. It was all done to hasten the rehabilitation of Europe. Today it is the same old cry.

It is well to remember now that instead of going in wholeheartedly for a revival of international trade some of these countries immediately proceeded to revamp their economies on a basis completely opposed to international trade. They went ever further than the much maligned tariff barriers ever professed to go. They erected the quota systems which fixed definitely the volume of goods that might be admitted regardless of the natural barriers which the tariff created.

Germany carried this practice to an extreme. Not only did she employ the quota system, but she paid us for such goods as she saw fit to admit in blocked marks, good only for purchases in her own country. Great Britain carried on an intensive "Buy British" campaign which signified the same thing under another dress.

This is the time for the United States to ponder the implications of these requested loans. We may be certain they are all prompted by the general idea of the greater advantage for the borrowing country. It will be too late after the dotted line is signed.

The alternative to our refusal of the British loan, which it most advanced towards a decision at the moment, that it will be necessary for Britain to form a close economic association with those countries which will come into the "Sterling block," grates on America's economic ears.

The current American opinion is that we must bend ourselves backward to facilitate the revival of foreign trade. A world trade with the fewest possible barriers is an ideal situation. But it does not represent the imperative consideration many of the younger school of latter day economists seem to hold. It is not the route we traveled during those years we were moving up to our present industrial eminence. In those days we laid more stress on the preservation of the home markets. They are always worth watching. The stricken countries of Europe cannot produce now the things they must have. They must buy them from us or temporarily go without. They would naturally like to buy them with our money. They have neither money nor goods with which to pay.

That idea is alright, maybe even from our own standpoint, if regarded solely as a temporary measure, but we must keep our eyes open to the long view. If and when the world once again gets on an even keel we may be certain the old competitive basis of trade will come back. Money itself knows no home of patriotism or gratitude. It goes where it can move to its own best advantage.

Meanwhile let us proceed slowly. We do not wish to burn our fingers in the same fire a second time in the same generation. These pleading friends have a capacity for quickly divesting themselves of embarrassing foreign obligations. The road to repudiation is as open now as ever before. None of the signs have been obliterated.

As The Twig Is Bent

The report of the Park Village Planning Commission suggesting the wisdom of providing social recreation for our 'teen aged children, even to the point of municipally managed dances, snack bars and trimmings poses a question for adult thought.

The question of juvenile delinquency, while not yet actually acute here in this well ordered community, can, if neglected, grow to menacing proportions.

It is common knowledge, conveyed to us daily by the newspapers, that there has been a let down in the manners and morals of the youth of the land that is perilous. There is nothing in ignoring this fact or passing it over in an "it can't happen here" attitude of mind. It can happen here. The men and women of ten years hence are being shaped right here and now in the sort of children being raised.

This problem lies basically directly in the laps of the fathers and mothers of the community. Local government may go as far as it can in providing the mechanism for clean and wholesome social recreation, but it will be a sorry failure if the fathers and mothers don't back it up.

Some may capiously criticize the idea of a municipality going into the social entertainment venture, but such criticism should not come from any home which has a "problem" of its own flesh and blood under its own roof; one which their conscience tells goes directly back to the issue of parental delinquency. As the twig is bent the tree inclines. The older generation said it—they were not all fools. If any of us are unwilling to assume the bother or personal inconvenience of managing our children as they should be guided, we should not throw any stones at the suggestion of our forward looking authorities.

The Hyde Park Shrine

Hyde Park, N. Y., was the scene of a ceremony on April 12 which will be historic in the American record. The transfer of the birthplace and life long home of Franklin Delano Roosevelt to the Nation as a shrine for the perpetuation of the record of his private and public life and works was regarded by the country with the deepest interest.

Already there is a general ananymity with respect to his great leadership of the Nation through its greatest crisis since the Civil war. It was his vision of the perils in the making in Europe against the whole concept of society and government as held by America and his forthright sounding of the alarm in time to meet the danger which fixes his place immovably in the history of the Nation.

With the earlier activities of his administrations which had to do with internal social and economic dispositions, public thought has not yet coalesced into a common pattern.

SWELLS AND SWILL DEPT.

Was a time when the elite of Grosse Pointe Farms gathered together at one of the clubs, ran into each other at some of the local shops, called on each other in the home—stead or had rendezvous at some luncheon spot. But all that is changed since the advent of the Farms garbage collectors' strike. NOW the place to go to meet all the Who's Who out here, is the garbage dump at Kerby and Chalfonte.

When we drove by last week, we couldn't believe our eyes... there were so many swank cars parked at the dump, while their swanky occupants lugged garbage cans to and fro. We were intrigued enough to come back the next day and bring our lunch, so we could spend the day glimpsing folks from the right side of the tracks. They came in droves... in new station wagons, town cars, sports roadsters, shiny new sedans et al. A perfect example of the mountain coming to Mohammed!

Overheard on the bus... "I hear you fired your cook! I was SO surprised... all your friends thought she was so good."
"Well, in a way. The best way I can explain it is to say that she was a good cook for Democrats... but not for Republicans!"

The radio has never produced a commercial announcement that gave us a laugh, until last week when we happened to hear an "Anacin" spot announcement. The little man droned on for some time about the benefits of Anacin for aches and pains... then ended by saying with great gusto... "When a headache wears out its welcome... TAKE AN ANACIN!" We don't know about YOU, but all a headache has to do in our house, is start to unpack its bag... and its welcome has already been worn to a frazzle!

More dope on the Florida situation... this time, flowers. The most inexpensive florist in Palm Beach, will supply a small house with flowers twice a week, for a hundred dollars a week! Of course, they DO have to go to all the trouble of carting away the old ones and arranging the new ones. These are all garden flowers grown right in Florida. They sell gladiolas to Northern florists for anywhere from 50 cents a dozen to a dollar and a half a dozen... but if you (you poor goat) buy them yourself down there, they charge $5.00 a dozen! Ain't you glad you live in Grosse Pointe?

We sneaked up on a couple of nine year old girls who were talking earnestly to each other and heard the following conversation:
"I won't be able to play with you Friday. I have to go to church."
"You don't have to go to church ALL day do you?"
"I have to go for three hours."
"What do you do there all that time?"
"We pray. Everybody prays."
"You mean on your knees and all? With your head down and everything?"
"Sure. Everybody does. You get down on your knees and pray for three hours."

The other child, completely awe-stricken, was silent for a few moments, then said, "Gee... that's worse than getting a permanent!"

If, when you've seen statues of army officers on their horses, you've thought (as we always have) that the position of the horse was a whim of the sculptor's, you're wrong. If the horse's feet are all on the ground, it means the General (of who have you), died a natural death. If ONE of the horse's legs is raised in front, it means the General died of wounds received in battle. If both the horse's front legs are raised in the air, the General died in action in a battle. Now don't say we never tell you anything you don't already know.

As we work (?) we can see from the window of our study a barren looking flower garden in the back yard. In it are sitting two very tiny people, about an inch high. They look like husband and wife... and they are thumbing their noses at us. We are so fascinated, we can hardly keep your mind on this column. NOOO, we haven't been drinking!

We just wandered out to the back yard and are happy to report that those two people thumbing their noses at us are two small stumps of bushes left over from last year. They looked quite normal, at close range, but now that we're back at our desk, they're at it again!

Only the perspective of history can fill in the outlines which as yet are only partly apparent.

He was a successful National wartime leader. His was the capacity to select men of ability to build a mighty military machine and use it skillfully to pilot the Nation through the hazards of the greatest war that ever befell the world to a triumph unparalleled in the whole story of the Nations.

He died at the pinnacle of his fame. It might well be that had he lived only a few months longer to face the problems of reconversion to a peacetime model within the purview of the American ideal that now besets this unhappy successor, his place in our lasting hall of fame might have been altered.

But for what he did the American people will henceforth honor and revere him.

The Call For Food

The American people must not permit themselves to become prejudiced or embittered by the inevitable stories that seep in occasionally from the dark corners of the world about profiteering and misuse of food stuffs. Maybe some of the "heaven Chinese" have set up a black market in American donated foods. There will be more of the same sort. But the tragic fact is that several millions of persons in Europe are already going through the throes of actual starvation.

This is a situation entirely apart from the ponderous considerations of politics or long ranged economic arrangements. Our consciences would never rest if it should be learned a little later that hundreds of thousands of homeless, wandering children in Europe had starved to death while we had been eating from an abundance we were unwilling to share.

Let us plant gardens this year as never before. If necessary, let us take a reef in our belts against an imaginary hunger. The call for food is the plea for life. We must not close our ears to it.

Talley Rant

U. N. KALEIDOSCOPE.—AMBASSADOR HUSSEIN ALA, of IRAN, is a very small man. One of his advisers, who stands just behind him, is at least six feet, three. When the AMBASSADOR sits down you think immediately of CHARLIE MCCARTHY on BERGEN'S lap.

Although GLOOMY GUS GROMYKO has the largest collection of short "no's" ever counted, he is, nevertheless, the U. N. boy the women all keep their eyes on. He isn't good-looking and he'd never make the ten best dressed list, but he sure swings the girls. Must be that brooding, dark look.

DR. LANGE, the POLISH envoy, has a pretty wife and two attentive assistants. After the good DOCTOR has said a few words for the record, he sits down, highly pleased, and looks around at his wife and friends with a "that was pretty good!" what I just said—wasn't it?" expression. They all beam back at him.

Of all the gentlemen, AMBASSADOR BONNET has the most beautiful voice. He, and DR. QUO TAI-CHI speak the most polished English and their embassatorial manners are impeccable.

The cafeteria is working well, and EYKELHOFF, the DUTCH chef, is now giving the great minds, and the lesser ones who go to watch the great ones functioning, a complete national change of menu daily. You can have BAMYA BOURANI — BJIS — COTLETKI EZE SELIODEKI. I took EMPADA de CAMARAO myself.

TELEVISION has been doing an impressive job. When MR. GROMYKO walked out of the conference, TELEVISION showed him leaving his seat, then fanned out to show the expressions on the faces of the other delegates, and returned to the empty chair. Those attending the council meetings who can't get into the main room, sit comfortably in the outer chamber and get a first class view of the whole proceedings—compliments of R. C. A. TELEVISION.

The VISCONTRESS SCARSDALE is visiting in New York. One of the most interesting experiences I've had was at her Park Lane house in LONDON. It was the day before the CORONATION OF GEORGE and ELIZABETH. All over LONDON the royal and noble ladies and gentlemen who were to be present the next day in WESTMINSTER ABBEY were giving "BOBE PARTIES." It was a kind of dress rehearsal. They all had appointments with their photographers, and afterward, still in their beautiful robes, they received their friends. One went to several parties during the afternoon and evening. LADY SCARSDALE looked especially attractive in her scarlet and ermine, standing before the great mirrored fireplace in her pretty drawing-room. I remember being interested in the fact that the newer the title, the more chic the coronet. The ones handed down for generations were bulky and unbecoming. The LADIES who had only recently acquired their STRAWBERRY LEAVES had also new little headpieces which were ravishingly becoming.

Lunched recently at the ALGONQUIN, one of the most colorful inns in NEW YORK, and had a chat with FRANK CASE, the ALGONQUIN's owner. It was FRANK who put signs in his elevators, "NO OPIUM, SMOKING IN THE LIFTS." He is a very sardonic and amusing fellow. FRANK was a guest on my late radio program and we discussed his books—THE WAYWARD INN and FEEDING THE LIONS. When he read the script I had prepared for him, he said, "Hey, you've hogged the script—you've taken all the good lines." I said, "To show what an amiable character I am, you write your own script and YOU take all the good lines!" So he did. He took ALL the lines. Once I opened my mouth to let my teeth get a look at the GUEST OF HONOR, and the next time was when I said, "GOOD NIGHT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN." Frank was wonderful, though—a really witty character.

24 March 1946

Dear Sirs:
In response to the letter sent to all lettermen by the Varsity Club of Grosse Pointe High School I would like to place my indorsement on their program of obtaining a field house on the high school campus as a war memorial.

I feel that such an undertaking would be in accordance with Grosse Pointe's fine educational system as well as an excellent memorial for the graduates of Grosse Pointe High School who gave their lives in this war.

Very truly yours,
H. A. Gieseking
Lt. (ig) USNR

Gentlemen,
I have recently received word that you are considering building a gymnasium or field house as a war memorial. I think it is an excellent idea.

As a former student of the high school I feel the primary need is not for the war memorial, but for a new gymnasium. A comparison of the gymnasiums of Fordson High School or Lincoln High School of Ferndale will clearly illustrate this point. The gym is much too small to be adequate.

In addition, the construction of a new field house would leave the present gymnasium for a larger intramural program. In which the entire school could participate. During the basketball season, for example, there can be only a very limited program since the varsity team uses the gym every night. I would like to add my whole-hearted support to the campaign for a new gymnasium.

Sincerely,

Dear Sir:
I think erecting a field house as a living memorial for the veterans of World War II is a superb idea! I could think of nothing more fitting to veterans and the young men now going through high school.

I have spent all my Naval time in the Physical Fitness program and I've seen the pleasure a field house has given to thousands of young men. I'm sure the people of Grosse Pointe will be in favor of such a memorial.

Sincerely,

Gentlemen:
I'm writing a few words in regards to the thought of a living memorial for the boys of Grosse Pointe, who did their bit in this war.

Being a great follower of sports and a one-time member of Grosse Pointe's great rowing team from '39-'44, I feel honored and privileged in being allowed to voice my opinion.

After going through over three years of this life in both the Merchant Marine and the U. S. Navy, I've seen the long development of boys from the beginning, how the lad with an athletic Grosse Pointe High school, are all in favor of Grosse Pointe's proposed War Memorial taking the form of a community field house. We consider such a field house to be one of Grosse Pointe's foremost needs.

I like your new Feature Page (P. 12, April 11, 1946) very much. Yours truly,

Gentlemen:
I understand that the community of Grosse Pointe is contemplating a memorial to the veterans of World War II and being a veteran letterman I feel it my duty to confirm the excellent suggestion of a Field House of Gymnasium. While I was attending the High School I had the opportunity to observe almost all of the local gymnasiums, and for my own part and as the expressed opinion of various residents of Grosse Pointe, ours has been considered one of the more inferior and for a marvelous community such as Grosse Pointe this should not be! After all the war was won on the stamina, spirit, physical and mental alertness of the American men, all these characteristics being created and increased through athletic competition! Such a memorial is not only greatly needed but its practicality can not be overestimated! It would tend to aid the returning veterans to regain their physical capacities and would provide pleasure for them together with (Continued on Page 11)

Help Your Heart

Certain possible symptoms of heart disease are shortness of breath, heart skips, indigestion, blue finger tips or blue lips, a tendency to tire easily.

Any one of these should send you to a doctor's office. Without any such symptoms, you should occasionally go anyway, to be sure there is no lurking trouble. Millions of people carry a threat of death of which they are totally unaware.

Such a check up may reveal the good news that your heart is perfectly normal. Or if there is a defect, caused by exercise or other efforts too strenuous, your doctor will advise you how you may help your heart return to normalcy.

YWCA's Membership Drive Starts April 22

Campaign Will Continue Through May 25 After Starting With Dinner Meeting in Central Branch

With a program "Geared to One World" in thought and action the Detroit YWCA will launch its annual spring membership month campaign on Thursday evening, April 25th, at a dinner meeting in the Central Branch Building at 6:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Allen B. Crow, YWCA president, tops the list of dinner speakers who will present highlights from the recent YWCA national convention to campaign workers.

"It always gives one a lift to belong to a World Organization," said Mrs. Crow, "but never more so than today when it is one world or none. YWCA members are of all types, races, creeds and nationality backgrounds. Together they stand shoulder to shoulder around the world, helping each other to find greater satisfactions from life through membership in this great Christian fellowship."

From April 22 through May 25, campaign workers will seek to enlist 6700 members. This number is needed to maintain the city-wide membership of the Detroit YWCA at 20,000. At the same time members will be invited to contribute to the YWCA's world fellowship fund which is used to further Association work in other countries. Detroit is particularly interested in the world program of the YWCA because three of its former staff members are now stationed abroad—Miss Sue Stille in Germany, Miss Mary Kay Pound in England, and Miss Margaret Ping in Mexico.

The campaign has adopted the structure of the United Nations for its set-up with Mrs. Crow serving as "president of the general assembly," and Mrs. Max V. MacKinnon as "secretary general." The four council groups are headed by Mrs. E. J. Trowbridge of Dearborn Branch, Mrs. Eric Fromm of Highland Park Branch, Mrs. Pearl V. Collins of Lucy Thurman Branch, and Mrs. W. R. Meese of Central Branch. Mrs. Merle Pratt is membership secretary responsible for the campaign's progress.

Alex Jemal, 12A, Dave Penimen, 12A, Ken Christman, 11B, and Helen Schultz, 10A, were awarded a second division rating for their French horn quartet in the Michigan State solo and ensemble festival held also at Lansing. The two entries had won the same respective awards at the Southeastern Michigan Solo and Ensemble in Ypsilanti a few weeks ago.

Five possible ratings can be won at the festival. These are: first, a superior rating, second, an excellent rating, third a good rating, and fourth and fifth, not so good.

Fellowship Plans Sunrise Service

The Youth Fellowship of the Grosse Pointe Methodist Church, under the chairmanship of Helen Walker, 865 Bedford road, is sponsoring an Easter Sunrise service at the home of her parents, members of both the Senior and Mr. and Mrs. Lee S. Walker. The Intermediate fellowship will cooperate in this venture, which is for all the members and friends of the Grosse Pointe Methodist Church and their families.

The program will include a Sunrise service at 7 a. m. and an Easter Sunrise Fellowship at 8 a. m. Those wishing to attend are requested to phone their reservations to Mrs. Walker not later than Friday noon.

At the morning worship service at 10:45 a. m., the pastor, the Rev. Hugh G. White, will speak on the theme "What Christ Can Do For You." New families will be added to the church during the course of the service and the class on preparatory membership will be recognized.

None of the regular evening meetings will be held on Easter Sunday evening.

Tony Perseveres in Defiance Of Park Law by Continuing To Sell on Village Streets

Four Tickets Issued Against Koinis By Police; Counsel Shows Permit Issued in Lansing

Ernest Koinis, better known locally as "Tony," the Popcorn man, is persevering in his defiance of the right of the village of Grosse Pointe Park to control the use of its streets for business purposes.

At the last two meetings of the Board of Village Commissioners he has been represented by counsel to plead for some special dispensation which would permit him to sell on the streets, ignoring the upholding of the village peddler's license ordinance by the Circuit Court, and on both occasions he was denied.

Despite this he has continued to sell, meanwhile garnering four separate tickets summoning him to a hearing for violation of the ordinance. His hearing was held Thursday night in Traffic court before Judge Belanger.

The hearing took two separate phases. First, for selling without a license and secondly for selling on the streets from a fixed stand. On both issues Judge Belanger withheld judgment until Monday.

Tony's counsel displayed a permit issued from Lansing under provision of a Federal law which permits veterans to sell on the highways without a local license, but which does not presume to authorize the holder to carry on his business on the streets in violation of local municipal regulation. The impression is that on this score of the license itself, Tony may have something. This, however, has nothing to do with his continued occupation of the streets with a truck from which he makes sales.

The amended village peddler's license ordinance permits the use of the streets for peddling provided the peddler keeps on the move. The common sense understanding is, of course, that he can stop to make a sale.

It is on this wrinkle of the law that Tony has thus far succeeded in carrying on his business at almost any place he wants to along the south side of Jefferson avenue.

While he is making a sale another customer, or a half dozen of them, draw up and buy and the police are in a quandary as to the psychological moment in which to swoop down on him. They have succeeded, however, in landing four tickets on him within the past few days. Any night the passerby can see his wagon doing business as usual. If they happen along the same way a few minutes later the wagon may be moved a few feet farther on, but to all intents and purposes, the schedule he has figured out is nearly as satisfactory as the old permanent stand at Bishop and Jefferson. Meanwhile the police are twiddling their thumbs wondering what to do about the elusive and aggressive merchant.

Judge Belanger's opinion handed down on Monday was the dismissal of two of the cases involving Mrs. Koinis and an employee who on two occasions were in charge of the wagon; this being done at the request of the village attorney. In a third case Tony was fined $10 and $5 costs on the charge of stopping his wagon when no sale was made. The fourth case involved Tony's liability to take out a license, under the village's peddler's license ordinance.

Judge Belanger says he finds that according to an interpretation of the state law made by an attorney general prior to 1940 he would not be responsible to the village for any license or permit in connection with peddling. An attorney general since that time however had given an opinion directly opposite to this.

The Judge agrees that the real question involved is the right of the village to control the use of its own streets for business purposes. He says there is no question of the prohibition against Tony to remain permanently at his old stand at Bishop and Jefferson. That was specifically denied by the recent decision of the Circuit court. It was an agreed-upon decision between Tony and the village at the time made.

Fire Chief Rector Advises Eliminating Fire Hazards

Fire Chief Edward L. Rector of the Park urges citizens of this community to make their first postwar spring cleanup a thorough job. He points out that the current housing shortage makes your present home a particularly precious place; if it were destroyed, you probably couldn't replace it with a new one and you might not even be able to find materials to repair a partially damaged home. Guarding it against fire is a first step in the right direction, he says.

Reminding us that fire losses in the United States during 1945 amounted to the staggering sum of $455 million, an increase of $18 million over 1944, the chief asks every resident to take an active part in Spring Cleanup Week, beginning May 1, by eliminating fire hazards in his home.

The chief suggests that you start with the attic and work down to the cellar, or vice versa—just so long as you cover the entire house. "The attic is a catch-all for all kinds of junk, most of it unused for years," the chief says. "If you throw it all away, you'll probably never miss it."

Much the same treatment ought to be applied to bedroom and hall closets. "With people of so many lands so much in need, this is just the time to get rid of those old clothes. They're a fire hazard, too," the chief points out. Urging an overhauling of the kitchen because it is the origin point of so many fires, the chief says, "accumulated grease in the oven or on top of the stove can give you a nasty surprise. It may flare up some day, burn you badly and start a costly fire. Check your kitchen closets; oily rags, if you have to keep them, should be in tightly covered metal containers. And," reminds the chief, "the kitchen is the most important place in the house for an Underwriters approved fire extinguisher. While you are spring cleaning, be sure yours is where it belongs and ready for use."

Next on the chief's list is the cellar. "Get rid of any flammable rubbish, old boxes, old work clothes, newspapers, magazines, empty paint cans," he advises. "Don't neglect the outside of the house," he concludes. "Re-

In time of peace and in time of war there is no more joyful message than the Easter message of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. It gives assurance to the sinner of forgiveness with his Maker. It gives to impotent man certainty of an Omnipotent Helper in all difficulties. It gives sweet comfort to the sorrowing. It gives to mortal man in the hour of death the bright hope of his own resurrection and of a blessed immortality in the world to come. Do not fail to—

Schweikart Again Appointed Chairman of Detention Home

Great Progress Reported During Past Year in Cleaning Up Bad Conditions at County Institution

Grosse Pointe Township Supervisor Carl Schweikart, who by virtue of his office is an ex officio member of the County Board of Supervisors, was named Tuesday, April 9 for the third successive term as chairman of the Juvenile Detention Home committee of that body by William Comstock, chairman of the Board of County Supervisors.

Mr. Schweikart quite naturally feels complimented by his retention as head of the Juvenile Detention Home Committee, despite the barrage of charges against the situation at the Home raised during the past year through a couple of the metropolitan dailies. The situation at the Home was not, and is not yet, what the committee would wish it to be. Great progress has been made in improving conditions there however during the last year. This has been possible largely by a closer attention to the financial support of the Home by the whole county board. Dr. Sinnott, who had long been the Superintendent of the Home, resigned several weeks ago. Changes in the internal administration of the home recently put into effect include a general re-equipping of the library. New chairs and tables have been placed in it and the reading matter available to the youngsters has been overhauled. Formerly this consisted chiefly of Sunday comic pages. Now a respectable supply of books of appropriate subject matter has been installed.

Through an arrangement with the Detroit Board of Education teachers are provided and study courses instituted so that the children's schooling can be maintained and they can resume their standing in school despite the interruption by their temporary detention in the home.

The Board of Supervisors is now on the hunt for a suitable building to be acquired, either by rent or purchase, as a receiving home where non-delinquent, lost or misplaced children can be cared for and kept entirely segregated from the semi-criminal groups in the slightly higher age brackets, whose contacts with the younger children was one of the headaches of the former management.

New equipment has also been purchased for the new playgrounds, where a wholesome recreational program will be carried on.

An idea of the magnitude of the work carried on in the home can be seen in Mr. Schweikart's statement that more than 8,000 cases are admitted to the institution every year.

Bell to Report Postponed Games

It's a shame to even have to mention the possibility that some baseball games will have to be postponed this season because of weather conditions.

But the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, taking a realistic stand, has announced that game postponements due to weather will be included as a part of its regular weather report service. The number is WEather 1212.

Baseball postponement announcements have been included as a part of the Telephone Company's weather service every year since 1940, when the arrangement was instituted after coordination with Briggs Stadium officials and the local United States Weather Bureau.

The postponement feature is not only a public service but helps to conserve telephone facilities. The postponement message will be carried from the time it is first announced by Briggs Stadium officials until 15 minutes after scheduled game time.

Aleutians

Dear Sir:— I understand that your committee has been set up to determine the manner of memorial to be constructed by the people of Grosse Pointe's communities to perpetuate in the minds of our citizens the memory of the men who served in these World Wars past.

Among many of the boys I have been privileged to live and go to school with, I feel that the construction of a Field House would indeed be a fitting tribute to the ideals and aspirations of the young men who served in the war as well as to our memories of the fellows themselves. Clean living and true sportsmanship are certainly fine cornerstones on which to maintain a great little American community as Grosse Pointe is, and this proposed Field House would build greatly towards the further instituting of these ideals.

I realize that my opinion, in itself can't possibly count for much; however, it is my hope that enough others who feel as I do will make known their opinions to you, to show beyond a reasonable doubt that this is what we want, and Grosse Pointe needs.

Sincerely,

9 April, 1946

Dear Sir:—

As a veteran of World War II I am definitely in favor of erecting a gymnasium or field house on the campus of Grosse Pointe High School as a living, vital memorial for the veterans of that war.

Yours truly,

Robert M. Wright

April 11, 1946
Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Gentlemen:

It has come to my attention that the communities of Grosse Pointe are planning a memorial for the veterans of World War II.

In considering such a project, we must agree that it would be well for us to think of what our hallowed dead who fought so desperately and died so gallantly would want as a fitting memorial to their bravery. Would they want their names carved in stone or cast in bronze and placed on a monument—a monument that would soon stand as a hollow mockery to their endeavor. No gentlemen, I believe they expect more than that from us. They fought to preserve the kind of America that gave them the opportunity to build sound minds and strong bodies. This heritage belongs to their followers just as it did to them. If they could, I'm sure they would want to improve upon the opportunities afforded them.

I sincerely believe that a Field building or gymnasium would be heartily approved by veterans and citizens alike. This living memorial would be a fitting tribute to the youth of our country as well as a useful building to promote the health and well being of Grosse Pointe's young people.

MARTIN MARSACK,
(Infantry veteran of three campaigns).

Rabaut Reports On Trip Abroad

Congressman Louis C. Rabaut, Democrat of Grosse Pointe, has released his report on the official trip of his subcommittee to Europe.

This group, which has charge of appropriations for the Departments of State, Commerce, Justice and the Judiciary, visited 10 countries and 22 cities during its recent trip of examination of Federal activities in Great Britain and certain countries in Central Europe. The report of the trip is included in the hearings on appropriations for the Department of State.

Rabaut stated that "Aside from any positive recommendations of the committee which may result in actual savings of money, the mere contact with operations and the discussions of problems with employees actually confronted with those problems will give a mutual understanding necessary to the best interest of those whom we serve."

The trip was suggested by former Secretary of State, Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., in a letter to Mr. Rabaut in which he referred to the benefits of previous trips. In particular the functions of the Department of State were studied, but the needs of American businessmen abroad were not neglected.

While in Rome, the Committee was received by His Holiness Pope Pius XII in a memorable and interesting audience.

At all the ports visited the Committee inspected the plant from top to bottom and talked with almost all the employees. "Invaluable information was gained in this way, which could not have been secured in any other manner, and was used to great advantage when officials appeared before the Committee seeking appropriations," Mr. Rabaut stated.

A reduction of more than $33,000,000 was made in appropriations for the Department of State, below the estimate of the Bureau of the Budget.

Lawrence L. Farrell was appointed District Director of the Michigan District Office of Price Administration today, effective immediately. Mr. Farrell has been serving as Acting District Director since February 1, 1946.

Cass to Present Carolina Legend

"Dark of the Moon", which will be presented by the Messrs. Shubert at the Cass Theatre for two weeks beginning Monday, April 22, a North Carolina legend by Howard Richardson and William Berney. It is truly remarkable theatre and brings to the theatre something as fresh as the air of the Smoky Mountains, where the scenes are laid, and something as racy and authentic as the caw of a crow hoisted out of the jug by the Allen family and Preacher Haggler, characters of the play.

Based on one of the many versions of the old folk ballad, "Barbara Allen," the play recounts the brief career as a human of John, the witchboy, who marries Barbara Allen. The Conjure woman turned John into a human on condition that Barbara remain faithful to him for one year; otherwise he must return to ride his eagle through the air for 300 years until he dissolved into mountain fog.

The racy mountain dialect, the folk songs, the dominant motive of sex, eerie dancing of Witch Girls in Esther Jung's atmospheric choreography, the orgasmic emotions of the revival meeting, the half-sinister, half-tender romance of John and Barbara give "Dark of the Moon" a primal quality.

Matinees will be played Wednesday and Saturday the first week and Saturday only the second week. A special performance will be given on Sunday evening, April 28.

Rest is to be ready for tomorrow rather than recover from today.

To us—all calls are important

That is why we do our best to put your calls through promptly. But the volume of Long Distance calls today is even greater than during the record-breaking war years. And so, sometimes, there are unavoidable delays... particularly on calls to points outside of Michigan.

We are doing our best to provide the needed facilities. And we are making good progress. The Bell System is adding over two million miles of circuits this year, new switchboards and other equipment, and training thousands of new operators.

Meanwhile, many thanks for your continued understanding.

PERSONAL APPEARANCES

One of the best reasons for wearing a black dress was demonstrated by Jan Edwards at a cocktail party recently. It was a perfect foil for the stunning turquoise blue felt hat that adorned her head, and the crowning touch was the "brush" of straight black ostrich which swept down one side.

Another reason for the good old basic black was proven by Mary Symington in a smart new black crepe worn with an adorable "off the face" white straw. This was pleated, almost like a fan, and trimmed with black bows.

EVELYN COOKE ROBINSON and her nice husband are welcome "come back" from extended absence due to war business and are ensconced in their charming home on Dyer Lane (as the Society columns would say). Saw her in a most becoming flower garden hat, not to be worn in the garden, Dear No! It was a "party" hat which brought the garden into the drawing room via her head. Can't seem to get away from the black! Add to the ebony parade an Owen looking her usual well groomed self in a black fringed crepe dress. Quality plus!

DO YOU KNOW . . . ?

That KENNY DELMAR or "Senator Claghorn" (as he is more generally known) is going to write a syndicated column? That MRS. JIMMY DOOLITTLE is wearing a blouse made from a pilot's escape map? That LADY ASTOR admits that she is 32 and has been for years? Her children say, "Mother, if you keep on you'll make us illegitimate" but she only laughs and replies, "That's your problem, not mine!" That FRANK SINATRA cancelled his vacation trip to Bermuda to devote his time to working with F. D. ROOSEVELT, JR., on the veteran's housing campaign? The guy is really serious-minded despite the bobby socks.

PLEASANT RUMORS

I know of no other home which expresses the owner's characteristics as well as the house the Kay Fords built. It is so "clean cut" with a well groomed air. Emmy is noted for her housekeeping and the house could be on inspection any time. One of the charming rooms I want to tell you of, is the living room. The walls are pearl grey; white ceiling and woodwork and a soft lemon yellow is used at the windows and French doors in the curtains. These are of a silk and wool mixture. Your attention is drawn immediately to the black marble fireplace and mantle. Lovely French "cache pots" are on either side of the mantle and above are two beautiful wall candelabra of crystal and wrought iron. Between these is an interesting Chinese print; having a background the yellow of the curtains and framed in bamboo which has been gilded.

Old English chintz combining yellow, green, and a delicate copper shade in a floral print, covers the chairs and sofa. Above the latter are hung six small, old prints of French ports, in antique gilt frames.

The furniture is of light mahogany, and includes a chest, Pembroke table and an unusual Queen Anne low boy. An antique lamp of glass and white china is on the Steinway. When I was last there, a large white bowl filled with forsythia echoed the yellow in the curtains and added a striking note.

The room has a feeling of dignity, but "livableness." It is bright and Spring seems to dwell there perpetually.

Legion to Aid French Kids Where "America" Was Born

Because someone remembered that John Emery of Grand Rapids, Michigan's first national commander of The American Legion, once presented a plaque to the city of Saint Die, France, every one of the 1,569 hungry, destitute, wounded and needy children of that war-ravaged town will soon receive an 11-pound measure of comfort and cheer from the American Legion Auxiliary. It happened this way: "In Saint Die the word 'America' was born, being first used by a printer in the year 1507 to designate the newly-discovered continent. To mark the spot, National Commander Emery presented a commemorative plaque to Saint Die in 1921. Twenty-three years later, in November, 1944, the city was evacuated by the Germans, then thoroughly pillaged and burned. After the war ended the inhabitants returned to find they had lost everything they owned—homes, clothing, food and all the necessities of life—even the surrounding woodlands and fields were mined, and the cattle gone. Because of the seriousness of the situation, and particularly because of the dire need of the city's children, an appeal for aid was sent the United States through the American ambassador at Paris. This appeal reached the War Relief Control Board, one of whose members was a Legionnaire and knew John Emery's connection with Saint Die. Soon afterward the past national commander presented the Legion with a resolution to help provide food and clothing for the children. The resolution passed, and the American Legion Auxiliary was asked to take over.

Oddly enough, when the Germans had gone from Saint Die, leaving only destruction and ruin, the American Legion plaque, placed in the city by John Emery, still stood.

Pointers of Interest

ALFRED C. SCOTT of Buckingham Road

by Olive H. Larned

Because of her interest in old silver, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Scott were in an antique shop in New Orleans about a year and a half ago. As they were looking around, his attention was drawn to a Double Steeple clock. This 8 day clock was built in 1835 and has brass works; its purchase marked the beginning of a valuable collection and a hobby from which Mr. Scott has derived great pleasure. He now has fifteen clocks in the library of their home and as he laughingly remarked, "It can scarcely be called a library now, we have had to remove so many books to make room for the clocks."

He owns almost every book that has ever been written about clocks, so that ought to make it a legitimate clock library. The timepiece which intrigued me most was a "Ball and Escape" model. This consists of brass works with a small brass ball which swings around and back, around and back; encased in a glass dome set on a wooden base, resting on three tiny iron feet. Among the collection are several Eli Terry's, a Chauncey Jerome, and a Seth Thomas 135 years old. Mr. Scott says that clocks made before this time are museum pieces. He has presented Mrs. Scott with a charming china clock suitable for a lady's boudoir.

Originally his interest was confined to Early American timepieces; but he became so absorbed in his study that the first thing he knew he had added other types, including a German make which requires winding but once a year. His Swiss clock, called a "double cuckoo," is made of hand carved wood. A bird is perched on the roof of a little house inhabited by a quail which comes out on the quarter hour, and a cuckoo appears when the hour is struck. The pendulum is made of beautifully carved leaves which also cover the house top. It is most unusual and its owner went to so much trouble to procure it that he has a soft spot in his heart for the "cuckoo."

Mr. Scott discovered this treasure in another city. When he emerged from the antique shop carrying it in an enormous box, he looked vainly for a taxi. Finally he was forced to board a trolley car. He said that the other passengers eyed him appreciatively during the ride, seemingly suspecting he was carrying a body! He was miserable all the way home on the train, as the package was too large to be placed in the drawing room and he felt that he should sit where he could keep a watchful eye on his prize.

On Mr. Scott's last birthday the George F. Alger Company, of which he is president, gave him his favorite gift. It was an Eli Terry clock 125 years old with wooden works. These were used from about 1800 until 1825, when brass was employed with the advent of machine made works. This gift clock is very beautiful, having a mahogany case with three gilt spindles as a crown. Its face has designs painted in subdued colors in the four corners. A garland of roses encircles the hands. Below this appears a lovely woodland scene. Mr. Scott had admired this clock when he first saw it and upon his making a second trip to the shop to purchase it was very disappointed to find that the clock had been sold. Some months later it came as a great surprise as a gift to him.

An amazing feature of this collection is that all of the clocks are running and keep almost perfect time. It is quite an experience to be in the library when fifteen clocks are striking the hour and the cuckoo is singing out. The collector is now seeking an early early American Grandfather's clock and a banjo clock which are very rare. He says that he had always thought people with hobbies were silly; but, since he has been "clocked," he does not mind being among the cuckoos!

Questions and Answers Forum

By Mrs. Anthony.

Welcome to our friendly corner of personal queries. Address all letters to Mrs. Anthony, Grosse Pointe News, 99 Kercheval Avenue, Grosse Pointe Farms 38, Mich. For personal answers include a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dear Readers:

This will serve as my personal invitation to you to become my guest on this page as often as you wish. I am anxious to have your questions and hope that the answers will be satisfactory to you. Should your problems be of a personal nature which would prohibit printing, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and be assured that all such matters will be considered strictly confidential. No names will ever be printed with the letters. It is our hope that this Forum will serve as a sort of "Friendship House" where you may bring your questions, problems, or comments on others' problems should you feel that you could be helpful. It is our sincerest wish to serve you in any way that we can. This page is for you, but without your letters we cannot assist you in the manner we hope to. So please let me hear from you and know that I am anxiously waiting.

"Mrs. Anthony."

Dear Mrs. Anthony:

I read your "invitation" last week to write in questions to your Questions and Answers Forum and my friends and I would like you to settle (if possible) a dispute we are having over some beans we plan to grow in our gardens this summer. What is the difference between bush beans and the stringless pod, if any? There seem to be various opinions among all of us, so perhaps you can end our endless discussions once and for all. Thank you. Mrs. L. L. N.

To the best of my knowledge there is no difference between "bush" and the "stringless pod" beans. The latter is a trade name, denoting the variety. These bush beans grow to about 18 inches, and can be picked from ten days to two weeks. Pole beans grow 10 to 12 feet high and the "Kentucky Wonder" variety may be picked all summer.

Dear Mrs. Anthony:

Would you please print the poem "On Death" and tell me who the poet is who wrote it? I remember that it was very short but beautiful and it has escaped my memory. Thank you very much for your trouble in this matter.

"On Death" was written by Walter Savage Landor. He lived from 1775-1864. "Death stands above me, whispering low I know not what into my ear; Of his strange language all I know is, there is not a word of fear."

Dear Mrs. Anthony:

I have heard of an organization which collects books for 'teen-age boys and girls living in remote rural areas not accessible to public libraries. Could you give me any information on this matter? Will be watching your column and hope for an early answer.

Miss G. S. B. I believe that the organization you are requesting information about is the "Save the Children Federation" which works with the schools of the Southern Appalachian Highlands. All books should be taken or sent to Mrs. Mabelle White Cleveland, National representative. Save the Children Federation, at 3726 Woodward Ave., Detroit 26, where they also maintain a Clothing Center. It would be advisable to call her at Temple 2-2510. I do hope that this is the information you are seeking and if I can be of any further assistance, please do write me.

Dear Mrs. Anthony:

I am a young divorcee and am to be married again very soon. My husband-to-be has never been married before and is anxious to have me wear the traditional white bridal gown and veil. It is my understanding that this would not be proper. Am I right, and if so, would you please suggest a proper costume? I expect to be married at my parents' home in the afternoon. There will be a large reception following the ceremony.

C. B. T.

You are quite right in your assumption that a white bridal gown and veil would not be proper. It would be correct for you to wear a bridal gown in any of the pastel colors and a shoulder or fingertip length veil, should you so desire. I believe that your age should determine the type of costume most appropriate. If you are over thirty years of age, I would suggest a long afternoon gown in grey, beige or any of the light blue tones with a matching hat. If you will write and give me more detailed information as to your approximate age and coloring, I will be happy to advise you more explicitly. Please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope for my answer.

Alger House Museum Notes

KATHE KOLLWITZ'S SHOW

By Lillian M. Pear

There is a profound and tremendous impact to one's mind and emotions in the Kollwitz exhibition which opened April 5 at Alger House Museum.

Kathe Kollwitz was born in Kant, Germany, in 1867. Her father was a professor, but left his profession to become a stone mason, and later left that work to preach among the lower classes of Germany. With this background it is understandable that she married a physician who practiced socialized medicine in the slums of Berlin. She studied with Karl Stauffer Bern, a realist and excellent technician, who was greatly influenced by Klinger, a German painter, etcher and sculptor.

Kollwitz began her painting by illustrating the social plays of her period and by illustrating a book by Zola. She has been described as "the greatest living graphic artist of her time; she uttered a cry such as was never heard before." Certainly one feels that cry of pain and agony of all mothers who have lost sons on battlefields in "After the Battle." She makes light a spiritual design in this lithograph of the mother with a lantern hunting for the body of her son after the battle is over.

All the hungry, starving children of Europe speak to us today as they did to her before World War I, in the lithograph called "Holding the Bowl." There is a dynamic display of mass and line in the peasant's pulling and straining at the plow, symbolic of the slavery of the poor peasant class in their efforts to eke a bare survival from the soil. We see the hunger of body and soul in the eyes of peasant men and women, a great weariness and despair. In the drawing, "The Peasant's War," one reads a way of life, the final revolt of the masses, a violence of action no longer to be held back or suppressed. It has tremendous power and is very closely allied to sculpture in its feeling for form and mass.

But with all her great force and power there is a freedom born from years of study and a control of her medium developed from years of discipline. There is tenderness and gentleness in the very baby-like qualities of the infants in the milk posters. Always evident is her greatness as an artist because she tells her story and stops at the right point where more drawing or more emotion would be too much. Her works are a great call to action and it is no wonder that Wilhelm II did not wish her to receive a medal. One feels the interplay of feeling and mind, a tension of her personal reactions to the social conditions and her great power to rise above suppression—the magnitude of the woman herself.

This collection is owned by Kurt Valentine, New York City, and is being circulated by the Philadelphia Museum of Art. It remains until May 5th.

Recognition Won By David Sutter

David Sutter, Grosse Pointe senior, is the author of "Neptune's Trio," which appeared in the April 8 issue of "Scholastic Magazine," national publication for high school students.

As further recognition, Dave will receive "Saplings," a collection of the best prose and poetry which has appeared in "Scholastic Magazine."

"Neptune's Trio" consists of three parts, describing the effect of the wind, the sea, and the ship on the sailor's life and personality. The writing, rewriting and polishing of his work was done in his English VII class under the direction of Miss Helen Mutton, English instructor. Spurred on by the publishing of his essay, "Death" which concerned his adventures during the Mackinac Boat Race, in "Proem," Grosse Pointe High School magazine, Dave sent "Neptune's Trio" to the Scholastic editors.

On a subsequent visit to New York he visited the magazine's office and learned that his contribution had been accepted but because of its length the editors were not sure whether it could be published.

"Neptune's Trio" will be the lead article in the June "Proem" according to Adelaide Klingbeil, editor.

Pointe Counter Points

by OLIVE H. LARNED

From the moment you open the front door to the tune of the "jingle jangle" chimes until you leave the DE GRIMME GALLERIES, you are out of the world! An atmosphere difficult to describe pervades the place. It is like being in a story-book world and at any moment you expect lords and ladies in Renaissance costumes to step through the red velvet portieres. Rembrandt, himself, would not have surprised me! The Galleries are open from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. and again at 8 until 10 p.m. MR. DE GRIMME prefers his customers at night, particularly when there are two to be considered in the selection of a picture. In other words, if you are a Mrs. bring your Mr. with you and vice versa. Seventeenth and 19th century "oils" comprise one of the largest collections in this part of the country. Mr. de Grimme is noted as an expert in his line of antiques and paintings, and the gossip in New York is that the finest gallery in the country is now in Grosse Pointe.

Skipping from the artistic to mundane matters such as good food, brings me, and I hope you, to Hawthorne House. And a "welcome back" to Mrs. Dorothea De Neefe, who is visiting here for six weeks and giving a hand to the Manninos and Mrs. Sera there. You remember the De Neefes were the original owners and responsible for the delicious food and courteous service which has always characterized Hawthorne House. Mr. Mannino added the pastries, cookies and hors d'oeuvres to the catering service and a very welcome addition it is! Try it and see if I'm not right.

And speaking of houses, have you heard about HAYDON HOUSE? The "welcome back" can also be extended to the MESSERS SCHILLING and ESLING, returned veterans, with an enterprising idea for business. Their HAYDON HOUSE, located for the nonce, at the corner of Kercheval and Beaconsfield, contains too many treasures for me to tell you about them all now; but I will say that they have top lines of electrical appliances and stunning outdoor grills of wrought iron with decorative tiles. One with a French poodle design couldn't be cuter. Prices are from $30 to $120. Sizes for the little, middle or big sized bear! Also a portable grill with a spit for the succulent "what have you" and a large working space which is highly desirable; all this for $74.50, but not "Heaven, too." Lady, lady, you wish too much!

You know the old one about "April Showers." Here they are upon us and have you thought about keeping the children dry? Well, Peter Pan has. They have the most extensive line of rain coats; Scotch plaid capes (how I yearned to be size 4 or 5); cotton twills and weather repellent materials made just like officers' coats to intrigue Junior or Juniors, size 7-14. Another of "rayon shine" the kind Mother wears! Crayonette Aqua togs are lined with a rubberized material. Let Peter Pan "rain coat" your darlings and they may get rain in their faces but never where they should!

Yvonne's, in case you don't know it, is on Kercheval (across from Henri's Market) and having five girl and two men hairdressers and two manicurists is prepared to take care of "you all." Permanent wave being a misnomer, this is the time for a new "permanent." Yvonne has quite a selection for you to choose from, depending primarily on your type of hair, "natch," but after that is settled then the question is "to steam or not to steam." The Helene Curtis cold wave is "not to steam"; it takes about an hour longer, but there is no heat connected with it and with that tea cozy on your top knot you're irresistible! Well, of course, that's a matter of opinion! The Rilling Koeler Wave and Zotos are "to steam," but they are machineless and very comfortable, that is, as comfortable as permanent waving goes! There's no excuse for a poorly groomed head with all this shop has to offer, so now it's up to you.

And while you're sprucing up, give a thought to the poor old car. Remember that Spring has come for it also. The change must be made from its red flannels (winter grease) to cotton (summer grease) and the oil must be lighter. You may have to do the spring house cleaning, but the Kercheval-Cadieux Service Station relieves you of the car cleaning. The spark plugs have to have their faces "peeled" and none of your cosmetics will do it! The motor, too, needs tanning, more than the piano, I betcha! You'll find that it will be an economy to put your car in their hands and that's the best advice I can give you.

You don't have to go to Acapulco for Mexican jewelry. Titus Drug Store has just received a wonderful assortment; necklaces and bracelets to suit all tastes, that is, if your taste is good! One antiqued silver necklace has a pyramid design and this was sent from Egypt to Mexico and silver pendants were added. It seems this pyramid design is very difficult to procure. A bracelet makes a twin set. Filigreed silver pins like butterflies with earrings to match are pretty. A stunning bracelet of silver Mexican coins for $10.50, American coin! Bracelets with settings of Mexican jade, onyx, and amethyst are beautiful. Charms may be had in the form of donkeys or elephants, if you're (you know what), and if you just like animals there are dogs, cats, turtles, etc. We promise they will dwell together amicably on your bracelet.

Webster defines "sterling" as "having accepted worth; genuine; hence valuable; of the highest standard." And this is true of Wallace Sterling Silver. Pongraz Jewellers carry this famous line and have it in the following patterns: Grand Colonial, Grand Baroque, Sir Christopher, Rose Pointe and Stradivari. And all the time I thought that had to do with violins! Every day something new! You'll be interested, I hope, in a book that Mr. Pongraz will give you. I said give, no strings attached. This has all the dope on silver, its care, use and styling. It will doubtless also keep us from making any social faux pas in the matter of which fork and spoon to dish with and what up with. So get started in the right way with Wallace Sterling and that's the way I'll end!—Advt.

MARGIE BULL placed the welcome sign out in front of her door on Friday night. The next dance 'round these parts will be on Friday, April 26. It will be given at the high school by a newly formed group, the U.Y., the United Youths of

KISS of DEATH

By LAWRENCE RANDALL
As Told to Mary Madison

"You wanted to see me?" "Yes. Just begin at the beginning and tell your story. How did you steal those pearls when you weren't at the dinner Fay Ames gave?"

Imogene smiled. "Wouldn't you like to know? That man at the desk out there took my powder compact away. Is my nose shiny?" Carroll tapped the desk. "You might as well come clean—you're in a spot."

"And you're the spot remover?" "That depends. They may take you to the cleaners."

"There's been some mistake. I was just wearing a string of pearls into Canada. Is there some law about wearing your own jewels across the border?"

"You claim those pearls are your town, too? Weren't they the pearls that were found on Miranda Ames? Weren't they the pearls belonging to Sue Manchester? Pearls! Pearls! Pearls! Who's were they?"

Grosse Pointe Churches. Co-chairmen for the dance are Joanne Singer and Sara Stephenson, and others busily working to provide a swell evening are Myra Hahn, Ed Shaub, Jim Sanford, Barb Scheuler, Herbie O'Neil, Bob Campbell, Jerry Thiede, Salise Slocum, Ione Hodges, and Dave Penniman. See you all there!

"Technically, they may have been Sue Manchester's. Rightfully, they belong to me." Imogene answered placidly. "I sold them to her up in Saratoga. For a laughably low sum of money. She made a regular stockyard deal with me. I gave them to her only to keep her quiet. She has a serpent's tongue."

"Had is the correct tense for her," interrupted Carroll. "She's dead."

"Sue Manchester dead?" Imogene's voice was staccato with fear. "Since when?"

"Since you murdered her this morning," said Carroll. "If you didn't murder her, Roger Brooks did it for you. He planned to meet you in Canada, didn't he?"

Imogene said, "Roger Brooks may be an international heel, but he's not following in my footsteps."

"Then you'll testify against him?" asked Carroll.

"Roger won't need testimony. Twenty years from now, he'll be hopping off to his college reunion, picking up young girls to try to recapture his yallow youth, and being unfaithful to a wife who's laughing up both sleeves at him. Roger's just the perennial collegeate. He hasn't enough imagination to commit murder. As for me, I've told you all you need to know. Those were my pearls. Sue wangled them away from me. I got them back. I doubt if there's anything you can detain me for."

"I can hold you, all right. I can—and I will—until you decide to talk," Carroll was at the purpling stage of rage.

I left them stolidly outstaring one another, went back to the corridor and picked up Zing.

"The b. / must have out her first t. / on a steel trapeze ring."

I recited Imogene's story of the pearl performance.

"Poor kind," he sighed. "I've got to get to her, that's all. You can get me into Carroll's office. I've got to see her. Make them understand. Poor kid."

"So you've tumbled for her?" I said. "And I thought you were one guy in the world to whom love was just the last word in a telegram."

"I'd do it again for her—"

"Do what again? You didn't murder Sue Manchester, did you, Zing? I can see why you'd play house with Imogene. But I can't see why you wouldn't wake up when the alarm goes off."

"It's the real thing, not waking up when the alarm goes off. Come on, Randall, let's get going." He pulled me along.

Back at the Grosse Pointe Station Imogene was still closeted with Carroll. It was noon before he'd let Zing and me into his office.

She beamed at Zing as he strode into the room. Zing approached Carroll with tightened jaw. "Listen, here, Carroll, it's only fair of me to tell you that Imogene Gardner is completely innocent—"

"Please, Zing! Imogene leaped to her feet. 'Don't go gallant on me!'"

"You see, Carroll," Zing rushed on. "I'm her alibi. She couldn't have had anything to do with this Manchester murder. She was in my room when the crime was committed."

Carroll's phone rang insistently. He ignored it, staring at Zing as if he smelt something suspicious as the mint on an alcoholic's breath. Then he grabbed the phone with a strangle hold. "Yes, Carroll talking. He's here now? What gives? He put up bail for all three of them! Bring him in to my office, will you?"

The frown deepened on Carroll's forehead. His lips pressed into a tight line of rebellion. He was a man who'd been all set to shoot the big scene, when the director took the script away from him.

The door swung open and Cornelius Dunn walked in. For a man who'd hopped off from a hospital he looked too darn rugged. Dunn looked like an employee's idea of an executive, an idea which had been incorporated into a symbol of solidity. His eyes were placid as two smoked gray pearls above a straight nose that seemed always to be faintly smiling a radical.

I shook hands with him. "You look fine, Nell. This is Lieutenant Carroll."

In the hallowed presence of Carroll's rebellion melted. He found himself being cordial, the way people invariably did around Dunn. He held out his hand. "This is a surprise and a privilege, meeting you, Mr. Dunn."

I looked at Zing. I'd neglected to tell him that Dunn was on his way out here. I might have expected him to look startled. But there was more than amazement on his face. Zing's poise had splintered like a house of matches.

Cornelius Dunn didn't speak one syllable to Zing.

"Of course, Neil, you know Zing—"

Cornelius Dunn eyed Zink blankly.

"Certainly, I know Zing. But this isn't Zing. I've never laid eyes on this man before."

Chapter 16

CHEERFUL L'HOMME!

After the expose in the Grosse Pointe Station, Cornelius Dunn stepped back like a man waiting for a stink bomb to explode. He didn't want any debris of responsibility for Zingler on his toga of respectability.

Dunn looked like an advertiser's idea of an executive. The man of discrimination. You know. The chap photographed with the expensive whiskey bottle who looks precisely like a teetotaler. The well upholstered guy who gets the table you reserved in the diamond clip joints. The over-stuffed shirt with his overstuffed mattress, mapuevered in ahead of the mob behind the maitre d'hôtel's ropes.

The King of Snobby Lobby—that's Cornelius Dunn.

He cleared his throat. This was a delaying tactic of Dunn's, which invariably set his audience concentrating on his throat plumping while Dunn himself focused on the problem at hand.

"If you aren't Guy Zingler, which you obviously are not, who are you?" he faced the investigator.

"It's a long story," Zing began with bravado. "In a way, I am Guy Zingler. But I'm also Hal Gardner, alias Herbert Fontaine, alias Guy Montebank, alias The Nighthawk, alias The —"

"You're a crook —" shouted

Carroll, unconvinced. "You're getting farm," cajoled Zingler. "Animal, mineral or vegetable?"

"Shut your sharp trap," from Carroll, reverting to cop. "Let him talk," ordered Dunn.

Regulations on Quarantines Changed by Health Council

Placards Now Required for Only Two Diseases, Smallpox and Diphtheria; Inconvenience Minimized

By F. S. Leeder, M.D., D.P.H. (Tor.)
Director, Bureau of Epidemiology, Michigan Department of Health
When the State Council of Health lifted the quarantine regulations from scarlet fever, meningococcal meningitis, poliomyelitis, measles and chickenpox, it made possible a more intelligent program for the control of these diseases and brought Michigan's regulations in line with present-day scientific knowledge. It by no means removed all restrictions in the control of persons ill with or exposed to these diseases.

Quarantine originated as a protection against communicable diseases long before any accurate knowledge existed of their cause and spread. The word quarantine comes from the Italian word "quarante" and means "forty." Back in the 14th century, it was customary to detain ships for forty days in an effort to prevent the spread of disease. This practice began in Venice, and was probably the starting point for all quarantine systems. After Venice established this system, other ports established similar restrictions. This forty-day quarantine period continued in vogue until the early part of the 19th century when England greatly modified the quarantine restrictions in the light of added knowledge concerning diseases.

Scientific knowledge of communicable diseases is valuable only if it influences the action taken to control these diseases. In Michigan the communicable disease regulations are examined carefully each year to determine whether or not they are still reasonable in terms of present knowledge concerning the mode of spread of each specific disease. Before the germ theory of disease had been demonstrated, quarantine regulations had to be based on experience since no one knew the exact cause of the diseases nor did anyone know how they spread from person to person.

The object of any regulations governing communicable disease is to protect the community and other members of the family with as little inconvenience as possible to the family or community. The whole problem of communicable disease control has been studied for many years by a committee of the American Public Health Association and by various other committees in state health departments. Michigan's present regulations agree with those proposed in 1945 by the Committee on the Control of Communicable Disease of the American Public Health Association.

Michigan's regulations are not as revolutionary, nor as sweeping as they may at first appear to be. They now recognize the fact that communicable disease situations differ and that well-trained public health officers should be allowed discretion in handling them.

The regulations require quarantine placards for only two diseases: smallpox and diphtheria. The use of a placard is not prohibited in other diseases, but is left to the discretion of the health officer. Similarly, in all diseases except diphtheria and smallpox, both immune and non-immune contacts of cases are allowed to go and come, provided that the case is adequately isolated. The regulations define isolation as "the separation of a person suffering from a communicable disease from other persons." This again allows for individual handling of cases by the health officer, since contacts are only permitted their liberty if the health officer is satisfied that the patient is adequately isolated. An exception to this rule is made in whooping cough, where the Council recognized the fact that children can be made immune to whooping cough through vaccination. In this disease, only children who have had whooping cough or who have been vaccinated against whooping cough are allowed complete liberty. Susceptible children must remain in isolation for the same length of time as the patient. This obviously places an added premium on having children protected against whooping cough.

The 1945 quarantine regulations for smallpox and diphtheria remain the same. In both of these diseases it is possible to determine which of the exposed persons might endanger public health and only these are quarantined.

With reference to smallpox, the nearly absolute protection of recent vaccination is recognized and only contacts refusing to be vaccinated are quarantined.

For diphtheria contacts, a readily available laboratory test determines which of the contacts harbor diphtheria organisms. Those contacts with a negative nose and throat are released provisionally to live elsewhere following one negative swab and are released entirely if a second swab is negative. Those electing to reside on the premises are isolated until the case is released.

The whole intent of the changes in the regulations is to allow for more intelligent handling of communicable disease with a minimum amount of unnecessary inconvenience to families and to the community.

OLD BOYS OUTNUMBERED
In many of Michigan's 475 American Legion posts the younger veterans now outnumber the World War I men. The post at Newberry, for instance, recently reported 262 members, including 87 "old-timers" as against 175 World War I men.

"Stolen" Auto Crashes House

George Palms went into the Farms police station at 8:30 Friday night and reported that his father's automobile, which he was using, had been stolen from in front of 157 Ridge road. The notice of the stolen car was put on the teletape and a few minutes later woman phoned in and said a car had just run wild down Merriweather towards Charlevoix and crashed into a house.

It was the stolen car. It appeared to have been one of the customary Friday night diversions of the gay youth of the neighborhood. The car had had the brakes released and given a shove which caused it to run into the house of C. H. MacMahon of 252 Merriweather, badly damaging a pillar on the house. The front of the car was smashed in.

Farms police who investigated reported that all four fenders of the stolen car had been painted white with cheap paint. Later that same night Patrolman Lewis Baldwin of the Grosse Pointe Shores police department filed a complaint that while his car was parked in the rear of 455 Lake Shore road, someone had thrown white paint all over it. A check revealed that the paint was the same as that used on the stolen car.

Still later that same night, Mr. MacMahon called the Farms police again to report that he had seen a car pass his house three times within a short period, and on each occasion, boys leaned out to inspect the damage to his house. It looked suspicious.

Within a short time the police had stopped a car containing three Grosse Pointe youths, but a severe questioning convinced the police, according to their report, that the youngsters were not connected with the stolen car and subsequent accident.

Strike

so amounts to an increase of but 5-7 per cent, according to the union official.

When asked what would happen if the village tried to replace the men who were striking, Mr. Pierce said: "We would try to keep them from working . . . peacefully, of course."

Support of the striking Farms employees was unanimously voted for at a meeting of the union on Sunday night, it was stated.

Telegrams were sent all striking employees of the Village of Grosse Pointe Farms this week, warning them that unless they returned to work on or before Wednesday, April 17, the village authorities will deem that they have quit their jobs and efforts will be made to fill their places.

The trustees of the village are unanimous in their determination not to give in to the strikers. Trustee Gervais Grylls offered a resolution at Monday night's meeting of the council, calling for the preparation of advertisements to appear in Thursday's papers, seeking replacements, "in case the men did not return to work as ordered on Wednesday."

The resolution was not supported when President James K. Watkins declared that he thought it out of order, in view of the fact that the council has every hope that the men will return to work.

The council meeting in the Village Hall was jammed and those attending evidently expected some fireworks. There were none. It was presumed that someone would speak in behalf of the strikers, but no spokesman was heard. The council gave the matter only the few minutes necessary to hear Mr. Grylls' proposal and turn it down. It was agreed that if the men did not return to work Wednesday, a meeting would have to be called immediately to decide on a course of action.

The strike proceeded in very orderly fashion throughout the week. Residents of the Farms toted their own garbage and rubbish to the dump prepared in the rear of the pumping station on Chalfonte road, or burned or buried it on their own premises. The village offices report there have been no complaints received there over the lack of service occasioned by the strike.

The telegram which was sent to all striking employees follows: April 13, 1946.

Dear Sir:

As an employee of the Village of Grosse Pointe Farms, you failed to report for work as ordered on Saturday, April 6th, and again failed to report for work on April 8th.

The Village authorities would be fully justified in assuming that you had quit your job and in proceeding to fill your place, but we have realized the circumstances and have not followed this procedure. We believe that many, perhaps most of you, do not approve of this strike and we assure you that your places are still open for you, but we all know this condition cannot be long continued.

You have already lost several days' pay and this is to advise you that unless you return to work on or before Wednesday, April 17th, at the usual hour, you

GROSSE POINTE

Lack of Training Facilities Hampers Pointers at Meet

By FRED RUNNELLS

The River Rouge Relay Carnival, held in the Yost Field House at Ann Arbor last Saturday, proved a little too much for Coach Frank Banach's Blue Devil track team and the Pointers failed to qualify in a single event. The Carnival set a net national record in attendance when 67 Michigan high schools, represented by more than 800 young athletes, competed. The former record was set last week in the Oak Park (Illinois) Relays with 624 boys competing.

Not only did the meet set the record for competitors but the spectators jammed Yost Field House to the rafters to make one of the largest crowds to ever witness an event of the sort in Michigan.

Saginaw Arthur Hill became the second school in the history of the meet to annex the title for the second time when it edged out Saginaw by less than two points. River Rouge is the other school to win the meet twice, in 1938 and '39. Arthur Hill won its first title in 1944.

The carnival is the "unofficial" state track meet but in reality it is the "high cap" of the indoor track season for the majority of the schools entered.

It was easy to pick out the schools which do not have indoor track facilities just by watching the boys in the different events. In the sprints in particular, where the starts are all-important, one could see the difference. The boys who have been running all winter long indoors had a decided advantage and practically had their heats won on the starts alone.

Wyandotte, of the Border City League, which has an indoor track, finished in third place, and proved the value of all winter long training. It should go a long way toward making a successful bid for the Border City outdoor track championship.

On the other hand Grosse Pointe lacks the necessary indoor facilities and is forced to depend on the few nice spring days to get in all its practice sessions before going into competition. Despite this fact our boys have the "movie" to travel to the meet and take their licking like good sports because they feel they gain valuable experience and meet the top notch track teams of the state.

If the War Memorial Committee decides in favor of a Field House as a memorial to our war veterans this coming June, when the War Memorial Contest closes, Grosse Pointe could have an indoor track team and be able to enter this "unofficial" state high school championship meet on a par with the best in the state.

If you Pointers are in favor of the field house suggestion as a suitable War Memorial to our service men, let's send in those letters to the War Memorial Committee right away and assure ourselves that the young athletes of Grosse Pointe have every opportunity to train and make Grosse Pointe one of the nation's outstanding schools in sports.

Crescent Honors Club Commodore

Ross Herron On Michigan Tennis Team

Former Point High Athlete Grabs No. 12 Spot From Competitors

By FRED RUNNELLS

Ross Herron, former Blue Devil basketball and tennis star, crashed into collegiate sports when he beat out 70 odd prospects for the number 12 spot on the University of Michigan tennis squad last week.

This is quite an accomplishment for a first year student, when one considers how tough the competition is and how a big time college coach arrives at his final selections.

The U. of Michigan tennis squad is composed of 12 players with the first nine spots being filled by veterans from the previous year with the remaining three spots left open to the new prospects. These positions are filled by the process of elimination.

The players who earn the right to the number 10, 11 and 12 positions are open to challenges from their less fortunate colleagues throughout the season and are cut from the squad if they are not successful in the challenge matches. On the other hand, these number 10, 11 and 12 players can challenge one another to better their position on the squad. For example, the holder of the number 12 spot believes he can defeat the number 10 player and a challenge is tendered. If he is successful in this match he becomes the number 10 player and his opponent becomes number 12.

In order for the number 10 player to improve his position he must obtain special permission to challenge any one of the next five positions ahead of him. If permission is granted and he is again successful he takes over the spot he challenged and the beaten player drops down one position as do all the players below him. The first four positions cannot be challenged.

Being number 12 man, Ross will have a tough row to hoe before he can relax a little, but the fact still remains he has won a position on the varsity squad of one of the largest colleges in the world in his first year of college and has carried Grosse Pointe's colors into big time tennis. This is truly a tribute to his tennis skill, which was begun at Grosse Pointe High under Coach Larry Westerville's direction. Westerville, one of the outstanding high school tennis coaches in the nation, is responsible for Grosse Pointe's outstanding tennis record of 53 straight victories which were won over a period of five seasons.

Dynamic Elliott Roosevelt takes time off from his numerous activities to relax at the London Chop House with his lovely wife, the former Faye Emerson, and friend Ed Roberts.

THURS. APR. 11 — HANK GREENBERG, Eddie Mayo and Virgil Trucks, of the World Baseball champion Detroit Tigers, wandered the halls of the Ford Hospital today. The athletes and General Manager George Trautman emphasized they were just undergoing routine checkups before the start of the 1946 season. . . . PRESIDENT TRUMAN signed up today to toss the first ball to open the 1946 baseball season. . . .

FRI. APR. 12 — EX-CHAMPION Vince Dundee, world's middleweight boxing champion in 1933-34, was listed by doctors as a hopeless case. Doctors diagnosed his case as a blocked nerve at the base of his brain which has paralyzed him to the point where he can hardly speak. They call it progressive paralysis. . . . SUN. APR. 14 — LOU KRETLOW, an outstanding rookie Tiger pitcher, was farmed out to Buffalo for a little more polishing. Kretlow's control wasn't quite up to major league stand-

Three Pointe Fishermen Score in Miami Tourney

MIAMI, Fla., April 18—Three Grosse Pointe, Mich., angling enthusiasts brought the home town into prominence in the 11th annual $10,000 Metropolitan Miami fishing tournament recently with prize winning catches in gulf stream waters.

Tops among the trio was the performance of William Bonbright, who captured a giant 407-pound Blue Marlin which for a month held the lead in the Bahamas division of the famed rod and reel angling tournament.

Mr. Bonbright's big gamster was topped in the tournament by a 409-pounder, but still is a likely second-place prize winner, and has earned a citation as an outstanding catch in the competition which has attracted more than 275,000 participants since it opened Jan. 13. The Bonbright catch was made on 24-thread line.

Other Grosse Pointe anglers to cop citations in the tournament were W. G. Curran, 1005 Cadieux St., with a 55-pound grouper, and Walter Schweikart, who brought in a 130-pound Tarpon on a 12-thread line.

Closing date for the tournament, which is sponsored by the Cities of Miami and Miami Beach and is open to all rod and reel anglers, is April 21. Entries so far represent anglers from 31 states, Canada and Puerto Rico, and more than 220 cities.

tled the New York Giants for ten innings to a 2-2 tie. Dick Kinney of the Cadets, blanked the Giants while holding them to six hits until the eighth inning. New York scored twice in this frame on two hits and an error. . . .

DAD CARRIED A LANTERN

There were times when Mother had to wade through snow to carry wood to feed the kitchen stove. She heated water on the stove to thaw the pump. Then she pumped snow water and carried it in to be heated on the same stove for cooking, scrubbing and bathing—and for thawing the pump again.

But on the farms of Michigan life has changed, and is continuing to change.

The greatest factor in that change has been the availability of electric power.

In the electrified farm home that lantern is almost a museum piece. In the kitchen, the bathroom and the laundry, water, hot and cold, is on tap. The ash pan is gone where the woodbox pinched.

The electric range is white and shining, and the calendar hangs over what was once the exit of the old black stovepipe.

The milk and butter that used to hang in the well before Dad's dad built the milk house out by the windmill are in the electric refrigerator now.

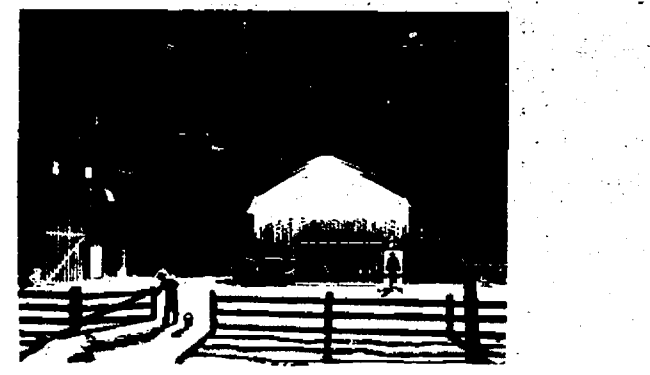

There's a broom in the closet for shooting the cat—an electric sweeper for the Brussels carpet.

Out in Dad's domain electricity milks the cows, grinds the feed, hoists the hay and saws the wood. It separates the cream and shears the sheep, warms the baby chicks as no hen could warm them, and kids the hens themselves into getting up before daylight to be about the business of laying eggs.

The Detroit Edison Company already has made service available to 34,000 of the 37,000 farms in its 7,600 square miles of territory. Its objective is to see that electric service is within the reach of every one of those farms.

To that end Detroit Edison now is engaged in extending its lines some 600 miles into every remote corner of its rural territory. These extensions will be completed just as rapidly as materials and skilled labor can be obtained.

Wants Tenants To Buy Terrace

A delegation of two men representing the tenants in the terrace apartment at the northeast corner of St. Clair and Malmece attended the City Council meeting Monday night seeking advice. The owner of the terrace, they said, has proposed to the tenants that they shall buy their apartments.

The idea is new here in Grosse Pointe but has been in practice for many years in certain large eastern cities. The tenants are anxious to know their standing as real estate owners if such a deal should eventuate.

The impression given was that they were not anxious to buy, but were looking for light if such pressure was placed upon them that it might be deemed advisable to buy.

No formal action was asked, nor official advice given by the Council, but it was pointed out that many annoying factors might develop from such an ownership that do not arise in ownership of a home unit where land and building constitute a common titled property.

Jug Thrower Sought By Police in Park

Late Friday evening Mrs. A. W. Crabb, of 1069 Devonshire, reported to the police that someone had thrown some object through the front door window.

The police found a one-half gallon glass jug that had gone through both the porch door and the front door of the house proper. They took it back to the station to make a minute examination for finger prints.
