HEADLINES of the WEEK

THE HEAD of the Environmental Protection Agency, (EPA), ordered an immediate ban yesterday on most uses of the pesticides heptachlor and chlordane, overruling one of his agency's administrative law judges. EPA Administrator Russell E. Train found the pesticides posed an "imminent hazard" of cancer in man. The ban applies to uses of the chemicals on lawns, gardens, turf and for household pest control. But they may be used on some minor crops and on corn through August 1 next year.

POPE PAUL PRAISED young people on Christmas Day for rejecting the false goals of "the generations that inoculated you with the insanity of war for power." The 78-year-old pontiff, speaking from the balcony of Saint Peter's Basilica, made youth the focal point of his annual Christmas message. Addressing about 90,000 persons gathered in Saint Peter's Square in bright, crisp weather, he praised youth for unmasking "almost with subversive impetus" the "spacious, at least innocent, wisdom" of past generations. The pontiff said the "emptiness" of modern life has "devastated" young people, creating a "powerful longing" to embrace the church.

THE SOVIET UNION inaugurated the world's first supersonic airline service Friday, a day behind schedule but 26 days ahead of the Anglo-French Concorde. A supersonic Tupolev 144 jetliner of the Soviet national airline Aeroflot began twice-weekly, non-passenger flights between Moscow and Alma Ata, the capital of the Soviet Kazakh Republic in Central Asia. Flying at 1,366 mph, the plane covered the 1,900 miles between the two cities in one hour and 58 minutes, less than half the usual four hour flying time in conventional aircraft.

Sunday, December 28
THE CIVIL AIR PATROL, (CAP), reported Saturday that five adults and four children bound for a skiing vacation died Friday when their chartered aircraft crashed into a mountain near the Continental Divide. A two-day ground and air search ended when a CAP search plane spotted the wreckage at about 8,000 feet on the east side of the divide, near the Winter Park ski area. CAP spokesmen said the crash site atop an 11,800 foot mountain was about 25 miles south of the plane's destination and 12 miles south of Rollinsville, Colo.

SERIOUS CRIME in Michigan's largest cities rose 9.1 percent in the first nine months of this year from the same period in 1974, according to the FBI. Homicides were down 17 percent and burglaries off 2.2 percent in Michigan cities with more than 100,000 population. But reported crime was up in every other category and totaled 162,797 incidents compared with 149,203 in the period from January to September 1974. Most of the increase came in Detroit, where the number of serious crimes rose to 113,816 from 101,043. Flint, Ann Arbor, Lansing and Warren all reported slight rises in crime figures.

A POWERFUL EXPLOSION, apparently caused by a bomb, ripped through a baggage-claim area at LaGuardia Airport in New York on Monday evening, killing at least 12 persons and injuring many more, a Fire Department spokesman said. Witnesses said the blast blew out the windows of a nearby Trans World Airlines office.

Winter Works Its Magic on The Pointe Scene

Turning tree-lined streets into towering cathedrals and homes to Christmas card pictures, the snow fell . . . and fell . . . and fell on Grosse Pointe throughout the holidays. In all about 10

Park Sets Deadlines For Taxes

City Manager Robert Stone Explains Collection Charge on County, School Bills

All property owners in The Park should have received their school and county tax bills for 1975. These taxes are payable by February 14, after which date a four percent penalty is levied, according to a Newsletter mailed to residents.

As far as The Park 1975 property taxes are concerned, they are payable at the Treasurer's Office in the Municipal Building, 15115 East Jefferson, by February 28, 1976. After that date, all unpaid tax returns not received will be turned over to Wayne County for collection.

They're Only Agents
City Manager Robert Stone pointed out that as far as the county and school taxes are concerned, local governments are only the collection agencies for these two government bodies. These taxes have nothing to do with the local government.

Many Special Programs Provided through Federal, State and County Funding

Among Fastest Growing Segments of Grosse Pointe Public School System During Last Several Years

Special education programs have been among the fastest growing segments of the Grosse Pointe public school system for the past several years. Encouraged by State laws such as the 1971 Mandatory Special Education Act and funded with federal, state and county grants, the programs have grown to serve more than 2,000 Pointe students.

Although it is mandatory in Michigan for a school system to provide special education for the handicapped until they reach 25-years-old, it is also the area most threatened by the recent State budget cutbacks in school aid, especially in high-valuation districts such as Grosse Pointe.

Remedial reading, mentally, physically and emotionally impaired programs receive $445,500 in State assistance and $435,000 from Wayne County. The district, however, will lose almost $400,000 of this categorical State aid when the budget cuts take effect.

Have Wide Range
In The Pointe the special education programs range from a few hours each week of remedial help for those students who have fallen slightly behind, to self-contained classrooms for the severely physically handicapped. Twice each week about 400 elementary students receive remedial reading instruction from specially trained instructors. Speech therapists hold sessions at least two times each week to help 630 students of all ages.

Social workers assist about 250 families at both day and evening sessions through the schools. School psychologists so far this year have tested about 600 students.

Help Handicapped
Besides consulting and special tutoring, the system offers regular classes to 160 handicapped children including the deaf, blind, learning disabled, emotionally and mentally impaired. These services are extended to students at Grosse Pointe Academy, Christian Day School, Our Lady Star of the Sea, Saint Clare of Montefalco, Saint Paul, Saint Peter and (Continued on Page 7)

Center Set To Welcome Newcomers

Over 100 Groups Will Be Represented to Acquaint Residents With Offerings

Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association officers and board of directors will receive and welcome all families who moved into any of the five Grosse Pointes at a gala reception Saturday afternoon, January 10, at 2 p.m. in the Crystal Ballroom of the Center, 32 Lakeshore road.

In the receiving line will be president and Mrs. William D. Dahling; first vice-president and Mrs. Alexander L. Wiener; second vice-president and Mrs. John E. Park; treasurer James W. Standart; assistant treasurer and Mrs. John M. Rickel; secretary Mrs. Albert C. Dickson Jr. and Mr. Dickson; and assistant secretary Mrs. Warren S. Wilkinson and Mr. Wilkinson.

Board Members
Others welcoming the newcomers will be Board members Mrs. Thomas W. Baumgarten, Mrs. William W. Cunningham, James T. Farley, Frederick C. Ford Jr., Edward H. Hickey III, Mrs. William H. Hickey, John F. Monahan, John R. Nicholson and their spouses.

Joining the board in the welcome will be Mrs. Nils R. Johaneson and Mrs. Sidney T. Miller, members of the Russell Alger family who gave the beautiful Lakeshore mansion and property to the Grosse Pointes to be used as a community, cultural and educational center.

To thoroughly acquaint every member of each new family from pre-schoolers to senior citizens with the wealth of opportunities available to them in Grosse Pointe, the Memorial Center has asked representatives of over 100 organizations to be on hand to represent their programs. Represented will be the schools, churches, governments and hospitals in the area along with numerous special interest, hobby and study groups.

Schools Beaten In Protest Over Cut in State Aid

Attorney General Frank Kelley Rules Governor and Legislature Did Not Violate Any Constitutional Provisions

By Susan McDonald

Attorney General Frank Kelley has ruled that the State Legislature and governor did not violate any constitutional provisions with the formula used to cut school aid in the recent Michigan budget trimming.

The ruling was requested by legislative leaders representing several high-valuation school districts including Grosse Pointe.

School officials from the 15 districts, including West Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham and Troy, agreed in a November meeting that the cuts, based on local tax revenues rather than State aid were inequitable and that legal action should be taken.

How Cuts Were Made
The cuts were made by subtracting 2.3 percent of the total local tax revenues and State aid revenues from the amount the district receives in State aid. Part of the cut, (six tenths of one percent), was passed in the budget in August. The new executive order contained the additional 1.7 percent reduction.

The attorney general's opinion stated that although there is no law prescribing how budget cuts should be made, the order, which was approved by Senate and House appropriation committees, was legitimate. Mr. Kelley said that the only funds exempt from cuts are those for the legislature and judiciary and part of the school aid provided by sales tax revenue.

Can Force Districts
School districts, the opinion stated, can be forced to use their local property tax money to fund programs required by the State.

In addition, Mr. Kelley cited a 1974 case in which a school district challenged an executive order to cut school aid. Both the Court of Appeals and Supreme Court upheld the governor's order.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. James A. Adams was disappointed and surprised at Mr. Kelley's ruling. "We fully understand the seriousness of the State's plight. We also understand the need for some cutting of programs and services," Dr. Adams said. "However, we still disagree with the (Continued on Page 6)

Woods Citizens To Skate Today

Woods residents will be able to have a New Year's skate thanks to arrangements made by the Parks and Recreation Department.

For the department secured the use of the McCann Skating Rink located on Cook road across from University-Liggett School today, January 1, from 4-6 p.m. for its citizens.

Social Security Offices Expect January 'Crunch'

Social Security business of unprecedented volume is the New Year prediction as the Mack Avenue District Office prepares for the January "crunch".

George C. Franzen, district manager at 17420 Mack, attributes the usual January boom in business at Social Security offices to several factors which heighten public interest in this program that affects every American. Traditionally, many people select the new year to initiate action in regard to their Social Security claims, generating sufficient business to create jams at most locations.

In addition, several new provisions take effect which increase publicity and create increased interest in the pro-

Study Plan For Classes For Seniors

Woods Officials, School System and Wayne County Community College Involved

By Roger A. Waha

An opportunity to obtain free special college courses for senior citizens of all the Pointes has been sparked through the involvement of The Woods and representative officials of the school system and Wayne County Community College, (WCCC).

While program planning is still in the infant stage, a foundation of interest and initial groundwork was laid at a meeting Tuesday, December 23, between Woods Administrative Aide Gerard McNamara, Woods Senior Citizens Commission chairman Irene Sutton, seniors representative Frank Komerka, who was just named chairman of the program, WCCC representative Laura Hardy and assistant to The Pointe's Superintendent of Schools, Dr. George T. Edgington.

In calling the entire program a "tremendous concept" and one which is "extremely exciting," Mr. McNamara said WCCC offers "shelter courses" which are designed for special interest groups. Fifteen or more people are needed for any class which is selected over a given period of time.

Seniors to Choose
"If the seniors want to study any subject of interest to them, WCCC could provide a salary for the instructor and would try to acquire class space," he said, while adding if such space is free, fine, but if rent is necessary, the college would pay for it.

The next step at this point in time is for the seniors to select courses which would be of interest to them.

Grosse Pointe Citizens of The Senior Woods will meet Thursday, January 8, in the North High School cafeteria from 3:30-7:30 p.m. During the session, Mrs. Sutton said a survey will be taken with seniors being polled on what classes they would like. Indications are (Continued on Page 6)

Kelly Wins Promotion In Lawsuit

Personnel and Responsibility Fronts Shift Following Several Occurrences

By Roger A. Waha

The Woods Department of Public Safety is currently in the midst of change on both the personnel and responsibility fronts due to several occurrences including a Wayne County Circuit Court judgment ordering the department to promote one of its officers to lieutenant and the resignation of several other officers.

Officials feel the changes, which also include replacements for retiring guard warden David McQueen and a new clerk dispatcher, along with adjustments because of the elimination of the tactical unit, will benefit the department and the citizens they serve.

The department's new lieutenant is Bernard Kelly, a 16-year veteran of the force, who filed suit against the city and Public Safety Director Henry Marchand last fall citing alleged injustices and irregularities in promotional procedures for the lieutenant's examination.

Receives Back Pay
A Circuit Court trial was held Monday-Tuesday, December 1-2, on the issues before Judge Theodore R. Bohn with the judgment being issued on Friday, December 19.

The judgment ordered that then Sgt. Kelly be promoted to lieutenant retroactively effective to last October 1, that his seniority status in the rank of public safety lieutenant be equal to that of any other officer who was promoted to that rank last October 1 and that he receive full back pay and benefits as if he had been promoted to the rank of lieutenant on that date.

With the promotion of Lt. Kelly, Director Marchand said the number of responsibilities of that lieutenant has been reduced. Before the judgment, the department had three lieutenants and four sergeants and now it has four lieutenants and three sergeants.

At the same time, the department now has uniformity in the command structure with all commanding officers of the various divisions holding the rank of lieutenant, noted Director Marchand. (For example, previous to Lt. Kelly's promotion, a sergeant was the supervisor of the Youth Service Division, (YSD), in the detective bureau; now a lieutenant will assume this responsibility).

Gunshot Breaks Window at Bar

Someone apparently fired a gun at the Lochmoor Lounge, 20934 Mack avenue, Monday morning, December 29, shattering a window on the north side of the building, at the scene, officers discovered a hole approximately 16 by 20 inches in a 72-by 30-inch plate glass window. The hole was around six feet above ground level with several small pellet marks around the hole.

A barmaid said she heard the shot at 1:05 a.m. and glass breaking. Several customers ran outside but didn't see anyone or any vehicle in the immediate area. She also stated she told a patron to leave the premises due to his loud behavior and felt this individual could have been involved.

While looking through the broken glass, police found 14 pieces of a metal substance believed to be the remains of several shotgun pellets. No one was reported hurt in the incident.

Here are some good traffic hints: ease back in trouble spots. As you approach an intersection, the crest of a hill, or even a gentle curve, let up on the gas momentarily. Experts say that while this will not slow you down much, it will substantially reduce time it takes to hit the brakes if you have to stop unexpectedly. Always, when driving, trust nothing but your own eyes. Hidden drives, traffic-control devices and intersections are everywhere. Always be as alert as possible.

Here's a hint that could be important to you — For car repairs come to the experts at POINTE DODGE, INC., 18001 Mack Ave., 884-7210. "SEVILLE FOR '76"

Public Safety Department Undergoes Changes

tor Marchand explored the responsibility for divisions within the department and delegated specific duties to each lieutenant, (he indicated this matter had been hanging in limbo since the retirement of Lt. Roland Symons in 1974).

The order specifies that Lt. Allan Selby, in addition to his regular duties as platoon commander, will be designated as officer in charge of the fire division, (including coordination and continuation of a uniform fire training program), parking meter enforcement detail and animal protection.

It says that Lt. Jack Patterson will be in charge of the detective bureau and the YSD, and that Lt. Kelly, in addition to his platoon commander duties, shall be designated as officer in charge of the communications division and traffic safety division, (including crossing guards).

Finally, the order says that Lt. Peter Thomas, in addition to his platoon commander duties, shall be designated the officer in charge of the records bureau and auxiliary forces.

Regardless of his assigned divisions and/or bureaus, each lieutenant will be responsible for the normal day-to-day operation of all divisions and bureaus within the department while he is on duty, states the order.

Other Changes
It also notes that sergeants and/or corporals will be responsible for the normal day-to-day operation of all divisions and bureaus while they are on duty in the absence of their platoon commander.

Director Marchand said this order becomes effective Friday, January 2, as do other re-assignments.

These other changes include the assignment of Sgt. William Lentz from the detective bureau, (where he was YSD supervisor), to the uniform division, Officer Ronald Hayden from the detective bureau to the uniform division and Officer Charles Philip Hamel from the uniform division to the detective bureau for an indefinite period.

Officer William Entwistle was indefinitely assigned to platoon two as records officer.

It also says that Lt. Patterson's new assignment as officer in charge of the detective bureau and the YSD is for an indefinite period.

Director Marchand said that Officer Stephen Petrik and Officer Entwistle have both worked from 8 a.m.-4 p.m. and that only Officer Petrik will work during that time span. Officer Entwistle will now work from 3-11 p.m. as records officer. This action will provide an extra car for patrol during the afternoon shift, said Director Marchand. This change also becomes effective on the 2nd.

At the same time, the new hours worked by Officer Entwistle will provide an extra service to residents as the officer and director are primarily responsible for processing original carrying a concealed weapon applications and renewals and for authorizing licenses for purchase of weapons, said Director Marchand. Now, citizens who don't get off work until the late afternoon will be able to visit the department up to 11 p.m. on such matters.

"He'll Be Missed"
Meanwhile, Mr. McQueen, who joined the city in April 1969, spent his last day at work on December 26. "He retired once before from the J. L. Hudson Co. and had a contract with the city for his services as dog warden," said Director Marchand.

"He has done a tremendous job and he'll be missed by all," he continued. "For an older man, (Mr. McQueen will be 65 this month), he is very active."

A retirement party will be held for Mr. McQueen, who said he really enjoyed his work for the city, on Friday, January 30, at the American Legion Hall, 20916 Mack avenue. Dinner will be served at 8:30 p.m. Donations are $7 and tickets may be obtained at departmental headquarters, 20025 Mack avenue.

The director reported Susan Gellach, who left because of an opportunity for a daytime job, spent her last day at work yesterday, December 31. He said while her replacement isn't definite at this time, he has a replacement lined up for Mr. McQueen but wants to wait until after the holidays on this.

Better Protection
As for the tactical unit, it had been in effect for around nine to 10 years, said Director Marchand. "It was originally set up to provide additional manpower during hours of most police activity," (which varied during the week, e.g., Sunday-Thursday,

5 p.m.-1 a.m., and Friday-Saturday, 7 p.m.-3 a.m.), he stated.

However, he noted, the crime picture has changed throughout the years with many offenses, e.g., holdups, fire and hospital runs, being spread out more evenly over a 24-hour period.

So the tactical unit was eliminated and "we increased our manpower on the afternoon shift and the night shift," the director stressed. "We have 10 people working on the afternoon shift on weekends, (defined as Friday and Saturday), and nine people working on the night shift on weekends," (Saturday and Sunday).

He felt this provides better police protection and a better initial fire response on the night shift.

In providing a further breakdown of manpower, Director Marchand stated there are eight uniform patrol officers on duty during the day shift, (7 a.m.-3 p.m.) seven days a week, eight to nine officers on duty during the afternoon shift, (3-11 p.m. on Sunday-Thursday), and eight to nine officers on duty during the night shift, (11 p.m.-7 a.m. on Monday-Friday).

Positive Factors
On the day shift, the department normally has five scout cars on the road, on the afternoon shift as many as seven cars, and on the night shift there's no less than three cars on patrol, (with officers riding double).

In viewing the overall spectrum of change within the department, Director Marchand feels the adjustments will make the department more effective with more officers being on the road for a greater length of time. In this respect, he hopes a reduction in criminal activity will result. He also cited the uniformity of the command structure as a positive factor.

Meanwhile, City Administrator Chester E. Petersen said the further reorganization of the department with a lieutenant in charge of every division makes for a better operation in total. He also felt the elimination of the tactical unit would help increase the department's patrol strength.

In a final note, City Attorney George Catlin reported to the council by letter on the suit filed by Lt. Kelly. The suit, received, and placed the communication on file at the regular meeting Monday, December 8.

Explores Case
In his letter, Mr. Catlin said, "The matter in dispute was the allegation by Sgt. Kelly that the written promotional procedures, adopted by the city in 1966, required the rounding of the test score numbers and that such rounding would place Sgt. Kelly in a tie with Sgt. Thomas and require the promotion of Sgt. Kelly to the rank of lieutenant rather than Sgt. Thomas.

"Sgt. Kelly had obtained a general average score of 2.0 and Sgt. Thomas had a score of 1.9, being the higher score overall."

At the trial, the court found that the language contained in the promotional procedures was not concise and required interpretation, said Mr. Catlin.

"The court determined that the term 'general average scores,' contained on the test result sheet, was synonymous with 'highest aggregate ranking' terminology used in the promotional procedures.

"This interpretation requires that the 1.9 score of Sgt. Thomas be rounded to 2.0, and since that created a tie score, Sgt. Kelly being the senior officer, should have received the promotion."

When asked if he sees any problem in relation to possible suits over the lieutenant's examination in the future, Mr. Catlin replied he doesn't expect any such problem to occur.

Woods Accepts 3 Resignations
The Woods Council unanimously received with regrets the resignations of two members of the Senior Citizens Commission and a member of the Pension Board last month.
Because of continuing health problems, Robert C. Boyd, of East Clairview court, submitted his letter of resignation.
Meanwhile, the resignation of Gordon Long, of Broadstone road, from the commission was accepted by the council at the regular meeting Monday, December 15, as was the resignation of Ray MacArthur from the Pension Board.
With the resignations of Mr. Boyd and Mr. Long, Mayor Benjamin W. Pinkos and the council will have three commission vacancies to consider as Andrew J. Campbell resigned earlier in the year, according to Irene Sutton, commission chairman.
She said five names have been submitted to Mr. Pinkos for consideration with the new appointments possibly being made at one of the January council meetings.

'Fishtail' Halts Fast Motorist
Michael D. Blackburn, of 19829 Arthur, Harper Woods, will have to appear in The Shores Municipal Court Wednesday, January 28, on a charge of reckless driving. His car "fishtailed" and spun completely around and went over the curb facing north on southbound Lakeshore road before he came to a stop.
Shores Public Safety Officer Ronald Klotz, in an official report, stated that as he was crossing over at Crestwood on Saturday, December 27, he observed a 1973 Jeep traveling at a high rate of speed, with Blackburn behind the wheel. The officer gave chase, stating that because of the slippery condition of the road, he was only able to reach a speed of 50 miles per hour, with the other vehicle pulling away.
During the pursuit, Officer Klotz said, Blackburn on several occasions, drove from right to left lanes, while passing other cars. Just as he approached Vernier road, the traffic signal changed from red to green, and Blackburn accelerated his speed, the officer said, since it was not necessary for him to stop.
At Williston, Blackburn's auto "fishtailed" and he lost control and the vehicle spun around and landed over the curb. When PSO Klotz approached him, Blackburn claimed that another driver nearly sideswiped him, forcing him off the road, causing him to lose control. He claimed further that the other motorist had been following him from St. Clair Shores.
PSO Klotz said that he noticed no other vehicles on the road except the ones Blackburn passed, and placed the man under arrest and took him to the station.
At the station, Blackburn was issued a violation ticket for reckless driving and posted a bond of $100 to guarantee his scheduled court appearance in January.

Open Education Discussed

ication and discovery. If we look at the so-called traditional program, we would generally define the program as follows:

- The teacher is at the heart of the educational program.
- The students are basically involved in acquiring knowledge.
- The curriculum to be transmitted is clearly delineated and classified for transmission to the students.
- The atmosphere of the classroom is one of control and structured responses to teacher-directed activities.

In my opinion, there is no one best approach to a quality educational program. Further, I would contend that no teacher is either totally a traditional teacher or an open education teacher. I believe most teachers use concepts and approaches from both programs. In Grosse Pointe, we have a number of open classroom programs underway but generally our basic elementary structure in Grosse Pointe could be classified as more traditional.

It must be clearly understood that neither the Board nor administrative staff is advocating one approach to the exclusion of the other. We believe that both approaches have merit, depending on the needs of the students, the interests of the teachers and the interests of the parents.

Some teachers are neither trained nor inclined to do well in an open classroom setting. If this be the case, the worst thing that could happen to students would be for them to be in an open classroom situation in which the teacher was neither professionally trained nor personally committed to this type of program.

Therefore, I am not interested in considering Open Education for all of our teachers and students, but I am interested in considering alternative approaches if interest warrants them.

In a number of our school communities, parents and teachers have expressed an interest in moving to an open classroom concept. I have directed the principals to work with their staffs and parents for a full explanation and understanding of both approaches.

In those schools where open classrooms are in existence today, we have experienced a great deal of success and in some cases a great deal of frustration. However, because of tremendous skill on the part of the teachers involved, the programs have generally been well-implemented and well-received by the parents.

If we look at the research in this area, we will find that one approach is not found to be significantly better than the other in terms of achievement. I do believe, however, the open approach better meets the needs for social development and individuality, but this does not imply an advantage for teaching basic skills or transmission of specific knowledge. Regardless of the philosophical approach utilized in our schools, I am greatly concerned that we do a competent job of teaching basic skills. To me, competency in writing, reading and arithmetic are critical—regardless of the approach used.

As a result of this constructive debate in our community, I am confident that the input gained will be most beneficial to the superintendent, staff and the Board in our efforts to provide quality education in our schools. Therefore, I encourage citizens and staff alike to become openly involved in the discussion taking place throughout the district.

Classes for Seniors

that a course in golf lessons, for instance, could be very popular. In noting that WCCC would like to develop courses in areas throughout the county, Mr. McNamara said several potential classes were discussed at the meeting including golf, bowling, physical fitness after 50, sailing, television viewing and legal advice for aging. But what specifically happens on the course front depends on the seniors, themselves.

"Keep It Moving" The courses are for pleasure, entertainment and college credit, he noted. "If a course is started, it can't be attended on a casual basis. If it's designed to meet 16 times for a two-hour period, it must be attended 16 times."

It's up to the seniors to come up with a program, continued Mr. McNamara. The program can be designed by the seniors with WCCC ultimately "legitimizing" the formal, he said. Then, a request would be made to the school system to provide necessary space.

As for course instructors, they must be agreeable to the seniors first with WCCC being the overseer and coordinator of the program, he said.

While noting, "The city is not in education, but we have seniors we can assist," Mr. McNamara said the municipality's next step is to "take an overview of the program and make sure it doesn't flounder. We want to keep it moving."

In calling the meeting a very positive exploratory session, Dr. Eddington said the seniors now have to come up with specific courses and indicate their need for required space.

Then, they must make a formal request in writing to Dr. James A. Adams, superintendent of schools, who will take it to the Board for its ruling.

Project with Goal For her part, Mrs. Sutton has been interested in such a program since her selection to the commission in 1974. She said seniors approached the school system regarding courses through the Department of Community Services and were told classes would be available at a 25 percent discount. However, she indicated seniors wanted such courses free of charge.

"The Senior Citizens Commission made a recommendation to the council last month asking that City Administrator Chester E. Petersen be directed to investigate the possibility of having free adult education classes," she said.

As it turned out, the focus centered upon college courses for college credit with Mr. McNamara coordinating the effort to bring all interested parties together; hence, the meeting on the 23rd.

"I'm delighted seniors will have something to do besides socializing," stated Mrs. Sutton, who added, while socializing will play a role in such a program, a main aspect will be having a project with a goal.

What finally transpires regarding the development of the program awaits the selection of courses by the seniors with certain classes possibly running eight, 10 or even 16 weeks.

The number of courses for the planned opening of the program remains to be seen, with Mr. McNamara feeling two or three courses should be selected as a start. Then, if the program fulfills its potential promise, more could be added at a later date.

For further information on the program, call Mr. Komerska at 881-1543.

Shores PSOs Elect Officers

The Grosse Pointe Shores Public Safety Officers Association, (GPSPOA), recently held an election to select its officials and union bargaining representatives for 1976. The tenures are for one year and begin January 1.

Gary Mitchell was elected to a second term as president; Archie Grieve was picked for his first term as vice-president; and Daniel Healy was reelected to his second term as secretary.

In addition, the association members voted to combine the office of treasurer with that of the secretary, creating a secretary-treasurer position, which was assumed by PSO Healy.

The bargaining representatives for the coming year are Harry Hamilton and Robert Bensinger, both elected to their second term, and Michael Kenyon, who will serve in this post for the first time.

Vandal Admits School Damage

A 17-year-old Woods youth admitted breaking 20 windows at Mason School, 1640 Vernier road, in early December, reported Youth Service Division Det. Wayne Baum.

The youth, who admitted his involvement in the incident during an interview with Det. Baum and Woods Det. Everett Plumb, will not be charged in the case but will be responsible to make restitution in the amount of $140, (as each 18-by-12-inch window was valued at $7).

In the police report, the boy initially responded he was not involved in the incident and that the cuts on his hands had been the result of a fight. (At the scene, officers had earlier discovered possible blood on broken shards of glass and on a concrete walk).

Due to the fact no other evidence in the case other than some blood on certain pieces of glass was apparent, the youth was told he would not be charged in the incident and that the department merely wanted to clear up the case.

At this time, the youth admitted he smashed the windows. He said he returned to the area from a concert at Pontiac Metropolitan Stadium and was under the influence of alcohol. He then proceeded to break the windows with his fist but was unsure of the total amount of damage.

The youth was told he would be expected to make restitution to the Grosse Pointe Board of Education for the cost of repairing the damage. He agreed he would attempt to pay back this money over the next few months after he served some time in the Detroit House of Correction on another case and then located a job.

method of arriving at the cuts. We feel that it is unfair to take from us State funds used for programs mandated by the State," he said.

Criticize Formula "We are further dissatisfied that the formula for cuts is also based on our public library revenues, totally unrelated to the school program," Dr. Adams added.

Although in a November interview Dr. Adams suggested that the Board might carry on the fight in a court suit, he would not commit himself to any such action at this time.

"Since the Board of Education will not be meeting until after the holidays, any decision on means of coping with this serious situation will have to wait until the trustees meet again," Dr. Adams said.

For The Pointe, which receives no general State aid, the order will mean a reduction of $393,512, to about $37,000 in State aid.

Expected $430,500 The Board of Education had planned on $430,500 in State aid, including $290,000 in categorical aid for special education and remedial reading; $33,000 for driver education; $25,000 for vocational programs; and $25,000 for transportation.

Most of these programs are either State-mandated or encouraged by the State.

In addition, Dr. Adams said he expects the district will get no State aid to fund these programs for the 1976-77 school year.

The schools do have an unappropriated reserve of $145,000 and $269,000 for future budgets that may help them through the present crisis.

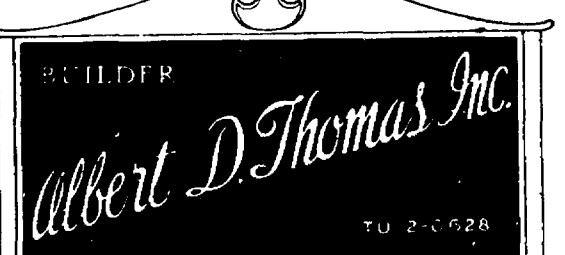

"But as we built our reserves we were certainly not anticipating cuts such as these," Dr. Adams said this November.

Board's Response

In the first response to the impending cutbacks the Board voted at the November 10 meeting not to fund the new planning and evaluation position created in this year's budget at a savings of more than $25,000.

The executive order issued by Governor Milliken earlier this month cut $124 million out of the State budget in order to avoid a deficit of $280 million during the current fiscal year. Included in the order were cuts of $40.5 million to local school districts, $7.5 million to State universities and $40 million to various Medicaid and welfare programs.

Other districts represented in the attorney general's ruling on those cuts were Southfield, Ann Arbor, Charlevoix, Ecorse, Harper Woods, Lamphere, Midland, Novi, South Redford, Flat Rock, Bridgman and Carman.

Special Programs in Schools

University Liggett as well as public school students.
In addition special self-contained classrooms serve 46 emotionally impaired, 32 educable mentally impaired, 30 trainable mentally impaired, and 46 learning disabled students.
In the case of the nine students this year who need special education not offered at the Pointe school district, the Board of Education pays the transportation and tuition costs of their schooling.

Sienkiewicz Directs
This whole spectrum of classes and programs all come under the department of pupil personnel, directed by Reginald Sienkiewicz.

Mr. Sienkiewicz is encouraged by the advances made in special education through the past decade and especially excited about the school's new program for what he calls the "learning disabled." These are kids with average intellect who have been held back in learning for a variety of physical reasons, many of which may have gone undetected or did not seem serious. Poor eyes, a slight hearing problem or poor visual-motor coordination may do a great deal to impede an elementary student's ability to keep up with his classmates—and at the same time may go unnoticed by parents, teachers and even the student himself. Even if a physical problem was recognized, administrative tors were hesitant to put such a child in a classroom with more seriously handicapped students which was the only alternative to the regular classroom in the past.

Two New Classrooms

This year two new elementary classrooms have been added to give these special students the attention and help they need. Many of the children spend a few hours each week in the classes; many are there full-time.

Although he's pleased with the expansion of special education courses in the schools, Mr. Sienkiewicz thinks the students are served best by keeping them out of the special class and in the regular classes as much as possible—an idea he calls "mainstreaming."

In that vein Mr. Sienkiewicz keeps a special eye out to see that students are spending as much time as they can in the home classrooms where they can interact with the other students. With extra training even blind and deaf students can and have returned to their regular classrooms to participate on an equal basis.

PWP Sponsors Dance Jan. 3

The Grosse Pointe Chapter of Parents Without Partners, (PWP), is sponsoring a Bicentennial Ball Saturday, January 3, in the Crystal Ballroom of the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Road. The event runs from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Tickets will be available at the door at $4 and they may be obtained in advance at $3 by calling 293-1549 or 463-6000.

Big January 'Crunch'

ber 31 will be responsible for the first $104 of the hospital bill. The 1975 deductible was $92. Under the Medicare law, the amount of the deductible is tied to the average cost of one day's stay in a hospital.

People asked for information by the Federal Government must be told the statutory authority for the request, whether giving the information is voluntary or mandatory, why the information is needed, how it will be used, and the effects of not providing it.

The amount on which social security contributions are made will be the first $15,300 of covered earnings for the year, starting in January. The 1976 rate remains the same at 5.85 percent for employees and 7.90 percent for the self-employed.

The Social Security Administration is suggesting several ways a person can avoid getting caught in the 1st of the year rush at social security offices:

The Detroit Area number 493-1111 is a convenient way of getting together with the social security people. Number 493-1111 gets a caller to the Information Center where answers to most questions can be given or forms and pamphlets can be provided through the mail. The people there can change the address for a person's social security check and otherwise handle the problems of Social Security Administration beneficiaries. It's handy, toll-free to most areas, and effective. If a personal visit to a social security office is necessary, it can be timed to avoid the crowds.

Wine Lines
by Pat Ulatowski

For many years shippers for sherry have built up a system of maturing butts of identical wine, called solera. These butts are supplemented by more casks of similar wines in different stages. When a wine is wanted, it is drawn from the cask of its particular solera. The remaining sherry goes through a number of separate stages in order to make it perfect. It is the sherry, however, that governs the frequency and the quantity of withdrawals from the solera. Unlike most other wines, sherry acquires sweetness from manufacture. Medium or sweet sherry has sweetening as well as coloring added to give them flavor and appearance.

From sherry to champagnes, PARKIE'S PARTY SHOPPE, corner of St. Clair at 17255 Mack, 885-0626 has all the wines and liquors for your party needs this holiday season. We also feature a fine selection of cheese, nuts, artichokes, escargot, fancy spreads and party crackers. May we take this opportunity to wish you a very happy holiday season. Hours: 10-10 Mon.-Thurs; 10-11 Fri. Sat.; noon-10 Sun.

WINE FRIDAY:
When tasting you should look for dryness or sweetness, flavor, and the breeding of the wine.

Know Your Schools

By Dr. James A. Adams
Superintendent of Schools

Community residents may recall that the school system's newsletter mailed in September contained a rather extensive listing of the school district's goals and priorities for 1975-76. The total of 114 items in nine major categories was approved by the Board of Education at the August 11 meeting.

What progress is being made toward accomplishing this ambitious program of tasks for the year?

Each administrator has developed individual goals designed to meet the system's Board-approved goals for the 1975-76 year.

A booklet, sent to the Board of Education recently, contains a compilation of these individual goals. Its five sections are devoted to goals of the Superintendent, the Central Office, Elementary School Principals, Middle School Administrators and Senior High School Administrators.

In the booklet the goals,

(all based, of course, on the Board-approved master list), are enumerated along with the strategies for their implementation, and the criteria for their evaluation.

For example, one of my goals for the year is to continue to administer the school system effectively. Among the 11 strategies which I perceive as necessary to do this is to respond quickly to problems that emerge and to attempt to solve them satisfactorily.

A goal of one of the Central Office staff is to re-examine the summer school program and to prepare recommendations for its improvement for my consideration.

The successful implementation of any proposed changes or improvements would constitute the evaluation of the goal in question.

A goal of one of our elementary principals is to supervise the implementation of the elementary school curriculum in the areas of language arts, (reading, writing, spelling, handwriting), mathematics, science, and social studies. This person is to conduct a survey of the extent of curriculum implementation, analyze survey responses and work toward correcting any perceived deficiencies or shortcomings.

And at the secondary level, one of our assistant principals lists as a goal the re-examination of the high school testing program. This administrator will gather data about tests being used and those needed. The possibility of a revision of the program, in whole or part, will be conducted if deemed necessary.

These four examples will serve, I think, to show the public how the staff is attempting to implement the Board-approved goals for the system through a well-developed program of individual professional initiative.

We will be closed Monday, January 5th to get ready for our fabulous sale which starts January 6th thru the 10th.

Letters to The Editor

To The Editor:

The Grinch is alive and well!

Making a small effort to hopefully add to the attractiveness of our neighborhood, we built nine snow figures on our front lawn to represent our family members. They were appropriately dressed with hats, scarves, aprons, etc., and we've received many nice comments on them.

I suppose we should be pleased the figures lasted one night. However, the Grinch came the second night and flattened all the snow figures.

It's easy to be a Grinch. It probably took less than one minute to undo all the work of a couple of hours. As disappointed as our younger ones were, we've told the children that the effort must be continued to help make this a better world.

They must never let the work of a Grinch or two discourage them.

The Grinches of Grosse Pointe and the world are few.

We will overcome.

What Goes On at Your Library

By Arthur M. Woodford
Chief of Central Library

For my first column of 1976 I would like to review for you a half dozen books that tell the story of our country as it was in 1776. All of these volumes have recently been purchased by your Grosse Pointe Public Library and added to our Americana Collection.

In her book WEATHERING THE STORM: WOMEN OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION (Scribners) Elizabeth Evans has gathered together the journals and diaries of 11 women who "weathered the storm" of the American Revolution. Here are patriots, loyalists and neutral Quakers — families with divided loyalties. How does a woman react when 10,000 Hessians march into her village, or a mob of angry patriots batter at her door? The reader is absorbed into an atmosphere of rumor, suspense, disease and death. Ms. Evans has provided a rich and varied picture of those times making this book a welcome addition to bicentennial literature.

One of the best bicentennial books for the reader wanting a fresh look at American history is Thomas Fleming's 1776: YEAR OF ILLUSIONS (Norton). The author avoids the familiar set pieces of narrative and interpretation, and uses as a controlling theme the dismantling of the illusions that the experience of the year 1776 brought.

Fleming dispels some still remaining ideas born of school texts and popular history, and he moves with ease from American battlefields to London's doves and hawks to French finances. Effective use of original sources, candid presentation and a lucid realism make the book an instructive and enjoyable reading experience.

The story retold by Richard M. Ketchum in DECISIVE DAY: THE BATTLE FOR BUNKER HILL (Doubleday) is a familiar one. The British regulars in disciplined ranks frontally and formally assault "the hill" on the Charlestown peninsula opposite Boston. The rebellious Colonials had dug in and returned a withering fire. The battle marked an irrevocable turn to all-out war, from which neither side retreated until the victory of the colonies in 1781. Writing with a sure and skillful hand from fresh resources and a careful re-evaluation of the old ones, Ketchum dispels nearly two centuries of legend and error about that awful day, places the engagement in its proper historical perspective and at once captures all its blunders, horror and heroism.

This next book is also by Richard M. Ketchum and is one of the most handsome bicentennial books I have seen. In the WORLD OF GEORGE WASHINGTON (American Heritage) Ketchum dispenses with the "aura of sainthood" that has tended to surround Washington since his death and gives us an honest biography of this eminently honest man.

What sets this book apart is its 240 illustrations (90 of which are in color) — portraits, landscapes, documents and memorabilia — that all date from the Washington era. It's as though the years hadn't intervened. This would make a fine and fitting gift book for the bicentennial year.

The late Bernhard Knollenberg, lawyer and Yale librarian for more than 30 years, lavished a wealth of scholarly material and circumstantial evidence to make his points in THE GROWTH OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, 1776-1775 (Macmillan). He poses the question, "Was there in fact an historic inevitability to the American revolutionary struggle?" Knollenberg writes in meticulous detail and, despite his pro-revolutionary bias, is scrupulous in presenting both Whig and Tory viewpoints. His book is a worthwhile addition to Revolutionary scholarship.

Although THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION: MIRROR OF A PEOPLE (Hammond) by William P. Randal begins with the battle of Lexington and Concord and ends with the early days of the war, this book is mostly concerned with the kinds of people who lived in the colonies.

Randal discusses graphically the life of an average colonial from birth to death before picturing life in rural and urban America of 1776. Travel, communication, the press, Boston Massacre and Tea Party, loyalists, transition in government, weapons, and the Continental army also are considered. As well as an excellent reading experience, this book is a moving visual one, for it is richly illustrated with many color prints.

Drivers Warned of Ontario Law

Across the Detroit River in Windsor, Ontario, motorists will drive buckled up. A new Ontario law will take effect January 1, making use of seat belts in automobiles on Ontario roads mandatory.

Ontario provincial and local police have the right to stop motorists — including those from Michigan — and check on seat-belt use—ticking those who have failed to buckle up. Non-compliance with the new law may bring fines from $20 to $100. The Traffic Safety Association urges Detroit drivers to take a tip from Ontario—and wear seat belts when driving, even though Michigan has no similar law. Mandatory use of seat belts is advocated for Michigan by the TSA.

A conservative estimate — from United States safety-engineering sources — is that 40 percent of the nation's front-seat passenger-car deaths on highways could be prevented if everyone used the seat belts which federal law now requires the manufacturer to put into each automobile. Seat belts also can help drivers remain in control of their cars when in emergency situations. Traffic experts say the evidence is that wearing a seat belt helps to avoid collisions in some circumstances, in addition to the seat belt's prime job — protecting the driver in the instant his car is in a collision. Garnet M. Griffin, TSA President, says "there is no doubt that seat belts, irritating as they may be to some persons, save lives in traffic accidents—even the lives of people who don't like them but wear them anyway."

Mrs. John A. Dodds has put together a superb plan for Grosse Pointe Garden Center's annual luncheon meeting and program on Friday, January 9, in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Alger House.

Members—now numbering nearly 1,000, due to Miss Marie Louise Anderson's diligence—should make reservations for the luncheon, at $4.75 per person, by next Tuesday, January 6, either in person in the Garden Center Room in Alger House's second floor, or by mail, (to the Garden Center Room, Grosse Pointe War Memorial).

Promptly at noon, everyone will be seated in the drawing room, for which Mrs. Livingstone Howard has designed especially lovely, festive table decorations.

Instead of lengthy reports, recording all the successes of 1975 from every possible point of view, Mrs. Daniel J. Clifford is writing a brief history designed to give the overall picture in a few minutes. Brevity is, indeed, the soul of wit.

The only other "business" to be transacted, election of officers for 1976, will be mainly a reelection, for Dorothy (Mrs. Arthur O. A.) Schmidt, last week's Pointer of Interest, and most of her staff are expected to continue in office for a second year.

Then it's into Alger House library for a talk on "Beauty and Utility in the Landscape" by Professor Charles W. Cares, chairman of the University of Michigan's School of Natural Resources Landscape Architecture program.

He's bringing slides, and Miss Kathleen Strebly, a School of Natural Resources graduate student. The Grosse Pointe Garden Center has awarded.

Full AAUW Month Begins New Year

Slides and Commentary on Wilderness Tour of the Himalayas to Be General Meeting Topic; Study Group Sessions Start Monday

A busy January is in store for members of the Grosse Pointe Branch American Association of University Women, whose general meeting Thursday morning, January 15, at 9:30 o'clock in the Grosse Pointe Central Library, Kercheval avenue at Fisher road, will feature a program designed to appeal to both environmentalists and humanists.

Local Branch member Betty Clarke, assisted by her friend and traveling companion Mary Elizabeth Ballentine, will show National Geographic-quality slides of a Wilderness Tour of the Himalaya Mountains, with appropriate commentary.

Both women are members of the National Audubon Society which sponsored the 20-day hiking/climbing expedition during which 151 species of birds were sighted.

The group lived among the unique nomad culture of northern India.

Their guide was Bob Fleming, son of the pioneer Fleming family featured in the book "The Fabulous Flemings of Katmandu."

AAUW's special interest groups continue their regular meetings throughout the month, the Bicentennial Study Group gathering this Monday, January 5, at 9:15 in the morning in the Notre Dame avenue home of Mary Louise Krebs, where discussions will focus on Benjamin Franklin: Man of Many Talents.

Several members will present highlights from Franklin's life. Suggested background reading is the article on Franklin in the July, 1975, issue of National Geographic. Baby-sitting will be provided at the Lincoln road home of Jane Ford, (389-0521).

The Guitar Group also meets Monday, January 5, at the Hidden lane home of Laura Malicki, with a second meeting scheduled for later in the month, Monday, January 19, at the home of Jeanette Picirelli in Fairway drive.

Margaret Hahn will discuss Emigration and Immigration... Our Changing Patterns... at a meeting of the International Relations Study Group Wednesday, January 7, at 1 o'clock in the Harcourt road home of Gladys Gies.

The Personal and Family Growth Group is offering all AAUW members a Family Focus YMCA Course in Transactional Analysis Made Simple and Usable. Many individuals are trained in a variety of professional skills; few receive training in the skills required in parenting, communication in marriage—or even communication on the job.

The six Family Focus sessions are designed to help participants see their families and their jobs in a new light.

Classes are scheduled for Thursday evenings, January 8, 15 and 22 and February 5, 12 and 19, from 7:15 to 10:15 o'clock. Registration may be made and further information obtained by contacting Peggy Muir at 822-7532.

This Group encourages any AAUW members to join any discussion, anytime, and issues a special invitation to husbands.

The care, feeding and growing of healthy houseplants will be discussed by Linda Laster and Marcie Dudeck at a Kaleidoscope meeting Tuesday, January 13, at 9 in the morning in the Moran road home of Peggy Plaznik. Tired, sick and/or weary plants are welcome to accompany their owners to the meeting.

Francine Augier will present "Evangeline Duchener" at a La Cause meeting Wednesday evening, January 14, at 7:45 o'clock in the McKinley avenue home of Julia Ford.

The 21st Century: Deciding Now Study Group meets Monday, January 19, at 9:15 in the morning in the Hampton road home of Mary Leech, for an examination of the viewpoints presented by Alvin Toffler in "Future Shock" and "Eco-Sham." Baby-sitting will be provided.

Judy Launs will lead the Play Reading Group through Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" Thursday, January 22, at 1 o'clock at the Yorkshire road home of Eileen Chapman. Future sessions will focus on "Blithe Spirit" and "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie."

This Group reads one play per meeting. No professional abilities are required; pleasure and insight into dramas and comedies are the goals of the Play Readers.

Reservations for the Gourmet Dinner Group's evening at a Japanese Restaurant Saturday, January 24, must be received by Judy Launs.

Members of the Western Michigan University Swimming Team are Grosse Pointe North High School graduates THOM FLIGO, a freestyler who was all-League last year and lettered four times at North High, and GARY HOFFMAN, who set a school record in the 50-yard freestyle at the Mid-American Conference Championships.

The engagement of Kimberly S. Murphy and Christopher Kennedy Gerard was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Atterbury, at an engagement party in their McKinley place home Saturday, December 20.

The bride-elect, who is also the daughter of Harry L. Murphy, of Wayne, Ill., and Palm Springs, Calif., was graduated from the American School in Switzerland and is attending the University of Denver.

Pointer of Interest

ED OLDANI, OF KENSINGTON ROAD

By Janet Mueller

Say you want to be a cowboy when you grow up. Or a pirate. Or Daniel Boone, Marco Polo or Chinese Gordon. Say, at some point in your life—five, maybe, or six—it dawns on you that however hard you try you can't BE any of these things (the occupations "cowboy" and "pirate" aren't what they were), or people, (they're taken).

Or — you're at another point now, 10, maybe 11—can you?

An actor can be just about anything/body he wants to be.

Ed Oldani is an actor.

He's done stage work and television work, been in films, made commercials. He's had good years, and bad ones. "When you're working, the pay is very good. The problem is: you're not working all the time."

The Opportunity's There

But it's possible, and in Detroit, to make a living as an actor. It's possible to make a very good living, on the East Coast, West Coast and in between, even if you're not a big star, and there's always the possibility of making it big. People do.

You'd like it to happen, (who wouldn't?); Ed Oldani has no objection to either fame or fortune, but it's not really why you stay in the profession.

"I'd like to stress that acting, the theater, is a very worthwhile thing to get into. The theater can educate, criticize, critique . . . the actor can really do a lot.

"It's also a very difficult, frustrating profession, with a lot of hard times. You have to have the skin of a rhinoceros and the suppleness of an athlete to survive."

Plus talent. Plus timing. Plus breaks. Plus discipline. (Discipline? . . . well, what good are the talent/timing/breaks if you're not ready for them? Actors, like athletes, have to keep themselves in condition during the season—and the actor never knows for sure when the season's going to start.)

Grew Up in Pointe

Ed Oldani grew up in Grosse Pointe. He made his first stage appearance in a kindergarten play at Defer School. He didn't want to be an actor then: he wanted to be a baseball player.

"I've always been very active in sports. And I was pretty good." But "pretty good" doesn't get you into the major leagues; as Ed grew older, he took a more realistic look at his probabilities of success as a professional athlete, decided they were very probable, and . . .

"I'd always been interested in acting, and in writing." At Austin Prep School, Tom Bailey, "probably the finest teacher I ever had," re-kindled Ed's interest in theater. He was graduated from Michigan State University in 1968 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Speech and Theater.

Got Lucky Early

Right off the bat, he got lucky. The last play he did at MSU was Lorraine Hansberry's "Sign in Sidney B. Stein's Window." Ed received an award for it, and an agent from Detroit, who happened to be in the audience, signed him up, and right away he got a few radio commercials, and he auditioned for a part, one of the main roles, in a motion picture, and he got that.

In Medical Series

He's been involved in a series of eight-minute social dramas used in the training of medical students at Wayne State University, produced by WSU under the auspices of Josephine Caponi. "That's been very interesting. The characters are allowed to improvise a lot. I've played everything from a baseball player with ulcers to a homosexual to a guy with a bad back who works on the docks."

He's always tried to do as much theater work as possible. Back in '67, he played the second lead in the original English language production of "The Power Players" by Jean Anouilh, touring with it to different colleges. He's currently appearing in an original musical choral-with-narration Bi-centennial production that's been staged several times in Detroit and is scheduled for a January performance in Flint, sharing the narration with another Pointer, Hal Youngblood.

Ed plays The Voice of God. It's sort of spooky. "Where," he wonders, "do you go from 'God'?"

Proud of "Flip Side"

He's proud of his work in "The Flip Side." He went on some speaking tours with that film, and was constantly struck, viewing it from the audience, at how potently the message came across.

He'd just as soon forget "Winter Kill," made in Michigan over a period of a year and a half, (there were funding problems). "They cast two kids who'd never been in front of a camera in the leads. It's hard enough casting a good stage actor in a film, because film and stage are different mediums, requiring different techniques."

"Winter Kill" finally did get made, and released. "And I thought," says Ed, "it was awful!"

In "Detroit 9,000," he got to kill the leading lady. It was a Hollywood film, all leads from California, shot on location in Detroit where it got horrible reviews. Ed thinks those local reviews were unjustified. "It wasn't a bad film," he maintains. "It received relatively good reviews around the country, and it did quite well, despite the bad press in Detroit, around the country and around the world."

All Kinds of Roles

He's played all kinds of roles. "I used to be typecast as 'misunderstood youth,' a young tough, that sort of thing." But one reason acting is a great profession, according to Ed, is "the older you get, the more you grow. It's easier at 30 to play a boy of 20 than at 20 to play a man of 30. There are nuances, subtleties that only come from living."

Still, for an actor, typecasting is a fact of life. "That's part of the reason why it's better for me to leave Detroit, I think. The bulk of advertising and commercial work here calls for a 'mid-western average man' type—and they say I look ethnic."

So someday, soon, Ed Oldani will take his pet plant, Inez, (a gift from Linda Ronstadt, the singer), and bid farewell to the avocado tree he grew because they said it couldn't be done—he's not a plant freak; he just has these two plants, that's all—and be on his way.

Get Used to Moving

Actors have to get used to moving on. "TV is definitely where the action is right now. If, as an actor, you want to

"I was spoiled," Ed knows now. The film was "The Flip Side," dealing with drugs and the lack of communication between teenagers and parents, a major late 60's theme. It's been shown all over the world. Ed played "the nice kid who becomes a drug addict." His was the only part cast out of Detroit; all the other actors came from California.

After some industrial film work and more commercials in Detroit, he decided to try the West Coast. "My timing, as usual, was brilliant. There was only one film being shot in California, and I got there just as all the television shows were going on hiatus."

Annual Shut-Downs

TV series' production shuts down for several months every year, then resumes until another year's programs are shot.

Ed, arriving in California, did a "Mod Squad," a syndicated show with moral themes called "The Insight" and a "Name of the Game," all right away. Then—nothing. There was nothing TO do.

He came back to Detroit. "An actor can make a living in Detroit." There are industrial films and commercials, plus local television, plus "darn good community theater and school's." But don't kid yourself; for an actor, the East and West Coasts are where the action is.

"I hate to say, 'Leave Detroit.' I think Detroit has got a really fine little artists' colony. I want to say, 'Stay with it, man!' But the reality remains: New York and California are where it's happening, and if you want it to happen to you, you've got to go there. "And that's too bad, because there are so many really extraordinarily talented people here."

Lives on "Mights"

Ed's worked in Chicago and in New York. He's never been back to California, but he intends to give it a second go this spring—if he's not in New York. "I'm waiting on 'The Edge of Night.'" He interviewed for the soap opera, "and it looked good," but then the show changed networks. Still, it MIGHT come through . . . and "mights" are what an actor lives on.

Actually, 1975 has been a very good year for Ed Oldani. "Compared to 1974, which was awful." He's been busy in '75. He's done his share of locally-produced television programs and commercials.

He admits it bugs him a little that none of his current commercials are on the air here. "You can see and hear me in Portland, Ore., Atlanta, Ga. . . but not in Detroit."

In Medical Series

He's been involved in a series of eight-minute social dramas used in the training of medical students at Wayne State University, produced by WSU under the auspices of Josephine Caponi. "That's been very interesting. The

All Kinds of Roles

He's played all kinds of roles. "I used to be typecast as 'misunderstood youth,' a young tough, that sort of thing." But one reason acting is a great profession, according to Ed, is "the older you get, the more you grow. It's easier at 30 to play a boy of 20 than at 20 to play a man of 30. There are nuances, subtleties that only come from living."

Still, for an actor, typecasting is a fact of life. "That's part of the reason why it's better for me to leave Detroit, I think. The bulk of advertising and commercial work here calls for a 'mid-western average man' type—and they say I look ethnic."

So someday, soon, Ed Oldani will take his pet plant, Inez, (a gift from Linda Ronstadt, the singer), and bid farewell to the avocado tree he grew because they said it couldn't be done—he's not a plant freak; he just has these two plants, that's all—and be on his way.

But balancing this is the opportunity to work with someone like local producer-director Evelyn Orbach. 'I've done a lot of TV with her. The film especially, for a film is a concerto, a mesh of talents, and Ed loves the camaraderie of working with talented people.

"It's like playing baseball. You've got to work together. It's the team that wins the game, not the star."

It's not bad being the star, though, or the coach, who sits in the power spot. And, if you can be just about anything/body you want to be . . . what's so wrong with being Cecil B. DeMille?
