THE MICHIGAN STATE Medical Society called all of its 8,700 doctor members to cancel their service agreements with the state's largest health insurer, Michigan Blue Cross-Blue Shield. The society's elected delegates unanimously voted yesterday to also authorize the society to sue the Blues, to urge that unions and businesses seek the society's advice before buying Blues insurance and, if necessary, to drop the medical society's own health insurance program with the Blues. The society's actions stem from recent attempts by the Blues to induce more doctors to sign participation agreements.

DETROIT MAYOR Coleman Young said in a television debate last night that he paid more than $8,000 in taxes on a 1976 income of $60,300. But he still refused to make public his tax returns, as his opponent Ernest C. Browne Jr. had requested. Mr. Young's statement about his income and taxes came after Mr. Browne began the final two weeks of the November 8 mayoral campaign by implying that Mr. Young's income tax records may not stand public inspection. Mr. Browne has made his income tax returns public.

ANOTHER terrorist-related kidnapping has occurred in Europe. One of Holland's wealthiest men, Maurits Caransa, 61, was abducted yesterday from a club where he had been playing bridge. Terrorists from the Baader-Meinhof gang which also uses the name, Red Army Faction, is claiming responsibility for the kidnapping. The Red Army Faction is the same terrorist gang that kidnapped and killed West German industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer last week. The abductors are demanding the release of fellow terrorists who are now in prison.

Sunday, October 30

THE SENATE, in a rare Saturday session, rejected a move to end federal income tax deductions for state and local gasoline taxes, but voted to provide a tax credit of up to $150 to middle and low income users of home heating oil. The vote came during the fifth day of Senate debate on energy tax legislation, the last of the five parts of President Carter's energy legislation. The 47-30 vote rejected the Republican effort aimed at denying a conference committee the authority to negotiate an energy bill.

Monday, October 31

BLACK GUERRILLAS fought a 36-hour battle with South African border troops on both sides of the South-West Africa border with Angola last week in the heaviest fighting in the 10 years of violence over the disputed territory. Sixty-one guerrillas and five government troops were killed in the battle, military officials reported yesterday. The officials said that the battle erupted Thursday afternoon, just south of the 800-mile Angolan border. The report gave no other details about the location of the fighting.

Tuesday, November 1

CHRYSLER CORP. is recalling about 1,225,000 cars in the company's biggest safety recall ever. The cars will be called back to correct problems that could cause the loss of front wheel braking power. The recall covers virtually all Plymouth Volare and Dodge Aspen, which were introduced in late 1975, and Chrysler LeBarons and Dodge Diplomats, which were brought out last spring. The problems involve brake tubes and hoses for the front wheels.

Ready for Opening Concert Sunday Afternoon

guest artist will be well-known pianist Mischa Kottler, who will perform Beethoven's Concerto No. 5, "The Emperor." Bernhard Whitley, (not pictured), is another charter member of the orchestra who is still playing with it on a regular basis. Tickets, $1.50 student, $4 regular, are available by calling 331-0951 in advance or they may be obtained at the box office prior to the concert.

Austin Prep To Cease Operation

School to Close Doors Next September with Declining Enrollment Playing Role

Declining enrollment and the large number of Catholic schools in the area will force Austin Catholic Preparatory to close its doors in September 1978, the school announced last week. The all-male school, 18210 East Warren avenue, operated by the Augustinian Order, has served the east side of Detroit and many Pointers for 25 years. Austin officials cited lack of available Augustinian personnel to man the school, a drop in enrollment of about 30 students per year and the many other Catholic schools in the area as reasons for the closing.

To Host Reps

"Stated simply, there are too many Catholic secondary schools for the students available," said an Austin official. "The viewpoint of the decision makers was that a need has been met at Austin—the task of the Augustinians there is finished."

This year about 430 students enrolled at the school, and almost 60 percent of them were Pointers, according to acting principal Thomas Bailey.

Austin will make every effort to find a new home for the school.

Senators Co-Sponsor Bills To Aid Retarded Children

By Susan McDonald

The Grosse Pointe Ass'n. for Retarded Citizens, (GPARC), heard some good news from a duo of state legislators last week when Sen. Joseph Snyder and Sen. John Hertel announced their co-sponsorship of school aid bills to assist mentally impaired children. The proposed legislation calls for state funding of 12-month education programs for the mentally handicapped 25 years and younger.

GPARC was one of several organizations lobbying for such a law last spring after Wayne County announced it would no longer reimburse local school districts for summer programs for retarded children. At GPARC's request, the

Woods Commissioners Receive Report from Planner on Land Use

Brandon M. Rogers explores initial document in first step toward reaching final plan; Key points include City is Over 99 Percent Developed, Has Aging Population

By Roger A. Waha

The first of a series of progress reports was given by planning consultant Brandon M. Rogers before the Woods Planning Commission at its regular meeting Tuesday, October 25, toward the final formulation of a land use plan for the city.

His preliminary report, which viewed existing land uses and a socioeconomic profile, contained several key points including the fact that the city is over 99 percent developed, the principal land use is single-family detached homes and the population is an aging one.

While this document laid the foundation toward the development of a final land use plan, a planning goals and objectives report was given to the commissioners for their study and discussion at their Tuesday, November 22, session.

Has Long Future

In both reports, Mr. Rogers stressed that the material was approached objectively via a personal examination of the community, with the city's assets far outweighing its deficiencies.

In noting the municipality has a long future ahead of it, he said the proper enforcement of all regulations will continue to make it an attractive community in which to live.

"Professional people are attracted to the city mainly because of the trade area around it. The types of businesses and offices on its major street reflects the purchasing power of abutting housing. The Mack avenue business strip serves many people in Harper Woods, St. Clair Shores, Grosse Pointe Shores and many others in Grosse Pointe Farms," he stated.

While his initial report was decidedly on the plus side, (including a very low percentage, 2.83 percent, of homes found to be deficient in such areas as painting, gutter and siding work), Mr. Rogers cautioned that because the community was so built up that constant attention was needed to maintain it via the strong enforcement of codes.

In short, unless a constant vigilance was maintained by the city and its citizens, there

Park Officials Receive Honors

Two Park city officials—Councilwoman Camille S. Peterson and retiring City Manager Robert A. Slone—were honored with plaques and certificates at the council's Monday, October 24, meeting.

The entire council presented Mrs. Peterson with a signed certificate of appreciation for her four years of service to the city, which included acting as delegate to the Michigan Municipal League.

Mrs. Peterson chose not to run for re-election, but promised officials, "I'll be back before long."

Mr. Slone was honored by Wayne County Commissioner Erv Steiner with a framed resolution commending his 20 years of work as city manager in The Park.

Mr. Slone plans to retire in March.

But Park, Farms Fire-fighters Kept Busy with Leaf Blazes, Open Hydrants, Respectively

The Park and Farms Fire Departments appeared to have the most problems over the Halloween weekend, Friday through Monday, October 28 to 31, although all communities suffered some degree of vandalism, according to reports from local officials.

Overall, though, problems were kept to a minimum because of the work of all police and fire departments, the Youth Service Division, (YSD), which made its presence felt Friday, Saturday and Sunday, school officials and parents.

In The Park, a total of 45 leaf fire runs were made by the department between Thursday, October 27, and the 31st, with 24 of the runs occurring on Sunday. Leaf fires were started, not only in the street, but under the wooden steps of Saint Ambrose Hall near department headquarters and in a dumpster behind the Steak and Eggs, in East Jefferson avenue.

Waste of Water

Youngsters also reportedly piled up leaves next to a garage in Lakepointe road, set the leaves ablaze and caused some damage to the structure.

Fire Chief Phillip Costa, obviously concerned over the potential hazards involved, urged citizens, if they see anyone starting leaf fires, to call the police department immediately. Concern also was expressed over the possibility a youth might end up setting himself alight.

In The Farms, Fire Chief Warren Schultz said, "During the three nights, (Saturday, Sunday and Monday), over 50 fire hydrants were opened. I figure it will take us about two weeks to repair the damage done and to get things back to normal."

Fire Lt. Sam Candela noted that 15 gallons of water poured out of an open hydrant per minute. "Can you imagine the waste of water? And the caps, which the kids keep after they open the hydrants, cost about $22.50 to replace."

Park Office Seekers View Many Subjects

Main Issues Cited by Candidates Include Police Protection, Improved Housing, Business District Renovation; Voters Also to Select New Municipal Judge

By Susan McDonald and Roger A. Waha
Police protection, improved housing and renovation of business districts are among the biggest concerns of the six candidates competing for three seats on the Park Council in the Tuesday, November 8, election.

Council candidates include incumbents George J. Verdoneck, 56, of Harcourt road, and Douglas G. Graham, 53, of Bishop road, and newcomers James Ferriole Jr., 37, of Nottingham road, Mado O. Lie, of Bedford road, Ann MacDonald, 34, of Balfour road, and Charles T. Slusser, 59, of Maryland road.

Park voters also will choose between two candidates for municipal judge, Alan Devine, 48, of Bedford road, and Beverly Grobbel, 49, of Three Mile drive. Mayor Matthew C. Patterson, of Devonshire road, will run unopposed for re-election to his post.

Only Solution

Mr. Verdoneck, a semi-retired businessman who has served for 12 years on the Park Council, said he thinks the greatest need in The Park is financial, and he sees a very simple answer to balancing the books and keeping service levels high. "Consolidation of all the Grosse Pointes into one city is the only solution that we have," Mr. Verdoneck said.

"Right now we pay for five police chiefs, five fire chiefs, five city managers and it's just not economical." He'd also like to see the city come up with a 10- to 20-year plan to improve older homes and commercial districts. "We must do something to revitalize these areas," he said, and "we can work with the businesses on this."

Mr. Graham, an attorney and 10-year veteran of the Park Council, sees the government's biggest challenge as "maintaining a mature community with limited tax dollars."

"We should do all we can to keep our neighborhoods and housing in good condition, and to keep up our tree programs to replace those lost Dutch Elms," he said. (Continued on Page 8)

Special Night Set for Teens

The Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo avenue, will sponsor another Friday Night Special for seventh and eighth graders only Friday, November 4, from 6 to 9 p.m.

The program will feature movies, pool, table tennis, air hockey and tournaments with prizes.

Admission is $1. Pizza and pop also will be available for a small additional price. For further information, call 885-4600.

Girl Scout Project Leads To Park Site Dedication

By Susan McDonald

On the shores of Lake St. Clair, where Lakepointe and Windmill Lake drive now meet, 1,000 Indians were slaughtered by French soldiers in 1712 in a battle that was later known as the Fox Indian Massacre.

The battle was the only major contest ever held in The Pointe and was a turning point for the area. Shortly after the massacre, French settlers began to farm the land and a community began to grow.

Thanks to the work of 13 young girl scouts, members of Mason School's Troop 887, the battle scene will become The Pointe's second historical site in a park which is formally dedicated on Saturday, November 5, at 10:30 a.m.

Hill Plan's Status Eyed At Meeting

Merchant Association Reps, City Manager Meet to Review Big Proposal

By Wendy K. Settle

An informal, "off the cuff" meeting was recently held between two representatives of the Hill Merchants Ass'n. and The Farms city manager to discuss possible ways of financing the on the Hill expansion plan.

Shep Norton and Frank Sladen, members of the Hill Merchants Ass'n., met with Farms City Manager Andrew Bremer to discuss not only financing, but also the present status of the plan and where it is going.

"We figured that the plan would cost around one million dollars," Mr. Norton said. "We talked about four possible ways of financing it, if, in fact, the plan is to become a reality."

Await Traffic Study
Those four possibilities were establishing a Downtown Development authority, tax or revenue bonds, obtaining block grant monies from the federal government and general obligation bonds.

"We haven't done much because we've been busy operating our own businesses," continued Mr. Norton. "We also are going to wait until the city's traffic study comes in, to see if the study warrants the plan as it is now."

The traffic study is being done, at the city's expense, by Goodell-Grivas, Inc., who will view problems in traffic flow and parking in The Farms. Goodell-Grivas, Inc., will present the study results to the council in early spring.

"Between now and this spring Mr. Norton and I will be talking with the merchants on the Hill to get their opinions on how they would like to finance the plan, or if they even want the plan," noted Mr. Sladen.

Need Opinions
Mr. Bremer called the meeting "informal and off the cuff." Regarding the financing of the plan, he commented, "A substantial amount of the money needed, whatever that amount may be, would have to come from the merchants." (Continued on Page 2)

Candidates Get Ready For Election

Voters to Elect Mayor, Four Councilmen and Consider Liquor License Ballot Proposition

By Roger A. Waha

The need for a home maintenance ordinance, to maintain the quality of life in the community, to keep costs down and to improve communications between all levels of government and citizens were several issues cited by Woods candidates competing in the Tuesday, November 8, election.

They also viewed the greatest need in the community at this time, senior citizens housing and the advisory ballot proposition regarding the issuance of one additional Class C liquor license in the city.

Running for the two-year mayoral term are incumbent Benjamin W. Pinkos, 60, of Broadstone road, and challenger William Wilson, 43, of Wedgewood road.

Need Enforceable Law
Four candidates are vying for three four-year seats on the council. They include incumbent E. D. Grady, 46, of Sunningdale drive, who was appointed to the post when Conrad A. Naegel resigned in February, incumbent John Sabol, 50, of Moorland drive; Thomas Commissioner Thomas F. Farnner, 47, of Woods lane; and former dog warden David McQueen, 66, of East Eight Mile road.

Meanwhile, two candidates are competing for an unexpired two-year term on the council due to the resignation of Joan M. Mullan. They are Robert E. Novitke, 31, of Hollywood avenue, and Arthur J. Kuehnel, 28, of Linville road.

Mr. Pinkos, who has been involved in city government for over 20 years as mayor, (two terms), councilman and planning commissioner, felt some type of home maintenance ordinance was a definite need in the community.

"We need a basic, simple ordinance which is equitable, reasonable and enforceable," he said, toward making all homes aesthetically pleasing and safe.

Noting the city has been working on commercial and public properties in this respect, the mayor felt the

Optimism Key As P&J Reopens

By Wendy K. Settle
When Lou Bitonti leased the Punch and Judy Theater, he had no doubts that he could make a go of it. The one factor he was depending on was support from the community.

The community got its chance to show that support on Thursday, October 27, the theater's reopening night. That evening, approximately 300 seats were occupied in the 600-seat theater.

"Friday and Saturday nights were better," Mr. Bitonti said. "Those nights are movie nights. We had about 200 people for both shows." For the "kiddie shows" on Saturday and Sunday, the Punch was half filled with about 300 children.

Monday was Halloween night and the Punch had a party with costumes and prizes and a Vincent Price movie. Approximately 200 seats were filled.

"It was a little slow," Mr. Bitonti lamented, "but we expected that at the beginning. We're just going to take our time and get everyone broken in. By Thanksgiving, we're going to be packing them in."

The first concert, at the theater will be Friday, November 25. Mr. Bitonti is negotiating at this time to have The Brookside Jazz Ensemble.

Next week the Punch will be showing a Woody Allen-Diane Keaton Festival, including "Annie Hall."

Farce Opens UL Players' Year

The University Liggett (UL) Players, a theater group comprised of students, announced its 1977-78 production schedule with Friday and Saturday performances beginning at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday matinees at 2 p.m.

The season opens with "Black Comedy" by Peter Shaffer on Friday, November 11. This ingenious farce opens on a dark stage, (which is light to the characters), then a fuse blowing throwing the actors into the dark, (which is light to the audience), and ends with the lights reconnected, (i.e., with a dark stage).

What the audience sees in "the dark" is a delightful English comedy of mistakes and near misses. "Black Comedy" also will run on Saturday and Sunday, November 12 and 13.

"Godspell," the musical based on the Gospel according to Saint Matthew, will be performed on January 27, 28 and 29 and February 3 and 4. Shakespeare's romantic comedy "Twelfth Night" will be the highlight of the spring season on April 28, 29 and 30.

Chuck Gifford is the director of the University Liggett Players. He is a graduate of Westminster School and Lake Forest College, and he has worked as both actor and director for the Theater Workshop of Nantucket. While in Nantucket, he founded and directed The Children's Theater Workshop.

Tickets are available on an individual or subscription basis. For more information, call ULS at 884-4444.

STUDENTS CITED

Three South High School students, Lisa Colletti, Erich Hintzen and Cecilia Proffit, have been honored by the National Council of Teachers of English with 1977 Achievement Awards in Writing. More than 7,000 students were nominated for awards last February and the South students are among only 850 finalists, selected on the basis of writing samples and an impromptu essay. The finalists will be recommended by the council for scholarships.

Park Firefighters, City Reach Accord on New Pact

By Susan McDonald

Park firefighters and their city have reached agreement on a new two-year contract, retroactive to this July 1, that will boost pay and fringe benefits about 7.5 percent and add $31,000 a year to the fire department budget, according to city officials.

The accord, approved by the Park Council in executive session Tuesday, October 25, was the product of almost six months of bargaining between the city and the 20-man force.

Firefighters of all ranks will get a $1,000 raise this year and $1,100 extra next year. Longevity will be increased by $25 a year under the agreement, with a new maximum of $800 per man.

The new pay scales will put the maximum salary for a Park firefighter at $19,500 in the contract's second year. Base salary for a starting firefighter will be $10,700.

In addition, the men won a cost of living allowance beginning the second year of the contract. Payment will be based on change in the index, (based on Detroit's 1967 index); from June to December 1978.

Other fringe benefit additions to the agreement include a food allowance of $200 per man, a $13,000 group life insurance policy during the first year that increases to $15,000 in year two, and dental insurance for firefighters and their families with a $1,000 yearly lid.

Park union local president Edward Koerber and City Manager Robert A. Slone both expressed satisfaction with the package. The firefighters approved the agreement unanimously two weeks ago.

The city agreed to provide a special incentive to employees taking Emergency Medical Technician, (EMT), training. In line with new State requirements, and will pay an additional $75 a year to employees who enroll in the course. In the contract's second year, the city will pay $125 to men who agree to perform as EMTs.

The firefighters also won $200 in holiday pay and four extra duty days off each year to compensate for holidays normally granted to all 40-hour employees.

Leaf Pickups Begin in City

The City's fall leaf pickup program began last week. Residents may rake their leaves into piles between the curb and sidewalk where they will be picked up by a vacuum truck.

Burning of leaves is not permitted. Residents also are asked to not rake leaves into the street where they cause traffic hazards and clog catch basins. Brush and other debris should not be mixed with the leaves as it clogs the vacuum collection equipment.

City Public Works Superintendent Douglas Collinson reports the leaf collection program is operated on a continuous cycle throughout The City with about two pickups per week during the beginning and end of the fall leaf season.

The City operates its equipment on an overtime basis during the period of heavy leaf fall to keep the collection cycle as short as possible. The collected leaves are temporarily held at the City Park.

Mr. Collinson said the leaves have remained on the trees later than usual this fall, but started to drop fairly steady at mid-week. Overtime operations began Wednesday, October 26.

FINISH GOLF SEASON
Norm and Bob Thomson, of The Farms, finished their season of golf at Valparaiso University this year. The twins' season averages were 82.7 for Bob and 84.7 for Norm in nine rounds of golf.

tarded and lobby for laws." GPARC President Hal Cornelius responded enthusiastically to the proposals.
"We're 100 percent behind the intent of this legislation and I'm sure the members will want to do all they can to see that they're approved," he said.
GPARC became involved in the drive for 12-month education last spring, when The Pointe's own summer program for mentally impaired children was suddenly threatened by Wayne County Intermediate School District cutbacks.
In making the cuts, the county noted that state law requires only eight months of education for such children.

But parents and experts agree that a complete break in training programs for impaired children during the summer months can cause severe regressions in development. Experts continually stress the need for constant training, which the Snyder-Hertel bills would provide for.
When the public schools could no longer fund the summer program last year, several community groups, including the Neighborhood Club and Jaycees, came to its rescue with donations.
Sen. Hertel estimated the proposed bills would cost nine to 10 million dollars a year to fund.
Reginald Sienkiewicz, Pointe public school director of pupil personnel, said the proposed summer education bills could serve as many as 100 children in The Pointe and provide about $4,000 in additional state revenue to the district.

Grant Received By Saint John

Saint John Hospital, 22101 Moross road, Detroit, has received a three-year continuation grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for training in family medicine.
The hospital was one of the first area hospitals to establish a Family Practice Medical Center. At that time, July 1974, the model office was housed in the hospital. As the number of patients increased, the need for a larger facility became apparent.
An office building was leased at 17700 Mack avenue in the City of Grosse Pointe, approximately one mile from the hospital. The building was renovated and furnished to provide a clean, modern and pleasant office facility for the patients.
The Family Practice Medical Center was established to fulfill the community's need for more family physicians. The philosophy of the Family Practice Medical Center is that of caring for the total patient, in terms of his environment, the family setting and the community.
Since the center's inception in July 1974, the number of patients has more than quadrupled.
The continuation of this grant will assist Saint John Hospital in extending its graduate education program for the medical specialty of family practice. This residency program is of three-year duration.
Due to its success, the grant has been renewed regularly since its inception.

MERVAK CITED

North High School senior, Marcy Mervak, has been honored by the National Council of Teachers of English for outstanding performance in writing. The council will now recommend Marcy for various college scholarships. She was one of more than 7,000 students nominated nationally for the honor, and only 850 finalists were selected.

Shores Chief Likes Workshop

Shores Public Safety Director Joseph Vitale was the only Pointe police officer to participate in a Michigan Disciplinary Workshop Monday through Thursday, October 24 to 27, at the Michigan State Police Academy in Lansing.

Sponsored by the International Ass'n. of Chiefs of Police, the federally-funded program, which Director Vitale said was "one of the best management schools I've ever gone to," covered a variety of subjects including police stress, discovery of police records, citizen complaints, internal affairs unit, police discipline cases and discipline due process.

Viewing the subjects presented, Director Vitale noted, "A basic objective was to teach the police administrator to handle citizen complaints properly and to protect departments from civil liabilities which have increased and have resulted in higher premiums in insurance for police departments."

In taking an overview of the workshop for all participants, he noted, "I hope the end result will be less lawsuits against cities and individual members of police departments if cases are handled properly."

With an increase in such suits and the rate of collections, the director expressed his hope "to reverse this trend by proper administration, proper training and the proper handling of cases."

In viewing some of the subjects, Director Vitale said police stress concentrated on the stress factor involved at all levels and ways to alleviate such a condition.

As for the discovery of police records, some attorneys will attempt to subpoena an officer's personnel file, and the course viewed ways of protecting such files.

The proper method of handling citizen complaints focused upon the correct procedures from the time a complaint is received to its final conclusion.

At the same time, the workshop covered other areas as police strikes and ensuing adverse results, problems in relation to discipline and civil service appeals in relation to the law.

Pointer Named To County Post

Joseph D. Crea, of Mount Vernon avenue, chief system supervisor for Detroit Edison, has been elected chairman of the Wayne County Planning Commission by his fellow members, according to a county board of commissioners news release.

The announcement was made by John Barr, chairman of the county board of commissioners, which appoints citizens to serve on the 11-member governing body.

"Mr. Crea has a distinguished five-year record of service on the planning commission and brings a basic knowledge of the physical structure of Wayne County to the commission because of his long involvement as a Detroit Edison system supervisor," Mr. Barr stated.

The planning commission is responsible for all township zoning reviews, conducts analysis and programs for industrial, commercial, recreational and other land utilization, and continues, Mr. Barr while reviewing all city and township applications for federal grants initiated in the county.

Mr. Crea has 32 years of employment with Detroit Edison and is presently the supervisor of its entire electrical system, including power houses and stations.

His term as chairman expires September 30, 1978. He succeeded Donald Juchatz, director of the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service.

Mr. Crea said he was delighted with the challenge and opportunity of the chairmanship.

"The commission will be developing an overall Economic Development Plan for 1978," he stated. "This update on county development will make it easier for county agencies and municipalities to obtain more federal funding."

Currently president of the Saint Paul Usher's Club, Mr.
Crea is a former member of the School Board at St. Paul School in Grosse Pointe, former board member of the Dad's Club at South High School, a past commodore of the Grosse Pointe Farms Boat Club, past president of the Saint Paul athletic board of directors and a past member of the board of directors of Little League baseball.

Sixth Graders Dig it at Liggett

It wasn't the Olduvai George and no one found any stone-age relics, but these junior archeologists from University Liggett School dug up enough Grosse Pointe history from underneath a school field to keep their minds racing for weeks. From 8:30 a.m. to almost 2 p.m. on a sunny Thursday, October 27, the sixth grade social studies class worked on hands and knees, platting out squares for their team digs and carefully sifting the dirt to a depth of one meter.

Offers Program On Psychiatry

Cottage Hospital will host a series of four programs in psychiatry sponsored by the Detroit-Macomb Hospitals Ass'n.

Each of the four programs carries two continued medical education category one credits.

Program topics and dates include the following:
Recent advances in medical diagnosis and therapy of special interest to psychiatrists, November 3, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Psychiatric manifestation of organic disease, Thursday, November 10, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Family structure and psychiatric illness, Thursday, November 17, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Liaison psychiatry, Thursday, December 1, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Each session will be held in the lower level board room at the hospital, 159 Kercheval avenue. Attendance fee is $20 for each session and $75 for the entire program. Further information may be obtained by calling Gregory Vasse at 884-8600, ext. 2600.

The kids took extraordinary delight in every discovery — hexagonal pharmaceutical bottles, animal bones, high-button shoes and a mysterious-looking medallion with Chinese lettering on the back.

Every bit and piece was carefully washed, labeled and a notation made of its exact location when discovered. Then the fun began, says teacher Carole Johnson, when the kids had to come up with an imaginative written explanation of just how the object came to the field.

Star of Sea Wins Net Title

Our Lady Star of the Sea High School's tennis team recently won the Detroit Catholic League Championship by defeating Livonia Ladywood in the last conference match.

The victory gave Star of the Sea an 8-0 record in the league.

MISS SALLY DUDLEY WORMER

Services for Miss Wormer, 25, of The Shores, were held Monday, October 31, at the Verheyden Funeral Home and the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

She died Saturday, October 29, in Louisville Ky. She was a horse trainer at Churchill Downs, and died after a fall off a horse she was training.

Miss Wormer was a graduate of University Liggett School and Ohio Wesleyan University.

She is survived by her father, David Wormer; her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Roy; one brother; one sister; two stepbrothers and her grandmother, Mrs. George Christensen.

Memorial tributes may be made to University Liggett Endowment Fund.

CHARLES M. MARZOFF

Services for Mr. Marzoff, 85, of The City, were held Friday, October 28, at Verheyden Funeral Home.

He died Tuesday, October 25, at the Belmont Nursing Home.

Mr. Marzoff is survived by his son, Burnell, six grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

Interment was in Reed City.

MRS. ETHEL M. STOCK

Services for Mrs. Stock, 90, of The Shores, were held Saturday, October 29, at the Verheyden Funeral Home and Our Lady Star of the Sea Church.

She died Thursday, October 27, at Martha T. Berry Hospital.

Mrs. Stock is survived by three sons, Albert, Harold and Hugh; two daughters, Mrs. Mae Parker and Mrs. Dorothy Kamischke; 16 grandchildren; and 14 great-grandchildren.

Interment was at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

MRS. EMILIE R. DOWELL

Services for Mrs. Dowell, 84, of The Farms, were held Monday, October 31, at Christ Episcopal Church. Arrangements were handled by the William R. Hamilton Funeral Home.

She died Saturday, October 29, at the Moroun Nursing Home.

Mrs. Dowell was a Delta Delta sorority patroness and a charter member of the Deland Junior League in Deland, Fla. During the war years she served with the Protocol Division of the United States State Department in Washington.

League to See Film on India

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will present "Adventure in India," a 16mm motion picture by Zigmund J. Niparko on Monday, November 14, in the War Memorial's Fries Auditorium, 32 Lakeshore road, at 8 p.m.

Mr. Niparko's presentation covers the colorful scenes and interesting people he found traveling through India in 1973 and 1974.

Mr. Niparko's experiences in India came as a result of projects developed by Eastern Michigan University in conjunction with Punjab University and the support of the United States Office of Education.

The public is invited to attend the film presentation without charge. A reception for Cinema League members and invited guests follows the performance.

Mrs. Dowell is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John VanZile and Mrs. T. J. Bilderback, five grandchildren, two great-grandchildren and one sister.

Interment was at Oakview Cemetery.

WADIE TOWNSEND

Services for Mr. Townsend, 70, of The Farms, were held Monday, October 31, at the Verheyden Funeral Home.

He died Wednesday, October 26, at his home.

Mr. Townsend was a resident of The Farms for 27 years, and was a supervisory employee of the Budd Co. for 44 years. He was active in the Retired Senior Volunteer program at the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church and also was a member of the Red Cross.

He is survived by his wife, Alma C., one daughter, Mrs. Barbara T. Silvers, and two grandchildren.

ANTHONY C.
PENTA, Jr.
Municipal Judge

Grosse Pointe Farms

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1977

What's in a Name?

Listing names of a handful of neighbors, friends and fellow attorneys should not be a major factor in convincing you to elect me Municipal Judge of Grosse Pointe Farms on November 8, 1977.

Neither I nor the committee, have sought public endorsement from individuals or special interest groups.

I know that you are more interested in making a knowledgeable decision rather than blindly following others who may know me well but have not, and perhaps never will, come into contact with me in court.

My years of concentrated court experience, including civil, criminal, trial and appellate practice — both state and federal — have been preceded by over a decade of law enforcement duties: (1) Investigative Aide for the state police department, (2) as a Special Agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation and, (3) as Assistant Prosecuting Attorney.

In addition, my private law practice has been supplemented by active and meaningful participation in various Bar Association functions and seminars.

This year, the voters of Grosse Pointe Farms will be asked to decide three issues which will have a substantial effect upon the administration of the Municipal Court. We feel that the most important issue is which of the two candidates should hold the office of Municipal Judge.

I pledge to use my experience and all my efforts to bring to Grosse Pointe Farms a more knowledgeable, efficient, yet thorough administration of the Municipal Court, and an increase in the morale of the Grosse Pointe Farms police officers.

I pledge to be sensitive to the rights of all and to execute my duties as Municipal Judge fairly, impartially, yet firmly. And one more thing . . . I'll sign my name to that.

Park Candidates View Several Issues

Mr. Graham indicated that enforcement of zoning laws and inspections will be important tools in encouraging renovation of Park neighborhoods and businesses.

Mr. Slusser, a retired Park police officer with seven departmental citations, sees crime as the community's biggest problem.

"We must have more men crusing the streets," he said. "There are days when there are only two or three men working in the neighborhoods, and if we want sufficient protection we should have more patrols."

"The Park's share of major crimes is about equivalent to the number of crimes in all the other Pointes and Harper Woods put together," Mr. Slusser said. "It's a major problem we must address ourselves to."

Number two on his list of priorities is improvement of The Park's business district. "We should tear down some of the vacant, run-down buildings we have and build parking lots for the businesses need them badly."

Mr. Ferriole, a real estate broker who's worked with a number of civic associations, agrees with Mr. Slusser that police forces should be increased in The Park.

Eyes Service

"Crime in The Park increases as Detroit's does," he noted, "and our best protection is a good police department."

"My main objective is to get the most service to the people without increasing taxes," he concluded.

Mrs. Lie, the mother of eight children and an active volunteer in a variety of organizations, would like to see Park residents take more pride in their community, and that involves keeping their property in good shape, especially in the older neighborhoods and business districts.

"I'd basically like to see The Park stay the way it is but I think we should pay more attention to the commercial districts on Kercheval, Mack and Charlevoix."

"These are valuable parts of our community. Parking is a big problem for them, one that the city should help them to solve," she stated.

Indications of apartment buildings in the area and other zoning ordinances also would do a great deal to improve the image of the community, Mrs. Lie said.

She also would like to see more services offered to senior citizens and a more "scientific approach" toward preserving trees in the community.

Mrs. MacDonald is a former teacher with two children. Her message to voters also has a lot to do with pride in the community and with developing a working dialogue with The Park's neighbors across the Alter road border in Detroit.

"Family" Law

"I'd like to put together a beautification package for the older residential and business areas — a cooperative plan to clean them up and provide off-street parking."

One of the most contested issues in The Park during the past year was the "Family" Ordinance, (No. 5322), that requires unrelated persons who wish to live together in the community to go before the council, sitting as a Board of Appeals, for approval.

The candidates were split down the middle on this issue, with three saying they'd like to see the ordinance remain as it is on the books and three saying it should be amended in some form or another.

Mr. Graham, Mr. Ferriole and Mr. Verdonck all felt the ordinance should be amended, as it's time consuming and somewhat of an invasion of privacy.

Candidates Lie, MacDonald and Slusser, however, expressed the opinion that the "family" law is a good one and helps maintain the family orientation of the community.

Economic Issue

After the election, all candidates will have to file complete financial records of their spendings. The six council candidates gave these estimates of what their races will cost them: Mr. Slusser, about $250; Mr. Ferriole, $1,200; Mrs. Lie, under $500; Mrs. MacDonald, $1,000; Mr. Graham, $250; and Mr. Verdonck, $250.

While being unopposed in the mayoral race, Mr. Patterson sees no effect on his performance because of the lack of competition.

"I've been unopposed several times before," he said. "I spend a lot of time and will continue to spend a lot of time performing my duties."

Economics is a major issue facing The Park at this time, said Mr. Patterson. "We've got to keep up the community as we have always done. But it's becoming harder and harder to do so. Taxes keep going up and we're near our 20-mill, (maximum), limit."

We still have demands from our employees regarding increases in salary and if agreements aren't reached, we have to go to arbitration and "we have nothing to say about it," (regarding awards), he stated.

The big problem in the future isn't crime, it's a matter of economy and what can be done in this respect," continued Mr. Patterson.

Views Park Problems

"We may be forced to, in a matter of time, combine our fire and police departments," he stated, in relation to a combination affecting two or even three cities toward saving money. He felt circumstances, which must be faced, might dictate such a move in the future.

Mr. Patterson, who is chairman of the board at Detroit Bible College, is married and has two children.

In the race for municipal judge, Mr. Devine and Mrs. Grobbel, are both attorneys. The former is a partner in the firm of Devine, Kent and Devine, founded by his grandfather, while the latter is in private practice.

Mr. Devine said he sees no problems facing the local court at this time but Mrs. Grobbel does. In this respect, she cited the question of time to give to the court. "It's a one day a week court, (according to the city charter), but like everything else, it has grown," she noted.

Since she doesn't practice law full-time, Mrs. Grobbel felt she has more time to give to the court, time which "I believe it needs."

In the same vein, she also felt the court, in what it does, should be more visible in the community, e.g., the local judge addressing various groups, including the high schools.

Cites Issues

Mr. Devine, meanwhile, addressed himself to three issues he said have been raised by Mrs. Grobbel.

First, he said she has been endorsed by the Grosse Pointe Park Police Officers Ass'n. which he termed a "mutual benefit society," "It's addressing the concerns of the officers, rather than for the city's benefit in total."

Mr. Devine also said many members of the association aren't even Park residents.

In response, Mrs. Grobbel stated, "They are employed by the city. Their whole working day and feelings about their job has to be directed to the city and how well enforcement is maintained in the city."

Second, Mr. Devine cited Mrs. Grobbel's indications toward making the post a full-time one. "If so, the judge ought to receive full-time pay. I doubt the voters would increase the pay from its present low salary, ($6,000 annually), to between $35,000-$40,000," he stated.

Saying the one day a week provision in the charter is sufficient, Mr. Devine stressed he would be willing to give the position the time it requires "one day or five days a week."

He added he would make any necessary adjustments with his practice to give the post the time it deserves.

On Endorsements

"I have no intention to request any more pay," said Mrs. Grobbel. "My concern is for my community. I'm trained to do this work and I want to do it without any raise in pay."

Third, Mr. Devine said Mrs. Grobbel has been endorsed by three or four judges, "none of whom are from Wayne County. Grosse Pointe Park is in Wayne County, and I know most of the judges in Wayne County."

Mrs. Grobbel countered by saying the judges have seen her in operation and watched her work toward earning a good reputation. She felt it didn't matter where the judges preside, rather that they observed her work and were willing to give their opinions.

Both candidates also viewed the necessary qualities, regarding the overall area of approach to the office, which a judge must have.

"A lawyer is trained to analyze a fact situation rapidly, and a judge must have that quality," said Mr. Devine. "A judge has to make up his mind and render a decision quickly and efficiently."

He felt some judges have difficulty in grasping the facts of a situation and further difficulty in deciding a particular case. "This is one of the big handicaps the whole court system faces. A judge must make a fair and just decision quickly and efficiently," he emphasized.

Position of Service

Mr. Devine also cautioned that a judge can sometimes go too far in rendering a decision. "Everyone is entitled to his day in court to give his side of the story. You can't rush them but must keep them on the subject."

For her part, Mrs. Grobbel stated, "Knowing the community and being fair-minded toward understanding and reflecting what the community wants - its court and its judge to be a part of it."

"It's a position of service and a judge should know the community and its problems, and know and understand young people as well as adults."

"Firmness and fairness are important, too."

Mr. Devine is married and has five children, while Mrs. Grobbel is married and has eight children.

Library Offers Family Films

A Family Film Night with the theme "Where Art Is" will be held on Thursday, November 10, in the Exhibition Room of the Central Library, 10 Kercheval avenue, at 7:30 p.m.

Four color films will be shown for this, the second in a series sponsored by the Public Library.

"Why Man Creates," a 27-minute animated feature, traces man's creativity throughout history, from wheel to space craft. It demonstrates the variety, richness and importance of creative vision.

A two-year period in the life of Canadian nature artist, Martin Glen Loates, is shown in "Color It Living." This 30-minute film follows him through research and pencil sketches to finished paintings on several of his most noteworthy pieces.

In "An Old Box," nine-minutes long, a down-and-out old timer discovers an empty beat-up old box in the trash during the Christmas season. Taking it home and painting it, he drops in a coin and it comes alive.

A 20-minute Walt Disney piece, "World Is Born," deals with the first two billion years of the planet Earth. The first living creatures to inhabit it are shown to the sounds of the "Rites of Spring" by Stravinsky.

PWP to Hold Dance Nov. 11

The installation of the 1978 directors and officers of Parents Without Partners, (PWP), Grosse Pointe Chapter 192, will take place at a fund raising dance on Friday, November 11, at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club, 655 Cook road, at 8:30 p.m.

The dance is open to all single parents, prospective members of PWP, members and alumnae. Dress is semi-formal and tickets are $4 for members and $5 for guests.

Proceeds from this event will go toward the annual children's Christmas party and dinner. For further information, call Thelma Pollard at 885-2232 or Gail Rusche at 884-3863.

The next general meeting of PWP is scheduled for Friday, November 25, at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore road. Coffee and conversation begin at 7:30 and the program at 8:30 p.m.

Others elected were Jean Armstrong, Trudy Galozka, Bruce Curtis, Rita Stauffer, Mary Brush, Cynthia Wheeler, Lori Bernier, Gail Rusche, Midge Klein, Milly Pierce, Thelma Pollard, Jane Weeks and Julie Jacobs.

The youth was pursued by Woods and Shores police at high rates of speed, including speeds clocked around 80 mph.

Stand up and be counted — let everyone know where you stand.

Pleads Guilty To Bad Driving

A 17-year-old St. Clair Shores youth, who was charged with reckless driving stemming from an incident in August, pled guilty to the charge before Woods Municipal Judge J. Patrick Denis on Wednesday, October 26.

William George Giannetti was fined $100 and assessed $50 in court costs. He also was placed on probation for one year with no driving the first 90 days.

The youth was pursued by Woods and Shores police at high rates of speed, including speeds clocked around 80 mph.

Center to Host Ballet Troupe Thanksgiving Eve

Thanksgiving eve, Wednesday, November 23, will be a gala evening for patrons of the War Memorial, beginning with cocktails at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club, 655 Cook road, at 5:30 p.m.

The crowd will then move to the War Memorial's Crystal Ballroom for a candlelight dinner prior to the performance by the complete company of the internationally famous Ballet Folklorico.

The world-wide traveling company of 35 singers, dancers and musicians produced by Clyde Baldschun and Associates is directed by its founder, Graciela Tapis, and is authorized by the Mexican Government as an official program of cultural exchange.

The company has packed theaters, music halls and concert auditoriums all over the world. The company was founded in 1960 but did not receive great recognition until 1968 when they appeared at the HemisFair in San Antonio as well as the Mexican Olympic Games.

They toured to publicize Mexico's participation in both of these gigantic undertakings and have been greeted by standing ovations everywhere. The colorful, rhythmic, pulsating show is presented in a swirl of 250 costumes with mariachi, marimba and Jarcho bands providing exciting musical settings for the panorama of Mexican dance and song.

The 1977 edition of the "Fiesta Folklorico" opens with a mosaic of Mexican songs and dances from different states of the Republic in addition to prehispanic dances. Three classic folk dances from the tropical state of Oaxaca reflect a remarkable splendor.

The gowns, costumes, dances and songs have an extraordinary beauty all their own, and the Tehuana girl, one of the most beautiful in all of Mexico, walks softly, adorned in regal huipiles and head dresses, says the Center.

The gutsy, noisy and spirited "Fiesta in Vera Cruz" provides the finale for the spectacle to the music of the Jarcho band of Veracruz where the juapango provides some of the most complicated and exciting dance steps of the evening.

The rousing "La Bamba" creates the closer which regularly earns a standing ovation for the proud company as the curtain falls. One can still reserve tickets for the entire evening or the performance only. Allison, Jim, Carol, Lynn

The Ferrioles are a closely knit clan whose family activities include organized volleyball, skiing and sailing.

Candidate Jim, the household's only male is an avid sailor and amateur photographer. Captain Jim is most pleased with his all-female all-Ferriole crew and spends most summer weekends aboard the family's 27 ft. Ericson sail boat, the Phaendra moored at the Windmill Pt. Park Marina.

Carole Ferriole second in command, is a nurse who does private work in the Pointe. When not on duty, Carol serves as a volunteer probation officer. However, being a mother and wife are still number one in her days.

Lynn Ferriole super-girl, plays tennis, bicycles, jogs, swims, sails & pitches on her all-girl softball team, and having just entered South High was elected to the Home Coming Queen Court.

Allison Ferriole enjoys camping, sailing and visiting grandma and grandpa.

WILSON FOR MAYOR OF GROSSE POINTE WOODS

Time clocks slow emergency manpower.

TIME CLOCKS WILL SLOW EMERGENCY MANPOWER. In keeping with your present mayor's time clock plan (ref. Grosse Pointe News issue of September 8, 1977), additional manpower will be late. The public safety officer used to report directly to an emergency. Now he reports to the station to "punch in" first. The $2,000 cost for time clocks plus electricians fees and installation could have paid for a dial-a-ride pilot project for senior citizens for over a year.

There is also an UNDERSTRENGTH condition of manpower. We have one man less on the first and second shifts than reported in the Grosse Pointe Woods Update issue of July, 1977. This has a direct bearing on police patrolling of streets and quality of emergency service.

Park Firemen Inspect Homes

The Park Fire Department recently completed two weeks of home inspections as part of its program to inspect three different sections of the city over a three-year period and then repeat the cycle.

Fire Chief Phillip Costa said this year firefighters inspected residences from Audubon road to Grand Marais boulevard on the south side.

A total of 958 homes were contacted with personnel having success with 574, while 370 citizens weren't home when the firefighters called, (notices of the visit were left, however). In 14 cases, the men were refused entry.

By dividing the city into thirds, the chief felt firefighters had a better opportunity to better inspect the residences. Next year, the inspection area will be from Three Mile drive to Barrington, while the Wayburn-Three Mile area was viewed last year. Five men per day are involved in the process.

The major problems found this year are ones which often reoccur, said Chief Costa. These include the overfusing of a fuse box, combustibles too close to a stove or furnace and stove pipes not being properly installed.

Other areas considered in the inspection include rubbish not properly taken care of, oily rags or mops not in a metal container, the improper storage of flammable liquids, unsafe wiring and defective flues or flue stops.

The program, which began in 1953 on a voluntary basis, features the issuing of a notice if there is a hazard, a "good Samaritan" type of approach, noted Chief Costa.

"We point it out to the homeowners and ask them to correct it. No legal violation is issued but it would be good if the hazard was taken care of," he said.

While the inspections normally transpire during Fire Prevention Week, Chief Costa invited any citizen who wishes his, (or her), home inspected to call the department at 822-8400.

Firefighters will conduct an inspection at any time upon request.

Commissioners in Woods Receive Report from Planning Consultant

is only one way to go—down. Planning Commission Chairman Peter Gilezan said with this first report, the tempo will now begin to accelerate with the goals and objectives document being explored on the 22nd.

"That will really start the planning process in motion. Up to now, it has been fact-finding. But now we'll take his goals and objectives and get the process moving," he said.

What will ultimately happen toward reaching the final land use plan will be specific recommendations from the commission to the council for its consideration and action. Following this, the updating of the zoning ordinance, with which Mr. Rogers also has been charged, will take place.

Eying this painstaking process, Mr. Rogers said the land use plan will be developed through established planning techniques with determinations being made as to where residential, commercial and other areas will best fit in. Competing forces for development also will be eyed in this respect.

Next, work on the zoning ordinance will take place. "We'll pull it apart and put it back together," he said.

A variety of topics referred to Mr. Rogers by the council will be closely scrutinized along the way including problems of RV's, storage of vehicles on service station property, multiple dwelling standards, traffic control, (incorporating Brys drive problems), among other areas.

Raises Implications
Mr. Rogers said an intensive amount of data gathering, including field work, occurred in August and September in leading to the initial report.

In his introduction, he noted during the decade of 1950-1960, the city's population increased by 79 percent but the rate tapered off between 1960-70 to about 18 percent.

"However, during recent years the population has declined about six percent due to smaller average family size and to a lack of space for additional development. Such a lack of opportunity for further large-scale development means that the city must exert continuous planning and zoning efforts to maintain the quality of the living environment," he said.

Land used for single-family residential homes comprises 1,105 acres or 52.3 percent of the total city area.

(Two-family structures only comprise 0.4 percent and multiple-family structures, 1.6 percent.)

The second most prominent non-residential use is commercial office development along Mack.

"The substantial proportion of land to public, (e.g., parks, 8.6 percent), and semi-public, (e.g., Grosse Pointe Hunt Club and Lochmoor Club, 12.1 percent), land use, while providing fine services to city residents, raises implications on the city's tax base which is so heavily dependent on residential valuations," Mr. Rogers points out.

Views 1957 Study
In comparing existing commercial development to forecasted needs, Mr. Rogers cited a 1957 study of the future commercial space needs of the city. This he termed a "benchmark" for purposes of measurement via similar criteria — something which often doesn't occur.

Thirty-one out of the 50 block fronts, or 62 percent, did not develop as recommended in the 1957 study.

"The changes were almost dichotomous between the east and west sides of Mack avenue. On the east side the change was primarily from residential to commercial/office. On the west side the change was also to commercial/office, but the change there was from parking, not residential," he observed.

"In general, much more commercial development has taken place along Mack avenue than was forecasted in 1957. Complementing that increased development was a decrease in the amount of frontage parking and residential development," said Mr. Rogers.

As a result, he notes the combination of increased traffic generating commercial development and decreased available parking creates the potential for serious congestion and parking problems.

In relation to neighborhood environmental conditions, he said the number one revelation he had was that no section of the city is without some need of improvement.

Remain Aware
Three census tracts were viewed, one north of Vernier road which contained the most properties with some kind of observed defect, (81), another south of Vernier and east of Mack, (82 defective homes), and west of Mack and south of Vernier, (37 defective homes).

Saying the deficiencies were, for the most part, problems of general maintenance, their correction should be economically feasible for the vast majority of citizens.

The city's housing stock and non-residential buildings are in good condition, Rogers felt, while reiterating the need for everyone to be consistently aware of urban aging symptoms.

"As land may be reused for more intensive purposes, care must be taken to avoid adverse effects on adjacent property, undesirable traffic and parking conditions and other congestion aspects not conducive to a good living environment," he said.

As for socioeconomic problems, Broad-minded people are those we can convince that our way of thinking is right.

file, Mr. Rogers said, as a new census will not be taken until 1980, he was basically limited to 1970 "stats." However, he feels confident that the city's position with its sister cities will remain the same or even improve via higher value and newer homes.

Second in Growth
The Woods had the second highest growth rate of the Points, St. Clair Shores and Harper Woods between 1960-1970, (17.8 percent). Grosse Pointe Shores had the highest growth rate of all, (32.6 percent), while The Farms suffered a population decline, (minus 3.9 percent). All communities, however, between 1970-1975, lost population.

In viewing population age distribution in relation to the Detroit SMSA, (Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area), Mr. Rogers noted the Detroit SMSA in 1970 had 20.8 percent of its population between 45 and 64 years, and 8.1 percent 65 and above.

However, The Woods' percentages were higher — 28.4 percent between 45 and 64 and 8.7 percent 65 and above.

On income and employment analysis, 1970 U.S. census data noted The Woods had a median income of $18,981, higher than Harper Woods, St. Clair Shores and The Park but lower than The Farms, City and Shores, (the highest of all at $32,565).

As for the occupation of citizens, 30.5 percent of those living in The Woods were professional, technical and kindred workers as against 14.8 percent listed in the Detroit SMSA.

On the age of housing in the community, the majority of homes in The Woods are between 17- and 37-years-old, (89.5 percent), having been constructed between 1940 and 1959. Only 12.3 percent of the structures were constructed prior to 1939.

Mr. Rogers said housing values in the city are quite high with sixty percent of the units being valued at between $25,000 and $49,999. (This is based on 1970 census reports — the picture has obviously changed today when inflation and other factors are considered.)

Lower Enrollments
In viewing enrollment trends at Woods schools, Mr. Rogers pointed out all schools but Mason have experienced a decrease in enrollment, although that has been minimal, in comparing 1976 figures with those of 1977.

"General enrollment figures for the total Grosse Pointe School District are also down from the previous school year enrollments. The initial fall 1977 total enrollment was 10,188, a decrease of 4.2 percent from the June 1977 enrollment of 10,633.

"These enrollment trends further document the fact that Grosse Pointe Woods' population is an aging one, and that family sizes are decreasing," he said.

In relation to this, Mr. Rogers told the commissioners, "I hate to see a city get old and not have kids on the street." But at the same time, he stressed the necessity for a mixture, a balance, rather than having basically a "total retirement community" or all young families.

Regarding senior citizens housing, Audrey Dolgner of the Woods Senior Citizens Commission asked Mr. Rogers if the land use study will include a probable sight for such housing.

Open Up Homes
He said this item would be considered in the final plan. "I'm not able to say where it will be as yet. The opportunity exists to provide housing for a maturing population. It should be provided or seniors could leave the city."

Mrs. Dolgner responded that she likes the city and wants to stay, while feeling the construction of seniors' housing would open up homes to younger families.

As for the goals and objectives, Mr. Rogers said in his report, "From a time in 1876 when the only buildings were seven homes on Mack avenue and five homes on Vernier road in what is now the City of Grosse Pointe Woods' geographic area, the city today has over 6,500 dwelling units and many commercial establishments."

He said the city's land use plan is a 20 to 25 year long-range plan which is comprehensive, generalized, flexible and regional.

Mr. Rogers cited several basic policy recommendations in relation to residential, commercial and office, public and semi-public land uses and off-street parking areas, all of which will be discussed by the commissioners on the 22nd.

Some of these recommendations on the residential front include the following:

"The high quality, attractive residential neighborhoods of the city, both old and new, should be preserved and enhanced.

"Recognition of housing needs for senior citizens and other city residents on fixed income, social security and ADC must be made so as to provide areas in the city for modest size, efficient affordable living quarters.

"Neighborhoods having the old gridiron street system must be examined to minimize through, transient vehicular traffic through traffic control techniques, (e.g., speed control, one-way traffic, stop signs, diverters, street closures).

On commercial and office recommendations, one includes, "Further commercial and office growth in the city should be limited to the Mack avenue and Harper avenue districts areas. Concerted effort must be exerted to prevent strip commercial uses being established along Vernier road through possible conversion of existing residences."

Convert for Parking
In viewing public and semi-public land uses, one recommendation says, "Semi-public land uses... occupy over 12 percent of the city's area and together with public land uses results in nearly 21 percent of the city being tax exempt, a high proportion with tax return consequences for essentially a residential community."

Finally, off-street parking area recommendations include the following:

"Further consideration should be given to new forms of parking provision, (e.g., parking decks), to serve the Seven-Mack shopping area where adequate setbacks, access points and architectural control can be assured.

"Adequate off-street parking should be assured for residential uses, particularly for apartments and other higher density land uses. Indoor parking space should be provided on site for every dwelling unit.

"Parking regulations regarding outside parking of campers, recreational vehicles, mobile homes, travel trailers, boats and the like must be re-evaluated and enforced.

"Over time, land adjacent to the Mack avenue office-business areas should be converted for off-street parking as office and business establishments acquire land suitable for parking which can be screened from adjacent residential areas, vehicular traffic regulated and suitable improvements made for surfacing and drainage.

University Liggett School, (ULS), will hold its fifth annual Book Fair in the Lower School Library, 1045 Cook road, on Wednesday and Thursday, November 9 and 10.

Hours, both days, are from 8:15 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m.

Frank Sladen, of The Book Shelf, 112 Kercheval avenue, is providing a variety of hardcover and paperback books geared to the young reader.

Local children's author, Judi Zak, will visit the fair on Wednesday from 12 noon to 5:50 p.m., and on Thursday from 8:15 to 11:30 a.m. and again from 3:45 to 5 p.m.

The author of "A Most Crooked Christmas Tree" and "The Secret Gift of Not Ever A Mouse," Mrs. Zak will autograph her books, exhibit her original art work and read aloud to the children.

Co-chairmen of the Book Fair, which will benefit the lower and middle school libraries, are Mrs. Daniel Bowen and Mrs. John Mertz.

Woods to Sell Smoke Detectors to Citizens

By Roger A. Waha
The tragic fire which claimed the lives of a Woods mother and her two daughters on September 29 has left an impression on the minds of many citizens.

In relation to smoke detectors, (that residence didn't have one), a further awareness of the need for such items in the home has surfaced.

An outgrowth of this in The Woods has been an effort by the city to make smoke detectors available to its citizens, plus a discussion at the council level to make it mandatory that all homes contain such detectors, said City Administrator Chester E. Petersen last week.

We are in the process of stocking smoke detectors to offer for sale to all residents, he noted. A first shipment of 250 detectors has been ordered for expected delivery early this month, and already requests have been received from about 175 citizens.

The battery-operated detector will be sold for $22, (including battery), with the item having fire underwriter approval, said Mr. Petersen, who also noted a large number of fire marshals have approved the detector.

"The council also is studying the possibility of making smoke detectors mandatory throughout the city," he continued, in all homes, new and old.

We are giving serious consideration to perhaps having the city finance the original purchase and then bill the residents the cost via their water bills, (one potential alternative), he added.

JIM FERRIOLE
— the man endorsed by the Grosse Pointe Park Police Assoc. —

Elect Ferriole to the PARK COUNCIL on TUESDAY, NOV. 8/77

James Ferriole, candidate for the Park City Council, is president of Michele Building & Realty Corporation of Detroit. A real estate broker and licensed building contractor, he has resided in the Park for eleven years.

The eldest son of a tool & die maker of Italian extraction and Polish mother, Ferriole grew up in the Harper-Van Dyke area of Detroit's East Side, and together with his twin sister Jacqueline, attended St. Thomas High School where he majored in extra-curricular activities, doted on football where as the team's fullback, he earned All Conference, All Catholic, All City & All State Honors.

Ferriole's college years were spent at Boston University where tuition payments became the results of positions as hospital orderly and waiter.

Marriage followed to the former Carol Lambert, a nurse from Boston. The couple moved to Grosse Pointe Park eleven years ago, have been married sixteen years and have two daughters, Lynn 15 and Allison 12.

For his many civic and fraternal activities, Ferriole was selected one of the Outstanding Young Men of America for 1976.

Paid for by Friends of Ferriole, Ed Serwach, Chairman, 1263 Whitlier, Grosse Pointe Park.

'World of Work' Program Held

Five hundred students at North High School participated in a special program entitled "Communicating to Succeed in The World of Work," on Monday, October 31.

It was designed to show them how their English classes are related to career opportunities.

The first session involved mass media communications, with Joe Weaver, program director of WJBK-TV2, as the speaker.

In the second session, Barbara Pardee, a former travel agent, spoke on "Verbal Communication in Getting and Keeping a Job." Donald Rosen, director of grants and development at Ford Hospital, discussed "Written Communication in a Competitive Job Market," and Kathy Hulsey, salary administrator in the personnel division of Chrysler Corp., explained, "What the Employer Is Looking for on Applications and in Interviews."

This is one of a series of programs being organized by Mrs. Bonnie Garr, career counselor. This month, she will work with the foreign language department to show students how their courses in German, French and Spanish can help them in their training.

MSU Orchestra Offers Concert

The Michigan State University Symphony Orchestra will appear in concert on Saturday, November 12, in the auditorium of Parcels Middle School, 20600 Mack avenue. The program will begin at 8 p.m.

Dennis Burke will conduct the 80-member orchestra in works by Tchaikovsky, Liszt, and the "Firebird Suite," by Stravinsky.

The performance is being sponsored by the instrumental music departments of South and North High Schools. Admission is $1.50 per person.

The orchestra is expected to arrive at 5 p.m. performance day, and will be met and hosted for dinner by students from the South High School music department.

Crimes Evaded by Using Alias

Farms police arrested three individuals on Thursday, October 13, for attempted larceny. At the time of arrest, none of the three had identification with them. A check showed that between the suspects they had a total of 21 aliases.

The attempted larceny occurred at Hughes and Hatcher, 18921 Mack avenue. The suspects, two men and a woman, were carrying a "booster box," which is a large wrapped box with a flap on one end to stuff articles in without being noticed.

Upon arrest, the subjects were photographed, fingerprinted and classified. Then, an identity check was run through the Law Enforcement Information Network (LEIN). The LEIN check showed four assumed names on Richard Anderson, the first subject, four assumed names on Derrick Anderson, the second subject, and 13 assumed names on Julie Elliott, the woman involved.

Julie Elliott had 13 prior arrests, all under different names. Derrick Anderson was an escapee from the Detroit House of Correction and Richard Anderson had four prior arrests under different names. All had a number of outstanding warrants against them in Harper Woods and Detroit.

If, when a subject is arrested, a fingerprint classification check is not run through LEIN, the true identity of the person cannot be known. In that case, the arresting officer assumes the suspect is who he says he is.

The classification of the fingerprints must be done.

When a check on the fictitious name given is received, it shows no outstanding warrants. So, the subject is released on bond and a court date is set.

When the suspect doesn't show up in court, another outstanding warrant is issued under the name given and the process goes on.

chisa Riggins, Deschisa Rigg, Julianne Brooks, Julian Brooks, Denise Riggins, Sharon Bush and Sharon Ush.

"We classify all fingerprints of all individuals in this city," Det. Earl Field said. "Through the years, we've had a number of people whom we've been able to make an arrest, not only holding them for our agency, but, when they're through here, turning them over to other police agencies. They are sent to jail or charged for the crimes they had committed under the other names they had given."

"Every police agency in the state, in my opinion, should use the same process as we do on all these cases," he said.

"If an individual is brought in and arrested, whether it's an unknown older person or an individual wanted for vagrancy, drinking, a traffic offense, a larceny, a felony or breaking and entering, he should be identified before you go any farther on the case, so you can find the true name and background of the

Training School Proves Beneficial for Detective

By Wendy K. Settle

Picture a man, discreet and business like, in a black pin-striped suit. He is getting off a bus at the Greyhound station with a brief case in his hand.

Like any other businessman, this gentleman would not stand out in a crowd. But, there is something different about this man's business. In that briefcase he carries a half million dollars worth of cocaine.

He quietly walks down the street and enters a bar where he meets his buyer. The connection is made, subtly the exchange is completed and the man turns to leave.

Before the dealer can exit the bar, the buyer grabs his arm, flashes a badge and identifies himself as a narcotics officer.

After the arrest is made, the suspect is booked and the paper work is finished, the undercover narcotics officer is back on the streets setting more contacts up and doing his job.

Farms Demands Smoke Alarms

The Farms Council at its regular meeting on Monday, October 17, approved an amendment to the property maintenance ordinance requiring that all dwellings in the city be equipped with a smoke detector, and that all dwellings be inspected before the owner occupies such dwellings.

Section one of the amendment requires all dwellings to be inspected by the public service department, and a certificate of occupancy be issued before a new resident of that dwelling can commence occupancy.

Section two of the amendment states that all dwellings must have a smoke detector, (minimum of one), "located near the ceiling, outside of, but in close proximity, to each sleeping area."

The council unanimously approved the amendments and noted that the new ordinance would go into effect on Sunday, November 6.

This may sound like a scene from "Baretta," but in reality this happens many times a day all over the country.

"Undercover narcotics work is similar to 'Baretta,'" Farms Det. Sam Cardella said. And he should know after recently returning from a two-week training school on Narcotics Law Enforcement at Kalamazoo Community College.

The school was conducted by five officers of the Drug Enforcement Administration, (DEA), a federal agency, through the National Training Institute which is the educational division of the DEA.

Thirty-one local and county police officers from all over the state attended. Det. Cardella was the only representative of The Pointe area.

During the 80-plus hours of the school, 14 topics were covered involving drug identification, testing, trafficking, raids, surveillance, investigations and informants. Field work was conducted outside of classroom time.

"I got to know a lot of really nice police officers," Det. Cardella said, "but some of those undercover guys are crazy!"

Undercover work is primarily used in narcotics arrests. "What I learned will benefit this department because if a problem arises in The Pointe area, by knowing the officers I met, we can utilize their services," said Det. Cardella.

"I mean that, this is a small community and people know our faces. If a drug problem warranted undercover work, we could call in someone with an unknown face who I met at the training school."

"We have had to use undercover officers before."

The Youth Service Division, (YSD), is the main agency in the Pointes which handles drug violations. The YSD reported 72 narcotics arrests in 1976. To date in 1977, there is already 77 arrests on the books.

Det. Cardella also expressed a very high opinion for the instructors at the school.

Woods Candidates Get Ready for November 8 Election

Meanwhile, three main issues occupy the mind of Mr. Wilson, who plans on spending around $1,500 in his campaign.

"I want to update our fire equipment because of receiving unserviceable ratings the last two years," said Mr. Wilson in eyeing the 1956 American LeFrance and the 1949 General apparatus.

"I also hope to eliminate housing blight by enacting city ordinances and enforcing zoning regulations," he said while pointing out, as examples, a boarded up house in Brys drive which was condemned after a fire, another condemned home at Vernier and Morningside, plus a residence at Avon court and Brys "which is in dire need of repairs."

The latter home, he said, has been vacant for over two years. At the same time, Mr. Wilson expressed a concern over the current lack of leadership in the Public Safety Department since the retirement of Henry Marchand, who spent his last day at work on September 30.

"Nobody's correlating and directing priorities in the Public Safety Department at this time without a leader. The department is in dire need of a director," he stated.

"Yes" for Jack As for the greatest need of the city at this time, Mr. Wilson cited several areas, rather than one, which are all intertwined. "Looking at housing, we must try to maintain a good tax base for the community. If we don't maintain it, we won't have funds coming in," he stated.

"It's also nice to have a nutritional program, (for senior citizens), but if we can't offer them a way to get there, it's very difficult," continued Mr. Wilson, in viewing a Dial-a-Ride bus system.

He then reiterated the need to update the city's fire equipment toward providing better public safety service.

Concerned over priorities, Mr. Wilson said, if elected, he would sit with the council and come up with a "concrete priority system."

On seniors' housing, he said he believes in it and views a "mini-concept" approach, i.e., four condominiums with uppers and lowers, in certain areas of the city rather than a large complex. "I don't know what the Class C question," for Jack Degriek, he stated.

If the proposition is approved, "there's nothing to say he would get it but if I'm elected, I would try to see that he got it. I'd hate to see a landmark place close down," he added.

Eyes Ombudsman Employed as a quality control manager at Standard Forge Co., a division of Kent-Moore Corp., Mr. Wilson is married and has three children.

"The major issue I'm interested in, along with the council, is in developing a residential appearance and condition ordinance," said Mr. Grady. "We must see that we take, (planning consultant), Brandon Rogers' recommendations and incorporate our views toward developing a housing maintenance ordinance."

"I'm also concerned over senior citizens' activities in general," he continued, in viewing their recreation program and seniors' housing.

Mr. Grady eyed the potential need of an ombudsman type office in the city where unhappy citizens could address their grievances. Such an office, he said, would be responsible to the council.

On managing the municipality, he felt good strides in budget planning and procedure have been made, while stressing a good first step has been taken toward the development of a land use plan with the hiring of Mr. Rogers. He also noted City Administrator Chester E. Petersen's proposed long-range capital improvement program.

Besides a home maintenance law, Mr. Grady said another big need in the community is to maintain the safety, health and welfare of all citizens.

Keep Costs Down As for seniors' housing, he viewed providing some form of housing, based upon a condominium type of approach, under a free enterprise arrangement which he felt would be more beneficial cost-wise and maintenance-wise.

Saying he was for the additional "C" license, Mr. Grady stressed that the bowling alley has been a good business and provides the community with needed recreation.

Married and the father of four children, he is the general manager for the western area of the City of Detroit for Michigan Bell. The former planning commissioner and Citizens Recreation Commission member said he plans to spend around $50 to $60 in his campaign.

For his part, Mr. Sabol said, on the issues front, "I will continue to address myself toward keeping taxes down and keeping costs down." He also cited the importance of "maintaining an open government as we have in the past," and the need for the city to maintain its own home rule.

The greatest need in the community at this time, according to Mr. Sabol, also a former planning commissioner, is new and improved storm sewers throughout the community. Feeling "bigger and better storms" are on the horizon, he said the city is built up and more basement flooding problems will occur in the future unless action is taken.

On seniors' housing, he cited a need for this "but whether it's in our community or not, I will reserve judgment." As for financing, he prefers the private sector over the governmental.

Hard to Regulate "I'm personally against an additional Class C license," said Mr. Sabol. "I don't understand, if the proposition is approved, how we will be able to limit it to one. It would be hard to regulate and we may have to issue up to 15."

He felt if only one license was issued, others on the "waiting list" would be "up in arms." At the same time, if the city, in fact, ended up with 15 licensed establishments, he expressed concern over the number of outsiders frequenting such establishments, problems of policing and the question of the ultimate deterioration of the area.

Saying he's conducting a "minimally financed campaign," Mr. Sabol, who's married and has two children, is superintendent of cost planning at Chrysler Corp.

"I'd like to get a homeowner's insight into the city council," said Mr. Fahrner, a past president of the North Woods Property Owners Ass'n.

"I will strive to do my best to increase council-citizen communication," said Mr. Fahrner, who's been on the council many times there are problems of not knowing what is happening, (regarding communication between officials and residents), he said.

Feeling he will be an asset to the council, Mr. Fahrner stated, "I will do my best to maintain the high quality of life in the city," while saying there was no drastic need which has to be tackled right now.

Has Some Ideas In viewing seniors' housing, he said there's a need for it. As a planning commissioner, "we studied it to a great extent and have come up with some ideas on how to resolve it, including some areas if it can be done," he stated.

Noting the lack of vacant property in the community, Mr. Fahrner indicated he would further explore this matter, and would consider a joint effort with other cities.

"I have some thoughts of areas but I want a chance to study this from within the council," he said, while adding a location close to bus transportation or within walking distance to shopping would be needed. In this respect, he mentioned the Seven-Mack shopping area as a possibility.

On the "C" license question, Mr. Fahrner said one additional license would be fine but if there was a flood of them, problems would occur.

Married with three children, Mr. Fahrner is a member of the corporate staff, purchasing, procurement analysis, Chrysler Corp.

He plans to spend an estimated $100 on his campaign. For his part, Mr. McQueen said he would address himself to the need for more men and new equipment in the Public Safety Department and the need for senior citizens housing.

He also said he was for an additional "C" license in the community basically because of GPW Recreation.

Mr. McQueen is a widower and has five children. "I don't really see any big, major issues," said Mr. Novitke, who felt the current council has done an excellent job.

Should Take Look However, he did share his views on several matters including seniors' housing, the need for fiscal integrity and his feeling that the commercial district should not be greatly expanded as it now "ties into the residential area well."

On housing for seniors, he's opposed to government financing and ensuring restrictions. Unaware of a council plan for such housing, he said, "the community does have a responsibility to its seniors and 'the council should take a close look at this' (i.e., housing)."

If there is a need, housing should be considered at a location which would not interfere with current residential structures, he added.

While citing no great needs in the city right now, he felt it was important to maintain the status quo regarding the quality of life in relation to residential and commercial areas and fiscal integrity.

He did note, however, the need for better communication between the Public Safety Department and the council.

Indicating he would support one additional Class C license, Mr. Novitke said, "It is my understanding it would go to GPW Recreation or some other suitable place. I wouldn't like to see just another bar in the city."

Feeling three bars are sufficient, he said there are other locations in the area where citizens can obtain liquor by the glass.

A practicing attorney, Mr. Novitke, who is married and has three children, said he plans to keep his campaign expenses below $300.

For his part, Mr. Kuehnel said major issues include seeking better cooperation and communication between senior citizens and the city toward "making things run smoother."

He also felt there was a need for an ordinance making it mandatory to have smoke detectors in all homes and businesses in the community.

This, he said, was one of the greatest needs in the city, along with the continuation of a municipal calendar because "for many years, we never had one."

While saying there's a need for seniors' housing, Mr. Kuehnel indicated he had no idea of a potential location.

On the "C" license question, he stated he was for the issuance of an additional license because of Mr. Degriek, "who has been there a long time. His business has been a landmark in Grosse Pointe Woods."

The midnight custodian at Gabby's Restaurant, Mr. Kuehnel added he doesn't know at this time how much money he will spend in his campaign.

NHS Harriers Have Big Week

By Karen Nickoloff

The North High School Harriers had a super week as they beat Anchor Bay and also retained their state regional title.

North ran at Baldock Park against Anchor Bay and won, 20-43, on Tuesday, October 25. Finishing first was Neil Toward of Anchor Bay with a time of 15:06. Dave Denis of North finished second at 15:12. Steve Brandt, third, at 15:29. Jim Schmidt, fourth, at 15:23. Ed Hammer, fifth, at 15:27 and Paul Lewis and Wright Wilson tied for sixth place at 15:47.

In the open race, Jerry Stitzel ran a time of 16:23 to win the race. Coming in second was Dan VanVliet at 16:31. Kevin Burns was third at 17:04. Brian Kennedy, fourth, at 17:18 and John Rosculet, fifth, at 17:26.

On Saturday, October 29, the harriers won the Regional race finishing with 24 points.

Coming in second was Warren Tower with 77 points and Adlai Stevenson was third with 105 points.

Running against 19 teams and 133 runners Bill Stevenson of Lakeshore was first with a time of 14:53. Hammer finished second with a time of 15:00.

Finishing fourth was Denis at 15:14. Brandt was fifth at 15:15, followed by Schmidt, sixth, at 15:24. Wilson, seventh, at 15:33. Steve Lugo, 17th, at 15:59 and Lewis, 24th, at 16:08.

In the open race, competing against 200 runners, North finished in the top six consecutive places.

Winning the race was Dave Hofmann with a time of 15:53. He was followed by Dave Schepke at 16:03. Jerry Stitzel was third at 16:21. Ron Fergie, fourth, at 16:25. John Bucacink, fifth, at 16:26 and Bob Schaffer, sixth, at 16:32.

Coach Tom Gauerke thought the race was super and is looking ahead to the State meet Saturday, November 5, in Grand Rapids.

University Liggett School, (ULS), played its last football game of the season Saturday, October 29, against Detroit Country Day School and dropped a 35-6 decision. WILL HUMMEL, (33), ended his season at ULS by setting a new school record of yards gained. In the game against DCDS, Hummel kicked his record to over 1,300 yards.

ULS Gridders Blitzed, 35-6

By Mike Merlo

The freight-train-like attack that the University Liggett School, (ULS), football squad had this year came to an abrupt halt on Saturday, October 29, when an unstoppable Detroit Country Day team blitzed the Knights, 35-6, blocking that forced senior back Will Hummel to carry the play all by himself.

ULS did have one of its best football seasons with an overall 6-2 mark. Unfortunately, one of the two losses was the cause of their shortened season.

This moved Country Day into state playoffs and terminates ULS's season for this year.

ULS did not have control of the game at any time. They were plagued by a series of broken plays and poor

During the year, ULS was ranked as high as seventh in this state for Class D schools.

This year's team also had the first 1,000-yard runner in the school's history, Hummel, who actually rushed for over 1,300 yards.

Barons Take Three Games

The Grosse Pointe Red Barons traveled to Roseville, on Sunday, October 30, for games against the revamped Roseville Rebels.

The weather and field conditions were ideal and a large partisan crowd was in attendance to support the Barons.

At the freshmen level, Ty Fiegel swept right end for 25 yards, to set up a one-yard scoring plunge by quarterback Greg Lambrecht, which proved to be the lone score of the game.

The Barons, led by a tenacious defense, overcame a lackluster offense for the 8-0 victory.

Dan Koptitzke and Jim Dinverno each recovered a fumble and Craig Engle intercepted a pass to spark the defense.

David Fleming and Gary Cornell, behind the stellar blocking of Kevin Shannon, rolled up long yardage.

The crisp tackling of Terry McGivern, Hobey Echlin, Jeff Cichocki, Buster Lucido, Doug Raven and Dinverno contributed to the win.

In the junior varsity game, Cedric Patmon scored two touchdowns and Phillip Garner added an extra point as the Red Barons defeated the Rebels, 13-6.

Roseville's touchdown is the first scored against the Red Baron JV defensive unit.

Chris Bingaman and George Kasza each intercepted a pass to thwart Rebel scoring threats deep in Red Baron territory late in the fourth quarter.

Pat Armstrong, Larry Calcaterra, Joe Barolo, Greg Fleming, Nino Cueter and Doug Annas turned in strong defensive performances in a game fraught with mistakes on both sides.

Scott DeClaire gained 175 yards and scored two touchdowns to pace the Red Baron varsity to an exciting 14-12 conquest of their opponents. Bill Crow and Chris Neal, on a pass from quarterback Craig Haase, added the extra points.

John Fisher, Jim Meisdaugh and David Babcock provided the blocking, while the reliable punting of Ken Sanders took the Red Barons out of trouble repeatedly. Tom Cobau, Bill Raven, Greg Mattes, Bob Luberto, Fred Schultz, Garrett Rice and Geoffrey Tischbein played outstanding defensive football.

After the game Coach Don Stoeckel said, "We've been waiting all year for the boys to put it together and play the way we knew they could, and today they did."

South Wins League Title

By John Rothenberg

South High School's football squad remains unbeaten. And by winning the game against Port Huron Northern Saturday, October 22, the Devils become the Eastern Michigan League champions.

South literally ran all over Port Huron to win 9-0.

The club's defense shined in the first quarter with consistently excellent tackles and assists by Mike Beaver, Ken Stockwell and Jim Kavanda.

Northern did get moving along the way with a fast running back, Paul Moody, but they didn't score, with the first quarter ending 6-0 via a touchdown pass from quarterback Tom Niheim to Kevin Rinke.

The second quarter brought bigger and better things. Niheim's pass to Brad Wilson was complete, and it looked as though South could score again but they were stopped on a nice play by Moody.

The second quarter also brought something you don't often see from South, quarterback sneaks—Niheim tried one and it proved successful, so he did it again and again.

South will now go on to the state championships.

State Champion Suffers Injury

Tom Hammer, former high school state cross country champion from North High School, has suffered a major setback in his senior season with the Hillsdale College Chargers, as he recently suffered a stress fracture of the right tibia, his second stress fracture in two years.

Tom, the co-captain of the 1976 Chargers, noticed the injury in mid-September, but did not have it diagnosed until earlier this month. Stress fractures usually cannot be detected by X-ray until the healing process has begun.

The injury will probably ring down the curtain on his senior season. He has not stopped training altogether, though, and hopes to compete indoors during track season.

Tom was the most valuable runner of the 1975 cross country squad and has made the all state team twice in his injury-ridden cross country career.

Pointer Cited For Tennis Play

Marie McKee, of The Pointe, was recently named co-athlete of the week at Rochester Institute of Technology where she is in her freshman year.

She received the honor for winning three victories in four tennis matches, aiding the women's tennis squad to a 6-2 record on the year.

The other athlete with whom she shares the honor is Doug Smith for his prime role on the school's baseball team.

For Marie, a deaf student the week began with a 6-2, 6-3 loss to the University of Rochester. It was her first defeat of the fall campaign.

But she bounced back to win her match with Saint John Fisher, 6-0, 6-2. In the next match she captured the game with Canisius, 6-3, 7-5.

Then Marie won, 6-4, 6-1, against Nazareth. The last victory increased her mark to 6-1.

Don't consider yourself a real success until you begin getting letters from cranks.

Learn to Spot Eye Problems

Parents can learn to spot the symptoms of vision problems in their child, says the Michigan Optometric Ass'n. in a news release.

According to Dr. Robert L. Klein, the organization's president, a child's behavior and posture often give clues signaling the need for a complete vision examination.

He cited several reasons why parents should be the first line of defense against vision problems in their children.

"For one thing, children can't tell you they have a problem because they don't realize they are not seeing the way they should.

"For another, school vision screening tests generally only check the ability to see clearly at a distance and your child may have another type of vision problem interfering with learning.

"Finally, parents spend a lot of time with their children and, if they know what to look for, can sometimes spot vision problem symptoms more easily than the optometrist, who only sees the child about once a year," Dr. Klein said.

What should parents look for? Frequent clumsiness, difficulty in reading or doing other close work, a short attention span for the child's age, frequent blinking and complaints of nausea, dizziness or headaches after reading or doing other close work.

Other conditions are a tense position when looking at objects far away or close up, tilting head noticeably to one side when reading, holding books close to the eyes, frowning or scowling and continued avoidance of reading and close work in favor of outside activities.

"All children probably have one or more of these symptoms occasionally but the child who exhibits them continually is the one who may need professional help," added Dr. Klein.

Crossbar 'Bump' Nets NHS Win

By Joe Sazy

The North High School varsity football team chalked up its fourth straight victory Saturday, October 29, as it downed the Lakeview Huskies, 10-7.

The victory put North into second place in the Bi-County League.

First quarter action saw both defenses controlling the game. A 10-yard sack from Mike McBrien occurred late in the half. This forced Lakeview to punt and finally North's offense began to move.

Steve Arthur spearheaded the drive with runs of 10 and 15 yards. Arthur then broke through the Lakeview defense for a 13-yard touchdown run which gave the Norsemen a 7-0 lead after Karl Tech's extra point.

The green and gold defense then followed with another fine performance as Mark Pfeffer and Tony Tocco blasted through Lakeview's offensive line to sack Huskies quarterback Ken McKay.

With less than three minutes to go in the first half, Lakeview bounced back with an 88-yard touchdown drive, tying the score, 7-7.

In the second half, Clay Ottoni picked up a Lakeview fumble almost immediately after the kickoff, but the Norsemen couldn't capitalize as they gave the ball back to Lakeview after a fumble.

It was the same story repeated when Tech picked off a Huskie pass, but again North fumbled.

However, after Ottoni broke up a Lakeview punt, North was in field goal range and Tech came out to attempt a 45-yard field goal which hit the crossbar and fell through for three points.

After that, Mike McBrien, Mark Pfeffer, Ottoni and the rest of the Norsemen defense stopped the Huskies.

"This game was probably our best overall performance of the season. The offense and the defense played very well against a tough Lakeview team," commented coach Jim Krucki.

Men Gardeners Meet on Nov. 17

Dr. Donald Davidson, professor of horticulture at Michigan State University, will be the featured speaker at a meeting of the Men's Garden Club of Grosse Pointe on Thursday, November 17, in the Central Library, 10 Kercheval Avenue, at 8 p.m.

Dr. Davidson's subject will be "Maintaining Quality Woody Ornamentals in Your Landscape." He will show slides and emphasize the culture of Azaleas and Rhododendrons.

Members are urged to bring a friend and all gardeners are welcome.

A graduate of the University of California and Michigan State, Dr. Davidson has served as associate professor in research and teaching and as professor in extension work.

His memberships include the American Society of Horticultural Science, American Association of Botanical Gardeners and Arboretums, International Plant Propagators Society, Michigan Botanical Club and the Michigan and American Horticultural Societies.

R. E. Trinklein Resigns Post

The Woods Planning Commission unanimously accepted with regret the resignation of Commissioner Robert E. Trinklein at its regular meeting Tuesday, October 25.

In a letter to the commission, Mr. Trinklein said Tuesday night, (the day the body meets once a month), seems to be the one night of the week that demands most of my time, and "it would not be fair to compromise some of these demands."

He added, "It has been an enlightening as well as an enjoyable period of my life, serving with you all on this commission and I wish you continued success in your planning work."

Commission Chairman Peter Gilezan said he was deeply indebted to Mr. Trinklein, and requested a proper communication from the city be sent to him expressing the municipality's appreciation for his service.

One View from the Capitol

By William Bryant

Sentencing of convicted criminals continues to be a major issue. The citizenry has decided the issue, but the legislature has not.

The people of this state know what they want. They want, above all, the career criminal off the streets and behind bars. They want assurances that violent felons will not be released or probation or on parole after a ridiculously short jail term. They know rapists tend to repeat their offense and they want those convicted of rape kept off the streets.

Generally, the people believe that speedy trials and certainty of punishment will deter crime. They want mandatory minimum sentences for all violent street crimes and for all major drug crimes.

I agree all these views are correct, worthy and capable of immediate implementation. While other debates relative to sentencing continue, there is no good reason why we cannot accomplish these objectives.

They require mandatory sentencing provisions to be enacted into law. They require emphasis on career criminal prosecution and they require new prisons to house more dangerous and career criminals.

The delay in Lansing results from the slow deliberations of a special House-Senate Joint Committee on Sentencing. This committee is embroiled in a debate on another, less important aspect of sentencing, that is whether or not there should be a "standard" sentence.

From the standard sentence, time would be added or subtracted based on the existence of certain, listed mitigating or aggravating circumstances.

This concept of standard sentencing does have appeal, to provide some greater equity and consistency in sentencing from day to day and court to court. I have endorsed the concept.

But, my position is that there is no inconsistency between the "standard sentencing" concept and the expanded use of mandatory minimum sentences.

FIRST AND PRACTICAL
"Uncle Joe Ross" the first practical fire engine, is 125 years old. Invented in 1852 by Alexander Latta, the engine took nine months to build and cost $10,000. More than two dozen pieces of antique fire apparatus are available for viewing at the Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn. The display collection includes a 1791 bucket-type engine, an 1840 vacuum pump, an 1867 steam fire engine and a 1925 Ford V8 fire truck.

We should proceed to adopt mandatory minimums and then, when and if we so choose, we can superimpose a new, standard sentencing procedure over the mandatory minimums already determined.

There is no excuse for delay. If you have thoughts on the sentencing of criminals, I urge you to write Sen. Basil Brown or Rep. Paul Rosenbaum, State Capitol, Lansing. They are the chairmen of the Senate and House Judiciary Committees, respectively.

Poll Workers Get Pay Hike

The pay of election workers and counting board members in the Woods received a boost toward complying with the minimum hourly wage rate established by the Department of Labor's wage and hourly division. The rate is presently $2.30 per hour.

The council approved the hike at its regular meeting Monday, October 17.

For election workers, the precinct chairman's pay rate was increased from $35 per day for all elections to $40 per day, while the workers' pay jumped from $30 to $35 per day.

The counting board chairman's pay was increased from $35 per day for national elections to $40 per day and from $20 to $25 per day for city elections to $30 per day.

Meanwhile, the pay of counting board workers jumped from $30 to $35 per day for national elections and from $20 to $25 per day for city elections.

In relation to the pay distribution, City Administrator Chester E. Petersen noted that election inspectors spend up to 15 hours at the polls. For city elections the rate is less for counting board workers since there are less absentee voter ballots to process thereby requiring less working hours, he added.

Huster Elected Hunt Club Head

Frank J. Huster, of Berkwin V. Larson, of Shoreham shire road, was elected to the presidency of the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club, (GPHC), by the board of directors at the club's recent annual meeting.

At the same time, James B. Nicholson, of Kenwood court, was newly elected as vice-president. Edwin N. Peabody, of Lakeside court, and John C. Frakes, of Blairmoor court, were returned to their respective posts as treasurer and secretary.

The general membership newly elected William E. Kohr, of Bishop road, to a three-year term as a member of the board of directors. His recent service as chairman of the Michigan Doubles Tennis Tournament and on the platform tennis committee contributed strongly to his election, a spokesman said.

Concerning The Election in The Woods, Park, City, Farms

Voters in The Woods, Park, City and Farms will exercise their right on Tuesday, November 8, and cast their ballots for a slate of council candidates which could readily change the face of each body in all the communities. At the same time, a competitive mayoral race is transpiring in The Woods, while incumbents Matthew C. Patterson in The Park and John King in The City remain unopposed.

On the other hand, both The Park and Farms offer competition in the race for municipal judge.

Meanwhile, Woods voters will decide, via an advisory vote, whether they wish to have an additional Class C liquor license in the community, and Farms voters will consider two charter amendments — one giving the council the right to set the annual salary of the municipal judge and the other giving the council the right to appoint a clerk and deputy clerk for the judge, while establishing the compensation and duties for the court officers.

In The Woods, incumbent Mayor Benjamin W. Pinkos, who is seeking his third term, is being challenged by William Wilson. A political veteran in the community, Mr. Pinkos has served his city for over 20 years as mayor, councilman and planning commissioner, while Mr. Wilson is seeking a political office in the city for the first time.

The community is fortunate to have two candidates who are definitely qualified for the mayoral post. Mr. Pinkos has served his city well overall and has shown a definite interest in citizen participation. (The creation of the Senior Citizens, Beautification and Citizens Recreation Commissions, arms of the city to better serve its citizens, occurred under his administration.) His political savvy and interest in his community are commendable as is his frankness, (more often than not), in facing problems and discussing the issues.

On the minus side, his concern over some polarization between the city and the Public Safety Department is a valid one. As mayor, he must take some responsibility for this, along with the council. The long negotiation periods before agreements were reached with the patrolmen, sergeants and lieutenants, along with an apparent breakdown in communications along the way between both sides, and the proposed installation of time clocks for four city departments, including public safety, have played roles in this polarization process.

This isn't to say that public safety is blameless in this regard but city officials could have possibly minimized the overall situation to some extent.

Mr. Wilson, as an auxiliary public safety officer, has an inherent sympathy to the needs of the department on the manpower and equipment fronts. His concern over the lack of leadership, (minus a public safety director), in the department at this time also is well taken. His verve to eliminate housing blight in the community, (he cites three main examples), is praiseworthy although the community in total isn't really that blighted.

The race simply boils down to this — voters will have to decide between a politically experienced candidate who knows the ropes and a new man who's willing to learn more and do the best job he can.

And this may be the real question in the final analysis. Why bring in a good reefer pitcher if your starting pitcher is throwing a pretty steady and generally effective game?

Meanwhile, four candidates are vying for three, four-year seats on the Woods Council. Incumbents E. D. Grady and John Sabol, along with Thomas Fahrner, are qualified for this position.

Mr. Grady, who was appointed after the resignation of Conrad A. Naegel, has shown a practical and often analytical business sense in facing and handling various problems, while Mr. Sabol's interest in viewing priorities in relation to rising costs is laudable. Mr. Fahrner should prove a positive addition to the council based upon his experience as a planning commissioner, (the main "farm system" for council members).

Two newcomers, Robert E. Novitke and Arthur J. Kueh-nel, are seeking a two-year, unexpired term because of the resignation of Joan M. Mullan.

Mr. Novitke, while not familiar with all the problems facing the city, has the interest and alertness to become a worthy member of the council and the NEWS supports his bid for the seat. Mr. Kuehnel's interest in running for the position is appreciated and even more so is his interest in the community. But the NEWS feels he can serve his city more efficiently in other capacities as he has done in the past and is currently doing.

On the Class C question, the NEWS urges a "yes" vote on the ballot proposition giving the council the chance to approve or signify its approval of the issuance of one additional license in the community, which currently has three, and which, pending council approval, could have up to 15.

The reason for this is the hope that Grosse Pointe Woods Recreation receives the document.

At this time, however, a "yes" vote is no guarantee that the council will issue an additional license, (although, based upon the wishes of the people, it probably will), and that the bowling alley would, in fact, receive it. But for owner Jack Degriek, who conducted the necessary petition drive to place the question on the ballot, the NEWS hopes the vote is favorable.

For Mr. Degriek said, unless his establishment received such a license toward stemming gradually falling profits and a loss of leagues, his business would have to be sold within five years. His establishment isn't only a landmark in the community but it offers a strong recreation outlet for citizens of all the Pointes. And if GPW Recreation was fortunate enough to receive such a license, it wouldn't generate much, if any, of a problem because of its fine owners, more than adequate parking and basic isolation from residential areas.

In The Park, all six council candidates including incumbents George J. Verdonck and Douglas G. Graham and challengers James Ferriole Jr., Mado O. Lie, Charles Slusser and Ann MacDonald are all qualified for the posts, with each having something to offer to their community. Voters will select three of these candidates.

The same can be said for the two municipal judge candidates, Alan R. Devine Jr. and Beverly C. Grobbel. Each has a strong interest in serving the city and both have the qualifications to do a good job.

In The City, the NEWS feels the trio of incumbents, Robert L. Nugent, George Henry and David Robb, based on their years of experience, are the most qualified.

Voters in The Farms will consider four incumbent council members and one challenger for four positions on the body. Incumbents Nancy J. Waugaman, Harry R. Fruehauf Jr., Jack M. Cudlip and Joseph L. Fromm deserve consideration for reelection.

Meanwhile, incumbent Municipal Judge Robert Pytell is facing challenger Anthony C. Penta for the judgeship post. Both men have definite qualifications for office and the NEWS feels each would serve his city well.

As for the charter amendments on The Farms' ballot, the NEWS urges a "yes" vote on each toward making the local court process run more efficiently. R.A.W.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:
I am writing in response to articles appearing in Thursday's "Grosse Pointe News" and Saturday's "Detroit Free Press" about a Justice Department investigation of the "cul-de-sac" plan.

I am a member of the Interfaith Center for Racial Justice's Housing Committee and am concerned about the presentation of that organization's views and positions in these articles, which I don't believe to be quite accurate.

I am not writing, on the other hand, as a spokesperson for the organization and instead am making my own views known.

It should be noted first that I and several other members of our committee do not per se oppose the idea of cul-de-sacs. Depending on their location they could be of legitimate benefit to our community. My street runs north/south and I would love to have an island in the way of the decidedly Grosse Pointe-type teenagers which regularly rod their cars and motorcycles up and down my street.

My concern, and I believe the concern of many members of our committee, was bottomed on the manner of presentation of the plan by the realtor in question.

We felt that the pamphlet advertising the idea could be read as intended to appeal to the worst fears of our neighbors by the suggestion that undesirable elements and spreading decay might be kept out of our neighborhoods by cul-de-sacs.

The proponents of the concept now point out that cul-de-sacs could not possibly have the effect of locking out access from Detroit, for instance, (and I agree, unless one were contemplating a very blatant east-west plan). But precisely because of this we were initially puzzled why there should be suggestion of such intended or incidental "benefits" in the pamphlet.

As we examined the plan itself, additional concerns arose. I sat in a meeting where a representative of the realtor told us that he had dedicated many months of his own full time to the development of this plan by participating in a survey which was intended to solicit the views of Grosse Pointe residents on the plan.

He indicated that he sustained himself by doing odd jobs and that his involvement in this research, (which he anticipated would continue for many more months), was intended to benefit him only by the incidental real estate business which he and his organization might later on obtain if the people they spoke to remembered his name!

He indicated that several others were also donating time on this basis.

The idea that intelligent human beings would sacrifice a full year of their life and the fiscal welfare of their families, at no cost, merely for the purpose of possibly gaining some future real estate business, raised some question in our minds.

The following additional facts added to our puzzlement:

First, it seems very unrealistic to expect that a comprehensive cul-de-sac plan would ever be implemented in the Grosse Pointes.

This seemed particularly unlikely in the often narrow streets bordering the Detroit city line, where a cul-de-sac is a physical impossibility in most instances. Yet the realtors' solicitation of views was conducted most heavily in this area.

The realtors in question, when soliciting views, also presented a comprehensive questionnaire which asked the homeowner to list the numbers of rooms and other characteristics which are relevant only to selling your home, not to the cul-de-sac concept.

By their own admission, an inordinate percentage of the homes solicited during this time changed ownership.

The setting we were presented with showed us realtors who donated their time on behalf of the less than realistic concept of cul-de-sacs, particularly in the streets bordering Detroit, suggesting to the residents there that it is very desirable to have it in order to prevent "erosion" and thereby suggesting that erosion may occur if we don't have it and by rational deduction that erosion is likely to occur.

The realtor then suggests availability of his services in case the resident decides to sell and not so surprisingly a substantial number of the homeowners questioned thereafter do decide to sell.

The kickoff of two months of activities starting with the Jubilee Jamboree, occurred early last month.

The Jubilee Jamboree will be followed on Saturday, November 12, with an Anniversary Ball at the Hillcrest Country Club. Reservations for the ball are now being accepted.

The members of Saint Joan of Arc also have prepared a Jubilee Commemorative Book tracing the history of this parish church and highlighting all its current activities. This book will be out for distribution sometime in November.

The finale of festivities will be a special Liturgical Celebration on December 4 with a reception following.

Accused Abductor Given Exam in Municipal Court

A 21-year-old Detroit man who's allegedly involved in abducting a Woods woman and her six-year-old daughter at Eastland Center on Monday, October 24, was scheduled to face a Harper Woods Municipal Court examination yesterday, Wednesday, November 2.

The suspect, Richard Johnson, was arraigned last week on charges of robbery armed and assault with intent to murder, said Harper Woods Police Chief Nicholas Mayer.

Brownell Tops Drive Record

Brownell Middle School broke its record for the third straight year of participating in the Torch Drive. It is the only school in The Pointe system to have accomplished this feat.

A total of $1,963.64 or an average of $4.03 per child was raised. This is an all time record on a per pupil basis in giving to the Torch Drive.

William Roscoe's class gave $269.79, which was the highest amount given by any class in Brownell and the highest in the eighth grade. William Lelesz's eighth grade class came in second with a total of $220.56.

In the seventh grade, the winning class was Virginia Gordon's, which raised $239.69. In second place was Julie Corbett's class with a total of $236.91.

Some of the ways they raised money that week were lawn care, baby-sitting, student donations, bake sales, pie throwing contests and slave drives.

Five mothers processed the money that came in including Lynn Scott, Rita Trombley, Eileen Mandarino, Maryann Judge and Pammy Moir.

The Torch Drive at Brownell was the project of Thomas Neal and the student council.

Prior to the incident, Mrs. Tomasko lived in The Woods for only three weeks, coming from Simcoe, Ontario. She said many people have asked if she plans to stay in light of what happened.

"We're currently renting and looking for a house to buy," she said. "We haven't made a decision as yet."

Despite her moments of adversity, she has been cheered by the response of local citizens.

Mrs. Tomasko said she has received a "lovely response" from residents with visits from neighbors, citizens bringing her food and flowers, plus many good wishes.

Poised to tell all about the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center's "Santa Haus" are Judith Sieber, league president, Santa Haus co-chairmen Sharyn Mannino, Mary Shammass and Cheryl Waldeck, and project chairman Liz Oates. They'll give details on their magical Christmas fantasy at the Assistance League's business meeting and brunch next Wednesday, November 9, at Lochmoor Club.

The program includes coffee at 10, business at 10:30, the gourmet brunch, a film and presentation on Poison Control by Mrs. Robert Kessler, of Children's Hospital, and a talk by the Northeast Guidance Center's Dr. Suzanne Gresham on the various types of volunteer work needed at the center.

Brunch tickets at $7 per person may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Jackson at 824-8000. Reservation deadline is next Monday, November 7.

Now about the Santa Haus... we're pledged to secrecy until Wednesday, but it can't be letting the cat out of the bag to tell you it will be in town November 25 through December 18... and it will be fabulous. More later.

Open Memorial Church's Fair

Two years of concentrated effort on the part of some hundreds of persons culminate today, Thursday, November 3, in the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church Christmas Fair, an all-day affair with lunch available.

All three floors of the church house have been transformed into a colorful midway, with dozens of booths and counters offering a variety of wares.

Highlight will be the silent auction of three magnificent dollhouses, a colorful hooked rug and a double wedding ring pattern quilt, all donated by their creators.

Co-chairmen of the 1977 fair are Mrs. Alfred E. Warren and Mrs. J. Ross Bush.

Something Old... Nothing New... That's what visitors to the League-Goodwill Booth at the 30th Annual Junior Goodwill Antiques Market and Sale, to be held at Fairlane Manor, Dearborn, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 10, 11 and 12, will find.

This year's show spotlights 52 dealers displaying some of the most desirable antiques to be found in the Midwest.

They come from the south, east and London, England, in addition to the surrounding area.

As usual, League-Goodwill's own booth promises to be one of the most popular. It will feature a multitude of items contributed to the non-profit vocational rehabilitation agency from homes of Detroit-area residents, to help further the training and employment of the handicapped.

According to Milton Hunter, League-Goodwill's furniture department supervisor, there is a wide assortment of walnut and oak chests and dressers available this year.

An unusual collection of antique doorknobs also will be displayed and sold.

Sheila Ryan, League-Goodwill retail supervisor, has spent a lot of time in the past months going over literally thousands of pieces of china, glassware, silver and jewelry, sorting out and pricing those items worthy of display.

ing those items worthy of display.

She has been assisted by two of the most knowledgeable collectors of antiques.

Although League-Goodwill has a large selection of items for the true antique lover, additional ones are needed to round out the collection.

Anyone with a show-quality item to donate may contact the League-Goodwill Public Relations Department, 964-3900, for contribution pickup.

All receipts from sales in the League-Goodwill booth go directly into paying the wages of handicapped workers.

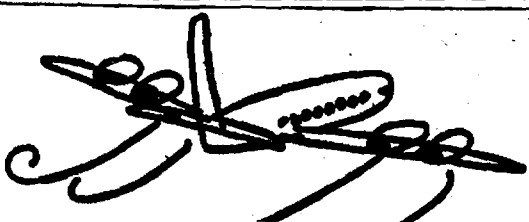

Income derived by the Junior Group from $2-per-person admissions, booth rentals, the preview party and other sources is used by the auxiliary to provide equipment or services to the handicapped workers and clients of League-Goodwill.

The show will be open to the general public from 10 to 10 o'clock Thursday and Friday, November 10 and 11, and from 10 to 6 Saturday, November 12.

Sale for Bon Secours Slated

Huster Elected Hunt Club Head

Frank J. Huster, of Berk-shire road, was elected to the presidency of the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club, (GPHC), by the board of directors at the club's recent annual meeting.

At the same time, James B. Nicholson, of Kenwood court, was newly elected as vice-president. Edwin N. Peabody, of Lakeside court, and John C. Frakes, of Blairmoor court, were returned to their respective posts as treasurer and secretary.

The general membership newly elected William E. Kohn, of Bishop road, to a three-year term as a member of the board of directors. His recent service as chairman of the Michigan Doubles Tennis Tournament and on the platform tennis committee contributed strongly to his election, a spokesman said.

Others re-elected to the board by the membership included retiring president Ed-

Concerning The Election in The Woods, Park, City, Farms

Voters in The Woods, Park, City and Farms will exercise their right on Tuesday, November 8, and cast their ballots for a slate of council candidates which could readily change the face of each body in all the communities. At the same time, a competitive mayoral race is transpiring in The Woods, while incumbents Matthew C. Patterson in The Park and John King in The City remain unopposed.

On the other hand, both The Park and Farms offer competition in the race for municipal judge.

Meanwhile, Woods voters will decide, via an advisory vote, whether they wish to have an additional Class C liquor license in the community, and Farms voters will consider two charter amendments — one giving the council the right to set the annual salary of the municipal judge and the other giving the council the right to appoint a clerk and deputy clerk for the judge, while establishing the compensation and duties for the court officers.

In The Woods, incumbent Mayor Benjamin W. Pinkos, who is seeking his third term, is being challenged by William Wilson. A political veteran in the community, Mr. Pinkos has served his city for over 20 years as mayor, councilman and planning commissioner, while Mr. Wilson is seeking a political office in the city for the first time.

The community is fortunate to have two candidates who are definitely qualified for the mayoral post. Mr. Pinkos has served his city well overall and has shown a definite interest in citizen participation. (The creation of the Senior Citizens, Beautification and Citizens Recreation Commissions, arms of the city to better serve its citizens, occurred under his administration.) His political savvy and interest in his community are commendable as is his frankness, (more often than not), in facing problems and discussing the issues.

On the minus side, his concern over some polarization between the city and the Public Safety Department is a valid one. As mayor, he must take some responsibility for this, along with the council. The long negotiation periods before agreements were reached with the patrolmen, sergeants and lieutenants, along with an apparent breakdown in communications along the way between both sides, and the proposed installation of time clocks for four city departments, including public safety, have played roles in this polarization process.

This isn't to say that public safety is blameless in this regard but city officials could have possibly minimized the overall situation to some extent.

Mr. Wilson, as an auxiliary public safety officer, has an inherent sympathy to the needs of the department on the manpower and equipment fronts. His concern over the lack of leadership, (minus a public safety director), in the department at this time also is well taken. His verve to eliminate housing blight in the community, (he cites three main examples), is praiseworthy although the community in total isn't really that blighted.

The race simply boils down to this — voters will have to decide between a politically experienced candidate who knows the ropes and a new man who's willing to learn more and do the best job he can.

And this may be the real question in the final analysis. Why bring in a good relief pitcher if your starting pitcher is throwing a pretty steady and generally effective game?

Meanwhile, four candidates are vying for three, four-year seats on the Woods Council. Incumbents E. D. Grady and John Sabol, along with Thomas Fahrner, are qualified for this position.

Mr. Grady, who was appointed after the resignation of Conrad A. Naegel, has shown a practical and often analytical business sense in facing and handling various problems, while Mr. Sabol's interest in viewing priorities in relation to rising costs is laudable. Mr. Fahrner should prove a positive addition to the council based upon his experience as a planning commissioner, (the main "farm system" for council members).

Two newcomers, Robert E. Novitke and Arthur J. Kueh-

Accused Abductor Given Exam in Municipal Court

A 21-year-old Detroit man who's allegedly involved in abducting a Woods woman and her six-year-old daughter at Eastland Center on Monday, October 24, was scheduled to face a Harper Woods Municipal Court examination yesterday, Wednesday, November 2.

The suspect, Richard Johnson, was arraigned last week on charges of robbery armed and assault with intent to murder, said Harper Woods Police Chief Nicholas Mayer.

As they proceeded, he allegedly asked her for some money and was given around $19. After entering the expressway at the Vernier-Harper exit, the chief said the suspect told her to put her daughter in the back seat and after she refused, he allegedly slashed her in the abdomen area.

The daughter, who wasn't injured, guided the steering wheel before the vehicle struck the median.

Officer Albert Markesino, who witnessed the incident, ultimately arrested the fleeing suspect in the area of Brys Park, St. Clair Shores.

Mrs. Tomasko was taken to Saint John Hospital for treatment and was released last week. She told the NEWS she was feeling better while noting self-defense programs, both from the physical and emotional standpoints, would be beneficial for citizens based upon her experience.

Prior to the incident, Mrs. Tomasko lived in The Woods for only three weeks, coming from Simcoe, Ontario. She said many people have asked if she plans to stay in light of what happened.

"We're currently renting and looking for a house to buy," she said. "We haven't made a decision as yet."

Despite her moments of adversity, she has been cheered by the response of local citizens.

Mrs. Tomasko said she has received a "lovely response" from residents with visits from neighbors, citizens bringing her food and flowers, plus many good wishes.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:
I am writing in response to articles appearing in Thursday's "Grosse Pointe News" and Saturday's "Detroit Free Press" about a Justice Department investigation of the "cul-de-sac" plan.

I am a member of the Interfaith Center for Racial Justice's Housing Committee and am concerned about the presentation of that organization's views and positions in these articles, which I don't believe to be quite accurate.

I am not writing, on the other hand, as a spokesperson for the organization and instead am making my own views known.

It should be noted first that I and several other members of our committee do not per se oppose the idea of cul-de-sacs. Depending on their location they could be of legitimate benefit to our community. My street runs north/south and I would love to have an island in the way of the decidedly Grosse Pointe-type teenagers which regularly rod their cars and motorcycles up and down my street.

My concern, and I believe the concern of many members of our committee, was bottomed on the manner of presentation of the plan by the realtor in question.

We felt that the pamphlet advertising the idea could be read as intended to appeal to the worst fears of our neighbors by the suggestion that undesirable elements and spreading decay might be kept out of our neighborhoods by cul-de-sacs.

The proponents of the concept now point out that cul-de-sacs could not possibly have the effect of locking out access from Detroit, for instance, (and I agree, unless one were contemplating a very blatant east-west plan). But precisely because of this we were initially puzzled why there should be suggestion of such intended or incidental "benefits" in the pamphlet.

As we examined the plan itself, additional concerns arose. I sat in a meeting where a representative of the realtor told us that he had dedicated many months of his own full time to the development of this plan by participating in a survey which was intended to solicit the views of Grosse Pointe residents on the plan.

He indicated that he sustained himself by doing odd jobs and that his involvement in this research, (which he anticipated would continue for many more months), was intended to benefit him only by the incidental real estate business which he and his organization might later on obtain if the people they spoke to remembered his name!

He indicated that several others were also donating time on this basis.

The idea that intelligent human beings would sacrifice a full year of their life and the fiscal welfare of their families, at no cost, merely for the purpose of possibly gaining some future real estate business, raised some question in our minds.

The following additional facts added to our puzzlement:

First, it seems very unrealistic to expect that a comprehensive cul-de-sac plan would ever be implemented in the Grosse Pointes.

This seemed particularly unlikely in the often narrow streets bordering the Detroit city line, where a cul-de-sac is a physical impossibility in most instances. Yet the realtors' solicitation of views was conducted most heavily in this area.

The realtors in question, when soliciting views, also presented a comprehensive questionnaire which asked the homeowner to list the numbers of rooms and other characteristics which are relevant only to selling your home, not to the cul-de-sac concept.

By their own admission, an inordinate percentage of the homes solicited during this time changed ownership.

The setting we were presented with showed us realtors who donated their time on behalf of the less than realistic concept of cul-de-sacs, particularly in the streets bordering Detroit, suggesting to the residents there that it is very desirable to have it in order to prevent "erosion" and thereby suggesting that erosion may occur if we don't have it and by rational deduction that erosion is likely to occur.

MSA Section 3.548(508) the Michigan block-busting statute, of which a Federal equivalent exists, provides that:

"A person shall not represent, for the purpose of inducing a real estate transaction from which the person may benefit financially, that a change has occurred or will occur in the composition with respect to religion, race, color, national origin, age, sex or marital status of the owners or occupants in the block, neighborhood or area in which the real property is located, or represent that this change will or may result in the lowering of property values, an increase in criminal or anti-social behavior or a decline in the quality of schools in the block, neighborhood or area in which the real property is located."

I want to be quite clear that neither I nor the other members of our committee suggest or have suggested that a violation of this statute has occurred.

However, we believe that the circumstances warrant further investigation which should concentrate on the specifics of what was said to the homeowners.

The legislature has addressed itself to the dangers of "block-busting" which were amply demonstrated, by what happened to many neighborhoods of the City of Detroit.

That issue is of ultimate importance to any present or future Grosse Pointe homeowners, white and black, and it deserves some inquiry. I do not agree that a self-initiated investigation by the Justice Department on the overall issue of cul-de-sacs addresses the problem or is necessarily appropriate.

Lastly, I believe that if the merits of a cul-de-sac plan of any proportion are to be evaluated, that evaluation should not be made by an individual or organization which stands to gain financially from any aspect of such a plan.

Very truly yours,
Thomas G. Kienbaum

Church Eyes Big Jubilee

Saint Joan of Arc Church, 21820 Mack avenue, in St. Clair Shores, is celebrating its Golden Jubilee this year.

The kickoff of two months of activities starting with the Jubilee Jamboree, occurred early last month.

The Jubilee Jamboree will be followed on Saturday, November 12, with an Anniversary Ball at the Hillcrest Country Club. Reservations for the ball are now being accepted.

The members of Saint Joan of Arc also have prepared a Jubilee Commemorative Book tracing the history of this parish church and highlighting all its current activities. This book will be out for distribution sometime in November.

The finale of festivities will be a special Liturgical Celebration on December 4 with a reception following.

Poised to tell all about the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center's "Santa Haus" are Judith Sieber, league president, Santa Haus co-chairmen Sharyn Mannino, Mary Shammass and Cheryl Waldeck, and project chairman Liz Oates. They'll give details on their magical Christmas fantasy at the Assistance League's business meeting and brunch next Wednesday, November 9, at Lochmoor Club.

The program includes coffee at 10, business at 10:30, the gourmet brunch, a film and presentation on Poison Control by Mrs. Robert Kessler, of Children's Hospital, and a talk by the Northeast Guidance Center's Dr. Suzanne Gresham on the various types of volunteer work needed at the center.

Brunch tickets at $7 per person may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Jackson at 824-8000. Reservation deadline is next Monday, November 7.

Now about the Santa Haus... we're pledged to secrecy until Wednesday, but it can't be letting the cat out of the bag to tell you it will be in town November 25 through December 18... and it will be fabulous. More later.

Cavorting in 'Carmen'

If you think some of the faces in the Children's Chorus of Michigan Opera Theatre's production of "Carmen," which winds up a two-week run at the Music Hall with performances this Friday and Saturday, look familiar... you're right!

Auxilians to Join Med School Friends

Pointers involved in planning a combined meeting and program for Detroit Medical Center Hospital Auxiliaries and Friends of Wayne State University Medical School include, (standing, left to right), MRS. VIVIAN BAYLESS, president-elect of the Children's Hospital Auxiliary, MRS. J. E. ZIEGENFUSS, current Children's Auxiliary president, under whose aegis the meeting will be conducted, MRS. DENIS LENEHAN, program chairman for Harper Hospital Auxiliary, and MRS. PAUL RUBLE, Harper Auxiliary president, (seated, left and right), MRS. KIM LEE, president of the Grace Hospital Auxiliary, and MRS. PERRY TeWALT, president of the Rehabilitation Institute Auxiliary.

The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, November 10, at 10 o'clock in the WSU Med School's Scott Hall.

Mrs. Murray Thomas, president, and Mrs. Yvan Silva, vice-president of the Medical School Friends, will co-host the event, designed to promote cooperation, friendliness and exchange of ideas between respective auxiliaries in order to express their combined knowledge and interest in the Med School and hospitals in the Detroit Medical Center.

Sherry and a social hour will precede luncheon following the general meeting. Dr. Jan Beekuis, member of the American College of Plastic Surgeons, will speak on "Options for a New You." A question-and-answer period will follow his talk. Others involved in planning the day are Miss Juanita Bryant, president of the Detroit General Hospital Auxiliary, Ms. Mary Conforte, from the Grace Hospital Auxiliary, Mrs. F. L. Petersmark, from the Children's Auxiliary, Mrs. Charles Kessler, president of the Hutzel Hospital Auxiliary, and Mrs. Rodolfo Lopez, president of the Wayne County Medical Society Auxiliary.

League-Goodwill Is Treasure Chest

Something Old... Nothing New... That's what visitors to the League-Goodwill Booth at the 30th Annual Junior Goodwill Antiques Market and Sale, to be held at Fairlane Manor, Dearborn, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 10, 11 and 12, will find.

This year's show spotlights 52 dealers displaying some of the most desirable antiques to be found in the Midwest.

They come from the south, east and London, England, in addition to the surrounding area.

As usual, League-Goodwill's own booth promises to be one of the most popular. It will feature a multitude of items contributed to the non-profit vocational rehabilitation agency from homes of Detroit-area residents, to help further the training and employment of the handicapped.

According to Milton Hunter, League-Goodwill's furniture department supervisor, there is a wide assortment of walnut and oak chests and dressers available this year.

An unusual collection of antique doorknobs also will be displayed and sold.

Sheila Ryan, League-Goodwill retail supervisor, has spent a lot of time in the past months going over literally thousands of pieces of china, glassware, silver and jewelry, sorting out and pricing those items worthy of display.

She has been assisted by two of the most knowledgeable collectors of antiques.

Although League-Goodwill has a large selection of items for the true antique lover, additional ones are needed to round out the collection. Anyone with a show-quality item to donate may contact the League-Goodwill Public Relations Department, 964-3900, for contribution pickup.

All receipts from sales in the League-Goodwill booth go directly into paying the wages of handicapped workers.

Income derived by the Junior Group from $2-per-person admissions, booth rentals, the preview party and other sources is used by the auxiliary to provide equipment or services to the handicapped workers and clients of League-Goodwill.

The show will be open to the general public from 10 to 10 o'clock Thursday and Friday, November 10 and 11, and from 10 to 6 Saturday, November 12.

Sale for Bon Secours Slated

The Bon Secours Hospital Guild has scheduled a benefit sale featuring homemade baked goods and breads, plus a limited amount of boutique articles, for Tuesday, November 8, from 10 in the morning to 4 in the afternoon in the Bon Secours cafeteria.

Open Memorial Church's Fair

Two years of concentrated effort on the part of some hundreds of persons culminate today, Thursday, November 3, in the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church Christmas Fair, an all-day affair with lunch available.

All three floors of the church house have been transformed into a colorful midway, with dozens of booths and counters offering a variety of wares.

Highlight will be the silent auction of three magnificent dollhouses, a colorful hooked rug and a double wedding-ring pattern quilt, all donated by their creators.

Co-chairmen of the 1977 fair are Mrs. Alfred E. Warren and Mrs. J. Ross Bush.

Woman's Club Group to Meet

Mrs. Leo C. Huettner will open her Hawthorne road home to the Grosse Pointe Woman's Club Discussion and Garden Group next Wednesday, November 9.

Members gather at 1 o'clock for a program and tea. Guest speaker Donna Stuart will talk on Genealogy.

Mrs. Stuart, who has been awarded a G.R.S. degree by the National Board for Certification of Genealogists, is a graduate of Wheaton College, the University of Michigan and the Famous Writers School.

Currently, she is an instructor in needlepoint at the War Memorial Center. She is also serving as chairman of the Riding committee at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club.

Members may make reservations by contacting the group's chairman, Mrs. Lloyd A. Beemer, at 881-3615.

PARADISE FOUND

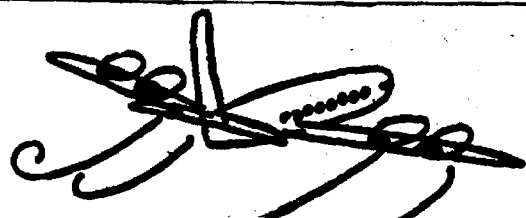

30.30 ct. lavender jade, .85 ct. emeralds, .75 ct. diamonds, 573 grains pure gold

Some people take their pleasure from lying in the sun. Others seem to think that climbing mountains can be fun. I've watched week-end sailors smile when the wind hit their sails. I've seen Frenchmen savor the taste of broiled snails. A million things that people do. But none is so profound. As to look upon my lavender jade and feel my "Paradise Found."

Society News Gathered from the Pointes

Sanstead-Lee Troth Is Told

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Lee, II, former Pointers who now make their home in Dorset, Vt., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Louise, to William A. Sanstead, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Sanstead, of Pensacola Beach, Fla. A June wedding is planned.

Miss Lee, who attended Kerby Elementary School, received an Associate of Arts degree from Cazenovia College in 1969, worked for six years as assistant to the principal of the Mount Laurel School for retarded children in Manchester Center, Vt., and will receive a Bachelor of Science degree in Special Education from Florida State University in 1978.

She is the granddaughter of the late Ivy Lee. Her father was for 30 years a partner in the Ivy Lee and T. J. Ross public relations counselling firm serving for 25 years in Detroit. He is a past-president of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education.

The prospective bridegroom was graduated from Thiel College with a Bachelor of Arts degree in History in 1969, served three-and-a-half years in the United States Air Force and received a Bachelor of Science degree with a major in Finance and a minor in Accounting from Florida State University in 1976.

He now lives in Gloster, Miss., where he is loan officer of the Amite County Bank.

His father served in the United States Navy during World War II and in the Korean War, and is now associated with Westinghouse Electrical Corporation in Pensacola as a metallurgical engineer in the nuclear power industry.

Macomb Law Wives To Host Art Auction

Lawyers' Wives of Macomb County will sponsor a benefit art exhibit and auction tomorrow, Friday, November 4, at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres served during a 7 to 8 o'clock preview hour.

Art Guild Galleries of Bohemia, N.Y., promise international artists and a certificate of authenticity for each purchase. Prizes will be featured.

The public is welcome. Admission is $3.50 per person. Tickets and reservations may be obtained in advance by calling auction chairman Mrs. Francis Hearsch, 752-9437. Tickets also will be available at the door.

Proceeds will be used to fund law scholarships and other charitable projects.

'Hello There, F. Scott ...'

Review Club Meets Nov. 8

Mrs. Alfred W. Massnick, of Lochmoor boulevard, will introduce guest speaker William J. Kalmar, of University place, at the Tuesday, November 8, meeting of the Detroit Review Club at Lochmoor Club.

Mrs. Massnick, with Mrs. Wayne Garrett, DRC president, will act as official hostess at the noon luncheon preceding Mr. Kalmar's talk.

"Rip Off" is his title. Mr. Kalmar, assistant vice-president, Auditing Department, Detroit Bank and Trust Company, will tell of the more than 9,000 criminal fraud offenses reported in last year's Detroit tri-county area.

"Although con artists prey on the elderly, anyone can be victimized by their schemes," he maintains. "Your only defense against these professional smooth talkers is to be aware of their tactics."

An expert on the subject of swindles and their prevention, Mr. Kalmar has appeared on local and national radio and television shows, discussing "Slick Swindles."

He co-authored an extensive article on the subject which appeared in the Detroit News and many outstate newspapers. He maintains an extensive file on swindles.

How To Be A Parent? Try Love...and Learning

By Katie Elzila

I'm a nut for self-help books. After our first child, Mikael, was born, I read all the books on parenting I could find. My father-in-law thought I was trying too hard and kept saying, "All you have to do is love him."

Well, as Jacqueline Susann or somebody else has probably already said, "Love is not enough." And I went on to weigh down my already-groaning bookshelf with more how-to parent books.

This fall I took down some of the old standbys to review before Mikael marched off to his first day of kindergarten.

I tried to be casual about it, but it was, after all, our first child's first day of school and we were really curious to find out how he would like his new teacher, how his new teacher would like him and how he would get along with the other kids. In short: how would he like this important, new part of his life?

"Fine," was the answer. "But, what did you do?" "I don't remember."

"Did you have snacks?" I probed, food-oriented as usual.

"I don't remember."

"Did you sing any songs?" "Yes."

"Which ones?" "I don't remember."

He wasn't being belligerent. He really didn't remember.

I gave up, but later that evening watched fascinated as my husband sat down with Mikael and proceeded to draw out quite a bit of information from him in a very quiet and loving way.

I remembered what psychologist Haim Ginott recommends in his popular book "Between Parent and Child," (Avon, 1969, paperback).

Ginott suggests that rather than asking your child questions that bring worn-out answers such as "How was school?" or "What did you do today?" parents could make statements that convey their understanding of the challenges at school: "You look as though you had a good day" or "You seem glad to be home."

Ginott claims that these kinds of open-ended statements encourage meaningful communication between parent and child.

Ginott has a lot of other interesting things to say about the art of conversing with children.

So does Dr. Thomas Gordon in his popular book, "Parent Effectiveness Training," (Peter H. Wyden, Inc., 1970), which is the basis of a current series on Channel 56. Gordon gives lessons in how to talk and listen effectively to children—a skill he calls "active listening."

Rudolf Dreikurs is another child psychologist whose ideas about parenting have been valuable to me. His book, "Children: The Challenge," (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, 1964, also in paperback) offers much practical advice about dealing effectively with many familiar discipline problems.

In Washington, D.C., from where we moved last year, there were many parent study groups based on Dreikurs' book.

Another helpful book on my shelf is "How to Parent" by Dr. Fitzhugh Dodson, (Signet classics, 1971, paperback), who offers much usable advice and opens his book with an important disclaimer.

He reminds parents that they "cannot learn to raise a child exclusively by reading a book. You have to learn to apply the book to the actual real-life situation and to your unique child."

As I look at my bookshelf, I can see where my father-in-law got the idea that I am trying too hard. He probably thinks I am trying to learn something in my head that should come spontaneously from my heart.

Thinking it over, I guess I feel that "all you need is love" — and a little education won't hurt either.

Our society gives very little, if any, training in how to be a good parent: something I'd like to be. I guess that's why I'm a nut for self-help books.

Holly Fair Slated For November 10

Carols, Candies and Hand-Crafted Creations to Be Featured at First English Evangelical Lutheran Church

Begin plans for Christmas, 1977, 18 months ago? Women of First English Evangelical Lutheran Church, Vernier road at Wedgewood drive, did just that for their Holly Fair. It will be held one week from today, Thursday, November 10, from 10 in the morning to 6 in the evening.

"We've been working at least that long," says Mrs. Robert Olsen, co-chairman of the event with Mrs. Douglas Cooke. Shops featuring Christmas gifts and decorations, baked

Kappa Alpha Theta Group I Will Meet

Mrs. Raymond Walk, of Park lane, has invited members of Group I of Kappa Alpha Theta to her home next Wednesday, November 9, at 1 o'clock.

Mrs. Joseph G. Black, Jr., alumnae club president, urges all to attend and invites new Thetas to call 884-6989 for additional details. Mrs. Black notes that the group will be starting work on its national convention boutique item — and will need support from everyone.

and canned goods and hand-crafted items for the home will be in several rooms of First English Evangelical Lutheran's education building.

There'll be a Kitchen and Bath Shop, an Old English Garden, an area For Men Only, a Sports Corner and a children's shop For Grandmothers Only.

"We feel we have many things that reflect quite a bit of creativity and high quality in handicraft," says Mrs. Cooke. They include plant ladders, placemats and napkins, hand-embroidered dresses for girls, lap robes and ceramic Christmas ornaments.

The Fair's Sugar and Spice Shop will feature homemade breads, cakes and pies, home-canned chili sauce, pickles, jams and jellies and fudge sauce and other candies.

"We're also featuring a Tasting Table with things to sample and purchase," says Mrs. Cooke. "We'll have

Patrice Munsel Opens Celebrity Series

Flanking PATRICE MUNSEL, star of opera, stage and television, who opened this year's Grosse Pointe Celebrity Series with a mid-October program at Woods Theatre I are BARRY SPERO, executive director

Wendell Garrett, editor of Antiques magazine, prominent author and historian, will appear Thursday, November 10, at 11 o'clock as the second featured personality in the series of five lectures.

Subsequent attractions are Jim Thorne, explorer and diver, who will spotlight "Mysteries of Inner Space—cheeses, dips and candies there."

"Our Old English Garden will have lots for plant and nature lovers," adds Mrs. Olsen. "We'll have aprons, decorated watering cans, bird feeders and terrariums."

Lunch will be served in the church fellowship hall from 11:30 to 2 o'clock. A snack shop featuring bagels, cider, doughnuts and coffee will be open through the day.

Nursery care will be provided.

Members of Chavering, which according to director Kathryn Wesseling means "good friends" in Hebrew, are Linda Ford, of Harper Woods, and Pointers Lisa and Suzanne Thomas, Kimberly and Nathan Judson, John Ulmer, Meredith Longley and Daniel Ellison.

Two Detroit facilities, Luther Haven, a nursing home, and Calvary Senior Center are among the groups which will receive funds from Fair proceeds.

MR. and MRS. JAMES SAROS, of Berkshire road, announce the birth of a daughter JACLYN MICHELE August 29. Mrs. Saros is the daughter of MRS. PEGGY HICKS, of St. Clair Shores, and SHERMAN CUTLER of North Carolina. Paternal grandparents are MR. and MRS. SPIRO SAROS, of St. Clair Shores.

Hayride Night for Newcomers

Grosse Pointe Newcomers Club members will take in a bit of country fresh air via a hayride and barn party at their Saturday, November 12, get-together.

Party chairmen Gary and Sharon Vasher have planned an evening of square dancing, a bonfire and hot dog roast after the hayride, all for $13.50 per couple.

Wes and Julie Rea, of Hampton road, will call the square dance figures.

Getting ready to warm the wine are committee members John and Sue Kolveried, Neal and Candy Miller, Dale and Sue Steiger and Joe and Lou Sucher.

Meeting place for partygoers is Green Acres in 26 Mile road. Time is 7:30 o'clock. Guests of Newcomers are welcome.

Couples who have recently moved from an area not touching the boundaries of Grosse Pointe are eligible for Newcomers membership, and may contact the membership chairman at 882-6992 or 882-8461 for further information.

Cancer Group Meets Tonight

Norma Oberhauser will be honored guest at a Living with Cancer meeting this evening, Thursday, November 3, at 7:30 o'clock in the Ladies Parlor of Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church.

The meeting is open to all cancer patients and their families. Additional information may be obtained by calling the Cottage Hospital Branch of the American Cancer Society, 343-9006.

PCDC Will Mark First Anniversary

Audio-Visual Presentation to Highlight November 4 Program; Tour of Center Is Also Scheduled

The Parent-Child Development Center at the Merrill-Palmer Institute will celebrate its first anniversary Friday, November 4, and among those participating in the anniversary program will be George E. Parker, III, of Harbor Hill, Merrill-Palmer board chairman.

Other Pointers who plan to attend include trustees Mrs. William C. Ford, Gaylord W. Gillis, Jr., Carlton M. Higbie, Jr., Gilbert Hudson, Mrs. Elliott H. Phillips, Robert W. Spencer, Cleveland Thurber, Mrs. Theodore H. Mecke, Jr., Peter Fink, Charles B. Gorey, Jr., and Mrs. John V. Renchard.

They will be joined by representatives of other PCDC's, the United States Office of Child Development, civic leaders, legislators, edu-

The program begins at 10 in the morning, and will be highlighted by an audio-visual presentation, "A Mother's Involvement in the PCDC."

A tour of the center and informal conversations with parents and staff, as well as an opportunity to learn more about the Merrill-Palmer Institute and its other programs, will follow the formal presentation.

PCDC is part of a national program in parent education. Its primary goal is to provide

Arts and Crafts Fair Set at Lutheran High

The Ladies of Lutheran High School East's Grosse Pointe Circle, headed by Lois Timm, will hold a bake sale in conjunction with the Holiday Arts and Crafts Fair set for Saturday, November 5, from 10 in the morning until 9 in the evening at the school.

Admission donation is 50 cents. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

Forty dealers will be featured, plus freshmade doughnuts while-you-wait and concession stands offering pizza, hot dogs, drinks and snacks.

educational opportunities, practical skills and a variety of supportive systems for families with limited incomes who are raising very young children.

The program involves 120 families: 60 who spend six hours a week with their child at the center and 60 who are in a control group. The children are between two and three months when they enter the program.

PCDC is based on the assumption that children's growth and development will be richly enhanced by working with families, especially mothers. This program has implications for all families, because until now little research has been done on how to be an effective parent.

Discussing the center's accomplishments, Mrs. Dorothy Kispert, director, says, "Our first year of operation at PCDC has been one of hard work and struggle as we have attempted to share knowledge and support sound child-rearing practices."

Woman's Club Sets Scholarship Lunch

"Autumn Splendor in Fashions" by Margaret Diamond will be in the spotlight at the Grosse Pointe Woman's Club scholarship luncheon Wednesday, November 16, in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Crystal Ballroom. Meeting recently to finalize plans for the benefit were, (left to right), MRS. EDWARD EISSA, general chairman, MRS. JOHN J. KELLY, co-chairman of tickets and reservations, MRS. ANDREW BREMER, JR., and MRS. SAMUEL D'ANGELO, general co-chairmen, MRS. JOHN ELIAS, decorations chairman, and MRS. DALLAS E. NEWKIRK, (standing), tickets and reservations chairman. Mrs. Newkirk, 884-4290, and Mrs. Kelly, 881-7683, will be happy to take reservation calls.

Pewabic Hosts Alumni Show

Ceramic work by 10 alumni is featured in the first Alumni Show at Michigan State University's Pewabic Pottery.

Joining his former students in contributing work for the combined exhibit and sale is Jim Powell, instructor since the historic pottery in East Jefferson avenue became an MSU adult education center.

The exhibit is open to the public free of charge from noon to 4:30 o'clock Monday to Saturday through November 19.

Visitors also may view the Commemorative Show honoring the 70th anniversary of the pottery's opening in 1907.

It has been consolidated as a permanent Pewabic Museum by the museum's curator Thomas Brunk.

For this museum, on the pottery's second floor, there is a one-time, lifelong admission fee of $1 for adults—but no charge for children.

Parking at the pottery across from Water Works Park is free.

Alumni selected to exhibit in the show include Susan Bolt, Jerry Berta, Madely Kaczmarczyk, Marcey Brede, Caroline Court, Carolyn Judson, Betty Lurie Jack Rogers, Johanna Stevens and Ken Thompson.

Detroit Alliance Hosts Lecture

The Alliance Francaise de Detroit will present Mlle. Francoise Bellaigue lecturing on "The Art Center George Pompidou 10 Months after its Opening: Projects and Realities," tomorrow, Friday, November 4, in the Detroit Institute of Arts Lecture Hall.

The program, co-sponsored by the DIA's Education Department, opens at 3 in the afternoon with a film on the history of the Plateau Beaubourg where the Pompidou Center was built.

Mlle. Bellaigue will speak in French at 3:30 o'clock, illustrating her talk with slides. Francoise Bellaigue, press secretary of the Centre Pompidou, began her career in public relations with the Festival de Musique et d'Art Lyrique d'Aix en Provence. She has been an editor of the French magazine, created the publicity department of Pathe-Marconi records and was PR director for the Orchestre de Paris.

The French Minister for Cultural Affairs appointed her press counselor for the new center in 1974. In 1976, she was appointed press secretary.

Admission to her lecture is free. Mlle. Bellaigue will answer questions in English.

Next event on the Detroit Alliance's 1977-78 agenda is a private visit to the DIA's Matisse Exhibit December 8, to be followed by a candlelight dinner in the museum's Kresge Court.

Mrs. Kruse, a DIA docent, Parisian Marketplace At St. Philip, Stephen

A Parisian Marketplace is the theme of the 1977 Christmas bazaar to be held this Saturday, November 5, at St. Philip and St. Stephen Episcopal Church, Frankfort at Lakewood, Detroit.

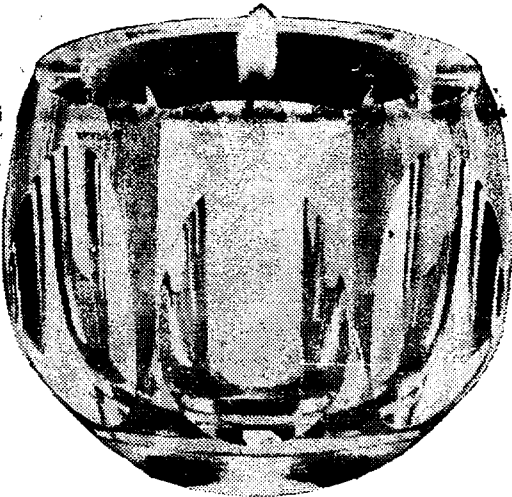

Hours are 10 to 4 o'clock. A hot luncheon will be served from 11 to 2. Baked goods and gift items will be available, and a special feature this year will be pastel portrait artist Bette Prudden, of Brys drive.

Present 'Music For A While'

"Music For A While," a morning concert series presented by professional musicians in the Detroit area, has scheduled its second concert of the season for next Thursday, November 10, at 10 o'clock in the third floor Choir Room of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

The program includes a performance of Bach's "Hochester was ich habe," from Cantata No. 39, featuring Joan Dudd, of Ann Arbor, soprano, Deborah Kuick, of South Lyon, flutist, and Fontaine Laing, of Novi, pianist.

"Trio Sonata in C minor," by Quantz will be presented by Nancy Ambrose of Roslyn road, oboist, and Elizabeth Priebe, of Anita avenue, flutist, (they are sisters), and Virginia Shover, pianist, of Hampton road.

The program continues with Joan Dudd's performance of Wolf's "From the Italienisches Liederbuch." She will be accompanied by Fontaine Laing.

Barbara Porbe, violinist, of Berkshire road, and Louise Gall, pianist, of Wedgewood drive, will conclude the concert with "Sonata for Piano and Violin in A Major, Op. 100" by Brahms.

Admission is $2 at the door. Elevator service and ample parking are available at the rear of the church.

More information may be obtained by calling 885-8110 or 882-2983.

Pointers Open Music Series

Two Grosse Pointe musical artists will perform in the opening concert of a chamber music series which premieres Saturday, November 5, at Marygrove College.

Roma Riddell, of Bishop road, will be guest soloist. Lawrence LaGore, of Three Mile drive, will be featured on piano.

LaGore, a Music professor at Marygrove who performs with the Detroit Symphony, is director of the "Saturdays at Four" series.

Monthly programs will feature leading professional vocalists from the Detroit area along with members of the DSO in small ensemble groups.

"We hope that the unusual concert time of 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon will be attractive to music lovers who find conflicts with evening musical events," says LaGore.

"It will be an enjoyable prelude to other Saturday social activities. No concert is expected to run beyond 5:30."

The series will be held in Madam Cadillac Hall on the Marygrove campus, where acoustics and intimacy are ideally suited for chamber music, according to LaGore. An afterglow reception will follow each program.

Other guest artists for the first concert are flutist Clement Barone and cellist John Thurman.

Admission is $5; $2 for students. Tickets may be purchased at the door or reserved by calling 862-8000.

They're Searching for Hearts of Gold

Reviewing plans at a recent Heart of Gold Award Council meeting are a Pointe quintet, (left to right), LIND VAUGHAN, LOIS TIMM, LAILA YOUNG, ANN GEROW and SHIRLEY KENNEDY. Mrs. Vaughan is a representative to the Council from the Junior League of Detroit, Mrs. Timm from the Federation of Women's Clubs of Metropolitan Detroit, Mrs. Young from the Music Hall Association, Mrs. Gerow from the Detroit Panhellenic Association and Mrs. Kennedy from the Junior Group of Goodwill Industries. Heart of Gold, co-sponsored by the Award Council and Women for the United Foundation, is an annual program to honor Detroit tri-county area volunteers, both men and women, for outstanding service in their communities. Nominations for Heart of Gold awards are open to the public and must be submitted by next Thursday, November 10. Announcement of the award winners will be made at a February 14 luncheon. Further information and nomination forms may be obtained by calling 965-7100.

Plan Unitarian Singles Night

The Grosse Pointe Unitarian Singles will meet tomorrow, Friday, November 4, at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church in Maumee avenue, where, instead of their usual format, they will attend the Circle Theatre's presentation of "Don Juan in Hell."

Curtain time is 7:30 o'clock. Tickets, at $3.50 per person, will be available at the door. Wine and cheese will follow the play. Further information may be obtained by contacting Martha Shumaker, 777-4816, or Neil Oliver, 882-5180.

Beethoven Reprise Receptions

Antal Dorati took the Ford auditorium podium for the first time as Detroit Symphony Orchestra music director last night, conducting Beethoven's Symphonies No. 1, 4 and 5 before a sell-out crowd.

His debut as DSO music director and the debut of the DSO's Beethoven Festival were followed by the first of two reprise receptions hosted by the DSO Junior Women's Association. The second will follow tomorrow evening's concert.

Special guests came from Washington, D.C., where Maestro Dorati was music director of the Washington Symphony. The Detroit area and the entire state of Michigan were represented by civic leaders, state legislators and presidents of colleges and cultural institutions.

Pointe Symphony Juniors serving as reception hostesses include Pat (Mrs. Patrick) McKeever, Judy (Mrs. Herman) Mozer, Margaret (Mrs. David) Lindner, chairman, Pat (Mrs. John, Jr.) Young, Maralyn (Mrs. Henry) Domzalski, Mado (Mrs. Kim) Lie, Betty (Mrs. John H., III) Brennan and Maureen (Mrs. Carl) Allison.

Mrs. T's 'Small Exhibit'

It's a small exhibit—10 pieces in oil—but it's causing big comment at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. But then: any exhibit by Virginia Durbin Thibodeau is a Major Event.

Mrs. T lives in Broadstone road, works at the Grosse Pointe Academy and shows all over, from Washington's Smithsonian Institution to the south of France. Her "small" exhibit continues at the GPYC through this week. See it.

Sharon McTighe Married in June

Michael Laskowski Are at Home in California; Venice Lace Accents Bride's Traditional Gown of Ivory Qiana

The wedding of Sharon McTighe and Michael Laskowski Friday, June 17, in Saint Paul's-on-the-Lakeshore, with Monsignor Francis X. Canfield presiding, was followed by a reception at Lochmoor Club.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Raymond Dresden, of Ridgemoor road, and the late William Joyce McTighe, chose an ivory Qiana gown for the 4:30 o'clock rites.

Honor matron Mrs. Timothy Woods, the bridegroom's sister, wore dusty rose matte jersey, piped in pink, styled with cap sleeves and a Queen Anne neckline, as did bridesmaids Jane Laskowski and Mrs. Robert Klemenhagen, two other sisters of the bridegroom, and Laurie Parres, the bride's cousin.

They carried daisies in colors complementing their dresses, sweetpeas and baby's-breath.

Flower girl Anne Marie Tommelein was dressed in long, ivory, brocaded batiste. She wore a wreath of flowers in her hair and carried a basket of daisies, sweetpeas and baby's-breath.

Mr. Woods was best man for his brother-in-law, son of the Leo Laskowskis, of Whittier, Calif.

The bride's brother, Gerry McTighe, played the organ, and another brother, Bill McTighe, sang, at his sister's request, "Ave Verum Corpus" at the offertory and "Panis Angelicus" at communion.

Another brother, Brian McTighe, ushered, with William Blaylock, Mr. Klemenhagen and John Parres, cousin of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore dusty pink chiffon, fashioned with cape sleeves and a tiered skirt, and pinned matching Sweetheart roses to her purse.

The bridegroom's mother accented her long, blue jersey dress, trimmed with beading at neck and sleeves, with a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

The newlyweds vacationed in the west, visiting Colorado. They are at home in South Pasadena, Calif.

Coming from Pittsburgh, Pa., for the wedding were the bride's grandmother, Mrs. P. J. McTighe, and her uncles and aunts, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. McTighe and Mr. and Mrs. Brian O'Connor.

Mrs. Michael Laskowski

Setting for the wedding of SHARON McTIGHE and Mr. Laskowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Laskowski, of Whittier, Calif., late Friday afternoon, June 17, was Saint Paul's-on-the-Lakeshore. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Raymond Dresden, of Ridgemoor road, and the late William Joyce McTighe.

Blair-Skowron Rites Planned

Plans for a December 17 wedding are being made by Elizabeth Jayne Skowron and Major Dean Howard Blair, USAF, whose engagement has been announced by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Skowron, of Grand Marais Boulevard.

University of Idaho. He is a career officer in the United States Air Force stationed in Denver, Colo., presently on special assignment in Washington, D.C.

The bride-elect was graduated from Ursuline Academy, Wilmington, Del., and received her Bachelor of Science in Nursing from Georgetown University and her Master of Science in Nursing from Catholic University, Washington, D.C.

She is affiliated with Sigma Theta Tau nursing honor society, the Red Cross, the National League for Nursing and the American Nurses Association.

Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sophus Blair, of Tucson, Ariz., is an alumnus of Buhl High School, Buhl, Idaho, and holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Business from the

Mrs. Robert C. Moody

JANET MARIE OLSEN, daughter of the Robert W. Olsens, of Lakeshore lane, spoke her marriage vows to Mr. Moody, son of Mrs. Clarence Moody, of Midland, and the late Mr. Moody, Friday, July 1, in First English Lutheran Church.

Miss Olsen Bride Of Robert Moody

Re-embroidered Alencon Lace Accents Her Ivory Organza Gown and Matching Picture Hat; Pair Are at Home in California

First English Lutheran Church was the setting for the marriage of Janet Marie Olsen and Robert Clem Moody. The Reverend Paul F. Keppler officiated at the 6 o'clock candlelight ceremony Friday, July 1. A reception followed at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The former Miss Olsen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Olsen, of Lakeshore lane. Mr. Moody is the son of Mrs. Clarence Moody, of Midland, and the late Mr. Moody.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a cap-sleeved ivory organza gown accented with re-embroidered Alencon lace. A white gardenia was pinned to her matching picture hat. She carried a cascade of fresh ivy, gardenias and stephanotis, accented with coral roses.

Her attendants selected cap-sleeved frocks of polyester-jean. Gina Campione, maid of honor, chose coral, Judy and Patty Olsen, bridesmaids and sisters of the bride, wore blue.

They carried white baskets filled with ivy, baby's-breath, crepe roses and ribbon streamers matching their gowns.

James Moody, of Midland, served as his brother's best man. Ushers were William Fortino, cousin of the bridegroom, and Robert C. Olsen, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride chose a gown of mauve chiffon and pinned a matching rose to her handbag. The bridegroom's mother selected a variegated brown chiffon gown with a white rose corsage.

The newlyweds vacationed on Mackinac Island. They are at home in California.

Slate Human Rights Program

Human Rights Day will be celebrated by members of the Women's Association of Goodwill Industries next Wednesday, November 9, when guest speaker will be Susan Whittemore.

Preceding her introduction by Dr. Rosa L. Gragg, program chairman, a donation sandwich luncheon will be served at noon in the Goodwill Building, Brush street at East Grand boulevard.

Miss Whittemore, Michigan director for CARE—the Co-operative for American Relief Everywhere—has been actively engaged in the Human Rights movement both as a volunteer and professional worker.

Before assuming her CARE position in 1967, she traveled as a volunteer for the organization in Central America, the Philippines, Vietnam, the Near East and India. She recently visited the African nations of Chad, Niger, Kenya and Ethiopia.

CARE administers American voluntary funds all over the world on a completely discrimination-free basis.

Miss Whittemore is an active member of the League of Women Voters, the American Association of University Women, the Michigan International Council, the Women's committee of the Detroit Round Table of Christians and Jews, the Program committee of Camp Fire Girls of Metropolitan Detroit, the Coordinating Council of Human Relations and the Midwest China-American Friendship Association.

She is the former executive secretary of the United Nations Association of Detroit and was awarded a City of Detroit Medallion for her work with the UNA.

The meeting is open to the public. Luncheon reservations are being taken by Geraldine Sellers, 886-7342, until Monday, November 7.

All meetings and membership in the Goodwill Women's Association are open to Set Maryknoll Guild's Dinner

The Reverend Joseph Corso's Maryknollers Guild, founded in Grosse Pointe Park in 1967 by Miss Mary Palazzolo, will celebrate its 10th anniversary Sunday, November 13, with a dinner at the Chateau Rouge.

The guild now numbers approximately 100 active members, under Mary Shelby, president, and Frances Anderson, secretary-treasurer.

It has the gratitude of over 4,000 persons whom Father Corso, who will be honored guest at the dinner, has ministered to, both spiritually and physically.

Maryknoll was founded as a missionary order June 29, 1911. The guild's anniversary celebrations begin with mass at 2 o'clock, followed by dinner with set-ups and a cash bar.

Donation is $10-per-person in advance. No tickets will be available at the door. Ticket chairperson is Mary Archambault. Reservations may be made by calling 527-7830 or 886-0213.

It's Holiday Fair Time At Immanuel Lutheran

A two-day Holiday Mart and Art Fair has been planned this year by the Immanuel Lutheran Church Women's Guild.

Place is the church, Dickerson at Chandler Park drive, Detroit. Dates are Friday, November 11, and Saturday, November 12. Hours both days are 10:30 in the morning to 2:30 in the afternoon.

In charge of a luncheon, to be served Friday only from 11 to 12:30 o'clock, is Margaret Driscoll, of Whittier road. A Snack Bar will be available Saturday.

Assisting Doris Cinder, of Warren, general chairman, is co-chairman Ann Parsons, of Washington road. Planning committee members include Pat Thomas, of Balfour road, and Sharon Andromalus, of Roseville.

A Bake Sale will be featured as well as booths of offering Christmas decorations, Swedish imports, knitted articles, attic treasures and two new-this-year departments: Pine Cone Wreaths and a Children's Only Shop.

Once again, the Art Fair will be under the direction of Judy Levin, of Nottingham road.

Kiernan-McDuffee Vows Exchanged

Gregory Renaud and Scott Renaud McDuffee Give Their Sister in Marriage; Pair Are at Home in Grayton Road

Sts. Peter and Paul Catholic Church, the church in which her great-grandmother was married nearly 100 years ago, was chosen by Renee Renaud McDuffee for her own wedding Saturday, June 11, to Bruce Hedy Kiernan.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Leon Philip Sankar, of Cadieux road, and the late Daniel Webster Scott McDuffee.

Mr. Kiernan is the son of Mrs. Gordon Arthur Kiernan, of Grayton road, and the late Mr. Kiernan.

The wedding party entered and left the church to the sound of bagpipes. The 3:30 o'clock rites were followed by a reception at the Royal Eagle in the Parkstone, after which the newlyweds left to vacation for two weeks in Vermont.

They are making their home in Grayton road.

The bride's gown featured a long-sleeved, high-necked bodice of lace and a dotted swiss skirt. Lace trimmed her wide-brimmed, white hat, and she carried an arrangement of baby white roses and carnations, interspersed with baby's-breath and cornflowers.

The former Miss McDuffee, given in marriage by her brothers, Gregory Renaud McDuffee and Scott Renaud McDuffee, was attended by a sister-in-law, Mrs. Scott Renaud McDuffee, as matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Gregory Renaud McDuffee, Judith Domzalski, Francesca

Cinelli and Marilyn Kuhar, of Youngstown, O., and Washington, D.C.

They wore short-sleeved, white eyelet blouses, cornflower blue eyelet jumpers and white picture hats. They carried wicker baskets filled with baby's-breath and French silk flowers.

Gordon Arthur Kiernan came from Old Greenwich,

Conn., to act as his brother's best man. In the usher corps were Gary Haberkorn, David Neeme, Lance Olson and Bruce Nichols.

The bride's mother wore a yellow chiffon dress with braid trim. The bridegroom's mother selected a dress of beige, maize and lilac jersey. Both chose orchid corsages.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by John E. Brink

Went to the Ren-Center to have dinner at the Summit—the one at the top of the Plaza. As we sat there taking in the absolutely fantastic sight, the thought occurred that maybe Toronto isn't so terribly far ahead of us after all! While the cuisine and service were terrific, they could take a lesson from Joe Beyer, owner of the Pontchartrain Wine Cellar.

But, to the subject—Real Estate! It's obvious how valuable the success of the Ren-Center is to us all. I'd estimate that in property value to our Grosse Pointe homes, its total success could make our property appreciate as much as 20%! I won't bother to attempt to prove that conjecture but you can be sure that many knowledgeable people do agree. I told my wife that if every home owner in Wayne County would use the Ren-Center, at least once this year, the center's success would be assured. We've been to the Ren Center about six times now and every time it gets a little better. So, strange as it might seem—take your wife or girl friend downtown to dinner this week and watch your property values soar!

People, friends and business associates keep asking about our Cul-de-sacs! But now, they have something new to ask about and that is the government investigation of the intent of the Cul-de-sacs! We know its purpose, you know its purpose and now I think the government officials know. But it does seem a shame that we should have to defend a community development program that is obviously so open and honest in its attempt to simply make our streets safer from traffic, more beautiful and consequently make our property more valuable! How can you help? Well, when our associate calls to deliver your brochure and questionnaire, please don't give him a hard time—just fill out the questionnaire whether you are for or against it, that's all. We'll tally the results and let the proper cities know your verdict! Any question? Call Grosse Pointe Real Estate Co. 882-0087.

September Rites for Linda Baldock

Paul and Brent Baldock Are Ring Bearers for Their Mother's Marriage to Edward Robert Steepe

At half past five in the afternoon Friday, September 30, in Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, Linda Aileen Baldock and Edward Robert Steepe exchanged marriage vows.

The rites at which The Reverend George F. Gillette, of Detroit's Bethany Presbyterian Church, presided were followed by a reception at the Chateau Rouge.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Paul Shisler, of Hidden lane, and the late Mr. Shisler, wore a floor length gown of ivory cotton lace. Val lace edged her high collar and bracelet sleeves, and a wide, gros-grain ribbon defined her waist.

She carried white roses and baby mums, with English ivy.

Mrs. William Ditrappi, honor matron for her sister, and bridesmaids Paula Feloni and Elizabeth Steepe, the bridegroom's sister, selected long frocks of green spray polyester knit, styled with quilted, scoop necks and kimono sleeves.

Their Empire waists were caught with spaghetti ties under their arms. They carried nosegays of roses and mums in autumn shades, with baby's-breath.

Donald Francis Steepe was his brother's best man. Ushering were two other brothers, Thomas Patrick and Joseph Charles Steepe. They are the sons of Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Donald Steepe, of Glen Arbor lane.

The bride's sons, Paul and Brent Baldock, were ring bearers.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length polyester knit in autumn tones, long-sleeved and featuring a gathered, Empire waist. She placed green cymbidium orchids in her hair.

A floral spray accented the front of the bridegroom's mother's floor length, grey polyester gown. Her shoulders were veiled in chiffon, and she, too, wore orchids in her hair.

The newlyweds are at home in St. Clair Shores.

Local Church Women to Meet

Members of the Women's Association of the Grosse Pointe Congregational/American Baptist Church will gather for their monthly meeting at the church next Tuesday, November 8.

Mrs. Dudley Arnold, president, will officiate at a business session in the church lounge at 11:30 o'clock. It will be followed by luncheon at 1, prepared by the Mary Group.

Mrs. Paul Weber and Mrs. William Reid, program chairmen, have invited Jonell Landis, a missionary to Japan, to speak. The program is scheduled to start around 2 o'clock.

All church women are invited to attend. Reservations may be made by calling the church office before noon Monday, November 7. Baby sitting is available, upon prior request.

The church women are

It's Only Natural
by L.C. Termini N.D.
If your child is going through a stage of insisting upon eating only one kind of food, don't worry too much. It is a fairly common phenomena among preschoolers and it usually does not last long enough to do any real harm. But, you should set some time limits so that there is a proper intake of vitamins and protein. For instance, you might promise the favorite food at one meal if your child will eat other foods at other meals. Your child might prefer going hungry for a few days rather than acquiesce but will probably come around pretty soon. Also it is a good idea to have a well liked child multiple vitamin-mineral supplement. There are many good tasting excellent ones available.

Enjoy your favorite foods "naturally." you'll find them at VIM & VIGOR HEALTH FOODS, 21151 Mack, 886-9466. We also feature a wide variety of vitamins, including our own fine quality Vim & Vigor vitamins. Our vitamins are free from salt, sugar and starch, have an expiration date to insure freshness, have 100% natural ingredients, and have a control number to assure uniform high quality, and we give a 10% discount to senior citizens on our own vitamins. Open: 9:30-9 Mon.-Sat., 11-5 Sun.

HEALTHY HINT:
Calcium is essential to good health — relaxes nerves, it's a natural nerve "tonic."

Phase I Singles To Hear Austin

Michigan Secretary of State Richard Austin will be the speaker at a meeting of Phase I at 7:45 o'clock this Sunday, November 6, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Singles between the ages of 20 and 39 are invited to attend. A social hour follows the program.

Phase I, offering a wide variety of programs and social events, meets every Sunday evening at Memorial Church.

Further information on the group's activities may be obtained by contacting Gust Jahnke at 882-5330.

Harvest Dinner Set at Church

Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church will hold its Harvest Dinner tomorrow, Friday, November 4, from 5 to 7:30 o'clock. Tickets, at $3.50 for adults, $1.50 for children under 12, are by advance sale only. Reservations may be obtained by contacting Helen Becker at 884-5197.

The church is located in Mack avenue, at the corner of Torrey road.

Getting Started? Retired? Cautious Investor?
If you're a young couple, currently renting, you know that your rental dollars are really lost to you — they build up no equity to purchase that home of your own. An income property can provide you with your own apartment, plus a rental apartment that pays part of the bills. About half the cost can be deducted in taxes and most important, each payment builds an equity to be used when you find that dream home.

For a retired couple, that rental apartment can provide a nice supplement to your retirement income and under the new (and proposed) tax laws you would benefit even more.

The cautious investor already knows the benefits of real estate investment and all we can add is that the excellent condition of these units will require little outlay for maintenance.

The first unit on Wayburn has (on each floor), 2 bedrooms, living room and dining room. It's been recently redecorated and has separate basements with individual furnaces for each unit. A good solid income property that can provide a nice return on your dollars.

The second Wayburn property is also in excellent condition. The first floor apartment has 2 bedrooms, a living room and a dining room. The second floor is a cozy 2 bedroom apartment with a combined living room, dining area. A perfect choice for the retired couple.

Pointers Drawn by Hobby Show

Several Pointers will take part in the Detroit Fall Hobby Show Friday through Sunday, November 4 to 6, at the East Eight Mile Armory. There will be a variety of arts, crafts and gifts at the show as well as instructional seminars, make and take booths and product demonstrations.

Among the numerous exhibitors participating will be Evelyn Westten, owner of "Evelyn's" in The Park. She will demonstrate and sell craft kits as well as the latest in hand-made Christmas ornaments.

Captain Nemo's, of Mack avenue, will display gift items. Farms artist Ann Muccoli, of Muccoli Studio Gallery, will display jewelry and paintings.

The show will be open Friday and Saturday from 12 to 10 p.m. and on Sunday from 12 to 8 p.m.

There also will be contest to select the most unusual hobby. Those interested in participating in the hobby contest should call 885-6900 Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Feature Xmas Crafts Of German-Americans

Members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the German-American Cultural Center will present their second annual arts and crafts exposition and Christmas bake sale Sunday, November 6, from 2 in the afternoon to 10 in the evening at their clubhouse in East Outer drive, Detroit.

Chairman of the event is Anneliese Steudle. Co-chairman is Betty Gathen.

Pointe Counter Points

By Pat Rousseau

If You've Made Plans . . . for an early winter or Christmas vacation in a warm sunny spot, plan on seeing the early cruisewear arriving daily at Walton-Pierce. The gayest new swimsuits are from Gaybar. There's a sunshine yellow print elasticized and puckered all over one piece style. It has a matching long skirt with a deep puckered band and could be worn as a short, strapless shift. There are one and two piece check-patch print suits from Gaybar, too. For a more mature figure, Roxanne offers one piece swimsuits in lovely new prints. The terry coverups include blouson tops and pants in white, green or rose. There is a long, side slit tunic of terry with a draw string waist that comes in green or orange. For entertaining evenings south, a white jersey top with pleating detail, a rounded, elasticized neckline and long puffy sleeves combines with white jersey pants. From Jones New York, have come the best looking separates in breeze-light wool and in the softest rose shade or dove grays. Coordinate the two button blazer with pants, skirt and a vest that is gathered thru the waist for the newest vest look around. Don't save them for your vacation. They're great to wear many seasons starting now.

The European look by an American manufacturer describes Rutt's dramatic and enduring "Contempo" style. Sleek and simple lines adapt to the contemporary for the person who likes simple lines without frills. See a door sample and photos at Mutschler Kitchens, Inc., 20227 Mack Avenue, 884-3700.

Your THREE ISLANDS IN THE SUN, Cozumel, Grand Cayman, and Havana await you when you board the Daphne in New Orleans for seven nights from $698 each air/sea program. Travelwise Travelers Always Ask for Mr. Q. 886-0500.

A Great Birthday Gift . . . Armatale metal Zodiac mugs from Pennsylvania are now available at the Notre Dame Pharmacy.

Colorful Ceramic Mobiles . . . that tinkle in the breeze are perfect for the porch, patio or kitchen at the Squirrel's Nest, 19849 Mack Avenue.

November . . . is the month of the golden sapphire, topaz and citrine quartz. At Bijouterie you'll find a wide selection of all three. Tony Cueter told me the topaz comes in a color range that includes light to dark smoky, honey color to yellow golden. He will be happy to show you the collection and create a one-of-a-kind piece for a November birthday . . . 19860 Mack Avenue.

Dresses . . . for daytime, career or social occasions. You'll want the lovely wool knit with a large cowl collar that comes in black or luscious red, priced $92. Also new is the four piece weekendender with a fringed shawl. Enjoy shopping at Mr. Julian Fashions, 15114 Kercheval, 822-2818.

Carpeting? . . . Whether residential or commercial, see the carpet specialists at Ed Mazewski, 21435 Mack Avenue, in a convenient and relaxing atmosphere. You'll find famous name-brands such as, Karaston, Lee, Custom Weave and Cabin Crafts. You'll see elegant oriental rugs, carpet art and fur rugs. You'll also find experienced, helpful salesmen. If you want custom carpeting, it is available, too . . . 776-5511.

The Gold Rush is on at Charterhouse . . . a whole new exciting collection of 14K bengal bracelets. No matter what type bengal you're looking for, thin, wide, square or round, engraved and plain . . . we have it! Wear 3 or 4 at a time in yellow, rose and white gold. It's the newest look, and it's all at Charterhouse & Co.

The Workable Invisible Tri-focal Lens . . . is totally new. There is no tell tale bi-focal line, no intermediate area blur. The opticians at Woods Optical Studios are attending seminars enabling them to properly fit this new lens. Stop at 19599 Mack Avenue, 7 blocks north of 7 Mile Road, 882-9711.

Perini's Makes Young Couples Welcome . . . It's a nice place to bring a date. Many young couples stop by after the movies, home coming and other special events. Perini's would also like to remind its customers that for a late brunch or an early dinner you may choose from the $2.95 menu served from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Dinner menu available if desired. If you are planning a small party from 10 to 70 people, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings are available. Call 371-2484 . . . 10721 Whittier.

For The Serious Gardner Only . . . A solid copper and brass watering can from England has a special fine spray, $22.50. More Christmas miniatures have arrived at Wicker World, 20643 Mack Avenue.

Ron Ruel . . . says, The greatest concern of any good hair cutter-stylist is the correct displacement of hair weight. This is done by layering or graduation. Either or both of these may be incorporated into a truly super haircut. Hair then may be blown dry or finger combed into place. For that super cut call Ron at Ultima, 881-0182 for an appointment.

Getting Your Home Perked Up . . . for the holidays? How about new lamp shades? It's so convenient to bring your lamp bases for proper fits to Wright's Gift and Lamp Shop where there is a wide selection of new shades. If you have a frayed cord or need repair, Wright's can take care of that, too. . . . 18650 Mack Avenue next to the Grosse Pointe Post Office.

Pointer of Interest

MRS. LARRY HARDING, OF BERKSHIRE ROAD

By Janet Mueller

She became involved through a neighbor, Kathy (Mrs. Tom) McGovern. Now Kendra Harding is general chairperson of the 1977 Holly Mart, the Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice's annual artist-craftsman Christmas bazaar, to be presented this Saturday, November 5, from 11 in the morning to 9 in the evening in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Fries Ballroom.

It's the sort of work she particularly enjoys. "My real love is the money-making end of any project."

It's the sort of work she has a particular background for. "In Nashville, I worked with the Pi Phi's on what they called 'Christmas Village'. The Holly Mart is very similar—but much smaller. Christmas Village raised $24,000 in two days."

Kendra would love to match that figure for the Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center . . . but she's realistic.

Had State-wide Appeal Christmas Village drew people from all over Tennessee. For it, the Nashville Pi Phi's rented three buildings at the state fairgrounds.

The Hardings, Kendra and Larry, who works in WXYZ radio sales, and their three sons, Lee, nine, J. T., (that stands for John Thomas, but if you called out, "Hey, John Thomas!" he'd turn around to see who you were calling for), seven, and six-year-old Lance, left Nashville a year-and-a-half ago.

For Kendra and Larry, it was coming home. She's from Dearborn, he from Detroit's East Side; they'd been Tennessee residents for 14 years. There were reunions and reunions and reunions . . . and questions:

Had Kendra been converted into a Country Western fan? Not really . . . but she'd been to the Grand Old Opry more than once. In Nashville, it's THERE.

How do the kids like their new home? Very much—and they love the snow.

Why They Chose Pointe Why did Kendra and Larry choose to settle in Grosse Pointe? Primarily, because of the schools. And the size of the houses. In Nashville, they'd had over an acre of land. In Nashville, that's commonplace.

They wanted wide lawns, and spacious rooms, and trees.

They're delighted with their choice. "I have come into a community," says Kendra, "that's absolutely lovely."

The boys are happily settled in Defer School. So, in her own way, is Kendra, who's begun painting the Defer kindergarten classrooms.

That's not a flat coat in a primary shade: basically, what Kendra has undertaken to do is bring color and life into Defer's classrooms. Her summer project was Mrs.

Mr. Mole . . . has been busily buying for the coming Christmas season. He has just the gift for the person who has everything. Stop in and see for yourself. The Mole Hole, 672 Notre Dame.

Current membership in the Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center stands at 900. Funding is via three sources: participating churches, private donations and special projects, such as the annual Art Auction and the annual Holly Mart.

"Basically," Kendra says of the Holly Mart, "it's going to be working artists and craftspeople." The Holly Mart spotlights pros, such as Clare Morrison whose Studio Clare turns out exquisite wax ornaments, using antique designs.

"We did a lot of looking at merchandise, a lot of going to art fairs. We worked very hard not to get duplicate people. Each of our artists-craftsmen is one-of-a-kind."

the Inter-Faith Center, with all the things the Center does," says Kendra.

Grosse Pointe's is one of five Inter-Faith Centers in the metropolitan Detroit area. It all began in 1968, right after the Detroit riots, when the churches decided they must become actively involved, and stay actively involved, in working for racial justice: in combatting all forms of discrimination.

Have Task Forces

The Center focuses attention on Education, Housing, the Courts, Hunger, Crime and the Media, working through Task Forces which concentrate on a specific area according to need and the interests of volunteers.

How does one become an Inter-Faith Center volunteer? "Walk in the door," says Kendra, "and say, 'Hey! Here I am.'"

The door is at 15222 East Jefferson avenue. The telephone number—one can say, "Hey! Here I am" by telephone, too—is 824-0350.

Education is the area Kendra has been most involved in. She's done textbook checking. "Each book," she explains, "is read by three people, who look for all aspects of discrimination: sexist, racist . . ."

A fourth person takes the comments of the first three readers and compiles them into a final report, which is given to the School Board. "At first," notes Kendra, "the schools were a bit leery. Now they ask us to review textbooks."

Under No Obligation

The schools are under no obligation to accept or reject a textbook on the basis of the Inter-Faith Center's report, but the report is on record, its recommendations and observations weighed in the acceptance/rejection balance.

Court-watching is an activity which fascinates Kendra. Some women, Inter-Faith Center volunteers who began by sitting in court to observe, to see if the courts were being fair, have gone on to become lawyers. One, at the age of 52, is now in charge of the Women's Justice Center at the University of Detroit Law School.

Kendra cites, as an example of volunteers' interest spearheading a program in a special area, the bringing together of Senior Citizens from Jefferson-Chalmers and Grosse Pointe to discuss common problems. A major discovery was that their problems were, basically, common. From these meetings came the Whistle Program.

They Want Protection Protection is a main concern of Jefferson-Chalmers residents. Jefferson-Chalmers seniors wear whistles around their necks, printed with their names and addresses: if Terry and Barbara to Give Berry Lecture Each November, the Grosse Pointe Garden Center rewards members and friends with an end-of-season treat: the Berry Memorial Lecture.

It comes at a time when the Garden Center's Trial Gardens at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial have been put to sleep for the winter, when the Horticulture-Bonsai Show and fund-raising House Tour are happy memories.

It usually features holiday ideas for the home. This year is no exception.

This year, Grosse Pointe's own Terry and Barbara Glancy will give the Berry Memorial Lecture, speaking on exotic house plants and how they may be used for holiday decor.

Date is Friday, November 18. Place is the War Memorial's Fries Auditorium. Time is 11 o'clock.

The lecture is free, but reservations for the 12:30 o'clock subscription luncheon following in the Fries Crystal Ballroom, at $5 per person, should be at the Garden Center Room in Alger House by next Thursday, November 10.

Reservations may be made by sending checks and stamped, self-addressed envelopes to the Garden Center Room, Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Tickets will be sent by return mail.

Mrs. Charles A. Parcells, Jr., is general chairman of this lecture endowed by the late Eska and Raymond Berry. She is being assisted by Mrs. Carl B. Larsen, in charge of table decorations and odds-and-ends.

Garden Center trustees who have volunteered to work on the table decorations and serve as hostesses include the Mesdames John A. Dodds, George R. Rapp, Byron B. Phillips, Stanley F. Dolega, John Veech, John N. Failing, Jr., William A. Champion, Arthur O. A. Schmidt, C. Herbert Ewing, Harold R. Smith, Erik Erickson and J. Lane Donovan, and the Misses Christine Edwards and Marie Louise Anderson.

Mrs. Clarence E. Maguire, Garden Center president, will welcome the audience. Mrs. Parcells will introduce the Glancys.

To Spotlight CWU's Work

The monthly program of the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church Women's Association will be held next Tuesday, November 8, at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Ernest Klautdt, president of Church Women United in Michigan, will speak on "CWU — It's All of Us."

Mrs. Klautdt's varied and productive career in church and church-related projects includes service as president of the Women's Fellowship of Detroit and of the Ann Arbor-Jackson Women's Fellowship Association.

She is a member of the CWU national board and participated in the Christian Causeway supporting peace efforts in Ireland. She is very active in United Church of Christ denominational work.

Following Mrs. Klautdt's talk, luncheon will be served in Fellowship Hall. Reservations may be made by calling the church office.

22 Craftsmen Involved They are 22 in all, offering everything from soft dolls and wooden toys to hand-made jewelry and historical pen-and-ink sketches, from patchwork and stained glass to watercolors and batik.

The Inter-Faith Center will be represented via a Bake Sale table and one featuring members' individual art projects, cookbooks and Christmas cards.

These members' art projects, from macramé to Kendra Harding's own felt Christmas matchbooks, were selected for their professional quality.

The working artists/craftspeople come from all over the metropolitan area. Each has promised a percentage of Holly Mart sales to the Inter-Faith Center. There will be no admission charge.

Coffee and cider will be available during the Mart. A beverage, plus "a little something" from the Bake Sale table, should make a nice between-browsing snack.

Many Work on Tree Decor will be, of course, Christmas-ey. Larry Harding has been drafted into service to put up the tree. Local Girl Scouts, Brownies and Camp Fire Girls are helping to make ornaments for it.

Kendra Harding's major helpers have been Kathy McGovern and her Balfour road neighbor, Ann MacDonald, who chaired the committee responsible for the exhibiting artists, and Gail Urso, of Westchester road, in charge of crafts.

Kathy's husband, Tom, is handling arrangements for the special prize.

Baked goods are being collected by Jackie Rentenbach, of Lakepointe avenue. Carolyn Dettmer, also of Lakepointe avenue, supervised invitations. Fran Higbie, of Moross road, took care of publicity.

Holly Mart treasurer is Sue Francis, of Yorkshire road.

Finding the home that is right for you doesn't really have to be an exasperating experience. For example . . .

Did you know that your real estate advisor should

- be familiar with all current offerings
- be capable of demonstrating the actual worth of any property to enable you to make realistic decisions.
- be able to save you time by advising you of the weakness of getting involved with overpriced properties.
- be interested in determining just what is important to you and what is required to accomplish your goal.
- be proficient in discussing the facts with buyer and seller.
- be knowledgeable about all the circumstances which contribute to the makeup of the Grosse Pointe communities.

These are just some of the things we can do for you. If you are interested in buying a home that is good value and is realistic in price, we encourage you to call us for the additional particulars of the properties listed below.

JUST A BLOCK FROM THE LAKE is this farm colonial with something for everyone. Custom built for the present owner, it has a sumptuous master suite on the main floor. Upstairs are three spacious bedrooms and two baths. The enormous living room features a cathedral ceiling with open rafters, fireplace and wide bay windows. The early American family room also has a fireplace, wet bar and random width, oak pegged floors. Two lavatories are on the main floor and a large utility room contains the laundry and plenty of cupboard storage. A formal dining room and wide, brick foyer welcome you to this magnificent home. The swimming pool and walled yard are completely private.

WHAT SO MANY WANT is a little house with large rooms, and most importantly that master suite on the first floor. Tonnacour Road has always been popular, and it is houses like this one that made it so. Upstairs are three bedrooms and two full baths. To complement the formal living room and dining rooms is a step-down garden room. Located only a few doors from the Country Club golf course and Lake Shore Drive.

FARMS LOCATION. All brick custom built ranch, formal dining room, living room, family room, large kitchen, two bedrooms, bath and a half. Two and one half car attached garage. We're so excited about this one which is a block from Lake Shore.

ENJOY CONDOMINIUM living at its best in a fabulous colonial building in Shorepointe. This spacious, two bedroom apartment has a large sitting room off the master bedroom and a formal dining room. The two-story living room is most impressive with its French fireplace and high ceiling.

EVERY SO OFTEN there is an opportunity to buy a house in the Farms which is located just a block to Hill shopping, both public and Parochial schools and a bus line. Combine these features with a price tag of $29,500 and it's a happening. The exterior of this two bedroom house has been wrapped in aluminum, as has the garage.

A HOUSE FOR ALL REASONS is this deceiving property on the curve of Woodland Shores. For the family that desires first floor bedrooms, there are two. For those who want bedrooms on the second floor, there are four. If a separate apartment within the house is necessary, this has one. Have you always wanted a greenhouse? One comes with our house. How about spending some leisure time around your own swimming pool? We have one here. The large family room has a window wall which faces the pool and patio. The above should be reason enough to see 85 Woodland Shores.

'Ten Stars of France' Next In Pierrot Movie Series

Ever-glamorous France will be explored next on the War Memorial's George Pierrot-selected Adventure Series on Monday, November 21.

Dinner featuring French haute cuisine will be served in the Crystal Ballroom at 6:30 p.m. with the personally narrated color film "Ten Stars of France" presented by Eric Pavel in the Fries Theater at 8:15.

Cost for the complete evening, dinner and show with tax and service included, is $10.75. The show only is $2.75. Seats are reserved.

The show starts in the Loire Valley — the garden of France — dotted with chateaux, medieval fortresses and sumptuous residences. Jeanne d'Arc's city of Orleans is visited along with the medieval castles of Angers, Chinon and Langeais, the Renaissance chateaux of Amboise, Azay-le-Rideau, Blois Chambord, Chaumont and Chenonceaux.

Then it's on to Brittany and the colorful fishing harbors of Le Croisic, Concarneau and Saint Malo where crab, lobster, oysters and fish abound in storybook towns such as Dinan, Vannes, Locronan and Saint Goustan, where in 1776 Ben Franklin disembarked on his historic trip to negotiate a Treaty with France.

Viewers will see the 5,000-year-old granite megalithes of Carnac and the exquisitely carved 17th century calvaries of Saint Thegonnee and Guimiliau.

The film takes viewers on a pilgrimage to the invasion beaches of Normandy, Saint Mere l'Eglise, the first liberated town, and War Memorials at Omaha and Utah beaches.

In the Basque country the audience will enjoy the country charms of small villages, soaring peaks, deep gorges and the blue lakes of the Pyrenees Mountains before going to Lourdes, the goal of more than three million Christian pilgrims.

Cruising the Seine to the Isle de la Citee one sees Notre-Dame and Sainte Chapelle with its delicately laced stained glass windows.

The visit to Paris also includes the art treasures of the Louvre and a gala performance at the opera. The camera moves from the Place de la Concorde, along the Champs-Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe and captures the fountains of the Trocadero framing the Eiffel Tower.

In the evening Paris becomes a city of light and entertainment: from classical theater to the "Danse Apache" at a Place Pigalle bistro.

Provence was a province of the ancient Romans who built magnificent monuments: the Arena of Arles, the theater and arch at Orange, the towering Pont du Gard and Avignon, with its legendary bridge.

In the Camargue, cowboys round up black bulls and compete in horsemanship and courage at Stes. Maries-de-la-Mer. In the marshes of the Rhone delta flocks of pink flamingos nest.

Marseilles is famous for its bouillabaisse and the dish is followed from the fish market to the table at the "Santoniers" restaurant. After Marseilles, the fortified town of Carcassonne with perfectly preserved towers, gables and walls is a dramatic stop.

The film emphasizes the glamour of the Cote d'Azur where the sun shines all year, and the jet set plays at Saint Tropez. Cannes and Nice are the traditional resorts, while Monte-Carlo, Villefranche, and Saint Jean-Cap Ferrat attract the yacht fans.

Vast flower fields contribute to the important perfume industry of Grasse and the art treasures of the Rothschild family are displayed at the villa-museum Ile de France.

Art in France has developed from classic to impressionist and modern. Works of Picasso, Fernand Leger, Calder and many others will be shown in the film.

A flight over the snow-covered Alpine peaks culminates the "Ten Stars of France."

ULS Net Girls End Fine Year

University Liggett School's girls tennis team completed its season on Saturday, October 22, placing third in the Class B State Championship at Holland, Mich. ULS finished with a total of 16 points.

In earlier tournament play, the team placed second in the regional playoffs Friday and Saturday, October 14 and 15. In regular season play, the girls had a 7-4 record.

Representing ULS in Holland were singles players Karen Edwards, who has a Western Region ranking, Carolyn Danaher, Heidi Cracchiolo and Kathy Spire. Doubles teams were Lisa Vanderzee and Ann Lesegoe, Lee Ford and Lisa Hansen and Julie Doerer and Carolyn Wheeler.

Coach Obie Sue Dunklee was very pleased with the spirit and determination shown by the girls during the season with many matches being decided in the final set.

ULS can now look forward to another good year next fall as only senior Lisa Vanderzee will graduate.

POINTER NAMED V-P

Robert R. Schoonbeck, of The City, has been promoted to vice-president and senior trust officer at Manufacturers Bank.

Rinehart Elected to Bar Association Board

Pointer Thomas Rinehart, of Hampton road, was elected to the Macomb County Bar Ass'n's board of directors for a three-year term.

This action was taken at the group's recently held annual meeting. Other new directors are Carl Chioni and Jacob Fennminio. Elected to succeed outgoing president Paul McNamara, of Roslyn road, was Richard Liedel. Other officers, serving one-year terms, are Richard Stavoe, vice-president; Thomas McCallum, secretary, and Gary Anthony, treasurer.

Auction to Aid Star of The Sea

Our Lady Star of the Sea's high school science department will benefit from an Art Auction, featuring the works of Dali, Hibel, Rockwell and Nieman, on Wednesday, November 16, at the Gourmet House, 25225 East Jefferson avenue.

The auction will begin with an open bar preview at 6:30. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are $14 per person and may be purchased by sending a check to Mrs. Thomas C. Mayer, 953 Trombley road, Grosse Pointe Park 48230.

The event is sponsored by the school Student Teacher Parent Ass'n. Gallery Art Center, in Berkley, is providing the art work. Other artists who will be represented are Lohan, Mingolta, Mary Vickers, Lionel Barrymore, Doug Tope, Charlette Mitchell and Roger Coast.

Club Sponsors Family Night

The next Neighborhood Club family fun night will be held Friday, November 11, at North High School from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Activities will include basketball, swimming, trampoline, tumbling and volleyball for all age groups, plus children's activities, movies and crafts for younger children.

The activity is co-sponsored by the Department of Community Services.

There is a charge of $2 per family or $1 per person, and the cost for crafts is 50 cents. The club is located at 17150 Waterloo avenue.

ULS Harriers End Season

This season University Liggett School, (ULS), won only two of their 14 cross country meets. Their season ends this weekend Saturday and Sunday, November 5 and 6 with the state finals.

This year was a building year with Greg Johnson, the team's only senior, doing most of the point scoring for ULS. Next season should hold more victories for a now more experienced squad.

Tennis Club Has New Pro

The Grosse Pointe Indoor Tennis Club has a new pro joining the staff. Jeff Sturman, who comes to the club from Woodbury, Conn., will be introducing new programs and teaching methods to members.

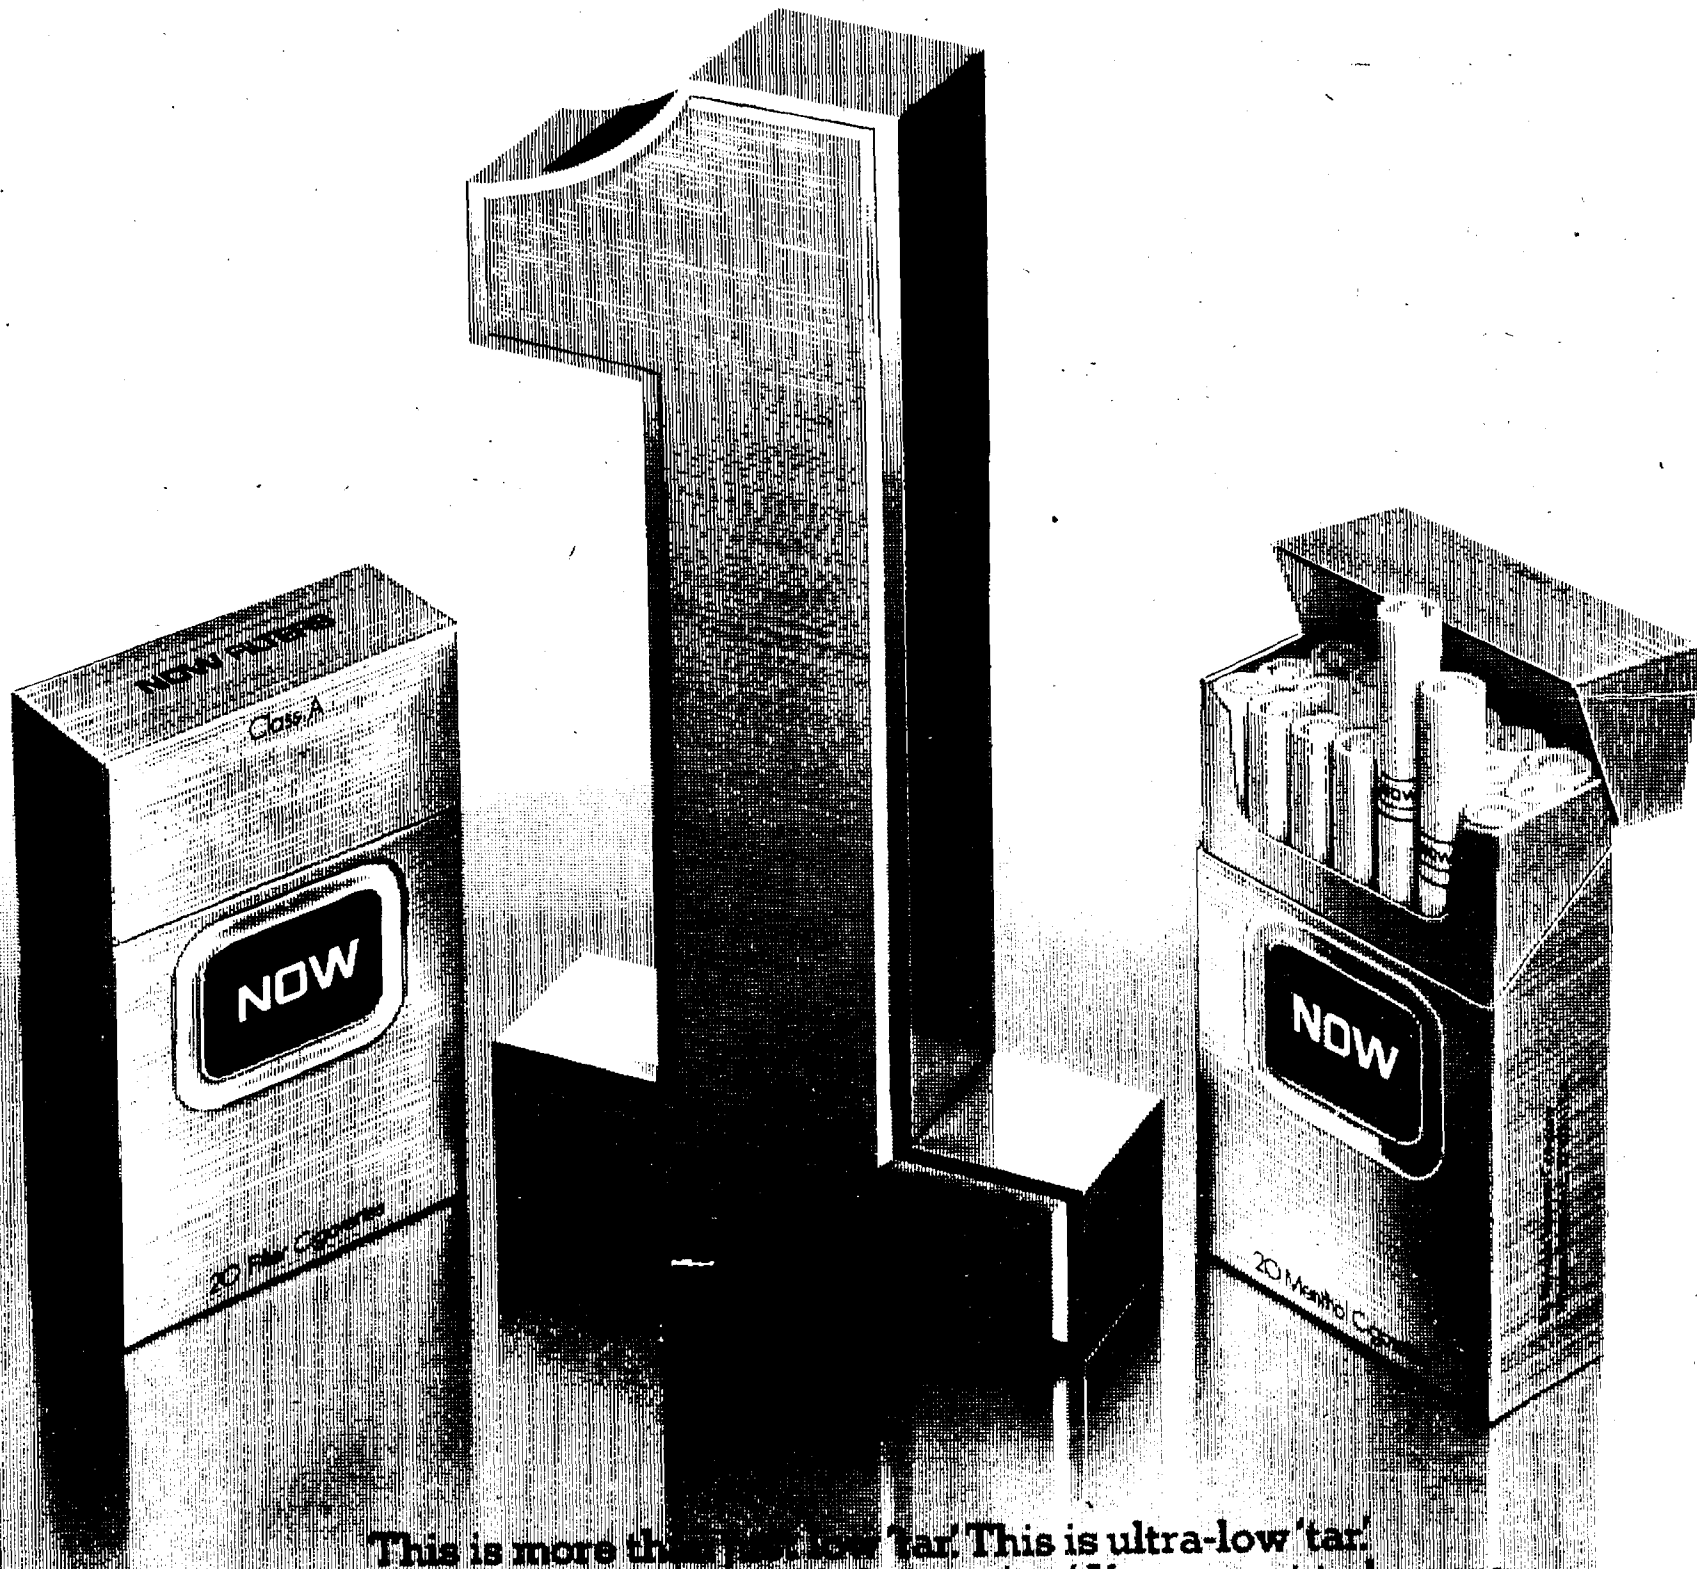

"We hope to create more club activity for all levels of play, and introduce the 'inside-out' teaching method of stroke technique," Mr. Sturman said.

"Tennis pros such a Guillern Vilas, Vitas Gerulaitis and Wimbledon's wonder, John McEnroe, use it, (the 'inside-out'), with great success," he added.

Mr. Sturman will be co-heading the tennis programs with Anita Sohaski, long time pro at the club.

Some Pointers may remember his father, Dr. Robert Sturman, from his basketball days at South High School. Dr. Sturman and his wife, Gloria, live in Woodbury, where he practices neurosurgery.
