Good skates

Now, for the rest of the story. For some people, last week's North-South ice match-up was just a hockey game.

But for South senior and Tower staffer David Loffredo, it became a quest. It seems South's first string defenseman Jeff LeFebvre was gliding along on borrowed skates that were too small for him.

So midway through the second period, he began looking for a larger pair to borrow so he could give his best for the Blue Devils. Alas, none were to be found.

Then another teammate, who shall remain nameless, remembered he had a pair at home that were perfect and asked Loffredo to drive to his home, knock on the door and request the skates for Jeff.

Are you with me so far? Another alas, because no one was home at the anonymous teammate's house. So David drove back with the bad news for Jeff.

Tell you what, said the helpful teammate, go back and wiggle through the milk chute. No one's home, but you have my permission. So once again Loffredo journeyed into the frigid night air, along with pal Dean Pierce, who happens to be milk-chute size.

Dean made it through and let David into the house. Along the way, Dean burned his back on a heater, but the important thing is that they found the skates.

Back at the game, a grateful LeFebvre tries on the skates and discovers they're a perfect fit. He leaps onto the ice and within 10 seconds draws two penalties — one for interference and the other for elbowing.

Does the story end here? Nooooo. Remember last year when I nearly got decapitated at the first North-South game by a warp speed slapshot from South's George Krappman? Well, while I almost got hit again this year, the honors go instead to Tower photographer Kip Monahan who caught one in the back.

Krappman's off the hook on this one though. According to Loffredo (remember David Loffredo?) the shot was launched by North High School's Pete Guzzardo.

I've been told Monahan kept the puck. He earned it. Maybe at the next game between the crosstown rivals, he and I can compare war stories.

Personally, I think Guzzardo and Krappman owe us a lunch.

Dial M for money

Beware of callers soliciting money by phone. That's the word from a Park resident who received a call last week from a woman who identified herself as Mrs. Johnson from the Detroit Firefighters Association.

Mrs. Johnson told Margaret Tracey that the association had not received the check Mrs. Tracy's husband pledged for a children's Christmas party. She offered to "send a firefighter" to the Tracy home to pick up the check for $50.

Mrs. Tracy, who did not consent to the offer, later learned her husband never made such a pledge and the firefighters group told her they did not sponsor a party for children this Christmas nor do they employ anyone named Mrs. Johnson.

Chief's home robbed

Grosse Pointe Park Police Chief Henry Counce had his home robbed Jan. 14.

"It's the first time it's happened to me," said Counce. "I'm upset, I lost a lot of things I was fond of."

He said the theft occurred between 2:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. while his wife was shopping. Someone broke a two-foot hole in French doors leading from the porch, locked his two dogs in the bedroom and thoroughly searched the house.

So far, some of the itemized losses include several guns and coins, he said. The case is under investigation.

Counce will retire Jan. 31 after 32 years with the department.

Early morning tragedy

A pre-dawn two-alarm blaze at 87 Sunningdale kept firefighting crews from the Shores and the Farms busy Monday. The fire, which originated in the basement, was called in at about 6 a.m., allowing both cities to provide two separate shifts to the scene. Fire officials say smoke detectors were instrumental in helping the Quarnstrom family escape the home which was eventually destroyed during the five-hour fire. Reports say the fire proved difficult to extinguish after a gas meter in the basement melted, allowing fumes to help feed the flames. Injuries were sustained to Shores Public Safety Officer Michael Kortas, who received cuts on both hands and Lt. Arthur Turner of the Farms, who was treated for smoke inhalation.

State licensing sought for latchkey program

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The public school system will ask the state Department of Social Services to license its nine elementary school latchkey programs and will also seek exemptions from some of the DSS regulations, according to administrators.

Elementary curriculum director Alfreda Frost told the board of education Monday night that latchkey programs "can be effectively operated under the auspices of the school system without meeting each and every rule" set by the state.

The dispute arose about a year ago, when the DSS told the system it would have to license its programs. Instead, the system decided to ask the state Attorney General to decide whether schooloperated programs fell under DSS jurisdiction or under the state Department of Education.

In September, the attorney general ruled that latchkey programs operated by the schools are similar to other child care organizations and need to meet DSS requirements for licenses, one administrator said. The school system has worked out an agreement with the state that allows the programs to continue operating while the school system goes through the application and requests for exemptions.

Personnel director Ronald Tonks said some of the state's staffing requirements are stricter than those used in regular classrooms.

For instance, the state requires one child worker for every 12 five-year-olds, but standard kindergarten classes often have many more students than that, Tonks said. The school system may ask for exemptions that will allow it to operate the latchkey programs the same as it does kindergarten classes, he said.

The state's requirements are more appropriate for private programs than they are for school-operated programs, an administrator said.

Each of the system's elementary schools has a latchkey program, administered by the building principal, according to Dr. Frost. The latest school to add one was Kerby, she added.

The programs normally run for an hour before school and three hours after regular classes are dismissed. While attendance varies from day to day, an average 10 to 25 students use the morning and afternoon sessions, according to Dr. Frost.

Fees vary from $1 to $1.50 an hour, according to Dr. Frost. Supervisors are hired by building principals based on the ability to work well with children, she added. While that may include some college training, ability is more important, Dr. Frost said.

Under state law, programs must be supervised by directors who have 60 semester hours of credit with at least 12 in child development, psychology, elementary education, physical education or recreation. Directors must be on site during the program's operations.

Care-givers should be adults or those age 17 with one year of training in a vocational child-care training program certified by the DSS.

All building principals meet the program director requirements, "but we can't tell them to come in to work at 7 a.m. and stay until 6:15," one administrator said. The school system may ask for an exemption from that requirement, as well as biennial physical examinations, Tonks said.

The system has filed the applications for its programs and is working on the request for exemptions, Dr. Frost said. The list of exemptions will be sent to the board, she added.

Responding to a question from the audience, interim Superintendent Joseph Spagnoli said the system "was not in violation of the law and is not in danger of losing the programs."

Grosse Pointe schools began offering latchkey programs in 1979, responding to a growing number of families in which there was a single working parent or where both parents worked. The term latchkey comes from the image of children walking to school wearing house keys around their necks.

Instead of sending children home to empty homes or unsupervised activities with siblings, parents opt to use the programs that offer children educational and recreational activities. The children aren't allowed to leave the school grounds in the evenings until a parent comes for them.

Latchkey programs have been growing rapidly, Dr. Frost said. "We believe we have a fine program," she added.

Revolving-door justice irks police officers

By Tom Greenwood

For Farms Detective George Van Tiem it was an old story. The Macomb Daily carried the report of the recent arrest of a 29-year-old man allegedly trying to sell stolen property.

Sgt. VanTiem's anger centered on the report that the suspect was a new inmate in a Mount Clemens halfway house for prisoners, having spent only 30 days in Jackson Prison for a number of crimes in Grosse Pointe Woods and Macomb County.

The suspect, Harold Arnold Boyd Jr., was arrested in an East Detroit jewelry store on Dec. 10, 1984 after a woman, dropping off a list of stolen property, noticed Boyd wearing a gold chain belonging to her. Boyd and a companion were arrested carrying jewelry valued at between $3,000 to $10,000 that had been reported stolen from a Harrison Township home the day before.

The Michigan correctional system and the Farms police department are familiar with Harold Boyd.

In October 1983, the Farms police were called to a Moross Road home when an alert neighbor noticed a man park a late model station wagon on the street and walk to the rear of an unoccupied home.

Police identified the vehicle as a car stolen earlier in Romeo and also ascertained it had been used in the breaking and entering of the same Moross Road home a month earlier.

Officers found the rear door of the home open, searched the property and discovered no one inside. The door was secured and the car driven away for prints.

Four hours later, officers returned when the owners reported a robbery in progress. Once there the police arrested Boyd, who had been cornered by the homeowner and his wife. According to reports, Boyd had been in the home when police searched it hours earlier.

Boyd reportedly entered the home, then hid in the attic when police arrived, laying down between the floor boards and covering himself with insulation and a rug. He then fell asleep and staggered down hours later to ask the startled homeowner for a drink of water.

He was found to be wearing a watch stolen from the home a month earlier, and a search of his hiding place uncovered a pillow case filled with the wife's jewelry. Car keys found on Boyd opened the stolen station wagon and his prints were found inside and on a gas can in the back.

On Oct. 8, 1983 Boyd was arraigned on the Farms charges and a $75,000 cash bond was secured against him. On Oct. 12, he waived his examination and was bound over to the Wayne County Circuit Court.

According to Sgt. VanTiem, that's the last time his department saw Boyd, but it wasn't the last they heard of him. In checking Boyd's past, it was discovered he has been sentenced to prison in May 1976 for three to 14 years for forgery. He was released in 1980.

On Oct. 30, 1983 he received three to five years for attempting to cash a bad check in Macomb County. On Nov. 30, 1983 he also received a three to 10 year sentence for a Woods breaking and entering. That particular B and E was notable since he signed for a UPS package while he was burglarizing the home.

In March 1984, he was given three to five years for attempted breaking and entering and on May 14, 1984 he also received another three-to-five year sentence for breaking and entering.

According to Michigan Department of Correction records, Boyd spent much of the time from his October 1983 sentence until his Nov. 19, 1984 release to a halfway house in (Continued on Page 5A)

Local Jaycees a step ahead

The Grosse Pointe Jaycees are a progressive lot — they began admitting women one year before the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that women could not be barred from joining.

Greg Miller, president of the local chapter, said members voted to open its membership to women in August 1983. It wasn't until a month after the court ruling July 2, 1984, however, that the national organization officially approved the action.

Of the 42 members in the local chapter, eight are women. And one woman is on the board this year, Miller said.

"We felt women in the community had as much right to join," he said, "and we wanted to expand our base." He added that not one member quit as a result of the action. "In fact, we gained members."

And it's an active group, he said. There's an art auction held annually at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House to benefit the chapter's Grosse Pointe High School Scholarship Fund. The group donates $500 to be split between two students, one at North and one at South.

There's the haunted house held at the former Standard gas station on the Hill. Funds from this project go to the Foundation for Exceptional Children. And coming up Feb. 2 and 3, the Jaycees will sponsor, along with Farmer Jack's and WDIV, a child identification program in which parents can get a picture and fingerprints of their child.

There's also a burns awareness program to make people aware of fire hazards. Through the program, parents can obtain decals for their children's windows.

The group, in conjunction with Woods police, sponsors a safety training course for children. They also put on a career day at the high school.

The organization celebrates its 65th anniversary nationally with Jaycee Week observed Jan. 13-19. The Grosse Pointe Jaycees will hold an open house tonight (Jan. 17) at 7:30 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club. Membership is open to men and women between the ages of 18 and 35.

"We want to show what we're like and what the organization is all about," Miller said.

Persons who are interested but unable to make it to the open house can call him at 886-2716 or 446-1247.

Regular meetings are held every fourth Thursday at the War Memorial at 8 p.m. and everyone is welcome to attend, Miller said.

A final salute

Hundreds of mourners paid their last respects to longtime Grosse Pointe Charles Verheyden at a funeral Mass at St. Clare of Montefalco Church last Friday. He was 96. For three-quarters of a century, the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home handled the funeral arrangements for ten of thousands of persons, including governors, celebrities and dignitaries. In a gesture of respect, the hearse carrying his body, above, and the funeral procession passed the establishment he founded 76 years earlier.

Grosse Pointe War Memorial ... as John Lake remembered it

Shortly before his death in 1984, John Lake wrote of his years as executive director of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. For those who knew him, it tells the story in a neo-Victorian style they'll well remember — a little confusing at times, but still vintage John Lake. Others will find a nostalgic and useful contribution to the history of our community. These segments have been edited by Charles V. Hicks, but they retain Lake's original language, and they reflect the unique personality of the man who directed and developed the War Memorial Center in its first 30 years.

XII. Travel — A Strike in Italy

(John Lake tells of an eventful trip.)
The next big event in travel was the trip of Italy — Rome and Florence. Three Pan American planes were chartered and 537 went over.

Everyone had a marvelous time visiting the antiques and viewing the sights of Rome and then went by bus to Florence to see its many works of art. Then we were to pick up our planes for the return trip after this 10-day sojourn and fly back to Detroit. When we got to Pisa, after looking at the Leaning Tower, we went to the airport. I believe there were 14 buses in the caravan.

The first buses arrived at the airport and the people who were to get on the first plane changed their money, went through customs and sat down waiting for the announcement of the plane's departure. Baggage had been taken out and put on the field already to be put on the plane when suddenly the Italians pulled a ground strike. That meant that no steps would be put up to the plane, the planes could not take off, the luggage was locked up in a hanger — and there we were! The airport eatery looked at this multitude of people and promptly closed its doors. However, the wine bar stayed open.

In the meantime, Grosse Pointe men — not used to being treated in this manner — decided they would break into the hanger, get the baggage and put it on the plane themselves. So they passed the bags from one person to another to the plane, mumbling "What did she buy and put into this suitcase, anyhow?"

How were we going to get up into the planes? Lake had the brilliant idea that perhaps the steps on the back of the buses could be put together. This was tried. Lake went up the wobbly ladder arrangement and decided under no circumstances would it work. He looked at the ample dimensions of some of the passengers and could picture all sorts of accidents happening. At this time, the Italians got really tough and came up with bayonets and ordered us to leave the field.

The outcome was that we had to return to Rome where the strike had not yet been put into effect. The planes would meet us there, which was well and good, but several of the buses had already gone back to Rome because they thought everything was all right.

The result was that we had to get back to Pisa and find a way to get on the Rapido. All of us had changed our money and the Italian railroad was not about to take anything but lira. Our travel guide came to the rescue — they said there were no tickets; the Rapido was full. He said he would buy tickets anyhow. Lake, in the meantime, went out and actually stood in front of the Rapido to hold it until this procedure was over.

Then, if you have ever seen a bunch of Valkyrie on the move, that is exactly what happened. Women descended upon him in a swarm to receive their tickets. Then, on board finally, people complained, "I have a first class ticket, this is a second class coach." At that time, he was somewhat less than gracious — he simply said "Sit." Somehow, everybody got on board; and Mr. Lake found himself in the baggage car, where he sat down and went back to Rome.

By some miracle, all the people finally got to the right airport. We came through with a "red alert" and everything was opened up — air traffic pushed aside to let us through. We all got home safe and sound — weary, but with cocktail conversation enough to last for a long, long time.

MML regional meeting is here next week

"Strategic Planning: Action not Reaction" will be the theme of the Michigan Municipal League's Region III meeting scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 24, at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club. The meeting will conclude with a 6 p.m. dinner. Attending will be mayors, village presidents, councilmembers, managers and other officials from cities and villages within Wayne County.

In 1953, the Michigan Municipal League established its regional organizational structure for the purpose of effective interchange of ideas on municipal problems, to promote awareness and to develop the local government official's professionalism. 1985 marks the 32nd year annual regional meetings have been held in nine regions around the state. This annual meeting provides a forum for discussion, an update on critical issues and an opportunity for municipal officials to meet with peers and share common concerns.

Developed under the guidance of the 1984-85 regional officers, this year's program will address some of the complex challenges confronting local governments today. Sessions on implementing the strategic planning process in Michigan municipalities, public sector collective bargaining, and Michigan's infrastructure will be held during the afternoon. A personal development session on building leadership skills will conclude the program.

Welcoming remarks at the dinner will be extended by Gail Kaess, the regional chairperson. Present Region III officers are Grosse Pointe Farms Councilwoman Kaess, chairperson; Dearborn Mayor John B. O'Reilly, vice chairperson; and Riverview City Manager Harry J. Kollman, secretary.

Representing 484 member cities and villages throughout Michigan, the Michigan Municipal League serves to unite members in collectively striving for home rule and promoting higher standards of municipal government.

B & E nets $9,000

A Woods resident, returning to his home in the evening last week, discovered someone made off his VCR, a Rolex watch, jewelry and other items. He estimated the loss at $9,000.

The house doors, secured by deadbolt locks, were in place. The thief entered the house on Sanhope through a bedroom window by lifting the outside storm sash and breaking the glass.

Woods detectives are investigating the robbery.

Elmsleigh Lane is numbered

By Harriet Nolan

The lone holdout on Elmsleigh Lane has complied with Grosse Pointe City Council's motion requiring residents on the westerly side of the street to renumber their homes.

According to John Mann, lawyer with Fildew, Hinks, Gilbride, Miller & Todd, the Allor family of 7 Elmsleigh Lane, in a private meeting with the city on Dec. 19, agreed to remove their house number by Jan. 2.

"That has been confirmed by Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy," Mann said.

"It's a relief to have my own number," Roberta Giraldo said. "I hope when other developments are built, builders will pay attention and this won't happen again."

Problems for the Giraldo began when they signed the final papers on their new $300,000-plus home last summer and discovered it lacked an address. First they were told it would be number 6, then number 29, and finally, said Mrs.

Giraldo, they were told to call the building supervisor who declared it number 7.

But number 7 already belonged to the Allors two doors away. The council, looking for a solution, requested a study by the city planner and director of public safety. Acting on those two administrators' recommendations, the council passed a motion reassigning the numbers effective Sept. 1 and gave the Giraldos number 7.

Except for a few stragglers, most of the residents complied. Finally it was only the Allors who had refused to relinquish their number.

After city attorney Richard Hinks said several of his phone calls to the Allors hadn't been returned, he filed a motion of civil disobedience which was scheduled to be heard on Jan. 8. However, the matter was settled before then.

According to Mrs. Giraldo, the Allors still haven't put another number on their own home.

The Allors would not return phone calls to the News.

Make most of what you have, author says

By Harriet Nolan

Walk blind. Walk tall. Walk proud. These are the recurring messages in Pointe resident Margaret Smith's recently published book, "If Blindness Strikes: Don't Strike Out."

It's also okay to say blind, to politely but firmly speak up for one's self, to blind-proof home and work areas and to not get a leader dog if you don't want one, she suggests.

"Don't dismiss blindness as an inconvenience," says Ms. Smith. "That's when you lose keys or the power goes off. It's a major disability. The lack thereof creates a lot of ripples."

"But don't take the defeatist attitude. It's not insurmountable and not a problem a person solves single-handedly," she adds.

She cautions that first impressions can be lasting, so be optimistic and strive for the most effect.

That means make the most of what you have. Be independent when you can, know when you cannot. Ask for help, but don't be helpless. Realize you aren't surgeon or pilot material, realistically choose a career and strive to be top-notch at it.

Armed with bachelor and master degrees in journalism and an ongoing romance with words that she describes as her playtoys, Ms. Smith drew on life experiences to write the tongue-in-cheek guide to practical solutions to living blind in a sighted world.

She knows what it's like to have people, uncomfortable with her blindness, talk around her. It's common when she's out dining for the waitress to ask her dinner partner if she would like cream for her coffee.

"I tell them I would feel more comfortable if you speak directly to me," says Ms. Smith. "And yes, thank you, I would like more cream."

She knows the thrill she got after filling hundreds of coffee cups without spilling a drop and then the exasperation of later losing the contents of one poured all over the counter.

In Margaret Smith's book "If Blindness Strikes: Don't Strike Out," she devotes a chapter to helping people decide if a seeing-eye dog is right for their lifestyle. For her the answer was a definite yes. Pictured above with her is Joshua. To keep him in shape, she must take him out almost every day and she often finds herself playing second fiddle to the canine cutie who steals hearts with a tilt of his head.

She knows the sting of not being able to get her dream job after graduation because she was blind.

"The closest offer from a newspaper came from the Milwaukee Journal," says Ms. Smith. "But it was part-time and not enough pay to keep food on my table or the wolf away from my door."

Blind since early childhood, she also knows the value of having a family who encouraged her independence, a good education and a strong support system of friends she can count on in a pinch. A pinch was described as 30-degree-below-zero temperatures which froze a doorwall in the open position.

As supervisor of Visually Handicapped Services at Detroit Receiving Hospital University Health Center, Ms. Smith and six other staff people, four of whom are legally blind, help clients ranging from older teens to those in their 60s.

Students attending daily four-to-six week training and counseling sessions are taught many of the subjects covered in her book.

Mobility classes include how to use a cane, listening to sounds that indicate open doorways and learning how to identify curbs and other landmarks.

Computers take in typewritten messages from students and orally play back the input so mistakes can be corrected. Learning these communications skills gives students a feel for computers. Persons hiring them would have these machines available to use and the printout could be given to sighted people to read.

Personal grooming is made easier when men learn to swallow their Adams apple when they shave over it and women discover they can look pretty and stylish by mastering the art of applying lipstick and adopting a current hairstyle.

Learning that tape labels in Braille, jeweler's screws and rubber bands can mark knobs and kitchen appliances enables students to not only live a more normal life, but a safer one.

"The staff helps them to try for jobs that involve computers, as X-ray developers, even teachers and substance abuse counselors," says Lyle Thume, chief of Blind Services.

"But that doesn't happen until the students work here hour by hour, day by day and develop skills and confidence," he adds.

Thume's office is filled with gadgets most people take for granted, but are of no use to the blind in their common form. Here watches, without glass covers, enable students to tell time by touch, voice-synthesized calculators repeat orally numbers that are punched into its system and a talking alarm clock repeats the time and when set.

"We allow blind people to do things for themselves," says Thume.

Ms. Smith's book is also available on cassette in the Detroit metropolitan area.

Legal Services to pick new chief

By Harriet Nolan

W. Clark Durant III, the 35-year-old Detroit lawyer elected chairman of Legal Services Corporation, can add finding a new president for the agency to the list of tasks the newly appointed board must tackle.

Donald P. Bogard resigned Jan. 8 as head of the agency that finances aid for the poor in such civil actions as divorce, landlord-tenant disputes and Social Security benefit cases.

Bogard has offered to stay in the $69,000 a year post "until a replacement is found or until the summer," said Durant, a Pointe resident. "We'll appoint a committee to decide if we'll look for an interim or permanent replacement."

The agency has come under fire the past several years from members of Congress. Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., appropriations sub-committee chairman as been quoted as saying Bogard "alienated the Senate and he's at war with the House. Bogard has become a symbol of what many members of Congress thought was wrong down there at Legal Services. He operated in a cavalier fashion, giving no thought whatever to the successful programs being run by the corporation."

Durant took Bogard's resignation, however, as a routine formality that will allow the new board to choose its own executive officer.

"In my observation, he's been very thorough and has a tremendous grasp of the budget process, rules and regulations affecting the corporation and the kinds of programs being funded," Durant said.

Accident shorts out the Farms

Farms police and firefighters were a busy lot during Monday morning's snowstorm, both fighting a fire in the Shores and helping to clear up an accident on Grosse Pointe Blvd. and Lewiston that left parts of the Farms without power for about an hour. According to reports, the driver of this large truck was backing into a driveway at St. Paul's School at about 10:15 a.m. when he accidentally knocked down a high tension pole. No one was injured and no tickets were issued, according to the Farms police. To add a bit of irony to the situation, it was learned that Monday was the driver's first day on the route.

Dock fees for Woods boaters unchanged

By Pat Paholsky
Boat owners who rent dock space at Lakefront Park can count on at least one thing this year: There will not be an increase in fees.

The Woods council Jan. 7 turned down a recommendation to raise rental fees by 57 percent and 102 percent, depending on location, and referred the matter to the Recreation Commission for study. The administration was directed to send out bills for this year's rental.

D.J. Hallman, director of Parks and Recreation, projected a total of $405,000 over the next five years would be necessary for salaries, improvements and repairs. Wages, operating supplies and depreciation were estimated at $205,000 and under $200,000 would be required for improvements and repairs, according to Hallman.

He recommended boosting the mooring fee by $184 per boat well to raise the necessary revenue. The fees since 1982 for docks on the lake side are $325 and for the Jefferson side, $180.

City Administrator Chester Petersen said, "We spent $100,000 over the past two years and we'll probably have to spend $200,000 for repair of docks south of the park bridge as well as repair of water lines." He suggested extending the increase over eight years instead of five "to reduce the shock of the increase."

Paul Mumma, a boat owner and a member of the Recreation Commission, told council members: "This is a city-owned, not private, marina and you're not in the profit business. When a tennis court is resurfaced, I don't see the council jumping up and down demanding the tennis players pay for resurfacing."

Councilman Paul Beaupre said, "We charge more than the other Pointes. Do tennis players pay a fee, do people who use baseball diamonds pay?"

"All of the other (activities) are open to every citizen in the community," Petersen said. "It's always been the philosophy of the city for boat owners to pay their own way."

The Recreation Commission has until April to study the proposal and report back to the council with its recommendation. The last rate increase was approved Feb. 1, 1982.

Hertel cuts committees

Wayne County Commission Chairman John Hertel last Thursday announced changes in the commission's committee assignments aimed at streamlining its procedures.

Hertel, whose district includes the Pointes, Harper Woods and northeast Detroit, reduced the number of the commission's standing committees by two as well as doing away with the committee of the whole.

Formerly, all items that were to appear on the commission's regular agenda had first to go through a committee of the whole, made up of all the commissioners, who would discuss and make a recommendation to the board.

The committee of the whole meetings were redundant and, in some cases, had to be held immediately before regular commission meetings so agenda items could be moved on, a Hertel aide said.

Hertel also named members and chairmen for the six standing committees of the commission: Administration and Rules, Audit, Human Services, Public Safety, Public Service and Ways and Means. Hertel will serve as chairman of the Administration and Rules Committee as part of his duties as commission chairman, his aide added.

The Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra will play the second concert of its 32nd season at Parcels Auditorium, Mack at Vernier, Sunday, Jan. 27 at 3:30 p.m.

Pianist Ruth Burczyk, a Pointe resident, will be the guest artist. And the symphony's longtime conductor Felix Resnick will be on the podium.

The program of the day, which will include compositions by Rossini, Liszt, Hovhanness and Tchaikovsky, will feature the Beethoven Fantasia in C minor for Piano, Chorus and Orchestra, during which Mrs. Burczyk at the keyboard will be joined by a combined chorus of voices from Grosse Pointe North and South high schools.

The participants from South will include Catherine Ament, Christina Ciavola, Denise Downing, Susanne Fernholz, Kimberly Finger, Bernadette Tomaszewski, Mardi Abell, Barbara Berry, Patti Ingrao, Lynette Langlois, Heather Porterfield, Tracy Shenkus; also David Bryant, Matthew Cockerton, John Gorham, Clayton Guenske, Christopher McKeehan, Gregory Roach, Mark Sabella, Kirk Westervelt. Members of the quartet, who will also sing in the Beethoven work, are Irmgard Fernholz, soprano, Jeanne Heller, alto, Alexander Sucek, tenor, and David Ludwig, baritone.

A meet-the-artist reception, chaired by Mrs. Anthony Vermeulen, will immediately follow the concert. This is a traditional project of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association.

Revolving-door justice . . .

various institutions, including local and county jails plus 30 days in Jackson prison.

In October 1984, Farms detectives were frustrated in their pursuit of Boyd when they learned their charges against him were dismissed because the case wasn't brought to trial within 180 days.

On Nov. 19, 1984 Boyd was transferred to a halfway house in Mount Clemens. Less than a month later, he was arrested in the East Detroit jewelry store carrying stolen jewelry.

According to Larry MacDonald, supervisor of the Mount Clemens parole office, inmates in the halfway house have the same status as prison inmates.

"Mr. Boyd is currently in the Macomb County jail and had an administrative hearing in our department in late December," he said. "He was found guilty and is now eligible to be reclassified to a higher level of custody. In other words, some sort of walled institution. We are now awaiting the outcome of the criminal charges against him."

Boyd was charged with receiving and concealing stolen property. He is also a suspect in the Harrison Township robbery.

MacDonald said prisoners are released to halfway houses because of the severe overcrowding of the prison system.

"There's no way the system can hold everyone, so a certain criteria is set up," he said. "They look at who the most dangerous people are, the ones who are a real threat to the community."

"Mr. Boyd violated the trust put in him and his conduct was noted."

He will go back into prison. Sometimes it seems like we're on a treadmill. We have many successes, but then we also see cases like Mr. Boyd's."

According to Gail Light, director of Public Information for the Michigan Department of Corrections, nearly 63 percent of the slightly more than 5,000 prisoners placed in halfway houses for the 1982-83 fiscal year were granted parole.

"We consider that a success rate," she said from her Lansing office. "Only 4.4 percent of the inmates were sent back to prison for felony convictions while in halfway houses."

Ms. Light provided the following breakdown: 3,129 prisoners were paroled; 944 walked away from halfway houses; 410 were removed for medical or psychiatric reasons, court orders or death; 306 were returned to prison for rule infractions; and 222 were returned for felony convictions while at the home.

The fact that only 4.4 percent of the inmates return to prison for crime convictions doesn't mollify Sgt. VanTiem, or other police officers.

"We know these guys are classified as less of a risk, but it doesn't really lessen the chances of your home being broken into," said VanTiem. "It actually enhances it, because going to prison now doesn't lessen your probability of being preyed upon."

"Halfway houses! These guys love that stuff," he said. "On paper, they're in prison. In reality, they're in your bedroom going through your jewelry."

A salute to 'Soapy'

New recognition came last week to G. Mennen Williams of Grosse Pointe Farms with his re-election as chief justice of the state Supreme Court. The election came as an early birthday present for "Soapy", who will be 74 on Feb. 23, and at an appropriate time because he cannot legally run for another term when his current one expires at the end of December 1986.

At the completion of his term, Williams will have given almost a half century of distinguished public service to his state and nation. His public record is a yard long, going back to his start as an attorney for the Social Security Board in 1936. He also served as an assistant state attorney general, executive assistant to the U.S. attorney general, a lawyer in the criminal division of the Justice Department, deputy director of the Michigan Office of Price Administration, and liquor control commissioner before being elected to the first of six consecutive terms as governor in 1949.

He served the federal government as a Navy lieutenant commander during World War II and later as an assistant secretary of state for African affairs and as ambassador to the Philippines before being elected to the state Supreme Court in 1970. He also has been awarded a sheaf of decorations by the U.S. government and foreign governments for his wartime and diplomatic service and a long list of honorary degrees by a number of universities, including his own alma mater, the University of Michigan, where he earned his law degree after winning his undergraduate degree at Princeton.

Yet into each successful life a little rain must fall. Last week a teacher at Wayne State University asked the 38 students in his journalism class to identify the state's chief justice. Only three could do so. We suspect, however, that there is a generational gap here and their parents could have done better on the question.

When "Soapy" was governor, everybody knew him and his identifiable green polka dot bow tie. Even though he now heads another of the three co-equal branches of government, his name doesn't get into the papers as often as do the names of the governor and leaders of the state Legislature. In part, that lack of recognition can be blamed on journalists themselves because they fail to cover the courts as well as they do the other two branches of government, even though judges and justices often reach decisions that have far-reaching effect on the people.

Whether he is recognized by the younger generation or not, the Grosse Pointe News is happy to join his many friends in the Pointes in saluting the chief justice on his re-election and his approaching birthday. Many happy returns, "Soapy."

Buckle up with Iacocca

Lee Iacocca's autobiography, the leading best-seller in the Grosse Pointes as well as on the New York Times list, contains a powerful endorsement of the campaign to pass a mandatory seat-belt law in Michigan.

In one of the concluding chapters in his book, Iacocca explains that he has been promoting mandatory seat-belt use since 1955 when Ford introduced belts on 1956 models. And back in 1972, when Iacocca was president of Ford Motor Co., he wrote to each of the 50 governors to inform them his company endorsed mandatory seat-belt use and to ask them to support what he termed "this life-saving cause."

When he wrote his book last year, Iacocca deplored the fact that not a single state had yet passed such a law. Later in 1984, however, three states did enact such legislation but, unfortunately, Michigan was not among them.

Like Michigan legislators, Iacocca discovered that the chief opposition to mandatory seat-belt use is ideological. Many people feel that legislation requiring motorists to buckle up is just another example of government intervention in their civil rights.

Iacocca tackles this argument head-on. He points to laws requiring a license to drive, mandating a stop at a red light and requiring motorists to wear helmets and then asks:

"Are these laws examples of undue government interference? Or are they necessary rules in a civilized society? We'd have carnage at every corner if we didn't have some running rules."

And then he adds:
"I'm sorry but I can't find anything in the Constitution that tells me driving is an inherent right."

That's because it's not. Driving a car is a privilege. And like all privileges, it comes with certain responsibilities.

"Would a law mandating seat-belt use constitute undue government intervention? Of course not. When it comes to government intervention, some people think you have to be either fish or fowl — completely for it or completely against."

"But as with anything else, you have to look at the circumstances. There are areas of life where the government has to act to protect society. Only in America do we allow the ideologues to prevail over the demands of safety."

"What these purists seem to forget is that the damage done by not using seat belts raises our taxes, increases our insurance rates and harms us and our loved ones. And if that's not an intrusion on my freedom, I don't know what is."

Iacocca goes on to cite facts and figures to prove that the use of seat belts saves lives. One study at the University of North Carolina found that seat belts reduced serious injuries in traffic accidents by up to 50 percent and fatal injuries by as much as 75 percent.

As for air bags, Iacocca contends they are effective only if they are used together with seat belts, and that without seat belts, air bags work only in head-on collisions.

"But it's not air bags that we need," he concludes. "What we need are laws mandating seat-belt use. The sooner we get them, the more lives we'll save. Until we have those laws, please do yourself and your loved ones a favor. Buckle up!"

Will Michigan legislators heed Iacocca's appeal in 1985?

Why encourage, then eliminate?

To the Editor:

I have lived in Grosse Pointe Woods most of my life and have always been very proud of it — the service, the upkeep and replacement of trees, etc. The question I now have of the tree committee and city hall is why replace the trees and invite wildlife if we are going to eliminate and destroy the wildlife we are encouraging? I happen to live on Stanhope and discovered one of the residents trapping squirrels and releasing them in Harper Woods. On investigation I find that our police department does the same. Have these people ever thought about the mother squirrel or babies that suffer from this? Have they ever seen a baby squirrel swarmed with flies not able to fend for itself and die of starvation? Or the mother trying to take her babies to a safer home? Have they ever wondered the frustration and suffering these animals endure in this upheaval?

True, as I was told they are not being killed — but is that the only suffering these creatures are relieved of? If we live in the suburbs and try to keep its natural habitat, aren't the wild animals also part of that environment?

I have heard that these squirrels destroy lawns — well if that's the only excuse for this bizarre behavior, I would like to match up my lawn with anyone else's in the neighborhood. True, they do get into homes and could cause a calamity, but then trap them there and release them outside. Are these few people going to get rid of all the squirrels in the area? If the answer is NO, then their thinking is simply cruelly, and if the answer is YES, then don't replace any trees that will bring them here to suffer agony.

If we can't look out our windows and enjoy watching God's creatures romp, play, grow and learn to survive — then why look out the window at all... why line the streets with trees when the true meaning of nature is NATURE in all its beauty.

Seeks Eisenhower stories

To the Editor:

Since the birth of this nation, many great leaders have emerged. One of these men came forth during World War II to lead the combined Allied Forces to a glorious victory. He later became one of the greatest presidents the United States has known. His name, of course, is Dwight David Eisenhower.

The Eisenhower Society was formed 15 years ago at Gettysburg where the Eisenhower home and farm is located. Society members are deeply involved in perpetuating Eisenhower's leadership qualities by collecting biographical information and by instituting a chair and scholarship program in his name at Gettysburg College.

Eisenhower touched many lives during his time. We here in Gettysburg would like to enlist the help of your readers by asking them to send us personal stories, recollections or anecdotes they might have about Eisenhower.

If you or your readers can help us with this request, please respond to: LeRoy E. Smith, President, The Dwight David Eisenhower Society, Box 1990, Gettysburg, Penn. 17325.

School official discusses closings

Editor's note: Woods resident Joseph Callahan has written numerous letters to the editor regarding the Grosse Pointe school system. He recently conducted a two-hour taped interview with Joan Hanpeter, president of the school board. The topics covered during the conversation will be of interest to parents and taxpayers.

Due to the length of the interview, it will be presented in segments over a period of weeks. The first installment deals with school closings.

Q. Is there any thought to further school closings?

A. There are no plans. There is not current discussion under way. That doesn't mean it's not on the mind of the board members. I think it's very much on their minds. We've had a lot of changes to implement this year, most of which have gone very well. And the board has decided that there would be no additional goals.

We've appointed the new superintendent — Dr. (John) Whittier who'll be here April 14. He knows the history of the system. He understands we're in a position of declining enrollment, and if that trend continues, we'll be looking at two aspects of our school system — what the decline in enrollment is doing to our educational program, which our board was never able to adequately articulate last year, and also what the decline means fiscally, working to see if we can save some money.

Dr. Whittier, when he was here, was asked a question about this at the public board meeting. He said he very much believed in establishing criteria that say at what point in the educational program you close a school for educational reasons and for financial reasons.

Q. In your conversations with Dr. Whittier before he was hired, was there any talk about what should be done in the system in light of the fact that the school population is down 47 percent?

A. He pretty much said that it would be presumptive of him to come into a school system he's not familiar with and to have any preset plan. He wants an opportunity to get to know the community a little better and to understand what the taxpayers want. The system of financing education in Connecticut is a little different than ours.

Q. Despite the school board's victory in the recall election after closing one school, has the idea of closing four schools and making substantial savings in tax dollars been completely abandoned?

A. Yes — for the time being.

Q. What was the rationale for moving the sixth-graders into the middle schools?

A. The rationale came from two professional groups of educators, parents and administrators who looked at our elementary and middle school program. There is no research that says that sixth-graders should go either to elementary or middle schools. But there are some general conclusions that indicate that biologically, and because our students are becoming more sophisticated, students are moving at a faster pace with technology and computers and so on. Students are ready for an advanced program at an earlier age. There are indicators that sixth-graders belong with seventh- and eighth-graders.

This is one of the programs we implemented this year. And even though we heard a lot of comment beforehand, I think the students — and we've surveyed them — have for the most part adjusted very well to being in the middle schools. It's been a much smoother transition than even the school people thought.

Taxes still a state issue

The opening of the 1985 session of the state Legislature proved at least one thing. The income tax issue is alive, well and still kicking on the floors of both houses.

The sessions had no more than convened when bills were offered to speed up the next cutback in the state income tax rate. One bill proposed that the current 5.35 percent rate be rolled back retroactively to Jan. 1 to the 4.6 percent rate that prevailed before the passage of the controversial 38 percent increase in 1983. Another would make the 4.6 percent rate effective April 1 and a third proposal would make it law Dec. 1.

In a news conference, the governor said, however, that an immediate rollback would be "irresponsible." He conceded that "you always have to keep the door open" to a speedier rollback than the Oct. 1, 1987, now set for it, but only if economic conditions permit. He insisted that this just isn't the time for another tax cut.

At least one Republican senator agreed with the governor. Sen. Harry Garst of St. Joseph said he did not think the state could afford to roll back the rate to 4.6 percent before the end of the year. "Unless the figures show me different and unless the economy is a lot more robust, we'll probably have to go through 1985 as we are," Garst said. As chairman of the appropriations committee, Garst is in a position to exercise a great deal of influence on his Republican colleagues' thinking on the issue.

Yet the governor is under a good deal of criticism because of a policy decision that cut the state surplus by $40 million. The administration, as reported by the Detroit News, accelerated payments to suppliers of the state's wholesale liquor operations without consultation with the Legislature or its leaders. That angered not only the opposition Republicans but even Senate Minority Leader William Faust, Westland Democrat.

"In one sense I praise the decision to pay our bills on time," Faust told the Detroit News. "But it's the way they went about it that makes it viewed as a slippery action. If they only had told us about this out in the open, I think there would have been wider acceptance."

The Blanchard administration defended the action, contending the past practice of paying liquor suppliers up to 90 days from receipt of bills was unethical. But House Minority Leader Michael Busch, Saginaw Republican, described the acceleration of payments as a political maneuver to stall or postpone legislative action to cut the income tax rate before 1987.

The surplus issue is central to the timing of the rollback or action to return all or part of the surplus to the taxpayers. Either an early rollback or a reimbursement of part of the surplus still appears to be likely, despite the governor's position. But the governor's action in reducing the size of the surplus, whether warranted by ethical or other considerations, does appear to have provided a new source of controversy between the governor and the Legislature, whatever happens in the future.

We suspect that with both houses of the Legislature and the governor coming up for re-election, any legislation calling for a rollback or a reimbursement of part of the surplus will be effective prior to the November 1986 election. Most Republicans argue the earlier they act the better, but most Democrats play for more time and see a 1986 rollback date as their best political response to the controversy over the 38 percent increase in 1983. Politics rather than the state's basic needs apparently will dictate whatever action is taken.

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

There are writers, such as James Michener, who take readers to countries — Hawaii, Poland, to name but two — giving the reader a real knowledge of the country's history, politics, society and geography.

There are others such as Studs Terkel who introduce readers to people from all walks of life, circumstances and callings, letting them know their thoughts and feelings as they express them in their own words.

Then there are authors such as Arthur Hailey who take readers inside corporations letting them see how big business works, how it both serves the public and stockholders and how men and women at the top struggle to reach the pinnacle and to remain there.

In his books, he has shown the inner workings of the airplane industry, the auto companies, the hotel business, the utility conglomerates.

The latest offering, "Strong Medicine," shines a spotlight on the drug industry.

The story line centers on Celia Jordan, a determined super-woman who breaks into the pharmaceutical business as a young salesperson. It is a job traditionally held by men but Celia is persistent and lucky. She convinces a young doctor to try a new drug on his dying patient. He does. The patient lives and Celia is off to a running start on her successful race to the top.

Besides insuring her chosen career, she also assures happy personal life for herself. She marries the young doctor who consented to try the drug.

Despite their conflicting views on various aspects of the drug industry, theirs is a storybook marriage. He proves to be an understanding, patient and loving spouse to a woman whose work demands much of her time and absence. They have two well-behaved, intelligent children who never seem to cause them any trouble and who grow up to be successful, well-rounded adults.

If the story is bland, the background and the situations depicted are not.

Life in the pills and potions industry is not without stress despite the fact that it produces products that alleviate those problems in others.

We have in the course of the novel a doctor who dies of a drug overdose, a habit sustained by free samples from drug salesmen; an executive who commits suicide after a drug produced by his company to ease morning sickness in pregnant women results in the birth of his severely brain-damaged grandchild.

The head of the research department works for years on a breakthrough that will nullify side effects of strong drugs. Anxious to be first and to make a name for himself, he convinces the company to market the drug. Later it proves to be a hazardous drug and is withdrawn. In the course of investigation, it is found that he was not completely honest in his reports. He is disgraced, the company is embarrassed and Celia, who now heads the organization, must face a court hearing.

On the plus side, the company successfully researches and brings to the public several life-saving, life-sustaining products.

The picture Hailey presents is a fair one. Drug companies are in business for profit. There is a constant race to be the first to discover and market a drug that will benefit the public and will also make the company rich. In the end, he concludes that the good the drug industry does outweighs errors made in putting a drug on the market that at the worst is harmful and at the least not as effective as promoted.

As Andrew tells Celia: "When I graduated in medicine after World War II, most of the time when we treated sick patients all you could do was provide support, then stand aside and hope. Now there is a whole arsenal of drugs to fight with and win."

This truth can be fully appreciated if we stop and think what wonders have been worked by drugs. There are drugs to control high blood pressure and resultant strokes; drugs to prevent heart attacks, to heal ulcers and control diabetes. Not only that, but there is constant research to improve these life-saving medicines and lessen their side effects as well as to produce cures for death-dealing diseases such as cancer.

To say a book is informative is not saying much about an author as a novelist. In this instance, Hailey does manage to create enough situations to engage the reader's interest through pages of what might be termed an expose of the pharmaceutical industry, its problems, its failures, its successes and its contributions.

This is not expected. Getting a firm hand on a subject has been his stock in trade and has served him well in previous successful novels. In the course of this story, he also manages to convey some good insights on good and bad drugs.

There is another facet of his choice of subjects that should be noted. While they are contemporary, they are in a way timeless. For instance, medicines have been around since men brewed roots and barks seeking relief from pain and illness.

Historically, errors and discoveries have contributed to progress in medicine. This is still true today with some added complications.

I say

Be cool, Daddy-o

Sometimes it's hard for me to believe I'm a father. Correction — a daddy.

Now and then I'll be reading when one of my two daughters will skitter around the corner, and for a brief moment, I wonder whose child that is in my home.

The reason for this is obvious. It's because just yesterday I was an 18-year-old with semi-clear skin tooling down Woodward in Tom Van Buhler's 396 Super Sport convertible searching for girls with a scared look in my eyes.

A scant 24 hours later, I'm a 37-year-old graybeard trying to teach the Soupy Shuffie to kids who'd rather breakdance. And attempting to ride herd on these two at night doesn't make me feel any younger either.

Take dinner time for instance. Last night Katie, my terrible two-year-old, suffered a severe liver rejection. While she was at it, she also rejected her carrots, macaroni and cheese, and milk because there wasn't enough chocolate in it.

This beautiful, golden girl suddenly turned into "The Thing That Wouldn't Swallow." She sat for 20 minutes with a mouthful of liquid macaroni. I never did see her gulp it down. Maybe it was just absorbed through the linings of her cheeks.

I innocently asked Laurel, (a haughty 6 going on forever), how she liked the sandwich I'd made her for lunch. She dropped her fork and pinned me to the chair with an exasperated look.

"Daddy, you made it too sloppy!" she wailed. "The egg salad dropped out onto the table. It wasn't cool!" It wasn't cool. Then I remember how important "lunchroom cool" was to me. I was always embarrassed by my lunches. There were five of us kids, and while we weren't poor, mom tried to save a buck where she could.

So she wrapped our sandwiches in old plastic bread wrappers. The other students' sandwiches looked so neat wrapped in that frosty white waxpaper that crinkled and rustled so impressively.

It seems like they'd always whip out something great like a ham and

Festival to focus on mental health

The Mental Health Performing Arts Association, a non-profit organization set up to educate the public about mental health issues, will sponsor a film festival focusing on films that deal with the treatment and care of the mentally ill.

The festival is co-sponsored by the Wayne State University School of Social Work. Eight films will be shown at the W.S.U. General Lectures Building on Friday and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. on the following dates:

"Snake Pit," Friday, Jan. 18; "David and Lisa," Saturday, Jan. 19; "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," Friday, Jan. 25; "Persona," Saturday, Jan. 26; "I Never Promised You a Rose Garden," Friday, Feb. 1; "Equus," Saturday, Feb. 2; "King of Hearts," Friday, Feb. 8; and "Let There Be Light," Saturday, Feb. 9.

The festival will culminate in a discussion of how the film industry has treated the issue of the treatment and care of the mentally ill on Sunday, Feb. 10, at 2 p.m.

Tickets will be available at the door. Donations are as follows: regular, $3; students, seniors, $2; consumers, $1; and subscription - all films and forum, $20.

Then I'd drag out something totally uncool like a lumpy, Peptodozen fights and call Sri Lanka long distance while I did the dishes. It keeps their minds off getting in real trouble.

Along about 8 p.m., I got a little grayer when I announced it was bedtime. Ever seen two kids go in four different directions at the same time?

After they brushed their teeth, wrestled into pajamas, had two drinks of water each, just "one more" story, and uncounted cries of "she hit, scratched, spit, touched, laughed, looked and listened" at me, they were finally asleep. At 11:30 Rose came home from work. We embraced, lied to each other about our easy night and hit the sack.

About 4 a.m. I padded foggily into their room to make sure they were tucked in against the chill.

Back in bed I peeled a few Strawberry Shortcake stickers off my feet before sliding between the sheets. It's amazing how they can get to you even while they sleep.

Daddies will smile and nod as they read this.

Bachelors will stare in confusion.

School official discusses . . .

Q. So that idea was unrelated to consolidation?

A. It was unrelated. However, there is an interlocking relationship. The recommendation (on the sixth-grade move) came prior to the school reorganization. We held off on it because we wanted to look at the whole school reorganization. It's only been in recent years that we've had the room in the middle schools to put the sixth-graders there. It was an opportunity that was brought about by shrinking enrollment.

Q. So we suddenly had two big changes looming?

A. That's what happened. One of the things that happened was that parents expressed concern that all these bad things were going to happen to their kids. None of those things happened.

One of the things the parents feared was that they would lose teacher contact. And we said, we'd make a great effort for the sixth-graders to have parent conferences and to write more frequently on student progress. This year all the sixth-graders took notes home asking, "Would you like to schedule a conference with your teachers?" In the whole system, only five parents requested a conference.

Q. Has the concept of two kinds of schools — K through eighth grade and high schools — been considered in Grosse Pointe?

A. Actually, if we had taken the superintendent's first recommendation, that was moving an elementary school into a middle school, that would have been the system in three schools. In essence, it was considered and the community rejected it.

The message the board got was that we do not want the younger children placed with the seventh- and eighth-graders. And the board then said, "If they don't want to consolidate vertically — putting elementary schools with the middle schools — then we should consolidate horizontally by reducing the number of elementary schools." That's how we got the four-schools approach.

Supposing we had done that at Barnes. Those children, starting at kindergarten, would have been with the same 30 children all the way through the eighth grade. Educationally, I don't think that's good.

I had a little experience with that. I went to a small country school with 15 students from the first to the sixth grade. Then I was transported to a large school system in Shaker Heights (Ohio). I know what a tough adjustment it was.

Q. Why is it a handicap to be with the same students for several years?

A. There's no choices for the students. The parents who've had children moved from Barnes to Monteith have told me about that. They're now able to have three classes at every grade level, without combining grades in one classroom.

There's three choices for student placement at each grade level. So if a student doesn't relate to one teacher, there's at least two other choices. There's a lot more opportunity for growth and change. If you have a conflict with kids in a neighborhood, you don't want to carry that into school and you have an opportunity to split them up in school.

Q. What about the claim of the committee for Neighborhood Elementary Schools that it's more difficult and less safe for small children to travel farther to school and therefore, it makes more sense to close the middle schools first and leave the elementary schools open?

A. From the standpoint of travel, it's a sensible idea. From other standpoints, I don't think it is. I don't think it's good education to keep those 12-, 13- and 14-year-olds contained in one elementary school. We can't offer them the educational opportunities that we can if we can get them in larger groupings.

One of the reasons we wanted to close the elementary is that we couldn't justify full-time gym, art or music teachers there. I'm talking about cost savings in terms of salaries. When those teachers are traveling from school to school, they're traveling on school system time. They're not instructing. And we have to pay for the cost of the car mileage.

To be continued next week.

Neil Bell, left, and his father, Alex, owners of the Village Market, have been at the Mack Avenue location for 28 years. Prior to that, the elder Bell had a market on Essex and Newport for 22 years.

It's a family affair

By Pat Paholsky

After spending 50 years in the grocery business, Alex Bell has had to slow down somewhat. But the 77-year-old man isn't practicing for retirement yet, according to his son. He had a heart operation that put him on hold temporarily, but now "Dad's here every morning around 11 a.m.," son Neil said.

In fact, up to 1½ years ago, the elder Bell was working 75 hours a week. While he considers his current hours in the category of part time, son Neil said part time for his father is full time for someone else.

The store he started 28 years ago on Mack is Village Market. Before that, he owned and operated a grocery store on Essex and Newport for 22 years. And the family-owned business is a family affair with no absentee owners here.

Mother Leila, who is 72, spends 3½ days at the store doing the books and ordering. Most of the paperwork, however, is done at home, according to her son.

"Her thing is numbers," he said. "She doesn't like cleaning house. She can look at a column of double-digit numbers and she can add it faster than a machine. You can't catch her on a mistake."

"Her hobby is work," he added. It's apparently rubbed off on their son, who said his father tells the story of how he tried to discourage him from going into the business by getting him up early in the morning and keeping him at the store until late. It didn't work, the son said.

A major remodeling that added one-third more space to the building is nearly completed. The younger Bell said he began in June, working Sundays and nights.

"Everyone in the trade said you can't do it (remain open), you'll be down. Wrong. We had open air at times, but we never closed a day."

The building grew from 3,600 square feet to 5,400 square feet.

"This will do for 10 more years," Bell said. "It's probably our fourth major remodeling in 28 years. We started with 19 feet of meat counter and now it's at 64 feet."

He said his father revived the concept of ready-to-heat main meals 25 years ago.

"My dad is from Canada and they stuffed pork chops," he said. "Then he started stuffing chicken breasts and making veal parmesan."

Although Village Market has been in business since 1956, Bell said that as far as independent markets in the Pointes go, he's still "the new kid on the block." It's easier for independents to succeed in this area, he said.

"People here don't want packaged meat. They go to a butcher shop and get exactly what they want."

Deliveries are another service not offered by chains, he said.

"Over the years, I have seen them (supermarkets) come and go. Now there are only two chains left here."

Bell prides himself on starting trends in the area.

"Twenty years ago, they said you'll never sell wine. We started out with 12 feet and now we're up to 75 feet of shelves with a lot of display."

The market also offers self-serve liquor. "The only one in the area," he said.

Association offers health plan

Edward Kane, D.D.S., president of the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue, announced completion of plans to offer comprehensive health insurance to all association members and their employees.

At a recent meeting at Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, the board of directors of the association accepted the recommendation of the Rev. Robert Linthicum's planning and development committee to adopt the Independent Health Plan administered by the Bonier Insurance Agency of Grosse Pointe Woods to begin Feb. 1.

The plan encourages regular medical attention by covering all the costs of routine examinations, inoculations, office visits and medical care. The health of the member is closely monitored and problems are often detected before they become serious.

All current members of the association who plan to participate should return their completed applications by Feb. 1. Prospective participants may join when they become association members.

Winter concert is result of semester of note-making

When South's orchestra and symphonic band take the stage at Parcels Middle School tonight at 8, it will be the culmination of both groups' first semester work.

Ralph Miller, instrumental music director at South, said it takes a month or so to learn each piece of music well enough to perform it in public. The two groups have been taking longer preparing for tonight's performance for a couple of reasons.

The first may be guest conductor Dr. Harry Begian, who has been working with orchestra and symphony. His appearance with the groups is part of a gift from the Foundation for Academic Excellence.

Dr. Begian recently retired from the University of Illinois where he was director of bands for 14 years. His University of Illinois Symphonic Band Record Series is one of the most complete catalogs of band recordings available at college or professional levels, with more than 50 albums produced.

Begian, who was also director of bands at Wayne State University and Michigan State University as well as Cass Technical High School, received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Wayne and later earned his doctorate at the University of Michigan. He has appeared as guest conductor, adjudicator, clinician and lecturer across the country and Canada.

The other reason the band and orchestra may have taken extra time to prepare the selections is because they are the ones the two groups will perform at the 40th Annual Midwestern Conference on School Vocal and Instrumental Music that begins Thursday, Jan. 17, in Ann Arbor.

Ralph Miller

South is one of the few schools ever to be asked to bring both an orchestra and symphonic band to the conference of musical directors, Miller said. It's the first time since the mid-'70s that any of the instrumental groups have been asked to perform there, he added.

The 2½-day conference runs until Saturday. The orchestra and band will perform at 9 a.m. Saturday in Hill Auditorium, the 98-member orchestra, with the largest string section in the state, will present the overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" by Glinka, Overture in D by Handel and Procession of the Sardar from "Caucasian Sketches" by Ippolitov-Ivanov.

The symphonic band will perform The Free Lance March by Sousa, the Slavonic Dances by Dvorak and March from "Symphonic Metamorphosis" by Hindemith.

The Symphonic Band, with Begian conducting, will also perform at 2 p.m. Saturday in Power Center. The program is titled "Interpretation of Orchestral Transcriptions" and includes a performance of Marche Slav by Tchaikovsky.

An orchestral interpretation is the rewriting of a musical piece in a key suitable for a symphonic band, which doesn't contain the string section an orchestra does, Miller said.

In order to be chosen to perform, a school sends in taped performances from that year's groups. The selections are then screened and the best performers are asked to appear at the conference, Miller said.

The conference is sponsored by the American String Teacher's Association, Michigan Music Educator's Association, Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association and the Michigan School Vocal Association.

Besides the symphony and orchestra, the school has a jazz band, a marching band and a pit orchestra that performs during certain drama department performances, Miller said.

"There are certain students who play in all groups, depending on the instrument and if they want to be that involved," Miller said. "Many of them do this in addition to staying on the honor roll and being in other activities.

"We have our largest enrollment ever in instrumental music, with 220 students," he added.

All the orchestra and band members are more than just proficient with their instruments, Miller said. "Just about all of them started in the fifth grade... and at least half of them have studied with private teachers," he added.

The orchestra and symphonic band are pretty evenly split along grade lines, with about 60 percent seniors and juniors and the rest sophomores and freshmen, Miller said. The quality of their play is of the same quality as past years, he added.

"With these groups, they tend to perform better as time goes on," Miller said. "The spring concert will be better than the winter concert because the students will have been performing together longer."

In addition to its program for the Ann Arbor conference, the orchestra will also perform St. Paul's Suite by Holst tonight at Parcels.

After intermission, the symphonic band will present its Saturday program as well as Marche Slav by Tchaikovsky, with Begian as guest conductor, and Themes from 007 by Lowden. Begian will also conduct the symphonic band's performance of The Free Lance March.

Prime Time

relative as to whether or not the government should stockpile vaccines to prevent shortages. It came about because of a shortage of whooping cough vaccines.

Most of the vaccines are made by more than one company. The shortage of whooping cough vaccine began when a company found itself unable to obtain liability insurance at a reasonable price. Some drug companies declined to make vaccines because some children have suffered rare side effects. Their parents sued and won multimillion dollar court settlements.

The solution to the problem is not easy. If the government contracted with drug companies to produce vaccines, then the government would be liable. As one government representative put it, "The government should not be in the business of guaranteeing profits to drug companies." Another objection is, parents could still file suit even after federal compensations.

Stockpiling vaccines could be the answer. Currently 4 million has been allocated for that purpose in 1985. A six-month supply of whooping cough vaccine alone would cost $25 million.

And then there is the generic drug question, one of prime interest to those who must spend a fair amount of money on medicine.

In Hailey's novel there is considerable discussion by officers of the drug company on the availability of placing their products for over-the-counter sales. The general opinion was the prescription medicine was more profitable, but the time had come to enter the generic market.

Whatever the controversy generic drugs have created, they are now a reality. Congress acted this fall to approve provisions that will make low-cost generic drugs more available, saving consumers about $100 million in the next decade.

The new provisions will also allow more rapid approval of generic versions of widely used pharmaceutical products.

Brand name drugs will be protected by patent for five year and length, expensive testing of generic drugs found safe and effective in its patent form will be eliminated.

This is good news for older consumers who comprise a major portion of this market because of their high need for drugs.

In order to receive the generic drug equivalents, your physician must indicate on your prescription that the 'generic' version can be used. Then when having the prescription filled, you must remind the pharmacist that you want the generic replacement.

Whatever the problems of ethics versus profits, whatever the miscalculations on the safe and effectiveness of drugs, there is this to be said, as Hailey through his character Andrew admits:

The drug industry through research and products has done much to conquer disease, to make life easier for those with incurable ailments, to prolong life and to make longer life worth living.

Special education makes changes in program

By Mike Andrzejczyk

This will be a year of change for Grosse Pointe Schools' Special Education Department, according to Director Claire Hunt, who told the school board Monday, Jan. 7, about the size and cost of the department's programs.

The department is looking at a variety of ways to better use the dollars it has and has made some management changes to increase time with students and communication between staff members, Dr. Hunt said.

The department is the third highest-staffed in the system, behind the two high schools, and offers services to public, private and parochial schools in the school district. Among its duties are psychological testing and counseling, reading help, social work, speech correction and programs for those with special learning needs.

There is growing concern about the number of students who are designated as having learning disabilities, Dr. Hunt said. The department must be more certain that those designated as learning disabled aren't simply culturally or educationally disadvantaged, who require different types of help than learning-disabled students, she added.

There is also more careful screening for requests for psychological testing, because some of the requests are needless, Dr. Hunt said.

"If we think one needs to be done, we want to be in a position to do it," she said, adding that testing sometimes "sets off alarms" for parents.

Dr. Hunt also distributes a 22-page pamphlet of objectives and projects the department will try to meet in the current school year.

"We hope to make inroads in all of them," she said. "Ours is a very diverse department, meeting many needs in many different buildings."

The department serves 21 of the 23 public, private and parochial schools in the district as required by law, Dr. Hunt said. Students are entitled to special education services in the district they attend school, not where they live, she added. Total costs of the special education program are $2.8 million. Some of the costs of delivering services in social work, speech and reading therapy to private schools aren't reimbursable, Dr. Hunt added.

One of the major changes in the department was dividing the district into five distinct units to develop work schedules for the staff, Dr. Hunt said. Each high school and middle school, with its three feeder elementary schools are now separate staff units, she said.

This way, the whole team of special education workers are able to meet once a week to talk about the programs, Dr. Hunt said. Before, staff members weren't able to discuss their programs because of scheduling conflicts.

Feedback from the staff on the program has been favorable, except at the high schools, she added.

The reading department has also been redesigned, Dr. Hunt said. The four reading specialists were once spread among 14 schools, but the program has been changed so that it provides help to students whose abilities are two grades below their level, she added.

Helping students who are only slightly behind in their reading skills depends on the amount of time available to the reading specialists, Dr. Hunt said. The department tries to help students who score poorly on reading tests, she said, but added the department isn't doing all it can for those who are a grade below their level.

Some of the things the department is looking at are possible formation of center programs in the area, cooperative efforts among school district and development of new programs for the developmentally disabled age 26 and older.

As school districts began to shrink, intermediate school districts often helped set up center programs for so-called "low incidence" disorders, like autism, Dr. Hunt said. Two Grosse Pointe school district residents who attend the autism program are taken daily by taxi to Garden City, where the center program is located, she added.

A center program may cost a little extra money, but some of the expense would be reimbursed, Dr. Hunt said. Also, the system would be able to offer east side residents a program in their area, she added. Grosse Pointe already operates a center program for the trainable mentally impaired.

The department is looking at a variety of ways to offer more services at lower cost, either through cooperative efforts with other county school districts, or nearby districts in Macomb County, Dr. Hunt said.

The system also received a $23,000 grant recently to fund job placement and referral services for the learning resource centers at the high schools, Dr. Hunt said. Although the programs were very good, they did lack preparation of students for the outside world, she added.

Among other projects, the department hopes to increase communication between parents and staff through a variety of methods, set up staff evaluation procedures, and work to develop the skills of students in different programs.

Schools celebrate centennial with ball

Park resident Dr. Peter Nowosielski will preside as First Ambassador over the 13th annual Orchard Lake Schools Ambassadors Ball Jan. 19.

Among the almost 250 ambassadors for the 1985 Orchard Lake Schools Centennial Year are residents from the Grosse Pointes, the Detroit metropolitan area, Illinois, Georgia, Florida, New Jersey, California and other states.

Under his chairmanship, almost 100 new members have joined the ambassadors roster. The Ambassadors Ball was inaugurated in 1974 to provide a permanent endowment fund to guarantee the future of the Orchard Lake Schools.

The Orchard Lake Schools consists of: St. Mary's College, SS Cyril and Methodius Seminary and St. Mary's Preparatory, and the Center for Pastoral Studies, the Center for Polish Studies and Culture, the Polish American Liturgical Center and the Pope John Paul II Center.

Joey Sucher's the name, team mascot is his game. That's Joey, 9, above, watching North team introductions in last week's North-South hockey match-up at the Grosse Pointe Community Rink. Joey's quite the clown, according to his mom, Lou Sucher. The future North icer dreamed up the idea to serve as North's mascot and will skate out with the team at every home game. Last week's contest was his first and it was hard to tell who was more thrilled with the mascot business, Joey or the Norsemen. Incidentally, North won the game, 3-2.

Singers sought

The Grosse Pointe Community Chorus is looking for male and female singers over 16, soprano, alto, tenor and bass, to prepare for a concert to be given April 21.

Also, a workshop will be hosted by Grosse Pointe Community Chorus for several community choruses on March 10.

There are no auditions needed to join the chorus and the group gathers for the joy of singing only. Persons in all communities are invited to join. Rehearsals are held each week on Tuesday nights.

Registration will begin on Tuesday, Jan. 22 in room 127 at Parcels Middle School, Mack at Vernier, in the Woods, at 7:30 p.m., and will continue for the next two succeeding Tuesdays.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

When you've got a good thing, go with it. . . "Preludes is not a fund raising event," emphasized Mrs. Ellwyn Gilbert, chairman of the Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's Detroit Symphony Preludes' 14th season. "It's an educational endeavor that offers an opportunity to meet with the multi-talented members of the Detroit Symphony in an informal setting."

It's been said before, but Johanna Gilbert, speaking herself in an informal setting at a recent mailing for the mini-concert series to be presented on Fridays, Jan. 25, Mar. 29 and Apr. 26, at 11 a.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, thinks the non-fund raising aspect of the series can't be emphasized too much. It's important that the public know the DSO Women have a community service as well as a fund raising aspect.

Among those helping Johanna stuff, address and stamp the '85 Preludes' flyers were fellow Pointers Mrs. Winfield S. Jewell, Mrs. John Young, Mrs. John Nolan, Mrs. Charles Endicott, Mrs. Alfred Massnick, Mrs. John E. Young Sr., Mrs. Vollrad J. Von Berg, sales chairman, Mrs. C. Jackson France, Mrs. Joseph Shaheen, Miss Hope Whitten, Mrs. G. Bruce Feighner, Mrs. Owen Baker, Mr. and Mrs. George Benjamin, Mrs. George Chadwell, Mrs. James J. Bird and Mrs. Charles Kessler, president of the Detroit Symphony Women.

Marjorie Jewell, hostess chairman, has asked the Mesdames Robert Reisig, J.C. Hurley, Donald C. Austin and Jerome Remick Jr., of The Pointe, and the Mesdames Joseph Stern Jr., Samuel Carman and John G. Bielawski, of Birmingham, to serve on her committee.

The first 1985 Prelude, a week from tomorrow, will feature the Ventura String Quartet: Linda Snedden Smith, first violin, Margaret Tundo, second violin, Vincent Lioni, viola, and Mario DiFiore, cello. Eugene Wade, DSO principal French horn, will perform Mar. 29.

The series concludes Friday, Apr. 26, with John Snow, oboe, and Friends. As always, each Prelude will be followed by a question-and-answer period and a subscription luncheon at 12:15 p.m.

Information on tickets — $30 for the full series of three programs with luncheons, $12 for a single program and lunch, $5 for a single program without lunch — may be obtained by contacting Mary Nolan at 886-6244. Johanna Gilbert emphasizes that the series is open to all. That includes men.

DSO Radio Marathon

The Detroit Symphony Radio Marathon is, on the other hand, very much a fund raising event: a community project to benefit the Youth Education and Outreach Programs of the DSO. It's also great good fun. (So are the Preludes . . . but you know THAT!)

A Story of Service: The Health Education Council

It all began four decades ago, when Mrs. Stanley A. Mackenzie and a group of mothers in the Grosse Pointe community decided that school children needed some guidance in regard to health and hygiene. From this came the Mothers' Health Council, formally organized on Jan. 12, 1945, with Mrs. Mackenzie as founding president. And from that came the Health Education Council of Grosse Pointe, Inc., which will celebrate its 40th anniversary Monday, Jan. 21, at a 1 to 3 p.m. "birthday party" in Grosse Pointe Memorial Church's Second Floor Lounge. You're all invited.

The Council began its History of Service by focusing its attention on the nutritional and dental needs of the community's children, issuing a series of pamphlets, or bulletins, which outlined the basics of hygiene and facts on other health-related topics. A Welfare Committee was later formed, to collect old clothing and distribute it to the needy. Among the impressive array of programs Council volunteers have presented to the school children of Grosse Pointe over the years are the Fluoride Program and the Elementary Sex Education Program; the latter was incorporated into the Grosse Pointe Public School System's Health Curriculum last spring.

The Council currently conducts three in-school programs: Scoliosis (abnormal spinal curvature) Screening for fifth grade girls and all middle school students, Breast Self-Exam for 10th grade girls, and Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation for 10th grade students who are trained by certified CPR volunteers. In the planning stages are a Nutrition Program and a Safety Program geared for very young elementary students, and a Testicular Cancer Detection Program for 10th grade boys.

The public is welcome to join community dignitaries, including Grosse Pointe School Board President Joan Hanpeter, at Monday's "birthday party." The public is also welcome to drop in at the Grosse Pointe Central Library to view its showcase, which this month features Highlights of the Health Education Council's Story.

Among the tributes the Council has received is one from Dr. (Continued on Page 4B)

Vows spoken in November

A traditional gown, styled with a sheer, high neck trimmed with Chantilly and Venice lace and a chapel length train, was Terese Marie Schroeder's choice for her Saturday, November 17, wedding to Robert Arnold Eisiminger Jr.

Venise and Brussels lace trimmed her veil and Juliet cap. She carried a Colonial arrangement of miniature carnations and white roses.

Father Edwin A. Schroeder, of Harsens Island, the bride's uncle, assisted by Father John Molnar, presided at the 5:30 o'clock ceremony in Saint Clare of Montefalco Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Schroeder, of Whittier Road, was attended by her sister, Sally Schroeder, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ann and Lisa Schroeder, two other sisters, Peggy Emmerich, of New York City, Veronica Brostowski, of West Carrollton, Ohio, and Joni Eastworth, of Ypsilanti.

They wore floor length dresses of apricot taffeta and carried arrangements of apricot miniature carnations and lilies.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Eisiminger, of Canton, asked his brother, Richard Eisiminger, to act as best man. Todd DeLuca and Michael Plag-ens, of Canton, John Ketelhut and John Irwin, of Westland, and Jeffery Reinbold, of Reese, ushered.

Flower girl was Dana Schroeder, the bride's niece. Ring bearer was Christopher Matsche, the bridegroom's nephew.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom both selected long-sleeved, floor length gowns, the former's of pale blue chiffon, the latter's of cognac chiffon. Each wore a glamelia wrist corsage.

After a reception at The Shores Club, the newlyweds, recent Eastern Michigan University graduates, left to travel to Naples, Fla., where both are employed by the Naples Board of Education.

Out-of-town guests included the bride's brothers-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Bloomington, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Kallam, of Martinsville, Va., and her brother, Lieutenant Michael Schroeder, USN, stationed at Patuxent Naval Base in Maryland.

More were the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James Schroeder, of Indianapolis, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kerbel, of Brooklyn, N.Y., Scot Stieber, of Fitchburg, Mass., and Terry Carrig, of Waipakonow, Ohio.

Still others were the bride-

groom's grandmother, Mrs. Florence Marion, of Kansas City, Mo., his great-aunt, Mrs. Grace Churchill, of St. Joe, Mo., his brother, William Eisiminger, of Petaluma, Calif., his aunt, Mrs. Marilyn Bogener, of Kingsville, Tex., and Cheryl Vass, of Petaluma, Gary Ventrus, of Cincinnati, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. John Ketelhut, of Norfork, Ark., and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Roggensoch, of Flassmoor, Ill.

Old gardens animate past

Forget the snow shovel, and think about the garden spade and warm days ahead. Scott G. Kunst, of "Old House Gardens," will present a slide lecture at the Detroit Historical Museum on Sunday, Jan. 27, at 2 p.m.

Admission to "Antique Gardens: Period Landscaping for Restored Homes, 1830-1930" is $3, with a reduced fee of $2 for members of the Detroit Garden Center or the Detroit Historical Society, sponsors of the program in cooperation with the Historical Museum.

Advance reservations are not required, but would be helpful in order to arrange seating. Checks should be made payable and mailed to the Detroit Historical Society, 5401 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich. 48202.

Kunst, who comes from a long line of gardeners (his great-grandfather emigrated from Holland to start a florist business in Grand Rapids), has gardened since grade school. He began researching antique gardens in an effort to appropriately landscape his 1874 folk-style cottage in Ypsilanti, and has created landscape plans for a number of historic house museums.

Among the topics he plans to cover in his Historical Museum presentation are Pioneer and Greek Revival Gardens to 1860, Downing Landscapes (1850-1880), Victorian Carpet-Bedding (1870-1930) and fences and Victorian garden ornaments. He will also offer suggestions for people who want to develop an old-fashioned garden.

"Beyond the fact that planting a garden compatible with the age of a house makes a home look like it's supposed to look, there is also a richness," he says. "The same richness we find living in a house that others have loved is to be found working with the same plants that Thomas Jefferson, or my grandfather, grew."

Limited parking is available in the lot at the Historical Museum, located at Woodward and Kirby in Detroit's University/Cultural Center.

Assumption Nursery adding classrooms

The Assumption Nursery School and Toddler Center, located on Marter Road, will open two new preschool classrooms Monday, Feb. 4, offering a morning session from 8:30 to 11 a.m. and an afternoon session from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m., with optional day care from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The school features an early childhood program focusing on each child's social-emotional, cognitive and psychomotor growth. In addition to the daily developmental program, enrichment sessions such as La Petite Cuisine (a child-oriented cooking class) and Kiddie Kalo (a body movement experience especially designed for young children) are offered.

Assumption School is headquartered in the former Eastpointe Elementary School and accepts children ranging in age from 12 months to kindergarten. Director Norene Bara's background includes a Masters degree in Early Childhood Education and 18 years' experience in the educational field.

The school is licensed and state-approved. Information on the new preschool sessions or any other school program may be obtained by calling 772-4477.

Multi-lingual Open House

The International Institute, located on East Kirby Street in Detroit's University Cultural Center, will hold a foreign language open house Tuesday, Jan. 22, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Arabic, Chinese, French, Greek, Italian, Japanese and Spanish teachers will be present.

Sample lessons, like those taught in the Institute's language classes, will be given, and textbooks will be available for perusal. There will be an opportunity to register for spring classes — or just to chat in your favorite language.

The Institute's beginning classes in Arabic, Chinese, Greek, Italian, Japanese and Spanish, and intermediate classes in Arabic and Japanese, start the week of Feb. 11. French classes begin in March. All classes meet from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Institute, where Cora Lee Sterling may be contacted at 871-8600 Mondays and Tuesdays for registration information.

The Institute's Education Department also maintains a list of tutors in various languages. Anyone who would like to be on that list is invited to contact Ms. Sterling on Mondays and Tuesdays.

The International Institute is a Torch Drive-supported agency that provides social services to new immigrants and foreign-speaking people as well as cultural and educational programs about the different ethnic groups of metropolitan Detroit.

Generations ago,
a tradition of design was born. Now it's called Grand Legacy.

An American tradition in styling lives on in the beautiful lines of Grand Legacy, an inspiration in 19th century elegance. Cherry and other hard woods are carefully carved and shaped — tops are hand-rubbed. And although the styling is modified for today's lifestyles, Grand Legacy is now what quality furniture has always been — the crowning glory of a beautiful home. Now you can enjoy the heritage of our great American past. Come and see. Grand Legacy can be the beginning of your own family tradition.

Music stories for the young

Jay O'Callahan, storyteller, actor, playwright and writer, will be featured at the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's "Earlybird" (11 a.m.) and "Lazybird" (2 p.m.) Young People's Concerts on Saturday, Jan. 26, in Ford Auditorium.

Tickets for both performances led by Michael Krajewski, the DSO's assistant conductor, ranging in price from $6 to $8, are available at the Ford Auditorium box office, 567-1400, Hudson's and CTC/Ticket World outlets. Group discount information may be obtained by calling 446-0909.

As a special attraction, children attending this concert can participate in a Saturday Arts Workshop held in the auditorium's lower lobby one hour prior to each performance. Children's Museum staff members will show the boys and girls how to create their own coloring books. Workshop tickets, at $2 per child, must be purchased in advance through the auditorium box office.

O'Callahan, who uses body movements, gestures, dynamics of voice and music to bring his characters to life, will be introduced by Paula Blanchard, Michigan's First Lady. He will tell stories illustrating the events in three classical pieces: Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffmann" (episodes in the love life of poet E.T.A. Hoffmann), Saint-Saens' "Dance Macabre" (the spooky story of a graveyard where skeletons dance as if alive every Halloween) and a Suite from "Hary Janos," the opera by Zoltan Kodaly that incorporates a rakish figure from Hungarian legend.

In addition to performing with symphony orchestras, O'Callahan has appeared at the Smithsonian Institution, at the International Communications Agency in Niger, Africa, at the European Council of International Schools in The Netherlands, on National Public Radio and various Public Television programs, in theaters—even at the 1980 Winter Olympics in Lake Placid.

For some performances, he creates his own stories. On other occasions, he portrays familiar figures of legend, history and fiction.

The 10th Annual Marathon, sponsored by the Detroit Symphony League and the DSO Women's Association, will be broadcast live from the Masonic Temple Studios of WQRS Timeless FM 105 from 5 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 6, through 10 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 10. It will feature live entertainment, celebrity interviews, a celebrity phone bank, musical selections by DSO musicians and a live auction.

In addition to auction and premium items, listeners can phone in pledges (833-2400) and receive special '85 Marathon mementos. A $12 pledge brings a Symphony Mug with the Marathon catalog logo design. For $15, you get a Marathon T-shirt or a double deck of cards. For $25, you choose between a set of four DSO glasses or a collectors edition of the DSO cookbook, signed by Gunther Herbig, DSO music director.

A $50 pledge entitles you to a fold-up, quartz travel clock, a $100 pledge to a pair of Jason binoculars. These seven Marathon pledge premiums are available now during DSO concert hours at the Symphony Boutique in the Ford Auditorium, and may be ordered through forms in the '85 Marathon catalog mailed to DSO subscribers and contributors.

The catalog, which includes all information about the Marathon and lists extra-special premiums — a Tiger baseball cap autographed by Tom Selleck, for instance, or a chance to conduct the University of Michigan's Marching Band in a spirited "Hail to the Victors!" — donated by many local businesses, restaurants, celebrities and the DSO musicians themselves, is also available through the DSO offices and all Harmony House stores.

Goal of the DSO/WQRS Radio Marathon '85 is $140,000. Honorary chairman is Walter J. McCarthy, chairman of the DSO board. Chairman is Carol Ann May, of Bloomfield Hills. Co-chairman is Mary Baynert, of The Pointe. Steering committee members include, from The Pointe, Peg Lewis, Mary Nolan, Barbara Genord, Pat Young, Linda Williamson, Nancy Denomme-Crigger, Sue Koczara and Judy Bartell.

A Dazzling Evening

The opening night performance of Alexander Godunov & Stars next Thursday, Jan. 24, at the Music Hall Center will honor the late Mrs. M. Morton (Nita Zeff) Barak, known as Billie by her many friends, fans and associates. Tickets for a limited number (300) of benefit seats and a reception following the last curtain call, with Godunov as special guest, may be obtained through the Music Hall Development Office, 963-7622, at $62.50 per person ($125 per couple), a portion of which is tax deductible.

All proceeds from the benefit will be added to the Nita Zeff Barak Memorial Trust Fund: an endowment fund — Music Hall's first — designed to support future innovative programming at the non-profit performing arts center. Billie, a devoted supporter of community and cultural projects, was a leading member of Music Hall's board of trustees. The benefit is being co-chaired by Mrs. Peter B. Spivak and Mrs. Benjamin Frank.

Teodoro and Isabel Morca, classical Spanish dancers, and Deborah Hadley and Wade Walthall, classical ballet dancers.

All performances, including opening night, are at 8 p.m. Ticket prices (except for the opening night Anniversary Circle) range from $15 to $25. Tickets may be purchased at the Music Hall Box Office, 963-7680, and all Ticket World outlets.

Pair exchange vows Aug. 4

East Lansing's Ascension Lutheran Church was the setting for the summer wedding of Cathleen Susanne Bailey and Gregory Alan Momeyer, who vacationed in Gloucester, Mass., following the 1 o'clock ceremony and a reception in the Church Fellowship Hall. They are at home in Westland.

Mrs. Momeyer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip T. Bailey, of Okemos. Mr. Momeyer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Momeyer, of Moorland Drive.

The parents of the couple lit stands of candles to begin the service. The bride and bridegroom removed one candle from each stand to kindle a Unity Candle, especially designed by a friend of the bride's family, Mrs. Kenneth Pyle, to symbolize their union.

Keith Geyer, a Grosse Pointe North High School friend of the bridegroom, sang, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Kirk Bailey, the bride's sister-in-law.

The former Miss Bailey wore a white peau de soie wedding gown, styled with a Queen Anne neckline and cathedral length train. Lace and net insets accented her back, neck and three-quarter length sleeves.

A wreath of white silk flowers and pearls held her knee length veil. She carried a nosegay of pink roses, white carnations, white and pink orchids and baby's-breath, with white silk streamers.

Honor maid Laura Slevin, of Frankenmuth, a Western Michigan University friend of the bride couple, and bridesmaids Gail Hall, of Lansing, and Jan Anderson, of Holland, wore floor length dresses, daphne rose in color, styled with elbow length sleeves and high collars accented with netted lace.

They carried nosegays of white carnations, pink roses and baby's-breath. Flower girls Betsy and Jolie Bailey, of Okemos, the bride's nieces, wore white frocks, identical to those of the senior attendants, with pink ribbon around their necks.

Albert Momeyer acted as best man for his brother Alex and Glenn Momeyer, two other brothers, ushered.

The mother of the bride wore a street length, long-sleeved dress of raspberry chiffon, styled with a jewel neckline and pleated bodice. Beading accented the hem and scalloped, elbow length sleeves of the bridegroom's mother's street length dress of mauve chiffon. Each mother wore a pink-tipped white orchid wrist corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory A. Momeyer

Nine local charities — the Detroit Police Athletic League, the International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit, Leader Dogs for the Blind, the Michigan Cancer Foundation, Juvenile Diabetes, the Special Olympics, the Michigan Humane Society, Sheltering Arms and Clinton Valley Center — will benefit from funds raised via "Life Styles '85."

The show is presented by Foland's, the Alternative Department Store, which will donate thousands of dollars of merchandise for each charity to raffle. Consumer information seminars will be offered by experts in a variety of fields. Local retailers and name brand product representatives will be featured.

There will be bridal fashion shows, with seating for 1500 guests, each ending in a spectacular red, white and blue finale. A nine-foot replica of the Statue of Liberty will stand at the entrance to the show, and donations for the refurbishing of the real "Miss Liberty" will be accepted throughout the weekend.

There will be live music from nine different bands, and several local celebrities, including Colleen Burcar and Jack McCarthy, will make an appearance. Nothing will be sold at the show.

Some temper tantrum tips

Are a grade school child's temper tantrums spontaneous and uncontrollable? Or are they a good way to get an adult's attention?

One of the most basic needs of any person is the need for attention. Young children ask for it directly when they say, "Watch me! Watch me!" Older children may be asking for attention by throwing temper tantrums, according to Growing Up, the child development newsletter for school-age children.

When a child loses something, when he feels lonely, hurt or angry, he wants someone to pay attention to him. He wants the attention so much he doesn't care whether it is positive (praise and encouragement) or negative (an angry reaction to a tantrum).

Children often react to emotions in an exaggerated way, too. They may cry as hard when denied a snack as they would if they were seriously hurt. They don't realize that crying when hurt is okay, but crying equally hard over not getting a snack is out.

The best way to teach a child acceptable ways of getting attention or showing emotion is by a parent's example. If a parent reacts to a child's temper tantrum by screaming and yelling, he/she teaches the child that rage and anger are okay — but the screaming parent won't teach the child to handle the problem.

The parent who reacts to a temper tantrum in a self-controlled, gentle way is, on the other hand, teaching a child self-controlled, gentle behavior.

One of the most effective ways of dealing with a child's temper tantrum is to ignore it. By not getting the desired attention, the child will eventually learn that temper tantrums are not an effective way to get one's own way.

It may be difficult at times for parents to ignore a tantrum, because of the noise and disturbance it causes. At home, telling the child to go to his room is one good way to control the noise level.

When a temper tantrum is not too severe, many children will react favorably to a distraction ("Let's make a list of who will be coming to your next birthday party," "Let's get ready to go to the store"). Children's reactions can change very rapidly, from hot to cold, from temper tantrum to gentle, loving behavior.

Children are constantly experimenting with different ways of reacting to situations. Temper tantrums, if handled in a gentle, positive and consistent way, will eventually taper off, and the child will have learned to control his temper and his emotions.

Growing Up follows a child's development through the school years. For more information about the newsletter, write to Growing Up, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Ind. 47902. Include your child's school grade when writing.

New resource center focus is on breasts

A centralized information resource center for women concerned about benign and malignant breast conditions opened last fall at the Vincent T. Lombardi Cancer Research Center at Georgetown University Medical Center in Washington, D.C., the American Institute for Cancer Research (AICR) reports.

Since its founding in 1970, the Lombardi Cancer Research Center has experienced a decade of rapid growth to become one of the leading cancer facilities in the United States, with more than 60 physicians and scientists. In 1974, the National Cancer Institute designated it a Comprehensive Cancer Center.

AICR, an organization formed in 1981 to promote research and public education on breast cancer and the link between diet, nutrition and cancer, contributed $79,000 to launch the new Breast Resource Project. Says Kathleen Foster, R.N., its nursing administrator: "We want to help women become knowledgeable, well-informed health care consumers. This project will provide the latest information related to breast care and disease."

A survey conducted by the Gallup Organization for AICR in late 1983 revealed that breast cancer was believed by women to be the most serious health problem they face.

The Breast Resource Project will provide resource information and educational materials in addition to referral information about counseling groups, nutritional guidance, pain control and rehabilitation services. A library will contain publica-

Convene School of Government

The School of Government, Inc., a non-partisan organization founded in 1940 by the late Mrs. Wilber M. Brucker, of Vendome Road, enters its 45th year with a program on Wednesday, Jan. 23, at the Detroit Athletic Club featuring Louis Gauci, new Chief Designer for the Detroit Institute of Arts, as guest speaker.

Gauci, born in Malta, came to the United States with his family as a young boy, studied architecture at the University of Detroit, graduating with honors, and worked for several Detroit architectural firms before moving to Denver, Colo., in 1974.

He practiced architecture with the Denver region's most prominent design firms and successfully executed a variety of projects, while designing two unanimous award-winning state and national competitions. Between 1980 and the spring of 1984 he participated in John Hilberry and Associates, specialists in museum planning, as a principal and director of design.

During this period he was involved in a broad range of museum planning projects, including major expansion of the Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery, Lincoln, Neb.; Pacific Asia Museum, Pasadena, Calif., and the Thomas Gilcrease Institute in Tulsa, Okla., and was responsible for directing the restoration of the Crystal Gallery and designing the Albert and Peggy de Salle Gallery of Photography, both at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

His primary responsibility as Chief Designer for the DIA includes the design of all exhibitions at the museum. His efforts range from design of the various exhibition galleries to exhibition posters.

Mrs. Harry Taylor, the School of Government's current president, will officiate at the January meeting. Mrs. Ralph Mason, immediate past-president and program director, will introduce the chairman of the day, Mrs. Joseph R. Zanetti.

The School's approximately 250 members are scattered throughout the metropolitan Detroit area. They come together on a regular basis to hear outstanding speakers in diverse fields, ranging from government to economics to energy conservation.

tions and audio-visual materials. In addition, user information requests to identify potential new medical and social service information needs will be monitored.

"It is clear from the hundreds of calls and letters we receive that women still have many unanswered questions about breast disease and need a convenient and reliable source of information," says Thomas L. Newman, executive director of AICR. "We hope the Breast Resource Project will help meet this pressing need of women."

Dr. Patrick Byrne, a Lombardi Cancer specialist with extensive experience in treating breast cancer patients, serves as medical director to the project. Wendy S. Schain, Ed.D., a certified psychologist who specializes in treating breast cancer patients, serves as educational psychological consultant.

"We hope our resource center will serve as a model for comparable programs to be established throughout the country," says Dr. Byrne. "It's an excellent way to provide accurate information in this important area of health care."

The public is welcome to write or visit the Breast Resource Project, Lombardi Cancer Research Center, Georgetown University Medical Center, 3800 Reservoir Road, Washington, D.C. 20007.

Pointer of Interest

By Janet Mueller

It all began with The Great Tomato Race. Dona Reynolds, convert to the food processor, challenged her friend and fellow home economist Ricki Older, who "didn't need another gadget in her kitchen," to pit her knife against "the other gadget." Dona's food processor tomato slices were on the plate, ready for a sprinkling of vinegar and oil before going into the mouth, while Ricki was still slicing.

Actually, it all began much farther back than that, at Michigan State University, where Ricki and Dona were both Home Economics majors and members of the same sorority. After they picked up their Bachelor of Science degrees, they worked at their professions, Dona teaching "in between babies" in the Detroit Public Schools, Ricki working as a public utility home economist.

She wasn't Ricki Older then, but Freddie Woolston. She became Older when she married Robert, Ricki when that re-marriage took her to California. It was a new life: definitely not the life of a "Freddie."

But before that re-marriage and before that move to the West Coast — and after The Great Tomato Race — Ricki joined Dona as a food processor demonstrator in Detroit area department stores. And always, during and after their demonstrations, came the question: "Where can I find, written down, all the secrets and suggestions you tell us?"

Answer: nowhere. Because Ricki and Dona, experts in what a food processor can do (after a combined 11 years as demonstrators, they knew their business), had learned by personal trial and error that there WERE secrets to successful use of the food processor.

THEY WERE ALSO aware that a good many of the people who stopped to watch their demonstrations were already owners of food processors which, after a few experiments, they had squirreled away at the far back of the farthest back kitchen cupboard, because nobody had let them in on those secrets.

Clearly, there was a need. Clearly, Dona and Ricki were qualified to fill it. Clearly, they should write a book. Clearly, if they were going to write a book, they should get down to it and do it.

They got down to it at The Pinery, on a camping vacation with their husbands, deciding on format and focus, working out a working schedule. Donald Reynolds, who teaches in Detroit and works for Johnstone & Johnstone, and Robert Older, without whose computer expertise the authors would, literally, have been lost, were thoroughly supportive of their wives' project.

So were the children, Ricki's Craig, 12, and Stacy, 7, and Dona's D.J., 11, and Leah, 7, the latter "almost born in school." Remember we said that Dona taught "in between babies"? In Leah's case, her working mother cut that "in between" very fine indeed, leaving school at 1 p.m. to give birth to her first daughter, who arrived on the scene at Hutzel Hospital at 3 p.m.

There's another Reynolds daughter now, Anne Marie, 1½, as old as the book. Anne Marie baby-tested recipes in the "So Now You Own A Food Processor" chapter devoted to making baby foods at home, using fresh, natural ingredients. Dona nursed her daughter on the left side while writing down introductions, ingredients and instructions for the book. When Anne Marie switched, so did her mother, not being ambidextrous — to proof reading.

Dona Reynolds (left) and Ricki Older, whose "So Now You Own A Food Processor" has just been published.

"YOU TAKE IT ONE step at a time," say the first-time authors, who both continued to work as consultants and to conduct cooking classes, all the while not neglecting their families, while writing their book. "The big thing is keeping at it."

Even when, as happened, you've finally reached the getting it all together stage, you're ready to put your first drafts into the computer, you put those first drafts in... and the computer overheats, erasing three hours of work!

And how do you go about writing a book when your co-author lives 2,000 miles away? A little traveling music, please, for Ricki, born in Cottage Hospital, who made three trips back to Michigan to consult with Dona, and for Dona, also an East Side Detroit native, who made three trips from Roslyn Road to Santa Ana, Calif.

All on cookbook business, with a little fun thrown in. Who says you can't proofread while driving to The Johnny Carson Show?

They used the telephone. They used the United States Mail, Dona writing and correcting in Grosse Pointe, then sending the material to Ricki to put into the computer in California. They gladly accepted help from their friends, like Dona's neighbor, Esther Ludwig, grammarian and proof reader extraordinaire. When it came time to think about a cover and illustrations, they turned to Christa Goldsmith, who teaches at St. Paul's School.

Dona Reynolds and Ricki Older knew what they wanted: a good, basic book that would take the mystery out of the food processor. They wanted to share the tips and suggestions they had learned over the years.

THEY WANTED SIMPLICITY and clarity. They wanted symbols, pictures of food processor blades and accessories, in place of words like "metal blade" and "slicing disk." They wanted to show how old family recipes could be adapted for the food processor via simple conversions.

They wanted a complete chapter on bread-making because, with a food processor, bread-making is so easy. They wanted to get their message across: "You have this wonderful machine; now use it!"

Because they knew what they wanted, Dona and Ricki wanted no outside interference. So they formed their own publishing company, East-West (however did they ever think up THAT name?), directed the book's typesetting and printing and as of Dec. 8, 1984, publication date of "So Now You Own A Food Processor," they've entered the marketing stage.

They sold 500 copies in the first two weeks of publication. "Of course," says Dona, "since we've both been demonstrating and conducting classes for years, we had a captive audience." But they've begun getting feedback from non-captives, people who never heard of Reynolds and Older, and that feedback is enthusiastic.

"So Now Your Own A Food Processor" is available in stores throughout the metropolitan Detroit area, from Jacobson's to Clancy's in RenCen to The Pointe Pedlar on-the-Hill, where Dona Reynolds will be conducting a bread-making class in March. It's also available in the Ann Arbor area.

Ricki is handling the book's marketing in California. Both authors are enlisting the help of relatives and friends to promote the book in other states.

MAIL ORDERS at $9.95 plus $2 for postage and handling per book should be sent and checks made payable to East-West Publishing Company, 988 Roslyn Road, Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich. 48236.

The recipes range from simple (meatloaf) to gourmet (company beef stroganoff), but the emphasis is on basics. The authors feel that once you've got the basics down, you can go on to create your own gourmet masterpieces. It's all in knowing what your food processor can do.

Ricki Older is back in California now, but Dona Reynolds will be explaining in person what your food processor can do at a Grosse Pointe Public School System Community Education Class, "So Now You Own A Food Processor" (however did she ever think up THAT name?). Wednesday, Feb. 6, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Barnes School kitchen. Registration information may be obtained by calling 343-2178.

Elegant Eating

A selection of recipes from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol — and penny-wise — collection of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth featuring, this week, FABULOUS FISH DISHES.

TUNA-NOODLE FLORENTINE

This is an especially wonderful casserole for a cold winter night, a dish that will be as popular with the children as the adults.

- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach
- 4 oz. medium noodles (about 2 cups), cooked
- 1 can (7 oz.) + 1 can (3 oz.) tuna, packed in water, drained and flaked
- 1 Tbsp. margarine
- 2 Tbsp. all-purpose flour
- ¼ tsp. salt
- 1½ cups skim milk
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 Tbsp. minced parsley

Cook spinach according to package directions. Drain well, pressing out as much liquid as possible. Spread evenly over bottom of oiled 10 x 6 x 1¼-inch baking dish. Cover with layer of drained, cooked noodles and top with flaked tuna. Preheat oven to 350°.

In medium-size saucepan, melt margarine over moderate heat. Stir in flour and salt. Remove pan from heat and cool 1 minute. Gradually whisk in ¼ cup milk at a time. When mixture is smooth, return to heat and cook, stirring or whisking constantly, until thickened and boiling. Spoon sauce over tuna in baking dish. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake 25 to 30 minutes, or until hot and bubbly. Sprinkle with parsley before serving to 4.

SHRIMP DELIGHT

- 1½ lbs. raw, peeled, deveined shrimp, fresh or frozen
- 3 tsp. salt
- 1 quart water
- 2 Tbsp. soy sauce
- 1 tsp. cornstarch
- ½ tsp. garlic powder
- 1 Tbsp. fresh ginger, minced, or ½ tsp. powdered ginger
- 1 can (16 oz.) unpeeled apricot halves, cut in half
- 2 fresh kiwifruit, peeled and cut in wedges (optional)
- 2 cups cooked rice
- ½ cup toasted slivered almonds
- ½ cup parsley, chopped

Thaw shrimp if frozen. Add salt to water and bring to a boil. Place shrimp in boiling water and reduce heat. Cover and simmer 3 minutes. Drain shrimp. Rinse under cold water for 1 or 2 minutes.

Combine soy sauce, cornstarch, garlic powder and ginger; shake together until thoroughly mixed. Drain apricots, reserving liquid. Combine apricot liquid and soy sauce mixture in skillet. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thick and clear. Add shrimp, apricots and kiwifruits; cook over low heat 1 or 2 minutes, or until thoroughly heated. Combine hot rice, almonds and parsley. Serve shrimp over almond rice. Makes 6 servings.

ITALIAN TUNA SPAGHETTI

This recipe, dating back to Depression days, has always been popular. It is very low calorie, quick and easy to make, tastes good and is exceptionally thrifty. Give it a glamorous garnish of very thinly sliced olives or a heavy sprinkling of finely chopped green onion tops. Pass a bowl of freshly grated Parmesan cheese — and it's a dish fit for a king.

- 2 Tbsp. vegetable oil
- 2 Tbsp. olive oil
- ½ cup onions, chopped
- 4 to 5 cloves garlic
- 1 can tomato paste
- 2 Tbsp. minced parsley
- 1 can water
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- ¼ tsp. salt
- 1 can (7½ oz.) tuna, water-packed
- 8 oz. thin spaghetti

Saute onions and garlic in oil until they are tender, add the tomato paste, parsley and water. Simmer together with salt and pepper about 3 minutes. Add tuna and continue to simmer another 5 minutes. Meanwhile, cook spaghetti according to package directions. Drain and serve with the sauce to 4.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

Son of North vs. South . . .

Wednesday, Jan. 9 was Hockey Night in Grosse Pointe, the 1984-85 version. And as usual, more than a few things ran through my mind as I stood shivering, ducking pucks and enjoying the annual clash . . .

• The 1984-85 hockey souvenir programs put out by the two schools are terrific. The covers are great — South's, a Devil face in a hockey helmet, next to a Devil glove signifying South as No. 1, and North's, the familiar Norseman on skates and carrying a hockey stick — and the contents are even better. Nice work, folks at North and South.

• They even put in those little guides to referee's signals . . . just so some sharp-eyed smart guy in the crowd can read it and yell "Tripping? No way!" well before the announcer reads the penalty over the p.a. system. (He beat me to it, too).

• Not as many people at the "Son of North vs. South" rematch as there were at last year's games. They only counted 900, but they made enough noise for a couple thousand.

• Just when I think I've got the business of making odds and picking favorites down to a science . . . the North-South hockey game comes along. Last year, North outranked South in the early season and the Norsemen were picked to win both games. They didn't. This year, South made the rankings, North didn't and the Devils looked more formidable on paper. But they play hockey on ice, not on paper and the 3-2 North win makes that abundantly clear. It's enough to make Jimmy the Greek turn in his tout sheet.

• Scariest moment: when North's Casey Quick crashed into the boards and came out of it with a broken arm.

• From the "You Want Hockey Lore, We've got Hockey Lore Department": The Detroit Red Wings' famous Production Line of the 1940s and 1950s had nothing on the 1985 South Blue Devils. South's got the "Milk Chute Men." Stronger than a stubborn Milk Chute door! Able to squeeze through a tiny Milk Chute in a single slither! Champions of truth, justice and making sure their buddy doesn't have to skate for South on blades that don't fit! Want the story behind the Milk Chute Men? Check out Tom Greenwood's FYI on Page One.

• Organizers of such extravaganzas as Super Bowl half-time shows, Mummies' parades, Academy Awards telecasts and World Series riots should look no further than the next North-South hockey game for their entertainment. Close, hard-hitting hockey isn't enough for these fans, nooooo. They've got to have fun. Like the Norsemen tossing "Freeze the Devils" painters caps into a frenzied crowd. And South displaying Confederate flags (one of which was reportedly burned at the contest). And mini mascot Joey Sucher, who helped fire up the North fans.

I've only got one question: how much will North and South charge for 60 seconds of commercial time at their next contest?

• Yes, it's just as cold at a North-South game as it is at a South-Cranbrook game or a North-Liggett game or any Antarctic exploration station, just in case anybody asks.

• Cheers to the crowd marshalls who keep everybody in check at the popular South-North games. They're pretty nice too . . . only asked to see my press pass three times.

The "Get These Kids an Agent Award" of the night went to the GPHA's Mite Red Wings and Major Magics, who played their game prior to the high school match. They didn't let it go to their heads, played the game with "What, me nervous about playing in front of 900 people?" looks on their faces and didn't even ask for a cut of the gate receipts from North and South.

• Taking home the "Sure I've Got a Referee's Shirt On Under This Nice Coat" honors was Mite coach Ed O'Malley, who came through in a pinch and refereed the Red Wings-Major Magics game.

• For future reference, (speaking of GPHA Mite teams) North coach Mike Manzella and South's Tim Zimmerman should take note of the Mite Penguins' second line. They call themselves the "Killer B" line. They ought to be ready for high school stardom in about seven years.

• Puck Incidents: South High student 1, Grosse Pointe News staff 0. And throw in a narrow miss or two for the pair of hockey statisticians who bravely stuck their chins over the top of the glass, thereby risking life, limb and dental work, to get a view of the game.

• And just in case anybody wants to know, the rematch is Feb. 9. Yes, I'll be there and no, I'm not picking any favorites.

University Liggett School freshman Pam Ali has added one more trophy to her collection. Ali, the Class B-C state champion at No. 1 singles, captured fifth place in the 14-and-under division of the Western Closed Invitational Junior Indoor Tennis Championships held at Midland on Dec. 30.

Ali, who plays No. 1 singles for the ULS varsity tennis team, defeated Shannon Dean of Ohio (6-3, 6-0); and Julie Karges of Illinois (6-2, 6-0); Cathy Wachter of Michigan (6-2, 6-1); and Julie McKeon of Illinois (a 6-4, 4-2 default). Her one loss was to Jennifer Nasser of Illinois (4-6, 2-6).

Ali's most exciting victory came in a match against highly rated Denise Mezera of Illinois. Down 5-3 in the third set, Ali rallied to pull off a 6-4, 5-7, 7-5 win.

One-on-one . . .

SEALS-RANGERS

The Seals put their team into the winning column with a 4-2 victory over the Rangers. Phillip Descamp opened the scoring for the Rangers; assists went to Chris Leimbach and Troy Kendall. Bryan Belanger added a goal from Descamp and Leimbach before the Seals came back on goals by Timmy Kimmel (two), David Gakstatter (his first ever) and Greg Ryan. Kimmel, Joey Berger and Peter Blake earned assists. Geoff Kimmel (Seals) and John Solobodowski (Rangers) played well in goal. Chuckie Schervish, Peter Brown and Matt Debski also played strong games.

MAJOR MAGICS-RANGERS

The Magics topped the Rangers, 5-3. Leimbach opened the scoring 30 seconds into the game before

Kevin Baskel, assisted by George Andary, added his first goal for the Magics. The Magics took a 2-1 lead on Nate Cook's goal from Sakki Soldman. Carl Rashid scored twice for the Magics in the second and third periods on assists from David Collins. The Rangers' Descamps

South's Anthony Eugenio went off for elbowing at 6:31 and goaltender Bill Tecos got help in fending off North's power play attack when senior co-captain Keith Kovalek made a diving stop of the puck, then shot it out of the South zone. Then with just 36 seconds left on North's power play, South's Krappmann scored a shorthanded goal to make the lead, 2-0.

At this point, North coach Mike Manzella replaced starting goaltender Marc Cormier with sophomore netminder Matt Dennis. "Sure it was tough to do, but there was no doubt I had to do it. The forwards and defense responded, they tightened up," Manzella said.

Junior winger Kevin Tisdale got North on the board when he took a nice pass from Tom Ugval and Joe Cueter, skated past the defense and scored after pulling Tecos out of the net on a nice deke. Then with LeFebvre off for interference, junior Casey Quick converted a centering pass from senior co-captain Frank Vento and the score was tied, 2-2.

The winning goal came midway through the second period when Joe Cueter and John Russell combined on a nifty passing play which sent Cueter in alone on the left side. Russell's goal at 13:58 came with the sides even.

Netminders Tecos and Dennis put on a goaltending clinic for the remainder of the game. Tecos scored on a perfect pass from Belanger. Birgbauer converted a Leimbach pass to score for the Rangers and Cook took a set-up from Cliff Czerwinski to close the scoring. Goaltenders Behi Rabbani and Bobby Rahaim played well.

RED WINGS-MAJOR MAGICS

Every Major Magic player contributed in this 1-0 win over the Wings. Basket scored the only goal of the game in the second period; Brian Holliday assisted. Each team relied on strong offense and a steady defense. Goaltenders Ricky Gokenbach (Magics) and Ryan Meier played very well. Coach Ed O'Malley volunteered his talents as a referee in this game.

PENGUINS-FLYERS

The Penguins hustled past the Flyers, 3-1, to remain undefeated in the second half. Dave Gracey opened the scoring in the first period and Justin Braun added two unassisted goals in the second period to put it away. A-line defensemen George Christiansen and Dave Ferguson played well. Goaltender Jon Romine made several key saves. The "Killer B" line of Mark Campbell, Tommy Waldron, Bill Faber and Shane Penczak has yet to be scored upon this year.

RED WINGS-SEALS

The Wings outscored the Seals, 5-2, behind the fine skating of Sebastian Yofre, Leo Savaggio, Steven Owens and goalie Ryan Meier. Scoring in the first period was Red Wing Billy Crandall who capitalized on a pass from George Massu. The Seals' George Kimmel came back to score the first of his two goals before Marty Hage put the Wings back in front as the period ended. He added two more goals for his first hat trick of the season. David Pulis played well, scoring a goal.

Squirt Division

SABRES-BLACK HAWKS

The Sabres started the year off with a 6-1 win over the Black Hawks. Stephen Wesley earned a hat trick with three nice goals. Everett Covacha scored twice and John Maycock scored once in a well-played game. Assists went to Bryan Cass, Mike Owens and Matt Smith (two each) and to Billy Cass. T.R. Youngblood put the Hawks on the board with his goal with time running out. Goaltenders Gabe Erikson and Michael DeNardis played well in the nets. Erik Lindsay, Sam Hartson, Garrett Ryan and Smith had strong defensive games for the Sabres.

BLUES-RED WINGS

The Blues and Wings skated to a 3-3 tie. Chad Yates opened the scoring for the Blues in the first period on assists from Joe Sucher and Andy Lee. The Red Wings tied it up on Jay Berger's goal from Alex Olmsted and Kip Gotfredson. After a scoreless second period, the Blues and Wings each scored twice in the third period. Bill Bufalino scored unassisted and Tim Kazul added a goal from Nick Giorgio for the Blues. For the Wings, Chris Crain scored both goals, the first unassisted and the second from Ever-ham and Gotfredson. Chris El-dridge was in goal for the Blues and Jon Paul Sweda, for the Wings.

BLUES-BLACK HAWKS

The Blues topped the Black Hawks, 2-1. Giorgio gave the Blues a 1-0 lead in the second period when he converted a Bufalino pass. In the third period, Black Hawk player Sawaf tied the game up; McCormick assisting. Kazul gave the Blues the win with his goal on a Matt Carrier pass.

FLYERS-RED WINGS

The Flyers won their second straight over the Wings, 3-2. Scotty Wiczorkowski got the only goal of the first period, from Matt Spicer and Mike Gandelot. In the second period, Robert Cardillo scored on a nice deflection from Danny Bombich and Mike Ugval to give the Flyers a 2-0 lead. With 28 seconds left in the period, Corona narrowed the lead to one; Tony Marl assisted.

In the third period, Peter Antonenko scored from the point on assists from Spicer and Cardillo. That proved to be the game-winner when Olmsted scored with one second left, from Gotfredson. Geoff Miller played well in goal for the Flyers, who also got strong games from Gary Olson and Jason Chev-alier.

BLACK HAWKS-MAPLE LEAFS

The Hawks and Leafs renewed their intra-league rivalry as each team began the playoffs to determine the Pointe's representative for the district championships. The Hawks rode a 2-0 first period lead on goals by Scott Soule and Gabe Benvenuto to a 5-1 win. Renato Roxas assisted on Soule's goal. Kevin McCracken made it 3-0 when he converted passes from Greg Semack and Peter Masouras.

Jeff Osborne scored on Juan Ganum's centering pass to narrow the lead to 3-1, but the Hawks came back with two goals from Roxas; Semack, Benvenuto, Davis, Chute and Danny Grundman (two) drew assists. Black Hawks coaches credited much of the victory to goaltender Jim "Awesome" Bunn, who halted several Leaf scoring threats.

BLACK HAWKS-NORTH STARS

The Hawks scored a 10-1 victory in this rematch of two teams which played to a tie before Christmas. Zack Van Auker scored his first goal of the season when he converted passes from linemates Roxas and Soule. In all, Roxas had four goals, Soule had two goals and three assists. Benvenuto had two goals and one assist and his linemate McCracken ended the goal scoring for the Hawks with a goal and an assist. Earning assists were Semack (two), and Masouras, Chute, Grundman, Bill Wilson and Antonenko. Paul Cavazos put the Stars on the board when he converted Brad Kimmel's long clearing pass.

Pee Wee A

The G.P. Sabres captured the championship trophy in the Adray Christmas tournament.

University Liggett icers split games

The University Liggett School varsity ice hockey team played two games last week. The first was a tough 8-2 loss to Gabriel Richard on Jan. 10. On Saturday, Jan. 12, however, ULS downed Southview Toledo, 6-2.

Coach Rich Lacca's Knights opened the scoring on a great shot into the top of the net by John Petrilli, with assists to Gordie Maitland and Paul Smith. However, Gabriel Richard scored two quick goals, and the first period ended with the Knights behind, 2-1.

ULS opened the scoring again in the second period on a goal by Smith, with Maitland and Petrilli tallying assists. The Knights lost the game in a letdown during the last eight minutes, when Richard scored four goals.

In the Southview Toledo contest, Smith started the scoring when he took a slapshot off the boards from Walt Connolly and sent the puck into the net. The Knights' second goal of the period was by John Birgbauer on a spectacular shot from a Smith pass. Connolly scored the last goal of the period on a pass from Birgbauer.

The Knights started the second period sluggishly. After giving up a goal easily, the Toledo team looked like it was closing in. With 38 seconds left in the second period, the Knights scored twice in 12 seconds. The first of the two was another tally by Connolly on a Birgbauer pass. Twelve seconds later, Smith, with a crowd around him, sent the puck into the net; Connolly assisting.

The Knights gave up one goal and scored one in the third period. The lone third period goal was by Birgbauer on a blazing slapshot from a pile-up that the goalie never had a chance on. Connolly got his third assist of the game.

Impressive goaltending was the key to the victory. Freshman goaltender Steve Stoyka played two periods and only let in one goal. Sophomore Jeremy Relenky played the third period and gave up only one goal.

Cage coach optimistic

Coach Tony Gallaher remained optimistic about the future of his young University Liggett School varsity basketball team, despite two losses last week.

On Jan. 8, the Knights fell to a tough Plymouth Christian team, 61-45. The outcome was decided in the first quarter when the Knights trailed, 16-6. The Knights' early lapse was basically caused by an abundance of turnovers. ULS then rallied, but it was too late. ULS Coach Tony Gallaher stated, "We fell down 10 early, but then played them even the rest of the way."

Senior captain Harold Colby kept the Knights in the game with 24 points and 16 rebounds.

On Friday, Jan. 11, ULS played the Southfield Christian Eagles, one of the top teams in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. A combination of hustle and great defensive work got ULS off to its best start so far. Ten points by Colby led the Knights to only a 20-19 deficit at the half. But ULS came out flat in the third quarter, and Southfield Christian reeled off 23 points to the Knights' 10. The final score was 54-32. Colby was once again high scorer for ULS with 15 points.

Coach Gallaher's team will travel to Bethesda on Jan. 18 for a 7:30 p.m. game. (By John Travis).

JV splits pair

The ULS JV basketball team experienced the highs and lows of an entire season in just two games last week. After losing by more than 40 points to Plymouth Christian, 56-15, on Tuesday, Jan. 8, the Knights bounced back to nip previously undefeated Southfield Christian, 41-40 on Friday, Jan. 11. Southfield Christian had beaten Plymouth Christian earlier.

ULS came out flat against Plymouth Christian and was dominated from the beginning. The half-time score was 26-6, and things did not get any better for the Knights in the second half.

The Southfield Christian game was a different story. Utilizing an aggressive man-to-man defense, ULS throttled the high scoring Southfield team and went into the locker room with a 19-10 lead at the half.

Early in the third quarter the lead was narrowed to three points. But the Knights assured themselves of the victory when Frank Karabetsos sank a foul shot with 10 seconds left in the game.

"This was a most important victory," sighed a relieved Coach Chuck Wright. "After being totally humiliated on Tuesday, the boys decided to give this game 101 percent. Now they see what can be accomplished with the right attitude and effort."

The games left the JV record at 3-4. Coach Wright's team travels to Bethesda Christian for a 6 p.m. contest on Friday, Jan. 18.

Spikers win

On Friday, Jan. 11, the ULS JV volleyball team travelled to Academy of the Sacred Heart and returned with a 15-2, 15-5 win. Coach Theresa Durand's team played a strong game, dominating the court from start to finish.

The team's serves were the strong point of the win. Freshman Sue Georgi amazed the crowd when she blasted five straight serves which the opponents did not even attempt to return.

North cagers rebound, 68-58

By Bill Hoover
North High

North High's boys' varsity basketball team bounced back from a Jan. 8 loss to Warren Woods Tower, 51-50, to trounce Lake Shore, 68-58, on Friday night.

Against Tower, North, with just one win in its first four games, held a two-point lead at the half. With nine seconds to go in the game, North was in front by one when Tower fouled senior point guard Dan Kopitzke. Shooting one-and-one, Kopitzke missed the first shot and Tower controlled the rebound. They got the ball to Sinkiewicz, who drove in and made a 22-footer to hand North the loss.

Art Szymanski led North scorers with 23 points.

North opened Bi-County League play Jan. 11 against Lake Shore, and after starting slowly, took a lead it never relinquished. The contest saw nine of North's 15 players score; all saw playing time.

Leading scorer Szymanski pumped in 24 points, collected seven rebounds, three assists and two blocked shots. Junior Rob Skuras had nine points, nine rebounds and two blocked shots.

North's next game is Friday, Jan. 18, at 7:30 p.m. at home against Roseville Brablec.

North's JV boys' basketball team split last week, losing to Tower, 49-44, before topping Lake Shore, 59-18, in the Bi-County opener. Tom Shehab led North with 13 points against Tower. C.J. Anderson had 16 points; Jamie Eliades and Shehab led the rebounding.

North's freshman cagers beat L'Anse Creuse, 44-23, Jan. 8. Kirk Lowry led the Norsemen with 10 points and six rebounds. Steve Langs had nine points and Steve "Little Art" Szymanski had eight.

Matmen fall

After winning the Fordson Tournament on Jan. 5, North varsity wrestlers lost the Bi-County opener to Clintondale, 27-42. The JV, however, rolled to a 30-12 victory over Clintondale, led by Andy Meinung and Chris Hayes. North plays host to Notre Dame and Bethesda this week, and travels to Troy on Jan. 19.

Tankers lose

North's boys' swim team lost to Dearborn, 59-24, on Jan. 10. Norsemen among the first place finishers were Greg Cooksey in the 100 back, Mike Woods in the 100 breast and Mike Reynolds in diving.

Gymnasts open year

North's gymnastics team, coached by Gretchen Madison and Bruce Bentley, lost to Ann Arbor Pioneer on Jan. 9, 133-25-102-55. Nicole Lehman scored a 7.95 on the vault and a 7.3 on the floor exercise. Cindy Dundon and Jill Dornbrock turned in scores of 7.55 and 6.5, respectively, on the team and bars. (Compiled by Dave Fleming and Bill Hoover).

The Sabres beat Dearborn Heights, 5-1; tied Redford, 4-4; defeated Livingston, 3-2; and edged the Golden Knights, 1-0. Details will follow in the Jan. 24 News.

North strikes back

made five spectacular saves in a row when North threatened to add to its lead with less than four minutes to go in the second period. And Dennis, a 5-10, 155-pound sophomore, stood his ground when South's talented center, Phil Pitters, skated in alone with time running out in the period.

The teams exchanged several excellent scoring attempts as well as a number of penalties in the third period, which was marred by an injury to North's Quick. He slid into the boards in his own zone and had to be helped off the ice, suffering from a broken right arm.

The North victory snapped a two-game losing streak against South. The teams will meet again in the GPCR on Saturday, Feb. 9.

North's Manzella told team officials after the game that the contest was as exciting a game as he'd ever been part of.

"We were the underdog. I'm sure everybody has to feel the similarities to last year. But as I told the kids, hard work beats talent if talent doesn't work hard," he said.

"Our kids needed this win as they face a very difficult schedule in the tough Metro league," he added.
