Herds of birds

So let's hear it for Neil and Virginia Madler, of Allard Road, winners of this year's Grosse Pointe News Mort Neff Award. What have they done that's so spectacular, you might ask?

To put it quite simply, they built a better birdbath. The Madlers took a minnow bucket, a rock, a metal garbage can lid and added an aquarium heater to provide fresh, if not warm, water to all our feathered and furried friends out there.

The lid sits upside down on the minnow bucket, which rests on the ground in their back yard. Fresh water is poured in daily and prevented from freezing by the aquarium heater. The rock sits in the middle to give the birds something to stand on.

Neil and Virginia have been providing this service the past three winters and the results are gratifying. The Madler backyard is the place to visit during the winter. Mrs. Madler says the birdbath attracts squirrels and a few cats, which she shoos away since they tend to wait for the birds, and lots and lots of birds.

She's even being visited on a regular basis by a robin. No, not a sparrow with a chapped chest, but a real robin redbreast. "And he's been singing his heart out for us," said Virginia, in a telephone interview. "This morning I also had four sets of mourning doves. They were all puffed up and looked like blossoms sitting there."

The bath also attracts chickadees, cardinals, sparrows and large numbers of blue jays. Also lots of starlings, said Virginia. They tend to splash a lot and take communal baths.

She and Neil check the water daily, and when it runs low, they just pour in a little more. The aquarium heater is powered by an extension cord that runs from the garage.

Mrs. Madler figures the critters deserve a little fresh water, since they provide so much beauty and entertainment for those of us living indoors.

Personally, I'm waiting to see if a flamingo or two shows up.

IOUs from the IRS

Okay, okay, so you didn't win the big $12 million lottery this past weekend. There could still be some cold, hard cash in your future, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS reports there are nearly 1,500 Michigan residents due tax refunds from their 1983 tax returns. Eight of those refunds go to residents, or former residents of the Pointe.

Why weren't they delivered? The IRS says its because many of the 1,500 moved or changed their names during the year. The refund checks range in amounts from $1 to $19,227. The average is $455.

Are you ready for the names? Those due checks from our area are: Christine Bladen, of the Park; Patrick M. O'Neill and Mark K. Prophit, of the City; Lena J. Avant, Frank Telegadas and Frank K. and Helen Vincuilla, of the Woods; Steven B. Thomas, of the Farms; and Mark T. and Lynette M. Wangberg, of the Park.

Some of these people are listed as deceased, but their personal representatives should contact the IRS at 1-800-424-1040. If you know any of the others, or haven't yet received your 1983 refund, please do yourself a favor and call.

Punch & Judy may see $1 million facelift

By Tom Greenwood

Saying it was time to look at other plans for the now-vacant Punch and Judy Theater, Robert G. Edgar, co-owner of the Pointe landmark, presented a conceptual and feasibility plan to the Farms city council Monday evening calling for the complete interior renovation of the site at a cost of more than $1 million.

The highlight of the renovation would be a first-floor restaurant divided conceptually by an atrium running the length of the building and soaring three stories to an overhead skylight.

The second and third floors would be divided among 21 offices encircling the atrium. In making his presentation, aided by Charles Merz of the architectural firm of Schervish, Vogel and Merz, Edgar presented a letter from a prominent Detroit area restaurateur who has already expressed an interest in the location.

Edgar, owner of R.G. Edgar and Associates Real Estate and publisher of the Grosse Pointe News, said he has been considering alternative plans for the theater since it was vacated nearly four months ago.

He also emphasized that the plans were just preliminary concepts and that he was there to gauge the council's initial reaction to the plans.

"Nothing has been set in concrete," Edgar said, "but clearly something has to be done. The building can't be allowed to just sit and deteriorate."

Edgar told the council there have been six different theater operators of the Punch and Judy block since it was purchased by him and partner Richard S. Crawford in 1976.

"And you know the result," Edgar said. "Nobody's been able to make a go of it there as a movie theater. Theaters are being converted like this all over the country. I've had other offers for the building, but I don't think the council or the community would like to see the site change radically."

Edgar said other plans included renting it as a warehouse or razing the 56-year-old theater for a parking lot. Edgar said he had also received a "considerable offer" from a multi-billion dollar lending institution, which wanted to purchase the entire lower Hill area block, raze it and erect their own building complete with a parking lot.

"But we'd rather not do that," he said. "We'd like to do something that would add to the community."

Merz made a presentation using slides and other visual aids, emphasizing that the plans called for the retention of the intimate, small town quality of the lower Hill block.

"It has a village kind of appearance and appeal," Merz said. "There's a colonial quality to the buildings. We hope to take a potential future eyesore and turn it into a community landmark."

The presentation showed the outside appearance of the theater proper remaining virtually the same, including height limits of the structure. The marquee facing Kercheval would be removed and replaced by a decorative awning structure. The entranceway now leading to the theater lobby would enter instead to a first floor retail establishment.

The three current exit doors facing McKinley Road would become the main entranceway and would be highlighted by a glass awning offering weather shelter to patrons and occupants of the building.

The doors are directly across the street from the newly constructed parking lot adjacent to the Richard Place walkway. Once inside, the first floor would offer two more retail establishments situated on either side of the entranceway. The remainder would be devoted to the restaurant, plus kitchen facilities and restrooms.

Access to the second and third floors would be provided by both a suspended staircase and an elevator.

"Indeed, we believe it may create even more retail on the Hill by attracting those currently renting offices there to the new offices here," Merz said. "Then, many of those offices could be available as retail establishments."

Overall reaction by the council was enthusiastic and favorable, with Farms Mayor James Dingman commending Edgar for his "imaginative approach." But the mayor, joined by Councilman Nancy Waughman and Farms City Manager Andrew Bremer, voiced concerns over parking and potential traffic problems.

Merz and Edgar confirmed there could be a traffic problem, but noted that most of the restaurant's business would be during the evening hours when school isn't in session.

"Of course, there would be lunch-eon traffic as well," said Merz. "But we believe much of it will be generated by shoppers on the Hill who will walk to the restaurant, or by those renting space in our building."

Edgar added that while no construction date had yet been set, he was eager to begin work on the renovation once the council had given its support.

If approved, the renovation of the theater would be the second major construction project undertaken by Edgar on the Hill this year. In late 1984, Edgar received initial approval to proceed with the construction of a new building for the Grosse Pointe News, now located at 99 Kercheval.

The new site for the paper would be almost directly across the street from its present location.

Wish you were here

... that could be what 14-month-old Aaron Senter of the Park was thinking as he helped his mother Betty shovel the snow last week. They can talk all they want about the Sun Belt. There's nothing like the good old Midwest for the diversity that comes with the change of seasons, the workout one gets when clearing a walk of snow, the ethereal beauty of a landscape drenched in white, the character-building that comes with slipping and sliding on the freeway ... Ah, winter — welcome. How many days is it until spring?

Group to beautify Lakeshore

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation started the new year with a new project: the beautification of Lakeshore Road.

The foundation's board of trustees held its quarterly meeting Monday, Jan. 7. The board asked the village council to develop a master plan for the beautification of the almost 2½ miles of Lakeshore, to be paid for by the foundation.

"There was a feeling that this was a project most consistent with our stated aim; that is, our purpose to improve the quality of life in our community," foundation president Kurt Tech said. "It was also felt there would be a great deal of community support for such a project."

A preliminary plan has been sent to the village administration and referred to the beautification committee for its input and recommendation to the council, village superintendent Michael Kenyon said. The committee should report back to the council in two to three months, he added.

The preliminary drawing was prepared by John Grissim, a Farmington Hills landscape architect who has done a great deal of work in the Pointes. Some of his projects include the landscaping and signage on Mack Avenue medians in the north end of the Woods, the Mack-Moross streetscape, and landscaping for the Shores village hall at 795 Lakeshore.

The project is to be completed in phases, starting with the stretch north of Vernier, which is under the village's control, according to Tech. The county has jurisdiction south of Vernier and the planned work there will require a more complex arrangement, he added.

The first phase of the project could be completed within two years, Tech said. Completion of the entire length of the boulevard depends on the amount of work involved, he added, noting this was a long-term project.

Grissim's preliminary drawings call for the crowning of the medians so they will shed water. Trees, shrubs and other landscaping will then be added, according to foundation membership chairman Paul Naz.

The planting will be done to replace some of the elms that have been lost to disease over the years,

Tech said. The plan also envisions planting trees now that are more consistent with urban forest conditions to replace those to be lost to disease in the future, he added.

The final price tag for the program will depend on the plan approved by the beautification committee and the village council, Tech said. The foundation is able to partially fund the first phase of the project with its current funds, he added.

The foundation will open its fund-raising activities with a community party June 9 for the residents of the village and their guests. The fund-raising committee is still analyzing the approaches to be used in this campaign, Tech said.

"The community party is our first event. I am certain there will be other efforts in conjunction with that," he said. "We would expect to have the program prepared by March."

The village council in the fall of 1983 appointed a group of residents to study the possibility of forming a commission or foundation for residents. The following June, the foundation filed its articles of incorporation, elected its officers and began a membership drive.

In six months, more than 350 families in the village have become members of the foundation, making its board of trustees confident of reaching the initial goal of 500 of the Shores' 1,000 families as members.

Under its articles of incorporation, the foundation is "to be used to provide facilities and services primarily for the beautification ... and upgrading of its public grounds and facilities ... perpetuation of the memory of persons, preservation of objects of historical or natural interest and provide facilities and services for the village."

The foundation is non-profit and receives no tax dollars. It is the only Shores-based institution that can provide donors with tax deductions for cash or in-kind contributions.

No distress, no money

Grosse Pointe Park's "distress" level isn't bad enough to warrant being considered for grant money, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce's Economic Development Administration.

"The money would have provided funds to boulevard Jefferson," said John Crawford, city manager. "This means that it will take longer to accomplish our objectives. Instead of two years, it may take six."

According to the letter, dated Jan. 8, the $565,000 request was denied in part "because the per capita income and/or median family income indicates that the applicant's jurisdictional area is not suffering the distress that the rest of the area suffers."

The money would have been used to give Jefferson Avenue, from the Detroit limits to Somerset Road, a new look aimed at creating a more attractive entranceway to the Pointes.

Smaller medical complex planned in Park

By Harriet Nolan

The Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology (DIO) plans to sell land, previously chosen as the site for a $5 million joint venture between itself and Bon Secours Hospital, to Ophthalmic Surgeons, P.C., the group largely responsible for that project's demise.

The site plans, approved with conditions at the Jan. 15 meeting of the Grosse Pointe Park Planning Commission now calls for a one-story, 14,000-square-foot building to be built at the corner of Nottingham and Jefferson.

"The commission approved it subject to council confirming the closing of Nottingham to allow construction to occur," said John Crawford, city manager.

"Council also has to approve the lot split conveying the DIO property to Ophthalmic Surgeons P.C., and the planning commission's approval of allowing the Jefferson Avenue entrance to serve two buildings," he added.

This would enable visitors of both the AAA building and the proposed new structure to share a common driveway.

This plan replaces one approved last year by council to build a 45,000-square-foot medical complex to house the DIO, Bon Secours Ambulatory Surgery Center, offices for Ophthalmic Surgeons, P.C., and other private medical offices.

But hopes for the four-story structure bit the dust last November when Ophthalmic Surgeons

P.C., one of the major tenants, withdrew from the venture.

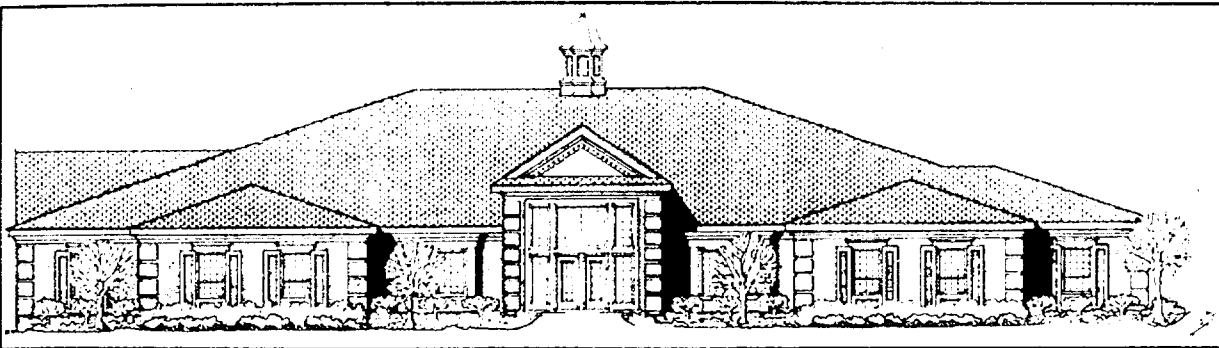

"No specific reason was given," said David Benfer, then the chief executive officer of Bon Secours, one of the backers of the project.

William McCauley, group administrator for Ophthalmic Surgeons P.C., would only cite increasing involvement of government, industry and third-party payers in the delivery of medical care as the reason for the doctor's change of heart. He questioned the uncertainty of any long-term relationship with one large organization, such as Bon Secours, as serving their best interest.

Philip C. Hessburg M.D., a partner in the group and also president and medical director of the DIO, said that "without the keystone renting group, the joint venture is dead."

Construction of the proposed $2 million structure will begin in March and should be completed by fall, Crawford said.

Ophthalmic Surgeons, P.C., currently located in the AAA building owned by the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology and Bon Secours Hospital, wants to build its own offices in Grosse Pointe Park. The site for this $2 million, one-story structure would be at the corner of Nottingham and Jefferson.

Is the world's oldest violin right here in Grosse Pointe?

By Pat Paholsky

Someone in Grosse Pointe may be in possession of what could be the world's oldest violin — one built in 1516 for Francis I, the king of France. Efforts to locate the person have been fruitless, however.

The strange story came to light Jan. 9 when a man walked into The Village Locksmith on Mack Avenue with an old violin case. The key had been lost and he wanted another made.

So David Markowitz, whose great-uncle began the business 73 years ago, studied the lock and made a key in about 10 minutes. His partner, Bob Mowbray, opened the case. A couple of old, yellowed newspaper clippings were on top of a violin that was resting on a piece of silk.

"I was looking at it, the strings were rotted off, and Dave was looking at the newspaper articles," Mowbray said. "One of the headlines caught his eye and he asked if the violin had certain carvings described in the article and it did."

The headline, "Rare violin, worth $12,000," topped an old undated newspaper story that said the instrument was "probably one of the oldest violins in existence."

It was "so unusual and so unique," Markowitz said, describing a carving on the body of the instrument of a monastery in the Alps. Topping the neck was another carving of a head of a man with a flowing beard. The violin was signed by Gaspard Diuffo-Pruggar, Bonamillio 1516.

"It was like touching King Tut's tomb, it was just amazing," Markowitz said.

The man who brought the case in told them the person pictured in the newspaper clipping was his wife's grandfather. He had been a musician with the Pittsburgh Symphony, and after he died, the violin case was given to her father. Her father had just died and that's how she came in possession of the locked case.

"It apparently had never been opened and was just forgotten over the years," Mowbray said. "I said to him, you just won the lottery and you didn't buy a ticket."

The excited locksmiths would talk about nothing else for the next few days, but the significance of the discovery didn't appear to have sunk in for the man.

"He put the case under his arm and walked out and said, 'My wife will be real pleased,'" Mowbray said.

Markowitz said, "That was probably the most thrilling to me of all my experiences in locksmithing. I felt like I was touching history."

High schools not affected by changed search rules

By Mike Andrzejczyk

A U.S. Supreme Court decision easing standards under which students can be searched while in school will have little effect locally, according to high school administrators.

Last week, the high court ruled that school officials didn't need to obtain warrants or have probable cause to believe a crime is or was committed before searching a student.

While students are still protected by the Constitution against unreasonable search and seizure, administrators now only need "reasonable grounds for suspecting that the search will turn up evidence that the student has violated or is violating either the law or rules of the school," according to the court's majority opinion.

North principal Dr. John Kastran and South assistant principal Bernard LeMieux said the schools very rarely, if ever, had to search students or their lockers. Both said they couldn't remember having to ever search a student.

Although the school has no written search policy, Kastran said it is his personal practice that a student, suspected of carrying a dangerous weapon or contraband, will be asked to empty his or her pockets or purse. Should the students refuse, they are asked to remain in the building's office until their parents or police are contacted, he added.

The administrators empowered to do the searches don't put their hands in students' pockets, Kastran said.

The court ruling "won't affect the district at all," he said, adding he hadn't had to search any students while at North in his two years there.

Only the principal and three assistant principals are empowered at North to search students, Kastran said. Teachers who see suspicious activity or suspect a student of a rule violation report their suspicions to the administrators, who then act.

LeMieux said similar guidelines are in effect at South. He added that students' lockers, if searches are considered necessary, are opened when an administrator and either the student or his counselor is present.

Not searching a student suspected of carrying a dangerous weapon or material injurious to the rest of the students puts the entire school in danger, both said.

The ruling will affect the schools "only to the extent that students will be aware of the matter," LeMieux said. Since the high court has cleared up ambiguity about when a search may be conducted, students may change their minds about carrying items considered contraband, he added.

The Supreme Court ruling sets the policy for student searches, Kastran said. "The Supreme Court can supersede any board policy. The board could, if it wishes, make a stronger policy," he added.

Students locally don't carry dangerous weapons or contraband, Kastran said. Students carrying weapons has been a problem that has plagued other school districts, including Detroit.

The board of education in February will be asked to approve the membership of a committee made up of school principals from elementary and secondary schools, students, parents and community organization representatives who will look at student issues and formulate policies to address them.

"The goal of this committee is to review, revise and develop effective policies in the area of student needs and concerns," according to committee chairman Bruce Kefgen, assistant to the superintendent. "We hope to provide the administrative framework that is necessary for students to fulfill their educational potentials."

Among matters that may be addressed are substance abuse and search policies, an administrator said.

Grosse Pointe War Memorial ... as John Lake remembered it

Shortly before his death in 1984, John Lake wrote of his years as executive director of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. For those who knew him, it tells the story in a neo-Victorian style they'll well remember — a little confusing at times, but still vintage John Lake. Others will find a nostalgic and useful contribution to the history of our community. These segments have been edited by Charles V. Hicks, but they retain Lake's original language, and they reflect the unique personality of the man who directed and developed the War Memorial Center in its first 30 years.

XIII. Art at the War Memorial

(From John Lake's history)
In collaboration with the Grosse Pointe Artists Association, the War Memorial has had the privilege of having on its faculty many outstanding artists. These artists and teachers inspired the idea of building a facility which would be added to Alger House and would give them the proper accommodations for their class work.

A scheme to convert the old laundry courtyard and build a little art wing came about. There was a very active committee engaged to get contributions. The building was erected and is serving its purpose beautifully.

The opening exhibit was from the art collection of Robert H. Tannahill. This was one of the few times the Detroit Institute of Arts allowed these works to be taken from the museum. The reason for the exhibit was that, when he passed on, he left a very substantial sum of money to the Center. Art was his first love and it seemed appropriate the opening exhibit should remind people of this interest.

There are many events at the Center which have become annual affairs. For instance, there is the annual Grosse Pointe Artists Festival which is always held on the Saturday following Labor Day.

It takes up the entire front lawn; the driveway is turned into a mall; the exhibits extend through the formal gardens. Refreshments and light lunches are served and people can take these down on the terrace by the lake and enjoy them. Each year, the festival seems to lure the best artists and craftsmen from around Michigan.

We've had some clouds and threatening weather, but nothing requiring moving indoors. As Mrs. Lee McKinley said, "I think we must be witches, because the fair has never been rained out."

Peace Corps workers needed

Nearly 3,500 opportunities will exist in 1985 for Americans with backgrounds in agriculture, forestry, math, science, French or Spanish to serve in the Peace Corps in one of 60 developing nations overseas.

"We consider the large number of openings as a sign of recognition by many emerging nations that the Peace Corps plays a key role in their development," said Alice Cooper, Peace Corps regional director.

Countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America, the Caribbean and the Pacific are among the places where Peace Corps workers are needed.

According to Cooper, individuals with degrees in math, science, biology and chemistry are needed as teachers. For many education programs, Peace Corps will provide teacher-training for those with no prior classroom experience.

Agricultural opportunities exist for Americans with extensive farming or gardening experience. College graduates in agriculture or animal husbandry are also in demand.

Forestry projects in Peace Corps countries need individuals who have degrees in forestry, biology, botany or natural resources.

Peace Corps specialists serve for two years in a developing country to assist people in improving their quality of life and, ultimately, to develop self-sufficiency. A special kind of commitment and sensitivity is needed by all applicants.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens. They must also be medically qualified, and if married, serve with his or her spouse. Individuals with dependents cannot be accepted. There is no upper age limit.

Round-trip transportation is provided to orientation sites and overseas assignments as well as for home leave in the event of a family emergency. While in language training and during service, all day-to-day living expenses are provided through a monthly allowance. Medical care is also provided. A readjustment allowance accrues at a rate of $175 per month and is payable upon completion of service.

To obtain more information on the 1985 Peace Corps opportunities, individuals should contact the Detroit Regional office at 477 Michigan Ave., Room M-74, Detroit, Mich., 48226. The phone number is 226-7928, ext. 456.

Park police chief to be honored

By Harriet Nolan

Honest, conscientious, innovative and loyal are strong accolades for someone who has the thankless job of trying to please all of the people all of the time. But that's the mettle observers say retiring Grosse Pointe Park Police Chief Henry O. Coonce is made of — all the right stuff.

"He's a fine administrator," says John Crawford, Park city manager. "He's never involved himself in the city's political arena and I've never even heard him try to fix a parking ticket for anyone."

"He's set up training programs for officers, monthly meetings with the community, assigned police to schools to meet with the PTA and students, started a bike safety program and homeowner and neighborhood crime detection and prevention programs," he adds.

"Coonce is an extremely good street cop and he's got intuition," says Park Police Sgt. Charles Pietrie. "He takes his job seriously and still goes out between 10 p.m. and midnight to drive up and down the streets."

Chief Phillip Costa, his counterpart in the fire department, describes Coonce as an honest cop who rules by the book and expects no less of his men.

"He's a true professional, never flashy or prominent in any way," says Costa. "He does his job in such a way that most of the time he's not recognized."

Coonce admits he's comfortable in a military environment, partly due to his background. Born in Danville, Ill., he saw his family separated by the Depression.

"When it came, nobody had anything and no hope for the future," he remembers. "People were begging at doors. There was relief of a kind but a bare-bones-type of living. Without jobs, many families were better off without a father in the home."

His mother got a divorce when he was nine years old and they settled in Michigan. She put Coonce in a boarding home while she worked as a waitress. About two years later he went to live with grandparents on the east side of Detroit.

"I stayed until my 17th birthday when I joined the marines," says Coonce. "It gave me a projection of self and I wanted things my parents didn't have, a position secure from outside pressure."

He served in the military police while stationed in Maine, California, Guam and Teintsin, China. After discharge he returned to his grandparents' home.

When his grandfather died, his grandmother bowed to her greatest passion, the Detroit Tigers, and Park Police Chief Henry Coonce moved downtown so she could walk to the stadium.

Coonce stayed for a while in the old neighborhood, worked a short stint at Chrysler's and enrolled in the Detroit Police Academy.

"In my neighborhood, you had two choices, to become a policeman or a crook," he says. "Between 1947 and 1950 everybody moved out to the suburbs or California looking for a better life. You couldn't find anyone from there if you wanted to."

He got an offer to join the Park department in 1952, liked the small-town atmosphere and accepted. He rose through the ranks of corporal, sergeant and lieutenant, and in 1970 was named assistant police chief, and chief in 1972.

One of his greatest loves is fishing and hunting. Another is dogs. His eyes dance as he recalls Shatze, a large, blue-eyed weimaraner brought for his then eight-year-old son, Fred.

But the lively pup proved too much for the small boy and it ended up belonging to the father who admits that was probably the ulterior motive for the gift anyway.

One would never suspect, however, that a cop's dog would turn to a life of crime. But Shatze was a modern-day bag lady. She specialized in mugging children who attended the school across the street.

"She was very gentle, big and intimidating," says Coonce. "She was also the recipient of any lunches the kids didn't want. If they didn't give her much, or so she thought, she'd gently take the bag from their hands and I never had one parent complain either."

Looking toward the future of a department that may be merged with fire department services and renamed public safety, Coonce says as long as residents are willing to pay high taxes for services honed to a sharp edge and presented in good fashion, that's what they'll get.

"But while public safety would improve the number of officers assigned to the crime problems, its success will depend on the strength of the administration to insist on good services and a strong person to see that it's accomplished," he adds.

As for himself, he's enjoyed every minute of his 32 years with the department.

"It's the kind of job that doesn't require close supervision," he says. "You're tested by the criminal to your astuteness. You're the one who controls the situation and the amount of effort put into it."

"By God, that's kind of gratifying to see a good officer succeed where others would fail. But for me, 32 years is obviously enough."

Coonce plans to travel to Florida with his wife, Jeannine, after he retires Jan. 31, and visit his son, Fred, a supervisor for the Mental Health Center in Vero Beach, Fla.

A retirement party will be held in his honor on Friday, Feb. 15, at 7 p.m. at Alcamo's Hall in St. Clair Shores. Tickets are $15 per person and include dinner, cocktail bar, dancing and donation toward a gift.

Tickets can be ordered from Fire Chief Phillip Costa at 822-6400, sgt. Petrie or LaPratt at 822-7400 or Pam Kondziolka, city treasurer, at 822-6200.

DuFour new GM at Grosse Pointe Cable

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The key phrase for Grosse Pointe Cable is going to be quality customer service, according to the system's new general manager, Michael DuFour.

DuFour, 33, took over the top spot from Gerald DeGrazia, who took a position in the Group W system in Dearborn. Group W is a subsidiary of Westinghouse Broadcasting and provides the programming for Grosse Pointe Cable.

"I'm just getting my feet wet here," he said. "This system is as well run as the others I have seen and this is my fifth."

Although new to Group W, DuFour has five years experience with Cox Cable, the first 2½ years with the St. Clair Shores franchise, where he started as a directed sales representative.

He moved up the ladder to sales and marketing manager and after another promotion, took over as general manager of the three suburban Cook County systems for Cox, where he spent 2½ years.

DuFour, formerly of the Park, said he plans on relocating in Grosse Pointe. His wife of three months, Patrice, is a life-long Shores resident and is a registered nurse at Children's Hospital.

His Wayne State University bachelor of arts degree in mass communications and practical sales experience color his plans for the system.

"Because my background is in marketing, I have some plans to increase our penetration," DuFour said.

The system currently reaches about 11,400 homes in the Woods, Farms, City, Park and Harper Woods, just more than half of the available households.

One way to provide better service is to talk with residents who had cable disconnected and find out why, he said. Sometimes, a system that is still building isn't able to respond quickly to service calls. If that's the case with some of those disconnected, there may be a chance to resell the system to them, he said.

Since Grosse Pointe is now a mature system, the company this year should begin concentrating on providing service, he said. "In 1985, we hope to provide the highest quality customer service," DuFour added.

There are no plans now for a rate hike, but the company continues to watch the money coming in and going out, DuFour said. Although recent changes in federal law change the definition of what needs to go into a basic cable television package, Grosse Pointe Cable has no plans "at this time" to institute tiered service programs, he added.

Service tiers have been put together in other systems. Companies will sell a basic package of over-the-air signals and public access channels as a bottom tier. Extras like Music Television and others are then packaged and sold in other tiers at higher rates. Some items that may be added locally are bonuses for subscribers who buy two or more pay services under a preferred customer program, DuFour said. The Nashville Network will be added in four to six weeks and there may be an expansion of education channel programs, he added.

Labels needed

In order to obtain therapy equipment for the Macomb Easter Seal Society Clinic and Treatment Center for more than 1,100 disabled patients who are serviced at the center, the community is asked to save labels from the following Campbell's products.

Soups, beans, juices, Swanson frozen and canned products, Franco American pasta and gravy, Recipe dog food, and V-8 juices.

Send the labels to the clinic at 39093 Harper, Mount Clemens, Michigan 48043, or bring them in Monday through Friday 9 a.m. through 5 p.m.

They have the key

A treasure-trove of tales

By Pat Paholsky

There's a million stories out there, and listening to Village Locksmith owners David Markowitz and Bob Mowbray talk, they know half of them.

Their stories abound with human foibles and they extend back to 1912 when Markowitz's great-uncle, Marvin Markowitz, opened his first locksmith shop on John R between Erskine and Watson. Soon after, he moved to a location in the village, a small stone building where Jacobson's Store for the Home is now located.

Marv died about eight years ago, but according to his nephew, his spirit lives on.

"People come in and always call me Marv," he said. "They even call Bob Marv. He was a real legend."

By day Marv was a locksmith and by night, a professional wrestler. He wrestled under the name, Humphrey Pennyworth, taken from a popular comic strip of the day, Joe Palooka.

Markowitz said his uncle, who was 5 feet 9 inches and weighed 340 pounds, wore extra-large white shorts, an extra-large white T-shirt, a floppy cap and always entered the ring carrying an ice cream cone.

His uncle's shop was a social center for Grosse Pointers and wrestlers from throughout the country, according to Markowitz.

"He'd appear on Night Court and Soupy Sales. He was a real character."

Markowitz, who began learning the business when he was 8, said he enjoys the challenge each situation presents. His large hands appear incapable of intricate work, such as picking locks, but he says the intellect is the most important part of locksmithing.

"There are thousands of different kinds of locks and you have to use your head and figure out a reasonable answer," he said.

The most frequent call they receive is from people who have locked themselves out of their houses. And with the deadbolt locks that require a key to get out, people have also locked themselves in.

Mowbray, who became Markowitz's partner recently, told of a woman who brought in her 11-year-old daughter whose hands were handcuffed behind her back. Seems the girl's brother, behaving like a brother, handcuffed his sister and then couldn't find the key.

Another time, a frantic mother called to say her daughter had been locked in the trunk of the family car. Her children had been putting newspapers in the trunk and the girl's brother, for a joke, slammed it shut when she was inside. When he tried to open it with the key, it broke off in the lock.

Markowitz told about the time he received an emergency call from a lawyer who had just bought a bank building for his offices. Somehow the lawyer and his staff locked themselves in the vault.

When Markowitz arrived, he said the lawyer and his employees used the time to conduct a meeting, which they continued while they were being freed.

One man came in with a steering column for a 1931 Ford. "That was a real challenge," Markowitz said. People have also come in carrying their front doors for which they've lost the key.

But human nature being what it is, there's always one story stranger than the others.

"A fellow came in holding the head of a key — it was an American Motors key head," Markowitz said. "Make me one of these, he said. I said, how can I do that, there's no key there. Make me anything, the man said, I've got to get in my car. So I took a General Motors blank and made him a key. He came back a month later and said the key didn't work. I said, I know. "In this business, we have learned not to question."

Student, adult volunteers needed by schools

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Looking for ways to fill up your free time? Marjorie Nixon has a list of ideas.

As coordinator of volunteers for the school system, Mrs. Nixon matches adults and students to a variety of volunteer openings in schools, community centers and libraries.

Some of the programs bring middle-schoolers into libraries to help during story hours. High school students can become tutors, junior hospital volunteers or aides in any number of programs, and adults may find themselves in classrooms as tutors or teacher aides.

Her position was created three years ago when the administration decided it wasn't effectively using the volunteers it received, Mrs. Nixon says. This year, she's working with between 60 and 75 volunteers who help throughout the system.

That doesn't include high school students who see volunteerism as a chance for hands-on career experience, she notes. During freshmen orientations, Mrs. Nixon tells the ninth-graders about the opportunities to experience health care, child care and tutoring.

Through those experiences in the community, students sometimes discover they aren't cut out for certain careers, she notes.

A call to Mrs. Nixon's office could mean a shot at being a tutor for elementary students. Three South students will be helping at Defer in the English as a second language program there, helping participants gain fluency in English, Mrs. Nixon says.

Child care and health care openings abound. Students can get involved as junior volunteers at local hospitals, visit local nursing homes and help with special events weekly or assist students with special needs during Saturday swims at Brownell Middle School. They can volunteer to help in other programs sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Exceptional Children.

There are also chances for sales, sports and audio-visual positions through the Neighborhood Club, Community Performing Arts Center and the Instruction Materials Center, she adds.

Just as important are the adults who volunteer their time to schools, Mrs. Nixon says. Senior citizens and empty-nesters are often interested in spending a few hours a week in an elementary school or they have special skills that teachers can use as enrichment programs, she adds.

Through fliers and visits to senior citizen groups in the community, she tries to tell people they are welcome as volunteers in Grosse Pointe schools, Mrs. Nixon says. Teachers request volunteers for aides or special programs for students.

Adults may also become tutors or motivators for "gray area" youngsters, those kids who need some help but don't fall into special education classifications, Mrs. Nixon says.

The special attention an adult tutor gives a student can often bolster that child's self-image as well as motivate the student to do better in classes, Mrs. Nixon says. The relationships that develop between students and adult volunteers are often lasting ones, she adds, noting "thanks is the volunteers' paycheck."

Besides speaking to senior citizen groups, information about the volunteer services was sent out as part of Grosse Pointe Woods' informational packet to seniors, distributed last fall. Mrs. Nixon is also the liaison between the school system and the Food and Friendship program, whose participants volunteer time to the schools in return for their use of Ferry School.

The network of volunteers grows through the people who participate, she says. People who talk about what volunteers have done for them create more opportunities, and those who tell about their volunteering experience create more volunteers, she adds.

"I enjoy working with the students, but most rewarding is working with senior citizens," Mrs. Nixon says. "We call them grandpersons instead of grandparents in the schools."

Everyone benefits from the volunteer program; students, participants, the community and the school system, Mrs. Nixon says.

Longtime volunteers receive a lapel pin for the system, a gold "GP" adorned with a heart. One recipient noted the initials stand for Grosse Pointe as well as grand person, she adds.

Parents are the backbone of the volunteer force, but Mrs. Nixon says she hopes to bring in more people who have no contact with the school through their children or grandchildren. Though it sometimes takes time to get the right person for the right spot, there's always a need for volunteers.

For more information about the volunteer program, call Mrs. Nixon at 343-2191. "Calling is not a commitment; just call and ask," she adds.

Two City stores hit by thieves

A pair of thieves smashed display windows at two Kercheval jewelry stores early Saturday morning, Jan. 19, and escaped with miscellaneous items from one of the stores.

City police were alerted to an alarm sounding at about 4:30 a.m. at Valente Jewelry. Officers on the scene found two large pieces of concrete lying on the sidewalk near the store's broken display windows. Nothing was taken, reports said.

Nearby, police found the two display windows at Charterhouse Jewelers broken. The store manager reported miscellaneous items of undetermined value missing.

Police spotted two sets of footprints in the snow at the stores. The investigation continues.

Check your pressure

Registered and licensed practical nurses at Cottage Hospital will take blood pressure readings for anyone in the community on an informal basis on Thursday, Jan. 31, 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. in Boardroom B, on the lower level of the hospital, 159 Kercheval Ave. There is no charge.

Free literature on high blood pressure and other related illnesses will be available. For more information, call 884-8600, ext. 2390.

Seminar for seniors series begins new year

"Seminar for Seniors," the tuition-free sampler provided by the board of education for local retirees who are 60 or over, is in its seventh year. The program is designed to assist local senior citizens use their leisure time to explore new fields of interest.

Following each single-session sampler class, participants this winter may enroll at a nominal fee in four week daytime follow-up offerings taught by the same instructor. Both the introductory and follow-up classes will be held at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The series begins with Music Masters: An Introduction, taught by local piano teacher Patricia Junker on Feb. 1. A four-week follow-up beginning at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 5, is designed to introduce symphonic music either to the beginning listener or to those who wish to become reacquainted with the classics.

Each class will be devoted to a period in music history, with records, piano, theme sheets, lecture and discussion used to demonstrate lives, times, personalities and writing styles of the composers.

Fee for this four-session class is $14, or $10.50 for senior citizens who are residents of the Grosse Pointe school district.

Second in the series is Scenes from the Drama taught by Nona Blum who will introduce classical and contemporary playwrights on Feb. 8. Those wishing to pursue the topic may do so beginning at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 13, with Play Reading.

The group will study and read scenes from George Bernard Shaw, Thornton Wilder, Tennessee Williams and Neil Simon. Fee for this four-week session class is $14, or $10.50 for senior citizen residents of the school district.

Third in the roster is Bac-Kare Class for You. Joan Thornton, co-founder of Vital Options, Inc., has developed a series of exercise routines to help men and women cope with some of the symptoms of an aching back on Feb. 15. The follow-up session begins at 11 a.m. Friday, Feb. 22. Fee for this four-week co-sponsored class is $10.

Fourth in a series is Sprechen Sie Deutsch? on Feb. 22. Native German-speaker and community education language teacher Irene Roland will conduct the class.

Those wishing to continue for four weeks may do so beginning at 1:30 p.m. Friday, March 1.

German for Travelers is a course taught by Irene Roland for the traveler-to-be in a German-speaking country, with emphasis on practical language that will be useful in everyday situations.

Fee for this four-session class is $14, or $10.50 for seniors who are residents of the school district.

An upbeat inauguration

Whether you are present in Washington or just view it on television, the inauguration of a president is always a thrilling and historic spectacle that expresses the continuum of the government of the people of the United States. It was that kind of spectacle this week despite the cold wave that prompted the cancellation of the parade and chilled the crowds that turned out for the other inaugural events.

In the 50th inaugural address Ronald Reagan expressed no surprises and made no major departures from past policies. Instead, he invoked the familiar theme he has stressed ever since he began running for the presidency: the need for unity, patriotism, freedom and a more abundant life for all Americans. As usual, he delivered his address flawlessly, if not with as much vigor as he has shown in past performances.

He also made it clear he is still campaigning against the federal government itself. He spoke critically of the "bloated federal establishment," and urged the removal of "economic barriers" in order to "liberate the spirit of enterprise." In one of his few specific recommendations, he urged a freeze in federal spending for next year and then repeated his earlier appeal for a constitutional amendment to ban federal deficits.

He did find a few words of support for "social compassion," a more appropriate phrase than the "safety net" term for the unfortunate that was used so often in his first term. But he still feels that a growing economy not only will provide jobs but finance the solutions for most of the other social ills of the country.

In sum, the president's pledge for the next four years is more of the same. He reads his overwhelming victory in November as a mandate for little change except perhaps in harder pursuit of his announced goals, and especially that elusive one of the balanced budget that was one of the failures of his first term.

In foreign affairs, he stressed his desire to achieve an agreement with the Soviet Union to reduce nuclear arms as a step toward the total elimination of such weapons from the earth. While still critical of the Soviet arms buildup, he was more conciliatory than during his first term but said there must be no wavering in the U.S. desire to remain free, secure and at peace.

A New York Times public opinion poll published on the morning of his public inauguration tends to confirm the president's own reading. It found that 62 percent of the people approved of the president's highest approval rating of 67 percent reached shortly after he was wounded in that assassination attempt.

Even among groups that gave the president limited support in the past — the blacks, the poor and union members — the poll indicated a widespread feeling that the future will be better than the past and that they think more positively of the present than they did early in his first term.

Nationally, personal income rose at a 6.8 percent rate in 1984, even after subtracting taxes and inflation, the Commerce Department reported last week. That was the strongest gain since a similar rise 11 years ago in 1973. Michigan, too, showed economic gains in 1984, with prospects for further solid, if not spectacular, improvement in 1985.

So the outlook for the 40th president's second term is just as bright as it appeared to be in the November election. Nobody knows what the future holds, but at the moment the president's buoyant optimism reflects the nation's optimistic outlook.

The wooing of Bill Lucas

Perhaps it is time to start taking seriously the reports that Michigan Republicans are actively wooing Wayne County Executive William Lucas in the hope of persuading him to switch parties and run on the Republican ticket for either governor or lieutenant governor in 1986.

Lucas was one of the few non-Republican office holders to attend President Reagan's inaugural festivities over the weekend. Lucas and state GOP headquarters both insisted, according to the Detroit News, that Lucas' participation in the inauguration and the booking of his hotel reservations by the Republican State Committee had no connection with gubernatorial politics. But it is clear that some Republicans are looking kindly on the former Wayne County sheriff whose record as county executive has drawn rave reviews from many observers.

It would not be the first time that a public official in Michigan has jumped parties, if Lucas should finally do so. The state's senior Democratic senator, Donald Riegler, started his political career as a Republican congressman. And President Reagan, it will be recalled, was a Democrat early in his political life. Perhaps that fact adds interest to the current speculation about Lucas, but there seems to be more to it than newspaper stories.

For example, Richard Headlee, the defeated GOP nominee for governor in 1982, was quoted the other day as saying the strongest Republican ticket would be Lucas-Engler — with either heading the ticket. John Engler is the current majority leader of the state Senate which has been controlled since last year's recall elections by the Republican Party. When Headlee adds his voice to the chorus of speculation about Lucas' political future, he surely adds depth to the stories which began when Lucas began a series of visits to outstate centers to talk about state as well as county problems.

In Washington, Michigan Republican National Committeewoman Ronna Romney told the Free Press she "loved the rumor" about Lucas' possible switch and then added, "I'd love it even more if it came true." Lucas himself told the Free Press in Washington what he had told the News in Detroit, which was that no inferences about his political future should be drawn from his presence at the inaugural ceremonies.

So why is Lucas in Washington? "I've never seen a presidential inauguration," Lucas told the Free Press. "We never want to be so sophisticated and base about life that we miss something as historic as this. It's to my educational advantage to be here. I'm a better person for it."

Whatever the outcome of the GOP wooing of Lucas, it serves as additional evidence of the impact that the former FBI agent and ex-sheriff has had on state politics since he was elected county executive just two years ago. Where the story will end is highly uncertain, but it must be highly satisfying to Lucas to realize that he has minded the store so well in the county that leaders of the opposition party in the state are openly seeking his services.

How to use the surplus

Gov. James Blanchard has injected a new ingredient into the political controversy over the state's use of its surplus by proposing that it be earmarked for additional relief for Michigan property owners.

Up to the time of the governor's proposal, it had been assumed that the Legislature would use the surplus either to make direct rebates to taxpayers or to speed up the scheduled cuts in the state income tax rates. But the governor has insisted that this year's surplus already has been "spoken for!" His new plan which would be effective for the 1985-86 fiscal year that starts next Oct. 1, would be based on his estimate of the surplus for that year.

In effect, Blanchard is suggesting a 10 percent "bonus" on top of present property tax rebates which are expected to return $644 million to 1.5 million taxpayers this year. In fact, he proposed the $65 million figure as the amount of the additional rebate.

The first reaction to the governor's plan has been mixed with most Democrats embracing the proposals and most Republicans saying the Blanchard plan was too little and too late. The GOP prefers to make a bigger refund from last year's surplus and to make it sooner than 1986.

The governor is not proposing any change in the method of making property tax rebates, but his plan would simply mean a bigger break for those taxpayers who do qualify. Under present law, partial refunds are granted to homeowners whose property taxes exceed 3.5 percent of their gross income and to non-welfare tenants whose annual rent exceeds 17 percent of their household income. In fact, Blanchard also said that if the economy is better than expected and the surplus larger than anticipated next year, he would favor granting even more property tax relief.

Blanchard's contention is that Michigan's local property taxes are the highest on average in the entire nation and, in fact, that the local property tax load is twice as heavy as the national average. The governor called it "the most burdensome of our state taxes." Most people would agree with that assessment.

With the Republicans controlling the Senate and the Democrats the House, both by small margins, the outlook for the governor's proposal is uncertain. But it appears likely that some kind of a rebate will be paid either this year or next now that the governor has advocated that route. However, the Republicans also may be able to force an earlier reduction in the state income tax rate as well because their leadership pledged such action during the 1984 election campaign.

Whatever happens, both Democrats and Republicans in Lansing prefer their task to the one facing the two parties in Washington. There the problem is the reverse of the one in Lansing. In Washington, it is the deficit that is a major problem for a Republican administration. In Lansing, it is a surplus that is a major issue for the Democratic administration. Cutting taxes and voting rebates are easier ways to serve the public than a further reduction in services, which is the task in the national capitol.

Yet even in Lansing the tax issue will be a thorny one. Both parties already are gearing up for the 1986 election which involves the election of a governor and both houses of the Legislature. Both parties will be looking for advantage in the tax reduction and/or rebate issue. Yet it still seems likely that Michigan citizens will benefit from either larger tax rebates or an earlier income tax rate cut or perhaps even both before the 1986 election.

That is one prospect that will please most Michigan citizens, and especially those who already have begun to figure out their 1984 state and federal income tax returns.

HMOs characterized as 'cruel hoax'

To the Editor:

We believe it worthwhile to bring to public consideration an insidious issue which has for some time received ever-increasing praise and promotion by politicians and pranksters having economic and social power-broker aspirations until at long last it has arrived right here in Grosse Pointe! An issue with great interest in its potential merits, but with little evident concern regarding its significant faults, the recent advocacy of a Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) medical plan for the business and professional people and their employees in Grosse Pointe is surprising. Surprising, inasmuch as the limitations of such plans which shall now be recognized, should have little appeal to the people of this community. Unfortunately, there has been very little public criticism of the concepts which govern these plans, (grumbling doctors make unattractive news) while unblinking and sophisticated advertisers nobly proclaim both fashionability as well as low cost for total care in attempting to persuade an unsuspecting and only partially informed public.

The cost of HMO insurance is not cheap although the care provided might be so characterized as it is based on that cost. Profoundly, though unuttered by promoters, you can expect to get just about what you pay for.

HMO policy makers in the past have concentrated on profitability through therapeutic minimalism, a major prerequisite feature which leads them to the assertion that effective prevention avoids the larger expenditures for actual treatment. In actual truth many HMOs have attempted to eliminate elderly or chronically ill subscribers, they have very limited access to specialty care, and the question of how prevention of disease can be better achieved in an HMO than through traditional care leads almost to the description of "cruel hoax." Sensible people will already be aware or will have been informed by their regular physicians of the principles to be followed in pursuing good health. Beyond these basic principles, the keys to the prevention of many diseases are just not yet currently available and should not be presented as an additional advantage of HMO subscription.

Additional HMO-repellent features may be cited: loss of freedom in choosing a doctor, added administrative costs decreasing funds available for care and loss of incentive for physicians to provide their competitive best.

Provided most subscribers remain healthy and do not require care, the limitations above will be seen as not insurmountable. Indeed, this system could be made to work as well as it does in the military or Veterans Hospital. In some communities even a "Doc-in-a-Box" will be adequate and acceptable. There may be, by then, no other choice. This hardly seems a fitting destiny however for a community of high ideals such as Grosse Pointe.

A cheer for Bon Secours

To the Editor:

I was recently released from Bon Secours Hospital and I would like to take this opportunity to inform you how pleased I was with the fine attention afforded me. The nurses were constantly giving me their undivided attention and cooperated fully in every undertaking and always with a pleasant smile. I can readily see why they are referred to as "the Angels of Mercy."

The medical staff is excellent and knowledgeable and you can be assured of an accurate diagnosis of your problems. Their medical equipment no doubt rates with the finest in the country.

The volunteer group who devote so much of their personal time toward making you comfortable are to be highly commended.

The maintenance and custodian group are constantly busy keeping the facilities immaculately clean and functioning properly.

Bon Secours Hospital with its excellent staff can be very proud of all its operation which, in my humble opinion, ranks with the finest in the country.

Ice shelters are ugly

To the Editor:

While my family and I were driving down Lakeshore Drive, I saw ice fishing shelters on the lake. They looked ugly. Ice fishing is more dangerous than fishing with a pole off the shore.

Why can't people fish along the shore in the summertime?

School official discusses enrollment

Editor's note: Woods resident Joseph Callahan has written numerous letters to the editor regarding the Grosse Pointe school system. He recently conducted a two-hour taped interview with Joan Hanpeter, president of the school board. This is the second segment of the interview.

Q. Does it sound reasonable to you that the school census indicates that the school system will have a 25 percent reduction in enrollment in the next five years?

A. I don't have a comment on that. I haven't really projected that. We were surprised this year because our enrollment didn't drop as much as we anticipated. It has been predicted for several years that the high schools would decline, but we haven't seen it yet.

Q. What about the possible folding in of the Harper Woods school system into the Grosse Pointe system?

A. It's possible. That would be crucial to our high schools in Grosse Pointe. That (Harper Woods) is a small district now and if it should lose much population, it's questionable whether they can keep their high school operating.

Q. It's shocking to hear that the Harper Woods enrollment has declined from over 3,000 students to about 800 now.

A. That's right. And we know that a lot of students who are going to parochial and private schools are not going for religious reasons, but because they want a better education. As the student population in high school drops, you can't offer them enough courses. And so the parents say, "We'll send our children to Lutheran East or Notre Dame." So it would follow that if those students eventually came into the G.P. system, you would get a lot more than the present number in Harper Woods High School.

Q. How would the Grosse Pointe (Continued on Page 7A)

system be compensated for educating children outside our city?

A. Other school districts are doing this throughout the state. We couldn't do it without their arriving at some mutual agreement, a tuition agreement that we would absorb them into our school system or get part of their tax revenue. There are several ways of doing that. Of the 37 school districts in Wayne County, several of them, especially on the west side, are merging or consolidating. It's possible that taxpayers might have to approve it, but we might eventually take a look at some kind of relationship like that between Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods.

Q. Grosse Pointers pay over $5,100 a year to educate each child. Do the people in Harper Woods pay that much?

A. I can't tell you what their cost per pupil is. Their situation is quite different than ours in that they have the Eastland tax base. We don't have any large commercial development or industry to draw taxes from. Actually, their state equalized value or the worth of their school district is greater than ours. If you take the total value of their school district and divide it by the number of students, you have more state equalized valuation per student than we have in Grosse Pointe.

Q. Does that result in more state aid?

A. No. It results in having a little bit lower tax rate because of the revenue produced by Eastland. People tell me that a house in the Grosse Pointe school district will probably sell for $10,000 more than the same house in Harper Woods. Eventually, and this is probably a long way down the road, if Harper Woods became a part of our school system, it would eventually improve the property values of those who live in Harper Woods.

Q. It definitely won't be an increasing load for Grosse Pointe taxpayers?

A. Not if we have a higher tax base to draw from. It might actually reduce our taxes.

Q. How did it happen that the Grosse Pointe enrollment suddenly jumped from the projected level of 7,185 to over 7,300 students this fall?

A. I think 70 of them came to Grosse Pointe South High School. Almost every one of our schools came in a few students higher than projected. There was a lot of movement in the community last year. I don't know why. A woman reported that General Motors was bringing in 200 or 300 new families to the Detroit area and some of them came to Grosse Pointe. That isn't something we can predict.

Q. But we still had a decline this year in Grosse Pointe school enrollments?

A. Yes, of about 200 students.

Q. And the total Grosse Pointe population is declining. Isn't that significant?

A. That was real interesting. It's not just at the child level — it's all across the board.

Q. So shouldn't the board be giving strong attention to this declining enrollment and declining population?

A. I think we're looking at the community in part. I haven't talked to the new superintendent about this. And it's strictly my idea. But I'm hoping that after the new superintendent gets here that we can do a community assessment. We did this about 10 years ago. Send out a questionnaire to everyone in the community to find out what they really think about their taxes, what they think about the program, where they think we can make curtailments and if they really want the kind of elementary schools where everyone can walk to the neighborhood school. We need to know that in our planning. Sometimes it bothers me that people wait until they get into the voting booth before they let us know what they think. I'd rather hear beforehand.

Q. Aren't a lot of people, especially retirees and others on a fixed income, concerned about the soaring taxes?

A. We understand that. I've been talking to Dr. Spagnoli (interim superintendent). He is a very good man on budget. Even though we've negotiated what we feel is a very reasonable but fair increase for the teaching staff of about 3 percent for the next year, we've got to really look at every place we can to reduce costs because we have to keep faith with the taxpayers. That's so important to us for our long-range future. So we've begun to talk about that for this year's budget. It's particularly true that elementary school parents have been vocal. I see a trend that we're going to have to accept but it's a little difficult. The new breed of young parent wants everything for their child. They're much more articulate and more aggressive than I was at their age, much more demanding. I used to think that my children, if they were in a big class, would have to adapt a little. But these parents want the best of all worlds for their children. I can't argue with that, but it's a little bit different philosophy.

Q. What about the growing feeling among some citizens that the declining birth rates are making the idea of neighborhood schools obsolete?

A. One of the things that was held up to us was that we should be like Ann Arbor which kept all its elementary schools open. Of course, they've done that with their transportation system, by transporting kids around. There's hardly a superintendent worth his salt who hasn't faced this (school consolidation) issue, as Ann Arbor now is.

Essay contest open to youth

The Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice will sponsor its fifth annual Martin Luther King Jr. Essay Contest for students in the Grosse Pointe public, parochial and independent schools.

"We are especially pleased to announce that Rosa Parks will be a judge in the contest," Glenn Wegmeyer, board president, said. "Ms. Parks' refusal to yield her seat to a white man on a Montgomery, Alabama bus in 1955 was the catalyst that triggered the famous 1955 bus boycott and heralded a new phase of the civil rights movement."

Katie Elsil, center director, and Karen Moore, assistant director, recently met with Ms. Parks at the local office of Congressman John Conyers, where Ms. Parks is a staff member.

She had agreed to inscribe a book which the center is giving on the Grosse Pointe Park Branch Library in memory of deceased board member Edith Taylor of Grace United Church of Christ. The book is a children's biography about Ms. Parks and was selected by children's librarian Kathy Gucwa.

Ms. Parks said she remembered being in Grosse Pointe when Dr. King spoke at South High School just weeks before his assassination.

Other judges for the contest are Dr. Roger McCaig, director of research and development for the Grosse Pointe Public Schools and Al Stark, columnist for the Detroit News.

The essay contest is open to middle school students and fourth-through sixth graders. Cash prizes will be awarded. Individual school and participation awards will also be awarded. Top winners will be honored at a special awards reception.

The deadline is Friday, Feb. 15. For further information, students may contact their English or social studies teachers or call the Inter-Faith Center at 882-6464.

The Martin Luther King Jr. Essay Contest is funded by Dorothy Radulovich of Rivard as a memorial to her aunt, Catherine Parkhurst, who was an educator.

Scholarship established

A scholarship fund has been established at Yale University in Connecticut that may benefit graduates of Grosse Pointe high schools who attend the university, excel academically and athletically and need financial assistance.

The $50,000 gift to establish the fund was made by James Lineberger, formerly of the Pointes and lately of New Canaan, Conn. Lineberger established the fund to honor the 30th anniversary of the 1954 Grosse Pointe High School football team, on which he played, which was the Class A state champion that year.

According to his gift indenture, Lineberger established the fund, called the James E. Lineberger Scholarship Fund of the Class of 1959 Yale Alumni Fund Endowment, so it may be used to award "a deserving student in Yale College in need of financial assistance who is a graduate of Grosse Pointe High School(s) . . . and who had distinguished himself or herself in the school's academic and athletic program."

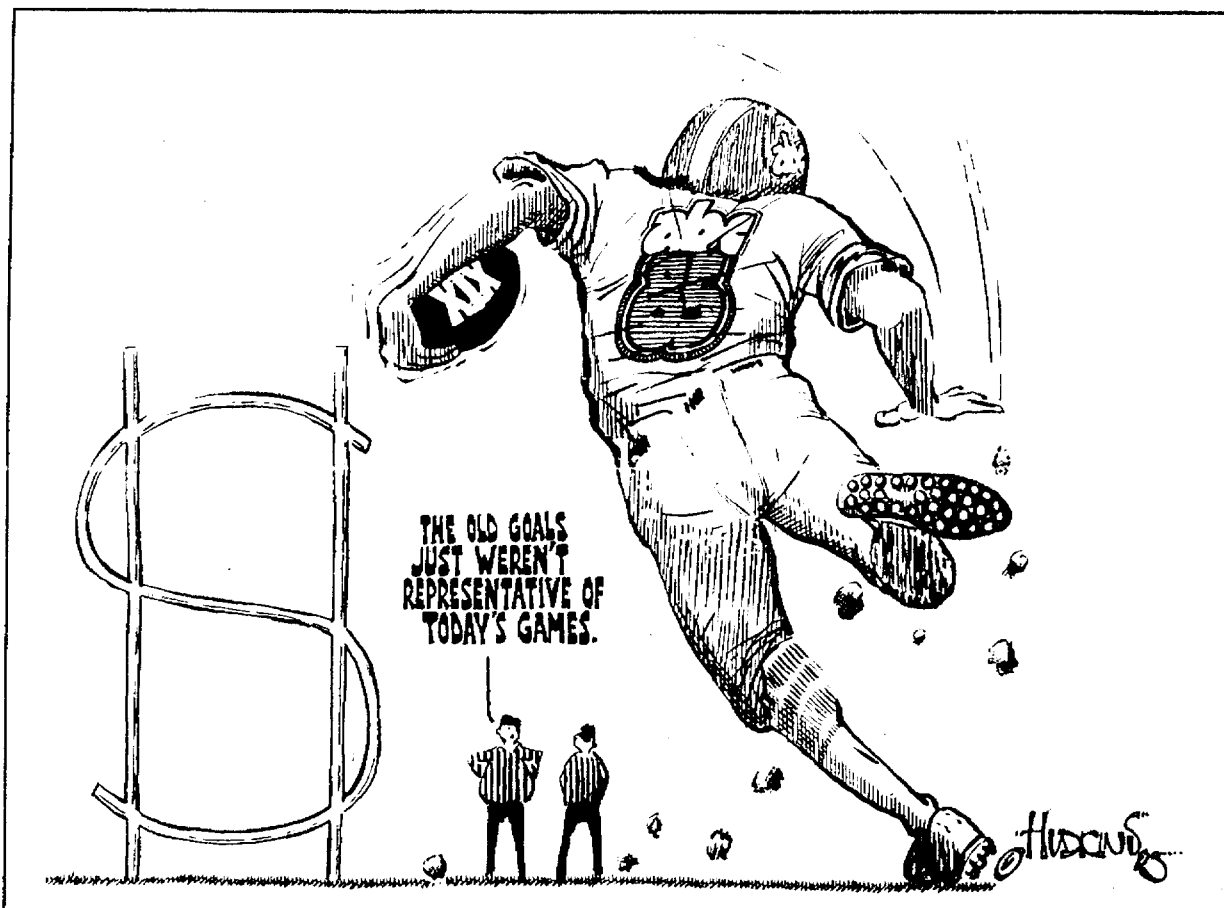

If no such student is available, the university can use the money as it sees fit, according to Lineberger.

Rates upped for Park boat slips

Grosse Pointe Park City Council voted Jan. 14 to raise fees for boat well renters at Windmill Pointe Park Marina.

Rates will increase 10 percent except boat slips that were $275 will be raised to $300.

Service fees for each use of a gin pole or pump-out remain at $5.

I say

Don't mind me, I'm just waiting

I'm writing this while waiting. I do a lot of writing while waiting, mainly because I do a lot of waiting. We all do, I guess, but most of us never really think about it. I do. I'm funny that way.

Right now, I'm waiting for the News' display advertising department to let me know how much news space I'm going to have in my sports section. That also means I'm waiting to have a temper tantrum, because as far as I'm concerned, I never have enough space in my sports section. But that's another column.

On Saturday mornings, I wait in line at the bank. I'm sure there's something slightly comical about having to wait in a line for the privilege of taking one's own money from a bank, but for the life of me, I can never think of it. Usually, I'm just praying that the teller won't announce in her best and loudest Ethel Merman voice, "Sorry ma'am, but you don't have enough money in your account to cover this check." Then I stop waiting and slink away, red-faced. But at least the other folks waiting in line had something to do while they waited. Like watching someone be utterly humiliated.

Another favorite waiting room of mine is the grocery store, where I cool my heels at the end of each aisle, waiting for the 15 or so customers and grocery carts jammed in the aisle to move along. This usually means waiting an extra time for at least one person who stands there humming along with the muzak to decide if he or she wants something in that aisle, or just an audition with a talent agency.

The wait at the checkout line is familiar to most. I usually just position my cart, add up my purchases for the 14th time in the hope that I brought along enough cash to cover the total, and try to read the cheap, disgusting tabloids without letting the other shoppers know what I'm doing.

I don't really mind waiting in line at the grocery store. I've seen lots of interesting things while waiting for the cashier's computer to make a mistake ringing up my purchases. Like last month, when I watched a 30-year-old bag boy play with wind-up toys that were supposed to be on display. I'm still waiting to get a job that pays me $8.50 an hour to play with toys.

Another time, I waited in one line, then got out of it to wait in a shorter line. As I watched, the conveyor belt in that first line I'd been in collapsed, a plastic bottle of pop fell to the floor and burst open, spewing its contents in every direction and drenching the cashier and every customer waiting in the line. Talk about a narrow escape from utter humiliation.

I've waited in gas station lines (I learned to drive in 1973 — just in time for the Arab Oil Embargo); hospital emergency waiting rooms ("Yes ma'am, we know that you've lost most of the blood in your body, but the more serious cases are taken first here."); and at movie theaters. I hate to wait at movie theaters. I'm standing there, popcorn growing more stale by the moment, the theater empties out . . . and every one of the previous moviegoers who paid $4.50 just like me is holding his nose or leaning head-first into an air sickness bag.

But the place I like waiting in the least is the drive-in lane at a fast food restaurant. Now, I only go to fast food restaurants when I'm in a hurry and I've always assumed that the drive-in lane was to further expedite matters. I was wrong.

Recently, I drove up to one of those ubiquitous burger joints and asked ever so innocently, for a hamburger and a side of fries. "Sorry, ma'am," the speaker barked back at me, "the fries aren't ready. You'll have to pull your car over there and wait until one of our perky little attendants brings out your order."

Silly me! Next time, I'll remember not to surprise the restaurant help and order something as bizarre and exotic as a burger and fries at a burger restaurant. I'll also be waiting for them to change their motto to "One Billion Served . . . Another Half-Billion Waiting."

And I'm one of them.

Community Events

Poetry, music, love

Students and teachers at University Liggett School will present an evening of poetry and music dedicated to the celebration of love on Friday, Feb. 1. The hour-long presentation will begin at 8 p.m. in the studio of the Cook road campus.

The evening will feature selections of modern and classical poetry and music that recall expressions of love universal to mankind: the affection shared by friends, the romance enjoyed by lovers, and the light cast by divine love.

Sponsored jointly by the Creative and Performing Arts Department and the English Department, the performers will include a host of readers from the student body as well as the UMS Jazz Choir, students Jon Hammond and Susan Edwards, presenting a musical duet, and English teacher Caroline von Stade, singing and playing the guitar.

Admission is free and the public is invited to attend. For more information, call 884-4444.

Bridge clinic

The first of a series of six bridge clinics scheduled by the Grosse Pointe Department of Community Education will begin Friday, Feb. 1.

"Defensive Bids," to be devoted to overall, take-out doubles and proper responses, will be held from 10 a.m. to noon at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive.

"These six single-session classes have been requested by the bridge player who can't attend our full range of classes on a regular basis," Dr. George T. Eddington, director of Community Education, said. "This is an ideal way to refresh and improve your game. These clinics, not for beginners, are taught on the intermediate level for the average player."

All clinics will be conducted by expert instructor Pauline Bontekoe.

Other clinics are "Pre-emptive Bids" on Feb. 8, "Penalty Double" on Feb. 15, "Slam Bidding" on Feb. 22, "Play of the Hand" on March 1 and "Popular Conventions" on March 8.

Fee for each bridge clinic is $4.50, payable in advance to the Department of Community Education. All are scheduled for Friday mornings.

Call 343-2178 for space availability.

Financial course

Sandra G. Yelensky, an investment adviser and independent certified financial planner, will offer a three-part course on "Your Finances: Being in Control" at the War Memorial beginning Wednesday, Jan. 30.

Participants will learn how to evaluate their present financial status, and will be shown various investment options available and how to utilize them for their present and future assets.

The cost of the course, which will meet from 7 to 8:30 p.m., is $15. Ms. Yelensky is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Parkinson group

Dr. Foster K. Redding, Grosse Pointe neurologist, will discuss problems that beset patients who suffer from Parkinson's Disease at the regular monthly meeting of the Northeast Parkinson Support Group. The meeting will be held Wednesday, Jan. 30, from 2 to 3:30 p.m. at the Calvary Senior Center, 4950 Gateshead, three blocks north of 7 Mile and just west of Mack.

All Parkinson patients and a family member or friend are welcome. For more information, call Walter Nugent at 886-0815 or the Michigan Parkinson Foundation at 494-8916.

Historical tour

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society will meet Monday, Jan. 28, at 7:30 p.m. at the St. Clair Shores City Library at Eleven Mile and Jefferson.

Mary Karschner, museum curator and archivist, will present a 30-minute slide lecture on the history of the Selinsky-Green house now located behind the library. Participants will be invited to tour the house afterward.

Constructed in the 1880s, the Selinsky-Green house represents the period when small farms covered much of the area that is now St. Clair Shores.

Scheduled for destruction at the time for construction of I-94, the home was saved by a St. Clair Shores Historical Committee which arranged for funding and had the home moved to its present location. The committee has since become the mainstay of the city's historical commission.

Admission is $2 for GPHS members and $3 for the public. For further information, call the society's office at 884-7010, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, or call Mrs. Jon B. Gandelot at 882-5001.

Question box sermon

John Corrado, minister of the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, uses a classic story of doubtful authenticity when he speaks of the Unitarian who makes the following inquiry of a Fundamentalist Christian: "If Christ is the answer, what is the question?"

In his question box sermon Sunday, Jan. 27, at 11 a.m., he will respond to questions on a variety of topics which have been submitted by members of the congregation.

After the service, a Newcomers Rap for visitors and newcomers will be held. For more information, call 881-0420.

Open house

Friends School will hold an open house Sunday, Jan. 27, from 2 to 4 p.m. Friends is a co-ed, private school, pre-school through twelfth grade, located in Lafayette Park, near the Renaissance Center.

Call 259-6722 for details. Friends is located three blocks east of I-375 at the corner of E. Lafayette and St. Aubin.

Boys' camp film

Don C. Broadbridge Jr., owner and director of Camp Deernhorn, a boys' camp in Rhinelander, Wis., and a former Grosse Pointe resident, will show a film on the camp to former and prospective campers and their parents on Monday, Jan. 28.

For more information, call Connie Dunlap at 881-7154.

Park residents

The Grosse Pointe Park Civic Association will kick off the year's activities with a wine and cheese party Sunday, Jan. 27, from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Windmill Pointe Park Recreation Building.

All residents of the Park are invited to join their neighbors in sampling a variety of wines and cheeses while learning about the Grosse Pointe Park Foundation's plans for renovating the Recreation Building. Admission is $3 per person at the door.

Preparations for the Civic Association's 10th annual Fourth of July parade are already under way, along with plans for the annual June cocktail party, which is the parade's major fundraiser. In addition, the association hopes to hold a town meeting in the fall in an effort to improve communication between Park residents and city officials. A Christmas tree lighting and community carol sing in December is also in the planning stage.

Singapore film

A new travel adventure film-lecture, "Scintillating Singapore," will be presented on World Adventure Series at the Detroit Institute of Arts, Sunday, Jan. 27, at 2:30 p.m. in the Auditorium Theater.

Single tickets are $3.50 at the door or by advance reservation. Call 832-2730. The "Grandparents Ticket Plan" is in effect: Buy one ticket at regular price and purchase up to four tickets for grandchildren up to age 18 for $1 each. There are also discounts for groups of 10 or more.

Pops concert

The St. Clair Shores Symphony Orchestra will present its annual Pops Concert at Roseville High School, 18250 Martin Road, Friday, Feb. 1. The program, "Musical Masterpieces of Stage and Screen," will feature all-time favorites from opera, Broadway and Hollywood.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $4 for senior citizens and students, and may be purchased in advance from the symphony office or at the door on concert night.

For more information, call 776-1012.

Gallery party

A fundraiser to benefit the Gallery of Marygrove will be sponsored by the Friends of the Gallery Saturday, Jan. 26, from 8 p.m. to midnight. The event will be a '60s party, with come-as-you-were dress and dancing to the tunes of the '50s and '60s.

Admission is $10 per person. There will be a cash bar. For tickets, call 862-8000, ext. 290.

Marijuana talk

Peggy Mann, a leading writer on drug abuse and prevention, will introduce her new book, "Marijuana Alert," at a Lions luncheon meeting to be held on Tuesday, Jan. 29 at noon at Mercy College Conference Center, 8200 W. Outer Drive, Detroit.

Three of her books have been dramatized for national television: "My Dad Lives in a Downtown Hotel," best children's drama of the year and produced over ABC-TV, was nominated for an Emmy Award. "The Street of the Flower Boxes," on NBC-TV, won a Peabody Award. "Two Kinds of Terrible," was seen over CBS as a made-for-television movie.

The luncheon is open to the public and the cost is $6.50 per person. Tickets will be available at the door.

Diet program

Dietitians at Saratoga Community Hospital will present a two-hour course on following a diet even when eating out. The class will be held Tuesday, Jan. 29, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Pre-registration is required. Call 245-1450.

Camera club

The Grosse Pointe Camera Club will meet Tuesday, Jan. 29, at 7:45 p.m. at the Brownell Middle School, 260 Chalfonte, in the Farms.

This will be a social meeting to give the public the opportunity to come in and informally exchange information with members.

SCHOOLS

Kids, parents are happy with kindergarten

Halfway through its first year, the full-day kindergarten program at Ferry School appears to please most of the parents and children involved, according to elementary curriculum director Afrieda Frost.

Dr. Frost, Ferry principal Audrey Burchett and kindergarten teacher Henry Pichla presented demographic and instructional information about the pilot program at the Jan. 14 board of education meeting.

"Because we are approaching mid-year, (the department) ... felt it was appropriate to give the board some information about the pilot program," Dr. Frost said, adding the system has received "good feedback" from parents as well as inquiries about whether the full-day program will be offered next school year.

There are 24 children enrolled in the single class at Ferry at $1,250 tuition, Dr. Frost said. The system had originally advertised the program in the Defer, Ferry and Monteth districts, but after insufficient response, opened it up to all elementary districts, she added.

The single 24-student class is no larger than half-day classes around the system, Dr. Frost said.

Citing data gathered by the Office of Research and Development in December, Dr. Frost told the board that seven of the system's nine elementary districts had students attending the program. The class is balanced by both age and sex, she added.

Half the students come from homes with three or more children, with only two being only children. Seven of the students come from homes with two children, Dr. Frost said.

Most of the children come from homes with two parents. Eight of 20 surveys showed all parents living in the home worked full-time, while seven had one parent not employed outside the home.

Most of the children have been enrolled in pre-school programs before this, Dr. Frost said. Most attended as both three- and four-year-olds, attending half- and full-day programs two, three or five days a week, the survey said.

Half of those surveyed said they use the school's latchkey program. Most of the children also stay for lunch.

Fourteen of those surveyed said they thought the program was reasonably priced and competitive. Only four said they felt the cost was too high and would not participate again. Children overwhelmingly enjoyed the program, however, with 18 of 20 saying they felt very positive about school and enjoyed the full-day more than the half-day program, according to the survey.

The curriculum and program for the full-day program is the same as the half-day, according to Mrs. Burchett. The only difference between the two is that the extra time is used for enrichment activities to help reinforce the learning earlier in the day.

"In the full-day program, we have time to give the students enrichment," she said. "We don't try to rush or accelerate the children."

Pichla, who gave a slide presentation to the board, agreed, saying the extra time in the day gives him the luxury of completing projects without rushing.

The morning programs contain activities to develop social and motor skill development through rhythmic dance, listening centers and play-time, he said.

Listening center activities help develop the students' communication and language art skills, Pichla said. The students will listen to a taped program and afterward develop stories of their own on a similar theme. The centers, which are also used in half-day programs, help reinforce and restate some of the things learned earlier in the day, he added.

Students are also able to get more individual attention from the instructor and teacher's aide because of the longer day, Pichla and Mrs. Burchette said.

The presentation was for board direction regarding the status of next year's program as much as it was informational, Dr. Frost said, adding she hopes the full-day program will be continued.

Tower ranked among top 40

The Tower, South's student newspaper, won a Silver Crown award to rank among 40 of the best school newspapers in the United States. The award followed evaluations by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association at Columbia University in New York.

CSPA is the second national scholastic press organization this year to rank the Tower among the best. The National Scholastic Press Association earlier gave the paper one of 25 regional Pacemaker awards.

To receive the Silver Crown, the Tower earned 966 points on a 1,000-point scale and all-Columbian honors in four areas of evaluation: content/coverage, writing/editing, design/display, and creativity.

CSPA will select five to 10 Gold Crown newspapers from among the Silver Crown winners. Those awards will be announced in March.

Editor for last year's paper, used in the evaluation, was Erik Nicholson.

City police cite safety patrollers

Two Maire elementary school safety patrol boys were honored last week as Patrol Boy of the Month for November and December respectively, were treated to lunch recently by Grosse Pointe City Officer Alfred Fincham, safety officer for Maire school.

The Patrol Boy of the Month program was developed to recognize the good work of safety patrol members, Fincham said.

Trombly kids have Christmas spirit

Trombly Elementary School students made Christmas merry for a couple of hundred children through the school's donations to the Wayne County Foster Care Childrens holiday gift program.

The program, sponsored locally by Operation LINC, collected gifts for poor children without parents who otherwise would have had no holiday.

The school's 233 students donated 242 gifts to the program, the first time in the program's 12 years a school has achieved 100 percent participation.

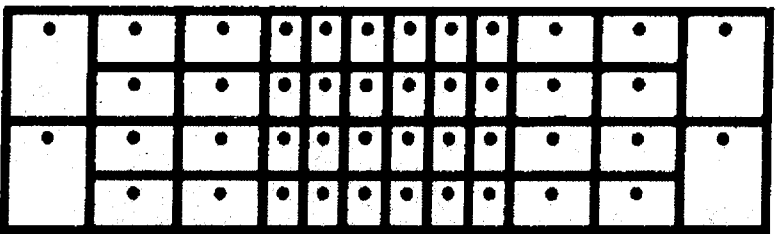

Her story's a hit

Katherine Weed, 7, of the Woods, was awarded an honorable mention in the Cricket League story contest. Her name will be printed in the February edition of Cricket Magazine.

Katherine is the daughter of Duane and Jacqueline Weed. She also has a brother, Geoffrey, and is currently a second-grader at Mason School in the Woods.

Lake level

Lake St. Clair at the end of December was at elevation 575.23 feet or 42 inches above chart datum. This was about one inch below one year ago, and the December monthly mean of 574.67 feet was 19 inches above its long-term average for December. The Great Lakes forecast shows that Lake St. Clair is expected to be 36 inches above chart datum or at elevation 574.68 feet at the end of January.

Cottage joins HMO network

Cottage Hospital and more than 50 members of its medical staff joined with Henry Ford Hospital and eight other southeastern Michigan hospitals to form a new health care network, designed to provide total medical services to members of a new health maintenance organization (HMO).

The HMO is Preferred Health Plan, a subsidiary of Henry Ford Health Care Corporation, the parent company of Henry Ford Hospital.

Cottage, Henry Ford and the other community hospitals have been working on a cooperative basis for more than a year to develop the network. Formation of the network means that Preferred Health Plan members will have convenient access to physicians and hospitals in their own communities. Approximately 1,000 physicians will be participating in the total network.

Members of Preferred Health Plan can select a primary care physician from among Cottage Hospital staff physicians who are participating members of the network. This primary care physician will coordinate all health care for the Preferred Health Plan member, and if hospitalization is required will admit the patient to Cottage.

In addition to Cottage and Henry Ford, other hospitals and their medical staffs who have since joined include: Crittenton Hospital, Rochester; Providence Hospital-Providence Medical Group, PC, Southfield; St. Joseph Hospital, East, Mount Clemens; St. Joseph Hospital, West, Clinton Township; Wyandotte General Hospital, Wyandotte; and Peoples Community Hospital Authority (PCHA), which includes Annapolis Hospital, Wayne and Seaway Hospital, Trenton.

Academy nominees announced by senator

U.S. Sen. Carl Levin nominated the following Grosse Pointe high school students to various military academies:

Thomas R. Palus, 18, a graduate of North High, to the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y. The son of Norman and Alberta Palus, he was involved in sports and he was a member of the Order of Liebowitz, a gaming club.

Frank Garavaglia, 16, a senior at North, to the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado. He is a member of the National Honor Society and his hobbies include sports and playing the piano. He is the son of Frank and Pauline Garavaglia.

Joey A. Johnston, 17, South

senior, to the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis. The daughter of Sue Ann and Robert Johnston, she is a member of the National Honor Society and vice president of the Student Council. She is a member of the girls' varsity basketball team and she also plays soccer. Her hobbies are photography and creative writing.

James Curtis West Jr., 17, South senior, to the U.S. Naval Academy. He is president of the school band and orchestra, a member of the National Honor society and the Ski Club. His hobbies include track and field and music. He is the son of James and Ellen West.

The final decision on offers of appointment will be made by the various academies' board of admissions. An 80-member screening committee interviewed applicants and made recommendations to Levin. Applicants were rated on academic achievement, communication abilities, leadership potential and motivation. More than 350 applicants were interviewed throughout the state.

Snowblower stolen

A Woods resident in the 2000 block of Hampton reported to police that someone entered his garage and stole a Toro snowblower and Black and Decker circular saw. The theft occurred between 2:30 p.m. Jan. 15 and 3:55 a.m. Jan. 16. The loss was estimated at $330.

City plans shopping area improvements

By Harriet Nolan

Trees, entrance signs, a plaza and more parking space top the list of priorities needed to keep Grosse Pointe City's Village shopping area competitive, determined Village merchants who met with city council Monday.

Renovating tree containers and replacing trees is already at the drawing board stage, according to Thomas Kressbach, city manager. Plans call for about 36 trees to be planted throughout the area this year.

Adding a plaza or patio at Kercheval and St. Clair for special events and the comfort of shoppers is also a certainty since a block grant has been received to help fund the project hoped to be completed this year.

Entrance signs denoting "The Village" will be placed at both ends of the strip to give the area a stronger image. While it was agreed that the gateways may vary in size to allow for traffic visibility, the motif will be similar to tie both entrances together.

The city plans to apply for grants to defray the cost of the signs and the remodeling and adding an additional parking lot, said Kressbach. If received, both projects could be completed by fall of 1986.

While members of the Grosse Pointe Village Association were in favor of a plaza, they cautioned it might serve to centralize shopping activity in that one area to the detriment of businesses farther away.

"I'm fearful that it would pull people down to one spot," said Gwen Samuels, owner of the Village Bookstore. "We can't so unbalance the village to hurt merchants at the other end."

Ms. Samuels, William Huntington, of Walton-Pierce, and Gerald Valente of Valente Jewelers, all said they weren't against the plaza concept, but would like to see something similar built near Cadieux Road.

The city hired the design firm of Johnson, Johnson & Roy/Inc. of Ann Arbor, last year to supply ideas, costs and strategies needed to accomplish short, intermediate and long-term refinements to keep the shopping area thriving.

The study, funded by a community development block grant, was aided by input from merchants, store owners and city personnel who set priorities and design criteria to be used to continue the strip's colonial motif.

Other suggestions for five-year-or-longer projects include adding low-built walls to cushion the blending of nearby homes. The group plans to meet again with council on March 18.

Farms records 2 robberies

Farms police recorded two robberies in the city last week. On Wednesday morning, Jan. 16, a 67-year-old woman was robbed as she walked along Madison Road, just north of Webster.

According to police reports, the woman said she saw a vehicle pull alongside of her, and the driver asked her if she wanted a ride. When she refused, the driver exited and demanded her purse. When she refused, he grabbed it and drove off north on Madison, toward Mack Avenue.

The victim said she lost between $50 to $60 and other personal possessions. Police scoured the area with no results. The suspect was described as a black male in his early 20s, 5 feet 10 inches, medium build and clean-shaven. He was wearing a dark-colored knit cap and dark clothing.

On Saturday evening, Jan. 19, a Detroit man reported to Farms police that he was robbed at gunpoint after withdrawing money from a 24-hour teller at the National Bank of Detroit, located at 460 Moross.

The victim reported he had withdrawn $50 from the machine and returned to his car when the robber exited the victim's vehicle from the back seat, demanding money and the car keys.

The victim surrendered the $50, plus $18 in his wallet as well as the keys. When the suspect entered the vehicle, the victim ran, knowing the car wouldn't start because of an ignition kill switch.

The suspect was described as a black male, 25 to 30 years old and 6 feet tall, clean-shaven with a dark complexion. He was wearing a dark knit cap, a light-colored hooded sweatshirt and a dark waist-length jacket.

The weapon was described as a nickel-plated .38 caliber revolver.

According to the police, the suspect fled the area after failing to start the car, taking the keys with him. Police processed the vehicle for fingerprints with negative results.

Think you've been cold?

This young lady was caught completely unaware and was found frozen outside the Fries Ballroom at the War Memorial. She was captured on film by our roving photographer who then threw the War Memorial staff into a panic with a simple question. What's the name of the statue? As of press time, no one knew. If any reader knows, please give our paper a call. The other lovely snow scene was recorded on Fisher Road, about a block short of Lakeshore Road.

Association honors Woods officials

Grosse Pointe Woods Mayor George Freeman and Councilwoman Jean Rice were honored Saturday night, Jan. 19, as Persons of the Year at the annual dinner/dance of the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue.

Freeman, serving his third term as mayor, was presented a plaque, custom-made medallion and a resolution from the Michigan Legislature for his efforts. Mrs. Rice was unable to attend.

State Sen. John Kelly, D-Detroit, presented Freeman with the Legislature's resolution. Master of ceremonies for the evening, Dr. Michael Lahey, presented the business association's honors.

SAC² handbook wins top honor

A handbook designed to help parents deal with alcohol and drug use in Grosse Pointe placed first in the nation for public service in a competition sponsored by the National Foundation for Alcoholism Communications.

The booklet, "As Parents We Will..." was produced by the Substance Abuse Community Council of Grosse Pointe (SAC²) to provide knowledge for parents as a foundation for family discussion of alcohol and other drug use.

"The booklet was extremely well received and commented on at length," said Marianne Thompson, coordinator for the Markie awards.

Christine Dodds and Ruth Zinn created and compiled the booklet for SAC². Joanne Murphy was responsible for layout and editing and Florence Miller for copy editing.

The booklet contains suggested guidelines for parents to use with their children, as well as current factual information about alcohol, marijuana and other drugs.

"It is a valuable reference in any home with school-age children," Mrs. Zinn said.

More than 12,000 copies of the booklet have been distributed in Grosse Pointe parochial, private and public schools.

In addition, Royal Oak, Dearborn, East Grand Rapids and other cities around the country have adapted the booklet to their own communities. The Traverse City Record Eagle reproduced the booklet in the pages of the newspaper as a public service.

"The quality of the entries in this year's competition was impressive," Ms. Thompson said.

Most entries were submitted by professional communication companies or institutions.

Be a clown

The Grosse Pointe Clown Corps will hold a new member registration Wednesday night, Jan. 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the basement of the Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety building, 20025 Mack.

Membership is open to all age 5 and over who live in the Pointes, Harper Woods and Macomb County.

Community Education offers architecture class

Among the new-for-winter classes and activities scheduled by the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System is Architecture and the Related Arts, an enrichment course designed and taught by Joseph Messana, photographer and lecturer.

Messana has had his photographs published in more than 300 color spreads in local and national publications.

The first session, titled, Seeing Detroit Differently, shows the best of the city and surrounding suburbs. In addition to buildings and landmarks, the photographs will include artistic monuments by Marshall Fredericks, Carl Milles and Alexander Calder.

The second presentation, Religious Architecture in America, begins with the earliest pueblo-styled churches and missions of the Southwest and moves to the New England colonial structures. The cathedral in America and the beginning of the modern movement feature the work of such notables as Frank Lloyd Wright, Alden Dow and Marcel Breuer.

Modern Architecture, the third in the series, visits some of the most exciting modern architecture in the United States, including outstanding residences, college campuses, auditoriums, stadiums, libraries, office structures and museums.

Featured will be Tallies West, home and architectural studios of Frank Lloyd Wright in Arizona, Dullies Airport by Eero Saarinen, a seven-level library in Niagara Falls by Paul Rudolph, and new museums by I.M. Pei, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill and others.

The final session will be devoted to Washington, D.C. Featured will be night and day views of some of the most famous buildings in America.

Fee for the four-session series is $35. It will be held on Thursdays beginning Feb. 7 at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

Call 343-2178 for more information and space availability.

to Lake St. Clair, while passing through on an Algerian freighter.

Semih implored the person who found the message, (a Grosse Pointer vacationing on the Canadian side), to turn the bottle over to any beautiful woman who might be interested in writing him. Smart sailor.

Instead, the message was turned over to the Grosse Pointe News. We, in turn, received a short note this week from Dorothy Harris, of the Park, who sent a copy of the story and a letter to Semih, now back in Turkey.

She has received a letter and post card from this lonely sailor, and says she's considering becoming pen pals. In fact, she has also sent two bottled messages into Lake St. Clair and Fox Creek and is hoping for some answers in return.

She said she became more interested in bottle messages after reading about them in a copy of "Aloha" magazine.

Thanks for the follow up, Dorothy. Keep us informed on what's happening with all these bottles.

Publisher of magazine is living her dream

By Pat Paholsky

Buoyed by letters from former Pointers living in other states and telephone calls from people who were part of her past, Patricia Louwers Serwach is convinced she has a hit on her hands. She and her husband, Edward, are the publishers of Heritage, the magazine of Grosse Pointe life that made its debut in December.

The second issue will be available in another week or two, and Mrs. Serwach said she is still getting a response from the first issue. "I'm getting letters every day from all over the country, from people who have moved and someone has sent them a copy," she said. "They say this will keep them in touch. We have subscriptions now in 18 states."

Subscriptions number about 2,000, she said, adding she hasn't received a final tally of over-the-counter sales from various stores. And according to her, the sky's the limit now, since she believes her first assumption that the magazine would appeal only to Grosse Pointers was wrong.

"There is an enthusiasm for Grosse Pointe period," she said. The magazine is the culmination of a five-year dream that kept getting "put off until next year when we are in a better position," she said. "I thought what if someone else does it and then I can't do it."

So it was during a relaxing vacation up North in August when she and her husband decided to take the publishing plunge. It wasn't an unknown venture for them — they own Great Lakes Graphics, a printing company in St. Clair Shores that is involved in the production of a number of publications, including the student newspapers at North and South high schools, national publicity for the AmVets, advertising for numerous clients, wedding invitations and other services associated with a printing company.

"We really run about four businesses here," she said. "We find it's necessary to diversify to remain in business."

The business was started in the couple's basement in 1978.

"My utility room had become a darkroom," she said. "We were doing just composition and artwork then."

When the business outgrew the basement, the Serwachs moved to a building on 9 Mile Road in January 1981. Presses were added that summer and a bindery followed. Now there are 18 full-time employees working three shifts.

"Seven of our people are artists," she said. "Most of the people have been with me from the basement. I'm just very proud of all of them."

With five children ranging in age from 2 to 20, Mrs. Serwach brings her youngest son to work with her every day. Another employee also brings a small child to work and the toys scattered throughout the building add to the informal, homey atmosphere.

Mrs. Serwach, who was Patricia Louwers when she was growing up in Grosse Pointe Park, said, "I always loved to read and loved to write." Later she worked as a legal secretary "for some extremely good attorneys," whose command of the language further instilled a love for words and their meanings, she said.

The venture into the publishing business has had some unexpected bonuses: She recently received a call from her 7th-grade teacher, Sister Clement.

"The nice thing about all of this is it has brought me back to my childhood; it's put me back in touch with a lot of those people."

Districts work to improve high school time sharing

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe school officials are looking to improve their time-sharing program, which allows students in one district to attend classes in the other.

The exchange program is between North and Harper Woods high schools. This year, one Harper Woods student is attending classes at North, but no Grosse Pointe students attend classes at Harper Woods High, despite some excellent vocational opportunities, officials said.

Both sides say the problem is scheduling.

"The problem as I see it is the starting time at the two high schools," Harper Woods superintendent James Toth said. North students start at 8:30 a.m., an hour later than Harper Woods students.

Grosse Pointe experimented with offering classes at 7:30 a.m., but found few interested students, according to secondary curriculum director Robert Welch.

Harper Woods offers openings in a variety of state-accredited two-hour vocational programs. In return, Harper Woods students have a chance at specialized science, math and language classes not offered there.

But because many of the vocational classes start in Harper Woods at 7:30, Grosse Pointe students are reluctant to enroll, Welch said. Also, Harper Woods has a long-standing cooperative agreement with South Lake school in St. Clair Shores, which also covers vocational programs, Welch said.

Grosse Pointe students who are interested in taking the vocational classes often find the classes filled by South Lake students, he added.

Likewise, Harper Woods students often find some of the same scheduling problems. The courses they want to take first hour are often filled or aren't offered because not enough students signed up.

While both districts will continue to schedule classes at the high schools to make the best use of personnel, they have agreed to leave open a few slots for students in first hour classes to help accommodate time-sharing students, Welch said. There is also a transportation problem. A student loses one hour in travel time, so taking a class at another school means scheduling two hours, Toth said. Harper Woods buses students to South Lake and stops at North on the way.

Grosse Pointe doesn't offer transportation to Harper Woods, Welch said. Although students get rented transportation from North to South, expanding the program to Harper Woods would mean extra expense, he added.

"Whenever you talk about transportation, you're talking about a very, very expensive business," Welch added.

The district began a time-sharing program several years ago and revived it in recent years to allow students from the two high schools to take classes at the other that weren't offered at their own.

Harper Woods, with 367 students at the high school, can offer a North Central accredited program, but only one foreign language, according to Toth.

Under state rules, a vocational program, to be accredited, must last two hours, Welch said. Although Grosse Pointe offers a variety of single-hour courses, there are better programs in data processing and welding at Harper Woods in two-hour blocks, he added.

There is a charge to the school districts for the program, Welch said. Each is charged $150 a semester or $300 a year for the net difference of students. Because one Harper Woods student is attending classes while no Grosse Pointe kids are in Harper Woods High, that school district pays the fee.

If there is a "we-are-better-than-you-are" attitude at work, there shouldn't be, Welch said. Students ought to look at the quality of the programs available and not where they're offered, he added.

Toth said the time-sharing program benefits both districts, with which Welch agrees. There are a number of things the districts can do jointly, as long as each benefits, Welch said.

Both districts are preparing their programs of study for next school year and should know by the end of March which classes will be available for the program.

Fontana Lane home site of burglary

Grosse Pointe Shores police are investigating a burglary that occurred Thursday, Jan. 17, at a home on Fontana Lane. According to reports, the burglary occurred sometime between 9:45 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., when the owner returned home.

Police say the homeowner first noticed that someone had shoveled a path in the snow from the front door of the home to the rear, opposite the family room.

The victim asked his son if he had shoveled the path, but received a negative reply. The resident next went to the master bedroom and found an empty jewelry box on the bed. Also reported missing was a small metal box from a bedroom wall safe.

Police are waiting for a full list of missing items, but the home owner said most of the stolen property consisted of jewelry, cash and credit cards.

A further investigation of the home revealed a pillow case missing from the master bedroom and a bedsheet from the son's room.

Police discovered two sets of footprints in the snow leading from the front door. They believe entry and exit to the home was made through an unlocked door.

A canvas of nearby neighbors revealed no further information on the theft.

Injuries from Auto Accidents

Grosse Pointe Woods Chiropractic Clinic
881-7677

Dr. David Jantz Chiropractor

Q I was in an automobile accident one month ago and suffered whiplash. I have had constant neck, shoulder, and back pain. Recently dizzy spells and stomach upset have developed. Can these symptoms be related to the accident? Should I seek chiropractic treatment?

A Whiplash injury is a very common and can cause many bizarre symptoms that may develop months after the accident. Other symptoms that may develop months after the accident are pain between the shoulders, vertigo, ringing in the ears, pain radiating down the arm or leg, headaches, stiffness of spinal joints, neuralgia, and more. These symptoms are due to the irritation of the spinal soft tissues (muscles, ligaments, cartilage and the delicate nerves which exit the spine). The head is delicately balanced on 7 cervical vertebrae (neck bones). As the head is violently thrust forward and backward several thousand pounds of force is dissipated through the entire spine. The treatment of choice for whiplash is chiropractic. Chiropractic restores normal mobility to joints and reduces misalignments of the spine due to the accident. Early detection and treatment of whiplash through chiropractic care can prevent serious consequences.

Direct questions to Dr. Jantz, Grosse Pte. Woods Chiropractic, 20217 Mack Ave., G.P.W., phone 881-7677. Continued next week

Macomb Center to host six-state vocal jazz workshop

Students and their teachers from colleges and high schools in six states have been invited to what is billed as "The World's Greatest Vocal Jazz Workshop" to be held in March at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts.

Featuring nationally known professionals such as Phil Mattson, Gene Puerling and Steve Zegree as clinicians, the three-day workshop will begin with registration on Friday, March 15, and end on Sunday, March 17, with a mass sing and closing reception.

"These three days of sessions will provide an intensive contact with world-class clinicians not only in presenting an overview of vocal jazz, but by providing an opportunity for students and teachers alike to gather information about things like harmony, improvisation, rehearsal techniques and career planning," said Laurence L. Teal, the Macomb Center's executive director who also will serve as one of the workshop's clinicians.

The Macomb Center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College just north of metropolitan Detroit and slightly west of Mount Clemens. The facility, housing one of the most modern state-of-the-art theater stages anywhere, is widely recognized for its acoustical excellence and sophisticated theater production equipment.

Invitations to the workshop, sponsored by the Michigan Vocal Jazz Society and the Macomb Center, have gone out to students and faculty in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin in addition to Michigan.

As an extension of the working sessions, there will be two evening concerts open to the public.

On March 15, the P.M. Singers, founded and directed by pianist-arranger Mattson, will perform in addition to their full range of services as clinicians.

The following night, there will be a combined concert featuring Zegree's Gold Company, the nationally acclaimed vocal group from Western Michigan University; The Arbors, the Chicago-based quartet whose members are the most sought-after commercial recording group in mid-America; and the Grunions, the Michigan Vocal Jazz Society's ensemble that was formed for the sole purpose of furthering an appreciation of the art.

Teal said all performers and clinicians — including Puerling, singer and leader of the celebrated Hi-

Lo's and Singers Unlimited — will "share in workshop presentations and be available to talk individually with the participants."

Those interested in participating are asked to call Teal's office at 313-286-2141, or write to the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts at 44575 Garfield Rd., Mount Clemens, Mich. 48044.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

Today, the minuet is only danced on the stage . . . but the Polonaise, most fashionable Polish dance of the 17th century, when the fashion for three-meter dances was sweeping through France and the whole of Europe, still opens balls in The Grand Manner. It will be performed in Detroit on Saturday, Feb. 16, at Bal Polonais II, a dinner dance at the Detroit Athletic Club celebrating the Centennial of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The black tie party is co-sponsored by Art of Poland Associates and The Polish Opera Committee of Michigan Opera Theatre. The former group is an auxiliary of the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts, devoted to promoting Polish art and culture, supporting the museum's Polish Art Gallery and sponsoring special exhibitions and lectures.

The Polish Opera Committee was formed in 1982 to support MOT's production of "Straszny Dwor" ("The Haunted Castle") by Stanislaw Moniuszko that October. Proceeds from Bal Polonais II will benefit the Art of Poland's DIA Centennial Project and MOT's upcoming production of Moniuszko's "Haika."

Special features of this now annual gala — Grand Polonais I was presented last March in the Detroit Public Library's Adam Strohm Hall — include a pageant of traditional Polish dress during the cocktail hour and trumpeters, in 17th century Polish court garb, signalling cocktails, dinner and dancing. Young Polish emigre pianist Leszek Bartkiewicz, last spring's Grosse Pointe Symphony soloist, will play the traditional prelude to dancing: Chopin's Polonaise in A flat Major ("Military").

Bartkiewicz will perform on a special, handmade, nine-foot Bechstein Concert Grand, furnished by Paul Smiley. The program will also feature an exhibition of Mazurkas — and, of course, the Polonaise, danced in the Grand Manner.

Co-chairmen of the Bal Polonais II committee, under Mrs. Mitchell I. Kafarski, general chairman, are a pair of Pointe residents: Stephanie (Mrs. Frank A. Jr.) Germack and Alice (Mrs. William E.) Johnston. Among those serving on their committee are another Pointe pair: Ida (Mrs. Richard F.) Krandle and Karen (Mrs. William F.) Lorenz. The honorary and promotion committees also have Pointe representatives, among them Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Ford II, Mrs. Robert Niccolini and Mrs. Thomas L. Schoenith.

Bal Polonais II will also commemorate the Centennial of Paderewski and Chopin's 175th Anniversary. Ticket information may be obtained by calling 642-2730, 882-2140 or 822-7085. And here's a bit of interesting trivia for you, before we leave the subject of the Bal . . . Did you know that polonaises were written in the tune of "God Save the King," "Rule Britannia" and "La Marseillaise"? There was even one version of the Po-

Pointe Garden Center seats 1985 officers

The Grosse Pointe Garden Center's officers for 1985 posed for their official portrait in the Garden Center Room at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Friday, Jan. 11, following the Garden Center's 34th annual meeting, program and luncheon. As always, there were a few unavoidable absentees. Mrs. Arthur C. (M. Joyce) Blumenstock, first vice-president, and Mrs. George M. (Alis) Fern, second vice-president, were not able to be there when the picture was taken.

But Mrs. Julian W. (Vicky) Haydon, the new president, was on hand, along with Mrs. David A. (Marjorie) Richardson and Mrs. Harold R. (Aletha) Smith, treasurer and assistant treasurer, respectively; Mrs. Robert F. (Gail) Weber and Mrs. J. Crawford (Mary Lou) Frost, corresponding and assistant corresponding secretary, respectively; and Mrs. H. Hudson (Frances) Mead and Mrs. Charles A. (Judy) Bigelow, recording and assistant recording secretary, respectively.

The day began at 11 a.m. with Vicky Haydon's lecture on the History of Bonsai. Vicky, speaking in the War Memorial's Alger House library, presented slides of interesting specimens, demonstrated the methods used to create these Japanese miniature trees and showed one from her own collection.

She learned to create Bonsai in Grosse Pointe Garden Center workshops, under the direction of Mrs. Harley G. Higbie, Mrs. Monte J. Edelen and Mrs. Jay L. Hammen.

Luncheon followed, in the lakeside dining room, where sunshine streaming through the high windows, magnified by reflections from the lake and snowy terrace, turned miniature crystal trees, angels, turtles, whales and "snowflakes" on table runners of silver mylar into a dazzling fantasy setting for this very special event. Mrs. Charles W. Morris Jr. was responsible for the luncheon arrangements.

Post-luncheon business was short and sweet. Before handing her gavel of office to newly-elected President Haydon, Mrs. William A. (Peg) Cole, retiring president, gave a final report on her year as the Garden Center's chief executive.

Mrs. Philip J. (Marion) Skillman gave a brief History of 1984. The financial report was presented by Mrs. Donald N. (Mary Margaret) Sweeny Jr., who has been treasurer for several years and now moves to the chairmanship of the '85 Finance Committee.

The Grosse Pointe Garden Center offers the community education in horticulture and lectures in gardening and flower arrangement. It maintains the beautiful Trial Gardens at the War Memorial and sponsors graduate fellowships for students of horticulture who plan to teach.

It also maintains an extensive library of books and magazines devoted to all aspects of gardening and horticulture; this library, located in the Garden Center Room in the War Memorial's Alger House, is open to the public, who are invited to make use of it in order to become more expert in planting and maintaining home gardens.

Information on the three types of Grosse Pointe Garden Center membership may be obtained by calling 881-4564 any Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Another DSO Preview date in the Village

The third of five Detroit Symphony Preview programs sponsored by the Detroit Symphony League and Village Records and Tapes will feature Charles Greenwell, of WQRS-FM, discussing pieces by Tchaikovsky, Spohr and Walton next Wednesday, Jan. 30, at 8 p.m. at Village Records and Tapes, located on Kercheval Avenue "in-the-Village."

The series, produced in cooperation with WQRS-FM and Music Center USA, offers a special opportunity to learn more about music performed by the DSO. Guest speakers, experts in their fields, delve into performances and personalities being featured this symphony season, in a manner designed to interest all ages and appeal to all levels of musical knowledge.

All programs are free, open to the public and begin at 8 p.m. — but seating is limited, so it's wise to arrive early to avoid disappointment. The series continues with a Wednesday, March 20, program featuring Dave Wagner, also of WQRS, at the harpsichord, highlighting a Bach/Beethoven/Brahms DSO weekend, and concludes with Detroit News critic Nancy Malitz examining a program of Brahms, Mozart and Shostakovich on Wednesday, April 24.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Village Records and Tapes, 886-6039.

Taxing time for Phase I

It's that time of year again . . . when you look at your W-2 and tax return forms and wonder what to do next. Kathleen Goralewski, founder and director of A&K Accounting and Tax Service and a member of the Phase I Council, will speak to fellow members of Phase I, the single, young adults, ages 25 to 40, who gather regularly for Sunday evening program meetings at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, this Sunday, Jan. 27, at 7:45 p.m.

Phase I's upcoming social and sports schedule includes a bowling party tomorrow, Friday, Jan. 25, at 9:15 p.m. at Harbor Lanes, Jefferson Avenue near 18 Mile Road, followed by a late evening re-fueling stop before heading home.

DSO concerts for Stoltzman

Richard Stoltzman, only clarinetist ever presented in recital at Carnegie Hall, will appear in concerts with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra on Thursday, Jan. 31, at 8 p.m., Friday, Feb. 1, at 10:45 a.m. and Saturday, Feb. 2, at 8:30 p.m. in Ford Auditorium.

He will play the Clarinet Concerto No. 4 in E Minor by Louis Spohr, a contemporary of Beethoven. It was written at the request of clarinet virtuoso Johann Simon Hermstedt, who gave the premier performances of all four of Spohr's concertos for clarinet and orchestra.

The concerts, with David Atherton on the podium, will open with the DSO debut performance of the "Hamlet Overture-Fantasy" by Tchaikovsky, originally composed for the concert hall, later adapted to introduce a stage production of the play, and close with Symphony No. 1 by 20th century English composer William Walton, performed by the DSO on only one previous occasion: in 1963, with Sixten Ehrling conducting.

The Spohr Clarinet Concerto is also a DSO debut performance. Tickets, ranging in price from $10 to $19 for the Thursday and Saturday evening concerts, from $10 to $16 for the Friday morning concert which includes coffee and doughnuts furnished by Michigan AAA, may be obtained at the Ford Auditorium box office, 567-1400, Hudson's and CTC/Ticket World outlets. Group discount information is available at 446-0909.

Stoltzman is an American. His versatility ranges from classical to jazz performances, orchestral solos to chamber music, and takes him from recital halls to recording studios. He formed the well-known chamber ensemble Tashi with pianist Peter Serkin, and won a Grammy Award in 1983 for his first solo album of Brahms' clarinet sonatas.

Atherton, music director of the San Diego Symphony and principal conductor of the Royal Liverpool Philharmonic, is founder of the chamber music ensemble London Sinfonietta. He most recently appeared with the DSO in 1982. He led the Metropolitan Opera touring company's performance of "Peter Grimes" at Detroit's Masonic Temple last May.

Plan fashion Venture at Ford House

BETTY MaGEE (right), personal trade manager of Hudson's Eastland, confers with Venture Club of Grosse Pointe members (left to right) MARY FRANCES LILLY, VALERIE POKORNY-McHUGH and LYNN LECOURS who will model in the Venture Club's "Salute to Spring '85" fashion show Saturday, Feb. 9, at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House. The 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. program will include a parade of fashions provided by Hudson's and coordinated by Betty, a light lunch, shuttle service from the parking lot, a chance to take home a prize and a strolling tour of the Ford House. Donation for tickets, available only through advance sales (884-3913), is $18 per person. All proceeds will be donated to the Michigan Lupus Foundation. The Venture Club, a service organization for young business and professional women, is sponsored by the Soroptimist Club of Grosse Pointe. P.S. We DID NOT forget to identify the "young woman" seated between Lynn and Betty; if you'll look again, closely, you'll see that she's a mannequin.

DIA focus on Cubists

Georges Braque and Pablo Picasso were in the vanguard of a revolutionary art movement that began in Europe around 1907. "Cubist Prints/Cubist Books," on display in the Schwartz Graphic Arts Galleries of the Detroit Institute of Arts through Sunday, Mar. 3, shows the results and emphasizes the partnership between these and other Cubist artists and authors.

The free exhibition of some 140 works presents artists Jacques Villon, Louis Marcoussis, Fernand Leger and Alexander Archipenko, in addition to Braque and Picasso.

Authors include Guillaume Apollinaire, Max Jacob, Andre Gide, Raymond Radiguet, Andre Malraux, Gertrude Stein and Mikhail Lermontov.

Braque and Picasso, working in Paris, were the key figures in developing Cubism's revolutionary pictorial language with its faceted, dissolving planes, shifting perspective and ambiguous space. This experimental approach, first developed in painting, was applied by a variety of artists to the graphic arts.

An alliance between artists and writers of the period, based on aesthetic affinities, generated illustrated texts. Cubist images are found on the pages of poetry books, novels, treatises and periodicals of the time. Equally important, the words of the poets and critics served to justify and compliment the experiments of the visual artists.

The Cubist Exhibit, which originated in New York City at Franklin Furnace Archive Inc. and Aldis Browne Fine Arts, was made possible by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the White Bus Company. Its presentation in Detroit is made possible by the DIA's Founders Society.

Donna Stein, of New York City, who curated the exhibition for Franklin Furnace, will present an illustrated lecture, "Painters and Poets: A Cubist Alliance," at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 26, in the museum's Lecture/Recital Hall. Admission is $3 at the door ($2 for seniors and students with ID, $1 for Founders Society members, free for members of the sponsoring Drawing and Print Club).

"Cubist Prints/Cubist Books" is open to the public during regular museum hours: 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

Woods Garden Club is busy

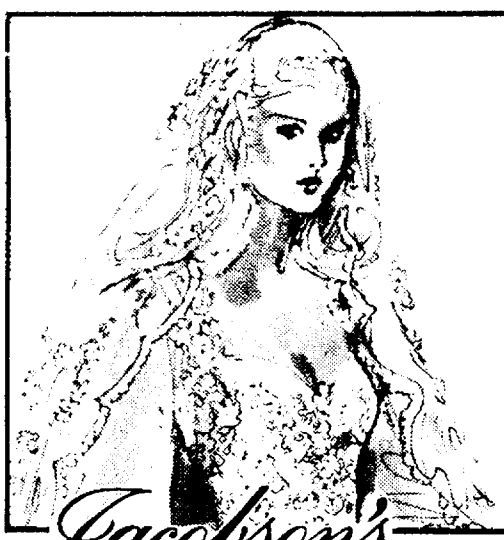

The Grosse Pointe Woods Garden Club began the year with its annual birthday luncheon — held this year at Hudson's — rather than in a member's home, due to a high percentage of illness among the members. The 14 members present enjoyed a relaxed day, with a brief business session and discussion of plans for 1985.

The club's next meeting is set for Tuesday, Feb. 5, at noon in the Stonehurst Road home of Mrs. Florence Leonard who will be assisted by co-hostess Mrs. Clara Finerty. For the program, under auspices of Mrs. Lydia Swanson, each member is requested to bring a small receptacle into which she will plant a small growing thing.

Sweetheart Ball slated

This year's March of Dimes Sweetheart Ball, set for Saturday, Feb. 9, at the Roostertail, will feature a salute to former Detroit Tiger owner John E. Fetzer. As always, all proceeds raised by the $125-per-person black tie party will help the March of Dimes fight birth defects via medical research, educational programs and community service projects.

The ball's honorary chairpersons are Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, Judge Damon Keith and current Tigers' owner Thomas Monaghan. Further information may be obtained by contacting Georgia Olsen, the Southeast Michigan March of Dimes' associate executive director, at 423-3207.

Operation LINC

"To Whom It May Concern:
"If you ever need a friend just right (sic) to the address below, I do not care what age you are. All I want you to know is that I will always be here if you need a friend."

Stuffed in an envelope with two stickers and a penny, addressed to "A Penpal," this note was found among gifts donated by area children at Christmas. What better gift can there be than the offer of friendship? This is what each donation to LINC's (Linking Individuals to Needs in the Community) Foster Care Gift Program and Toy Chest represented during the 1984 Christmas season.

Thanks to the efforts of Grosse Pointe schools and churches, 1630 Christmas gifts were distributed to Foster Care children. Participation was outstanding, with total gifts collected just a shade under those collected in 1983 — despite reported decreasing elementary school enrollments and the shift of sixth graders to the middle schools.

The LINC staff would like to thank students, teachers and administrators of the following schools and churches for the generosity they shared: Richard, Defer, Kerby, Ferry, Trombly, Monteith, Mason, Maire, Brownell, Poupard, the Neighborhood Club Nursery, Christ Church Co-op Nursery, Grosse Pointe Pre-Kindergarten, St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church and First English Lutheran Church Nursery.

A particularly delightful, unique collection of coffee cans decorated to look like clowns, filled with candy and small toys such as games and cars, was prepared by Mrs. Onychuk's third/fourth grade class at Trombly School.

Contributors to LINC's Christmas Gift and Toy Chest Program were the Detroit Area Council of Camp Fire (400 gifts) and retailers, who donated games, new clothing, 600 pairs of fancy shoelaces and approximately 100 pairs of new ballet slippers. A total of 1000 gift packages were distributed through this program to eight metropolitan Detroit social service agencies.

Paddy Griem and Judy Hatton, Foster Care chairpersons, and Sara Gagen and Karen Townsend, who co-chaired the Toy Chest, received awards at LINC's December luncheon meeting for the endless hours and great effort they gave to make their programs a success. They, in turn, would like to recognize the volunteers who picked up the gifts from the schools and churches and delivered them to the LINC office.

These numerous Christmas Elves included Mary Bonten, Ginny Coluni, Barbara Earl, Susan Kvale, Erica Lindow, Mary Matvia, Vicki McCann, Gabriele Pluhar, Sylvia Russell, Theresa Young, Fran Mumma, Martha Brosky, Mil Anthony, Reggie Stockie and Elaine Hickie.

As LINC moves into 1985, it continues to learn of new and ongoing needs of area agencies which try to help people overcome daily obstacles. Each year, LINC hosts a major fund raiser: both to acquire necessary monies for its operating budget and to promote the people-helping-people concept on which LINC was founded. The fund raisers are also opportunities for volunteers to meet and thank supporters who have helped LINC in the past.

This year's Monte Carlo party, scheduled for Saturday, Mar. 2, at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, should be an especially enjoyable way for members of the community to support LINC's work. The Ford House has been the setting for prior LINC Monte Carlo benefits. This year's will run from 7:30 p.m. to midnight, and will feature hors d'oeuvres, an open bar and a tour of the House. Reservations and further information may be obtained by calling the LINC office, 331-6700.

LINC has held a variety of other fund raisers in the past, including the City Fair: a giant, annual rummage sale on downtown Detroit's Kern Block which evolved into a flea market for antique dealers and artisans. LINC also conducts a yearly Garage Sale, and is planning some new and exciting fund raising activities for late spring and next fall.

Currently, the Monte Carlo Night is the year's major fund raiser — and crucial to LINC's operations. "We are hoping to earn a substantial portion of LINC's projected budget for the coming year through the party," says Becky Cipriano, '85 Monte Carlo Night co-chairperson with Sylvia Russell. "Fortunately," she adds, "we have dedicated volunteers. This is a major undertaking, and we do attempt to make the evening as fun-filled as possible, both for volunteers and party-goers. The aid of capable, responsible volunteers is our assurance of success."

A second very important source of revenue for LINC is corporate funding. Erica Lindow, chairman of Future Planning, views corporate contributions as having a tremendous impact on LINC. "In view of today's economic conditions, it is impossible to support an organization such as ours solely through donations from individuals," she explains. "There is a great demand and competition for charitable contributions today. In this environment, it has become necessary for every charitable organization to re-examine its costs and purposes."

"We at LINC are able to keep our costs under control, since 90 percent of our work is done by volunteers," she notes. "And there is a great need for our services, illustrated by the fact that we have doubled the annual value of goods disbursed to Wayne County agencies and have significantly increased the number of agencies serviced to over 100 each year," she adds. LINC also recently expanded its boundaries to include agencies in other counties requesting help.

As Lindow stresses, it is important to recognize that LINC makes a major contribution to the community while operating on a minimal budget. Over half of its annual operating budget is used to pay one full-time employee, Fran Mumma, who handles daily operations at the office.

The remainder covers rent, telephone, insurance, office supplies, postage, professional fees for accountant and attorney, equipment repair, payroll tax and dues and memberships in professional organizations. So far this year (July 1, 1984 to date), $825 has been contributed to LINC by corporations.

A small portion of the budget is acquired from Friends of LINC: individuals who have befriended LINC financially. These monies total $570 to date. LINC works because of the support of the community; if you'd like to lend your support, one good way is to join volunteers and Friends at LINC's March Monte Carlo party.

And don't forget that you can also help LINC through your donation of time and usable goods, or by purchasing your trash bags through our organization. Good quality bags are available at $12 per 100, with free delivery, by calling the LINC office. Immediate needs for goods include furniture and carpeting to help senior citizens through the Virginia Park Citizens Service Corporation. If you can help, please give LINC a call.

LINC column space is provided monthly by the Grosse Pointe NEWS as a community service. Operation LINC needs your generous contributions and your time. We are a non-profit, volunteer organization which helps numerous social service agencies and depends on your support. To volunteer or to donate usable items, please call us at 331-6700. Our office hours are 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday, throughout the year.

The Creative Council's monthly newsletter lists information on art shows and exhibits, art education, field trips and marketing opportunities. The Council sponsors its own exhibits and sales, including "Art at Meadow Brook," held annually on the grounds of Meadow Brook Hall.

Membership in the Creative Council is on a juried basis. Any woman artist in southeastern Michigan is eligible to apply. Member artists will be available during IMAGES6, running Monday, Feb. 18, through Sunday, Feb. 24, to talk to visitors, and to invite them to vote for their favorite piece of exhibited art work.

Art in focus at Somerset

The Creative Council, a non-profit organization of Michigan women artists and craftsmen, returns to Somerset Mall in Troy to present IMAGES6, a fine arts exhibit and sale juried by Fred Nordstiek of Gallery 22, in mid-February.

The show will feature recent works in painting, sculpture, fiber, pottery, basketry and jewelry by members of the group originally affiliated with Oakland University's Continuum Center.

The Council, now an independent organization, remains committed to its original purpose: to give women opportunities to investigate their creative potential in all directions. Members attend monthly meetings, participate in the administration of the group's activities, enrich their professional lives through work and education and involve themselves in community-sponsored art activities.

Harbinger to Celebrate

Popping champagne corks, a giant birthday cake, streamers, confetti and testimonials will herald Harbinger Dance Company's 15th anniversary of dance in Detroit. The celebration begins Wednesday, Feb. 20, when Harbinger appears in concert on the prestigious Music Hall Dance Series. Following its Saturday, Feb. 23, Music Hall performance, the company will host a Gala 15th Anniversary Afterglow.

Harbinger's anniversary performances feature premiers of two new works: "War Dances" by Minneapolis choreographer David Voss and a collaborative work combining the talents of the company's founder and artistic director, Lisa Nowak, and scenic designer Blair Anderson. Ms. Nowak received a grant for her choreography from the Michigan Foundation for the Arts.

The Harbinger anniversary concerts are presented in association with WQRS/Timeless FM 105. Further information on the company's week of celebration may be obtained by calling Harbinger, 477-7014, or the Music Hall, 963-7680.

A Winter Treat Suggestion

Is winter in Michigan's "same old thing" beginning to get you down? Give yourself a treat and take yourself over to the Dossin Great Lakes Museum on Belle Isle, which has reopened to the public with a major new exhibition.

Michigan's Nautical Time Capsules ARE Something New under the Sun (perhaps, since this is Michigan in winter, we should say "under the Clouds"), bringing to life the stories and times of sailing vessels that met untimely fates on the often dangerous waters of the Great Lakes.

The focus of the exhibit is to consider each vessel — schooners, brigs, barges, propellers and steamships, some lost more than a century ago — as an historical artifact rather than to recount the disaster which befell it. These intact examples of Great Lakes commercial vessels are scattered on Michigan's bottomlands, where the fresh, cold waters act as a "time capsule," preserving not only the ships themselves but the history of Great Lakes shipbuilding and commerce.

Each vessel is unique, and tells a story of life on the lakes. It's a fascinating exhibit, a winter treat for all ages, open to the public Wednesday through Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The museum is located on Strand Drive on the south shore of Belle Isle. Further information may be obtained by calling 267-6440.

Torme to sing at DSO Pops

Mel Torme will be featured at Detroit Symphony Orchestra Merrill Lynch Weekender Pops concerts Friday, Jan. 25, at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday, Jan. 27, at 3:30 p.m. in Ford Auditorium.

Michael Krajewski, the orchestra's assistant conductor, will be on the podium for the first half of the program: light classics including Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance," Mendelssohn's Wedding March from

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," Gounod's "Funeral March of a Marionette," Chabrier's "Espana" and Borodin's "Polovetsian Dances."

Pops tickets, ranging in price from $13 to $19, are available at the Ford Auditorium box office, 567-1400, Hudson's and CTC/Ticket World outlets. Group rate information may be obtained by calling 446-0909.

Genealogy Group will meet tonight
The St. Clair Shores Genealogy Group begins its fifth year of meetings with a program on immigration this evening, Thursday, Jan. 24, at 7 p.m. in the St. Clair Shores Public Library, located on the corner of Jefferson Avenue and 11 Mile Road.
"A Nation of Immigrants," conclusion of a series of films made during America's Bicentennial, tracing experiences of immigrants who came to the United States in the 19th and early 20th centuries, will be shown.
The meeting is free and open to anyone interested in tracing his/her family tree. Family history charts will be available for purchase. Further information may be obtained by contacting Mary Karshner, museum curator/archivist, at 771-9020.

February meeting for Macomb PSI
The Macomb Chapter of Professional Secretaries International will gather Wednesday, Feb. 13, at The Gazebo on Mound Road in Warren for cash bar cocktails at 5:30 p.m., dinner at 6:15 p.m. and a 7:15 p.m. program by Mary Louise Cutler, of Toastmistress International, whose topic is "How to Make the Butterflies Fly in Formation."
Cost of the buffet dinner is $10.50. Reservations may be made and further information obtained by contacting Pat Soehnel at 927-7602 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Alpha Phi to host bridge benefit night
The Grosse Pointe Alumnae of Alpha Phi national fraternity will sponsor a bridge benefit Tuesday, Jan. 29, at 8 p.m. at the Lakeshore Road home of Mrs. Allan Neef, co-chairing the evening with Mrs. Geoffrey Welscher. Their committee members include Mrs. Urban Boresch, Mrs. Jean Harris and Mrs. James Allen.
Alpha Phi's national philanthropy is the Heart Fund. Proceeds from funds raised by the local alumnae this month will be donated to Saint John Hospital, with a portion reserved for the Pointe group's Ways and Means Committee. Reservations for the bridge benefit may be made by contacting Ann Welscher at 881-7937.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY

Last week, local lenders announced further reductions in the mortgage rate. Some are as much as 2% lower than just six months ago. More good news is that the prime rate continues its decline. In general the cost of money to the lenders is down and they will be able to pass this savings on to you.

FIRST OFFERING

NEAR THE LAKE AND WATERFRONT PARK. Featuring three bedrooms, two and one half baths, family room and porch, not to mention the three car brick garage and the 90's price. Built in the 50's by DeWitt, in need of some updating but priced to allow for it.

FOUR BEDROOM — GROSSE POINTE CITY. Low 80's makes this the least expensive four bedroom in the City today. Newer roof and furnace along with a home well maintained throughout makes this New England Colonial a great opportunity for the bargain hunters.

ENGLISH TUDOR IN PRIME WOODS LOCATION. Authentic Tudor near Morningside with circular drive, large family room, den or additional bedroom on first floor, updated kitchen, three bedrooms on second floor, 95 foot wide lot, ready to move-in and priced to sell. 708 HAWTHORNE Open Sunday 2-5 p.m.

PARK COLONIAL — Newer three bedrooms, one and one half bath Colonial near Village. Completely redecorated, transferred owner. Open Sunday 2-5 p.m. 1332 GRAYTON.

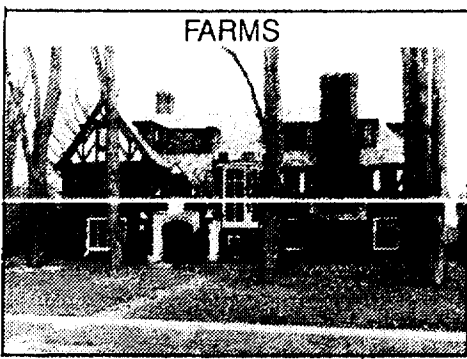

MAGNIFICENT ROSE TERRACE
2,900 Square feet, three bedrooms, three and one half baths, fireplace in living room and family room, first floor laundry, everything you'd expect. Open Sunday 2-5 p.m.

FAMILY HOME — UNIVERSITY NEAR MAUMEE. Meticulously maintained home, large entrance hall, stepdown library, spacious and remodeled kitchen, attached garage, master suite which includes sitting room, dressing room and bath.

LOCHMOOR
Tired of driving your kids to North High School? Consider 796 LOCHMOOR. Open Sunday 2-5 p.m. Colonial with four bedrooms, two and one half baths, first floor laundry, family room, den and recreation room.

BEST BUY — MCKINLEY Colonial larger lot and attached two car garage, three bedrooms, one and one half baths, 15 x 13 family room. Priced to sell in low 80's.

OPEN SUNDAY — 773 TROMBLEY
Custom built, 1947. Center entrance Colonial with dynamic staircase, four bedrooms, three and one half baths, lots of extras including formal garden with fountain.

FARMS

EXECUTIVE HOME — Will appeal to someone who might just need four bedrooms, but wants large entertaining areas and location near everything in the heart of the Farms on prestigious Kenwood Road. Featuring a large new kitchen, beautiful leaded glass, plenty of oak paneling and woodwork along with a slate roof.

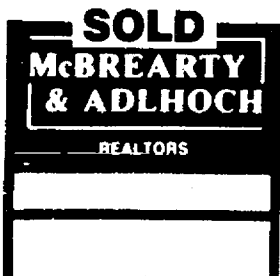

471 RENAUD — SOUTHERN COLONIAL. Four bedroom, three and one half bath home just off Lakeshore, family room, library, central air, attached garage. Priced for quick sale under $240,000. Open Sunday 2-5 p.m.

Pointer of Interest

By Peggy O'Connor

The name "Betsy Piper" kept booming over the loudspeaker as winners were announced at the World Wildlife Carving Competition in Ocean City, Md., last April. The woman belonging to the name grinned inwardly as she made her way through the crowds at the show.

"I heard some of the old timers saying, 'Who the hell is Betsy Piper?' I couldn't blame them; here I was, the newcomer, winning all those ribbons . . ." Betsy Piper laughs, recalling her first world carving competition.

At that point last spring, competition of any sort was new for Betsy. She'd only been carving for a little more than three years and began competition last April as a novice. But she's moved quickly since then, from novice to intermediate with her successes at the world show and at the international show in Atlanta, Ga., and finally turning professional with her "best of" achievements at the North American Championship in Point Moulee this past September.

"Four years ago this month, I started carving classes at Mount Clemens Art Center. We had been at my in-laws' house and I kept saying 'I want to carve a totem pole.' Well, we spent the whole night discussing me carving that totem pole. Two weeks later, my nephew called to tell me he'd enrolled me in Tony Krolkowski's carving class.

"Well, I'd never had a knife in my hand until then. And now I just love it! Give me a piece of wood and my tools and I'm happy. I like to tell people I've taken to it like . . . a duck does to water," Betsy chuckles.

She is the only female carver in the Grosse Pointe Artists' Association, practicing what has only recently become known as a true art form. Something the "born and raised on McKinley Road" graduate of Grosse Pointe High School has known for some time.

"NO ONE, UNLESS he carves, can appreciate what goes into it. I believe carving is an art. That's why I'm so particular about the shows I do. My work just doesn't fit in with the artsy-craftsy type shows. A minimum of 600 hours of work goes into one of these small ducks."

And it's slow, painstaking work. Betsy's prize-winning goose (seven ribbons at the international show) took six months to complete. She starts at the sawmill, selecting the wood herself. Her husband Richard does the rough cutting and all the sanding. "I hate to sand," Betsy says.

Then she goes to it — after she's spent hours and sometimes days researching her subject. "We have so many birds on Harsen's Island, where we spend so much of our time. I'm always running around with binoculars. One mallard I painted by watching the real mallard who slept on our lawn. You have to have 'reference material' like that."

Betsy can work from either frozen birds or stuffed mounts. Her prized goose was modeled from a goose shot in Canada by a neighbor. The goose took up residence in Betsy's freezer, coming out long enough to model and being returned to the deep freeze before it thawed.

"I guess you've got to like ducks, and I do. But one thing I can't stand are dead ducks. It's really hard for me to get used to carving and painting with a dead duck as a model. One way or another, though, you've got to work with them," she says.

Chances are, Betsy works with them HER way. Other than two years of classes in Mount Clemens, Betsy's only training has been college art classes and her practical experience.

"God gave everybody talent. I guess mine is carving ducks. But for me, it's got to be perfect or don't bother doing it. I guess that's why I don't teach carving. I don't mind that the work demands my perfection. If I'd have to demand that from a class of say, 10 to 15 students, I'd end up screaming my head off."

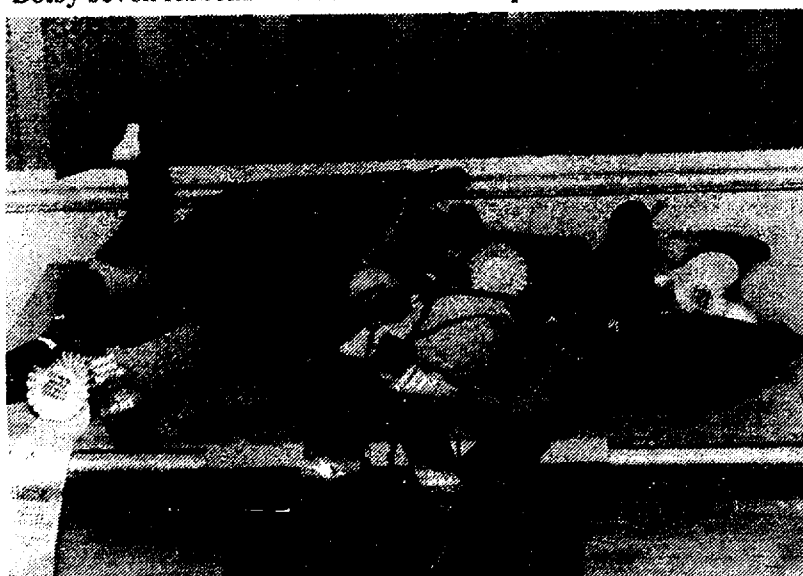

Besides, Betsy says, she's still learning. "I learn something new every time I pick up a piece of wood. And in competition, a different species is featured every year; you have to be able to keep up with that."

"In four years, I've learned a tremendous amount. I've had people who have been more than willing to help. Larry Hayden, of Troy, is one of the most renowned carvers and judges in the United States. He's never hesitated to help me out. I haven't run across one judge at a show who won't help when you need it . . . if you're not a smart aleck about it. You still have to be humble, because you can learn something every day of the week," Betsy says.

ONE THING SHE'S learned is that there aren't enough hours in the day to do all the carving she'd like. She takes care of two homes, including the care and feeding of two cats, a determined six-month-old Welsh terrier named Murphy and the English Sheepdog and Siamese cat daughter Dawn brought with her when she moved back to the Pipers' Stanhope Avenue home.

The Pipers divide their time between Harsen's Island and Grosse Pointe, spending the whole summer on the island. "When Dick retires next year, we'll move body and bones up to the island permanently. We're adding on, and I'll have a nice, large workshop, which I really need."

She'll have more time to carve, too. Now she's working almost full time at the Neighborhood Club's Thrift Shop. She's pretty much on call, waiting for clothes to come in to be marked for consignment. When that happens . . .

"It's unbelievable. We've just had one of the busiest fall seasons I can remember. But I like it there. I started out as a volunteer 12 years ago and worked my way up to full time. Still, with my work, there just don't seem to be enough hours in the day left to carve," Betsy says.

She says she almost wishes her newfound success as a duck carver had come a little earlier, in a less busy time of her life. But she isn't complaining.

"You see, I have only four years of carving experience and I have to go up against all the champions of the U.S. It's scary. I can talk ducks and feathers as well as anyone, but I still feel like a little mouse at some of these big shows. There were 15,000 people at the world show!"

"It's a wonderful experience, though. On the day of a show, I'm a nervous wreck; I drive my quiet, calm husband up a tree. At the world show, they had bleachers for us to sit on; I couldn't pace around like I like to do. I had to go outside after I practically took a header off the bleachers during the judging," Betsy laughs.

That kind of anxiety at a big competition is understandable, given the growth of decorative decoy carving in this country. It's a big business now, Betsy says, with shows like the Ward Foundation's World Competition offering a first place prize of $30,000.

BETSY CAN COMPETE for the prize money this year, now that she's reached the professional level as a carver. But her newfound status doesn't mean she can afford to relax much.

"You have to duplicate each feature perfectly to satisfy the judges. And it's not all peaches and cream. Once I got so mad, I broke a tail right off. Then I had to do twice as much work inserting the tail feathers."

1985 will bring a whole new round of world, international and national competitions for Betsy Piper. She has to get moving, she says, since carvers can only show their birds for one year and her prize-winners will no longer be eligible for shows after April. "I'll get busy and hollow out that mallard and work on some other stuff for the shows this year."

Despite her busy schedule and the "when is this going to come to an end" thoughts that run around the back of her mind, Betsy says she wouldn't have missed a moment of the excitement since last April. And it's helped to have the support of a fellow carver who also happens to be her husband.

"Any tool I want he says, 'get it, do it.' It's great to have that kind of support."

Especially when she's heading into an even more hectic Year Two as Grosse Pointe's Famous Female Duck Carver. "I can pick and choose . . . there are so many art shows to do. And I look forward to the competitions. That'll be fun."

It'll be fun because Betsy Piper has come a long way from the day when a friend told her she'd be doing well to earn an honorable mention at the world competition. At least now they'll know who Betsy Piper is.

Armchair trip to Caribbean

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Adventure Series will visit the Caribbean next Tuesday, Jan. 29, via an 8 p.m. film preceded by an optional dinner featuring West Indian souse fish, hearts of palm and Chicken Breast Pierre glazed with currant jelly and orange juice on a bed of rice and mushrooms.

Admission to the film only is $4.15. The complete evening, starting with dinner served at 6:30 p.m., is $16.75 per person, including tax, tip and free parking. Additional information may be obtained by calling 881-7511.

Elegant Eating

A selection of recipes from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol — and penny-wise — collection of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth featuring, this week, a WONDERFUL WINTER LUNCHEON MENU.

HAM LOAF SUPREME

3/4 lb. ham
1/2 lb. veal
1/4 lb. very lean pork
2 eggs, well-beaten
3/4 cup soft bread crumbs
3/4 cup skim milk
Dash of pepper
2 tsp. prepared mustard
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/3 cup pineapple juice

Grind together ham, veal and pork. Mix in well-beaten eggs and crumbs, milk and pepper. Pat mixture into 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Combine mustard, sugar and pineapple juice; gently spread over ham loaf. Bake in preheated 350° oven about 1 1/2 hours, basting several times with juices that form. Makes 10 or more servings.

Calories for each of 10 servings about 182.

Cholesterol about 112 mgs.

CRESCENT HERB ROLL

1 can (8-oz.) refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
2 Tbsp. unsalted margarine
1/4 tsp. oregano
1 tsp. dried parsley flakes or 6 Tbsp. very finely-minced fresh parsley
1/4 tsp. dill weed
1/4 tsp. garlic powder

Separate dough into two long rectangles. Slightly overlap long sides to form a 12x7-inch rectangle; firmly press perforations and edges to seal.

Combine margarine, herbs and garlic powder and spread about 1 1/2 Tbsp. of the herb mixture evenly over the dough. Reserve remaining mixture.

Starting at shorter side of dough, loosely roll up; seal long edge. Place in ungreased 8x4-inch or 9x5-inch loaf pan. (Dough can be covered and refrigerated at this point for an hour or two). Bake in preheated 375° oven 20 to 25 minutes, or until deep golden brown. Remove from pan and brush with remaining herb butter. Serve warm. Makes 1 loaf or 8 servings.

Calories per serving about 127.

CRUNCHY TOMATO ASPIC

2 pkts. unflavored gelatin
1 cup cold water
1 clove garlic, finely-minced
2 cups tomato juice
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 Tbsp. sugar
Pinch of Vege-Sal
Dash hot pepper sauce
Dash pepper
1/4 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 stalk celery, thinly-sliced
1 small onion, finely-diced
1 green pepper, finely-diced
1/2 cucumber, diced

Sprinkle gelatin over cold water in 1 1/2-quart saucepan. Dissolve over low heat. Stir in garlic, tomato and lemon juice, sugar, Vege-Sal and seasonings. Chill gelatin mixture until partially set, about 40 minutes. Stir vegetables into partially set gelatin. Pour into five-cup mold and refrigerate until set. Unmold on lettuce leaves before serving. Makes 8 servings.

Calories per serving about 28.

CRISPY PEAR DESSERT

1 cup + 2 Tbsp. flour, divided
2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup + 1/3 cup sugar, divided
1 egg
2 Tbsp. unsalted margarine, softened
4 medium pears, cored, peeled and sliced (about 4 cups)
2 Tbsp. lemon juice
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. ginger
Whipped topping (optional)

Stir together 1 cup flour, baking powder and salt. Beat together 1/2 cup sugar, egg and margarine until smooth. Blend in flour mixture. Place pear slices in greased 8-inch square baking pan. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Stir together 1/3 cup sugar, 2 Tbsp. flour, cinnamon and ginger. Sprinkle over pears and toss. Drop batter by spoonfuls over pears. Bake in preheated 375° oven 35 to 40 minutes, or until topping is crisp and brown. Serve hot or cold, with whipped topping if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Calories per serving about 240.

Cholesterol 40 mgs.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

Sad but true . . .

Just when I think that the folks who participate in youth sports programs in this area are remembering that the sport is, after all, only a game, I get letters like this one:

An Open Letter to Peggy O'Connor

Dear Peggy,

As a hockey parent with a son playing for the Grosse Pointe Bandits Travel hockey team, one of Grosse Pointe's finest, I wish to express my displeasure at the conduct of the coaching staff of one of the Bandits' recent opponents.

The game was a close 0-0 contest going into the final minutes of the first period when the Bandits scored a disputed goal. The opposing coach then became so enraged at the referees that his team was assessed a bench penalty for unsportsmanlike conduct.

The coach continued his harassment and was finally ejected from the game. After the coach lost his composure, the players (9-year-olds) naturally followed his example. This turned what was a close game into a 5-1 victory for the Bandits as several uncalled-for penalties were assessed the opponents and the Bandits scored on their power play opportunities.

I am proud to be a hockey parent. I am proud to have my son play in Grosse Pointe for one of the finest coached (Jim Kendall, Ron Warezak, et al) and well disciplined teams. I hope this message gets through to other coaches (not only hockey) that kids follow by example and are very impressionable in their early years of sports. Remember that old adage: "It's not important if you win or lose, it's how you play the game."

Sincerely,
Al VanDeweghe

Mr. VanDeweghe should be commended for his excellent and timely letter. Unfortunately, his message has about as much chance of getting through to some of these folks as a snowball does in Haiti. I know, I've tried.

The problem is that people who are guilty of such behavior as depicted in Mr. VanDeweghe's letter are often the type of people who act that way in other aspects of their lives. The type of person who loses patience at slow drivers in the street, or at long lines in banks, or at having their newspaper delivered 10 minutes late. Why should coaching a kids' hockey team be any different? Why should what they consider a referee's bad judgement be any less a target for their anger?

Besides, people like that read a letter like Mr. VanDeweghe's and it will never occur to them that they are just that type. Not in a million years.

And you know what else? The people who can do something about folks like that by keeping them out of responsible positions in youth sports programs, are quite often ignorant of such behavior themselves . . . by choice. In one column this past summer, I described listening to a local baseball coach very openly and quite loudly advise his players to go into second base with their spikes "high."

And the reaction? Not quite what I'd expected. It ranged from "You must be mistaken," to "How dare you criticize our Grosse Pointe teams." And the ever popular "Why not print the good things the coaches do, not the bad." In general, the attitude was "Stuff like that doesn't happen in Grosse Pointe."

That's just my point. It does happen in Grosse Pointe. Mr. VanDeweghe's son is fortunate to benefit from excellent coaching. But Grosse Pointe certainly isn't immune from poor coaching and the type of behavior described in the letter.

A few years back, I watched a Bantam hockey game in Grosse Pointe, sitting in the stands with some parents. As the game got rougher and chippier, the general sentiment around me seemed to be "Oh, those kids from Westland are so dirty."

Were the kids from Westland fighting and high sticking themselves? I wondered. "Of course, our guys just can't back down," the parents said to me.

Why not? Why can't a coach pull his team off the ice when dirty play enters a game? Is winning, or even playing a game as important as teaching kids that such behavior shouldn't be part of sports? I don't think so.

I think Mr. VanDeweghe's response to what he saw was admirable. Maybe if enough people got upset over behavior like what he described, then coaches like that won't be able to influence kids anymore.

It's important to remember that it CAN happen here. Sure, we've had many fine coaches and excellent programs and those who have benefitted from those programs sometimes aren't aware that the potential for poor behavior on the part of coaches, players and parents does exist.

It exists when parents can get all hot and bothered over an opponent's use of a mascot. Or when they shout bitter cries of "unfair!" over the fact that a Grosse Pointe team actually has a Detroit kid or a St. Clair Shores player in its ranks. It exists when people can sit at a waterfront park and hiss — just barely under their breath — that they KNOW that some of the kids swimming in THEIR pool aren't Grosse Pointers. Unfortunately, I've witnessed each of these events.

Perhaps it's best to simply remember what Mr. VanDeweghe pointed out so clearly in his letter: that kids follow by example and are so very impressionable in their early years.

And we certainly don't want them getting the wrong impression, do we?

South basketball win streak ends at eight

By David Loffredo
South High

The streak is over!

After two months of perfect basketball, enroute to an 8-0 start, South's varsity basketball team fell to No. 10-ranked Mount Clemens, 69-57.

The Blue Devils seemed to put the game on ice early jumping out to a 15-6 lead, but the Bathers stormed back, outscoring South 10-0 to take a 16-15 lead. The teams traded baskets throughout the remainder of the first half, and South went into the locker room down by two, 27-25.

The third quarter put a South victory out of reach as Mount Clemens outscored the Devils, 25-8, and after the third quarter, South trailed, 52-33.

Al Ament (18 points) and Rick Whitney (10 points) tried to pull South back into it, but the Blue Devils lost by 12, 69-57.

The win left South second in the EML with a 2-1 league record behind Mount Clemens at 3-0 (9-0 overall).

JV tries to rebound

The Devils have just seven returning players from last year's frosch team and only three of those have playing experience. Additionally, South's average height is just 5-10.

"Our size and lack of experience are our downfall," said coach Al Devine. "But we are fast and the players have exhibited positive attitudes . . . we're improving."

A pleasant surprise, according to Devine, has been the play of front line guards Dave Caldwell and Scott Stafford. Caldwell has averaged 14 points per game, Stafford, 10. Strong forward Dave Arnold is also shooting the ball better and has been grabbing seven rebounds per game, Devine adds.

Devine notes that both Phil Keller and Kevin English are improving at the center position and that Tom Liliensiek, who moved into the starting lineup when Brady Kraushaar bowed out of action with mononucleosis, is playing very well. Brian Aardema, Craig Dembek and John Joliet have come off the bench to play well, Devine adds. Drew Brooks, Paul Cho, Taylor Lincoln and Chris Pettit round out the JV squad.

South's lone victory came at the hands of rival North High, 52-50. "Even though we played a great offensive and defensive game against North, we have played better against other teams but still lost the game," said Devine, who added, "if any team takes us lightly, they will be sorry."

Frosch are 4-4

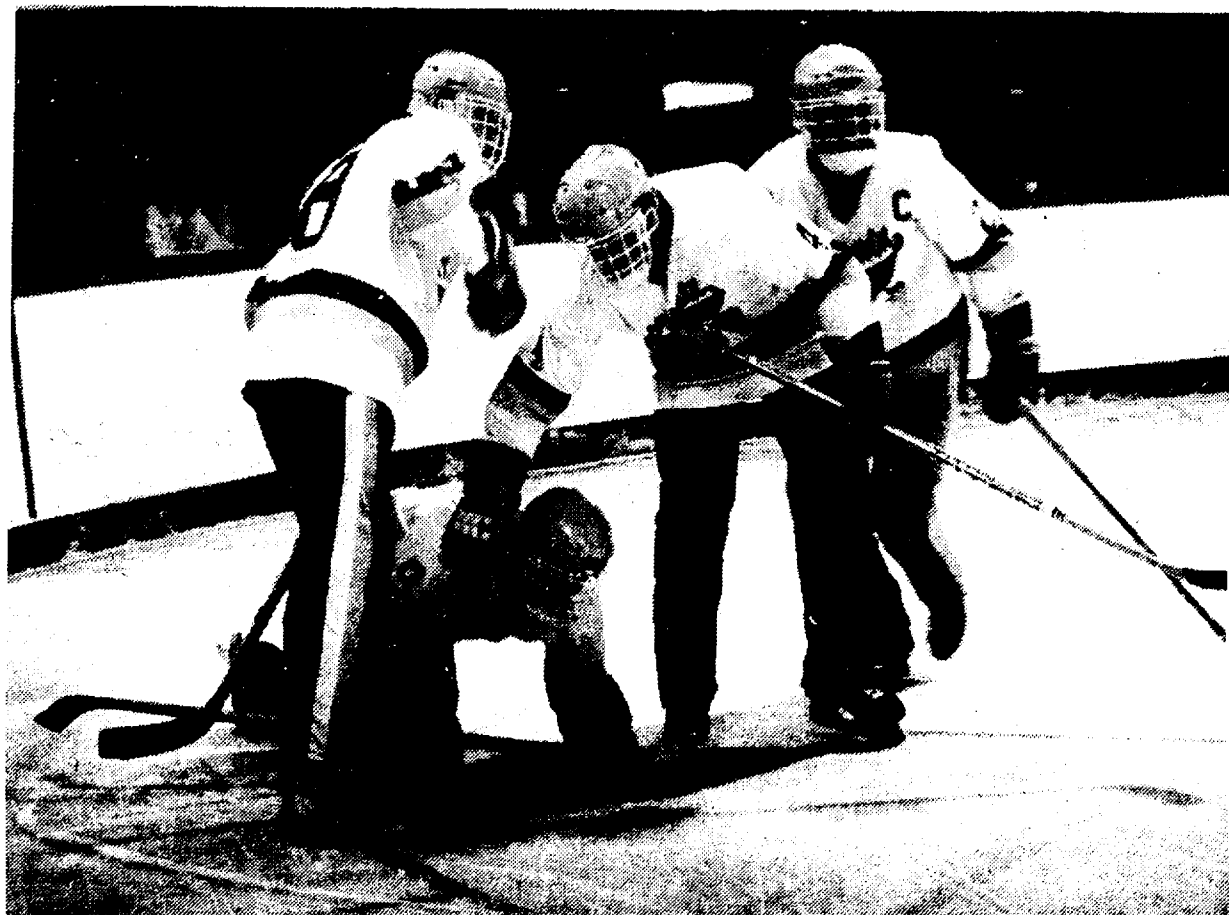

Grosse Pointe South's ninth grade basketball team ran its record to 4-4 with a win and a loss last week. The Blue Devils defeated East Detroit Oakwood, 44-34, on Jan. 15, then dropped a heart-breaking, 55-53 overtime decision to DeLaSalle, on Jan. 17.

Eleven South players scored against Oakwood, topped by Doug Lucas with eight points and six rebounds. Four points each were registered by Nick Saros, Mike Paull, Bryan Jones, Mike Finch, Matt Montagne, Dave Pocket, Andre Bielski and Jim Johnson. Pocket also collected seven rebounds. Chris Langs and Marty Saad added two points apiece.

Paull (19 points, six rebounds) and Lucas (18 points, eight rebounds) led the way against DeLaSalle. The Devils trailed most of the way, but outscored the Pilots, 16-6, in the fourth stanza, to tie it at 53-53 at the end of regulation play. DLS outscored South, 4-2, in the OT to take the decision.

Also scoring in the DeLaSalle game were Jones (eight), Saros (four), and Finch and Pocket (two each).

North High icers win fourth straight game in 1985

North High School's varsity icers have now won four straight games since the first of the year, running their record to 7-4 with recent victories over Saginaw Arthur Hill and Ann Arbor Huron.

At Saginaw on Jan. 12, the Norsemen spotted Arthur Hill a two-goal lead before roaring back to take a 4-2 lead after two periods and win the game, 6-4. North was playing without tough left winger Casey Quick, who broke his arm in the Jan. 9 game against South High; several other players were nursing minor injuries.

An outstanding effort came from the "kiddie corps" of talented sophomores Dan Spitz, John Henchel and Rob Koehler, each of whom contributed key goals. Frank Vento, Greg Henchel and Bob Alcott completed the scoring. North captain Greg Henchel led the playmaking with two assists; Tom Ugval, John Andary, Bob Rogers and Koehler each contributed one assist.

Ann Arbor Huron visited the Norsemen on Jan. 19 and the River Rats were completely dominated by North, 7-2, in a penalty-filled contest. Junior center John Russell was the offensive standout, scoring the hat trick and setting up a fourth goal. Sophomore goaltender Matt Dennis turned in another outstanding performance, repeatedly stoning Ann Arbor Huron scorers. North's defensive corps played one of its better games and is a primary ingredient in the team's improved performance. Captain Joe Cueter leads the blueline defenders, who include seniors Bob Rogers, Jon Spitz and Don Nicol, junior Bob Alcott and sophomore Dave Johnstone.

Russell started the Norseman attack early, converting a centering pass from linemate Kevin Tisdale. Minutes later, Russell fed Rogers at the corner of the net and North led, 2-0, taking advantage of a power play.

Ann Arbor Huron came back with a single goal to keep the game close at the end of the first period. But the second period was all Grosse Pointe as Russell tallied twice and Vento turned on the red light once to build a 5-1 North lead. Rogers, Tisdale, Greg Henchel and Jon Spitz earned assists.

The third period was the "Spitz Show" as first senior defenseman

Jon Spitz, then sophomore winger Dan Spitz, finished off the North scoring with a couple of pretty slap shots. Koehler and Johnstone set up the final goals.

The Norsemen now enter a crucial part of their schedule as they play top-10 rated teams from Catholic Central, Cranbrook, Fraser and Allen Park Cabrini in consecutive outings.

"The quality of the team's progress will surely be tested over the next several weeks," said head coach Mike Manzella. "If we continue to improve, we just might surprise some of the Metro League teams coming up."

North hosted Catholic Central on Jan. 23 (after press time) and travels to Cranbrook tomorrow, Friday, Jan. 25.

A new sail challenge

Great Lakes sailors can look forward to a new event this year: the Huron Doublehanded Challenge, set for July 6.

The group responsible for the popular Port Huron to Mackinac Island Singlehanded Challenge has come up with this event. The course is approximately 200 miles from Port Huron to Goderich, Ont., then up the lake to Rogers City, Mich. Organizers are providing for a large number of divisions to accommodate both racing and cruising classes. Yachts will compete within classes on a boat-for-boat basis.

In addition to traditional awards for performance, the organizers are planning special recognition in categories such as oldest combined age of crew, coed crews, father/son, mother/daughter crews, etc.

Entry fee for event is $60. Inquiries for the Huron Doublehanded Challenge as well as the annual Solo Challenge to Mackinac Island, may be sent to Phil LePage, race chairman, 604 Montrose, Royal Oak, Mich., 48073.

Three cheers . . .

... for the North High varsity cheerleaders who competed in the National High School Cheerleading Competition at the University of Michigan on Nov. 17. As first runners-up in the North Central Regional, they have received an invitation to compete at the National Cheerleading Championship set for Sea World in Orlando, Florida on March 2 and 3. Coach Linda Ritter will be taking her team to the nationals for the second year in a row. The varsity cheerleaders will be competing with winners from 14 Regionals plus 36 at-large teams. Team members are, from left to right, (back row) Cathy Weber, Chrissy Holt, Lori Houtekier, Terri Mott and Teresa Donahue; (middle row) Nichole Matuja, Michele Rauon and Julie Michalak; (front row) Laurie Soule and Lisa Ryan. Not pictured are alternates Molly Lock and Chrissy Miller.

Liggett spikers split a pair

The University Liggett School varsity volleyball team split two games recently. On Tuesday, Jan. 15, Coach Shelly Owens' spikers dropped a close contest to Harper Woods, but on Friday, Jan. 11, the Lady Knights trounced Academy of the Sacred Heart (ASH). In the 15-13, 15-9 loss to Harper Woods, Gillian Darlow, Kathy Bianchi and Cindy Paul turned in solid performances. The outstanding player in both the Harper Woods and ASH games was Barb Roman. "Roman was the key factor in the 15-6, 8-15, 15-12, 15-10 win over ASH," Ms. Owens said.

After a break for final exams, ULS hosts Plymouth Christian on Tuesday, Jan. 29, at 4:15 p.m. (By Cindy Paul).

ULS spikes Harper Woods

The ULS JV volleyball team played Harper Woods on Jan. 16, winning 15-9, 15-9.

It was the hardest match so far this season for Coach Theresa Durand's JV spikers. The games were long and filled with a lot of good rallies. Julie Ferris and Biz Renick each played well.

The team's next match is Tuesday, Jan. 29 against Plymouth Christian at home. (By Joanne Cruz).

JV cagers lose

The ULS JV basketball team lost its only game of the week, 55-47 to Huron Valley Lutheran. It dropped the Knights' record to 3-5.

A lethargic first quarter cost Coach Chuck Wright's team the ballgame. Huron Valley raced out to a 24-12 first quarter lead. The Knights cut the lead to four points twice late in the game, but the deficit was too much to make up. Kevin Darby had an outstanding scoring night, as he poured in 35 points.

The Knights travel to Oakland Christian on Friday, Jan. 25, for a 6 p.m. contest.

For the first time since early last season, the South varsity program has found itself in a new situation, with a sub-.500 team.

The South hockey team had some trouble last week, losing to Cranbrook (No. 1 in Class B) 6-1, and Trenton (No. 1 in Class A) 5-1. The two losses left South at 6-7 on the year.

"The Michigan Metro league is tough," commented coach Tim Zimmerman. "I'm not sure if our team is ready for it, but it's too late to turn back now."

The South varsity hockey team will vie for its first win in three starts against a slightly easier Lakeview team, this Saturday, Jan. 26 at home. Face off is 7:30 p.m.

JV cagers slide

South's JV basketball team had its troubles last week, losing both of its games and watching its record slide to 1-8.

The team began the week with a 37-35 overtime loss to Port Huron. Dave Caldwell paced the Blue Devils with 11 points as did Dave Arnold who also contributed nine rebounds and four assists. Tom Liliensiek and Scott Stafford also played well, contributing six and five points, respectively.

Later in the week, the team fell to an overpowering Mount Clemens squad, 74-49. Stafford paced the South attack with 16 points, while Caldwell contributed 14 and three assists in the losing effort.

The JV and varsity squads will continue their seasons tomorrow, Jan. 25 against Port Huron Northern. The JV game will begin at 6 p.m., while varsity tip off is at 7:45 p.m.

Spikers on track

The varsity volleyball team is back on the right track, winning both of its matches last week and improving to 4-1.

The netters began the week with a 15-2, 15-8 demise of Port Huron. Debbie Friedman served for 15 points, while Ann Schwarz led the offensive attack with 13 spikes.

Later in the week South beat Mount Clemens, 15-8, 15-12. Kerry Bruce paced South with 13 spikes while Schwarz added nine. Bev Zuelch served for 13 points in the winning effort.

The JV volleyball team improved with age last week, losing on Monday but bouncing back with two wins.

South opened the week with a 15-11, 15-8 loss to North High. Sarah Dolan was the leading server with seven points.

The next day, the spikers beat Port Huron, 15-6, 15-8, as Dolan again led the serving attack with nine points. Patty Hess and Shannon Burns each served for five points.

On Friday South beat Mount Clemens, 15-12, 15-6. Dolan again leads the serving department with seven points, including three aces.

Both team will continue the season tomorrow, Jan. 25, against Port Huron Northern. The away games will begin at 4 and 5:30 p.m.

The freshman volleyball team increased its record to 2-0 last week after beating Chippewa 15-3, 11-15, and 15-10.

Tankers split

The Blue Devil varsity swim team split its meets last week, raising its record to 4-2.

The swimmers opened with a 47-35 loss to Dearborn. Finishing first for South were the 200 medley relay of Jeff Clark, Rick Leonard, Matt Smith and David Bailey; Smith in the 100 butterfly, and Clark in the 100 backstroke.

Later in the week, South dismantled Brother Rice, 92-69. Winning for South were: Dickie Clarke in the 200 IM, Bailey in the 50 freestyle, diver Peter Nicholson, Matt Smith in the 500 freestyle, Leonard in the 100 freestyle and the 100 breaststroke, and Billy Thompson in the 100 backstroke. Clarke's 200 IM time qualified him for the State Meet in March.

The swimmers will continue their season this Saturday in the Speedo Invitational.

Wrestlers fall

South's varsity wrestling team saw its record slide to 0-4 last week, losing to Anchor Bay, 53-17. Dave Ludlow, Dave Morinelli, Frank Murray and Bill Thomas won for South.

Gymnasts win

The girls' gymnastic team upped its record to 2-1 last week, beating Ferndale, 110.45-89.35. Patti Lep-pala led South, placing first on the vault with an 8.0, second on the bars with a 7.7, and third on the floor with a 7.5.

Also placing for South were Cathy Trefzer, who took third on the vault with a 7.55, Jennifer Tyrer, who took third on the bar with a 7.3, and Gwynn Adik and Karen Howe, who finished second and third on the beam with scores of 7.45 and 7.4, respectively.

Ski race dates set

Cross country ski races at Freedom Hill are planned for 11 a.m. Sundays, Jan. 27, Feb. 3, 10, 17 and 24. (The Feb. 3 race is a race rescheduled from Jan. 20) Freedom Hill is located at 16 Mile and Schoenherr in Sterling Heights.

There will be competition in 11 age groups. Long sleeve shirts and medals will be given to all participants in the Feb. 3 event.

Further information may be obtained by calling Smetanka Enterprises at 792-4563 (evenings) or 979-8750 (days).

Sports people

Kenneth MacDonald, of Grosse Pointe Shores, received the Distinguished Alumni Service Award from the University of Michigan at the 1984 Michigan Football Bust in November.

MacDonald was graduated from U of M's School of Literature, Science and Arts in 1960. He was active in Chi Psi fraternity at U of M. After a tour of duty with the Air National Guard, MacDonald entered the insurance business and is presently a partner in MacDonald-Thomas Assoc., Inc. He was president of Michigan Alumni Club of Greater Detroit in 1977-78 and serves on the executive committee of the Board of Governors. In 1982, he was elected to the executive committee of the President's Club and this year, served as chairman of the nominating committee.

Grosse Pointe Eva Lucido returned to action in the Northwestern University women's tennis program in the Milwaukee Classic in early January. Lucido made her first Wildcat appearance since last spring after resting an injured shoulder during the fall. She paired with teammate Diane Donnelly to beat South Carolina's Rita Weinberger and Jennifer Renault, 6-3, 6-2, before falling to Pepperdine's Pam Jung and Elicia Fernandez, 6-1, 6-2.

Matthew Van-Tiem is a member of the Mount Union College swim team this winter. Van-Tiem, a sophomore business administration major at the Alliance, Ohio, college, was a national qualifier in the individual medley in 1984. He also swims backstroke for the squad.

He is a 1983 graduate of South High, where he was coached by Fred Michalik. VanTiem is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas VanTiem, of Village Lane. He has pledged Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity at Mount Union.

Dean Champagne, 31, of Lewiston Road, finished first in the "veteran class" (ages 26 to 33) in the 4K cross country ski race on Jan. 19 at Independence Oaks in Oakland County.

Champagne's 21:17 time was also good enough for seventh place overall, despite the 21-degree temperatures and a windchill factor of minus-15.

Blue Cross/Blue Shield sponsored the event.

Hunt Club hosts winter show

The Grosse Pointe Hunt Club will host the second Winter Mini-Prix and Jumper Show on Saturday, Jan. 26, at 1 p.m.

Competition classes will include Schooling Jumper, Low Jumper, Junior/Amateur Jumper, Open Jumper and the GPHC Mini-Prix. Each of these is governed by the current rules and specifications set forth by the American Horse Show Association and are judged accordingly.

Chairman of the show this year is Rosemary Gordon, and the GPHC Riding Committee will manage the event. The Mini-Prix is the second of three hosted by different clubs in the Detroit area and will include a $500 Leading Rider Award sponsored by the Michigan Hunter Jumper Association.

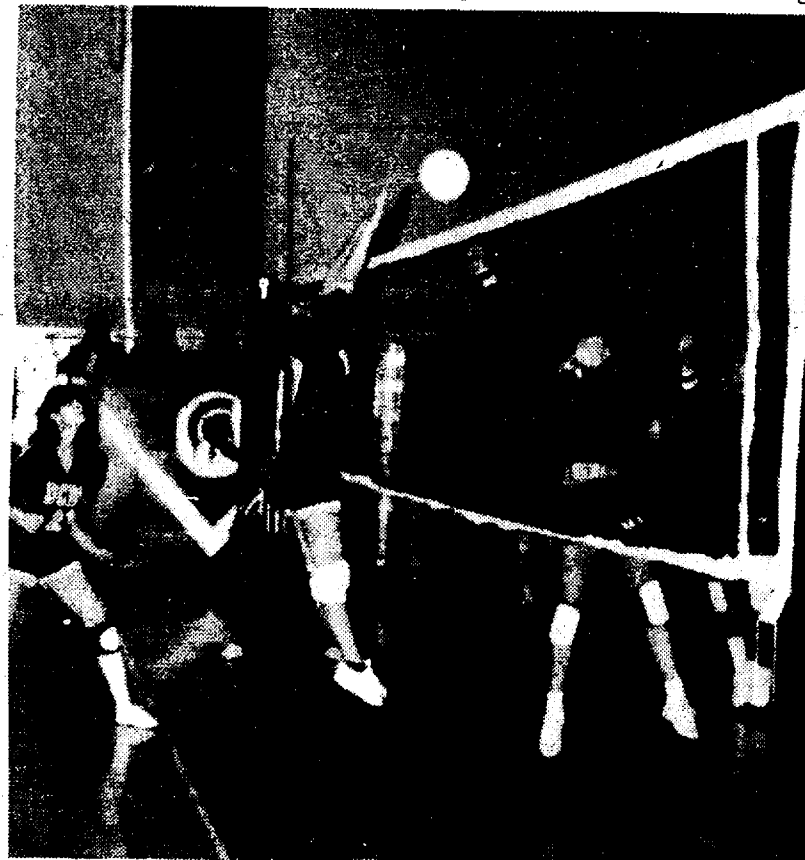

The Grosse Pointe Hunt Club is located at 655 Cook Rd., Grosse Pointe Woods. Admission for the show is $3 ($1.50 for children and senior citizens.) For further information call 881-1010.

GPSA plans poster contest

A soccer ball, soccer shoes and shin guards are the prizes offered for the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association's poster contest. Posters must be submitted to Barnes Community Education by Friday, Feb. 1.

Entrants should draw, color or paint a poster with a soccer theme and include the following information on the front: G.P.S.A. Spring Soccer registration for Under 8, Under 10, at Barnes, 20090 Morningside, Wednesday, Feb. 27, from 6 to 8 p.m.

Deadline for registration in travel soccer, Under 12 through Under 19 is Feb. 1.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. A.B.

RED WINGS-RANGERS

The Red Wings skated to a 5-2 win over the Rangers last Sunday. Brian Belanger opened the scoring for the Rangers before Marty Hage tied it up on passes from David Pulis and Lucien Hudson. Belanger gave the Rangers a 2-1 lead in the second period before the Wings came back on goals from Billy Crandall (two) and third period scores by Pulis and Chris Gibson. Hudson drew an assist. Edith and Francois Berube skated hard on defense. Goal-tenders Ryan Meier and Phil Descamps played well.

PENGUINS-RED WINGS

The Red Wings and Penguins played to an exciting 3-3 tie. After Penguin Mike Weyhing and Red Wing Hage exchanged first period goals, the score remained deadlocked until midway through the third period when Gibson scored for the Wings on a beautiful breakaway. Crandall then popped one in from close range to make it 3-1.

The Penguins stormed back on their final shift. First, Dave Gracey scored on a pass from George Christensen. Then with the goalie out in favor of an extra attacker, Justin Braun scored the tying goal with less than one minute remaining.

Red Wings Brian Fehling, Steven Andris and George Massu skated well, as did the Penguins' Brent Kuhar, Mark Campbell, Chris Amsden, Kenny McIntyre and Andy Scott.

PENGUINS-SEALS

The Penguins hustled past the Seals, 5-0, to remain undefeated in the second half. C-liner Weyhing notched two breakaway goals to lead the attack. A-liners Christensen, Braun and Dave Ferguson also scored; Jon Romine racked up his third shutout of the season in goal. Jamie McMillan, Shane Penczak, Billy Faber, Tom Waldron and Patrick Kerwin played well for the Penguins. Brian Brown, Joey Lucido and Tommy Kimmel turned in fine performances for the Seals.

Squirt Division

SABRES-BLACK HAWKS

The Hawks and Sabres skated to a 1-1 tie in a game highlighted by the outstanding goaltending of Black Hawk Michael DeNardis and Sabre Stephen Wesley. After two scoreless periods, Bill Cass' unassisted shot put the Sabres on top. Ryan Perkins converted a Mike Pitters shot to tie the game. Sabres John Maycock, Gabe Erickson and Mike Owens played well as did Black Hawks Peter Gracey, Peter Negler and Beau Dossin.

FLYERS-BLACK HAWKS

The Flyers skated past the Black Hawks, 2-1. Matt Spicer capped a fine passing play between Tom Best, Mike Gandolot and Jason Chevalier, to give the Flyers a 1-0 lead. In the second period, goalie Geoff Miller was tested repeatedly, with McCormick finally scoring on a pass from Sawaf. The Flyers won the game in the third period on a shorthanded goal from Kristian Hoglund, assisted by Peter Antonenko. Black Hawk goalie Ryan Perkins played a strong game. Robby Wiczorkowski and Antonenko played well on defense for the Flyers; Mike Ugval had two close chances for the Flyers.

Pee Wee Division

BLACK HAWKS-LIGGETT

Black Hawk goalie Jim Bunn gained his second shutout of the year when his squad shut out the Liggett Knights, 6-0, in their second meeting of the season. Renato Roxas opened the scoring on a feed from Scott Soule. Gabe Benvenuto added an unassisted goal before Roxas scored two more goals on assists from Peter Masouras (two). Greg Semack and Antonenko. Benvenuto added his own hat trick with two more goals, just seconds apart, each in assists from Kevin McCracken. Billy O'Keefe and Sweeney Samahala played well for the Knights.

BLACK HAWKS-MAPLE LEAFS

Defense was the key to this 1-1 tie between the Hawks and the Leafs. The Leaf defense of Scott Patridge, Juan Ganum and "Big John" McGlone stymied nearly every attempt of the high-scoring Hawks, while at the other end of the rink, the Hawks' defense of Danny Grundman, Antonenko, David Chute and Billy Wilson, thwarted the Leafs.

The Hawks took the lead in the first period when Soule slammed home Masouras's pass, but the Leafs shut the door on further scoring. Then at the six-minute mark of the third period, Scott Nesom grabbed a rebound from a scramble in front of the net on a shot by Gideon Redding and flipped it in over Bunn's shoulder to give the Leafs a goal and the tie.

LEAFS-NORTH STARS

The Leafs outscored the Stars, 3-2, in a close game. The Leafs had taken a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals from Ganum and McGlone, before the Stars tied it up on goals from Derek Smith and Paul Cavazos. Vince Palazzolo scored the game-winner in the final seconds. Jeff Osborne, Kevin Kirchner, Nesom and George Petersmark played well for the Leafs; Brian Dennis was steady in the nets.

Pee Wee A

The Grosse Pointe Sabres captured the Adray Christmas Tournament trophy last month by defeating Dearborn Heights, 5-1; tying Redford, 4-4; and beating Livingston, 3-2, and the Golden Knights, 1-0.

Against Redford, Chris Shtino opened the scoring for the Sabres on assists from Patrick and Andy Bond. Ten seconds later, Darryl Adair made it 2-0 from Patrick Bond. Bob Cass and Adair scored for the Sabres; the Bond brothers drew assists. Redford tied the game at 4-4 with six seconds left.

In the tournament's second game, the Sabres rode first period goals by Patrick O'Brien, Shtino and Ryan Oliver to a 5-1 win. After Dearborn Heights scored, Pat Pasegna and Patrick Bond put the game out of reach. Cass (two), Andrew Bond, Patrick Bond, Adair, Mark Sliwinski and Shtino drew assists.

Grosse Pointe earned a spot in the title game with the 3-2 win over Livingston. Sliwinski scored twice in the contest and Adair added the Sabres' other goal. The Bond brothers and Adair were credited with assists.

In the championship game on Dec. 31, the Sabres edged league rival Golden Knights on Chris Shtino's goal in the second period on a passing play from Patrick Bond and Adair. Kenny Shtino played well in goal for the Sabres. Mike Janish played very well against Livingston, as did Paul Karaban playing in place of Mark Schweitzer. Jason Erbecker and Brian Michalak were outstanding on defense, according to coaches Dan Adair and Bob Frushour.

Correction

An item in the Jan. 10 edition of Center Ice should have noted that the Mite Penguins were the first half champions as a result of a tiebreaking system.

Doubles tourney set

Wimbledon Racquet Club will host the second annual Art Van Pro/Am Men's Doubles Tournament on Saturday, Feb. 2, from 5 to 10 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 3, at 1 p.m. Among the pros scheduled to play, according to the tennis club, are Joe Fodell and Joe Shaheen.

Admission is $1 per person. Further information may be obtained by calling 774-1300.

ULS cagers top Academy

The University Liggett Middle School varsity basketball team began the new year with a convincing 42-13 victory over Grosse Pointe Academy, Jan. 10.

Bill Lucken led scoring with 14 points, followed by Anthony Abiragi's 13. Dan Shanley and Dike Ajiri contributed their usual strong defensive and rebounding skills.

ULS's record is now 6-1. Coach Josh Schmidt's cagers travel to Cranbrook on Friday, Jan. 18, for a 5:15 p.m. contest.
