Batter way up!

Time to let you all in on a little secret and give a pat on the back at the same time. There's been a bit of an addition to the sports section of our paper. If you turn to the Grosse Pointe Little League section, you'll see the silhouette of a batter at the top of the column.

That silhouette is none other than Grosse Pointe North baseball star Frank Vento, a senior at NHS and a shortstop on the North nine.

Here's how it all came about. At the beginning of the season, News sports editor Peggy O'Connor and I went over to North to do a story on their varsity baseball team. Peggy did the interviewing while I took the photos.

After getting shots of pitchers doing their stuff and shortstops stopping, I needed a shot of a batter. I wanted to make it artsy-craftsy, so I thought I'd shoot against the sun. Frank was the guy I grabbed, but we had a bit of a problem.

The sun was so high in the sky I would have had to lay down on the muddy field to position him against it, so instead we dragged over a trash container, turned it upside down, and Frank scrambled on top to pose while I shot and kept my trousers clean.

He was a pretty good sport about it too, staying up there holding his bat grimly in the air while his teammates tossed a few remarks at him.

Anyhow Frank, that stunning silhouette in the sports section is you.

Thanks for pranks

Boy, talk about the power of the press. In last week's Detroit Free Press east side section in the "Dateline" column, the Free Press reported (one week after us) that the students at South High had started the senior class prank season by moving out 200 oak chairs and 40 tables from the school cafeteria.

The Friendly then said things were quiet at North High School where "the annual prank usually involves stealing an eight-foot-tall fiberglass statue of the Big Boy from a local restaurant and displaying in on the school's roof."

Bingo! No sooner read than done. The very night the article appeared, Big Boy was taken — not once, but twice. Woods Police reported seeing a pickup truck screech out of the Mack Avenue restaurant at about 1 a.m. Friday morning with everyone's favorite hamburger helper in the back, covered by a tarp.

When the truck tried to make a quick turn onto Anita, Big Boy tumbled out the back and into the southbound lane of big Mack. The students were apprehended and BB was taken back to his rightful home.

Later that morning, at about 5:30 a.m., a Woods scout car touring the parking lot at North found another Big Boy, or perhaps the same one, over by the school. Officers also found a rope leading to the roof of the building.

Witnesses also reported earlier seeing a car hauling a trailer hightailing it out of the parking lot just before the cops arrived.

Shame on you, Free Press, for putting such ideas into those empty heads over at North!

Knapsacks and quacks

Actually, it's kind of getting to be the silly season all over in the Woods.

According to police reports, a woman called in recently to complain about a man walking down her street wearing a knapsack. Just a knapsack — nothing else.

The woman was unable to fur-

Charges turn election into recall rematch

By Mike Andrzejczyk

It was too good to last.

This year's quiet campaign for two seats on the Board of Education erupted last week with charges that candidate Carol Marr disguised her role in last year's recall efforts.

The charges were made by former members of Citizens Against Recall Efforts, the committee which supported three board members faced with expulsion from office for their vote to reorganize the school system and close Barnes.

Accusations of misrepresentation stem from the report that Mrs. Marr and her husband William contributed $25 each to the Committee For Responsible School Government, according to that group's post-election campaign finance filings.

The Committee For Responsible School Government had the same treasurer as the Committee For Neighborhood Elementary Schools/Recall. The responsible schools committee made contributions to the campaigns of William Brownscombe and Roger Mourad. Mourad, who lost his seat last June, was the only trustee to vote against reorganization. Brownscombe was a vice president of the Committee For Neighborhood Schools/Recall.

The Committee For Responsible

School Government in its political advertisements before the June 11 election last year endorsed Mourad and Brownscombe and called for a vote for recall.

"I just believe that someone who made a contribution has more than a passing interest" in the case involved, Henry Clay, organizer of CARE, said. "These efforts don't run without volunteers and financial support."

That the Marrs made the contributions the week before and the day of the election shows that they were involved, he added.

Mrs. Marr may be trying to dissociate herself with the recall because of the beating it took at last year's polls, Clay said.

The Marrs say their contributions were made to the campaign of William Brownscombe, not to the committee. For them to have been tallied with the finances of the committee was either a mistake or a misrepresentation, they added.

Although she signed a petition to get the reorganization matter on the ballot, his wife was very much opposed to the recall, Marr said. He was not involved in organizing parents at Richard Elementary School, as CARE members have also claimed, Marr added.

The contributions to Brownscombe's campaign were not for a recall leader, but for a good person who is fair, who is a friend of the family and respected for the positions he took on the issues, Mrs. Marr said.

Brownscombe said he has endorsed both Cindy Pangborn and Mrs. Marr and contributed to their campaigns. To his knowledge, Mrs. Marr had not played an active role in the recall campaign, but had said that the school reorganization issue should have been put before the voters, Brownscombe said.

Many people lumped the candidates together with the recall last year, something she hopes doesn't happen this year, Mrs. Marr said.

She makes no mistake about her position on the original school reorganization plan, which she said was flawed and presented poorly. She took to the podium Sept. 19, 1983 at a public hearing at Maire Elementary School attended by more than 400 people to voice her opposition.

She didn't plan on speaking that evening, but was incensed by comments that quality education depending on more students in buildings. "The more they talked about it, the more it troubled me," Mrs. Marr added.

The next year, she worked with the school system in developing its full-day kindergarten, part of her work with the Early Childhood Committee, Mrs. Marr said. Had she been active in the recall, she wouldn't have accepted the place on the committee, she added.

What last week's accusations have done is divide the candidates into two categories. Mrs. Marr and Mrs. Pangborn have been identified with last year's recall, while Dr. Ernest Buechler and Carl Anderson have become the anti-recall pair.

Buechler was one of the targets for recall. Anderson was a member of CARE.

Mrs. Marr, in discussing Brownscombe's candidacy of last year, said she knew a vote for him would not undo reorganization or reopen Barnes. She conceded that, had the recall passed, there was the possibility that a majority of like-minded people could have been elected.

One person who helped locate documents of the Marrs' financial involvement in last year's campaign is a campaign volunteer for Anderson in one of the districts.

Mrs. Marr claimed the charges have been brought now because her growing support from people on both sides of last year's controversy. The resurrection of recall will only reopen old wounds in the community.

Clay agreed, noting that it's possible that while some former recall workers are clustering around candidates perceived to be pro-recall, former CARE members and workers may be siding with the candidates perceived as anti-recall, redrawing the lines of last year.

While it's an attempt to lay guilt by association, recall should not be an issue in this campaign because recall is dead, Mrs. Marr said. Votes should not be cast based on candidates' positions on past issues, but how they stand on issues that affect the future of the system, she added.

One less mansion along Lake St. Clair

This was the view from Lakeshore Road last week as the wrecker's ball demolished the home of the late Eloise Webber, who died in 1982, leaving the house unoccupied since then. Located at 437 Lakeshore, the nearly six-acre estate is next to a nearly eight-acre parcel which formerly held the home of Henry Ford II. The 76-room Ford house was demolished earlier and 18 cluster-type homes are being constructed on the site. The Webber estate was purchased by 457 Lakeshore Limited Partnership, (comprised of Henry Ford and William Caldwell, of the Caldwell Equity Co.) and builders have indicated they hope to construct 16 more cluster homes on the grounds of the Webber estate in the future.

Public safety vote delayed

By Pat Paholsky

The Park council will vote on whether or not to consolidate police and fire departments at a special meeting Monday, June 17. A decision, which was expected at last week's meeting, was delayed to give council members time to discuss the concept with new Police Chief Richard Caretti.

The last public discussion of consolidation was held March 11. About 70 residents filled the meeting room then to listen to 2½ hours of pros and cons from members of the Citizens Commission on Public Safety.

The group, after a year-long study of the matter, had submitted a report to the council Jan. 31 recommending consolidation. The vote was 11-2 and the report contained a majority and minority opinion.

At last week's meeting, Councilman David Gaskin asked John Molinari, a minority voter on the commission, if it would be more efficient to have two departments, "if we had a clean slate and were starting all over."

"Even with a clean slate, I would rather see individual departments," Molinari said. "I feel if a person spends 50 percent of his time on one thing and 50 percent on another, he can't give 100 percent to that job."

"I happen to think people are differently motivated. A person can be absolutely fearless in going into a burning building, but when it comes to confrontation with a man with a butcher knife, that's something else," he added.

Mayor Pro Tem John Prost said that since the Park had two outstanding departments — fire and police — consolidation posed a problem. "The real solution is the consolidation of all five Grosse Pointes. No one has been able to step forward and get that done," he said.

Prost asked Stephen Wasinger, chairman of the commission and a majority voter, how he would answer people who feel it should be put to a vote.

"You are the elected officials," Wasinger said. "I don't see this to be suitable for referendum."

John Fildew, member of the commission and majority voter, said, "The cream of the crop is in public service. And we haven't overspent in this community. The best young people coming out of colleges and junior colleges now want the challenge of both jobs. Five or six years down the road, the first person at the door will be in a car."

"It's the wave of the future," Fildew added. "I suspect it will cost us more over time and it will cost us more immediately."

After more discussion, Molinari said, "The longer this debate continues, the more detrimental it is to the city of Grosse Pointe Park. I think the issue should be resolved — it's gone on too long."

Senator Kelly fights state death penalty

By Nancy Parmenter

A resolution to restore the death penalty in Michigan that squeaked by a Senate committee May 28 passed over the objections of state Sen. John Kelly (D-Detroit).

"I've always been opposed to capital punishment," Kelly said. "This is the worst possible thing to put before the electorate."

Kelly said his objections, in addition to being philosophical, stem from the fact that the wording of the resolution does not address the crimes which would be punishable by death. The resolution aims only to remove the prohibition against capital punishment from the state constitution. Michigan has not had capital punishment for 139 years.

"People would use a subjective test to evaluate (the proposal)," he said. "They wouldn't know what the statute would be. I would like to see the enabling legislation written first. The proponents want to phrase it as vaguely as possible."

Kelly said he had proposed an amendment to the resolution excluding criminals convicted on circumstantial evidence, but that it had failed in committee.

"Many of the worst, most heinous crimes are committed without witnesses. Wayne Williams, Charles Manson, John Wayne Gacy — I don't have any problem committing them for the rest of their lives. But there's no way to appeal from the grave," Kelly went on to point out that Gary Dotson, recently freed on a rape conviction after spending six years in prison, had been charged with a crime that was once punishable by death.

The vote of the five-member senate judiciary committee split 3-2, reflecting the party division in the Senate. The resolution is expected to come before the full Senate for a vote before adjournment in the second week of June.

"I've been counting the Senate votes," Kelly said, "and I think we have the votes to defeat."

A two-thirds Senate vote is required for approval. The recent death of Sen. Robert Welborn reduces the two-thirds requirement to 25 votes.

Sen. Kirby Holmes (R-Utica), the sponsor of the resolution, was feeling pleased to get it out of committee. He said this marks the fifth time he has presented the resolution, four times in the House and once in the Senate. The resolution has also received what Holmes called a "non-stop petition effort."

Of the 25 votes needed, "my head count is 22. There's going to be a high degree of taking a walk," Holmes said, in reference to the five or six senators he expects to stay away from the voting in an effort to remain publicly uncommitted on the hot political issue.

Holmes said he had purposely not prepared enabling legislation for the voters because it would be too confusing. "It comes to the psychology of voting in the booth," he said. "The simpler you can make it, the better chance you have. Rather than stick a statute on the ballot, we would prefer to change the Constitution."

He rated the chances of passage in the Senate in the category of "miraculous" and in the House as "next to zero," but said the petition drive he is working on with Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson will be their "ace in the hole."

By Nancy Parmenter

A proposal for a youth assistance program similar to those now in effect in many Wayne and Oakland county communities is making the rounds of the Pointes' city councils under the guidance of Woods Municipal Judge Patricia Schneider.

Judge Schneider, who is sponsoring the idea along with Park Councilman Vernon Ausherman, said she hopes to have completed presentations to the five Pointes and the school district by the first part of July. If the communities agree to fund the $55,000 pilot project, a program could be in place by the time school starts.

"The idea has been around for a long time," Judge Schneider said. "I've been aware of the need for about three years."

During that period, she expended energy trying to convince Wayne County to provide the Pointes with a referee through the juvenile court system. Judge Schneider said she renewed those efforts in late 1984, when she and Ausherman again discussed the idea with Wayne juvenile Judge Gladys Barsamian.

"Again, we talked about referees, because that was the only thing I knew about — and she suggested this. The idea really grew during the last six months."

"The idea" is to provide an alternative to the present juvenile justice system by offering counseling in an effort to head off serious misbehavior. Judge Schneider said that most judges and law enforcement officers feel that young people scoff at the system.

"They are just being warned and released," she explained. "The children get to know this and they don't take it very seriously."

Farms Police Chief Robert Ferber put it more strongly when the proposal was presented to the Farms council May 20. "This will put some teeth back in the psychology of punishment," he said. "The kids laugh at us now when we say we'll send them to juvenile court."

Ausherman and Judge Schneider are recommending that the communities fund a three-year pilot program to be directed by the Grosse Pointe probation department. Utilizing the department is intended both to provide professional guidance and to reduce start-up costs. Up to 100 youths, referred to the program by the police, the schools, or themselves, will receive counseling. The program is not intended for serious offenders who have already been referred to juvenile court.

If the program functions like the Livonia model on which Judge Schneider said she had based her proposal, it will provide trained volunteer counselors to work one-on-one with the youth. Volunteers would also fill clerical positions and staff a speakers' bureau.

The Livonia program, which has operated for three years, served 132 clients during fiscal 1983, requiring all of them to participate in life management skills classes to learn problem-solving, communication and a better self-concept. Other features of the program are court visitation, which lets the youth see sentencing and discuss it with a judge; community work service, to provide restitution to the community; and counseling referral to agencies such as Alcoholics Anonymous.

A report produced by Livonia program evaluators states that 91.5 percent of the youth in the program have not had further contact with the police or juvenile courts during the six months following their release, the period during which they are statistically most likely to get into trouble again.

Judge Schneider asked Suzanne O'Shea, the chief probation officer for the Grosse Pointe probation department, to prepare a budget and plan for the three pilot years of the proposal. Ms. O'Shea estimated the cost for 100 youths for one year at $55,322.

"I'm willing to do this for them for a pittance because I believe in it," she said.

The Pointes had a similar program during the late '70s. Ms. O'Shea said the annual budget for that program was $126,000.

"They want us to run it economically" (Continued on Page 19A)

The race is on

Nominating petitions for several offices in Grosse Pointe Park are now available at the city clerk's office, 15115 E. Jefferson.

Officials whose terms expire this year are Mayor Palmer Heenen, council members Carroll Evola, Patricia Forster and Mark Valente III, and Municipal Judge Beverly Grobbel.

Deadline for the petitions, which require a minimum of 25 signatures, is 4 p.m. on Tuesday, June 18.

If more than two candidates file for any office, there will be a primary election in August, according to Clerk/Comptroller Nunzio Ortisi.

Vehicle ID at Eastland this weekend

In a community relations effort, Eastland, Hudson's and AAA Michigan are cooperating to provide a free-of-charge Vehicle Identification Number (VIN) Etching Program to motorists.

The VIN program, aimed at Michigan's fastest growing crime — auto theft — will be offered 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday, June 5 through Saturday, June 8, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, June 9 in parking section 36 at Eastland.

Vehicle identification consists of etching the vehicle's registration number into the windshield, back and front wide windows. The etching process, which takes about 10 minutes, does not harm the window or detract from the vehicle's appearance. A small sticker in the corner of each front side window announces to would-be thieves that the vehicle has been protected.

Etching lanes will be cooperatively manned by mail personnel and Hudson's employees. A minimum of six people at each center will be assigned to the service, with additional stand-by workers available for periods of peak demand.

Directions to etching lanes will be posted in the Hudson's parking lot at each mall. The service will be offered only in dry weather and in temperatures between 60 and 85 degrees.

Home health aide course offered

Prompted by an increasing need in the community for home health care services, the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross is offering a new course titled Home Health Aide. The course will train individuals in the skills needed for employment as a home health aide with an agency specializing in home health care.

The first class begins June 24. The 80-hour course will require four hours of class participation five days a week for four weeks. The course fee is $125 per person. For more information or to register, call 494-2875 or 494-2876.

Park chief hears concerns

By Pat Paholsky

Richard J. Caretti, newly appointed Park police chief, took some hard questions at last week's council meeting in which his appointment was confirmed, and answered them unequivocally and, at times, with humor.

About 80 people crowded into the meeting room and others stood in the hall. The large turnout was due in part to a flier that had been distributed to homes that weekend urging citizen participation. There was also another item on the agenda, the consolidation of the city's police and fire departments, that has raised considerable interest.

Caretti sat in the audience as City Manager John Crawford formally announced his appointment and concluded that Caretti "was exceptionally well qualified for this position."

Stephen Wasinger, chairman of the citizens committee that reviewed applications and interviewed candidates for the position, said Caretti "was not only the preferred applicant of the technical committee, he was the preferred candidate unanimously of the citizens committee." The technical committee consisted of law enforcement officials who also screened applications and interviewed candidates.

Their final recommendation were then submitted to City Manager Crawford who conducted his own interviews.

Wasinger said the purpose of both committees had been achieved. Caretti was then invited to sit at the front table to answer questions from council members and residents.

Referring to the flier that had been distributed to Park residents, Council David Gaskin asked Caretti if the charges it made were true.

"It says you're too old, that 59 is too old and that you're looking for a soft position in this community."

"First of all, I'm only 58," Caretti replied. "I think age is relative. There's chronological age and biological age and I prefer to think of myself as a young 58."

"If I were looking for a retirement haven, I'd stay where I'm at," he added.

He said later, in response to another question, that he has been eligible for retirement from the Detroit Police Department for eight years. Asked what his current retirement plans were, Caretti said he had none. "I'm an active person."

The mandatory retirement age of a police chief in the Park is 70. In response to a question from Councilman Vernon Ausherman regarding his personal views on affirmative action, Caretti said as a police chief he would be duty-bound to enforce the Constitution of the United States and the laws of the state of Michigan.

He added, "I can think of no reason why there would be any need for affirmative action in Grosse Pointe Park."

In answer to Mayor Pro Tem John Prost who asked what he planned to do first, Caretti said he would get acquainted with all of the officers and determine what type of talent was available.

"I'd also establish crime prevention programs," he said. "Detroit has been extremely successful and I'm an advocate. Police departments acting alone don't solve the problem."

In a later phone interview, Caretti said Detroit is recognized nationally and internationally as a leader in its crime prevention programs. The program consists of block clubs, CB patrols, apartment, business, high-rise and neighborhood watches, property identification and other programs.

Asked by Mayor Palmer Heenan what his thoughts were on public safety, Caretti said they were positive. "All over there's a budget crunch. Your challenge is to make more effective use of personnel and it seems to me that in the concept of public safety, you would be accomplish this."

Gaskin moved to confirm the appointment and members were polled individually. All of the members voted for confirmation except for Ausherman, who said he was in favor of a younger man and someone who was better versed in fire-fighting.

Caretti will begin his new job Thursday, June 13.

Caretti has years of police experience

The new Park police chief began his career in law enforcement in 1953 as a police officer in Detroit's Fifth Precinct. It was his first job after serving two years in the U.S. Army.

Richard J. Caretti

Richard Caretti then moved up in the ranks on the Detroit force, serving as detective, detective sergeant, lieutenant, inspector, commanding officer, deputy director of police personnel, and in 1984, was named commander of the Third Precinct.

During this period, he earned a bachelor's degree in management and marketing in 1958 from the University of Detroit. In 1968, he received a master of science degree in criminal justice administration from Michigan State University. He also completed the Personnel Testing Program at General Motors Institute in 1969.

He is a part-time adjunct professor in the criminal justice program at both Wayne State University and Mercy College. He was also an instructor in police administration at Schoolcraft Community College and a substitute teacher in the East Detroit school district.

Born in St. Boniface, Pa., he attended St. Ambrose School in Grosse Pointe and graduated from St. Philip Neri High School in 1944.

During his confirmation hearing, Caretti said, "I've lived on the fringes of Grosse Pointe all my life. I look forward to the challenge and the opportunity to serve this community."

He and his wife Doris have four daughters and two sons. The family will be moving to the Park since it is a requirement for employment.

Here's hoping Leonard has a fireplace

Go ahead, just ask Leonard Fasulo, of Nottingham Road, what's new over at his place. What's new is the big empty space in his front yard where this giant elm tree used to stand. According to Fasulo, it wasn't toppled by the high winds we had recently, but just sort of keeled over on its own. He told our roving photographer he had recently reported to the Park DPW that the tree was bucking his front sidewalk and might possibly be leaning toward his house. That night, just before sundown, the tree slowly toppled forward, resting on the home. Luckily, no one was injured and the tree was cut up and removed within a day.

Anchors aweigh for GP female

Christina Johnson

In an interesting twist, just as Pointer Joey Johnston, the area's first woman appointed to West Point, was forced to turn down that appointment, Christina Johnson of the Farms was graduating from the Naval Academy. She is the first woman from the Pointes to attend Annapolis.

Miss Johnson was one of 1032 midshipmen to toss up their hats in the traditional ceremony. "Reagan shook all those hands," her mother, Mrs. Basil Johnson, said. "Some of the middies were pretty enthusiastic — I'll bet he had to soak his hand afterwards."

Miss Johnson graduated near the top 10 percent of her class and twice made the Superintendent's and Commandant's list. She was active as company and battalion commander and served as female ombudsman to the Commandant for three semesters. She graduated with a bachelor of science degree in economics.

All midshipmen are required to participate in one of the 63 varsity and intramural sports at the Academy. Miss Johnson sailed with the varsity dinghy team and played intramural tennis.

Right after graduation, the new ensign headed for Europe on a Navy cargo plane for some relaxation before her first assignment with Commander Fleet Air in Keflavik, Iceland.

M-Star may open up school channel

By Mike Andrzejczyk
Public and non-public school officials met this week with representatives from the Wayne Intermediate School District and the Archdiocese of Detroit to put together a workshop to help teachers learn to use educational cable television program in the classroom next school year.

Grosse Pointe Cable will begin televising M-Star, programming provided by Central Education Network and paid for with a grant from the state Department of Education, by mid-August on Channel 19, the local education access channel, school and company officials say.

Earlier this month, member schools of the Association of Non-Public Education Community decided to receive the M-Star signal over Grosse Pointe Cable, according to AN-PEC president Brother Glenn Neiner, principal of Bishop Gallagher High School.

For its part, the cable company agreed to wire Notre Dame and Regina high schools to hook them to the system, cable General Manager Michael DuFour said.

With Grosse Pointe's agreement to pick up the M-Star signal, the AN-PEC schools will not receive antennas from the archdiocese to pick up the signal directly at the schools, Neiner added.

A meeting has also been scheduled between the sub-committee of the Cable Advisory Board formed to study M-Star and the representatives of College Cable, DuFour said. The meeting is to try to determine how many people are actually using the cable college programs, he added.

M-Star is scheduled to begin transmission on Channel 19, while College Cable will be moved to 21, where it will share the channel with Pro-Am Sports System, DuFour said.

The workshop will give teachers an idea of the programming that will be available for their use next school year and how they can use it to supplement classroom instruction, school officials said. The professionally produced programming will be available from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and schools will have one-year recordability rights, they added.

One benefit of the M-Star signal on Channel 19 will be the opening up of the channel to programming developed and produced by the local public school system in Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods and the AN-PEC member schools.

Tentatively, M-Star will be televised from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., with a character generator used from 3 to 6 p.m. From 6 to 9 p.m., the programming produced by the local schools will be aired. The character generator will also be used from 9 p.m. to midnight.

With the possibility of more hours of cable space available for their programs, AN-PEC and Harper Woods schools are hoping to increase the amount of programs they develop.

Grosse Pointe public schools program is in limbo, however. The district this year has 11 1/2 staff positions devoted at least partially to cable television production. With the elimination of the assistant to the superintendent post held by Bruce Kefgen, the program is without a director and has lost two-thirds of its staff.

Who will head the public school system's programming next year has yet to be determined, according to Superintendent John Whritner. Local production of programs is one area he has carved out for himself to learn more about over the summer, he added.

At least one non-public school official said it appears that Kefgen's removal from the assistant to the superintendent post will mean a backing-off of Grosse Pointe's development of local school programming.

While Grosse Pointe's program remains headless this summer, both Harper Woods and AN-PEC representatives say their production teams are ready for next year.

Last week, AN-PEC officials were to meet to discuss a variety of cable-related topics, including the hiring of a consultant to coordinate a system-wide cable club for non-public school students.

Because of the small number of students at each school who are interested in cable television production, the association decided to use a consultant to pull together students from all the schools into a single production team, according to Neiner.

Besides being an educational opportunity for the students in the technical aspects of production and editing, the team, with the help of Grosse Pointe Cable, will be getting hands-on experience by developing programs for cable, according to Phillip Moss, upper school drama teacher at University Liggett school and former president of AN-PEC.

By pooling the resources from across the system, AN-PEC should be able to produce a weekly news format show that will spotlight some of the goings-on in each of the schools, Moss said. The show will not only get parents interested because they will be able to watch their children or school on television, but it will also get the non-public schools' message out into the community he added.

Besides the commitment to weekly program production, a number of special events will be available for televising, Moss said.

The non-public schools now regularly produce or are involved in a number of shows, including "Steady Gains" and Sports Rap, with anchorwoman Fay Howenstein, from University Liggett School.

Harper Woods public schools have already committed to producing five programs next year with the help of Grosse Pointe Cable, Elizabeth Parravano, coordinator of the schools' cable internship program said.

Although Harper Woods schools have no budget or equipment of its own, a core of students and three advisers have produced a number of programs this year as well as being featured on other local cable shows.

Mrs. Parravano, Dora DeMarco and Marie VandePutte, media specialists at the high school and elementary school respectively, work with Paul Dalecke, Jim Thomas, John Gallagher, Stephanie Hakim, Karla Callender, Barbara Carr and Amy Bonner to produce segments of Harper Woods Highlights, a news show featuring Harper Woods schools.

Through the cable company, the students learn the technical end of cable programming and have an opportunity for at least one studio shooting each year.

Besides Harper Woods Highlights, the students have written and produced programs featuring high school principal and Harper Woods Mayor James Haley, school Superintendent Arthur Toth and a discussion of a millage election, Mrs. Parravano said.

The program currently is handled as an extra curricular activity, with the students taking classes from the cable company, Mrs. Parravano said. Because of the district's size, there isn't much extra money to go around, she added. The district hopes to begin developing an equipment base.

The students are committed to their work, and the administration and staff have been supportive of the program as well, she said. Some of the school board members have also appeared on programs, she added.

The program offers students a chance to learn the technical aspects of the cable television field as well as get some experience for possible careers in mass media, Mrs. Parravano said. Grosse Pointe Cable has been very good to the school system by making its equipment and expertise available for the students' use, she added.

"With equipment, it would be so much easier," Mrs. Parravano said. "There are limits to what we can do."

The students have improved since beginning their work with cable, she said, adding, "it's not Channel 7, but it's a learning experience for them."

Farms adopts $5.9 million budget

By Nancy Parmenter
The $5.9 million budget adopted by the Farms council May 20 will be balanced without raising taxes, a situation of which the council may be "justifiably proud," City Manager Andrew Bremer said. The Farms' property tax rate will remain at 13.2 mills.

A public hearing held prior to the adoption of the budget netted only a request from Woods Municipal Judge Patricia Schneider to include funding for a youth assistance program. After listening to her presentation, the council decided to wait to hear the responses to the proposal from the other communities and the school district and then consider funding the request through the Farms' contingency fund.

Bremer's letter to the council stated that the city is maintaining a frugal mode. "The departmental budgets do not include all items or programs desired by individual department heads," he wrote. "To their credit, each department head responded to my appeal for general belt-tightening and maintained their operational requests to a necessary minimum."

In spite of anticipated cuts in the federal revenue-sharing program, the city expects revenue increases for 1985-86. Increased license fees are expected to boost the city's share of state highway funds by $45,000. Cable television revenue is up two-thirds, owing to rate increases and maturity of the system, Bremer said. Boat mooring fees will increase if the recommended 10 percent hike is enacted.

The city has taken what Bremer called "a middle road" on federal revenue sharing and budgeted only half as much as normal. Nevertheless, Bremer wrote, total revenues are up and will enable the city to balance the budget without raising taxes.

Bremer called attention to several unusual items in the budget. This year the Farms has allotted $200,000, almost twice the usual amount, for its street paving program, in a move to "aggressively address" some of its public improvement needs.

Old Kerby School will be torn down and used for parking. Controller Carrol Lock said that approximately $30,000 in block grant money is available for the project and that the city has allotted an additional $40,000 if it proves necessary.

"We haven't torn down very many schools lately," Lock said. "We don't know what to expect. The unknowns are substantial and sometimes they're expensive." The city has not yet received bids on the project.

The Farms replaces police and administrative cars on a two-year cycle. Each year the city purchases five vehicles and trades them in after two years.

Sidewalk snow plowing continues to be a problem. Lock said that some of the Jeeps the Farms is now using date to the '60s, although they have been refurbished with new transmissions and motors in the interim. The city has kept them because they fit on the narrow sidewalks, Lock said. At this point, the Department of Public Works is eyeing two four-wheel drive diesel-powered vehicles as replacements at an approximate cost of $15,000 each. Bids will be let this summer.

What the budget will not cover could have significant impact, Bremer said. One of the major unknowns is collective bargaining. Police contracts expire at the end of June. Arbitration with firefighters remains unresolved. "Consequently, the 1985-86 budget year would be impacted twice as hard if an arbitrator should award an unexpectedly high wage and benefit package," Bremer's letter stated. City insurance costs show "ominous signs" of increasing.

The city has still not been assessed for its portion of the Fox Creek facilities plan, an amount ranging from $22,000 to $54,000, depending on how the costs are spread.

No one knows at this point when or how much electrical power rates will "increase" when Detroit Edison's Fermi plant comes on line. "They're talking about a 20 percent increase," Lock said. "This could be a very big blast."

Lock said the new budget allots $325,000 for street lighting, an increase of approximately 15 percent, in anticipation of the Edison hike. He said sewage pumping is also heavily affected by electrical rates and has been increased from $140,000 to $175,000.

A fund for major and extraordinary expenditures, which includes the contingency fund, contains $474,050. Any budget overruns or expenditures not planned for inclusion at the time of adoption, such as the proposed youth assistance program, would have to come from this fund.

"It's just like your home budget -- you set aside $500 for unexpected expenses and the day after you make the budget, the telephone company raises the rates," said Lock. "You just hope you've set aside enough." During 1985, $375,000 was allocated to the extraordinary expenditure fund. City figures project spending $460,000 by June 30.

A not-so-quiet campaign

"What a difference a year makes in public attitudes about the annual Grosse Pointe school board election."

That was the first paragraph in last week's editorial in the Grosse Pointe News comparing the "fairly quiet" campaign for the June 10 election this year with last year's controversies over school reorganization, the resignation of Superintendent Kenneth Brummel and the attempt to recall three school board members.

But apparently the News spoke too soon.

The News had no more than hit the street with its endorsement of Ernest Buechler and Carol Marr for the two positions to be filled June 10 than people began to take issue with the paper's opinions and especially the conclusion that "no major differences have emerged" among the candidates.

The contention was made that the two men running for the board, Dr. Buechler and Carl D. Anderson, opposed last year's recall attempt while the two women, Mrs. Marr and Cindy Pangborn, supported it.

In her candidate interview, Mrs. Pangborn told the News that she had supported the recall to give the people the right to exercise their option to oppose the board's policies on reorganization and closing schools. Mrs. Marr told the News she had not played an active role in the recall campaign on either side and expressed the hope that the issue is now in the past.

But an Anderson campaign worker called to the News' attention the campaign finance report filed by the Committee for Responsible School Government with the Wayne County clerk's office that shows that Mrs. Marr and her husband last year contributed $25 each to the committee. This organization, among other campaign activities, placed an ad in the Grosse Pointe News urging a "yes" vote on the recall issue and supporting Roger Mourad and Dr. Bill Brownscombe for the board.

When asked about the contribution this week, Mrs. Marr said she had supported Brownscombe for the board and the contribution listed in the report was made at a fund raiser on his behalf. She reiterated that she had "not played an active role" in last year's campaign and, in fact, opposed the recall because she felt it was not the appropriate route to take. Dr. Brownscombe backed Mrs. Marr's version, saying she did not play an active role on either side last year and had preferred a referendum on the school reorganization issue.

Asked specifically about the apparent contradiction between her opposition to recall and her support for a candidate favoring it, Mrs. Marr said she had viewed the 1984 campaign as composed of two separate elements: one, the attempt to recall three board members and, the other, the contest among five candidates for the two board seats. She supported Dr. Brownscombe for the board, she said, because he is a family friend, a good person whom she respects and a candidate who would have made a contribution.

Whether giving $25 to a candidate supporting recall constituted playing "an active role" in the campaign may be a matter of interpretation. But the fact such a contribution was made, even though apparently to support an individual rather than to support the recall campaign, does indicate participation in the campaign to an extent unknown by the News at the time last week's editorial was written.

The larger question, of course, is whether making a contribution to a candidate supporting recall should disqualify a candidate from seeking wider support this year. Obviously, it should not. Issues change and so does the public's perception of them. This newspaper had hoped that the controversies spawned by the recall campaign last year could be avoided this year and it still hopes the recall will not be regarded as the major issue on June 10. It is, after all, behind us. It is last year's news.

But in view of the fact that the News has supported the board's reorganization plans most of the time and opposed last year's recall campaign against three board members, this newspaper wants to make clear its general backing for the board's policies and for candidates who support them. That doesn't mean the News will be a rubber stamp for the board and superintendent in the future any more than it has been in the past. But it does mean the News sees the election as a kind of referendum on board policies, which, as this newspaper said at the time, were strongly supported by the defeat of the recall and the election of two pro-board members a year ago.

We are aware that different people will have different interpretations of the developments of the past week, just as they have different views of what really happened last year. The News reiterates its view that the Pointes are fortunate in having four excellent candidates for the school board in the June 10 election. It reiterates its support for Dr. Buechler, the only incumbent in the running, and, while repeating its endorsement of Mrs. Marr, it makes an additional comment:

We were as troubled as many other citizens when we were first informed about Mrs. Marr's 1984 contribution to the committee supporting recall. That action seemed to contradict her statement to us that she had not played an active role on either side in the 1984 campaign. But after several interviews with Mrs. Marr, we are satisfied with her explanation of her 1984 position. And so we think it is now time, in the few days remaining, for the prospective voters to concentrate on the current issues as outlined by the four candidates last week in their interviews in the News and in several public forums.

The proposed tax reform

President Reagan's tax reform program is probably the nation's major topic of conversation this week — but that does not necessarily mean that everyone agrees with all parts of it. In fact, the reactions usually are subjective: How does the new plan affect my taxes? So far the answers appear to be almost as numerous as the people expressing their opinions.

We normally think of taxes as providing the revenue to run our governments at the federal, state, regional and local levels. Thus the average taxpayer in Grosse Pointe pays taxes to the federal government, the state government, the city in which he lives (and, if he works in Detroit, to that city as well), the Grosse Pointe school district, Wayne County, Wayne County Community College, the Huron Clinton Metropolitan Authority and the Wayne Intermediate School District for special education.

Our taxes go to support services to the general public or to groups of people who for one reason or another require government assistance. But tax laws also serve other social and economic purposes as well. For example, tax laws provide special support for families through the exemptions for dependents, through the deduction of mortgage interest on homes and through the partial exemption of Social Security and unemployment benefits from taxation. Other tax laws have benefited business and industry by providing tax incentives for investments, permitting accelerated depreciation of facilities and authorizing deductions for business entertainment and other business-related expenses.

Tax laws also permit the issuance of tax-free bonds by state and local governmental units to reduce the cost of government and the taxes that support them. Tax laws exempt many low-income people from paying any income taxes and maintain low rates for those whose incomes remain low but within taxable limits. And tax laws permit deductions of contributions to churches and charities such as those represented in the Torch Drive in order to provide incentives for greater voluntary support that reduces the drain on public agencies.

These examples indicate that provisions calling for different treatment of different income groups and different kinds of income often are written for good social and economic purposes. But the proliferation of exemptions, deductions, special provisions, tax shelters and tax loopholes in recent years has reached monumental proportions. One result has been that many people have lost confidence in the tax system on the grounds it often showed favoritism and permitted tax relief for those who knew how to use and manipulate the tax laws.

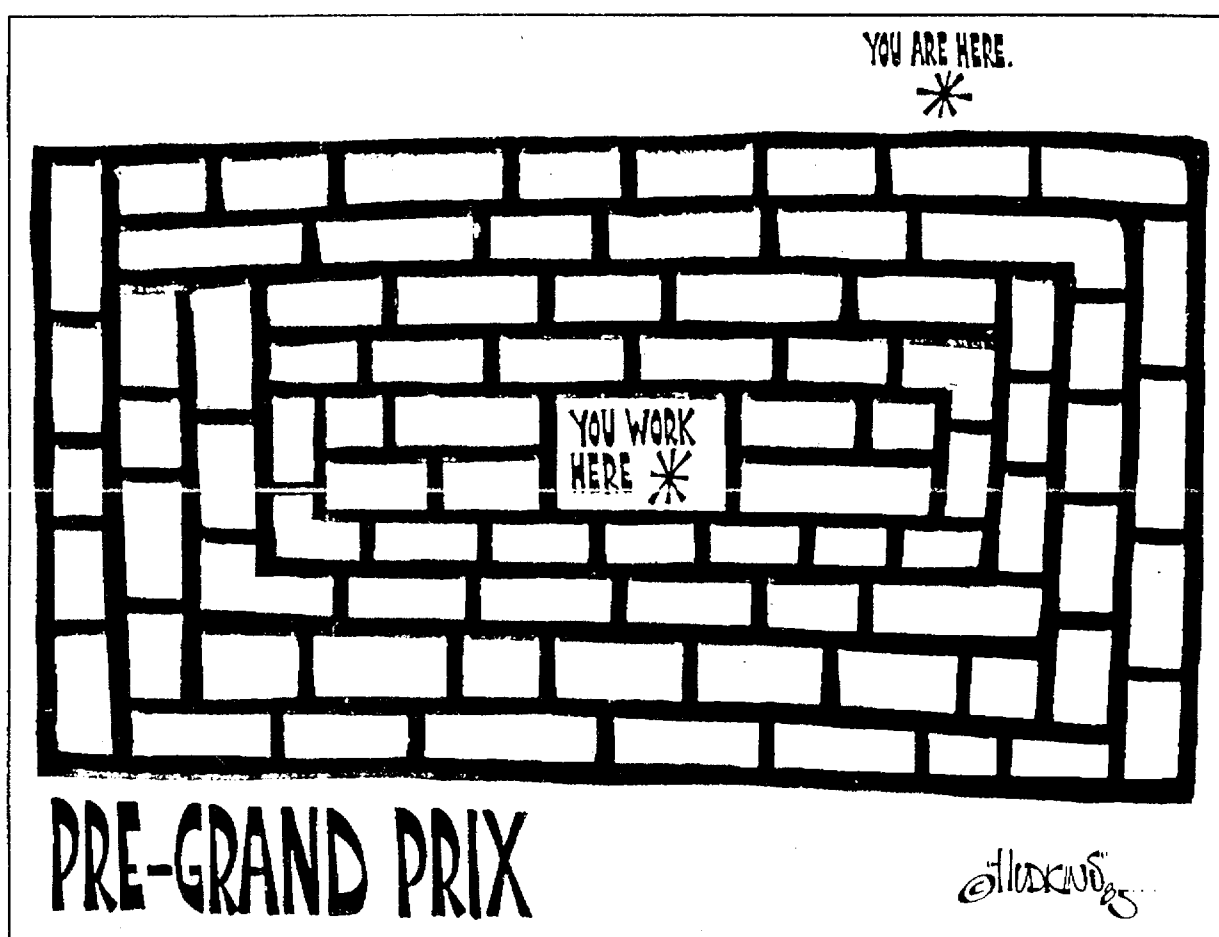

So now President Reagan has proposed a maior reform aimed at simplifying the system and making it fairer and more efficient. But while it achieves those aims at least in part, the proposals still do not answer all of the questions about an equitable tax system and still leave what many people regard as loopholes. Yet the president's program does reduce the rates for both individuals and corporations, which should offset the elimination of current provisions that are beneficial to taxpayers. But the overall program also appears to represent a shift of a larger share of tax burden back to business and industry. That shift represents a reversal of the trend of recent years, but since corporations usually pass along cost increases in terms of higher prices, the heavier taxes on business and industry could revive inflation.

In Michigan, those who itemize their income tax deductions would lose an estimated $1,075 a year because of the proposal to eliminate the deductibility of sales, property and state and local income taxes from the federal income tax. Presumably the extra tax burden would be offset, and perhaps more than offset, by the reduction in rates and other changes proposed by the administration. But the Congressional Joint Economic Committee said Michigan would be the 10th hardest hit state if Congress approves the tax plan. The president said it is not fair for taxpayers in high-tax states (such as Michigan) to get a subsidy from taxpayers in lower-tax states through continuing the deductibility of local and state taxes. But he said nothing about the subsidy Michigan provides to low-tax states because this state gets back a smaller percentage of its federal income taxes in benefits than any other state.

The elimination of deductibility is also going to make it more difficult for state and local governments to finance services being cut back by the federal government. The president did appear at one time to be in favor of a shift back to local and state responsibility. But states such as Michigan which assume heavy tax burdens to finance such services for their people would be under heavy pressure, if Congress removes the deductibility of state and local taxes from the federal income tax returns, to cut their own taxes and the services the taxes pay for.

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes Jr. once wrote that "taxes are what we pay for a civilized society." We think most people accept that view but they also agree with the president that the present system could be much more simple, fairer and more efficient. In the end the president's proposals probably will be voted up or down, depending on whether Congress and the public think his program achieves his aims.

For whom should center exist?

To the Editor:

Regarding the proposed liquor license at the War Memorial Center, I am at a loss to understand how wider permissive power will help the Center administration gain more control than they have now over service of alcohol.

Is there some gap in the Center's authority to enforce rules over private parties on its own premises? If so, what can we Grosse Pointe Farms residents, through our city government, do to close the gap?

The request for a liquor license is ill-timed (and I, for one, object to the extent of the campaign put forth by the War Memorial).

Are we not in a new era of de-emphasizing alcoholic beverages as an essential part of every phase of our existence? The trend seems to be that young adults are acutely aware of the stiff toll which alcohol consumption has taken of all age groups, and have more moderate drinking patterns. Efforts here in Grosse Pointe exemplify nation-wide efforts to combat school-age drinking.

Persons desiring an unlimited variety of beverages have countless facilities available to them, be it for a sandwich or an elaborate reception. And I suspect many families have chosen the Memorial Center for wedding receptions for the very reason that they did not want an open bar.

What kind of message do we send to one another by indicating that no special occasion can be complete (and no encounter for a simple shared interest can be enjoyable) unless alcohol is part of the picture? What kind of message do we send to our young people?

For whom, and for what community goals, should the War Memorial Center exist? The Farms Council has the responsibility of deciding for the five Grosse Pointes who will control beverage service at the Center; they should not pass this authority to the state Liquor Control Commission. Limiting beverage service to private parties has accommodated users of the Center while respecting the nearby church and surrounding neighborhood. If readers share any of these sentiments, a note or card should be sent immediately to the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council. The vote is scheduled for June 17.

Puzzled by endorsement

To the Editor:

I am somewhat puzzled by your editorial of May 30, 1985, in which you endorsed Carol B. Marr for reasons which included the statement "... and that she did not play an active role in last year's controversies." I believe an examination of the required filing by the RECALL group will show that Carol Marr and her husband each made financial contributions to the group that was dedicated to unseat-ing three of the incumbents.

While she has a perfect right to seek the office, I believe the public should know that the discredited RECALL effort included one of the candidates in this year's election. I suspect she is not as objective as she would have you believe. Unfortunately, the election will be history by the time the public is made aware of the facts.

A life may depend on it

To the Editor:

Recently I experienced an encounter with Grosse Pointe Woods Emergency Medical Service (EMS), and it was not a pleasant one at that.

During a junior varsity baseball game at Grosse Pointe North, a player injured his knee rather severely. I rushed into the school to call the EMS because we didn't want to take any chances with the player's knee. It took them twenty minutes to get from St. John Hospital to North. That is too long a time, especially when a person is in a great deal of pain. What if the person had a heart attack or stroke? The person could have already died by then.

In the future I hope the EMS will respond quicker to the calls, because sometimes a life could depend on it.

Supports liquor license

To the Editor:

This letter is concerning the issue of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial having a liquor license. I support the War Memorial's decision to apply for a liquor license.

The opposition to this proposal is uninformed. The opposition believes that the War Memorial will become another bar. However, they don't seem to realize that the War Memorial already serves liquor. Every time that the War Memorial's catering service wants to serve alcohol at a banquet, the catering service, or the people who are having the celebration, must get a temporary liquor license.

Last year, the War Memorial had to go through this tedious process 237 times. The War Memorial wants this license only to make it more convenient to provide alcohol at its banquets. The War Memorial wishes to continue its service to the community and the liquor license would help provide that service which the community, judging by the attendance at events with alcohol, apparently wants.

Method in hiring appalling

To the Editor:

With four candidates seeking election this coming June 10th, it certainly does not give one very much incentive to get out and vote when one experiences the inefficiency in the method of hiring election workers for this election. If this is an example of efficiency by our Board of Education, it is understandable why our schools are constantly in trouble and citizens find it necessary to have recalls.

Being a resident of Grosse Pointe Woods for over 40 years, and having served the community as a supervisor with utmost efficiency and dedication both in school elections and city of Grosse Pointe Woods for over half of those years, I find the method used in hiring workers for this election appalling.

With the consolidation of polling places now reduced to only one for the Woods, our Board of Education did not avail themselves of this golden opportunity to contact, by letter, the cream of the crop by hiring the individual precinct supervisors and dedicated workers with many years of experience. Instead they let their fingers do the walking down a regular list and anyone who was at home at the time they called, by phone, was hired immediately, with total disregard for the long standing community workers.

What a way to thank all the former supervisors and former workers for being so faithful. What has happened to our once caring community?

Liquor license is not a panacea

Editor's note: The writer requested that his letter, addressed to the Farms mayor, be published in the paper.

Dear Mayor Dingeman:

Noting that our council is scheduled a hearing on the matter of the War Memorial liquor license, I am expressing my views on it to you and your fellow members.

We have used and supported the War Memorial since its inception and have always regarded it as well-managed and a community asset with an excellent Board of Directors. Never in our experience has there been any problem relating to control of beverages served at events we attended or sponsored. This is the way it should be and can be.

There is no need in my view to change. If problems do exist, suitable procedures should be adopted to manage and control abuses in the best interest of all. Licensure of the type sought is not a panacea for potential problems and based on my experience may create more serious internal and external problems. Control is a management problem and not something that can be imported from Lansing.

In summary, with all the tragedy and suffering we see induced today by alcohol abuse, the proposal to license liquor sales in a residential neighborhood in our community memorial represents a giant step backward.

I urge that you reject the proposal forthwith.

Two heads better than one

To the Editor:

I am so pleased to see the Grosse Pointe News chose to endorse one of the two candidates I support — and for the same reason. I agree it is vital that balanced representation on our board be established. Cindy Pangborn, with two children at the elementary level and one in the high school can best provide that balance our board so desperately needs.

My other chief concern relates to financial matters. In this area, Cindy Pangborn is the only candidate with experience in business and finance. She is also the only candidate to support tax containment. Her commitment to better use of the taxpayers' dollars gets my vote.

So for balanced representation and cost-containment, I will vote for Cindy Pangborn and Carol Marr on Monday, June 10, 1985.

Sometimes two heads are better than one, especially when they are both on such competent women's shoulders.

Analysis of LWV program

To the Editor:

Last week the League of Women Voters conducted a meet-the-candidate program at the War Memorial to find out where the candidates for the school board stood on various issues. Under examination were incumbent Ernest Buechler, as well as Carl Anderson, Carol Marr and Cindy Pangborn.

In the opening statements, a couple of the candidates mentioned the need for economy in the Grosse Pointe School System. But in their response to subsequent questions, many of a "Trivial Pursuit" variety, they showed an eagerness to further "improve" and expand the already bloated, extremely costly (probably $37 million next year) programs in the Grosse Pointe system.

One important and substantive question submitted beforehand to the League of Women Voters was, "What is your position on the proposal of the former school superintendent to consolidate the system in view of the fact that the pupil enrollment has declined almost 50 percent in the past dozen years or so?"

This question was studiously avoided by the moderator for the League of Women Voters, who later said that somebody else was picking out the questions.

When she was asked why the meeting wasn't opened to questions from the floor, she said there wasn't time. Although this had been promised earlier, it apparently was vital that the meeting be closed by 8:50 p.m.

A concluding remark from the League of Women Voters was, "Go tell your neighbors about the upcoming election."

This citizen's recommendation to any Grosse Pointe resident interested in efficiency and economy is to stay at home for this election, but keep in mind that a school millage election will be held next year. And also "forget it," if you expect the League of Women Voters to really illuminate the substantive political issues.

I say

Peter and his principle were right!

By Tom Greenwood

Maybe I'm getting crotchety in my old age, but have you noticed there seems to be a lot more of "them" than "us," anymore?

What I'm referring to here are rude, discourteous people versus the Miss Manners types who are busy reading this column right now and nodding their heads in agreement.

I guess I'm a dinosaur, but my parents raised me to be courteous to everyone, but there seems to be so little of it around anymore. Take opening doors for others, as an example.

I hold the door open for everyone. If Eddie Haskell, Idi Amin and a Frenchman followed me into Perry's, I'd hold the door open for them. It's the way I was raised. But why is it so very few people say "thank you," give you a smile or a nod of appreciation?

And I'm sorry to say this, but women are the worst offenders. I don't know how many times I've held the door for a woman only to have her sail through like she's on her way to a coronation and I'm her butler. I've taken to killing them with kindness. When this happens anymore, I usually say "you're welcome" and give them my sunniest smile.

The looks of slack-jawed amazement are unbelievable. They get red, stammer, blush or glare and walk away. Try it sometime.

I'm also sorry to say the same thing usually happens when I let people into traffic, only the rudeness there is equally distributed among the sexes. Nobody says thanks or waves their hand in appreciation. The most vexing part is I can't even respond since they're usually cutting someone else off as they speed away.

Speaking of speeding, sometimes I feel like God's original lonely man on the freeways. I'm that rarest of birds — I drive 55 mph and I use my turn signals. Okay, okay, I'll admit it — occasionally I'll rocket up to 60 or even 62 mph, but even then it's like I'm standing still. Everybody passes me and I'll tell you it's very unnerving to be sailing along the freeway and see one of those wolf packs rapidly gaining on you.

I'm talking about that knot of 20 or 30 cars that descend on you at 70-plus mph, all the time switching lanes, tailgating and generally scaring the hell out of you know who. And I know for a fact if I could push my little four-banging Toyota Corolla up to 200 mph, there'd be some no-neck in a rusty red pickup two feet from my bumper wanting to go 220. Heavy sigh.

Just one more comment about drivers — specifically those dumbbells who congregate at the I-94 exit at Moross Road. When you turn left onto Moross Road, please stay in your own turning lane. People are always starting in the far left lane and then turning into the second and third lanes cutting other drivers (me) off.

It's really simple. If you're in the far left lane, stay there. If you're in the second left turn lane, stay there too. Don't tell me you can't turn into that far left lane. I've seen big UPS trucks do it, vans do it and little blue-haired old ladies in big Cadillacs do it, so DON'T CUT ME OFF!

Now, a final word about incompetence. I know, I know, incompetence isn't always rudeness, but they sure must be first cousins. To me, the worst offenders are the very people who should really be on their toes — the receptionists of the world. The first person you meet when you call upon a company.

A good receptionist is as rare as a handshake in Beirut and I always seem to pull the Barney Fife of the world when I phone. It usually goes something like this: Ringggg, "Hello, is Mr. Johnson in please?" "No, he's not."

Silence, or the sound of gum being chewed.

"Well, do you know when he'll be back?"

"Nope, he didn't tell me. I've only been working here six months."

More silence.

"Well, how about taking a message for me. Tell him I'll call back at 2:30."

"In the afternoon?"

"No, 2:30 this morning. No, no, don't write that down — I'm just kidding around."

"Okey dokey, I'll give him the message."

"Uh, would you like my name?"

Giggle. "I guess that would help. What's your name, sir?"

"Tom Greenwood, from the Grosse Pointe News."

"Got it, Mr. Green."

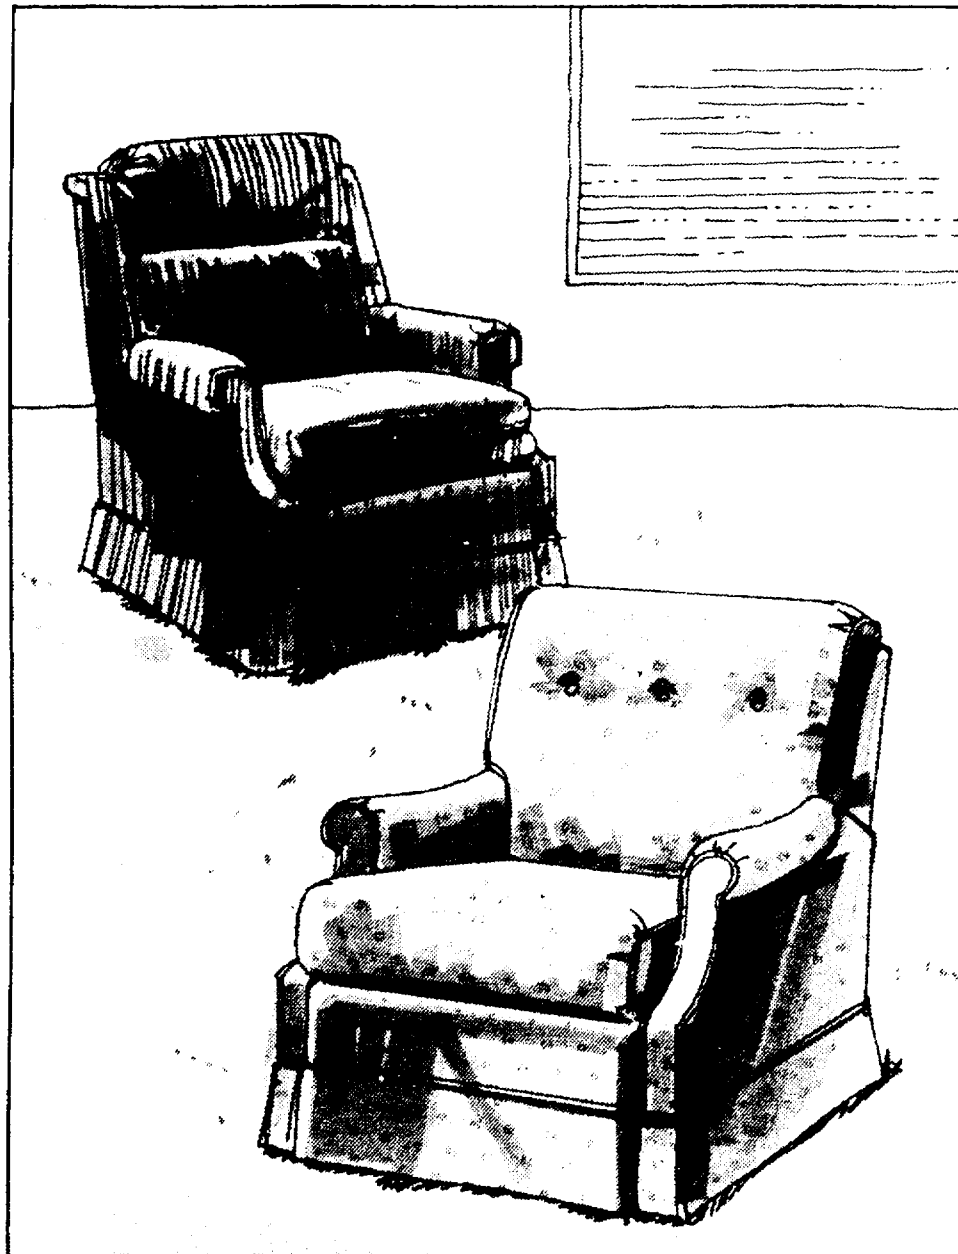

"No, not Green. Wood."

"Okay, Mr. Wood. Got it."

"No, no. Not Mr. Wood. Greenwood! Two E's, two O's."

"Okey dokey, I've got it now. Mr. Greenwood will call again this morning. And you're from the Grosse Ile News, right?"

Right. Another heavy sigh.

Legends of American Indians

Why do Indians believe that rocks and trees have spirits in and of themselves? Why do Indians live a totally ecological existence? What are the legends, the mysticism and magic of the Indian culture?

Students 7-12 years old can learn the answers to these questions and a hundred more when Benashe Eqwe, a member of the Chippewa Tribe, comes to the War Memorial dressed in full costume, June 17 through June 28. Her class, which has met with great success at Cranbrook, will meet weekdays, from 9 to 11 a.m., for two weeks. Weather permitting, most sessions will be held outdoors.

Benashe Eqwe will tell of the legends, and explain the customs of Native Americans. The children will learn how Indians feel about their past and present culture, where they live, how they eat, how nothing is wasted or destroyed, and how they see themselves as stewards of Mother Earth. She will also teach them the dances and crafts necessary to come fully prepared for an authentic pow wow on the last day.

The cost of "Discover the American Indian" is $65 and includes all supplies. For information on how to register, call the War Memorial at 881-7511.

Training offered

Summer is almost here and that means swimming, canoeing, sailing and the 11th annual Michigan Safety School. Each year, the American Red Cross conducts this one-week camp where participants are trained to become certified instructors in water safety, lifeguard, sailing, canoeing, first aid, CPR or adapted aquatics (swimming for the handicapped). It is scheduled for June 8-16 at Camp Desales in Jackson.

The course is open to all Michigan residents 17 years old or over. Each student chooses a major and minor course of study and is involved in daily lectures, seminars, course instruction and practice sessions.

Instructors at the school are expert volunteers from colleges, business and industry, and Red Cross.

In the adapted aquatics program, students learn how to provide instruction in swimming to persons with mental or physical impairments.

A fee of $150 covers all room, board and textbook fees for the entire week. Applications are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis, with limited enrollment. Equipment is provided by Red Cross and Camp DeSales.

To register, or for more information, call 494-2868.

Women workers

A study by the Small Business Administration showed that more and more women are choosing to be entrepreneurs; the number of woman-owned business in the U.S. rose from 1.9 million in 1977 to 2.5 million by 1980, accounting for 26 percent of all non-farm sole proprietorships, according to "20 Facts on Women Workers," published by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

The average bank robber nets about $4,000 now.

Richard Place to be dedicated

The public is invited to attend the formal dedication of the street-scape development known as Richard Place Monday, June 10 at 10 a.m.

In the event of rain, the ceremony will be held the following day at the same time. Richard Place is located on Kercheval Avenue between McMillan and McKinley roads at the foot of Gabriel Richard Elementary School.

Its purpose is to provide a pleasant respite for pedestrian traffic and a connective link between the two commercial areas known generally as the "lower" and "upper" Hill. Richard Place consists of a meandering red-brick walkway, five Williamsburg-style wood benches, a gazebo, flagpole, clock tower, decorative drinking fountain, and two chess/checker game tables. Flanking the walkway is a garden of flowering shrubs, evergreens, ornamental trees and annual and perennial flowers. An underground sprinkling system supports the plant material and indirect lighting highlights the flag and clock tower.

Farms Mayor James H. Dingeman, on behalf of the city council, will host the dedication ceremonies. After opening remarks, Richard School students will present the mayor with a national flag which has flown over the U.S. Capitol. The assembled students will then recite the Pledge of Allegiance while the flag is raised over Richard Place, followed by the singing of "America" and their school song.

Dingeman will then introduce guests, including those who have contributed to the Richard Place project — Hill Association, Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation, Grosse Pointe Garden Club Council, Men's Garden Club, National Bank of Detroit.

Other guests will include the Grosse Pointe school board and superintendent, Gabriel Richard PTO board and principal, Richard School students and parents, John Grissim, architect of the project, and Dennis Petkoff, contractor on the project.

The ceremony is expected to end at 10:30 a.m.

As a parent of three children in the system, I am concerned about providing a quality education for all Grosse Pointe children. As a volunteer in our schools and community for 17 years, I am aware of the progress and problems within our system. As a tax-payer, I too question our escalating property taxes.

Our schools must offer a balanced education. We must have creative, thoughtful, cost-efficient programs which utilize the abundant resources already within this community. Foundation unveils project

The Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation unveiled its first project Tuesday, May 28, at the Shores village council meeting.

The foundation received the village's blessing to go ahead with construction of entrance signs at the north and south ends of the village on Lakeshore.

The north end sign will be placed in the center of the Lakeshore median. The sign at the south end will be placed on the strip of land between the lake and Lakeshore.

Both signs will be white, approximately six feet square with burned lettering. The signs and landscaping were designed by landscape architect John Grissim.

The cost is not to exceed $15,000, the amount the foundation has raised to date.

This is the first of two approved projects by the foundation, according to President Kurt O. Tech. The foundation also hopes to begin landscaping medians on the north end of the village in areas where the village has replaced curbing, he said.

The village, in its first of a five-year plan to resurface Lakeshore, has been replacing curbing along the north- and south-bound medians, according to village Superintendent Michael Kenyon. Curbing work is expected to be completed after four years, with the fifth year of the plan to be the resurfacing, he added.

The foundation would like to begin the landscaping work by the end of the summer depending on the success of its fundraising, Tech said.

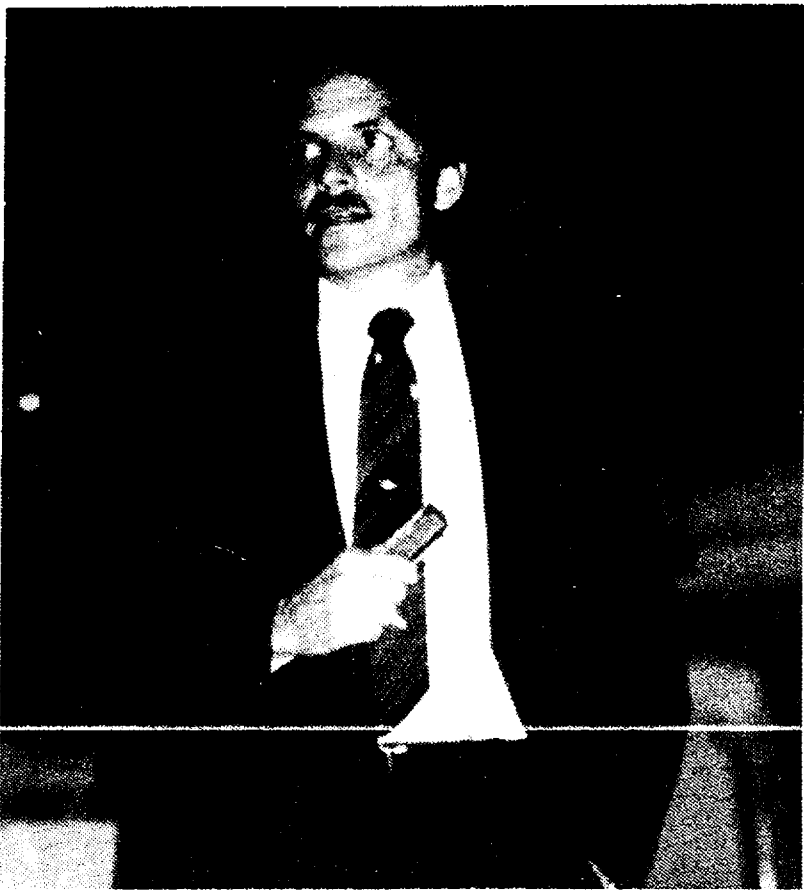

Grissim has completed drawings for the landscaping of the entire length of Lakeshore in the Shores, he added.

The foundation will hold its second annual meeting Tuesday, June 18, Tech said. More than 390 of the village's near-1,000 households have become members, he added.

The foundation will also host its community party Sunday, Aug. 25, at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, Tech said. The community party will be the foundation's major fundraiser this year, he added.

The Shores Improvement Foundation was formed last year as a means for improving the village without using tax dollars. Under its articles of incorporation, the foundation is "to be used to provide facilities and services primarily for the beautification... and upgrading of (the Shores') public grounds and facilities... perpetuation of memory of persons, preservation of objects of historical or natural interest and provide facilities and services for the village..."

Preserving tradition is topic of GP Academy presentations

To increase awareness of the Grosse Pointe Academy's Second Century Fund drive, Pointe residents Mr. and Mrs. Keith E. Crain hosted two presentations recently by Michael Farrell. His topic was "Tradition and the Times of our Lives."

Farrell is adjunct curator of education at the Detroit Institute of Arts and associate professor of art history at the University of Windsor. A frequent lecturer, he is currently engaged in the restoration of an 1872 Gothic Revival mansion in downtown Detroit. He is a leader in the movement to reawaken interest in the area's architectural heritage.

The lecture was one of a series of events being held during the Academy's centennial anniversary year to raise the community's awareness of the building's architectural significance and of the importance of preserving one of Grosse Pointe's few remaining treasures.

Help is at hand for nation's stutterers

One of the most common speech problems is stuttering. It affects nearly two million people in the United States. Almost three times as many males as females stutter.

There are many theories about why people stutter and how it can be controlled. One theory is that the stutterer cannot coordinate the timing of all of the functions necessary to produce normal speech.

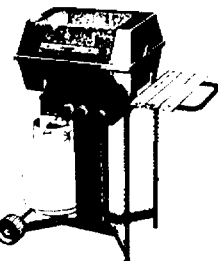

At Saratoga Community Hospital, Carolyn Hennessey, M.A., CCP-Sp., chief of Speech and Audiology, and Joyce Weeks, M.A., speech pathologist, are using a new piece of equipment called the Delayed Auditory Feedback (DAF) monitor to help those who stutter. The DAF is about the size of a walk-man radio and has earphones which look similar to a radio headset.

Patients wear the headset to delay normal auditory feedback of their own voice. Because of this delay, the user tends to slow down and become more conscious of the speech process. This helps to normalize their speech patterns.

Saratoga recently began accepting donations of used hearing aids. These are cleaned, checked, and repaired and then given to patients who need hearing aids, but cannot afford them.

For more information about the service offered by Saratoga's Speech and Audiology Department, call 245-1317.

A homeowner is liable for all unpaid taxes upon his property; in most cases, he will not be able to sell that property unless and until the taxes are paid.

Charging illegally high interest rates on loans is a violation of usury laws, and can subject a person or organization to criminal sanctions.

Surrogate motherhood: One answer

By Tom Greenwood

For Michelle Souligney, surrogate motherhood was a labor of love.

"I'd seen a movie called 'The Baby Maker' a few years ago and though it was an interesting concept," said Ms. Souligney, a mother of two children.

"That's why I thought I'd become a surrogate mother for a couple incapable of having children of their own. I delivered my third child, their daughter, a year ago last March and I've never regretted my decision."

Ms. Souligney, a resident of the Park via Harper Woods and Alaska, contacted Dearborn lawyer Noel Keane, who specializes in cases involving surrogate motherhood. After completing a thorough check of her background and medical history, she was given a year to think over her decision.

"It was three years ago I contacted Noel," she said. "Then I was on a waiting list for a year. Most mothers don't have any contact with the future parents of her child, but I made an effort to meet mine. I wanted to make sure I didn't get involved in some desperate situation where the couple was looking upon the child as a last act to keep their marriage together. That's not fair to the baby."

Although the meeting went well, Ms. Souligney noted that the prospective parents were nervous and a bit standoffish. "Later I found out they'd tried to adopt twice before only to have the mothers back out at the last minute," she said. "They looked upon me as another potential heartbreak, I guess. As luck would have it, they did manage to adopt another little girl during my pregnancy, so now they're the parents of two daughters."

According to Ms. Souligney, the adoptive parents didn't keep in close contact during her pregnancy. "At first I wondered about that," she said. "If it were me, I'd be calling to make sure the mother was eating properly, and that sort of thing. Then I found out they wanted to keep it businesslike, so that taking the baby would be easier. They didn't want to take the baby of someone who had become their best friend. Now we're very close."

"The mother and I exchange Mother's Day cards and this year they dipped the little one's hand in some ink and placed the imprint on the card," she continued. "I also sent two presents to the girls at Easter, rather than a birthday present on our daughter's birthday. I didn't want to single one daughter out over the other."

Ms. Souligney was selected by the adoptive parents because she bore a similarity to the husband; enough, she said, to be taken for brother and sister. Then she was artificially inseminated with the father's sperm.

"I had to sign an 18-page legal document with the father acknowledging his paternity," said Ms. Souligney. "The baby's adoptive mother had to petition to adopt her husband's child."

Last March she delivered an 8-pound, 11-ounce baby girl. "Originally I didn't want to see her," Ms. Souligney said. "Then I just couldn't resist anymore. I had her for about eight straight hours. I laughed and talked with her and sang her little songs. We bonded. It was best for me because now I'm able to see her."

Turning the baby over to her new parents was tough.

"As the natural mother, I had to carry the baby out of the hospital," she said. "When we got to the car I just turned the baby over to her new mother. She didn't ask or say anything. There was no wrenching the baby from my arms, but I knew she was terribly anxious. They of-line, nothing like buying black market babies. It's getting to be a much more common approach for couples unable to have their own children.

"There are so many infertile couples in this country," she continued. "This is the way they can have children too. Because it's becoming more accepted, I'd like to ferred to stay on at my place for a few days, but I asked them to leave right then."

She was depressed for a while, but received support from daughter Heather, 13, a student at Pierce Junior High School, and Aaron, 10, a student at Trombly.

"They were terrifically supportive, as were my friends and family," she said. "In fact I've never received any negative response from anyone. And I was completely honest with everyone I came in contact with about my situation."

For her part, Ms. Souligney received $10,000. The adoptive parents also paid for all medical and legal costs.

"The total cost is about $25,000," she said. "That's a great deal of money and it helps establish whether or not prospective parents are serious about wanting children. I'm telling my story because I want people to see that surrogate motherhood is nothing calendessee some sort of national organization formed for these children. Their status is special. They're adopted, but they're not adopted. The courts don't even know how to deal with it. At first it was like black market babies. In the future I think it'll be more accepted and even be covered by hospitalization. Right now I feel like one of the pioneers in the movement."

She plans to visit the baby sometime this summer, with the adoptive parents blessings. "They think it's a good idea," she said. "When she's older they said they intend to tell her everything. I'd like her to know that I'm here if she ever really needs me."

"Being a surrogate mother was tough and I wouldn't do it again," she concluded. "At least not for anyone else. I'd do it again for them. But it was worth it. That look of sheer, total happiness on their faces when they received their baby made it all worthwhile."

New priest heeds call after years as lay minister

A bevy of priests gathered to help the congregation of St. Michael's Episcopal Church ordain the new priest, Karen Evans. From the left are the Rev. Robert Neily, rector of St. Michael's; the Rev. Audrey Harrison, deacon at All Saints, Fair Haven; Bishop H. Coleman McGehee, Bishop of Michigan; the Rev. Karen Evans; and the Rev. William Evans, her husband and rector of St. Andrew's, Drayton Plains.

By Nancy Parmenter

The Rev. Karen Evans was hard at work in her newly redecorated church office, a gift from her parishioners, three days after her ordination as a priest.

"I had to come back down to earth sometime," she said. Her ordination May 25 at St. Michael's Episcopal Church in the Woods is believed to be the first ever for a woman in the Pointes. The Rev. Margaret Sammons serves at Christ Episcopal, but was ordained in Massachusetts.

In spite of, or perhaps because of, the fact that Episcopalians have had female priests for 10 years, the only big issue facing the congregants at St. Michael's seems to be what to call their new priest. The rector, the Rev. Robert Neily, is commonly known as Father Bob.

"Some women clergy do use the term 'Mother,' but I'm not comfortable with it," she said.

Mr. Neily says he favors the use of the non-sexist term, "pastor," or even "Mrs.," while the newly ordained priest says she leans toward first names.

"There's less and less formality as we go along," she said. "For a while there was a sort of anti-title feeling in the church."

She didn't always plan to become a priest. She is the mother of two daughters and her husband, William, is a priest in Drayton Plains. They met in graduate school where both intended careers in the foreign service.

"We began to question whether we wanted to move around that much," she said. "Through a winding path, we both ended up in the ministry."

But, whereas her husband will celebrate his tenth year as a priest June 10, she spent many years more involved in the lay ministry.

"I sort of resisted the whole idea of going into the ministry," she said. "I felt called, but I was uncertain. I believe strongly in the ministry of lay people and it took me some time to decide that my calling required me to be ordained."

Complicating the decision and adding to its irony was the fact that she was heading the diocesan lay ministry committee at the time.

The decision made, she consulted the diocese and received approval for her plan to study for her Doctor of Divinity at St. John's Provincial Seminary in Plymouth, a Catholic institution.

"The closest (Episcopal) seminary was in Chicago and my husband had just accepted a call to Drayton Plains," she explained. While she was the first Protestant graduate of the doctoral program, there were other non-Catholics in St. John's masters' programs.

"We had to devise the curriculum as we went along," she said. "I was really responsible for my own course of study. I had plenty of help, and I had been in the church long enough to have a good idea of what I needed to learn. As I studied, I found there were still plenty of things I still wanted to learn, so that's probably a hopeful sign."

Entering the Episcopal ministry has proved so popular in recent years that the church has actually discouraged applications, she said. "The application process was revamped to help the people discern whether their call is to the ordained ministry. Too many were going in to it and there weren't enough jobs. The positions just aren't there."

Measuring the rewards of the ministry is difficult, but not impossible, she believes. "One works very hard," she said. "The rewards are difficult to pin down. The rewards are not monetary — this parish has responded with affirmation beyond anything I expected."

"The job security aspects have changed. The automatic respect clergy used to get isn't so automatic any more. But the rewards are still there. They're intangible."

Among the rewards she finds important is witnessing the profound effect of the church on its members. "There's something for me in standing at the communion rail, knowing the tragedies and the sorrows — and the joys — and seeing the parade of people, knowing that's what the body of Christ is all about."

"One of my most awesome moments was standing in the pulpit, seeing 200 people out there and knowing they were actually listening to what I was saying!"

Her duties won't change drastically now that she is a priest. She was and is in charge of the Sunday School. But being ordained will broaden her scope to include giving communion and conducting weddings, funerals and weekday services. She also teaches adult religious education at the church and theology at the diocesan school in Detroit.

For now, that is enough. But some day...

"I'd like to be in charge of a church by myself to develop my own ministry."

Shores holds line on taxes

The Shores village council Tuesday, May 28, adopted a 1985-86 fiscal year budget that will finance $50,000 more in spending with no tax increase.

Village trustees adopted a millage rate of $16.25 for each $1,000 of state assessed value, the same rate as last year.

The village forecasts spending $2.78 million this fiscal year compared to $2.73 million last year. Increased spending on its municipal court, financial administration, public safety department, building and grounds, parks and recreation and insurance are expected.

The Shores will spend $110,000 on sewer projects this year, according to village Superintendent Michael Kenyon. Work will include replacement of part of the Lakeshore Lane sewer and repair of a collapsed section of pipe on Vernier at the foot of the municipal building's fire truck driveway.

Although the village will spend only half as much on sewer projects this year as last to replace its deteriorating infrastructure, it is still on course for its planned replacement of sewerage as well as streets and sidewalks, Kenyon said. "We have plotted ourselves a course... and we are right on target," he added.

Evidence of the village's improving sewage system came after Friday's heavy rains, which the village public works department said dumped 3 1/2 inches of rain on Shores streets. Later that morning, the village had received only one complaint about a flooded basement, although power was out in portions of the village and trees were downed.

While trustees adopted the same tax rate as last year, it won't raise the same amount of money. A drop in property values and adjustments to assessments made by the board of review lopped $75,000 off the money collected through property taxes, Kenyon said.

Other major expenditures this year are the pay-off of back taxes owed the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House totaling $74,000 and funding for replacement of radio consoles for the public safety department.

The village rolled $36,000 off its fringe benefit costs by having its pension fund absorb the expense of retiree medical benefits, a practice used in other communities, Kenyon added.

The village's fiscal year runs from April to March. Trustees adopted a budget for 1985-86 in March, but the budget committee has been working to amend it before setting the tax rate.

Trustees also found out the village ended its last fiscal year in the black by $6,000, not including an appropriation of $101,000 from its budget stabilization fund that wasn't needed this year, according to village President Gerald Schroeder.

The Shores council approved an appropriation of $85,000 from the budget stabilization fund to balance this fiscal year's budget if necessary.

Comcast Cablevision plans repairs

Comcast Cablevision will spend more than $10,000 to replace a section of deteriorated cable to improve its signal to 15 homes along Lakeshore in the Shores.

Company director of government affairs Don Ivey asked the village council to grant Comcast permission to use a utility easement at the rear of the properties between 591 and 515 Lakeshore.

The company will use the easement to lay 1,500 feet of conduit and cable, Ivey said. Preliminary cost estimates are in excess of $10,000, he added.

In that and other areas, the original holder of the franchise, Cox Cable, laid unprotected cable underground in areas where it could become exposed to water, Ivey said. The exposure damaged the cable and deteriorated the signal significantly, he added.

The company will use the easement, which is 12 feet wide in some places and six feet wide in others, once it receives the permission from property owners, Detroit Edison and Michigan Bell, Ivey said. Although the easement is heavily wooded and landscaped, the company will restore the easement to its original state after laying the cable, he added.

If all goes well, the company should complete the work within five to six weeks, Ivey said. However, the company is waiting for the final bids from contractors before going to its corporate headquarters for funding, he added. In addition, ordering electrical equipment sometimes results in delays.

One benefit of placing the cable underground at the rear of the homes will be the halving of the length of "drops," or hook-ups from the houses to the main cable, Ivey said.

Currently drops to the front easement run up to 300 feet. The new drops will be about 150 feet, which will also help improve the cable signal, he added.

The cost of burying the cable in the front easement and putting it at the rear of the homes is about the same, Ivey said. Were it to replace its cable in front easements, the company would be forced to replace that section in several years when it too became damaged.

There are other places in the Shores where Cox, in building the system, laid cable underground through wet spots. Comcast, which took over the franchise last year, has to shoulder the full replacement cost, Ivey said.

Grosse Pointe Shores is part of the Comcast system with Fraser and St. Clair Shores.

Trustees granted Comcast the right to use the easement if the company receives the permission of all affected parties and makes restoration after completion of the work.

SPINAL HEALTH

Chiropractic utilizes a structural approach to maintain a healthy body. The spine must maintain normal biomechanical movement to be healthy. Normal biomechanical movement entails unrestricted and painless motion in all directions of bending the neck, mid-back, and lower back. Abnormal motion leads to premature joint and disc degeneration of the spine. This also leads to symptoms such as: low back and leg pain, neck and arm pain, headaches, dizziness, etc. which surface due to the irritation of the nerves, muscles, and ligaments of the spine. Abnormal spinal movement is detected via a motion palpation examination which can easily detect spinal problems. Brought to you as a community service by Dr. David Jantz. Defer's Art in Classroom ends with gallery tour

A downstairs classroom at Defer Elementary School was transformed into an art gallery on May 24 for the finale of the "Art in the Classroom" program.

Students from kindergarten through fifth grade trooped through the gallery to view 22 reproductions of famous paintings. With strains of music from a cassette player wafting in the background, the students moved among the easels, eagerly examining the prints at close range.

The prints represented different artists and styles. Chagall's colorful birds, "Features in Bloom" contrasted the familiar animals in Edward Hick's "Peaceable Kingdom." Centuries of girl-watching flashed between the "Head of a Girl" by Johannes Vermeer and Andy Warhol's pop-art "Marilyn Monroe."

Each class was given a private viewing of the gallery. Armed with lists of identifying characteristics, the students examined the prints and matched them to the descriptions on the lists.

"The lists made it more exciting," said Philip Angiewicz, a fifth grader. "It was fun to pick out the pictures."

"Art in the Classroom" volunteers were on hand in the gallery to encourage and stimulate conversation geared to the children's grade level.

"We asked them to look at the paintings and try to understand what the artist was saying," said volunteer Karen Hill.

"They don't have to like all of it," added volunteer Linda Rhodes. "We learn to appreciate art over a period of time."

The tour was the culminating activity of Defer's "Art in the Classroom" program. Throughout the year, each class viewed and studied several of the prints showcased at the gallery. First grader Beth Callas described how the program worked in Miss Kittel's class:

"We had an art man (volunteer Bob Rimbo) who came every month. He brought a painting for us to study and he brought other things too. Once he brought chocolates for us to smell... and oranges. He left the painting in our room until he came back. He wanted us to keep looking at it -- and we did!"

"Art in the Classroom" volunteers found imaginative ways to help the youngsters look at art, from holding the paintings upside down to providing scissors, glue, paint and paper so they could create their own art. Bob Rimbo brought a shrimp to the class when he presented "The Shrimp Girl" by William Hogarth.

The program was modeled after the nationwide "Picture Lady" program. "We renamed our program to better describe what we are trying to accomplish," said Carol Romano, coordinator of Defer's program. Thirteen volunteers from the community took part in two training sessions at Defer. They were given a manual with guidelines and suggested presentation techniques, and assigned to a classroom for the school year.

Volunteer leaders were selected on the basis of their familiarity with or interest in art, and their willingness to share their appreciation of art with young people. These volunteers included Nina Binder, Mary Busse, Katie Elslila, Sue Heiman, Karen Hill, Pat Jabara, Pat Lewis, Sandy Meyer, Jane Nutter, Bob Rimbo, Linda Rhodes, Elaine Ryan and Suzanne Suski.

He may or may not like it, but first-grader Ryan Rupprecht is giving this artwork his intense scrutiny.

Eric Doelle awarded Lake scholarship

The 1985 recipient of the annual John Lake scholarship, named in honor of the late executive director of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, is 17-year-old Eric Doelle, a June graduate of South High School.

Doelle, who plans to become a pediatrician, will apply the $1,000 award toward his tuition at Michigan State University.

"He's an excellent scholarship choice," said Theresa Lloyd, his counselor at South. "He's one of my strongest seniors in academics and has other qualities as well. He's personable and has been an asset to the student body."

At the recent awards night for National Honor Society students, Doelle, whose honor point average at the end of the junior year was 3.905, received the silver and gold cord, a symbol of academic superiority given to students in the top 5 percent of their class. He was also recently named South's Student of the Year in German, for earning straight A plus grades in four years of German language studies.

Poupard awards slogan winners

Students at Poupard Elementary School competed in a safety slogan contest recently and winners from each grade and a grand winner were named.

Kindergarten winner was Kris Tortomasi; first grade, Michael Novitke; second grade, Anthony Koerber; third grade, Scott Semple; fourth grade, Richard VanEtten; and fifth grade, Lynne pochmara. Each student received a wooden plaque.

Scott Semple, who was named the grand winner, wrote the following slogan: "When you're walkin' and talkin', look both ways before crossin', don't act cool 'cause that's not the rule."

His other activities include playing trumpet in South's Symphony and Jazz bands, being on the baseball team, and participating in the Key Club, the junior Kiwanis organization oriented to community service. He also did volunteer tutoring at Richard and played basketball and baseball at the Neighborhood Club. Prior to South, he was a student at Richard and Brownell.

"We plan to have two more John Lake scholarship benefits, one in the fall and one next spring," said Louise TeWalt, chairman of the committee. "That way we hope to build the capital amount to the point where the income will enable us to give two scholarships annually, one to a South student and one to a North student, instead of the one-scholarship-per-year plan we've been on so far. With so many John Lake friends and admirers in the community, we're sure we can reach that goal."

Armed robbery attempt fails

An attempted armed robbery at Sine Realty on Mack in the Farms failed when the would-be thief changed his mind and fled.

A man walked into the office on May 28 and asked if they were hiring. Told to consult the owner, he pulled a knife and said, "I want your money," according to police reports.

He forced a woman employee to check the safe, which turned out to be empty. He left the office and fled on foot.

Police are looking for a black male in his late 20s, about six feet tall and weighing 180 pounds.

The 16 winners of the AAUW's Pens for Peace writing contest were honored recently at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church Fellowship Hall. Shown above are Neil Shine, Free Press senior managing editor and columnist, the two top winners, Mara Vorhees, eighth grade winner from University Liggett, and Courtney Whitehead, seventh grade winner from Pierce Middle School, and Sheila Osann, project chairman.

AAUW honors writing contest winners

The American Association of University Women, Grosse Pointe Branch, held a special recognition ceremony recently at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church Fellowship Hall to honor the winners of the Pens for Peace writing contest. The contest was open to seventh and eighth grade students in the Grosse Pointe School District.

Sheila Osann, project chairman, and Detroit Free Press senior managing editor and columnist Neil Shine, who delivered an address on "Words are Magic," officiated at the presentation of cash prizes, plaques and certificates to the top essayists.

The winner in the eighth grade division was Mara Vorhees, University Liggett; second, Molly Maycock, University Liggett; third, Maureen Yap, St. Paul's. The honorable mentions for this grade level were: Heather Botsford, Grosse Pointe Academy; Richard Martin, Our Lady Star of the Sea; Julie Nichols, Brownell Middle School; David Sengstock, Our Lady Star of the Sea; Stephanie Vittoe, Brownell Middle School.

Top honors in the seventh grade division went to Courtney Whitehead, Pierce Middle School; second, Scarlett Lacey, University Liggett; third, Amy Stephens, Our Lady Star of the Sea. Honorable mention winners were: Steve Bai, Our Lady Star of the Sea; Eric David, University Liggett; Jim Campagna, III, Pierce Middle School; Anna Francis, Pierce Middle School; Jennifer Kalmink, Pierce Middle School.

Mrs. Osann noted during the program that 246 entries from eight schools were received and that the quality of the essays was outstanding.

"You never outgrow your need to write well," she said. "Whether you are writing a 'thank you' note for a birthday gift, a term paper for science, or a resume for a job, those who are able to communicate skillfully have a tremendous advantage over those who do not. The winners here tonight have a firm foundation in this craft and deserve warm congratulations."

The major purpose of the Pens for Peace project, which was made possible by an Issue Implementation Grant from the Educational Foundation of the AAUW, was to stimulate young people to examine the issue of peace and how it relates to them, in their personal lives, in the community, on the world scene.

Also another was to change any perception they might have that peace is dull and passive, that war is dramatic and exciting. Inherent in the project, too, is the thought that peace-making and peace-keeping skills are valuable tools, worth perfecting for community good and individual justice.

Contestants had a choice of three themes: Peace: Its Meaning; Women in History: Their Efforts Towards Peaceful Solutions; and Resolving Conflicts Peacefully Rather Than Violently. The judging criteria were creative expression, feelings and emotions, use of research, essay structure, basic language skills.

Parents and teachers were invited to join the students and AAUW members at the recognition ceremony and reception.

Teen day trip

Grosse Pointe students who will be in grades 7-10 next fall are eligible to join the War Memorial's trip to Waterford Oaks Park, a park which features a wave pool and water slide.

On Wednesday, June 26, the bus will leave the Center at 10 a.m. and return at 4 p.m. A rain date is scheduled for the following day, June 27.

The $12.50 cost per person includes transportation, admission ticket and two tickets for the water slide. Students can bring their own lunch or purchase food at the park. There are no refunds and permission slips are required.

War Memorial program director Jan Arndt says that the trip is a direct response to parents who have expressed concern that "there's just not enough fun and wholesome things for teens to do during the summer."

To make this trip, and future trips successful, however, Mrs. Arndt adds that she will need parental assistance. Anyone who can help by chaperoning is urged to call the Center at 881-7511. There is no fee for chaperones.

Democrats meet

Congressman George Crockett, who represents the City and the Park, will be the featured speaker of the Grosse Pointe Democratic Club meeting Sunday, June 9, from 3 to 5 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, Maumee and St. Clair.

A fee of $7 pays for refreshments and membership in the Grosse Pointe Democratic Club. Bruce L. Sanders, president, will conduct a brief business meeting prior to Congressman Crockett's presentation. The theme of the congressman's talk will be American foreign policy problems — particularly South Africa and Nicaragua.

The general public is invited to attend.

Children's fun day set at Center

The War Memorial green overlooking Lake St. Clair will experience a metamorphosis Sunday, June 9, from 1 to 4 p.m. when it will be transformed into a children's wonderland.

Children's Fun Day, geared especially for the 8 and younger set, will include pony rides, the ball crawl, moonwalk, a pocket lady with an apron full of surprises, helium balloons, a painted-faces lady to apply whimsical make-up, games of skill and chance, Rosco the Clown, and more.

The tickets, which are $5 each for kids 2 to 8 years old, cover all events. Admission for children under two is free and they may participate, also. There is no admission charge for adults and older children who will want to come along to assist the younger ones. Children who are a little older are welcome to participate, but there will be a $5 charge for them, too.

For those who want to make a day of it, food and refreshments will be available at a nominal cost.

In case of rain, the event will be moved indoors.

Advance reservations, in person or by mail, are requested to insure that the proper accommodations will be made. For more information, call the War Memorial at 881-7511.

Admission is free.

One-man show

In celebration of the 300th birthday of Johann Sebastian Bach, the East Region Catholic Musicians will present James Hamman in "Old Bach: A One Man Show."

Prepared and performed in the style of Henry Fonda and Hal Holbrook, Hamman will portray events in the life of J.S. Bach. The program will be held Monday, June 10, at 8 p.m. at St. Gertrude Church, 28839 Jefferson between 11 Mile and 12 Mile roads.

Admission is $3 and tickets are available at the door.

Exchange Club gives support to Park police

The Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores recently donated funds to the Grosse Pointe Park Police Department to help in their efforts in the fingerprinting of grade school children and other crime prevention activities.

Accepting the check on behalf of the Park Police Department was Sgt. Randy Kane. The check presentation took place on the "Pointer's With Prost" TV program produced by Grosse Pointe Cable TV. The show is hosted by Park Councilman John Prost.

Exchange Club President Paul Mumma said "one of the main purposes of the Exchange Club movement is to assist in the prevention of child abuse and other crime prevention activities. Our club is most pleased to assist our local police departments in any way possible in this cause."

The Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores meets for breakfast meetings each Tuesday morning at 7:30 at Gilbert's Restaurant on Harper Avenue in St. Clair Shores. Club members hear a guest speaker concerning topics of interest in the community.

For more information about the club, or for membership information, call Mike Reynolds at 271-5080.

The local club has participated in other crime prevention activities in the Grosse Pointe, Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores area over the past several years. The local Exchange chapter is part of the National Exchange Club which consists of local clubs throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. Each club serves the communities by helping those who are less fortunate than others with main emphasis on the prevention of child abuse, crime prevention and American citizenship.

Candidates use League forum to highlight disagreements

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Four hopefuls seeking two openings on the Board of Education June 10 took some of the quiet out of this year's campaign at the League of Women Voters Forum Tuesday night, May 28, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Although they agreed more than they disagreed, candidates Carl Anderson, Dr. Ernest Buechler, Carol Marr and Cindy Pangborn set some verbal barbs in their opponents during the hour-long program.

More than 70 people attended the forum in the War Memorial's Crystal Ballroom, including school board trustees Fred Adams, Dorothy Kennel and Catherine Brierly, whose decision not to seek re-election assures one new face on the board. Also in attendance were board President Joan Hanpeter and Superintendent John Whritner. The forum was videotaped by Grosse Pointe Cable and will be televised tonight at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 11.

After their three-minute opening statements, the candidates fielded written questions from the audience. The four used their opening statements to list their qualifications and reasons for running for the school board.

The first question for the candidates was whether they supported last year's attempted recall of three board members.

Anderson said he did not support the recall, believing it to be inappropriate use of the recall mechanism.

Buechler was one of the targets of the recall, brought on by the school board's vote to close Barnes School and move the sixth-graders into the middle school. He added that with all that has happened since the reorganization, he knows his decision to support it was a good one.

Mrs. Pangborn said she supported the right to recall elected officials, because the power of recall is allowed for in state law.

Mrs. Marr said that although she didn't support recall, she felt the community should have had a right to vote on reorganization.

The current representative form of government is changing to a more participatory form, she said, adding decisions that directly affect a large segment of the community should be put to a referendum.

When asked why the community should elect wise trustees if they are going to put the tough questions to the electorate, Mrs. Marr said trustees do more than struggle with the tough questions. Trustees are liaisons of communication between the system and the community, she added.

People have a right to respond directly on decisions that affect them, she added.

Buechler retorted that board members are elected as representatives of the community to make the tough decisions. The board spent months listening to residents before it made its reorganization decision, he added.

All candidates agreed the district needs to strengthen its vocational education program.

Although the system will add computers, electronics equipment and computer-assisted drafting units next year, the district still needs to strengthen its electronics, robotics and computer-assistance courses, Buechler said.

While 80 percent of the district's students go on to college, the system needs programs for the 20 percent who don't, Anderson said. One challenge facing the board is to better sell the program to remove the perceived stigma attached to vocational education, he added.

The district needs to take a closer look at its vocational programs as part of its program of providing opportunities for students who won't attend college, Mrs. Marr said.

The district needs to update its vocational education program because government surveys show that the need for service industry jobs will continue to grow, Mrs. Pangborn said. Vocational programs are a chance for the system to aid its students by preparing them for either a career or workplace she added.

When asked what programs the district has cut, Mrs. Pangborn said the board set a policy that eliminated remedial reading help for students until they reached the third grade. That program needed to be reinstated because reading is the most important subject a student can learn, she said, adding that without reading skills, a student can master no other subjects.

Buechler disputed her claim, saying that throughout the country, reading specialist programs are geared for students in the upper elementary grades. There is help available for first- and second-graders, but an expansion of the present program is an expensive proposition, he added.

Mrs. Marr said the district decided to eliminate its developmental kindergarten program next year because there weren't enough students to benefit from the program.

She disputed that, saying there must be enough students in the six cities in the system that could benefit from the program.

The candidates were asked what they would do to fill the high schools as enrollment declines work their way into the secondary schools.

Anderson said he would like to see the system better market its product in order to draw more students to the high schools. Buechler said the board has developed a joint program with Harper Woods schools to allow students in one district to take courses in the other on an at-cost basis.

Mrs. Marr said one of the possibilities is to move central administration functions into one of the high schools and vacate the St. Clair offices.

Picking up on that, Mrs. Pangborn said the district needs to consider eliminating the St. Clair central offices because of the high energy and maintenance costs.

The district also needs to keep in mind about the sale and lease of its other properties and should review current agreements to make sure the district is getting a fair return for its expense.

In the sharpest exchange of the evening, Buechler said the district only one leased one property. Mrs. Pangborn rebutted, noting the system had three lots currently leased to the Farms and City and received no money from meter revenues the cities make. In addition, the district leases those properties for a nominal fee.

Buechler retorted that although the properties were leased for a small price to the municipalities, the system received snow removal and maintenance in the agreements it signed.

Mrs. Pangborn added that the school system continues to delay the renegotiation of those leases.

Mrs. Marr picked up the theme of reducing costs by saying the system should better evaluate programs like the seven-period day and its computer education programs, and costs like administrative personnel, energy conservation measures, and $10,000 in next year's budget for a consultant study of computerization of library services.

Programs should be examined for cost-effectiveness by seeing how the cost affects a child's education, she added.

Anderson noted that about 80 percent of the costs in the school system's budget are in salaries, purchased services, utility prices and insurance costs. Insurance and utility costs have climbed faster than inflation, driving up the price of running a school system, he added.

Mrs. Pangborn added the system should look at the cost of its seven-period day and the administration for cost-savings. The board spent $21,000 for a consultants study when the raw data was available for about $200 from another source, she added.

Buechler responded by saying the consultants report, which was to have been presented to the administrative salary committee Tuesday, may call for some lowered salaries for some of the positions. The district will get more than just data for its dollar, he added.

Anderson also noted that Mrs. Pangborn was the only candidate not present during the board's working sessions on the budget. Mrs. Pangborn said after the forum she had prior commitments those evenings, but did study the budget and talk with administrators involved.

The candidates split on their feelings about the seven-period day and computer education. Anderson and Buechler said the system was head and shoulders above others through its acquisition and use of equipment. Mrs. Marr said she wasn't sure how to respond to the question. Mrs. Pangborn said the system hasn't distributed equipment fairly, with some PTOs forced to raise money in order to buy equipment for their schools. A more equitable distribution of equipment and programs is one of the things she will work for, she added.

On the seven-period day, Mrs. Pangborn said although it gave students an opportunity to take classes they otherwise wouldn't have taken, the board failed to evaluate the program while it was operating, thus leaving bugs in the program. South, she added, actually has an eight-period day because of its "zero-hour" schedule.

Buechler said the seventh period gives students a chance for more flexible scheduling, but the system needs to monitor low-ability students who overload themselves by taking the seventh class.

Mrs. Marr said she thought there was value to the program, but it needs to be evaluated to address some of the concerns of faculty of overloaded students and less class-time of discussions and science experiments.

Anderson said the seven-period day was an excellent opportunity for students to add a class they normally wouldn't have been able to take. He told the audience that his son opted this school year for a seventh-class at North, which pleased the family. Because of his academic load next year, he won't take the seventh class, Anderson said of his son.

Three of the four candidates agreed the present 6-8 middle school was a good move, since academically and physically, the ninth-graders belong in high school.

Mrs. Pangborn disagreed, saying the middle school reorganization of grades 7 to 9 should be looked at. It would slow the maturation process and perhaps keep parents from pulling students from the public school system for the middle school years.

Mrs. Marr, however, said the ninth-graders belong in the high schools. Anderson added that from his experience, the 7-9 middle school grouping has not worked as well as the current 6-8 program. Buechler said moving the ninth graders out of the high schools would mean deciding which of the two high schools would have to be closed.

Candidates said there was a real commitment on the system's part of special education services, but lines of communication needed to remain open between parents and administrators.

Each candidate was allowed one minute at the end of the forum to summarize his or her position in a closing statement. Mrs. Pangborn said she hoped to represent traditional values of the community while seeking better communication and a stop to tax increases.

Anderson noted that the future of the nation is directly related to how the nation teaches its children and how well they learn. Education is a gift given freely to the young, he added.

Mrs. Marr said the system needs to have new representation to provide balance to the board and new leadership. Voters will have to decide who best will balance the board, she added.

Buechler said the four years he has been on the board have been the most important and tumultuous in the system's history. His experience in those four years makes him an excellent choice for re-election, he added.

FEDERAL REVENUE SHARING FUNDS

Notice is hereby given that the 1985-86 Budget for the City of Grosse Pointe Park, which includes the utilization of federal revenue sharing funds, was adopted on May 13, 1985. cally so we can take a look at it and see if it's worthwhile," she said. "If it is, it should be set up separately. I've got a terrific staff — they're all willing to do this for a period of time."

Once the participating communities have allocated the funds, the probation department will require a six-to-eight week lead time to set up the program and double-train the staff. Ms. O'Shea said she had insisted on the budgeted cap of 100 clients, a number estimated by the police and deemed reasonable to handle.

"That all we can deal with in the first year," she said. "I want a quality program. We'll do a splendid job with 100, then we'll see what we need the next year."

Assistance to troubled youth is a "community obligation — an obligation to the next generation," Ms. O'Shea feels. "Families need help in changing times and we all have a stake in children. The program would give the family a helping hand."

If the program is approved, the probation department will hold discussions with police and schools and other community agencies such as Center Point and the Family Life Education Council to see how all of the programs can fit together. "We're not replacing anything — this is another finger in the dike," Ms. O'Shea said.

The Farms council expressed interest in the program when Judge Schneider presented it two weeks ago. However, they declined to budget any support for it before they learned how the other communities and the schools react.

"We've set up our budget the last three years with the idea of not raising taxes for our citizens," said Mayor James Dingeman. "In view of the fact that we're the first you've approached, I'd like to table it."

Judge Schneider agreed that the financing of the project depends upon total participation. Dividing the financial responsibility on a per capita basis means that the shares will run from a high of $20,000 for the Woods down to $5,000 for the City. The cost would vary if only four or three communities participated.

Ausherman said he is currently exploring the possibility of county financial support for the project. "It's just in the discussion stage," he said. "I've been talking to several county people, trying to arrange a meeting."

Until the plan takes final form, Ausherman said, the communities are unlikely to actually commit funds. But the Park, like the Farms, is on record as being favorably disposed toward the concept. Like the Farms, too, the Park has not budgeted any support.

nish a description and the nude dude was gone by the time the police arrived. Last year it was a nude jogger in the Farms, this spring it's a naked knapsacker in the Woods. Bet I can guess what he had in the backpack.

While we're on silly stories, the Woods police received another call over the weekend from a woman who complained about a duck swimming in a puddle in front of her home.

So the cops had to take time for their rounds and come over and shoo the bird away. C'mon, folks, don't the coppers have enough to do without trying to handcuff a duck? Let's get serious out there.

P.S. Speaking of serious. The Woods police are asking all motorists to be extra careful these days because school is nearing an end, and the kids are getting a little goofy anticipating weeks of summer freedom.

They're asking us all to slow down and be a bit more alert. Do it for the kids.

Cottage offers speech, language program

Cottage Hospital, 159 Kercheval, will hold its annual summer speech and language program for local children from June 24 through July 31. The summer program supplements individual speech therapy sessions which are offered for children and adults throughout the year at Cottage Hospital.

The summer speech and language program is a six-week session of group and individual work with youngsters ages 3 to 15, who are being treated for speech, language or hearing problems.

The program is designed for children with mental handicaps, cerebral palsy, stuttering, cleft palate, delayed speech and language, hearing impairment, vocal abuse and difficulty with perception. Children who have problems with spelling, reading and writing due to learning disabilities are also given special attention.

The speech therapy summer program can help some youngsters maintain and continue progress begun in school speech therapy programs. It can also help many parents identify and obtain guidance in the early diagnosis and treatment of speech and learning problems.

Two weekly, hour-long sessions are held under the direction of Gary J. Cooper, Ph.D., C.C.C. Therapy is supervised by Margaret LaGrant, M.Ed., C.C.C., and conducted by the hospital staff of speech therapists, audiologists and other specialists. It is the only program of its kind in the area. Cottage Hospital is a crippled children's provider under Medicaid.

Interested parents should contact the Cottage Hospital Speech Therapy department at 884-8600, ext. 2187, for registration and information. Registration is limited to 60 children.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Peggy O'Connor

Thomas Wolfe may have thought you couldn't go home again, but former Trombley Road — Windmill Pointe Drive residents Garnet and Dwight Nelson are living proof that you can . . . provided you come "home" to Grosse Pointe, a thoughtful son, and loads of steadfast friends.

That's just what the Nelsons — who now live in Stuart, Fla., by way of Wisconsin after their Pointe days — did. Son Gregory Nelson, a product of Country Day School and Carrol College, Wisconsin, threw a spectacular cocktail and supper party for his parents in his new Trombley Road home. Garnet Nelson mailed the party invitations from her Florida home, not bothering to include an R.S.V.P., saying "Well, if our friends know we will be in town, and they're not busy, they will be there."

There were friends from the "Merry Go Rounders," friends who had seen the Nelsons in Florida, club friends, close personal friends and friends of son Greg's — in all, a great mix of people from the "welcome home — welcome to my home" party.

Added to the atmosphere was a Country Club of Detroit bartender who already knew the guests' preference, and plenty of good food prepared by Greg, his friend Deborah Carron and his mother.

Among the guests were Don and Leah Cherry, the Patrick Carrons, the Merediths, Peg Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Norm Leget, Mrs. Victor (Winnie) Mansour, Mr. and Mrs. William Milby, Mrs. Karl (Marie) Weber, Mr. and Mrs. George Williamson, Mrs. Aaron E. (Lou) Wilcox, Ann and Gerald Rackey, Bill and Fran Fox, Pat and John Doyle, George Van Lokeran and Danielle and Fred Van Asche.

Grosse Pointe's astrologer, Lou Wilcox, brought her "party" ephemeris and finally wound up in the den with guests who wanted to find out more about their "stars."

The Nelsons — who had two rental cars provided them by thoughtful son Greg — were entertained later that week by many of the party's guests. When she lived on Windmill Pointe Drive, Garnet was an active clubwoman (past president of Jenny Lind and Windmill Pointe Garden Club, first vice-president of the Detroit Review Club, as well as a member of the Grosse Pointe Women's Association of the Symphony, and the Detroit Women's Council of the Navy League, to name a few); so she had quite a few phone calls from old friends.

A busy Met week . . .

The recent Met Week, while Detroit's last, was a busy one, which began on Sunday, May 19, when the Detroit Grand Opera Association held a special testimonial dinner for Anthony A. Bliss, retiring general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, in the South Court of the Detroit Institute of Arts. Among the 150 D.G.O.A. supporters who enjoyed the black-tie affair were (from left to right in the top photo) D.G.O.A. president and general manager John B. Ford III and his wife, Peggy, of The Farms, Bliss and wife Sally, of New York City, and Barbara and Herbert I. Lord, of The Farms. Peggy Ford and Barbara Lord served as D.G.O.A. general chairman and co-chairman, respectively, for the 1984-85 season.

Then on Tuesday of Met Week (May 21), the D.G.O.A. hosted a luncheon for members of the Metropolitan Opera Company at Detroit's Riverfront Apartment complex. D.G.O.A. benefactors and Met Company members spent a sunny afternoon relaxing on the terrace overlooking the Detroit River and feasting on a buffet luncheon provided by the Detroit Athletic Club, Da'Edoardo and the Merry Mouse. At left with Mr. and Mrs. John B. Ford III are fellow Pointers Peggy and Donald M.D. Thurber.

Grosse Pointe Woman's Club officers

Grosse Pointe Woman's Club officers for 1985-86 were installed at the group's annual spring luncheon at the Lochmoor Club in mid-May. They are, from left to right, Mrs. Michael H. Schneider, treasurer; Mrs. Raymond J. Duffy, first vice-president; Mrs. George Gerow, president; Mrs. Edward Eissa, second vice-president; Mrs. John E. Engstrom, recording secretary; and Mrs. Henri Gelders, corresponding secretary. Although the club year has ended, the officers and executive board members will meet during the summer to plan the organization's 35th season. The Club's annual contributions this year went to the Foundation for Exceptional Children, the Children's Home of Detroit, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Family Fund, Leader Dog for the Blind and the Salvation Army. In addition, the Club presented Achievement Awards, which include a financial benefit, based on high scholastic achievement, good citizenship, leadership and participation of extracurricular activities. The 1985 recipients are Amelia Dugan, of Grosse Pointe North, and Kerry Bruce, of Grosse Pointe South.

Grand Prix Fever Party set for June 20

The Women's Division for Project Hope is "racing" toward an evening of unlimited excitement, the annual Grand Prix Fever Party, set this year for the Westin Hotel's Riverfront Ballroom at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, June 20.

All proceeds from the evening go directly to Project Hope to help provide health science around the world. Tickets are $30 per person, $75 for patrons and the attire for the party is "racing togs."

Patricia D. Auer is Project chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Keith E. Crain are honorary chairmen.

The evening will feature Mini Celebrity races with TV newsmen Rich Fisher and Mike Holfield, as well as race car drivers, sports personalities, media celebrities and auto executives. Prizes will be given to those who bet on the winning racers.

According to Project Hope's president Betty Gerisch, the evening is set to be a winner, with cocktails, a "winner's circle" buffet and desserts at every "pit stop." The Grand Prix Auction, always the highlight of the evening, is more spectacular this year, according to the auctioneers, Alice and Chuck Walby. Some of the auction items include a day at the spa, four tickets to the Grand Prix race and Winner's Circle, an eye lift, balloon rides, helicopter rides, jewelry and more.

Further information may be obtained by contacting the Project Hope office at 649-4775.

Rehab donation reception is this Sunday

Guests from the Birmingham-Bloomfield area, Detroit and the Grosse Pointes are expected to attend the 14th annual Donation Reception sponsored by the Rehabilitation Institute Auxiliary from 5 to 7 p.m. this Sunday, June 9, at the home of Mrs. Edwin N. Peabody.

Those attending will have a chance to view some of the new devices purchased by the Auxiliary to help the patients at the Rehabilitation Institute. The Institute is the largest specialty hospital for adult physical medicine and rehabilitation in the Midwest. Located in the Detroit Medical Center, the 175-bed hospital is a prime referral facility for physically disabled patients from Michigan and surrounding states.

This year, the Auxiliary is assisting in raising $30,000 for the construction of a model training apartment located in Occupational Therapy. The apartment will allow patients and their families training time in the activities of daily living in a home environment.

Mrs. Peabody is chairing this Sunday's Donation Reception, with assistance from Miss Mary Command, Mrs. Thomas Coulter, Mrs. Charles Insley, Mrs. Robert Lambrecht, Mrs. Fred Lewis, Mrs. Russell Peebles, Mrs. Joseph Smith, Mrs. Stanley Smith, Mrs. Robert Weber and Mrs. Phillip Dickinson.

Grand Marais Questers meet

Members of the Grand Marais Chapter of the Questers have invited husbands and other guests to help them celebrate the 20th anniversary of the chapter's founding with a potluck supper at the Kercheval Avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. Urban Boresch, this Sunday, June 9.

The group's historian, Mrs. Charles E. Fisher, will bring pictures highlighting past meetings and activities. Mrs. Joseph Thompson will present the evening's program, "Know Your Grosse Pointe."

In May of 1965, 22 enthusiastic women met to form the Grand Marais Chapter of the Questers, a national study club whose major objectives are to stimulate the appreciation and collection of antiques and to encourage the preservation and restoration of historic landmarks.

The name "Grand Marais" was selected since members felt it appropriate to choose a name which historically described the region of Grosse Pointe, which had been called "Grand Marais" or "Big Swamp" by early French settlers.

Eight of the original 22 members are still active in the chapter. They are Mrs. Boresch, Mrs. Cornelius Egan, Mrs. Fisher, Mrs. Ralph Jossman, Mrs. William Krebs, Mrs. Keith Leibbrand, Mrs. John McKay and Mrs. James P. Stuart Jr.

Throughout the chapter's 20-year history, membership has been at or near the maximum of 25. In all, 56 women have shared their interests and discoveries with Quester friends in the past years. The policy of members preparing and presenting most of the monthly meeting programs has not changed and as such, lives of members have been enriched by increased appreciation of objects, art or customs of an earlier day.

In addition, members have raised money to donate books about antiques to the Grosse Pointe public library and to make contributions to local restoration projects as well as to state and national Quester projects. For the Bicentennial year of 1976, the Grand Marais Chapter designed a window display of antiques for Jacobson's.

Pointe collectors display antiques

Wood's residents Kathleen Brys and Edward and Margaret Berry will display antiques at the Universal Mall Antique Show, June 12 through 16, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Pointe art in CCS show

Paintings by Grosse Pointe artists Heather Bokram, Carol A. Sinclair and Wanda Warezak are among the art works featured in the 59th annual Student Exhibition at the Center for Creative Studies — College of Art and Design.

The show runs through this Sunday, June 9, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily at CCS headquarters on East Kirby in Detroit's University cultural center. Free parking is available on campus. Further information may be obtained by calling 872-3118.

Farm and Garden Club entertained

The May meeting of the Grosse Pointe Farm and Garden Club was held in the home and gardens of Mrs. Charles A. Parcels Jr. Co-hostesses for the box luncheon were Mrs. Richard Bachmann and Mrs. Joseph Spitzley.

The highlight of the afternoon was the program of Jack McCarthy, local television celebrity, restaurateur and cookbook author, who entertained all with a witty dialogue on his multiple careers.

During the meeting Mrs. Roger Fridholm was introduced as the newest member, and it was announced that Mrs. John W. Hoag Jr., would also join the organization.

Winners of the April 10 Flower and Horticulture Show were also announced. Blue ribbons went to Mrs. Horace Carpenter Jr., Mrs. Cecil Lepard and Mrs. Robert F. Webber. Red ribbons were awarded to Mrs. John D. Durno and Mrs. John N. Failing Jr. Mrs. J. Crawford Frost, Mrs. Ralph T. McElvenny and Mrs. James F. Cordes received third prizes; while Mrs. James C. Stewart and Mrs. Robert G. Harwick merited honorable mention. Mrs. Hilary H. Micou Jr. won both blue and red ribbons, and Mrs. Wilber Hadley Mack won awards at all four levels.

The club will hold its final meeting of the year this Wednesday, June 12 at the Grosse Pointe Club.

Panhellenic seats 1985-86 officers

Mrs. Bruce Tock, Alpha Chi Omega, of The Park, passed her Detroit Alumnae Panhellenic Association presidential gavel to Mrs. Edward Sarkisian, of Farmington, Thursday, May 16, at Lochmoor Club, during the association's 66th annual meeting.

Serving as vice-president in 1985-86 will be Mrs. A.J. Mestrovic, of The Farms. Both Mrs. Sarkisian and Mrs. Mestrovic are members of Chi Omega sorority.

Mrs. William Wilson, Alpha Omicron Pi, of The Woods, will be cataloger-historian. Mrs. Joseph York, Sigma Kappa, of Farmington Hills, will serve as secretary. Mrs. Michael Vierk, Zeta Tau Alpha, of Lincoln Park, as treasurer.

Moonlight Serenade to benefit Harper

Anticipating an entertaining evening next Friday, June 14 — the night of the Harper Hospital Auxiliary fundraiser "Moonlight Serenade" Jazz II — are (left to right) Geraldine Swormstedt, of Bloomfield Hills, honorary chairman Robb Mahr, Dixie Bell and Chet Bogan, who will provide the evening's musical excitement with the big band sound of Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey, and Dixieland Jazz for dancing, Patricia Kenney, of Grosse Pointe, and Linnea Powers, of Detroit. The evening begins at 7:30 p.m. with music, food and an open bar at the Country Club of Detroit. Tickets, at $75 per person, are available by calling Mrs. Swormstedt from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday at 885-3130. The Harper Hospital Auxiliary is currently raising funds for the new cyclotron machine, developed in conjunction with Michigan State University, which will be used in the treatment of cancer at Harper's radiation oncology center. The Auxiliary has supported many new research projects and is already pledged to support the new diagnostic development scheduled to be announced soon. In addition, the group staffs the surgical lounge and the handy cart which serves hospital patients.

War Memorial's Service League recognizes volunteers

The War Memorial's Service League wrapped up another year of volunteerism at its annual luncheon, May 23. Program director Jan Arndt presented corsages to Virginia Kasza, president; Cindy Carson, vice-president; Marion Bockstanz, Docent chairman; Mary Jane Rousseau, hostess/host chairman; and Ruth McNamara, clerical chairman. Nancy Heenan, who was unable to attend, was recognized for her work as chairman of the House Committee.

"Fortunately, for us, the League luncheon doesn't mean they'll be taking the summer off as most groups do," said War Memorial executive director Mark

Weber. "The kinds of things they do for the Center are an integral part of our daily operation and we couldn't afford to lose them even for a week."

For example, without the House Committee all of the Center's plants would suffer from losing their weekly dose of tender loving care. If the Service League took the summer off there would be no hosts and hostesses at such special events as the upcoming Summer Music Festival, and large mailings announcing upcoming events would never get out to patrons. The popular summer Docent Tours of the historic site would also have to be forsaken, and no progress would be made on the painstaking task of repairing the Center's tapestries.

Dr. Weber presented certificates to all of the volunteers which read, "In appreciation of the invaluable services and cooperation extended."

Others who were present included Irene Blatchford, Betty Bradley, Jean Brett, Gladys Creiger-Spencer, Dorothy Crowley, Marie Cusmano, Ruth Doll, Mary Grace Donnelly, Mary Anne Draper, Paula Galvin, Grace Harrison, Peg Jordan, Betty Kaye, Mildred Koepplin, Dorothy Layher, Bonnie Manple, Trudy Seiferlein, Kay Welcembach, Beulah Wells, Bernice Wood and Dorothy Craig.

Visit Detroit churches on first Mondays with Historical Society

The 1985-86 schedule of first Monday-of-the-Month Tours to Detroit's historic churches is now available at the Detroit Historical Society. To obtain a copy, call the Society office (833-7934) or write 5401 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich. 48202.

Over 30 churches are visited during the season, five on each trip. Included are St. Anne, whose congregation dates to 1701; First Presbyterian, legally incorporated as the First Protestant Society in 1825; Fort Street Presbyterian, a Detroit landmark with its slender spire rising 265 feet from the street; Most Holy Trinity, the first English-speaking Roman Catholic parish in Detroit; Second Baptist, organized by 13 ex-slaves and the oldest black congregation in the state; and St. Paul's Episcopal. The original St. Paul's church dates to 1851 and was located at Congress and Shelby streets. The congregation gave the building to the fledgling Church of the Messiah and in 1901 it was moved to East Grand Boulevard and Lafayette. The Church of the Messiah is also visited on these tours.

Historic Church Tours leave the Detroit Historical Museum at 10:15 a.m. and return at 3:30 p.m. Luncheon is included in the ticket price of $7.50 for non-members, $6 for members of the Detroit Historical Society.

The Detroit Historical Society and the Detroit Historical Museum, in co-sponsorship with the National Society of Colonial Dames of America, present these tours to acquaint Metropolitan Detroiters with the contributions the institutions have made in the development of the religious and cultural life of our area and to emphasize the vital necessity of maintaining these buildings as visible reminders of our heritage.

Due to a limited number of tickets, advanced prepaid reservations are necessary. Telephone reservations cannot be accepted. Make checks payable to the Detroit Historical Society and mail to 5401 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich., 48202.

DRC Friendship Tea plans are on course

Detroit Review Club member Sue Nine is in the unenviable position of having to be in two places at one time. Sue, of Bloomfield Hills, will be with husband Paul Nine in Traverse City for the Grand Opening of the Grand Traverse Resort ... and wing it home just in time to play hostess to the Detroit Review Club's Friendship Tea on Tuesday, June 18.

The Nines are well-involved with the resort — an 830-acre operation which at present includes a hotel and 150 condominiums with more to come — as Paul Nine is the attorney who put together the financial plans for the resort and Sue was in charge of decorating the hotel. Jack Nicklaus served as golf course designer for the resort and Sue Nine will leave Nicklaus, her husband and former President Gerald Ford at the grand opening ceremonies to fly back home for her Friendship Tea.

"Having two things to do at the same time seems to be par for the course for me," Sue Nine jokes.

In speaking of the Friendship Tea at the DRC's recent luncheon at the Lochmoor Club, Sue told of her pleasure in her DRC associations and mentioned that she was happier still at being able to open her Bloomfield Hills home for the club's annual Friendship Tea. The Nines work hard for local charities and DRC has a track record for philanthropic work dating back to 1894. The DRC itself has been in existence since 1891.

Members and guests at the Lochmoor Club luncheon were given maps detailing directions to the Nines' home, and listened to announcements from Betty Gerisch, Norah Houlihan and Lou Wilcox, past president and co-chairman with Betty Gerisch of the 1985-86 programs, detailing this fall's events. The DRC's schedule includes the annual program slated this year for Tuesday, Sept. 17, and the November benefit and fashion show.

The Friendship Tea, though, is first on the agenda. It will run from 12:30 to 3 p.m. There will be no charge for members or guests, but the Donation Bowl (the contents of which go to help with DRC's many charitable projects) will be in evidence. Prospective new members accompanied by DRC members will be most welcome — and all will get a chance to enjoy the Nines' home and hear about the Grand Traverse Resort from Sue Nine.

"Bring a friend to meet your friends," is DRC's slogan for the annual Friendship Tea.

Discussing plans for the Detroit Review Club's 94th season which begins this fall, were (left to right) Mrs. Robert Gerisch, of Bloomfield Hills, past-president and program chairman; Mrs. James Houlihan, of Warren, first vice-president and benefit chairman; and Mrs. Aaron E. Wilcox, of Grosse Pointe, past-president and co-chairman of the program committee. The three gathered with other Review Club members recently for luncheon at the Lochmoor Club.

Music School offers class

A variety of summer opportunities for students of all ages and all musical interests will be available in the Grosse Pointe area this summer when the Detroit Community Music School will offer classes at University Liggett School, 1045 Cook Road. For schedule information and registration, call the Detroit Community Music School at 831-2870.

Detroit jazz artist Bess Bonnier will teach jazz improvisation for high school and adult instrumentalists. Other classes including modern dance, group voice classes for high school singers, group piano for adults and Orff classes for young children are offered at various times and costs.

Also included in this summer's offerings is a pre-Suzuki class for the family whose child will begin Suzuki training in the fall. The eight-session introduction prepares both parent and child for the commitment and involvement necessary in Suzuki programs.

Another special two-session class is called "So You Want to Get into Music School." These sessions will help prepare the serious high school musician who plans to enter a music program at the college level. It answers questions about auditioning, placement test, theory requirements, etc.

All classes are taught by Detroit Community Music School faculty at the ULS location. In addition to these summer classes, private lessons in piano, strings, brass and woodwind instruments are also offered through June and July.

Actors Alliance theater schedule set

The Actors Alliance Theatre Company's 1985-86 schedule has been set and according to Artistic Director Jeffrey M. Nahan, has been expanded to feature seven plays including dramas, musicals, mysteries and comedies.

The season will open with the Michigan premiere of "Going to See the Elephant," a drama developed through improvisation at the Los Angeles Repertory Theatre in 1982, playing Sept. 6 through Oct. 12.

The American classic drama, "The Subject Was Roses," by Frank Gilroy, will follow Oct. 18 through Nov. 23. The production will feature Carl Knisley, who received critical acclaim for his performances in the Actors Alliance productions of Meyer Levin's "Anne Frank," and N. Richard Nash's "The Rainmaker."

The holiday presentation of Nahan's adaptation of "Miracle on 34th Street," runs Nov. 29 through Jan. 4. "Celebration," a musical by Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt will be featured Jan. 17 through Feb. 23, 1986, followed by Henrik Ibsen's mystery "Ghosts," March 7 through April 13.

Arthur Kopit's comedy "End of the World," will have its Michigan premiere April 25 through May 25. The season will draw to a close during the months of June and July with the musical "Fiddler on the Roof," by Stein, Harnick and Bock.

August vows are planned

Mr. and Mrs. Michael A. Gaskin, of Lochmoor Boulevard, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Catherine Mary, to Randall Lee Collins, son of Richard C. Collins, of Grand Rapids, and Margaret Hawkins, of Peoria, Ill. An August wedding is planned.

Miss Gaskin is a graduate of Grosse Pointe North High School. She is majoring in Fashion Merchandising and Business at Western Michigan University, and expects to graduate in June, 1986. She is a member of FABS, a club for fashion and business students at WMU.

Mr. Collins is also a WMU student who expects to graduate in 1986; he is majoring in Political Science with a Business minor.

Carter-Yockey rites are read

Barbara Lynn Yockey and Richard Kenneth Carter exchanged marriage vows Saturday, March 30, in the Alumni Memorial Chapel at Michigan State University. An uncle of the bridegroom, Mr. Clinton Bell, of Waterloo, Ont., officiated at the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at Kellogg Center on the Michigan State University campus.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Yockey, of Plymouth, wore a full length, traditional white gown designed with a cathedral train, lace leg-o-mutton sleeves, a lace and seed pearl bodice and high lace neckline. Her satin hat matched the gown and held a long veil which trailed down the back. She carried white roses and carnations, ivy and baby's-breath.

Patricia Yockey, of San Diego, Calif., was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids included Sally Johnston, of Morgantown, W. Va., Cheri Chandler, fiancée of the bride's brother, and Mrs. Pam Yockey, the bride's sister-in-law. A niece of the bride, Zoe Yockey, was flower girl.

Matt Ottinger was best man for his friend, who is the son of Mrs. Kittie Carter, a former Grosse Pointe Woods resident who now lives in Detroit, and the late Kenneth W. Carter. Groomsmen were Tyrone Tiedeman, Michael Carter, of Dallas, Texas, a brother of the bridegroom, and Michael Yockey, a brother of the bride. Ushers included W. Stephen Carter, of Riverside, Calif., another brother of the bridegroom, and Kurt Yockey, another of the bride's brothers.

Mrs. Glada Quinn was organist for the ceremony, at which Ms. Johnston, one of the bridesmaids, sang "Longer" and "Love Drops."

Mrs. Zoe Yockey, the bride's great-aunt, was an honored guest.

The couple vacationed in Orlando, Fla., and are at home at Clifford Lake, Stanton, Mich. The bride, a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School who holds a Bachelor of Arts in Business Administration degree from Michigan State University and a Juris Doctor from West Virginia University, is an associate attorney with Miel & Miel Law Firm in Stanton. Mr. Carter, a Grosse Pointe North High School graduate who holds Bachelor of Arts degrees in Geology and Computer Science from MSU, is an associate software engineer with Rapistan in Grand Rapids.

Pair planning July wedding

Late July wedding plans are being made by Sheila Camden Hutchison and Robert Neil Hercules. Miss Hutchison is the daughter of Robert C. Hutchison and of Mrs. Linda Hart, both of The Park. Mr. Hercules is the son of Mr. and Mrs.

Floyd Doyle, of Milford.

The bride-elect is an alumna of Grosse Pointe South High School. She has attended Michigan State University and Wayne State University and is presently a student at Columbia University, Chicago, Ill.

Her fiancé, a Milford High graduate, holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Western Michigan University and a Master of Arts from the University of Michigan.

Camp Fire 'outreach' continues

Camp Fire's outreach program for city elementary school children received a grant of $15,000 from the Skillman Foundation. This financial support from the private sector of the community will help Camp Fire Detroit Area Council to continue to provide programs of group-learning skills and self-reliance development for children in the Detroit Public Schools.

"When interested adults help children learn new skills and gain confidence in their ability to use them, children naturally come to understand and respect work, health and love," said John W. Pugh, Executive Director of Camp Fire Detroit Area Council.

In-School Camp Fire Clubs meet during the school day for 90 minutes on alternate weeks. Significant segments of each meeting are guided by trained volunteer adults who share responsibilities with parents for showing children ways to go.

Camp Fire's Special Programs Director, Kathleen Stokes, stressed the values that adult-leadership role models offer. "Children and parents alike benefit from the individual attention that is paid to participants in small groups," she said. Boys and girls in similar-age groups work on projects that promote decision-making, social-skill development, and having fun together.

This past year's Camp Fire In-School Clubs served nearly 300 first through fourth graders in five city-schools. The support of the Detroit Public Schools, the United Foundation, the Black United Fund, and other community foundations contributed to the inaugural-year success of In-School Camp Fire Clubs.

Camp Fire Detroit Area Council is in its 73rd year of service to young people in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Livingston counties. The Council is increasingly recognized for its dedication to the development of youth through life-learning experiences that trained volunteer adults offer. Club members are enrolled in small groups of similar ages from kindergartners through 12th-graders. All activities are informal and coeducational. The Detroit Area Council is supported by funding from the United Foundation, by grants from foundations and corporations, as well as gifts and contributions from individuals.

The best way to control a child's behavior

You may have heard someone say, "Children today don't do what their parents tell them!" But what can parents do when children don't behave the way they want?

There are basically three types of responses parents use in dealing with their children, according to Growing Up, the newsletter for parents of school age children. These responses are "helpless," "hostile," and "effective."

The helpless parent — The helpless parent immediately admits defeat, even before the child knows clearly what behavior is expected of him. The helpless parent frequently makes gigantic threats — which the child knows will never be carried out.

For example: Helpless parents: "When will you ever get started on your homework?" Child: "I just want to watch some TV." Helpless parent: "I don't know what to do with you. You never listen to what I say. I swear you won't get any present from me for your birthday!"

The child is usually well aware that the parent's threat can't or won't be carried out. When the parent admits defeat this way, the child gains control.

The hostile parent — The hostile parent also operates from a position of weakness. But he or she tries to cover up feelings of inadequacy and insecurity by angry and sarcastic words which are sometimes accompanied by physical violence.

Hostile parent: "Get started on your homework or I'll box your ears!" Child: "I just want to watch some TV." Hostile parent: "You are the worst kid I have ever known. You are a real dummy. I'll bet you end up in jail someday!"

The hostile parent frequently overreacts to a particular situation — like using an elephant gun to scare a mouse. A milder, more reasonable approach is more likely to gain the child's respect and bring about cooperation.

The effective parent — The effective parent tells a child exactly what is expected and what the consequences will be if the child doesn't comply. Effective parents apply punishments immediately and consistently — no ifs, ands or butts about it!

Effective parent: "It's time to do your homework." Child: "I just want to watch some TV." Effective parent: "No, you may not, because we agreed last night that there would be no television tonight unless your room was tidied. If you get your room cleaned by 6 p.m. tomorrow night — including putting all your shoes and socks away neatly — then you will be allowed to watch one hour of television tomorrow evening — after your homework is finished."

Knowing in advance what the Volunteer guide is available

A new Volunteer Opportunities Guide for Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties is now available from United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit (UCS), a Torch Drive agency. The guide is free and may be obtained by calling the UCS Volunteer Action Center at 833-0622.

More than 200 organizations are listed, from community centers and libraries to programs for the elderly and health promotion agencies; each needing volunteers of all ages. There are evening, weekend and weekday volunteer opportunities for almost everyone.

According to Ken Hollowell,

It's 'Acknowledge the Widow Week'

In recognition of "Acknowledge the Widow Week" in Michigan June 10 through 16, widows in the immediate area are invited to an Ice Cream Social at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 10, in the Dearborn Civic Center, Michigan and Greenfield avenues.

That will also be the time to get in on the Widow's Organization's rules are, knowing that the rules will be applied consistently, and knowing what the consequences will be for breaking the rules gives a child a feeling of security. The child knows what is expected, what behavior will be tolerated, and what will happen if these limits are ignored.

The Growing Up newsletter follows a child's development through the school years. For more information, write to Growing up, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Ind., 47902. Include child's school grade when writing.

chairman of the Volunteer Action Center Committee. "We know that people do respond when they know they are needed and have a way of getting in contact. That's what the guide is all about."

The UCS Volunteer Action Center is the area's central clearinghouse for the promotion of volunteerism. Beyond publishing the guide, the center provides agencies with consultation and training in volunteer program management, works with companies to encourage employee/retiree volunteering, recognizes outstanding volunteers and sponsors training in effective non-profit board membership.

Reserve space on 'showboat'

The trip includes an early dinner at Chesaning Heritage House, a stately mansion built in 1908. After dinner there will be time to explore the "Olde Home Shoppes" on the Boulevard, which include eight restored homes built in the early 1900s that now serve as unique shops. Show time, with the 1985 Showboat's attraction, the Osmond Brothers, follows.

The bus leaves the War Memorial at 12:30 p.m. and returns at 1:30 a.m. The $42 per person cost includes transportation, dinner and the performance. To reserve space, send a check or money order to the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236.

Pointer of Interest

By Michael McConnell

Glenn A. Wesselmann, the President and Chief Executive Officer of St. Clair Health Corporation and St. John Hospital, is looking forward to the opening of the hospital's new Concentrated Care Building this Sunday, June 9.

"The new building," said Wesselmann, "will help us to respond to emergencies and the day-to-day activities more effectively. It will upgrade our services."

The five-story building represents a 250,000 square foot addition to the hospital. It will contain new facilities for labor, delivery, pediatrics, inpatient and outpatient surgery, critical and coronary care, admitting, emergency, Express Care, radiology and a laboratory.

The Emergency Center is designated as one of 50 major emergency trauma centers in the nation. The hospital handles almost 50,000 patients a year. According to Wesselmann, the Express Care feature of the new center will allow quicker treatment for minor illnesses and injuries. "I think we are seeing more of an emphasis on out-patient care," said Wesselmann.

The planning process for the building was begun in the late 70s.

"We took the staff on a retreat to talk about the changes we thought we'd need. We hope the building will reflect not only the needs of the staff but also a more comfortable environment for the patients."

Another reason for the new building was the need for more space to accommodate the advancements in medical equipment. "The original hospital was designed in the 1950s and it didn't leave much room for the technological advancements that have occurred over the years," Wesselmann said.

HE CREDITS his predecessor, James T. Farley, for his far-sightedness in anticipating St. John Hospital's need for the new facilities and renovations. Farley retired as president and Chief Executive Officer of St. Clair Health Corporation and St. John Hospital early last year.

Wesselmann began his tenure at St. John in 1979 as Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer after spending more than 20 years in administrative capacities at the Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Disease in New York.

He became interested in hospital administration as a result of a two-year stint as a U.S. Army Medical Corpsman in the mid-1950s.

A resident of Grosse Pointe Shores, Wesselmann said he enjoys his community life. "St. John has one of the best records in the country in terms of community support," he said.

Wesselmann is a graduate of the Cornell University Graduate School of Business and Public Administration where he received a Master of Business Administration degree with distinction. He holds an undergraduate degree from Dartmouth College.

Wesselmann's community activities include chairmanship of the east area hospital United Foundation Drive, Leadership Detroit III, Leadership Detroit Alumni Association, St. John Hospital Guild and United Methodist Church of Grosse Pointe.

WESSELMANN SEES changes ahead for most hospitals. "It's a changing health care field," he said. "Most of us don't know what to expect beyond the next five years or so."

"This institution has enjoyed a visionary reputation. Farley was a master at planning. I inherited what he created."

While Wesselmann acknowledges those who complain that St. John Hospital can be an impersonal institution, he adds, "We feel we can now do a better job of taking care of individuals and we will. We like to be as personal and committed as possible."

Toward this end, Wesselmann said that St. John is as current in modern technologies as any hospital in the state and probably the most well-equipped hospital on the east side of Detroit. Also, all patient rooms are now being carpeted in soft colors in an attempt to quiet the hospital environment.

Wesselmann is chairman of the Sisters of Saint Joseph Management System Planning Committee and a member of the Association of American Medical Colleges Council of Teaching Hospitals for which he has served as Institutional Representative since 1971.

He said the move here from Memorial Hospital in New York, where he had spent 20 years as an easy transition. "I knew a lot of people here. I grew up in Ohio so I was still a midwesterner at heart."

Wesselmann and his wife, Genevieve have three children, who share one abiding family characteristic — an interest in cooking. "We all like to cook," he said, "probably because we like to eat . . ."

His son is a professional cook and his eldest daughter manages a French restaurant while she pursues an interest in writing. Genevieve Wesselmann has a master's degree in nutrition from Wayne State University.

"I like to work with wood, so my current avocation is building grandfather clocks and mantle clocks from kits."

Wesselmann says he also enjoys tennis, photography and collecting sea shells. Although he's listed in "Who's Who in America," he is probably best known to his neighbors by a more familiar signature. "One of the family marks is an Old English Sheepdog that dominates the neighborhood," he said.

Elegant Eating

A selection of recipes from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol — and penny-wise — collection of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth, featuring this week, more FOODS THAT BEAT DISEASE.

Leafy green vegetables — lettuce, kale and spinach — supply much of the body's nutrients. Lettuce contains alicyclic and folic acid, considered cancer fighters, plus vitamins A, B complex, C and E, iron, potassium and calcium. Other sources of folic acid are spinach, deep green vegetables, liver, peas and beans. Kale and spinach head the nutrition list because they contain a substantial amount of chlorophyll, which combats the tendency of cancer-causing agents to cause genetic damage to body cells. Spinach contains nearly two dozen of the trace minerals essential to good health and has only 28 calories per half cup.

BROWN RICE AND SPINACH CASSEROLE
2 quarts washed spinach leaves
2 Tbsp. margarine
2 Tbsp. flour
2 cups skim milk
1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Salt to taste
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
6 cups cooked brown rice
1/2 cup whole wheat bread crumbs

Place the spinach in a large kettle with just the water clinging to the leaves. Cover and cook until wilted. Drain well. Squeeze out excess water and chop.

Melt the margarine, stir in the flour and gradually blend in the skim milk. Stir in the vinegar. Mixture will curdle but as it heats and is stirred, it will smooth out. Heat while stirring, until mixture thickens. Stir in the cheese, salt and nutmeg.

Mix the spinach and the rice into the sauce and pour into an oiled casserole. Sprinkle top with bread crumbs and dot with 1 tablespoon margarine. Bake in preheated 325 degree oven for 20 minutes. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Calories about 253 for each of 10 servings.
Cholesterol about 6 mgs.

COLCANNON
Traditionally an Irish dish, this is a favorite all over Ireland. However, if kale is unavailable, cabbage is often substituted for the kale.
1 1/2 lb. potatoes, peeled, and cut into chunks
1 lb. kale, washed and cut into bite-size pieces
1/2 cup skim milk
1/4 cup evaporated skim milk
6 scallions, white and green part, thinly sliced
Salt to taste
Freshly ground pepper
2 Tbsp. melted margarine

Cook potatoes until tender in boiling water which has been lightly salted. Drain, mash and keep warm. Cook kale in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and finely chop.

Heat milk and evaporated skimmed milk until hot but not boiling. Add scallions to hot milk, blend thoroughly. Beat mixture into potatoes, and then beat in finely chopped kale until light and fluffy. Season with salt and pepper and place in a deep dish. Make a well in the center and fill with the melted margarine. Spoon some of the melted margarine over each of 6 servings.

BEEF GREENS VINAIGRETTE
1 1/2 lbs. beef greens
1 large clove garlic, minced
2 Tbsp. vegetable oil
1 Tbsp. red wine vinegar
Salt
Pepper
Wash greens and shake off excess water. Cut stems in 1/2-inch lengths, and very coarsely chop leaves. Put leaves and stems in steamer and cook covered over moderately low heat for 3 to 5 minutes, or until they are just tender. Drain.
In a skillet saute garlic in oil for 1 minute. Stir in beet greens, vinegar, salt and pepper. Cook for 3 to 4 minutes, or until thoroughly heated. Makes 3 servings.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

Nobody asked me . . .

Want to know what I think about last week's indictment of several men in Pittsburgh in connection with drug charges and Major League Baseball? I think it stinks. Mainly the part about how much of the information about those indicted came from Major League baseball players who were also involved with drugs . . . but who were granted immunity in exchange for their information.

What a perfect lesson for the youth of America! In short, they now get the idea that you can "play" without paying . . . as long as you make enough money to pay a good lawyer. And what about the guys (like Kansas City's Willie Wilson and pitching great Vida Blue) who have already taken the fall and spent time in jail on drug convictions. No amount of tough talk by baseball commissioner Peter Ueberroth on how everybody connected with Major League baseball — except the players — must undergo drug testing can make this one go away. There's definitely something wrong when the guys who allegedly sold the drugs and made the connections are indicted but the guys who allegedly bought the drugs (and used them, one presumes) and blew the whistle can get off.

Almost as unbelievable as that situation was the one I caught on a TV news program last week after the terrible soccer riot in Brussels, Belgium. The moderator of the program asked one of his guests, the editor of a British soccer magazine, what he thought the reasoning behind the British soccer "hooliganism" was.

The magazine editor, with a perfectly straight face, opined as to how he thought that the behavior of the British soccer fans, particularly those from impoverished Liverpool, was a reflection of the fans' "socio-economic status." In other words, because they are poor and/or jobless and undereducated, the Liverpool fans had a perfect right to go berserk and cause a bloody riot at a sporting event which killed 38 people and injured scores more. Right?

Makes perfect sense to me. After all, don't we all have a perfect right in this world to go around making other people miserable because we think we don't have what we deserve? And, the editor of a soccer magazine in Great Britain certainly knows more about the temperament of the average soccer-mad citizen of Liverpool than I.

I just had one question after I turned the show off: if the fans in question were so poor and downtrodden, how'd they get enough money to travel to Brussels to watch a soccer match in the first place?

Not nearly as serious, but thought-provoking just the same are the questions nearly everyone is asking these days: "What's wrong with the Tigers?" "What's happened to the Tigers?" And the ever-popular "Are the Blue Jays for real?"

While I get a great big kick out of answering "I don't know," "Your guess is as good as mine," and "Of course they are, silly," to the aforementioned questions, I somehow feel obligated (pressured into? forced? goaded?) to come up with a much more serious, intelligent answers as befitting my title of sports editor.

So here they are:

There's nothing wrong with the Tigers that a 52-game home stand against the Cleveland Indians and the Texas Rangers wouldn't cure. And what's happened to the Tigers is that they didn't win 35 of their first 40 games, like they did last year, settling instead for a mere mortal-like record of 26-21 after 47 games. As for the Blue Jays, they're as real as any major league team with such a silly name can be.

Still not satisfied? Okay. If the Blue (chuckle, chuckle) Jays are still in first place by 4½ games on Oct. 6, I will go boldly out on a limb of the elm which graced the front of this newspaper's office for so long and say that something really bad happened to the Tigers, that there's something awfully wrong with the team and that the Blue Jays are for real.

That's the best I can do.

Get a sports honor this spring? Sign a letter of intent? Decide where you will play sports next season? Those who just completed their spring sports seasons on behalf of the teams at North High, South High and University Liggett School, should let the News' sports section know about their accomplishments. Call 882-0294 or drop by the office between 9-5 daily.

Hockey tryouts

North High varsity hockey coach Mike Manzella will conduct summer tryouts for the 1985-86 Norsemen hockey team from 11 a.m. to noon, June 17 through 21 at the Grosse Pointe Community Rink.

Further information on the tryouts may be obtained by calling Manzella at 777-6534.

One look at the dejected Blue Devils (right) proves it just wasn't South's day in the baseball districts at North High last Saturday. For that matter, it wasn't anybody's day except Bishop Gallagher, which beat South, 15-2, and North, 10-2. Roseville's Wildcats weren't having any more fun than South's bench, losing 10-0 to the Norsemen. More pictures of the district playoffs may be found on Page 3C.

Yes, Virginia, the streak is over

By Peggy O'Connor

Sharp-witted University Liggett School tennis fans know by now that the Knights' 13-year string of state tennis championships — longest in the nation's history — ended last Saturday when Kalamazoo Hackett outscored ULS, 24 points to 20. Detroit Country Day School finished third with 17 points. But the fans may not know EXACTLY when the streak ended. Bob Wood

"As soon as it was decided — at 11:35 a.m. Saturday at Stowe Stadium in Kalamazoo — I immediately went over to the coach of Kalamazoo Hackett and congratulated him. And when it was all over, our kids shook the hands of the Hackett kids. We went out just as I thought we would," ULS head coach Wood said.

ULS's Mike Foze won the No. 4 singles flight and John Birgbauer and Scott Watson were the state champs at No. 1 doubles. No. 1 singles player Marc Hunt was runner-up at that flight.

Wood was inundated by telephone calls from wire services, newspapers and television stations after his team's streak ended. Wood himself, however, knew the end was near some time ago.

"You're not going to beat a team that has several nationally-ranked players with a team which has none. It just isn't going to happen. Well, maybe it'll happen once, but we needed more than once last weekend," Wood said.

ULS, which was ranked No. 3 in Class C-D, could not hope to compete with teams like Hackett which had several ranked players. Hackett was capable of winning all the singles flights with its many returning players on a team which dropped from Class B to Class C-D competition this year. ULS had lost five players from last year's championship squad.

"Hackett deserved the win, we knew they'd be formidable with their returning players. We went into the states as decided underdogs. We did our best. The players and I were more relaxed because we knew it was just a matter of time . . ." Wood added.

The entire east side, not just ULS, has experienced a drought in top-ranked players in recent years. South High singles star Thad Angyl is the only Western ranked player on the east side, Wood said. The west, including teams like Cranbrook which has won six straight state championships in Class B and has three Western-ranked players on its middle school team, seems to be getting the top-ranked netters that ULS and other east side schools have gotten in the past, he added.

"All in all, I was pleased with the behavior of our kids when the match — and our streak — and ended," Wood said.

Lancers douse Pointe hopes in districts

By Peggy O'Connor

Rule No. 1: When facing Bishop Gallagher High School in varsity baseball district tournaments, do not allow said Bishop Gallagher to take a lead of four or more runs early in the game.

Rule No. 2: If you break Rule No. 1, you don't have to worry about Rule No. 2. Which is exactly what happened to the varsity squads at South and North in the baseball districts at North High on June 1. Gallagher (35-6) bounced South, 15-2, in the opening game and beat North, 10-2, in the district final after the Norsemen had merited Roseville, 10-0.

"You can't let them get ahead of you because they just keep going. You get that many runs down (South trailed 4-0 after half an inning) and the kids just lose confidence, they don't believe they can come back," said South coach Dan Griesbaum.

South trailed, 7-0, after two innings, despite sharp efforts from catcher Anthony Eugenio and Tom Fellows, who tried to put together a South rally in the second. Blue Devil starting pitcher Rick Leonard gave way to Rico Cordova, who gave up five runs. Jerry Joliet finished the game.

South scored in the third inning when Sean Bruce walked, Mike Hennessey (who finished the year batting .443) doubled and Rob Wood batted in a run on a sharp ground single. The final South run of the day crossed the plate when Rick Waugaman's grounder to first was booted around after Gallagher ace pitcher Dave Peralta (playing first base after the second inning) went for the ball instead of covering the bag. The pair of runs were all South could manage.

"We haven't seen anybody this season that compare with Gallagher. To beat them, you have to get ahead and stay with them in the late innings," Griesbaum said.

"Overall, I'm pleased with our season. We're a little disappointed we didn't win the league and a little disappointed with the way things ended on Saturday, but we had an excellent season and accomplished a lot of things," he added.

Griesbaum looks forward to next season, he says, when starters Cordova, Leonard and Joliet will return. The trio combined for 18 wins this season. South will lose power-hitters Eugenio, Hennessey and Waugaman, but hope to combine a solid core of returning players with this year's district experience and a summer of competition in the Connie Mack League, as a base for next season. The Devils finished with a 21-10 record overall.

"We expect to see some excellent competition in that league and that will help. You have to play this game as much as possible — like Gallagher does — to be successful," Griesbaum says.

FRANK SUMBERA'S North High team (25-12) had a little more success in its first district game, needing only five innings to take a mercy rule-shortened 10-0 win over the 6-16 Roseville Wildcats. Dan Kopitzke pitched the first two innings, allowing no hits and striking out two while North batters built a seven-run lead that allowed Sumbera to move him to centerfield and save his pitching arm for Gallagher in the finals. Craig Engel struck out five, allowed three hits, walked none in finishing the game.

North's Pat Kilcline had two hits including a two-run homer and Dennis D'Agnesse had two hits and two RBI. Senior Frank Vento got the North offense started, leading off and drawing two walks, collecting a single and two stolen bases. Kopitzke had two hits, including an RBI-triple. Kilcline's homer with pinch-runner Bill Miller on base ended the game at 10-0.

"The kids did what I asked them to do," said Sumbera. "They knew what had happened in the first game and they responded well against Roseville, putting them away early so we could get a little rest before facing Gallagher."

But the way Gallagher was playing on Saturday, even a lot of rest may not have helped the Norsemen. The Lancers wasted little time in getting on top of North, touching Kopitzke for six runs in two innings, including a three-run homer by centerfielder Mike Fici, who just caught a curve and sent it over the fence. D'Agnesse relieved Kopitzke in the bottom of the second, striking out five and walking five in closing out the game.

North got its first run when Steve Pochmaro walked, and second (Continued on Page 3C)

Week of upsets in Babe Ruth League

The leaders topped the Woods-Cubs, 9-5, with Bryan Jones notching the win. Jones struck out 11; Rob Feola had two hits.

The Phillies dropped an eight inning decision, 8-7, to the Farns-Tigers. A wild throw in the eighth sent the winning run home. Dave Hall was the victor and Matt Montagne got the loss. Feola and Pat DeLaere each had two hits for the Phils.

The Phillies edged the Braves, 9-7, before bowing to the Farns-Indians, 15-9, in their other game. The Padres dropped a 4-0 decision to the Woods-Astros.

Doug Lucas tossed a three-hit shutout, fanning 10, as the Dodgers nipped the Woods-Expos, 1-0. Lucas' sacrifice fly in the first scored Dave Salkowski with the game's only run. Salkowski and Ferit Nazarko collected two hits for the winners.

The Dodgers beat the Padres, 11-5, behind the pitching of Salkowski and Matt Turner. Salkowski also had two hits and two RBI. Lucas had three doubles, scored three runs, drove in one and stole three bases in this game. Nick Saros singled and tripled to drive in three runs and Eric Zihlman rapped out a two-run double for the Dodgers. Kevin Dietz tripled for the Padres.

The Dodgers managed only three hits in an 8-4 loss to the Woods-Cubs in a game which featured 19 walks and five errors. The winners rallied for four runs in the seventh to break a 4-4 tie.

Marcus Wysocki fanned 16 and scattered six hits as the Braves tripped the Farns-Yankees, 5-2. James Cimini and Jay Verlinden contributed two hits each and Alex Dillon and Mike Matthews had three hits apiece.

With only one game remaining for the Farns-City Babe Ruth first half schedule, the Tigers have clinched that title and a spot in the league playoffs. The first half records were — Tigers 8-1, Red Sox 5-4, Yankees 4-5 and Indians 3-5.

After falling behind, 4-2, in the first inning, the Tigers rallied for eight runs in the fifth and sixth innings and won, 12-4. Andy Bryant came on in relief for the Tigers and pitched four perfect innings for the win. Rusty Knowles provided the save while Jim Johnson and Scott Adihoch each provided three Tiger hits. George Ayrault went all the way for the Padres.

Although the Tigers were outthrew 11-9 by the Yankees and trailed early, the Tigers provided six runs in the fourth and one more in the bottom of the last inning to break the tie and win, 7-6. Knowles, in relief of Johnson and Dave Hall, picked up the win. Sean Cleland collected two hits including a long drive with the bases loaded for the game winner. Knowles helped his own case with three hits. Yankees with multiple hits were Mark Matthews with three; Barry Brookes, Bill Leonard and Charlie Roby with two each.

In one of the best played games of the season, the Red Sox matched their ace Pitcher Mark Belanger against the Tiger star Knowles. Both pitched three five-hitters, while Knowles struck out 11 Red Sox and Belanger struck out nine. However, the Red Sox broke a 3-3 tie in the sixth inning and held on for the 4-3 win. Down and out before his game even started was this Roseville Wildcat, (left), beamed by a ball that got away on the field — while he walked through the stands. Below, left, North coach Frank Sumner makes sure Frank Vento slides in scoring one of North's 10 runs against Roseville. Below, right, South coach Dan Griesbaum watches Rick Waugaman take his cuts. And above, one of the cheerier moments for North in its 10-2 loss to Bishop Gallagher, high fives at the plate after a Dennis D'Agnesse homer.

baseman Tim Rice, who made many excellent fielding plays in both games, was hit by a pitch with one out in the third. Kopitzke singled him home and with runners at first and third, catcher Bryan Ulatowski struck out.

D'Agnesse's solo homer made the final 10-2, and North's only other real chance that day went for naught when the Norsemen failed to capitalize on Gallagher's error in the first. Kopitzke was safe on second when the Gallagher outfielders misplayed an easy fly ball into a two-base error. But pitcher Peralta got a big strikeout to end that inning.

"They are a very good baseball team... no doubt the best in the state no matter what the rankings say," Sumner said. "They had seven starters back and they play a very tough schedule."

"I have to be pleased. Having the kind of year we did, winning the league and finishing as the second best team in this district. Any time you get a team that can win 25 games in a season, you've got to be pleased," he said of his team.

University Liggett School spring sports teams honored

The University Liggett School girls' track and field team finished their season with an awards ceremony on May 23 and a trip to the Greenhills Relays in Ann Arbor on May 24.

At the Annual Spring Awards Banquet, coaches Cathy Schmidt, Sue Frederick and Josh Schmidt awarded the Most Valuable Player trophy to sophomore Lydia Alexander, a gritty and determined athlete, achieved personal bests in all her events this year and was a crucial factor in the team's 15-1 record. Never missing a meet, Alexander was the team's leading scorer, with 114½ points picked up in long jump, high jump, 100 meter hurdles and the 400 meter relay. She currently holds the school record for the 100 meter hurdles and the 400 meter relay. She currently holds the school record for the 100 meter hurdles. The Most Improved Player trophy went to Kavita Sood. Sood, who could not run one time around the track without stopping as recently as March, ended the season as a successful 3200 meter runner. Junior varsity letters went to Kelly Bailer, Lisa Beizai, Danne Bullock, Lisa Cipriano, Barb Herzig, Pam Hickey, Phan Lam, Elizabeth Mannino, Scarlet Parris, Vara Samudrala, Sood and Wendy Willett.

Varsity letters were won by Alexander, Rebecca Boone, Samantha DeSmet, Judy Go, Elizabeth Hader, Carol Ling, Miriam Mueller, Charu Nautiyal, Sophia Park, Laura Rizzo, Paula Rodriguez, Carolyn Seydel, Nora Staebler, Jennifer Van De Graaf and Catrin Winter.

Co-Captain Rodriguez praised the efforts of managers Jennifer Barnhart, Sue Davis and Liz Gilbert.

On May 24, ULS met its goals at the Greenhills Relays. Coach Schmidt had asked the girls to aim for personal bests and school records. Two girls achieved personal bests in individual events: Alexander (long jump) and Laura Rizzo (shot put). Three school records were set: shot put relay (Rebecca Boone and Rizzo), discus relay (Nora Staebler and Boone), and shuttle hurdles (Alexander, Sophia Park, Miriam Mueller and Judy Go).

Boys are 11-2

The ULS boys' track and field team finished the season by participating in the Ann Arbor Greenhills Relays. Medal winners for ULS were Jack Ferris and Bob Tumacder, who placed third in the pole vault relay.

ULS compiled a final record of 11-2, and finished second to Southfield Christian in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

At the annual Father-Son Athletic Banquet held on May 28, Coach Mike Bender named co-captain Ferris as Most Valuable Athlete. The Most Improved Track and Field Athlete was sophomore Chip Davis. Newly elected co-captains for the 1986 season are Mark Kozlowski and Blasko Ristic.

Kickers improve

The ULS girls' soccer team showed marked improvement over the second half of the schedule. After a winless first four games, ULS was 4-5. Two of the losses were to state powerhouse teams, Grosse Pointe North and Troy High School.

The highlight of the season was a very emotional 1-0 victory over Grosse Pointe South in a state tournament game. The victory was particularly sweet, in that it redeemed an early season 10-0 loss.

The team's Most Valuable Player award was presented to sophomore Shelly Tibbitts, who played halfback and fullback. According to Coach David Backhurst, Shelly was "the backbone of the team — tough and tenacious."

The Most Improved Player Award went to sophomore Susan Judge who began the season alternating between striker and fullback. After the fourth game of the season, Susan was switched to the goal, despite never having played the position. She quickly distinguished herself, drawing raves from league coaches. She was also instrumental in the team's shutout victories over South, Lutheran East and Novi.

MVP named

Coach Chuck Wright named Robert Niccolini Most Valuable Player on this year's University Liggett School JV tennis team. The No. 1 doubles team of Gordie Maitland and Ted Evans were the Most Improved Players. The team finished its season at 5-9.

"While our record was not impressive, these kids competed well and displayed terrific sportsmanship all year," said Wright. "I was proud to be associated with them."

North girls lose heartbreaker

By Bill Hoover
North High

North's varsity softball team ended the 1985 season last Saturday, with a heartbreaking loss to East Detroit, 3-2. North had beaten Roseville, 4-3, in the first game of the district playoffs.

In the first game Saturday the Lady Norsemen, behind the pitching of Celeste Sartor and Paula Harms, stayed close before they erupted in the top of the seventh for three runs. Sophomore Julie Cook knocked in the game winner.

In the season finale, North went 12 innings behind the pitching of Harms before East Detroit managed the victory. Coach Gary Bennett commented, "Both teams made great plays in tough situations. It was our best game of the year."

The Lady Norsemen, who tied for first in the Bi-County with a 10-2 league record and 16-8 overall, have several individuals who received post-season honors. Harms was the Bi-County League's Most Valuable Player and, obviously, a first team All-Bi-County player along with Sartor. Receiving second team honors were Julie Cook and Linda Rayos. Honorable mentions were given to Dawn Cartwright, Missy Preston and Ellen Gouin.

Bergeron fifth

Junior Brian Bergeron competed in the state track competition last weekend at Flint Northwestern, finishing an impressive fifth in the discus with a throw of 154 feet, 3 inches.

Bergeron and senior Steve Saigh were the only North boys who qualified for the state competition. Saigh finished fifth in the first heat of the 100 meters and did not qualify for the finals. Bergeron's throw bettered his previous best throw by more than six feet.

North's ninth and tenth grade boys' and girls' track teams participated in the Blue Devil Relays at South High May 30. The events that were particularly outstanding for North were the 880 meter relay, the pole vault, the middle distance medley, the mile relay and the distance medley relay.

Mike Wujek, Tom Augustitus, Allen Thomalla and Baik Hur took first place in the 880 relay and set a new meet record with (1:35.4).

In the pole vault, Jim DeYonker, Ted Stephens and Phil Shefferly's combined height of 29 feet was good for another first. In the middle distance medley, Frank Markey, Sue Haskell, John Dwaiby and Ann Finlan finished first (6:49.5).

Other highlights were the mile relay team which, though taking second (3:58.04), bettered the old record set in 1984; and the distance medley team, which improved over the old record set in 1981 (11:09.6).

North can't kick

North's girls' varsity soccer team ended its season with a 2-1 loss to Troy Athens in the regional finals on May 25 — but not before the girls had accomplished most of their goals for the season.

North won the Expressway League championship with a 9-0 mark, compiled a record of 14-2 overall, won the "unofficial" Grosse Pointe championship and advanced to the regionals. Amelia Dugan scored the only goal in those playoffs, against a team which outnumbered the Lady Norsemen, 24-17.

"Depth is the only thing that kept us from going all the way," said coach Guido Regelbrugge. "If it was 11 against 11, we'd have won." Regelbrugge's girls teams have compiled a 41-6-1 record in three years.

North finished No. 8 in the state in the final rankings. Dugan, who is headed for a collegiate soccer career at Dartmouth, has been named to the All-State first team. North's Stephanie Smith, who will go to Kalamazoo College, was named to the second team.

GPA sports

Girls unbeaten in softball

Grosse Pointe Academy's girls' softball team capped its undefeated season May 22 with a 21-2 victory over Kingswood. Pitcher Lynn Robinson had two hits including a double and scored three times. Wendy Ford had three hits including a double and Meghan Brady collected three hits and scored three runs. First baseman Ellen Boomer had three hits, Leila Ashley scored three times on three walks, Joanne Ingrao and Sarah Haggarty each had two hits and Sarah Hellmich and Laura Waterman each scored two runs.

GPA's boy's tennis team ended the season with a 3-5-1 mark. The Academy's Ray Tumacder was the team's No. 1 singles player. Sunil Golwala, Jamie Tringale and Ronnie Sables developed well over the season.

GPA's boys' baseball team lost its final game to Liggett, 6-4, in a close battle on May 28, ending the season at 4-6. The team had a good season with outstanding play by eighth grade pitchers Chris Hurd and Mike MacMechan and catcher Charles Arnold, as well as seventh grade outfielder Paul Bogos.

The Academy's fourth, fifth and sixth grade Co-ed Track Team now hold a trophy having finished third in the Eastside Invationals (out of nine schools). Individual results were: sixth, 800 meter relay: Mary Keller, Jennifer Miller, Sara Kaiser and Jean Evans; first, 200 meter dash: Eddie Patten; sixth, 200 meter dash: Eric Hartfiel; fourth, 800 meter run: Craig Bowman; first, 100 meter dash: Patten; sixth, 100 meter dash — Brent McMahon; third, 1600 meter run — Russell Inman; fourth, 400 meter relay — Brent McMahon, Andrew Bucciero, Andrew Stroble and Dan Friedel; first, shot put — Eric Hartfiel; and fifth, Alex Pickens — high jump.
