Aw reservoir, Janet

Boy, this is a tough one to write. I guess the best way to tell it is to just blurt it out.

Janet Mueller, society editor of the Grosse Pointe News for the past 23 years, is leaving our paper. Simply saying it was time to move on to other things, Janet will spend her last day tied to a typewriter tomorrow, July 12.

I just don't know what to say. I've worked with Janet for seven years and have come to consider her as one of my best friends. I've also always thought she was uniquely qualified for her position.

First of all, she knows everyone — and I mean everyone. If you need background information on some old Grosse Pointe family, you turn to Janet. She always knows the family, or knows someone else who knew the family, or she went to school with one of their kids or met the patriarch of the clan on a photo safari to Upper Slobovia once, where around the campfire and smashed on the local joy juice, he told her how the family fortune was really made.

She also knows lots of oddball information. Simply put, Janet is a veritable lint trap of trivia. I remember she once gave me the complete history of King Zog of Albania.

Who else could, but Janet? Another admirable Mueller characteristic is her approach to her work. Basically, nothing ever fazes her. Believing that "they can kill you, but they can't eat you," Janet learned to take everything in stride and roll with the journalistic punches that come her way.

Don't get me wrong. Janet is a very hard worker who takes her job seriously. To see her on Thursday (society's deadline) is to see someone typing, answering the phone, completing her column, taking notes on next week's column and cheerily greeting the 25 people who drop by her desk.

She doesn't really look like a society editor, either. No white gloves, lace dresses and sensible shoes for our J. M. At the moment she's attired in a blue T-shirt that reads "Yes, I believe in unicorns," a red skirt and shower thongs.

That's right — shower thongs. We always know it's summer when we can hear Janet flip-flopping around the newsroom. Oh yes, she also tools around town in a snappy red Mustang convertible. No Miss Manners here.

Finally, we all love Janet for her vacations. Janet has been everywhere. No brag — just fact.

She recently returned from a five-week visit to the Gobi Desert where she was touring ancient Moslem cities. She brought back photos of herself standing next to her camel and yurt (look it up). The ladies restroom was a latrine on the other side of a sand dune. I didn't have it that bad when I was in the Marines.

I remember another trip, when she breezed out of the newsroom headed toward the airport. She dropped a note on my desk.

"That's where you can find me in Katmandu, in case something comes up," she smiled.

Again, who else but Janet? Yes, we're all going to miss Ms. Mueller here at the Grosse Pointe News. Me especially.

Who else can tell me the correct spelling of peau de soie, the capital of Botswana, the best restaurant in Botswana, the correct way to peel a grape and the complete history of all the families the streets of Grosse Pointe are named after?

I really love Janet. She made coming to work fun.

No brag — just fact.

School board hikes salaries, elects officers

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education welcomed two new trustees and elected a new president at the annual organizational meeting Monday night at the Central Library.

The board also approved salary increases for 31 of the district's 32 administrators and began fixing salary inequities pointed up in the district's new administrative pay plan.

Trustees Carl Anderson and Carol Marr took the oath of office, administered by Municipal Judge Stan Kazul.

Jon Gandelot was elected by the board on unanimous ballot to serve as board president for the coming year. Gandelot, in his second term as trustee, has served as treasurer, vice president and president since first being elected in 1978.

In nominating Gandelot, Trustee Vincent LoCicero called him "a stalwart of the board of education." The nomination was supported by Dorothy Kennel.

Gandelot, in taking the gavel from outgoing President Joan Hanpeter, said he was "honored to serve again as president. My two previous terms were marked by relative calm and I hope this one is the same."

Later in the meeting, Trustee Fred Adams said "the community owes a real debt of gratitude to Joan Hanpeter for her service to the community as president of this board." She served as president in 1974 through 1976 and 1983 until this year.

Hanpeter, following a standing ovation from the audience, said "I have increasing respect for the staff... and these trustees... It has made the whole job fun and rewarding."

Named vice president was LoCicero. Kennel was elected treasurer and Adams was named secretary. All elections were by unanimous ballot.

Also Monday night, the board granted 5 percent salary increases to 31 of the district's administrators.

Superintendent John Whritner also asked for an additional $15,000 "for attacking inequities" in administrative salaries.

There are some administrators who are so far behind their colleagues in the same job classification that they could never attain equity in salary even if they received outstanding performance records and bonuses. Whritner said. Also, there are other administrators whose salaries "are being pressed closely" by the teachers' salaries.

Using the district's administrative pay plan, Whritner said those administrators far behind their colleagues will be accelerated toward the three-quarter mark of their salary range by the percentage increase and "jumps" of no more than $1,000.

Those administrators whose salaries are close to that of teachers will receive an extra $1,000, Whritner said.

The district also pays tax-sheltered annuities for 31 administrators. The raises amount to about $105,000, about .3 percent of the district's operating budget.

Teachers and non-instructional supervisors were also granted 5 percent pay increases this year.

Whritner told the board that the previously agreed-to bonuses for administrators of between $250 and $1,000 need to be set based on last year's performance. Those evaluation conferences are still being done by the deputy superintendent, so bonus recommendations won't be made until August, he added.

In order to put together a compensation plan for the administrators this year, the system also needs to develop an evaluation process for the performance pay section of the compensation plan, Whritner said.

The program is being worked on now, and should be in place by the start of September, Whritner added.

Mail subsidy cuts could hurt handicapped

By Nancy Parmenter

A proposed end to postal subsidies for library materials for the blind and handicapped could reduce local handicapped readers' access to the printed page. The proposal, part of a $100 million package, has passed the House budget committee and is slated for inclusion in the fiscal 1986 budget, starting Oct. 1.

If the proposal passes as written, handicapped readers, who now receive library materials free under a 50-year-old Library of Congress program, would have to pay from 88 cents for a flexible disc to $2.32 for a Braille book.

"I have readers who go through six books a week," said Grosse Pointe library system outreach librarian Helen Leonard. "Some people have trained themselves to listen to discs at a faster speed — like speed reading."

Many of the handicapped served by the outreach program are elderly who are on a fixed income and would be adversely affected by the legislation. Such readers are likely to reduce or even eliminate their book orders if required to pay.

"The effects probably wouldn't be immediate," Leonard said.

"Time would show a decline in numbers. It would be a terrible tragedy."

No one knows for certain how many people in Grosse Pointe or the state would be affected. The handicapped are not required to go through the outreach programs in order to obtain reading material. Some organizations, such as Mensa, provide members with large print versions of their material. Magazines, such as Readers Digest, publish in large print.

The outreach program remains the most convenient way to keep reading, however. Leonard spends much of her time on the road, helping handicappers understand the system or reading the bimonthly catalogs of new selections to them.

Anyone who has difficulty seeing, holding a book or getting to the library is eligible for the program. Leonard said she doesn't know the total number of people registered in the Pointe program, but 25 new members registered during the last year.

"It's very important, particularly with the number of older people in our community, for the library to be out there," she said. "Everyone pays taxes — there's no reason why anyone should be denied the services."

The services sometimes come in roundabout ways. Leonard told of an elderly blind woman who spoke only Italian. There are no Italian "talking books" in the Detroit area, Leonard discovered through a series of telephone calls. But a call to the Italian consulate put her in touch with a Southfield couple looking for ways to help. The blind woman's son bought blank tapes, Leonard ordered 40 Italian books from the Detroit library, the couple read them onto the tapes, and one elderly Grosse Pointe woman could renew her acquaintance with the literature of her youth.

"I've seen stroke victims come back from leafing distractedly through magazines to reading a couple of books a week," Leonard said.

The irony of the situation is that a nationwide campaign has been conducted to enroll new readers, just as the subsidy has been threatened.

Woods lifeguard saves girl

A 17-year-old lifeguard at the Woods Lakefront Park saved a 4-year-old girl's life at about noon Tuesday, July 2, by pulling her from the municipal pool and helping revive her.

Mark Rieth, a Woods resident and a graduate of North High this year, said he saw the child, a guest of a resident, floating face down in the pool. He pulled the child out, emptied her stomach of water and stood by while another lifeguard administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Parks and Recreation Director Donald Hallmann, who was on the scene when the child was pulled from the pool, said the girl appeared to have gotten into water over her head and foundered, lacking the coordination to turn herself in the water.

The child was taken by St. Clair Shores ambulance to St. John Hospital, and was released the next day, according to a hospital spokesman.

While lifeguards help swimmers from the water daily at the park, this was the first incident of the season that a person was sent to the hospital, Hallmann said. The child was on her way to the hospital by ambulance 7½ minutes after being pulled from the water, he added.

Rieth has worked at the city's municipal park for three years, the last two as a lifeguard. This was his first rescue of the season, he added.

Rieth plans to attend Michigan State University this fall to major in accounting. He played basketball for two years at North. He is the son of James and Kathy Rieth and has two older brothers, Bob and James.

Method of appointment angers Park council

By Pat Paholsky

Like Old Faithful, the Park council erupted again Monday night. A commission appointment — normally a routine piece of business — set some council members against the mayor not for what he proposed to do, they said, but for what he neglected to do.

The mayor, Palmer Heenan, proposed to reappoint John Sheoris to the planning commission and to appoint Robert Klaczka to the same commission. Upon questioning by Councilman Mark Valente, Heenan said Klaczka would replace Sybrant Schaafsma, whose term expired. Upon further questioning, Heenan said he had not advised Schaafsma that he would seek to replace him with someone else.

The revelation incensed Valente who said: "Someone has contributed to the city and you are dusting him off without the courtesy (of letting him know). One of the things we have prided ourselves in this community is that our residents participate and this is a shabby way of treating him."

Other council members agreed with Valente that commission members, who are generally reappointed if they agree to serve, should be notified if they will not be asked to serve another term. David Gaskin said he would "regret that Mr. Schaafsma would read about it in the Grosse Pointe News before he's notified."

Councilman Vernon Ausherman protested, however, "that every time an appointment comes up, it seems to break up in political lines."

Heenan said, "I think it's the epitome of hypocrisy, if you vote

Frances Shelden dead at 72

Hundreds of mourners gathered at Christ Church Tuesday to pay their final respects to Frances Weir Shelden, known throughout Grosse Pointe, Detroit and the nation for her devotion and patronage to the arts.

Mrs. Shelden, widow of Allan Shelden III, told the Grosse Pointe News in an earlier interview that her interest in art dated back to her college days at Sarah Lawrence College where she studied the works of the masters.

A woman of wealth and taste, Mrs. Shelden and her husband donated numerous art works to the Detroit Institute of Arts, including a 19th century plaster by French artist Baptiste Carpeaux; a 20th century bronze by Paul Manship; an altarpiece by Charles Lebrun and a number of Persian ceramics.

Mrs. Shelden was also a patron of local art and decorated her Provençal Road home with the works of Michigan artists, including Hughie Lee-Smith, John Carroll, E. Cole and Evelyn Brackett.

Friends of the family remember Mrs. Shelden as a gracious hostess and recall when her home was the site of countless dinner parties and dances.

The house was also often featured on the Grosse Pointe home tour with Mrs. Shelden personally welcoming hundreds of visitors.

Born to a Steubenville, Ohio family that made its fortune in steel, Frances Weir met Allan Shelden III while on a visit to Grosse Pointe. They were married in 1939 and their wedding made the society pages in Detroit and across the country. They honeymooned in Bermuda and Europe before settling down in a home on Kerby Road. They later moved into the former James Webber house on Provençal.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Shelden were avid golfers and hunters, often retiring to a preserve the family owned in Rochester to hunt birds.

Besides her devotion to the arts, Mrs. Shelden was also involved with the United Foundation, Grosse Pointe Artists Market, Red Cross, Garden Club of Michigan, Tau Beta, the Junior League of Detroit and the Friends of Modern Art.

Mrs. Shelden died Saturday, July 6. She was 72.

She is survived by two daughters, Susan Denko and Lisa Brooks, and seven grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts or to the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Interment was at Elmwood Cemetery.

Klaczka down. You are cross at the mayor and you are going to be making a mistake if you abuse people this way."

Klaczka, who was seated in the audience, listened as council members Patricia Forster, Carroll Evola, John Frost and Valente said they did not object to his appointment, but they objected to the treatment of his proposed predecessor.

Ausherman, who had motioned to approve Klaczka's appointment, withdrew his motion. Heenan withdrew his second and said:

"We should approve John Sheoris. We will leave the other appointment open until the next meeting when we will resubmit the name of Klaczka and we will have spoken to Schaafsma."

The council agreed.

Davis appointed to board

Susan Pomeroy Davis has been appointed to the National Advisory Board for Child Abuse and Neglect for a two-year term, effective July 9. The appointment was announced by Dorcus R. Hardy, assistant secretary of Human Development Services, acting on behalf of the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the president.

The board was established by Congress in 1984 to coordinate child abuse prevention and treatment programs between government agencies and private organizations. It is composed of both private citizens with expertise in this area and representatives of the president's cabinet.

In announcing the appointment, Hardy said, "I am asking Susan to join me in providing leadership to aid in the prevention and eradication of child abuse and neglect. Her willingness to commit herself to this assignment will be of great assistance to this cause."

Davis has a wide background in social service programs and has led volunteer efforts in the prevention of child abuse for the Junior League of Detroit and Baret Human Services. She was instrumental in organizing the Governor's Conference on Child Abuse and Neglect in 1980.

A lifelong Grosse Pointer, she lives with her husband, Charles S. Davis III, and three children in the Farms. She is the Michigan co-chairman of Citizens for America, a grass-roots organization dedicated to promoting the economic and national defense programs of President Ronald Reagan. From 1981 through 1983 she served as a presidential appointee in the Department of Health and Human Services.

Her husband, a former executive with the Ford Motor Company, was appointed in 1981 by the president as associate administrator of the General Services Administration in Washington, a position in which he still serves.

Summer jobs

Summer jobs are available in the Grosse Pointe area for 60 young adults between the ages of 18 and 21, according to the Wayne County Private Industry Corporation.

The jobs, paying $3.35 per hour, are offered through the Michigan Youth Corps. They consist of work in parks, along roadways and in other public-service related projects.

Unemployed youth meeting the age requirement and who have not applied previously for Youth Corps jobs may apply at the MESO Office at 4321 East McNichols just east of Ryan Road or call 865-JOBS for further information.

The Albert Kahn-designed Vernier School may be in for a facelift if the Grosse Pointe Historical Society gets the go-ahead and a long-term lease from the Shores.

Facelift for Vernier School?

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society has asked the Shores for permission to renovate the village's Vernier School.

The proposal, subject of village planning commission meetings in past months, is for the Shores to repair the building's leaking roof and maintain the exterior while the society raises the cash and in-kind contributions to cover the rehabilitation of the interior.

The society made its proposal Tuesday night, July 2, at a joint meeting of the village council and planning commission. Historical Society representatives included President Lisa Gandelot, W. Hawkins Ferry and Jon Clark.

"We feel that Vernier School is an unusual building that could be an asset to the community," Clark said. "When we heard this building was vacant, we felt it was desirable for our group to spearhead a rehabilitation of the building."

The Shores would enter into a long-term lease with the society, which would then raise the money necessary to renovate the building's seven classrooms, Clark said. This historical society would also become the building's developer, handling sub-leasing to other community-based charitable and educational organizations, he added.

The society would match the estimated $80,000 to $120,000 worth of work to the exterior with an estimated $250,000 to $750,000 worth of work to the interior, according to Clark.

The society, using two rooms for archival storage and display, would also become the developer for the rest of the building, insuring that no commercial use came to the site, Clark said.

Because of the local demand for space, Clark said there will be no problem finding other community organizations that would use the building as office space, help pay for renovation and defray the village's maintenance costs.

Parking would be at the rear of the building, keeping traffic to a minimum to cut disturbance to neighbors, Clark said.

To raise the money, the society will prepare presentations to various charitable foundations, like the Kresge Foundation, solicit its members, residents and possibly those who once attended the school, Gandelot said. A committee had been working on ways to raise money, but reached a point where it wasn't practical to go on without some type of agreement with the village, she added.

Besides removing a crumbling addition at the rear of the building and developing parking, the society

St. James offers Bible school

St. James Lutheran Church in the Farms will offer a Vacation Bible School from Monday, July 15, through Friday, July 19. The theme is "God's People Pray" and classes are offered for three-year-olds through fifth-grade students. Sessions are from 9 a.m. to noon.

The church is located at 170 McMillan Road. To register or for more information, visit the church office between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. or call 884-0511.

Park pet taken during break-in Thieves broke into a Wayburn Road home sometime Friday afternoon, June 28, and stole $1,715 worth of household goods along with the homeowner's pet dog.

The robbery was reported to Park police at 7:32 p.m. The thieves entered and left the home through the rear door of the house. Appliances taken included a microwave oven and a dictaphone, police said.

Young, old meet at Club

By Nancy Parmenter

Like an army of jumping beans, the three- and four-year-olds in the Neighborhood Club's summer day camp scrambled up, over and around the plastic gym blocks, banging triangles, tooting horns, one waving a flag. They had just returned from a Fourth of July parade through the building to entertain the adult classes meeting there.

The Neighborhood Club sponsors several camping sessions for pre-kindergartners. Some of the children continue into the next session — even so, there are at least 150 different kids enrolled altogether.

The camp is held in the nursery school room, but there the resemblance to school ends. "It's a highly social and recreational activity," explained Neighborhood Club Director John Bruce. "The primary goal is to make the first group experience comfortable."

"The basic program is play," added Betz Johnson, the center's recreation director. "They go outside every day. There's always something special like toe-painting."

Because the Pointes have a strong system of parks, summer is actually the slow time at the Neighborhood Club. But each week, an average of 2,000 people participate in Club activities.

Yet the center itself is quiet and seems deserted. A few rooms are occupied with senior citizen groups, but most of the activity is scattered from one end of the Pointes to the other.

To appreciate what the Neighborhood Club does, you'd have to get into a car and start at the far end of Grosse Pointe," said Bruce. "By the time you traveled the whole way, you'd have seen 600 people in a day."

The biggest activity is softball.

Subsidy . . .

tion can only guess the extent of the loss we would feel about losing our access to books," Leonard recently wrote to the Information and Referral Committee of the Services for Older Citizens, asking them to write their legislators to save the subsidy.

Leonard has publicized the outreach service widely. "I'm talking it up a lot because I know how much good it does," she said. "I talk to anybody who will listen."

She fears the subsidy cutoff will remove avenues to stimulation, badly needed by the homebound.

"If you like to read and can't the frustration is terrible," Leonard said. "Bibliotherapy really works."

There are 152 teams, operating alongside Babe Ruth and Little League. Bruce estimated that 1,400 people participate.

"You see fathers watching the kids while moms play and mothers and children watching their fathers play and parents watching their kids play," Bruce said. "It's great for families."

Softball is played on various school playfields. "We couldn't run the program without school facilities," Bruce said. "It was a very foresighted decision by the school system. We have an extensive program offered through their cooperation."

The Neighborhood Club offers its own facilities to groups that fit its mission. "If a group provides a service with a close fit to what we are trying to provide for the community, we co-sponsor them through offering free space and through publicity brochures," Bruce explained.

Typical of such a group was the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology Friends of Vision support group for the visually impaired meeting there last Wednesday. Several people had come in to observe as the members engaged in a discussion of the effects on their lives of retinitis pigmentosa.

"We hold dear the ability to work with outside groups in a coordinated, cooperative way," said Bruce. "It enables us to do things that would be difficult to do ourselves." The outside groups represent about 10 percent of the center's total effort, he estimated.

The Neighborhood Club is about 70 percent self-sustaining through membership and activity fees. Most of the rest of the funding comes from the proceeds of the center's thrift shop, according to Bruce. Only about five percent of the operating funds come from the yearly fund drive.

Next spring, the Neighborhood Club will celebrate its 75th year of offering everything from aerobics to volleyball. "We think the Neighborhood Club is a real treasure," said Bruce. Thousands of softballers probably agree.

Arrested bank robber could be victim of hoax

Farms police are not sure if the attempted robbery of the Moross branch of the National Bank of Detroit July 1 was the genuine article.

A bailing Chrysler retiree from Detroit walked into the NBD office shortly after noon to cash a pension check and passed a note written on the back of a deposit slip to the teller. "This is a sick-up (sic)," it announced.

Farms police converged on the bank while the suspect was still inside, and police Detective Sgt. George Van Tien, in plain clothes, arrested the man without incident, according to the police report.

NBD security employees told the Farms police that the bank has received "six or eight" robbery notes, also written on the back of deposit slips, at another bank branch. Officials theorize that they may have been written by juveniles as a prank, slipped back into the pile, and passed to the teller by innocent customers.

An NBD teller told the police that a similar note had been received approximately an hour before the incident. The teller recognized the woman customer, however, and concluded that she was the victim of a prank.

Shortly after the arrest, bank officials called the FBI to suggest the possibility that the retiree was an innocent customer caught in a similar prank, Van Tien said. But Van Tien is pursuing the case.

"I asked him to write 'this is a stick-up' so we could compare handwriting," Van Tien said. The suspect wrote and rewrote the sentence, misspelling something every time, but in each case, wrote "sick-up" without the 't'.

"The chances of that happening aren't even as good as my winning the lottery," Van Tien said.

Farms police turned the handwriting samples over to the state police lab in Northville for study by a handwriting expert.

Van Tien said he spent more than an hour ransacking the bank wastebaskets for other possible robbery notes, on the chance that the suspect may have been practicing and left some fingerprints, but the search was unsuccessful.

"He wasn't carrying a gun or knife and he didn't put his hand in his pocket. He didn't say anything to the teller. You have to prove intent of larceny, and right now, that's not clear," Van Tien said.

The man was released pending the results of the handwriting analysis.

Private industry versus gas company

The battle is on

By Pat Paholsky

For nearly two years now, a group of small businesses and unions has taken on a utility company, claiming unfair competition, and it's hard to tell who's winning. One thing is certain: The lawyers and the lobbyists are not losing.

Pitted against Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. are heating and cooling contractors, trade unions, wholesalers and related groups. They say the gas company is taking a chunk of their business away with a program that is being subsidized by ratepayers.

The program, known as the Home Heating Service Plan, is, in effect, insurance against high heating repair bills. MichCon offers its residential customers a maintenance contract for gas furnaces for $39 a year.

It's a good deal. Too good, say the heating businesses which claim they must charge about $90 a year to make it pay. And they say the gas company can afford to lose money on the program, because it can get a rate increase to subsidize the service.

MichCon responds to the charges by saying they're only giving their customers what they want — a low cost service contract — and that the program pays for itself and is not being subsidized by the ratepayers.

Further, the cry of unfair competition is not true, says the gas company. Instead they feel their entry into the service business promotes healthy competition.

The furor began when MichCon initiated a pilot program in the fall of 1983 to service furnaces, water heaters and space heaters in the Downriver area. Shortly after, the company announced its intention to offer the service to all of its customers. That's when the heating contractors formed the Michigan Coalition Against Unfair Utility Practices.

They say that MichCon, as a monopoly, enjoys the following advantages not available to private industry: 1) a million-customer mailing list; 2) monthly mailings (utility bills) to promote the service at ratepayer expense; 3) employees (meter readers) at customer's premises monthly; 4) established billing accounts for a million customers; 5) instant name recognition; 6) access to customer credit experience; 7) shared overhead on trucks, tools, office space, computers, etc.; and 8) the ability to use the firm's borrowing capacity to finance the program.

One of the members of the coalition is Kenneth Wigle, chairman of Bruce Wigle Plumbing and Heating, which has a store in the Park. He said, "I don't think a utility should be in the servicing field. Their business is selling fuel. They use customers' names and customer information to solicit a non-utility kind of business in the private industry field. We do not have the access or the resources to do what they're doing."

Another member of the coalition, Chuck Broedell, said his objection is that MichCon is "not separating the utility from the service business. They're using the same phones, same trucks, same gas. We can't possibly compete with them. They have a tremendous line of credit and they have the ability to promote this service in the same envelope as the gas bill."

The owner of Broedell Plumbing in St. Clair Shores added, "We can't compete with a utility. If they lose money, they just get a rate increase."

A spokesman for MichCon, Renze Hoeksema, responded: "The pilot program paid for itself with all costs pro-rated out. The current program is not subsidized and in the long term, the profits incurred through the program will get rolled back so it will benefit

(all) customers."

Hoeksema said that of 3.5 million MichCon customers, 36,000 have subscribed to the program as of April, or about one percent. About 11,000 or 30 percent of those subscribers are senior citizens, Hoeksema said, who are glad to have a low-cost maintenance program.

"What we find generally is that heating contractors don't provide these services," he added. "They are primarily in the business of selling and installing furnaces, so we don't see (our program) as competitive."

Wigle said that was not true. "In our organization in MichCon territory, we normally run about seven people servicing heating equipment this year and last and we noticed a substantial decrease."

Wigle said the utility's entry into the home heating service has cut into his company's business by between 30 and 40 percent.

Broedell, who says at least 80 percent of his business is in Grosse Pointe, estimated that his business is off by about 10 percent due to the gas company's program.

To combat what they see as the eventual take-over of their service business, the coalition is backing legislation that will require utility companies to establish subsidiaries to engage in the home heating service.

The sponsor of House Bill 4684, Rep. Victor Krause, R-Rockford, said passage would enable the contractors to compete with utility companies on a fair and equal basis. The bill has bi-partisan support, and includes 11 Democrats and 11 Republicans as co-sponsors.

The coalition hoped for action on the bill before the legislature recessed for the summer, but it is still in committee. An aide to Krause said there will be a public hearing on the bill in the fall where groups or citizens can express their views. There will be nothing happening now until after the middle of September when the legislature reconvenes, the aide said.

MichCon's Hoeksema said passage of the bill would affect all of the service the company provides. "Last year we responded to 150,000 service calls and it would affect our ability to service our customers. We see it (the home heating program) as a natural extension of our service."

The issue is not unique to Michigan. Coalitions of contractors have introduced or are awaiting action on legislation that would limit what they say is unfair competition in Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois.

New Jersey is in the process of passing legislation that will keep utilities out of the service business. California is the only state to date that has passed legislation prohibiting utility personnel from performing any work that requires a contractor's license.

I-94/Eight Mile Road Interchange Public Hearing

The Michigan Department of Transportation is calling a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, August 15, 1985 in the Eastland Center Auditorium, 18000 Vernier Rd., Harper Woods, Michigan.

The purpose of this hearing is to provide the opportunity for a public discussion of the treatments under consideration for the proposed improvements of I-94/Eight Mile Road interchange in Wayne and Macomb counties. The alternatives will not have an effect on the wetlands.

A description of the alternatives, maps, and other pertinent information including comments from interested federal, state and local governmental units, as well as local groups and officials, is located at the Harper Woods City Hall, 19617 Harper Avenue, Harper Woods, the St. Clair Shores City Hall, 27600 Jefferson Avenue, St. Clair, and in the Bureau of Transportation Planning, third floor, Transportation Building in Lansing, Michigan.

This hearing is held in accordance with Federal and State Public Involvement/Public Hearings Procedures. Testimony will be taken from interested citizens regarding the social, environmental, and economic impact of the proposed alternatives. Written statements and exhibits in place of, or in addition to, oral statements made at the public hearing, or requests for copies of the Environmental Assessment for this project, may be submitted to Philip J. Chisholm, Hearings & Mitigation Section, Michigan Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 30050, Lansing, Michigan, 48909, at any time up to fifteen days after the date of the public hearing.

To further assist you in understanding the proposals, representatives of the Michigan Department of Transportation will be present in the Eastland Center Auditorium half an hour before the hearing to answer any questions you may have.

In addition, information on this project or any Michigan Department of Transportation planning program may be obtained by calling (517) 373-9534.

More drivers buckling up

A Detroit Free Press survey reported last Sunday found that the number of Michigan drivers using seat belts almost doubled after the mandatory seat belt law took effect July 1 — but that almost a third of the drivers observed still were not buckling up.

The survey was not a scientific cross-section of the occupants of cars on the state's highways but a study of the habits of drivers and front-seat passengers of 2,000 cars checked at 10 intersections. They were the most hazardous intersections in the state's 10 largest counties, with 200 cars being checked at each one, 100 before the law went into effect and 100 afterward.

Yet the percentage of those using seat belts in these cases — 64 percent of the drivers and 69 percent of the front-seat passengers — is lower in each case than the 83 percent who said in another survey that they would buckle up all or most of the time when the law required them to do so. In other words, the good intentions of both drivers and front-seat passengers are not yet being achieved.

In the first four days under the law, the State Police wrote 370 tickets and issued 735 warnings. The tickets will cost violators $10 each, plus court costs, until January when the fine will go up to $25. And the State Police have promised strict enforcement. That means it will pay to buckle up.

Some interesting differences among drivers were turned up in the Free Press survey. Women buckled up slightly more frequently than men, drivers of small cars were more likely to buckle up than drivers of large cars, drivers in Detroit were among the least likely to buckle up and drivers in Lansing Township and Troy were among the most likely to buckle up.

A University of Michigan Transportation Research Institute study showed, before the law become effective, that only about 26 out of every 100 drivers were buckling up in Michigan and that drivers on freeways were more likely to use their belts than those on other highways and streets. Yet other studies have found that a great many accidents occur on city streets not far from the driver's home, which makes another argument for buckling up every time a driver enters his car.

Some people still believe that the mandatory seat belt law is an intolerable government limitation on freedom. Yet all of our cars are licensed by the state and so are all of us as drivers. Without the licenses, we are in violation of law. In addition, the federal government requires installation of seat belts in all cars. Why is it intolerable to require us to use a mandated installation that we've paid for and that will help protect our lives and those of our passengers?

Furthermore, the state imposes traffic regulations to help protect drivers, passengers and pedestrians. The mandatory seat belt law serves the same purpose. It also reduces both injuries and costs, a fact which is proven by the reduction in insurance rates for seat belt users. As in many other cases, an individual who buckles up gives up some of his freedom of choice in order to benefit society as a whole as well as to improve his own chances of escaping serious injury or death in an auto accident.

It's too bad that a state law was required to force us to do something we should have done voluntarily — but the increase in usage indicates the people of Michigan are responding affirmatively.

Ending the brain drain

The recent Census Bureau report indicating that Michigan's population fell 2 percent between 1980 and 1984 is another reflection of the impact of the recession on this state.

At a time when the U.S. population was growing by 4.2 percent, Michigan was continuing to shrink, suffering the largest numerical loss, 187,000, of any individual state during the period.

Among different age groups, Michigan showed major losses among young people, which means that the state suffered a serious brain drain during the recession. Without job opportunities at home, many simply left the state seeking employment elsewhere.

Yet among people 65 and older, the Michigan population continued to rise and now exceeds one million or 11.1 percent of the total as contrasted with 9.8 percent in 1980. Michigan was one of the states with the fastest-growing proportion of residents 65 and over since 1980, but its overall proportion of people of that age is still lower than in 33 other states.

Two other points need to be emphasized in this discussion. One is that Michigan's economy has turned around and is much better than it was two years ago. The second is that Michigan's population from July, 1983 to July, 1984, the last year of the four-year period covered by the Census Bureau report, did start to regain some of its earlier losses.

These factors indicate the importance of continued effort to improve the state's economic climate. If more industry and business can be attracted to Michigan and existing private enterprises find new opportunities for expansion, new jobs will be created that will halt the population loss and the recurrent brain drain.

Increasing attention is being paid to the improvement of the business climate in Michigan by the state Legislature and the state administration. Working more closely with business and industrial groups, state government can improve the attractiveness of the economic climate in Michigan. A major goal ought to be to eliminate the "boom or bust" atmosphere that too often has characterized Michigan's economic climate in recent years — and has led in the "bust" years to that serious brain drain.

New threat to education?

A new and formidable foe of the Reagan administration's proposal to end federal income tax deductions for state and local taxes has now appeared on the horizon. It is the National Education Association which fears that the well-being of public education is at stake in the administration's proposal.

Not that the teachers are opposed to all of the administration's tax package. Their spokesmen say that they support tax reform generally but are concerned about the deductibility proposal because public education is the largest beneficiary of state and local taxes, accounting for 36 percent of the combined spending at the two governmental levels.

Mary H. Futrell, president of the NEA, says that the repeal of deductions for state and local taxes "will undermine support for public schools in this country." Whether that is an overstatement or not, the NEA does have a point to its argument.

The organization argues that without the chance for those who itemize deductions on their federal income tax returns to deduct state and local taxes, people will tend to be against tax increases, regardless of how high or low their level of taxation is. So the NEA says, preserving the tax deduction is more than just an effort to protect states with high taxes such as New York and California and Michigan.

It can be argued, and often is by Reagan administration supporters, that the president and his team have required a review of spending for all public purposes and that such a review should not be limited to federal programs and spending. They see the elimination of deductibility as an effort to obtain a tougher review of spending at state and local levels as well as in Washington.

There is something to that argument but it also puts new burdens on state and local governments. The federal government already is pulling back on spending for many programs, at the state and local level as well as in Washington, and many local and state governments are being required to pick up a larger share of support for needed services. Yet in many cases their tax resources are limited, which means that worthwhile programs suffer.

Education is basically a local responsibility but states have enacted legislation seeking to equalize support to some degree at least. Yet states and local districts which have done a good job of meeting their responsibilities in effect would be punished if the administration ended deductibility of state and local taxes.

It is popular to blame "the politicians" for government programs and for the taxes needed to support them. Yet the program usually are enacted because of public demand, not because politicians are seeking new ways to spend tax revenues. The problem with the administration approach is that it seems to disapprove of spending for many public services — with the exception of national defense — without giving full consideration to the public need for many such services.

Teachers and their organizations usually operate at the grass roots and are well informed about the importance of continued public support for public education. If they can convince individual members of Congress that they speak not only for the NEA but for the people back in individual school districts, they could make the difference on the highly controversial issue.

To the Editor:

On June 14, 1985 my husband and I, who are in our early sixties, were involved in our first car accident. We were the innocent victims! As a fast-moving (about 70 mph) 40 foot semi started to pass us, the back of our 28 foot trailer began to fish-tail which caused our Suburban and trailer to roll over completely. Our seat belts held us in a suspended position looking at the roof. We were fortunate to walk away from this earth-shattering experience. Our three-month-old trailer was totaled. We are hoping our one-year-old Suburban can be repaired.

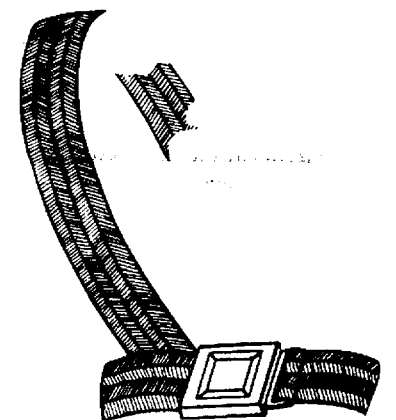

Our pleas:
Trucking industry: please allow sufficient time on your truck drivers' schedules to reach destinations.

Truck drivers: make use of allotted rest time. Overstaying causes drivers to make up for lost time by going well over the speed limit. A member of the rescue squad was fortunately behind us and substantiated our statement of a speeding truck. The driver that caused our accident did NOT stop. No one got his license number or name on the truck. 55 mph is the speed limit for everyone. Please drive within the limit; help prevent accidents and save lives. Only the Lord and seat belts saved ours!

Speeders are kids, adults

To the Editor:

Many times I have been passed on my street (Windmill Pointe) by cars traveling 60 to 70 miles per hour. This is a danger to children playing in the street and to other drivers. It also disrupts people who are in their homes.

I have been awakened several times by late-night speeders. The speeders are not only kids, but also adults driving home from work or from a party. A more aware and perceptive police force would help to prevent such happenings.

Thank you

To the Editor:

How timely was the printing of the essays written by the winners of the Pens for Peace Writing Contest. During the tensest moments of the hostage crisis, you graciously allowed a seventh and eighth grader to speak about their dreams for peace. All of us in the Grosse Pointe branch of the American Association of University Women are proud of their eloquent words. Thank you.

Follow the freedom path

To the Editor:

Freedom was celebrated in Grosse Pointe Woods on Sunday, June 30, with some great fireworks display and orchestra concert — Mack Avenue U.S.A.

Congratulations to the Grosse Pointe Business & Professional Association of Mack Avenue and especially to the co-chairpeople, Robbie Curry and Kathy Forster. The greatest gift one can give to another is the gift of their time! In Grosse Pointe Woods, we give thanks for the blessings of "Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness" for the individual, which is stated in the Declaration of Independence.

We are responsible for our own freedom today and we need to be free to follow our own creative paths. As we enjoyed the freedom celebration, the same day the hostages were released, let us all diligently protect and follow the freedom path continuously!

For a more vital community

To the Editor:

I want to comment on the letter to the editor "The Making of Fireworks '85" which appeared in the July 4 issue. The writers of the letter, Kathy Forster and Robbie Curry said, "The event has come to be more than a thank you."

It certainly is more than a thank you. I believe the outpouring of public support for the event by the entire community endorses and confirms the goals and objectives of the sponsor — the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association.

tion of Mack Avenue. The association's goals and objectives are to help make our community the best place in Michigan to live, work and raise a family.

The enthusiastic response by the community (and a super assist from Mother Nature for dry clear weather) give the association's members a new spirit of determination to work harder this year for an even more attractive, vital and secure community.

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

With the adoption by the House majority of a deficit reduction plan that left Social Security virtually untouched, those older men and women who are almost solely dependent on that monthly check for subsistence breathed a sigh of relief.

The reason being, that whenever budget and deficits come up for discussion, Social Security is a target.

Social Security is a separate trust fund and is currently running a surplus, but that is downplayed by arguments that FICA taxes continue to rise. The complainers forget that they will one day share in the benefits. This is assured. In 1979 Congress "fixed" Social Security and promised its solvency for all time.

Those who are resentful of increased FICA taxes should know that in a poll conducted by a Washington-based national public opinion polling firm, persons 55 or older were opposed to the bolstering of Social Security by raising payroll taxes on workers.

While they favored revenue-increasing ideas over benefit cuts, they preferred proposals to impose a tax on "luxuries" such as alcohol and tobacco. Retirees do not want to be a burden on young and middle-age workers.

Although not documented, a reflective opinion would surely result in the conclusion that while FICA taxes have risen, the small sacrifice of paying them is more than made up by the peace of mind that comes from the assurance that loved ones do not have to suffer the indignities of near poverty nor the loss of pride that comes with the dependence on others for sustenance.

With the increased cost of raising a family (government figures estimated the cost of raising a child to age 17 in 1960 at $34,274; the cost of raising a child in 1981 is estimated at $232,000), not many families have the means to contribute to the support of parents even if the parents would accept it.

Nor would the solution of bringing parents into the home work. Modern day houses are not built to be shared by three-generation families. Most older Americans prefer to live in their own homes, whatever and wherever they may be. Over the years they have worked out a comfortable lifestyle. Changing it to fit into the ways of another household would be traumatic.

Add to that the feeling of guilt that comes with intrusion into someone else's home. It is always sad to see how love becomes tinged with hostility and hurt feelings as opinions and habits clash under one roof. Generations communicate best when they live in separate houses.

Perhaps not many readers remember Will Carleton's "Over the Hill to the Poorhouse," a heart-rending verse about a mother winding her way over the hill to the poorhouse and her sad story of having worked hard all her life and ending up without enough money to support herself in her old age and heartbroken because her children cannot care for her.

It was such tales as this, and there are many real-life stories like it, that brought about Social Security.

Nancy Ross and the Bureau of Research and Statistics had this to say in a pamphlet published in 1936:

"The Social Security Act of 1935 grew out of many changes in American life. It consolidated our past experience in meeting insecurity. It also set up a bulwark against some of the newer kinds of insecurity that threaten the large number of us in this 20th century."

She goes on to elucidate on the groups of people whose lives would be made tolerable by the benefits derived from Social Security. Among them needy mothers, the needy blind and the needy aged. Others she cited were crippled children, the physically handicapped and those wage earners who would not maintain themselves without aid of a monthly Social Security check.

Looking at what FICA contributions provide, it is a small price for what it achieves in the lessening of human misery.

The Social Security Act was enacted during the administration of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. It had been protected from attempts to restrict, dilute or change it by groups such as the Grey Panthers and others. It has had many dedicated champions, but none more dedicated than Florida Congressman Claude D. Pepper.

He has made a reputation for himself as a champion of the elderly. Although he is 84 years old, those who know him say that he does more work than a lot of people half his age.

During the last election, he staged five rallies to get out the senior citizen vote. At the Democratic Convention in San Francisco, he was responsible for the plank on senior citizens rights. He even tried to persuade Walter Mondale to name a senior citizen as his running mate.

Among the problems he concerns himself with is inadequate income. He concedes that a few are rich. He also points out that one-sixth of all senior citizens have incomes below the poverty level.

Proper medical care is another problem that he is concerned with.

Obviously people who live to be old are going to need more medical care as the years progress.

As one person said: "After 70 if you wake up without any pains at all, you're dead."

The average elderly person requires 13 prescriptions a year from a doctor and goes to the hospital about twice as often as a younger person. They are apt to be more susceptible to cancer, Alzheimer's disease and other ailments which generally require long-term, expensive care.

Housing is another problem and one that is getting more crucial. Public housing is not being funded and private housing is too expensive for those on limited incomes.

And there is the nursing home situation. Most good ones demand cash payments. They do not accept Medicaid. Others will take Medicaid if the difference is made up by relatives. Most of those which do take Medicaid have long waiting lists.

Recreation is another need that should be met. Older people need to associate with others. They need someone to talk with and to share good times. Every community should have a center where older people can come to play cards, see a movie share parties and celebrations. Luckily in the Grosse Pointe area we have the Neighborhood Club, the War Memorial and church-sponsored activities. Not all communities have these advantages.

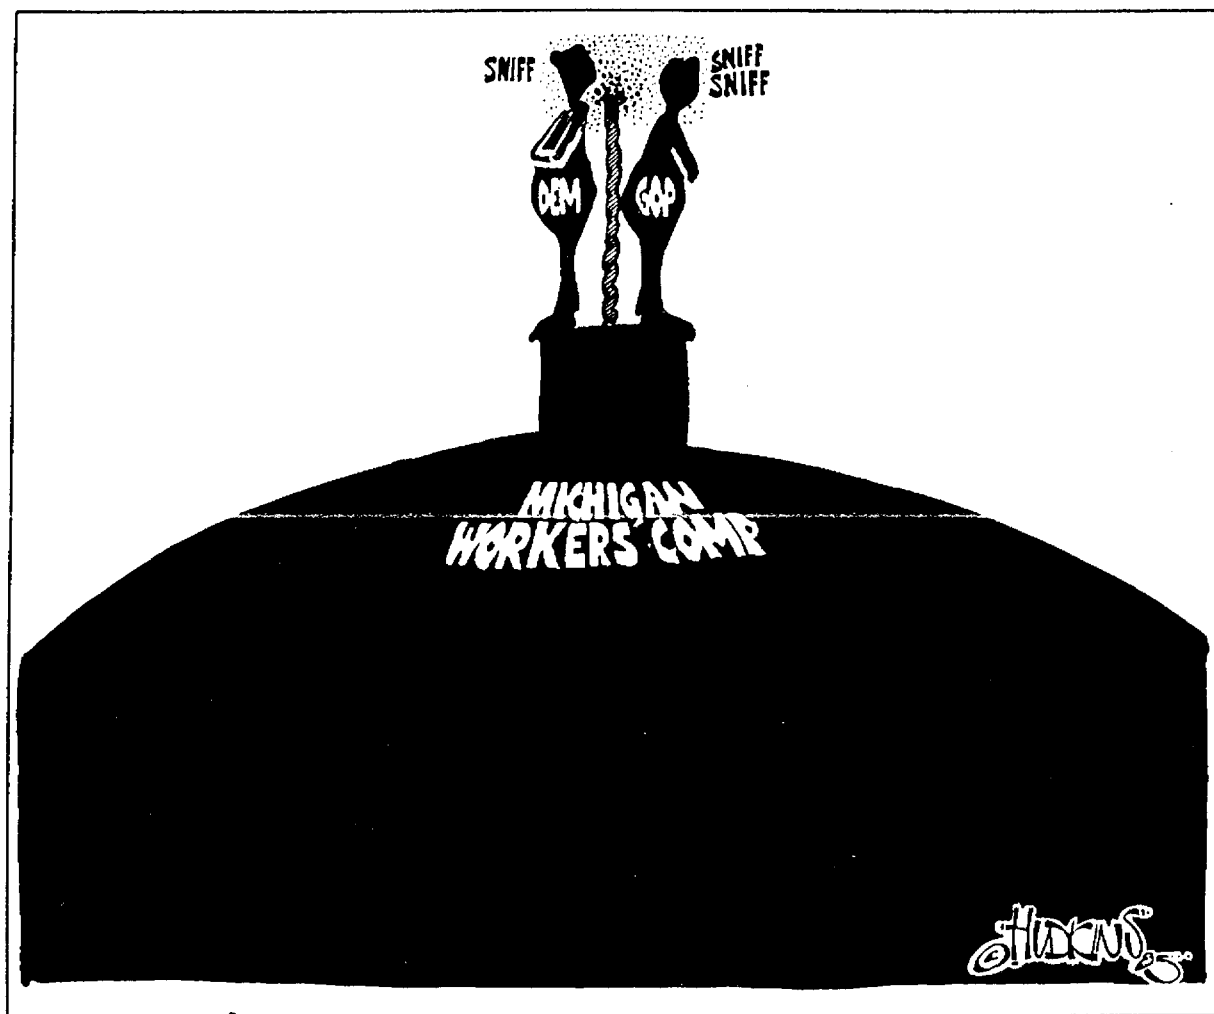

There remains another consideration, a common one that is shared by those who live affluent lives with all the means to make life comfortable and secure, those who live with adequate incomes for their needs and those who live at a poverty level.

That problem is loneliness, not the loneliness that comes from having no place to go or no friends to talk with. It is a terrible, dark, bitter loneliness that comes from longing to know that there is a special place for them in the hearts and minds of those they love. Too often members of families become so involved with their own lives and problems that they neglect to call or visit the mother or father who waits to hear from them. Older people need love, understanding and sometimes forgiveness.

Left alone they often look back on their lives and brood about mistakes they made, hurts they may have inflicted, needs they failed to meet.

They have to be reassured that the sacrifices they made, the good times they provided and the love they have is appreciated.

No social legislation can do that for them.

I say

Following the falls

I just got back from vacation, and I spent it doing something I've always dreamed of. I drove completely around Lake Superior. Because my wife is more or less normal, I made the nearly 900-mile journey by myself.

I loaded my car with one suitcase, a cooler brimming with cold cuts and cheese, maps and a backpack filled with about 60 pounds of view camera equipment, plus a pretty hefty tripod.

The first day took me to Wawa, on the eastern shore of the lake, in about nine hours. Wawa is a fair-sized burg heavily dependent upon sportsmen who use it as a jump-off point for the more remote areas of Ontario.

Outside the town is a park on Old Woman Bay. I pulled in just as a heavy fog rolled across the lake. Two huge bluffs, mere outlines in the fog, faced each other thousands of feet into Superior. Gulls circled overhead and a loon cried in the distance. I had the entire park to myself. It was something right out of a Canadian commercial urging me to "come on up."

Farther on I visited High Falls, on the Maggie River. The usual occurred as I set up my camera. Instead of watching the falls, other visitors watched me. Then came the usual questions.

"Where'd you get the old camera?" "Can I take a look through there?" and "How about taking a shot of me and the wife with my Minolta? It takes real good pictures."

After a night in Wawa, I shoved off early for Thunder Bay, about six hours away. Lordy, what a trip. Don't get me wrong. The drive was beautiful, but seemingly endless. I mean, if you've seen 10 billion pine trees, you've seen them all.

I passed perhaps a thousand lakes, rivers and streams. The lakes were big, black-watered and totally empty of fishermen. At this point you begin to realize just how big Ontario is. The sound of a smoothly running engine becomes more important than the beating of your heart.

I did run across a few towns along the way. The largest was probably Marathon, where gold was discovered a few years back. It boasted a huge refinery, an airstrip and about six mobile homes. I was happy to see it.

Then the strangest thing occurred. About four hours into the drive I approached the Gravel River. I was alone on this two-lane highway, no one in front or behind me. There was no town, no settlement, no nothing. A Portajohn would have looked like New York City.

And there in the middle of nowhere was a traffic light. And I caught it. I figured it was some Canadian test of faith, so I waited 'til it changed.

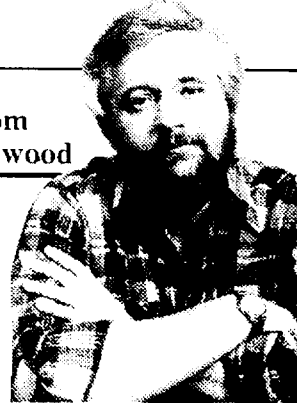

I finally made it to Thunder Bay, a surprisingly big city of more than 100,000 persons. Ore carriers tarried in the bay, waiting to approach giant grain elevators like they were gasoline pumps at your local gas station.

The next day's journey to Duluth was easily the most beautiful of the trip. Lake Superior on my left, and soaring cliffs and waterfalls on my right. Duluth was a pleasant surprise. Clean and pretty, it boasts homes that rival those of Holly and Marshall. The streets are terraced and descend toward the lake like a miniature San Francisco.

Once back in the U.P., I began to concentrate my photography on the spectacular, but mostly unknown, waterfalls of our state. Did you know there are more than 150 named waterfalls in the U.P.?

By Tom Greenwood

I learned this after picking up a beautiful book titled, "Roar of Thunder - Whisper of Wind." Produced by Michigan Natural Resources magazine, this hard cover is illustrated with more than 100 photos vividly captured by C.J. Elfont, of Huntington Woods. The book comes complete with a reference guide and directions on how to reach the falls, some of which are in rather remote areas.

My favorite was Agate Falls, on the middle branch of the Ontonagon River. Eighty feet high and perhaps 100 feet across, the falls lie about 1,000 feet off the highway down a well-marked trail. I was there for more than an hour and had them all to myself.

Everyone visits Tahquamenon Falls, so why go anywhere else — right? I only visited perhaps 20 of the 150 falls in the U.P., but the sights were rewarding and refreshing.

Heck, there's even a Greenwood Falls. I missed it this trip, but I'll catch it the next time.

On second thought, forget everything I've written about the falls of the U.P. I think I'd rather have them all to myself instead.

Celebrating 20 Years of Service

Board considers hirings

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Among personnel matters the school board took up Monday night were the possible hiring of a director of guidance and an update on the hiring of a principal for South High School.

Superintendent John Whritner said he wanted to discuss the possibility of hiring a director of guidance for the high schools with the board. There is an opening in the guidance departments because of staff shifts that could be filled with a person who might provide direction to the department, he added.

A guidance director is one of the recommendations made in last month's North Central Accreditation evaluations, Whritner added.

The report from South recommended the appointment of a director of guidance/counseling as a way to "better facilitate the philosophy and objectives of the guidance function," while North's said there appeared to be a need for a counseling department chairman. NCA recommended that North continue to evaluate its attendance and discipline policies.

Whether the position would be full time, central office or part time in the high schools was one matter the board would be asked to decide, Whritner said.

The board asked Whritner to develop a job description for the position and submit it to trustees for their consideration.

Whritner also told the board that the administration is continuing its search to fill the principalship at South High School.

The administration initially interviewed about a dozen of the 75 candidates who applied following Frances French's announced retirement in February, Whritner said. The administration then sought out more candidates and interviewed four of those, he added.

"We feel good about the candidates we have seen," Whritner said. The administrators doing the interviews, Whritner, Deputy Superintendent Joseph Spagnoli, formerly South principal, and Director of Personnel Ronald Tonks, will now narrow the field and check into the backgrounds of candidates before a final choice is presented to the board. Also taking part in interviews were parents, students and board members.

While not having a top administrator might be considered disadvantageous to the school, "we would go with an acting principal for a period of time instead of going with someone we are not really sure about," Whritner said, adding the administration believes there are people available to handle the position part time if necessary.

The administration hopes to have a person ready to recommend to the board before the beginning of the school year, he added.

A pamphlet put together by the school system said the district is looking for "an administrator with strong leadership (who) will guide Grosse Pointe South High School through a critical period for public education and maintain its tradition of excellence."

Among the qualifications the district is looking for are a dynamic leader with excellent human relations skills, strong academic background, commitment to excellence in all areas of education, knowledge and experience concerning current secondary education issues, the ability to work effectively with faculty, support staff, board, community and students, and knowledge in personnel and financial management.

The pamphlet said the salary and fringe benefits for the position would be in the $50,000-plus range. Under the district's new administrative salary policy, the new principal would be hired in to a position that will pay a minimum of $46,000 and a maximum of $64,000, a salary grade topped only by the deputy superintendent.

The district's fringe benefit package for administrators includes basic life and accidental death insurance at twice the salary level, major medical and dental insurance, annual physical examinations, with 11 paid holidays, two personal business days and between 14 and 25 vacation days.

The district contributes 5 percent to the state retirement system for its administrators, who are not required to contribute. Administrators are eligible for full benefits when they reach age 55 with 30 years of service. Reduced benefits are available for those who retire at age 55 with 10 years of service.

Tax-sheltered annuities are also available, and the district picks up professional dues, reimburses mileage costs and pays an annual bonus based on performance.

Under the board's administrative salary policy, new employees should be hired at the minimum salary in their grade level. Hiring at a salary up to the midpoint of the grade level should be permitted to allow the district to attract the best candidates to the system.

Hirings at above the salary midpoints should be rare because the salaries about the midpoint of the grade level are extremely competitive in the market, the policy reads.

New members

The Lakeshore Optimist Club of Grosse Pointe inducted three new members recently. They are, from left, Cliff Carpenter of the Park, Jim Clarke and Bill Laupe, both of the Farms. The club meets every Wednesday at the War Memorial at 7:30 a.m. For information, call Mike Martin at 468-5985.

MTV will broadcast Live Aid

Subscribers of Comcast Cablevision and Grosse Pointe Cable can see 17 hours of live music on Music Television this Saturday. Band Aid, the African relief organization founded by Bob Geldof, will host the two-continent concert telethon to benefit famine relief.

Beginning at 7 a.m. Saturday, July 13, MTV will carry the two concerts; from Wembley Stadium in London, England and J.F.K. Stadium in Philadelphia. The concerts will feature 50 bands.

MTV, which can be seen on Comcast's Channel 27 in the Shores and Channel 30 for Grosse Pointe Cable subscribers, has pre-empted its regularly scheduled programming and is donating the revenue from all commercial time sold during the show.

Among the performers announced as participants are: Bryan Adams, Adam Ant, George Benson, Boomtown Rats, David Bowie, the Cars, Eric Clapton, Phil Collins, Elvis Costello, Dire Straits, Duran Duran, Bryan Ferry, Daryl Hall and John Oates, Mick Jagger and Waylon Jennings.

More are Elton John, Howard Jones, Nik Kershaw, Kris Kristofferson, Huey Lewis and the News, Alison Moyet, Paul McCartney, Billy Ocean, Robert Plant, Queen, Slade, Santana, Paul Simon, Simple Minds, Status Quo, Style Council, Sting, Tears For Fears, Thompson Twins, U2, Ultravox, the Who, Paul Young, Neil Young and Wham!

Concert promoters for "Live Aid" are Harvey Goldsmith in London and Bill Graham in the United States. Producing and marketing the global television package is Worldwide Sports and Entertainment, under the supervision of Michael D. Mitchell.

Piano workshop set at MCC

The first summer piano workshop at Macomb Community College's Center for Performing Arts will be held July 22-26.

Pianists in grades five through college level and adults can enroll. Cost is $75.

The intensive instruction with three separate sessions from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. includes 10 hours of clinic work, 10 hours of supervised practice and two private lessons under the guidance of professionals. The week will be concluded with a recital by concert pianist Santiago Rodriguez, a silver medal winner in the Van Cliburn International Piano Competition.

Other instructors for the workshop include summer piano workshop director, concert pianist and Macomb College faculty member Wesley Fishwick and Thomas Maurice. Dr. John Feierabend, professor of Music at the University of Oklahoma and Richard Piipp, chamber music specialist at Wayne State University and the University of Windsor will also work with students.

Registration and orientation is scheduled for Sunday, July 21 at 3 p.m. at the Center.

Additional information and workshop reservation forms may be obtained by calling Brenda Maltese at 286-2175. The Center for Performing Arts is located at Hall Road (M-59) and Garfield in Clinton Township.

Born in Detroit, he was the son of Aikman and Grace Eddy Armstrong and graduated from Detroit University School (now University Liggett), Princeton and the Harvard Law School.

Mr. Armstrong served in the Army during World War II in the National Guard and as a captain in the U.S. Field Artillery and U.S. Air Corps.

Mr. Armstrong is survived by his wife, Sally Bachelor; a daughter, Kathleen Eddy Armstrong; and a son, Henry I. III.

Memorial contributions may be made to the United Methodist Church, 21632 Wesley Drive, South Laguna, Calif. 92677.

Roy L. Blacketter

Services for Mr. Blacketter, 86, formerly of the Farms, lately of Sarasota, Fla., were held Monday, July 1, at the Presbyterian Church of the Palms, Sarasota.

He died June 27 in Sarasota.

Born in Logansport, Ind., he was a sales manager for a brass and aluminum company. Mr. Blacketter was also an army veteran of World War I.

He is survived by his wife, LeNette; three sons, Richard, James and Ralph; six grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Presbyterian Church of the Palms, 3224 Bee Ridge Road, Sarasota.

Mr. Blacketter was cremated. Arrangements were handled by the Roberts Funeral Home, Sarasota.

Samuel Chase Wakefield Jr.

Services for Mr. Wakefield, 39, of the Farms, were held Friday, July 5, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

He died July 2 at St. John Hospital.

Born in Minnesota, he was a manufacturer's representative. He attended St. James School in Minnesota, Gow in Buffalo and graduated from Grosse Pointe High School. He was also a member of the Country Club of Detroit.

Mr. Wakefield is survived by his son, Samuel III; his mother, Margaret Atkinson Kammer; and a sister.

Memorial contributions may be made to the St. John Hospital Intensive Care Unit or to Northwood Institute.

Arrangements were handled by the William R. Hamilton Co.

Thomas P. Thornton

A funeral mass for Judge Thornton, 87, retired senior federal jurist, was held Wednesday, July 3, at St. Paul's Catholic Church.

He died July 1 in Bon Secours Hospital.

Born in Boston, he was the son of Irish immigrants. He rose to become one of Michigan's outstanding legal practitioners during a judicial career that spanned six decades.

Along the way Judge Thornton served in the U.S. Navy during World War I and put himself through law school while playing football for Tufts, Syracuse, Fordham and eventually, the University of Detroit football teams.

Judge Thornton maintained a private practice from 1927 until the election of FDR in 1932 when he became an assistant U.S. attorney. He retained that position for 15 years and was named U.S. Attorney in 1947 and was appointed to the U.S. District Court for Eastern Michigan two years later by President Harry S. Truman.

He retired from that position in 1966. Fellow judges, including John Feikens, Cornelia Kennedy and Damon Keith, praised Judge Thornton for his "kindness, outstanding sense of humor and dedication to his profession."

Judge Thornton is survived by his wife, Rose, and a sister, Molly Keegan.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Capuchin Monastery Soup Kitchen.

Interment was at Mount Olivet Cemetery. Arrangements were handled by the Verheyden Funeral Home.

Leonard H. Thomson Jr.

Services for Mr. Thomson, 69, of McKinley Road, were held at the chapel of Roseland Park Cemetery on Wednesday, July 10.

He died July 6 in St. John's Hospital.

Born in Detroit, Mr. Thomson was a longtime resident of Grosse Pointe and was a graduate of Grosse Pointe High School. He had been employed by the Gregory Boat Company for most of his career.

Before his retirement, Mr. Thomson was active in powerboat racing. During World War II he was an engineer with the Packard Motor Car Co. and was involved in the installation and testing of engines for P.T. boats.

Mr. Thomson is survived by his wife, Betty; two sons, Leonard H. III and Clyde H.; his father, Leonard H. Thomson Sr.; one brother; two sisters; and six grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Southeast Michigan Hospice, Southfield.

Arrangements were handled by the Verheyden Funeral Home.

Joseph H. Parsons

The Detroit law community lost a prominent member of its ranks recently with the death of Joseph H. Parsons, who died Friday, June 7, in Henry Ford Hospital. He was 81.

Mr. Parsons, of the Park, was an attorney with one of the city's most prestigious law firms, Clark, Kline and Beaumont. He obtained his law degree from the University of Michigan in 1927.

Dedicated to the city he served, Mr. Parsons was a member of a number of civic associations, including the Detroit Grand Opera Association; Founders Society; Detroit Historical Society; Detroit Symphony Orchestra; and the Detroit Zoological Society.

Mr. Parsons was also a member of the Country Club of Detroit, Detroit Athletic Club, Detroit Club, Grosse Pointe Club, Old Club, Prismatic Club and the 100 Club of Detroit.

Mr. Parsons is survived by a sister, Marian P. Seagears, and two nieces.

Interment was at Roseland Park Mausoleum.

Marion D. VanVoorhees

Memorial services for Mrs. VanVoorhees, 69, formerly of Vernier Road, lately of Mount Clemens, were held Saturday, June 22, at the Harold Vick Funeral Home, Mount Clemens.

She died June 20 in Mount Clemens General Hospital.

Born in Rockford, Ill., she was predeceased by her husband Harold E. and is survived by a daughter, Karen Davis-Collins; a son, George VanVoorhees; one brother; four grandchildren; and five step-grandchildren.

Interment was at Crown Hill Cemetery, Indianapolis, Ind.

Husen Abood

Services for Mrs. Abood, 91, of Lakeland Avenue, were held Wednesday, July 3, at the Verheyden Funeral Home and St. George Orthodox Church, Detroit.

She died July 1 in Bon Secours Hospital.

Born in Lebanon, she was wife of the late Nicholas and is survived by two daughters, Henrietta Rowady and Alice Gurche; two sons, Edward and Alfred; seven grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Interment was at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

All about the Great Lakes

What is one nickname for the Great Lakes? How deep is Lake Superior? Which is the only Great Lake entirely within the United States? Which Great Lake has more than 30,000 islands? How long does it take water to flow through Lake Erie? Which is the smallest of the Great Lakes?

The answers to these and other questions can be found in a series of six bulletins recently published by the Marine Advisory Service of the Michigan Sea Grant College Program, a cooperative effort of the University of Michigan and Michigan State University in Great Lakes research, education and Extension.

The series consists of a brochure about the Great Lakes Basin and one each about lakes Superior, Michigan, Huron, Erie and Ontario. Each brochure includes facts about volume, area, population, water usage, economic importance, shoreline, resource problems and improvements. Each brochure also opens into a poster that displays an outline of the lake, points of interest and other pertinent information.

The series was developed several years ago by the former Great Lakes Basin Commission and published as "The Great Lakes Notebook." It was subsequently distributed under the same title and later revised by the Great Lakes regional office of the International Joint Commission, and is now presented in the poster format by the Marine Advisory Service.

A single copy of each bulletin is available free to Michigan residents from district Extension Sea Grant agents, from county extension offices, or from the MSU Bulletin Office, Michigan State University, P.O. Box 231, East Lansing, Mich. 48823-0231.

Priest to explain mission

The Rev. Edward Gorny of the Glenmary Home Missioners will address the congregation of St. Clare of Montefalco Church, 1401 Whittier, Saturday and Sunday, July 13-14, to explain his society's ministry throughout Appalachia and the rural South.

A native of Detroit, Father Gorny was ordained in 1968 and is currently treasurer of Glenmary and pastor of Holy Trinity Church, West Union, Ohio. He has also served at Glenmary missions in Virginia, Georgia, Kentucky and Texas.

The Glenmary Home Missioners, founded in 1939 by Father William Howard Bishop, are currently active in 77 counties in the United States, specifically ministering to those areas where at least 20 percent of the population lives in poverty and less than one percent are Catholic.

According to the latest census figures, 545 U.S. counties with a population of nearly six million are without the services of a Catholic priest. In Glenmary's Mission Land, U.S.A., there is only one priest for every 30,000 people.

The Rev. Edward Gorny

Children's art classes scheduled

"Printmaking" for children 6 through 9 years old will be offered at the War Memorial Monday through Friday, July 15-19, from 9:30 to 11 a.m.

A variety of processes will be used to produce compositions incorporating repeated color, texture and pattern. Students will create their own blocks so they can make their own unique designs.

"Papier Mache," for ages 10-13, will meet on the same days from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Students will create outrageous critters, modeled with an emphasis on exaggeration and humor. Paper, paste and paint will be transformed into fanciful and imaginative constructions.

Each class is $18 and includes all supplies. Instructor Margaret Hall has a master's degree in art education and for 14 years has taught art to children throughout the Detroit area, including the Grosse Pointe Academy and WTVS-Channel 56.

Registration may be made in person or by mail with full payment to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236.

Justice O'Connor swears in William Durant III

Aging agency seeks sr. citizens of year

The Michigan Office of Services to the Aging (OSA), in cooperation with the Michigan State Fair, now has less than one month to find outstanding senior citizens to receive the Senior Citizen of the Year awards.

Since the early '70s, Senior Citizen of the Year awards have been presented to persons age 60 and older, from every part of the state. Applicants are judged in two categories, either service or leadership. Judges are looking for persons who deserve recognition, but who may not be in the limelight.

Anyone 60 or older is eligible as a nominee. Only organizations, however, may submit applications. Copies of the forms can be obtained through the Office of Services to the Aging or local Area Agencies on Aging (AAA's). Applications must be received no later than Friday, July 26. The awards program is co-sponsored by the Michigan State Fair.

For more information, contact the Public Information Section, Office of Services to the Aging, P.O. Box 30026, Lansing, Mich. 48909, (517) 373-4083.

Child labor

Under the Fair Labor Standards Act, youths aged 14 and 15 may work in various jobs outside school hours but no more than three hours on a school day with a limit of 18 hours in a school week; no more than eight hours on a non-school day with a limit of 40 hours in a non-school week; and not before 7 a.m. or after 7 p.m., except from June 1 through Labor Day, when the evening hour is extended to 9 p.m., according to a U.S. Department of Labor fact sheet.

U.S. House adopts reform amendments

Congressman Dennis M. Hertel, chairman of the Task Force on Waste, Abuse and Fraud in the Department of Defense, announced that the House of Representatives overwhelmingly approved the majority of the task force's military reform recommendations. The recommendations were offered as amendments to the fiscal year 1986 defense authorization bill.

"Reports of waste and abuse in defense spending have outraged Congress and the American people for months. This week the House of Representatives approved moderate, constructive measures to tighten defense spending and increase competition in the defense procurement process," Hertel said.

Seven of the eight amendments

Flooding, erosion info available

High Great Lakes water levels are continuing to cause flooding and severe erosion along Michigan's shoreline. While there are coordinated state, local and federal programs in some communities, many property owners may wish to act on their own.

Thomas D. Martin, director of the Office of the Great Lakes, said various self-help information is available through the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the Michigan Sea Grant Program. Free materials include information on protection from flood damage, low cost self-help shoreline erosion measures and information on Great Lakes water levels.

"Many of the most effective anti-flooding and anti-erosion measures can be taken by property owners themselves," he said. "The Michigan Sea Grant Program and the DNR are the experts on shoreline protection and have the information materials."

For more information or a review of materials from the Department of Natural Resources write to: Water Levels, Michigan Office of the Great Lakes, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, Michigan 48909, or Publications, Michigan Sea Grant Program, The University of Michigan, 2200 Bonisteel Boulevard, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109.

in the task force's package of military reform recommendations were adopted by the House.

One of the boldest initiatives included in the package was an amendment to impose criminal penalties on contractors who repeatedly bill the Defense Department for unallowed items. Under this amendment, violations could bring criminal penalties of up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine for individuals and fines as much as $500,000 for corporations.

Congressional investigations conducted earlier this year revealed that defense contractors have charged the government for non-defense items, such as $12,333 for two season tickets to the Los Angeles Forum where professional hockey and basketball is played, $959 for golf fees for a single day, country club memberships, and kenneling of an executive's dog.

Travel directory available free

Visitors and vacationers in northern Michigan this year can find some helpful information in Michigan Bell's 1985 Travel Director.

The Michigan Travel Directory is similar to the Yellow Pages but contains information specifically of interest to visitors, according to Reggie Gibbs, Michigan Bell's local corporate affairs manager.

"Included in the book are phone numbers and addresses for businesses and services in 200 vacation areas in Michigan," Gibbs said. "Travelers can consult the book to help plan their trips and use the guide later when they arrive. They will find information on motels and campgrounds, boat rentals and ski areas."

The director also includes information on hunting and fishing regulations, local history, festivals and events, and fall color tours. The book includes information and listings for 15 counties in the northeastern Lower Peninsula, 10 counties in the northwestern Lower Peninsula and nine counties in the Straits area — which includes the northern tip of the Lower Peninsula and the eastern third of the Upper Peninsula.

The Travel Directory is at Michigan State Highway Information Centers, Michigan Bell payment and service centers and various chamber of commerce locations throughout the state.

WHIPLASH

In this age of high speed transportation and sport, "whiplash" has become commonplace. This is an injury which may cause long-term discomfort, or even permanent damage, to the victim. It offers a diagnostic and therapeutic challenge for which the doctor of chiropractic is uniquely suited.

This trauma to the neck and spine results when one's head, an average seven-pound mass, is snapped rapidly backward or forward in a collision, fall, or other accident. Symptoms vary with the degree and nature of the injury to the soft tissue and vertebrae of the upper spine.

Low back and leg pain, neck and arm pain, dizziness, headaches, nausea, and fatigue are typical symptoms of a whiplash injury. These symptoms may appear days or months after the accident.

Whiplash victims should not delay chiropractic treatment due to the fact that scar tissue can develop in the soft tissue of the spine, increasing the chances of a permanent injury.

Brought to you as a community service by Dr. David Jantz. If you have any further questions call or write the clinic, Grosse Pointe Woods Chiropractic Clinic, 20217 Mack GPW, phone 881-7677. All insurances accepted.

FACTS OF LAW

by
Ellen C. Wallaert

FRUSTRATION, in contract law, means that the value of an item or a service bargained for has been destroyed or made useless by some intervening factor, and the contract is thereby ended.

A city or town highway authority can be held responsible for a motorists' injury or damage where it failed to repair or maintain a roadway properly and promptly.

A gas company is liable if, during the course of a cleaning, inspection, or repair, its employees injures the occupants or contents of a dwelling.

Legally, a gift has not been given until it is actually transferred to the recipient, either by physical movement or by properly executed documents. Simple intent does not make a gift a gift.

A court can appoint a guardian where a parent refuses to provide necessary medical treatment for a child. The guardianship is temporary and is authorized to provide consent to the treatment.

NOTICE OF HEARING ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT the Zoning Board of Appeals will meet in City Hall at 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms on:

MONDAY, JULY 22, 1985

at 8:00 p.m. to hear the appeal of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Danaher, Jr. owner of the premises located at 34 Moross Road from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the construction of a detached garage on the premises located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that the garage as an accessory building may not exceed fourteen (14) feet in height, while the proposed garage would be 21 feet in height, thereby requiring a variance from Article XV, Section 1503.1 of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

The Hearing will be public. Interested property owners or residents of the City are invited to attend.

RICHARD G. SOLAK

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF Grosse Pointe Park MICHIGAN

PROJECT PLAN
FOR THE ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK
OPHTHALMIC SURGEONS PROJECT.
INCLUDING ISSUANCE OF LIMITED OBLIGATION REVENUE BONDS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Park will hold a public hearing at 7:00 P.M. in the City Council Chambers, 15115 East Jefferson Avenue, in the City of Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan on the 29th day of July 1985, on the issuance and sale of certain Bonds (identified below) and a Project Plan prepared by The Economic Development Corporation of the City of Grosse Pointe Park (the "EDC") for its Ophthalmic Surgeons Project (the "Project"), said Project being undertaken for the benefit of 15401 East Jefferson Avenue Limited Partnership, a Michigan limited partnership. The street address of the Project will be 15401 East Jefferson Avenue in the City of Grosse Pointe Park, County of Wayne, State of Michigan.

The Project Plan contemplates the issuance of not more than $2,200,000 limited obligation economic development bonds (the "Bonds") by the EDC to finance the acquisition, construction and equipping of a 16,000 square foot medical facility. The initial owner, operator and manager of the Project will be 15401 East Jefferson Avenue Limited Partnership.

The location of the Project Area and the Project District Area in relation to highways, streets, streams or otherwise is indicated in the Project Plan.

Maps, plats, and a description of the proposed Project Plan, including the method of relocating families and individuals who will be displaced from the area, if any, are available for public inspection at the office of City Clerk, City of Grosse Pointe Park, located at 15115 East Jefferson Avenue, Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan, and all aspects of the Bonds and the proposed Project Plan will open for discussion at the public hearing. The Project Plan contains additional information about the issuance of the Bonds and the financial parameters thereof. The City Council will consider approval of (i) the Project Plan and (ii) the Bonds only after the public hearing has been completed. The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Park shall provide an opportunity for interested persons to be heard and shall receive and consider communications in writing with reference to the hearing. The hearing shall provide the fullest opportunity for expression of opinion, for argument on the merits, and for introduction of documentary evidence pertinent to the Bonds and the proposed Project Plan.

Summer school and summer fun

Just because summer vacation Bible School is serious, there's no reason why it can't be fun and entertaining as well. That's the philosophy of the staff at St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church in the Farms. Teachers and students recently donned the garb of their favorite Biblical characters and also enjoyed rides on Jose, the donkey, from the Children's Pony Ranch. From the left are Chris Profeta, co-director of the Bible School; Ann Halpin, 8; Joan Geisler, co-director; and Jason Rolka, 9.

Summer school a success, director says

Like their fall-to-spring counterparts, summer classes in the Grosse Pointe Public School System have been hit by declining enrollments.

But Program Director Kathleen Herschelmann says the drop in enrollment parallels the regular school year loss of 3 percent.

Classes for Summer Experience '85 started in mid-June and will run through July 26. Special mini-courses will begin Aug. 13 and run through Aug. 23. The lion's share of courses this year are offered at North High School, with only typing and computer courses being offered at South.

While there's been an overall drop in enrollment, some courses are showing increases, Herschelmann said. Two of those classes are Math One-B and a high school writing preparatory course.

The Math One-B is offering three sections this year with 56 students enrolled, Herschelmann said. The program is meant to help students understand and enjoy mathematics so they can continue their studies at a higher level.

Volunteers needed to deliver meals

Volunteers are needed to deliver meals to home-bound seniors in the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods areas. The Meals at Home program is sponsored by Services for Older Citizens (SOC), and provides a complete hot balanced meal to seniors who are not able to cook for themselves.

The volunteer drivers pick up the packaged meals at Ferry Elementary School in Grosse Pointe Woods and deliver them to the seniors on their route. Each route has about 15 people on it, and takes about 1 1/2 hours to deliver. The drivers are scheduled according to their availability, and come from once a week to once every three weeks.

There are now 60 home-bound seniors who are receiving meals. Some of these people never leave their homes, and taking the meal from the volunteer may be the only personal contact they have that day.

Call 882-9781 between 10 a.m. and noon for more information or to volunteer.

Those students who enroll in the high school writing class lack the skills to communicate effectively at a high school level, but will have those skills when they finish, Herschelmann said.

Enrollment in computer courses is half last year's total, Herschelmann said. That may be because of the various opportunities students have to take computer education courses, she added.

Non-public schools offer computer camps during and after school and the public schools' seven-period day at the high schools gives those students extra opportunity to learn about computers during the school day, she said.

While the proportion of students taking courses for enrichment or to make up credit is about the same as last year, Herschelmann said there is a very definite push on by students to make up credits.

During the last two days of registration, the district received a number of inquiries from students of other school districts looking to make up credit this year at Grosse Pointe's summer program, she said. The number of inquiries from local students also increased after they received their final grades.

The district's developmental learning program was also filled in the last days of registration. The program combines recreational programs with two, 2 1/2 hour classes in vocational skills four days a week.

The program is very good for students enrolled because it helps them adjust to a different environment, Herschelmann said. Other students have an opportunity to interact with those in the developmental learning program as well, she added.

Programs for elementary students are also doing very well this year, Herschelmann said. This year's drama group will be large enough to do a variety of different things, she added.

There were programs cut this year because of lack of enrollment. Courses in computers and practical arts were dropped, Herschelmann said.

Consolidation this year of summer programs into a single building has had a very positive effect, Herschelmann said. A camaraderie has developed between students from different grade levels, resulting in a one-room school house atmosphere in the three-story North High building, she added.

Enrollment is in progress for the mini-courses in August, Herschelmann said. The two-week programs for elementary, middle and high school students are heavy on study skills, she added.

For more information about registration in the mini-courses, call 343-2248.

Marshall memorial fund established

At its recent meeting, the active board of directors of the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology chose to honor James R. Marshall Jr., M.D. by officially establishing a memorial fund in his memory.

Dr. Marshall, who died in April, was a co-founder of the DIO and served for many years on its board. He was also former chief of staff of Bon Secours Hospital, and president of Ophthalmic Surgeons, P.C. until his retirement from private practice in January 1985.

Since Dr. Marshall spent his entire adult life working in the area of ophthalmology, the family has asked that donations to the memorial fund be restricted for use in ophthalmic care and be managed by the DIO board under the direction of Mrs. James R. Marshall and Drs. Philip C. Hessburg and Carole E. West.

Tax-deductible donations may be sent to the James R. Marshall Jr., M.D. Memorial Fund, c/o Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology, 15415 E. Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park, Mich. 48230.

Eight guns stolen

Guns missing from a home on Stephens in the Farms are probably worth $1,000 to $1,500, according to police estimates. Three rifles and five handguns were stolen from a cabinet while the owner was on vacation two weeks ago.

A housekeeper noticed the empty gun cabinet when she went to bed June 29, according to the police report. She fell asleep downstairs, woke up and went upstairs about 4 a.m. She noticed that the bedroom door was closed, although she had left it open, the gun cabinet was empty, and the bedspread was missing.

None of the guns is a collector's item, Farms Detective Sgt. George Van Tiem said. One is styled like a machine gun, but is nonfunctional. Police found no forced entry. The house was in the process of being painted, so all of the second-story screens were off the windows.

The hinges on the gun cabinet had been removed, showing fresh scratch marks around the lock and on the hinge screws. Police found several partial finger- and palm prints, according to the report.

Police continue to question tradesmen who have worked at the house within the last few months.

GP Breathers Club to meet July 15

"Traveling and COPD" is the topic at this month's Breathers Club, the support group for chronic lung disease patients, sponsored by the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan (ALASEM). The group meets at 2:30 p.m. Monday, July 15, in Classroom 3 of the Calvary Senior Center, 4950 Gateshead.

Bob Padalino, R.R.T., will lead the discussion.

Breathers Club meets the third Monday of each month and is a free community service of the Lung Association. Family members and friends are welcome. For more information, call 961-1697.

That President George Washington was a hypochondriac morbidly concerned with his health has been fairly well documented.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

Best of all, ordering Amitol is simple, fast, and reliable! Simply call Dyna Labs Toll Free: (1-800-441-5454) and order with your credit card. If you don't have a credit card Dyna Labs will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! All orders are shipped immediately by UPS, which means no delay and no orders lost in the mail!

$19.95—30 day supply, or $35.95—60 day supply. Operators are standing by and will be glad to take your order. You can order 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a week! Please don't wait to call. You really do deserve to be thin!

Stratford trip

The War Memorial will sponsor a weekend trip to Stratford, Ontario, Sept. 14 and 15. Reservations are now being taken at the Center.

The bus will leave at 8 a.m. Saturday morning, and will arrive in Stratford in time for a noon luncheon at The Church Restaurant. Saturday night will include the performance of "Twelfth Night" by William Shakespeare in the Festival Theatre and lodging at The Victorian Inn.

Sunday's matinee performance of "She Stoops to Conquer" by Oliver Goldsmith will be in the Avon Theatre.

In addition to time for sightseeing and shopping Stratford, there will be a dinner stop at The Waterlot Restaurant on the return trip.

The cost is $180 per person based on double occupancy, with an additional $38 for single supplement.

To reserve space, send a check or money order for the full amount to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236.

Teen dances

Grosse Pointe students who have completed grades 6-8 are invited to re-unite with their friends at two dances to be held at the War Memorial.

Both dances will feature "J.R. Entertainment," and will start at 7:30 p.m. and end at 10:30 p.m.

The first one, "In the Summer Time," will be Thursday, July 18, and the second one, "Hot August Nite," will be Thursday, Aug. 15.

Tickets are $3 each and must be purchased in advance. No teens will be admitted on the War Memorial grounds the night of the dances without a ticket. Sales are limited to two tickets per person with school, park or library I.D.

Any parent, who can chaperone one or both of the dances, is urged to call the War Memorial at 881-7511.

Church school

"God's People Pray" is the theme of Vacation Church School at Salem Memorial Lutheran Church, 21230 Moross at Chester.

There will be classes for three-year-olds through grade six, as well as for adults, from Monday, July 29, through Friday, Aug. 2.

To register or for more information, visit the church office daily between 9:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. or call 881-9210.

Botanical gardens

The Friends of the Matthaei Botanical Gardens will hold its annual open house Sunday, July 14, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Special events have been planned and refreshments will be served on the terrace. The Conservatory will be open free of charge during the open house. The lobby display will feature "Michigan Plants in Danger," endangered species. Several lectures, a film and tours will be given during the afternoon.

Ford barbecue

The Sail Committee of the Michigan Council, American Youth Hostels, Inc. will host its 3rd Annual Benefit Barbecue Friday, July 12, at 6 p.m. at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House.

Tickets at $12.50 include a tour of the house, a stroll through the gardens and dinner garden-style. There will also be door prizes.

For ticket information, call the AYH office at 545-0511.

Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band

Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band in concert at War Memorial

By popular demand, the Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band will return to the War Memorial to perform at the Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival's fourth concert, Monday, July 15.

Their outdoor performance, which will express a wide range of musical styles, including calypso, reggae, country, pop and classical, will begin at 8 p.m.

Tickets for reserved seating are $9.50 each and lawn tickets are $5.50 each.

The Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band, whose members include maestro Hugh Borde and his family, has won a 1972 Grammy Award for their gold album, "Liberace Presents," and has had an 18-month engagement as the major attraction at Expo '67.

The group made two command performances for the Queen of England and has performed for two presidents of the United States. They have spent two years on tour with Liberace and one year on tour with Sergio Franchi.

From Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, to a world tour, this amazing group of performers plays a repertoire of music that ranges from classical to rock 'n' roll... all on oil drums. This feat has astounded audiences not only with its unusual instruments, but also with the unbelievable fidelity and artistic accomplishment they give to each number, whether modern, classical or calypso. The calypso and reggae numbers are in a class by themselves, combined with exciting dancing and chanting.

Steel drums, as instruments, were born of the desperate days following World War II when it was impossible to get money for instruments to play their beloved calypso music. It was at that time that the natives of Trinidad discovered that abandoned oil drums could be used for musical tunes.

Author's autograph

Philip McM. Pittman, author of "The Les Cheneaux Chronicles: Anatomy of a Community," will autograph books at The Book Shelf Wednesday, July 17, from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. The store is located at 112 Kercheval.

AARP schedule

The American Association of Retired People, Grosse Pointe Chapter 2151, will not hold general meetings during July and August.

Reservations for the Elora Mill trip Oct. 21 must be made now or no later than Aug. 20. Also the Vermont trip Sept. 28 reservations must be made now or no later than Aug. 28. Call the travel chairman at 885-0625.

The next general meeting will be held Monday, Sept. 23, at the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church at 1 p.m. There will be a speaker and refreshments.

Thus began the original band of which the Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band is the present-day outgrowth. They have played such pockets of sophistication as the Rockefeller Plaza, Central Park and Lincoln Center Mall in New York City, the Pan American Union in Washington, D.C. and the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts.

The War Memorial grounds will open for picnicking at 6 p.m. Concert-goers may bring their own picnics or reserve a picnic supper, freshly prepared by the Center's staff, at least three days in advance. Picnic suppers cost $6.50 each.

The remaining concerts in the Summer Music Festival series includes the New World String Quartet July 22; the Johnny Knorr Orchestra and the Big Band Sound, outdoors, July 29; and the Grosse Pointe Symphony Pops conducted by Felix Resnick, Aug. 5. The final concert will be held outdoors and one of its many outstanding features will be a fireworks display while the Symphony plays the "1812 Overture."

For details on any of the concerts, call the War Memorial at 881-7511.

Free movies

The Detroit Historical Museum will offer free weekend movies of historical interest every Saturday and Sunday in the Casino Theater in the "Streets of Old Detroit." The films will be shown between 11 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Company misleads; merit scholars warned

In a case filed June 25 by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation of Evanston, Ill., Judge Prentice Marshall of the United States District Court in Chicago issued a temporary restraining order prohibiting the use of the name, National Merit Foundation, Inc., by an organization located in Los Angeles.

The plaintiff, National Merit Scholarship Corporation, conducts the annual National Merit Scholarship Program. More than one million students from some 19,000 high schools currently enter each year's competition, in which more than 104,000 college undergraduate scholarships valued at $325 million were awarded between 1956 and 1985.

The defendant, National Merit Foundation, Inc., which is not associated with the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, made a mass mailing to students throughout the country stating that, because of outstanding achievements, the student's name would appear in the National Merit Foundation's "National Honor Roll."

The complaint filed by National Merit Scholarship Corporation alleged that the mailing included some students being honored in the National Merit Scholarship Program, but also was sent to students with poor academic records and to students who had dropped out of school.

The mailing included an offer for the student to buy "The National Honor Roll" for $29.95, as well as a key chain for $8.95, a wood grain plaque for $19.95, and a certificate of recognition for $9.95. The defendant also offered to send letters of recommendation to businesses and colleges for $2 each.

Watch out

State Police reported 1,600 persons were injured and 17 killed in 3,525 construction zone accidents in Michigan in 1983. Four who died were road workers.

With the increase in highway improvement projects, the odds are greater that there could be more accidents this year.

The speed law in construction zones is 45 miles per hour. Motorists are urged to put themselves in the position of the highway worker, to try to feel the fear they experience as speeding cars and heavy semi-trucks rush by them at 50 to 70 miles an hour.

Lake level

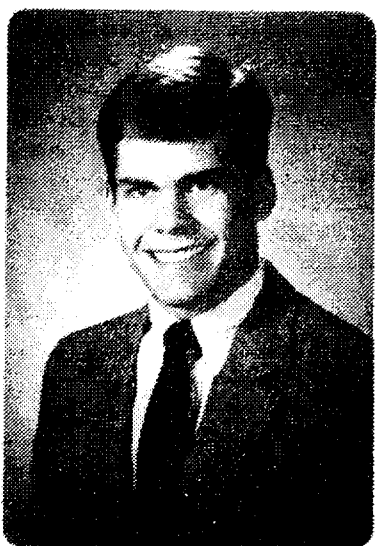

Lake St. Clair at the end of May was at elevation 576.12 feet or 53 inches above chart datum; this was about nine inches above one year ago, and the May monthly mean of 576.12 feet was 29 inches above its long-term average for May. The Great Lakes forecast shows that Lake St. Clair is expected to be 54 inches above chart datum or at elevation 576.24 feet at the end of June.

Top drawings chosen

Three Grosse Pointe students were among 12 young people selected for their drawings of a hospital experience. The contest was sponsored by St. John Hospital, Concentrated Care Building.

Among the winners were Lana Khalida and Mile Somagyi, both entered in the third through fifth grade, and Becky Kosterce, in the middle school category.

All entries will be displayed during an open house of the fourth and fifth floors later this fall.

Pointes buckle up with new law

By Nancy Parmenter

After one week of the new state seat belt law, Pointe police departments have issued a few warnings, but almost no tickets, to violators. "You don't search out that type of violation," said Park Police Chief Richard Caretti. "It's discretionary on the part of the officer."

So far, two departments have issued tickets. John Albrecht, safety officer for the Woods public safety department, said his conversations with department officers indicate that compliance with the law has been good. The Woods has issued three seat belt tickets since July 1. Albrecht had no information on the original violations the drivers were stopped for.

The Shores has issued two tickets, to a driver and a passenger in the same car. The car was stopped for bearing an expired license plate. It was discovered that the driver was also wanted for a probation violation and the seat belt tickets were issued, according to the police report.

"The most stringent application will be on the highway," predicted Farm Police Chief Robert Ferber. Although the Farms police have arrested six people for drunk driving since the seat belt law went into effect, they have issued no seat belt tickets. Ferber speculated that drivers who have had a few drinks may be more likely to buckle up to avoid problems.

Most of the police noted that compliance with the new law seems to be good in the Pointes. "People are asking me how these things work, so I know they never wore them before," Ferber said.

Among the new wearers is Chief Caretti. "I never wore one before July 1," he admitted. "Like every habit, it takes a while, but you can get used to it."

Caretti said the law is a "wonderful rule," but thinks only about half of all motorists are buckling up. "It piqued my curiosity, so I've been watching," he said. "Of 10 cars on Jefferson this morning (Monday), only about five were wearing their belts."

Accidents in the state over the Fourth of July holiday were down by about half, which Caretti said experts attribute to a widespread use of belts.

Kennedy agreed. "Experience dictates that the majority of accidents occur within 25 miles of home," he said. "You can be seriously injured traveling only 25 or 30 miles an hour."

Only 14 Michigan people were killed over the four-day holiday, compared to an average of 32 in past years. Deaths were reduced in other states with seat belt laws as well, but were also down by nearly half nationwide. Some officials say the drop is only a statistical blip, others credit increased seat belt use.

Comcast plans consolidation of 10 franchises

Comcast Cablevision officials will present plans in the next six weeks for the consolidation of the company's franchises in 10 communities, including Grosse Pointe Shores.

The company would like to consolidate its operations into a single "super system" that will increase accessibility, responsiveness and efficiency, according to the company. Comcast hopes to have its central office in a single location within six to eight months and standardize its channel selection, capacity and rates in 18 months, according to Comcast's Donald Ivey, director of governmental affairs.

The consolidation process began last year, when Comcast relocated its management to the Sterling Heights facility.

Basic rates among the 10 communities in Macomb and Wayne counties are all within $1 of each other, Ivey said. Differences come in channel selection and numbering, he added.

In the Grosse Pointe Shores-Fraser-St. Clair Shores system, there are seven premium services available to subscribers, Ivey said. Other franchises average four. Also, services like Music Television appear on different channels in different franchises, he said.

The company would offer seven premium services to all subscribers under consolidation and would standardize channel numbers, he added.

The company received its first franchise in the area in 1979 and over the next three years, landed agreements with other contiguous communities, Ivey said. The company has maintained separate offices and phone lines, but has learned that consolidation can increase its ability to serve communities, Ivey said.

The company consolidated its Flint system, with a central location serving 16 communities.

According to Comcast, the move will standardize procedures and policies which will eventually include rates, programming services and channel capacity; improve response time for service and repair; centralize warehousing and distribution of materials and supplies; and allow closer supervision of all activities by management.

One part of the company's consolidation plan is the installation of a $60,000 toll-free phone system with 32 lines and 24 operators. Separate numbers have been enacted this month. For 24-hour service, call 978-7700; for general information and sales, call 978-8780; and billing questions are directed to 977-5850.

The company hopes to put the final touches on its consolidation plans in four to six weeks and begin making its presentations to local councils, Ivey said.

Comcast is negotiating with Michigan National Bank to accept monthly bill payments at bank offices for those subscribers who pay in person. The company is also looking at having videotape retailers act as equipment exchange centers in each community for those subscribers who want to exchange equipment personally.

New state map available free

The 1985-86 official transportation map of Michigan, the first official map published by the state in two years, is available free from the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT).

The map guides travelers along the 9,500-mile state highway system, on primary county roads and the major thoroughfares of the state's metropolitan area.

Users also can locate airports having lighted runways at least 3,000 feet in length, intercity bus terminals, both commercial and recreational harbors on the Great Lakes, ferry routes, freeway rest areas and roadside parks on the state highway system. The map also shows rail passenger lines and stations and, for the first time, rail freight lines as well.

Hospitals offering 24-hour emergency service and MDOT's 11 travel information centers, located mostly at border points, also are shown.

The map contains information panels on Michigan speed limits and the new safety belt law, Michigan historical markers, highway distances from city to city, location and phone numbers for state police posts and district offices of MDOT and fares charged on such facilities as the Mackinac Bridge.

The map also identifies all state parks and lists their types of accommodations and provides an index to Michigan cities and villages.

The map is available free at all MDOT district offices and travel information centers. Other distribution points include state police posts, district offices of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, local chambers of commerce, municipal government offices and regional tourist associations.

The Department of Transportation also will mail maps to individuals upon request. Requests should be made on a post card (not in a sealed envelope) providing name, address and zip code, mailed to: MAPS, Michigan Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 30050, Lansing, Mich. 48909.

Witnesses foil purse-snatching

Witnesses helped a 59-year-old Detroit woman recover a purse taken from her Wednesday morning, July 3, in front of a Mack Avenue bakery in the Park.

Employees of the bakery called police at about 9:25 that morning to say a purse-snatching had just occurred, according to reports. The suspect was seen running north across Mack from the store. Two witnesses gave chase, forcing the robber to drop the purse. The pursuers lost sight of the suspect a couple blocks away.

The woman suffered cuts to her elbow, left wrist and left knee after falling when the robber pulled the purse from her arm. She was examined by Park ambulance technicians, according to police.

Child labor

Under the Fair Labor Standards Act, youths aged 14 and 15 may work in various jobs outside school hours but no more than three hours on a school day with a limit of 18 hours in a school week; no more than eight hours on a non-school day with a limit of 40 hours in a non-school week; and not before 7 a.m. or after 7 p.m., except from June 1 through Labor Day, when the evening hour is extended to 9 p.m., according to a U.S. Department of Labor fact sheet.

Under the child labor standards of the Fair Labor Standards Act, youths aged 14 and 15 may be employed in a variety of jobs, including office work; various food service jobs, including cashiering, waiting on tables, bussing tables, washing dishes and preparing salads and other food (although cooking is permitted only at snack bars, soda fountains, lunch counters and cafeteria-serving counters); sales work and other jobs in retail stores; errand and delivery work by foot, bicycle, and public transportation; and most cleanup work.

All states have child labor laws, and when both state and federal child labor laws apply, the law setting the more stringent standard must be observed, according to a U.S. Department of Labor fact sheet.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

"Artrain is a first-rate concept with a history of bringing quality art to communities. . . . While never losing sight of this priority, we need to guide the organization into an era of financial security through strict money management and innovative development ideas."

The speaker is Daniel O'Leary, who grew up in The Pointe, has been around a bit since then, and has just been named executive director of Artrain, the nation's only traveling museum housed in railroad cars.

Artrain, founded in 1971, is headquartered in Detroit and has toured over 300 communities in 25 states. Dan, most recently a lecturer in Renaissance Art at the University of Michigan, has been living in Ann Arbor.

The recipient of five university degrees, he brings a strong educational background to his new job. He completed his undergraduate studies at Princeton University, earning a Bachelor of Arts degree in the History of Art. He received Master of Arts degrees in English Literature and History of Art, a Doctorate in History of Art and a Master of Business Administration degree in Marketing, with a concentration in the Management of Nonprofit Organizations, from the University of Michigan.

He's worked for Kelsey-Hayes as an Industrial Relations assistant. He's been a Detroit News writer/reporter, and an assistant curator of the Slide and Photography Collection at the University of Michigan. He's served as a lecturer and art historian in residence for the U. of M.'s Center for Western European Studies at the Villa Boscobello in Florence, Italy.

With all that behind him, he's perfect for Artrain. With all that's ahead of him, we know, at the very least, he won't be bored.

A Grosse Pointe Garden Quiz

Which Grosse Pointe garden was once jokingly referred to by a local garden writer as a "botanical zoo?" Which contains a brick-bordered, Pewabic blue glaze-colored circle centered with an original metal sculpture by the son of its owner who, like her son, is a noted artist?

Where will you find an Italian goddess posed against a crescent of junipers? . . . a 10th century Moorish stone wall? . . . a Tudor style pool house (and you thought the Tudors used the Thames!)?

For the answers to these and other questions, get your tickets for the Grosse Pointe Garden Club Council's 12th Annual Garden Tour in advance, now, by calling either of the two ticket chairmen, Mrs. Douglas Borden, 884-2775, or Mrs. Eberhard Mammen, 884-0966, or pick up your tickets in person at the Garden Center Room in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial any time between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. today, or next Tuesday through Thursday.

Kick up your heels at the French Market

For food, fun and entertainment with a French accent, come to the 13th Annual French Market sponsored by the French Festival of Detroit. It runs from noon to 8 p.m. Saturday, July 13, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, July 14, indoors and outdoors at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. There's no admission charge.

But there are things to buy, at a flea market, boutique, epicerie . . . and there are things to do (have your picture taken by a street photographer, for instance, or drawn by a caricaturist) . . . and there's entertainment all day long both days.

During Sunday's special cooking demonstrations, "Paris-Brest Cafe Le Chat," a Grosse Pointe version of the famous Parisian dessert, will be assembled by Le Chat's chef Robert Goodfriend. Hogan's chef Tom McGlone will come in from Birmingham to prepare Scallops and Shrimp Cardinal. Detroit Athletic Club chef John McCormack will create a casserole, and Angeline Rooks will prepare her Salade Nicoise.

If your taste runs to simpler fare, you can snack on crepes, French cheese sandwiches or vichyssoise, patisseries or (perish the thought!) — but one must allow for the occasional unregenerated American palate) hot dogs, washed down with appropriate beverages.

You can watch the cancan girls. Perry Perrault, artistic director of the University of Michigan Mime Troupe, will be there, with several of his group. So will a magician, an accordionist, a pianist, young and young-at-heart singers and dancers and authentic Voyageurs from the Detroit Historical Museum.

French Market proceeds have traditionally supported civic and cultural projects with a French orientation in the Greater Detroit area. This year, the French Festival will donate a bust of Lafayette to be installed at the War Memorial.

French Market '85 committee members from The Pointe include, in addition to Lewis Miller, Dorothea Vermeulen and Angie Rooks, Dan and Mickey Kuskowski, Denise Controulis, Mirielle Wilkinson, Dorothy Newhouse, Mahie Skaff, Lenore Marshall and Charles Collins.

Fireworks!

... in the wet

The Freedom Festival Fireworks Display brings a different kind of happiness to the small patients at the Detroit Institute for Children. For five years now, funds raised via the Sigma Gamma Fireworks Picnic have gone to the DIC: a diagnostic and treatment center for physically and neurologically disabled children.

Despite torrential rains and overcast skies, Sigma Gamma Association pulled off its most recent Fireworks Picnic with aplomb, under the chairmanship of Susan and Chuck Glass. Many Grosse Pointers and their families, umbrellas raised, donned foul weather gear to enjoy the festivities at the Stroh Brewery Company Lawn on the First of July.

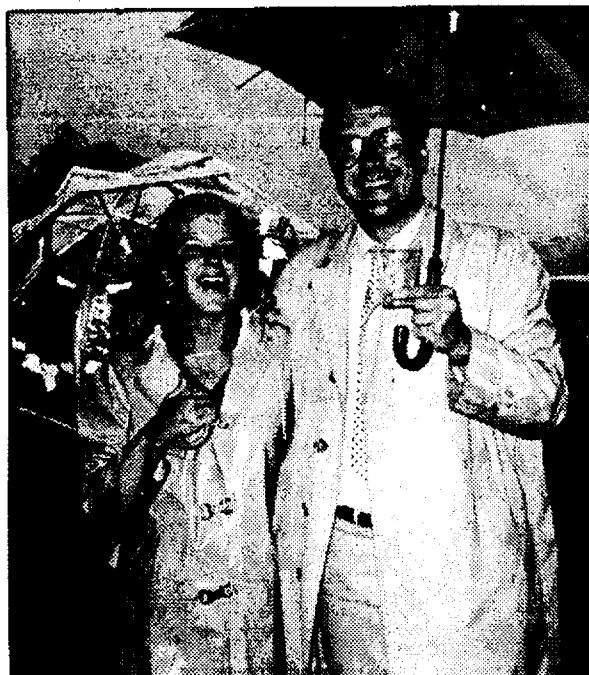

And enjoy them they did — especially the children, for there was an abundance of activities, from a Moon-walk to boat rides to an organ grinder with his monkey, especially for the Small Set. Balloons were everywhere, in spite of the rain. Computer portraits and face painting were available. There was entertainment by a mime.

The committee that put together this popular party included Anne and Bruce Birgbauer, Jenny and Jim Brock, Beth and Howard Crane and Mimi and Dick Crawford. Others were Peggy and Charlie Davis, Margie and Michael FitzSimons, Cynthia and Edsel Ford and Ann and Emory Ford.

Jane and Pat Gage, Mimi and Dan Garan, Terry and David Hamilton, Babs and Ned Jewett, Robin Lepard and Peggy and Joe Maycock did their bit, too, along with Helene Muer, Anna and Dick Platt, Ginna Short and Judy and John Standish.

Two Meadow Brook dates

Music by Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven, Spanish pianist Alicia de Larrocha and Detroit Symphony Orchestra Principal Horn player Eugene Wade headline the symphonic Chrysler Concert Series at Meadow Brook Music Festival in concerts at 8 p.m. tonight, Thursday, July 11, and Sunday, July 14. Finnish conductor Paavo Berglund will lead the DSO at both performances. Wade is in the spotlight this evening, playing Haydn's Horn Concerto in D Major. The program opens with Mozart's "Prague" Symphony No. 38, K. 504, and will close with Cesar Franck's Symphony in D Minor.

Tickets, ranging in price from $10 (lawn seating) to $16, may be purchased at the Meadow Brook box office, 377-2010, Hudson's and other Ticket World locations and all AAA branch offices.

Pointe's Rose Show blooms

The Grosse Pointe Rose Society's 1985 Spring Rose Show, held at the Neighborhood Club June 21 and 22, was a blooming success!

The Green Room served as setting for a total of 224 roses entered by 34 exhibitors. Tables were decked in pink and green paper. The Roses in Our Garden section featured many individual arrangements as well as four Gracious Living arrangements on table settings.

Major category winners included Paul Desmet, Best of Show, Variety, Folklore, and King of Show, Variety, President Leopold Senghor; and Robert Seeber, Queen of Show, Variety, Olympiad, and Princess of Show, Variety, Pristine.

Desmet aced the Miniature Division, taking Queen of Minis with Variety, Minnie Pearl; King of Minis with Variety, Winsome; and Princess of Minis with Variety, Beauty Secret.

Winners in the Artistic Division included Fernande Biglin, Queen of Arrangements and Best Creative Design, and Peter Biglin, King of Arrangements. King of Mini Arrangement honors went to Gladys Gies. Ellen Quinlan captured Princess of Arrangements, Queen of Mini Arrangement and Princess of Mini Arrangement honors.

Barat sets reunion picnic in late July

Barat Human Services will host a reunion picnic for all past and present staff, residents, volunteers and interested supporters on Sunday, July 28, from 1 to 4 p.m. at Barat House, located on John R. in Detroit. Additional information may be obtained by calling Rita Grezlik at 833-1525.

Child support gets legal aid

A recent census survey revealed that in 1981 8.4 million American women were rearing children whose fathers were absent. Fewer than half these women, a July Reader's Digest article reports, had child-support agreements. Of those who did, more than half received either partial support or none at all.

"Deadbeat dads," the article continues, "are skipping out on a bill of nearly $4 billion a year."

The person who picks up the tab, by and large, is the American taxpayer. The majority of those (87 percent) receiving Aid to Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) do so because an absentee parent is not providing adequate support. The total AFDC cost to taxpayers was $16 billion in 1984.

Bremerhaveners play tonight

Beverly Zimmermann, Gloria Kuszynski and Marilyn Spurlock (left to right) look over the program the Bremerhaven Youth Symphony will perform tonight, Thursday, July 11, at 7:30 p.m. at Grosse Pointe North High School. The 46 young West German musicians arrived in The Pointe yesterday and will leave Sunday, July 14. They are here under auspices of the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp International Exchange Program, staying in private homes with local families, and will give their concert outdoors, weather permitting. The audience is advised to bring lawn chairs and blankets and, if possible, a little cash — the concert is admission-free, but donations will be gratefully accepted.

Cottage class for babysitters

From feeding to diapering, playtime to bedtime, boys and girls age 12 and up are learning to be better babysitters at Cottage Hospital.

Cottage's next two-session babysitting class will meet from 9 a.m. to noon Monday and Tuesday, July 29 and 30, in Boardroom B on the lower level of the hospital. Class size is limited to eight boys and eight girls.

Enrollment must be made in advance by calling 884-8600, Extension 2390. There is a $3 fee for the class.

The budding babysitters use dolls to practice the proper way to hold a baby while feeding and changing diapers. They learn what to expect from a babysitting job — and what is expected of them. They study the growth and development of a child and discuss how to handle emergencies.

First Aid, fire safety and poison prevention are covered, and the new babysitters learn songs and other ways of entertaining the children left in their care.

The course is outlined in the "Babysitter's Handbook." At the end of the six hours of study, certificates are presented declaring the graduates' qualifications.

Burton tour date for genealogists

This month's meeting of the St. Clair Shores Genealogy Group will be a special tour of the Burton Historical Collection at the Detroit Public Library on Wednesday evening, July 24.

The tour begins at 7 p.m. Those wishing to carpool to downtown Detroit are asked to meet at the St. Clair Shores Public Library, located at the corner of Jefferson Avenue and 11 Mile Road, at 6:30 p.m.

Burton's rich collection of local history and genealogical sources can be of help to nearly every family history researcher. The collection has many specialized indexes to aid the researcher, and these will be explained during the tour.

The program is free and open to the public. There will be some time after the formal tour for individual research.

From Another Pointe Of View

Each ticket, you see, comes with a brochure listing points of interest to look for in each Pointe Tour garden. And on the back of the brochure is a map, which is VERY helpful in planning a personal tour route.

This year, the Grosse Pointe Garden Tour will feature eight private gardens, the Herb Garden at the Grosse Pointe Academy and the Trial Gardens at the War Memorial, open for viewing from 1 to 5 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 19, 20 and 21. Tickets are $5. If you don't get them in advance, you can get them at any of the gardens during the tour — but wouldn't you rather begin a bit prepared?

Herb Day at Moross House

Many Grosse Pointers are members of, and interested in, the Detroit Garden Center, headquartered in Historic Moross House, Detroit's oldest brick building, located on East Jefferson Avenue near Riopelle, across from the University Club.

Many of those Grosse Pointers will be down at Moross House this Sunday, July 14, from 1 to 4 p.m. for Herb Day in the Garden with Susan Amejka. They'd love to have you join them.

Ms. Amejka, a member of the Herb Society of America which sponsored the small herb garden behind the house, will answer questions on growing herbs and demonstrate some of their many uses. Tours of Moross House and its walled garden will also be offered. Admission is by donation, and free parking is available.

If you want to know more, the DGC's telephone number is 259-6363. If you can't make it to Moross House this Sunday, but you'd like to visit it, be advised that the DGC offers guided tours the second Tuesday of every month, from 1 to 3 p.m.

Back to The Pointe for Herbs

We've no wish to detract from the excellence of the Moross House herb garden, but we must point out that the garden of the Grosse Pointe Unit of the Herb Society of America, planned by Lottie Crawley and dedicated to her memory last September, is one of the state's loveliest.

It's the Herb Garden featured on this year's Pointe Garden Tour, and whatever you do, no matter how tired you get, don't miss it!

The garden is divided into four triangles, separated by thyme paths and centered with a sundial surrounded by artemesia. In one triangle are the Fragrance Herbs, including lavender, heliotrope, scented geraniums, lemon balm, pineapple mint, yarrow, orrisroot and tansy. In another are the Culinary Herbs, ranging from Egyptian onions and saffron crocus to oregano, lovage, parsley, sweet marjoram and bay.

A third contains the Biblical and Medicinal Herbs: rue and hyssop, lady's mantle and Our Lady's bedstraw, pennyroyal, feverfew, horehound and others. The fourth is the Cutting Garden. Here you'll find herbs and flowers as diverse as roses and lamb's ears, chrysanthemums and sweet woodruff, statice and summer savory.

The Grosse Pointe Herb Garden is located on the south side of the Grosse Pointe Academy's grounds, near the fence separating those grounds from St. Paul's-on-the-Lake property. If you park in the St. Paul's lot (entrance is via Grosse Pointe Boulevard), you'll find two gates in that fence through which you can enter the Academy property.

But PLEASE! — After 4 p.m., park on Grosse Pointe Boulevard, entering the Academy grounds via the path, continuation of the Nun's Walk pictured on Betty Carpenter's Lions Gate Unlimited post cards, next to the Headmaster's House. St. Paul's is a working church, and working churches have services and functions scheduled in the late afternoon and early evening. It's not nice to fill up their parking lots with "foreign" vehicles.

Besides: a walk down the Nun's Walk is a beautiful way to end the day.

May wedding date revealed

Greenfield Village's Martha-Mary Chapel was the setting Sunday, May 26, for the wedding of Diana Elizabeth Peebles, of Somerset Road, and Dr. Clifford Lewis Posman, formerly of Neff Road.

The 5 o'clock candlelight ceremony at which The Reverend Bruce Campbell presided was followed by a reception at the Dearborn Inn, after which the newlyweds left to vacation at the Club Med, Playa Blanca, Mexico.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Wyzwany, of Detroit, wore a vintage 1890 gown of white cotton eyelet and lace, floor length, over a full, handmade, lace and cotton petticoat of the same era.

Her headpiece was a wreath of pink and white silk flowers, matching her bouquet, with long, white satin streamers.

MFA grants are available

The Michigan Foundation for the Arts is now accepting applications for 1985-86 grants, made to performing arts groups for new projects or to complete works in progress, and for prize money in juried competitions.

Funds are also available for individual artists who submit an application through a sponsoring arts organization. Application forms, deadline and additional information may be obtained by writing to Barrie Werba, Michigan Foundation for the Arts, 405 Fisher Building, Detroit, Mich. 48202.

MFA, established in 1966, is non-profit, funded entirely by corporations, foundations and individuals, and does not receive any state or federal funds. Its mission is to support and recognize excellence in the arts.

Dr. and Mrs. Clifford L. Posman

She was attended by Karen Carson of Madison, Conn., in a tea length dress of white cotton eyelet accented with embroidered flowers, a wreath of lavender silk flowers in her hair, carrying an arrangement of lavender and white silk flowers. She wore her grandmother's antique heart locket and bracelet.

Dr. Posman, son of Mrs. Georgiana Posman, of Delmar, N.Y., and Dr. Harry Posman, of Washington, D.C., wore the gold pocket watch his great-grandfather had worn on his wedding day 100 years before.

Best man was Lewis Fountain, of Rensselaer, N.Y. Dr. George B. Smith, of Grosse Pointe City, and Peter Brittenham, of Red Hook, N.Y., seated the guests.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., is currently senior resident, Department of Orthopedic Surgery, Wayne State University School of Medicine. The bride, who attended Madonna College, is Head Nurse, Pediatrics, Henry Ford Hospital Fairlane.

The newlyweds will be making their home in Clinton, S.C.

Miss Murray is June bride

Dr. and Mrs. Gordon M. Murray entertained at a reception at their Lakeland Avenue home following the wedding of their daughter, Elisabeth Anne, and Daniel Laurence Fodale on Saturday, June 15, in the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church Sanctuary.

The Reverend Dr. Stanton R. Wilson presided at the 5 o'clock ceremony. The newlyweds, who completed their studies at Michigan State University, she in Veterinary Technology, he in Electrical Engineering, just prior to the wedding, vacationed in St. Petersburg, Fla.

They will make their home in Seattle, Wash., where Mr. Fodale has accepted a position with the Aerospace Division of Boeing.

The former Miss Murray, a Grosse Pointe South High School alumna, chose a traditional wedding gown, styled with a point d'esprit yoke and an Alencon lace bodice. Matching lace cuffed her bishop sleeves and edged her chapel length train.

A wreath of white silk orange blossoms intermingled with seed pearls caught her two-tiered illusion veil. She carried a cascade of white miniature carnations, pink Sweetheart roses, daisies, lily-of-the-valley, baby's-breath and trailing ivy, and wore the pearl earrings and necklace that had been her father's gift to her mother on their wedding day.

She was attended by a Michigan State classmate, Laura Roniger, of Eastlake, Ohio, in a floor length dress, rose in color, styled with a puff-sleeved, Schiffl-trimmed bodice of embroidered eyelet. Roses, baby's-breath and lily-of-the-valley formed her Colonial bouquet.

Michael Fodale, of Gwinn, Mich., acted as best man for his brother.

They are the sons of Mrs. Thomas Franklin Smith and Professor Peter Fodale, both of Ann Arbor.

Mrs. Daniel L. Fodale

G. Bradford Murray, of Roscommon, brother of the bride, and John Wood, of Ann Arbor, ushered.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom both wore cocktail length dresses of chiffon, the former's pink in color, the latter's mint green. Cymbidium orchids formed their corsages.

The bridegroom's stepmother and stepfather accompanied their spouses from Ann Arbor. Also from Ann Arbor came Diann Fodale and a nephew, Stephan. Kathy Wiley came from Alexandria, Va., for her brother's wedding. Present, too, were the bridegroom's sister-in-law, Mrs. Michael Fodale, who brought Joshua with her from Gwinn, and another brother, sister-in-law and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Stephan Fodale and Zachery, of Huntsville, Ala.

From Toronto, Ont., came the bride's aunt, Mrs. G.M. Rose, with Dierdre and Jean Rose, cousins of the bride. Mrs. G. Bradford Murray accompanied her husband from Roscommon. Another brother and sister-in-law of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. W. Ross Murray, came from Anderson, Ind.

Also present was the bride's former Michigan State roommate, Patty Paul, of Richmond, Mich.

Early 'Thumb' history lives at Huron City

by Janet Mueller

Once upon a time, a fairly long time ago — the mid 1850s, to be exact — Langdon Hubbard came west from Connecticut to make his fortune. And he did.

He settled in Michigan, still very much west then, in The Thumb area, still heavily forested then, and founded a town, Huron City, as headquarters for his lumbering business. It was a big business, with Willow Creek providing power for two mills which produced 80,000 feet of lumber a day. The lumber was shipped out via lake steamers from Huron City's own dock, stretching from the mouth of Willow Creek a quarter mile into Lake Huron.

Langdon's wife, Amanda Lester Hubbard, followed him into his wilderness. She died there, at the age of 26, leaving three children, Frank, Annabel and Richard. Their father sent them home to Hartford, Conn., to be educated and brought up by his three sisters, Susan, Ann and Janette. But Langdon Hubbard by no means abandoned his family; during the 15 years the children were away he visited them as often as possible. It was a long trip geographically, by boat and then by train, from Huron City to Hartford, Conn. It was a long trip in other ways, too.

For Hartford was The East, settled and gently sophisticated. Huron City was a lumbering town on a wild, wooded Great Lakes peninsula.

Then came the Great Forest Fires, the first in 1871, the second 10 years later, and those, combined with heavy logging, put period to lumber as a major Thumb industry. The Hubbards, however, were not about to abandon their land. They encouraged homesteaders. Langdon's son, Frank, organized banks in the area to finance farmers on the burnt-over forest tracts.

Huron City remained Hubbard territory — and then, at the turn of the century, a Great Name in American Letters began his long association with the one-time lumbering town. Annabel Hubbard and William Lyon Phelps had met as schoolchildren in Connecticut.

He grew up to become Professor of English Literature at Yale University for almost 40 years (1900-1937), a major force in America's intellectual and moral development, a man who knew and was known by virtually everybody on the American literary scene, from Pearl Buck to Thornton Wilder to Sinclair Lewis . . . to Gene Tunney, who was one of his students at Yale.

Annabel Hubbard grew up to become Mrs. William Lyon Phelps. When they married, they made their summer home at "Seven Gables," Annabel's girlhood home in Huron City.

Here Phelps, an ordained minister, preached in the local Methodist Church, drawing a congregation of 600 to 700 people every Sunday afternoon. Here Phelps and Eddie Guest, who summered at Pointe Aux Barques, golfed together. Here Phelps was photographed, and interviewed by Lucius Beebe, for a long profile that appeared in the Dec. 8, 1938, issue of Life Magazine.

The buildings range from an Early Settler's Log Cabin (1825) to the William Lyon Phelps Memorial Museum, designed and built by Mrs. Lucas. The Langdon Hubbard General Store, the Community House Inn and the Huron City Church stand on their original pre-1885 foundations. The carriage shed, though recently built, houses several horse-drawn carriages and other antique stable equipment.

The interiors of the buildings have been restored. The inn living room is Victorian. One parlor displays china, silver and the trousseau of an early Hubbard bride; another has been converted into a pre-1900 schoolroom. The general store is as it was 100 years ago. The church remains as it was when Professor Phelps delivered his famous sermons.

The Settler's Log Cabin contains memorabilia — spinning wheels, cradles, an early trundle bed —

Among Albion College students selected for membership in Alpha Lambda Delta national freshman scholastic honorary is Jill Ohorodnik, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Julius Ohorodnik, of Goethe Avenue. She is a Grosse Pointe North High School graduate.

Grosse Pointe South High School's Kevin Aardema was chosen Medical Co-Op of the Year in an annual competition sponsored by the Kiwanis. Kevin works as an orderly at Cottage-Belmont Nursing Center in Harper Woods and was commended for his excellent employment record, maturity, patience and kindness with patients and staff.

Steven Hanson Loving, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Loving, of Sunningdale Drive, received a Master of Business Administration degree from the Babcock School of Management at Wake Forest University in May 20 commencement ceremonies. Loving holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Michigan State University.

Walter E. Roth III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Roth, of The Woods, received a Doctor of Podiatric Medicine degree from the California College of Podiatric Medicine in commencement ceremonies at the San Francisco, Calif., College on May 19. Roth plans to complete his residency in San Francisco.

Members of the fund-raising committee for the American-Italian Professional and Business Women's Club's annual dinner dance April 21 included Rose Giglio, of The Shores; and Susan Marra, of The Farms.

Madonna College senior Milton Des Grandchamp, of Fisher Road, was recently inducted into the newly formed Nursing Honor Society at Madonna.

Among students named to the Dean's List for the winter term at the University of Detroit were Pointers David Baldyga, Gregory Bober, Nancy Calcaterra, Salvatore Cavaliere, Vincent Cuseniza, Christa Dennis, Ronald Fournier, Christopher C. Grobbel, Douglas Hutchinson, Trisha Johnston, Francis Kiernan, Gabriel Kikas, Aileen Kiska, Sharon Linne, Lori Ludlow, Sharon O'Keefe, Cathy Strunk, Jerome Sullivan, Peter Sullivan and Arthur Wahl.

Central Michigan University junior marketing major Susan Schneider, daughter of Marilyn and Joseph Schneider, of The Shores, has been named to the Steering Committee for CMU's 1985 Homecoming celebration.

Pioneer Huron City, at the tip of Michigan's 'Thumb,' open to visitors now through Labor Day Weekend.

Here Carolyn Hubbard Parcells Lucas, granddaughter of Langdon Hubbard, grew to know the love her distinguished uncle and to know and love her Hubbard heritage. And to know and love Huron City, so much that she determined to share it, not just with the family, but with the world.

Pioneer Huron City, located at the tip of Michigan's Thumb, just off U.S. Route 25, midway between Port Hope and Port Austin, is the result of that determination. It's "living history," a collection of museums that comprise an accurate preservation of life in The Thumb during the 1850-1880 lumbering era, and a reflection of Huron City during the Phelps' Years.

Short and to The Pointe

Pamela Anne Colby, of The Pointe, a student at University Liggett School, was selected by a panel of judges as first place winner in the presentation of original research papers in the 21st annual Southeastern Michigan Junior Science and Humanities Symposium held at Wayne State University. Her winning paper was titled "Conjugational Transfer of Antibiotic Resistance." She was awarded a four-year scholarship at WSU and her science teacher, Dr. Juliana Texley, will receive a $300 award for ULS. She presented her paper in competition at the National Junior Science and Humanities Symposium at West Pointe, N.Y., May 1-4.

How to get to Pioneer Huron City, located 140 miles from the Lodge-Ford interchange.

"We try to coordinate vacations so that everyone can come at the same time," says Charles Parcells Jr. who, like his mother and brother, resides in The Pointe. "My sister Mariana Wagoner plans to be there. So does my other sister, Betsy Arms, with her husband Chuck and some of their kids."

Presiding over it all, as she always has, will be Carolyn Hubbard Parcells Lucas. She is Huron City's soul. And Huron City is part of her soul — an integral part which, being a poet, she CAN express in words:

"This place I love. I cannot well remember
The certain hour the sun first shone on me,
But when the grave's deep dark tears me asunder.
This place in light to me will always be . . ."

Woman's Health

Do Work and Pregnancy Mix?

By William T. Mixson, M.D., President

The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists Should you work while you're pregnant? At the same job? And for the entire nine months?

These were important questions last year for nearly a million women who did work and who had their babies, too. This year at least the same number of women will face the same decisions.

While there is no single set of answers for everyone, we know that the great majority of women can answer "yes" to all three questions. But some women cannot, because of the kinds of jobs they have, their physical condition and medical histories, and how their babies develop during pregnancy.

Some jobs may be physically easier than others; nevertheless, you should be ready — and your boss should be willing — to make some adjustments in your work schedule as your pregnancy progresses.

For example, as the weeks and months pass, you should be prepared to adjust the way you sit, stand and walk; to deal with fatigue (even find convenient times and places for short naps if possible); to eat properly and to allow time for prenatal check-ups.

Early in pregnancy you may be nauseous, feel fatigued much of the time, and feel your heart beating harder than usual. These are common experiences and may occur no matter how healthy you are or how "perfect" your job is.

However, because your heart and lungs will be working hard to provide enough blood and oxygen for two people — you and your baby — jobs that require frequent physical exertion may be too much for you. Talk to your doctor about your current employment to see if you may need temporary reassignment.

As your size increases, your posture, weight and sense of balance will change, too. Again, listen to your body. Try to modify your work load and pace as your pregnancy progresses.

One final note: all the advice for 9 to 5 also applies to 5 to 9, so try and adjust your work load at home, too. You may not put cooking and cleaning in the same category as your career — but your body may. It can't tell the difference between the stress that comes from managing a store or typing a report and the stress that comes from doing the laundry.

Remember that the little on-the-job adjustments may last just a few weeks or months. But your good health, and the health of your baby, is for a lifetime.

Pointer of Interest

(Ed. Note: Seldom do we run the same "Pointer of Interest" twice in a row — but when, due to the NEWS' own lack of proper proof-reading, lack, perhaps, of any proofreading at all, paragraphs are mixed up, and the back of the story comes out at the front, and vice versa, we feel we owe our subject, and our readers, an apology ... an explanation ... and a chance to read the story as it was written. So here, for the second time around — but the first time right — is our "Pointer of Interest" profile on Angie Rooks.)

by Janet Mueller

This time for the first time, she visited Malmaison. "It's one of the new things I set out to do. We go to France frequently, and each time I try to see something new." Napoleon and Josephine's home was this year's new thing — unless you count the new experience of shepherding 18 10-year-olds (five of whom came down with chicken pox!) across the Atlantic to Paris.

Actually, to St. Cloud, a suburb of Paris, where the American children, participants in a Back-to-Back Campus International Exchange Program, lived with local families and studied in local schools and staged "A Musical Tour of the United States" for the local community. The local community loved it; and them.

So will our local community, for the children will present their "Tour" on Saturday, July 13, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial during the 13th Annual French Market, which runs from noon to 8 p.m. that day and from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, July 14 (Bastille Day), at the War Memorial.

You're all invited. Admission is free. In addition to a flea market, a boutique, a street photographer, a caricaturist, jewelry, watercolors and ceramics — and some of the best food in town — there'll be continuous entertainment by performers ranging in age from the 10-year olds to the Versatiles, a senior citizen cancan group.

The Versatiles will kick up their heels on Sunday. "They say they can only perform for three minutes at a time," laughs Angie. "But they promise to perform FREQUENTLY."

SHE'S IN CHARGE of French Market entertainment this year: a switch from the past three years, when French Market food was her major responsibility. Not a complete switch, however; as part of Sunday's special cooking demonstrations, Angie Rooks will prepare her Salade Nicoise.

One year, she worked with fruit. "I cleaned 22 cases of strawberries by myself. After that, I realized the Market needed kitchen help." Last year, her husband Art Rooks made vichyssoise — from scratch, which required peeling 100 pounds of potatoes. "Every drop of it went."

Food is one of the many, many interests Art and Angie share. Another is history: they're presently reading a biography of Mme. Pompadour. Another is travel, especially to France.

"My husband has always been a Francophile," Angie says. "He was the one who first joined the Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe." They're both members now, both active in several French organizations including the French Festival of Detroit, sponsor of the French Market.

"I'm often asked: 'How is it that an Italian is in charge of food for the French Market?' I explain that it was Catherine de Medici who introduced cuisine to France: she brought her chefs with her from Italy when she married Henry II."

IT WAS ANGIE who finally introduced Art Rooks to Italy. "Every time we went to Europe, I'd say, 'Why don't we visit Italy?' ... and Art would say, 'But there's so much I still want to see in France' ... until finally, in 1977, I did get him to go to Italy. And he loved it!"

Angie and Art, Pointe residents for 15 years, are both originally from Hamtramck, where his father was a judge and his mother a councilwoman. "Did you know," asks Angie, "that Hamtramck was once part of Grosse Pointe? We learned that on one of the Detroit Historical Museum's Sunday Strolls."

There are two Rooks' daughters: Helen, married and the mother of a new baby, the Rooks' first grandchild, Christopher, and Rina.

Angie Rooks, of McKinley Place, and Friend says Angie. Actually, she was 4 when she first entered a classroom. She teaches elementary school in Dearborn, which has participated in the Back-to-Back Student Exchange with France for four years. This year, for the first year, Angie Rooks participated in it.

She had help, of course. Ruth Bradfield, a substitute teacher in Grosse Pointe, served as the group's bilingual counselor. Ruth taught the children "survival French." Paul Bruce, a Dearborn substitute teacher, directed the musical revue. Both went along on the trip to France.

SO DID ART Rooks, despite the fact that he is under treatment for cancer at Harper Hospital. For a while, it looked as if Art would have to stay home — he fell out of remission in February — but his treatments are standard, can be given at any hospital ... so why not in France?

"Why not, indeed?" said Art's doctor, who told him to go to the American Hospital in Paris for the two treatments he would need while abroad and gave him instructions to present there, which Art dutifully did. Only to be told by an insensitive American Hospital staff doctor that the hospital was not equipped to help him, that he had no business traveling in his condition, that his trip to Paris was a great and stupid mistake.

Devastated, Art prepared to take the next plane home. Then something wonderful happened. Literally next door to the St. Cloud elementary school hosting the Dearborn exchange students was a cancer clinic, one of the best in France. "Go there," Art was told, and he did. "No problem," said the cancer clinic staff, and there wasn't any.

And when he tried to pay ... "No way," was the response. "You are a guest of France."

Art had a grand three weeks in France. So did Angie. So did Ruth, and Bruce, and the children. Even the ones who got chicken pox. "They were wonderful," says Angie, speaking of the children. "We kept telling them before they went that they were ambassadors, and they were so beautifully behaved that they were complimented everywhere."

"When we were visiting Versailles, Americans came up to our children to say, 'We're so proud of you!'"

ST. CLOUD WENT all out for the visitors, just as Dearborn had gone all out for the 28 St. Cloud elementary school students who spent three weeks there earlier in the year, and for the teachers who accompanied them.

There were parties, one at the home of Maurice Ravel, in the living room where he wrote "Bolero."

Stephen Mabarak, 11, son of former Three Mile Drive residents Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mabarak, won the $50 Treasure Chest Award in May from the Indianapolis Matinee Musical for distinguished achievement in piano. He played — from memory — Sonata Pathétique Op. 13 —

There were field trips subsidized by the French Government. When the Dearborn children put on their revue in the local cultural center, the town turned out. The applause was deafening.

Theirs was a slightly less spectacular production than that of the French children, who brought costumes with them in 12 trunks and re-enacted the French Revolution for their American host community, but DID IT MOVE!

You'll see for yourself in Grosse Pointe on July 13, at the French Market.

"The Market is a family affair, not a big commercial thing," Angie explains. "All the workers are volunteers. The money we make goes to support civic and cultural projects with a French orientation in the Greater Detroit area."

The first of these was the re-enactment of Cadillac's landing during the Bicentennial. French Market-raised funds have since gone to acquire artifacts for Fort Wayne and bilingual historic markers for the Cadillac landing site, to furnish the French Room at Wayne State University and the Moran Cottage at the Detroit Historical Museum.

"This year, we're getting a bust of Lafayette for the Grosse Pointe War Memorial." The bust, a recasting of an original by Houdon, is enroute now and may be here in time for the French Market, depending on how far "en" the route it is. Angie Rooks has her fingers crossed.

BUT THAT'S ALL she has her fingers crossed about, as far as this year's French Market is concerned. She knows the food, from crepes and French cheese sandwiches to homemade pastisseries, will be superb, as will the wine to wash it down. She thinks the cooking demonstrations, by Yvonne Gill, Cafe Le Chat's Robert Goodfriend, Hogan's Tom McGlone and the Detroit Athletic Club's John McCormack, will be magnificent.

She's lined up entertainment including a magician, a mime who studied with Marcel Marceau, the Jazzco Dance Company's cancan dancers and the Detroit Historical Museum's Voyageurs.

There'll be songs from "Piaf," opening soon at the Attic Theatre, sung by Sheri Nichols, the Attic's "Piaf." There'll be songs by the French Market's own favorite chanteuse, Jeanette Laurente. There'll be an accordionist and a pianist.

Most of all, there'll be fun, with a Gallic flavor, for everyone. Angie Rooks has no doubts at all about that, and no crossed fingers. Lafayette may not make it to the French Market this year ... but if he doesn't, he'll certainly wish he had!

Elegant Eating

A selection of recipes from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol — and penny-wise collection of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth continuing, this week, a series of recipes on WONDERFUL WAYS with YOGURT.

Dr. Khem Shahani, professor of Food Science at the University of Nebraska, has spent 25 years studying the beneficial effect of yogurt. He says that the yogurt bacteria will:

- Produce vitally needed B vitamins.
- Aid digestion of carbohydrates, fats and proteins by spawning enzymes.
- Reduce blood cholesterol levels.
- Manufacture natural antibiotics.
- Retard the growth of cancer cells.

YOGURT SALAD DRESSINGS

Avocado

A delightful dressing for a fruit salad. Also good on some cooked vegetables.

1/2 cup low-calorie mayonnaise
1/2 cup low-calorie plain yogurt
1 small Florida avocado, peeled, pitted and mashed
1 Tbsp. fresh lime juice, strained

Combine all ingredients in a small bowl. Blend thoroughly. Taste and adjust seasoning. Cover tightly and chill. Makes about 1 1/4 cups.

Calories per Tbsp. about 20.
Cholesterol about 6 mgs.

Orange Chutney

Particularly good on salads which have apples, peaches or pears as a principal ingredient.

1 cup plain low-fat yogurt
1/2 cup chopped chutney
Grated rind of 1 orange Juice of 1 orange

Combine all ingredients in screw-top jar and shake thoroughly. Makes about 1 1/4 cups.
Calories per Tbsp. about 21.
Cholesterol — a trace.

Italian

Excellent on greens or tomato salads.

1 cup plain yogurt
1/3 cup dairy sour cream
1 tsp. oregano
1 tsp. basil
1/8 tsp. garlic powder
1 Tbsp. minced parsley
1/8 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. white pepper

Combine all ingredients in a small bowl. Chill at least 1 hour before serving. Makes 1 1/4 cups.
Calories per Tbsp. about 13.
Cholesterol — a trace.

EGGPLANT-YOGURT SALAD

6 cups water
5 Tbsp. lemon juice, divided
3/4 tsp. salt, divided
2 medium eggplants (2 lbs.), peeled, cut in 1-inch chunks (10 cups)

1/2 cup minced green onions with tops, plus add'l tops for garnish
2 Tbsp. oil, preferably olive
1/4 tsp. fresh-ground pepper
1 medium clove garlic, crushed
1 cup skim milk yogurt
1 large tomato, cut in wedges (optional for garnish)

In Dutch oven, bring water, 2 Tbsp. lemon juice and 1/2 tsp. salt to boil. Add eggplant; bring to boil; cover and simmer until tender (about 7 minutes). Drain well; cool.

In bowl, combine eggplant, remaining 3 Tbsp. lemon juice, 1/2 cup onions, the oil, remaining 1/4 tsp. salt, the pepper and garlic; mix well. Stir in yogurt just until blended. Chill. Garnish with tomato wedges and minced onion tops. Makes 4 servings.

Calories per serving about 148.
Cholesterol about 2 mgs.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS WITH YOGURT SAUCE

3 pkgs. frozen Brussels sprouts
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 Tbsp. cornstarch
1/4 tsp. salt
2 tsp. prepared mustard
1 cup plain low-calorie yogurt
1 Tbsp. minced fresh parsley
Paprika for garnish

Cook Brussels sprouts according to package directions. Combine remaining ingredients in saucepan, stirring until they are completely blended; cook and stir the sauce on moderate heat until it thickens and bubbles. Serve over the Brussels sprouts. Makes 8 servings.

Calories per serving about 69.
Cholesterol about 3 mgs.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

Idle thoughts on a summer day . . .

Favorite quote of the week: New York Yankee designated hitter Don Baylor, in Sports Illustrated, on Yankee manager Billy Martin and the man he replaced, Yogi Berra: "Playing for Yogi is like playing for your father; playing for Billy is like playing for your father-in-law."

My All-Star choices? I didn't bother making any after I discovered that Detroit's Darrell Evans was listed at third, thereby making it impossible to vote for him and for Boston third baseman Wade Boggs, or Kansas City's George Brett, who each belong at third in any All-Star game. But Evans should be at the game, too.

If I had picked an All-Star team, it would look like this: Don Mattingly at first, Lou Whitaker at second, Alan Trammell at short (just because he's the best, despite the fact he's not hot), Boggs at third, Lance Parrish catching, and Phil Bradley, Rickey Henderson and Lee Lacy in the outfield.

I'd also twist manager Sparky Anderson's arm into making hard-luck Dan Petry his starting pitcher and adding Walt Terrell, Evans and Kirk Gibson to the squad.

Looking for a great summer read? I found mine: "Tuned to Baseball" by Detroit Tiger broadcaster Ernie Harwell. Ernie's been broadcasting Tiger games for a quarter of a century, yet he's never dry or boring, never offends, and his knowledge of the game is obvious in his every sentence.

That's what makes his book so good. He knows baseball, lives and loves the game and in a too-brief 221 pages of "Tuned to Baseball" lets us take a peek at it. The best part about the book is that Ernie writes the way he talks. And that's great news to those baseball fans, who, like me, dial frantically around the car radio on the way back from an out-of-state car trip, knowing all the while that as soon as we hear Ernie say "He stood there like the house by the side of the road and watched that one go by," we know we're HOME.

Favorite chapter: The one called "Things Bound to Happen in Baseball." Including Ernie's observations on how during a rain delay "everybody will desert the box seat area, but three kids with plastic over their heads will remain there throughout the game." And how the "organist will play 'Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head,' 'Singing' in the Rain," and four other rain songs.

Nice to hear that scouts and other baseball people are taking notice of South hurler Rick Leonard as he struts his stuff with the rest of the South High baseball team in this summer's Connie Mack League. It's hard not to notice a big guy who throws 80 miles per hour like Leonard. South's next game, by the way, is at 6 p.m. tonight, July 11, at Kerby Field.

Just found my "Weird, but interesting" photo file which includes a shot of Thomas Hearn and Wilfredo Benitez trying to look as mean as Marvin Hagler; one of contestants and judges in a local college's "hairiest chest contest"; an autographed glossy of former Pointer and TV movie host Bill Kennedy; and assorted shots of the Pope, a wizard, bellydancers and strange men who enjoy posing for pictures with dead fish.

All of the above were mailed to me (for some odd reason) in my capacity as sports editor and are on display daily at the G.P. News. (For a nominal fee.)

Favorite sights of summer: the familiar faces of North baseball alumni Dennis D'Agnes and Frank Vento in the crowd at the June 30 fireworks at Parcels; all those familiar Grosse Pointe names among the entrants in the 60th Port Huron-Mackinac Race; the Tigers on Monday Night Baseball; locals in football T-shirts getting in some pre-season roadwork.

Biggest disappointment of the season: An injury to my left ankle which prevents me from participating in my first Mackinac race as scheduled next week. I do thank Bayview's Jim Dundas and Warren Jones for thinking of me and promise that if they do the same next year, I'll have my sea legs and be ready to go.

Second biggest disappointment of the season: John McEnroe's early departure from Wimbledon. Tennis brats tend to get on my nerves, but "Mac" is in a class all by himself and I was kind of looking forward to a few more days of watching him make Britain's tennis royalty squirm.

Loved the all-white bodysuit worn by American women's singles player Anne White at Wimbledon. They ended up making her change it and giving her a stern warning about wearing such shocking attire in the future, but I thought the suit was great. She was front page news all over the world and she didn't even win her match.

Hmmm. Wonder what University Liggett's Bob Wood would think about all-white bodysuits for his boys' team next spring?

Three most-asked questions of the week: "How was your vacation?" "Where did you go?" "Did you get a tan?"

Answers to the three most-asked questions of the week: "Not long enough." "Not far enough." And, "Yes, but it peeled."

South track star still running . . . and winning

Remember Meg Moisen, the talented runner who set several South High track and cross country records and earned state cross country and track titles in just two years at South? South girls' track coach Steve Zaranek predicted big things for 1983 state finalist Moisen, who moved to Connecticut after her sophomore season.

Most of those things have come true for Moisen, who graduated this spring from Darien, Conn., High School and has accepted a full, four-year athletic scholarship to Villanova University, which boasts one of the nation's top track and cross-country programs.

Last month, with Zaranek and a former South teammate, Barb Giroux, looking on, Moisen set a new state 1600 meter record and anchored the Darien 1600 meter relay team which won the Connecticut state track title. Moisen's time of 4:59.28 broke the record of Jan Merrill (5:03.0); Merrill later represented the United States in the 1976 Olympics, where she set a national record in the 1500 meters.

"It was the first time he'd (Zaranek) seen me race since I left, so I wanted to show him I'd improved," Moisen told the Stanford, Conn., Advocate.

Zaranek had predicted back in 1983 that Moisen "would probably be one of the few Michigan girls to run a sub-five minute mile before she finishes high school." And Moisen did, but as a Connecticut runner.

In addition to her Darien credentials, Moisen holds the South High track records in the 400, 800, 1600 and 3200 meter runs. And she isn't finished running yet this year. Moisen is scheduled to compete in the U.S. Junior Olympics finals in Seattle, Wash., later this month.

District ignores pay-to-play rule

Grosse Pointe Schools do not charge students to participate in interscholastic sports

The Michigan Court of Appeals says it's all right, but local school officials say the court's decision to allow school districts to charge students to participate in interscholastic sports and extra-curricular activities won't affect the way they do business.

The "pay-to-play" policy has been adopted in the past few years by districts that found themselves hard-pressed financially. Attorney General Frank Kelley sued Lapeer and East Jackson school districts, contending that the fees conflicted with the schools' responsibility to provide a free education.

The appellate court ruled two weeks ago that sports and extra-curricular activities could be considered nonessential and not a fundamental part of the education process. Provisions should be made to waive fees for students who may be unable to pay, the court added.

Grosse Pointe public schools do not charge students to participate in interscholastic sports, Superintendent John Whritner said. And, while it may be something to be looked at in the future, it isn't an issue that has been raised, he added.

Also, part of the proposed students policies now before the Board of Education for its review and approval says students should have a right to "a free and full education in the public school."

At one time, about 100 school districts in the state charged students to take part in interscholastic sports, according to the state Education Department and the Michigan High School Athletics Association.

Most of the districts discontinued the practice when state Superintendent of Public Education Phillip Runkel in 1981 sent out a letter about the matter, citing the attorney general's opinion that since the legislature hadn't authorized the charging of students for sports participation, it should not be done.

The districts involved in the suit by Kelley said they adopted the pay-to-play charges after financial problems left them with the choice of charging for the programs or dropping them, according to published reports.

Safe Boating Week

Bonanza tryouts

Tryouts for players wishing to participate in Michigan's premier division soccer league, the Bonanza League, in the fall and spring will be held this Saturday, July 13, at Hartsig Park in Warren. The park is located on Martin Road (11 1/2 Mile) between Ryan and Dequindre.

Tryout times for both boys and girls are 10 a.m. for under 12 (born 1974-75); 10:30 a.m. for under 14 (born 1972-73); and 11 a.m. for under 16 and under 19 (born 1967-1971).

Babe Ruth Park, Farms, Woods champs crowned

The Dodgers took two straight from the Phillies to capture the Park's Babe Ruth crown for the second straight year.

The champs scored six times in the top of the seventh to break a 6-6 tie and win the first game, 12-7. Mike Coffey, who came on in relief in the sixth frame, gained the decision with help from Ferit Nazarko.

Nick Saros, with three hits and four RBI, paced the winners at the plate. Coffey chipped in with two hits and three RBI. The Phillies' Matt Montagne had two of his team's seven hits and drove in two runs.

The Dodgers exploded for five runs in the second on their way to a 13-7 triumph in the final game. Nazarko gained the decision, hurling three hitless innings in relief. Matt Turner garnered three hits and drove in three runs for the winners, while Saros added two hits and three RBI. Mike Pote doubled and tripled and Nazarko had two more hits.

Three Woods-Expos hurlers held the Dodgers to three hits, as the Expos emerged victorious, 5-0, in the first round of the All-Points Babe Ruth tourney. Doug Lucas (two) and Dave Salkowski collected the Dodgers' only hits.

The Cardinals sewed up the Farms-City-Park minor league championship by defeating the Brewers, 6-5, and the Athletics, 3-2.

Steve Murphy went the distance in the Brewers' contest and belted a home run in the seventh for the deciding run. John Binder added a two-run homer in the first inning. Murphy also fanned the final two Brewer batters with the bases loaded in the bottom of the seventh to secure the win.

The Cards tallied three times in the top of the seventh to overcome a 2-0 deficit and defeat the Athletics in the championship game.

Winner Kevin Reid yielded only two hits and two unearned runs. Binder, Murphy and Rick Foley notched two hits apiece for the Cards. Murphy doubled to drive in the tying runs, then scored moments later on Lester Bybee's single for the go-ahead run.

The Park's 14- and 15-year-old All-Star team begins play in the district tournament at North High, Friday, July 12, against L'Anse Creuse North at 3 p.m. The tourney continues through Monday, with the winner advancing to the state tournament on July 19.

The Park's All-Stars are George Ayrault, James Cimini, Bryan Jones, Doug Lucas, Chris Markus, Matt Montagne, Ferit Nazarko, Eric Nord, Mike Paull, Marty Saad, Dave Salkowski, Nick Saros, Jason Whelan, Marcus Wysocki and Eric Zihlman. They are managed by Paul Pellerito and coached by Ron Lucas and Joe Pellerito.

Farms-City

In the Farms-City Babe Ruth League, the Tigers won the league championship for the fifth consecutive year. This year's title game pitted the 8-2 Yankees, winners of the second-half, against the first-half champion Tigers, with a 9-1 record.

The Yankees were especially impressive in the second half after starting the season with a 3-7 record and rebounding with eight wins in their last 10 games.

In the July 2 playoff game, pitchers Jeff Hays and Jim Johnson battled to a 0-0 tie until the fifth when the Tigers broke the tie with a single off reliever John Joliet, which scored D.J. Honstain. Rusty Knowles came on in relief of the Tigers' Johnson to strike out the Yankees with the bases loaded and preserve a 1-0 Tiger lead.

The Tigers combined timely hits from Dave Hall, Andy Bryant and Tim Fellows to increase their lead to 4-0. The Yankees came back in the seventh with a run on doubles by Andy Smith and Barry Brookes, their second hits of the day. The defensive star of the game, Dave Hall, made his fifth infield putout at second base to stop the rally and end the game at 4-1.

Other Tigers with playoff hits were Scott Adlhoj, Honstain and Johnson. Johnson and Knowles combined for eight strikeouts while giving up just six hits. Other members of the championship team are Sean Cleland, Dave McCormick, Jeff Blovits, Jeff Joliet, Kevin Nesler, Kevin Nugent and Kelly Reed. The Tigers were coached by John Hoben and Mark Nowinski.

The final league standings show the Tigers at 13-7, the Red Sox at 12-8, the Yanks at 11-9 and the Indians at 9-11.

Woods-Shores

In the Woods-Shores Babe Ruth League, the Expos won the league title by winning their best of three World Series with the Cubs on July 3.

"I'm really proud of the boys," said manager Jim Tobias. "It feels great to be champs." The series was decided when the Expos took the rubber game, 5-4, by coming from behind and scoring four times in the final inning. Chuck Thomas hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning and Kevin McCarron drove home the winning run with his bases-loaded single.

The Expos' 10-hit attack featured two hits each from Thomas, McCarron and Jay Tobias and was complemented by the excellent pitching of Wayne Houle who went the distance for the win. The Cubs' Mike Isip had three hits and three RBI.

The first game of the series saw Eddie Wood pitch the Cubs to an 8-1 victory. In the rain-delayed second game, the Expos took a 10-2 win behind the pitching of Thomas and Jamie Acord. Thomas and Tobias each had three hits and three RBI. Tony Jaboro, Brian Peltz, Matt Stephens, Jim DeYonker, Steven Standard, Kris Kurtz, Erik Zenow and Adam Tanielian also played well.

The Woods-Shores Expos then went on to capture the Inter-City Babe Ruth title by topping the Park Dodgers, 5-0. Acord pitched four innings for the win with relief held from Tobias and Thomas.

The Expos got all the offense they needed on Stephens' RBI single in the first which scored Jaboro. They added another run in the fourth when Acord doubled and scored on DeYonker's single. Peltz and Stephens killed a Dodger rally in the fourth when they pulled off a pick-off play at second base. The Expos added three insurance runs in the seventh.

"The team played hard all year and I'm glad it paid off," the Expos' Jim Tobias said. "This was a big one for us."

Park's annual tennis tournament set

Grosse Pointe Park will hold its annual Tennis Tournament from July 21 to 27. Applications are now available at the main gate at Windmill Pointe Park and will be accepted through July 16 from noon to 8 p.m. at the main gate or by the Recreation Coordinator.

Applications will not be accepted after 8 p.m. on Tuesday, July 16. The seed sheets will be posted on Thursday, July 18, in the old bath house. The fee will be $1 per child/per event, and $3 per adult/per event.

Adult matches will be played at Windmill Pointe Park; children's events will be held at Patterson Park.

The events offered are: girls' and boys' singles — 10 and under, 12 and under, 16 and under; girls' and boys' doubles — 16 and under, mixed; men's and women's singles; men's and women's doubles; mixed doubles; mother and son; father and son; mother and daughter; father and daughter.

Entries are only open to residents of Grosse Pointe Park and participants are limited to three events: one singles, one age group doubles and mixed doubles, if desired. Each person must turn in an application, and the entry deadline must be observed.

Awards will be presented at a picnic at the end of the final match. Further information may be obtained by calling Katy Eckel at 822-2812.

G.P. Little League

Park Majors

The Cardinals and White Sox faced off last week in the Park Majors playoffs. Following are the results of the two-game, Series A match-up:

SERIES A, GAME ONE

The Cards took a 10-3 win, but the score does not reflect the well-played game. The Sox took a 1-0 lead on a Dan Cummins' home run and the shutout pitching of Fred Turner. The Cards' Lance DeBets scored the tying run in the fourth after leading off with a base hit and exhibiting some fine base running.

Dan Commer batted in Bill Saylor to break the tie, and Jim Pote followed that with a two-run homer. Don DeSeranno doubled and scored on Ed Dorda's double. DeBets and relief pitcher Pote held the Sox in check to give the Cards a 1-0 advantage in the series.

The Sox' Jason Benavidez hit three balls well, only to have Commer, Chip Peterson and DeBets turn them into outs. The Sox just missed turning a triple play (Jim Campagna to Josh Cummins to Dan Cummins).

SERIES A, GAME TWO

The Cards took a 16-13 victory... but not before the White Sox turned in a determined effort in this wild one. The Cards jumped off to a 12-0 lead, but the Sox scored 13 runs in the bottom of the third to take a 13-12 lead.

The Sox' rally got started with Turner's three-run homer. Frank McCarroll and John Roberts followed with RBI hits to close the margin to 12-9. After two walks and a Benavidez hit, Josh Cummins smacked a grand slam to give his team the lead.

Led by the shutout relief pitching of Pote (five strikeouts), the Cards came back with three runs in the fifth, featuring a two-run homer by Lance DeBets, to take a 16-13 victory. DeSeranno led the Cards' 10-run first inning with two doubles and five RBI; Pote and Peterson also doubled and Dorda singled. Peterson and Commer scored three runs each and Dan Paull, Ryan McCartney, Brandon Luis and Saylor scored single runs.

Playing well on defense for the Cards were Saylor, Dorda and Peterson. The Sox' Benavidez, Dan Cummins, Campagna, Andy Bramlage, Peter Moran, Tim Nolan and Brian Sampson turned in fine performances.

As Sox manager Bob Turner and coach Hal Bate commented, "it was an injury-filled season but the team never quit."

The Cards, managed by Pat Coffey and coached by Larry Harding, will head to the World Series for the third straight year.

SERIES B, GAME ONE

The Baltimore Orioles made it to the World Series by defeating the second place Yankees in two straight games. The Orioles won, 4-3. Kelly Graves pitched a superb game for the Orioles, holding the Yankees scoreless in every inning but the fourth RBI were attributed to Kyle Hoyer with a double, Peter Griem with a single, and George Petersmark with a home run.

Petersmark had a shutout going for the Yankees up until the fourth inning. Graves led off the inning with a single and John Haise brought him home with a home run. Darren Havern singled and was moved to scoring position by Brian Forester and came home on Aaron McNally's single. Mike Spanich singled to start off the fifth and scored on Graves' line drive. Matt Recht took over on the mound for the Yankees, striking out the only batter he faced.

SERIES B GAME TWO

The second game was a slugfest for the Orioles who trounced the Yankees, 13-1. Tim Gramling had a shutout going until Yankee Peter Griem led off the sixth with a homer. Graves had two three-run homers for the Orioles. Spanich had a two-run homer, scored three runs and had a total of four RBI. Other Orioles who had RBI were Jacklyn, Haise and Scott Lupo.

Both teams played like champions, but Michigan State came out the victors in two games against Notre Dame. The first game went nine innings. Charlie Lickford pitched the regulation six innings for State. Fritz Coyro pitched the extra innings and chalked up the win, 4-3.

Randy Aardema had the only extra base hit for State with a double. Contributing base hits were Paul Coyro, Fritz Coyro, Hermann, Brenn Schoenherr, Kevin Fitzgerald, Douglas Wolfe and Chris Dobranski. Notre Dame used Pat Jarvis on the mound for the regulation six innings; Matt Recht came on in relief. Brian Urso and Tom Rajt were the power hitters with doubles. Matt DeBets and Jarvis had key hits.

Game Two was another exciting one. Aardema pitched 4½ innings for State and got the win. Fritz Coyro got the save and doubled, too. Kevin Fitzgerald also doubled for the champions. Sean Recht and Rajt shared the pitching chores for Notre Dame. Offensively, fine performances were put in by Brian Urso with a timely double in the third inning and DeBets, who had a hit in every at bat.

Farms-City Majors

PIRATES-ASTROS

The Pirates topped the Astros, 5-2. Ned Johnson started the game and got strong relief help from Steve Bednarchik and Duncan McMillan. Brian Downs, Drew Woodruff and Johnson doubled. Johnson picked up the game-winning RBI. Robert Khoenle pitched for the Astros; Fred Matvias went 2-for-3.

PIRATES-DODGERS

The Pirates beat the Dodgers, 17-4, with Bednarchik, Downs, Johnson and Whelan sharing the win on the mound. All four also had extra base hits. Woodruff added an inside-the-park home run. For the Dodgers, Thomas Davis, Will Donnelly, Bill Leins and Bryan Crane provided the power at the plate and on the mound.

PHILS-YANKEES

The Farms-City Phils edged the Yankees, 15-12, behind the pitching of Mike Oliver and David Reed. Steve Keating had a home run and a double; Reed went 4-for-5, Oliver was 3-for-5 and Jim Bellanca was 2-for-5. Brett Browncombe and Kevin McCracken had extra base hits; Jamie Mertz, Eric Lindsay, Joel Peterson and Nick Johnston also had hits. George Petersmark pitched for the Yanks. Griem went 3-for-4, Recht and Josh Christ were 2-for-3; Petersmark doubled and Nelson added a key hit for the Yanks.

PHILS-INDIANS

The Phils finished the regular season in first place with a 9-2 win over the Indians. Oliver and Reed were on the mound for the win, allowing just three hits. Oliver also went 3-for-4 at the plate. David Vier was 2-for-4 and McCracken doubled. Rob Knocks, Johnson, Brett Browncombe, Lindsay and Keating added to the hitting attack. For the Indians, Mark Bonnani and Mike Bell assumed the pitching chores, and each had key hits. Bell doubled and Bonnani and Rice singled.

PHILS-INDIANS

The first place Phils beat the fourth place Indians, 12-4, to advance to the playoff championships. Reed and Oliver combined on a four-hitter. The Phils were led at the plate by Johnston (two-run homer and two singles); Mertz went 2-for-2, Reed was 3-for-4 and Vier was 2-for-4. Browncombe, Bellanca (double) and Oliver added runs. For the Indians, Dan Teranes, Bonnani and Bell pitched. Blake Crawford went 3-for-3 and John Jungwirth singled.

PIRATES-DODGERS

The second place Pirates were led by Duncan McMillan in their playoff victory against the third place Dodgers. McMillan pitched six innings, allowing five hits and striking out five. The Pirates' offense was led by Bednarchik, who went 2-for-3. Ned Johnson's single and RBI hits by David Scott and Chad Hepner broke the game open for the Pirates. The Dodgers were led by Tim Molloy, who pitched three strong innings, allowing two hits and two runs. Leins was 3-for-3 with two doubles; Molloy and Kenny Prather had key hits.

PHILS-PIRATES

The second place Pirates took a 14-1 championship victory over the regular season champion Phils. Pitchers Brian Downs and Bednarchik allowed just seven hits. The Pirates put on a hitting show, with McMillan's homer, Bednarchik's 3-for-5 day, Downs' 2-for-5 performance (including a triple) and Dave Scott's double. Johnson, Mike McLaughlin and Mike Whelan also had hits. It was a disappointing end to a fine season for the Phils, who got good pitching from Oliver and Reed in the final game. Oliver went 3-for-3 at the plate; Joel Peterson doubled and Johnston, Browncombe and Vier also had hits.

Farms-City AAA

HAWAII-LOUISVILLE

Regular season champion Louisville unleashed its potent offense to win the playoff title with an 18-9 victory over Hawaii. Chris Cassell led the Louisville attack with two hits and four RBI; Tim Cassell had two hits and scored a run. Dan Henry and Dan Grundman each collected two RBI with a double and a single. Brandon Farmer and Robbie Tiede shared the pitching chores for Louisville.

Brian Nottoli and Andy Lee rapped two hits apiece for Hawaii; Greg Semack collected three RBI with his bases-loaded double, Tom Rhoades and John Combs also had hits.

DENVER-LOUISVILLE

The outstanding pitching of Farmer and Tiede paced Louisville to an 8-1 playoff win over Denver. Farmer and Tiede limited Denver batters to a second inning double by Pat Labadie. Henry sparked the Louisville offense with his 2-for-2 performance; Tiede had a double and two RBI.

PORTLAND-LOUISVILLE

Chris Oliver, Farmer and Grundman each had three hits to lead Louisville to an 18-6 win over Portland. Tiede had a run-scoring double. Jeff Huebner drove in two Portland runs with a sixth-inning single. Peter Gracey and Joe Vlasak also had hits for Portland.

LOUISVILLE-PHOENIX

Louisville closed out its title-winning regular season with a 7-4 win over Phoenix. Farmer smashed a triple and a double for the victors, as did Grundman. Chris Cassell and Tiede collected RBI for Louisville. John Trost led the Phoenix batters with two hits; Mike Owens collected an RBI double.

SAN ANTONIO-PHOENIX

San Antonio took a 10-5 win over Phoenix. Beth Weyhing pitched six innings for Phoenix, which got hits from Tom Best, Trost, Scott Cook, Jason Gedman, Tim Kazul, David Reinke, Beth Mozena, Pat Alle and Weyhing. San Antonio got triples from Jason Hubbard and Matt Suberati and hits from John Broutin and Zack Van Auker.

SAN ANTONIO-NEWARK

San Antonio topped Newark, 11-5, as Phillip Kotsis, Broutin, Hubbard, Nick Kotsis and Andy Donnelly had extra base hits and Suberati homered. P.J. Muer, Riley McCormack and Kevin Elliott had San Antonio's other hits. Newark's Denny Egan and S. Measelle tripled and P. Kirchner had two hits.

SAN ANTONIO-DENVER

Suberati's three-run homer lifted San Antonio to a 6-4 win over Denver. Donnelly doubled and Jeremy Gajewski and McCormack had singles. Denver got hits from Pat Labadie, Jay Harrington, Terry Kavanaugh, Fritz Olsson, Jake Lewis and Steve Young (homer).

LOUISVILLE-SAN ANTONIO

San Antonio beat Louisville, 13-11, on Donnelly's home run and three-hit performances by Phillip Kotsis and Suberati. McCormack and Broutin had triples and Ron Newton, Hubbard, Elliott, Van Auker and Muer also had hits. For Louisville, Grundman, Farmer, Henry and Tiede had hits.

Farms-City Class C

ERIE-COLUMBUS

A nine-run, sixth inning uprising led fourth place Erie to a come-from-behind, 16-11 win over first place Columbus in the playoff semi-finals. Nino Melchior scored four runs for Erie, including two in the decisive sixth inning rally. Chris Ford delivered a key hit and Chris Dely drove in two Erie RBI. Doug Martin tripled and doubled for the winners. Ryan Messacar and Paul Gentile each drove in two Columbus runs, as did Nathan Smith. Steve Furanz singled for Columbus.

TOLEDO-SYRACUSE

Brad Pope and Billy Starrs each hit home runs to lead Syracuse to a 14-10 win over Toledo. Ryan Allard also had two hits and scored twice for the winners. Chris Olsson rapped a double and a single for Toledo; Nick Rutan added two singles.

MIAMI-COLUMBUS

Matt Galnor and Gentile combined for a no-hitter as Columbus topped Miami, 20-3. Tim Reynolds, Brandon Kahlich and Ben Reynolds picked up the Miami RBI with first-inning walks.

ERIE-COLUMBUS

Columbus clinched the regular season championship with an 8-3 victory over Erie. Ryan Messacar delivered a fifth inning grand slam to break the game open. Jonathan Solaka broke a 3-3 tie with an RBI single and Nate Smith had two hits for the winners. Karl Trost pitched three shutout innings and homered for Erie. Ford, Dely and Melchior also had hits.

ERIE-MIAMI

Karl Trost had two homers and a single to pace Erie to a 16-13 win over Miami. Doug Martin had a triple, double and single for the victors; Robert Hostetter had three singles for Erie. Matt Reynolds led the Miami attack with a double and a single. Pat Brennan and Jon Morgan-Swartz each doubled for Miami.

SYRACUSE-ALBANY

Syracuse closed out its season with a 7-2 win over playoff-bound Albany. Michael Werner hit a home run and a double for Syracuse; Carl Rashid and Starrs had key base hits. M.J. Morris ripped two singles for Albany. John Wei and Nick Kallas also had hits for Albany.

ERIE-BUFFALO

Melchior's grand slam lifted Erie to a 14-1 win over Buffalo. Jason Santo connected for three Erie hits, while Andy McCroskey and Ford provided fine defensive support. Jay Ricci turned in a strong pitching performance for Buffalo.

BUFFALO-ROCHESTER

Geoff Prysak, Chris Johnson, Todd Scallen and Jason Rolka each homered to lead Rochester to a 10-3 win over Buffalo. Scallen and David Gracey also doubled for Rochester. Gracey, Albrecht, Nathan Kuhl and Steven Strehler had RBI. Tom Brooks, John Schoenith, Andrew Ricci, Chris Aliff and Cliff Magreta led the hitting attack for Buffalo.

BUFFALO-ROCHESTER

Rochester outscored Buffalo, 8-4, in a make-up game. Johnson, Prysak and Jonathan Graffius were 2-for-2 and the plate; Prysak also homered. For Buffalo, Andrew Ricci was 3-for-3 and Robbie King and Ryan Robson each went 2-for-2 at the plate. Booth Platt, Magreta, and Aliff had hits.

ALBANY-BUFFALO

Albany took a 5-2 win over Buffalo behind the run scoring of Brandon Curtis, Mike Gehrke (two each) and Joe Schmidt. M.J. Morris was 2-for-2. Andrew Ricci tripled and scored a run, Jay Ricci was 2-for-2 with one run scored and Aliff had a single, double and triple.

BUFFALO-ERIE

Erie outscored Buffalo, 14-2. Jason Santo was 3-for-3 (two singles and a double); Hostetter had three singles. Ford, Trost, Martin, Robby Zurschmiede, Dely and Melchior each had two hits. Buffalo's Andrew Ricci, Aliff, Brian Law and Max Prokop had two hits each.

Mailer deserves better biography

By Michael McConnell
Mailer: His Life and Times
By Peter Manso, Simon and Schuster
784 pages, $19.95

Probably no other American, with the exception of Hemingway, has had his literary reputation so inextricably entwined with his image of celebrity as Norman Mailer. And, again like Hemingway, perhaps no other American writer has sought his place in American letters as if it were a contest and one could actually win a title of "Champ."

Norman Mailer has often said he never wanted to be perceived as just a nice Jewish boy from Brooklyn who was lucky enough to go to Harvard. Certainly he has used almost all of his not inconsiderable energy and talent toward that end.

In "Mailer: His Life and Times," author Peter Manso attempts to show us Mailer's many dimensions. Manso interviews more than 150 of Mailer's friends, family and critics in the form of oral history. But all the reader gets is an endless stream of monologues without any critical interpretation from the author.

But Mailer is an interesting man. At the age of 25 he writes his first best-seller, "The Naked and the Dead," based largely upon his experiences as a soldier in World War II. Mailer admits this first novel is derivative and cites such influences as James Farrell and John Dos Passos.

By 1951 Mailer discovers the "beat" life in Greenwich Village and divorces his wife Bea, and marries the Latinate Adele Morales, who is one real hot mama. Mailer writes "Barbary Shore" and "The Deer Park" but the critics call both novels grand failures. Norman enters his bourbon phase, smokes marijuana and through the offices of a doctor, becomes addicted to Seconal. It is a bad period by all accounts. Norman seems out of sorts, looks fat and finally, in 1960, stabs his wife Adele.

According to the press he is all washed up and no longer the brilliant young novelist. At the age of 37, many editors and critics alike refer to him as some crazy has-been who tried to murder his wife. Norman retreats to his favorite resort: Provincetown on Cape Cod. He writes journalism for Esquire. His first piece is on John Kennedy, who is running for president. Titled, "Superman comes to the Supermarket," the article prefaces Mailer's comeback.

Throughout the '60s, Mailer assumes the pose of the macho man of art. He takes up a regime of boxing and journalism. And, despite the advice of such intellectuals as Lionel Trilling, Mailer engages in his own brand of mysticism.

During his third marriage, Mailer writes his 1964 novel, "An American Dream." The New York critics are kinder than their Midwestern counterparts. Mailer is condemned for his vision of American violence, his conceit, his pretentiousness and his lurid depiction of sexuality. But one reviewer, Joan Didion, reminds the reader of Mailer's preface to his novel "The Deer Park" — namely, a quote from Andre Gide: "Please do not understand me too quickly."

Indeed, Mailer cannot be understood too quickly because he often moves too fast. Mailer engages in such varied pursuits as filmmaking, leftist politics and boxing on the Dick Cavett show with his friends, Jose Torres, the lightweight boxing champion of the world.

Mailer has a short love affair with leftist politics and comes out against the war in Vietnam. In 1967 he publishes "Why Are We in Vietnam?" and follows it up with his third person narrative "Armies of the Night," for which he wins the Pulitzer Prize. He is still drinking too much, but his acquaintances are amazed by how hard he works in spite of his overindulgence.

One assessment of Mailer runs throughout this biography like a red thread: He is a pro who always meets his deadlines.

In 1973 Mailer writes a piece to accompany some photographs of the late Marilyn Monroe. He is accused of selling out. But Mailer scarcely has time to care. He is supporting four wives and six children.

Mailer composes some minor works and then undertakes a work on Gary Gilmore, the Utah murderer who seeks his own execution. The journalistic necrophile, Lawrence Schiller, who brought Mailer the Marilyn Monroe book, now offers Mailer the chance to write about Gilmore. Mailer whose fascination with death and murder had been eternal since his first novel, agrees to write the book. The result is another Pulitzer Prize for "The Executioner's Song."

By 1980 Mailer marries a young beauty from Arkansas by the name of Barbara Davis Norris; she is his sixth wife and he now has seven children.

He celebrates his sixtieth birthday in 1983. He has stopped drinking and smoking. Friends say he is about to enter his newest and most productive epoch. He writes "Tough Guys Don't Dance," which becomes a best seller and shortly after signs a $4 million contract for his next four books with Random House. Little, Brown & Company, who published his book "Ancient Evenings" in 1983 bowed out of the picture.

But Mailer deserves a better biography. Peter Manso is a friend of Mailer's and one senses that Manso is afraid to endanger that friendship with a critical biography. Too many of the people Manso interviews are complimentary. And the story that is told is, finally, too polite and considerate of the fact Mailer is still alive.

Because Mailer is such an endearing man to his friends and family, one feels his story will have to be told after his death when the nimbus and aura of dynamic personality have had a chance to settle into a more truthful and historical perspective.

Mailer is now writing against time. "Who ever wrote a good book after seventy?" he asks. We still have another eight years to draw any final conclusions.

Pointes East formed

Pointes East is a co-operative effort combining the variety and diversity of the area's restaurants, clubs and night spots in a joint promotional enterprise. It combines Detroit, the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods into a circuit of activity with everything from Grosse Pointe Sparky's to Belgium feather bowling to Woolly Bully's rock 'n' roll beer.

Pointes East is aimed at recognizing the area's vitality and range of activities accessible to local residents as well as metropolitan and convention clientele. Participating members are: Blue Pointe, Cadieux Cafe, Callaghan's, Cal's Pizza, Captains Two, Eastside Charlies, Irish Coffee, Jays Paper Station, Little Tonys, Montego Bay, Park Place Cafe, Pinkey's Blvd. Cafe, Pirates Cove, Tom's Oyster Bar, Sierra Station, Sparky Herbert's, Wimpy's and Woolly Bully's.

A brochure outlining the activities and restaurants participating in Pointes East will be distributed throughout the metropolitan area and to conventioners visiting the city. Along with the brochures, many promotional activities are planned.

The summer event this year will take place on the afternoon of Saturday, Aug. 3, at Salter Park in Harper Woods. This picnic will be a fundraising event for muscular dystrophy.

Run begins July 19

'Piaf' opens at the Attic

The story of the legendary French singer, Edith Piaf, known as "The Little Sparrow," will be presented at the Attic Theatre, Third at West Grand Boulevard, from July 19 to Aug. 18.

Piaf, a diminutive woman with a powerful, passionate voice who captured the hearts of her adoring fans, was discovered as a teenager singing in the streets of Paris. Despite the tragedies and failings of her personal life, she had an irrepressible spirit and drive to entertain.

The role of Piaf will be played by actress and vocalist Sheri Nichols, currently appearing at Tremonti's in the musical revue, "1946/Detroit," with Phil Marcus Esser and Barbara Bredius.

The show will be directed by Daniel Yurgaitis who has firsthand knowledge of Piaf through his French mother and grandmother. In researching the French chanteuse, Yurgaitis has collected memorabilia, recordings and personal anecdotes from those who knew her or saw her perform.

The supporting cast is composed of actors from Detroit and New York. Bethany Carpenter will portray Piaf's best friend, Toine. Brian Schulz will play Piaf's last husband, Theo. The show also will feature Mary Bremer, Joy Kelly, Bill Clyne, Glen Allen Pruett, Chick Greenia, Thomas Whalen, Paul Hopper and James Lawson. Musical director is Richard Berent.

Tickets at $8.50 and $10.50, depending on the night, are now on sale. Performances, beginning July 19, will be Thursdays and Fridays at 8 p.m., Saturdays at 5:30 p.m. and 9 p.m., and Sundays at 6:30 p.m. Tickets for the preview shows July 17 and 18 are available at reduced rates. Group rates are also available. Call 875-8284 for tickets and information.
