

He's very fit

And we have yet another winner from the 1985 Mr. U.S. Michigan Men's Pageant held at the Premier Center recently.

He's Hans Brieden, 19, of the Farms, and he won the Mr. Physically Fit award, which consisted of a trophy and a modeling scholarship. Hans, the son of Bryan and Mary Brieden, was cheered on at the event by his folks, sisters Sue and Laurie, brother Geoff and his girl friend, Janna Miller, who thought the competition was "pretty neat."

Hans also admitted being caught unaware that he'd captured a trophy. It seems he was in back of the group, talking and laughing, trying to find out where the backstage party was going to be, when someone pushed him on stage, telling him he'd won the award. He didn't even know what it was for 'til he got back in line and read the tro-

Okay, how many more of you contestants are out there? Please speak up, this nickel and dime stuff is driving me crazy.

And more winners

And we have even more winners in Grosse Pointe this week, compliments of Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit through their Manuway cash sweepstakes.

The sweepstakes, held during July, were designed to increase the usage of the bank's automatic teller machines. According to the bank, more than 22,000 entered the sweepstakes, exceeding the bank's goals by 100

Grand prize winner of $1,000 was Pearl E. Halbert, of the Woods. Other winners were: Bonnie Burton, of the Farms; J. Joanna Hayslet, of the City; Jean Moran, of the Park; Richard Senter, of the Woods; and Robert Southwell, of the Shores. All of the above won $50.

Dwite A. or Marian L. Walker, of the Woods, were also winners of $100, according to the bank's press release. Duly noted.

Change of pace

This is the way it went down. The Woods police last week monitored a Harper Woods broadcast to be on the lookout for two white males involved in an armed robbery.

The description was one male with blond hair and one with brown driving in a late model pick-up. Searching the area, one Woods officer spied a matching vehicle passing by at a high rate of speed. Inside was one blondhaired male, a brown-haired male and a white female.

The officer followed and lost them when they just made a red light at Mack and Moross. Two scout cars finally stopped the truck and the occupants were ordered out at gunpoint.

Inside the truck was found an unloaded .12 gauge shotgun in a cage. After checking identifications and stories, the truck's occupants were sent on their way

The driver? David Scott Rozema, formerly of Detroit Tiger fame, now of the Texas Rangers. His companions were his girlfriend and her brother.

They had all just returned from skeet shooting in Mount Clemens.

Oh yeah, the truck was registered to Dave's buddy, Kirk Gibson.

Mayor's advisory committee recommends approval

Theater redevelopment passes first hurdle

Grosse Pointe News

By Nancy Parmenter

The proposed development of the former Punch and Judy Theatre passed its first hurdle Aug. 14 when the Farms Mayor's Advisory Committee voted 5-2 to recommend approval of two ordinance variances.

The development does not meet two requirements of the ordinance. In order to proceed, the developers must seek height and parking variances from the Farms city council, acting as a zoning board of appeals. Developer Robert Edgar is expected to present his request Sept. 9.

The advisory committee had no difficulty with the height variances. "It took only about three minutes to agree that height wasn't a problem worth talking about,' said committee member W. James Mast three weeks ago. "The seven of us were unanimous — it is, in fact, the height of the existing building." The Punch is one story higher than the ordinance would allow for a new commercial building.

On the parking question the committee divided philosophically between those who believe the city should provide parking and those who believe that parking is the responsibility of the developer, Mast

"There have been questions regarding the adequacy of parking on the Hill before," said Mast, who voted to recommend granting the variance. "We asked the administration to monitor vacancies. They promised they would, but they never did it. So we (who favored the variance) used our gut feeling that in fact the parking is there. The Richard lot is essentially empty all the time and street parking is almost always available. We didn't have numbers, but no one else did,

Mast said the five in favor felt that it is unrealistic to expect the developer of the Punch to provide parking, since there is no space for it without removing houses and since many other existing businesses on the Hill have no parking. According to the formula in the ordinance, the complex would need 76 parking spaces. The developers are asking to go ahead without any. They plan to rely on street parking and the library, Richard, and municipal lots, according to Edgar.

Robert Chope, one of the two who opposed the variances, agreed with Mast that the proposed development is an attractive use of the but to consider the variances. abandoned theater. Both men emphasized that the committee had met, not to discuss aesthetics,

"I'm not an 'aginner'," Chope said Aug. 16. "I understand the importance of the Hill and I'm not voting against development and reuse of the Punch and Judy."

Chope said he is concerned with traffic congestion and parking on the Hill. He said he anticipates additional traffic and parking pressures from construction of the recently approved Bologna-Standard Federal project as well as the Punch redevelopment.

"A year and a half ago, the Hill merchants were up in arms about parking," Chope said. At that time, the Hill Association, concerned that lack of parking was adversely affecting their business, encouraged the Farms to arrange municipal parking space at Richard

"As a member of the committee, I have the responsibility of planning and looking forward." Chope said. "After all the hue and cry over parking, we've had three requests for variances. Something's wrong - maybe the ordinance is wrong, but I don't like to just write these off every time.

The three requests for variances are the Punch and Judy; the Bologna-Standard Federal project, a retail-office building approved Aug. 12; and the Grosse Pointe News, approved last winter. The Bologna project was allowed credit for municipal parking, but is expected to construct a parking garage within five years. The Grosse Pointe News was granted a 100 percent variance. It is currently under con-the interior is remodeled for retail shops and offices.

What do you give a city when it celebrates a birthday? If it's Grosse Pointe Woods, you give it a parade, park ceremonies, city hall open house, entertainment and activities to mark 35 years of incorporation as a city.

That's the plan in the northernmost of Grosse Pointes' five cities on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 8, when the festivities kick off at 1 p.m. with a parade starting at the intersection of Mack and Vernier roads and proceeding to city hall.

Dignitaries, bands, scouts, Little Leagers, clowns, antique cars and community groups will participate in the parade.

At 2 p.m park ceremonies will be under way with the introduction of dignitaries, awards presentations and the birthday cake will be cut. Immediately afterward, city hall will be open for inspection and fire and police equipment will be on dis-

Pizza, coney islands, ice cream, cake, doughnuts, beverages and other treats will be available until 8 p.m. at special anniversary prices, according to Woods city officials. Entertainment and music will be provided by Austin Moro, Banjos East, George Sax Benson and the Pointe Brass.

Other activities are expected to include a Little League baseball game, senior citizen exercise demonstration, Memorial Tree dedication, finger printing identification, blood pressure readings, safety presentations, tattoo clown, sculpture clown and exhibits by the Woods commissions are scheduled throughout the day.

Historically, the Woods began as the incorporated community of the Village of Lochmoor in 1927. The name was changed to the Village of Grosse-Pointe-Woods in 1939 and on December 11, 1950, it was incorporated as the City of Grosse Pointe Woods.

The Woods, with an area of 3.28 square miles and a population of 18,886, has the same territory as when it was first incorporated as the Village of Lochmoor back in ball with bamboo mallets.

We're the youngest of the Pointes, but we like to think we're the most progressive," said Chester Petersen, city administratorclerk for the past 24 years. "Because of the leadership of Mayor Freeman and the council, plus the efforts of all our citizens' committees to work and develop the Woods, we're seeing a mini-boom on Mack Avenue."

Included in that boom are the remodeling this year of eight business storefronts, the recent acquisition of the Grosse Pointe Woods Bowling which will be remodeled into a Red Lobster Restaurant, and an additional three new office buildings on the strip.

"We also have two more banks coming in," Petersen said, with a smile. "That'll give us 10 on Mack Avenue in the Woods. I guess we're becoming the financial center of the east side.

Mayor George Freeman and the Woods city council, including Thomas Fahrner, Paul F. Beaupre, Robert Novitke, Jean B. Rice, John Sabol and Ted. L. Bidigare, are especially pleased that the city will be spending $1 million on renovations this year for water and sewer, sidewalk and street repairs.

The city fathers are also proud of what they feel are some of the city's jewels, including the Lake Front Park, which at 55 acres is the largest in the Pointes.

They're also very proud of the Veterans Memorial Parkway on Vernier Road, a beautifully landscaped tribute to America's veterans that greets those driving into Grosse Pointe Woods.

The parkway, which was completed in 1980, culminates in the Circle of Honor at the intersection of Mack and Vernier. The circle, made up of flags representing every armed conflict the United States has ever been involved in, was donated to the city by Chester and Roberta Petersen and is valued at $10,000.

By Elsa Frohman

So you want to play polo. Why not? It's an exciting, fast-moving sport open to competitors of all ages. And you don't have to be an oil millionaire to play.

According to the United States

Polo Association, the initial investment isn't as large as you might think. Of course, you will need at least two polo ponies (seasoned competitors recommend a minimum of four). A "slightly used" horse will run you between $2,000 and $3,000 depending on your skill as a horse trader.

Once you and your horses have become acquainted, you're going to have to start thinking about footwear - not for you, for them. Pole ponies must be reshod every six to eight weeks.

If you don't have room for several horses in your backyard, there will be stable fees, and if you do keep your horses at home, you're going to need a multiple horse trailer ($1,000 to $2,000, used).

Now for the clothing - not for you, for the horses. They will need saddles, special bridles and polo bandages - sort of leggings that protect the horses' legs from the ball and mallets.

Now, how about some equipment for the rider? You're going to need a helmet, kneehigh leather boots, kneeguards, the traditional white trousers and several mallets. Finally, before you can start chasing the little white ball on horseback, you're going to have to pay grounds fees at a polo club.

Altogether, you can start playing polo almost immediately - if you happen to have a minimum of about $7,500 to invest in the sport.

But that's polo on a shoestring. If you really want to experience the sport of kings in royal fashion, you're going to need a few hundred thousand dollars. You'll want to maintain a stable of a dozen or so ponies of the finest sort ($20,000 apiece and up), and you'll want to hire some professional polo pros to flesh out your team and make you look a little better in competition.

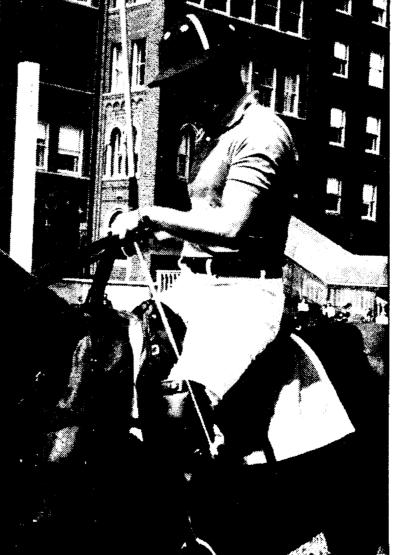

But never mind all that - in what other sport could you play alongside Stacy Keach, Alex Cord, Prince Charles, Wilt Chamberlain ation polo player.

and Stephanie Powers. Yes, Stephanie Powers -- women play polo too, often in mixed matches.

Polo is enjoying a revival throughout the United States. Once the sport of the elite, it is returning as the sport of the upscale, but not necessarily filthy rich, crowd. (It still isn't a sport for the masses. Some experts figure that it takes an annual income of at least $50,000 to be comfortable playing polo).

But you don't have to be even moderately rich to watch polo, and considering the polo players' old saying "There isn't a polo player worth his salt who hasn't broken one bone or another during his polo career," watching might be the most rational approach to the

Two tracks in Grosse Pointe?

It started with an innocuous picture on page 11A of the Aug. 22 edition asking if any reader remembered where the Grosse Pointe Race Track was located.

And readers out there did call. but told us about two different race tracks that used to ply their trade in the Pointes.

Well, it's settled. Kenneth Van-Dellen, a professor of geology at Macomb Community College and a local resident, brought in Department of the Interior topographical charts of the area from 1905 that showed two tracks in the area. The interesting thing is, Grosse Pointe Race Track was located in an area no longer part of Grosse Pointe.

The track officially designated on the map as the Grosse Pointe race track was located off Jefferson between Drexel and Conner as near as we can tell. The grand stands were along the east curve of the track, which pointed toward Jefferson.

From the tract maps, it appears that the track still fell within the borders of Grosse Pointe at that time. If the track were operating today, it would be a few blocks into Detroit, since Grosse Pointe's southern boundary is Alter Road.

A second track that was unnamed on the map was located off Kerby Road in the Farms. It appears to have had Voltaire as its east curve and ran across Grosse Pointe Boulevard.

Van Dellen said he purchased the map folio from a used book dealer a few years ago. It contains topographic and geological maps of the area, as well as photographs of the digging of a navigational channel in the Detroit River and a shot of Milk River Point, now Gaukler Point on which the Edsel & Eleanor Ford Estate is located.

Another mystery solved.

The Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice has announced plans to help the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, NAACP, secure funds to assist the national headquarters in New York to move to less expensive offices in Baltimore,

The Inter-Faith Center will make available to the surrounding community lapel buttons with the slo-gan "I gave NAACP" for a $2 tax deductible donation. Checks should be made out to NAACP-Detroit.

The purchase of a button will give individuals the opportunity to help the oldest civil rights organization in the nation," said Karen Moore, assistant director of the Inter-Faith Center. The NAACP was founded in 1909.

Some of the historic accomplishments include: winning the landmark Brown v. Board of Education decision in the U.S. Supreme Court, leading the fight to integrate the armed forces and being instrumental in pushing the passage of the Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1972.

The current program thrust of the NAACP is: a voter registration drive to register two million voters, a prison program designed to assist ex-offenders and inmates, and the maintenance of a Washington Bureau to monitor and encourage the progress of civil rights legisla-

Farms council approves $110,000 park improvement

The Farms gave the go-ahead Aug. 26 to the latest round of improvements at the Pier Park. The proposed rearrangement of the entrance will cost $110,000 and is expected to be completed by the beginning of the next summer season.

Questionnaires about the park plans were sent to every Farms resident in the city's summer informative bulletin. The tabulated results were presented to council last week. Responses were mailed back

The improvements are part of a $750,000 package funded in large part by the Farms Foundation. The Farms general fund will contribute $30,000 for the entrance changes.

The first phase for the package included the construction of a twostory brick and cedar boathouse in 1983 and the entrance improvements. As funding becomes avail-

Fishing hot spots spotlighted on cable

By Mike Andrzejczyk

There may not be another like it in local origination programming guides; a locally produced sports show highlighting local hot spots for fishing and hunting.

But that's what Grosse Pointe

Cable has, thanks to the work of Michael Garey and Ron "Rocky" Graham; a locally produced sports show that kicked off last week with walleye fishing in the Detroit River and airs tonight at 5 p.m. with chugging off Windmill Pointe

Graham, Garey and production assistant John Walker taped the programs and offered them to Grosse Pointe Cable. Garey and Graham also operate Lifetime Video Memories (Precious Moments on Tape), a video production company that does weddings, birthdays and anniversaries as well as videotaping for insurance purposes.

Both of them have young children, and the idea of preserving those moments of happiness in a child's life for replay for years to come was irresistible, Graham said. From there, the pair went on to form Lifetime Video.

The sports show was something they had kicked around for a while Garey said. Since Graham is an avid fisherman and Garey a freelance gaffer, doing lighting for a variety of commercial production, the show seemed like the natural thing to do.

"We were working so hard, we didn't have a chance to go fishing."

Graham laughs.

And fishing they go.

If you saw last week's show, you got a chance to watch Bryce
Graham and John Osowski do wirelining in the river and take a couple of limit catches that anyone would have been proud of.

But besides showing fish being caught, the show tries to show the average angler where the fish are, what they like to bite and what to do to get them in the boat on the slow days when the fish just don't seem to want anything.

"Anybody can go out there and catch fish," Graham says. "But if the fishing's slow, it's nice to have a little expertise.

The good fishing that has blessed the lake and river in the last couple of years has a lot to do with the efforts to clean up the water through tougher regulation and enforcement. Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River offer fishing for a variety of species that's only out the backdoor for most Grosse Pointe

Cable viewers, Graham says.

The amount of fishing there is and the variety of species there are to catch is just amazing," he adds. 'You've got fishing here that people drive 800 miles into Ontario to

While the show will cover hunting and fishing in southeastern Michigan up to and around the Thumb, the second show is strictly local, with local fishermen right off Windmill Pointe Park showing viewers rod-and-reel chugging.

Chugging uses a sinker, with a no. 4 treble hook attached, that is lowered to the bottom and bounced along as the boat is carried by the current. The fisherman will lift the sinker off the bottom in slow regular movements so the baited hook and sinker cover the bottom couple of feet of water where the walleye will be lying in wait.

The sinker goes on the end of heavy gauge monofilament usually

Neighbors robbed

Farms police were checking out one breaking and entering on Chal-fonte Aug. 27 when they learned that the owners of the house next door were out of town. A quick check revealed that the house had been broken into as well.

Both houses were entered through the back porch. An intruder cut the screen of the back door, used a half-inch tool to pry the wooden door, and, at one of the houses, kicked the door in, police reports said.

At one house, the burglar overlooked a microwave, an expensive stereo system and a television set to take jewelry, a 12-place setting of sterling silverware, other sterling pieces, a camera and equipment ment, a shotgun and a rifle

At the other house, the thief took two gold pocketwatches and a snowblower. At both houses, he broke children's piggybanks and took the coins.

Farms police were able to lift 13 fingerprints at one house, according to the report. No one has yet been arrested in the case.

by 162 families, with 113 in favor of the park renovations and 49 opposed.

20-pound test and up. Heavyweight rods and reels — muskie fishing tackle — are the best for chugging.

he adds. You don't even need to go out and buy chrome-plated sinkers, Graham says. Just take a pair of scissors and scrape off the oxidized outer layer on a sinker to expose the shiny soft lead underneath.

Prism tape in a variety of colors - blue, chartruese, green and purple - can also be added to the sinker to attract fish as well, he adds.

The nicest thing about chugging is it's a quiet, restful way to fish, Garey says. After motoring up the river, you just shut off the outboard, drop the lines in the water and let the current do the rest.

"You can look back at what you left behind on the shore and feel good," he adds.

And that's what fishing is about. the pair say. It's an inexpensive sport to get started in. You don't need the 28-footer with the twin 200s to get you to fish in either the lake or the river. A car-topper with a 15 to 25 horsepower motor is all you need to get started, Graham

And knowing where to go and what to do when you get there doesn't hurt either.

While the three have more shows in the planning stages, they are starting to look for sponsors for the program. Local sports stores will probably be among the first to be asked if they want to advertise on the half-hour show.

At the same time, Lifetime Video keeps going. And the pair take on other jobs as well.

Finding a sponsor for the show is important. Although the company can offer the first few, the team is going to have to find a sponsor to keep the show going, according to the cable company.

So, if its been a bad day Thursday, before you turn on the evening news, relax and catch a little fishing on local origination channel 11. If nothing else, the show's going to make you want to go fishing.

able, the Farms will proceed with phase two, improvements to the plaza and game area and new roofs for the poolhouse and gazebo. The money is raised through tax-deductible gifts to the Foundation.

The park is restricted to Farms residents. However, the current layout of the entrance inadvertently provides parking for others. The goal of the new entrance is to better restrict the parking lot to resi-

Farms officials see the advantages of the new entrance as reduction of bicycle theft and elimination of parking for people who leave their cars there while they take the bus, jog, hop the fence, drink, or use the unauthorized beach at the north end of the lot. Officials believe the new arrangement will help overall security.

They concede that there are potential disadvantages as well. Residents could be inconvenienced by the additional time required to check passes and the longer backup of cars waiting to get into

The new gatehouse will be set at the end of a deceleration lane laid out parallel to Lakeshore Drive, long enough to permit cars to line up at busy periods. The current entrance would become an exit only. A left turn lane will be constructed in the median strip of Lakeshore for southbound traffic.

Because Lakeshore is a county road, approval of the Wayne County Road Commission was needed. The county required a lengthening of the deceleration lane to accommodate additional cars.

Details of the new gatehouse have not been finalized. The bids on the project did not include the gatehouse, which Farms officials estimate at approximately $25,000. Council discussion of the gatehouse at last week's meeting noted that it must provide security, be modest, and "look good."

Bids were let last spring. Now that the project has council approval, the city must check with the bidders to see if the prices still stand. Final bid acceptance is expected within a month.

Grosse Pointe Cable cautious of Westinghouse announcement

By Mike Andrzejczyk

It looks like Grosse Pointe Cable won't buy out managing partner Group W, but somebody's going to end up buying Group W

Westinghouse Electrical Co. put its cable television holdings - 140 local franchises and the second largest in the nation - up on the block last Thursday, according to the Wall Street Journal.

Group W holds franchises in Dearborn and Wayne and is the managing partner of Grosse Pointe Cable, holding 25 percent of the local company.

The company has asked Grosse Pointe Cable officials to consider under what conditions it would consider allowing Group W out of its franchise arrangement earlier in the month, part of a move to centralize its cable holdings, according to Group W officials.

It appears that the War Memorial and the five cities in the franchise - Harper Woods, Grosse Pointe Woods, Farms, City and Park - aren't terribly interested in buying out the Group W quarter of the company, Rickel says. Two detailed meetings have been held at which city representatives have gotten detailed financial information about the company, Rickel says. They have been asked to respond by Sept. 12 to express their wishes, he adds.

However, the company's position could be "considered in a state of flux" since any decision now to keep the managing partner relationship may change depending on who is going to be the new owner and operator of the Group W holdings across the country, Rickel

Whoever buys Group W will be bound by the same contractual agreements under the franchise as Group W, Rickel says. A similar situation occurred when Teleprompter, original holder of the local franchise, was acquired by Group W, he adds.

The local company is taking a wait-and-see attitude and will base future action on who the new owners of Group W become, Rickel

Two-alarm blaze guts Woods Bar-B-Q House By Tom Greenwood

Boards and a burnt awning mark the front of the restaurant.

Firefighters from the Woods, Shores and Harper Woods responded to an early morning blaze that struck the Bar-B-Q House of Grosse Pointe Woods, 20515 Mack Avenue, Aug. 23.

BARBO

Firefighters were alerted to the fire at 1:16 a.m. by Michael Alfonsi, who was working at Little Tony's Lounge in the Woods, located next door to the restaurant.

According to reports, a patron of the lounge told Alfonsi he smelled smoke, at which time Alfonsi went outside to check and found the res taurant in flames.

Reports say a patrol car had passed through the area 15 minutes earlier and noticed nothing amiss.

Firefighters from the Woods responded and entered the restaurant through the rear door, believing the fire to be located in the kitchen. After penetrating 10 feet into the structure, firefighters were forced back by intense heat and

A second alarm was called at 1:30 a.m. and units from the Shores and Harper Woods responded. Woods Director of Safety Inspections Earl Wakley was on the scene and reported the fire was contained, with the exception of a few hot spots on the roof, by 3 a.m. Wakely said he hopes to get a crane over to the site soon to clear debris from the kitchen area so a formal inspection can be made.

Although the origin of the fire hasn't been determined, reports say it's believed to have started in the kitchen area which was completely destroyed. The roof over the kitchen fell in, dropping a heating and cooling unit into the build-

Little Tony's Lounge in the Woods received minor water and smoke damage, but was reportedly open for business quickly. Anthony Alfonsi, owner of the lounge, was reportedly on hand during the blaze and served soft drinks and coffee to firemen.

Well, it was quite a vacation for the Robert Radnick family. The Radnicks, residents of the Woods, were spending time in eastern Ontario's Algonquin Provincial Park, when they ran into a moose at about 9 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 22.

Their car, a 1976 Volare, was effectively destroyed, ending up with a crunched hood, punctured radiator, two crushed fenders, and dents on the roof and sides of the car.

Radnick received a cut hand, but the rest of the family, wife Pat, son David, 9, daughter Margaret, 6, and brother-in-law Greg Saville, were all shaken up but unharmed.

The moose lived, but had to be destroyed by an Ontario Provincial policeman who came upon the scene 40 minutes later.

We were completely alone on the highway when it happened," Radnick said. "We were on Highway 60 at about 45 mph when she it was a female — stepped directly in front of the car. You couldn't have set it up more perfectly. It was so dark, there aren't any street lights in that huge park, and I had about half a second before I saw it was a moose. ### Farms council approves Dodge-Ranger plans

The Farms granted tentative approval of a preliminary plat for the Dodge-Ranger estate development at its regular meeting Aug. 26. Thirty-three feet of the back yards of the proposed subdivision lie in

Pat and Robert Radnick.

The possibility of ceding the land to the City to eliminate planning problems has been under discussion for several weeks. Farms City Manager Andrew Bremer told the council that he has some informal conversation on the subject with City Manager Thomas Kressbach of the City.

Representatives of The Blake, the subdivision developer, said that the word from the state attorneygeneral's office is that a joint resolution of the two cities is all that would be required to complete the land transfer.

The land lying within Farms boundaries is expected to be an undeveloped portion along the rear of the proposed residential lots. Farms assessor Carrol Lock told the council that while he did not have precise figures on the anticipated tax revenue from the 33 feet. the amount would be negligible.

The council decided to seek a legal opinion on deeding the land to the City. "We need to know whether it is A) necessary and B) sensible," said Councilwoman Nancy Waugaman.

In the interim, the council granted approval to the developer on lot size and orientation and street layout. The approval is good for one year.

"My reaction to this is that it's the function of the City," said Mayor pro tem Joseph Fromm.

More schools to close?

Grosse Pointe residents no doubt will be interested in all seven of the goals that the school board has approved for the coming year. But one of the seven — under the innocuous heading of setting a "five-year facility plan" for the school !system — still will be among the most controversial if not the most controversial of the batch.

That goal involves planning for the future enrollment of the system and the number of school buildings that will be required in the years ahead. Since the system's elementary school population seems to have stabilized, it is expected that the future declines will come at the secondary school level. The current prospect is that by 1992 the decreases will have worked their way through the system and leave a stable population in their wake.

Yet population forecasts always are difficult to make. Will the Grosse Pointes continue the aging process that has cut the populations of all five communities since 1960? Or will there be a re-newal of growth as hinted by the slight increases in population that were reported from 1982 to 1984 in Grosse Pointe Park and in the City? Such factors will affect enrollment in the individual schools in the system and could mean the closing of additional buildings or perhaps the reopening of Barnes, which was closed a year ago.

The setting of the seven goals came just prior to the board's hearing last week on raising the school millage levy by 1.8 percent of $639,518 for the coming year despite the continuing decline in enrollment and the cutbacks in the teaching and administrative staffs. Those figures are alarming to some residents who feel that despite rising costs in specific areas, the increase in the overall budget is unwarranted. Others defend rising expenditures in the interest of maintaining the system's excellence.

But some people already are making demands for cutbacks in the budget and, unless the population decline reverses itself, for closing more school buildings. Whether decisions on that issue can be postponed until 1991-92 will depend on what happens to enrollment in the meantime and how much pressure will be exerted by the public on the closing issue.

So while the other six goals adopted by the board are an important part of planning for the future, the five-year facility plan and especially the criteria to be developed for continued use of present school buildings could be the source of the greatest interest and the greatest controversies in the system's immediate future.

The Detroit News sale

For metropolitan Detroit and other Michigan residents, there is both good news and bad news in the sale of the Evening News Association to the Gannett Co., the nation's largest chain news-

The good news is that Allen Neuharth, Gannett's chairman and a former news executive at the Free Press, promptly pledged that the Detroit News would continue in operation and expressed the hope it would be running for another 100 years or more. That pledge presumably guarantees that readers and advertisers will continue to have a choice in Detroit, the only Michigan city with local daily newspaper competition.

But the bad news is that for the first time in its existence control of the Detroit News has passed out of the hands of the local descendants of the Scripps family who started it 112 years ago. It means that chain or group owners control both of the daily newspapers in Detroit. In both cases, that means absentee ownership that is not always as responsive to local needs and problems nor as dedicated to fulfilling the newspapers' public service obligation as local owners often

Yet Detroit and Michigan are still fortunate that the new owners of the Detroit News, the Gannett Co., and the owners of the Free Press, the Knight-Ridder group, are generally regarded as among the more responsible publishing chains in the country. One long-term observer of newspapers, John Hulteng, a Stanford professor and former newspaperman himself, once put it this way

"Some chain owners . . . are interested chiefly in the money-making potential of their properties. However, the degree to which a profits-first philosophy filters down from central ownership to individual publishers or editors of the group varies considerably from one group to another.

"The heads of the Gannett group, for example, are undoubtedly interested in showing healthy balance sheets to the group's stockholders, yet there is little evidence that Gannett management demands corner cutting or subordination of the public service obligation of its member newspapers in order to maximize profits. The same could be said of the Ottaway group, the New York Times group and the Knight-Ridder group.

Groups or chains now own more than three-fourths of the daily newspapers in America, plus an increasing number of weekly newspapers, radio stations and TV stations. That increasing concentration of ownership raises serious questions about the future of a free and competitive press. One of those questions was raised by Hulteng, who, after saying there are good chains as well as bad ones, conceded that group ownership, "as a system does tend to encourage a profits-first philosophy in the office of the top decision maker on the scene.

It is true, of course, that newspapers like other businesses must make a profit to survive. It is also true that both Gannett and Knight-Ridder leave many decisions in the hands of their resident editors and publishers. But in neither case can the corporate management be as attentive to Detroit's needs or to a Detroit newspaper's problems as a single family ownership whose major interest was the local daily paper.

To some extent, of course, the sale was a case of a giant chain swallowing a smaller one because the Detroit News was also a part of a communications empire that included daily and weekly newspapers and radio and TV stations. But Gannett at latest count owned more than 85 other daily newspapers, countless weeklies and a collection of TV and radio stations. The Knight-Ridder chain, owner of the Free Press and more than 25 other big dailies, is also one of the nation's largest in terms of circulation. So the management goals of large chains are widely dispersed in many properties in many communities, and are obviously not as concentrated in a single community or only several communities, as are many family-owned groups.

Yet it is true that group or chain journalism appears to be the wave of the present in Detroit and the rest of the nation. Detroit and Michigan may be fortunate that one of the better chains is taking control of the News and its other communications properties in Michigan, but we now will have the opportunity to see what Gannett will do. Will it honor its pledge to keep the Detroit News alive and maintain its reputation for publishing lively, newsy and responsible papers which observe the public service tradition? Or will the new owners, like lesser chains in other cities, simply seek to maximize profits in Detroit and shut down the News if they cannot achieve that aim?

Tax amnesty on the way

Now that the Blanchard administration is backing Rep. William Bryant's tax amnesty plan, the way seems to be cleared for the final passage of the Grosse Pointe legislator's proposal of collecting delinquent taxes without criminal prosecution. It now appears to be another good idea whose time finally has come.

In a recent interview with Crain's Detroit Business, State Treasurer Robert Bowman said he expected the amnesty plan would bring in at least 10 million in additional revenue, although Bryant thinks the legislation might bring in $100 million or more from delinquent taxpayers.

The state is coupling its support for tax amnesty with new provisions for tougher enforcement and penalties. It would assess a 25 percent interest penalty for businesses paying taxes with bad checks, raise the interest rate on overdue taxes from .75 percent per month to one percentage point above the prime rate, and charge late penalties of 5 percent per month, up to 50 percent of the tax, in addition to the prime-plus-one inter-

The amnesty period, to run from 45 to 60 days, would apply only for taxes owed before April 30 this year. So newly delinquent taxes would not be included. And the penalties for back taxes would be imposed during the amnesty. That means the amnesty will protect delinquent taxpayers only from criminal prosecution.

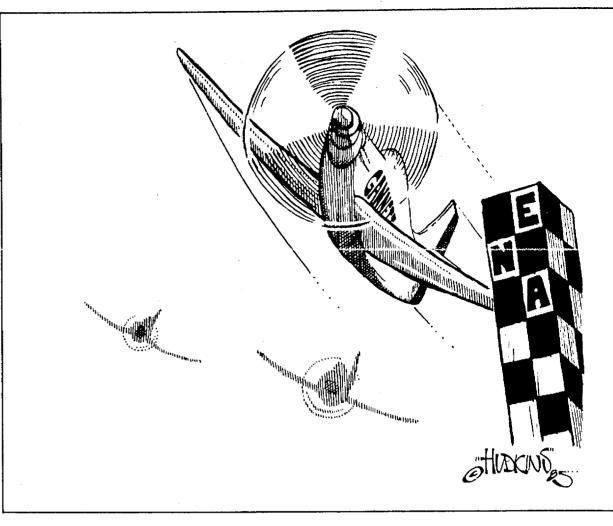

Some criticism of the amnesty has been made on the grounds it benefits only those who have been delinquent in their tax paying and does nothing for the people who have continued to pay their taxes in full and on time. However, in both

Massachusetts and Illinois, which have used the amnesty period on a one-shot basis, the collections were substantial — $80 million in Illinois and $152 million in Massachusetts - and the complaints from the on-time taxpayers were

It could be argued that efforts to cut several types of state taxes also will benefit on-time taxpayers. The cut in state income taxes still is before the Legislature, with the Republicans seeking a return of the 4.6 percent rate as of Jan. 1, 1986, and the Democrats working for the compromise between that date and the July 1, 1986, date proposed by the governor. The Republican view already has prevailed in the Senate but it appears likely some kind of compromise will be worked out before the Legislature completes its fall session.

The largest chunk of uncollected state taxes is the $105 million in sales taxes collected by businesses from customers but still owed to the state. The next largest delinquency is the $93 million in the single business tax and the third is the $77 million in taxes withheld from employees' paychecks and not paid to the state. The amnesty period could enable the state to substantially reduce such delinquencies. Beyond that, the amnesty could relieve delinquent taxpayers of their fear of prosecution and the tougher enforcement and penalties that the state promises those who fail to pay up during the forgiveness period. And perhaps the combination of a brief amnesty and tougher enforcement will convince delinquents that they should remain current with their tax payments in the future.

By Marian Trainor

It's not for the weak, but if you have a yearning to visit Ireland to see the towns and villages and to hear the lore and history of them, take a tour.

True, you will return home a little fatigued from traveling the country by bus from sea to shining sea, but the memories you'll bring back of some of the most beautiful scenery in the world will be worth

I know. I did it.

It's important to have a good tour director and we did, P.J. Mahon. He was a walking encyclopedia of the history and culture of the back-roads and main roads of the coun-try; he was the soul of geniality; solicitous at all times that those on his tour were comfortable and having a good time. Every request, every suggestion was met with "No trouble a'tall, a'tall.

After landing at Shannon Airport, we were driven to Limerick where we checked into the hotel and went to sleep. At this point we had been up for more than 24 hours. As they say in the commercial "we needed that" for the next eight days were crowded with sights and experiences from morning call at seven until bedtime at 11 - for some of us. The hardier ones could stay in the hotel pub until 1:30.

On the subject of pubs, there is no shortage of them but they close earlier than those in the states. They open at 10:30, close for an hour at 11:30 - the Holy Hour and reopen again until 1:30.

The first stop on the tour was Clare to visit Bunratty Castle, one of the largest of the towered fortresses in Ireland. Built by the O'Briens of Thomond in the 15th Century, it has been completely restored and furnished in the style of the period. As would be expected, the great hall is impressive. The furniture, the tapestries, the woodcarvings and the fireplaces are of massive scale and priceless beauty.

However, it is no mean feat to climb the winding, narrow steps to the various rooms. The king and his men must have been very agile indeed to run up and down their slanty, slippery surfaces.

On the grounds, in contrast to the splendor and grandeur of the castle, is a replica of a typical medieval folk village. The cottages are constructed of stone with thatched roofs. The windows are narrow as is the single door. They are picturesque reminders of a past era. Inside they are dark and damp. Usually there is a peat fire going on the stone floor. The air is smoky and acrid. Most of them have one room where food is cooked and served with a bedroom off to the side or with a loft for sleeping. There was not a lot of furniture in them, being so small it was not needed, but what there was was solid and beautifully constructed - the kind that antique collectors would die for.

In the evening the group gathered for a traditional Irish evening dinner and entertainment. As might be expected the main course is salmon, chicken or lamb. Don't go looking for corned beef and cabbage. It apparently is not an Irish dish. Cabbage and bacon is the combination served.

On the road again, and a bumpy one, we continued on to Buren, a lunar-like area petrified forever in carboniferous limestone. Traveling through this area, it is easy to see why stone fences are so prevalent throughout Ireland. They sure have enough stone for them.

The cottages in the villages are post-card pretty with their stone fences, shining windows and newly painted look ("If it doesn't move, we paint it," quipped P.J.)

On to Galway, a lovely town immortalized in song. It is everything the song promises, a town overlooking a breathtaking view of the bay. It is just about an ideal location, large enough for convenient shopping, small enough to be picturesque.

In Galway is the Cathedral dedicated to Our Lady Assumed Into Heaven. Built of local limestone and Connemara marble, its design is cruciform and its dome rises to 126 feet above the altar. It seats 2,000. It was built by volunteer labor and cost $1 million pounds. It could not be duplicated for many times that amount.

Those who have seen "The Quiet Man' are no stranger to the beauty of Connemara. The real thing is much more beautiful than in the movie. The cottage where the film was shot is open to visitors. Maureen O'Hara pays a visit there every

Along the roads are peat bogs. A man can rent a plot of land from the government for $10 a year and dig all the peat he needs to heat his home. The peat is dug out and put on the back of a donkey to be carried out. The bogs are too muddy for a truck

Donkeys are more than cute little animals in Ireland. Besides being used to haul the peat, milk cans are put on their backs to be taken to the creamery

Dublin was our next major stop Minor ones don't count because there were many to take pictures — views that just couldn't be passed up. One stop made was at Newgrange, one of Ireland's most historical sights. It is an Irish

Neolithic grave, one of the legendary burial places of pagan kings. Up the mountain we went to a mound-like structure. Inside a low narrow opening (look out for your head) we inched our way to an open space where we could view intricate designs in stone honoring the dead kings. The structure was a marvel of engineering completely made of stones fitted together in such a way that there was no need for cement.

Every city and town in Ireland has statues, monuments, churches, ruins of abbeys and pubs. One small village we passed through had 52 pubs — one for each week of the year.

Dublin, being the largest city had its proportionate number - but there is much more to see there. St. Patrick's Cathedral, Church of Ireland, was a majestic sight and had many historical statues, plaques, and memorials. The National Gal lery with its 2,000 masterpieces, the Library and Trinity College with its Book of Kells were mustsee places.

Dublin is known for its squares and houses with their painted doors, each one a different color and each having a fan-like glass decorative window.

Dublin Castle was another memorable experience. The rooms are beautifully furnished. There are tapestries and rugs and works of art in all of the rooms. It even has a real throne.

The Mansion House, an impressive edifice, has been the residence of the Lord Mayor of Dublin since 1715. Many important events in Irish history took place there including the adoption of the Declaration of Independence in 1919.

Most visitors to Ireland want to stop at Waterford to see how that beautiful crystal is made. It is an intricate process and fascinating to watch. The showroom where the finished products are displayed is a fairyland of shining crystal.

And now for Blarney Castle and the Blarney Stone. What is a castle without steps that wind up forever to the top and what is a day in Ireland without rain?

Let me hasten to add it's not the hard, driving rain we get, but rather a soft misty rain. However, you do get wet and wet we got as we

I say

It's fall — don't blink

Officially, fall doesn't begin for another two weeks or so. Intellectually, we know that we should start anticipating the change of seasons now and just make sure that we don't blink some two weeks down the road and miss it all together. All too often, as any Michiganian worth his Ryba knows, a Michigan autumn is but a brief fortnight wedged in there between summers that fly by faster than Tiger winning streaks and long, cruel winters with double digit windchill fac-

But hey, that's the price we pay for the privilege of living in the Great Lakes State, this fabulous water-slash-winter wonderland. If you can't stand the cold, you've got no business living in a state shaped like a big mitten.

Besides, aren't Michigan's spectacular fall seasons well worth putting up with the sticky days of summer and record-setting winters that have the national TV weathercasters chortling "The coldest spot in the universe right now? Right there in good 'ol Michigan, folks." Sure they are.

Because fall in Michigan means October and to paraphrase Lee Iacocca, if you can find any better month, buy it or whatever. Next to any month with three pay days in it. October is my favorite month. The reasons for that are myriad:

Fashions. Most Michigan Octobers are cool enough to wear fall fashions that have been displayed in stores since shortly after the Fourth of July, yet warm enough to take an early evening walk without a ski mask on. Holidays. There aren't any big is to October. Holiday-filled months like November, December and the three day weekends of the summer months can tend to drag a person down, Not October, One can spend crisp, sunny October days enjoying the sights, sounds and smells of fall rather than rushing from store to store trying to outshop one's neighbor.

Sports. Since I am a sportswriter by trade (or is it by nature?), I tend to pay a bit more attention to sports than the average person . . . except in October. That's because I'd rather visit a cider mill than watch the Lions lose, or take a drive to Frankenmuth before I'd watch the Red Wings or Pistons fumble through the first month of their seasons. There's only two exceptions to this; one is college football which I love to watch on TV or listen to on the radio while doing my Saturday afternoon house cleaning. The other is the World Series, a fond but fading October memory around these parts.

Atmosphere. You want atmosphere? October's got atmosphere. holidays in October, unless you count Halloween, which I never do fire in July. Or walking down by since it's closer to November than the lake to catch a cool breeze in February, Anybody interested in making popcorn or candy apples in May? No way. It's October every

You can count on October. It has a practical 31 days, none of this 30 days has September nonsense. It has sunny days, rainy days, Indian summer mornings and frost on the grass at night — no in betweens. You don't have to worry about icy streets or overheated car engines.

When I was younger and a lot less smarter than I am now, I used to wish that every day could be Christmas or the Fourth of July. Now I'd just settle for a month of winter (just to keep the holiday season interesting and because Bing Crosby never dreamed of a brown Christmas), a month of spring (we around here know that you can't play baseball in October EVERY year), and a month of summer (the people who make suntan oil would make sure of that). The rest of the year could be one long October.

What do you say? Maybe we could put the Army Corps of Engineers to work on this one . . . as long as they let us know before November rears its ugly head.

be one more gorgeous view in Ireland - lovely green fields with squared off patches of every shade of green, lakes and rivers as blue as the sky, mountains grey-blue rising into the heavens — you travel on the Ring of Kerry along the coastline of the Iverdagh Peninsula, through lovely villages and towns with spectacular views at every turn. It makes a fitting finale to a journey through a land of incomparable beauty.

These are but some of the sights to be seen in the land of brogues and shamrocks and leprechauns. But the memory stores much more. We remember the cleanliness, the gentle soft air, the kindness, the courtesy, the friendliness, the ease of life and the appreciation of the good things and acceptance of what life has given.

Board hires teachers

When does an elementary school population increase make a school board unhappy

When it's bigger than predicted and expected and drives class sizes up, forcing the board to hire three new teachers

That's what the Grosse Pointe Board of Education did Thursday. Aug. 29, when predictions of enrollment increases for the coming school year showing 166 more students than originally projected ready to come to school for their first day yesterday, Sept. 4.

There are probably a couple of reasons for the increase, according to Assistant Director of Support Services David King. Public schools seem to have attracted a higher percentage of the available students entering kindergarten this year and there are more families moving into the area with young children that will start their kindergarten year in the schools.

The greatest percentage increase in elementary population came at the kindergarten level, which made up roughly 40 percent of the higher-than-expected projections, King said.

In light of the higher than expected classes, Superintendent John Whritner said the administration would have to look into the trends involved and find out if the increases represented the Baby "Bang" that's been predicted in recent years. He and board members did express their skepticism that the extra kindergarteners were the first wave of the bang, a mini-baby boom, small compared to the one that filled schools for more than 30

The three teachers hired will be assigned to Kerby, Maire and Trombly schools, where they will handle split sections, Whritner said. There may also be a future request coming before the board to hire more teaching aides, he add-

The board also approved the hiring of one or more part-time teachers for Pierce and Brownell middle schools, where enrollments were expected to exceed projections by more than 60 students at the two schools, according to Director of Personnel Ronald Tonks.

The new teachers will probably cost the district close to $125,000 in wages, fringe benefits and other costs, according to Finance Director Christian Fenton.

While Tonks said the estimates at the middle schools were usually high, with populations dropping after school started, Whritner said comparisons of Dr. Frost's early elementary projections to actual populations

By Elsa Frohman

For Anna Maria Alberghetti, working is no longer a way of life. She has given up the gruelling life of a full-time performer, to take only those assignments that will allow her to stay close to her Alberghetti will be making one of those rare appearances next month at Parcells Middle School as part of the Bon Secours Hospital Celebrity Series. Appearing at 11:30 a.m. on Oct. 10, Alberghetti will talk about her life as a performer and sing a selection of songs ranging from Broadway hits, to traditional Italian songs.

Lectures like the one she will give at Parcells are Alberghetti's engagement of choice these days. She will not take a job which will keep her away from her family for more than a few days.

"I have worked since I was 6 years old," Alberghetti said in a telephone interview. "By the time I was 10 or 11, I was the sole financial support of my family. Until a few years ago, work was the most important thing in my life.'

But one day Alberghetti found that living to work was leaving her with little time or energy for herself.

"When I was on Broadway and won the Tony award and was the center of critical acclaim, I found I had achieved all I had ever dreamt of. But I was not happy. My career was the most important thing and it had eaten up all my energy. My marriage was falling apart. I decided to stop working and re-evaluate my life. I wanted to be a mother for a few years without Alberghetti has two daughters, Alexandra, 18, and Pilar, 15. With the girls in their teens, she has returned to working - but only on short-term projects.

"I went back to work with a different set of priorities," she said. "I'm doing lectures and concerts with symphonies. I just turned down a leading role in "One Life to Live." It would have gone on for two years. I didn't even have to think about it.'

Alberghetti said her early career as a performer left her without the time and energy to develop a sense of self-esteem.

"As a youngster I had the pressure of being the breadwinner for my family. My father was a wonderful teacher, but he was very critical. Now that I'm back into the business, I have very different priorities. I love my work and I always do the best I am capable of. But it is no longer the totally dominant part of my life. I put my personal life first. I'm a person first and a performer second. I like everything about my new life. For the first time, I am really happy. I have found an inner peace.' Though she has worked in films, on Broadway and on television, Alberghetti is best remembered for the role of Lily in "Carnival." She won a Tony award for the part. She says that when she first read the script of "Carnival," she fell in love with the character.

"When I read it, I said, 'I'm going to become Lily and I don't care what it takes.

She said she still identifies with the part — to the extent that she avoids seeing any other actress play the character.

"I only saw it once and it was terribly upsetting. You not only feel in love with the character. You feel you created it. It's your own baby. It wasn't because I wasn't up there. It was because the actress wasn't playing the part with the same honesty and truth. It was a terrible experience.

While she currently has no dramatic roles on the horizon, Alberghetti said she hasn't ruled out the possibility of going back on the stage.

"I would have to read the script and fall in love with the character, like "Carnival," she said.

Adapting her performing style to the lecture format was not difficult, she said.

"In essence, an audience is an audience," she said. "To some extent it is the same because I spent about half the time singing. But it is a very honest lecture. I go through my life chronologically and tell how I felt about things. The audience really gets to know me. I form a very close bond with the audience.

In her personal life, Alberghetti says the most important thing right now is her relationship with a man that may lead to marriage.

"It's the second time around and I'm not in a hurry," she said. "It's nice to have a relationship and grow with someone. It's been about 10 years and I'm taking my time." Alberghetti's friend is not in show business. Tickets for the Celebrity Series can be obtained by writing to Edna Moeller, 801 Lakeland, Grosse Pointe, Mich., 48230. Tickets for the entire series are $30. Checks should be made payable to the Bon

All that jazz

The War Memorial will be expanding their classes in jazz dance for youth this fall. The classes are not only open to persons who would like to get a taste of the art, but also for those who would like to pursue it more fully by working towards a show next June. Registration with instructors Amy and Claudanne Cooper will be Saturday, Sept. 14, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

All classes will be on Saturdays beginning Sept. 28. Starting with the youngest participants, "Introduction to Dance: Baby Rhythm," for preschoolers, will meet from 9:45 to 10:15 a.m.

"Tap" dancing for 5 and 6-yearolds will be offered from 10:15 to 11 a.m. Both the tap dancing and baby rhythm courses last for 12 weeks and cost $36 each.

"Beginning Jazz." for teens and pre-teens will meet from 12 noon to 1 p.m., and "Second Year Jazz" will meet from 1 to 2 p.m.

"Intermediate Jazz," for teens only, will meet from 11 a.m. to 12 noon. All three of these courses cost $48 for 12 weeks of instruction.

The instructors, of Cooper Sisters Studio, have been teaching in Rochester for 35 years and first joined the War Memorial's staff of instructors last year. In addition to studying in New York, Chicago and Detroit, both have danced profes-

Farms adopts water budget

The Farms city council passed a $1.4 million water and sewer budget for 1985-86 at its Aug. 26 meeting. The budget will reduce sewer rates by 10 cents at $10.20 and raise water rates 10 cents to $4.80 per 1,000 cubic feet, resulting in a standoff.

pected to result in a $15,800 loss for the year, an amount Lock said is too inconsequential to readjust rates. The department finished this fiscal year with a cushion of $60,600 owing to good water sales, Lock said. Water rates were raised because the electricity cost for operating the pumps is now substantially in excess of Detroit Edison's predictions. The utility recently received a rate hike from the Public Service Commission.

Kerby comes down

Demolition of old Kerby School, located next to the Farms city hall on Kerby Road, began in earnest last week. Workmen began to strip the interior of the structure first, with demolition of the exterior proceeding at a slower pace. It's expected that the leveling will take several weeks to accomplish. Ironically, the building is being demolished by the Paul Kerby Contracting company, headed by a relative of the family the school was named after. Cost of the project is $43,936. Farms officials said they expect to replace the school with a parking lot adjacent to city hall.

New cable series to tempt viewers

By Mike Andrzejczyk

You see those flyers all the time. advertising adult or community education classes through the public school system or the War Memorial. It sounds to you like a good class, but you wonder what's involved before you lay your dollars down. Who you gonna call?

Well, you can try turning on Grosse Pointe Cable's channel 11 about mid-September when a new series titled "You Can Do It" hits the airwaves. The show, produced by Patty Potter and featuring Mary Beth Amluxen will feature local businesses, organizations and individuals showing off a variety of

"When you get a brochure, you sort of have to take a guess and what the class is about," Potter says. "What we are going to do is put a person on the screen — Mary Beth — and explain what's going to happen and what's involved. We'll feature local businesses as well."

One of the eight shows already taped and ready for television features Tom's Marathon and demonstrates the proper care and feeding of an automobile, from how to check the oil and add windshield wiper fluid, to how to change a tire and recognize it's time to take a car to a professional, Potter says.

Intruder breaks in, ransacks house

A house on Manor in the Farms was broken into Aug. 24 while its owners were on vacation. A neighbor called police when he noticed that all the house doors and the garage door had been open all day, according to police reports.

The front door had been kicked open, breaking the doorjamb. Police were able to lift a clear shoe print from the door. The entire first floor had apparently been searched. All drawers were open, and contents of many had been dumped out, the report stated.

Police found a 16-inch black-andwhite television set on its face in the back yard. The antenna was on the garage floor. Three women's rings and a nickel were found on the landing by the side door, which was apparently the robber's exit.

The police nailed the front door

Other upcoming shows include the basics of wallpapering, stained glass and glass etching, cooking, post-natal exercise and a feature on the Living Science Program, offered this year by the Community Education Department of the Grosse Pointe Public Schools.

The programs aren't meant to teach the skills that can be learned from the classes, but to "tease" viewers into looking more deeply into the ones that interest them,

This is Potter's first series producing, but she has been involved behind the scenes of many others, according to cable programming director Wally Scotten. Her husband Kermit is a part-time employee at the company and director of the show. Potter herself is a calligrapher who works part time with the public schools as well.

And if Amluxen looks familiar, it's because she was one of the onair personalities for "Young Viewpointes," a locally produced show featuring young people giving news that went under a couple years ago.

Although this is her first program work with Grosse Pointe Cable since then, Amluxen used the experience she gained on "Young Viewpointes" to land an internship with WDIV, where she assisted producers on shows like "Sonya" and local features like the fire-

"Other communities are begging for private development," he said. "You either progress, or you die. If it's a question of a ghost town or a boom town, I'd rather have a boom town. We need the business.

Rousek said there is no firm foundation for the parking requirements listed in the city ordinance. "Where did they come from in the beginning?" he said. "They were pulled out of the air."

The low level of business activity on the Hill at present should be of greater concern than potential parking problems if business improves, Rousek said. In order to encourage business, "we decided not Everyone recognizes that the problem may grow larger with the Punch and Judy," conceded Mayor pro tem Joseph Fromm. He appointed a three-member committee from the council to meet with the developers, Edgar and Richard Crawford of Denver, to discuss the parking issue before the September meeting.

The Punch project plans to pro vide retail space on the first floor and offices above, surrounding a three-story skylighted atrium. The exterior of the building will remain unchanged, except for the removal of the theater marquee. Plans call for the entrance to be changed from Kercheval to McKinley.

Cable starts daytime airing

In case you haven't noticed, there's a new addition to morning television this week. Grosse Pointe Cable will begin airing local origination programming on channel 11 starting at 9 a.m.

The decision to air the programming during the day is two-fold, according to program director Wally Scotten. Viewers were calling the company asking when a certain ogram was going to be repeated son or daughter or friend again America," Scotten says. and would get a bit of a shock.

Local origination programming will play for a set amount of time and then the video-tape goes into the recycling shelf, where it will be used again. The company doesn't keep local origination shows for repeats in six or eight weeks. Scotten

Because the morning schedule will not change during the week, each show will be aired at least five times during the day and a couple of more times in the evenings as well each week, Scotten says

The second reason for airing local origination in the evenings is because it will pit the locally produced programming against other over-the-air offerings, syndicated shows soaps; lighter competition than the evening schedules from the networks, Scotten says.

A person will turn on local origination if their son, daughter or someone they know is in the show, but it's not realistic to believe people turn off Dynasty for channel 11, he adds.

Expanding local origination programming hours from 24 to almost 55 a week won't mean extra cost to

Air service to Lansing

A regional airline began scheduled service between Detroit City Airport and Lansing Sept. 3. Jetstream International, a Pennsylvania-based commuter airline, will make two round trips a day to Michigan's capital city.

Jetstream already flies twice daily between Youngstown and Detroit. Its service to Lansing will be Monday through Friday with departures from Detroit at 7:15 a.m. and 4:50 p.m. and departures from Lansing at 8 a.m. and 5:40 p.m. Flying time will be 35

Body found off Farms

By Nancy Parmenter

The body of a woman found floating face down in Lake St. Clair Aug. 28 has been tentatively identified as that of Neva Prouty, 81, of Mapleton Road in the Farms.

Prouty was reported missing by her son, Richard, the same day. She was last seen at 10:45 a.m. by a worker delivering a hot lunch to her home. Her body was seen in the lake off Lakeshore Road near Warner, about six blocks from her home, 45 minutes later.

Prouty, who was described by Farms police reports as being in poor mental and physical condition," apparently wandered away from her home while her son was out. Police said there were no signs of foul play. They speculate that she may have become confused and fallen in the water.

Wayne County Medical Examiner Harry Hamilton said that the cause of death was a lack of oxygen to the brain as a result of drowning. There were no marks of trauma, Hamilton said. "There was nothing to show a severe fall."

Hamilton said his office is continuing to investigate. A series of tests has been run, but he explained that, without any particular substances to look for, the process could require several weeks.

Identification of Prouty appeared to be hindered by the fact that she usually wore a blondish wig, without which she was difficult to recognize, according to the report. She had gray hair and blue eyes, weighed about 135 pounds, and was five feet tall. The physical characteristics of Prouty and the drowning victim match, including evidence of lefthandedness, Farms Det. Earl Field said.

The police traced Prouty's possible path to the lake, but were unable to find any evidence. The case remains open, pending results of the tests from the medical examiner's office

GI Bill offered to reservists, National Guard

Military reservists and the National Guard are now eligible for GI Bill education benefits if they sign up before

June 30, 1988. Gordon W. Clowney, director of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Detroit, said the Selected Reserve Educational Assistance Ace of 1984 (the new GI Bill) which became effective last month. Participants must enlist, re-enlist or extend their enlistment for at least six years in the Selected Reserve before

June 30, 1988. The monthly benefit amounts are: $140 for full-time enrollment, $105 for three-fourths time and $70 for halftime. No allowance is added for dependents. Eligible reservists must have received initial active duty for training and completed 180 days of reserve service. They must use their benefits before leaving the reserve and within 10 years from the date they become eligible.

Clowney said current Reserve and National Guard members can contact their unit commanders for additional information and application forms. Others can call the VA Region-0740 or, in the Detroit area, (313) 964-5110.

Lake level

Lake St. Clair at the end of July was at elevation 576 feet or 52 inches above chart datum. This was about seven inches above one year ago, and the July monthly mean of 576.03 feet was 25 inches above its long-term average for July. The Great Lakes forecast shows that Lake St. Clair is expected to be 47 inches above chart datum or at elevation 575.62 feet at the end of

Pointe talks to congressman

By Nancy Parmenter

Grosse Pointe may not have voted for him last year, but Congressman Dennis Hertel's Grosse tion too. When he was a freshman letters than he gets from any other community in his district.

The second-biggest number of visitors to his office in Washington hails from the Pointes.

If that's not enough, five of Hertel's 16 staffers have Grosse Pointe

"Even though Grosse Pointe is Republican, their concerns and letters don't differ," Hertel said. "Lots of people are worried about tax reform and how it will affect them: investments, mortgages, charities, fringe benefits. And probably the number one concern is the deductibility of property and state taxes.

Hertel also gets "thousands" of letters about Social Security, Great Lakes issues (he's on the House Merchant Marine committee), and imports. He says he expects Congress to take some action on imports this year.

"The first thing up will be shoes and textiles, then automobiles," he said. "We need to require foreign companies to invest in this country. We're just talking about doing what everybody else does. There's no free trade without fair trade.'

But far and away the greatest amount of correspondence is about defense. "Even when they're writing about something else, they'll al Office toll-free in say, 'oh, by the way, about defense Michigan at 1-800-482- ...'" Hertel said. "People would cut defense before they would cut education, aid to local govern-ments, veterans' benefits. The people who complain the most are the businessmen. They've had to cut back and they think the Pentagon should have to too

Hertel is a member of the House Armed Services' task force on waste, fraud, and abuse. He says that the population now overwhelmingly favors a freeze and even cuts in defense spending.

"In 1981, 80 percent of the people wanted more spending," he said. By now, the figures have reversed, so that 87 percent favor reductions. Some of that feeling stems from fear of nuclear war, but Hertel says the polling makes it clear that the major reason is dissatisfaction with Pentagon waste.

"These (publicized) outrages have really changed public opinion," he said.

Hertel has spent his whole Washington career on the committee and has a few darts for its operacongressman, he said, at the verv first meeting of the committee, members were handed a huge packet and given 35 minutes to vote on it.

"I was the only one to vote 'no,'" he said. "I did it in protest against the procedure." He says that sort of thing doesn't happen so often any more.

Hertel expressed satisfaction with the results of the task force's deliberations. Many of the amendments proposed made it through the joint House-Senate conference committee and will be considered by the Congress in September.

The bill would create criminal penalties for wrongful billing of the defense department. Bringing an end to the free football tickets and dog kenneling, the amendment is aimed at the top people in the contracting firm.

"Until now, all they've been doing is paying back the money." Hertel said. "This would levy a $500,000 fine plus double the amount fraudulently billed." It would also carry a maximum of five years in jail.

Other amendments would require quarterly reports on Pentagon spending, tighlen the requirements on bid accuracy to cut cost overruns, and increase the amount of double-sourcing. Contracts would be let to two companies to stimulate constant competition and keep the option of switching to the more efficient of the two, Hertel said

Military procurement is also targeted. "We're the only nation of any size that does all of its procurement through the military," Hertel said. "We'd like to implement civilian procurement to get away from the conflict of interest. It's too incestuous.

Hertel also wants to stop the "revolving door" that allows Pentagon employees to set up "sweetheart deals" with defense contractors. An amendment would prohibit federal employees from going to work for a defense contractor for two years after leaving the government.

"We're not dwelling on horror stories," he said. "We've heard enough of them. We're trying to change the system. The public wants a strong defense, but it realizes that it isn't getting it under the present system.

Leons stay busy with international performances

Three local sisters to make music together

By Elsa Frohman

The Leon sisters, Stephanie, Suzanne and Kelly, tend to see one another briefly — in airports, during a weekend, now and then on the way to somewhere else. However, this weekend they will take time out to spend enough time together to give a rare joint concert at the Grosse Pointe Center for Performing Arts, at Grosse Pointe North High School, on Sept. 7.

The Leon sisters are somewhat of a local phenomenon. Daughters of Joyce and Harold Leon of Grosse Pointe Farms, all three have achieved professional status as musicians - playing with orchestras across the United States. Stephanie, 25, is a pianist with a doctor of music degree from the University of Michigan. Suzanne, 24, is a violinist with a bachelor's degree in music from the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia. Kelly, 20, is also a violinist, currently studying at the Julliard School of Music in

This weekend will mark the first time all three sisters have performed together publicly in seven child prodigies. They were ju years. While the sisters make a point of giving family concerts whenever holidays or vacations find them together at home, their busy school and performing sched-ules keep them apart most of the

"I tell them, 'I'll make a good Thanksgiving dinner and you give a good concert," their mother said of their holiday gatherings.

The three sisters aren't the only musical Leons. Their older brother, Craig, who has chosen a professional career in law, is also an accomplished pianist. However, their parents have no special musical abilities. Joyce Leon is a teacher of Home Economics in the East Detroit Public Schools and Harold is an attorney

The Leon children took up music at almost the same time. Kelly, the youngest, was only 2 years old. She gave her first public solo performance at the advanced age of 3.

However, the sisters were not

"They were just doing what they were supposed to do. We just went along as a family," Joyce said. "We didn't set out with the idea that they would be professional musicians. We just wanted to give our children opportunities.

However, even their early teachers recognized special talents.

"One early teacher mentioned they had especially good pitch," Joyce said. "Stephanie was picking out tunes with both hands on the piano by the time she was 4 years

Stephanie said her decision to pursue music professionally came late. Through high school she thought she would go into the medical field.

"But when I started going to music festivals and associating with serious musicians, I began to feel it (music) would be more of what I would enjoy doing. I'm a slow de-cision maker," Stephanie said. Suzanne was more direct.

"I knew pretty much from the beginning," she said. "From when I was young and playing, the violin was always my central focus. One thing led to another."

Stephanie and Suzanne were in town together last week. They met Kelly at the airport and greeted her briefly before she took off on another trip. Kelly will return in time for practice for this weekend's con-

The sisters say their decisions for musical careers came independently. However, Stephanie points out that seeing one another's successes did not hurt.

"When we hear of one of the others doing well in a competition, it's exciting for the others," she

"When one of us enters a competition, the whole family is behind us," Suzanne added.
While they are dedicated to their art, the sisters don't isolate themselves with their music. They say the amount of time they spend practicing depends on whether they have a special performance coming up. However, a day doesn't go by without some practice.

Stephanie Leon (piano) and her sister, Suzanne, (violin) will soon depart for a year in Europe where they will play recitals and polish their techniques for playing with each other.

"If I didn't practice, at the end of the day, something doesn't feel right," Stephanie said.

"If I didn't practice, at the end of marily be pieces played by Stephanie and Suzanne, or Stephanie and Kelly, or solos. However, the girls

This weekend's concert will be Stephanie and Suzanne's sendoff for their upcoming year in France. The sisters will be taking an apartment in Paris for a base of operations as they play recitals.

'We just need time to play and develop a repertoire," Stephanie said. "We have played together since we were young, but there is a real art to playing together. Real groups practice together all the time. It gives them a chance to delve deeper into the music.' This weekend's concert will pri-anie and Suzanne, or Stephanie and Kelly, or solos. However, the girls have prepared one special selection they will play together.

"There isn't that much music written for two violins and a piano," Stephanie said.

Concert goers may want to listen closely for the special differences between Kelly and Suzanne's violin performances. Suzanne points out that no two violinists achieve the same tone — even when they play the same instrument.

"Their personalities are very different," Stephanie said.

Suzanne will be playing her newly acquired violin. It is a scientifically recreated instrument made in the musical image of a Stradivarius. It was built by Joseph Nagyvary, a biochemist who has studied the special qualities of antique instruments to find what makes them so special.

"It was just made last year, but its sound is particularly refined and resonant, Suzanne said.

The sisters are looking forward to the Grosse Pointe concert.

"We enjoy performing together as a family," Stephanie said. Tickets for this weekend are available by calling 356-3870.

Kelly Leon is currently studying at the Julliard School of Music in New York. She will return to Grosse Pointe this weekend to perform with her sisters.

GPUMC celebrates 40th anniversary in September

Begun 40 years ago, and established by the Methodist Union of Greater Detroit, the Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church held its first service at the old Kerby School in Grosse Pointe Farms on Sept. 9, 1945.

The first pastor was Rev. Hugh C. White who served the church for 15 years. During those years two units were built and the church reached a membership of 1,100.

Each year the church, in honor of the first pastor and his wife, Hugh and Doris White, sponsors a Hugh and Doris White Commemorative Event. Established upon White's retirement in 1983, a fund was earmarked for special speakers. mainly in the area of Methodist history. On Sept. 8, Dr. Jerry Stewardson, Adrian College Pro-fessor of Religion, will be the featured speaker at both the 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. services. Dr. Warren Moore, church historian, is in charge of planning for the day.

A reception will be held between services in honor of the Whites and Dr. Stewardson. The day will mark the resumption of the full church school program with a full class schedule for both children, youth

Buckle your seat belt for baby's sake

By William T. Mixson, M.D. President the American College of Obstetrians and Gynecologists

It's hard to imagine a better, safer environment for an unborn child than the body of its mother. Her muscles, bones, and digestive organs provide excellent protection for the baby as it develops throughout her pregnancy.

But the mother's body by itself cannot protect her unborn baby against one of the most powerful, most unfeeling, yet most common devices we use - the family car.

Unfortunately, the automobile is not built nearly as well for the protection of its passengers as the average mother is for hers. Therefore, whether she's a driver or passenger, in the front seat or back, every expectant mother riding in a car should "buckle up" for her own safety and the safety of her unborn child.

Martins celebrate 70th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Martin of Grosse Pointe Shores celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary on Aug. 31. The couple were married in 1915 in Menominee, Mich. They have lived on the east side of Detroit for their entire married life. They have lived in Grosse Pointe for 40 years.

Mr. Martin is a retired toy and novelty manufacturer. He was once known as the Chinese Checker King when the game was first released in 1937.

The Martins have one son, Donald A. Martin of Grosse Pointe Woods. They have two grandchildren and three great-grandchil-

A celebration dinner was held on Sept. 1 at Elk's Lodge No. 34; St. Clair Shores. It was attended by friends and family. Out of town guests included Mrs. S. Lawrence

The plain truth is that most unborn babies have died in highway accidents not because they received any direct, fatal injury but because their mothers died first.

Seat belts are easy enough to wear early in pregnancy but what about in the fifth month or even the ninth? If your car has only a lap belt, and almost all cars have this at least, make sure this belt is below your abdomen, crossing snugly over your upper thighs and low against your hips. Never hike the lap belt up above your abdomen. In an accident, the lap belt keeps your lower body from shooting forward into the dashboard, the steering wheel, or — if you're sitting in the back — smashing into the front seat.

If your safety belt includes a shoulder harness, position this belt across your shoulder and as comfortably as possible between your breasts. It should not rub against your neck or slip over your shoulder and down across your

Kiwanis peanut sale scheduled for September

The Kiwanis Club of Grosse Pointe announces their annual Kid's Day peanut sale to be held on Friday, Sept. 20 and Saturday, Sept. 21, being a national fund raising project. Club president, John Dee-Rosier, and fund raising chairman, Bruce Wernet, said this is the major annual fund raising event and the membership will be out in full force to sell salted in the shell peanuts. To accomplish its goals the club needs the support of the community.

The Kiwanis have mailed their appeal for contributions to support their projects and funds are starting to come in.

The Kiwanis Club of Grosse Pointe projects include furnishing buses in Grosse Pointe Woods for use by youth and senior citizens, aid to the handicapped through our effort at the Kiwanis Handicapped Center, furnishing wheelchairs for use by local churches, and support of the Detroit Children's home on Cook Road. The "Sunshine" program is the newest endeavor to help children with terminal illness' see some of their wishes come true.

All of these projects take time and money. The Kiwanis will furnish the time and ask the community for financial support.

Japanese pearls have hearts that are as American as apple pie and hot dogs

National Geographic News Service

Sitting in a flat-bottomed boat in the chocolate-colored Tennessee River, John Latendresse smoked a cigarette, sipped this third Diet Coke of the morning, and observed, "I don't suppose this looks too much like pearl country. Ironically, it is. In today's cultured-pearl business, which Japan conceived, controls, and still tightly guards as a national secret, the very heart of cultured saltwater pearls is a purely American product, author-photographer Fred Ward writes in the August National Geographic.

The shell-bead nuclei surgically inserted into oysters growing in Japanese waters come from the shells of mussels found in the muddy bottoms of the Tennessee and Mississippi River valleys. It is nuclei along with live tissue that stimulate oysters to produce nacre. the coating that gives pearls their color, luster, and appearance.

Latendresse, president of both the Tennessee Shell Co., Inc., and American Pearl Farms, sells 60 to 65 percent of all shells used for culturing. At least half of these are from washboard mussels, which can be nearly an inch thick near the hinge. No others in the world have such composition and thickness; up to 20 high-quaity nuclei can be carved from each shell.

"It's kinda satisfying, walking anywhere in the world, looking at a woman, and knowing that most of the necklace she's wearing came from right here," Latendresse told Ward. Most of a cultured pearl is the mussel shell inside.

Once more precious than diamonds, pearls — religious symbol of wisdom and wealth — were coveted by history's queens, inspired Roman invasions, and still help back Iran's currency as part of the state jewels.

Among the first gems to adorn mankind, pearls have never been more popular than they are today, especially in the United States. which buys about half of all Japan's pearls — three times as many as any other country. Pearls are plentiful and affordable (a single average pearl in a necklace retails for under $18). And, Ward writes, 1980s free-form fashions encourage wearing them at any hour with any clothes.

In modern times, pearls were never higher prized or priced than during the 1920s, the last years before the natural ones were almost entirely replaced on the world market by the cultured type. Completely the creation of the oyster, natural pearls were rare and, for thousands of years, came mostly from the Persian Gulf

Cartier acquired its Fifth Avenue headquarters after World War I by trading two strands of naturals (priced then at more than $1 million) for a matron's town house.

Previously, pearl fever reached its height among ancient Romans. who spent astronomical sums on these coveted gems. The Roman general Vitellius paid for an entire campaign by selling just one of his mother's earrings, according to the historian Suetonius. By the first century B.C., pearls were first in value among all precious things, Pliny the Elder wrote.

Cleopatra is said to have wagered Marc Antony that she could give the most expensive dinner in history. The queen removed one of her huge, matched-pearl earrings, crushed and dissolved it in a goblet of wine (or vinegar), and drank. When she offered Antony the other earring, the bet was declared won. Pliny wrote that those pearls then were worth 60 million sesterces, or more than 1.8 million ounces of fine silver.

Pearls retained their value above all gems until the early 19th century, when diamonds surpassed them. Then early in the 20th century, Kokichi Mikimoto, son of a noodle vendor, was granted a Japanese patent for the world's first cultured round pearl. His cultured-pearl business at its peak had more than 12 million oysters and produced 75 percent of the world's pearls.

Mikimoto, who attributed his long life (96 years) to two pearls he swallowed every morning, kept oysters implanted with nuclei in the water for more than three years for maximum thickness of the nacre, the substance that also lines the oyster shell as mother-ofpearl.

Although most Japanese pearl operators vigorously deny that quality is diminishing today, Ward, who interviewed more than 100 representatives of the pearl trade, found that the majority of pearls are too thinly coated, nearly all are bleached and dyed, and that exporters often circumvent the Japanese government pearl inspection.

Most cultured pearls may come from Japan, but the grandest are nurtured in South Sea oysters, which are often more than a foot in diameter. The world's largest pearl oyster, Pinctada maxima, produces cultured pearls up to 20 millimeters in diameter, about double the size of the normal Japanese pearls.

South Sea white pearls come from Burma, Thailand, the Philippines, Indonesia and Australia. Iridescent peacock-hued black pearls are the exotic creations of black-lipped oysters found in Polynesia. So rare are large highquality South Sea pearls, white or black, that they can sell for $4,000 to $40,000 each.

Although saltwater pearls have dominated the cultured-pearl market, freshwater pearls, which come from mussels, are becoming increasingly available. Usually less expensive, freshwater pearls are as close to natural pearls as culturing can get. Instead of starting from a shell nuclei, these pearls are seeded with pieces of mantel tissue placed directly in the mussel's own fleshy mantle. They are solid pearl.

China recently exploded onto the freshwater pearl market and today leads the world, expecting to produce from 50 to 80 tons this year. But Latendresse of American Pearl Farms predicts that "the U.S. in the future of cultured freshwater pearls.

In 1987 his firm plans to start marketing large round pearls cultured from up to 24 species of Tennessee, Louisiana, and Texas

In Ann Arbor, a contemporary dance course will be held 6-7:30 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, beginning Sept. 6, at the Dance Building on North Univer-

Also beginning Sept. 6 is a course on Friday afternoons from 1 to 4 p.m. The School of Public Health class will be taught by Prof. C. M. Wylie in Room M1519, SPH II.

The course covers activities, end results and administrative problems in community health service agencies, their personnel and clients. Some knowledge of health and disease problems in the United States, and of historical and political factors involved in community health service, is required.

On the U-M-Dearborn campus, 22 courses are scheduled, including social work, business administration, computer and information science, education, environmental studies, mathematics and micro-Gifted and Talented computers for teacher, psychology and sociology

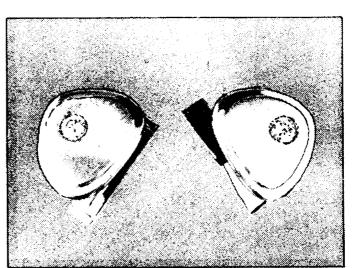

In Detroit, a social work course in program design, implementation and management will be taught at Rackham Educational Memorial Building on Farnsworth Ave., and a workshop in elementary/secondary education will meet at the Wayne County Intermediate School District Education Center.

On the U of M-Flint campus, 21 courses will be offered, including classes in social work, American English. sociology culture, theater, public administration and mathematics. Also offered will be a 12-hour certificate program in computer science, and a threeyear, part-time evening Master of Business Administration program.

In Midland, the College of Engineering will offer "Catalysis, Kinetics, and Research Reactors" at H.H. Dow High School. Registration will be held Sept. 4, from 3-5

A complete listing of the courses and registration forms are available from the U-M Extension Service, 200 Hill St., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48109-3297, or by calling (313) 764-5311, 8 a.m. - noon and 1-4 p.m. weekdays.

Try Paulared apples for taste of autumn

You don't have to waif until fall to enjoy juicy, delicious, just-picked apples. Michigan's summer varieties which mature in August are expected to be harvested earlier than usual this year, ready to be made into pies, applesauce or eaten out-of-hand.

Michigan's own Paulared apple, a summer variety discovered not too many years ago by Louis Arends in his orchard near Sparta, Mich., is fast becoming an early favorite be cause of its resemblance to the best of the fall varieties

Paulareds are slightly tart, making them equally good for sauces, pies or eating as a snack. Maturing at least three weeks ahead of fall apples, this beautiful solid red fruit can be enjoyed with your summer picnic.

Apple growers know a good thing when they see it. Although Michigan ranks first in their production, Paulareds ar already being successfully grown in 35 states, five Canadian provinces. Mexico and several apple-growing countries around the world.

Paulareds keep well in short-term storage, and maintain quality exceptionally well in stores. Available through the middle of September, Paulareds are "good keepers" under refrigeration for several weeks.

Nutritionally, apples are high in fiber, fairly high in potassium, low in sodium with no cholesterol. But best of all is the taste - juicy, crisp perfection.

When you crunch into a Michigan apple, prepare yourself for a treat to delight the senses. Color, fragrance, crunch, flavor, and easy out-of-hand eating make apples a pleasure, as well as a sensible choice

U.S. Savings Bonds. Paying Better Than Ever.

Back in 1872, San Francisco's first cable cars were called "Hallidie's folly." Today, they're America's only mobile historic monument.

Some things never change.
But one great American tradition has changed—U.S. Savings Bonds. Now Savings Bonds pay higher variable interest rates like money market accounts. That's the kind of change anyone can appreciate.

Just hold Savings Bonds for five years and you get the new variable interest rates. Plus, you get a guaranteed return. That means you can earn a lot more, but never less than  $7\frac{1}{2}\%$ .

You can purchase Bonds at almost any financial institution. Or easier yet, through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.
Buy Savings Bonds, Like the cable car, they're another part of our proud heritage.

Jennifer Groehn: Veterinarian to the animals of the global community

By Elsa Frohman

Jennifer Groehn traveled halfway around the world for a chance to take care of sheep, goats, donkeys and horses in the rural villages of Egypt.

A graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School and life-long Grosse Pointer, Jennifer recently received her degree in veterinary medicine from Michigan State University. During her final year at MSU, she arranged to study and work in Egypt on a Fellowship for International Veterinary Study. She is the daughter of Nancy and Gilbert Groehn of Grosse Pointe

"There was an interest in inter-national relations with developing countries," Jennifer said. "I arranged it for myself.

Jennifer has a cousin, another Grosse Pointer, who is married to an Egyptian. She stayed with her cousin's husband's family while she was in Egypt.

They became family to me," she said. Jennifer spoke no Arabic when she arrived in Egypt and having relatives to stay with softened the impact of the foreign culture. She said she learned a good deal of Arabic during her stay.

Jennifer's stay in Egypt was sponsored by an Egyptian veterinarian who has connections with MSU. Dr. Shahan practices in a small city near Cairo, Mahalla El Kobra, Through Dr. Shaban, Jennifer was able to observe and practice in the smaller rural villages.

.However, she also spent time in Cairo, studying and practicing at Cairo University.

While women occupy a very different position in Arab society, Jennifer found little discrimination in the veterinary field.

'About half the students in the veterinary school (in Cairo) are women," she said. "But the women don't practice in the same sense as the men. They don't actually do the treatments. They are more standoffish. They weren't surprised to see I was a vet, but they were surprised that I would get right in there and do the treatments." Jennifer's primary memories of the trip are of how well she was treated by the Egyptian people.

"There was no anti-American sentiment," she said. "Quite the contrary. Everyone was wonderful to me. There had never been an American veterinary student, male or female, come there before. They loved me. There is a good perception of America from what I could tell.

Jennifer found Egyptian society to be very different from the life she was accustomed to in the United States.

"It's a totally different way of living. The values are the same but in a different order. There is more emphasis on friendship and less materialism," she said.

As a veterinarian, she found the attitudes of the Egyptians toward their animals very different.

"The emphasis is on usefulness rather than pleasure," she said. There are mostly work animals. Even the dogs have a function. There is less emphasis on pets. When you treat an animal, it's their livelihood you are treating. There are different priorities."

Jennifer was impressed by the self-sufficiency of Egyptian farmers. She said the point was brought home to her when she was invited to lunch by a resident veterinarian in one of the villages.

"That morning they killed a chicken and a rabbit and that's what we ate," she said. "Everything came from that village. You can't go to the grocery store and just pick up what you need. We don't think about raising an animal and then eating it. Some of our values have been forgotten.'

Another difference Jennifer found was that veterinary care is provided by the government in Egypt. Vets are stationed in rural villages and care is provided at minimal cost to the farmers.

"There is a large need for a supply of veterinary care," she said. "Transportation isn't like it is here. Traveling just a few miles can be a problem for these people. Jennifer saw both extremes of life in Egypt. Some of the farmers erally lived with their animals. "One room would be for the family and one for the buffalo," she clean and modern. Everything was self-sufficient. They produced their own egg cartons for the eggs. They had their own feed mill. There are 15 veterinarians on the staff."

Jennifer got the red carpet treatment when she went to visit the Tonsey farm. The farmer arranged for an interpreter to take her through his operation and instructed him to answer any questions

But even if their resources were slimmer, Jennifer got a similar red carpet treatment when she visited the poorer rural villages.

"I'm sure many of those people had never seen a foreigner before," she said. "I would go to their homes and they would always want me to stay. They would always bring me a chair and run and buy me a Coke." Jennifer specializes in treating both small and large animals. She is currently working with two practices in Romulus and South Lyons. She said her decision to become a veterinarian came early in life and she considers herself lucky to have gained the opportunity to study animal medicine. Jennifer put herself through her

Researchers have concluded that a soup meal contains an average of 54.5 percent fewer calories than a meal that does not contain soup.

Soup retains all the vitamins and minerals that are otherwise leached out and lost when cooking water is thrown out. Soups can be prepared ahead: cold soups to allow ample time to become ice cold and be as good looking as they are nutritious; and hot soups to allow time for flavors to thoroughly

Beautiful rich flavorful soups containing all the nutrients of the original vegetables and meats. whether served as a first course or an entree, hot or cold, will give a special touch to pleasant dining and will delight you family as well as your guests.

The following are a selection of special soup recipes from the lowcalorie, low cholesterol, budgetwise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Spinach Velvet Soup

This soup is perfectly delicious served with corn whisps, or hot corn bread, or toasted leftover cornbread. If you prefer it thicker so that it is a main luncheon or supper dish, a couple of potatoes diced are extremely good in it, however they are not included in the calorie count. This soup is very smooth, and quite good.

2 Tblsp. margarine

1 small onion, minced i Thisp. flour

Few drops Worcestershire sauce 2-12 cups milk

1 bouillon cube 1 cup cooked spinach

Heat margarine in a saucepan. Add onion and cook a few minutes. Stir in flour and allow onion and flour to brown lightly. Sieve spinach with cooking water or puree in blender. Add spinach puree to milk and bouillon cube. Bring to a boil stirring constantly. Simmer two or three minutes. Season with salt and pepper. Serve hot or iced. Garnish with a slice of lemon in each bowl and a sprinkling of fresh grated nutmeg. Makes six servings.

I cup chopped onion

1-14 pound all purpose potatoes peeled and cut into 1-inch cubes

1 15 ounce can evaporated skimmed milk

1/8 tsp. freshly ground pepper 2 Tblsp. chopped fresh parsley

Rinse chicken and put into a four or five quart saucepan with the carrot, celery, unpeeled onion, one teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon each of the sage and thyme, the parsley springs, garlic, bay leaf and water. Bring to a boil over moderately high heat. Cover, reduce heat to moderately low and simmer 35 to 45 minutes, or until chicken is tender. Strain soup, remove chicken and let stand until cool, about 15 to 20 minutes.

Discard vegetable mixture. Skim off and discard fat from broth; return broth to pot. Add chopped onion: cover and simmer 15 minutes longer.

Remove and discard bones and skin from chicken; cut meat into bite-size chunks and add to broth in pot. Add milk, pepper, 1/4 teaspoon salt and remaining 1/4 teaspoon of sage and thyme; simmer five minutes longer — until chowder is hot. Stir in chopped parsley. Makes 6 servings.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

Editor's Note: A familiar face will the missing from the sidelines when North High takes the football field against Fraser this Saturday, Sept. 7. Dave Marstiller, active as a North High booster and in almost every aspect of Grosse Pointe sports, died early last month. His friends wrote the following tribute to Dave.

Dave Marstiller, one of the greatest friends of youth sports in the Grosse Pointe area, died on Aug. 2. His death from a heart attack came as he was preparing to serve another year as a board member of the Grosse Pointe North Athletic Booster Club.

A lifetime member of the Booster Club Board, Marstiller served two terms as president and was instrumental in the initiation and development of Swim-For-Sports, a fundraiser that has provided over $170,000 for North athletics. Six years ago, Dave's strong commitment to girls' competitive athletics led to the development of the Girls' Fall Sports Invitational, a day-long competition that draws many of Michigan's finest female athletes in tennis, basketball, cross country and swimming. Dave's timeliness and leadership shown in the development of this program has brought a great deal of recognition to the community of Grosse Pointe as a leader in women's high school

Marstiller's contributions were not limited to program concepts; he also was a fixture at North athletic events, working in the concession stand, helping with crowd control or serving in his favorite volunteer position — as a member of the football sideline "Chain Gang."

He also was widely known for his leadership in Babe Ruth baseball for almost 30 years. Marstiller served as president of the Woods/Shores League for 25 years and as a team manager for 30 years. As a manager, he coached the Grosse Pointe team to the state finals in 1962 and as district director, guided Grosse Pointe teams in competition at the district, state and national levels.

The lives of hundreds of young men were touched by Dave Marstiller's concern during their developmental years of baseball in Grosse Pointe. In 1983, the Woods city council named the Babe Ruth facility at Ghesquire Park the "Dave Marstiller Diamond.'

Marstiller also served the youth of Grosse Pointe during the 1960s when he coordinated the area's intra-church basketball league. And the Grosse Pointe Board of Education, which long recognized Dave's volunteer work on the schools' behalf, awarded him the Grosse Pointe Public School System Distinguished Volunteer Service Award for the third time.

"He was once a teacher. And I don't think you could ever take that out of him. He had so much to give," said North High athletic director Tom Gauerke.

During his years of service, Dave's wife Nancy and their four children, David, Diane, Mary Ann and Karen, participated in and shared his enthusiasm for youth sports in Grosse Pointe. Community supporters of Dave's caliber are not easily replaced. He will be missed, not just by the athletes who benefitted from his efforts, but by all those Dave Marstiller touched by his gregarious nature and his "welcome aboard" smile.

A memorial fund has been established in Dave Marstiller's name. Monies received will be spent on a community sports project(s) determined by the Marstiller family. Checks may be made payable to the Dave Marstiller Memorial Fund and sent to Mrs. Richard Cooper, 692 Perrien Place, Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich., 48236.

North eager for spot in playoffs

By Peggy O'Connor

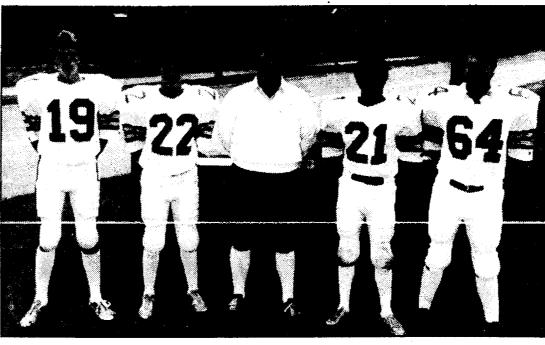

It'll be tough for North High to pull off a Class A playoff spot this season, what with two Class B teams on its schedule . . . but it's even tougher to convince the Norsemen of that. Heading into the 1985 football season this Saturday against Fraser, all the Norsemen can talk about is their seven-game unbeaten streak and their chances of repeating as Bi-County champion.

"The kids have their goals. They want to defend their title and they want to be the first team from North to make the playoffs and I can't argue with attitudes like that," says head coach Frank Sum-

North returns 28 from the team which followed up last year's 0-2 start with seven consecutive victories; that includes six starters each on offense and defense.

On offense, Sumbera will move speedy Mike Miller (5-91/2, 170 pounds) from tailback to fullback, just as he did with Will Secor last season. Miller joins Bill Smith in the backfield (he's 5-9, 162 pounds); both run the 40 in 4.8. Senior Craig Como has thrown well in practice and scrimmage, Sumbera says, and he'll have plenty of targets with wide receivers Jon Palazzo and Steve Pochmara (6-0, 165) or tight ends Rob Olds (6-2, 200) and Casey Quick (when he's not in the defensive secondary. Sumbera can also spot Craig Engel (6-4,

"I think our backfield is quicker than it has been. We don't have anyone with Secor's size, but Miller will be that size next year and he'll have the extra experience this year," Sumbera says.

Brian Bergeron (6-3, 235) and Keith Peltz (6-0, 200) return to the offensive line. Tom Shehab (6-5, 210) will play center, with Jim Montgomery (6-1, 180), at right guard and either sophomore Carl Schultz (6-3, 215) or Demanigold at the other guard.

Senior defensive tackle Rob Brumer (6-3, 210) will lead the defense. Rocky Villani (5-11, 195) is at the other tackle with David Queller (6-3, 230) and Jim Clapham (6-3, 205) at defensive end. Linebacking for North this fall are Greg Guest (6-0, 180) a returning starter, Rob Wells (5-10, 170), Matt Mourad (5-10, 167) and Dave Justice. Quick (6-1, 160) and safety Ken Straske (5-9, 145) make up the secondary with Paul Snow and Palazzo ready

"Our kicking game is going to come down to Como. He's been doing the punting, kickoffs and extra points so we'll have the experience back there," Sumbera says.

Devils look for new win streak

By Peggy O'Connor

"You can sit down and talk about the streaks we've had the last couple of years . . . but then you have to stop and remember that we have a two-game losing streak," says South High football coach Russ Hepner.

Indeed, South put together a streak of 25 consecutive regular season victories over the past three seasons . . . only to see it end with two straight losses in 1984. But that really isn't going to get in the way of Hepner's plans for South in 1985.

"It isn't something we've dwelled upon. I imagine I'll sit them down this week and remind them that we've got a two-game losing streak to end and a win streak to get started on," he adds.

Helping to do that will be 22 seniors and two juniors who return from the 1984 squad which opened that year with four consecutive shutouts and helped lead the Devils to a 7-2 record and a share in its third straight Eastern Michigan League championship. Split end Dave Arnold, tight end Tim Hudson, tailback Chris Astfalk, full-back Jay Henze and back Tony Wisniewski will combine to form what Hepner calls one of the fastest offensive backfields in South his-

Football is back at ULS

By Peggy O'Connor

Varsity football is back at ULS. University Liggett School, which failed to field a varsity football team in 1984 — the first year since 1915 the school did not play football - returns to the gridiron this fall, playing a junior varsity schedule.

Leading the Knights in 1985 is first-year head coach Bob Newvine, 27, a former member of the now-defunct Michigan Panthers of the United States Football League. Newvine is also ULS's new physical education instructor and comes a Crosse Points by ways of Sogi to Grosse Pointe by way of Saginaw's Eisenhower and Arthur Hill high schools, where he coached at the freshman level for three sea-

"It's a challenge, definitely. Our first couple of practices were a lit-tle hairy ... but these kids are quick learners. They have some football smarts. An offense that took Saginaw Arthur Hill three weeks to pick up, these kids picked up in three days," Newvine says.

The Knights will have to be quick learners this season - with a 20man squad, most of the players will play both offense and defense. Among the players Newvine is counting on this year are Pahl Zinn, a junior tackle; Marty Tibbitts, a senior guard; Max Smith, a sophomore running back; sophomore center Lars Knudson and senior fullback/defensive back Oscar Alcantara, a small but talented returner from ULS's last varsity football squad. (ULS's JV opponents have been informed of the presence of juniors and seniors on the squad).

Junior quarterback Bill Listman will lead the Knights' veer offense, which Newvine says is patterned after that of Saginaw Arthur Hill. He hopes to model the defense after that employed by Brother Rice's Al Fracassa.

"What we're trying to do here is get the kids to play good fundamental football and get the program back on its feet. And we'd like to do some winning along the way, Newvine says.

"The kids are more than excited . . and that's great.

Stretching for at least 15 minutes before exercising increases flexibility in areas most susceptible to injury. Here are simple warm-up exercises performed by Dwight Gaal for those tender spots; achilles tendon, quadriceps and hamstrings. Quadriceps stretch, top left; lie down on a hard surface. Grasp your left ankle with your left hand and pull your heel toward your buttocks. Hold 10 to 15 seconds. Repeat with your right leg. Repeat five to 10 times each leg. Achilles tendon and groin stretch, bottom left; with toes on front foot pointed forward and toes on back foot pointed to the side, take a giant stride forward, keeping the lead leg bent. Keep the back leg straight, heel on the ground. Place both hands on the knee of flexed leg. Lean forward, keeping head up and back straight. Hold for 30 to 60 seconds and return to starting position. Three sets for each leg are recommended. Hamstring and groin stretch, top and bottom right; place one foot on a stationary object, waist high or slightly lower. Bend first to uplifted leg until you feel a stretch; hold. Bend to leg on the ground, until that stretching is felt; hold. Repeat with other leg. Don't overstretch, because that leads to decreased flexibility, pain and possible damage.

ning and passing game in gear.

'The big question mark will be our defense - will it measure up to the fine defensive teams we've had in the past? We lost three of the front four on defense — Jeff Van Tassle is the lone returner at tackle on our 4-3 defense — and we've got an entirely new defensive perimeter to work with," Hepner says.

There's no question mark as far as the EML is concerned — Hepner says it'll be as tough as it always is. "Port Huron, L'Anse Creuse North, Mount Clemens and East Detroit will be outstanding. We want to defend our title and there are five teams in the league with very good personnel. I look at being one of our primary goals. I nold, quarterback Tim Overbey the scores from last year - we should have more than ample opportunities to get both South's runbeat L'Anse Creuse North, 9-7, and Port Huron, 20-14, and Roseville. which didn't win much, beat cochampion Mt. Clemens, 3-0 — and I look for things to be about the same this year," he adds.

Does he like the competitiveness? "Nah. I like it better when we beat everybody," Hepner jokes.

"No, really, we look at our schedule and we look at realistically defending our league title and playing over .500. In a league like ours, winning more than you lose can sometimes be very difficult. And, we've got over 130 kids in uniform this year, counting our freshmen and we have to look at giving them a good, quality football program as think we will be able to do that.

"Win or lose, we've got a great bunch of seniors. I don't think there's been one who missed a practice. We're extremely happy when the seniors - the guys we count on to lead our program - are that motivated and enthusiastic,' Hepner says.

Warm up before exercise

After weeks of training you finally feel ready. But before you lace up your running shoes for your first running race, here are a few tips for race-day preparation, according to Dwight Gaal, exercise physiologist and director of Bon Secours Hospital Health and Fitness Center, St. Clair Shores.

The Health and Fitness Center is sponsoring "Run the Shores '85," a 5K and 10K road race, Saturday, Gaal advises that first-time racers first get a physician's approval to run, then start with an easy race.

'A first-time runner could easily finish a five-kilometer (5K) run. Just concentrate on endurance, and don't worry about winning. Above all, don't be self-conscious about being the last to finish the race," he says. Five kilometers is about three miles.

On the day of the race the novice runner should be self-confident and physically prepared. Despite weeks of training a few simple stretching exercises are necessary to prevent injury.

On the day of the race, a new runner should warm up by running at a lower intensity for about five minutes before the run. This activity causes blood to pump faster, increases the body temperature, and warms up the muscles," says Gaal. "Then simple stretches before and after the race allow greater flexibility. It is important to stretch Achilles tendons, quadriceps, hamstrings, and groin and lower back muscles," he adds.

Gaal, who has a master's in exercise physiology, recommends drinking at least two 8-ounce glasses of water 20 to 30 minutes before race time, and drinking at every water station along the course if the weather is warm and humid.

Avoid heavy meals the night before the race. "Since you will be running on what you eat the night before, make your meals high in carbohydrates and starch," says Gaal. Suggested menus include pancakes or pasta.

Running a race in warm weather also requires special attention. To prevent chafing, irritation caused from skin rubbing against skin or clothing, Gaal advises using large amounts of petroleum jelly to decrease friction.

Petroleum jelly can also be used on the feet to prevent blisters. "In warm weather, the less clothing the runner wears, the better — within legal limits, of course," adds Gaal.

Another part of dressing appropriately to prevent injury is properly fitted shoes. Runners should choose shoes that have a three quarters and one inch elevation in the heel, and have a firm heel counter that maintains the rear of the foot. The sole of the running shoe should be made of EVA, or similiar material which helps to absorb the shock for the runner's feet, legs and back. "A proper shoe length is very important," says Gaal. "When you stand in the shoe, you should have a half an inch between the end of your toe and the end of the shoe. This extra space protects you from damaging your toes when you run for long distances.'

Finally, after the race, it is crucial to cool down slowly. Research now indicates that people who do not cool down sufficiently after a race are susceptible to postworkout heart attacks.

"The worst thing to do after running a race is to come to a complete stand-still. Runners should keep walking until their heart rate has decreased to its usual resting level," says Gaal.

"Run The Shores '85," is the only running event in St. Clair Shores this year, Gaal notes. Runners interested in the mental and physical challenge of the 5K and 10K road race, should call the Bon Secours Hospital Health and Fitness Center at 779-7040 for further details.

GPHA plans 1985-86 season

The Grosse Pointe Hockey Association is gearing up for the 1985-86 hockey season. Last year, more than 400 local boys and girls participated in the GPHA's comprehensive program of skating instruction and team play; the GPHA promises more "hockey fun for kids" this season.

Former GPHA players will be contacted and may re-register by mail. All newcomers should attend one of two registration days: from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays, Sept. 12 or 19 at the Grosse Pointe Community Rink on Canyon between Warren and Mack. Children will be asked to fill out a registration form; first-time registrants will be asked to bring a birth certificate.

The annual registration fee is $50 for the first player in the family and $30 each for the second and the third. Additional charges for ice time are divided equally among all team members.

Who can play? The GPHA admits any child 5 or older. Teams will be available in the following age brackets: Mite (5 to 9), Squirt (10-11), Pee Wee (12-13), Bantam (14-15), Midget (16-17) and Junior (18-20). Participants do not have to live in Grosse Pointe to play; many GPHA players come from various communities around the metro

Registrants also need not know how to skate. Many new players have never skated before. The emphasis of the GPHA program is on teaching skating skills and team play. All on-ice activities are supervised. All coaches are selected and approved and reviewed by a coaches review board. Safety is a top priority in the GPHA program, which has not had a serious injury in six consecutive seasons.

Further information on the GPHA program may be obtained by calling Bill Alcott, director of registration, at 779-7676.

Awareness' week 'Good Health

Next week, Sept. 8 through 14, has been designated "Good Health Awareness Week" by Governor James Blanchard, Good Health Awareness Week activities, including the Sept. 8 "Blue Zoo 10K - A Women's Run for the Animals, Sept. 14 Blue Cross/Blue Shield Triathlon and a free booklet giveaway, are being sponsored by Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan to make Michigan residents more aware of good health practices and preventive health maintenance.

"There hasn't been a time in this century when Americans were more concerned about their health than they are now, explains John C. McCabe, chief executive officer of Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan. "That concern extends beyond regular medical check-ups to wanting to learn more about proper nutrition, stress reduction and physical fitness for themselves and théir children.'

As part of Health Awareness Week, Blue Cross is offering free booklets. "Train Smart for Jog-ging. The Healthful Way to Get and Stay in Shape" and "Put Some Pep In Your Step" — Walking for Pleasure and Exercise," to Michigan residents. To receive free copies. call 225-6249.

Easter Seals get golf benefit

The first Easter Seal Golf Benefit is set for Tuesday, Sept. 24 from 11:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the Burroughs Farms Golf Club in Brighton. The $100 cost per participant includes use of a driving range, lunch, 18 holes of golf plus power cart, cocktail service, steak dinner with trimmings, awards and raffle

All participants will receive a golf shirt and visor. There will be a hole-in one contest with a $500 cashprize, a closest-to-pin contest with a $100 cash prize, and trophies for the longest drive and for the top three finishing teams.

That familiar looking background frames the scene which took place each day of the past month - South players getting ready for the 1985 football season.

He searches for the pot of gold

By Nancy Parmenter

Erik Erikson is a man with a ream.

Although he is a successful manufacturer's representative, he can't still the urge to sing. A veteran of four or five attention-getting musical parodies, countless jingles, impressions, and a couple of serious gigs, Erikson is now preparing a tape to send to New York and Los Angeles in the hope of impressing some advertising mag-

"The idea is to show your range and versatility," he explained, fiddling with the buttons of his tape recorder. Sure enough, hard sell, soft sell, pitches to the young and the old pour out of the speaker. "I'd be happy singing jingles the rest of my life," he said. "You just play all day, like an otter."

What Erikson does to get ready for that life of fun doesn't sound like play. He practices a minimum of two hours a day in the $16,000 studio in one room of his house. He sings and talks, acting out mini-situations for imaginary commercials and finally putting some of it on tape.

The 32-year-old Erikson, formerly of the Woods, has attained a modicum of local fame on morning drive-time radio. The singer of the immortal "If This is Culture, Give Me a Club," Erikson has also spoofed Julio Iglesias and Willie Nelson, and when he sang a parody of Neil Diamond's "Play Me" on the Dick Purtan show ("Hipple's my name/Football's my game/Don't try to run/With Danielson/Play me"), delighted fans called for extravaganza. He also got a regular gig at Archibald's in Birmingham, doing impressions of Diamond, Iglesias, and Nat "King"

He was featured on PM Magazine and performed at the Premier Center for a Kelly and Company

"When you look the way I do and you come out sounding like Nat Cole, people turn right around on their barstools," Erikson said. "I love doing Nat Cole—the man who could really sing. I love the way he handled his voice. Neil Diamond doesn't use his voice right; he sings with his throat instead of his diameter."

Erikson should know. He does an impression of Diamond that he says is so accurate it "freaked (Diamond) right out."

But Erikson wants to put the impressions behind him. He is searching now for his own voice, his own style. "I feel like a kid who wanted to be a professional baseball player. Once you're on the team, then you want to be in the All-Stars."

The All-Stars in the music business are on the coasts. Erikson is in the fortunate position of working for himself, so if his tape strikes gold, he is ready to fly east or west to make commercials.

"If I could get somebody to write me just one hit song..." he mused. He has performed his impressions at conventions and knows how the adulation feels. "When 6,000 people leap to their feet and applaud, it's an unbelievable

Detroit-area radio listeners hear Erikson's velvet tones often. He does the voice-overs for Honda, K mart, Hite Photos, and 7-Eleven, He has done on-camera commercials, too, but likes radio better.

"With the cameras, it takes so long," he grumbled. "It's like the Army — hurry up and wait. It takes six or eight hours to make one. But radio, I can knock one off in 25 minutes. You can go in there with paint on your face and a grubby beard and you sound sweet."

Erikson says he dreams of doing more commercials. "If I could have a wife and kids and a quarter of a million bucks and sing jingles, I'd be happy."

The guy isn't kidding. He says there are people out there pulling down that kind of money for voice-overs. But "it takes money to promote yourself. I've done it without money — it works, but it's hard."

Agencies warned him that it's

Agencies warned him that it's hard (read, "practically impossible") to break into commercials with jingles and voice-overs, but that got Erikson's dander up. "When people tell me 'never,' that's all I need," he said.

A lucky meeting in a class with

A lucky meeting in a class with Mike Carrol, a veteran voice-overer, gave Erikson the polish he needed to go with his natural voice and acting ability. "He took two weeks out of his busy schedule and taught me voice. He really got me into the business — gave me an education you can't buy. He taught me booth etiquette — what the producer wants you to extrapolate from the material."

Having a mom who believed in him didn't hurt either. "She was always asking me to cut a tape," he said. "Finally I went to a studio and did nine songs. It cost me $126 and it was worth it."

The pull of entertaining is strong, even in a business littered with dead bodies. Erikson says it's always worth one more try."

ways worth one more try."
"I know I'm going to die some day," he said, "but when you get something on tape, you're immortal."

Erik Erikson

Doug Phillips, left, of Renaud Road in Grosse Pointe, and Dennis Wickline, right, serve Harvey, the story of an invisible 10-foot rabbit, as the first offering of the dinner theater season, opening Friday, Sept. 13, at the Golden Lion Restaurant, 22380 Moross, Detroit.

Harvey opens at Golden Lion

Harvey, Mary Chase's comedy, opens the fourth season of Dinner Theater by Dennis Wickline Productions, Inc. at the Golden Lion Restaurant, 22380 Moross, in Detroit.

The comedy opens Friday, Sept. 13, and plays every Friday and Saturday evening through Saturday, Oct. 26.

Harvey is the story of Elwood P. Dowd and his relationship with a 10-foot Pooka, a mythical rabbit. "Total Entertainment" — combining the menu and show in theme will continue this season. The menu feature for Harvey is a "Mock Rabbit" dinner.

Harvey will be directed by Jane Vreeland, a longtime Grosse Pointe resident who directed the 1984 production of I Do, I Do at the Golden Lion.

Price per person is $19.95 which includes dinner, show, tax and gratuity. Season tickets run $84.75, a savings of $15 per person if purchased by Sept. 6. All performances are Friday and Saturday evenings. Cocktails are at 7 p.m. with dinner at 7:30 p.m. and the Show following dessert

On Friday, Jan. 10, Educating Rita by Willy Russell, will open and will run through Saturday, Feb. 15. Educating Rita is the story of Frank, an English tutor who drinks, and Rita, a hairdresser hungry for education. It will be directed by Michele Karl, an awardwinning local theatrical director. The menu feature for Educating Rita will be an English Dinner.

Veronica's Room, a chilling mystery by Ira Levin opens Friday, Feb. 21, and runs through Saturday, April 5. This play is a spider's web entwining fantasy and reality. Susan Kerner is induced to impersonate Veronica, long-dead daughter of the Brabissants. But once dressed in Veronica's clothes, Susan finds herself locked in the role - and locked in Veronica's room. Or is she Veronica, in 1935, pretending to be an imaginary Susan. Directing Veronica's Room will be Denyse Wickline, a recent graduate of Northwood Institute and the recipient of the Northwood Theatre Award and the Arts in Business Award. She also participated in the critically acclaimed production of Veronica's Room presented last season by Midland Players. Menu feature for this show is a Mystery Dinner.

The season concludes with Gilbert and Sullivan's classic comic operetta The Mikado. The Mikado will feature the Wickets, the Wickline Performing Puppets, in their third Gilbert and Sullivan production by Dennis Wickline Productions at the Golden Lion. The Mikado tells the story of Nanki-Poo, son of the Mikado of Japan disguised as a wandering minstral, and his love for Yum-Yum, ward to the Lord High Executioner of Titipu. There is also Pooh-Bah, lord high everything else, and Pish-Tush, a noble lord. The menu feature will be chicken Mikado.

There is a seafood alternate available for each menu feature listed if requested at the time of reservation. Gift tickets are available. Group rates and special performances for groups during the week are also available. The Golden Lion Restaurant is located at 22380 Moross, near Mack, in Detroit across from St. John Hospital. #### Thanks, Bruce Whew, wasn't that a party! I'm talking, of course, about the recent Bruce Springsteen con-cert out at the Silverdome. Before the concert began, while 70,000 fans were chanting in the aisles, Bruce presented the Gleaners Community Food Bank of Greater Detroit, the Capuchin Soup Kitchen, and the Oakland Food Bank with checks of $10,000 each.

Springsteen, who regularly challenges his audiences to become committed to bettering America, has made similar do-nations to local food banks and non-profit organizations throughout his U.S. tour.

Both Gene Gonya, executive director of the Gleaners, and Hickson, manager of the Capuchin Soup Kitchen, were impressed with the donation and Springsteen himself.

"The checks were presented just prior to the show," Gonya said. "He spent about 15 minutes with us and seemed like just an average Joe. He's concerned about the big issues in this country. He's not at all self-absorbed like Prince or Madonna seem to Gonya said he stayed for the entire rock concert, his first ever, and was amazed at Springsteen's performance.

"What energy!" said Gonya. "The man never stopped for four hours, with the exception of one 20-minute intermission. He makes aerobic instructors look like wimps!'

Both Gonya and Hickson hope the area's young people will accept Springsteen's challenge to become involved and will attend a "Springsteen Friends for the Hungry" meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 17, at the Capuchin Third Order Hall, 1740 Mount Elliott.

The meeting will concern itself with helping these organizations meet the needs of Detroit's hungry

The Boss would approve.

One really to go

It wasn't your average police arrest. A Woods officer on stationary radar patrol on Sunningdale Road last week spotted a Oldsmobile convertible tooling down the street with five young males in it.

Two boys were from Grosse Pointe, two were from Harper Woods and the fifth was the large ceramic Big Boy from the Mack Avenue Elias Brothers restaurant

He took up the entire back

Naturally, the Woods biggest boy in blue stopped the car and ended up issuing a citation to the driver to driving with an obstructed view.

Oh yes, he also escorted them back to the restaurant where Big Boy was reinstalled at his place of honor.

I thought this sort of thing went on only when school got out for the summer.

Strike up the bands

If you've got a case of happy feet, then the New Center Park, Second Avenue at West Grand Boulevard, is the place for you this afternoon and evening.

It'll be the season finale of 'Dancin' in the Street," a free concert series presented by Stroh's and River Place. There'll be music, merriment and munchies available for all and music for every possible

Alexander Zonjic, a contemporary jazz flutist, will perform from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.; Steve King and the Dittilies, an oldies band that has opened for the likes of Ricky Nelson, Brian Wilson and Chubby Checker, will perform from 6:50 to 7:50 p.m. (Continued on Page 15A)

Find parking, council tells Punch developers

By Nancy Parmenter

The developers of the Punch and Judy went to the Farms council with a proposal Monday and were told to try again. The council told developers Robert Edgar and Richard Crawford that they must make a greater effort to locate parking spaces.

"You're asking council to put blinders on and ignore the prob-lem," said Farms Mayor James Dingeman of the parking. "It was a problem two years ago. The merchants were up in arms about parking. It's a wonder there wasn't blood on Kercheval.

The developers protested that there is little risk to the city if the parking turns out to be inadequate. The landlord has the greatest interest of all in adequate parking, Edgar said, with Crawford adding that "the risk is ours."

Project architect Charles Merz, of Shervish, Vogel, Merz, told the council that its parking demands were too limiting to developers, many of whom lack the finances up front to provide prior parking in the quantity demanded by the city ordinance. "You'll have a hulk sit-ting there for a long time," he said.

Edgar said he would be willing to keep trying. "We'll do anything that makes economic sense," he said, "but there aren't many op-

Edgar and Crawford had asked the council for a 100 percent variance from the parking required by the ordinance. According to the square footage of the proposed Punch and Judy office and retail complex, there should be 76 parking spaces available. They have counted 152 spaces nearby in the library, school, and Richard lots and along the street.

However, the Richard lot is only available on a 14-year lease and the library has declared its parking off-limits except to library patrons. Edgar said he had talked to school officials, who are unwilling to consider additional parking on the high school property.

not to expect any miracles." Edgar attitude is 'we'll deal with the said he expects discussions to continue this week.

Various solutions to the problem have been considered and discarded, Crawford said. Purchasing residential property behind the Punch or razing the commercial building beside it are expensive options that would only provide a total of 48 spaces. Parking on the currently residential property would require rezoning by the city. Crawford said they had even entertained, then abandoned, the idea of providing parking on the ground level of the theater and putting the shops above.

Edgar said he doesn't see either school parking or razing of residential property as real possibilities. He told the council that he has circulated a petition favoring the variance and that, of 100 people asked to sign it, only one had declined. "I don't know how we're going to hang cars in the air," he

Councilwoman Nancy Waugaman, a member of the council committee working directly with Crawford and Edgar on the problem, said she believes that "everyone in this room" favors the project, but that it is the responsibility of the developer to provide parking.

"It's no less than we're asking of others," she said. "You have to come up with some parking or there isn't anything to talk about."
Resident Paul D'Angelo, speaking for the Moran-McMillan Steering Committee, a group concerned about neighborhood traffic congestion, asked the council not to "ignore the parking problem project by project," referring to the tem-porary variance recently granted to the Bologna-Standard Federal project (which will result in the construction of the complex prior to the construction of a companon parking structure) and the 100 percent permanent variance granted last winter to the Grosse Pointe News for a building now under construction on the Hill.

"We have to recognize that increased business on the Hill will create traffic in the neighborhoods," D'Angelo said.

Dingeman committed the city administration to continue participation in the search for a solution. (Continued on Page 15A)

. it was humid and it was fun. That's the consensus of the thousands of persons who attended the birthday bash Sunday to celebrate Grosse Pointe Woods' 35th anniversary as an incorporated city. The parade made its way from Mack and Vernier roads to the city hall, where the throngs kept cool with ice cream, soft drinks and the large shade trees the Woods is known for. The parade was made up of clowns, marching bands, antique cars and a detachment from the Detroit Police Department's Mounted Division. For more photos, turn to page 15A.

City public safety contract talks stalled

By Tom Greenwood

Contract talks between Grosse Pointe City and its public safety officers have been relegated to binding arbitration, 15 months after the current contract expired.

Bitterness and hard feelings may be a side effect of the stalled talks, according to a spokesman for the city's command officers.

The contract expired on July 1, 1984," said Detective Sgt. John Drummond. "The contract for the patrol officers, that's everyone below the rank of sergeant, expired as well. The city has talked exten-"They said they are willing to sively with them, but not with the command officers. It's like their patrolmen and break the back of the command officers.' Our position is that we'll wait until they talk with us, but we just won't have a contract until then.

According to Drummond, the supervisors are asking for four major contract demands - a seven percent across-the-board pay raise; full health benefits for retired public safety personnel; a 14-percent pay differential between ranks; and more representation of the city's pension board.

"We had one meeting with the city in May or June," Drummond said. "We didn't even want to talk economic issues. We just wanted to talk. Instead their man wrote $500 on a tiny scrap of paper and tossed it across the table at us. 'That's all you're going to get,' he said. I don't call that negotiating.

Drummond said the supervisor officers wanted fully paid hospitalization for retired personnel because their position was that the retired members "can't go out and find another job at their ages. And if they did, they sure wouldn't pay

Arbitration necessary

"The city is offering very limited benefits," he said. "They want copay, no prescriptions, no dental and no eyeglasses. As for pay differential between ranks, we're asking for a 14 percent difference. Right now it's seven percent. I think in the Woods it's over 20 per-

Drummond said the public safety officers would like more representation on the pension board, an idea which he said "scares" the city. "We have to admit that the present board has been doing a great job," said Drummond. "But what about five years or more down the road? Currently there are five members on the board; one person representing public safety; one from the DPW; two councilmen; and one citizen appointed by the

"Thomas Kressbach, the city manager and Dennis Foran, the city treasurer, also sit as nonvoting members of the board. They can't vote, but they can make suggestions. They're always going to see things from the city's point of view. Their investment choices so far have been good, but what about after some of our guys retire? If investments go sour and lose, at least we'd like more of a chance to have a say-so in those investments.

Drummond said that in the last contract public safety officers received a five percent pay raise for 1981; four percent in 1982 and six percent for 1983-84. The contract did not go into arbitration.

"We want to be fair," he said. "We're willing to negotiate, but $500 scribbled on a piece of paper isn't negotiating.

City Manager Thomas Kress-

bach declined to talk specifics of the city's counter-offers, but confirmed that the patrol supervisors' requests were essentially accur-

"I believe they pretty much parallel what the patrol-officers wanted as well," he said. "They filed for arbitration. These talks have gone on for a protracted period, but that's not too unusual in the Grosse

"I believe the Woods just recently ratified their latest contract and many times another city will lay back and see how their neighbors did. Sort of see which way the wind is blowing.'

Kressbach said he wasn't present when the "$500 offer scribbled on a piece of paper" was made, but conceded he had felt a little tension lately that was previously absent.

"In the past few weeks I'd walk through their department and there'd be jokes about the contract," Kressbach said. "Lately things have been a little more serious. No one wants to dredge up old history or create ill will. We're a small family, and families don't

Board votes to cut December tax bills

By Mike Andrzejczyk

What will you do with the money, Grosse Pointe?

The Board of Education Monday night rolled back its tax levy .1 percent for this year, which will mean about a $2 savings for the average homeowner in the school district. whose home has a state equalized valuation of $50,000.

This is the second time in the past four years that the school board has rolled back taxes. In 1982-83, the board adopted a similar rollback, according to the administration.

Superintendent John Whritner presented two proposals to the board at the Monday meeting; the first for a 1.8 percent tax increase which was used in developing this school year's budget and the second for the rollback.

Originally, the board discussed having no tax increase this year, Whritner said. When the administration finished its calculations, however, it found it could offer the rollback this year, which the superintendent recommended for adop-

The board acted on the motion for approval by Vice President Vincent LoCircero - seconded by trustee Carl Anderson — with little discussion.

"It's been discussed," quipped trustee Joan Hanpeter, referring to reports in the past couple of months that the board was contemplating holding the line on taxes this year.

LoCicero, who with board Secretary Fred Adams had pushed for no tax increase, was praised by board President Jon Gandelot for first raising the subject.

The new rate will be used on the December tax bills.

Eligibility requirements: Motivators or misguided?

Should Grosse Pointe public school students have to maintain a minimum grade standard before they can participate in sports and other extracurricular activities? That's the question asked recently by a school board trustee and one the Board of Education may have to answer in coming months.

It's a question already answered affirmatively by at least half the school districts in the state for their sports teams, according to the Michigan High School Athletic Association. It's also a question that North and South High School athletic directors Tom Gauerke and Chuck Hollosy and North Principal John Kastran have the same answer for. They'll discuss it with the board if asked, but they don't think the higher standards are needed in Grosse Pointe, where parental pressure to achieve academically keeps kids working in the classroom, they say Doing the asking is trustee Carl Anderson, who, after reviewing ibility standard information, says he thinks the system may be missing an opportunity to scholastically motivate its athletes and those who take part in after-school activities.

The MHSAA standard requires students to pass four classes a semester in order to be eligible for sports. Students also have to be enrolled full-time to play sports. That standard is in effect for all schools that join the association.

"I know we meet the minimum academic requirements of the association and go beyond that in some areas . . . (but) I think the first mission of a school system is the education of its students," Anderson says. "If an academic requirement can be a motivational factor for some students, then I think we should pursue that.

He adds he plans to talk with other board members to see what they think about the idea.

The association's standard is meant to be a minimum for eligibility, according to MHSAA Director Verne North. The association's board recently increased the stan-MHSAA minimum academic elig- dard from passing three to passing four classes, defeating an attempt to establish a minimum grade point average, he adds.

"The primary reason for the change was the board's recognition of the need to maintain a minimum standard that reflected the enrollment patterns of the high school programs," North says. When the three-class rule was in effect, most high school programs offered students four classes. North says. With more classes offered to students, the association hiked the standard to keep the minimum "a little more in the ballpark," he adds

In 1983, the MHSAA surveyed member districts and found that 47 percent had standards for eligibility higher than those set by the association, North says. Another 27 percent said they were thinking about increasing their eligibility requirements while a similar number reported feeling some pressure to hike standards.

Even though the survey was conducted before the association increased its minimum standard, North says that probably half the systems in the state have eligibility standards higher than MHSAA's minimum. The push for academics has fueled that drive, he adds.

It was parental concern for good athletes with poor academic performance that led the Benton Harbor schools to adopt requirements tougher than the MHSAA, according to athletic coordinator Herb

Since the 1981-82 school year, a Benton Harbor student has to have a 2.0 overall grade point average to play sports, Quade says. Failure to maintain that average means a student is ineligible for the next semester and the student is enrolled in a tutorial program as well, he

Athletes are also monitored periodically, with coaches handing out academic progress cards to players that must be returned the next day after being filled out by their teachers. The athletic office then publishes a list of students ineligible for the coming game, those who are just getting by and those who have met the standard, Quade

Although there is a problem with contro! at the middle school level. the system has worked out well for the district, Quade says. It also has put in an appeal policy to help some students who, for special reasons, may have missed the mark, he

"We are more and more satisfied with the way things are going," Quade says. "We still think we have a couple loopholes, but we're working on them.

When the standard was originally developed, an overall grade point average was adopted because of the number of vocational education majors taking part in sports programs, Quade says. There are worries about grades in vocational classes carried over to offset low academic grades, but the system's looking at the problem, he adds. Still, there are no "Mickey Mouse" courses allowed, he adds. The school system has a core curriculum that needs to be met for graduation.

"We're very happy with the program," Quade adds. "More and (Continued on Page 17A)
