Wire fire

Two park police officers were on patrol recently when they started smelling smoke.

Inside their car.

It seems a "radio siren modular head" in the dashboard short-circuited, causing lots of damage to the wiring in the dashboard of their 1985 Chevrolet.

Since they were close to home, they parked hastily near the city's fire station and let the smoke eaters put the inside out. It's not much of a story, but then it wasn't much of a fire.

Jose can u c?

It was a dream come true for David Carroll, of Whittier Road. A performer with Grosse Pointe Theatre and the Judelaires, Dave has had one all-consuming passion and goal for the last three years: to sing the national anthem at a Tiger game.

Well, old Dave got his chance last Saturday, when the Bengals took on the Baltimore Orioles.

We would have had this story in last week's paper so everyone could go down and cheer Dave on, but he didn't get notification until shortly before the game.

Among those cheering was Dave's daughter, Katy, a sophomore at Michigan State University.

Interestingly enough, Dave toils for a company called Franklin-Whittier, a training and development firm that helps individuals set and reach their goals.

Whatever they said to Dave, it looks like it worked.

The lean green

It's a puzzlement to us here at the Grosse Pointe News: Somebody sometime early Thursday morning crept into the newsroom and left an envelope addressed to Sports Editor Peggy O'Connor on the desk of News Editor Pat Paholsky.

Once delivered and opened by Peggy, out tumbled a $20, $10 and $1 bill. Inside was a printed note: "Surprise! Enjoy!"

We don't know who the benefactor is and moreover, why it was $31. An even $30 would seem to make more sense.

Peggy debated about half a second over the ethics of taking this money, then rammed it into her purse.

She says thanks, whoever you are.

P.S. To whoever you are. My desk is the first one you see when you next creep into the newsroom. Hint, hint.

Sign it stolen

I suppose it was bound to happen. We just received a call from Joe Fromm who told us someone stole the "Thou Shalt Not Park" sign he and wife Beverly donated to St. Paul Catholic Church.

Luckily, three signs in all were donated by the Fromms, so there's still hope.

What's next? A "Thou shalt not steal the thou shalt not park" sign?

Feeling inadequate

It was a story that definitely got my attention, I can tell you. I'm referring to an article that ran in last Thursday's business section of the Detroit Free Press.

The headline read: "Business women on sex: Once is not enough."

It concerned a survey taken of businesswomen ages 25-45, with a median income of $39,000, on the idea of "starting and finishing the day in a warm and emotional way."

Forty-four percent said they'd like sex twice a day, 26 percent once a day and 18 percent said less than daily. What absolutely floored us here at the paper was that 12 percent said they'd like it

Alger House celebrates 75th anniversary

By Nancy Parmenter

Ghostly footsteps in the old Alger house, The Moorings, are by now covered up by the lively flesh-and-blood tramping of the visitors to 2,000 annual events at today's Alger House, the heart of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

But this year marks the 75th anniversary of the Italian Renaissance villa, which for 20 years echoed to the shenanigans of three Alger children and the more dignified socializing of their elders. The annual fall open house at the War Memorial this Sunday will celebrate the home's diamond jubilee.

A corps of 28 docents donates time to conducting visitors through the Alger House. They will be out in force — and in period costume — for the Sept. 22 activities.

"We have so many activities at the War Memorial that it's hard to squeeze in tours," explains Irene Blatchford, chairman of the docents. "Sometimes we have to peek into rooms from other rooms. We have many groups who like to take a tour when they're here for some other function like lunch."

What the docents have to show is a house furnished with donations from the community. Almost nothing from the Alger family remains, but Grosse Pointers have been generous with 16th century chests, desks and tapestries. For lovers of European antiques, the tour is a pleasure.

A historian in search of traces of the Algers can be a bit frustrated. None of the Alger family remain in the area, Blatchford believes. Most of their furniture, books, photographs and memorabilia have gone with them. Records, as the house skipped from the family to the art institute to the library to the War Memorial, are fragmented.

A visitor is tantalized by the gleaming brass andirons in the gigantic "walk-in" fireplace in the library. Although there are no records to prove it, Blatchford says she is pretty certain they belonged to the family.

"We found them out in the carriage house in a pile of debris," she said. "They were just black, but we recognized they were the real McCoy and we brought them in and polished them up."

The shining figures stand three feet tall inside the unused library fireplace, which is, alas, itself a fake, as Mrs. Alger loved the original so much that she took it with her when she moved to her new home on Provencal Road.

Upstairs, the airy, sunlit corner bedroom that was Mrs. Alger's is now given over to the Garden Center. French doors open onto a flat roof where Mrs. Alger liked to walk and admire her formal garden. A portion of it can still be seen, exactly as in its original state. It once stretched to Lakeshore Road, but has had to give way before the practical exigencies of War Memorial parking.

Turning the other way, Mrs. Alger would have seen the green extending down to the shore of the lake. On Sundays, the family liked to entertain friends with bowling on the green, daughter Josephine once reminisced. The men bowled, while the ladies in their fancy Sunday dresses admired their prowess.

Now the view includes the Trial Gardens, planted and maintained by a group of garden clubs under the rubric of the Garden Center. In the middle of the colorful plots lies the original millstone from the mill at Windmill Pointe.

The three children's bedrooms are scattered strategically near their parents' and governess' rooms so that the watchful eye of authority could maintain order, Blatchford said.

"Josephine had the room next to her mother," she said. "Evidently she was quite a daredevil — a tomboy. She liked to traipse around on the roof."

The lively Josephine was married from the Great Hall, the only Alger child to be married in the home. She continued to live in the area, keeping a proprietary eye on goings-on at the house.

Josephine inherited her mother's love of gardening. In later years, convinced that The Moorings' gardens weren't up to snuff, she made frequent trips to the back yard, carrying in loads of manure in her Rolls Royce.

The family parties entertained some of the great names of the day. The Joys visited there, as did the Wrights. Russell Alger, son of a Michigan governor and briefly president of Packard Motor, took a great interest in aviation and flew at Kitty Hawk with the Wrights.

"He died rather young," Blatchford mused. (He died at 58.) "She outlived him by 32 years. But after he died, she didn't want to stay in the house."

The Algers enjoyed furnishing their home. In the grand tradition of old Grosse Pointe, they went to Europe looking for decorative arts and found a whole room. The billiard room is an old English pub, with solid wood paneling, wide board floors, and windows set deep in a three-foot thick wall.

Blatchford debunked the legend of the pub room's secret passage. There is a "hidden" door in the paneling, leading nowhere since the Fries Auditorium was built.

"We don't know exactly where it led," Blatchford said. "It went outside, toward the river. It's fun to speculate that he used it to cart booze in from Canada during Prohibition, but we don't know that."

The house is made entirely of stone, concrete and steel and embellished with occasional wood paneling, owing to the Algers' fear of fire. They once had a summer cottage in Canada that burned to the ground. Although nobody was hurt, Blatchford said their fears led them to construct a totally fireproof dwelling.

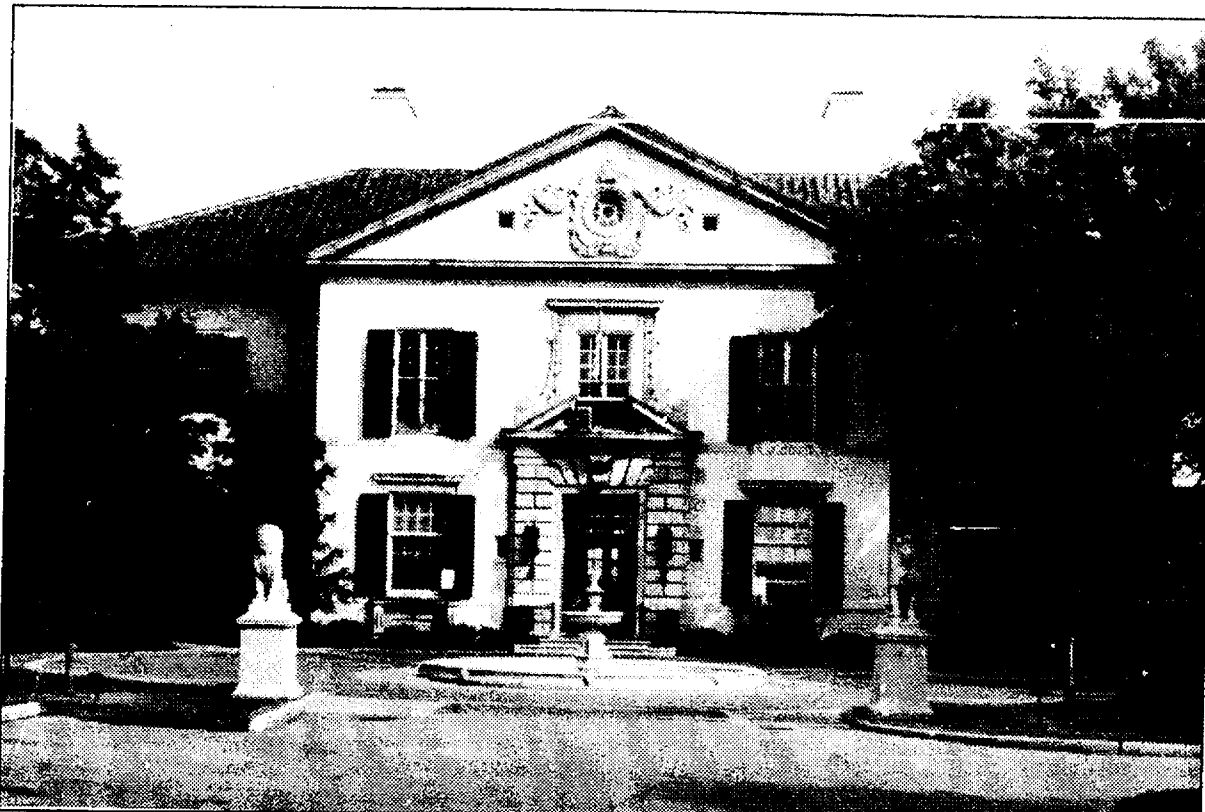

"It was built to last forever," she said. "But when the pipes burst, you have a problem."

Visitors Sunday may admire the marble staircases, the ornate plaster ceiling medallions, the concrete ceiling cunningly painted to resemble wood beams, and the glorious birch paneling that someone once painted green — until the indefatigable Josephine saw to it that it was restored. And maybe, too, they will hear an echo of those "gay years" when Grosse Pointe was young and the Algers bowed on the green.

Special ed services relocated from parochial to public schools

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Parents and public school officials began making the best of a bad situation this week: complying with U.S. Supreme Court rulings that have moved special education services out of parochial schools throughout the country.

At least one state has told the federal government it won't comply with the rulings until next year. But Michigan's Department of Education has decided it will be the public schools that will carry the burden of transporting parochial school students to public schools for certain services.

Evaluations and consultations with teachers can still be done in parochial schools, but no therapy may be provided, according to the state's special education division. Therapy must be given the parochial students on either a neutral site or the public schools.

In Grosse Pointe, that means students receiving special education services from the public school district at six parochial schools will have to travel to nearby elementary schools for their services in speech, work with a teacher/consultant or meetings with a social worker.

That means individualized education planning conferences with about 140 parochial school parents and students to explain the change, re-allocation of personnel in order to have a social worker, speech therapist and teacher/consultant in the public school at the same time on the same day, and waiting to see how many parochial school students will decide not to take part in the program, seeking either private aid or that provided by some of the parochial schools, according to Director of Special Education Clair Hunt.

The school district decided to transport the parochial school students to nearby schools as the most feasible solution, she said. The district could have found six "neutral" sites on which to provide the services to comply with the high court rulings, she added.

Complicating the matter further is finding nearby buildings that have three available classrooms for use by teacher/consultants, social workers and speech therapists, Hunt said. In the past, when teachers could travel to parochial school buildings, only one or two classrooms were needed because visiting time could be staggered.

Now, all three professionals must be in the same building on the same day so parochial school students can get their "comparable time" of care, Hunt said. Those students who may have spent 30 minutes with a speech therapist four days a week may now only see that speech therapist for one hour every two days.

While the amount of time is comparable, class time is lost in getting the students ready for transportation back and forth. There's the added disruption of pulling a child out of one building and putting him or her on a bus for a 10- to 15-minute ride for a 30- or 60-minute session.

While it's not the best situation, it should get better as time goes by as principals from parochial schools meet with the special education services department to come up with better ways for things to work, Hunt said.

Some parochial school parents aren't happy with the arrangement and have asked the public schools to come up with an option other than busing their children to public school buildings. They also complain of teacher changes and lack of access to instructors for parochial school students.

During the lay-offs at the end of the last school year, the public school system did lose a speech therapist, Hunt said. In addition, there have been shifts because of the scheduling hurdle that needed to be crossed to get the specialists in the building on the same day.

There is a problem with access to services, she said. A public school student can get help from a social worker or speech therapist that day because the professionals are more accessible to them. That's a problem that can't be overcome because the public schools can't put teachers in the private schools to help with problems that come up during the day.

"We are probably as distressed about that as the parochial school parents are," Hunt said.

But the state's mandate that districts comply with the rulings could have been eased had the districts been given a year to work out ways to solve the problems, Hunt said. "That, to me, would have been a sensible way to go."

That's not an option the state feels it has, according to Dr. Benson Herbert, a supervisor in the special education division of the education department.

"We can't excuse school districts from providing that service," he said. "We can't excuse ourselves from that basic responsibility."

Michigan's state board of education decided it was going to comply with the rulings and, although there wasn't much time to put together the clarifications for local districts, has done its best to get information out to the affected departments, Herbert said. While he has heard a few complaints, most of the people calling him are asking practical questions about how to

Illegal moped use gives police headaches

By Tom Greenwood

Mopeds are hot in Grosse Pointe. Just ask any police officer who spends part of his day chasing down kids, many of them pre-teens, caught scooting down sidewalks or zipping along roadways, two to a vehicle.

Another indication of their popularity can be found at the local high schools where flashy red, black and blue mopeds vie for space with 10-speed bikes at the bicycle racks.

"There consistently has been a high number of mopeds in Grosse Pointe, especially the Farms," said Farms Chief of Police Robert K. Ferber. "It's probably because we're an affluent community. Part of the problem is that many parents buy them as early gifts, say for a birthday. The kids find them and sneak them out. Soon they're on the street without any proper instructions."

According to the office of the Secretary of State, any two- or three-wheel vehicle with two or less horsepower, no gears and a top speed of 30 mph is considered a moped. And according to moped dealers, sales of the vehicles are at an all-time high.

The national leader in sales for 1984 was Anderson Honda in Bloomfield Hills, which recorded 800 mopeds sold in 1984. And their sales have doubled this year, according to General Manager Phil Elliot.

Because a moped is a motorized vehicle, it also has to be registered with the state and the driver must have either a driver's license or a special moped license to operate on public roadways.

That's where many parents go wrong, according to Ferber. "Many don't realize their bikes must be registered and their children have to have a license," he said. "They also don't know that the minimum age for a moped license is 15. We have one female juvenile who will shortly be appearing in court with her parents."

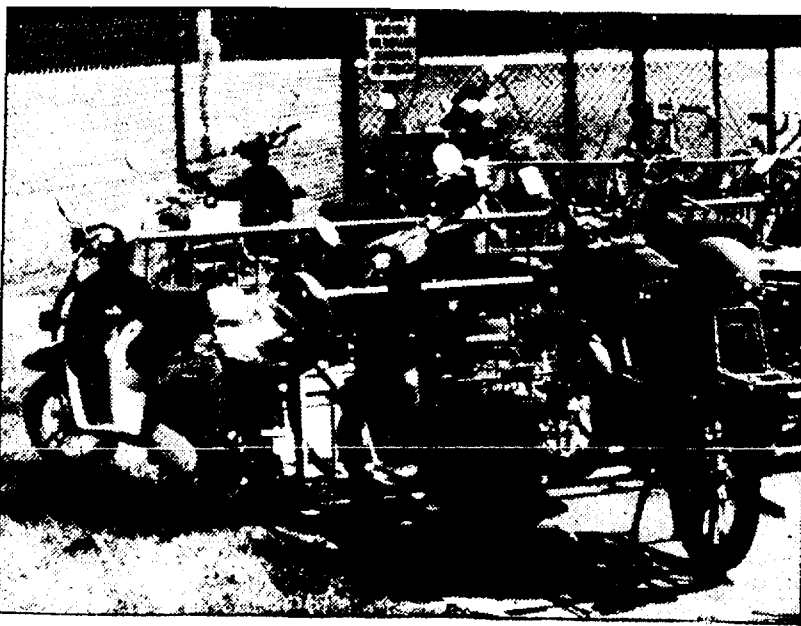

"She was riding her moped along the sidewalk. Her parents will appear for allowing an unlicensed driver to drive."

Ferber also explained it was illegal to ride the vehicles on the sidewalk under motorized power, but it was permissible to pedal the moped unpowered "like a bicycle."

Besides non-registration, other problems facing law officials are operators riding without helmets (a requirement for drivers under age 19), riding on sidewalks, riding with more than one person per vehicle and driving with radio earphones on.

"We have adults who also ride mopeds," Ferber said. "But they don't usually give us any problems, except they sometimes don't wear helmets either. Especially the women. They say they don't want to muss up their hair."

Mopeds, motorbikes and scooters parked at South High School.

"It's especially dangerous when riders drive while listening to their radios through earphones. Everyone seems to do it. Cyclists, moped riders, joggers and those out for a stroll. It can cause real problems because they can't hear anything else and they begin not to pay attention. We had an accident involving a moped rider a little while ago. It could have been a lot worse than it was. We were lucky this time."

According to the State Police, there were 288 moped-related accidents in the tri-county area in 1983; 51 in Oakland County; 42 in Macomb; and 185 in Wayne County, including one fatality.

An additional problem is the theft of the vehicles, which are becoming more popular each year.

"We average about 12 thefts yearly," Ferber said. "That starts to add up because the bikes are becoming more expensive."

In an effort to crack down on non-registration of the vehicles, the state began to require businesses selling mopeds to make application for moped registration with the Secretary of State for their customers in 1983.

Police are also cracking down on moped riders, confiscating the motorized bikes when the need arises.

"Much of it depends on the individual officers," Ferber said. "We leave it up to his discretion. He takes into account the driver's age, previous contacts and the severity of the offense. But we do confiscate them. Not a month goes by that we don't take a few off the street."

Police hold the bikes until the parents are notified.

Jaycees has woman president

For the first time in the history of the chapter of the Grosse Pointe Jaycees a woman is president. Jean Wenn has taken the responsibilities and duties of the office as so many women have in other chapters of the Jaycees since the Supreme Court decision to allow women to join.

Wenn has proclaimed September as Jaycee membership drive month.

The chapter is looking for new members to enable them to continue helping people in need around the community as they have for more than 15 years.

Battle of the Bands auditions now held

The War Memorial's annual Battle of the Bands, to be held in November, is in full swing with band auditions now being held.

The event, now in its twelfth year, annually draws sellout crowds of local high school students who want to hear their favorite local bands compete to be chosen as Grosse Pointe's best.

From now until Nov. 1, a group of high school students will audition all bands who apply and meet the requirements of the competition. The committee will choose six to compete in the event Saturday, Nov. 30.

Each band will play one 45-minute set, with one playing in the Fries Ballroom while another one simultaneously performs in the auditorium. The winning bands are chosen solely by the paid attendees' votes. Winning bands will split a percentage of the ticket sales with the number-one band, to be featured on Grosse Pointe Cable.

To qualify, bands must apply in writing to: Battle Auditions, Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., 48236. All bands must be

Charge card spree at Yacht Club

A 16-year-old Pointe youth was charged with defrauding an innkeeper in a 10-day spree of signing a false name on Grosse Pointe Yacht Club membership charges, according to Shores police reports.

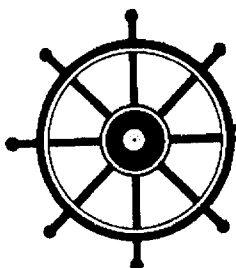

The youth said he discovered he could get into the club by giving a member's name. Once inside, he charged repeated beer purchases to the same member, who has refused to pay the $143.50 bill. He said yacht club employees had never asked him for identification.

The scam came to light last week when an employee called the police, who arrived at the club to find the harbor master "yelling" and "screaming" because he had not been notified before the police, reports stated. The police arrested the "cocky" youth, who later made a full statement.

The club plans to press charges if the juvenile does not make full restitution, according to the report. Shores police have filled out the juvenile court petition, but have not filed it, pending restitution.

Americans believe in public schools

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Better than one in four Americans give public schools an A or B grade in the 17th annual Gallup poll of attitudes toward public education — the most since the question was first asked.

The results of the poll, distributed by the National Education Association and published in this month's edition of the magazine, Phi Delta Kappan, represents an upswing in opinion of the public education system, which has been under scrutiny in the past couple of years after the publishing of "A Nation at Risk," according to Grosse Pointe Superintendent John Whritner.

The results show the public rating public schools this year as highly as they did in 1984, when education received the highest mark in more than a decade. When asked to rate the public school system nationally, 27 percent of those responding gave the system an A or B.

Those asked to rate their local school systems gave much higher marks, with 43 percent giving their local system an A or B. The last two years' results are up sharply from 1983, when only 31 percent of those responding gave their local schools an A or B.

"I think it's reflective of what's been happening in the overall feeling toward education," Whritner says. "It probably bottomed out — the general impression of what's going on in the schools — two to three years ago."

It was about that time that "A Nation at Risk" was published, a national report on public education that scorched systems for a variety of problems.

"It heightened awareness of public education we haven't seen since Sputnik," Whritner says of the report.

Grosse Pointe public schools may look to survey the attitude of its community to find out its concerns and questions about the local system, Whritner says. Whether the poll will follow the Gallup-type format of letter grades is yet to be decided, he adds.

"I think it's critical that either through a vehicle like that or something similar we get a sense of what the community feels and what they see as areas of concern, areas that need to be addressed," he adds.

Much of the change that has come in education systems has come at the state level, Whritner said. The retrenchment of federal agencies has left the bulk of the responsibility to the states to change education, with some help from local school districts.

If people in the Pointes were surveyed by the school system, they would most likely grade their schools higher than the national survey shows, Whritner said. This community seems more involved with the schools here than he has seen in other communities, he adds.

"There's been a general recognition in Grosse Pointe that the schools are really one of the selling points of the community," Whritner says. "The community has exhibited in the past a willingness to support its schools... but how that translated into A's, B's and C's, I just don't know."

The reason for the support is simple: the schools do a good job, Whritner says. There's another reason, he adds.

"You have so many people with children in the schools, grandchildren in the schools, who are themselves products of that school system," Whritner says. "They've seen the direct correlation between this system and their own well-being and the well-being of their own children and grandchildren."

The schools also maintain a national reputation as a system which maintains quality programs, he adds.

Nationally, the largest problem facing public schools is lack of discipline, according to the survey. Public school parents, non-public school parents and those with no children in school agree on that in different proportions. Following close behind is the use of drugs in the public schools, with poor curriculum falling a distant third.

The poll shows 43 percent of non-public school parents responding, saying discipline is the worst problem in public schools, while 25 percent of parents with children in the schools rate discipline as the worst problem. Twenty-three percent of those without children in schools said discipline was the number-one problem facing schools.

Lack of discipline is a traditional concern of parents, Whritner says, adding he was encouraged that the level of concern appears to be dropping off.

"Part of that has been almost a societal shift to more conservatism and that's been reflected in tightening up what's taking place within the schools and the sense on the part of that community that the tightening up is taking place," Whritner says. "I have never sensed discipline to be a major problem in Grosse Pointe schools."

Substance abuse is a problem locally, "serious... in that any youngster is impacted by abuse," Whritner says. "It's a shifting problem... with almost a return to alcohol as the prime substance of abuse."

The system continues work on its substance abuse program, one of the board's goals for the current school year. It has, in past years, offered seminars in substance abuse for administrators and principals.

"I have to say that this community has done more than most in addressing the problem," Whritner says. "It's not something the community has tried to sweep under the rug."

The problems the local district faces are those being addressed by tech goals; the need for staff involvement in curriculum development, in-service training and evaluation, Whritner says.

Another area for concern in the future is going to be the growing teacher shortage in such specialty areas like math and science, Whritner says. One of the current reflections of that growing shortage is the dwindling pool of substitute teachers, once the "pool" from which full-time instructors could be drawn, he adds.

In the national survey, one third of respondents said they thought teachers' salaries were too low, while 43 percent thought they were just right. Parents of public and non-public school students were more likely to say teachers were underpaid, with 38 percent of the public school parents and 42 percent on non-public school parents reporting they thought teachers' salaries were too low.

Six in 10 Americans favor merit pay programs for teachers, while nine out of 10 think competency tests should be administered to teachers before they are hired by a school district, according to the Gallup poll.

Although merit pay sounds like a good idea, it can become very divisive for the staff vying for extra pay, according to Grosse Pointe Education Association President Doris Cook. The programs leave themselves open for favoritism as well as staff currying favor with groups who may be asked to decide who's to be paid more than others, she adds.

Competency testing is a simplistic solution to a very complex problem of finding qualified teachers for the classrooms, Whritner says.

The National Education Association advocates rigorous admission standards for new teachers, including rigorous graduation requirements from teacher programs, internship programs and regular evaluation.

Cook agrees that competency testing wouldn't work. If a community believes or says it has incompetent teachers, it has also admitted those teachers have been passed along their present positions by laxity in the school administration.

Merit pay programs can't be considered until the starting pay of teachers is brought up to adequate levels, Cook says. The NEA is embarking on a program to raise starting salaries nationally, she adds.

Another program that received almost universal acceptance in the survey was the concept on requiring a minimum grade point average of a student for participation in extracurricular activities and sports.

While 90 percent of those without children said students should have to meet a minimum standard, 97 percent of non-public school parents said they believed in such a requirement. Ninety-two percent of parents with students in public schools said such standards should be required.

There are two sides to the minimum standard coin, Whritner says. On one side, a standard would ensure that academic standards remain high for those participating in activities. On the other, the system may lose students whose attendance at school is because of social opportunities, he says.

If asked to make a recommendation, Whritner says he would consider imposition of minimum standards, with latitude available so students know what is required of them and what they have to do.

While the Gallup poll does project the national feeling, it remains of limited value to the local school district, Whritner says. The sample of those polled for the national survey is much different from the local community make-up. Of more benefit to the administration is a local survey looking at local needs and concerns, he adds.

Fall craft class at War Memorial

Stained glass craftsman Susan Imhoff will present an orientation lecture on the craft Wednesday, Sept. 25, from 9:30 to 11 a.m. at the War Memorial.

This $5 per person lecture, which will include the history of stained glass and its uses today, is a prelude to a full seven-week, hands-on, course to begin Oct. 2.

In the fall course students will create a glass panel of their choice working in the copper foil technique. The panel, approximately one square foot in size, will include 235 pieces. All basic techniques will be taught as well as a demonstration of lead assembly and repairs. No glass experience or art talent is required, although those who wish, may bring their own pattern ideas to the first class.

The cost is $30 plus $45 to $55 for supplies.

To register for the craft class, send full payment to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., 48236. To avoid class cancellations, the Center requests that students register in advance.

Park acts to protect elms

By Pat Paholsky

Check those woodpiles, Park residents. Beginning Wednesday, Sept. 25, it will be against the law to have cut elm wood on your premises unless the bark has been removed.

The Park council, upon the recommendation of the Beautification Commission, approved an ordinance to that effect Sept. 9. The ordinance states: "No person shall store, sell, deliver or bring into the city wood from any elm tree to be used as firewood or for any other purpose, unless the bark has been completely removed from the wood."

The action is another attempt to stave off the spread of Dutch elm disease in the city. Residents may not be aware that all elm wood attracts the bark beetle, said Carol Ward, Beautification Commission member. "It doesn't make any difference if it's diseased or not. You are providing a breeding place for these critters," she said.

There is also the problem with tree companies that cut down diseased trees and then sell the wood, she said. The policing is left up to the individual cities, Ward said, adding that Birmingham has a similar, but stricter, ordinance. Birmingham forbids the possession of any cut elm wood, debarked or not.

Councilman Vernon Ausherman, recognizing that enforcement of the ordinance will be difficult, said, "The ordinance will depend pretty much on the community for enforcement." He explained it will be up to residents to report a neighbor who keeps the wood of a cut elm without removing the bark.

While the Park police will not be checking woodpiles, Councilwoman Carroll Evola said, "I believe the ordinance is necessary and better than nothing."

In the meantime, residents who are unable to identify cut elm from other wood can call on the Beautification Commission.

Of the ordinance, Councilman Mark Valente said, "We didn't do it to start hitting people up with fines, but to educate the residents as to what the problem is."

In a related matter, the Beautification Commission, meeting tonight, is expected to recommend another change in the ordinance regarding elm trees. The commission would like the city to adopt the method of injecting cacodylic acid into diseased trees tagged for removal.

Cacodylic acid is an herbicide that prevents the tree from grafting the disease to another elm through the root system. It also acts as a trap tree, Ward said.

The dying tree gives a certain

Farms firehouse to get new doors

The Farms city council voted Sept. 9 to spend $7,780 on new firehouse doors. The existing wood doors have begun to sag, City Manager Andrew Bremer said. The doors are a budgeted item for this fiscal year.

scent that attracts the beetle, but because of the acid, the broods will not develop, Ward said.

In 1980 in Washington, D.C., cacodylic acid was introduced in a program to save the elms and was successful in significantly reducing the number of trees that had to be removed, according to a report by the University of the District of Columbia Cooperative Extension Service.

The purpose of the herbicide is to lels with cancer in humans," she said. "Early detection is essential and we need to educate the people to watch the trees very closely."

Doris Miller, chairwoman of the Beautification Commission, said the group will send out a brochure regarding the care of elms to all residents this coming spring.

According to a count by members of the commission, there are 1,342 public elms and 990 private elms in the Park, for a total of Three Park residents, actively involved in trying to save the elms in their city, symbolically stand behind a planter in front of the Grosse Pointe News office. They are Doris Miller, Carol Ward and Mark Valente III. The planter marks the spot where a large elm, a landmark on the Hill, grew. It was removed last year after efforts to save it from Dutch elm disease failed.

counteract the delays in removal of diseased trees in the Park, Ward said. While it takes the city an average of 12 days to remove a tree, the biggest problem is with privately owned trees, she said. A homeowner, upon learning his tree is tagged for removal, will call a tree company for a bid. And it may be weeks before the company comes out.

"Even if there is timely removal of a diseased tree, there is a 60 percent chance of its infecting other trees, she said, adding that the fungus can stay in the roots of a diseased tree for three years.

"This disease has a lot of paral-

2,232. So far, 158 trees have been tagged, Ward said.

People who are concerned about their trees can call the city office at 882-6200 and ask to have a Beautification Commission member return their call.

"We have not abandoned the elm trees," Ward said. "There are many things that can be done. We are hard at work at saving the elms of Grosse Pointe Park and doing a better job than we have done with the spraying program."

That empty space between the liquid in the bottle and the bottlecap is the "ullage."

Disaster exercise

For members of the media, Metropolitan Airport was the place to be last week as hundreds of persons participated in Operation Padre (Passenger Aircraft Disaster Response Exercise), a mock disaster exercise simulating a major airline crash at the airport. Two hundred Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and students were made up with simulated injuries and positioned over a portion of the airport, duplicating the aftermath of a crash. A column of dense black smoke hovered over the airfield, after a controlled fire made of 10,000 gallons of jet fuel, was ignited by firemen for realism. During the actual exercise, victims were put in triage by firefighters and other medical personnel and were transferred by ambulance, truck and helicopters to various medical facilities throughout Wayne County.

Liberal congressman, conservative district

Grosse Pointe needs Detroit, Congressman Crockett says

By Nancy Parmenter

An hour's talk with Congressman George Crockett is a walk through the entire social history of the United States in the second half of this century.

In the '40s, he worked for fair employment practices with the UAW. In the '50s, he defended members of the Communist party during the McCarthy era — and ended up in a federal prison on a contempt charge. ("I'm the only member to walk out of a federal prison into a Congressional seat," he says with a sly smile.) The '60s found him working for civil rights, then following up with 12 years on the bench in Detroit Recorder's Court.

An unexpected beginning for a congressman for Grosse Pointe. Crockett jokes that "trying to represent Grosse Pointe and the lower east side is the best way to develop schizophrenia."

"Seriously, though, the Grosse Pointes are bedroom villages," he said. "Their economic concern is in Detroit's inner city. To the extent that the city prospers, Grosse Pointe prospers."

Crockett is intensely aware of the vast gulf between his two constituencies. "I think the Democratic Party did Grosse Pointe an injustice when they put (it) in the 13th District," he said. "All of the Pointes identify more with the political philosophy and thinking of Macomb and Oakland counties than with Detroit. They should have been left there."

Redistricting should have carried the 13th District south to River Rouge and Ecorse and west to Hamtramck instead of Grosse Pointe to pick up the population it needed, Crockett said, but political realities got in the way.

The lack of Democrats in the Pointes has meant that both Crockett and Rep. Dennis Hertel have had to depend on their power bases elsewhere in their districts. But it opens other opportunities for aspiring politicians, Crockett said.

"We have a shortage of precinct delegates out there," he explained. "Any young person who wants to get started can do so right away." Precinct delegates normally have to run for election — sometimes hotly contested — but vacancies can be filled by appointment.

"Have them call my office," Crockett said. "If nothing else, it'll show us how many Democrats are out there."

Most congressional offices are swamped with constituent mail. Some congressmen have turned the polling of constituent opinion into a fine science, basing many of their voting decisions on it. But Crockett's office doesn't get much mail, he said, and most of what it receives is "prompted" mail, urged by some special interest.

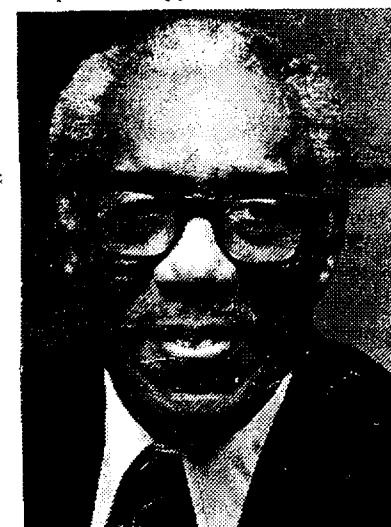

The question of how he makes his decisions in the void of constituent opinion wreathed his face in smiles.

"I have a relationship with my constituents," he said, "that's sort of ideal. I know what they think — and they all know what side Judge Crockett's gonna come down on."

An aide pointed out that the crash of the Korean Airline jet last year provided a perfect example of Crockett's popular support. When the House passed a resolution condemning the Soviet Union for its role in the crash, Crockett voted against it on the grounds that not enough of the circumstances were yet understood.

"People thought I'd never get over that in the district," Crockett said. "But the facts are still coming out and they bear out what I suspected (that the CIA was using the plane to spy)."

Rep. George Crockett

Crockett's friend Judge Jessie Slaton was a victim of that crash. At a memorial service for her shortly after the crash, a newspaper exit poll of the mourners gave 91 percent support to Crockett's refusal to condemn the Russians, he said.

The bulk of Crockett's Grosse Pointe constituent mail does not concern foreign affairs, however, but tax reform and the deficit. People want to know how reform proposals will affect them and whether the federal government will go bankrupt.

"I think they're unduly exercised about the taxes," Crockett said. "I don't expect Congress to get around to tax reform issues during this session. We'll have to work on trade issues first."

As to bankruptcy, "we're not anywhere near that point," Crockett said that nations with terminal financial problems are always driven to steps like currency devaluation, a measure he doesn't foresee.

"This isn't the first time doom-sayers have thought we were going into bankruptcy," he said. "Back before the Civil War there was a hue and cry about it, but we survived."

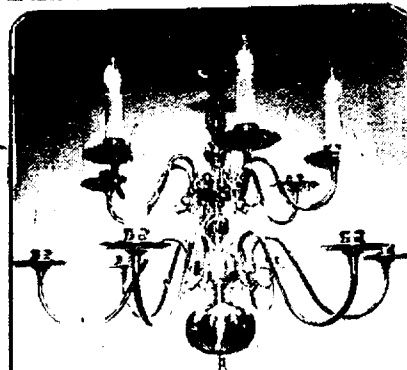

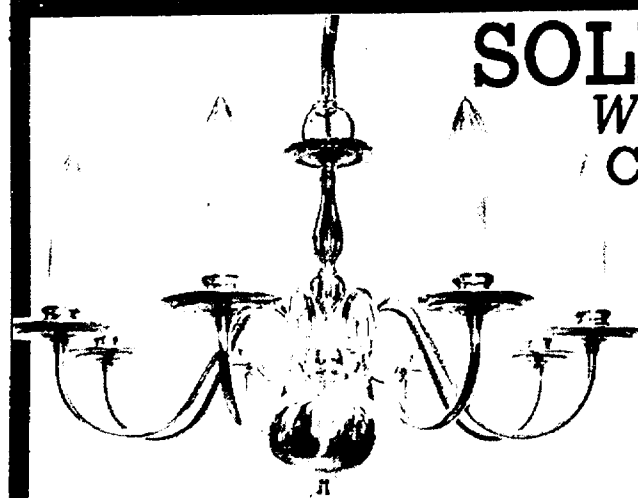

As a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Crockett's interests lie in the Middle East and South Africa. The two places have a similar human rights problem, in his view.

During the August recess, Crockett made his fourth visit to the Middle East and came back convinced that the Palestinians on the West Bank are living under an apartheid system as rigid as that in South Africa. He says there is no hope of peace in the region until the Palestinians, as well as all other nations in the region, are included in the process.

Although the U.S. has been accused of failing to comprehend the complex Middle East, Crockett doesn't see that as the problem. "The problem is whether we're going to be led around by the nose by Israel, dictating who we can talk to and what we can do," he said.

"The problem isn't that we don't understand, but whether we have the courage to act on our understanding."

A prudent school policy

The Grosse Pointe school board has adopted what is essentially a hold-the-line position on both taxes and spending for the 1985-86 school year even though some taxpayers will benefit from a slight reduction in taxes.

In view of the fact that the enrollment in the system seems to have stabilized, at least for the present, the board's position makes good sense. It is too early to know, for example, whether the unexpected rise in fall kindergarten enrollment, as well as in several elementary and middle school classes, really means a reversal of the long-time decline or whether the increases came about for special reasons this year.

True, the schools already have had to hire three additional full-time teachers and several part-timers to accommodate the higher totals in some classes. But the overall school system count after four days was only 14 above the total of the fourth day a year ago, although the fourth-Friday count on Sept. 27 will provide a more accurate figure.

As the board announced last week, its tax levy for 1985 taxes payable in December will amount to about a $2 saving for the average homeowner in the school district whose home has a state equalized valuation of $50,000.

Yet the tax rate will be slightly higher at 32.6295 mills than the 1984-85 rate of 31.8426 mills. However, the $4,165,531 drop in the state equalized value of property in the district means that the 1985 rate will raise slightly less revenue than the 1984 rate did.

Even though the district will raise slightly less from taxes than it did in 1984, spending will actually rise slightly. The difference will be made up chiefly by the transfer of additional funds from the district's fund equity or surplus to the general fund.

Most of the district's revenue comes from property taxes, but the schools do get small amounts of state and federal aid as well as income from tuition for all-day kindergarten, investments and various miscellaneous sources.

But since all taxes are being challenged in these times, it was prudent on the part of the board to reject the proposal for a 1.8 percent increase in taxes and adopt a levy which will mean a slight saving for many taxpayers in the district.

Safety belts prove value

The decline in auto deaths in Michigan in July, the first month in which the mandatory seat belt use law was in effect, is being attributed in large part to the new law which has increased the percentage of motorists using the belts. That result tends to confirm the views of backers of the controversial law.

"There's a strong correlation between safety belts and safety," Maj. Michael Anderson, commander of the Michigan State Police uniform services, told editors of Michigan Living, publication of the state AAA. "Nobody else has come up with any other factor that has caused the turnaround."

State police reported that 70 percent of state motorists now are wearing seat belts as compared to 22 percent a year ago. And they also reported that while traffic deaths had been rising for several months, they dropped in July from 175 to 118.

In addition, there is plenty of evidence that seat belts also help prevent serious injury in auto accidents. Michigan AAA cited a claim study of 22,000 accidents which showed that the rate of injury for unbelted occupants was almost double that for belted occupants. It was evidence of such benefits that caused AAA to offer a 20 percent reduction in the cost of personal injury protection to insured drivers who sign a pledge to wear the belt.

Thirteen other states now require the use of seat belts while five others and the District of Columbia have such legislation under consideration. The states that now require all motorists in the front seats of cars to wear belts are, in addition to Michigan, New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, New Mexico, Hawaii, Texas, North Carolina, Connecticut, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Louisiana.

Michigan's seat belt law requires drivers and front-seat passengers to buckle up or face a $10 fine until next Jan. 1 and a $25 fine after that date. However, no points are entered on a person's driving record at the secretary of state's office for conviction on a safety belt violation.

Some people still object to mandatory seat belt laws on the grounds they represent an unwarranted infringement by the state on individual liberty, but most drivers realize that seat belt use does save lives, reduces serious-injury auto accidents, cuts accident costs and even causes a reduction in insurance rates.

In short, using safety belts makes good sense both for safety and economic reasons.

Tax compromise needed

Now that two rating services have given the state of Michigan an improved credit rating, a new argument has been added to the controversy over whether the 1983 income tax hike recommended by Gov. James Blanchard was justified.

Democrats and other supporters of the increased rate claim that the improved credit rating is proof that Michigan's fiscal house is now in order and that the temporary 38 percent increase was largely responsible for bringing that condition about.

Republicans in the Legislature and elsewhere still are contending that the income tax increase was either unnecessary or excessive and that the temporary hike ought to be cut back to the 4.6 rate by Jan. 1, 1986, at the latest. Republicans claim the state's surplus as of the beginning of the next fiscal year Oct. 1 will be larger than anticipated and bigger than the Democrats are prepared to acknowledge. That is why they seek an earlier tax rollback than the governor has proposed.

The governor also has proposed as part of his tax package the granting of a modest amount of property tax relief, a tax amnesty period originally proposed by Grosse Pointe State Rep. William Bryant, Jr. and increases in bank, insurance company and capital gains taxation. In the governor's view, such increases are required to offset the revenue losses to be incurred through the income tax rollback. But Republicans are taking exception to this viewpoint.

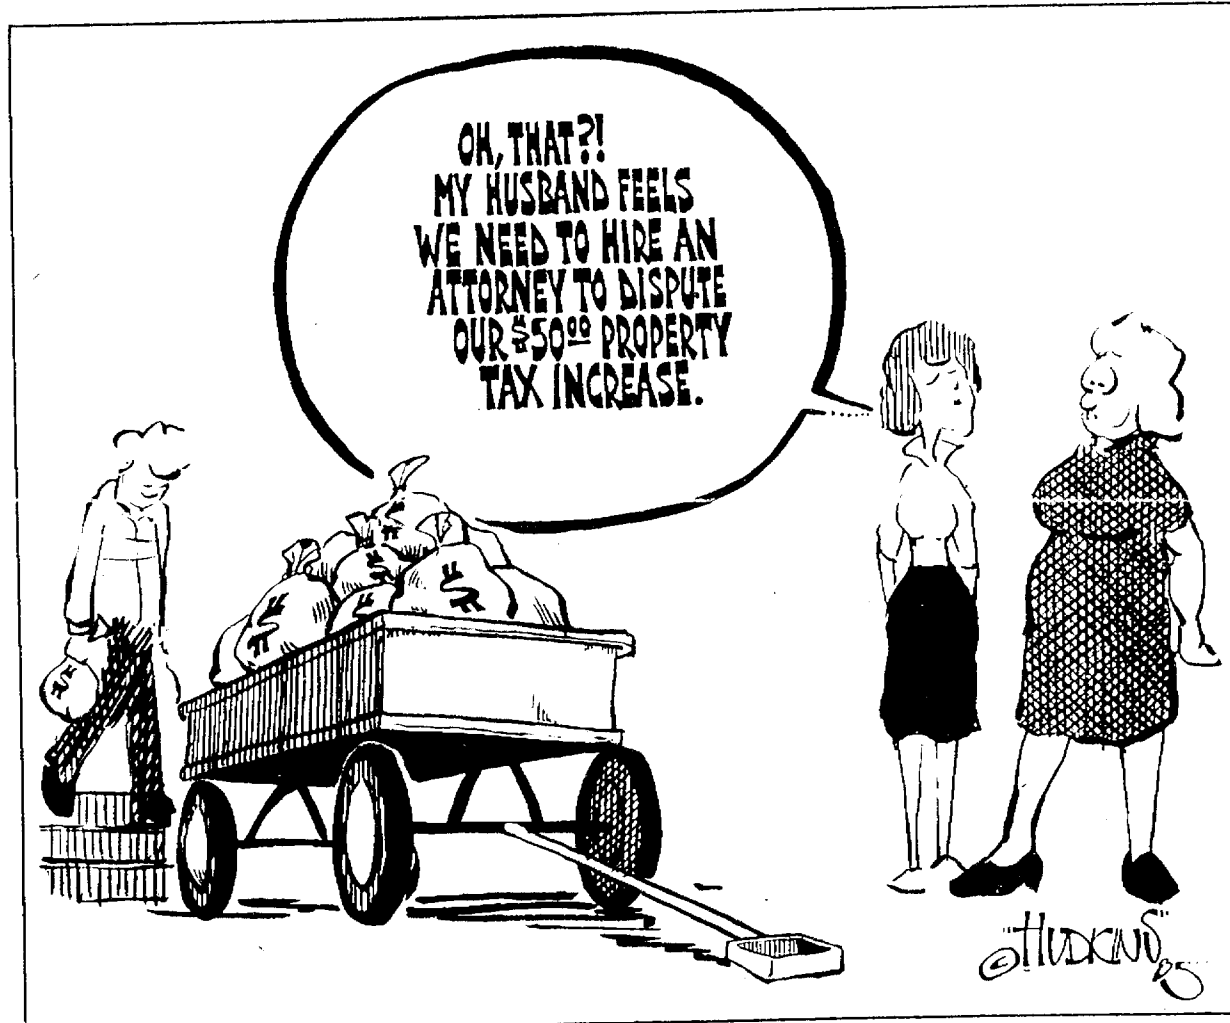

In the end, it is clear that the state income tax will be cut back to the old 4.6 percent rate before the next election in November 1986. But the Legislature will have to consider two important factors before accepting all parts of the governor's program: the state's competitive position with respect to business and industry and the continuing need for essential state services such as education and welfare programs.

In making its decisions, the Legislature will have to consider Michigan's reputation as a highly unionized and high-wage state, factors which have slowed the state's recovery from the recession. But it will have to keep in mind that as a high-cost state, Michigan also has an obligation to maintain services to avoid further setbacks in education all the way from kindergarten through college and to make sure that the state maintains an essential safety net for those unable to support themselves adequately.

In short, the Legislature will have to compromise in order to continue to improve the state's business climate and at the same time meet essential human needs. It is not an easy task that Lansing faces and it is made no easier by those who make extreme demands in support of either one of these issues.

The decision ought to be made on a long-term basis, not on just the immediate demands to create issues for the 1986 state election. An appropriate decision will require statesmanship rather than the politics-as-usual attitude that has been too prevalent in the state capital in recent years.

Words worth remembering

To the Editor:

The letter-writer of last week ("Writer responds to letter") mentioned in passing that in 1945 he was an officer in the American army in the great war against fascism. That is to his credit. (Incidentally, he and the Soviets were allies at that time!) I will now end my side of this back-and-forth correspondence with a marvelous quotation from HIS commanding officer in those days, namely Dwight David Eisenhower, which is very apt for these days:

"Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies in a final sense a theft from those who hunger and are not fed — those who are cold and not clothed. This world in arms is not spending money alone — it is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children." 1953 . . . and "I like to believe that people in the long run, are going to do more to promote peace than are governments. Indeed, I think that people want peace so much that one of these days governments had better get out of their way and let them have it." 1959.

Those words of President Eisenhower can hardly be ascribed to F.D.R.'s State Department, to the K.G.B., to Tass, to Izvestia, to Soviet agents, to anybody but the lovable Ike himself, who knew what war was like. He warned us against the threat of the military-industrial complex. They are words worth remembering. Who can disagree?

Think of today's students

To the Editor:

Being a student in Grosse Pointe, I have been following with interest the new plans of the school system regarding the closings and/or re-openings of our schools. I am most concerned about the new "Five Year Facility Plan," a very controversial proposal.

Many things can happen between now and 1992, many which will upset the current enrollment predictions. Acting now on the basis of something that will not materialize for nearly a decade is a foolish practice. An example of this happened last year: when the board of education saw the decline in the enrollment of our schools, they did not hesitate to move the sixth-graders to the middle schools, and shut down Barnes. This year, three new teachers had to be hired to accommodate enrollments which were higher than predicted in the elementary schools.

We should act upon the present only. There will always be time to change the arrangements to accommodate future enrollments. We must think of today's students now, and wait to see what the future has in store for us before we make arrangements for tomorrow's kids.

Old way of entertainment

To the Editor:

While reading the Sept. 5 edition, I came upon the article titled "Word Music." I was thrilled that people, especially Grosse Pointers, are coming back to the old way of entertainment.

Since the middle 1900s, the overall American public left "home-spun" entertainment, and joined commercial entertainment: amusement parks, television, etc. It pleases me to hear that people may be turning back to individual family entertainment and recreation. I think that if families start looking inward (i.e. playing an instrument) instead of outward, the family bonds could be strengthened, and in the long run, this could keep divorces and separation out of the family.

I am not claiming that if you play an instrument only then and there that it is impossible for you to be divorced, but if instead of sitting in front of the TV for one or two hours, a person could involve himself (or even add to) his family's recreation, and artistic development, he will experience the tightening of the family bonds.

A person will have to invest a lot of time into this, but I think that to have strong family bonds, is well worth the time.

No schools should be closed

To the Editor:

The article, "More schools to close?" in the Sept. 5 issue states that more elementary schools in Grosse Pointe will most likely be closed in future years.

No neighborhood schools in Grosse Pointe should be closed because parents who have to work will have farther to take their children to school. The children who have to walk to school will have farther to walk. For the children in kindergarten through fourth grade, it would be unsafe because of all the streets they would have to cross. For the younger children, it is farther from their homes, so they might even get lost.

I know Grosse Pointe is a fairly safe community, but little children walking a long distance to and from home is dangerous.

To the Editor:

I would like to commend the Grosse Pointe News, especially Tom Greenwood, for excellent coverage of the 35th anniversary of the city of Grosse Pointe Woods. Mr. Greenwood's article (9/5/85) really captured the lively spirit of the day.

I also think that the Celebration of Service Committee deserves special recognition. I would like to Protecting police in high-speed chases

By State Sen. John F. Kelly

Recently there has been a great deal of concern over police officers who engage in hot pursuits being charged with negligent homicide when an innocent bystander is killed during a high-speed chase. The standard of proof currently used to determine the guilt of the officer is one of "ordinary negligence", which is not difficult to prove. That is why I co-sponsored S.B. 222 which is part of a three-bill package raising the standard of proof to the higher one of "willful and wanton disregard" for public safety.

S.B. 222 does not go so far as to give blanket immunity to police who act in a manner which is extremely careless. It does, however, give greater protection to our police officers who are forced to risk their lives pursuing criminals who, with disregard of our laws, attempt to flee the scene of a crime by means of an automobile.

Where the driver of a vehicle attempts to flee or elude an officer, S.B. 222 and S.B. 223 provide that the driver is guilty of a felony and punishable by up to three years in prison and a fine of up to $10,000.

A final bill in this package, S.B. 221, requires that police departments develop and implement policies for handling the practices "pursuit" and "pacing" and that officers be trained for these practices. This will protect both police officers and the public.

Undoubtedly these bills will be refined further during the coming weeks. However, whatever the final form of the legislation, it will help protect the rights of our police officers by giving them the protection they need.

One view from the Capitol

Legislature to study liability

By William R. Bryant Jr.

The legislature returned to Lansing on the 18th for a busy fall session.

High on the list of agenda items are problems relating to cost and availability of liability insurance and overall liability costs for governmental units, bars, lawyers, doctors and other health organizations.

While no one wants to prevent an injured person from seeking justice, the problems of a growing readiness to sue over a perceived wrong or to demand perfection or even miracles of those from whom we purchase services is getting out of hand.

Perhaps it is because we are a more diverse, more contentious population or because of the stress of overcrowded cities and stressful lives. Perhaps it is because of some have versus have not, "get even" mentality or just lack of understanding by many that we all pay these costs.

Certainly part of the "problem" is wanting to make whole an injured person. Would you sell an arm for a million dollars? Few would, but if you would not, does that necessarily mean a loss of an arm should result in a judgment for that million dollars or more?

And clearly the growing impersonalization of many services leads to a lack of any mutual trust and caring between server and served. It is far easier to sue a doctor we have only met a few times, far harder to sue our own trusted family physician.

And yet even the family physician is having a tough time getting and paying for insurance. One wonderful, highly competent, trusted and needed family doctor in Grosse Pointe tells me that his insurance costs an amount equal to 20 percent of his net income last year.

There is plenty of blame to go around in addition to complex societal factors like those listed earlier.

Insurance companies have competed on the basis of cost and thus avoided seeking annual increases they now seek in one lump of 50 or more percent of increase.

Some lawyers encouraged questionable suits and some fight even reasonable legislative efforts to deal with liability issues.

The medical profession could police itself more carefully, thereby encouraging greater trust. It could also be more cautious in its claims for possible help or cure, and it could do even more to help educate people on health and wellness issues.

I hope the legislature does deal with these issues this fall. They need to be addressed.

And I hope that attorneys of good will and broad vision will assist legislators in finding rational answers.

wish. The prayer must be said with five Our Fathers, five Hail Marys, five Glory Bes on five successive days before 11 a.m. On the fifth day, the fifth set of prayers having been completed, the supplicant must offer one more set and will then receive a rose within five days.

Isn't this rather a lot of work for a rose? Wouldn't it be quicker to stroll down to the local florists, plunk down two bucks and pick one of your own choosing?

This prayer got me thinking. If I multiplied everything by 12, would I receive a dozen roses instead of just one? They sure would look good on my desk.

And what's with this 11 a.m. deadline? Does St. Theresa have somewhere to be after 11 a.m.? And how about time zones? If the prayer must be recited before 11 a.m. in Grosse Pointe, should it be said before 9 a.m. in Denver?

Being a naturally curious kind of guy, I called Monsignor Francis X. Canfield, head guy in charge at St. Paul's Catholic Church.

"Oh, those things," he said, with a laugh. "Don't pay any attention. Any prayer that absolutely guarantees things is just a gimmick. God doesn't work that way. People are always leaving those far-out religious tracts here at the church. I just throw them out."

"Don't get me wrong," Msgr. Canfield continued. "asking for the intercession of the saints is a valid concept in the church. One of my parishioners recently suggested I pray to St. Anthony when I lost an article I had written. I prayed, and later in the day found it on a little shelf behind my refrigerator. I don't know how it got there. I didn't even know the shelf existed, but the prayer worked."

Now, before someone reconstructs the Spanish Inquisition with me as the guest of honor, let me add that I'm a good Catholic-lad myself who spent every Saturday for 12 years at catechism classes at St. Dennis in Royal Oak.

I've celebrated every sacrament except Holy Orders (becoming a priest) and the Last Rites. I'll probably be a candidate for that after this column airs.

For those of you long on fervor and short on humor, I'm also working on a satirical story about TV evangelists. It's titled, "The White Shoes for Jesus Gospel Hour."

Will that stop you from calling in?

Hertel to begin cable TV program

Acknowledging the growing presence of cable TV in his district, Congressman Dennis Hertel (D-Harper Woods) will begin a series of monthly cable television programs to be broadcast on five cable TV systems in 12 cities of the 14th Congressional District.

"Dennis Hertel's Capitol Report" is designed to provide information and discussion of national issues in a way that will be useful to local viewers.

The first program, scheduled to be aired this month, features an interview with Congressman Mike Lowry of Seattle regarding the 1986 Defense Budget and Coast Guard stations in the Great Lakes. The program also incorporates several excerpts of debate on the defense budget which took place recently on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives and a special segment in which Hertel responds to letters from his constituents. The congressman's wife, Cindy Hertel, will host the program.

The program can be seen on the public access channels of the following local cable TV systems:

- Comcast Cablevision (Channel 9) which serves Sterling Heights, Warren, Utica and Grosse Pointe Shores;

- Grosse Pointe Cable (Channel 11) which serves Grosse Pointe Woods, Grosse Pointe Farm and Harper Woods.

Citizens should consult local listings for the specific dates and times of broadcast.

Controlling stress

A "You Can Control Stress" workshop will be offered at Cottage Hospital Thursday, Sept. 26, 7 to 20 p.m., and continue for the next two Thursdays, Oct. 3 and Oct. 10. The workshop is held in Boardroom B on the lower level of the hospital, 159 Kercheval, between Moross and Cadieux roads.

Enrollment is limited. A $15 fee is charged. To enroll, call 884-8600, ext. 2390.

Park teen featured on NBC news program

By Sue Etherington McKinney

Kea J. McKinney, a 17-year-old South High senior, has been selected by NBC television to be the first teen correspondent on a national news magazine TV show, "Main Street," aimed at teens, is set to air monthly, and the first show featuring McKinney will be shown in this area Saturday, Oct. 5 at 2 p.m. on Channel 4.

"Main Street's" host Bryant Gumbel will meet McKinney when she goes to New York tomorrow to tape the show with him. Also on the set that day will be Michael J. Fox of "Family Ties."

That will be the final taping of a piece that McKinney is doing about the proposed warning labels for records. A group of Washington senators' wives recently tormented the Parent Music Resource Center in an effort to obtain a rating system for records. Senate hearings on the issue are scheduled to begin today.

McKinney, a Park resident, is editor of The Tower, South High's school newspaper. Tower adviser Robert Button recommended her for the reporting job based on two journalism awards she won in Michigan Press Women contests.

Her interviews included a three-hour filming session with the wife of Tennessee Senator Albert Gore. She then flew back to New York with her field producer, Cynthia Brush, a former Dearborn resident, who now lives in New York.

After an overnight stay at the Berkshire Hotel, where "Saturday Night Live" guests stay, McKinney says she was given star treatment at NBC and saw the mock-up of the stage for "Main Street." In New York she also interviewed Stan Gortikov, president of the Recording Industry Association of America.

Back in Grosse Pointe, McKinney and Brush met still another camera crew at Windmill Pointe Park and Village Records and Tapes to ask teens what they think of the proposed ratings.

She interviewed Dick Purtan during his morning show on WCZY and Larry Elliot of WJLB. She also taped the views of Free Press writers Mike Duffy and Gary Graff. McKinney's final interview was in Washington with Senator Larry Pressler of South Dakota.

Brush then came to Detroit where she and McKinney put the final touches on the piece, working at the local NBC affiliate, WDIV. The story, with hours of taping and talking done, will be seen in a five-minute segment.

The difference between growing a beard and trimming it is the difference between pogonotrophy and pogonotomy.

Braille transcription class offered

A free Braille transcription course will be offered at the War Memorial on Thursdays beginning Sept. 26 and continuing through May 29, from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

There is no charge for the course, however materials will be furnished, at cost, for approximately $25. The instructor will be Ruth McNamara.

Participants will learn to translate printed material into Braille. The course will culminate with some preparation of a manuscript that may be submitted to the Library of Congress for certification as a qualified transcriber.

McNamara, a longtime Grosse Pointe resident, is president of the Braille Volunteers of Grosse Pointe. Founded 18 years ago, the group has transcribed scripts for actors from New York, material for pianist Bess Bonnier and textbooks for students.

"We specialize in books for children because they have such a need for them," she said.

Anyone interested in joining the class may register by calling the War Memorial at 881-7511.

Volunteers needed for home health care

St. Clair Ambulatory Care Corporation's Home Health Care Services is seeking volunteers for its Home Care Volunteer Program.

Services include helping the frail elderly in friendly visiting, companionship and errand-running. Volunteers will be reimbursed for mileage.

A nine-hour volunteer training program will be held Wednesday through Friday, Sept. 25, 26 and 27 at St. John Hospital. This program will focus on effective listening, communication, social activities and basic body mechanics.

Interested persons can call Deanna McGraw, MSW, Home Care, Volunteer coordinator, at 343-3738.

It's back to the books for Kea McKinney, South High senior and editor of The Tower, who was selected as the first teen correspondent for a national news show aimed at teens. She's shown here with Tower adviser Robert Button.

Hospice volunteers needed

About 85 people are now active hospice volunteers at Cottage Hospital, but more are needed to cover a variety of neighborhoods.

The fall Hospice Volunteer Training session at Cottage Hospital began Monday, Sept. 16, 6:30 p.m. in the boardrooms, lower level. It continues for eight consecutive Mondays. Cottage is located at 159 Kercheval Ave.

Cancer patients, their families, and other interested friends also are invited to attend the first four sessions which make up "The Caring Person Program." This workshop provides basic information about caring for a terminally ill person and offers a support group for participants — a framework for healthy dialogue and an exchange of ideas.

Those persons who want to train to become Hospice Volunteers attend The Caring Person sessions and then continue their classes for four additional weeks.

In the Hospice Volunteer program, men and women, age 18 and up, are trained in listening and communication skills to assist them in their role as support persons for terminal patients and their families. As hospice volunteers, they telephone or make personal visits to the patients in the hospital or at home. They help to comfort the patient by reading aloud, talking, or, most importantly, listening.

Prospective Hospice Volunteers

need not have previous medical training, but should have a caring attitude and a willingness to act as a friend to the family. A support system of physicians, nurses, social workers, therapists, and clergy is always available to the hospice volunteer to answer questions and assist where needed.

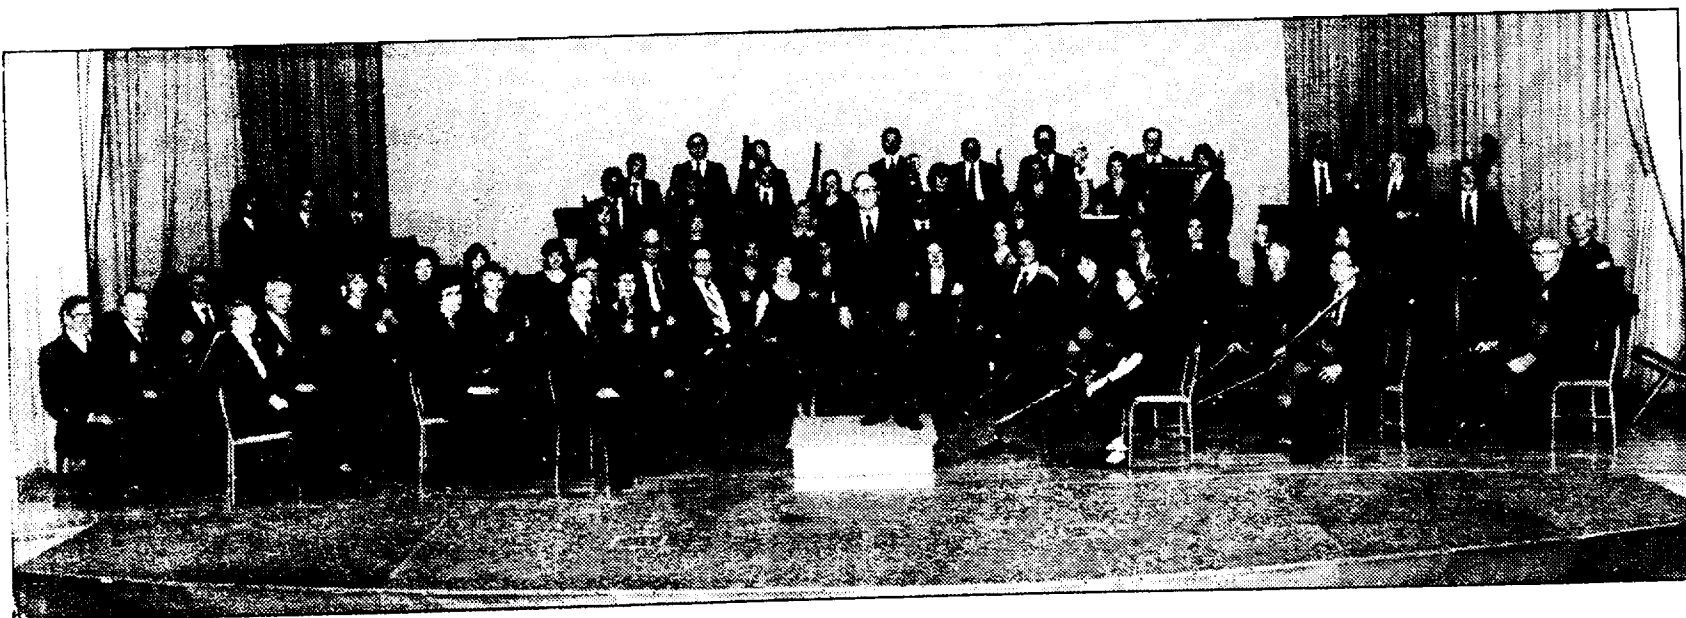

The eight-week Hospice training prepares volunteers for a wide range of family situations and patient conditions. Prospective volunteers are led through the various stages of cancer. They learn how to help the patient and family cope with the progression of the disease, and provide an important link between the patient at home and the hospital medical team.

Various types of cancer are studied as well as radiation treatment, chemotherapy, symptom and pain control, nutrition, respiratory problems, stages of death and dying, the grief process, and other aspects of patient care the hospice volunteer may need to know. Insurance and legal matters related to the terminally ill patient also are discussed.

Julia Arango, hospice volunteer coordinator, matches volunteers with compatible patients. Home location, schedule, personality, hobbies and other interests are taken into account. Volunteers can help out during the day, in the evening or on weekends, as available. For more information, call her at 884-8600, ext. 2464.

On Friday, September 27, the opening day of Grosse Pointe Symphony Week, the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association will present a Membership Fall Fashion Show at Jacobson's in the store's St. Clair Room, with a string quartet and modeling by members. At other times during the week live music will be played at Jacobson's during the luncheon and dinner hours.

To carry out the theme during the week, windows throughout the business section of the "Hill" and the "Village" will be decorated with musical instruments or displaying Music in some way. We encourage our residents and their families, especially the children, to come view these displays. Stop in and show your appreciation to our fine local establishments and become acquainted with one of the great musical assets in Grosse Pointe.

"The Grosse Pointe Symphony"

Pick up a brochure of the Symphony's coming season schedule in various stores — as well as take home a symphony placemat, which you will find during Grosse Pointe Symphony Week in many restaurants.

There will be live music in the air all week. And the finale will be the Grosse Pointe Symphony Society's Inner Circle of Musical Chairs gala at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, on Friday evening, October 4, which will include cocktails, dinner, a Broadway Revue by the Michigan Opera Theatre, followed by dancing.

A contribution of $150 endows an orchestra chair for the 1985-86 season and also entitles donor to dinner and cocktails for two at the gala. Telephone 886-9102 for further information about Inner Circle of Musical Chairs.

Wheel cover thieves caught

A Detroit man, 37, and a Warren man, 25, looking for easy pickings were foiled by Farms police Aug. 20. The two were arrested and charged with larceny over $100, carrying a concealed weapon and possession of narcotics paraphernalia, according to police reports.

As they slowly cruised an alley behind Mack Avenue, they were observed by two men working in separate offices. Both men took careful note of the description of the car and of the license number.

When the alleged thieves stopped their car beside a 1984 Buick and removed two wire wheel covers, the two observers called Farms police. A squad car stopped the car before it had gone two blocks.

Police suspicions were raised when the driver got out of his car and came back to the police car. The officers ordered him back to his car, where they found the passenger sitting on the wheel covers. Two additional wheel covers were in the back seat in plain view, according to the report.

A routine pat-down for offensive weapons revealed drug paraphernalia inside the sock of the driver and a 3 3/4-inch knife in the passenger's pocket. Both men were charged.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

Best of all, ordering Amitol is simple, fast, and reliable! Simply call Dyna Labs Toll Free: (1-800-441-5454) Ext. 911, and order with your credit card. If you don't have a credit card Dyna Labs will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! All orders are shipped immediately by UPS, which means no delay and no orders lost in the mail!

$19.95—30 day supply, or $35.95—60 day supply. Operators are standing by and will be glad to take your order. You can order 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a week! Please don't wait to call. You really do deserve to be thin!

First grade is first step into real world

Richard School first-grader Jenny Miller colors workbook pictures to correspond to the color-coded letters at the top of the page.

By Nancy Parmenter

First grade is a revolution. Even for today's kids, many of whom spend two or three years in school before first grade, it still represents that big step toward real life with its increased assignments, regimentation and expectations. And it's the first time they have to stay in school all day.

"We have to spend so much time on teacher directions at first," said Richard School first-grade teacher Pandora Buterakos. "We have to make sure they understand and don't feel pressured. They're still so young — I don't want to panic them."

Although Buterakos' students have only been in school for two weeks so far, their pre-reading practice and the exposure that some had to reading outside of school have prepared them for the morning's first exercise, reading the day's activities from the blackboard. "Today is Sept. 16, 1986," the exercise begins, taking due note of the small word "to" contained in "today," and the word "is" that they have learned in pre-reading.

Gregory stands up to read the five sentences describing the morning. He runs his fingers through his hair, flushes slightly, and reads it perfectly.

Buterakos is busy as she fields procedural questions from her 22 students. "When do we go to the library?" "How do we check out the class book?" "Will we have show and tell tomorrow?"

Discussion of the unfamiliar procedures is necessary to help the students feel comfortable with their new environment. This morning in assembly they started to learn the words to the Richard school song. In class, they will have something new as well: the first day of reading groups. Questions fly again, speculating on what the groups will do and how they were selected. Buterakos takes pains to explain the new system, praising the children as she goes along. "I like the way Michelle uses her good manners in listening," she tells the class.

Because the reading groups are small, most of the class will have to work on something else during reading time. Also for the first time, Buterakos gives a three-page workbook assignment for them to work on without ongoing help from the teacher. She spends the better part of a half-hour going through the instructions and working sample problems with the class.

"I need some really good listeners," Buterakos tells them, as they go over the pages.

The workbook contains letters and pictures to be matched up according to the initial sound of their name. The class has already studied letter sounds and most of them can tell whether the sound occurs at the beginning, middle or end of a word.

One of the problems calls for the students to pick a word beginning with a particular letter, which, furthermore, makes sense in the given of work do I expect from you?" "Good work," they chorus. "If I don't get to you in the first group, do you have to worry?" "No," they understand.

Buterakos calls five names for the first reading group as the other children start to work, chattering softly. Some stand up, craning their necks to see what the reading group is doing.

They receive a new reader, done in a combination of pictures and words called rebus reading. The first page introduces the five story characters.

One of them is named "Andy." Buterakos points out that the small word "and" is part of the name and the "y" is sounded as long "ee." "It should be a vowel," Gregory notices.

Mirroring events in Buterakos' class is the other Richard first grade, taught by Chris Hea in an identical classroom. The rooms are ideally designed for young students — homey touches like armchairs and a fireplace and a window seat add to the relaxed environment.

The class will share many events this year. Whenever the two tea-situation. A backyard scene offers a choice between "dog," "desk," and "gate." Ruling "gate" out is easy for the class — the lesson of letter sounds is well learned. They ponder a bit longer deciding between "dog" and "desk," but come up with the right answer when urged to put on their thinking caps.

Teacher Pandora Buterakos introduces her first-graders to the very first reader in the year's very first reading group. Concentrating are Kristen Groman and Sandra Hammel (back row). Facing away from the camera are (from the bottom) Mark Conrad, Gregory Schulte and Tracy Riddel.

A few reassuring procedural questions before the first reading group is finally called: "What kind chers show a film or take a field trip, it will be as a group.

From time to time throughout the school year, the Grosse Pointe News will stop in for another glimpse of the first-graders as they learn their way around. "They'll have their routine down pat in a few weeks," Buterakos predicted. "They get to know it so well that you can't change it."

Residents restore building

Grosse Pointe residents F. Philip Colista and John R. Urso, and attorney Kenneth J. LaMotte are the general partners of GTB Associates, the owner of the newly restored Globe Building in Detroit.

GTB Associates bought the building, formerly the Globe Tobacco Building, in early 1984 and restoration began in the spring. The six-floor structure once was the home of the Globe Tobacco Company and was used for the manufacture of tobacco products until the late 1920s.

Colista, a senior member of the law firm of Colista, Urso, Adams and Dettmer, said, "When I first saw the Globe Building, its potential for a great office building at an ideal location was readily apparent."

It is located across from the old Wayne County Building. The new Millender Center, is only one block away, with the Ren-Cen three blocks from the Globe.

"All of us in the firm saw the opportunity to become part of the exciting redevelopment of downtown Detroit," Calista said, "and we believe that the Globe Building is absolutely the most startling and unusual office structure in the city."

The exterior will look as it did when it was built in 1889, however, the interior will be different. Architects Louis G. Redstone & Associates (who designed University Liggett School's Creative and Performing Arts Center) have transformed the building from its historic beginning as a tobacco factory to its present use as a modern office center. A sky-lit atrium provides the natural light which enhances the building's brick and wood interior.

Two passenger elevators have been installed and a marble floor has been laid in the lobby. It is anticipated that the six floors will be used for offices and the lowest level of the building, a limestone-lined basement, will be the home of a restaurant.

Seminar on pain relief scheduled

"Pain: Assessment and Intervention in Clinical Practice," a seminar for medical professionals, clergy, and other caregivers who are in contact with people in pain, will be held at the War Memorial Thursday, Oct. 10, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. The seminar is sponsored by Bon Secours Hospital education and staff development department.

Margo McCaffery, R.M., M.S., F.A.A.N., a nursing consultant and educator in pain relief, will discuss the basic techniques that caregivers can use to assess and help patients with pain. She will discuss different expressions of pain, accountabilities that hamper the assessment and treatment of pain by the health care team, and several methods of pain relief in addition to medications.

The registration fee is $50 and $35 for students with current ID. The fee includes all conference materials, lunch and refreshments. Those not involved in the administration of medication may choose to attend the morning session only, for a registration fee of $25. Lunch, if desired, is an additional $8. The deadline for registration is Friday, Sept. 27. No confirmation of registration will be sent. Cancellations after Sept. 27 will not be refunded. Bon Secours Hospital reserves the right to cancel the conference if minimum registration is not obtained.

Seven and one-half Continuing Education Credit contact hours will be granted to registered nurses by the education and staff development department of Bon Secours Hospital, which has received program approval from the Michigan Nurses Association. Seven and one-half National Association for Practical Nurses Education Service contact hours will be given to licensed practical nurses. A certificate of completion will be given to all other participants who complete the workshop.

Herb group to sponsor annual sale

The Grosse Pointe Unit of the Herb Society of America will hold its annual sale of herbal delights on the grounds of the Grosse Pointe Academy, Sunday, Sept. 22 in conjunction with the centennial celebration of the academy.

Potpourri, culinary treats, recipes, herbal wreaths, moth retardant made from herbs and a variety of hand-crafted herbal treasures will be offered from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Herb Society of America is dedicated to studying herbs for "use and delight." Members volunteer their time to maintain a study garden on the grounds of the Academy. Access for students and teachers allows for nature study opportunities. Members create many of the items that will be offered at the sale.

Proceeds from the sale go toward maintaining the garden at the school and also a portion will be earmarked for development of the Herb Garden at the National Arboretum in Washington, D.C.

Weather permitting, the sale will be set up around the garden, so viewers will have an opportunity to view the plants as they are growing and also see them in their post-harvest recreations. The use of herbs in the American diet has grown dramatically over the past few years with the growing interest in regional foods and diet consciousness.

Preserves, herbal seasoning blends, soup mix and baked goods made with herbs will all be available. Prices of the items range from 50 cents and up, allowing for a wide variety of gift selection items for children and adults.

Oriental, watercolor, portrait painting offered at War Memorial

Three diverse art classes will be offered beginning this month at the War Memorial.

For an Eastern Flavor, "Sumi-E Oriental Painting" will be taught by Mary Bowman on Thursdays,
Sept. 26 through Nov. 21, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Beginning and continuing students will learn standard oriental flower forms and landscape painting. No previous experience is necessary for the $63 per-person course. Students may purchase their materials at the first session.

"Watercolor: In Search of Fresh Imagery" will be taught by Grosse Pointe Patricia Dorsey, who is a new addition to the Center's staff of artists, on Thursdays, beginning

Sept. 26, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Dorsey will encourage students to seek fresh imagery for watercolor painting through a keener perception of our world. Emphasis will be on the search for unique subject matter or commonplace subjects seen from an unusual point of view. Flexible assigned problems will allow students to develop their painting according to their personal preference, such as from realism to abstraction.

She has studied at the Center for Creative Studies, Pewabic Pottery at Michigan State University, Oxbow summer school of the Art Institute of Chicago, and has degrees from Smith and Meredith colleges.
Her work has been seen in numerous juried exhibitions and she is a contributing artist to the Detroit Artists Market and the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The cost of her 10-week watercolor class is $85.

Artist Robert Maniscalco will teach "Portrait Painting" on Mondays, Sept. 30 through Nov. 18, from noon to 3 p.m. Various techniques of observation and drafting will be pursued to enable students to develop their skills in the art of portraiture. The cost is $60 plus model fee.

Additional information on these classes and the October art offerings may be obtained by calling the War Memorial at 881-7511.

the country and reflect the appreciation of the "new" painting in America and Europe. The class begins on Wednesday, Oct. 23. Fee is $20.

"The Edsel and Eleanor Ford

Large class sizes continue to cause board problems

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Board of Education is expected to meet some time this week to consider ways of alleviating class size problems in the elementary and secondary schools in the wake of an unexpected jump in enrollment.

A census taken four days into the school year showed elementary classrooms with 179 more students than projected, and 63 more students at the middle schools. Projection of student population is used to set staffing levels at the schools.

Superintendent John Whritner met with other administrators last Thursday to look at ways to work on the problem of large class sizes and said he hoped to call a special meeting this week to present specific recommendations to alleviate the problem.

The board has already hired three full-time elementary school teachers and approved funding for the hiring of part-time instructors at the middle school for a cost of about $125,000. But there are still 19 elementary classes throughout the district in which there are 26 or more students.

While class sizes haven't sparked the same reaction as last year among parents — when some came to meetings asking the board to hire teachers and realign sections — the president of the Grosse Pointe Education Association gave the board an earful at the Sept. 9 meeting at Parcels Middle School.

Large class sizes have been one of the top two topics of discussion among teachers lately, GPEA president Doris Cook told the board. While the board was to be commended for acting quickly to hire three elementary school teachers and although class sizes have been falling in the last few years, there are still some problem areas, she added.

One social studies teacher at one of the high schools has five classes with a total of 149 students, Cook said. Also, there are 34 students in the Advanced Placement mathematics class at South and 37 enrolled in the junior high ability math class there, she said.

In order for students to receive the full benefits of the AP classes, there should be no more than 20 students in each, Cook said. Last year, there were also large sections in history and mathematics classes.

"Those classes should be split," Cook told the board. "They should definitely not be up there. They should be divided and then they would be the appropriate size."

When board President Jon Gandelot interrupted Cook to tell her that staff problems were best brought before the administration and then, if necessary, referred to the board, Cook told him that the teacher at South asking that the AP section be split was told that it couldn't be done. She added that "no way should a high ability class be up in the middle-30s. It should be in around 20 in order to provide the training to take the AP exam."

Another cause of concern is the mainstreaming of students with special needs into elementary classrooms for part of the day, bolstering the enrollment there.

If those students being mainstreamed were given "weighted" value in the class — as is done in districts like Bloomfield and Birmingham — they would be counted as two students, Cook said.

"I always thought that special needs kids should be hand-scheduled. Hand-scheduling could distribute them better," she said.

Such a situation robs both the mainstreamed student and the rest of the complete educational opportunity, Cook said.

"If I were a parent of either the special ed kids or the other kids, I would be most concerned to have one of my students in a class with such a division between mainstreaming and regular students because I think they are getting shortchanged on both sides," Cook said.

"The teacher has a sense of bitterness because he or she knows they are not doing a quality teaching job that he or she is capable of because of the composition of the class," she added.

The system needs to look into development of a system of teacher aides to help teachers with large class sizes, she added.

Trustee Joan Hanpeter said she wanted to give a "different viewpoint" on the large class sizes.

"Last year ... we invited our freshmen college students to come back for a day prior to Christmas vacation" for a college information day," Hanpeter said.

"I took some time to visit with these students. One of the things that impressed me most ... and one of the things that came up most frequently was the larger class sizes," Hanpeter said. "One of the greatest problems they said they had was coping with the large sizes of certain classes where they couldn't get personal attention from the instructor."

Hanpeter also noted that high school administration should look into AP class sizes.

Cook's comments had one administrator grumbling loudly from the audience. Others saved their comments until after the meeting adjourned.

If the administration wants to have larger classes to give students a lecture hall experience, five sections can be combined once or twice a semester in the auditorium, Cook said later. College professors presiding over 200 or 300 students during lectures don't have many of the burdens of high school teachers, such as keeping order or taking attendance.

Retired Edison chief Hamann remembered

John R. Hamann, former Detroit Edison vice chairman of the board, president and chief operating officer, was remembered for his service to the company for more than 40 years.

"His knowledge, foresight and expertise served Detroit Edison well and his presence in this company, through his major involvement in planning engineering and construction, can still be felt and will be with us for a long time to come," said Walter J. McCarthy Jr., chairman and chief executive officer. "His invaluable guidance and counsel will be sorely missed by all and I will miss him as a fine man and personal friend."

Mr. Hamann died Sept. 4 in Bon Secours Hospital of complications from acute emphysema. He was 70.

He was elected vice chairman of the board of directors of Detroit Edison in 1979 and served in that position until his retirement in 1980. For four years prior to that he was president and chief operating officer of the company.

A native of Chicago, Mr. Hamann was reared in Hartford, Mich., and attended Michigan State University where he received a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering in 1937. He joined Detroit Edison that same year as a junior engineer in the company's Production Department.

His career was interrupted by service in the U.S. Army from September 1940 to November 1945 during which he rose from 2nd Lieutenant to Lieutenant Colonel. Upon return to Detroit Edison, Mr. Hamann served in a variety of supervisory and managerial posts in the Production Department. He was appointed manager of operations in 1970, elected vice president for production in 1971 and in 1973, he was elected executive vice president for operations.

At the time of his death, Mr. Hamann was a member of the board of directors of the National Bank of Detroit and a member of the board of trustees of NBD Trust Company of Florida. He also was serving as a member of the board of directors of Bon Secours Hospital and Lawrence Institute of Technology.

Prior to his 1980 retirement, he had been a member of the Edison Electric Institute, the Michigan Committee for Jobs and Energy, Detroit Renaissance Foundation, the Engineering Alumni Association of Michigan State University, the Economic Club of Detroit, the Michigan Opera Theatre and the Business/Education Alliance. He also served as a director and board chairman of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce.

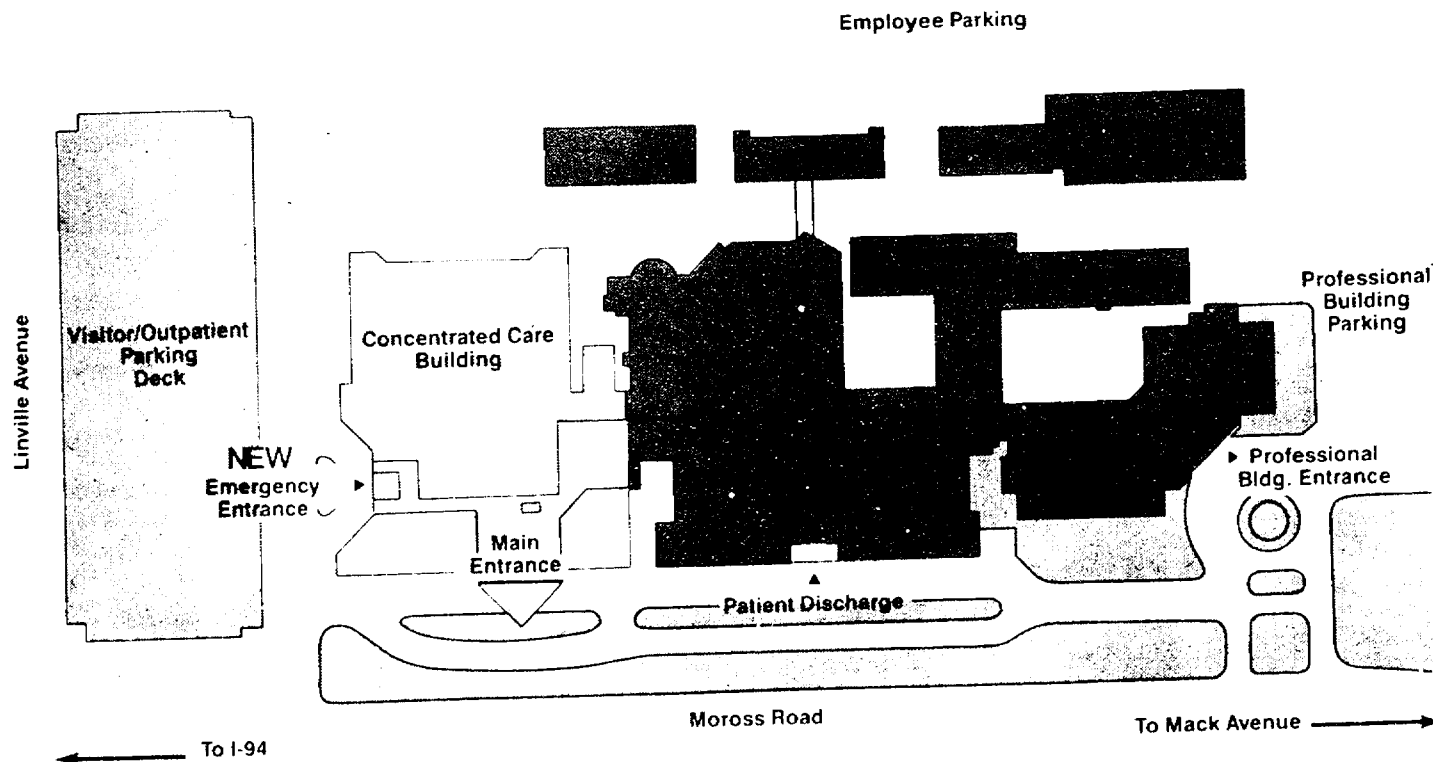

He served as councilman for the city of Grosse Pointe from 1967 until 1970 and is a past president of Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church.

Mr. Hamann earned the Alex Dow Award in 1947, Detroit Edison's highest employee recognition. In 1977 he received an honorary doctor of science degree from Michigan State University and in 1982 was the recipient of an honorary doctor of engineering degree from Lawrence Institute of Technology.

In addition to his lifelong love of golf, Mr. Hamann was an amateur painter.

He is survived by his wife, Lois, a married daughter, Joan Mountford, and sons Rial, John and Steve.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Grosse Pointe Woods has received approval for Merger Conversion with Central State Savings Bank and form the resulting institution of Colonial Central Savings Bank, FSB from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington.

Robert E. Powers, President of Colonial, said information and proxy materials were mailed to the association's customers this past week.

Under the plan of Merger Conversion, final approval by a majority of voting members is expected at a special meeting on September 26, 1985. If the plan is approved, members will not be required to purchase stock, but will have the first option to do so.

"The savers, borrowers, employees, officers and directors of Colonial Federal will be given the opportunity to purchase the first shares of stock in Colonial," Powers pointed out. He said all the remaining stock following this subscription offering would be made available to the general public through a community offering. The price per share of all Central Holding Co. stock to all purchasers in both the subscription offering and the community offering will be the same.

"The additional equity capital received from the stock sale will support the merged association's future growth, increase our ability to provide mortgage loans and expand our services to the community we serve," he said.

Powers noted the "savings account holders will continue to hold accounts in the resulting Savings Bank identical as to dollar amount, rate of return and general terms as presently held.

"Savings account will continue to be insured to $100,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, an agency of the United States government.

Following the Merger Conversion, Powers said Colonial Central Savings Bank will operate as a federally-chartered stock association and will maintain its membership in the Federal Home Loan Bank System.

Normal business of the Association in accepting savings and making loans will continue without interruption in its 7 existing offices. Borrowers' loans will be unaffected by the conversion.

Powers said details of the offering and resulting Savings Bank's operations are described in an offering prospectus that will be available from the Association or completion of the following request form. Interested purchasers of stock may obtain the prospectus by completing the following request form or calling Colonial at 886-1080.

Adult day care week is set

For the third consecutive year, U.S. Rep. Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, introduced a resolution designating the week of Sept. 22 as "National Adult Day Care Center Week." The proposal won overwhelming support in the U.S. House of Representatives before the August recess.

"The purpose of this resolution is to help increase public awareness of adult day care as a cost effective alternative to nursing home care for the aged. Evidenced by their rapid growth, adult day care centers are a good way to provide quality care for senior citizens and infirm individuals in need of part-time professional care," Hertel said in a press release.

Adult day care centers provide medical and nutritional assistance in a social setting to partially disabled adults and senior citizens. The centers help individuals maintain their independence longer and prevent premature institutionalization. These centers also relieve families of the strain of 24-hour care for an ailing relative living at home.

"An estimated 25 percent of nursing home residents clearly do not need the expensive, full-time care offered in nursing homes," Hertel said. "This resolution gives the American public an opportunity to become better informed about the benefits of adult day care centers."

Most of the 20 adult day care centers in the metropolitan Detroit area are nonprofit organizations where patients are charged according to their ability to pay. Costs at these centers are generally a fraction of the cost of daily nursing home care but still provide nurses, physical therapists, nutritionists and/or geriatric specialists who monitor the patient's health, nutrition and social needs.

"These centers provide senior citizens the dignity and self-esteem that helps them live longer, happier lives," commented Hertel.

As a member of the Select Committee on Aging, the congressman has always been interested in senior citizen issues like adult day care. He has studied the adult day care concept as a member of the Health and Long-Term Care Subcommittee.

Cleopatra cigarettes in Egypt cost the equivalent of 42 cents a pack. The government fixed the price. But the factories can't keep up with the demand. Correspondents say the Cleopatra shortage generated more complaints than the numerous power failures.

South schedules orientation night

A special orientation program for parents of ninth graders and parents of new students will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 25, in the Grosse Pointe South gymnasium.

The evening's program will begin with a general session and conclude with small group meetings and led by South's seven counselors.

Members of the high school administrative team will be introduced and discuss their major duties and responsibilities during the general session.

Other speakers scheduled include Phyllis Rabbideau, Mothers' Club president; Brian Howe, Dads' Club past president; James Curran, Student Association president, and Jack Coury, freshman class adviser.

The small group meetings of parents with the counselors of their students will last about one hour and will give parents an opportunity to meet their student's counselor. They will also give counselors a chance to address questions and concerns parents may have.

Residents named

Several Grosse Pointers have been elected to offices in the newly reorganized Michigan Society of Colonial Wars, the statewide chapter of the National Society of Colonial Wars.

They are Alexander Wiener, deputy governor; Donald M.D. Thurber, deputy governor general; Boyce Tope, secretary; Cleveland Thurber Jr., treasurer; and Cleveland Thurber, chancellor.

Four residents were named to the board of directors of the organization; Harold Emmons Jr., Gaylord Gillis Jr., James McMillan and Robert Taylor.

Members of the society are direct descendants of ancestors who served under arms on the side of the Colonies and/or who held high civil office during the Colonial Period, 1607-1775.

Among its stated purposes are to "perpetuate the memory of the events of Colonial history... collect and preserve manuscripts... to inspire patriotic spirit of our forefathers, and... community respect and reverence for those whose public services made our freedom and unity possible."

For more information, call Secretary Tope at 884-1945.

Polo player charged

By Tom Greenwood

Two years of groundwork by federal agents culminated in the arrest of a 33-year-old St. Clair Shores man last week on charges of heroin importation and distribution, according to Robert DuFauw, head of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration in Detroit.

Arrested at his Shore Club home Sept. 11 was Zubair Idris, also known as Zubair Pervaiz, a Pakistani national who immigrated to the United States from Rawalpindi, Pakistan in 1979.

Idris, who works as a furniture salesman, is a member of the Detroit Polo Club in Milford and was highlighted in a story about polo in the Grosse Pointe News a week before his arrest.

According to authorities, Idris was part of an international ring that smuggles heroin into the U.S. through New York City with the use of couriers. Some of those couriers were arrested upon arrival in New York. DeFauw declined to give specifics on how the heroin was physically transported, reserving the information for later testimony.

Idris was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Marcia Cooke Sept. 12, who agreed to remand him to the Federal Correctional Institution at Milan until a Sept. 23 hearing, at which officials will transfer him to New York for additional charges.

DeFauw explained that federal officials were afraid Idris might flee the country if released on bond and that it had been established he had $3 million in assets in Pakistan and at least $100,000 in debts in this country.

DeFauw said it hadn't been established yet whether the money in Pakistan was profits from the heroin smuggling. He also said the U.S. did not have an extradition policy with Pakistan.

One of the charges against Idris is that he imported three pounds of heroin in February and July 1983. The smugglers allegedly received the drugs from the northwest frontier province of Pakistan, where it is believed most of the heroin in the Detroit area originates.

Wholesale value of the drugs was put at $180,000 per kilo (2.2 pounds), which converts to 2.5 million by the time it reaches the street, according to DeFauw.

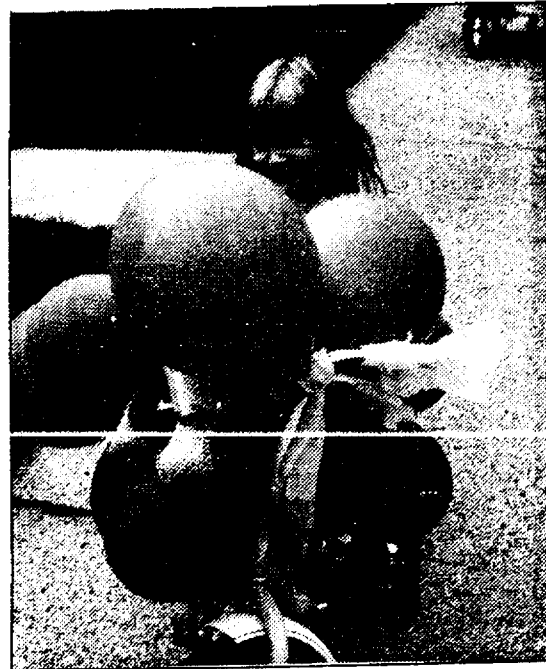

If convicted, Idris could receive up to 25 years in prison and a fine of $125,000.

St. John to open new emergency center

St. John Hospital will open its new Emergency and Express Care Centers, located in the hospital's Concentrated Care Building addition, beginning 8 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 23. The Concentrated Care Building (CCB) is located on the west end of the hospital.

The new Emergency and Express Care Centers will provide a more spacious and comfortable setting with the most technologically advanced equipment to treat the more than 40,000 emergency patients who visit annually.

As a nationally designated Trauma Center, St. John Hospital is prepared to treat major and life-threatening emergencies in the Emergency Center's special Trauma Room and Cardiac Room. The new Express Care Center treats less serious illnesses and injuries such as colds, sprains and minor cuts, but without the wait and at a lower cost.

A new X-ray department and an expanded laboratory are located near the Emergency Center to provide faster and more convenient service to emergency patients. A new Emergency Center pharmacy is also planned to open in November 1985.

ing skills in the media of felt pen, pastels, colored pencils and crayon.

Not complying would probably bring a lawsuit from the Attorney General's office while leaving the affected students without transportation to the needed programs.

That's three or four times a day, folks. That's 1,460 times a year! Where do these women find the time to earn that $39,000? What's for lunch? Oh, just the usual bushel of oysters.

To the relief of our self images here at the paper, the article went on and said the survey showed 50 percent of the women actually managed sex once or twice a week, 18 percent three or more times a week and 30 percent just two or three times a month.

That's only 98 percent of the survey group. Just what are the other two percent up to?

"It's pretty clear what our mandate is. I really can't see how further litigation is going to clarify the issue," Herbert added.

For parochial school parents who don't want to take part in the public school program, there are private therapists available, Hunt said. There are also some services that will be offered by the parochial schools themselves.

Taking a child out of the public school program will not mean helping the child away from help forever, Hunt said. Parents can try what's available elsewhere and still return to the public schools for service later on.

That doesn't mollify some parents, who are indignant about the disruption of their child's school day. As one parent said, "I think we should write the Supreme Court justices and ask them, 'Is this what you meant to happen?' ... I wonder if you'd get an answer."

In Sweden, not only may a wife go exclusively by her husband's surname, if she so desires, but a husband may take for himself his wife's surname only, too.

Open house Sunday

A wealth of history on parade as Alger House turns 75

In celebration of the 75th anniversary of Alger House, the War Memorial invites the community to the Diamond Jubilee Open House Sunday, Sept. 22, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Service League docents will be on hand to give tours of the Alger House, to answer questions about its rich history, its furnishings, and its first and only residents, the Russell A. Alger family.

The activity will spill onto the grounds when the Music Makers, a sub-club of the Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe, provide a musical beat on the terrace, entertaining residents as they have done over the past nine years.

"We take no pay," says the group's chairman/director, Frank Seydler. "We play for the people of the community."

Any money they do make through donations goes directly to the War Memorial. Next Sunday they'll perform "at home," — non-professionals giving a professional performance.

Also on the grounds will be a display of antique cars, courtesy of the Veteran Car Club of America and the Michigan Region Classic Car Club of America.

On display will be a 1915 Ford Model "T" Roadster; a 1921 Ford Model "T" Fire Engine; a 1922 Ford Model "T" Stake Truck; a 1923 Franklin Demi-Sedan; a 1924 Buick four-door sedan; a 1925 Chrysler Phaeton; a 1934 LaSalle Convertible Coupe; a 1937 Cadillac Convertible Sedan; a 1939 Plymouth Convertible Sedan; a 1939 Ford Convertible Coupe; and, a 1940 Buick Two Door Sedan.

Demonstrations of arts and crafts will abound, while the light of foot may enjoy a dance with an instructor. An art exhibit featuring the work of the Robert L. Kidd Galleries of Birmingham will also be on display in the Art Wing for everyone's perusal. The Kidd Galleries will give a donation to the War Memorial from any art sold during the afternoon.

Children will delight in meeting members of the Grosse Pointe Farms Fire Department, who will have two fire engines and an ambulance with them. There will also be games for children to play, and Roscoe the Clown will be on hand to put smiles on youngster's faces.

Food will be available for a nominal cost. Admission is free.

Harry Chadsey looks over the period dresses the docents will wear at the War Memorial's open house Sunday, Sept. 22. Lillian Forrest is at the left and Betty Kaye on the right. Chadsey, the only male docent, will also be the only docent not in period costume.

Local banks merge, company stock offered

By Nancy Parmenter

The merger between Grosse Pointe's Colonial Federal Savings & Loan and Central State Savings & Loan of Mount Clemens, predicted last December, is under way. Voting members will be asked to consider the proposition at a special meeting Sept. 26. Stock in the proposed new company is already for sale.

The subscription period for the common stock in the new company, Colonial Central Savings Bank, expires two days before the meeting, but can be extended 45 days if the stock fails to move well.

"We expect approval from our members," said Mark Mudge, senior vice president for Colonial Federal, who expects to be named president of Colonial Central. He was also optimistic about the stock sale, saying he anticipates a complete sellout by Sept. 24.

The merger is expected to bring the potential for some new services to customers of Colonial Federal. The new company will be large enough to make the installation of an automatic teller machine system feasible, Mudge said. In addition, the company is currently investigating several credit card programs. Other services, such as car, boat and home loans, which are already offered at Colonial Federal, will continue to be available.

At present, Colonial Federal is a mutual institution which has no stockholders. Under the reorganization, it will be converted into a federally chartered savings bank organized in stock form.

"We expect approval from our members."

— Mark Mudge

The company is offering 1,117,857 shares of common stock at $3.50 per share. Savers at the two institutions have first priority for buying the shares, which are being offered concurrently to the community, according to the prospectus. If all the shares are not sold, the merger conversion will not take place.

The merger will result in an institution with "stronger financial and managerial resources and greater operational diversification than either association would have if it continued to operate without merging," the prospectus states. It will improve the institution's ability to "increase its capital to support future growth and expansion of its deposit, mortgage lending and other activities" through the sale of additional stock.

Growth is also anticipated through mergers and acquisitions. The proceeds of the stock sale will be invested in real estate loans and short-term securities, among other investments, and is expected to support increased lending activity and savings growth as well as acquisitions, according to the prospectus.

Colonial Federal has more than 19,500 depositors who are entitled to cast one vote per $100 of their deposits. Borrowers may cast one vote per loan.

Mudge emphasized that the merger will not change interest rates or insurance protection of savings deposits.

The merger plan contains several provisions designed to prevent unsolicited takeovers. For three years following acceptance of the plan, no one will be permitted to acquire more than 10 percent of the common stock. Limits are imposed on the stockholders' ability to call a special meeting. Terms of the directors are staggered.

"These safeguards are designed to afford stockholders reasonable time and opportunity to make an informed investment decision and could reduce Central Holding Company's vulnerability to unsolicited takeovers," the prospectus states.

The two top officeholders in each savings institution will take the four top positions of Colonial Central. Robert Powers, current director, president and chief executive officer of Colonial Federal, will be the chairman of the board. Mark Mudge, Colonial Federal senior vice chairman of Colonial Central, will become president.

John Bedard, president of Central State, and David Widlak, chairman of the board, will become vice chairman of Colonial Central.

Combined assets of Colonial Central will be $300 million, making the new institution the 14th largest savings and loan association in Michigan. Central State, a subsidiary of Central Holding Co., was established in 1980. Colonial Federal has served the Grosse Pointes for 32 years.

Academy to host French fair

By Elsa Froham

After 100 years, The Grosse Pointe Academy is going strong. This weekend, the school, located on 22 acres overlooking Lake St. Clair, will open its grounds to the community in a centennial celebration modeled on a French country fair.

The school has a French tradition that goes back to the order of Sacred Heart nuns who founded the exclusive girls convent school in 1885. French language and culture have always been a large part of the school's curriculum and ambience.

"The heritage of the school and the area is French," said Judith Sieber, the chairman of the fair.

"We want the community to realize that they have history right here at their back door."

Though it has been an integral part of the community for 100 years, the school has remained somewhat of a mystery to its neighbors.

"The convent was cloistered," Sieber said. "There are a lot of Grosse Pointers who have never been on the grounds. We want to share with the community."

In the spirit of sharing, there will be no admission charge for the fair. Sieber explained that the event is a celebration — not a fundraiser.

"It's our birthday party," she said. The only charges will be for food, craft items, pony rides and hot-air balloon rides. Most of the demonstrations and entertainments will be offered free of charge.

While the school was founded by a religious order and existed as a convent school for the majority of its history, today, Grosse Pointe Academy is not a parochial school. It is an independent, private, co-educational school for pre-schoolers through eighth graders. Its students come from all over the metropolitan Detroit area.

The transition from parochial to independent came in 1969 when the Sacred Heart religious order decided to close the convent school. Parents, many of them alumni, were alarmed and immediately organized themselves to take over the school.

While it is no longer affiliated with the Catholic Church, Grosse Pointe Academy retains a strong Christian orientation in its curriculum and continues many of the educational traditions established by the Sacred Heart teaching order.

Grosse Pointe Academy's proximity to St. Paul's Church and its tradition as a parochial school often lead to confusion, according to Mary Stroble, co-chairman for the centennial year events. Many people have mistakenly thought it was a part of St. Paul's. Stroble hopes that the centennial events will help people become acquainted with the academy and what it has to offer the community.

"We want to involve the community in using our facilities here for appropriate activities," Stroble said.

One of those activities is being incorporated into the weekend centennial celebration. A retrospective exhibit of the works of Virginia Thibodeau will be on display in the main hallway of the Lakeshore building.

Thibodeau once taught art in the convent school, but she has maintained an art studio at the academy for some 30 years. She has won awards in the United States, France and Italy. She has had 18 one-woman shows, including an invitational show at the Toledo Museum of Art and the United States Senate.

"We wanted to show our appreciation of her," Stroble said.

The art exhibit is the first of Tony and Audrey Ferris designed the Georgian style home on Fordcroft in Grosse Pointe Shores just three years ago. Featuring Greek art and artifacts inside and a full size racquet court in the basement, the Ferris home is on the International House Tour sponsored by the International Institute.

International Institute hosts
Grosse Pointe house tour

Tour five magnificent homes in the Grosse Pointes on Sunday, Sept. 22, from 1-5 p.m., at the International House Tour sponsored by the International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit.

William and Sandy Baer have redesigned the home on Lake Shore Drive that was built in 1904 in a cottage style. The original floor plan still stands, but interior designer Sandy Baer opened up many of the rooms, and redesigned the rooms with an eclectic look.

The lovely working country kitchen on the lake side of the house features a hutch from the French countryside dating back to the late 1800s. The living room has a beautiful brass and crystal chandelier, one of just six of its kind handcrafted for a Wales hotel in 1860, and a baby grand player piano from the early 1900s.

The residence of Arthur and Karen Schaepeter, on Lake Shore Road, is the last home by architect Earl Creighton. The Georgian Colonial was designed in 1976 and completed in 1978. Built on the Glancy estate, its focal point is the double curved door from Rose Terrace at the entranceway.

Grey and yellow are the dominant colors throughout the home; in the custom woven rugs to fit each room, the tapestries, the wallpaper and the flower arrangements.

The home of Stephanie and Frank Germack on Warner in Grosse Pointe Farms, features a beautiful wrap around sunporch visible from the living room and breakfast nook. A Polish immigrant and world traveller, Stephanie has decorated the brightly lit rooms with many large ferns and plants.

A lovely mother of pearl inlay Chinese screen and large Samourai prints are beautiful in the study. Light colored prints show off the large living room where oil portraits of the children hang above the fireplace, and a grand piano sits in the corner.

Tony and Audrey Ferris built the Georgian style home on Fordcroft in Grosse Pointe Shores three years ago. Mrs. Ferris has decorated with many antiques from the Grecian Island of Crete, including replica busts of Apollo and Homer flanking the front door, framed costumes and needlework, heirlooms from her Greek family. The home features a full size racquet court and a double sized whirlpool bath in the basement.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Litch at 15300 Windmill Pointe is a huge colonial with a magnificent view from 200 feet of Lake St. Clair shoreline. The tour will feature a Russian theme at the home, and highlight a large gazebo where Mrs. Litch does all her outdoor entertaining.

Helen Kappaz of Grosse Pointe Woods, chairman of the tour, says tickets will be on sale at each house on the day of the tour. Tickets are also available at the International Institute, 111 East Kirby at John R in Detroit. Tickets can also be purchased at Carl Stern Men's Wear, on the Hill, 80 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Farms, and at the Bed, Bath & Linen Store in the Village, 16906 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe. Call the Institute at 871-8600 for more information.

French Institute offers classes

In an era of upgrading academic standards, of higher academic expectations, of promotion of excellence in education, the French Institute of Detroit offers an opportunity not to be missed — an investment in a multi-dimensional quality French-language program for adults delivered by highly-trained specialists.

The academic calendar consists of three terms: fall, winter and spring. The fall term begins the week of Sept. 30. Registration started as of Sept. 4 and activities information as well as membership forms may be obtained from the secretary at the Institute's offices, located in the Lycee International School Bldg., 30800 Evergreen Rd. (at 13 mile road), Southfield, telephone: 644-4110.

In this area, knowledge of the French language and culture is a definite asset and should not be ignored. It seems superfluous to underline the historical and cultural influence of the French evident in so many areas of the metropolis. Moreover, at this very moment, many major French companies have vested their business interests here. Because a grasp of the French language is such an indispensable tool in the implementation of meaningful contacts between American and French operations the French Institute of Detroit was established in Michigan.

The French Institute of Detroit also offers other services: cultural programs presenting eminent representatives of French literature, music, art, history and science on tours from Paris, as "Official Alliance Francaise lecturers and artist," professional support to the academic community concerned with the teaching of French; achievement incentives for students of French at the elementary, secondary, and university levels; special events both cultural and social, of interest to the area's French and francophiles.

Non-degree registration at OU

Final week of registration is here for individuals wishing to enroll in fall term, evening courses conducted by Oakland University's Division of Continuing Education. Starting Sept. 23, nondegree offerings include the Legal and Accounting Assistant programs, and courses in computers, word processing, investment and finance. Symphony Week is planned for next week

The Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association is renewing an old tradition with the revival of Symphony Week in the Village and on the Hill in Grosse Pointe.

Symphony Week was held for a number of years and discontinued four or five years ago. This year, Symphony Week is back and merchants in the Village and on the Hill have been asked to decorate their windows with a musical theme for the week of Sept. 27 through Oct. 4. The Women's Association provides the merchants with musical instruments to feature in windows tied to the theme of each individual establishment.

Another feature of the week will be daily live music at Jacobson's during the lunch and dinner hours. The musical interludes will be provided by the Grosse Pointe Symphony musicians. There will also be outdoor musical presentations.

Season ticket information and brochures on the symphony will be available at many locations during the week. Some restaurants will have Grosse Pointe Symphony placemats to highlight the symphony's upcoming season.

The week will open with Jacobson's Fall Fashion Show and Breakfast on Friday, Sept. 27, at 9 a.m. The show is being sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association. The price of admission is either a new member of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association, or a new season ticket holder.

For information on tickets for the symphony season, call Mrs. John Nolan, 886-6244. For reservations for the fashion show, call Mrs. J. Ross Bush, membership chairman, at 821-9558.

Trowel and Error Garden Club

The first meeting of the fall session of the Trowel and Error Garden Club will be Sept. 26 with a planned trip to Pointe Pelee, Canada. Members will leave at 8:30 a.m. from the Grosse Pointe Woods Municipal Building parking lot.

many that Strobe hopes will grace the main hall of the Lakeshore building. The school hopes to get other artists to hold showings in the building.

The Thibodeau retrospective will be previewed at a private reception on Saturday, Sept. 21, then will be open to the public during the fair on Sunday.

The fair will attempt to bring a little bit of history to life. It will highlight the strip-farming past of the Grosse Pointes.

"We're trying to have activities of 100 years ago," Sieber said. Demonstrations will include basket weaving, quilting, furniture refinishing and a petting zoo. The Herb Society of America will be on hand selling its cookbook. There will be choral and dance presentations of the history of the school by students. The First Michigan Colonial Fife and Drum Corp will entertain and there will be antique automobiles on display.

The food will have a distinct French flavor as Charity Suezek will be on hand making crepes. There will also be baked goods, apples, popcorn, candy croissants, quiche, French pastries, French bread, cheese and ice cream.

Throughout the afternoon, the public can tour the buildings and grounds of the academy, including the outstanding collection of trees from everywhere in the world that was nurtured by the Sacred Heart order. Botanical specialists have come from far and wide to study the trees on the academy grounds.

The day's events will begin with a reservations-required liturgy at 2 p.m. celebrated by the Rev. Joseph Imesch, bishop of the Diocese of Joliet, Ill. Imesch grew up on the convent grounds, as his father was the gardener. The festivities will continue until 7 p.m.

A special highlight of the celebration will be the presence of many of the nuns who one taught at the school. Alumni can visit with their former teachers throughout the afternoon.

The following former teachers have indicated that they will attend: Sr. M. Odiorne, Sr. K. Wansboro, Sr. E. Tierney, Sr. F. Murphy, Sr. G. Leslie, Sr. M.C. Wheeler, Sr. B. Mitchell, Sr. R. Roney, Sr. U. McAgon, Sr. C. Owens, Sr. J. Hurley, Sr. G. O'Donnell, Sr. F. Bayard, Sr. M. Piette, Sr. M.G. Starrs, Sr. M. McCarthy, Sr. I. Gallagher, Sr. M.M. Hannon, Sr. A. Attard, Sr. M. Howe, Sr. M.L. Brady, Sr. E. Hoyer, Sr. G. Cosenke, Sr. A. Donovan, Sr. J. McNabb, Sr. R. Whalen, Sr. H. Healy, Sr. M.E. McCarthy, Sr. M. Polizzi, Sr. M. Kalb.

"We're trying to preserve some history for the Grosse Pointes," Sieber said. "These three pieces (the academy, the War Memorial and the Eleanor & Edsel Ford Estate) are the last of their kind. When they go, it will take away something unique. This has been a commitment since the school started."

Alcohol kills

You can call it an ordinary day — and it was. However, the September Reader's Digest notes, on January 21, 1984, 55 Americans died in motor accidents involving alcohol. And that's just an ordinary statistic.

League of Women Voters plans membership tea

The League of Women Voters invites those interested in learning more about the league to join the Grosse Pointe League for a membership tea on Sept. 25 at 7:30 p.m.

The LWV is fortunate to have as guest speaker a local resident, Janet Vanderpool. Vanderpool has been an Engineering Society of Detroit, Engineering and Science Fellow in the office of Carl Levin in Washington D.C. this past year. She will share her experiences attending congressional hearings, researching pending legislation, meeting with constituents, and briefing Levin on issues she had monitored.

Democracy can function as it was designed when citizens are informed and participate in the government process. The League of Women Voters has worked toward this goal for the past 65 years. For this reason Governor James Blanchard has issued an executive declaration establishing September as League of Women Voters Month. The league is proud of this distinction as a lone force in its commitment to voter service and its integrity in service to the public through study and political action.

On a daily basis the League of Women Voters Citizen Information Center in Lansing has a toll-free number for anyone desiring information on state government, legislation, voters registration, and state agencies. Due to the large citizen response, the center is now open for calls Monday-Friday from 10:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. at 1-800-292-5823.

The Grosse Pointe League of Women Voters will welcome Janet Vanderpool as guest speaker at the Membership Tea on Sept. 25 at 7:30 p.m. She will relate her experiences in Washington, D.C., in the office of Sen. Carl Levin (left). All those interested in learning about their government and the League of Women Voters are invited to attend.

Come and learn how our government works and how the League of Women Voters members make a difference. Any citizen over 18, male or female, is welcome to join.

For more information and to RSVP for the Membership Tea please call 886-3078.

Libby Van de Putte: Getting involved

By Elsa Frohman

Libby Van de Putte is a relative newcomer to the Grosse Pointes. But she has carved her own foothold in the community by getting involved. She is co-chairman of the American Association University Women booksale this year.

"Last year was the first time I went to the booksale and this year I'm co-chairman," Van de Putte said.

The booksale is a large undertaking. Books are collected throughout the summer. The AAUW book barrels are a common fixture in locations around the Pointes.

But collecting the books is only one phase of the project. They must be sorted and priced.

"We have some people who have been marking books for years and it's second nature to them. They Putte said. "Within five minutes they have their arms full. You know we must have good stuff or they wouldn't be there."

Van de Putte pointed out that the bookdealers are some of the most solid supporters of the AAUW booksale. By coming on the first day, they pay a premium for the pick of the litter. All books are marked up by 50 percent on the first day.

As the week of the sale goes on, prices come down. The final day of the sale is "Bag Day" when patrons can buy a bag for $3 and fill it with as many books as they can get inside.

"One lady last year walked out with two bags full of Harlequin Romances," Van de Putte said. "She had her reading for the rest of the year."

The money raised by the book-sale goes to scholarships for women with degrees who want to return to school.

"We hold a luncheon and introduce the scholarship recipients," Van de Putte said. "A lot of them have raised a family and want to get back into the job market. We're helping in that capacity."

AAUW chapters all over the United States hold annual fundraisers to fund the scholarships and other projects of the state and national organization. The Grosse Pointe AAUW has received awards as one of the largest contributors in Michigan.

Van de Putte said she is adjusting well to her new home in Michigan. She is a native of Baton Rouge, La. "I had never lived anywhere but Baton Rouge," she said.

But three years ago, she came north with her husband, who is a native Detroit.

The booksale is a familiar task to Van de Putte who was a librarian in Louisiana. She began as the librarian of a small school in a poor neighborhood of Baton Rouge. The library was supported by federal funds which gave her the leeway for some special projects.

"It was the first time this school had had a full-time librarian," she said. "I would read books to the children and they loved me."

After a while, Van de Putte started looking for a stronger challenge and returned to college to earn her masters degree in Library Science.

Pointer of Interest

know when they see a rare book or a Michigan author."

The books are divided into categories that make finding the special book you're looking for much more likely. The largest single category is cookbooks, but there will also be tables for fiction — divided between current fiction, science fiction and mysteries. There is a special table for rare books and local authors are highlighted.

"Most of the books are priced at 50 cents," Van de Putte said. "But some recent hardcovers will be priced at $1 or $2, and some other books are higher, like really nice art books and books in sets."

The bargains at the booksale are so good that on opening day, bookdealers line up outside the door before opening time to be the first ones inside.

"They get inside and just take off and go for the nice books," Van de Libby Van de Putte is making a place for herself in the Grosse Pointe Community by getting involved in the American Association of University Women's annual booksale.

With her new degree, she went to work for the Louisiana legislature as a law librarian.

"I indexed every bill in the legislature," she said. "I learned an awful lot about law."

In addition to her regular duties as librarian, Van de Putte wrote speeches for one of the state representatives.

"I got a real taste of Louisiana politics," she said.

Another of Van de Putte's interests is the craft of smoking — a form of handwork that involves embroidery and gathering the material. She is a national officer of the National Smoking Arts Guild of America. As regional representative, she advises chapters in six states and Ontario. The organization has more than 12,000 members and there are 32 chapters in Van de Putte's region.

"When I moved up here I felt isolated. No one here smoked," she said. "I only met one lady who did. Since then I have met a lot of people who do."

These last weeks before the book-sale have been a busy time for Van de Putte. The cutoff date for donations was Sept. 16, but the pace picks up near the end.

"At the end is when we get all the phone calls saying 'I've got seven million books.' We pick up large donations. They're surprised when we show up and don't have a moving van and several burly men."

The booksale is held from Oct. 8-13 at Salem Memorial Lutheran Church on Moross. This will be the 23rd annual booksale.

"It gets bigger every year," Van de Putte said.

Herbs and ginger: a tasty pair for nutrition

Herbs can enhance and complement the flavors of your cooking like almost nothing else, and the bonus is that herbs can eliminate the need for added salt or other sodium-containing flavor enhancers.

Researchers at Cornell University Medical College have found that Ginger may prevent strokes and hardening of the arteries. Ginger contains a substance called gingerol that inhibits an enzyme that causes cells to clot.

The pungent, refreshing flavor of ginger extends a whole new eating experience to you if you are not already a ginger lover.

The following is a selection of recipes featuring herbs and ginger from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budget-wise kitchens of Thya Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Gingered Fresh Fruit Salad

This is a really new twist to fresh fruit salad... the dressing is unusually different that will keep everybody wondering what it gives it that wonderful tangy flavor.

- 1 cup blueberries
- 1 small banana, sliced
- 1 cup sliced strawberries
- 1 peach peeled, sliced
- 1 nectarine, unpeeled sliced
- 1 cup halved seedless grapes
- 2 cups watermelon cubes
- 1/4 cup orange juice, divided
- 1/4 cup low calorie mayonnaise
- 1/3 cup plain yogurt, low calorie
- 2 Tablespoons finely minced preserved ginger
- 1-1/2 Tbsp. preserved ginger syrup
- Toss together blueberries, bananas, strawberries, peaches, nectarines, grapes, watermelon and two tablespoons orange juice. Chill.

Stir together remaining orange juice, mayonnaise, yogurt, minced ginger, preserved ginger syrup until smooth. Chill. To serve to six or eight arrange fruit in small glass bowls placed on plates covered with lemon leaves and pass the dressing separately. Makes eight servings.

Calories per serving about 123. Cholesterol about 3 mgs.

Hot Gingered Fruit

- 3 cups fresh fruit
- 2 Tbsp. margarine
- 2 Tbsp. brown sugar
- 2 Tbsp. lemon juice
- 2 Tbsp. finely chopped preserved ginger (or 1/4 tsp. ginger)
- 1/8 tsp. salt-dash

Optional garnish: Raisins and sliced almonds. Select firm ripe fresh fruit, such as apples, peaches, pears, pineapples and bananas. Core, peel when necessary and slice into attractive shapes approximately 1/2 inch thick.

Melt margarine over medium heat in a large skillet. Add brown sugar, ginger and salt — stirring until sugar is melted. Pour in lemon juice. Fold in the fresh fruit and saute 1 to 2 minutes, stirring gently. Fruit should be hot and well glazed but still slightly firm inside. To serve sprinkle raisins and almonds on top. Serve hot. Serves four.

Calories per serving approximately 100. Cholesterol 0.

Spiced Mandarin Orange Mold

- 1 can (11 ounces) mandarin orange sections
- 3 inches stick cinnamon
- 10 whole cloves

1 pkg. (3 ounces) lemon flavored low-calorie gelatin

- 1 cup orange juice, strained
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/4 cup chopped walnuts
- 2 Tbsp. finely diced candied ginger
- Drain mandarin oranges, preserving the juice in one cup measure. Add sufficient water to juice to make one cup; place in saucepan with stick cinnamon, and cloves. Bring to a boil and reduce heat; simmering for five minutes. Remove cinnamon and cloves. Add gelatin to saucepan stirring until dissolved. Stir in strained orange and lemon juices. Chill until partially set. Fold in mandarin orange sections, walnuts and candied ginger. Pour into mold, and chill until firm. Makes four to six servings.

Calories about 145 per serving. Cholesterol 0.

NOTE: The addition of 1 cup finely diced celery will convert this recipe into a salad that is most delicious with chicken, or ham dishes.

Correction:

Last week's recipe for Stir Fried Cauliflower mistakenly called for 1/2 cup of dried oregano. It should have read 1/2 teaspoon of dried oregano.

The News regrets any inconvenience that may have resulted from this error.

OWL plans seminar

"Credit Equity and the Older Woman" will be the topic of a luncheon seminar co-sponsored by the Detroit Metro and Detroit East chapters of the Older Women's League on Sunday, Oct. 6, 1:30 p.m., at the Lansdowne Restaurant, 201 Atwater St., Detroit. Speakers will be: Esther Shapiro, director of consumer affairs, city of Detroit; Delia Fernandez, director of public affairs for TRW Information Services Division, Orange, Calif., and a representative from Comerica Bank.

According to the Older Women's League, women spend their early married to middle years bringing up a family, with no salary for their work, and depending on credit established by their husbands.

This seminar seeks to inform women who may face that situation of their rights as credit consumers, and to provide them with remedies if they are denied credit. For ticket information call Nell Barbour, 885-3690, 3:30 to 9 p.m. Tickets are $125.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

What do real, live, professional sports-writers do when they can't think of anything else to write? I don't know, if I run into one I'll ask. As for me, I just fill in the blanks:

I'm sure glad I'm not . . . the guy who had to follow Cincinnati's Pete Rose up to bat after Rose had broken Ty Cobb's hitting record to the tune of a seven-minute standing ovation. Talk about tough acts to follow.

. . . the reporter who had to talk to Dallas Cowboy coach Tom Landry after his team's loss to the Detroit Lions last Sunday. I know how Landry is supposed to be Mr. Cool and how he has that "close, personal relationship with God" that he always talks about on TV, but even he had to be a little peeved about how Detroit did Dallas.

. . . one of the people who make a living selling souvenirs outside the nearly empty Tiger Stadium these days.

. . . the person who was standing nearest North High coach Frank Sumner when he saw the typo in the identification line under his photo in the G.P. News' football preview a few weeks back. See, there's these little, tiny lines of type and sometimes, they fall off, revealing other little tiny lines of type with typos in them that get printed in the paper. That's what happened this time. Sorry, Frank. Really.

I wish I . . . could be in another hemisphere when those little tiny lines of type fall off and not-so-tiny mistakes get into the paper.

. . . was able to decide how I'm going to cover all that's going on in sports this weekend. We've got girls' sports invitational goings-on at North and sites all around Grosse Pointe for most of the day on Saturday and it's also Bi-County Day at the Silverdome that afternoon. North vs. Brablec is the featured game at 5:30 p.m.

. . . could get more excited over college football this year. Michigan vs. Notre Dame on TV last Saturday and I stayed at the South High-East Detroit game to the bitter end.

. . . had been at the Detroit Servite-East Catholic game on Saturday. My alma mater Servite beat my big brother's alma mater, 24-20. Almost makes up for all those times EC has dribbled circles around Servite in Class D basketball action, doesn't it, Panther fans?

I'd really like to see . . . every varsity team from North, South and ULS make it past the first round of the playoffs this fall. Pointe teams did well in tournament play this past spring and a repeat this fall — although it would be a bit more difficult given the football playoff system — wouldn't be too hard to take.

. . . Kalamazoo College's men's soccer team play a game sometime this season. The reports on Pointers Marc Tirikian, Mirko Mikelic and Paul Regelbrugge are great so far this season and I wouldn't mind the drive to the "Zoo" to see them in action.

. . . what the daily newspapers would do if the Lions won, say, three in a row. Devote the entire sports section to game summaries or just a sedate three pages like last week?

Don't ask me . . . to pick a winner in the North-South football game. We go through this every fall when people ask me who's going to win the big rivalry this year, and every fall I keep saying the same thing: "The team that scores the most points." One of us has to get a new line.

. . . who's going to win the World Series. Remember, I'm the one who, way back last spring, laughed at the silly notion of the Toronto Blue Jays winning the American League East. Pretty funny, huh?

. . . to predict the outcome of the Michigan-Michigan State game, either. I'll use my stock answer again and one of us is going to get awfully bored.

. . . what I think of the allegation made in the ongoing baseball-drug trials about Willie Mays supplying drugs to teammates. Are we talking about the right Willie Mays here? I mean, come on. You might as well tell me that there ain't no Santa Claus and that Mr. Rogers really hates kids.

This fall I'm sure that . . . South High will start playing the kind of football folks around here are used to seeing. Remember, South fans, Brother Rice is 0-2, too.

. . . the soccer teams at North and South will be every bit as competitive (especially with each other) as soccer experts are picking them to be.

. . . we've got some top-ranked cross country runners around here. We're talking All-State material.

I'll be able to come up with at least one better column idea than "fill-in-the-blanks." But then, you never know.

It's tip-off time!
Pointe's inexperienced teams face tough league, state opponents

By Peggy O'Connor
North High
Coach Gary Bennett
1984 record: Bi-County champions (12-0), 17-4 overall

Rebuilding year.
Those are two words that strike fear in the hearts of most coaches, turn fans off quicker than 10-cent light bulbs and aren't exactly what a team of high school athletes wants to hear. But those are the words used to describe a team which has lost more than its share of athletes to graduation.

Which is exactly the situation at North High this fall, where the defending Bi-County championship girls' basketball team has lost four of five starters — including honorable mention All-State selection Celeste Sartor — from the squad which won 14 consecutive games in 1984.

"We will be young and inexperienced . . . but we do have eight girls returning so that should help," says North coach Gary Bennett.

North's lineup this season reads this way: Gina Grammatico and Barbie Loeher at the guards, Leslie Talos and Virginia Sanders at the forward spots and Missy Preston at center. Other returning vets are Sandy Boesiger, Cindy Bowman, and Robin Wheatley, who will get help from sophomores Nicole Didur, Sue Nichols and Monique VanAsche.

North isn't too tall this year and the squad won't be able to grab the offensive rebounds and score with the regularity it did last year. But Bennett isn't dismissing North's chances this season.

"Clintondale is the team to beat — they have two starters who are over 6 feet tall. And L'Anse Creuse has Edith Pennywell, who has played on the varsity since her sophomore year. It'll certainly be a competitive league this season," he says.

"I'm interested in the girls working as hard as they can in practice. We spend most of our time in practice and what we do there will tell in the games. I'd also like for us to be as good as we can on defense and to improve on our mistakes as the season goes on," Bennett adds. "We can have a fun year if the girls keep up their good attitudes and keep trying to improve."

South High
Coach: Margaret Van Eckoute

1984 record: 9-13,
Coach Margaret Van Eckoute has a tough act to follow this year: her own.

Van Eckoute took a 1-19 South girls' basketball team to a 9-13 mark a year ago and has set a .500 season as a South goal in 1985. She'll have two talented seniors and a host of underclassmen "prospects" to help achieve that goal.

Senior guard Heidi Albrecht returns from last year's squad, as does Lynn Vismara, an all-around athlete Van Eckoute is depending on for her versatility.

"I'm counting on her to be able to fill in where I need her," says Van Eckoute. Which means at guard, forward or center.

Guards Carmina and Myreya Ameczua, transfers from Lutheran North, could also be a key to what South does this season. "They seem to be a good addition to the program and give us that element of surprise, since the league hasn't seen them play," Van Eckoute says. Penciled in at center are Cindy Tewes and 6-3 sophomore Kelly Buchanan, a top prospect from South's JV squad. At forward will be juniors Stephanie Purdy or Patty Hess, or sophomore Lisa Fromm. Rounding out the lineup are Jane Lochbiler and Missy Dinverno, senior forward-centers; and guard Shelly Kritzman. Center Mary Beth McCormick is out with a stress fracture.

"The girls have been improving, but they know they have to work on their defense and on finding the open spots on offense," Van Eckoute says. "But they have a really good attitude. They want to work hard and they want to win."

The second-year coach says she thinks Anchor Bay, East Detroit and Port Huron will pose the toughest challenge to South in its quest to move up in the EML.

"But we can be competitive. I think we could even be a surprise team. Like last year, people didn't expect us to do too much and the girls came through. With the new girls added to the program and our excellent attitude, I think we can surprise a few people."

South was 1-1 on the year at press time, having defeated Edsel Ford, 42-31, and dropping a close one to Warren Woods Tower, 36-28.

"The way I look at it is, we improved from 1-19 to 9-13 last year. This year, our goal is to play at .500 or better. And I think we can do it," Van Eckoute says.

University Liggett School
Coach: Shelley Owens
1984 record: 8-9

They finished the season with a flourish, winning seven of their last 11 games in 1984, but the Lady Knights from ULS might have a bit more trouble this season. Four players return to the lineup in 1985, but only one — Susan Cleek — was a starter last year and the other three had limited playing experience.

"We're young, that's for sure. And this is very much a building year," says head coach Shelley Owens.

But ULS doesn't have much to build the future with right now, since Liggett's middle school program folded and most ULS girls went out for tennis or field hockey this fall. So for this year at least, ULS will play a mostly junior varsity schedule.

"We don't want the kids to lose interest in the program and in turn lose the program. So we'll go with the JV schedule as much as we can," she adds.

ULS opened the season with a pair of away games against Oakland and Kingswood last week, but Owens' lineup was still not set, what with so many new girls. Penciled in last week were Cleek at center, Miriam Mueller and Lisa Beizai at forwards and Diann Imbrico and Jennifer VanDeGraff at the guards.

Ready to step in are Sophia Park, Kavita Sood, Rachel Kneeshaw and Vara Samudrala. The Lady Knights are small, with Cleek's 5-10 the top height. That will hurt the rebounding game a bit, but Owens says her charges will work as hard on that part of their game as they will on the others.

"Our goal is to work consistently hard day in and day out. We have to work harder than some other teams because we are so young. Of course, we never lose sight of the fun aspect of the game, that's just as important," Owens says.

In ULS's league Bethesda again looks strong, opening the season with an 82-22 win over an unlucky opponent last week. Owens says ULS was "competitive" with Bethesda last year, losing one game on a last-second shot; but Bethesda returns most of its starters and is again the team to beat in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

Our Lady Star of the Sea
Coach: Kathy Merony
1984 record: 6-5

Coach Kathy Merony enters her first year as Star's varsity basketball coach facing the same problem as her counterparts at North, South and ULS: a very young team. The Star of the Sea alumna has one senior and three juniors joining her 10 sophomores in facing Catholic League opponents in 1985. But she also has some sophomores who played on her division champion, 10-0 JV squad last season. And that counts for more than just a little.

"We're really optimistic. What can I say? We're young, but very enthusiastic," Merony says.

Star opens the season at home Sept. 26 against St. Florian. Junior Kelly Kiefer is scheduled to start at center, with Beth Allor and Danielle Bauer at forward and juniors Tracy Walker and Carrie Wild, or senior Marissa Bautista ready to step in at guard. Scheduled to see playing time this season are Kristin Parish, Sandy Nowak, Jeanne Purrenhaage, Beth Abood and the freshman trio of Karen Kiefer, Kristi Widgren and Kristin Kazper-sak.

Merony, who is aided by assistant coach Karrie Kossek, says that top-ranked St. Clement should again be the class of the league, despite losing all five starters to graduation. St. Anne also looks tough, she adds.

"We've got a super group of kids. I'm really looking forward to this year."

Norsemen unbeaten in two

By Bill Hoover
North High

North High's varsity football team, which was a disappointing 0-2 at this time last year, now finds itself 2-0 and ready to take on Waterford Kettering in the Silverdome this Saturday after an impressive 20-0 victory over the L'Anse Creuse Lancers on Sept. 14.

Against the Lancers, North marched 75 yards on eight plays on its first possession and scored on a quarterback sneak by Craig Como. Como's point after was good and the Norsemen led, 7-0.

The Norsemen struck once more before the half on an 11-yard touchdown pass to Steve Pochmara from Como. The try for two points was nullified by a penalty, and the score was 13-0 at the half. North's final score came in the fourth quarter when Mike "The Kid" Miller banged his way in on a one-yard run. The point after by Como was good, closing the score at 20-0.

Como was 5-for-13 passing for 124 yards; Jon Palazzo caught three passes for 75 yards; and Pochmara caught two for 52 yards and a touchdown. Miller rushed 17 times for 131 yards and one touchdown.

North's defense, which made nine tackles for a loss, allowed only 10 yards rushing and 54 yards passing. Coach Sumner commented that "the defense was outstanding."

Greg Guest led North defensively with nine tackles. "Brave" Dave Queller and Brian Francis each added five. Greg Claphan and Robert Bruner each had quarterback sacks and Joe Craparotta and Chuck Daie combined for one.

North's next game is Saturday, Sept. 21, at the Pontiac Silverdome versus Waterford Kettering (2-0). Kick-off is at 5:30 p.m. Tickets are on sale throughout the week in front of the main office at North from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., at $4. They are $5 at the Silverdome gate.

Cagers fall

North's girls' varsity basketball team opened its season with losses to Eisenhower, 46-34, and Regina, 60-28.

Against Eisenhower, Leslie Talos led North with 12 points, including 6 out of 8 from the foul line. Missy Preston added 9 points and Barbie Loehner earned coaches' commendations for an excellent defensive game.

A tough Regina team was in command of the game from start to finish, winning, 60-28. North will try to bounce back against South High at 1 p.m. this Saturday, Sept. 21 at North.

North's JV basketball team also lost to Eisenhower and Regina, the two top JV teams in the area. North lost, 37-21, to Eisenhower in the season opener on Sept. 10. Nicole Didur and Amy Brennan led with 6 points each.

North lost to Regina, 55-30, on Sept. 12. Didur scored 17 points. The Lady Norsemen play South at 11 a.m. Sept. 21 at North.

North's frosh started the season out right with a 29-20 win over Chippewa Valley on Sept. 10 and a 43-25 victory over L'Anse Creuse on Sept. 12.

Against Chippewa Valley, Heather Mergos' 13 points and 7 rebounds led the way. Lora Bova scored 6 and Kelli Gianunzio scored 4 and grabbed 6 rebounds. Kerry Peters nabbed 6 rebounds and Cindy Szymanski collected 5 rebounds and shut down Chippewa Valley's top scorer.

Mergos led again with 9 points and 8 rebounds against L'Anse Creuse. Szymanski turned in a 7-point, 7-steal effort and Bova and Kris Salive each scored 6 points and grabbed 4 rebounds. Peters and Lucy Berry played well under the boards, collecting 6 and 5 rebounds respectively.

The frosh host Centerline at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 29.

North High

North's varsity soccer team traveled to Grand Blanc last week and was defeated by the Bobcats, 2-1. The game had been tied at 1-1 going into the final eight minutes, when Grand Blanc scored on junior goalie Brian Grieve. Chris Colfer scored North's goal.

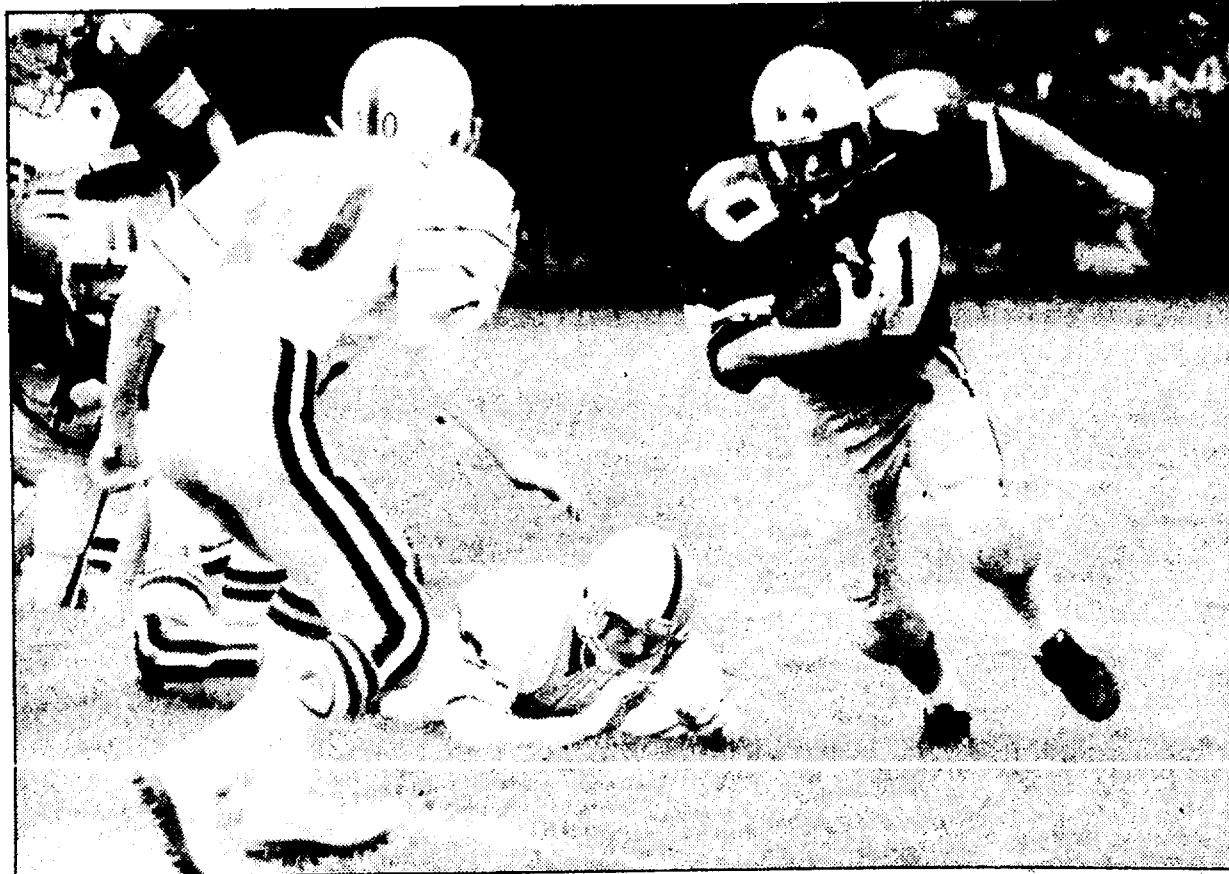

Back on Norsemen turf, North bounced back to crush Roseville Brablec, 10-0. The Norsemen dominated the play, getting scoring from John Dietrich, Daniel Spitz and Elias Melham (two each) and from Colfer, Kevin Tisdale, Eric Hess and Steve Francis. The excellent goalkeeping of Grieve and Jeff Lewis earned the shutout for the Norsemen.

North then traveled to the Troy Invitational on Sept. 14, registering a 2-1 victory over highly-ranked Troy. Dietrich scored both goals for North.

Against Class B top-10 ranked Bishop Foley in the tournament finals, North and Foley battled to a 0-0 tie through both halves and four overtime periods before Foley pulled out a 1-0 win in the five-man shoot-out.

"The fine appearance we made in the invitational shows we are among the elite soccer teams in the area," said junior defenseman Ralph Barbier.

North will host University Liggett School at 4 p.m. Friday, Sept. 20.

North High

North's girls' cross country team started its 1985 season with a win over Utica Ford, taking eight of the top 10 spots, including second through seventh. Christy Drummy and Krissy David finished second and third, respectively.

The girls placed third among 24 teams in the West Bloomfield Invitational on Sept. 7. North ran extremely well, with Drummy, Lisa Kopacka, David and Sandy Smith finishing in the top 35. Coach Charles Buhagiar says that if the girls work hard, he thinks they will be able to match their performance of last year when they were rated in the state's top 10.

Kickers' win streak at four

By David Schwab

The University Liggett School varsity soccer team raised its record to 5-1, winning three games and lengthening its unbeaten streak to four games.

The Knights beat Lutheran Northwest, 5-0, on goals from John Birgbauer, Brian Curtiss, Frank Karabetsos, Bob Williams and Jeremy Belenky. The Knights' offense was able to dominate play with 38 shots on goal to Lutheran Northwest's five.

On Sept. 11, the ULS varsity squad beat Bethesda Christian at home, 5-1. Birgbauer supplied three of the Knights' goals; Karabetsos and Rob Healy also scored. The ULS defense was outstanding in this game, allowing only three shots on goal to Bethesda's Africa and Curtiss, while the Knights' midfield and offense kept the pressure on Bethesda with 18 shots on goal.

ULS's fifth victory this season came on Sept. 13, at Oakland Christian, 3-0. ULS controlled at least 60 of the 80 minutes playing time. Goals were scored by Williams (two), assisted by Tony Malcolm and Birgbauer; and by Malcolm on a ball stolen from an Oakland Christian player.

Coach David Backhurst said, "The team seems to be coming along on schedule. Our team play has improved a great deal. Now the schedule gets tougher ... we'll see."

The Knights travel to North at 4 p.m. Friday, Sept. 20 on Monday, Sept. 23, ULS hosts DCDS at 4:15 p.m.

ULS's JV soccer team picked up one win and a tie to increase its record to 3-0-1. On Sept. 10 the J.V. Knights tied Lutheran East, 0-0. Coach Domenic Facciolla's squad gained a 4-0 win at Roeper on Sept. 13.

In the Lutheran East game, fullbacks Armistead Burwell, Bull Lucken, Mike Niccolini and Kyle Bowman helped goalie Brian Schmidt preserve the shutout. Striker Bill Jewett put good pressure on Lutheran East's defense.

Against Roeper, left wing Mark Sullivan and center-forwards Brendan Dundas and Karl Meyer notched tallies early in the game. Fullback Kyle Bowman iced the game with a 20-yard blast. Halfbacks Dan Shanley, Steve Stoyka and Paul Brigolin played well.

The J.V. Knights host North Sept. 20, at 4:30 p.m.

Netters win

By Shefali Sharma

The ULS girls' varsity tennis team hosted a pre-season tournament with Birmingham Seaholm, South and Star of the Sea on Sept. 7. South won the tournament with 12 points, followed by ULS with eight points, and Birmingham Seaholm, six. Charu Nautiyal, the North competes next in the North Invitational on Sept. 21.

JV kickers 3-0

North's JV soccer team raised its record to 3-0 with two impressive wins last week. North shut out Grand Blanc, 3-0, on Sept. 10, as Brian Metry, Brian Peltz and Lorenzo Cavaliere scored. Then North trounced Brablec, 10-0, on Sept. 12. The JV faces South and ULS this week.

Frosh fall

Dropping a tough one, 7-0, to East Detroit Kelly last week was North's freshman football team. Kevin McCarron was a bright spot on offense, rushing for over 100 yards. Jim Applegate chipped in with an interception. With the loss, North's record fell to 0-2, thanks to an opening game defeat to Fraser, 18-6.

North High

North's girls' varsity tennis team opened the year by placing third in the Monroe Invitational on Sept. 7. Lisa Lucido placed second in her division at No. 4 singles. The No. 1 doubles team of Nicole Lehman and Beth Keys and the No. 2 doubles duo of Christine Barretta and Michelle Francis reached the finals.

The girls played well in losing to ULS, 6-2, on Sept. 10. The No. 1 and 2 doubles teams were victorious.

South sports

Blue Devils drop league opener

East Detroit surprised South High, 25-0, in the defending champs' Eastern Michigan League opener at South High last Saturday. South is 0-2 and off to its poorest start since 1981.

The Shamrocks' Dan Quinn and quarterback Jeff Miller combined on scoring passes of 30 and 48 yards in the contest. And South didn't help itself much with nine turnovers, including a 24-yard interception return by East Detroit's Steve Bernardi.

As it did against Utica Eisenhower, South found itself deep in its own endzone for much of the game, unable to get anything going.

The Blue Devils will try to stop a four-game losing streak (over two seasons) when they travel to Roseville at 7:30 p.m. this Friday, Sept. 20.

Kickers win

South's varsity soccer team opened its season in fine style, shutting out Roseville, 4-0, last week.

Rodolfo Cruz-Mena scored twice for South, which also got goals from Jim Fets and team captain Pat Inesch. Geoff Centner and Mark Kaczmar had two assists each and defender David Morenelli added one to close out South's scoring.

Blue Devils' coach John Case said he felt the team played well in its opening game, holding Roseville to just one shot in the second half.

South played cross-town rival North on Sept. 17 (after press time) and will face Roseville Brablec today, Sept. 19.

Fast start for harriers

South's girls' cross country runners got off to an outstanding start, jumping out to a 4-0 dual meet record in placing second in the West Bloomfield Invitational, the year's first major meet.

At West Bloomfield, sophomore Ellen Mayer raced to a third place finish in the 130-runner field. She was followed by senior Nancy Solterisch (8th) and sophomores Micha Song (16th), Wendy Berger (34th), Megan Smucker (39th) and Raquel Chapin (42nd). Senior Toby Ott was seventh for South and 43rd overall.

South was undefeated in dual meet competition after beating

Kettering, Centerline and Mount Clemens. Other South runners performing well include freshmen Lindsay Haddad, Toni Tedesco and Alexandra Angiewicz; sophomores Jenny McSorley, Rebecca Wasinger, Elizabeth Lazarowitz, Stephanie Morreale, Laura Grego, Reba Uthappa and Jenny Nash; juniors Mary Beth Hicks, Linda Gaglio, Sue Sparling and Erika Hernquist; and senior Kelly Riehl.

In previewing his girls' cross country team this season, head coach Steve Zaranek pointed out that despite the loss of last year's No. 2 and No. 6 runners, Barb Giroux and Renuka Uthappa, to graduation, South would benefit from the talent of several runners returning from the 1984 regional championship team which did not lose a single dual meet.

"The season outlook is good. We've got good depth and that always helps. And it's a great group of girls ... the seniors are good leaders and the team is very close knit," Zaranek says.

Returning this year are Solterisch, an All-State selection in 1984, and two other seniors, Ott and Riehl. Zaranek says he thinks Mayer, Song, Berger, Chapin, McSorley and Smucker will do well this year.

Fall is nearly here, but water fun is nowhere near completed for the year. The Grosse Pointe Department of Community Education will offer instructional, recreational and competitive aquatic programs for those age 2 and up. Recreational swims begin Oct. 2 and most instructional and competitive programs start the week of Sept. 23.

Among the fall classes offered are Beginning Swimming for Middle and High School Students, Synchronized Swimming for Children, Beginning Competitive Swimming for Adults, Aquacize for Women, Aquacize for Men, Advanced Lifesaving (ages 15 and up), and Special Needs Swim for Children.

Meet Grosse Pointe's newest CHAMP — Beth Deutsch

By Peggy O'Connor

The CHAMP has a new face. It belongs to Beth Deutsch, new program coordinator for the Cottage Hospital Athletic Medicine Program (CHAMP). And it's a face its owner is very anxious for Grosse Pointe to become familiar with.

CHAMP has been in existence since 1983, offering preventive care, evaluation and treatment of injuries to athletes of all ages and conditions, including the athletes at North and South High School. Michael G. Sperl, M.D., is the program's director.

Deutsch, a certified athletic trainer who has served as head trainer at Union College in New York and as women's athletic trainer at Southwest Missouri State, has "hit the road" in her new post at Cottage, trying to make as many people possible aware of CHAMP's services.

"The program is changing from the aspect that I'm getting out in the community and selling it. It's nice for the people we serve to have a letter telling them who we are, but it's even nicer to actually meet the person who sends the letter," Deutsch says.

The trim, athletic-looking Deutsch has set a busy schedule for herself since arriving at Cottage this spring. She's out meeting parents and athletes whenever she can, over at St. Clair Shores South Lake High School as an athletic training consultant twice per week, at North High serving as athletic trainer every afternoon and at South High at least twice per week in the same capacity. She also serves as head trainer for home and away football games and home hockey contests.

So far, she's had good response from her "public," which includes the players, parents and coaches of the teams she serves. But even if she hadn't, Deutsch seems to be the "push on, regardless," type.

"I'm the one coming in with the experience. I evaluate an injury, I don't diagnose. And the players and coaches have to learn to trust my skills in evaluating the injuries. I've had good support from the coaches so far. As for the kids, they only understand not being able to play; they have a hard time understanding the importance of holding them out from playing because of an injury. But I am regimented, dictatorial," Deutsch says.

Deutsch is the first-line of defense against an injury. She does the preventive taping and helps out with preventive conditioning. When there is an injury, she evaluates it, and makes the decision on when the athlete may return to action. The coaches abide by that decision, she says. The only problem is that she isn't in on the follow-up care as much as she'd like, since the athlete is at home recuperating and not on the field.

"I see a change coming in that area when I get to know the parents and athletes better. If the parents begin to trust me and my judgment, they'll get on the horn and call me, keep in touch and let me know now the athlete is progressing in his treatment."

"Right now, there's no central facility where injured athletes can work out and where I can keep an eye on their progress. It's not like college, where the athletes were on scholarship, had the facilities and the motivation to work out and get back on the field," Deutsch adds.

Deutsch says she enjoyed her work with collegiate athletes, but saw the CHAMP opportunity as more of a challenge. And she likes a good challenge.

Like the National Sports Festival in Baton Rouge, La., where Deutsch spent 18 days working as much as 16 hours per day as a trainer for the aquatic athletes participating in the festival.

"It was tough. I'll tell you, I needed a vacation from what was supposed to be my vacation," Deutsch laughs.

The problem with the festival, she says, was the inflexibility of the schedule and rules by which trainers had to work. There were three trainers assigned to 350 aquatic athletes, which left little room for more than assembly-line type training.

"I want to promote my profession... I'm proud of what I do. The way things were set up, we had to work long hours and had little time to follow up on athletes we cared for. That follow-up care is important to me."

"Would I do it again? I don't know. I would like to see more allowance for flexibility and better use of our free time. It was an experience I'll never forget, though."

Right now, Deutsch is concentrating on her CHAMP projects, among them a Sunday walk-in clinic open at Cottage from 8:30-10:30 a.m. The clinic, staffed by Deutsch and an orthopedic surgeon, is for the community, she says, geared toward evaluating the injuries of the weekend athlete of any age.

"I think it'll be a tremendous asset for the community," she says. Then there's the Injury Prevention Program set for 7 to CHAMP program director and certified athletic trainer Beth Deutsch with a few of her clients.

9 p.m., Sept. 25 at Cottage. "I'll deal with specific injuries and more importantly, how to prevent them," Deutsch adds.

For it is injury prevention that is foremost on Deutsch's (and CHAMP's) list of priorities. "Prevention by education, that's my emphasis. People read and they are knowledgeable, but I don't think they apply it to themselves. You know, we all say 'it could never happen to me.' But it does... that's why we have this program. That's what makes me get out there and let Grosse Pointe know what we're doing."

Sports people

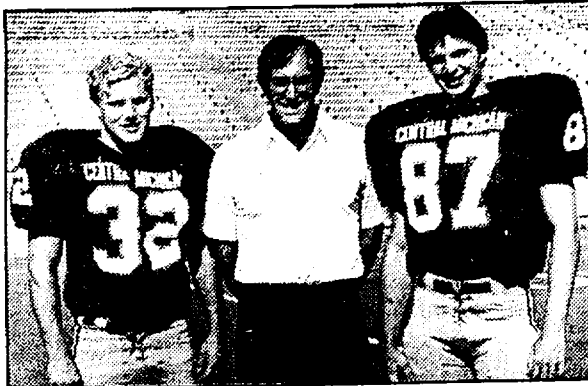

It's been a busy summer for Marc Galina, head pro at the Lochmoor Country Club. Galina won the Michigan Open men's singles tournament Labor Day weekend at the Grand Rapids Racquet Club. He defeated Rich Applegate, 6-1, 6-1, to take the title. The weekend before, Galina made it to the finals in the Rochester Clay Court Open, before falling to Ed Nagel of West Bloomfield, 3-6, 3-6. Galina had previously beaten Steve Fisher, 6-1, 6-7, 6-3, in the Little Traverse Clay Court Open. He was ranked No. 2 in the Southeastern Michigan Tennis Association rankings for the past two seasons.

Beth Deutsch, certified athletic trainer for the Cottage Hospital Athletic Medicine Program (CHAMP), recently returned from Baton Rouge, La., where she volunteered her time as a trainer for athletes participating in the National Sports Festival there. The Sports Festival is a pre-Olympic athletic contest for American amateur athletes. Deutsch spent 18 days working primarily with athletes entered in aquatic events — diving, swimming, water polo and synchronized swimming. (See complete story above).

Heading for Brown University this fall is Nancy Georgi, a University Liggett School graduate who is expected to play field hockey and lacrosse for the Brown University Bruins. Georgi, the daughter of Neil and Beverley Georgi, of Woodland Shore Drive, won two letters in lacrosse and four in field hockey at ULS, where she was a lacrosse All-Star team member in 1983 and 1984, served as captain in 1984 and was a member of ULS's league championship field hockey squad in 1981, 1982 and 1983.

A trio of North High alumni led the Kalamazoo College men's soccer team to a pair of wins in the recent Grand Rapids Baptist College tournament, won by Kalamazoo. Sophomore Marc Tirikian scored two goals in each game of the tournament; he currently leads the Hornets in scoring. Juniors Paul Regelbrugge and Mirko Mikelic added single goals.

He runs six miles a day (his route is St. Paul Street to Fisher Road, around the South High track 10 or 11 times, then back to his Somerset Road home) and next Saturday, Sept. 28, he'll compete in his first-ever "fun run," the 6.2 mile Grosse Pointe Fun Run, sponsored by The Pointer Newspaper. He's Peter Bolos, 72, a former amateur boxing champ. He's running in the fun run, partly because he wants to and partly because he wants to "let older people know that they should never count themselves out. I haven't and I feel pretty good about it," Bolos says.

CCD crowns club champ

The Country Club of Detroit's club tennis championship was decided Sept. 8, and it was definitely a "Chris Charlton" weekend.

Charlton defeated Steve Kornier, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2, for the 1985 singles championship. Kornier had defeated 1984 singles winner Denny Cavanaugh in earlier rounds.

In doubles play, Charlton teamed up with Cavanaugh to top Roger Powers and George Wrigley, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, to take the doubles crown.

Jenny Baker, Sandy Devine and Connie Paglia, and Buffy Stumb and Laura Clune. Wicency and Devine are the squad's only seniors; Baker is a freshman.

"This year, the big question is going to be whether we can improve our skills and lift our game. Of course, the main thing is that we have fun, too. But it's a good bunch of girls and I foresee them getting better and better as the season goes on," Rose adds.

Sept. 21 Mini Prix benefits Lions Club

Thirty miniature Corvettes, Firebirds, Indy cars, Nascars and funny cars will zoom for the finish line when the first New Center Lions Club Mini Car Grand Prix Race gets into gear on Saturday, Sept. 21 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The custom decorated cars, sponsored by local businesses, will race along a one-third mile Grand Boulevard course that has been outfitted with hairpin turns and straightaways for the occasion. Among the celebrities who will race is Joe Ricci, owner of Grosse Pointe AMC Jeep-Renault.

Proceeds from this year's race will benefit a number of Lions Club activities, including the Leader Dog School for the Blind in Rochester, the Welcome Home for the Blind in Grand Rapids and the Penrickton Center for the Blind Children in Taylor.

The race is part of a New Center Celebration, a day of free activities and family fun featuring the WTVS/Channel 56 30th anniversary Open House, the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce "After Business, Ours" Mini Business Exchange, New Center Commons Walking Tours and the Henry Ford Hospital 70th anniversary Open House.

The schedule for the day should run as follows: 9 a.m., tennis preliminaries at North; ULS and the Grosse Pointe Shores Park; 10 a.m., diving preliminaries at North; 10:30, cross-country meet at Vernier Hill; 11 a.m., JV basketball game at North; 1 p.m., varsity basketball and swimming relay finals.

Friendship Run is Sept. 22

The fifth annual Friendship Run is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 22, at Baldpate Park on East Warren and Canyon in Detroit. A new one-mile event has been added to the usual 5K and 10K runs, all of which are held along East Warren and Outer Drive. Entry fees are $5 for those 14 and under, $8 for all others; registration is $10 on race day.

The runs are sponsored by Don Gooley Cadillac and contributing sponsors, Hansen's Natural Beverages, Stroh's and Independence Health Plan. All entrants will receive a "Running Lion" shirt.

may participate in one or all events, have an entry in the runners' raffle and will enjoy refreshments and entertainment. Race organizers offer a TAC certified course with split times, aid stations and enthusiastic supporters.

Finish line management will be supervised by Ed Kozloff and the Motor City Striders. Last year's Friendship Run 10K was won by Gary Whitmer, of the Michigan Adidas team (31:20) and Karen Hubbard, of the Ann Arbor Track Club (36:08); the winning times set course records. Winning the 5K in 1984 were Larry Olszewski (16:21) and Cynthia Bell Parker (19:24).

Top Grosse Pointe finishers were Dave Watta, fourth overall in the 5K; James Campbell, 21st overall in the 10K; Nancy Maxson, 11th among women in the 5K; and Sue Fabick, 10th in the 10K.

The purpose of the annual Friendship Run — which derives its names from the Detroit Friendship Lions Club — is "to aid the blind and others in need while enjoying the sport and friendship only running can provide."

Entry forms for the fifth annual run are available by calling 885-2374 or at Don Gooley Cadillac, 20903 Harper; The Total Runner, Mack Avenue near Vernier; Emily's on Congress St. downtown; Ray's Deli on East Warren at Berkshire; or other East Warren Avenue businesses. The East Warren Parade follows the run at 1 p.m., as well as an afternoon and evening of East Warren Festival events.

GPYC dominates meet

The "Yacht" is hot.

At least that's what the banner flown over the Western Golf and Country Club, site of the recent 1985 Michigan Inter-Club Swimming Association finals, proclaimed after the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club's swim team placed 56 swimmers in individual events and captured five of six relays — and that was just in the preliminaries.

In the finals, GPYC swimmers again took blue medals in five of six relays and finished in second place in the sixth relay event to take a commanding lead in the championship, which was supervised by Mr. and Mrs. John Hawkins and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Williamson, who chaired the M.I.C.S.A. finals. GPYC was coached by Fred Michalik and assistant coaches Sara Brieden and Mary Ann Michalik.

Among the winners was the girls' 8 and under relay team of Loran Kordas, Suzanne Toledo, Elizabeth Bursiek and Stephany La Fond (1:11.04). The boys' 8 and under relay took second when Danny Collins, Todd Dunlopp, Tim Reynaert and Chris Brown-Borden swam their best time of the year (1:12:90).

The girls' All-Ages free relay finished first (2:03:01) behind the efforts of Kristen Youngblood, Ashley Moran, Erika Teitge and Kelly Bartsch; and the boys' All-Ages free relay turned in a best time (1:58:57) thanks to Brian Curtis, Chris Nevison, Ted Stedem and Jamie Mertz.

Winning blue ribbons in the medley relays were Katie Tompkins, Buffy Stumb, Sandy Smith and Erika Teitge (2:20:25) and the boys' squad of Mike Kirchner, Brad Stedem, Geoff Brieden and Pat Kirchner (2:13:49).

M.I.C.S.A. records were set by Sandy Smith in the girls' 15-16 50 breaststroke (34:67) and by Ashley Moran in the 9-10 25 fly (15:38). Chris Nevison broke a GPYC record in the boys' 13-14 breast (34:12) and both Tim Reynaert (16:37) and Chris Brown-Borden (17:56) set new records in the boys' 8 and under freestyle.

Loran Kordas and Elizabeth Bursiek finished two-three in the girls' 8 and under breast; Ashley Moran took a blue medal in the girls' 9-10 50 breaststroke; Katie Tompkins took a fourth and Alisha Cytacki finished second in that event. In the 11-12 girls' 50 breast, Ellie Rice was third, Carrie Gardella seventh and Hillary Whyte, 12th.

Ted Stedem finished well ahead of the other competitors in the boys' 11-12 50 breast and Katie Tompkins, Heather Heidle and Jenny Smith placed three-four-five in the girls' 9-10 back. In the girls' 13-14 50 back, Julie Wheeler took fifth and Buffy Stumb was sixth.

GPYC clinched the victory in the day's final two events when both the girls' and boys' All-Ages medley relay took first place ribbons. The winning teams included Tompkins, Smith, Stumb and Teitge for the girls and Kirchner, Geoff Brieden, Brad Stedem and anchor Pat Kirchner for the boys.

Following the final event, coach Michalik accepted trophies from the M.I.C.S.A. for his team's first place finishes in five of the six relays.

'Compromising Positions': intelligent, sophisticated comedy

By Marian Trainor

The combination of wickedly witty situations with a sophisticated crime story makes "Compromising Positions" both intriguing and amusing. The cast features a top-notch cast of stage-trained actors, the dialogue is sharp without being tough and the dark side of the story is neatly balanced with levity. It's strictly adult fare and a welcome relief from a summer of teen-age hijinks and adolescent precocity.

It has become the technique to grab the viewers' attention by superimposing credit lines on scenes which were once introduced at the start of the film. "Compromising Positions" follows this pattern.

We meet Dr. Bruce Fleckenstein (Joe Mantegna), Long Island's most lecherous dentists, chains dangling from his open shirt in this way. He is at work on Judith Singer's teeth (Susan Sarandon). She is a suburban housewife who once worked as a reporter for Newsday.

As the film begins, Dr. Fleckenstein, in true dentist fashion, is asking the patient questions about her dental hygiene which she struggles to answer with her mouth propped open with retractors and cotton batten.

Once relieved of these impediments to intelligent speech, Judith is confronted with another problem. Dr. Fleckenstein has more in mind than repairing dental defects. He also offers such services as lunch and an afternoon at a local motel. He fails to score with Judith but like a gentleman who was asked if he every got turned down on his propositions to ladies and answered, "Oh yes, but I get lots of takers too," Dr. Fleckenstein moves on to more willing prospects.

He has a long list of devoted patients who take him up on his invitations.

However, all is not well with him. Besides his pursuit of fun and games, he is engaged in some unsavory activities that are rapidly catching up with him.

One evening, as the last of his patients departs and while he is busy scrubbing at the sink, a gloved hand reaches for a sharp-edged tool which is plunged into his neck.

Who was it and why? Not so surprising the suspects are all women. Among the long list of suspects are Deborah Rush, as a feather-brained nouveau riche named Brenda Dunck, Judith Ivey as a lusty sculptress who is never at loss for a stream of scathing one-liners and Joan Allen as a talkative adulteress who likes to drop designer names.

One of the funniest scenes in the movie is listening to her tick off the designer tags on Dr. Fleckenstein's garments right down to his underwear while sobbing out her encounters with him.

Another sort of black humor scene takes place at a memorial service for the doctor. While the speaker intones his virtues, his dialogue is broken by the sobbing of various women in the audience, each believing that theirs is the only loss.

Although Judith was not part of the group, as a former reporter she becomes obsessed by the murder, much to the annoyance of her ho-straight lawyer husband.

As she goes about her own private investigation, she becomes embroiled in some pretty sticky situations.

In the process of gathering information, she meets Raul Julia, a cop who has been assigned to the case. At first, he is suspicious of her interest in the case and at one point declares her a suspect. Later he resents her interference as she turns up with what he thought was secret evidence and finally he comes to accept her not only as an equal, but falls in love with her. Judith, while tempted, turns away. "I can't handle that," she declares.

Pieces of surprising evidence turns up. The plot twists and erupts in a number of surprising encounters right up to the end when no one is sure whether or not the murderer will add a second victim to the first.

If all this is not enough — humor, lechery, sharp dialogue and a plot that never stops — there is another added feature. There are some explosive scenes between Judith and her husband as he demands that she drop her investigation and give her all to her role as wife and mother.

When she declares her rights as a person in no uncertain terms, there was applause from the audience. Billed as "the most intelligent comedy of the summer," "Compromising Positions" lives up to its claim.

'Taming of the Shrew' to open Hilberry season

"The Taming of the Shrew," Shakespeare's farcical battle of the sexes, opens Thursday, Oct. 17, at the Hilberry Theatre, following previews on Oct. 4 and 5. The production continues through Dec. 5, in repertory with "Step, Look and Listen," which opens Oct. 18, and "The Royal Family," which is added Nov. 21.

"The Taming of the Shrew" involves the fair Bianca, who cannot marry until her shrewish older sister, Katherine, is wed. Petruchio, a self-admitted fortune hunter, is willing to marry and tame Katherine for her dowry as well as her love. Romance, desired or not, ensues, complicated by Katherine's spit-fire behavior, Petruchio's practical jokes, and Bianca's diligent suitors.

The Hilberry cast includes George Comiskey and Cheryl Williams as Petruchio and Kate, Melanie Metcalf as Bianca, and Larry Greer, Steve McCue and Jeff Dolan as Bianca's suitors.

Tickets and information are available at the Hilberry Theatre box office, Cass and Hancock, 577-2972.

Michigan begins six-week color run

The curtain is going up on Michigan's fall color extravaganza for a six-week run staged for hikers, bikers, boaters, festival goers and, of course, motorists, reports AAA Michigan.

This year's autumn showcase begins in mid-September and early October in the Upper Peninsula and northern tip of lower Michigan. Trees should wear brilliant hues of magenta, gold and orange from late September to mid-October south of Mackinaw City to north of a line from Ludington to Standish.

The best time for color viewing should be early and mid-October in the lower peninsula's midsection, south of a line from Ludington to Standish and north of a line from Holland to Port Huron. Fall color should peak in southern Michigan in mid- and late October.

Fall color enthusiasts can choose traditional or off-beat ways to see the state's autumn beauty.

Among the most favored pastimes is touring the state by car. Motorists and hikers may wander through more than 8 million acres of state and national forest land to see vivid fall displays. Sugar maples turn brilliant golds and red maples are noted for bright red leaves. Aspens are drenched in brilliant yellow while oaks become light brown to russet and sumac trees glow nearly iridescent red.

Local parks and several scenic gardens in the state, such as Midland's Dow Gardens and Kalamazoo's Nature Center, also are choice spots for color viewing.

In Southeast Michigan, the Huron-Clinton Metroparks' nature centers schedule special programs relating to fall color. Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock hosts an autumn canoe tour from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 22, 28-29 and Oct. 6, 12-13. Fall color cruises aboard a paddleboat begin at 10 a.m. Oct. 12 and 13 at Kensington Metropark near Brighton.

U.P. vacationers may see the fall color show while on the Pictured Rocks Cruise departing from Munising at 1 p.m. Sept. 21-Oct. 10.

In northern Lower Michigan, gliding along the Au Sable River near Oscoda for a color tour via open or enclosed paddleboat is an option Sept. 28-Oct. 20. Sailings on Lake Charlevoix at Charlevoix are scheduled on the Beaver Islander Oct. 5 and 12 and on the Star of Charlevoix daily through Oct. 13.

Those who want a light or heavy aerobic exercise may go biking. Michigan Bicycle Touring of Kingsley sponsors weekly and weekend tours.

Several communities are sponsoring festivals and other special events which offer good opportunities to see fall color.

The U.P.'s events include a Harvest Festival, Lakeview Arena in Marquette, Sept. 19-21; Ethnic Food Festival, Lakeview Arena in Marquette, Sept. 19-21; Ethnic Food Festival, Escanaba, Sept. 28, and a Pumpkinfest in Bessemer, Oct. 11-12.

West Michigan activities include Kalamazoo College's Octoberfest, Oct. 4-5; the Viking Color Festival, Cadillac, Oct. 4-13; the Red Flannel Festival, Cedar Springs, Oct. 5; a Color Tour/Art Show, Frankfort, Oct. 5-13; the Heritage Hill Home Tour, Grand Rapids, Oct. 6-7; an Apple Festival, Bangor, Oct. 11-14; the Sixth Annual Apple Festival, Charlevoix, Oct. 12-13, and the Four Flags Apple Festival, Niles, Oct. 20-22.

East Michigan travelers may enjoy a Pumpkin Festival in Caro and Tuscola County, Oct. 3-6; the Heritage Days Festival and Fall Harvest Day, Oct. 4-6, Alpena; a Fall Color Tour, Houghton Lake, Oct. 5; self-guided color tours of Gladwin County Oct. 5-6; the King Salmon Derby on Lake Huron at Tawas, Oscoda and Harrisville through Oct. 6, and a Kite Festival, Mackinaw City, Oct. 12.

Among Southeast Michigan activities is Dearborn's Octoberfest, Sept. 27-Oct. 6; Greenfield Village's Autumn Harvest Festival, Dearborn, Oct. 4-6; Fall Harvest Day at Ella Sharp Museum, Jackson, Oct. 6; an Apple Festival, Museum of Arts & History, Port Huron, Oct. 20, and the Octoberfest at Trapper's Alley in Detroit's Greektown, Oct. 25-27.

Acting classes offered

A new six-week term of actor training programs will begin at the Actors Alliance Theatre Company in Southfield. Acting classes for all skill levels are available for Fall Term I from Saturday, Sept. 28 through Thursday Nov. 7.

Registration is now open for the beginner through advanced level classes. This term the teaching staff has been expanded to include Dr. Patricia Kihn, from Wayne State University, who will teach Fundamentals and Voice for the Actor.

Other faculty will include director and actress Divina Cook, who is appearing in the Detroit Repertory Theatre production of "In the Sweet Bye and Bye," director and actress Laurie V. Logan; mime artist and actor Scott McCue; and Glen Allen Pruett who appeared in the Attic Theatre's summer production of "Piaf" and will be featured in "Romeo and Juliet" at the Meadow Brook Theatre this season.

A Youth Theatre class taught by Laura Niesen is also being offered on Saturdays for 11- to 15-year-old students.

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who show me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. JAGUAR FALVEY JAGUAR

Vanden Plas

From a heritage of coachbuilders to kings and the sporting aristocracy of Europe comes the most exclusive Jaguar sedan you can own.

The Vanden Plas is a limited edition of the Jaguar Series III sedan. It shares the Series III's superb racebred double overhead cam six, its athletic handling equipment, its uncanny smoothness and silence in motion. Inside, however, the Vanden Plas is unique even among Jaguars. It cossets you with soft leather, exotic burled walnut panels and individually contoured seats front and rear.
