Trees please

I've just received the word from Carol Mott, of the Woods Tree Commission, and the word is that time is running out for those of you wishing to buy trees through their group.

Saturday, Oct. 12, is the last day the commission will make trees available to homeowners. Supplied by Viaene's Nursery, the selection includes red, Norway and Crimson King maples, sweet gum, locust, linden, Zumi flowering crab and callery pear with prices ranging from $100 to $210.

Carol says there are a variety of plans available, from just having the tree delivered to having it delivered, planted, staked, mulched and guaranteed.

The trees are available to anyone, not just residents of the Woods, and applications can be picked up at the Woods City Hall.

A lesson for us all

Eenie, meenie, chili beanie, the stars are about to speak. Actually, they already did speak, in Carol Checki's case.

Carol, a clerk/dispatcher for the Farms Police Department, read her horoscope last week and decided to take it to heart. It advised her to take advantage of her culinary skills and go home and do some heavy gourmet cooking.

When the stars speak, Carol obeys. That night she sought out the old cookbook and whipped up a giant batch of lasagna. Into the pan went the sauce, noodles, Italian sausage, cheese and assorted spices needed to complete the feast.

After popping it all into the oven, Carol left for a rest from her lasagna labors. Returning a few minutes later, she opened the oven door to take a peek. The lasagna was stone cold.

But the cookbook she'd left on top of a burner wasn't. Just about then it burst into flames. Seems Carol had turned the wrong knob on the stove.

Luckily, no one was injured and the smoke was quickly cleared from the kitchen. The cookbook was well done, but the lasagna was reportedly perfect.

Carol, I usually keep my sources confidential, but in this case I'll make an exception. Thanks to Farms Police Chief Robert Ferber, and his secretary, Joanne St. Onge, for dropping a dime on you.

Only on this show

He's on the loose again. Gary Thison, Grosse Pointe Cable's very own video lion, has promised his viewers even more fun this season on his comedy program, "Some Semblance of Sanity."

The show, which airs Monday through Friday at 3:30 p.m. and Monday and Wednesday evenings at 7:30, displays the talents of comedy personalities such as The Amazing Jonathan, (who recently appeared on the David Letterman Show), Comedy Castle owner Mark Ridley, WHY? morning personality Bobby Mitchell and local funnyman Tim Allen, Marty Micoli, Eric Tunney and others.

We know it's kind of late notice, mostly because Gary's press release was tardy, but you can still catch two performances this week of The Amazing Jonathan swallowing five razor blades and stapling a piece of paper to his head.

It may hurt to be in love, but it also hurts to be insane.

Detroit group fights Pointe realty split

By Nancy Parmenter

The minority caucus of black Detroit real estate agents has softened its language in its stand against the Grosse Pointe Real Estate Exchange. Members were quoted as recently as Sunday as suggesting that the Grosse Pointe move to split from the Detroit Board of Realtors amounted to "apartheid"; organizers of the group are now saying that their opposition to the split is business-motivated.

"It's not a racial issue. We're not calling ourselves a black caucus," said DeLois Kirkland, co-chairperson of the ad hoc committee, as it prefers to be called. "It's a business issue. Anybody who calls it a race issue is speaking falsely."

Although discussion of a split between the two real estate organizations goes back to 1979, it has only been within the last year that the Grosse Pointe group actually went through the first two of the three steps required for independence. The race issue was raised six months ago and has heated up during the last month, with the ad hoc committee forming just last week.

"I like to think that the caucus has formed to make other brokers aware of trends — not just this issue, but all issues," Kirkland said. "We weren't formed just for this. The split just happens to be the first thing we've addressed."

Kirkland said that the split would cause loss of income to many Detroit brokers, as they would be denied access to the higher-priced residential properties in the Pointes. Any broker, with or without an office in the Pointes, would be entitled to join the Grosse Pointe Board, but Kirkland pointed out that joining additional boards would cost more money.

The issue will come to a head on Nov. 7, when the National Association of Realtors convenes in New Orleans. It is expected to consider the matter at that time.

Although permission to split from an established real estate board goes through three steps, it is only the third step, approval from the national group, that counts. Grosse Pointe initially appealed to the Detroit Board, its parent group, and was denied. In May, approval was granted by the state association.

"To my understanding, it was approved by a slim margin — one vote," said Greg McDuffee, who was president of the Detroit board when Grosse Pointe presented its petition in 1984. McDuffee said that current board president John Moss is maintaining a neutral position in the dispute and has asked McDuffee to continue representing the opposition viewpoint for the board.

Moss could not be reached for comment.

McDuffee said he gave the oral presentation at the state meeting, asking that the state association deny the split. He expects to give a similar presentation in November.

McDuffee said his opposition is based on business. "There is a clear distinction between the Detroit Board of Realtors and the ad hoc group," he said. "My position is that there has been no failure (to provide services to Grosse Pointe). Obviously, that's what makes a horse race — they have a different opinion."

McDuffee said the race issue is a matter of perception. "I wouldn't accuse them of overt racism," he said. "You can argue it to your dying day. I've seen from the beginning that there's a perception of racism — it's time to deal with it."

President of the Grosse Pointe Realty Exchange Thomas Youngblood said the split is a trade association matter. "We're confident that it'll be left that way," he said. "We've taken the high road and won at every stage, because this racial stuff isn't the issue."

Youngblood mentioned the point system, used by some real estate agents to deny homes to blacks during the 1950s and which has recently received new publicity.

"The point system was a quarter of a century ago," he said. "Of almost 400 brokers, there probably aren't 15 who were around then. It's just not relevant."

Membership in the Exchange or in the future board is open to anyone who wants to pay the dues, Youngblood said, "but for all the screaming and hollering, nobody has asked to join."

Grosse Pointe Realtors have been discussing their next move in the face of all the adverse publicity. Youngblood speculated that they would approach the Detroit board to ask them to take a position on the race charges. He said a statement by the Detroit board to the national association would increase Grosse Pointe's chances of approval.

"It's just another failure for them if they don't take a position one way or another," he said.

Youngblood expressed hope that the national organization will grant approval when it hears all sides of the issue. Referring to the state association, he said it's "the only organization that's really studied both sides, listened to it, weighed it, decided we were right: Grosse Pointe should be a board."

Grosse Pointe Realtors say their complaints against Detroit's focus on several business services the Pointe feels Detroit is not delivering. Cathy Champion Dillaman, a Grosse Pointe Realtor and member of the Detroit board, told the Grosse Pointe News in May that Detroit has failed to provide educational seminars and lobbying.

"The Detroit board is unique in its commercial emphasis," Dillaman said. "There is very little focus on the residential aspect. Grosse Pointe's voice tends to get lost in the Detroit board."

Dillaman said that several other suburban areas, including Rochester, Birmingham-Bloomfield, and parts of the Downriver area, already have independent real estate boards. "This is just a matter of legitimizing a situation that already exists," she said.

Grosse Pointe Realtors make up approximately one-third of the Detroit board's 961 members. Dues from the Pointe run to almost $70,000, according to Youngblood.

Project backers plan new strategy

City turns youth program down

By Nancy Parmenter

With the City's Sept. 23 decision not to participate in the proposed Pointes-wide youth assistance program, the project's future is unclear. The Shores turned the program down two months ago; the remaining three communities had conditioned their participation upon the concurrence of all five Pointes and the school system.

But the project's backers are not waving the white flag. "We're certainly not giving up," said Woods Municipal Judge Patricia Schneider. "We're considering looking at other sources of funding or possibly restructuring the program. I don't know exactly what we'll do — we're looking at everything."

Ironically, Schneider said, the same night the City was deciding not to participate, she attended the Farms meeting, where the council agreed to go along without the Shores. But the weight of two hold-outs is likely to be enough to keep the other three cities out.

Grosse Pointe City Manager Thomas Kressbach said the primary considerations were need, finances and jurisdiction.

A committee composed of council members John Youngblood and William Montgomery reviewed the proposal with Director of Public Safety Bruce Kennedy and Municipal Judge Stanley Kazul. They recommended that the council not participate.

"We felt we had an excellent capability within the public safety department," Kressbach said. "(Director) Kennedy once commanded the youth bureau in Detroit." Kennedy also took extensive training in California and has a master's degree in sociology, Kressbach said.

There are also several trained youth officers in the department, with an emphasis toward having one on each shift. One is already assigned to liaison with City schools, Kressbach said.

There were concerns expressed by Judge Kazul about the voluntary nature of the proposed program, according to Kressbach. The committee felt that the program would be improved with direct court jurisdiction.

Cost was probably the biggest factor. "Based on the number of City referrals (currently), it appears that there would be 10 or fewer (participants) per year," Kressbach said. Given the estimated cost of the program, it didn't appear to be cost-effective.

The program would have cost the City between $5,200 and $6,000, depending on whether four or five of the Pointes participated.

"The committee would always look at any (new) proposal," Kressbach said. "But you have to take a hard look at costs. With any new expenditure, you have to seriously see if you can put it in your budget when money is scarce."

Schneider said she expects new planning for a revamped proposal to be time-consuming. When it is completed, the proposal will again be presented to the five communities.

"It'll mean going back to the councils no matter what we do," she said.

The proposal asked for $55,000 to fund the first year of a three-year pilot program to provide counseling for up to 100 youths. It called for supervision from the Grosse Pointe probation department. The program aimed at intervening with problem youths before they become involved with juvenile court.

Elections are next month

Residents of the City, Park, Farms and Woods have until Monday, Oct. 7, to register to vote in the Nov. 5 general elections that will be held in those cities.

City voters will elect a mayor and three councilmen. Terms expire for Lorenzo D. Browning, mayor, and James P. Curran, Robert L. Nugent and William N. Montgomery, councilmen. The mayoral position is a two-year term and council seats are held for four years.

Nominating petitions for the seats are available at the city clerk's office, 17147 Maumee. Deadline for filing is noon on Saturday, Oct. 12.

In the Park, Mayor Palmer T. Heenan is seeking another two-year term. His challenger is Mayor Pro Tem John C. Prost.

There are six candidates for three council seats, each four-year terms. They are incumbents Carroll Evola and Mark Valente III, and candidates Lee Carriek, Lynn Crissman, Arthur Getz and James Robson Jr.

Municipal Judge Beverly C. Grobbel is unopposed in her bid for another four-year term.

Of five candidates for council seats in the Farms, voters will elect four. The candidates are incumbents Joseph Fromm, Bruce

Memorial liquor license is close

By Nancy Parmenter

Officials at the War Memorial have confirmed that they are trying to buy the existing Class C liquor license belonging to the now-defunct Bronze Door.

If all goes according to plan, the license is likely to be in place by Thanksgiving, board President William Monahan said. The deal has yet to be finalized, a price agreed on, and the approval of all of the restaurant's creditors obtained.

Monahan declined to discuss a dollar figure for the War Memorial's offer. Until the purchase is resolved, the license is still up for grabs.

He said, however, that the license will be paid for entirely out of the roughly $500,000 bequest from the late John Lake, former director of the War Memorial. Lake tried throughout his tenure to obtain a license for the center.

The "upset," or threshold, price, below which the license will not be sold, has been established at $50,000, according to Arthur Miller, the attorney who is handling the Bronze Door's case in federal bankruptcy court. Miller said the license has been appraised at higher than that amount.

The War Memorial has submitted a bid for $70,000, Miller said. It is the only written offer submitted to the court. Other bidders will be entitled to make offers at the Oct. 25 court hearing.

The city of Grosse Pointe Farms would still have to approve the license. In June, the War Memorial was thwarted in its efforts to obtain one of the unused licenses allotted to the Farms by state law. At that time, the issue became one of additional licenses, rather than whether or not the War Memorial itself should be licensed.

"We'll have to go back and ask the city the question we thought we were asking the last time," Monahan said.

No official discussions with the city about the license have taken place, Monahan said.

He acknowledged that some residents are upset at the idea of the War Memorial's having a liquor license. "It's a point we're extremely concerned about. There's no point in having a license if no one is there to sustain the place," he said.

However, the board anticipates public support of the license. Based on a spring sampling of residents conducted by mail, most people favor the license. More than half of the community responded, almost all favorably. Fifty-one cards were sent back with "no" scrawled across the back, according to a compilation made by the center in June.

The War Memorial's Family Participation Campaign was conducted during the same time period. Monahan said the results of that were encouraging.

League to register new voters Saturday

Members of the League of Women Voters will be deputized so they can register new voters this Saturday, Oct. 5, at the Arts Bazaar. Registration will be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the War Memorial from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Besides Grosse Pointe, residents of St. Clair Shores, Harper Woods, Roseville and Detroit will be able to register at the event.

Gloria Stonisch is chairperson of the committee.

Helping to tell teachers about how volunteers can be a part of the classroom are, from left, Marge Nixon, school system coordinator of volunteers, and teachers Elsie Onychuk and Sandra Tenkel.

Volunteers are the topic of in-service workshop

Volunteers offer thousands of hours of service to the Grosse Pointe Public School System. How to make those hours beneficial to students, teachers and volunteers was the subject of a workshop offered Monday, Sept. 23, at Barnes School.

Marge Nixon, coordinator of volunteers for the school system, brought a slide presentation, booklets on how to use volunteers and what to expect and a couple of teachers, Sandra Tenkel and Elsie Onychuk, who have used volunteers in the classroom for years.

"I really feel there are a lot of teachers out there who would like to have a volunteer in the classroom," Nixon said. "They aren't sure, though, if it's going to mean more work for them, or really what to expect."

The focus of the in-service workshop was the use of grandperson and senior volunteers, Nixon said. Onychuk and Tenkel have both used grandpersons and spent time telling other teachers what kinds of programs the volunteers were fitted into and how volunteers could take part in classroom activities.

In one of the classes, students designed stationery and wrote letters about themselves to the volunteer as part of the class' language arts work, Nixon said. The booklet passed out at the workshop contains 40 things that volunteers can do to aid teachers in the classroom, she added.

"There are so many things a volunteer can do in the classroom," Nixon said. The workshop was designed to give teachers just a sample of how the volunteer can become a part of the classroom, she added.

Her office has already received several requests for volunteers from the 25 teachers who attended the workshop, Nixon said. The school system has full-time volunteers available and many who are available for one-time projects, she added.

Long-term substitutes replaced

Teaching slots filled with permanent staff

By Nancy Parmenter

The four classes in the Grosse Pointe schools that opened the year with substitutes are now all staffed with regular teachers, school Superintendent John Whritner said Sept. 26.

When actual enrollment exceeded projections by 180 students, the school board authorized additional staff hiring. Three positions were authorized the week before school opened; an additional teacher and 4.5 aides were authorized Sept. 23.

The substitutes were needed because of the time lag between the hiring of new teachers and their actually starting work, according to Ronald Tonks, director of personnel. He said that all but one of the teachers were already employed at other districts and needed several weeks to be released from their contracts.

Four teachers were hired at the beginning of September, three as additional staff and one as a replacement for a teacher who quit the week before school started to take a job in industry, Tonks said.

Two of the new teachers started work Sept. 23, one Sept. 25, and the last one Sept. 30. The staff that was authorized Sept. 23 — the additional teacher and the aides — will be ready to start work within two to four weeks, according to Tonks' estimate.

Several parents complained at the Sept. 23 meeting about the continuing use of substitutes. They asked the board to define its policy for hiring substitutes and to explain why it did not simply hire the substitutes for the full-time positions.

"Some were candidates for the positions, some were not," Whritner said Sept. 26.

Whritner said the substitutes applying for permanent positions are assured of an interview, but are considered against all other candidates. "We're looking for the best possible person," he said.

Tonks said the district is not reformulating its position on hiring. "Working in the district doesn't confer preference," he said.

Substitute teachers are limited by law to 120 days of work in a given school year. If that amount is exceeded, the district must offer that substitute a full-time position. The Grosse Pointe schools have a self-imposed limit of 115 days, just to be on the safe side, Tonks said. But he and Whritner emphasized that the four substitutes had worked less than one month each.

Tonks pointed out that substituting is different from regular teaching, and that the qualities that make a good substitute are not necessarily similar. Short-term substitutes are "just holding the fort together" and need to be strong disciplinarians, he said.

Long-term substituting takes on some of the characteristics of regular teaching, with planning, grading and creative skills coming into play. "Subbing can help you or hurt you (in the quest for a permanent position)," Tonks said. "If you've done an outstanding job and impressed the administration, it's to your benefit."

Whritner said he planned to meet with at least one of the parents to better understand their complaints about the substitute system.

College exam scores show rise and fall

While state and national average scores for students taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test increased this year, local public high school scores decreased on the national college entrance examination.

But local college-bound public high school students continued their strong showing on the American College Test, posting increases larger than those for state and national scores.

Grosse Pointe's average SAT was 473 on the verbal and 527 on the mathematics portion of the exam, down from last year, when the average score was 478 on the verbal and 540 on the math.

The national average for the SAT was 431 on the verbal and 475 on the math portion of the exam. State scores were 467 verbal and 517 math. The national average increased a total of nine points from 1984, when scores were 426 on the verbal and 471 on the math. The state's average scores increased eight points over last year's, when the average was 461 on the verbal and 515 on the math portion.

Local scores released in April during discussion of high school grading practices also showed a decrease, but smaller than the official tally, because the administration calculated average scores for the district differently than the College Board administrators of the SAT.

Dr. Roger McCaig, director of the school system's Office of Research and Development, said the drop in scores from last year to this appears to be a return to the school system's average performance over the last five years, which show a steady progression of scores from 1980 through 1985.

Last year's scores jumped 24 points from 1983, when the average verbal score was 466 and math was 528, he added. A longer report on the scores is being prepared, he said, adding "I am very doubtful ... that this is the first year of a decline."

The unofficial score reported in April on the ACT score showed a 21.3 combined score out of a possible 36 points as the public high schools' average locally. That's an increase over 1984's average score of 20.6.

Nationally, the 1985 ACT average score increased from 18.5 to 18.6. The state's average scores increased the same amount from 1984 to 1985, with the score this year being 18.9.

ACT and SAT tests are used by universities throughout the country as admission tools, used with a student's grade point average as part of the college admissions process.

City approves seat belt ordinance

At its regular council meeting Sept. 23, the City voted 5-0 to adopt an ordinance adding to the state's Uniform Traffic Code to provide for safety belt usage in automobiles.

The adoption brings the city into compliance with the code and allows the City to collect fines from violations, instead of sending the money to the state.

The city ordinance will go into effect on Sunday, Oct. 6. Currently, the fine for not wearing a seat belt is $10. It will increase to $25 across the state on Jan. 1, 1986.

According to Stephanie Muir, court clerk, no tickets citing violation of the law have been issued by City police since the law went into effect July 1.

Tres bien!

Fall gardening how-to's

Pruning trees, hoeing, and raking leaves, while giving you a healthy fall garden, can cause unhealthy strain to the back, shoulders, arms, and neck.

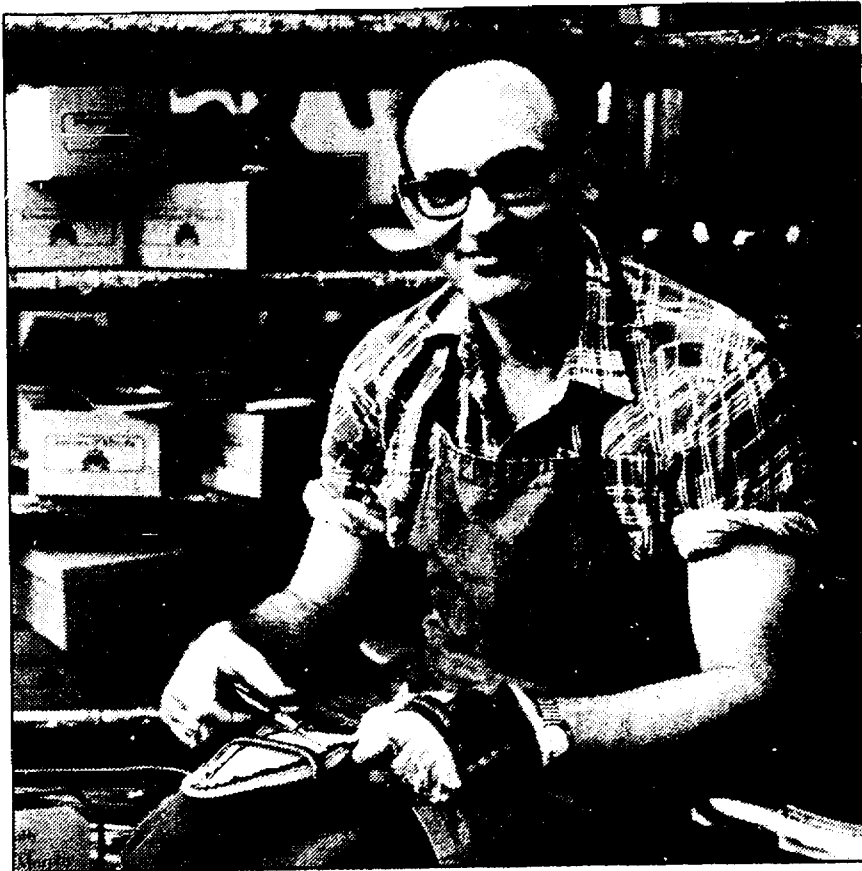

- Loosen up before working. Walk briskly around the block and stretch. Give your muscles a chance to warm up.
- Use long-handled tools to keep from bending while raking and hoeing. Pushing or pulling in a bending position can strain shoulders or lower back.
- Switch hands frequently while raking or hoeing. This avoids prolonged strain on one side of the body, which can cause muscle spasms.
- Use short strokes instead of long, forceful ones when using a trimming edger and keep back straight.
- Carry only manageable loads of debris to avoid strain on your arms and back.
- Pace yourself. Don't try to do it all in one day. When muscles tire, take a walk to rebalance and relax them.

Driver licenses to be marked

All driver licenses and personal identification cards issued to individuals under 21 years of age will carry the words, "Under 21," above the photo, according to the Secretary of State Richard Austin.

Austin said that a new law requires the Department of State to add the language to all new license and identification cards issued on or after Oct. 1, 1985.

The "Under 21" will enable restaurants, tavern owners and others to determine if an individual is under 21 at a glance without having to calculate from the birthdate shown on the license or identification card.

The change is part of an overall state effort to help identify and prevent individuals under 21 from purchasing alcoholic beverages, drinking and driving.

Currently, most driver licenses are valid for a four-year period, however, Austin said that all first time licenses issued beginning Oct. 1, 1985, will be valid until the individual's 21st birthday. Regardless of age, individuals under 21 obtaining a license for the first time must now renew at age 21.

Austin cautioned enforcement officials and others that it will require between four and five years before all drivers licenses belonging to individuals under 21 will be marked "Under 21."

The new driver licenses will carry a reminder to "Buckle Up" as required by Michigan law.

That enrollment increase

In an editorial on Sept. 5, the Grosse Pointe News predicted that among the most controversial — if not the most controversial — of the seven goals adopted by the Grosse Pointe school board would be working out a "five-year facility plan" for the school system. That forecast already has proved to be accurate.

That goal involves planning for the system's future enrollment and the number of school buildings that will be required in the years ahead. Perhaps because of the provocative headline, "More schools to close?" the editorial promptly attracted the attention of a number of letter writers and callers who protested any move to close more schools at a time when enrollment seemed to be rising again. The protesters obviously had a good point.

What happened was that the figures showing unexpected gains in enrollment in a number of kindergarten, elementary and middle school classes were not available at the time the editorial was written. After the early figures were reported, the News followed up Sept. 19 with another editorial acknowledging the increases but also saying that it is too early to tell whether they reflect "a reversal of the long-time decline in enrollment or whether the increases came about for special reasons this year."

The district doesn't really know the answer to that question even now but the board has acted with commendable speed, it seems to us, in hiring additional teachers and classroom aides to reduce the size of 19 crowded elementary classes in the district. In hiring both teachers and aides, the board sought to serve the needs of the children as well as to keep in mind the cost of the additional personnel.

As Superintendent John Whritner told the board, "In developing recommended solutions (for the unexpected increases), we have tried to keep cost in mind. An aide for the balance of 1985-86 will cost approximately $6,000; a teacher $30,000-plus." Hiring aides is only a short-run solution to the problem, however. If the population and enrollment declines truly have been reversed, then additional teachers will have to be hired to avoid further classroom crowding that could damage the performance of both students and teachers.

As for the general issue of what the future holds with respect to population in the Pointes, we repeat a paragraph from the Sept. 5 editorial that caused some discussion in the community:

"Population forecasts always are difficult to make. Will the Grosse Pointes continue the aging process that has cut the population of all five communities since 1960? Or will there be a renewal of growth as hinted by the slight increases in population that were reported from 1982 to 1984 in Grosse Pointe Park and in the City? Such factors will affect enrollment in the individual schools in the system and could mean the closing of additional buildings or perhaps the reopening of Barnes, which was closed a year ago."

Unfortunately, even experts disagree when it comes to forecasting population trends. The school administration and the board acted on the best information available in voting to close Barnes when they did. The administration and the board now have acted wisely in reaction to the unexpected increases in enrollment this year. Neither the superintendent nor the board has a crystal ball that guarantees that their predictions about school enrollment and class size will be borne out. But they react responsibly when conditions change and forecasts go awry.

The superintendent and the board are dedicated to improving the excellence of the Grosse Pointe school system. Their efforts to achieve that goal should reassure not only parents and school children but those who are worried about their property values. Expenditures to support an excellent school system not only represent investments in our greatest natural resource — our young people — but they also protect and enhance the community's property values.

A Lucas trial balloon?

One argument that County Executive William Lucas used a fortnight ago to justify his proposal for a reduction in the state income tax to 4 percent is the same one used to justify the sales tax exemption on groceries and medicine in 1975. The trouble is that the argument failed to work in 1975 and seems unlikely to work in 1985 or 1986.

The argument was then and is now that revenue losses could be met at least in part by more efficient organization and operation of government. Neither the Republicans nor the Democrats could find sufficient savings to offset the loss from the sales tax exemptions in 1975 and, instead, the Legislature had to raise the additional revenue from a hike in the state income tax from 3.9 percent to 4.6 percent.

So what makes Lucas think his call for more efficient government is any more acceptable now than it was in 1975 as a method of offsetting revenue losses? Well, he didn't really say, although he did admit that he had not calculated the amount of the revenue loss from his proposal.

Instead, he said the revenue loss could be made up by more efficient government, coupled with more revenue from a larger state income tax base when President Reagan's proposed tax bill passes and the use of a large surplus in state funds that he charged the Blanchard administration is hiding.

When asked by the Detroit Free about Lucas' proposal, Robert Naftaly, state budget director, said it could reduce state revenues by nearly half a billion dollars a year. And he scoffed at Lucas' claims about the state's supposed large surplus and the increase in the state income tax base if Reagan's tax bill becomes law.

In prior years, Republicans have proposed cutting the state income tax and raising the sales tax to offset the revenue loss. Perhaps that is what Lucas, too, has in mind, although he didn't mention the sales tax in his speech to a statewide gathering of Republicans on Mackinac Island. But a sales tax hike would be a logical GOP proposal, in event the kind of non-tax offsets Lucas proposed with his income tax cut did not materialize and more state revenue was needed.

With Republicans and Democrats in the Legislature now agreed on returning the income tax rate to 4.6 percent in 1986, although they have not yet agreed on the date, Lucas may be putting up a trial balloon to see how a further tax cut to 4 percent would fly in Michigan. And if his proposed offsets to the revenue losses do not prove to be politically viable, he can always recommend the sales tax hike later on.

It is true that criticism of Lucas has been rising since he turned Republican and began his all-but-announced campaign for the GOP nomination for governor. So far, nothing very serious has been laid at the county executive's door, although nobody yet knows what will come out of the county board's investigation of his handling of a contract to renovate the Old County Building in downtown Detroit.

But he has also been subjected to irritating attacks for holding a briefing session with his aides in Florida rather than in Michigan, for asking for a larger county travel allowance, for being absent from his office too much in his campaign swings around the state and now for proposing a new income tax cut without more specifics on what he had in mind.

Some of the criticism comes about because he is a former Democrat seeking to use an office in Democratic Wayne County as a stepping stone to the GOP nomination for governor. But some criticism also arises because he is beginning to propose change in state government and such proposals arouse public discussion and debate. That is a legitimate part of the political process.

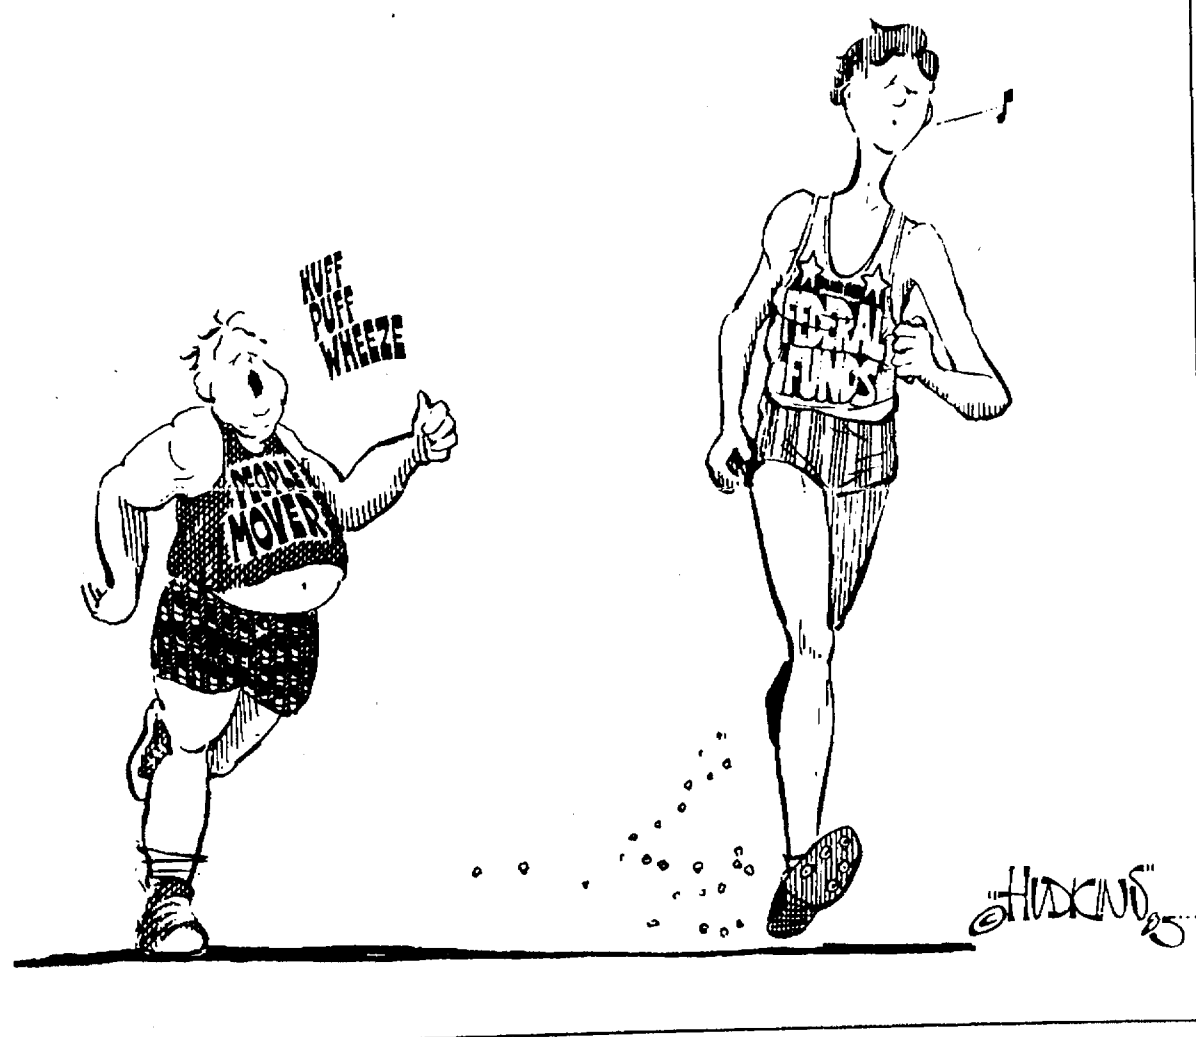

In making his income tax proposal, Lucas avoided mentioning any possible cuts in state services that might be required to achieve the "more efficient" state government he contemplates. Perhaps he could avoid cuts in state services as well as any replacement taxes. But Michigan's experience in 1975 indicates that would be exceedingly difficult to do.

To the Editor:

(The Park) Council's action on Sept. 9, prohibiting the storage of elm wood, portrays insight into the threats posed by the elm bark beetle. Where was this insight April 8 when council voted to discontinue a 30-year practice of insecticide spraying, the only known means to kill the beetle? The opinions of foresters, scientists and entomologists that cessation of spraying would be "a grave mistake" fell on deaf ears.

The Grosse Pointe News reported Aug. 8 that the Park's elm losses are up. As residual insecticide is further diluted, elm loss will escalate. Should the Park lose its 2,232 elms in five years, as did the Woods under similar circumstances, removal costs will exceed $1,000,000. If it is too early to attribute increased losses to lack of spraying, as we are first told, how do we know that "a better job is being done?"

The News further reported Sept. 19 upon the proposed use of cacodylic acid, to be injected into a dying tree, tagged for removal, in hopes of preventing root graft infection. Girdling a diseased tree, a requisite of sanitation, prevents DED fungus from reaching a tree's root system in the first instance. The neglect of those procedures necessary to keep healthy trees alive, in favor of unnecessary procedures for dying ones, is political chicanery.

Personally, I like live elms. Dead ones don't do much for me. If cacodylic acid attracts bark beetles, I am in favor of sabotaging Detroit's trees with the stuff. Let them keep their beetles at home. One thing is evident, the Park seems determined to have the best sanitized/sterilized dead elm population in the world.

Grosse Pointe Park

Editor's note: The writer's statement regarding elm tree losses in Grosse Pointe Woods was disputed by Chester Petersen, city administrator-clerk. He said the Woods' losses were not any greater after the city quit spraying than they were while the program was in effect. Actual losses have been averaging about 200 elms a year, 100 on public property and 100 on private. Petersen said, which totals about 1,000 trees in five years, or less than half of what is stated in the letter, "I think it's a proven fact that spraying is not the answer," Petersen said. "You'll still lose X number of elms every year whether you spray or not."

Most have good grades

To the Editor:

Regarding the article in the Sept. 12 Grosse Pointe News on eligibility for athletes with low grade averages: Being a student and athlete at Grosse Pointe South, I would say that a high percent of young women and men enrolled in after-school sports have a grade point that is average or above. What is more, they have earned the grade without any rules or regulations for a minimum grade point average.

I agree with Mr. Hollosy, the athletic director, at South, in saying that sports players have parental pressure for good grades. As a football player, I am often reminded by my parents that school comes first, and for me it does. If I cannot keep up my grade point, I will be forced to drop out.

All the time and trouble spent over the matter of whether there should be minimum grade averages for after-school sports players is a waste of the board's time and maybe they should try to get more enthusiasm out of the students and their parents.

Improvements needed

To the Editor:

I am responding to the article "Farms council approves $110,000 park improvements" in your Sept. 8 issue. I am glad to hear that the city is putting up the money for the improvements because they are definitely needed. New security will hopefully cut down the number of bike thefts and parking problems. I commend the council on the decision and you for printing the article.

The improvements give me hope for my main concern, which is Lakeshore Drive jamming up and mad people having to wait a long time before being permitted to enter the park. Lakeshore could cause motorists to be angered and the number of accidents to rise.

I congratulate the city on its decision. As long as Lakeshore does not clog up and people do not have to wait a long time to enter the park, the improvement should be a valuable one.

Important community topic

To the Editor:

I am currently a student and wish to complain about your coverage on the possible school closings in Grosse Pointe (Sept. 5).

The Free Press East section had the school closing story on the front page. It appeared on the opinion and letter section of The Grosse Pointe News. Most people, when they receive the paper read the front page first. It would make sense to put an important local story on the front page.

I find it strange a large newspaper could put a local story on front page. However, a local paper did not mention anything about the issue except to comment on it in the editorial section. I feel the editorial was inadequate, that the Grosse Pointe News should have featured a story on front page as well.

As a concerned student (Grosse Pointe South High School) I need to know what is happening with our school system. In the future I hope you will give more attention to important community topics.

Amy Albrecht

Editor's note: The news story on the goals set by the school board for the coming year appeared at the top of Page 3A in the Aug. 22 issue. The editorial was printed two weeks later.

Enough shopping centers

To the Editor:

I am writing you concerning your article in the Sept. 5 issue of the Grosse Pointe News. It seems as though the professional part of our population has become interested in the fact that the lease is up for the Punch and Judy Theatre. I would like to express to you my opposition to the Punch and Judy turning into a shopping center.

One of my concerns is that Grosse Pointe will no longer have a neighborhood theater. Worse than that, though, is that there will be a shopping center in town, as if we do not have enough.

This shopping center will most likely just create problems such as one more teenage hang-out, reduced business for our already established places of business and — an issue of greater concern — the parking.

I personally attended the school board meeting when the decision was made to rip up part of Richard Elementary School's play area for a parking lot. If the public thinks they can park there, they are wrong. The parking was for the Hill and the library, not for a shopping center; and furthermore, if the public does overflow this parking lot, where will they go? On to residential streets? The neighbors have already started to complain.

All in all, Mr. Editor, I do not feel that our community would benefit from a new shopping center.

Bonus idea bad

To the Editor:

Regarding your editorial on Sept. 12 about teacher salaries, I agree on the system of all teachers receiving the same starting pay and having that increased as their seniority increases. But I don't like the idea of teachers getting paid for doing a better job.

This will only cause controversy. Problems will arise, such as teachers disagreeing with other teachers' performances and arguing that some should not receive the bonus. Another problem that possibly could arise would be teachers complaining about never receiving this bonus.

If I were a teacher who had just started teaching, I would oppose this plan. It would interfere with my job. I would be concentrating more on getting this bonus instead of making sure the students got a good education.

I feel that this extra-bonus idea should be abolished.

Prime Time for Senior Citizens

By Marian Trainor

People of all ages have dreams and hopes and aspirations. Little boys dream of growing up to be baseball, hockey or football players. Little girls once dreamed of growing up to be like their mothers; of having a husband, a home and children. Today that dream has been altered to include achieving in the professions.

Sometimes the dream changes as we travel down life's winding paths. After all they were just daydreams, pleasant to contemplate but not at all suited to the talents and interests that come with maturity. The lucky ones achieve those altered aims and regret the time, when all battles won, they reach retirement age.

Many would like to go on working on their own at their chosen professions. Others would like to try something new. Both groups are too often deterred by that fear which society has subtly implanted in their minds — the fear of being too old holds them back.

Yet all around we are hearing of older people achieving in their later years goals that eluded them in their younger days.

Age didn't keep President Ronald Reagan from running for a second term.

For most of us the dream of being president vanished along with other childhood fantasies but others remained.

Perhaps it was a long-time yen to paint, to create beautiful scenery, memorable faces, impressive groupings on canvas.

At 60, acclaim has just come to George Wexler. He began his artistic career as an abstract expressionist. Dissatisfied with his work he began working from nature. Collectors shunned his work, but this didn't deter him from painting what he believed was right for him. Now he is recognized for the great artist he is.

Also worth noting is opera singer Kay Fitzpatrick. She has sung leading roles with the West German State Opera in Wiesbaden and the Houston Grand Opera Company in Texas. She has played in Broadway musicals, sung in concerts, played on television and radio.

In retirement she turned to an entirely different field. She helped to establish a hospice for people terminally ill of cancer in Jackson. She recruited and trained corps of volunteers who go into cancer patient homes, help them with their medications and talk to them.

A six-volume biography of Thomas Jefferson was termed "masterly" by the New York Times. What makes this even more exceptional is that the author, Professor Thomas Malone, is 90 years old and almost blind.

Another author is James Michener. At 77 he arises at 7:30 and works until 12:30. Michener was 40 years old before he began his writing career. Since then he has written 33 books. A new one, "Texas," has just hit the bookstores and promises to be a top-of-the-list seller.

Michener's story is almost as fascinating as his stories. He was abandoned on the doorstep of a widow, Mabel Michener, who took him in and gave him the name, James Michener. He lived in poverty, but learned to love literature from hearing Mabel read aloud from Dickens. He became fascinated by travel from reading an issue of National Geographic.

While he was in the U.S. Navy and assigned to the South Pacific, he wrote "Tales of South Pacific." It won the Pulitzer Prize in 1947 and was transformed into a Broadway musical by Rodgers and Hammerstein. He was on his way.

Michener has said that he will never retire. He adds that he has 28 or 29 ideas for books.

Just last week, television audiences were treated to an excellent program, "Izzy and Moe." The stars, Art Carney and Jackie Gleason, played two aging vaudeville actors. The story line revolves around how well the two perform when given a job that they are "too old for." They prove that years have nothing to do with being resourceful when they knock off the hoodlum untouchables.

While the story carries the message that age doesn't mean incompetency, the real value of the presentation is the example that Carney and Gleason provide for those who have "miles to travel" before they settle into a rocking chair.

Gleason has lost none of his ability to entertain and Carney, who won an Oscar for "Harry and Tonto" and last year won an Emmy for the CBS movies "Terrible Joe Moran," was excellent as Gleason's sidekick.

A television series that shows promise of endurance and high ratings is "Golden Girls." The stars of the show are in the prime time of life.

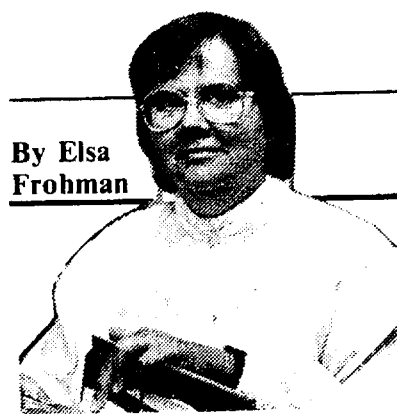

Bea Arthur, 59, plays a gruff divorced schoolteacher named Dorothy. Betty White plays Rose who is slow on the uptake — she never gets the point. Rue McClanahan, who played the television character Vivian Cavender Harmon, Maude's next-door neighbor, is cast as the widow Blanche — a man-crazy Southern Belle.

The older member of the cast is Dorothy's 80-year-old mother played by Estelle Getty. She is 62. She speaks her mind in no uncertain terms and adds a great deal of

I say

By Elsa Frohman

Some days, opening my mail is an adventure. What makes it so exciting? Not the press releases. Not the filled-out wedding forms. Not the birth announcements.

The items that make my mail fun to open are the press kits.

If you've never worked for a newspaper, you've probably never seen a press kit, and believe me, you've missed something.

Press kits range from a simple written statement accompanied by several appropriate photographs to gifts of merchandise accompanied by pop-up constructions that would challenge the Army Corps of Engineers.

In a recent column, Keith Crain of Crain's Detroit Business wrote about a bathrobe given to him as part of a press kit from the new Omni Hotel. He was quite pleased with the bathrobe. I find it a little bit hard to picture Keith Crain sitting around at home in his Omni Hotel bathrobe. I suppose he can slip into it after drying off with his Ramada Inn bath towels. Afterward he will sit down for a smoke, with his Holiday Inn ashtray.

Perhaps I'm jealous. I didn't get an Omni Hotel bathrobe.

I have received some interesting press kits, however. The cost that goes into some of these promotional packets seems to outweigh the possible benefits.

For example, take a recent press kit received from an internationally famous perfume company. The package included a sample bottle of perfume, which compared to the included price list would have sold for more than $7; two color photographs, which cost $3 to $5 apiece; several black and white photographs which probably cost about $1 apiece (wholesale); some of the most expensive-looking gilt-edged stationery I have ever seen; and a folder that probably cost another $1. Add to that the $2 worth of postage on the envelope and you have a $21 press kit.

We didn't print a word of it. The Grosse Pointe News is a community newspaper and if there isn't a local angle, it doesn't matter how expensive the press kit is.

Recently, a new restaurant in Troy sent out press kits to announce its grand opening party for the press. The kit included a hand-delivered, freshly baked hamburger bun. Nice touch, but the same rule that sank the perfume kit applies here.

Some of the press kits that come across my desk are engineering marvels that boggle the mind. Today's mail included an invitation to a press party that arrived folded into a little octagon, but expanded out into a foil-covered star about 18 inches across — three dimensional yet.

Press parties are another subject altogether. They tend to be lavish to the point that some reporters feel they have been slighted if the champagne is domestic. Personally, I find press parties a little bit awkward. After all, I'm supposed to be working. How am I supposed to interview anyone if my mouth is full, and how can I take notes if I have a drink in one hand and a plate of canapés in the other?

I have been to some excellent press parties, though. The best one I can remember didn't turn out at all as it was planned.

The occasion was a ribbon-cutting on a new bridge in another city. The press and city officials were to meet on the bridge for the ribbon-cutting, then proceed to a catering hall for the press reception.

Unfortunately, it started to rain about a half hour before the event was to begin. Out of about 75 people invited and expected at the event, less than 20 braved the rain to show up. That included three reporters, two photographers and a handful of damp city officials.

After the ribbon-cutting, we went on to the hall for the party. The rain got worse and nobody particularly wanted to leave. The less than 20 of us were alone in a huge hall, with a spread of hors d'oeuvres for 75 and an open bar, long into the night. The bridge was soon forgotten and we sat around stuffing ourselves with lobster and fried mushrooms, exchanging war stories about the media and civil service.

It didn't do much to publicize the bridge, but it was a great party.

The moral of the story? I suppose it would be to explain that a simple, typed, news release about an event or project has the same chance of being printed as an elaborate press kit — if the story has a local angle. However, I would like to add that I wear a size large bathrobe.

Auto exhaust testing program begins in area

As of Sept. 30, motorists in southeastern Michigan may be required to have the exhaust systems on their vehicles tested before they can get new license plates.

Notice of the federally ordered Auto Exhaust Testing (AET) program will come in the plate renewal envelopes from the Department of State that motorists get six to eight weeks before their plates expire.

The nearly 110,000 drivers with commercial plates will receive their notices as early as the first week in October. Motorists with passenger plates will begin getting their plate renewal applications containing the AET notice in November. They will go out at the rate of 30,000 to 40,000 a week.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has directed Michigan to begin Auto Exhaust Testing in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties because the air in those counties does not meet federal air quality standards. The goal is to reduce air pollution in those counties by requiring motorists to keep the emission control system on their vehicles working properly.

The law takes effect Jan. 1, 1986. EPA has threatened to block new industrial construction and cut federal highway money to the Detroit area if steps aren't taken to meet federal Clean Air Act standards for ozone and carbon monoxide.

Approximately 1.9 million of the 2.4 million cars and light trucks registered to addresses in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb will have to be tested once a year.

Vehicles that are excluded from the program and do not have to be tested are: vehicles more than nine years old; vehicles sold as new in the last 12 months; diesel or electric-powered vehicles; vehicles with a GVW rating of 8,500 lbs. or more; motorcycles and mopeds; and vehicles owned by people receiving Medicaid and General Assistance.

Owners of those vehicles that do have to be tested must take them to an official emission testing station once a year for a tailpipe check. Under Michigan law, the most a testing station may charge for an AET test is $10.

"Already more than 600 privately-owned repair shops, service stations and other businesses have been licensed by the state to become official inspection stations," said Roger James, director of the state Auto Exhaust Testing Division. "Many of those are already set up to do tests," he added.

If a vehicle passes the emission tests, the driver gets a Certificate of Compliance that is good for six months. That certificate must be presented when applying for a license plate or tab.

If a vehicle fails the AET test, the driver can either make repairs, which EPA estimates will average $40 in cost, and take a free reinspection, or, if repairs are estimated to cost more than $63, he or she can get a low emission tune-up. The low emission tune-up involves simple adjustments to the engine to make the car run cleaner.

Motorists who have tampered with the vehicle emission systems may be required to repair the system no matter what the cost.

"Although motorists don't have to comply with the AET requirement will Jan. 1, 1986, James said, we want to tell people about the program now so that they can avoid delays and inconveniences in getting their plates."

It's almost time to call it a season

By Tom Greenwood

As every Michigan resident knows, there are three sure signs of spring: the return of robins from down south; the reopening of hibernating Dairy Queens; and the appearance once again of hard-core golfers on courses still spotted with muddy snow drifts.

Conversely, when fall rolls around and frost turns everything milky white, most birds and ice cream lovers give up the summer without a struggle.

Not so with most golfers. At least, that's the opinion of local golf course superintendents.

"Heck, I can remember three or four years ago when we had golfers out on the course on Dec. 15," said Tracey Jones, course superintendent at the Lochmoor Club. "It was nice and warm. Up in the 60's. Some of our members just got sick and tired of being cooped up in the house. Can't say as I blame them."

Jones says his club doesn't see too many golfers after Thanksgiving, but "they can play the entire course as long as there's no top layer of ice on the ground. When it's like that, the ball just won't hold the green."

The Lochmoor Club has seen golfers on its grounds as early as March 3, when the weather was exceptionally good. "We had two or three weeks of good weather that early, so everyone played," Jones said. "Then the weather reverted to its normal self and we were shut down for a while again. Usually, we try and have the course ready by April 15 for our golfers."

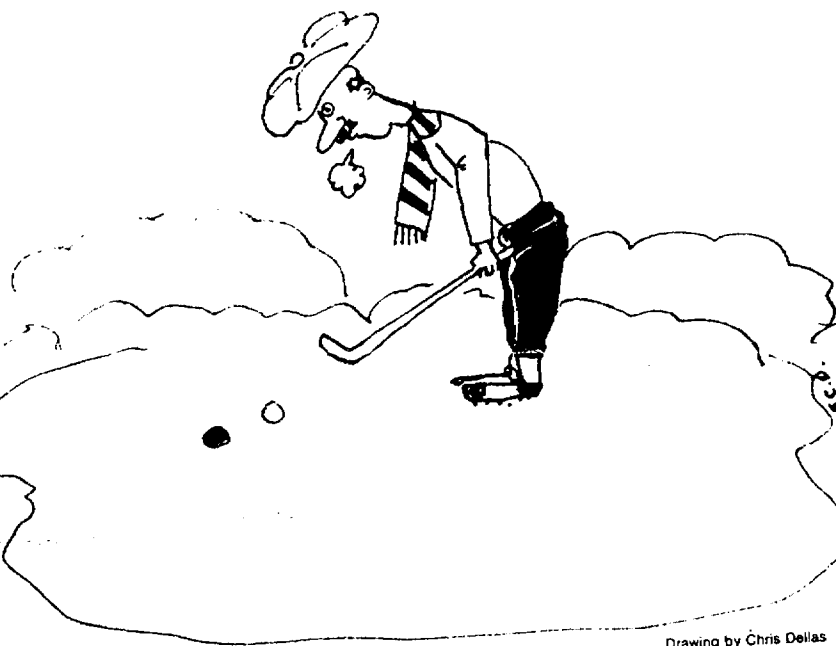

Over at the Forest Lake Country Club, in Bloomfield Hills, golfers can play all year-round, according to golf course superintendent Fritz McMullen.

We put in provisional flags," said McMullen, in a telephone interview. "They're located out on the fairways. Never on the greens. We put in an eight-inch cup to hold the flags. The golfers are only allowed to use one golf club, a 5-iron, and colored golf balls. It gives them some exercise and keeps their swings in shape.

Golfers face the facts

down, put it to sleep as we say, by about Nov. 15th," McMullensaid. "I'm a deer hunter, along with most of the rest of the crew, and we like to be up north by then. Then we're back in early December and start to work on the course during

Drawing by Chris Delias

"Most of our golfers, and there's a group of about 30 of them, play either on the weekends or on Wednesdays," McMullen said. "The group changes a bit from week to week. It all depends on who's got enough guts to play. I've seen these guys go out in snowstorms. They do love their golf."

Winter golf has been played at the club for about the last 10 years, according to McMullen. The average hole is shortened by 20 yards to make play a bit easier.

"We normally close the course the winter. Our usual full crew is about 11. During the off season, it's reduced to three."

Winter maintenance on golf courses requires a lot of work, according to both Jones and McMullen.

Bible study

The First Christian Reformed Church of Grosse Pointe Park begins its 1985-86 interdenominational "Coffee Break" Bible discovery series Tuesday, Oct. 8, from 9:45 to 11 a.m. at the church, 1444 Maryland.

A nursery will be provided for infants and toddlers and a story hour for kids aged 3 to 5 will be offered with Bible stories and activities.

This year, the women's group will study Ephesians, Peter 1 and 2, and John 1, 2 and 3. First-timers will study the Gospel of Mark.

An adult group meeting Tuesday evenings from 7 to 8 p.m. will also study Ephesians. For more information, call 824-0476 or 882-2760.

greens in agronomy from both the University of North Carolina and Pennsylvania State University.

"Here at the Lochmoor Club, we have over $750,000 in equipment that has to be kept in repair. We also prune the trees, cover the greens with matting and try to protect the areas that are affected by water seepage and high winds. Most people think all we do is cut the grass, but that's a mistake. In this job, we have to do a bit of everything."

According to Jones, that includes keeping up on the latest technology, grasses and chemical fertilizers to keep the course in tip-top shape.

"As a golf course superintendent, you have to wear a lot of different hats," Jones said. "You have to be familiar with architecture, landscaping, biology, civil engineering and sometimes a bit of psychology."

"You've also got to be a bit mechanically inclined to keep up the machinery and know how to handle money. I'm given a budget to work with and everything has to be planned out precisely," he said.

Both Jones and McMullen agree that no matter how precise their plans are, it all depends on one critical factor.

Michigan's famously unpredictable weather.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe. It contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers
Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

Best of all, ordering Amitol is simple, fast, and reliable! Simply call Dyna Labs Toll Free: (1-800-441-5454) Ext. 911. and order with your credit card. If you don't have a credit card Dyna Labs will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! All orders are shipped immediately by UPS, which means no delay and no orders lost in the mail!

$19.95—30 day supply, or $35.95—60 day supply. Operators are standing by and will be glad to take your order. You can order 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a week! Please don't wait to call. You really do deserve to be thin!

humor to the situations. She remarks to Rose as she delivers one her drawn-out recitations: "Get on with it, I'm 80 years old. I won't live to hear the end."

The four women share a house and problems. In the process they provide a lot of laughs.

The opening segment focuses on Blanche's meeting with what appears to be an outstanding marital prospect. When she announces her engagement and plans for an immediate marriage, the group is upset, not only because they think she is acting impulsively, but also because they don't want to break up the group. The problem is solved in an unexpected turn of events but not without subtly pointing out the loneliness and vulnerability of being a widow.

This same point is brought into focus again in another episode when Betty White makes a statement about the injustice of being a woman alone. "We spend our lives on our family," she laments. "it's not fair that we're left alone."

In the same segment, Dorothy has a scene with her ex-husband who has left her to marry a younger woman.

These are existing problems but they surface on waves of humor, making the show attractive not only to older viewers but to a general audience.

Looking at these examples of people who have persisted in their chosen careers into their later years provides an example and incentive for those who don't look upon retirement as a blessing, to keep going.

Those who want to retire from a job that has provided a living but not much in the way of personal satisfaction and who would like to try something they have always dreamed of doing, can look to these winners for confidence and belief that success can come at any age if one has the faith and courage and energy.

Some of the singers who will assist Pat Junker, seated at the piano, in the Music Masters lecture series are Bob Gillenkirk, Randa Ball and Marian Alan.

Music Masters series Oct. 7

The acoustics of Room 101 and adjoining corridor at the Barnes Center will echo the sounds of beautiful music for seven consecutive Mondays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. beginning Oct. 7. The center is located at 2090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

In addition to four Music Masters lecture classes given by Pat Junker, this season will also include a survey of opera, in conjunction with the three operatic productions by the Michigan Opera Theatre at the Fisher Theatre.

The first class will be on Monday, Oct. 7, when Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi" and Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci" will be studied, along with biographical notes about the composers. In addition to listening to fine recordings of these works, a live performance by local singers, accompanied by Pat Junker, will enhance the occasions.

Subsequent opera classes will be Oct. 28, surveying Flotow's "Martha"; and Nov. 11, with Bernstein's "West Side Story" as the subject for the evening.

Each session is scheduled to coincide with the MOT production of each opera. One may enroll in each opera class individually, or the complete series of three. Assisting singers will be Marion Alan, Randa Ball, Bob Gillenkirk, Bea Lipsey, Jean Murawski and Elaine Turner.

Intertwined with the Monday evening opera scheduling are Music Masters classes scheduled Oct. 14 and 21, and Nov. 4 and 18. Orchestral music to be performed by the Detroit, Grosse Pointe and Lake St. Clair symphony orchestra in concert will be surveyed at that time, also with the assistance of local artists in live performance, and biographical studies of composers, such as Barber, Beethoven, Berlioz, Gershwin and Rimsky-Korsikov.

Anyone who would like further information about enrollment in these classes may call the Department of Community Education at 343-2178.

Engineers establish awards

The Civil Affairs Committee of the Engineering Society of Detroit (ESD) is accepting nominations for the newly established Outstanding Civic Involvement awards.

The two awards are designed to recognize engineers, scientists, technicians and students in technical fields who have made significant contributions of time and effort to civic, community and/or charitable endeavors. One award has been designated for a practicing professional, the other for a student.

Intended to give recognition and encourage participation of the engineering and scientific community in civic, community and charitable affairs, the ESD awards will also promote the concept of civic-mindedness.

Nominees should be either professional or student engineers, architects, scientists or technicians who participate on a voluntary basis in civic, community or charitable activities. Nominations must be submitted to ESD by Nov. 27. Selected candidates will be interviewed and awards will be presented at the Gold Awards Banquet on Feb. 19, 1986.

For nominating materials or additional information, call Sheila Osann at 832-5400.

Sampler classes offered for seniors

This fall Seminar for Seniors, the innovative, tuition-free sampler class provided by the Grosse Pointe Board of Education for local retirees who are 60 or over, enters its eighth year.

As in the past, the program has been designated to assist local senior citizens to use their well-earned leisure time to explore new fields of interest. This fall all sampler sessions will be held Fridays at 1:30 p.m. at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive.

First speaker will be Dr. Michael Skaff of Academic Research Systems who will provide a timely introduction to a topic of current interest on Friday, Oct. 4.

He will be followed on Oct. 11 by Laura Granger, a music teacher, who will spark a sing-along with tunes from musical comedies of the not-too-distant past in a program called "Chorale."

On Oct. 18 Barbara Foreman, a licensed nurse certified in ophthalmology, will present the latest on eye care and will help senior citizens understand general ophthalmic problems.

The fall session ends on Oct. 25 with a presentation, "Wildlife of Florida." Tim Joslyn of the Living Science Foundation, an expert on natural history, will provide a new and totally unique presentation designed to help senior citizens get the most out of their winter trip to Florida.

Again this year, in addition to the free-of-charge sampler classes which will be held on Fridays at 1:30, related follow-up activities conducted by the same instructor, will be available at a nominal fee. Prior enrollment will be required for all Department of Community Education activities.

For example, those whose appetite for learning about computers has been whetted, may consider enrolling in a four-week class co-sponsored with Academic Research Systems beginning at 9:30 a.m. on Monday, Oct. 7. Fee for the class, to be held at Barnes School, is $30.

Granger will introduce a new-for-fall class, "Chorale for Adults," beginning at 1:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 17. This eight-week fun sing-along with favorites from the Jazz Age through Sinatra will include selections from popular musical comedies. Senior citizens fee is $21.

For those who want to reinforce their learning about the eye, Foreman will again present "Good Eye Health Awareness" at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 19 at Barnes School. Her presentation is free of charge.

If the presentation on "Wildlife of Florida" inspires seniors to know more about natural history, they may consider "Lords of the Air, Souls of the Dinosaur," also co-sponsored with the Living Science Foundation, which will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 7 at Barnes School. Enjoy a beautiful slide presentation and a live-animal presentation with the Living Science birds. Fee is $4.50.

For space availability, call 343-2178.

Keynote speaker for both sessions will be Eleanor Smeal, newly elected president of the National Organization for Women (NOW). She will address "The Women's Movement: What's Next?" and "Federal Policies: The Women's Perspective."

Other daytime speakers will include Irene Duan, Institute of Psychology, Academy of Sciences, University of the Peoples Republic of China. She will speak on "The Status of Women in the Peoples Republic of China."

To Lee, from Nickie

Detroit Free Press columnist Nickie McWhirter had her hands full last Thursday afternoon when she made a personal appearance at Jacobson's to autograph copies of her book "Pea Soup — The Best of Nickie McWhirter." Among the first in line that afternoon was Lee Brunette Tyler, who found Nickie, one of Detroit's most popular writers, a thoroughly approachable personality.

Industrial trends is topic

In the aftermath of the recent recession, should the Detroit area be putting more eggs in the non-industrial basket? How can we prevent another recession from ripping our community apart again?

These questions will be addressed when the War Memorial's Council of Sponsors presents "De-Industrialization or Re-Industrialization: Which Way for America?" on Tuesday, Oct. 8, at 8 p.m.

John A. Fillion, UAW special counsel, will lecture. He contends that although the mood of much of the country favors non-manufacturing industries such as high tech, research and development, service and finance, the old line manufacturing industries like auto and steel, which are Detroit's industrial tax base, have been seriously reduced by de-industrialization. The shift of the smokestack industries to low labor cost areas abroad has had an adverse effect on this country's employment.

A resident of Grosse Pointe Park, Fillion is a graduate of Lawrence University and University of Michigan Law School. He has been affiliated with the UAW since 1959, is past president of the Detroit Chapter of the Industrial Relations Research Association, and a member of the Labor and Employment Law Section of the American Bar Association.

The War Memorial's Council of Sponsors is a voluntary group whose intent is to supplement the Center's general programming with enrichment seminars and lectures which facilitate the educational, cultural and civic needs of the community. Margot Kessler is the chairperson of this event, which costs $5.

For more information, call 881-7511.

'New' Kerby School is 36 years old

By Nancy Parmenter

A crescent window rescued from Old Kerby School looks down on an unusual display of local historic memorabilia in the front hall of the new Kerby School — now 36 years old. Painted white, glass and all, the window/sign announces "Heritage Hall," a collection of minutiae equal in variety, if not in quantity, to the Smithsonian's.

A child-sized astronaut hovers 10 feet off the floor, balanced by an "authentic" handmade bark canoe about three feet long. Along the wall above the display cases runs a canvas-paneled mural painted by old "New Kerby" students to illustrate the history of Detroit and Grosse Pointe. Along the banks of the Detroit River are the original log cabins and ribbon farms, the fledgling smokestack industries, the mansions on Lakeshore for the captains of those industries, while freighters ancient and modern ply the river channel.

Heritage Hall is only one of the unique qualities of Kerby School. Principal Leo Warras is quick to count off the others.

The science room is the pride of the school. Organized by parents and staff who combed their own and the school's attics for curiosities to stimulate young minds, the science room is just a year old and still growing.

Here are birds and hamsters, unknown plants stretching toward the sunlight, remnants of horse-shoe crabs, a model of the solar system. A science coordinator provided to all the elementary schools by the school system is helping to make sense of it all by organizing hands-on learning projects. Hands-on is the key element. How else can you know concretely that the horse-shoe crab is related to the spider but by turning it over and counting the spidery legs hidden under the carapace?

For Warras, one of the best things about the science room is the cooperation involved in turning it into a reality. "There were parents who showed up, went through the attic, dragged stuff down, catalogued things," he said. "It was a tremendous cooperative effort."

Cooperation is typical of the way things get done at Kerby, Warras said. Kerby parents are active in school affairs, from the dads who turned out with a tractor to yank dead shrubs or install a snow fence to protect the new grass on the playground, to the fundraising efforts of the parents who stage the triennial Kerby Carnival.

It is parents who volunteer their time to teach lunchtime enrichment classes, parents who participate with the kids in the Festival of Stars, parents who come out to the talk sessions about juveniles' problems — from the heartbreaks like substance abuse to appropriate use of the telephone. "Kerby calls itself a family, and there's some truth to the metaphor," Warras said. "It's a fantastic parent support group. They ask a lot, as they should, and they also ask how they can help."

Kerby School has a long-standing tradition of providing a quality education to the neighborhood children. "I'm real comfortable with the staff," Warras said, "both with their teaching ability and with the way they care about kids."

The Kerby staff has an average of 22 years of teaching experience under their belts, with 11 of those years spent at Kerby, so they "really know the community," Warras said. School secretary Margaret Constantine has been at the school for 12 years and knows the intricacies of the school operation and of the kids. She's the one who knows that if she can't reach little Johnny's mother, she can call so-and-so because she's Johnny's mother's cousin. "She was a real help to me when I started," said Warras, who took over as Kerby principal last year.

Although the focus on academics is obvious, Kerby also emphasizes enhancing the children's self-esteem. IALAC, "I Am Loving And Capable," a program started by former Principal Dick Kay, is still in effect. "We're still using it," Warras said. "Now we're looking at new ways to express the same thing."

Warras marveled at the degree of support that brings out "close to 100 percent" of the parents for the school's fall and spring conferences, "even though with working parents, there are a number of reasons why they might not come."

The family feeling is obvious, too. On a tour of the Kerby facilities, Warras was greeted by student after student, many of them anxious to tell him about the "crash" their schoolbus had been in an hour before. (A bus carrying a class on a field trip had been in a fender-bender and Warras already knew about it, to the children's manifest disappointment.)

"It's a good life being in an elementary building," Warras said. "There's a sense of renewal every year."

YOUR GREATEST LOSS MAY NOT YET BE APPARENT
David Jantz, D.C.

When one automobile is struck by another, or when a vehicle rams a stationary object, thousands of pounds of force are exerted upon the neck and spine of the passengers. The head is thrust toward the impact. The muscles stretch and react with a violent spasm in the opposite direction. The unhappy and painful result is injury to the muscles, ligaments, nerves and sometimes broken bones. Automobile injuries, left untreated, can result in severe permanent injury.

It may be years before the problem shows itself. But, sorry to say, by then, it may be too late to prevent YOUR GREATEST LOSS — YOUR HEALTH.

DON'T TAKE A CHANCE WITH YOUR HEALTH. IF YOU ARE IN AN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT ... CALL 881-7677.

American hunters spend half-billion

American hunters and sport anglers spent more than a half billion dollars in license and permit fees — a new record — to pursue their sports in 1984, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced.

State fish and wildlife agency records showed $552 million was spent for the purchase of hunting and fishing licenses, tags, permits and stamps. The total number of license holders, however, dropped slightly from 45,503,447 in 1983 to 45,034,168 in 1984.

Michigan ranked third behind Pennsylvania and Texas in the number of paid hunting license holders — 912,119. With 1,391,515 paid fishing license holders, Michigan ranked fifth in the nation behind California, Texas, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Audience to act as jury

On the night of January the 16th, corporate mogul Bjorn Faulkner fell from the top of the Faulkner Building and died. Long known for his ruthlessness in both business and personal affairs, his death proves to be as controversial as his life.

Faulkner's personal secretary, Karen Andre, has been charged with first-degree murder. "Miss Andre is just as ruthless and cut-throat as Mr. Faulkner," the district attorney said. Her friends characterize her as an intensely devoted employee capable of almost anything for Faulkner's sake, including murder as a means to end his recent business troubles.

The defense attorney believes she had nothing to do with Faulkner's death. "This is clearly a suicide. Mr. Faulkner took his own life because he was despondent over the collapse of his business."

How did Bjorn Faulkner really die? Is Karen Andre guilty of murdering him? A jury trial will be held at University Liggett School where the facts will be presented in Ayn Rand's "Night of January the 16th" by the ULS Players. Jury members will be chosen from the audience at each trial. Court convenes Oct. 24, 25 and 26 at 8 p.m.

New principal

Frances French, retiring principal at South High, extended a warm welcome to the newly appointed principal, Edward Shine, as he paid a brief visit Sept. 16 and 17. He met with department heads and administrators in preparation of his arrival on the job Oct. 1. He expects to move his family from Westport, Conn. to their new home on Lakeland Oct. 4.

Art teachers in exhibit

Two Grosse Pointe South High art instructors have had pieces of their art work selected for the annual fall opening exhibition at the Detroit Artist Market at Harmonie Park.

Robert R. Rathbun, chairperson of South's Art Department, had two of his drawings/paintings selected and Jack Summers, photography teacher, had two of his photographs selected.

Local students earn commendations

Fifteen Grosse Pointe public high school students have been designated as commended students in the 1986 National Merit Scholarship program for placing in the top 5 percent of the more than 1 million participants in the 31st annual program.

North students who will receive letters of commendation for their academic performance are Nicole Abood and Patrick Cosgrove.

Letters of commendation have been earned by South students Jeff A. Clark, James P. Curran, Robert E. DeMercurio, Nicole B. DuPont, David O. Fuqua, Aaron E. Jabbour, Laura A. Jones, Thomas R. Jones, Paul R. Rabbideau, Jila A. Shafadeh, Michael M. Waitkus, John M. Williams and Rafal Zielinski.

Of the more than 1 million students who entered the 1986 scholarship competition by taking the qualifying test last fall, about 35,000 are being commended this month as they begin their final year of high school. These participants scored high, but slightly below students in their respective states who qualified as Merit Program semifinalists. Five local public high school students made the semi-final listing.

Only the 15,000 semifinalists, announced recently, will receive further consideration for merit scholarships. Next year, NMSL will announce the names of about 5,800 Merit Scholarship winners.

Trombly students go science-hunting

If you happened by the Trombly Elementary School playground around lunchtime Friday, Sept. 27, you may have done a double take.

Besides the usual groups of children running, playing ball and using the playground equipment, there were other groups of students involved in more unusual activities; everything from building human pyramids to looking for worms.

The children were part of a scavenger hunt which incorporated a search for animals, plants and minerals on the school grounds. This was a first of a series of monthly science investigations planned by this year's PTO Science Committee under the supervision of Dr. Helen Ownby and Julie Gallimore. Each group consisted of children in grades K to 5, one older child acting as team captain and a parent/volunteer standing by to offer assistance. The hunt list was designed to stimulate the imagination and to give the children a hands-on science experience. There were no right or wrong answers. Every child was encouraged to give input to the group after individually thinking about what was on the list.

Depending upon the number of Trombly parent/volunteers available, a second investigation may be added each month. If available to assist during lunchtime, contact the Trombly school office at 343-2285. The investigations will occur after lunch from approximately 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.

Visit Valparaiso U.

High school juniors and seniors are invited to visit Valparaiso University in Indiana on Saturday, Nov. 9. The Junior/Senior Day will include programs and activities designed to acquaint the students with the campus and curricula of the nation's largest Lutheran university.

The Detroit chapter, Valparaiso University Guild, will furnish transportation to and from the university for Detroit area students who want to attend. Students will leave early on Nov. 9 and will return late the following afternoon. Overnight housing will be provided for the students in university dormitories.

For further information, contact Mrs. Arnold Brammeier at 885-7923 before Oct. 20.

South parents will meet

Parents of South High students are invited to school tonight, Oct. 3, to meet their student's teachers and become more familiar with the high school curriculum.

Parents will follow an abbreviated version of their student's schedule with the first period scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. Each of the seven-class periods will be 12 minutes in length with the last class ending at 9:57 p.m.

During each class period teachers will define briefly the course of study, describe methods used to develop skills and how they are integrated into the course, list the organizational skills required to understand the content of the course, explain the nature and purpose of the study guides, assignments and tests and interpret the criteria used to evaluate student performance, according to Frances French, acting principal.

Refreshments will be served during the entire evening in Clemenson Hall.

Students can preview SAT process

This fall the nearly 1.5 million students across the United States who take the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) will have a special opportunity to familiarize themselves with the testing format also used on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

"On the PSAT/NMSQT, the 400 students taking the test at South High on Oct. 19 at 8 a.m. can preview the exam process for the SAT — the prerequisite for many college-bound students," said Russell P. Luttinen, assistant principal, Student Services.

As preparation for the 100-minute, two-part test, students receive a Student Bulletin containing a complete sample test with an answer key and scoring instructions.

After taking the actual test, students will receive a booklet, "About Your PSAT/NMSQT Scores," a descriptive explanation of test results. Students will also be able to compare their individual answers with the correct answers by consulting the "Report of Student Answers," another valuable guide. Actual test booklets will also be made available to allow students to spot mistakes and work out answers correctly.

SOC issues year-end service reports

More than 5,000 residents and agencies in the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods area were served this past year by SOC, (Services for Older Citizens).

At SOC's eighth annual meeting last month, members elected officers and reviewed reports detailing the growing use of SOC services for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30. SOC was organized in 1977 as a volunteer umbrella organization to set up and coordinate programs for area residents 60 years and older.

Frances Schonenberg was named chairperson of the board for the coming year and Arthur C. Bodeau will serve his second year as board president. Other officers are: William T. Peters, administrative vice-president; Fremont D. Fountain, finance vice president; Carrie Peebles, program vice president; Dorothy Ludwig, treasurer; Susan Davies, corresponding secretary; and Theodore B. Fleming Jr., recording secretary.

As a result of SOC's first membership drive since its inception, 65 members joined the organization during the 1984-85 year, and contributed $3,194. A drive for new members will continue in 1986.

SOC's Senior Information Center reported serving 3,600 different individuals during the past year with approximately three contacts per person. The center assists callers in finding help for a variety of situations ranging from medical and legal problems to information about utility, tax and community programs.

The Minor Home Repair program performed 1,540 services for 865 families, 622 of which were headed by women. This program provides handyman-type help, including minor plumbing and electrical repairs, to eligible seniors and is funded by Community Block Grant Funds through city governments.

Other services include the Food and Friendship program which served approximately 200 different people during the year. Seniors can eat a hot lunch and attend a variety of education, craft and exercise programs at Ferry School five days a week. This service is funded by government funds, the remainder are by private-pay through SOC. Volunteers to drive are always needed for this service.

Trained volunteers, many seniors themselves, assisted 142 older residents with property tax rebate and simple income tax forms.

Trustees elected to serve on the SOC Board of Trustees include: Betty Jane Allor, Bert Francis, Howard Hush, Fremont Fountain, Lawrence F. Kennedy and David Russell.

Others are Mary Evelyn Self, Jack B. Frey, Frank Dillon, Janet Coulter and Frances Schonenberg.

Inter-faith center seeks volunteers

The Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice is looking for volunteers to help produce public service announcements to promote its activities for use on Grosse Pointe Cable.

The Center is interested in individuals whose schedules permit them to attend training sessions designed to teach video techniques on four consecutive Monday evenings at the Grosse Pointe Cable studio, 19245 Mack Ave.

For more information, call the Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center at 882-6464.

Aging parents

A six-week program for adults with aging parents and relatives will be taught at Saratoga Community Hospital, 15000 Gratiot Ave., on Mondays, from Oct. 7 through Nov. 11.

Each two-hour class will run from 7 to 9 p.m. The course will provide information about the emotional aspects of aging, understanding illness and confusion in the elderly, and improving communication.

Pre-registration is required. Call 245-1450 for more information and registration.

Working the Bible

Beginning Tuesday, Oct. 8, and continuing through November, the Rev. John Corrado will lead a seminar titled "Working the Bible." The seminar is offered as part of this season's Judeo-Christian Heritage program.

The seminar will be held at Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, 17150 Maumee, on Tuesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Bring a Good News Bible and a notebook. There is no fee for members in good standing at the church or any other local Unitarian society. A $20 donation will be asked of non-members.

For more information, call the church office at 884-0120.

Historical footnotes indicate Saint Francis of Assisi weighed more than 300 pounds.

God's creatures

A NOTE FROM THE SURGEON GENERAL

"It has always been known that donating blood has nothing to do with AIDS. Giving blood is absolutely safe. There is no way that a donor can contract AIDS or any other disease by giving a pint of blood. Despite the known safety of donating blood, some people are afraid to give. In fact, blood donations are down from a year ago, and there is evidence that some previous donors are staying away from blood drives because they are afraid they may get AIDS.

"Their fear, I cannot stress too strongly, is unfounded. All blood collection agencies use a new needle for each donor. That needle is sterile, and it is thrown away after a single use. You cannot get AIDS from donating blood."

-C. Everett Koop, M.D.
Surgeon General of the United States

Know Your Grosse Pointes

Frances Schonenberg, seated on the left, and Thomas Youngblood, president of the Grosse Pointe Rotary, standing on left, and William Cole of Manufacturer's National Bank, standing on the right, recently met with William Wesslerling at Wesslerling Press to check the final galley for "Know Your Grosse Pointes," a booklet published once every 10 years by the local League of Women Voters. The Rotary and Manufacturer's National Bank each donated funds to help defray printing costs on the book which lists important governmental information about the community. The book will be available at the league's Arts Bazaar at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Oct. 5.

Respect series continues this week

Respect, as it relates to strangers and friends, will be the final topic covered in Sherwin T. Wine's lecture series, "Respect: Getting It and Giving It" at the War Memorial on Wednesday, Oct. 9, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Wine maintains that anger and rudeness from salespeople, professionals, and other strangers is encouraged because of the crowded and competitive environment in which we live. In his third lecture, "Community and Respect," Wine will consider useful methods to motivate people who are strangers to deliver and receive respectful attitudes even in brief encounters.

For additional information call the Center at 881-7511. The cost for this lecture is $6.50.

Music Makers

Performers with a really, really big band sound

By Elsa Frohman

"A good musician is a gift from the Lord," says Frank Seydler, music director of the Music Makers. "We have a nucleus of really top-notch players."

The Music Makers is a group of 27 members of the Senior Men's Club of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial who have dedicated themselves to playing music the way it was played by the best bands of the big band era. The group operates under the umbrella of the Senior Men's Club, which has 19 sub-clubs under its wing. The members accept no compensation for their performances. They play for donations to the War Memorial.

"There is a need for activity," Seydler said. "When you retire, activities become very important."

The musicians in the group range in age from 62 to 83, though they helped former player, Tim Healy, celebrate his 90th birthday recently.

"He hasn't played for about a year," Seydler said.

Some of the bandmembers are former professional musicians. Some even played with famous big bands back in the heyday of the big band sound.

"Our members come from all walks of life," Seydler said. "Detroit has always been known for producing fine musicians. But the music life is a tough life and many of them got into other activities later — particularly if they were married. It's tough to follow that life."

Seydler played the piano in the band from the time it was established about 10 years ago, until about five years ago. Today his contribution to the group is primarily administrative.

Seydler has never been a professional musician. He earned his living as a mining engineer until he retired.

"Most of the fellows have had pretty good jobs," Seydler said. "We have former vice presidents from pretty big firms, we have pharmacists and we even have a physician."

The group has high standards for its performances, but 10 years ago when it was just starting out, things were different.

The Music Makers, who "carry the flag" of the Senior Men's Club, practice and play regularly at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. All proceeds from their performances go to support programs of the War Memorial.

"We sounded like a bunch of cats on a tin roof," Seydler said. "We started out practicing in people's homes, but pictures started falling off the walls."

The group moved its practices to the War Memorial and started a relationship that has flourished ever since.

"They (the War Memorial) have done pretty well by us," Seydler said.

While the War Memorial provides the Music Makers with space for practicing, the Music Makers have provided the War Memorial with considerable funds over the years. While the group asks for a donation whenever they play, they accept none of the money for themselves. It goes entirely to the War Memorial.

"We get more pleasure out of doing things for people and making them happy," Seydler said.

The musicians of the Music Makers are so skillful, they can transpose music from one key to another without trouble.

"They call our arrangements charts," Seydler said.

The group performs at many locations in the area. Last week the group gave a concert at the retirement home at St. Athanasius. They will be playing at an Oktoberfest at the First Lutheran Church on Oct. 19.

"We have band followers who come to see us where ever we go," Seydler said.

The group has played at many large affairs and has a reputation as a top band.

"We're a real big band — not a five-piece group," Seydler said.

Next July the Music Makers will play a three-night engagement at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Dearborn for the reunion of the 94th Infantry of the U.S. Army.

The Music Makers are made up of the following musicians: Sid Ariemma, drums, Grosse Pointe Woods; Ben Ball, banjo, Grosse Pointe Farms; Eugene Beno, bass, Grosse Pointe Shores; Albert Beste, public relations, St. Clair Shores; John Christopher, trumpet, Grosse Pointe Park; Merle Compton, drums, Grosse Pointe Woods; Philip D'Agostino, accordion, Grosse Pointe Woods; Monte Edelen, saxophone, Grosse Pointe Park; Ben Grycan, trumpet, Grosse Pointe Woods; Tim Healy (retired), flute, Grosse Pointe; John Hill, trumpet, Grosse Pointe; Richard Johnson, trumpet, Grosse Pointe; Albert Malooly, saxophone, Grosse Pointe Woods; Alex McLuckie, trombone, Grosse Pointe Woods; Vernor Morris, banjo, Grosse Pointe; Frank Olds, clarinet, St. Clair Shores; Gus Pallas, organ, Grosse Pointe Woods; Stanley Scottford, violin, New Baltimore; Robert Shaffer, saxophone, Grosse Pointe Shores; Mel Stander, saxophone, St. Clair Shores; James Stelma, bass guitar, Grosse Pointe Woods; Donald Vandebunte, trombone, Grosse Pointe Woods; Wayne Wiseman, saxophone, Grosse Pointe Farms; Michael Bentz, and Lyle Korum of St. Clair Shores.

Fight fat

Coronary heart disease has declined 37 percent in the past 20 years. Many factors are influential, the September Reader's Digest reports, but two simple life-style changes — reduction of fat consumption and cigarette smoking — account for over half the decline.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. William Burns III

Spilos-Burns

Starlene Calista Spilos, daughter of Dorothy and Ernest Spilos Sr. of Grosse Pointe Farms, and William Arthur Burns III, son of Ruth and William Arthur Burns II of Plymouth, Minn., were married on June 21 at Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, where the bride's parents and sister were also married.

The Rev. David Eshelman officiated at the 6 p.m. candlelight ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Fries Ballroom.

The bride wore an ivory, mattee taffeta dress with a portrait neckline and double puffed sleeves. The full, gathered skirt featured a cathedral train. Her cathedral-length train fell from a crown of pearls, rhinestones and sequins. She carried a bouquet of orchids, roses, stephanotis and ivy.

The maid of honor was Cheryl Stefen, sister of the bride, Laguna Hills, California. SOME OF THE GREATEST THINGS IN AMERICA NEVER CHANGE. SOME DO.

U.S. Savings Bonds. Paying Better Than Ever.

Back in 1872, San Francisco's first cable cars were called "Hallidie's folly." Today, they're America's only mobile historic monument.

Some things never change.

But one great American tradition has changed—U.S. Savings Bonds. Now Savings Bonds pay higher variable interest rates like money market accounts. That's the kind of change anyone can appreciate.

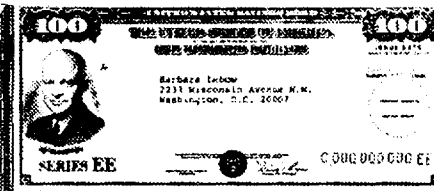

Just hold Savings Bonds for five years and you get the new variable interest rates. Plus, you get a guaranteed return. That means you can earn a lot more, but never less than 7 1/2%.

You can purchase Bonds at almost any financial institution. Or easier yet, through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Buy Savings Bonds. Like the cable car, they're another part of our proud heritage.

For the current interest rate and more information, call toll-free 1-800-US-Bonds.

Miriam Noland: Making things better

By Elsa Frohman

One of the community's newest Pointers has responsibility for one of southeastern Michigan's newest charitable foundations.

Miriam Noland arrived in the area in mid-August to become executive director of the Community Foundation of Southeastern Michigan. Incorporated in June 1984, the foundation exists in order to fund cultural, educational, health and human service programs.

Noland brings considerable experience in foundation work to her new position. She comes to Detroit from St. Paul, Minn., where she was vice president of the St. Paul Foundation. Previously, she was a program officer for the Cleveland Foundation.

"The Cleveland Foundation was one of her first and is one of the largest community foundations," Noland said.

She explained that community foundations have a special niche among charitable groups. "Community foundations are somewhat different from private foundations," she said. "We don't have a single contributor. We have many contributors."

In its first year, the primary work of the foundation was building an endowment from scratch. After it has operated for a while and has established itself, the Community Foundation will solicit most of its contributions from individuals throughout southeastern Michigan. However, for a "seed" endowment, the foundation turned to other, established foundations.

Initial contributors to the Community Foundation included the Kresge Foundation, Skillman Foundation, William Randolph Hearst Foundation, Hudson-Webber Foundation, McGregor Fund and the United Foundation.

"Community foundations really make a difference in a community," Noland said. "We take resources and put them in a permanent endowment to improve the well-being of the people in the entire region."

In its first year, the Community Foundation raised $8 million. But that is only a beginning. The San Francisco Foundation, the largest in the United States, has assets of $460 million.

A foundation's endowment is not the money it gives away. The endowment is invested and the income is translated into good works.

"Most other communities have well-established foundations," Noland said. "We have to do some catching up. It will take time for the foundation to become as large as we would like it to be."

However, foundation work is not all fundraising. Noland is also responsible for giving out money. Before the end of 1985, Noland hopes the foundation will have made some $300,000 in grants back into the community.

On July 1, the foundation made 29 grants for: advocacy for Medicare patients, emergency child care assistance, teenaged suicide prevention, a community-based anti crime program, alcohol education for school children, hospice care, training science teachers, training child care workers, music therapy in nursing homes, bringing the performing arts to the deaf and an arts outreach program for the Dearborn schools. The grants range from $1,000 to $15,000.

"Detroit can well be proud of what is happening here," Noland said. "The board (of the Community Foundation) is working hard to make it happen."

According to Noland, one of the advantages of the foundation is that it is a small organization. "It's not a huge bureaucracy," she said. "When we see a need, we do something about it. We need to be flexible and change with changing times. We are receptive to ideas and respond quickly."

The final decision on who gets a grant and who doesn't rests with the foundation's board of directors. A grant review committee evaluates all requests and develops recommendations for allocations.

To qualify to apply for a grant, an organization must have been in existence for a least one year before application. If private, the organization must meet the legal definition of non-profit. The group must have a board of directors which meets regularly and must be providing services to the citizens of southeastern Michigan.

"That doesn't mean we're going to say yes to every single request," Noland said. "The board makes a good hard judgment."

However, Noland encourages those with an interest and a possible project for the community to make an application.

"They should start by calling me up," she said. "We can talk and get information about program ideas. It helps if we get to know each other. We publish our phone number and we're available. If we're going to be part of the community, we have to be accessible."

Noland accepted the position as executive director of the foundation after a nation-wide executive search. She said that leaving St. Paul was a difficult choice because she was happy in her job and her home there.

Miriam Noland is settling into her Grosse Pointe Farms home. She came from St. Paul, Minn., where she was vice president of the St. Paul Foundation, to be executive director of the Community Foundation of Southeastern Michigan.

"I thought this was an important job, so I came," she said.

Noland's academic credentials are impressive. She holds a master's degree in education administration and social policy from Harvard. She did her undergraduate work at Case Western University in Ohio. Originally from a small town in Ohio, she says her work took her away from home and into the big cities.

After working in education administration at several colleges, Noland says she got interested in foundation work after visiting the Cleveland Foundation and discovering what a good effect a community foundation can have on the people of a region.

"I came to understand that a community foundation can make a difference," she said. "I became committed to trying to help."

Still a newcomer in the area, Noland is trying to get to know as many people as possible.

"I need to come to understand the region and its needs," she said. "We also need to build an asset base and talk to people who can support the foundation."

Noland's first impressions of southeastern Michigan are positive ones.

"I am fascinated by this large and complex metro area," she said. "This is a very positive and upbeat time to be here. There is rapid growth in Troy and the northern suburbs. Things are happening. I sense a positive feeling. It's a very good time to be here."

However, Noland's work is to deal with the less positive aspects of the region.

"There are problems and they are important too," she said. "But you don't hear the positive things when you are not in the area."

In her public life, Noland is a citizen of southeastern Michigan. In her private life, she has selected Grosse Pointe Farms as home.

"This is a community that people care about," she said. "There is a lot of history here. I like seeing people walking the streets and the library is terrific."

Noland is settling in for a long commitment to the Community Foundation.

"I hope 10 years from now we can clearly point to people who are better off because of the foundation," she said. "It is important to grow and have assets, but what we do with them is the bottom line."

Put some spiced fruit in your life this fall

The following is a selection of recipes from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budget-wise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth, featuring spiced fruits.

Brandied Peaches

4 pounds small firm-ripe peaches (clingstone varieties are best)
2 quarts cold water mixed with
1 Tbsp. pickling salt and
1 Tbsp. fresh lemon juice
1 quart water
4 cups sugar
1 pint brandy

Wash and sterilize four pint jars and closures. Stand them on a baking sheet and keep hot in 250-degree oven until needed. Peel peaches, then drop them in water-salt-lemon juice mixture to prevent darkening. Bring water and sugar to a boil in an enamel or stainless steel saucepan; reduce heat, add peaches, a few at a time, and simmer five to seven minutes until barely tender. Remove peaches with slotted spoon and pack in hot jars, filling to within 1/2-inch of tops.

When all peaches are cooked, return filled but uncovered jars to 250-degree oven. Insert candy thermometer in syrup and boil, uncovered, until thermometer registers 222 degrees F. Cool syrup five minutes, measure out one pint, and stir in one pint of brandy; pour into jars, filling to 1/4-inch of the top. (If you need more liquid ... mix equal quantities of syrup and brandy.) Wipe jar rims and seal.

Process in hot water bath 10 minutes. Remove jars and secure seals. Cool, and store in cool, dark place. Let stand four to six weeks before serving. Makes four pints. Calories about 55 per peach. Cholesterol 0.

BRANDIED PEARS ... Substitute four pounds small firm-ripe pears for peaches. Peel and remove blossom ends but leave whole or part of stem on. Proceed as in peach recipe above.

Calories about 120 per pear. Cholesterol 0.

Spiced Mangoes

An exceptionally delicious condiment that truly enhances either hot or cold poultry and other roasted meats.

Elegant Eating

ment that truly enhances either hot or cold poultry and other roasted meats.

4 cups sugar
2 cups cider vinegar
1 cup water

3 Tbsp. minced fresh orange peel
3 whole cinnamon sticks
2 Tbsp. whole cloves
2 bay leaves, crushed
1 Tbsp. whole allspice
8 pounds ripe but very firm mangoes, peeled and sliced

Place all ingredients except mangoes in kettle and bring to a boil. Reduce heat, add mangoes and simmer just until fruit becomes translucent. Cool and let stand overnight in a cool place or refrigerator if necessary.

Return to boil, stirring frequently. Ladle into hot sterilized jars leaving 1/2-inch head space and seal according to manufacturer's directions. Process 20 minutes in a boiling water bath. Makes six pints. Calories about 18 per tablespoon. Cholesterol 0.

Gingered Pears

Delicious with any meat or poultry.

5 pounds firm-ripe pears, peeled, quartered and cored
1/2 cup lemon juice
5 cups sugar
1 Tbsp. finely grated lemon peel
1/3 cup minced gingerroot or 1/2 cup minced preserved ginger

Wash and sterilize four pint jars and closures and stand them on baking sheet in 250-degree oven until needed.

Simmer all ingredients, uncovered, in a heavy enamel or stainless steel kettle until pears are tender and translucent, about 30 to 40 minutes. Ladle into hot jars, filling to within 1/4" of tops. Wipe rims and seal. Cool, check seals, and store in a dark place two to three weeks prior to using. Makes four pints. Calories about 50 per quarter. Cholesterol 0.

Spiced Plums

5 pounds plums
3 pounds sugar
1 pint of vinegar
1 Tbsp. cinnamon
1/2 Tbsp. whole cloves
1/2 Tbsp. whole allspice

Wash plums and prick with a large needle. Boil remaining ingredients together five minutes. Pour boiling syrup over plums. Let stand three days, then lift out plums with slotted spoon, boil down syrup until quite thick, add plums and heat to boiling. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about five pints.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

I like it, I like it

Detroit Tiger owner Tom Monaghan unveiled his latest acquisition, a vintage Duesenberg he picked up for a cool $1 million and will display at Domino's Pizza world headquarters in Ann Arbor. Personally, I'd like the idea a lot better if he kept the car at Tiger Stadium and used it to transport relief pitchers in from the Tiger bullpen. Monaghan would sure get his money's worth in a hurry that way.

Speaking of the Tigers, I enjoyed the baseball tickets for last Saturday's Tiger game with Boston sent to me by an anonymous benefactor. I missed about half the game because I had to work elsewhere, but the thought was nice.

South High's varsity football team lost its first two football games. In fact, the Blue Devils didn't even score a point in those losses. But did they get down? No way, Jose. And I like that.

"We saw on the films that the things that were hurting us were things that we could correct," says South coach Russ Hepner. "Everything the kids saw, they said, 'hey, we can fix that.' And we've gradually been doing just that," he adds.

And how. South has outscored its last two opponents, 56-6, while evening its record at 2-2.

That new "Charting the Preps" column in the Sunday Detroit News is great... but the News should know that they play football over here in Grosse Pointe, too. Missing from the "top rushers" portion of the column last Sunday were South's Jay Henze (113 yards in 16 carries) and North's Mike Miller (201 yards on 30 carries, two touchdowns).

But then, there's always this Sunday.

The Last Chance Oldtimers, an over 30 soccer team comprised of Grosse Pointe's high school soccer coaches, assistant coaches and players, is still kicking this fall. Last Chance shut out Barnstamworth — the league's team to beat — 2-0 last week and is undefeated at 4-0-1.

Love the way soccer coaches John Case and Guido Regelbrugge respond to questions about strengths, weaknesses and strategies of their South and North soccer teams. Regelbrugge just laughs and says I should know that no soccer coach in his right mind would let a newspaper writer about his team's weak spots. And when asked about what strategy he might employ in an upcoming game, South's Case just says it will be "different."

I get a kick out of both of them. But you can't blame me for trying, can you, coaches?

So, the Detroit Pistons have signed former University of Detroit basketball star Spencer Haywood? Great. Haywood is a 13-year NBA/ABA/CBA who, in addition to playing in every "BA" is existence, has not played in the big leagues since 1981-82. When he did, he moved around enough — from Denver to Seattle to New York to New Orleans to Utah to Los Angeles to Washington to Italy — to qualify as a candidate for an Atlas Van Lines sponsorship.

As far as I'm concerned, though, Haywood's biggest distinction should be that he and I sat in the same desk (no, not at the same time) in Communication Studies 101 — Fundamentals of Speech, at dear old U of D. Haywood left his calling card carved into the desk sometime in 1968; I sat in the Spencer Haywood Memorial Chair a few years later.

Thoroughly enjoyed myself at the sixth annual North High Girls' Fall Sports Invitational a few weeks back. Where else can you see barefoot swimmers dressed in sweatsuits playing tag in the parking lot between events? Or watch tennis competition so laid back that spectators could hear competitors shout things like "disgusting!" and "hey, what's the score, anyway?" between shots.

More great stuff is the article written by Aaron Krickstein and his father, Dr. Herbert Krickstein, of the Shores, in the October edition of Tennis magazine. Cute photos of Aaron at age 5 and 8, but best of all is the candid dialogue between Aaron and his father. And details about the young tennis pro that come as a surprise — like how he preferred swimming to tennis while growing up in Grosse Pointe. He even won statewide competitions in freestyle and butterfly.

My favorite part was the story's last paragraph, where Aaron says that to make it as a prodigy, one must have talent as well as excellent coaching, support and guidance from parents and a little bit of luck.

Looking forward to the match-up of the fall season: the North-South dual cross country meet on Oct. 8. The girl's teams from both North and South are among the state's best and Tuesday's race should be a great one.

But then, most North-South competitions are, aren't they?

It's showdown time in Grosse Pointe

North plays South on Oct. 3 (soccer) and Oct. 8 (cross country) and ULS faces South Oct. 10 (tennis)

There's a whole lot of winning going on these days in Grosse Pointe.

In fact, if the varsity teams at North, South and University Liggett School aren't careful, they might just end up matching the record-setting totals of 1982. That year, the three schools combined for 11 league championships, seven regional titles and five state championships. And this year, there's the added attraction of Grosse Pointe vs. Grosse Pointe in the race for the top.

As usual, the girls' teams at North, South and ULS are responsible for much of the fall excitement. South High has won a Class A state tennis title for nine straight years and ULS has been the Class C-D champion for five years in a row and right now, neither squad shows signs of letting down. In the tennis rankings for the week of Sept. 30, South is ranked No. 1 and ULS is No. 2 overall. North isn't far behind, at No. 10 in Class A.

According to ULS athletic director Bob Wood, the No. 2 ranking is the highest the Lady Knights have ever earned. And it sets up an interesting scenario for Oct. 10. That's the day South and ULS face off in a long-awaited match at ULS. It's the last match before the regionals and not a bad way to begin state playoffs — pitting the top two teams in the state against one another. "That should really be a good one," Wood says.

Which is just about the situation which will exist this coming Tuesday, Oct. 8, when North and South will face each other in a dual cross country meet at Patterson Park. South's girls' cross country team is ranked No. 3 in the state and North isn't far behind at No. 7.

The boys are making their presence known this fall, too. North's football team is 4-0 and heading for what might be the showdown of the Bi-County League season: a game against Clintondale on Oct. 25.

And speaking of showdowns, the second round of the North vs. South soccer battle is set for today, Thursday, Oct. 3, at North. North and South are in a tie for the lead in the Macomb Area Soccer League. The Norsemen won the first battle, 3-0, in September and South beat league foe Warren Fitzgerald, 2-1, before Fitzgerald had topped North, to set up the first place deadlock.

North and ULS tied in their soccer meeting earlier this season and South will take on the 10-1-1 Knights on Oct. 20.

So it's obvious that Grosse Pointe is the place for sports fans to be this coming week, as teams for each school attempt to maintain their high positions in both the state and local rankings. They might not answer the question of who's best in Grosse Pointe but it will probably be very interesting to watch them try.

Blue Devil gridders reach 2-2 mark; offense breaks out

South High's varsity football team won its second straight game, beating Port Huron Northern, 17-6, last week. The Blue Devils, after being shut out in their first two games, have outscored opponents 56-6 in the last two outings.

Jay Henze led South on offense against Port Huron Northern, carrying the ball 16 times for 113 yards. South coach Russ Hepner credits the work of the offensive line — namely Jonas Rogers, Jamie Barlow, Brian Brooks and Tim Hudson — in enabling the Devils to move the ball more consistently in the last two games. Tim Overbey and Jeff McKean scored on running plays and Doug Lucas added a 30-yard field goal for South.

"We're still not throwing the ball the way we have to to repeat as league champions," said Hepner. "And I don't think our backs are running as well as I know they can... but because we are completely a two-ploton team, they haven't had a chance to bang it out as much in practice. We'll have to work on that."

South has also played well on defense, Hepner says, holding East Detroit scoreless and allowing no more than one touchdown in each of the other three games. And that's with four sophomores starting on defense.

Don Berschback, activated after three games of ineligibility, made a fine defensive play in the third quarter. Steve Kinsley also played well.

The Blue Devils will travel to L'Anse Creuse North this Friday, Oct. 4 for a 7:30 p.m. contest.

Girls are No. 3

South's girls' cross country team won its third straight major invitational last week, taking first place in the Fennville Tri-State Open near Kalamazoo on Sept. 28. The Blue Devils, ranked third in the state, finished 22 points ahead of fourth-ranked Portage Northern in a field of 21 schools from Michigan, Illinois and Indiana.

South's top five runners placed in the top 15 at Fennville, with sophomore Ellen Mayer, senior Nancy Solterisch and sophomore Micha Song placing fourth, fifth and seventh, respectively. Sophomore Wendy Berger placed 11th and freshman Toni Tedesco came through in 15th place. Toby Ott and Megan Smucker rounded out South's top seven varsity finishers, placing 23rd and 24th in the 94-runner field.

This Saturday, the Blue Devils defend their title in the Center Line Classic, featuring approximately 25 schools. Last year, South established both school and meet records in taking the championship.

South also finished on top in the junior varsity race last week. Leading the way were Raquel Chapin, Kelly Riehl, Mary Beth Hicks, Rebecca Wasinger and Jenny McSorley. Others running well were Lindsey Haddad, Michelle Brasseur, Elizabeth Lazarowitz, Stephanie Morreale and Sue Sparling.

This Tuesday, Oct. 8, South will face North in dual meet competition. The race is set for 4 p.m. at Patterson (Three Mile) Park.

South's dual meet record stands at 7-0.

Kingswood champs

Coach Stephanie Prychitko's varsity tennis team got what it wanted and more at last weekend's Kingswood Invitational: a tournament championship and a look at the best high school tennis has to offer.

The top eight teams in the state — among them South, University Liggett, Marian, Lahser, Portage Northern, East Grand Rapids and Kingswood — faced off in the invitational. South won with 21 points, followed by ULS with 19 and Lahser, with 12.

"A tournament like this gives you a chance to see what the other teams have. The girls have a better idea of what they'll face in the playoffs... but a lot can change in three weeks," Prychitko said.

The Kingswood championship was South's first since 1983. The girls finished third in 1984 and were runners-up in 1982 and 1981.

Flight winners last week included Mary Wachter at No. 3 singles, Katy Turner at No. 4 singles, and the No. 2 doubles team of Susy Ingrao and Anne Nicholson.

Kickers win two

South's varsity soccer team took two victories last week, a 2-1 win over Fitzgerald and a 7-0 shutout over Mount Clemens. The Blue Devils' record was 4-1 at press time.

Jeff LeFebvre and Geoff Centner scored goals against Fitzgerald and Rodolpho Cruz-Mena (four) and P.J. Inesch (two) were the goal scorers against Mount Clemens.

The Devils will face crosstown rival North High today, Oct. 3, at 4 p.m. at North. The Norsemen took the first contest, 3-0, on Sept. 17.

"I thought the game (against North) was very evenly played.

North scored three very good goals against us," said coach John Case.

Cagers have 1-1 week

South's girls' basketball team had an up and down week, beating Lake Shore, 49-41, before falling to Fraser, 38-36, later in the week.

Heidi Albrecht led South with 22 points and nine steals against Lake Shore. Carmina Ameczua had 10 points and Kelly Buchanan and Lynn Vismara had 12 and 11 rebounds, respectively.

"We had to come back to win in this one and we did," said coach Peggy Van Eckoute. South still isn't playing consistently, she added. "We had just one good quarter — we outscored Lake Shore 20-4 — but we're working on it."

Against Fraser, Vismara led with 13 points. Albrecht had 8 points and 8 assists. "Heidi is leading the team in just about everything, but I'd still like to see her shoot more," Van Eckoute said.

South plays at Port Huron at 6 p.m. today, Oct. 3.

Fencing clubs join forces

The Grosse Pointe Fencing Club and the Condotierre Fencing Club have agreed to merge and on Oct. 1, formed a combined organization known as the Grosse Pointe Condotierre.

The Grosse Pointe Fencing Club has been part of the Neighborhood Club in Grosse Pointe, which has a fencing history which dates from the 1930s. The new club will maintain its armory at the Neighborhood Club, where its instruction and activities will also be held. The Condotierre, associated in the past with the YMCA, brings with it a strong membership and a tradition of solid competition.

The Grosse Pointe Condotierre will immediately expand the existing fencing program to include two evenings of instruction and intra-club combat. Directing the club's activities is Joel Stone, a Grosse Pointe native who has served as instructor and coach of the Neighborhood Club's program since 1982.

The G.P. Condotierre meets at the Neighborhood Club, Monday and Friday evenings throughout the year. Programs are available for beginners and advanced fencers. Experienced guests are welcome. Further information may be obtained by calling 885-4600 during business hours.

No. 4 Knights' soccer record is 10-1-1

By David Schwab
ULS

The Knights are hot.

The ULS varsity soccer team raised its record to 10-1-1 with three impressive victories last week against stiff competition. The first win came Sept. 23 when the Knights beat Detroit Country Day School, 3-0. Senior half-back John Birgbauer had two goals and sophomore Frank Karabetsos supplied another. Typical of ULS's play recently, the Knights dominated the game through a strong defensive effort and a well-rounded offense. Once again topping the ULS victory was strong play by the Knights; goalkeeper, Brian Curtiss, with yet another shutout.

The ULS Invitational Tournament on Saturday, Sept. 28, pitted four of the finest Class B-C schools in Michigan against each other. In the first round, Oxford lost to Warren Fitzgerald, 3-0, while ULS edged Lutheran North, 1-0. Early in the first half, Birgbauer scored a beautiful goal on a Karabetsos assist and the Knights never looked back. The ULS defense was awesome, shutting down Lutheran North's offense and paving the Knight's way to the championship game.

In the title contest against highly-ranked Warren Fitzgerald, ULS quickly jumped on top with a Bob Williams goal. From that point on, the game was in ULS' control. With a strong Knight defense and a dominant midfield, the game went to the half with no further scoring. Finally, with 18 minutes left, Rob Healy tapped in what would prove to be the winning goal on a pass from sweeper Kirk Haggarty. Fitzgerald did manage one goal in the final minutes; however, it proved to be too little too late.

Upon accepting the victors' trophy, Coach David Backhurst stated, "I couldn't be more pleased. Playing a doubleheader in soccer is a particularly demanding ordeal, but our guys held up well. To beat teams of this caliber is very gratifying and encouraging."

On Friday, Oct. 4, the Knights will travel to Plymouth Christian for a Michigan Independent Athletic Conference game. On Saturday, ULS hosts South High at 9 a.m. ULS will also play highly ranked Class A power Flint Carman at home on Tuesday, Oct. 8, at 4:30 p.m.

Netters are 2nd

The ULS girls' varsity tennis team had a rewarding week which included a second place finish in the Kingswood Tournament.

On Sept. 24, ULS challenged Ann Arbor Pioneer in a dual match, winning 4 of the 7 flights. The ULS No. 2 singles player was unable to play, so No. 1 doubles player Marie Ali moved up to play No. 4 singles and won her match. To take her place, Paul Rodriguez played with Shefali Sharma to also win at No. 1 doubles.

On Sept. 25, ULS challenged Gabriel Richard, winning 6-1. Rodriguez played No. 4 singles again and won her match.

Coach Bob Hartwick's team participated in the Kingswood Invitational on Saturday. The top 5 ranked schools in the state were there: Grosse Pointe South, East Grand Rapids, Marion, Ann Arbor Huron and University Liggett. Also attending were Lasher, Portage Northern, and Kingswood. ULS finished second, just two points behind champion South.

Dawn Martin, ULS' new No. 1 singles player, had an exceptional performance, beating nationally-ranked Kristin Asher in the semifinals. Martin lost in the finals.

No. 2 singles player Pam Ali beat Katie Evashsky, to whom she had previously lost, 6-1, 6-4, in the consolation finals. No. 3 singles Elena Hunt won her consolation flight and Amina Ali at No. 4 singles, lost in the finals of the main draw.

The No. 1 doubles team of Shefali Sharma and Marie Ali lost in the semi-finals of the main draw, while No. 2 doubles Rodriguez and Charu Nautiyal, lost in the finals of the main draw. The No. 3 doubles duo, Kathy Bianchi and Karen Rahm, won their flight, beating Portage Northern in the finals.

ULS hosts Ann Arbor Huron on Thursday, Oct. 3, at 4:15 p.m. and travels to Grand Blanc on Tuesday, Oct. 8.

ULS's JV tennis team beat Ann Arbor Greenhills 4-3, on Sept. 27.

On Sept. 28, Coach Sandy Smith's team played in North's JV Invitational, in which South, North, Star of the Sea and ULS participated. Alicia Peck, who played No. 3 singles, won her flight and received a medal. The team placed third ahead of Star of the Sea.

ULS will host its own JV Invitational on Saturday, Oct. 5, starting at 9 a.m. Participating schools are: Academy of the Sacred Heart, Kingswood and Marian. (By Suzanne Maycock).

Cagers optimistic

By Sophia Park
ULS

The ULS Lady Knights got off to a slow start this season, at 1-2. However with 17 more games to go, and double the amount of determination, the future looks good to coach Shelley Owens and her team.

On Friday, Sept. 20, the Lady Knights won their second game of the season at home against Lutheran Northwest, 17-15. The starters were Lisa Beizai, Mariam Mueller, Sue Cleek, Phan Lam and Sophia Park; Rachel Kneeshaw substituted in the last quarter.

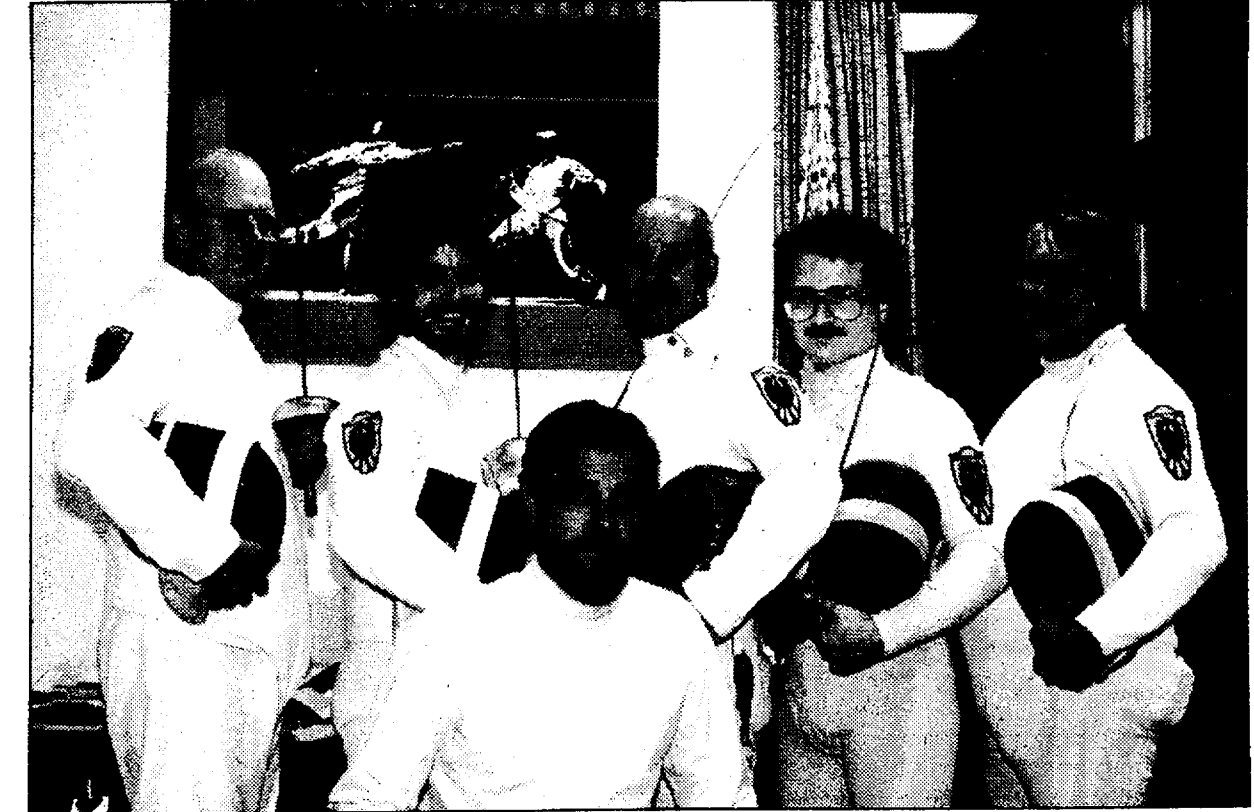

On Sept. 27, ULS met up with Zion Christian, a team new to the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. In this home game, ULS got off to a good start in the first half, leading 19-16. However, in the second half, the flu-ravaged ULS squad was very weak and disoriented and after a series of presses and a man-to-man defense by Zion Christian, the Lady Knights lost, 49-30.

ULS is now recuperating and looking forward to their next game on Friday, Oct. 4, at Southfield Christian.

Harriers take three

ULS' cross country team won three meets last week, topping Oakland Christian, 27-28, Bethesda Christian, 26-31, and Temple Christian, 20-39.

ULS sophomore Gordie Maitland (18:20) came in a close second to Bethesda's Ernie Mack, one of the fastest runners in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

Norsemen stay undefeated

By Bill Hoover
North High

North High's varsity football team continued its winning ways, defeating Roseville Brablec, 20-7, last Saturday and raising its record to 4-0.

With North's regular quarterback Craig Como out for most of the week because of illness, junior Jamie Wheatley filled in and "handled the offense well," said Coach Frank Sumner.

North marched down the field 63 yards on 11 plays on its opening drive, setting up Mike "The Kid" Miller's 9-yard touchdown run. Jon Palazzo's point after was good, and the Norsemen led, 7-0.

Brablec moved the ball well in the first quarter, but its threat was stopped by Casey Quick's goal-line interception and 55-yard return, which Sumner called "the key play of the game."

North scored again in the second quarter on a 39-yard touchdown run by Steve Pochmara. Palazzo's point after was good, and North led 14-0. North opened the second half with an 84-yard drive which ended on a 10-yard touchdown run by Miller. Palazzo's extra point was wide, and North led 20-0.

Brablec finished the scoring on a pass play and its point after.

Miller, who Coach Sumner called "the workhorse," rushed 30 times for 201 yards. Defensively, North allowed 29 yards rushing and 152 yards passing.

"Brave Dave" Queller and Dave Justice each had seven tackles. Quick intercepted two Brablec passes and Rob Brumer had a quarterback sack.

North's next game is Saturday, Oct. 5, at home versus Lake Shore. Kick-off is at 1 p.m.

Two days later, North traveled to Warren to battle Class B No. 5-ranked Fitzgerald in a crucial conference game. Fitzgerald beat North goalie Brian Grieve just two minutes into the game, then scored again in the second half while holding North off the board.

"We played lackadaisically and the final score showed it — but we will be up for our next game with Fitzgerald," said Chris Colfer. The loss dropped North into a first place tie with Fitzgerald and South.

The Norsemen face rival South at 4 p.m. today, Oct. 3, then travel to Mount Clemens on Oct. 8 before returning home to play Roseville on Oct. 10.

The JV soccer squad lost its first game of the year, falling to Chippewa Valley, 3-0, after coming off a 2-1 win over Rochester Adams. Before the Adams game, North's JV had compiled a 7-0 record and had not allowed a goal.

The JV plays at home at 4 p.m. Oct. 8 against Bloomfield Andover.

Fresh fall

North's ninth grade football team lost a hard-fought battle to L'Anse Creuse, 21-20, on Sept. 25. Fullback Jason DeYonker scored on the third play from scrimmage, running 65 yards for the TD. Bob Strasse also scored on a reverse and Jim Applegate scored with just seconds left, but the two-point conversion failed.

The frosh take the field Wednesday, Oct. 9, at 4 p.m. hosting Lakeview.

Cagers even record

North's girls' varsity basketball team opened the year with an 0-3 mark, but shaped up its act, winning three straight, including a 30-29 win over Fraser and a 30-28 victory over L'Anse Creuse North last week.

On Sept. 24, the Lady Norsemen fought back from a nine-point deficit in the fourth quarter to "hustle their way to a come-from-behind victory," according to coach Gary Bennett. Excellent team defense and two free throws by Barbie Loeher with 30 seconds left highlighted the win.

Leslie Talos led North with 16 points and 9 rebounds; Sue Nichols chipped in 6 points and 9 rebounds.

Against L'Anse Creuse North on Sept. 27, North never led the contest until the last 40 seconds when Missy Preston hit a jump shot to give North the 30-28 win. Preston led North with 11 points and 5 rebounds. Nichols scored 8 points and grabbed 9 rebounds and Talos added 7 points and 8 rebounds.

North hosts Clintondale on Oct. 8 at 7:30 p.m.

North's JV cagers bounced back from a 38-30 loss to Fraser by defeating L'Anse Creuse North in overtime, 44-43, on Sept. 26.

Against Fraser, North let a first-quarter lead slip away. Janet Dunlop led North's scorers with 8 points, while Beth Kreuter, Kerrie Peters and Angela Domenik had 5 points each.

North came from 9 points down at halftime to beat L'Anse Creuse North in OT on clutch free throws by Kristen Eschenbach, who led scorers with 10 points. Monique VanAssche had 8 points and Beth Trupiano and Mary Beth Seagram had 6 each.

The JV plays Clintondale at 6 p.m. Oct. 8 at North.

North's ninth grade basketball team improved its record to 5-1 with a 30-18 win over Centerline and a 49-17 victory over Warren Lincoln last week.

Against Centerline, North jumped out to an 18-7 lead and played a solid second half, locking up its fourth victory. Lora Bova had 11 points and 6 rebounds; Heather Mergos had 9 points, 18 rebounds, 4 steals and 3 assists and Kris Salive had 4 points and 6 assists.

Against Warren Lincoln, Cindy Szymanski had 10 points. Kelli Gianunzio scored 6 points, dished off 5 assists and made 6 steals. Mergos had 7 points and 9 rebounds and Salive scored 7 points and had 4 steals.

North's frosh face Clintondale at 4 p.m. Oct. 8.

Golfers drop one

North's varsity golf team lost a tough one to Dearborn, 208-210, on Sept. 23. North was tied with Dearborn at the end of regulation play as Ian MacNeil's 38 led the team. Because of a downpour, match officials were forced to take the score of the fifth man from each team in the match rather than play a playoff hole and North took the loss.

"The team played well, but a few little mistakes cost us the match. The terrible weather also hurt..."

Two days later, North squared off against ULS, winning, 169-175. The victory raised North's mark to 6-2 overall and 4-0 in the conference. Kevin Shannon led North with a 39; Jay Messner shot a 42.

North final regular season match before the regionals will be at Cranbrook at 4 p.m. on Oct. 8.

Faith vs. reason is the dilemma posed by 'Agnes of God'

By Marian Trainor

A detective story in theological garb, "Agnes of God" is a movie that will set the brain cells working on the following: Is faith or reason the answer to a strange situation involving murder and unquestioning faith?

Sister Agnes (Meg Tilly) is a young nun, who alone in her room gives birth. A newborn is found strangled in the wastebasket.

Agnes professes no knowledge of the birth. She denies her pregnancy, the birth and the death as if none of it ever existed.

A court-appointed psychiatrist, Martha Livingston (Jane Fonda), a bitterly lapsed Catholic, is sent in to solve the case. She is met head-on by Mother Miriam Ruth (Ann Bancroft).

A battle of wits begins. Dr. Livingston is determined to discover the father and who murdered the child.

Mother Superior stands just as firm in her assertion that Agnes cannot and should not be forced to try to explain how and why the baby died.

As Agnes, her face glowing with ardor, professes her love of God and displays the innocence of a child unblemished by the world in her words and actions, it is not difficult for even the most skeptical audience to believe her when she declares that the baby came from God.

Dr. Livingston will have none of this. She is determined to find a practical answer to the mystery even if it means destroying the aura of peace and happiness that Agnes has wrapped around herself like a protective cocoon.

She almost does. In one wrenching scene she tears from Agnes the admission that she was the abused child of an alcoholic mother. In two others she puts Agnes into a hypnotic trance to induce her to relive the awful terror of the night the child was born.

The acting in the film is superb. Meg Tilly plays Agnes with a passion that transfixes. She has a sublime power to reach out and create an empathy that convinces all who hear and see her that she could never commit such a deed.

Jane Fonda is sincere and determined as a psychiatrist who believes that Agnes must face up to the reality of what has happened to her.

Ann Bancroft gives an outstanding performance as the guardian of Agnes' innocence.

As she reveals in one of the heated discussions with Fonda, she was married for 20 years and had children before she entered the convent. She is not ignorant of the outside world. She believes Agnes' story partly because she is convinced that whatever the circumstances, Agnes was not at fault and partly because she needs to believe to bolster her own faith.

Perhaps her performance is so profound because she is capable of shifting moods. She is intelligent, shrewd, calculating, devious, witty and yet conciliatory. She does battle against Fonda for Agnes' soul, but she is also willing to listen.

One of the amusing scenes in the film, and one needed to relieve the tensions, shows the two ladies enjoying a cigarette and pondering on the smoking habits of the saints.

"Agnes of God" was a successful play before it was made into a film. It too, had a distinguished cast; Amanda Plummer, Elizabeth Ashley and Geraldine Page. The cast in the film stands up well against those talented actresses.

John Pielmeier, who wrote the play, also adapted it for the screen. While the play had one set and three characters, the film, set in Quebec, includes scenes of life behind the confines of convent walls, some lovely outdoor farm scenes and an amusing shot of nuns in convent dress skating on the ice, looking like penguins.

Some minor characters have been added. One of the most notable is Gratien Gelinabo's piece as a kindly, elderly priest who enjoys a nip from the flask and has a nice chat with Fonda on the implausibility of suspecting him.

Another shows Norma Dell

Agnes being received into the order. An innocent ecstasy suffuses her face, as dressed in a bridal veil she becomes the "bride of Christ." We see her family watching her, perhaps for the last time before she enters the other world of the cloister, their faces beaming with pride and joy that God has called her. It is a moving sight.

"Agnes of God" is serious drama. It provides no answers but leaves the audience to decide for themselves which way they want to go on the matter of faith versus reason.

Nevertheless, the riveting power of Tilly's performance coupled with the robust strong backup of Bancroft makes it difficult not to believe the unbelievable.

Pioneer women filmmakers featured

Rarely seen works from the infancy of the motion picture industry will be the focus of the Detroit Institute of Arts' current Afternoon Film Theatre series, "Early Women Film Directors."

This new series will be shown Tuesdays through Sundays, into December, at 1 p.m. in the recital hall. Tickets at $1 will be available at the door only. For a detailed schedule, call the DIA ticket office at 832-2730.

Before Cecil B. DeMille, David Warr Griffith and Hollywood, there were women filmmakers who conceived, wrote, directed, edited and distributed films on a large scale. This collection of early films demonstrates the works which distinguished so many women among film peers, not as women, but as gifted film artists.

This month's schedule consists of:

Oct. 1-6 — "The Blot" (1921, U.S., Lois Weber, director), filmed in the director's own studio, this film stars Claire Windsor as a young woman facing the choice of a husband based on the economic destiny he represents.

Oct. 8-13 — "Her Defiance" (1916, U.S., Cleo Madison, director), originally a contract actress for Universal Studios, Madison began directing and starring in her own two-reelers as early as 1916. This film depicts Madison as a young woman defying public condemnation in choosing to keep her illegitimate child and working as a servant, rather than to enter a loveless marriage; and "A Chapter In Her Life" (1923, U.S., Lois Weber, director). This work deals with social and financial gray areas for women at the turn of the century.

Oct. 15-20 — "The Blue Light" (1932, Germany, Leni Riefenstahl, director), before she became world-famous for her Nazi propaganda film "Triumph Of The Will," this director was known as a film actress of grace and beauty, specializing in Alpine adventure films that displayed her skill in skiing and mountain climbing. She later formed her own studio to make this film which she wrote, directed and starred in.

Oct. 22-27 — "Craig's Wife" (1936, U.S., Dorothy Arzner, director), first a respected editor at Paramount Studios, Arzner worked as a director for 25 years at Columbia, RKO and MGM. This film is based on a Broadway hit play about a woman (Rosalind Russell) who must face a future forged by her life-long misplaced values.

Oct. 29 through Nov. 3 — "Mädchen In Uniform" (1932, Germany, Leontine Sagan, director), Sagan gained prominence in the theatre of Germany and Austria, and achieved international success with this film. This film's frank treatment of a lesbian theme eventually caused it to be banned in Germany, but is generally considered among the most courageous films to be made in Germany in the 1930s.

'Cat Among the Pigeons' opens Bonstelle season

"Cat Among the Pigeons" by Georges Feydeau, the master of French bedroom farce, opens Friday, Oct. 18, at 8 p.m. at Wayne State University's Bonstelle Theatre.

Performances continue Oct. 19, 25 and 26 at 8 p.m. and Sundays, Oct. 20 and 27, at 2 p.m.

"Cat Among the Pigeons" is set in 1905 France, in a social circle that is a round robin of romantic entanglements. Spanish General Irrigua (Gerald Smith, Capac) is in hot pursuit of the lovely Lucette, an actress (Anne Adcock, Detroit) who is madly in love with the rakish Bois d'Enghien (Tom Stan-czyk, Hamtramck). However, Bois d'Enghien is already engaged to Viviane (Cynthia Knoblock, Rochester), who is only bored by her fiancé. Only time will tell who will end up with whom.

Other major roles are filled by Michael Mendelson (Farmington Hills), Dennis Kleinsmith (Southfield), and Linda Quiroz (Franklin).

Tickets and information are available at the University Theatre box office, Cass and Hancock, 577-2960. Tickets are also available from any metro AAA office or J.C. Penney store.

British music hall comes to Hilberry

"Step, Look and Listen," a potpourri of musical theater, steeped in the best tradition of the British music hall, opens at the Hilberry Repertory Theatre on Oct. 18, following previews on Oct. 11 and 12. Performances run through Feb. 1, 1986.

A mainstay among the working class, the British music hall offered hearty songs by its "artists," spirited dancing, and raffish jokes by its chairman or master of ceremonies. The audience joined in the chorus, shouting, whistling and applauding the performances. It was all high-spirited fun. "Step, Look and Listen" continues this tradition as it pays tribute to the best of British music halls, as well as to its American cousin — vaudeville.

The production is conceived and directed by Robert T. Hazzard and Nira Pullin, in collaboration with Thomas M. Suda, Richard Berent and Shirley M. Bogusz. Choreography is by Nira Pullin and musical direction by Richard Berent. Costume design is by Elizabeth Brikowski, set design by Dorothy Smith and lighting by Mark Allen Berg.

"Step, Look and Listen" will feature 13 actors and actresses of the Hilberry Company, including Lynne Kadish, Melanie Metcalf, Cheryl Williams, Paul R. Amadio, Thomas M. Suda and Tom Whalen.

Ticket information is available from the Wayne State University Theatre box office, Cass and Hancock. The telephone number is 577-2972.

Flea market

The Detroit Historical Society Guild will sponsor its annual flea market Sunday, Oct. 6, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. at Historic Fort Wayne.

Hundreds of items, ranging from antiques and collectibles to contemporary treasures and arts and crafts items, will be available for sale. Home-made baked goods and refreshments will also be available.

All proceeds from the Flea Market will be used to support activities and programs at Historic Fort Wayne.

Vendors interested in reserving a table at $15 should call 557-7450. Admission is free. For more information, call 557-7450.

Accountability is essential when a newspaper provides its circulation data to advertising buyers. Circulation provides advertisers with a way to reach their customers. Our advertising rates are based upon accurate circulation information.

agencies and publishers have joined together to provide accountable circulation facts, without opinion. Before you buy any advertising, ask to see a copy of the latest ABC Audit Report. We'll be pleased to show you ours.

JAGUAR

THE BEST JAGUAR EVER BUILT:

Breeding tells. While trends in automotive design come and go, the 1985 Jaguar XJ6 remains defiantly true to its heritage: lithe, graceful and utterly distinctive.

It is the nature of automotive styling to be transient. And it is the nature of Jaguar to create cars of classic grace: cars whose beauty endures long after the fads are forgotten. Such a car is the Series III. Combining beauty of form with quick response and notable luxury, the XJ6 rewards its driver in many ways. Come in and experience the pleasures that have been bred into the best Jaguar ever built.

Daydream a minute

Imagine sunshine and a warm gulf breeze on your face. You swing your club, and the golf ball traces a high, gentle arc across the fairway—which isn't far from your front door.

Tomorrow you might choose tennis, instead, or a dip in one of the pools. Or a quiet afternoon of fishing—in the well stocked lakes or from a pier stretching into the sunset of a peaceful bay.

More? How about a million dollar clubhouse with a pro shop, fitness center, and elegant dining and entertaining. Of course, there'd be enclosed parking and 24 hour security.

Now for the best part: that active, invigorating lifestyle isn't just a fantasy. It can all be yours. It's name is Palms of Terra Ceia Bay, just minutes from the bright lights of Tampa, St. Petersburg and Sarasota.

We've arranged for a Broker near you to show you how we're turning your dreams into a reality. For the name of your nearest Broker call 1-800-237-2266.

Contractor Frames Up Redwood Remodeled For Thrifty Homeowner To Finish

An excellent way to save money on renovating a home is to combine the speed and efficiency of a contractor with the money-saving advantages of do-it-yourself. A contractor can work all day to frame up and enclose a space in a short time whereas many homeowners, because of other employment and lack of heavy equipment, do not have the time or resources to do the job quickly. Once the space is enclosed the homeowner can proceed with the finishing touches at his own pace using tools he may already possess.

An example of the effectiveness of a contractor/homeowner team is this simple, but dilapidated "A" frame cabin on a lot with an outstanding view. The homeowners, who fell in love with the site, bought the home knowing it would require renovation and an addition to accommodate to their family and their lifestyle. Little by little they have given the cottage a complete facelift. Clad in Simpson Select Knotty Redwood Siding and surrounded by redwood decks, the completed home now looks like an integral part of its rustic setting.

Even though the home had already received one cut-and-paste remodel before the new owners moved in, the only way to get to the basement was by a too-steep, rickety stairway. So the remodeling was begun with a new stairway. An architect was consulted for plans which required the addition of a dormer.

The owner was able to complete the stairway project on his own. Then, working along with his contractor, he built a modified stock-plan garage. The next project for the homeowner was remodeling the existing house. This meant tearing up ugly old indoor/outdoor carpeting that had been glued down and removing some non-load-bearing walls to open up the cramped spaces.

Finally, an addition of more than 900 square feet was begun. The homeowner designed the addition himself taking pains to preserve as many of the trees on the site as possible. In fact, one of the trees now pops straight up through new decks added to the main floor and lower levels. Careful planning resulted in taking advantage of two different views.

Attached to the existing house at an angle, the addition consists of a master bedroom and bath on the lower level and a huge living room on the main level. The loft was also expanded, bringing the total square footage of the home from 1370 square feet to 2500 square feet.

Energy-saving features such as double-glazed windows and additional roof insulation have enabled the homeowners to cut heating bills by 43%. A low overhanging roof was designed to block the sun on the east side during the summer, while picture windows on the west allow the sun to warm the house in the winter. A ceiling fan in the living room helps keep the forced air electric heat circulating.

The contractor was hired for the foundation, the framing, the masonry, the roof and the rough plumbing on the $42,000 addition. When the addition was enclosed and the plumbing had been roughed in, the homeowner went to work and did the wiring, the insulation, the finished plumbing, and all the finished carpentry. The addition took about a year to finish.

Simpson Select Knotty Redwood thick butt rabbeted bevel siding which is a rough-textured, tight-knotted, siding with random streaks of cinnamon-toned heartwood and cream-colored sapwood was chosen for the exterior. "I liked the rustic appearance of this siding and I also felt that there wouldn't be anything that my five kids could do to it that would show," said the homeowner.

"I was really sold on redwood after reading about its legendary workability, its fire resistance, its dimensional stability and its insulation value. And I was not disappointed. The redwood was easy to work with and took the stain beautifully. It was really important to me to emphasize the horizontal lines of the house. The thick butt redwood gives very strong horizontal shadow lines in either natural or artificial light."

To give the siding a color that would be close to the natural color of redwood heartwood a mixture of equal parts of Cuprinol Sierra Redwood and New Cedar semi-transparent stain was used.

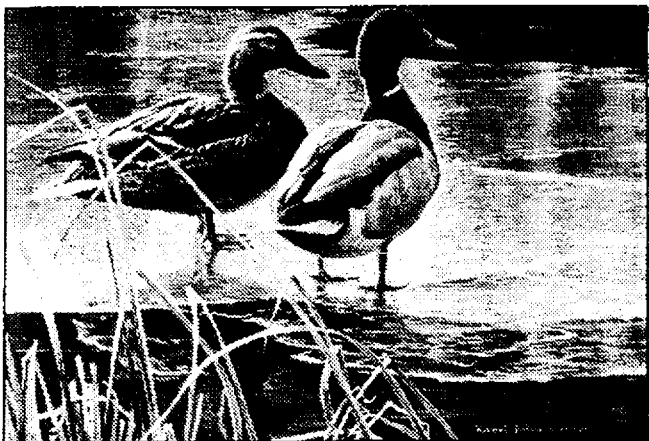

The homeowner mitered the siding on every corner of the house and he had no problem with the redwood splintering. He also trimmed every window with 2" shake molding. Wood shingles were chosen rather than shakes to cut down on the number of pine needles from nearby trees that get caught on the roof. To tie all the buildings together, the garage and the pickleball court were also sided with the Simpson Select Knotty Redwood Siding.

The renovation has transformed a utilitarian two bedroom, one bath cottage into a comfortable four bedroom, two bath family home that blends the natural beauty of redwood with the beautifully natural site. Had the owner not done the finishing himself the price tag would have been much higher.

Cellular Phones: A useful commodity

If you've ever thought car phones were a frivolous luxury used only by people who wear 10-karat pinky rings, it's time to think again.

Today the cellular phone, installed in automobiles, is a unique business tool that busy people in markets such as Grosse Pointe are utilizing.

"Our main accounts for cellular phones in this area corporate and commercial," says Randy Oram, operator of Jam Sounds, 14826 E. Jefferson at Alter Road.

The cellular phone provides high quality mobile communications using state of the art cellular technology. The cell is served by a radio transmitter/receiver or "cell site," which is connected to a Mobile Telephone Switching Office which, in turn, is connected to the worldwide telephone network.

The features offered on a cellular phone are more elaborate than those offered on home telephone systems.

"Features range from hands-free (similar to an intercom system) to conference calling, where you can call three people on one telephone," says Oram.

A main concern among prospective buyers of cellular phones is the cost of actual operation. "Will my car phone bill be more than my telephone bill?" is a question often asked.

The actual cost of operation (referred to as "air time") ranges from 30 to 35¢ per minute between 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m., the peak period, to the off-peak period which ranges from 9 to 16¢ per minute.

The majority of cellular phones are leased, according to Oram, at a Jam price of $34.99 to $49.95 a month, depending on the model and the installation.

In order to operate cellular, you need a special cellular antennae. The majority of phones at Jam can be installed with window mount antennae to prevent drilling holes in trunks and thus depreciating the car's value.

"Buyers should beware today of low-ball pricing," warns Oram. "Some companies have gone under and offer their phones to the public at low prices without any manufacturer's warranty."

"Jam offers both our JAM SOUND warranty plus we back any manufacturer's warranty."

Besides cellular phones, JAM SOUND also sells, services, and installs radar detectors, auto alarms and car stereos. Call Randy at Jam at 823-0833.

What is an Oriental Rug?

When stripped of the age old mystique of magic carpets, oriental rugs can be defined as hand-woven rugs of natural fibers made in geographical areas that include Mar East, Middle East, Far East and the Balkans. True oriental rugs also share a common characteristic, the manner in which they're made. Oriental rugs are either flat woven or hand knotted. In flat woven pileless rugs horizontal and vertical threads form both the rug itself and the design. In hand knotted rugs, strands of yarn are tied into its flat woven fabric creating a pile and pattern. From this foundation has developed the variety of weaving styles, designs and geographic similarities that often confuse purchasers. I as an Oriental/Rug Retailer of America can help lead you through this complex maze of names, knots and countries.

Please call Tadross & Zahloute at 644-8200 for an appointment or stop in at 330 E. Maple, Birmingham.

Skylight gives vent to dark, stuffy rooms

It's hard to love a room without windows and outside views. Interior rooms and spaces are often unpopular and underutilized. And many homes have dark, stuffy attics that represent living space gone to waste.

One solution is to install a venting skylight, one whose window section opens and closes.

Whether it's called a roof window, venting skywindow, or other descriptive name, the idea is the same. A venting skylight brings fresh air as well as sunshine into dark, inner spaces. Moreover, it provides a window on nature without sacrificing privacy.

It makes a room more livable. It provides an outside exposure, even for rooms located away from exterior walls. Venting skylights are an attractive way to meet building codes. They provide ventilation without noisy exhaust fans.

Breezes blowing across the outside of the open skylight create a suction effect. This draws stale air up and out through the skylight while drawing fresh air into the room.

Venting skylights are commonly used in bathrooms, kitchens and other areas that can benefit from ventilation as well as free natural light. They help get rid of steam, odors and smoke.

In summer, venting skylights can help reduce cooling costs. Turning off the air conditioning and opening a venting skylight and some windows will help keep the house comfortable, at least on all but the hottest days. This is especially helpful in houses with low ceilings that trap hot air.

According to experts at Wasco Products, a leading maker of premium skylights, you should look for several features in a venting skylight. It should have a snap-in screen; you should be able to open and close the skylight without removing the screen.

If the skylight will be placed in a high ceiling or other difficult-to-reach location, you should be able to open and close it by using a special, long pole. Some venting skylights have motorized modules controlled by a convenient electric wall switch. Either way, you avoid climbing a ladder.

The skylight frame should be made of strong, insulating material. New high-technology thermoplastics insulate better than aluminum, and resist moisture and other punishment better than wood. If the skylight will be placed in a humid area, such as a bathroom, look for deep, built-in condensation gutters to catch moisture.

Some skylight companies offer free, full-color literature to consumers. Wasco Products has brochures about venting skylights and also offers a 36-page skylight handbook, all free of charge. Write to Wasco Products, Inc., Dept. M, P.O. Box 351, Sanford, ME 04073.

Durable solid vinyl siding a work-saver

Modern technology has produced many items that make life easier for the homeowner. But few offer the potential for labor-savings that solid vinyl siding does.

The most dreaded home maintenance chores — scraping, sanding and repainting — become little more than memories once solid vinyl siding is installed. More importantly, the time formerly spent on this drudgery can be put to more pleasant recreational pursuits.

What makes solid vinyl siding such a virtually maintenance free wonder?

According to siding specialists at CertainTeed Corporation, one of the leading producers of the product, the color of solid vinyl siding is molded clear through the material. As a result, it will not peel or show scratches as will other types of home siding.

But there's more to vinyl siding than meets the eye. Tough and resilient, solid vinyl siding resists denting from hail and from most child's play, which gives it a distinct advantage over metal siding.

Dirt and most stains wash off vinyl siding in a heavy rainstorm. More stubborn grime can be removed very easily with a mild detergent.

And while looks may not be everything, they are important where your home is concerned, and that's another reason why solid vinyl siding has become the people's choice.

CertainTeed solid vinyl siding comes in textured woodgrained panels, so it features the distinctive appearance of clapboard. In addition, the siding is available in nine attractive colors ranging from Colonial White to Georgetown blue and Desert Brown. Color-coordinated accessories include trim and soffit and shutters.

Solid vinyl siding from CertainTeed Corporation comes with a 50-year prorated warranty and is also backed by the Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval. So, you can rest assured that your most important investment will look good for years to come.

For more information on work-saving solid vinyl siding, write to CertainTeed Corporation, P.O. Box 860-M, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

CertainTeed Corporation is a leading manufacturer of fiber glass insulation and asphalt roofing, as well as other building materials and piping products, and is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

TIPS ON PLANTING BULB FLOWERS: (1) Select firm, high-quality Dutch bulbs. (2) Dig out the soil to a depth of 10 inches and break it up for good drainage. (3) Plant tulips and other large bulbs eight inches deep, spaced six inches apart; crocuses and other small bulbs are planted five inches deep, spaced three inches apart. (4) Cover the bulbs with half the dug out soil and water; add remaining soil and water again. Keep the soil consistently moist.

Tips on planting bulb flowers

There is nothing so alive and pleasing as a spring garden of magnificent Dutch bulb flowers: Crocuses, muscaris, hyacinths, daffodils and tulips, to name a few. Many of them are perennials, which means they multiply and bloom year after year, making them a sound economical investment.

The Netherlands Flower-bulb Information Center in North America offers these basic tips on bulb planting and maintenance:

When to plant

All spring-flowering bulbs must be planted in the fall. Ideally, they should be put into the ground when the soil temperature falls below 60°F. In northern climates, that generally occurs from late September to early November.

Bulbs can be planted through December in the Sun Belt states.

Flowering sequence

With a little advance planning, you can select bulbs that will flower in sequence from late winter through May (see chart).

Weather conditions and planting locations may affect blooming times. For example, bulbs planted in an area facing south will flower earlier than those facing north.

Where to plant

Generally speaking, bulb flowers prefer partial shade. Avoid planting them in areas which receive direct midday sun. Some people like formal plantings in symmetrical beds, others prefer casual plantings in clusters.

They make a handsome presentation when planted in masses among shrubs and hedges, at the base of trees, along walkways and house foundations or, in the case of daffodils, scattered randomly across a lawn.

How to plant

Select firm, high-quality Dutch bulbs; small nicks and loose skins will not affect the quality of the flower. Good drainage is essential. Break up and loosen the soil to a depth of 10 inches. If the soil is heavy with clay, mix in an organic material such as peat moss or compost in amounts up to 50 percent of the upturned soil volume.

Plant tulips, daffodils, hyacinths and other large bulbs eight inches deep from ground level to the base of the bulb. Space them six inches apart, whether they're in beds or informal clusters.

Crocuses, muscaris and other small bulbs are planted five inches deep, spaced three inches apart.

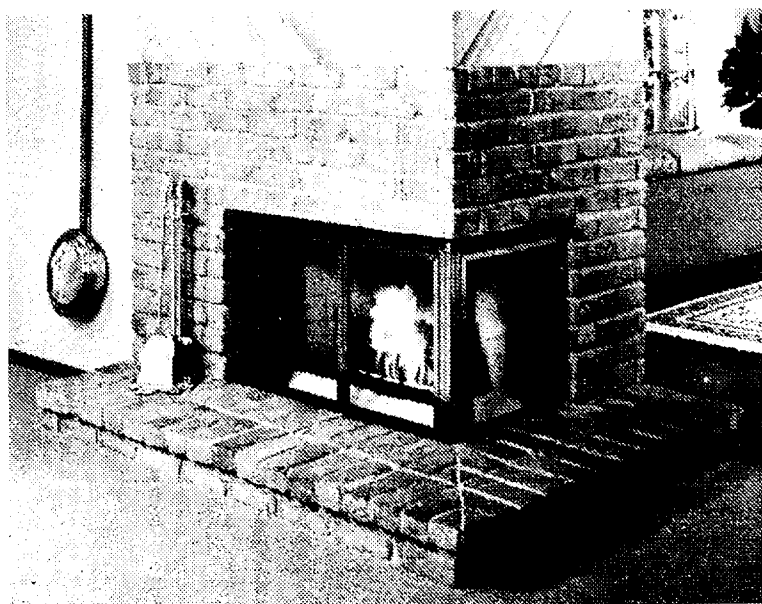

Once the bulbs are in position, cover them with half the dug out soil and water the area thoroughly. Add the remaining upturned soil until it is even with ground level and water the area again.

Cover the planted area with a three-inch layer of organic mulch. Keep the soil moist, particularly during dry spells.

Adding a Fireplace Can Increase The Beauty and Value of Your Home

A recent study found that a fireplace is the number one feature wanted by home-buying consumers. Over 80% of the buyers surveyed ranked a fireplace as the most important feature to be found in their new home.

If your present home doesn't have a fireplace, you can still install a prefabricated fireplace (factory-built), and not only enjoy the beauty and efficiency yourself, but also increase the value of your home when it comes time to sell. Experts consider the addition of a fireplace a very good investment, and project that the short-term recovery of your investment is likely to be up to 125%!

A prefabricated (factory-built) fireplace requires no masonry work, so if you are reasonably handy and have basic carpentry tools, you can install the fireplace yourself.

Probably the most complicated part of the installation process is the planning stage, such as choosing a location. Because "zero-clearance" prefabs are self-insulating, they can be safely installed on or against just about any flat, hard surface. So you must choose whether you want your fireplace on an inside or outside wall, in the corner, or as a room divider.

The most popular spot for a fireplace these days is in the family room, but other favorite spots include the living room, kitchen, even the bedroom. The Wood Heating Alliance, an industry trade association, suggests that you draw a rough sketch of the room where you want to install your fireplace. Consider that your fireplace will most likely be the focal point of the room and a gathering spot for family and friends. Also consider that today's energy-efficient, heat-circulating fireplaces offer the best heating performance when placed in areas that have open access to other rooms or hallways.

You have many finishes to choose from. You can use face brick, manmade stone or hardboard to create a decor that ranges from colonial to contemporary. A built-in bookcase or firewood nook neatly finishes off a setting and adds a note of practicality. A more prominent focal effect can be achieved by designing an elevated fireplace and hearth area.

Proper fireplace venting is essential for safety. But modern factory-built chimneys are as easy to install as their companion fireplaces. Their sections simply snap together. However, when considering the placement of your fireplace, be sure to plan how and where you would install your chimney.

If you do plan a fireplace do-it-yourself job, the Wood Heating Alliance suggests that you work with a reputable dealer. And, the WHA strongly urges you to carefully follow manufacturer's instructions, using the correct materials and maintaining proper clearances for both the fireplace and the chimney. Having your installation inspected by an expert is an added safety measure that you should consider.

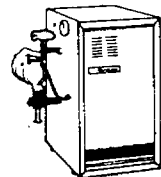

Once properly installed, your new fireplace will add warmth, beauty and energy efficiency to your home. And when it's time to move, you'll find that your fireplace has added extra value as well.

REUPHOLSTER — The advantages are many and the savings can be great!

First of all let's define reupholstering. When a piece needs work on the inside, either partially or totally — new webbing, re-tied springs, new fillings, re-cushioning — all or some of these, that's reupholstering. Simply putting new fabric on the outside is called recovering. There is a difference — especially in cost.

Many old pieces of furniture have a value you cannot buy today. They were constructed of fine, hardwood frames such as oak, which is a rarity in new, reasonably priced furniture. Reupholstering can bring these pieces back to life, resulting in a solidly built, custom-quality item at an affordable price.

Another advantage in reupholstering rather than buying new is the large selection of quality fabrics that are available to the customer. At Coach House we deal with the best fabric lines available today. The possibilities are limitless whether you choose a beautiful brocade, damask or tapestry for the more formal rooms, or a chintz, woven, or upholstery weight cotton, cotton/blend. Highly recommended is great attention to your selection of fabric; a poor quality will downgrade your piece and need replacement before you have tired of it.

Coach House, 20725 Mack Avenue, Grosse Pointe Woods offer full design service for all your decorative needs, including slipcovers, draperies, custom pillows, etc.

Restoration and repair are still our specialties, and of course, we do caning and brass polishing.

Painted blocks: A subtly wonderful way with color

Looking for a unique way to add warmth and color to a room in the house? The National Paint and Coatings Association suggests a new and innovative painting technique that is subtly compelling and can complement a multitude of interior design schemes.

The room pictured has been painted by professional artist Eugene Perreault of Maryland, in lightly colored brown and beige blocks.

First, the wall was marked off into horizontal and vertical rows with 1/4 inch masking tape. The vertical rows for the blocks were staggered, so that the painted surface achieves the architectural reality of a stone wall.

Next, different strengths of a variety of colors were mixed, including rose, taupe and several shades of brown, from a coffee shade to a creamy beige. Each color was put into a separate pot. One at a time, the colors were lightly dabbed onto the wall with a clean, lint-free rag.

After the application of each color, the wall was allowed to dry thoroughly. Then, the tape was removed, and the white lines between the blocks, both vertical and horizontal, were painted in.

The result is a beautiful wall space that dramatically enhances the furniture and furnishings in the room.

SUBTLY COLORFUL faux stone walls add a beautiful dimension to this living room.

Remodeling your kitchen

Because of the high price of real estate, a growing number of families who would otherwise buy new homes are remodeling the existing homestead.

If you or the gourmet cook in the family are considering a new kitchen as one of your remodeling projects, here are a few tips.

The kitchen is the most important (and most expensive) room in the house, it requires detailed planning so that it will be compatible in function and design.

Although it is possible to redesign and rebuild a kitchen yourself, it is certainly no job for an amateur do-it-yourselfer. A thorough job requires the skills of professional carpenters, plumbers, electricians, and sometimes plasterers, tile setters and floor layers. The process can be time-consuming, even the pros can take several weeks to complete an extensive job.

Kitchen planners get most of their business from referrals, and your friends will doubtless have some recommendations — and some warnings.

Before making a final decision on a kitchen remodeler it would be wise to inspect some jobs that the firm has recently completed or, at least, ask for a list of these jobs and contact the Owners.

A designer's markup will vary with his overhead. Naturally, someone working out of his house or his truck and who performs all of the work himself, will be less expensive than a professional. Professional kitchen planners maintain an up-to-date showroom with experienced designers. Additionally, the professional is licensed and insured, with a staff of experienced tradesmen who are experts in their field.

The cost of remodeling can vary from a few thousand dollars to well over $30,000 depending on the extent of the work and your taste. The average remodeling job falls between $5,000 and $15,000. You will probably spend as much on your kitchen as you did on your family car — but no more than 25% of the total value of your home. Families that own luxury cars tend to choose deluxe kitchens. Note: Remodeling your kitchen will boost the value of your home by at least half the cost of remodeling; and when you sell your house and compute capital gains, you can write-off the cost of the kitchen improvements.

You will normally have to put down 25% to 40% when you sign your contract. About 50% more is due when materials are delivered and work begins. The rest is paid on completion.

One possible way of financing your new kitchen is a home improvement loan; if you have a fair amount of equity in your home.

Work won't usually begin until 6 to 12 weeks after you've signed the contract — but nowadays, delays can cause a wait of four or five months for some special items. Actual installation usually takes from ten days to four weeks, providing there is no major construction involved; and your family will have to steer clear of the kitchen at least some of that time.

One way to avoid being inconvenienced, when dealing with a reputable contractor, is to go away on vacation until the job is done.

A well designed kitchen is efficient as well as a pleasure to work in. It is an investment that will pay for itself many times over, adding value to your home in addition to providing years of pleasurable living for the entire family.

Don't Take Your Chimney for Granted!

Everyone loves the warmth generated by a cozy fireplace or woodstove, but to keep the fire "friendly," it's important to maintain both your woodburning appliance and your chimney.

Studies from the Consumer Product Safety Commission show that home fires related to woodburning most often originate around the chimney or stove pipe. You can avoid the threat of such fires by following a few guidelines:

1. Use only the chimney and stovepipe specified in the installation instructions. Factory-built fireplaces always come with a chimney designed for use as an integrated part of the fireplace system, and stove manufacturers will specify the kind of chimney to be used with their stove. Be sure that the chimney you choose is approved by local code officials.
2. If you are using a metal chimney, make sure it's not installed too close to combustibles. If you've added insulation in your home, check your attic to see that the insulation is not resting up against the chimney.
3. If you are using a masonry chimney, check on the condition of the liners, and also watch for other signs of deterioration.
4. Keep the chimney at least three feet higher than the place where it exits the roof and two feet higher than any roof within 10 feet. (That is a minimum, and it could be increased.)
5. Don't overload your chimney by building too large a fire.

Creosote is an unavoidable by-product of wood combustion, and as you use your woodburning appliance, creosote will build up on the sides of the chimney and stovepipe. Creosote is highly flammable, and if allowed to build up, it may ignite, causing a full scale chimney fire.

To avoid such fires, have your stovepipe and chimney inspected regularly (especially if you change the kind of wood you burn or if someone new is operating the stove or fireplace), and have the chimney cleaned when creosote accumulates from 1/8 to 1/4 inch.

Using chemicals or burning particular kinds of wood, will not prevent the accumulation of creosote. But you can reduce creosote formation with the following burning techniques:

- * When lighting a stove or fireplace, make a blazing fire for about 30 minutes to bring all surfaces up to operating temperatures. Some creosote is vaporized during this warm-up period.
- * Burn shorter, hot fires as opposed to long smoldering ones.
- * When loading fresh fuel, burn it hotter in the beginning. This will wrap each wood piece with a high-temperature charcoal layer and help it burn cleaner.

For more information on chimney safety, write to the Wood Heating Alliance, the trade association for the residential woodburning industry, and request their pamphlet "How Does Your Chimney Stack Up?" Send a self-addressed stamped envelope to WHA, Dept. WB, Suite 700, 1101 Connecticut Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20036.

Caulk repairs can save time, money — now and later

If you're like most do-it yourself homeowners, you've probably been putting off performing caulk repairs around the house except on an as-needed basis. You've also grown a bit tired of re-caulking the same spot because the old caulk has cracked or worn away.

Evaluate caulking needs

So now, with the ravages of winter at hand, is the perfect time to evaluate your caulking needs. Spots that have peeled, cracked or separated offer an inviting area for winter chill to enter, and inside heat to escape. And the higher heating cost due to ineffective caulking can chill you deeper than winter's best effort.

Your selection of which caulk to use, and applying it correctly, is critical. How long do you want the caulk to last? Have you selected a caulk which enables you to paint over it? Is it mildew resistant? Do you need a siliconized caulk? What's the difference?

Wouldn't it be great if you only had to caulk once with a product guaranteed to last for the life of your home?

Varied capabilities

The folks at Red Devil, Inc., a leader in the DIY/Home Improvement Market, remind us that different caulks have different capabilities. Those containing silicone can flex more than caulks which do not, yet cost only a few cents more. Also, some silicone caulks provide greater flexibility than others. For the outside walls of your home, that flexibility assures a tighter, more reliable seal.

Red Devil also points out that a caulk such as their new and improved LIFETIME® with Silicone, which is guaranteed for the life of the consumer's home, would logically provide better protection than a non-guaranteed product for the same application.

Just as important as your caulk selection is proper application: Diligently clear off the old caulk with a scraping tool and apply an even bead which fully covers the area.

Good application and a good caulking choice pay off not only in the short run this winter, but can continue to pay handsome cost saving dividends for years to come.

Computer desk built from one structural wood panel

If you're looking for a good warm-up project for your fall home improvements, a movable desk for your home computer may be just the answer.

The desk, complete with roomy work table, storage shelf and book shelf, can be built from just one standard 4 x 8 ft. structural wood panel. Add casters and a customized shelf for your monitor, and you have a versatile table that houses your computer without taking up a lot of room.

Panel cut-out guides and assembly plans for the computer desk are available from the American Plywood Association (APA). In addition to the structural wood panel, basic tools and a few pieces of hardware are all that are needed for the project.

The desk is 42 inches wide — plenty of space for a keyboard, cassette deck or disc drive unit, and even a printer. The monitor stand can be moved to different areas of the desk for optimum viewing and convenient system configuration.

Two shelves provide storage space for manuals, notebooks and software. An optional data stand completes the plans.

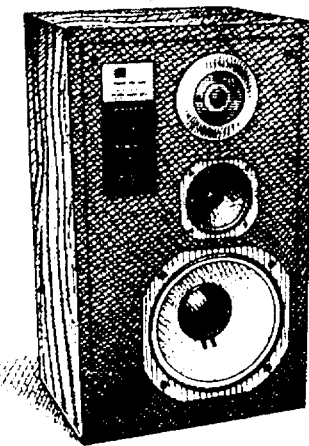

The computer desk is one of over 50 indoor and outdoor Handy Plan projects available from APA. Other Handy Plans include furniture and play centers for children, indoor and outdoor furniture, storage sheds, entertainment centers, boats and a sauna.

The designs use as little as one half sheet of plywood or other structural wood panel; most use less than three sheets. Relatively few additional supplies are required, so the projects are inexpensive to build.

To order plans for the computer desk, send $2 to Handy Plans, Dept. M, American Plywood Association, P.O. Box 11700, Tacoma, WA 98411 and request Form J640. You will also receive a free copy of the Handy Plan Catalog.

To order the catalog separately, send $1 to the address listed above, and request Form Y630.

Experts answer often-asked insulation questions

Despite growing interest in energy and energy savings, homeowners continue to be troubled by such questions as the amount of insulation they need and the proper material to install.

In response to these kinds of questions, experts from the CertainTeed Home Institute have compiled their own version of the "Ten Most Wanted List." From questions asked most frequently by concerned homeowners, here are the Home Institute's Ten Most Wanted Answers:

• How does insulation work?

Heat naturally flows from warmer to cooler spaces. During the winter heating season, warmth is flowing from your heated living areas — attics, garages, basements — and then directly outdoors. In the summer, warmth from outdoors flows into the rooms you are trying to keep cool.

Insulation guards against this heat transfer by providing a barrier to block the flow of heat. The end result — warmer in winter, cooler in summer.

• Does my house need insulation?

If your home was built before 1980, chances are it is one of the millions in the United States that are underinsulated. Most likely, energy was cheap and abundant when your home was built, and the amount of insulation installed in it was minimal. Thus, it is probably not adequate by today's energy standards.

In fact, even if you have already added some insulation, you may find this is inadequate in view of the rapid rate at which energy costs are rising.

Anything less than 10 inches (R-30) of fiber glass insulation in the attic is inadequate regardless of where you live. For many parts of the country, 12 inches or more is recommended.

• Why should I insulate?

As a homeowner, there are four basic reasons to add insulation: To save money, to save energy, to increase the resale value of your home and to increase your personal comfort.

Adequate amounts of insulation will enable you to use less energy to heat and cool your home so you will be saving year after year. (Savings vary. Find out why in the Seller's Fact Sheet on R-values. The higher the R-value the greater the insulating power.)

In addition, you will be conserving energy — a valuable and limited resource. Also, in the eyes of a mortgage lender, installing increased levels of insulation not only adds to the resale value of your property, but to its equity financing value.

In addition, proper amounts of insulation help to maintain uniform temperatures throughout a house, thereby increasing personal comfort.

• What is an R-Value?

An R-value is the measure of an insulating material's resistance to heat flow. The higher the R-value, the greater the insulating power. Specific thicknesses of insulation are recommended to achieve certain R-values.

• How much insulation do I need?

If your attic has six inches or less of insulation, at least the equivalent of six inch thick R-19 fiber glass insulation should be added, according to government recommendations.

If your attic has no insulation, up to 12 inch thick R-38 fiber glass insulation may be required. For specific amounts recommended in your geographic area, consult your local utility company, home center or a professional insulation contractor.

• What kind of insulation should I use?

The most popular kind of insulation among homeowners today is fiber glass, which is available in rolls and batts for easy installation.

Fiber glass is an extremely effective insulating material, because it contains millions of tiny pockets which resist the flow of heat. In addition, fiber glass insulation won't deteriorate with age and, unlike some other kinds of insulating materials, it is noncombustible.

• Do I need insulation with a vapor barrier?

Insulation with a vapor barrier should only be installed in new homes or in homes with no previously installed insulation. When upgrading a home which already has some insulation installed in it, use unfaced insulation.

Remember, when using vapor barriers, that they should be installed towards the warm-in-winter side of your home.

• Where can I add insulation myself?

Wherever wood framing is exposed as in the joists of an attic floor, under the flooring in the living space, the unfinished walls in a crawl space, the flooring in the crawl space, or along an unfinished garage wall, adding insulation is a job you can do yourself.

Wherever the frame is concealed however, as in finished walls, or if your home is not of frame construction, special equipment is necessary and the services of a professional insulation contractor are recommended.

To find a contractor, first look under "Insulation Contractors" or "Insulation Materials" in the Yellow Pages. Other ways to locate a contractor are by calling your local contractor's association or asking your friends and neighbors who have had their homes insulated.

Once the local professional insulation contractors have been identified, look for four important things any professional will provide: Credentials, references, written estimates and high quality products.

To check a contractor's credentials, contact the Better Business Bureau. Local contractor associations also can be of assistance in this area.

• Can I make my home overly airtight?

Not if you remember to use vapor barriers (when appropriate) and provide adequate ventilation. As a guide, try to leave at least one square foot of free vent opening for each 150 square feet of attic floor area.

If you've installed vapor barriers, leave one square foot of free vent opening for each 300 square feet of floor area. Remember not to cover attic eave vents with insulation.

• How much will I save by adding insulation?

Although the amount of energy you will save depends on where you live, the size of your home and its construction, the Department of Energy estimates that insulation can be expected to pay for itself through fuel savings in three to five years, sometimes even more quickly.

Also, as a guide, if you add $1,200 worth of insulation to your home, it will add $1,000 (83 percent of cost) to the resale value of your property and $900 (75 percent of cost) to its equity financing value.

More information on saving energy can be obtained by writing to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482 for the free booklet: "Insulation Facts."

Updating your boiler system

By Mark S. Provenzano
Supreme Heating & Supply Co., Inc.

Most boilers designed before 1980 are less than 65% efficient. That means that less than 65% of the gas consumed by your boiler is actually heating your home.

In dollar terms, if your fuel costs are $2,200 per year, approximately $770 is wasted in the inefficiencies of boiler design, radiator layout and venting, and flue design. As fuel bills rise most homeowners are making an effort to understand their boiler system, and look for ways to cut down their fuel consumption.

Flue design has changed dramatically in the last five years. Historically contractors, when building a home, had a large chimney installed. The heating contractor worried about the amount of flue gases that had to be vented usually over sized the flue or (smoke) pipe to the chimney.

Exhausting flue gases has become a great preoccupation with boiler designers and retrofit contractors alike. In five years the size of the flue pipe in some homes has been reduced from 10 inches round down to 4 inches and can be vented out a side wall like a clothes dryer. Also, the aftermarket has designed many flue damper devices that can resist the flow of flue gases up the chimney and retain more heat in the boiler.

The layout of radiators and their venting is something that most homeowners don't think about as something to look at as a energy saving item. But having a bad vent on a radiator can almost double the amount of time that your boiler works and thus doubles the amount of fuel consumed. A radiator that has an air lock in it can be another source of problem. This air must be bled out to get the hot water through the system and heat the radiator.

When remodeling or changing floor plans in your home, a consideration should be given to baseboard radiation. Baseboard radiation when integrated into your current boiler system will give you a lot more flexibility in your remodeling design. But this author warns that only a licensed heating contractor should be used.

Boiler design has changed dramatically in the last five years. Just last year a manufacturer of boilers finally marketed a Hi-Efficiency steam boiler for residential use. Boiler efficiencies have risen while the size has reduced dramatically. Boilers rated to sufficiently heat an entire home can be fitted inside a clothes closet.

So when you look downstairs at the old hulk of a boiler, remember a qualified heating contractor can help you burn that extra gas that is currently being wasted.

FOR EASE OF MAINTENANCE, durability and attractiveness, you can't beat aluminum trim. By alternating solid and vented aluminum soffit panels on the underside of the roof overhang, you can protect your attic from dampness.

Aluminum trim, accessories help ready home for onslaught of winter weather

The onslaught of winter weather can make your home age much faster than it should. The damage often shows first at the juncture of exterior walls and the roof.

This area tends to retain moisture which, left unchecked, accelerates deterioration. By installing aluminum trim and accessories, you can ward off the problem indefinitely.

Once the aluminum is up, you generally can forget about it because there will not be any rusting, rotting, splitting or cracking. And the permanent finish never peels, chips or flakes.

The low-maintenance feature of aluminum makes it particularly popular for trim and accessories in high spots that are awkward to paint and repair.

That's one reason that aluminum has earned a reputation as the preferred material for gutters and downspouts. Aluminum's corrosion resistance also precludes rust stains and streaks on the face of a home.

In addition, the lightness of aluminum eases the strain otherwise placed on hangers and eaves, keeping the system from pulling loose.

Even the best gutter systems, however, prove inadequate when rainwater or melting snow is unable to flow freely. An overflow eventually can damage the roof and walls. Perhaps the simplest solution is aluminum gutter covers, which inexpensively prevent the accumulation of leaves during the fall.

Adding further protection at the edge of the roof are aluminum soffit (the underside of the roof overhang) and fascia (the facing board at the edge of the roof).

When properly installed, both do an outstanding job of protecting potential trouble spots in a home's exterior. They also result in a more finished appearance. Many homeowners choose vented soffit because it also protects attics from dampness.

Gutters, downspouts, soffit and fascia come in shades to complement any home's color scheme. Although aluminum trim and accessories work best with aluminum siding, they are a good choice with other siding materials including hardboard and vinyl.

Woodmark's chairs each have a personality, and we believe that there's a very personal relationship between a good chair and its owner. The Woods have been in the manufacturing of quality furniture for more years than they would like to admit. Elliott Wood is the founder of many of today's best known furniture manufacturers, such as Henredon, Heritage, and Founders.

Mr. Wood is showing Howard Draper the new shrink wrap used on all of their chairs before they are shipped to the many stores around the country.

Scott-Shuptrine Furniture owned by Howard Draper is proud to be associated with such fine people as the Woods and to sell their products. We receive as much comfort when we sell quality furniture as do our customers, says Draper.

The buyers at Scott-Shuptrine and Draper's Fine Furniture travel to the furniture markets twice a year to seek out furniture companies such as Woodmark. We spend many hours shopping the furniture markets to find the best values available. It's a lot of hard work says Howard, but a labor of love. I have been doing it for over 30 years and it's still great fun. We will be leaving for North Carolina again the end of this month to see what will be new for our next spring colors and styles. We will be buying new merchandise for our all new Henredon Gallery in the Scotts store. When complete this will be the largest and finest display of Henredon furniture in the state of Michigan, watch for our announcement of our grand opening.
