Next time, Kevin

If anyone has a right to sing the blues, it's Grosse Pointe's own Kevin Jordan.

Jordan, 25, was an Oct. 25th contestant on Channel 4's "Saturday Night Music Machine" show, produced and hosted by the ever-popular Curtis Gadson. The program presents different local talent and celebrity judges each week. A winner is chosen from each show to compete the following week against a new round of contestants. The final winner will be chosen at the end of the season as "Entertainer of the Year."

Unfortunately, because of one single point in the judging, the entertainer of the year won't be Kevin. But he should be pretty proud anyway, according to WDIV's Renee Abraham. According to her, Jordan beat out 5,000 other contestants just to appear on the program.

"I have to admit, it was a lot of fun," said Jordan, a manufacturer's representative. "I submitted a video of 'Smugglers Blues,' done originally by Glenn Frey. I lost by one point to the champ, Carla Shobe, who sang 'Savin' All My Love'."

"Channel 4 was just super. They told me not to be disheartened, and that the videos get a lot of exposure. Often that exposure leads to other things, although I haven't received any calls yet."

Jordan, who's a Michigan State University graduate, has had formal voice training and has worked as a singer at weddings and recitals.

"We had a lot of friends over to the house when the program aired," he said. "We videotaped the show and watched it over and over. It was a pretty good reason to celebrate. We called it 'Kevin's Big TV Debut.'"

Here's to the Woods

Ten thousand "attaboys" to the Woods for recently being selected by Governor Blanchard as one of the nine cities to be honored during the Second Annual Municipal Achievement Awards banquet held last month.

The awards were presented to recognize local government achievements based on innovativeness, creativity and citizen participation in programs that took bold steps to solve problems.

The Woods won an honorable mention for a "thoughtful, well-developed program for an important segment of their population — the senior citizen."

In case you were wondering, the Michigan Municipal League represents 486 member cities and villages, and is dedicated to the improvements of municipal government and administration through cooperative effort.

St. Paul pals

Riders and striders competing in last Sunday's Free Press Marathon may have received a bit of divine inspiration along with encouragement at the aid station in front of St. Paul's Catholic Church, according to Joe Fromm, mayor pro-tem of the Farms.

The station was manned by a large number of students from St. Paul's religious education group, including Fromm's twins, Brian and Lisa, 15, and Monsignor Francis X. Canfield.

More than one runner receiving liquid refreshment from the monsignor asked if it was holy water.

Only Francis X. knows for sure.

Running a marathon

... means more than being in top physical condition and having a burning desire to compete. It also means cider and donuts as this runner demonstrates. The occasion was the 8th Annual Free Press International Marathon and participants wended their way through Grosse Pointe as part of the course. More pictures and results are on Page 1C.

Farms to consider party ordinance

By Nancy Parmenter

The Farms council will consider public comments at a hearing Oct. 21 on a proposed ordinance to govern the use of alcohol and drugs by minors. The ordinance was proposed by Farms prosecuting attorney Peter O'Rourke in May and is intended to place responsibility squarely on the homeowner.

"The use of alcoholic beverages and drugs at open house parties is a very serious matter," O'Rourke said. "You can see that in the OUIL (drunk driving) violations, the traffic accidents, the young people who are being killed regularly."

What makes this ordinance different is the regulation of the party itself. "The salient part of the ordinance is that the adults mustn't let the party take place," O'Rourke said. "Even parents who are out of town would still be responsible."

The proposed ordinance states that "no adult having control of any residence shall allow an open house party to take place" if any drugs or alcohol are possessed or consumed by minors. The adult is responsible if he knew or "reasonably should have known" that the young person possessed the alcohol and failed to take reasonable steps to prevent it.

Having "control" of a house is legally construed to include possessory rights, O'Rourke said. That is, if you own a house, you are responsible for what goes on in it.

Adoption of the ordinance would "tighten the rein" in obtaining warrants, Farms Police Chief Robert Ferber said. There have already been two deaths from drinking and driving this year, according to Ferber.

"Three or four or five prosecutions (under the new ordinance) would help stop the problem," he said. Earlier this year, Ferber told the council that hardly a weekend goes by that he isn't breaking up parties attended by as many as 300 high school-aged youths.

The Farms police are currently using an ordinance that parallels the state law, making it unlawful for minors to "possess, partake, drink, consume, or indulge in" any alcoholic beverage in a car or public place. No mention is made of private houses.

The present ordinance does make it illegal to "give away, sell, barter, or furnish" alcohol to a minor. It also emphasizes that alcohol in a car is strictly off-limits. "The mere presence of alcoholic beverages of any type in a motor vehicle shall constitute a per se violation."

Ferber said the present ordinance is harder to enforce. "We've had an outstanding warrant for three years (against parents who permitted a drinking party)," he said. "They just moved out of the state."

The proposed ordinance is "directed at people who are vacating their responsibilities," O'Rourke said. "It places a burden of responsibility that does not now exist for what is happening in the community."

"I can't imagine a whole lot of opposition to the concept."

Park firefighters take their case to the community

By Pat Paholsky

The firefighters of the Park have decided they'd rather fight than switch, and fight they did Monday night. Disturbed by what they say are inaccurate statements by Mayor Palmer Heenan regarding their department and tired of "staying in the background" on the public safety issue, the firefighters are defending themselves and looking for community support.

They found it, they say, in a survey they had done by a public relations agency, McMasters Communications in Birmingham. The survey, conducted between Sept. 25 and Oct. 2 reveals that 78 percent of some 500 voters in the Park prefer to keep the police and fire departments separate.

Responses to the other questions of the six-question survey indicate approval — 93 percent — of the job done by the fire department/emergency medical service, and confidence — 99 percent — in the department's ability to handle a medical emergency. Two questions concerning the consolidation of the police and fire departments into one public safety unit drew a higher percentage — 13 percent and 15 percent — of "undecideds," indicating that residents are not clear on the issue, according to the firefighters.

Joseph Bialk, president of the 18-man Park Firefighters Association, said the survey was commissioned by the union "because we don't think people have been given the opportunity to know what's going on and we think this is a political issue. The mayor ran on the promise (of consolidation) and he felt he was speaking for everyone in the Park."

The results are better than expected, Bialk said. "The poll indicates that 1) we have more support than we thought and 2) a lot of people don't even know the issues."

The survey was presented to the mayor and council Monday night, and it sparked a lively one-hour debate of its merits. Mayor Heenan, in a 1½ page written response to the survey, said he thought it was an attempt to deceive the citizens and contained serious flaws. He also questioned the union's motives in releasing the survey just before the election.

The survey did not follow any of the accepted guidelines by the Association of Public Opinion Research, Heenan said, and no background information regarding public safety was presented. He said he was told by several citizens that the survey was structured so respondents "could not express themselves in favor of public safety."

Heenan pointed out that one question regarding the number of Park firefighters who are emergency medical technicians, was incorrect. The question referred to 18 trained EMTs, when there are, in fact, 12 certified EMTs.

Bialk said the remaining six firefighters are either command officers or engineers who do not go on ambulance runs and therefore have no need of EMT training. Bialk said the questions were prepared by the agency and the error was minor.

Bialk said another reason the firefighters decided to survey citizens was because they were upset with statements Heenan made in a newspaper column he wrote for the Pointer, a monthly tabloid distributed free in the area. In the column, Heenan said the firefighters made one run every 2½ days.

In fact, Bialk said, the Park department responded to 982 fire and ambulance runs last year. Of the total, 300 were fire runs.

In his presentation of the survey results to the council, William McMasters of McMasters Communications explained the polling process in which 529 Park voters were called by volunteers from the community. Names were selected from Bresser's, a directory which lists streets instead of names in alphabetical order. Names were selected from each street so all geographical areas of the city were represented, he said.

In response to a question regarding the telephone volunteers, McMasters estimated that about one-third of the callers were wives of firefighters. He said his office trained them in proper polling procedures.

The debate over the validity of the poll continued for nearly an hour before Councilman Mark Valente angrily called for a halt. He asked the council to accept the survey and continue with other business on the agenda.

"The concerns you are all expressing is why we voted in June to look into this," Valente said, "and that's why it's not a fait accompli as yet. Your survey is interesting and when the time comes, it'll all be taken into account."

If the shoe fits, thank Raymond Robinson

By Elsa Frohman

Every president since Millard Fillmore has owned a pair. They fit perfectly, wear well, and display timeless good taste that never goes out of style. You too can have a pair — if you don't mind spending $500 and up for a pair of shoes.

Johnston & Murphy custom, handmade shoes reflect the kind of quiet, understated elegance that doesn't necessarily show on the surface. The shoes look like — well, shoes. However, the custom-made footwear can also reflect ostentatious, flashy and even slightly strange tastes, as in the case of a pair made for a successful turkey farmer.

"He wanted a pair of shoes made out of turkey skin," said Raymond Robinson, one of two master shoemakers employed by Johnston & Murphy.

Robinson tours the country, putting on shoe-making demonstrations in stores where Johnston & Murphy shoes are sold. He was at Jacobson's in Grosse Pointe last week.

The company makes a line of ready-to-wear shoes, but if you want to walk like a president, custom-made shoes are the only way to go. When he is working back at the factory in Tennessee, Robinson completes about one pair of shoes a day. However, from beginning to end it takes several weeks to make a pair of shoes, and the company is back-ordered for 16 to 20 weeks for the handmade footwear. So, don't count on ordering a pair and walking out with them today.

Robinson explained that a custom-made pair of shoes begins with a thorough and precise measuring of both feet.

"We draw out their foot on a piece of paper," Robinson said.

The measurements are then translated into a custom last. The last is the form that shapes the shoes. Robinson said he takes a standard-sized last and carves off or builds up on it to make it exactly the size and shape of the customer's foot. The last is saved and used only for that customer — ensuring that every pair of shoes ordered in the future will be exactly the same size.

Robinson begins making a shoe by stretching the cut leather over the last and leaving it there for three weeks to a month. A steel shank is placed in the sole and Robinson carves the channel and sews the sole to the upper by hand. The shoe is then hand finished to a perfect shine.

The best quality leathers are the standard materials for Robinson's shoes, but other materials are used as well. Some customers want alligator and snakeskin shoes and Johnston & Murphy is happy to comply. However, if you want special shoes, you will pay a special price. A pair of python or alligator shoes will sell for more than $2,000.

Robinson wears a pair of blue python shoes for his demonstrations. He is quick to explain that he wears them for show and snakeskin isn't the best material for shoes, however. He explained that the special materials usually aren't strong enough for a good pair of shoes and they must be backed up with leather.

Robinson argues that custom-made shoes are a good value — even at $500.

"We use the best materials and hand last them. They wear better and last longer. They are lasted tighter and are stronger," Robinson said.

If cared for properly, a pair of custom shoes can last for years. Many customers send them back to the factory for resoling several times. Robinson said he saw one pair that was 20 years old and still being worn.

Robinson has been making shoes by hand for 12 years. He has been in the shoe business for 25 years. In that time, he says styles in men's shoes have changed very little.

The unusual shoes he has made include a pair with pianos on them for Liberace, and a pair with donkey on them for one of the stars of television's "Hee Haw."

But the majority of Johnston & Murphy's custom-made shoes are just shoes — the kind to be worn in any situation. Most of the company's customers are repeaters, buying their shoes from the same source over many years.

Robinson says he enjoys his work and giving the demonstrations. He travels for several months a year showing how the world's finest shoes are made.

But whatever you do, don't step on his blue python shoes.

Survey finds jobs available

Job opportunities were plentiful for 1983-84 graduates of Wayne State University, according to a survey conducted by John Crusoe, director of Placement Services. More than 94 percent found employment and he said the 1984-85 graduates will do even better.

Crusoe explains that increased activity from the retail, insurance and other segments of the service sector complemented the already strong manufacturing segment of the market. He says as a result, more opportunities were open to majors in fields such as management, marketing, fashion merchandising, the humanities and social sciences.

Crusoe says the job outlook for most engineering graduates remains upbeat and that opportunities for chemical and civil engineering majors, which have been limited, have opened up somewhat. He also notes that the demand for mechanical and electrical engineering majors within the auto industry has helped offset the decline in the electronics/computer manufacturing field.

Excellent prospects, he says, still exist in computer science, nursing, allied health professions, accounting, law and medicine.

As an indication of improving economic conditions, Crusoe points out that job recruiting by firms on campus has jumped 26 percent over last year.

A breakdown of the professions and typical annual salaries received by 1984-85 graduates with bachelor's degrees according to Crusoe's survey follows:

Engineering

He was man of the hour

... Sunday as some 1,000 people stood in line to meet him and have him autograph their prints, books and whatever else they deemed appropriate. Robert Bateman, the Canadian artist, naturalist and conservationist, won some new fans, according to Dean Jabara, co-owner of Wild Wings Gallery on the Hill which sponsored the visit. Here, Kevin and Marlena Hanlon and their 2-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, talk to the artist. The Woods couple said their daughter, a future Bateman fan, "loves ducks."

Rat control program examined

by Nancy Parmenter

When a resident on Bournemouthe Circle in the Farms lifted the toilet lid last week and found a live rat inside, she expected immediate assistance from the city. But she found that even cities with established rodent control programs don't come out and kill rats on the spot. She and her husband donned leather gloves and captured the animal in a large jar.

"I would never recommend that anyone try to catch a rat under those circumstances," said John Defoe, head of the Farms building and public service departments.

Defoe said the department responds to complaints of rat sightings by baiting the nearby sewers with poison bait, which kills the animals almost immediately. A wax-based block of poisoned bait is suspended by a wire in a sewer near a manhole where it can be monitored. The poison is short-lived, so that by the time it washes away and reaches the river or the sewage treatment plant, it has lost its power, according to the county health department.

The Farms baited both the main sewer and a smaller one running behind the houses in an easement by week's end, a building department employee said. But the Bournemouthe resident said the city's attitude was unpleasant and that employees appeared unwilling to respond to the problem.

"We asked them to bait the sewer at the back, and they wouldn't do it," she said Thursday, an hour before the city said it would do the work Friday. "It's not only that they won't do it — it's the attitude. People have the idea that rats are in slums. Rats are only for poor people, not for rich people. In Grosse Pointe, nobody wants to talk about it."

According to the public service department employee, the Farms baited the front sewer on the hole street the day after the complaint. The back sewer was not baited right away because it was "overgrown" and had to be located and dug up, she said.

The Farms is the only one of the Pointe communities that conducts any rat-baiting program. The other four municipalities respond to complaints by referring them to the county health department or suggesting that a private exterminator be hired. The Woods and the Park send an animal control officer to check the situation, then refer the problem to the county.

The county health department recently sent a letter to all county communities offering rodent control assistance and participation in a grant program, according to Charles Brant, the urban rodent control program coordinator. The Park was the only one of the Grosse Pointes to respond to the offer.

"We did a preliminary survey and didn't find any significant problem," Brant said.

Jeff Mueller at the Park said the county "gave us an excellent report. We thought we might have a problem, but it turned out to be gophers or moles or something," Mueller said.

The Park has gotten away from using poisoned bait out of concern for squirrels, Mueller said. In the past, they did some gassing of rodents in their holes, but he said that program never proved its effectiveness.

"Our ordinance requires a closed, covered garbage can and that has really cut down on the rats and kept the alleys cleaner," Mueller said.

As to the rat in the toilet, both Defoe and Brant said that was an unusual occurrence. Brant said he had heard of such a thing only once before.

"Rats are good swimmers, though," he said. "They can tread water for a long time and hold their breath and climb in pipes. So it's possible, but it hardly ever happens."

Most rats are attracted to garbage cans and dog droppings, according to Brant, who said 50 percent of the Detroit problem can be traced to people who keep their dogs outside. In the Bournemouthe Circle case, where the residents sighted three rats and killed two, all in conjunction with the sewer, he said he would recommend that the city bait the sewer.

"If they've already done that, they've responded to the problem well," he said.

The county has a sanitarian who is responsible for the Pointe area and is available to consult with residents. But no baiting is conducted unless a city participates in a grant program with the county.

"Lots of cities don't do anything," Brant said.

Residents of the Pointes who sight a rat may contact either their own public works department or the county rodent control at 871-8930. Either or both may refer residents to a private exterminator.

Radar detectors are a hot item with thieves, local police say

By Tom Greenwood

Like citizen band radios before them, radar detectors are enjoying a new-found popularity among both car owners and thieves, according to Grosse Pointe police.

Most of the Pointes have seen an upswing in radar detector thefts in the past two years and blame the increase on the unit's high visibility, ease of theft and quick resale value.

"Basically, the units are popular because a lot of our younger drivers can install them quickly and tell if we're monitoring an area," said Shores Sgt. Daniel Fronczak. "We have maybe two or three kids who commit most of the thefts. They in turn sell them to other teen drivers. It allows them to think they can speed and not get caught."

"Some are also obtained by professional thieves who use them to tell if there's a scout car in the area. We've had about 10 thefts so far this year. Last year we caught one thief. Actually, the unit owner chased him down, but was unable to provide the detector's serial number. Because of lack of evidence, we had to let the thief go," Fronczak said.

In the City, police officials confirm that the thefts haven't been too much of a problem, but that the city has had its share of crimes.

"We've had a couple of problems this past summer," said one officer. "One at our city park and the other in a parking lot at the Village. We caught the thief. He's a college student and will probably be going on trial when he comes home for Christmas vacation. Stealing a radar detector is considered larceny over $100."

Police look upon the thefts as mostly 30-second crimes. "That's about how long it takes to steal a unit," said Woods Detective Michael Kwiatkowski. "Most of the thefts occur when the car is parked unlocked in a homeowner's driveway or garage. Others occur in parking lots. If the doors are locked, they simply smash the windows, reach in and grab."

"The units are highly visible and their resale value is quick and easy," Kwiatkowski added. "Most are either displayed on the dashboard or clipped to the sun visor. Thieves can spot the cords which are plugged into the cigarette lighter. The units retail for about $250-$350, but sell for $50 on the street. They're easy to steal, easy to sell and the buyer figures it'll save him from getting a speeding ticket."

The Woods police cleared up 70 cases of radar detector theft in 1984 with the arrest of two teenaged boys.

"We were able to return 45 of the units to their owners," Kwiatkowski said. "But the other 25 were long gone. By far, the most popular units stolen are made by Escort."

Other brands popular with thieves are Uniden, Passport and Cobra.

The thieves caught by the Woods police proved to be cooperative. Kwiatkowski said, and received a year's probation each plus community work.

Police agree the best way to prevent the thefts is to remove the units from the car every night, or keep the detectors out of sight when not in use.

They also recommend engraving the units with the owner's license number and to copy down the detectors serial number for reference in case of theft.

Woods, school board settle Mason drop-off

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Conceding it was taking the "most economical solution to a difficult situation," the Board of Education Monday night decided to split the cost of building a drop-off lane at Mason Elementary School with Grosse Pointe Woods.

The proposal approved the week before by the Woods city council — would mean moving the eastside sidewalk to accommodate an eight-foot-wide parking lane for a dozen or so cars on Charlevoix, to be used by parents to drop-off and pick up their children.

The $19,000 project includes putting a sewer extension into the Mason playground to improve drainage there.

The plan was ripped by trustee Dorothy Kennel at the board's Oct. 7 conference meeting. She said the drop-off was too far from the school entrance and parents wouldn't use it in bad weather, preferring instead to stop right on Vernier to drop off their children.

Board Vice-president Vincent LoCicero said the proposal was not perfect but "the best under the circumstances ... the best for the cost."

LoCicero, Superintendent John Whritner, Support Services Director David King and Mason Principal William Mestagh met with representatives of the Woods to discuss the proposal, developed over the spring and summer by various school and city officials.

At the meeting, Woods officials brought up the suggestion of splitting the cost of the project, Whritner said. In its discussion in August, the school board had said construction was to solve a public safety problem and was the responsibility of the city.

The board had considered during its spring budget process to roll some extra money into its appropriated fund equity to cover the expense. That idea was scrapped because the board felt such a move may jeopardize its ability to negotiate a split of the costs.

LoCicero told the board that the costs of the sewer installation and sidewalk repair and replacement, among other items, took up about half the bill for the drop-off. Those items were legitimate site improvements and fell under the board's jurisdiction, he added.

The ideal solution would be construction of a drop-off right on Vernier, but that would carry a price tag "five or six" times higher than the Charlevoix plan, officials said.

Mason parents at the Oct. 7 meeting said they thought the plan, though not perfect, would be good. Parents using Charlevoix would be able to watch their children enter the school after they were dropped off, they added.

Construction probably won't begin until the summer, once the school is closed for the season, for safety reasons. Woods City Administrator-Clerk Chester Petersen said. The city can use funds from its street or capital improvement budgets if the work begins in the 1985-86 fiscal year, which ends June 30, or allocate funds in the coming budget, he said.

Once the drop-off is completed, parents can expect stricter enforcement of the "no stopping" rule on Vernier, Petersen said.

Memorial dedicated to Michael Cardosi

A display case filled with rocks and minerals, many from Michael Cardosi's collection, was dedicated as a memorial to him at North High School Sept. 25. The former North student died in a car accident on the Mackinac Bridge last October. The young man intended to major in geology at Michigan Tech where he was a freshman.

Art Weinle, science teacher, said he had been considering putting up a display case about the same time that the tragedy occurred. "The Cardosis thought it would be a good memorial for Mike and they wanted to pay for it, but Mike's friend, Marc Dobson, said he could build it for less than what we'd have to pay for one in a store."

"He built it for a little under $500 and it's really well done," Weinle said. "It's made out of solid oak and it's far better than anything we could have purchased."

Dobson graduated from North in 1984.

At the dedication, Dr. John Kastran, principal, said, "It's an excellent tribute and I'm delighted we're perpetuating his memory in his favorite subject."

Foundation makes donation

The Board of Education Monday night accepted $1,150 from the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Academic Enrichment for programs to be presented to elementary, middle and high school students in the coming school year.

The foundation sponsored the appearance of W.D. Snodgrass, a Pulitzer Prize-winning writer, who held a poetry reading Tuesday, Oct. 1. Snodgrass, Conrad Hilberry and Jack Driscoll spent four days at South with the school's creative writing and literature classes. North students were invited to attend.

Coming Nov. 11 will be Trinkha Hakes Noble, an award-winning author and illustrator of children's books. She will visit Richard, Kerby and Mason elementary schools and the Central Library as part of National Children's Book Week. She will discuss how to write a story, how illustrations are used and how books are made.

A presentation of Sandburgland, Carl Sandburg's view of the Midwest through his poetry and music, will be presented to all middle school students March 4 and 5. The program is presented by the University of Wisconsin Heritage Ensemble, who will also confer with the schools' high school ability English classes during their study of Sandburg.

The board accepted the donation to cover the presentations with appreciation.

Youth program seen as key to ailing system

By Nancy Parmenter

If something isn't done about the juvenile justice system in Wayne County, there may soon not be a system to worry about. County Juvenile Court attorney William Wiggins, standing in for ailing speaker Judge Y. Gladys Barsamian, brought her pessimistic message to a meeting of the Michigan-Ontario Youth Officers Association Oct. 10.

"This is a critical time for the juvenile justice system," Wiggins told the group, hosted this month by the Grosse Pointe Shores youth officers. "If we don't clean it up and get things back on track, it's (Barsamian's) view that we won't have a juvenile justice system."

There are ways to improve the situation, however, and Wiggins said he and Barsamian back the formation of youth assistance programs to return responsibility to the individual and to the community.

"We need a partnership with local communities," he said. "The court has been rightfully accused of not paying attention to lesser offenders... (but) the kids need to know they're not going to slip through the cracks of this increasingly porous system."

Wiggins promised any community interested in forming a youth assistance program that the county juvenile court would enter into an agreement to take the minor cases that are not being taken under current circumstances.

"Right now, kids can thumb their noses (at the system) and nothing happens," he said. The youth assistance program would "reinforce community action" by providing a working agreement to refer first-offenders back to the community for counseling or community service.

Oakland County has had youth assistance programs for 30 years, according to Wiggins, who said he has hopes for a country-wide network in Wayne. Livonia's three-year-old program has already had "a contagious effect" in Redford and Garden City.

Wiggins conceded that some of the youth are too disturbed for a community service program, but said 90 percent of them could be straightened out by it. He outlined a proposal for cooperation among police, the court, and the Department of Social Services, the three agencies currently responsible for juveniles.

Police departments should have youth bureaus or specially trained officers. They should develop criteria governing warning and releasing and referrals to youth assistance programs and to the court system.

Youth assistance programs would meet needs through direct services or referrals to appropriate community agencies. Participation would be voluntary, but the plan stresses that failure of a community to participate could result in juveniles being referred to court rather than to the community.

Wiggins sees such a program as necessary not only to improve the system, but also to head off restrictive legislation currently pending in Lansing. Several bills propose automatic waivers of 14-year-olds to adult court on a first offense, for example.

"We don't think things are that bad yet — we're not ready to write them off to the adult system," Wiggins said. He said the concept of automatic waiver has more validity on the second offense.

"One act isn't a reliable predictor," he said. "Two acts, you're starting to pinpoint the career criminal. That kind, we're not going to change him, the justice system won't change him. God may."

Four members of the Livonia police youth bureau attended the meeting. Afterwards, they praised the youth assistance program there, saying they have observed "excellent" results.

Officer James Pardo was chairman of the program's Community Action Council for the first two years of the project. Fifteen representatives of the public schools, the city government, the police department, the YMCA-YWCA and substance abuse organizations came together in a committee to give direction to the program.

The classes, counseling sessions and work service, all aimed at first offenders, resulted in a 95 percent success rate. "I was cynical at first, but it's working," Pardo said. "I was afraid we'd digress, but we've stayed with the original concept."

"The program went for two years before I ran into somebody for the second time," added another officer. The Livonia program is now serving as a training center for other Wayne communities considering youth assistance.

The Pointes considered the program during the summer. Approval and funding was granted in three communities and the school district, but it was contingent upon participation by all the Pointes. The Shores and the City decided that program benefits were outweighed by the costs.

Woods Municipal Judge Patricia Schneider and Park Councilman Vernon Ausherman said at the time of the City's decision that they were planning to pursue the idea, perhaps in some other form. However, last week, Schneider said they had decided not to go on.

"There's a lot of support for the idea in the community," Schneider said, "but we feel we've pursued it as far as we can as public officials. We hope we may have planted the seeds and someone else will harvest them."

Schools' Fountaine retires

There aren't many jobs that one can look back at after 20 years and point out tangible accomplishments. Furrel Fountaine, when he leaves the school system's maintenance supervisor's slot at the end of the year, won't have that problem.

Fountaine will leave Dec. 31 after 20 years with the school system. He began part time with the maintenance department in November 1965, and became a full-time employee the following July. He was promoted to first assistant of maintenance in 1972 and became acting head of maintenance later that year and was named supervisor the next.

In his position, Fountaine is responsible for handling the budget in the maintenance department, evaluating the needs of buildings and grounds and supervising the general maintenance of the system's buildings and sites.

"I've heard many good comments about how good our buildings look," he says, adding credit for good work has to go to the maintenance staff for keeping up the buildings, some of which are nearing their sixth or seventh decade of use.

Some of the credit for the buildings' good looks also goes to the school board, Fountaine says. "The board has been very supportive in keeping up maintenance of its buildings and sites," he says, adding that in some districts when budgets have been tight, maintenance funds are sometimes the first to be cut.

Fountaine is also responsible for the purchase of materials and direction of on-site work. Fountaine also develops bid specifications for certain projects.

Another part of the job is meeting with parents groups when doing on-site work, Fountaine says. Such meetings took place before the Brownell Middle School playground project.

On his staff of 11 people are a carpenter, plumber, electrician, a plaster man, two skilled workers and general maintenance people. The staff meets in the morning to pick up work assignments and then head off throughout the system.

Spring and summer are busy seasons, when painting projects are evaluated throughout the system, Fountaine says. In the summer, heating and cooling systems in all the buildings are checked and boilers dismantled and examined as well.

"I have to give them credit for the work they have done," he says of his staff. "No matter who's sitting up here in the office, they're the ones who go out and get the job done."

Some of the capital improvement projects are handled by the maintenance staff. The refurbishing of the office at South High School and the administration office's curriculum office were done in-house, Fountaine says.

In a retirement tribute read Monday night at the school board meeting, Fountaine was recognized "for his dedication to the school system, his conscientious attitude, the high standards he sets for himself and for others, and his knowledge of the buildings and grounds."

"He is a leader who knows how to get the job done and has done so consistently during his tenure in Grosse Pointe. Though (he) is leaving the school system, his contribution will remain in the fine plant and field facilities our students, staff and community enjoy," the resolution adds.

"I give my men a lot of credit," Fountaine says. "Without their day-to-day devotion, we wouldn't have the quality of sites we have now."

History records that the great poets of the world moved their lips when they read. Abraham Lincoln, too, did so.

We all know that Americans and the British share a common language and a common culture, but a visit to England reminds us that we also share many common problems.

Tourists experience many of these problems in Britain. They cope with traffic heightened by the narrow winding streets and highways. They see the ravages of pollution and find many buildings and monuments shrouded in plastics as cleaners go to work. And they discover that child abuse is an English problem as well as an American one.

Even worse, visitors hear about crime — and sometimes experience it themselves — and in such places as Britain and Tottenham. They learn about riots that are blamed on racism and criminals. They also hear criticism of the police for being either too soft on crime — or too tough — and read proposals for new ways of combating riots, including the use of rubber bullets, water cannon, gas and other methods of coping with such events that are all too familiar to Americans.

So sometimes it appears to American tourists in England that they never have left home. Perhaps that is part of the country's charm for visitors. It mixes the familiar and the unfamiliar, even in the use of the English language.

British English usually can be understood by Americans, even though it often takes careful listening and some translation. Americans have to remind themselves that "flyovers" are overpasses and "roundabouts" are traffic circles. Class distinctions in speech also make some English people almost incomprehensible to their American listeners.

Yet if visiting England reminds Americans of their roots, the common culture and the common problems we share with the British, it also is an experience that offers a new perspective on the U.S. place in the scheme of things.

In America, we tend to think of ourselves as being at the center of the universe. Foreign news gets little attention in most newspapers and from most people, except in time of crisis. We usually focus on the here and now of national domestic issues. As a people, we're no longer isolationists, but we are not yet citizens of the world, either.

In Britain, however, the media give great play to Britain's role in the world, a role that reflects the country's history and geography. Visitors are reminded of Britain's traditional relationships with Europe as well as with Africa and Asia. And so the British quality press serves up a heavy dose of news about such areas and, despite Britain's special relationship with the United States, relegates news about this country to a secondary place, excepting again during the times of world crisis.

Even though Margaret Thatcher's government is fully committed to NATO and to keeping U.S. bases and U.S. missiles in Britain, those joint defense efforts and Britain's heavy reliance on the United States are not always fully supported by the public. And they are actively opposed in many respects by the Labor Party.

In their annual conference, Labor Party delegates voted down left-wing demands to commit a Labor government to pull out of NATO. But they did support the scrapping of Trident and Polaris missiles in Britain and the withdrawal of U.S.

cases from Britain, even though Labor leaders still insisted the party stands for "a strong defense policy."

Yet Neil Kinnock, the Labor Party leader, won strong media and public support for his efforts to reduce the role of British labor unions — and especially the influence of the leftist National Miners Union headed by Marxist Arthur Scargill — in the national Labor Party.

Public opinion polls after the Labor conference endorsed Kinnock's tough line against the left wing and even gave Labor a slight edge over the Conservatives and the Alliance of Liberals and Social Democrats for the moment. The poll could be read as reflecting doubts about British reliance on the United States for defense.

For Americans, however, the Kinnock attack on the labor unions raised the question as to whether any U.S. Democrat would be willing and able to make a similar public attack on U.S. trade union influence in the Democratic Party. That influence is seen by some observers as a weakness as the Democrats seek to make a mass appeal for voters at a time that organized labor represents an increasingly smaller proportion of U.S. workers. But no Democrat's name comes to mind.

Fortunately, the far left has much less representation in the U.S. labor movement than in Britain's. Perhaps it is because U.S. labor union gains have lifted much of the membership into the middle class where they become more concerned about protecting their economic gains than about revolutionizing society or redistributing the wealth. And the AFL-CIO leadership seldom has been subject to criticism for being "soft on communism" or irresponsible on the national defense issue.

Reading and viewing news reports about the Conservative Party's annual conference, many Americans found new evidence that Margaret Thatcher and Ronald Reagan share many common approaches to national and international issues, especially in social and economic policies.

The Conservative Party emphasis on government deregulation, on helping people to help themselves and on seeking more investment in "an enterprise society" are all reminiscent of the president's own economic laissez-faire policies and his efforts to spur economic growth through tax cuts and new incentives for investment.

And in proposing a new offense of disorderly conduct to deal with hooliganism, rioting and general anti-social behavior not covered by present law, the Conservative home secretary was following a party policy that could well have been uttered by President Reagan or his attorney general, Edwin Meese. As expressed by Douglas Hurd, the home secretary, it reads as follows:

"In return for the freedom we all share, society has a right to expect that all our citizens should be ready to respect, and see that their children grow up expecting and ready to take part in, all those public institutions which help to create and maintain the law, including the police."

So it's no wonder, as indicated earlier, that Americans often feel that when they are tourists in Britain, they never have left home.

A plague on both houses

It is disappointing that Republicans and Democrats in the state Legislature cannot reach agreement on the facts involved in the current controversy over cutting the income tax back to the 4.6 percent rate that prevailed prior to the controversial hike to 6.3 percent in 1983.

The Republicans argue that the state can afford to trim the rate back to 4.6 percent on Jan. 1, 1986, while the Democrats say that May 15 is the earliest date the state can afford to return to the 4.6 percent rate. One reason for the difference in opinion is that the two parties cannot agree on the amount of the state surplus at the end of the fiscal year Sept. 30 — and not even the Democratic administration can promise firm estimates until late in the year.

But there are a couple of other factors involved in the income tax wrangling between the Republicans and Democrats. The Republicans want to increase the personal exemption on the income tax from $1,500 to $1,750, while the Democrats want to hike it only to $1,700. In addition, the Democrats want to increase taxes on insurance companies and banks on the grounds they now pay less than other businesses, while the Republicans oppose such increases, arguing that Michigan needs lower, not higher taxes to attract more investments in business.

Gov. James Blanchard also has proposed state taxation of capital gains and a cut in property taxes — but only if the other elements in his tax package are adopted. The Republicans argue against any increase and urge that the tax surplus in the state treasury, which they see as considerably larger than does the Blanchard administration, should be returned to the public as soon as possible in the form of an income tax cut.

It is true that the differences between the two parties' positions have narrowed in recent months and it is a foregone conclusion that the income tax rate cut will be made effective sometime between Jan. 1 and May 15. It is also true that the controversy over the timing of the tax cuts and the other tax proposals being discussed is directly related to the 1986 election. Both parties want to get credit for cutting taxes and so they dance around the issue, hoping that new developments will help their cause.

Almost lost in the tax controversy is the level and quality of state services that the two parties would offer in the event of the adoption of their tax programs. The Republicans are proposing larger cuts in the income tax than the Democrats have outlined and insist that the state surplus would make it possible to maintain services at least at the current level. The Democrats are contending that some increases in business taxes will be required to offset the further cuts in personal income taxes and property taxes that they have proposed. But the Democrats, too, have said little about the level and quality of state services in the future.

Since state revenues are spent chiefly to finance state services, both parties owe the public an explanation of the levels of state services they see in the future. Are further cuts in the "offing"? If so, where would they be made? Or are new increases in spending for state services likely in the future? And if increases are proposed, just where will the money be spent?

Before agreeing to the date of the income tax cut next year, both parties ought to make clear how that action will affect state services. Until they can agree on the amount of the budget surplus, it is doubtful that they can make meaningful predictions. But since the Democrats control the House and the governor's office and the Republicans hold the Senate, both parties must be held responsible for their inability to agree on the size of the surplus and their failure to explain adequately the effect of proposed income tax cuts on state services.

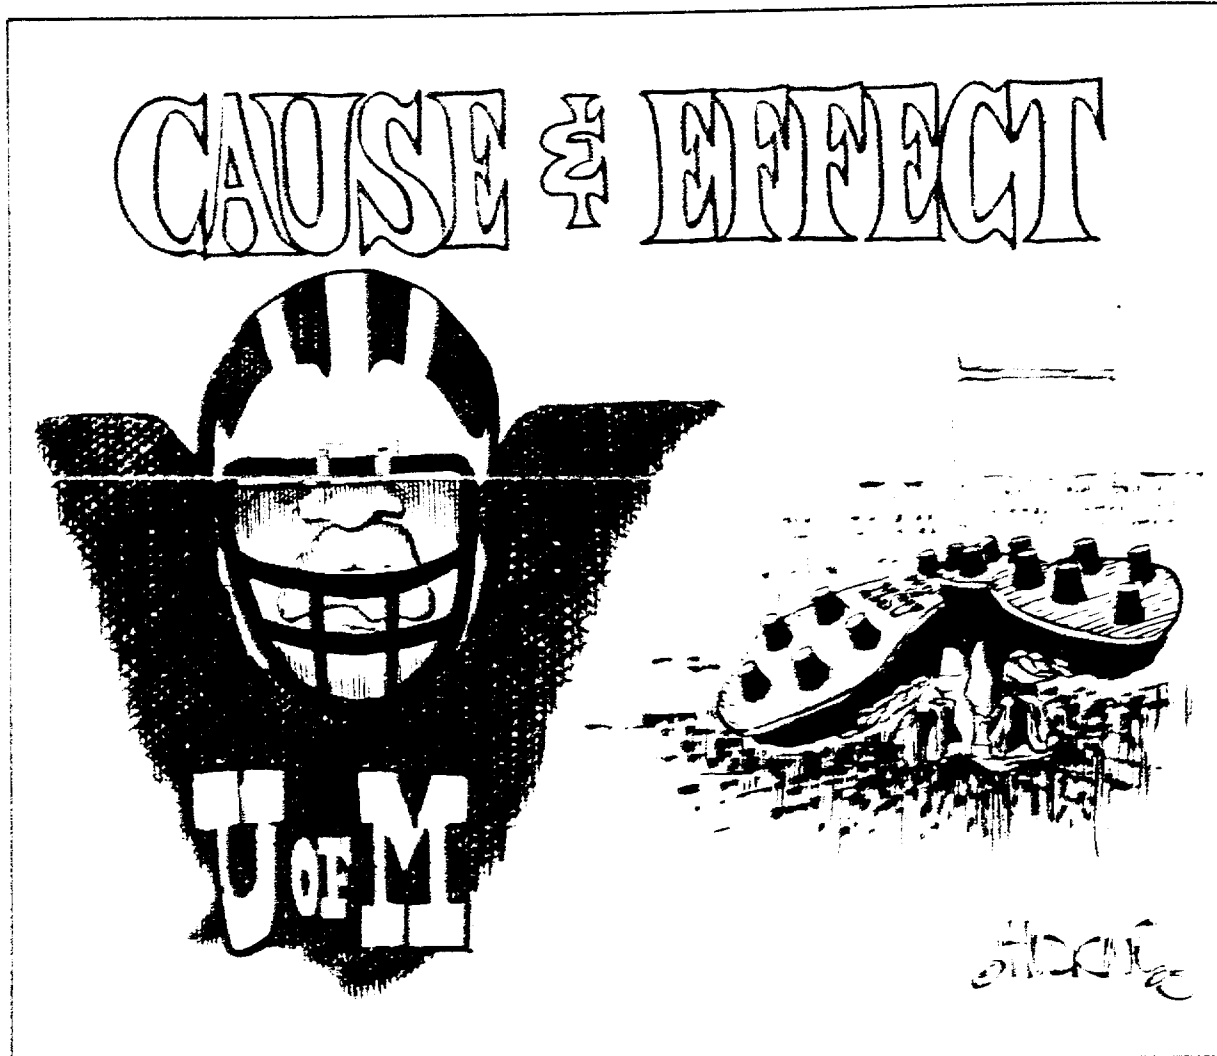

Shakespeare's comment, "A plague on both your houses," seems to be especially appropriate on this issue.

School system has some serious flaws

Letter to the Editor:

This letter is in support of the letter from David Loffredo. Mr. Loffredo questioned the grade point averages of the students at Grosse Pointe South High School. I have two sons who recently graduated from South. One had SAT scores over 1300, as did Mr. Loffredo. My son took advanced math for four years, advanced English for two years, and AP Chemistry II. None of his other classes were "blow off" classes. He scored in the 95 percent to 99 percent in national test throughout his school years.

He took and was challenged by the advanced classes, and we, too, were told that colleges look at the difficulty of the classes and the SAT scores.

But we found out, like Mr. Loffredo, that the grade point averages seem to cloud the issue. We were told that the AP classes would be a real plus. If a gifted student challenges himself, himself, and gets a "B" in a super-tough class, why should their total grade point average suffer?

We were also told that a "B" in an AP class was worth at least an "A" in the grading. NOT SO! I won't burden your eyes with personal details, but the college's first concern is indeed the GPA.

Thank you

To the Editor:

The members of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association would like to thank the merchants of the Village and the Hill who cooperated so generously with us to produce Grosse Pointe Symphony Week, Sept. 27-Oct. 4.

The "musical" windows were most attractive and original and directed much attention to our excellent community orchestra, as people stopped to study them.

Because of their community spirit, the Grosse Pointe Symphony has been able to reach some new faces — to hear our orchestra with "new" ears as we begin our season, Oct. 17.

Thank you,
Mrs. Lyndie Martin
Chairman
Mrs. John E. Young Jr.
Co-chairman

Grosse Pointe has a fair educational program, but I hesitate to call it good. There are some good, even great teachers. But the system has some very serious flaws. It does very little to encourage self-esteem. Isn't giving a student a feeling of self worth one of the greatest lessons of all?

The way it is now, we knock the student who challenges himself, herself by taking a harder class. If the current students realize that what Mr. Loffredo and I say is the truth, what will happen to those interested in the AP classes?

I thank David Loffredo for opening this issue. It may seem minor to some, but we must do all we can to encourage those who have been gifted. It is in their hands that our future rests.

School concerned with swimmers' health, safety

To the Editor:

Regarding the letter which appeared in the Grosse Pointe News on Oct. 10 headlined "Kiddie Swim should be reinstated," the following may be of interest:

We are always concerned about health and safety issues in our aquatic programs. For example, in recent years water intoxication in the very young has been highly publicized. More recently, we have become aware of the possible transmission of diseases caused by bacteria which are resistant to chlorine. Dr. Eric Mood, associate clinical professor of Public Health at Yale University, has stated that "Some parasites, such as salmonella, would be killed by the chlorine in the water. But if the infant has an infection by a parasite that is highly resistant to chlorine and transmitted by feces, such as Giardia, others could come down with it."

2. Because we must schedule and operate an extensive and growing recreational, instructional, and competitive swimming program mostly after 6 p.m. and on Saturdays, priorities must constantly be evaluated. This fall, our pre-school program has been restricted to children two years and older who are toilet-trained.

The preceding may help readers gain a better understanding of our pre-school swim program and some of the related safety and health problems with which we must deal in accommodating all pool-users.

Reopen Barnes to students

To the Editor:

Regarding the article in the Oct. 1 Grosse Pointe News on enrollment increases in the Grosse Pointe Public School System, I know now the school board must feel it is true that "16 crowded elementary school classes" must be reduced, so why not open up Barnes Elementary? Why waste a good school building in a nice location where students can have their "blow room," "Bopwell," and "Pardell" must be closed with its eager sixth-graders?

I know aides have been hired for the elementary schools to help relieve the situation, but the empty school in Morningside Drive is just sitting there, ready for students.

Who knows? The projections for the 1987 school year were "not available," so one does not know whether there will be a drastic increase of students or a shocking decline of them. Grosse Pointe Park and City's population is increasing greatly each year.

Forget the aides and extra help. The top floor of Barnes is being used for Continuing Education. Let's make Barnes a multi-functional school with Continuing Education on the top and use the first floor for the overflow of elementary students.

Being a student at Grosse Pointe North High School, I can see it now, having our school crowded with eighth-graders, with no room to even think.

Elm tree remarks defended

To the Editor:
In response to the Oct. 10 letter by Carol E. Ward on preserving elms, it is commendable to look to other communities for information. Common sense dictates, however, that the rationale behind other programs be considered.
The Beautification Commission is now confused about Washington, D.C. (elm pop. 32,000). Dr. M.S. Kahn of the District of Columbia program states that his city is continuing to spray methoxychlor with no plans to discontinue, and that the city would prefer to spray twice yearly. It is the National Park Service (elm pop. 3,000) that does not spray. Dr. Richard Hammerschlag of NPS states that the decision to not spray was based, not to a minor degree, upon the protective buffer zone created by Washington, D.C. Detroit (elm pop. 60,00 plus 3,000 dead trees from 1985 alone) is hardly a buffer zone for the Park (Mr. Paul Hynes, Detroit's superintendent of Forestry).

It is also important to note that Washington, D.C. and the NPS use cacodylic acid in clearly divergent ways. The NPS usage is inappropriate as applied to the Park, as a pheromone attractant is added, creating a danger to healthy trees within close proximity to the treated tree. The NPS does not use cacodylic acid on landscaped trees (Drs. Kahn and Hammerschlag). Washington, D.C. uses cacodylic acid, without a pheromone attractant, on green space trees. It is not used on private trees, as insufficient research has been performed to determine toxicity of gases emitted from burning (Dr. Kahn and Mr. Bradley Street, Deputy Chief, Tree Division, Washington, D.C.).

Even with the loss of 46 percent more elms this year than last (Aug. Forestry Report), it is curious that the Park's Beautification Commission has taken such a defensive posture in regards to remarks initially directed solely toward council. Purportedly, it was council's vote to stop spraying. Is the Beautification Commission so powerful that their edicts are adopted without scrutiny, thus depriving citizens a voice through city government?

Do schools make profit?

To the Editor:
I am puzzled as to why milk costs 20 cents at Grosse Pointe South High School while the same amount is only 10 cents at a local private (no government funds) grade school?

I asked a member of the school board but never received an answer. I hope they are not making a profit on milk.

Mrs. Waitkus
Grosse Pointe Park
Editor's Note: According to the Office of Business Affairs, the public schools lose money on their lunch programs, so they aren't making a profit. It may be that the school you refer to subsidizes its lunch program.

Don't become victim of mail fraud

Residents of Michigan continue to be victims of fraudulent schemes involving C.O.D. mail, according to Detroit Postal Inspector-In-Charge C.W. Wilson.

"In most cases, the intended victim first receives a mailing or telephone call," Wilson said. "The victim is told he or she has won an expensive prize, such as a video recorder, television, boat or microwave oven."

The victim is told to expect a C.O.D. package and, according to Wilson, when the parcel arrives, he must pay $49 to $94 in shipping charges.

Postal inspectors recently closed a dozen fraudulent C.O.D. operations in California. A number of individuals were arrested and charged with mail fraud. Additional schemes are operating in Las Vegas, Miami, Phoenix and other cities.

"Postal customers should exercise caution before accepting unsolicited C.O.D. mail, or mail that relates to the fraudulent scheme described above," said Wilson.

Thief breaks in, steals television

Someone entered a Farms home between Friday and Saturday nights last week and stole a television set and jewelry. According to the police report, the Kerby Road house was entered by cutting a screen, pulling out the frame and pushing up the unlocked window inside.

The intruder searched the upstairs bedrooms and took a 12-inch color television and a gold chain. He or she apparently also considered taking a portable radio and cassette player, but abandoned it by the window, the report stated.

I say

I was driving around Grosse Pointe one Friday last month on my way back from an assignment, when the news came across the car radio that authorities had found the body of Shawn Moore, a 13-year-old Michigan youth who had been abducted two weeks earlier.

I was saddened, but not shocked. Authorities aren't able to find very many abducted children alive, it seems, and as time had gone on after Shawn's abduction, it looked almost certain that he would not be found alive.

Foremost in my thoughts that day was anger. What kind of world is this, I thought to myself, where a 13-year-old kid can't ride his bike to the store for a bottle of pop without ending up kidnapped and murdered. Where the photos of missing children are plastered on the sides of milk cartons in the hopes that someone, anyone, might know what had happened to them?

Later that day, I came across a note I'd written to myself reminding me to write about an incident that had occurred one snowy day last January. I'd never written about it, but after I'd heard the news about Shawn Moore, I sat down to write about my introduction to someone whom I thought only existed back when the world was safe and sane.

Late one Friday afternoon last January, I dashed through the snow over to Perry Drugs for a candy bar. I'd just started reading the scandal tabloids at the check-out counter when I heard a small voice at my side.

"Excuse me, Miss. Could you tell me what 25 and 19 are?" asked the tiny blonde who stood in front of me. She was dressed in a parochial school uniform and bundled against the cold, clutching a change purse in one hand and a box of valentine cards and some bubblegum in the other.

"Hmmm. Yeah, uh, 25 plus 19 is 44," I told her, after my lightning-quick brain had figured it out.

"Good, I'll have enough. See, I have to buy these valentines. I'll be giving 21 of them away to my class. Then I'm going to send some to my cousin and my aunt. I always do that. I have $1.47 and that'll be enough because they tax the cards and not the gum, right Miss?"

"Um, right. You're going about this all pretty early," I said. "Valentine's Day is still a while away," I said.

"Yes, but I always do things early. That way, they'll be done and I don't have to worry, right?" she said sweetly.

Right. Why should a cute little thing like you ever have to worry about anything, I said to myself. And then another thought crossed my mind. What was she doing in the store all by herself? She doesn't look any older than 6. Maybe her folks were outside in the car. I hoped so.

As it turned out, she didn't have $1.47. She only had $1.37 and the bill came to $1.44. I paid the cashier the extra money. The tiny blonde with the big blue eyes thanked me and walked toward the door.

What kind of world is this?

After I'd paid my bill, I walked out, only to find her outside waiting for me. "You know what?", she said. "My school only had a half day today. It's the end of the quarter and we're going to get our report cards on Monday."

"I'll bet it's nice to have the afternoon off," I said. "You didn't walk to the store alone, did you?"

"I don't live very far away. I think I did pretty well on my report card. I'll probably get an 'A' in social studies," she chirped.

"Good for you," I told her. "Now you be careful walking home, okay?"

"Okay. Thanks again for the dime, Miss. Maybe I'll see you around," she called as she skipped away — alone — through the snow. Her folks hadn't been outside waiting in a car. I watched her for a minute, a tiny figure on a nearly empty street, then trudged back to the office and forgot about her until that day last month when they found Shawn Moore's body.

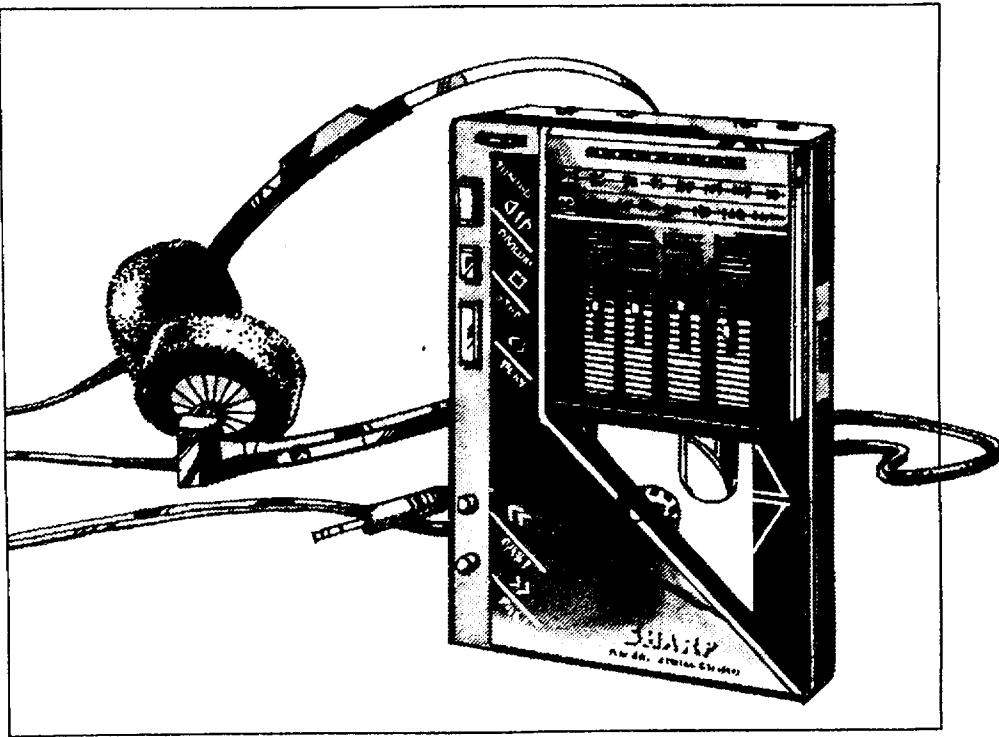

On that day, I wondered if that tiny little blonde was still healthy and happy, worrying only about valentine cards and bubblegum, and still brightening the days of those around her as she'd brightened mine that cold afternoon. And I remembered how I'd wondered on that January Friday about the kind of parent who would let a beautiful little child like that out on the street alone.

When did it all get so ugly? Why do 13-year-olds get pulled from their bikes, ending up dead in some forest? Why do cruel, horrible, unthinkable things happen to small, innocent people?

The world was safe enough that day last January. The tiny blonde with the big blue eyes made it safely to the store where we met. She ran into a person who was "safe" and as far as I know, made it home in one piece.

The truth of the matter is that she was merely lucky. And because the world is what it is, the truth of the matter is also that the part of me that was once like the little blonde without a worry in the world, is as much a faded memory as those days when it was safe enough to send a 6-year-old to the store alone or let a 13-year-old race off on his bike.

But at least I have that memory. Which is a lot more than some of those shining little faces pictured on the milk cartons ended up with.

DEALING WITH PHOBIA

Phobias — irrational, disabling, and disruptive fears — afflict some 20 million Americans and are now the most common form of emotional disorder, ranking ahead of alcoholism and depression.

Although the effects can be devastating, phobias are usually curable. The Patient Education Center of Saint John Hospital is pleased to present a community program on the problem of phobias to be held Thursday, October 24, 1985 from 7:00-9:00 p.m. in the hospital auditorium.

The guest speaker will be Mary Ann Miller, Director of A.I.M. (Agoraphobics In Motion) of Michigan. The speaker will discuss anxiety disorders, panic attacks, phobias, the condition of agoraphobia, role of depression and symptoms and current successful treatments.

Films and literature will supplement the program. $3.00 fee. Reservations necessary. For information and to register contact: Camille C. Klimecki, M.A., Saint John Hospital, Patient Education Center, 22101 Moross, Detroit, Michigan 48236. (343-3870).

Board honors 10 volunteers with planetarium reception

The Board of Education Monday night presented its annual volunteer awards to 10 people at North High School. Recipients were honored at a reception before the regular board meeting.

This is the second year that the board has chosen from among the system's volunteers to honor a small number for their distinguished service. Certificates are presented to volunteers at receptions in their buildings in May, with the system-wide awards being presented in October.

Honored this year with resolutions and engraved school bells were Julia Booher, Lynn Cieslak, Richard Cooper, Pat Jeffs, Annette Locricchio, Robert Lytle, Carla Miller, Julia Rentenbach, Cathy Rivard and Ethel Toepel.

Booher has served as director and mother vice president of the Richard PTO and is president of the group this year. She has been co-chair of the PTO winter dinner and was lunchtime games club instructor for the 12 weeks of twice-a-week sessions.

Booher assisted in bringing substance abuse information to all second- and third-graders as an instructor in the BABES program and organized a small group of parents who painted the play equipment at the school in bright colors.

Cieslak assisted learning-disabled students at Poupard in working on a computer in the teacher consultant room with Valerie Griffin. She has served as a room parent at the Young Authors Conference and has worked on the Christmas Raffle, driven on numerous field trips and has worked on the Breakfast with Santa programs and the Book Fair.

Cooper is a lifetime member of the Grosse Pointe North Booster Club and has served the high school for 12 years, working on crowd control and at the concession stand. He was instrumental in the initiation and development of the annual Swim-for-Sports program which has raised more than $170,000 in 11 years.

Cooper has taken individual and group photographs of all athletic teams at the high school. Some of his action shots of sports and other events end up with families at the end of the season or in the year-book.

As a Kerby parent, Jeffs was a room parent, worked on the Young Authors Conference and was a program chairman for the PTO. She was also chairman of the Kerby Carnival. As a Brownell parent, she is active in the Orchestra Parent group and was parent representative to the curriculum study committee when sixth-graders were moved to the middle school. During the past year, Jeffs was president of the South Mothers' Club.

Locricchio has also been a volunteer at three different schools as her children progressed through the system. At Mason, she was on the Executive Board and was a room mother and also worked on the Mason Fair. She was on the Parcels PTO board for four years and has been on the Substance Abuse Community Council team for two and has worked at social functions for students. She has also been chairperson of the Parcels Christmas Bazaar.

she is secretary for the PTO Council.

Rentenbach has been PTO chairman of the Green Circle Team at Trombly and led the instructional program for students K-5 and also presented the BABES program to grades K-3. She was also an active member of the Fine Arts Committee.

Poupard volunteers.

Rivard has worked at the Secret Santa Shop, Paperback Library, All School Balloon Launch, Cheese and Sausage Sale, Ice Cream Social, Staff Breakfast and Adult Coffee. She is also a member of Parcels PTO and the North Parent Club.

Locricchio is currently serving her second year on the North Parent Club board and has helped organize the high school's Career Night and its geranium sale.

Lytle helped plan and implement a computer program at Trombly. In addition he has served other schools by planning and presenting in-service programs to teachers and parents. He arranged parent tours of the Trombly computer lab and helped other groups set up labs.

Lytle has also worked with the Department of Community Education to develop and implement a youth and adult computer instructional program for the community.

Miller has participated in volunteer activities at Mason, Parcels and North High over the years. This past year, she was president of Mason PTO and served the year before as vice president. Among her activities are room parent, Toronto trip chaperone, playground installation worker, Teacher Appreciation Night chief and a variety of other fundraisers and activities.

Besides being active at Mason, she was also with the Parcels PTO and North Parent Club. This year, Rentenbach has served as a room mother and as a member of the fifth grade trip committee, Home School Council, Ice Cream Social, Open House, Pancake Supper. She has also served on the system's high ability committee and the South Mother's Club as well as making Green Circle presentations at other schools.

Rivard was vice president of the Poupard PTO last year as well as being a room parent and was also book fair chairman. She helped organize and direct production of a Poupard parent/student directory. As volunteer chairman, she helped organize building recognition of all the career resource center at North about three days a week in the past year, responsible for helping students plan their careers, using her counseling and teaching certification.

To help students learn about possible careers, Toepel developed Project MAP (Meet a Professional) in which students and professionals met and discussed the world of work. She has also helped organize Career Nights.

Each of the honorees was presented an engraved bell at the start of the Monday night meeting while a board member read a biographical sketch and outline of the person's volunteer activities.

Help for families of alcoholics

The second program in the SAC fall series is planned to help the families of alcoholics cope with the person who is still saying, "I can handle it." The program will be presented Wednesday, Oct. 23, at 7:30 p.m. at the War Memorial.

Stephanie Abbott, M.A., therapist, consultant and author, initiated the family program at Brighton Hospital and has 10 years experience working with families of alcoholics. She is president of the National Foundation for Alcoholism

Communications and a columnist for Alcoholism and Addiction Magazine. She is also the author of "Hostage in the Home" and "Co-dependency: A Second-Hand Life."

Abbott will identify symptoms that family members accumulate as they respond to alcoholism in a loved one, stressing ways they can help themselves and what they can do to make the alcoholic ready for intervention.

The program is free.

The Michigan Cancer Foundation was scheduled to open a branch office Oct. 16 in Grosse Pointe Park, located at 15102 Charlevoix, corner of Maryland. The office will be open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 to 2 p.m.

Some of the services the office will offer include medical supplies, dressings, some ostomy supplies and loan closet equipment.

Volunteers are needed to help with telephone contact, light typing, patient services and the processing of memorial contributions.

The office will have Christmas greeting cards available as well as notecards by Janet Anderson and the Volunteer Cookbook.

For more information or to volunteer, call Joanne Shiner at 294-4434. The MCF is a Torch Drive Agency.

Dog training classes

The St. Clair Shores Recreation Dept. will begin dog training classes Wednesday, Oct. 30, at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena, 20000 Stephens, 1-94 and 9 Mile. Classes will last for eight weeks, one hour per week, for $35.

Beginners Obedience is for any breed of dog at least four months or older, and has had parvo and distemper shots. If the dog is over six months, proof of rabies vaccination will be required. Two beginner classes will be held, one at 10 a.m. the other at 7 p.m.

Intermediate advanced obedience will be at 11 a.m. or 8 p.m. for dogs with at least eight weeks of training.

The conformation show handling class is for purebred dogs only, eight weeks or older. This class will be offered at 9 p.m. only.

For more information, call 445-5350 or 384-6561.

Stroud to speak

Joe Stroud, editor of the Detroit Free Press, will be the keynote speaker at the School of Government's luncheon meeting Wednesday, Oct. 30, at Plum Hollow country club.

Stroud, a native of Arkansas, holds a bachelor's degree in history and political science from Hendricks and a master's in history from Tulane University. He was named editor of the Free Press in 1973, after being associate editor since 1968.

Stroud's topic is "The Heritage of Michigan."

The board meeting begins at 10:30 a.m., followed by cocktails and luncheon at noon. For more information, call 822-1474 or 399-1689.

Marion Chrisner, music specialist at Grosse Pointe Academy, instructs a group of youngsters in the Kindermusik program.

Kindermusik comes to Grosse Pointe

Twelve children from 4 to 6 will learn to play glockenspiels during the next 15 weeks. This experience is just a part of a new specialized music education program called Kindermusik, which began last week under the direction of Marion Chrisner, Grosse Pointe Academy's music specialist.

Kindermusik is a two-year program with four semesters of 15 weeks each. The children will meet for one hour a week at the Academy until February for ear and voice training, ensemble experience, improvisation and creative activities. They will learn musical notation and become acquainted with musical instruments and literature from all periods.

Kindermusik was developed in West Germany and has been adopted by the Federal Republic of West Germany as a model program for preschool education. A five-year pilot program began in North Carolina in 1974. Chrisner's program is the first accredited program to be offered in the Detroit area.

The program is intended to foster a love of music. Parents who want to provide their children with an opportunity to develop their abilities can call Chrisner at 886-1221.

Enrollment is limited to 12 students and the first class has been formed. Additional classes may be added in the near future. Enrollment is open to the community.

Library events

The Grosse Pointe Public Library and the Friends of the Library will present three programs this fall.

Charity Sucek, Grosse Pointe's master cook, will present "A Thanksgiving Menu" and demonstration Tuesday, Oct. 29, at 7:30 p.m. at the Central Library, 10 Kercheval.

Robert Lacey, the best-selling author and resident in this community while he researches his book on the Ford family, will speak Thursday, Nov. 14, at 7:30 p.m. at Grosse Pointe South High School. He will recount his adventures while researching and interviewing the Sauds, Windsors and the eight aristocratic families of Europe included in the newly published "Aristocrats."

"Last Minute Tax Changes for 1985" are explained by an expert for the Internal Revenue Service in the third program Dec. 5, at 7:30 p.m. at the Central Library. The expert will cover all pertinent changes and will field questions from the audience.

Wildlife news

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has set up a new telephone hotline — 517-373-WILD — to answer the public's questions about Michigan wildlife.

The hotline's recorded messages will provide the latest information about hunting season dates, hunting license costs/availability deadlines, hunting tips and conditions in various parts of the state, rules reminders and rules changes, hunter safety, bird migrations and other general news about the state's wild animals and birds.

Tony Genco of the DNR's Wildlife Division, who is coordinator of the new hotline program, says additional tips will be given on mushrooms, wild berries, wildflowers and other plants in season. The recorded messages will be updated once a week.

The hotline will be helpful to different users of Michigan's outdoors, hunters, campers, nature photographers, birdwatchers, hikers, Genco said.

He welcomes ideas for additional information the public wants to receive through the WILD hotline program. Call him with comments and suggestions at 517-373-9312, or write to DNR Wildlife Division, Box 30028, Lansing, Mich. 48909.

Nursing class observes 50th anniversary

Twelve members of the Harper Hospital School of Nursing Class of 1935 gathered recently for lunch and reminiscences in Grosse Pointe Woods in honor of the 50th anniversary of their graduation. The alumni have kept in touch informally over the years and some traveled across the country for the special celebration.

The attendees included: Pearl Titus Halbert, Grosse Pointe Woods; Eleanor Maw, Dearborn; Jane King, Howell; Arlene Clelland, Auburn Heights; Rosemary

Hause, Southfield; Helen Seybold, Toledo, Ohio; Eleanor Miller, Bloomfield; Dorothy Cheney, Rochester; Harriet Eager Fay, Howell; Dorothy Thorpe, Amherstburg, Ontario; Wanda I. Fill, San Antonio, Texas; and Margaret Martin Hines, Hilton Head, S.C.

The nurses were joined by their retired nursing arts instructor, Lucy Germaine. She traveled from El Reno, Okla., to celebrate the landmark event. Several members of the class of 1935 showed their loyalty to their alma mater by giving a handmade quilt, created out of their original nursing uniforms, to Harper Hospital.

Republican women to meet next week

The annual meeting and state convention of the Republican Women's Federation of Michigan will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 22 and 23, at the Kingsley Inn in Bloomfield Hills.

There will be workshops on parliamentary procedure, fundraising and election law as well as a panel of women legislators speaking on women's concerns. New officers will also be elected.

For information, call Joyce Kleiman at 327-4050 or Eleanor Whitson at 646-5228. Cost is $35 for Tuesday's banquet and Wednesday's luncheon, workshops and registration.

Nutrition education

A nutrition education class, sponsored by the clinical dietitians of St. John Hospital and the American Red Cross, is open to the public Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning Oct. 22 for four weeks in the hospital's conference room.

Clinical dietitian Pat Lynch will cover "Food and You," "What's in Food," "Eating for Health" and "Strategies for Weight Control."

The program costs $30 and includes materials. To register, call 343-3826.

Lose weight

There will be two free introductory sessions of Weight No More on Monday and Wednesday, Oct. 28 and 30, 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., at Cottage Hospital. The sessions are held in the Nurses Residence at the rear of the hospital parking lot.

Call 884-8600, ext. 2390, for more information.

French farce to open Theatre North season

"A Flea in her Ear," a French farce/comedy directed by Gael Barr, will be presented Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 24-26, by Theatre North at the Center for Performing Arts at North High.

The play offers each cast member an opportunity to portray farcical characterization and zany humor. The play is filled with a series of funny misunderstandings and mistaken identities.

The three-act play will open the Theatre North season. Appearing are Eric Thams, Jill McCormick, Jeff Witzke, Brian Nettle, Sandi Joseph, Becky Wolfe, Joe Paluzzi, Mike Wujek, Hass Azar, Brad Cooksey, Stella Thomas, Holly Smith, Tim Ojala and Pat Cosgrove.

Performances are at 8 p.m. and general admission is $3.

School events

The following events will take place within the Grosse Pointe Public School System through next week Thursday:

Friday, Oct. 18 — Harvest Festival at Ferry from 3:30 to 7 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 18 — Kerby Pride Day at Kerby all day.

Tuesday, Oct. 22 — Parenting seminar at Trombly at 7:30 p.m.

Thursday, Oct. 24 — Student picture day all day at Trombly.

Thursday, Oct. 24 — PTO Fall Festival from 6 to 8 p.m. at Trombly.

Mimes to perform

The mime troupe "Beyond Words" will perform and share their skills with school-aged children at the Harper Woods Public Library on Saturday, Oct. 19.

The 45-minute program begins at 2:30 p.m. and is open to all children in grades 1-6. Funding is provided by the Friends of the Harper Woods Library.

Rummage sale

Parcels Middle School and North High School Bands and Orchestras will hold their annual rummage sale Saturday, Oct. 26, from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Parcels, located at Mack and Vernier.

People who would like to donate clothing, household items or children's toys can do so the week of Oct. 21. The proceeds are used to provide in-school special music experiences as well as summer music camp scholarships.

High school alumni present donations

South's Cleminson Hall will finally get new carpeting, thanks to a gift from the South Class of 1984.

The graduating class donated $810 to the school system, which will be combined with a previous gift by South's 1982-83 student association, to complete the job.

The student association's $3,000 gift wasn't enough money to complete the carpeting of the display room. The money was held in reserve until the Class of '84 made its donation.

Also, the North Class of 1985 donated $700 to buy chairs primarily for commencement exercises.

The Board of Education accepted both gifts with its appreciation.

Prime Time for Senior Citizens

By Marian Trainor

Sometimes it helps when the present is dull and the future looks dim and even the bright sun of yesterday is clouded over with remembered mistakes and regrets over paths not chosen, to sit down with a friend and let him or her brighten up your life with words of wisdom and encouragement.

If there is no one around you can talk to, you could turn to "Our Best Years" by Helen Hayes (Doubleday). It contains a collection of the best of Miss Hayes' reflections and commentaries.

With wit and wisdom, in brief essays, she passes on advice about the needs and concerns of all of us. It is advice founded on lived experience.

Miss Hayes, the first lady of the theater, is an exuberant 83 and still going strong.

In her radio program, "The Best Years," she has become a spokesperson for older people who she refers to as "Maturians" because "it says there is still a bit of fight in us."

While her book is addressed to older readers, it also concerns younger readers who will one day join their ranks. She says, "We want to beat the small drum to wake up the young to face the inescapable fact of their own very, very long lives."

As for herself, she tells us that what she likes about the eighties — her own and the century's — is that this decade is so full of change, particularly in the medical field. "It prolongs health and life so that 'old' does not have to sound like punishment."

Most of her observations are good-humored, designed to lift the spirits and encourage activity. But she does have some axes to grind.

One is the inaccessibility of medical records. "Wouldn't it make you uncomfortable if you thought there was anything about yourself that you didn't know but others did?" she asks. She then proceeds to point out that the doctor doesn't have to release medical records to you, but a third party, such as a prospective employer, insurance and credit companies and federal authorities can request them.

Nursing homes (the bad ones) come in for a lacing too. In an essay condemning those that are only in the business for profit, she ends with "from where will come the long overdue relief for this appalling situation? Reform will come only if we realize that we must apply pressure, remain informed, vigilant and actively involved."

There is a nice flash of humor in her discussion of widowers. "Men go through life," she writes, "thinking their wives are totally dependent on them. Suddenly they realize that they were equally dependent in all the everyday matters they find overwhelming. So they remarry. And that's as it should be. I just wish they would choose among their age group and leave the young things to their peers."

On marriage: "Winning isn't everything. It's the only thing — to avoid. One of the basic commandments is 'Don't try to win.' Marriage is not a fifty-fifty proposition — only 100 percent from each partner can make it work."

On retirement: "Plan to retool, not retire; choose a path which will lead to an occupation — part- or full-time, mentally, physically and financially suited to your needs."

A project which Miss Hayes recommends because it helps to review the past, resolve old conflicts and to arrive at a new understanding of yourself, is writing your life story. Experts say it promotes self-esteem and personal integration. Besides you are recording a private history for those who care about you.

Risk is another subject on which she makes an interesting analogy. She begins with the proposition that marriage was probably the blindest step you ever took. "I often wonder how we ever had the nerve to shed our parental security blanket and dive into a life we knew nothing about," she says. "And children and child-rearing. What did we know about it? Our business? Our profession? All risks." Yet as we get older we become too cautious about finances, activities, health. The benefits of having participated, having tried new ventures, really living far outweighs the possibility of failure or detriment to your well-being, according to the author.

To rest is to rust, she believes, and tells of a 65-year-old who wrote, "I'm a go-go girl. I don't want to sit and vegetate."

On the other hand, there can be too much activity. Life is sweet when you stop to smell the roses. It's at its worst when you feel you have to fill every waking moment with activity, so you won't have time to think. Looking back, savoring the good experience you have had, reliving treasured moments — time should be set apart for that also. It too, is part of the scenario of "maturians."

Another enthusiasm of Miss Hayes' is activism. Statistics show that there are 24 million older citizens in the United States. They are stronger, healthier than ever, thanks to science. "Maturians can use that power to take charge of things," contends the author. "We must acquire a cheerful attitude and stop griping. It's not enough to complain about stories citing that older people are a threat to the nation's budget. We must be active in politics, volunteerism and charitable work. It is important to work together for our good and the good of others so that they don't come to resent us."

Creating good will is one step. Gray power should also play an ever-increasing role in American politics. Declining birth rate and advancing longevity makes the seesaw tip toward the younger generation. Claude Pepper can't do it all.

A subject on which Miss Hayes feels strongly is people who fret about their age. "Say to yourself," she advises "And say it with conviction, 'I'm still the same person I have been all my adult life.' You are, you know. You haven't changed in the least. Don't try to live with a script from the past in dealing with your present physical needs and possible impairments. Remember it is entirely normal to maintain intellectual capacity for life."

As for the author, she adamantly claims to be having the best time now. "The advantage of being at this point in my life is that I look neither back nor forward — more than a few days at a time — I enjoy now."

"Our Best Years" is not a long book but it covers numerous subjects, problems and thoughts that occupy the minds of many of us. None of the essays cover more than a page-and-a-half which means that it can be picked up at any time when the reader feels the need of a little lift.

The final section may be of particular interest to those who have followed the careers of some of the older stage, screen and television performers. And who could write more knowledgeably about them than one of the greatest among their ranks — Helen Hayes?

More than 10,000 pints of blood have been donated by employees of Michigan Bell and the Communications Workers of America during the past three years. In recognition, Gustave Rissman, center, director of donor resource development at the American Red Cross, presented awards to Michael Handley, at the left, assistant to the vice president of the CWA, and E. Daniel Grady, vice president of personnel relations at Michigan Bell and a Woods resident.

Obituaries

Harry W. Frost Jr.

A memorial service for Mr. Frost, 89, formerly of the City, lately of Fresno, Calif., will be held in November at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

He died Oct. 14 in Fresno.

A native Detroit, he was formerly the president and owner of the Frost Railway Supply Co. He was a member of the Country Club of Detroit, University Club, Princeton Club and served with the United States Marine Corps during World War I.

Mr. Frost is survived by his wife, Helen; two daughters, Frances Ermoian and Helen Powell; and four grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the charity of your choice. Interment will be in the columbarium of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Henry Lampman

Services for Mr. Lampman, 46, of Redford, were held on Oct. 10 at John Monteith Memorial Presbyterian Church.

He died Oct. 6 at St. Mary's Hospital in Livonia following a sudden illness.

Formerly of Grosse Pointe, he was a graduate of Grosse Pointe High School and Michigan Technological College in Sault Ste. Marie. He was employed by Pontiac Ceiling Glass and Partition Company. He was a member of the Grosse Pointe Congregational Church and the Redford Hockey League.

He is survived by his wife, Judy Lampman; his mother, Lydia Pahl Lampman of Grosse Pointe and a brother and sister, Charles F. Lampman and Anne Abbrecht.

Memorials may be made to the Michigan Heart Association. Funeral arrangements were handled by the Manns-Ferguson Funeral Home.

Ernestine H. Motte

Private services for Mrs. Motte, 55, of the Farms, were held at the Verheyden Funeral Home. She died Sept. 27 at home.

Mrs. Motte was born in New York. She is survived by her husband, Klaus; three sons, Ernst, Reinhard and Norbert; her mother Hermine Schuermann; and her mother-in-law, Margaret Motte. Memorial contributions may be made to the Michigan Cancer Foundation-Home Care Unit, 110 E. Warren Ave., Detroit, Mich. 48201.

Cremation was at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Ruby Marie Adams

A remembrance service for Miss Adams, 88, of Yorkshire Road, will be held at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 19, at Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church.

She died Oct. 13 at Bon Secours Hospital.

Born in Big Flat, Ark., she devoted her life to education, obtaining her teaching certificate at age 13 and teaching in one-room school houses throughout Arkansas.

She became principal of grade schools in Oklahoma after college training at Northeastern Oklahoma State University and Southwestern Missouri State University. She also established the first library serving all schools in Bristow, Okla. She also established another library in Dayton, Ohio. That was named in her honor while she also served the community at Bell Haven School. Miss Adams was also county superintendent of elementary education in Cumberland, Md.

She earned her master's degree at Teachers College, Columbia College, where she also pursued her doctorate. Miss Adams served on the faculty of the experimental Bank Street School and conducted an educational survey of New Jersey elementary schools. She was a member of the faculties of Springfield College in Massachusetts, Ohio State and the University of Dayton.

Miss Adams was a member of the League of Women Voters, the American Association of University Women and the Grosse Pointe unit of the Herb Society of America. The Grosse Pointe branch of the AAUW named a fellowship in her honor in 1978.

She is survived by a sister, Grace A. Harrison; two nieces; and two nephews.

Interment was at the family plot at Big Flat, Ark.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Education Fund of the Grosse Pointe League of Women Voters, 32 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236.

Albert L. Thielemans

Services for Mr. Thielemans, 61, formerly of the Park, lately of St. Clair Shores, were held Thursday, Sept. 26, at St. Gertrude Church.

He died Sept. 19 while vacationing in Brussels, Belgium.

Born in Detroit, he was the son of a Grosse Pointe builder and was a 1951 graduate of the University of Detroit where he pitched for the school's baseball team for four years.

Mr. Thielemans worked 34 years for Uniroyal, Inc. His position at the time of his death was supervisor of development accounting and divisional property. He was also active and former president of the Uniroyal Men's Club and served as commissioner of Uniroyal's baseball league.

He is survived by his wife, Lorraine; a son, Michael; three daughters, Leslie Lockhart, Jill Marras and Tracy; his mother, Maria Thielemans; one sister; and five grandchildren.

Interment was at Grand Lawn Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by the Verheyden Funeral Home.

Aging series

As the population grows older, more and more concerns about aging surface. To help deal with some of these questions, the Wayne State University allied health faculty is sponsoring a free series of seminars in October and November.

• Oct. 21 — "Cross-cultural Values, Myths and Attitudes toward the Aging," by Madeline Leininger, Wayne State University professor of nursing and anthropology, and director of the Center for Health Research;

• Oct. 28 — "Identifying Victims of Elder Abuse," Melanie Hwalek, a research associate with the Wayne State University Institute of Gerontology;

• Nov. 4 — "Pharmacological Concerns for Clinicians," Terry Baumann, assistant professor of pharmacy services at Wayne, and clinical coordinator of pharmacy services at Henry Ford Hospital, and Martha Miller, assistant professor of pharmacy practice at Wayne State and geriatric specialist at Harper Grace Hospital; and

• Nov. 18 — "Occupational Health Concerns with Aging," Howard Sawyer, adjunct assistant professor of the WSU Department of Occupational and Environmental Health and chairman of the core committee of the Michigan Occupational Health Standards Commission.

All of the sessions will begin at 5 p.m. and will be held in room 111, Shaper Hall, 1400 Chrysler Freeway Drive, Detroit. Persons wishing to register for the free seminar series should call 577-1384.

Aging parents

Lyle Ward, A.C.S.W., will discuss "Coping with Aging Parents" on Wednesday, Oct. 23, at 7:30 p.m. at Cottage-Belmont Nursing Center, 19840 Harper.

To register for the free session, call 881-9556.

The Michigan State Cooperative Extension Services of Washtenaw and Wayne counties will sponsor a Small Fruit Seminar Wednesday, Oct. 30, at the Wayne County Intermediate Education Center, 33500 Van Born Road, Wayne, and a Tree Fruit Seminar Wednesday, Nov. 6, at the Matthaei Botanical Gardens, 1800 N. Dixboro Road, Ann Arbor. Both seminars are from 7 to 10 p.m.

Handouts will be given at each session. A detailed brochure with maps is available by calling the local extension office, 721-6550, ext. 230. The cost of each session is $4 and a check or money order should be mailed by Oct. 25 to Cooperative Extension Service, Box 350, Wayne, Mich. 48184.

PERMANENT EYE LINING

Women have always longed for beautiful eyes. Since the days of Cleopatra they have been lining their eyes for drama and enhancement. Now, thanks to modern science we can present a permanent micro-surgical technique to offer women the help they have been dreaming about to reduce time, hassle and frustration in their all too busy lives.

Dr. Patrick Verb of the Grosse Pointe Eye Center 20845 Mack in the Woods well-known for his expertise in eye surgery, offers permanent eye-liner, a procedure which implants dye microsurgically. The technique, a basic, delicate tattooing, takes about forty-five minutes.

Permanent Eye-Lining is a welcome beauty aid for the patient who wears contact lenses, bifocals, has vision problems or arthritic conditions. Athletes and those engaged in active sports such as swimming and jogging have praised its benefits.

It took a crane

... to move the 8,000-pound stone sign at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church back on its base after a runaway car struck it recently. Fortunately, there were no injuries.

Colonial Federal sells stock

Robert E. Powers, president of Colonial Federal Savings, said that the stock issue of its parent company, Central Holding Company, has been oversubscribed.

"Many, many of our employees and customers will now be shareholders in our institution, and I am personally very gratified by their enthusiasm and confidence," Powers said.

The stock issue raised the maximum $3.9 million permitted under federal regulations. Colonial Federal customers will receive all of the stock they ordered. Some non-customers, however, will have a portion of their purchase refunded due to the oversubscription.

Powers said that with the merger and increased capital, Colonial will be able to offer its customers a number of services not currently available. Plans for the future include student loans, credit cards and automatic teller machines.

Colonial Federal Savings and Central State Savings will now be operated as Colonial Central Savings Bank, the financial subsidiary of Central Holding Company. All savings in Colonial Central Savings Bank will continue to be insured to $100,000 by the FSLIC, an agency of the federal government.

In addition to the new savings bank, Central Holding Company is the parent of Bankers Mortgage Corporation, Bankers Home Loan Insurance Agency, Central Venture Corporation and the Keim Group, Ltd., parent company of Earl Keim Realty.

How to evaluate a franchise

Every day, two or three people call the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) in Washington, DC, to complain about a franchise business opportunity. Some call before sinking thousands of dollars into the business. Others are not as lucky.

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, people who want to open a franchise should thoroughly investigate a company and know some basic facts about franchising before signing or paying anything.

Franchises come in all varieties, from Acupuncture Centers to Zippy's Printing Shops. Some 367,400 independently-owned franchises account for one-third of all retail sales in the U.S. The first franchise was offered by the Singer Sewing Machine Company during the Civil War.

But franchises did not become widespread until the 1960s, when the "fast food" restaurants boom resounded throughout America. In 1979, after a series of problems in the industry, the FTC instituted strict disclosure rules on the growing business.

Today, the great majority of franchise operations operate properly under the law, according to Nel Blickman of the FTC's enforcement division. In addition, only four percent of the independently-owned franchises fail or discontinue operation each year, while the failure and discontinuance rate for conventional independent business is higher.

The investor in a franchise receives assistance in locating the business and comprehensive marketing information may be provided on the demographics of a proposed site or several sites. In addition, the franchisee may also receive important information on pricing the product or service to be sold. Some franchisors also offer cooperative advertising packages and other advertising campaigns that can be critical in establishing a profitable business.

The franchise gets the benefit of national name recognition of a product and should have an easier time selling a proven concept. In return, the franchisor receives an ongoing percentage of gross sales from the business. Typically, the percentage is from two to 15 percent, depending on the industry.

Franchise agreements may also require fees for training, marketing and consultation. In addition, the agreement may require that certain supplies, raw materials and products be purchased from the franchisor or that the franchisee meet certain product or service standards. (That's why hamburgers from a New York fast food restaurant franchise taste the same as those from the franchise's California restaurant.)

Dominican plans open house

Dominican High School will have an open house Tuesday, Oct. 29, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

There will be tours, demonstrations, entertainment and refreshments available. The school is located on McKinney at Whittier, west of Harper Ave. There is a well-lighted parking lot adjacent to the school.

CPAs recommend that anyone interested in setting up a franchise business carefully review all the documents that must be made available by franchisors. In 1979 FTC rule requires all franchisors to reveal how many times they've been sued by investors.

If the franchisor projects earnings on your investment, it must substantiate the claims by telling you how many other franchisees have earnings as high as they project. A franchisor must also give prospective investors a list of the 10 other franchises closest to your intended location, or names of all franchises in your state or a list of all the company's franchisees.

Since franchisors must operate within the strict disclosure rules, the most revealing information about the franchisor will probably be its financial status. The franchisor must disclose its income statement and statement of changes in financial position. But be wary of franchisors that use high-pressure sales tactics and those that make it sound like success is yours by simply investing in their franchise.

Camp Fire seeks members, leaders

The Camp Fire group will meet Wednesday, Oct. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the library at Maire School. The organization is looking for prospective members and leaders. Everyone is welcome.

For more information, call Liz Brehler at 881-0341.

Life 100 years ago

History came to life for 36 children and three teachers from the Grosse Pointe Academy's second grade when they visited a community of the early 1800s at the Troy Museum and Historic Village last month. The students explored a community similar to one that existed 100 years ago and carried out the chores given to children at that time. They harvested vegetables, tried their hand at weaving looms and built a fire in the huge stone hearth of a log cabin, after gathering the wood.

That Dr. James Naismith dreamed up basketball is common knowledge. But why his wife, Mrs. Naismith, failed to get equal fame for her creativity is a mystery. She invented the football helmet.

Cinema League

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will present "Alaska, Our 49th State," a 35mm slide show by Esther Peters, a past president, at the War Memorial's Fries Auditorium, Monday, Oct. 21, at 8 p.m.

There will be views of Seattle and Vancouver before boarding the Cunard cruise ship "Princess" to cruise the Inside Passage to Alaska. Shore trips along the way will include Ketchikan, Juneau, Skagway, and the bustling city of Anchorage, where memories of the 1964 earthquake still linger.

Other sites include Sitka, home of the Tlingit Indians and once the center of Russian trade and culture, Fairbanks, Denali National Park and Mount McKinley, where the number and variety of wildflowers will astonish the viewer, to Glacier Bay where new icebergs "calve" off the glaciers. Also shown will be the Eskimos at Point Barrow in the Arctic Circle where the group stayed at the Top of the World Hotel and watched the midnight sun.

A visit to the Matanuska Valley at Palmer where an experimental farm boasts of cabbages the size of bushel baskets and strawberries the size of teacups is made. Another valley shown is the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes on Katmai Island, the scene of a gigantic eruption in 1912 which deposited a foot of ash of Kodiak Island 100 miles away. Katmai is also the home of the Kodiak bear, the largest carnivorous animal on earth.

The public is invited to attend. There is a charge of $1 for non-members.

Bonsai exhibition

The Ann Arbor Bonsai Society will hold its 11th Annual Bonsai Exhibition on Sunday, Oct. 20, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. at Matthaei Botanical Gardens, located at 1800 Dixboro Road, Ann Arbor.

Bonsai are woody plants grown in small containers, miniaturized and shaped into living sculpture which suggests a natural landscape dominated by an aged or interesting tree.

More than 100 Bonsai trees will be on display and many of them will be in peak autumn color.

Ongoing demonstrations in the art of pruning and trimming Bonsai will take place throughout the day. Society members will be on hand to answer questions.

Admission is $1 for adults; children will be admitted free.

Meaning in death

The Center for Jung Studies will sponsor "Across the Dark River: An Archetypal Search for Meaning in Death," Sunday, Oct. 20, from 2-4 p.m., at Miller Hall, Christ Church, Grosse Pointe Farms.

Gary Eberle, director of the Academic Achievement Center of Aquinas College in Grand Rapids and a founding member of the C.G. Jung Society of Western Michigan, will address the topic of mythology and death.

Admission is $3.50 for non-members; Members may attend free. The Center for Jung Studies is a non-profit educational corporation and membership is open to all interested persons. For further information, call 885-8792.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

Best of all, ordering Amitol is simple, fast, and reliable! Simply call Dyna Labs Toll Free: (1-800-441-5454) Ext. 911, and order with your credit card. If you don't have a credit card Dyna Labs will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! All orders are shipped immediately by UPS, which means no delay and no orders lost in the mail!

$19.95—30 day supply, or $35.95—60 day supply. Operators are standing by and will be glad to take your order. You can order 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a week! Please don't wait to call. You really do deserve to be thin!

Laser discs enhance planetarium's image

By Mike Andrzejczyk

While Halley's Comet may be responsible for some of the interest in the school system's planetarium at North High School, it's the addition of $12,000 worth of laser disc and projection equipment that's really turning heads.

The addition "fantastically increases the number of uses for the planetarium," according to Director Tom Skonieczny. "This is probably the first community planetarium in the Midwest to use these pieces of equipment."

Disc technology allows access to thousands of images as well as moving pictures for students in a number of disciplines, not just astronomy, Skonieczny says. Computer programs now being worked on will allow teachers to scan those 39,000 images on each disc instantly for their presentations.

The planetarium now has discs produced for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration that include the images transmitted by Voyager and Ranger deep-space probes, a pilot's view of a space shuttle launch and Venus landscapes.

There are also discs and programs available for interactive use by a class as teaching aids. Three-dimensional effects can also be produced with the equipment on the planetarium's dome.

The purchase of the laser disc system, skyscan projector and laser scanning mirrors came as part of discussions between Skonieczny and middle school teacher Bill Leleszi. It was Leleszi's idea to get into laser disc technology in the system and he and Skonieczny settled on the planetarium as a pilot project. The request for funding was approved in this school year's budget.

While the initial outlay may sound a bit high, each of the discs that the school system now purchases contains about 10 times the images it previously had available for planetarium projection.

The planetarium will celebrate the third anniversary of its dedication Monday, Oct. 21. The building was made possible by a $150,000 bequest from the estate of a longtime resident and star watcher Benjamin Long, with the district chipping in $100,000 to pay for the construction.

Skonieczny was involved as a consultant during the project and applied for the directorship when the facility was completed. He's worked at planetariums in Wyandotte and Cranbrook and the Michigan State University Observatory.

Skonieczny has one astronomy class this semester. The class was booked solid this time and may be next semester as well as interest in astronomy spurred by the comet increases.

The planetarium is used 10 to 15 times a week, mostly for school programs. Skonieczny says. First-, third-, and fifth-graders will visit the facility as part of their science classes this year. Third graders will make two visits, since their science instruction includes emphasis on the solar system.

Other school districts and community groups use the facility as well, making it a community planetarium that just happens to be located in a high school, Skonieczny says.

Next year will be a banner year for astronomy for more reasons than just the comet. The Hubble telescope is scheduled to be launched aboard the space shuttle to operate outside of the atmosphere.

The high resolution telescope will have a number of advantages over its earth-bound counterparts, including being able to pick up wavelengths of light normally blocked by the atmosphere.

Voyagers will make its fly-by of Uranus Jan. 24, Skonieczny says. It's been five years since the probe made its dramatic pass of Jupiter and its moons and it will be the first time close-up pictures are available of Uranus.

Another probe is scheduled for launch which will orbit the sun from pole to pole, taking it out of the plane on which objects in the solar system lie, called the plane of the ecliptic. This is the first probe to be fired out of the plane, Skonieczny says.

Of interest to boaters will be the launching of the NavStar system. The 18 satellites, when in full operation in 1988, will be even greater aids to navigation than the Loran system currently used.

Also next year, a probe, Galileo, will be launched to Jupiter. Galileo will orbit the gas giant and release instruments into its atmosphere.

Halley's Comet has sparked the interest of astronomers in this and other countries. The European space agency, Japan and the Soviet Union will have units in place to study the comet during its trip past earth.

Upcoming classes by the Department of Community Education include "The Solar System — Part II" which will be talk about passage of Halley's Comet as well as some information about Edmond Halley as well. Call the department at 343-2178 for space availability.

This fall's public star program is "Strangers Around the Sun," repeated every Tuesday from Nov. 5 to Dec. 10 at 7:30 p.m. The program will talk about asteroids, meteoroids and other bits of space "garbage."

Programs and dates of public observation sessions of the comet will be on Halley's Hotline, a recorded message that will run from 3:30 p.m. to 7:30 a.m. at 343-2289. Telescopes will be available at the high school for these viewing sessions, weather permitting, Skonieczny says.

And, just in case, the comet's name is pronounced "Hal-ee," not "Hay-lee," Skonieczny says. One of Halley's contemporaries was Isaac Newton, who used to spell the astronomer's name Hawley at a time when names were often spelled phonetically, he adds.

Harbinger to host master class Oct. 26

Harbinger, Detroit's premier professional dance company, will host a master class with Chicago's Hubbard Street Dance Company.

Claire Bataille, lead dancer and original company member of the Broadway-style jazz ensemble, will teach the class on Saturday, Oct. 26 from 2 to 3 p.m.

Cost for the class will be $8 for participants, $5 for observers.

Harbinger's studio is located on the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College, Building J, Room 303. For more information, call 477-7014.

Correction

In last week's Page 3A article titled "Group's hopes for a home put on hold," the Grosse Pointe Historical Society was incorrectly called the Grosse Pointe Historical Commission.

Preparing for Michigan's 150th birthday

Eastern Michigan residents are invited to participate in planning for Michigan's 150th Birthday or Sesquicentennial, 8:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 26 at a public workshop at the Oakland University Conference Center in Rochester.

According to Secretary of State Richard H. Austin, this workshop is the third and last of the "Get Ready for Michigan's Birthday Party" regional meetings sponsored by the Michigan Historical Commission. Workshop topics include: Gaining Community Involvement; Publicizing and Promoting the Event; Museums, Markers, Books and Farms; Involving Your Community Allies; Involving the Schools; and Involving our Multi-ethnic Heritage.

At 2 p.m. that same day, the Michigan Sesquicentennial Commission will hold its second meeting of the year, also at the Conference Center.

Registration for the Historical Commission Day Workshop, which includes refreshments, lunch and a reception, is $20. Individuals may pre-register through Oct. 14, by sending a check or money order to the Michigan Sesquicentennial Foundation.

4 Locust Lane, Lansing, Mich. 48910. Questions about the conference can be directed to the Michigan Bureau of History at (517) 373-0515.

Although Michigan had taken all steps necessary to become a state in 1835, Congress withheld approval of statehood until 1837 when the disagreement between Michigan and Ohio over the Toledo Strip was settled by ceding the western Upper Peninsula to Michigan. The Sesquicentennial Commission was authorized by the Legislature this year to help celebrate 150 years of statehood.

LOW BACK PAIN

The most common cause of acute and chronic low back pain is due to subluxation of the spine. Subluxation is abnormal movement and alignment of the spinal vertebrae (bones) which eventually causes nerve pressure on spinal nerves.

The most common causes are long forgotten falls, bumps, or other accidents which over a period of time disturb the normal mechanical movement of the spine. The majority of low back problems develop over a period of months or years. Many times a simple movement such as raking the leaves can cause severe low back pain. This happens because the spine is not functioning properly and is susceptible to injury.

The doctor of chiropractic is a specialist in diagnosing and treating low back pain. Don't delay treatment when help is readily available.

Dennis Wholey opens SAC² season

By Mike Andrzejczyk

He stood at the front of the room, the collar of his light blue shirt tucked neatly inside his navy blue pullover and said, "Hi, I'm Dennis and I'm an alcoholic."

With that, Dennis Wholey, currently host of LateNight America, opened his hour-long talk to about 300 people in North's Performing Arts Center. Wholey's appearance kicked off a series of programs presented by the Substance Abuse Community Council.

Wholey's book, "The Courage to Change," is in its sixth printing and fifth month on the New York Times bestseller list. The book tells the story of 26 prominent alcoholics who talk about their disease.

"Alcoholics are good people. Alcoholics and addicts are very sick people," he told the audience. "They are good people who need to get well, not bad people who need to get good."

The perception of alcohol as a moral failing confined to winos stretched out in gutters is wrong, Wholey said. "Three percent of all alcoholics are on skid row; the other 97 percent are First Ladies, talk show hosts, doctors, lawyers

"Alcoholism is a disease," he added. "If we can't come to that acceptance, then we are in big trouble."

The reason for abuse is simple, he said. "Alcohol makes the addict temporarily feel good. If you use it long enough, then abuse it long enough, then you cross that imaginary line."

An alcoholic is also someone who, once he begins to drink, can't predict the number of drinks he will have, the amount of time he will spend drinking or his behavior after those drinks, Wholey said.

Wholey's father was an alcoholic and he eventually became one himself, spending 20 years in psychotherapy in search of what was wrong with his life, he told the audience.

"I even asked my therapist once, 'Am I an alcoholic?' I volunteered it," Wholey said. "He looked at me and said, 'No, I think the problem is deeper than that.'"

Denial is the key to the disease; denial of the sufferer, family members and the community, Wholey said.

There's a great deal of pressure in some communities to be a part of the culture, and a large part of that culture considers consuming alcohol to be socially acceptable, he said. "I've heard people say, 'Thank God he's only using alcohol and not drugs.'"

There is a predictable pattern to addiction, Wholey said. There is joy at use, frequency, tolerance and then pain.

"No alcoholic, no addict, ever stopped drinking until they hit the pain stage," Wholey said. "If we can force the alcoholic, the addict, to feel that pain by not trying to rescue them, not cutting deals, not trying to save the situation, that will force the alcoholic to start the process of getting better."

To help, a person has to break through the alcoholic's or addict's denial to force him to begin recovery, he said. And the best way to do that is to stop trying to save the situation.

"If the alcoholic drops something on the floor, leave it there for the

"By the time they're 18, the whole thing's over," he added.

There are only four outcomes of chemical dependency, Wholey said; death, insanity, jail and quitting. "The bright side... is the potential for recovery," he added.

"The person who has gone through the miasma of alcoholism and comes out on the other side cannot begin to describe for you the feeling of finally knowing what the hell was wrong with their lives for all those years," Wholey said.

Part of the problem is recognizing there is a problem, Wholey said. "The medical profession up to now has a terrible track record for diagnosing and treating alcoholics correctly," he said, adding facetiously that "one definition of an alcoholic is someone who drinks more than their doctor."

"Doctors have to learn to write the prescriptions for treatment centers," he added.

"This isn't important for my ego," Wholey said. "It is important that I have some information that I can pass on to you. It's on your shoulders now... to do something with in your home, in your community."

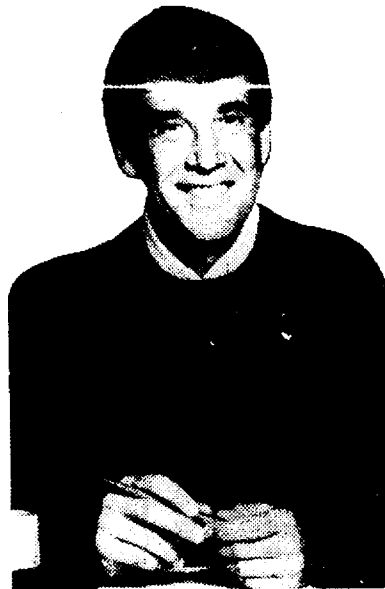

"You have to know this," he continued. "To wait for the alcoholic or the addict to ask for help is to help that person to die. To have awareness, to have knowledge and not to use it is immoral. To wait for them to ask for help is to help them die."

SAC² will present a series of speakers who will discuss different aspects of chemical dependency in the coming weeks. The programs will be held on Wednesday nights at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

"Family Reaction to Chemical Dependency" is the topic Oct. 23, while Oct. 30's topic will be "Adult Children of Alcoholics." "Adolescents in Turmoil; Signs and Symptoms, Treatment and Recovery" will be discussed Nov. 6, while "Intervention: A Loving Solution" is the topic Nov. 13.

The organization has thousands of pieces of educational literature available, including "How Do I Know? Where Do I Go?" which was distributed last week at Wholey's appearance.

The group's membership meetings are open to the public, and no dues are collected. Tax-deductible contributions may be made. To join, to make a donation, to get the group's newsletter or for other information, write SAC², P.O. Box 36150, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236.

alcoholic to pick up. And if the alcoholic drops on the floor, leave them there until they pick themselves up, and kick them on your way by," Wholey said.

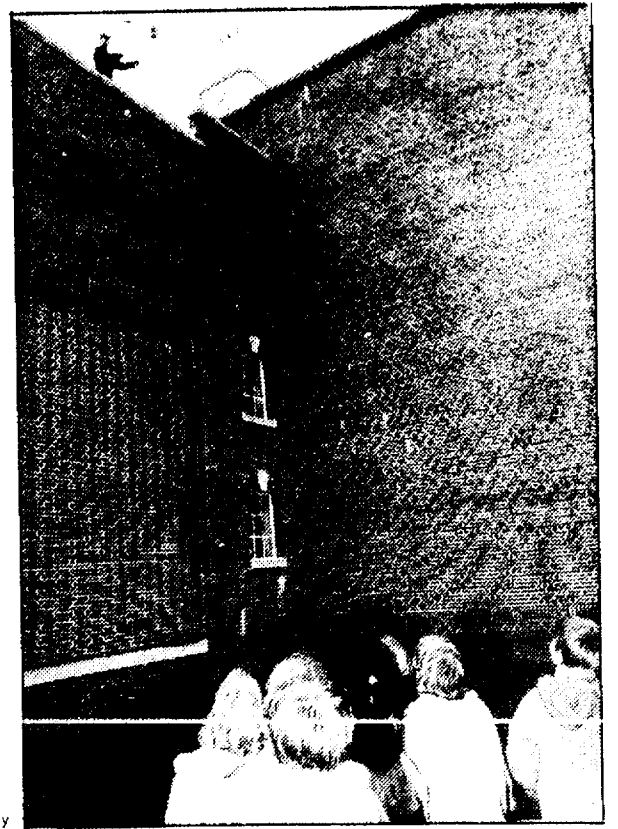

Intervention is the remedy, he said. Bringing together the significant people in a substance abuser's life and forcing that person to see the pain they are causing and see that their addiction is the cause of that pain can help bring that person closer to wanting to end the dependency.

For young people, the diseases of alcoholism and addiction are connected, Wholey said. "The reason young people have finished their drinking careers by the time they are able to legally buy a drink is because they mix with the chemistry."

Many young people today regularly consume alcohol and another drug, becoming quickly enveloped in the disease.

An eggs-acting project

Mason fifth-grade classes of Mike Dib and Ed Brock combined for a science and creative writing project Oct. 10 when youngsters designed and built containers to carry an egg safely to the ground after being dropped from the top of the school. Scrambled eggs or French toast weren't on the menu the next day either, because 31 of the 38 eggs making the plunge survived.

Learn how to make a gingerbread house in workshops

The Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice will sponsor "Make Your Own Gingerbread House" workshops. Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 7 p.m. and Wednesday, Nov. 20, at 1 p.m.

Participants will learn to roll and cut out dough, handle frosting bags and assemble and decorate a gingerbread house on a 10 inch x 10 inch base. Included in the $15 per person class fee are pieces for the house, the base, three hours of instruction, frosting and a storage box.

In addition to two workshops, groups of eight to 15 people may arrange for a separate workshop.

Volunteer gingerbread chairman Peg Upmeyer says that classes can be held at a group's regular meeting place at whatever time is convenient of the Inter-Faith Center's offices located on Maumee behind Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church.

To personalize the houses, small bags of assorted candies for trim and hand-molded chocolates in the shape of Santas, wreaths and snowmen will be available for purchase at the time of the workshops. Also available will be "theme" chocolates for those who would prefer to make a Cabbage Patch, Strawberry Shortcake, Mickey Mouse, Smurf, He-Man, Garfield or Raggedy Ann house.

For reservation information, call 882-6464. The Inter-Faith Center is a nonprofit organization which promotes racial understanding, confronts and challenges all forms of prejudice, and works toward equal opportunity for all regardless of race, sex or ethnic background.

Shores group completes first improvement phase

With the installation last month of entrance and exit signs in the village, the Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation has completed the first phase of its Lakeshore Road beautification.

The white signs with Old English script and the landscaping were completed the last week of September, when the south end sign was installed. The north end sign and landscaping was placed in the center median, while the south end sign was located on the easement between the lake and Lakeshore.

The second phase of its Lakeshore beautification will be the re-crowning and resodding of medians north of Vernier to Roslyn where the village has replaced curbs, according to foundation President Kurt O. Tech.

Above is one of the entrance signs to the village, the first phase of the Improvement Foundation's Lakeshore beautification project.

The village is on a five-year resurfacing plan for north Lakeshore, which it owns. The Shores will replace curbing along the medians in the first four years, with the fifth left for resurfacing.

Tech said the improvement foundation hopes to start beautification work south of Vernier Road in the coming year.

Lakeshore between the south village limits to Vernier Road is under the jurisdiction of Wayne County, complicating the permit process for work to be done in the medians there.

The foundation will also start its membership renewal drive. Currently, there are 400 families who have joined the foundation, Tech said. The goal for the coming year is 500.

"Currently, our membership represents 40 percent of the village's families," he said. "We are hoping to enroll more than 50 percent in our second year."

The improvement foundation was formed last year as a means for improving the village without increasing taxes. Other communities, like the Farms and Park, also have such foundations operating.

Under its articles of incorporation, the Shores foundation is "to be used to provide facilities and services primarily for the beautification... and upgrading of (the Shores') public grounds and facilities... perpetuation of memory of persons, preservation of objects of historical or natural interest and provide facilities and services for the village."

Biesteks will share Polish culture at Old World Market this weekend

By Elsa Frohman
Greg Biestek believes that preserving the culture of this nation's Polish immigrants is as important as preserving the history of the United States.
"It is as important to preserve this as it is to preserve Williamsburg," Greg said. "It is part of what it means to be an American. I'm not being loyal to two masters. I'm faithful to two mothers."
Greg, his mother, Christine Biestek, who is active in the Friends of Polish Art, and his grandmother, Helen Tutka, live together in Grosse Pointe Park. Greg is active in the Wisla Song and Dance Ensemble, which works to preserve the regional dances and costumes of Poland.
Greg and his mother are both involved in the International Institute Old World Market that will be held Thursday through Sunday, Oct. 17 to 20, at the International Institute in Detroit's cultural center.
The Wisla Song and Dance Ensemble will perform on Thursday evening at 8 p.m., one of many ethnic dance groups to entertain at the festival.

The Wisla Ensemble performs at ethnic festivals throughout Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. A full concert, which takes several hours, is performed one or two times a year.
The dancers wear authentic costumes that come from the regions of the dances performed, according to Greg. There are 54 identifiable regions in Poland, each with its own distinctive costume and dance. The Wisla Ensemble can perform dances from 17 of those regions, though the group is working to learn others.
Not so long ago, adding to the company's repertoire was a difficult process that involved traveling to Poland to consult with experts at the government-sponsored regional cultural centers.
"Before, you had to take three months and go to the region to study at the feet of the experts," Greg said. "Since 1978 it has been easier."

Greg got the idea while on a European trip of bringing the experts to the United States and holding a dance festival for all the Polish ethnic dance groups who wanted to participate. After convincing other dance enthusiasts to cooperate, the North American Folkdance Festival was born in 1978.
"From that, it has grown into an association of its own, meeting every year," he said. "They get together and bring in experts from all over the world. It is 10 days of intense learning, dancing and singing — 12 to 14 hours a day."
The difference between regions are quite distinct, Greg said. "Some areas are stately and elegant. Others are more lively."
As different as the dances are the costumes. Some are elegant outfits of velvet and satin. Others sport elaborate embroidery. A costume may cost anywhere from $100 to $500.

St. Ambrose Players will be 'Talking With' 11 women

By Elsa Frohman
"I fell in love with this play before I ever saw it," said Judy Jogan, director of the St. Ambrose Players upcoming production of "Talking With."
The play looks at 11 women facing crisis points in their lives. It will be performed on Oct. 25, 26 and 27 at the St. Ambrose Parish Hall on Maryland at the corner of Hampton in Grosse Pointe Park.
Jogan explained that "Talking With" is an unusual play that doesn't fit neatly into any particular category of drama. It consists of 11 women, each an individual, each giving a monologue about her life. There is no plot, no dramatic buildup, no big climax. The play simply examines how each of these women copes with the crisis in her life.
"I hesitate to call this a women's play," Jogan said. "My husband Bob is the producer. It's not all negative. There is a great deal of humor."
The play was first produced by the Louisville Regional Theatre where it was critically acclaimed. Jogan said she read a review of the production and knew she wanted to put the play on someday. It was several years before the play became available for amateur productions.
"At first I was drawn to the strange characters," Jogan said. "But after a while I started to like the normal ones too."
One of the highlights of the play is the monologue by a woman in a snake-handling cult, according to Jogan.
"She sits on stage with a snake in a box," Jogan said. "She talks about her loss of faith and how she came to understand that the snake-handling had nothing to do with God."
The part is played by Grosse Pointe Carol Mitchell, a psychologist by profession. Jogan said Mitchell found a relationship between the character and her work as a psychologist.
"We're using a real snake," Jogan said. "He is a python named Jonah." The snake was provided by the Living Science Foundation, a group that takes animals around Laurie, of "Clear Glass Marbles," and Big Eight, of "Rodeo" are two characters in "Talking With," the play to be performed by the St. Ambrose Players in October. Laurie, played by Mary Anne Mollinari, sees the marbles as representing the days of her mother's life. Big Eight, played by Nina Nord, is a woman in the male world of rodeo riding.

to elementary schools for science programs. Jonah is living with Jogan for the run of the play, though she regards her houseguest with something less than open hospitality.
Other highlights of the production include Nina Nord of Grosse Pointe Park as Big Eight, a woman rodeo rider, and Mary Anne Mollinari, as Laurie in a piece titled "Clear Glass Marbles."
Jogan said one factor that attracted her to the play was the fact that the cast is entirely female. While the St. Ambrose Players is a co-educational group, there are more women in the group than men and this play gives more of those (Continued on Page 4B)

Mary Jo Youngblood, left, and Jane Meade, co-chairman of "Games People Play," with the mini-van that will be offered at auction to benefit Children's Hospital of Michigan.

'Games People Play' is theme of Tennis and Crumpets action

The second annual "Games People Play," a benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan, will be held Friday, Oct. 25, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

"Games People Play" is an evening of fun and games, and a silent auction of items donated by area businesses and individuals. This year's top item is a 1986 white Dodge Caravan L.E. donated by Pointe Dodge, Inc. The auction is one of the many benefits sponsored by Tennis and Crumpets, Inc. for the hospital. Mrs. David S. Summers, founder of Tennis and Crumpets, Inc., is honorary chairman. Party co-chairman are Jane Meade and Mary Jo Youngblood.

Other items donated for this year's auction are an oil painting "Mother and Child," by T. Roish-oven, a sunset airplane ride for four with champagne served, and a weekend at the JJ Ranch resort. Additional trips, Waterford crystal, oriental rugs, and gourmet meals and wines are among items to be auctioned.

Proceeds from the auction will go toward the underwriting of a "YAG" laser machine for the hospital. This newer laser equipment will improve surgical techniques, reduce costs of hospitalization, and make a significant difference in the overall care of the children.

Admission to the auction is $25 per person and includes a buffet and open bar. Businesses or individuals wishing to donate items or would like additional information, should call "Auction Central" at 881-2286.

The couple honeymooned with a trip to the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania. They will live in Phoenix, Ariz.

Meier-Peck

Julie Ellen Meier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Page of Grosse Pointe Farms and John Lawrence Meier of Naples, Fla., and Thomas Murray Peck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Murray Peck of Syracuse, N.Y., were married on Aug. 9 at St. Augustine Cathedral in Kalamazoo.

The Rev. Robert Wyzgoski and the Rev. Donald Taylor officiated at the 7 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Holiday Inn West in Kalamazoo.

The bride wore a dress of white satin with an open sweetheart neckline and a bodice accented with lace and seed pearls. The full skirt was trimmed with lace appliques. The dress featured a cathedral-length train. She wore her sister's veil which fell from a headpiece of silk flowers. She carried a cascading bouquet of white sweetheart roses, lilies of the valley, baby's breath, stephanotis and aqua and white carnations.

The matron of honor was Mary Meier Dakin, sister of the bride. The maid of honor was Elisabeth Ann Meier, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Lorie Lynn Wolf, Joanne Leigh Reinstein, Pamela Dee Johnson and Ruth Ann Diebert. The flower girl was Erin Peck Malewicz, niece of the groom.

The bridesmaids wore full-length gowns of blue satin with spaghetti straps and gathered skirts. The dresses had matching, long-sleeved jackets.

The best man was Michael Paul Slazik. Ushers were Barry Joseph Peck, brother of the groom; John Patrick Meier, brother of the bride; Mark J. Lucas; Ronald Wayne Bramble; Thomas A. Michaels.

The mother of the bride wore a pink lace dress with an accordin pleated jacket. She wore a wrist corsage of white roses and stephanotis.

The mother of the groom wore a periwinkle blue lace dress with a matching jacket. She wore a wrist corsage of white roses and stephanotis.

The bride's brother-in-law, Charles Dakin, the bride's stepfather, James Page, and the groom's father, Howard Peck, gave readings during the ceremony.

The couple honeymooned with a trip to Hawaii and San Francisco. They will live in Kalamazoo.

Andreou-Van Osdol

Mary Allison Andreou, daughter of Mrs. Byron Andreou and the late Dr. Byron Andreou of Grosse Pointe Farms, and Paul Van Osdol, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Van Osdol of Grosse Pointe, were married on June 22 at St. Paul's Catholic Church.

Msgr. Francis X. Canfield officiated at the noon ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe Club. The bride was given away by her brother, Eric Byron Andreou. Special ethnic touches included Greek canapes.

desserts and bouzouki music by Elias Gitsas of Athens, Greece.

The bride wore a short-sleeved dress of antique silk and imported Belgian lace. The softly gathered skirt fell into a sweep train. Her veil was edged in matching lace. She wore a ring that was a child-

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Van Osdol hood gift from her father and a string of pearls that was a wedding gift from her parents. She carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and ivy.

The maid of honor was Jennifer Andreou, sister of the bride, Grosse Pointe Farms. Bridesmaids were Amy Andreou, sister of the bride; Margot Van Osdol, sister of the groom; and Annette Van Osdol, sister of the groom. All are of Grosse Pointe. They wore sky blue intermission-length gowns with short, puffed sleeves. They carried bouquets of daisies, bachelor buttons, baby's breath and yellow and pink freesias.

The best man was John Van Osdol, brother of the groom. Ushers were Mark Van Osdol, David Van Osdol, brothers of the groom; and Thomas Keating, cousin of the groom.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of rose embossed, cream silk with hand embroidery. She carried a purse corsage of gardenias.

The mother of the groom wore a soft pink dress with a jewel neckline and dirndl skirt. She also carried a purse corsage of gardenias.

The couple will make their home in North Andover, Mass.

Marlene and Robert Linthicum were honored by the congregation of the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church at a recent reception.

Linthicums honored for service to Woods Presbyterian Church

Following the 11 a.m. worship hour on Sunday, Sept. 29, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Robert C. Linthicum of the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church were honored at a farewell reception in the church's Rauth Fellowship Hall. Dr. Linthicum leaves his 10-year post as senior pastor to become associate director of Urban Ministry for World Vision, based in Los Angeles.

Besides her many responsibilities as pastor's wife, Mrs. Linthicum has taught in the early school of University-Liggett School.

The church's Women's Association and Mariners couples group planned and served the reception. The steering committee comprised Shirley Evans, Shirley Goolsby, Diane Heavner, Ardy Jones, and Jo Anne Spencer.

The gathering closed with the singing of "Blessing and Honor and Glory and Power," the hymn of Dr. Linthicum's seminary graduating class. Mrs. Linthicum will remain in Grosse Pointe for a few weeks before joining her husband in California. Dr. Linthicum left immediately following the Oct. 6 church service, which celebrated World Wide Communion and featured his final sermon, "Before You Into Galilee."

St. Ambrose Players...

women an opportunity to be on stage.

"Our group is open to the community," Jogan said. "One of the best things about our group is you could get a chance to be on stage the first time you show up. Six of the 11 members of the east (of 'Talking With') are new members."

The St. Ambrose Players was founded by two parish priests of St. Ambrose Parish in 1977. The Rev. Tom Krell and the Rev. Bob Ruedicelli are no longer with the parish, but the theater group is still going strong.

"We've done some wonderful big musicals," Jogan said. "We do a big one then several small ones."

This is the third production Jogan has directed.

"I enjoy the directing as much as being on stage," Jogan said.

"Talking With," will be performed at 8 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 25, and Saturday Oct. 26. The show will be at 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 27. The proceeds from tickets go to cover production costs as well as to support St. Ambrose Parish programs.

The $6 admission price includes the show as well as a wine and cheese reception afterwards. For further ticket information, call the parish at 822-2814.

"This is a wonderful play," Jogan said. "It takes 11 women and shows how they are starting to struggle and pulls out the commonness of human experience."

working at the Friends of Polish Art booth at the Old World Market. The booth will be selling Polish arts and crafts.

"I have always felt that I am a Polish-American," Greg said. "My parents came from Poland. I see no reason the two cultures can't melt together. I'm a better American because I preserve my background and heritage."

Greg traces his interest in his Polish heritage to a trip his family made to Europe when he was 11 years old.

"I was at an impressionable age and when I had seen what it was like in other countries, I came back with a warm feeling not only for the benefits and blessings of this country, but for the many freedoms we take for granted. I feel it is important to preserve such a fine old culture that has withstood so much. You can knock the Poles down but they never give up."

The Old World Market began during the depression as a way for new immigrants to make a little extra money selling their old world crafts. Today, the event has grown to be the ancestor of the Detroit ethnic festivals, and is the year-round effort of more than 200 volunteers headed by past presidents of the institute, Mrs. Hazel Boltwood of Southfield and Dr. Helen T. Suchara of Livonia.

Tickets to the Old World Market are $2 for adults, $1 for senior citizens and children. A family ticket is available in advance for $5, admitting two adults and up to three children. Arrangements for groups can be made in advance by calling 871-8600.

The Old World Market will be open Thursday through Saturday, 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday, 11 a.m. until 7 p.m. at the International Institute in Detroit's Cultural Center. Located at 111 East Kirby at John R, the International Institute is adjacent to the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Getting ready for the fashion show, mom, Katy Messacar, has her hair put up by Jacobson's stylist Deborah Pawlik, as her two children, Court, 7, and Jody, 4, look on. Mrs. Messacar is a member of the Bon Secours Assistance League, as well as a registered nurse at the hospital. Mother, son and daughter will be models in the show.

Fashion show to help hospital

The Bon Secours Assistance League and Jacobson's in Grosse Pointe are co-sponsoring an International Fashion Show and continental breakfast on Saturday, Oct. 26, at 9:30 a.m., in Jacobson's St. Clair Room. Proceeds from the fashion show will be used to purchase technical equipment for the pediatrics unit at Bon Secours Hospital.

Models will show Jacobson's fashions from several different countries for children, mothers and grandmothers. The mothers and grandmothers modeling are members of the Bon Secours Assistance League. They include: Mrs. Stuart Cammett, Mrs. Leo Kulka, Jr., Mrs. Hal Messacar, Mrs. Fred S. Neumann, Mrs. Peter Nowosielski, Mrs. Arthur Rohde, Mrs. James Shields, Mrs. Sheldon Smith, Mrs. Robert Wachter, and Mrs. Michael Wheeler.

Children who will be modeling are Jody and Court Messacar, Molly Mourad, Jenny and Katy Neumann, A.J. and Michael Rohde, Alyson Smith and Robin Wheeler.

Mrs. Fred S. Neumann and Mrs. John Hastings are co-chairing the International Fashion Show. Tickets are $10 each and available at the Bon Secours Hospital Gift Shop, from 10 a.m. to 7:45 p.m., weekdays. For more information, or to make reservations call 882-5270, or 881-6238. Jacobson's is located at 17000 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe, between Notre Dame and St. Clair Streets.

Kappa Kappa Gamma Alumnae activities planned

Fall abounds with activities for the women of the Detroit East Suburban Alumnae Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Oct. 15 found the Kappa's celebrating their 115th Anniversary with a dinner meeting at the home of Dotty Smith.

Program Chair Mary Harwood has planned a Nov. 7 visit to East Lansing, where the Kappas will lunch at the MSU Kappa Chapter House and visit an art gallery exhibiting the work of Lansing Kappa's Sally Swiss and Carolyn Hoagland.

Continuing support of the Detroit Rehabilitation Institute, a long time Kappa philanthropy, members travel to Rehab four times each year as they give birthday parties for the patients. On Nov. 12, Emily Moellering will host a workshop, at which birthday favors will be made for rehabilitation patients.

A theatre outing will be the focus on Nov. 20 when the Kappas lunch in the Fisher Building, then see West Side Story at the Michigan Opera Theater.

President Lee Miller will host an early Christmas Brunch and Boutique on Dec. 10 and will be joined by officers Betsy Boynton, executive vice president; Ann Clark, recording secretary; Kay Smith, corresponding secretary; and Dorothy Smith, treasurer; in addition to other interested Kappa's. Anyone wishing further information, or in making reservations for any of the above mentioned activities may call Hospitality Chair Jane Taylor at 884-8813.

Singles by the Lake

Singles by the Lake, a group for singles age 21-40, will have its Fall Dance Oct. 20 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. The doors open at 7:30 p.m. The dance starts at 8 p.m. Admission is $3. Proper attire is required.

Visit these holiday bazaars

Cottage Hospital Auxiliary Holiday Mart

The annual Holiday Mart sponsored by the Gift Shop Guild of the Cottage Hospital Auxiliary will be held on Saturday, Nov. 2, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Among the many items to be offered are small gifts, toys, jewelry, Christmas cards, stationery, baked goods and hand-made gifts.

First Lutheran Church Christmas Fair

The First Lutheran Church of Detroit will hold its annual Christmas Fair on Oct. 18 and 19 at the church on Cadieux Road between Mack and Warren from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

St. Isaac Jogues Craft Show

For the seventh year in a row, St. Isaac Jogues Women's Club will sponsor the largest craft show in the area. It will begin on Friday, Oct. 25 from noon until 8 p.m. and Saturday, Oct. 26, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The show will be held in the church hall which is located at 10 Mile Road, just west of Harper in St. Clair Shores.

Cabbage Patch clothes, stained glass and scrimshaw are just a few items in the wide variety of beautiful, handmade articles, holiday decorations and thoughtful gifts for giving that will be displayed.

Refreshments will be offered along with special raffles. Admission is 25 cents with proceeds for the benefit of Right-To-Life-Lifespan, Inc.

Cornucopia of Creations

The Ladies Tabernacle Society of Sacred Heart Church will host the fifth annual "Cornucopia of Creations" on Saturday, Oct. 26, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. In addition to the talents of more than 60 artists, the show will include a bake sale, raffle and luncheon.

Since the show is in late October, it is an opportunity for people to begin their holiday shopping and to enjoy viewing the talents of artisans displaying the gamut of fine crafts from goldsmithing to basketry.

One of the artists participating in this year's show is Joann Zachowski, a resident of Grosse Pointe who makes Teddy bears, hand-knitted sweaters, crocheted Victorian angels and quilts.

Pointe Book Club

The October meeting of the Pointe Book Club will be held Oct. 21 at the home of Mrs. Richard Mertz. The co-hostesses will be Mrs. William Baird and Mrs. John Zolad. Following the luncheon Mrs. George Johnson will review "With A Little Luck," by Helen E. Boehm.

Youth retreat held

Twenty seven junior and senior high youth from the Grosse Pointe Congregational and American Baptist Church went on a fall retreat Sept. 20-22, at the Lael Baptist Camp in Lapeer, Mich. They were accompanied by eight advisors under the leadership of Keith Harrington, the associate minister.

The theme of the retreat was "We Are Family" with a threefold focus of family discussed: 1) our natural families 2) family of friends 3) family of God and church.

The Pilgrim Fellowship youth group meets every Sunday evening in the youth room at the Grosse Pointe Congregational and American Baptist Church. The junior highs (Grades 6-8) meet at 5 p.m. and the senior highs (Grades 9-12) at 7:30 p.m.

Grosse Pointe Newcomers

Upland Hills Farm will be the setting for the Grosse Pointe Newcomers Club October party on Saturday, Oct. 19. Festivities will include a horse drawn hayride, roast beef dinner and square dancing. Bus transportation to Oxford, Mich., will be available at Grosse Pointe City's park at 6:30 p.m.

Party chairpersons Joe and Michelle Augustyn have been assisted by the planning committee members Don and Birdie Rice, Dave and Fran Miller, Jeff and Sue Neilson, and Kevin and Ellen Sullivan.

Anyone new to the Grosse Pointes in the last two years is welcome to join the Newcomers Club. For information call Jim and Lori Everett (882-4114) or Craig and Margit Jackson (884-2032).

Delta Kappa Gamma

The Beta Delta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International began its 1985-86 season with a dinner and fashion show narrated by Betty Magee, wardrobe planning manager at Hudson's Eastland.

Jean Wright, president of Beta Delta, welcomed the sharing of the event with members and guests of Alpha Mu and Beta Epsilon Chapters.

A presentation on "Stress" by Meeky Connolly was held at the home of Ruth Saur on Oct. 9.

Democratic chairman to speak

Richard N. Wiener, chairman of the Michigan Democratic Party, will speak to members and friends of the Grosse Pointe Democratic Club and the Grosse Pointe/East Side Democratic Women's Discussion Group on Monday, Oct. 21, at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, Maumee and St. Clair, Grosse Pointe. The meeting will begin with coffee at 7:30 p.m., with Wiener's discussion of changes for 1986 and 1988 "Learning how the Democratic Party Works Today" beginning at 8 p.m.

As state chair, Wiener has been credited with building an extensive computerized data base for the party and for raising more money than any previous chair. In 1985, he was elected to a two-year term as president of the Association of State Democratic Chairs.

Pear Tree Questers

The Pear Tree chapter of Questers 193 will gather on Thursday, Oct. 17, at 10 a.m. at the Central Grosse Pointe Library on Kercheval, in the Friends Room. The meeting will be hosted by Mrs. William Arpino. A paper will be presented on "Diamonds" by Mary Louise Teeg. A brief business meeting will follow the program. Officers for the 1985-86 year are: president, Mrs. Stefanovich; vice president, Mrs. John McLellan Jr.; secretary, Wanda Lee; treasurer, Mrs. Arnold Launs; historian and publicity, Mrs. William Arpino.

Pointe Garden Club

The Oct. 21st meeting of the Pointe Garden Club will be at the Balfour Road House of Mrs. Charles P. Lamb at noon. Assisting the hostess will be Mrs. Rollo Wilcoxon and Mrs. J. Lane Donovan.

The program will be "everything you always wanted to know about herbs," by Maggi Dull of Franklin, who not only grows herbs, but uses them in her diet, in crafts, in herbal wreaths and herb presentations.

Eastside Handweavers Guild

The monthly meeting of the Eastside Handweavers Guild, an association of persons involved in various fiber arts including weaving, spinning, and basketry, will be held on Monday, Oct. 21 at the Grosse Pointe Central Public Library.

Mrs. Eleanor Safford, an authority on antique handwoven coverlets who has catalogued the collection on early coverlets for the Henry Ford Museum, will present a lecture and slide show entitled "Early American Coverlets."

Refreshments and social hour begin at 7 p.m. with the program scheduled for 7:45 p.m. All persons interested in the fiber arts are welcome to attend. For further information call Sue Ellison at 881-2906 or Mary Leigh Herdegen at 882-2261.

GP Garden Club Council

The Grosse Pointe Garden Club Council will meet on Tuesday, Oct. 22 at the main library on Fisher Road. The meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. which will include all garden club presidents, representatives and members at large.

The officers and committee chairmen for 1985-86 are as follows: president, Mrs. James Sanford; vice president, Mrs. M. P. Wiant; recording secretary, Mrs. Carl Berndt; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert Krueger; Treasurer, Mrs. Henry Ledyard.

Directors: Mrs. Max Gardner, Mrs. Howard Harrison, Mrs. Eberhard Mammen.

Committee chairmen: conservation, Mrs. John Malcolm; garden tour, Mrs. David Lowe; historian, Mrs. Walter Bernard; nominating, Mrs. Amesberry Powell; planting, Mrs. James Gram and Mrs. Harry Carson; publicity, Mrs. Urban Borech; Shade Tree Council representative, Mrs. Richard Mertz; scholarships, Mrs. Kenneth Stekette and Christine Edwards.

Windmill Pointe Questers

Members of the Windmill Pointe Questers No. 385 will gather at the home of Mrs. Howard Harrison on Oct. 21. The coffee hour will be at 9:30 a.m. and a business meeting will follow conducted by Mrs. Carl Kosza, president.

The program for the day will be given by Mrs. Michael Brennan. She is a national officer of Questers, and holds the office of first vice president. Her lecture is on the subject of "How to Trace a Painting." She will explain how she started her collection of paintings and lithographs and how they can be traced.

General Josiah Hammar DAR

The General Josiah Hammar chapter of Grosse Pointe Park of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will celebrate its annual Birthday Party on Saturday, Oct. 19, at the Detroit Boat Club on Belle Isle, at 12:30 p.m.

Frances Bidwell of Detroit will be the co-hostess. Mrs. Virginia Snyder, holder of several degrees in the arts, and a member of the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Founders Society, will talk about, "Honoring Our Country through American Landscapes."

The DAR birthday guests will be: Mrs. James Richardson, Col. Joshua Howard chapter; Mrs. Frederick Heath, Elizabeth Cass chapter; Mrs. Alvin Shaffer, Ezra Parker chapter; Mrs. Bernard Seitz, Fort Pontchartrain chapter; Mrs. Robert Garner, John Sackett chapter; Mrs. George Edson, Louisa St. Clair chapter; Mrs. Willis Koeneke, Piety Hill chapter; Mrs. Niel Huard, Quakertown chapter; Mrs. Thomas McDonald, Sarah Ann Cochrane chapter; Mrs. Morley Foster, Three Flags chapter.

Alpha Xi Delta Alumnae

Lasagne and red wine will be featured at the first dinner-meeting of the season for Grosse Pointe and Macomb County Alpha Xi Delta Alumnae next Monday, Oct. 21, at 7 p.m. in the Merriweather Road home of Mrs. Arthur Leslie. Mrs. Richard Swinbank is co-hostess for the Italian-style dinner for which members are asked to bring their own place settings.

Mrs. Stephen Lyle, president, will officiate at the post-dinner business meeting, detailing the group's plans for the year.

Directories for this year will also be distributed at the meeting.

The dinner-meeting is open to all alumnae and collegiate members, who may call 977-3263 to make reservations.

Five Pointes Garden Club

The Five Pointes Garden Club will meet at 12:30 p.m., Monday, Oct. 21, for dessert at the north shore home of Mrs. Leonard H. Rochtes with Mrs. Leslie Jones assisting. The program will be given by Mrs. Helen Robert on "Flowers and Perfume."

Delta Delta Delta Alumnae

Members of the Grosse Pointe-Detroit chapter of Delta Delta Delta will gather at the home of Mrs. Sam Minella at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 17, for an October Craft Workshop.

There will be a brief business meeting in which progress on the fraternity's annual gift wrap sale will be discussed. The gift wrap sale benefits Children's Oncology Research. Paper is available for members and at the Sweater Shop in the Village and the Optical Library on the Hill.

Following the business meeting, the women will learn to make grapevine wreaths, courtesy of the Dried Flower. All area alumnae are invited to attend and may call co-hostess, Gail Mixa, at 884-3373 for further information.

Women's Connection

The Women's Connection of Grosse Pointe presents Dr. Pamela Collier, M.D., for the Thursday, Oct. 24, dinner program at a local private club. Collier is doctor of internal and adolescent medicine at Harper Hospital. Her special interest and concern is women's disorders. Her talk will cover topics such as, osteoporosis, women's depression, and pre-menstrual syndrome, in which she has done extensive research.

The evening is open to the public at a charge of $13 to members and $15 for non-members. The charge is $4 for the program only.

The deadline for reservations is Tuesday, Oct. 22. Socializing and dinner will be from 6 to 8 p.m., with the program following. For reservations and for information regarding location, etc., contact Anne Marie Laird, 331-1998.

TIMELESS WORK OF ART

On over two acres of breathtaking lawns and stately trees stands one of Grosse Pointe Farms most magnificent homes. Appealing to the discriminating homeowner, this architecturally beautiful Georgian residence is perfect for entertaining and gracious family living. Famous designer R. O. Derrick used classic Greek motifs to enhance the timeless and exceptional quality of handcrafted wood, stone and plaster. The present owners have combined every imaginable convenience to accentuate the livability of this truly fine home.

NEW ON THE MARKET!

You must see the contemporary interior to appreciate this charming house. You enter a quarry tiled foyer with a cathedral ceiling. The living room entry is flanked by beautiful wooden gates that formerly graced the G.M.C. board room. Loaded with unusual architectural detail, it also is made very private by the new fence surrounding the porch and deck. Three bedrooms and one and one half baths plus a studio apartment.

Immaculate and lovingly cared for, this brick Colonial has four bedrooms and two and one half baths plus a heated Florida room. Hardwood floors throughout. The new self-storing storms and screens save work and energy costs. The kitchen has an eating area, and there are plenty of closets. A great family home and well priced.

This perfectly symmetrical Colonial has a 30' living room, a 28' family room and a paneled library. The kitchen has brand new oak cabinets and Formica counter tops and a handy Jenn Aire grill in the breakfast room. The hard floors have been refinished and much, much more. A lot of house for the money, it has seven bedrooms and four and one half baths.

SEE THESE FINE HOUSES TODAY!

Magnificent classic Colonial located in the Farms. A well constructed house teeming with extra features: kitchen with sub zero refrigerator, built-in range and gas grill. Solid brass hardware, copper plumbing, timed sprinkler system. 20x40 heated pool, instant hot water and the crystal chandelier came from the N.Y. Worlds Fair. Five bedrooms and four and one half baths.

This may be the only house in Grosse Pointe sited on a hill top and designed to take every advantage of its unique location. This attractive French Normandy styled home features a master bedroom with a beamed cathedral ceiling and natural fireplace. The terraced yard is well planted with many trees for privacy. Located on Merriweather Road, you can't see it in the picture, so you will want to make an appointment.

Elizabeth Lesesne: Performing music from Austin, Texas to Grosse Pointe

By Elsa Frohman

When the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra opens its 33rd season on Oct. 27, the guest artist, Elizabeth Lesesne will be marking a very special homecoming.

Lesesne, a pianist who has studied at the Mozarteum Academy in Salzburg, Austria, and has performed in Taiwan and Japan, is a native Grosse Pointe and a graduate of University-Liggett School. This will be her first performance with the Grosse Pointe Symphony.

"I have heard of the Grosse Pointe Symphony every season," Lesesne said. "And they are improving every year. It's always more exciting to play in your hometown and it's nice to start out with a small orchestra."

Lesesne was speaking from Austin, Texas, where she is studying for a doctorate in music at the University of Texas. She also teaches piano at the university.

Elizabeth Lesesne, who is working on her doctorate of music at the University of Texas in Austin, will be the guest soloist with the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra at their opening concert on Oct. 27.

when she was 12 years old and studying under Gizi Szanto.

"It was then that I got interested in advancing more and more," she said. "But Mischa Kottler really got me interested in performing."

In addition to studying under Kottler, Lesesne has also taken master classes with Gary Graffman, John Browning and Andre Watts.

Lesesne made her performing debut in Grosse Pointe, but her music has taken her all over the world. In 1974, she was a soloist with the Detroit Symphony Youth Orchestra. In 1979, she played a Mozart concerto in the Mozart Festival in Salzburg, Austria.

Five years ago, Lesesne played a solo recital at the Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival at the War Memorial. She said she believes that this performance brought her to the attention of the Grosse Pointe Symphony, paving the way for the upcoming concert.

Lesesne's most far-flung performances were in the Orient in 1982 and 1983. She played at the Chinese Cultural University in Taipei, Taiwan; at Tunghai University, Taichung, Taiwan; and at the University of Kyoto, Kyoto, Japan.

"That was the best," she said. She said her reception in Taiwan and Japan was very different.

"In Japan, classical music is part of their popular music," she said. "But in Taiwan, they are sort of behind the time. In Taiwan, I was very nervous, but they loved my playing. They were crazy about it. They are not as intellectually knowledgeable about classical music." In Japan, she continued, her performance was at its best, though the Japanese are more critical of classical performers.

In 1983 and 1984, Lesesne played recitals in Michigan, Colorado, Florida and Ohio. Most recently she was a finalist in the Pearl Amster National Competition in Austin, Texas, where she played a Mozart concerto.

Her studies and work in Austin have brought special satisfactions. "I love it," she said. "I enjoy this school, especially because it is so performance oriented. Also, the weather is nice here. I'm an outdoor person."

As a piano teacher, Lesesne has had the opportunity to teach advanced students in Texas.

"I love to teach and it is more rewarding," she said.

In addition to her studies and her teaching, Lesesne has a part-time job at the Humanities Research Center of the university. She is organizing and re-arranging original manuscripts of works by Ravel and Debussy.

Lesesne is making a special trip home to play with the Grosse Pointe Symphony next week. She will arrive in town next Tuesday for rehearsals and leave Monday morning after the concert.

"I can't take too much time off," she said.

The season opening concert is titled "Americana," and will be held at the Parcels Auditorium, at 3:30 p.m. Lesesne will play the Gershwin Concerto in F for Piano and Orchestra. Tickets are $6 for adults and $3 for students. They are available at the door before the concert or by phone at 886-6244 in advance.

A meet-the-artist reception will immediately follow the concert.

The Grosse Pointe Symphony was founded by the late Thomas Nester, a violinist and Grosse Pointe realtor. There will be five concerts in 1985-86, beginning with the upcoming "Americana" concert.

The Grosse Pointe Symphony has been directed by Felix Resnick since 1959. He is also the assistant principal second violin with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

The program on Oct. 27 will include Barber's "Second Essay for Orchestra — Op. 17," Gershwin's "Concerto in F for Piano and Orchestra," Kay's "Western Symphony," and Gould's "American Salute."

Pointer of Interest

Lesesne chose the University of Texas for her advanced studies after she was offered a full scholarship. However, the school's emphasis on performing helped her make up her mind.

"I wouldn't be going here except that it's (the U of T) so performance oriented," Lesesne said. "The facilities here are excellent."

The facilities at the U of T include ample practice rooms, an important consideration for a music student. Lesesne found that those simple facilities were often in short supply at other universities with better known musical reputations.

Lesesne's musical background began when she was six years old and began to take piano lessons. However, her ambition to pursue the piano professionally began

Appetizers add creative flare to a gathering

Appetizers give the hostess full rein for her artistic and culinary abilities — creativity, imagination and ingenuity. Appetizers should be thoughtfully chosen for universal appeal, selective variety but should not be so abundant that they challenge the piece de resistance.

The following is a selection of appetizers from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budget-wise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

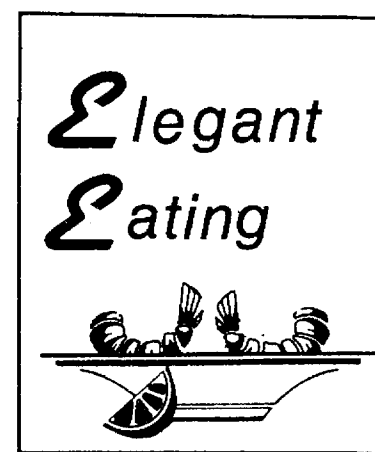

Appetizer Puffs

1/2 cup boiling water
1/4 cup oil
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 eggs, unbeaten
Heat oven to 400 degrees. Bring water to boil in sauce pan. Reduce heat to low. Add oil, salt and flour all at once. Cook, stirring vigorously until mixture leaves sides of pan and forms a compact ball. Remove from heat and cool mixture slightly. Add eggs, one at a time, beating hard after each addition until mixture is smooth and glossy. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake about 20 minutes until lightly puffed and browned. Cool and fill with Seafood Filling. Makes 30 to 35 puffs.

Calories 25 per puff. Cholesterol about 17 mgs. without filling.

Seafood Filling

1 cup flaked shrimp or crab meat
1/3 cup finely chopped celery
1 tsp. finely minced parsley
Few drops onion juice

2 Tbsp. salad dressing
1/4 tsp. curry powder (optional)
Combine ingredients. Refrigerate until ready to fill puffs. Should you prefer; tuna, salmon and ham fillings are equally delicious, or even a variety would add interest.

Filling about 10 calories per puff. Cholesterol: in Crab meat, 8 mgs; Shrimp, 5 mgs; Tuna, 3 mgs.

Norwegian Tidbits

Every cucumber lover goes into ecstasies over these luscious tidbits that can be made hours ahead and still stay crisp and crunchy.

3 or 4 small young cucumbers
1 tin (2 ounces) flat anchovies
2 pkgs. (3 ounces each) Neufchatel cheese
1 tsp. dill weed
1 tsp. shredded green onions
1 Tbsp. mayonnaise
2 dashes Tabasco sauce
Yogurt

Scrub cucumbers but do not peel. Cut off ends. Cut into one-inch lengths. Scoop out center seedy portion with sharp paring knife or grapefruit knife.

Drain anchovy fillets and chop finely. Mix together with Neufchatel cheese, dill weed, shredded green onions, and mayonnaise. Season with Tabasco and blend well.

Stuff mixture into cucumber sections. Chill for several hours. Just before serving, top each piece with small spoonful of yogurt. Sprinkle with chervil. Serve very cold. Makes about 24 pieces.

About 20 calories per piece. Cholesterol about 20 mgs.

Stuffed Snow Pea Pods

Pour boiling water over pea pods and let them sit for 30 seconds. Drain, rinse in cold water and drain well again. Refrigerate covered. Cut off the stem end diagonally. Fill pastry bag with cottage or Roquefort spread, using a very small tip; insert spread into pea pod. If spread is too heavy, thin with a little skim milk. Allow about one teaspoon of filling for each pod. Extremely low in calories with no cholesterol. These are so attractive with their bright green color that they really enhance any plate of hors d'oeuvres.

Cheese Stuffed Apples

4 medium red Delicious apples
3-oz. Neufchatel cheese, softened
1 Tbsp. dry white wine
1 (13 ounces) pkg. Camembert cheese
Wash and give the apples a very high polish. Core the apples and scoop out the insides until shell is about 1/2-inch thick. Beat the cheeses and wine with an electric beater until very smooth. Fill apple shells with cheese mixture; chill at least four hours. Cut into wedges. Makes 48 servings.

Calories per wedge about 11. Cholesterol about 8 mgs.

Walnut Zucchini Hors D'Oeuvres

1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts
1/4 cup bottled Italian dressing
1 can (6-1/2 ounces) tuna in water
1/4 tsp. thyme
1 pound zucchini (about 3 medium)
1 pkg. Neufchatel cheese
2 Tbsp. mayonnaise
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook and stir walnuts in one tablespoon of Italian salad dressing over medium heat until brown. Remove from heat. Stir in tuna which has been thoroughly drained. Add thyme.

Cut zucchini crosswise into 1/4-inch slices. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Top each slice with one teaspoon walnut tuna mixture.

Mix Neufchatel cheese with mayonnaise spoon into pastry tube fitted with small star tip. Make a rosette on top of each zucchini slice. Store covered in refrigerator for no more than two hours. Makes three to four dozen appetizers.

Calories per slice about 8. Cholesterol about 1 mg.

Variation: Cucumber slices may be substituted for zucchini.

Filled Edam Cheese

1 Edam cheese (about 1-3/4 pounds)
1/2 cup dry red wine
1 tsp. caraway seeds
1 tsp. dried minced herbs
1 tsp. dry mustard
1/2 cup evaporated skimmed milk

Let cheese stand at room temperature for at least one hour. Remove a slice about an inch thick from the top. With spoon scoop out cheese from slice and from shell keeping it intact. Refrigerate shell.

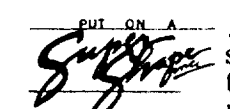

Grate cheese from scooped out shell on fine grater into medium bowl. Let stand until very soft. Add other ingredients and blend until fluffy. Fill cheese shell, mounding high. Cover with plastic wrap and then aluminum foil. Store in refrigerator. Will keep for several weeks. Let stand at room temperature for an hour or so before serving. Makes three cups.

Calories per teaspoon about 19. Cholesterol about 4 mgs.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

Making a list . . .

Halfway through the fall sports season and things are looking good. The Pointe's got an unbeaten football team, five teams ranked in the top 10 of their respective classes, the fish are jumpin' and the cotton is high. What more could we ask for? There's always something . . .

Things I'd like to see this fall:

South's gridders end up with a winning season.

Bishop Gallagher WIN a football game by one point in overtime, for a change.

North High finishing at 9-0 and somehow, beating the system and wiggling into the playoffs.

A videotape of the ULS-South girls' tennis match. Liggett switched playing dates on me and I missed it. It didn't make me feel any better to hear that it was one of the most exciting high school tennis matches in many years.

North, South and ULS stay right where they are in the state's top 10 — North No. 7 in swimming and No. 8 in cross country; South No. 1 in tennis, No. 2 in cross country and No. 9 in swimming; and ULS, No. 3 in tennis and No. 8 in soccer.

Things I hope I don't see again this fall:

Another injury like the one suffered by South High soccer defender Chris Eschenburg.

Any more 1-0 or 0-0 soccer games.

Newspaper stories about highly-ranked high school soccer teams in which players and coaches claim that a tie is just like a loss to them. Give me a break, will ya?

More than five minutes of a Detroit Lions game.

Yet another muddy football/soccer field like last Saturday's quagmire at North. Yuk.

A Red Wing game from the newly-created Row 45 in the upper corner of Joe Louis Arena. Did I say upper? Sir Edmund Hillary would have thought twice before scaling the heights I scaled in attending last week's hockey opener at JLA. And when I got up there, did I find a nice, comfortable seat waiting for me? Noooooooo. I found three new rows of "seating" — risers made of painted plywood upon which rested three rows of red metal folding chairs. The $8 seats were cleverly set at such an angle that the only view was of the backs of the heads of every person in rows 41 through 44.

They tell me I missed a pretty good hockey game. Who knows? But I did see some awfully cute hairstyles.

The photo in the Oct. 11 edition of Sports Illustrated showing the seven hockey free agents signed by pizza magnate Red Wing owner Mike Ilitch. The seven were posed in a Little Caesar's kitchen, wearing Caesar's uniforms and making pizza.

Any televised Toronto Maple Leafs hockey game.

The play in last week's baseball playoff game between St. Louis and Los Angeles where the St. Louis third baseman fired the ball toward the plate in an attempt to cut down the runner trying to score from third on a bunt. He would have got him, too, except that St. Louis pitcher John Tudor was dutifully trying to back up the throw and ran across the third base line. He backed it up all right . . . it hit him squarely on the tailbone, bounced away and the L.A. runner scored.

Things yet to come this fall:

The Tigers, pulling a bigger trade than Juan Berenguer-for-nobody. But then, kids make bigger bubblegum card trades than that one.

High school hockey practice, believe it or not.

The Detroit Lions, pulling off some highly improbable task like beating the San Francisco 49ers on Sunday. People will go bonkers, forgetting that this is the team that went belly-up against the Indianapolis Colts, the Green Bay Packers and the Redskins. Then the Lions will promptly go belly-up against Tampa Bay or somebody like that and things will get back to abnormal.

North will play South in football in November.

One team will win.

It'll either be North or South.

Which reminds me of the other thing I want to put on this list: I must remember to start practicing my nebulous answers in time to thoroughly confuse people who want me to pick a team in the annual Grosse Pointe gridiron clash. Who will it be, they'll say, North or South?

Yes.

Pointe marathon results

"... you really feel as though you've accomplished something."

By Peggy O'Connor

Grosse Pointe was cheering for "Dan" up at Mapleton and Kercheval, urging Gene and John on up on-the-Hill, flying the Farms Boat Club colors at the 16-mile mark aid station on Lakeshore and in general, giving the participants in last Sunday's eighth annual Detroit Free Press International Marathon a good, old Grosse Pointe welcome. As usual.

Oh, some things were different. Like radio station WCXI-FM camping out in front of the Grosse Pointe Central Library, dispensing free doughnuts and cider to all comers and blasting country music, of all things, into the warm, humid air. Then there was the earlier start of this year's marathon, which may have accounted for the noticeable lack in the throng that usually gathers at the Kerby Road turn, Kercheval on-the-Hill and on the road out of Grosse Pointe.

For attorney Ken Perry, 40, of Radnor Circle, it was all new and different. It was Perry's first marathon and he finished in a respectable 3:50:16. Not bad for a guy, who, a year ago, never dreamed he'd end up a marathon man.

Perry and his wife Claire were celebrating his 40th birthday with friends last March. One guest present asked Perry what his goal would be at reaching 40. "I had run a little bit, but I went ahead and told everybody I'd like to get serious about it and try for the marathon this year," Perry said.

He got very serious about it, running six days a week from 6 to 8:30 a.m. "Then he'd go to work, come home and eat dinner, offer to put the kids to bed . . . and then go to bed himself," Claire Perry remembered. "It was hard on us because we missed being around him, but we're proud of what he set out to do."

What Ken Perry had set out to do at turning 40 was to run for a friend — Pieter van Horne — who couldn't run. VanHorne is a victim of multiple sclerosis. Perry practiced nearly every day for six months, finished last Sunday's marathon, and collected $2,000 to benefit the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

"Pieter's disease changed my husband's life," Claire Perry said. "He saw his friend struck down at an early age and it really hit him. He wanted to do this for Pieter."

Perry was confident he'd finish. He joked that his fellow Grosse Pointe Methodist church members wouldn't have to attend services on Sunday if they pledged toward his run. And Pieter vanHorne's wife Priscilla promised a chocolate mousse cake if Perry finished. He got his cake.

He also got his own personal cheering section. Claire Perry ran a personal aid in the Oct. 10 Grosse Pointe News asking that folks come on down and cheer for her husband while he experienced his "mid-life crisis" — running the marathon.

"That was fantastic," Perry said. "I did it for Pieter and it was great to have him there, cheering me on. I took him down to the pre-race activities and he really got into it."

Claire Perry was at the Renaissance Center to greet her husband as he emerged from the Windsor Tunnel and hurried over to Belle Isle to greet him at the finish. The Perry's children, Katie, 10, Kasey, 7, and Kristen, 3, were also on hand, as were the vanHornes and plenty of others who had read the ad.

"I'm very pleased with the outcome of the race," Perry said. "I knew I could finish. I just couldn't keep up the pace I'd been at — 8½ minutes per mile. The first 20 miles were easy, but I realized in the last 10 miles that I'd have to go a little slower. I never walked though, I was able to keep running."

"And other than a sore tendon in my right leg, I feel pretty good."

Good enough to keep on running . . . even in next year's marathon. Which may or may not be good news to Claire Perry, who put up with her husband's early morning jogs, his getting lost while running on vacation in Vancouver and his hectic running/work schedule.

"I think I'll keep running, much to Claire's chagrin," Perry laughs. "It was such a unique experience. You really feel as though you've accomplished something. It's very emotional, very moving to set a goal like this one and be able to achieve it."

Lem Barney football camp is set

Former All-Pro Detroit Lion Hall of Famer Lem Barney will conduct youth football camps in the Detroit area this fall. Sponsored by Michigan, the football camps are free and open to young gridiron enthusiasts between 9 and 16.

The program is also run with the help of the Detroit Recreation Department and is designed to help young people develop the proper skills and attitude for playing football.

The eastside clinic will run from 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct.

Drop-in racquetball

The St. Clair Shores Civic Arena is offering Drop-in Racquetball this fall. Courts not reserved are available on a first come, first served basis. Court times may be reserved by calling 779-4300 for courts A and B; there will also be one challenge court available. Drop-in racquetball began Oct. 1.

Court fees are $8 per hour in prime time; challenge court is $2 per game. The Civic Arena is located at 20000 Stephens in St. Clair Shores.

24, at Heilmann Recreational Center, 19601 Crusade, near Moross Rd. The camps emphasize five basic areas: quarterback, pass receivers, running backs, wide receivers and defensive backs. No equipment will be required; no contact or hitting will be permitted. Discussion of proper exercise, nutrition and mental preparedness will be included in the sessions. Reservations are not necessary and parents are welcome to watch. Each participant will be given a free Lem Barney T-shirt.

South sports

South's No. 1 netters do it again

If tennis fans were looking for surprises in last week's girls' tennis regionals, they had to look somewhere besides the Class A regionals at Mount Clemens.

That's because South High won the regionals, swept all seven flights and beat crosstown rival North High ... all for the third straight year. South finished with 28 points, North had 18 and Port Huron Northern, 16.

"We thought that was about the way things would happen," said coach Stephanie Prychitko. "We'd seen both teams before, but there was a player we hadn't seen — a little freshman — and she gave us a good match."

Courtenay Kotas beat Chippewa Valley's Alicia Leone, 6-2, 6-4, to take the regional title at No. 1 singles. No. 2 Cathy Wachter beat Port Huron Northern's Kristy Card, 6-3, 6-3, and her sister Mary Wachter defeated North High's Lynda Rayos, 6-0, 6-2, for the No. 3 singles title. At No. 4 singles, Katy Turner topped Northern's Amy Kettlewell, 6-0, 6-0.

In doubles, Noel Berry and Sarah Mayer edged North High's Beth Keys and Nicole Lehman, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1, for the No. 1 title. Anne Nicholson and Susy Ingrao beat North's Andrea Thomas and Christine Biretta, 6-1, 6-1, at No. 2 doubles and Meg Peterson and Kathy Rajt defeated North's Kristin Deister and Heather MacDonald, 7-5, 6-0, at No. 3.

South travels to Midland this Friday and Saturday, Oct. 18 and 19, to challenge for its 10th consecutive Class A state title. South enters this season's state finals ranked No. 1 in both Class A and in the state's overall top 10 rankings. North, after finishing second in the regionals, will also enter state finals competition this weekend.

"The girls are playing well ... I hope they stay that way," Prychitko said. And no, they aren't worried about the "pressure" of keeping their state championship string alive.

A playoff win

South High varsity soccer coach John Case knew from the very beginning of the season that rival North High would pose one of the biggest problems for his Blue Devils this year. And if he wasn't convinced by North's 3-0 defeat of South on Sept. 17, or South's struggle to take a brilliant 1-0 win in the rematch on Oct. 8, he certainly had to be after South needed a double overtime and a double shootout round to defeat the Norsemen, 5-4, in state playoff competition last weekend.

Case, like most area coaches, doesn't like the shootouts which are used to determine a victor after double overtimes don't do it.

"I always feel that is a bad finish to a game. I'd rather just see the game played over," he said. "Particularly when it's such a well-played game as this one was."

North and South battled for three hours before settling it with a shootout. "It is unfortunate that such a good match-up was made so early in the playoffs. We expected a difficult game from North and we got it," Case added.

South got goals from goalie Eric Restum (in the shootout), from senior captain P.J. Imesch and from Steve Trowern, Bill Thompson and Rudy Cruz.

"It was a miserable day, weatherwise, but an excellent game. A defensive game, really. The game was played mostly between the 18 yardlines and there weren't many shots on goal," Case said. There were close calls for both teams, with South's Restum topping a North penalty kick late in the contest and South's Mark Kaczmar hitting the North upright with little time left.

The Blue Devils were to continue state play against highly-rated Chippewa Valley on Oct. 15 (after press time).

In earlier action last week, South defeated Roseville Brablec, 4-0. Cruz, Kaczmar and Jeff Lefebvre (two) were the goal scorers; assists went to Cruz (two), Imesch and Kaczmar. On Oct. 10, South tied Warren Fitzgerald, 1-1, as Jerry Joliet scored to counter a goal scored inadvertently by the Blue Devil defense.

South cc team at 11-0

South High's girls' cross country team improved its dual meet record to 11-0 with a 15-46 win over North last week. Eleven of the top 15 runners through the finish line were from South, including the top five place finishers.

South's Nancy Solterisch finished first, followed by teammates Ellen Mayer, Micha Song, Toni Tedesco and Wendy Berger. Others performing well for South included Megan Smucker (7th), Kelly Riehl (10th), Rebecca Wasinger (12th), Jenny McSorley (13th), Raquel Chapin (14th) and Mary Beth Hicks (15th).

On Tuesday, Oct. 22, South will complete the regular dual meet season against Port Huron. A win will earn the Blue Devils their seventh straight Eastern Michigan League title.

Boys unbeaten, too

South's boys' cross country team ran its dual meet record to 4-0 with a victory over East Detroit, 21-40. Senior Kyle Anderson led the way, taking the lead for good at the mile mark. Junior Kevin English was second and South ended up taking eight of the first 10 places. Sophomore David Sultzman and senior John Saad ran well.

Gridders shock Port Huron

South High handed Port Huron its first league loss of the season, beating the Big Red, 12-9, in a steady rain at South High's field last Saturday.

Sophomore quarterback Roger Hunwick tossed a 12-yard pass to Dave Arnold to give South the lead and the victory.

East Detroit and Port Huron are tied for second place in the Eastern Michigan League with 4-1 records. South is 3-2 in the EML and is scheduled to host Mount Clemens in the annual homecoming game at 1:30 p.m. this Saturday, Oct. 19.

Big win for girls

South's girls' varsity basketball team was 1-1 against the top teams in the EML last week. The girls surprised Mount Clemens, 42-37, before falling to tough Anchor Bay, 59-32.

Against Mount Clemens, South was 16 points down with 3½ minutes left in the third quarter and outscored the Bathers, 20-4, in the fourth period to take the win.

"It was a good effort ... they played very well," said coach Peggy Van Eckoute. "The girls were especially excited because they hadn't beaten Mount Clemens for a long time." Carmina Amezcua led South with 12 points and 6 steals. Patty Hess had 8 points.

It was a different story against Anchor Bay ... and the 59-32 final pretty much describes it. "That was one of those games you just don't discuss," Van Eckoute laughed. "The key to the game was our mistakes. Anchor Bay pressed us the whole game and we succumbed to the press and threw the ball away."

Heidi Albrecht led Blue Devils scorers with 15 points.

South played Port Huron Northern on Tuesday (after press time) and will host Roseville tonight, Oct. 17, at 6 p.m.

South's JV basketball team improved its record to 6-2, (3-0 in the EML) with a 29-27 win over Mount Clemens and a 44-40 victory over Anchor Bay last week.

Four girls had 5 points apiece as South got balanced scoring against Mount Clemens. Barb Denler had 13 rebounds and Chris Schulte pulled down 11 for the Devils. Against Anchor Bay, Denler had 10 points and 7 steals, Patty Pentacost and Schulte had 8 points each and Megan Keller chipped with 10 rebounds.

South's freshman team was 3-3 after beating Centerline, 29-5, recently. The frosh set a school record by holding Centerline to just one point through three quarters. South's other victories this season were over East Detroit Kelly, 36-13, and L'Anse Creuse, 31-23.

Heather Adragna and Kathy McGrath were South's top scorers through the Centerline game, with 52 and 37 points. Laura DeMercurio and Amy Steben had 14 points each.

The Devils have averaged 45 rebounds per game, thanks to Maya Davis, Sarah Heck, Leigh Leonard, Sarah Verlinden and Marlina Wilcher. On offense, the frosh are averaging 30 points per game behind the play of guards Lorrie Geist, Megan Nelson, Lori VanTassel and Heather Hunwick.

For stamp collectors

October is National Stamp Collecting Month and the observance for 1985 will focus on stamps as "Treasures Worth Rediscovering ... and Sharing."

The Postal Service, the Council of Philatelic Organizations and numerous other community groups will be participating in nationwide activities focusing on the social, cultural and educational benefits of stamp collecting, an activity enjoyed by an estimated 22 million Americans.

Local post offices, stamp clubs and stamp dealers will be sponsoring activities highlighting stamps and stamp collecting throughout October.

Star of the Sea's varsity cagers win pair

The varsity basketball team at Our Lady Star of the Sea High School improved its league record to 3-2 with two victories last week. The Tunas are 3-5 overall.

Star came back in the last two minutes to take a narrow, 32-30 win over St. Clement on Oct. 8. Kelly Kiefer was the game's top scorer with 12 points. Coach Kathy Merony called the effort one of the Star's best this season.

"Our starters played an exceptional game ... both on offense and defense. I think it was our press that won it for us," Merony said.

On Oct. 10, Star topped St. Anne's of Warren, 40-37. Clutch free throws were the margin of victory in this league contest, Merony said. Beth Allor was Star's leading scorer with 19 points, including five out of eight free throws in the fourth quarter alone.

The Tunas will play St. Florian tonight, Oct. 17, in Hamtramck. "It will be a tough one," Merony said. "They beat us the first time we played them and we hope to rebound and come back and get them."

Great Lakes Yacht Club sails into fall

The Great Lakes Yacht Club kicked off its fall sailing series Sept. 29. Following are the top three finishers in each division.

PHRF A: Sure, Naples; Absolut, Nilstoft; Tigress, Niederbuhl.

PHRF B: 007, Kraft; Plexus, Higgins; More Trauma, Goran.

Blue Image, Darnell; Triple Play, Francis.

PHRF D: Harlequin, Duker, Shenanigans, Connolly; Red Light District, Naebers.

PHRF A: Sure, Naples; Nix, Nixon; Natural High, Hall.

Basketball sign-up set at St. Clare

St. Clare will conduct registration for parish students interested in joining basketball or cheerleading on Tuesday, Oct. 22, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in the St. Clare gym.

St. Paul School honors athletes

St. Paul School's annual Fall Sports Award Night is set for Wednesday, Oct. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria. The school's athletic association will honor the boys' and girls' soccer players and the girls' tennis team. Light refreshments will be served.

Last chance for 'Last Chance'

Last Chance, the over 30 "old-timers" soccer team comprised of coaches and former players from North High, South High and University Liggett School, will play its last home game of the season this Sunday, Oct. 20, at 1 p.m. at Elworthy Field.

Coach John Case invites alumni from all three schools to come on out and watch the undefeated, first place oldtimers in action.

ral years as a club team, the College of Wooster's Scotties will compete at the varsity level this year as a member of the North Coast Athletic Conference.

The Last Chance Old Timers, an over 30 soccer team made up of Grosse Pointe soccer coaches and players, remained undefeated, beating Brighton, 4-1 on Oct. 6. The squad, coached by South varsity coach John Case, is in first place in its league.

Peter Bolos, 72, of the Park, who began running a few months ago, entered the Lions Club-East Warren Friendship Run on Sept. 22. And won. Bolos finished first in the 65 and over division of the 6.2 mile event, averaging about 9½ minutes per mile, he says, in his first running competition.

Marc Tirikian, a high school All-American in soccer while at North High, continues his domination of the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Tirikian, a sophomore forward on the Kalamazoo College men's team, scored 10 goals in the Hornets' 20-0 win over Olivet College on Oct. 5. Tirikian's effort set a new school and MIAA record; he had 24 goals in eight games. In 1984, Tirikian was team MVP and high scorer, a member of the All-MIAA team and the only first-year player to be a member of the NCAA Division III All-Mideast squad.

'Invasion U.S.A.' is shoot-'em-up action film

By Marian Trainor

In the opening scenes of "Invasion U.S.A.," a boatload of Cuban refugees are gunned down in high seas by a Darth Vader-type character, Rostov (Richard Lunn). He is posing as a captain of a U.S. rescue ship. This sidebar of violence is just for openers, a prelude to the real action that erupts on the screen from then on in.

Rostov is a man with a mission. He is out to destroy the soft decadent Americans. "They don't understand the nature of their own freedom," he sneers.

To this end, he gathers up an army of international terrorists and mercenaries to launch the first successful invasion of the United States since the British made a try in the War of 1812.

His army lands on the outskirts of Miami fully equipped with all sorts of lethal war weapons and then they take off in armored trucks across the country in a series of terrorist acts.

Their first stop is a typical upper-level suburb. It is Christmas Eve. Families are decorating trees and children are bubbling with anticipation. The villains pull up, guns blazing. They finish off the job by tossing grenades and blowing up the homes.

Another stop is a young people's banquet. This time they arrive in a police car and re-enact the same scene. When the local police come, the survivors stone them and drive them away because they think they too are driving a death car. It is a clever play that sets the people against the authorities trying to protect them. And so it goes, across the nation, uncontained violence, helpless authorities. A pretty scary proposition.

But never fear. Back at the ranch — make that swamplands — is Matt Hunter (Chuck Norris), a United States intelligence agent and a man to be reckoned with.

Rostov for all his cunning and meanness fears Hunter. They are adversaries. Rostov's previous encounters with Hunter have not been good. Consequently, he is so paranoid about Hunter that he allows his determination to get rid of him, undermine his mission to take over the country.

When Hunter is urged by the CIA to wipe out the terror and return the country to order, he refuses because he had been ordered to spare Rostov when he had him cornered on a past assignment. But when Rostov launches a personal invasion on him, shooting and blowing up everything in sight, Hunter takes charge of the situation. He becomes a one-man army and the action really takes off as Hunter shows up to thwart Rostov's group at every turn.

While Hunter wins some, he also loses some. In a final effort to wipe out the invaders, a master plan is drawn up that brings Hunter and Rostov together in a last-ditch showdown. As they stalk each other in an abandoned government building, the suspense mounts as scenes switch from the battle going on outside between the National Guard and Rostov's army.

This is a shoot 'em up action film with an undertone of social comment, the message being that America needs to toughen up its muscles and return to the ideals of conservatism.

Chuck is a formidable Matt Hunter. The piercing eyes, the confident strut, the fearless air that served him so well in "Missing in Action," "Missing in Action 2" and "Code of Silence" makes him a believable modern-day Superman.

"Invasion U.S.A." is comic book fare, but escape movies, like escape reading, are fun. Besides it's reassuring to fantasize that when danger strikes somewhere out there — in the west, in outer space, in the swamplands — there is a hero of epic proportion waiting to come to the rescue.

'Plenty' commands interest

By Marian Trainor

It is very difficult to like Susan Traherne (Meryl Streep), the be-deviled protagonist of the riveting yet disturbing film, "Plenty."

Her beleaguered husband Raymond Brock (Charles Dance) finally tells her after being driven to desperation by her antics, "You have changed nothing, but you have destroyed all who have been unfortunate enough to be associated with you."

When we first meet Susan, she is working with the French Resistance. The opening scenes are pure cinematic splendor as parachutes drop from the sky into the field. The romance of that scene is not lost on Susan. It is a high point in her life only matched by one great moment of idealistic passion with an exhausted soldier-hero. It is a moment that gives her purpose and a fury that sustains and destroys her life.

She is lost in a post-war world which to her has lost its purpose and idealism. She refuses to come to any terms with it.

The problem is that while Susan is looking at the big picture, she is working havoc on those around her with her restless search for her place in the universe. She is as troubled as the troubled world about her. She rails against Britain's aggressive stance in the Suez Canal incident as a sign of the decline of the British empire, but destroys that part of British control over which she has some influence, her husband's career as a diplomat.

It is not a fortuitous marriage. Raymond is attracted by Susan's spontaneity. Driven to despair as a woman who wants to change everything but doesn't know how, Susan turns to Raymond as a refuge.

But she doesn't change and he cannot. Diplomacy is his life. Truth and change is hers. Raymonds puts up with her destructive outbursts, but at the same time he is working to draw her into his world where affairs are settled quietly without disruption no matter what the price.

In an explosive scene, after she has disgraced him at the embassy, Raymond loses his composure. But he doesn't give up. At the end of his tirade, he shouts that he will win in the end, but it doesn't work. She deserts him.

Streep is splendid as the angry, idealistic, neurotic and imperious Susan. She is commanding in her close-up scenes which not only focus on beauty but also display her power of expressing her mood with facial expression.

Streep is supported by an outstanding cast. Dance as the patient, long-suffering husband, who is determined to subtly, without confrontation, convert Susan is notable for his cool manner.

Alice Park (Tracy Ullman), Susan's bohemian friend, turns in a radiant, happy performance. She adds a light touch to the often dark and brooding story.

Alice's friend, Nick (Sting), is impressive as the lower class candidate chosen by Susan to father her child. As they plan the procedure, Nick remarks that she wants control of everything, to which Susan replies "If I could do it my way, I'd do it alone."

Another role which adds to the film is played by John Gielgud. As Sir Leonard Darwin, he is the prototype of the unbending diplomat, who, if there is a crack in the structure, doesn't want to know it.

It wouldn't be Gielgud if he didn't have some dry, witty remarks to work with. When he hears of Britain's stance in the Suez Canal, he says, "When the British are the cowboys, then in truth I fear for the future of the globe."

A high-tension scene between Susan and Sir Andrew Charleson (Ian McKellen), Foreign Service head of personnel, gives him an opportunity to show his talent at its best when he tells her, "You have met your match."

Towards the end of the film Susan meets Lazar (Sam Neil) again. Unlike her he has abandoned hope and has settled for convention.

We leave Susan as we found her, in France posed against a scene of pastoral beauty. Where she does from here is up to the viewer to guess. Whether she can accept the peace that surrounds her, we don't know. Somehow we feel she doesn't deserve it.

Fred Schepisi asks much of the audience. "Plenty" is not a neatly segmented story. It begins in World War II and jumps to a period 20 years later without much warning. We are likewise transported to Jordan. We surmise without being told that Susan symbolizes the decline of the British empire. Nevertheless "Plenty" is a powerful drama commanding interest with its surprising edges, dark corners and pinpricks of humor.

Music in the Glen

... an evening of traditional Irish entertainment, will be presented at Orchestra Hall Friday, Oct. 18, at 7:30 p.m. It will consist of music, singing, storytelling and dancing. The musicians and entertainers come from all four provinces of Ireland. Admission is $10 for adults and $8 for senior citizens and children. For information, call the box office at 833-3700.

Symphony to open 24th season

The Lake St. Clair Symphony Orchestra, formerly the St. Clair Shores Symphony, will open its 24th season Saturday, Oct. 26. The symphony is under the direction of Michael Krajewski, with Associate Conductor Charles Greenwell of WQRS-FM radio.

The concert will be held at 8 p.m. in the R.H. Schaublin Auditorium of Lakeview High School, 21100 11 Mile Road, St. Clair Shores.

Guest artist will be violinist

Misha Rachlevsky, founder and director of Renaissance Concerts, Inc., parent organization of the Renaissance City Chamber Players. Maestro Rachlevsky will perform Beethoven's "Violin Concerto in D Major" with the orchestra.

Tickets are $6 for adults and $5 for senior citizens and students. They may be purchased at the door or in advance at the symphony office, 27601 Jefferson, St. Clair Shores. For additional information, call 776-1012.

Travel series to begin fourth year

Kenard Lawrence, coordinator of The World Adventure Series at The Detroit Institute of Arts, said that the re-instated World Adventure Series TV show has been renewed. It will begin its fourth year on WTVS, Channel 56, Saturday, Oct. 20.

The one-hour program is an outgrowth of the "George Pierrot Show" that was telecast every night of the week for 25 years before being taken off seven years ago. The new show will be the same format, but without commercials, as veteran traveler cinematographers will present their filmed adventures with live narration.

The old comic strip character Flash Gordon fictionally went to school at Yale and played polo.

VA facts

Q — I am in the process of filing a claim with the VA and want to be represented by a veterans service organization. May I have more than one service organization represent me at the same time?

Q — How can I change the beneficiary of my VA life insurance?

A — Changes in beneficiaries must be provided to the VA in writing. Your nearest VA office can assist you.

Q — How often is disability compensation increased?

A — Monetary rates of compensation require Congressional action and the signature of the President.

International chorus auditions

The International Institute will hold auditions for an International Chorus on Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 21 and 22, 3 to 7:30 p.m. Both foreign language and English songs will be featured.

Dale Voelker, director of the new chorus, will audition both ethnic representatives and Americans at 15-minute intervals in the Hall of Nations at The International Institute, 111 East Kirby, Detroit.

"The chorus will provide about 40 people the opportunity to participate in a rewarding ethnic experience," said Mary Ball, executive director. "Dr. Voelker will teach the foreign language songs through phonetics, so no foreign language training is necessary to participate."

The International Chorus will perform patriotic and foreign language songs on Noel Night, Wednesday, Dec. 11, for senior citizen groups, at city schools and at the Joe Louis Arena. Rehearsals will be held on Tuesdays from 6 to 8 p.m.

Voelker is the former director of choral activities at the University of Central Florida and middle Tennessee State University.

To schedule an audition, call the institute during business hours at 871-8600.

More classes start this week

Opportunities for leisure-time learning for adults continue in October with classes and activities scheduled by the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe public school system.

Scheduled to begin today, Thursday, Oct. 17, are four offerings, including three single-session activities: "Charity Sucek Presents Highlights of Spanish Cuisine," "Amazon Adventure," and "Grosse Pointe: What's In A Name?" Also offered is "Chorale for Adults."

Adult classes scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 19, include "Organize Your Goals," "Learn to Think and Act Positively," "Resume and Interview: Success or Stress," "Sweatshirt Design," "Charity Sucek Presents a Holiday dinner," "Tour of Dynamic Detroit," "Racewalking Seminar" and "In Search of Excellence."

Five classes scheduled for Monday, Oct. 21, include "Vital Options Exercise," "Computers: Introduction to Pascal," and three single-session offerings "Ask the Doctor: Premenstrual Syndrome," "Stencing," and "New Chocolate Desserts."

Three single-session classes to begin Tuesday, Oct. 22 are "Charity Sucek Presents More About Fish," "Historical Geology," "Astronomy: The Solar System," "Aggressive Study Techniques: The Keys to Successful Learning," and "Vital Options Exercise."

Community Education classes for adults which will start Wednesday, Oct. 23, include three multi-week classes: "Adventures in Understanding Art: Masterpieces of American Painting 1760-1960," "Personal Interior Design — Part II," and "Photography — Advanced." Single-session classes that start that day are "Kids and Nutrition" and "How to Attract Birds to Your Back Yard."

Classes continue Thursday, Oct. 24, with two single-session offerings, "The Voice and How It Works," and "Trends in Interior Design." In addition, a four-week offering, "Architecture and the Related Arts," will begin.

For space availability or other details, call Community Education at 343-2178.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who show me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. P.F.

REMEMBER, O MOST gracious Virgin Mary, that never was it known that anyone who fled to the protection, implored thy help or sought thy intercession, was left unaided. Inspired with this confidence, I fly unto thee, O Virgin of Virgins and Mother; to thee do I come, before thee I stand, sinful and sorrowful. O Mother of the Word Incarnate, despise not my petitions but in thy mercy hear and answer me. Amen. Say this Novena for 9 days. My request was granted. C.S.

5222 MARSEILLES owned by Steve Modla age 74 a well known battered hulk of a human being considering his lifetime of unbearable ordeals and inflicted illness, yet — somehow promotes a most humble new era. By deeds or action. 5222 MARSEILLES in its gist of entirety — truly represents a humble show place, a new era by established deeds of fact. As his many past achieved represented land marks so humbly represent and exemplify — among others his 88 acres of desert land and cotton fields in Mesa, Arizona converted into industrial land, as his philosophy and his congressional record, of May 1958, so vividly represents for a better America — over and over, again and again. Rent $600 a month or best offer. 881-1950.

REPORT TO ADVERTISERS:

In-teg-ri-ty
(in-teg-rät-ē) n. rigid adherence to a code of behavior, honesty.

Integrity is critical to a newspaper. It begins with ethical news gathering and reporting and extends to the advertising sales department as well. Advertisers must believe in the integrity of circulation information—the basis for intelligent advertising buying decisions.

That's why we subject our circulation records to independent verification by the Audit Bureau of Circulations. ABC is the oldest—and largest—not-for-profit circulation auditing organization in the world. Nearly 5,000 advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers have joined together to make ABC the standard for circulation integrity.

Before you buy any advertising, ask to see a copy of the latest ABC Audit Report. We'll be pleased to show you ours.
